HOUDINI GOES HOUR AND HALF UNDER WATER

Mystery Man Makes New Move in His Campaign Against "Bunk"

EXPLAINS HIS ACTION

BY BRADLEY W. TRENT
Special Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Houdini, the man of endless surprises, has sprung a new one to astonish men of science and confound those wizards of magic whose claims to extraordinary powers bordering on the supernatural arouse the wrath of the master mysterist.

The famous magician's feat this week in submitting for an hour and a half in an airtight metal casket, immersed in a swimming pool, without any visible means of obtaining air, was to him only another performance in his campaign to "de-bunk" the world at large on the pretentions of mystics, seers and spiritualists media who feel they are endowed with faculties not possessed by ordinary mortals.

To Broadway, it was a marvelous exhibition, for Broadway has been interested in a little argument Houdini has been having with a Hindu magician whose appearances here caused a ripple of excitement to surge through the bright light district.

Explains

Houdini explained his test to the writer a few hours after the ordeal, when he was recovering from its effects at his home in the shadow of Morningside Heights in upper Manhattan.

Incidentally a visit to Houdini's home is an experience worth a story in itself. In a narrow brownstone house of three stories, the magician and his wife live among strange exhibitions of manacles, a world famous library of books on mysticism and the occult, and countless boxes of documents and clippings from publications attesting to the wizard's feats.

Houdini was sitting in a little cubbyhole of a den on the third floor. His coat was draped on a chair beside him, his sleeves were rolled up and his shirt was unbuttoned at the throat. Broad shouldered, deep chested, and with piercing eyes, he looked very much a human sort of person, as he insists he is.

Houdini made his test in the casket to disprove assertions of the Hindu fakir that no ordinary human being could live longer than seven minutes in a sealed coffin of the size he used. The Hindu previously had made a similar experiment, remaining in the coffin for an hour. He claimed that he went into a catleptic trance which was necessary to remain in the casket without expiring.

Looks Pale

Houdini looked a trifle pale when the writer saw him but he said he felt no particular ill effects from his experience, except for a slight "iron taste" in his mouth. The casket in which he was imprisoned was made of galvanized iron, six and a half feet long, 22 inches wide and 22 inches deep. The cover was soldered on. Houdini was lowered into the pool, and two large iron weights and eight men kept the casket motionless on the bottom.

There were 34.398 cubic inches of air in the metal case, the oxygen in which should have been used up in three or four minutes, according to physicians. Houdini remained in the casket exactly one hour, 31 minutes and 30 seconds.

"There was no trickery about it," he said. "Any person in good health could do the same thing if he believed that he was safe, did not breathe too deeply and did not make any unnecessary movements."

"Shallow breathing" is the real explanation of his ability to stay so long in the coffin, Houdini said. Remaining perfectly motionless he needed only a small amount of air in each breath to maintain life. As the amount of carbon dioxide in the coffin increased Houdini said, he experienced some dizziness and at the time the casket was taken from the water he had begun to see tiny lights dancing before his eyes.

Houdini intends to keep right on exposing the "mercinary mountebanks and charlatans" who make false claims as to their hokus-pokus powers. He says frankly that he is a "trickster" himself, as are all others, but he is an expert in his line as much as the engineer or the architect—and he has been performing astounding feats of magic for 30 years.

Is 52 Years

Houdini is 52 years old and he avers he is good for many more. He was born in the little college town of Appleton in Wisconsin. His real name is Harry Weiss, but his legal name has been Harry Houdini for many years. As a boy he showed an insight into mechanics and also a tendency to travel. In his ninth year he had a brief experience in a "five cent circus." When his parents moved to Milwaukee he sold papers on the streets and then the wanderlust seized him and he ran away from home. He joined a small circus and there began the mastery of all manner of shackles and handcuffs. He has appeared in tours all over the world and he has still to meet his match in the wizardry of magic.

Condemned Texan, Free Eight Years Held in St. Louis

DALLAS, Aug. 7.—(AP)—District Attorney Shelby S. Cox and Allen Seale, nominee for sheriff, left late Saturday for St. Louis to bring back Emmett Vestal, escaped murderer under sentence of death, who has been missing since his escape eight years ago. Vestal was arrested Friday in the Missouri city.

Vestal was given a death sentence on July 23, 1917 by a jury in the criminal district court here in connection with the shooting to death of Roscoe Morrell of Welsetka, Okla., near Lancaster, Dallas county. The men were alleged to have been touring Texas in an automobile.

After Vestal's case was affirmed by the court of criminal appeals and before sentence was passed upon him, it was adjudged that he had become insane after his conviction. He was then placed in an insane asylum at Rusk, from which he escaped within a few days, and has been at liberty for the past eight years.

Request for extradition papers were prepared and sent to Austin to Governor Miriam A. Ferguson by John Erhard, Jr., assistant district attorney to be signed by the governor and forwarded to Cox at St. Louis, who will present them to the governor of Missouri should Vestal refuse to return to Texas without extradition papers.

Tempest In Teapot Says Marshall Hicks

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Marshall Hicks, law partner of Robert S. Bobbitt, said tonight: "No law has been violated by anybody. The whole thing is a tempest in a teapot. The very fact that the contributions referred to were set forth in a sworn report of Moody's headquarters, filed with the secretary of state for public inspection, shows the good faith of all parties.

"The $250 mentioned as being contributed by Robert S. Bobbitt was not given by him but was contributed by me personally. The check was a firm check of Hicks, Dickson and Bobbitt and the letter which enclosed this check was written by Mr. Bobbit, but the money was donated by me alone.

"I tonight telephoned Mr. Satterwhite concerning the matter and he authorized me to say that he did not contribute one cent to Dan Moody's campaign. He said that Judge A. B. Martin of Plainview gave him (Satterwhite) a check for $250 as a contribution to the Dan Moody fund and he (Satterwhite) cashed this check and sent his personal check to Dan Moody's campaign committee and thus transmitted Judge Martin's contribution to the committee.

"In making up the statement of campaign contributions and expenditures as required by law Dan Moody's campaign manager listed the contributions in the names of Mr. Bobbitt and Mr. Satterwhite, who, in fact, transmitted the checks to the Moody campaign committee but neither of these gentlemen made any contributions or violated the law."

AMARILLO, Aug. 7.—(AP)—When interviewed Saturday night by a representative of the Associated Press, Lee Satterwhite of this city, speaker of the house of representatives stated "I am not in the least disturbed." He stated further regarding the article in the reference to Moody's primary campaign contributions so far as I know no violation of the law has been made on my part.

Mr. Satterwhite leaves Sunday morning for Dallas to assist in canvassing primary election returns and to meet with a group of legislators to make plans for convention of the legislature this fall and to arrange for special session called by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson.

$10,000 BOND FOR MARSHALL

New Evidence Brings Increase in Surety For Wichita Man

A new bond of $10,000 for Henry Marshall, charged with murder in connection with the shooting of his cousin, Charles Marshall, at his home on Taylor street on the night of July 17, was ordered by Judge R. V. Guinn, justice of the peace, Saturday morning upon the application of the district attorney's department. The motion by the district attorney stated that new evidence and new facts had been uncovered which, it was believed, made the larger bond necessary. The old bond of $3,000, set on July 22, when Marshall was first charged with murder was set aside. Marshall had not perfected the larger amount late Saturday.

Find Body July 18.

The body of Charles Marshall, age 21, was discovered in the back yard of a Taylor street home on the morning of Sunday, July 18, with five bullets buried in its chest. AUSTIN RIFE WITH TALK ON DAN DILEMMA

Law Is Quoted By Which "Redhead" May Be Kept Off Ticket

MOODY SAYS NOTHING

AUSTIN, Aug. 7.—(AP)—A candidate for an office in a Texas primary election lays himself liable of being prosecuted in accepting campaign contributions from other candidates in the election and the donors of such contributions can be prosecuted in a like manner, a reading of the revised criminal statutes for 1925 revealed Saturday.

This ruling caused much comment tonight when it was learned from a sworn statement of campaign expenditures and contributions filed with the secretary of state by Dan Moody, who led the field in the recent primary election for the democratic gubernatorial nomination, that Representative Lee Satterwhite of Amarillo, and Representative R. L. Bobbitt of Laredo, had contributed $250 towards Moody's campaign. Both of the representatives were candidates for re-election.

Article 267 of chapter 8 (limiting expenditures in primary elections) provides that any candidates who "contributes any money or thing of value for the furtherance of the candidacy of any other candidate shall be fined not to exceed $1,000 or be confined in jail not to exceed one year, or both."

Article 268 of the same chapter provides that "any person who receives any money or thing of value to be used in violation of or for any purpose prohibited by any provision of this chapter shall be punished by a fine not to exceed $1,000 or by confinement in jail for not more than one year, or by both such fine and punishment or by confinement in the penitentiary for not less than one nor more than five years."

The civil statutes appear to be in

Dan's Eligibility Threatened From Campaign Gifts

Executive Committee Meeting At Dallas Monday May Turn Runoff Election to Mrs. Ferguson and Lynch Davidson, Dropping Moody, High Man.

Texas political circles were staggered last night by prospects of a political coup unprecedented in the state's history, the result of which would be to bar from the second primary and from the general election the name of Dan Moody, leader for governor in the first primary by an overwhelming vote.

The prospect was made possible by the fact that the democratic state executive committee, which will meet Monday at Dallas to certify the names of the candidates, consists in the majority of political adherents of the Fergusons. The ground on which the attempt to bar Moody will be made is the allegation that he received campaign contributions from men who, like himself, were candidates for office, which is a violation of the Texas criminal and civil statutes.

Although Moody made no statement last night, Marshall Hicks, a leading supporter, denied that Moody had received such contributions, asserting that the contributions listed in the names of Lee Satterwhite and R. S. Bobbitt were made by others through Bobbitt and Satterwhite, and did not represent their personal donations.

Of five members of the democratic state executive committee with whom the Record News communicated Saturday night, one said, "I would not hesitate a moment to bar Moody if it appeared the law had been violated," while the other four said they had no comment until they knew more of the facts.

The three principals in the first primary, Moody, Ferguson and Davidson, all refused to comment for publication. The first two have announced their intention of being present at the committee meeting in Dallas Monday. Davidson had announced that he would not attend, and said last night that he had nothing further to say on that sore.

The Record News telephoned Arthur Eidson of the democratic state executive committee at his home in Hamilton, and asked him what would be the effect of this development. Mr. Eidson replied: "I don't care to commit myself until I know the facts in the case. This is absolutely the first I have heard about this thing." The Record News then called other members of the committee, the first to answer being Harry Tom King, Abilene, who, in reply to the same question said: "I would not hesitate a minute to vote to take Mr. Moody's name off the ticket if I thought the law required it. I would not, however, countenance this on a flimsy pretext." Mr. King also stated "that this was the first he knew of the matter. "But I knew something was up this morning when Arthur Eidson of Hamilton called me and said for me to be sure and be at the Baker hotel at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon for a conference." A man at Austin also called on this subject," said Mr. King, not giving the Austin man's name.

When asked what was the significance of the report that B. Y. Cummings of Wichita Falls, another member of the committee, had given away his proxy to the chairman of the Moody for governor club, Mr. King said, "I do not know what the idea was in Cummings giving away his proxy to a Moody man." Cummings was out of the city Saturday night and could not be reached. W. E. George, the Wichita Falls Moody chairman, told the Record News that "I have Cummings' proxy." Cummings was the leader of the Ferguson forces in the Wichita Falls meeting on July 14. At that meeting the committee showed a personnel of 23 Ferguson men, seven Moody and one Davidson—although all of these were not present.

"Butte Bolters."

Mr. King declared that it had been his intention to surrender the convention at San Antonio to Mr. Moody and his friends in an orderly manner, if they came with the proper credentials. "I wasn't going to stand if I could help it for a lot of Butte bolters for committeemen, however," he added.

He stated that he did not care to commit himself further until he knew more of the circumstances, and said that he supposed that he would be appraised of them in detail in the conference with Mr. Eidson at the Baker hotel at Dallas this afternoon. In this connection he said that "another man" from Austin called him Saturday also and told him to be sure and be in Dallas Monday. He would not say who this "other man" was. "I know of nothing sure to come before the committee beyond its regular routine," he declared in conclusion.

Three Ferguson Pillars.

Harry Tom King of Abilene, W. W. Jones of Mineola, and Cecil Smith of Sherman were the three men who comprised the resolutions committee of the convention when it met here last June 14. These three were they, who handed the committee for adoption the declaration that the state executive committee "gives full and complete indorsement to the present democratic officers and commends their administration as being economical, faithful, and efficient." And in support of their creation made speeches on the flor of the convention room in which the political actions of James E. Ferguson and his wife, Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, were lauded to

Now He's Winner Now He Ain't

DALLAS, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Substitution of revised complete returns, in some cases official, from 29 counties and the correction of an error of 3,000 made in tabulating the vote of Milam county today resulted in wiping out Dan Moody's majority of 1,013 given in the last previously published tabulation made by the Texas election bureau. In the latest tabulation he lacks 1,611 of having a majority.

The erroneous Milam county figures gave him 5,411 instead of 2,411 votes. With this corrected he lacked 1,987 votes of having a majority. He gained 376 by the substitution of revised figures from the other 29 counties.

The revised totals follow:

Davidson, 122,801; Ferguson, 282,490; Johnston, 1,065; Moody, 409,215; Milmans, 1,548; Zimmerman, 2922. Davidson lost 199 votes by the revised figures. Total vote 820,041.

The manager of the bureau said Saturday that all returns in possession of the bureau had been rechecked, but that official returns from many counties probably would show slight variations from bureau returns, due to the fact that returns are gathered by telephone and also because precinct chairmen reporting to county chairman.

Sanger Stores Sold To Kansas City Man, "Believes In Texas"

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Purchase from Stifel, Nicolaus and company Inc., St. Louis, of a controlling interest in the $14,000,000 Sanger Brothers stores of Dallas, Waco and Fort Worth, Tex., was announced tonight by Chester L. Jones, president and general manager of the Jones Department store of Kansas City.

Mr. Jones, as president of a recently formed corporation, the Chester L. Jones stores corporation which will control Sanger Brothers, Inc., will go to Dallas shortly to take over active direction of the Sanger stores which are to form the nucleus for a chain of department stores in the larger cities of the country.

Mr. Jones is a director and large stockholder in the Mercantile Stores company, Inc., of New York city which owns and operates 22 department stores in large cities, but the Sanger purchase has no connection with this organization, the announcement says.

Stifel, Nicolaus and company, Inc., purchased the Sanger stores last July 22.

The name "Jones" in the department store filed in Kansas City is as well known as the name "Sanger" in Texas. History of the growth and development is almost parallel. Each started in a small modest way and through fair dealing have developed outstanding institutions.

Mr. Jones said, "It was really my faith in the future of the great state of Texas which prompted my investment. There are stores equally as well and as favorably known in every state which could have been purchased, but with a first hand knowledge of conditions all over the country I believe Texas, with its unlimited resources and opportunity for development offers a greater possibility for the future than any of the older states."

DALLAS MEET TO BE STORMY

Ferguson Has Whip Hand In State Committee For 30 Days

DALLAS, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Indications Saturday night were that the meeting of the democratic state executive committee here Monday will be stormy. Ostensibly meeting according to law to canvas the democratic primary and to certify the candidates for the coming run-off election as well as the nominees who received a majority, a strong under current of feeling here foreshadowed more than a routine session. These meetings are generally a quiet affair.

Adding special significance to the gathering is the fact that both Attorney General Dan Moody and former Governor James E. Ferguson plan to arrive in Dallas. Both are scheduled to go into conference with their supporters here Sunday.

Screens of Rumor

Behind screens of rumor and prediction, however, it was definitely announced that opponents of Attorney General Moody will seek to have the committee refuse to place his name on the democratic ballot as he has failed to secure a majority. And in the event he has a majority these opponents will seek to have his name disqualified as nominee of the party in the November general election.

Articles 267 and 265 of the revised criminal statutes of Texas, coupled with Article 3173 of the revised civil statutes of Texas, will furnish ammunition for both sides in the impending controversy and may be received only after the matter has been taken to court by one of the two opposing sides.

While the coming convention will undoubtedly be overwhelmingly for Moody, the present state executive committee, with about one month of life left, is said to have an equally overwhelming majority who opposed Moody's candidacy and supported Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson for re-election.

The Lineups

The lineup of the present state committee, it was reliably indicated, shows that 23 of the 32 members are staunch Ferguson supporters, seven are supporters of Moody and R. B. Humphreys of Dallas, voted Lynch Davidson. Sixteen constitute a working majority in the committee.

Legal ground on which Moody's opponents hope to disqualify him will be sought in Article 267 of the revised criminal statutes and reading "one candidate contributing to another."

According to press reports from Austin the pre-election expense account of Moody, filed near July 1, he listed contributions of $250 each from Lee Satterwhite and R. L. Bobbitt. On these two items, if found as alleged, the fight to keep Moody's name off the general election may be centered.

HEAT CRAZED TEXAN AMUCK

Slays Two At Little Chicago Then Turns Fatal Gun On Self

CUERO, Tex., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Believed to have been crazed with heat, William Mueller, a farm laborer, ran amuck Friday night and shot C. J. Mueller his cousin, slew Mrs. C. J. Mueller and then blew his brains out with a shotgun at Mueller's farm home near Little Chicago.

According to reports given Sheriff G. A. Lenz who investigated the killings, C. J. Mueller had worked in the fields poisoning cotton pests until late at night and then returned to his home.

As he was preparing to retire, William Mueller, his cousin, came through the gate and shot him through a window, the charges from the shotgun hitting him in the back and side.

Runs for Aid.

C. J. Mueller ran to a neighborhood house for aid and was taken to Yorktown for treatment.

In the meantime, Mrs. C. J. Mueller had seized her young son from the bed and fled into the cotton field, lighting her way with a small flashlight. William Mueller followed by the flashes of light and overtook her about four hundreds yards from the house. A charge from the shotgun practically beheaded her.

Mueller's body was found beside her with a part of his head shot away.

The boy was unharmed and was found crouching beside the body of his mother. He was covered with blood from his mother's body, apparently having stumbled over her when she fell from the shots.

In U. S. Two Years.

William Mueller had been a laborer on his cousin's farm for about two years since he had come over from Germany.

C. J. Muller had paid his expenses from the old country and neighbors and officials could assign no cause for the killing other than he had become suddenly insane.

Neighbors said that for several days William Mueller had been complaining of pains in his head and had gone to a doctor for relief. It is believed that the oppressive heat intensified the pain and drove him insane.

C. J. Mueller's wounds are not considered serious. At an early hour today he had not been told of his wife's death, physicians preferring to wait until he was entirely out of danger.

street where Henry Marshall the night before had reported to police two or three men attempted to hold him up. Marshall, warned he says by a premonition that someone was waiting for him, participated in a gun battle with the alleged high-jackers, according to the story he told police.

Marshall's car, a Chrysler roadster, bearing a Louisiana license, was riddled with bullets; Marshall himself told that he believed he had shot one of the men in the hand. The body of the dead man was not found until about nine o'clock Sunday morning. It was identified by Marshall as that of his cousin, Charles Marshall.

Tells of Meeting Cousin.

Marshall immediately told officers of having met his cousin in a barber shop the day before and of having displayed a large roll of bills he had with him to his relative's eyes. Police, with his aid, picked up Fred Keyes, R. C. Flowers, and J. F. Linley, all of whom, Henry Marshall stated, were companions of Charles Marshall, and had been with him the day before. A fourth man, Charles Meade, was arrested late Sunday at Seymour, with a bullet wound in his hand, and brought to Wichita Falls. The four were charged with highway robbery in connection with the affair. In a preliminary hearing which followed all four were held on bonds of varying amounts. Keyes and Flowers being released later however, on a writ of habeas corpus granted by Judge E. G. Thornton of the 30th district court.

While some officers expressed the opinion that the shooting was nothing more than a highway robbery case, members of the district attorney's office held from the first that there was evidence which did not support the theory, and on July 22 Henry Marshall was arrested, charged with murder, and placed under a $3,000 bond to await action of the grand jury.

Early this week the investigation was reopened by the district attorney. W. J. Marshall, Charles Marshall's father, was called from Tulsa to tell what he knew about the affair. Henry Marshall was brought in from time to time for quizzing, but no action was taken or any statement issued until Saturday morning when Marshall was re-arrested and the motion for an increased bond made to Judge Guinn. The motion states that the state's attorneys have discovered new evidence and new facts.

Victim's Father Here.

Charles Marshall's father, W. J. Marshall of Tulsa, has from the first expressed the belief that the case was not one of highway robbery as purported. Henry Marshall, charged with the murder, was reared in the same family with the dead man, the father states. "The boys had the same relation as brothers," he said Saturday morning.

Marshall Sr. is a quiet, retiring man, about 45 years of age. Since the Sunday morning on which the body of his boy was discovered riddled with bullets he has taken an active interest in the investigation of the matter.

Marshall perfected the bond of $10,000 shortly afternoon, William Weber, Mrs. Joe Barton, and Mrs. Millie Michna signing the surety with him.

DEMO MEET

direct conflict with the revised civil statutes of 1925, articles 3171 of chapter 14, (limiting expenditures in primarly) recites "It shall be lawful for any person other than a corporation to make ccampaign contributions," etc.

Chapter 14 does not mention the contributing to one candidate by another. Article 1373 of this chapter says, "Any candidate who shall knowingly violate or who shall knowingly permit or assent to the violation of any provision of this chapter by any campaign manager or assistant campaign manager, or other person, shall thereby forfeit his right to have his name placed upon the primary ballot, or if nominated in the primary election to have his name placed on the official ballot at the general election."

Ferguson Mum Too.

James E. Ferguson, husband and adviser of the governor, had no comment to make when informed of the situation.

Speculation was lively as to whether the campaign contributions would be injected into discussion of the democratic state executive committee Monday at Dallas. Before the primary, the committee was decidedly pro-Ferguson, as evidenced by its endorsement of Governor Ferguson's administration at its Wichita Falls meeting.

Article 3171 of chapter 14, revised civil statutes, points out that any citizens may attack the right of a candidate to a place on a ticket by bringing quo warranto proceedings in the district court of any county, and that any candidate may establish such right by the same method.

Articles 267 and 268 follow:

Article 267—"Any candidate for a nnomination in a primary election or his campaign manager or his assistant campaign manager, who shall directly or indirectly himself or by or through another person, give, pay, expend or contribute any money or thing of value for the furtherance of the candidacy of any other candidate shall be fined not to exceed one thousand dollars or be confined in jail not to exceed one year, or both.

Article 268—"Any candidate or other person who furnishes, gives, or delivers to another person any money or other thing of value to be used in violation of or for any purpose prohibited by any provision of this chapter and any person who receives or accepts any money or thing of value to be used in violation of or for any purpose prohibited by any provision of this chapter shall be punished by a fine not to exceed one thousand dollars or by confinement in jail for not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment, or by confinement in the penitentiary for not less than one nor more than five years."

ELECTION LAW

the skies, and, indirectly, the policies of Mr. Moody assailed.

Headed Steam Roller.

B. Y. Cummings, the Wichita Falls committeeman, it was who with C. C. McDonald, voting a proxy, remained at the helm of what was aptly termed the "Ferguson steam roller," and presented every motion of the Ferguson machine. Homer Latham, Mineola, took part in the proceedings of the Wichita Falls meeting of the committee beyond voting with monotonous regularity "no" on the Moody substitute resolutions, and "aye, aye, aye" on those in support of the Fergusons.

A shift of unknown proportions for the next meeting was indicated by the action of Cummings. Homer Latham of Bowie, was the third member of the committee to answer. He said that he had heard nothing of the situation noted above, but declared, "I think it a matter for the courts rather than for the committee. I do not know how I will vote if the question of certifying Mr. Moody's name for the ballot comes up under the circumstances that you describe." He added that "if the committee should exclude Moody, it is probable that the matter whould immediately be taken to a court and a mandamus proceedings resorted to there. The committee, in event Moody were excluded, would, I should suppose certify Mrs. Ferguson and Lynch Davidson as run-off candidates."

Jones "Knows Nothing"

Walter W. Jones of Mineola could not be reached until nearly midnight. At that time he stated as had the others that the information given him over the long distance telephone was the first that he had in the matter. "I haven't had time to think about it," Mr. Jones stated. "I am going to Dallas Sunday and will be there for the committee meeting Monday but I haven't the slightest idea what I will do. The situation so far as I know is unprecedented."

He stated that he had not been in communication with other members of the committee, and said that he had not been invited to attend the conference spoken of by Mr. King at the Baker hotel this evening.

Cecil Smith of Sherman, another committeeman, stated when he was called that he had not intended to attend the meeting at Dallas, Harry S. Fulton of Van Alstyne having been designated to bear his proxy. He stated that he knew nothing about the situation that had arisen, and refused to commit himself until he became more familiar with its details.

George to Dallas On Cummings Proxy

W. E. George, Wichita Falls attorney, and manager of the Moody-for-Governor club during the past primary campaign will leave this morning for Dallas where he will attend the meeting of the state executive committee Monday. Mr. George bears the proxy of B. Y. Cummings, Wichita Falls member of the committee, who, according to Mr. George gave it to him with the instructions to vote according to the "dictates of his conscience."

Mr. Cummings' action, at first taken by those interested in things political to mean that the Ferguson forces, of which Mr. Cummings was a leader, would make no effort to control the state committee meeting, presented a mystery Saturday night with Ferguson henchmen in other parts of the state apparently preparing for a fight in their chief's behalf Monday. Harry Tom King of Abilene, another member of the committee declared, "I don't know what Mr. Cummings had in mind. We had thought to control the committee but if others have given their proxies to those who temporarily hold the advantage over us, I don't know what will happen."

Mr. Cummings was out of the city late Saturday and could not be reached over the telephone.

Marine Sergeant Appointed to Senate

DES MOINES, Aug. 7.—(AP)—David E. Stewart, Sioux City attorney, today was appointed by Governor Hammill as United States senator to serve from now until the November general election in the place of the late Senator A. B. Cummins. Stewart was named by the state republican convention here yesterday as the party's nominee in the November election for the term of Senator Cummins which expires in March, 1927.

Stewart, a former first sergeant of World war marines, has climbed from comparative political obscurity into the limelight as the choice of Iowa republicans for the short term in the United States senate.

The lawyer, 39 years old, and one of the youngest men ever nominated for the senate from this state, was selected yesterday as the party candidate for the unexpired term of Senator Albert B. Cummins, defeating a number of veteran campaigners, including Smith W. Brookhart, long-term nominee.

BURNED UNDER AUTO

FORT WORTH, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Edward Crow, 26, was severely burned when his automobile turned over and caught fire while he was pinned under it early Saturday. Emergency officers discovered his plight and took him to a hospital, where it was at first thought his injuries were fatal. He later rallied.

Greatest Thrill Not Mental Or Heart's Thrill Says Waltrip

"The greatest thrill in the world is not a physical thrill, a mental thrill, or a heart thrill, for these do not last always," Burroughs A. Waltrip, youthful evangelist, did a large audience in the gospel tent at Ninth and Brook last night, "but the greatest thrill in all the world is the thrill in your soul when you realize that your soul is everlasting—that it will see God."

"The greatest thrill, that of loving and serving Christ, not only makes you happier, but it transforms the lives of those you live with and work with every day. Conquer yourself, live pure, stay clean and you'll always be happy wherever you live or whatever you do in life," he declared.

Waltrip plans to speak tonight at 8:15 on "The Modern Christ."

$15,000 Purse Hangs Before T-O Fair Exhibitors

MODEL FARM, IRRIGATED, BIG FEATURE

Lectures On Wet and Dry Farming to Be Given Daily

RODEO AND PAGEANTS

The premium list and catalog of the 1926 Texas-Oklahoma Fair is being mailed out by the publicity department of the Fair Association this week. Prizes totalling more than $15,000 are being offered for exhibits ranging from the highest grade blooded stock to the best bunch of turnips.

Since the fair of last year the Fair association has increased its capital stock to $225,000. With the increased capital, the outstanding obligations have been paid and the remainder used for needed improvements at the fair grounds.

In addition to the most interesting array of exhibits ever gathered in this part of the country, there will be a fine line of entertainment features including carnival shows, fireworks, rodeo, horse show, auto races, automobile show, music and pageants.

Model Irrigated Farm

A most interesting new feature of the fair this year will be the exhibition of a model irrigation farm. The farm will be located within the fair grounds, and will be aranged and conducted by expert irrigation men who will explain the various designs and arrangements as well as give any other miscellaneous information in regard to irrigation that may be desired. Lectures on farming and irrigating each day will also be conducted in connection with this event.

National Poultry Meets

The poultry department has been one of the most important events of the fair from the beginning of its existence, and has been growing steadily with each year of showings. This year there will be a special feature in the poultry department because of the unusual number of national and state meets which will be held with the Texas-Oklahoma fair.

Conveniences

Conveniences at the fair grounds will be better than ever this year. Telephone and telegraph service from the fair grounds, free seats under large tents, a check room, an emergency hospital in charge of the Red Cross, an information bureau, a check room and comfort stations will be available to the general public.

Freight Transportation

Under a special ruinig allowed for fair exhibits, which are shipped exclusively for show purposes and not for sale, rates are given a follows:

When exhibited at one fair and then rturned to its original shipping point within thirty days, all exhibits will be carried at half charges. The rules applies when exhibits are shipped to other fairs from this fair, for show purposes.

The Wichita Falls & Southern railway has a switch track at the fair grounds and will provide every facility for handling all the exhibits coming in.

Livestock Department

The livestock department is most complete in every detail this year. Several thousand dollars are offered in this department in prizes, and an award is offered for almost every kind of range and dairy animal raised in the southwest. Prizes offered in this exhibit are as follows:

Herefords: A total of $1,955.00 divided into twenty-five classifications.

Shorthorns: A total of $1,260 divided into twenty-five classifications.

Aberdeen Angus: A total of $345 divided into twenty-five classifications.

Red Polled: A total of $330 divided into twenty-five classifications.

Galloways: A total of $330 divided into twenty-five classifications.

Boys and Girls Baby Beef: A total of $30 divided into two classifications.

Jerseys: A total of $940 divided into twenty-two classifications. The chamber of commerce will award a Silver Trophy Cup for the best Jersey bull born and raised in Wichita or adjoining counties.

Ayrshires: A total of $570 divided into twenty-two clasifications.

Holstein-Friesian: A total of $570 divided into twenty-two classifications. The Holstein-Friesian Association of America offers a fine bronze medal for the best herd of Holstein-Friesian cattle exhibited at the fair.

Big Swine Exhibit

An unusually large exhibit of swine is expected at the fair this year, due to a consistent breeding up of porkers in this section of the country, and because of a fine lot of feed for feeding out. The swine department is offering the following prizes:

Duroc Jersey: A total of $445 divided into twenty-one classificatioss.

Hampshire: A total of $445 divided into twenty-one classifications.

Poland China: A total of $445 divided into twenty-one classifications.

New Sheep Awards Offered

The depatment of sheep and goats has been increased to cover every breed of sheep known in this section. They include Shopshire, Hampshire, Southdowns, Oxford Downs, Merino, Rambouillet, Karakule, Karaline, Dorsets, Cotswolds, Angora goats and milch goats. Substantial prizes are offered in each of the breeds.

Greatest Poultry Event

Since the beginning of the fair, interest in the poultry department has increased with each successive showing, greater attractions have been added from year to year, until with the opening of the 1926 Texas-Oklahoma Fair comes the grand climax to the poultry exhibits. This year fair patrons will be able to attend right here in Wichita Falls the Southern National Meet of the American Single Comb Brown Leghorn club; the National Meet of the Rhode Island White club; the State Meet of the White Wyandotte club; the State Meet of the Buff Orpington club; the State Meet of the Single Comb Black Minorca club; the State Meet of the American Barred Rock club; and the Fourth District American King Pidgeon Meet. Silver cup awards will be made by these clubs in each event, and a substantial prize is offered in addition by the Fair Association.

This will be one of the greatest poultry and bird exhibits ever held in the southwest, and will be well worth the time and money spent in attending the fair.

Extensive Agriculture Exhibits

The greatest exhibit of agricultural products of northwest Texas and southwestern Oklahoma ever shown in expected to be here at the 1926 fair. An exceptional season and crop year and unusually attractive prize offers have made this possible. At no time has this section been in a better position to make a grand showing, and all effort will be made to get a full and complete variety of entries.

The prizes include offerings for corn, popcorn, cotton, wheat, barley, oats, maze and kaffir, a variety of feed, grains, grass and forage, vegetables, fruit, tobacco and miscellaneous exhibits.

Boys' Agricultural Clubs

A total of $224 in prizes is offered to boys agricultural club throughout this trade territory, and includes offerings for corn, cotton, grains and sorghums, peanuas, etc. These exhibits promise to be among the most interesting at the fair.

Many County Exhibits

More than $3,000 is offered to the counties of Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico for group exhibits at the fair. This department always has been the show place for the event and this year the committee is expecting a greater showing than ever before. Some of the finest crop exhibits of the world will be seen here, and a lively contest for first money and the Blue Ribbon will surely be a feature. The first prize will be $300 and the tenth prize $100. This allows a wide range for winners.

The Women's department has been growing steadily with the fair, until now their scope of activity includes no less than forty different exhibit features, a prize being offered for each and every one of the different showings, and seevral prizes included in some of them.

The women's department includes, club exhibits, for preservation, canning methods, plants and flowers, house furnishings, sewing, decorative art, domestic science, cooking, baking, candies, etc. This range of exhibits include every activity of the woman in the home and on the farm.

There are also an Art Department and an educational department which have a complete listing of prizes and awards for each detailed showing, and will add greatly to the perfectness of the great event.

Directors and superintendents of the fair this year deserve a great deal of credit for having arranged such a gigantic spectacle for the advertising and educating of this section of the southwest. Their designs have been to make the 1926 fair better and greater than any previous year, and the advance information indicates that it will go far beyond their expectations.

Chinese Heat Record For 30 Years 102.2

SHANGHAI, Aug. 7.—(AP)— A fall of four degrees in the temperature today below yesterday's thirty-year record of 102.2 degrees has decreased the number of heat prostrations and alleviated slightly the cholera epidemic which developed with appaling swiftness with the mounting thermometer.

Although many foreigners have been prostrated by the heat and perhaps two score attacked by cholera, only two foreigners have died from the cholera and less than a dozen from the heat, according to reports.

Can't Get a Jury if Gossip Continues Prosecution Complains

FORT WORTH, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Truce to gossip and newspaper reports concerning the slaying of D. E. Chipps by Rev. Dr. J. Frank Norris was bespoken here today in a statement by W. P. McLean, special prosecutor, who declared that continued discussion will make it difficult or impossible to obtain a "fair and unbiased" jury.

HE'S WRONG BUT ALL RIGHT

Heart and Liver All Gummed Up! But He Worries Not.

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 7.—(AP)—A Richmond man who had known for some time that his heart was on the right side learned that his liver and appendix were on the left when he was brought to Grace hospital today for an operation.

"He had acute appendicitis," said Dr. Robert Bryan, surgeon, who did not disclose the man's name. "I opened the right side. No appendix. So I opened the left side and found it. He is doing well."

Dr. Bryan said that the patient, despite the misplaced organs, had enjoyed splendid health all his life.

"LET THE MAJORITY RUL"

"SPEAKING as an individual, I believe the time has come when the democratic party should change this time-worn procedure which, so far as I know, does not prevail in any other nominating convention, either national or state. There is no reason why the democratic party should be unique in this respect unless by doing so it promotes its own welfare or serves its own name. Experience has pretty well demonstrated the present system does not do either. I think it would be a good thing to eliminate both the unit and two-thirds rule. It is better that the majority of the delegates should select the candidates in a democratic convention. A change in the procedure would tend to prevent long continued deadlocks. Rule of the majority is one of the cardinal principles of the democratic party. It is a logical thing to apply that principle to its own deliberation and permit the minority to understand that, if it hopes to prevail, it must look to the day when it becomes the majority."

Now who said it? John W. Davis of West Virginia and New York. And, John W. Davis, despite his overwhelming defeat by Calvin Coolidge, continues the titular leader of the democratic party until the standard of leadership shall be placed in the hands of another by a national convention in 1928. Davis is for harmony and party solidarity. Speaking of peace and harmony in the party, he said:

"I can think of no change which would have a greater tendency to promote peace and harmony in the party as a whole. The present system, under which approximately one-third of the delegates are in a position to veto the will of the other two-thirds, lends itself to group control, to dictation by a bloc or blocs. Whenever a number of groups are able to consolidate themselves, they are able to exercise the veto power. The system tends to disintegration, whether the veto is exercised by one large bloc or a combination of small ones. Substitute the rule of majority and there will be a trend in all groups on whatever basis they may have been formed toward amalgamation with the major forces of the convention. The majority when finally formed will have been drawn from all divisions. Instead of disintegration the procedure will tend to solidify the party ranks."

Democrats of Texas are reminded that reform is necessary within their ranks and that the way to bring about party solidarity is to rid the organization of the two-thirds and the unit rule and leave delegates free and unfettered to name candidates for president and vice president and for the drafting and adoption of a platform of principle. In less than two years from this time the war will be on for control of forty delegates to the convention, and the little bosses who are committed to the two-thirds and the unit rule are already making their plans for a hogtied delegation.

BLEDSOE OF LUBBOCK

THERE is a special session of the legislature coming. In the closing days of the regular session of the 39th legislature Senator William H. Bledsoe of Lubbock was elected president protem of the upper house. His term will expire upon the opening day of the special session, so it is said, and there is going to be an interesting contest for possession of the prize.

If Governor Ferguson had stepped down and out and Barry Miller had taken the reins, there would have been a vacancy in the office of lieutenant-governor, and the president protem of the senate would have become lieutenant governor of Texas.

Out in the land of the open spaces, the people call him Bill Bledsoe. He is a prominent lawyer as well as a prominent member of the Bar of Texas and his friends say for him that he has never recognized a boss throughout his political career.

He was not born in the open space country. He is a native of Johnson county where he practiced law in his early years, and his father in the long ago was a member of the lower house of the Texas legislature.

There is going to be many interesting sidelights developed in September when the lawmakers assemble under the Big Dome for validating and other purposes. This is the prediction of those who are on the inside as well as those who are on the outside.

Lame duck season will not come until January, 1927. There is going to be an effort on the part of many lawmakers to bring about legislation providing for civil service in Texas. They hold that state employes should be governed by civil service laws and rules and it is time to make a start.

HE IS A THIRD TERMER

HON. JAMES W. STEVENSON of Victoria and Refugio counties will be a member of the lower house in the 40th legislature. He served in the 38th and 39th legislature. He owns a big ranch in Refugio county and backed Dan Moody for governor after the Ferguson bond speech made at Wichita Falls, created a political sensation in the financial and business districts of Texas. The gentleman from Refugio filed his expense account in his recent race for the legislature. This is the way it read, "I have received no money, borrowed no money and incurred no liability." Brevity is the soul of wit. If a man has a message to send, why not make it pithy? If he has a report to file, why not say it in a few words?

Representative Stevenson is a ranchman, as has been said, and a farmer as well as a ranchman. He has a big place overlooking the bay and in fishing season fishing is good. He is not a native Texan. He was born in Pennsylvania. College days over he invaded the news room of the Pittsburg times and became a star reporter. He jumped from Pittsburg to New York, where he engaged in newspaper work and played politics as a democrat.

Colonel George B. McClellan became mayor of New York. He was popular with newspaper writers. Stevenson became chief clerk in the office of the comptroller of the city of New York and remained in this position during the two terms of McClellan as mayor. He met a Texas girl and she married him. She moved him to Texas and he became a ranchman and farmer.

He did not lose love for politics. His people drafted him and elected him to the 38th. His friends of the invisible empire named another for the 39th, but the democrats who backed Stevenson penciled his name on the ticket and he defeated the candidate of the invisible empire people. He announced for a third term and now he is coming back.

For months and months as a member of the legislature, he co-operated with Joseph A. Kemp and others, endeavoring to bring about a special session in order that validating legislation might be enacted. As has been stated he was for the Fergusons until the Wichita Falls speech. This finished him. He crossed over on the side of those who held that the credit of Texas should be called in special session for validating purposes.

His report of the cost of his campaign is a model of its kind. "I have received no money, borrowed no money and incurred no liability." This adopted Texan who was trained in the newspaper business in the city of Pittsburg and trained in politics in the city of New York always knows where to find his hat.

He found it this year. He will be back under the big dome in September for validation legislation and again under the big dome in the month of January, 1927.

HAVE ONE

THAT the crusades to reform the habits of others usually have the opposite effect is again demonstrated in the case of the lowly cigarette. For years forceful drives were aimed at the "coffin nail," but there was no appreciable result. Instead the use has steadily increased, and the war completed the popularity of the smoke. It is now recognized socially, having entered through the portals of milady's lips.

A survey by the department of commerce reveals that the 1925 production of cigarettes reached nearly 80,000,000,000—count them. This was a gain, although cigars and other forms of manufactured tobacco showed a decrease.

America, however, did not puff away at all of these. The United States, is engaged in exporting, so Lady Nicotine beguiles the hours for others besides residents of this country. The exports to China fell off 50 per cent because of economic disturbances, but other nations made up the loss. Canada, the Philippines, Hayti and the Straits settlements have greatly enlarged their purchases of cigarettes.

Thus the Americanization and civiliaztion of the world move forward by lighting up.

HOW TO MAKE MONEY

HOW to make money is something every man should know. W. C. Durant knows. He picked up $1,500,000 in a stock flurry in Wall street, and he is said to have picked up $20,000,000 in the past five years sticking to the same stock. Durant is a motor manufacturer. He is one of the kings of the motor world. He isn't a piker for the sky is the limit and his field of operation the world.

Lafayette, Here We Go

Then, Robert Fulton Invented the Taxi Cab, Which Was Followed by Invention of Horse —By Ring Lardner

In the preceding chapter I told of my first meeting with Jane Austen. The beautiful little English woman had come to our shores in response to an attractive offer from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer people, one of those officers had spelled out her novel "Pride and Prejudice" and considered it good material for a seven-reel comedy. Syd Chaplin was at that time with this firm and was slated for the title role.

At the Time it Was Hailed as a Marvel.

Miss Austen had a few weeks' time to spare before she was due in Hollywood and it fell to my lot to entertain her. I postponed my engagement with President Pierce, whom I intended to interview in regard to my pension as general in the Spanish war, and placed myself entirely at the disposal of the little authoress. She expressed a desire to see the night life of New York and I organized a party to visit Texas Guinan's. In the party, besides myself and Miss Austen, or Janey as we called her, were Brinck Thorne, then captain of the Yale football nine and Harry Hills.

(Editor's note: The author evidently means "eleven," not "nine."

Author's note: Other teams would not play against Mr. Tohrne unless he limited himself to eight helpers instead of the regular ten.)

Crude Now But a Marvel Then.

After two or three rounds of drinks we decided we had had enough and a waiter brought us a check for $22.75. The other two men seemed to have paralysis of the arms and as I found only $1.50 in my pocket, I asked Miss Guinan if she would take my check. She said yes and I made out a check on the Great Neck Trust Company, but knowing my balance there was only $7.00, I purposely neglected to affix my signature. Miss Guinan's sharp eyes noticed the oversight and asked for my autograph. This piqued Miss Austen as she was really more famous than I at that time, so to smooth matters over I suggested that we all give Miss Guinan our autographs and start an album for her.

I next took Miss Austen to Albany to meet Governor Al ("Peaches") Smith. The governor received us with his usual simplicity and said he was a great admirer of Miss Austen's work.

"I thought 'The Green Hat' was a scream," he complimented her.

Miss Austen wanted to go to Hollywood by way of Pittsburgh, but at that time there was a federal law forbidding any railroad to run a train near that city. President Pierce was a born hater of Pittsburgh and remained in that frame of mind to his dying day. "Janey" was obliged to make the journey via Niagara Falls. She eventually reached Hollywood and supervised the screening of "Pride and Prejudice," which made a big success under its new title, "The Bath in Champagne."

It was about a month subsequent to my affair with Jane that the world was startled by Robert Fulton's invention of the taxi cab. The first taxi now would seem a crude vehicle, but at the time it was hailed as a marvel. It was a side-wheeler and was steered from the rear seat, by the passenger, thus insuring, at least, its arrival at the point where the passenger wanted to go. The driver sat in front and warned pedestrians out of the way. He generally did this by cupping his hands to his mouth and shouting, almost continuously, "Halloa! Halloa!" For a while the new conveyances were known as "Halloa cabs."

(Editor's note: They still are in some cities.)

The strain on the driver's voice was so great that very few of them were able to hold their jobs after a week or two. There was danger of the whole thing falling through because of the dearth of leather-lunged shouters and to obviate this, Fulton invented a musical instrument called the slide trombone and drivers were taught to play Berlin's "All Alone," the inference being that the cab wanted the street to itself. The instrument was so constructed that in case the pedestrians did not take warning from the melody, the driver could push the slide t oits extreme could push the slide to its extreme way.

Fulton's achievements made him so popular in New York that he was given the keys to the city of Boston and a one-way ticket to San Diego. It is estimated that the earnings of his taxi cabs had run well over fifty dollars when they were suddenly cut off by the invention of the horse.

Horses were very uncertain at first. For example, you would bet on one that was a favorite at some such price as 3 to 5 and seemed to have far and away the best chance to win and along would come an 8 to 1 shot and make your horse look like a sucker.

(Editor's note: "Sucker" was a slang invention of the author's, meaning probably in this case, "dub" or "flop.")

I recall once visiting the Saratoga race course in the administration of President Fillmore and meeting a man named Bud Fisher, a portrait painter and fancier of horse flesh. He had just paid $12.00 or $12,000, I forget which, for a horse named Hyperion, had engaged a star jockey, Earl Sande, to ride him and advised me and other acquaintances to bet on him. We followed the advice and the horse ran a very good race, but the jockey was left at the post, sitting in the middle of the track. It was quite laughable.

RING LARDNER.

When the Waiter Brought the Check the Other Two Men Seemed to Have Paralysis of the Arms.

ITALIAN CULTURE HOME ERECTED BY COLUMBIA

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(AP)—A bit of old Italy, as pure in form as a Medici palace, soon will stand at the crest of Morningside Heights.

The cornerstone of the Casa Italiana, controlled by, but removed from Columbia university, will be laid August 5. It then will take its place among the architectural gems on the heights as the only strictly individual representative of Italy in America.

Paintings, art objects and specimens of the work of Italian artists at the richest periods of history will grace the interior of the structure. The building proper, erected and financed by American architects and builders of Italian extraction, will be pure Italian in form, with a Florentine loge. The cost has been estimated at $300,000.

HORSES OF 3500 YEARS AGO BURIED IN COFFINS

CARIO, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The first mummified horse known to history has been unearthed here near Sakkara pyramid by the department of antiquities of the Egyptian government.

The horse is estimated by American archaeologists to be about 3,500 years old. It was found in a large wooden coffin, indicating that animals in ancient Egyptian times were buried in a similar manner to human beings, the Egyptians believing them to be possessed of a "soul."

The horse is more than sixteen hands in measurement and is in remarkably good condition.

SING OR TALK LOUDLY IN VIENNA AND YOU'RE JAILED

VIENNA, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Under modifications in the municipal laws of Vienna, persons who talk, whistle or sing too loudly in the streets may be fined 30 cents. For repeated offenses jail terms are provided.

If a person is detected reading a newspaper or book while walking along the street, thereby impeding pedestrian traffic he may be subjected to a similar fine.

Stopping a friend in the middle of a roadway, carrying packages of undue sizes and using bad or unseemly language, are among other punishable offenses.

BIBLE CLASS GROWS SINCE MADE ROTARY PRESIDENT

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Since Harry H. Rogers of San Antonio was elected president of Rotary International in June, new members have been added weekly to his Business Men's Bible class.

Rogers has taught the class for three years, in which time it increased from a few dozen members to more than 400. He is absent from the class only when out of the city.

The class is sponsored by the Central Christian church, of which Rogers is a member.

The Married Life of Helen And Warren

"You know I look older," bitterly. "Ten years older!"

"You're just tired tonight," evaded Helen. "And this weather—"

"No, it isn't the weather and I'm not tired." Turning from the mirror Mrs. Drayson sank into a chair by the window.

Sounds from the street. Summer night sounds. A faint flapping of the shade.

Aimlessly straightening her toilet silver, Helen was poignantly conscious of the tense undertone she had felt all through dinner.

"Tomorrow's our anniversary," Mrs. Drayson gazed out at the heat-misted sky. "A year ago tonight—When I think how happy I was then—"

"Why do you say that? You don't expect that same thrill after you've been married a year? You wouldn't want it. You couldn't live at that tension."

"No, no, it isn't that. I got this letter from mother today," fumbling in her beaded bag, "and ever since I've been wanting to scream."

Wonderingly, Helen scanned the brief note:

Dear Marion,

I am sending with this your grandmother's silver meat platter. You would rather have it, I know than anything new.

You have been very fortunate in your cloudless first year. None of the struggles or the petty economies that most young couples have to meet. May the rest of your life be as happy.

With love to you both.

Mother.

"My cloudless first year!" ironically, when Helen, still puzzled, returned the letter. "At least I've put up a good bluff."

"A bluff, why I thought you were ideally happy. You have everything—"

"That's what mother thinks," hysterically. "Oh, I shouldn't say this—but I've just gone to pieces today."

Another awkward pause.

"It's George, of course," twisting the shade cord. "Nothing else could matter. This year I've found out so many things I didn't know—I suppose I couldn't have known."

"You mean—some old affair?"

"If it were only that! No, I'm not concerned about his life before our marriage."

"Then there's someone now? Oh, there can't be—he seems so devoted—"

"No, no! But even that wouldn't be so hard to bear as—Oh, I don't know how to tell you. It's so small—so petty—"

Releasing the cord, she dropped on the window sill.

"He's dishonest! Not in a big way—in little things. Contemptible little ways that have killed all the respect I ever had for him. And you can't love a man you don't respect."

"Dishonest?" dismayed Helen. "Oh, I can't believe—"

"Just last night—we were dining out. A crowded place. The waiter gave George a dollar too much change. George tipped him exactly 10 per cent and kept the extra dollar!"

"But he may have not noticed it."

"Oh, yes, he did. He's always keen about change. When I spoke of it he just shrugged it off. He said, 'It'll teach him to be careful. If I'd given him too much, he wouldn't return it. Rotten service, anyway.'"

"Oh," faltered Helen, thinking of Warren's austere honesty.

"It comes out in so many ways. Last month at Atlantic City—the hotel neglected to charge some laundry—and he wouldn't tell them. He said he'd paid enough for the room."

Her hands trembled as she stroked Pussy Purr-Mew, now on the window seat.

"We'd been married a month when the first thing happened—Oh, it was so petty! But it did something to me—nothing's ever been the same since. We had just stepped off a crowded car without paying our fare—

"I can see that corner now! A street lamp under a tree—the light shining on the leaves. A swarm of moths around the broken globe. I remember saying, 'Oh, we forgot to pay our fare!' His 10 cents to the good I thought was a joke. I couldn't believe he'd be dishonest to save 10 cents. But he insisted it was up to the conductor to collect the fares.

"I tried to think it was merely his attitude towards the railroad company, but with individuals—he'd be scrupulously honest. I soon found he wasn't."

Fumbling with Pussy Purr-Mew's bow, now. Trying to hide her crimson embarrassment.

"Yet in business—he's unquestionably honest. It may be only because he thinks it's the best policy. But in little things—oh if you knew! They're always coming up—the humiliation. But you can't understand, Warren is so—oh, anyone can see how square he'd be about everything."

Helen's sympathy expressed her exultant pride.

"What shall I do? I'm tied—tied to a man I can't respect. You can't get a divorce because your husband doesn't pay his carfare when he can get out of it,' with a hysterical laugh.

"Does he know how you feel about it?" Helen still at her dressing table, still toying with the silver.

"Yes—and no. He thinks I'm quixotic about such things. But I really haven't talked to him—I just can't!"

"Perhaps if you did it might make a difference. He might—"

"Yes, when he's with me—but it wouldn't change his character."

Brushing Pussy Purr-Mew from her lap she started up—as though to escape intolerable thoughts.

"Just last month I bought half-a-dozen bath towels. They sent a dozen and charged for only six. He was furious when I returned the other six. Said they'd never miss them—and what they didn't know wouldn't hurt them."

With a hopeless gesture, she dropped back on the window seat.

"Oh, it's corrosive. I can't respect him. Such trivial, contemptible things—I'd rather he'd rob a bank or turn bandit."

Then, glancing at the clock on Helen's dressing table.

"Half-past 10! We must go. I shouldn't have told you this. Try to forget it. Take a big sponge and wipe it out of your mind. And you won't be any different to him."

"Of course not," Helen reassured her. "And try to believe it will somehow come out right. What we think helps so much. Don't you want some powder? Yes, a little flushed. Have you tried this new German shade, Glebrose?"

Now returning to the library where Mr. Drayson was poring over Warren's first editions.

Nothing about him to suggest such trivial dishonesties. Tall, reddish hair, an engaging smile.

"Yes, Marion, we'll go in a few minutes. I want to see this Boswell."

"The man's waiting," Nora was at the door with a crudely wrapped package.

"Oh, that lamp I had rewired. Why did he bring it so late? How much is it?" Helen glanced at the tag. 'One eighty-five."

"Here you are," Warren tossed her a five dollar bill.

A moment later Nora returned with the change.

"Hold on this isn't right," Warren called her back.

"Short changed you?" grinned Mr. Drayson. "That's a little way they have."

"No, too much. A dollar too much. Bills stuck together."

"Where's that shop? Near here? Well, give me that tag, I'll stop around in the morning."

"Why bother?" shrugged Drayson. "That's his funeral. Teach him not to be careless."

"They may dock it from his salary," Warren cut off the tag.

"If you'd given him too much, he wouldn't return it. They never do."

"Maybe not, but that's got nothing to do with me," bluntly.

"George, we must go!" her voice taut.

"Right away, Marion. That's a fine copy," replacing the Boswell. Then, turning from the bookcase, "How about driving out to Northport with us Sunday? New roadhouse out that way. They say it's a good one."

"No, count us out," brusqued Warren. "Fed up on Sunday tripe."

The usual lingering leave-taking before the door finally closed.

"Dear, you weren't very nice about Sunday," Helen switched off the hall light. "You didn't have to go, but you needn't have been so curt about it."

"Afraid he'd come back with some other invite."

"You don't like him?"

"Not keen on gettin' too chummy. You thought she made such a darn good match. Huh, I can't see it."

"Curious you should say that! But you always sense people. Dear, she told me something tonight—oh, perhaps I shouldn't tell you—"

Warren, filling his pipe, was unflatteringly incurious.

But Helen told him. She always did.

An occasional grunt his only response to her emotional recital.

"Guess he's a rotter, all right," his dismissing comment. "Never had much use for him."

"But he's honest in his business—she says its only in the petty things. It eems to be an obsession with him—to get the best of everything in little ways. Can't anything be done? If she could make him realize—"

"Huh, fat chance of that! Anybody who'd hold out a dollar on a waiter—not much there to work on."

"Oh, I feel so sorry for her! And that man with the lamp—giving you too much change—To have happened tonight! Did you see her redden when he said that about not returning it? Dear, you're the squarest, honestest—"

"Nothin' particularly honest about that," squelching her effusions. "Just ordinary decency."

"No, but you lean backwards, you're so straight. About everything! You're never even evasive—"

"Huh, not bein' a piker doesn't give me any halo. But you're right—it's darn tough on her. Well, Kitten, I may grouch around or beat you up occasionally, but I don't hold out on dinner checks or carfare. If I wanted to be slippery—I'd gun after bigger game. What's that? Don't worry, I haven't started yet. Guess I can bring home our bacon on the square!"

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

BY MARY BLAKE

LEO.

Today's planetary aspects are colorless. They denote nothing especially favorable, or on the other hand, adverse. In view of the day being Sunday, such a condition is of little or no importance, as the conditions, such as they are, to not indicate anything detrimental to the customary observances or recreation of the Sabbath day. There will be very little influences exerted on the emotions and, although a general feeling of lassitude may be sensed, there will be no occasion for being on your guard against inharmonious spirit.

Children born today will give evidence of both strength and pulchritude. This does not mean, however, that care need not be exercised in their alimentation and watchfulness in their environment. A serious illness in their teens will not prevent them achieving physical normalcy at maturity. In disposition they will be self-willed and obstinate, quick to anger, and slow to repent. They will be rebellious and difficult to manage, more especially as strictness and force will only accentuate the difficulties that it is desired to better. They will, however, be very affectionate and only through their affections will it be possible to reach them.

If today is your birthday, you possess very remarkable vision, and your friends look upon you as something of an oracle. You are always able to tell others what to do, but rarely seem to know what to do for your own individual betterment. If in charge of others' affairs, these are always in apple-pie order, although your own are in a chaotic condition. You have great executive ability, so far as extranious affairs are concerned, but reveal none at all when handling your own interest.

You possess the gift of handling people, and all those who are brought under your influence show a spirit of co-operation and harmony.

In the family circle your wishes predominate and your home life is happy and harmonious.

Successful people born this date are: Benjamin Stillman, sr., scientist; Charles A. Dana, journalist; Nelson A. Miles, lieutenant-general; Henry F. Osborn, zoologist; Florence A. Merriam, (Bailey) author.

HALF OF CHILDREN HERE .. ARE ILLEGITIMATELY BORN

KLAGENFURT, Austria, [illegible] 7.—(AP)—Statistics issued by [illegible] provincial government show that 60 per cent of all children born in the Klagenfurt district during the last year were illegitimate.

This is ascribed to loose legislation affecting the marriage relation. In Vienna, owing to the liberal laws enacted by the social democrats, children born out of wedlock may be legitimized by the father securing a divorce from his former wife and marrying the mother of the illegitimate baby.

DEAD RAILROAD BILL PRAISED

Lon Smith Hopes Mayfield Will Be Able To Revise It

"Earle B. Mayfield's 'railroad bill' as it passed the United States senate was killed in the house of representatives was one of the finest pieces of legislation ever to come before congress for consideration," Lon Smith, member of the the Texas railroad commission said here Saturday.

"It is hoped," Mr. Smith said, "that the Texas senator will find a means of resurrecting the apparently dead measure and insuring its passage when congress meets again.

Would Aid Texas

"Its passage will materially aid in railroad building in Texas, where a number of projects are being held in the Interstate Commerce Commission that would be approved I believe, by the state commission. Similar conditions prevail in other states. The sentiment in Texas, and my own sentiment as a member of the commission is that intra-state railroad building is a matter over which the state railroad commissions should have control. The bill provides this in a satisfactory manner, I think, and it is to be regretted greatly that it met with defeat in the house."

Mr. Smith called attention to the proposed Texas, Panhandle and Gulf line from Fort Worth to Tucumcari, Mex., and the M.-K.-T. venture from San Antonio into the Rio Grande Valley, and others which he said were badly needed and which the bill sponsored by Mr. Mayfield would make easily obtainable.

To Return Sept. 1

Mr. Smith left early today for Austin, to return, as he said, by September 1, at which time he will undertake an inspection of the Panhandle oil fields. He has spent the last 10 days in the central Texas fields, and pronounced himself Saturday as much pleased with the work that the commission is doing over the entire area.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—(AP) — Wheat traders gave evidence today of a disposition to go slow until government reports due next week are out both at Washington and in Canada. Better Canadian crop conditions, cool temperatures and showers tended meanwhile to ease wheat values down. Closing quotations of wheat today were unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to ⅝c lower, corn unchanged to ⅝c off, oats showing ¼ @ ⅜c to ½c drop and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 10c.

With wheat transactions largely local in character, signs that the United States wheat visible supply total would be liberally augmented on Monday had only a slight bearish effect despite Kansas City stocks alone showing more than 3,000,000 bushels increase for the week. One reason advanced for the relative steadiness of the wheat market was the fact that milling demand for cash wheat in the leading centers is fairly good and reports from the southwest in particular indicated flour business is active.

Lower temperatures in the corn belt with probable showers in Kansas and Nebraska, brought about a slight decline in the corn market. Hedging pressure had considerable effect on oats values.

Better cash demand for lard helped to steady provisions.

PRO LAW IN ENEMY HANDS

So Says Temperance Secretary, Charging Attempt Discredit Porhibition

ROUND LAKE, N. Y., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Two "indefensible" types of opposition seek to overthrow the prohibition amendment, said Raymond V. Johnson of Washington, D. C., in an address before the citizenship conference here today.

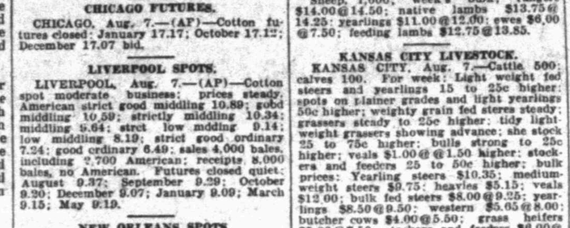

Mr. Johnson, who is field secretary of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church, declared that first the enforcement of the law has been placed in the hands of its enemies and that, second, "certain newspapers," publish articles tending to discourage enforcement."

Enforcement of the Volstead act, he said, "has been placed time and time again in the hands of its enemies not for the purpose of enforcing it, but to see that it disgracefully and disgustingly failed so that it would make the people lose faith in it."

He added that "if a newspaper is to reflect the general sentiment of the people instead of the minority, law breaking, anarchistic crowd, all of them ought to be written in favor of the amendment, simply because of the fact that it is the only amendment in our constitution which received such a large expression of support from the American people."

CARRY OFF IRON SAFE

DALLAS, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Breaking into the office of the Southern Ice and Utilities company, Friday night, safe robbers carried the office safe containing $61 to a waiting truck, loaded it aboard and carried the strong box away.

AMERICAN RAILWAY EXPRESS COMPANY

The American Railway Express company does all the railroad express business of the United States except that carried on the Southern Railway system and a few smaller lines. It also operates on steamships, ferries and electric trains. It does business in Canada and the island possessions of the United States. The concern acquired practically all the property used in the domestic business by the Adams Express, American Express, Southern Express, Well Fargo, Northern Express, Great Northern Express and Western Express companies.

Indian's Death Is Charged to Bunch

GUTHRIE, Okla., Aug. 7.—(AP) the slayer of Henry Roan, Osage Testimony will show Roy Bunch was Indian, and not John Ramsey, who with W. K. Hale, is on trial for the slaying, attorneys for Hale declared in their opening statement to the jury here today.

The government finished introduction of testimony early this morning and rested its case after placing Ernest Burkhart, nephew of Hale, on the stand for final questioning.

Corsets Kept Grandma From Channel Swim

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Corsets, petticoats and fear kept women thirty years ago from achieving athletic victories such as that of Gertrude Ederle, Tom Robinson, swiming instructor at Northwestern university for 17 years, said today. Robinson coached Sybil Bauer, Dick Howell, Bob Skelton and other notables.

"A woman could not possibly have accomplished the same feat 30 years ago," he said, "for corset and other ridiculous unnecessary clothing hampered her physical condition and deprived her of the muscular freedom so necessary in the development of a good swimmer. The complete conquest of fear will do more to bring about the development of the woman athlete than almost anything else. As far as physical strength is concerned women since the first got into athletics in 1900 have shown a prowess equal to men."

DOVER, Eng., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Gertrude Ederle bounced out of bed at 11:30 o'clock this morning, declaring she was ready for another swim.

She showed no traces of the terrible strain of yesterday's ordeal when she battled the treacherous currents of the English channel for 14 hours and 31 minutes, crossing from France to England in record time and becoming the first of her sex to perform the feat.

The New York girl was full of pep and in great humor when she arose and proceeded immediately to get ready to catch the afternoon boat from Folkestone to Boulogne where training quarters were established.

Asked to say something regarding her experience Miss Ederle replied: "All I can say is that when I started off I was determined to stay until I had planted my feet on the English shore and I am glad to say I did. I feel proud, indeed, and so would you if you were receiving all these letters, telegrams and cables of congratulation."

Miss Ederle was in the water again off Dover beach a short time after arising. She explained that she never could face a day without a swim and was sure she could swim to Bologne today if she tried.

"The great point in my swimming at all," she said, "was to show that a girl could do it, that an American girl could do it, and that I was the American girl."

NO ROMANCE, NOT EVEN A "FRIEND" FOR GERTRUDE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Gertrude Ederle, first woman conqueror of the English channel, is a "home body" whose tastes would almost classify her as old fashioned in the world of the modern flapper.

She is a good cook, milks cows occasionally when she is in the country, and does not smoke or drink alcoholic beverages of any kind.

She does not go in for late parties, and according to her mother, she has never allowed romance to interfere with her career as a swimmer. She does not even have a regular "boy friend," her mother said.

Swimming has been her chief interest and she spends as much of her life as possible in the open air.

OVER 25,000 STROKES MADE IN CHANNEL SWIM

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(AP)—In her record breaking channel crossing Gertrude Ederle swam somewhere in the neighborhood of 20,000 strokes.

When the American left the French shore she was using a crawl timed 28 strokes to the minute. If she had continued this rate for the 14 hours and 31 minutes she was in the water the stroke count would be 24,388.

But as was believed that as the hours passed and the battle against wave and tide continued there must have been some diminution in the speed of the swimmer's stroke. Men conversant with long distance swiming hazarded the opinion that the average for the whole distance was 25 to the minute which would make the count 21,775.

DAD'S SAUSAGE MILL STOPS; MOTHER WEEPS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Gertrude Ederle was the toast of her home town of Manhattan today.

Suffrage leaders, prominent athletes, politicians and traffic cops here and in neighboring communities admired and drew conclusions from the feat of the 19-year-old girl who was the first of her sex to swim the English channel and broke the time records of her five male predecessors.

Work at her father's sausage factory was suspended for jubilation when the news came. Miss Ederle's older sister, Helen, was in a New York newspaper office sending frequent bulletins to their mother in Highlands, N. J.

Mrs. Henry Ederle cried for joy when she knew her daughter had crossed the channel.

MRS. FERGUSON HAS NO STATEMENT SAYS JIM

AUSTIN, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Asked if Governor Mirian A. Ferguson had sent her withdrawal from the gubernatorial race to the democratic state executive committee, James E. Ferguson, her husband and advisor, said:

"The governor has no statement to make on that matter."

Mr. Fergusan will attend Monday's meeting of the committee at Dallas as will Attorney General Dan Moody, leading gubernatorial candidate.

The committee will canvas returns of the July 24, primary. Governor Ferguson said she had not decided whether she would attend.

Easy When Known

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Thousands of persons know today that Gertrude Ederle swam the English channel, but many of them are doubtful of the pronunciation of the swimmer's last name. Newspapers reported numerous inquiries on this point.

A member of the Ederle family today explained that the name was pronounced "Eder-ly" with the first "E" short as in "bed," and the final syllable clipped briefly as in "prettily-ly."

Ford Airplanes Off On Endurance Flight

DETROIT, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The Hess Bluebird, piloted by William A. Munn, left the Ford air post at Dearborn this morning, the first of 25 airplanes to take the air in the 2,600-mile commercial airplane reliability tour for the Ford trophy. The other planes took off at one minute intervals bound for Kalamazoo, Mich., the first of 13 stops to be made on the week's flight.

ROBBERS AT HENRIETTA

Four Homes Invaded Friday Night And Small Loot Taken

HENRIETTA, Aug. 7.— Burglars were active in Henrietta last night when four homes were entered and some valuables taken. The residences of J. T. Dale, F. O. Moore, John Jacobs and R. B. Gilmore were entered. At Mr. Dale's the intruders secured a valuable watch belonging to Mr. Dale, a knife, keys and some small change. At Mr. Gilmore's about $45 in cash was taken, at Mr. Moore's one dollar was taken, and Mr. Jacobs' nothing could be missed so far.

SPORTING NEWS — THE RECORD NEWS — FIRST ACCURATE COMPLETE

Boss Williams And Gang Hang It On Bad News Jeems By 5 to 4 Score

Benton Slams Three Safeties, Jenkins Poles Home Run; LaFayette Socks Out Triple.

After trailing along for six innings behind the rampaging Exporters Saturday afternoon over in Beaumont, the Spudders unleashed a driving attack against Ad Holtzhauser and pummeled across four runs in the seventh, sewing up the second game of the series and winning by a 5-4 score. Jim Galloway's trick right field fence notwithstanding.

Harlem Joe Kiefer went the route on the hill for Wichita Falls, was punched at a moderate clip by the lusty Beaumonters but kept base hits fairly well scattered.

The Galloway gang came back in the last half of the seventh and socked over a couple of runs, drawing up to a one-tally margin behind the Spudders, but Kiefer bore down all the harder and breezed through the remainder of the way unscathed.

The hitting of Rabbit Benton featured the victory. The midget third sacker pelted out a trio of safeties. Jenkins took advantage of that short starboard wall and poled a home run over it. LaFayette came through with a three-base hit in a clinch.

Shippers Score First.

Beaumont drew first blood, scoring runs in the second and third with the Spudders taking goose eggs. After there was one out, Dunning got to first base on an infield hit. He was held to second when Oliver singled to center and went to third on a force-out at second by Boelzle. He absconded with the platter a moment later when Turgeon rolled the ball to Kiefer. Naturally, Beaumont fandom enjoyed a huge laugh. But they didn't laugh last!

Paddy Reagan opened the Beaumont third with a home run over his pet right field parapet.

Tnen Jenkins Homers.

Tut Jenkins, the league's leading walloper and the pride of Wichita Falls baseballdom, became suddenly fired and duplicated Reagan's clout in the fourth. Tut's home run found the runways uninhabitated.

The warring aggregations rocked along with Beaumont holding the one-run advantage until the seventh when Spudder bludgeons exploded suddenly and with devastating force. Lamb led off with a bombastic one-base shot to left. Benton larruped a double to the same sector, sending Lucy over with the tying run. Rabbit was cut down at third attempting to make three bases on the blow and resultant throw-in. His feet crossed him up. Weren't quite fast enough. Metzler popped to Connolly and then DeFate outfooted a bounder to short. Tony's sudden burst of speed saved the day for instead of it being three out he found himself on second instead when Holtzhauser uncorked a wild pitch. Lapan walked. Then Keifer himself strode to the platter and cracked a single to center, scoring DeFate. LaFayette followed with the candy blow, a rousing triple to right center that ricochoted all over that funny fence and gave Lapan and Keifer time enough to tabulate. Turgeon struck out.

After two had gone down in the last half of the seventh, Connolly drew a walk and was shunted over by Brown's triple to left. Hansen singled to right, scoring Brown. Deviveros forced Hansen at second, DeFate to Turgeon. This made the score 5-4, Spudders.

Dick Morgan went to the hill for Beaumont in the eighth and blanked the Spudders for two innings.

Frenzied efforts to pull a rally by Beaumont failed dismally.

ATZ CONCEDES CHAMPIONSHIP

Cats Devote Rest of Way To Pestering Top Clubs

FORT WORTH, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The Fort Worth Panthers, pennant winners for six consecutive years in the Texas league, during which they won five Dixie championships from the Southern association, will not be pennant contenders this year, it was conceded this morning by Manager Jake Atz.

With the Cats eleven games behind and little more than a month to play, the skipper declared that from now on his efforts will be devoted to making life miserable for the league leaders, San Antonio, Dallas and Beaumont. Three of the Panthers' best pitchers are being saved for the series with Fort Worth's old rivals, the Dallas Steers, early next week.

"For six years the league's slogan has been "beat them Cats." Atz said, "and I hope they're satisfied. But next year it will be different."

Giants Break Even With Reds, 11-0, 1-3

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The New York Giants broke even in today's double bill Cincinnati winning the first game 11 to 0, while the Giants took the second 3 to 1. Mueller's homer with Frisch on base in the third inning decided the final contest. Carl Mays allowed only five hits in the shutout and contributed two triples in the 12 hits made off three opposing pitchers. Hargraves banged two home runs and Roush and Dressen also connected for the circuit. Cincinnati's triumph ended a streak of 10 consecutive set-backs from the Giants.

CHANCE SHOT WINS

Widener Horse With Sande Up Cops Special and $15,750 Purse

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 7.—(AP)—J. E. Widener's Chance Shot with Earl Sande in the saddle today captured the Saratoga Springs Special, valued at $15,750, after a terrific finish with Mrs. William Jefford's Scapa Flow. The winner's stable mate, Osmand, was third and W. S. Kilmer's Sun Forward, fourth.

RUN GETTERS

How they stand:

Jenkins 19, Benton 17, Turgeon 13, LaFayette 10, Lapan 10, Metzler 10, Lamb 9, DeFate 5, Query 4, Roberts 1, Williams 1, Hodge 1, Kiefer 1.

Phenominal hitting the past week with runners on the bases brought Benton and LaFayette, heretofore not real contenders, with a rush forward in the drive for the Wichita Falls runs-responsible-for prizes.

Jenkins, the leader, rocked along at a mediocre clip and Turgeon, for two weeks, his closest rival, slowed up considerably. Benton pulled up from five to 17 runs batted across during the week.

The Spudder who knocks in the most runs on a game-for-game average over a 30-day span which has its closing date Aug. 15, receives a handsome gold watch. The runner-up is to be awarded $30 in cash, a pot made up by Lee Wilson, Alvin Gardner and Fred Brainard before the latter resigned as Spudder manager.

PIRATES DROP DOUBLE CARD

Stubborn Braves Push It; Champs 2-0 in Both Games

BOSTON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Pittsburgh went down to double defeat today when John Wertz and Bob Smith each whitewashed the champions by 2 to 0 scores. Each pitcher also drove in the first run of the game. The second game was played through a rainstorm, the game being called at the end of the eighth. By taking today's double header the Braves evened the six-game series with the Pirates. Bob Smith having shut out Pittsburgh, 14 to 0 in the opening game.

Cubs Sweep Phil Series, Final 6-5

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs made a clean sweep of the series with the Phillies by taking the fourth game today, 6 to 5. A wild throw in the ninth allowed Heathcote to score the winning run from second base on Grimm's slow roller toward third. It was the Phillies' sixth straight defeat. Three of the Chicago games were lost by last inning rallies.

Austin Swimmers Win AAU Tourney

DALLAS, Aug. 7.—(AP)—With a total point score of 28, including first place in both senior and junior events, Austin's crack swimmers took away first honors in the southern A. A. U. swim meet at Lake Cliff here Saturday. Fort Worth's team, with a total of 25 points, 17 of which are credited to the juniors, came second, and Dallas representatives, with a total 21, came third.

Gilbert, of Austin, won the 100-yard free style swim with Solomon of Fort Worth second. Gilbert also won the 50-yard free style event, and Solomon was again second man.

Nat'l Junior Net Tourney Monday

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The national junior and boys' tennis championships will start on the turf courts of the Southside Tennis club with a record entry Monday morning.

Outstanding among the entrants for the junior honors are Berkeley Bell of Austin, Tex., John Doeg, Santa Monica, Calif., Henry L. Johnson, Jr., Waban, Mass., Bobby Seller, San Francisco, Emmet Pare, Chicago, and Julius Seligson, New York. W. F. Coen, Jr., of Kansas City, is the favorite in the boys' play.

The tourney will continue through the week with finals in all divisions next Saturday.

Browns Gamble Fortune on Him

This is Fred Schulte, sensational young outfielder of the Milwaukee American Association Club, who is now the property of the St. Louis Browns for the tidy sum of $75,000 and three ball players. He is hitting over .400 and fielding well.

Mac Smith Wins Canadian Open

Great Necker Rallies From Behind to Defeat Sarazen

MONTREAL, Aug. 7—(AP)—MacDonald Smith of the Lakeville club, Great Neck, N. Y., today won the Canadian open golf championship, coming from behind in the final 18-hole round of the three-day 72-hole tournament to beat out two other American stars, Gene Sarzen and Johnny Farrell. Smith registered a 70, three under par for his final round, to make his final total score 288 strokes. His previous rounds were 71, 73 and 69.

Dempsey Moore Wins Ring Title

Dempsey Moore, Wichita Falls high school athlete, copped a heavy share of athletic laurels the past week in San Antonio at the citizens' military training camp, winning three gold medals for placing first in three events. His company officers made Moore an offer to "put him through West Point," Dempsey says in a letter to Mrs. T. Stevens, his aunt.

Moore captured the heavyweight boxing championship of the camp, winning his final battle over a 215-pounder by a knockout in the first round. Moore weighed 174 pounds.

BOLSTAD COPS CROWN

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 7.—(AP) Lester Bolstead of Minneapolis today won the national public links golf championship by defeating Carl Kauffmann of Pittsburgh, 3 and 2, in the 36-hole final match.

ROSE AND NURMI.

New Zealand Runner Will Find Phantom One at Top Form.

Randolph Rose, the famous New Zealand runner, evidently will find Paavo Nurmi in top form if he succeeds in his efforts to obtain a series of match races with the Finn on the latter's home soil this summer. Nurmi's recent triumphs over Edwin Wide, the Swedish star, first over a mile in 4:11 and then at 3,000 meters in world's record time of 8:20 4-10 indicate that the Phantom One is ready to give Rose a speedy reception.

Rose made a name for himself by forcing Lloyd Hahn, the new American mile champion, to take his dust in a series of races in the Antipodes during the winter. Subsequently he has gone half way around the world in quest of a test with Nurmi.

YOUNGEST IN MAJORS.

Well One; 17 Years Old, Used as Pinch Hitter by Giants' Manager.

Melville Ott, who sits on the bench of the New York Giants and gets pearls of baseball wisdom from his elders is among the youngest players in the major leagues. He was 17 years old March 2.

His activities thus far with the Giants have been restricted to pinch hitting, but his Louisiana friends believe that added years will bring greater opportunity. "The kid will listen and that's half of it," says Dick Burke, manager of a semi-pro team on which young Ott was a shining star.

In Louisiana he was a catcher but Manager McGraw thought he was too small. Little men have made great outfielders and the home folk think Ott will eventually follow in the footsteps of Willie Keeler, Josh Devore and other famous pint-size outfielders.

THAT'S ALL FOR YESTERDAY

DALLAS, Aug. 7.—(AP)— Five-year-old Frank Hendrickson lost his toe, Mary Smith, 18, burned her eye with a curling iron, Leonard Hart was probably blined for life and W. E. Leatherwood, 58, fell from her automobile and cut her head in a series of freak accidents here last night.

Lil Has One Bad Inning In Koenig Slams Homer With Two On

DETROIT, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Lil Stoner pitched Detroit to a 6 to 4 victory over the New York Yankees today. He had only one bad inning, the second, in which four hits produced four runs. One of these was a home run by Koenig which scored Pennock and Combs ahead of him. Detroit bunched hits in the third, fourth and seventh.

Cleveland Splits With Washington

CLEVELAND, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Cleveland divided honors with Washington today winning the first game of a double header, 8 to 5, and losing the second 9 to 2. In the second contest when the score was 9 to 0, Manager Speaker took all of his regulars of the field and second stringers played better than the originals, holding Washington to no runs during the last five innings. They were unable, however, to bunch their hits, and Coveleskie as easily as the first. Joe Shaute out pitched Alvin Crowder in the first game in which Jamieson, of the Indians made five singles in five times up.

TAMED TABBY

Fort Worth, one time proud champions, held up the Texas league the past week, gave nearly everybody a helping hand. The Cats compose one of the only two teams who lost more games than they won over the seven-day span, and Ats' men dropped many.

• • •

The shell of the old machine that seven other Texas clubs once feared and trembled in their strongholds upon seeing it bear down toward them, copped a lone victory, the second game of a double-header at Beaumont Friday. The Cats lost seven of eight games played.

• • •

Waco is the other team that drank from the cup of defeat more than it did from that of victory, but the cellar habitues played a far better brand of ball than the erstwhile vaunted Panthers, winning three and losing four.

• • •

After showing off to a poor start in Waco Sunday when the Spudders dropped a double-header through no fault of the pitchers, the Williams outfit came back in the middle of the week and fought through to an even-Stephen break, winning three, losing three and tying one.

• • •

Made Jeems Like It

Wichita Falls rested Monday then invaded Houston and took a licking Tuesday. Williams' men came back strong Wednesday and Thursday, nosing out on the Buffs in two games. Beaumont fought the Spudders to a 7-7 deadlock Friday and lost by a 4-5 score yesterday before the sweeping slants of Joe Kiefer.

• • •

STEER STOCK BOOMS

Outside of the Feline demise, nothing unusual occurred in the Texas league the past week. Dallas and San Antonio seesawed through the early afternoons, winding up with the Steers and Fred Brainard asserting themselves as potential champions by turning back the Bears in two contests Friday and Saturday.

• • •

Shreveport played the best ball of the week, winning four games out of six. Dallas took five out of eight. San Antonio won four and lost three. Beaumont duplicated the Bears' victories and reverses. Both Mitz and Galloway were favored by series with the floundering Panthers.

• • •

The Spudders wind up their tour this week, playing at Beaumont today and in Shreveport Monday and Tuesday. They return Wednesday with Waco for a three-game series and a 15-day home stand.

• • •

Ahem - - - - Just a word to the wiseacres. George LaFayette is HITTING the ball, as perusal of the past week's box scores will show. And again the anvil chorus comes to a jarring halt while in mid-rehearsal, so to speak.

• • •

HOW ABOUT IT?

Wichita Falls fight fans are holding the burlap. No sock programs for three weeks or so and the fourth coming up barren. Those biff "entertainments" immediately preceding the sudden fistic vacation were of a poor grade, too. If the organization which has an apparent corner on the fight game in Wichita Falls isn't going to give the fans their weekly or bi-weekly punch programs and not make these programs the right caliber it should step down and allow some other organization to take over the ring reins.

• • •

A sudden and heavy turn-out for aquatics is now in order. Would-be water heroes and heroines are expected to surge for the breakers following Gertie's channel feat. Already, Dynamite, the copy chaser, and a bunch of his boy friends are practicing up at Westmoreland with hopes of some day duplicating Eder-ly's midnight swim.

• • •

To get the tide and swift-current effect Dynamite plans opening Westmoreland's drainage gate and swiming against the "pull" as the water rushes out.

CRACKS FROM CONSUMERS

"Blondy Cross Esq.,

"Sir:

"Man on first, one on third. Pitcher issues four-ball donation. While batter is going to first, catcher thinks he can pick runner off third, makes jungle heave and runner scores. Does the run count, or did catcher throw a dead ball! Thanks for the information about Cheeves and Shilling. "W. C. B. Megargel.

"A hot Spudder fan.

"P. S. Will watch Top O' Morn for answer.

• • •

The run counts. As an aside, suppose that fourth ball had been a wild pitch. The man on third would have come home.

• • •

"Mr. Cross:

"Don't you think that in such instances as Thursday's wrestling match between Romonoff and Gorman entrance of traffic officers into the ring is both unnecessary and uncalled for! Don't you think it was a bit of grandstand play on the part of the officers! Don't you think Referee Record was thoroughly capable of handling the situation! Would like to have you answer this in Top O' Morn.

"Thanks.

"A Lover of Clean Sports."

Personally, I saw no reason for the interference. But that question is not for me to decide. No, I don't think it was a "grandstand play." The officers were conscientious in following whatt hey deemed their duty. Yes, I believe Record is capable. Why ask me such questions, anyhow! I have no official connection with the police department.

"Dear Blondy:

"I have seen in your column several all-star teams of the Twilight league. I believe this one to be the cream of the league, batting order as follows:

McMahon, cf.; B. Gordon, rf.; Hinds, ss.; Waller, lf.; Hargrave, 3b.; Hoehn, 2b.; Kellog, 1b.; Davis, c.; Horton, c.; Harris, p.; Randolph, p.; Andree, utility.

Kellog first base, the best fielding first baseman that has been in the league in several seasons, a smart player and a consistent hitter.

Davis, catcher, the only catcher in the league that studies a batter, a good arm and one of the smartest players that the league has. Waller lf., fast, a wonderful throwing arm and a consistent hard hitter. Hargrove 3b., covers plenty of ground, a good arm and a hard hitted. Hoehn 2b.: a good arm, a timely hitter and a good captain for any team because of his experience and field generalship.

Reason for choosing McMahon has no equal in the league as a fly ball judge and is one of the fastest if not the speediest player in the league and also a timely hitter. Gordon rf., is a steady and fast fielder and a fair judge of fly balls, coupled with a good arm and a hard player to pitch to. Hinds a neat and fast fielding shortstop, a good pair of hands and a fairly accurate peg and by far the best hitter in the league. Andre can pitch or play any place on the infield or outfield, a good hitter and good judge of fly balls.

Horton a catcher that will be one of the best with a little more xperience.

Harris, a pitcher that knows what he is doing and how to do it, a good judge of a batter, also a good fielder.

Randolph, relief pitcher. Harris being a fast ball pitcher, I pick Randolph as his relief. Their deliveries are just opposite and Randolph is a curve ball pitcher.

"A Fan."

Yes, Yes, Yes.

CUYLER TOPS RUN SCORERS

Nats and Browns Improve Team Batting, Yanks Slump

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Long noted as a speedy base runner, Hazen Cuyler of the Pittsburgh Pirates, took the lead this week in runs scored in the National league this season, and did it with his bat instead of his spiked shoes. Climbing back into the leading ten hitters of the National league, Cuyler scored eight runs on 11 hits in the last six games, and his blows included a homer, a double and a triple. His total of 22 stolen bases is still high mark. Cuyler has scored 77 times.

George Grantham of the Pirates moved back into third place in the first ten, and the Pirates generally enjoyed the best hitting of the week in the National league.

Hack Wilson of the Chicago Cubs and Jim Bottomley of the St. Louis Cardinals continued their neck and neck race for home run honors of the league, adding one apiece, to reach 13.

Lee Meadows of the Pirates moved into second place among the pitchers in games won, with 14 victories, one less than Pete Donohue of the Cincinnati Reds. Donohue was credited with one defeat this week, making his record 15 won and 10 lost. He is far in the lead in the league in innings pitched, with the equivalent of 22 games.

Leaders Drop Back.

The two leading hitters of the league among the regulars, Hargrave of Cincinnati, and Stephenson, the new Chicago outfielder, both dropped back a few points, as did the other leaders except the Pirate crew. Fred Williams of the Phillies, jumped from far down the list into seventh place, with a couple of round trips among his nine hits this week. E. Smith, the Pittsburgh catcher, was thus crowded out of the first ten.

Leading National league hitters: Hargrave, Cincinnati, .378; Stephenson, Chicago, .370; Grantham, Pittsburgh, .355; Bressler, Cincinnati, .352; L. Bell, St. Louis, .349; Traynor, Pittsburgh, .340; Williams, Philadelphia, .344; Herman, Brooklyn, .341; Cuyler, Pittsburgh, .340; Christensen, Cincinnati, .339.

The leading hitter of the major league is Joe Burns, the clean-up man of the Cleveland American league lineup. Burns has made 152 hits to date, 13 in the past seven games of this week, according to the official averages including Wednesday's games. Burns passed Ruth this week for second place in the leading ten hitters of the American league, not far behind Fothergill of Detroit who is still leading, though slowly losing points from his average of over .400. In the same number of games, Burns has been officially "at Bat" 70 times more than Ruth, though of course the Babe has not been given that many intentional passes.

One more week should see Ruth past the 100 mark in runs scored, for he made five this week to reach 98. Two of the five were on his famous home run clouts of which he had 33, through Wednesday. Simmons of the Athletics also got two home runs this week, the same as Lazzeri of the Yankees, while Ken Williams got three.

Hunnefield of the Chicago White Sox and Ed Rice of Washington each added a stolen base this week and are still tied at 17.

Pate Still at It.

Pate, the Athletics' relief pitcher, who has held a mark of eight victories and no defeats to top the league, for some time, finished out another game this week without affecting his record. Ernie Nevers, the Pacific coast football star, got into the official major league averages this week for the first time when he won his first start for the St. Louis Browns. He has done relief hurling in five other games, but none affected his own pitching record. Pennock of the Yankees and Uhle of Cleveland are still tied on victories, one more apiece this week making 17. Pennock has lost six games and Uhle eight.

Washington and St. Louis were the only teams to improve their team hitting percentage this week, while the Yankees dropped one point to slide out of the .300 class.

Leading American league hitters: Fothergill, Detroit, .403; Burns, Cleveland, .371; Ruth, New York, .367; Meusel, New York, .366; Goslin, Washington, .365; Manush, Detroit, .364; Falk, Chicago, .359; Heilmann, Detroit, .355; Mostil, Chicago, .348; E. Collins, Chicago, .347.

"Little Bill" Strokes To Doubles Victory

SEABRIGHT, N. J., Aug. 7.—(AP)—"Little Bill" Johnston of California, came back today to reclaim his place as one of the most remarkable match players in American tennis.

Driving with all his old power and precision as the doubles partner of the intercollegiate champion, Edward G. Chandler, Johnston was the main factor in an unexpected victory over the national champions, R. Norris Williams and Vincent Richards, 6-3, 1-6, 9-7, 6-1.

Elizabeth Ryan of California as partner of Eleanor Goss, of New York, defeated Mrs. Mallory and Catherine Porter of Philadelphia 6-1, 6-3, while in the mixed doubles Miss Ryan paired with Cranston Holman of Stanford university to triumph over Miss Wills and Chandler, 3-6, 6-3, 6-0.

Worrying Season On For Gene; Jack and Tex——————By Bob Edgren

JUST TOO BAD FOR MATSUDA

Jap Staggers From One Tough Situation To Another

Matty Matsuda, the Nipponese champion of the little fellows, fights his way out of one tough situation merely to stagger into another.

Matty had all he could do to manipulate a decision over Duth Mantell in Amarillo Friday night and averted defeat by a very narrow margin. The ugly Dutchman gave Matsuda a battle the Jap will remember long. Hardly had Matsuda returned to natural breathing after his titanic struggle with Mantell before he was notified by telephone connection with Wichita Falls that he is matched with Billy Romonoff, the Russian-American who Thursday night waged with Jack Gorman one of the most spectacular exhibitions of flying holds and boisterous grappling ever seen in this city.

Aerial Exponent

Romonoff had Gorman "going" when the bout was stopped and the latter was disqualified for fouling. Romonoff displayed what might be termed an "aerial attack" never equaled before on the local canvas. A mixture of flying headlocks, flying scissors and flying tackles, too, for that matter, were all brought into use against Gorman, a method of battle that no doubt would have defeated Gorman eventually, would have made a monkey out of Mantell and may prove Matsuda's undoing.

The Jap and the American meet Thursday night at the Eleventh and Ohio arena in a finish match, Matty's welterweight championship belt at stake.

Ringsiders last week were almost unanimous in declaration of belief Romonoff can tag it on Mantell. Mantell almost beat Matsuda Friday. Now make your own deductions.

Matty Plays Ropes

Following is Amarillo's account of the Matsuda-Mantell embroglio:

"Matty Matsuda retained his world's welterweight title and belt at Metropolitan park last night when the timekeeper's watch caught the Dutchman before he was able to put the champion out after applying more than 30 headlocks on the Jap.

"Matsuda took the first fall in one hour and 30 minutes with a shortarm scissors. Wrestling honors between the two were fairly even over this period of time.

"During the remaining 30 minutes Mantell staged one of the bitterest battles ever seen on an Amarillo mat. He clamped every conceivable headlock and both he and the Jap were very bloody at the finish. The Jap held on to the ropes or the referee the last 15 minutes of the match. Under Police Gazette rules the bout was concluded at two hours and Matsuda declared the winner."

Preliminary to the Matsuda-Romonoff affair, Tommy Record wrestles Yaqi Joe, the Indian, in a finish match.

Ederle Swamped By Congratulations

BOULOGNE, France, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Gertrude Ederle, American swimming marvel, was toasted by veteran fisher folk all along the Pas de Calais coast tonight as Neptune's favorite daughter, because of her victory over the treacherous English channel.

From the time the New York girl returned to the French coast on the tug which had convoyed her across the channel, on her gruelling swim until she retired late tonight, she was overwhelmed with congratulations personally conveyed, or by message. Her daring exploit, especially the speed she made in swimming from the French to the English coast, was the all-absorbing topic at the nearby watering places.

Miss Ederle, when she stepped on the beach at Kingsdown, Eng., last night after 14 1-2 hours of battle with tides and waves, and even rain, appeared to be none the worse for the experience. Today she showed no reaction, although she spent the greater part of it resting.

With everything "settled" about the big fight—the Dempsey-Tunney battle for the world's heavyweight championship, the worrying season is just about to begin. Tex Rickard has had a lively time getting his match arranged. Tex has been trying to put Dempsey on again ever since the Firpo fight nearly three years ago. He never wanted to match Dempsey against Wills. He always said it would be a poor match and would be likely to arouse opposition that would result in a heavy loss for the promoter. The New York boxing commission ordered Dempsey to sign articles to fight Wills, when the commission first went into the business of matchmaking. Dempsey and Kearns startled the commissioners by walking in the next day and asking for the articles and the pen and ink. No articles has been drawn up, but when they were ready Dempsey signed. Then the commission, for some mysterious reason, sidestepped its own proposition and ordered the waiting promoters not to bid on the match—calling it off. Probably there were orders from higher up, as it was a state election year. The affair vindicated Rickard's judgment.

Rickard expected no trouble in matching Dempsey against Gene Tunney, after Tunney had knocked out Tommy Gibbons and Bartley Madden, while Wills contented himself by dodging any dangerous match, refusing an offer by Rickard of $150,000 to fight Tunney, and in general acting like a gent who had no ambition whatever to make good as a challenger for a championship.

Dempsey Preferred Wills

Rickard signed Tunney and Dempsey. Dempsey, in signing, authorized Rickard to match him with either Tunney or Wills. Wills preferred because he wanted to knock Wills out and disapprove the charges that he feared to meet the negro heavyweight. Rickard himself turned down the Wills proposition and applied for a permit to match Tunney and Dempsey in New York.

Then the merry go round began to revolve. The commission, or rather Farley and Brower, a controlling majority, decided against Rickard and declared Dempsey still ineligible. Mr. Muldoon, the one experienced member of the commission, who knows a match when he looks if over, always was against fooling the public with a bout between Dempsey and a staller like Wills, and favored Tunney's claims to a right to fight for the title. Also Mr. Muldoon had no political ambitions to serve, in fact, no regard for politics whatever, and he didn't mix politics with his notion of boxing control.

Rickard was urged to take his match to New Jersey, but there were complications. He went to Chicago, where there were more complications, threats of injunctions by another party who had taken over the apparently defunct Fitzsimmons' contract. When it looked as if that would be straightened out, Mr. Brower, commission member in New York changed his mind and decided that New York ought to have the championship affair, wired Rickard asking him to come back and apply again, and voted with Mr. Muldoon to open the doors to Dempsey and the whole party.

That put Rickard on easy street because it not only squared him in New York, but flattened all objections to taking the bout to New Jersey. If the Dempsey-Tunney bout was legally o. k. in New York the working agreement between the New York and New Jersey commissions no longer made it tough for Tex to go to New Jersey if he wanted to and use the big bowl at Boyle's thirty acres where he held the Dempsey-Carpentier and many other big bouts.

Many Complications

Clear sailing? Yes and no. For running a championship bout in any state, in these days, is no plain business proposition. There are still a few thousand other complications. There are commissions to be supplied with as many seats in the first 10 or 15 rows ringside as the commissioners demand—and that's usually a plenty. There are politicians to be accomodated in many ways. No promoter ever gets all the profit from one of these big fights. Too much money involved, and too many ways in which the boys cut into the expense fund. Nobody but a promoter knows what the expenses of running a championship fight really amounts to. Tex knows. He's held them in many states.

Rickard can always count upon a few fake "reformers" to stir up as much trouble as possible before any big bout. That's one of the expected handicaps of promoting. Those gentlemen don't always look for money from the promoter—although it has been done. They take their graft in the free advertising. A curious thing about "reformers" is that they're never heard during the months or years in which small bouts are held three or four nights a week. They can't stir up any excitement over the iniquity of a bout draws a handful of spectators.

Gene Tunney looks like the only person implicated in this coming fight who has nothing to worry about. Gene is ready to try to win the championship. He has grown heavy enough to fight anyone—192 pounds today—and has become a very good and effective boxer. Gene has had the same manager from the start—Billy Gibson. Not a thing to worry over.

Dempsey in Hot Water

But look at Dempsey. Since he fell out with Kearns he has stepped into all sorts of trouble. Kearns says he signed articles with Rickard for Dempsey to fight both Tunney and Wills, consequently he has a plain legal claim to his managerial percentage any time Dempsey fights, whether Dempsey waits until his Kearns contract has run out in September or not. Many lawyers seem to think Kearns can collect. That isn't a pleasant thought to Dempsey. And after dropping Kearns, Dempsey seems to have allowed several ambitious young men to "represent" him and even pose as his "manager." Probably each of them will claim a manager's share in any gate money Dempsey collects. Suppose Kearns gets 50 per cent, and the rest of the bunch are modest and claim only 25 per cent each. If they have smart lawyers they may at least put over a compromise settlement that will total only about two or three hundred per cent of Dempsey's purse, leaving Jack owing himself money after the fight.

Same Old Story, Champion Thinks He Can Lay Off And Come Back Still Strong

Dempsey will pitch his camp the coming week within a short ride of the Saratoga race track and the chances are that the spectators will begin to flock in at so much per throw to get a glimpse of the champion.

Dempsey says he is in fine condition and aching to fight anyone. It matters not to him that Gene Tunney was picked as his opponent. They all look alike to him.

Sounds Like Sauce

The champion scoffs at the idea that the long vacation has done him any harm. He claims he has been working all the time and has not permitted himself to get out of condition. Jack is a natural fighter and for that reason has nothing to lose by a prolonged absence from active competition. Condition is the thing that counts with him and he feels that he will toe the mark against the New Yorker little if any different from the Jack of old.

Students of form fail to agree with Dempsey. They have seen too many go by the wayside when called upon and the same old answer was sure to come: "Kept away too long. Never felt better in my life, was sure I could go through with a good fight."

Gene Tunney is not a man to trifle with. He may be a mechanical fighter and all that but the fact that Tunney is far and above the usual run of pugilists and has brains makes him all the more dangerous.

Gene Dangerous

Tunney is a student of the game. No doubt he has learned much from watching Dempsey in several battles and his fight with Gibbons was a post graduate course in the art of fisticuffs. Gene has been figuring ways and means to overcome Dempsey's style of milling and is hard at work perfecting his defense. His preliminary work consists of having his sparring partners rush at him full tilt and keep on punching away without a letup.

Living out in the open away from the crowds of the city, is another factor Tunney is counting on. He is determined to make the fight of his life and is leaving nothing undone to further that end.

Meanwhile Dempsey hints that he will surprise the wise ones and Tunney. Those who expect to see Dempsey fight his old battle are in for a disappointment. Jack says he is learning how to box and may show his opponent a few tricks of which he is supposed to be a master.

Others before Dempsey tried the same tact, changing their style of battle on the eve of an important fight. They failed and it may be that Jack Dempsey will be another.

Dempsey Works Out With Midgets

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Shifting his previous plans, Jack Dempsey put on the gloves today for the first time in a week and stepped through an hour's brisk workout at a local gymnasium to keep himself from going stale during his enforced stay in New York.

The heavyweight champion boxed three rounds with Johnny Dundee, the veteran former featherweight champion then stepped two more with a Canadian lightweight, Mickey McGowan, after which he shadow boxed and punched the bag for several minutes.

Considering his long absence from competition, Dempsey's speed and timing of blows were impressive and convinced observers that a few weeks of hard work will put the title holder in close to old-time form.

Dempsey plans to do road work in central park and engage in gymnasium workouts daily, pending the outcome of his application for a license to fight Gene Tunney here on Sept. 16. The champion and his challenger are to appear before the state athletic commission to settle this issue next Tuesday.

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey today was ordered to appear in United States district court August 17 to answer an injunction suit recently filed by the Chicago coliseum club which claims to have a contract with the champion to engage in a bout with Barry Wills, negro challenger.

JENKINS TAKES SLUGGING LEAD

Wichita Falls Bludgeoner Forges to Top With .386 Figure

Jay Kirke slipped a notch in batting last week and Jenkins of Wichita Falls became the real leader of the Texas loop with an average of .386. Seven more players climbed into the .300 class to swell the number to 44. Connelly, Beaumont, again leads in hits made with 164, Ewell Gross of Dallas holds the crown in run scoring with 103, while Charles Miller of Dallas has pushed his home run total to 25, the only player in the circuit with more than a score. Flashkamper of San Antonio is now tied with his team mate, Najo, for the top in stolen bases, at 21.

In club batting Beaumont has increased its figure to .317. The Exporters lead in runs and in hits made. Wichita Falls is the best home run hitting club, and San Antonio leads in stolen bases. Among the pitchers Fillingim of Beaumont still flaunts the best winning average, now .867, while Watt of San Antonio leads in games won with 18, Love of Dallas is the strike out king with 162.

Club batting players hitting .300 and pitchers winning half or better of their games through Wednesday follow:

Archer County Holds Limelight In Week's Oil Developments

NEW POOL IS ARCHER THRILL

Texas Company's Well Flowing 500 or more on Land Turberville

The completion of the Texas company's well on the Turberville land in Archer county which is flowing an estimated 500 or 600 barrels daily, the opening of a distinct new pool in the same county by L. T. Burns and the Simms Oil company were the main events in the Wichita district during the past week, making the last seven days another banner era for this active part of the state. Another completion no less interesting was turned in by R. R. Clarke and Smith when they deepened an old shallow producer in the Sunshine Hill district which came in flowing over 200 barrels, causing a brisk rise in average prices in an area almost forgotten.

Top Sand at 1,734.

The Texas company topped the sand at 1,534 feet and drilled to 1,538 feet on their No. 1-C Turberville, in block 172 of the R. Carson survey in Archer county, pipe was set and after swabbing a short while, the hole filled up and later flowed about 60 feet into the derrick. Sand on this well was found 11 feet lower than on the Simms discovery well to the north about 1,000 feet, and nothing much was expected from the Texas well, especially since the Simms company had just drawn a dry hole offsetting it diagonally on their No. 3-A Turbeville. This is the third producer in the new Simms field and points out that some record wells will probably be completed in that pool.

The Marland company completed their No. 1 Turberville well to be west of the Texas company well the middle of the week and it is estimated as a 100-barrel pumper.

On the Jefferson county school land survey in block 21 and approximately two miles southeast of the major oil company pool, L. T. Burns and the Simms company found another productive spot in Archer county and have over 500 feet of oil in the hole in their No. 1 Turberville. Most of the close-up acreage is held by the well owners and they will probably find which tracts are good and which are bad in the near future.

Another Major Pool.

What is forecast by Mid-Continent operators as the opening of another major pool, is the completion of two big wells in Throckmorton county by the Humble and Reiter-Foster companies. Humble No. 1 Stubblefield in the Woodson field is flowing 135 barrels per hour from a sandy lime topped a 3,778 feet and penetrated to 3,788 feet.

Reiter and Foster encountered the saturated lime at 3,922 feet and drilled to 3,924 on their No. 3 Parrott, three miles west of the Humble well and it is reported to be flowing over 2,500 barrels daily.

HUSBAND A LUXURY

Can't Deduct His Upkeep as a Business Expense Says Court

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—A wife who contracts with her husband to give him half her income can not deduct that amount as a business expense from her taxable income, the board of tax appeals held today.

The decision was given in the case of Mrs. Edwyna Applebye Robinson of New York, who explained that she and her husband, a sea captain, agreed upon their marriage in 1900 that she would give him half of her income and pay half of the home expenses if he gave up the sea.

GASOLINE HIGH STEAK HIGHER

The Advance in Petroleum Products Less Than Other Lines

That there is no justification for suspecting monopolistic leadership behind varying oil prices in different parts of the country appears from an address recently delivered by Judson C. Welliver before the American Petroleum institute at a meeting in the Baltimore hotel in Los Angeles. It is brought out in the address that gasoline price fluctuations are not more impressive than those in other lines of goods purchased by the people of the United States. Mr. Welliver said:

There are two especially popular complaints against the oil business. One is that prices seasonally and sectionally, rise and fall so rhythmically that only a monopolistic leadership could have possibly given the note. The other is that prices, seasonally and sectionally, vary so outrageously that the explanation must lie in industrial chaos or preconceived cussedness.

One recent writer succeeded in proving both these in the course of his book! Very recently I took the trouble to investigate these complaints. First I took the filling station price of gasoline on various dates in different parts of the country. Then from the department of labor at Washington I got an analysis of retail prices of staples in 51 cities. Next I compared the price variation for food with price variations for gasoline on September 15, 1925, that being the most recent date for which the department of labor had made figures.

Compared Prices.

Assuming that a motorist after driving all day would want a substantial dinner, I compared the prices of sirloin steak, potatoes and gasoline. It developed that on September 15 last sirloin steak sold at retail in San Francisco at 30 cents a pound, and in Buffalo at 47 cents, a difference of 39 per cent. But gasoline sold in San Francisco at 18 cents, ex-tax, and at 19 cents in Buffalo, a difference of only 5 1-2 per cent.

On that same day, excluding tax, gasoline was 18 cents in both Dallas and Chicago. But sirloins were 33.6 cents in Dallas and 46.6 cents in Chicago, a difference of 38 per cent.

Or, take potatoes. They cost at retail in Dallas 5.2 cents per pound and 3.3 in Chicago, a difference of 58 per cent.

Still excluding tax, gasoline was 20 cents at both Birmingham, Ala., and Boston. But sirloin steaks averaged in Boston 69.6 cents, and in Birmingham 39.6 cents, a difference of 75 per cent. Potatoes in Boston cost 3.2 cents and in Birmingham 5.3 cents per pound, a difference of 62 per cent.

Other Comparisons.

Next, take Washington, D. C., and Portland, Ore. Gas, ex-tax was 18 cents in Portland, 20 cents in Washington; difference, 11 per cent; but sirloin was 28.4 cents in Portland, and 47.3 in Washington; difference 66 per cent. Potatoes were 3.1 in Portland, and 4 cents in Washington; difference, 34.4 per cent.

Such illustrations could be multiplied indefinitely. Take house rentals. In Atlanta the average annual rental paid by a family with income under $900 was $70.70; in Baltimore it was $123.12; in Buffalo, $168.67. These wide variations are not less impressive in view of the fact that gasoline prices at Atlanta, Baltimore and Buffalo were, respectively, 21, 18.5 and 19 cents.

Or, take an Ohio case. At Cincinnati house rental for families with incomes between $900 and $1,200 was $136.46; at Columbus, $174.22; and at Cleveland, $203.04. But at all three cities, gasoline sold at 19 cents, ex-tax.

Extremes Common.

These price variations may seem extreme, but such extremes are common. Much more startling variations would be shown in a comparison between food costs in rural communities and large cities. Likewise, if rentals in small towns and large cities were contrasted, the divergencies would be still more striking. But the price of gasoline is substantially uniform in city and country.

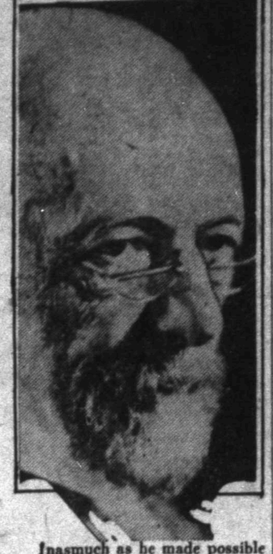

The conclusion as to the charge of extreme sectional or seasonable variation in the price of gasoline is simply that it is not true. Of course, there is considerable difference between South Carolina, with a 5 cent tax, and New York or New Jersey with no tax. That difference is at times accentuated, when price cutting enters and a new filling station sells gas at cost for a brief time to attract patrons. But these are conditions all incident to competition.

Discusses Gallon Tax.

Turn for a moment to the gallonage taxes on gasoline, now imposed in some 44 states. Last year the industry collected almost $80,000,000 and turned it over to the states. Since then, 16 states have increased this tax, and nine more have adopted it. It is estimated that this tax will yield $150,000,000 for 1925, and negrer $200,000,000 in 1926. And it is no answer to say that the gasoline tax is paid, not by the industry, but by the consumer. So, broadly, are all taxes; but those publicists who for years have tried to establish a broad policy of consumption taxation could best tell you how hopelessly unpopular is such a program.

It deserves to be better realized, and to be set down to the credit of oil and the motor car, that these Siamese Twins of industry are financing the construction, and will in the future finance the maintenance of the greatest single public facility of this continent, the nationwide system of improved highways.

Printers Finally Honor Inventor of "Half-tone"

Inasmuch as he made possible this illustration, and all other newspaper illustrations, Frederick E. Ives, inventor of the half-tone reproduction process, has received 21 medals in recognition of his achievement; oddly enough the 21st medal was the first to be presented by those who make most use of half-tones, the printers.

Fiance Testifies Bearse Normal Night He Tortured Mother To Death; His Home "Sinister"

Girl in Hospital From Shock Says She Refused Proposal To Live In House With Mrs. Bearse

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Richard C. Bearse, 26, who killed his mother, Mrs. Etta Bearse, divorced wife of County Treasurer Fred A. Bearse, in her home early yesterday morning, appeared in entirely normal condition Thursday night, according to Miss Marie Wilson, his companion, who told the police today that she had been engaged to marry the young man. She was interviewed in Wesson Memorial hospital where she was taken in a state of collapse on learning of the murder yesterday.

She said that Bearse and his mother took luncheon with her in a restaurant Thursday evening. Afterward Bearse took his mother to her home in his car and Miss Wilson, her sister and a girl friend attended a theatre. Bearse met them there and took them home. During a conversation, she said that Bearse had asked her if she would make her home with his mother after they were married and she had told him she did not wish to do so "because she believed there was something sinister about the place." She said they had intended to be married next June. She stressed that Bearse appeared to be perfectly normal.

Miss Wilson is expected to be released from the hospital today. Bearse is in the county jail with a hearing set for August 13 on a charge of murdering his mother, besides whose horrible mutilated body he was found moaning and raving when the police, in response to a repeated call from

Notice to Owners of Restricted Lots

From time to time we have had owners of fine lots request us to build a house for them on their lots, which we have always regretfully declined to do as we ourselves owned about forty lots in Talunar Place and were busy erecting houses on them. We have also had people request us to sell them a lot in Talunar Place on which they could build a house themselves.

It is now our pleasure to announce to people who own desirable residence lots that the services of our organization are available to them. This service includes designing and planning of the house by an architect of ability and experience, erection of the house according to the well known standard of Talbert, Lundien and Arnhold houses, financing for the owner by any plan that meets his approval and delivery of the complete house with the same high degree of satisfaction that has attended every house that we have ever built.

In this connection it might be well to repeat a statement that we have made before, which is that we can not build cheap houses, have never built one and never will build one. Our houses are erected from the finest materials the markets afford, by mechanics of recognized ability among the building trades of Wichita Falls and with supervision made complete by years of experience and with interiors of artistic appeal to all who have been in any of the various houses we have erected in Wichita Falls. We have a justifiable pride in the utility of our houses and will match that pride of erection against your pride of ownership.

If you desire a well built, pretty home, we cordially invite you to call on us. We will build it on your lot, or if you like our lots you can choose one and we will build it for you there.

If you care to own a lot in Talunar Place and have some one else build a home for you, we will be glad to have you select a lot, the price we believe, is exceedingly fair, $1,750.00 for inside ones and $2,000.00 for corners, including paving.

We have a very fine lot in North Morningside which we will sell at cost, $4,500.00. It is 100x183 feet. If you like the lot but do not want to put quite that much money in a lot, we have arrangements made for an adjoining property owner to take 25 feet which would leave a very beautiful lot 75 feet wide at a cost of only $3,375.00.

We have two houses ready for occupancy, one of five rooms, the other of nine rooms, with four bed rooms, number 2302 and 2309 Bullington street. The price of one is $8,500.00, the other is $13,750.00, on a large lot. Terms to suit purchaser.

CLINE HOME UNDER WAY

Palatial Residence in Country Club Estates to Cost $200,000

Considerable interest was aroused in realty and business circles last week with the announcement that plans had been completed and that work would begin soon on the palatial residence of Walter Cline in Country Club Estates. Tentative plans indicate that the structure will cost more than $200,000 to complete, and when finished will be one of the most beautiful and elaborate homes in the state.

This makes about the tenth or twelfth elegant home to be built in the new addition, and a number of these homes are well into the highest class.

The new homes of W. P. Ferguson and C. W. Gilliland which are now under construction are being erected at a cost in excess of $60,000 each and practically every home built in the addition to date are above the $20,000 class.

Only Five Months Old

The Country Club Estates is now only about five months old, having been opened for building in April of this year. The addition is located on the highway between the Country club and the Municipal club, and is one of the most beautiful sites in the city. The building sites are of exceptionally large size ranging from two to three acres, and in addition there is an 80-acre park to be established within the addition.

There are now about 14 homes either completed or under construction, and it is planned to have at least 20 homes started at the time of the formal opening of the Estates which will be some time in September.

Seventy-five lots have been sold to date in the addition. L. P. Hammond, J. A. Fisher and L. H. Cullom have all purchased lots and are arranging plans for building in the near future. Many others have lots purchased and will build in the not distant future.

It is the plan of the promoters to have more than 50 homes in the addition before the end of a year from the date of the first building, and the pre-opening sale of lots and building activities indicate that there will probably be more than that number finished.

Will Have a School Building

The construction of the new public school building, which will be named the Benjamin Franklin school, has been under way for some time and will be completed for the opening of the next public school term.

This school is located in the Country Club Estates and will provide ample educational facilities for the new addition. The school will have a good enrollment for the first term as all of the south side in that territory will be patrons of the school, while its scholastics will increase as the Estates build up into homes.

It is planned that the school building, paved streets, paved side walks, lights, telephones, gas and sewerage will all be established and ready for use by the opening day in September and at that time there will be a big Falls' greatest residence sub-division.

The "Nocona Black Spot on the conservation record of the oil and gas division of the Texas Railroad commission is a "black spot" no more, according to a report handed railroad commissioner Lon A. "The loss of this gas was the one black spot on the commission's conservation record," it reads. It goes on to state, however, that this year the operators have learned their lesson as regards the peculiarities of the field, and although the gas pressure is enormous there has not been a single "blow-out" registered.

City Council Will Be Asked To Form "Chain Gang"

The city council will be asked at its Monday night session to authorize the creation of a "chain gang" among the prisoners confined in the city jail and designate work on the city properties that such a gang may be assigned to do, Chief of Police George Hudgins stated Saturday.

There are almost continually in the jail anywhere from four or five to 12 negroes and white men "laying out fines," he said Saturday. It is his belief that to put these men at work on the road, "making little rocks out of big ones," would, besides putting them to use, have a tendency to decrease the number of misdemeanor cases over which the corporation court has jurisdiction.

One or more guards would have to be employed for the prisoners, he said, each member of the gang would have an iron ball fastened to his left by means of a four-foot chain to prevent his getting away.

Duke Too High For Edna, So She Ducks

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Edna Wallace Hopper, known as the perennial flapper, who sailed for Paris in June expecting to marry the Duc de Chatre, head of an illustrious French family, has found an alliance too expensive and the wedding is off, she has written to a friend here.

"They want too much settled on the Duc," the actress and former wife of Dewolf Hopper, wrote to Otis E. Glidden. "It's the old story. French families always expect a dot. The older the family the larger the dot and 'dot' in French means 'dough,' just the way it is pronounced.

"I decided to duck the Duc. I like him but he comes too high. My heart is not broken, but I acknowledge I am disappointed. We remain good friends. I may marry some day, but I have no plans now."

Save Hotel Guest

Foreman D. H. Walters of the Bell Telephone company of Corsicana, was presented with a bronze Vail medal for saving the life of W. W. Hearne, foreman of the Prairie Pipeline company, at Marion hotel in Corsicana. Mr. W. L. Howell, plant superintendent for the state of Texas, said:

"On the afternon of October 30, 1925, after work, W. W. Hearne, foreman of the Prairie Pipeline company, who had a room at the Marion hotel in Corsicana, was preparing to take a bath. The gaspipe leading to the hot water heater in the bath room of the hotel had, in some way, become disconnected and Mr. Hearne was in consequence overcome by the escaping gas. He was found by a guest of the hotel on the floor of the bathroom apparently dead, cold, with muscles and eyes set.

"Mr. Walters, who also has a room in the hotel, had just returned from his day's work. Upon learning of the accident, he immediately went to Mr. Hearne's assistance and began to give him first aid treatment in the form, principally, of artificial respiration. After working for about 20 minutes, Mr. Hearne began to breathe and by the time the doctor arrived his breathing was normal and he had regained consciousness."

Hunt Continues For Oklahoman's Grave

OKMULGEE, Okla., Aug. 7.—(AP) A special grand jury may be convened to investigate the slaying of May Bell, and the supposed murder of her father, Alf Bell, it was indicated tonight when searchers returned from a fruitless hunt for Bell's grave.

It has already been established that May was slain by Joe Hodges a few hours after he went to Muskogee last Wednesday night where he shot and killed his wife and then committed suicide. It is believed that Hodges killed Bell in his first move of a conspiracy to obtain $1,700 which was left the girl by her grandmother who died a few months ago.

Scores of volunteers aided officers in searching the vicinity of Hodge's Turkey Pen Hollow ranch southwest of the city today but no trace of the supposed grave was found.

PICKERS GET R. R. RATE CUT

F. W. & D. and W. F. Railway Offering 2-3 Fares To Cotton Pickers

Anticipating an enormous demand for cotton pickers to harvest the bumper cotton crop of the trade territory adjacent to Wichita Falls, the Fort Worth & Denver City railway and the Wichita Valley railway are offering all the co-operation possible and are making a special fare reduction for groups of cotton pickers traveling in and out of Wichita Falls over these two roads. J. W. Chatham, traffic manager of the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce, received a communication from the passenger traffic department at Fort Worth, informing him that a complete tariff schedule for one-way second class party fares would be sent to him within a few days.

The reduced fare is in the form of a blanket ticket and applies only where 25 or more persons ride to a single destination on the same ticket. Charge is based on two-thirds of a regular fare for adults and children at one-half of adult fare. A minimum of $1 per capita will be charged on each ticket.

The tickets will become effective on the tenth of this month and will be good through Dec. 31, of this year. They will apply to any and all points on the Fort Worth & Denver City railway and the Wichita Valley railway.

Washington's Favorite Sport Is Counting Disappearing Coat Tails

By JEAN JARVIS,
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—It is, after all, not too dull in Washington despite the absence of celebrities. Everybody's busy as anything counting the fluttering coat tails of departing diplomatists. These special "guests of Uncle Sam" seem to be emulating the national legislators who in the earlier primaries went out in bunches.

They do say that the latest departure hinted at is none other than of the ambassador of Belgium, Baron de Cartierde Marchienne, who by reason of the retirement of Spain's envoy, Senor Riano, recently fell heir to the deanship of the diplomatic corps. Incidentally, just now it looks as though Sir Esme Howard, ambassador of Great Britain would jolly well be head of the contingent before a great while.

Approve Sir Esme

Should Sir Esme—tall and distinguished and very, very British, but entirely affable withal, become dean of the corps, Washington certainly would approve for of all the women in the foreign group, none has a more genuine flare for good companionship and gracious hospitality than Lady Isabelle Howard. She's a titled Italian with a very distinguished ancestry and one of her pet diversions is to spend days and days motoring over the historic countryside in nearby Dixieland. She is really rather uncannily familiar with countryside history, and it is rather disconcerting for a "real American" to discover that the gentle lady is a whole lot more familiar of history of this or that famous spot than does Madame America.

She's been to Monticello, Jefferson's homestead, to Mount Vernon, to Gunston Hall, to Rippon Lodge, all down the James river country, and dear only knows where else and she can descant from personal knowledge on the absolutely bewildering beauties of the famous Shenandoah Velley during the apple blossom season.

Quite Thrilled

And she confesses herself quite thrilled with the lovely old homesteads and the quaintly picturesque villages that one comes upon in Maryland and Virginia.

As for Sir Esme, he grew up in a section of England which never did approve of the revolutionary rumpus. On the contrary, staunch supporters o fthe contentions of the colonists abounded aplenty and to this day there are sites still carrying the names of various colonial worthies who waged bitter war upon the repressive laws imposed by the mother country. Altogether, as dean and doyenne, Sir Esme and Lady Isabella would suit their roles to a nicety, so the social typsters declare.

Quite another year, however, before the rumored change comes in the Belgian representation, so devotees of the daringly smart in Parisian attire will have another season in which to discuss the very latest toggery as expressed in the wardrobe of the Baroness de Cartier. Last season she had absolutely the shortest skirt in town. Barely covering the knee-cap, the slenderly-cut skirt of lacquer red chiffon velvet was simply weighted with heavy gold embroidery.

Slender Enough to Dare

In a formal evening gown, the bodice was sleeveless and the decollete at the back almost reached the waistline while at the front it described a shallow curve. The whole upper section was simply massed with heavy gold metal embroideries. A petite person, the baroness is slender enough to dare such models. Incidentally, she topped this costume off with a gorgeous tiara of diamonds (a three-pointed affair delightfully graceful in design) and a string of diamonds that would twice about the neck and swung below the waist in a glittering fastcon.

GLORY HAT FOR WICHITA GIRL

Local Shop Will Follow Course Laid By Flo Ziegfeld

And now a "Flapper Hat Shop."

Just as the famous Floren Ziesfield has dedicated his famous Follies to the glorification of the American Girlhood—so the Orchid Shop is announcing a Flapper Hat Shop—for the glorification of the American Flapper.

This new step is in line with a policy inaugurated at the opening of the Orchid Shop—to present the public with a series of exclusive shops all contained within one store.

The Flapper Hat Shop will be a companion shop to the Sweet Sixteen Dress Shop and will be located upon the attractive balconies of the Orchid Shop adjacent to the Sixteen Dollar shop.

The shop will present the very newest creations at one popular price. The same policies will be carried out as in the other shops—at no time will there be an accumulation of merchandise, or a single big stock of hats—but there will be kept a small choice selection, supplemented almost daily by the newest dictates of Dame Fashion.

In addition to the Orchid Shop proper, this institution now contains a group of splendid exclusive departments, including The Orchid Millinery Shop, The Orchid Beauty Salon, The Orchid Slipper Shop, The Sweet Sixteen Dress Shop and the Flapper Hat Shop.

The formal opening of the Flapper Hat Shop will be announced in a few days.

Not So Dumb—

MME. IDA CHERNOFF

BY MME. IDA CHERNOFF.

One of a series of articles showing that charm is partly without and partly within; how beauty may be secured by improving mind, and personality.

Very general is the impression that the woman who is both beautiful and intelligent is as rare as a precious jewel. Is this true? Doubtless there are many girls who from infancy have been endowed with more than normal good looks; girls who have been so sought after for the round of social pleasures that they have neglected their brains and allowed their beauty and vanity to cloud their intelligence and personality. Such girls do exist, girls who, after the dance, are summed up in masculine confidence as "beautiful but dumb."

A regular profile, clean skin, and an attractive figure will of themselves win for their possessor much of the joys of life—invitations to dances and to social gatherings, admiration, and passing attention of many men. But these things alone, without the vibrant sympathy and keen intelligence of an active mind, are swiftly burned out, leaving the ashes of disillusion and emptiness of life.

The truth of the matter is probably this—the homely girl must live by her wits while her pretty sister will pass for her beauty. All this might have been very well a decade or two ago, but today men, thrown more in contact with women in business and freer social relations, expect more from a woman in the way of companionship, repartee, and knowledge, of masculine sports and activities, so that the girl who is only beautiful finds herself very often eclipsed by one with less physical charm, who can add mental exhilaration to passive admiration.

Let me, then, make my point: Any girl who is "dumb" cannot be beautiful. She may be pretty, she may be "easy to look at," but somehow the real friendship, the joyful parties, and the worthwhile sweetheart will come to the girl with charm.

In a later article I shall give you my definition of charm and show you that it is something that may be acquired, even by the girl whose mirror reflects many minor physical shortcomings.

Wichita Falls Folks Obey That Impulse From Coast to Coast

WHEN summer comes full blast and the days are long and hot, there is a call that instinctively puts in man the desire to get away, to seek new fields, perhaps cooler ones, or shade; a nook; a brook where the fish bite quick; or perhaps a mountain from which to look over the surrounding country and meditate, to get an inspiration which only the grandeur of uplands and plateaus can bring.

Wichita Falls, perhaps more than any other city in the southwest, sends more people into resorts of various kinds, into hills and valleys, well-known places, and those out-of-the-way crannies, during the summer months.

Here's Where.

Among the places that they go are Medicine Park, Okla., easily accessible, and which almost every Wichitan knows; Craterville Park, Okla., too is nearby, and is a favorite for summer campers, especially Boy Scouts and Camp Fire Girls.

For those who wish to make a longer trip, the mountains of Colorado, California, the national forests in Wyoming as well as Salt Lake City and other points have their quota from the city.

There is in southwest Texas a resort favored by many—Kerrville on the banks of the Guadalupe river whose bright clear waters are ideal for bathing, fishing and boating. At Kerrville is the Presbyterian encampment where hundreds of Texans find recreation during their vacations. Among the hills of that region are to be found deer and in the hunting season men with ideas of the chase infest that section.

Near Junction.

One of the prettiest places in Texas is in Kimble county near Junction where great hills, really small mountains rear themselves above the surrounding country. It is a fine playground on the Llano river, where it is said thousands go to take advantage of the camping and scenery.

A few years ago the late William Jennings Bryan who was at that time touring the country in a campaign, had occasion to stop at Junction. According to the story, he looked out upon the mountain pass, and be exclaimed to his companions, "The lights and shadows are the prettiest in America."

The violet crowned hills on the Colorado river near Austin, wonderful old Bull creek with its magnificent rock banks and waterfalls, with here and there a swimming hole are favorites, too, with campers. The Comal river near San Marcos offers itself to the pleasures of the camper and picnicker.

Palo Duro Canyon.

Across Texas in the northwest near Amarillo is the Palo Duro canyon. Although not so old by millions of years as the Grand Canyon of Arizona, according to geologists, it has already attained beauty in the deep cuts and little streams that flow through it. Resorts of which the people in that section are proud, are springing into being, and is proving a mecca for those of the panhandle.

There are many who take the southern route to California, going to El Paso, from there into Old Mexico. But on their way over the Bankhead highway, they go through the real mountains of Texas, the Davis mountains. Foothills of the Rockies, they are and though rather far away from the parent mountains, they have not lost their beauty. Old Sawtooth sends its ragged edges to the skies, and among the heights are silver lakes which are delightful in the summer. These mountains, though well known through magazine and newspaper stories, have not been filled with the tourists that the more widely known Rockies have, but they are coming into their own.

Near Fort Davis.

Near Fort Davis, a local citizen, Rabbi Samuel Phillips, is assisting in a summer camp for boys and girls, including several from Wichita Falls.

Other Wichitans who are spending the summer away from home, seeking the cooler regions, and not wishing to go to a resort where thousands of tourists pour daily into the camp grounds and hostelries, travel to points in New Mexico only a day's drive from some of the western towns near the line between the states.

Hidden away among the mountains in New Mexico in Lincoln National forest is a wonderful quiet place, haunted by those who are seeking solitude from the noise. On the banks of the noisy Rio Hondo which rushes madly over rocks and stones are camping grounds. High upon the hills reaching an elevation of 6,000 feet are nine trees, a hundred feet tall, growing close together, their immensity giving an idea of their age.

Indians Thrill Scouts.

Close to this place is Ruidoso Springs, a resort which Boy Scouts find almost ideal for camping. The Mescalero Apache Indian reservation also near, furnishes inspiration to study the native haunts of the red man. As for those botanically inclined, there is also material for study in the hundreds of varieties of flowers and ferns. The hillsides are dotted with vivid blossoms growing in the brief season from the flowering untamed plants.

A cave which has not been completely explored is back in the mountains. A group of boys penetrated the dark, cold cavern in the summer of 1925, and brought out with them wet stalactices and stalagmites formed in fancy shapes. The boys said they found a wall of ice in the cave, and did not go farther.

Last But Not Least.

Coming closer home, Lake Kemp which offers fishing and boating, is visited by persons from miles around. Lake Wichita, seven miles from the city is appreciated by the homefolk. In Hardeman county near Quanah is Lake Pauline formerly "Dumsite," especially favored for fishing.

At Cisco a great artificial lake has been built where a deep ravine has been dammed up. The highway runs over the dam and gives opportunity to see the engineering feature. It is said Dr. Bizzell, former president of A. and M. college, gave his opinion that this dam is one of the most wonderful engineering pieces in the state. The city of Cisco expects to make a state park here and already a fish hatchery has been established. A playground and zoo is in connection with the park, and it is beginning to find popularity among the pleasure seekers of this city and elsewhere.

"I AND GEORGE"—By
NINA WILCOX PUTNAM
America's Only Woman Humorist

As Isaac Walton, the great fish-dealer, once said, "There's many a poor fish that's unable to get into the swim, either in the marine or social worlds!"

And how true that is come over me last week when I and George, that's my husband, went down to Whoopsiewhakie Beach with that Joe Bush of the Hawthorne club, and his wife, Mabel, and the question of going in bathing come up.

In the first inst, we hadn't intended doing any bathing beyond the usual Sat. night affair, on account so far the summer had been so cold that every time we had gone to any beach, why instead of taking off our summer ones, we had put on our winter ones, and our Junior had give up taking his little pail and shovel, and dragged along his new sled.

So this day I am talking about I and Geo. and the two Bushes and our dear little boys, why we merely set out for a auto ride, it being Saturday and we had this original idea let's take a ride, there wasn't nothing else to do. So we got started, see, and Mabel Bush says where will we go to, let's go to Whoopsiewhakie Beach and plunge into the salt water taffy and get clubby with a few old sea-dogs with mustard, and etc.

Anything to Agree.

So seeing it was her gasoline we was riding on, and she was doing the driving, why we says fine, sure dear, and we will also get something to eat.

Let's stay and have one of them Shore Dinners, with deep sea chicken, oyster-plant and apple pie and all such sea foods. So we was all agreed on that and off we went.

Well I dunno what happened, the weather man must of made a mistake and thought he was in Florida, for the day turned out to be a whole lot warmer than it was when young, and by the time we got to the Beach we was feeling like a bunch of young onions in a steam kettle. For the luvva tripe! says George, ain't this weather something awful, this beat is terrible. And Mabel says yeh, it's worse then the cold, I'm as hot as a chile con carne. And I says honest I'm dripping, this party is all wet.

That Joe Bush, who is always full of ideas when he's sure he won't haf to pay for them, says hey George, got any money with you? And before he thought, Geo. told the truth. All right, fine, says Joe, what say we all hire a bathing suit and go for a swim? Well, says Geo, if we hire a suit, it'll take a long time for us all to use it. And Joe says, aw fluey, hire one for each of us, it only costs a few dollars extra, whatter we care for expenses, anyways?

"My first idea was to pretend I didn't know them."

Whatter Expenses to Joe?

Well naturally Joe didn't care for expenses—didn't care to have any, anybody could see that. In fact, he is generally that way when out with a friend. But Geo. had laid himself and pocketbook open by not guarding properly when Joe attacked, so there was nothing left for Geo. to do except look at me and Mabel hopefully and say well, it is just as the ladies say, whatever they wish is agreeable to me. And with them soft words he give me a hard look as much as to say, now, dearie, if you take a swim I'm gonner deduct it from your housekeeping money, listen, you are clean enough the way you are.

So I says why Geo. dear, I dunno as I want to go in. I kind of hate to wear a hired suit, I knew a girl friend once who got a hairlip wearing one, and I know mother once caught a awful cold doing the same, I think maybe we better not. But that Mabel Bush spoke up and she says what nonsense, my dear, the suits here is perfectly sanitary, why you could eat your dinner offen one, I know they cook them suits twenty minutes, or until tender, after each customer, come on, don't spoil the fun, let's go in!

Well, by that time our two Juniors had caught onto what was being talked about, and that Bush child commenced acting something terrible. He was yelling awa, I wanner go swimming, I'll lay down and yell if you don't lemme go swimming, hey Pa, make Ma lemme go swimming.

The Juniors Join In.

It was absolutely disgusting the way that child behaved at the top of his voice, yelling and hollering as loud as he could, with everybody turning around to look and everything. I was so mortified. While my little darling didn't do anything like that. He just simply let out one scream that must of reached from there to Chicago and kept it up until his face got a nice healthy purple, the dear little darling.

Well, a cop come along then and says we would haf to make them stop. It was noon and the factory whistle was due to blow, but the factory was waiting for the young ones to stop yelling on accounty they didn't want to waste the steam until there was some chance of the whistles being heard. So in order to get peace and quiet, why George bought a round of 50c bathing suits and 10c towels for $2.00 per person, rental, and we all went to our cells to dress.

As per usual in them places, these cells had been designed by the man who architected the solitary confinement cells in al lthe best known dungeons of the Middle Ages. A faint gleam of daylight trickled into them at high noon. The floors were damp and felt like badly iced gumbo soup, beneath the bare foot of the prisoner. There was a sound of water, remotely trickling from the grim foundations of the outer masonry and a hushed scuffling as of rats, as it were.

Down In the Dungeons.

The air hung damp and heavy in this cheerless place, and 'twas hard to remember what they gay world outside was like, as I fumbled for a peg to hang my dress on, and wondered where the heck to put my shoes to keep them dry and wondered why the house didn't furnish overshoes as well as suits and towels.

WILCOX

But at last I was as ready as I ever would be to appear in public in that hired suit, and with a strangled cry I burst out into the open bench, and there was the rest of my gang, ahead of me.

Well Hot Bozo! I took one look at that bunch, and believe you me, my first idea was to pretend I didn't know them. For the man who had dealt out them bathing suits to our party might of been kind to his old mother, but he would never of made a success guessing a person's correct weight for a nickel per party. Geo., for a sample, has a figure constructed along the graceful slenderness of a bean-pole, but the bathing suit he drew had unquestionably been discarded by Ex. Pres. Taft when he begun reducing.

Joe, quite no the other hand is kinda plump, not fat exactly, but there's considerable waste around the waist, if you get the idea. And the suit he had on was the one our Junior outgrew last year, or my ability for remembering familiar objects had went back on me.

No Laughing Matter.

The two kids had on suits with the pants so wide and long, they give the poor young ones a semi-collegiate appearance, while as for that Mabel Bush, she had on a two-piece suit made in one piece, with "Merryhaha Baths" in red across the bust-measure. They sure was a funny looking sight and I was just walking up to them to give them the ha ha when all of a sudden the bunch of them burst out laughing fit to kill theirselfs, and I turned around to see what was behind me that they were looking at, but there was only the cop which had spoke to us and he was no laughing matter.

And so I took a look at the suit I personally myself had on, and when I seen it for the first time in the light, why I realized it was one of them old, modest models with bloomers, a sailor-collar, and a skirt that was gonner trip me up if I didn't look out. So I decided I wouldn't laugh at the rest of the gang, after all, it was very bad manners to do so, and I wouldn't be that mean and unkind, and I told 'em so the minute I joined up with them.

Well, says Geo., anybody'll know we hired these suits. Anyways, they give us a chanct to go in. I know they look terrible, so come on, leave us get in the water where they won't show so much.

Mable Goes in Coyly.

So Joe Bush, he's one of them hardy guys that is always telling about how he takes a cold shower every day of his life but never explains where he takes it to, well anyways, of course he made a rush for the water, sticking his head in, and everything and then sticking his head out, and pretending he liked it. Come on in, it's great! he yelled. And so then Mabel went on down and got her toes wet and give a shriek and a coupla giggles in the conventional female manner. Oh my! she says, it's freezing, ooh I'm scared! So Geo. went in and bravely helped her past the waves until she was way in up to her knees, and all the while she was hanging onto Geo. andyelling, which was so cute of a dear little 170 lb. girl of 38 like her.

Well naturally when it come my turn to go in, all the company I had was two howling kids that didn't wanner get wet, but onct they was in, didn't wanner come out. They couldn't swim, and they didn't have a speck of sense, neither, and all I done was holler now don't go out so far, dear, watch out now, it may be deep there, keep in by the shore, darling, come here this instant, quit that splashing or I'll spank you good.

About then Geo. had swum way out with Joe, neither of them caring if I and Mabel and the children was to drown, maybe they was hoping it would happen while they was looking the other way. So I and Mabel took hands and jumped up and down pretty near up to our shoulders.

The Good Old Days.

While we done so I got to thinking about yrs. and yrs. ago when I and Geo. was first acquainted and went on a Sunday school picnic, and how Geo. sat on the sand with me, and led me in the waves, and learned me to swim, only he never really learned me, we was only kinda fooling around, if you get the idea, on account for one thing, I was afraid if I was really to learn, why he would quit teaching me, see? And Hot Bozo! I wouldn't of let that happen for the world.

But now, if I was to ask him for a swimming lesson, would I get it, and how! Geo. would grab me by the slack of the suit and say all right, all right, but how can I teach you if you won't relax, come on, float, doggone it, you won't drown, keep your head down, kick, now kick. And I would get my face full of water and my hair all dripping, and in two seconds I would be all in with hardly strength enough left to gasp you brute!

However, maybe that is just as well, on account if I learned to swim I would haf to do so, and if I done so, I bet anything I would get drowned.

So after a while I and Mabel come out of the water and sat in the sand and so did our alleged better halfs, and we sat there until we got enough sand on us to be sure of finding a little on us for the next week at odd times.

Then we dragged the kids out the water, and got in our own clothes again, and claimed we all felt fine, and started home. And on the way, Geo. says to me, say, he says, for the lurva tripe, a dip in the old ocean does feel good, don't it, Jennie, even in a funny looking suit? Don't you feel great, ain't you got over being sore about the costumes? And I hadder admit that he was right. Boy, I says, I feel exactly as if I was riding on the crest of a permanent wave!

Need Good Voice For Silent Dance

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 7.—(AP)—A good voice is as essential to a motion picture actor as to one in the spoken drama, the state industrial accident commission ruled in effect here yesterday when it awarded $1,624 compensation to Alfred Allen for an injury to his vocal chords.

Allen, while engaged in a motion picture storm scene, was standing on an artificial dock near an artificial ship and was struck by unusually heavy gust of the artificial storm. Dropping 18 feet, there was nothing artificial about the ground which he struck and such was the fury fo the storm and the force of the fall, he avers, that he broke a vocal chord and his voice since has been permanently "rought."

Boils for Years Now All Gone

Alabamian Says Dodson's Liver Tone Gave Him Brand New Liver worth Fortune

Experience seems to indicate that people store up in their systems certain poisons that break out all at once in a series of boils. Sometimes they are fatal.

Willie Hapes says: "Ever since I grew up boils broke out on me just when the planting season began, and I had to lay up. Blood remedies were worthless. The only known remedy was calomel, but it seemed to turn my stomach inside out. This spring I got a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and I feel sure it put a new liver into me worth a fortune, for it cleared off the boils and for the first time in years they didn't come back."

The reason for this is the fact that a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone loosens up the liver, lets go of a gorge of impurities, sour bile, fermented food and gas and breaks up the most obstinate constipation. And yet it never makes you sick—no gripe, no pain—even though it may drive out quarts of sour bile as black as ink. And this result is absolutely guaranteed.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and take a spoonful tonight. If it doesn't start your liver and strengthen you right up better than calomel did in all your life, and without griping or making you sick, go back to the store and get your money.

Wichita Adds 400 Citizens; Longhorns Get New Home; A-M Gets Laugh—Ain't Nature Grand

THE "four hundred," who were recently added to Wichita Falls' population have settled down and like it fine. This on the word of Dr. Charles W. Castner, superintendent of the North Texas asylum for the insane, whose cnarges were doubled in number 10 days ago when 235 women and 165 men were transferred here from an Austin asylum. The Austin plant has been turned over to the use of University of Texas departments, thereby bringing loud jeers from Baylor, A. & M. and other rival universities. But Longhorn students and profs, who have been inhabiting campus shacks smilingly accept the quarters vacated by the "400."

In the group transferred to Wichita Falls ae many who have spent the greater portion of their lives behind iron bars, gazing out into space with nothing tangible in their intellectual machinations. The transfer has filled local institution to more than normal capacity with men, but there are 75 or 80 vacancies for women, Dr. Castner stated Saturday. There are now 820 patients in the asylum and of that number a great many are in constant need of attention.

Still Need Some Women.

Dr. Castner said that the vacancies for women would not be open long as requests were being constantly received for placing new inmates in the institution. Last week eight requests were received from Harris county and three from Red River county, and at that rate it will not be long until the asylum will be filled to capacity.

To handle this number of partially helpless people requires a large personnel. There are now 87 full time employees at the asylum. This number includes doctors, nurses, attendants and the kitchen and field help. The increase will necessitate an increase in personnel, however, and soon there will be a total of 105 employes, under plans arranged by Dr. Castner, and the payroll which is now approximately $5,000 per month, will be proportionately increased.

Dr. Castner is proud of the new modern laboratory surgical and clinical equipment, especially the x-ray department, of which Dr. Floy Lyon is in charge. The local hospital is one of four institutions in the state which has that kind of equipment, the others being at San Antonio, Austin and Carlsbad.

Equipment the Best.

"No better, nor more efficient equipment could be ordered for a hospital," Dr. Castner stated, "and we are making reular x-ray tests of every patient in the institution and hope to be able to make better and more thorough analysis of each patient there."

L. B. Belk is supervisor of the institution.

Life at the asylum is not all a sorbid matter of handling broken minds. There are the most beautiful grounds in the city, with flowers and shrubs, and a Bermuda lawn.

The big asylum farm and the herd of dairy cows form one of the most important departments.

The farm is under the supervision of E. L. Townsend and has enjoyed a most remarkable success this year. It has produced $5,000 worth of sorghum hay alone and a bumper oat crop.

There is a 12-acre irrigated garden on the grounds, which to date this year has produced nearly $5,000 worth of product, all of which has been consumed at the institution.

Dairy One of Best.

One of the finest dairies in the southwest is located in a huge barn built after Minnesota methods, with artificial coolers for fresh milk and fireproof throughout. P. L. Colgin, an expert dairy man who was with the Ed Lasater dairy in Falfurrias for five years is in charge.

There are 35 registered dairy cows in the herd and the superintendent expects to purchase 25 more in the near future.

When the North Texas Insane Asylum was first considered, Dr. Castner was superintendent of the state asylum at San Antonio. He immediately made a bid for the new institution and was appointed to this place.

His plant includes 12 large brick fireproof buildings, a power plant and a dairy and feed barn.

Dazed For Weeks, Cleveland Man Wakes In Wichita Falls Asylum, $600 Safe In Pocket

"Where am I?" asked an inmate of the Wichita Falls insane asylum recently, apparently waking from a dream.

"Wichita Falls."

"I belong in Cleveland, Ohio. Where is that $600 I had in my pocket.?"

The money is safe, and had been since the man had been brought in weeks before, in a trance.

When he asked the question, it was the first time he had spoken. Telegrams developed that he was foreman of a large Cleveland firm, and that section had been combed in search of him. He went home apparently in perfect mental health.

Among the 600 inmates now on hand at the asylum are two oddly similar cases; two sisters are wealthy, and are looked up because they try to give their money away. In an adjoining building, a man is locked up because he hasn't any money but still insists on giving it away.

THE GIRLS WERE PLACED IN ASYLUM BY BROTHER.

After having followed a fantaic who lived in a shack in the hills and fasted most of the time. They refuse to wear clothes with any color, but dress altogether in khaki and would leave in the spring of the year "looking for the Lord." They refuse to drink Eagle brand milk unless the eagle is torn off the can, claiming that it represents worldly wealth.

Both are pretty brunette girls, and are the participants in a large estate which cannot be turned over to them on account of the fact that they would give it all away, following out the teachings of their leader. They were brought to the North Texas Insane asylum forcibly in an automobile, believing it a sin to ride in one.

The man who lives a delusive world of high finance is somewhat of a favorite at the institution. The first question he asks a visitor is, "how much money he wishes to borrow." If one answers $10,000, the liberal hearted George immediately offers several times that.

A recent inmate who became well enough to leave in the past few days, was an artist. He labored under the delusion that a hostile mob was outside the door. He is now with a Lyceum circuit in Colorado.

POP BOTTLE AND AIRPLANE HAVE ONE THING IN COMMON

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The empty pop bottle and the airplane have only one thing in common, the aerial patrol service with headquarters at Mather field near here has discovered.

Their affinity of interest is limited to the forest fire. It has been learned that fires have often been started in grass by the concentration of sun's rays through the magnifying glass of a bottle, carelessly tossed aside by the person who has drained it.

DECEASED IS A "GRADED" BODY IN THIS CEMETERY

FOLKSTONE, Eng., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Folkestone's new cemetery is to have first second and third class graves.

The question whether the graves should be graded has been agitating residents here for months, and the controversy was finally settled by the town council which adopted a resolution in favor of the grading system.

WOMAN CHIEF IS "FLYING COP"

LONDON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Commandant Mary Allen, co-founder of the women's police service in London, has become known as Europe's "flying cop" since she is one of the most travelled police officials in the world. When possible she makes her trips by airplane.

Commandant Allen, who is credited with knowing more women crooks of all countries than any other woman in the police business, visited the United States two years ago, and has been pretty much on the go ever since.

She thinks nothing of flying to Paris, Berlin or other points in one day, on some important case in which a woman is involved, and back to London the next. The seeting up of a women's international police commission was due primarily to efforts of Commandant Allen.

ARMY PLAN CONVERTS BAD MEN INTO GOOD CITIZENS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Army chiefs believe they have found out how to make bad men into honest law abiding citizens.

At least they are gratified over the results of their experiments with prisoners in the Leavenworth disciplinary barracks and have decided, for that reason, to extend their reform work to other institutions of the kind, including those at Fort Jay, N. Y., and Alcatraz, Calif.

The reform movement in Leavenworth was started by Col. G. O. Cress, commandant, with a small group of prisoners. These were given a course of studies in character building consisting of physical drills to encourage manly carriage, instructions regarding the importance of personal cleanliness and appearance in public, and class work in expression and clear thinking.

DON'T LOVE FARMER GIRLS

MOLD, Flintshire, Wales.—(AP)—"What's the use of talking about 'back to the land' in this age when boys love polished nails and girls must all have powderpuffs?" Mrs. J. Evans of Mannerch, demanded in a speech before the Flintshire Liberals in opposition to the Lloyd George land scheme.

But in spite of the bitter opposition offered by Mrs. Evans and a group of her loyal supporters the Flintshire Liberals endosed the Liberal land plan.

TURTLE DATED 1815

THOMPSONVILLE, Conn., Aug. 7.—(AP)—A turtle ambling through the underbrush on the farm of William McCracken, was recognized as the same one which had been a free tenant for the last hundred years.

Mr. McCracken first saw the turtle fifty-two years ago and noted on its shell "NW" and "1815." Records showed that a Mr. Wardwell had lived on the farm in 1815. The turtle is thought to be about 150 years old.

Lemons Bleach the Skin White

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.

T. U. SHINES IN SUMMER

Short Session Will Soon Outstrip Winter Term

AUSTIN, Aug. 7.—Enrollment at the University of Texas summer school is almost without equal among the colleges and universities of the United States, recently stated Dr. F. O. Reed of the summer faculty, who is chairman of the Spanish department in the University of Arizona. With nearly 3,000 students enrolled in the first term, and the number approaching 2,000 for the second term. Dr. Reed predicted that within a few years the summer school would be more popular than the long session and that it would have a greater number of students.

Visiting Celebrities.

Dr. Reed attributes the large enrollment in the summer to the unusual number of prominent visiting faculty members, the great variety of both undergraduate and graduate courses given, and the reputation that the University of Texas summer session has built up in the southwestern part of the country. The University will not only be drawing because of the continued efforts of the officials of the summer school to attract able visiting faculty members, such as Dr. C. F. T. Brooks of Yale, Dr. George Sherburn of Chicago University, Dr. C. F. Arrowood of Rice Institute, Dr. Marcel Moraud of the University of Paris, France, and a great number of others.

There are very few summer sessions at other colleges and universities that have such a strong personnel of visiting instructors, Dr. Reed said. The university is especially fortunate, he thinks, in that it also has a very strong faculty in the summer school of regular members of the teaching staff.

Spanish Work Praised.

"The university officials are very judicious in offering work in Spanish," according to Dr. Reed. There is no effort made to curtail this work, as no matter what the size of the class, a course is given. An effort is made to satisfy the needs of every student for both advanced and graduate study."

IN AUSTRIA

VIENNA.—(AP)—Officials of the Juvenile club of Weissenbach, comprising 2,000 members, have given notice to the female members of the organization that bobbed hair will no longer be tolerated. Negro Competition Smothers Cotton Farmer; Standards In South Below Those of Japan

Weakest Seller Makes Market Price of Cotton, Says Walton Peteet, Urging More Co-Operative Marketing

Co-operative Problems

This discussion was brought out by the speaker in outlining the specific problems facing co-operative marketing associations of the south in concluding an outline of the substantial progress made by such organizations during the past five and six years. "Co-operative marketing offers the only salvation for the cotton growers of the south to improve their living conditions by eliminating their competition that has been built up with growers having a lower standard of living. Moving the cotton of such growers through the channels of co-operative marketing," he said, "places the marketing in strong hands and those whose interest of the white man's standard of living is foremost. If the white people of the south so understood these conditions as they exist, they would unite solidly in removing this millstone from around the necks of the cotton farmers which is holding down their standard of living. With the force of public opinion behind the farmers' orginazations and the removing of such conditions they likewise remove the antagonism and perplexities of any race problems by an economic solution."

Texas Association a Model

In discussing the progress of co-operative marketing in America, Mr. Peteet paid high tribute to the progress and accomplishments of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association which he said "has and is being used throughout the United States as a model and example for farmers' co-operative marketing organizations." The co-operative marketing movement has made the most marvelous progress ever made in the history of this country by farmers, he said. "It is now an accepted part of the agricultural and business life of this nation. It is a part of the business machinery of the United States. Its principles and soundness are not qquestioned, and as it is so accepted in trade and commerce it is likewise accepted in a legal way, court decisions and ruling having removed any doubt as to its legality. It has passed the stage of doubt or uncertainty."

Three Facts Demonstrated

That experience has demonstrated three outstanding accomplishments of the co-operative marketing movement which in its initial stages were questioned, were stated by Mr. Peteet as: first—the American farmer will cooperate and will support his organization; second—that the American farmer can organize and operate efficiently large business enterprises; and third—that co-operative marketing is a permanently established system and a part of our national life.

The speaker further discussed progress in all the staple commodities of the country and said that according to government figures there are now "12,000 farmers' co-operative business institutions in the country, comprising a membership of 2,7000,000 farmers and doing an annual business slightly less than three billion dollars."

Mr. Peteet, as secretary of the National Council of Farmers' Co-operative marketing association, represents an affiliation of the larger co-operative marketing associations of the country, with headquarters in Washington.

NOBILITY GIVES ZITA FUNDS

BUDAPEST, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Patriotic members of the old Hungarian nobility have created a fund to support former queen Zita, and her family of eight children, who are now living at San Sebastian, Spain.

Out of this fund the widow of former King Charles is assured an allowance of $60,000 a year, which, with the income she derives from her private properties in Hungary, nets her about $100,000 a year.

Hungary, as a state, is forbidden to pay any government funds to the former queen. Hence, the wealthier members fo the Hungarian nobility like Count Apponyi and Count Andrassy, have helped her out of their own funds.

ED WYNN'S QUESTION BOX

By ED WYNN

"THE PERFECT FOOL"

He Knows All—He Sees All

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I advertised in the papers for a servant and today my ad was answered by a man who said he just left your employment. In answering my question about why he left you, he said that he absolutely left you without any angry words. Is this true?

Sincerely,
I. N. Gagedhim.

Answer:
It is true. I was in the bath and he just locked the door, packed his things, and went away as quiet as possible.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I have a notion store and business has been very bad. I have a lot of stockings I would like to sell as they have been in my store for over 3 years. I want to hae a sale and sell these stockings for 10c a pair. Would you be kind enough to compose a good sign for me to put in my window?

Yours Truly,
Odzen Ends.

Answer:
As the stockings have been on the shevles, in boxes, for nearly 4 years I think the following would be the right kind of a sign:

STOCKINGS 10c A PAIR
They won't last long at this price.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I live 10 miles away from the nearest city to my farm. My wife is sick and I gess I'll hafto drive to the sity for a doctor. I don't know as ther is one in the whole town but if ther is do you think I will find a Fizzician in the drug store?

Yours truly,
Cy Derren Krackers.

Answer:
The way you spell Fizzician I guess you'll find him in the drug store that is if they have a soda fountain.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
Can you help me? For the past two weeks I have been despondent and have the most peculiar feeling. Sometimes I sit in a chair for hours and suddenly something within me seems to rise then go down again, and a little later it rises again. What do you think is the matter with me?

Sincerely,
Wright Meesoon.

Answer:
From your description I should say you swallowed an elevator.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
Why do some musicians close their eyes when they play

Truly yours,
L. Travatore.

Answer:
That is so they can't see the audience suffer while they are playing.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I have read a great deal lately about bigamy and bigamists. Am I not right when I say "If a man has one wife too many he is a bigamist?

Yours truly,
Della Ware.

Answer:
You are not right. I know a man who has only one wife, and only the other day he told me that although he is married to one woman he has one wife too many, yet you can see, he has not committed bigamy.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
There is a chap who with his wife, lives two doors below my home. We always meet going to work in the morning. I asked him, this morning, how his wife is feeling and he surprised me by saying he hadn't spoken to his wife in 3 years. What do you make out of that?

Truly yours,
David N. Goliath.

Answer:
Maybe he is a gentleman and does not want to interrupt the lady.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I am in a seculiar predicament, and hope you can help me. I have a $10.00 bill which is a counterfeit. One day I'll think it is all right and feel on the verge of passing it and then on another day I'll think it isn't any good and make up my mind to tear it up. This has been going on for weeks and it worries me. What shall I do?

Yours truly,
I. M. A. Frade.

Answer:
The only thing for you to do is to wait until the day for thinking the bill is all right, to come around, and pass it.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
When Captain Byrd made up his mind to fly over the North Pole he must have first worked on a theory in which the shape of the earth had to be considered. Can you tell me if the earth's shape has ever changed?

Sincerely,

Answer:
The shape of the earth is always changing. Years and years ago people said the world was square, then, in later years, Columbus said it was round and now a lot of people say it is crooked.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I am a minister and have just been sent to a new church in Minneapolis. Do you think the parishoners will get angry at me if I take the text for my first sermon, from the book of St. Paul?

Yours Truly,
I. M. A. Healer.

Answer next week.

ED. WYNN.

90 AVIATORS AT WACO

Day of War Training Recalled During Practice Flights

WACO, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The hectic days of 1918 were recalled by Wacoans today as the 39 planes from the advanced flying school of Kelly Field held tactical maneuvers over the city. The first move of the 90 aviators was to hold a "council of war" on western outskirts of the city at 9 a. m., perfecting plans for repelling the invasion of the hypothetical enemy forces advancing from Dallas and Fort Worth.

The planes, flying in battle formations, patrolled the air throughout the morning and early afternoon, attacking and destroying with bombs nearby towns. All bridges across the Brazos "have been blown up," to retard the advance of the hostile army.

"MANDALAY" IS PLAYING HERE

Lon Chaney Plays in One of Wierdest Plots in Oriental Drama

This describes Lon Chaney's latest—and perhaps one of his greatest—incursions into the field of bizarre stories and fantastic make-up; "The Road to Mandalay," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's exotic mystery drama of the Orient, now playing at the Olympic theatre.

The story is startling—technically as well as because of its reaction on an audience. It abandoned all old rules of screen production and thus achieved a situation of almost unbelievable dramatic power.

Chaney carves a new niche for himself as the former sea captain who degenerated into the sinister ruler of the Singapore underworld—and, from afar, loved the daughter who never knew him as her father. The denouement of this strange relationship is handled in a way that classes Tod Browning, the director, as one of the real hopes for a new note in screen drama.

Grips Throughout

The story is grewsome and gripping—and is great entertainment throughout. It holds an audience breathless with the audacity of its plot; with the remarkable characterization of Chaney, the sinister suavenness of Kamiyama Sojin as the tiger-like Oriental gangster, with padded paws that conceal daggers of steel; with the compelling performance of Owen Moore as the derelict naval officer who achieves regeneration through his own sense of shame at the thing he had come to be. Nothing of this is stilted; it is appallingly realistic. Lois Moran, of "Stella Dallas" fame, plays the daughter with a beauty and artistry as refreshing as a spring breeze, and Henry B. Walthall gives a wonderfully artistic performance as the priest.

Scenically the picture is a masterpiece, with its reproductions of strange haunts in the mysterious Far East. Tod Browning directed it from an original story by himself and Herman J. Mankiewicz, scenarized by Elliott Clawson. The photography deserves special note for its beauty.

Silent Drama Sings and Plays At N.Y. Theatre

New Instrument Brings Great Forward Step Into Movies

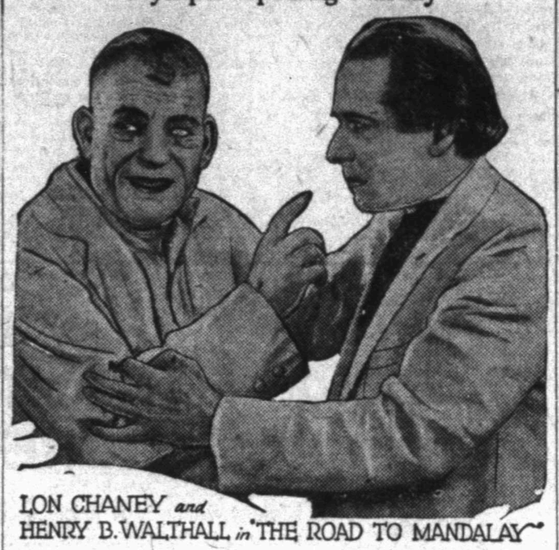

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Motion pictures and music, perfectly synchronized, and life-like to an almost uncanny degree, were presented to a Broadway theatre audience Thursday night. Representing the culmination of years of acoustical and photographic experiment and research, scientists and critics expressed the opinion that the new invention heralds a radical change in the entire complexion of the motion picture industry.

The new instrument which has made it possible for pictured singers really to sing, and great orchestras to play as they are seen to swing into action on the silver screen. The film play, John Barrymore's "Don Juan," was the vehicle for presentation of the invention, which is the culmination of months of experiments by Warner Bros., the Western Electric company, the Bell telephone laboratories and the Victor Talking Machine company.

Great arias by Giovanni Martinelli, Marion Talley and Anna Case, all of the Metropolitan opera, were heard as their pictured lips formed the words and notes. Mischa Elman and Zimbalist were reproduced with amost uncanny fidelity as bows swept violins. Finally, in the prologue in "Don Juan," the New York philharmonic orchestra was flashed upon the screen, and as Henry Hadley, the conductor raised his baton, the strains of the great symphony organization swept through the Warner theatre.

The entire action of the film play was interpreted musically by the Philharmonic orchestra, pictures and accompaniment never being out of synchronism for a moment.

"Phantom Bullet" Coming to Garden Starting Sunday

Hoot Gibson at Garden Theatre Sunday and Monday

For sheer action thrills, originality of plot and grandeur of scenery, not to say delicious comedy, the picture Sunday and Monday at the Garden theatre is the last word in western presentations. It is "The Phantom Bullett, a Universal-Jewel, starring "Hoot" Gibson and directed by Clifford Smith.

The star portrays the role of a cowboy, Tom Farlane, who in order to solve the mystery of his father's murder impersonates a young man from the city, delicate, gentlemanly and ultra-refined. His ludicrous contrast to the hard-boiled, flea bitten frontier character stays the suspicions of the guilty men and justice is served, after a long and difficult series of happenings.

An ingenious twist to the plot brings into prominent position in the story, a camera and the fact that the hero is a youth who loves photography. It is because of Tom's artistic proclivities that a major crime mystery is solved.

"The Phantom Bullett" brings out the very best of the famous star. It is one of the best western pictures ever produced and the best that Gibson has done. Universal deserves much credit for effecting a western feature that strikes a new and different chord.

Allan Forrest, who in private life is the brother-in-law of Mary Pickford, is convincing and realistic as the "heavy" responsible for the many troubles in which the hero finds himself.

Why shouldn't they, as long as they have minds? The modern girl is a charming companion, courageous and cheerful. I like her."

PICTURE SWINDLERS GET MILLIONS FROM VICTIMS

ROME.—Genuine art masterpieces are being used as bait to catch victims by a gang of tricksters specializing in picture frauds throughout the world. These tricksters have persuaded hundreds of people to pay high prices for mere rubbish. They are singling out for their attentions wealthy men who they think are lovers of art, but not expert enough to know whether a picture is genuine. Among their victims, who have lost millions, are collectors in America, Great Britain and France. They never sell less than four pictures, one being a genuine masterpiece and the others faked reproductions.

NOVELTY FILM COMING HERE

Paramount Has Surprise in "Fascinating Youth" At Strand Monday

Paramount's latest claim to fame in the movie spotlight, opens at the Strand theatre Monday, "Fascinating Youth," the picture in question, is a radical departure from the usual run of films. It was made under the supervision of Director Sam Woods. And instead of a cast of screen veterans, all the important roles are filled by inexperienced players, students of the Paramount picture school.

Its very difference and freshness is the thing that will make people enjoy "Fascinating Youth." The spirit of youth runs rampant and joyously throughout the film. Never is there a hint of boredom or egotism. Each boy and girl does his or her best to make the production a success—and the answer is logical and decisive.

Byron Morgan, author of the original story, has built his tale around the 16 students. Other roles, played by Ralph Lewis, James Bradbury, Sr., Harry Sweet and Joseph Burke, are secondary. To the junior stars themselves and Director Sam Wood should go all the credit. To be perfectly fair, and not slight any one, the following are credited with honorable mention: Charles Rogers, Ivy Harris, Iris Gray, Jack Luden, Greg Blackton, Jeanne Morgan, Thelda Kenvin, Irving Hartley, Dorothy Nourse, Charles Brokaw, Robert Ward, Claud Buchanan, Mona Palma, Josephine Dunn, Thelma Todd and Robert Andrews.

"Fascinating Youth" shows how a group of young people set out to put a winter resort on a paying basis. They do it by using such novel methods as inviting a group of movie stars to their ice carnival, publicizing the neat sports costumes worn by the girls, and an offer of a big prize to the winner of a 100-mile ice-boat race. See the picture. You're sure to enjoy it.

JESSEL AND CANTOR ROSE FROM BEHIND FOOTLIGHTS

Two motion picture stars soon to make their shadow debuts were recruited from the stage where their progress in reaching the top ran very near parallel.

George Jessel and Eddie Cantor made their debut together in a "kiddie revue." Jessel rose by the vaudeville route. Cantor established himself as the star of "Kid Boots." Both received their picture contracts simultaneously, Cantor for a picture based on the musical piece, and Jessel as star of "Private Izzy Murphy."

The Mayfair sophisticates of Michael Arlen's books have been thrown into one general mold, from which Adolphe Menjou emerges with his drooping moustache and expressive smile as an Arlen interpreter. Work has been started on "The Ace of Cads," his first picture from an original story by the European author.

Youth Makes Goal First In Filmdom

Age and experience are good points in arguments, but youth makes the goal first in motion pictures.

Jesse L. Lasky, production chief for Paramount, dug out the records to substantiate his statement, showing that twelve actresses each under twenty-one years of age had been signed for long term contracts by his company. Seven of these were engaged for starring or leading roles.

The newest acquisitions are Lois Moran, 17, and Betty Jewel.

Others in the under twenty-one class include Betty Bronson, Mary Brian, Margaret Morris, Clara Bow, Louise Brooks, Charlot Bird, Marion Ivy Harris, Dorothy Nourse, Mona Palma, Thelda Kenvin, Jeanne Morgan, Iris Gray and Thelma Todd.

"The presence of all these young girls," says Lasky, "does not mean, however, that more mature actresses do not have an important place. The screen's most famous actresses, perhaps, are between twenty-five and thirty."

Film Studio Poor Home for Animals

Efforts to turn the Metro-Goldwyn studio into a live-stock farm have ended in a dismal failure.

The final step in this direction was taken during the making of "The Beauty Prize," Viola Dana's newest picture, which is coming to the Gem theatre on Monday. Miss Dana started things by bringing to the studio one morning a featherless three weeks' old chick found at the gasoline filling station where she had stopped on the way from home. With scarcely any care "Joe" grew until she became a husky egg-laying cackler.

"Joe" ruled mistress of all she surveyed in the Japanese garden at the studio until someone deposited therein a rabbit that had been used in a film production. The following day Winifred Dunn, scenario editor, brought two ducks to paddle about in the goldfish pond.

Everything would have been all right had it not been for Tony, the gardner. Tony takes an inordinate interest in his work, and it is assumed he did not like the presence of the intruders. Within a week the ducks had eaten every goldfish in the pond. "Joe" dug up and devoured all the seeds as fast as Tony planted them, and those that escaped "Joe" fell into the maw of the rabbit as soon as they sprouted above the ground.

Tony frowned, and spoke loudly against the nuisance. A few days later the animals disappeared. So did the gardener's frown, while he uttered nary a word.

"The Beauty Prize" was directed by Lloyd Ingraham from the story by Nina Wilcox Putnam. Winifred Dunn wrote the continuity. John Arnold was photographer.

HUPP STRAIGHT 8 FOOLS MANY

Engineers Didn't Believe It Could Be Produced In America

Two years ago, according to Charles D. Hastings, president and general manager of the Hupp Motor Car corporation, public opinion was rapidly crystalizing itself into the belief that the limit in motor cars had practically been reached. From then on, the word went around at that time, the buyer could safely choose from any one of a dozen or more motor cars and be satisfied that he had secured a good motor car investment.

"That opinion has been revised a dozen times since," he pointed out. "In the face of it several manufacturers have produced a new type car—the straight eight—developed on a new engineering principle.

All Wrong, Mabel

"It was not more than five years ago that competent, progressive engineers declared that the straight eight could not be produced in America, except in limited quantities. They discovered at length concerning its admitted features of remarkable performance smoothness, power and inherent long life. But, they argued, it will always be impossible to produce such a car in quantity. The necessity for extraordinarily fine manufacturing such a car will prohibit its ever making its appearance as a serious contender in the American market, where the public is definitely and wholly convinced of the superiority and greater practicability of large standarized production.

"These several straight eight manufacturers even a year ago became thoroughly convinced that the straight eight was destined to occupy not only a large part in the market of the finest cars, but a considerably growing market. As evidence of their judgment, the sale of straight eights in 1925 was more than five times what it attained in 1924. In 1926 they will at least double their 1925 market. Already we see the public buying of straight eights at almost as large a level as that for all other types of fine cars combined. Today more eights are being bought than any other type in a fine car. And a new kind of prestige is being created in the fine-car field because the inherent simplicity in straight eight manufacture has made it possible to produce that car, in highest quality, and get it to the public at a price not to exceed $2,500. Notable judges of motor car value are not saying that it is unnecessary to pay more than that price to secure the finest in motor car quality.

Look at 'Em Today

"Since the public reached the opinion that the limit had been closely approached in motor cars, we have developed and accepted all these outstanding improvements:

"Four-wheel brakes, oil and air filters, improved ignition systems, far better crankshafts and engine operating parts, balloon tires, better gasoline mileage, a much faster accelerating engine with longer life, vastly better body construction and a process of finishing bodies that has completely revlutionized our previous conception of what a motor car body should look like.

"Our engineers are continuing to make notable contributions in every field of motor cars, from those of lowest price up to and including the finest.

"Hupmobile believes the trend of the industry will turn even more strongly toward the straight eight because of the features that engineers throughout the industry pointed out for it more than five years ago. Because these same engineers said it could never be built in production quantities, owing to the extreme care in manufacturing it necessitates, only goes to make its accomplishment that mu more of an achievement."

SLAIN IN "GHOST CASTLE"; SECRET PASSAGE IS FOUND

BUCHAREST. — Investigation of the murder of Georg Milliuhov, a rich industrialist, in Thalzau Castle, also known as "Ghost Castle," has revealed a secret passage leading from Milliuhov's suite to a cave in the castle grounds. It is believed that the slayer used this passage to enter and escape and that he also was the "ghost" that gave the castle the reputation of being haunted. Milliuhov was strangled to death as he slept after giving a dinner to 40 guests. No clue to the actual slayer has been found.

New Line of Star Autos Beautiful

The new line of Star cars, is four and six cylinder models at prices ranging from $550 to $995, is notable for beauty of design and finish hitherto found only in cars outside of the great less-than-one-thousand dollar price class.

"This double line," according to Colin Campbell, vice president of Durant Motors, Inc., "is the only one in its price class including a complete line of six cylinder passenger models—seven in number—as well as a complete line of four cylinder cars—five in number.

"Both fours and sixes are powered with the same motors that won the 1926 Yosemite Economy run, each with the greatest fuel mileage in its class.

"In body design, finish and equipment, the line strikes a high note of artistry, refinement and convenience. Stream line effects are accentuated by the extended roof visiors, parallel black bead mouldings, and the low levels made possible by the 'kick-up' in the chassis frames.

"The four cylinder models are all done in polished Persian blue lacquer with black lacquer mouldings and gold stripes.

"Most six cylinder models are in polished bronze green lacquer below the belt line, and polished black lacquer above, embellished with parallel black bead mouldings and gold stripes, with the following exceptions: the de Luxe Sport Roadster is finished in polished artillery gray lacquer below the belt line and beige brown above: the Sport Coupe in Persian blue below and dark blue above the belt line; the Landau is in modish powder blue and black polished lacquer.

"All models have handsome raidator shells heavily nickeled on copper.

Whippet Shows Unusual Room

Newest Overland Model Is Comfortable Car To Ride In

A study of the 23 important body dimensions of the sedan type of body in the light car field shows that the new Overland Whippet is larger, in seven dimensions, than any other sedan in its size class, the equal in five dimensions and smaller in 10, two of these ten being the height of the seats from the floor, giving the Whippet the advantage of low seats, one being the width of the body at the arch bar in front, giving an acceptable grace of body line, one being the height of the waist line from the frame, giving the low appearance which is a pleasing asset and the others being minor dimensions which have no reference to seating comfort or riding ease.

The dimensions in which the Whippet exceeds any other sedan in the light car class are interesting.

Much Inside Length

The total length inside the body, from dash to the back body panel is conspicuously longer than that of any other light sedan. This accounts for the striking leg room in both the front and rear seats. It is accomplished by the novel construction of the dash which curves outward under the hood adding a full six inches to the available inside body length.

The depth of the front seat is another dimension in which the Whippet exceeds any sedan in its size class.

The rear compartment is 7 inches deeper than that of any other light car sedan model affording the same amount of room in the rear compartment that is found in the average light six. The rear seat is also 2 inches wider in and over all dimensions.

The achievement of such dimensions as these in a car of the low and compact appearance of the Whippet marks an important development in general body design and construction and indicates what may be expected from a type of design which, externally, at least, looks small.

Through a unique and exclusive design of the steering column, it is possible to alter the distance between the edge of the front seat and the low point on the rim of the steering wheel by three inches.

Okeh for Fat Men

The heavy man who is ordinarily cramped, in the space between his lap and the edge of the wheel, can use this adjustment to get a highly satisfactory amount of room, while the man who likes the wheel close to his body, when driving, can make the adjustment to suit his personal comfort.

Head room is also a marked feature of this body. A man of average height can easily look over the top of the car when it is standing at the curb, yet a six foot man can sit in the front seat and have to stretch his legs to touch the dash, while he has ample room overhead to permit riding all day without feeling that his head is going to touch the inside of the roof. A tall man, wearing the conventional type of hat, has about three inches between the top of his hat and the roof.

These comfort features have been attained by a scientific use of the room available inside the body.

Fifth Avenue Sets Studebaker Pace

Fifth Avenue, America's arbiter of customs, rendezvous of the discriminating and the critical, is the birthplace of the custom sedans which have been added to the Studebaker line. In the heart of this proving ground for the fashionable standards of a continent, were inspired the beauty and luxury of these ultra-luxurious cars.

Although the union of custom beauty and luxury with One Profit facilities was announced only recently, discriminating motorists have long utilized the stamina and performance of Studebaker cars as a foundation for coachwork individualized to their personal preferences. In fact, this trend had become so pronounced that last winter a salon was opened in the rose room of the hotel Plaza in New York for the exclusive display of the creations of master carrossiers on the Studebaker chassis.

THERE IS NO SATURATION POINT FOR HONEST VALUE

Honest value is a priceless commodity. Every purchaser seeks it, but not always with complete success.

During periods of careful buying he takes unusual pains to find it, and products of inferior merit fail to attract his patronage.

Reports then circulate that the "saturation point" in the automobile market has been reached, when in reality there will NEVER be a saturation point for honest value.

During the first six months of this year, for instance, Dodge Brothers sold 207,115 motor cars and trucks. This represents a gain of 49.3 per cent over the first six months of 1925, and continues Dodge Brothers in the enviable position of THIRD IN THE INDUSTRY.

For the three weeks ending July 17th, 23,862 motor cars and trucks were delivered to customers—an increase of 62.4 per cent over the same period last year, and impressive evidence that Dodge Brothers great sales gain is continuing through the quiet weeks of mid-summer.

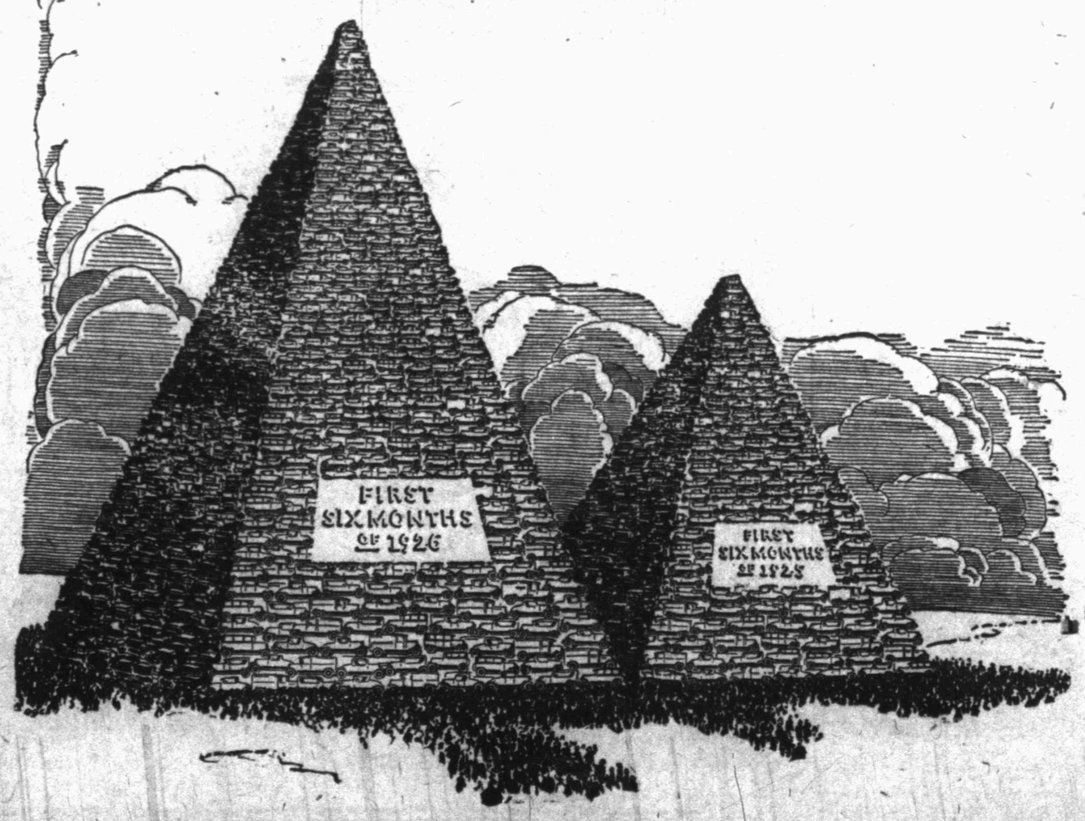

The more carefully people investigate and compare, detail by detail, the factors that constitute genuine motor car value, the more inevitably Dodge Brothers market expands and will continue to expand, year after year.

WILLYS-KNIGHT 70 HAS SPEED

New York to Montreal Tour Made in Only 11 Hours

The most satisfactory way to test the actual road speed and endurance power of an automobile, its handling ease and economy features, is by highway driving in congested traffic conditions. Such a test reveals the true virtues of the car under natural conditions.

Recently a Willys-Knight Seventy carrying five adult passengers was driven from New York to Montreal, Canada, a distance of more than 425 miles in less than a dozen hours.

Through Heavy Traffic.

The tour was started on July 3rd, one of the most heavily trafficed periods of the summer season. Leaving New York at 7:30 p. m. the driver and his party reached the Canadian city at 6:30 a. m. the following day. The actual time was as recorded at 11 hours including "time out" for meals, fuel, water and other necessary stops.

Allan H. Wesson of New York, the driver of the car, checked his driving speed which shows an average of 45 miles per hour during the entire trip. His gasoline consumption figured exactly at 21.5 miles per gallon.

Easily Handled Car.

The unusual speed maintained by the Willys-Knight "Seventy" was attained under natural traffic conditions. While the highways were not congested to the point of actual stoppage the traffic encountered was extremely heavy with holiday tourists.

The flexibility and roadibility of the "Seventy," together with his handling ease, aided materially in attaining the speed.

There will be quite a bit of finishing work that will require the additional fifteen days.

Chrysler to Manufacture Four Complete Lines of Standardized Quality Cars

What is regarded as one of the most important announcements made in the motor car industry in years, is a statement issued at Detroit by Walter P. Chrysler, motor car manufacturer, that the company of which he is the head will definitely proceed with the manufacture of four complete lines of cars of standardized quality to cover the one manufacturing organization, in four greatest markets.

What this plan means, according to Mr. Chrysler, is the building of four quality cars, each the finest in its price division, under one name, by one group of plants and marketed through one unified distributing organization.

It further means, he says, millions of dollars to the motor car buying public because of the greater dollar value which the plan makes possible.

The statement by Mr. Chrysler was in reference to the new four-cylinder car with which he will invade the lower price field in a short time.

Buy What They Want.

"When the last word is said, public demand in motor cars is determined by economic factors—and by the use and value of the car. In other words, people buy the sort of car which will render them the service they require at the price they can afford to pay.

"It is my belief that they have now reached the point that no matter what the price may be, the car must come up to certain standards of size, comfort, performance and economy if it is to win and hold public confidence and approval.

"In the past, where one manufacturer has produced cars in different classes these have been as separate units, thus losing to the manufacturer the efficiencies and economies which should result from group manufacture.

"But under our plan of standardized quality, we not only have all the resources and facilities of our great plans co-ordinated and functioning as one factory, but we have engineering under unified control and all of our activities, right through to the distribution to the public, working together to the one end of giving the greatest possible value in every class.

"This plan of standardized quality has been definitely shaping itself since we first announced the Chrysler "70" two and a half years ago. We proceeded a long step on the way in the presentation of the Chrysler Imperial "80" and went still further in this direction with the Chrysler lighter, lower priced "60". Now we came to the final step in the process with the production of a four-cylinder car in the lower price field.

"We are confident that when this new car is definitely passed before the public it will receive the same enthusiastic reception that has been accorded our other cars.

"Each of these cars will remain a separate identity, delivering separate and individual qualities of performance, but, by grouping of purchase power and manufacturing facilities, all four enjoy development and standardized practice, with pronounced lowering of overhead—all of which is to the advantage of the buyer.

Economy Utilization.

"The history of the past in the automotive industry has largely revolved around the idea of fixing a low price to compel a large volume.

"Under our plan of Standardized quality, the idea is to utilize every possible economy in the production of four cars covering the entire market, and, by these economies, produce such obvious and manifest value that volume will follow as a natural consequence."

14 Millionth Ford Now Shivvers Along

Another million mark in Ford production was passed on July 21 when motor No. 14,000,000 came off the assembly line at the Fordson plant of the Ford Motor company.

Some idea of the present enormous production of Ford cars is obtained when it is recalled that it was only a little more than two years ago, June 4, 1924, that the famous Ten Million Ford was produced, an event which was celebrated by driving the car across the country from New York to San Francisco on the Lincoln highway. In the 25 and a half months elapsing since that time Ford output increased 4,000,000.

The first Model T Ford was turned out on October 1, 1908, and it was not until seven years later, December 10, 1915, that the first million was reached.

Chrysler Plans New Small Car

Company Head Sees Big Undeveloped Market In This Field

A tremendous undeveloped market in the small car field for an automobile, that is larger, more roomy, much better riding and exceptionally durable, is seen by Walter P. Chrysler, president of the Chrysler corporation.

In a statement on this question, Mr. Chrysler says:

"Fully aware that there are today nearly 20,000,000 motor cars owned in the United States—or one to every six persons—it seems to me that there are almost unlimited possibilities in that market. Such a car must, of course, combine in it these qualities no other car in that field possesses, if it is to register the success of which I speak.

New Features.

"There is no question in my mind but what the people who prefer a low priced, quality automobile, are desirous of having built into that car certain features that heretofore have not been made available to that field. The industry has not given sufficient attention to the man who drives a small, low-priced car. It simply has gone on the assumption that the same measure of comforts that must be incorporated into every car of higher price, if it is to be successful, could not be built into the smaller cars.

"I disagree most emphatically with that assumption. The person who prefers to drive a small car is entitled to every consideration that can be given him. It is possible to build the qualities of comfort, roominess, easy riding and long life into a small car. The possibilities with such a car are so tremendous that it can actually be built in great quantities at remarkably low cost, if the manufacturer has the capacity and organization to do it.

"Medical authorities have definitely established the fact that the man who continuously drives a small car suffers from abnormal and excessive fatigue and nervous strain because of the noise, jolting, bouncing and excessive vibration he has always undergone to date in that type car. He has been compelled to put up with these discouraging conditions because, up to the present, no one has gone about the task of designing a small, low-cost car that remedied them.

"Whenever he has had opportunity to take his family for a long, week-end drive or for a tour across several states during his vacation, the entire family has been forced to tolerate the same condition.

"Better designed cars, built to a single standard of higher quality, with modern space engineering, improved springs and generally improved riding comfort, are bound to remedy this and are bound to enjoy a conspicuous success for their producer.

"There is a ready-made market for 100,000 cars the first year for the company which produces that type of car. We are going to do it. Unless we are far astray in our judgment of what the American public wants in the so-called small car field, it will appreciate such a car to the extent that it will make it an outstanding success from the first day it is given opportunity to ride in that type of car."

GIRLS, BE DIFFERENT!

LONDON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—"Try to be somebody who counts and not one of a crowd," is the advice Catherine Countess of Westmoreland gives to young girls.

The countess says thoughtful persons cannot but regret the suggestion of "mass production" there is in a crowd of modern girls, all having hats and frocks which are almost identical and utterly lacking individuality. Even their talk is standardized.

"So few girls dare to be themselves," said the countess. "They smoke and drink and dance to all hours because they want to be in the swim."

RAGING ABOUT BOBBED HEAD

JERUSALEM.—(AP)—That bobbed hair existed 3,000 years ago and was the preferred style of hair-dress among the women of certain early races is the belief of Dr. William Bade, professor of Old Testament and Semitic literature in the University of California.

Professor Bade's evidence is a marble head of Astarte, the "Queen of Heaven," mentioned in the Bible, which he found among the ruins of Mispah. The hair of this sacred stone lady is luxuriant, is lopped short at the neck, plastered down on the cranium and is carefully parted in the middle.

DANCERS HUNT NEW JOBS

KARACHI.—(AP)—All the beautiful young dancing girls who flitted about the palace of the Maharajah of Indore whose chief charmer, Mumtaz Begum, cost him his throne, are hunting new jobs. Application of a rigid economy program in the state of Indore called for the discharge of the entertainers.

Their actual salaries, it is explained, were not so much—only about 3,000 pounds a year—but the cost of upkeep was much greater. Large sums it seems were squandered in satisfying their fastidious little tastes for trinkets, veils and perfumes.

"At Your Door"

Standard equipment includes: Automatic Windshield Cleaner, Rear View Mirror, Transmission Lock (built-in), Radiator Shutters, Moto-Meter, Combination Stop and Tail Light.

Many of these advantages you will recognize at a glance. But you will have a higher appreciation of their meaning when you know that a plant of 18 acres which, with equipment, approximated a cost of $10,000,000, was first built and that special machinery had to be designed, to make possible this New Coach now on display.

Again Essex "6" offers in the design and construction of the New Coach as radical an improvement as was the original Coach itself.

It is all steel, bolted and riveted, and so rigid that squeaks, rattles and distortions, are as unlikely as in a steel building. Doors are so hung that a man may hang on an open door while the car is being driven over rough roads, without springing it out of true.

And it is so designed and constructed as to permit the use in a totally new manner of a high baked enamel, most lustrous and lasting finish. This has made possible new combinations in finish that will please your eye.

There has been constant improvement in the chassis from the first Essex shipped. Every week has seen some betterment. But only by the accumulation of the resources, the information, experience, and the skill that have resulted from the purchase of 350,000 Essex "Sixes" in a short period of time, was it possible to erect the plants, to perfect the machinery, to create the designs that have resulted in this car which we ask you to inspect and to drive as the best looking, best value, best Essex ever built.

Roaming The Air

BY S. D. FOX

Through its official organ, the "Broadcast Listener," the Broadcast Listener's association of America has sounded a warning against piracy of the air by any radio stations. In an article entitled, "Is Hoover Trying to Creat Chaos in Radio?" the association points out that there is sufficient strength in the organization to compel stations to maintain their wavelengths. Threats of a listeners' strike against fofending stations is sounded and the success of the strike for a silent night in the Chicago area is pointed to in support of the organization's claim that the radio listener has "a right to decide what station he will or will not listen to."

Because their contract do not permit them to broadcast, several stars of the stage are being broadcast from WLW under "air names" and are giving excellent "imitations" of their real selves. But that's a secret, the station managers say, and mustn't be told out loud for fear the theatre owners will "get wise."

"Hoop skirts will be all the rage soon"—Paris fashion note. And it is pointed out by an enterprising radio engineer that the wire in the frames of these may be used to catch the air waves, acting as a loop antenna for the operation of small receiving sets.

The pioneers of broadcasting have been aptly called prospectors of the air in comparison with the prospectors of 1849. One radio manufacturer points out that if a station jumps the wavelength of another is will be looked upon with the same disfavor with which a claim jumper was treated in the days of the gold rush.

The Broadcasting company of Great Britain has 21 stations serving an estimated population of 25,000,000, most of whom are said to be within crystal set radius of the stations.

Broadcasting of river stages along the old Ohio river is now done at 11 o'clock each morning by WLW instead of at 10 o'clock as in the past.

WRMU, the marine broadcasting station, will broadcast the results and notes of interest about the nine feature boat races to be held at Manhassett Bay, Long Island, on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 20, 21 and 22. The station, which is located on the cabin cruiser MU-1, will tell the complete story of the races. Douglas Rigney will be at the microphone.

Most of the artists of the now famous Everready Hour are spending their vacations this year at Harrison, Me., a small town in the heart of Maine's big woods. And like the street car conductor who took a ride on his day of rest, these artists spend their vacations grouped around a piano—singing! That's what they say.

A number of stations in the Chicago area recently co-operated with the Chicago Board of Education in a series of tests to ascertain whether or not radio stations broadcasting programs for chool assemblies would be of practical value. The results of the experiments have not been made public, but it seems assured that radio stations will be used to give programs to supplement the work of elementary and high schools in Chicago next fall.

Official announcement of the purchase of station WEAF from the American Telephone and Telegraph company by the Radio corporation of America, made recently, also Lears the cryptic revelation that the American Telephone and Telegraph company finds "the objective of a broadcasting was quite different from that of a telephone system. Consequently it has seemed to us after several years of experimentation that the broadcasting stations we will have built up might be more suitably operated by other interests." The Radio corporation of America, also operators of WJZ, announced that the two stations would be continued separately, but that the benefits of research at each station would materially aid the other.

The periods of auction bridge instruction, which were so favorably received last year by listeners to many stations, will be resumed on Oct. 19, this year, WEAF announces. The periods will be given each week instead of every other week, as in the past, and will be brodcast by the WEAF chain, consisting of WEEI, WCSH, WTAG, WJAR, WGR, WCAE, WTAM, WFI, WWJ, WSAI, WGN, WOC, WCCO and KSD.

When Canadian radio fans begin to hear an unusual amount of static they telephone the nearest government radio interference station and soon the reception is clear as a bell. Trained trouble shooters are constantly at work locating sources of noise in radio sets and for this work the government spends $10,000,000 annually. And Canada has but 60 broadcasting stations. There are said to be 150,000 receiving sets in the dominion and an average of $5,000,000 a year worth of radio equipment is imported from the United States each year.

The second annual radio exposition at Indianapolis will be held Oct. 25 to 30 and at the time of the radio show the first annual radio dealers' convention of the central states will be held. This is scheduled for Oct. 27.

Station WBBM, which had been granted permission to increase its power from 1,500 to 10,000 watts before the new famous "radio decision" was handed down, announces that the increased power will be used only if another station attempts to pirate WBBM's wavelength. This is the first station to "arm" itself for battle.

Alaska now has two broadcasting stations. They are KFUI at Juno and KFQD at Anchorage.

A radio station cannot register its descriptive phrases as a trade mark, the United States patent commissioner has ruled in the case of WBBM. The invisible trade mark situation may be made the occasion for new laws to be requested at the next session of congress.

OLNEY INVADES ORTH

Chamber of Commerce Enthusiasts Pay Second Good Will Visit.

OLNEY, Aug. 7.—Fifty cars bearing representative business men and the chamber of commerce band invaded Orth for Olney's second good will trip in this territory in recent days. A large crowd heard the band concert and refreshments were served by the citizens of Orth. That flourishing town, besides harvesting an excellent grain crop, has a splendid cotton outlook and is enjoying oil developments.

NEEDLE AND THREAD TO STOP PREMATURE BURIALS

BERLIN.—Those who have lived in fear of premature burial will be able to set their minds at rest. Johann Grundel, young and self-taught chemist, has invented a test whereby burial alive becomes impossible. The inventor has a small room in a private house as his laboratory. "The test is extremely simple," he said. "Chemically treated thread and a needle are all that will be required. Human blood is slightly alkaline, but on death it turns slightly acid. If a piece of this thread is passed through a fold of the skin and left for 30 minutes, it will show whether death has taken place or not. Death is shown by the thread turning yellow."

BROTHER MARRIES SISTER SEPARATED WHEN BABIES

ALDERSHOT, Eng.—A marriage of a brother to his sister was disclosed at Aldershot police court when Archibald Cooper and Florence Cooper were committed to trial on a charge of giving false information when they went through the marriage ceremony. It was stated that after their parents parted Florence Cooper, then 18 months old, was brought up by her grandmother at Shanklin, while her brother, who was two years older, lived with other relatives. They met during the war and married in 1920. The defense that the man and woman were unaware of their relationship, and it was admitted by witnesses for the prosecution that they did not know that they were brother and sister until trouble arose after their grandfather's death four months ago. Fixing Up the Bard—By James J. Montague

"I been lookin' over this Shakespeare," said the Great Producer, "and while most of his stuff is pretty out of date, I've decided we can make a picture out of that Othello play.

"I want all you boys to think up business, that will be good to put in it. Go over all the stuff we've done for laughs and thrills, and we'll try to get 'em in. There was one scene in "She Loved With a Blinding Passion" that might be good. There was a fight in it with busted beer glasses which was a knock out.

"Of course there's a lot of major changes to be made, but you can leave that to me. I'll get the guy who wrote the titles to "Flaming Polly" to title it, and we'll set it here on the lot. You boys do your stuff and it's a sure hit.

"I'm going to discard the Moor business, for we can't have a colored man playing the lead. I thought a while back I would make Othello some kind of an Arab, so as to get in on the publicity that fellow Abd Krim got, but he's a dead one now, so that's out. Anyway we don't want no soldier in a picture. Unless you spent a couple of million for a war setting they're no use.

"I've always got my eye on publicity as you boys know, and there won't be nothing in the limelight for the next month or two but the big fight. So I've male up my mind that Othello will be a fighter, and will come back to the Girl's house after a round the world sparring trip in which he took on all comers, offering a hundred bucks to anybody who could stay two rounds with him and not losing any money.

"The girl is a fight fan, lots of 'em is, since these here younger generation of the sex got to going to fights, and she sits and listens to this bird tell about the bouts he's had, and gets him goin' on the big championships he's won till she thinks he is the greatest guy in the world.

"He has a sparring partner he's took around the world to use when nobody would get into the ring with him, and this sparring partner is pretty good, so good that he thinks he could be the champ himself if he could only get the other guy out of the way.

"Naturally he don't think anything about what is goin' on in the back of his head, but he lays a deep plot which is apt to get Othello so strong for the girl that he will break training so he can take gondola rides with her, and get soft and out of condition. Then the guy is booked to fight him as soon as he gets back to the states will cop, and the sparring partner—this Iago fellow will challenge the winner and be the champ himself.

"Well, Othello gets strong for the girl all right, and sticks around Venice but he has one eye on the belt, so he get's himself quarters on one of the main canals and spends every morning punching the bag and sparring. He can't do much road work in a place like Venice, but it will be kind of picturesqe to have him in running pants trotting up and down them ledges over there and now and then maybe hopping over a canal, just to show what swell condition he is in.

"Of course Iago is sore that he can't get him to break training. He tries all sorts of ways, and finally in despair gets a couple of black handlers to sneak up on him when he is doing his road work and try to run a stilletto into him. But Othello hears them padding after him, and turns around and gives them each a punch on the chin, which not only foils their purpose but tumbles them into the canal. There will be a big laugh when they splash.

"Of course Othello don't ever dream that his little pal Iago is trying to do him, and keeps telling the Girl—Desdemona—what a fine boy he is. But the Girl is off Iago, and won't more than say good morning to him when he comes down to the gondola landing to wish them a pleasant trip.

"I'll think up quite a lot of ways for Iago to spoil the romance, like havin' barges ran the gondola, and tempting Othello with some of that swell Italian wine. But none of them will work and he finally gets desperate.

"So he finds out which of the Venice lads Desdemona was keeping company with before she took up with Othello, and he gets this lad to come out one night with a ukelele or wh ever they play over there and serenade the dame. He takes care to come along with Othello about that time, and points out the fellow. Meantime he's told Desdemona that it is Othello who is going to serenade her, and she leans out of the window to listen, and drops a mash note down to the minstrel boy.

"Othello don't need no urging to paste the fellow on the jaw and grab the note, and when he reads it he is naturally as sore as a dog. He goes right in Desdemona's house, smashes all the butlers and footmen who are trying to stop him, and walking into her room asks what she means by writing that kind of stuff to a strolling music player.

"Of course the girl is taken aback, and also pretty sore to think Othello has crashed the house in that way, so she is haughty and refuses to answer—and he stalks out—only to be arrested for burglary by cops Iago has put wise to the game.

"Well, the fellow that wrote the play had Othello smother the girl with a pillow, but that would bust up the show and leave a bad taste in the mouth of the audience, so I've fixed it up a better way.

"Othello clouts the cops, and they fall into the canal too, which is a bigger laugh because it is expected this time. Then he gets ashamel of the way he busted into the house and goes back to square himself, followed by Iago, who is getting pretty nervous by now.

"Seein' that if he sees the girl again everything will be squared and he will lose out, Iago decides that the only thing to do is to take a punch at Othello, relying on the fact that he is mad and won't have any self control.

"But no sooner does he set himself for the wallop, than Desdemona lets out a warning shriek, and then the big fight commences.

"They fight up and down the stairs and all over the place, and finally Othello backs Iago into a bed room topples him over on the bed and strangles him with a pillow. Then he and Desdemona make up, and she tells him what Iago told her, and they pitch the scoundrel out of the window into the canal, which finishes the picture with the biggest laugh of all.

"I'm going to read some more of those Shakespeare plays. The fellow had something on the ball, but of course he was way behind the times, and his stuff, while it may do for high brows, would never be good for anything in our business."

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Community evangelistic movements in cities throughout the United States, this fall until next Easter, are urged in a co-operation program that has been adopted by representatives of the departments of evangelism of the denominations affiliated with the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

Rev. Charles Emerson Burton, secretary of the National Council of Congregational churches, is chairman of a committee to present the program to interdenominational federations, associations or council of churches in cities and states. Other members of the committee are Rev. George C. Mahy of the Presbyterian church in U. S. A., and Rev. Jesse M. Bader of the Disciples of Christ. Ex-officio members are Rev. William Horace Day, pastor United Congregational church, Bridgeport, Conn., and chairman of the commission on evangelism and devotional life of the Federal Council, and Rev. C. L. Goodell, executive secretary of the commission.

The evangelistic efforts of the churches of different denominations in each city, it is proposed, are to be synchronized as far as possible so that the autumn Sunday school and church rallies, the house-to-house parish canvasses to locate "un-churched" people, the enlistment of personal workers, the evangelistic appeals in Sunday sermons and at special week-night meetings and the instruction classes for new members, will be carried on simultaneously. The united program in each city, it is expected, will culminate with special Lenten services and an ingathering of new members at Easter time.

"Mexico at this time is making history. It is possible that the contest between the church and the state in Mexico may become an international problem and since that country is so near us, it might be interesting and entirely fitting for a Bible class to acquaint itself to some extent with the issues, between the civil and church authorities of that unhappy land," it was said.

MOVIE ACTORS NUMBER 200 IN AVERAGE PLAY

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Two hundred players are employed in the making of an average motion picture and of this number fifteen or more are principals who receive an average salary of $750 weekly for playing starring, featured or character roles.

These figures, based upon ten years of observation, were compiled by E. Mason Hopper, director of Methopolitan Pictures corporation. And the trend, he says, is toward the use of more players and more technical men as pictures advance in artistic quality.

"Whereas now we can make a very creditable picture with 200 actors and actresses," he said, "I believe the picture of the future will need three and four times as many to give it the true sense of realism which is the aim of producers."

HOG FANCIERS NOW SEEK RETURN OF TILTED DUROC

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(AP)—The westward hegira of European art treasures and heirlooms is having its counterpart on this side of the Atlantic, but in this case the trail leads southward, and the "Object d'art" is pigs.

A little over a year ago a prominent agriculturist from Argentina, Don Jose Luis Cantillo, ex-governor of Buenos Aires, came to this country to buy "pigs with a history." In the center of pig production along the upper reaches of the Mississippi river he found "All Sensation Leader," Duroc boar—a pig of historic, if not aristocratic antecedents and a social weight in his own right. He also obtained several lady pigs that figure promiently in the Burke's Peerage of hog lineages. They were bought and are now residing on the Argentine's hacienda, where they enjoy a standing of note.

75 PER CENT OF RESIDENTS IN SASKATCHEWAN FARMERS

REGINA, Sask., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Saskatchewan is the biggest farm in the world, in the belief of Hon. J. G. Gardiner, "farmer premier." Seventy-five per cent of the province's population lives in rural areas while the other 25 per cent, composed of city dwellers, is dependent on farming for its prosperity.

"There are 118,426 farms in Saskatchewan with an aggregate acreage of 37,896,320 acres," said Mr. Gardner. "Average size of the farms is 320 acres and average area under crop is 200 acres per farm. Gross agricultural wealth of the province is $1,682,43,000. While Saskatchewan produces about 75 per cent of Canada's wheat crop, the farmers also go in extensively for diversified agriculture."

CREDIT IS ONE OF YOUR INTANGIBLE ASSETS !

¶Just what are a man's intangible assets? Well, they are much the same as those that any business of standing is proud of and guards jealously.

¶There's a man's character, the kind of a man he is. There's his word, honorable or worthless, an asset if he keeps it inviolate. There's his ability. There's his personality. NOW ADD ANOTHER—THERE'S HIS CREDIT.

¶Good credit, a reputation, backed by a faultless record, for paying every bill and paying it when it is due, is an invaluable asset to every man. Good credit will help him all through life, will aid him in getting ahead, will make his life more pleasant. Think what an A-1 credit rating is to a business—then realize it means as much to an individual!

¶But a bad credit rating is a real liability, a cloud hanging over a man's reputation, hindering him and forever making trouble.

¶Keeping credit an asset isn't hard. Don't spend more than you can afford. Don't buy more than you can pay for PROMPTLY. Pay every bill when it's due. It's worth it!

JUDGE USES TOY AUTOS IN TRYING SPEED CASES

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 7.—Judge David J. Heffernan, justice of Miami's night municipal court, plays with toys—right in the courtroom.

An array of tiny motor vehicle models fulfill an important role in his court, for Judge Heffernan takes his toys seriously.

A dispute in traffic disturbances calls forth the models and the motorists reenact the scene in question before the judge on one among several drawings, representing various streets scaled to the size of the miniature tutos.

DISLIKES BEING "PEERESS"

LONDON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Lady Zouche of Haryngworth regards herself as a peer, and would prefer not to be called a peeress.

"Why use the word peeress when there is no male to represent the line?" she asked. "We twenty odd women who happen to hold peerages in our own right are not peers by accident, any more than men are who happen to inherit a peerage. Why should I not receive a writ from the king, as my ancestors did before me, and be allowed to exercise the duties and privileges of my position?"

SHE IS NOW DAME KENDAL

LONDON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Madge Kendal, who has been made a Dame of the British Empire and will hereafter be known as Dame Madge Kendal, was a favorite with theatre goers in the United States during the late 80s, when she toured there with her husband, W. H. Kendal, in "A Scrap of Paper," "Marriage" and many other plays with which she and her husband were identified in England.

Dame Madge Kendal was born of theatrical parents and first appeared on the British stage in 1854. In more than 60 years of acting she has played nearly every female part in Shakespeare and the other English classical plays, as well as countless modern roles. Mrs. Kendal made her last stage appearance 15 years ago, but is still very active as a speaker and philanthropic worker.

Franklin G. Jones Takes Place At Fort Worth Institution

By EDWARD M'SHANE WAITS
President Texas Christian University

Franklin G. Jones, associate professor of Philosophy and Education, becomes professor of secondary education at Texas Christian university. This announcement will bring gladness to the hearts of all the friends and alumni throughout the southwest. As a colleague of Professor Raymond Smith, head of this department, Texas Christian university will have one of the greatest schools of education in Texas. Already the school of education has an attendance of over 400 and is sending out a stream of well equipped teachers to every part of the southwest. Professor Franklin Jones is one of the most influential educators in the southwest.

At Denton 6 Years

He has been at C. I. A. Denton, Texas, for six years. He was president of Midland college seven years and was a principal and superintendent in Texas for several years. He received both his bachelor of arts and master's degrees from Texas Christian university and taught Greek and Latin in the institution for a time. He was the founder of the education department in Texas Christian university. He was for a time vice president of Hawthorne college, McKinney, Texas, and was president of Jones academy in the same city.

Professor Jones has a master of arts degree from Columbia university, New York, and has in addition done graduate work in the University of Texas, Harvard and Chicago and has passed all of the preliminaries for his Ph. D. degree at Columbia.

Of High Ideals

But these are not the finest qualifications Frank Jones has for his work. He is not only scholarly, but he is a proven teacher of ability and worth, a devoted Christian creating wherever he chances to be, a wholesome atmosphere and respect for high Christian ideals.

We welcome this old friend and great teacher to our faculty circle, feeling that Texas Christian university is greatly honored and that Professor Jones has made a wise choice of the university where he can render the most abundant service to the Kingdom of God and the youth of the southwest.

RAIL EXTENSION WOULD TAP ARCTIC MINING ZONE

TANANA, Alaska, Aug. 7.—An Extension of the Alaska Railroad from Fairbanks to the Yukon river and thence north along the Chandalar river, a survey of which is proposed by a bill in congress, would tap an undeveloped area north of Brooks Range 600 miles long and 100 wide.

Placer mining camps have pushed beyond the Arctic circle into the foothills south of Brooks Range. Stories are told here of prospectors who reached the top of the range but, dependent on rifle and fish hook for food, did not go on to work streams flowing north to the Arctic ocean.

Streams whose heads are known to cut into a lime formation capping the Brooks Range bear nuggets of gold, silver and copper in raw state, indicating mineral deposits in the dicide region. A bed of black gold has been reported in the extreme north on the Arctic Slope near the government oil reserves.

OVER-EDUCATED WOMEN

LONDON, Aug. 7.—"Women are spoiling themselves by over-education and too much work" declared Sir W. Arbuthnot Lane, the well known surgeon.

"They have improved in many ways during recent years," he continued, "and they are all the better for the higher standard of education they have demanded, but many of them now are going too far. They are wearing themselves out to satisfy their insatiable desire for horoughness."

Sir Arbuthnot said that man is the frail creature and woman is the strong. "She takes too much advantage of this strength. Women of all kinds and classes work too hard except those who exhaust themselves in search for pleasure."

WOMEN HOLD LEGION CROSS

PARIS, Aug. 7. — (AP)—Four women now have been decorated with the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor, the highest rank of that order. They are all queens.

Queen of the Belgians, decorated in 1918.

Queen of the Rumanians, in 1919.

Empress of Ethiopia, in 1920.

Queen of Spain, in 1926.

No French woman holds this rank in their national order. The lowest rank in the Legion is that of Knights, then comes Officers, Commanders, Grand officers and finally the Grand Cross. The president of the Republic is "Grand Master."

VIENNA BACHELORS PAY 65 CENTS A MONTH FOR ROOMS

VIENNA, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The socialist municipal government of Vienna has come to the rescue of bachelors. Hereafter it is decreed that all single men shall be entitled to special bachelors' quarters in each of the 25,000 apartments constructed by the municipality, at a rental of only sixty-five cents a month.

Such quarters, it is stipulated, shall consist of one living room and a kitchen. Bachelors in the past were obliged to pay the same rates as a whole family.

Marion Saterlee. Competent business woman. Capable and tender mother. Ardent gardener. Home lover.

When the last of her children married — well, Marion's family knew her, and although they met together to urge her to live with one of them, they knew well enough that Marion would want to go on keeping up her little home by herself.

Yes, Marion's children knew their dear old mother.

Well, up to a point they did.

WHEN the last of Marion Saterlee's children married, all five of them and the in-laws met by appointment in Evansville to debate her future.

There were the usual charming overtures, the daughters vieing honestly with one another and the in-laws rising hospitably to the occasion.

Stella, the newest-wed, cried large, round, heart-sick tears, which her new husband kissed away, and insisted that it was unthinkable that her mother live anywhere but right there in Evansville with her.

The two other girls, Marie and Eve, backed by their husbands, painted loud and lurid pictures of spare rooms in Chicago. The boys and their wives dilated upon the attractiveness of life in Detroit and Pueblo, respectively.

In their hearts, however, viewing their youngish mother who showed few of the traces of having reared five children through a long, lean widowhood, the children knew that Marion was too much of a captain of her own soul to surrender her own home in Evansville. The house behind the notion store on Ell Street. A two-story structure that stood in the back yard, as it were, which served the home as front yard.

Marion had done wonders with that yard. The path that led from the front door of the house to the back door of the notion store blazed with flowers nicely calculated to follow one another with seasonal bloomings. Tulips for April. Jonquils for May. Roses for June.

Marion loved that home. It was natural that she should. Practically single-handed she had worked off its mortgage and now the notion store itself, facing the main street of the town, was paid off to the penny.

The family, who knew Marion for the homebody that she was, knew also that offering to transplant her was little more than a gesture.

Marion would round out her full, busy days right there in Evansville. In and out of her dry goods store, which practically ran itself now, since Marion had taken Miss Brune, a clerk who had been with her fourteen years, into partnership.

And so, putting their respective propositions and invitations up to Marion, in the back of their minds her children knew it amounted to little more than a formality. Not that she would not have been welcome with each and every one of them. . . . but Marion's family knew her!

Well, up to a point they did. It was true that Marion declined, with tears for her love of them, to transplant herself into any one of her children's homes. Even into her baby Stella's, who was to have a handsome new house on the edge of their very own Evansville. To say nothing of Bob, who lived in Pueblo and had a fourteen-room house, and Eve, whose husband ran a select family hotel near Michigan Avenue, in Chicago.

No, Marion had decided to travel.

The family gasped. Marion, with her gray, sweet eyes set in her placid face, and the gray hair which she wore softly in a bun at the base of her head. Marion, who could scarcely ever be coaxed so far as Chicago.

Marion had decided to travel.

The children exchanged gasps and winks and chuckles.

Good for Mother! Why, Mother hadn't even seen Niagara Falls.

"Niagara Falls! Nothing of the sort," said Marion. "I'm free now for the first time in my life. I'm going to see the world. I'm going abroad."

"M-o-t-h-e-r!"

"Yes, free. While the years lasted, I didn't mind it. I didn't even realize the slave I was. Day after day after day of keeping the body and souls of five youngsters together—but now I'm going to travel. I've loved my duties, but they are over. I've been life's slave. Life is going to be mine now."

"Mama," sobbed Stella, whose new husband kept having to kiss away the tears; "you mean you hated rearing us?"

"I mean I loved it. Only there's a time for everything. At least I 'spose there is. I've never had time but for one thing. Rearing my family. Single-handed. I know according to the story books I ought to long now to settle down to a sweet old womanhood, my duty nobly done. But nothing of the sort. Some of the best years of my life are ahead of me. Why, a body only begins to know she's on earth when she's fifty. I've been scraping together enough common sense all these busy years to know how to begin to live by now."

Two months later Marion began her trip around the world. A tourist's one, to be sure, where three hundred passengers lived on board the same ship for ninety days. A ship that touched at strange, exotic ports. Oriental. Asiatic. Marion's mild blue Evansville eyes were to gaze upon the waters of the Nile and the parade of the Dolemites. Bombay spread out before her acquisitive gaze and the Pyramids and the Place Concord. At fifty-three on board the world-tour ship, Marion learned to dance. Marion learned to coif her hair, bobbing it, but wearing it marcelled so that the gray waves lay close and gave to her head a small, chic shape.

For the first time in her life Marion made new contacts. A powerful American silk merchant, with headquarters in Shanghai and London, spent three nights on deck with her, relating to her the history of silk under a sapphire Oriental sky.

One of her traveling companions, the daughter of an ex-governor-general of Australia, invited her to visit her on her New Zealand ranch.

Two pretty young English twins traveling with their aunt walked the decks evenings with her, arms twined about her, called her "Marion" and confided their love affairs to her.

In Paris they took her to a little side street dressmaker, who could copy expensive models inexpensively, and Marion came home to America with a Paris wardrobe.

The family met again in Evansville when she returned.

It was a strange, a new, a rather exotic Marion who returned to them, and the daughters, who looked more like her sisters now, were a bit intimidated by the new Marion; they were even heart sick.

There was something modish, a little hard and terribly strange about the new Marion.

The husbands twitted their wives and approved their mother-in-law.

Stella cried more tears. Secret, ashamed ones this time, over the transformation in her mother.

Why, Marion was young, pert—even fresh. Marion, her own dear gray mother, had bobbed her hair and learned to dance and wore modish Paris frocks outrageously, even vulgarly short.

According to all preconceived ideas, Marion was on the verge of becoming one of those old women who make fools of themselves at the last minute.

The daughters held a secret confab.

Marion must be brought to her senses.

Poor Marion, she was too much the mother to hold out against the importunings of three daughters.

It broke her heart to think that, in returning to them rejuvenated, she had only returned to them ridiculous. She had intended taking a winter cruise to Egypt next, but of course if the girls preferred that she spend the winter at home . . .

How she had planned this return! It had never occurred to her that her recaptured youth would not be the gayest, dearest gift she could bring to her family from abroad.

She had wanted to see her girls' faces when they beheld her in her new, chic finery, her clipped debonnair head-dress, the slim stilted shoes in place of the low, rubber-inserted brogans they were accustomed to see her wear about the store.

The old gray Marion had come home refurbished. And here were her children in tears . . .

"Of course," she told them, "of course, I had intended to take that winter cruise, but if you prefer, dears, that I don't go . . ."

They did prefer, but something came along that upset everybody's plans.

The silk merchant from Shanghai and London showed up in Evansville several weeks later.

The silk merchant wanted Marion to take that winter cruise with him—in fact, he wanted her to take the remainder of the cruise of life with him, and the silk merchant had his way.
