Celeste frees 25 abused women

First mass release of battered women inmates in U.S.

N.Y. Times News Service

CHICAGO — Gov. Richard F. Celeste of Ohio granted clemency Friday to 25 women who had been convicted of killing or assaulting husbands or companions who the women said had physically abused them.

Twenty-one of the women are to be released in the coming weeks and the remaining four will be required to serve a minimum of two years in prison.

It was the first mass release of battered women inmates in this country, advocates of abused women said. The move was praised by women's rights advocates but assailed by judges and prosecutors.

Celeste, who is leaving office next month, cited a ruling by the state's highest court this year that allowed female defendants in Ohio to present expert testimony, for the first time, in a defense of being a "battered woman."

In light of this, he said, he reviewed the records of more than 100 women in prison for killing or assaulting a spouse or male companion and decided to commute the sentences of 25 of them.

Celeste defended the releases as recognition of the complicated lives and motivations of these women.

"These women were entrapped emotionally and physically," Celeste said in a telephone interview: "They were the victims of violence, repeated violence. They loved these men even though they beat them and feared them. They were so emotionally entangled they were incapable of walking away. If I thought they would be a threat I wouldn't have commuted their sentences."

Dr. Lenore Walker, executive director of the Domestic Violence Institute, a non-profit research and advocacy group in Denver, said: "This is a signal to the rest of the country that women will no longer permit themselves to be battered and abused by men.

"They should never have been in prison

Winter arrived Friday on a sled of arctic air that slipped down across the western two-thirds of the nation, from frosty Seattle to snowy California to the deep-frozen Texas panhandle.

The cold turned gasoline to gel in Wyoming, where temperatures plunged to 50 degrees below zero. It snapped power transmission lines, stopped Amtrak's "Empire Builder" in its snowy tracks and gave California citrus growers the shivers.

Low temperature records were tied or broken in many places, including Denver, which matched a record at 21 below zero; Casper, Wyo, where it was 41 below; and coastal Eureka, Calif., where it was 27 above. In Medford, Ore., the record of 4 below zero was 15 degrees below the old mark for the date.

Winds blast arctic front through city

There was sand on the roads and frost on the trees as an arctic front made itself at home in Midland Friday, but local officials said the icy weather caused no delays or disasters.

Meteorologists at the National Weather Service office at Midland International Airport said the bitter cold is here to stay through the weekend.

"Today's low may beat the record of 4 set in 1989," an NWS spokesman said.

Arco joined the city of Midland, Chevron Corp. and the Abell-Hanger Foundation in sharing the $94,000 in NHS administrative costs for 1990-91.

The company made its contribution to the housing-improvement agency during a news conference held at the Midland Petroleum Club.

Williams' son pleads guilty to LSD charge

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

A guilty plea by Clayton Williams III for possession of LSD in U.S. District Court on Friday apparently is the tip of the iceberg in a recent surge in popularity of the drug in Midland, according to Assistant U.S. Attorney Tom Beery.

Williams, 20, is the son of Clayton Williams Jr., the unsuccessful Republican candidate for governor in November.

A recent investigation by the Department of Public Safety, which led to Williams' guilty plea, shed light on LSD use by more than 300 students at Lee High School, said Sgt. James Gilbreath, DPS narcotics investigator. Usage also is prevalent among former Lee High School students, Gilbreath added.

The investigation began about six months ago following a tip by a parent of a Lee High School student.

Lawmen seize 1-ton marijuana cache in Odessa

■ Four-week investigation stemmed from tip to the Department of Public Safety in El Paso.

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Nearly a ton of marijuana with a street value of about $4.5 million was confiscated from an Odessa residence about 11 p.m. Thursday, Ector County District Attorney's Office officials announced at a news conference Friday.

Law enforcement officers seized more than 1,920 pounds of high-grade Mexican marijuana following a four-week investigation stemming from a tip to the Department of Public Safety in El Paso, said Mike Patton, narcotics investigator for the Ector County District Attorney's Office.

No arrests were made but Patton said he expects at least three arrest warrants to be forthcoming.

In addition to the marijuana, a 1982 Ford pickup and a 1984 Oldsmobile were confiscated at 7110 W. 20th St., where the raid took place.

Law enforcement officials intend to file seizure of the residence, a fairly new three-bedroom home, Patton said.

The house had been under surveillance since the investigation began, Patton said. A search warrant was issued by Justice of the Peace R.G. Hungerford.

"We feel like we knocked off a major storage site prior to distribution," Patton said, adding that bundles of the drug were brought to the residence in intervals.

"West Texas is a major staging area for the nation because of location near the Mexican border," Patton said.

Ector County District Attorney Gary Garrison said the seizure would not have been possible without the combined effort of law enforcement agencies.

Included in the investigation and seizure with the District Attorney's Office and El Paso DPS were the Ector County Sheriff's Office, Midland County Sheriff's Office, Permian Basin Drug Task Force, Odessa Police Department Canine Unit, Constable's Office Precinct 3, Andrews County Sheriff's Office and the Ward County District Attorney's Office.

According to Ector County Sheriff Bob Brookshire, Thursday's seizure was the county's largest marijuana seizure since more than 6,000 pounds was seized in a single raid in the late 1970s.

Winter made it's entrance Friday on howling frigid winds generated by an Arctic cold front.

On the first official day of winter the cold front ushered snow and bitter cold temperatures into the Mississippi Valley and the southern Plains. Temperatures plunged below zero from the northern Plateau and the Great Basin to the upper Mississippi Valley, turning gasoline to gel and stranding motorists by the hundreds.

Three cities reported all-time record lows Friday morning. Casper, Wyo., hit 41 below zero, Redding, Calif., dropped to 17 to tie their record and Sacremento matched its all time low of 21 degrees.

chill factor of minus 25, he added.

Although the high today should reach only the mid-20s, the spokesman said warm weather gradually would return to the area. He predicted a high in the relatively balmy upper 30s for Christmas Day.

The spokesman said West Texas had received the dry part of the massive cold front that stretches across the Midwest.

"All the moisture is in East Texas, Arkansas, Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana," he said. "We'll see snow flurries — just enough to show as a trace on the radar. There'll be no major accumulations."

The dry cold is being credited for the relative lack of weather-related accidents in the area.

The Department of Public Safety reported "several minor accidents — rollovers" early Friday morning but no serious accidents, according to a spokeswoman.

"They're staying home," she said. "I wish I could."

Midland Police Department listed "several fender-benders" that occurred as people headed to work. An officer said sanded intersections prevented more problems.

City Manager Fred Poe said two sand truck crews patrolled major streets for ice Friday afternoon.

"They mainly sanded the bridges over Scharbauer," Poe said. "This morning we were fortunate there wasn't anything frozen."

He said the crews would be out early today to put sand on the approaches to intersections to provide cars with better traction for stopping.

"They'll be out at 5 a.m. on regular work days" if the icy conditions continue, Poe said.

Midland County also has several sand trucks and crews that it can make available to the city if necessary, he said.

"The county will cooperate with us if we need it," Poe said. "They have fewer roads to sand."

Midland International Airport administration supervisor Marcy Blauvelt said holiday travelers had less than 10-minute flight delays Friday as aircraft were de-iced prior to takeoff.

"Fortunately, the weather has cooperated and flights are moving right along," Ms. Blauvelt said. "We are lucky not to have much moisture, so not much ice, with this front."

As temperatures dropped Friday morning, slick runways dried off, and little ice was seen, she said.

"We were using the de-icer — an alcohol-based mixture that thaws frost on planes — more as a precautionary measure," Ms. Blauvelt said.

"We didn't have many incidents of ice on the planes."

"It's been busy but really festive out here," she said. "We've had carolers for the audience."

The cold failed to drive many people to the Salvation Army's shelter, a spokesman for the agency said.

"We had about six men and two women as transients or nightly guests Thursday night," he said. "The rest were more permanent residents who are in our programs."

The spokesman said the Salvation Army shelter has 20 beds open for transient visitors.

"I would anticipate that we'll be full (Friday) night," he said. "This is the first full day of cold weather."

Red Cross manager George Kalcevic said the agency is on standby if the Salvation Army shelter gets too crowded.

"If the regular shelters fill up, they'll call us and say they're at maximum capacity and we'll open a congregate shelter with cots and blankets in a gymnasium or church hall," he said.

"The big thing is having a source of heat," Kalcevic said. "If someone's heat goes out and they're stuck without it — those are the ones we're concerned about, not so much the transients."

ACID: DPS confiscates 200 doses of the drug

(From 1A)

the drug at Midland High School, Gilbreath replied, "From my information, it is overwhelmingly more of a problem at Lee."

He did not list reasons for the apparent higher usage at Lee, but said his information was based on interviews with students and former students at both schools.

In response to alleged LSD usage in Midland, a federal grand jury investigation has been scheduled for Jan. 17.

"Numerous young people are to be subpoenaed," Gilbreath said.

Gilbreath said he first became aware of the problem after a concerned parent called him about six months ago.

An investigation since has uncovered the extensiveness of usage, he said.

Gilbreath said "numerous interviews with persons involved" consistently indicated the number of users to be more than 300.

Illustrating the extent of use, Gilbreath said interviews reveal that one local supplier sold 622 out of 800 "hits" of LSD within eight days.

The drug is believed to originate in San Francisco, Albuquerque, N.M., and Oklahoma.

According to Gilbreath, a sheet (100 doses) can be bought for as little as $5 in San Francisco and sold in Midland for $1,000 — $10 a dose.

DPS officers have confiscated 200 doses of the drug since the investigation began, Gilbreath said.

Beery said he anticipates the upcoming grand jury investigation will lead to arrests.

"We're going to arrest and indict some suppliers," he said.

The circulation of LSD, which started picking up in Midland about three months ago, is the first Beery has been aware of here in recent years. A guilty plea by Clayton Williams III in U.S. District Court on Friday was the first LSD case Beery said he has had in 3½ years.

The resurgence of the drug is a serious problem because of the potential danger of the drug, Gilbreath said.

But the youngsters involved in taking the drug don't see it that way.

"It is not taken with any seriousness at all (by the users)," Gilbreath said.

"We've had some of the young people say that if you don't take acid (LSD) you're not cool," Gilbreath said.

CHARGE: Williams' sentencing is set for Feb. 5

(From 1A)

picture when the investigation revealed that he had come into possession of and consumed one "hit" of LSD at a party held at the Midland Hilton on Dec. 1, Gilbreath said.

Williams, who was not arrested or indicted, came forth and pleaded guilty to the charge after Gilbreath said he contacted the youth's father about the investigation.

"This hearing was brought about due to a conversation I had with the father. I had contacted Clayton Williams (Jr.) and told him what was happening," Gilbreath said.

Represented by Jeffery King, a Washington D.C., attorney, Williams waived his right to trial by jury during his plea before U.S. District Court Judge Lucius Bunton.

Sentencing was set for Feb. 5 and will follow a pre-sentence investigation report to be prepared by a probation officer. Williams remains free without bond.

Williams' father told news reporters after the plea that his son's drug use was a relapse of a past substance-abuse problem.

The older Williams, known for his hard-line stance against drugs during his recent campaign, said this incident strengthens his view about drug users and dealers.

"It re-enforces my opinion that we must increase the battle on drugs," Williams said, adding that he still stands behind stricter penalties for drug dealers.

"I hope this will point out to parents that no one is immune from drugs," Williams said.

As for his son, Williams said, "He made a mistake and will pay for it."

Williams said his son had a drug abuse problem beginning when he was 15 but had been "straight" for the last 3½ years.

"He didn't continue going to support groups," Williams said in explaning the relapse.

"When kids start to heal, they have to have a crisis," Williams said, adding that this incident was the crisis to shake up his son.

"He's not a bad boy at all . . . he has a drug problem," Williams said.

"He will be going into rehab as soon as we get him enrolled," he said.

AGENCY: NHS poised to help

(From 1A)

tant purpose in Midland.

"We're really trying to stay very involved in the community," Handlin said. "This is an opportunity to do that and help some of the folks who are economically unable to buy or maintain a home."

Councilman John Castro said he will work with NHS officials to solicit donations from other companies and foundations.

"I'm trying to sell the other oil companies on the idea that they ought to get involved," Castro said. "If all the oil companies would do this, we would have a lot of money."

NHS, a non-profit organization whose purpose is to upgrade declining neighborhoods, was started Oct. 1.

The agency oversees the Homeownership Incentive Program (HIP) and will begin reviewing applications for low-interest loans for three home programs sometime before the end of March.

NHS, overseen by a 17-member board, is the local arm of the Neighborhood Reinvestment Corp., a nationwide neighborhood revitalization group.

Ms. Davis, former Neighborhood Reinvestment Corp. coordinator here, said NHS' objective is to create a sense of neighborhood pride by assisting low- to moderate-income families with their housing needs.

HIP, introduced in Midland in March, offers to pay as much as $3,000 in down payment and closing costs on a house. If the buyer lives in the home at least five years, the interest-free loan is forgiven.

Since NHS took over the program from the Midland Housing Finance Corp. in October, nine area families have become homeowners through HIP.

NHS officials in August selected three areas whose low- to moderate-income residents can apply for loans to buy, renovate or build houses.

Ms. Davis said site selection was based on a neighborhood's average income and living conditions, among other factors.

Because of income, age and credit history, most families qualifying for the NHS program would not be able to get loans from a bank, she said.

The organization already has received 300 applicants for the loans, with the majority of those seeking assistance to buy or refurbish homes rather than build new ones, Ms. Davis said.

More than 500 families could be helped by the program this year, she said.

She said NHS still is searching for a construction specialist and an administrative assistant. The agency also needs office space, she said. Ms. Davis has been working out of her home.

First City Texas, NCNB, Clay-Desta National Bank, AmWest Savings & Loan, TEAM Bank, Texas Commerce Bank and Community National Bank have made a combined $1.6 million in loans available to the program.

The loans will be granted at 85 percent of the prime interest rate.

However, $158,909 in interest-free loans from the Midland Housing Finance Corp., Neighborhood Reinvestment Corp. and Community Development Block Grant funds will supplement the loans. Recipients will pay interest only on the portion of a loan provided by banks.

Local unemployment rate up from October

By Melia McEwen
Staff Writer

Mimicking the weather, the Texas Employment Commission's figures on Midland's employment rate were a blast of cold air.

The TEC's local office reported that the local unemployment rate jumped almost a percentage point in November, to 5.3 percent from 4.5 percent in October. The rate a year ago was 6.2 percent.

"Area rates rose due to a seasonal influx of those seeking Christmas jobs, and a slowdown in the economy. There is little optimism that the economy will grow after the first of the year," according to Phyllis Damm, a supervisor in the Midland office.

The bit of good news in the employment report was that Midland's civilian labor force rose, rose to 48,900 from 48,400. So did total employment, from 46,200 in October to 46,300. The labor force in November 1989 totaled 49,800, with a total employment of 46,700.

Total unemployment rose to 2,600 from 2,200, but was still below the 3,100 in total unemployment in November last year.

Odessa's unemployment rate showed a similar trend, rising to 5.4 percent from 4.5 percent.

The TEC noted that 15 of the state's metropolitan statistical areas showed higher unemployment rates over last year. Those MSAs included Dallas-Fort Worth and San Antonio. Neither Midland or Odessa was in that group.

Midland placed fourth among the TEC's MSAs, tied with Lubbock. Bryan-College Station had the lowest unemployment rate in the state with 3.3 percent, followed by Austin and Victoria, each with 4.8 percent. Odessa placed fifth. McAllen-Edinburg-Mission had the highest rate in the state, 20.5 percent.

The statewide unemployment rate for urban areas in November was 6.8 percent, up sharply from 5.3 percent in October, according to the TEC. It was 6.9 percent in November 1989.

Total unemployment in November totaled 583,100, up from 445,000 in October but down slightly from 588,200 in November 1989.

The commission noted that in November there were more unemployed Texans than at any time this year.

Accidental shooting kills 2-year-old

Staff Report

ODESSA — An accidental shooting Thursday evening caused the death of a 23-month-old Odessa boy, police reported.

Alexis Porras, who would have turned 2 on Dec. 30, was shot once in the head about 7:30 p.m. with a small caliber revolver by a juvenile who was playing with the weapon, police said following interviews with witnesses at the scene.

The boy was pronounced dead at 8:30 p.m. at Medical Center Hospital in Odessa by Justice of the Peace R.G. Hungerford.

Detectives recovered the gun used at the scene, 908 Wilson, where the victim reportedly lived.

Hungerford ruled the death accidental and no criminal charges are expected to be filed in connection with the death.

Hoover died in '72

CHILL: Storm system moved south quickly

(From 1A)

It was 2 below in Amarillo, and 6 above in Lubbock.

The storm system has been blamed for at least 14 deaths since Tuesday, in Washington, Iowa, Oregon, California, Oklahoma and Mississippi. The most recent death was reported Friday afternoon in Mississippi, where a twister knocked a tree into a house and killed a man.

The cold moved south briskly. In Page, Okla., a small town in the Ouachita National Forest, temperatures dropped from 53 to 29 in a span of 30 minutes Friday morning, forecaster Jim Purpura said.

"They have to join the rest of us," he said, referring to portions of Oklahoma that had previously been spared the frigid weather.

In Wyoming, hundreds of Christmas travelers abandoned their frozen vehicles. Among them were passengers aboard two Greyhound buses stalled by the subzero temperatures.

"The problem is not the road conditions — the roads are pretty dry," said Michelle Ryel, a dispatcher with the Wyoming Highway Patrol in Cheyenne. "The problem is the bitter cold is freezing up these trucks. Their fuel is gelling."

Eight inches of snow fell at Gallup, N.M., where a recreation center was converted to an overnight shelter for stranded travelers. Gallup Police Chief Frank Gonzales issued an appeal to citizens to help people found outdoors.

"Different people calling us report drunks laying out on the sidewalks and that the snow is covering them," Gonzales said. "I wish they would help us by taking them inside, and we could pick them up then."

Train travelers were delayed up to 24 hours when the cold stalled Amtrak's "Empire Builder" from Seattle to Chicago. The train that left Seattle on Tuesday arrived in Fargo, N.D., around midnight Thursday — one day late.

"It's cold enough to crack (rails) when the ice builds up," Amtrak spokesman John Jacobsen said. "Sometimes it just separates the rails, but whether it actually cracks a rail or simply separates a rail, you can't operate a train. You have to wait to get a repair crew there."

CLEMENCY: Act draws praise, criticism

in the first place. Women don't kill men unless they've been pushed to a point of desperation."

But prosecutors said Friday's action could encourage more women to use violence to escape abuse. "The fact that you're battered does not give you the license to kill," said Dennis Watkins, the Trumbull County prosecutor, who is president of the Ohio Prosecuting Attorneys' Association, which represents most of the state's prosecutors.

"Now, instead of going to the courts or getting a divorce, these women will think, 'Maybe I'll kill him.'

"Taking a human life," he said, "is not something we want to promote."

Last summer, after the Ohio Supreme Court's ruling, the state Legislature approved a bill, later signed by the governor, that essentially ratified the court's ruling.

Granting the clemency was Celeste's last major action before leaving the governor's office and an especially symbolic one for a man who, with his wife, Dagmar, turned their Cleveland home into a shelter for battered women when he moved to Columbus to became Lieutenant governor in the mid-1970s.

Celeste, who has served two terms, is barred by state law from seeking a third term.

For several months, the governor said, he reviewed the files of 105 women, rejected the requests of 48 of them and Friday returned the cases of 32 others to the parole board for further review.

The 25 women whose sentences were commuted will have to perform 200 hours of community services in a domestic violence program.The governor's action does not expunge the crimes from their records.

Ohio was one of the last major states where women were barred from presenting expert testimony about being physically abused, according to women's rights advocates and the governor's aides say.

Homeowner watches as bungling increases sevenfold

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Arun Vohra was only trying to be a good citizen when he warned the state highway administration about a diseased pine tree in front of his house. His reward: The state cut down seven healthy trees.

The pine still stands.

Vohra joined the state's Adopt-a-Highway program last spring, pledging to keep the woodsy road in front of his house free of trash and debris. In due course, Vohra spotted a pine tree that appeared to be infested with borers and called the State Highway Administration.

The tree was in front of his house, but on state property.

"I felt the tree was dangerous and told them it was going to fall over and kill somebody, and if it hit overhead power lines there might be a big tragedy," he said.

Days later, Vohra returned home to find that two other pine trees, three blooming dogwoods and a giant lilac tree had become victims of what he calls the Bethesda Chain Saw Massacre.

The neighboring pine still stood.

He got on the phone to the highway administration.

"The guy I talked to said, 'We're sorry, it was a new man; he didn't know what he was doing,'" Vohra says. "I guess he just went crazy with the chain saw."

Vohra says he called a couple more times, finally letting the matter drop until November. Then, he talked with Henry Page, the man in charge of the tree crews.

"He came to my house. I showed him the tree ringed with holes. He said, 'Yes, yes, this tree has to come down. It's too close to power lines,'" Vohra says.

Page told him the tree was too big for state crews; he'd have to call in a contractor.

Vohra said he marked the pine tree with a ribbon, so there would be no more mistakes.

But there was.

The latest victim lay on the ground, neatly sawed — a cedar tree that had been 80 feet to 100 feet tall, by Vohra's estimate.

The pine still lived.

The Montgomery Journal, a daily county newspaper, wrote the story under the headline: "They came, they sawed ... they blundered."

"I was just absolutely in shock," Vohra said.

Woman's good deed pays off again and again

PARKERSBURG, W.Va. (AP) — Honesty pays for Judy Miller. To be exact, it pays $100 every year.

Seven years ago, Miller, 46, found a wallet while Christmas shopping.

"It was stuffed with money," Miller said. "It would not go shut there was so much money in it."

Miller said her first reaction was to leave the billfold where it was. But having grown up in a family of 10 with little money, she decided to hand the billfold over to a store employee.

As she was telling a clerk about the wallet, a man ran up to her and said, "Oh, you found it," Miller said. The man's name matched the one on the driver's license, so she handed it over.

The man offered to buy Miller anything in the store, but she refused.

"He didn't owe me anything," Miller said. "Why should he pay me for giving him something that was his?"

Several days later, Miller received in the mail a leather jacket she had tried on the night she found the billfold.

"I was tickled to death," she said. "I thought that would be it."

But it wasn't. The next year, she received a gift certificate, and every year since, Miller has received $100 from the man, either in cash or in a certified check.

Miller, who works in a Belpre, Ohio, doll-making factory, said she is surprised at the number of people who asked her why she returned the billfold.

"How could I sleep at night knowing I had kept something that belongs to someone else?" she said. "I hope if I ever lose a wallet, someone will be honest enough to give it back to me."

Times boosts price

NEW YORK (AP) — The price of The New York Times' national edition will go up to 75 cents in the Midwest and Southwest on Jan. 14.

The Times had been charging 50 cents for daily copies of its national edition in the Midwest and 60 cents in the Southwest, spokeswoman Nancy Nielsen said Thursday.

The higher price reflects the newspaper's higher production and distribution costs, she said.

The price for the national edition in the Southeast was raised to 75 cents last September. It still costs 50 cents on the West Coast.

Next wave of progress to bring digital radio to shore

By Jay Arnold

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new breed of high-tech radio programmers think they've found a better way to give music junkies near-perfect renditions of their favorite hits, from Beethoven to Billy Idol, 24 hours a day.

It's called digital radio, and one day it may be zipping out of Earth orbit directly to your car or portable radio or through your TV set.

What digital radio promises is impressive: no more hissing signals fading in and out or booming from the bottom of a barrel. No pops or crackles. Compact disc-quality sound.

Several new satellite companies want to offer it; so do traditional AM and FM radio stations. Some cable companies already are offering digital radio to subscribers, for a price.

Because digital radio can produce such a clear sound, the recording industry is keeping a wary eye on a technology that may spur home taping.

But many observers think there's no stopping it.

Today's radio "no longer is state of the art sound quality," says Robert Mazer, a Washington communications lawyer.

Digital radio transforms sound into the precise binary pulses of computers, whereas traditional analog radio changes sound into electrical signals transmitted as rising and falling waves of energy.

Computer technology can reconstruct digital signals into sound that is a near-perfect copy of the original material, which in the music industry nowadays typically is a digital compact disc.

Testing is under way in Japan, Canada and Europe on satellite-delivered digital radio. In this country, the Federal Communications Commission is considering whether to set aside a portion of the already overcrowded airwaves for digital audio broadcasting.

Whatever happens, the new system may render existing radios obsolete.

Radio stations are urging the FCC to let them provide digital audio, arguing that satellite delivery would weaken the tenets of the 1934 Communications Act that enshrines the concept of "localism."

Workers' comp unconstitutional

STATE

AUSTIN (AP) — A judge Friday said the new workers' compensation system appears to violate the Texas Constitution and issued a temporary order to block the state from implementing most parts of the act.

"I am extremely pleased that the judicial process is working to guarantee the constitutional rights of Texas workers," Joe Gunn, president of the Texas AFL-CIO, said.

"We opposed the legislation when it passed because it was bad law. We regret we had to appeal to the judicial system for justice, but that's why we have a governmental system of checks and balances," Gunn said.

Gov. Bill Clements called the decision "horrendous."

"This is another example of judicial encroachment into legislative business," Clements said.

The status of the law set to take effect Jan. 1, however, remained up in the air following the state district court ruling in Eagle Pass.

The attorney general's office immediately began appealing Maverick County Judge Eugene Stewart's ruling, saying that action would allow the law to take effect as scheduled.

"By us filing the notice of appeal, the judge's injunction is null and void," said Ron Dusek, a spokesman for Attorney General Jim Mattox. "It is superseded, so the workers' compensation act will in fact take effect Jan. 1," Dusek said.

Gunn, however, called the state's appeal with the 4th Court of Appeals in San Antonio "a brief glitch" in organized labor's fight to overturn the law.

He said the AFL-CIO will ask the appeals court to rule on the state's motion quickly and was confident the court would uphold Stewart's order.

In addition, Bill Whitehurst, a lawyer for the AFL-CIO and other plaintiffs in the lawsuit, said even if the law took effect Jan. 1, those practices to which labor objects wouldn't be put into operation until March.

Judge Stewart has scheduled a trial on the merits of the case for March 25.

Stewart's order would prevent the Texas Workers Compensation Commission from establishing injury guidelines, set by the American Medical Association, to be used to determine benefits for injured workers.

"That is the crux of this act," Whitehurst said. " Everything revolves around the impairment guidelines."

The judge also said the new system for resolving disputed claims through administrative proceedings unfairly prevented workers from taking their grievances to court.

The Texas AFL-CIO asked Stewart to declare the new law unconstitutional, contending that it denies workers basic rights.

The labor group says the law would lower disability benefits for most injured workers, restrict an employee's access to court and discriminate against Hispanics because it reduces benefits for injured agricultural workers.

Lawmakers passed the workers' comp overhaul after two bruising special sessions in 1989 that pitted business interests against labor and attorneys representing injured workers.

The law was adopted under heavy pressure from the business lobby, and the state's top three officials — Clements, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Gib Lewis.

Austin taxi companies tighten security

AUSTIN (AP) — Taxi companies have beefed up security measures because of the slayings of two Austin cab drivers in less than a week. Police sought a single suspect in those killings.

"People are scared," said Bobby Machicek, a driver for American Cab Co. "I'm sure carrying things to protect myself."

The city's four cab companies posted a $4,150 reward for information leading to an arrest and grand jury indictment in the killings of Eleazar Hinojosa, 57, and John M. Parrish II, 41.

Authorities released a composite sketch of their suspect after a medical examiner's report Thursday that both men died of three gunshot wounds to the head.

The suspect is described as a Hispanic man, 20 to 25 years old, 5-foot-7 and weighing 150 pounds.

'We're out here 18 to 24 hours a day, and we ain't got no protection. Some of us carry guns, knives, anything to deter the robberies we have.'

— Louis Salley, Austin cab driver

Hinojosa, the father of 11, was found in the front seat of his Roy's Taxi cab about 7:15 p.m. Monday. On Wednesday, the body of Parrish was found in the trunk of his Yellow Checker cab, which had been parked behind an Austin apartment building.

Officials of the city's cab companies held sessions with their drivers on Thursday.

The cabbies were urged to ask customers to sit in the front seat, to keep their doors locked when waiting on fares, and to be on the lookout for other drivers in trouble.

Drivers also were told to turn on their microphones if trouble arises so their dispatchers can hear the conversation and know that help is needed.

Louis Salley, who drives a Harlem cab, said drivers don't have enough security.

"We're out here 18 to 24 hours a day, and we ain't got no protection. Some of us carry guns, knives, anything to deter the robberies we have," Salley said.

Cab company officials said the practice of carrying weapons is illegal and not officially condoned.

Lt. Alvin Shaw, who heads the Austin police homicide division, said he does not blame cabbies for wanting to carry weapons. "But for obvious reasons, we can't have vigilantes out there," he said.

Former Texas thrift chief agrees to guilty plea

DALLAS (AP) — Former Dallas thrift president Edwin T. McBirney III agreed to plead guilty to fraud and help federal investigators chase other thrift scandal figures, the Justice Department said Friday.

McBirney, who led Sunbelt Savings Association, is the second major thrift official in two days to be convicted of wrongdoing that cost taxpayers millions of dollars.

A federal court jury on Thursday found former Vernon Savings Association owner Don R. Dixon guilty of 23 counts of fraud and misapplication of funds. A magistrate ordered Dixon held without bond until his Feb. 19 sentencing and the judge presiding in the case affirmed that order Friday.

"Federal prosecutors have dealt a one-two punch to the savings and loan crooks this week," Attorney General Dick Thornburgh said in Washington.

Sunbelt's 1986 failure is estimated to have cost taxpayers $2 billion, and Vernon's in 1987 cost $1.3 billion.

In return for his help, prosecutors agreed to limit McBirney's penalty to $7.5 million in restitution and $8.5 million to settle civil claims by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. McBirney also may be sentenced to up to 15 years imprisonment.

"We are confident that Mr. McBirney's cooperation is going to lead to the indictment of other major insiders in the next two years," said Marvin Collins, U.S. Attorney for the Northern District of Texas.

McBirney, 37, filed the plea in federal court Friday. A date had not been scheduled for him to appear before a judge.

The deal was made last month, but prosecutors arranged not to file or publicize it until Dixon's trial was over, Collins said.

They did not want to risk complicating the Dixon trial, which began in October, he said. In September, the fraud conviction of two Vernon borrowers was thrown out when the judge learned the jury had discussed Dixon's indictment during its deliberations.

"We were being perhaps just a little extra cautious," Collins said. "With these very large cases, we are taking extra care."

"I think all three parties here, the court, the prosecutor and the defense, wanted Mr. Dixon to get as fair a trial as he could get," said Paul Coggins, McBirney's attorney.

"It's been in the works about six months," Coggins said of the plea agreement.

He said he and McBirney had mixed emotions about the deal. "It's pretty tough for an S&L guy to go to trial in Dallas right now," Coggins said.

McBirney, who was indicted in July on 17 counts, agreed to plead guilty to four counts of bank fraud, filing a false corporate tax return, causing a false statement to be filed by Sunbelt and misapplying $250,000 in Sunbelt funds.

The bank fraud count stems from a $700 million deal to finance the purchase of real estate in Southern California by a Sunbelt subsidiary.

McBirney agreed to admit that he arranged a fraudulent $30 million reciprocal loan arrangement with Western Savings Association.

The former owner of Western Savings, Jarrett Woods, goes on trial next month on 37 charges he misapplied funds and falsified records.

■ In Coach Dennis Parker's last game, Marshall plays Converse Judson for the Class 5A state championship.

Associated Press

At least for Marshall coach Dennis Parker, Saturday's clash between the Mavericks and Converse Judson at the Astrodome will be for more than just the Class 5A big school championship.

Parker, who was announced Wednesday as the new coach at the University of North Texas, will be coaching his last game for the Mavericks (13-2) against a team he helped guide to the 1983 state title.

Parker told his players about the UNT job Wednesday morning.

"They took it like they've been taking everything else, with very little emotion," Parker told the Marshall News Messenger.

"I told them it was their fault that I was leaving. I said if they hadn't won all these games, I wouldn't be going. If they had lost two weeks ago, I'd still be here. Had we gone 5-5, I wouldn't have been offered the job."

The Mavericks qualified for the playoffs once in the 16 years before Parker arrived in 1984. Marshall has since won three district titles, advanced to the quarterfinals and semifinals and now has a chance for the state crown.

"We're going to win the state championship Saturday and I will have finished what I came here to do," Parker said.

Saturday's game also will be a reunion between Parker and Rockets coach D.W. Rutledge. When the two were assistants at Judson, they lived about a mile apart near the Guadalupe River and commuted the 40-mile round trip daily together for three years.

Parker emphasized the title game is not between him and Rutledge, but between two determined football teams.

"I think he's a special person in my life. I love him like a brother," Parker said. "He's a better man than he is a coach and he's a good coach."

In other games Saturday, it's No. 9 Wilmer-Hutchins (13-1) vs. Austin Westlake (13-2) for the 4A title, No. 1 Vernon (15-0) vs. No. 5 Crockett (15-0) for the 3A championship and No. 1 Groveton (15-0) vs. No. 5 De Leon (14-0-1) for the 2A crown.

The Class A championship game between No. 1 Munday (15-0) and No. 8 Bartlett (14-1), scheduled for Saturday night, was postponed until 2 p.m. Monday because of icy conditions and sub-freezing temperatures in North Texas.

"Munday has been iced in and can't get out," said a spokesman for the University Interscholastic League.

The spokesman said officials of Groveton and De-Leon were considering delaying their Class 2A championship game, which is set for 6 p.m. Saturday at Floyd Casey Stadium in Waco.

Both Marshall and Converse Judson enter the championship round after cruising through their first five playoff games.

The Rockets (14-1) smashed San Antonio McCollum 62-0 in the bi-district round before breezing through San Antonio Clark, 31-12, Victoria, 33-7, San Antonio Marshall, 49-30, and Humble Kingwood, 51-22.

Meanwhile, the Mavericks beat Garland Lakeview, 36-26, Richardson Berkner, 61-6, Cypress Creek, 33-7, Plano, 24-19, and Arlington Sam Houston, 21-0.

Rutledge said getting into the proper alignments will be the key to stopping Marshall's multiple offense.

The Mavericks use several offensive formations designed to confuse defenses and create mismatches, he said.

"The number one thing we have to do defensively is get lined up right," Rutledge said.

Rutledge said other defensive keys will be stopping the big play and preventing Marshall from having a big

AUSTIN (AP) — The Class A state championship high school football game between Munday and Bartlett has been postponed from Saturday until Monday because of icy conditions and sub-freezing temperatures in North Texas.

The game will be played at 2 p.m. Monday at Pennington Field in Bedford, a Fort Worth suburb.

An arctic front moved into the state Thursday, sending temperatures plummeting.

"Munday has been iced in and can't get out," said a spokesman for the University Interscholastic League, the ruling body for high school academic and athletic competition in Texas.

The spokesman said officials of Groveton and DeLeon were considering delaying their Class 2A championship game, which is set for 6 p.m. Saturday at Floyd Casey Stadium in Waco.

Other championship playoff games still on schedule for Saturday were the 5A game between Converse Judson and Marshall at noon in the Astrodome; the 4A game between Austin Westlake and Wilmer-Hutchins at 1 p.m. at Floyd Casey Stadium in Waco; and the 3A game between Vernon and Crockett at 2 p.m. at Pennington Field in Bedford.

Bowl sold out

AUSTIN (AP) — Thousands of University of Texas football fans who had hoped to attend the Cotton Bowl game between Miami and Texas were unable to get tickets, a UT official said.

Assistant Athletic Director Craig Helwig said Thursday that 34,000 tickets were requested by mail in Austin, but UT had only 20,000 to distribute.

Kickoff for the game is 12:30 p.m. on Jan. 1.

W. Texas St. drops football

Associated Press

CANYON — West Texas State University announced today it is dropping its intercollegiate football program.

The school's new president, Barry B. Thompson, in announcing the program was being scuttled, left open the possibility it could be revived later.

Thompson, who took over earlier this month as president from embattled Ed Roach, said he believes in a well-rounded athletic program, including football. But he said unless enough money can be raised to support it, the program will remain shut down.

All other WTSU athletic teams will compete as independents on the NCAA Division II level, Thompson said.

An audit of the school's finances released on Oct. 2 said that West Texas State dipped into state and federal funds to cover shortfalls in a hemorrhaging athletic budget.

The audit report said the school's athletic fund was losing $1.2 million a year and auxiliary enterprises such as the bookstore, housing system and food service were being used to cover the losses.

The football program is the main casualty of the school's financial woes. Roach said on Dec. 1 that the debt-ridden football program had until Jan. 10, 1991, to raise nearly $300,000 or face being dissolved.

West Texas State is part of the Texas A&M University System. A&M system regents replaced Roach with Thompson earlier this month and said Roach had accepted an appointment as associate deputy chancellor for academic program planning.

Thompson said Friday that he had seriously considered "all possibilities" and concurred with the plan previously announced by Roach.

Aggie cage program may face 'death'

■ The Texas A&M athletic department is sweating an NCAA investigation that may lead to suspension of the school's basketball program.

Associated Press

Texas A&M's athletic department could face major sanctions and possibly the NCAA's "death penalty" if allegations concerning the school's basketball program are proven to be true.

NCAA officials noted that if a major penalty were imposed, Texas A&M could be subject to the so-called "death penalty" and lose its basketball program for one or two years because it comes less than five years after the football team endured a major penalty.

"Every case is different," Southwest Conference commissioner Fred Jacoby said Friday. "A lot of it is whether it (the rules violation) is inadvertent, (if) somebody did something they didn't know about. A lot of these are judgment calls.

"In this case, if these allegations are correct, it's what I call a major case."

SWC Basketball

On Thursday, Texas A&M acknowledged that NCAA rules violations occurred in its basketball program and pledged to continue an internal investigation.

The acknowledgement from athletic director John David Crow came after the Syracuse Post-Standard reported that New York talent scout Rob Johnson arranged for forward Tony Scott to transfer from Syracuse to Texas A&M.

The newspaper also quoted Scott as saying the university paid for part of his father's airfare and permitted Johnson to fly on its plane. The allegations, if proven, would be in violation of NCAA rules.

"If there's a major penalty imposed, within five years of another serious violation ... then the so-called 'death penalty' could be imposed," David Berst, assistant executive director of enforcement for the NCAA, said Friday.

No school ever has had the death penalty levied because of problems in two separate sports. The "death penalty" punishment has been on the NCAA books since 1985.

The Texas A&M football program was placed on two years probation Sept. 9, 1988, with a one-year ban on bowl appearances and a reduction of five scholarships, 10 recruiting visits and a ban on recruiting by two assistant coaches. The NCAA accused the Aggies of 25 rules violations.

Jacoby and Berst said they had been aware of allegations for several weeks.

Berst said the NCAA would be awaiting the school's report of its investigation of the matter. No deadline was set for the report, he said.

Johnson-Ryan conflict may overshadow game

Associated Press

If the Dallas Cowboys-Philadelphia Eagles game is half as good as the Buddy Ryan-Jimmy Johnson show it ought to be on prime time.

At times the importance of the game to both teams is lost in the snide, sarcastic, biting exchange of words between Ryan and Johnson.

Don't forget the Cowboys are within a victory of completing the greatest one-season turnaround in the history of the NFL. Last season under first-year coach Johnson, the Cowboys were 1-15.

What a difference a year has made. If the Cowboys (7-7) beat the Eagles Sunday, they earn a wildcard berth in the playoffs.

NFL

Dallas is a seven-point underdog against Philadelphia (8-6), which has clinched a playoff spot and still has hopes of a home game in the first round. The Cowboys end the regular season next week against the Atlanta Falcons.

Philadelphia has to win its last two, closing at Phoenix, and hope the Washington Redskins lose one of their final pair, against Indianapolis and Buffalo, to get a home-field edge.

Ryan and Johnson this week, through the media, fueled their apparent mutual dislike for each other.

Ryan referred to Johnson as "Whatshisname."

"If he can't remember my name he might be getting senile," Johnson retorted.

"I only remember important things," Ryan snapped back. "I saw him with some head phones on. He must be coaching now."

Eagles defensive tackle Mike Golic said, "Buddy has this thing about Dallas. He doesn't want to lose to Dallas in his lifetime. ... This has become a really heated rivalry. ...

"The teams just don't get along. When I came here Buddy said, 'Hey, I don't want to lose to those guys.' I don't want to be here with Buddy if we lose. He doesn't have many rules, but one of them is, 'We don't lose to the Cowboys.'"

In Dallas, linebacker Jesse Solomon said, "I'm guaranteeing a victory. We're going to be like the Grinch. We're gonna come in there and steal their Christmas.

"Tell Randall (Cunningham) I'll be after him everywhere he goes. He better get some sleep. Tell Buddy he doesn't have to like us. But when we come out of there with a win, he's gonna respect us whether he likes it or not."

The Cowboys have won four straight, longest current winning streak in the league, and could conquer some milestones Sunday:

—Forge their first five-game winning streak since 1983.

—Boost their record to 8-7, best since the 1985 team was 10-6 and won the NFC East. That was the last time Dallas

Farmer harvests 'Cat win

Associated Press

Richie Farmer scored nine points in a 14-2 run at the end of the first half that sparked No. 18 Kentucky to an 84-70 victory Friday night in its first regular-season game against Western Kentucky.

Farmer, who finished with a career-high 22 points, hit two 3-pointers and three free throws as Kentucky (6-2) broke from a 23-23 tie to a 37-25 lead over the final 3:02 of the half.

Western Kentucky (2-6) turned the ball over five times in the run and they resulted in six points for Kentucky.

Kentucky built its lead to 68-49 on John Pelphrey's 3-pointer with 7:01 remaining in the game. Western Kentucky could draw no closer than 80-68 on a layup by Jack Jennings with 1:49 to play.

The schools had met only two other times, both in the NCAA tournament, with Western Kentucky winning 107-83 in 1971 and Kentucky prevailing 71-64 in 1986.

Kentucky made only nine of 36 3-point attempts, but its defensive effort resutled in 31 points off 26 turnovers by the Hilltoppers.

Top 25

Reggie Hanson and Jeff Brassow each had 14 points for Kentucky, while Jamal Mashburn had 13 and Pelphrey 12. The Wildcats shot just 40.3 percent, 29-for-72.

Western Kentucky, which was 27-for-59 for 45.8 percent, was led by Harold Thompkins with 22 points, while Jack Jennings added 11.

Indiana 87, Iowa State 76

Calbert Cheaney scored 18 of his 29 points in the second half and teamed with Eric Anderson to lead a decisive 19-4 run that carried No. 6 Indiana.

Anderson added 18 points as Indiana (10-1) staved off Iowa State's upset bid after blowing a 10-point lead in the first half. The Hoosiers took control of the game by making 12 of their first 17 shots in the second half in sending Iowa State to its ninth loss in 11 games.

Indiana shot 65.4 percent from the field in the second half and 58.6 percent for the game.

Robinson leads Spurs

Associated Press

David Robinson had 34 points and 15 rebounds, and Terry Cummings scored six of his 27 points in overtime as the San Antonio Spurs beat the Phoenix Suns 132-128 Friday night for their eighth straight win.

The Suns, who had a seven-game winning streak snapped, are now 0-6 against the Spurs since Robinson joined the NBA last season. San Antonio also has won six consecutive road games.

Kevin Johnson paced the Suns with 34 points and 16 assists, Tom Chambers had 30 points, Jeff Hornacek 27 and Xavier McDaniel 18. Phoenix was unbeaten in its first seven games after trading for McDaniel on Dec. 7 with Seattle.

The Suns led 103-89 with 7:55 remaining in regulation before San Antonio forced overtime at 116-116 on Cummings' jumper with 29 seconds left.

Robinson's layup with 3:29 to go in overtime broke the game's 16th and final tie and put the Spurs ahead to stay at 122-120. Cummings' layup with 1:54 left and tap-in with 46 seconds showing made it 128-123.

Phoenix closed to 130-128 on Hornacek's 3-point goal with five seconds left, but Sean Elliott's dunk with .8 seconds remaining sealed the Spurs' victory.

Suns coach Cotton Fitzsimmons used only a seven-man rotation through regulation and the move backfired when Chambers fouled out 10 seconds into overtime and McDaniel got his sixth foul with 2:11 remaining.

Phoenix, which trailed 59-57 at halftime, used a 14-1 run to take a 79-70 lead with 4:42 left in the third quarter. The Suns led 91-81 entering the fourth period before San Antonio rallied.

Chambers scored 18 first-half points, including 14 in the first period, which ended in a 29-29 tie. Robinson had 15 points by halftime.

Pistons 113, Hawks 87

James Edwards scored 24 points, including eight in a key third-period surge, as sputtering Detroit routed Atlanta, snapping the Hawks' six-game winning streak.

Detroit was forced to play the second half without coach Chuck Daly, ejected by referee Mike Mathis with 3:36 left in the first half for arguing a technical-foul call. Guard Isiah Thomas was ejected in the fourth quarter after picking up a technical foul for punching Rumeal Robinson.

Joe Dumars also scored 24 points for the Pistons, who won for just the third time in 10 games. John Battle led Atlanta with 22 points.

Detroit led 56-50 at halftime, but started the final 24 minutes with a 12-2 spurt. Detroit went on a seven-point run later in the period. The final points of the quarter came on the first 3-point basket of Edwards' 14-year career. He was 0-for-21.

Bulls 114, Lakers 103

Michael Jordan scored 33 points and Scottie Pippen 28 as Chicago won for the 11th time in 14 games.

The Bulls led only 92-89 in the fourth quarter before a three-point play by Horace Grant and baskets by Pippen and Stacey King opened a 99-89 advantage. The Lakers got no closer than five down the stretch as Jordan and Pippen combined to score the last 15 points for Chicago.

The Lakers were led by James Worthy with 21 points and Sam Perkins with 20.

A.C. Green came off the bench in the first period to make all five of his shots and score 12 points. But the Bulls hit 68 percent of their shots en route to a 36-33 lead by the end of the period.

Pacers 137, Hornets 114

Chuck Person scored 34 points and Vern Fleming 26 on perfect shooting from the field and free-throw line as Indiana won for new coach Bob Hill.

Hill was elevated from an assistant coaching position Thursday after the Pacers fired Dick Versace.

Reggie Miller scored 20 points for Indiana, which led by as many as 25 in the fourth period. Johnny Newman led Charlotte with 21 points.

Fleming made nine shots from the floor and eight free throws.

NBA Roundup

76ers 126, Heat 102

Philadelphia hit 39 of 43 free throws — including 14 of 14 by Charles Barkley — to hand Miami its 10th consecutive loss.

Philadelphia made its first 17 free throws, missed two in a row and then made 19 straight. Barkley and Hersey Hawkins had 25 points each for the 76ers, who improved to 9-0 in three seasons against the Heat.

Miami's Glen Rice tied his season high with 25 points and Sherman Douglas added 20 for the Heat. But starting forwards Grant Long and Billy Thompson, shut out in a loss Wednesday to New York, combined for only seven points.

The Heat's losing streak is the longest in the NBA this season and equals the third-longest in franchise history.

Nets 111, Cavaliers 103

Derrick Coleman came off the bench with five fouls late in the fourth quarter and keyed a 9-0 run in the final 1:46 to rally New Jersey over stumbling Cleveland.

Coleman, who seemed reluctant to come off the bench when asked by coach Bill Fitch, had six of the Nets' final 13 points and contributed a key rebound and steal that led to two clinching free throws by Mookie Blaylock.

Cleveland, which has lost seven of eight games, added to its own woes by scoring just four points in the final 5:08.

Reggie Theus led New Jersey with 22 points and Derrick Gervin and Coleman added 17 apiece. Larry Nance topped Cleveland with 22 points and Brad Daugherty added 20.

Bullets 87, Knicks 85

Haywoode Workman scored a career-high 21 points and Darrell Walker had eight of Washington's 17 fourth-quarter points as the Bullets ended a seven-game losing streak against New York.

Trailing 86-85, New York fouled Workman, who made one of two free throws with 5.1 seconds left. The Knicks' Kiki Vandeweghe then drove the lane, but his layup attempt spun out of the basket at the buzzer.

The victory was the Bullets' fifth in a row at home and their first over the Knicks since February 1989. New York's last previous loss at the Capital Centre was Jan. 28, 1988.

Mavericks 103, Bucks 89

Rolando Blackman scored 11 of his 27 points in the fourth quarter as slump-ridden Dallas snapped a three-game home losing streak by cooling off Milwaukee.

Randy White scored 20 points and Derek Harper 19 for the Mavericks, who had lost eight of their previous nine games.

Ricky Pierce scored 20 points to lead Milwaukee, which had won six of its previous seven games.

Trail Blazers 117, Clippers 107

Clyde Drexler scored 11 of his 24 points as Portland outscored Los Angeles 42-19 in the third quarter, and the Trail Blazers dealt the Clippers their fifth straight defeat.

The Blazers also got 19 points from Jerome Kersey and improved the NBA's best record to 23-3 with their 11th triumph their last 12 trips to the Sports Arena.

Woolridge out for two months

DENVER (AP) — Denver Nuggets forward Orlando Woolridge, enjoying his finest NBA season and among the league's top scorers, was to undergo surgery Friday to repair a detached retina in the right eye that could sideline him as long as two months.

The surgery was to be performed at Porter Hospital by Dr. Ken Hovland, a retina specialist.

Doctors said it was too early to determine the severity of the injury or the exact recovery time that would be required, but a team physician speculated that Woolridge could miss up to two months of the season.

Woolridge, who is tied for third in scoring in the NBA with a 29.0 average, apparently sustained the injury in a collision during Denver's game against Phoenix last Saturday.

He had complained of blurred vision the past few days. When the Nuggets returned from San Antonio on Thursday, Woolridge consulted an eye specialist, who confirmed the detached retina.

"This is a huge blow to our team," Nuggets general manager Bernie Bickerstaff said. "Orlando was enjoying the finest season of his great pro career and one of the finest individual seasons of any player in the NBA. ... This hurts.

"The upside is that it creates the opportunity for us to take a significant look at our younger players."

Woolridge had been one of the few consistent performers on a Nuggets team that has struggled under new coach Paul Westhead's up-tempo system and had compiled a 5-18 record.

Woolridge already was hobbling on a swollen ankle that had reduced his quickness and maneuverability and limited him to a season-low 16 points against the Spurs Wednesday night.

"It's killing me," Woolridge said of the ankle injury after the Spurs' game.

Four other Nuggets also were ailing. Forward Jerome Lane is on the injured list with a sprained ankle. Guard Michael Adams missed the San Antonio game with a bruised thigh muscle. Guard Walter Davis is playing on a swollen knee, and center Joe Wolf is wearing a neck brace because of a sore muscle that doctors believe is linked to a virus.

Woolridge, obtained from the Los Angeles Lakers on Aug. 3 for second-round draft choices in 1993 and 1995, led the NBA in scoring for much of this season and had played in all of Denver's 23 games.

He is tied for third with Washington's Bernard King. Philadelphia's Charles Barkley leads the NBA with a 29.8 average, and Chicago's Michael Jordan is second at 29.3.

Woolridge's scoring average is the highest for any Denver player since Kiki Vandeweghe averaged 29.4 points during the 1983-84 season.

A former first-round pick of the Chicago Bulls, Woolridge also played with the New Jersey Nets. He averaged more than 20 points per game for three straight seasons during the mid-1980s, and was the Lakers' leading scorer off the bench last season with a 12.7 average.

ROAD & TRACK confirms it.

Former TCU standout dies in wreck

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) — Former Texas Christian University defensive tackle Fred Washington was killed in a one-car crash Friday, robbing the Chicago Bears of its second-round draft choice.

Washington's female companion, Petra Stoll, 22, of Palatine, also died in the crash about two miles from the Chicago Bear rookie's home.

"He was a coach's dream, a player who never complained, an outstanding young man," coach Mike Ditka said. "We're going to try and dedicate the rest of the year to Fred."

The Bears planned a memorial service for Washington on Saturday — a day before they host the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Washington's car struck a tree, Deputy Police Chief Gary Wieczorek said. The victims were pronounced dead at the scene. The accident happened at about 2:30 a.m. CST.

Weather conditions were good at the time and no evidence of alcohol or other drugs was found in the car, registered to Stoll, Wieczorek said.

The team went through its normal practice Friday after holding its regular meeting.

Saints don't expect Niners to coast despite clinch

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The New Orleans Saints know the San Francisco 49ers have nothing left to clinch. So what?

"They are gearing up for the playoffs. They've clinched everything they needed to clinch, but I know the types of players they have," said New Orleans quarterback Steve Walsh. "They're going out every ballgame trying to win, so I don't expect anybody to let up."

The Saints (6-8) still have an outside chance at making the playoffs. Don't bother trying to figure out how. It basically comes down to the Saints winning both of their remaining regular-season games and a bunch of other teams losing somewhere.

The Saints play the 49ers on Sunday at Candlestick Park, where New Orleans has lost each of the last two seasons, and finish up their regular-season schedule with a Monday night game against the Los Angeles Rams.

"We have a chance at the playoffs. ... so there's a tremendous amount of motivation for this game," said New Orleans coach Jim Mora.

The 49ers (13-1), who are already assured of home-field advantage in the playoffs, just want to stay healthy as they tune up for the postseason.

San Francisco coach George Seifert admits "an obligation to try and win the game," but the 49ers will not do anything to jeopardize their hopes of winning a third consecutive Super Bowl.

Reich reigns as Bills' starter

Associated Press

NFL Roundup

If quarterback Frank Reich remains perfect, the Buffalo Bills will become a National Football League division champion for the third straight year.

The Bills have won all three games in which Reich has started, all of them last season, and should they do it again Sunday against Miami at Buffalo they will clinch the American Conference East title.

Reich will start in place of Jim Kelly, who is out indefinitely with a left knee injury.

Buffalo, 12-2 and 7-0 at home, holds a one-game lead over the Dolphins, who beat the Bills 30-7 Sept. 16, but who have not won at Buffalo since 1986. The Dolphins, who have clinched a playoff spot, can win the division by beating the Bills, then winning their final regular-season game against Indianapolis.

Week 15 of the NFL season kicks off Saturday with the Los Angeles Raiders at Minnesota, Detroit at Green Bay and Washington at Indianapolis.

Sunday's schedule has Houston at Cincinnati, Cleveland at Pittsburgh, Kansas City at San Diego, New Orleans at San Francisco, the New York Giants at at Phoenix, Dallas at Philadelphia, Tampa Bay at Chicago, the Los Angeles Rams at Atlanta, New England at the New York Jets and Denver at Seattle.

Raiders (10-4) at Vikings (6-8)
The Raiders can clinch the AFC West by winning if Kansas City loses to San Diego. Minnesota, which still can make the playoffs, is back in the Metrodome. All the Vikings' wins have been under domes.

Lions (5-9) at Packers (6-8)
Blair Kiel will start for the Packers, who still have a chance at a wild card berth. Kiel is subbing for Anthony Dilweg (sprained arch), who took over for Don Majkowski, who is out for the season with a shoulder injury.

Redskins (9-5) at Colts (6-8)
The Redskins, who are in the playoffs, will be meeting the Colts, who still hope to make the playoffs. This is their first meeting since 1984 when Washington won 35-7.

Oilers (8-6) at Bengals (7-7)
The Oilers, who got a 525-yard, three-touchdown performance from Warren Moon in a 27-10 win over Kansas City last week, are tied for first place in the AFC Central with Pittsburgh, with the Bengals one game back. The Oilers beat Cincinnati 48-17 at Houston Oct. 14.

Browns (3-11) at Steelers (8-6)
The Steelers offense hasn't scored a touchdown in two weeks, but they managed to split because of kicker Gary Anderson, and are still alive for their 10th AFC Central title. The Browns beat Pittsburgh 13-3 on opening day.

Chiefs (9-5) at Chargers (6-8)
The Chiefs can clinch a wild card berth with a victory. Kansas City beat the Chargers 27-10 Nov. 18, but San Diego has won three straight games at home.

Giants (11-3) at Cardinals (5-9)
Jeff Hostetler will start at quarterback for the Giants in place of Phil Simms, who is out for the remainder of the regular season with a sprained right foot. The Giants, the NFC East champions, can clinch a first-round bye with a victory. Phoenix, which lost 20-19 to the Giants on Matt Bahr's game-ending field goal Oct. 21, have an outside chance for a wild card spot.

Cowboys (7-7) at Eagles (8-6)
Dallas, which is on a four-game winning streak, can make the NFC playoffs by winning its final two games. The Eagles, who are in the playoffs, have beaten the Cowboys six straight times.

Buccaneers (6-8) at Bears (10-4)
The Buccaneers still have a slim chance of reaching the playoffs. The NFC Central Division-winning Bears have beaten the Bucs 13 of their last 16 meetings.

Rams (5-9) at Falcons (3-11)
The Falcons, who have lost 18 straight road games, will be looking to snap a string of seven straight losses to the Rams.

Patriots (1-13) at Jets (4-10)
The Patriots have lost 12 straight games, and the Jets have lost five straight.

Broncos (4-10) at Seawhawks (7-7)
The Seahawks must win to stay in the hunt for a wild card spot. The Broncos have beaten Seattle three straight times.

UIL takes dim view of court fight

BAYTOWN (AP) — A basketball game between Baytown Lee and Houston Clear Lake high schools ended with 22 seconds to play in the third period when spectators joined a fistfight between two players.

Clear Lake was leading 55-53 Thursday when the scuffle began. Spectators then ran from the bleachers and joined the brawl, witnesses said.

Coaches, parents and game officials restored order a few minutes later.

Clear Lake forfeited the game because coach Bill Krueger refused to let his team continue.

Baytown police filed no formal charges.

game rushing or passing.

One of Rutledge's headaches will be stopping D.D. Turner, who ran for 160 yards and touchdowns of 10, 17 and 5 yards against Sam Houston, and speedy receiver Trency Clough.

Clough injured his right knee in the Sam Houston game, but is expected to play Saturday.

"They are a very balanced team offensively and we have to have a balance where we try to limit both their rushing and passing," Rutledge said. "We also have to be patient enough not to get beat by the big play. We want them to use the clock. We don't want them scoring in six seconds with a big play."

Munday faces similar problems playing Bartlett for their second Class A title. The Moguls won their first championship in 1984.

The Bulldogs boast receiver Johnny Walker and quarterback Kevin Cavanaugh, both first-team All-State selections. Cavanaugh threw for 22 touchdowns, including 12 to Walker, during the regular season.

"They've got a great quarterback in Cavanaugh and a great receiver in Walker and they also run the veer," said Munday coach Jim Edwards. "They can present you some problems. We're just going to try to do what we've been doing. Its going to be a battle. They've really got a great team."

Munday doesn't lack offensive weapons, either. Twin tandem Terry and Perry Collier combined for 36 all-purpose touchdowns. Terry was selected as a first-team All-State running back with 1,518 yards on 146 carries, while Perry made the first team as a defensive back.

De Leon may have the most difficult task afforded any of the championship contenders: containing Groveton running back Rodney Thomas.

Thomas, a first-team All-State selection, rushed for 2,070 yards and 28 touchdowns during the regular season. In the bi-district round against Warren, the senior ran for 349 yards and three scores.

Wilmer-Hutchins coach Robert Woods said he is surprised at the Eagles' accomplishments this season.

"You're always surprised when you go all the way to this level," Woods said. "When you get to the playoffs you just hope for things to go your way. Yes, I'm surprised to have gotten this far."

Woods said cohesion, not star players, has been the key to Wilmer-Hutchins' success.

"I don't think you can build any team around one or two people," Woods said. "We have some good players, but we really don't have any great players."

Lamar advances to Texaco title game

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Anthony Bledsoe scored 19 of his 21 points in the second half as the Lamar Cardinals rallied to beat Drexel 99-85 Friday night in the opening round game of the Texaco Star Classic.

Lamar (6-3) advanced to Saturday's championship game against the winner of Friday's late game between host San Diego State and Arkansas State.

Daryl Reed added 21 points and nine rebounds for the Cardinals, who overcame a 49-44 halftime deficit.

Lamar scored the first six points of the second half to take a 50-49 lead, and the Dragons (2-7) went scoreless for more than three minutes. The Cardinals increased their edge to 61-55 with five minutes elapsed.

Drexel retook the lead at 68-67 on a three-point play by Arthur Clark. But it was the Dragons' final lead as Lamar went on a 12-0 run for a 79-68 lead with 7:38 to go.

AGGIES: Syracuse transfer plays pivotal role

(From 1B)

After that, Jacoby said the NCAA would meet with school officials "to arrive at the facts in the case. If the allegations appear that there's source and substance to them, then the university will receive a letter if inquiry from the NCAA and a letter will detail the allegations. Then there would be a hearing before the NCAA and after the hearing there would be findings. It could take some time."

Kermit Davis Jr., in his first year as the Aggies coach, told the Syracuse newspaper no rules were violated.

In interviews published Friday, Scott, who is sitting out this season because of his transfer, appeared to recant his story.

"If I said it, it was in a fit of anger," he told the Rochester (N.Y.) Democrat & Chronicle. "There were a lot of misquotes in that (Post-Standard) story.

"It may be true, it may not be true," Scott told The Houston Post. "Whatever went on with the coach (Davis) and Rob Johnson, I don't know. The only thing they did was get me a summer job."

Scott also termed his first semester at Texas A&M a disappointment because of a racist attitude on the campus and little interest in the basketball program.

"There was a time I wish I could have redid everything," he said. "I was looking to put myself in a situation to be the man. Now that I'm there, I don't see that."

The 6-foot-8 forward averaged 5.8 points and 1.9 rebounds for Syracuse last season, starting the Orangemen's three NCAA tournament games. He averaged 29.6 points and 15 rebounds as a senior at Rochester (N.Y.) East High School.

Scott said despite the controversy he plans to return to A&M in January.

Also Friday, the Post-Standard and The Dallas Morning News reported A&M telephone records showed Johnson was in almost daily contact with the school's basketball coaches prior to Scott's transfer.

The Morning News said the records, obtained under the Texas Open Records Act, showed Johnson used a credit card issued by Texas A&M to pay for more than 100 calls from his home to Scott, Davis and assistant coach Fletcher Cockrell.

The Post-Standard said records also show Texas A&M twice paid for Johnson to travel to College Station, paid for him to stay at a hotel during one trip and paid for nearly 600 long-distance telephone calls made from Johnson's apartment in a public housing project in New York.

The calls made from Johnson's home from June through October cost the public university about $1,400, the records show.

Many of the calls were made to players and coaches at Syracuse.

Syracuse officials mum

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Syracuse officials were mum Friday on alleged improprieties in the school's basketball program as a newspaper questioned the recruitment of LeRon Ellis, the team's starting center, and former center George Papadakos.

In a story stemming from its seven-month investigation of the Syracuse program, the Syracuse Post-Standard reported Friday that Ellis' father, former NBA player LeRoy Ellis, received a job from a Syracuse alumnus at about the time LeRon Ellis decided to transfer from Kentucky to Syracuse.

And Papadakos, a 7-footer from Toronto, told the Post-Standard that he back-dated his letter of intent to attend Syracuse in 1982 and concocted a story to hide the alleged impropriety.

Friday's story followed by a day a lengthy report in the Post-Standard in which past and current players said they received cash from team boosters, free meals and merchandise from community businessmen and cut-rate automobiles. A former player, Rodney Walker, said a grade was changed so he could play in a key Big East Conference game in 1987.

The school said it would forward the Post-Standard report to the NCAA and cooperate if the association launches an investigation. The NCAA would not say whether it would take any action.

Syracuse coach Jim Boeheim declined to discuss the allegations following the Orangemen's game Thursday night against Towson State. Athletic officials referred telephone calls for comment Friday to university spokesman Robert Hill, who did not return calls.

Syracuse, the nation's top-drawing college basketball team, has been in The Associated Press' national rankings continuously since March 1984, the longest such stretch in the country. This season's team is ranked third.

The Post-Standard said that LeRon Ellis appeared ready to transfer to Nevada-Las Vegas in June 1989 after Kentucky was hit with an NCAA probation blocking the Wildcats from playing in the NCAA tournament for two seasons.

"On the phone he told me he was coming," said UNLV coach Jerry Tarkanian, whose national championship program also is under fire for alleged improprieties. "He told everybody that. He told all our players. He told our coaches that. In fact, his high school coach called and told us that the kid had committed, was coming with us."

But in July 1989, Ellis said he would attend Syracuse instead.

"We were surprised," Tarkanian said.

According to the Post-Standard, Ellis' father received a license about a week later to work as a real estate salesman for The Hicker Co. Inc., a company that does business as the Cardinal Co. in Sherman Oaks, Calif. The Hicker Co.'s owner, George Hicker, was a teammate of Boeheim's at Syracuse during the 1960s.

NCAA rules prohibit a university or a representative from arranging employment for a prospective player's relatives.

Both Ellises denied that the job with Hicker had anything to do with LeRon Ellis' choice of colleges. LeRon Ellis said he did not know of his father's hiring before he committed to Syracuse.

"I had no idea," LeRon said. "He goes, 'By the way, it just so happens that the guy I am going to be working for at the real estate (office), he's a Syracuse alum.' And he goes, 'I didn't tell you because I didn't want it to influence your decision.' "

Boeheim said he also was unaware that Hicker had hired LeRoy Ellis, but he realized immediately the possibility that people would think it had something to do with his successful recruitment of the younger Ellis.

"Somebody is going to say, 'That's how they got LeRon,' " Boeheim remembered thinking at the time.

Papadakos said he could not decide which college to attend during the NCAA's week-long early signing period in November 1982. But he decided at some point within a few weeks of the end of the period, and when he signed the Syracuse letter of intent, he back-dated it to make it appear that he made the deadline.

He said he concocted a story about also signing letters during the November period to attend North Carolina State and Florida and ripping them up when he decided on Syracuse.

"It's true that when I signed (with Syracuse) the signing date was over," said Papadakos, who transferred to Michigan State in 1984 and now is playing professionally in Greece. "No question about it."

Boeheim denied any knowledge of improprieties in the Papadakos signing.

"As far as I know, he signed it on the right day," Boeheim told the Post-Standard.

Syracuse has been a charter member of the Big East since 1979, playing in the conference championship game eight times.

Cunningham is bidding to break the league record of 969 yards rushing by a quarterback set by Bobby Douglass for the Chicago Bears in 1972. Cunningham has 828, and needs 141 in these last two games to erase Douglass' record. He is 162 short of becoming the first quarterback to gain 1,000 yards in a season. Douglass set his mark in a 14-game schedule. Teams now play 16.

Cunningham, the leading passer in the NFC and fourth in the league, has completed 242 of 418 passes (7.9 percent) for 3,150 yards and 27 touchdowns. He's been intercepted only 10 times.

'Gunslinger' shot down

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — Embattled Arkansas-Pine Bluff football coach Archie "Gunslinger" Cooley has either resigned or been fired, according to a published report Friday.

"I cannot confirm or deny anything about that," said B. Alan Sugg, president of the University of Arkansas system. Sugg referred calls to UAPB Chancellor Charles A. Walker, who did not return them.

There was no answer at Cooley's office. His home telephone number is not listed.

Three sources, including two from the UAPB athletic department, who sought anonymity, told the Pine Bluff Commercial that Cooley was out.

Law prevents new buildings from overshadowing common

BOSTON (AP) — Gov. Michael S. Dukakis couldn't stop clouds from blocking the sun over historic Boston Common Friday, but he signed into law a bill to prevent new buildings from shadowing the common for more than one hour a day.

"The good Lord is casting a shadow over us all here, even as I speak," Dukakis said before he signed the bill, standing at the edge of the park.

Commons are found in many New England towns. Boston Common was established in 1634, when the city's first settler, a hermit named William Blackstone, agreed to sell 45 acres to the town of Boston.

Boston Common was first used as a pasture for citizens' animals. Later, it was a training site for the militia and the site of public hangings.

Today, the common is a popular tourist attraction. It's located on Beacon Hill, just below the gold-domed Massachusetts Statehouse.

Senate President William Bulger, who represents parts of Boston, sponsored the bill.

A MANGER FOR A KING

Guided by the Star of Bethlehem, the shepherds and wise men alike found themselves standing before a lowly stable. Could this be the birthplace of the prophesied King of Kings? Amidst the animal sounds, there was the unmistakable cry of a newborn infant. They slowly entered, still puzzled by the strange scene before them. There they found the baby Jesus in the arms of Mary, His mother, next to a manger bed filled with straw.

Yet, this infant would grow to be called the Son of God . . . the Prince of Peace. Jesus would teach forgiveness and love, not retribution and hate.

As you worship this Christmas season, may the words of the angel of the Lord ring in your heart:

"For unto you is born this day . . . a Savior who is Christ the Lord."

RELIGION

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Adventists' entry stresses peace

"Playing In Peace" is the theme of the Seventh-day Adventist entry in the Rose Parade, held annually at Pasadena, Calif. on New Year's Day.

The church's float in the Tournament of Roses will feature children of all races as Hummel-like characters, created by a Disney artist, standing 15 feet tall on a display 25 feet high, 55 feet long and 18 feet wide.

The Adventist academy and college students, working under the direction of a professional Rose Parade floral designer, is decorating the exhibition with 50,000 roses.

One child from each of the nine unions in the North American Division will ride in the parade. Jeremy Jensen, an 11-year-old Texan, is representing the local churches.

Pathfinders (youths aged 10-15) of the Midland Seventh-day Adventist Church and all across the nation are working to raise funds to help pay for this float. Neighbors and friends are invited to watch for float number 47 on New Year's Day.

Eve services scheduled

St. Paul's Anglican Church (American Episcopal), 3001 W. Golf Course Road, will celebrate the anniversary of the birth of Christ with the annual Christmas Eve Holy Eucharist beginning at 11 p.m. Monday. The traditional liturgy for the service has been used by Anglicans throughout the world for some 400 years.

This special observation will conclude the service with a candlelight recessional by the congregation. The public is invited to join in this worship.

A Christmas Day Family service is scheduled for Christmas morning beginning at 10:30 at the church to which the public is invited.

St. Mark's United Methodist Church, 1701 N. Main St., has scheduled a Christmas Eve service for 6 p.m. Monday, in the church sanctuary.

Carol singing will be followed by a candlelight service of Holy Communion. Informal visiting and refreshments are planned in the Fellowship Hall after the benediction.

Visitors and newcomers to the Midland area are welcome.

Trinity Presbyterian Church, 2800 W. Louisiana, has scheduled two special services on Christmas Eve.

A 7:30 p.m. service is designed to appeal to families with younger children. The program will feature Christmas carols, a candlelighting ceremony and active participation by children of the congregation. A nursery will be provided for this service.

The 11:30 p.m. service will be a more traditional worship service which will include Christmas carols as well as an open communion service.

The public is invited to attend either service.

Midland Lutheran Church, 2705 W. Michigan, will hold its annual Christmas Eve Candlelight Service at 7 p.m. Monday. This family-oriented service will include many traditional Christmas hymns for congregational singing.

On Christmas Day at 10 a.m., Midland Lutheran will celebrate the holiday with Holy Communion.

The public is welcome at both of these services.

More information about this or other Midland Lutheran programs may be obtained from Pastor Ron Meyer or the church office at 694-1373.

Bethel United Methodist Church will celebrate Christmas Eve with a special candlelight service 7 p.m. Monday. The new congregation meets in the Alamo YMCA, 901 Midland Drive.

K.C. Blackketter, pastor, will share a meditation on the question, "Why did God come as a child?" As part of the special music, Janene Amyx will play the French horn. At the close of the service, candles will be lighted.

A special focus of the service will be an offering for AMOS (Area Methodist Outreach Service). AMOS serves the community by offering food, clothing and other assistance to those in need.

The offering request is not for money but for grocery items. Canned soup, children's clothes, paper goods and toiletries are greatly needed at AMOS at this time.

The public is invited to attend. Casual dress is appropriate. For more information please call 682-2626.

Due to this special service on Monday evening, Bethel will not hold the regular Sunday evening service. Families are encouraged to use this opportunity as a special time for ministry focusing on the family before Christmas Eve.

The climax of the Advent season at St. Luke's United Methodist Church, 3011 W. Kansas, will be the celebration of two similar but contrasting Christmas Eve Holy Communion services. The first service will be at 5:30 p.m. in the sanctuary with lessons, carols and holy communion. A special reading of the Christmas story will be shared with the children present. Dr. Sharp, senior pastor, will deliver the sermon. Bert Bostic will sing the Bach/Gounod setting of "Ave Maria" and several other selections during the serving of Communion.

The 11 p.m. service will also be a lesson and carols service with Sharp preaching and the combined chapel and chancel choirs singing the Paul Sjolund's setting of "Silent Night." Soloists for the service include Linda Fox, soprano, singing "Gesu Bambino" by Pietro Yon and Don McCartney, bass, singing "Sweet Little Jesus Boy" by Robert MacGimsey. Additional flue and guitar accompaniments will be provided by Jerri Young, Ann Parker, and Doc Weathers. The service will end with a traditional candlelighting ceremony bringing in Christmas Day.

Everyone is invited to these special celebrations.

Christmas program set

"Jesus — Name of Wondrous Love" will be the Christmas program of song and narration for the Midland I Ward of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints at 2:50 p.m. Sunday, in the chapel at 4805 Gateway Street.

A quartet of Ruth Keller, Tony McClain, Kim Gilland and Coleen John will sing "Star Bright." Darla Bushman will direct the choir, Kim Gilland will accompany on the piano, Debbie Rowland will play the violin, and Bruce Williams will narrate. Solos will be performed by Tony McClain and Stephanie Bushman.

Visitors are welcome.

Youth minister honored

Robert Parham, youth minister at Golf Course Road Church of Christ, 3500 W. Golf Course, has been commended for 10 years of meritorious service with the church.

One activity is related to Parham's dedication to underprivileged children. Since the summer of 1980, he has organized a group of young people to work as counselors in "Opportunity Camp" in Felton, Calif. In 1990, a dream was realized when he held the first "Permian Basin Opportunity Camp." Two "Op Camps" are planned for 1991.

Parham has served as director of the Permian Basin Christian Camp since 1982 and has organized both junior and senior sessions every year since then.

Soviets request special

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — At the request of Soviet television officials, the Christian Broadcasting Network is providing 27 regional networks there with a 30-minute special on the meaning of Christmas.

Michael Little, a CBN vice president, said Soviet officials asked for the special on the historical, biblical aspect of Christ's birth "to explain to their Soviet auidience what Christmas is all about."

The host of the show will be CBN's founder and president, Pat Robertson.

He said that the Soviet networks also will broadcast another CBN special, "Don't Ask Me, Ask God," in January and that a CBN animated Bible series, "Superbook," currently airs weekly in the Soviet Union.

NCC statement attacked

NEW YORK (AP) — Reform Jewish leaders say the National Council of Churches "caused us great pain" by a statement equating Iraq's invasion of Kuwait with Israel's relationship with Palestinians.

This "plays into the hands of Saddam Hussein and his effort to escape responsibility for the rape of Kuwait," the interreligious affairs committee of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations said in an open letter.

Jesus' birth date unknown, professor says

FORT WORTH — Despite the Dec. 25 celebration of Jesus' birth throughout the centuries, a Texas Christian University religion professor says the exact date of his birth is unknown.

"Nobody knows, and the Christian community has never really claimed to know," said Dr. Eugene Boring in a news release.

While historians do not doubt that Jesus was born, Boring explained that, by the time people became interested in knowing exactly when the birth occurred, the information was so woven into church theology that it was irrecoverable.

In the past, people have sought to explain the biblical birth accounts through reason, Boring said. "They have thought that Jesus could not have been born on Dec. 25 because there was mention of shepherds being in the fields, and shepherds aren't in the fields in December," he said.

Boring suggested that when early Christians became interested in celebrating Jesus' birth, they sought to celebrate the event rather than the actual date. The Saturnalia, a Dec. 25 festival in the Roman world at that time, celebrated the rebirth of light and warmth following the winter solstice.

After Christianity became the legal religion in the 4th century under the Roman Emperor Constantine, Boring said the church was looking for ways to promote its faith.

Considering the strong paganism still present, Boring believes the church made a good tactical move in adapting the Saturnalia festival to a Christian holiday rather than trying to stamp out the event.

The Bible scholar noted that the adoption of Saturnalia as a religious celebration is a good illustration of the church's taking over the things that are already in its environment in order to interpret the meaning of the Christian faith.

Churches helping to heal Chernobyl's children

By George W. Cornell
AP Religion Writer

Gradually now comes the hurt to the children of Chernobyl. As the silent, hidden blight starts appearing, they're beginning to get help from scattered groups of American Christians.

"The situation is bad, and it's going to get worse," said the Rev. Paul S. Moore, whose New York City radio ministry, CitiHope, is raising money for medical supplies.

"In a real way, it means giving children back their lives," he said.

A threatening shadow fell over inhabitants of the Ukraine and Byelorussia after the fiery rupture of a Soviet nuclear plant on April 26, 1986, at Chernobyl filled the atmosphere with radioactive particles.

But only lately has the extent of the effects of that accident begun to appear, with the impact increasing with time.

Pyotr K. Kravchanka, foreign affairs minister of the Byelorussian republic on which 70 percent of the contamination settled, said that at the outset the resulting volume of cancer and related cases could not be predicted.

"We are now seeing only the beginning stage," he said in an interview, citing a doubling of thyroid ailments among children, a sevenfold increase in anemia cases and a rise in leukemia cases.

"The peak volume of sickness has not yet come," he said. Scientists project the mounting toll will hit its high point in 1996-97, he said, but treatment is severely limited by a lack of medicine and diagnostic equipment.

A fifth of Byelorussia's population, or 2.2 million people, including 800,000 children, "have become innocent victims of Chernobyl," the "hostages of postponed effects of radiation," he told the United Nations General Assembly.

As the disaster's effects grow, several small, independent American religious and other groups, as well as ethnic communities of Byelorussians and Ukrainians in some cities, have begun limited steps to provide medical aid.

A catalyzing influence for such efforts resulted from Moore's visit in September to Minsk, capital of Byelorussia, where he observed firsthand the spreading marks of radiation to which children are most vulnerable.

"You can't realize the gravity of it until you experience it, until flesh touches your flesh and you go through the hospitals with the doctors and see the wasting bodies of the children," he said. "Most Americans are not aware of the extent of the implications now and in the future."

He said he was told 37,000 Byelorussian children are being treated for pre-cancerous conditions, with more cases diagnosed daily. But, he added, the supply of medicine is so inadequate that only 15 percent can be saved, compared to the 85 percent who could be saved with sufficient medicine.

Soviet pharmaceutical supplies, limited and chiefly from East Germany, were said to have been disrupted by German reunification.

Moore, also an assistant minister at St. George's Church in Manhattan, said that through sponsorships enlisted on his radio ministry, his project so far has supplied $650,000 worth of methotrexate and other anti-cancer drugs and vitamins.

He said that as a result, treatment has been started on 400 Byelorussian children, and that by early January, he expects to have rounded up enough medicine to increase that number to 1,000.

Moore said pharmaceutical companies will provide the drugs for such charitable purposes at 5 percent of costs, meaning that the usual cost of $4,000 to $5,000 for two or three years of treatment to bring a cancerous condition into remission is reduced to $100 to $200 per child.

In Richmond, Va., the Rev. Paul F. McCleary, director of the Christian Children's Fund, said his group began sending aid to the Soviets as a result of a fact-finding trip with a Virginia medical team to Minsk in mid-November.

"It's a very grave situation," he said, adding that a pre-Christmas shipment of medicine was being assembled.

Mount's cross center of dispute

N.Y. Times News Service

If there is a cross atop a mountain near a city, is it appropriate for the symbol to appear on official vehicles and uniforms in that city? Or is the use of the cross, and maybe even the cross itself, an unconstitutional endorsement of religion?

Those are some of the questions before a federal judge in California who is hearing two lawsuits about a tall concrete cross on Mount Helix in San Diego County.

The case began last year after the police and fire departments of La Mesa, Calif., changed their insignia to give new prominence to the cross on the nearby mountain. The cross had occupied a much smaller place on the previous emblem, which remains the seal of the City of La Mesa.

Betty Wheeler, the legal director of the American Civil Liberties Union chapter in San Diego and Imperial counties, said that once her office decided to challenge the new insignia it also decided to tackle the separate question of the constitutionality of the cross itself.

In the past, federal judges have handed down a variety of rulings on the display of such religious holiday symbols as nativity scenes and menorahs on public property.

Some judges have allowed them to stand and others have ordered them removed, often depending on whether they were deemed religious or seasonal displays.

Navy goes public in campaign for stealth plane

NATION

WASHINGTON (AP) — Navy officials, hoping to overcome a wave of damaging revelations about its A-12 stealth attack plane, launched a public campaign Friday to rescue the $50 billion program.

Navy officials went public with arguments for continuing the development program, which is classified secret, just two weeks before Defense Secretary Dick Cheney's target date for deciding whether to cancel it.

In a move that underscored the economic stakes involved, the companies holding a $4.8 billion contract to build the first A-12 prototypes — General Dynamics Corp. and McDonnell Douglas Corp. — announced Thursday they were notifying about 8,000 workers that they could lose their jobs if the project is killed.

And on Friday General Dynamics announced a shakeup of its A-12 management. It reassigned the A-12 program director, Charles Anderson. His replacement is Ted Webb, the former head of the successful F-16 fighter jet program, who retired last year.

The contractors were ordered by the Navy last week to correct the project's flaws by Jan. 2 or face the possibility of being held in default of the contract terms. The Navy cited a failure to supply parts on time for final assembly of the prototypes, and it questioned whether the A-12 design was suitable.

Cheney has given the Navy until Jan. 4 to "show cause" why he shouldn't terminate the entire project, whose schedule delays and cost overruns he called "intolerable." Cheney nonetheless said he remains convinced that a new carrier-based attack plane with radar-evading capabilities is urgently needed.

The Navy calls the A-12 its top priority in weapons development. The aircraft, dubbed the Avenger after the World War II fighter, is supposed to replace the A-6 Intruder, a carrier-based attack plane that the Navy says is growing obsolete.

Capt. Mike Currie, who is responsible for ensuring that the A-12 now on the drawing boards is produced according to the Navy's specifications, told the Association of Naval Aviation on Friday that the plane is vital to U.S. security interests.

"It's not a matter of wanting a new gee-whiz airplane," he said. "We just need more airplanes."

Vice Adm. R.M. Dunleavy, the Navy's air warfare chief, introduced Currie's presentation to the aviator's group by telling the friendly audience "The future of naval aviation is at a crossroads. We need the A-12 — you've got to believe that."

Neither Dunleavy nor Currie would comment on the economic and other controversies surrounding the A-12, including the recent firing of the Navy admiral in charge of the program and the disclosure that the program is the focus of a criminal investigation.

Currie said in an interview on Thursday that the Navy was eager to publicly build a case for continuing the A-12 project, which already is at least $1 billion over budget and 18 months behind schedule. There also are questions about whether the contractors can build the aircraft to Navy specifications.

A key technical problem is limiting the weight of the aircraft while making it sturdy enough to withstand the pressures of landings on aircraft carriers.

Currie said the A-6 lacks the speed, maneuverability and radar-evading technologies to survive against the "projected threat," a euphemism for the Pentagon's secret forecast of how effective future Soviet air defenses may be.

He said 90 A-6s are deployed in the Persian Gulf area as part of Operation Desert Shield.

Computer models show that the A-12 is the best — though also the most expensive — of several possible successors to the A-6, Currie said. It also is the only one under active development.

"Of course airplanes are always better on paper," he said, adding "I'll believe it when I see it."

Near record cold makes life difficult for people, animals

Frank Bertrand of Hot Sulphur Springs, Colo., sleeps on the floor of the Denver bus terminal as he waits with other passengers for a Greyhound bus. More than 200 passengers were stranded at the bus station overnight because of weather conditions.

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Ranchers broke up ice in cattle troughs and workers stayed busy repairing brittle rail, telephone and plumbing lines as record low temperatures gripped northern and central Nevada on Friday.

The Arctic storm that chilled Western states most of the week pushed temperatures in Reno to minus 7, snapping a 22-year record of 3 degrees below zero.

"Pretty near froze to death out there this morning," said Bob Wallis, who works at the Blue Diamond Ranch in Eureka, where Friday's low plunged to minus 12 degrees.

Even after 40 years of range roaming, "you never get used to that," Wallis said.

Wallis said that despite the cold, the cowboys at the 6,000-head ranch were checking the cattle's health each day.

"They get pneumonia and stuff when it gets this cold, and we go out and doctor them," he said. "That's all I do is doctor."

Others were keeping the herd stocked with fodder and breaking up icebergs that formed in water troughs, he said.

In Reno, even thick-furred Malamute dogs balked at going outside.

Plumbers reported a brisk business.

"We're all booked up," said a dispatcher at ABC Plumbing.

While plumbers scrounged around in flooded basements, the cold slowed down telephone workers installing lines for special teenager gab phones that parents had ordered for Christmas.

"Being as cold as it is, nothing works," said Kelly Sanford of Nevada Bell.

Experts predict up to 480 deaths over Christmas

CHICAGO (AP) — Safety experts on Friday projected between 380 and 480 people will die in traffic accidents on U.S. highways during the four-day Christmas holiday.

The National Safety Council each year estimates the number of holiday traffic fatalities for the heavily traveled holiday period, which began at 6 p.m. Friday and ends at 11:59 p.m. Tuesday.

Last year, 372 people died during the three-day Christmas holiday.

This year's projection is higher because Christmas falls on a Tuesday, extending the holiday period an additional day, said council statistician Terry Miller.

Safety officials say the death toll could be lower than in previous four-day Christmas periods because high gasoline prices may deter people from making long car trips or from going to social events.

How to get through the Ho-Ho-Holidays without dashing to the Ho-Ho-Hospital

'Tis the season of good cheer, family gatherings and, unfortunately, Yuletide visits to the hospital emergency room. For children, the holidays are among the most hazardous of times. Many joyous traditions and activities are just plain dangerous for youngsters.

If you have young children, please heed these suggestions from our Emergency Department staff for making the holiday season safer.

☑ Kiss the mistletoe goodbye.
If you traditionally hang greenery around the house, choose foliage that isn't toxic. This definitely eliminates mistletoe, a poisonous shrub which too often becomes a dangerous holiday snack for the very young. Decorate with plastic plants. Or hang spinach. No kid will eat that.

☑ Keep a good head on their shoulders.
Even better than safe gifts are gifts that promote safety. A good example (and an excellent gift for cyclists) is a helmet. Statistics show that safety-approved helmets are effective in preventing head injuries. A bicycle or motor-driven vehicle should never be given without one.

☑ No kids under the tree.
Since children like to chew on Christmas tree ornaments, avoid using the thin glass variety, which can break when bitten. Ornament hooks also pose a threat for toddlers. A good practice is to keep kids away from the tree. Consider standing it in the playpen. Or settle for a small tree that can be placed on a tabletop, out of reach.

☑ A sobering fact about kids and alcohol.
If you serve alcohol, don't leave glasses with left-over drinks sitting around. A child who sips alcohol can suffer alcohol poisoning and it may be fatal.

☑ Keep small fries out of the kitchen.
When there's cooking going on, keep children out of the kitchen or away from the outdoor grill. Burns and scalds are a constant threat and are among the most serious and difficult-to-treat injuries.

☑ The serious side of child's play.
Inspect all children's gifts to make sure they don't present a choking hazard for the very young. Also, take care to keep older kids' toys away from toddlers. Remember, there are approved toys on the market which are still unsafe. It's up to you to keep them away from your child.

☑ Don't light the tree.
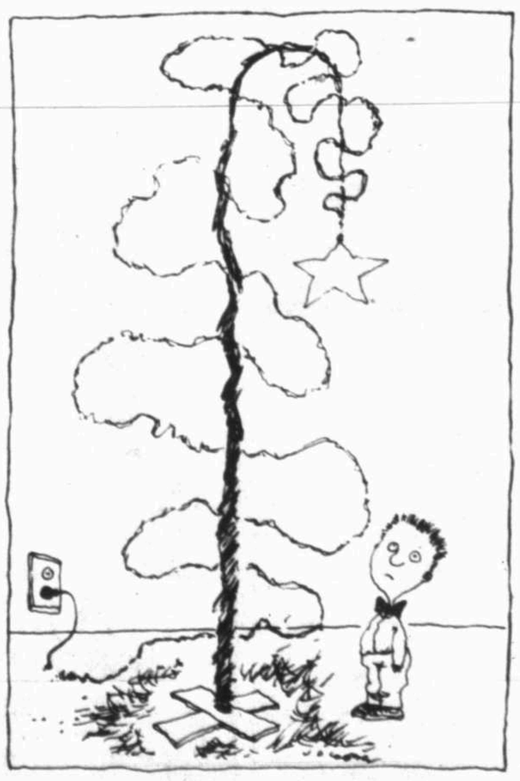
Sadly, Christmas tree fires are a traditional tragedy. To minimize the risk, stand the tree in water to keep it from drying out. And turn the lights off any time you leave home and every night at bedtime.



From all of us at Cook-Fort Worth Children's Medical Center, may your holidays be joyous, safe, and filled with good cheer.

Bail refused for John Gotti

NEW YORK (AP) — Reputed crime boss John Gotti was denied bail Friday and will spend Christmas in jail while facing charges of murder, racketeering and conspiracy.

Gotti

U.S. District Judge I. Leo Glasser of Brooklyn decided against bail after a three-hour closed hearing.

During the proceeding, prosecutors played secretly recorded tapes they say show Gotti and his two co-defendants are a threat to the public and should be held without bail.

Glasser reopened the courtroom after the hearing to announce his ruling.

"I have concluded that the government has sustained its burden by clear and conclusive evidence," Glasser said. "There are no conditions of release that would reasonably assure the safety of any other person in the community."

Gotti, 50, and his co-defendants, alleged underboss Frank Locascio, 58, and reputed mob counselor Salvatore Gravano, 45, have been jailed since Dec. 11. Federal agents arrested them on murder, racketeering and conspiracy charges.

Law enforcers described the three as the leaders of the Gambino crime family, reputedly the most powerful criminal syndicate in the country.

A hearing was set for Jan. 18.

Media lawyers had argued for an open hearing, noting Gotti has been acquitted of crimes three times in the past five years despite media coverage. His acquittals have earned him the nickname "the Teflon Don."

Prosecutors allege Gotti engineered the slaying of his predecessor, Paul Castellano, to seize control of the Gambino crime family.

National GOP party needs cash

WASHINGTON — The National Republican Committee knows what it wants for Christmas and the New Year: new donors.

After a decade in which the GOP broke the records for national fund-raising, the party's national committee is laying off a quarter of its staffers and staring at contributions that are down millions of dollars from 1986, the last off-year elections.

Conservatives blame the dearth in giving on President Bush's decision to abandon his no-new-tax pledge during the budget battles shortly before the fall elections.

"Republicans just became absolutely distressed with that whole budget fiasco," said Republican political consultant Eddie Mahe.

Contributors who've sent funds every election year in the 1980s were disheartened to discover that "we end up the decade with an astronomical tax increase," said Mahe.

"There's no good feeling about sending more money to Washington," he added.

House Republican Whip Newt Gingrich of Georgia said he was not surprised at the drop in party receipts. "If you raise taxes, why would you think that contributions would come in?" he said.

Persistent vegetative state tough for family

NEW YORK (AP) — Their eyes are open and move about, sometimes reacting to sound. They may grimace, smack their lips and seem to smile. They sleep and wake up.

But they are permanently unconscious.

The deceptively alert-looking behavior makes it hard for families to accept the "persistent vegetative state" that envelops Nancy Cruzan and perhaps 10,000 other Americans.

"They're just as unconscious as patients in a coma," in which eyes are closed and the patient cannot be aroused, said Dr. Ron Cranford, an expert on persistent vegetative states.

"It looks like they're perfectly normal. . . . So it's very hard on the family and health care providers to accept the fact that they're not there."

It takes months or years for a family to come to terms with that and the lack of hope for recovery, said Cranford, a neurologist at the Hennepin County Medical Center in Minneapolis.

The patient's movements are simply reflexes. The patients have permanent brain damage that prevents consciousness, Cranford said.

A vegetative state is called persistent if there is no hope of recovery. A person may still recover fully after six months to a year in a vegetative state if it was caused by a head injury, especially in children, Cranford said.

Merchants arm themselves in fear of shotgun killer

PORTAGE, Ind. (AP) — A police task force worked Friday to narrow a list of suspects in seven shotgun slayings in northwest Indiana, where merchants are arming, schools are locking doors and fear has spoiled Christmas for many.

Police are putting out extra patrols to protect vulnerable late-night businesses in this small town, where two of the killings occurred last week, the latest in the string of slayings that began Oct. 30.

The latest victims are two brothers who were killed Tuesday in a tailor shop.

All the attacks — shotgun blasts at close range — have occurred in late afternoon or after dark within a 20-mile radius of Gary, a blue-collar industrial city about 10 miles west of Portage.

Two victims were killed at gasoline stations, another at a motel desk, another near a bank cash station, one in a parking lot, and two at the tailor shop.

"They don't know when he's going to hit next, if he's going to hit again," said Karen Klenk, general manager of Lees Inn of Portage.

Mrs. Klenk has doubled night clerks and advised them to be extra cautious with late-night visitors to the motel, which is less than a mile from the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge where a desk clerk was killed Dec. 15.

Several Gary-area elementary schools kept their doors locked during classes this week, but Mrs. Klenk and other area residents say there's no real protection against sudden violence.

Gary Stasik, manager of a Portage gasoline station, said he is "angered at the person out there, the SOB who is trying to ruin people's lives, ruin people's Christmas, ruin the lives of the survivors."

Investigators believe one man is responsible for all the killings.

The first victim was a Hammond man who was gunned down Oct. 30 in a parking lot in Griffith. One other person was killed that night, a woman who was closing a Cedar Lake gasoline station, and two others were shot at but missed.

Police from northwest Indiana joined the Indiana State Police and FBI investigators in a task force of more than 30 investigators on Dec. 14.

Since then, hundreds of tips have poured in, said Portage police Sgt. Warren Lewis, spokesman for the task force.

Police are focusing on several suspects, Lewis said, but he declined to give any details.

Police believe the assailant is a man somewhere between 20 and 35 years old who drives a boxy white car. He may have suffered recent emotional trauma, Lewis said.

Police released a composite sketch and psychological profile that says friends or relatives might recognize him by a recent change in his life or comments he has made about the killings.

Experts in the Lake County crime lab are examining shotgun shells left behind at the scenes of four slayings to determine whether all were fired from the same gun.

Dr. Daniel Thomas, Lake County coroner, has said the shells show "definite similarities."

"My kids have been after me to close up over here, especially after this," said Fran Ostrowski, owner of Fran's Jewelry. "But I like to work. I hope I'm not pushing it."

Mrs. Ostrowski runs the business with her husband, Ray. They have kept guns in their small store since they opened 10 years ago in a neighborhood now checkered by vacant windows and boarded-up shops.

Ron Watson, left, and Robert Ribicki, owners of a pawn shop in Gary, Inc., are shown wearing pistols while working in their shop recently. Some residents in northwestern Indiana have started wearing guns and avoid going out at night after a string of seven shotgun slayings, which began Oct. 30.

NATION IN BRIEF

Court upholds deaf conviction

MADISON, Wis., (NYT) — The Wisconsin Supreme Court decided Thursday that a Wisconsin sheriff's deputy acted legally when she seized the printout of a private telephone conversation that was later used to convict a deaf man of first-degree murder.

In upholding the 1987 conviction of Robert Rewolinski, the court ruled, 4 to 3, that neither Rewolinski nor anyone else has a constitutional right to make private calls on police phones.

Rewolinski, a 40-year-old resident of Prescott, a small city in western Wisconsin 12 miles southeast of St. Paul, was stopped by the police for driving with a suspended license in June 1987.

At the Pierce County sheriff's office he used a telecommunications device for the deaf to ask Catherine Teeters, a deaf woman with whom he was living, for a ride home.

In the call, Ms. Teeters made him promise that he would not hurt her or her two children. "I am scared to death that you will make us die in a car accident," she said.

Barge allowed to pass

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Choppy water prevented a salvage team from reaching a sunken scrap barge Friday, as a result continuing to threaten ship traffic in part of the country's busiest inland port.

The Coast Guard opened 4 miles of the Allegheny River to a coal barge but said the waterway would remain closed to most ships, especially tankers carrying fuel or other liquids, until the rusty craft was located.

"That coal barge is going through at its own risk, and if he were to dump the load of coal in the river it wouldn't be significant environmental damage," said Lt. Cmdr. Rhea Giacoma.

An Azcon Scrap salvage crew Friday afternoon suspended the search for the barge until Saturday because of rough water about 4 miles northeast of downtown Pittsburgh near the Highland Park Dam.

The crew was confident the barge was below the dam Friday because of an unusual current about 40 feet from the river's north bank, said Richard Spine, Azcon's executive vice president.

An undertow prevented divers from going underwater and a strong surface current prevented the search tugboat from getting near enough to drag the river at that spot, he said.

Protesters lose round

PHOENIX (AP) — A judge Friday refused to grant a separate trial for Earth First! co-founder David Foreman, one of five militant environmentalists accused of plotting attacks on nuclear power plants.

Foreman and the others are charged with conspiring to sabotage a nuclear power plant and destruction of an energy facility.

But Foreman's attorney argued Friday that his client did not know about additional actions of the other four and should be tried separately.

Defense attorney Gary Spence said the bulk of the charges against Foreman stemmed from the distribution of a book he had edited and published entitled "Ecodefense: A Field Guide to Monkeywrenching."

Foreman helped found Earth First! 10 years ago and resigned from the organization last summer.

U.S. District Judge Robert Broomfield rejected Spence's argument and arraigned the other four defendants, who face additional charges of malicious destruction of property, destruction of property of an energy facility and depredation of government property.

Globe to trim force

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Globe, citing declines in advertising, announced it will reduce its work force by 100 full-time positions through attrition over the next five years.

The 100 positions represent about 5 percent of the full-time staff at the Globe, which employs 2,075 full-time and 500 part-time workers.

"We are experiencing the same economic forces affecting other companies," said William O. Taylor, publisher of the Globe and chairman of the newspaper's parent company, Affiliated Publications Inc.

"Advertising is down significantly this year, and the outlook is cautious at best," he said. "We think this is the least painful way to address the need to be as cost-effective as we can for the future."

The attrition program is another step in an overall cost-cutting effort at the Globe, which began budget cuts in the spring of 1988. It has also included reductions in department expenditures and in hours of some part-time staff.

Last week, Taylor said he expected earnings to be down significantly at Affiliated Publications.

Gorbachev meets with Shevardnadze

MOSCOW (AP) — President Mikhail S. Gorbachev met with Eduard Shevardnadze Friday, reportedly to discuss some way of keeping his longtime ally in the government following his sudden resignation as foreign minister.

In parliament, reformers turned Shevardnadze's unexpected resignation into a rallying cry. A parade of speakers echoed the 62-year-old diplomat's warning that hard-liners were pushing the country toward dictatorship.

Gorbachev talked privately with Shevardnadze for two hours about the Persian Gulf crisis and conventional arms reductions in Europe, presidential spokesman Vitaly Ignatenko told reporters.

Ignatenko called the session "an ordinary meeting between the president and his foreign minister," the independent Interfax news agency said.

Presidential aide Georgi Shakhnazarov said Gorbachev also had planned to ask Shevardnadze why he resigned: "Was it political motives, or personal motives? And depending on the answers, it would be possible to decide whether to ask him to continue working in that role, or in another role, or to agree on something else."

It was not clear whether Gorbachev intended to ask Shevardnadze to continue as foreign minister or to take another post. A Shevardnadze aide said Thursday the resignation was "irreversible."

Earlier Friday, Tass quoted Shakhnazarov as saying Shevardnadze would stay "on Gorbachev's team," but offered no other details.

There was no further word late Friday about the meeting or whether Gorbachev had reached any decision about the foreign minister's job. Shevardnadze made no public comment.

It also was not known whether Shevardnadze would take part in a Moscow arms control summit Feb. 11-13 between Gorbachev and President Bush.

On Thursday, Shevardnadze stunned Gorbachev, the parliament and the world community by resigning.

In what he called "the briefest and most difficult speech of my life," Shevardnadze said reformers had "gone and hidden in the bushes" and "dictatorship is coming."

"No one knows what kind of dictatorship it will be, what kind of dictator will come, and what order things will take," Shevardnadze said.

His resignation prompted worldwide concern over the future of reform in the Soviet Union.

Hard-liners have urged Gorbachev to impose a state of emergency in republics ridden by ethnic conflict and separatist movements. Gorbachev has asked the Congress to consider constitutional amendments to strengthen his power to deal with such trouble spots.

The hard-liners also had criticized Soviet endorsement of a U.N. resolution on the use of force in the gulf, but their main criticism was over domestic issues.

A Ukrainian lawmaker shook up the 2,250-member Congress of People's Deputies Friday afternoon by saying a "right-wing reactionary coup" was brewing.

"Reactionaries, centralists, and imperialists have united and are on the attack," lawmaker Vladimir Chernyak said. "At the head of the coup stands Gorbachev. It's possible he himself doesn't know it. By demanding for himself more and more powers, he is creating the legal basis for a dictatorship."

Chernyak, an economist elected from Kiev, said hard-liners already have succeeded in forcing Shevardnadze and former Interior Minister Vadim Bakatin from their jobs.

Soviet Jews flee to Israel

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel announced Friday it was using every available plane and even allowing flights on the Jewish Sabbath to bring in a new wave of Soviet Jews who fear political turmoil in their homeland.

The number of Soviet Jews immigrating to Israel — already at its highest level in decades — has nearly doubled in the past three days, officials said.

Officials expect as many as 6,000 to arrive between Thursday and Sunday.

"No doubt the growing wave is in part a response to the worsening situation in the Soviet Union and the debilitation of the government," said Jewish Agency chairman Simcha Dinitz. The Jewish Agency oversees immigration.

Apprehensions grew after Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze resigned Thursday and said in his farewell speech that the Soviet Union was moving toward a dictatorship.

Transportation Minister Moshe Katzav gave special permission to maintain the airlift over the weekend. Flying violates the Jewish Sabbath, the biblical day of rest that runs from sundown Friday until sundown Saturday.

Three El Al planes headed Friday night for transit points in Warsaw, Bucharest and Budapest and were to return early Saturday with 750 Soviet immigrants.

Four planes from the national carrier are scheduled to fly on Saturday to the European points to pick up more immigrants.

Study warns of Soviet economy's collapse

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — President Mikhail S. Gorbachev must quickly speed up the pace of reforms in the Soviet Union or risk economic collapse, a ground-breaking study by four leading Western financial institutions warned Friday.

The study, the most comprehensive ever undertaken in the West, portrayed the Soviet Union as a crumbling giant whose economy is caught between discredited policies of the past and a yet-to-be-imposed free market system.

"The imperative is to make sufficient progress at the beginning so that reform is seen as an irreversible break with the past and the process gains unstoppable momentum," it said.

The 51-page document was prepared by the International Monetary Fund, the World Bank, the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development and the newly created European Bank for Reconstruction and Development.

It had been ordered by President Bush and the leaders of the world's other industrialized nations at their most recent annual summit in Houston last July.

It warns that Gorbachev faces an "enormous task" of jump-starting inefficient and unproductive sectors of the Soviet economy. It also cautions that accelerating reform will bring even greater short-term hardship in a country where there are already food shortages.

A woman peers into a cold storage cabinet Friday in a state-run food shop in Moscow, where there is nothing to buy. Instead of food, plastic bags with the Soviet symbol are displayed. A comprehensive economic study released Friday by Western financial institutions warns that the Soviet leader must speed up the pace of reforms or risk economic collapse.

AP Laserphoto

"The necessary economic reform program cannot be implemented without an initial decline in output and employment," the study says. "But delays in implementation would lead to an even larger and longer decline."

Specifically, the study calls for quickly moving away from failed central planning of the economy and shifting rapidly to a market economy.

It rejects a massive infusion of foreign financial assistance, but says that the world could provide humanitarian aid to help Soviets get through food shortages during this winter — "provided that distributional problems can be solved." That finding represents a victory for the Bush administration, which for months has been arguing that large-scale Western aid does not remedy the structural problems with the Soviet economy.

The Kremlin acknowledges that the current food shortage is not a result of low agricultural output, but rather stems from an inefficient system for transporting food throughout the Soviet Union. There is an acute shortage of train cars to carry the food, for example, and theft is also a major problem.

The study said the West can help most by providing technical assistance, which could play a "substantial role" in the transition to a market economy by teaching Soviets about retailing and distributing products. The United States and some European countries have already sent some experts to the Soviet Union to offer advice on how to streamline the economy.

"Immediate new investment" in the energy sector of the economy could also provide a "quick payoff for the U.S.S.R. and the rest of the world," it said. In that regard, the study urges modernization of nuclear power plants, improving the Soviet gas pipeline network and modernizing oil drilling.

Romanians rally on first anniversary of revolution

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Romanians rallied on the first anniversary of the revolution that toppled Communist dictator Nicolae Ceausescu, but the marches were tinged by frustrations over increasing economic hardships.

Rallies in Bucharest and Timisoara, the cradle of last year's revolution, capped a week of protests against Ceausescu's successors. Romanians are frustrated with the lack of improved living standards since 1989.

About 15,000 people gathered in Bucharest's University Square, chanting slogans against President Ion Iliescu. Another 15,000 workers rallied in Timisoara, 300 miles northwest of the capital.

The two weeks prior to the revolution's anniversary have been marked by strikes and protests against the National Salvation Front government.

The Front, which took power during the revolution and won subsequent May elections, faces sliding popularity over its plans to reform the economy that include raising prices on basic goods.

"Illiescu is a liar" and "He will fall, down, down, down," the Bucharest crowd chanted.

In an address Friday to Parliament, Iliescu said the government must press ahead with reforms, despite growing popular opposition.

"We must prove we are ready for ... democracy," Iliescu said, adding that 1991 would be "a decisive year for all our reforms."

On University Square, where police shot and killed demonstrators last Dec. 21, crowds knelt and lighted candles in memory of the uprising's 1,039 dead.

After a minute of silence, the anti-government chants continued.

In Timisoara, protesters also chanted, "Down with Iliescu" and "Down with communism."

About 75,000 industrial workers in Timisoara, where the uprising began Dec. 16, 1989, have been on strike for a week. They rally daily in the city.

Other strikes have included more than 100,000 students and hundreds of professors.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Arabs drop opposition to Israel's U.N. status

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Arab nations let the General Assembly recess its autumn session Friday without making their annual challenge of Israel's membership.

U.N. officials said privately that the Arabs apparently decided to drop the challenge because it would have complicated too many delicate diplomatic arrangements related to the Persian Gulf crisis.

At Washington's urging, Israel has refrained from direct involvement in the crisis, while the United States has accommodated its moderate Arab allies in the anti-Iraq alliance by voting in favor of several Security Council resolutions critical of Israel.

On Thursday, the U.N. Security Council unanimously approved a referendum urging Israel to halt deportation of Palestinians from the occupied West Bank and Gaza.

Liberians agree to talk

BANJUL, Gambia (AP) — Liberia's three warring factions agreed Friday to hold a conference inside that country within 60 days to choose a caretaker government.

The "all-Liberia" conference was announced in a statement at the end of two days of talks in Banjul, Gambia. The talks in this West African country were intended to allow the combatants to negotiate an end to the yearlong civil war, which has left more than 12,000 civilians dead.

The rival parties apparently were unable to agree on anything except the conference at the Gambian talks, which were mediated by the Economic Community of West African States. It was not clear how the meeting was affected by the absence of rebel leader Charles Taylor, who sent only a representative.

The agreement to choose a new interim government put in question the role of a temporary administration already installed in Monrovia, the Liberian capital, under the sponsorship of the West African community.

Chamorro wins out

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Violeta Chamorro, trying to keep peace with her leftist opponents, convinced the legislature Friday to accept a budget limiting cuts for the Sandinista-led army.

But she won lawmakers' support by, among other things, promising to remove the leftist Sandinista army commander, Gen. Humberto Ortega, by 1993.

The legislative vote, following a veto of larger cuts by Mrs. Chamorro, represents a major defeat for conservatives in her coalition. They had fought for greater reductions.

However, Mrs. Chamorro had said that without the concessions to the military, the country could be faced with disturbances.

1 dies in Balkan quake

SALONICA, Greece (AP) — A strong earthquake shook the Balkans early Friday, killing a Greek woman, causing homes to collapse and injuring at least 40 people, authorities and news reports said.

The Salonica Seismological Institute said the temblor measured 5.5 on the Richter scale.

A spokesman at the Salonica institute said more than 30 aftershocks followed the main quake.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are reliable, persevering and traditional. They are acutely aware of the right thing to do and want everyone to know that they did it! These youngsters go to great lengths to please their teachers and parents, and will take their time about leaving the family nest. Although somewhat reserved, these Capricorns love being part of a crowd.

Oprah Winfrey gives $50,000 to buy groceries for the poor

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Talk show host Oprah Winfrey is giving $50,000 to help a church in its annual holiday grocery giveaway to the poor, the church said.

Winfrey

"Because she is a very caring person who reaches out to the poor, she immediately responded," the Rev. Cecil Williams, pastor of Glide Memorial United Methodist Church, said Thursday.

Glide Memorial has distributed thousands of bags of groceries to the poor since 1979. But Williams reported earlier this week that holiday contributions were down 37 percent from 1989 and asked the public for donations.

Winfrey learned of the appeal through poet Maya Angelou, a member of Glide Memorial, and called Williams to say she would be sending a check, the church said.

The church planned to start its holiday giveaway of more than 10,000 bags of groceries today. The church said that while donations have declined, the need for the groceries has risen.

DETROIT (AP) — Now that the United States and the Soviet Union have made up after all these years, Mayor Coleman Young has decided the city can do the same with one of its most famous suburbs.

Young

Young, 72, will head west and Dearborn Mayor Michael Guido, 36, will head east for a one-day job swap as part of the Michigan Municipal League annual Mayor's Exchange Day.

The May affair will underscore the good relationship between Young and Guido, Young spokesman Bob Berg said Friday.

The cities have co-existed uneasily since the early 1920s, when automotive pioneer Henry Ford built the massive Rouge complex in Dearborn. Blacks were hired at the plant but were discouraged from living in the suburb.

Today, only about 5 percent of Dearborn's approximately 100,000 residents are black. More than 70 percent of Detroit's population is black.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The rock band Van Halen filed a federal suit against 2 Live Crew claiming the rap group used a Van Halen guitar riff on their controversial album "As Nasty as They Wanna Be."

The U.S. District Court suit filed this week seeks more than $300,000 for copyright infringement and unfair competition.

At issue is guitarist Eddie Van Halen's famous refrain in the 1978 hit record "Ain't Talkin' 'Bout Love." The suit claims 2 Live Crew used the music for a song called "The Funk Shop" on the rap group's album.

The suit was filed on behalf of Van Halen and Warner-Chappell Music against 2 Live Crew and Luke Records.

Debbie Bennett, spokeswoman for the rap group and Luke Records in Coconut Grove, Fla., was not immediately available Friday for comment on the suit, a receptionist said.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country singer Rodney Crowell says his family celebrates Christmas with a live tree, recycled wrapping paper and by having trees planted for friends instead of sending Christmas cookies.

Crowell

Crowell says 'tis the season to think about stewardship of the Earth, and offered a few tips on how to do so.

The Grammy-award winning singer-songwriter and his wife, singer Roseanne Cash, are among the Nashville music community's most outspoken environmentalists.

Besides planting their own tree in the backyard of their Nashville home after Christmas, Crowell said his family tries to make sure when the tree lights are on, that other lights are off. And he says they use candles as much as possible.

"To acknowledge the beauty of the human spirit, love and the Christ-child part of Christmas to me is about compassion," Crowell said in a recent interview. "When you develop compassion for human beings, it's a trickling off and you develop compassion for plant life and for animal life in the world."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Clarence L. "Kelly" Johnson, creator of Lockheed Corp.'s secret "Skunk Works" that created America's first production jet fighter and a generation of spyplanes, died Friday. He was 80.

Johnson

Johnson, who led the design of the U-2, the SR-71 Blackbird and more than 40 other airplanes and spacecraft, died at St. Joseph Medical Center in Burbank after a long illness, Lockheed said. The illness was not disclosed.

Using titanium and sleek shapes, Johnson's designs broke the "thermal thicket," the high-heat problem of supersonic flight.

PERSIAN GULF CRISIS

Rented boat sinks, killing 2 U.S. sailors

HAIFA, Israel (AP) — A rented Israeli boat capsized in rough seas off Haifa early Saturday while ferrying about U.S. 100 sailors back from shore leave to the aircraft carrier USS Saratoga. At least two seamen drowned, and 25 sailors were reported missing, authorities said.

At least 33 sailors were taken to Israeli hospitals for treatment, an Israeli doctor said. Police gunboats, helicopters and rescue vessels, which plucked another 42 seamen from the water and took them on to the Saratoga, continued scouring Haifa Bay before dawn.

An estimated 1,650 American servicemen from the Saratoga and at least three escort ships disembarked at Haifa Friday for Christmas leave, a U.S. spokesman said.

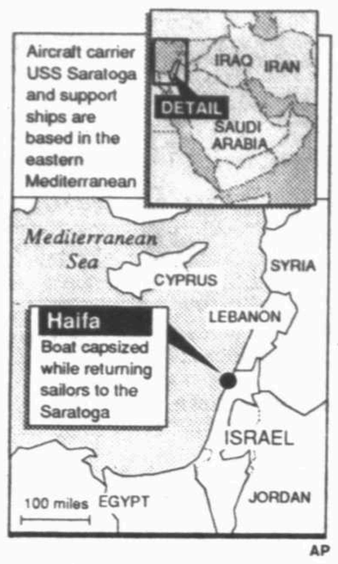
The Saratoga, part of the U.S. Sixth Fleet based in Italy, is stationed in the eastern Mediterranean as a battle group included in the multinational force opposing Iraq. The carrier has a crew of about 6,200.

Kip Burke, commander, Sixth Fleet Staff, based in Gaeta, Italy, said there were two known fatalities among an estimated 100 on board the small liberty launch. He said an investigation had begun into the accident but he was uncertain how far off shore the boat was when the 1:30 a.m. incident occurred.

"There is a lot of confusion," Burke said. "The biggest problem is counting heads."

According to sailors at the scene and a U.S. official who spoke on condition of anonymity, the boat was not a U.S. naval vessel as originally reported by authorities, but was a privately rented Israeli launch.

"It was overloaded at the rear and because of the high seas, water started coming over the stern," said one young sailor, who spoke on condition he not be identified. "Once it started coming over, it capsized very quickly."



AP

Dr. Zvi Ben-Yishai of Rambam Hospital in Haifa in northern Israel said the hospital had received the body of one unidentified sailor, that two others had swallowed water but should survive, and that a third had hypothermia from exposure in the waters.

Survivors at the hospital had removed their soaked clothing — many of them wore Israeli army uniforms to warm themselves — and all had their feet enclosed in blue plastic bags. Some still were shivering hours later, drinking hot soup from plastic bowls.

The port of Haifa was declared a closed military zone and flares were seen illuminating the entire bay area.

Reporters said the accident happened in rough seas with 3- to 4-foot-high waves.

Ben-Yishai said 23 sailors had been admitted for treatment in his hospital.

The doctor said he knew of at least 10 other sailors taken to hospitals elsewhere in Haifa.

Chance for war increasing, Cheney says

Associated Press

Hundreds of thousands of Iraqis heeded air raid sirens Friday and jammed the roads out of Baghdad in an evacuation drill to test war readiness. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said armed conflict is increasingly likely.

Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, added that any attack on Iraq would be swift and decisive. He and Cheney visited U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia.

"When we launch it, we will launch it violently," Powell said. "We will launch it in a way that will make it decisive so we can get it over as quickly as possible and there's no question who won."

However, Brent Scowcroft, the national security adviser to President Bush, said Jan. 15, the U.N. deadline for Iraq to leave Kuwait, is just "an authorization date."

"It doesn't say he is going to be attacked this date or that date or whatever," Scowcroft said in an interview in Washington with The Associated Press and other news agencies.

Saddam Hussein, meanwhile, predicted an Iraqi victory in any war with the multinational force arrayed against him and stood by his refusal to pull out of Kuwait. He spoke in an interview on German television.

"In the event of war, there will be great losses, not just in terms of human life," Saddam said. "Allah is on our side, so we will defeat the aggressors."

The Iraqi government is believed to have a large arsenal of chemical weapons and missiles, along with its powerful army. In Bonn, the German government said Friday it was investigating U.S. suspicions that German companies have continued sending supplies to Iraq, despite the U.N. embargo.

A German magazine said one company supplied Iraq with nuclear training and equipment, while two others have helped Baghdad with nerve gas production.

Der Spiegel said Washington has given Bonn a list of 50 German companies suspected of violating the U.N. embargo. The Bonn government confirmed it received the list and said the allegations were being examined, but that so far it had no proof.

Sirens blared in Baghdad Friday and residents, clutching blankets and food, jumped into cars or rushed to special centers where they caught buses to evacuation camps set up outside the capital.

Roads leading out of the city were jammed with thousands of cars, trucks, buses and even carriages pulled by tractors.

The evacuation drill began at 7 a.m. and ended five hours later. It was conducted for the half of Baghdad that lies on the east bank of the Tigris River.

But only about half the area's 2 million people participated, said residents, speaking on condition of anonymity. They said people locked their doors and watched television rather than get stuck in the traffic jams.

A second exercise today will cover west Baghdad.

Basra, Iraq's second-largest city with a million residents, was evacuated in a similar exercise Thursday.

"It is useful, if a war broke out, God forbid, we need to be out of our areas," Samir Abdul Aziz, 45, a dentist, said at one camp.

Iraq has increased its preparations for war since the U.N. Security Council authorized force to remove Baghdad's troops from Kuwait if they have not left the emirate by Jan. 15.

Iraqi media now carry instructions for building bomb shelters and courses in civil defense

In Saudi Arabia, Cheney told U.S. troops that war was drawing closer.

"It increasingly looks like (Saddam's) not getting the message and we'll have to use force," Cheney said. "The only acceptable outcome, if hostilities begin, is absolute, total victory."

Cheney said U.S. military officials don't think "waiting indefinitely is going to solve the problem."

About 280,000 U.S. troops are stationed in Saudi Arabia as part of the nearly 400,000-strong multinational force. They face about 510,000 Iraqi troops in southern Iraq and Kuwait.

In the interview with Germany's ZDF television network, Saddam was asked if he would pull his troops out of Kuwait by the Jan. 15 deadline. "No," he answered.

"We are certain that even when Bush pushes his country into war, which he plans, he can't keep it going," said Saddam.

Texas grandparents heading for gulf duty

Hearst News Service

SAN ANTONIO — Christina Marie Ramos' cheeks will be spared a little pinching during the coming months. The 9-month-old's grandparents — both nurses with a San Antonio-based Army reserve unit — are heading for Saudi Arabia.

"My family thinks, grandma and grandpa, putting on combat boots and going off to war? They're too old! They can't go," said Staff Sgt. Ernest Ramos, 45, an operating room specialist with the 114th Evacuation Hospital.

Ramos and his wife, Rosemary, a captain and surgical nurse with the unit, are packed and ready to head overseas in support of Operation Desert Shield sometime within the next few weeks.

Happy to head for the Middle East, the Ramoses' only regret is leaving Christina Marie, their first and only grandchild born to their son, James, 23, who is stationed at Fort Hood in Killeen and who may be going to Saudi Arabia in March.

"She's just learning to crawl," Mrs. Ramos said. "We'll miss her learning to walk. We were there when she had her first meal and for a lot of other firsts. She is just now getting to know us."

The couple have been seeing their grandchild almost every weekend, making the three-hour trip to Killeen. Since Nov. 21, the two have been elevated to active-duty status in preparation for shipping out to Saudi Arabia. The unit's equipment already has been sent to the docks for shipment and their departure is imminent.

"I hate to leave, but being a nurse for so many years, helping the sick and wounded is second nature," Mrs. Ramos said. "You feel you can make the world a better place by healing. I know I'll miss everyone."

Planning for the worst — not being around for Christmas — the Ramoses turned a Thanksgiving dinner into a holiday celebration. Their grandchild got her gifts early.
