THE GREAT EUROPEAN WAR ENTERS UPON SECOND YEAR—NO DECISIVE RESULTS

velopment in submarine warfare. The remarkable exploits of submarines have shown their efficiency so thoroughly that already the supremacy of battleships has been challenged. Germany compelled to rely chiefly on these craft for her marine activities, has gained the greatest success with them. Their first large achievement was the torpedoing and sinking by one submarine within an hour of the British cruiser Cressy, Aboukir and Hogue in the North Sea in September. Since that time hundreds of vessels, warships and merchantmen, have been sent to the bottom. In the North Sea, the Baltic, the English Channel, the Adriatic, and at the Dardanelles. From all causes more than 500 vessels have been destroyed. England has been the greatest sufferer, by reason of her preponderance of shipping and also on account of the German government's attempt to blockade the country following the declaration of a war zone around the British Isles last February.

In size, speed and cruising radius the new type of submarine far exceeds the earlier small vessels, designed primarily for coast defense. Germany's new submarines are as long as a good sized cruiser. Captain Otto Hersing took the U-51 about 4,000 miles from Wilhelmshaven past Gibraltar through the Mediterranean and to the Dardanelles, where it torpedoed the British battleships Triumph and Majestic, and proceeded to Constantinople. The voyage from Wilhelmshaven to the Dardanelles required one month.

Part Played by Aircraft. The aeroplane, almost an unknown quantity at the beginning of the war so far as its military value was concerned, has proved its practicability so thoroughly that it must be rated with the submarine and the heavy gun as one of the great features of the war. In fact, it has exercised a dominating influence over land operations, and to its use perhaps more than any other, single factor, may be ascribed the deadlock month after month in the principal fields of battle. It has rendered priceless service in reconnaissance, taking the place of cavalry. It has caused a revolution in the tactics and strategy of war. Aerial observers, flying over the opposing lines, are able to discover movements of any large bodies of troops, rendering that form of strategy based on surprise attacks or quick movements in force impossible. Aeroplanes also have been a great value in locating enemy positions, enabling the artillery to get the range and fire accurately on the enemy lines.

Dirigible balloons also are employed, but to a much less extent although Germany still is constructing Zeppelins and has used them effectively for long distance raids they are generally regarded as less valuable than the aeroplanes. Automobiles are used to an enormous extent, all private machines being requisitioned in some of the countries at war. In some instances great numbers of automobiles have been utilized for rapid transportation of troops. Their main service, however, is in the handling of food supplies and ammunition. Armored automobiles, armed with machine guns or light field pieces also have been utilized. Many new weapons of war have been tested with varying degrees of success. Poisonous gases, projected from tanks in the trenches, are reported to have enabled their users to capture opposing positions in several minor engagements. Steel darts and incendiary bombs dropped from aeroplanes, and new types of hand grenades also have been employed, while in France both sides are said to have made use of apparatus for spraying burning oil.

Political Effects. The political effects of the war, tremendous as they must be, cannot yet be engaged. The principal result thus far is the definite rupture of the traditional lightenment, which divided Europe for years into two alliances with a theoretical balance of power: Great Britain, France and Russia, forming the Triple Entente and Germany, Austria-Hungary and Italy, constituting the Triple Alliance.

From the day Austria-Hungary became involved in serious difficulties with Serbia there was little doubt that Germany would support her ally in case Russia adhered to her traditional policy of defending her Slavic kinsmen in the Balkans. The entrance in the war of France followed as a natural sequence to her alliance with Russia and Great Britain joined in after Germany's invasion of Belgium.

Italy was thus the only one of the six nations concerned in the two alliances which was not involved at the outset. Proclaiming her neutrality, she utilized the opportunity to seek from Austria the territory to the north of her border which she has long desired. Failing to obtain full satisfaction of her demands she denounced the Triple Alliance and joined the Allies. The Triple Entente was thus converted into the Quadruple Entente, as it is sometimes called now.

Germany and Austria-Hungary were strengthened by the adhesion of Turkey to the informal alliance with Germany which had sprung up in recent years and in November Turkey entered the war. Montenegro took up arms with the Serbs and Belgium, on being invaded, joined the Allies. Japan, Great Britain's ally in the East, opened war on Germany, following Berlin's refusal to surrender Tsingtau. There are thus eleven nations now at war, of which eight form what are known as the Allies.

Plunge Over Precipice. Historians are agreed that the assassination of the Austrian Archduke Francis Ferdinand in Sarajevo, Bosnia on June 28, 1914, while the immediate cause of the war, was not the determining influence. Europe had been on the edge of the precipice for a decade. Perhaps the chief underlying factor was the development of the national idea, demanding that political divisions should be made to correspond with the territory inhabited by the various peoples of Europe, that each people, with common language and customs, should have political independence and a "place in the sun." The struggle to attain this has kept Europe in political turmoil. France aspired for Alsace and Lorraine, Italy for Trieste and the Trentino, populated largely by Italians; Serbia for Bosnia, Roumania for Transylvania and Bessarabia. Austria-Hungary, within whose boundary in a complex of races with varying claims and aspirations, was particularly menaced by the growth of this idea, and it was one phase of this agitation—Serbia's demand for Bosnia—which brought on the crisis. The same motive brought in Montenegro and Italy, and influenced Russia and France to go to war. The growth of the national idea was attended by the growth of militarism as a means for securing these desires. The greatest standing armies in history were built up, compulsory military service became widespread, and enormous armies were constructed. Out of it all, with the best auspicious omen, grew the situation which kept Europe in fear of war. Armed to excess, the nations awaited the war which finally came.

At The Theaters

The Lamar Air Corps. La Velle and Finney with "A Southern Revival" an elaborate scenic and electrical production open on the vaudeville bill here tonight, also the Cardew Sisters, billed as "Europe's Premier Character Dancers." The pictures include Adel Lane in "Her Own Blood," and "Blue Blood and Yellow Backs," a two part L.Ko comedy with Gertrude Selby and Reggie Morris.

The Gem. Miriam Nesbitt and Marc McDermott are featured in "Sally Castleton, Southerner," a Civil War story without a battle scene, a three part Edison production. A Hearst Selig News Pictorial completes the program.

The Majestic. Tom Mix is featured in "Pale in Blue" a three part Selig drama of unusual interest. The Hearst Selig News Pictorial is also on the program.

The Empress. Theodore Roberts, James Neil, Madal Van Buren and Lois Meredith are featured in the Paramount feature, "The Woman," showing today at the Empress.

"The Woman," by William C. De Mille, originally produced in dramatic form by Frank Belasco, positively deserves to rank as one of the few foremost American dramas written on strictly American subject matter. It had a well deserved initial engagement of an entire season in New York and continued actively on tour for several years thereafter.

"The Woman" contains a fascinating combination of political and domestic intrigue. "Jim Blake" is the boss of one of the great political rings at Washington, and is doing his utmost to pass a bill that will wrongly favor the railroads. He is opposed by a young reformer by the name of Matthew Standish. The sympathy of the public is so clearly with Standish that Blake sees his bill will be doomed to failure unless something can be done to discredit his opponent. He hires detectives and discovers that there was once an affair between Standish and a woman, and that they did not marry. With this to work on, Blake makes a treacherous effort to get the woman's name, copy and have it printed in a leading newspaper.

Subsequent events show the manner in which this plot is foiled by a brave little telephone switchboard operator, who refuses to be intimidated or bribed. The great dramatic surprise comes with the revelation of the identity of "The Woman."

THEDA BARA AT THE MAJESTIC TUESDAY. "The Devil's Daughter" will be the attraction at the Majestic Theater on Tuesday. Every woman should be on the lookout for the wonderful gown which the famous Theda Bara, the far-famed Vampire Woman of the Antoine Theater, Paris, wears in the new screen drama "The Devil's Daughter," especially written for her by Gabriele D'Annunzio, the noted author of Cabiria, which is produced by William Fox, who brought Mile Bara to this country; and under whose management she has appeared in the famous successes "A Fool There Was," "The Clemenceau Case" and the "Two Orphans." D'Annunzio bases his film drama of "The Vampire upon his La Gioconda which, made a world-wide sensation and was the most talked of drama ever written. Grace of line and a generally "Vampirish" effect has been sought for by the French actress in selecting her gown for this character. The result is startling in its sensational art. Every woman who sees these wonderful creations is going to rave over them. Already Mile Bara has created a sensation at the Belmont Park race track and at the fashionable cafes and hotels by her wonderfully effective gowns. Put in "The Devil's Daughter" her garments outdo in amazing effects anything she has yet worn.

GRAND JURY RECONVENES AFTER TWO WEEKS RECESS

The grand jury reconvened this morning after two weeks recess and examined a large number of witnesses during the morning. While bulky houses are supposed to be the subject of the grand jury's inquiry at this time, nothing has been given out as to what the plan of procedure will be, and it is understood there is some opposition to returning indictments against proprietors—if the houses are to be permitted to continue open after the penalties have been assessed. None of this morning's witnesses were from the district.

The Historic Truth About Embargoes On Arms

(By Judson C. Welliver in the Washington Times)

The amount of misinformation of absolute misstatement of positive untruth, that has been disseminated by propagandists in this country with regard to American sales of supplies and munitions to warring countries, is simply astounding. Even more remarkable in the extent to which seemingly intelligent people have accepted these untruths, it has seemed only necessary that a positive falsehood, no matter how easily disproved, should coincide with the prejudices of the auditor, in order to get perfect and unquestioning acceptance.

To what unfortunate conclusions people are led by thus innocently accepting statements that have no basis in fact, is illustrated by a letter which comes to the Times from Charles A. Gehrie of East Orange, N. J. Mr. Gehrie has swallowed hook line and sinker, a quantity of misinformation that could not possibly have been imposed upon any person with the most rudimentary knowledge of American history, to say nothing of international law and practice.

I have been an interested reader of your editorials. Your oft-repeated plea, "It would be an unneutral act to place an embargo on American arms," is purely specious and a transparent subterfuge which will not hold in international law and precedent. I shall attempt to expose the base of sand upon which you stand in this vital matter. If you can answer my statements of fact and successfully refute them, I shall donate a liberal sum to a local charity.

I challenge you in good faith to dare to answer me, point by point, in your editorial column. I am willing to let your readers pass judgment as to questions of right and wrong. Here is the strength of my case, and I give it as the most loyal American student of history.

Jefferson's Embargo. During the Napoleonic wars President Thomas Jefferson placed an embargo on arms with the full consent and approval of the American people. The warring nations of Europe never objected to this proper exercise of American right. It was held to be a neutral act and fair to all the belligerent nations.

In 1870 when the Franco-Prussian war broke out an embargo was laid on arms and ammunition by our United States. It was the act of President U. S. Grant and again the world recognized our perfect neutrality.

During the progress of the Spanish-American war Germany laid an embargo on arms at the request of Mr. White, American ambassador at Berlin. The German government went so far as to stop a Spanish ship loaded with arms and bound for Spain. In 1898 no American soldiers were killed or maimed by German shot or shell. Now, just compare our stand today with that of Germany. Can you blame the German people if they show resentment and bitterness at our conduct? We openly state that past favors are of no moment. One good turn does not deserve another. Such is our stand.

Can we be proud of our traffic in arms when we realize that every dollar we receive is tainted with the life blood of fellow creatures and the agony and tears of bereaved women and fatherless children?

In this business which is sanctioned by international law justified by the higher law of humanity and morals? Does it show a real love of mankind to make capital out of the misfortune of suffering Europe?

Here is an answer to these questions as given by a Swiss newspaper, the St. Gall Tagblatt. Read what it thinks of our neutrality:

In its note the American government states "it would be unneutral to place an embargo on arms," yet Switzerland has placed an embargo on all arms and the belligerent nations of Europe have notified our government that our act was absolutely neutral and had found the approval of every warring nation.

"We, the people of Switzerland, find our industry crippled. We might have made millions on the sale of arms and could have done so under international law, but we preferred to keep our hands clean of the blood money."

To state, as the American note does, that it is unneutral to place an embargo on arms is an insult to the Swiss republic. Our stand is, to say the least, as honorable as that of the United States, yet we have not called for "peace Sunday prayers."

This is an excerpt from a semi-official Swiss newspaper. You will see what neutral Europe thinks of our conduct. Spain, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Switzerland and Holland have prohibited the shipment of arms in this war. They openly and by inference accuse us of being mercenary and hypocritical. Thousands of loyal Americans deplore our stand in this matter as being immoral and inhuman. We will give a chance yet to stop to this traffic. It is a stain on our national reputation and should be in spirit if not in law.

If the seas were in German control and we supplied Germany, Austria and Turkey with arms it would be just as wrong in principle. We should not be a base for war supplies to any of all fighting war crated nations.

Feelings of Humanity. We allow the shipment of arms in this hideous business of killing yet some of our best of our feelings of humanity. Mr. President Taft comes forward with the claim that we would injure ourselves in the event that our nation is dragged into a future war if we should now place an embargo on arms. He speaks of our danger should foreign nations refuse to sell us arms in such an event.

How silly this assertion stands out when we see our country turning out at short notice enough war supplies to thoroughly swamp the Atlantic ship lines. We produce more arms than France, England and Russia combined. We fully equip the armies of the allies. It is stated that without our arms the allies could not expect to win. Does this show how helpless we are in the matter of arms? Former President Taft is famous as a joker. In his assertion quoted above merely another little bit of fun? In view of the facts given it seems so.

What Jefferson Did. Mr. Gehrie's challenge would be too amusing to deserve serious attention but for the fact that so many people have been misled into believing the very things he presents as facts. Manifestly, if he were not sincere, he would not ask to be confuted; if he knew the truth he would know that his position is ridiculous and his "facts" entirely false. It may be worth while to take up his propositions serially and state the facts as history has made them and the most elementary knowledge of it proves them. Mr. Gehrie begins:

1. During the Napoleonic wars President Thomas Jefferson placed an embargo on arms with the full consent and approval of the American people.

President Jefferson did nothing of the kind. In 1794 a temporary embargo was laid on trade in general with France and Great Britain. It was not aimed at traffic in arms and ammunition, which we didn't manufacture and nobody thought of buying from us. It was laid on commerce, and was followed, in 1807 by the embargo act. This was passed by congress, not ordered by President Jefferson. It was the result of injuries inflicted on our shipping and trade by the Berlin decree of Napoleon and the British orders in council.

It laid an embargo on all shipping, foreign and domestic; closed our ports against foreign vessels and held our own vessels in home ports. It was not aimed at traffic in munitions, arms or war supplies; had nothing whatever to do with the set of questions that now are agitated by pro-Germans objecting to sale of war supplies abroad. It was merely designed to keep our shipping out of the way of the French and British, both of whom persisted in attacks on it, which threatened to draw us into war, perhaps against both France and England.

By act of congress, March 1, 1809, this embargo was repealed and a policy of nonintercourse was substituted.

But were these things done, "with the full consent and approval of the American people," as Mr. Gehrie alleges? To the contrary, the embargo and nonintercourse acts were intensely unpopular, caused business depression, did not save this country from the menace of complications abroad, nor the result of injuries for the war of 1812 did take place, despite these futile efforts to prevent and averted just one useful purpose; they made perfectly sure that no administration in this country will ever again attempt such a policy.

Now we come to Mr. Gehrie's second count in obsequiation. He avers:

No. 2. In 1870, when the Franco-German war broke out, an embargo was laid on arms and ammunition by the United States.

Absolutely not true. No embargo was laid and President Grant could not have laid it if he had wanted to. The government of the United States refused to sell arms to a belligerent exactly as, since the present war began it has refused to sell a large number of Krug rifles that were manufactured in Germany, tried through agents to buy. But during the war of 1870-71 vast quantities of firearms were sold by Americans to the combatants. President Grant stopped expeditions of French and German sympathizers sailing, armed, from this country to aid their respective countries. Many such especially of Germans, who were most numerous here, were organized. The people who wanted to go and fight for Germany and France were allowed to; but they were not permitted to go organized and armed; that would have been in effect a hostile act of this country.

THE Rexall STORE FOSHLEE & LYNCH, Proprietors

Everything in Drugs and Sundries 702 Indiana Avenue

Wichita Falls, Texas, June 28th, 1915

Messrs. Green & Green, Houston, Texas.

Gentlemen:

The Frozen Punch Matinee Demonstration in our store by your Mr. R. H. Caigler on Saturday was quite a success. The four or five hundred ladies besides children, were unanimous in their vote that your "Muscadine Punch" was the best drink they had ever tasted, and the farther fact that this product is grown and made in Texas, puts another feather in the cap of our Lone Star State, and our people believe in using "Made in Texas" goods.

Very truly yours, FOSHLEE & LYNCH.

3. During the Spanish-American war Germany laid an embargo on arms at the request of Mr. White, American ambassador at Berlin. The German government went so far as to stop a Spanish ship loaded with arms and bound for Spain. In 1898 no American soldiers were killed or maimed by German shot and shell.

To the contrary, Germany laid no embargo on arms and ammunition for Spain. The soldiers of Spain in Cuba were largely equipped with Mauser rifles that had been made in Germany; and the traffic in arms and ammunitions went on during the war.

More than this, Germans sold the Hamburg-American liner Columbia to Spain, to be converted into a cruiser; sold it after the war had started. The case was closely parallel in many ways that of Alabama, for which Britain paid the United States $15,000,000 after arbitration. Germany paid nothing; if the Columbia had completed her conversion there might have been an international incident growing out of this affair.

Genius For Misinformation. In its own wars the United States has bought arms, ammunition, whatever it needed, wherever it could obtain the supplies. Other nations have sold them to us, just as we are now selling to any nation that can pay—and get the goods home. It is Germany's misfortune not to control the seas, as it is the allies' good fortune; if Germany controlled the seas and was hauling shiploads after shiploads of arms and ammunition from our shores, Germany would be quite satisfied; the allies would doubtless be protesting just as Germany is now. But the United States would pay no attention, because it would be entirely correct in its position, as it is today.

Mr. Gehrie's genius for misinformation pursues his pen to the conclusion—of his letter, "We produce more than France, England and Russia combined," he says. "We fully equip armies of the allies."—Just plain tommyrot. That's

SMALL AD BRINGS MANY BUYERS FOR BRACELETS

Art Jewelry Co. Sells 243 Bracelets Before Ten O'Clock This Morning From Ad. If there should be any business man in Wichita Falls who is not fully convinced that the people read the ads in the Daily Times it would have been worth his while to have visited the store of the Art Loan & Jewelry Co. this morning. In Sunday's issue of the Times the firm placed a double column five inch ad advertising silver friendship bracelets. Up to 10:20 o'clock this morning 243 bracelets had been sold and the store was still crowded with men, women and children, all buying bracelets, and in addition it kept one man pretty busy taking orders over the telephone. Mr. Art said that in addition to the bracelets, many of the customers bought other goods, which made his trade for the day better than it had been on any day for several months.

CORPUS CHRISTI EMPLOYEES DELINQUENT TAX COLLECTOR.

Corpus Christi, Tex., Aug. 2.—This city has begun an innovation in the handling of delinquent taxes. The city has an actual delinquent tax collector—a position created to try to bring into the treasury some of the money in arrears. The position is held by C. J. McManis, a retired banker. He said that his stock in trade in making collections is diplomacy, good banking and smiles—"mostly smiles." He has been at work only a short time, but already the collection of delinquent taxes is considerable. His argument to delinquents is that without the taxes policemen, firemen and street cleaners cannot be maintained.

THIRD OF AN INCH OF RAIN SUNDAY MORNING

As if Wichita Falls had not seen "wet" enough Saturday night, about a third of an inch of rain fell here early Sunday morning, being local in extent. It was followed by a very hot Sabbath, but the temperature was much lower this morning.

THE DOLLAR

Is the standard by which values are measured in this country. But do you always get a dollar's worth for your dollar? The dollar is the measure used in our cleaning and pressing department. To call and get your suit, clean and press it and return it to your home is the dollar's worth at our shop. We could get more but we feel in our bones that a dollar is just right. And our cleaning is just as RIGHT as the Dollar. No dingy rings where the spot was. No grease spots show up the third wearing. We made the price a dollar. We made a dollar the price. And we give you more for your dollar than you can get elsewhere. You don't have to phone us but one time about your suit.
