OPEC to reduce output

Oil cartel disagrees about extent of cuts

■ Talks continue on which member should trim production and by how much.

Associated Press

VIENNA, Austria — OPEC nations agreed Saturday on the need to rein in oil production to keep crude prices from falling, but they said they were at odds over who should make the cuts, and by how much.

More talks are be held today to try to resolve the differences.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is under pressure to come up with an accord — and make it stick — to reduce output in the spring, when demand for crude tumbles in the United States and other oil-consuming regions.

But the 12 cartel members have ignored many past pledges to cut back production.

After a two-hour opening round of talks on Saturday, Kuwaiti Oil Minister Ali al-Zaghli said, "There is an agreement in principle — we haven't finalized it yet."

The ministers were reportedly discussing lopping a million barrels a day off their winter ceiling of 24.6 million barrels. But OPEC members seldom adhere to such restrictions. They are already breaking their existing limit by about 500,000 barrels a day.

The flood of oil on the market has been blamed for

SUNDAY NEWS WATCH

Hospital vows

PASADENA — A couple who had attempted to tie the knot twice discovered that the third time's the charm over Valentine's weekend — even if it was at a hospital. Lesley and Frank Farrow exchanged marital vows at Bayshore Medical Center Saturday, where Farrow was hospitalized with a peptic ulcer. The ulcer prompted a change of location for the ceremony, which had originally been scheduled to take place in a pizza parlor. "The first time, he just wasn't ready to get married," said the 38-year-old bride. "The second time . . . we wound up buying a house together in Pasadena and we were moving. We wanted to go ahead and go through with it today," she said.

Medicare cuts

WASHINGTON — President Clinton will seek at least $35 billion in savings from Medicare over the next four years by limiting payments to doctors and hospitals and by trying to increase premiums for elderly people with high incomes, administration officials said Saturday. The proposed savings, three times what President Bush sought unsuccessfully in 1992, are part of what Clinton describes as a bold program to reduce the deficit and its long-term burden on the U.S. economy./11A

Death sentence

AMARILLO — A lawyer was sentenced to death Saturday for killing two attorneys during a rampage in a Fort Worth courtroom last summer that left three other people wounded. A Potter County jury took about an hour Saturday to sentence George Lott, 45, to death by lethal injection. Lott was convicted of capital murder on Friday./11C

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — Stormy weather appears to trigger deadly bleeding strokes in men, often in the late fall, while women are more vulnerable in the springtime, researchers reported Saturday. ## Group offers dental clinic for children

■ Junior League operates program under which children from low-income families receive care for $1 a visit.

By Katherine Poteet
Staff writer

For many of Midland's underprivileged children, hope for proper dental care at low cost has come in the form of the Junior League of Midland's Children's Dental Clinic, which has been in operation for nearly 39 years.

For $1 a visit, children whose parents can't afford the cost of a regular office visit or insurance coverage, can have their teeth taken care of and be educated on proper dental hygiene.

"There is such a huge need out there," said Judy Priddy, Junior League chairman of the dental program. "Children simply don't get any care because they can't afford it. It really is a desperately needed service."

The clinic was started in 1954 at then-Midland Memorial Hospital with nine patients. In 1984, the clinic was moved to Casa De Amigos, where two rooms were specifically set aside for the ser-

For the dozens of children who sit in the waiting room each year, the Junior League of Midland's dental clinic is probably the only form of dental care they will receive.

Due to the rising cost of medical care and insurance, many lower-income families cannot afford adequate care for their children.

"This (program) helps a lot of lower-income people who otherwise would not be able to give their kids the care," said Cathy Reyes, whose 15-year-old daughter Vanessa was in for her second visit.

The backbone of the Junior League of Midland dental clinic for the past 39 years has been the doctors who have freely volunteered their time and sometimes their own offices to provide care for children.

Most of the cases that came through the clinic are examinations, fillings and extractions. But, sometimes, more complex procedures, such as root canal

Clinton's advisers on foreign policy have 'shared goals'

By Matthew C. Vita
New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON — In his first 24 days in office, President Clinton met the leaders of Canada and Turkey and the foreign ministers of Germany and Japan, talked by phone with Russian President Boris Yeltsin and launched a diplomatic initiative in Bosnia.

Washington insiders joke that George Bush normally accomplished as much in 24 hours.

"I've been working almost exclusively on the economic issues of the country since I became president," Clinton noted at his televised town meeting last week.

That gives his chief foreign policy advisers a great deal of leeway in a period fraught with vexing problems abroad — turbulence in the former Soviet empire, ethnic warfare in Europe, hunger in Africa, military rule in Haiti and a stalled peace process in the Middle East.

Who are these men and women? What do they think? How will they work together? And which of them will the president listen to?

Some answers are starting to appear.

Kenneth Duberstein, who served as President Reagan's last chief of staff, said this administration's "big three" — Secretary of State Warren Christopher, Defense Secretary Les Aspin and National Security Adviser Anthony Lake — are attempting to avoid the infighting that has plagued past presidencies and work "on a team concept with World hot spots demanding President Clinton's attention:

■ LATIN AMERICA – Haiti, with its refugee threat and military dictatorship, is the most pressing problem in the region.

■ MIDDLE EAST – Secretary of State Warren Christopher is headed to the region this week in hopes of getting peace talks back on track.

■ FORMER SOVIET UNION – The appointment of longtime Clinton friend Strobe Talbott is taken as a sign that priority is being assigned to the many problems in the republics.

■ AFRICA – Crafting a smaller U.S. role in Somalia will take delicate diplomatic footwork.

A 16-year-old Midlander accused in an attempted murder-for-hire scheme will face that charge in a special hearing scheduled to begin Tuesday.

The youngster, whose name has not been released because of his age, was arrested Nov. 7 after the alleged plan was foiled when the intended hit man confided to police.

The accused will have his day in court before a 12-person jury in a "determinate sentence" trial, essentially a cross between being tried as a juvenile and an adult.

If convicted of attempted capital murder, the jury would assess a punishment from probation to 40 years incarceration. If ordered to confinement, the youth would be sent to the Texas Youth

Christopher, Lake, Aspin lead president's foreign policy team

By Matthew C. Vita
New York Times News Service

Here are thumbnail sketches of key players in Clinton administration foreign policy.

The Big Three

■ Warren Christopher, 67, secretary of state. The No. 2 man under Secretary of State Cyrus Vance in the Carter administration, Christopher has never been known as a foreign policy visionary. He will likely play the elder statesman role, keeping foreign crises at bay while the president concentrates on domestic policy.

■ W. Anthony Lake, 53, national security adviser. Not widely known outside the foreign policy establishment, he can play the role of honest broker. An assistant secretary of state in the Carter days, Lake previously was one of Henry Kissinger's bright lights in the Nixon White House — until he resigned to protest Nixon's incursion into Cambodia in 1970. Kissinger then had Lake's phone wiretapped. Lake filed a lawsuit, and Kissinger settled out of court in 1989.

■ Les Aspin, 54, secretary of defense. In a two-decade congressional career, Aspin built a reputation as one of Capitol Hill's leading military experts. He's assembling a team of bright, ambitious aides at the Pentagon that may rival the State Department in setting the foreign policy agenda.

Others

■ R. James Woolsey, 51, CIA director. A conservative arms control expert, Woolsey was the Bush administration's lead negotiator for the conventional forces reduction talks in Europe in 1989-'91. His appointment provides a voice for the Democratic Party's neoconservative wing.

■ Samuel "Sandy" Berger, 47, deputy national security adviser. He and Clinton worked together in George McGovern's campaign in 1972, no small thing in a town where old friendships go a long way. His influence should be considerable, especially in the economic side of foreign policy.

■ Gen. Colin Powell, 55, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. His second two-year term expires Sept. 30 — and he may leave earlier than that. The conventional wisdom is his influence is on the wane, but some Washington veterans say don't count him out yet.

■ Madeleine Albright, 55, United Nations ambassador. Served in the Carter White House and advised Walter Mondale and Michael Dukakis during their presidential campaigns before latching on to the Clinton effort. Clinton's decision to elevate his U.N. envoy to Cabinet rank gives her clout, but she'll be spending a lot of time in New York — away from the center of power.

■ Peter Tarnoff, 55, nominated as undersecretary of state for political affairs, the No. 3 job at the State Department. A former president of the Council on Foreign Relations, Tarnoff is a veteran Washington insider who can be expected to play a leading role in policy-setting. He has known Lake since they served together at the U.S. Embassy in Saigon in the early 1960s.

■ Strobe Talbott, 46, nominated as ambassador at large to Russia and the other former Soviet states. The former Time magazine editor and columnist was Clinton's Oxford roommate, which should give him direct access to the president. His appointment to the newly created position at the State Department shows Clinton intends to make Russia a foreign policy priority.

■ Timothy E. Wirth, 53, nominated to fill a new senior State Department position that will focus on "global issues" like the environment, refugees, population policy, drugs, terrorism and human rights. It's the "new world" beat. Time will tell what the former Colorado senator makes of it.

■ Winston Lord, 55, nominated as assistant secretary of state for East Asian and Pacific Affairs. A former top Kissinger aide and ambassador to China, Lord has been a vocal critic of China's human rights record and the Bush administration's even-keel relations with Beijing. His appointment could signal a rocky road ahead in U.S.-Chinese relations.

■ William Perry, 66, nominated as deputy secretary of defense. Another Carter administration holdover, Perry in recent years has focused on defense restructuring and the conversion of military industries into civilian production. His role: keeping the defense industry strong as the military budget shrinks.

■ Frank Wisner, 54, reportedly will be nominated as undersecretary of defense for policy. Wisner is a longtime friend of Aspin, Lake and Tarnoff, completing what could become a "Gang of Four" in the Clinton ranks. Once ambassador to Egypt, he served as undersecretary of state in the Bush administration and headed the U.S. team that negotiated final details of START II treaty last December.

Parents learn details of how their son died in Vietnam

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — A quarter-century after 23-year-old Gene Youngblood died in Vietnam, a stranger came forward to tell his parents the details.

Gordon and Emma Lou Youngblood learned that their son died in an ambush a day earlier than they had believed, after they found a memorial to him on the obituary page of The Times in Shreveport.

It read: "Charles E. Youngblood. Nov. 1944-11 Feb. 1968.

"It has been 25 years since that day that you and the other nine men courageously fought by our sides and were called to the service of our Lord. You will live forever in our hearts and we will always love you. All the men of 'C.R.I.P.' 2nd Bn. 27th Inf. (Wolfhounds) 25th Inf. Div."

The Youngbloods found that Leonard N. Brooks, 46, of Austin, Texas, placed the ad. He was the medic of the Combined Reconnaissance Intelligence Platoon when it lost more than one-third of its 28 soldiers outside a hamlet called Boa Trai.

Brooks, a security officer at Austin Community College, said he also placed his memorial in seven other newspapers.

He said his unit was based at Chu Chi and worked with a similar Vietnamese unit. Twenty-eight Americans and two Vietnamese went to Bao Trai to check out a report that a few Viet Cong were collecting taxes there. They found themselves facing about 200 enemy soldiers.

"They were probably passing through the area and our paths crossed," Brooks said. "We got hit from the front and the left and right."

After several hours, helicopter gunships showed up, but it wasn't until after dark when another unit arrived that they were rescued, he said.

Cabinet members may 'do lunch' with staff

By Pete Yost
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — "Let's do lunch" has taken on new meaning in the Clinton administration as Cabinet secretaries close their executive dining rooms or raise meal prices to cover the cost of the $4 million-a-year perk.

At the Treasury Department, 50 or so top officials eat in a green-walled room with high ceilings that offers a pleasant view across Executive Avenue of the East Wing of the White House.

Treasury gets a $125,000-a-year congressional subsidy for the dining room, opened in 1985, which comes complete with its own cook. It won't close but will undergo some changes, a spokesman says.

Executive dining rooms are a longstanding perk with at least 10 in operation at the end of the Bush administration: Commerce, Defense, Health and Human Services, Interior, Justice, Labor, State, Transportation, Treasury and Veterans Affairs.

Traditionally, the dining rooms charge for meals and "may be recovering the full cost of food, but not salaries, rent and miscellaneous expenses," which taxpayers pick up, explained Bruce Reed, deputy assistant to the president for domestic policy.

Reed estimated the dining rooms cost taxpayers $4 million a year. Clinton last week ordered the elimination of "below-cost executive dining rooms" as part of an administration-wide belt-tightening effort.

The results were immediate.

Staff are being allowed to dine regularly for the first time at the White House mess, once reserved for top-level appointees. The exclusive eatery features elegant wood-paneled walls and tables laid with gold-trimmed plates bearing the presidential seal.

The departments of Interior, Labor and Veterans Affairs have announced they are closing their dining rooms, while the Commerce Department plans to end daily food service at the secretary's dining room.

At the Treasury Department, "we'll either rearrange the price structure or contract out to a food service company," spokesman Jack de Vore explained.

HHS is scaling back to a carry-out service for senior staff and other aides to the secretary while other departments have the matter under review.

The Pentagon is examining operations at the wood-paneled "SecDef's mess," the dining room serving meals to the Secretary of Defense and his senior staff of several hundred.

Staffers pay $4 to $12 for lunch and the operation pays for itself — if you don't count $460,000 a year in salaries for the staff of 24.

"They'd be working somewhere else in the military if they weren't working here, so we don't include their pay" in the dining room costs, said Defense Department spokesman Glenn Flood.

Even the Federal Reserve — which is independent of the president's control — is taking Clinton's directive to heart.

The agency's top-floor dining complex includes a cafeteria for regular employees, a staff dining room for higher-level officers, and private dining rooms each for Chairman Alan Greenspan and the Board of Governors. In addition, there are three other small dining rooms for business meetings.

The meal prices are modest, and subsidized from the Fed's income, which comes mostly from interest on Treasury securities that the Federal Reserve system holds. The cost for maintaining the staff dining room is $55,000 a year, said Fed spokesman Joseph R. Coyne.

"In response to the president's directives, we have those subsidies under review," Coyne said.

Some dining rooms have been treated as off-limits to the public. The State Department refused to let a photographer take a picture of its eighth-floor executive dining room, and would not give a reason for the rebuff.

At Treasury, de Vore initially granted a request to photograph the tastefully decorated facility, then changed his mind a few hours later, saying a photo wouldn't be "proper" and that he wasn't "comfortable" about it.

Several days later de Vore did an about-face and allowed the photographer — the day after Clinton aides permitted the press to videotape the White House mess.

Veterans Affairs Secretary Jesse Brown abolished the department's 2-year-old executive dining room almost as soon as he got in office, saying "if it's too good for the average employee, then it's too good for me and my top staff."

"This is just great; I think the Cabinet heads should associate with the rest of the workers," said Barbara Jones, a secretary at the veterans affairs department.

For government watchdog groups like the National Taxpayers Union, the change in the executive dining room is "a very small start — but symbolically it's an important gesture," spokesman Pete Sepp said.

(From 1A)

Commission (TYC) until he is 18 and serve the remainder of the sentence in the Texas Department of Corrections.

After his TYC time, the presiding juvenile judge may shorten or dismiss the TDC time after reviewing the sentence and the youngster's behavior.

Local officials are not aware of when and if a "determinate sentence" has been conducted in Midland County.

The teen-ager could have been certified, and subsequently tried, as an adult, or tried as a juvenile. An adult prison sentence sends an offender, despite the age, to TDC, and the maximum punishment for a juvenile would have been TYC until 18 years old.

To allow a trial as the type scheduled, the proceeding had to be approved by a grand jury on the request of the county attorney.

Unlike most juvenile hearings closed to the public before a six-person jury, a "determinate sentence" trial is open to the public.

The proceeding is "classified as a civil but all rules are criminal," according to County Attorney Mark Dettman.

The proceeding will be heard in the County Court At Law before juvenile Judge Al Walvoord, who expects the trial to last about three days.

Defending the youth will be Tom Morgan, a privately hired attorney.

The youngster, a Midland High School student, was arrested for trying to solicit the murder of a fellow male student of about the same age, Dettman said.

An acquaintance who was approached to carry out the criminal deed, informed police.

The accused was placed in Culver Youth Home for about 10 days and then placed under the equivalent of house arrest in the custody of his parents. The youngster can leave his home only to go to school at Culver, attend church, or visit his doctor or attorney.

Pending a conviction, the defense is expected to present about 10 witnesses during the punishment phase.

The youngster does not have a prior criminal record, Dettman said.

Dettman advocated an advantage of a "determinate sentence" trial over an adult hearing: "At least he can get counseling at TYC" if convicted.

OIL: OPEC agrees to cut production

weak oil prices, which are running more than $3 a barrel under the cartel's target of $21 per 42-gallon barrel.

Light sweet crudes in the United States and Europe generally are several dollars a barrel higher.

To buoy prices, Saudi Arabia, the cartel's most influential member, wants all the members to share equally in any reductions.

But Kuwait, Indonesia and Algeria reportedly object to this. Kuwait does not want to reduce much, if at all. It argues that it needs to earn as much as possible from oil revenues to pay for the $50 billion spent on the Gulf War and reconstruction.

With Kuwait bouncing back from the war, some nations argue that oil giants Saudi Arabia and Iran should make the most cuts.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Via Associated Press

Chance of rain in forecast

Staff report

Today's forecast calls for cloudy skies with a 50 percent chance of rain, a high in the upper 50s and winds east to southeast 10-15 mph, according to the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport.

Tonight is predicted to be cloudy with a 40 percent chance of showers and thunderstorms and a low in the low 40s.

Monday's forecast is mostly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of light rain, with a high near 65, turning windy and colder in the afternoon, the NWS said.

Saturday's high was 71, compared to the record high of 83, set in 1962. The record low for today's is 15, set in 1951.

STATE

Saturday's clouds could bring rain and thunderstorms to many parts of Texas on Valentine's Day.

Low-level moisture streamed into South Texas Saturday as southeast winds blew across the region at speeds of 15 mph to 25 mph.

Temperatures were in the 70-degree range under mostly cloudy skies.

Mid-level clouds moved into North Texas from the southwest, leaving scattered rain showers over the eastern one-third of the area.

In the rest of the region, overcast skies hampered the rising mercury with temperatures climbing only into the 50s in most places.

Although high clouds were on the increase over West Texas, partly sunny skies prevailed in most locations. Temperatures were in the 40s across the Panhandle and mainly in the 50s and 60s elsewhere.

The forecast calls for increasing cloudiness across the state today, with showers and thunderstorms expected in most areas.

Evening temperatures will dip into the 30s and 40s — down to the 20s in the Panhandle, and highs across the state are expected to climb into the 50 and 60s, reaching the 80s in South Texas.

NATION

A winter storm lingered in the Northeast, and light snow fell on parts of the Midwest on Saturday.

The storm, which deposited heavy snow across much of the Northeast throughout Friday and into Saturday morning, had moved east off the Maine coast by Saturday afternoon.

Snowfall amounts in Massachusetts on Saturday ranged from 4 to 8 inches in the interior sections and 1 to 3 inches from the state's South Shore to Cape Cod.

Six inches of snow fell at Norwalk in northwest Connecticut. Some 10,000 homes were without power because of the storm.

Up to 8 inches of new snow fell Saturday morning in central New York state, while 2 to 3 inches was reported in northern West Virginia. Friday's heavier snowfall left more than a foot in some spots, particularly northern New England.

Light snow also fell across western Montana, parts of the Dakotas, eastern Nebraska, southern Minnesota and Wisconsin, western Illinois and parts of the Ohio Valley.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Midland statistics

FORECAST:

Today: Cloudy, 50 percent chance of rain, high in the upper 50s, winds east to southeast 10-15 mph.

Tonight: Cloudy, 40 percent chance of showers and thunderstorms, low in the low 40s.

Monday: Mostly cloudy, 20 percent chance of light rain, high near 65, windy and colder in the afternoon.

Clinton finishes economic plan details

In a radio address from the Oval Office, Clinton sought to reassure middle-class Americans they would be fairly treated in the plan he unveils Wednesday. At the same time, he primed them for what are sure to be proposals for higher taxes and spending cuts.

■ Related story/14A

"We will demand that those who see the tax code as a table game to be won rather than a social compact to be respected pay their fair share of taxes," Clinton said. "I will keep my pledge to restore fairness to the tax code. We will raise taxes on the wealthiest individuals and companies in our society."

It was Clinton's second weekly radio address. Both have hewed to the theme that he would seek the biggest sacrifice from the wealthiest Americans.

Earlier Saturday, Clinton met separately with his economic team and with Democratic House members to discuss the economic plan.

Rep. Albert Wynn, D-Md., said the president indicated to legislators that 40 percent of Americans would not have their taxes increased under the economic package.

Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., came out of the legislators' meeting praising the president for a commitment to cut government spending.

"After Wednesday night, if he gives the same message that he gave to us, I think this country is going to be poised for great economic recovery," he said.

Rep. Sanford Bishop, D-Ga., said Clinton sent a message that "tough, bitter medicine" is needed. The freshman congressman added that many legislators were just returning from town hall meetings with constituents who "want something done, they just want it done fairly."

CLINIC: Junior League operates dental program

vice. When Casa De Amigos was remodeled in 1990, nothing was moved in the dentists' offices.

"We just left the chairs in place and built around them," said Lael Cordes-Pitts, director of Casa De Amigos. "It was just going to be too difficult to unhook and move the equipment."

The clinic is operated by the Junior League, which reimburses Casa De Amigos for utilities and telephone use. In addition to the facility, Casa De Amigos also provided the clinic with a dental assistant this year.

"She is a Casa employee," Mrs. Cordes-Pitts said. "We hired her to help out the dentists with patients' procedures."

The Junior League spent $5,184 for the clinic this past year, although the projected cost for 1993-'94 is expected to drop to $5,064.

"The majority of the cost is dental supplies, which ran at $1,850 this year, and utilties, which cost $1,620," Ms. Priddy said.

But, the Junior League does not just invest money in the program. The clinic, aside from the dental procedures, is run solely by the members of the organization.

Ms. Priddy is in charge of scheduling the dentists who volunteer for the clinic.

"We go through and ask the doctors who volunteered the previous year if they will do it again," she said. "We have 16 dentists this year, the same that volunteered last year.

"Then, after I have the list, I usually schedule each doctor for two times during the year," she added. "They are really good about working with us on the schedule."

She is also in charge of screening referrals from school nurses to the parents.

"Only school nurses can refer the children," she explained. "Annette Hansen, the coordinator of nurses in the school district, will send us a list of the most acute cases. We then send an appointment card home to the parents and the individual school nurses do the same."

In addition to Ms. Priddy, three other members receive the mail and four work at the clinic as business managers and health instructors. The business managers check in patients and schedule appointments, while the health instructors help the patients brush their teeth prior to an examination and educate the children on proper dental hygiene.

The clinic operates from 5:45-8 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays for three weeks a month.

"We don't have the clinic during the week of the Junior League meeting," Ms. Priddy said. "And, we follow the school calendar, so when school is out, so are we."

Although Midland Independent School District officials estimate that approximately 700 children in the district are eligible for the program, only 150-170 are seen each year.

"We try to see as many as possible, but it's very difficult," Ms. Priddy said. "Not only do we have limited supplies and time constraints, each child who comes through here usually has to have at least three visits before their problem is totally taken care of. That cuts down a lot of the amount we can see."

It's frustrating at times," she added. "It's a wonderful service, but we're only scratching the surface. There are a lot more children out there who will never get seen and that is hard to deal with."

HAPPY: Some dentists see youth in their own offices

work, are required. Then, the dentist must cut into his own regular schedule to help the patient.

However, most are willing and happy to do it.

"I really enjoy helping out these kids," said Dr. John Barroso, who has volunteered for the clinic for 12 years. "Sometimes I have to bring a patient into my office for more extensive work than just filling a cavity. But, I figure working at the clinic usually two times a year is not much for me. Whatever I can do is a lot for the community."

Barroso said it is also helpful to his patients and their parents that he is biligual.

"It comes in real handy because a lot of the parents don't even speak English," he said.

Most of the dentists who have volunteered at the clinic started because of the exposure, Barroso said.

"A lot of the doctors that were invited to participate were those just trying to start their practices," he explained. "So, it was nice community PR work, as well as helping people."

An example is Dr. Brent Huckabay, who was invited to join the clinic when he moved to Midland six years ago.

"Junior League approached me about volunteering for the clinic," he said. "It was a great way to build up my practice and help these kids."

Huckabay said he sees anywhere from six to 12 patients in one night.

"Toward the end of the year, they really start pouring in," he said. "What we do is so important, so valuable. A lot of kids probably would not have any other form of care unless they came here."

Huckabay said in addition to taking care of the child's dental emergencies, the clinic doctors and volunteers try to educate the patients on how to brush properly and take care of their teeth.

"Education is the key to stopping their problems," he said. "Our goal is to keep them from having to come in through prevention."

PARENTS: Families can't afford regular dentist

(From 1A)

Vanessa was referred to the clinic by her school's nurse after a badly decayed tooth broke off while she was eating. Even though she needed immediate attention, Ms. Reyes could not find a dentist who would see Vanessa that night.

"No dentist would see her that late, so the nurse suggested here," she said. "We came here that night and they pulled the tooth."

Vanessa was in for her second visit due to five cavities found during her first visit.

"I couldn't take her to a regular dentist because I wasn't able to pay off my dentist," she said. "The problem is money is tight and the convenience, both. I can't afford to pay off a regular dentist and she needed immediate attention."

Nine-year-old Michael Skinner, slumped beside his mother, Barbara, didn't look very happy about having to have a cavity filled.

"He went to school with a toothache and the school nurse found a cavity," Mrs. Skinner said.

She agreed with Ms. Reyes that the clinic was very important to people in her financial situation.

"This program is pretty good for someone who can't pay for a dentist," she said. "I would not have been able to have taken him to a regular dentist. I can't afford it and we had insurance until my husband lost his job."

All the children who visit the clinic have to be referred by a school nurse who decides if the child is in immediate need of dental care, such as 15-year-old Susan Vidal, who had never been to a dentist before.

Susan's mother, Stephanie, who does not speak English, said with the help of her daughter's translation, that she thought the clinic was good because it did not cost a lot, so she was able to have her daughter's teeth checked.

Sonya Medearis, whose 7-year-old son Damian was a first-time patient, agreed.

"I am most definitely glad that this is set up," she said. "I couldn't take him to a regular dentist."

GOALS: President lets advisers thrash out policy

shared goals."

"I think that not only is what Clinton intends but also what they are trying to do," Duberstein said.

Collegiality aside, some of the more innovative policy may come from an unusual source — the Pentagon.

Early signs included Aspin's selection of strong subordinates and his call for an overhaul of the Defense Department that not only will streamline the Pentagon's bureaucracy but bring it into areas on the State Department's turf, such as promoting human rights and democratization abroad.

"He's structuring the Defense Department to play an active role in national policy," said David Newsom, who served as an undersecretary of state in the Carter administration.

Aspin, once a young aide to Defense Secretary Robert McNamara, could imitate McNamara's influence on a quieter Dean Rusk at the State Department during the Kennedy administration, said Fred Greenstein, presidential scholar at Princeton's Woodrow Wilson School of Government.

"I think the image here is that you have a brainy academic (Lake) in the NSC, a highly conceptual person (Aspin) in defense and a . . . responsible, conventional thinker without much of a 'vision thing' (Christopher) in Foggy Bottom," Greenstein said.

Many believe Clinton chose Christopher, a self-effacing 67-year-old lawyer, because he wanted not a policy innovator but someone to keep foreign crises from boiling over while he concentrates on the economy.

But there are enough bright lights under Christopher at the State Department and under Lake on the National Security Council staff to produce their share of the administration's bold new ideas.

Those mentioned most frequently are Samuel "Sandy" Berger, the deputy national security adviser and longtime Clinton friend; Peter Tarnoff, nominated as the No. 3 man at the State Department, and Frank Wisner, tapped by Aspin to take on the important new defense policy position at the Pentagon.

Ambassador Madeleine Albright at the United Nations, CIA director James Woolsey and, at least until he decides to step down, Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, also should play key roles.

As Haiti, the Middle East and Bosnia already seem to have demonstrated, Clinton seems prepared to let the administration's foreign policy network thrash out policy until he can enter the fray at the very end when a few serious options are put on the table for review.

Eventually, Clinton will want to make his own mark on foreign policy, predicted William Kaufman of the Brookings Institution, who has advised every defense secretary for two decades.

Collector pays $1,500 for Tibetan cheese

LONDON (AP) — A British collector coughed up $1,500 Wednesday for a handful of smelly brown Tibetan cheese that is said to be 200 years old.

"I have had a quick sniff of it though and I wouldn't be surprised if it is even older than 200 years," said Simon Perry, who will add the hardened ounce of Tibetan cheese to a collection of several thousand cheeses he keeps in the cellar of his house.

John Nurden, a spokesman for Perry, described the cheese as "horrible. It's dark brown. It looks like a dried chestnut, all shriveled and shrunken."

Perry, host of a children's television show, outbid Pierre Bruno of ISIGNY, Cheeses of Normandy for an assortment of Tibetan artifacts that included a prayer wheel and the cheese. Bruno wanted the cheese for the company's museum, Sotheby's auctioneers said.

"I have always loved cheese ever since I was a kid and started eating cheese triangles (soft cheese wrapped in triangle-shaped foil packets)," said Perry.

Geneva bans dwarf-tossing

GENEVA (AP) — Dwarf-tossing has been banned in Geneva after a nightclub's plan to stage it sparked protests.

Dwarf-tossing is a "violation of human dignity," endangers performers and spectators and could trigger violent disputes between supporters and opponents, Bernard Ziegler, police chief of the Swiss canton, said in an order Tuesday.

Charles-Yves Gavillet, manager of the Velvet Club, had planned a one-night show next month.

"Mothers of dwarfs, invalids, people working with the handicapped called me to protest," he told a local newspaper. The Swiss Association of People of Small Height also complained.

2nd Bosnian city plans to block aid until eastern towns fed

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — A second city promised to join Sarajevo and reject aid shipments Saturday, further fraying relations between the government and relief agencies struggling to end the suffering in Bosnia.

U.N. and Western officials condemned the decision to impose a virtual hunger strike on the capital. Bosnian leaders apparently took the extreme move to protest what they call inadequate international efforts to end the ethnic bloodshed in the former Yugoslav republic.

Sarajevo officials, backed by the Bosnian government, said Friday they would not distribute donated food until besieged Bosnians in the east are fed. Fighting and Serb soldiers have blocked U.N. convoys from reaching several towns in eastern Bosnia for months.

The 90 distribution centers around Sarajevo were quiet Saturday.

The United Nations canceled aid flights into the city, where fighting raged all day around the airport and shells battered the city center. A U.N. official said trucks would only deliver relief for two more days, and that some of the donated food was already spoiling.

The Bosnian army, meanwhile, told the United Nations that warplanes from Serbia were flying combat missions against the eastern Bosnian town of Srebrenica, and that 56 people had been killed and 118 wounded in the past month.

There was no independent confirmation. A no-fly zone was declared over Bosnia last October, but there are no enforcement provisions.

Officials in Tuzla, 50 miles northeast of the capital, said future aid to the town would be blocked to show solidarity with the tens of thousands of hungry Bosnians under Serb siege across the republic, said U.N. spokesman Sergio Appolonio in Zagreb, Croatia.

Tuzla has become a haven for thousands of Mulsim refugees from eastern Bosnia.

International aid officials promised to try again to reach eastern areas and said a truck convoy would head for the town of Cerska on Sunday.

Bosnian radio said 166 people have starved recently in Cerska, which has been isolated since the war began last spring. But Bosnian reports of mass starvation have been disputed by U.N. officials in the past.

More than 18,000 people have died and more than 1 million have lost their homes since Serbs went to war against Muslims and Croats who seceded from Serb-dominated Yugoslavia nearly one year ago. Harsh economic sanctions against Yugoslavia for backing the rebels have not ended the war, and a peace plan proposed by international mediators is foundering.

Some said that blocking food shipments would backfire and only add to the suffering in Bosnia.

"If the supplies are kept from Sarajevo, everybody will die here," said Gen. Philippe Morillon, the commander of U.N. forces in Sarajevo.

"I hope the person responsible for this decision will decide to fast to the death himself," he said.

A 21-year-old Sarajevo woman who identified herself only by her first name, Jasna, called it a "very bad and stupid idea."

"The Western world knows, but just doesn't care, and if we stop getting food, that won't help people in eastern Bosnia."

Volcanoes continue to rumble in Philippines

LEGAZPI, Philippines (AP) — A killer volcano rumbled and belched ash Saturday, and officials ordered 6,000 more people out of villages near its slopes.

About 2,800 miles to the southeast, a volcano erupted in the Solomon Islands, forcing the evacuation of more than 300 people. Both volcanos are in the Pacific's Ring of Fire, a volatile area of volcanic eruptions and earthquakes triggered by colliding plates of the Earth's crust.

The evacuees in the Philippines will join about 57,000 people already living in 52 emergency shelters in the Legazpi area, just south of the volcano. The evacuations began after the volcano, Mayon, erupted on Feb. 2, killing 68 people.

No casualties have been reported since Mayon resumed its eruptions Friday after a 10-day lull.

Volcanologist Ronaldo Arboleda said Saturday's activity was less intense than Friday's but that it was too early to say whether the volcano was quieting down.

"It may be storing up energy for a bigger eruption," he said.

Most of the evacuees are poor farmers whose lives are periodically threatened by Mayon, which has erupted 45 times in recorded history.

Maria Miravite, 42, a farmer's wife, said her 12-year-old son was killed in a volcanic avalanche after a 1984 eruption. She has adopted a 3-year-old girl, whose father and brother are missing and presumed dead after the Feb. 2 explosion.

"We are very much afraid of Mayon," she said.

The volcano in the Solomon Islands started billowing clouds of smoke and ash on Thursday.

The country's National Disaster Council said an eruption on Saturday forced the evacuation of more than 300 villagers. No casualties were reported.

The volcano, which last erupted in 1939, is on Simbo Island, 270 miles northwest of capital of the island chain, Honiara. Two thousand people live on Simbo Island.

Iraqis are cooperating, U.N. arms inspectors say

BAGHDAD, Iraq (NYT) — The latest U.N. weapons inspection team to arrive in Iraq completed its first day of work Saturday, and the team leader said the Iraqis had not interfered.

"The Iraqis are doing their job," said Patrice Palanque of France, who is leading a 13-member team of ballistic missile specialists. "When we are asking them to do something which can help us to do it in a fast manner we have no problem with that."

The team, in Iraq on an eight-day mission, received a cold reception when it arrived Friday. The high-level Iraqi escort that usually meets weapons inspectors was not at the airport, and the members' visa applications were processed slowly.

Baghdad's attitude toward weapons inspectors is seen as a crucial test of whether it is serious about improving its ties with the West and the United Nations.

The inspection group, the 50th to come to Iraq since the Persian Gulf war, began their mission Saturday.

Colombia hardens line in hunt for drug lord

BOGOTA, Colombia (NYT) — In his first two years as president of Colombia, Cesar Gaviria did his best to make peace with Pablo Escobar, the leader of the Medellin cocaine cartel, trying to stop the drug-related violence that made every Colombian a potential victim.

He allowed Escobar to dictate the terms of his own surrender and turn his jail into a luxurious villa. But Escobar escaped in July during a bungled attempt by the government to move him, and now a new wave of violence has hit the country.

With the Medellin cartel once again killing people in a series of bombings, Gaviria is taking a new tack.

"Without doubt, Colombia's No. 1 problem is the narco-terrorism of Escobar," he said in a recent interview at the presidential palace.

The president dismissed the possibility of further negotiations, saying Colombia now has the judicial and military tools to capture and convict the drug boss.

"Even though we've returned to the era of bombings, Colombian society is more prepared than it was three years ago," he said. "Today we have witnesses, we can solve crimes, identify those responsible and obtain convictions."

In the last six months, security forces have arrested scores of Escobar's associates, killed five more and conducted some 6,000 house-to-house searches, on several occasions coming within moments of capturing the Medellin kingpin.

The government has increased the bounty on Escobar's head from $4 million to $7 million, $2.5 million of which is being offered by the U.S. government.

In addition, the authorities have issued a decree allowing judges to reduce or cancel the jail sentences of any criminal who provides valuable information in the fight against drug cartels.

But the policy of confrontation has provoked the wrath of Escobar, who finds himself increasingly isolated yet more disposed than ever to use violence to achieve his goals.

"Pablo Escobar is on a dead-end street," said Rodrigo Losada, a political scientist at Javeriana University in Bogota. "He knows that if he surrenders again he'll probably get killed, so he's trying to intimidate society into granting him amnesty."

The Semana newspaper published an interview recently with five of Escobar's former hit men who described the cartel purges in detail.

"The slightest doubt about anyone would result in his immediate execution," said one man, whom Semana did not identify by name. "In December alone at least 20 of his bodyguards were killed."

CIA suspect fled after warning from U.S. friend, officials say

QUETTA, Pakistan (AP) — The Pakistani who is the prime suspect in the killing of two CIA employees was tipped off that U.S. agents were looking for him, authorities said Saturday.

Mir Aimal Kansi, 28, had returned to his family's home in Quetta on Jan. 28, three days after the shooting deaths outside CIA headquarters in McLean, Va. He is suspected of killing two employees and wounding three as they drove into the compound.

On Saturday, a senior Pakistani law enforcement official said on condition of anonymity that a friend of Kansi in the United States told him on Monday that the FBI was looking for him.

That was the day Kansi disappeared from his home in Quetta. The FBI publicly identified him as a suspect on Wednesday.

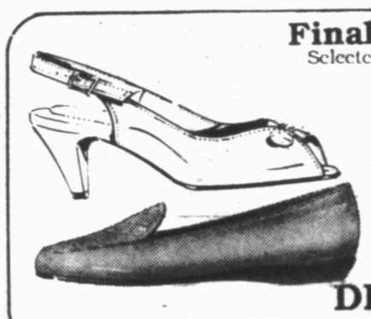

Kansi had lived in the United States for nearly two years, working at a courier service that made deliveries to the CIA. He did not have clearance to enter the headquarters.

Pakistani officials say they have been unable to find a motive linking the CIA shootings and Kansi. He had no criminal record and was not involved in any militant political groups while studying English literature at Baluchistan University, they said.

Quetta was a center for the CIA's covert operations during the 14-year civil war in neighboring Afghanistan. It also is a center of drug trafficking and weapons smuggling to Afghanistan and Iran.

Somali children face years of hardship, relief workers say

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — Looking miniature even for a 2-year-old, Hawo Mumin Muse burst into tears as four hands held her head and a syringe shot medicine down her throat.

Some would call her lucky to survive in this land where violence, famine and disease have killed hundreds of thousands of children.

But relief workers say years of hardship await the lost generation of Somali children who watched their families die as their nation crumbled.

Teen-aged boys roam the streets of this battered capital, stealing to survive. Younger children play amid the garbage and human waste, or, like Muse, wait at clinics for food and medicine.

"You're talking about a generation that has been acutely handicapped and also is traumatized," said Mike McDonagh of the relief agency Irish Concern. "Not only do you have a lost generation, you have thousands who have no parents and for the next 10 years are going to be on their own. . . . The problem is huge."

The few statistics available show death has claimed as many as two out of three children under five years old in some areas. Nationwide, a 25 percent child death rate is considered conservative.

Tens of thousands of others were orphaned and left homeless by two years of clan warfare and starvation that followed the 1991 collapse of the government. Older boys learned how to fight instead of how to read and write.

"We know that most of the younger ones are dead," said Marian Sidow Abuker, 25, who lost one of her three children. "We hope that if things are alright, we can have other ones."

A U.S.-led military effort began in December to restore order so relief agencies could distribute emergency food, medicine and supplies to millions of people throughout the devastated country.

That has lowered the death rate, but relief agencies will be asking donors next month for hundreds of millions of dollars to start rebuilding schools, hospitals, roads and the rest of the battered infrastructure.

How much of the money will address the social needs of surviving children is unclear. Relief workers appear divided over whether they should continue focusing on emergency life-saving or shift to broader-based programs.

"There still is an emergency, particularly in central and southern Somalia," said Ian Macleod of the United Nations Children's Fund. "The perception is kids dying of starvation. They're dying because the immune system has become weakened, and they've become susceptible to diseases."

UNICEF has launched a measles vaccination campaign aimed at immunizing 800,000 children while also providing a vitamin supplement and rehydration fluids to battle diarrhea.

Alain Mourey, a nutritionist for the International Committee of the Red Cross, warned of long-term damage from malnourishment. Severe malnutrition that lasts a year or longer can hurt a child's mental capacity and ability to get along with others, he said.

"If they can get into a correct social environment, they will be able to catch up," Mourey said. "Maybe not 100 percent, but they will get better."

But chances seem remote that many children will find a normal social environment soon in Somalia. Dr. Hussein Mursal, health adviser for the Save the Children Fund, said preliminary studies indicate mental problems in some children already.

Another problem is the lack of schools. Even before the fighting, which destroyed virtually all schools, the illiteracy rate was estimated at 85 percent and only 250,000 students were believed enrolled.

International mission seen as step in restoring Haitian democracy

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — In defending his country's initial resistance to an international observer mission, Haiti's foreign minister likes to cite independence hero Henri Christophe and his defiance of French colonialists.

In 1802, Christophe told French soldiers, "When you enter that city, you will find only ruins and ashes, and even from atop those ashes we will fight," recounts Foreign Minister Francois Benoit.

The observers, finally given clearance to arrive Sunday to monitor reports of human rights abuses, won't find a Haiti in ashes. But after years of political unrest and economic hemorrhage and 17 months of a crushing trade embargo, there's plenty in ruins.

A scarred, scared and bitterly divided country awaits the 40 civilian observers. Its roads are potholed, its buildings unpainted, its factories mostly empty. Its people seem exhausted by crisis.

But from both sides of the political split, some tentative expressions of hope and relief are being heard.

"The whole population wants a break," Benoit said in an interview Thursday. "It wants a break from violence, a break from poverty, a break from uncertainty."

The observer mission is seen as a first step toward restoring a fragile democracy shattered when the army ousted Jean-Bertrand Aristide, Haiti's first democratically elected president, in a September 1991 coup.

Many rank-and-file soldiers and rightist politicians remain fiercely opposed to the return of Aristide, an activist Roman Catholic priest who retains the support of Haiti's poor majority. Critics accuse him of egging on mobs that attacked and sometimes lynched his opponents.

Human rights groups say a vicious military-led campaign to repress Aristide's supporters has produced rampant rights abuses in Haiti. An estimated 300 to 500 people were killed in the days after the coup, and hundreds more have died since.

Benoit said military leaders and the military-backed government of Prime Minister Marc Bazin are committed to working with the observers to improve respect for human rights. The group, dispatched by the Organization of American States, includes 15 Americans, and will join 16 other OAS monitors confined to the capital since they arrived late last year.

Dozens of U.N. observers are expected to bolster the OAS group within weeks.

After many months of opposing the observer plan, military and government leaders gave the green light Tuesday in a pact with U.N. envoy Dante Caputo.

The agreement provides observers with less autonomy than originally envisioned by U.N. officials, and requires that they respect Haitian sovereignty and cooperate with Haitian authorities. U.N. officials say, however, that the observers still have sufficient authority to do their job.

Rebels rob relief plane in Sudan

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Two hundred armed rebels mobbed a relief plane in southern Sudan and robbed three U.N. workers and two aircraft crew members, the United Nations said Saturday.

Brenda Barton, a U.N. spokeswoman in Nairobi, said no one was injured in the attack Friday. Rebels stole personal belongings and medicine, Barton said.

Barton said the flight to Parayang was authorized by the Sudan Relief and Rehabilitation Association, the humanitarian wing of the Sudan People's Liberation Army faction loyal to Col. John Garang.

"Apparently the town changed hands without SRRA knowing," Barton said.

Rebels had mounted antiaircraft guns around the runway before the Cessna 208 landed from the northwestern Kenya border town of Lokochogio, she said.

On Saturday, Garang's group on Saturday blamed the Nasir faction of Riek Machal, but a spokesman for the group denied responsibility.

Barton said the U.N. staff had gone to review health and food requirements for the people of Parayang, a hungry and disease-ridden town 360 miles northwest of the regional capital, Juba.

Last month, UNICEF officials reported that an epidemic of the fly-borne kala-azar disease had killed as many as 60,000 people in two years.

As many as a million people have died from war and famine, and 6 million have fled their homes since civil war broke out 10 years ago.

The rebels took up arms to press for increased autonomy for the African and predominantly animist and Christian south, traditionally dominated by the Muslim and Arab north. The guerrillas divided into factions in 1991.

Soviets sink two nuclear-powered ships, report says

HAMBURG, Germany (AP) — The Soviet Union sank two nuclear-powered ships in the Baltic Sea, and the German government is worried about possible radioactive contamination, a news magazine reported on Saturday.

It was unclear whether radioactivity was leaking from the vessels, Der Spiegel said in a summary of a report in its next issue, to be released Monday. It said the sunken vessels were one civilian ship and one military ship.

The report did not say when the vessels were sunk.

The magazine gave no sources for its report, which it said was from early, scanty information made available to the German government.

The Soviets also disposed of contaminated reactor parts and nuclear waste in the Baltic, against all safety rules for dealing with radioactivity, Der Spiegel said.

The magazine said the German government feared that radioactive contamination could enter the food chain through fish in the Baltic.

Clinton to propose saving $35 billion by trimming Medicare

WASHINGTON (NYT) — President Clinton will seek at least $35 billion in savings from Medicare over the next four years by limiting payments to doctors and hospitals and by trying to increase premiums for elderly people with high incomes, administration officials said Saturday.

The proposed savings, three times what President George Bush sought unsuccessfully in 1992, are part of what Clinton describes as a bold program to reduce the deficit and its long-term burden on the U.S. economy. He will announce the outlines of that program in a speech to Congress on Wednesday, but the details may still be modified.

Taken together, the proposed tax increases and budget cuts in various federal programs will save $500 billion to $550 billion over five years, administration officials said. The last such exercise in austerity, the 1990 budget deal, was expected to save $496 billion over five years.

The savings in the Medicare program, which finances health care for 35 million elderly and disabled people, would, at first, be used mainly to help reduce the budget deficit rather than to expand health benefits for those without insurance, administration officials said.

Without any change in current law or policy . . . spending for Medicare will double, from $129 billion in 1992 to $259 billion in 1998.

Proposals for expanding coverage will be made as part of the president's national health-care plan, which he has promised to send Congress by May 1.

Administration officials say that Medicare and Medicaid, the health program for low-income people, must be part of any deficit-reduction plan because they account for nearly half of the projected increase in federal spending over the next five years. The government expects to spend $146 billion on Medicare this year and $80 billion on Medicaid, two of the biggest and fastest growing programs in the budget.

In the 1980s, Congress set standard Medicare rates for hospitals, and it established a national fee schedule for doctors, starting in 1992. But it did not stem the growth of federal spending on health care.

Without any change in current law or policy, the Congressional Budget Office estimates, spending for Medicare will double, from $129 billion in 1992 to $259 billion in 1998.

One proposal being considered by the administration would prevent doctors and hospitals from increasing charges to private patients to make up for income lost as a result of the new Medicare limits.

If Clinton seeks Medicare savings of the magnitude now envisioned by the White House, he is likely to face opposition from a small army of lobbyists for doctors, hospitals and the health-care industry.

Clinton has been laying the groundwork for his economic program by declaring that Americans need to make sacrifices for the common good. He will ask farmers, veterans, college students, middle-income families and corporate executives to share the sacrifice by paying higher taxes or giving up some of the government largess they receive.

Police charge four people with campus slayings

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Four people were arrested Saturday in connection with the fatal shooting of three men at Bethune-Cookman College, police said.

Two of the four are believed to have opened fire on the victims with handguns while they sat in a car on campus. The four were involved in a quarrel of some sort before the shootings, police said, but it wasn't known if the earlier incident also involved the victims.

A recording by the police department's public relations office offered few other details.

The four face three counts each of first-degree murder and one count each of attempted first-degree murder.

Police said on the recorded message that the four were involved in an altercation shortly before the Friday night shooting.

Authorities added that the victims may not have been involved in that dispute, but the gunmen may have mistaken them for the men they had quarrelled with.

Arrested were Patrick L. Ashley, 23, and his brother James B. Ashley, 20, Jesse A. Adams, 22, and another 20-year-old whose identity hasn't been confirmed.

Dead at the scene were Kenneth White, 18, a freshman, and David Thomas, 22, a former student. Henry Eaddy Williams, 18, also a freshman, died early Saturday of head wounds. Bernard Smith Jr., 24, was listed in stable condition Saturday with a bullet wound to the thigh.

The tightly knit college of about 2,300 students has been plagued by violence and random tragedy within the last year. With the latest deaths, nine students or alumni have been killed since June in shootings and auto accidents.

Until Friday, the appearance of the predominantly black college's gospel choir at President Clinton's inauguration had almost wiped out the memories of the earlier deaths.

"That gave the school a positive note, but for this to happen switches the whole school around," said 20-year-old freshman Vincent Holmes, who sang at the inaugural prayer service. "It happened at a bad time."

U.S. agents break counterfeiting ring

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — U.S. Secret Service agents say they have broken a ring of counterfeiters who they say made fake TCI Cable payroll checks and then cashed them in Utah.

Agents on Friday arrested John Robert Rush and impounded a computer and laser printer, according to KUTV in Salt Lake City.

Dennis Crandall, agent-in-charge with the Secret Service Salt Lake City office, said Rush was arrested in Dallas. Crandall said he was unsure whether Rush lived in Dallas or had ever been a Utah resident.

Authorities say Rush and two partners allegedly counterfeited bogus TCI Cable payroll checks. The checks were cashed in Utah in December.

"This apparently followed a pattern nationwide where they would target a metropolitan area and then go to another" to cash the checks, Crandall said.

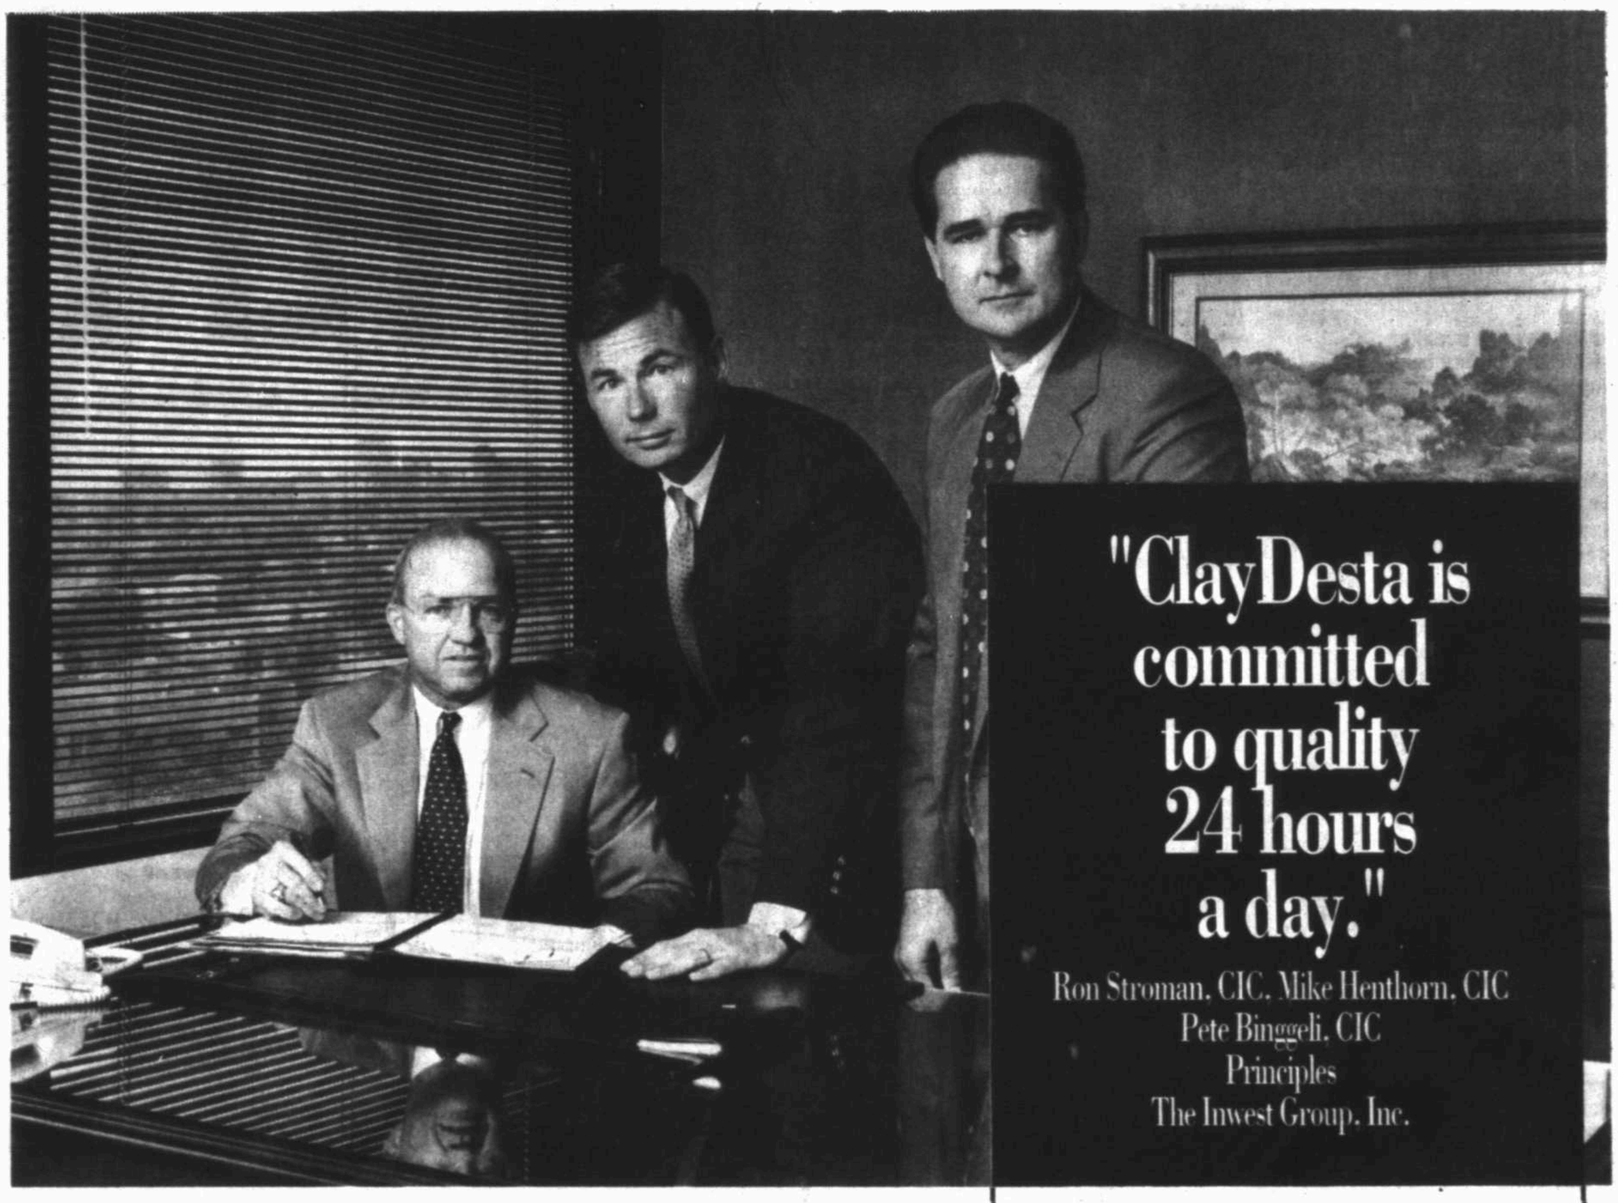

The counterfeiters are believed to have passed $500,000 in bad checks nationwide. Not all were TCI payroll checks, however, Crandall said.

Most of the checks were made out to fictitious names and were usually cashed at supermarkets.

Local police investigators helped the Secret Service crack the case. "They've been working this case all along the Wasatch Front for some time," he said.

Researchers link weather, seasons to deadly bleeding strokes

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Stormy weather appears to trigger deadly bleeding strokes in men, often in the late fall, while women are more vulnerable in the springtime, researchers reported Saturday.

Researchers are unsure why this happens, but they speculated that nasty weather may raise blood pressure and cause other changes that make arteries burst.

They found that a kind of strokes called subarachnoid hemorrhages are likely to occur at different times of the year in men and women. In men, about 40 percent of these strokes happen in November and December. Women have about 30 percent of them in April and May — and, unlike with men, weather changes don't seem to be a factor.

Subarachnoid hemorrhages are especially disastrous forms of stroke. They strike, usually without warning, when a weak spot in one of the arteries on the surface of the brain bursts open. These weak spots, called aneurysms, typically produce no symptoms until they break.

Each year, about 30,000 Americans suffer these kinds of strokes. Between one-third and one-half die immediately, while an additional third die despite medical care. Most of those who survive are seriously impaired.

Dr. Douglas Chyatte of Northwestern University Medical School presented the latest findings at a stroke conference sponsored by the American Heart Association.

His team analyzed all 1,487 subarachnoid hemorrhages that happened during the 1980s in Connecticut. They matched patient records with hourly weather reports.

Among the findings:

■ Most of the men's strokes during the decade occured in 14 clusters. Thirteen of these were within 72 hours of changes in the weather.

■ The weather changes that appeared to trigger the men's strokes were falling barometers, plunging temperatures and rain or snow.

■ Women's strokes fell into 39 clusters, but they were not linked with bad weather.

Chyatte said that since bad weather is unavoidable, his work does not suggest any immediate ways to ward off strokes.

"These strokes are catastrophic," he said. "Most of them give no warning. So the question of why this happens is important. If we knew what caused an aneurysm to rupture, then maybe we can help people before their brains blow out."

NASA to release photographs of Challenger crew cabin wreckage

N.Y. Times News Service

Seven years after the Challenger disaster killed seven astronauts, including a schoolteacher, the space agency has been forced to release some of the many photographs it took of the shuttle's pulverized crew cabin.

Forty-eight pictures of the wreckage, which was recovered from the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean off Cape Canaveral, Fla., appear to show nothing startling about the fate of the Challenger and its crew. But they could eventually help aerospace engineers design safer spaceships.

The photos were released on Feb. 3 to Ben Sarao, a New York City artist who had sued the National Aeronautics and Space Administration under the Freedom of Information Act for the pictures.

"I did it to help people understand what happened to that structure, and to help them learn how to build better ones," Sarao said in an interview.

NASA has shown great reluctance to release information about the dead crew members, their personal effects and the shuttle's cabin, citing the privacy interests of the crew's families.

Sarao filed his request in 1990. It was denied. After his appeal for a reversal was also denied, he sued NASA last year. The agency then released a limited selection of photos to him.

Jeff Vincent, a spokesman for the space agency, said that it was the first public release of such material and that the photographs had been screened to protect the privacy of the astronauts' families. He added that, under the law, the photos could now be released to anyone requesting them.

The crew cabins of the shuttles are cramped, three-level spaces 17½ feet high and slightly more than 16 feet wide. The cabins, made of aluminum alloy plates, comprise all of the astronauts' living and work areas, including the flight deck, and have 10 windows.

Photos taken by ground-based telescopes on Jan. 28, 1986, when the Challenger exploded shortly after its launching, show that the crew cabin survived the initial explosion and the general breakup of the ship's fuselage.

Engineers believe the cabin remained intact throughout its fall to earth, with some astronauts probably conscious until it crashed into the ocean at high speed. Searches of the ocean floor reportedly found only pieces of the cabin.

Prince Charles speaks at College of William & Mary

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Britain's Prince Charles paid tribute Saturday to the College of William & Mary on its 300th birthday and "the deep roots which link the history and the culture of our two nations."

Charles was the keynote speaker for the college's Charter Day celebrations. King William III and Queen Mary II granted a royal charter founding the school on Feb. 8, 1693.

"The first Virginians who sought crown support for a college in their colony ... saw very clearly the power and the value of education," the prince said.

All 10,500 seats in William & Mary Hall, a gymnasium where the school's basketball games are played, were packed for the prince's visit.

The visit was the only public appearance scheduled during Charles' three-day U.S. trip. He arrived Friday in Washington and was to stop in Houston on Sunday en route to Mexico.

In his speech, Charles urged the academic crowd to seek the true meaning of learning.

"There is something about the extreme technical ease of modern life, about the effortlessness and speed of modern communication, which seems to encourage shallowness and a lack of a sense of spirit, or fulfillment," he said.

"We become more knowledgeable. We are bombarded with news and information 24 hours a day," he said. "We certainly become more knowing. But we do not seem to become any more civilized, or any wiser."

William & Mary is the second-oldest college in the United States. Harvard University was founded in 1636.

Ted Kennedy Jr. to wed professor

BOSTON (AP) — Edward M. Kennedy Jr., the son of the Massachusetts senator, will marry a psychiatrist who teaches at Yale University, the senator's office announced Saturday.

Kennedy, 31, will marry Dr. Katherine Anne Gershman, said Melody Miller, a spokeswoman for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

They met three years ago at a chamber music recital at Yale. They were not willing to speak with reporters, Miller said.

The wedding will be in the fall, although no date or location has been set, she said.

Gershman, 33, is an instructor at Yale's School of Medicine and at the university's Department of Psychiatry. She also is an attending physician at the Connecticut Mental Health Center.

Kennedy directs a lead-removal program at the Yale medical school's pediatrics department.

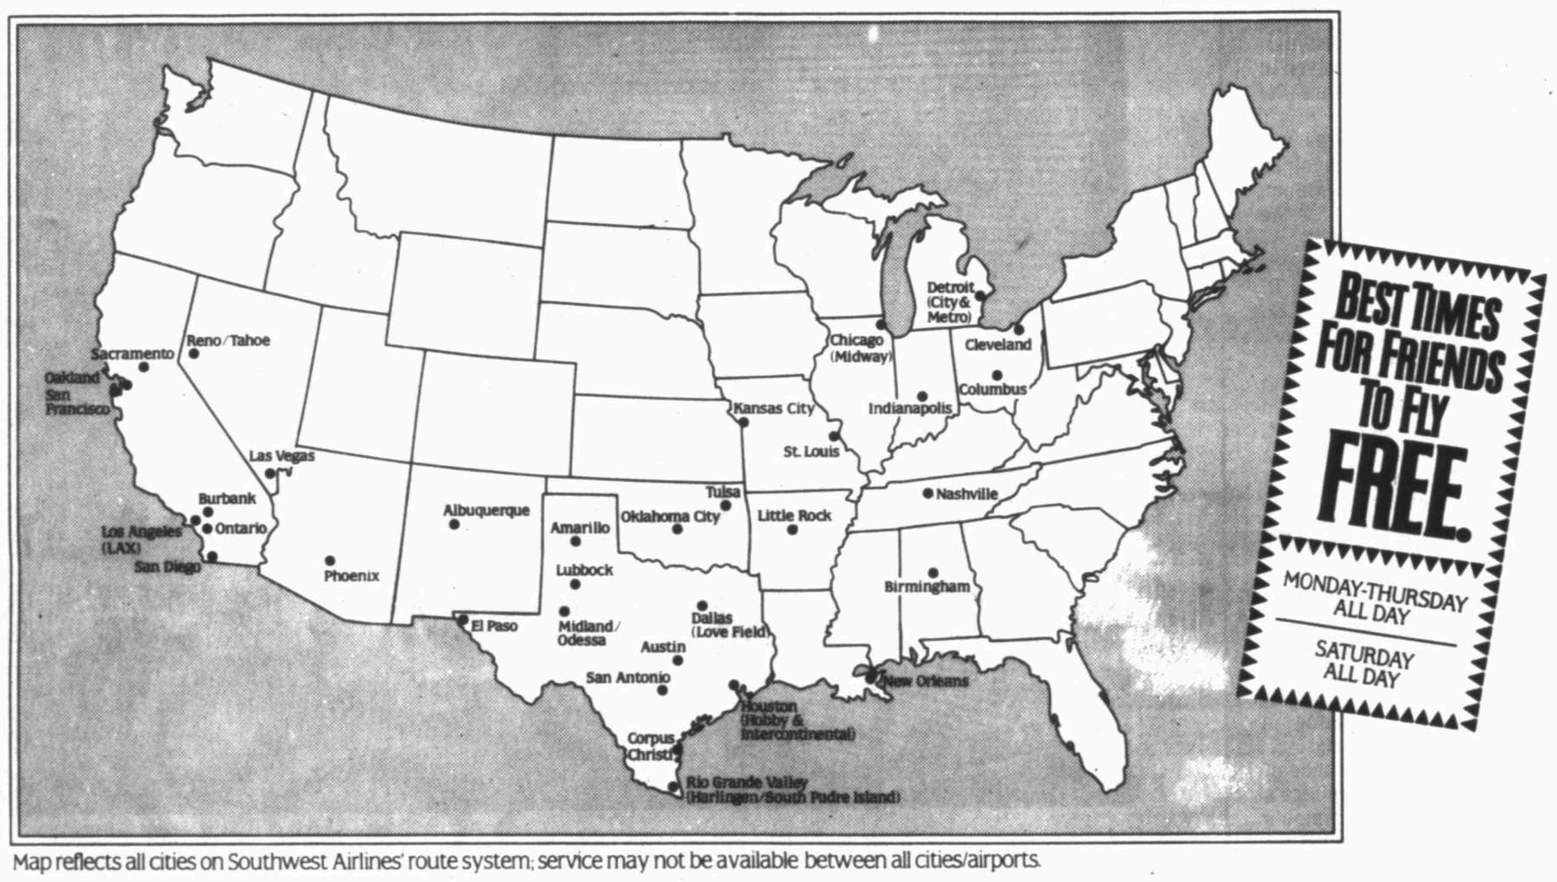

He is the second of three children of Sen. Kennedy and Joan Kennedy, who divorced in 1982. In July, the senator married Washington lawyer Victoria Anne Reggie.

Edward Jr., whose right leg was amputated at age 12 because of cancer, has been an activist for the rights of the disabled. He founded Facing the Challenge, a Boston-based advocacy group, and managed his father's 1988 re-election campaign.

Gore: 'Phony' figures forced changes in economic plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Al Gore on Saturday attacked the Bush and Reagan administrations' "phony" federal deficit projections, saying a higher estimated shortfall has forced dramatic changes in the economic package previously outlined by President Clinton.

"We found that the deficit estimates that they had talked about during the campaign were completely wrong," Gore said during an interview on CNN's "Newsmaker Saturday."

After Clinton's election, Gore said federal deficit estimates grew by an additional $50 billion annually over the next four years.

As a result, Gore said many of the new administration's economic assumptions "completely changed because the American people had not been given a true look at what our situation is."

"What we've had for the last 12 years have been phony numbers with assumptions that project things in the economy that nobody expects to take place," he said.

Gore declined to give details of Clinton's package, saying final decisions had not been made.

Clinton discussed the plan in a radio address Saturday and consulted with top economic advisers and congressional leaders.

The plan, which Clinton will unveil Wednesday, has two parts: a "stimulus" package of about $31 billion in new spending and investment tax breaks designed to boost the economy in the short run, and a mix of higher taxes and deep spending cuts designed to reduce the deficit in the long run.

Gore echoed the president in promising to eliminate perks and privileges to the wealthiest Americans, as well as unnecessary spending, while pushing for government and campaign finance reform and to restore fairness to the tax code.

"We're looking at things like an expansion of the earned income tax credit which will benefit working families and middle income families," Gore said.

Job creation remains a central objective of the program, he added.

Asked whether he had assured congressional supporters of the space station that there won't be hefty cuts in the project next year, Gore said, "the message got garbled a little bit."

"We're going to recommend a restructuring of the space station program to accomplish the same objectives as outlined in the program as it is currently on the books at significantly less cost in the 'out' years," he said.

In the near future, Gore said the administration would look at ways to avoid cost overruns.

Military leaders dispute suggestion they resist Clinton

WASHINGTON (AP) — First came the standard fare of military briefings: charts and maps filled with acronyms. Then, as a final word, came this extraordinary disclaimer: "This report is not the opening shot of an insurrection."

The long, detailed briefing by the Joint Chiefs of Staff, which coordinates military planning inside the Pentagon, was designed to explain its recommendations for ways to shrink and reorganize the military.

The recommendations did not go nearly as far as President Clinton and some in Congress have suggested in eliminating duplication of tasks by the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force. Rather than a roadmap for major change, it was an encyclopedia of reasons why big change is unnecessary or even dangerous.

Thus, apparently, the unusually public disavowal of disloyalty to the commander in chief, who thinks the post-Cold War military needs a shakeup and slimdown.

Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joints Chiefs, has been taking most of the heat recently for actions seen by some as resistance — even insubordination — to Clinton's push for change. He seemed mindful of that accusation, which he vehemently denies, when he led Friday's briefing for reporters.

He disputed the notion that he and the service chiefs had deliberately watered down the blueprint, called "Roles, Missions and Functions," as a challenge to Clinton and the armed services' civilian overseers.

"There was a suggestion that somehow the chiefs were all fighting against themselves so that there would be no change, and (that) this was a grand scheme to take on the new administration," Powell said. "That's just nonsense."

He said he and the service chiefs had wrestled with many difficult issues addressed in the report, and in some cases simply could not resolve them.

"This is no insurrection," Powell declared.

Powell seemed pained having to deny that he was at odds with Clinton. Earlier in the week, he took to the morning TV talk shows to deny a New York Times report that he wanted to retire early out of dissatisfaction with Clinton's policies.

Powell's report, which is required by Congress, recommended some organizational changes for the armed forces and the elimination of some weapons and facilities. But it gave a resounding "no" to suggestions made by some congressional Democrats and by Clinton during the presidential campaign that the services undergo radical change.

The Joint Chiefs chairman said he was ready to take new marching orders from Clinton, but that Friday's report had been prepared during the Bush administration.

President's economic plan offers quick gain but long-term pain

WASHINGTON (AP) — The economic package President Clinton unveils this week will seek to achieve two usually competing goals: boosting the economy and trimming the deficit. His prescription: an odd mix of short-term prizes and long-term grief.

And beyond the grief — if all works right — economic growth and prosperity. At least that's the theory Clinton has been preaching for the past 13 months.

Although the president says "tune in Wednesday" for details of his package, many major features have already emerged.

For the short run, he will propose a package of new spending and investment tax breaks to boost the economy — about $31 billion worth.

That's the sweetener before the sour medicine to follow: tax increases across the spectrum and cuts in many popular government services and programs.

Clinton has vowed to cut the annual deficit — soaring to an expected record $327 billion this year — by $145 billion after four years, although he told a group of business leaders several days ago that the range might be closer to $130 billion to $140 billion.

Either way, it's a big assignment.

Big corporations and wealthy individuals can expect to see their income tax rates going up significantly. And middle-class taxpayers will proportionately bear the brunt of a new broad-based energy tax.

Even elderly and lower-income Americans are not to be spared from what Clinton calls "contributing" to the campaign to ease decades of government overspending. His plan will include curbs on many government services and automatic benefit "entitlement" programs.

Social Security benefits will not be trimmed or frozen directly. But retired individuals who have earnings above $25,000 a year — or couples earning above $32,000 — will see a higher proportion of their benefits taxed — probably 85 percent instead of the current 50 percent.

And the Pentagon can expect deep cuts — some $8 billion in the first year below what the Bush administration had planned, and even bigger cuts in later years.

Some other popular programs also appear to be in line for a hit — including the superconducting supercollider, a giant Texas-based atom smasher; and possibly Space Station Freedom.

In a radio address on Saturday, Clinton said his plan would produce "a leaner, more efficient more responsive government" and would feature "a ladder of contribution that demands the most of those that have the most."

"Change is never easy. It requires us to foresake the old order and embrace a new one. Change means asking everyone to pull his or her own weight for the common good. But change is our only choice," he said.

Clinton deliberately leaked certain elements of his plan through the week, beginning Tuesday when he announced a 25 percent cutback in the White House staff. The next day, he announced a 14 percent reduction in adminstrative costs throughout the federal bureaucracy over the next four years and said he would eliminate 100,000 government jobs by attrition.

Clinton then used a nationally televised town-hall meeting in Southfield, Mich., on Wednesday to tell middle-class Americans, "I wish I could promise you I won't ask you to pay any more." It was an unmistakable sign that he will call for higher taxes for the middle class — in this case, an energy-consumption tax. It marked the final retreat from Clinton's onetime campaign promise for a "significant" middle-class tax cut.

Clinton then put corporate America on notice, telling business leaders Thursday that he would raise corporate income taxes and seek a tax-code change to curb excessive corporate salaries.

Clinton's plan will raise the top income tax rate for both individuals and cororporations to at least 36 percent. Households earning over $200,000 annually will pay the top rate instead of the current 31 percent. And personal incomes over $1 million a year will be subject to a surcharge, probably 10 percent.

Large corporations will see an increase in the corporate tax to 36 percent from the current 34 percent.

Clinton also will propose a reduction in the capital gains tax — to half the current top rate of 28 percent — for investments in small businesses held for five years or more.

Cable TV hopes to bring war to your livingroom

WASHINGTON (AP) — If tracer missiles thrill you and Scuds make your heart thud, don't touch that dial. The Military Channel is planning to bombard you with visions of war, 24 hours a day.

"Military and aviation are hugely popular," says Douglas Keeney, the visionary who hopes to give new meaning to the term "domestic warfare."

Keeney is betting there will be an audience for a cable TV channel devoted entirely to battle, war machinery and fighting men and women. John Wayne movies will have a prominent niche, he says.

So far, Keeney said from his office in Louisville, Ky., he's raised about $1 million of the $6 million to $7 million it will take to make the Military Channel a reality. The money is being spent in film production and getting programs ready for the debut late this year.

Whether he succeeds depends first on what happens with the cable TV law enacted last year. It limits cable companies' ability to raise rates.

"That really threw a monkey wrench into plans to add additional channels," said Michael Lustman of Time-Warner Cable, the second largest cable company. "It still is up in the air as to what kind of restrictions the Federal Communications Commission will put on cable TV operators' ability to raise prices."

A typical day of programming on the Military Channel might have a couple of classic war movies in the morning. There would be news in the evening and perhaps a Navy show called "Night Traps" about landing on carriers. Prime time would be devoted to World War II history, battle histories and documentaries.

"Instead of running present-day public service ads, we would run ones from the 1930s, 1940s and 1950s," Keeney said. "Old recruiting ads will come on."

And he's planning to run a series on the 8th Air Force in England in the 1940s called "Hurry Home, Honey."

Keeney also intends to cover breaking military news. For an incident like the Jan. 17 shootdown of an Iraqi plane by a U.S. F-16, he says, the Military Channel would go live to the breaking news and follow the story all day.

Clock keeps time to the nanosecond

NEW YORK (AP) — Two time zones west of here, in Boulder, Colo., the government's Institute of Time and Technology keeps an atomic clock that tells time down to the nanosecond, a billionth of a second. The people in the lab out there also talk casually of a picosecond, a trillionth.

Such clinical exactitude calls to mind the Roman poet Plautus, who was moved to comment, in 200 B.C., upon the astounding technology of his own time.

"Confound the man," he wrote, "who in this place set up a sundial to cut and hack my days so wretchedly into small portions."

Somewhere along the march of timekeeping, from the path of the sun to the pulse of the atom, the art — if not the science — of hacking up the day reached its poetic zenith with the town clock. At least that is the view of clockwatchers like Marvin Schneider.

New York revived a 19th-century job, and title, just recently when the mayor named Schneider as the city's official clock master.

It was high time. Schneider had been doing the job free for 12 years, ever since he ran out of patience gazing daily at the stopped clock in the old Met Life Building in lower Manhattan and went up and fixed it himself.

■ Bobby Hillin Jr. hopes to push his career to another level in today's Daytona 500.

Staff report

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — It has been a while since Bobby Hillin Jr. has lived in Midland and played football for the Midland High Bulldogs. But what the heck, Midland still claims him.

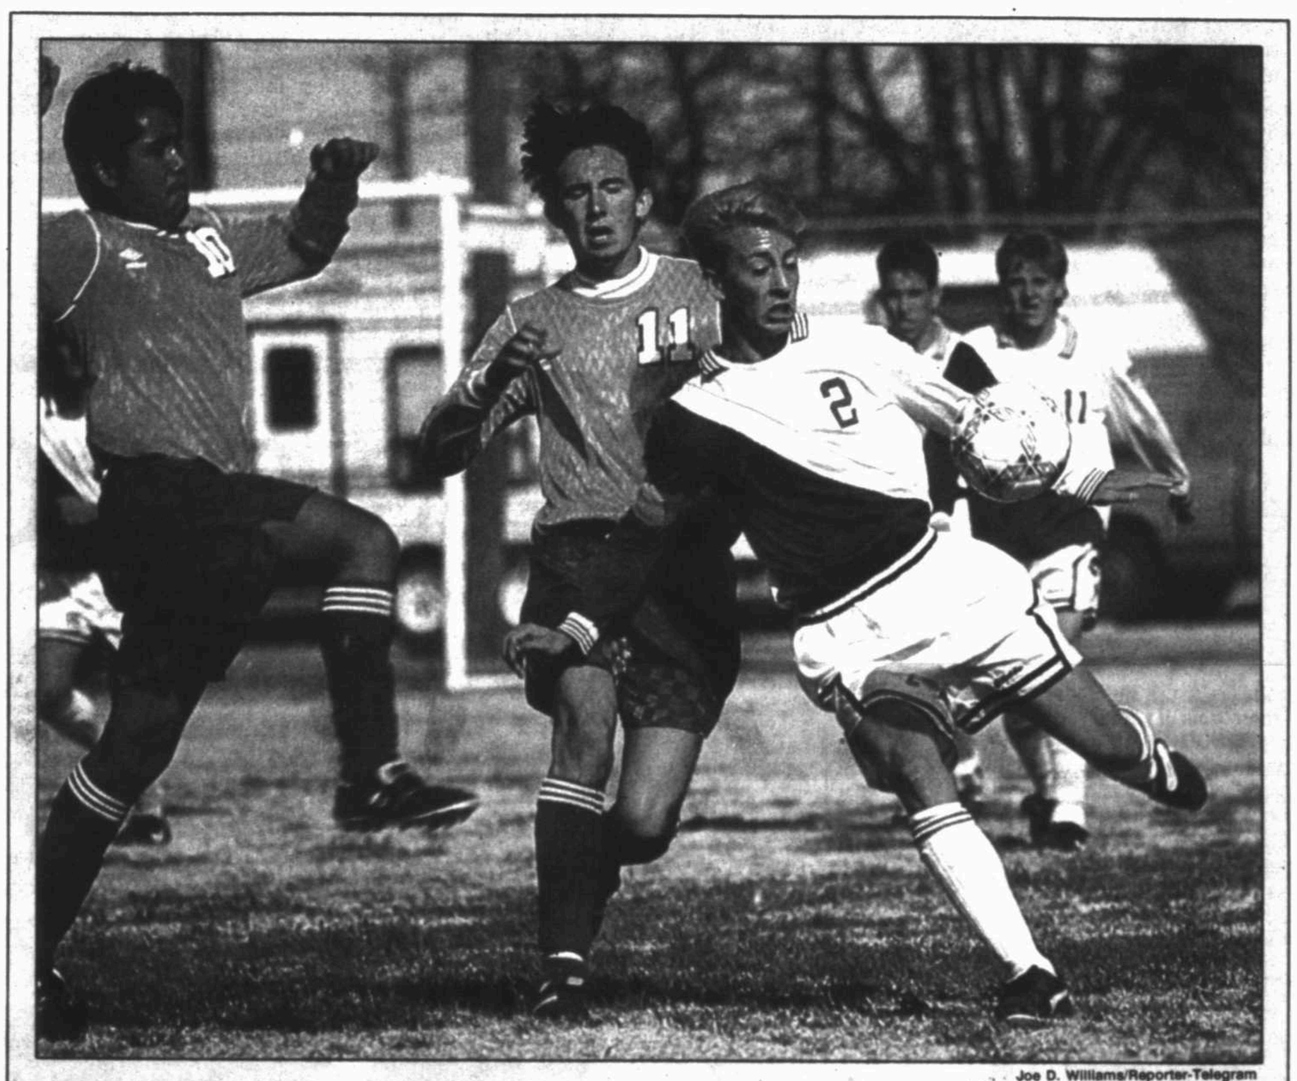

He isn't playing football anymore, but racing cars instead. Today he will be in the Daytona 500 with a new team (Heilig-Meyers Ford Thunderbird) and high hopes. And he is at home on this track.

And he has already obtained a lofty starting position for the race, qualifying in the ninth spot, a Top 10 start in NASCAR's season beginning race and

MHS skins 'Cats, 4-0

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant sports editor

With unexpected domination, the Midland High Bulldogs defeated San Angelo 4-0 Saturday afternoon to move into sole possession of second place in the District 5 soccer race.

So thorough was the beating the Bulldogs applied, San Angelo head coach Pete King was almost left speechless afterward.

"Write anything you want," King said. "They did everything. They have a really good team. And whatever our guys did last night, I'm not gonna let them do it again."

The win gives MHS a 4-1 league record, 10-1 overall. On Tuesday, district front-runner Abilene High (5-0, 13-0) visits the Bulldog soccer field. With a win, MHS would move into a first place tie with the Eagles.

Baseball re-focuses on Schott

Associated Press

CINCINNATI — More remarks by Cincinnati Reds owner Marge Schott are being examined by baseball's Executive Council, according to a report published Saturday.

In an interview Thursday on ABC television's "PrimeTime Live," Schott said she does not believe that the Nazi swastika is a symbol of evil or that blacks have a tougher time of it than whites in this country.

A former Reds employee, testifying for a lawsuit filed against Schott, had said Schott kept a Nazi swastika armband in a drawer at her home.

Baseball is examining remarks Schott made during the ABC interview, The Cincinnati Enquirer reported. It was not clear whether Schott could face additional punishment.

Last week, the council suspended Schott for one year beginning March 1 and fined her $25,000 for using slurs against blacks, Japanese and Jews. The council said her use of the terms had embarrassed baseball.

Schott is eligible for reinstatement after eight months, on Nov. 1, if she complies with terms of her suspension.

"Given her suspension and probation, she runs a terrible risk in giving interviews such as this," the newspaper quoted an unidentified source described as close to baseball's investigation as saying. "I don't know what purpose was served by her making those statements."

In the interview, Schott said she thinks that almost everyone has used racial slurs and that her situation has been blown out of proportion.

During the interview with Diane Sawyer, Schott blamed the media for talk accusing her of racism.

"It sounds like, to me, she still really doesn't understand," Arzell Nelson, director of the Cincinnati Human Relations Commission, said Friday.

USOC chastised for possible cuts

Associated Press

PHOENIX — The American dream collided with the bottom line Saturday as the U.S. Olympic Committee asked if it's better to send a full team to the Games or just the athletes who can make headlines.

The dream won, by a knockout.

On a non-binding straw ballot, the USOC's board of directors voted 97-21 to support the tradition that America's best athletes deserve to be Olympians, even if their chances for international success are virtually nil.

During the hour-long debate, speaker after speaker trooped to the microphones to argue that depriving athletes of Olympic berths just because they would be out of their league in the Games went to the very heart of this nation's self-image.

"I think the last American dream we have is the Olympic Games, and I think the ultimate goal is the Olympic Games," said Luke St. Onge, executive director of the American Amateur Racquetball Association. "The American public would be disappointed if we cut to the bottom line."

Racquetball is not an Olympic sport but it is recognized by the USOC and has a vote in its dealings.

Supporters of holding back low-level athletes said sending a full team rewarded mediocrity and wasted limited resources. Even one prominent Olympian said she felt limits had to be set if greater goals were to be reached.

"I do think that it's our responsibility to the American public that we send the people who are ready to compete at the very top," said Mary T. Meagher, who won multiple gold medals in swimming. "Participation — yeah, we need to encourage it. But make sure it's participation after an athlete has paid their dues."

But the majority of athletes and their administrators sided with Ed Burke, an Olympic hammer thrower who questioned the timing of the debate when the USOC has a record surplus of $54 million.

"I wonder who started this conversation," Burke said. "We have plenty of money. How about seeing how many officials and hangers-on we can eliminate from the delegation?"

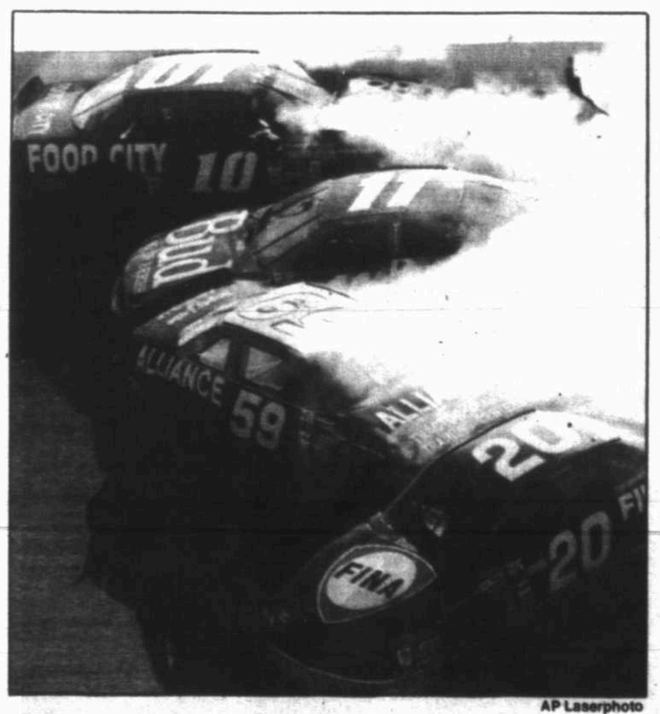

The idea for the "town meeting" sprang from discussions at a retreat for the USOC's top officials late last year. Leroy Walker, the new USOC president, thought it was time to find out whether it was worth it to keep sending the largest teams to the Olympics but not leading the medal standings. A "performance rating" of last year's Olympics, compiled by the USOC, found the United States forth in medals per athletes at Barcelona and 16th at Albertville.

After the resounding vote Saturday, Walker said his idea may have been misunderstood.

"There may have been a misconception," he said. "Excellence doesn't mean you always get the point, but that you should be trying to reach it."

Bowe-Lewis bout boxing's only legitimate answer to heaveyweight question

By Hal Bock
AP Sports Writer

The heavyweight situation, as boxing promoter Dan Duva sees it, is rather simple.

"The only guy fighting today who can beat Riddick Bowe is Lennox Lewis," he said. "And the only guy who can beat Lennox Lewis is Riddick Bowe."

Logic suggests, then, that Bowe and Lewis should get it on. Round up ring announcer Michael Buffer, dress him in a tuxedo, arm him with a microphone and, "Let's Get Rea-dy To Rum-ble!"

Some day. Just not right now.

Bowe vs. Lewis in a heavyweight championship showdown to unify the title is too easy. In boxing, logic does not always apply.

So when Bowe's people and Lewis' people sat down to talk terms last week, there was plenty of posturing, a goodly supply of bluster and no agreement. It was not close, according to Duva.

Oh, there were moments. Bowe's man, Rock Newman, waved a piece of paper around, claiming it was a $10 million bid for the fight. Frank Maloney, who manages Lewis, said he never saw it, that he must have been out of the room at the time.

Still $10 million sounds good. Maloney's man is fighting Tony Tucker in a mandated WBC defense in May for $9.7 million. "We wouldn't take less to fight Bowe," Maloney explained.

So, $10 million works. Case closed.

Not so fast.

It turns out that there may have been a problem of semantics. According to Duva, the $10 million offer was for Main Events and after it was sliced for various promotional fees, Lewis would get perhaps half of it.

Outrageous, Maloney said. "He wants us to pay for everything, his laundry list, his weekly groceries."

Well, not exactly. But, hey, Bowe is the champion, even if the WBC doesn't agree. That title carries with it certain perks. Milt Chwasky, attorney for Newman and Bowe, was quick to point that out.

"When we fought (Evander) Holyfield for the title," the lawyer said, "we didn't get the terms we wanted. Now, we're the champ. We will not be jerked around."

Chwasky was representing Newman's interests at the Lewis-Maloney-Duva show, offering the view of the party of the second part. Newman and Bowe, the attorney explained, were headed to Los Angeles "for the French Prince show."

Duva, monitoring the Chwasky comments, corrected the lawyer. "That's Fresh Prince, Milt," he said.

That's the nice thing about boxing promoters. They're always around to help out.

The pay-per-view people at TVKO, the casino people at Caesars Palace, and the rest of the money men have come up with $32 million for this fight, not an insignificant sum. Even Duva, accustomed to promoting big bucks fights, was impressed.

"I was pleasantly surprised," he said. "Usually, they're not so free throwing money around."

With that many dollars on the table, Maloney, or perhaps it was Newman — both are taking credit for it — came up with a unique idea, suggesting an almost winner take all arrangment.

Maloney said the winner could take home $31 million and the loser would get the leftover $1 million, a consolation prize for his time and trouble.

MHS girls fall

SAN ANGELO — The Midland High girls, playing with only one substitute, dropped a 6-0 soccer decision to the San Angelo Lady Bobcats here Saturday afternoon.

San Angelo jumped to a 4-0 lead in the first half before the MHS girls stiffened.

"We went to San Angelo without three starters because of the Catoico dance weekend," said MHS coach Scott Hodkinson. "We knew it was going to be a tough match for us with only one substitute. We also had three other girls injured. Still, we had a couple of chances to score, but didn't get the job done."

The MHS girls are 0-6 for the season and will travel to Midland Lee next Saturday for a 2 p.m. game.

Lee ties for third

AUSTIN — The Midland Lee girls golf team tied Austin Westwood for third place here Friday in the Austin Invitational Girls golf tournament at the Jimmy Clay golf course.

Lee had a 337 total, the same as Westwood, but Westwood won the scorecard playoff. Seguin won the tournament with a 318.

Lee's Paul King tied Seguin's Ji-Yun Lee for medalist honors with a 73, but Seguin's Lee won a scorecard playoff to take the medalist crown.

Top 3 Teams: 1. Seguin, 318; 2. Bastrop, 327; 3. (tie) Midland Lee and Austin Westwood, 337 (Westwood wins in scorecard playoff).

Andrews girls win

SNYDER — The Andrews girls completed a two-day 682 to win the Snyder Invitational golf tournament Saturday by 30 strokes over Amarillo High by winning the top two medalist slots.

Andrews' Tori Hester won medalist honors with a two-day 161 after a 76 Saturday, beating out teammate Andra Fleming, who squared off at 82 to finish three strokes back.

Midland High's girls finished fourth behind Borger with a 771. The first round was played Friday at Western Texas College and the second round was played at Snyder Country Club.

"Our girls are improving every week," said MHS coach Bernie Hagins. "We had scores of over 400 in each round last week and were under 400 in both rounds this week."

MHS will travel to Odessa next weekend.

SOCCER: Abilene High next on Bulldog schedule

(From 1B)

day, Abilene High defeated Odessa High, 7-0, and Odessa Permian downed Abilene Cooper, 3-1. Midland Lee was idle.

In the first half, Ross Hunter had two up-the-middle goals, both assisted by David Farias, to give MHS a 2-0 lead at the break. With a cushion entering the final 40 minutes to play, MHS head coach Tom Esikhati pulled a switch on the unsuspecting Bobcats.

"We changed our formation after the first half and started playing a more defensive game in the second half," Esikhati said. "The first half we were in an offensive attack."

But it was the MHS defense, in particular the Bulldog counter-attack, and the containment of sweeper Dustin Arras that made the difference for MHS.

MHS also repeatedly ran the clock by dishing the ball back to its keeper, which, in turn, allowed the Bulldog midfielders a chance to apply more pressure on the San Angelo offense.

Additionally, the Bulldogs were markedly quicker to the ball than San Angelo for virtually the entire 80 minutes.

"The boys executed plays well, moved the ball around well, were very intense and very quick to the ball," Esikhati said. "We work hard at all those things. What we did today exemplifies what we've been doing the last two games. What we did the first game (a 1-0 loss to Lee), we hope we never do that again."

As for Hunter's first half goals, Esikhati tagged them with the luxury label afterward.

"We didn't plan on Ross getting the ball up the middle like that," he said. "That's just something you don't teach. Goals coming through the middle like that are very rare for us. It takes guts to score like that."

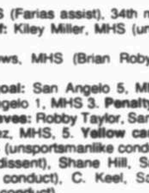

With San Angelo now out of the way in the first half, and Abilene High and Lee to follow in succession Tuesday and Saturday, MHS has a hefty task at hand.

"I like it (the schedule) that way," Esikhati said. "It gives us some continuity, because those are the three toughest teams in the district, therefore, those three teams coming back-to-back gives us a test."

Demon Deacons curse Blue Devils, 98-86

Associated Press

DURHAM, N.C. — Rodney Rogers scored a career-high 35 points and No. 9 Wake Forest defeated No. 3 Duke 98-86 Saturday for its first victory at Cameron Indoor Stadium since 1985.

Rogers scored 24 points in the first half, and when he ran into foul trouble early in the second half, his teammates made up the difference. When the Demon Deacons were done, Duke had lost two Atlantic Coast Conference games at home for the first time since 1988.

Wake Forest (16-4, 7-3) has won three of its last six games against the Blue Devils. Duke (19-4, 7-4) led 42-41 at halftime, but played the second half without Grant Hill, who was injured in a collision under the Wake Forest basket.

Randolph Childress, the ACC's leading scorer at 21.3 points per game, shook off Bobby Hurley's pressure and got 11 of his 15 points in the second half for Wake Forest. Trelonnie Owens added 21 points, 18 in the second half.

Marc Blucas, a reserve playing in place of the injured Charlie Harrison, made four 3-pointers and had 14 points. He was averaging two points per game.

Cherokee Parks and Thomas Hill scored 18 apiece for Duke. Hurley finished with 16 and Chris Collins had 11.

No. 2 Kentucky 81, Notre Dame 62

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Monty Williams scored 26 points in the game's first 24 minutes for No. 2 Kentucky, but managed just two foul shots the rest of the way while the Wildcats (18-2) used deadly second-half foul shooting.

Jamal Mashburn scored 22 points for Kentucky (18-2), which lost to No. 14 Arkansas on Wednesday. Mashburn had eight straight in a key second-half stretch after the Irish (9-12) pulled within three.

Gimel Martinez and Travis Ford combined for 15 straight points — 12 from the foul line — after Mashburn went out with four fouls with 10:36 to play. Ford finished with 17 points and Martinez had 12.

No. 5 Arizona 81, Washington 72

SEATTLE — Fifth-ranked Arizona won its 15th straight game and remained unbeaten in the Pac-10 by beating Washington.

Khalid Reeves scored 15 points and Chris Mills added 14 for the Wildcats (17-2, 11-0), who had six players in double figures.

Arizona led by 24 points three times in the second half in scoring its first win at Seattle in three seasons. The Wildcats remained on target to become the first Pac-10 team to go undefeated in the league since UCLA went 14-0 in winning the Pac-8 in 1978.

Rich Manning led Washington (11-9, 5-6) with 23 points, 15 in the first half. Chandler Nairn added 11 for the Huskies.

Damon Stoudamire scored 11 points and Ray Owes, Ed Stokes and Reggie Geary each had 10 for Arizona.

No. 7 Kansas 67, Missouri 63

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Rex Walters scored 16 points as No. 7 Kansas ran its winning streak to six in a row.

It was the second victory over Missouri in 12 days for Kansas (20-3, 7-1 Big Eight), which won 86-69 on Feb. 1 at home. The Jayhawks also became the first team to win three straight at Hearnes Center.

Kansas had shot 40.4 and 40.7 percent in its previous two games and lost to Nebraska on Sunday. The Jayhawks broke that slump by shooting 50 percent.

The rematch with Missouri was a lot tougher. Kansas led 30-15 early and shot 54.2 percent in the first half (13 for 24) but Jevon Crudup kept Missouri close in the second half. Crudup scored 24 points despite playing most of the half with four fouls.

No. 8 Cincinnati 64, St. Louis 39

CINCINNATI — Corie Blount scored 19 points and dominated the middle as No. 8 Cincinnati took the early lead and rolled to a victory over St. Louis.

The Bearcats (19-2, 6-1 Great Midwest Conference) didn't trail after Blount took them on a game-opening 16-7 run against the conference's doormat. St. Louis (8-12, 0-5 GMC) lost its 23rd straight road game and its 16th straight conference game.

Blount put them away early. He scored 10 of UC's first 16 points and 13 points overall in the first half, when UC built a 31-14 lead. St. Louis never got closer than 12 the rest of the way.

Blount did everything while scoring 10 in the first 10 minutes. The 6-foot-10 center scored on a hook, a turnaround jumper, a dunk, a follow-up and a pull-up jumper. He also blocked a pair of shots.

No. 10 Florida St. 87, Maryland 84

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Bob Sura won a scoring battle with Kevin McLinton and No. 10 Florida State won its sixth straight, surviving a late Maryland rally.

Sura scored 23 of his career-high tying 34 points in the second half, but the Seminoles blew a 15-point lead before coming back to win. Sura's free throw with 42 seconds left proved to be the winning point.

McLinton had a career-best 32 points, including 21 of the Terrapins' final 27, but his potential game-tying 35-footer at the buzzer fell short.

The victory put the Seminoles a half-game ahead of idle North Carolina atop the Atlantic Coast Conference. Florida State (19-6, 9-2) has won 10 of 11.

Evers Burns scored 24 for Maryland (10-11, 1-10), which has lost six straight and 10 of 12.

No. 11 Vanderbilt 81, Middle Tennessee State 51

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Billy McCaffrey scored 17 points and

■ Top 25 Roundup

No. 11 Vanderbilt started the second half with a 30-2 spree to rout Middle Tennessee State.

Vanderbilt (19-4) led 36-30 at halftime. The Commodores kept up their man-to-man trapping defense in the second half and began converting turnovers into easy baskets.

McCaffrey, who had only five points in the first half, fed Ronnie McMahan for one basket then followed with a 3-pointer as Vanderbilt made it 43-30.

After a timeout by Middle Tennessee (9-11), McCaffrey hit another 3-pointer and two free throws, and Frank Seckar and McMahan added 3-pointers for a 58-32 lead.

Minnesota 91, No. 13 Iowa 85

MINNEAPOLIS — Voshon Lenard rebounded from a 3-of-27 shooting slump in his previous two games to score a career-high 32 points, leading Minnesota to a Big Ten victory over No. 13 Iowa.

The win snapped Minnesota's four-game losing skid against the Hawkayes (14-6 overall, 3-5 conference) and extended Iowa's losing streak to three.

The Gophers (13-7, 5-6) held Iowa's top two scorers, Acie Earl and Val Barnes, to a combined 21 points on 5-of-24 shooting.

Minnesota made six of its first nine shots to start the second half, including two 3-pointers by Lenard, building its lead to 58-47 with 15:30 remaining.

Alabama 93, No. 14 Arkansas 82

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. — James Robinson broke out of a slump with 27 points and Alabama posted the biggest win of first-year coach David Hobbs' career, beating No. 14 Arkansas.

Alabama (13-7, 5-5 Southeastern Conference) helped its chances of earning a fifth-straight NCAA Tournament bid with its first victory of the season over a ranked team.

Arkansas (16-5, 7-4) had won four in a row, including an 101-94 upset of No. 2 Kentucky on Wednesday night, and led the Crimson Tide by eight early in the second half.

But Alabama shifted the momentum with a 19-3 run that made it 63-55 with 11:16 remaining. After Arkansas rallied to tie the score at 68 with seven minutes to go, the Tide went ahead for good with an 11-3 spurt.

Alabama-Birmingham 44, No. 15 Marquette 38

MILWAUKEE — Stanley Jackson made six free throws in the final 34 seconds and Alabama-Birmingham used a slowdown offense to upset No. 15 Marquette, the Warriors' second straight loss after a 10-game winning streak.

Jackson, the Blazers' leading scorer who didn't start because of a shooting slump, finished with 12 points as the Blazers improved to 14-10 and 2-4 in the Great Midwest. Marquette, which lost by two at Cincinnati on Wednesday, fell to 17-4 and 5-2.

Marquette had beaten UAB by 14 points earlier in the season but couldn't overcome the Blazers' methodical pass-and-move offense that coach Gene Bartow used earlier in the season to upset Memphis State. UAB milked the shot clock down on nearly every possession and frustrated Marquette's attempts at a faster tempo.

No. 17 Pitt 95, Illinois 79

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Chris McNeal scored 30 points and grabbed eight rebounds as No. 17 Pittsburgh pulled away at the end to beat Illinois.

The Panthers (15-5) used a strong shooting performance and a dominating physical style to build a 78-65 lead. The Illini (15-7) rallied to within 81-75 with three minutes left, but the Panthers hit their free throws down the stretch.

Eric Mobley and Jerry McCullough added 14 points each for Pitt. Illinois was led by Deon Thomas' 26 points and Andy Kaufmann's 15. Kaufmann scored in double figures for the 54th straight game, but hit only five of 17 field goal attempts.

Pittsburgh shot 55 percent and out-rebounded Illinois 35-27. The Illini committed 18 turnovers, compared to 13 for Pitt.

No. 18 Purdue 90, Wisconsin 87

MADISON, Wis. — Glenn Robinson scored 42 points and blocked a potential game-tying shot in the final seconds as 18th-ranked Purdue beat Wisconsin in double overtime.

Robinson, the Big Ten's leading scorer with a 26.4 average, scored six points in the second overtime. His two free throws with 9.9 seconds remaining gave Purdue a 90-87 lead.

Robinson blocked a 3-point field goal attempt by Brian Kelley to secure the victory for Purdue (15-5 overall and 6-5 in the conference).

Wisconsin (12-7 and 5-5) was led by Michael Finley with 33 points, 10 of them coming in the two overtimes.

No. 19 Seton Hall 65, Villanova 59

VILLANOVA, Pa. — Terry Dehere scored six of his game-high 24 points in overtime as No. 19 Seton Hall defeated Villanova.

Dehere hit a 3-point shot with 24 seconds left in regulation that gave Seton Hall (18-6, 8-4) a 53-50 lead, but Lance Miller hit a 3-pointer at the buzzer to send the game into overtime.

Dehere scored the first five points in the extra session. Villanova never got closer than four points behind after that.

The Wildcats (8-12, 3-9) led through the first half and didn't lose their lead until a steal and layup by Dehere gave the Pirates a 25-24 edge with 18:57 remaining in the second half.

St. John's 65, No. 21 Boston College 61

NEW YORK (AP) — St. John's remained on top of the Big East with a victory over No. 21 Boston College. It was a game that saw St. John's blow a 17-point second-half lead; five technical fouls called and only one field goal by both teams in the final 3:22.

The Redmen (14-6, 9-3 Big East) won their 23rd straight game at Alumni Hall — the last one in the on-campus building this season — despite making just six of 10 free throws in the final 45 seconds.

They had taken a 59-56 lead with 3:22 left on Shawnelle Scott's rebound basket. The free throws were it for them the rest of the way and Boston College (13-7, 7-5), which started the day tied for second with Seton Hall, could only manage two free throws and a 3-pointer with four seconds to play.

No. 22 Massachusetts 68, George Washington 65

WASHINGTON — Mike Williams hit a 3-pointer with less than a second remaining, capping a second-half rally that gave No. 22 Massachusetts a victory over George Washington.

Williams then brought the ball up the floor, whirled to his right and sank a jumper from the top of the key to give the Minutemen their first win at GW since the 1977-78 season. The Colonials had won 14 straight home games against UMass.

Nebraska 80, No. 23 Kansas State 59

MANHATTAN, Kan. — Eric Piatkowski scored 16 points and well-rested Nebraska took charge early and cruised to a victory over No. 23 Kansas State.

The Huskers (16-7 overall, 4-4 Big Eight), who had the entire week off following their 68-64 victory over Kansas at home, turned a 21-20 deficit into a 36-27 lead in the final six minutes of the first half.

The Wildcats, who broke into the national rankings this week for the first time in almost five years, were only 1 of 13 from 3-point distance in the first half. They lost for the second time in three games as a ranked team.

Kansas State (15-5, 5-3), which fell two games behind Kansas in the Big Eight race, had beaten Nebraska 66-64 in Lincoln three weeks earlier to end the Huskers second-longest home court winning streak.

No. 24 Virginia 83, Clemson 78

CLEMSON, S.C. — Junior Burrough had 23 points and No. 24 Virginia overcame poor shooting in the first half to defeat Clemson.

The Cavaliers (15-5, 7-4), one of the worst foul-shooting teams in the Atlantic Coast Conference, made 10 of their last 12 free throws. Clemson (12-8, 2-8) lost for the eighth time in 11 games since starting 9-0.

Cory Alexander had 19 points for Virginia, including two 3-pointers in the second half as the Cavaliers overcame an eight-point halftime deficit.

The Cavaliers shot just 40.6 percent (13 of 32) in the first half and trailed 39-31 at the break.

In the second half, though, Virginia made its first five shots and ended the half hitting 57.1 percent (16 of 28).

After trailing most of the game, the Cavaliers tied it at 56 when center Yuri Barnes hit a short jumper. He followed with one of two foul shots to give Virginia a one-point lead with 8:57 remaining.

Clemson stayed within three points until the final three minutes, when guard Doug Smith hit a 3-pointer with 1:54 to go for a 73-67 lead.

Houston drops Red Raiders, 93-76

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Charles Outlaw scored a career high 28 points and helped fuel a 17-0 charge in the second half, leading Houston to a 93-76 victory over Texas Tech Saturday.

The Cougars (14-6, 5-4 in Southwest Conference) snapped a four-game SWC losing streak while avenging a 78-74 loss to the Red Raiders on Jan. 26.

Texas Tech (11-9, 3-6) burned Houston's zone defense in the first half by hitting six 3-pointers, including three in a row at one point, and held a 34-32 edge at halftime.

The Red Raiders lead 47-40 with 14:26 go to in the game when Houston's full-court press got the Cougars started on a 17-0 streak that kept Texas Tech scoreless for 3:41.

■ SWC Basketball

After hitting 6 of 11 from 3-point range in the first half, Tech hit only five of 14 in the second half. Will Flemons led the Raiders with 22 points and Barron Brown scored 17.

Anthony Goldwire scored 13 of his 19 points in the second half and hit nine straight points for the Cougars during their second-half charge.

Houston held a 26-21 lead with 6:44 to go in the half when three straight 3-pointers, one by Brown and two by Lenny Holly, gave the Cougars a 30-26 lead with 3:33 left.

Lance Hughes, who scored 27 points in Tech's victory over Houston last month in Lubbock, missed the game with a hip flexor strain on his left leg.

Rice 68, Texas Christian 50

FORT WORTH — Reserve Torrey Andrews scored 19 points and sparked the Rice Owls to a victory over the Texas Christian Horned Frogs.

Rice improved to 13-6 overall and 7-2 in the Southwest Conference. TCU, led by Allen Tolley's 17 points, fell to 5-15 and 2-7. Rice trails only Southern Methodist in the SWC race.

Scott Tynes scored 12 of his 14 points in an 18-6 Rice run to open the game. Brent Scott added 15 points for the Owls.

The Horned Frogs managed to close to gap to 35-30 by halftime, but never got closer than that as the Owls' staunch defense held TCU to just 20 points after intermission.

Baylor 90, Texas A&M 82

WACO — Aundre Branch sank seven 3-pointers and scored 28 points, leading Baylor to a victory over Texas A&M.

The Bears (14-6 overall, 6-3 Southwest Conference) had built a 28-point first-half lead before going into the locker room up 61-41.

But the Aggies (7-12, 2-6) fought back behind Damon Johnson and David Edwards. Johnson led A&M with 21 points and Edwards added 20.

An Edwards layup late in the game moved the Aggies to within 82-79. A Brett Murry free throw with 1:50 left also put them within three, 83-80.

A&M got sloppy, committing several turnovers over the final minute and the Bears capitalized by icing the victory.

Murry scored 13 for the Aggies and Tony McGinnis had 12.

The Bears are now 9-1 at home and the Aggies are 1-8 on the road.

Georgia 78, Texas 70

ATHENS, Ga. — Cleveland Jackson scored 23 points to help Georgia beat slumping Texas.

Texas (8-11) made only 8 of 32 shots in the first half, and the 23 points was the lowest for any half in 153 games under coach Tom Penders. The Longhorns shot just 31.3 percent for the game, 25 of 80.

Terrence Rancher led all scorers with 25 points and Michael Richardson added 20 for Texas.

Georgia (10-10) had a 59-46 lead midway through the second half, but the Longhorns scored 10 unanswered points, seven of them by Rancher.

With Georgia ahead 68-62, Texas scored five unanswered points.

But Georgia scored 10 of the last 13 points, four of them on Carlos Strong's free throws and three on Bernard Davis' long shot.

Texas came up scoreless its last five trips down court. Strong blocked one shot, the Longhorns missed two layups and two long jumpers and the Bulldogs got all the rebounds.

Davis added 16 points and five assists for Georgia. Charles Claxton hauled down nine rebounds and Strong and Jackson eight apiece.

Earnhardt looks to sweep week

Associated Press

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — Dale Earnhardt made it 3-for-3 and 4-for-4 Saturday.

Next he shoots for the one he came here for: the Daytona 500 today.

It was his fourth straight win in the Goody's 300 and sixth overall in the 12 years of the Busch series event. A Busch series regular has yet to win it.

Earnhardt's Chevrolet led 87 of the 120 laps as the five-time Winston Cup champion won by one-car length over pole-winner Ken Schrader's Chevrolet.

"I could run high or low, it didn't matter," Earnhardt said. "I could go anywhere I wanted to go."

The Doolie, N.C., driver held off Schrader in an eight-lap green-flag finish.

"Schrader and those guys was shooting at us back there, but we had just enough to hold 'em off," said Earnhardt, who led 69 percent of the laps in the three races. "I thought Schrader might have a shot, but I was using up all the track."

■ Goody's 300

"(Harry) Gant had a run on us in turn two and I probably should have gone with him, but I didn't see a hole so I stayed where we were," Schrader said. "After that, there wasn't anything I could do."

Earnhardt had an average speed of 146.441 mph and picked up $39,375. He started fifth in the 44-car field.

The victory was his 19th on the Busch circuit. He has won 11 of 12 non-Winston Cup points races during the 1990s at Daytona.

Winston Cup drivers Gant and Terry Labonte finished third and fourth in Chevys. Tracy Leslie was fifth in an Oldsmobile.

Labonte thought he and Gant would pass Schrader "and give Earnhardt a run," but he ran out of room.

"He (Earnhardt) gets up in the front and whoever's running second is afraid to pass him," Labonte said. "So they just stay right there. It makes it hard. They just give it to him."

Earnhardt, who will be looking for his first Daytona 500 victory, won the Busch Clash last Sunday among 1992 Winston Cup pole winners, then won one of Thursday's twin 125-mile qualifiers for the 500.

"I hope this momentum will carry over to the Daytona 500," Earnhardt said.

A five-car crash on the backstretch on lap 108 brought out the fifth caution of the day and set up the final eight-lap battle.

Mike Wallace's car hit the rear of Tom Peck's and started the spinning. The Ford of Tim Fedewa briefly went airborne but did not flip and he was able to drive it back around.

A six-car crash on lap 65 had shuffled the front-running cars as Jimmy Spencer and Robert Pressley collided in turn two and Davey Allison hit Pressley's car, putting out the trio, which had been running in the top seven.

Kite bogey-free in flight to lead at Hope tourney

Associated Press

■ Hope Classic

LA QUINTA, Calif. — A confident Tom Kite overcame a couple of putting glitches, shot a bogey-free 65 and moved two strokes ahead of the field Saturday in the Bob Hope Classic.

"I'm playing good right now," the U.S. Open champion said after completing one round on each of four desert resort courses in 263, 25 under par.

"I'm feeling good about my game," the 43-year-old veteran said, looking ahead to Sunday's final round of this 5-day, 90-hole event.

"If somebody beats me, they're going to have to play really well."

But the possibility still exists. At least nine players remain within reach — four shots or less — going into the final round of the chase for a $198,000 first prize.

"What you try to do — normally for three days, but for four in this one — you try to get in position to have a chance on Sunday," Kite said after playing on the Palmer course.

"What you try to do is not lose the golf tournament in the early rounds. And there's still a lot of guys out there who haven't lost the golf tournament," he said.

Among them are such formidable figures as Masters champ Fred Couples, Australian Open title-holder Steve Elkington and Payne Stewart, whose last victory came in the 1991 U.S. Open.

Rick Fehr, whose only previous PGA Tour triumph was in the 1986 B.C. Open, was Kite's closest pursuer.

Fehr, who lost the Hope in a playoff last year after a final-round 63, went 6 under par over a stretch of five holes at Indian Wells, shot 62 and completed 72 holes in 264, 24 under par.

It was two more strokes back to Elkington, Couples and Bob Lohr, tied for third at 266.

"You know it's a pretty tough league when you shoot 66 and lose ground," Couples said after his 6-under-par effort at the Palmer course, which will be the site of Sunday's last 18 holes.

Editor's note: This is a first-person columns written by Al Unser Jr., the 1992 Indianapolis 500 winner, who will make his debut as a NASCAR stock car driver in Sunday's Daytona 500, starting 40th in a 41-car field.

By Al Unser Jr.
For The Associated Press

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — The Daytona 500 will be a race of patience for me.

My dad (four-time Indianapolis 500 winner Al Unser) told me I should pack some lunch for the race. I'll have to get through all the accidents. One other thing I have to hope for is some mechanical failures with other cars.

Hopefully, I'll be able to move up when the field thins out.

After what happened in my qualifying race for the 500, I figured there wasn't any chance of making the show. So, I'm happy to be in it, even starting 40th in a 41-car field.

Early on in the race, I came around the track and split between two cars that were spinning. I just barely touched both of them on both sides of my car. It knocked the left rear side of my car so that it was rubbing against my left rear tire.

At first, the tire was smoking a little. But then it went away. Later, whenever I went into the corners, the tire started smoking a lot more. I saw what was happening and knew what was going on, but I was hoping it would go away. Instead, it finally poked a hole and blew my tire and I hit the wall.

As soon as I wrecked and fell out of the qualifying race, I figured there wasn't any chance of making the 500. I didn't think my qualifying speed was fast enough. It was, barely.

Although I am very happy to be in my first Daytona 500, starting 40th does not make me happy.

When I dreamed about racing in Daytona, I thought about running fast enough in qualifying to be in the front half of the field at the start. Unfortunately, that's not the way it worked out. But, thanks to my crew chief Waddell Wilson, my car owner Rick Hendrick, and my sponsor, Valvoline, I have a very competitive car for the race.

Since I wrecked my car in the qualifying race, the car I'll be running Sunday is Kenny Schrader's backup car. The only thing similar between the two cars is the No. 46 on the door. I've only had a couple of days to practice in that car, but it feels good. Kenny's setup will be on the car, but I'll change it to suit my driving style.

I want to thank Kenny for letting me have his backup car for the race. If I was in a similar situation, it would be very tough for me to let someone else use my backup car. Kenny is risking a lot.

It's very tough to jump from one race series to another and be competitive right away. I know I'm capable of jumping into any series and being competitive, but it's tough to jump into any series and win.

My entire life I've been able to do that. The records show that any race car I've gotten into, I have been competitive in.

This race is totally different from last year's Indy 500. At Indy, my car worked good and I was first among all the cars using the Chevrolet engine. The Fords and Buicks had us covered at Indy and the best I could hope for was to finish first in class.

All day I worked hard to do that and then I was in the lead when all the cars that had me covered fell out. That was a race of good fortune.

While I'll have to have good fortune here, all the cars in the field are very equal. Unlike Indy, nobody here has a big advantage over anybody else.

Hill climbs to top of board

Associated Press

■ Senior Challenge

NAPLES, Fla. — Mike Hill shot a 7-under par 65 to take a six-shot lead Saturday after two rounds The Challenge.

Hill holed a 75-foot putt on the 490-yard par-5 10th hole for an eagle. His hot round also included six birdies and a bogey. He birdied the 18th by hitting a 5-iron within 15 feet of the pin.

Stockton, who birdied three of the first four holes, was three shots off the lead at one point on the back nine. But a lapse at the 18th resulted in a bogey, dropping him into the tie with four others at 138.

Hill, an accomplished wind player, said he will be aggressive during the final round at the Vineyards, a 6,722-yard, par-72 layout.

"My concentration is good and my putting has been good," Hill said. "If I shoot like I did today, I know I can win.

"But if I lay up and get safe, you can end up in trouble."

HILLIN: Driver gives credit to Baker, Richmond

(From 1B)

one of the premier events of the season.

"I like speed and I love the draft," Hillin says. "Both are synonymous with Daytona and Talladega.

"Doing well (at the two high-speed speedways) is just a matter of learning what you can and can't do with your car in the draft. Each situation is different at each track, but hooking up with the right guy is important, otherwise you can get hung out to dry."

Hillin credits Buddy Baker and Tim Richmond with helping him learn the keys to running well at Daytona and Talladega.

"When I got started on the speedways, I got a lot of help from guys like Buddy and Tim. They drilled me on the basics.

"I spent a lot of time drafting with Buddy," Hillin adds. "I think Buddy is one of the best drivers there has ever been in running the big tracks. He really showed me what it takes to run well in the draft."

Hillin was a very good student as he showed in winning the 1986 Talladega 500 at the tender age of 22. The victory placed him in the NASCAR record books as the youngest driver to ever win a super speedway race.

During the ensuing years, Hillin has applied those lessons to earn six Top 5 and 31 Top 10 finishes.

Hillin hopes today's race is the beginning of something special as he joins car owner Junie Donlavey.

"We have a really good car," Hillin said after being one of the fastest Ford drivers during the two months of testing for Daytona. "We had a brand new car at the final Ford test (Jan. 18-20), and it turned out to be just not quite as slick as the other one (a year-old Thunderbird)."

Although he is only 28 years old, Hillin already has a career full of highs and lows. He is hoping that the Heilig-Meyers Racing team is the path to a new set of highs.

"We're hungry," Hillin says, "and that's what it takes to succeed.

"I've torn every step apart. Communication is the key, and you have to be consistent in everything you do. Qualifying high, finishing high and winning races will put us in contention for the championship. That has to be the team's goal."

While Hillin is focusing on the Daytona 500 today, he will be carrying with him some good and bad memories.

He joined Stavola Brothers in 1983 where he went on to produce his lone victory at Talladega in 1986. He finished ninth in the Winston Cup point race that year — only his second season of running the full circuit. Life was good.

But Hillin was never able to get back to victory lane over the next four years. He and the Stavolas parted company following the 1990 season.

His confidence needed a boost and Hillin got it via a phone call from Robert Yates last July. Yates wanted Hillin to sub for the injured Davey Allison in the DieHard 500 at Talladega.

"The Lord blessed us with that opportunity," Hillin said. "It was a terrible crash that Davey was involved in (at Pocono, Pa.), and I'm thankful to Rebert, Davey and the guys for having confidence in my abilities as a driver to choose me to help out."

Hillin was more than worthy. He came from back of the field to take the lead. He led twice for 30 laps and ran up front throughout the event en route to a third place finish. Hillin's impressive performance helped Allison regain the Winston Cup point lead.

"It has been a tough couple of years," said Hillin, who has had to catch rides as catch can over that period, "but now with Heilig-Meyers and Junie, I can concentrate on doing what it takes to win the championship."

Bobby Hillin Jr. Career Highlights

- Won 1986 Talladega 500 to become the youngest driver to ever win a super speedway race at the age of 22.
- Drove in relief of injured Davey Allison in the 1992 DieHard 500 at Talladega, finishing third after leading twice for 30 laps.
- Finished ninth in the 1986 Winston Cup standings and is 25th on the career money won list with $2,331,951 in 240 races.
- Made Winston Cup debut as a 17-year old high school student out of Midland High (1982). He was the youngest driver ever to run 200 miles per hour.
- While racing in the Busch Grand National Series he won races at Dover (1988) and Nazareth (1989).
- Started racing in 1977 and drove a mini-stocker at Abilene Speedway at the age of 13. He won the Odessa Speedbowl late model track championship in 1981 at the age of 16.

Spurs win again, Jordan returns

Associated Press

■ NBA Roundup

SAN ANTONIO — David Robinson scored 28 points and the San Antonio Spurs won their seventh consecutive game and 13th straight at home, 90-85 over the Boston Celtics on Saturday night.

The Spurs, 22-4 at home, have won 17 of their last 18 games and 22 of 25 under coach John Lucas.

Boston closed to 84-80 on a free throw by Parish with 4:18 left, but Robinson's layup, another Celtics free throw and Avery Johnson's jumper gave the Spurs an 88-81 advantage at the 1:23 mark.

Cavaliers 116, Bulls 111

CHICAGO — Craig Ehlo's 3-pointer, his sixth of the game, put Cleveland in front with 46 seconds remaining, and the Cavaliers went on to a victory over the Chicago Bulls despite Michael Jordan's return.

Ehlo finished with 24 points, one less than teammate Brad Daugherty, as the Cavaliers notched their seventh win in eight games and climbed within 1½ games of the first-place Bulls in the Central Division of the Eastern Conference.

Jordan, who served a one-game suspension Friday for a punching altercation in Indianapolis Wednesday night, started slowly, scoring two points in the first quarter, but he finished with 25, along with teammate Scottie Pippen.

Gerald Wilkins, who finished with 16 points, made a pair of free throws with 15 seconds remaining to put the game out of reach after Ehlo broke a 111-111 tie.

Rockets, 97, Timberwolves 88

MINNEAPOLIS — Otis Thorpe scored 12 of his 23 points in the decisive third quarter as the Houston Rockets beat the Minnesota Timberwolves.

Hakeem Olajuwon had 16 points and 13 rebounds and Carl Herrera 10 points and a career-high 14 rebounds for the Rockets, playing their fourth game in six nights on the road.

Houston, which lost at home to the Wolves eight days earlier, has won 14 of 19 games, including seven of 10 on the road.

Thorpe had 12 points and eight rebounds in the third period, and his dunk with 3:19 left in the quarter capped a 16-6 run that gave the Rockets their first double-digit lead at 66-55.

76ers 119, Mavericks 96

DALLAS — Jeff Hornacek's eight points fueled a 23-4 spurt to start the second period and the Philadelphia 76ers went on to rout the Dallas Mavericks.

Hornacek finished with 20 points and 11 assists and rookie Clarence Weatherspoon scored 19 points for the 76ers, who snapped a six-game losing streak.

The Mavericks, who lost their fifth in a row and dropped to 4-43 for the season, stayed on a pace to challenge the Sixers' 1972-73 record of 9-73, the worst in NBA history.

Randy White had 20 points for Dallas, who played without injured starters Derek Harper and Terry Davis. Harper, the team's leading scorer, has an injured hamstring and Davis, the leading rebounder, has back spasms.

Dallas led 28-21 after the one quarter before Philadelphia opened the second period with a 10-0 run.

Bucks 117, Pacers 115

MILWAUKEE — Frank Brickowski scored 10 of his 27 points in the fourth quarter and the Milwaukee Bucks held on to beat the Indiana Pacers, snapping a five-game losing streak.

Todd Day scored 23 points for the Bucks before leaving with a fourth-quarter elbow injury.

Brickowski made all 15 of his free throws during the game and had 13 rebounds as Milwaukee extended Indiana's losing streak to six games. The Bucks are 3-0 against the Pacers this season.

Detlef Schrempf had 34 points for Indiana, including 22 in the final quarter. Reggie Miller added 26, 17 of them in the opening quarter.

Hawks 121, Jazz 112

SALT LAKE CITY — Dominique Wilkins scored 22 of his 43 points in a fourth-quarter scorefest, helping Atlanta fend off a frantic Utah rally.

Wilkins had 15 points in a 21-13 run that gave the Hawks a 104-90 lead with 3:32 left, then added a dunk and seven foul shots down the stretch to keep the Jazz at bay.

Wilkins' effort overshadowed John Stockton's season-high 32 points, including a trio of 3-pointers in a 23-second span that pulled Utah to a 5-point deficit with 44 seconds to play.

In ending Utah's three-game winning streak, the Hawks also got 18 points from Mookie Blaylock, 17 points and 16 rebounds from Kevin Willis and 16 points each from Duane Ferrell and Stacy Augmon.

In addition to Stockton's 12-of-16 shooting, Utah got 25 points from Jeff Malone and 19 points and 12 rebounds from Karl Malone.

Nuggets 123, Bullets 104

DENVER — Reserve guard Robert Pack matched his career high with 21 points on 8-for-10 shooting, leading the Denver Nuggets to their 10th consecutive victory at home.

The Nuggets took charge with big spurts at the end of the first and second quarters. A 16-2 run wiped out the Bullets' 19-12 lead in the opening period, putting Denver ahead 28-21 late in the quarter.

Washington, which was led by Buck Johnson with 21 points, came back to go ahead 41-40 midway through the second period, but the Nuggets scored 21 of the next 29 points, with Chris Jackson scoring seven of his 15 points and LaPhonso Ellis six of his 18 in the spurt that put Denver ahead 61-49 with 17 seconds left in the first half.

SuperSonics 95, Suns 94

SEATTLE — Derrick McKey's layup with 0.4 seconds left gave Seattle a victory over Phoenix, snapping the Suns' five-game winning streak.

Charley Barkley, who had 33 points, gave the Suns a 94-93 lead on a 17-foot jumper with 5.2 seconds remaining. McKey then took Nate McMillan's inbounds pass and drove past Dan Majerle for his winning basket.

USOC: Being beat 'not so bad'

(From 1B)

U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, made a similar point as he spoke in favor of the full-team idea in this Dream Team era.

"We might get beaten now and then. It's not so bad," Young said. "We don't have to win everything in the world every time."

In a related matter, nine sports that usually miss the Olympic limelight in the United States called for television to give them more time at the Games.

A resolution by shooting, archery, badminton, fencing, field hockey, soccer, team handball, sailing and softball asked that TV networks be urged to provide at least 10 minutes of coverage to each Olympic sport.

Bringing more and more pro superstars into the Olympics won't necessarily mean sweet dreams for the United States.

With the success of the basketball Dream Team at last summer's Games in Barcelona, other sports such as baseball and ice hockey are considering changes in their rules to bring the best to Olympic tournaments, too.

■ More Sports, 10B

So far, schedule conflicts and butting heads with sports federations and leagues eager to protect what's already theirs — lucrative world championships and attendant sponsorship deals — have prevented that from happening.

But some top U.S. Olympic officials say that the day when Alexandr Mogilny will be playing for ice hockey gold or Ramon Martinez will be pitching toward an Olympic medal are just around the corner. And when that corner is turned, they warn, the United States may not be the big winner.

"Not just the U.S. is going to benefit," Walker said. "In baseball, nations like Puerto Rico, the Dominican Republic and Nicaragua have plenty of major league players who could help their Olympic team."

Top hockey players in the NHL could compete for Russia, Czechoslovakia, Sweden, Finland and Canada in the Winter Games. The U.S. team would get only minimal help.

"We're not alone in these sports. It's not like the Dream Team," Walker said before the start of a two-day USOC board of directors meeting. "We can't talk about this like basketball."

When basketball decided in 1989 to allow pros in the Olympics, it was universally recognized that the United States, with its NBA stars, would have a virtual lock on the gold medal for the foreseeable future. That was the case in Barcelona where Michael Jordan, Magic Johnson, Charles Barkley and nine other basketball millionaires swept to the title with an average victory margin of more than 40 points a game.

Some, including Walker, criticized the Dream Team concept because it took away the competitive edge. Walker says now that he is more oncerned with how that team was picked, with a selection committee deciding that only one college player be chosen, and wants to make sure that doesn't occur again.

'Sweetness' becomes bitter toward teammates

CHICAGO (AP) — Walter Payton, recently named to pro football's Hall of Fame, says he feels snubbed by his old Chicago Bears teammates who didn't call with their congratulations.

"It hurts," Payton said Friday. "The only athlete who sent his congratulations was Michael Jordan. He sent a fruit basket and a card. Nobody else called."

One exception was Bears place kicker Kevin Butler, who visited Payton on Friday at his office in Schaumburg and said he had called earlier and left word with Payton's secretary. And there were many calls from non-sports friends and business associates.

For his part, Payton snubbed the Pro Bowl in Honolulu last week where the new Hall of Famers were introduced and put through an initial induction ceremony.

Payton, the NFL's career rushing leader canceled plans to attend, citing a business conflict and a distaste for ceremonies.

"I even had a plane reservation for 6 o'clock Sunday morning that would have put me there at 1:30 and a return flight at 5 o'clock," he said. "Then I said, 'No, I can't do it.' I was going to be in Hawaii for four hours."

Inductees traditionally speak at a news conference on Saturday and are introduced to the Pro Bowl crowd before the game on Sunday.

"I was embarrassed walking across that field the last time," Payton said, referring to his 1987 Pro Bowl experience when he flipped the coin after his retirement.

Payton said he will attend the Hall of Fame induction ceremony at Canton, Ohio, on July 31.

He said he has not decided on who to ask to introduce him at the event.

'Wake-up call' may stimulate actions

Critics have already raised complaints about a grand jury report that labeled alcohol usage by young people in Midland "intense and widespread" and criticized local law enforcement agencies for lack of coordination, cooperation and communication. Despite the criticisms, however, the report was a necessary attempt to call the attention of Midlanders to the problem and to compel coordinated effort to address it.

The grand jury headed by foreman Steve Harper minced no words, but if effective steps are to be taken to counter the threat to Midland's youths posed by the alcohol problem the community's residents need to line up behind the Community Task Force on Alcohol and Drug Abuse which the grand jury named to carry out the plan.

Most Midlanders are likely to find fault with some of the recommendations, which include the consolidation of the city and county law enforcement agencies into a single "metro" police unit with security jurisdiction at Midland Independent School District (MISD) campuses; a midnight curfew on weekdays and 1 a.m. on weekends for those under age 17; random drug tests for all city, county, MISD and Greenwood ISD employees, board members and elected officials; a crack down on establishments that may be selling alcohol to under-age young people, and many other changes.

The question is whether Midlanders believe the alcohol problem merits the tough recommendations handed down. There is no question that many youths consume alcoholic beverages; that has been somewhat of a "rite of passage" to adulthood in the American culture for decades. That does not negate the fact, however, that there is a proper and acceptable way — and a legal age — to consume alcohol, and the grand jury obviously believes usage of alcohol in Midland is well beyond that point among youths and with the acceptance and approval of many parents.

On the recommendation for a "metro-police force," the concept is basically sound although it would necessitate a legislative change in how the law enforcement responsibilities in the city and county are now drawn. If it could result in better cooperation and better policing of the entire community, the recommendation should be fully explored.

The grand jury report also should serve as a mandate for sellers of alcoholic beverages to be more vigilant about who is buying the beverages. They, too, have a responsibility to work toward countering underage drinking.

Of course, parents must be the front line in the assault on this problem. It is they who set the tone for the conduct of their children and they must remain primarily responsible for bringing about a change.

Harper and all the members of the grand jury are to be commended for their hard work. They delved deeply into this serious community problem, outlined their recommendations, and took a stand on what should be done. No doubt they realized their report would not find favor with every Midlander, but they started the ball rolling toward countering the problem.

President chose right man for Russian post

It has been little noted, but President Clinton during his first week made one appointment of particular significance. He chose career diplomat Thomas Pickering as ambassador to Russia. He's the right man for what is bound to be a very tough job. . . .

Pickering is unquestionably a consummate professional diplomat. He has had tough posts before — he was George Bush's ambassador to the United Nations during the Desert Shield-Desert Storm coalition-building. He has also served in India, Israel, Jordan and most notably El Salvador.

Pickering will need all his skills in his new post. There are troubles ahead — for Boris Yeltsin, for the reform movement, and for continued U.S.-Russian cooperation. Steering past the shoals requires someone of Pickering's background and expertise. In recognizing that fact, and seeking the best man rather than a partisan insider, Clinton shows he has his priorities in order. That's a good start.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Sunday, Feb. 14, the 45th day of 1993. There are 320 days left in the year. This is Valentine's Day.

Today's highlight in history:

On Feb. 14, 1929, the "St. Valentine's Day Massacre" took place in a Chicago garage as seven rivals of Al Capone's gang were gunned down.

On this date:

In 1778, the American ship Ranger carried the recently adopted Star and Stripes to a foreign port for the first time as it arrived in France.

In 1859, Oregon was admitted to the Union as the 33rd state.

In 1876, inventors Alexander Graham Bell and Elisha Gray applied separately for patents related to the telephone. (The U.S. Supreme Court eventually ruled Bell the rightful inventor.)

Health-care reform targets drug makers

WASHINGTON — Frank Glickman isn't one of the 100 policy wonks re-inventing the health-care system in Hillary Rodham Clinton's White House war room.

But his experience offers valuable testimony to the challenges and conflicts facing the first lady's task force, whose product will create the centerpiece of President Clinton's domestic agenda.

Anderson

Glickman has a lawsuit pending against pharmaceutical giant Johnson and Johnson, makers of a drug called Levamisole. Although Levamisole has been available for more than 20 years, a new version of it only recently started being used as the first effective treatment for colo-rectal cancer. But Glickman's problem isn't with the treatment; it's with the cost.

Before being utilized as a cancer treatment in humans, Levamisole was commonly used to de-worm sheep, horses and cattle. The cost of the drug when used on animals was about $15 per year. But when Levamisole became a cancer treatment, the price skyrocketed more than 100 times — to almost $1,500 per year.

Johnson and Johnson defends the price, because of the millions of dollars in research spent to evaluate and modify the drug for human consumption. To Glickman, it's called price-gouging.

In a health-care debate of many conflicting agendas, one of the bloodiest battles is the one likely to be waged against drug makers. So far, pharmaceutical companies have been the sacred cows of the health-care party. But Clinton appears ready to remove the punch bowl by restraining drug prices.

"In the last decade, of all the powerful forces in the health debate, the pharmaceutical industry is the only one that's been virtually untouched," Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., told our associate Jan Moller.

Though drug companies defend their prices by citing research costs, recent statistics suggest pharmaceutical companies spend far more money marketing their products than developing and testing new ones.

Dictionary leaves some words out in the cold

The third edition of the American Heritage Dictionary has no morals!" exclaims William J. Slattery of Jamestown, R.I., who is otherwise entranced by the new dictionary.

He is mistaken about the absence of morals; that noun does not have its own separate entry, but it is entered under the adjective moral, and is crisply defined as "rules or habits of conduct, especially of sexual conduct, with reference to standards of right and wrong." Useful synonymy is added to differentiate among the adjectives moral, ethical, virtuous and righteous.

Safire

However, Ralph G. Beaman of Boothwyn, Pa., wants to know why I was pleased with American Heritage, a dictionary that contains up-to-date items like spin-doctor and cocooning but lacks such other modern favorites as glass ceiling, stocking stuffer, party platter, tapa (in the sense of a snack), top 40, nose tackle, bake Alaska and ta-dah.

I don't even have to call Anne Soukhanov, its executive editor, to check: these may be nonce words, soon to be gone with the roller blades. A word, before being lexed, has to establish itself. (The verb to lex has just been used here for the first time, I think, and is unlikely to make it to a second.)

In a few years, will bra still retain its new sense of "protection for the front of a utility vehicle"? Will Mylar fade with Madonna? Who can say? Meanwhile, dictionaries also serve that only stand and wait; comes the next edition of any major dictionary, and — ta-dah! — a stocking stuffer for Christmas. (Xmas is in.)

FREE LUNCH

Who coined "There ain't no such thing as a free lunch"?

We know that free lunch was advertised in Western bars in the 1840's, meaning that the eats were free to those who bought drinks. But when did the awakening come, encapsulated in the aphorism, that the price of the food was included in the price of the required drink?

The economist Milton Friedman popularized it in the name of a 1975 book, but frequently disclaims coinage. Fans of the science fiction writer Robert A. Heinlein point to his use of the phrase in his 1966 novel "The Moon Is a Harsh Mistress"; it was there that its long acronym was coined, "tanstaafl." But, as Ralph Keyes shows in his icon-busting "Nice Guys Finish Seventh," the no-free-lunch phrase pops up in the writings of two columnists, Burton Crane and Walter Morrow, dating back to 1949.

George W. Bardes of Cos Cob, Conn., noted a passage in Robert A. Caro's 1974 book "The Power Broker," a biography of Robert Moses, which casts more light on the phrase's introduction into politics. He is writing about the beginning, in 1934, of the mayoralty of Fiorello La Guardia, New York's "Little Flower":

"Bounding up the front steps of City Hall on the morning of his Inauguration Day, he had stopped, a roly-poly figure in a ridiculous black hat and a rumpled black suit," goes the Caro account, "and had shaken his little fist at its white Georgian elegance and shouted, 'E finita la cuccagna!' ('No more free lunch!'), a phrase which, a friend explained, the Mayor was using to promise 'The party is over! No more graft!' "

This usage provides a nice transition between the early, literal meaning of free lunch ("a bartender's spread to entice paying customers") and its present sense of "economic lesson" (you are paying for that so-called free lunch).

All that remains now is to find the first written citation of "there ain't no such thing as a free lunch." The finder won't get the Nobel Prize for economics, but will be fed great heaps of pickles and pretzels at no cost (to him or her) at gatherings of political etymologists.

HOOKOLOGY WON'T DO

A word-wanted ad was run here last year by Joe Califano, president of the Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse at Columbia University. He sought the name for the study of addiction, received 155 responses from Lexicographic Irregulars and is mulling over these finalists:

Addictionology, which is quickly understandable but seems long and banal.

Pharmacosiology, from pharmaco-, "drug," and -osis, "disease." I don't like the "cosy" in the middle.

Deditology from the Latin deditus, "addicted to," and has a warning connection to "dead" in the first syllable.

Etheology, from the Greek ethos, "habit."

If you want to vote, or top these, write to Joe at CASA, 152 West 57th Street, New York, N.Y. 10019. Help your fellow person; be a coiner.

Protection could hurt Detroit's public esteem

WASHINGTON — Occasionally there arises in Washington an idea so comprehensively cockeyed it has a kind of beauty, the loveliness of a perfect illustration of the folly to which business and government are prone when they do not keep a proper distance from one another. Consider the idea of reclassifying minivans and sport utility vehicles as trucks, thereby raising the tariff on imports of them from 2.5 percent to 25 percent.

Will

Trucks carry cargo. Minivans are used by families with children, and groups — sports teams, children's and senior citizens' organizations, car-pooling commuters. A ten-fold tariff increase would be a tax on what Democrats refer to, reverently, as "the forgotten middle class." (It is the class whose promised tax cut has been quickly forgotten by the Democrats).

Relieved of price competition by the 25 percent tariff, Detroit might do as it did in the early 1980s when the Reagan administration improvidently imposed "voluntary" quotas on Japanese automobile imports. Detroit raised prices enough to produce the phrase "sticker shock." If, as one study of Detroit's past behavior suggests, Detroit would raise minivan prices 40 cents for every extra dollar of tariff, prices would rise more than $1,000.

Furthermore, 5,000 dealers with 200,000 employees sell the vehicles that a 25 percent tariff would drive from the American marketplace. These incensed dealers note that Chrysler, the leader in the minivan field, produces 54 percent of its Caravans and Voyagers in Canada (no tariff applies because of the U.S.-Canada Free Trade Agreement). So under a 25 percent tariff on Japanese imports, American jobs in dealerships would be sacrificed to protect manufacturing jobs in Canada.

The torturous path to the present predicament began with President Johnson's December 1963 decision to impose a 25 percent tariff on brandy, potato starch, dextrine and light trucks in retaliation against European Community restrictions on U.S. poultry exports. (Chickens, trucks — don't try to make sense of this, this is just modern government at work.) A Volkswagen truck was thereby kept from American consumers. Since then there has been much feverish lobbying and bureaucratic fidgeting about what is or is not a truck.

President Bush's Treasury Department imposed a regulation that baptized two-door (but not four-door) minivans as trucks. Then last year the United Autoworkers approached candidate Clinton about calling all minivans trucks. Clinton was then as receptive to the reclassification as he was grateful for UAW support. Anyway, any Democratic administration will be congenitally disposed toward protectionism because the core values of contemporary liberalism are fairness and compassion.

Democrats prefer "fair" trade to free trade. Free trade, they think, is suspect because consumer sovereignty may not produce rational results unless guided by a political elite that has special understanding of rationality. Fair trade is "managed" by government that is wise and disinterested, at least when Democrats control it.

Compassion means the prevention or amelioration of pain. Change often is painful to some people, particularly those who do not anticipate it or would rather not adapt to it. Therefore protection (from change compelled by competition) is compassion.

But not even pain-prevention justifies protection of the Big Three. They have 91 percent of the already highly profitable (up to $8,000 a vehicle) minivan market and 82 percent of the market for sport utility vehicles (such as Chrysler's Jeep Cherokee, Ford's Explorer, Chevy's Blazer).

Last week the Big Three tiptoed to the edge of a precipice before pulling back from what would have been a suicidal jump. They almost filed a "dumping" complaint against Japan, charging Japanese firms with selling cars in America for less than they are charging in Japan. The complaint could have resulted in punitive tariffs on vehicle imports valued at $45 billion annually.

The Big Three were inhibited, in part, by fear of a consumer backlash. But the minivan reclassification can itself do enormous damage. By collaborating with protectionists in the political class, Detroit is risking a self-inflicted wound at a moment when Detroit's much-improved products — the improvement owes much to foreign competition — are reclaiming market share. Having reclaimed public esteem, Detroit may kick it away by urging government to impose, in effect, a substantial transportation tax on Americans.

Concerning the minivan reclassification, Robert Crandall of the Brookings Institution put the fundamental point plainly: "There is no argument for a developed country to protect old-line producers of middle technology with a 25 percent tariff." Yet that tariff may be just a small part of a ravenous appetite for protection.

Because only prudential considerations, not free trade principles, caused Detroit to abandon, for now, its "dumping" complaint, it is time for Americans to think hard about why, precisely, it is a problem if Japan, in its mercantilist foolishness, wants to subsidize Americans' transportation.

Meanwhile, one simple law would stop American protectionism. It would stipulate that a CEO of a corporation benefiting from a tariff is, by virtue of his or her dependence on and involvement in government, a civil servant, and can be paid no more than a GS-15 ($86,589).

What kind of laws do we have in Midland?

I am writing on behalf of my husband Johnnie Lee. On Saturday, Jan. 23, he arrived at our place on County Road 1150 South. He found that someone had cut the lock on his gate at his lot and stole his horse trailer and 14 of his hogs. He immediately called the sheriff.

When the sheriff arrived, he only looked and then told my husband to get in his car he proceeded to ask questions. We would like to know why no fingerprints or tire tracks were obtained. He informed Johnnie that the investigator would get in touch with him Monday. During the first week of February, we had not heard a word from the investigator or the sheriff. Nothing was said on the news or anyplace else about this matter.

We would like to know what kind of law we have in Midland: Is it just for the rich or is it because we are black that nothing was done and they don't care.

We would like to know where is the justice?

Texas needs more child care funding

Let's talk child care. Recently, my friend Michelle and her husband Scott were faced with a dilemma that I, as a single person with no children, take for granted.

Michelle and Scott are college students with a single income and are needing day care services. Finding quality day care in Odessa was not the problem. However, paying for the service was. In fact, it was a $600-a-month problem. So faced with the high cost of day care, Michelle sought help of the Child Care Management Services.

This service is state funded and is designed to help families such as Michelle's with day care costs. Even though my friends do not receive state or federal benefits, such as food stamps or welfare checks, they do qualify for the Child Care Management Services. The catch is Michelle and her family were put on a waiting list because the funding for this service has been frozen and there are about 500 families before Michelle's on the list needing the same service.

What is most aggravating is that those families that can receive this service (both students and working parents) get the short end of the stick because state politicians are out of touch with the common person. It is the taxpaying, middle class person that seems to get nowhere fast. We get taxes so that social services are able to operate, yet we cannot reap from this taxation to help ourselves because some idiot in Austin thinks child care is not important.

It is easy to sit in a leather chair and say "Children are the future" while child care services are cut or "Education is the key to a better America," yet spending on the Texas Education system is not a priority. Furthermore "helping people help themselves" is a farce because only 0.6% of the state's 1991 budget went to the entire Aid to Families with Dependent Children (welfare) funding across Texas!

Are we so shortsighted that we cannot see the long term consequences of our decisions in our government? To assure the growth of our economy we must assist every family in some small way, even if it is in day care. To do less is to inexorably lead to a true "welfare" state.

I encourage all parents to write our state representatives and senators about this freeze on child care services and maybe we can make a difference in state politics.

School board needs to remain open to options

I attended the Feb. 1 school board community meeting, held to discuss changes in the elementary system.

My basic feeling as I left the meeting was one of disappointment. Several months ago the school board appointed a citizens committee to formulate options to the present cluster system due to changes resulting from the building of new elementary schools. Apparently the committee looked at numerous possibilities and I could see from the one option that was presented that a great deal of work was involved. I very much appreciate the time the committee members spent on their assignment.

The reason I was disappointed was that only one option was presented. I would imagine that the board and/or committee could have chosen three or four of what they felt were the best options and presented them at the meeting. Maybe everyone at the community meeting would have felt that the option that was actually presented was the best one, but I strongly feel that we should have been given the chance to hear other ideas. I know both the board and Midland Independent School District (MISD) officials want the community to feel that it is part of the decision-making process, but I came away with the feeling that the board has already decided what it wants to do and the community meetings are merely to serve as a rubber stamp to a decision that has already been made.

I would greatly appreciate hearing some additional ideas at the remaining meetings and I hope that the board will remain open to all options before it makes its decision.

We should make city safe for next group

I applaud the members of the special grand jury that investigated the drug and alcohol problem in Midland. The parents and youth of this town owe you an immense debt of gratitude. It is never easy to be the bearer of bad news — but what you have done has been needed for some time.

As a parent in Midland, I have recognized for several years that a problem existed — I heard horror stories from my own teenagers, had our own family problems with drinking, curfews and gangs, and yet had trouble convincing other adults who did not have teenagers that there was really a problem.

People asked, "If there really is a problem, why is it never publicized? How can there be a drug problem — doesn't high drug use usually have an accompanying high crime problem?" Well, I'm glad to know that the problem is finally recognized — publicly — and that the concerned parents of Midland are being given a chance to turn their concern into concerted action. It may be an uphill struggle, but it's time to stop the mirror trick played by the powers that be in this town. We need to see the reality of the problem. The fact is, Midland isn't the "Nirvana" our leaders have wanted everyone to believe. We have the same problems as any major city, only ours have been denied for a long time.

The time has come for all concerned adults and youth to stand up for what they believe in so that we can reclaim our city. It will take a unified, determined effort and it will be hard work. I know I want to be involved; I want to seek solutions and implement them, and I want the chance to help make this town into a safer, more suitable place to raise a family. I urge ALL adults — AND our youth — to take part.

We have spent a fortune making Midland look attractive to "outsiders" by not being honest, and by not publicizing our problems, but the fortune we have been spending is our young people and their future. It's time to salvage all we can of today's youth and make this a safe place for the next group of youths who are growing up.

Readers' views on: Gays in military

Gays in military issue covers real problems

Making an issue of gays in the military to me appears to be another bureaucratic smokescreen to avoid dealing with the real problems we face in this country.

Simply don't ask the question if one is/is not gay and nothing is going to change. There have always been gays in the military just as there has always been alcohol abuse.

The global path we are taking now concerns me. It appears that the only positions left in the United States not requiring citizenship are the president, senators and representatives (politicians). If we are allowed to select our president from the global market of politicians, I suspect we could do better that an adulterous hillbilly. If our jobs can go to foreign companies, why not his?

This country was great 100 years ago when our values were "God, Country and Family." The consequences of abandoning these values should be obvious to everyone by now.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The U.S. Constitution establishes three qualifications for president. A president must be (1) at least 35 years old, (2) have lived in the United States 14 years, and (3) be a natural-born citizen. Members of the U.S. House of Representatives must be 25 years of age, have been a citizen of the U.S. for seven years and be an inhabitant of the state for which he is chosen. For the Senate, requirements are being 30 years of age, a citizen of the U.S. for nine years and being a resident of the state from which he is chosen.

Presence should be tolerated by merit

The military has always been aware that homosexuals, or "gays," have covertly been serving within their ranks.

If it becomes legally acceptable, however, their sexuality will then become overt. They would be freed to openly seek out gay, or bisexual relationships, among their fellow service men and/or women.

How cozy!

If the branches of our armed forces are subjected to this, it can only be perceived as discrimination. It would then become logical to convert our military in its entirety to co-ed status, thus allowing the heterosexuals, or "straights," the same easy access to relationships of their own sexuality.

Chaos, you say? You bet!

If they want to exploit their sexuality, their presence should be tolerated purely on the merits of their behavior and professional conduct within the ranks just as it has, in fact, always been tolerated.

Demands for special status and privileges causing costly segregation measures and creating protective assignments are legalized condonation and encouragement for a preferred lifestyle.

Think of all the "gay bashing" lawsuits that could be brought up to bear if (horror of horrors) a "gay" should ever be hurt, under any circumstances, while in the military. Think about your tax dollars paying for those lawsuits, not to mention the "sexual harassment" charges that will have to be dealt with on government time.

Perhaps the mentally retarded, and physically handicapped members of our society should ALSO be given their civil rights and be allowed to serve in our military as well.

Think about it.

I cannot believe that life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness was ever perceived to justify such perversity as this.

It would be a truly sad end for a once proud army.

Human life is more important than fish

I assume that Judge (Lucius) Bunton, like Judge William Justice is appointed for life. They are two of the best examples why that appointment period should be shortened.

The very idea that a fish the size of one's finger is more important than human beings is ludicrous. Things die. People die and all of the pot smoking, tree huggers from the Sierra Club can't change that. They can, obviously, get a federal judge to go along with their nonsense.

There is so much water in the aquifer that experts can't even begin to tell you just how much there is. But to keep a stupid fish (excuse me...a Fountain Darter) alive, which God might decide to make extinct tomorrow (I'd like to see the tree huggers bring a suit against God. I'm sure they would try and some life-appointee from the Johnson Administration would probably rule against God) human beings are asked to go without water. Of course, I realize how the Fountain Darter has put a man on the moon, cured polio, built roads and dams, but hey...

The springs at New Braunfels are above the water level of the aquifer in San Antonio. My guess is that if someone in San Antonio gets a drink of water, some pot smoking Sierra Club member is going to go running to the federal courts again.

These are the kind of nimrods who are going to be running this country for the next two years, so don't be laughing too hard at the plight of we San Antonians just yet. I'm sure the tree huggers could turn their attention on Midland and Odessa in a heartbeat.

Holidays were tough enough without thieves

I feel compelled to write this letter to let the people of Midland know of yet another malicious incident in our city that recently happened to me and my family.

I placed an Astro-turf blanket with a large beautifully decorated wreath on my husband's grave for the holiday season. When I returned to remove it and store it to use next year, to my disbelief, it was gone! I checked with the caretakers and they did not remove it so I must assume that some callous, uncaring person or persons stole it.

At best, it was a very depressing time of year for me and my family as this was the first holiday season since my husband's death. We had to do our very best to "get through it" and make it as happy as possible for the sake of everyone and especially the grandchildren.

I sincerely hope that every time this culprit looks at that beautiful wreath his conscience (from his actions I doubt that he has one) will remind him that he stole it from a loved one's grave.

Our policy on letters

The Reporter-Telegram recognizes the "Letters to the Editor" format as an important forum for citizen opinion and encourages participation of all readers. To that end, we have set as few rules as possible. However, we must have some, and they are:

- Letters must be signed and include a street address and daytime phone number for verification.
- They should be no more than 350 words in length. While some lengthy letters are published, we reserve the right to edit when necessary due to space limitations.
- Only one letter per month per writer can be published.

People behind wheel should have patience

I am writing this to urge people to have more patience while driving. It surely would make getting behind the wheel of a car much safer and maybe more enjoyable. Courtesy begets courtesy just as anger begets anger.

I'm sure the young man who laid on his horn when my husband declined to turn in front of an oncoming car was just not thinking. I earnestly pray that he will find it in his heart to be more understanding of us older drivers who quit playing chicken many years ago and also that somehow or other he manages to sprain the finger he saluted us with as he whizzed by.

Public demand for blood, guts is tiring

Within the last four weeks of our year of '93 we have seen reports on movie stars, murderers and tennis players recorded to alert the public of misdeeds, immorality and murder. However, nowhere does it ever take up space or time to tell of the people's hurts that are incurred and the pain suffered by the victim.

I am really tired of the public demand for "blood and guts." Yet there is never an outcry by us for upright and moral solutions to the sensationalism of blood and guts reporting. Would stories of health, wealth and God never sell a paper or is the media too chicken to even try? I would venture to say that if the format would change to the above mentioned topics and forgo for only a week negatives, their publication would skyrocket because in this world today people are looking for pluses in our world of wars and poverty and not the negatives that keep reinforcing the gloom and despair.

For the taxi cabbie killer, the breaker of contracts and the person who gave a blood tainted with the AIDS virus, I say to you we are hungry for life and liberty as much as you but when you are killing and destroying those around you, you had better take another look at your life and lifestyles.

Don't do the crime if you can't do the time and take Jesus at his word. "I will forgive, just ask."

Clinton vows program that's 'fair to all Americans'

By WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST JR.
Editor in Chief, The Hearst Newspapers

NEW YORK — With his selection of Janet Reno to be attorney general, President Clinton completed his top-management team last week. The world now watches as the administration begins to unfurl its policies.

Hearst

On the international front, the president's decision last week to offer U.S. military forces as part of a United Nations peace-keeping role in Bosnia was a cautious step toward redeeming his campaign pledge to try to bring peace to that troubled part of the world.

By conditioning U.S. participation to an agreement by the warring factions to accept a U.N. force, Clinton is trying to reduce the risk to Americans in uniform. But any "peace-keeping" mission is dangerous, by definition.

I believe we should support the president on this as long as our European allies do their share. Because the Bosnian tragedy is happening in their back yard, our friends in Europe should have a major role in any military peace-keeping. They can't just look to the United States to do the job.

Of more urgent concern is what Clinton plans to do for the economy. He was elected on his promise to get the economy rolling again. I asked Stewart M. Powell, the White House correspondent for the Hearst Newspapers, what he thinks Clinton will say in his Feb. 17 economic speech to Congress. Here's his report:

Look for President Clinton to warn that Americans' standard of living will be in jeopardy and their children's future bleak unless we take strong actions now.

A two-part approach lies ahead.

First, the president will make good on his campaign promise to offer a stimulus package that blends public works spending with investment tax credits to encourage private enterprise. Together the steps in the $31 billion package are expected to create as many as 500,000 jobs.

The hard part comes with the president's bid to cut the federal deficit — a reservoir of red ink totaling $327 billion this year that could swell to $650 billion annually by the year 2000.

The president also has been bracing the country for higher taxes, telling people he will ask them to help make "the changes we have to make."

Clinton set the stage by ordering symbolic cuts in government. He's eliminating 350 of the 2,261 positions serving the president directly. He told Cabinet secretaries to trim 100,000 jobs from the 2:1 million government civilian work force over four years. Perks are being cut.

But those sacrifices may pale compared with what Clinton has in store for the American people. He vows a program that is "fair to all Americans."

For the wealthy, Clinton plans to boost the individual income tax rate to 36 percent from 31 percent, impose a 10 percent surtax on $1 million-plus annual incomes and increase taxes on Social Security benefits for elderly individuals earning more than $25,000 or couples earning more than $32,000.

Corporations will feel the pinch, with the income tax rate jumping from 34 percent to at least 36 percent.

Ordinary Americans will be paying more, too. Higher taxes on cigarettes and alcohol may lie ahead, and a broad-based energy tax appears likely.

Clinton aides have not ruled out reducing the deductibility of interest on home mortgages. Nearly 26 million Americans saved an average of $1,574 each in taxes last year through this deduction. Outright repeal of the deduction would theoretically reduce the deficit by $43 billion.

The energetic chief executive plans to hit the road for a day or two following his address to try to sell his plan directly to the people.

For Clinton to succeed now, he must win support from the American people. Otherwise his allies in Congress will face a backlash at the polls in the mid-term elections in 1994 — just 20 months away. And Clinton's prospects for 1996 would be imperiled.

Well, that was Stewart's report. I agree everyone's going to have to pitch in if we're ever going to get the federal budget deficit under control. I believe Americans will support the president's plan if they believe it is fair and if they believe all people are doing their part.

Pitchers, catchers report this week

By Ben Walker
AP Baseball Writer

The snow has not stopped and the wind keeps whipping. Maybe it's cold outside or maybe the rain is pouring down.

Well, never mind that.

Because this week, the long winter ends for baseball fans. It's time for those four magical words: Pitchers and catchers report!

Starting Friday in places like Vero Beach, Bradenton and Mesa, it all begins again. This is the season that fans really root for, when baseball's focus shifts from finances back to the field.

And, there's plenty to focus on this year.

In Florida, Nolan Ryan of the Texas Rangers will be preparing in Port Charlotte for his record 27th and final season. A few miles up the Gulf Coast in Sarasota, Bo Jackson will be trying to return to the Chicago White Sox with his bionic hip.

In Arizona, Barry Bonds will be settling in with the San Francisco — not St. Petersburg — Giants when they begin camp at Scottsdale. Bonds will be one of several stars playing for new teams this season, with Doug Drabek, Andre Dawson and Jim Abbott among them. Jose Canseco, meanwhile, prepares for his first full season with Texas.

The lineup among owners will change, too. On March 1, George Steinbrenner will be reinstated, and he's almost certain to show up that day to oversee his New York Yankees at Fort Lauderdale. That same day, Cincinnati's Marge Schott begins serving her one-year suspension.

The National League also will have a new look, as the Florida Marlins (at Cocoa, Fla.) and Colorado Rockies (at Tucson, Ariz.) break out the bats and balls for the first time. If history is right, these expansion teams will not win a lot of games, but this is one of the joys of spring training — all teams are all even at 0-0.

And this year, despite no commissioner, there's also no threat of labor problems. A lockout a few years ago got the spring off to a bad start; players and owners might be back at the bargaining table at this time next year, but for now, no worry.

Also hoping to make comebacks this year are Kevin Mitchell, traded from Seattle to Cincinnati, and Los Angeles' Darryl Strawberry, both returning from injury-interrupted seasons, and Steve Howe, fresh off his seventh suspension. Matt Keough, nearly killed by a foul ball last March, will be back with California, as a scout, not as a pitcher.

By mid-October, only two teams will still be playing. Maybe it could be last year's World Series participants, the Toronto Blue Jays and Atlanta Braves.

Having learned past lesssons about top teams that are complacent in the winter, the champion Blue Jays and Braves both were busy during the off-season.

Toronto went through a big shakeup, signing free agents Paul Molitor, Dave Stewart and Dick Schofield but losing Dave Winfield, David Cone, Jimmy Key, Tom Henke, Candy Maldonado, Dave Stieb and Manuel Lee. No matter, the Canadian flag will be right-side up when the Blue Jays begin camp Feb. 22 at Dunedin, Fla.

Atlanta made one major move, signing Cy Young Award winner Greg Maddux, but lost Lonnie Smith, Charlie Leibrandt and Alejandro Pena. The Braves also lost the No. 1 pick in the expansion draft, pitcher David Nied, who is expected to start for Colorado on opening day, April 5, at New York.

Before then, though, there are games to play. The exhibition season starts March 4 with four games: Pittsburgh-White Sox, Atlanta-Georgia Tech, Minnesota-Edison College and Kansas City-Central Florida.

Two days later, Florida and Cleveland begin a two-day series at Homestead, Fla., with the games to benefit the cleanup effort in the area.

The Indians left their Tucson camp after last year and were scheduled to move into a new site this spring at Homestead, but Hurricane Andrew did too much damage to the facility. Instead, the Indians will train at Winter Haven, Fla., this year and plan to move into Homestead next spring.

Winter Haven and its Chain O' Lakes Park was the longtime home of the Boston Red Sox, who moved this year and joined Minnesota at Fort Myers. Other clubs in new places this spring are California (in Seattle's old home at Tempe, Ariz.), Seattle (at Peoria, Ariz.) and Baltimore (at St. Petersburg, Fla.).

A few familiar names also will be in new places. A year after half of the major league teams changed managers, there were a few more switches this winter.

Lou Piniella moved from Cincinnati to Seattle and Tony Perez took over the Reds. The Giants made Dusty Baker a first-time manager. Texas did the same with Kevin Kennedy. Colorado will start its first season under rookie manager Don Baylor, and Florida, which opens the regular season at home against Los Angeles, will begin with Rene Lachemann.

1993 Baseball Spring Training Capsules

NL EAST

Chicago Cubs 1992 Record: 78-84, 4th. Manager: Jim Lefebvre. Spring Home: HoHoKam Park, Mesa, Ariz. Key Arrivals: Jose Guzman, pitcher; Steve Lake, catcher; Dan Plesac, pitcher; Randy Myers, pitcher; Candy Maldonado, outfielder; Willie Wilson, outfielder. Key Departures: Andre Dawson, outfielder; Greg Maddux, pitcher; Gary Scott, third baseman; Joe Girardi, catcher; Doug Dascenzo, outfielder. Future Star: Matt Walbeck, catcher. Outlook: The Cubs have excess relief pitching and will make a trade. They need a left-handed starter. Look for Paul Assenmacher or Chuck McElroy to go. Chicago may also trade shortstop Shawon Dunston.

Montreal Expos 1992 Record: 87-75, 2nd. Manager: Felipe Alou. Spring Home: Municipal Stadium, West Palm Beach, Fla. Key Arrivals: Mark Gardiner, pitcher; Lee Stevens, first baseman; Jimmy Jones, pitcher. Key Departures: Tim Wallach, third baseman; Ivan Calderon, outfielder; Spike Owen, shortstop; Bret Barberie, infielder; Gary Carter, catcher. Future Star: B.J. Wallace, pitcher. Outlook: The Expos will probably platoon Sean Berry and Frank Bolick at third base and Greg Colbrunn and John Vander Wal at first. Wil Cordero is the shortstop.

Pittsburgh Pirates 1992 Record: 96-66, 1st. Manager: Jim Leyland. Spring Home: McKechnie Field, Bradenton, Fla. Key Arrivals: Alejandro Pena, pitcher; John Candelaria, pitcher; Lonnie Smith, outfielder; Tom Foley, infielder; Dennis Moeller, pitcher. Key Departures: Barry Bonds, outfielder; Doug Drabek, pitcher; Jose Lind, second baseman; Danny Jackson, pitcher; Alex Cole, outfielder; Gary Redus, first baseman; Danny Cox, pitcher; Cecil Espy, outfielder; Gary Varsho, outfielder; Roger Mason, pitcher; Bob Patterson, pitcher; Jerry Don Gleaton, pitcher; Vicente Palacios, pitcher. Future Star: Albert Martin, outfielder. Outlook: The poor Pirates need decent seasons from youngsters Martin, Kevin Young (3b) and Carlos Garcia (2b) to have good seasons. At least Pittsburgh still has Leyland.

NL WEST

Atlanta Braves 1992 Record: 98-64, 1st. Manager: Bobby Cox. Spring Home: Municipal Stadium, West Palm Beach, Fla. Key Arrivals: Greg Maddux, pitcher; Jay Howell, pitcher; Wally Backman, infielder; Bill Pecota, infielder. Key Departures: Alejandro Pena, pitcher; Lonnie Smith, outfielder, Charlie Leibrandt, pitcher; Jeff Reardon, pitcher; David Nied, pitcher; Mike Bielecki, pitcher; Jeff Treadway, second baseman. Future Star: Chipper Jones, shortstop. Outlook: The Braves have the best starting rotation in baseball but are looking for some pitchers who can finish games.

AL EAST

New York Yankees 1992 Record: 76-86, t4th. Manager: Buck Showalter. Spring Home: Fort Lauderdale Stadium. Key Arrivals: Wade Boggs, third baseman; Jim Abbott, pitcher; Jimmy Key, pitcher; Spike Owen, shortstop; Paul O'Neill, outfielder. George Steinbrenner is back March 1. Key Departures: Roberto Kelly, outfielder; Charlie Hayes, third baseman; Greg Cadaret, pitcher; Scott Sanderson, pitcher; J.T. Snow, first baseman; Mel Hall, outfielder (Japan); Jesse Barfield, outfielder (Japan). Future Star: Sam Militello, pitcher. Outlook: The Yankees have an abundance of middle infielders and GM Gene Michael says he will make a trade during spring training. Look for Mike Gallego to be dealt. What will be the impact of Steinbrenner's return?

AL WEST

California Angels 1992 Record: 72-90, 5th. Manager: Buck Rodgers. Spring Home: Tempe Diablo Stadium (Ariz.). Key Arrivals: Kelly Gruber, third baseman; Chili Davis, outfielder; Stan Javier, outfielder; J.T. Snow first baseman; Russ Springer, pitcher; Jerry Nielson, pitcher. Key Departures: Jim Abbott, pitcher; Bryan Harvey, pitcher; Junior Felix, outfielder; Hubie Brooks, outfielder; Lee Stevens, first baseman; Von Hayes, outfielder-1b; Luis Sojo, infielder. Future Star: Damion Easley, second baseman. Outlook: The Angels need a fifth starter. Candidates include Scott Lewis, Tim Fortugno and Paul Swingle. Joe Grahe is now the closer in the bullpen. There's youth in the outfield with Luis Polonia in left, Chad Curtis in center and Tim Salmon in right. Snow figures to be the starting first baseman.

Oakland Athletics 1992 Record: 96-66, 1st. Manager: Tony La Russa. Spring Home: Phoenix Municipal Stadium. Key Arrivals: Storm Davis, pitcher; Gary Pettis, outfielder; Rich Gedman, catcher; Bob Milacki, pitcher; Dale Sveum, infielder; Joe Boever, pitcher. Key Departures: Dave Stewart, pitcher; Mike Moore, pitcher; Walt Weiss, shortstop; Willie Wilson, outfielder; Harold Baines, outfielder-dh; Carney Lansford, third baseman; Jamie Quirk, catcher; Jeff Parrett, pitcher. Future Star: Scott Brosius, third baseman. Outlook: There's been a big turnover on the defending AL West champs and pitching could be a problem. Center fielder Dave Henderson is trying to make a comeback from injuries. Lansford (retired) will be missed in clubhouse.

Yankees' Habyan loses in arbitration

NEW YORK (AP) — Pitcher John Habyan lost in salary arbitration Saturday, the second straight day the New York Yankees have won their case.

Owners have won six of nine cases decided after hearings, including the Yankees' victory Friday over Jim Abbott.

Habyan will get a $100,000 raise to $600,000, instead of his request for $830,000, arbitrator Theodore High decided. Habyan was 5-6 with seven saves and a 3.84 ERA in 56 relief appearances last season.

In a case that didn't go to a hearing, pitcher Bob Tewksbury and the St. Louis Cardinals agreed at $2,625,000, halfway between his request for $3.2 million and the club's offer of $2.05 million.

Tewksbury made $825,000 last year. He was 16-5 with a 2.16 ERA, third-best in the National League. He walked just 20 batters in 233 innings.

There are 20 players left in arbitration.

Fans hustle to find out when Ryan pitches

ARLINGTON (AP) — After Nolan Ryan announced this season would be his last, fans have inundated the Texas Rangers ticket office with the unanswerable question: When will he pitch?

"I wish I had money for every time I've been asked that," said John Schriever, club director of ticket operations. "I'd be in Nolan's tax bracket then."

It is a good guess Ryan will make most of his starts at Arlington Stadium. In the last two years, Ryan has made 35 starts at home and 19 on the road.

Manager Kevin Kennedy has indicated Ryan is likely to pitch the home opener on April 9 against Boston with 21-game winner Kevin Brown likely to start the season opener at Baltimore on April 5.

Kennedy also has said he will juggle the rotation to accommodate Ryan, who will be treated more like a No. 4 pitcher than a No. 1 in his record 27th season in the major leagues.

Ryan announced Thursday that he had decided to retire after the 1993 season.

Ryan continues to amaze

By Arnie Stapleton
AP Sports Writer

ARLINGTON — How many times will Nolan Ryan amaze us this year?

It's only February and he's already started. Entering uncharted territory — a record 27th season in the major leagues — Ryan walked into the Texas Rangers offices Thursday and announced this year would be his last.

And just like that, Troy Aikman was old news.

The word flashed across the country like one of Ryan's crackling fastballs. This is it. One last summer. One last chance to haul the family and the kid in all of us to the ballpark and see the legend pitch again. It's like watching Astaire dance or Picasso paint.

What is Nolan now, 46? And here we thought he'd go on forever.

Suddenly, baseball fans everywhere feel a little bit older themselves. Was that a new twinge in the hamstring during your morning jog? And how about that wrinkle you noticed in the mirror this morning?

Ryan smoked the radar guns at 95 mph in his final appearance last season. So why now? There's a new ballpark next year, and a Ryan Expressway to take fans there.

"You don't want to stay too long. I'd rather be premature than a little late on that decision," Ryan explained. "I hope at the end of this year I'll feel like I could have come back and maybe squeezed one more year out of it."

Twenty-seven years and he's talking about letting go before he's washed up. Who else but Nolan?

Of course, he's been amazing the masses as long as he's been baffling batters. Was there ever a bigger sigh of relief from American League hitters than when they heard Ryan had finally decided to retire?

Ryan said he made the decision because he could no longer attend to his family while juggling his physical preparation and his various business interests.

"I haven't had any time for myself in years," Ryan said. "The fact is my children are getting to the point where they're going to be leaving home shortly, and I'm not going to get the opportunity with my schedule the way it is to do a lot of things with them. I felt like with the family situation and also my physical situation, this really should be my last year."

Fair enough. Red Murff, the scout who discovered Ryan throwing wild heaters in high school, once took Ruth Ryan aside to inform her, as he put it, that her husband didn't belong to her or their hometown of Alvin or even to Texas, for that matter, but to the world.

And he was right. For 27 years. Come September, though, it'll be time to return Ryan to his family.

But the memories and milestones are for keeps.

And there's a bushel full of those, isn't there?

How about his sixth and seventh no-hitters, his 5,000th strikeout and his 300th victory? And that's just since he joined the Rangers in 1989.

Ryan didn't have the best of seasons last year, but Texas didn't have the best of bullpens or big bats, either. He won but five games, yet six times he entrusted his relievers a lead they proceeded to lose.

He compiled a 0.99 ERA over his last four starts, although he had one loss and three no-decisions to show for it.

Forty-six years old and 27 major league seasons, and it seems like he's pulling the trigger too soon, doesn't it?

The best thing about this farewell season is this: Ryan will go out the way he came in, driven still by that old saying from the West, "All hat and no horse." That's all talk and no action, all mouth and no muscle.

Those five words have quietly inspired Nolan Ryan since he first picked up a baseball, discovered he had something special and quickly discarded his dream of playing college basketball.

"Nolan wants to have a hat AND a horse," former Rangers pitching coach Tom House once said, "meaning, Nolan wants to be a power pitcher or he wants to go home and be a rancher, nothing in between."

The ranch will have to wait a little while longer. For one more glorious season, Nolan Ryan still belongs to baseball.

Buckner's infamy now worldwide

By Stephen Wilson
AP Sports Writer

LONDON — Pity Bill Buckner.

The former major league star, now a hitting coach with the Toronto Blue Jays, travels 3,000 miles to conduct a series of goodwill baseball clinics in Europe.

But the Europeans want to know more from Buckner than just how to hit a baseball. They can't keep from asking him about the fateful ground ball that dribbled through his legs in Game 6 of the 1986 World Series.

"Yeah, it surprised me," he said. "They joke about it. A couple of guys here, our drivers, they were looking at my legs and saying, 'You know, your legs aren't crooked.'

"I've had to deal with this thing a long time. I try to look at in a positive way. In my mind, I didn't lose the World Series. I mean I was a good player. But people in these countries wouldn't know who I was if I hadn't been involved in the World Series."

Buckner reaches into his pocket and pulls out a crumpled newspaper clipping. It's from a German newspaper, so he can't read it, but there are numerous references to 1986 and the World Series, so he knows what the theme of the story is.

"I don't particularly like it," he said. "I can't control the press and how they react. It's a fact that sticks with me. It depends how you deal with it."

Later, the British press would catch up with Buckner. "Billy Bucks' Mission Recalls Memories of His Heroic Failure" was the headline in the Telegraph. The Independent said, "Buckner Batting to Clear His Name."

"I can't believe how big it is; it's all over the world now," he told the Independent.

In case anyone needs reminding, Buckner was the first baseman for the Boston Red Sox when they led the New York Mets 5-3 with two outs and nobody on base in the bottom of the 10th inning — one strike away from the World Series title.

The Mets tied the score 5-5 on three consecutive singles and a wild pitch by Bob Stanley. Then Mookie Wilson hit a grounder that went through Buckner's legs, scoring the winning run. The Mets went on to win the Series in the decisive seventh game.

"People say I lost the World Series," Buckner said, sipping coffee at a London hotel. "I don't like to point fingers, but there were other people who had more to do with losing than I did. I had a great last two months of the season. I was by far the best player we had on the team. I had a lot to do with us getting there. But the World Series just wasn't meant to be for me."

Buckner was released by Boston midway through the 1987 season, then rejoined the team in 1990 at age 40. But he was released for good after appearing in 22 games.

Over his 20-year career, during which he also played for the Los Angeles Dodgers and Chicago Cubs, Buckner batted .289 with 2,715 hits. He hit over .300 in eight seasons.

Buckner and former major league catcher Bob Didier, also a Blue Jays' coach, conducted clinics in the Netherlands, Italy and England as part of major league baseball's campaign to develop the sport around the world.

Buckner and Didier found a high level of interest and enthusiasm among the Europeans, but noted that they don't practice and play often enough. Some are seeking quick solutions rather than working on fundamentals.

"They, especially the Germans, are looking for scientific ways to get better," Buckner said. "They think they can take out a slide rule to become a better hitter. I had at least 15 people say, 'We don't need the basic things, we want some real sophisticated things about hitting.' But what they need is to get the basics down."

Buckner recalled one particularly bizarre question.

"One guy asked me, 'How are the muscles in your stomach flexed when you make contact?' I started laughing, and he got a little upset. He thought he had it all figured out. That was the first day. I thought I was in trouble then."

He was. Buckner didn't realize the next 10 days would bring back 1986 all over again.

Brewers under average for minority hiring

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Brewers, whose team president Bud Selig is chairman of baseball's Executive Council, are under the major league average in the hiring of minorities and women in their front office.

The Brewers said in 1992 they employed seven minorities among 76 front-office positions, or 9.2 percent, and 26 women, or 34.2 percent. according to a copyright story Sunday in The Milwaukee Journal.

Cal State-Fullerton topples No. 3 'Horns, 7-5

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Cal State Fullerton junior righthander Dan Ricabal pitched a six-hit complete game as the fifth-ranked Titans subdued No. 3 Texas 7-5 Saturday afternoon before 6,072 fans at Disch-Falk Field.

Ricabal (2-0), who was in command throughout, struck out six Longhorns in his 139-pitch performance.

Fullerton (3-2) jumped to a 2-1 lead in the top of the fifth with a two-out RBI double by left-fielder Kyle Evans off of Texas starter and loser Ryan Kjos (0-1).

The Titans led 6-1 an inning later when an error by Longhorns third baseman Chad Blessing allowed Adam Millan to score before Jeff Ferguson's three-run triple.

Texas (6-2) cut the margin to 7-5 with a two-run single by Braxton Hickman in the sixth and a two-run home run by Brooks Kieschnick in the eighth, but Ricabal retired the side in order in the ninth.

Houston 9, Tulane 7

HOUSTON — Brian Blair went 2-for-4 and drove in four runs, and Matt Beech pitched five strong innings of relief to lead Houston past No. 16 Tulane.

The Cougars (9-0) gave up three runs in the top of the fourth to stake the Green Wave (0-1) to a 5-3 lead. But Houston rallied for three runs in its next at-bat, then had three more in the fifth to go ahead 9-5.

Beech improved to 2-0 by striking out five in 5 1-3 innings. He allowed only one hit, a two-run homer by Johnny Livingstone in the eighth.

Toney TKOs Barkley for IBF title

LAS VEGAS (AP) — James Toney chose to box rather than brawl with Iran Barkley in their battle of "two angry men" Saturday night and it proved to be a winning choice.

Toney won the IBF super middleweight championship from Barkley and now will relinquish the IBF middleweight title.

Both fighters spent a week talking about what they were going to do to one another, but it became obvious early that the course Toney had chosen was to use his boxing ability against Barkley, who knows just one was to fight — attack, attack, attack.

Barkley came barreling out of his corner at the opening bell and the two went toe-to-toe for about 30 seconds as an estimated crowd of 4,000 at the Caesars Palace Sports Pavilion roared.

There were other toe-to-toe exchanges during the match and sometimes Toney would purposely go to the ropes. He chose, however, to keep the fight mostly in the center of the ring, where he baffled Barkley by changing the punching angles, spearing him with jabs and short counters to the head.

Barkley could never put more than one or two punches together.

By the third round, Barkley's left eye was almost closed, and when the end came, both eyes were almost shut tight.

Toney was in control from the outset. Barkley's best round might have been the second, when he shook Toney with a good right 1:15 into the round and caught him with a good hook going away.

As the fight progressed, however, it became obvious that Barkley had no answer for Toney's boxing ability.

At the end of nine rounds, each of the three judges had Toney leading 89-82.

The Associated Press had it 89-82 for Toney.

NBAPA files grievance

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The NBA Players Association filed a grievance on behalf of two Portland Trail Blazers who were suspended for three games without pay by the team as a result of a teen-age sex scandal in Utah.

"We feel that with the decision by the Salt Lake County Attorney's office not to file charges, the fine and suspension are unreasonable," Charles Grantham, executive director of the players association, said Friday.

"I think to some degree the team has decided they would be judge and jury and find these players guilty even though they were cleared of any illegal activity."

Once the NBA receives the grievance, the fines against rookies Tracy Murray and Dave Johnson would be placed on hold. Grantham wants the matter decided by an arbitrator.

Johnson and Murray were fined and suspended for their involvement in alleged sexual contact with two 16-year-old girls Jan. 23 and 24 in Salt Lake City.

CASA protects rights of abused children

Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram

Andra Chamberlin, left, is program manager of the Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA) program of Midland, and Kim Duff is a court-appointed CASA volunteer. CASA volunteers represent the best interests of children in child-abuse court cases.

United Way program wants to provide safe environment

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

Abused children have legal rights. And among those rights is the privilege of living within a trusting, comfortable, safe and family-bonding environment.

Ensuring rights of abused children who are brought into the court system for their own welfare is the function of the Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA) program in Midland.

"Children are our most precious resource in the whole world," said Andra Chamberlin, program manager for CASA of Midland.

Ms. Chamberlin, who formerly was education director for the Midland Rape Crisis Center, ensures that the best interests of abused children are represented in court, where a judge or jury will decide the best living environment for abused children.

"To think that people would abuse them is so sad," Ms. Chamberlin said. "Children are our future. And if our future is being abused and neglected, what kind of future does that hold?"

Midland CASA, which is funded by the United Way of Midland through Family Services of Midland, is part of the National CASA Association.

Ms. Chamberlin's child-advocacy force of volunteers conducts background studies on children after abused children are thrust into the court system through the investigative work of the Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services.

"Our goal is to serve the best interest of the child," Ms. Chamberlin said, "(and) not what the child wishes necessarily, not what parents wish, not what CPS (the children's protective services) wishes, but what is in the best interests of that child."

Judge Dean Rucker, presiding judge of the 318th Texas District Court that specializes in resolving family-related conflicts, appoints CASA volunteers.

'CASA is the eyes and the ears of the court for the child.'
—Judge Dean Rucker

Under Ms. Chamberlin's coordination, each volunteer is assigned to an abused child under age 17. In the advocate's role, the volunteer gathers pertinent information on the child and child's family and turns that information over the judge.

"Although the children have legal representation in court through the appointments of attorneys," Rucker said, "the children really needed another voice, a person who could go and do the field work, to check on placement for them, to ensure that their needs are being met during the course of the trial, and to give the court additional information to make a better decision affecting that child's future."

CASA is an arm of the court, Rucker said. "It's the eyes and the ears of the court for the child."

The volunteers talk with the child, the parents, family members, social workers, school officials, health-care workers, neighbors and other who may be knowledgeable about the child's condition and background.

Since a CASA volunteer is assigned only one child, the volunteer is better able to make thorough inquiry than would a social worker, who may be assigned dozens of child-abuse cases, Ms. Chamberlin said.

While the child may be in the legal program for 18 months to three years, an objective of the CASA program is to help shorten the legal process and to assist the judge determining what happens to the child.

Is the child returned to his or her biological parent or parents?

Is the child taken away from his or her natural family and assigned to caretakers, foster par-

Former Midlander, board member to speak at United Way luncheon

Staff report

A former Midlander who was involved in community service here will be guest speaker when the United Way of Midland holds its Annual Meeting/Awards Luncheon on Friday.

Irish

The event, to be held at the Midland Hilton, will start at 11:30 a.m., and is open to the public. Lunch is $10 per person, paid in advance, or $12 at the door. Reservations may be made by calling 682-4358. Companies, employees and volunteers will be recognized for their efforts in the 1992-93 campaign.

George B. Irish served from March 1982 through December 1984 as president and publisher of the Reporter-Telegram, a member newspaper of the Hearst Corp. He then served as publisher of the Beaumont Enterprise, group publisher of the Texas Community Division of the Hearst Corp., publisher of the San Antonio Light and now is a Hearst executive.

While in Midland, Irish served on the United Way Board of Directors and as campaign chairman-designate. He also was a vice president, vice chairman of the annual fund campaign and chairman of the pilot campaign.

Other community service projects included membership on the boards of Industrial Foundation, Inc., Midland Chamber of Commerce, High Sky Girls Ranch, Junior Achievement, Palmer Drug Abuse Program, Midland Presbyterian Homes, Crime Stoppers, Midland Rotary Club and Midland Community Theatre.

His involvement in United Way has continued. In San Antonio, Irish served in the following positions: vice chairman of the Allocations Panel, chairman of the Communications Committee, chairman of the Admissions Panel, metropolitan chairman of the annual campaign and vice chairman of the campaign.

He also is involved with, among others, San Antonio Economic Development, San Antonio Symphony, Texas Chamber of Commerce, Greater San Antonio Chamber of Commerce, United Negro College Fund Advisory Board, Rotary Club, World Affairs Council, Alamo Area Council of Boy Scouts, Pan American League and San Antonio Medical Foundation.

Appointed City Council members must be elected to retain positions

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff writer

Three Midland City Council members who were appointed to their positions last year will have to be elected if they wish to retain their positions.

Jose Cuevas, Bill Morrow and Juluis Brooks were appointed to their positions last year after their predecessors left for various reasons.

The other council seat up for reelection this year is James F. Devenport's District 1 spot. He has announced he will seek a second term.

Candidates for vacant municipal seats — including District 2 and two at-large positions — can pick up applications at the city secretary's office beginning Monday. The election will be held on May 1.

"It's a staggered election procedure," said Bill Clanton, city secretary. "We have four slots open this year and there were three last year, including the mayor's and districts three and four."

Council members are paid $25 a month. The mayor receives $75 a month.

"No, it's not something they do for the money," Clanton said. "It takes a lot of dedication."

Last February, Morrow was appointed to an at-large council position after John Castro moved to El Paso. Minority residents, concerned about minority representation on the council, were angered by the appointment. Castro was the first Hispanic at-large council member.

In June, District 2 council member the Rev. Michael DeVaughn resigned after his church transferred him. Brooks was appointed to the position a few weeks later.

Finally, Cuevas was appointed to the at-large position left empty by J.D. Faircloth, who gave up the seat to successfully run for mayor. Cuevas had previously served on the council from May 1989 to October 1990.

Devenport is the only council member to announce he will seek reelection before filing officially begins.

"I am looking forward to continued association with the citizens of this District in dealing with current and future issues

New government study? You must be dreaming

I always swore that when they said bacon was bad for me I would never listen to those silly warnings ever again, but, surprise, a new headline has just caught my attention.

Here's what it said, and I'm not making this up, though that is what I normally do when a deadline is rapidly approaching and I have nothing to write about. But in this case, I'm on the level. The headline said: "Dreaming might be hazardous to your health, new study finds."

Ott

Say what?

Dreaming? Bad for me?

Where do they come get studies? Is there a team of comedy writers somewhere who come up with bizarre ideas? Do they sit around and say things like:

"Hey, Sydney, what if we have the government do a study to determine whether or not brushing your teeth will cause hemorrhoids?"

"I love it," Sydney responds. "That should be good for at least $28 million. And just imagine how it's going to screw with people's minds."

"Really. It'll be as funny as the one we did on dreams being bad for you."

Laughing uncontrollably, Sydney says, "Can you believe there were some dum-dums out there who actually bought that one?"

"What can I say? People are stupid."

Well, maybe not stupid, but some of us can certainly be gullible.

But not me. I, for one, have had it with government studies. When the researchers start messing with my dreams, they are playing with fire. I will not give up my dreams without a fight.

Take my cigarettes, booze, bacon, cream gravy and anything else you want, but leave my dreams alone. They are all I have left.

For years, one of the few highlights in my life was going to bed at night knowing full well that my mind would be free to wander as it pleased. With little or no effort, I could go places I had never been before, meet strange and interesting people, conjure up brilliant observations.

Dreams were my ticket to the world.

They started when I was young. The first one I remember was being Roy Rogers' sidekick. We rode the range together, drinking milk and gunning down bad guys. But soon I moved on to more exotic subjects. I dreamed of being a football star, for example. After that, there was high finance, sex, politics, sex, medicine, sex, world peace, sex and, when nothing better came along, sex.

It was very rewarding.

Now researchers are telling me I should slack off.

According to the story I read, the study "found that the periods of sleep when dreams occur kick the body into high gear. The heart speeds up. The blood pressure climbs. And stress hormones prepare the body to run or fight. Researchers believe all this internal turmoil, which happens while the sleeper is tucked in bed, may trigger heart attacks."

Sorry, folks, I'm not buying it. Everything you say may be true, but I'm not going to quit dreaming. It's as simple as that. So you might as well stop nagging me.

There are places I haven't gone, people I haven't met, observations I haven't explored.

High blood pressure or not, my dreams aren't complete yet. So back off, Mr. Smarty Pants Researcher, my dreams will continue.

Besides, there is another consideration. Even if a person believes these particular findings, how does he quit dreaming? Does he have a little talk with himself before going to bed? "Now, young man, I want you to go right to sleep and not have any dreams."

The whole thing borders on the absurd.

Dreams are NOT bad for you. Don't listen to a bunch of intellectual snobs. Take it from me. Dreaming is where it's at. It's safe, it's healthy, it's fun.

Better yet, with all all the weird diseases out there, dreams have become the ultimate in "safe sex."

COURT: CASA ensures rights of children

(From 1C)

ents or relatives?

Is the child, on rare occasion, institutionalized?

The CASA volunteer is "working only for that child and going out to the field in getting us additional information," Rucker said. "Perhaps the child's attorney, the legal representative in court, does not have the time or the resources."

Information gleaned by the volunteer is shared by the judge and attorneys for the child, the parent or parents, and the Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services.

Currently in Midland, there are too few CASA volunteers: 12. And 59 abused children are in the legal process, Ms. Chamberlin said. The goal is one volunteer per child.

"The (primary) criterion is that you care about children, and you care about what happens to them," Ms. Chamberlin said. "You want the best for all of the children in the world."

CASA volunteer Kim Duff is a mother, law librarian, and paralegal who is "interested in the law and that (legal) aspect of protecting the children."

Child abuse may be linked to parental mental disorders, depression and personality disorders, Ms. Duff said. "Sometimes it's because of the way they (the parents) were raised. They honestly believe that (abuse) is the way it's done."

Ms. Duff, a CASA volunteer for two years, said that in one of her former cases, the child was returned to the parent, "who is doing very well with the child."

"Unfortunately," said Ms. Chamberlin, "child abuse occurs more often than people would like to believe."

She listed physical abuse, sexual abuse, neglect and abandonment. Children may or may not be outwardly beaten and bruised.

"Their parents may take them to a baby-sitter and never show up again. We are working with all different kinds of abuse with the child."

A child may undergo much distress if he or she is "shuffled from one foster home to another, from foster home to relative, back to the foster home, back to the parent, back to foster home," Ms. Chamberlin said. "It's very difficult for that child. They can't bond. They don't trust. And they certainly can't feel comfortable and feel safe. And what we hope to do is to provide . . . a place where they will feel safe."

The "safe" place for the child may be in the custody of the child's natural parent or parents if the mother or father have been "rendered worthy" of taking care of the child and if the parents have grown in child care and understanding through therapy and parenting classes.

The ideal situation, if practical, is to "reunite the family," Ms. Chamberlin said.

Similar to other abuses, child abuse exists in all social-economic classes.

"It doesn't matter if the family makes a $100,000 a year, or if they don't have anything," Ms. Chamberlin said.

Often, "parents don't know how to parent," Ms. Chamberlin said. "Parenting is probably the most important job anyone could ever have. And it's the one job that we never have any training for."

But once parents get involved in learning parenting skills, "they really want to do what's necessary to have their children returned."

In parenting classes, parents learn different behaviors and "different ways of working with children instead of spanking or beating or hitting."

And if the parents are successful in learning child-rearing skills and the "danger (of child abuse) has been removed," then the child may be returned to his or her parent or parents.

Men and women who are interested in becoming CASA volunteers may telephone Ms. Chamberlin at 699-2474. Volunteer training begins Thursday at CASA headquarters, 1031 Andrews Highway. Prospective volunteers, who must be at least 18 years old, will undergo background checks.

City collects money for voucher program

AUSTIN (AP) — Just as it seems that the battle over public school finance may be nearing a truce in the Legislature, an Austin group has decided to take matters into its own hands.

The Children's Education Opportunity Foundation is collecting money to establish a voucher program to help low-income children attend local private schools.

The project has so far received more than $200,000 in donations, said Zack Dawes, a spokesman for the foundation.

"We're pleased at this point, but we have a long way to go," he told the Austin American-Statesman.

The group plans to meet in Austin Tuesday to decide how many students it will help, set a date to begin taking applications and review which schools have agreed to accept the vouchers.

The foundation's mission places it in the middle of a national and statewide debate over whether public money should be used toward private education.

The debate flared up this week at the state Capitol, as Republican legislators tried to pass a publicly funded voucher program as an amendment to a school finance proposal.

That amendment was defeated as Democrats Thursday passed their own measure, which would allow for redistribution of local property tax money to help equally fund public schools.

The foundation's program was started last spring by the San Antonio-based Texas Public Policy Foundation, parent organization for the Children's Education Opportunity Foundation. So far, 2,336 applications have been processed, Dawes said.

More than 900 students in Bexar County have received vouchers from the foundation at an amount of $570 each. Families must make up the difference between the scholarship and the school's tuition fee.

In Austin, seven private schools, including Sacred Heart, St. Francis and Hyde Park Baptist, have expressed interest in the program, Dawes said.

LOCAL/AREA REPORTS

■ Scam

Three Midland citizens alerted police officers they had received suspicious calls involving a telephone scam Saturday.

Citizens had been informed of the scam due to various media reports, a police officer said.

About 6 p.m., several Midlanders called police officers and said they had been contacted by a man purporting to be their neighbor.

The person making the phone calls — who has identified himself variously as Bob Miller, Steve Miller and Ray Williams — tells the person answering the telephone that he used to be a neighbor "living three houses down."

The suspect then says he has moved out of town, is visiting Midland, has had car trouble and the mechanic won't accept a credit card.

The suspect then asks for $10-40 and puts the mechanic on the telephone to verify the situation. The caller promises to pay the money back to potential victims when he gets to his destination.

Later on, the "mechanic" has arrived at various Midland residences of persons contacted to get the money.

■ Bomb threat

About 11:50 p.m. Friday, an Albertson's employee was told by a woman with a quavering voice, "You better clear the store out because my old man has put a bomb in it."

The store, located at 1002 Andrews Highway, was cleared and closed for the night, and Midland police officers were dispatched to investigate the threat.

There were no suspects as of late Saturday night.

■ Wreck

Robert Hertenstein, 27, of Midland, and his passenger, John Hurst, 25, address unknown, both were transported to Memorial Hospital & Medical Center following a pickup rollover.

Hertenstein was driving a 1978 GMC pickup westbound on State Highway 191 about 12:30 a.m. Saturday when the accident occurred east of Farm-to-Market Road 1788.

According to Texas Department of Public Safety reports, the pickup was traveling at a high rate of speed when it began weaving back and forth. Hertenstein lost control of the vehicle and it rolled over three times.

Hurst, who was wearing safety belts, was treated and released from the hospital. Hertenstein, who apparently was not wearing safety belts, was thrown from the pickup.

GM continues moving workers to Arlington plant

ARLINGTON (AP) — General Motors says it is not violating a court order by bringing workers from a Michigan assembly plant to its Arlington plant.

A Michigan judge earlier this week ruled that the auto giant cannot close the Willow Run plant near Ypsilanti, Mich., because the company accepted millions of dollars in tax breaks that could have been used to benefit the community in another manner.

The company has transferred 250 workers so far from Michigan to Arlington and plans to move about 180 more people by the end of March. GM had planned to close the Willow Run plant in July.

GM spokeswoman Janine Fruehan said that after reviewing the judge's ruling and following discussions with Ypsilanti Township, Mich., officials determined that the company can move workers to Arlington without violating the court order.

GM had said it would wait for an appeals court to hear the case before making any changes.

"We negotiated with the United Auto Workers to move more than 400 workers," Ms. Fruehan told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram in its Saturday editions.

"In fact, 140 Willow Run workers spent their last day there today (Friday). They will now move as planned. We are not doing anything contrary to what the judge said we could do. The judge's order deals with production."

Ms. Fruehan said the company hasn't decided whether Arlington to continue its plans, which had included slowly phasing in at Arlington the production of the Chevrolet Caprice wagon and Buick Roadmaster Estate wagon.

Those vehicles have been made solely at Willow Run. The Arlington facility makes the Caprice and Roadmaster sedans and the Cadillac Fleetwood.

"We are continuing to proceed with our plan to close Willow Run," she said.

facing all the citizens of Midland," Devenport said. "I will continue to work for wise management and accountability of the city's resources and to oversee carefully the city budget to get the most efficient services for our tax dollars."

Devenport, a Midland resident since 1958, has operated his own oil and gas land and leasing company since 1977. He is the former chairman of the mathematics department at Lee High School.

The deadline for filing for any of the City Council seats is March 17.

SPEECH: Guest to speak at luncheon

(From 1C)

Awards will be made to companies whose employees contributed to the following levels: Platinum Circle, $200 or more per capita gift; Century Circle, $100 to $199.99 per capita; Gold, $75 to $99.99 per capita; Silver, $50 to $74.99 per capita; Bronze, $25 to 49.99 per capita; and Thanks to You, less than $25 per capita.

The luncheon agenda also calls for recognizing volunteers on various levels for the service they contributed last year. New members to the board of directors, officers and nominating committee members will be elected at Friday's meeting. Outgoing officers and board members will be recognized.

LETTER FROM COLLEGE

Homecoming activities conclude with coronation, game

By H.A. Tuck

Homecoming '93 is occupying many of the students Monday as a week of activities concludes with an important basketball game between Midland College and South Plains College.

Tuck

The starting time is 7:30 p.m. in the Chap Center between the two teams now battling for the fourth place slot in the conference standings and a place in the post-season Region V tournament in Waco.

In the past week, students have been participating in the Jaycees' Mardi Gras Parade, kissing pigs, collecting canned goods, playing video scavenger hunt, and getting ready for Monday night's coronation of the homecoming royalty, and the big Homecoming Dance.

For the first time, the new Ex-Students Association is taking part by hosting a reception for all former students after the game in the Chaparral Hall, located in the Student Center.

In the continuation of a strange basketball season, the Chaps have an open date on Thursday. Their last home game is scheduled on Monday, Feb. 22, against New Mexico Junior College. Both South Plains and NMJC won their first meetings with the Chaps this season with last-minute heroics ... the SPC Texans getting a three-point shot for a three-point win with 17 seconds left in the game and NMJC winning by four points after trailing until the last two minutes.

MC finishes regular season play at New Mexico Military Institute on Thursday, Feb. 25. The Chaparrals defeated the NMMI Broncos 79-67 in their first meeting of the season last month.

All the Chaparral games are carried live on KCRS Radio, 550 AM.

Tuesday promises to be busy from early until late. It begins at 7:30 a.m. with the regular monthly breakfast for small and minor-owned businesses and should conclude sometime after 4 p.m.'s regular monthly meeting of the college Board of Trustees

The breakfast meeting this month features a brief report from Frank Moore, director of Procurement, Equal Opportunity and Personnel for the "super collider," who will be visiting in Midland Monday afternoon and Tuesday. Cost of the breakfast is $5, which may be paid at the door. You'll have an opportunity to visit with purchasing officers of large firms and network with small business owners and operators.

Following the breakfast is a two-hour workshop on effective advertising, also at a cost of $5.

Both events are being held in the Chaparral Hall, located in the Midland College Student Center.

Only regular and routine items are listed on the agenda for the February meeting of the MC Board of Trustees. This is the month when administrative re-employment appointments are considered.

Two MC faculty members have parts in the 46th annual Texas Junior College Teachers Association convention Feb.18-20 in Austin. Andrea Zabel, instructor in psychology, is a member of the Membership Services Committee. She serves through 1995. Economics instructor Chloice Shofner will serve as chairperson for the Economics Instructional Section Meetings. Quite a number of other MC employees are scheduled to attend the conference.

We need to repeat again the new policy about smoking at the college campus. Smoking is only permitted in the west one-third of the commons room of the Student Center. That is the only interior locale where smoking is permitted on campus.

In order to comply with the ADA (Americans With Disabilities Act), the college has loosened some door springs, installed different types of door handles, and rebuilt some wheelchair ramps. Most of the campus buildings and grounds had been surveyed a number of times in previous years with changes being made as they were discovered.

A new sidewalk also has been installed between the north portions of the Health Science and the Science-Faculty buildings, parallel to the parking lot. This keeps pedestrians from having to walk along the parking lot or across the grass while going from one building to another.

But one of the changes most noted has been the reduction in traffic congestion since the opening of the new access-egress road from the north part of Chaparral Circle to Garfield at Siesta Drive.

Classes beginning this week through the Continuing Education Department include: Antiques & Collectibles, Payroll Issues for Small Businesses, Health Unit Coordinator, Quilting II, and Real Estate.

You also could register at the same time for one of the classes starting the week of Feb. 22, since they are popular and may be filled early. They are: Annie's Heart-Healthy Cooking, Cake Decorating II, Hunter Education, Tummy Trimmers and Thigh Thinners, Step and Toning Aerobics, Income Tax Issues for Small Businesses, and Promotion and Sales Survival Skills for Small Businesses.

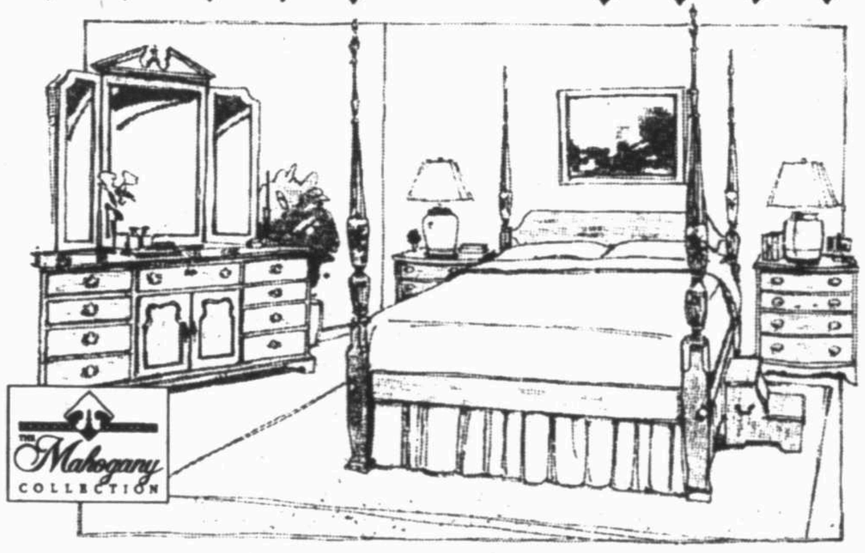

To register, just visit the Continuing Education Office in the Administration Building or call 685-4518 for more information.

TSU president, former band members battle over name

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Southern University's president said he won't let the school's new band assume the old name because it is associated with a shoplifting incident in Japan that resulted in the band's dissolution.

But some members of the defunct group said they won't participate in the resurrected band unless its retains the "Ocean of Soul" moniker.

"He'll be lucky to get 10 people," said drum major Patrick Rivers. "It just won't work."

The Ocean of Soul, noted for its rhythmic dance routines, was dissolved late last year in the wake of allegations that some members stole $22,000 worth of electronics during a trip to Tokyo to perform at the Coca-Cola Bowl.

Later, it was revealed that one-fourth of the band members were not students.

TSU President William Harris immediately dismantled the band. He later placed 29 students on probation for their roles in the incident and announced that the band would be resurrected under a new name in the fall.

But on Friday, some emotional students packed a TSU band meeting and staged a rally to denounce Harris' handling of the incident.

"If my brother kills someone, it won't help to change my last name," said Troy Bounds, a sophomore music major who was in the band but didn't make the Japan trip.

But Harris said the school's reputation is at stake.

"It's image, yes. That's what it's all about," Harris said after he announced at the regents meeting he would not approve naming a new band by the old name.

The band and school, he said, had sustained enormous negative attention because of the incident.

Harris also said "there's no room to negotiate. We're not going to forget that something happened in Japan."

Meanwhile, state Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, has filed legislation requiring that the school reclaim the name once a new band has been formed.

State in brief

■ Couple wins $1 million from adoption agency

DALLAS — A couple who alleged that a Lubbock adoption agency failed to tell them the health problems of two infants they adopted have been awarded more than $1 million in damages.

The settlement between Debra and Chris Burgess of Nacogdoches, Texas, and Smithlawn Maternity Center was approved Friday by U.S. District Judge Jorge Solis of Dallas.

The parents had accused Smithlawn and three of its officials of lying, withholding information and denying them access to records about their children, Caleb Aaron, 4, and Sarah Suzanne, 5.

In the settlement, the agency and its employees admitted no fraudulent acts, but they agreed to pay damages for failing to provide medical information to the parents.

■ Postal workers find turnabout isn't fair pay

WACO — Mail workers learned this week just how frustrating the U.S. Post Office can be when about 500 postal paychecks were lost somewhere between eastern Missouri and central Texas.

Waco Postmaster David Ingram said officials at the service's data center in St. Louis issued and mailed checks for workers in the region. The parcel then disappeared.

"We don't really know where the checks are," Ingram said Friday afternoon. "We're trying to find them now."

Employees in Waco and surrounding towns, accustomed to being paid every other Friday morning, took the news with humor.

"Everybody wants their check, but they all understand that things like this happen," Ingram said.

■ Speeding car kills family of 4, injures 2

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND — A Brownsville man and his three young daughters were killed and two other family members were injured Saturday when a speeding car smashed into their pickup, authorities said.

Eluid George, 19, of Los Indios, was being held in the Cameron County Jail, charged with four counts of involuntary manslaughter, said Department of Public Safety officials.

Killed in the accident were Noe Vasquez, 30, of Brownsville and his daughters, Celene Vasquez, 11, Nalia Vasquez, 9, and Nadia Vasquez, 5, said Harlingen DPS dispatcher Howard Gonzalez.

A son, 13-year-old Noe Jesus Vasquez, suffered a broken leg and was listed in critical condition at Brownsville's Valley Regional Medical Center.

Businesses to discuss Super Collider Laboratory

Staff report

Avenues of doing business with the Super Collider Laboratory south of Dallas are being discussed on Tuesday during the monthly breakfast at Midland College for small and minority-owned businesses.

Scheduled immediately following the breakfast is a workshop for business owners on Effective Advertising.

The breakfast is held on the third Tuesday at Chaparral Hall, located in the Midland College Student Center. Cost is $5 which may be paid at the door.

Sponsors for the monthly event are the Midland College Business and Economic Development Center, Midland Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs, Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, Midland Chamber of Commerce, Texas Instruments and TU Electric. Persons wishing more information should call 684-4100.

Frank Moore, director of Procurement, Equal Opportunity and Personnel for the Texas National Research Laboratory Commission, will speak briefly at the breakfast about procedures for participating in business opportunities available through the construction phase of the Super Collider Laboratory. Also attending will be L.B. Johnson of the procurement office.

Local business operators have an opportunity following breakfast meetings the next three months to attend two-hour seminars on topics of special interest to minority-owned businesses. Subject for the Feb. 16 workshop, slated at the college's Chaparral Hall from 8:30-10:30 a.m. is "Effective Advertising", an introduction to effective methods of advertising business products and services to potential customers.

Subject for the March 23 meeting is "Minority Business Financing" and the topic for April 20 is "The Texas Market Place".

Fee for each session is $5, payable at the door.

In addition to his presentation at the breakfast meeting, Moore will be on hand for a reception at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin's Center for Energy and Economic Diversification. The reception is scheduled for 2-3 p.m. Tuesday.

Jim Flores, director of the Midland College Business and Economic Development Center, noted that the Texas National Research Laboratory Commission ranks first among Texas agencies with contract expenditures of $1 million or more in doing business with minority- and woman-owned enterprises.

"The Commission works to ensure that historically underutilized businesses across Texas are kept abreast of contract opportunities at the Super Collider Laboratory," Moore said. "As the state agency for the SSC, we also assist these firms in becoming qualified to bid on a fair and equitable basis. The proactive steps we have taken to assist all Texas businesses with their contracting needs have been successful," Moore said.

"We hope to have even more success attracting historically underutilized businesses to the Super Collider contract bidding process through our outreach program."

MC renews 8-year accreditation for ADN program

Staff report

National accreditation for Midland College's Associate Degree Nursing program has been renewed for the maximum amount of time, following examination of the program by the National League of Nursing.

An eight-year accreditation has been approved for Midland College's ADN program, a two-year degree program which prepares students to sit for the examinations to become Registered Nurses.

"The accreditation renewal process began in 1991 when the ADN faculty started a self-study of the entire ADN program," said Celia Harris, Ed.D., program director. "This culminated in a written report which was submitted to the National League for Nursing, the national accrediting agency.

"An evaluation team from the NLN visited Midland College in October, 1992, closely examining the instructional and laboratory facilities, the clinical sites, and reviewing the credentials of the faculty and clinical instructors," Ms. Harris said.

An NLN Board of Review examined the findings of the visiting team's report, subsequently approving the eight-year accreditation.

Currently there are 88 students enrolled in four ADN classes. Since the program began in 1982, all graduates of Midland College's ADN program have been licensed as registered nurses.

Initially admitting one class each September, the ADN program was expanded in 1990 to admit a class each January in addition to the regular September class. The expansion was made possible through contributions from the Abell-Hanger Foundation and the Midland Memorial Foundation for start-up costs.

ARMED FORCES NEWS

Navy Petty Officer 2nd Class Thomas G. Cowley, son of Thomas and Bobbie Cowley of Lamesa, is in the Persian Gulf aboard the command ship USS LaSalle, forward deployed to Bahrain, where the U.S. and coalition forces took recent military action against Iraq in response to continued Iraqi violations of U.N. Security Council resolutions.

Cowley's ship has been part of Operation Southern Watch, enforcing a "no-fly-zone" over Iraq to protect the Shia population there. The air and missile strikes were ordered to restore an environment in which there is no threat to coalition aircraft enforcing U.N. resolutions.

Navy presence in the area includes the USS Kitty Hawk and its embarked air squadrons, the command ship LaSalle, four guided missile cruisers, two destroyers, two guided missile frigates and three auxiliary ships.

On short notice, these forces are poised to respond to crises in distant lands, from the sea.

Cowley joined the Navy in August of 1987.

Jury sentences Texas courthouse gunman to death

AMARILLO (AP) — A lawyer was sentenced to death Saturday for killing two attorneys during a rampage in a Fort Worth courtroom last summer that left three other people wounded.

A Potter County jury took about an hour Saturday to sentence George Lott, 45, to death by lethal injection. Lott was convicted of capital murder on Friday.

Lott stepped back slightly when state District Judge Sharen Wilson read the verdict. He made no comment, but asked that the jurors be polled individually.

He noted the verdict on his yellow notepad as Judge Wilson read it.

Lott, who confessed in a television interview, saying he wanted to draw attention to wrongs allegedly done to him by the legal system during his divorce and in a child-molesting charge brought against him by his ex-wife, represented himself during the trial.

In a one-minute closing argument, Lott braced his arm on a podium, stared at the jury panel, then quietly and evenly advised jurors of their duty.

"Make your decision so that you can live easy with yourself and God," he said.

Prosecutor Alan Levy followed Lott's statement with an impassioned plea to give Lott "a date with the executioner because he deserves it. He's earned it."

Levy said Lott was a predator who planned for months to ambush a courtroom and kill people he didn't even know.

Prosecutors called seven witnesses, including five people who testified Friday about Lott's character. On Saturday, they described Lott as a belligerent and fight-provoking man.

"I am 2,000 percent sure that Mr. Lott is a danger," said Fort Worth Judge Maryellen Hicks, who presided over Lott's child custody battle in January 1990.

Lott could have been sentenced to life in prison for killing the lawyers July 1 at the Tarrant County Courthouse. Three other ...en — including two judges — were wounded when the gunman began firing inside the 2nd Court of Appeals.

Lott surrendered hours later at WFAA-TV studios in Dallas. He was taped admitting he committed the crime because he was angry at the way the 2nd Court of Appeals had handled his divorce and child custody case.

Prosecutors, who are seeking the death penalty, say the shooting was Lott's premeditated way of gaining revenge.

He had pleaded innocent.

The trial started Tuesday with graphic descriptions from people inside the courtroom when the shooting broke out. Witnesses told the terror of hiding under benches and hearing the methodical shots nearby.

Judge Clyde Ashworth, who was hit by two bullets, was one of seven witnesses who identified Lott as the shooter.

Prosecutor Chris Marshall, 41, was shot in the face and died in the courtroom. Attorney John Edwards, 33, was shot six times while fleeing for help. Edwards died in an outside stairwell.

Many of the victims' relatives wore black Saturday. Edwards' widow, Martha, thanked jurors for their work on the case. "We hope that in the near future that all courtrooms will be as safe and secure as this one," Mrs. Edwards said.

Black Democrats endorse Krueger for U.S. Senate

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Coalition of Black Democrats Saturday endorsed interim U.S. Sen. Bob Krueger in a May 1 special election for the seat vacated by Lloyd Bentsen.

Following speeches by Krueger and former attorney general Jim Mattox, both Democrats, the group voted 64-29 to back Krueger. Sixty percent was needed to win the endorsement.

"People like Mattox and they like Krueger, but they feel that it's better to show some cohesiveness (in the party) by supporting one candidate," said Booker T. Morris, president of the coalition.

Earlier, Krueger, who has already received the endorsement of the State Democratic Executive Committee and most other party leaders, urged the coalition to join in backing him.

"It's not going to be a snap to win this election. We have to have a united Democratic Party if we want to keep a Democratic senator from Texas in (Washington)," he said.

Krueger also told the group he would be heading up a committee to recommend applicants for 12 federal judge appointments. He asked for suggestions and promised to be "affirmatively active to see that those people who've not been represented on the bench before will be there."

Meanwhile, Mattox blasted Krueger's voting record while they both served in Congress in the 1970s, saying they sharply differed on food stamps, jobs and education. He charged that Krueger has since changed his position on several issues.

"I believe in religious conversions, but most of the time that comes in religion, not politics," he said.

Mattox also touted his record in minority hiring as attorney general, saying his office "employed more black, Hispanics and women attorneys than the top 10 law firms in Texas combined."

Krueger discounted criticism about his record, focusing on the support he's received from other Democratic leaders.

"I don't think I have to explain my votes when they satisfy Barbara Jordan," he said.

About a dozen people have announced their intentions to challenge Krueger, who was appointed to the seat by Gov. Ann Richards.

Conservationists issue wish list of desired scenic lands

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leading coalition of conservation groups recommended Saturday that the federal government buy almost 100,000 acres of scenic land to add to Texas parks and recreation areas.

The 36 organizations, led by the Wilderness Society, each year submit to Congress their wish list detailing the land nationwide they want shielded from development.

In Texas, the coalition is recommending the purchase of 97,624 acres at a cost of $35 million. That ranges from 140 acres to enlarge the San Antonio Missions National Historical Park to 38,630 acres to expand the Lower Rio Grande Valley Wildlife Refuge.

While the conservationists appeal annually for more than $1 billion in land purchases, Congress has appropriated about one-fourth that amount.

But the groups expect better results this year. "With a new administration that has a deeper appreciation for the environment, I think if nothing else we are going to see a shift in priorities," said Wilderness Society counsel Don Hellmann. "I think we are going to see more money for protective efforts on public lands."

Money to buy the properties comes from the Land and Water Conservation Fund, which is largely funded through offshore oil drilling royalties. The fund was set up in 1964 as a way of investing in the protection of the environment.

An estimated $900 million goes into the fund annually. But Congress has appropriated on average $253 million a year in the last decade, leaving a fund surplus of $9 billion.

The groups are pressing Congress to use $1 billion of that money this year to acquire land in 47 states, the District of Columbia and four U.S. territories.

The conservationists' wish list drew criticism from the National Inholders Association, which represents people who own land surrounded by federal parks, forests or refuges.

"They never mention how much this will take off the local tax rolls, or the local schools who depend on property taxes for their funding, or jobs in terms of the local economy," said Myron Ebell, a spokesman for the group.

The suggested Texas acquisitions are:

—38,630 acres from Falcon Dam to Brownsville for the Lower Rio Grande Valley National Wildlife Refuge, for $10 million. The wild lands shelter the endangered ocelot, jaguarundi, bald eagle and peregrine falcon. At least 349 species of birds and 175 other vertebrate species rely on the habitats.

—22,000 acres near Victoria to enlarge the 8,000-acre Attwater Prairie Chicken National Wildlife Refuge, for $1.5 million. The endangered chicken population has plummeted from a million birds at the turn of the century to fewer than 500 in 1989.

—15,000 acres for a proposed 20,000-acre Trinity River Refuge northeast of Houston, for $5 million. The refuge would protect a hardwood bottomland forest as well as habitat for wood ducks, mallards and other migratory waterfowl.

—10,000 acres of low desert land to expand the Big Bend National Park in West Texas, for $500,000.

—5,000 acres to add a wooded tract along the Neches River to the Angelina National Forest in East Texas, for $5 million.

—4,000 acres near Austin to enlarge the 41,000-acre Balcones Canyonlands National Wildlife Refuge, for $5 million. The refuge is home to two endangered animal species, the black-capped vireo and golden-cheeked warbler, as well as three endangered plant species.

—1,000 acres to add to the Amistad National Recreation Area west of Del Rio, for $1 million. The lands are needed to protect from vandalism and looting some delicate archaeological and rock art sites dating to 10,000 B.C.

—600 acres to enlarge the Lyndon B. Johnson National Historical Park near Johnson City, for $2 million.

—500 acres along the Texas coast to add to the Texas coastal woodlots, for $1.5 million. The land would ensure protection for birds migrating across the Gulf of Mexico.

ACCESSIBILITY FOR THE HANDICAP RENOVATIONS
Crockett County, Consolidated Common School District
Ozona, Texas

PRESIDENT, BOARD OF TRUSTEES
CROCKETT COUNTY CONSOLIDATED COMMON SCHOOL DISTRICT,
OZONA, TEXAS

The Crockett County Consolidated Common School District Board of Trustees invite Proposals on the form attached in accordance with the Contract Documents. Bids for this Project are limited to qualified contractors only. General Contractors may request to be qualified by furnishing the following information to the Owner less than seven (7) days before bid date:

1. List projects Contractor has completed in recent years.
2. List of Architects on these projects. This list shall include addresses and telephone numbers, if available.
3. Name and address of bonding company.

The work includes general, mechanical, and electrical work to provide access to the handicapped at three existing buildings comprising, but not limited to:

1. Sidewalk ramps and hand rails.
2. Accessible elevators and stair lift.
3. Pre-engineered metal structural frame, roof panels including board partitions.
4. Necessary renovation to accommodate above items.

The Project includes work at three different school buildings, however all the work will be awarded under a single lump sum contract for the total construction. The Proposal will include the furnishing of all labor, materials and equipment required for this Project and shall be delivered to the Owner or the Architect in a sealed envelope to be opened at the specified time.

Submit with Proposal a Cashier's or Certified Check of a bank satisfactory to the Owner, payable to or endorsed, without recourse, to the Owner, in the amount of 5% of the maximum price bid, or submit a bid bond in the same amount from a reliable Surety Company satisfactory to the Owner, as a guarantee that the Bidder will enter into a contract and execute the required bonds within ten (10) days after notice of acceptance of the bid. Bids without Check or Bid Bond will be returned.

1. Attention is specifically called to the following: A 100% Payment and Performance Bond in the amount of the Contract may be required. Submit affidavit with Bidder Proposal to insure compliance.
2. Insurance will be required as outlined in the Supplementary General Conditions.
3. All prices must be stated in both script and figures. The Owner intends to enter into a Contract with the Lowest Responsible Bidder and reserve the right to reject any or all bids and to waive formalities.
4. The Owner reserves the right to delay its acceptance of any bid for a period not to exceed 45 days after the date set for opening bids, and it shall be a condition of bidding that no bid shall be withdrawn within said period.
5. The Owner is exempt from State sales tax and the Proposal shall correctly reflect this requirement; refer Instructions to Bidders.
6. Bidders are expected to inspect the site of the work and to inform themselves regarding local conditions and conditions under which the work is to be done. The Owner will not be liable for conditions requiring extra cost and/or work which are existing prior to start-up date and which are readily visible to Bidders.

The Project Contract Documents may be examined at the office of the Engineer and:

1. Office of the Owner;
2. The various Dodge Plan Rooms for that area and other Plan Rooms to be announced.

General Contractors may secure copies of the Contract Documents from the Architect upon receipt of a $50.00 deposit check made payable to the Owner for each set of plans, limit two.

"Decorator's Choice"

Photography by Joe D. Williams

Text by Sherry Freeman

Contemporary elegance surrounds this home of bold burgundies and greens, depicting a sense of style and comfort. The owner has taken great pride in color selections of wallpaper and decorator items, and choice of a bold color scheme is sure to appeal to today's decorator.

Upon entering through the green door that is the perfect accent to the brick exterior, the foyer reveals the quality of ceramic tile floors and rich wallpapering in hues of burgundy and green.

The ceiling is vaulted to accommodate the spiral staircase and natural light from the generous use of windows. A brick fireplace with molded wood mantle and wet bar provide a setting of contemporary elegance for entertainment or personal enjoyment.

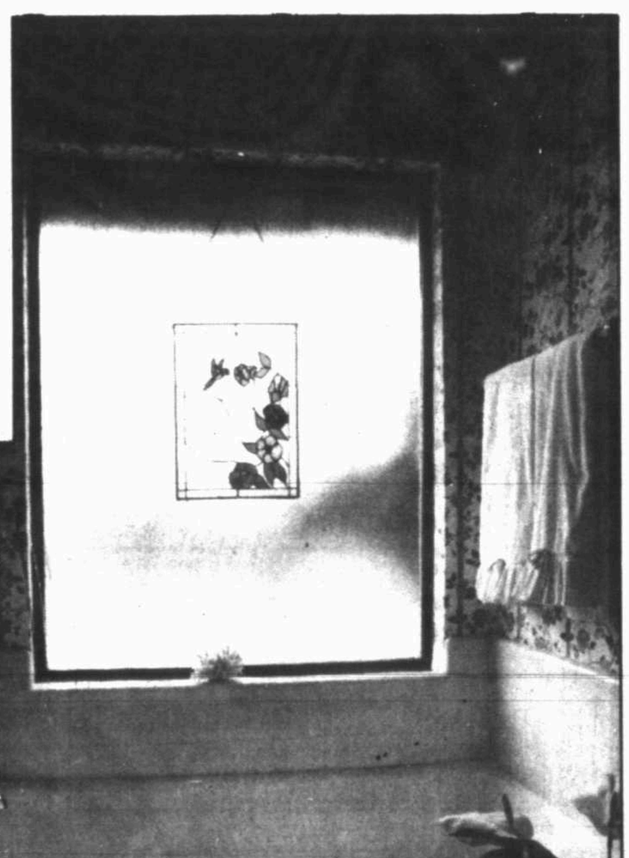

A sequestered master bedroom is large enough to accommodate a separate sitting area and is also decorated in rich wallpaper. An attached master bath has all the modern conveniences, including a walk-in closet and separate tub and shower.

Two additional bedrooms share a hallway bath that is another delight to decorators. A black marble sink is the perfect compliment to the bold designs of the wallpaper. The skylight overlooking the tub adds another modern touch.

Ceiling fans grace several rooms throughout the house, adding beauty as well as efficiency for cooling. This 3-bedroom, 2-bath home has many extras, including a 2-car garage, sprinkled yard and water softener/purifier.

Marilyn Jo Smith, Re/Max of Midland, has this home listed for $76,500 and will be holding open house today from 2-5 p.m. For a private showing, please call 682-8820.

When Selling A House, Or Buying Another One, Why Should I First Consult With A Relocation Expert?

Today's complex lifestyles create numerous obstacles for families, particularly when it comes time to selling a home or purchasing a new one in another community.

"Whether a family is moving across town, or across the country, consulting with a relocation specialist can greatly reduce the amount of worry that a move creates," notes Norma Pine, Owner/Broker, Chaparral Realtors.

Pine adds, "Most responsible real estate brokers have staff members who are specially qualified to deal with the needs and desires of relocating families -- whether it be searching for quality schools, finding social activi ties, or a small lake to sail a boat."

Chaparral Realtors is a member of RELO/The International Relocation Network, headquartered in Chicago. The RELO network is the oldest broker-owned and directed referral service representing independent real estate companies. The RELO network has 3,000 offices in the US. and overseas and more than 50,000 sales agents who serve 14,000 communities.

"The first thing a relocating family should do is ask if the real estate broker marketing their current home has a relocation department. The specially-trained staff of experts in the field of relocation can help families find the amenities they need to settle into a new community, while helping to ensure that the move goes smoothly," Pine says.

She also says that a relocation expert can provide advice on how to best prepare a home for a quick sale, particularly in cases where one of the financial partners is being transferred by his or her corporation and arrange for the family to meet another relocation expert in the destination city to assist them in selecting a new home.

"The role of the relocation expert is to help families make smart choices during a time when things may be very fast-paced and confusing. Families where both partners work and single parent households can find great relief by turning the reigns of a move to a specialist in the field," says Pine.

She adds, "While no relocation is ever easy, looking for expert advice and experience from professionals in the field can make this important time of transition a little easier for family members to bear."

Chaparral Realtors has 15 sales associates and has served Midland for 16 years. Pine has been active in the relocation field for many years and has been extremely successful in the relationships with third party companies.

How You Can Speed The Sale Of Your Home

You're placing your home on the market and you've hired a real estate agent to manage the sale. You've taken the right first step, but don't stop now. Even the best of homes may not sell quickly without the owner helping to create a good impression for potential buyers. The first impression is a lasting impression.

"Homeowners play an important role in the sale of their home," according to Kay Sutton, president of the Midland Association of Realtors. "A clean, uncluttered home in good repair will make a positive impression on the buyer," she added.

The following suggestions are recommended by the Midland Association to prepare your home so it can be shown at its best. Your real estate agent will assist you in surveying your home to identify aspects that need attention.

Examine the exterior and grounds of your home with an unbiased eye for "burb appeal," that is, the attractiveness of your home as viewed from the street. Consider a fresh coat of paint for the outside. Clean, sealed gutters and downspouts and a trimmed lawn clear of debris contributes to a better looking home and a positive first impression. Is your garage or carport clean and uncluttered?

A tidy front entrance can enhance the effect. Polishing the door brass, cleaning storm windows and screens and repainting wood trim or a rusty mailbox can help sway a decision to buy. If appropriate, tactfully suggest that your neighbors tidy their outside areas as well. Prospective buyers include the appearance of the entire neighborhood in their overall judgement.

Moving to the inside of your home, make the same unbiased examination on a room by room basis. Painting inside walls could pay dividends far beyond the time, effort and expense involved. Consider having soiled carpets cleaned. Not only will they look better, but they will have a fresh scent as well, adding to the overall appeal of the room. Tend to the little things -- squeaky door hinges, loose cabinet knobs, leaky faucets and so forth.

A gleaming kitchen will definitely work in your favor. The kitchen is a part of the home where people do a lot of living, and prospects a lot of looking. Make sure the kitchen smells fresh. A freshly baked batch of cookies coming out the oven or a pot of spiced tea on the stove will help add that "at home" feeling buyers are looking for.

Your bathroom also will undergo close scrutiny. Make sure it's spotless, with tiles scrubbed and grouted, faucets polished and fixtures cleaned. Replace your shower curtain if it shows signs of soap film or mold. All toiletries and medicines should be stored neatly in drawers or chests. Remember, if your bathroom is small, clutter will make it look even smaller.

In general, make your home as light and airy as possible. Freshly washed windows with the drapes drawn back to let in the light will provide a bright cheery look as well as make rooms appear more spacious. Use bright lights in areas that do not have much natural light, such as the basement or attic. Clear out accumulated items from closets, cabinets and counters. Simplicity and a clean uncluttered look contributes to an environment conducive to a sale.

Accent the positive areas of your home. If you have finished hardwood floors, make sure they are dustfree and polished. Organize large closets or cabinets to accentuate available storage space. Built-in features such as bookshelves or knick-knack space should be arranged creatively to illustrate the usefulness of the space as well as the decorating possibilities.

Finally, if a major fault exists that you don't intend to correct, you or your salesperson must call it to the attention of the prospective buyer. Discuss the problem ahead of time with your sales agent. If the prospective buyer likes everything else, this need not be a serious drawback.

During the showing, be mindful of limiting the number of family members present so that the buyer won't feel ilke an intruder. Keep pets out of the way and distracting background noise, such as stereos and televisions, to a minimum. Be available, if possible, to answer questions, but do not engage in conversation with the buyers. This is not only distracting, but may make buyers feel so uncomfortable that they leave quickly, failing to fully view and evaluate your home.

Selling your home is a complex transaction that takes time, effort and expertise. Your real estate salesperson should know the local market so that only serious, qualified buyers are shown your home. Your assistance in presenting your home in its best possible light, however, will greatly add to its saleability. For additional suggestions on making your home more attractive to buyers, contact a member of the Midland Association of Realtors.

WHAT?!? NEWSPAPER ROUTES?

Fact: 95% of our Distributors NOW are ADULTS supplementing their income with Route Distributorships!
Fact: Our Distributors make from $400 to $800 monthly AFTER expenses. Some earn even MORE! The catch? You've got to be able to handle early mornings and weekends! And when you take a few days off, you'll need to find a substitute for yourself.
So...are you serious about MOONLIGHTING or what? If you are, and you have dependable transportation and can put up a $100 deposit...
CALL 688-2700 and start making that extra car payment today!

BRIEFING

Old boiler

This old blue boiler was used as a power supply for the wooden derricks used to drill wells in the 1920s and 1930s. It is currently found at the Petroleum Museum.

Falling rigs

Both the Permian Basin and U.S. rig counts were lower during the week ended February 5, according to Baker Hughes Inc.

In the Permian Basin, the rig count fell seven to 106 for the week; a year ago the count was 84.

Nationwide, the U.S. count plunged 42 rigs during the week, to 720 rigs. A year earlier the count was 674.

AOSC directory

The Association of Oilwell Servicing Contractors has released its 1993 AOSC Directory.

The 88-page publication lists well servicing companies and businesses that provide services and equipment to the well servicing industry.

Well servicing companies are listed in their respective AOSC chapter areas. The directory includes mpre than 250 contractors representing a total of 3,284 rigs. Allied company listings are organized by product category.

The directory is available to AOSC members for $15, to non-members for $40.

Steady prices

Steady oil and gas prices could mean more product finding its way through the pipeline identified by this sign.

Oil prices were largely steady this past week, remaining above the $20 level.

Contracts for March delivery traded in a narrow 15 cent range most of the week, boosted slightly by reports OPEC members should agree to cut 1 million barrels of daily production in order to shore up prices. Also supporting prices was evidence from the American Petroleum Institute that heating oil supplies were declining.

Natural gas contracts were roughly $1.70 per thousand cubic feet by late in the week.

Tesoro stays

SAN ANTONIO — Tesoro Petroleum Corp. has ended speculation about a possible relocation of its corporate headquarters by announcing it will remain in San Antonio.

Tesoro had considered moving to the West Coast, closer to its big revenue-generating operations. It operates the largest refinery in Alaska and refined products terminals in California, Washington and Oregon.

Alta makes American Exchange

Staff report

A Permian Basin oil company has been approved for trade on the American Stock Exchange.

The American Stock Exchange says the common stock of Alta Energy Corp.of Midland, Texas has been approved for trading on the Exchange's primary list, and will be traded under the ticker symbol "ALE."

Alta Energy is the sixth company to move from the Emerging Company Marketplace to the AMEX Primary List.

Commenting on the graduation, as well as shareholder approval of a one-for-sex reverse common stock split effective January 29, 1993, John R. Fitzgerald, Chairman, President & Chief Executive Officer said, "We're quite pleased to be moving up to the AMEX Primary List from the Emerging Company Marketplace. Because of the opportunity for increased visibility, our decision to move to the AMEX Emerging Company Marketplace in March of 1992 was a step in the right direction for Alta and its shareholders. This next step to the AMEX Primary List represents access to a market for Alta's stock commensurate with its asset growth."

James R. Jones, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of the American Stock Exchange, said, "We're very

Saudis hit import fees

■ Minister says policy would hurt international oil trade.

HOUSTON (AP) — Saudi Arabia's oil minister Wednesday criticized the proposed U.S. oil import fee, saying it could hurt some business dealings between the two countries.

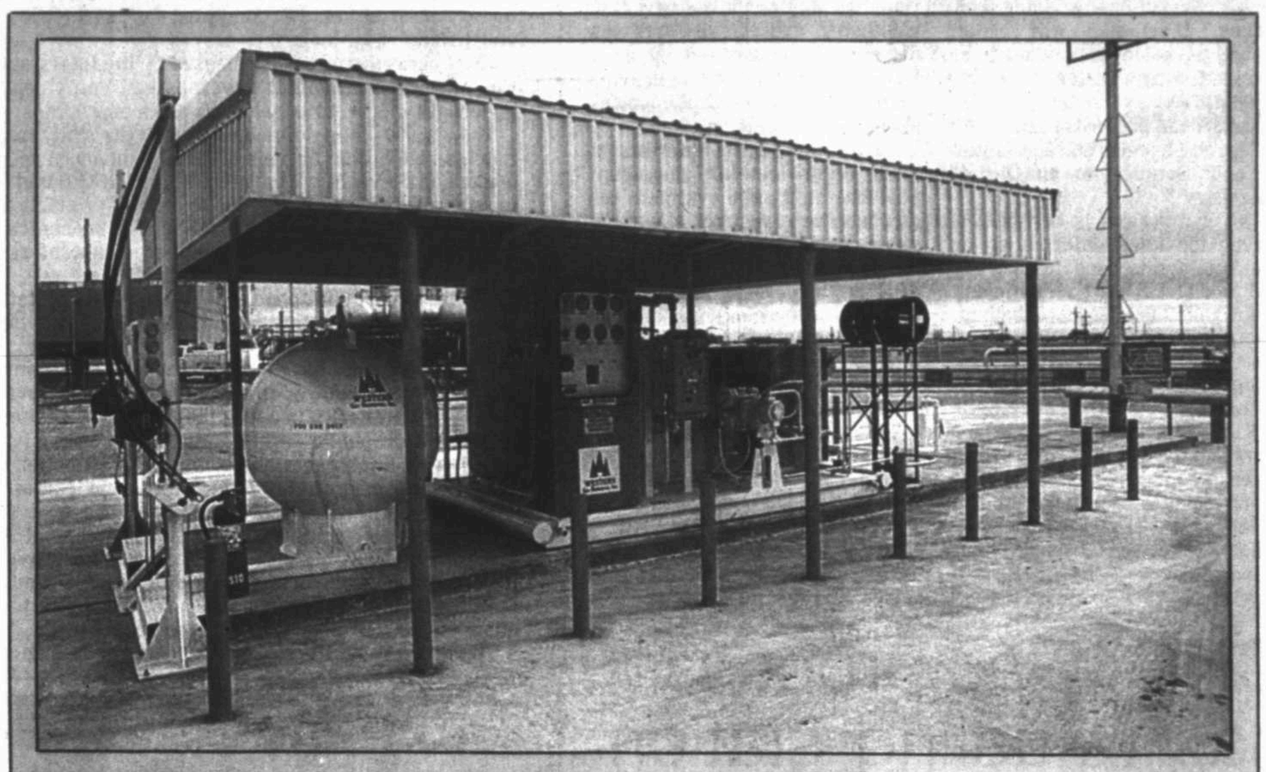

"For us as a major oil exporter to the U.S. and a reliable supplier as well as a longtime friend, such an import fee would harm our exports and downstream investments in the U.S.," said Hisham M. Nazer, Saudi's minister of petroleum and mineral resources.

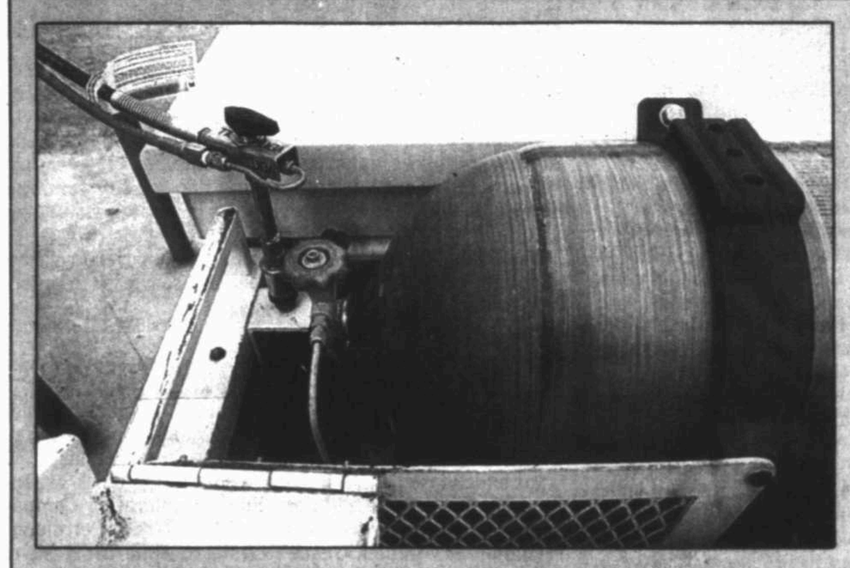

During a speech to the Cambridge Energy Research Associates' annual executive conference, Nazer said "it is not very helpful to see the industrialized countries implementing one policy after another to undermine international oil trade and consequently market stability."

Late last month, Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., introduced legislation to impose a fee on imported crude oil. Johnston said it would raise money to cut the federal deficit while reducing reliance on imported oil.

Johnston, chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, wants a fee imposed whenever the price of crude oil on international markets falls below $25 a barrel. The fee would equal the difference between $25 and the lower market price.

But Nazer said Wednesday that erecting barriers to oil trade "defies the logic of geology and economics."

Gas plant installs CNG station

■ A CNG refueling station at a local gas plant is the first in the Basin and could pave the way for more to come.

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil editor

Western Gas Processors has become the first in the Permian Basin and one of the first gas processing plants in the nation to install a compresssed natural gas (CNG) refueling station.

Officials say, the installation at Western Gas Processors' Midkiff Plant, south of Midland, will be used mostly by field personnel who travel within a 150-mile radius of the plant to read natural gas flow meters on gathering lines that feed into the plant. But other company vehicles, and perhaps vehicles from nearby oil and gas producers could be added to the list of yehicles using the CNG refueling facility.

Success of the Midkiff facility could pave the way for other gas processors to install refueling stations for field operations.

"We are in the natural gas business and we wanted to be the front-runner in promoting our product, in this area," said Gordon Cornelius, regional engineer for Western Gas Processors, noting

SPE plans two major symposiums

■ Petroleum engineers tackle reservoir technical problems at symposiums.

By Mella McEwen
Staff writer

The Society of Petroleum Engineers has scheduled two major symposiums for February and March.

Both will be held at the New Orleans Marriott.

First up is the SPE's 12th "Symposium on Reservoir Simulation," to be held Feb. 28-March 3.

This is a six-session technical program comprised of 37 presentations from a host of international authors addressing numerous aspects of reservoir simulation. Topics will include viscous fingering, heterogeneous systems, computational efficiency, history matching, compositional simulation, gridding techniques, and higher-order schemes.

The conference will open with a keynote address by Khalid Aziz, Otto N. Miller Professor of Earth Sciences and Professor of Petroleum Engineering at Stanford University. His address is entitled "Reservoir Gridding: Problems and Opportunities" and will address the problems facing engineers as they deal with geologically complex reservoirs. He will also review some of the more promising developments in the selection of a grid for a reservoir simulation study.

"The selection of a grid for a reservoir simulation study is a very important task," he said. "For geologically complex reservoirs, this can be both difficult and time-consuming. While new techniques for gridding offer a great deal of flexibility, their efficient use is not straightforward."

He joined Stanford 10 years ago after serving as professor of chemical and petroleum engineering at the University of Calgary and manager of the com-

Study says states can manage oil

Pitts

Can individual states take care of their own environmental affairs without the oversee of the federal government?

The Environmental Protection Agency, environmentalists and others who have sought more control over state environmental affairs contend that states, if left to their own devices, will not make a commitment to the environmental concerns and will not pass the necessary laws or spend the necessary funds unless the EPA is there to hold their feet to the fire.

Now comes documentation that clearly refutes that contention. According to a recent report published by the Interstate Oil and Gas Compact Commission, there has been a dramatic increase in state funding for environmental protection.

According to the Compact, the report, entitled "Oil, Gas and the Environment - A State Regulatory Success Story," both funding and personnel for environmental regulation of oil and gas exploration and production have increased dramatically in the past few years.

The report, which covers programs in 17 Lower-48 states from 1979 to 1992, found that state expenditures rose 222 percent, from $24 million to $77 million, while the number of producing wells increased 29 percent. At the same time, staff overseeing state environmental affairs increased 61 percent, from 758 to 1,216 full-time-equivalent employees.

The report provides clear confirmation of what many already suspected — that commitments by the states to environmental concerns have grown rapidly over the years, despite claims by environmentalists that states were dragging their feet. Now, the study provides actual documentation to back those suspicions.

The study was conducted by the Compact under project director William R. Smith, former head of the Colorado Oil and Gas Conservation Commission and an acknowledged leader in oil and gas regulatory control.

"The public and Congress were not aware of the significant commitment of the states in environmental protection," the report states. "Although there had been over the years a continuing upgrade of regulations and policies of the states, these efforts often were not documented and available for review.

"The states had not only upgraded their regulations and policies, but since the late 1970s and early 1980s, had increased their funding and personnel assignments several fold."

"This IOGCC report is intended to bring to the attention of Congress, the public and the industry, information on the commitment of the regulatory agencies of the oil and gas producing states to protect the environment."

Hopefully, too, it will help deter the encroachment of the federal government into areas that are clearly states rights issues. Judges may disagree, but there is nothing in the Constitution that gives the federal government the right to determine air quality or groundwater standards in any state.

The report concludes that the "producing states are equipped to administer the regulations necessary to protect the people and the environment in their respective states and have been puter modeling group.

A highlight of the conference will be the SPE's 8th "Comparative Solution Project" which will examine gridding techniques, comparing and contrasting the predictions made using flexible versus conventional gridding techniques. Discussion will center around the gridblock savings to be obtained by using flexible gridding.

The second SPE symposium will be March 2-5 and is entitled "International Symposium on Oilfield Chemistry."

This symposium is designed to survey the latest information on chemical fluids used to drill for and produce oil and gas. Effieient, environmentally sensitive drilling, fracturing and completion operations are the focus of the conference.

Program Chairman Zara Khatib of Shell Development Co. said authors and participants from over a dozen countries will attend to share technological developments in this nine-session technical program that includes 54 papers.

Jack Stocker, professor of chemistry at the University of New Orleans will be keynote speaker at the March 4 dinner. His topic, "Chemage: A Compendium of Chemical Trivia" will be a light look at the profession.

"Only a mature discipline, secure in its self-image, can enjoy its trivia publicly," he said. "Such a time has only recently arrived for chemistry, and chemists are now disposed to be amused by or at least tolerant of their colleagues foibles in their antiseptic professional publications."

Stocker's research interests include organometallic chemistry, photochemistry and synthetic and mechanistic aspects of electro-organic chemistry.

With more than 53,000 members, SPE is the largest international technical and professional association for engineers, scientists and managers involved in oil and gas drilling, exploration and production.

With members residing in more than 100 countries, the SPE collects, records and disseminates exploration and production technology through worldwide conferences, exhibitions and publishing, continuing education and outreach programs.

CNG: Gas processor has refueling station

(From 1E)

that the company's president, Bill Sanderson, is a strong supporter of natural gas as a transportation fuel.

Cornelius said that by the end of the year about 35 vehicles will be converted and using the system, and that another oil company with extensive operations in the Spaberry had inquired about using the refueling station.

The station was installed by CNG Services Inc. of Midland and uses a 50 horsepower, three-stage Gemini compressor. CNG Services noted that a three-stage compressor was used, because there is 200 psi of pressure at the inlet valve. The system can fill a single vehicle in seven minutes, but takes slightly longer to fill two vehicles with the two quick-connect hoses.

Field personnel fill their pickups each morning before making their metering rounds and are able to make it back to the plant each evening with CNG to spare.

Cornelius, who supervised the installation said that payout for the fueling station and engine conversions, which are being done by Stewart & Stevenson, should come in approximately four years.

Also, Parker & Parsley, which has extensive oil and gas production in the area has already inquired about using the facility for their vehicles.

CNG Services Inc. President Lezlie Forster said Western Gas Processors should be commended for taking the lead in bringing CNG to oilpatch operations. "They are ahead in the game. They saw an opportunity to use their own product and save money and they took it," she said.

He added, "We believe that like Alta, more and more companies in their growth stages will recognize the value of the auction market, which provides the trading environment and services they so critically need."

Alta Energy Corp. is engaged in the acquisition and production of oil and gas, and its operations are conducted primarily in New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas, Utah, Wyoming and offshore Louisiana and Texas.

PITTS: States increase environmental activity

doing so since the initial discovery of oil or as in each of their states with the tools and technology available to them. Each of the states must remain vigilant and modify or amend their regulations as new knowledge becomes available and new techniques are developed.

"To better protect the environment, it is recommended that the federal government continue to spend its resources in research, where needed, to assist not only the oil and gas industry, but other industries requiring research and the population as a whole," said Compact Executive Director W. Timothy Dowd in a foreword to the study.

He points out that without the regulatory efforts of the states and voluntary restraint by industry, "one can visualize significant losses by the agriculture industry - losses in cattle, in usable land, and in drinkable water. That this has not happened...must be attributable in no small part to the evolving emphasis by the states on environmental protection."

Phillips replaces 125 percent production

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. — Phillips Petroleum Co. says it replaced 125 percent of its 1992 worldwide hydrocarbon production on a barrel of oil equivalent (BOE) basis.

From 1988 through 1992, Phillips' five-year average reserves replacement equaled 129 percent of worldwide hydrocarbon production over the same time period.

MEETINGS

IADC chapter holds first 1993 meeting

The Permian Basin chapter, International Association of Drilling Contractors, will meet Thursday at the Petroleum Club beginning at noon.

Guest speaker will be Julian Martin, executive vice president of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners. His topic will be "Independents' Motto: We Would Rather Be in the Hole Than Going Broke."

Cost is $15 and reservations should be made by Tuesday by calling 550-2322.

Engineers host emergency coordinator

Patricia MacAllister, deputy emergency management coordinator for Odessa/Goldsmith/Ector County, will be the guest speaker at Thursday's meeting of the Permian Basin chapter, American Society of Safety Engineers. The meeting will be at the Community Room, Student Union Building, Odessa College, beginning at 7 p.m.

MacAllister will discuss emergency planning for businesses and communities.

An optional meal will be served at 6:30 p.m. Reservations should be made by noon Tuesday by calling 368-1082.

Study: Idle wells hold large reserves

■ A study by the Interstate Oil & Gas Compact Commission indicates idle oil and gas wells could yield large amounts of oil and gas and should be addressed.

Staff report

OKLAHOMA CITY — Oil and gas wells idled by economic conditions may yield large quantities of oil and gas, and states should implement measures that encourage production and address environmental concerns, a nationwide study has concluded.

The idle-well study was released by the Interstate Oil and Gas Compact Commission, a governmental entity representing the governors of the 20 oil-and-gas-producing states.

The 215,000 wells defined as idle by the study may provide as much as 2.6 billion barrels of oil and enhanced recovery efforts could add 500 million barrels. The IOGCC found a significant number of wells were idle due to natural production decline and low crude oil and gas prices, the lack of sophisticated recovery techniques, and a growing number of operators in financial trouble or out of business altogether.

But the report cautioned that states should protect themselves from possible liabilities associated with a growing number of idle wells.

"In most cases, an idle well is not an environmental threat. Many wells are allowed to remain idle with approval of the state regulatory authority because they are not threatening the environmental or public safety," the report said.

However, unplugged, abandoned wells can offer pathways for groundwater contamination and may include sites with surface contamination.

All of the producing states authorize financial assurance requirements from oil and gas operators to provide funds for plugging and environmental remediations. However, states should continually review these requirements to ensure adequate funds will be available, the report said.

The growing number of wells has already begun to pressure available plugging funds. In Texas, for example, nearly 2,000 wells are on a waiting list to be plugged. As a result, in 1991 the Texas legislature increased the well-plugging fund from $2 million to $10 million.

To slow the growth in the numbers of abandoned wells and other oil field sites that must be addressed with state funds, Texas also added new financial assurance and annual reporting requirements.

The IOGCC report called for each state to "continually evaluate the financial responsibility mechanisms most appropriate for the state and to implement changes when necessary to provide assurance for plugging."

In addition, states should consider procedures that require well operators to demonstrate the well has a "bona fide future use" and to agree to periodic testing as conditions of obtaining idle status.

"States should have adequate enforcement mechanisms to ensure compliance with state financial responsibility and temporary abandonment regulations, including sufficient funding and staffing," the report said.

The IOGCC report also encouraged states to consider innovative approaches that permit additional oil and gas recovery from abandoned and unplugged wells.

The report, which was delivered to compact Chairman Gov. Joan Finney of Kansas, was developed under the guidance of the Idle Well Subcommittee of the Compact's Council on State Regulatory Officials. The subcommittee was chaired by D. Michael Wallen, director of the Kentucky Division of Oil & Gas, and included energy and environmental officials from 10 other states.

Other members of the committee are: Samuel Alguire, Michigan Geological Survey; Lawrence E. Bengal, Illinois Oil and Gas Division; Bill Guerard, California Department of Conservation; A. Richard Henderson, Mississippi State Oil and Gas Board; Steven Korf, Kansas Oil and Gas Conservation Division; Donald L. Mason, Ohio Department of Natural Resources; Michael W. Schmidt Oklahoma Oil and Gas Conservation Division; Jerry T. Sexton, New Mexico Oil Conservation Division; Gregory H. Sovas, New York Department of Environmental Conservation; and James E. Walker, Jr. Texas Railroad Commission.

BRIEFS

Dresser buys pipe coating business

DALLAS (AP) — Dresser Industries Inc. said it would acquire the pipe coating business of Dutch-owned Bredaro Price Holding B.V. for $160 million.

Bredaro Price has facilities in England, Scotland, Malaysia, Nigeria, Indonesia, Norway and the Middle East for pipe coating.

The acquisition marks the expansion for Dresser into a new oilfield service business. Bredaro Price has generated annual revenue f about $160 million from pipe coating.

The Dallas-based company, with annual revenue of about $4.6 billion, supplies products and engineering services to energy companies worldwide.

Grace completes Grace Petroleum sale

BOCA RATON, Fla., — W.R. Grace & Co. has announced the completion of the divestment of Grace Petroleum Corporation for total proceeds of $163 million in cash in two separate transactions.

An undisclosed third party purchased the stock of Grace Petroleum for $125 million. In addition, Sonat Exploration Company of Houston completed the purchase of the assets of Grace Petroleum's East Texas region for $38 million. Grace Petroleum's interest in one remaining field was excluded from these transactions.

Nuevo Energy purchases properties

HOUSTON — Nuevo Energy Company has purchased a package of producing properties and leasehold interests from Gemini Exploration Company for $5,700,000.

The acquisition adds 590,000 barrels of oil and 407 million cubic feet of gas to Nuevo's proved reserves. The wells are currently producing approximately 1,064 barrels of oil per day and 494 thousand cubic feet per day net to Nuevo's interest, primarily from the Austin Chalk formation. The majority of the producing wells and the leasehold acreage are in the Giddings Field located in Lee and Fayette Counties, Texas. Certain additional interests are located in the Pearsall Field in Frio County, Texas.

Gemini Exploration will retain a small interest in the properties and maintain operatorship. It currently has two rigs developing ten identified locations.

Phillips reports quarterly income

Phillips Petroleum Company has reported fourth quarter net income of $124 million, or 48 cents a share, compared with $79 million, or 30 cents a share for the same period last year. Total revenues were $3.16 billion, versus #3.37 billion a year ago.

Williford Energy closes property buys

Williford Energy Co., has recently closed producing property acquisitions with Texaco Exploration and Production, Inc., Arco Oil and Gas, Oryx Energy Company and L&M Ventures, Inc. Williford will be operator of all the properties acquired.

Arch Petroleum buys Onyx stake

FORT WORTH — Arch Petroleum Inc. acquired a 50% interest in Onyx Gathering Company, L.C., a company formed to own and operate pipelines in Nueces, Hidalgo and San Patricio Counties, all located in South Texas. Arch said that it had committed to loan up to $2.9 million to onyx to finance the acquisition and construction of pipelines, two of which are currently in service.

Onyx has contracted to connect three electric plants to various sources of natural gas by constructing a total of approximately 13 miles of pipeline ranging in size from 8" to 12". Onyx has a contract to supply a portion of the base load to the three plants, and will compete to supply the additional quantities of gas which the plants require.

Enserch Corp. posts $41 million net loss

N.Y. Times News Service

DALLAS — Enserch Corp., the parent company of Lone Star Gas, slashed its stock dividend, reported a $41 million net loss for 1992, announced plans to sell a major operating unit and named a new chief executive officer.

Enserch said it will trim the quarterly cash dividend on its common stock from 20 cents to 5 cents a share, a deep 75 percent reduction that will save the company more than $40 million annually.

The dividend cut, affecting about 24,000 company shareholders, is the first since 1986. In that year the company pared the dividend from 40 to 20 cents a share.

Enserch reported a net loss of $41 million, or 62 cents a share, on revenues of $2.82 billion for 1992. That compared poorly to modest earnings of $4.8 million, or 7 cents a share, on slightly higher revenues of $2.83 billion in 1991.

Enserch's 1992 earnings report was hurt by $52 million in one-time charges for extraordinary items, such as a $15 million charge resulting from debt restructuring and an $11 million writeoff stemming from an abandoned offshore oil and gas production project.

The company reported a fourth-quarter net loss of $29.5 million on revenues of $874.4 million, compared to a net profit of $3.9 million on revenues of $795.6 million in the final quarter of 1991.

The company also announced that it plans to sell Ebasco, its principal engineering and construction services company.

Analysts said Lone Star could reap as much as $400 million from the sale of the unit. Ebasco last year reported an operating income of $32 million and accounted for virtually all of the $1.3 billion in revenues generated by Enserch's engineering and construction services unit.

Ebasco, with headquarters in New York, has approximately 6,000 employees, Enserch spokeswoman Crystal Bell said.

Enserch also said that William C. McCord, chairman and chief executive officer, will retire at age 65 on April 30.

David Biegler, 46, Enserch's president and a 26-year veteran of the company, is to succeed McCord.

Analysts say the company's moves are designed to focus Enserch on the burgeoning natural gas market, give it more cash to reduce its heavy debt and provide additional capital for oil and gas exploration and development.

Enserch said its board of directors has "endorsed a new focused strategy to concentrate the company's resources on serving the growing natural gas market from wellhead to end use."

If the company sells Ebasco, its primary remaining operations will be Lone Star Gas, the largest gas utility in North Texas, and Enserch's oil and gas exploration and production operations.

Carol Coale, an analyst with the Howard, Weil, Labouisse, Friedrichs securities firm in New Orleans, said Enserch should be able to substantially reduce its heavy debt and increase its spending on exploration and production by selling Ebasco and cutting the stock dividend.

"Enserch is basically an asset play," Coale said. "They have not had the money to develop their (oil and gas) reserves, which are primarily in the Gulf of Mexico and East Texas. In order to grow their asset base, they are going to have to invest more money in their drilling program."

Enserch announced that it already is taking a step in that direction. It has set its 1993 capital expenditures budget for exploration and production at $112 million, far exceeding the $67 million the company devoted in 1992.

Coale said she thinks it is likely that Ebasco will be sold by late spring or early summer, but Enserch said it will keep the operation if it cannot find a qualified buyer offering a sufficient price.

The company declined to comment on what price it would find acceptable, but Biegler described Ebasco as a "real jewel" with a backlog of $1.6 billion in work.

Bechtel drilling in Siberia

By Anne Pearson
Hearst News Service

HOUSTON -- Houston-based Bechtel Energy Resources Corp. began drilling a test well last week in western Siberia as part of a study of a major gas development project it is negotiating with the Russian government.

The gas field Bechtel is eying, called North Urengoi, contains more than 30 trillion cubic feet of recoverable gas reserves.

Bechtel Energy Resources is a subsidiary of San Francisco-based Bechtel Group.

Bechtel declined to say how much it will spend or how many wells are planned. The company has signed protocol agreements with Russian authorities but is still negotiating a final agreement, a company spokesman said.

North Urengoi is a massive field by any standard, but Western companies are jockeying to develop even larger ones in Russia. Conoco, for example, had been negotiating a multibillion-dollar deal to develop the Shtokman field in the Barents Sea, which is nearly three times the size of the field Bechtel is studying.

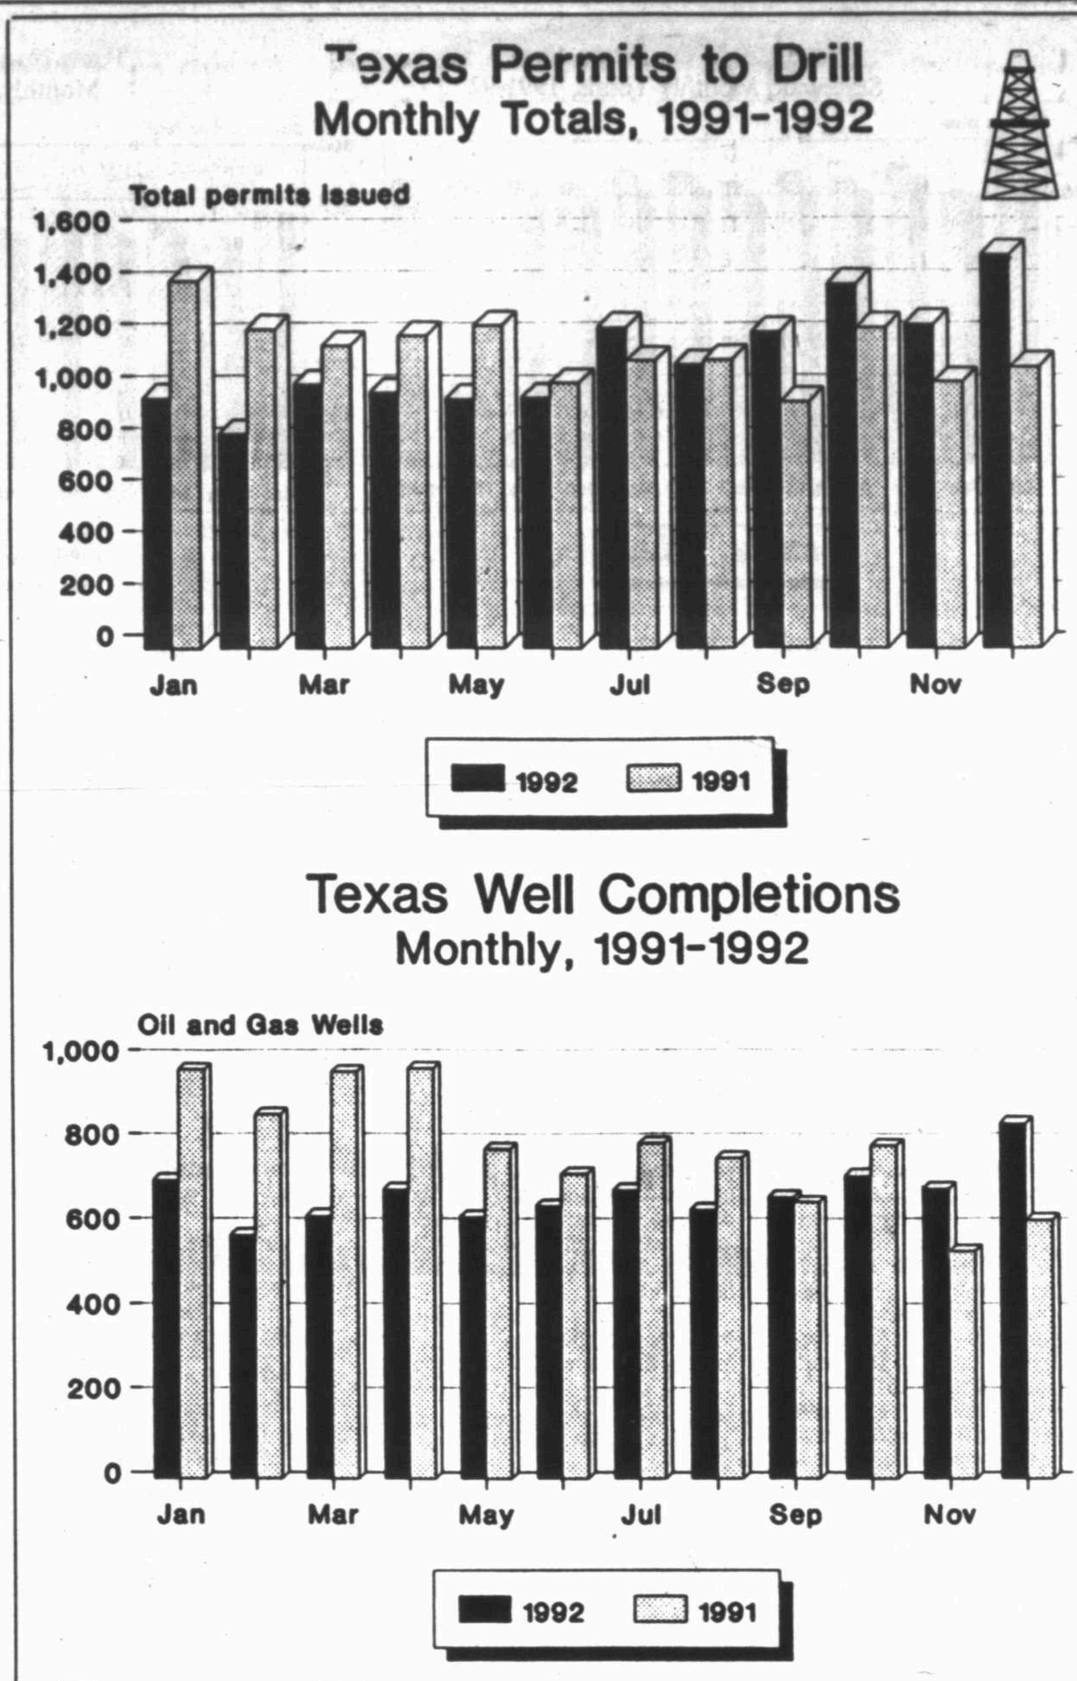

The government late last year awarded Shtokman to a Russian consortium, but industry observers say Conoco likely is to be invited in as a partner.

Bechtel would develop the field in partnership with Urengoigasprom, Russia's largest gas production association.

According to Petroconsultants in Houston, North Urengoi was discovered in May 1970, and production began in 1987. The field produced an average 1.87 billion cubic feet of gas a day in 1990, the last complete year for which data was available, according to Jay Gallagher of Petroconsultants.

Seismic data indicates the field measures about 224 square miles. Gallagher said most of the gas-bearing zones are found at between 9,400 and 10,560 feet.

The field also has significant oil and condensate reserves equal to about 22 to 29 barrels for every 1 million cubic feet of gas, based on test data, but Gallagher said there is no liquids production data available.

Texas activity

The Texas Railroad Commission issued a total of 1,514 drilling permits in December, up from 1,085 issued in December 1991. In the Midland area, District 8, there were 126 permits issued, 1,231 in for the year. The Commission issued a total of 13,452 drilling permits in 1992, down 3 percent from the 13,810 issued in 1991. Operators reported 330 gas, 464 oil and 46 service completions in December, compared to 197 gas, 386 oil and 28 service completions the previous year. There were 118 oil and six gas completions in the Midland area during the month. For all of 1992, the Commission recorded 8,080 well completions, down 14 percent from 9,400 in 1991. In the Midland area, there were 1,178 oil and 57 gas completions during the year.

Harken to abandon second Bahrain test

N.Y. Times News Service

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas — Harken Energy Corp. said last week that its second exploratory well drilled in Bahrain is a dry hole.

The company said it will further evaluate its remaining geological prospects in the Persian Gulf emirate before deciding whether to drill a third well.

The company said that it has now drilled the well to a depth of 8,778 feet and failed to find evidence of oil or gas deposits in its secondary geological target, the Jurassic Fadhili formation.

Electric logging tests also failed to indicate any shows of oil or gas, said Monte Swetman, executive vice president of Harken.

The company's first Bahrain well, drilled early last year, also proved to be a dry hole.

Bass Enterprises Production Co. of Fort Worth, the oil and gas unit of the billionaire Bass family, has a commitment to Harken to fund the drilling of at least three wells in Bahrain, Swetnam said.

But he said Harken plans to reexamine seismic data and further scrutinize its remaining drilling projects before deciding whether to drill a third well and ask the Basses to complete their commitment.

"If we didn't think there was a valid new prospect to work on, we wouldn't hold their feet to the fire," Swetnam said.

Oklahoma professor given $272,000 EPA grant

NORMAN — A University of Oklahoma petroleum engineer has been awarded a $272,000 grant by the Environmental Protection Agency to assess waste trends in oil and gas operations nationwide and recommend ways to reduce and dispose of these wastes in the future.

"A certain amount of waste is generated at each drilling site," explains Michael L. Wiggins, OU assistant professor of petroleum and geological engineering. "But currently, we don't know how much waste is being generated and how it is being disposed of."

The waste consists of drilling fluids and solid, liquids and gaseous substances that are brought to the surface in the course of drilling operations.

"As these wastes continue to increase, we must find ways to minimize their impact on the environment," Wiggins says.

By far, the largest volume of waste is salt water that is pumped to the surface during drilling operations, he points out.

The water, which can contaminate community water supplies, is either pumped back into underground reservoirs or, more commonly, transported from the site by licensed operators.

The OU project will determine how much salt water is brought to the surface and what happens to it after it is trucked away. And it will determine under what conditions it is safe to pump the salt water back into the ground.

Wiggins, working with Jock Campbell in the Oklahoma Geological Survey and OU graduate students, will study waste trends in major oil and gas producing states since 1985 and use this information to project waste generation until the year 2005. The study will include an overall assessment of waste trends in oil and gas operations, with additional trend analysis of the waste generation in enhanced oil recovery, stripper-well operations, and horizontal wells and associated drilling operations.

The project will review current technology used to minimize and dispose of wastes. In addition, the technology used in other industries for waste minimization and disposal will be evaluated for possible adaption to oil and gas operations.

MEETINGS

PBWLS to discuss formation damage

The Permian Basin Well Logging Society will meet Thursday at the Petroleum Club beginning at 11:30 a.m.

Guest speaker will be David K. Davies of David K. Davies & Associates of Houston. His speech will cover "Formation Damage and Reservoir Characterization in Permian Basin Sandstone and Carbonate Reservoirs." He will focus on petrophysical methods of identifying and remediating rock-fluid interaction driven wellbore damage that occurs as a result of drilling, completion and stimulation procedures.

Cost is $10 for members, $12 for non-members. Reservations can be made by calling 688-2099.

SIPES schedules installation banquet

Mary Lou Cassidy will be the guest speaker at Wednesday's Ladies Night and Installation Banquet for the Society of Independent Professional Earth Scientiests. The banquet will be at the Midland Country Club beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Cassidy, a prominent Midland attorney, will give a review of a humorous book by Dave Barry: "The Only Travel Guide You'll Ever Need."

Members may attend at no cost, spouses and invited guests at a cost of $20 per person.

Sandstone hydrocarbons SEPM topic

The Permian Basin section, Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists will meet Tuesday at the Midland Center beginning at 11:30 a.m.

Guest speaker Lee Sanders will speak on "Hydrocarbon Detection Using the Neutron Porosity and Shear Wave Travel Time in Sandstone Reservoirs." He is with Halliburton Logging Services in Midland.

A comparison between the neutron porosity and shear wave travel time is being used to evaluate sandstone reservoirs in the Permian Basin for hydrocarbons. The technique is a crossplot on a well log format of the neutron porosity and the shear wave travel time with respect to the depth. Sands that are hydrocarbon productive will exhibit a greater shear wave travel time value than would be predicted from the neutron porosity.

Cost is $7 per person.

Oil recovery workshop set for CEED

A workshop on Improved Oil and Gas Recovery will be held in Midland Thursday at the Center for Energy and Economic Diversification from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The workshop has been organized by the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association and the Bureau of Economic Geology at the University of Texas at Austin , CEED, Dallas Energy Council, Gas Research Institute, Independent Petroleum Association of America, National Institute for Petroleum and Energy Research, North Texas Oil and Gas Association, Panhandle Producers and Royalty Owners Association, Permian Basin Petroleum Association, and West Central Texas Oil and Gas Assocation.

The workshop, which has traveled to Dallas, Amarillo, Abilene, Houston, Corpus Christi and Wichita Falls, will cover 3-D Seismic Applications in the morning, and Improved Conventional Oil Recovery Strategies in the afternoon.

Cost is $75 per person and includes course materials, coffee breaks and lunch.

WeCTOGA to hold 60th annual meeting

The West Central Texas Oil and Gas Association will hold its 60th annual meeting Feb. 21-22 at the Abilene Civic Center and the Abilene Petroleum Club.

The meeting will begin Feb. 21 with a reception at the Civic Center. The next morning, the meeting will begin with a breakfast and membership meeting at the Petroleum Club, concluding with a luncheon at the Civic Center.

Hazardous waste compliance course set

Safety Kleen will sponsor a Hazardous Material/Hazardous Waste Compliance Course at the Midland Hilton Tuesday.

"How to Comply with Hazardous Waste Laws" will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

"OSHA 'Right-to Know'/Hazardous Materials" will be held from 2 to 5 p.m.

Cost is $295 for up to four people from the same company. The price includes materials for compliance and training materials.

Basin CPAs plan February meeting

The Permian Basin chapter, Texas Society of CPAs, will meet Thursday at the Center for Energy and Economic Diversification, Highway 191 and RM 1788.

The Continuing Education program, beginning at 5:30 p.m., will feature Beth Tucker, a senior level IRS manager. Her topic will be "Compliance 2000: Bringing People Back Into the System."

Social hour begins at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 7 p.m. Dinner speaker will be Karl Painter, director of the Small Business Development Center for the University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

Cost is $20 and reservations can be made by noon Wednesday by calling 689-6599.

Texas production

Texas preliminary October crude oil production averaged 1,629,193 barrels daily, down from 1,674,576 barrels daily average for October 1991. The preliminary Texas oil production figure for October is 50,225,977 barrels, down from 51,911, 845 barrels reported a year earlier. Texas oil and gas wells produced 460,246,595 Mcf of gas in preliminary October roduction, down 0.92 percent compared to October 1991's gas production total of 464,510,119 Mcf.

Producers turn to Africa's oil reserves

N.Y. Times News Service

Faced with dwindling U.S. oil supplies, Western energy producers are stepping up their search for foreign crude.

And many of them are looking to Africa.

The continent — long passed up for the oil-rich Middle East — has ample supplies of high quality, easy-to-refine crude. Africa has its share of political turmoil: Angola, Somalia and Zaire are the latest examples. But the region is nevertheless regarded as a more secure source of oil than the Middle East by many industry experts.

African crude can be shipped directly across the Atlantic Ocean to U.S. and European refineries — a safer route than importing oil via the Persian Gulf, especially when terrorists block its harbors with explosives. The route also is less prone to tanker accidents than the North Sea, because the weather is calmer.

Most of Africa's oil production is also based offshore, where it is better insulated from political unrest.

"Africa has many good prospects and under-explored parts," said Peter Bogin, associate director of the Cambridge Research Energy Associates, an energy consulting firm.

Jim Simpson, general manager of Chevron Overseas Petroleum Inc., said he considers Africa "underrated" as an oil production frontier.

The continent has one of the world's top three oil reserves. With an estimated 60.4 billion barrels, it ranks third behind the Middle East (with 661.6 billion barrels) and Latin America (119.8 billion barrels.) By contrast, North America has 41.7 billion barrels of crude.

Africa's oil production is also the fastest-growing in the world. About 6.9 million barrels of crude are pumped out of Africa each day, up nearly 50 percent from 4.7 million in 1983. North America's production, meanwhile, was down 8 percent, to 11 million barrels a day during the same period.

U.S. crude imports from Africa have doubled to about 1.2 million barrels a day, up from 605,000 barrels a decade ago.

Africa's natural-gas reserves are also among the world's largest, and they are largely untapped.

The continent's oil fields, mainly discovered in the 1950s, are concentrated in its western and northern regions. Many of them are offshore or in swamps, as in the Gulf of Mexico. Africa's major oil producers are Nigeria, Libya and Algeria (all members of the OPEC consortium) as well as Angola, Gabon and Egypt.

Nigeria is the largest producer in the group, pumping about 1.9 million barrels of crude per day.

Many geologists predict that Namibia, Angola's neighbor, will one day make major contributions to Africa's oil output. But they see little, if any, potential for East Africa, where exploratory wells have been drilled since the 1950s without much luck.

In Somalia, some political analysts recently caused a stir when they suggested that former President Bush sent U.S. troops to the East African nation partly to clear the way for more oil exploration. The charge was angrily denied.

Several oil companies have previously prospected for oil in Somalia without success.

Chevron's focus is on West Africa, where the company inherited operations in Angola, Nigeria and Zaire as part of its $13.2-billion purchase of Gulf Oil in 1984. Africa now accounts for about two-thirds of Chevron Overseas' earnings — estimated at more than $200 million.

Sixty percent of Chevron Overseas' oil production comes from Africa, and the total will jump to 70 percent by 1995. This will require that Chevron invest hundreds of millions of dollars, Simpson said.

The company has also been expanding its tanker fleet to help ship more crude between West Africa and the U.S. East Coast. This includes Chevron's newest tanker, the George Shultz. (The former U.S. Secretary of State is a Chevron director.)

In refining and marketing, Chevron is represented in Africa by Caltex Petroleum Co., which it owns jointly with Texaco Inc. Caltex is a major gasoline retailer in South Africa, where it owns a refinery, and also supplies petroleum products in Somalia, Kenya, Tanzania, Uganda and elsewhere.

While Chevron has one of the biggest corporate outposts in Africa, other companies, Shell, Mobil Corp., the French oil company Elf Aquitaine, and the Italian oil giant Agip, are also stepping up their oil production on the continent.

Some smaller oil companies have also sought a stake in Africa, notably Los Angeles-based Occidental Petroleum Co., which helped pioneer oil production in Libya in the 1960s — before Colonel Moammar Khadafy's regime forced it out in the 1980s.

"It was just too dangerous for the corporation's health that more than 90 percent of our oil should come from a country which was so constantly at odds with the rest of the world, especially America," remarked Chairman Armand Hammer, before he died in 1990.

Indeed, the political risks in Africa are significant. Many of Africa's governments, partners of the Western companies in these oil-drilling ventures, are military dictatorships. These include Libya and Nigeria. South Africa's parliament abolished apartheid laws last year, but it has yet to give the black majority any voting rights.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE WORKSHOP

OBJECTIVES:

- To identify the steps and procedures needed to plan, organize, finance and operate an international business.
- To determine the readiness for operation of an international business by evaluating personal and business skills.
- To help individuals prepare for expanding a business into the international arena through the development of a business plan.
- To identify resources, agencies and organizations who assist businesses in international trade.

WORKSHOP TOPICS:

- Getting Started: Before you invest time and resources in an international business venture, find out if you have resources for the businesses to succeed. Review what you need to know to get the international business started.
- Developing the Business Plan: Learn how to create a workable business plan to guide you to success.
- Financing: Explore types of financing available to the international trading companies. Meet with local and regional bankers who can help your company with international trade. Learn how the U.S. Government programs encourage international trade.
- Resources: Learn where and how to find assistance. Introduce yourself and your company to representatives who can help your company with international trade problems
- Legal and Risk Management: Explore international business structures, trading requirements and restrictions. Know your legal options.
- Everything you Wanted to Know about Business: (but were afraid to ask) This workshop will have an open discussion to answer any questions you might have.

WORKSHOP PRESENTERS:

- Introduction to International Trade - Deborah Hernandez, Director, International Marketing - Texas Dept of Commerce
- North American Trade - Les Castro - Professor UT Dallas
- International Trade Financing - Bob Blades, Texas Commerce Bank
- EX-IM Bank Trade Finance Programs - Joseph H. Ringer, Marketing Officer, Export-Import Bank of the United States

ACTIVITY HIGHLIGHTS

Scurry nets modest Canyon Reef find

Staff report

PATRICK PETROLEUM CORP. has completed a modest Canyon Reef discovery in Scurry County, a half-mile southwest of a 7,284 ft. dry hole and 1-3/4 miles southwest of 6,300 ft. Strawn Reef pay in the Camp Spring fields, 2.5 mile snorth of Camp Springs.

On potential test, the No. 1-98 Williams flowed 60 barrels of 45 gravity crude and 50 Mcfd on a 12/64 inch choke with flowing tubing pressure of 150 psi. The well flowed from perforations 6,372 to 6,380 ft., which had been acidized with 2,250 gallons of acid.

Permitted as a 6,500 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to 9,700 ft. and plugged back to 3,880 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 6,500 ft.

Formation tops, on ground elevation of 2,154 ft., include the San Angelo at 1,645 ft., Clearfork at 1,807, Fullerton at 2,121, Big Red at 2,472, Valera at 3,175, Jagger Bend at 3,355, Wolfcamp at 3,663, Base Coleman Junction at 3,920, Noodle Creek at 4,258, Saddle Creek at 4,493, Pennyslvanian Shale at 4,821, Canyon at 6,060, Canyon Reef at 6,246, and Strawn at 6,393 ft.

Texaco completes dual gas producer

A dual producer has been completed in the Davidson Ranch (Pennsylvanian 7890) and Ozona (Canyon Sandstone) fields of Crockett County, 4.5 miles southeast of Ozona.

TEXACO EXPLORATION & PRODUCTION INC. completed the No. 6U A.R. Kincaid Trust "C" in the Canyon formation for a calculated absolute open flow of 837 Mcfd from perforations 6,235 to 6,378 ft. The interval was acidized with 2,400 gallons 7.5 percent NeFe and fractured with 130,200 gallons gel and 395,000 lbs. 20/40 sand.

From the Pennsylvanian 7890, the No. 6L was tested for a calculated absolute open flow of 295 Mcfd from perforations 7,923 to 7,961 ft. The interval was acidized with 1,600 gallons 7.5 percent NeFe and fractured with 54,038 gallons gel and 139,473 lbs. 20/40 sand.

Drilled to 8,150 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing was set, the well was plugged back to 8,107 ft.

Delaware producer flows 143 barrels

DEVON ENERGY CORP. has completed a Delaware producer in an undesignated field in Eddy County, N.M., 35 miles northwest of Jal.

The No. 1 Todd "27-P" Federal was completed to flow 143 barrels of crude, 143 Mcfd and 30 barrels of water on an 18/64 inch choke with flowing tubing pressure of 220 psi. The well flowed from perforations 7,962 to 8,164 ft., which had been acidized with 4,500 gallons of 15 percent HCL and fractured with 98,970 gallons gel and 97,000 lbs. 20/40 sand.

Drilled to 8,328 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing was set, the well was plugged back to 8,281 ft.

On ground elevation of 3,452 ft., formation tops include the Rustler at 986 ft., Delaware at 4,354, Cherry Canyon at 5,507, Brushy Canyon at 6,930, and Bone Spring at 8,214 ft.

Lea well recompleted in undesignated field

A former Bone Spring producer in the North Young field of Lea County, N.M. has been recompleted as a Loco Hills/Metex producer in an undesignated field.

HARVEY E. YATES CO. INC. recompleted the No. 2 Amoco "CP-8" Federal to pump eight barrels of crude and 135 barrels of water from perforations 4,488 to 4,703 ft. The interval was acidized with 1,500 gallons 10 percent NeFe acid and fractured with 20,000 gallons gel and 50,000 lbs. sand.

Formation tops, on ground elevation of 3,761 ft., include the Rustler at 1,082 ft., Yates at 2,562, Seven Rivers at 2,994, Queen at 3,726, Delaware at 5,356, and Bone Spring at 6,350 ft.

Location is 330 ft. from south and 2,310 ft. from east lines of Section 8, T18s, R32e.

The well was originally completed in June 1989 to pump 18 barrels of 37.9 gravity crude and 33 barrels of water from perforations 8,420 to 8,942 ft.

Mobil Corp. appoints president

N.Y. Times News Service

The Mobil Corp. has named Lucio A. Noto president and chief operating officer. Analysts said the promotion was a signal that he was ahead in the race to succeed Allen E. Murray as chairman and chief executive next year, when Murray reaches the mandatory retirement age of 65.

Also in the race to succeed Murray are Paul J. Hoenmans, 60, and Eugene A. Renna, 48. Hoenmans is executive vice president for exploration and production; Renna heads the refining and chemicals operations. They and Noto are directors and members of the board's executive committee.

Noto has been chief financial officer since 1989, but his 30-year career has covered many positions, with an emphasis on international experience, which has become increasingly important to global oil companies, especially Mobil.

Murray has been president and chief operating officer since succeeding Tavoulareas in 1984 and chairman and chief executive since 1986, when he replaced Rawleigh Warner Jr.

The next step in ramp blending.

We offer total blending control with the most complete microprocessor-based ramp blending system in the industry.

Smith Energy Services developed the APAC/ALAC (Automated Proppant/Liquid Additive Control) Blender in conjunction with Stewart & Stevenson Services, Inc., to not only deliver the most precise proppant addition, but also complete liquid additive control and monitoring.

Precisely. As scheduled. Even during rapid proppant stage or rate changes. So our fluid is fully crosslinked and buffered and the correct amount of breaker is added.

Which ensures that you will receive the cleanest fluid and highest conductivity fracture. And optimum well performance.

Otherwise, we wouldn't be the choice of some of the country's finest oil and gas operators.

So if you're concerned about how your well performs and the next step for unearthing your profits, take the first step.

Smith Energy Services. We work best under pressure.

Who's the Permian Basin's leader in Electric Submersible Pumps?

CENTRILIFT is the only manufacturer of Electrical Submersible Pumps in the Permian Basin maintaining a complete local service and manufacturing facility. Our Midland facility stocks parts that meet or exceed original equipment manufacturer tolerances. Local service, inventory of parts, and manufacturing means fewer delays. Lower down time. Maximizing revenues to you.

SERVICE

Centrilift provides quality service to aid in optimizing performance of your pump's system. Our factory-trained personnel can help you optimize downhole equipment's performance, maintaining specified operational parameters that prolong equipment life while maximizing your production.

WELL TESTING

The Centrilift Electrospeed provides a quick way to optimize production rates. Establishing real drawdown and productivity data allows you to select the optimum constant speed system or to utilize the variable speed equipment to "track" with well changes. This ability to "test" your well helps you to make the right selection.

PIT TESTING

Centrilift's pit testing to avoid costly repairs to your pump. Pit test data will show how your pump performs against API RP11S specifications and recommended operational tolerances. And, if your equipment fails the pit test, your test charges will be credited to the purchase of a fully warranteed replacement.

FULL SERVICE

Only Centrilift provides a full line of services for the Permian Basin. In addition to providing a complete line of sales, service, manufacturing, testing, and repair for your electric submersible pump, we also provide equipment leasing, service contracts, maintenance agreements, and operating programs tailored to maximize the profitability of your well right here in the Permian Basin. For complete service give CENTRILIFT a call.

Chemical Blending Services, Inc. provides variety of services to industry

Chemical Blending Services, Inc. is a subsidiary of Benchmark Research and Technology, Inc. Established in 1981, Chemical Blending Services was originally intended to meet the specific needs of the oil well industry by providing for the proprietary blending and packaging of liquid and dry chemicals. However, the 1983 purchase of a regional chemical distribution company greatly expanded Chemical Blending's product and service capabilities.

Today, Chemical Blending provides chemicals for a number of industries and has further expanded its services to include grinding, milling, specialty and proprietary blending, manufacturing, commodity chemical distribution and warehousing. A highly-trained technical service staff of chemists, rheologists and engineers is available to answer any questions, perform specifications-testing or help develop chemical compositions to meet special needs.

Another Benchmark entity is West Texas Drum Company, Inc. established in 1988 to recondition and recycle used drums. Each drum is emptied, steamed, chemically-cleaned and pressure-tested to ensure its integrity. Cleaning, waste disposal and testing activities are performed in accordance with all local state and federal regulations. At West Texas Drum, used, dirty drums are totally refurbished -- made "new" again with the client's name and logo.

ZTC-Applied Crosslinker Technology was founded in 1981 in Gainsville, Florida. In 1988, ZTC joined the Benchmark family of companies and brought with it a vast array of chemical development capabilities. ZTC's chemists have discovered new ways to improve the rheological properties of oil and gas well stimulation and completion fluids using polymer crosslinkers of aluminum, boron, titanium and zirconium. These chemists have also developed numerous metal compounds for use in adhesives, paints, textiles, explosives and paper coatings.

The newest -- and perhaps fastest growing -- of the Benchmark subsidiaries is StrataProp, Inc. This company manufactures "System Stable™" resin coated proppants and will be discussed in greater detail in this column at a later date.

The Most Economical Methods of Artificial Lift and Gas Compression

Permian Production Equipment, inc. is a local manufacturing and service company that has built its reputation on quality products and excellent service. PPEI has served the Permian Basin since 1978 and has expanded its sales and services with offices and distributors covering the domestic oil industry as well as the International markets. All PPEI products are manufactured at our plant located here in the Basin and are produced from the very best materials available with the highest concern for quality control.

PLUNGER LIFT

As most already know, the most efficient and most economical method of artificial lift is to allow the energy produced by the well to produce the well. During the well closed cycle, the plunger falls to the bottom of the tubing as the pressure builds in the well and the produced fluids are forced past the plunger into the tubing and gas is stored in the casing. When the well is automatically opened, the plunger acts as an interface between the fluid slug and the drive gas from the casing allowing the slug to be produced to the surface. The open and closed cycle repeats as the well dictates to produce the maximum production from each well.

Permian Production Equipment, Inc., with its new produce development, has improved on seal capability between plunger and tubing wall to the maximum allowing wells that were once excluded as a plunger lift application to now be produced with the formation energy from the well.

PLUNGER LIFT APPLICATIONS

• UNLOADING GAS WELLS. PPEI is using plunger lift to unload gas wells where condensates and liquid restrict gas production.
• PRODUCING OIL WELLS. PPEI is using plunger lift to produce oil wells where the formation has sufficient gas to liquid ratio. When an oil well qualified for plunger lift it makes the more expensive forms of artificial lift unnecessary. Our plunger lift has replaced rod pumping systems allowing them to be moved to higher liquid rate wells or to be sold to generate cash flow.
• REMOVING PARAFFIN. PPEI is using plunger lift an an inexpensive method of paraffin control in the tubing. When the plunger is cycled through the tubing, the tubing walls are wiped clear of paraffin build up. This eliminates lost production and expensive maintenance programs.
• CONTROLLING ALLOWABLES. PPEI is using Plunger lift with the latest technology in well head control to produce a well with the maximum allowables of both oil and gas by controlling the flow cycles with shut in on arrival and afterflow delay shut in cycles.

Permian Production Equipment, Inc. offers the very latest plunger lift technology with a ledge to give the very best service in the oil patch. Permian Production Equipment, Inc., has pledged to give our clients same day service or at the latest, next day service and we have the trained personnel to keep your well producing.

B-Line, Growing With The Permian Basin

Constant expansion to meet the needs of the trucking industry and fleet operator along with those of the general public has been the rule with B-Line Filter and Supply, Inc., since 1973.

As a Texaco wholesaler from 1964 to 1973, Omer Bishop, founder and owner of B-Line, saw the need for a one-stop supply house for the parts both for his gasoline trucks and company cars. Along with his son Gary and one sales representative, B-Line was opened at the corner of 9th Street and Grant Avenue in Odessa. As the sales volume and inventory grew, moves were made to new and larger locations in 1975 and again in 1983 to its present location at 1509 W. 2nd Street in Odessa.

With the largest inventory of truck and auto parts at any retail location in the Permian Basin and staffed by both Omer and Gary along with nine sales representatives combining a vast knowledge of auto and truck needs with years of experience, B-Line can fill all of your needs. Filters for your automobiles, trucks, off-road equipment and industrial needs are in stock. Also, B-Line will see to your specific needs with custom manufactured liquid and air filters for both the field and the plant. Oil, both packaged and in drums, along with antifreeze, hydraulic oil, trandraulic fluid, cutting oil and diesel/gas additives are available.

B-Line's latest expansion is now in the works. Having acquired the old Dunnigan Tool Building across the street from their current location, B-Line will soon open a quick lube and oil change facility designed to meet the needs of the 18 wheeler and fleet trucks. Providing quick and economical service this facility will meet all EPA and Texas Water Commission requirements while greatly reducing down time for your fleet. Watch for the grand opening soon.

With plenty of truck parking, large inventory, experienced staff and a helpful atmosphere, is there any reason not to come by and see for yourself how B-Line can meet your needs?

As Omer likes to say, "We can talk all day but one trip to B-Line tells the story!"

Sun Oil Co. signs environmental code

N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — The Valdez Principles, a code of corporate environmental conduct devised after the 1989 Alaskan oil spill, won its first major corporate endorsement Thursday. And the company that signed on is an oil company.

Sun Co. of Philadelphia, the 12th-largest oil company in the United States, became the first Fortune 500 company to endorse the principles. Fifty smaller companies have already backed them.

In May, a resolution endorsing the principles was submitted at the company's shareholder meeting by the New York City pension system but drew just 6 percent support. After the vote, though, management met with the principles' backers and worked out a compromise.

Sun negotiated various "adaptations" of the principles to fit its business.

For example, the first of the 10 principles, protection of the biosphere, says, "We will reduce and make continual progress toward eliminating the release of any substance that may cause environmental damage to the air, water, or the earth or its inhabitants."

Some environmentalists would say that includes the pollutants that are released when Sun's gasoline is burned, along with the carbon dioxide that adds to global warming. and is released when Sun's gasoline is burned.

In the statement adopted by Sun, the company says, "We will reduce our overall emissions to the environment (air, water and land) with special emphasis on toxic substances."

"This is not a commitment to go out of the petrochemical business or the fuels business," Sun's chairman and chief executive, Robert H. Campbell, said at a ceremony in New York on Thursday.

But, he said, there was "tremendous philosophical congruence" between what Sun was already doing and the environmental principles. He said, however, that he did not foresee major changes.

Gas pipeline could serve Pacific Rim

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — A key player in the construction of the trans-Alaska oil pipeline says he wants to build a pipeline to bring natural gas from the Canadian arctic to southern Alaska and markets on the Pacific Rim.

Robert O. Anderson, the founder of the Atlantic Richfield Co. and now chief executive of Hondo Gas and Oil Co. of Roswell, N.M., said Thursday a 750-mile pipeline would take the gas from fields in the Mackenzie Delta east of the Alaskan border, to the Kenai Peninsula, south of Anchorage.

A plant there would convert the gas to liquefied natural gas and load it on ships, where it would be sent to the Pacific Rim to generate electricity and for household use.

The $12 billion project by Mackenzie Porcupine Pipeline Co. follows a similar Alaska proposal that has an 11-year head start.

Since the early 1980s the Yukon Pacific Corp. has pushed for a natural gas pipeline along the same route as the trans-Alaska pipeline to bring gas from Prudhoe Bay to Valdez.

The two projects are targeting the same market: the Pacific Rim countries whose demand for electricity has far outstripped their ability to supply it.

The timing of the Mackenzie project is essential to its success. Anderson said he hopes to begin laying pipe in 1994 and start the gas flow by 1998, at least five years before Yukon Pacific would be able to purchase gas from oil producers on Alaska's North Slope.

Arco Alaska Inc., BP Exploration (Alaska) Inc. and Exxon Corp., the North Slope's major producers, now reinject the natural gas into their oil fields to maintain pressure in the reservoirs. The process allows the companies to recover more oil while preserving the gas.

"(Yukon Pacific) has everything except one thing — they don't have a supply," Anderson said.

Jeff Lowenfels, a vice president at Anchorage-based Yukon Pacific, said that, while Anderson's plans represented potential competition, he didn't believe a second pipeline could be built before the trans-Alaska project.

"It takes a lot more than Robert O. Anderson to make a pipeline project happen," he said. "Now, we wish him all the luck in the world, but he hasn't got any permits yet, and we've got practically all of the ones we need."

"As far as we're concerned now, it's simply a concept on the back of a cocktail napkin."

But Anderson said the pipelines wouldn't necessarily be competitors.

"I don't see it as competing with Prudhoe Bay, I see it as opening a market, a trading area," he said.

One thing the competing companies agree on is the expected growth in demand for LNG on the Pacific Rim.

Pickens takes cut in pay

DALLAS (AP) — Mesa Inc. chief executive officer Boone Pickens has taken a 30 percent pay cut for 1993, a company spokesman said.

Pickens volunteered for the salary reduction from $960,000 to $675,000, spokesman Jay Rosser said.

"It's an effort on his part to demonstrate that he's in this for the long term," Rosser said.

The natural gas company has been burdened by losses in recent years due to low prices and debt from asset purchases in the 1980s. The company will report its year-end 1992 results later this month.

Mesa currently has made an exchange offer for $600 million worth of bonds.

Pickens' action follows a reduction last year in compensation for three other top Mesa executives.

It's Valentine's Day, the day when more flowers and candy are given to loved ones on one day than any other day of the year. However, studies and research show that while loved ones enjoy the extra attention and goodies on this day of love, what is really important is the expressions of affections day to day.

The flowers will wilt and the candy will disappear (except maybe from the hips), but the little things that mates do for each other create the feeling of being special and cared about, a sense of security in the relationship.

"Garth Brooks has a song that goes, 'She needs to hear I love you more than just at night,' and I think that is something we all need to know from our significant other," said Jim May, Ph.D., director of the Family Wellness Center. "And these signs of affection don't have to be expensive. It's not the big things that I'm talking about. The touch, the pat, a sympathetic response when we need a listening ear, someone to come to us when we need them," are the types of little things to do for each other.

"What we really need are the things that are available to us all the time. Just spending time with each other. A walk, sitting in the park, bringing coffee in the morning; just something that conveys how important that person is to you," May said.

In fact, the concept of showing your mate you care every day is so strongly advised, that several publications are taking advantage of "love in the air" this Valentine's Day and publishing articles suggesting how their readers can show their affection.

According to an article — "Beyond Candy and Flowers" — in the current Reader's Digest, experts say it is best for couples to celebrate their love for each other throughout the year.

Their first suggestion is to surprise each other. As an example, a man discovered a slip of paper tucked between the slices of bread that said, "I love you" from his wife. At another time, he had left a wrapped package in her car. When she tore away the ribbons and bows, it was a package of Oreo cookies, her passion.

"Some of the best expressions of love don't cost a penny and don't take two minutes' time," Sarah Catron, a visiting assistant professor of psychology at Wake Forest University in Winston-Salem, N.C., was quoted as saying in the article.

Being physical also is a way to keep the home fires burning; however, this is not by any means restricted to mean sex. Hugs are considered to one of the best types of physical contact. But an arm around the waist, a pat on the shoulder or a touch on the hand are also important ways to say "I love you."

A quick poll taken around the office produced several more suggestions for everyday ways to tell your loved one you care. Back rubs, coffee in bed, doing a household chore or two without being asked, and recording a favorite television show when a loved one was late home were some of the suggestions.

May also suggested sending cards, writing notes, calling in the middle of the day just to check on how they are doing, taking out the garbage and setting the table as some of the "little things" that leave lasting impressions.

The Reader's Digest article also emphasizes sharing memories. Looking back at special times the two of you have shared and remembering how you felt at that moment helps to rekindle those loving feelings.

It also is vital to have a good ear. Howard Markman, director of the Center for Marital and Family Studies at the University of Denver, was quoted in Reader's Digest, "When you ask couples what means more to them in their relationship, friendship gets higher marks with most of them than either sex or financial security."

"Sometimes you just have to look around at what is being done and stop to realize, 'Hey, I could have done that,'" May said.

While geared more to the new bride, the current issue of Elegant Bride features an article titled "365 Ways to Say 'I Love You,'" which, with a little creativity, many of the suggestions could be relevent to anyone in love.

Some of those suggestions (altered to include males and females) include:

- #7. Send a card for no reason at all. Just to say that you love him/her.
- #18 Write a poem about the love you share.
- #21 Hold hands often.
- #26 Focus on the positive traits, not the negative ones.
- #36 A spontaneous hug or kiss goes a long way.
- #38 Have fun and remain playful — just as you were during your early courtship.
- # 48 Save articles from newspapers you think your mate would enjoy.
- # 119 Compliment your mate in front of others.
- # 136 Be best friends.
- # 154 Don't keep secrets.
- # 172 Enjoy a sunset together.

Couples recall courtships

By Marilyn McKnight Harrison

Happy Valentine's Day! As we celebrate this day of hearts and flowers when we let our loved ones know how special they are to us, we thought it would be suiting to share how several Midland couples' courtships began.

McKnight-Harrison

AP-PROACHING THEIR 50TH wedding anniversary, Dorothy and Homer Nance were both living and working in Midland when they met in 1942 at a First Baptist Church Sunday School party at the home of the late Veda and Howard Hodge, who are remembered as longtime owners of Midland's movie theaters. Dorothy was employed by a variety store, Harris-Luckett Co., and Homer was working in the hardware business for a pioneer Midlander, the late Paul Barron.

Although Homer had dated two of Dorothy's best friends before they met, he knew he had found the right girl for him and never dated anyone else again.

He proposed to her on the front porch swing of her parents' country home north of town. Their wedding took place on June 14, 1943, and they have continued to live in Midland since. After serving in World War II at the Midland Army Air Base, Homer had a long career in the retail business, and Dorothy became a homemaker and mother of two, Paul Nance and Peggy (Mrs. Donnie) Hall, both of Midland. They also have two grandchildren, Bryan and Sarah Hall.

MEANWHILE, NEWLYWEDS Kelly and Todd Hullender exchanged wedding vows last May 23 following a courtship, which began three years earlier at Texas A&M University. The pair was introduced on a blind date to a Kappa Kappa Gamma Valentine party in 1989. The following Monday, they discovered they were enrolled in the same film class and began going together to the Tuesday night movies that were a class requirement.

Todd graduated from A&M in May of 1989 but stayed to work on his master's degree, and the couple dated one another exclusively during that time. Todd accepted a job in Corning, N.Y. in May of 1991, and Kelly came back to her hometown of Midland to teach following her graduation that spring. The couple went with her parents, Gayle and Doc Dodson to New Orleans, where he asked permission to marry their daughter. However, they did not divulge Todd's plans to Kelly.

When she visited him in New York that summer, he took her to Niagara Falls. After a romantic dinner, they drove over to the Canadian side to view the Falls at night. It was there that Todd got down on one knee, proposed and produced the ring, which he had kept hidden since leaving Corning.

Following their wedding, the Hullenders lived in California briefly before moving to Midland. Todd is employed with Compressor Systems Inc., and Kelly is a teacher at Bush Elementary School.

NATIVE KANSANS Jane and Rod Phares met in Wichita at a sock hop after a basketball game when both were seniors in high school. They got acquainted at the dance, but he waited until the next week to ask her to a Mardi Gras dance at his school. They dated from February to the end of the summer when they departed for college, Jane to New York and Rod to California. Subsequently, they returned to Wichita State University and resumed their courtship. Even though Rod finished his education at the University of Oklahoma, they continued to see one another.

After dating for five and a half years, they were married on June 4, 1966. A romantic kind of guy, Rod proposed by serving Jane chilled champagne, where she found her engagement ring in the bottom of the glass.

As a geologist, Rod's work has taken the family of five, including their children, Rod Jr., Joan and Steve, all over the world. He now is a consultant for Scott Hickman & Associates, and Jane is director of programs for the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum.

BY A TWIST of fate, a small town boy from Huron, S.D., made the long trek to Waco to attend Baylor University and met a small town girl from Lamesa, Texas, who was to become his bride. Janie and Steve Hofer were introduced the first week of their freshman year and continued to date each other exclusively throughout college. After t' eir first summer apart, he met her back at school and literally got down on one knee and proposed.

Never one to tarry, Janie completed her schooling in three years. She graduated at 10 a.m. on Aug. 14, 1976, was married at 11 a.m., and the following Monday began teaching at Marlin while Steve when through Baylor Law School.

The couple came to Midland in 1978 upon his graduation, and he joined the firm of Stubbeman McRae Sealy Laughlin and Browder. Janie keeps busy as a mother of two, Stephanie, 12, and Steven, 7, and as a community volunteer and an art teacher at The Hillander School.

PATTI AND DAVID DEFRANCE "met" on the telephone and started to correspond by mail after that. Patti was a hostess for TWA based in New York City, and David was attending Long Beach State University in California.

Their respective roommates had been engaged, and one evening, as Patti was waiting for a date, her roommate handed her the phone and said to David, "Here, meet my roommate, Patti." They talked for almost 40 minutes, and David suggested they write until she could fly out to meet him. In the meantime, she chose three contemporary cards to send him, and by a "jillion to one" odds, he had selected the same three to mail her. Finally in April, Patti landed what she calls "a milk run" to Los Angeles. She had a 45-minute layover in Los Angeles, and David left his classes at Long Beach to finally meet the girl who had captured his heart sight unseen.

"We both saw stars," says Patti. She later arranged for 10 days off and flew out in May to meet his family. She asked for a transfer and moved to L.A. in July. They were married on Aug. 26, 1965, in Los Alamitos, Calif.

Residents of Midland since 1974, they have two children, Michele Matney of New Braunfuls and John DeFrance of Midland. David is an accountant with Dalton, DeFrance & Associates, and Patti is a lease acquisitions analyst for Sun Co., Inc.

GEORGIA AND BOBBY CRUES first met in 1959 at the Cotton Exchange in Dallas, where both were employed, but they did not see one another until about a year after her first marriage ended.

Bobby moved to Midland in 1966, and Georgia would come out to visit periodically. "We always had fun together," says Georgia. "We both liked jazz and other arts events." But it took her by surprise when he asked, "Would you think about marrying me?" However, it was no surprise to her three sons by her first marriage. They always said, "If you ever marry anybody again, it will be him," and on Aug. 1, 1970, the pair exchanged vows.

The boys, Kenn, Steve and Ron Tennison moved to Midland with their mother and graduated from Lee High School. Now Kenn lives in Houston, and Steve and his wife, Melody, and Ron and wife Susin and children, Angela and Eric, reside in Dallas.

Bobby is a stockbroker, and Georgia has been engaged in data processing for both the former Midland National Bank and Unocal.

PAT PARDUE feels as though she and her husband, Lon, were destined to meet. He had come down from his native El Dorado, Kan., to attend Texas A&M University. Since it was impossible to go home on weekends, he would accompany his roommate and Pat's cousin to Glen Rose, where she was living. Lon first spotted the young blonde woman, who was to become his wife on the streets of her hometown in 1959, but it was not until a year later (the fall of 1960) that they were introduced. After exchanging a lot of letters, they were married on Sept. 9, 1961, at the beginning of Lon's junior year of college. "I knew from the time I laid eyes on him that he was the one for me," Pat says.

The Pardues have lived in Midland on four separate occasions, moving here the last time in 1992. They have two sons and daughters-in-law, Mike and Tammy Pardue of Midland and Troy and Dianna Pardue of Mobile, Ala. and two granddaughters, Tiffany and Bethany of Midland.

After almost 30 years with Unocal, Lon is retired now, and the couple are finding time to rediscover how special they are to each other. "We always knew how much we meant to one another, but life's many responsibilities made it easy to push those feelings aside," Pat says.

Last year on Valentine's Day, the couple read the letters to each other they had written so many year ago. What a fitting way to celebrate the day!

Red rose may not be best rose

By Mimi Fuller Foster
N.Y. Times News Service

A dozen long-stemmed red roses.

They've become the symbol of love in America. About 140 million roses will be sold this weekend, making Valentine's Day the single biggest floral holiday of the year. About 75 percent of those roses will be red.

But the problem with red roses, floral industry experts point out, is that it's mostly men who like them. Women say they prefer pastel colors or strong purple or hot pink flowers, according to a 1991 Gallup Poll done for the Society of American Florists.

"Men buy what they're comfortable with," said Mary Anne Hansan, director of the American Floral Marketing Council, "and men are most comfortable with red and yellow flowers. Red signifies love to lots of people."

What's new in recent years is that more women are sending flowers to men, Mrs. Hansan said. Fifty percent of the women surveyed said they had given a man flowers or a plant.

But if you're tired of the same old roses and want to order something more creative, here are some suggestions:

"Tell them not to use glads (gladioluses), mums or carnations," said Cliff Calvert, floral designer for Maddix Deluxe Flower and Chocolate in Atlanta. "If you rule out those flowers, you'll avoid certain death. If you just have to have roses, ask for colored roses."

Tell the florist to use something other than baby's breath for filler.

Request a loose, natural arrangement in a clear vase. Floral foam or oasis can clog flower stems and shorten the life of flowers, Mr. Calvert said.

Ask for specific flowers, such as hybrid lilies (long-lasting, fragrant); callas (elegant in white or yellow); forsythia (stems cut from the familiar flowering shrub); tulips (wide variety of colors); daffodils (shades of pink and yellow); sweet-smelling hyacinths (pink, white, blue or purple); freesia (fragrant); crocosmia (vibrant reds and oranges); tuberoses (fragrant); spray orchids (small flowers on arching stems); iris (purple, blue and white); mimosa (a yellow relative of our Southern variety); and gerbera daisy (white, red, pink and salmon).

(From 1F)

■ # 254 Whenever things get rough, don't forget the value of humor and plain old fun.

■ # 278 Be observant. Notice when there is an an effort made to compromise or please you, then be thankful for the gesture.

■ #287 Make courtesy a habit.

■ #298 Be the one person your mate can count on.

■ #350 Switch roles for a day or a weekend — You'll learn a lot about each other.

■ #365 Never go to sleep without saying "I love you."

And should you acknowledge the efforts of your mate?

"If you ever want it to happen again, then you best notice," May said.

Tiny candy hearts have been American tradition for decades

By Ron Alexander
N.Y. Times News Service

Once upon a Valentine's Day, in the fourth grade of St. Rose of Lima Elementary School in York, Pa., Edward, 9, opened his clenched, sweaty fist and shyly presented his classmate Patricia with a small, pale-yellow heart-shaped candy imprinted with the plea, Be Mine.

Much to Edward's trembling surprise, Patricia reached into her pencil box, removed a similarly shaped candy, this one pale green, and thrust it at the eager lad. Its message: Goodbye. Patricia then flashed her braces, popped Edward's offering into her mouth, chomped it to bits and with a saucy toss of her pigtails went on her way, leaving her admirer with a broken heart of his own.

Over the years Edward has surely received far more encouraging, happier messages on other pastel-colored candy hearts. After all, some 10 billion little hearts are produced each year by two companies, for sale only from January to Valentine's Day.

The biggest producer, the New England Confectionery Co., of Cambridge, Mass., will make more than eight billion hearts this year. The company dates back to 1847, when one Oliver P. Chase voyaged from England to the United States, where he began making the pastel-colored candies that became known as Necco Wafers. They were, says Walter Marshall, Necco's special projects manager, the first commercial machine-made candy.

In 1902, someone at Necco came up with the idea of heart-shaped messages called Tiny Conversation Hearts. The original sentiments — including Be Good, Be True, Be Mine, Why Not, I Love U, Say Yes, Sweet Talk, My Man, Kiss Me — are still used. Oh Boy and Kiss Me were eliminated when they offended some spoilsports. "We try to stay middle-of-the-road," Marshall said. "Not too trendy, not too naughty." You Are Gay disappeared when someone realized its meaning had changed a bit since the early 1900s. There are no board meetings to decide such matters, Marshall said.

The other large producer, E.J. Brach Inc., in Oakbrook Terrace, Ill., which dates back to 1904, began making its hearts around 1930. This year's 2.2 billion Small Conversation Hearts are enough, a romantic company spokesman said, to stretch from Loveland, Colo., to Honey Pot Glen, Conn., 13 times. Brach's uses 62 sayings, including oldies like Oh U Kid, And How, Cool Kid, U-R-(NU)1, My Pet, Yoo-Hoo, Cute Dish, Cool, Crazy, Dream Girl, Dig Me, Far Out and Gotcha.

At Brach love may be a many-splendored thing but luv is not: the three-letter version was recently erased as outdated. New additions are plentiful: Heartthrob, Dream Girl, You Flirt, Don't Tell, My Star, Slick Chick, I'll Wait, Not Now.

For Rainbow Reitz, who recently opened Waverly Magazines, a variety store on Waverly Place in Greenwich Village, Necco's Tiny Conversation Hearts have been a best seller since she displayed them two weeks ago (a one-and-three-eighths-ounce box is 35 cents). "People break out in smiles when they spot them," she said. "They buy a few boxes and say, 'Oh, I remember those.' "

Television shows are fiction, not slice of real life

By Erma Bombeck

Bombeck

As the Murphy Brown controversy continues, it's worth noting that when the sitcom queen, Lucy, had a baby and still actively pursued a career in show business, she didn't get letters asking her to deal with the problems facing working mothers.

When Carol Burnett's unmarried daughter visited her with a baby during a segment of "As the Stomach Turns" and Carol deposited the baby in an umbrella stand, there was no outcry from the public about family values.

Why?

Because these aren't documentaries, folks. They're an attempt to make you laugh through exaggeration.

In 23 minutes each week, you can't do "War and Peace." Murphy Brown can either focus the humor on her home life or keep it in the office. Her producers have chosen the latter.

There's a large segment of the population out there who raise kids without a spouse and want to see their real-life struggles depicted on television. They don't want their problems "trivialized." I read where one woman mourned the passing of the good old days when Ozzie and Harriet put their kids first.

One Mother's Day, when I worked for "Good Morning America," I assembled four prime-time TV mothers for a dialogue. Between them they had 13 children, three husbands, a broken-down space ship and a large shaggy dog. They included Marion Ross of "Happy Days," Shirley Jones of "The Partridge Family," June Lockhart of "Lost in Space" and Barbara Billingsly of "Leave It to Beaver."

All agreed their TV roles were pure fiction and escape for most people. They personally went home to a real life of surly stepchildren, baby-sitters who quit, frozen food and sick pets. They carried guilt like a handbag and never left home without it. They couldn't imagine anyone would take their shows as real life.

There are a lot of TV shows that send out the wrong messages: sex on a first date; men plotting to kill their wives over money; mothers who encourage their daughters to bring dates to their beds at home.

Maybe there should be a sitcom created that centers around the home life of a single working mother and strips it of its glamour.

I warn you — if the heroine has no humor, she's not going to make it.

What's in a name? Ask the woman who owns several

By Sheila Taylor Wells
N.Y. Times News Service

A week or so ago, announcing my marriage, I solicited reader-advice concerning my byline.

Should I or should I not tack on my new husband's name, I asked, while pointing out that Taylor is not my maiden name. Ah. Would that it were; life would be but a simple thing. A rose is a rose is a rose; a Cassandra Mae Clinghorn is a Cassandra Mae Clinghorn is a Cassandra Mae Clinghorn.

I believe firmly, alas, decades after the fact, that a woman always should hold fast to her maiden name, because once you've made that commitment, you're set, no more agony over the same problem.

Besides, when one is assigned some kind of multidigital number almost daily — Social Security, driver's license, credit cards, employee IDs, case numbers, reference numbers of one sort or another, bank account numbers, and those strips of numbers they print across our chests every time we're arrested and have our picture taken in the jailhouse, etc., — then it is soothing, is it not, to have one name, one permanent name, that will stay with one birth-to-death, never changing, never faltering.

Even if we stay happily married to one person till death do us part, our name sets us apart from our spouse and children. There is only one Cassandra Mae Clinghorn, at least as far as I know and certainly hope, and if you've long ago taken another last name, it's not too late to drop the Mrs. Calvin Aristotle, reverting to Cassandra Mae.

For women of a certain age, going back to maiden names at a certain point seems a bit futile. We'd have to establish an identity all over again among a world of friends and acquaintances who've never known us by that childhood name, giving them yet another name to learn and ourselves a hard time remembering the change every time we sign our name. We are, after all, of a certain age.

Yet, I find it mildly aggravating how many women still prefer to appear on society lists and various community boards disguised as their husbands: The shrinking "Mrs. Calvin Aristotle Clinghorn," rather than the proud "Cassandra Mae Clinghorn" we all know and love.

Don't tell me what the etiquette books say; etiquette changes, just as our language slowly evolves to adjust to the world's tempering. After all, the purpose of etiquette is to make others feel at ease; I'd be uneasy without even a first name to call my own.

Of course, everybody should go by any name they like, but why does using one's own name show disrespect or disregard for one's spouse or marriage? My mother, a widow, more often these days appears as Betty Renfro rather than Mrs. Thomas J., and I think my dad would be pleased. He was prouder than anyone of Betty Renfro and his own name didn't require a dependent clause.

The New York Times recently ran a story of families who've made up entirely new last names, reflecting neither parent's heritage, for their children. That seems a bit silly to me or unnecessarily complicating.

This morning my new daughter said it seemed a bit strange having two mothers with the same last name, and yes, it does, but it also seems strange to have three children as I do, with three different names. I mean, when I stop to think about it, which I seldom do.

But good or ill, we live in another era, and our name, not that of spouses, in-laws, step-laws or even our own siblings, is, or can be, our one constant.

I've received some enlightening letters on this whole issue; I'll run some in another column. In the meantime, if you've a strong opinion, do write, but only if you want to see your name, and I mean the name of your choice, in print.

BSP presents Valentine's Sweethearts

Staff report

Midland's chapters of Beta Sigma Phi presented the 1993 Sweetheart Ball 8 p.m. Saturday at American Legion Hall. New chapter Sweethearts for this year are:

■ Suzy Arnold, Preceptor Epsilon Delta chapter, is recording secretary for her chapter this year. She and husband, Jim, have three children, Jayde, Jai Ja and Shai.

■ Heather Helbert, Alpha Phi Mu chapter, is a newcomer to Beta Sigma Phi. She is employed as a bartender and trainer with Chili's Restaurant.

■ Dixie Jordan, Laureate Nu chapter, is a charter member of her chapter. A member of Beta Sigma Phi since 1971, she has served on all committees and has attended sorority conventions in Scotland, Australia and Austria. Ms. Jordan is employed as office manager of Bettle-Womack Construction Company, and is a member of Midland Optimist Club and a volunteer with Midland Community Theatre and Big Brothers/Big Sisters.

■ Becky Kunkel, Xi Chi Xi chapter, is elementary library aide for Greenwood Independent School District. A member of Beta Sigma Phi since 1989, she has chaired several committees and has been both corresponding and recording secretary. Currently she is vice president of the chapter. She and husband, Joe, have two children, J.D. and Heather.

■ Gayle J.R. Miller, Psi Phi chapter, has served in almost all offices and chaired almost all committees. She has been a member of Beta Sigma Phi since 1985, and is employed as financial manager with Ranchland Hills Country Club. She and husband, Thomas, have one son, Justin.

■ Kyla Miller, Xi Epsilon Epsilon chapter, has been a member of her chapter for three years and is current scrapbook and program chairman. She and her husband, Tim, have three sons, Jacob, Benjamin and James.

■ Mamie Miller, Laureate Epsilon Eta chapter, is the wife of Carl and the mother of Carleen, Terri, Melody and Vickie. They also have nine grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

■ Beverly Rothwell has been a member of Xi Alpha Mu chapter for 10 years. Previously she was a member of Xi Upsilon Sigma chapter in Lubbock. She has served on numerous committees and in every office. A member of Beta Sigma Phi since October 1972, Ms. Rothwell has had perfect attendance for 20 years. She is a teaching assistant at Burnet Elementary School, employed by Midland Independent School District. She and husband, Charles, have two daughters, Tara and Amber.

■ Shiela E. Sundland, Xi Pi Kappa chapter, joined the sorority in 1988. She has served as chapter vice president for the last two years and has served on all committees. A preschool teacher with Grace Lutheran ECP, she also has a business called A Tisket A Tasket with Barbara Holms. A active volunteer, she also works with Juvenile Diabetes Foundation. Ms. Sundland and husband, Mark, have two children, Scott and Elisabeth.

■ Ann Tayrien, Preceptor Eta Upsilon chapter, is president of her chapter this year. A member of Beta Sigma Phi for 29 years, she has served on all committees and in all offices. She and her husband, Jack, are employed with MISD.

DEAR ABBY

Abby offers loving rules as good guide for life

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: Can you believe it's Valentine's Day again — already? And what better day to revive my Ten Commandments of Love!

Van Buren

Yes, Dear Readers, I actually had the chutzpah to write my own Ten Commandments — but that was more than 20 years ago, when I was younger and knew everything.

Originally, I had written two sets of commandments — one for men and one for women. Then, an early feminist from Milwaukee wrote to demand equality for women, insisting there should be only ONE set of commandments — separate, but equal.

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS OF LOVE

■ Thou shalt put thy mate before thy mother, thy father, thy son and thy daughter, for thy mate is thy lifelong companion.

■ Abuse not thy body with excessive food, tobacco, drink, or any foreign substance that goeth into thy arm or up thy nose.

■ Do not forget that cleanliness is a virtue.

■ Permit neither thy business nor thy hobby to make thee a stranger to thy children, for the most precious gift a parent can give his or her family is TIME.

■ Make not a beggar of thy mate. Willingly share with him or her thy worldly goods.

■ Forget not to say, "I love you." For even though thy love may be constant, thy mate doth yearn to hear those cherished words.

■ Remember that the approval of thy mate is worth far more than the adoring glances of a hundred strangers, so cleave unto thy mate, and forsake all others.

■ Keep thy home in good repair, for out of it cometh the joys of old age (not to mention its resale value).

■ Forgive with grace, for who among us does not need to be forgiven?

■ Honor the Lord thy God all the days of thy life, and thy children will grow and bless you.

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine told me that you had recommended calling people out of the blue just to say, "I love you." Did you really say that? — HOWARD SINGER, LOS ANGELES

DEAR HOWARD: Yes, I did — in 1986. And I still think it's a good idea. So, for those who missed it — here it is again:

DEAR ABBY: It may please you to know that one of your columns inspired something quite wonderful last Valentine's Day.

On the morning of Feb. 14, my telephone rang. It was a classmate named Bob. (Imagine still going to school at 78!) He said, "Betty, I just read a Dear Abby column, and she said, 'Be a sweetheart and call someone you love and say, "I love you." Make that two or three calls ... who says you can't love more than one person, in different ways of course,' so I'm calling you to say I love you, and I'm glad you are my friend."

Abby, that really touched me. I thanked him and told him how much I loved him and his lovely wife.

After hanging up, I called another classmate and told her how much I valued her many years of friendship. She thanked me, and said it made her feel so good, she was going to call a friend or two and do what I had done to lift their spirits.

The following morning at school, the teacher asked how many had received a Valentine's Day call. Thirty hands went up! And it all began with an idea Bob got from you. — BETTY BARNETT, PERENNIAL STUDENT

DEAR BETTY: Thank you. However, an idea is only an idea until it's utilized. Your classmate started the ball rolling.

DEAR READERS: Since it's Valentine's Day, I'd like to share a thought with you. Those who love deeply never grow old; they may die of old age, but no matter how many birthdays they have celebrated, they die young. Love, ABBY.

Here's a booklet that contains everything you need to know about wedding planning. To order "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Jerry Crowley of Bally, Pa., shows off a pile of his Tele-Bears. A person can call and have a recorded message put on a microchip, so when the bear is hugged, the message is played. The 12-inch bear can cost less than a dozen roses, and be around longer.

Candy is dandy, but bears are better

By Alyssa Gabbay

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Forget the flowers. Chuck the chocolates. Lovers struck by Cupid are finding fresher ways to express their affections on Valentine's Day, whether it is hiring a maid to scrub a sweetheart's floor or sending a teddy bear that will whisper sweet nothings.

"Flowers wilt and bears won't," said Jerry Crowley of Telebear. The manufacturer, based in Bally, Pa., has sold thousands of bears equipped with a microchip that records a message in the buyer's voice and plays when the bear is squeezed.

Lynne Grant of Plano, Texas, got a bear that says "I love you and I think you're pretty" in her boyfriend's voice when she hugs it.

Boyfriend Dennis Essary, 39, says he picked the bear because it was different and affordable. "I love chocolate and I eat it all the time, but it's too ordinary and traditional for a Valentine's Day gift," he said.

At $39.95 plus $3 shipping, the 12-inch bear could cost less than a dozen roses, Crowley said.

Other Romeos and Juliets are splashing their sentiments across billboards and television screens. Jean Guzik, 22, paid $210 to spell out her love for her boyfriend, Chris Mullen, on a 12x25-foot sign in Pittsburgh for a week.

"Chris, I got you babe, Love, Jeanniey," the message reads.

"I wasn't going to put our names on it, but I figured that if I was going to do something this big, I might as well let everyone know who I am and who he is, too," said Guzik, a customer service representative.

A spokeswoman for TCI Cable in Pittsburgh said the company receives about 50 requests a year for Valentine ads.

Michael Willson of Manhattan is paying $48 to have his girlfriend's apartment cleaned while he treats her to breakfast Sunday. "She's going to think I'm sensitive because I thought of this," said Willson, a car restorer.

Bruce Keifer of Columbia, Md., charges $20 to $35 to write a sonnet or love letter for people who don't want to say it with Hallmark. Keifer, a public relations writer, is producing two romantic missives this year, one for a man who's telling his girlfriend why he loves her and another for a man who is trying to persuade a woman to choose him over another man.

Of course, you don't have to empty your wallet to woo your valentine. Sometimes an inexpensive gift is just as effective, says Kathryn Falk, owner of Romantic Times Magazine in Brooklyn, N.Y. She suggests sprinkling rose petals over your sweetheart's bed or delivering a bubble bath, complete with hair-washing. Wind up the evening by reading children's books in front of a fire.

"If you plan cute things, I think that's more fun than spending $500 to go to the theater and a restaurant," Ms. Falk said.

Structures assist gardeners

By Deborah A. Benge

For the dedicated home gardener, a cold frame or hot bed may be the way to go with getting an early start on the season.

Benge

Cold frames and their heated versions, hot beds, are useful and often simple inexpensive structures that assist gardeners in getting transplants ready for the gardening season. They can also be useful for extending the growing season by growing cool-season vegetables to maturity early in the spring and extending the fall planting season.

Cold frames protect plants from cold and frosty weather as well as from wind. Growers have the added advantage in that they can concentrate on soil building and watering in a small space while having a greenhouse atmosphere to grow plants.

The cold frame is generally a wooden frame, bottomless box, covered with glass or polyethylene plastic. The normal width of a cold frame is three feet and length is determined by the amount of vegetables you want to start or grow in them. A six-foot length makes a good-sized frame for a home gardener.

The back wall of the frame is commonly 24 inches high and the front 12 inches high. This creates a slope that captures sunlight and allows water to run off. The top can be attached with hinges and is made of window sash or a simple polyethylene covered frame.

Cold frames trap heat by admitting light during the day and retaining heat radiated from the soil at night. The structure should be fairly airtight to reduce heat loss. For additional protection, soil can be banked up on the outer sides of the box. Mates, pieces of carpet or canvas can be used to cover the structure at night or when temperatures are predicted to go real low.

A sunny well-drained location with good wind protection is ideal. The south side of a house or wall is often used. It should be near a water source and electricity. Wooden parts of the frame can be painted with a primer and one or two coats of white paint to reflect light-treated wood will prolong its life.

A cold frame can be transformed into a hot bed by adding heat. Years ago gardeners used fermenting fresh horse manure to supply heat. This is still a good practice but you can also use electrical cables places under the soil. The cable is laid six inches below the intended planting surfaces. A thermostat is used to control soil temperatures.

Here in the warm Permian Basin many days will have daytime temperatures too warm for a cold frame or hot bed, so you'll need to vent the top. Opening the top partially to cool the interior and to provide proper ventilation will keep your transplants just right. Overwatering with high temperatures and poor ventilation can cause many seedling diseases.

If growing transplants, a process called hardening off the plants is recommended. This consists of gradually exposing them to the outside conditions.

To start transplants for your garden, plant seed about six weeks before recommended outdoor transplanting date. Our last average freeze date is April 4. Vegetables that are best grown from transplants include a grouping that are cool-season and require cooler temperatures for growth. These are cabbage, cauliflower and broccoli. Warm-season vegetables that are grown as transplants to be set out after our April 4 date include tomatoes, chile and other peppers, and eggplant. Sometimes melons and other cucurbits are started from transplants, but these are difficult to transplant and direct seeding is better.

If you would like to learn more about growing the best vegetable garden you've ever had, mark your calendar for Feb. 18 or 25, 7 p.m. for the Spring Vegetable School. This school is being offered on two different dates and locations for your convenience.

Gardening in the Permian Basin can be a challenge and we'll share the secrets of successful gardening with you. The right varieties, planting dates, windbreaks, the ultimate soil, mulches, dealing with salty water and much more will be included in these one-night schools.

Pre-register for the Spring Vegetable School to be held in Odessa by sending a check or money order for $3 to: Spring Vegetable School, 1010 E. 8th Street, Odessa, Texas 79761.

This school will be held at the Electrical Technology Building, ET 130 on the Odessa College Campus (northwest of the Globe Theatre). Or make plans to attend the Spring Vegetable School on the following Thursday night, Feb. 25, 7 p.m. in the Martin County Community Center, 301 N. St. Theresa, Stanton. You'll want to pre-register for this school by sending $3 check or money order to: Spring Vegetable School, P.O. Box 1148, Stanton, Texas 79782.

Checks and money orders can be made payable to P.B. Master Gardeners. Don't delay getting your pre-registration in to reserve your seat and guarantee your packet. The first 50 people to pre-register for either of these schools will receive a complementary bag of soil conditioner provided by Stanton Chemical and Seed Co. For more information call 335-3071, 687-1351 or 756-3316.

ANNIVERSARIES

Giffords mark 50th wedding anniversary

Dixie and A.L. Gifford

Dixie and A.L. Gifford of Midland celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with a surprise family gathering at the Embassy Suite in Austin, hosted by their children and families: Sandra, Tom and Dawn Crider of Austin; Curtis, Doris and Alan Gifford of Midland, Mich.; and Larry Gifford of Midland. Another family dinner was hosted at the Hyatt Regency.

The couple was married Jan. 23, 1943, in Houston, where both were employed with Cameron Iron Works. Soon after their wedding, Gifford served in the U.S. Navy with the Sea Bees until 1945.

The Giffords moved to Midland in 1959. Gifford became an agent with State Farm Insurance Co., and has been with that company for 32 years. Both are duplicate bridge players, and are members of First Baptist Church. In addition to their children, they have eight grandchildren.

Gifford is a former member of Evening Lions Club and served as president. His wife was a member of the auxiliary.

Couple observes golden anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Jay McPherson

Mr. and Mrs. Jay McPherson of Midland celebrated their golden wedding anniversary with a reception Saturday at Midland Center. Hosts were their children and grandchildren.

McPherson and the former Kathleen Myers were married Feb. 10, 1943, in Floydada. They have two children — Karen Johnston of Greenville and Pamela Webster of Midland — as well as five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

The family lived in Lockney before moving to Midland in 1969. They have been in farming; were motel owners in Lockney; and have been in the dry cleaning business and brickmason business in Midland. They are members of the Methodist Church. McPherson is a member of VFW and is a veteran of World War II, having served with the U.S. Air Force in the European Theater of Operations.

Couple celebrates 50 years together

Douglas F. and Maxine Lowe

Douglas F. and Maxine Lowe of Midland were guests of honor at a 50th anniversary reception Saturday at St. Paul United Methodist Church.

Lowe and the former Jennie Maxine Garrison were married Feb. 13, 1943, in Tulsa, Okla. They have one son, Dr. Al D. Lowe of Amarillo, and one grandchild.

During World War II, Lowe served with the Air Force and was based in Tulsa; Dodge City, Kan.; Liberal, Kan.; Lincoln, Neb.; and was discharged in Midland in 1945. Mrs. Lowe worked for E.I. DuPont, Choteau, Okla., Spartan Aircraft accounting department in Tulsa, and in personnel at all the bases where her husband was stationed.

On June 13, 1948, Lowe went to work for Humble Oil and Refining (now Exxon) in Hobbs, N.M. He was transferred to Midland in 1966 and retired in 1986 after 38 years.

The couple were members of First Methodist Church in Hobbs and now attend St. Paul United Methodist Church in Midland. Lowe was a member of Hobbs Evening Lions Club.

Dressed to the nines

Melissa Neill never dreamed that working in a "sweat shop" in 1981 would lead to years spent in the garment business.

"I started on the lowest totem pole possible in the business," said Mrs. Neill, who began sewing her own clothes when she was 13. "After college, you have dreams of doing something great.

"I worked in a sweat shop literally for a little immigrant Italian man who was like Mussolini. It was terrible, not a good time in my life ... But it also gave me the skills that I needed that I'm using today."

Since the second week in October, Mrs. Neill has been creating and sewing madrigal costumes for Lee High School Choral Department's second annual "Madrigal Dinner, Feaste of St. Valentine," which is scheduled for Feb. 19, 20 and 22 at First United Methodist Church.

"I've lived, eaten and breathed these costumes since then," said Mrs. Neill, a Pennsylvania native who has lived in Midland less than two years. "I lie awake dreaming of what am I going to do with this bodice. When you have 40 costumes, you can't have them all alike. We've really set our minds to making each special in its own way."

Mrs. Neill's degree is not in fashion, but in music and theater. She toured with Gingerbread Fare of Agape Force International, a defunct non-profit ministry.

She also worked in the garment business on the East Coast for close to seven years and was the sample coordinator for Jve Clothiers, located in Greensburg, Pa. During her years in the garment industry, she has had her own business and taught sewing.

"I did costumes for a madrigal group back East, so I've done Renaissance costumes before," said Mrs. Neill, whose company is called M Fashions. "I've done lots of costume work over the years and been involved in various theatrical productions, too."

She is not working alone on the madrigal costumes for the Lee Choral Department. Mrs. Neill hired seamstresses Donna Jones and Ellen Bandsma to work on the project with her.

"They have worked diligently and beautifully," she said.

In addition, the project has required the help and support of the Midland Lee Booster Club. Last August, when the choral department received $10,000 for costumes, Jeanie Johnson received a telephone call.

"I'm just a mother that couldn't say no," said Mrs. Johnson, who is costume coordinator.

"Before we decided upon Melissa, there were lots of other avenues that we researched," Mrs. Johnson said. "There was this company in the northeast that makes madrigal costumes, but when they sent us samples of the fabric, we were not really pleased. They were very expensive, and they were not the type of fabrics we wanted to use."

Mrs. Johnson was busy researching how to get the quality of costumes they wanted for the amount of money they had when Della Alexander, whose son was a chorale member, suggested her next door neighbor.

"Things don't happen like this for me," Mrs. Johnson said. "It just doesn't fall out of a tree."

This time, the answer was almost that simple.

"Jeanie got in touch with me," Mrs. Neill said. "I seemed to have all

ENTERTAINMENT IN BRIEF

■ Theater to have opera

Midland Opera Theater will present its annual Opera in the Park Feb. 28 at Midland Center, Main Street at Wall Avenue.

The event is the first in MOT's 1993 season.

The evening begins with cocktails at 5:30 p.m. followed by a dinner catered by the Prickly Pear at 6 p.m. and the program at 7 p.m.

The program is centered around the theme "The Best of Opera in the Parks — Revisited," and will feature favorite operatic solos and ensembles that have been presented in previous Opera in the Park productions. The singing will be by local musicians. Robert Hunt, conductor of the Midland-Odessa Symphony Chorale, will serve as the evening's narrator.

In addition, the two 1992 Midland Opera theater Scholarship winners, Joe Dan Harper and Jeff Monette, will appear on the program.

Accompanying the singers will be Brad Kisner, Bostic, Debby Vester, Stephen E. Spain and Lester Ackerman.

Tickets are on sale and reservations may be made with MOT Box Office, 684-4101, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

■ Reception scheduled

ODESSA — The Odessa Art Association will host an opening reception for its 35th annual Permian Basin Juried Art Exhibition at the Art Institute for the Permian Basin from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Feb. 21.

Winners will be announced at the reception in the following categories: Best of Show, Grumbacher Art Award and first, second and third places and honorable mention in each category.

Works submitted by area artists will be juried and judged by LeWanda Murphee of Lubbock. Ms. Murphee is a painter, sculptor, photographer, lecturer, newspaper columnist and author/illustrator. She has studied art at Lindenwood College, Texas Tech University, Art Student's League of New York, Henry Hensche Cape Cod School of Painting, Robert E. Wood Summer School of Painting and National Portrait Seminars of New York.

For more information call 550-3811.

■ Singer to perform

ODESSA — A performance by Kijana Wiseman will highlight Odessa College's celebration of Black History Month.

Ms. Wiseman is an accomplished coloratura soprano who entertains in a singing lecture style combining poetry, on stage costume changes, commentary and song.

In the one-woman musical, called "The Griot," Ms. Wiseman will chronicle the development of American's strong vocal tradition from its African roots through today. Between songs and during her narrative she changes costumes on stage to reflect the eras she depicts.

Other Black History Month activities at OC include five movies starring black performers and a display of photographs and biographies of black entertainers, educators, political, sports and historical figures.

The Black History Display will be on exhibit Monday through Wednesday in the Student Activities Office in the Old Gym, Room 107. refreshments will be served on those days from 1 to 3 p.m. Those planning on bringing large groups to the display need to call Sherrie Land, 1-335-6431, Extension 6403.

■ Gallery to host show

Gallery 1114 is hosting its seventh annual Open Show Feb. 27 through April 1.

The show is open to anyone in West Texas and anything done creatively and with pride. Entries in the show range from foot to furniture and, of course, all the expected art forms.

Jurors for this year's show are Elayne Karickhoff, consulting curator for the Art Institute for the Permian Basin; Kent Moss, photography instructor at Midland College, and Mary Lambeth Fish of Gallery 1114.

Work to be included in the exhibit is to be brought to Gallery 1114, 1114 N. Big Spring St., Feb. 25 and 26 from noon to 5 p.m. and Feb. 27 from 10 a.m. to noon.

Entry fee is $5 per entry. A Best of Show prize of $49.95 will be awarded at the opening.

For more information call 685-9944 or 682-4969.

Current gallery hours are 1 to 5 p.m. Thursday through Sunday.

■ Pops concert planned

The Midland-Odessa Symphony & Chorale presents "Gershwin and Friends" at 8 p.m. Feb. 20 at the Holiday Inn Country Villa.

The Pops Concert will be conducted by Robert Hunt, conductor of the Midland-Odessa Symphony Chorale. This special program features Hunt on the piano and includes a medley of Gershwin favorites performed by Dana Ritta and Dale Jenkins.

The concert is sponsored, in part, by Texaco Foundation, Inc., and Primary Medical Clinic.

■ Museum hosts exhibit

An exhibition of works by members of the Midland College Art Department is on display through Feb. 28 at the Museum of the Southwest, 1705 W. Missouri Ave.

The MC Art Department began teaching at the Museum in 1970 before the college had a campus and after the museum moved into the Fred Turner residence where space was available for studio use. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Orchestra, dancers

The Pasadena Roof Orchestra and Dancers of London perform at 2:30 p.m. today at Midland High School Auditorium. The program, sponsored by Midland Community Concerts, features a celebration of the songs and dance music of the 1920s and 1930s. Admission is by membership only. For more information call 683-2402.

■ Guest artist to speak

Sculptor Doug Hyde of Santa Fe is to be guest speaker at the Museum of the Southwest, 1705 W. Missouri Ave., today at 2:30 p.m. in the multi-purpose gallery.

The Native American artist will illustrate his talk on "Sculpting in Stone" with a slide presentation. Hyde is speaking in conjunction with an exhibition of his works, Stanley, who is primarily self-taught, joined the Midland Camera Club in 1970. Then, in 1987, he took several photography classes at Midland College under Kent Moss.

■ Society presents band

The West Texas Jazz Society will present the North Texas University One O'Clock Lab Band at 8 p.m. Friday at the Yucca Theatre, 208 N. Colorado Ave.

The University of North Texas opened the door for jazz studies at the college level when it founded the first such program in the world in 1947. The One O'Clock Lab Band, so named for the time it meets, is the centerpiece of the pioneering jazz studies program at UNT.

WTJS members will be admitted free. Admission for high schools age band members, community college band members and Midland-Odessa Symphony musicians is $2.

Admission to the general public is $10. For more information call 563-1701.

■ Def Leppard to perform

"An Evening with Def Leppard" comes to Odessa's Ector County Coliseum today.

The concert, which will be staged in the round, has no opening acts. Def Leppard will perform around two and a half hours beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets, priced at $19.50, may be purchased at Ector County Coliseum.

■ Quartet to perform

The Thouvenel String Quartet will present its third concert of the season at 8 p.m. Feb. 27 at the Museum of the Southwest, 1705 W. Missouri Ave., and at 3 p.m. Feb. 28 at the Art Institute for the Permian Basin, Odessa.

Musical selections include Quartet in C Major by Shostakovich; Quartet in B-flat Major by Mozart; and Quartet in A minor by Mendelssohn.

The concert is sponsored, in part, by Mr. and Mrs. D. Grimes, Physicians and Surgeons Hospital, One Hour Photo, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Saxe and Dr. Tom Turner.

Tickets are $10 and may be purchased at the door or by calling the symphony office, 563-0921.

■ Artist to show work

Shamp

In 1992, Ms. Shamp's work was juried into seven national shows. She has shown her work in several invitation exhibits, the most recent being the 13th annual Fairfield Fasion Show, which toured nationally in 1991 and 1992. Her work has been shown, among others, in the Turman Gallery, the William Mather Museum and the Indianopolis Museum of Art.

She earned a bachelor of arts degree in 1966 with her major field of study in clothing, textiles and art. She and her husband, Larry, moved to Midland in 1990.

For more information call 687-4924 or 687-0302.

■ Tractor pull planned

ODESSA — Main Attractions Promotions brings an "Outlaw National Championship Truck and Tractor Pulling Series" to Ector County Coliseum Feb. 19-21.

Show hours are 7:30 p.m. that Friday and Saturday and 2 p.m. that Sunday.

HOROSCOPE

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1993

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Creative endeavors will hold the brightest promise. You find new, more profitable outlets for your varied skills and talents. Contact with people in other countries will be especially rewarding in April. Just be careful to limit investment in overseas firms! By fall, influential people should be spending considerable time and money on you. A move to another residence is possible before the winter holidays. Spend Christmas with that special someone.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actresses Florence Henderson and Molly Ringwald, comedian Jack Benny, dancer Gregory Hines.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): An intriguing opportunity comes along that really appeals to you. Take time to examine this offer more closely. Your engaging personality will help you get what you want.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A small family celebration will be a joyous experience. Someone who has opposed you in the past now has a change of heart. Tonight's events could open new doors on the social scene.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Get your personal affairs in better order. Visiting relatives and old friends brings much joy. Put your best foot forward when greeting newcomers. You will enjoy playing host for an attractive acquaintance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your ideas are sound. Explain them in the right way and family members will respond in a favorable fashion. Extend yourself more around an older relative. Give parents extra loving.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your mate will be in an easygoing mood today. Get together with family and friends. Stay away from people who sap your energy or like to gossip. Remember the good times.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Domestic harmony is vital to your sense of well-being. Do whatever you can to promote family unity. A romantic interlude may have to be postponed. Try to accept the delay gracefully.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Relaxing in a favorite spot could lead to thoughts of a vacation. Good ideas should be shared with friends. You think things through at high speed. Ask important probing questions of relatives.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A sympathetic attitude will help a worried friend relax. Avoid sounding critical. Let events unfold at their normal pace. A conservative approach will prevent embarrassment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A lucky, productive day lies ahead. Others respond to your positive vibrations. Romance has you walking on air. A friend offers to introduce you to someone special.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Entertaining at home leads to those heart-to-heart conversations you enjoy so much. Let those closest to you know about your secret worries — good suggestions will surface.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A true meeting of minds with that special person touches your heart. Travel enhances a current romance or introduces you to someone new. Family togetherness makes for wonderful memories.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Although your responsibilities mount, your efforts will be amply rewarded. A search through the newspaper or mail uncovers a fabulous bargain. Focus on spiritual studies tonight.

The IRS would have loved Cardinal Morton, Henry VII's tax collector. If a merchant lived well, it showed he was affluent and could afford to pay a high tax. If he lived frugally, he had to be saving large sums, and so he, too, could afford to be taxed heavily. Bridge players remember the Cardinal because of the Morton's Fork Coup.

South's suits were not good enough to introduce freely at the three-level. When North reopened the bidding, South first cue-bid as a general probe, then he bid the diamond suit and an excellent slam was reached.

There would have been no problem had declarer been able to establish dummy's spades. Declarer received the bad news after winning the trump lead in dummy, cashing the ace of spades and ruffing a spade. Fortunately, the bidding had blueprinted an alternate path.

Since the overcall marked East with the ace of clubs, declarer crossed to dummy with the king of hearts and led the ten of clubs. East was impaled on Morton's fork. Rising with the ace would present declarer with two club tricks and permit declarer to get home by ruffing a heart and a club in dummy, so East followed low. Declarer's queen won, the table's king of clubs disappeared on the ace of hearts, and declarer crossruffed merrily, using the board's three trumps to ruff two clubs and a heart. At the end, declarer had to concede a club, but that was the only trick for the defense.

MADRIGAL: Seamstresses sew for show

the background that they needed to tackle such a large project. They needed someone that would know the history of that period. They wanted them historically accurate both in style and in fabric content. They wanted them made like a true costume so that they could be altered year after year and that they would wear well.

"So all the costumes are fully lined with muslin. They're laced up the back so that they can be easily adjusted to fit different sizes. We've tried to use authentic looking fabrics, so we are using velveteen and rich fabric brocades. We were able to get really gorgeous fabrics and make these costumes one of a kind."

Booster club parents, many of whom will find themselves working behind the scenes during the madrigal feast, have had their hands busy sewing as well.

"We have made 19 shirts for the guys to wear underneath their costumes," Mrs. Johnson said. "All the Tudor costumes have to have full petticoats and we have made those. Each costume has to have a hat and we have made those."

Even Mrs. Neill's husband, Don Neill Jr., the son of longtime Midlanders Beulah and Donald Kyle Neill Sr., has been in on the act. An engineer by profession, Neill turned their home's living room into a sewing room.

Because of Mrs. Neill's New York contacts, they saved money and were able to get good quality materials.

"I had the contacts in New York because of my years of experience in the garment industry, so we were able to buy these sorts of fabrics at minimal costs. We could not have gotten these fabrics in Dallas. It would have cost three times as much."

Metal grommets provided another hurdle to overcome. A grommet, a reinforced eyelet in a piece of clothing through which a fastener can be passed, reinforce the costume and keep it from tearing with use. Each costume ranges two sizes up to two sizes down in size, so that different students can wear it through the years.

"One garment may have 48 grommets," Mrs. Johnson said. She said Jerry McPeak and John Gould, fathers of chorale members, have spent hours working on grommets.

Mrs. Johnson credits Paula Edwards, choral director at Lee High School, as providing the inspiration for the project in the first place.

"If it were not for Paula Edwards, we would not even be doing this," said Mrs. Johnson. "She did this in San Antonio and it grew there. People rushed to get tickets.

"I can't say enough wonderful things about Paula Edwards. She's a positive influence on these children. She's a very demanding teacher, but she pulls the very best out, and she gives what she takes."

The experience has been rewarding, said Mrs. Johnson.

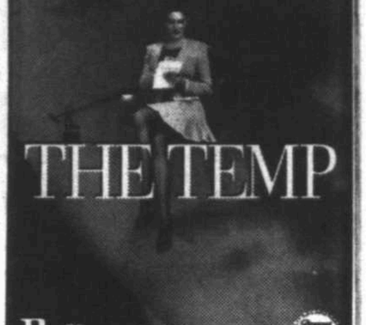

"I'm sort of sorry to see it come to an end. The kids have been great to work with," said Mrs. Neill, who has a 16-month-old son, Colton.

"These kids are fortunate. When I was in high school, I never had the chance to wear this kind of costume and perform."

The costumes have turned out as Mrs. Neill hoped they would.

"I personally feel that this is the best I've ever done," she said. "I don't think I'll ever have the money or the resources to be able to do this quality of work again."

Rolling Stones' 'dinosaur rock' still packs concerts

By Mary Campbell
Associated News Writer

NEW YORK — He's older than the president of the United States and some now call his music "dinosaur rock."

As he approaches his 50th birthday, he doesn't care about keeping up with the latest trends. He talks about becoming more patient, more tactful.

Could this be Mick Jagger, the prancing, pouting, posturing, electrifying lead singer of the Rolling Stones, a band publicized in the 1960s as Britain's bad-boy contrast to the good-guy Beatles?

Yes, here he sits, cleareyed and trimly fit. Thirty years after the Rolling Stones started and 23 years after the Beatles broke up, he's the most famous rock 'n' roller in the world.

Jagger is proud that the Stones "helped invent a genre within rock music." About the bad-boy image:

"Each generation has its need to outrage other people and I think it's a very healthy thing," Jagger says. "I think it would be a mistake for the Rolling Stones to try to keep up with the latest. Each decade brings outrageous behavior. It always tends to be a bit recycled, I'm afraid. Violence and drug-taking and calling people names seems to be in the mix."

Comparing the Stones and the Beatles in the old days, he says:

"We were different from the Beatles. Our songs were more hard-edged. Our style was more rough and ready. The Beatles did a lot of slick vocal harmonies, which we didn't do. If we'd been a sweet-sounding harmony group, we'd have been sunk.

Jagger has a new solo album, his third, "Wandering Spirit," for which he wrote 10 of the 14 songs. Atlantic Records released it Feb. 9. In March, the Stones are scheduled to start their 27th album.

Though the Rolling Stones are often called "dinosaur rock" in print, audiences young and old still pack their concerts.

"They don't seem to be writing us off," Jagger says. "We still seem to have a niche in there; we seem to have a place."

The Stones won fame with songs like "(I Can't Get No) Satisfaction," "Jumpin' Jack Flash," "Street Fighting Man," "Honky Tonk Women" and other assertive hits co-written by Jagger and guitarist Keith Richards.

Looking at popular culture, Jagger says rock 'n' roll "is unquestionably a very important part. I'm not saying as an art form it's necessarily the most important.

"If you're a music critic, you'd say rock is overrated because it's not really very complex. It doesn't push the boundaries. Plus the technical expertise is not always very high.

"In a wider view, it is important to people as are movies, for instance. Popular music and movies have certainly overtaken popular novels as a source of reference. People like to have things in common. That's why, when you talk to people, if you can't carry on a conversation about 'Terminator 2' you're not within popular culture."

Rock 'n' roll, when it started, had connotations beyond the musical. It meant defying parents and the establishment, free-form dancing, free love, drugs. Now, Jagger says, "Rock 'n' roll is music with a beat. It embraces all kinds of popular music with a groove. That's all it means, really."

And, as rock has changed, Jagger must have changed, too.

"It would be a mistake to say I've never changed," he says. "You change so much and you feel inside a lot of things you were when you were a child. You've got the same genes. You're still working with the same raw material, honing the good points, getting them better. The bad points, you're trying to put down. You learn things like patience a bit more, and tact."

Again with that big smile, he adds, "You don't always want to behave with patience and tact. You want to bring out the old armaments sometimes and use them.

"Your actions and reactions become wider."

On July 26, Jagger will be 50. It hasn't made him nostalgic. "My father tells me that the great danger is to dwell on the past as you get older," he says.

Several people have mentioned that President Clinton is three years younger than he is, Jagger says. "But I'm afraid he is going to be older than me in four years. It (the presidency) must be like going through 10 years in four years."

The Rolling Stones aren't slowing down. In the '70s, Jagger says, "We used to take long sabbaticals. Now we're into a much harder-working period than the old days. I never have more than three months when I don't do anything. Usually I'm writing songs then, as well."

At museum for blind, rule isn't 'don't touch'

By Michael M. Phillips
Associated Press Writer

MADRID, Spain — Miguel Moreno is an art lover, yet he's never been to the Prado, the Thyssen Museum or the Reina Sofia art center.

What would be the point? In those museums that make up Madrid's Golden Triangle, the rule is "Don't Touch," and for Moreno, who's blind, you can't enjoy art you can't feel.

"The problem is that the blind can't capture what those museums have to offer," said Moreno.

But no longer.

Now he and others can enjoy what is being billed as the world's largest museum for the blind — a hands-on display of art, architecture, manuscripts and historical instruments.

"A blind person could never grasp this if it weren't done this way," said Moreno, assistant director of the National Organization of the Blind's cultural center that houses the two-floor, 16,200-square foot Museum for the Study of Blindness.

Two large rooms are filled with scale models of famous monuments and cities. Here the blind and sighted alike can feel the onion domes of the Kremlin, reliefs of the Altamira cave drawings, the flame atop the Statue of Liberty and the tilt of Pisa's tower.

For background, visitors can push buttons to hear descriptions of the sites or read Braille or printed pamphlets.

In other rooms, the museum features works by blind artists, including sculptures, tapestries and textured paintings. Artists whose work is displayed in the temporary gallery often contribute to the museum's permanent collection.

Among the works are sensuously sculpted forms in tropical wood by Spanish-born Jose Antonio Grana, now a Netherlands resident, and a stunning metal image of a sunrise by 19-year-old Andres Clarian, a blind and deaf artist from Barcelona.

The museum has a restoration specialist who repairs damage to the works, many of which are fragile.

"We have a person who comes right away and puts them back together," said Jose Luis Santana, who heads the cultural center's division of blindness studies. "We've thought of that."

Also enclosed is a collection of lottery tickets issued by the National Organization of the Blind, which was founded for blind veterans in territory held by Nationalist forces during Spain's 1936-39 civil war.

After the victory of then-Gen. Francisco Franco over the Republican government, the organization spread from Nationalist-held areas to the rest of the country. The blind organization's own state-licensed daily lottery has been the font of the group's resources and made the museum possible.

"ONCE (the group's acronym in Spanish) has a lot of money, and when they do things they do them in a big way," said Terry Allen, a spokesman for the American Foundation for the Blind.

The museum features an ample display of writing and reading instruments used by the blind, including a Braille astrological device for blind fortunetellers and a 1940s-era Talking Book Machine.

The first Braille edition of Miguel de Cervantes' Spanish classic, "Don Quixote," highlights a collection of manuscripts in several kinds of textured writing.

Relief maps of the museum are available at the reception desk. Everywhere, electronic eyes set off taped recordings that advise visitors of their location, and tiled pathways guide the blind through the carpeted display areas.

"There's no other museum like this — exclusively for the blind," said Santana, who can see only slightly.

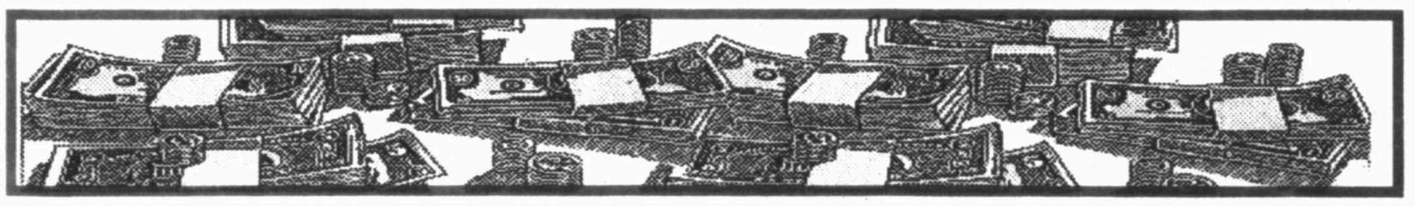

But since the museum opened Dec. 14, only about 20 percent of the 40 or so daily visitors have been blind. Museum officials hope those figures will increase as word spreads among Madrid's blind people and more groups sign up for tours.
