Manager Says C. of C. Received Many Inquiries

According to Mrs. Mary Juergens, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, inquiries from prospective summer visitors to Rockport are coming in at a great pace. "So far this year," she said, "there have been many more than we have had any year in the past."

Mrs. Juergens attributed the increase in inquiries to the work the Chamber of Commerce is doing in publicizing the area.

"This takes a number of forms," Mrs. Juergens said. "We get publicity through the newspapers; we have painted and installed signs at the Sinton and Victoria cutoffs; we have advertised in the South Texas Chamber of Commerce brochure; we have had booths at sport shows; and we have painted smaller signs like the one on the bulletin board in front of this office that have been distributed to home-bound winter visitors, who have scattered them all over the county."

As she talked, Mrs. Juergens was busy processing these inquiries. They are typed into lists and the lists sent to each of the 27 tourist courts that are members of the Chamber of Commerce. "Most of them come from Texas, Oklahoma, and New Mexico in this batch," she said, "but we're getting a lot from other places, too. I look for a big summer in the tourist business."

Drive Carefully And Save Money

City Traffic Violations Can Cost You In Fines or Raised Insurance Rates

With Rockport's police department in full operation, charged with enforcement of "all the laws" including those on traffic, a lot of local people and tourists are going to have to change their way of driving or else it's going to cost them, directly, in the matter of fines, or indirectly in the matter of insurance, for moving traffic violations in city court can up your insurance rate.

No more rolling stops at signs; no more drag racing on the streets at night or stopping in the middle of the street to hold long conversations while other people try to get by. Try it and if the cop catches you, it will probably mean a trip to the judge.

No more blithe ignoring of the fact that you're in the middle of the block when you want to turn; the pleasing custom of driving two cars abreast down the street while carrying on a shouted conversation is frowned upon in the best law enforcement circles.

Not that Police Chief E. H. Stautzenberger had been handing out tickets indiscriminately, for he hasn't. At a matter of fact, he has been exceedingly decent about the whole thing, and for the few tickets he has handed out could have justifiably have issued twenty for one and then wouldn't have nailed all the violators.

But don't make any mistake, if you're breaking the law, no matter whether you know about it or not, you're laying yourself open to an interview with Corporation Judge G. D. Johnson.

"The people asked for a police department," said Mayor Herman Johnson, "and now they've got it, and it's going to enforce all the laws, not just a few of them."

Nobody appears to know quite what all the laws are, but this will probably iron itself out over a period of time. Until such time as a consolidated traffic code for Rockport is prepared, the law under which traffic will operate here will be approximately the same as that of the city of Austin, which is based on the laws promulgated for highway and traffic safety.

And there are some city ordin-

DROWNING SUIT TRIAL OKAYED

An Aransas County District Court erred in throwing out a suit filed by parents of three children who drowned near Rockport in 1958, the Fourth Court of Civil Appeals in San Antonio, ruled yesterday. The suit will go back to the district for trial.

The appeals court approved the portion of the lower court decision refusing to allow the parents to sue the Aransas County Navigation District No. 1, but said District Judge Joe Wade of Beeville, should not have dismissed the action against three former district commissioners.

Commissioners at the time of the drownings were Thomas D. Picton, Norvell Jackson and Raymond Owens.

Mr. and Mrs. Baldemar Torres, Mr. and Mrs. Candelario Torres and Mr. and Mrs. Encarnacion Tamez filed suit for $15,000 in drowning of Susana Torres, Margarita Torres and Oralia Tamez near Rockport May 25, 1958.

The parents claimed negligence on the part of the district and commissioners. Judge Wade held the navigation district is not subject to such a suit because it is a state agency. The appellate court approved that portion of the decision.

Each couple also has filed a similar suit against the Loyd W. Richardson Construction Co. of Aransas Pass. The suit is in 156th District Court pending decision of the navigation suit appeal.

The children were among seven persons whose deaths marred an afternoon of picnicking and swimming on the Rockport bayfront. They allegedly stepped off in a hole left by dredging equipment.

Also drowned were the Rev. Leonard Berry of Syracuse, N.Y., and chaplain at Foster Air Force Base at Victoria; Mrs. Wayne Bailey and daughter, Janice, of Victoria, and David Curby, 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brown of Aransas Pass.

WE INVITE —

Scout Barbecue Very Successful

According to Dr. H. F. Elliot, the barbecue given Sunday by scouts of Troop 49 was a big success, with over $500 cleared to help repair and replenish the troop's camping equipment which was in bad shape and inadequate to care for needs of the 40 or more boys now in scouting.

"We are most grateful to the public for the way they helped," Dr. Elliot said, "and want to assure everyone that all this money will go to the local troop, with none being diverted to Corpus Christi or national headquarters."

With the proceeds of the barbecue, Dr. Elliot said, five Baker type tents, similar to the one used at the event Sunday, will be purchased.

"This will replace two old ones that are no longer serviceable," he said, "and give us three new ones, to care for our rapidly growing troop. It will also buy reflector ovens for the various patrols, a set of cooking utensils, and paint the scout bus."

Scout Master Ron Schultz and the scouts joined Dr. Elliot in thanking all those who helped make the event a success.

Drive Carefully—

ances, too, that have been passed in the days of yore that people will do well to familiarize themselves with, for "ignorance of the law is no excuse."

Otherwise, here's what it's going to cost you in fines, if you get a ticket for any of the following:

Contesting speed or racing is worth a cool $25, but of course in the city court there are no other costs than the fine. For speeding, there's a minimum charge of $5, with an additional $1 a mile for every mile above the speed limit.

Defective brakes will cost you $10, besides whatever the garage-man charges you to repair them. Defective lights are cheaper, for the fine for them is only $5, but driving without light is worth ten bucks of anybody's money. And the popular Rockport diversion of driving over fire hose is going to cost $15 a drive in the future.

Failure to dim headlights calls for $5, as does failure to give proper signals when you suddenly make up your mind that you're going to stop, back up, turn around or go straight up. Failure to yield right of way, if you're not involved in a collision, will cost you another $5; fictitious license plates will cost at least $25 in fines, besides all the trouble that you're going to have to explain why you've got 'em.

A fictitious operator's license bears the same price mark as Fictitious tags, or giving a fictitious name or address. Following too closely is all right, if you want to pay $10 for the privilege, and take a chance on getting your car wrecked when the man in front stops suddenly. Illegal backing costs $10; illegal passing and illegal turns are worth $5 each; imprudent speed is a court case, and you may wind up behind the eight ball on this.

Leaving the scene of a collision or lending your operator's license to a friend can cost you $25 in either case; no license plates calls for a $5 fine. And on no operator's license the judge can really sway back on his heels and swing a hard one. The first offense is a mere $10; second time around is $15; on the third, it'll cost you $25; the fourth offense is $50; the fifth offense costs an even $100; and for the sixth and all subsequent offenses, if you get that far, the tab is $200 an offense.

One license plate calls for a fine of $5, and no provision is made for cars from those states, if such there be, that only require a single plate. Reckless driving is a court case; running red lights and stop signs are amusements that will cost you $5 a run.

Violations of the city's taxicab ordinance are court cases; unnecessary noise, including loud mufflers, cost $5 per ticket, as do violations of the vehicle inspection laws and driving the wrong way on a one-way street.

These are all that are listed on the back of the ticket issued to traffic violators, but both City Secretary Jeane Tuer and Mayor Herman Johnson were specific in saying that any and all laws would be enforced, whether they're listed here or not.

These fines are the direct cost to those involved in traffic violations, but there are some indirect ones, also, that may cost considerably more in the long run. These include payments to mechanics that repair your car after the wreck, and to the insurance companies, who automatically raise your insurance rate if you're convicted of any of the following:

Driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor or narcotic drugs; failure to stop, render aid, or disclose identity when involved in an accident; negligent homicide, murder by

Former Live Oak Pro To Del Rio

Ruel R. Love, Sr., golf professional at the Sinton Municipal Golf Course, tendered his resignation and announced that he has accepted a position as professional at the San Felipe Country Club, Del Rio, Texas.

Love said that he would report to his new job on or about July 1. He told the board of directors of the Sinton Golf Association that he would remain on the job there for 30 days or until such time as a satisfactory replacement could be named.

W. T. West, president of the association, accepted the resignation and presented it to the board at a special meeting.

Love has been professional at the Sinton course since its opening in June, 1956. He supervised the construction of the course, reporting for work at the park in September 1955. He recently was re-tired by Union Producing Company, a subsidiary of United Gas Corporation, after many years with the company.

The board of directors of the association is presently accepting applications for the management job and should name a successor sometime in June.

Love came to Sinton from the Live Oak Country Club and was formerly professional at the Refuge County Country Club. He constructed both of the courses and has been active in golfing circles for many years, following his retirement from major league baseball. He is a native of Hillsboro, Texas.

Love succeeds Grady Simmons at Del Rio, formerly a pro at Live Oak Country Club, Simmons having succeeded Love in that position.

PLANKTON WORLD DESCRIBED BY MARINE BIOLOGIST

Austin. — The plankton world provides an interesting article for the May issue of the Texas Game and Fish magazine. In it, Henry Compton, marine biologist of the Rockport laboratory, describes these briny mites with words and illustrations for a very comprehensive story.

Compton is an artist as well as a biologist. In beautiful color, the front cover of the magazine depicts the full cycle of the delicate construction of the tiny animals that live between the surface and 40 fathoms down in the marine waters.

"Plankton means to wander," he writes. It describes perfectly the lives of these transient organisms, as they drift about with the ocean currents, too weak to fight against the moving water. Some are able to swim or pulsate through the water; however, most of them simply maintain a fairly constant depth and drift with the currents.

"Although animals such as the drifting jellyfish are technically known as plankton, by far the vast majority are very, very small, even microscopic in many instances. Each of the tiny creatures is adapted in some way to live and thrive in their changing habitat whose boundaries lie between the quite ocean's floor and windswept surface. This world extends in depth from 1 to 40 fathoms. Most of the plants prefer the upper layers of water where the sun's light can support them. They, in turn, become nourishment for the larger animal life drifting about them."

driving while intoxicated or aggravated assault with a motor vehicle;

Any violation of speed laws; running red lights, stop signs or flashing red lights; illegal passing, improper right, left and U turns; negligent or careless collision, reckless or careless driving; violation of driver's license restrictions; and failure to have a valid driver's license in existence.

Undoubtedly there are other reasons to separate you from your hard earned pelf, but these ought to be enough to give you nightmares.

WORKERS APPLY FOR SOCIAL SECURITY AT AGE 65

All workers, both those who work for others and those who are in business for themselves, may file an application for social security retirement insurance when they reach age 65, even though they plan to continue working. This is the advice of H. M. Cleveland, district manager of the Social Security Administration in Corpus Christi.

"After an application has been filed, payments can be started immediately if the worker should suddenly have to stop working or if his earnings should decline," Cleveland explained. "Due to a recent change in the law, many workers can earn more than the retirement test permitted in the past and still receive some benefits. Filing a claim at age 65 will assure that no benefits are lost."

An application may be filed as early as three months before the retirement age. Application can be filed or information can be obtained from the Social Security Administration, 530 South Water St., Corpus Christi, Texas.

Robert Martin Takes Part In German Exercises
Pfc. Robert H. Martin, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin H. Martin, Fulton, participated in Exercise Mayflower, a Seventh U. S. Army medical field training exercise in the Stuttgart-Munich area of Germany May 6-13.
Mayflower was designed to test the combat readiness of surgical and evacuation hospitals, medical clearing companies, wheeled and aerial ambulance units and Seventh Army medical support units. In order to add realism to the training, make-up men prepared "patients" to simulate burns, traumatic amputations and other battle field injuries. During the exercise 1,000 "patients" were evacuated more than 150 miles from the point where they received their "injuries."
Martin is assigned as a medical specialist at the 5th Surgical Hospital in Heidelberg. He entered the Army in November 1960, and arrived overseas last February.
Martin is a 1955 graduate of Aransas County High School, Rockport, and attended Schreiner Institute in Kerrville, Pearl River Junior College, Populaville, Miss., and Mississippi Southern College in Hattiesburg. He is a member of Phi Theta Kappa fraternity.

Capistrano Has Its Swallows, But Rockport Has Its Martins, Thanks to John Nolan at Copano

Capistrano has its swallows that return every summer, and from now on Rockport will have its purple martins, largely because of John Nolan.

Nolan, a Houston glass salesman, has a summer home on Copano Bay where, he decided, he wanted some purple martins to nest, just as they did at his home in Houston.

The fact that the nationally-known bird authority, Mrs. Jack Hagar, said that she had never seen these purple members of the swallow family do so in this area didn't deter him a bit.

"Martins," he reasoned, like bird houses."

Ergo, he would build bird houses so much to the martins' liking that they wouldn't be able to resist the rent-free apartments and would move in for keeps.

And that is just what happened, although it took two years to accomplish it.

Nolan built the houses, put them up on telephone poles, and then asked his next-door neighbor, H. A. Tenney, a former Southern Pacific passenger agent at Houston, to keep an eye on the boxes while the Nolans weren't there.

Tenney became so interested that he, too, erected a martin house.

This was early last year, and the houses were up before the martins starting migrating through here in March.

That first year, the birds came, fluttered around the houses, then left for points north and never came back. But this year, Nolan and Tenney hit the jackpot. Migrating martins came through in March, left, and then, about a week ago, at least two pair, and possibly three, returned. One moved into Tenney Avain Apartments, another set up housekeeping in Nolan's Home For Birds.

Mrs. Hagar, when called, was almost as excited about the whole thing as was Nolan.

"The only pair that nested anywhere in the area," she said, "was one that set up housekeeping in an old broken street light over in Corpus Christi, several years ago."

TWO SEA CAPTAINS JOHNSON AND SOME OF THEIR FRIENDS

By Hobart Huson

There had been a post office at Lamar from the days of the Texas Republic. After annexation, the United States maintained it, and during the war the Confederacy took it over. Mrs. Jane P. O'Connor was post master at Lamar during the war. James Power, Sr., was post master at Copano during the latter part of the war, and Mrs. Mary Ellis and Lyman H. Ward were post masters at St. Mary's during the same period. Philip Power, of Copano, then a lad of sixteen, carried the Confederate States mail between the three towns during the war. The Federal government did not immediately resume the post office at Lamar after the war closed and seemed to have overlooked it, until Captain Peter circulated a petition asking that the office be restored. The petition was granted, and Captain Peter was appointed postmaster. He held the office from 1868 until he died, in 1895. The post office was kept in his home. J. H. Kroeger carried the mail from Lamar to Rockport for several years.

Captain Peter Johnson is buried at Lamar. In 1901 his widow died, and she now rests beside him.

Before taking up my personal history I will conclude my account of Captain Theodore Johnson. As I have already stated he married Bertha Harris, daughter of my mother by a prior marriage. This couple lived for a number of years at Lamar, but eventually moved to Rockport. They had eleven children, all born at Lamar. They were:

1. August Johnson, who married and moved to Beeville.
2. Minnie Johnson, who married Charles Featherling, of Corpus Christi.

3. Hubert Johnson, who married Birdie Simpson, a niece of my wife.
4. May Johnson, who married Jack Heinroth, a coast guard at Port Aransas.

5. Augusta (Gussie) Johnson, who married Lloyd Hawes, captain of life saving station.

6. Charles Johnson who married Clara Peets, daughter of Edwin Peets, of St. Mary's. Edwin Peets was county commissioner of Precinct No. 2 of Refugio county for many years.

7. Amos Johnson, who married Lottie Oberman.

8. Edward Johnson, who was drowned at Hasting's Landing near the present Bayside.

9. Birdie Johnson, who married Thomas Walker.

10. Josephine Johnson, who married Alfred Hawes, cousin to Lloyd Hawes.

11. Robert Johnson, who married Lola Roberts.

Captain Charlie Johnson, and his mate, George Roberts, a big Englishman, sailed the "Frances" through the bays of west Texas, carrying the mails, passengers and freight, between Indianola, Lamar, Rockport, St. Mary's and Corpus Christi, from the close of the Civil War until about 1898, when the "Frances" was beached and her owner retired from the sea. Many of the young men of that section got their sea-legs on the "Frances", among them being brother Louis Johnson, who worked on the vessel for about two years. Besides the "Frances" I understood that Captain Charlie at times had interests in other vessels plying these parts. I was told that he had an interest in the "Alfred and Sammy," Captain Charlie Charles Hughes.

After Captain Charlie retired from sea-life, he and his family moved to Danbury. Here he died in 1921. His wife also died there. Both, however, are buried at Rockport. A poem about schooner "Frances" and her captain was published in the "Live Oak County Times" and reprinted in the "Refugio Review" (March 11, 1911.) The title of the poem is "A Night in Tilden."

Captain Charlie was a man of principles and great personal courage. He had a fine physique and was quite skilled with his fists. When he first moved to Rockport the water front was infested with a bunch of tough and rowdies. This element for some reason, "got it in" for Captain Charlie and one day attempted to gang him. Charlie took all of them on at one time, and fought with hands and feet and with tooth and toenail, and singlehanded gave the toughest good lickings. After that they let him alone and treated him with respect.

The Captain Peter Johnson family came to Lamar when I was about four years old. I was baptized in the old concrete Catholic Church, which still stands there, and grew up in the old town. Though I eventually went to other fields of endeavor and finally settled in Refugio County (the Lamar part having been taken off Refugio county in the 1870's), I never lost touch with Lamar or its people. The parental homestead overlooking the bay has remained in our family from the day of its purchase, and my family has regularly gone to Lamar for rest and recreation.

My god-father was Captain Frederick Augustine, an intimate friend of my parents. Augustine was a sea-captain and bar-pilot, who lived on St. Joseph's Island at the time they did. However, he spent considerable of his time at St. Mary's, and later lived at Rockport. He was remarkable because of the fact that he had lost one of his legs, but was able to actively handle his business just the same. He had a fine pilot-boat. He finally deserted the sea, and went to live in the San Diego section, there he died.

My god-mother was the wife of John Little. The Littles were also old St. Joseph's Island neighbors. She was a sister to Mrs. Jane P. O'Connor. John and George Little were Confederate soldiers. These families lived at Lamar for many years. George Little had an old Mexican named Marcelino, who had worked for him for many years. When faithful old Marcelino died, Little had him buried in the Lamar Graveyard.

The Ballous were original settlers at Lamar. I have been told that Seth T. (Jim) was the first permanent settler of the place. There were three brothers, Lugelio, who was county clerk of Aransas County, Seth T. (Jim) whose wife was Ann Finnegan, daughter of Patrick Finnegan, (Mrs. Ballou was a sister to Mary J. Bailey, mother of Captain Charles F. and Frederick C. Bailey). The third brother was Wilfred Ballou. The two older brothers were Confederate veterans. Jim Ballou at one time operated a ferry between Lamar and Live Oak Point.

John Bartels was an old ship carpenter and an artist in his line. He built many boats at Lamar. (continued next week)

New Big Tree Discovered Near Coley

Texas has again scored another discovery in the National Big Tree campaign conducted by the American Forestry Association. Located 10 miles east of Shepherd on the Coley Creek Road in Liberty County is the largest recorded redbay (Persea borbonia) in the United States.

The champion redbay has a circumference of 84½ inches, is 45 feet high and has a crown spread of 58.7 feet. The tree, owned by C. M. Lusk of Houston, Texas is in good condition; however, a large hole at the base of the tree indicates a hollow center caused by the advance of butt-rot. A very large limb has also been broken off the main body of the tree.

The tree was nominated by H. K. Parker, of Route 1, Shepherd, and measurements were nominated by John A. Haislet, section head, education, of the Texas Forest Service, College Station.

The American Forestry Association now officially recognizes four National Champion Big Trees in Texas. The other three Texas giants are an American holly (Ilex opaca) near Hardin in Liberty County, a honey mesquite (Prosopis glandulosa) near Gatesville in Coryell County, and a water oak (Quercus nigra) near Center in Shelby County.

It might be a good idea to enter the local Big Tree for recognition.

Jim and Tom Miller of Houston are guests of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Casterline.

Only as a signal of distress may the American flag be flown upside down.

When turned loose to feed at will, a horse will eat himself to death, while a mule will eat only his fill.

Kelsay's Filling Station to Have Grand Opening

Kelsay's Humble Filling Station, across from the post office, at the corner of Church and Market Streets, will stage its grand opening on Saturday, June 3.

He extends a cordial invitation to everyone to load up their family and come and see for themselves. Texas Gold Stamps will be given with every purchase.

PRESBYTERIAN CIRCLES TO MEET

The various Presbyterian Circles will hold their meetings on June 8.

Circle No. 1 is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. with Mrs. Lawrence Miller. Circle 2 meets at 3 p.m., with Mrs. Charles H. Smith. Circle 3 meets at 8 p.m. with Mrs. Marvin Rice. Circle 4 is scheduled to meet with Mrs. Cecil Lang at 9:30 a.m., and Circle 5 meets at the same time with Mrs. J. H. Schleider.
