County Meeting At Putnam

From all accounts, a large number of people from all parts of the county will attend the meeting of the Development Association of Callahan County at Putnam Tuesday night, June 18. The Putnam folks are "all set," reports J. S. Yeager, the director in the Putnam community.

Miss Tina Stewart, assistant home demonstration agent for this district, will speak on "Frozen Foods" as the main topic on the program. Miss Loreta Allen, local home demonstration agent, will assist in the program.

After the program, refreshments will be served by the Putnam people, and immediately thereafter, a business session will take place. All directors of the organization are urged to be present. Everyone in the county is invited to attend and enjoy the affair.

The Development Association was organized last September. Since that time meetings have been held in almost every community in the county, and a grand reception has been given every meeting by the people of each community. The organization is especially for the benefits of rural residents and topics are discussed that will be of benefit to them. It is the only organization in this county of its kind. The membership is spread throughout the county, and more Callahan folks are joining all the time. The annual dues is only $2. The association meetings provide a common ground where all persons of the county can come together and work for the betterment of the county as a whole, each in his own way.

Every citizen of the county, whether he be a member or not, is invited to attend the Putnam meeting. A good time is in store, and you will find profit and pleasure at the meeting.

John H. Cochran, who came to this county in 1882 and remained until 1904, visited the Star office Moday, and recalled interesting events of early times in Baird and Cottonwood. Among the interesting things he mentioned was that "every county official of Callahan county spent a year in jail." He went on to explain that the courthouse had not been built, and the only edifice suitable for housing the officers and the county records was the new jail house.

Mr. Cochran is 78 years old and going strong. He has lived in every state in the union. He is lookig forward to attending the Old Settlers' Reuion here, August, 16.

He served the church here as the local minister a few years ago, and is well acquainted with Baird people.

J. C. Strickland, assisted in the meeting by leading the singing. He is assuming the duties as minister of the church since Lloyd Connel accepted the position as minister at Denver City. Brother Strickland and family come here from Grandfield, Oklahoma, where he was the Church of Christ minister for three years.

A FRIEND IN AUSTIN

The Star editor was glad to learn that Judge Tom L. Beauchamp of the Court of Criminal Appeals is a candidate for his second elective term. Judge Beauchamp was in Baird a few months ago to visit the editor, at which time we urged him to keep up his good work another two years. Judge Beauchamp is what we call a true stateman. We first became acquainted with him when he was representing the University of Texas in the McDonald Observation suit. He, of course won in that trial, and Texas has one of the leading observatories of the world located in the Davis Mountains. His work on the Texas State Parks board, the Texas highway commission, and other state departments has certainly been beneficial to the people of Texas. Not only is he our personal friend, he is a friend to every Texan.

SCHOOL MEN ATTEND AUSTIN MEETING

Olaf G. South of the local school in company with Hugh W. Smith of Moran and Bailey Johnson of Clyde attended a three days conference on Elementary Education at the University of Texas, at Austin last week.

The meeting was sponsored by the University, the State Department of Education, and the Texas Elementary Principals. The Conference theme was "Leadership in Curriculum Revision."

Among the general topics discussed by leaders in this particular field were: "The Challenge Today in Curriculum Revision," "Present Status of the Elementary Curriculum in Texas," "Looking at the Curriculum Through Children's Eyes," "The New Course of Study for Elementary Schools," "Achieving Unity in Purposes, Philosiphy, and Classroom Practices," and "Organization and Content of the Elementary School Curriculum."

Also Clinic sessions dealing with various subjects in the elementary curriculum were held in the afternoons.

Mr. South states that because all the schools of the state did not use the some plan in changing from the eleven to the twelve grade system, there had been a lack of uniformity in the subjects offered in each grade. He believes, however, by the coming school term a more definite and specific cause of study will be given all the schools by the state Department of Education

City Park Takes Shape

The 18-acre tract of land donated to the city by Ace Hickman last week begun to take shape this week when the Baird Junior Chamber of Commerce went on the ground with a bulldozer and a group of workers. The JayCees have organized the membership in five teams and each member will devote one day's work a week until the park is developed. The main object at present is to have the park ready for use when the Old Settlers' Association holds its annual reunion there August 16th. A road is now under construction through the park grounds and trees are being trimmed. A central place will be developed for holding the old settlers' program and individual camp places with tables, seats and fire pits will be built adjacent to the driveway. The JayCees have let it be known that their taking the lead in te park movement should not cause others to do nothing for the park. All clubs and individuals are requested to assist in building a fine city park.

MRS. WIILL McCOY COUNTY TREASURER MAKES STATEMENT

TO THE PEOPLE OF CALLAHAN COUNTY:

Am asking re-election to the office of County Treasurer on my record of service and experience.

I have realized more fully with each passing year, the deep responsibilities connected with this office, through which all of the County's finiances are handled.

Outside of the regular office routine there has been many added duties, especially during the war and the present period of adjustment. To offset this, no provision has been made to give the County Treasurer any office assistance. The type of work required and shouldering the entire responsibility alone, requires long ours and untiring energy to handle efficiently the large volume of business.

Due to above conditions and other problems confronting me at this time, makes it impossible to undertake an extensive campaign (a thing I have always managed to do in normal times, and enjoyed very much).

Between now and the July Primary will see personally as many of you as possible, however, I realize I will have to depend largely on the co-operation of my friends throughout the county who have known me for many years and understand my present situation. Anything done in my behalf will be sincerely appreciated.

Regardless of the outcome of this election I will be ever grateful for your kindness and support and the wonderful, understanding friends you have been to me while serving as your County Treasurer.

MRS. WILL McCOY

SELECTING CONTAINERS

The more air-tight and moisture-vapor-proof the container is the better the food will keep during storage. Double cellophane linings, heavily waxed cartons, tin cans, and glass fruit jars are some of the containers which may be used for packing foods for freezing. Department stores, mail order houses, and local locker plants usually handle freezing containers which may be used for packing foods for freezing. Paper cartons should be strong and rigid to prevent crushing. They should have a cellophane lining or be heavily waxed. They should be liquid-tight to prevent leaking if brine or syrup is used. Square or rectangular cartons take up less space than round ones. Do not use plain ice cream cartons or cardboard boxes not especially treated for freezing. Tin cans are good because they may be reused. If cans have been used for canning, they may be cleaned and reflanged, then used for freezing. The "R" enamel cans should be used for all fruits, for asparagus, and for New Zealand spinach. Other vegetables may be packed in enamel or plain cans. Glass jars may be used, but they are hard to handle and break easily. Food must be almost completely thawed before it can be removed from a jar.

The size of a container should be suited to the family needs. Usually it is better to freeze in quart or pint sizes.

4-H GIRLS ATTEND DISTRICT CAMP AT BROWNWOOD JUNE 12 & 13

This will be the first district camp for the 4-H Club girls in several years as there were no camps during the war. Each county can send three girls. Each Club in the county selected a girl to represent their club and had done the best work. The Education and Expansion Committee of the Home Demonstration Council acted as judges to decide who would be best to send to the camp. This committee is composed of one woman from each commissioners precinct so that the whole county will get represented. Mrs. H. E. Baldridge, Jr., of Precinct 2; Mrs. H. G. Whitehorn of precinct 4; and Mrs. Earl Rutherford of precinct 3 were the Home Demonstration women who were judges. Mrs. Ray Young of precinct 1, was unable to attend.

Mary Ruth Johnson of the Oplin Club, Doris McClain of Bayou Club, and Wilma Jennings of the Clyde Club will be the three girls from Callahan county to go to the camp.

Joyce Fry of the Putnam Club, Irene Judd of the Eula Club, and Carlene Roberson of the Oplin Club are laternates to go in case one of the above can not go.

Mrs. Mallie Johnson, a 4-H leader of many years, will go to the camp to represent the 4-H leaders in the county. Others are Mrs. Fred Farmer of Eula, Mrs. Ted Walls of Denton, Mrs. J. A. Jennings of Clyde, and Mrs. Henry Fry of Putnam.

Miss Loreta Allen, County Home Demonstration Agent, will also attend.

The girls are to learn how to plan a camp so that they can come back and help plan a county camp. All the rest of the 4-H girls are eagerly waiting until these girls return and plan a camp for the 4-H girls from all over Callahan county.

DOUBLE TROUBLE

Enough of the right tools for the job gives greater efficiency in the kitchen, but too many utensils have the opposite effect. This is the opinion of Loreta Allen, County Home Demonstration Agent, who maintains that "duplicates and unnecessary extras that tend to collect in kitchen drawers and cupboards take up space, slow down work, and waste time and energy."

Miss Allen recommends occasional "weeding out" of equipment. She advises getting rid of the unnecessary pans and kettles, the broken knife or wobbly egg beater, and the fancy gadgets that have proved unsuccessful.

One of a kind is enough for many items of equipment such as knife sharpeners and bottle openers.

Sometimes more than one utensil makes work more rapid, howeevr. Two measuring cups, one for dry and one for liquid ingredients, are necessary for efficiency. Twin sets of salt and pepper shakers, one at the stove and one at the mixing center—also will save steps.

A truly convenient kitchen has what is needed where and when it is needed and nothing more.

The Discovery of Marphine—No. 2

The years slowly dragged on, but Sertuerner, though studying and working hard, had not found the secret of relieving pain. He passed his pharmacist examinations. Though discouraged, he did not give up his experiments.

Finally, he got a reaction that gave him hope. He dissolved a batch of opium in acidi and neutralized it with alkaline ammonia. Crystals appeared and sank to the bottom of the flask. The crystals were not the answer to the question. Tey were not what he was searching for. He must continue his quest.

For four long years the lad Sertuerner had tried to find out what property it was that was hidden away in the apium gum that would relieve pain. By and by he discovered an alkali that produced sleep. He found this out by bungling experiments on animals.

He caught rats and mice from Cramer's cellar or grabbed stray cats and dogs that were prowling about at night and dosed them on the new pain relieving crystals. He had to sit up late at night in order to make his experiments, for he naturally reasoned that a mistake could be made and he might accidentally get someone's pet cat or dog.

He had finally separated white, odorless, lustrous, bitter crystals. One night he secured a dog and dissolved some of the crystals in alcohol and added sugar syrup. He measured five grains and forced them down the dog's throat. The poor creature went to sleep and could not be aroused. In two days he died without awakening.

The next dose given was half the amount. That dog went to sleep and died. He continued his tests as long as he could find dogs. Each time he made the dose smaller. He approximated the dose but could not be certain that the dogs would wake up.

Sertuerner wanted some scientist to help him but those who had made a reputation for themselves only laughed at him, or were insulted at a mere nobody daring to ask them for assistance.

Poor boy! Heartbroken and discouraged, he began making powerful explosives and left the drug business altogether. He received high honors for that, for Napolean was fighting Germany and threatening to overrun all Europe.

One night Sertuerner had a raging toothache. He commiserated himself as he tossed in pain. Near morning he remembered the crystals that he and extracted from opium and which relieved pain. He weighed out a little, mixed it well with sugar syrup and swallowed it. He went back to bed and slept soundly for eight hours. When he awakened, the pain was gone.

TRAINING SCHOOL FOR TESTERS

A training school for testing supervisors of Dairy Herd Improvement Associations will be held at Texas A. & M. College, College Station, June 10-14.

Persons interested in attending the training school should notify J. W. Davis, assistant dairyman, Extension Service, College Station, Texas. This training school and another held recently at Plainview will help qualify more men for testing work in the state.

College training is desirable, but not essential to the success of a tester, Davis says. Supervisors should be of good character, have a real interest and practical experience in dairying, and should be capable of keeping accurate records.

HARVESTING IRISH POTATOES

Irish potatoes are approaching maturity and will need to be harvested in the next few weeks. It is important that the potatoes be thoroughly matured before havvesting if they are to be held in storage. When the potato plants have lost their vigor and the leaves have begun to turn brown, you should then check the potatoes to see if they too have matured and partly cured in the soil. In checking the potatoes, apply pressure to the skin of the potato with the thumb and if it slips or skins easily, the potato has not matured properly for harvesting. When the skin of the potato resists the pressure of the thumb, it is matured.

During the rainy weather, which as occured in the past few weeks, Irish potatoes may have developed small, raised, white spots over the surface of the skin, which are commonly called water blisters. Potatoes in this condition decay rapidly if they are not properly handled. If the soil is beginning to dry out, the potatoes may be left for 10 to 14 days in the soil during which time the white spots on the surface disappear. In the event that the potatoes have begun to rot in the aoil, it will be necessary to harvest them and spread them out in a shady location where the wind can pass over them to absorb the moisture which is being given off by the potatoes. Water soaked potatoes will rot quickly if placed in storage. Keep them outside in the shade until the surface of the skin appears normal.

A good method of farm storage is to spread poles or scrap lumber over the surface of the soil underneath the house or over the floor of a well-ventilated outbuilding and cover the poles witn a layer of straw or hay 1 to 2 inches thick. Spread the potatoes out in a single layer so that the potatoes will not be piled together and if possible, so they will not touch each other. This will allow additional curing or giving off of moisture to prevent rot. If sunlight comes in direct contact with the potatoes, for a long period of time, the skin will turn green. In the process of harvesting, do not leave the potatoes exposed to bright, hot sunshine as they will blister and rapid decay will result. Pick up the potatoes and move them into the shade immediately behind the plow. Those potatoes which are damaged in the harvesting process should be separated from those which are to be placed in storage and used as soon as possible.

PECAN BUDDING

During late May and early June, those who are budding pecan trees should carefully examine the cambium tissue, noting if a jelly-like cloudy layer of cells exists under the bark. Where this condition is found, it is best to delay budding for a few weeks until the cambium cells are clear and white. Due to the rapid formation of cambium tissue at the peak of the growing season, the jelly-like cambium cells often occur. While the trees are in this condition, buds will not unite satisfactorily.

Pecan buds that were put in during April or early May should be forced before June 15th. This is done by cutting off the limb or body of the tree 2 inches above the point where the bud was placed. These trees that have had the buds forced out should have the native sprouts removed from above the buds, and for a distance of at least 1 foot below the buds. After the middle of June, allow a few native sprouts to grow out along the body or branches to carry on the normal plant processes. Do not keep stripped of all foliage during mid and late-summer.

SURPLUS OF PROTEIN

There is a big surplus of protein in Texas this spring in spite of the shortage of protein concentrates on the market.

A recent USDA Bureau of Agricultural Economics study on sources and uses of protein, show that 60 percent of all protein used by livestock in the United States comes from pasture, hay and silage. Grain supplies only 25 percent of the total protein livestock eat.

Commercial concentrates such cottonseed meal and soybean meal, account for less than 8 percent of the nation's protein. Skim milk, buttermilk, fish meal, brewers meal and legume seeds including peanuts, cowpeas and velvet beans are some of the many sources which make up the other 7 percent.

There has been plenty of rain over most of the hay and pasture belt, and right now there is probably as much protein in Texas as at any time in the past 10 years. The problem is to put it where it can be used by livestock. Much can be saved if it is cut for hay while the grass is young and green, for that is when the protein content is highest. The same is true of crops such as sudan and johnson grass, whether stored as hay or as silage.

The more hay and silage that is harvested and properly stored, of course, the further the slim supply of protein concentrates will go.

WORLD FARM PROGRAM

Representatives of thirty-one nations have agreed upon a constitution for the International Federation of Agricultural Producers, although it should be noted that three of the four United States farm organizations represented at the conference opposed immediate organization.

The purpose of the organization is to creat world pressure to gain for farmers, assured prices and markets, and for all people an improved nutritional diet. Eventually, they hope to have national surpluses treated as world assets, saying that the alternatives are high-price dumping on the world, with price warfare, or a return to pre-war commodity ageements that were international restrictive cartels.

We note that the National Farmers Union of America was the only U. S. farm group to support immediate organization, which was opposed by the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives, the American Farm Bureau Federation, and the National Grange. The other organizations favored an interim commission, without authority to advise the United Nations farm group or similar bodies.

We are not familiar with the facts involved in the deliberations of the conference or of the arguments advanced in the discussions, but the need for something definite to assist agriculture, the world over, appears to be beyond any argument. Certainly, if the farmers of the world are to have favorable markets and the people of the world are to have improved diets, there must be some way to coordinate the production of food and its distribution throughout the world.

IRON...

YOU SHOULD know about an efficient tonic called PURSIN, developed by one of America's leading pharmaceutical houses. Iron (iron ammonium citrate) as supplied by PURSIN, is easily assimilated, causing a RAPID BLOOD RESPONSE in iron-deficient anemias of nutritional origin.* It is almost universally accepted to date that iron, when taken orally and in sufficient quantities, is absorbed, assimilated and CONVERTED INTO HEMOGLOBIN, an important part of the RED BLOOD CORPUSCLES.

PURSIN also contains Vitamins B_1 and B_2. One tablespoonful of PURSIN 3 times a day furnishes for adults and children 12 years or more the FULL MINIMUM DAILY REQUIREMENT OF VITAMIN B_1 and one-quarter the minimum daily requirement of B_2.

So if you need a tonic to help supplement your supply of iron and vitamins B_1 and B_2, and to AID IN STIMULATING YOUR APPETITE ... get PURSIN today. Only $1.00 for a 10-oz. bottle, $2.75 for three bottles, $5.00 for six bottles.

If satisfactory results are not apparent after using three bottles of PURSIN, your money will be refunded—Consult your physician.

*Iron-deficient anemia of nutritional origin develops if insufficient iron-containing food is eaten. In certain rare instances, this condition may develop due to the inability to absorb and assimilate from the food the ingested iron. In both these instances, a large supplementary source of iron is needed to aid the body in producing RICH, RED BLOOD, the carrier of invigorating oxygen to the body tissue for revitalization and repair.

E. J. MILLER ASK ELECTION TO 11TH CIVIL APPEALS POST

Judge E. J. Miller, a resident of Baird fourty years ago, who now resides in Brownwood, visited the Star office Friday to announce his candidacy for associate justice of the Court of Civil Appeals, 11th Supreme Judicial Distrirt, Eastland. Judge Miller made the following statement in regard to his campaign:

The voters of the Eleventh Supreme Judicial District:

For some years I have entertained an ambition to serve upon the Court of Civil Appeals but until about three weeks ago, I had no idea of becoming a candidate for such a position this year. Judge Courtney Gray is a gentleman four-square, is a lawyer of sound, mature judgement, and has made a 100 per cent record as appellate judge. I felt that he was entitled to election this year without opposition and would not have entered the race against him upon any consideration. He advised me and other friends some three weeks ago that unless his physical condition improved, he would probably withdraw. I regret very much the circumstances and conditions which have impelled him to announce his withdrawal, and will conduct an active campaign from now until the July Primary.

This district is composed of 23 counties; is more than 200 miles long, extending from Dawson County on the northwest to Erath County on the southwest. With about 50 days for the campaign, I cannot hope to see personally, more than a small per cent of the voters, but will utilize the time and the means available to place myself and my qualifications before the people. To this end, I solicit your investigation and consideration and will appreciate your interest and support.

I was reared on a farm in Callahan County, spent two years in Simmons College, two years in a State Teacher's College, taught school five yeafs, for many years an active Odd Fellow, am a deacon in my church, and a member of the Howard Payne College Board. And was for five years president of Commanche Trail Council Boy Scouts of America.

Having been in active private practice 25 years, practicing in all State Courts, and in the District Court and Circuit Court of Appeals of the United States, and having served 12 years as district judge with a record above the average, I feel that I could render satisfactory service upon the Court of Civil Appeals at Eastland and thereupon submit my candidacy for such position.

Respectfully,
E. J. MILLER

Electricity Eases Farmstead Chores

EXTENSION of electricity to farms has made a new production tool available to agriculture, according to nationally-circulated Capper's Farmer. Electricity offers ways to mechanize many farmstead chores, reduce human labor, lower operating costs and promote better income, which adds up to more satisfactory living.

Since most of the appliances required for modern conveniences are operated by electricity, its employment in production makes it a dual-purpose tool, in which one use facilitates another, points out the magazine read by 1,250,000 farm families.

Typical of electricity at work is the task performed by a small circular saw in cutting material for the poultry house on George Middleton's farm in Kane County, Illinois.

One of the recent developments in labor-saving appliances is the churning attachment which Mrs. Henry Sidentop, of Livingston County, Ill., uses on her washing machine. Ice cubes made in her refrigerator go into the clothes tub to cool summertime cream, which reduces churning time by one-fourth.

An important function of rural electricity is to supply life-protecting heat for young pigs. Carl Barton exhibits one of the 7 brooders he built as a vocational agriculture project in Livingston County, Ill.

It Seems Like Yesterday

It seems like yesterday that Nancy was playing with dolls. Now she's pushing her own baby carriage. Yes, there've been a lot of changes in the last fifteen years—most of them so gradual we hardly noticed them at all.

Nancy didn't grow up all at once. A tooth at a time—a curl at a time—an inch at a time—and suddenly a little kid sister was Mrs. Joe Jones, mother of Joe, Junior.

Like Nancy, the use of electricity has grown a lot in the last fifteen years. But the price of electricity has been going down steadily. You may not have noticed it because your bill may be about the same—but how many appliances have you added to your home since 1931? Actually, you're getting twice as much electricity for your money now as then.

Keeping electric service plentiful and cheap through years of rising costs was not easy. That today's electricity is at its very lowest price in history is a tribute to the hard work and experience of the men and women in the industry, and to its sound business management.

"The Whistler," too, perfers blondes.

In each of the four films of this Columbia Pictures' series taken from the famous radio show, a blonde has played the feminine lead opposite the star, Richard Dix.

The first of the series, "The Whistler," had the dainty and cameo-like Gloria Stuart to furnish glamour against the background of psychological mystery drama.

The next two, "The Mark of Whistler," were graced by the the Whistler" and Power of the glamorous Janis Carter And now, the fourth, "Voice of the Whistler," which is playing at the Plaza Theatre Owl Show, gleams with the beauty of Lynn Merrick.

BAIRD GETS THE JUMP ON POLIO PREVENTION

While many cities throughout the country are rushing excitedly to clean up and establish sanitary measures to head off the epidemic of polio and various other diseases that have broken out in a number of places throughout Texas and the Southwest, Baird is carrying on its regular maintenance program to keep clean.

Two years ago the Baird Star urged the city to set up a periodical clean up program and maintain sanitation throughout the city precincts. The matter was brought to a vote of the citizens. Voters authorized the city council to assess a monthly fee for sanitary purposes. Since that time the city truck has hauled tons and tons of garbage and trash to the dump ground. Today the alleys are clean and a state of cleanliness prevails throughout the residential district of our city.

Baird still has a big job to do now in the down town district. Everybody comes to town, men, women and children, and they buy food to eat and to take home with them. When business houses are clean inside and outside, the alleys and streets are clean, we might then rest easy with the idea that sanitary conditions are good in Baird. About the worst condition we have have now is our front street. Trash and garbage and almost everything imaginable collects at the curbs. This is not only unsightly, but a harbor for disease to collect and multiply.

Most certainly we have gotten the jump on the prevention of polio. Let's not stop where we are. Let's finish the job.

THRE ARE OTHER THINGS IN LIFE

The average citizen of Callahan County is no doubt interested in the political events that occur in the United States which is quite proper considering that the theory of our government involves an understanding of the issues by every voter.

There is a tendency, however, for the individual to become intensely interested in the outcome of political campaigns, involving issues that seem transcendent, and to drift into a state of mind which magnifies the importance of the outcome.

While it is right and proper for every American to pass judgement upon every political issue, there is no occasion for them to divide into bitterly hostile groups or to permit politics to entirely overshadow the other values in life.

HONORS TO THE FLAG

The flag of the United States, consisting of thirteen stripes of alternate red and white, with a union of thirteen stars of white in a blue field, was adopted by the Continental Congress, sitting in Philadelphia, on June 14, 1777.

The flag has continued essentially unchanged through one hundred sixty-nine years, additional starts being added as new States have become a part of the nation.

The anniversary of the adoption of the flag is now generally observed throughout the country, although it is not a legal holiday. The occasion is marked by special programs in a number of cities, which provide a forum for distinguished citizens of the nation to deliver patriotic addresses.

It is meet and proper for the people of the nation to honor their flag as "the emblem of our unity, our power, our thought and purpose as a nation." It is more important, however, for those who enjoy the blessing of freedom and liberty, to make certain that, as citizens and individuals, they render obesiance, not to a flag, but to the principles which the standard prclaims. This is the duty if loyal patriots and is the contribution that every person in Callahan County should make to insure that the Stars and Stripes shall forever fly over a free people.

LANDMARK OF FREEDOM

More than five hundred years before the Declaration of Independence, the knights and barons of England met King John on the banks of the Thames, about twenty miles from London, and after a conference in an island, the British monarch affixed his seal to the document that recognizes the right of free men.

It should not be understood that the great charter, signed at Runnemede, is an explicit declaration of freedom and equality for all persons. It was intended, no doubt, to protect the rights of the knights and barons and to protect them and their property from the arbitrary action of the throne. Earlier, Henry I had signed a charter of liberties but the charter's provisions had been ignored until they were practically disregarded.

The document is generally accepted as a great milestone in the acquisition of liberty by English-speaking people. It was a definite renunciation by the King of rights which permitted him to trespass upon individual liberties with impunity and, consequently, it well reserves to be remembered by those who proclaim the virtues of liberty and independence.

FATHER'S DAY

For some years, the third Sunday in June has been generally observed as Father's day, and the custom has gradually grown so that we now consider the day as one set apart in recognition of the fathers of this nation.

While Father's Day was observed almost as early as Mother's Day, it has not seen as widespread recognition. but the observance of the day is becoming more general and, consequently, the sons and daughters of Callahan County will make it an occasion of special honor to their fathers.

It should be noted that President Coolidge, in 1924, suggested that the occasion is "calculated to establish more intimate relations between fathers and their children, and also to impress upon fathers the full measure of their obligations." The two-fold obligation, however, is generally merged in expressions of gratitude from children to fathers and, in some instances, the presentation of gifts.

"IN THE NEXT 30 DAYS"

Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson says that the Army's manpower situation is deplorable, because Congress exempted teenagers from the draft and warned the Governor's Conference that "all that has been accomplished by four years of fighting can be jepardized in the next thirty days."

As near as we can understand the international situation, the Secretary of War is somewhat conservative in estimating that the nation has thirty days leeway. It looks to us very much as if policies already put into effect have seriously jepardized that the victories that this nation only recently won.

It is a striking commentary on the inability of democracies to defend themselves that this nation, after such a super-human exertion in its own defense, is unwilling to make the relatively insignificant effort that is needed to maintain the prestige and protect the interests of the United States.

HONOR AMERICAN DEAD

The largest American military cemetery in Europe is at Margraten, in The Netherlands, where 18,774 graves contain the remains of Allied war dead, including the graves of 17,742 Americans who made the supreme sacrifice in the closing months of the war.

On Memorial Day, an estimated 40,000 persons, mostly residents of the area, swarmed to the cemetery, where flowers were placed on every grave. Special services were held.

The dispatch tells us that each of the graves has been adopted by a citizen of The Netherlands and the sponsor of the plan reports receiving three thousands more requests than there were graves.

The newspaper writer says that the demonstration was believed to be without parallel in a foreign country and was accepted generally by the Netherlands as proof of their devotion to the men who lost their lives in liberating their country.

Much the same type of ceremony was held at various American military cemeteries in England and in France, where Americans who lost their lives in World War I and World War II were paid the homage that our war veterans receive in this country.

WILL WE JEOPARDIZE VICTORY

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, who led our armies to victory in Europe, says that as long as we have the problem of occupying enemy countries, the Army will not be able to get along with less than a million men. "If we don't have them," he declared, "we will jeopardize the victory we have won."

The General has just returned from the Pacific. He knows about the conditions in Europe. He points out that the job that the nation must do is immense and that it is "unfair for the same men to stay on and do it," and, consequently, "we must spread the load" and the only way to do this is to secure sufficient men to replace those who will otherwise have to stay in foreign cuntries.

The situation of the nation, in regard to the possible acquisition of soldiers, is apparent from the statement of Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, who says that "a survey made last week showed that only 36,000 men are left in the draft pool and this in a nation of 140,000,000." No wonder he concludes that the Selective Service authorities "are frustrated and helpless."

DR. RAINEY HAS FRIENDS IN BAIRD

Dr. Homer P. Rainey, candidate for governor, is being encouraged by some of his friends in Baird, who would like to see his campaign for governor of Texas meet with success. Elsewhere on this page Dr. Rainey's Baird friends are running an advertisement in his behalf setting forth a number of points in his favor.

We take exerpts from the speech Dr. Rainey delivered at Mineral Wells on May 13th as follows:

"Let us band together as citizens to demand the best rural health program in America. Let us have county hospitals. Let us work out a plan where rural communities will have enough doctors to take care of their needs. The money we spend to save and improve the health of the Texas people is an investment in the future of our democracy.

Next, let us build a fine rural school system in this state. We must pay our teachers decent salaries. We must have adequate school buildings. We must have rural library facilities. We must see to it that every boy and girl in Texas has an equal chance to get a good education, and that no boy or girl will be discriminated against in this right, simply because they happen to be born in the country instead of the big city.

And let us get our heads together to build the finest system of farm-to-market roads in America. We have the desire and the need for them now. All it takes, all it will take, is the courage and the persistance to work out a program so that we can have roads which are open every day in the year, for school busses, for family doctors, for farm families and for farmers marketing their products.

The most important thing is that our industries in the communities of Texas be locally financed, that they employ local people and that they use local raw materials. Most important of all, the profits from those industries should remain in these communities where they were earned.

For a long time much of our industry in Texas has been owned by great financial interests of the North and East. The profits from those industries have naturally gone north and east to stay, rather than remaining in Texas to improve the lives and living conditions of our people."

PROSPERITY DOESN'T INSURE PEACE

We are perfectly aware of the danger to the peace of the world that exists through human misery and insecurity but we are a little bit afraid tat the point is being overemphasized.

Those who are interested in the work of the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations, insist that the suffering and hardships of peoples and governments are a "fundamental cause of war," and that "prosperity and peace are indivisible."

There is something to be said for the thesis, but it should not be overlooked that the great wars of the world are occasioned by peoples who enjoy, upon a relative scale, the greatest economic blessings of their rage. Compared with most of the peoples of the world, the Nazi of Germany enjoyed a standard of living that could not be approached, but, just the same, they yearned for warfare and the so-called glories of empire.

We think the Economic and Social Council represents a great forward step in the progress of the world, in that it seeks to assist all peoples to secure higher standards of living trough the encouragement of production, the facility of transportation and the development of international trade. It also directs its attention to the problems created by hunger, disease and poverty throughout the world. Both objectives are commendable and the Council deserves the support of intelligent citizens.

Nevertheless, we think it would be unfortunate if the average person should get the idea that in raising standards of living, we automatically guarantee peace. This cannot be done by fighting hunger, disease and poverty, or by increasing the trade of the peoples of the earth. At best, all that these things can do is to create better feeling, and, in time, if enough better feeling comes into being, there will be something like a universal desire for peace.

The meaning of democracy, according to some persons, is opportunity to demand more than you have and get more than you earn.

Our theology may be all wrong but we don't think much of any religious belief that does not require the individual to make a contribution to a better race and a better world.

WHO IS HOMER P. RAINEY?

Dr. Homer Rainey is a native Texan, who grew up on a farm near Clarksville in Red River county, he is one of the foremost educators in the United States, he is a Jerffersonian Democrat and a believer in the ideals of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, he has a record of 38 years as an active religious leader, having joined the Baptist church when 12 years old.

Dr. Rainey believes and is working for the improvement of the Texas school system, he believes in a better and more efficient rural school system with health program, that will give every rural community.

Dr. Rainey believes in and will push a public health program, that will give every rural community the advantage of better medical service and a home county hospital within easy reach of everyone.

Dr. Rainey favors and will work for more and better farm to market all weather roads open every day in the year.

Dr. Rainey wants rural electric power for every farm and to give the farm people the same benefits as they would have in town in the way of Utilities, REA started by the Federal Government must be helped and encouraged by the State of Texas in order to extend the service to the people throughout Texas.

Dr. Rainey wants equal freight rates for all of Texas and to wipe out the discrimination against Texas and all the South, to give Texas an equal opportunity to compete with Northern and Eastern Manufactures, believing that Texas raw products can and will be manufactured on the ground.

Dr. Rainey is honest and sincere, he is an outstanding thinker and educator, he is qualified and no lobby or powerful money interest can influence him from what he thinks right and for the best interest of every citizen in Texas.

INVESTIGATE

Dr. Rainey from every angle, as a private citizen, a churchman and an educator, help make him a Governor that Texas will benefit by having him carry out the principals of a truly Democratic State that stands for the best interest of the people.

LOUISA'S LETTER

Dear Louisa:

My husband and I have four children and in these times find it very hard to make his salary stretch for all of our needs and I don't mean luxuries.

Just recently my father died and now my mother has no one to depend upon but my brother and me. He is situated financially just about like I am and of course his wife is not anxious to take on any more work and worry than she already has.

Unfortunately, my father and mother did not look ahead and they spent just about all he made but she does own her little home which she could probably rent for about thirty-five dollars a month.

Mother says she would rather live at home because the children worry her when she is with us or my mother but we really cannot afford to keep up the house for her with taxes, grocery bills and what not. And yet we know that if she comes to live with us with all of the crowding and inconvenience that the change will mean unhappiness for all of us. What would you advise us to do under the circumstances?

Devoted Daughter—Go.

Answer:

I think the best solution is for your mother to rent the greater part of her house and keep two rooms or even one room and a bath. If she could rent to a couple without children or to a couple of unmarried women who work, she would probably be more satisfied. She would be where she has always lived and still not be alone in the house. If she is strong enough, she might make some arrangements with them whereby she could fix breakfast or dinner or if she is not well, they might be willing to give her meals for a part of the rent.

Then you and your brother would have to take care of the loose ends such as clothes and medical bills. But this would not be nearly so hard as having to make room for her in an overcrowded house.

Personally, I thisk it is a pity that we people of our country haven't given more thought to the comfort and happiness of our old people. I think it is in Sweden that a home for old people is run where, for a small amount they get a nice little apartment, good care and have a nice recreational program planned for them. This home takes care of 1300 old people.

In New York City there is a Community Service Society which operates some apartments for old people for about 1-4 of what they usually cost. There is also in New York a subsidized home for aged and infirm Hebrews. They get a private room, medical care, laundry serivce and meals in a common dining room for a reasonable sum.

There may be some Old Ladies Home near you — not a charity place — but a home where the resident pays a reasonable amount and gets private quarters, good food, care and companionship. It seems to me that such a home would be a much happier place for your mother to be than in either of her children's crowded homes. You could visit her and she could visit you but she would always have her own little place to go back to.

With so many of us living to ripe old ages with the help of science and the doctors, it would be well for our government — and that really means us — to give some thought to the care and comfort of old people.

SEX RATIO ABOUT EVEN

Concern over the sex ratio of the population of the United States as detrmining prospects in the marriage market is without foundation, according to Dr. Hope T. Eldridge, analyist of the Bureau of Census.

The moderate decrease in the proportion of males to females has "very little to do with the imagination," declares the lady, who points out that here was an excess of 200,000 females as of July 1st. 1945.

It is interesting to note that the population of the world, thanks to the arrangement of nature, maintains a practical balance between the sexes. This seems to be regardless of wars but the proportion of the sexes in a particular area is often influenced by immigration on the scale that brought millions to this country some decades ago.

Figures for the United States, relating to 1940, show that there were 3,700,000 more single males than single females among the population fifteen years old or older. The excess was offset by one of about the same size among widowed and divorced females.

(Held over from last week)

Rev. White of Clyde was in our midst Sunday with a gospel message.

A group of youngsters from this community are attending Bible school in Clyde this week. Neighbors take turn about taking them each day. Rev. White came for them Monday.

Neighbors gathered and planted Mr. Ray's crop Monday, as he has been unable to work because of a broken leg and now has it fractured again.

The Happy Hearts Choir of Abilene entertained the last Thursday night of May at Midway. Mrs. R. W. Cook was our sponsor. After the program a shower was given for Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wayne Griffin. After the many gifts were viewed, punch and cookies were served to more than a hundred guests.

We regret very much to report a sister of Arch Parrisher recently passed away.

Will Boydstun and friends were in our community Sunday.

W. B. Tarver and family called on Mr. and Mrs. Smith of Roscoe and Mr. and Mrs. R. D. White of Loraine Sunday.

Mrs. Jerry Malin and daughters, Joan and Patsy of Amarillo are in the home of her mother, Mrs. S. E. Webb, Sr.

Mrs. Bascom Webb and daughter, Darlene, also Mrs. Harold Webb and children, Harold, Frank, and Barbara, of Marfa were visiting the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Webb.

The J. E. Faircloth family had relatives Sunday from Lawn and Bradshaw, visiting.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Tarver of Abilene were supper guests of the W. B. Tarvers, Monday.

The Quilting Monday was a success though the group was small due to canning season. Try to be present next time sure. You'll miss a treat if you fail to come.

Louise Faircloth is now employed in Abilene.

Some of us might not realize what changes are taking place in Baird, but the passing parade—the folks who drop in only now and then, can see that Baird is rapidly advancing into the post war world with many changes.

Electricity is playing a leading role in the city's progress. The municipal light plant is becoming a greater asset to Baird every day. As the demand for service grows, the plant grows to meet the call. When new appliances are on the market, the municipal light plant will figure even more prominently in the scheme of Baird's future.

If you would be a booster for Baird in a very real way, use electric current in your home or business that is produced right here in Baird at the fine, modern generating plant . . . . . your plant . . . . your city.

Call us for electric service today.
