Estimate $15,000,000 From Grain Crop Wichita Falls Area

ELEVATORS AND RAILWAYS PLAN FOR HUGE CROP

Thirty-five Counties Will Produce 20,017,500 Bushels Wheat

FIRST GOOD CROP WITHIN PERIOD OF TWO YEARS

Wheat and Oats Will Bring Approximately Fifteen Million Dollars

Twenty million bushels of wheat and 25 million or more bushels of oats—the greatest and cheapest grain crop ever produced in Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma—will begin moving from the fields to the elevators, railroad cars, the mills and into any and all sorts of home storage places within the next two weeks.

Thirty-five counties in the Wichita Falls area of Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma will produce an estimated total of 20,017,500 bushels of wheat, according to reports compiled at the end of the week by the Wichita Daily Times and Record News. For many of these counties it will be the first good crop within two years, and for some the first bumper yield in more than four years.

Farmers were prepared for low prices. Fifty cents a bushel for wheat and around 20 cents for oats seemed to be generally expected; but to offset the low prices, producers could point to one of the greatest per acre yields in history, which will be marketed at less cost than any grain crop in years. Placing the probable value of the wheat at 50 cents, the crop will bring more than $10,000,000 into this section. The oats crop at 20 cents would bring approximately $4,790,300, or nearly $15,000,000 for the two crops, exclusive of the value of the wheat and oats cut for hay by the farmers.

Encloses $5,000 Instructs Mayor To Aid Worthy

CHICAGO, May 23. (INS)—"Good Time Charlie" Dawson remained under cover somewhere in Chicago today while Mayor Anton J. Cermak sought to puzzle out just what moved him to send $5,000 to the mayor's office yesterday.

Dawson was believed still in the city because he had paid his room rent at the Drake hotel three days in advance and had not removed his baggage. He failed to show up, however.

After a long recital of his boyhood in Chicago and his wanderings as a prospector in the West, where he hinted he had made a fortune, Dawson said in a letter to the mayor, with which he enclosed $5,000 in bills.

"If you could take the time to help me pick out the right families and some young fellows that need a new start, here's $5,000 to turn that way."

It was learned that two years ago a Charles H. Dawson was arrested in Oakland, Calif., as a vagrant, only to amaze police by producing $25,000 in cash.

POPE'S ENCYCLICAL OF 20,000 WORDS WRITTEN ENTIRELY IN LONG HAND

VATICAN CITY, May 23. (AP)—Pope Pius himself wrote out in long hand the entire 20,000-word encyclical which he issued today on labor.

He consulted experts on certain divisions of the lengthy pronouncement but interpreted their conclusions for himself. Foremost among those whom he consulted was the Belgian Jesuit Vueermeesch, professor of morals at the Gregorian university and author of works on individual social justice.

The pope personally revised the encyclical and spent many hours in his private study on the laborious task.

OIL AND GAS MEN OF NORTH TEXAS DISTRICT URGE SPECIAL SESSION

Resolutions urging Gov. Ross Sterling to call a special session of the legislature to convene not later than May 26 to enact laws giving the railroad commission power to curtail oil production in the state were adopted at a special meeting of the North Texas Oil and Gas association at the Wichita club Saturday.

The resolutions were telegraphed to the governor following the meeting.

The legislation is necessary to save the oil industry of the state from catastrophe, officials of the association declared.

The resolutions follow:

"Whereas the great natural resources of oil and gas in the state of Texas are being wasted to a degree beyond the comprehension of even those engaged in the oil business itself, and

"Whereas, an even greater waste of these great natural resources is imminent unless an immediate remedy is found. More than 25,000 producing oil wells in the state of Texas which afford the very economic life of thousands of people and which provide a revenue for maintaining county governments, municipalities and independent school districts, will of necessity be abandoned, and millions of barrels of

MAN SLAYS WIFE AND TWO DAUGHTERS AND DROWNS SELF IN LAKE

EDMONTON, Alta., May 23. (AP)—R. C. Vooght, manager of a Camrose lumber yard, shot and killed his wife and two daughters and then drowned himself in a lake near Camrose late yesterday.

He took the family, consisting of Mrs. Vooght, his two daughters, Mary, 8, Norma, 6, and a son, Jack, 4, for an automobile drive. At a point 14 miles from Camrose he shot the two girls and his wife.

As a passing car approached the scene he left Jack in his machine and leaped into the nearby lake. His body was recovered.

Investigators said Vooght had been despondent over business affairs.

Girls Walk Back From Auto Ride To File Charges

Two young men accused by two young women of having made them walk back from an automobile ride were held in the county jail late Saturday charged with aggravated assault as a result, according to information given by George Garrett, deputy sheriff assigned to night patrol duty in the Country Club estates.

The young women, Mr. Garrett said, stopped his car early Friday morning and related that they had walked nearly five miles after having been ejected from the car. They were thinly clad, and the morning was one of the coldest for the late spring in the record of the cooperative weather bureau of the Texas Electric Service company.

The women supplied the names of the young men, who were taken into custody by Mr. Garrett. Charges followed in the county court at law.

WILL RESUME HEARING $200,000 LIBEL SUIT IN LUBBOCK COURT MONDAY

LUBBOCK, May 23. (AP)—Resumption of the taking of testimony in the $200,000 libel suit brought by Fred Spikes against J. Evetts Haley and the Capitol Reservation lands, owners of the XIT ranch properties in Texas, will begin Monday morning in district court before Judge Clark Mullican.

No sessions were held today, the court adjourning Friday night until Monday to give members of the jury time to look after their personal matters. Lawyers today took advantage of the recess to go over their plans for the coming week.

The plaintiffs, after presenting a dozen depositions and six witnesses including Mr. Spikes, rested. The defendants have been introducing testimony and depositions to support their contentions.

MANY IMPORTANT BILLS PASSED AS HUNDREDS DIE ON CALENDAR EXTRA SESSION CALL EXPECTED

AUSTIN, May 23. (AP)—The longest continuous legislative session in Texas history ended late today. It began Jan. 13.

While hundreds of proposals were killed or died on the calendar, many important bills and proposed constitutional amendments were passed, including cigaret, sulphur, natural gas and cement taxes, and a proposed amendment to exempt $3,000 of the value of homesteads from the state property tax.

The work of the 42nd legislature in its regular session cannot be accurately measured until Governor Sterling acts on several bills which were passed in the last two weeks. Among them were general appropriations, truck regulation, the sulphur-cement tax and an allotment of $1,000,000 to repay farmers for losses suffered in pink boll worm and tick eradication.

Legislators returned home expecting they likely would be journeying back within a few weeks. Governor Sterling told them he would call them into special session "if it develops that an additional session will be necessary to complete the program of needed legislation."

Redistricting Bill Killed

Many thought the governor could not reduce the appropriations bills to the estimated revenues by "blue penciling" individual items and that he would have to veto the bills. That would necessitate a special session. Even if he should not veto the bills, the governor might deem congressional redistricting or oil legislation of sufficient importance to ask for an extra session. Congressional redistricting failed yesterday when the senate, by one vote, rejected the free conference report.

The only hard-fought battle on the final day was the house fight

RAILWAYS HERE PREPARING FOR RUSH OF WHEAT

EXPECT MOVEMENT WILL START EARLY

Abundant Equipment Declared Assurance of Speedy Shipping

Thousands of cars already have been placed at strategic points on lines of the Fort Worth and Denver and the Missouri-Kansas-Texas in preparation for the movement of the 1931 wheat crop, according to information given here Saturday by officials of the two lines.

Assurance was given by all officials that equipment for the speedy movement of the crop will be available and that shipments will be moved as fast as received.

The preparations for the handling of the grain started early this year both because the crop will be ready for movement earlier than usual if warm weather continues and because it is likely to be heavier than at any time for several years past, railroad officials said.

The Katy, according to officials of that road, already has placed more than 2,000 cars at convenient points along its lines and the number will be greatly increased before the movement begins, probably between June 6 and 10. The heavy movement usually continues about 60 days, remaining at a fairly constant peak for a mid-period of about a month.

No estimate was available as to how many cars have been placed by the Denver along its main line, the South Plains route and the Wichita Valley, although the number already totals several thousand, with additional cars being stored daily, it was said.

It is expected, officials added, that the movement along the valley and from the South Plains is likely to begin early in June, reaching its peak during July.

The increased use of the combine, officials said, has made the handling of the crop a growing problem during recent years. The combine, it was explained, speeds the threshing of the crop so that it becomes available for shipping in a much shorter space of time than formerly was the case.

Jewelry Salesman Kidnaped, Beaten And Robbed on Wise County Highway Bandits Trailed Auto From Wichita

RHOME, Texas, May 23.—Charles N. Fried, Dallas jewelry salesman, was kidnaped on the highway near here tonight, beaten, hijacked and tied to a tree by two bandits believed to have trailed him from Wichita Falls.

The holdup men escaped with $506 in cash, several large checks and jewelry valued at several thousand dollars. Fried was out with officers early Sunday morning and could not be reached but the robbers were reported to have gotten three sample cases filled with loose diamonds, bracelets, and other costly gems and jewelry.

Mr. Fried called on the Zale Jewelry company in Wichita Falls shortly before 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon and left a few minutes later for Dallas.

He told officers that he noticed a car seemed to be following him and this automobile finally crowded him into the ditch and stopped him between Decatur and Rhome about 9:30 p. m. The two bandits, both of whom were armed with pistols, forced him into their car after striking him over the head with a revolver, and drove down a side road for several miles to the Trinity river bottoms. There they tied him to a tree with wire after looting his pockets and satchels.

Fried worked loose from the wire handcuffs and walked to Rhome, where he notified officers. Wise county officials, accompanied by Mr. Fried, were searching for the bandits early Sunday morning.

Mightiest Air Fleet In World's History Wages Mock Warfare

NEW YORK, May 23. (US)—Roaring down from the fog-filled north, the mightiest aerial armada ever assembled under the American flag wage mock warfare over this city this evening. Six hundred and thirty-five monoplanes and bi-planes and more than 1,400 men participated in the most spectacular martial maneuvers New York ever witnessed. Long after the tremendous show had passed from the background of the sky, the memory of it thrilled the millions in the audience who stared aloft, enthralled, from every point of vantage.

This was the parade of the first air division of the United States army corps over the metropolitan area, preliminary to swinging into New England tomorrow morning to repel an imaginary air force from over seas. From four Long Island airports, they lifted into the air—pursuit planes, attack planes, bombers and transports—in groups of 10, 20 and 30, swinging north to Glen Cove, east to Kings Park, north across the Sound to Norwalk on to Ridgefield, thence sharply west to the air area between Ossining and Peekskill, the point of mobilization for the movement on the metropolis.

For longer than an hour they remained in accumulation there, the early arrivals circling steadily and

Dr. Archie Goldstone Convicted Of Robbery and Sentenced Five Years Judge Explains Why Lawyer Jailed

FORT WORTH, May 23. (AP)—Dr. Archie Goldstone, charged with theft of a $35,000 jewel trunk three years ago, was found guilty by a jury in criminal district court here Saturday night and his punishment fixed at five years in the state penitentiary.

The jury deliberated 35 minutes.

After the jurors had reported, Judge Hosey asked them to stay in the jury box a moment. He read a part of the defendant's criminal record. He then explained to the jury why he sent Otis Rogers, Goldstone's attorney, to jail Friday for contempt of court.

Rogers arose on a point of "personal privilege." Judge Hosey told him there was no such point. He asked a deputy to take Rogers outside the courtroom. The deputy conducted Rogers to a point near the door of the courtroom.

Rogers asked: "Do I have no opportunity at all to speak for myself?" the court answered "no."

"That's typical of the conduct of the court," remarked Rogers. He went outside with the officer.

DRIVE FOR HIGHER RAIL RATES STARTS WILLARD IN ACTION

WASHINGTON, May 23. (US)—The drive for higher railroad rates got under way officially here today when Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio, conferred with five members of the Interstate Commerce commission.

Neither Willard, who is known in railroad circles as "the cantact man," nor members of the commission would comment on the visit. It was learned from a high authority that they talked over the procedure to be followed by the Eastern roads in applying for the increase in rates "to restore the credit and service of the carriers."

It has not been determined yet whether the eastern roads will present a joint petition, or whether they will act independently or in small groups.

It was also learned today that most of the preliminary work toward the proposed increase has already been done.

Although it may take weeks for the railroads to prepare their petition, it has been stated that the commission will expedite any proceeding in the matter so the question can be settled before it becomes involved in politics with the meeting of the next congress.

Railroad security owners, as well as bankers, favor the proposed increase in rates.

'Armistice' Ends Battle of Mayors Guests of France

DEAUVILLE, France, May 23. (INS)—An "armistice" was declared today by the contending factions in the "battle of the mayors," with the result that M. Orlandi, official representative of the French government tourist office, hereafter will direct the tour of the 21 American mayors who are official guests of the French government.

The "armistice" was announced by Mayor George L. Baker, of Portland, Ore., who acted in the role of peace maker during the squabble which took place between M. Orlandi and Rene Racover, who arranged the mayors' trip in the United States and brought the visitors to France on the S. S. Ile de France.

The incident occurred at Rouen this morning when Racover arranged for the "southern contingent" of the mayoral party to pose for a talking picture in front of the cathedral of Rouen while the bellringer played "Dixie." M. Orlandi objected to the picture making, on the grounds that the party's schedule did not permit of taking time for this feature and a lively argument followed whether Orlandi or Racover were "running the party."

MANY IMPORTANT BILLS ARE PASSED

on adoption of the free conference report on educational appropriations. A motion to reject the report failed, 61 to 53. Many members of the house economy bloc objected to the free conference bill because the salary slashes ordered by the house were eliminated and the buildings cut out by the house, were restored. The bill carried an appropriation of $15,986,772.

Other appropriations bills approved today totaled $23,749,000. They were the departmental $13,600,000 and eleemosynary $10,149,000 that ran the total appropriations to more than $50,000,000.

The legislature passed about 500 bills and submitted nine proposed constitutional amendments to be voted on in the general election next year.

Outstanding Legislation

Three cents a package tax on cigarets and two per cent gross production tax on natural gas.

Increase of sulphur tax from 55 to 75 cents a ton and tax of five cents a barrel on cement. (Unsigned).

Giving West Texas owners of school land title to all mineral rentals and bonuses.

Limiting cotton trucks to 10 uncompressed or 20 compressed bales.

Permitting taxpayers to pay taxes in two installment, the first by Nov. 30 and the second by June 30.

Water priority, giving municipal and domestic users priority over power companies.

County Warrants

Prohibiting reckless issuance of county warrants without vote of the people.

Allowing insanity trials for convicts only on affidavits of physicians.

Creation of a legislative oil committee to work with like committees from other states.

Placing additional regulations on trucks and further restricting size and load limit, fixing maximum weight of load at 7,000 pounds. (Unsigned).

The highly controversial $212,000,000 highway bond issue, backed by Governor Sterling, failed of submission in the house several times, the last time by three votes. The proposed constitutional amendment to abolish the state ad valorem tax was not brought up in the house after passing the senate.

Special Session Planned

AUSTIN, May 23.—Governor Sterling has announced a special session of the legislature for June 15 or June 22.

Taxation and appropriations were named as its main subjects.

Others are known to be in the session grab bag. Here are some of them:

Oil proration. The Howsley bill, to extend power of the railroad commission for the first time to prohibiting drilling because of lack of "reasonable current market demand" for oil, will be the basis of this legislative subject.

Judicial redistricting, one of the few subjects on which Governor Sterling asked action at the regular session. This would cut out a few courts. It would justify his expected veto of the bills creating new courts.

Some attempt may be made to modify the present tax on property to pay local road bond issues. Whether the administration will try out some such plan as the Brooks or Stevenson bills to assume the county indebtedness for state highway work remained to be seen.

BRAIN AND BRAWN REPORT ON JURY

CHICAGO, May 23. (UP)—Edwin S. Brain and W. F. Brawn stood side by side as they were examined for jury duty in Judge John Prystalski's court.

Prosecutor Harry S. Ditchburne thought the men were joking when they gave their names in quick succession as "Brain and Brawn," and he asked sarcastically of the prospect next to them if his name didn't happen to be "Beauty." It wasn't.

Both Brain and Brawn were excused.

PLANES WAGE WAR ON NEW YORK CITY

slowly over a wide radius, awaiting the coming of the later craft, until the air was thick with them and the hills and valleys of all Westchester echoed and re-echoed to the noise of their motors.

Then, at a signal, the vast weaving spiral, unwound and the flight to New York became a fact. Along the eastern bank of the Hudson river they swept in a formation 10 miles long and low enough to send shudders through the endless multitude beneath.

Deftly, the almost interminerable column swung majestically into the middle of the Hudson river valley and thrust itself steadily south.

On and on and on, until the far spread multitude below lost count of the craft, past Governors' island into the narrows, making a living gesture at Brooklyn, past Fort Hamilton and around Coney Island and so to Floyd Bennett field, which was in dedication, and there the whole line swooped and dipped and burst across the view of great throngs in the grand stand. Then rising again and—out over Jamaica bay, the tremendous sky serpent split itself into segments like some fabulous creature and thus separated dispersed itself on the flying fields whence it was born and lifted itself on high.

Only One Mishap

Just one mishap marred the splendor of the demonstration and that incident served only to accentuate the generally flawless efficiency of the maneuvers. A pursuit plane in the middle of the procession abruptly faltered. The engine began to miss, the propellor slowed down, the plane lost headway.

Following advance orders, the plucky pilot volplaned to the water. Speedboats streaked to the rescue. Pilot and navigator were extricated as the monoplane sank. Meanwhile, the big parade overhead proceeded, its progress uninterrupted by the missing member.

A fillip was given the affair by the unexpected appearance of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, an utterly unscheduled participant. He arrived at Mitchell field guilding his own plane, attended the officers' luncheon, flew General Ely on an inspection excursion, and when next seen was climbing into the leading plane of a Missouri national guard Echelon.

FREEPORT'S DIVIDENED FOR LAST FOUR MONTHS EARNED DURING PERIOD

NEW YORK, May 23. (AP)—E. L. Norton, president of the Freeport Texas company, told directors that the dividend for the first four months this year was fully earned in that period and the present rate of earnings is in excess of the $3 per share annual dividend requirements. The increase in sulphur production tax from 55 cents to 75 cents a ton voted by the Texas legislature, instead of the $150 increase originally proposed, will affect the company's 1931 earnings only to a nominal extent, as the law does not become operative until Sept. 1, he added.

Muggsy McGraw's Brother Located At County Farm

SPOKANE, Wash., May 23. (US)—A sick, old man at the county poor farm at Spangle today was discovered to be the brother of John (Muggsy) McGraw, wealthy manager of the New York Giants, according to apparently authentic information given the police.

Charles McGrath, 69, watchman at the Daicy mine near Addy, came to Spokane last Wednesday. That night he was found seated in a cafe, unconscious. His condition later improved slightly and he was taken to the infirmary.

Police revealed today that his right name is McGraw and that the famous "Muggsy" is his brother. According to the story told officers, McGraw for 50 years lived under the name of McGrath, having changed his name because of a misunderstanding with his father.

He left his home in New York, vowing never to return. He kept that vow and the only person to whom he ever revealed his identity was his wife, Etta Tanner McGrath, who died several years ago.

Before her death, however, she told the secret to a friend, who has honored the confidence until she found that McGrath had been stricken with serious illness and is penniless.

McGrath lost his wife 12 years ago and three years ago fire took his home and what few belongings he had been able to accumulate on his meager wages, the police were told.

OIL AND GAS MEN ASK SPECIAL TERM

oil will be left in the ground never to be recovered, and

"Whereas, the revenue for the schools of Texas and the state treasurer from the gross production tax on oil already out by approximately two-thirds will almost all together be eliminated, thereby crippling the state government itself, and

"Whereas, this deplorable situation has been brought about by a few who have no regard for the conservation of our natural resources nor for the property rights of their neighbors, and who by means of injunction suits are able to disobey the orders of the railroad commission without penalty. This unequal withdrawing of oil in the East Texas pool will not only destroy other oil fields of Texas but will result in giving this great natural resource to the rest of the world without reasonable return, and will also eventually result in the destruction of the great East Texas pool itself, and

"Whereas, more than 200,000 barrels of oil are being sold at a price less than the average lifting cost per barrel in Texas, which is occasioned by the greed of a few individuals and companies:

"Therefore, be it resolved that we, the North Texas Oil and Gas association, composed of more than 250 independent oil operators, respectfully urge the governor of Texas to call the legislature into special session not later than Tuesday, May 26, to pass a law immediately which will give the railroad commission power to curtail oil production in Texas to the market demand and to prevent the unequal withdrawal of oil from a given pool or pools by means of injunction suits and thus prevent the great catastrophe now facing this industry and the state of Texas."

ARMY WORM RUINS GRAIN AND OTHER CROPS THIS AREA

The army leaf worm is ruining many grain fields in this section, according to W. M. Priddy of Wichita Falls, who made a tour of several farms Saturday, accompanied by Leo Curtis of Byers.

In the Thornberry area they found one farm where oat stalks had been stripped bare by the warms, with cut leaves and heads forming almost a carpet on the ground, which was alive with worms.

He reported that two farmers near Electra had canceled orders for binders, explaining that the army worms were so bad in their wheat fields that they would not be worth harvesting.

In some cases the pests had invaded fields of young corn and sprouting cotton and were destroying these crops also. In one field he counted from three to five worms on every stalk of young corn.

It is also reported that the worms are causing serious damage to grain crops in Southern Oklahoma.

JOHN NEWELL GARFIELD GRANDSON OF PRESIDENT FOUND SHOT TO DEATH

CLEVELAND, May 23. (AP)—A bullet wound which Sheriff James Maloney said was self-inflicted, caused the death early today of John Newell Garfield, 39, grandson of the late James A. Garfield, 20th president of the United States.

Relatives tonight said Mr. Garfield had been in ill health but there was nothing definite to explain the tragedy.

The fatally wounded man was found by relatives last night at his home in Mentor, a Cleveland suburb. He had been shot in the head with a revolver found nearby. He did not recover consciousness.

Earlier in the evening, Mr. Garfield had attended a school operetta in which three of his five children participated.

Mr. Garfield had been associated with the Boland and Cornelius company, steamship operators, was the Cleveland commander of the Crusaders, national anti-prohition organization, and had been captain of the 134th field artillery in the world war.

Funeral services will be held privately Monday at the Mentor home.

WILL ALLOW ORCHESTRA LEADER TO LEAVE ITALY

ROME, May 23. (US)—Arturo Toscanini's passport has been temporarily withdrawn and the New York Philharmonic Symphony orchestra conductor will be allowed to leave Italy only after he has fully recovered from the attack made upon him by Fascist youths in Bologna, it was definitely learned today.

For the past week Toscanini has been living at his Milan residence. He went there following the Bologna incident when a group of ardent Fascists slapped and pummeled him for declining to open a program with the royal anthem and the Fascist hymn. The orchestra leader's injuries, while painful, are reported not to have been serious.

It was also learned today that, following the Bologna incident, Toscanini sent a telegram to Premier Mussolini telling him of the attack and concluding:

World Wheat Conference Adjourns With Half-Hearted Approval of U. S. Plan for Curing Agricultural Ills

LONDON, May 23. (US)—The world wheat conference adjourned today with half-hearted approval of the American plan for alleviating the world agricultural crisis arising out of wheat surpluses as one of its two concrete achievements.

As suggested by Samuel R. McKelvie, chief American delegate, the American plan calls for restriction of sown acreage. The American delegation stood alone in advocating this plan as against the Polish-Australian scheme for an export quota system, which it bitterly opposed.

The conference today did not suggest adoption of the American plan, but it passed over the export-quota remedy to appoint a standing committee, which "will consider where it is possible to reduce the area of production, and where it should be undertaken."

Exclusion of the Polish-Australian suggestion from further study indicated that the conference feels the American plan would be the only workable one under an international agreement.

The standing committee will have two other duties. One will be to "establish a permanent clearing house of information" for wheat growers throughout the world. This in a sense, is also a step forward toward some future solution of the surplus problem. The second duty of the committee will be to draft agenda for a future international conference.

Ten Nations Included

Its members will be chosen by the 10 nations represented at the conference. In its investigations the committee is to prove four distinct facts contributing to the chaos in world wheat markets. They are the general world business depression, the production of more wheat than can be sold without a loss, the requirements of the various wheat countries, and the state of the wheat markets throughout the world.

The invoiced approval of the American plan in the conference's recommendations came as a distinct surprise to observers, inasmuch as it had previously found little favor and had been rejected by the Soviet delegation, and disapproved by several others, notably those from the Balkans. McKelvie and the other American delegates were also somewhat surprised. McKelvie said:

"From the American point of view, the conference was entirely satisfactory. We achieved more than we expected to, particularly in obtaining the recommendation to consider possible reduction of growing areas."

G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian high commissioner and chairman of the conference said that the deliberations had "resulted in unanimity on very important lines."

STATESMEN WIND UP DISCUSSION OF EUROPEAN PEACE

League Council Refers Austro German Accord To World Court

SERIOUS CONTROVRSY BROUGHT IN SPOTLIGHT

France and Germany Face Dispute Which Has Disturbed Europe

GENEVA, Switzerland, May 23. (AP)—Europe's statesmen today concluded a week of conference on the political and economic future. Both the League of Nations council which adjourned today and the pan-European commission which wound up its work Thursday reached decisions on European peace and welfare.

The council referred the proposed Austro-German customs accord to the World Court for an advisory opinion as to its legality. The European commission laid out the plans for a practical program to relieve the economic crisis.

It launched its first relief scheme in a convention providing for the organization of an international Agricultural Mortgage Credit company.

In acting upon the Austro-German project, the council took a hand in the dispute which has torn Europe for two mónths, and brought France and Germany face to face in the most dangerous controversy yet developed within the league.

French fears that a Teutonic political union as the ultimate result of an economic merger were shared by Czechoslovakia and other French allies in central and southeastern Europe. Their representatives contended the union would violate the treaty of St. Germain and the 1922 protocol.

Hearing in September

The Hague court is likely to hear the case this summer so the council will have its opinion in time for the September meeting.

Arthur Henderson, British foreign secretary, said the council meeting demonstrated the League's value in the maintenance of friendly relations between nations in dispute. Henderson was selected chairmon of the general disarmament conference to be held next February.

It was at his suggestion that the council declined to adopt a Polish report which would have approved Polish reparations for anti-German disorders last autumn. This issue was tabled until September.

Perhaps no feature of the commission's work provoked keener interest than what was described as the greater cordiality between the Soviet delegation and the representatives of other countries.

Maxim Litvinoff, before leaving for Moscow, visited various foreign ministers. Hopes were expressed in many quarters that this may mark the invitation of closer economic cooperation between the Soviets and other countries to their mutual advantage.

Tex Guinan With Girls, Comedians And Horse Sails

NEW YORK, May 23. (INS)—Ten girls, two comedians and a white horse were bound for France today with Texas Guinan, aboard the S. S. Paris. Their object is to lengthen Broadway until it stretches around the world.

The horse's name, incidentally, is Broadway. At her appearances abroad Tex is going to fill in with a cowgirl role.

A large contingent of friends went aboard to give Tex a big hand before she sailed. The biggest hands were those of Primo Carnera. Also the biggest feet. He had to fight off the stewards trying to paste stickers on his shoes.

Meanwhile, London is all agog, wondering whether Tex will make good her threat to defy the British navy, Scotland yard, and the house of lords. Immigration authorities have been advised not to let Tex land in Britain.

Tex says let the British empire try and stop her, if she really wants to land.

ARREST IN CONNECTION WITH ROBBERY OF BANK AT ROFF, OKLA., FRIDAY

TISHOMINGO, Okla., May 23. (AP)—State Criminal Bureau Supt. C. A. Burns, Oklahoma City, and a possee from neighboring counties arrested West Stoneburnes here today in connection with the robbery yesterday of the bank of Roff, Pontotoc county.

Two other men were arrested and were accused of harboring a criminal, Burns said.

MOB UNEMPLOYED MEN STAGE RIOT IN GERMANY

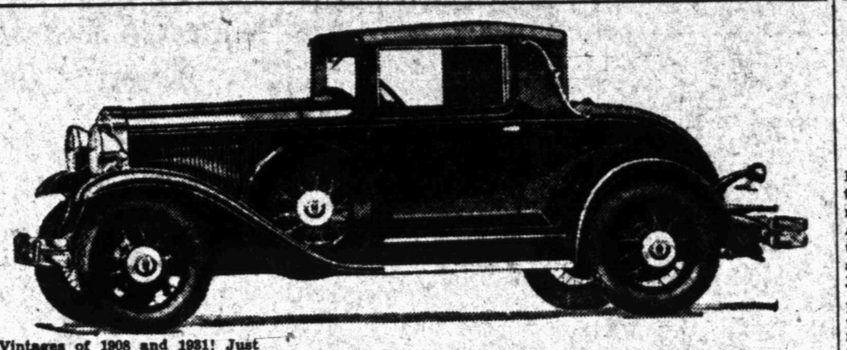

BITTERFELD, Germany, May 23. (AP)—A mob of unemployed men today stormed the town hall at Graefenhainichen, near here, demanding restoration of the emergency dole. From there they went to the home of the mayor, surrounding his sick bed and forcing him to sign an authorization for more unemployed relief.

Meanwhile another crowd raided a store operated by the welfare commissioner, to whom they administered a beating. This evening all the homes of municipal officials were under guard.

There were less serious demonstrations in other parts of the country. At Berlin a mob raided two stores, looting them of provisions.

At Essen last night one man was killed in riots which developed at a mass meeting of a workers' association.

NEW AND OLD IN HUPMOBILES — 1931 - 1908

Vintages of 1908 and 1931! Just a difference of 23 years but lots of difference in appearance of two automobiles manufactured by the Hupmobile company.

The old car was manufactured in February, 1908, and is owned by John Dodge of Wichita Falls, who resides on the Henrietta road just south of Holliday creek. The car was originally purchased by Mr. Dodge and it is yet in running order, lately appearing on the streets of this city in parades. The old car is now on exhibition in the show room of the Victory Motor company, distributor of Hupmobiles for the Wichita Falls territory.

The old car is known as model 20 and in those days was classified as a runabout. The other picture shows the new 1931 free-wheeling Hupmobile cabriolet, one of the smartest automobiles manufactured. It is equipped completely and while no price is quoted yet the difference in costs between the two cars is very little. In fact the price on the new model is less than was paid for the car manufactured in 1908, which we consider back in the good old days.

The Victory Motor company was organized in Wichita Falls May 18, 1918, and is now celebrating its 13th anniversary. During the past week many people called to see the new model Hupmobiles and this week the show room will be kept opened. The location is 517 Indiana. The business was organized by L. O. Brown, who is president and manager of the company at this time. He holds the record of being one of the oldest automobile dealers in years of service in Northwest Texas, having been selling cars since 1914.

Work to Start Immediately on First Methodist Educational Building At Eleventh and Travis—Contract Let

Work will be started immediately on the new educational building of the First Methodist church, it was announced late Saturday, following the signing of contracts relative to the construction of the building. The general contract, for a sum of $53,994, was awarded to the C. H. Reid Construction company of this city. The smaller contracts will be signed early next week, according to J. T. Harrell, chairman of the building committee.

The Reid company bid was low among a number of local and out-of-town bidders. It is based on the specifications laid down by the building committee and Ray C. Arnhold, architect, and promises a beautiful three-story fireproof, steam heated building—one of the three largest church educational buildings in any denomination in Texas and one of the largest in the entire Methodist church.

The new building joins the Travis street elevation of the recently finished chapel and is designed to match it in height, color and architecture. From Tenth street, where the church itself faces, there will be the cathedral-like effect so admired already. On Travis, the building will be 300 feet in length, broken at intervals by arch entrances. On Eleventh, the attractive facade will be three stories high.

The entire plant will occupy the western half of the block, the other half to be occupied by the new United States postoffice building.

Depth of 90 Feet

The three floors will front 90 feet on Eleventh street, while a one-story unit, also fronting on Eleventh street on the remaining 47 feet between the street and alley, will extend northward along the alley about 129 feet. Between this one-story unit and the L formed by the two wings of the three-story structure will be an open court, measuring approximately 50 by 90 feet and furnishing lighting for every room. This may also be used as an outdoor playground for children.

The English Gothic type of architecture is to be used, with the face brick matching that of the chapel building and the same type of arches, in a modified style, above its entrances.

The stained glass memorial windows taken from the old church will be utilized for many of the windows in the new building, with the entire outside of the one-story elevation decorated in this way.

The building will be super-fireproof, with partitions of steel panels, metal lath and plaster. Dark pine woodwork will be used. A trim of white stone will be utilized on both the Eleventh and Travis sides, and wood tracery will be the trimming inside the church building over the transoms.

One-Story Section

The east wing, which is the one-story section, will contain a dining room that will seat 350 and a large, modernly equipped kitchen, as well as class rooms for the Wesley Girls, the D. O. D. class, the Ladies' Bible class, the Sweeton class and the Ephphatha class.

The first floor of the main building will contain the nursery room, classrooms for the cradle roll and the beginners' department, offices for the director and educational secretary, and classrooms for the Escalator class, the Twain class, the B. O. P. class and the Business Girls' class.

On the second floor will be a general assembly room and nine classrooms for the senior high department and a general assembly room and 12 classrooms for the junior high department.

The third floor will be occupied by an assembly room and 14 classrooms for the junior department and an assembly room and five classrooms for the young people's department. A parlor and kitchenet will be included on the third floor.

In this way, the entire school will be provided for, with the exception of the primary department and the Kay Bible class, both of which will be quartered in the basement of the church building.

BOTH SIDES REST IN MURDER TRIAL VIRGIL KIRKLAND

Only Closing Argument To Be Heard Before Case Goes to Jury

WOMEN ACCOST JURORS IN BEHALF OF YOUTH

Six Verdicts Possible Under Charge Given To Jurors

VALPARAISO, Ind., May 23. (US)—State and defense rested today in the trial of Virgil Kirkland for the death of Arlene Draves, and the young defendant had only the closing arguments of counsel to come before his fate is given into the hands of the jury.

Arlene, Kirkland's sweetheart, died following a liquor party last November at Gary, Ind., where it is charged Kirkland and four companions attacked her.

Rebuttal testimony today was brief, the feature being the story of Dorothy Holmes, one of the girls who attended the party with Arlene where "strip poker" was said yesterday by Kirkland to have been played by girls and youths.

Examined by Prosecutor John Underwood, she vigorously denied the picture that Kirkland had painted of an orgy of drinking, where girls had divested themselves of most of their garments.

Jurors Accosted

Another ripple of excitement spread through the crowded courtroom when Judge Grant Crumpacker was informed by a bailiff that women spectators at the trial had accosted the jurors as they were being led from the courtroom, and pleaded for Kirkland's life.

Outraged at the report, Judge Crumpacker delivered a bitter denunciation of such activities, and warned the jurors to take no cognizance of any words spoke to them by anyone save officers of the court.

Before he adjourned court until Monday, the judge also listed the six possible verdicts that might be returned in the case, and arranged the order of final arguments.

Although a verdict of guilty on the counts charged in the indictment carries a mandatory death sentence, the court has ruled that the jury may find Kirkland guilty of a lesser offense than that charged, if the evidence so warrants. The possible verdicts are:

Murder in the first degree (by attack, or attempted attack) carrying the death penalty; attack, five to 21 years; involuntary manslaughter, one to 10 years; assault and battery with attempt to attack, two to 14 years; simple assault and battery, six months in jail, or a fine of not more than $1,000; and not guilty.

U. S. TO CONTINUE SANCTION IMPORTS OF PRISON RUBBER

WASHINGTON, May 23. (US)—The United States will continue to sanction the importation of convict-produced rubber from the Dutch East Indies to prevent a British monopoly and protect American industry, the state department announced today.

This was made clear in denial of published reports that such convict imports, totaling millions of dollars, were to be shut off under the Smoot-Hawley tariff act.

The tariff commission made known it has made no survey at the request of the state department other than such data as was requested over a year ago when the tariff legislation was before congress.

It was formally announced that the tariff act specifically exempted rubber from Sumatra from the provisions which would exclude other products turned out by slave, convict or indentured labor.

The royal visitors were entertained last night at a dinner given by Kanama Wakasugi, Japanese consul general in San Francisco. They arrived here from Del Monte after visiting Stanford university at Palo Alto.

The prince and princess will visit the University of California in Berkeley tomorrow and then will visit the Yosemite, returning here Tuesday.

HOOVER CAMP, RAPIDAN, Va., May 23. (US)—Talking over the radio from his remote mountain camp here today, President Hoover paid a glowing tribute to the heroism of American collegians as part of the ceremony dedicating the Cornell university war memorial.

His tribute was primarily to the 9,000 Cornell men who saw service in the world war, but he took occasion to give a word of praise to all of the young Americans who served on the fields of France.

The president spoke today from a temporary microphone placed in front of the fireplace in the recreation building known as the town hall. A blazing fire was required to relieve the mountain chill.

He spoke from Los Angeles over a nation-wide hookup in connection with the New York meeting of the national advisory council on radio in education. He was introduced by President Hoover, speaking from the White House.

MOB OF STRIKING HIGHWAY WORKERS STORM CITY HALL

GREENWICH, Conn., May 23. (UP)—A mob of 1,000 striking highway laborers stormed town hall today, crashing in the front door and resisting efforts of police to disperse them.

Town Counsel Wilbur S. Wright, after watching a squad of 40 policemen helpless before the mob, declared he would call out the militia if order were not restored soon.

All the police force had been called out and tear gas and fire hose were to be used.

Representatives of the construction companies urged the strikers to retire quietly and send leaders to a conference Monday. The crowd only continued pushing forward across the plot of grass in front of town hall.

The policemen, wielding night sticks, were driven back steadily until at last they stood in the corridors of the hall.

Attorney John Knox, representing local 66, one of the striking groups, was pushed through the plate glass pane of the front door and the door gave way with a crash. The lawyer suffered a severely lacerated hand. Others were cut by flying glass.

PAPAL NUNCIO TO QUIT SPAIN

Departure Regarded as Rupture of Relations

MADRID, May 23. (AP)—The Spanish religious situation became more unsettled tonight when it was reported in authoritative circles that Papal Nuncio Tedeschini might leave Madrid in a few days.

During the past week Monsignor Tedeschini has been holding frequent secret conferences with President Niceto Alcala Zamora concerning Pope Pius' note of protest against recently anti-church riots and destruction of church property.

In the past such departures of Papal Nuncio have been regarded as a prologue to a rupture of diplomatic relations. It was said a secretary probably will be left in charge of the nunciatura here.

This latest devolpment follows last night's cabinet decree guaranteeing equal freedom of worship for all creeds in Spain, generally regarded as the first step toward separating the state and church. Many Catholics consider this decree as a direct violation of the concordat signed with the Vatican in 1851.

It was said the government here did not intend to appoint a successor to Luis Zulueta, designated as amabassador to the Vatican city, but reported as persona non grata there, under the present circumstances, with the title of ambassador to the He probably will remain in Madrid Vatican.

Boxing Champion Loses Decision To Five Holdup Men

LOS ANGELES, May 23. (AP)—Tommy Ryan, former welterweight boxing champion, lost a decision to holdup men here last night.

Ryan, whose real name is Joseph Young, with his wife, operates a restaurant near a Culver City motion picture studio. The Youngs have been accustomed to take the week's receipts home with them Friday night, preparatory to banking the money Saturday.

Last night they had $3,350 as they drove up to their garage. Another automobile drew up behind and five men leaped out. Although he is well past 50 years, the former champion accepted the challenge. But he could not cope with five men armed with pistols, and was stopped by pistol blows on his head.

With the former boxer unconscious the robbers took the money from Mrs. Young and drove away. The Youngs were treated at a hospital for cuts and bruises.

OXFORD UNIVERSITY CONFERS DEGREE ON DR. ALBERT EINSTEIN

OXFORD, England, May 23. (AP)—Prof. Albert Einstein, who developed the theory of relativity, today was praised as "a brilliant ornament of our century" when Oxford university conferred the degree of doctor of science on him.

Wearing the scarlet degree robe, which marked him as the holder of this honor, the noted mathematician went from the meeting to a lecture room where he completed his series of Rhodes lectures.

The little scientist was overshadowed in size when he was escorted into the old Sheldonian between four large mace-bearers. Dr. Arthur Poynton, the public orator, then eulogized the recipient of the degree.

After the ceremony Vice Chancellor F. W. Pimber admitted Dr. Einstein to the honors of the degree and shook hands with him.

DEMANDS WHOLESALE CUT IN ARMY APPROPRIATIONS

WASHINGTON, May 23. (US)—Foreshadowing savage warfare in congress over army appropriations, Representative Ross Collins, Democrat, of Mississippi, today fired the first gun for the "little army" men by demanding wholesale reduction in officer personnel and fortifications.

Collins is ranking Democrat on the house appropriations subcommittee in charge of war department appropriations. If the Democrats organize the house, he will be chairman of the subcommittee.

MURRAY CONTENDS HELL GOOD WORD

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 23. (AP)—Now comes William Henry (Alfalfa Bill) Murray, governor of Oklahoma, as public lexicographer.

The governor contends "the word 'hell' has not an immoral or illegal meaning. Indeed, preachers often time use it in the pulpit, as I understand it, it is a place to which some school teachers may journey, as well as parents or the people."

Governor Murray released tonight a letter written to Mrs. J. M. Barton, Claremore, Okla., whose son, 12 years old, was "thrown out of school" because he "used the word hell."

He instructed Mrs. Barton to show the letter to the school superintendent and advise him the state's legal department would take mandamus action to return the child to school if he failed to do so.

FARMERS ADVISED TO USE CARRYOVER FOR MATTRESSES

AUSTIN, May 23. (AP)—A proposal that Texas farmers should tear up the bales of their carry over cotton and have the cotton made into mattresses for their own use was made to the state executive committee of Progressive Texans, Inc., here today by J. E. McDonald, Texas commissioner of agriculture. This, he said, would help wipe out a threatened surplus of nearly a year's cotton supply that endangers this year's prices.

Charles R. Tips, Three Rivers, general campaign chairman, announced the finance campaign of Progressive Texans, Inc., is nearing its close, and that the organization will be able to launch its program advertising in Texas and out of the state for the greater use of Texas manufactured products.

Senator W. K. Hopkins, Gonzales, predicted the statewide drive for increased use of Texas factory products will have lasting effect.

John W. Carpenter, Dallas, presided at the sessions. Charles E. Coombes, retiring West Texas Chamber of Commerce president, urged a favorable advertising program. Dr. N. D. Bule, Marlin, addressed a session as president of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce and as representative of Gov. Ross S. Sterling, who was in Houston.

Other speakers included E. L. Tutt, Houston, and Sherwood Avery, Dallas, of the United States department of commerce, on research work, and A. B. Cox, director of business research in the University of Texas, and Dean F. C. Bolton of A. & M. engineering school.

Fear Outbreaks And Urge Troops Remain at Marfa

ALPINE, Texas, May 23. (AP)—Fearing outbreaks and raids along the border if Fort D. A. Russell at Marfa is abandoned by troops, the Brewster County Chamber of Commerce has sent a telegram to Governor Sterling soliciting his aid in preventing removal of the soldiers.

It was pointed out that Fort Russell is the only post along the Rio Grande between Fort Bliss, El Paso, and Fort Clark, Brackettville, a distance of more than 500 miles. The Mexican government also has been requested to cooperate in the move to retain the post.

APPEAL TO BRIAND TO RECONSIDER ANNOUNCED DESIRE TO QUIT OFFICE

PARIS, May 23. (UP)—Premier Pierre Laval appealed to Foreign Minister Briand today to reconsider his announced desire to resign.

The necessity of Briand's guidance until a naval accord is reached and the Hague reaches a decision in regard to the Austro-German customs union was stressed by Premier Laval, who called on Briand at the quai d'Orsay.

Briand will spend the week-end at Cucherel, but he promised to make a definite statement about his resignation at Wednesday's cabinet meeting, when he reports on the mission to Geneva.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 23. (AP)—Recessed today after ending the first week of the impeachment trial of Larry Brunk, suspended state treasurer, the Missouri senate will return Monday to hear two of the state's chief witnesses tell what knowledge they have of the alleged irregularities, high crimes, misdemeanors and misconduct in office charged against Brunk.

CONCEDE GROWING IMPORTANCE PLANE CIVIL AND MILITARY

WASHINGTON, May 23. (US)—The rapidly growing importance of the airplane in both military and civil activities was manifest today in announcements by three branches of the government.

The war department announced the award of contracts totalling $1,861,000 for 56 new planes to round out the army air service and bring it nearer the state of efficiency contemplated in the five-year program authorized by congress.

The navy department announced that 12 vessels are to be equipped at once with additional fueling and lifting gear in order to increase the facilities for flying boat squadrons. These alterations will be completed before the joint army and navy maneuvers are held off the Hawaiian islands next spring.

The third announcement came from the commerce department revealing that 672 airplanes were manufactured in the United States during the first quarter of 1931—an increase of 87 over the final quarter of 1930.

Among the alterations planned on the warships are larger storage tanks for airplane fuel and additional quarters for personnel to care for the planes.

LA FOLLETTE SAYS HOOVER CONTINUES DO-NOTHING POLICY

WASHINGTON, May 23. (AP)—The refusal of President Hoover to call congress into special session was criticised today by Senator LaFollette, Republican, Wisconsin, as a "continuation of his do-nothing policy."

The senator presented a six-point program for congressional action in a special session, but there was no doubt in the minds of those in congress that Mr. Hoover's announcement today that he would not call an extra session was final.

"This policy," said Senator LaFollette, "condemns millions of our fellow citizens to privation, want, starvation even and inevitably will result in a lowered standard of living and the degradation of citizenship."

CHARGE CREIGHTON HAS BEEN INVOLVED LONG LIST CRIMES

JOPLIN, Mo., May 23. (AP)—The slaying of Coyne Hatten, 27, at Webb City, a $27,773 bank holdup at Hastings, Neb., a $13,000 postoffice robbery near Amarillo, Texas, and a $3,000 robbery at Borger, Texas, are specific crimes which authorities believe involves James Creighton, who is in jail at Carthage.

Postoffice inspectors came to Jasper county and, after viewing Creighton, said they were positive of their identity of him as a participant in the Texas postoffice robberies.

Police here said Creighton also is suspected of having been involved in bank robberies in Oklahoma and Texas.

Hastings officers said Creighton once was an associate of Danny Daniels, who killed himself after leading the revolt in the Colorado penitentiary in October, 1929.

Psychiatrist's Paper Classifying Lincoln as Sufferer From Mental Disorder Brings Bitter Protests

NEW YORK, May 22. (AP)—A paper classifying Abraham Lincoln as a sufferer from definite attacks of mental disorder, to be given by Dr. A. A. Brill, former Columbia university psychiatry clinic head, has evoked a bitter protest from Dr. Edward E. Hicks, prominent Brooklyn psychiatrist.

Dr. Brill describes Lincoln as a schizoid-maniac personality. He points out that the "occasional coarseness" of the president's wit was a manifestation of his psychosis.

Dr. Hicks came upon the statements of his colleague in the program of the association's 87th annual meeting which contains abstracts of the speeches to be delivered.

Indignant over Dr. Brill's analysis of Lincoln, Dr. Hicks charged Dr. Brill with "blaspheming the memory of the immortal dead," and has entered a formal protest against the speech with Dr. Walter M. English of Brockville, Ont., president of the association, and with Dr. Samuel W. Hamilton, White Plains, N. Y., chairman of the program committee.

Dr. Brill's only comment was to state he intended delivering the address and would stick to the original text of the speech.

CENTER WILDCAT SHOWS OIL FROM NEW STRATA

CENTER, Texas, May 23. (AP)—With plenty of oil standing in the slush pit, S. J. Sloane, head of the company drilling the Sloane-Tokio Windham No. 1 wildcat test seven miles east of here, smilingly announced Saturday "that we got oil."

He expressed confidence that the well would prove a producer and at a strata in which oil has not been found before in the East Texas fields. The pay sand was hit last night about 7 o'clock at 3365 feet. News that oil was standing in the slush pit caused intense excitement at Center, Shelbyville and nearby towns, and hundreds of persons early Saturday began to trek to the wildcat location to see the well brought in.

Casing was to be set at once, Sloane stated, and it was hoped that the well would be brought in Monday or Tuesday. A drill stem test was to be made tonight.

THOUSAND ATTEND FINAL RITES FOR SHOOTING VICTIM

LOS ANGELES, May 23. (AP)—More than 1,000 persons, gathered at St. Paul's Presbyterian church today at final rites for Charles H. Crawford, slain in his office along with Herbert Spencer, newspaperman, Wednesday.

Men of the underworld, who recognized Crawford as the "grey wolf," rubbed elbows with those who knew the man as a recent brother in the church—a member whose contributions totaled more than $25,000.

There were city officials, for Crawford was a power in politics.

The Rev. Gustav Brieglieb, who accepted Crawford's church membership a few months ago, and who was at his hospital cot when he died of gunshot wounds, read an eulogy of hope.

"It isn't how long are your steps," he said. "It's the direction you are going. Charlie Crawford, had a lot to overcome, but he was on the right path. He was a good man."

Special Prosecutor

LOS ANGELES, May 23. (AP)—Hunt for a woman, appointment of a special prosecutor and grilling of the police chief by the acting mayor marked today's investigation into the Hollywood killing last Wednesday of Charles H. Crawford, wealthy political boss, and his lieutenant, Herbert Spencer, magazine writer.

Seemingly least concerned of all was David Harris Clark, candidate for municipal judge and former deputy district attorney, held on charges of double murder.

A detective left Los Angeles today, accompanied by a deputy district attorney, and was reported to have gone to San Francisco to find June Taylor, a woman the police are very anxious to question.

She was the confidante of Albert Marco, vice chieftain of Los Angeles now in state's prison. He was convicted by Clark, but the woman was said by police to have been seen in Clark's company subsequently.

W. Joseph Ford, 20 years ago a deputy district attorney, who aided the prosecution of the McNamara brothers convicted of dynamiting the Los Angeles Times, was named by District Attorney Buron Fitts as special prosecutor. He has figured in trials of Alex Pantages, Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, and other spectacular cases.

Peter Kyne Hero To Hunt Whales For Movie Firm

But the tall, robust old sailorman, one of the most romantic figures of the ocean lanes, known in every Pacific coast port and hero of Peter B. Kyne's stories of the sea will not pace the decks of some dancing square rigger running before a heavy breeze for distant climes.

Captain Peasley, who first came to the Pacific ocean in 1888 after several years at sea along the Maine coast, will head a whaling expedition into Alaskan waters starting from Seattle July 1.

In years past this port has seen sturdy steam "killer boats" sail for the northern whaling grounds for oil, bone and fertilizer. The expedition Captain Peasley will join is of a different sort. Its members will hunt whales, not with harpoons, however, but with cameras.

The "cargo" they hope to bring back will consist of reels of motion pictures and stills of the playful finbacks enjoying themselves in their native haunts between Glacier Bay and Mount Faiseweather near Cordova.

'LIE DETECTOR' BRINGS RESULTS

CHICAGO, May 23. (US)—Detectives lined up several employes of a downtown hotel today seeking, without success, to solve the disappearance of a wallet with $90 from under a guest's pillow.

"Well," said one of the sleuths starting for the telephone, "I'll just have to send for the 'lie detector.'"

"Whassat?" asked a negro maid, her eyes rolling.

"Don't you-all mind about that lie detector," said the maid. "I guess the money is under that rug."

LABOR FEDERATION EXECUTIVE VOICES APPROVAL FARRELL

WASHINGTON, May 23. (AP)—The leader of organized labor and the head of one of America's greatest industrial corporations today stood aligned against employers who attempt wage reductions.

President Green of the American Federation of Labor gave his approval to charges of President Farrell of the United States Steel corporation that "big standard companies" had not maintained wage scales. He said Farrell's statement should have a most "stabilizing and profound effect."

"Mr. Farrell classifies the action of those who are reducing wages as a 'pretty sort of business'," Green said. "Labor charges them with violating the agreement made with the people of the United States through their chief executive, the president . . . I am glad President Farrell exposed this sniping in wages. No one could bring it out into the open quite as effectively as he.

"Through such exposure, the public is given an opportunity to understand with what little regard some employers hold a solemn covenant made with the people."

The federation previously had charged that certain interests were contemplating a general reduction in wages, despite the agreement obtained in 1929 by President Hoover from labor and capital that wages would be kept on the same level during depression.

TRUCK OPERATOR IS SUED FOR $65,750 TRAIN WRECK CASE

Two damage suits were filed in district court here Saturday in connection with the fatal train wreck which occurred at the Oklaunion underpass last Aug. 3. The petitions allege that the wreck was caused by the rails having been moved out of line when a truck loaded with an oil field boiler failed to clear the underpass.

One suit is filed by Mrs. Laura Marley Robinson, wife of the Fort Worth and Denver engineer killed in the wreck, against W. J. McFarland, named as the owner of the truck, and asks damages totaling $25,750.

The Fort Worth and Denver City Railway company is plaintiff in the other suit and seeks $40,000 damages from McFarland for damage to the locomotive and underpass.

SEIZE NARCOTICS VALUED AT MORE THAN $25,000 IN ROOM CHICAGO HOTEL

CHICAGO, May 23. (US)—Narcotics valued at more than $25,000 were seized today by federal agents in the room of a guest at the Palmer house, exclusive downtown hotel. It was said by Agent H. B. Westover to be the largest haul for years in Chicago.

A man arrested in the room gave his name as Edward Bender.

Passports in his possession, Westover said, indicated that he recently had visited France, Germany and Cuba.

BODY OF PIONEER JEWISH WOMAN TO LIE IN STATE HERE

The body of Mrs. Della Goldstucker, 60, prominent for years in Jewish church and charitable activities, is to lie in state at Temple Israel Sunday afternoon from 1 o'clock until the time of the funeral, which will be held there at 4 o'clock. The casket then will remain closed.

Mrs. Goldstucker, who was president of the woman's council of the temple and a member of the Culture club and the United Daughters of the Confederacy, was found dead in her bed Friday morning at her home at 1314 Kemp boulevard. She apparently was in excellent health when she retired.

Funeral services for Mrs. Goldstucker are to be conducted by Rabbi S. J. Schwab of Temple Israel. Burial is to be in the Jewish cemetery at Rosemont. Arrangements are in charge of the Merkle Undertaking company.

Pallbearers are to be Sam Kruger, I. A. Fine, Al Horwitz, J. Cohen, A. Marks, Louis Pink, Sol Lasky and Eugene Liepold.

Charges Gambling Has Become Habit Employes of U. S.

WASHINGTON, May 23. (US)—Charges that "hundreds, if not thousands, of government employes here gamble on horse races, lotteries and baseball results during office hours, were made by Representative John C. Schafer, Republican, of Wisconsin, today.

In a letter to Walter H. Newton, secretary to President Hoover, the representative suggested that efficiency of the government service could be improved if a drive were made against gambling.

With official Washington already rocked by a series of murders and an outbreak of racketeers' warfare, Schafer's charges of widespread gambling in government offices came as a bombshell. He wrote:

"I take the liberty to make a suggestion which in my mind would add to more efficiency in the governmental service.

"It is a well known fact that hundreds, if not thousands, of government employes in the various departments devote a considerable part of the time for which they are receiving pay from the government, to active interest in baseball pools, horse race bets and lotteries in their own and other offices and with the use of government telephones."

Schafer said reports had come to him that some governmental offices were "completely demoralized" by the gambling fever; that bookmakers loiter around the building to receive bets and telephones are kept busy all day to place bets and results on horse races. He added:

"I was told that in one office where there are 14 women employed, all but two bet on horse races. Some clerks spend more time looking over the racing from sheets than they do on their government duties."

JOHN M'CORMICK AND BRIDE ARE HONEYMOONING AFTER BELATED WEDDING

HONOLULU, T. H., May 23. (UP)—John McCormick, Hollywood film executive, and his bride, the former Mrs. Janet Gattis, were honeymooning in Hawaii today after a belated wedding ceremony that was delayed by legal complaints.

Mrs. Gattis, socially prominent in Beverly Hills and Washington, D. C., was to have married McCormick last Tuesday. The ceremony was deferred when Colleen Moore, film star and former wife of McCormick, failed to obtain a final decree of divorce in Los Angeles.

Miss Moore later secured the decree and the Honolulu wedding was held last night.

Former Students and Other Friends Of Sister Mary Ann Join in Honoring Her on Occasion of Golden Jubilee

Former students, fellow sisters of her own order and pastors of various churches over the state joined Thursday at the Sacred Heart church in honoring Sister Mary Ann, of the faculty of the Academy of Mary Immaculate, on her golden jubilee, the 50th anniversary of her entrance into the religious profession.

Sister Mary Ann, still active in her duties and loved by the children at the academy, has been in Texas for 45 years and at this academy for 23 years, exceeded in length of service here only by Sister Bernard, who came here 27 years ago to establish the academy and who celebrated her jubilee a few years ago.

Sister Catherine, who died in February, would have been honored Thursday with Sister Mary Ann if she had lived, for they entered the profession together.

A solemn high mass was celebrated in her honor at 9:30 o'clock in the morning with the Rev. Patrick J. F. O'Beirne as celebrant, the Rev. Boniface Spanke, O. S. B. of Rhineland, as deacon, and the Rev. Paul Mosler, O. M. I., of Seymour, as sub-deacon. In the sanctuary were the Rev. Emmett McDonnell, C. M. of Dallas, and the Rev. Michael Munar, T. O. R., pastor of the Church of Our Lady of Guadalupe.

The Rev. Leo Gerschwyler, O. S. B., of Windthorst, and the Rev. Hermann Redder of Henrietta, were also honor guests.

Sister Mary Ann, wearing a golden wreath about her head for the occasion, was accompanied in the processional from the academy to the church by the Venerable Sisters Brendau and Camillus, sisters of charity of St. Vincent de Paul, of St. Paul's sanitarium at Dallas, and two visiting sisters of her own order, the Venerable Sisters Augustine and Boniface of St. Xavier's academy of Denison.

Still wearing her golden wreath, Sister Mary Ann was seated in a place of honor in the center aisle of the church. The Rev. Father O'Beirne preached a sermon paying a beautiful tribute to her on the occasion of the jubilee and to religious life in general. The altar was decorated in white and gold for the occasion by the Altar society and music was furnished by the parish choir.

PLANS MADE FOR BUSINESS MEN'S TOUR OF VALLEY

The annual business men's tour of the Wichita valley, sponsored by the Junior chamber of commerce, will be staged about the middle of June, according to the announcement Saturday of Frank Wolf, chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Any interested business man or citizen of Wichita Falls will be invited to go on the trip, which will have as its chief purpose the bringing of business men of the city into closer contact with the farmers of the valley, Mr. Wolf said.

The trip is to be an all-day affair, with luncheon probably being given at Iowa Park. Among communities to be visited will be Charlie, Petrolia and Clara.

The trip for local residents is to occur two weeks before a similar tour arranged for a meeting of key farmers representing 75 or more communities and counties of Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma who are to assemble here during the latter part of the month.

Mayflower Hotel Home of Curtis In Receivership

WASHINGTON, May 23. (UP)—The Mayflower hotel, home of Vice President Curtis and nationally known as a meeting place of celebrities, is in the hands of a receiver. Justice Jennings Bailey handed down a temporary order on petition of Mabel Walker Willebrandt, representing several bondholders.

Mrs. Willebrandt charged that $1,600,000 had been stolen from the investing public when a bond issue on the hotel was floated in 1928. She accused the American Bond and Mortgage company, now being investigated by the department of justice, of control of the hotel and perpetration of the alleged fraud.

Bond issues in 1928, she says, to the extent of $9,900,000, were for the purpose of "enriching themselves, and with the intent to trick, cheat and defraud the investing public." She asserted that after repaying old obligations and meeting the cost of the issues, the defendants had left more than $1,600,000 for themselves. Mayflower bonds, she said, are held by persons all over the country, many of them inexperienced in such matters, and unable to unite for common action.

SAUL'S BARGAIN ANNEX

EXTRA BASE HITS AND COONEY'S PITCHING DOWN SPORTS'

The Spudders are to conclude their home stand Sunday with Shreveport, depart for two days and then return for a string of eight games with Dallas and Fort Worth. Next week's program calls for double-headers on Wednesday and Friday and possibly Sunday. Two postponements hanging fire with Dallas are to be played off in the Wednesday and Friday bargains. Fort Worth is scheduled here Saturday, Sunday and Monday, and it is probable that the Monday game will be played as part of a Sunday double-header. If such is the case the Spudders will go into eight games in five days. With the Dallas and Fort Worth clubs, always the best drawing teams in Wichita Falls, as the opposition, this stretch of games might easily determine Wichta Falls' baseball future.

Just what will happen to the Wichita Falls franchise if business does not pick up down at the foot of Seventh street is a problem too intricate for us to attempt to answer. That something will happen if attendance is not improved soon by at least 100 per cent can be seen at just one glance at attendance figures. Aside from a Sunday game that attracted a few more than 600, the present home stand of the Spudders reached its high mark when there were 269 paid admissions Friday for the final Beaumont series. It takes no expert figuring to ascertain that Texas league baseball cannot continue in Wichita Falls with that kind of support. Figures for the season show that Wichita Falls is far below every other city in the league and below its total for the seasons of the past—for the same number of games, for the same period of time, or any other way you look at it.

These games this week, with double-headers coming up with the clubs that Wichita Falls fans have proved in the past to be most interested in, will provide the true test of this city's baseball interest. Unless these games attract far more fans than those already played, the Spudder ownership will have a real problem on its hands. If the fans are not sufficiently interested to turn out for double-headers with Dallas and Fort Worth, the baseball situation will appear quite hopeless. Where it will end, unless the situation does improve, none can know. The only thing certain is that the club cannot continue to operate on the kind of support it has received thus far this year.

Wichita Falls has been extremely fortunate in a baseball way. We fear that baseball has given more than it has received up to the present time. Operation of baseball teams in competition with cities much larger usually is a costly business. Wichita Falls is one of the few exceptions. In 11 years of competing with Dallas, San Antonio, Houston and Fort Worth, cities that because of their greater population should be able to give their teams profitable support, Wichita Falls clubs not only have held their own on the playing field, but they have not cost this city a nickel. During its 11 years of existence the franchise has been under three separate ownerships. All have survived without having to call in outside assistance. Not many of the smaller minor league franchises have been as wisely operated. We don't believe there is a baseball enterprise in the land that is as deserving of every assistance possible, now that it is needed.

We don't believe it is necessary to call attention to the substantial qualities of Texas league baseball as a civic asset, but Secretary Guy Airey bobbed up with a few figures the other day that might be startling to the actual observer. Every ticket purchaser at one of the Houston games was asked to give his address and it was found that the game was attended by 118 out of town fans and 90 from Wichita Falls. This was exclusive, of course, of the woman fans who were admitted free of charge. Practically every town within Wichita Falls' trade territory, both in Texas and Oklahoma, were represented among the 118 visitors. Wichita Falls has no other asset that will focus as much attention from its trade territory. R. O. Harvey, owner of the club during its first six years, says the ratio of out of town fans and home fans at this particular game was not unusual. "We found that our attendance in the first six years of the club ran just about that way all the time; 60 per cent from out of town."

The Spudders, incidentally, are playing the kind of baseball that should interest the fans to a high degree. We can't remember a more enjoyable string of games than the two series concluded Friday with Houston and Beaumont. The Spudders played good baseball—the kind to remind one of the great teams of the last four years—in each of those five games. They wone by scores of 5 to 4, 5 to 2 and 6 to 5 and lost by counts of 4 to 3 and 4 to 2. Certainly there can be no complaint on games of that type. If it is color in the individual performers that is most desired, we offer the following gleaned from this week's official Texas league averages:

Fuss and Stanton are among the first five hitters in the league.
Gullic is first in home runs.
Gullic is third in runs scored.
Stanton is first in total hits.
Stanton is first in two-base hits.
Garms and Badgro are tied for the lead in three-base hits.
Gullic is second in runs batted in.
Badgro is third in runs batted in.

If there is not color in a team that includes the league's leading home run hitter, the leading two-base hitter and two who are tied for the league in triples, we don't know where to look for it. And to top it off, the Spudders are the league's leader in club batting!

Spudder Win 7-3 Decision as Long Hits Get Results

Gullic and Badgro Clout Home Runs; Sunday Ends Home Stay

The Spudders used rare judgment in inserting three extra base hits into their attack, where they would do the most good and won the opening game of the series from the Shreveport Sports Saturday, 7 to 3. Ted Gullic and Red Badgro, with circuit smashes, and Buck Stanton, with a triple drove in five runs and they were more than enough for Bob Cooney, bouncing Robert holding the foe to six blows and keeping the game well under control at all stages.

Gullic's homer bears unusual importance, for it snapped the tall boy out of a slump that has extended through most of the home stand, but it had no more telling effect in the final score than Bear Allday's two singles or Stanton's triple that drove in two.

Cooney's victory was his fourth of the season and gives him the leadership of the Spudder flingers, as only one decision has gone against him. He allowed the Sports more than one hit in only one inning and one of the three Sport runs was unearned. Grandpa Wood and Pat Moulton were victims of the Spudder attack in two big innings, each of which was aided along by ragged fielding of the invaders.

The Spudders close their home stand with Sunday's tilt with the Sports, starting at 3 o'clock. Milt Steengrafe is slated to pitch for the home cause, with Oscar Tuero likely to carry the burden for Shreveport.

The appendicitis jinx continues to trail the Spudder family. Wilma Williams, 14-year-old daughter of Manager Carl Williams, underwent an operation for the removal of the appendix Friday night at Santa Anna, and Saturday was reported in a satisfactory condition.

The home club passed up chances in the first and second. After Garms had lined to right on the first pitch, Allday walked and Stanton was safe on Winegarner's wide throw. Mueller came up with a nice stop of Gullic's smash for a double play. With one away in the second, Fuss doubled off the left field fence, but was out at third attempting to advance on Scharein's pop fly that fell safe back of second. Bradbury was purposely passed and Cooney popped to second. Gullic's homer started the scoring in the third, and it all happened after the side should have been retired. Cashion in left muffed Stanton's sharp line drive and Gullic blasted his homer over the left field fence close to the foul line to give the Spudders a two-run lead.

Aided by a pair of double plays, Cooney had little trouble in the first three rounds. A pass to Solters put the only Sport on base in the first two. Mueller opened the third with a double past third. Cooney tossed out Wood with no advance. Whelan walked. Vorhoff fanned on the three-and-two ball and Mueller was doubled at third. Solters walked in the fourth, but was wiped out with Wade in a double play, Scharein to Allday to Stanton, and Cashion flied to Badgro.

Wood produced the telling wallop in Shreveport's three-run splurge in the fifth. Rowland singled with one away and Mueller reached first on Scharein's error. Wood doubled to left center, counting both runners and scored a moment later on Whelan's single. The latter went out stealing and Vorhoff was called out on strikes. In the next inning Wade's hit to left went for three bases when Badgro failed to make a shoe-string catch, but the extra bases proved harmless when Scharein threw out Winegarner.

Cooney's Hit Helps

Cooney opened the Spudder half with a single to left and moved to third on Allday's single after Garms had flied out. Cooney scored as Stanton was grounding out. Gullic was intentionally passed and the strategy worked when Badgro lined out to Mueller at Short. Fuss provided an opening with a sixth inning single, but the hit failed to materialize as Scharein flied to right and Bradbury fanned.

Things began to happen in the seventh and when it was over the hopefuls had a 7 to 3 lead. Wood helped his own downfall with one away in the seventh when he failed to touch first after taking a toss from Whelan on Garms' hopper. Allday followed with a single past second, sending Garms to third and Stanton socked a triple into left, scoring as Gullic, first to face Moulton, rolled out, third to first. Badgro decided the only way to get a hit was to put the ball where the fielders couldn't get it and lofted one over the left center field fence. It was his third sound wallop of the day, but the only one to land in safe territory.

The Sports had a chance when Rowland singled in the seventh, but he was forced on Mueller's attempted sacrifice, Wood fanned and Badgro gathered in Whelan's fly. The invaders went down one-two-three in the last two innings.

The home club loaded the bases in the eighth on Scharein's single, Mueller's error on Bradbury and a pass to Garms, but Allday socked into a double play. The score:

GALVESTON, May 23. (AP)—With Estell resting on third in the tenth inning of Saturday's game and two men out, Manager Del Pratt instructed Lefty Dumovich to pass Sanguinet and get to Stebbins. LATEST ACE OF SPUDDER STAFF

BOB COONEY

Winning his fourth game of the season to balance against a lone defeat, Bob Cooney Saturday took on the mythical rating of the Spudder ace. He held the Shreveport Sports to six hits Saturday and made his fourth win a convincing one. One of the smallest chunkers in the league, Cooney belies his physical dimensions with a swift fast ball, a curve that bends and a change of pace that seldom fails to work in the pinches.

Nocona Redskins Capture District Baseball Crown

Evans Fans 20 as Team Scores 7 to 3 Win Over Bomarton Nine

"Calf" Evans, Nocona High school fireball artist, pitched the Montague county team to the interscholastic league district No. 4 baseball championship Saturday afternoon on Harrison field when he let Bomarton down with six bingles while his mates were scoring a 7 to 3 victory. Evans fanned no less than 20 of the Bomarton batters, with no passes to first being charged against him.

Sloppy fielding behind Bruce McElroy, starting pitcher for the Bomarton nine, coupled with several timely bingles gave Nocona a good lead. Burns, who finished the game for Bomarton, hurled nice baseball for the last five innings, holding Nocona to one run and one hit. McElroy fanned seven men in the first four innings, and Burns four in the last five. McCall of Nocona, with two triples, was the big gun in the Nocona attack. Zachary tied his teammate with hits, collecting two singles in five trips to the plate. Score:

Van Ryn and Lott Sweep Into Semifinals Of French Tournament

MONTREAL, Que., May 23. (AP)—The weather man took a hand in the Davis cup tennis series between the United States and Canada Saturday, sending a downpour of rain to halt hostilities for the day after Sidney B. Wood Jr., New York, had won the first set of his match with the Montreal veteran, Dr. Jack Wright.

After waiting an hour for the rain to stop, officials decided to postpone all play until Sunday afternoon. Americans Advance

AUTEUIL, France, May 23. (AP)—George Lott and John Van Ryn, who probably will represent the United States in the doubles if America wins through to the challenge round of Davis cup play, Saturday won their way into the semi-finals of men's doubles in the French hard court championship.

The two Americans swept to an easy victory in the quarter-finals over Ian G. Collins and John Oliff, the English pair, 6-0, 6-4, 6-2.

Sunday they will play Fred Perry and G. P. Hughes, English youngsters, who upset Jean Borotra and Christian Boussus in the quarter-final round. The defeat of Borotra and Boussus was unexpected. Perry and Hughes won 6-3, 7-5, 10-8.

The defeat of the French pair insured an all English-speaking final as H. W. (Bunny) Austin's England number one, and C. H. Kingsley, the former Cambridge captain, will play the South African pair of V. Kirby and N. G. Farquahrson, in the semi-final of the lower bracket.

Miss Jacobs Wins

The women's doubles title, the only one decided so far, went to Betty Nuthall and Eileen Bennerr Whittingstall, who defeated Miss Elizabeth Ryan, the former Californian and the little German star Cilli Aussem in straight sets.

Mrs. John Van Ryn was eliminated by Mlle. Jacqueline Goldschmidt, 1-6, 6-3, 6-0.

In the mixed doubles, Miss Nuthall and Dr. P. G. Spence defeated Mlle, Metaxa and Antoine Gentien, 6-1, 4-6, 6-3. They will meet Mrs. Shepherd-Barron and Bunny Austin in the finals. The latter pair today eliminated Miss Virginia Hilleary, Philadelphia, and Farquharson in the semifinals, 9-7, 6-4.

BURNS TO BATTLE POST GOLFER FOR WEST TEXAS CROWN

Wichitan Goes To Title Round With Win Over Cowden

Charles Quail Wins Semi-Final Skirmish From Youthful Lamesan

LUBBOCK, Texas, May 23. (AP)—Charles Quail of Post and L. T. "Bobby" Burns Jr., of Wichita Falls will meet Sunday morning at 9 o'clock in the first 18 of a 36-hole match which will decide the champion of the West Texas Golf association. Championship matches in all flights and final consolation matches in two flights will be played Sunday over the Lubbock Country club course.

The seventh annual West Texas Golf association tournament passed the semifinal stages Saturday with two matches in the championship flights holding the eager attention of large galleries over the 18-hole course. Charles Quail, the postmaster golfer, and Frank Rose, an unheralded clubber from Lamesa, played their semifinal match before nearly 300 people, Quail winning one up at the eighteenth.

Burns, the Wichita Falls ace, and Ellis Cowden of Midland had a smaller gallery and played the worst golf as Burns won a two up decision.

The cards:

Quail, out	643	455	435—39
Quail, in	435	435	542—37—76
Rose, out	743	464	544—41
Rose, in	455	434	533—36—77
Burns, out	633	564	544—40
Burns, in	555	424	543—41—81
Cowden, out	543	654	545—41
Cowden, in	456	533	534—39—80

In the Quail-Rose match, Quail, who had won his morning match in a thrilling display with Mansel Merriman, the Amarillo hope, had Rose two down at the turn. Rose, a youthful player, won the fifteenth hole and the seventeenth, evening the match. Quail went down for a birdie two on the short eighteenth to win the hole and the match.

Lu Blue Follows Losing Clubs in Ten Major Races

Veteran First Sacker Serves Long Term With Tigers and Browns

By WILLIAM BRAUCHER
NEA Service Sports Editor

CHICAGO, May 23.—Luzerne Atwell Blue, a 33-year-old ball player from Washington, D. C., has begun harsh with Blue, and perhaps he could be excused if he decided in this waning day of his career that after all his parents were right in refusing him permission to play ball when as a kid he saw expressed in the big leaguers his highest ideals of sportsmanship and ambition.

Backward Trail

He came up to Detroit to stick in 1921. He was then, and is now, a marvelous fielder. His easy grace around first base makes the job look like a cinch. When he came up he was a hustler and a scrapper. The team finished sixth that year, but was building swiftly. In the next year the Tigers clawed a new season in the big leagues playing with his third team. He played first base for the Tigers and for the Browns and several times his team came dangerously close to winning a league championship. But the prize always was just beyond his grasp. Now, with the White Sox, he is off on his 11th season in the American league with a team that ran seventh for two straight years.

The baseball fates have been their way to third place. In 1932 the team fought into second.

I remember seeing him shortly after the season closed in 1923. He was full of hope for the following year. His talk was filled with pennant possibilities for 1924. But it was not to be. The Tigers slipped back a notch in 1924 when the Senators swept to a pennant. Again in 1925 the slipping was resumed, the Tigers finishing fourth.

In 1926 Blue seemed to slip a little, too. The fire of his enthusiasm dimmed. The Tigers that year finished sixth. In the following year the Tigers came back up to fourth, but Blue declined, with the bat to a mere .260.

Comes Back for Howley

Then the Tigers packed him off to St. Louis when Dan Howley was making business hum for the Browns. The cheerful Howley helped him to renew his flagging ambition. He fought his way back with the Browns, helping the team finish third in 1928. Things looked rosy for him again.

Then the Browns started to slip, too. In 1929 they wound up in fourth place, and last year Lu Blue was the "disgruntled" first baseman for a sixth place ball club. Now he goes to the White Sox, a team that Donie Bush is trying desperately to rescue from the cellar.

Last year Blue hit .235 and his "indifference" came under Bill Killefer's regretful notice time and again.

What will this still young man, for whom the future once appeared so bright, do for the White Sox? Will he come back? Will he take new hope and keep up "the old fight," or will he drift bitterly back to the minors?

REYNOLDS SMITH WINS LAKEWOOD TOURNAMENT

DALLAS, May 23. (AP)—Reynolds Smith, playing over his home course, Saturday won the first annual Lakewood Country club invitation golf tournament, defeating Dick May, Dallas, 6 and 4. On the first 18 holes Saturday morning, Smith made the turn two up. In the afternoon round he rapidly increased his lead when May's putter failed him on any number of short putts which would have halved greens with Smith.

Texas Amateur Championship Next Big Event on Golfing Schedule

Spudders Move Into Lead in Loop Hitting

Texas leaguers who have been 100 or more times at bat continue to look at the flying heels of Homer Peel of Houston whose average of .382 is better by 13 points than the closest hitter in as many games. However Al Todd, who has assumed the regular catching burden for Dallas holds the actual top with .415. Competition for other Texas league honors is close and interesting. The leaders follow: Runs—Schuble, Beaumont, 30, White, Beaumont, 29, Gullic, Wichita Falls, 27; hits—Stanton, Wichita Falls, 52, Peel, Houston, 50, Cotter, Dallas, 46; doubles—Stanton, Wichita Falls, 16, Cotter, Dallas, 12, Speer, Galveston, and E. Brown, Fort Worth, 11; triples—Garms, Wichita Falls, Badgro, Wichita Falls, and White, Beaumont, 6, E. Moore, Fort Worth, 5; home runs—Gullic, Wichita Falls, 7, Radcliff, Shreveport, 6, Fritz, Beaumont 4; runs batted in—Fritz, Beaumont, 31, Gullic, Wichita Falls, 27, Badgro, Wichita Falls, 23; stolen bases—White, Beaumont, 11, Schuble, Beaumont, 9, Flaskamper, San Antonio, and Nash, San Antonio, 8.

Wichita Falls has taken the lead in club batting as well as in three-base hits, while Beaumont tops in runs, home runs, runs driven in, and stolen bases. Dallas is the best two-bagger club. Of 13 undefeated pitchers, Whitworth, Fort Worth, has won 5 games, McCabe, Fort Worth, and Dean, Houston, 5 each. Other pitching leaders—most games, Murray, Dallas, 12; most innings—Harris, Galveston, and Payne, Houston, 76; most complete games—Harris, Galveston, 8; most strikeouts—Chagnon, Fort Worth, 39.

Lowly Clubs Get Chances to Bump League's Leaders

Electrics and Hardware Men To Start Week's Schedule Sunday

The Commercial league starts off its next to last week of the first half race Sunday afternoon with the Texas Electric Service company Frigidaires and the Banks tied for first place and Malone's Beauty shop just a half-game behind. None of the three leaders tangles with the other this week, but all will see plenty of action before the week is over. The race may or may not be decided during the seven-day period.

The first game of the week will be played Sunday afternoon on the Harrison street diamond with Texas Electric Service company meeting Noble-Little Hardware company in a nine-inning playoff game of a tie earlier in the season. The Bankers and the Presbyterians have a postponement hanging over from last Friday and it likely will be played off one day this week.

The Frigidaires are scheduled for Monday against the cocky little Dixon Sign company team while Malone's will meet the Presbyterians in two important games. The Frigidaire game will be played on Harrison field while Malone's and Presbyterians will battle on Debus field. On Tuesday the Banks meet Noble-Little on Harrison field.

The last half of the week finds Bankers battling the Dixon Sign company team on Debus field on Thursday while Malone's meets Noble-Little on Harrison the same day. John "Babe" Horsley's Presbyterians will then take a cut at the Frigidaires on Friday on Harrison field.

The league presents wonderful chances everyday for the lowly second division clubs to upset the dope bucket and throw the smooth running machines of the three leaders into reverse, Noble-Little getting shots at all three of the leaders. Presbyterians will get a chance at all three leaders if their Banker tie is played off this week, while Sign Painter Dixon's club of hustling youngsters gets whacks at the Bankers and the Frigidaires.

DRAKE ENTHRONED AS VALLEY TRACK CHAMP

OMAHA, Neb., May 23. (AP)—A new champion—Drake—was enthroned in the Missouri Valley conference in the conference field and track meet at Creighton stadium Saturday.

They finished as follows: Drake, 57; Grinnell, 54; Oklahoma A. & M., 53; Creighton, 8; Washington, 4. No records were broken.

Although defeated, the last minute stand of Grinnell will live in the minds of the huge crowd that watched the meet. Beaten 54 to 35 with four events remaining on the program, the defending champions stepped out and won the two-mile run, the one-mile relay and the javelin throw, tossing in a third place in the two-mile run for good measure.

Efficient Routing of American Clubs Earned Harridge His Baseball Chance

CHICAGO, May 23. (INS)—The successor to Ernest B. Barnard, late president of the American league, will be elected at a special meeting of the league's officials Tuesday, May 27, it was announced here Saturday.

League headquarters here announced the meeting would be held at the Cleveland hotel, Cleveland, Ohio. A president and treasurer will be elected.

WILLIAM HARRIDGE

CHICAGO, May 23. (AP)—Ban Johnson's hobby of riding a particular railroad line as much as possible gave William Harridge, probable new president of the American league, his start in the world of baseball.

Back in 1910, the fiery founder of the American league decided that a certain railroad line was the best in the country. Accordingly, he insisted that every team in the league travel on that line as far as possible, even if the routings meant overnight jumps.

Harridge, then a worker in the passenger service of the railroad, was assigned the difficult task of routing.

So successful was he in pleasing not only Johnson but other American league club leaders and players as well that he won their admiration for efficiency, a word not as often used in those days as now. A year later, Johnson employed him as his private secretary.

In that role Harridge experienced all the successes and troubles that accompanied his chief. But he stuck through them all and remained after Johnson was ejected in 1927. Often he virtually had run the league during Johnson's absences due to frequent illnesses.

When Johnson left and Ernest Sargent Barnard was elected to the presidency, Harridge was promoted to the office of secretary of the league and once more was successful.

With Barnard's death last March, Harridge took over the reins of office so capably that he is considered the leading candidate for the presidency, which pays $40,000 annually.

Being a railroad man by profession, Harridge never has played a game of professional baseball in his life. But he knows the game and its complements.

Canzoneri First Since Leonard to Win by Knockout

Move Under Way to Re-Match Lightweight Champ And Defeated Berg

CHICAGO, May 23. (UP)—Tony Canzoneri of New York has become the first lightweight champion since Benny Leonard to retain his title by a knockout.

One perfect punch, a right cross straight from the shoulder to Jack (Kid) Berg's jaw near the end of the third round of a scheduled 10-round bout in the Chicago stadium enabled Canzoneri to defend the 135-pound title as he had won it. Canzoneri wrested the championship from Al Singer on a 66-second knockout last November.

Dumbfounded at the first real knockout of Berg's career, the little Englishman's followers called the right cross which stretched out the challenger a lucky punch, and are asking for a return match.

Sammy Goldman, Canzoneri's manager, verbally agreed to give Berg a return match in New York this summer, providing the Englishman did not suffer a defeat in the meantime. Jimmy Johnston has said he is willing to promote another match between them at Ebbets field and William F. Carey, president of Madison Square garden, said he was anxious to stage a return bout.

Some doubt as to whether Berg lost his junior-welterweight title was raised, but Gen. John V. Clinnin, president of the National Boxing association, said that Canzoneri would be recognized as champion of both divisions. Berg, however, didn't care about losing his junior-welterweight laurels.

Keeler Gives Tip On Construction Of New Golf Ball

Better Distance Possible by Socking Pellet on 'The Pole'

By O. B. Keeler

ATLANTA, May 23. (AP)—This may be a tip, and then again it may not. But if you are in the habit of teeing a golf ball so that you hit it on the trademark, sophistically known as one of the "poles," it is just as well to keep on doing it. And if you haven't the habit it may be just as well to acquire it.

By what I lately found out at Agua Caliente and other places the new standard golf ball is constructed with a very slightly longer axis, or diameter, from pole to pole than through the equatorial plane, if I may be permitted the explanation.

In other words, it is just the opposite of the earth, which, as every student of physical geography is taught before reaching his teens, is slightly flattened at the poles.

The Gauge

I don't say that all golf balls are made this way. I haven't tried all of them with a gauge. But I've tried four of the standard brands, and every one of them fits the gauge more snugly on the polar axis than on the equatorial.

The gauge, which is the first one I ever saw, is a ring of a light white metal with a hole in it which, I am told, is designed just to pass a new standard ball, with a perceptible friction. That is, the hole is 1.68 inches in diameter. If a ball touches it, with a "sticky" sort of sensation, in passing, that ball thus is up to the legal size in the United States of America.

If a ball drops through the ring of its own weight, it is under the standard size and is illegal.

Now, in trying the several brands that came readily to hand I was astonished by the evident difference in diameter. Some manufacturers obviously were taking no chances of producing a projectile which might, in the infinitesimal variation incident even to the beautifully precise methods of modern golf ball construction, come out undersized—due perhaps to the enamel being ten-thousandths of an inch too skimpy.

Big Balls O. K.

Several balls of well known makes were sufficiently large to resist forcing of any reasonable degree when tried on the ring.

They were not much larger than the prescribed 1.62. But they were some larger. They all were perfectly legal, of course. There is no limit upwards for the size.

One ball was found which passed through the ring with suspicious ease on the equatorial diameter and sustained itself nobly on the polar axis. Indeed, when placed in the ring with the poles touching, a tiny beam of light could be seen about the equator. In a word, this ball, and most of the others, so far as I could tell, were constructed perhaps a thousandth of an inch thicker from trademark to trademark than through the belt.

Whether this is due to the "buffing" about the waistline, after the cover is pressed together, or whether the makers designed the ball that way I do not pretend to say. In either case one may expect a very slight ballistic advantage to result from whacking such a ball fairly on the pole whenever it is played from the tee.

Two Pace Setters To Battle Sunday City League Game

Bailey-Moline and Star Transfer Fight For Peak Position

Several hundred fans of City league baseball are expected to get together Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock on the Ball Brothers diamond at the south end of Kemp boulevard for the crucial battle between Bailey-Moline Hardware company and Star Transfer company for the City league leadership. A great battle is expected with Smoky Lupher on the firing line for the hardware company, and Marvin "Lefty" Robertson on the hillock for the Star Transfer nine.

Both clubs announce they are in shape for the big battle with the Bailey-Moline nine anxious to get revenge for the opening day loss to Star Transfer, its only loss of the season. Both clubs have well balanced teams with pitching above par for the league.

Satterwhite Stars

One man who will be watched closely in this game is little Eddie Satterwhite, Star Transfer shortstopper. Satterwhite has been one of the sensations of the league for the first swing around the schedule with his hitting and fielding both far above the average. The fielding of Satterwhite has been one of the features of games played thus far by Star, and he has ranked high among the hitters.

Two of the best catchers in the league, O'Neal of Bailey-Moline and Janeway, of Star, and two of the smoothest working infields of the loop will be pitted against each other in this game.

The L-O. Boosters will meet the Modern Woodmen on Jalonic street in a battle of more or less interest. The Boosters have a chance to stay up in the race, tying for second place with the loser of the big game of the day. McDuffy or Bell will be on the hill for the Woodmen with the starter for the Boosters unknown. It has been announced that the Booster club may use a dark horse pitcher and catcher in the game.

Strengthen for Stretch.

Both of these clubs have been strengthening their teams for the drive down the home stretch and from now on they may be expected to give a good showing. The Woodmen have strengthened at first base in the signing of the veteran City leaguer, Flip Hoskins, recently cast aside by the Boosters. Hoskins is one of the smoothest working first basemen in the league and a good hitter. Hoskins will be given his chance Sunday afternoon to get revenge on the team that cut him adrift.

In the third game of the day's schedule Sullivan Grocery company will go against the P. D. Q. nine. The P. D. Q. club has yet to win a game in the City league. Sullivan will probably use Loopy King, who shut out the P. D. Q.'s in his first game this year. Flechtner or McCord will draw the pitching job for P. D. Q. This game will be played at Katy park.

CHILDRESS INVITES WICHITA FALLS LEADERS BACK AGAIN

By FRED L. HASKETT

Retailers, jobbers, wholesalers and manufacturers of Wichita Falls who made the trip to Lubbock for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention, have been taking stock this past week and the opinion expressed by the trippers is that much good has been done for Wichita Falls and that this kind of program is essential for the future good and growth of the city.

Other Trips Necessary

While in Childress an invitation was extended the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce to make another visit to that city early in June. The invitation was extended by E. B. Abington, president of the Childress Chamber of Commerce to J. L. Jackson Jr., president of the Wichita Falls organization.

In extending the invitation President Abington said: "We have our trials and difficulties just like people in other cities and when we have an opoprtunity to entertain business leaders from other cities it just makes us feel better and gives us renewed confidence in the future.

"Childress is friendly to Wichita Falls. We feel that our interests are downstate. We have never called upon the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce and had the organization fail us. Fact is, what helps Childress will help Wichita Falls. In our city we have an oil mill, wholesale grocery, wholesale produce, our modern hotel and other institutions that were made possible through capital originating in Wichita Falls."

Pleased to Accept

President Jackson informed President Abington that Wichita Falls would be pleased to visit Childress again and would bring in the delegation the city's leading business and professional men.

The program for the proposed trip has not been worked out as yet but it may be possible to run a special train some afternoon, stopping at Iowa Park, Electra, Harrold, Oklaunion, Vernon, Tolbert, Chillicothe, Quanah, Acme, Goodlett and Kirkland. The return trip would be made at night, arriving in Wichita Falls about 1 a. m. The expense of such a trip would be small.

Other trips have been proposed into Southwestern Oklahoma in June. It has been suggested that a day be spent in going to Frederick, Tipton, Altus, Mangum, Hollis and Eldorado and then back over highway 5 from Quanah. This would give a double opportunity to cover the upper Red river valley on the Texas side, and especially if necessary to make the proposed Childress trip without stops.

Wichita Falls is held in high esteem by all neighboring cities. There is no division among purposes and one reason that has made the splendid friendship so pleasant has been the desire and spirit of Wichita Falls in dealing fairly with every city, town and hamlet in the Wichita Falls trade area.

BUSINESS GAIN PREDICTED FOR NORTHWEST

MAY BUSINESS SHOWS DECLINE UNDER APRIL

Condition Is General Over Texas but This Section Now Held in Favor

April business, which put retail and jobbing merchants in a more optimistic mood, has been followed by a dull May but indications now point to considerable revival of business in the area of Northwest Texas and Southwest Oklahoma.

Merchants generally look upon June and July to be better business months than April. The increase in business will be created by demand of harvest hands and grain farmers. Cutting of grain has just started in the Wichita Falls area but will be in full swing by the end of the present week.

There is no section in America that has better promise of wheat and oat production as the Wichita Falls area. Small grain in this section is far better than over North and Central Texas. Grain on the Plains will not compare by 50 per cent to the condition here. It is said by grain farmers of many years experience that never before have they seen small grain so promising. Only storm or cut worms can do much damage to the crop, and that must be within a few days, else the grain will be in the shocks.

Only two cities in Texas failed to share in the general increase in retail department store sales during April, according to the bureau of business research at the University of Texas. The increase, amounting to 5.6 per cent over the figures for March, was fairly well distributed over the state. The total dollar volume of retail turnover was 14 per cent less than during the corresponding month of last year, however, Corpus Christi being the only city not showing a decline from 1930 levels, the bureau's report showed.

Business for the first four months of the year, on a dollar basis, was 11.9 per cent less than during the corresponding period of last year, with Corpus Christi, San Angelo and San Antonio the only cities in the list not included in the general decline.

Sales of 89 comparable stores during April amounted to $5,143,000, compared to $4,760,000 in March and $5,981,000 in April, 1930, the bureau's report indicated. Sales for the first four months of the year amounted to $17,783,000, compared to $20,184,000 in the corresponding period of 1930.

MEMPHIS WATER COMPANY BUILDING BOOSTER STATION

A booster, or power station, is being built for the waterworks system at Memphis. The station will be eight miles northwest of town. Memphis secures water from springs along the caprock and the fall amounts to approximately 500 feet. In the summer season when the demand is at peak for water, the gravity flow is not sufficient, due to friction.

Wellington Court Building Is Sold To Highest Bidder

The commissioners court of Collingsworth county has disposed of the old courthouse, which has been standing for 40 years, to J. A. Dukeminier.

The wrecking contractor receives all the material in the building and $950. He must wreck the building immediately and clear the site for the new building.

Collingsworth county will have one of the most modern courthouses in Texas when the new building is finished. The present building has been outgrown for many years and is also considered unsafe.

Construction of the new building will give considerable employment to laborers of Wellington.

COTTON CROP IN CHILDRESS COUNTY OF PUREBRED SEED

A report from Childress states that of the 70,000 acres planted in cotton that more than 60,000 acres has been planted with state certified purebred Mebane variety. The acreage in this vicinity is perhaps larger than estimated as some farmers used old planting seed of the same quality. In all 19 carloads of pure Mebane seed were purchased by the farmers.

Wichita County Fair Dates Chosen For 1931 Exposition at Iowa Park And Officials Plan for Great Fair

Dates for the Wichita County fair, held annually at Iowa Park, have been set for Oct. 8, 9 and 10. The date is a week later than the 1930 exposition.

The Wichita County fair will be considerably improved this year over that of last season. More buildings are to be erected and greater attention given to agricultural products and livestock.

The catalog will be issued early this year, which will enable the farmers to prepare their exhibits, especially giving them more time in which to compete.

Officials of the fair expect the poultry show to be the greatest ever held in Wichita county. Likewise, unusual interest is being manifested in the school exhibit department. The officials are worried over housing conditions, but with favorable crops it is believed this problem can be solved.

The Wichita County fair at Iowa Park is given support by the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, as well as leading business men and institutions of Wichita Falls.

REPAIR PERMITS

Repair permits for the week ending May 22 totaled $5,250 according to City Engineer F. M. Rugeley. This figure brings the total for the month to $6,119 and for the year to $46,495.

The permits follow:

LOCAL MAID WELL FACTORY MARKETS NEW PRODUCT

Just a morning's run on Red Top, new salad dressing being manufactured by the Maid Well company in Wichita Falls. This new dressing was placed on the market only a few days ago and sales have been increasing rapidly. The Mail Well company has been manufacturing the high quality "Maid Well" products in Wichita Falls for more than nine years. The new dressing sells for a lower price than the "Maid Well" brand and is a high quality wholesale product within the reach of every one. Products of the factory are shipped into several states and with the new product the factory hopes to do a much greater business, as it will give a market of greater spread.

EXPECT RAILROAD RATES BE RAISED BY FRISCO LINES

Robert Medlin, local agent for the Quanah, Acme and Pacific railroad, Floydada, states that the old passenger rate of 3.6 cents per mile will likely be restored by that railroad on July 1.

Reports show that the low rate has not increased railroad passenger traffic and the loss in revenue of passenger trains has been greater under the reduced rate than the old rate.

Many railroad men claim that the bus business has not taken near so much business from the railroads as private owned automobiles. It is said that private owners will endeavor to pick up people to ride with them and in many instances one will postpone a trip for a day or two just because of the opportunity for a free ride, or by paying a portion of the expense.

The railroads are facing a problem in the passenger service. Automobiles and buses continue to cut further into long distance fares. Up to two or three years ago long distance travel was not affected by motor transportation. Airplanes are also getting considerable choice business from railroads.

Utilities Welcome Helpful Criticism, Says Utility Head

John E. Zimmerman is head of the United Gas company, one of the major gas and utility companies in the United States. Recently in his annual report to the stockholders he stated the position of his utility and of practically or quite all the others toward criticism, regulation, profits and other questions of concern.

Declaring it essential for the growth and development of the utilities that they have "a greater and still greater measure of public confidence," he added that "for this reason, if no other, they should welcome constructive criticism." But it was, he said, a duty for the utilities to "combat such criticism as is manifestly unfair or is made by those endeavoring to prejudice the public unjustly or to try to establish a political issue." Expressing the belief that the American public, once it is fully informed of the facts, may be depended upon to be fair, he proceeded to set out the five cardinal principles upon which his company's policies are founded. They are so typical of the utterances of other utility leaders and so well and succinctly stated, that they likely are of sufficient interest to warrant quoting in full. They are, as he stated them:

"1. Effective state regulation.

"2. Rates should be constantly adjusted so as to yield only a fair and reasonable return on the value of the property devoted to the public use.

"3. Publicity in the financial affairs of a public utility inspires confidence on the part of the stockholder and the public.

"4. Holding companies are essential to the expansion and development of public utilities and must not be used to exploit either the consumers or the operating company.

"5. Government should not compete with any of its citizens in any field of business."

WESTMORELAND SWIMMING POOL TO OPEN NEXT SATURDAY WITH 'BIG BILL' CURREN IN CHARGE

Stronger evidence than that offered by the temperature that summer has arrived is contained in the announcement Saturday of Otto Lazenby, manager, that Westmoreland swimming pool will open for the season next Saturday. Unseasonable weather has prevented an earlier opening of the Westmoreland pool, but Lazenby announced Saturday that the immense pool was being filled this week-end and that an attractive entertainment program was being arranged for the opening day occasion.

"Big Bill" Curren, 35 years old, six feet in height and weighing 228 pounds, will preside over opening day ceremonies and will continue in charge of the swimming through the season as instructor and chief lifeguard. Curren has been on the scene for the past 10 days and is highly enthusiastic over the proepect of making Wichita Falls more "swim-minded" than it has ever been.

Curren is a veteran of the swimming game, having served as an instructor and competed as a professional for the last 14 years at some of the country's most famous resorts, including Kansas City, San Francisco, Chicago and Key West. For the last two years he has been in charge of the Lake Cisco pool at Cisco, the world's largest artificial swimming pool. Curren's competitive swimming has been confined largely to distance events, one of his more important victories having been registered several years ago in the 10-mile swim in the Missouri river sponsored by the Kansas City Athletic club. He plans to devote much of his time during the season both to instructive work with beginners and experienced swimmers and to sponsoring competitive events.

Though a definite porgram has not yet been decided upon, Lazenby and Curren plan to conduct the usual free classes for the youngsters and to cooperate with the recreation division of the city park department in promoting swimming. Curren, who holds an examiner's rating in the American Red Cross, also expects to conduct life saving tests throughout the season.

MARITAL DISAGREEMENTS BLAMED FOR TRAGEDY IN DEATH ALBERTA COUPLE

EDMONTON, Alberta, May 23. (INS)—Marital disagreements today were blamed for the tragedy which yesterday resulted in the death of Col. and Mrs. Hilliard Lyle at Beaver Lodge, Alberta, 400 miles north of here.

Colonel Lyle, who was decorated for bravery in action by two kings, shot and killed his wife and then committed suicide, according to the authorities.

Mrs. Lyle, who married the colonel in 1929, was the former Mrs. J. C. Sloan. She was distantly related to the late Lord Alfred Tennyson, English poet.

The heath hen, a variety of wild fowl once abundant in the New England states, is soon to become extinct. The last surviving bird is a male and so far as the bureau of biological survey in Washington has been unable to find a female bird. In 1907 the state of Massachusetts established a state heath hen reservation with a stock of 21 birds. In two years the flock increased to 200 and by 1915 to 2,000. In 1916 a forest fire swept the preserve and burned all but a few of the birds.

TEXAS ASSUMES LEAD IN SOUTH FACTORY WORTH

CHEAP FUEL IS REASON FOR RAPID ADVANCEMENT

Texas Leads Nation in Its Supply of Cheap Fuel And Electric Power

Officials and members of the Texas State Manufacturers association are very much elated over the census report for the manufacturing industry of Texas that has just been issued, which was taken during 1930 for the year 1929, being taken every two years.

In commenting on the report, G. M. Knebel, executive vice president of the association, stated that the eyes of the nation will now be turned towards Texas as never before as the report clearly shows that Texas is rapidly forging to the front as a manufacturing state, leading the entire South in manufacturing. In two short years, 1927 to 1929, the total increase in manufacturing for Texas amounted to $243,221,954, an increase of over 20 per cent for the two-year period. In 1927 the total annual value was $1,206,579,962 as compared to $1,449,901,916 for 1929.

Of the thousands of products manufactured in Texas the following are the leading products: Petroleum refining, meat packing, cottonseed products, flour, lumber, steam railway cars, foundry and machine shop products, printing, bread and bakery products, woodpreserving, cotton goods manufacturing, lard substitutes, ice, coffee and spices, planing mill products, butter, cement, rice, cleaning and polishing, beverages, iron work, men's clothing, bags, ice cream, clay products, feeds, confectionery, copper, tin, sheet-iron, wall board, furniture, flavoring extracts, syrups, pecans, peanuts processed, carbon black, food preparations, boxes, canning, fruits, vegetables and preserves; women's clothing, concrete products, ship and boat building, mattresses, bed springs, paints and varnishes, awings, tents, canvas covers, marble, granite, slate, asphalt, sulphur, saddlery and harness.

The manufacturing census for Texas lists 5,187 establishments that produced $5,000 or more per annum. Average wage earners for the year were 131,503 with wages paid $147,888,053 and salaries of $49,245,926 for 21,168 officers and employes. The mineral census of over a half billion dollars is not included in the above census.

Texas leads the nation in fuel for power in the shape of natural gas, petroleum, lignite; and a power rate that is less than in many other industrial states. Every condition is right for Texas to become one of the leading industrial states of the entire nation as it has the raw materials, labor, transportation both by rail and water. While the record made in 1929 of $1,449,901,916 may be a high water mark for a few years, however with a population now of nearly 6,000,000 people that must be provided for we should in time produce twice this amount. For we must remember "What Texas Makes Makes Texas."

OKLAHOMAN CONVICTED ON CHARGE OF FORGERY

WEWOKA, Okla., May 23. (UP)—Max Hamilton, Pittsburg county, was tried and found guilty of forgery before a jury in district court today.

He was sentenced to one year in the state penitentiary at McAlester.

Hamilton is alleged to have been one of the principals in the forging of a number of cashier's checks purported to be drawn on the Hartshorne National bank.

Some of the checks were said to have been passed in Seminole county and others in Hughes county.

QUANAH SOON TO ENJOY BIG BUSINESS PREDICTED

Business men of Quanah who attended the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention at Lubbock, stated that big business will be enjoyed by merchants of that city just as soon as the wheat harvest starts.

There is a very large acreage of wheat in Hardeman county. Sunday night there was a good rain from Kirkland east to Goodlett, which covered a large area of the wheat producing section of the county. Monday night more moisture fell, also beneficial to wheat and cotton.

AMERICAN PEOPLE RECEIVE ANNUALLY ABOUT $6,750,000,000 FROM MANY KINDS SOURCES

Dividend disbursements of $500,000,000 was made in April and $250,000,000 in May with other big payments coming due in June indicates that the United States still is doing an enormous amount of business. More than 2,000 stock issues contribute to these totals with interest also on liberty bonds and other federal securities.

Annual dividends and interest disbursements in the United States range around $6,750,000,000 to which industrial and miscellaneous securities contribute more than $2,000,000,000, steam roads nearly $500,000,000 and street railways $130,000,000.

Largely dependent on this aggregate income are millions of the people of the United States, either as actual owners or as beneficiaries from estates and trusts in the hands of life insurance companies and other financial institutions. In many corporations, such as the Standard Oil companies, the American Telephone and Telegraph company, the United States Steel corporation, electric power companies and others, the employes—men and women—form a large and ever increasing percentage of the stock ownership.

People Real Owners

Assertion by radicals or politicians or demagogues that American industry is owned by a favored few, for whose enrichment the public is exploited, can be controverted by the ownership records. The major ownership is vested in the people at large directly or indirectly. The heads of the successful and growing concerns have found it is wise to deal fair with the stockholders, who are the real defenders of the companies in which they are interested.

The theory of public ownership is being transplanted into practice without government intrusion of any kind. The theory of government ownership and operation of private business of any nature is inimical to the interests of the people as owners of the enterprises which the radicals and politicians would have the government take over. In some instances big corporations have not proved themselves fair, either to the customer or the investor, but these companies are soon driven out of business or compelled to practice fairly.

Texas People Satisfied

In Texas at this time there is not much demand for public ownership of public service corporations. Most people have little to find complaint with either the telephone or power companies. The gas companies are having trouble and sentiment apparently is growing against them.

The telephone companies have not increased rates within some time, yet they are giving better service and especially have the costs of long distance messages been reduced. In making reductions in long distance tolls business has been increased. No merchant hesitates now to take up his telephone and ask for Chicago or New York, knowing service will be rapid and cheap.

The power companies, speaking of those operating in Texas, have extended service into the smallest communities and into the oil rural districts. Service charges are low. When we consider that our light bills are not much larger now, and often less, than 15 years ago, and the additional tax of radios, electric irons, electric grills, electric bells, electrical refrigeration, electric heating devices of every kind, makes us wonder how we really get by with such low power statements.

VERNON BOOSTER LOSES BIG TOE IN SHOOTING

Andy Bourland, prominent farmer and builder of Vernon, a former president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, and known throughout Texas as a leader in Northwest Texas development activities, lost one of his toes a few days ago when a shotgun was accidentally discharged.

The load took effect in one of the big toes, which almost amputated the toe. Bourland was riding in an automobile at the time of the accident.

TWO NEW RESTAURANTS TO OPEN SOON IN SPUR

That business is improving at Spur, Dickens county, is evidenced by the opening of two new restaurants. Modern equipment is being installed and when the places open for business about June 1, Spur will have two more good places in which to eat.

HEADLIGHTS

F. L. H.

Wichita Falls representatives to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention at Lubbock made a very favorable impression. Fact is many friends were made in every town from Lubbock to Childress.

Wichita Falls sought no honor. The special train was operated more for the purpose of making our own citizens acquainted with that region known as the South Plains and Green Belt sections than to make those people acquainted with Wichita Falls.

No extra effort was made to sell Wichita Falls. Every effort was exerted to prove that Wichita Falls is a friend of every town and community in West and Northwest Texas, and is ever ready to extend a service to those towns and communities.

Lubbock business leaders appreciated the Wichita Falls delegates. They said that it was wonderful for a city to send a record delegation, the largest special train, when nothing but friendship was considered.

Wichita Falls made friends in Lubbock, Petersburg, Lockney, Sterley, Quitaque, Turkey and Childress. It is a friendship that will last a long time. But it should be cultivated. More visits should be made so that Wichita Falls will grow in the hearts of the people of those sections.

The cost of the trip in all, was perhaps, no less than $4,000. It was money well spent. The expenditure should not be lost and the way to make it profitable is just to follow up in the future.

There is another trip that should be made within the next few weeks, early in June would be timely. A motorcade should be run to Iowa Park, Electra, Harrold, Oklaunion, Vernon, Tolbert, Chillicothe, Quanah, Goodlet, Kirkland, Childress, Wellington, Mangum, Hollis, Altus, Tipton and Frederick.

In this area in normal years is produced no less than 400,000 bales of cotton. Millions of bushels of wheat and oats will be harvested the next 30 days. It is the greatest alfalfa growing area in Texas or Oklahoma. It is the home of fine cattle, blooded hogs and fancy chickens.

The men who should make the trip are those who are at the head of the institutions they represent. The chamber of commerce officials are ready to put such a trip over and it can be made at a minimum of expense.

Small towns and cities like friendly visits from their neighbors. Every town and city in Northwest Texas and Southwest Oklahoma stand as a unit for the advancement of these sections. It is the duty of Wichita Falls to assist them in all their undertaking.

Remember, don't lose the good that has been accomplished. Keep in the front ranks and battle for our section of the nation.

New Railroad to Get Right of Way In Collingsworth

Citizens of Wellington are now at work securing right of way for construction of the Denver and Northern railroad across Collingsworth county.

It is reported that officials of the Burlington, builders of the new railrdad, have asked Childress, Collingsworth, Wheeler and Gray counties to furnish right of way, but it is also reported that if necessary the railroad company will supply funds and accept notes from the citizens. This report may not be true, but due to existing business conditions it is probably correct.

Childress citizens are now buying right of way through Childress county. The first three miles has been purchased and most of the distance graded.

West Texas Utilities to Build New High Lines Into Whiteflat; Quanah Streets to Get New Lighting System

The extension of dependable transmission line electric service to towns, the building of an enlarged water system and general extension and maintenance work are the highlights from the construction report of the West Texas Utilities company, made available from the offices of the company at Quanah.

Initial electric service will be made available to the towns of Whiteflat and Four Corners through the building of a 10-mile 11 Kv. transmission line northwest from Matador. The new line will carry service to 20 residential customers, 15 commercial customers, 10 small power users, one cotton gin and several rural homes.

At Sunray, in the Panhandle territory, a 12-inch water well will be drilled, a 150 gallons per minute centrifugal pump installed, and a 35,000-gallon steel water tank erected. Sunray is growing rapidly and the old water system has become inadequate.

Other construction activities included in the report are:

The addition of 24 suspension type, 4,000 lumen street lighting fixtures to the whiteway system at Quanah; improvements of distribution system at Dalhart, Rotan and Chamberlain; extensions to serve new customers made from Rochelle, Winters and Crowell, and the installation of a three-phase, 11,900-volt transformer rack and 2,250 feet of three-phase 460-volt secondary line to serve the Lido Oil company lease in the South Vernon oil field.

According to the construction bulletin, work on these improvements and additions is going forward at the present time, completion dates being scheduled for the immediate future.

FIVE PRODUCERS COMPLETED IN WICHITA AREA DURING WEEK

Wayne Hammon Gets 500-Barrel Well As Best of Completions in Shallow Orth-Newcastle Oil Field in Young

By JIMMIE MAXWELL

Five good producers completed, the usual number of dry holes, several locations staked out and the starting up of a few wells featured the oil situation in the various pools of the district during the week.

While considerable drilling was under way in the different fields, the Orth-Newcastle areas furnished the week's producers. The best of these was Wayne Hammon's No. A-2 Jeffery in section 42, T. E. & L. survey, rated at 500 barrels flush from the sand at 749-765 feet.

In the same pool the Texas-McKanna No. A-3 Jeffery and B-6 Jeffery were finished in the 700-foot pay with a combined output of approximately 450 barrels. Northeast of Newcastle, C. E. Beaver and others completed their No. 7 Belknap Coal company well in section 22, T. E. & L. survey, in the pay at 712 feet and it is rated at 200 barrels.

Northeast of Graham four miles, Dewey Knox and others' No. 1 D. Burnett, in block 9, section 3412, T. E. & L. survey, completed last week in the sand at 2703 feet, is being put on the pump and is showing the earmarks of 100 barrels.

Operations on the various deep tests in Wichita county went ahead during the week in a satisfactory manner. The Deep Oil Development company No. 1 Munger, a mile north of Kemp City, succeeded in cleaning out the hole and has run tubing. The well has been connected with the Pure Pipe Line company line and is shut in waiting for the proration umpire to give it a 24-hour test.

The same company's No. 1 John Hirschi, located in the David Cowan survey, north Wichita county, is pulling pipe to abandon after drilling to a depth of 6002 feet. This test goes on record as the deepest hole drilled in the county and was abandoned in a hard lime after drilling over 300 feet of that formation.

Development of the Archer county pools slowed up; a few deep tests were in operation but nothing important happened. Six hundred feet west of No. 1 L. F. Wilson deep producer, the Deep Oil Development company-Lindsay has started on its way to the 5500-foot depth in the No. A-6 Wilson, block 75, A. T. N. C. L. survey, and is drilling at 800 feet.

A review of activities throughout Wilbarger, Cooke, Clay, and other pools finds but few wells in actual operation, proration and low prices for the crude being a poor incentive to the wildcatter.

Pipe line runs averaged 56,012 barrels daily, a gain of 1,076 barrels per day in the runs as compared with the preceding seven days.

NEW PASSENGER TRAFFIC CHIEF OF KATY NAMED

JACK HENNESSEY JR.

ST. LOUIS, May 23.—Promotion of Jack Hennessey Jr., executive general agent for the M-K-T lines at Houston, to passenger traffic manager, with headquarters at Dallas and St. Louis, was announced here Friday by George C. Smith, general traffic manager. Hennessey succeeds J. W. White, who has just been made assistant to the executive vice president of the Katy lines. In making announcement of the appointment of White, M. H. Cahill, president, said White had been assigned no special duties, pending his complete recovery from an illness that has incapacitated him for several months. His headquarters will remain at Dallas.

Although he has spent 21 years in the service of the M-K-T, Hennessey, by his promotion, becomes one of the youngest passenger traffice managers in the country. He commenced his railroad career in St. Louis as a messenger boy while in his early 'teens and has never been employed by any other company.

"With passenger revenues steadily declining as a result of the increased use of automobile, buses and airplanes, the position of passenger traffic manager of a railroad is daily becoming of more vital importance," Smith declared in announcing Hennessey's appointment. "The management of the Katy lines determined to keep its service fully abreast of the times and, Hennessey was selected as passenger traffic manager because it was felt that he is especially well qualified to make a careful study and survey of travel conditions with a view of offering plans for restoring as much passenger traffic to the rails as possible."

After filling various clerical positions in St. Louis, Hennessey was made chief clerk to the assistant general freight agent in Houston in 1913. The following year he was made soliciting freight agent there. In May, 1917, he was granted a leave to enter the army and served with the rank of captain. At the close of the war he re-entered the Katy service as chief clerk for the division freight agent at Houston. In April, 1920, he was promoted to division freight agent at Austin and in August of that year, was transferred to Houston with the same title, being promoted to assistant general freight agent there in 1926. In May of the same year, he was transferred to Dallas with the same title and in October, was transferred to St. Louis and made general freight agent. He held that position until June, 1929, when he was made executive general agent at Houston.

Smith also announced the transfer of J. P. Anderson, now soliciting freight agent at Oklahoma City to Tulsa as commercial agent, and the transfer of F. W. McBride, now soliciting freight agent at Tulsa, to Oklahoma City with the same title, to succeed Mr. Anderson.

Appointment of Mr. C. F. Bryson, as commercial agent at Los Angeles, has also been announced. Mr. Bryson is a son of J. M. Bryson, chief counsel, St. Louis, and was formerly division freight agent at El Paso.

Mid-Continent Oil Activities

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 23. (UP)—The corporation commission set May 28 as the date for a hearing on a petition on file today asking increase of the allowable flow of the Oklahoma City field from 181,198 to 160,367 barrels daily.

The petition was filed by Wirt Franklin, who charged that continuance of the present proration system in the city field will result in discrimination against the older pools in favor of the North Wilcox pool.

Hearing will be held the same day on a petition by Otto Bradford, field umpire, for fixing the potential and allowable flow of the field for three months beginning June 1.

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 23. (UP)—Oklahoma county led in the report of firsts in Oklahoma oil areas for the past fiscal week.

Five producers were brought in in Oklahoma county. Creek county was second and Marshall and Muskogee counties were tied for third.

Counties reporting one producer were Jefferson, LeFlore and Wagoner.

LOVING COUNTY AND WARD GET OIL PRODUCERS

PECOS WILDCAT WELL FINDS SLIGHT SHOWING

Latest in Wheat Field Flows 715 Barrels in 19 Hours

SAN ANGELO, Texas, May 23.—Addition of a producer each in Ward county and in the Wheat deep, high gravity, sweet oil pool in Loving county were among oil developments this week in West Texas. Big Lake Oil company's No. 5-C University, one of the nine deep producers in Reagan county, deepened from 8731 to 8764 feet without apparent increase when tested briefly and drilled ahead.

Landreth Production company's No. 1 Nock Allen, in southwestern Gaines county, attracted attention by topping the anhydrite at 1605 feet, 1853 feet above sea level. One of the most interesting tests spudded was that by Benedum & Trees of Pittsburgh on the J. D. Sugg heirs' ranch in central Irion county, since it is expected it will be carried deep in search of the deep producing horizon in Reagan county, from 8525 to 8923 feet.

W. B. Hegan's No. 1 Shearer in Pecos county, 3½ miles south of the Pecos valley pool and 660 feet out of the south corner of section 45, block 10, H. & G. N. Ry. Co. survey, encountered an estimated 50,000 cubic feet of gas daily at 1760 feet in lime, and continued drilling.

Penn Oil company's No. 1 Alvis, Pecos county wildcat, 15 miles southwest of Fort Stockton, encountered a slight showing of oil and a little gas at 3601-02 feet, coming through a hole full of sulphur water which had been carried for some time. Six and five-eighths inch casing was cemented at 3592 feet, but when the plug was drilled Wednesday sulphur water filled the hole and could not be lowered past 900 feet in 12 hours' bailing. It was believed the water was bottom hole, although it was possible the cement did not hold, only 50 sacks having been used. No. 1 Alvis is in section 155, block 3, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey. It was indicated the well would be deepened.

Topping the sand at 2185 feet and drilling to 2188 feet, Peck and others' No. 1 Merritt in Ward county developed oil production estimated at 50 to 60 barrels daily. The well is 3166 feet from the northeast line and 2648 feet from the southeast line of section 11, block 5, H. & T. C. Ry. Co. survey. Simms Oil company's No. 1 Himmel, another Ward county test, in section 30, block B-29, public school land, encountered showings of oil at 2245 and 2275 feet and an increase in oil at 2295 feet accompanied by gas that blew the tops up the hole and stuck them.

Heading around 90 barrels every five or six days, the California company's No. 1 Gordon cleaned out to run tubing and pump after plugging back from 2599 to 2445 feet. Hankinson and others' No. 1 Emery topped the salt at 845 feet, 1607 feet above sea level, and E. E. Sturm and others' No. 1 Jones topped the salt at 835 feet, 1689 feet above sea level.

Wheat Field Producer

Pete Hoffman's No. 1 Ramsey became the latest producer in the Wheat pool in Loving county when it flowed 715 barrels of oil the first 19 hours after being shot with 140 quarts from 4206 feet, the top of the pay to 4245 feet, the total depth. The well is 300 feet from the northeast line and 990 feet from the southeast line of section 83, block 1, W. & N. W. Ry. Co. survey, a south offset to the California company's No. 6 Reagan & McElvain, a producer. The two wells are in the south central part of the field.

The next test in the area due to reach the producing Delaware sand was Eppenouer Drilling company's No. 2 Allen, in section 90, block 1, W. & N. W. Ry. Co. survey, which had drilled to 4215 feet in lime. Eppenauer No. 1 Salisbury, in the same section, which over a month ago extended the field three-quarters of a mile north, flowed 117 barrels of oil after 2-inch tubing was run. This was not a full 24-hour gauge. Bottomed at 4405 feet, No. 1 Salisbury was to be tested further before being shot.

Up to midweek, Lewis & Siagel's No. 1 Henderson, new producer in northwestern Loving county, 25 miles northwest of the Wheat pool, had not been shot, and at last reports still was swabbing 25 barrels of oil daily, plugged back from 3179 to 3174 feet with a small amount of bottom hole water shut off. The well is in section 1, block 37, township 1, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey, only one-half mile south of the Texas-New Mexico line.

Production by Big Lake Oil company's No. 5-C University, Reagan county deep well, was killed after it amounted only to 241 barrels of net oil in 11 hours Monday following deepening from 8731 to 8762 feet. Before being killed on May 7 to deepen, the well flowed a daily average of 2,102.3 barrels in 5¼ days. Group No. 1 Oil corporation's (Texon) No. 4-B University, second largest of the deep producers, had drilled by tubing to 8400 feet, having cemented the tubing when all of it could not be pulled out. A new joint of 7-inch casing was substituted for that which had burst 328 feet beneath the surface when the well blew out March 10 after back pressure was doubled to 2,000 pounds. For three days the well flowed partly out of control and on April 5 set a peak of 9,814 barrels. Ten days later it was killed to be reconditioned. As the result of the repairing of the 7-inch casing, specially made 5½-inch casing will not have to be run when the well again is placed on production. Tubing will likely be rerun, however.

While five of the six deep wells on production registered increases totaling 6,095 barrels last week, the yield for the entire number declined 3,747 barrels to 73,198 barrels due to the killing of Big Lake's No. 5-C University to deepen. When all nine wells were on production they gushed 173,884 barrels one week and showed over 300,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily.

Fishing Job Delays

Early in the week Cranfill brothers and Gulf's No. 1 J. B. Tubbs, west central Crane county discovery well, had not succeeded in fishing out a 5 3-16 inch line, which was preventing shooting. In a six-day period the well produced 146 barrels of pipe line oil by small heads, a daily average of 24 1-3 barrels. It shut off sulphur water recently by plugging back from 5336 to 4506 feet.

Top of the anhydrite in Landreth's No. 1 Nick Alley in Gaines county at 1605 feet, 1833 feet above sea level, was 67 feet lower than the top of the anhydrite in Louisiana's No. 1 Ralph, four miles west of it and near the New Mexico line, but 130 feet higher than the top of the anhydrite in Humble's No. 1 Carswell, 3½ miles to the east and one mile to the south. Calt-Brown and Penn's No. 1 Cowden, Ector county wildcat in section 12, block 44, township 2 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey, had not resumed drilling at 3860 feet, where it has been shut down for some time, reportedly eight feet in the brown lime topped 805 feet below sea level.

In Schleicher county, Eastland Oil company and others' No. 1 Tisdale stopped drilling at 2509 feet in grey-green shale to run and cement 10-inch casing. J. D. Werner's No. 1 Micks, 1½ miles northeast of Eldorado, recovered tools at 3705 feet after a two weeks fishing job and had drilled to 3750 feet in dark shale.

W. C. Beasley and others' No. 1 Foster, for some time Sterling county's only test for oil, was abandoned at 2301 feet in shale with 1800 feet of salt and sulphur water in the hole. It had no oil shows. Salt water was struck from 1560-90 feet and increased to a hole full from 1680 to 1800 feet. More water with an odor of sulphur was encountered from 2020-30 feet.

Benedum & Trees' No. 1 J. D. Sugg heirs in Irion county had spudded below 80 feet. It is about 15 miles northwest of Mertzon, on a block of 15,642.3 acres and 1560 feet from the south line and 925 feet from the west line of section 3081, block 28, H. & T. C. Ry. Co. survey. Stanolind's No. 1 W. H. Williams, in the southeastern corner of Irion county, in section 1196, T. C. Ry. Co. survey, had drilled to 5740 feet in grey lime. F. E. Webb and son, Braselton brothers and C. C. Williams' No. 1 Nutt, Irion county's ninth and largest shallow, high gravity, sweet oil producer, was scheduled to run cement outside the 6 5-8 inch pipe to shut off upper water. The water was believed at first to be bottom hole and the well plugged back one foot with lead wool and cement was run on top of it. This failed to exclude the water. Before the water showed up the well pumped intermittently for 10 days, averaging six barrels of oil hourly.

East Texas Oil

GLADEWATER, Texas, May 23. (UP)—Casing was being set and cemented today on the Walker-Harrison test, a half mile south of here, following the coring of 15 feet of saturated sand at a depth of 3571 feet. Completion of the test will mean proving of the southern part of the Gladewater area and opening of a large territory north and northeast in a lime with the Mudge well, a distance of five and a half miles.

LONGVIEW, Texas, May 23. (UP)—Completion of the Corley & Blair No. 1 Bumpas and the Shano Oil company's No. 1 Mrs. J. R. Fenton was imminent today following the drilling of plug on both tests.

The Gulf Production company's No. 1 F. C. Fishbur, located near Lake Devernia on the Gladewater highway, was flowing 143 barrels an hour through an 11-16th choke following its completion Friday.

FRESNO, Texas, May 23. (UP)—A new gulf coast field in Fort Bend county today was holding the attention of operators following the completion of Cullen & West and Gulf Production Co.'s No. 1 Lockwood, five miles southwest of here in the John Rabb survey. The well flowed 300 barrels in 24 hours through a ¾-inch choke from a total depth of 3080 feet.

LONGVIEW, Texas, May 23. (UP)—Linking of the Mudge well area in Upshur county and the Gladewater sector directly with the Lathrop pool of Gregg county was expected today after oil sand had been cored in two outpost wells.

After oil sand had been cored from 3541 to 3563 feet, casing was being set in the Humble Oil and Refining company's No. 1 A. Carter, in the David Ferguson survey, about three-quarters of a mile north of the Texas and Pacific Coal and Oil company's No. 1 fee producer.

The Karona Oil company's No. 1 W. J. Guy & C. E. Heinman, in the G. W. Hooper survey, cored pay sand from 3616 to 3618 feet. Oil men believed it connected the Mudge and Gladewater areas.

KILGORE, Texas, May 23. (UP)—Another well had been added to the Bateman pool's total today with completion of the Magnolia No. 1 Bradbury, reported by the Magnolia Petroleum company as being a 13,000-barrel producer. It is located on the west side of the pool, in the Robert W. Smith survey.

The Gulf Production company's No. 2 Keeling was reported to have come in for an initial flow of 90 barrels per hour through ¾-inch choke on tubing. Gulf's No. 3 Birdsong also was reported a producer, but no gauge was available today.

TIMSON, Texas, May 23. (AP)—The Sloane-Windham test a short distance west of Shelbyville and six miles east of Center encountered a strong showing of oil at midnight last night, when it reached a depth of 3325 feet. Drillers prepared to bring the well in late today. If successful, the well would prove a new production horizon in Shelby county.

The West Texas Oil and Royalty No. 1 King, in the Morrison survey of southern Rusk county, 12 miles west of Timson, was drilling at 2,910 feet in Austin chalk and was being watched with much interest.

Graves Says Representative Long's Investigation of University Oil Leases Has Saved State $1,000,000

Editor The Times: I notice in the issue of your paper of recent date that you published an article under an Austin date line, relative to the services of the committee appointed by the last legislature to investigate the university oil leases in Reagan and Upton counties, as well as other matters. I also noticed that this article commented rather unfavorably on the services of one of the representatives from your county, the Hon. Bob Long, as chairman of this committee, who has spent about six months on this work. I am fully conversant with all the labors of this committee, and its probable results, as well as with all the work of all its members.

I unhesitatingly say that Bob Long performed more unselfish work in the interests of the state in such investigation than the writer; that he attended every meeting of the committee; that he spent his own money on some of the committee's business; that he knows more about this university oil business, its titles and revenues, than any other layman connected with this matter and that he, through his initial efforts, with the help of the committee has saved the university an amount conservatively estimated at near one million dollars, and in my opinion, the major credit for this probable saving belongs to Bob Long.

We will receive in cash much more than the committee's total expenditure, as well as a continuation of such payments in after years, and a probable recovery of much larger payments for oil sold in such field.

Personally, I regard Mr. Long as one of the most valuable members of the legislature. He is honest, industrious, and fearless, and has saved the taxpayers of Texas many thousands of dollars, during this session. I also acknowledge his invaluable assistance in his faithful work on this oil investigating committee.

In order that you might understand what our report was, I enclose you copy of house journal containing same, and I also request that you give this statement the same publicity that you gave the other article.

H. N. GRAVES,
Austin, Texas.

Editor's note: The article referred to by Mr. Graves was doubtless a summary of the report of the committee, Representative Long signed this report.

NEW PRODUCER COMPLETED IN TATUMS FIELD

ACTIVE TEST STARTED IN CARTER DISTRICT

Surface Casing Cemented In Operation at Edge Of Pool

ARDMORE, Okla., May 23.—Only one new producer was added to the Tatums district in northwestern Carter county during the past week. Operations were started on another test on the southeast side of production for the only drilling well in the area.

The Amos Drilling company and Walter H. Gant swabbed 612 barrels of oil during the initial 24-hour gauge ended Thursday in No. 1 Sparks-Hooks and other in the southeast corner of 13-1s-3w, new production in the northeast edge of the field. It has been shut in until May 26 when it will go on the regular proration schedule of 100 barrels daily. Production was found in a series of broken and solid sands between 1946 and 2106 feet. Casing was cemented at 1945 feet with total depth at 2110 feet in black shale.

The only active test now in the field was started up during the past week and was cementing surface casing. It is the K. D. Oil company and Frank Gouin No. 1 J. W. Burton in the center of the southwest of the northwest of 30-1s-2w, about three-eighths of a mile southwest of the Magnolia Petroleum company No. 1 D. C. Burton which was plugged and abandoned as dry after drilling to 4115 feet.

Bunn-Marvin Drilling company is drilling a core test on the Guy P. Cobb farm in the sotheast corner of the southwest of 11-3s-4w, off the east edge of the old Healdton field. It was drilling sandy shale at 1500 feet.

The Monarch Petroleum corporation No. 1 Gregg in the southwest corner of 36-3s-4w, one mile west of production in the Healdton field of Carter county and just across the line in Jefferson county, has reached contract depth of 2500 feet and operators were preparing to drill to 2800 feet. Several sands were logged in this test, however, all proved to be dry.

Operators cored sand showing oil at 7291-7317 feet in this test.

Magnolia Petroleum company's No. 2 Estes in the southeast of the southwest of the northeast of 10-5s-9w, in the same area, was drilling at 4408 feet in shale and lime shells.

McCrory & McCrory, Ardmore operators, were planning to recement casing in an effort to shut out water believed to be coming from behind the pipe in No. 1 J. W. Little in the northwest corner of the southwest of 30-7s-5e, new producer in the Kingston shallow area of Marshall county. The well was showing between 20 and 25 per cent water with the 27 gravity oil it was producing. During a recent 24-hour gauge a total of 110 barrels of oil was reported after setting the water out. A water sand was drilled through in the test at 441-484 feet, then a nine-foot break was encountered and the oil sand topped at 493 and drilled to total depth at 496 feet. Five-inch casing was cemented at 491 feet.

Hearle-Hudson's No. 1 Williams in the southwest of the southeast of the northeast of 24-7s,5e, a mile northwest of the producer, has started drilling and was cementing surface casing.

They have cleaned out to the top of sand at 1586-96 feet and were preparing to start pumping No. 1 Dillard in the center of the southeast of the northeast of 25-6s-2e, in the same area.

C. V. Chenault and others' No. 1-B Grogan in the southeast corner of the northeast of 15-7s-6w, just west of the old Humble field in the southern part of Jefferson county, was drilling below 1150 feet.

D. H. Curry and other's No. 1 Elmer Ward in the northwest of the southwest of the southeast of 15-5s-6e, six miles northeast of the Madill field in Marshall county, has resumed drilling at 2170 feet after being shut down several days setting 5-inch casing.

Holmes and others' No. 1 Flanagan in the northwest corner of 2-8s-1e, four miles southwest of Marietta in Love county has been abandoned. It was reported that operators had cemented surface casing at 40 feet and has been shut down for the past several weeks.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

Lesson No. 95

VULNERABILITY IN CONTRACT BRIDGE

VULNERABILITY is Contract Bridge's new feature. The Rubber bonus is so large that a side having one game might be tempted to overbid in order to prevent opponent's winning a game. The extremely high penalties imposed on a vulnerable hand tend to prevent this. When vulnerable, therefore, a greater caution must be exercised in both bidding and doubling.

TIMES' DAILY MARKETS

NEW LOW LEVELS IN COTTON MARKET LIVERPOOL CLOSED

NEW YORK, May 23. (AP)—Cotton broke into new low ground for the season today. October sold off to 9.33 or 25 points net lower and closed at 9.35. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 23 to 24 points.

The opening was steady 6 to 8 points lower on overnight selling encouraged by expectations of rising temperatures in the South over Sunday. Selling became more active as the stock market showed signs of weakening and the official forecasts encouraged the expectation of improving weather.

Some stop orders were uncovered on the more active later in the morning. July broke to 8.96 and December to 9.54, or 35 to 40 points from the highs touched on the rally of Friday morning. Closing quotations were 2 to 3 points up on some of the later months.

Liverpool was closed for the Whitsuntide holidays and will not reopen until Tuesday morning, so that there were no cables to influence sentiment here either way.

New Orleans Cotton

NEW ORLEANS, May 23. (AP)—Cotton was decidedly active today, for a short week-end session and the course of prices was downward from start to finish, recording new lows for the season.

The close was called steady, showing net losses for the day of 26 to 30 points.

Liverpool was closed today for the first of the Whitsuntide holidays and will remain closed several days.

Prices made new lows for the movement and the season near the end with May down to 8.86, July off to 8.96 and October to 9.32, down 2 7to 30 points from the previous close. Prices closed at about the bottom.

Port receipts, 2,236; for the season, 8,721,129; last season, 8,513,433. Exports, 4,463; for the season, 6,097,467; last season, 6,275,283. Port stock, $3,360,348; last year, 1,729,430. CURB MARKET HAS UNUSUALLY QUIET WEEK-END SESSION

NEW YORK, May 23. (AP)—The curb market shrank to baby proportions in a listless week-end session today.

Utilities eased, oils were steady to firm, and industrials mixed, in a turnover of only 150,000 shares. Less than 200 issues were active. Electric Bond & Share lost nearly a point and American Superpower ¼.

In the oils, Cities Service was active, up a fraction, and other petroleum issues rallying ½ point to 12¼. Gulf also moved were about steady.

In the investment trusts, continental shares convertible preferred sold up 4 points on announcement that the Mather interests had purchased a large block of the common stock.

CORPORATE BONDS CONTINUE ADVANCE U. S. ISSUES DROP

NEW YORK, May 23. (AP)—A restricted bond market moved ahead irregularly to day.

Probably the most significant fact of the market was the continuance of the advance in the corporate issues of high credit standing. Contrasting with this movement, liberty and United States treasury loans were generally lower. The fourth liberty 4¼s and the treasury 4s of 1944-54 and the 3⅜s of 1941-43 were active.

Atchison general 4s led the gilt edge issues upward and closed at another new 1931 high at 101. Gains ruled among American Telephone debenture 5½s of 1943 4¼s, Detroit Edison series D 4½s, New and 5s of 1965, Kansas Gas & Electric York Central 4½s of 2013, Pennsylvania general 5s of 1960. Some were new peak levels for 1931.

Declines were principally fractional. Bonds closing with net losses of 1 point or more included: California Petroleum 5s, Missouri, Kansas & Taxes series B 4s, and Gulf States Steel 5½s.

Foreign obligations advanced irregularly gains. Sharp gains were recorded by some Peruvian first 6s lost most of their early Chilean and Berlin bonds.

Dry Goods Market

NEW YORK, May 23. (AP)—Lower prices were current on several narrow sheetings constructions and sales were better today. Print cloths steady, sales light. Coarse goods in light demand. Curtain goods in further demand. Some wash goods sold well. Spot and afloat burlap sales improved. Rayon yarns 150 denier viscose process in moderate call for spot. Spot raw silks firmer.

SCANT RESISTANCE TO SELLING MOVE IN STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, May 23. (AP)—The stock market offered scant resistance to an inert selling movement today and closed lower, thus interrupting a rally that had endured for the two previous sessions.

Sales were 550,200 shares, the smallest Saturday since last August. The listlessness of the trading accentuated the lack of buying interest. Firmness was evident during the early dealings, chiefly because rails rallied a little. Net losses were largely limited to a point or so, although Union Pacific and American Telephone declined 3.

Overnight consideration of what was said on the price question at yesterday's meeting of the steel industry executives contributed to the sogginess of the steel shares. United States Steel common at no time reached par, its final price on Friday, and finished at 98½, off 1½. Crucible broke 3 but cut its loss in half. Bethlehem was heavy, especially toward the close.

General Electric, General Motors, Anaconda and Union Carbide confined their net declines to fractions, but American Can, Worthington Pump, National Biscuit, Case and Westinghouse were down 1 to 2. Eastman Kodak dipped under its previous low. Reports in brokerage circles said this film manufacturer was feeling depression in the motion picture business.

Chemicals were mostly heavy.

New York Central and a few other rails, after gaining a point, reacted, the first named issue losing 2 points net. Frisco and Atchison were off 1½ to 2½.

Foreign exchanges were quiet. Sterling was firm, maintaining its position close to par.

WHEAT AND CORN PRICES DROP TO NEW SEASON LOW

CHICAGO, May 23. (AP)—Wheat, corn and lard today joined in a triple breaking of this season's low price records.

Reports that the international wheat conference at London had effected little if anything likely to bring about immediate upturns in grain values had an evident bearish influence from the start. Indications also that frost damage to domestic winter wheat was only slight tended further to reduce buying to a minimum, and to cause liquidating sales of grains and provisions alike.

Wheat closed irregular 1⅛@1⅜c lower to ⅛c higher, Corn 1¼@1⅝c down, oats ¼@⅜c off, and provisions at 12c to 20c set back.

Better weather in the corn belt and the weakness of wheat did much to tumble corn prices. Oats sympathized with the action of other cereals.

Provisions fell, despite steadiness of hog values. Buying support was lacking both for lard and meats.

Midwestern Livestock Review

KANSAS CITY, May 23. (AP)—U. S. D. A.—Cattle trade around the 11-market circuit this week was marked by a recession in values on most all classes. Killing classes 25@75c lower with steers taking the full 50c decline.

Chicago reported the average cost of fed steers the lowest in 20 years. Texas grass fat steers were marketed more freely and several shipments of grass fat she stock made their appearance at northern points. Stockers and feeders were in limited supply. The demand was narrow and prices worked lower in sympathy with the break on fat cattle. Receipts 185,400, compared with 178,576 last week and 165,630 the corresponding period a year ago.

A moderate supply of hogs this week failed to offset the depressing influence of lower price on fresh pork cuts and closing quotations were 25@65c under a week ago. Best hogs sold at the lowest levels since January, 1912. Offerings around 400,700 against 413,147 last week and 456,259 a year ago.

Unevenness prevailed in killing classes of sheep with values at points where prices last week were relatively low working higher and other centers closing at rates 25c or more under a week ago. A liberal movement out of Texas helped to swell receipts. Supplies approximated 347,500, a decrease of 4,500 from last week and an increase of 112,000 over the same week a year ago.

IDENTIFY MORAN AS GEORGE PERRY MURDER SUSPECT

SAN FRANCISCO, May 23. (AP)—Frank J. Moran, held by police here on suspicion of being George W. Perry, alleged slayer of Cora Belle Hackett at Lac Du Flambeau, Wis., last July 6, was identified today as Perry by Harry D. Mauger of Hollywood, former school mate of the suspected slayer.

Police were informed by authorities at Eagle River, Wis., that an indictment against Perry was being prepared and would be sent here without delay.

Moran telephoned his present wife today to mortgage their home here for as much money as she could get to be used to fight the case. It was estimated Moran had an equity of about $9,000, in the house.

Mrs. Hackett, Wisconsin authorities said, was one of several wives Perry is alleged to have "married" and then abandoned after taking what money he could get from them. Perry denies the murder and said he was in New Orleans at the time it happened.

Secretary Mellon Wants Masses To Pay More Taxes

WASHINGTON, May 22. (US)—The nation's tax structure must be overhauled to provide safeguards against such deficits as the federal treasury is now confronting, Secretary Mellon declared tonight.

The secretary made no definite recommendations, but indicated quite plainly that certain excise taxes should be restored, and hinted indirectly that the masses should be made to bear a larger proportion of income tax payments.

The present situation has proved, the secretary said, that the nation's tax structure lacks balance and produces an inadequate amount of revenue under adverse conditions.

Addressing a nationwide audience over a Columbia broadcasting system network, the secretary concluded with this note of optimism:

"The trial is a severe one, but there can be no doubt about the outcome. We know that we shall emerge not only with unshaken faith in our country's future, but with renewed confidence in our own capacity as a people to meet and overcome any obstacles that may seem temporarily to impede our progress."

Prize Dinosaur Rules Roost In National Museum

WASHINGTON, May 23. (AP)—Diplodocus, longer than a street car, taller than two men, but one of the "dumbest" beasts that ever lived, now rules the roost in the national museum's hall of dinosaurs.

His brain was no bigger than an apple, but his long arched neck and giant vertebrae tower high above every other specimen in the museum. After 170,000,000 years of obscurity, buried in Utah sandstone, diplodocus has come into his own. He went on exhibition today as the museum's prize dinosaur specimen.

Diplodocus' skeleton, one of the largest ever found, was mounted under supervision of Dr. Charles W. Gilmore, paleontologist of the museum. Dr. Gilmore located the skeleton in 1923, but it took eight years to "quarry" the 2,000 pounds of bones out of the rock in which they were encased.

In the flesh, diplodocus weighed 15 tons or more, with most of the weight in an elephantine body supported on tree trunk legs. His skeleton is 70 feet long and 12 feet high. Behind the body trails a tail that tapers to a whiplash, like tails of some modern lizards, but much larger. In front a long neck tapers to a head no bigger than an alligator's.

Bathing Revues Here To Name Miss Wichita And Miss West Texas

Preliminary plans for the staging of the second annual bathing beauty revues sponsored by the Wichita Falls Junior Chamber of Commerce have been completed, according to the announcement Saturday of Wilburn Page, secretary of the organization.

The events will be staged at Lakeside park on the nights of June 6 and 7, and will have as their purposes the selecting of Miss Wichita Falls and Miss Greater West Texas to appear in the international pageant of pulchritude at Galveston.

On the night of June 6, Miss Wichita Falls will be chosen from among the beauties who will be sponsored by various of the business concerns here, it was explained.

On the following evening, representatives from at least 20 West Texas communities and counties, including Miss Wichita Falls, will compete for the honor of being Miss Greater West Texas. Already, Mr. Page announced, entries have been received from 20 towns or counties in the area, exclusive of Wichita Falls.

The expenses of Miss Wichita Falls and of Miss Greater West Texas to the Galveston event will be paid by the junior chamber. In the event that Miss Wichita Falls also should be named Miss Greater West Texas, the beauty winning second place in the Wichita event will become Miss Wichita Falls at Galveston.

In Wichita Falls young women desiring to compete in the all-city event, according to Mr. Page, should call without delay at Osborn's studio, 804½ Indiana, where photographs will be made without charge for this purpose. At the close of the entry date, yet to be set, the photographs will be presented to merchants desiring to sponsor entries, and they will be permitted to select from the photographs in the order of application the beauty they desire to sponsor. The expenditure permitted by each sponsor upon his entry will be limited to an amount yet to be fixed.

Out-of-town communities and counties which have accepted invitations to be represented in the contest here are: Lubbock, Lubbock county; San Angelo, Tom Green county, Mineral Wells, Breckenridge, Slayton, Abernathy, Borger, Hutchinson county, Stinnett, Pampa, Gray county, Le Fors, Vernon, Electra, Olney, Archer City, Bowie and Burkburnett. The Burkburnett entry will be chosen at a revue to be staged there the night of May 26.

Details of arrangements for the revues here are in charge of the following committee: H. B. Dudley, chairman; Russell Kolp, vice chairman; Ken Cushing, Jim Durnal, George Gardner, J. Will Gray, Henry Penix, J. W. Pyland, Billy Swint, A. L. Hecht, E. F. Noe, Fay Hooker, Paul Lacy, Malcolm Putty, Franklin Henderson, Ralph Pond, Will McKemie and Frank Haley.

Further details of plans for the event are to be discussed at a meeting of the committee at a luncheon Monday. The place of the luncheon had not been decided upon Saturday night.

Member High School Graduating Class Tells of Origin, Abilities, Ambitions Classmates Commencement Exercises

By JOE UTTZ

The stanidng of a school is reflected by the students, and it is the duty of every student to do everything in his power to raise the standing of his school. We of Wichita Falls High school believe that this graduating class of 1931 is thoroughly capable of the task which is before it.

A very interesting questionnaire was put before the class the other day. The questions were made up by the students themselves because they were interested in obtaining these facts about their class. The results are both interesting and significant. I am sure they will prove of interest to you.

Of the 247 members of the class, 61 were born in Wichita Falls, and 133 were born in other Texas towns. It is interesting to note that out of the 53 born in other states of the union, 28 of them were born in Oklahoma. Each of the following states is represented by one member: Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas and California, Florida, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, and Massachusetts, Missouri, Montana, New Mexico, New York and Wisconsin. Tennessee has two representatives, and Illinois, Kansas, and Louisiana each has three. It may be of interest to you to know that one member of the class was born on a train near Houston.

The ages range from 15 to 35; the greatest number, however, are 17. Thirteen members of the class are 15 years of age, 68 are 16 years of age, 81 are 17, 53 are 18, 22 are 19, and 7 are 20 or above.

I think that it is praiseworthy that, out of the 247 members of the class, 111 have never in their school career failed a course, and 128 have not failed a course since entering the eighth grade. I think that this is a wonderful record.

Two members of the class have a perfect attendance record from the time they entered the grade schools, and nine have perfect attendance records since entering high school.

Of the 247 members, 161 have never attended a high school other than our own Wichita Falls High school.

I think that the class should be complimented for the fact that 179 of the 247 have expressed their intentions of going to college. One hundred and thirty-eight of the 179 have already decided upon the college which they are to attend. Of this number 98 expect to attend our own Wichita Falls Junior college.

Every type of profession will be represented by the members of this graduating class. There will be three architects, four artists, one actor, one actress, two aviators, two aviatrixes and two army officials. It seems that most of the class has no desire to merely deal in money matters, for only one is to be a banker. There are to be two economists, eight doctors, five nurses, one druggist, 19 secretaries or stenographers, four certified public accountants, one draftsman, one costume designer, eight journalists and one clerk. Many members of the class feel that things need "fixing," for 35 are to be engineers. This branch includes civil, petroleum, construction, and electrical engineers. It seems strange that in an oil center such as Wichita Falls, only two members of this class are to be oil operators. There will be two geologists, six lawyers, (two of whom are women), one railroad man, one interior decorator, one librarian and 11 musicians. We all know that we are good looking enough and that it will take little work to keep us that way, so there will be only one beauty specialist. There will be four radio experts or announcers, two wireless operators, two mechanics, two athletic coaches, two ministers and one missionary. Many members of the class feel that there are still some people who need an education, for 43 of them are going to be school teachers. Twenty-three members of the class have expressed their intentions of being housewives.

These are the aspirations and ambitions of the members of the graduating class of 1931. Wouldn't it be wonderful if this same class could meet 20 years from today so that we might see just how many of us had realized our life's ambition? Of course this is next to an impossibility, but we feel sure that the members of this class will be successful in everything they attempt.

These facts should show you what a broad field of study is offered in the Wichita Falls High school. The courses offered there have enabled these graduates to choose their life's work. It has given them something to work for. Our hope is that we may be able to conduct our lives in such manner that they will reflect honor and bring credit upon our Wichita Falls High school.

WILBARGER WHEAT CROP BEST RAISED MANY YEARS PAST

Wilbarger county's wheat crop is the best in many years, according to followers of the crop, says the Vernon Times. The management of the paper conducted interviews with a number of farmers to ascertain just what the outlook was and what the predictions were on the yield. The report follows:

"The acreage devoted to wheat, oats and barley was placed at 25,000 acres. All but one talked with estimated two-thirds or thereabout in wheat and one-third in oats. One man who knows his oats declares that there are more acres in oats than in wheat. County Agent R. E. L. Patillo reports some good barley crops scattered throughout the county.

"All state that this year has been hard to figure because so many farmers have planted small patches to use as pasture and will not attempt to thresh. These small plots run from five to 20 acres.

"The outcome of the wheat crop has been placed at an average of from 15 to 18 bushels per acre and the oats at from 30 to 45 bushels. Barley should run around 35 bushels to the acre. In some places the oat crop has been reported as going to run about 75 to 80 bushels to the acre where the soil and moisture have been just right.

"This is the largest acreage planted since 1919. The next best year since that time was in 1926 when a good deal of land was planted to wheat and oats."

Mr. Neely said this would be the second air meet of its kind ever held in Texas, the first being held at Brownsville last year.

Since an official of the N. A. A. will be present any new speed records made would be official, Mr. Neely pointed out. The meet will be under the rules and regulations of the Federated Aeronautique Internationale, of which the N. A. A. is the United States representative.

All pilots must be members of the F. A. I. and all planes entered in races must have received federal approved type certificates.

The entries must land at Kell field between 9 a. m. and noon on the day of the race. Prizes will be awarded according to a formula which takes in horsepower, number of passengers and flying time.

6:45 p. m.—Delayed parachute jump with the take-off at 8,000 feet and the rip cord pulled 2,000 feet later.

Louisiana Leper Colony Installs New Golf Course

DALLAS, May 23. (AP)—Golf has been recognized as an integral part of successful treatment of leprosy, one of the world's oldest known diseases and most dreaded maladies, A modern golf course has been installed at the leper colony in Carville, La., and inmates there are becoming adept players.

Dr. W. M. Danner of New York, general secretary of the American mission to lepers, who has made a study of the disease for 20 years, said here that recreation, with golf now recognized as the best instrumentality to that end, is playing a big part in the successful treatment of the disease. He said the old belief that leprosy was incurable had been disproved and that the disease now has been controlled.

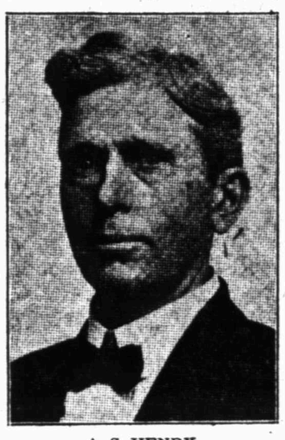

He estimated there were 1,100 lepers in the United States and 2,000,000 in the world. In 10 years 75 patients have been discharged, as cured from the Louisiana colony, Dr. Danner said. The Louisiana group contains 315 patients, and is one of 150 centers in 40 countries devoted to treatment of leprosy, he stated. It is supported by the United States government.

A. S. HENRY

PATRICK HENRY

A special service of ordination will be conducted at the Highland Heights Christian church this morning at 10:40, at which time the elders of the church will ordain Patrick Henry Jr., to the ministry. Mr. Henry will be the first minister sent out by the Highland Heights church. He has been active in religious activities during his high school years. He is president of the senior class of the Wichita Falls High school, served last year as president of the Northwest Texas Hi-Y conference, and was also president of the Center Point youth's conference of the Christian church. He has been selected as one of the Texas representatives to the world's Hi-Y conference to be held in Toronto July 27 and will attend that conference. He is president of the Speaker's club of the high school and represented this district in the recent state high school competition at Austin as extemporaneous speaker.

He will enter Texas Christian university in Fort Worth next fall where he will pursue his preparation for the work of a minister.

The program for the ordination service follows: Opening prayer, Frank Creighton; brief address, Judge B. D. Sartin, chairman of board of elders Highland Heights Christian church; Scripture reading, P. B. Curd; responsive reading, J. N. Sherrill and Patrick Henry Jr.; ordination questions and answers, J. E. Montgomery, minister Highland Heights Christian church and Patrick Henry Jr.; sermon of ordination, A. S. Henry of Arlington, grandfather of Patrick Henry Jr.; prayer in unison by all elders of the Highland Heights Christian church; ordination prayer, Harry Hines, chairman board of elders, First Christian church; hand of fellowship by all elders and deacons of Highland Heights church; song, "I Would Be True," Miss Harriett Bradley; prayer of thanksgiving, Patrick Henry Sr.; response to ordination ceremony, Patrick Henry Jr.; gospel invitation, J. E. Montgomery; benediction, J. A. Patton.

An unusual feature of the ordination service is the fact that three generations will take part in the service. A. S. Henry of Arlington, Texas, a lay preacher, 74, father of Rev. Patrick Henry, and grandfather of Patrick Henry Jr., will deliver the ordination sermon, and Patrick Henry Sr., until recently minister of the Highland Heights Christian church, now secretary of the Texas Christian Missionary society in Fort Worth, will take part on the program, and his son, Patrick Henry Jr., is to receive the ordination.

IOWA PARK, Texas, May 23.—Benjamin Newton Ferguson, who is widely known throughout Northwest Texas as "Uncle Ben" has just rounded out his 43rd year as a citizen of Wichita county. He arrived at Burk Station, where Iowa Park now stands, on May 4, 1888 from Bell county and settled on three sections of land which he had purchased for four dollars per acre.

Mr. Ferguson has not only achieved distinction as a long-time resident of Wichita county; he has made a record in that he is now in his 94th year and is mentally alert and possessed of remarkable vitality for one of his years. He is among the oldest if not the oldest Shriner in Texas and is believed to be the last survivor of his regiment in the Confederate army.

The farm on which Mr. Ferguson now lives is one of the sections of land originally purchased; but in this quiet, peaceful farm home one sees no trace of the wild prairie, such as it was when Mr. Ferguson moved with his family to this section.

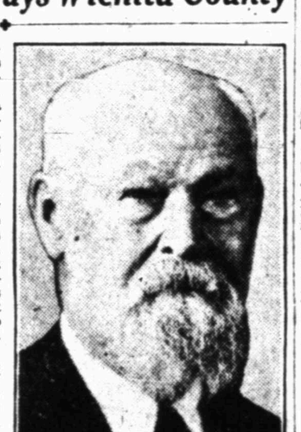

One of the changes which impresses Mr. Ferguson most in his long residence in this county and in Texas is the marked increase in the price of land and in the rate of taxation. He recalled that the total tax on the three sections of land which he purchased when he moved to this county was $92.

Forded River

"We got all of our supplies from Wichita Falls in those days" Mr. Ferguson said. "Every time we went to town, we had to ford the river, until the bridge was built in 1892. By fording the river I don't mean what you mean by 'Fording' it now," he added with a twinkle in his eye.

The vanishing of the antelope, wild turkey, prairie chicken, plover, quail, and fish was lamented by Mr. Ferguson as he recalled the plenitude of wild game in this country in the early days. "We did not care so much when the bears, panthers, and bobcats left us," he added.

BENJAMIN N. FERGUSON

Ferguson recalled that the first classes were held in a private school in the room now occupied by Mr. Ferguson as a bedroom. A teacher, Miss Laura McBeth, was brought from Bell county and children in the community were invited to attend.

"Each period has its advantages" Mr. Ferguson said in recalling some of the hardships which the pioneers underwent. "The coming of the mesquite was a thing not to be desired. Only a few mesquite trees were in this country when I came here—it must have been the prairie fires that kept them killed out."

Confederate Veteran

Mr. Ferguson was enlisted in Monroe's regiment, Cabie's brigade, in the Confederate army and saw actual service in the battle of Prairie Grove in which 27,000 men were engaged, and in a battle at Fayetteville, Ark. He was also in many little skirmishes. He explained that the state of Arkansas, being located between the contending armies, was a particular disadvantage and was the scene of many hot skirmishes. If there is a member of his regiment alive now Mr. Ferguson does not know it.

He left Arkansas in 1875 and went to Waco, Texas, and remained there until coming to Wichita county in 1888.

He was a charter member of the Iowa Park Masonic lodge of which he is still a member. He became a Mason in December, 1891, and moved steadily on through the various degrees until he became a Shriner in May, 1924. He is the oldest member of Maskat temple and is among the oldest Shriners in Texas.

He was born in Mississippi in 1837, his grandmother was Elizabeth Jackson, a cousin of Andrew Jackson. He went to Monticello, Ark., with his parents when he was 12 years old and lived there until his removal to Texas.

Mr. Ferguson is the father of W. R. Ferguson and Mrs. Frank Boyd, both of Wichita Falls; Mrs. Dan Hooks, Iowa Park, and Mrs. J. D. Mickie, of Childress.

ONE OKLAHOMA FACULTY WANTS TO BE 'RELEASED' BUT GOVERNOR DECLINES

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 23. (UP)—There is one state school faculty which has requested the governor to be "let out." Gov. W. H. Murray announced today.

"But I wrote them back that I was sorry but I couldn't accept their resignation," the governor said.

The resignations, 30 in all, were headed by J. M. Dudley, 22-801, principal, with Herman Fox Davis, 13-990, professor of commercial law, making up the faculty of the grade school at the state penitentiary.

The "resignations" were included in the report of the school showing an averaging attendant of 206.4 students for April with 90 per cent of them white. The school is conducted under the supervision of the chaplain. The serious report was accompanied by the facetious request to be "let out."

"I want to congratulate you on your curriculum, discipline, and general administration of your school, but I am sorry that I can't accept your resignations," the governor wrote.

Herman Fox Davis, the law professor, is the former Oklahoma City attorney, sentenced in the sensational slaying of Paul McCarthy, several years ago.

Another Tattered Ensign on Walls Explorers' Club

NEW YORK, May 20. (AP)—Another tattered ensign hung today among the trophies on the walls of the Explorers' club.

Sixty years ago yesterday Maj. John W. Powell started a hazardous journey by boat down the grand canyon of the Colorado. Last night Frederick S. Dellenbaugh, who pulled the bow oars in Powell's boat, presented the club the flag which was carried on the voyage.

"I've treasured it for more than half a century," said Dellenbaugh, who is an explorer of note. "I guarded it on that trip and at the finish. When we drew lots for it, I won it. But I feel that this is the proper place for it now."

Another high point of last night's program was the presentation to the Wilkins-Ellsworth arctic submarine expedition of a flag of the Explorers' club.

Editor Suggests Theme Songs For Scientific Talks

NEW YORK, May 23. (AP)—Admitting most radios are turned [illegible] when an education atmosphere created, Watson Davis, managing editor of Science Service, today suggested radio listeners be "eased" into science talks by theme songs, at least.

Mr. Davis addressed the closing session of the first annual meeting of the national advisory council on radio in education. Radio's educational force he said will be felt in the living room of the home, rather than in school rooms.

"But the public must be kept in ignorance of any desire to educate them," Mr. Davis stated. "Never let this great unseen audience know of any desire to turn their radios into extra-mural schools. Radios will be turned off at once."

He declared it would be very effective if Einstein, for instance, could play a violin selection as a prelude to his next radio talk and demonstrate to the radio audience the "kinship of classical music and his revolutionary physics."

MADAM, there's something we would like to talk over with you

IT'S about financial matters, of course, because that's our business. May we propose a plan which has to do with your financial situation, and the income you may have to live on?

Your husband has a substantial amount of property to leave. The settlement of his estate will not be easy. Appraisals, debts to collect and to pay, taxes to figure, trips to court, property to sell, investments to make—how the work of an estate executor piles up!

Many women would rather not have such work to do. If you, too, feel this way about it, then by all means, Madam, urge your husband to name us as executor and trustee under his will. Let him take this action now—and many worries over the future will become a thing of the past.

We would like to talk this over with you and your husband. Come in at your convenience.

In a beautiful setting of colorful blossoms and before an improvised altar formed in front of the fireplace in the living room of banked greenery, flowers and lighted tapers, the wedding of Miss Thelma Pearl Chitwood of this city, and Charles DeWitt Yost of Fort Worth, was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Barton Friday evening. The impressive ring ceremony was read by Dr. C. M. Simpson, pastor of the Floral Heights Methodist church in the presence of relatives and intimate friends.

The prenuptial music included numbers by Miss Loretta Newton and Elizabeth Wright, and Henry Will Barton sang "At Dawning," with Miss Martha Johnson at the piano. James O. Chitwood, brother of the bride, played Mendelssohn's Wedding March for the entrance of the bridal party, and Miss Elizabeth Wright played "Traumeria," softly, during the ceremony.

The bride presented an attractive picture in her dawn pink flat crepe ensemble with accessories to harmonize, and carried a shower boquet of pink rosebuds. Miss Isla Mae Chitwood, her sister, was her maid of honor, and wore an eggshell crepe ensemble with arm boquet of orange rosebuds. Little Dickey Gose, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Gose Jr., was the ring bearer and wore a suit of white satin and carried the ring in the heart of a pink rose. Lela Ann Leach, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Austin F. Leach, and Barbara Richardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Richardson, were flower girls and wore dainty pink georgette frocks. Bill Kerr of Fort Worth was best man to Mr. Yost.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Chitwood, pioneer citizens of Haskell, and was history instructor in the Zundelowitz Junior High school the past year. Mr. Yost is formerly of Wichita Falls, and is now a prominent business man in Fort Worth.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held. The dining table was centered with a three-tiered cake and decorations of roses and orange blossoms were used in profusion. The cloth was of Madeira and lighted tapers were at each end.

The couple will make their home in Fort Worth.

Announcement Tea

Announcement of the approaching marriage was made earlier in the week at the charming home of Mrs. T. J. Waggoner with Mrs. Waggoner and Mrs. H. W. Barton joint hostesses. The home was a bower of spring blossoms and the dining room was particularly lovely with a silver bowl of pastel spring flowers in the center of the filet covered table and pink tapers burning in silver holders on the buffet and table.

With the honoree in the receiving line were the two hostesses Mesdames Barton and Waggoner, Mesdames P. S. Richardson and Lester Jones and the bride-elect's sister, Miss Isla Mae Chitwood.

Miscellaneous Shower

Miss Elizabeth Wright was hostess at a unique party honoring the bride-elect Thursday evening when Miss Chitwood's arrival was greeted with the song "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," and a musical program followed. THE MORE NERVES THE LESS BRAINS! -:- By Kathleen Norris

MRS. NORRIS

If there is a class of women who arouse me to anger, and whom, collectively and separatively I would love to slap in the face, it is that class that is always talking about its "nerves."

Nine times out of ten nerves are pure selfishness, called by a prettier name, and treated with respect—but old-fashioned selfishness just the same.

Here is Jane's mother, for example. Jane is 26, and has been engaged to be married for a whole endless year, and could be married, tomorrow, if it were not for mama's nerves.

"Since my father's death in 1916," writes Jane, "my mother has been very easily disturbed, she sleeps badly, and worries very easily. If I so much as sneeze mama is anxious; she simply dares not face the excitement of a wedding, and having Jerry's people come on—every time I speak of it she cries, and asks me to put it off. It would mean her finding a smaller apartment, too, and our getting started by ourselves, and although I coax and hint and plead, she really is not fit to face it."

Then there are nerves like those of Rose Jones. Rose was at a luncheon the other day, entertaining us with an account of her nervous troubles.

It seems that she went on a business trip with her husband, and they both returned in a state of collapse. In the hotels the dirtiness of the beds distressed Rose to such an extent that she had to have the sheets and pillow cases, and even the blankets replaced. Then at the table she began to worry about the mushrooms on Arthur's fillet of beef. Very silly of her, she admits that now, but she just was having one of her nervous days, and when she feels that way, everything drives her frantic.

Foolishly, she went to the theater. She blames herself now, because when she is nervous crowds always make her worse. Well, Rose began to feel worse and worse, and finally they had to go out. And then she got crying and had to get out of the taxi, why Arthur didn't brain her, Rose says she didn't know. As a matter of fact, far from expecting to be brained for all this nonsense, Rose not only exacted, but got, Arthur's tenderest concern and care all the while.

Often, when a subject is started at the breakfast table, Rose begins, "Please, Arthur, please don't talk about moving, unless you want to make me horribly nervous! A window shade was flapping somewhere all night, and I feel like a witch this morning. Unless you want to drive me right out of my senses stop fiddling with that pencil, and shut that door, and let's have peace. Just the way Alma serves breakfast makes me perfectly frantic—I can't stand anything more. I thought that horrible man would keep you an hour on the telephone, I don't know what possesses people to talk so long!"

A third type of nervous woman is the nervous mother. I always feel so sorry for her children! The lucky little Smiths and Browns have all the fun; the little Robinsons, whose mother is nervous, look on from the sidelines.

The Smiths and the Browns hustle into swimming suits, and are into the surf, screaming and shrieking with joy. But Mrs. Robinson's high school chum's brother was drowned, 15 years ago, and she can't bear beaches at all; if they must, they may wade. But even while they are wading she is fluttering up and down the beach like a frantic hen, begging them to be careful. They may not ride on the various concessions and wheels and rails, she simply cannot bear the nervous strain; she has gotten the children themselves to such a state of nervous excitement now that it is not at all unusual to hear them pleading "nerves" in their own excuse.

They nervously ask their father the time, at breakfast, nervously rush off to school, nervously calling to each other; they are nervous over school examinations—the joyous, careless laughter and confidence that ought to be a part of childhood is entirely unknown to them.

It is extraordinary that a good mother, like Jane's mother, will actually jeopardize her child's marriage, her child's happiness for life, by this flimsily disguised jealousy. It is amazing that a good wife like Rose will accompany her husband on a business trip, and harrass the poor man with a display of disturbing inconsiderateness, all the way.

But the saddest and most surprising nervousness of all is this maternal nervousness that not only destroys the pleasures of children on their holidays, and deprives them of a thousand delights that are theirs by right, but that plants in these impressionable little natures seeds of anxiety and doubt that will bear heavy harvest later on.

Sometimes, to be sure, there is a real physical cause of nervousness, some jarred or interrupted process inside the body, eternally fretting and distressing the nervous mother or wife.

But nine times out of ten nerves are pure self-indulgence. Women get into the habit of fretting and complaining; the family meekly puts up with it, and it grows worse and worse from year to year until as an actual expression of her own identity, mother feels that she must shut her eyes and gasp dramatically whenever a door slams, faintly protest again the perfectly normal chatter and laughter of the children, lie prone on her bed with a wet towel folded over her eyes, whenever anyone dies or gets born, and lead the whole disappointed troop out of the movies whenever a pistol is shown on the screen.

"Mother can't help it, dear, it's one of her nervous days, and she don't want you to go—she can't have Tommy here tonight—she just can't make the effort. My nerves are terrible tonight, Joe, and I'll have to ask you to turn off that radio."

Forty years ago mothers used to talk about "bilious babies." This If they want to fly, let them fly. If someone asks them to go fishing, let them go. Let them learn to swim and row and drive and ride, and stand on their own feet. When a little girl of 10 thinks she can give a play in the barn tell her to go ahead and give it. Don't murmur feebly that your nerves are just terrible this morning, and you just can't stand the thought of what would happen if that old place took fire, and half the children in town were trapped in it.

If the family suddenly had a vision of what share of these distressing six symptoms really was unavoidable, and what share of them was merely selfishness, stupidity, and habit, it would be a bad day for the nervous women. They would stand stripped and ashamed before the kind husbands, the dear, sympathetic, obedient children who whisper so respectfully of "mother's nerves."

We don't do that any more. We know today that biliousness in a baby means dirt, and that a dirty baby, inside or out, has a dirty mother.

Nerves are a kind of mental, or spiritual, dirtiness. An intelligent woman can reduce the demands on her time, her hands, her mind, to the sub-nervous point, if she will be honest and generous enough to make the effort. Some definite cause—too much candy or coffee, too late hours, too many theaters and too little sleep, these may be causes; money—the world trouble of too little money—often is a primary cause of nerves.

MRS. NORRIS SAYS:

Nine times out of ten nerves are pure selfishness, called by a prettier name, and treated with respect — but old-fashioned selfishness just the same.

But the saddest and most surprising nervousness of all is this maternal nervousness that not only destroys the pleasures of children on their holidays, and deprives them of a thousand delights that are theirs by right, but that plants in these impressionable little natures seeds of anxiety and doubt that will bear heavy harvest later on.

COURT RULES WIFE AND CHILD DESERTION CASES ARE ONLY MISDEMEANORS

The law making a felony of wife and child desertion has been held unconstitutional and in the future all complaints of this nature should be considered misdemeanors, Judge P. A. Martin has been informed in a letter from the attorney general's office.

Sam B. Spence, district attorney, has turned over all records in cases now pending on these two charges to L. V. Abernathy, county attorney. Judge Irvin J. Vogel of the county court at law, will now have to conduct a "domestic relations" court instead of the district judges.

'All Night Long' To Be Presented By All Star Cast

A play which promises suitable entertainment for the vacation period has been chosen by the Little Theater guild, for its first performance, June 1-6 inclusive in "All Night Long." The music will be furnished by the Mahaffey studio.

The guild is composed of members of the Little Theater who have starred in productions of that organization during the past year and who wish to continue some dramatic work during the summer. Mr. F. C. McClung, who has been so successful both as director and artist in the many productions of the Little Theater, is directing the play which is being given for the benefit of Mrs. H. Duff Jones circle of the Woman's auxiliary of the Episcopal church.

The play, by Felicia Metcalf, combines intrigue, fun and mystery in three acts, every minute of which offers excitement and side-splitting laughter.

Mr. Woody Benner, playing opposite Miss Avalon Rines, both of whom did outstanding work in "Why Marry?" will be seen in an entirely different role as he impersonates the confident young husband moving to the city to make his mark in the world of industry, aided and encouraged by his equally ingenious wife. They go by the name of Smith.

Miss Olive Humphries as the ingenue, represents a young lady bent on escaping from boarding school and an irate father to marry her sweetheart, whose part is played by Jack Chedester. The two of them succeeding in complicating the life of the Smiths for one whole night.

Mr. J. W. Thorne as a very meek husband and a minister, becomes involved in a car theft in attempting to assist the young lady and at the same time to find his wife's diamond rings. He dare not face her without them. The part of the wife will be played by Mrs. Edwin Bebb, who will be remembered as Mrs. Sharp in "The Passing of the Third Floor Back."

Harold White as the pompous head of the boarding school, does a piece of characterization quite up to his usual form. Mr. Sidney Waghorne has the proper vehicle for dramatics and comedy in the part of the irate father.

The cast is rehearsing nightly. The play will be given one week, June 1-6 inclusive at the Little Theater playhouse.

LARGE ATTENDANCE EXPECTED MONDAY AT SUMMER SCHOOL

A large enrollment is expected in the elementary section of the summer school Monday morning, according to R. A. Jarrott, principal. Classes are to be held at the Alamo school. The tuition charge is $5 for one subject and $10 for two or more subjects.

Because of the late cool weather, it is believed that there will be many registrations. The classes close in six weeks, on July 3, leaving 10 weeks of vacation before the regular term starts.

Those who failed in their work, those who wish to repeat work in which they were conditioned or those who wish to do advanced work are eligible to enter. The primary grades will be taught by Miss Norma Rollins of the Benjamin Franklin school and Mrs. R. E. Vigus of the Alamo school, while the intermediate section will be taught by Miss Lailah Norman of the Carrigan school and R. A. Jarrott of the San Jacinto school.

STUDENTS' HEALTH BETTER THIS YEAR CARRIGAN SCHOOL

The depression of 1931 has not made itself evident in the health or work of Carrigan school children.

This was shown in statements made by teachers of the school Friday in reviewing the work of the year.

This has been the best year of the school, according to J. T. Rundell, principal at Carrigan for the past eight years. Like opinions were expressed by Mrs. Earnest Self Adams, who has taught in the primary school for the past six years, and Miss Lailah Norman, English instructor in the grades, who is completing her eighth year.

Mrs. Adams, in speaking of the year's work, reported no failures in her room at the end of the term, and no seriously underweight children. "This is the first year that this has been true in my experience," said Mrs. Adams.

Miss Lailah Norman, who had no failures in her room during the year, said, "This is the first year in Carrigan school I have been able to pass all children at both midterm and the end of the year."

"Many rooms had only one to two failures and failures for the school as a whole average less than 10 per cent," said Mr. Rundell, "and the majority of those failing were children who did not attend classes regularly enough to get the work.

"General health of the pupils has been excellent throughout the year, without any of the preventable diseases. There has been one case of whooping cough, a few of chicken pox, but no measles and no epidemic of any kind.

Cold Worst Enemy

"Common colds have been the worst enemy to the health of the children. This is a marked improvement over previous years.

"General behavior of pupils was better than during other years. This improvement would have been impossible without the cooperation of parents and the welfare work of the parent-teacher association," said Mr. Rundell.

Food and clothes for the needy, good pictures and playground equipment are concrete results of the work of the association, while visits in the homes, a program of health education for parents through the association and for the children through the school have combined to raise the average of school work done.

Promptness and dependability were two of the character-building habits stressed by the school this year. Forty-nine children of those on the roll have received recognition as not having been tardy or absent during the nine months' work.

Local Council

Letters have been mailed to all members of the local council and guardian association inviting members to attend the annual picnic on Tuesday evening. All members with their families are to meet at local headquarters at 5:30 from where they will drive out to the prospective camp site on the Red river, about 17 miles from town. A picnic lunch will be the big feature of the evening. Games and songs will be a part of the program.

Camp Committee

Several members of the local council camp committee and guardian association went to Craterville, Okla., on Saturday afternoon to inspect the camp there. A report will be made at the picnic on Tuesday evening and definite plans will be made for the summer camp, which will probably be held this year the second week of July, at Craterville.

Guardian Association

A call meeting of the guardian association was held at local headquarters on Friday morning to complete plans and begin on sale of vanilla and gelatin to raise money for sending guardians to national training course at Corsicana, Texas, May 31 to June 7. A pretty green 17-piece set of glassware will be given to the guardian selling the most goods by Thursday of this week. The money must be collected and turned into the local headquarters by 5 o'clock on Thursday, to count in the contest. A $1 bottle of perfume will be given to the one coming second. The above prizes are special premiums offered by Mrs. Anna Elizabeth Wade, whose products the association is handling, for placing of the first order and for cash with order.

Those attending the meeting were Mesdames Frank W. Michaux, W. J. Willis, Frank Schram, Fountain of Corsicana, sister of Mrs. Michaux, Misses Thelma Bridges, Zona Younkin and Mary McIlheran.

Acancan Group

The Acancan group of Reagan Junior high held an outing at Boone's park on Thursday afternoon. Each girl earned the camp craft honor for learning six blazes. A group of the girls then blazed the trail for a make-believe "treasure hunt" which was followed by the rest of the group. The picnic lunch was enjoyed by Bernadine and Mrs. Hallie Arnold, Iona Swift, Mary Love Appleby, Virginia Hanks, Dorothy Gothard of Ahsonzong group, Yvonne Bussey, visitor, Leona Burgess, Miss Leska Howard, guardian and Miss McIlheran. Mrs. Arnold will meet with the group in the absence of the guardian during the summer. The next meeting will be held at local headquarters where the girls will begin work on their headbands in preparation for the first rank.

Ahsonzong Group

The Ahsonzong group met at the home of Lois and Jewell Gibbens, 1514 McGregor. Programs were made out for the meetings for the next eight weeks, which will include nature study, earning of several requirements for fire makers rank, a picnic, slumber party, and council fire.

Others attending were Lucile Murchison, Gladys Young, Loucille and Mrs. W. J. Willis, guardian.

Nowetompatimmin

The Nowetompatimmin group met on Saturday afternoon to work on the covers for the count books they have made, and later in the afternoon took a hike out on Seymour road to collect rocks to add to their rock collection in fulfillment of nature lore honor No. 801. As a number of the girls were out of town for the week-end, only Dorothy Lee Reeder, Margaret Pierce, Mona Guiler, Evelyn Jane Hawkins, Earlene and Mrs. W. E. Polk, guardian, were present for the meeting.

Tanokiwin Group

The Tanokiwin group went for an outing at Cedar Park pool on Saturday. They met at the home of the guardian, Miss Thelma Bridges, 2119 Alma and hiked out to the park, where they enjoyed games, and working for honor beads.

Adi-Iwah Group

The Adi-Iwah group have planned an outdoor meeting at Cedar Park pool for Thursday afternoon. Thelma Simmons, aspirant for fire maker rank will be in charge of cooking and serving of the outdoor meal which will be prepared over the camp fire. Mary Elizabeth Largin will have charge of planning the games for the outing.

The Story of Sue

© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

As the detective explained that Sybil had talked in her delirium and admitted, when questioned, that it had been at Clifford's suggestion that she had started to take money from the bank, the Becker living room grew very quiet. The stillness suddenly glowed as though a current had been turned on. Electric, vibrant. Each person in the room wanted to ask questions. No one wanted to break the spell of the slow, easy voice, however, as it talked on with such metallic strength under the flow of words.

"Well, Becker, shall we put on the bracelets or will you come along without decorations?"

"You mean I'm going to jail?" Clifford asked.

"The county hotel." The man nodded. "I can think of several places which might have better accommodations for guests, but we usually keep fairly well filled." He stepped to the door and motioned to two more detectives who entered quietly.

"I'm sorry to interfere with your privacy, Mrs. Becker," he said, "but it can't be helped this time."

"I . . . I don't want to see any more," Corrinne said. "Will you excuse me? I'll ask the cook to put enough places on the table for all of us." She slipped away.

And Sarah, remembering that she was the one who had coaxed Clifford to come to this house and had promoted the scene, wondered if he would try some day to take out his wrath on her. She couldn't see any one start away handcuffed. She excused herself and slipped out of another rear door.

Sue, relentless, watching with a fascination that was as torturing as it was relentless, had a sudden sense of pity for Harry. He had been very splendid to her family. This dishonor would reflect on his own family. The sting had been removed from the Merrymar household and fastened on the Becker menage. Life was queer. No one knew what cards the wheel of fate would toss up or when they would come. But sooner, or later, you could bank on it, the wheel played fair in the end.

The proud Lester family would have a hopeless case to plead. He couldn't hold his aristocratic old head quite so high.

But Jack, eager, determined, enthusiastic, had carried off the laurels. He had sacrificed his career with his father to help Sue's father. And he had won his spurs. He had gone into the courts to fight for her, Sue reflected, just as tryly as any knight in a crimson and gold story-book ever climbed a glass hill or killed a dragon for a princess in a tower.

And while her idle thought mused on, and her fascinated eyes watched Clifford, a sudden shot shattered the stillness. Quick, sharp. A blur of smoke. She could almost feel the whiz of the bullet, although it came from somewhere beyond the entrance hall into which the detectives had stepped with Clifford.

Next—Mystery of the shot.

A CENTENNIAL PREREQUISITE

The question whether Texas shall observe its centennial in proper style in 1936 is to be put up to the voters. Both houses at Austin have approved a proposed constitutional amendment which would permit the legislature to make appropriations for the centennial observance. The question of where, what and how can be answered after the question of wherewith has received a satisfactory answer at the polls.

The amendment should be adopted. Texas has more to celebrate than any other state in the union. The adoption of the amendment is a prerequisite to celebrating in the right way.

THE RURAL AID LAW

The state supreme court has decided that the rural aid law is constitutional. Constitutionality of the law had been attacked in a case from Medina county, based on alleged inequalities in administration of the rural aid funds. The court's decision of last Saturday disposes of the issue of constitutionality.

It does not dispose of the several serious objections that have been raised to the rural aid system. These objections cannot be met in the courts, but the legislature should earnestly consider them. As now administered, the rural aid plan puts a premium on backward methods in rural education and penalizes efficiency. Consolidation of two or more small rural schools may be altogether desirable from the standpoint of better educational results, but it means less aid money from the state, and that often serves to defeat it.

There is much to be done to make the rural aid law serve the children of Texas better. The fact that its constitutionality has been upheld does not mean that it is the kind of law it ought to be.

THOSE WHO WEARY OF WELL-DOING

Chicago just now is furnishing an example of what it takes to bring about effective reform of a city's affairs after they have been mishandled. Anton Cermak, the new mayor, appears to be making a sincere and determined effort to clean up the city hall. But he declares that he is getting no cooperation. He has been trying to persuade outstanding business men and civic workers to accept responsible places in the city government. The elements which, sick and disgusted with Thompson's blatancy and misrule, helped put Cermak into office, consider that their civic duty was done when they marked their ballots for him. They cheered for a few seconds when the returns came in, and then dropped back into the indifferent state of mind which enabled Bill Thompson to make Chicago a laughing-stock for so long.

Of course, as the Houston Chronicle points out, the places can be filled. The mayor can fill them with mediocrities, or worse. Public jobs do not go begging. When worthy men cannot be found for them, unworthy men must be named. It seems a pity that in Chicago, a city so sorely in need of better government, the right kind of men will not respond. We pay, in this country, a stiffer price for indifference than for crookedness.

When Will Shakespeare said, "Sweet are the uses of adversity," he couldn't have forseen, of course, such a thing as a depression.

THE SMALL TOWN AND THE HIGHWAY

The bill by Representative Finn of Montague county, governing the rerouting of highways through communities of more than 200 population, offers a ticklish little problem to the governor. It has passed both houses but is understood to face a veto. It provides that the consent of the county commissioners must be obtained before a highway can be rerouted through a town of 200 or over.

There is much to be said on both sides of the question. For whom is a highway built? For the travelers and tourists who pass through a county, for the larger towns and cities in a county, or for each community through which it passes? No ready answer is available.

An example of how the measure might operate is offered, close at hand. Highway 30 passes through Holliday, but does not traverse the main business section of the town, as the old dirt road did. If it had been built up Holliday's main street, there would have to be two grade crossings where there now are none and the straight stretch of the pavement would be interrupted. From the standpoint of the Wichitan heading for Lake Kemp, the highway is much more satisfactory than it could be if it went through Holliday's central section instead of across a corner of the town. Yet it is not to be doubted that Holliday concerns sell less gasoline and fewer soft drinks than they would if the highway penetrated the business section.

Someone might answer that the primary purpose of a highway is to enable people to get somewhere and not to provide business for each community's merchants. That, however, would not be a complete answer. Each community has rights which, while they cannot be fully recognized, should not be entirely ignored.

The exercise of a whole lot of common sense, coupled with as much sympathetic understanding as possible, is demanded, whether or not full authority continues in the highway commission's hands. No hard and fast rule can be laid down.

INSTALMENT BUYING SURVIVES

In the face of many dire predictions, instalment buying has not only survived a year and a half of depressed business conditions, but has suffered relatively little, according to Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce. In a recent address, Dr. Klein presented some figures showing how well the instalment plan has withstood the adverse winds and tides.

Before the period of depression began, economists and sociologists had been trying to chart the possible effects of instalment buying. There were dangers in the plan, according to many observers, and there was general agreement that while it worked well in prosperous times, a period of depression would have disastrous effects upon it.

It hasn't worked out that way, according to Dr. Klein. His department has found that the instalment payments of the average American family constitute but a nominal part of the family budget, and that most families have been able to make their payments right along.

In a study of 513 retail furniture concerns in 25 representative cities it was found that while gross sales declined in 1930, the percentage of instalment sales was not greatly changed. The most significant fact was that repossessions, which had been necessary in 10.8 per cent of the sales made in 1929, increased only two per cent in 1930.

In electrical appliances the percentage of instalment sales declined from 71.2 per cent in 1929 to 70.4 per cent in 1930. Repossessions increased from 11.8 per cent to 12.6 per cent.

As a system it has been put under the most grilling of tests by a world business depression of almost unparalleled intensity and it has demonstrated its right to survive . . . Neither the buyers nor the sellers, as careful investigation discloses, have sustained the serious injuries from it which we were warned to expect during business depression.

We may expect to see instalment buying become still more securely established as a feature of the American economic system, when conditions improve.

Three American Survivals

By GLENN FRANK
(Copyright McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

Andre Maurois, in a recent article in the Revue des Deux Mondes, speaks of "three phantoms" he saw hovering over American life.

(1) The phantom of the Puritan.
(2) The phantom of the Pioneer.
(3) The phantom of the Feudal Lord.

He finds the phantom of the Puritan in the furtive longing for decency that lies behind the escapades of the younger generation.

He finds the phantom of the Pioneer in the aspirations and strenuous activities of the modern American.

He finds the phantom of the Feudal Lord in the racketeer who protects his dependents from the competition of rival gangs—for a price—just as a Feudal Lord in Gascony in the Middle Ages protected his tenants—for a price—from the aggressions of civil or ecclesiastical authorities.

These three phantoms do haunt us still, but I should interpret their haunting a bit differently.

Insofar as the Puritan's fine flame of conscience haunts young America in its escapades, America is the gainer.

It is regrettable that the Puritan's fanaticism also haunts our national life—throwing its ghostly shadow over our life and our legislation.

Insofar as the Pioneer's resistless energy and eagerness to explore the unknown frontier remain in our national spirit, America is the gainer.

It is regrettable that the Pioneer's single-handed individualism still persists among us. It is giving us many things we could afford to lose. They are:

If we can rid ourselves of the Puritan's fanaticism and the Pioneer's stubborn individualism, and bring the conscience of the Puritan and the courage of the Pioneer to bear upon our problems, we may mould the future to our heart's desire.

ROUGHLY SPEAKING

Rear Entrance

The new postoffice soon will rise
In graceful grandeur toward the skies.
'Twill bring us pride and joy—and yet,
With one dark doubt I am beset.

I wonder if, in a place so fair,
They'll let us Democrats enter there,
Let it become all cluttered with Such folks as voted for Al Smith.

They may feel we would be misplaced,
And deem it too rich for our taste,
It might be best that they provide
A door for us on the alley side.

Oh, the merry month of May, when the cold wind blows all day, when you wish in early dawn that you'd kept your heavies on, and summer seems a thousand months away.

It's all right for winter to linger in the lap of spring, but where does she get this stuff of lingering in the lap of summer?

Sylvester

When, two weeks ago, we wrote about the talented blacksnake that helped us catch fish, we did so with considerable misgiving. We had undergone so much unhappiness when, as a lad, we first related that experience, that we were a bit apprehensive about reviving the story. But our fears were groundless. Our readers, we are glad to report, received the story in the proper spirit. None of them has openly voiced any doubts as to the truth of it. Some of them, it is true, have told us that if anyone but ourself had related such a story, they would not believe it, but that they know we would not misrepresent such a matter.

We have, in fact, been deeply touched by the reception the story received. We realize full well that it was a rather unusual happening and that we should not complain if our readers adopted a conservative attitude toward it. Our public's faith in us is ennobling and inspiring. We appreciate it deeply; for we have some human instincts, even if we are a colyumist.

It would be crass of us to show no gratitude. And so we are going to give some further details about what happened to us and Sylvester, which, though we neglected to mention it before, was the snake's name. It's the very least we could do.

Our Plan

Well, we went fishing pretty often and whenever we went to the creek, Sylvester would come gliding to meet us, eager to do his part. We got to where we discarded our regular fishing tackle altogether and depended entirely on Sylvester.

He served us well, but he had one fault, a temperamental one. He simply would not show himself when anyone else was present. In our efforts to secure acceptance of our story, we took other persons to the creek with us to show them what Sylvester could do, to let them obtain visual confirmation of what we had told. But Sylvester would not come out. We would whistle and call for him in vain. Perhaps it was modesty on his part, perhaps it was because he considered himself a one-man snake. At any rate, he would never appear when we had a companion. We finally gave up trying to have witnesses.

It occurred to us that Sylvester's accomplishment had commercial possibilities. We developed a large and glittering idea. It was to find another snake, a lady snake, and train her to be a fish-catcher, too. And then, we hoped, Sylvester would take her as his mate and they would raise a family of fish-catching snakes for which, we were quite sure, we could find a market. The more we pondered this idea, the larger its possibilities loomed.

Mabel

By good luck we soon found another blacksnake, of the required sex. We named her Mabel, after one of our teachers. She was shy at first, but soon she and Sylvester became friends. It was not difficult to teach her to catch fish as Sylvester was doing. She caught on promptly and soon became quite as skillful and accommodating as he was. She entered whole-heartedly and zestfully into the spirit of the work.

Meanwhile, the friendship between her and Sylvester seemed to be steadily ripening into love. We began looking forward happily to the fruition of our plan. The offspring of two such accomplished snakes, we reasoned, would certainly have the same talents and ability.

We began to make tentative plans for the development of our enterprise. It was our intention to start in a modest way and let the business grow as its fame spread abroad. We decided upon a name for the business. It was to be the John Gould Fish-Catching Snake Co., Limited. We pictured ourself as the youthful head of a new and immensely profitable industry.

With the confident optimism of youth, we made plans for spending the wealth that was to be ours. The first returns, we resolved, would go for the purchase of a Hercules Magic Electric Belt, then being advertised, and which we earnestly desired to possess in the hope that it would produce for us the same marvelous muscular development attained by the man in the advertisement.

But alas! for the vain-ness of human hopes and plans! Alas! for the castles we build in the air that collapse crashing about our ears! The best laid schemes of mice and men are frustrated, and we were to learn that this goes for snakes as well.

Even today, many years afterward, sadness encompasses us at the memory of how, due to a trivial, thoughtless mistake, our undertaking failed. Some time, perhaps, we shall find the heart to relate the rest of the story. But not now, not now. Bear with us, readers, for a while.

It wasn't necessarily a mistake to raise the legislature's pay to $10 a day. The mistake was in continuing to elect $5-a-day legislators.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON. — Commercial history in the last few years appears to have damaged the theory that Europe was on its last legs.

It makes a lot of difference to this country. No one disputes the growing interdependence of the two continents. Europe provides half our export markets and the percentage of loss in exports to Europe during the period of depression has been less than that in our exports to any other continent.

The United States is more important to Europe as a source of supplies than as an export market, it was pointed out by economists at the international chamber of commerce congress here, and Europe is more important to America as an export market than as a source of supplies.

Shows Progress

Despite foreign protests at our high tariffs and international debt payments, monographs, reports and speeches at the congress were in essential agreement that Europe had begun a period of convalescence from her postwar illness and that European commercial progress would continue despite the world-wide depression. When the depression arrived, her exports to America had been increasing and she was again holding her own in the markets of the world.

European delegates brought statistics to show that from 1926 to 1929 industrial output increased more rapidly in many European countries than in the United States and from 1929 to 1930, the first full calendar year of depression, it decreased more rapidly in the United states than in the leading countries of Europe.

Foreign trade values decreased everywhere in 1930, they said, but the shrinkage was less marked in Europe's leading countries than in the United States.

Although 1929, except for 1920, was America's record year for foreign trade, Europe's share of international trade had risen from 49.6 per cent in 1926 to 52.2 per cent in 1929.

Consumes More Raw Materials

Between 1926 and 1928 European consumption of such basic raw materials as coal, fuel oils, copper, lead, zinc, tin, aluminum, rayon, wool, rubber and cocoa increased while American consumption decreased, according to figures presented by Alberto Pirelli, the Italian industrialist, who was chairman of the Europe-United States committee which had supervised an immense amount of research and produced many long reports for the congress.

Also, said Signor Pirelli, although the United States owns 75 per cent of the world's operating automobiles, the number of new registrations of motor cars in 1930 was 453,000 in Europe and only 123,000 in the United States. John H. Fahey, the American publisher, former president of the international chamber, said the trade of Europe as a whole had expanded at practically the same rate as that of the United States except for the war period.

Fahey also made the interesting observation that it was an open question, raised by able economists, whether living standards in the United States had risen more rapidly than in Europe. Comparisons, he said, might be merely matters of opinion and the variations simply those represented by different tastes and attitudes of mind.

In a careful examination of 1930 from the American standpoint, he showed that our foreign trade had fallen off considerably more in value than in volume, owing to lower commodity prices. American foreign trade reached a peak of $13,500,000,000 in 1920, fell almost by one-half to $7,000,000,000 in 1921, reached $9,200,000,000 in 1928 and $9,600,000,000 in 1929, only to fall to $6,900,000,000 in 1930. The last total was 28 per cent below 1929 and 25 per cent below the average for the previous five years.

But although our experts fell 27 per cent from 1929 value to $3,843,000,000 in 1930, the department of commerce, making adjustment for price changes, has estimated that the quantity of our exports dropped only 19 per cent. And imports of $3,061,0000,00 for 1930, which was 30 per cent off from 1929, represented a quantity decrease of only about 15 per cent.

Our four leading exports, Fahey reported, fell off like this, comparing 1930 with 1929: Cotton, 36 per cent in value and 12 per cent in quantity. Automobiles, 49 per cent in value and 56 per cent in quantity. Gasoline increased six per cent in value. Leaf tobacco increased one per cent in quantity and lost one per cent in value.

The European experts, analysing past American commercial progress and prosperity with the development of mass production, united in stressing the abundance of our natural resources and the lesser destiny of our population. They also mentioned the great size and unique uniformity of our domestic market. Every American, they said, was born thrice as rich as every European. But they also gave us credit for being young and smart and vigorous, a race well fitted to make the most of our privileges and opportunities.

They noted the improving condition of Europe and suggested that America was sooner or later bound to slow down her rate of industrial progress while undertaking to demonstrate the old continent's economic vitality.

"Europe is old but not decrepit," said Pirelli. "She is an invalid putting on flesh and this is a reassuring symptom."

Health and Diet Advice

Cataracts of the Eye

Inside the eyeball and just behind the iris there is a clear, transparent lens which is for the purpose of converging the rays of light just as does a lens in a telescope. This crystaline lens is transparent, but may become opaque in old people or as the result of an accident in young people. When this occurs the condition is termed a cataract.

Many people have the mistaken belief that a cataract is a growth in or on the eye, but this is not true. Sometimes the growth appears on the outside of the eye, going from the inner corners over the surface of the eye, and may even cover the pupil. This growth is termed a "pterygium" and while not serious may be removed by a slight operation.

The crystaline lens being transparent is obviously not nourished by blood which would give it a red color. It is nourished by absorbing the clear transparent lymph from surrounding tissue. When this lymphatic circulation becomes clogged or filled with irritating toxins it is apt to cause an opaqueness of the crystaline lens termed a "cataract." This interference with the circulation of the lymph is caused by deposits and sluggishness or by inflammation of the eye from eyestrain in old people, but it may be caused in young folks by cuts or bruises of the eye that interfere with its circulation.

Most cases of cataract are seen between the ages of 60 and 75, and in almost every instance there is the history of some other chronic trouble that has been present over the course of 20 or 25 years, such as constipation, liver trouble, goiter, diabetes and pellagra. When these cases are very far advanced they can only be operated on. The operation removes the lens which can be partly compensated for by wearing thick glasses. In many instances, the operation is successful enough to permit the patient to read, but in other cases complete blindness may result.

At the first appearance of a cloudiness of the crystaline lens strict dietetic treatment should begin at once. In addition to this, exercise of the eye should be used at least twice daily to stimulate the circulation. I have prepared a special article on exercises for strengthening the eye, which I will be glad to mail to any one who will send me a large self addressed stamped envelope. It is also advisable for one to drink large quantities of distilled water to assist in washing out the impurites that may have accumulated in the circulation. From two to three gallons per day would not be an excessive amount.

Most of us who live in cities have a constant strain on the eyes that can only be relieved by wearing suitable glasses. My best advice to those who wish to avoid cataracts is to diet, wear properly fitting glasses and take the eye exercises.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Orange Juice for Baby

Question—Mrs. J. K. writes: "My baby is very constipated, and she refuses to take orange juice. Am giving her cow's milk. Have tried prune juice but it has no affect."

Answer—If the baby will not take orange juice separately you might be able to add a small amount to milk or prune juice so she will overcome the dislike of its flavor, or tomato juice may be used in place of the orange juice.

Potatoes Good Starch

Question—M. R. asks: "Will you please tell me whether or not potatoes are hard on the kidneys?"

Answer—Potatoes are a good starchy food, and are not especially hard on the kidneys, but when kidney trouble is present I advise a non-starchy diet until the condition has cleared up.

Poliomyelitis

Question—Mrs. G. writes: "I am convalescing from poliomyelitis, and would like to know if light complexioned people are more susceptible to this or other diseases."

Answer—I do not know that light complexioned people are any more suspectible to this disease than others, but their skin is a little thinner and they are sometimes more susceptible to certain skin disorders.

Bowlegs in Adults

Question—H. M. F. asks: "Would certain exercises straighten bowlegs at my age, 36?"

Answer—It is almost useless for adults to expect to straighten the bones of their legs if they are badly bowed. However, by taking exercises such as the deep knee bend, and alternately raising on the toes and heels, the muscles of the calf may be so developed as to make the bow less noticeable.

DAILY HEALTH TALK

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

At the request of the United States public health service, Dr. H. H. Hazen prepared a brief statement for dissemination to the public concerning care of the hair and scalp. He has emphasized particularly some well-established facts which should be widely disseminated.

The hair should be washed often enough to keep it clean—that means for short hair, at least once in two weeks and for long hair once in three weeks. Dr. Hazen does not believe that the use of egg in shampoos is of any more value than throwing the egg into an electric fan. It disseminates the egg but accomplishes nothing for the hair. He recommends any good toilet soap that will lather freely. It is especially important to rinse the hair thoroughly and to dry it slowly rather than by a hot blower.

If the hair is too dry, a small amount of oil may be rubbed into it after drying. Dr. Hazen emphasizes again the folly of singeing the hair, because the hair is not a hollow tube and singeing it does not prevent the escape of vital substances.

One of the difficult problems of modern life is the attempt to keep gray hair from visibility. Employers hesitate to select gray-haired men or women for fear that they may be too old for the occupation.

A philosopher, asked as to what he would do with white hair, answered "admire it." However, that does not answer the psychologic and economic question. It is possible to dye hair, but the dying process may involve the use of ingredients which are harmful to the skin, particularly in people who are sensitive to paraphenylendiamine. A careful hairdresser will ascertain the presence or absence of sensitivity before making too much of an exposure.

Dryness of the hair is due to lack of oil secreted by the glands of the scalp. Sometimes the difficulty is due to a lack of proper activity by the thyroid gland, which is associated with dryness of the hair. Under such circumstances it is desirable to have an investigation of the glandular condition by a competent physician who will be able to determine as to whether or not the thyroid gland is functioning properly.

When the body in general is in ill health the hair is likely to be ill also. Falling of the hair after a serious illness is common. When the body begins to improve and its hygiene to reach an optimum state, the hair will return.

In case of hereditary baldness, the hair tends to fall out promptly and in localized areas; indeed, according to a definite pattern, and it is not possible, so far as is now known, to prevent loss of hair in such cases.

IN NEW YORK with Gilbert Swan

NEW YORK.—And since this is the Bagdad-on-the-Subway of O. Henry, where anything can, and does, happen, it was, we shall say, the thousand-and-third night.

I had met a friend who writes advertising copy for a living. He's a young chap I have known for several years. I had heard him mention his father and some sisters, but there had been no inference of the romantic, the dramatic or the picturesque.

"I've got to drop down street and meet my dad for a minute," he had said. And then, added, "By the way, it might interest you to come along. Perhaps you didn't know that my father is quite a collector—quite an important one for many a year. He's one of those shrewd and canny bidders you see at antique sales and auctions. Paintings were his forte—he specialized in Corots . . . had a big collection of his own. For years no important private sale was held without him. He doesn't follow it so much just now, though he keeps an eye open for Corots . . .

"But it's the matter of a certain jewel I thought you'd be interested in. I'll let him tell you about it himself."

So it befell that I came back to look upon the famous star sapphire: the sort of stone about which eerie mystery tales are spun . . . a stone as mysterious as any that ever came to these shores. It is said to be the largest sapphire in the world, some 280 karats, large as an egg and glowing with a haunting gold-blue fire. Held in a certain light a gold cross appears in the center; this fades and gives way to tiny clouds of drifting bluish smoke. Small wonder that men are hypnotized by such gems!

William Wellmann, private collector and dealer, was waiting for us in one of those prison-like safety deposit vaults.

There is a flavor of theatrical unreality about these catacombs: giant steel doors swing open . . . there is the musical clank of metal . . . uniformed guards stand by . . . there are sinister-looking vaults and, then, any number of little cubby-holes into which folk disappear, bolting the doors behind them.

What secrets do these tiny rooms hold? Documents that would bring scandal or fame . . . secret letters . . . old clippings . . . locks of a loved one's hair . . . jewels for a Cleopatra . . . hidden gold and silver . . . the imagination runs from one room to another!

Such a room swallowed us up. And from a bit of wrapping paper came a small square package. There were other small, square packages. . . . But in the neat plush box glowed the huge star sapphire, while a hundred and one smaller gems of all sorts fell loosely around it.

"I can't tell you where this came from or how," Wellmann began. "It's all very strange and mysterious. I have tried to track this gem down; have followed clues here and there. I can only surmise. As good a conclusion as any is that it was part of the Russian royal collection and found its way out after the revolution.

"I merely know that one day, shortly after the revolution, had started, I was at the custom house appraiser's sale. This whole collection of marvelous stones—and more—had been shipped from somewhere in Europe, had been held for duty, had had a mysterious consignee—and here, to my amazement, they were in an appraiser's sale. Oddly enough, there were three or four Russians on hand to bid. I had never seen them there before, and I merely could conclude that they had been tipped off. But they didn't have the ready cash, which is demanded by the appraiser, and I outbid them.

"I have tried to trace back its history, but have nothing authentic. Such a stone is supposed to have come direct from Genghis Khan and to have figured in Persian legend. From there it possibly found its way into Europe and come down the centuries to the czar's court."

Casually he wrapped it up, and we went back into a world of traffic.

—GILBERT SWAN.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

WHY GOOD CATHOLIC CANNOT BE TRUE SOCIALIST

Editor of The Times: In your issue of the 19th you seem to have difficulty to understand how the pope could say that "it is not possible to be at once a good Catholic and a true Socialist."

If you realize what a true Socialist is you will admit that the pope knew what he was talking about. A true Socialist is one who is socialist both in theory and practice. Socialism is not only an economic organization demanding at least the socialization of the means of production and transportation; but it is also a theory which, in its last analysis, is realized in the government of Russia with its communism and anti-religionism. The rock foundation of socialism, according to Karl Marx and all the great lights of socialism, is the materialistic concept of history, which denies the very existence of the Deity. If there should be any one to say that I did not know what I am talking about, I wish to say that about 20 years ago I had a two days debate on this very point in Missouri and routed the defender of socialism to such an extent that he had to leave the city in disgrace and the eyes of many Socialists were opened. I am ready now to furnish you with as many quotations from the greatest lights of socialism in support of my contention as you wish to publish. Now this being true, it is easly evident that the pope was right in his contention that no good Catholic could be a true Socialist, for true socialism is the negation of all religion.

This distinction between theoretic and economic socialism will also clear away your difficulty with regard to the important part it plays in the politics of Europe. A good Catholic may be an enthusiast for the economic program of socialism, government control of the means of production and transportation, but if he does not accept the fundamental principle of socialism, the materialistic concept of history, the negation of God, he is not a true Socialist. Yours truly,

"Indiscreet," Gloria Swanson's latest offering, opened Friday at the Strand. The play is a fast moving comedy drama with Miss Swanson rising to the opportunities afforded in a highly brilliant manner, and she is capably supported by a cast of unusual talent headed by Ben Lyon, Monroe Owsley, Babara Kent, and Arthur Lake.

Ben Lyon helps no little in making a success of the picture. This handsome leading man, who did such a marvelous job in "Hell's Angels," is gaining a firm footing on the ladder of fame, and supports Miss Swanson in a manner demanding his share of praise too.

Monroe Owsley also has an important role. You will remember him in "Holiday," and "Honor Among Lovers."

"Stepping Out"

Critics are all raving over this picture, and Charlotte Greenwood is heralded as the new Queen of Comedy. You will laugh till your sides ache at the comedy and wisecracking of Charlotte Greenwood, and other characters in the picture.

In addition there will be a Paramount pictorial and a Billy House comedy, "Thou Shalt Not."

Thursday patrons of the Strand will see Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe in one of their famous screen roles, not forgetting El Brendel who again plays "Olsen" the dumb Swede marine. That dazzling Nordic beauty, Gretta Nissen heads a stellar array of feminine stars which includes Fifi Dorsay, Marjorie White, and Joyce Compton as well as 150 of the world's beauties.

Visits to America's fairyland of beauty spots, famous homes and points of interest about which poets have rhapsodized and historians have written volumes, together with sizeable prizes in cash, are included in 224 awards offered in an unique contest that has been opened to all persons in the city.

Several dealers in home furnishings can tell about the "Home Style-ing" contest. It will not be of a technical nature and any one who has a conception of how to furnish a room in a home, one who has ability to follow instructions, observe rules, and at the same time write a clear explanation not more than 500 words in length of his or her work, has a chance to win one of the many valued prizes.

The contestant is asked to lay out a floor plan of an existing room in a home, showing the present arrangement of the furniture and then re-style it to show the entrant's idea of an ideal room.

Professional interior decorators are barred from the contest, which closes on June 15. No entries will be considered after that date.

Nature's wonder places such as Crater lake in Oregon, Niagara Falls, Chinatown in San Francisco, the French sections of New Orleans and the Mexican quarters in Tia Juana and other border points; the grandeur of such estates as Mary Pickford's and Harold Lloyd's in Hollywood, Wrigley's on Catalina island and Biltmore House in Asheville, N. C., are only a few of the many interesting points to be visited by the grand prize winners.

The tour starts from Chicago Aug. 1 going by way of Grand Rapids, Detroit and Niagara Falls to Boston where the historic scenes of revolutionary days will be visited. Among them will be Lexington, where the minute men fired the "shot heard round the world"; Bunker Hill monument; Old North church, in whose steeple were hung the lanterns that signaled to Paul Revere to begin his ride for liberty; Concord, Cambridge, the homes of Emerson, Longfellow, Lowell, Louisa May Alcott and others.

Grant's tomb on Riverside drive, Roosevelt house in the city and Sagamore Hill in Oyster Bay will be included in the sight-seeing after the special train pulls into New York City.

Salesmen have been named counselors to advise each entrant of all details in connection with the contest.

Disabled Vets of World War Will Meet Here June 4

A mass meeting of disabled veterans of the world war who have applied for compensation or pensions is to be held at the courthouse here Thursday, June 4, at 8 p. m., it was announced Saturday.

Capt. W. L. Shaddix, national deputy chief of staff, representing the national headquarters of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, and the state department in Dallas, will speak, and will give a synopsis of the various laws that have been passed for the benefit of disabled ex-service men and their dependents. He will also explain plans for further legislation on their behalf. Captain Shaddix has had several years experience in assisting veterans with their claims and their affairs with the veterans bureau.

The main purpose of the meeting is to organize a district chapter of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War with headquarters in Wichita Falls. Similar organizations have been functioning in Dallas, Bonham, Tyler, Fort Worth, Beaumont, Houston, and Kerrville for many years. The organization is 11 years old and came into existence to assist veterans and their dependents with their claims for compensation and other allowances under the law. Last year more than $4,000,000 was secured through the efforts of the law experts of the organization who are placed within the bureaus and hospitals to assist with claims.

In the Wichita Falls district a number of veterans are national members at large of the D. A. V. of the W. W. and are being urged to meet with Captain Shaddix upon his arrival here.

WICHITAN RECEIVES MASTER'S DEGREE AGE OF NINETEEN

James Franklin Ward, former Wichita Falls High school student and graduate of the local Junior college in 1929, will receive both his B. A. and M. A. degrees at the Texas Technological college in Lubbock at the annual commencement exercises to be held in a few days. Only 19 years old, he will be one of the youngest students in the state ever to receive an M. A. degree.

Mr. Ward is a member of Pi Gamma Mu, honorary social science fraternity, and has just been notified of his election to the Southern Scholarship society, his grades being in the upper three per cent.

Following the completion of the present term of school, he will start on a field trip over New Mexico, Colorado and Arizona, studying archeology. Later he will enter Harvard university, specialising there in foreign trade and commerce.

COUNTERFEIT CURRENCY PASSED AT FREDERICK

FREDERICK, Okla., May 23.—Three counterfeit bills were discovered in Frederick the past two days, one for $20 and two of $5 each. A $5 certificate was given a filling station operator east of Frederick in payment for gasoline and oil. He obtained it from a man driving a car with a Texas license. This and a poorer imitation of a $5 bill were detected by Providence R. Mounts of the First National bank. The $20 bill was found to be a counterfeit by Charles McConnell of the Security State bank.

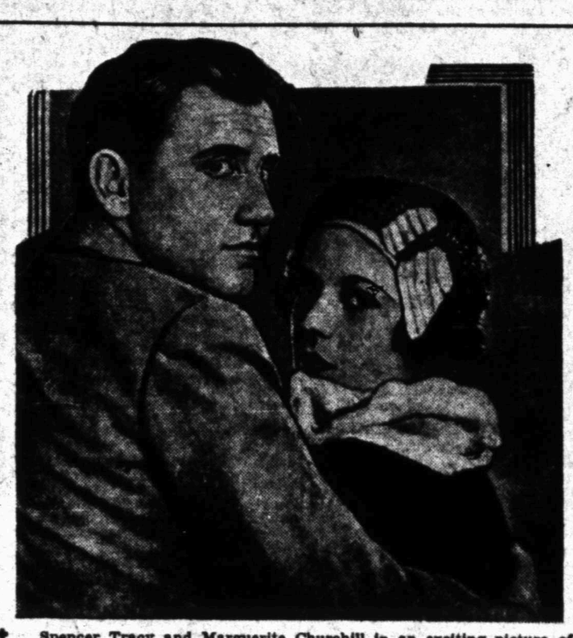

Two of the bills have been placed in the hands of Sheriff W. A. McAfee who has warned all citizens to be on the lookout for counterfeit money.

Record Shipment Of Fryers Made From Ranch Here

Shipment of more than 8,000 fryers hatched and raised on the Johnson Poultry ranch at Wichita Falls was made Saturday to the Chicago market. The birds were shipped alive and filled to capacity the largest special type of poultry car in use by railroads.

The chickens averaged close to one and one-half pounds each and it is said the shipment established a new record in Texas for a shipment of the kind. The ranch now has several thousand more fryers that will soon be ready to market.

Don T. Haynes, trustee of the ranch, spent Saturday in Bowie confering with Mose Johnson, founder. The ranch is the largest poultry hatching and raising ranch in the world and baby chicks are shipped monthly into almost every state in the United States, also exported into Mexico, Cuba and other distant nations.

'Ladies Man' With William Powell Majestic Feature Through Tuesday 'Quick Millions' Coming Wednesday

Paramount brings an effective story to the screen in its filmization of Rupert Hughes' serialized, "Ladies' Man," which opened at the Majestic theater Saturday.

"Ladies' Man" is the story of a very believable type of character—a society man who subsists upon the money he gains from selling the gifts which are showered upon him by the romantic and philandering ladies of the social set. Whence he came no one seems to know. Who his family is also remains unanswered. But the fact is patent that his debonair manner, his easy charm, his romantic suavity are all so glamorous in the eyes (and arms) of the ladies that any social register short-comings he may have are forgotten.

William Powell, as you may have suspected even if you had not been previously informed, plays this central character.

For the fun there is a Mack Sennett comedy entitled "The Cow Catcher's Daughter" and a cartoon featuring Oswald the Rabbit. Majestic talking news completes the program.

Quick Millions

One of the most versatile actors on the screen today—that is the reputation enjoyed by Spencer Tracy, who comes to the Majestic next Wednesday in the starring role of "Quick Millions."

There will be plenty of variety on this program. A rib-tickling comedy entitled "Rough House Rhythm." A screen presentation "Court Plastered." Screen novelty showing strange things seen around the world and Paramount Talking news.

"Tarnished Lady"

Fashion's latest decree—dresses and coats cut on the bias—will make their screen debut with Tallulah Bankhead, the talkies' latest sensation in "Tarnished Lady" to be seen at the Majestic theater starting next Saturday.

Paramount's newest star introduces a host of new fashion ideas in "Tarnished Lady" in which she makes her bow to the moving picture world after eight years as a reigning favorite of the London stage.

Students Regard Coolidge Better Copy Than Sale

CHICAGO, May 23. (AP)—Chic Sale has lost to Calvin Coolidge, 19 to 31.

It wasn't an election, but a test conducted by the Daily Northwestern, student publication of Northwestern university, on the question of which person was the more interesting as a news figure.

A questionnaire, in which celebrities were paired against each other, was submitted to 20 men students, 20 co-eds and 10 professors.

Bishop James Cannon Jr. fell before Jack Dempsey, 44 to 6, and Bobby Jones defeated John Philip Sousa, 43 to 7.

'THE BAT WHISPERS' TO BE ATTRACTION AT GEM

The "zoom" shot has been perfected for talking pictures.

The invention is credited to Charles Cline, a technical man at United Artists studios. It was sponsored and paid for by Roland West, producer-director, who needed it for only a single, brief scene in his production, "The Bat Whispers," featuring Chester Morris, coming to the Gem Sunday for three days.

Cline makes all the camera perambulators at United Artists studios. His new "zoom" sends the camera 18 feet in the fraction of a second. It is mounted on a light truck 24 feet long and has a height range for filming beginning at eight inches and adjustable to six feet.

"The Bat Whispers," a thrilling comedy-drama, highly mysterious in plot, has a cast including Una Merkel, Gustav Von Seyffertitz, Ben Bard, Grayce Hampton, Maude Eburne, William Bakewell, Charles Dow Clark, Spencer Charters, S. E. Jennings and Hugh Huntley.

MAYOR WALTER NELSON FINDS CUBAN POLITICS INTERESTING

Wichita Falls Visitor to Cuba Finds Turbulent Political Conditions and Marked Social Disturbances There

By W. L. UNDERWOOD

Incident to the reports now issuing from Cuba relative to political turbulence under President Machado's second administration, Mayor Walter Nelson Jr., recently returned from an eight days' visit in and near Havana, confirms the insistent rumors of serious popular resentment of the president's methods of government.

Striking contrast exists between the calm and beautiful appearance of the city of Havana as one approaches from the harbor and the political strife which makes itself so plainly felt once he has landed, according to Mr. Nelson. Of that phase of his recent experience, he said:

"As one approaches by water the white city of Havana, as the evening sun is setting, he cannot but be impressed with the tranquility of the beautiful scene. On the left, or east, there are the famous and historic Morro castle, now the West Point of Cuba, and Cabania fortress. Immediately ahead are the Malecon and the Prado, lined with the high arched facades. Hundreds of cars with lowered tops drive along the Prado, and thousands of people can be seen seated on the sea wall, walking in the numerous parks along the tree shaded promenades. It is indeed a restful and peaceful scene.

"After landing, leaving the port of entrance and driving down the Prado, a lawabiding citizen of "speakeasy" America is awed by the numerous restaurant bars, almost constantly crowded with a jostling, good nature but gesticulating crowd of native patrons.

Surface Tranquility

"Upon journeying into the interior one is impressed with the same atmosphere of apparent tranquility. The walls of the rural homes are made from the trunks of the royal palm and their roofs are thatched with palm fronds. These huts are in many instances without glass or wood in doors or windows. The farmers, dressed in the conventional soiled panama, short light-weight cotton jerkins, light badly worn trousers and with sockless feet in canvas shoes, slowly follow behind a crude homemade plow drawn by a yoke of oxen. The products of the farm are hauled in large two-wheeled ox carts of a primitive age.

"Such casual glimpses cause the tourist to believe that there is no place in the world blessed with so much beauty, harmony, peace and contentment. But an attentive ear and an eye unblinded by the beauty of the place can easily detect a discordant note, which if carefully attended takes on the roar of a revolution."

Lack of traffic regulations in this city of 600,000 inhabitants, and the absence of drunkenness or disorder, causes the visitor to wonder at the presence of a policeman on every corner, and the fixing of soldier guards at almost every mile on the rural roads, it was said. Inquiry as to their purpose, or as to why the beautiful Havana university was closed, would cause the native to take the inquirer behind locked doors and blinded windows to hear of the many atrocities and injustices inflicted by the Machado administration on the patriots of Cuba, Mr. Nelson said.

"Recent magazine articles relative to the present situation in Cuba have not exaggerated the facts," Mr. Nelson stated. "The present crisis is due almost entirely to the presence of General Machado, known as "The Machado." He is past middle age, very wealthy (during recent years) and is a combination soldier, politician, farmer and business executive. He was elected president in 1924. Since many predecessors had tried to perpetuate themselves in office and had become dictators, Machado gained a firm hold upon public fancy by promising in his campaign that he would not accept a second term. The promise not only was broken, but the president called a constitutional convention of his supporters and had the constitution changed permitting his re-election, and permitting a term of from four to six years. When the election was called, an order was passed forbidding the creation of new political parties, and only one candidate's name appeared on the ballot. That was Machado's. Only 15 per cent of the qualified voters exercised their franchise."

Lottery Control

Complete control over the Cuban congress is maintained by the president, Mr. Nelson related, through his distribution of lottery tickets with which the legislators may vastly improve the small compensation allowed them for their stated duties. Withdrawal of lottery privileges serves as a presidential "big stick" over their heads, it was said.

Detailing the political situation as it was described by various publications (later suppressed) and by citizens of Cuba, Mr. Nelson said:

"Of course, one who is uninformed about the situation would suggest that the remedy to that state of affairs would be an election whereby the corrupt congressmen would be supplanted by patriots who were subservient to the will and the interest of their constituents. This seems to the outsider to be a simple way of dealing with this situation, but it is a bit more complicated in Cuba than it is in the states for the reason that each poll is carefully guarded by soldiers and police under direct supervision of the administration, who have instructions to carefully examine each voter and determine how his ballot will be cast. If a friend to the administration, he is permitted to vote, if opposed to the administration he will be driven from the polls by the officers. However, elections under the present administration and at the present time are merely matter of form as candidates who are opposed to the administration are threatened, assassinated or exiled, or in the event this is not done, the returns of the election are canvassed by officers of the administration and though an opposing candidate received a large majority of votes, the returns would show the contrary.

Student Demands

"One phase of the political situation in Cuba which amazes most visitors concerns the universities and other schools of the island. It seems that the student body of the Havana university on the day prior to the opening of the school in the fall of 1929, made certain demands relative to the policies of the university. It may be stated that these demands had the wholehearted endorsement of the entire faculty. The policemen were ordered to disperse this assembly or mass meeting and in a fist and club fight which followed one student leader was killed. The students then went on strike until their demands were complied with and those responsible for the death of the student leader were punished. This was the beginning of organized opposition on the part of the students to the present administration, and has existed throughout the year. Consequently the Machado, immediately after the first strike on the part of the student body, closed the university and has not permitted the same to be reopened. As a result of the attitude of the president toward the university, the students have become a rather potent factor in the political situation in Havana, and many of the bombs which have been exploded in various sections of the city have been attributed to this group of young men between the ages of 17 and 23. Bombs have been placed on street car tracks, under the houses of various congressmen and in the bathroom of the Machado, and in the rest room in the rear of Sloppy Joe's barroom, the saloon most frequented by American tourists. It is not the purpose of the students to destroy life or property but to keep the governmental corruption ever present in the minds of Cuban patriots. Strict censorship of the press and the close supervision of the police, as a result of a state of martial law which there exists, prevent the obtaining of any definite information as to the exact happenings. However, there are rumors to the effect that many of the student leaders have been chained and handcuffed and thrown in the bay to the sharks, and these rumors have been confirmed by the discovery of parts of the mangled forms of several young students on the water front.

It is estimated that 200 patriots have been executed since September of 1930. An example of the high-handed manner in which patriots are dealt with can be had from an observation of the situation in Santiago, which is the political hot bed of the island. A new supervisor, a negro, who occupied, as I understand it, the same position as the chief of police, was appointed by the Machado to take charge of the Santiago region. He was stationed there for a period of 46 days and during that time he is accredited with having had 45 patriots executed.

Love Americans

"The Cubans love the Americans. To their way of thinking there are only three kinds of people in the world, the Cubans, the Americans and the Polacks. Those who are not Cubans and Americans they place in the general classification of Polaks, whom they hate. Next to the Machado, the man they dislike the most is the American ambassador, Guggenheim, whom they accuse of aiding and abetting the Machado in his nefarious undertakings. The Machado, according to the rumors, spends very little time in Cuba, most of his days being occupied with fishing expeditions on which he is accompanied by the American ambassador. The Cubans believe that Guggenheim has devoted his entire time and efforts to the advancement of his own ends, and that he has represented the banking and financial institutions of Wall street rather than the interest of the American or Cuban people. Further they feel that their inability to get rid of the Machado is due to the support which he has from the United States government by virtue of the close friendship which exists between Guggenheim and the Machado. In the reports which Guggenheim has been accredited to have made, he states that there was little cause for uneasiness on the island, that no evidence of any of these outrages had ever been brought to his attention. Of course it is true there is no way of proving that he had this information, however, it is quite evident to anyone who manifests the slightest interest in Cuban affairs that such a situation does exist. There is one noteworthy instance which certainly should have been brought to the attention of our ambassador, and that was the Taylor case which happened in Santiago. Taylor, a former resident of the United States who had recently become a naturalized Cuban, had manifested considerable interest in the political affairs of Cuma and as a result of his activities he was indicted, special prosecution employed and he was convicted and sentenced to be hanged. The American consul of Santiago intervened in his behalf and saved him from an untimely and unwarranted death. The people of Cuba say that this is one instance knowledge of which Ambassador Guggenheim should have had as the American consul had taken an active part in the defense of a former citizen of the United States.

Many Opposed

"It is quite evident that the majority of the people of Cuba are opposed to Machado and are anxious to see him resign and have in no uncertain terms appraised the Machado of their wishes. The Machado retains his office by virtue of his control of the lottery, the standing army and police force, and backing of the United States government through its Ambassador Guggenheim. Although during the administration of the Machado the most beautiful modern capitol building in the world has been built and a very beneficial highway through the center of the island has been constructed, nevertheless it is quite evident that he retains his office, not for any service that he might be to the Cuban people, but solely for his own financial betterment. In name he is a president, but in fact he is a dictator.

"On the 14th of this month the Machado received a message from the veterans of Cuban wars demanding his resignation by the 20th of this month, and it was rumored throughout the island generally that if his resignation was not forthcoming by the 20th that there would be a revolution. It might be that the government can keep the situation under hand for a short time, but the people of Cuba will never be satisfied until the Machado resigns and the American ambassador is recalled.

"During my week's stay in Cuba every individual with whom I talked, without an exception, from taxicab driver to the most prosperous merchants, engineers and brokers, were opposed to the Machado, and not once did I find any individual who was friendly to the president."

JUNE MEETING EXECUTIVES TO DISCUSS FOUR STATE PROBLEMS INCLUDING LOCAL GOVERNMENT

By ALFRED E. SMITH

NEW YORK CITY, May 23.—In the first week in June this year, the governors of the various states will hold their annual conferences at French Lick Springs in Indiana. Four subjects are listed for consideration by the conference. Number one is the excessive cost of local government.

Al E. Smith

I am afraid that the executives present, though it may be no fault of their own, will have to admit that part of the excessive cost of local government is due to the fact that the states have taken no steps to inquire into that cost or to do anything to curb it. In New York state I recommended investigation of this three different times. Governor Roosevelt followed in my footsteps and year after year of his term recommended inquiry into the cost and also into the framework of local governments.

Nine governors dealt with the subject in their annual messages this year. It is not long since President Coolidge pointed to the extravagance of local governments. There seems either to be a lack of understanding of what is sought to be accomplished or a general attitude on the part of the people indicating no interest in the subject because legislatures year after year without any given reason refuse to consider the subject. In North Carolina 75 cents of every dollar of taxes are expended and through local governments. It goes without saying that small governmental units make necessary many more officials and are unquestionably in a large measure responsible for high local taxes. One of the strange things about this whole situation is that people never think of reducing overhead cost of government or cutting down service by doing that which business concerns would surely do. The only answer that can be made to it is that the government is not in business and is not seeking profit and cannot be turned into bankruptcy courts. It simply goes back to the taxpayers year after year for more taxes to pay for it all.

Land utilization and state planning are also to be discussed by the conference.

State planning has in the past been woefully neglected. It would appear that the leaders of each successive administration seemed to be satisfied with the day in which they were living. In some states the short term of the governor and state officers is largely responsible for the lack of planning. But experience has demonstrated that industry, agriculture, power development and effective plans for institutions, residential housing, parks, highways, water supply and recreation resources are really interrelated. It requires a broadly planned program capable of taking in all these activities if we are to progress in a modern world.

Motor safety is another topic to be discussed. In so far as the protection of the individual motorist is concerned no governmental agency and no statute can protect the speed demon from the natural consequences of his folly. The state can go only a certain distance. It can make the roads wide enough to make passing safe. It can chart the road properly as to curves, inclines and crossings. But there is no way that it can either by legislation or by executive edict provide the brains required in the head of every motor car driver to think of the safety of others, to say nothing about his own.

The conference is also to discuss executive duties and responsibilities. This is rather a broad subject. As far as executive duties are concerned, I am of the opinion that too much detail is placed upon a governor by law. Thirty-five years ago the state performed few functions aside from the passage of general laws. The power of the state was quite generally delegated to its various civil divisions. Later, whenever a new legislative enactment required somebody to the responsible for it, there developed a strong tendency on the part of legislative bodies to pass that responsibility on to the governor, until we find governors burdened down with the duties of an unimportant character that might well be delegated to some other governmental agency.

I remember a court decision which made it necessary for the railroads of my state to have some governmental authority in the appointing of railroad policemen so that the police could exercise jurisdiction. The leaders of the legislature put upon the governor the duty of appointing railroad policemen. In actual practice it worked out in such a way that the governor was signing appointments of policemen, all suggested by the railroad, none of whom he knew and with whose selection he had nothing to do. The governor's signature was deemed to be all that was necessary in order to extend the police power to the railroads throughout the state. I found myself sitting up late at night engaged in the business of signing thousands of such appointments.

We had a statute in New York state that required the governor and his secretary to sign their names to plans for architectural changes in departmental offices or new construction in the various state institutions. That meant that every so often a representative of the office of the state architect would journey up to the office of the governor with an armful of blueprints. I never understood them and I am satisfied that no other governor did, but upon recommendation of the state architect the governor went through the form of signing his name to all of these documents.

With the modern form of government providing for the appointment and removal of department heads by the governor, definite executive responsibility is established and all the time possible should be given to the governor for the discharge of that responsibility. He should be in a position to keep in daily touch with various department heads, planning not only for the day on which the discussion takes place, but looking to the future. It will be extremely difficult to accomplish this if small, minor administrative duties are to be loaded down upon him. When the people purchase brains and ability for the solution of governmental problems they should not use that costly article for the performance of what practically amounts to clerical service.

I am of the opinion that the conference might well discuss consolidation of state departments and commissions and executive budgets, linked with a more modern method of appropriating public monies. Reorganization of state governments has been under consideration this past winter in 30 states by suggestion of their governors and is not meeting with favor in many of them. This is probably due to a lack of understanding by the people of what it is and what it seeks to do and also to the stubborn, ever-ready and ever-present opposition of those who may be politically injured or deprived of privileges by its operation or who believe they will be so injured.

As far as the executive budget is concerned, with the ever-growing cost of government, with the ever-increasing needs of the various commonwealth, nothing to my mind is more important that a modern, up-to-date form of handling the finances of the government. Most of the procedure of appropriation of public money today is based upon the experience of so many years ago that the methods cannot be applied to present day conditions.

Evidently the governor's conference is not to consider the question of water power development. It seems to me that this is of very great importance. The states should carefully conserve and safeguard the natural resources which grow from the development of electrical energy from water which belong to all the people. Water power is practically the last of our great natural resources that has not fallen into private hands for private development, for private profit. For fear that public interest may wane or subside it is my opinion that it should be a subject for discussion, perhaps not as to its detail but at least to the further enunciation of the fundamental principle that falling water on state property belonging to all the people should never be alienated, leased or developed by private agency but should remain an asset of the sovereignty, under state ownership and state control.

Of course, a governors' conference can not remain in session until every subject of interest has been fully discussed. For a year back extraordinary economic conditions have prevailed throughout the various states. Unemployment, business and agricultural depression would merit discussion at this time. Delinquency and crime as affected by the prohibition law and the failure of its enforcement present new developments for consideration. If a governors' conference is to be more than an occasion for set speech-making, it will benefit the people who are governed by these executives if there is full and free discussion from the viewpoint of human welfare as well as from purely administrative improvement.

EXPLANATION OF LAST SUNDAY'S CARTOON — The Moon Appears Largest When It Is Farthest Away: A full moon when rising appears larger, but is really smaller than when at its zenith, for the reason that, as explained in the diagram of my cartoon, the angle must be smaller at the time of rising due to the moon's greater distance from the observer. At the time the moon is at its zenith the observer is at least 4,000 miles closer to the moon. When rising the moon is seen silhouetted with, or immediately above the trees, houses, mountains, etc., on the horizon, and it appears much larger than when higher because we unconsciously compare it with those objects. At its zenith there is nothing for such comparison. This is verified by Mr. Ekert, head of the department of astronomy, Columbia university, New York City. Vlad the Impaler: Vlad IV, vievode of Wallachis (Rumania) ruled his country with savage ferocity from 1455 to 1477. He was called "the Impaler" because, by his orders, 10,000 of his subjects died on the pale. The stories of his cruelty as told in the "Ancient History of Wallachis" simply surpass belief. He died a violent death at the hands of his Turkish overlords.

TIMES BOOK REVIEW AND LITERARY LANTERN

The Literary Lantern

The Literary Lantern burns weekly in the Sunday Times and is intended to throw light on writing around and about the South. Communications for this column should be addressed to the Editor of the Literary Lantern.

New books about the world war continue to flood from the presses of all the countries involved. Their number, and the growing variety of the points of view presented would seem to cumulate into confusion and nothing more. But for the reader who searches for the light of peace there is much to be gained in reading of the dissenting impressions of war. At least one is forced to work out for himself some understanding of the human failings which led to such a catastrophe. And having arrived at a sort of logic of the strife, he may put in their proper place the heroic accounts which would glorify the war and its instruments, granted that his pulse quickens at such a thrilling tale as "Come on, Texas!" by Paul Schubert (Cape & Smith, $3) just as it quickens to the sound of martial music with flags and marching feet. But if one has read seriously of the war and pondered on it, he will recognize in these very sensations of enthusiasm the beginnings of an emotional unbalance which might, if properly fired, him, the reader, with other thinking individuals into the hysteria of uncritical patriotism. And he takes the colorful narrative of the Texas as part of the tale—not all.

As an antidote to the romantic account of the American flagship, it will be good to underline some of the more acid passages contained in "Letters From Armageddon," a collection of letters from combatants made during the war by Amy Gordon Grant (Houghton Mifflin, $3.50). One American soldier ponders, "These boys in our company come from Erie—what do they know or care about the right of Serbia or Albania or Poland? —Personal feeling about Germany they have practically none. They fight like good Yanks because that's the sort of a cuss they are and they will do any darn thing they might be asked to do. They are going to fight the Germans, but they would go after the French just about as willingly and the Tommies a good deal more willingly; as for that they would just as leave fight against Arkansas or North Carolina or any other darn country."

Other protests are less humorous. There is a letter taken from the body of a young German, which in short space contains the passion and revolt of "All Quiet on the Western Front." The German writes to his mother, "For three months we have been in the battle. Heavens, what is it all for? The greatness of the fatherland, the glory of the kaiser, or some motive of that kind? If so, it is, after all, a small thing, and neither united Germany nor our respected kaiser had need of all this bloodshed. . . . Of what use to me will have been my long studies and my hopes to make you happy in your old age? To die miserably for a mysterious cause. Thousands of us all are in this case—good and faithful comrades of mine who, like me, asked only to be allowed to live in joy and work."

A young Canadian officer describes calmly a bloody fight in which no German prisoners were taken. He tells with relish of a companion's pranks, "Every time he came to a dugout he would yell in German, 'Anybody in.' Immediately the cries of 'kamerad' were heard—then he would light the fuse and throw the bomb inside. 'Adieu boches.'" He goes on to explain, "We fought in cold blood because it was our duty to kill as much as we could. I thought many a time then of the Lusitania. I had actually prayed for that day. I got it, and killed just as much as I had hoped fate would allow me to kill."

Harrowing Sights

An English officer tells of coming out of a frantic struggle into an enemy trench. "A dead man, lying very quietly as if asleep, is there, quite alone. I had not noticed him, but somehow I do not feel the shock one would expect—he seems so peacefully at rest, so detached from the surrounding horror. . . . When I look back upon some of the sights I have seen, a sort of fear creeps over me—this is going too far—this war is becoming a thing of the devil—men are touching, yes, trespassing upon rights they have not." Then he speculates upon those who are responsible, who have caused this "abomination of desolation" and cries out for some sort of wisdom to result from the butchery of war.

One could go on quoting at length from these simple and vividly personal "Letters from Armageddon." But we must mention several personal accounts written by southerners which, while they do not maintain such a tone of impressive power, still are of interest as a matter of record. And there are some passages, usually quotations or letters, in which is a similar reality. John Lewis Barkley of Missouri, a descendant of Daniel Boone, has written "No Hard Feelings!" (Cosmopolitan, $2.00) a somewhat light-hearted account of an American infantryman in France. Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, from Louisiana, now superintendent of Virginia Military institute, giving "The Reminiscences of a Marine" (Dorrance, $4.00), records the fast of marine activities in the Spanish-American war, in the Philippines, Panama and Vera Cruz and tells the story of marine participation in the world war. A subject not so often written about is one which Paul Ayres Rockwell uses in his "American Fighters in the Foreign Legion: 1914-1918" (Houghton Mifflin, $5.00). With his brother, Kiffin Rockwell, the author volunteered to fight for France at the very outbreak of the war, and found himself in a heterogeneous crowd of students and artists and adventurers. The book contains valuable illustrations. Many amusing anecdotes are related, such as the one in which the Rockwells and Alan Seeger, obliged to show previous military experience, claimed to have been in the Mexican army, "and when their corporal commented upon their awkwardness at drill informed him that the fighting in Mexico was always guerilla warfare. An astonishing number of South and Central American revolutions were also mentioned at this time and one volunteer even had it solemnly recorded as his military record that he had served five years as a soldier of the Salvation Army."

Burdened With Names

Although Mr. Rockwell's book is burdened with names, the author has managed to convey a good deal of interest through his somewhat journalistic record. He studied at Wake Forest college and at Washington and Lee, and now lives in France, from which place he paid a visit last summer to his old home, Asheville, N. C.

A rather dry account of the life of a naval officer is the autobiography of Rear Admiral Robert E. Coontz, "From the Mississippi to the Sea" (Dorrance, $4).

A book which promised much, for it certainly had a large title, is "Colossal Blunders of the War," by William Seaver Woods (Macmillan, $2.50). The trouble is that after reading this short volume of 278 pages, the reader is left with few convincing facts concerning the obvious catastrophes, but is given the impression that practically every move of each country in the game of war was a blunder which spoiled a possibly perfect exhibition and that this ideally perfect game, with both sides faultless, would have resulted in a block or tie; provided, of course, that we could conceive of it. Mr. Woods conceives a perfect game. It is astoundingly easy for him to do so, and his book is full of the "ifs" and "might-have-beens" of smooth, vague speculation; such platitudes as these, "If half the skill had been shown in attacking the Dardanelles that was displayed in getting away, the latter feat would have been unnecessary." The French "might easily have learned the value of entrenchments by glancing over the story of the American civil war." The Russian peasant is normally the gentlest and kindest being in the world, but when his wrath is roused he tears his foe to pieces with incredible cruelty and savagery," and in the Russian revolution "we have here just one more error, as colossal as any that went before, that must be corrected before Russia's unhappy people can join in the upward march of progress." As would be expected, Mr. Woods finds the preventive for future blunders, at least for America, in a bigger standing army and a tighter national defense act.

In connection with a study of the world war it is interesting to note two recent books on the civil war which introduce a comparison, "Conscientious Objectors in the Civil War," by Edward Needles Wright (University of Pennsylvania Press, $3) is a scholarly documented study of those who refused to fight because of sectarian, religious, personal or moral scruples. William Best Hesseltine's "Civil War Prisons" (The Ohio State University Press, $3) is exactly what its subtitle describes it to be, a study of war psychology. In it we have a narrative of mistakes, misunderstandings, recriminations, exaggerated accusations, reprisals and general hate and hell. Dr. Hesseltine, professor of history at the University of Chattanooga, Tennessee, has evaluated his evidence with remarkable justice, keeping always before the reader the consciousness of war's destruction of reasonableness. It is humiliating to remember what crimes American brothers accused each other of. It is wholesome to compare the psychology then with that of the best haters in the late world war.

Dissolution

By August H. Mason

When I must die, I feel it may not be
Composure meet I could not win, I fear.
The wild day's daring cry; the ecstasy
Of fragrance in the jessamine, so near Remembered pain. Uncalmed of these, sincere
I could not wish death's mere tranquility.
Rather round me let twilight rain attend,
That time to die I coven when descends
The gold of maples wet upon the lawn.
Then as all beauty seems to merge in earth,

QUANAH GRAND JURY RETURNS INDICTMENTS IN ALL CASES PROBED

QUANAH, Texas, May 23.—The grand jury sworn in Monday, May 18, returned nine true bills of indictment to Judge W. N. Stokes of the 46th district court in session here, submitted a brief report, and was dismissed for the term.

An unusual feature of this session of the grand jury was that a bill was returned in every case that was presented and indictment made. In two instances the parties who had been arrested were turned free, but the grand jury indicted other members of the family who had not been arrested. One of these instances was said to be the wife of a man who had been first arrested.

The jury venire was dismissed until Tuesday, May 26, when they are to reappear for criminal week.

LITERARY KNOT-HOLE

By LORENA DRUMMOND

The Son of His Country

Mr. Van Dyke, formerly professor of history at Princeton, is done with all Washington legends. This is a non-pedantic but scholarly effort to interpret Washington to his countrymen. This most recent biography takes a middle course between Parson Weems and Rupert Hughes. It discounts the Weems anecdotes and dispels the Hughes expose. It is apparently a conscious rebuttal to the latter.

Moreover, Mr. Van Dyke apparently means to explain Washington as a true and normal product of Colonial life in America as it existed on a Virginia plantation. Washington assumes the role of a typical and composite provincial American of the gentleman type, and he is portrayed throughout as an ordinary work-a-day American.

Truly, Washington was the "Son of His Country," and a son of his country in peace rather than war. The revolution was not so much his opportunity as his common call. With it he measured his sentiment and service as any patriotic American, except that his service was higher. Washington never glorified his military record. His 17 years of military service were years of sacrificial dissatisfaction. He would have preferred to go down as America's "First Farmer." He loved his home, Mount Vernon, with its fields, orchards, gardens, hounds and horses.

Washington's use of leisure has been a point of contention. His hunt was not a pageant of luxury and ostentation. He liked the fox chase, but he raised the pack with which he chased the fox and he bred and broke the horse upon which he rode to the hound. He did play cards occasionally, it was a harmless pleasure among friends and an accepted form of hospitality and recreation. Here again he was a reflection of his environment. Although he was free from Puritanism, he was personally aware of the real values in life and was exemplary in church attendance.

Washington's business acumen and his ambition to wealth made him value time and observation. He was calculating, systematic, even scientific, industrious, but not grasping. He was high-strung but dignified and controlled; loving life but conserving it; provincial but not rustic.

This recent interpretation of the sources left by Washington and his day will impress the reader with its truth and sincerity. It is relatively short, non-gossipy, non-flippant, but humanely and interestingly written—By J. Horace Bass, instructor in American history, University of Texas.

A Novel of India

The eternal triangle is again treated in this novel of India entitled Bandar-Log. But this book of A. W. Smith's is more than a thin plot around a man and two women; it is a hasty study of the Eurasion problem. Of course, the story has the usual ending, with Hugh, the well-bred young English man leaving Alie, the chi-chi, to return to Phyllis and the conventional background she can offer him.

Somehow, if Captain Smith had given us something we weren't expecting, we would have been better pleased.

The novelist does not even exercise originality in his heroine's reactions following Hugh's attentions to Alie. In desperation, she rushes her horse and deliberately takes a nasty fall, in order to attract his attention to herself. Hugh, like a good boy, comes to her rescue, whereupon she faints in his arms. In such a manner the story proceeds.

As for the characters of the novel, they are too typical to be individuals. Hugh Ranken is the perfect, cultured gentleman, too reserved to be a very passionate lover for any girl. Alie is a beautiful, lively creature whose black ancestors prevent her from marrying an eligible young Englishman of fortunes; a victim to circumstances, she finally is swallowed up by India on her return from England, and reverts to type. Phyllis is the cool, calm English girl of noble family, needing only to wait for what she wants. The minor characters are also mere types: Louise, Alie's grandmother, with an unconquerable will; Albert Edward Cross, Alie's father, who is clay in his mother's hands; and Lamont, the repugnant Eurasion whom Alie marries in the end.

If one in searching for a light, swiftly-moving novel with which to pass a pleasant evening, he can find it in Bandor-Log—By Walton Hines.

Hysteria or Sophistication

In this era of striving for unusual methods of expression for story plots which have been worn threadbare, Ruth Putnam Mason has achieved a measure of success in her new book, "Woman Walks Alone." She does not tell her story, but simply sets down the mental comments of two persons about each other and their affairs. There is a total absence of "stage direction" narrative and description, but there is no lack of clarity or continuity, and the story moves along at a breakneck pace.

The novel aims at being sophisticated, but it over reaches and sometimes falls into unseemly grossness. There is a distinct lack of subtlety—the truest characteristic of sophistication—but the extreme directness of expression is at times exceedingly amusing. There is an overplay of melodramatic soliloquy and a great amount of exclamatory punctuation, with the result that the atmosphere grows slightly hysterical. The plot reveals itself, through soliloquy, as being concerned with the love affair of Martin Bennett and Diana Wentworth (nee Schuyler). They live, we learn, in New York, and both are by profession lawyers. There is an unusual meeting, and a very strong mutual attraction grows up, which is represented as being both intellectual and emotional, but which ends by being just emotional. All the personalities which figure in the story are married—to some sort of disadvantage—although these facts never succeed in complicating matters very much.

The story is easy to read, and is interesting on account of its unusual style.—By Sophie Smith.

THE BOOK SURVEY

By BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Writer

In "The Road Back," Erich Maria Remarque continues the study of the war and its effect on human beings that he began in "All Quiet on the Western Front."

I doubt if this book will be as popular as its predecessor. Thousands of people to whom the gray half-lights and somber shadows of a psychological novel mean nothing whatever were carried through the first book by its amazingly powerful descriptions of drum fire and physical combat. Naturally, this sort of thing is lacking in "The Road Back." Yet anyone who really imbibed the spirit of "All Quiet" will find this book a worthy successor.

Herr Remarque again focusses his attention on a squad of German soldiers. He introduces them a week or so before the armistice, takes them through the closing days of the war, through the demobilization and the revolution and back to peace-time. A tragic bewilderment settles down on all of them.

Toward the close of "All Quiet," a soldier remarked: "Had we returned home in 1916 we might have unleashed a storm. Now if we go back we will be weary, broken, burnt out, rootless and without hope." This prophecy is realized in "The Road Back."

The returning soldiers find themselves hopelessly out of key with peace-time society. They have been, literally, burnt out. They feel nothing very deeply, anymore; but they brood over that which the war has taken away from them, they come almost to long for warfare again.

For the war, at least, gave them comradeship with each other. Peace destroys even that. Friendships cemented on the western front fall to pieces. One by one, the soldiers drift apart, each going his separate way as he tries to fit himself into the routine of peace. Most of them come to shipwreck.

Herr Remarque carries his study of these men through to the end, relentlessly. The analysis of disillusionment and despair is almost unbearably thorough. We come to know his men intimately and their sufferings become our own. To read "The Road Back" is to undergo a profound and devastating emotional experience. In its own way, the book is the equal of "All Quiet."

A Roving Privateer in War of 1812

Kenneth Roberts is evidently about to establish himself as America's foremost writer of the historical novel of the very best kind; now Mr. Roberts gives us "The Lively Lady," and if you care for that sort of book at all (I'm really sorry for you if you don't) by all means read it.

"The Lively Lady" deals with the privateers of the war of 1812. Its hero is a state-of-Maine lad, who sails out to raid his British majesty's shipping, roams all over the Atlantic, strikes his flag eventually to a 74-gun ship-of-the-line and lands at last in terrible Dartmoor prison, where England put American seamen during that war.

ERICH MARIA REMARQUE

In Dartmoor the young man's adventures continue. He escapes finds a haven with a high-born English lady whom he had met before the war, gets imprisoned again, and emerges at last to marry the lady and carry her back to America with him.

All of this, of course, is the sort of thing that has been written before a great many times. But Mr. Roberts writes with a gusto and lusty wit that sets his book apart from the run-of-mind stuff. "Arundel" was head and shoulders above most Revolutionary war novels; "The Lively Lady," likewise, is the best yarn of privateering days that you will find in a long time.

Incidentally, if you failed to read "Arundel" when it first came out, I suggest that you do so now. It's still on sale, and the two books go very well together.

"The Lively Lady" is published by Doubleday, Doran & Co., at $2.50.

Behind the Scenes With Mr. Seldes

"Can These Things Be" finds George Seldes performing, once more, the service of describing the European political and economic situation as it really is, and not as the operations of censorship and propaganda make it appear. The result is an absorbing and a disturbing book.

The American public seems to love to get the low-down. Here, in all conscience, is the low-down on enough things and people to satisfy the most avid seeker for truth. Mr. Seldes has spent years in Europe as a newspaper correspondent, and he speaks his mind frankly.

I liked best of all his treatment of Mussolini and the Fascist regime. Here he gives us some almost brutal frankness—and some extremely valuable information, as well. His discussion of the chances for a new war is also well worth reading.

All in all, the book is an uncommonly interesting one. If you care to peek behind the scenes in Europe, here is your chance. The book is published by Brewer, Warren & Putnam, and retails at $4.

Wichita Falls History Interesting, Truthful

It is refreshing to find a new kind of city history. For financial reasons only, various companies have promoted so-called histories which consisted only of biographies at so much a word (paid by the subject of the biography). His prominence, the lavish adjectives about his personality, and the grace and charm of his wife and children all depended on how much he paid the "historian."

Miss Jonnie R. Morgan has introduced the new kind in her "History of Wichita Falls." It is exceedingly doubtful that Miss Morgan will make as much money in hea work as did the old-style of biographer, but she will have the satisfaction of knowing that she has written an unprejudiced, interesting and truthful story of Wichita Falls and its pioneers.

There are, to be true, biographies of prominent citizens. These, however, are only illustrations of the kind of manpower and womanpower Wichita Falls has used in its growth to a city. The history of Wichita Falls is the combined histories of the families of Barwise, Kemp, Huff, Waggoner, Carrigan and others. And the distinguishing characteristic running through each of these biographies is not money nor power, but service to the city.

Any one who has lived in Wichita Falls for any length of time will appreciate the condensed facts—important dates, legends of the country and well-told incidents. The town lot sale, the Indian visits, the old anniversary ball and a dozen other stories hitherto confined to fireside chatter are now down in print.

But the biographies and stories alone cannot possibly hold the appeal of the unusual collection of pictures used. Most of them are from the collection of Lester Jones, who, fortunately for the city, has been collecting pictures of this sort for many years. There is the first street car, with Frank Kell standing nearby, the first automobile, the first airplane, the town's prominent citizens entertaining William Jennings Bryan, and other interesting old pictures far more fascinating than those made in 1930, which are also included.

For that reason, the book is a sort of ready-made memory book for the pioneer. All the pictures he wishes he had kept are bound within its thin, flexible brown-leather covers. And second in their interest to the pioneer class are school children. Miss Morgan's enthusiastic teaching of Wichita Falls history in the junior high schools has already instilled a desire in them to learn more of their city. Many have a heritage of pioneer blood from their fathers and grandfathers and will thrill at the idea of their grandparents fighting Indians in the same places they now play or drive along.

The book should be welcomed enthusiastically, for it is quickly discernible that it is anything but a money-making proposition, and the author deserves the gratitude of the public.—Reviewed by Eleanor Fleming.

Mrs. R. R. Clark Elected Member Of Aid Society

At the regular monthly meeting of the Children's Aid society last week, Mrs. R. R. Clark was elected a member of the organization to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of A. A. Spencer, upon his removal to Abilene.

The end of school brings more children into the boarding homes of the Children's Aid society—some whose parents are too poverty stricken to care for them longer—some from improper homes. Through relief work it has been possible for them to finish the present term of school. Since Oct. 1, 1930, the beginning of the fiscal year of the Children's Aid society, 36 dependent and neglected children have been received into the boarding homes. Seventeen girls, 14 of whome were unmarried expectant mothers, have been assisted. One hundred families, involving 224 children, have been served by this organization in the past seven months. Oct. 1, 1930, there were only three children in the boarding homes and today they have 15 bright, attractive boys and girls ranging in age from 6 years to 12 years, who, unless the childless homes are opened to them, will not have their chance in life.

These boys and girls will be the men and women of tomorrow. Anyone interested in these children is requested to call at the office of the Children's Aid society, room 5, Memorial auditorium, or telephone 2-2183.

"My Electric Refrigerator Makes Entertaining a Pleasure"

The popular housewife often finds it necessary to entertain small groups of friends on short notice. A table or two at bridge, a light luncheon or afternoon callers test her ability to provide attractive and tasty refreshments.

The woman who has an electric refrigerator has no doubts or misgivings concerning refreshments. Plenty of fresh foods, delightfully chilled salads and desserts and an ample supply of ice cubes gives her every assurance that she can quickly and easily cope with these emergencies which always occur.

And above all, electric refrigeration is so economical, so healthful and so conveniently purchased in small monthly payments that no family can afford not to own an electric refrigerator.

NOW TAKE OFF FAT
A POUND A DAY
ON A FULL STOMACH

Do Just These Two Simple Things

Fat Melts Away

NO tiring exercise, no starvation. Instead, a full stomach and never a hungry moment! Yet fat melts away. You can easily lose from four to seven pounds weekly, see the coarse lines of fat replaced by the refined lines of slenderness—and feel better than you ever felt before in your life.

WHAT YOU DO

There are just two simple things you do: Clear your system and keep it clear of waste matter, toxins and depleting poisons with ordinary JAD SALTS obtainable at any drug store. Start with a teaspoonful in a full glass of water tomorrow morning—a sparkling and pleasant drink.

Then EAT YOUR FILL—as much as your appetite can stand—of meals consisting of the following foods:

At breakfast eat two oranges, or the juice of two oranges. Eat also two slices of toasted whole wheat or bran bread. Eat rolled oats (with milk, not cream).

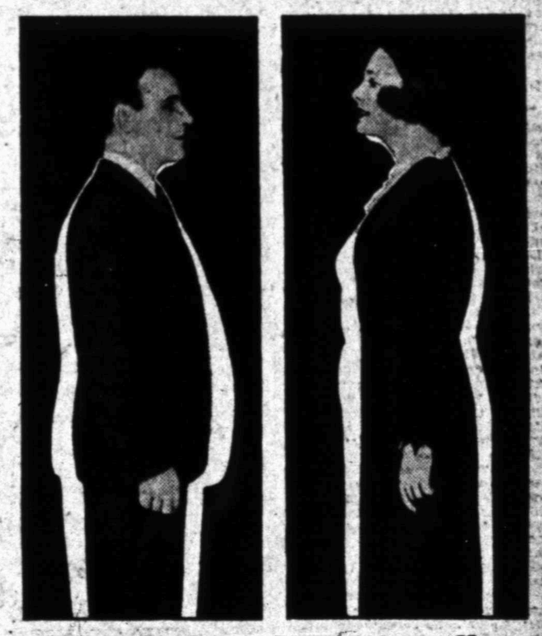

At luncheon eat a good size piece of lean meat, then see how much spinach, lettuce, sauerkraut, boiled cabbage, green peas, broccoli or fresh turnips you can eat. EAT ALL YOU CAN COMFORTABLY HOLD of these foods. For dessert eat any fresh fruit: cantaloupe, berries, apples, sliced oranges, pears. Substitute turnips for potatoes. Substitute lean meats—beef, chicken, veal, white fish, trout, bass, etc.—for pork or any fat meats.

At night, have another FILL-UP-FULL meal as above. Cut down on butter and sweets—eat half of what you now eat. That's easy. For with your stomach full of other foods, you'll never notice it. Drink water or not as you like.

4 TO 7 POUNDS GONE IN WEEK

At the end of a week, you'll see the scale down four to seven pounds—according to how much overweight you are—from what you weighed the day you started. Your health, too, will be better. You'll be more active, more vigorous than perhaps for years. Your friends will soon begin to notice your increasing slenderness. You'll soon avoid the embarrassment of being called fat or "bulky." And you'll do it with NEVER A HUNGRY MOMENT!

If in doubt about this safe and simple way, ASK ANY DOCTOR. Show him this article. Ask him whether or not it is safe and sure. It marks the latest findings of scientific men in the field of weight reduction. For it performs two necessary and important functions.

The Figure Every Fat Person Would Love to Have

The JAD SALTS clear the bowels and system of the excessive toxins most overweight people have. "The change in diet—the FILLING OF THE STOMACH TO ITS LIMIT—with foods that turn to energy instead of fat, decreases the weight day by day. The salts build up your health. The change in food eases off the fat.

*Note particularly—the salts are urged purely as a poison-banishing agent—not as a reducing. The change in food does the work.—Adv.

OPERA CONTRALTO IS ATWATER KENT PROGRAM FEATURE

ARTIST DAUGHTER OF METHODIST MINISTER

Orchestra Has Specialty on 'Parade of Wooden Soldiers'

One of the most exquisite poems expressing the love of a woman for a man, written by Laurence Hope to her husband and set to music by Amy Woodford Finden, will be among the featured selections in the program of Merle Alcock, contralto of the Metropolitan Opera company, when she is heard during the Atwater Kent radio hour Sunday evening, May 24, at 8:15 p. m., eastern standard time.

Miss Alcock's singing of the famous "Kashimiri" song will put the words and music as they were intended to be and not as they are most frequently heard. Music authorities point out that there is sex in music and all of the famous Hope poems were the exposure of a woman's heart and feeling and not those of a man. Yet the music of both Amy Woodford Finden and Herman Loehr, who used the poems as lyrics for their compositions, is most often heard sung by men.

Merle Alcock came from a little town in Missouri. The daughter of a Methodist minister and internationally famous as an operatic and concert star she has made a special study of the intent as well as of the origin of the music she sings. She probes deeply into the character and emotions expressed by the words and the music and in her singing endeavors to give adequate expression to all those emotions. Because of this she has acquired an international reputation as an interpreter of the poetry and romance of song and her concert programs, especially those she has presented each year in the Atwater Kent radio hour, have been constructed to show a wide range of character and emotion.

The Atwater Kent concert orchestra will present a special arrangement of the popular "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," made by its director, Josef Pasternack. The program will be heard at 7:15 central standard time, through a network of stations served by the National Broadcasting company, including WSAI, Cincinnati; WGN, Chicago; KSD, St. Louis; WOC, Davenport; WHO, Des Moines; WOW, Omaha.

RUTH ETTING WILL SING WITH RUDY VALLEE OVER NBC NETWORK THURSDAY

Ruth Etting, whose ability to sing ballads in a heart-touching manner has established her as a headliner in Broadway reviews and Ziegfeld musical shows, will appear as guest singer with Rudy Vallee and his orchestra over an NBC-WEAF network Thursday night, May 28, at 6 o'clock, C. S. T. and through WGN in Chicago.

Miss Etting is well known to NBC audiences who have already heard her as a guest artist on four programs this year. She is equally popular with those who have heard her in "movie shorts" and on phonograph records. One of her recent popular numbers has been "Ten Cents a Dance," a ballad relating the woes of a "taxi dancer", in a cheap dance hall, which she sang in "Simple Simon."

ELINOR SMITH TO TELL OF FALL FROM PLANE IN SUNDAY NIGHT PROGRAM

Recovery from a fall from great heights in an airplane above Manhattan after her oxygen mask had been accidentally knocked aside and she became unconscious, will be pictured over an extensive NBC-WJZ network by Elinor Smith, pretty 20-year-old aviatrix and NBC aviation events announcer, during the Bayuk stag party broadcast Sunday night, May 24, at 7:15 o'clock, central standard time, and through KYW in Chicago.

The program will also feature orchestral selections under the direction of Nat Brusiloff and vocal offerings by members of a male quartet.

TWO SPEAKERS SUNDAY IN SERIES OF INTERNATIONAL TALKS ON COLUMBIA CHAIN

Two speakers will be heard from abroad on Sunday, May 24, in Columbia's international series.

Padraic Colum, author of many books and plays dealing with ancient lore of Ireland, will represent his country in the last of a series of four travelogues on the British Isles. Other speakers were Miss Megan Lloyd George, Wales; Sir Iain Colquhoun, Scotland, and Sir William Phene Neal, England. Colum's talk is scheduled for 10:30 a. m., central standard time.

United States Senator Charles C. Dill of Washington will speak from London at 10:45 a. m., central standard time. Senator Dill, co-author of the radio act of 1927 and sponsor of additional radio legislation, is touring Europe to discover methods of broadcasting control used in other countries.

SAXOPHONE NUMBERS TO FEATURE EXPRESS BILL

Rudy Wiedoeft, saxophonist, will be featured on the gold medal express program to be broadcast over station WFAA at Dallas from 6:30 to 7 p. m., central standard time, Monday.

The weekly surprise feature will be included in the gold medal fast freight program over station KMOX Wednesday from 7 to 7:30 p. m.

Before the Mike

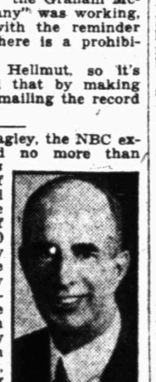

Hellmut

Something ought to be said, though briefly, about Hellmut H. Hellmut, the 21-year-old pride of Germany who is over here with a portable short-wave transmitter and boundless energy in the pursuit of practically every sort of Americana. He has broadcast from the Statue of Liberty, night clubs, Times Square during the theater hour, skyscrapers and virtually every other vantage point from which a significant word-picture of this "amazing country" can be sent back to the fatherland.

Hellmut was determined to broadcase a description of an American speakeasy. But the National Broadcasting company, under whose patient cooperation "the Graham McNamee of Germany" was working, dissuaded him with the reminder that, after all, there is a prohibition law.

The ingenious Hellmut, so it's said, got around that by making a recording and mailing the record home.

Bagley

Poor Arthur Bagley, the NBC exercise man, had no more than ounded out his seventh year of bending and stretching the weary muscles of some 4,000,000 people every morning, than he was laid low by appendicitis. Harry Wilson, the mimic who can imitate nearly every well known radio personality, has been carrying on while Bagley convalesces to the tune of some 500 fan letters a day.

Speaking of fan mail, you probably can't guess which NBC feature is drawing the amount next largest to Amos 'n' Andy. It's Gene and Glenn, the early morning wits who already have received the remarks of more than half a million listeners. . . . Rudy Vallee is going on a half-hour Sunday evening sustaining program for NBC.

Rambling 'round the studios: Graham McNamee has decided that his are pretty good tonsils after all, and that perhaps there's no use risking his voice to have them removed. . . . It was only a year ago that Amos 'n' Andy scorned some very interesting contracts for stage appearances along Broadway, saying that the Main Stem wasn't ready for them. But Amos 'n' Andy are ready for Broadway now, and have signed what is reported to be one of the largest brief theatrical contracts in history.

New York, which has been far behind a number of other cities in the television broadcasting, is only now beginning to get excited about regular programs and the experimental televising being done by the big companies. NBC is building a studio for regular programs to be started within a month; WGBS and W2XCR already have a studio futuristically decorated and in regular operation. But practical television itself, as Mons. Aylesworth, boss of NBC, has said, has never come out of the laboratory.

Young Wichitans Leave Soon for Rio Vista Camp

A baker's dozen of young Wichita Falls boys will leave in a few weeks for one of the most interesting camps in the southwest—the Rio Vista camp near Kerrville, Texas.

The camp has been unusually popular among Wichita Falls boys for some time, especially through the fact that Coach Barry Holton of the local high school has been a member of the faculty. A number of boys now in various colleges have been at Rio Vista one or more summers.

Carter McGregor Jr., one who attended last year's camp and will return this year, won the coveted frontiersmen award last year, being chosen by his fellow-campers and counselors as the camper who best typified in his daily camp life the true spirit of the frontier.

The camp is divided into four age groups. The Cavaliers, young men between the ages of 15 and 19, often become counselors for the younger boys later.

The Gauchos (Cowboys) are from 13 to 15 years of age, and the Frontiersmen are from 11 to 13. Those from 7 to 11 are Pioneers.

Boys who have been former campers at Rio Vista are Ben Marcus, James Guest, Weldon Guest, Ben Langford, Fowler Gilchrist, Bert Broday, Frank Broday, J. C. Man, James Earl Prothro, Eugene Harvey and Chester Harvey.

PLANS MADE BROADCAST OPEN GOLF TOURNAMENT AT TOLEDO IN JULY

The final rounds of the national open golf championship of the United States on the links of the Inverness club, Toledo, Ohio, will be described over the WABC-Columbia network by Ted Husing on Friday, July 3, and Saturday, July 4.

Husing will follow the world's greatest golfers with a portable short-wave transmitter strapped to his back. His stroke-by-stroke description will be picked up at the ground station in the club house and relayed by ground wires to station WSPD, Toledo, whence it will be relayed to the network. No times have yet been set for the broadcasts.

Sole Survivor of Last Man's Club Will Give Broadcast on Columbia Network During Memorial Day Bill

Capt. Charles W. Lockwood, who at 88 years of age is the last man of Minnesota's famous "Last Man's Club," will speak over the Columbia Broadcasting system Saturday, May 30, from 9 to 9:05 p. m. C. S. T. as a feature of the system's Memorial day broadcasts.

Captain Lockwood, who last year opened the bottle of rare old Burgundy wine as the last and privileged survivor of the band of men who fought in the civil war, is in Washington visiting relatives. He was enthusiastic about the plans for the broadcast and anxious that his friends at home hear his words.

While in Washington, Captain Lockwood hopes to visit President Hoover and Oliver Wendell Holmes, associate justice of the supreme court of the United States. The latter, himself a veteran of the civil war, made his radio debut over Columbia recently on the occasion of his 90th birthday. His closing words from a Greek proverb have since been widely quoted.

"Death," he said, "plucks the ear and says 'Wait, I am coming'."

Installation of Television Test Station Begins

Installation of the Columbia Broadcasting system's experimental television station atop the building bearing its name has been begun following tests given the apparatus at Camden, N. J., during the past month.

Four rooms have been constructed on the 23rd floor in which the transmitter, control apparatus, studio and scanner will be located. Plate glass windows, separate one side of the studio from the reception room; thus visitors will be enabled to watch artists as they are televised in the experimental programs to be carried over W2XAB throughout the summer, commencing June 1.

Outlet for the 500-watt transmitter, which will broadcast images on 2800 kilocycles 6 hours daily, will be through a "doublet" antenna system to be erected on the building.

TOSCHA SEIDEL TO GIVE VIOLIN BROADCAST SUNDAY

Toscha Seidel, world-famous violin virtuoso, accompanied by a symphonic orchestra and by Ossip Giskin, cellist of the Continental String quartet which is endeavoring to revive interest in chamber music among listeners-in through a series of Sunday night concerts, will play the second and third movements from Brahms' "Concerto for Violin and Cello," during the symphonic hour to be broadcast over the WABC-Columbia network on Sunday, May 24, from 1 to 2 p. m., central standard time.

"Impressions of Italy," an orchestral suite by Gustave Charpentier, eminent French composer, will be one of the several works to be interpreted by the orchestra.

BLOSSOM TIME TO BE RECALLED BY RADIO BROADCAST

Helen Gilligan, soprano, and Milton Watson, tenor, will sing the leading roles in a melodic presentation of excerpts from the operetta "Blossom Time" which will be heard during the broadcast of Star Reveries over the Columbia network Sunday, May 24, at 9:45 p. m.

The musical selections from this production, composed by Sigmund Romberg, and based on the life and works of Franz Schubert, ordinarily is restricted from air performances, but for the Star Reveries program special permission has been granted. The outstanding number of "Blossom Time" is the ever-popular "Song of Love," an adaptation of Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony."

Miss Gilligan and Watson, both well-known musical comedy artists, are the regular featured artists for the series. The orchestra is under direction of Mark Warnow.

COLUMBIA CHAIN ADDS 83RD RADIO STATION TO LIST

With the addition of KGB, San Diego, Calif., to its chain, the Columbia Broadcasting system now has a total of 83 affiliated stations, further increasing its lead over all other networks in the world.

A member of the Don Lee West Coast network as well as of the nation-wide system, KGB has just been equipped with a new 1,000 watt transmitter with 100 per cent modulation and crystal control. It will operate continuously 17 hours a day.

Abe Martin — On Crime Wave an' th' Auto

We do not deny that th' automobile is a great invention an' a great blessin' t' mankind when properly used, an' we might in all truthfulness say th' same thing about alcohol. But how is th' automobile bein' used? We don't believe no invented contrivance in all history, not barrin' th' shotgun, or pistol, th' golf stick, th' automatic pianner, th' distillin' coil, th' bathin' suit, or even th' roller skate, has done so much toward th' general demoralization of a nation as th' automobile. Th' automobile is used t' negotiate ever' sort o' deviltry under th' sun 'cept prob'ly poison pen letter writin'. Nine-tenths of our crimes an' calamities are made possible by th' automobile. It has unleashed all th' pent up criminal tendencies o' th' ages. It's th' central figure in murders, holdups, burglaries, accidents, elopements, failures an' abscondments. It retards th' realization o' prohibition, an' it has well nigh jimmied th' American home. No crime story is complete without she or he or they tore out in a high powered motor car, no robbery has th' true ring unless th' bandits jumped in a waitin' car an' made good ther' escape. No girl is missin' that wuzn' last seen steppin' in a strange automobile. It didn' used t' be so blamed easy t' rob a bank or murder somebuddy an' git away in a buggy, or on a hand car. In th' ole days criminals occasionally grabbed a passin' freight train, an' sometimes they had t' hide in swamps an' thickets fer weeks. High brow defaulters used t' have t' cover ther tracks till they could climb in a Pullman an' start fer Mexico.

But t'day most any kind of a criminal is a couple o' hundred miles t' th' good before a sheriff kin find his hat, an' a daughter kin elope an' be married an' settled in Erie, Pennsylvania, before her parents miss her. Ever' day marks some new an' disgraceful automobile escapade, some awful automobile calamity, or some sensational escape in an automobile. An' ever' minute in th' day somebuddy is stealin' an automobile. An' there hain't a day rolls by that somebuddy hain't sellin' ther sewin' machine, or ther home, or somethin' t' pay on an automobile. An' it's too bad that anything as grand an' comfortable an' useful as th' automobile must be constantly mixed up in shady transactions o' ever' sort, fer it must be admitted that it's th' leadin' figure in all th' mischief that's goin' on. Maybe th' jails an' workhouses are empty, but that's not because th' world is gittin' better. It's because all th' criminals escape in automobiles.

PANCHO - - - - - By James J. Montague

In three seconds he was abreast the new arrival, in five he was ahead of him.

Perhaps my suspicion that the burro is extinct, like the great auk and the dodo is ill founded. It is long since I have been in Mexico, or even in the border states of New Mexico and Arizona, where these creatures once did most of the work. They may still be there, but if so why are they so rarely imported into other parts of the nation? It is difficult to understand why owners of large estates do not decorate their property with these humorous little creatures—humorous because the solemnity of their countenances is so at variance with their diminutive proportions. Should I ever become rich, I would learn if the burro is still extant, and if he is, import two or three of him, so, when next the market went down I might have something to smile at when I looked out of the window of a morning.

The burro whose possession was at one time my proudest boast was named Pancho. A friend of my father discovered him on the Mexican border, and being fond of his little joke had him boxed up and sent to us, C. O. D. The burro cost five dollars, Mex. The freight and fare on the way was sixty-seven dollars. My father, I think had to borrow the money to pay it. A fair amount of humor, had my father, but he and his praetical joking friend avoided each other from that time on.

Naturally I was delighted to have a burro all my own, delighted and proud, for no one in the town had ever seen such a creature before or believed that such a thing was possible. At first we thought that he must be very, very young, for he was not much taller than the neighbor's Newfoundland dog. But a single glance at his wise face persuaded us that we were wrong. And after we had had a little experience with him we knew that he must be older than any of us, older indeed than our parents. Nothing of a tender age could have learned so much about all creatures great and small, or have possessed a heart so overflowing with craft and guile.

On the day of his arrival Pancho was housed in the woodshed—the homestead lacking a barn. He became discontended or home-sick during the night, and removing a couple of boards from the wall with his heels, strolled out to see what he could see.

Almost immediately he saw the neighbor's watch dog, Bill, a mastiff with a severe attitude toward other animals, small ones in particular. All we knew about what took place at the meeting we learned later from the neighbor's hired man, who was an eye-witness. Bill, walking his beat, as was his early morning custom, discovered an unfamiliar creature ambling down the street, and set briskly and barkingly forth in pursuit. Pancho heard him coming and quite calm and collected, waited his arrival. Bill slowed up on closer approach, as is a dog's cautious custom, but not quickly enough. At the last moment he appeared to have reconsidered his purpose for a general rear assault, but in that same moment Pancho embedded his front hoofs in the grass, in order to meet the shock, and rearing up on them kicked out with those in the rear. Bill, lifted completely off the ground, rolled over backwards. That was enough. There is an instinct in dogs which informs them when to quit. His asserted itself. Crying out, partly against strange horses the size of large pigs, and partly in an ecstasy of self pity he went home. And there he remained for the rest of the summer, save at such times as he saw us driving Pancho out in harness, and knew that for the time being the streets were safe for caninity.

Driving Pancho was always an experience, and no two of these were alike. Hitched into the little cart which we had made for him from the chassis of a deserted baby carriage he would trot down the street briskly enough, and then come to a halt and remain so. Applying the lash to his rubber flanks was in vain. Apparently there were no sensitive nerves on the under side of his skin. Then one day we discovered that making some curious noise, like kicking the sides of the carriage, would alarm him and cause him to proceed upon his way. But we constantly had to devise new noises. A stone rattled in a can served for a week, and then Pancho declined to react to it any more.

A branch, filled with partly dry leaves started him for a time, but this lost its magic power after he had turned around and seen what it was. Then we tried a shrill whistle which the tin smith made for me, but that was good only for a day. Bells, imitations of growling bears, paper cap pistols, a pair of used cymbals borrowed from the base drummer in the band, all served their little hour, and then availed no more. Our ingenuity was about at an end when we discovered by accident that a direct appeal of Pancho's pride would not only do the job, but do it continuously.

The father of the Rich Boy of the town, Herbert Hemmingway, appealed to by his son to do something to put an end to our superior attitude toward him since the burro had come to us, went to Chicago and was followed home a few days later by a calico pony—perhaps a third larger than Pancho. Proudly Herbert rode forth on the pony the day of his arrival, shouting insultingly as he passed our gate that his Prince could run circles around our jackass—a name for Pancho that we heard with fury."

Of course I accepted. This time I saddled our champion instead of hitching him to the carriage, and set boldly forth. Herbert, not being a square shooter, whipped up his pony before Pancho and I were fairly out of the gate, and was off like a streak. Low in my mind, I was about to give up and admit defeat, but before the first hot tear of baffled rage had got half way down my cheek I felt muscles flexing beneath me, and the next instant gripped the pommel of the saddle to hold on. Pancho was off. Declining to yield a palm to any pony, he inhaled a vast breath and shot forth like a cannon ball. In three seconds he was abreast the new arrival, in five he was ahead of him. And as long as he heard thumping hoofs behind him he never slackened his pace. I, with my arms clasped around his neck simply hung on and shuddered.

So the race was ours. Herbert got over being miffed after a while and we would go riding together. As long as the pony walked Pancho would take the same gait. But as soon as Prince quickened his speed, Pancho's little hoofs dug into the ground, and away we went neck and neck. How he did it, I do not know, for he was nearer the ground and shorter of leg than his rival, but he did, and Herbert at last owned himself defeated and began to pester his papa for a race horse.

How long Pancho would have remained with us if nothing had happened I do not know. One day, a real cowboy on a cayuse came by, yipping and waving a lariat. Pancho was in the yard and got a look at him. With one bound he cleared the fence and was off and away. We never saw him again. But long after that, in my sorrowing dreams I thought I was far, far out on the plains, looking long and vainly for my steed, when passing near the horizon I saw a galloping cowboy mounted on a mustang which was digging its feet into the sod in a futile effort to keep pace with a scurrying burro, a quarter of a mile ahead, and gaining with every jump.

NOTED PILOT TO PACE RACERS IN SPEED CLASSIC

Willard Rader, the first pilot to drive faster than 100 miles an hour on the Indianapolis track, will pace the racers in the annual 1931 sweepstakes classic on Memorial day this year.

He will drive a stock Cadillac V-12 roadster with a special body. "Pop" Meyers, manager of the Speedway, will ride with him.

Rader began racing in 1911 in Galveston, Texas. He participated in the Indianapolis races in 1912-13-14. In 1916, he turned the track for the first time at a speed faster than 100 miles an hour. In 1917 he broke all existing track records below 10 miles of Sheepshead Bay.

Since then, he has devoted his time to other phases of the automobile industry. For the last five years, he has been a member of the engineering department of the Cadillac Motor Car company, and now holds the position of superintendent of the experimental garage.

This job gives him opportunity to exercise the urge to speed, which periodically recurs. He made a spectacular test run with a LaSalle in 1927 at the General Motors proving track, when he drove 10 hours at an average speed of 95.3 miles per hour.

This year will mark the second time Rader has paced the drivers in the Indianapolis race. He first appeared in this role in 1927, when he drove a LaSalle V-8.

The Cadillac V-12 which he will drive this year, will be painted white with silver leaf striping. The wheels, spokes and hubs, will be chromium plated, as will be the head on the fenders. Upholstery will be white leather. With the exception of a few changes to make the body lower, the car will be a stock model.

MEMORIAL DAY SERMON OF BISHOP FREEMAN TO BE HEARD OVER RADIO

A special Memorial day service, at which the Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman, bishop of Washington, will be broadcast by the Columbia Broadcasting system Saturday morning, May 30, from 9 a. m. to 9:30 a. m. C. S. T. over a coast-to-coast network.

The program will originate in the historic Bethlehem chapel of Washington cathedral where Woodrow Wilson, Admiral George Dewey and other illustrious Americans are buried.

In commemoration of the nation's heroic dead Bishop Freeman will offer a special prayer. Singing by the Washington cathedral choir of men and boys will complete the program.

THE WICHITA VALLEY FARMER

DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF THE FARMER, DAIRYMAN, POULTRY RAISER AND FRUIT AND TRUCK GROWER

Livestock and Legumes Essential To Successful Farm Program, Says Editor in Address at Lubbock Meet

Wichitans who attended the agricultural development conference at the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention at Lubbock, heard Dr. Tait Butler of Memphis, editor of Progressive Farmer, in a very instructive talk on agricultural programs.

J. N. Sherrill, chairman of the chamber of agricultural committee, brought back a summary of Dr. Butler's address, as follows:

1. The purpose of farming originally was making a living; it later became commercialized.

2. The man who farms for the purpose of making money will not every year make a living; but the man who farms to make a living usually makes money.

3. The soil of every farm, sooner or later, must be built up or fertilized in order to produce crops.

4. Two considerable sources of income are better than one; three are better than two. It is absolutely necessary that a farmer have more than one. Among the 600 odd master farmers selected in the past few years by Progressive Farmer not a single one has depended on just one considerable source of income. Most of them have as many as three or more.

5. The successful farmer's cropping system must be distributed over the year so that his income might be so distributed. The system of grain farming in states where the combine is used, wherein it only takes actually seven or eight weeks of the 52 weeks of the year to prepare the land, seed and harvest the crop, is wholly unsound from the standpoint of the sale of the farmer's labor and service.

6. In the greater number of instances where the farmer complains that planting seeds are high, he could have produced his own seed. In other words, it is profitable for a farmer to produce and save his planting seed if it is profitable for the other man to sell it to him.

7. When a farm product is sold some of the soil fertility of the land on which it was produced goes with it. If you sell a ton of hay for $15, you put in some fertility of your soil as "boot."

8. It has been the experience of countries where there is a large cash crop produced, such as wheat, corn, tobacco, etc., the growing, breeding, and feeding of livestock is certain to come in to save and redeem the country.

9. In producing livestock, feed cost is from 50 to 80 per cent of the total. Therefore, profitable livestock production depends on economical feed cost.

10. If a bushel of grain is grown in Iowa and shipped to Texas to be fed to a dairy cow transportation charges add 25 per cent to the cost of the grain, but not one additional drop of milk in the pail.

11. Any successfully agricultural community eventually grows legumes.

Every Day Life of the Farmer's Wife

Well, folks! I am going to write on a subject this week that farmers show very little interest in and that is politics. The men folks may show a little interest during the political campaign, but it is seldom, indeed, that you find a farm woman who knows or cares one thing about politics. It seems to me a woman should try to learn something about politics so when she is in a crowd where the subject is discussed she won't have to be Dumb Dora.

I was in a crowd recently when a woman, who claims to have fair intelligence, was asked what the 19th amendment was and she didn't know. Can you understand the mother of future American citizens being that dumb? She probably does not pay her poll tax, either. From a careful study of politics one may observe that candidates used to fear the agricultural vote, but today farmers have become so careless that they don't pay their poll tax, half the women who have poll tax receipts won't take the trouble to vote, and candidates pay very little attention to the agricultural vote now. I don't know how it makes you feel not to pay your poll tax but it gives me a depressed feeling not to pay mine for I know I am shirking my duty as an American citizen. I know I am not a good citizen when I do not vote.

I often hear women say: "Oh! I am not interested in politics. I leave that to the men." They seem to think that by taking such an attitude they are exalted, set up on a pedestal. They are not, and when you hear a woman say that it is because she doesn't read or study politics, she knows she cannot cope with politics, it is confessing her ignorance. How foolish, when just a little study would give her the assurance to vote and make her feel that she is a worthwhile citizen which is her right.

If the women of the United States are not interested in politics who should be? Is it not their flesh and blood who will be the future citizens of this country? Is it not their sons who are sent to the front to be slaughtered in one of those terrible encounters called war. Are we women going to sit quietly at home and not try to prevent another such catastrophe? Remember, women, that horrible thing called war will never be outlawed until women are really interested in the thing we call politics. I think every woman in the good old United States would be interested in politics if her son or husband were called to put on the uniform tomorrow. It has only been 13 years this coming July since I went through that experience. I can truly say that I am interested in politics because some day I hope to see war outlawed.

Speaking of women voting makes me think of a little incident that happened during our last governor's campaign: A man and his wife went to vote. The husband voted for Ma Ferguson, the wife voted for our present governor. Some one was repeating the incident, and one woman very indignantly said, "Well, if I had been her and could not have voted like my man I would have stayed at home." Now, that woman was born 100 years too late. She is an eighteenth century woman. The women of 1931 are still individuals even though they are married to the best of men. If husbands and wives see alike about their candidates that is mighty fine, but the right of the 19th amendment was not given women to "copycat" husband's or any one elses vote.

Neither does the 19th amendment mean for you to go to the polls and blindly scratch a name, it means for you to study the situation and read the daily papers so you can vote intelligently. Don't be a Democrat because your dad was a Democrat, or a Republican because your grand-dad was one, but be one or the other because you yourself believe in that party, then don't bolt, because you can see we Democrats made nothing by that in the last campaign.

Now folks, there is no national election of any importance this year so it is a good time for us farmers to study up on politics and be ready for the next one. Every woman and man in the United States should know enough about politics to vote intelligently. Most of us here in Texas are Democrats so go to your library and get all the literature available on that subject and study it; don't neglect the daily newspapers, either, for after all they are your best source of information. We country people in Wichita county will have to send to our state library at Austin for literature that we do not have. It is a perfect shame that Wichita county does not furnish its country people with a county library. Country people are often so misinformed on politics that it is pitiful, and it is so useless too, because if they were furnished literature, by studying a month or two these long winter evenings they would soon be well informed and could keep well informed.

I have heard groups of men talking during election time and I would hear them say that if they elected a certain candidate governor he would help the farmers and the economic condition of the state. Of course, all of us know, who have ever studied politics a day in our lives, that the governor has no power over the price of farm products, neither has he the power to help the farmer or the economic condition of the state very much, if any. Our senators can do that better than any one else, but they can't stop all economic ills. However, I think we should use care in selecting them.

One mistake people make is blaming the party in power for all the economic ills that come up. These economic conditions just happen along and I doubt if either party could help them much. Of course, some men might handle the job a little better than others, but no man can please all the people. When we go to studying politics it doesn't take us long to find out that Woodrow Wilson was the greatest president we ever had, and right now it is very necessary that another Woodrow Wilson be elected in our next campaign and I hope the Democrats find him among their ranks. Still another mistake that the misinformed make is believing that the man who is our president can just do anything he wishes to do. Now folks, the president doesn't have that much power. That one little mistaken idea cost the Democratic nominee millions of votes in the last election.

Of course, I don't want the 18th amendment repealed, neither do any of the people who are the backbone of the nation. People who want the 18th amendment repealed forget that when we had open saloons we did not have miles and miles of paved highways and streets, we did not have automobiles and women did not drive them; we did not have women with brains so small that they would go into a saloon and drink, but we have today. Prohibition is far from satisfactory, and I will admit that it often punishes the little man who sells liquor while the big bootlegger goes scot-free, but I believe it is better than open saloons.

Another mistake that is often made, and was very much flourished in the last presidential campaign, is the religion of a candidate. We all know that this country was settled mostly by people who were not allowed to worship according to their own ideas in the old country. Religion is free in America, every one can worship according to his own belief, so let us never again bring up another man's religion and try to hold that against him. It casts a dark spot on the constitution that we all love because it has made us free.

Now folks, let us all get busy and study up on politics and during the next national campaign let us try to cast the largest agricultural vote that was ever cast, also the most sensible, but remember the guy who makes the most flowery speech in the newspapers may lack a lot of being the right man; that only means he has more money for advertising. Some of the crazy laws that are now in force must have been passed while the farmers were asleep, so let us wake up.

BETTER JUDGING CONTEST WILL BE HELD ON TUESDAY

The annual butter judging contest will be held at the Pleasant Valley Home Demonstration clubhouse, on the County fairgrounds, Iowa Park, May 23, beginning at 2 p. m.

It has been asked that all contestants wear wash dresses, a white apron, and a cap or hair net over the hair.

J. C. Reagels of Southwestern Dairy Products will be the judge.

The aim of this contest is to improve the quality of butter on the farm for home use. The butter will be judged on the flavor, color, texture, salt, and package.

Salt: Too much and gritty.

Working score, manipulation and method of handling butter and utensils, 25 points.

SKIPPING A BOW NOW AND THEN PAYS

ROBERT E. LEE, Texas, May 23.—Because last year's maize planted on the two-row-and-skip-one plan doubled the yield of maize planted in every row, Lem Cowley, Coke county farmer living near Valley View, has told the county agent, B. J. Baskin, that he intends to plant his entire crop by the newer system this season, Mr. Cowley states that his maize crop last year was almost as good as in years of normal moisture due to this form of crop insurance.

Foard County Demonstration Clubs Put Up Over 250 Varieties of Food

CROWELL, Texas, May 23.—Over 250 different varieties of foods were represented in the recent food show in Crowell in which the 10 home demonstration clubs of Foard county participated. This remarkable record was made in spite of the fact that 1930 was the dryest year in Foard history.

YARD BEAUTIFICATION ACHIEVED LITTLE EXPENSE

BEAUMONT, May 23.—With an expense of less than $2.50, Mrs. Hugh Long of the Amelia community in Jefferson county made a number of improvements in her yard as a part of her home demonstration club work. The fence has been taken away, a trellis made for honeysuckle vines to screen the well from public view, youpon has been planted for screening also, a row of poplar trees planted to screen the clothes line, six roses have been added to the rose garden, and six varieties of zinnias planted in a border bed.

This is Mrs. Long's second year as a yard demonstrator, last year she made a lawn of Bermuda grass, surrounded the house with foundation plantings of youpon, privet, wax leaf ligustrum, Japanese hedge, pittosporum and red bud. She planted a grove of oaks, ash, poplars, Lombardy poplars and taller trees, and a row of weeping elms to screen the yard and grounds from an unkept lot in the rear. In a large pond by the side of the grove she dropped a dozen water hyacinth plants and this year has been rewarded by a mass of blooms. The garden is screened from the public view by a youpon hedge.

To improve dairy profits in Bell county a mail order cow testing association has been organized by the county agent with the aid of the local Jersey Cattle club, a creamery, and the school. A vocational agriculture student will do the testing and for $2 per cow per year farmer members will get the information required to improve their feeding and management methods.

ADVOCATING WIDER USE OF COTTONSEED FOR FEED

D. Burns of Dallas, field representative of the cottonseed crushers organization, will be in Wichita Falls Tuesday, in connection with efforts to bring about the wider use of cottonseed meal for feeding out of livestock. Mr. Burns will confer with local farmers and stockmen while here.

More than 100 beeves have been canned in Foard county since the first of the year, home demonstration club women supplementing the home agent's efforts by showing neighbors how to do the job.

One variety cotton communities organized around local gins that agree to have separate gin days for improved cotton have shown a great increase this year over last, particularly in West Texas.

ANDERSON COUNTY ERADICATES GOPHERS

PALESTINE, May 23.—With a goal set of showing every farmer in Anderson county proper methods of poisoning and trapping gophers, a county-wide campaign of eradication has been undertaken with the aid of the United States biological survey and Mack McConnell, county agent. The county commissioners' court and a local civic organization appropriated $88.50 and $15 respectively to meet a federal sum of $225 for hiring seven men to go from farm to farm demonstrating control methods and giving each farmer enough poison to kill out his marauding gophers.

Dan M. Foster represents the biological survey in this work which resulted in the distribution at the first meeting of more than 400 packages of strychnine poison and the loan of 288 traps bought by the commissioners court. It is expected that the campaign will last long enough to eradicate the greater part of the gophers from Anderson county, thereby saving thousands of dollars worth of crops this year.

GREGG CLUB GIRL MAKES GARDENING PAY

LONGVIEW, Texas, May 23.—At a cost of $5.43 Lorene Davis, 4-H club girl of Gregg county, has made a garden from which by the end of April she has supplied her family with $2.80 worth of English peas, $2.95 worth of onions, $1.40 worth of turnip greens, $3.10 worth of radishes, and $1.50 worth of lettuce. The garden is 58 by 98 feet. She also has swiss chard, carrots, beans and tomatoes coming on. The oil field near which she lives furnishes Lorene a fine market for any surplus not needed by the family.

HOME MADE CHEESE POPULAR IN YOUNG COUNTY

GRAHAM, Texas, May 23.—One hundred and ninety pounds of American cheese were made in two weeks by the members of the Red Top Home Demonstration club of Young county, as the result of one demonstration, according to the report of the club president, Miss Annie Mary Slater. Whole milk was used to make the cheese; valued at nine cents per gallon the milk cost was $17.10, and $1.14 worth of color and rennet tablets were used, making a total cost of $18.24 for the cheese. The local price for commercial cheese being 27 cents per pound, the profit of the club members on their cheese work is estimated to be $33.06.

MORE FRUIT ON FARMS FOR LIMESTONE COUNTY

MEXIA, Texas, May 23.—Developing the farm fruit plot has been given a prominent place in their year's work by home demonstration club women of Limestone county and as a result reports from approximately two-thirds of them show that 29,394 fruit trees and plants have been put out since Nov. 1, 1930. Of this number 1,542 are peach trees, 163 are figs, six are apricots, 338 are grapes, 60 are apples, 130 are pears, 290 are plums, 12 are cherries, four persimmon, 27,310 are dewberry, blackberry and strawberry plants, and 39 are pecan trees.

Nine out of the 12 clubs in the county have a special fruit plot demonstrator and in each club each member has planted a minimum of 24 small fruits or fruit trees.

Texas Farming Makes Notable Gains Despite Reduced Income, According To Annual Report of Extension Work

COLLEGE STATION, May 23.—"Although reduced in income, 50,000 Texas farm families with one or more members enrolled as demonstrators cooperating with county farm and home demonstration agents managed to hold their own or even show a profit last year," declares Director O. B. Martin in the annual report just issued of the extension service, Texas A. & M. college and United States department of agriculture. "Standards of living as reflected in home comforts, dress, diet or appearance of farmstead, were definitely improved. Perhaps no year in this generation has witnessed so great an advance toward the ideal of living at home," he continues.

Mr. Martin believes that "we are in a critical transition period in which it remains to be seen whether a new agricultural civilization adapted to the changed conditions of the machine age can be constructed out of the wreckage of the old. Since civilizations are manmade and economic institutions only human, the extension service is confident that a better rural civilization can be built in Texas." Among the important factors leading to better country life he includes cutting cost of production, deriving a larger per cent of the living from home products, price improvement through grading and standardization, and lifting farm living standards.

To this end Mr. Martin declares that "400 county and home demonstration agents, district agents and specialists are rapidly developing farm men and women, boys and girls into demonstrators who are tackling every phase of farming and ranching and home making with better methods and bigger ideas. As these demonstrators achieve success in one activity they turn to new fields in a self-education process whose end is a self-reliant, independent, fearless, thinking, rural constituency capable of its own leadership in the struggle for a comfortable, prosperous, cultured country life. This is the aim of extension work, and in its multiplication of demonstrations and demonstrators a modern rural civilization is being reared."

GOOD USE MADE OF CHEAP CABBAGE IN WILLACY COUNTY

RAYMONDVILLE, Texas, May 23.—That cheap cabbage is just as good for the manufacture of kraut and that the kraut is just as healthy as if it were made of more expensive cabbage is the conclusion of home demonstration club women of Willacy county, according to the report of the county home agent, Ophelia Estell. Reports of the pantry demonstrators of the county show more than 300 containers already on their pantry shelves.

Expressing profit entirely in terms of what home-grown feed brought, L. A. McDaniel, a poultry demonstrator of Wharton received about $1.33 per bushel in March for his corn on a 14-cent egg market. His flock of 650 White Leghorns laid an average of 13 1-3 eggs for the month. Laying mash was used to balance the 42 bushels of corn fed. Feed was estimated to comprise 60 per cent of the total cost.

ARMY WORM MAKES APPEARANCE HERE; IS DAMAGING OATS

The army worm, which has caused heavy damage to small grain crops in the black lands, has made its appearance in Wichita county, and some fields are badly infested. The principal damage is to oats, according to information reaching County Agent G. C. McGown.

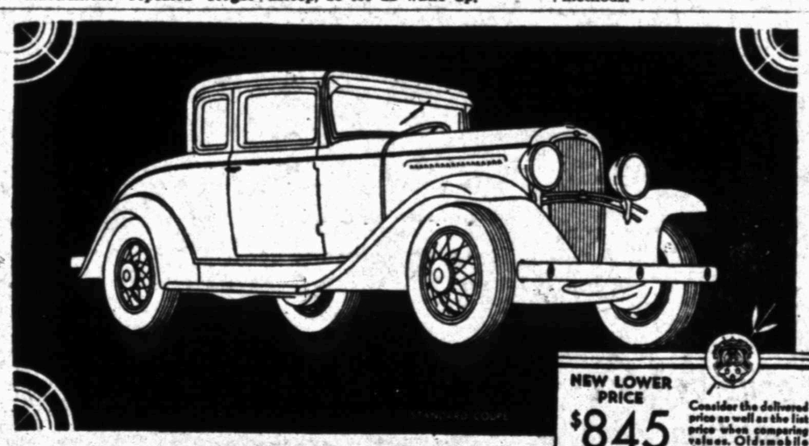

There is no way to combat the worms, but Mr. McGown recommends that when fields are found to be infested, the crop be harvested as promptly as possible, even if this involves sacrificing the quality of the grain. After harvesting, he urges that the field be well disced as a preventive measure.

An infestation of army worms usually is a forerunner of leafworms in cotton, so that cotton growers should be prepared with poison.

The cool, damp weather which has prevailed here has been favorable to the propagation of the army worms. A hot dry spell would do much to check the infestation. One field was found Friday in which the damage was estimated at 10 per cent.

"My pantry has been a life-saver during these hard times," declares Mrs. A. L. Farr, home demonstration club woman of Woodbine, Cooke county. "I have fed my family of three and have sold enough of the surplus to buy other things we have needed such as staple supplies and clothing."

Greatest and Cheapest Grain Crop In History of Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma Is Promised

In compiling an estimate of the grain crop of this section, The Daily Times and Record News considered only those counties in the Wichita Falls area, and made every effort to make the reports as accurate as possible. Reports were sent in by correspondents in 35 counties and were based on estimates of county agents, grain men and farmers. In the greater part of the area, an average grain crop is already assured. Timely rains within the next week in a number of counties, notably those on the South Plains, will assure perhaps the greatest yields in history, while continued drouth will severely reduce the yield.

Worms were damaging some fields, according to reports received by these newspapers, but it was not believed the loss will be large due to the approaching maturity of the crop. Where worms were making serious inroads, correspondents reported farmers were cutting their grain for hay. The unusually large number of hail and windstorms within the last two weeks also seemed to have left the area little damaged except in restricted areas, reports said.

Twenty Bushels Yield

The condition of the crop in Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma was much better than the average condition for the entire state, according to comparisons with the department of agriculture reports as of May 1. An indicated yield of 20 bushels to the acre was shown for this section, as compared to an estimated yield of 14 bushels for the entire state.

Of the total estimated crop of 20,017,500 for Texas and Oklahoma counties in this area, 28 counties in Texas were placed at 14,749,500 bushels and seven counties in Oklahoma at 5,268,000 bushels. The estimated yield for the 28 Texas counties was more than one-third of the estimated total for the state and was more than one-half of all the wheat produced in Texas last year.

Estimated Oat Crop

The compilation of estimates on the oat crop proved more difficult than on the wheat, due to the large number of farmers planting small tracts for their own use and not for market. The best estimates available, however, indicated a yield of between 23 million and 25 million bushels, the greater part of which should be available for the market. Several hundred thousand bushels of barley were also indicated for the section, with Baylor, Jones and Wichita counties standing high in the estimated yield and total acreage in this grain. Of the total oat crop, Oklahoma counties were expected to produce more than 4,857,000 bushels and Texas counties approximately 20 million bushels.

With favorable weather, Floyd county apparently will regain its title as one of the champion wheat producing counties of Texas. The crop at present is badly in need of rain, and timely showers within the next two weeks will produce in that county a tremendous yield from the 225,000 acres in wheat. Even without moisture, it appears that Floyd will go over the two million bushel mark in production, while its neighbor county, Hale, is counting on a yield of 1,950,000 bushels on present conditions. Weather conditions have been slightly more favorable in the latter county, according to reports.

Remarkable Records

Two of the most remarkable production records apparently will be made in Young and Foard counties. The season has been ideal for both counties, and estimates are that Foard will secure 1,200,000 bushels from its 60,000 acres, while Young county is expecting a harvest of 32 bushels per acre for a total of 864,000 bushels. Tillman county in Oklahoma expects to lead the procession in that section with a crop of more than two million bushels compared to the 450,000 bushels harvested last year. Jackson county in Oklahoma places its average production at around 22 bushels, with the total crop estimated at 1,980,000 bushels.

Cutting of oats has already started in some sections, while the wheat harvest will likely get under way in several Oklahoma counties within the next week. The general Texas harvest should be well started within from 10 days to two weeks, while the South Plains harvest will get under way around June 15-20.

Wilbarger Oat Crop

VERNON, Texas, May 23.—Wilbarger county has between 25,000 and 30,000 acres planted in wheat and oats this year, an increase of over 200 per cent of the past few years. Observers of the condition estimate the crop at 125 per cent of normal on the basis of federal government figures. This is the first year since 1926 that any large amount of acreage has been planted to grain and the largest acreage since 1919.

Of the acreage above the experts agree on the proportions of each crop. County Agent R. E. L. Patillo and George H. Wilson Jr., estimate about two-thirds in wheat and one-third in oats while others reverse the figures. It has been a hard year to gather figures on acreage as so many farmers have planted small fields of from five to 20 acres just for pasturage and will not try to thresh any grain.

Wheat looks at present like the county will have an average yield of from 15 to 18 bushels per acre. A great deal of it is just at the stage where a little rain would help fill it out. Threshing will start around June 10.

The oat crop is the largest and best in many years. The predicted average yield is from 30 to 45 bushels per acre with a conservative estimate of 35. Some places in the county the production will go from 75 to 80 bushels per acre where the rain has hit just right. At the present time a large per cent of the crop, and especially the spring oats, are in the "dough" stage and a good rain would fill them out and increase the yield. Unless extremely hot weather prevails during the next week it now looks like the wheat and oat crop of the county will be ready to cut about the same time. Only a few large fields are beginning to show signs of being ripe.

County Agent Patillo reports a number of good barley fields and he estimates the yield will average 35 bushels per acre.

Young County Crops

OLNEY, Texas, May 23.—Crop prospects in Young county are the best in a decade, at least, according to reports from farmers all sections of the county.

An increase in acreage of all feed crops indicate a plentiful supply. Wheat acreage has been increased approximately 10 per cent, making an estimated total acreage of 27,000. The heaviest yield per acre since 1919 is expected, when the range was from 20 to 45 bushels. Abundant rains have assured a high quality product. Some damage is expected from worms and the extremely cold weather in late March and early April. This damage can best be measured at the thrasher.

Oats give the greatest promise from an acre yield standpoint. Reports from all quarters indicates an acre yield average for the county around 50 bushels, with many crops running from 75 to 100 bushels. Sections around the Brazos river bottoms are in this latter class. With an increase in acreage of about 5 per cent, the total acreage will be around 25,000.

A 10 per cent increase in corn acreage will run the total to about 9,500. Prospects have been promising, except for continuous cold weather. Some farmers have planted over before getting a stand. The hay crop will show a 20 per cent increase and a total acreage of about 4,000. Grain sorghums will total around 8,000 acres with hegari leading in the total acreage. Yields promise to be high.

Harvest will begin in earnest May 25. Where the army worm is doing the most damage, harvest has already begun in an effort to save some hay. These cases are rare.

The local labor supply is estimated sufficient to care for all operations. The combine will not be used as extensively this year as in the past.

Baylor County's Crop

SEYMOUR, Texas, May 23.—Baylor county's grain crop acreage is thought to be the largest the county has ever had, according to bankers, merchants, grain men and some of the larger grain farmers. The acreage for all grains is estimated at between 50 and 60 thousand acres. About 35 thousand of this is in wheat, the balance oats and barley, with about three times as much oats as barley.

The yield is estimated at an average of 18 bushels per acre for wheat, and 40 bushels per acre for oats. Barley between 35 and 40 bushels per acre. A rain this week will finish making the crop. A light hailstorm came with the rain but with slight damage to grain crops.

Make Big Feed Crop

MEMPHIS, Texas, May 23.—"Many thousands of dollars will be saved for Hall county farmers through the increased acreage of small grain such as wheat and oats," according to Hall County County Agent E. W. Thomas.

"There will be practically no wheat production for grain with the exception of a possible 3,000 acres. Probably 500 farmers over the county will cut for hay and an increase of five times the usual number have sowed wheat for pasturage. It is probable that harvest will start in about three weeks. Some are already cutting for hay.

Of oats there are five or six thousand acres but farmers are cutting for hay. "Hay from these crops will be sufficient for many farmers to make a crop who failed to make their crop last year. The balance of their crops can now be made on small grain," said Thomas.

Hardeman County Prospects
(Special to The Times)

QUANAH, Texas, May 23.—Prospects for a wheat crop of high quality and above average yield are the best in 12 years in this section, accordin gto grain men. Wheat in the eastern part of the county needs rain, and some damage from rust has been reported. Hardeman county farmers are well equipped with machinery. Mowers will start about June 1 and combines and threshers around June 10-15.

Too Rank for Combines

CHILDRESS, Texas, May 23.—Few combines will be used in the Childress county harvest, as most of the wheat is too rank for such machines. The Community Center neighborhood, which received a two-inch rain Monday, is expecting to make 35 bushels of wheat per acre.

Acreage in Dickens

SPUR, Texas, May 23.—Dickens county's wheat acreage showed an increase of nearly 100 per cent this year. A rain within the next few days will bring a production of from 25 to 30 bushels, while continued drouth is expected to cut the yield to around 12 or 15 bushels.

Hale County Crop
(Special to The Times)

PLAINVIEW, Texas, May 23.—Sufficient moisture has fallen in Hale county during the last week to mature the crop. The yield is estimated at 12 to 15 bushels per acre. Additional precipitation would improve the quality of the grain and would result in come increase in production.

Harvesting Barley
(Special to The Times)

THROCKMORTON, Texas, May 23.—Harvesting of barley in Throckmorton county started this week, and the cutting of other grain is expected to begin within a week or 10 days. A good rain would help the wheat crop.

Jones County Barley
(Special to The Times)

STAMFORD, Texas, May 23.—A good soaking rain on the 40,000 acres of wheat planted in Jones county would increase the yield to nearly 25 bushels an acre, farmers and grain men estimate. Rain also would help the nearly 10,000 acres planted in barley.

Jack County Corn Crop
(Special to The Times)

JACKSBORO, Texas, May 23.—Jack county has excellent prospects for a big grain crop, as well as for corn and other produce. The wheat acreage has been increased 20 per cent and the oats 5 per cent. Garden stuffs are doing nicely.

Expect Record Harvest

ALTUS, Okla., May 23.—Jackson county will start harvesting the first week in June of one of the largest wheat and oats crops that has ever been marketed in this part of the state.

Preparations are underway now for starting of the harvesting with much discussion being made as to amount to be paid for wages of hired hands.

Oats will yield on an average from 50 to 75 bushels per acre, which is about three times the yield that has been made in this county for the past three years.

With the wheat yield estimated at 20 or 22 bushels per acre, approximately 2,000,000 bushels are expected to be marketed in the county.

Acreage in the county is estimated at between 90,000 and 95,000 acres, which is the largest grain crop that has been planted here for several years.

Average production of wheat per acre in good years in Jackson county is from 15 to 18 bushels. With the estimate set between 20 and 22 bushels this year one of the largest crops ever harvested is expected to be handled.

Wheat averaged from one to four bushels per acre in the county in 1930, with only between 25,000 and 30,000 bushels marketed.

This harvest is expected to be aid in bringing at least temporary relief to many persons who have been without employment during the past several months and who will find work in the wheat fields. There are a sufficient number of persons in this county however to care for the crops.

Hail which visited some sections of the county recently damaged crops considerably in small areas, but total damage to the county was estimated at one per cent or less.

Jefferson County Bumper Crop

WAURIKA, Okla., May 23.—Jefferson county is expecting a bumper crop of wheat and oats this year, with an estimated acreage of 30,000 for each. This is 20 times more than normal acreage for this country.

The normal yield for wheat is about 10 bushels per acre while it is estimated the yield will be about 16 bushels to the acre this year. Wheat harvest will begin June 5.

With 30,000 acres in oats this year, present indications point to a yield of from 40 to 75 bushels per acre. Harvest will begin at once.

There are 80 per cent more gardens in this county than in previous years, according to Clarence Joachim, county agent.

Grain Acreage

MANGUM, Okla., May 23.—The outlook for a bumper crop in Southwest Oklahoma at present is very bright, according to R. M. Georgia, county agent, and B. E. Davis, secretary of the Mangum Chamber of Commerce.

The land planted to wheat in Greer county is estimated at 30,000 acres, an increase of 50 per cent over last year. Pioneer farmers predict that, barring hail and windstorms, the wheat yield will approximate 12 bushels to the acre, making a total of 360,000 bushels of wheat for Greer county.

Local labor will be employed largely in the harvest which will start about June 5. Most of the work will be handled by combines.

Early Wheat Record
(Special to The Times)

FREDERICK, Okla., May 23.—For a number of years Tillman county has furnished the first carload of wheat to the Fort Worth or Enid markets, and if the 1931 crop continues to mature at its present rate, it may do so again in 1931. Last year the town of Tillman, probably the smallest shipping point in Oklahoma and containing only an elevator and store, gained the distinction of getting the first load of wheat marketed in the country. The wheat was raised by Frank Dudenhoeffer and sold to Ira Neal, manager of the P. A. Cope elevator, at that place May 29. The first carload of wheat shipped from the county came from this same elevator. Cutting of oats is expected to start this week and of wheat a few days later.

Shortage of Binders
(Special to The Times)

DUNCAN, Okla., May 23.—Stephens county farmers have been favored with one of the best grain growing seasons in years. The estimated acreage in wheat is around 5,000 and in oats around 50,000.

A shortage of grain binders confronts oats growers. Five farmers have grain crops to one who has a binder. Because of the cost of renting binders and the cost of twine and threshing, County Agent J. A. Killough excepts many farmers will mow their oats while the crop is "in the milk" and stack it for feed.

Acreage Increased
(Special to The Times)

HOLLIS, Okla., May 23.—Wheat in Harmon county is badly in need of rain to assure a bumper yield. The acreage this year in wheat was increased 40 per cent, while a 50 per cent increase in yield is expected.

FRATERNITIES STAGE NEW AND SPECTACULAR RUSH CARD CAMPAIGN

DENVER, May 23. (INS)—Colorado university fraternities established a spectacular precedent today when they engaged airplanes to fly from Boulder to this city to distribute "rush" cards for prospective members.

Representatives from five fraternities in five separate planes flew the 35 miles from Boulder to Denver. Two of the fraternities had "agents" at the municipal airport and the "rush" cards were dropped from two planes to the flying field.

OKLAHOMA MOVES TO EQUALIZE ICE PRICES

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 23.(UP)—The state corporation commission today took action toward a reduction and equalization of Oklahoma ice prices.

All ice manufacturers in the state were ordered to appear before the commission June 15.

The hearing was called after the report of an investigation by A. T. Thompson, in charge of ice plant records for the commission.

A wide difference in prices was charged by Thompson. These should be equalized, he said.

Thompson said prices throughout the state range from 60 cents to a dollar for a hundred pounds delivered at residences, with the average about 80 cents.
