Two Lamesa Residents Are Found Dead

(Special To The Avalanche)

LAMESA, Jan. 18—Two persons were dead and a third hospitalized and in critical condition here tonight as a result of food poisoning.

The dead are Isaac Milton Edmonson, 63, and his wife, Mrs. Lucil Jane Edmonson, 59, of Lamesa. Mrs. Edmonson's mother, Mrs. M. A. Adams, 79, who resided with the couple, is in a hospital here and in critical condition.

All were victims of food poisoning thought to be from dried prunes which they had eaten with cereal sometime Monday evening. Dr. N. H. Price, local physician, surmised that the Edmonsons' deaths had occurred between 10 and 11 p.m. Monday.

Daughter Finds Bodies

The bodies of the couple and the seriously ill Mrs. Adams were not discovered until about 5 o'clock this afternoon, however. Discovery was made by the Edmonsons' daughter, Mrs. Luther Peterson, also of Lamesa, when she came to the Edmonson home in residential Lamesa and entered after getting no response to her knock.

The bodies of the Edmonsons were found in the bathroom, where signs indicated they had vomited repeatedly. Mrs. Adams, who was in bed, was immediately rushed to a local hospital. Her condition tonight was such that she was unable to give any information as to what had happened.

Dawson county Sheriff Roy King said tonight that the remainder of the prunes had been collected and would be analyzed.

The Edmonsons, who had moved into their present residence Sunday, had been living in Lamesa about two years. They had lived in Abilene for 15 years prior to their move here. Edmonson was in the real estate business here.

The couple's families had been Dawson county residents for many years. Friends here reported that Edmonson's family had come to Dawson county in 1906. Mrs. Edmonson's family had resided in the Sparenburg community for a number of years.

Other survivors in addition to the daughter, Mrs. Peterson, were not known tonight. Funeral arrangements are pending the arrival of relatives, Higginbotham Funeral home reported.

Bevin Heads Off Debate On Israel

LONDON, Jan. 18. (AP) — Foreign Secretary Bevin headed off a House of Commons showdown debate today on his Palestine policies with an assurance Britain plans no "aggressive action" to support her Arab allies.

He won from angry parliamentary critics a reluctant agreement to defer a full dress debate on the Middle East problem until next week. Then he will face challengers of every political hue, including a large bloc in his own Labor party, who seem determined to unseat him.

A public discussion of the issue now, Bevin contended, might imperil Egyptian-Jewish armistice talks under way at Rhodes.

"We have been using all our influence in conjunction with the United States," Bevin said, "in the hope of arriving at a complete armistice between the Jews and the Arabs."

He reported "good progress" in those efforts.

Dispatches from Rhodes said the armistice talks seemed to be going smoothly as both sides grappled with issues which wrecked prior peace efforts—definition of Israel's boundaries and withdrawal of troops from the Negev desert.

Israel announced she would permit a United Nations convoy to deliver food, tobacco and medical supplies to 3,000 Egyptian troops

Acheson Gets Senate Okay

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Dean Acheson today was confirmed by the Senate as secretary of state to succeed General George C. Marshall.

The roll call vote was 83 to 6.

The 55-year-old lawyer-diplomat won confirmation despite scattered Republican opposition. He is to take office Thursday.

Chairman Connally (D-Tex.), of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, called for "overwhelming" approval of President Truman's first 1949 cabinet appointment.

Vandenberg Backs Acheson

He said Acheson will "firmly and consistently assert and support the foreign policy of the United States in the preservation of its rights and the rights of its citizens and in its determination to secure world peace and freedom from aggression."

Bus Station Bombing Details Given Court

By R. C. HANKINS
Avalanche Staff Writer

CLYDE LOMAX, testifying as a state witness in the trial of Drew Story, charged with arson by explosive, admitted Tuesday afternoon in 99th district court that he bombed Texas, New Mexico & Oklahoma Coaches, Inc., terminal here about 12:15 a. m. June 14 and charged that Story drove a car containing the bomb to the terminal, knowing what was about to happen.

A strike of TNM&O bus drivers was underway at the time of the explosion.

J. E. Vickers, attorney for the defendant, made a motion for a peremptory instruction of acquittal after evidence had been concluded, citing to Judge G. V. Pardue a list of legal authorities in support of his contention that the state had not introduced sufficient corroboration of accomplice testimony to support a conviction.

Others On Stand

Judge Pardue promised a ruling this morning. He ordered that court be reconvened at 10 o'clock.

Lomax' testimony highlighted evidence given by 12 state witnesses. He, 24, is a former Hobbs, N. M., policeman. Story, former Garza county deputy sheriff, is 42 and also of Hobbs. A third man charged with arson in connection with the bombing is Houston Miller, about 30, Lubbock man and former union bus driver for TNM&O. Trial of Story's case before those of the other men was decided by agreement of defense counsel, in what virtually amounted to a motion for severance, court officials said.

Lomax said under direct examination of District Attorney Lloyd Croslin that he came here in a borrowed car from Hobbs, accompanied by Story, "to blow up the bus station."

Put Dynamite In Car

He said he had placed a suitcase containing dynamite, fuse and dynamite caps in the trunk of the automobile in Hobbs, and that he told Story what he was going to do. "I told him I had the stuff, but it was in the trunk."

He said he and Story drove to

Solons Seek To Speed Pay Bill

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP)—The Democrats pulled open the throttle today for swift House action on a bill to raise the statutory minimum wage from 40 cents an hour to 75 cents.

Rep. McCormack of Massachusetts, the Democratic leader, told the House he hopes to get a vote on the measure next week. The increase is one of the basic points in President Truman's economic program.

Other developments came fast today as Congress tried to clear away its pending business for the inaugural whoop-la Thursday:

Senate Refuses Tax Exemption

1. The Senate bucked over the administration's traces and killed a bill to exempt tickets to the inaugural parade and ball from federal amusement taxes. The deciding vote was 47 to 44. The House already had approved the measure.

2. Chairman Spence of the House Banking committee introduced legislation calling for a seven-months extension of the voluntary agreement anti-inflation controls made law by the Republican controlled 80th Congress. He also introduced a bill to extend export controls until June 30 1951. Both laws now are scheduled to expire Feb 28.

3. By a vote of 83 to 6, the Senate confirmed Dean Acheson as secretary of state. He succeeds

His physician said he had been in St. David's hospital for several weeks, but his condition did not become serious until three or four days ago. Funeral arrangements were pending.

Sheppard was appointed comptroller in 1930. He was elected every two years since. He was beginning his 10th elective term. He served as mayor of Sweetwater and Nolan county tax assessor before becoming a state officer.

FOSTER FACES SEPARATE TRIAL

Defense Opens Attack Against Jury Setup In Trial Of Reds

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
INS Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 — Defense counsel in the Communist conspiracy trial opened an all-out attack on the method of jury selection today after the court ruled that National Party Chairman William Z. Foster be tried separately at a later date.

The ruling on Foster by Federal Judge Harold R. Medina, the defense attack on the jury issue and a defense charge that the government plans to present "a parade of liars, spies and stool pigeons" as witnesses marked the second days of the trial in New York federal court.

Counsel for the other 11 Communist national board members, all of whom are accused with Foster of conspiracy to "teach and advocate" violent overthrow of the U. S. government, bitterly fought the severance.

One of the defense lawyers claimed that it is tantamount to "execution" of the Communist party in the U. S.

The defense maintained that without Foster as a joint defendant, to explain just what the

Another Cold Front Moves Over Plains

WINTER opened its third offensive within 10 days on the South Plains late last night as a sub-freezing mass of arctic air swept in out of the ice and snow encrusted Midwest.

A steady drop of temperature was expected to continue until after daylight today. A low of 14 degrees was predicted before an upward trend sets in. Temperatures were expected to stay far below the freezing mark all day with a high of 27 degrees coming about mid afternoon.

No precipitation was forecast by the Weather station north of Lubbock. Partly cloudy skies may bring some snow flurries to the Panhandle, but observers here last night could see no likelihood that the storm would bring more sleet or snow to this area.

Below freezing readings are predicted to continue until Thursday afternoon. A high of 35 is foreseen for Thursday afternoon, but tonight may be one of the coldest of the winter with readings of 10 to 12 degrees forecast for the South Plains section.

An unexpected cold front that swung in from the southwest and west Sunday with light snow flurries picked up fresh fury Monday and Monday night to leave most of the area under from two to five inches of snow Tuesday morning. The packed particles made highway travel hazardous, and traffic was slowed over most of the area until a thaw set in shortly after 9 a.m. yesterday. Most of the snow was melted by nightfall except in spots protected from the rays of the sun.

Tuesday morning's low was 20 degrees. The high was 36 degrees.

Moisture Total Boosted

Records at the Weather station showed that the melted snow equalled .15 inch precipitation to bring the January total to 2.84 inches.

Looking a little beyond the usual two day forecast, the weatherman said last night that a mass of warm air bearing up from the Gulf of Mexico and Mexico possibly would bring rain to West Texas, including the South Plains, Friday. He said there was a possibility also that a new cold front might meet the warm, moist air from the south and bring either snow or freezing rain. However,

INAUGURAL FESTIVITIES BEGIN

Truman Pledges All-Out Effort Toward Securing World Peace

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—President Truman declared tonight in a pre-inaugural talk that he intends to carry out Democratic platform pledges and exert all his efforts to "get peace in the world."

Mr. Truman spoke at a $15-a-plate dinner of the Truman-Barkley club at the Mayflower hotel. He said that he and his vice president-elect, Senator Alben W. Barkley, are in accord more completely than any president and vice president have ever been.

He urged his listeners to keep the Truman-Barkley club alive and active for the 1950 campaign because "we don't want" another 80th Congress.

Barkley, who also spoke, said the November vote showed the Democratic party is "a national party and not a sectional party."

Earlier today the weatherman pledged reasonable cooperation in President Truman's inauguration on Thursday, but the Senate threw a financial monkey wrench.

The forecast, for the hour when the President is sworn into his present job at better pay, is for wind, clouds and chill. No rain or snow.

But the Senate atmosphere

Texans Arrive In Capital For Inauguration Program

By CHAS. A. GUY, EDITOR
Lubbock Avalanche-Journal

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Texans, between 400 and 500 of them pried the lid off the inaugural social season here late today at a reception and cocktail party hosted by U. S. Attorney General and Mrs. Tom Clark, of Dallas.

A 12-piece string orchestra made up of members of the famous Marine band gave out with "The Eyes of Texas," "Home On The Range" and assorted long-hair music as "the boys and girls from home"—some who live here while working in government posts and others just here for the Truman-Barkley inauguration—shook hands, swapped yarns and generally made merry.

In the crowd were some of the greats, some of the near greats and many whose only claim to greatness is their Texas citizenship.

High Officials On Hand

Senators Tom Connally and Lyndon Johnson, scheduled for the receiving line, were absent, aidin, in the successful fight to get Senate confirmation for Dean Acheson as Mr. Truman's new Secretary of State. Their lovely wives, however, were on hand, bolstered by Speaker Sam Rayburn and his sister, Miss Lou Rayburn; postmaster general Jesse Donaldson and Mrs. Donaldson; and practically every one of Texas' 21 representatives, including Congressman and Mrs. George H. Mahon of Colorado City and Lubbock; and Rep. and Mrs. Ken Regan, of Midland and El Paso.

The Clark party was held in one of Washington's most celebrated places—the great, rambling one-time residence of Lars Anderson, the famed scientist. Now the property of the Sons of Cincinnati, a semi-social and historical club, the million-dollar mansion is replete with object d'art.

150 Aboard Special

The Texas inaugural special train rolled into Washington at noon today, loaded with 150 Truman stalwarts, all of whom had just enough time to get to their hotels, change their clothes, grab some sort of transportation and get to the Clark party by 4:30 p. m. old friends from the Panhandle-Plains to the Rio Grande valley, and from the piney woods to El Paso helped the Clarks

Check Finds County Voters Lagging In Poll Tax Payments

Lubbock county voters are lagging badly in payment of their state poll taxes for 1949, Roland Simpson, chairman of a Junior Chamber of Commerce Americanism committee designed to encourage participation of all citizens in governmental affairs, said Tuesday that a check with J. B. Johnston, county assessor-collector, revealed that fewer than 2,400 persons have paid their poll tax for this year.

Far Behind '48 Total

At this same time in 1948, Simpson pointed out, more than 16,000 persons had paid the required $1.75 voting fee.

Jan. 31 is the deadline for payment of the fee.

While 1949 elections will not be of such general interest as those in 1948, there is the distinct possibility that special issues will arise in which many voters will be interested, Simpson said. For this reason, he encouraged all eligible voters to pay the tax before the deadline this month.

To facilitate payment of the fee, the Jaycees plan to establish five convenient collection booths. These will be at Piggly Wiggly store No. 15, on N. College avenue; Mark Halsey drug store No. 5, Ave. Q and Nineteenth; Wylie's drug store, downtown; and the Plaza drug store, in Green Acres. These booths will be in operation from Jan. 26 through Jan. 31, Simpson said.

Wide Section Hit By Wind, Snow, Sleet

(By The Associated Press)

WINTER slammed the weather-groggy midcontinent with a new flurry of crippling climatic punches Tuesday.

The heaviest snow and sleet and worst cold of the winter lashed parts of the area. In some sections, the tripple assault threatened to make winter's previous efforts seem like little more than a dress rehearsal.

Snow piled up at an inch an hour rate in Kansas City, stalling traffic, closing schools and forcing some business houses to shut down. Kansas City was under a seven-inch blanket by noon and another five inches was forecast.

Snow Is General

"This is as bad a storm as we ever had in this section of the country at any time," said J. R. Lloyd, district weather forecaster.

The snow was general throughout the midlands. The sneak storm dumped deep snow on parts of southeast Nebraska, northeast Kansas, northwest Missouri, and into Oklahoma.

Winds of 25 to 35 miles an hour over the area were expected to whip the snow into deep drifts. Blizzard conditions developed in western and northern Nebraska.

Forecasters said 12 to 15 inches of snow may cover northwest Missouri and northeast Kansas by today. A five-inch blanket was predicted for Chicago before the cold wave moves in.

Sea Of Ice Spread

Meanwhile, a sleet storm, spearheading a bitter cold wave, spread a sea of ice from Texas northeastward to central Illinois and Indiana. The new storm hit the midlands just as the section was recovering from the first ice damage to communication lines in years. About two inches of ice was on the ground at Pittsburg, Kan., with alternate sleet and freezing rain continuing.

Sleet also snapped communications lines, closed some schools and slowed road traffic in Illinois.

The weather bureau in Chicago said the cold wave would send temperatures skidding in the Dakotas, Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma. Heavy snow is expected to accompany the change to colder weather.

The mercury was expected to dip to five degrees below zero in

Reds Marching Toward Nanking

BULLETIN!

NANKING, Wednesday, Jan. 19 (AP) — China's executive Yuan has decided to issue a ceasefire order to Nationalist armies and send a delegation to negotiate peace with the Communists, a high official source disclosed today.

Details have not yet been decided. A statement is expected to be issued later today.

(By International News Service)

NANKING, Jan. 18.—Hundreds of thousands of Red troops released by Communist capture of Tientsin, poured south today toward the Nationalist nerve center of Nanking.

The shaky nationalist government, faced with the mounting threat of total destruction of the capital at the hands of augmented Red forces, prepared to move all but a token force of administrators out of the city.

Beginning tomorrow, all but five to ten per cent of government personnel in Nanking will be scattered to South China communication centers.

The decision to move the last remnants of personnel from Nanking came as hard-hitting Communist salients smashed to within 50 miles of the capital.

A peace delegation was reported to have crossed through Communist lines to discuss the Red peace terms.

Already, Communist attack

BATTERY D TO BE HONOR GUARD

Truman's World War I Buddies To Move Into Washington Today

By INEZ ROBB
INS Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 — World War I buddies of "Captain Harry" Truman of the field artillery will move into Washington tomorrow to take over the capital for the inauguration of their former commanding officer into the presidency.

Members of Battery D, 100 strong, are on their way as special guests of the President. They are coming in answer to a personal invitation from Mr. Truman to "as many of the battery as can still walk."

To Be Honor Guard

Goaded by this reflection on their middle-aged ability still to go the course, members of the battery are coming from all parts of the United States and from as far off as Stuttgart, Germany, to march at the head of the inaugural parade as Mr. Truman's honor guard.

No other persons at the inaugural, with the possible exception of the President and Mrs. Truman's own family, circle are so envied or will receive so many kudos as Battery D, once known as "Dizzy D" before time and tide curbed its ebullience.

"Captain Harry" has made every effort to proclaim the affection in which he holds his old buddies who are willing to huff and puff over the parade route in his honor.

Not only will they form his honor guard, but the President is giving a breakfast for the men at 7 a.m. at the Mayflower hotel on inaugural day. This is the only private party to be given by the chief executive during the inauguration with the exception of the presidential reception later in the day for a minimum of 3,000 guests.

Battery Ranks High

In order that no one should misunderstand the deep affection he has for his old battery, word was issued from the White House today that his old buddies would be given an imposing place in the receiving line at the presidential reception.

When it was announced a fortnight ago that the unit would attend the reception, Battery D was so far down in the table of precedence as to be all but invisible.

Today's announcement places the battery in the front line, ranked just behind distinguished guests, governors of states, the electors, the Supreme court, the cabinet, the Democratic national committee and the joint congressional committee.

This means that the battery will outrank such groups as the inaugural committee, heads of independent agencies, the little cabinet, commissioners of the District of Columbia, Democratic party officials and an army of others.

If anyone doubts that we run a democracy in this country, he has only to glance over the list of President Truman's special guests in Battery D. They include everyone from Frank E. Spina, the President's barber whenever he is in Kansas City, to Col. John J. Uncles, a Battery D private who eventually went through West Point and became a brigadier general in World War II. It is Uncles who is flying here from Stuttgart for the reunion.

The battery, which wore out several young captains with its high jinks before it acquired "Captain Harry," numbered about 200 men when first commanded by Mr. Truman. The surviving members now number approximately 130 men.

On previous battery reunions in Kansas City and Omaha, the President has marched at the head of its men. This time, however, he has informed the outfit:

"I won't be able to walk with you in the inaugural parade because I'll be wearing a high silk hat and a long tailed coat, and I'm not going to march along in thr gailt Bmatelyi ugihtnoPoint that rig!"

What To Do For That Sluggish, Down-and-Out Feeling

Remember the time when you could eat like a horse, bubbled-over with energy, felt happy as a lark? Was it not because you liked to eat—didn't know what indigestion was, felt strong as an ox? As age advances the "old stomach and the ever-changing blood" need help. Now you may again release vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. U. S., Mexico Begin Talks On New Farm Labor Agreement

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Negotiations between Mexico and the United States for a new farm labor (bracero) agreement are under way.

The new contract is to replace one cancelled Oct. 18, 1948, because U. S. immigration Texas authorities allowed thousands of Mexicans to cross the border.

Mexico considcfed the violation of the agreement especially serious because she had refused to contract for laborers to go to Texas, where, Mexican consuls say, there is discrimination against Mexicans.

The negotiations began yesterday. Leslie A. Wheeler, counsellor of the U. S. embassy here, heads the U. S. delegation; Alfonso Guerra, foreign office executive officer, the Mexican.

OATH CEREMONIES ARE SHIFTED AFTER ARGUMENT

Congressional Tiffs And Personal Disappointment Sidelight History Of Presidential Inaugurals

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second article in a series by Stefan Lorant, noted authority on American history, highlighting the mirth, the splendor, and the mixups of presidential inaugurations since the birth of the republic. As Washington prepares for the gala inauguration of President Truman, Mr. Lorant has unearthed many new facts about the inaugural ceremonies of previous American presidents.)

By STEFAN LORANT
(Written Exclusively For INS)

The Federalist John Adams was Washington's successor in the presidential chair. An austere Puritan from Massachusetts, he movingly described his inauguration to his wife, Abigail, telling her that it was "the most affecting and overpowering scene I ever acted in . . ."

Adams confessed further:

"I was very unwell, had no sleep the night before, and really did not know but I should have fainted in presence of all the world. I was in great doubt whether to say anything or not besides repeating the oath. And now the world is as silent as the grave."

During Adam's term, the opposition became so strong that the Federalists lost the next election to the Democratic-Republicans.

As both Thomas Jefferson and Aaron Burr received the same number of electoral votes in 1800, the election went to the House of Representatives.

There, after dramatic scenes and seemingly endless balloting, the states chose Jefferson. For many this boded ill for the future. With Jefferson in the presidency the country would go to the dogs, said the Federalists.

Timothy Dwight, the president of Yale University, in his famous Forth of July speech, had predicted that if Jefferson were to become the chief executive "our wives and daughters would become the victims of legal prostitution, soberly dishonored, speciously polluted."

But it did not come to that.

Jefferson turned out to be a better man than his critics expected. The people of the country approved him and the party which he represented was so successful that it remained in power for forty consecutive years—a record which no other party has yet been able to match.

Deeply influenced by the spirit and concepts of the French revolution, Jefferson asked for a simple inaugural.

It was the first to be held in the new federal city of Washington, where Congress had moved from Philadelphia.

Walks To Capitol

When the day come, Jefferson walked in his everyday suit to the Capitol, accompanied by a number of friends and a company of artillery from Virginia.

He took the oath in the Senate chamber from the newly appointed chief justice, John Marshall.

Adams, the outgoing President, was not present at the ceremonies.

Bitter and resentful, he left Washington early in the morning and drove back to his home in Massachusetts. With him passed the Federalist regime.

But Thomas Jefferson, so ardently acclaimed at first by the masses, suffered the same fate as Washington. After eight years in office he was abused and vilified, and his critics could hardly wait for him to leave the presidency.

Young William Cullen Bryant wrote:

"Go wretch! resign the presidential chair,
Disclose thy secret measures, foul or fair;
Go, search with curious eyes for horned frogs
'Mid the wild wastes of Louisiana bogs."

Jefferson Attends Inaugural

Before he mounted his horse on an unfriendly March day in 1809 and made his way through snow and sleet to his beloved Monticello, he attended the inauguration of his successor, James Madison.

The ceremonies were more colorful than before. A band of militia escorted the President-elect to the Capitol, and in the evening a great ball was held—the first inaugural ball in history.

After serving two terms, Madison was succeeded by his secretary of state, James Monroe, another of the "Virginia dynasty."

It seemed to the country that a candidate needed only two qualifications to win the presidency: 1) he must have served as secretary of state; 2) he must have been born in Virginia.

When the day of Monroe's inauguration arrived, the war with England was over and the nation was ready for a glorious celebration.

Elaborate plans were laid. The President-elect had sent a message to the head of the Senate that, according to cusom, he would take the oath of office in the chamber of the House of Representatives.

The Senate committee in charge of the arrangements took great pains to make the program as impressive as possible.

Quarrel Ensues

But at the eleventh hour, the committee and Henry Clay, who was then speaker of the house, became involved in a violent quarrel.

Clay told the senators that he would not allow them the use of the House chamber. Behind Clay's attitude—so his enemies asserted—was resentment that Monroe had not appointed him secretary of state.

Clay's friends said that the speaker refused the use of the chamber simply because he did not think that the floor of the room was strong enough to support a great crowd.

Further argument ensued about the use of some furniture which belonged to the House.

As Clay would not yield, the Senate committee decided to erect "an elevated portico" in front of the Capitol.

It was from this portico that Monroe delivered his inaugural address to a crowd estimated at five to eight thousand. Thus, the custom of holding the inauguration in the open began.

Monroe's second inauguration was of a quieter sort. Because March 4 fell on a Sunday, it was held on Monday, a most wretched day of snow and mud and cold.

"The president, attired in full suit of black broadcloth of somewhat antiquated fashion with shoe and knee-buckles, rode in a plain carriage with four horses and a single colored footman," wrote John Quincy Adams in his diary.

Crowds Jam Capitol

When the President arrived at the capitol there were so many people in the corridors that only with the utmost difficult could be make his way through them into the house.

He was "squeezed handsomely" at the door of the chamber, and there was a great deal of pushing and shoving.

Monroe's friends and members of the cabinet pressed hard to clear a path through the throngs who wanted to watch the inauguration.

The President finally was pushed through the door and the ceremonies began. After Monroe took the oath and delivered his address, a Marine band made its first appearance at an official occasion.

In the afternoon diplomats, officeholders, friends flocked to the presidential mansion—now called the White House—to shake hands with the President.

"All the world was there," wrote Justice Story to his wife. "Hackney coaches, private carriages, foreign ministers and their suites were immediately in motion, and the very ground seemed beaten to powder or paste under the trampling of horses and the rolling of wheels.

"The scene lasted until three o'clock and then all things resumed their wonted tranquillity."

In the evening an inaugural ball was held. But Mr. and Mrs. Monroe were so exhausted by the ordeal of the day that they went home to bed even before supper was served.

U. S. Ports Alerted Against 'Yellowjack'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (U.P.) — Quarantine officers at all U. S. ports have been alerted to check persons coming into this country for possible signs of yellow fever

Informed sources said Dr. Gilbert J. Dunnahoo, chief of quarantine of the U. S. Public Health service, sent out the alert after being advised of an outbreak of "yellowjack" in Panama. It is the first flurry of the dread jungle disease reported in Panama in 20 years.

A crew of Pan American Sanitary bureau medical specialists have been sent to Panama City to help combat the fever.

Dr. John R. Murdock, assistant director of the bureau, said chances of yellow fever entering the United States are "almost zero" with quarantine officers taking proper precautions. The safeguards include taking temperatures of persons entering the country from the tropics and spraying planes from those areas with DDT and pyrethereum.

Even if the distase should reach this country, it probably could be quarantined quickly and wiped out, Dr. Murdock said.

Lubbock was represented by four entries in the contest, the entries having been selected in the local judging. James H. Roberts was first prize winner of the local contest; Mrs. Leighton Railsback, second prize; Wm. H. Carter, third prize; and Marvin Russell, fourth prize.

Roberts won $50 cash for first place; Mrs. Railsback, an exposure meter; Carter a flash camera kit and Russell, a developing kit.

Judges in the local contest were: Knox T. Thomas, Floyd Koen and C. W. Ratliff.

Local amateur photographers together with fellow snapshot fans in all sections of the country began their competition for $10,000 in cash and merchandize prizes offered by Sears stores on October 1. The contest closed November 12 when each store selected its top four entries to qualify for the national judging.

The Woman's Angle
By Margaret Turner

J. EDGAR HOOVER, boss of the FBI, said in Washington that one of every 20 persons in the United States has been arrested and fingerprinted sometime during his life. Have you?

ONE OPINION—A radio commentator named John Bosman wrote a poem the other day, describing that post-holiday feeling. Here it is:

"The bright red tie is out of sight,
And so's the lighter that would'nt light.
The tree's long burned and turned to ash;
The last of the turkey's got to hash.
And as Christmas departs for another year
And we drink the dregs of our cup of cheer,
Comes now the time when the bills are due
And the notices read: "This means you."

MARCH OF DIMES

MRS. MARY D. WATERS writes that she is aware that poem is seldom used in this column (and she's right there), but she thinks perhaps it we printed this bit, it might help people who realize how much the dimes mean that are being asked for polio sufferers.

Mrs. Waters says a misfortune that happens to the other fellow doesn't usually concern some people. They fail to realize that infantile paralysis can come without warning to anyone, rich or poor. Perhaps this little story might help them to think.

Here is the poem, which Mrs. Waters calls "Lest Others Suffer:"

My son sits alone in the window seat
Watching the traffic across the street;
Charles comes past with his new red sled
And swift on his scooter somes little Ted;
Mary and Jerry go roller skating along
While Pat hops and skips to a merry song;
And the wistful look on Jim's small face
Tugs at my heart and the tears leave their trace.
I know the hurt of all that he will miss,
My son, crippled and maimed by paralysis.
So open your heart and your purse strings, too,
But for the grace of God it might be you.
Lest others suffer as this child of mine
Send your contribution, if only a dime.

ONE WEATHER

MARY ELIZABETH PRYOR, 17 year old, had to stay in bed for a fortnight recently and she writes she had time for quite a bit of thinking.

"I'm sure you know what I mean when I say a girl has lots of thoughts to run through her head," she continues. "Thoughts of parties and schooldays and things of that sort. I've been writing to a sailor who is sailing soon for a foreign assignment and I can't think of a word to describe our weather to him. Can you help me? Don't you think 'winter wonderland' would do?

"After all, what day passes in Lubbock that someone does not wonder what the weather will be next day? I think it is just about the best winter wonderland there is don't you?"

DEAR MARY ELIZABETH: I certainly do think "winter wonderland" fits the weather we have been experiencing lately. Webster says when one wonders he feels doubt and curiosity. We know we were wonder stricken when we came out of a meeting the other night to discover the beautiful snowfall. One word won't cover the beauty and promise of the precipitation that has fallen in rain, snow and sleet during the last two weeks, will it? Thanks for your letter.

Westerners Drub Brownfield, 45 To 17, For 1-AA Win

Wilson, Galey Pace Hub Quint

By EARL SCUDDAY
Avalanche Sports Writer

BROWNFIELD, Jan. 18—Lubbock High's rebounding Westerner cagers, paced by the brilliant shooting of Center Jim Wilson and Forward Charles Galey, chalked up their second District 1-AA victory in three starts by drubbing the Brownfield Cubs, 45-17, here tonight.

The Lubbock schoolboys turned in one of their best performances of the season in downing the scrappy Cubs, despite the absence of regular Forward Jimmy Sexton, and were in complete control of the situation all the way. The Westerners' zone defense was working perfectly tonight, with Galey, Wilson, Guard Bob Rooker and Forward Jesse Fullerton sparking the Lubbock five, and the Brownfield boys just couldn't hold the sharp-shooting Wilson and Galey.

Galey Opens Play

Galey put the Lubbock quint into the lead early in the initial period on a free throw, then seconds later Wilson boosted the tally on a pivot shot—the first of nine field goals to be scored by the big center. Fullerton and Guard Blair Hankins connected on free pitches and Wilson dropped in two additional field goals to give the Westerners a 9-1 margin at the end of the first period.

Wilson and Galey alternated in hitting the basket to increase the Lubbock margin to 17-5 at halftime. The Cubs tallied their first field goal on a toss by Center Glenn Gorby just 10 seconds before the half.

Galey, Wilson, Hankins and Fullerton added 12 more points in the third quarter, while Calvin Farris, Gorby and Jody Line were notching five points for the home five. Coach Roy Morris used reserves freely during the last stanza, but Neil Sikes, Rooker and Galey boosted the count to 45-17 at the final whistle. Line dropped in two long set shots late in the period to pace the late Brownfield surge.

Wilson was probably the outstanding performer of the tilt, with an individual tally of 18 points on nine field goals, but the veteran Galey turned in his usual brilliant ball-handling and scoring exhibition. Galey copped 16 points on six field goals and four free tosses. Line was high scorer for Brownfield with eight points.

Game Was Rough

The game was very rough all the way, with a total of 33 personal fouls being called on the two teams, and the Lubbock cagers chalked up 11 points on charity pitches.

The victory boosted Lubbock into the runner-up spot in the district title race, with two wins and a single defeat. Pampa holds the top position with two triumphs and no losses.

In the "B" game preceding the feature sette, Brownfield edged out the Lubbock Cowhands, 31-26. The Hub city youngsters held a 15-9 halftime lead, but faltered under a late Brownfield offensive.

Dean White topped the Cowhands with 10 points, while Charles Scudday tallied eight for Brownfield.

Gloves Tickets Going Rapidly

Three-fourths of the reserved seat tickets for the Lubbock regional Golden Gloves tournament, to be held in Tech gym Jan. 31, Feb. 1 and Feb. 2, have been sold.

Morey Jennings, Tech athletic director and Gloves official, said that yesterday's sale of tickets reduced the total number from 250 to about 125. Tickets bought so far have been for all three nights of the tourney.

Jennings urged persons desiring tickets not to waste time, in view of the fact they were going so rapidly. A telephone call to Tech gym will be enough to make reservations and persons are urged also to pick up their reservations as soon as possible.

At the same time Jennings emphasized that no general admission tickets had been sold yet and that they would go on a first come first served basis. This assures everyone of an equal opportunity to see the fights, although only a limited number can be sold. General admission tickets also will be sold in advance.

Prices remain at $1.80 for reserved seats, $1.20 for general admission.

Entries continue to arrive daily from prospective fighters, with Plainview continuing to lead the way. Yesterday Jerry Johnson, a 133-pounder, signed up from Plainview and Sonnie Utley, light heavyweight from Monroe, signed, both for the novice division.

TORNADOES OPEN AGAINST LEVELLAND

Lamesa High School Announces 10-Game Grid Schedule For '49

LAMESA, Jan. 18—(Special)—A 10-game football schedule has been announced here by Head Coach Bob Harrell for the Lamesa High school grid squad in the 1949 season.

Harrell, entering his second year here, expects to have 10 lettermen on hand when the Golden Tornadoes begin drills for their season, the first year of a new conference comprising District 3-AA in which will be Lubbock, Brownfield, Odessa, Midland and Lamesa.

Outside conference competition, the Golden Tornado will meet Plainview, Quanah, Pampa and Big Spring of Class AA, as well as Levelland and Seminole, leading Class A elevens.

The meeting with Quanah will be the first between these two teams, but all other opponents have been played in the past. Lamesa has signed two-year home and home contracts with Quanah, as well as Big Spring and Pampa.

Five games at home and five away feature the schedule, with Brownfield coming here on Armistice Day. It probably will be the last year for competition against Class A teams, officials declared.

Coach Harrell likes the new district alignment, not only for the short distances involved, but also because Lamesa will have to play only four conference foes instead of six.

The 1949 schedule:
Sept. 9—Levelland, there.
Sept. 16—Seminole, here.
Sept. 23—Plainview, here.
Sept. 30—Big Spring, there.
Oct. 7—Quanah, here.
Oct. 14—Open.
Oct. 21—Pampa, there.
Oct. 28—Lubbock, there.
Nov. 4—Odessa, here.
Nov. 11—Brownfield, here.
Nov. 24—Midland, there.

Abernathy Sweeps Three Games From Lockney Basketball Teams

ABERNATHY, Jan. 18.—(Special)—Abernathy basketball teams swept three games from Lockney here tonight, the varsity winning, 53-33, the B squad winning, 24-12, and the girls taking a 33-13 victory. The varsity game was a District 3-A clash.

Tag Team Match Set For Tonight

Roughness and toughness will be matched against speed and science at Sled Allen's wrestling arena tonight, when Pat O'Dowdy and Monte LaDue grapple Milt Olsen and Eddie Gideon in an Australian tag team wrestling match headliner.

As if the act from the land Down Under wasn't enough, there will be a 45-minute, two out of three falls, first main event bringing together Bill Parks and Vic Weber.

All in all, it should be a great night for grunt and goan adherents, who will be treated to some good, clean wrestling, as well as the blood-letting, hair-pulling, gouging, rock 'em, sock 'em school of action.

Parks made his debut here last week and the well proportioned, good-looking grappler made a good impression. He is a younger brother of a professional and trying to follow in his footsteps. From his showing last week, he is learning rapidly.

Weber, of course, is no stranger, nor is he a newcomer to the ring. He promotes wrestling in Plainview and takes time out to keep his art active by doing some active wrestling himself. Since both Parks and Weber are clean style wrestlers, their match tonight should please the crowd.

The main event should be a battle of the rugged, with roughhouse tactics opposing the clean. Neither LaDue nor O'Dowdy are known for the "gentlemanly" behavior in the ring, but Gideon and Olsen both are respected.

Tickets go on sale at 9 this morning in Wylie's Drug store, with the first match scheduled for 8 p.m.

Farwell Wins Doubleheader From Bovina Basketball Teams

FARWELL, Jan. 18. (Special)—Farwell won both ends of a basketball doubleheader here tonight the varsity taking a 40-34 victory from Bovina and the girls winning a 31-28 decision.

Warlick Thomas paced the boys to victory with 18 points, while Ellison and Tidenberg each had 10 for the losers. In the girls game, Carrie Etta Grissom had 17 points for the winners, Ellison scored 13 for the losers.

New Home Boys Cagers Gain First Place In District 9-B

NEW HOME, Jan. 18. (Special)—New Home boys went into first place in District 9-B with a thrilling 32-31 victory over Wellman here tonight, while the New Home girls swamped the visitors 63-19.

Carl Arms had 16 points for the winners, Casau had nine for the losers. And Emma Dean Robinson, playing less than half the girls game, hit 40 points to pace the girls to victory.

Idalou High School Quintet Drops New Deal, 32 To 17

IDALOU, Jan. 18—(Special)—The Idalou High School wildcats swamped New Deal's cagers, 32 to 17, in a District 7-B conference game here tonight. Charles Dawson led the 'Cats with 14 points.

New Deal girls then took to the hardwood and edged past the Idalou girls, 21 to 18.

Sponsoring Agencies Will Meet

Relay Plans To Be Discussed Tonight

Preliminary plans for conducting the second annual South Plains Relays here this spring will be discussed at a meeting of officials of the four sponsoring agencies at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the City hall.

Representatives from the sponsoring groups, which include the Lubbock public schools, City Recreation department, Chamber of Commerce and Texas Technological college, will meet in room 106 of the City hall.

Several problems will be decided at the session, with the date of the Relays, admission prices to be charged and awards for teams and individuals receiving special attention.

The officials will also decide on the methods to be used in inviting teams from New Mexico and the entire West Texas area to compete in the Relays. Last year, more than 350 individuals from 35 teams battled for top honors.

The meet is certain to be held at the Texas Tech track again this year, and will probably be conducted about the second week in April. Exact date must be set by the executive committee, however.

Members expected to be present at the meeting tonight include E. J. Lowrey, C. R. Pattison and Freddie Brown, Lubbock High school; A. C. Hamilton and Curtis Barrett, Recreation department; A. B. Davis and George Bond, Chamber of Commerce; and Morley Jennings and Maxey McKnight, Texas Tech.

Boxers Meet At Canyon Tonight

CANYON, Jan. 18. (Special)—Boxing teams from Plainview, Amarillo and West Texas State Teachers College will get together here tomorrow night in a triangular meet that will be a case of rematching many fighters who have opposed each other already this season.

Plainview will send its heavy team to Canyon, Coach Bud Dean dividing his squad into light and heavy divisions. Dean has taken his lighter boys to form one squad and his heavier boys to form another.

Both Are Balanced

Both teams have balance, with some light boys on the heavy squad and vica versa. The team coming here will feature such boxers as Calvin Pyle, the Lockney middleweight who won his 20th straight fight in Abilene Saturday night, Doug Beedy, the heavy-hitting light heavyweight and others.

Leonard Duncan, Plainview's other leading middleweight, will make the trip here and is expected to tangle with Willis Hawkins, the polished Buffalo middleweight.

Coyt Thompson is another fighter coming here for the fight card who has earned respect. Thompson is a featherweight and one of the best. He licked Bill Henderson of Lubbock to win the title in the Lubbock regional Golden Gloves in 1946 and has lost none of his ability.

Black After Crown

Hollis Black, Petersburg-trained fighter, will go after the lightweight crown at Lubbock and will fight here in what is expected to be one of the better bouts. Black is a good fighter and improving all the time.

Friday night both Plainview squads will reform to oppose the Lubbock boxing team in an intercity match in Plainview under the sponsorship of the Jaycees.

Undefeated Spur Scores 57-31 Victory Over Crosbyton Five

SPUR, Jan. 18 (Special)—Undefeated Spur kept its District 3-A conference record clean with a 57-31 victory over Crosbyton here tonight, while the B squad won 25-20.

Joe Simpson with 22 points and Melvin Lindsey with 14 paced the Bulldogs, while Stevens had 14 points for the Chiefs. In the B game, Charles Lee had eight points for the winners, while Dunn and Hash each had five for the losers.

South Plains high school baseball coaches will have a chance to "brush up" on the finer points of play Feb. 15, when a well-organized baseball clinic will be held in Lubbock. Three major league baseball players will give instruction to the mentors and answer any questions that may be asked by the coaches. Two such demonstration teams will conduct clinics at 11 other cities in the state during the tour Here's the complete story on the program, as announced in the January issue of the Interscholastic Leaguer:

"The University Interscholastic league, in collaboration with the National Association of Baseball Leagues, is sponsoring 12 baseball clinics in Texas. Texas is one of the 10 states selected by the association to cooperate in this endeavor to further the national sport of baseball, and we in Texas should feel honored to be included in this group.

"Texas will have two visiting teams and they are tentatively scheduled for the following schools on the dates and with the chairmen indicated:

"El Paso, Feb. 13, L. W. McConachie.
Lubbock, Feb. 15, E. J. Lowrey.
Abilene, Feb. 16, P. E. Shotwell.
Austin, Feb. 17, Tony Burger.
Corpus Christi, Feb. 18, Grady Hester.
Edinburg, Feb. 19, Bobby Cannon.
Sherman, Feb. 14, Barlow Anderson.
Dallas, Feb. 15, P. E. Cobb.
Tyler, Feb. 16, Ed Hennig.
Waco, Feb. 17, Carl Price.
Houston, Feb. 18, Roy Needham.
Beaumont, Feb. 19, Stan Lambert.

"The clinics will be of one day's duration, and all teaching personnel and baseball equipment will be supplied by the co-sponsors. The school conducting the clinic will provide facilities and register the people attending. A one dollar registration fee will be charged for each person attending, and this fee will be applied toward expenses of the visiting personnel.

"The National Association of Baseball leagues will assign three major league baseball players to each team. They will be selected to insure personnel of the highest caliber as regards morals, language, education and technical ability. In addition, the teams will be given special schooling before they are assigned to the various states . . . this clinic is only for baseball coaches and not players."

The Lubbock clinic will provide area diamond mentors their best opportunity for a "refresher course" before they start the district races this spring. And since the baseball teams will play all the way to a state championship this season, it is especially important for the team mentors to be able to provide the youngsters with some real coaching.

Texas Longhorns Gain Thrilling 40-37 Victory Over Baylor Bears

AUSTIN, Jan. 18.—(AP)— Texas threw the Southwest Conference basketball race into a scramble this afternoon with a thrilling 40 to 37 victory over the defending champion Baylor Bears.

It was Baylor's first defeat in five Conference starts. Texas, Baylor, Rice and Arkansas now have records that include only one defeat.

Little Al Madsen guided Texas to victory after the Longhorns blew a first half lead that soared to 13 points shortly after intermission.

Baylor never was in the lead but Don Heathington, Bill Dewitt, and William Hickman teamed to score 10 straight points and draw even at 29-29 after eight minutes of play in the final period.

Tom Hamilton was responsible for the 22-11 halftime Texas lead, scoring 13 points in the opening period. He added five more in the second half to take scoring honors with 18 points.

Baylor was handicapped the final five minutes as James Owens left the game o nfouls, as did Heathington in the last minute.

Madsen, collecting three early fouls, sat on the bench during most of the middle portion of the game.

Cherry Stays At Texas U.

AUSTIN, Jan. 18. —(AP)— Blair Cherry late today said he will remain at the University of Texas as head football coach.

Cherry, head coach at the university the past two seasons, last week confirmed reports that he had been contacted by officials of two professional football teams which have coaching vacancies.

He made his brief announcement shortly after a joint meeting of the university athletic council and the athletic committee of the board of regents.

Cherry's only additional comment today was that he is "Happy at the University of Texas and anxious to stay."

Former Policeman Testifies In Bus Station Bombing Case Here

Miller's office here. Miller, he said, told them he wanted a "small charge" placed in an office of the bus terminal, and "one under a bus." Lomax said Miller handed him a $100 bill. Miller said to "be sure no one was in the office" when the bomb was placed there, the witness continued.

Lomax said he, Story and Miller left Miller's office so that Miller could show him premises to be bombed. Later, he said Miller left them and Lomax and Story went to Texas Tech campus, where Story watched to see whether any cars were coming 'while I made up the bomb." He said he made one of a half-stick of dynamite for the terminal, and another type that he later pitched under a TNM&O bus. The second did not explode.

Bombing Is Described

Story, he said, waited in the car south of the bus terminal when he, Lomax, took the suitcase, entered the terminal to look over the location, and was there perhaps 30 minutes later when Lomax returned to the car. The engine was running, and the two men left westward, slowing only to toss out the second bomb under the bus, the witness said.

Describing the bombing, Lomax said he entered the terminal, then left it. He walked along the west side to the southwest corner, where he leaned against the building until he was convinced he was not observed from across the street where the company's shops are located. He said he lighted a cigaret, broke a window opening on the office of Hurley Carpenter, assistant general manager of the bus company, lighted the fuse, tossed the dynamite in, and returned to the car where Story sat a half-block away.

Strike Was On

He said he saw Miller walking the picket line on the west side of the terminal when he was preparing to bomb the office.

Lomax said the car ran out of gasoline en route to Hobbs and that he purchased four gallons from a farmer, woke up a Plains filling station owner and bought more, and that he and Story ate breakfast at Denver City. "I broke the $100 bill to pay for it, gave Drew $45 of the change, and we went on to Hobbs." he said.

Cross-examined by Vickers, Lomax' indictment was offered in evidence, and the defense counsel elicited from Lomax an admission that he was relying on leniency from the state in return for his testimony. He admitted that he was testifying for that reason.

Lomax admitted that he didn't know if Story saw Miller give him money.

Knew Office Was Empty

Vickers elicited an admission that Lomax knew nobody was in the office when the bomb was pitched in, that he knew no one would get hurt, and that no fire would result. He said the bombing was "just for publicity," and that he had no intention of causing any property loss. He said he didn't have "any evil intention in mind."

On re-direct examination, Lomax was asked by Croslin:

"When you tossed the second bomb, Story knew what you were going to do?"

"Yes," Lomax answered.

In efforts to corroborate accomplice testimony, the state introduced several witnesses to the stand.

Rudy A Green, constable-elect, of Hobbs, said he lent Lomax his car the night of June 13, so Lomax could "fill a date."

Charlie Trimble, Hobbs undersheriff, said he had seen Lomax and Story about 8:30 p. m. June 13 in Green's green Frazer car and had followed them eastward to the New Mexico-Texas line.

Reward Is Brought Up

Vickers asked Trimble if he hadn't had trouble with Lomax, if he hadn't drawn a gun on him at one time, and if he "stood a chance to collect a reward of $1,250" in connection with the bombing case When Trimble answered he didn t know about his chances of a reward, Vickers held up a front page of a New Mexico newspaper and read the headline: "Undersheriff Trimble In Line for $1,250 Reward."

"Who's paying you to come over here and testify?" he asked.

Trimble said he was subpoenaed.

J. D. Boren, of the Lea county N. M., sheriff's department, testified he was with Trimble and saw Lomax and Story in Green's car headed eastward out of Hobbs.

Raymond McBroom, battery shop employe, said he was working at the TNM&O shops the night of June 13. At midnight, when he was eating his lunch, he said he was informed by Arvil Parrott, another workman, that "you can cross over to the terminal without crossing a picket line." He said he looked out and saw a "fellow" standing at the southwest corner of the terminal, a little suitcase in his hand. "I saw him light a cigaret." He said he heard an explosion a brief time later. He said the man appeared to weigh 165 to 170 pounds. On cross-examination of Vickers, however, he admitted he could not identify the man, but said he wore a "brownish-looking" suit, and had on a hat and a coat.

Damage Is Described

Parrott said he went over to the east wall to put up his coffee pot just in time to "see glass flying" and to hear the explosion. He described damage to the terminal—windows broken out in several offices, a desk overturned in Carpenter's office and the floor damaged. He said he saw a man run out of the terminal near the offices damaged, just before the explosion. He said the pickets were "turning short," not walking all the way back to the southwest corner, as usual. Miller was identified as one of the pickets.

Under cross-examination, Parrott said he recognized the man who ran out of the terminal before the explosion as L. P. Rheudasil, an employe who worked in the terminal. He said he saw no one else leave the place about that time. Under redirect examination of Croslin, Parrott said an evergreen shrub would have prevented his seeing some movements near the southwest corner of the building.

One Is Identified

Mrs. Irma Overstreet, waitress in a Denver City cafe where Lomax and Story had breakfast, testified that the bill was changed. She could not positively identify either of the two men who breakfasted there, but said one was tall and "wore a blue suit."

Herbert Sibage, who lives west of Morton in New Mexico, positively identified Story as the man who had bought gas from him. Under cross examination, he could not be positive in the date of the transaction. He said he lives 78 miles from Lubbock.

S. L. Tingle, Plains filling station proprietor, also identified Story as having bought gasoline from him the early morning of June 14.

Vickers offered no defense witnesses, and informed the court that the state's corroboration had placed Story "no closer than 78 miles from Lubbock" on the date of the offense charged.

The court asked the state to announce which of two counts it elects in seeking a conviction, and Croslin said he would do so after studying the case more. The first count charges, in effect, exploding a building with dynamite, the second with use of dynamite with intent to damage a building, court officials said.

E. G. Pharr, an assistant district attorney, assisted Croslin in the prosecution.

The jury is composed of G. T. Bird, E. P. Reed, Howard Medlock, Dayton W. Goode, G. K. Bullock, Chester H. Smith, B. H. Coston, R. E. Day, O. S. Hogan, Omer C. Higgins, C. H. Moore, and S. O. Jones.

Nanking Menaced

units—freed by the fall of Tientsin—were moving south on the Tientsin-Pukow railroad toward Nanking.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's near despondent government faced a Communist demand for what amounts to outright surrender or possible total destruction by rampant Red armies victorious on all fronts.

Nationalist China stood at the crossroads alone.

It was unofficially reported that the United States, Britain and France have turned down an ambiguously worded request for mediation in China's civil war.

Council To Meet

(Moscow joined these three in a Moscow broadcast which reported that China has been advised that the USSR refuses to act as mediator.

(Washington diplomats believe four power rejection of the mediation plea leaves Chiang with only one alternative—a settlement with the Reds.)

Such a fateful decision may be forthcoming Thursday when the Kuomintang central political council—the Nationalist party's highest policy making body—reconvenes in Nanking.

A substantial majority of the council's members are said to favor an invitation to the Communists to cease hostilities prior to the start of parleys on the Communist peace ultimatum.

Extremists Oppose Demands

This ultimatum—equivalent to a demand for outright surrender—called for a settlement which includes abolition of the present Chinese government and constitution and punishment of "war criminals" including Chiang Kai-Shek.

The majority is opposed by only a small group of extreme rightists who believe the demands are too severe and who want to prosecute the war to its bitter end.

Trial Of Reds

Communist party is, the other 11 could not properly defend themselves.

Judge Medina brushed aside these contentions in granting the motion, based on a report from two doctors that the 67-year-old Foster is ill with heart trouble and could not come to court.

Foster's own trial date apparently will depend on his health.

After the severance ruling, the defense renewed its arguments for a continuance of the trial for all defendants. Those motions were denied by Judge Medina on the spot.

Louis F. McCabe, representing Foster and Eugene Dennis, Communist party general secretary, argued unsuccessfully for a complete dismissal of the charges against Foster.

Feasibility Of Dam Project To Be Determined By March 1

MINERAL WELLS, Jan. 18.—(U.P.)—Feasibility of a construction program involving four power dams on the Brazos river between Whitner and Mineral Wells probably will be determined by March 1, it was indicated today.

Power companies will complete by that date an analysis of the district's engineering studies for the four dams, according to word received by directors of the Brazos River Conservation and Reclamation district here.

Prospects appear good for an agreement with a group of North Texas utilities to buy enough power to finance construction costs on at least two of the dams, and probably all four, it was reported by Milton Daniel, committee chairman from Breckenridge.

Boston Schemer Who Once Waded In Money, Dies Pauper

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 18.—(U.P.)—Charles Ponzi, Boston get-rich-quick schemer who once did a $250,000-a-day business and waded ankle - deep in greenbacks through his office, died a pauper today at the Charity hospital here. He was 68.

Ponzi was deported to Italy in 1934 after serving a seven-year sentence as a "common and notorious thief" in Massachusetts state prison. Unable to find financial success in Italy, he came to Brazil shortly after the outbreak of World War II.

Dogged By Bad Luck

He opened a hotel in Rio's Copacabana district and for a time was a leading figure in Rio's Italian circles. But bad luck dogged him and the hotel failed. Then came illness. Blind, paralyzed and bankrupt, he was taken to the charity hospital.

It was in 1919 that Ponzi hit upon the scheme that was to bring him a fortune. He was doing business as an exporter-importer in a one-room office in an obscure building in downtown Boston.

To his desk one day came an international postal reply coupon. The coupon had been purchased in Spain for about one cent in U. S. money and could be cashed in the United States for six cents in stamps.

Coins Magic Slogan

He decided that there was a fortune to be made if he bought "hundreds, thousands, millions" of the coupons, making five cents on each one. On that premise, he founded the "Securities Exchange company" with the magic slogan:

"Fifty per cent profit in 45 days."

Within a few months, the scheme mushroomed into a $250,000-a-day business. Greenbacks rolled in so fast that the office help stored them temporarily in wastebaskets. Often they flowed over until the floor was ankle-deep in bills of every denomination.

Financiers sensed something was wrong, but could not determine how Ponzi was breaking the law. Postal inspectors investigated. they invested their own savings. Ponzi prospered. To suspicious newsmen who called at his house. he showed $250,000 in cash and said he had a like amount in liberty bonds elsewhere in the house. He began driving a Rolls Royce.

The bubble burst after an investigation launched by the Boston Post showed that only a few thousands dollars worth of postal reply coupons had been issued in Europe during the previous six months. Ponzi merely had robbed Peter to pay Paul.

No one knows exactly how much money passed through Ponzi's hands. Estimates have run between $8,000,000 and $14,000,000.

Acheson Is Okayed

publican foreign policy spokesman, praised Acheson's "long and distinguished" public service career.

He said he had always found Acheson "reliable, helpful, co-operative, and trustworthy."

But Vandenberg also made clear that he did "not underwrite the results in foreign policy which will flow from this or any other nominee."

SIX GOPs Oppose Acheson

Senator Wherry (R-Neb.), minority floor leader, opposed confirmation.

Wherry told the Senate:

"It is common knowledge that Mr. Acheson has been an appeaser of Russia."

He said the foreign relations committee had "doubts" on that point and added that Wherry himself still had them.

Senators Capehart (R-Ind.) and Jenner (R-Ind.), also criticised Acheson in the debate.

Capehart centered his attack on activity of Acheson's former law firm in connection with loans to what he called "Communist-dominated foreign countries." He said he was joining President Truman's crusade against Wall street by voting to put Acheson "right out of the government."

Foreign Policy Rapped

Jenner attacked the administration's general foreign policy. He said it amounted to "playing put and take—we put our money over there and Uncle Joe takes."

"You can call me an isolationist. a reactionary or whatever you damn please," Jenner shouted. He said he spoke as a liberal "who wants to give freedom and justice to our country."

On the vote, Wherry, Capehart, and Jenner were joined by Bridges (R-NH), Knowland (R-Cal), and Langer (R-ND).

Vandenberg argued for the nomination principally on the ground that it would promote "continuity" in U. S. foreign policy, but paid personal tribute to Acheson.

Vega Youth Fatally Shot During Playful Scuffle Over Pistol

AMARILLO, Jan. 18. (AP) — Daniel Edwin Dyer, 18, was wounded fatally at his farm home near Vega last night when a pistol over which he and a friend were playfully scuffling accidentally discharged.

The friend, Donald Dean Wilson, 17, of Hereford, was visiting in the Dyer home when the accident occurred. Young Dyer died in a Vega doctor's office 45 minutes after he was shot. A .22 caliber bullet struck him in the neck.

Inaugural Events

was frigid as it voted, 47 to 44, against exempting tickets to inaugural events from the 20 per cent federal tax. It was the first administration defat in the new Democratic Congress.

Committee To Pay Tax

The tickets have been sold out, with no tax collected. It was guessed unofficially that the tax on parade, inaugural ball and other tickets might be $60,000.

A spokesman for the non-partisan, non-profit inaugural committee said he supposed the committee "will have to pay it—there's no other way."

Nobody was able to say immediately whether the anticipated profit, which was to have gone to charity, would cover the bill.

The committee had thought Congress would, as in past years, approve the exemption. The House did so yesterday.

To Sign Pay Hike Bill

Meantime Mr. Truman signed into law a bill giving federal workers here a holiday on Thursday and Friday, making possible a festive four-day inaugural weekend.

The White House announced that he will sign before tomorrow night the measure raising his own salary by $25,000 and boosting his tax-free expense account by $50,000.

Mr. Truman today polished up a 15-minute inaugural address. It is expected to deal with the nation's foreign policy, with unity at home, and with his domestic legislative program.

No Rest For Trumans

Then he got out the black tie and dinner jacket for dinner with the Truman-Barkley clubs and an off-the-cuff speech. Less well outfitted guests faced a problem. eWashington's stock of for - rent tuxedos and tails are almost exhausted.

This was Mr. Truman's first dive into the advance hordes of perhaps 500,000 visitors who already are jamming hotels and clogging traffic in the capital's flag-decked streets.

From now until Friday night, there's no rest for the first family. But Thursday is the big day. Mr. Truman will take his oath at noon, on two Bibles, in a white-columned platform in front of the capital, within view of 120,000 persons.

Then—the big parade down Pennsylvania avenue to the White House. It will move for 2½ hours between the ranks of an estimated 1,000,000 spectators packed along curbings, window ledges, and in scores of bleacher-style grandstands.

British To Release Jews

The government of Israel expressed regret over the shooting down of five British planes near the Palestine border Jan. 7, but still insisted it was Britain's fault.

Sir Oliver Franks, the British ambassador to the United States, conferred in Washington with Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett. He told reporters later he had "some feeling of optimism" over prospects for a Palestine settlement.

Bevin told the house that Britain has made a concession—agreement to release Jewish immigrants of military age from internment at Cyprus "as soon as the Jews provide transport for them."

These men were interned during Britain's Palestine mandate for trying to enter the Holy Land without certificates. Israel has complained that, since the mandate ended, Britain could claim no valid excuse for holding them further.

Bevin told a questioner he did not ask the Arabs for permission to release the refugees.

Trial Of Reds Protested

4. The Air Force asked Congress for $200,000 000 to enable it to set up a testing range for rockets expected to travel more than 150 miles horizontally.

5. A crowd, estimated by police at 2,000, swarmed to the capitol to button-hole congressmen for civil rights legislation and to protest the trial of 12 Communist party leaders in New York. An organization called the Civil Rights congress sponsored the movement, which it billed as a "freedom crusade.' The Justice department has labeled the Civil Rights congress a subversive organization,

In urging quick action on the bill to raise minimum wages, McCormack said the labor committee should be able to clear the measure with not more than one day's hearings. Republican Leader Martin (Mass.) said, however, that "a bill of this magnitude' should have careful consideration in committee.

More Time Sought

The wage rate would apply to to most businesses dealing in goods or services which cross state lines.

The Senate Labor committee appeared inclined to give top priority to bills authorizing federal aid to education and establishing a national science foundation. After that comes the minimum wage measure according to present time tables

Rep. Spence explained that the reason for the proposed extension of the GOP-sponsored voluntary-agreements anti-inflation act was to give Congress time to study President Truman's broader program. Under the law, industries (such as steel) are allowed to make agreements for the allocation of materials in short supply.

GOP Leads Assault

The export control law lets the government say what can be shipped out of this country.

The Senate's refusal to sanction tax exemption for tickets to inauguration festivities was the administration's first set-back in the new Congress. Republicans led the assault on the bill, and got some Democratic help in the voting.

Before the final vote, Senator McCarthy (R-Wis) tried unsuccessfully to hook on an amendment exempting cook stoves and baby oil from excise taxes. He told the Senate the bill took the position that no taxable luxury was involved when a couple spent $20 for two tickets to the inaugural ball.

"But it's a taxable luxury if a mother buys some oil to put on baby's bottom," complained the bachelor senator.

He described how the four-year-old international organization has been an influence on elimination of the isolationist attitude among young men of the world and told of his visits with Jaycees in Canada, England, France, Belgium, Austria, Occupied Germany, Mexico, Central America, Costa Rica, various South American countries, New Zealand and the Phillippines. Jaycee work has been started in Korea, China and in Japan, he said.

Activities of the Brownfield organization were outlined briefly by Kendricks prior to Cole's talk Projects during the past year included retirement of indebtedness against a livestock show barn sponsoring of a calf show, a regional TAAF boxing tournament, annual rodeo, Christmas residence and business decorations contest, annual Christmas party, pay-your-poll-tax campaign, and numerous other activities.

Texans In Capital

make an old home week out of the occasion.

From tonight on through Thursday, Texans here for the Truman-Barkley to-do will be as busy as a one-armed paperhanger with the itch.

Wednesday morning, the Texas congressional delegation will be hosts at a come-one-come-all coffee and doughnuts party in Speaker Rayburn's private diningroom in the capitol. A few of the more fortunate will be on hand in the Mayflower hotel's Gold Room Wednesday night for the one official dinner tendered President Truman and Vice-President-elect Barkley and a half-hundred will attend the swank inaugural ball at the National Guard armory on Thursday night. But all will see the inaugural parade; many have coveted seats in front of the Capitol to see the oaths administered to both Truman and Barkley and the whole kit-and-caboodle have seats for the three-hour long inaugural parade which will stretch over five miles of streets on Thursday afternoon.

To Visit With HST

Luckiest of the visiting West Texans are Mr. and Mrs. Arch S. Underwood, of Lubbock. They have accepted an invitation for an informal visit with President and Mrs. Truman on Thursday afternoon, between the close of the actual inauguration ceremonies and the ball, which begins at 10 p. m. Underwood, long a Texas New Deal stalwart, was Mr. Truman's host in Lubbock when the then senator from Missouri spoke in support of the late President Roosevelt's fourth term candidacy in the spring of 1944. Underwood also accompanied the President over part of Texas when Mr. Truman campaigned there by special train in the recent campaign.

Prominent among the Texans at the Clark party were Mrs. Homer Brumley and Bob Thompson, of Hereford; Mr. and Mrs. Amon G. Carter, of Fort Worth; Mrs. Alexander David Surles, sr., of El Paso, widow of the late Army General; Mr. and Mrs. Tom C. Gooch, Mr and Mrs. Frank Wozencraft and Harry Seay, of Dallas; Texas Democratic National Committeeman Wright Morrow, of Houston; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Boyd—he's president of the National Petroleum Institute — of Teague; and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mayborn, of Temple.

Texans stopping at the Mayflower hotel—and they are many—were among the curious in the lobby shortly before 7 o'clock as numerous high government officials — including President Truman, and Senator Barkley—made their entrance on their way to a dinner party. In the group also were Speaker Rayburn, Senator and Mrs. Connally and Senator and Mrs. Johnson; and Rep. and Mrs. Bob Poage, of Waco.

All entrances to the hotel except two were blocked during a 30-minute period, during which time heavy police and secret service details were on duty.

Farm Produce Costs Drop Five Per Cent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP)—A drop of slightly more than five per cent in the retail cost of the family "market basket" of farm products in the last six months was reported by the Agriculture department today

By "market basket the department means an amount of farm food products equal to the average annual purchase by a family of three average consumers in the 1935-39 period.

The average retail cost of a year's supply of these products for such a family was $708 last July, and the highest on record. The cost was reported less than $675 by the end of the year.

he emphasizes that rain was the most likely outlook on the "advanced forecast."

A new storm was reported forming in the north Pacific but it had not reached a stage before last night's forecast to judge with any accuracy its strength or ultimate destination.

Amarillo Area Hit

Reports to The Associated Press last night on the storm said that high winds which had been expected failed to materialize. An Amarillo report said it had" fairly well fizzled out."

"The character of the front has changed completely," the Dallas Weather bureau said. "There will be low temperatures, but that's all."

The front began moving in at the end of a day which had brought a surprise thaw—a thaw that had made great progress against ice and snow which had covered much of the state.

The thaw came after icy conditions had forced inauguration indoors at Austin and slowed travel to a crawl over most of the state.

Snow Covered Wide Area

Two-thirds of the state had waked Tuesday to find the countryside sheathed in ice, sleet, or snow. But skies cleared rapidly and by 9 a. m. icicles started dropping and ice coating turned to slush.

The highest temperature in the state Tuesday was 60 degrees, registered at both Laredo and Alice. The lowest maximum was a 32 at Clarendon.

Low temperatures ranging from the 10 degrees expected at Amarillo to 20 degrees were forecast in the Panhandle and South Plains and 20 to 30 degrees elsewhere in West Texas. In East Texas the forecast was for lows of 18 to 25 degrees in the northwest and 25 to 32 in the northeast and west central portions Tuesday night.

At least 10 highway deaths occurred during the bad spell which began last Sunday. A large number of persons were injured.

Roads were open in all directions from Amarillo Tuesday night, but highways 66 and 287 southeast and east of that city were hazardous.

The State Highway department sent three big snow plows to Groom, Texas, Tuesday as high winds whipped a six-inch snow in drifts on the highway. Roads to the north of Amarillo were in good condition, since snowfall was light in that area.

Public schools in San Angelo, just recovering from last week's ice storm, were closed because of the new ice conditions. Telephone circuits to that city went out again for a time. Skies were clear there Tuesday, however, and traffic moved.

'Sneak' Blizzard Slams Midwest

Chicago by tonight, bringing the area its first sub-zero weather of the winter.

The cold wave hit in western Montana Tuesday morning and spread eastward. The mercury dropped to 14 degrees below zero at Butte.

The temperature was expected to dip to 25 degrees below zero in Minnesota by today.

The cold weather along the Pacific seaboard continued as a threat to the California citrus crop.

Train Snowed In

Gordon, Neb., snowbound by blizzards early in January, had its first train in 15 days—and the train couldn't leave.

Equipped with a snowplow, it did not have sufficient fuel to continue eastward, and there are no facilities at Gordon for turning a train around. Fresh snow reblocked the newly cleared tracks and all highways serving Gordon.

(Before the latest blizzard struck, a cold air mass moved south through the Rocky mountain area and into New Mexico where it toppled the mercury to 13 below zero at Roswell, the International News Service reported.

(A large group of motorists stranded at Lordsburg, N. M., by a weekend snowstorm were given shelter and food Tuesday by a National Guard unit.

(In Utah, the National Guard air force joined in the fight to get relief to thousands of snowbound sheep on rangelands in the western part of the state. Baled hay was placed aboard a C-47 transport plane at Salt Lake City to be scattered to marooned herds.)

Rescue Armadas Comb Atlantic For Missing British Airliner

HAMILTON Bermuda, Jan. 18 (AP)—Air and sea rescue armadas combed the Atlantic today for a British airliner missing since yesterday with 20 aboard.

The craft, the British South American airways Tudor Ariel, disappeared on a five-hour, 1,000-mile flight from Bermuda to Kingston, Jamaica. She sent no SOS and gave no other hint of trouble.

Aboard the Ariel, according to the line's records, were 13 passengers and a crew of seven. The line said all but three passengers were British. Its original report said 29 were aboard, but the line's officials learned later that this was erroneous.

Texas Solons Satisfied With House Committee Assignments

By TEX EASLEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Texas House members expressed keen satisfaction with their committee assignments for the 81st Congress.

None got a chairmanship, but most are on powerful committees and several are near the top of the seniority ladder.

Those affected by House Democratic caucus action on new assignments, yesterday and those they received are:

Reps. Fisher, Armed Services, Wilson, Judiciary; Lyle, Rules; Regan, Public Lands; Bentsen, Public Lands; Thornberry, Post Office and Civil Service.

Formal election, or ratification, by the entire House membership is taken for granted.

Important Posts Drawn

Last week Rep. Combs was elected to the Ways and Means committee, which serves as the committee on committees for the Democrats and made up the slate for other committees.

Biggest development so far as Texas is concerned is the placing of Regan and Bentsen on the Public Lands committee, and Lyle on Rules. Not in years has the state had a man on either.

Particular importance is attached by the delegation to the gaining of representation on Public Lands because this group handles reclamation projects, and Texas is fast turning to reclamation works in the conservation of its water resources.

Fisher takes a spot on the House Armed Services committee surrendered by Texas' new senator, Lyndon B. Johnson.

Big Air Force Favored

"I am in favor of accomplishing a 70-group Air Force as soon as possible," Fisher said at a press conference Combs arranged, and at which all the Texans getting new committee assignments were present.

Wilson's selection to serve on Judiciary places two Texans on that committee, which handles bills concerning the federal courts, immigration statutes, civil rights legislation, tidelands ownership bills and other matters.

Rep. Gossett is the other Texas member. He is the author of bills to give the states clear title to their submerged coastal lands, and to change the electoral college system so that electors are divided in the exact proportion as the popular vote.

Wilson Airs Views

Wilson told newsmen he strongly favors Gossett's tidelands legislation and is "inclined to be for the' electoral college bill.

He said he would probably favor legislation to permit more displaced persons to enter the United States from Europe, but would want every precaution taken to keep out those with subversive leanings.

Hailing from districts along the Rio Grande, from Brownsville to El Paso, Bentsen and Regan explained how action by the Public Lands committee on which they will serve might affect virtually all sections of Texas.

Water division agreements between states, such as the pending Pecos river compact between Texas and New Mexico, must go through their committee in being ratified by Congress, Regan said.

Bentsen told of a proposed $129,000,000 reclamation project in the Lower Rio Grande valley.

Explaining there is still some division of sentiment in that part of Texas as to whether to supoprt the project, since a large share of its cost will have to be repaid by irrigation farmers, Bentsen said:

"I will be in a position to make the voices of the people in our state heard on this very important problem."

Favor Tidelands For States

The tidelands ownership legislation, in which Texas is so keenly interested because its public schools derive some funds from lease of oil-bearing submerged lands in the Gulf, also might come before the Public Lands committee instead of Judiciary.

Bills might be considered by both groups.

Both Bentsen and Regan take the same position as Gossett and Wilson—that title to the disputed lands should be vested strongly with the states.

The Democratic caucus did not take up special committees. Rep. Patman is slated to be chairman of the Special Small Business Committee when it is organized. He was chairman when the Democrats last controlled Congress.

Bonham's congressman Sam Rayburn does not serve on a committee since he is speaker.

Other Texas House committee assignments include: Armed Services—Kilday. Agriculture—Poage and Worley. Appropriations—Mahon and Thomas. Banking and Currency—Patman. House Administration—Burleson and Regan Merchant Marine and Fisheries—Thompson. Interstate and Foreign Commerce—Beckworth. Education and Labor—Lucas. Veterans Affairs — Teague. Public Works — Pickett. District of Columbia — Teague. Judiciary—Gossett.

Lion Club Members Vote To Lengthen Weekly Luncheons

Members of the Lions club voted at the weekly luncheon session at the Hilton hotel Tuesday to add 15 minutes to the weekly luncheon period, extending the meeting time to 1:15 instead of 1 o'clock as in the past.

The vote came after approval of an amendment to an original proposal set out in a printed ballot extending the time to an hour and a half, or to 1:30 o'clock. The vote was more than three to one in favor of the 15-minute extension.

Discussion brought several counter-proposals and suggestions, among them the belief that too much time is consumed in serving the meal, thus cutting the time allotted for programs.

Proposal Before Board

The time extension proposal had been before the board of directors for some time through suggestions by those who have had charge of programs that time did not allow presentation of a satisfactory program.

J. Wm. Davis, past president of the club, presided during the discussion and balloting, on request by Ruel Martin, club vice president who was in the chair in the absence of Wayne Henly, president.

Warlick Carr, of the Exchange club which is sponsoring the March of Dimes in the county this year, made a brief appeal on behalf of the campaign, saying that the series of epidemics of polio in several parts of the nation during 1948 wiped out all reserves, not only of the National foundation, but of local chapters, and that therefore the need is urgent this year for generous donations to carry on the work.

Dave Tipple was announced as a new member. Invocation was by Judge G. V. Pardue.

Mrs. Truman And Margaret To Keep Busy As Capital Plans Schedule For Inauguration

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18. (U.P.)—Bess Truman and daughter Margaret will follow a schedule this week which makes their recent campaigning days seem like a rest cure.

The climax comes Thursday when they see Mr. Truman sworn in as President of the United States. During the inaugural ceremony on the steps of the U. S. capitol, they will have a brief rest as they sit back as spectators.

To Be With HST

But most of the time they will be at the President's side, greeting thousands of new and old friends during the biggest inaugural celebration in the country's history.

Their first appearance as a family will be Wednesday night when they attend the gala staged by about $10,000,000 worth of movie and theater talent.

Mrs. Truman — and maybe Margaret — will attend the electors' dinner before the gala. For this occasion, the first lady will wear a gown of silk oriental brocade which features red as the predominating color.

The next morning, Mrs. Truman will don a suit of black and grey silk with a matching straw cloth hat, and Margaret will dress in a suit of red gabardine for their appearance at the inaugural ceremonies.

Formal Clothes In Afternoon

Later that day, Mrs. Truman will change to a formal afternoon gown of grey satin and silver lace for the reception at the national gallery of art. The material was designed by Ducharme of Paris.

Margaret will wear black crepe and lace combined with bronze taffeta at the reception.

At least 6,000 of the 11,000 invited are expected to move through the black and white marble floored gallery during the later afternoon.

That night Mrs. Truman, in black panne velvet, and Margaret, in billowing pink tulle, will accompany the President to the inaugural ball where thousands of dancers will glide about the floor to the music of three big-name bands.

There will be other receptions, too, this week. One which the first family will attend will be given on Friday by Treasury Secretary and Mrs. John W. Snyder.

Several embassies also will entertain at receptions on Friday in honor of inaugural visitors. But the first family is expected to be kept busy attending official functions.

Margaret, however, will find time tomorrow to particiuate in a radio broadcast from the White House opening the annual March of Dimes campaign for the benefit of infantile paralysis victims.

PLENTY OF CHEESE

MT. ANGEL, Ore.—(U.P.)— This town of less than 2,000 has more cheese per capita than any other in the nation, the chamber of commerce bragged. In the town's storage plant was 540,000 pounds of cheese, which is manufactured at the rate of 6,000 pounds a day in Mt. Angel.

Escaped Convicts From Retrieve Prison Farm Give Up To Guards

HOUSTON, Jan. 18. (AP) — A story of almost being mangled by a pack of prison-owned bloodhounds and of four days and nights in the Brazos river bottoms without food or cigarettes was told by three escaped convicts Monday afternoon shortly after the three weary felons surrendered to prison guards.

The three convicts escaped from Retrieve state farm last Thursday afternoon.

The penetrating cold and drizzling rain yesterday afternoon finally forced the trio to come out of the heavy brush and surrender to a pair of Retrieve farm guards near Sweeney, about 20 miles west of the Retrieve farm.

Warden I. K. Kelley at Retrieve farm identified the three as Curtis Edwards, 42, serving two years from Tom Green county for theft; Charles E. King, serving two years from Wichita county for theft; and Arthur Pitts, 38, doing five years from Lampasas county for theft.

New Control Keeps Constant Weight On Oil Orilling Bit

DALLAS, Jan. 18. —(U.P.)— A new automatic electronic control has been developed which assures a constant and predetermined weight on a drill bit as it bites through all types of oil-bearing sub-surface, it was announced here yesterday.

C. F. Woods, Dallas manager of the Brown instructions division of Minneapolis - Honeywell Regulator Co., said the system makes use of a strain gauge assembly, a Brown electronic potentiometer which operates as a weight indicator on the drilling bit, and a pneumatic brake which maintains the desired weight.

Several firms in varied segments of the petroleum industry contributed to development of the new control device, it was said.

Dewey's Actions Puzzle GOPs; Plan To Make Talks Indicate He May Not Quit Politics

By JACK BELL
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18. —The strange case of Thomas E. Dewey puzzled Washington Republicans today.

These Republicans said the New York governor isn't acting at all like a man who—twice defeated for the presidency — is getting ready to retire from the political field.

As an instance, they cited the fact that Dewey will make two Lincoln Day banquet speeches. One will be in Washington February 8 and the second in New York, February 12.

Pressure Was Indicated

Dewey's appearance here is the top attraction in the series of party banquets to be held all over the country. In a way, it will square him off once again with President Truman, star performer for the Democrats' Jefferson-Jackson day dinner here February 24.

Some Republicans apparently would have been pleased to try out a new contender instead of the defeated nominee.

But one of those who had a hand in the arrangements said the suggestion from Dewey's friends that the New York governor was the man for this particular speaking spot came in such a way that it might have been embarrassing to pick anyone else.

Dewey's friends replied that, as the nominee, the New York governor remains titular head of the party. It's only fair, they said, to give him the chance to tell the Republicans what went wrong on November 2 and suggest some changes.

Not After Office

Associates contended Dewey is not going to seek office again, but intends to retain an active interest in party affairs.

National Chairman Hugh D. Scott, jr., is listed as one of those who is taking at face value Dewey's assertion shortly after the election that he won't try a third time for the presidential or governor's nomination.

But some Republicans here have been suggesting that the New Yorker hasn't closed the door firmly against the possibility that he might seek a Senate seat in 1950.

That year marks the end of the present term of Senator Robert A. Wagner, Democrat whose ill health has long kept him away from Senate sessions.

Headed Fight On Taft

Whether Dewey has one eye on the Senate or not, he took personal note recently of the unsuccessful effort a group of self-styled liberal Republicans made to overturn the leadership of Senator Robert Taft of Ohio.

Senator Ives of New York, took an active part in Dewey's presidential campaign, quarterbacked the revolt against Taft.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, a member of Dewey's campaign brain trust at Albany, ran against Taft.

Because of these personalities there were some reports that the whole affair was a Dewey battle against Taft, whom the New York governor had defeated for the presidential nomination.

Before the showdown vote came, however, Dewey is known to have called Taft and to have offered to issue a statement that he had no connection with the revolt and, in fact, favored Taft's reelection as policy committee chairman.

Taft, knowing he had his fight won, advised against such a move and it wasn't made.

On the Democratic side, National Chairman J. Howard McGrath called over the weekend for 25,000 party workers to get behind President Truman's program.

McGrath wrote them that "the Truman 'fair deal' is a sound program of progress." He scoffed at Republicans who say it is socialistic and added: "Republican stand-patters have been crying 'socialism" ever since Bryan."

Home Builders Group Opposes New Public Housing Program

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18. (U.P.)—Frank W. Cortwright, executive of the National Association of Home Builders, said today that his group had reaffirmed its stand against a public housing program after considering compromises suggested in a letter from the Dallas association.

He said that 125 representatives of local housing groups who met in New York last Friday had rejected the proposals made by the Dallas Homebuilders association in a letter.

Cortwright said presidents and secretaries representing most of the association's local membership attended the New York meeting.

Rites For Former Lubbock Pastor Set

Funeral services for Rev. William M. Lane, 83, of San Antonio, former pastor of the First Methodist church of Lubbock who was fatally injured Monday in an accident, will be held at 4 p.m. today in Travis Park Methodist church of San Antonio.

District Superintendent Edwin Calhoun of the Methodist church and Dr. Albert P. Shirkey, pastor of the Travis Park Methodist church, will officiate.

Interment is to be in Mission Burial park of San Antonio.

Rev. Lane, a retired minister, died at 8 p. m. Monday in Baptist Memorial hospital of San Antonio of injuries suffered when he was hit by an automobile.

The Associated Press said Rev. Lane was injured at about 8 a. m. Monday when he apparently stumbled into the side of a moving car, impaling himself on the door handle.

Rev. Lane was pastor of the First Methodist church here from 1912 until 1916.

Widow Of East Texas Oil Man Is Sued For $40,000 By Architect

LONGVIEW, Jan. 18.—(U.P.)—A suit for $40,000 filed against Mrs. Rogers Lacy by architect Frank Lloyd Wright has been transferred from Dallas county to 124th district court here, it has been learned.

The petition alleges that the amount sought is the balance due Wright for preliminary drawings for a huge Dallas hotel planned by Mrs. Lacy's late husband, a wealthy East Texas oil man.

Brief Bits Of Local News

Principal addition to the total was a $37,675 permit to New Hope Baptist church, owner, and Joe Telford, contractor, for a new church at 2002 East Ave. B.

Examination schedules for nine-week tests this week at Lubbock Senior High school were announced Tuesday by Supt. R. W. Matthews. Classes which regularly meet at 8 and 9 a. m. daily will have tests today; those meeting at 10 and 11 a. m. daily, on Thursday; and those meeting daily at 12 noon, 1:35 p.m. and 2:40 p. m., Friday.

A. L. Pace, superintendent of New Home school, who suffered a severe heart attack Wednesday, was said to have shown slight improvement in Lubbock Memorial hospital Tuesday night.

According to Mrs. Dora Nell Carroll, director of school cafeterias, applications are now being taken for helpers to work in the cafeteria at the new M. C. Overton elementary school when it is opened January 24. Mothers of students attending the school are preferred by Mrs. Carroll. According to R. P. Swoffard, chairman, elementary principals of the Lubbock Public schools will attend a luncheon Thursday at 12:30 in the Dupre cafeteria. Guests will be secondary school principals, supervisors, and Superintendent R. W. Matthews. At this meeting Miss Dorothy Lomax, director of secondary education, and Ishmael Hill, director of elementary education, will give a report of the curriculum meeting which they attended in Dallas last week.

Veterinarians Are Checked For Possible 'Q' Fever Contact

FORT WORTH, Jan. 18.—(U.P.)—Blood samples of delegates to the Texas state veterinarians conventtion were taken today to determine if veterinarians are possibly involved with "Q" fever.

Dr. E. A. Grist, College Station, said the fever, believed to originate from association with livestock, causes a human being to develop pneumonia.

Dr. K. S. Young, U. S. Public Health service co-ordinate, said the disease is found over the world among cattle, sheep and goats. It can be transmitted through dust, milk, or ticks, he said.

New officers named by the veterinarian association at its session were Dr. R. A. Culpepper, San Antonio, president; Dr. Ty Hardy, Sonora, president-elect; and as vice-presidents Dr. I. B. Boughton, College Station; Dr. J. W. Barton, Temple; and Dr. J. D. Williams, Colorado City. Dr. E. W. Wupperman, Austin, was named treasurer.

Dr. Grist was named official delegate to the American Veterinary Medical association meeting in July at Detroit.

Jester Takes Oath Of Office For New Term

Middle Path Policy Is Pledged By Governor; Ceremony Brief

By DAVE CHEAVENS
Associated Press Staff Writer

AUSTIN, Jan. 18.—Gov. Beauford H. Jester set out today on the second stretch of his "peaples path" in inaugural ceremonies that followed a pattern of brevity and simplicity.

It took less than 30 minutes for a joint session of the House and Senate of the 51st Legislature to install Jester and Lt. Gov. Allan Shivers for their second terms as the state's chief executive officers.

Jester was first elected governor more than two years ago on a program he called the "people's path." Today he put his philosophy of government into these words:

Weather Hits Plans

"In all areas of governmental activity, we must choose the high road and the middle bath between extremes." He had in effect the same thing to say in his first inaugural.

Today's simple ceremony was in sharp contrast to the big blowout witnessed two years ago by more than 30,000 persons.

It was jammed into the hall of the House of Representatives after threatening weather brought cancellation of a parade and an outdoor gathering that had been scheduled for staging at the south front of the capitol. Approximately 1,200 persons — most of them legislators or invited guests— sat or stood in the house chamber.

Jester spoke for 10 minutes. Shivers made his inaugural address in nine.

Jester Asks Special Song

Jester ended his speech on a solemn religious note, asking ministers of all churches in Texas to have Martin Luther's hymn which starts "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God" sung in services Sunday.

He rededicated himself to the service of all people of Texas, warned that states must do their duty if they expect to protect their rights, and urged local governments to face up to their responsibilities to stem what he called the "ominious trend" toward increased federal power.

This last statement brought a burst of applause.

Shivers offered a seven-point program of reorganization of state government which he said should make it the most efficient "biggest business in Texas."

Year-Around Pay Asked

The lieutenant governor said the tendency of the judiciary and executive branches of government to absorb the legislative must be stopped. If state authority is to be protected from federal encroachment, state authority must not encroach on local government, Shivers advised.

He called for a full-time legislature on year around pay, an annual budget, a moderate approach to spending and taxation, a legislative council to function between

Labor Chiefs Study Ramsey Appointment

AUSTIN, Jan. 18. (AP) — Texas labor leaders huddled here today to decide if they will fight Gov. Beauford H. Jester's appointment of a man they asked him not to appoint.

On the way to his second inaugural, the governor named former State Senator Ben Ramsey of San Augustine to succeed Paul Brown of Harlingen as secretary of state.

Labor representatives last month personally appeared before the governor to block the appointment. They argued that Ramsey, author and co-sponsor of labor restrictive laws last session, "would be very obnoxious to the entire membership of organized workers and their families."

Authored Labor Laws

Joe T. Steadham, representing the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, said today: "Our position as labor is the same."

He noted that organized labor must file financial reports with the secretary of state and that such filings can become unduly complicated under an unfriendly secretary.

Steadham said the joint railway labor legislative board in session here would consider whether the senate would be asked to turn down the appointment. Gov. Jester said he would send the appointment to the senate tomorrow for confirmation.

Ramsey, 43-year-old attorney, served in the house of the 42nd and 43rd Legislatures and in the senate of the 47th through 50th Legislatures. Last session he authored the secondary strike law aimed at outlawing sympathy strikes and pushed to final passage in the senate seven other restrictive labor bills authored in the house.

Ramsey did not seek re-election. He was succeeded in this legislature by Ottis Lock of Lufkin.

Four Blasts, One A Mystery, Rock Several Areas In Houston

HOUSTON, Jan. 18. (AP)—Four explosions, one a complete mystery, rocked various sections of Houston early today.

The most damaging of the blasts partially wrecked the warehouse of the Houston Trucking Co. It occurred from an nudertermined cause at 2 a.m. Three dump trucks and truck supplies were destroyed. The loss was estimated at $40,000.

About the same hour a new two-room house in the east end was torn apart by a blast believed to have been caused by a leaking gas line.

Homes and buildings in the area of the Federal Steel Products corp. were shaken at 7 a.m., when a carbide generator exploded. It did much damage, but 95 employes on the premises escaped injury.

Residents of the section northwest of the city limits reported an explosion at 7:05 a.m., but the sheriff's department was unable to trace it.

Overton Building To Be Opened Monday

Plans To Open New Schools Announced

A letter from Superintendent R. W. Matthews to parents of bus students in Chris Harwell school Tuesday announced plans for the opening of the new M. C. Overton elementary school on Monday morning, January 24. The letter also announced that the new P. F. Brown elementary school is to be opened about February 15.

The letter explains the transfer of bus students who have been attending Chris Harwell school to the two new elementary schools which will make it possible to place all students in the south part of Lubbock on full day schedules after the Brown school is opened, Matthews said.

Changes Are Explained

At the same time R. Bean school will go to the Overton school, beginning next Monday, and that all students attending Brown school in the temporary building will be on half day schedule until the new building is completed. Changes are being made at the first of the second semester so that changes during the semester may be avoided, Matthews explained.

The letter received by parents of bus students attending Chris Harwell school says, "For months we have looked forward to the time when all students of this area could be taken off of the half-day session and at the same time reduce the number in the classes. We expected to meet this challenge January 24, but we can meet it only in part for a few weeks. About February 15 we will be able to meet our full obligation."

Junior Highs On Full Day

The remainder of the letter gives bus numbers and routes of students as of January 24, and says further, "The above change is being made to avoid placing four more rooms on half-day session at Chris Harwell and to reduce the number of pupils in each classroom to normal size. The school board now has before it a proposal to add four more classrooms to Chris Harwell. When this addition is completed, pupils desiring to return to Chris Harwell may do so."

When the new J. T. Hutchinson Junior High school was opened on January 3, junior high students in the city all went on full day schedule. A new addition soon to be completed to Dunbar school will mean that only primary students in the negro school will be on half-day schedule.

The new building program of the schools calls for elementary schools in the north and east sections of the school district, and also an additional negro school and these new buildings mean that students on half-day sessions in that part of town may attend school on a full day schedule, Matthews said.

Local Club To Hear Brazilian

Described as "one of the most dynamic and personable platform speakers who ever graced a rostrum in the Western hemisphere," Dr. Oscar Machado, president of Porto Alegre institute, in Porto Alegre, Brazil, is to address the Rotary club at the regular noon luncheon today at the Hilton hotel, it was announced by club officials Tuesday.

The institute, a Methodist college for men founded in the capital city of the Brazilian state of Rio Grande do Sul by Bishop John M. Moore of Dallas, in 1919, is known in the United States as "Little S. M. U." It is staffed largely by graduates of Southern Methodist university at Dallas.

Gradue Of S. M. U.

Dr. Machado, also a graduate of S. M. U., has been president of Porto Alegre for 11 years. He succeeded J. Earl Moreland, the college's first leader and now president of Randolph-Macon college, Ashland, Va., and is the first native Brazilian named head of an American sponsored school there.

Largely educated in the United States, Dr. Machado secured his A. B. degree from Birmingham-Southern college at Birmingham in 1925; took a B. D. degree from S. M. U. in 1927, and an LL.D (honorary) from S. M. U. in 1947. His fraternity connections were Pi Gamma Mu, national social science honor fraternity; and Kappa Phi Kappa, national education fraternity.

He taught in Methodist institutions in Brazil from 1927 to 1934, when he became Porto Alegre president; has been head of the department of educational psychology, University of Rio Grande do Sul, since 1942; was visiting professor at S. M. U. in the spring of 1946 and that summer lectured under the Speakers Bureau of the Methodist church. He was visiting professor at Emory university in Atlanta in the fall of 1946.

Among other activities, he is past president of the General

Lubbock Gives $1.39 Per Capita During Community Chest Drive

The average amount per capita raised in the Community Chest drive which closed recently in Lubbock was approximately $1.39 and that figure is 90 cents less than the average amount raised per capita in 1,010 cities in the United States in Community Chest campaigns, study of data in the Community Chest office revealed.

The average goal in the 1,010 cities for which figures were available was $2.41 per capita and the average amount raised was $2.29 per capita in the campaigns conducted for the 1948 budget. Those figures represent most of the cities which have Community Chests, since number of Chests known to exist is 1,060.

In Lubbock's campaign for funds for the 1949 budget, the goal was $1.62 per capita and the amount raised was $1.39 per capita, based on an estimated 60,000 population. In addition to having a smaller goal, Lubbock fell short of reaching its goal by a larger percentage, the figures indicated.

In 1948 figures for the 1,010 cities were used, because 1949 figures are not yet available.

Those figures were compiled following Tuesday morning's annual membership meeting of the Community Chest, in which discussion developed of Lubbock's standing as compared to national averages. Lubbock fell short of its goal by more than $13,000, raising $83,670.83, toward a goal of $97,500.

In the meeting Tuesday morning, Earl E. Kerr, Community Chest manager, said efforts "are just getting started" and that the Community Chest has an educational job before it.

Chas. E. Maedgen, jr., Community Chest president, presided at the meeting.

Five members-at-large of the board of directors were elected from a ballot of 10 candidates nominated by two committees.

Those elected were Charles Bacon, Newton Walton, Retha R. Martin, Wyatt L. Hester and A. B. Watkins.

No decision was made on proration of funds received. A meeting of the executive committee of the Chest and of representatives of the six agencies which participate in Community Chest funds is to be called soon to discuss the plan of agency disbursements for the coming year, due to failure of the Chest to meet the budget, said Maedgen.

Approximately 15 Chest members attended the meeting, bad weather probably keeping some of the members away. Maedgen said, that, "those here have a definite responsibility because you represent the city of Lubbock."

Dispirited Bidding Holds Down Prices At Denver Stock Show

DENVER, Jan. 18. (INS) —Signs of changing economic conditions came into sharp focus at the national western stock show in Denver today.

There was evidence, as the show went into its fifth day, that the lush war years are a thing of the past. Stock growers and ranchers no longer are shoving out vast stacks of free and easy greenbacks for prize bulls or blooded horses.

Bidding Too Slow

Bidding in the auction ring was slow all along the line and any transactions of $50,000 or more for a single animal seemed definitely unlikely, perhaps an indication of a "return to normalcy."

Despite the drop from prices paid last year, most sales were at better than market standards, and in keeping with the high quality of stock at the 43rd annual show.

The first 25 heifers offered at the annual hereford sale today crossed the block at an average of $1,025. A best bid of $2,000 was brought by Lady Skylark I, consigned by Trail's End ranch at Hillsdale, Colo., and purchased by Switzer & Field, of Gunnison, Colo.

Average for the first ten sold dropped $163 below the over-all average paid for females at the 1948 show.

Prices "Fairly Good"

John T. Cain III, stock show manager, said the sale was bringing "fairly good" prices but "bidding is dispirited."

The manager of one of the largest cattle ranches in the west had this to say: "Don't let these prices fool you. Good range conditions will bring competition among feeders.

"This, plus the fact that many ranchers have cut down on the size of their herds, will probably make the price you pay for a beefsteak higher than ever by summer."

Twelve hereford ranch bulls sold earlier brought a top of $5,000—from R. H. Hutchinson of New Zealand—and a total price of $30,000.

Polish Peasants Tighten Belts To Ship Food To Hungry Britain

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
Associated Press Staff Writer

The Marshall plan countries are beginning to tap eastern Europe's food resources, which are vital to western recovery.

Poland's rapid postwar economic comeback has been a notable fact of the European picture for some time. But one still looks on with wonder as one of the worst devastated areas begins shipping food to Great Britain whose rations are still on a war basis.

Britain To Pay Heavily

Under their new trade agreement, involving some half billion dollars worth of goods over a five-year period, Poland will ship Britain eggs, bacon, lard, butter and poultry, and some grain to the British-American occupation zone in Germany. The balance of shipments will consist mostly of timber.

What sort of business is this, when the scraggy peasants of eastern Europe can share their food with mighty Britain? Is the Kremlin getting softening of the head, to let its satellites help the Marshall plan at the one point where it admittedly needed eastern help the most?

Not quite. The British will pay heavily. They will send in return, rubber, oil, tires, tractors, farm tools, machinery and other capital investment goods. With them Poland will produce more, of which Russia will get the largest share.

The ink was hardly dry on the Anglo-Polish agreement when Russia announced that she and Poland would exchange 35 per cent more this year than originally contemplated under their own billion dollar five-year agreement.

Russia agrees to pay in manufactured goods and raw materials for Poland's coal, rolling stock, textiles, sugar, etc. But Russia has a neat trick for dealing with her satellites, fixing prices, exchange rates and stock in producing companies so that she practically gets her imports for nothing.

Poland, having lost half her territory to Russia, has no option. She must dance to the Kremlin tune. Otherwise she stands to lose the Silesian territory won from Germany, with its well-balanced industrial and agricultural economy.

But does the Russian sphere have food which it can afford to export, even for the sake of receiving machinery?

It does not, but under totalitarian dictatorship, where the peasant cannot vote according to the dictates of his pinched belt, it doesn't matter. Highly industrialized Czechoslovakia can go hungry — everybody except the pampered bureaucrats can go hungry — so long as the Communist "plan" goes forward.

Russian policy is to fight the Marshall plan to keep Europe in a political stir, and to industrialize until she is strong enough to take advantage of that stir.

Officers Alerted For Seminole Burglars

A minimum of violations were reported to law enforcement agencies Monday, but officials had been alerted to be on the lookout for suspicious persons who may have been those responsible for the Monday night burglary of a Seminole grocery store.

Sheriff Robert McReynolds advised the police shortwave transmission station here that approximately $2,000 in money and checks was lost when a three-by-four foot safe was removed in the night from Alexander grocery there.

McReynolds said approximately $600 of the loss was in currency and "change," about equally divided.

In addition, he said, four or five check books that had been printed for the grocery by the First State bank of Seminole were taken.

Some of those checks may be forged and distributed eventually, officials were advised. Merchants should be cautioned, the broadcasts said inferentially.

Bill Rogers, a Texas ranger stationed in Lamesa, went to Seminole to assist in the investigation.

Slaton officials reported that a 1941 Ford coupe, green in color and bearing license AP 3092, had been stolen there about 8 o'clock last night.

Levelland Votes For Home Rule

LEVELLAND, Jan. 18 (Special)—Voters here today approved the proposed Home Rule charter form of city government by four to one over the present city commission form of city government.

A total of 200 votes were cast in the special election, which was conducted in the office of the city secretary in the City hall. Of the total vote, 160 favored the proposed new form of city government, while 40 opposed it.

The old city commission form of city government operated with a mayor and two city commissioners, whereas the Home Rule charter form will operate with a mayor and two additional city commissioners.

Setup Is Explained

It was pointed out here tonight that under the new system, the city will be allowed more power as to law making. The city commission form of government was limited by the state laws as to the number and scope of ordinances and laws it could pass.

It also was pointed out that under the new system, the city's credit rating will be extended, since the tax rate allowable under the Home Rule charter is $2.50 as compared with the $1.50 allowable under the old form of city government. Even though the city of Levelland may not choose to raise its tax rates to the full $2.50, the increased maximum tax rate will strengthen the city's credit rating.

The new form of city government is expected to be put into operation in the immediate future. Ray Watson will continue as mayor, and Homer Johnson and Kenneth Harper will continue as city commissioners. Two additional commissioners are to be appointed. All will serve until the regular election the first Tuesday in April.

Election officials were G. H. Tubb and L. Sherrod.

annual legislative sessions, an increase from two to four years in the tenure of elective and appointed state officials.

The legislature's chief business today was to install Jester and Shivers. After the inauguration, it adjourned until tomorrow.

Hall Is Packed

The hall of the House was packed 30 minutes before the ceremony started. House Speaker Durwood Manford presided and joined Senator Kyle Vick, senate president pro tempore, in declaring the houses were in session to inaugurate a governor and a lieutenant governor.

There were no flowers and few flourishes as the inaugural wheeled through a tight timetable geared to fit a radio broadcast.

Seated on the rostrum were the governor, his mother, 88-year-old Mrs. George T. Jester of Corsicana, and his wife. Also on the front row were Shivers, the officiating high court judges, and Vincente Sanchez-Gavito, personal representative of Miguel Aleman, president of Mexico.

Mrs. Shivers sat directly back of her husband. Pat M. Neff of Waco was the only former governor present. Other high state officials and court judges were grouped around the rostrum.

Dr. W. R. White, president of Baylor university, prayed in his invocation that governmental leaders be given wisdom and constructive intelligence for their tasks.

The serious business of the inaugural was followed by a whirl of parties.

First was the reception by the citizens of Austin for the governor, lieutenant governor, state officials and members of the legislature.

This was followed by the governor's reception for the public in the capitol rotunda, and five separate inaugural balls—all with the governor and his party as official guests.

With a Texas background, Dr. Machado is typically Texan, boasting that Porto Alegre is one of the five largest cities in Brazil and the most important city in southern Brazil. It is the capital of the state of Rio Grande do Sul, and the state, he said, is to Brazil what Texas is to the United States.

He said that "we have our plains, our gauchos, our cattle, and a wonderful and unique spirit which makes us conspicuous in any other state of the union," adding that "we have 21 states, but here we talk louder, think clearer, fight harder, and love more intensely than anywhere else in the country."

HOME RULE PLAN

Maybe It's A Start

MOST Texans will be disposed to keep an open mind until they know more about a proposed constitutional amendment under which individual counties would be empowered to adopt a chartered home rule form of government.

A copy of the suggested amendment was received by the Editor recently from W. E. Benton in the Southern Methodist university Department of Government, in Dallas.

Reasons why the plan as proposed might be beneficial are not readily apparent. Under provisions of the amendment, counties apparently would continue to operate very much as they do now. Unless there are arguments for the plan which have not been presented, the amendment would accomplish little.

However, it might suggest the though of further actions which would be constructive. If it made provisions for consolidations of town and county governments so as to eliminate duplicating expenses and functions, it would have much to commend it. Or, if it proposed a method for consolidating some of the counties in Texas, it would provoke some widespread thinking. In its present form, the amendment does not touch upon either of these possibilities of governmental improvements.

The first impression of the suggested amendment is likely to be that it is less interesting because of what it proposes than because of other possibilities it might suggest or re-emphasize. It could be one of those tiny acorns from which a mighty oak conceivably could grow.

Mechanical Garage

ANOTHER evidence of growing awareness of adequate parking space as one of the most serious traffic problems is a mechanical garage designed by Virgil C. Bowser, an inventor residing in a Washington, D.C., suburb.

Mr. Bowser has been demonstrating in Washington a model of an eight-story garage building served by automatic elevators and cranes which would be used to simplify and speed the movement of cars in and out of parking spaces in the structure. George Young of Lubbock, sent us newspaper clippings explaining the plan.

The idea of multi-story building devoted exclusively to parking is not new. Numerous cities, including Washington, have them. But, in practically all, ramps are used to move cars under their own power to and from parking spaces above and below street levels. Mr. Bowser contends the elevator principle would require much less space than ramps, would require less manpower and would eliminate the hazards created by the movement of any vehicle up or down an incline.

Mr. Bowser's theorizing may or may not be sound. That is a matter for qualified and informed experts to pass upon. But it is significant that persons of inventive minds are applying their attention to this problem.

If they fail to come up with something which will help the situation greatly, it will be the first time American ingenuity has been stumped completely by any problem it has chosen to tackle.

Beware Of Romance

By ROBERTA COURTLAND
Distributed By NEA Service, Inc.

(THE STORY: When sixteen-year-old Merry Carson learns that her dashing father, Kin, has asked her selfish mother, Susan, for a divorce, her whole world turns topsy-turvy. Kin leaves home and Susan goes to pieces. Aunt Jane comes to look after things. The doctor tells Merry her mother needs a change and suggests they take her to St. Vincent's, an inland resort.)

IN the next few days, while arrangements were made to close the big house, the servants given a month's vacation on double pay to compensate for lack of notice, and Andrew, the chauffeur, and his wife, Lizzie, the cook, alerted that they were to go to St. Vincent's, Merry went about in a daze. She was constantly harrassed and terrified by her mother's condition. Susan complained of the pain in her chest, and almost had to be forced to take the tablets Dr. Dickson had left to be used to relieve the pain. Half an hour after she had been prevailed upon to take the tablets, she complained of violent nausea and became hysterical, pleading only to be allowed to die.

At midnight one night Merry awoke to hear her mother groaning, and ran down in frantic terror to telephone Dr. Dickson that her mother was dying. Dr. Dickson's voice came, slightly weary as though he had just been awakened from a sound sleep.

"Merry," he said sternly, "stop that and listen to me. The white tablets that I left to relieve that pain in your mother's chest could not possibly cause nausea. I'm going to let you in on a secret that you must promise me not to tell her. We have to use psychology on her, and I may have to use this ruse again. Do you understand?"

"But she's so desperately ill, Dr. Dick—she's suffering." It was a small, frightened wail.

"Merry, the tablets are nothing in the world but plain, pure aspirin!" said Dr. Dickson, and Merry gasped and sat very still. "And listen to me child: if aspirin relieves the pain in her chest then it's not much of a pain. Your mother is in a very neurotic condition, and because she believes there is something terribly wrong, she is terrified of every imaginable thing."

Comforted by his calm matter-of-factness, Merry pushed her frightened young heart out of her throat and down where it belonged and drew a long breath. And Dr. Dickson chuckled dryly.

"Do you know what your mother really needs, Merry, more than anything else in the world?" he asked. Merry stammered a faint negative. "She needs to get out, buy herself a silly hat or two and some snappy clothes, and have her hair cut and permanently waved and get a new interest in life. You and that perfectly swell old girl, Aunt Jane, must see to that as soon as you get to St. Vincents. Promise?"

Merry managed a small, treulous laugh.

"I'll promise to try, Dr. Dick," she said, and hung up.

BACK upstairs Aunt Jane had propped Susan up in bed. Susan was sobbing, her eyes sick and sunk in her head.

"If he doesn't come soon, Merry, I can't make it," she whispered piteously.

"He isn't coming, Mother."

The shock of that, the anger and outrage, jerked Susan from her illness for a moment. She sat bolt upright in bed.

"What? After all the years that he has been our family physician, now when I need him so terribly—when I may have a heart attack at any moment—"

Aunt Jane stood up, a tall, commanding figure in her ancient bathrobe.

"Susan Carson, for two pins I'd turn you across my knee and whale the livin' daylights out of you," she stormed. "Heart attack, my eye! Of all the darned fools—Susan, all in this world you need is a little common sense; a few cockeyed 'new look' clothes; an interest in life."

"Why," marveled Merry, startled, "that's almost exactly what Dr. Dick said."

Susan stared from one to the other and then her face grew pinched and almost ugly and her eyes narrowed. She collapsed on her pillows and said faintly, sadly, "I'm so sorry I've been so much trouble to you both. Please go to bed and get some sleep. I'll be all right." She turned her ravaged face against her pillow and her shoulders shook with sobs.

Merry, stricken, stooped over her, sobbing. But Aunt Jane caught Merry by the shoulders, marched her firmly out of the room and closed the door.

"Now, m. girl, you march yourself straight to bed, and I don't want to hear another peep out of you until morning," she said sternly. "I'll sit up with Susan. I am a lot better able to cope with her than you are. People indulging for the first time in a nervous breakdown really go the whole way, don't they? I've known Susan since she was 5 years old a little exquisite doll of a child, pretty as a picture on a seed-store catalog. And when she didn't get what she wanted, she flung herself down on the floor, pounded her feet and held her breath until she was purple scaring her poor mother into fits."

Merry shivered at this quite unexpected picture of her gentle, ladylike mother who was such an avid church worker, such a devoted housewife, such a loving mother. But it was no more alarming picture than the one of her mother as she had just seen her. At last she crept away to her room, to lie wide eyed staring into the darkness, frightened and shaken to the very depths of her being.

Looking At Life - - By Erich Brandeis

WHAT is a cuckoopint?

Would you believe it? I have lived a half century without knowing what a cuckoopint it.

And I would probably have finished my earthly existence without ever finding out, if weren't for crossword puzzles.

BRANDIES

Furthermore you would probably never have known what the meaning of cuckoopint is if I weren't such an ardent crossword puzzle fan, and if one of my readers had not offered to bet me that I could not write a column about the dictionary.

If you are a crossword puzzle fan, or rather fanatic, as I am, you and your dictionary become inseparable.

My doctor asked me a few days ago whether I had any hobbies.

"Crossword puzzles," I replied without a moment's hesitation. "I do regular puzzles and acrostics and double-acrostics. I do puns and anagrams and ever other kind of puzzle I can lay my hands on."

"You call that a hobby?" my doctor queried. "Sounds more like a disease to me."

Well, my crossword puzzle told me to find a four-letter word which means "cuckoopint."

So I looked it up.

"cuck'oo-pint' n. A European arum (Arum maculatum) with erect spathe and short purple spadix."

There you are. That's what a cuckoopint is.

An arum. I know it is an arum, not just because the dictionary said so, but because it fitted that four-letter space in the crossword puzzle and made the rest of the thing easy.

Of course, I don't know yet what an arum is, or a spathe, or a spadix.

But one of these days I am going to find out.

IN the meantime, however, I realized what a wonderful adventure a dictionary can be and how little I know about my own language and the world in general.

For instance, right above cuckoopint I found the word "cuckooflower".

What kind of a flower is a cuckooflower?

It isn't a flower at all. It is a — — — —. No, I am not going to tell you. Why spoil your fun?

And directly under "cuckoopint" appeared cuckoo spit. Do you know? I didn't.

I looked a little further.

My dictionary has 1275 pages.

The above mentioned words appear on page 245.

There are 59 definitions on that one page. Of 20 of them I didn't know the meaning!

And I am a college man who is supposed to have a better than average knowledge of English!

Let me give you just a few more from that same page: Cryptoclastic. Ctenophore. Cubature. Cucking stool. Cuculiform. Cucumber tree.

I guess my reader was right. You can't write a column about the dictionary.

It would take a library to do it justice.

ON SOCIAL PROGRAM

Slowdown Is Seen

By RAY TUCKER
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Although President Truman highlighted his social welfare promises and pledges in his three Congressional message on the State of the Union, economic conditions and the budget, the inside fact is that he intends to proceed slowly and cautiously with his program of federal aid to the nation's schools, hospitals, health insurance, new housing and additional community facilities.

TUCKER

In fact it is estimated that federal expenditures on the welfare front will not total more than $1,000,000,000 for the first two years, and probably less in view of Congresional plans to trim his proposal for 1,000,000 low-cost housing units in seven years to the 500,000 in five years provided in the Taft-Ellender-Wagner Act, which passed the Senate in the last session but bogged down in the House. It is doubtful if the first year cost for housing will exceed $100,000,000.

EDUCATIONAL: The educational scheme advanced by Mr. Truman could run as high as $300,000,000 in the first year, but it won't. It will require almost a year to draw up and approve blueprints for new schools.

It will take almost the same time to select the high school students qualified for the proposed scholarships that will give them at least two years in a junior college. The only money that can be paid out quickly by Uncle Sam will be for increases in teachers' salaries.

The government's cost of financing any prepaid health insurance plan will be about $20,000,000 annually, which will go for administrative expenses only. The actual burden will fall on individuals through a withholding of funds from their pay roll tax.

SUPPORT: Mr. Truman contemplates that this withholding money shall begin at one-half of one per cent, eventually increasing to two per cent, if necessary. But it is doubtful if the maximum will ever go beyond one per cent, if the experience of Social Security is any criterion.

In view of accusations that these social welfare proposals mark the establishment of a "socialistic" state, Mr. Truman's aides point out that they have had the support of Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, and that the housing program was approved by the Republican Senate of the 80th. Congress.

DISAPPOINTMENT: Indeed, a careful study of the three Truman messages by advocates of a far-reaching extension of federal activity in the social welfare field has given disappointment to the men and women who welcomed him as a more devoted friend of their ideals than Franklin D. Roosevelt.

They are almost as sore as the smarter labor leaders, who recognize that his proposed substitute for the Taft-Hartley Act will be for them an ill-smelling legislative rose—with thorns.

Although favoring federal aid to education, Mr. Truman does not want to rush blindly into this field. He asked that a program for "aid to elementary and secondary education be initiated," implying that it would be an experimental undertaking. He also proposed a beforehand "study" of the need for additional educational facilities before taking any definite action.

RIVAL: Both President Truman and Professor Edwin G. Nourse, who wrote the economic report on which the Chief Executive based his financial and legislative program, recognize that rival pressures on the budget—rearmament, foreign aid and high prices for construction of schools, hospitals, community centers etc.—may force a sharp curtailment of the social welfare program.

Although their remarks on this issue have escoped general notice, they have been underlined by the settlement house groups which supportd him because of his campaign enthusiasm for their demands. Here is a passage in Mr. Truman's economic report which they do not relish:

BALANCE: "We must pursue affirmative programs for housing and health, for education and resource development. Yet the fight against inflation prevents us from undertaking these long-range programs with the speed and on the scale that would otherwise be desirable . . I have sought to reconcile these objectives in a way that strikes the safest balance."

It is no wonder that Capitol Hill conservatives, who regard these proposals as "socialistic," now say that "President Truman's campaign bark was worse than his legislative bite."

IMMEDIATE: Professor Nourse, who heads the President's Council of Economic Advisers, and who wrote several sections of the Chief Executive's messages, was even more ruthless in deprecating immediate inauguration of these social welfare schemes. He placed them in a category alongside W.P.A. and P.W.A. projects, to be undertaken only when and if the government must pour out fresh money in order to stave off a recession or depression.

"In schools, housing, health and community facilities, resource development, transportation and other fields," he concluded, "there are enormous discrepancies between the work now being done and the needs of a growing economy.

"Advance planning on all these fronts should go forward in larger magnitudes than present programs can be pushed. With careful timing these programs should be stepped up sufficiently so that adjustments in costs, prices and profits can be made on a strong underpinning which prevents adjustments from turning into a downswing."

In other words, as of the immediate future, fulfillment of Mr. Truman's campaign pledges along this line is so much "pie in the sky."

"The meat scarcity problem in this country is not due to a shortage of meat, but to a surplus of people," says a paragrapher. It's a problem that would be solved quickly by cannibals.

It isn't fair to blame the voter for the poor administration of governmental affairs. His choice of officeholders is necessarily limited to the kind of persons who run for office.

Overheard: "One of the biggest drawbacks to living in this world is having to put up with people."

When a candidate says he really doesn't want to hold office, but is willing to sacrifice himself for the good of the people, we use our vote and influence to try to keep him from making a martyr of himself.

"From which side should a cow be milked?" —From quiz column. Offhand, we'd say from the outside.

No newspaper writer would be in the least surprised to wake up on resurrection morning and find a typographical error in the inscription on his tombstone.

Believe It Or Not - - By Robert Ripley

IN BATTLE OVER RIGHTS

States Also Have Obligations

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON. — Former Governor Ellis Arnall of Georgia often made the point, when the question was raised about "restoring" States' Rights, that it was not a matter of "restoring" rights but of the states fulfilling obligations under the rights they already had, which were plentiful, to meet the needs of the people.

It was the failure of the states to do things for their people, he said, that brought demands for federal intervention.

In his administration as governor of Georgia much was done to fulfill such obligations—in improving conditions among the people and notably in the case of such a fundamental as the right of the ballot. The poll tax was repealed and he called upon the people of his state to follow the Supreme Court decision, in a Georgia case, that nullified the "white primary." As a result, the franchise was extended broadly to both whites and negroes. In the next primary election nearly a million votes were cast, including those of 80,000 negroes. There are now some 1,200,000 voters registered in the state, among them 150,000 negroes.

New Curbs Sought

Now along comes Governor Herman Talmadge determined to restrict this basic right of franchise. He has proposed to the legislature, which he controls, that it impose an educational test which can be distorted, as it has in other southern states, to prevent negroes from voting, accompanied by a requirement for complete new registration by which this discriminating weeding out process can be accomplished. He further proposes restoration of the poll tax. Georgia's secretary of state estimates this would reduce voters by one-half.

In the newspapers that carried dispatches about this backward step there was also a dispatch revealing a frustration of justice in Georgia involving the basic rights of protection of citizens. A local lawyer called as witnesses two members of a jury, which was trying two white men in connection with the shocking lynching of a negro who was shot in cold blood by a mob as he and his wife were driving home in their automobile. The white jurors were used as character witnesses for the first defendant who was on trial and against the widow. That is legal in Georgia, as in some other states. The result was an acquittal and a gross miscarriage of justice.

Newspapers also carried that same day two other stories. One was about the group of distinguished citizens of the National Citizens' Council of Civil Rights who called on President Truman to support his federal civil rights program. The other was about a meeting of southern "States' Rights" senators to organize a filibuster against that same civil rights program.

It all weaves together in a pattern.

States rights in Georgia, as often in other southern states, can be distorted to take away rights guaranteed to all our people by the Constitution. That is why the cry about States' Rights rings so hollow so frequently. That is why President Truman is asking for federal civil rights statutes.

Federal Laws Urged

A citizen is a citizen wherever he lives in our country. Just because in the early days of our nation an imaginary line was drawn around one locality called Georgia, or another called Alabama, or another called Mississippi, seems no valid reason why citizens who live there and work there and contribute to the wealth of the section should not have protection of rights guaranteed to all of us.

If they don't then those states have abdicated their rights. That is why it is proposed that the federal government, representing all the people, should extend its protection to people wherever they live — through an anti-lynching bill, an anti-poll tax bill, an anti-discrimination bill, and other protective measures.

Significantly it has been federal agencies — the federal courts — that have stepped forward most effectively in recent months in the South to protect rights of citizens. They can rise above local prejudices because they were disassociated from local influences and control.

Federal judges have made notable contributions, such as that of Judge Waties Waring, in Charleston, who nullified South Carolina's "white primary" device and the three judges who held unconstitutional the so-called Boswell amendment, in Alabama, requiring voters to interpret a section of the state or federal constitution, which is similar to the Talmadge proposal in Georgia.

This sort of unprejudiced judgment seems the only solution.

For that the South is its own best witness.

MARKET COMEBACK SLOWED

NEW YORK, Jan. 18. (AP)—A rally in the stock market stopped short today before it developed any real momentum.

Quotations were marked up rapidly within less than an hour after the opening bell. The balance of the session was devoted to maintaining the higher prices an effort which was not entirely successful. Some stocks which advanced for a while, ended the day in the minus column.

Business expanded when prices were moving up, enough to boost the day's sales to 770,000 shares from 736,000 yesterday.

American Telephone regained its balance after a three-day slide touched off by a Department of Justice anti-monopoly suit. Up more than a point at one time AT&T closed ¾ higher at 146¾.

A number of utility stocks improved a bit, including Consolidated Edison, Public Service Electric & Gas, Southern California Edison, Electric Power & Light and Columbia Gas.

The steels didn't enjoy as much favor. Fractional losses were posted for U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, and Youngstown Sheet.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 2 of one point to 65.5, the third average gain in a row. The three average advances, however, were hardly decisive. Many individual issues failed to go along and buying generally was characterized by a high degree of selectivity.

Grain

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Jan. 18 (AP) — Wheat and corn scored minor gains at the board of trade today, but other futures ranged lower.

Some buying in wheat was attributed to milling interests against sales of flour in undisclosed amounts to the United Kingdom.

Corn borrowed some of its strength from wheat. To-arrive bookings were placed at 90,000 bushels. Some traders thought the decline in visible supply of corn last week, and bad weather combined to support buying.

Lard and soybeans had difficulty in maintaining rallies, and oats failed to rally with other grains.

At the finish wheat was ⅛ to ⅝ higher than the previous close, May $2.24⅝-¼. Corn was ⅛ lower to ⅛ higher, May $1.45-45⅛. Oats were ⅝ to ¾ lower, May 72¼-⅝. Rye was ¾ lower, May $1.64¼. Soybeans were 1 cent to 2½ lower, March $2.42¼-42. Lard was 28 to 42 cents a hundredweight lower, January $14.20.

FORT WORTH REPORT

FORT WORTH, Jan. 18 (AP) — Wheat No. 1 hard 2.39¾-44¾.
Oats No. 2 white 93½-94½.
Corn No. 2 white 1.74½-75½.
Sorghums No. 2 yellow milo, per 100 lbs. 2.63-68.

South African boys have adopted the American "helicopter hat."

At A Glance

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (AP)—

STOCKS—Irregular; early rally falters.

BONDS — Steady; selected rails improve.

COTTON — Higher; trade buying.

CHICAGO:

WHEAT — Closed higher; mill buying on flour export.

CORN — Mixed; advanced with wheat.

OATS—Weak; light demand.

HOGS—Steady to 25 cents lower; top $21.35.

CATTLE—Unevenly strong to weak.

Cotton

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (AP) — Cotton futures turned firm today on persistent trade buying, credited partly to covering against export sales. More active demand for export cotton induced buying by locals and commission houses. Hedge selling was limited, despite a substantial sale of spot cotton at the ten primary markets. A good part of the sales were believed to be for shipment abroad.

Shippers said that China has already bought more than 50,000 bales of cotton against its inquiry here for 100,000 bales.

Futures closed 40 cents to $1.05 a bale higher than the previous close.

Baffled Florida Police Ask FBI For Aid In Effort To Solve Death Of Heir To Huge Banking Fortune

By BEN HAY HAMMET
INS Staff Correspondent

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Jan. 18. — Baffled authorities looked to the FBI tonight to uncover some clue as to the manner in which a fatal bullet was fired into the head of banking heir Granville Baker.

Although the possibility that the 27-year-old scion of one of the nation's leading banking families was murdered was not discarded entirely, officials were inclined to believe the shooting was accidental. The possibility of suicide has not been ruled out as yet either.

The mass of evidence assembled since the mysterious death of the wealthy New York socialite early Monday on the family estate, Horseshoe plantation, was in the hands of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Gun To Be Tested

The death gun, which belonged to Baker, a .36 caliber pistol on a .45 caliber frame, was sent to the FBI laboratory in Washington. Along with the gun went paraffin casts of the hands of the dead Baker and persons who were in the vicinity when Baker died.

The paraffin tests may prove whether the bullet was fired by hand or detonated accidentally, possibly by the jarring of the jeep driven by Baker which ran into a ditch.

The bullet which passed through Baker's head has not yet been found.

State Attorney William Hopkins said he was not holding Mrs. Thelma Griffin, 21-year-old waitress who was riding with Baker when he met his death. Also released were Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Whiddon, who were riding in another car nearby at the time of the shooting.

None of the three could explain how Baker was shot.

Ship Body

The body of the young multi-millionaire was scheduled to leave Nahunta, Ga., by train for New York early tonight, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. George F. Baker, jr., and Charles G. Cushing of New York, a guest at the Baker plantation.

The train was slated to arrive in New York at 11:45 p.m. CST Wednesday.

As federal agents sought to determine how the grandson of George F. Baker, founder of the huge National City bank of New York City died, State Attorney Hopkins asserted:

"We have no evidence indicating murder. But neither do we have anything that would point to accidental death or suicide. We are considering all of these."

The FBI was checking with authorities in Nassua, in the Bahamas, to learn whom Baker was with there before flying back to Florida a few hours prior to his death.

Baker crashed in his jeep at the entrance of his family's 13,000 acre Tallahassee estate in a pre-dawn drive with Mrs. Griffin.

He was believed to have been a victim of the crash—until the bullet wound was found in his head.

Routine Investigation Made

Sheriff Frank Stoutamire maintained that his office was carrying on only a "routine" investigation of the mysterious death. He said:

"There is no question in my mind that he (Baker) got shot by accident when his jeep was wrecked.

"I don't think he shot himself and I don't think anyone else shot him."

The suicide possibility also was disclosed by members of Baker's family in New York.

Officially, his death was attributed by the Leon county coroner's jury to "a gunshot wound from a gun held in the hands of an unknown party."

Mrs. Griffin told police she was knocked unconscious when the jeep crashed. When she regained consciousness, he said she became frightened and hurried down the road to tell Whiddon what had happened.

Return To Wreck

The waitress added that she and Whiddon returned to the scene of the accident and found Baker's body propped against a tree with his pistol nearby. Neither Whiddon nor Mrs. Griffin could explain how the body had been moved.

Meanwhile, Baker's Mexican wife, the former Alicia Grajeles, was on her way to Tallahassee from Mexico City.

Baker and his wife, whom he married in 1943 were said to be separated. However, that was denied by Joaquin Grajeles, brother of Mrs. Baker who is accompanying his sister.

Mrs. Baker has refused to talk to newsmen. She was described as "very much broken up" by the news of her husband's death.

The young man's father, George F. Baker, Jr., who carried on the family's widespread financial interests, died in 1938 aboard his yacht while on a Pacific cruise.

The third generation Baker, graduate of swank St. Paul's school and Harvard, inherited a trust fund of more than $8,400,000.

During the war, he was a bomber pilot with a record of 35 missions.

Hugh Herbert's Wife Files Suit For Divorce From Actor

FORT WORTH, Jan. 18.—(U.P.)—Mrs. Rose Herbert filed suit today for divorce from Hugh Herbert, movie and stage comedian.

Her petition, in 17th district court, said she and Herbert had reached agreement last September on property settlement. She asked the court to confirm the "just division."

The Herberts were married in 1917 and separated in December, 1947, when Mrs. Herbert established residence here. Her husband, she said, had been "unkind and harsh" for a year prior to the separation.

Vocalist Highlights Optimists' Program

Two songs by Mrs. C. N. Hallmark highlighted Tuesday's program at the weekly Optimist club luncheon in Hotel Lubbock.

Mrs. Hallmark, accompanied by Mrs. James Atcheson at the piano, sang "The Bells of St. Mary's" and "Because."

J. Louis Murfee, jr., appearing on behalf of the Exchange club's "March of Dimes" campaign, spoke briefly, urging Optimists to help push this year's drive for funds to combat infantile paralysis above its Lubbock county goal.

Club members discussed at length plans for the nomination and election of officers for the coming year.

Three guests, I. D. Short, Harold Ballew and Dr. Ralph Ogan, were introduced.

President Charles Cobb, presiding, named members of this year's nominating committee, which will include Charles Greer, Dave Dawkins, Cliff Elliott, Bill Davis and J. Holland Cox, chairman.

Invocation was by Rev. Cecil Ray.

Houston Urged To Help Save Sight Of Its Seals In Zoo

HOUSTON, Jan. 18.—(U.P.)—The city of Houston, marked up recently as having achieved the pinnacle in kindness to animals, considered today the needs of its seals.

Since the glossy-furred animals are even-tempered and without bad habits, something should be done to preserve their eyesight. That's what Hugo Koehn, the Houston parks director, said today.

Koehn explained that many of the seals at the Houston zoo are going blind, mainly from the city's highly chlorinated water. He suggested a remedy might be to put chemists to work de-chlorinating all water used by the seals.

Oil Activity In Area Reported

News of additional oil developments on the South Plains and surrounding area were announced Tuesday.

At attempt to acidize the Canyon lime section of the Pennsylvanian failed at Magnolia Petroleum Co., No. 1 Moore, central Scurry county wildcat, two and one-half miles southwest of Snyder.

Operator perforated at 6,850-65 feet and left the perforations at 6,845-50 feet open. Those sections were swabbed down, showing a small amount of oil.

An acid injection try failed as the control head leaked. The control head was being repaired prior to another acidizing attempt.

Bottom At 6,885 Feet

This prospect, 660 feet from south and west lines of section 207, block 97, H & TC survey, is bottomed on 6,885 feet.

Second producer in the Crossroads-Devonian field of extreme northeast Lea county, New Mexico, was completed at Magnolia Petroleum Co., No. 1-C Santa Fe-Pacific, one-half mile east extension to the pool, 660 feet from south and west lines of section 26-9s-36e.

On a 24-hour potential, the venture flowed 328 barrels of oil and 51 barrels of drilling mud through a 10/64-inch top choke. No formation water was present.

Production was natural from the open hole section at 12,240-12-263 feet, on an elevation of 4,030 feet.

The northeast Scurry county Ellenburger again yielded no shows for Sun Oil Co., and the Ohio Oil Co., No. 1 Helms, deep wildcat 20 miles northeast of the town of Snyder.

On a one-hour drillstem at 7,273-7,486 feet on the deep zone, a light blow of ail held at the surface part of the period. Recovery was 20 feet of drilling mud with no indications of oil, gas, or water.

More hole was to be made. Another test is to be taken shortly. Location is 660 feet from south and west lines of section 636, block 97, H & TC survey.
