Toys and hats from days past seem to enchant young antique buffs Spencer Caviness, Zack Wall and Thad Guseman. The boys may be planning to explore history further during the L'Allegra Study Club's annual Antique Show and Sale at the Hereford Community Center on April 19-21. Proceeds from the annual show and flower sale will be used to purchase additional Lifeline transmitters which can keep elderly and disabled persons in touch with Deaf Smith General Hospital. Show hours will be from noon until 8 p.m. on that Friday and Saturday, and from 1-5 p.m. that Sunday. Ramirez convicted

Receives 15-year sentence

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

A 222nd District Court jury deliberated nearly three hours Wednesday before finding Johnny Ramirez, 27, guilty of murder. It took the jury another three-and-a-half hours to assess punishment at 15 years in the Texas Department of Corrections.

Jurors had the option of finding Ramirez guilty of murder, involuntary manslaughter, criminally negligent homicide or acquitting him. Ramirez had maintained that he shot Gerardo "Lalo" Guzman of Olton in self-defense after the two argued over a drug deal.

Guzman was found dead of two shotgun blasts to the head on Sept. 13, 1984, in his parked car near Umbarger. Ramirez admitted to driving the body there, telling jurors he was afraid Guzman's brothers would come after him. Defense attorney John Lesly had argued that the shooting couldn't have been premeditated because Ramirez did not really hide the body.

Ramirez was arrested Sept. 14 after investigators discovered evidence of the shooting in his mobile home on Avenue C. The alleged murder weapon, which Ramirez claimed he melted down and threw in Pitman Lake, was never found. Ramirez testified that it was Guzman who brought a gun into the mobile home, and that he grabbed the gun because he thought Guzman wanted to kill him.

"Lalo Guzman was the victim of a cold-blooded, premeditated, execution-type murder," Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul told the 11-man, one-woman jury during final arguments. Saul said Ramirez shot Guzman "for his money and his drugs, and to extinguish his current dope debt."

Ramirez admitted to being a daily heroin user, and said Guzman was his supplier. Several defense witnesses testified that Guzman sold heroin, characterizing the dead man as short-tempered and abusive to people who believed they were his friends. Testimony revealed that Guzman always carried a knife and was known to carry firearms as well.

Saul urged jurors to believe the testimony of a Plainview man who said Ramirez told him on two occasions that he wanted to "knock off" Guzman.

"He said he wasn't serious about it, but you know he was, because that's what he did, he killed him."

Ramirez asked for probation during the punishment phase of the trial, with Saul requesting the maximums sentence. First degree murder is punishable by a jail sentence of five to 99 years or life, and a fine not to exceed $10,000. The jury could have recommended probation for sentence of less than 10 years.

I think the jurors were very conscientious in their duties," Lesly said this morning. "The questions they were asked to decide were not easy ones."

Lesly said a decision regarding appeal has not been made.

The district courtroom was nearly filled with spectators most of the three-day trial, presided over by 222nd District Judge David Wesley Gulley.

Lesly filed a motion for mistrial during the jury's deliberations, after the jury sent out a note indicating that one of the jurors had served on the grand jury that indicted Ramirez. Gulley denied the motion.

Honduran war games to be three miles from border line

WASHINGTON (AP) — War games in Honduras will cause soldiers in the Texas National Guard to be within three miles of Nicaragua and they should not be allowed to get into a fight with Sandinista troops, House Majority Leader Jim Wright has warned in a letter to President Reagan.

The Texas Democrat's comments were released by his office Wednesday. He wrote the letter after sitting in on a briefing Monday as a member of the House Intelligence Committee, aides said.

About 400 members of the Texas National Guard are participating in the exercises, known as Big Pine III, in southwestern Honduras just inland from the Pacific coast and near the Nicaraguan border. The Texans are part of a force of up to 4,800 U.S. military personnel who will conduct the war games with Honduran troops.

The leftist Sandinista regime has been denounced by Reagan, who has stopped just short of calling for it to be overthrown. There have been frequent border clashes between the troops of Nicaragua's Sandinista government and U.S.-backed rebels known as contras.

Wright acknowledged in his letter to Reagan that U.S. participation in the exercises was covered by an inter-American treaty.

"In view of the current tensions between the United States and Nicaragua, however, it occurs to me that staging war games south of Choluteca (Honduras), within three miles of the Nicaraguan border, complete with 17 tanks and 17 armored personnel carriers, may carry certain unintended risks," Wright said.

Wright called on Reagan to be aware of the dangers inherent in such very close proximity to the heavily defended free fire zones on Nicaraguan territory.

"With this in mind, you no doubt will monitor these military exercises very carefully, taking every available precaution to guarantee that U.S. personnel do not become unintentionally embroiled in some incident with Nicaraguan troops," Wright said.

"Knowing that your goal in participating in these maneuvers is to help keep the peace, I feel sure that you will do everything to avoid any ambiguity or misunderstanding regarding the international border and any direct contact between United States and Nicaraguan troops."

Despite Wright's amicable tone, a source close to Wright said the letter could be taken as a warning to Reagan that "we're watching you. I don't think it could be any clearer," the Houston Chronicle reported.

Wright's assertion that the troops would be within three miles of the border was challenged by Maj. David D. Cotton, spokesman for the Texas National Guard in Austin, although Cotton said he did not know the southern boundary of the exercise.

Since the plans for the maneuvers were announced there has been a dispute about whether the proximity of Nicaragua put the U.S. troops in unwarranted danger. Additionally, there has been concern more recently that political turbulence in Honduras could jeopardize the safety of the U.S. troops.

Committee approves 44 pages of changes in school reform

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate Education Committee has approved 44 pages of changes it thinks should be made in the major public schools reform legislation passed last summer at a special session.

Sen. Carl Parker, chairman of the Senate Public Education Committee, said he planned to offer the bill for debate early next week.

The omnibus education revision bill was approved 10-0 Wednesday by the committee without discussion or debate.

"It fine tunes and streamlines," said Parker.

A provision that would let the State Board of Education change the controversial no-pass, no-play eligibility rule captured most attention. But the overall measure contains numerous changes affecting both teachers and students in Texas' public schools.

If passed by the Senate and House, and signed by the governor, the measure would:

-Tell the State Board of Education to reconsider its present rule that a student will be suspended from sports or other extracurricular activities for six weeks if failing in one subject. The bill suggests a shorter period.

-Tell the State Board of Education to give teachers a basic skills test, mostly on reading, writing and math. It would allow the board to decide later, after the first test, if a more difficult examination on specific skills in teaching is needed to weed out incompetent teachers. The board has said it believes the first test will show up 90 percent of those who should not be teaching.

-Provide for probationary and permanent teaching certificates, with permanent certificates going only to teachers who have proved themselves satisfactory teachers.

-Set up a four-level career program for teachers that would give them a $2,000 raise for each level reached, based on above average talent, training and initiative. Librarians would be included with classroom teachers, but not teacher aides and counselors. School administrators also would be appraised.

-Provide for a system of school discipline that would give school officials power to suspend students for up to six days or to expel them from school for assaults on teachers or pupils or for distributing drugs or alcohol.

-Tell each school to provide tutorial or make-up classes, outside regular school hours, for failing or near-failing students.

Lawmakers scuffle in Capitol lobby

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — Two lawmakers, a senator who didn't appreciate a finger waving in front of his face and a House member who didn't like being lifted by his lapels, scuffled in the Capitol lobby until colleagues pried them apart.

Rep. Clint Hackney, D-Houston, says he threw a punch at Sen. Craig Washington, D-Houston, during the brief fracas on the first floor Wednesday. Beaumont Rep. Mark Stiles intercepted the uppercut.

"It was just a little miscommunications problem," said Stiles, a 250-pounder. "I think in the next few months y'all are going to see a lot of these things come up."

The argument that led to the skirmish concerned whether Hackney had asked for an attorney general's opinion on Houston's minority contracts ordinance. Hackney has not, according to Loretta Hendley in the attorney general's office.

Hackney said Washington didn't give him a chance to answer the senator's question about it. That led to the Hackney finger-pointing that led to the Washington lapel-grabbing that led to the aborted punch.

The scuffle occurred at the tourist information desk. Gov. Mark White walked by during the altercation.

"I heard a couple of words exchanged. But it didn't seem to be anything that would have gone much further than conversation, but I understand it might have," the governor said. "I was, fortunately, gone."

Stiles said, "The governor was. Poof, he was gone."

Hackney apparently landed the only blow in the skirmish, an index finger to the nose during the finger-pointing.

Yes, he touched the end of my nose," Washington said.

"It's not a big deal with me. But I want him and everyone else to know that if you stick a finger in my face, you do it at your own risk. If you hit me you do it at your own risk. I don't bother anybody but I don't take...off anybody ever," said Washington.

Hackney said, "I like picking on guys that are much bigger than me, like he is."

Hackney, 33, is 5-foot-9 and 165 pounds. Washington, 43, would not say how tall he is, but Department of Public Safety records show he stands 6-1.

Hackney said Washington "picked me up by the lapels and threw me against the Highway Department tourist information bench. He continued to hold my lapels and was shaking me while I was up against the bench."

He said Washington called him an obscene name and said, "Don't point your finger at me ever."

"He was hollering and screaming. I'm sure I was also hollering and screaming," Hackney said. "I reared back to hit him and Mr. Stiles grabbed my arm."

Washington said he grabbed Hackney because "my rights start right here," motioning toward his nose.

JACK WHITE - Occupation Ranch work.

Background - Attended Tahoka High School and New Mexico State University. Attend First Methodist Church, Hereford.

The following questions concern different areas of the school's operation and the candidates response.

CURRICULUM

Coleman - We have a small specialized school with excellent teachers. I feel we need to keep up with new teaching methods to insure quality education for all grades.

Hall - The board has identified certain areas of concern within our current program. With proper supervision, corrective steps will be taken in order that the children of our district can receive the best education possible.

Perrin - Curriculum should be structured to provide a solid, basic education. We have the opportunity to offer each child the help he needs where he needs it and to help each student achieve his potential.

Solomon - The curriculum should be structured to ensure a proper sequence of instruction from one grade to the next. Course offerings at the present time are adequate, but we must be diligent in our effort to expand these courses as the needs of the community expand.

Teel - I think the computers could be used more if a student has his basic courses finished.

White - I'm pleased with the basic course offerings available to the students, especially the addition of computer skills. The pre-reading program in kindergarten, in which my child is involved, seems to be a good foundation for the children's future reading skills.

BUDGET

Coleman - I can't comment without knowing alot more about it.

Hall - The budget has about doubled in the last seven years. Much of the increase has been mandated by the State. The remainder has been approved by the board primarily to improve facilities and programs. It is my goal to make certain that each component of the budget is justified for the benefit of our students.

Perrin - I feel that the budget is adequate. Trustees should ensure that the budget gives top priority to educating the students.

Solomon - I feel that the budget is of the utmost importance to the school and every effort should be made to stay within the bounds of the money allocated for the year. This will help ensure a more stable financial position for our school in the coming years.

Teel - The budget needs to be watched very closely. The reserved money is being drawn down and needs to be built back if possible, but the students needs come first.

White - The financial condition of the school appears to have been very well managed in previous years, and I hope to help continue the general trend toward a forward-thinking budget.

FACILITIES

Coleman - I believe they are good. We need good facilities to keep quality personnel.

Hall - In recent years our school and teacher ages have undergone extensive renovation. Much of this was long overdue and it has been expensive. But, the building is now more useable and the houses have been adequately remodeled.

Perrin - The facilities are adequate at this time.

Solomon - I feel that at the present time our facilities are adequate for our present enrollment. We must, however, have a continuing program to maintain and upgrade the facilities as the need arises.

Teel - These have been updated considerably and I am very proud of this.

White - The facilities and buildings appear to be in good condition and well-maintained. Prompt and thorough maintenance is vital to the continued good condition of these buildings.

PERSONNEL

Coleman - I like to think of Walcott as more of a specialized school. Our personnel seem quite adequate. Cuts in personnel could mean less individual attention.

Hall - When I went to school here there were 50 percent more kids and only half the number of personnel. However, a reduction in the teaching staff would detract from our educational program and possibly defy state accreditation standards.

Perrin - The number of teachers employed at the present time seems adequate to accommodate the number of students. Maintaining a low pupil-teacher ratio should be a high priority.

Solomon - The number of school personnel must grow as our school grows, but I believe that every effort must be made to combine jobs where it can be done, but not at the expense of our children's education.

Teel - With the addition of a full time 2nd grade teacher they are adequate.

White - The number of personnel seems to be adequate.

QUALITY OF PERSONNEL

Coleman - I think our teachers are more adequate now than probably ever before.

Hall - For the most part our staff is well qualified. The board has recently discussed some problem areas which are being dealt with. Better monitoring and communication are keys to quality education.

Perrin - We should make the most of our teacher's strengths. We have some fantastic teachers who demand the best and consequently teach the children to perform at their best. Positive teaching encourages positive learning and positive attitudes.

Solomon - I feel that the quality of the school personnel is the most important part of our school program. Facilities of the highest quality can not be properly utilized if the quality of our personnel is lacking.

Teel - Most are exceptional.

White - I am impressed with the caliber and dedication of the school personnel now employed.

TAXES

Coleman - Taxes always seem too high, but where our youth are concerned we need to provide what it takes to give students a solid background here at Walcott.

Hall - Even though our tax rate has increased substantially, we are still lower than any neighboring school district. We should strive to keep this distinction for the benefit of our taxpayers if our program can be maintained.

Perrin - We are fortunate to have a good, consistent tax base and good support from tax payers. In fairness to our taxpayers the trustees should ensure that the funds are used as efficiently as possible and that taxes are not raised unnecessarily.

Solomon - Taxes should be kept at the lowest possible rate, but not so low that the quality of our children's education would suffer.

Teel - Try to keep taxes as low as possible without letting things go downhill.

White - With the increasing difficulty concerning state funding and the pressures of the current agricultural economic conditions, careful planning will be required regarding school funding.

EXTRACURRICULAR

Coleman - I support field trips and sports activities, it makes for a better attitude towards school.

Hall - There are certain disadvantages to a small school, but the benefits available at Walcott more than make-up for any deficiencies. The Austin trip is just one example of one of these benefits.

Perrin - Extracurricular activities can play a big part in the student's development. The activity should never take precedence over our primary task as a school-education. Consideration should be given to a wider range of activities, especially those in which they can participate as individuals.

Solomon - Walcott students have opportunities to participate in many extracurricular activities that are not available to students in larger schools. I feel that these opportunities should be continued if possible.

Teel - I feel the students can pay part of the cost of their extra activities (cheerleader uniforms, tennis shoes, tennis rackets, etc.)

White - I would like to see a compromise allowing students to participate in extracurricular activities without jeopardizing high academic standards.

COMMUNITY

Coleman - Member of Walcott V.F.D.

Hall - This school serves this community well and the patrons care about its future. This fact is evidenced by the good number of candidates for this election. It is a desirable situation and hopefully it will continue.

Perrin - One of the strengths of Walcott is parental involvement. Parents who are concerned and involved in their children's education are the key to a successful learning environment.

Solomon - The relationship between the school and the community is of the utmost importance because we must have 100 percent community involvement, so that our school can continue to educate our children in the most effective way.

Teel - The building could be used for community functions if there were needs.

White - Walcott has a great amount of parental and community involvement. I believe that this has a positive effect on student progress. If elected, I hope to prove an influence for positive action and attitudes.

AREAS SUPPORTED

Coleman - The active sports program and P.T.O. Walcott is the center of community activities.

Ancient female skeleton found near Aledo

ALEDO, Texas (AP) — Archaeologists say the skeleton of a young woman, thought to have been buried at the site between 1,000 and 10,000 years ago, has been found near this town just west of Fort Worth in eastern Parker County.

Specialists gingerly unearthed the mostly intact skeleton Wednesday. They declined to disclose the exact whereabouts of the site for fear it would be overrun by treasure seekers.

H.F. Ball, past president of the Tarrant County Archaeological Society and one of several people at the site Wednesday, said until carbon-dating tests are performed on the skeleton, it's impossible to predict accurately how old it is.

However, the skeleton is definitely archaic — at least 1,500 to 3,000 years

Safety engineers to meet April 9

The Panhandle Chapter of the American Society of Safety Engineers will have a program on ammonia truck spills during its April 9 meeting at the K-Bob's restaurant in Dumas.

The social hour begins at 6:30 p.m., dinner is at 7 p.m. and the program begins at 8 p.m. Eddie Boydston from Center Plains Co-op will present the program.

For information contact Dick Shaw or Linda Conner at 1-274-6331, ext. 304.

Hall - I support the current program even though there are some problems. These are being addressed and improvement should be forthcoming. With the size of our budget and the small student population, Walcott should continue to offer a superior educational program.

Perrin - We are fortunate to have good facilities and a good library. Most of our teachers are enthusiastic and talented and challenge students to do their best. Our small class size is a strong point at Walcott.

Solomon - In general, I support the activities of Walcott School.

Teel - The students needs must come first. The school is growing and need to continue. The 7th and 8th grade trip to Austin.

White - "Family" atmosphere of caring - Positive discipline - Community support - Individual attention for students.

Council denies election veto

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The three-member Central Election Council, including two members of rightist parties, has rejected rightist demands to void this week's election results because of alleged widespread voting irregularities.

Council President Mario Samayoa, the only member of President Jose Napoleon Duarte's Christian Democrats on the panel, made the announcement Wednesday night after the country's military leadership denied charges the armed forces had pressured voters in Sunday's election.

Two council members representing parties of the main right-wing coalition joined Samayoa to unanimously reject a rightist petition demanding the results of Sunday's legislative and municipal elections be thrown out.

Francisco Merino, election council representative of the extreme-right Republican Nationalist Alliance, or ARENA, said the panel agreed the elections could not be voided "because of irregularities in a few municipalities."

Samayoa said ARENA made an accusation of military pressure on voters in an official protest over the conduct of the elections.

ARENA leader Roberto d'Aubuisson, who lost the presidential election to Duarte last May, claimed Tuesday night there were widespread voting irregularities, including stuffed ballot boxes, and demanded results be thrown out.

But on Wednesday, he denied the petition to have vote results voided included the accusation the military had pressured voters.

Samayoa said the official count of votes would resume Monday, after the Easter Week vacation. The tabulation was stopped because of the complaint by the rightist parties.

The council has released no official results, but the Christian Democrats say their count shows they won 33 of the 60 National Assembly seats.

ARENA and the National Conciliation Party formed an election coalition against the Christian Democrats. A bloc of conservative parties has dominated the assembly since it was elected in March 1982, holding 34 seats to 24 for the Christian Democrats.

Six members of the 11-member executive council of the National Conciliation Party criticized the party's secretary general Wednesday for joining d'Aubuisson in calling for the elections to be voided.

In a communique, the military said the armed forces will "never abandon their condition of an ... obedient, apolitical institution."

The military communique said that during the last four elections, beginning with the Constituent Assembly elections in March 1982, the army has watched over the balloting and guaranteed results be respected.

Gen. Carlos Eugenio Vides Casanova, the defense minister, earlier appeared at a news conference with members of the military high command.

"You should be conscious of the sacrifice the armed forces have made to support these four elections in a period of violence," Vides Casanova said. "I believe the armed forces have a responsibility to make these observations because everyone is having a good time ... insulting each other on television, but we're providing the dead."

Offer the uninvited coffee

DEAR POLLY — What does one do when unexpected guests arrive right at dinner time when we are just sitting down at the table to eat and have prepared only enough for the family? — D.V.C.

DEAR POLLY — Well, you certainly have no obligation to feed uninvited guests at such a time. At the same time, I assume you don't want to appear ungracious to these folks. I'd say something like, "We're just sitting down to dinner, but we'd be happy to visit with you if you'd join us for some coffee." Perhaps if you have dessert that will stretch, you may want to offer some of that. Considerate guests will either stop for just a minute, seeing that you're busy with dinner, or happily take your offer of just coffee. Personally, I wouldn't worry about offending anyone with the bad manners to expect anything more in the way of dinner! — POLLY

Ann Landers

Nothing to add

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've never written to you before, but I must respond to "Texas Parents", whose letter appeared in the Buffalo News. It was about their 13-year-old son, who was being propositioned on the phone by 13- and 14-year-old girls.

The boy's mother wrote, "I don't understand what the parents of these girls are doing when all this is going on." May I tell them what the parents are doing? They are going crazy.

Our 15-year-old daughter doesn't believe it is wrong to have sex if she likes a boy. "Charlotte" was raised in a good Christian home. We have talked to her about love, sex, morality and responsibility since she was 8 years old. She goes to church regularly, and never misses her Bible class.

When we first learned Charlotte was sexually active (she was barely 14), I took her to a doctor. He suggested counseling with a qualified psychologist. She goes to the therapist regularly but nothing has changed. She still doesn't think there is anything wrong with what she is doing. We have been through all the scare tactics (VD, pregnancy, etc.) Nothing worked. Her doctor finally persuaded us to put her on birth control pills. (She had been giving condoms to her boyfriends and using foams.)

We have tried heart-to-heart talks, threatened her, restricted her, bribed her, you name it. No one can watch a 15-year-old girl 24 hours a day.

How can parents fight the barrage of sex in movies, TV, magazines and peer pressure? If "Texas Parents" have an answer I'd give my eye teeth to hear it.—JUDGE NOT IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR JUDGE NOT: I sympathize with parents whose children go haywire in spite of all efforts to keep them on the straight and narrow. You've done everything I would have recommended. I have nothing to add.

I hope, however, that Charlotte's therapist can make her understand that the boys she sleeps with probably consider her a plaything and that no decent fellow will want her if she continues to behave like a tramp.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: That was a lovely letter you printed in praise of the commercial pilots who bring millions of passengers safely to their destinations. They couldn't do it alone. Please print this verse in praise of another group:

Pilots are highly trained people. Their wings are not easily won. But without the work of the maintenance man Our pilots would be on the run.

So when you see mighty jet aircraft As they make their way through the air,

The grease-stained man with the wrench in his hand Is the person who put him there.—A FAN IN EAGLE RIVER, ALASKA

DEAR EAGLE: Well said. Some readers will surely complain that the verse is sexist. I know that women work on maintenance crews, along with men, so save your stamps, folks.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Believe most young children

'All-powerful' adults control lives

LUBBOCK — Young children generally do not understand the concept of luck or chance, but believe that "all-powerful" adults control their lives, according to a Texas Tech University researcher.

Professor Paul N. Dixon, area coordinator of educational psychology at Texas Tech, is testing a group of first graders to see if they comprehend the concept of luck. Doug Yarborough, a graduate assistant, is a co-worker in the research.

The research is based on Dixon's long-term study of locus of control. An internal locus of control is attributing consequences to one's own behavior. External locus of control is attributing consequences to luck, chance, fate or the control of others.

Dixon believes that children with an external locus of control attribute events to the control of a "powerful other" instead of fate, luck or chance. Research has shown that children rarely understand the concept of luck before age 10 or 11, Dixon said.

Dixon's research involves a sample of 60 first graders who have an external locus of control. The experiment uses a board with four colored buttons. A light at the top will randomly go on or not go on when a button is pushed. A spinner with matching colors will determine which button a student pushes.

The first time the experiment is performed the light will come on through a random process. During the second session to experimenter will explain that he will make the light come on when the button is pushed.

"We don't think the children will be able to tell the difference," Dixon said. "They will think both times are under the control of the experimenter."

"But, we may be wrong," Dixon said. "First graders can throw a curve."

The children involved in the research will also be interviewed about their perceptions of luck.

"When a parent dies, a child will become angry at the parent because he sees parents as all powerful. He thinks the parent could have controlled the death," Dixon said.

In playing games that are won by luck or chance, children will try to change the rules or will become angry at the winner, he said. The child believes that someone controls the outcome of the game instead of chance.

In addition to measuring a child's perception of luck, the experiment will also help researchers develop a better method for measuring locus of control, Dixon said.

Determining if a child is highly external or internal will help educators use appropriate teaching methods,

Dixon noted. A student who is highly external will wait for the teacher's instructions, while a highly internal student may work better in an unstructured setting. An internal child will take more initiative and use the discovery approach to education.

"The two extremes are not good," Dixon said. "But we prefer that students be a little more internal."

Parents play an important role in determining whether a child has an internal or external locus of control, he said.

Educators tend to forget the first board of education was the paddle.

Most skin cancer is cured

DEAR DR. LAMB — Two months ago I went to a skin doctor about a sore at the top of my right arm, near the shoulder. He said it looked like skin cancer, took a biopsy and found that it was a skin cancer.

He said it came from too much sun. I do not sun myself, only to hang wash and watch a parade, although I did pick beans when I was growing up. The doctor thought I got it then. He said it was healing well and said I shouldn't worry, since I was lucky to have it on the outside and not the inside.

I am very worried and don't eat or sleep decently just thinking about it. Do you have any information on this?

DEAR READER — Other than malignant melanoma, most skin cancers, treated early enough, are easily cured. They do not tend to spread like other forms of cancer do. Your doctor undoubtedly removed all of the skin cancer when he did the biopsy. These skin cancers grow so slowly in early cases that they are not usually a threat to your health, but of course, they should not be neglected.

Most of them are at least aggravated by sun exposure. And the exposure may occur years before the skin cancer develops. That is why people who are sun worshippers while young will start to have skin cancer when they are middle-aged or older. The time to prevent this problem is in youth, with protection from the sun both winter and summer.

If you have one skin cancer, you can develop others. This does not mean that the doctor didn't get all of it the first time. However, in each case, if you see your doctor early, before it becomes advanced, it is easily ly treated by local removal. Many early ones can be removed by being burned or frozen off. Those that penetrate the skin more deeply may need to be curetted out.

I have discussed skin cancers in The Health Letter, Special Report 28, Skin: Aging, Spots, Cancer and Sun, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I get bladder infections several times a year. My doctor gives me tetracycline, which cures it in a few days. I'm allergic to sulfa drugs.

I'm 65 and have had this problem for at least 20 years. I've had frequent urination and difficulty holding urine as long as I can remember.

What causes bladder infections, so I can avoid repeated problems? My doctor says they are caused when outside bacteria get into the urethra. I don't know how to avoid this, since I am a very clean person and try to be extra careful.

DEAR READER — Women do have a problem with frequent urinary-tract infections. The explanation is that the urethra in the female is quite short compared to the urethra in the male. That very short tube makes it easy for bacteria to gain access to the bladder. Careful hygiene is important, but, despite that, one can't prevent the bacteria that are ever-present on the skin and other surfaces from invading the bladder. The bacteria that cause the infection probably have colonized in the vaginal area near the urethra.

Now You're Cookin'

"It's just too hot to cook."

How many times have people said or heard that in the summer when the temperature soars to over 100 degrees?

It is difficult to want to cook in the summer, yet it seems that summer demands more cooking than almost any other season. Bridal showers and teas abound in the summer months. Children home from school always want their friends to come over "just for dinner" who end up staying all night and the next day, too.

Relatives come over in the summer just to visit or stop for a week or so on their vacation — a visit that clearly demands more food and recipes which can be prepared in advance.

So, it's nice to have cool recipes — ones that do not take all day in the kitchen and are at their best after setting overnight.

Grills work well in the summer, too. Vegetables as well as beef and chicken are easily prepared on outdoor appliances.

The recipes that follow all were compiled by Charleen Nary, one-time home service adviser for Southwestern Public Service. Each recipe hopefully will make cooking fun and easy when it comes time to prepare for all of the summer events.

POPCORN MEDLEY

6 Tbsp. butter, melted
1 Tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 tsp. season salt
1/2 tsp. garlic powder
1 qt. popped corn
1-3 oz. can Chinese noodles
1 1/2 C bite-sized shredded wheat
1 C mixed nuts
Leaf basil

Combine first four ingredients. Add remaining ingredients. Bake at 250 degrees for 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove and sprinkle with leaf basil. This is easily made ahead of time.

MUSHROOMS ITALIANO

1 qt. fresh mushrooms
8 oz. bottle Italian dressing
Place mushrooms in a quart container and pour dressing over them. Let marinate over night, then drain and serve with toothpicks.

After marinating, the mushrooms

may then be sauteed in butter for a hot appetizer.

DATE CHEESE SPREAD

1-8 oz. package cream cheese
4 dates, chopped
1/2 C pecans, chopped
1/8 tsp. garlic salt

Mix and use as a dip.

PINEAPPLE SLUSH

1-4 oz. can frozen pineapple juice
2 cans water
1 egg
1/2 C dry milk
2 Tbsp. vinegar
ice cubes

Place juice, water, egg, dry milk and sugar in blender container and blend on high until smooth. Add ice cubes, one at a time, until container is full. Serve immediately.

Any frozen fruit juice may be substituted.

MEXICAN CHEF SALAD

1 lb. ground beef
1 medium onion, chopped
1 can kidney beans, drained
1 medium head of lettuce
1 C grated cheddar cheese
1 C French dressing
6 oz. tortilla chips, crushed
Hot sauce

1 large avocado, chopped

Brown ground beef. Add all remaining ingredients except hot sauce. Individually add hot sauce to taste.

Meat can be browned ahead of time and stored in freezer.

BAKED SANDWICH BREAKFAST

16 slices of bread
8 slices of ham
8 slices cheddar cheese
6 eggs
1/2 tsp. dry mustard
1/2 C onion, chopped
1/2 C green pepper, chopped
1/2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
1/2 tsp. salt or salt substitute
3 C milk

1 stick butter, melted
crushed potato chips
Lay eight slices of bread, crust removed, in a buttered baking dish. Lay ham and cheese on top of each slice. Top with other eight pieces of bread.

In blender, combine all but chips and butter. Pour over bread. Cover and refrigerate overnight.

The next day, sprinkle with chips and pour butter over the chips. Bake one hour at 350 degrees, uncovered.

1/2 C milk

Place bread in a greased 9x13-inch pan. Next place sausage and cheese.

In blender, combine eggs, 2 1/4 cups milk and mustard. Pour over mixture and refrigerate overnight.

In the morning, mix soup and 1/2 cup milk. Pour over mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour, uncovered. Serves 12.

Use any combination of pie fillings to make the needed amount. Fresh fruit may be substituted when available as long as enough pie filling is used to coat the mixture.

This goes well with the two previous egg dishes.

Ways with Wine by David Hutchins

YOU DECIDE

Some wine experts claim that opening a bottle of wine well before serving time allows it to come in contact with the air and "breathe," thus improving its taste. Others scoff at such advice as so much folklore. The fact is that some wines do seem to change in taste after one or two hours of exposure to the air. Young, tannic red wines sometimes seem to taste softer and less harsh. Virtually everyone agrees, however, that there is little point in letting whites breathe before serving. You will probably find that, as with most wines, it is sufficient to swirl it in the glass to release its fragrance. If in doubt, why not take two identical bottles of wine? Aerate one. Drink the other immediately. Taste will be the final arbiter.

When you have any questions about wine...when or how to serve them, et. THE STORE suggests you ask one of our people. We carry a fine selection of domestic and imported wines. Have you ever tasted a California wine? Although they are relatively inexpensive their quality is superb. Come in and become acquainted with our inventory. You'll find us nearby at 400 N. 25 Mile, 364-7802. Mon.-Sat. 10-9, use our drive-up door until midnight for beer and wine, on Sun. only beer and wine is available from 12-12. Decanting a wine vigorously aerates it.

Hereford tennis tourney headlines sports weekend

A four-team tennis tournament at the Hereford High School courts highlights this weekend's sports slate for HHS teams.

With a school holiday Friday, students may enter contests without danger of Ross Perot's ire.

State-playoff contenders Monterey and Coronado will join Amarillo and Hereford in tennis matches to be played here Saturday at the high school. Hereford coach Ruben Vargas said the tournament obviously should provide some stiff competition for the Whitefaces.

"With some of the top teams in the state there," he said, "people should see some great tennis. We're looking for a good tournament."

Both the varsity and junior varsity baseball teams are to be in action. The varsity Whitefaces host District 3-5A leader Monterey at 1 p.m. Friday at Whiteface Field. Monterey enters the contest with a loop mark of 5-0 (15-1 overall) against Hereford's 1-5 and 4-7 records.

The J.V. was to play in the Amarillo Tournament today. Play concludes there Friday.

Hereford's track teams are to be running north of here Friday and Saturday. The boys squad is entered in the Amarillo Relays Friday and Saturday, while the girls are scheduled to compete in Pampa in the Top of Texas Relays Friday.

Finally, male and female team members of Hereford's golf teams pull out the sticks Friday. The girls are involved in a district match in Lubbock beginning at 8:30 a.m. at Meadowbrook Municipal Golf Course. Hereford boys will enter an A team and a B team in the Amarillo Relays. The A team will be playing on Ross Rogers Golf Course in Amarillo while the B team plays on the course at the air base.

USFL team's checks to employees bounce

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Now that the IRS has lifted a lien it slapped on the San Antonio Gunslingers' parent company, the team's players and coaches were expected to get paid today.

Paychecks issued March 19 bounced after the Internal Revenue Service imposed the lien and claimed that South Texas Sports Inc., the U.S. Football League team's owner, owed $404,763 in back taxes.

Gunslinger officials Wednesday blamed the liens for this week's delay in issuing the season's third batch of paychecks, scheduled to have been handed out Tuesday.

The delay was the second financial difficulty in the past three weeks for Gunslinger employees, including the team's 50 players and seven coaches.

Trouble began last week when the season's second round of paychecks bounced after being issued March 19. The checks finally cleared Tuesday, Gunslinger General Manager Roger Gill said.

"The checks were frozen because the IRS put a lien on the account," Gill told the San Antonio Light. "But that's been taken care of ... we're going to pay the players."

Gill added that South Texas Sports had adequate funds in its checking account when the March 19 paychecks were issued.

On March 5, team officials said the first paychecks of the season were delayed three hours because M.W. "Bud" Haun, president and chief executive officer, was out of town.

Records filed Wednesday with the Bexar County clerk indicated that two liens were lifted after South Texas Sports paid $404,763 in delinquent taxes the IRS said it owed for 1984, the Light said.

The first lien, citing $154,743.21 in delinquent payments for the period ending June 30, 1984, and $113,388.68 for the period ending Sept. 30, 1984, was filed Feb. 14.

A second lien, covering the period ending Dec. 30, 1984, was filed March 25. It cited $136,388.74 in delinquent payments.

Defensive coordinator Tim Marcum expressed confidence that Gunslinger owner Clinton Manges would make sure the players and coaches would be paid.

"I think the guy's good for it," Marcum said. "I don't think it's that big of a deal. If I did, I'd do something about it. I trust the guy."

$9 million benefit

Baseball playoffs extended

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — With time running out, negotiators for major league baseball players and club owners agreed to expand the league playoffs for one season with some fancy footwork.

The two sides sidestepped a settlement Wednesday on their main topic of disagreement — distribution of an additional $9 million in television revenue from the two extra games in each league — for the time being. The two sides agreed to place the money into escrow next Sept. 16 if the overall issue of splitting broadcast revenue isn't resolved by then.

The two sides had to come to a decision on the 1985 playoffs because of a deadline imposed by network television, which had to make scheduling arrangements.

The agreement was announced jointly Wednesday by Don Fehr, acting executive director of the Major League Players Association, and chief management negotiator Lee MacPhail following a one-hour afternoon meeting.

"This was worked out separately for 1985 because we had to make a commitment to NBC," said MacPhail. "However, once we have an agreement with the players' association to cover everything, the best-of-seven playoff will become permanent."

"These escrowed revenues would remain a matter for negotiation as a part of the total agreement which is now being negotiated," an announcement distributed by the two parties said.

Under the agreement, one of the leagues, yet to be determined, will begin its championship series on Tuesday, Oct. 8 with games also on the Oct. 9, 11, 12, 13, 15 and 16, if necessary. The other league would play Oct. 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 15 and 16. The best-of-seven World Series will start on Saturday, Oct. 19, with games also on Oct. 20, 22, 23, 24, 26 and 27.

Management has been negotiating with the union since last November to replace a Basic Agreement which expired on Dec. 31. The union has asked for a one-third share of baseball's television income, including a $1.2-billion six-year network package, to be applied toward pension benefits.

Following the announcement, the negotiators reconvened to continue discussion on other topics affecting a new Basic Agreement. The afternoon session represented the 21st since negotiations began last November.

The two sides also agreed to meet again on April 15 in New York.

"We are pleased with the constructive attitude of Don Fehr and the Players Association in helping to resolve this problem," said MacPhail, president of the owners'

Player Relations Committee. On Tuesday night, MacPhail said that agreement to expand the playoffs would have to be reached by Wednesday, or it would be too late to implement them this season.

"We hope to move on from here to tackle the problems that still exist before a final Basic Agreement is realized."

Talks on the four-year Basic Agreement that just expired led to a 1981 mid-season strike over free agency compensation.

Despite the fact that major league ballplayers are preparing for a new season without a new labor agreement, talks appear to proceed devoid of a sense of urgency.

Both sides appear to be resigned to continue negotiations through the summer and are wary of imposing any deadlines.

The spitball was banned in major league baseball in 1919 but pitchers then using it were allowed to continue for the rest of their careers.

Basketball program strong, he says

Sutton geared up for Kentucky

By ANNE S. CROWLEY Associated Press Writer

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — A few months ago, Eddie Sutton's son, one of Arkansas' top prep basketball players, wondered if Dad would recruit him for the Razorbacks when he was a senior.

But then Sean Sutton, Arkansas sophomore of the year, decided, "If Kentucky calls me, I'm going."

Dad replied, "If Kentucky calls me, I'm going, too."

Sutton told the story Wednesday, his first full day as Kentucky's basketball coach, and said he'd like Sean to play for the Wildcats some day.

But first, he said, "I've got to find out who's the best high school coach in Lexington."

While Sean finishes his prep days, Dad hopes to be well on his way to matching predecessor Joe B. Hall's one NCAA championship, if not Adolph Rupp's four.

"We're going to try to win some national championships. That's one of our goals before the season every year," Sutton said, listing the goals as a Southeastern Conference title, at least 20 victories, an NCAA bid and then the title.

"That's why I came here. We might have won a national championship at Arkansas," he said, recalling that Hall's 1978 champs beat the Razorbacks in the NCAA semifinals. "Here, I believe the personnel will be better than we ever had at Arkansas. The system should allow us to be competitive every year for the national title."

Sutton flew to Laurel, Miss., later Wednesday with assistant coach Leonard Hamilton, hoping to woo high school star Kenny Payne.

In a tribute to the late Adolph Rupp, who made Kentucky a power, Sutton wore a brown suit and brown tie imprinted with Wildcats. He joked about the legendary pressures Kentucky fans put on college basketball's winningest program and said he can't wait to get 23,000 people screaming for the Wildcats in Rupp Arena.

"Most coaches who are successful put pressure on themselves. They expect to win and they want to win," Sutton said. "I guess I'll get to feeling like a state park — everybody owns a piece of me ..."

"And if we don't win, I'll feel like I let the whole state down. But we're not going to win every ball game."

Sutton said he hoped to sell Kentucky to two or three prep seniors by the April 10 signing date.

"Sometimes when you go in with a new position, it gives you an advantage, and sometimes it's a disadvantage," he said. "But the University of Kentucky, believe me, can recruit anywhere in the country."

However, Sutton promised not to try and steal away any of the players he had been recruiting a week ago for the Razorbacks.

"I spent Arkansas money — they ought to go to Arkansas," he said.

After recruiting, he said, he wants to meet individually with the returning players, visit with Hall and settle down in Lexington.

Lopez high as event begins

By KEN PETERS

AP Sports Writer
RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Nancy Lopez, who has yet to win on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour this year, is encouraged by the way she has been hitting the ball.

"I've been hitting ball probably as good as I ever have," said Lopez, who will be one of the favorites who will tee off today in the $400,000 Nabisco-Dinah Shore Invitational.

Lopez said her confidence is high going into the LPGA's most prestigious tournament and that she's "striking the ball really well."

A winner of 17 tournaments in 1978-79, Lopez captured the Dinah Shore in 1981.

The 72-hole event at Mission Hills Country Club continues through Sunday, with a winner's prize of $55,000. The final two rounds will be televised nationally by NBC.

Lopez, however, will have Jan Stephenson and defending champion Juli Inkster leading the field of challengers.

Stephenson snapped a two-year winless string when she won in Glendale, Calif., two weeks ago.

"Winning that tournament was very important to me," said Stephenson, who mentioned during the Glendale event that she was making putts for the first time in two years. "It was like all the clouds went away."

"My attitude's great again. I can't wait to go out and practice and play. I can't wait for the Dinah Shore to begin," she said.

Inkster, who as a tour rookie last year, beat veteran Pat Bradley in a playoff for the Dinah Shore title, has the most incentive to win.

If she can successfully defend her title, Inkster will collect a $1-million bonus offered to a player who can win the Dinah Shore two years in a row. Sandra Post won in 1978 and 1979, but no bonus was offered at the time.

Inkster, who appears to like her chances of repeating, said, "I think I can win. I have as good a chance as anybody, maybe a better one since I won it last year."

"I think there are about 160 other LPGA members who'd like to be in my shoes," she said. "I've really got nothing to lose."

The prestige of the tournament, which began 14 years ago, provides enough motivation even for those players who aren't chasing $1 million.

Stephenson said she believes the tournament compares to the men's Masters.

"It's prestigious, it's colorful and exciting. It has the big money, and it has TV coverage."

"Winning the Dinah Shore is very important to the players on the tour," Lopez said. "It's a first-class tournament with a big field, tremendous galleries and the opportunity to earn big money."

Slumping golfer's confidence building

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Ben Crenshaw, in a slump most of the season, hopes to turn his game around this week in preparation for the defense of his Masters title.

"There's some encouraging signs. I'm starting to hit the ball with more authority," Crenshaw said before teeing off today in the first round of the $400,000 Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament. He will defend his Masters crown next week in Augusta, Ga.

"I'm starting to feel pretty good about things," said Crenshaw, who was disqualified once and missed the cut three times in his first six starts this season.

A two-week break from competition helped greatly, he said.

"I wasn't ready to come out this year. I was tentative, trying to guide the ball, then putting too much pressure on myself."

"There's nothing wrong with my game. I'm hitting more good shots all the time. I'm starting to feel better about it, just like I did about this time last year," he said.

Crenshaw tied for third in this event last year before going on to his career-high triumph in the Masters.

"I've had some good success here," he said. "I went to Augusta on Monday and played a practice round then."

"But I need the competition I'll get this week. And it would have done me no good to go home this week. I'd just be sitting and fretting and getting nervous."

"A good tournament here would help."

He faces major opposition in the 144-man field that is chasing a $72,000 first prize over the Forest Oaks Country Club course.

Chief among them are Ray Floyd, Craig Stadler, defending champion Andy Bean, Lanny Wadkins, U.S. Open titleholder Fuzzy Zoeller, Peter Jacobsen and Danny Edwards, a two-time Greensboro winner.

Zoeller confirmed his comeback from surgery with a victory earlier this season. Wadkins took two early-season titles. Bean and Stadler both have played well without winning. And Jacobsen has scored two runner-up finishes in his last four starts.

Other standouts include Hubert Green, 1985 PGA Tour winners Mark McCormack and Woody Blackburn, and South African Denis Watson, a three-time winner last year.

Of Kansas City Kings

Owners approve move

NEW YORK (AP) — The Kansas City Kings, a financially troubled franchise that has already moved twice in the past, is one big step closer to moving again.

On Wednesday, a special committee of National Basketball Association owners approved the team's request to move to Sacramento, Calif. The decision by the five owners must be ratified by a majority of the league's 23-member board of governors at a meeting April 16 in New York.

In fact, the Kings, mired in last place in the Midwest Division with less than two weeks remaining in the NBA season, have already sent much of their equipment and some of their office workers to Sacramento.

"If a first-class permanent arena is constructed, Sacramento can successfully support an NBA franchise," Portland owner Lawrence Weinberg, the committee chairman, said in a statement.

"If a permanent arena meeting NBA standards is not ready to open for the 1987-88 season, the NBA will have the right to purchase and relocate the Kings franchise," he said.

Should the move be formally approved, the Kings would play next season in a temporary facility now under construction that could seat 10,400. That arena, to be completed in September, was originally designed to be a warehouse, and permits have not yet been granted to convert

Boston blasts Pacers

By The Associated Press

There was nothing wrong with the Boston Celtics that the return of Larry Bird couldn't cure, but the Philadelphia 76ers still can't figure out what to do about the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Bird missed two games with bursitis in the elbow of his shooting arm and Boston promptly lost two games in a row for the first time all season. But he returned to action Wednesday night and scored 35 points in leading the Celtics to a 119-103 National Basketball Association victory over the Indiana Pacers, who suffered their 12th consecutive setback.

Boston's victory increased their Atlantic Division lead to five games over the Sixers, who were beaten by Cleveland for the fourth straight time 113-110. The Cavaliers, still 10 games under .500 despite a 31-24 record since a 2-19 start, are the only team to beat Philadelphia four times this season.

"I'm very concerned, especially at this time of year," said Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham. "We had no patience, took bad shots. Every time we play them something different hurts us. They've got a lot of depth. Someone else always seems to contribute."

Cavaliers 113, 76ers 110
Cleveland hit eight consecutive free throws in the final 2:33, four by Phil Hubbard, to post its fifth consecutive triumph and spoil a Philadelphia comeback. The Sixers trailed 99-89 with 9:51 remaining but evened the score at 105-105 with a 16-6 burst. With the score tied at 109, Hubbard hit two free throws and Philadelphia's Charles Barkley one before Cleveland's Lonnie Shelton ended the scoring with a pair from the foul line.

The Cavaliers, who have taken four of six meetings with the Sixers, didn't make a field goal in the final 2:33 but were 8-for-8 at the line. World B. Free led Cleveland with 25 points and Hubbard added 23 while Malone had 25 for Philadelphia.

Spurs 122, Lakers 108
San Antonio played without George Gervin, who has a sprained ankle, while Los Angeles was minus flu-stricken Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

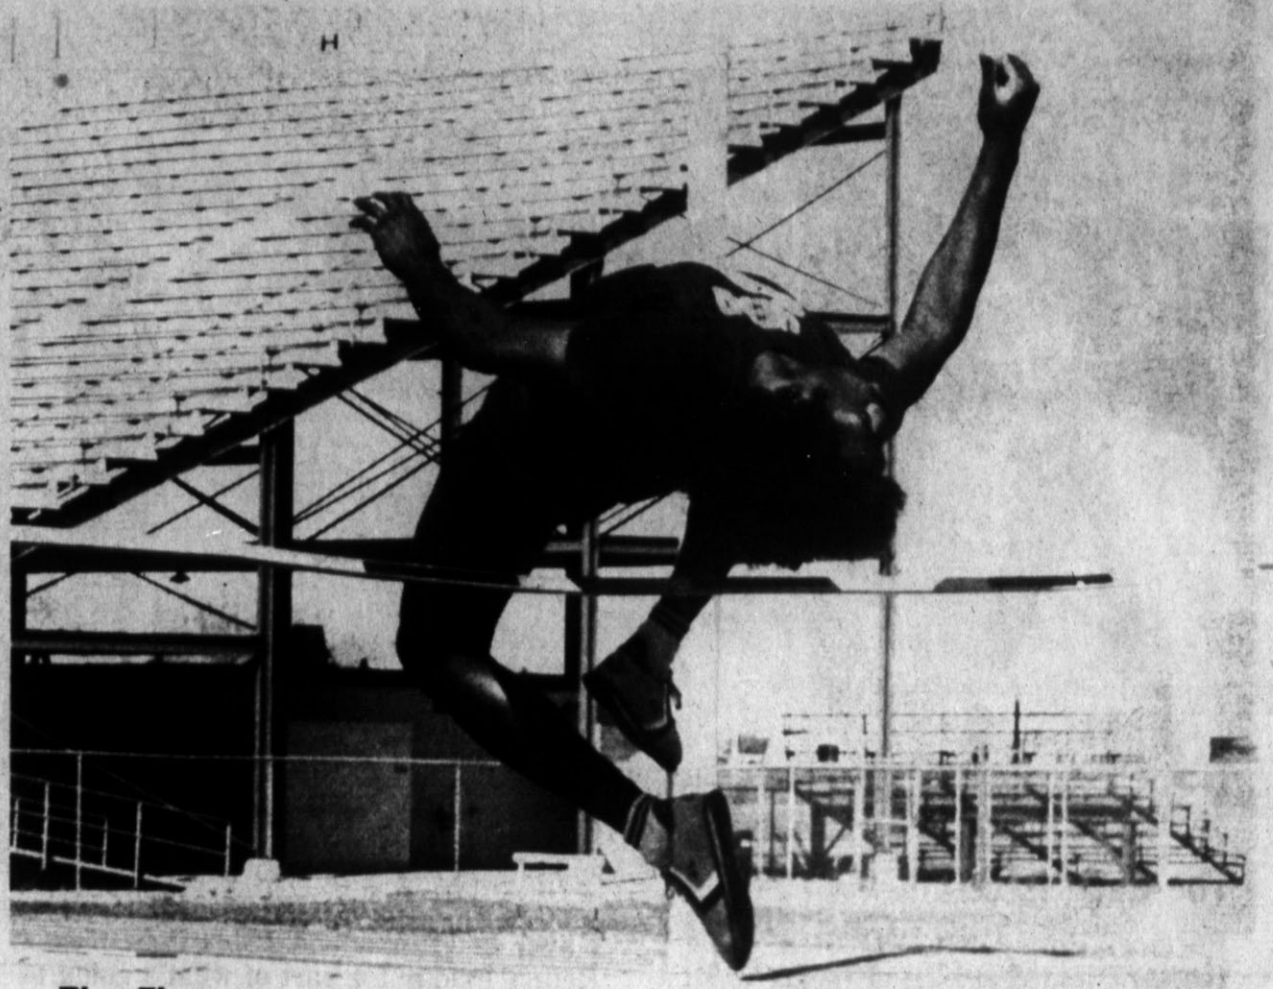

Mike Mitchell paced the Spurs with 36 points and added 14 rebounds while Johnny Moore had 17 points, eight steals and 13 assists. James Worthy was high for the Lakers with 32 points.

Nets 113, Knicks 100
Albert King scored 23 points and Buck Williams added 22 points and 15 rebounds as New Jersey gave Stan Albeck his 300th victory as a pro coach. Micheal Ray Richardson added 17 points and a season-high 17 assists. The defeat stretched the Knicks' losing streak to six games and was their eighth in a row against the Nets. Ernie Grunfeld led the Knicks with 26 points.

Bulls 100, Bullets 91
Michael Jordan scored 14 of his 25 points as Chicago outscored Washington, 30-10 in the third quarter.

The victory was only the third in the last 21 road games for the Bulls but clinched a playoff spot for the first time in four seasons.

Clippers 124, Kings 122
Derek Smith scored a career-high 41 points and the Clippers survived a late scare. Kansas City cut the Clippers' 99-90 lead to three points with 5:32 left when Smith took charge. He scored six points to key an 8-2 spurt that lifted Los Angeles to a 120-111 lead. Reggie Theus, who passed the 10,000-career-point mark, and Otis Thorpe each had 20 points to lead the Kings.

The Flop

Kevin Redus clears the high jump bar during Hereford High School track workout Wednesday at Whiteface Stadium. Redus just joined the Whitefaces this week and will run at Dumas April 13.

Michelle Mason watches as her Hereford High School teammates complete track workout at Whiteface Stadium. Mason broke her ankle at the Canyon Reef Relays in Snyder and is out of competition for the remainder of the season.

YMCA announces volleyball leagues

Hereford and Vicinity YMCA is offering an open men's and women's volleyball league, to be played at 6:30 p.m. Mondays.

Entry deadline is April 11, and fee is $65 per team. A $10 charge will be added for team members who are not Y members.

Participants must be at least 16 years old. Play begins April 15.

For more information, contact the YMCA at 364-6990.

MOVE

the building into an athletic facility. Local plans call for a larger arena, just north of the city and near the temporary site, to be built for the 1987-88 season.

"The plans for our permanent arena are right on schedule. We plan to be in an arena with seating of more than 16,000 for the 1987-88 season," said Kings assistant general manager Bob Whittsit.

Moving would be nothing new for the franchise.

The Kings were formed as the Rochester (N.Y.) Royals in 1948, moved to Cincinnati for the 1957-58 season and became the Kansas City-Omaha Kings in 1972 before dropping the Omaha designation in 1975.

Last January, the Kings announceed their intention to relocate, citing what Joe Axelson, president and general manager, termed "general-ly weak support over the years."

Said Sacramento Mayor Anne Rudin: "I'm very pleased. I was hopeful that they would get permission because it will provide entertainment. A lot of people have been looking forward to it."

Ends up in Auckland

Student heads for Oakland

LOS ANGELES (AP) — All Michael Lewis had bargained for was a one-hour connecting flight to Oakland, but less than 10 minutes after takeoff he realized he was on a 12-hour flight instead — to Auckland, New Zealand.

The Sacramento college student had settled back in his seat, thinking he was on the last, 400-mile leg of a trip home from Europe.

But the pilot came onto the public-address system shortly after the plane left Los Angeles on Monday and thanked the passengers for taking the flight to New Zealand.

Lewis, 21, said he bolted out of his chair when he realized he was taking a 6,500-mile side trip to the South Pacific on Air New Zealand.

"I got all panicky and told the stewardess, who didn't believe me at first," he said Tuesday after returning to California.

"Then they figured out that because they (New Zealanders) pronounce Auckland like Oakland, I probably got a boarding pass without them checking," he said.

Lewis began his odyssey Sunday on a World Airways jet from Frankfurt, West Germany, with a stop in London. He said he got off the plane in Los Angeles to transfer for the trip to Oakland on another World Airways flight, although he said it was difficult to decipher the name of the airline on the ticket.

Lewis said he heard a flight announced on Air New Zealand for what he thought was Oakland, and two Air New Zealand agents directed him to a departure lounge.

After a short delay, he said, he was issued a boarding pass and got on the plane without anyone checking his ticket.

But the roundabout trip home proved to be pleasant enough.

Lewis stopped in Tahiti and spent about eight hours in Auckland, where he took a bus tour of the city and did a little shopping. Then he got back on a flight to Los Angeles.

"It (Auckland) is a really nice city. I wish I could have stayed a week or so," he said. "I made some friends on the flight who offered me an opportunity to stay with them, but I ran the risk of having to pay for my flight."

The whole experience, which would have cost a regular passenger $1,032, cost Lewis nothing but time.

Dan Mortensen, airport services manager for Air New Zealand, said, "We understood him to say Auckland when he said Oakland so we accepted the responsibility for the ticket."

Lewis said he called his parents' home in Sacramento and ended up telling his story to his uncle who didn't believe him.

"Maybe it was because it was April Fool's Day, I don't know," he said.

On radar jammers

GAO says Air Force wasting money

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force is wasting $1.2 billion by developing its own radar jamming equipment for combat aircraft while at the same time working on a similar jammer with the Navy, congressional investigators have concluded.

The General Accounting Office also concluded the Air Force began production of new jammers without operational testing even though the system it is replacing proved unreliable.

The previous jammers, which are electronic devices that emit electronic signals that interfere with radar-controlled air defense weapons, broke down so often that a top Pentagon official said he found it "difficult to support continued production."

The investigators were presenting their findings today in testimony before a House Government Operations subcommittee. Air Force witnesses were set to defend the program — mostly behind closed doors because much of the information is classified.

An Air Force official, speaking only on condition he not be named, said in an interview the GAO findings on waste are incorrect because the Air Force cannot use the Navy-compatible jammers in its older aircraft.

Newer Air Force planes will use the compatible system, and the service has ordered 1,800 of those jammers, up from an initial requirement of 580, the official said.

But he contended it would cost "four times more" to install the compatible system in older planes than to adapt the Air Force's own jammers.

"The down time of the plane would be 90 to 120 days" to install the compatible system, the official added.

The Air Force installed its first jammers during the Vietnam War. A sophisticated substitute called the ALQ-131 was produced from 1979-84, and the new Air Force-only version, scheduled for initial delivery this month, is an improved model of the ALQ-131.

The jammer from the joint program is called an ASPJ, and it is due for installation on Navy, and Air Force planes in the spring of 1988.

"Savings expected to result from use of a common jammer were estimated to be $1.2 billion," according to testimony of Frank C. Conahan, director of the national security and international affairs division of the GAO.

"Our review showed that rather than promote common use of ASPJ as intended by various committees of the Congress, the Air Force has decreased its planned use.

"It has continued acquisition of several versions of the ALQ-131, increased its planned use of that jammer, and is developing upgraded versions of other jammers. As a result, potential cost savings and other benefits inherent in common service programs have so far not been fully realized."

Development and production cost of the two separate systems is expected to reach nearly $8 billion over the lifetime of the programs, according to committee chairman Jack Brooks, D-Texas.

Referring to the projected savings of a joint program, Brooks said, "That's just another way of saying that $1.2 billion will be wasted over the lifetime of the systems if the Air Force continues its present course of separate development."

Trivial Pursuit poses threat for mates

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

A New Orleans psychotherapist stated recently that husbands and wives should be careful when they play the popular game Trivial Pursuit because it could lead to marital problems.

He explained that because Trivial Pursuit demands mental skill, if the husband is a lot more stupid than the wife, or vice versa, then an imbalance is created in the marriage, and Splitsville might be forthcoming.

I am glad somebody finally went public with this theory.

I happen to be one of the foremost Trivial Pursuit players in my neighborhood. I play at least once a week at my house, and I have seen with my own eyes what sort of strain T.P. can cause between bedfellows.

A couple of Saturday nights ago, Grogan and his wife, Paula, were on my team against the Fogerty's, Jim and Hilda.

Grogan is a great Trivial Pursuit player, but Paula, his wife, is very young and still isn't certain how World War II came out.

Hilda Fogerty, on the other hand, is a whiz at the game, but a game of pick-up-sticks would put a strain on Jim's mental capacities.

The game was going along fine. The two teams were neck and neck when Jim and Hilda were asked the following question:

"What is Tony Curtis' real name?"

Hilda knew immediately.

"Bernard Schwartz," she said.

"No, it isn't," said Jim, who in a literature class once identified Sherlock Holmes as a housing project in Little Rock Ark.

"Well, what do you think the answer is, Mr. Einstein?" Hilda asked.

"Grover Saperstein," answered Jim. "I'm certain of it. I read it in a book somewhere."

Since Jim rarely spoke out when a question was asked of him team, Hilda felt he might really know the answer to this one, so she deferred to her husband.

"The answer is Grover Saperstein," said Jim, proudly.

The correct answer was Bernard Schwartz.

"Nincompoop!," said Hilda, as an embarrassed Jim sunk back into his chair.

Grogan and his wife got into it later. The question was, who was the first woman to fly solo across the Atlantic? I had no idea. Grogan said it was Amelia Earhart, but Paula went for Erica Jong, whom she had seen on Donahue.

Grogan, trying to humor his wife, agreed to go with Erica Jong. Wrong. It was Amelia Earhart.

"Airhead," said Grogan to his wife, who went to the restroom to cry.

Things got worse after that. Jim missed another key question, and Hilda threw the bean dip at him. Grogan allowed Paula to talk him into another wrong answer, and he told her she was getting fat.

Before I knew it, both couples were into what amounted to a brawl and we never did finish the game, and now I have to figure out how to get the bean dip off my living-room wall.

Call it Trivial Pursuit Syndrome, I suppose, and somebody get Donahue on this before it's too late.

President Reagan is described as "disgusted with Congress," including some of his own party's leadership in the Senate.

Loudly they protest the national debt, yet continue to vote more money for Amtrak, Job Corps, EDA, UDA, UMTA and subsidies for airlines.

His disgust is understandable.

But inconsistent.

Until he takes note of our nation's expanding worldwide welfare — to the neglect of homefolks.

I'm on a foundation board which dispenses millions every year for charitable causes and I know how easy it is to spend somebody else's money.

So I do know how easy it is for elected leaders to be generous with your money. And, what's easier yet, to not have to say "no" to anybody.

But while our foundation is careful to spend no more than it earns, Congress is mortgaging our grandchildren.

Vice President George Bush, in Africa, promised hungry people in three nations — Sudan, Niger and Mali — most of a billion dollars of additional aid.

And this is over and above our massive transfusions of aid to Ethiopians.

While here at home a fourth of our own nation's farmers face bankruptcy.

One-fourth of our own nation's children live in poverty.

And 20 million of our own nation's people are hungry.

Harvard University School of Public Health reports "hunger returned to our nation primarily due to governmental failure."

Ford Foundation reports "more poor children in America than anytime in 20 years."

Census Bureau confirms "13.7 million of our own children growing up in poverty."

In Pensacola, Fla., 10 people live in a crumbling shack on Hayne Street. Three adults and seven children without gas, water, sink, stove — or toilet.

The bathtub is filled with human excrement.

While the eyes of the news are focused elsewhere and the generosity of politicians is funneled elsewhere—one looks on and wonders.

President Reagan is described as "disgusted with Congress" for protesting the national debt while continuing to vote more and larger appropriations.

His disgust is understandable—but inconsistent—until he takes note of our nation's expanding worldwide welfare to the neglect of homefolks.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

Having served on the Board of Directors of the Deaf Smith General Hospital District for nine years, I feel that I have a grasp of many of the problems facing our hospital district. Candidate Allison has stated publicly that he would have the Board more directly involved in the management of the hospital. I feel that one of the strong points our hospital has is that the Board HAS NOT tried to run the hospital. We hired an administrator to do that job and that is what his role should be. If he is not doing an adequate job, then he should be replaced. But, in general, members of the Board are not trained in such fields as salary administration, labor-management relations, allocation of human and physical resources and its effect upon reimbursement programs, ad infinitum.

Dr. Allison further states that he feels that some money can be saved by contracting out the ambulance services. That option was explored extensively before the current hospital based service was started and determined to be too expensive. Our ambulance service is currently costing $50,000 to $60,000 annually in subsidies versus $141,000 for a contracted service making a similar number of calls in Borger.

Dr. Allison is an employee of Dr. Gill who contracts his services to North West Texas Hospital. After having served with Dr. Allison on the Board for two years, it is my opinion that his loyalty is with his employer and not with Deaf Smith General. In the next few years, competition between hospitals for patients will be keen. If we are not competitive, we WILL NOT have a hospital in Hereford and if our competitive strategies are public knowledge to our competitors, we will have a much more difficult task.

Sincerely yours,

Edward C. Reinauer, Jr.

Great Western Sugar may sell refineries to grower co-op

DALLAS (AP) — Great Western Sugar Co. has tentatively agreed to sell six sugar refineries in Colorado and Kansas to a cooperative of beet growers from those states, the Dallas Times Herald reported Wednesday.

Parties to the agreement said an attempt by creditors to force Great Western's parent company, Hunt International Resources Corp. into bankruptcy would not affect the sale.

Dallas-based Hunt International is owned by trusts controlled by brothers Nelson Bunker Hunt and W. Herbert Hunt and their families.

An attorney for the Mountain States Beet Growers Cooperative said the sale would be "essentially a cash deal," and that Great Western's principal bank lenders had approved the idea, which is valued at a "little less" than the $21.5 million a New York-based sugar refiner recently agreed to pay for six other Great Weshile. While we have a tentative agreement, we don't have a signed document."

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, in accordance with the rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice of the Company's intent to implement a new schedule of telephone rates in Texas, effective April 29, 1985, unless otherwise determined by the Commission.

While proposals as to specific rates vary, it is expected that the requested rate schedule will furnish a 10.5 percent increase in the Company's unadjusted test year intrastate revenues.

A complete copy of the new rate schedule is on file with the Public Utility Commission at Austin, Texas and with each affected incorporated municipality served by Southwestern Bell Telephone Company. The Commission staff has contended in the past that all rates are subject to change as a result of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's rate application. This filing includes, but is not limited to, proposals to increase rates for local exchange service, intraLATA long distance, intraLATA interexchange private line service (which includes foreign exchange service) and to decrease certain access service rates.

Notice to Customers of Other Telephone Companies

This filing includes, but is not limited to, proposals to increase rates for intraLATA long distance and for intraLATA, interexchange private line service (which includes foreign exchange service) and to decrease certain access service rates. Changes in such rates would also affect customers of other telephone companies because such companies provide certain services in accordance with rates specified in Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's tariffs.

Notice to All Customers Concerning Access Charges and Certain New Service Charges

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, as a part of this filing, is also proposing to reduce certain access rates charged such customers as AT&T Communications, Inc., MCI and other carriers. The resulting reduction in revenues is proposed to be offset by revenues from two new service charges, late payment charges applicable to business customers only and for certain operator services such as busy line verification, plus stimulation of access service charge revenues. Since this portion of the filing, if granted, would have essentially a zero net revenue effect on Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company is proposing that this portion of the filing be expeditiously handled by the Commission and not await Final Order.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate, or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227, or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf.

Aviso Público

En conformidad con las disposiciones de la Comisión de Servicios Públicos de Texas, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company anuncia mediante el presente aviso su intención de establecer un nuevo arancel de tarifas telefónicas en Texas, con vigencia a partir del 29 de abril de 1985, salvo disposición en contrario de la Comisión.

Si bien existe variación entre las propuestas en cuanto a las tarifas precisas, se anticipa que el arancel tarifario solicitado aumentará en un 10.5% los ingresos intraestatales no ajustados de Southwestern Bell Telephone Company durante el año de prueba.

Una copia completa del nuevo arancel de tarifas se halla archivada en las oficinas de la Comisión de Servicios Públicos en Austin, Texas, así como en cada municipalidad incorporada afectada que tenga servicio de Southwestern Bell Telephone Company. En el pasado, la Comisión ha sostenido que toda tarifa se halla sujeta a cambio toda vez que Southwestern Bell Telephone Company solicite nuevas tarifas. El registro de esta tarifa incluye, pero no en forma limitativa, las propuestas de aumentar las tarifas por servicios de centrales locales, de larga distancia intraLATA y por servicios de línea privada interLATA entre centrales (incluyendo servicios de centrales externas) así como las propuestas de reducir ciertas tarifas de servicio de acceso.

Aviso a los clientes de otras compañías de teléfono

El registro de esta tarifa incluye, pero no en forma limitativa, las propuestas de aumentar las tarifas por servicios de larga distancia intraLATA y por servicios de línea privada interLATA entre centrales (incluyendo servicios de centrales externas) así como las propuestas de reducir ciertas tarifas de servicio de acceso. Los cambios en dichas tarifas también afectarían a los clientes de otras compañías de teléfono, puesto que dichas compañías proporcionan ciertos servicios de acuerdo con las tarifas especificadas en los aranceles tarifarios de Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

Aviso a todos los clientes con respecto a los cargos de acceso y a determinados cargos nuevos de servicio

Al registrar esta tarifa, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company también propone reducir ciertas tarifas de acceso que se les cobran a clientes como AT&T Communications, Inc., MCI y otras compañías de larga distancia. La consecuente reducción de ingresos se piensa compensar por medio de dos cargos nuevos de servicio (cargos por pago atrasado que se aplicarían solamente a usuarios comerciales, y cargos por ciertos servicios de operadora, tales como verificación de línea ocupada) además de la estimulación de los ingresos por cargos por servicios de acceso. En vista de que, en caso de otorgarse esta parte del arancel tarifario registrado, su efecto real en los ingresos de Southwestern Bell Telephone Company sería igual a cero, ésta propone que la Comisión tramite dicha parte de la tarifa en forma expeditiva sin esperar la Orden Definitiva.

Toda persona que desee intervenir o participar en el presente proceso debe notificar a la Comisión lo antes posible. Las solicitudes de intervención, participación o información deben dirigirse a: Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Para obtener mayor información debe llamar a Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division, (512) 458-0223, o (512) 458-0227, o al (512) 458-0221 si requiere teletipo para personas con impedimentos de audición.

An open letter to all women who use Playtex Tampons

Soon you will find new Playtex Slender, Super and Super Plus tampons in your store. These Playtex tampons will no longer be made with a highly absorbent fiber containing polyacrylate. Playtex "Regular" tampons now being produced and distributed do not contain polyacrylate and are not affected by the change.

Why is Playtex doing this? Because there are some questions about whether or not certain super absorbent substances, such as polyacrylate, increase the risk of Toxic Shock Syndrome.

Playtex will continue to support research on the subject of Toxic Shock Syndrome. In the meantime, we have decided to act now by eliminating any controversy that might exist associated with polyacrylate by voluntarily eliminating it from our products.

If you have Playtex Slender, Super or Super Plus tampons, Playtex will replace them without charge. Discard these tampons and mail just the front panel from the empty box (or boxes) to: International Playtex, Inc., P.O. Box 7010, Dover, Delaware 19903.

You will receive a coupon that you can redeem for a free package of new Playtex tampons, plus a refund for the cost of your postage. These tampons will begin appearing on store shelves by mid-April. Be sure to include your name and address. Allow 4-6 weeks for delivery.

Dutch lab ships human skin for burn victims

BEVERWIJK, Netherlands
(AP) — The wealth on deposit at this Dutch coastal city's most unusual bank sits in simple jars, each containing skin donated by the dead for recycling on the living.

The nine-year-old Dutch National Skin Bank processes about 50 donor bodies a year, using a method of preservation through glycerol immersion that it claims is inexpensive, long-lasting, and lends itself easily to transportation.
"We are the only skin bank in the world, as far as we know, currently using high concentrations of glycerol for skin preservation," claimed researcher Hans Hoekstra in an interview.

And he added that skin preserved by the bank's method was not rejected by recipients' bodies as quickly as skin preserved by other methods, notably freezing, freeze-drying and deep-

freezing through immersion in liquid nitrogen.

Glycerol is a syrupy substance commonly used as a preservative in other skin banks, notably in the United States, but in such low concentrations that the skin must also be frozen to preserve it.

The Dutch bank's procedure begins with the removal of superficial layers of skin, measuring 12-15
thousandths of an inch thick and up to two inches wide, from the legs and backs of donor bodies, using a specially designed electricallyoperated shaver.

Standard organ transplant forms are required for the operation, which generally takes about two hours per body.

The donor skin must be shaved off within 12 hours of death and then treated with the glycerol, which replaces the tissue's natural water content. The strips of skin are rolled and put in jars, which are then refrigerated.

"With this method you can keep the skin without changing its structure for at least 20 months," said Rudolf Her-mans, a surgeon and burn specialist at the hospital and one of the skin bank's founders.

One of the advantages of the Beverwijk method is that the preserved skin can be shipped without refrigeration, said Hoekstra, adding that "you can put the skin in your own car and transport it anywhere in the world."

The skin is ultimately used in combination with a burn victim's own skin to prevent life-threatening infection and foster the growth of replacement tissue.

At the adjacent Red Cross Hospital in this coastal Dutch city, surgeons use the preserved skin in what is known as the "double-coverage" or "sandwich technique."

After the removal of burned skin, a small amount of the patient's own skin, cut off and expanded by a special machine into a mesh pattern, is put over the burn area and covered by a sheet of the preserved donor skin.

As the burn victim's own skin grows to cover the wound, the donor skin is gradually rejected and peels away.

Although no transplanted skin is ever permanently accepted by the body, Hermans claimed that skin preserved in the high concentration of glycerol resists rejection for four to six weeks, compared to only one to two weeks for skin preserved by other methods.

The skin bank, the only one in the Netherlands, supports itself through fees as well as private donations.

Last year, the bank provided a total of 48,000 square inches of donor skin to burn victims in the Netherlands,
Belgium and Germany.

Vegetable chemicals may help chemotherapy

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A class of cancer-preventing chemicals in cabbage, brussels sprouts, broccoli and

cauliflower might be used to protect people against toxic compounds and make radiation treatments and chemotherapy safer, a researcher says.

The chemicals, called dithiolthiones, inhibited cancer formation, reduced radiation damage and protected against harmful toxic materials when fed to rats and mice, said Dr. Ernest Bueding, a pharmacologist at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore.

He said radiation therapy and chemotherapy to combat cancer sometimes damage
non-cancer cells, spurring formation of other tumors after the original cancer has been treated successfully.

Because dithiolthiones seem to protect healthy cells but not cancerous ones, they might be administered in conjunction with radiation or chemotherapy to prevent subsequent cancers, Bueding said Wednesday at the American Cancer Society's annual science writers' seminar.

The National Academy of Sciences has previously reported scientific evidence indicating consumption of such vegetables as cabbage,
brussels sprouts, broccoli and cauliflower is associated with a reduced incidence of cancer in humans.

Public Utility Commission of Texas

Consumer Update

Q: I think my electric company is demanding too much of a deposit from me.
I thought about writing the Public Utility Commission before, but I didn't know if my complaint would be important enough for you to investigate.

A: If you have a complaint regarding your electric, telephone or water service, and have been unable to resolve the complaint with your utility, you should contact the Consumer Affairs
Office of the Public Utility Commission.

Most customers who contact the Consumer Affairs
Office have complaints regarding deposits, bills or service disconnections. But customers also contact our office for assistance on a wide variety of problems including:

- high meter readings that are not believed to be correct;
- unsatisfactory quality of service (such as static on the telephone line);
- difficulty in obtaining service;
- inadequate repairs;
- voltage variations (such as power surges);
- difficulty in obtaining a different grade of telephone service (such as a four-party customer trying to obtain two-party service).

•party line abuse by party line associates.

The Consumer Affairs Office will contact your utility and ask it to conduct an investigation into your complaint. The utility is required to report to the Commission within 30 days. We will then review the utility's report to see if any Commission rules or orders, or utility tariffs have been violated. In case where the utility has not acted properly, the Commission will instruct the utility to correct its action.

No problem is too small for investigation by the Consumer Affairs Office. Keep in mind, too, that we are interested in hearing from you even if you do not have a particular complaint.
General comments about utility rates or services provide vital information to the Commission in its effort to regulate effectively.

Consumer Update is prepared and distributed by the Consumer Affairs Office of the Public Utility Commission of Texas. Our address is 7800 Shoal Creek
Boulevard, Suite 450A,
Austin, Texas 78757. The Consumer Affairs telephone number is (512) 458-0223 or 458-0227. The TTY number for the deaf is (512) 458-0221.

Organization seeking two future journalists

Two Hereford High School seniors have an opportunity to win a $500 college scholarship, it was announced this week by O.G. Nieman, publisher of the Hereford Brand.

The Brand is a member of the West Texas Press Association, the world's largest regional press group, and that organization is seeking out two future community journalists to receive stipends of $500 each.

Through the "Bob Craig Memorial Scholarship" program, named in honor of long-time Hamlin Herald publisher Bob Craig who died in 1981, the West Texas Press Association is sponsoring an essay contest based on the theme "My Future and Career Plans in Community Journalism." High school seniors interested in pursuing a career in community journalism may submit their essays to WTPA Scholarship Committee.

Glenn Rea, Chairman, Box 757, Azle, Texas 76020.

The essays must be postmarked no later than April 5, 1985.

The essay is limited to a maximum of 400 words and no letters of reference will be accepted for consideration in the contest.

In addition to being a senior in high school, they must maintain a "B" average or better and plan to continue studies at a school of journalism. Once the winners are selected they must be enrolled in at least three hours of journalism each semester he or she receives assistance.

The scholarships will be divided into payments of $250 per semester for two semesters for two students.

The essays will be judged by the Texas Press Association.

Of West Texas Hispanic homes

Elaborate icons cherished feature

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — The intricately detailed ivory statue of the Virgin Mary is surrounded by plants and flowers as it sits high above a small mountain of rocks in the back yard of Carolina Luna's house in south San Angelo.

Two blocks down the same street, Mr. and Mrs. Maurilio Marquez proudly display their ivory white statue of Jesus amid a flower garden in their front yard.

Icons, or statues of religious images, are cherished in many Hispanic homes.

The Catholic tradition is hundreds of years old.

"As a devoted Catholic all my life, I have had several religious statues of saints and wall-framed prayers throughout my house for many years," said Mrs. Luna.

"This is the way I show my love for Jesus, as many people do all over the world," said the 48-year-old woman.

"To me, it is similar to hanging or displaying pictures of loved ones all over our walls and shelves. We do this because we love our children and relatives, so in effect, this is basically the same thing."

"We have a few in the house," Mrs. Marquez said, 74. "Our grandchildren gave us the statue of Jesus last September. We are very proud of it, so that is why we placed it in the front of our house. When we die, it will be placed near our graves."

Mrs. Marquez said the family have been Catholics all of their lives.

"My mother raised me up as a Catholic," she said. "I believe in the religion with all my heart and I always will. I believe that our strong religious upbringing and beliefs in God helped us raise our five children."

"Our children come to us and say 'thank you, for we are what we are because of you,'" Mrs. Marquez said. "In our display of our religious statue, I am simply following something my mother used to do as her way of showing her pride of being a Catholic. I also take great pride in being a Catholic."

Mr. Marquez, 76, agreed with his wife of 56 years.

"I think education comes from the home and if you raise your children right from the beginning by teaching them religion and discipline, then they have a better chance to grow up and be responsible adults," he said.

Mrs. Marquez said her belief in all the religious saints has helped her through some bad times in her life.

"I have a lot of faith in God and all of the saints," she said. "Other people from different religions say that these saints don't have any power, but I feel that they do because they are in heaven. I sincerely believe that our strong belief in our religion has helped my husband and I be together for such a long time."

Mrs. Luna said that most people from other religions don't understand Catholics and some of the traditions dear to them.

"Lots of people don't even try to understand Catholics," Mrs. Luna said. "They think we have these religious symbols in our homes as 'things that will save us.' But, this is not true. When I go into a home and see these religious statues or prayers, I know that the home is a Christian home, one that is owned by people who believe in God."

"These days, some people seem to have drifted away from religion because there are so many other outside factors available now. But, I strongly believe in my religion because I love it. If you understand it, then you can love it."
