Senate Votes To Act On Proposed $212,000,000 State Road Bond Amendment

OPPONENTS OF ISSUE MOVE FOR BALLOT

Count Stands 19 to 10 In Surprise Call For Action

ONEAL SAYS 'AYE'

Resolution Carries After Poage Stages Lone Filibuster

AUSTIN, March 31. (AP)—Voting 19 to 10 the senate late today engrossed the $212,000,000 highway bond issue resolution. Senator Martin of Hillsboro, an opponent, moved to engross the resolution.

Senators Beck of De Kalb, Berkeley of Alpine, Cousins of Beaumont, Gainer of Bryan, Greer of Athens, Holbrook of Galveston, Loy of Sherman, Moore of Greenville, Miss Neal of Carthage, Oneal of Wichita Falls, Parr of Benavides, Patton of Crockett, Purl of Dallas, Russek of Schulenberg, Stevenson of Victoria, Woodul of Houston, and Woodward of Coleman, voted for the resolution.

Those opposing engrossement were: Cunningham of Abilene; Harden of Stephenville, Hopkins of Gonzales, Hornsby of Austin, Martin of Hillsboro, Parrish of Lubbock, Rawlings of Fort Worth, Small of Wellington, and Woodruff of Decatur.

Senator Pollard, absent, was paired with Senator Deberry. Pollard would have voted for engrossment and Deberry against.

Martin's move was unexpected and seemingly a surprise to the proponents of the bond issue. The first effort to have the previous question ordered and shut off debate was made last Friday. As a result of proponents' plans to have the previous question ordered, Martin at that time conducted a short "filibuster." Martin relinquished the floor after on hour and 45 minutes, being told at that time "if the previous question was ordered, the opponents would do it."

This afternoon's session also had its filibuster. Taking the floor shortly after 2 o'clock, senator Poage of Waco kept it until 4.

Cash Ordered

Senator Poage of Waco proposed to amend the resolution by eliminating the state bond issue feature, and authorizing the building and maintenance of roads and the refunding of county bonded indebtedness from the gasoline and motor fuel tax alone.

An amendment by Senator Martin of Hillsboro which stated the

OXFORD HAS 22 COLLEGES

THE oldest university in England is Oxford. Although there is no record of its existence as a school before 1167, it is authentic that continental lectures took place there in 1117. When relations between England and France were broken in 1167, all foreign students were expelled from the University of Paris, the oldest in the world. Consequently all the English students returned to their own country, and the University of Oxford was the outcome. Oxford now has 22 colleges and three private halls. Women have been admitted to lectures only since 1884, but full membership was granted in 1920. Business institutions use the Classified advertising columns of The Daily Times-Record News as a means of contacting the public and obtaining students. Death Of Knute Rockne In Tragic Plane Crash Shocks Whole Nation

Crumpling Wing Of Big Transport Causes Disaster

COTTONWOOD FALLS, Kan., March 31. (UP)—Dr. D. M. Nigro, of Kansas City, arrived here tonight with the two sons of Knute Rockne to claim the body of the famous Notre Dame football coach.

The broken bodies of Rockne and seven other men who perished today in the crash of a Transcontinental and Western Air Transport plane near Bazaar, Kan., were in the McKenzie mortuary here awaiting word from relatives.

Dr. Nigro, a close personal friend of Rockne for many years, drove here from Kansas City with the two Rockne boys, Knute Jr., 14 and William, 11.

Before starting, the two boys were told their father was seriously hurt. News of his death was not conveyed to them until after Dr. Nigro brought them to Cottonwood Falls.

Boys' Fears Confirmed

He entered the mortuary where lay the body of the celebrated coach, confirmed identification, and then returned to the automobile in which the boys waited to tell them what they had suspected.

Doctor Nigro will leave Cottonwood Falls at 4:34 Wednesday morning with Rockne's body. He will arrive in Kansas City at 7:45 and leave for Chicago at 8:05 a. m. on the Santa Fe. Arrival in Chicago is scheduled for 7:45 Wednesday night.

The mutilated bodies of the victims—six passengers and two pilots—lay at an undertaker's here tonight, while the sportsmen of a nation mourned its greatest football figure.

The dead:

Knute Rockne of Notre Dame university, South Bend, Ind.

J. M. Happer, 2037 Powell avenue, Chicago.

H. J. Christon, 400 North Michigan boulevard, Chicago.

W. D. Miller, 312 Farmington avenue, Hartford, Conn.

C. A. Robech, Wheeling, W. Va.

S. Goldthwaite, 333 East Forty-Third street, New York City.

Pilots:

Robert Frye, Kansas City, Mo.

Jess Mathias, Kansas City (copilot).

Rockne's Body Mangled

Rockne's body was badly mangled. His head was crushed and almost torn off. Both legs were broken and one almost amputated by the force of the impact. His body was a mass of bruises.

It will be almost impossible to restore the face for burial services, the doctor said. He said an artificial face might be made but believed Mrs. Rockne would not permit it. He talked with her by long distance telephone. She is in Florida.

Rockne's body was one of the four thrown clear of the plane, it was learned. A rosary found in the wreckage was believed to be his.

Doctor Nigro, a graduate of Notre Dame and president of the institution's alumni association in Kansas City, said the body of the famous coach was identified only through belongings found in his possession.

Wings Drop

The plane left Kansas City in cloudy weather at 9:45 a. m., for Wichita, Kan., and Los Angeles. It crashed just before 11 on the Bazaar farm. Two farmers saw a wing drop from the plane.

The plan halted momentarily. The wing fluttered sideways; the plane plunged down. Mail was strewn for a quarter of a mile between wing and plane. The bodies of the occupants were in and around the wreckage. The plane did not burn.

Rockne, called the greatest figure in football, and certainly one of the most popular, was on his way to Los Angeles, to negotiate for a series of short football films, showing his great football team in spring practice. He planned to return this week-end to visit his two sons, who are in school in Kansas City. Mrs. Rockne, with two other children, Mary Jean, 11, and Jack,

KNUTE ROCKNE

Football Genius Of Notre Dame Widely Mourned

By WARREN BROWN
(Copyr., 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.)

CHICAGO, March 31.—The airplane crash near Emporia, Kan., which today snuffed out the lives of eight, Knute Kenneth Rockne, of Notre Dame, among them, left the world, and not only the athletic world, stunned, refusing to believe, grieved, unable to express coherent words:

Knute Rockne killed!

From the Notre Dame campus, where Marchmont Schwartz, one of the stars of Notre Dame's championship team of last year, sobbed out his unbelief, "it can't be true!" to the uttermost corner of the land, where Rockne's name and life typified successful, honorable and sportsmanlike accomplishment, a whole country stood aghast.

South Bend Dazed

In South Bend, where Rockne resided, and where his career has been centered since he first appeared as a candidate for 'varsity football squad in 1911, business was suspended entirely, when confirmation—dreaded confirmation—came of the news that the "wizard of Notre Dame" was no more.

Here in Chicago, where Rockne's mother resides, where he had his first grade schooling, and where many of his most notable triumphs, in athletics, in radio work, in public speaking, and in writing have been accomplished, the same refusal to believe that what had happened, had happened.

"I can't believe it! I don't believe it," said Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics for the Western conference.

Just before taking the train last night which bore him to Kansas City, and ultimately to his tragic end, Rockne visited Chicago friends.

He was his usual self, joking about the "sad prospects" of his team, for next fall. The words, though none of his listeners suspected as much then, were strangely prophetic. For "sad prospects" indeed have come upon Notre Dame with which the name of Rockne is synonymous.

Notre Dame Since 1911

Since that afternoon, in 1911, when Rockne, a stripling candidate for a position as end, first reported to Jess Harper, then coach of football at Notre Dame, as a competitor, as an assistant coach, and finally head coach, Rockne advanced with strides that, these last six years had been well nigh spectacular, to a place, especially in football, where he was recognized as the game's greatest coach, and one of its finest influences.

His style of football play and strategy, the Notre Dame, and the Rockne system being again synonymous, spread throughout the country, until, at the present time there are more than a hundred coaches using it.

As Rockne's fame increased, the demands upon him grew greater. As an author, an after dinner speaker, a radio speaker, chief instructor at football coaching schools, author, and notable figure, Rockne's time was at a premium. So insistent, and so numerous were the demands for his presence here, there and everywhere, that the strain finally told on him.

Coach Stricken

At the Indiana game, early in the season of 1929, he was stricken with a malady, phlebitis, that incapacitated him for the remainder of that season, and at times, threatened his life.

As a stimulator of sales for the Studebaker corporation, Rockne just recently made a country wide tour. He rested for a while, with his family in Florida, and then prepared to take up some further consideration of motion picture work. This was partly responsible for his trip to Los Angeles which resulted in his death.

When the young Rockne's football playing career was ended, in 1914, he remained at Notre Dame as an aide to Harper, and in 1918 became head coach.

Under his personal direction, Notre Dame's football teams rapidly advanced in excellence, and within the 10-year period that closed with his death, four of his teams have been recognized generally as outstanding for their year.

His 1921 team, which included the immortal George Gipp, Rockne always liked to refer to as his greatest, though the team that swept the country in 1929 and again in 1930, and the "Four Horsemen" of the 1924 season, all national champions, and undefeated, caused Rockne, more than once, to sidestep, as only he could, any direct reply to the question of his greatest organization.

The aid and comfort, and the ready help he has given to football coaches of high and low degree will probably never be known in its entirety.

They mourn him today, as Dick Hanley of Northwestern phrased it, not as a fellow coach, but as a friend.

Which, in so many words, is likely to be football's epitaph to Knute Kenneth Rockne, the "wizard of Notre Dame."

The gun was dropped as Mrs. Covey picked it up from a dresser. One bullet lodged in the woman's abdomen, another in a bed, and a third in the wall. The woman's husband, P. D. Covey, said six bullets wound have been discharged had not the third jammed.

Homer Altman Given Ten-Year Term in Sam Tanner Slaying

ASPERMONT, Texas, March 31. (AP)—Homer Altman, 26, farmer of near Willard, N. M., was convicted today of murder for the fatal shooting of Sam Tanner, pioneer Stonewall county ranchman, and was assessed a 10-year penitentiary sentence.

Tanner was shot to death in a hog pen on his ranch, 18 miles southwest of Aspermont. Altman, former tenant on the Tanner place, was arrested the next day near Tatum, N. M., and waived extradition for return to Texas.

Altman pleaded defense of his home. His mother testified to having intercepted letters written by Tanner to Mrs. Juanita Altman, wife of the defendant. The younger woman testified that Tanner came to see her while she was visiting a relative at Rotan last October, professed love for her and said he "could dispense with Homer."

Young Altman related that on the day of the shooting he had gone hunting and stopped to ask Tanner when he could pay a $500 debt the ranchman owed him. He said Tanner stooped behind a barrel in the hog pen and put his hand on his hip. Altman said he thought Tanner was reaching for a gun and that he shot him.

CONOCO RAISES TAKINGS FROM WICHITA WELLS

Company to Run Four Barrels per Well Instead Of Two and Half

NEW ORDER IS LATE

State Proration Schedule Not Yet Issued as Old Period Expires

Continental Oil company from its headquarters here announced Tuesday that effective Wednesday, April 1, a maximum of four barrels of oil will be taken from all wells at the present time connected with its pipe line in this district.

Heretofore the pipe line has accepted but two and one-half barrels from each well according to the company's order that became effective Feb. 1.

NEW PRORATION ORDER DELAYED

AUSTIN, March 31. (AP)—The railroad commission let another day pass without issuing an oil proration order and imposing initial restrictions on the new flush pools in East Texas.

The present statewide order expires at 7 o'clock tomorrow but C. V. Terrell, chairman of the commission, said he understood it would be respected for one or two days longer without necessity of a renewal. Terrell did not say whether or not the new order would be issued tomorrow.

One of the factors which may be causing the commission concern is that wells are being brought in in the new area almost every day, thereby increasing the potential.

Representatives of the central proration committee said today they expected the East Texas allowable production figure to be larger than the committee recommended at the long hearing last week. The committee suggested 50,000 barrels daily at the start, increasing to 70,000 barrels Aug. 1. Committee representatives admitted today the figure might start at 70,000 or 75,000 barrels and go up to 100,000 barrels or more. Three wells had been brought in since the hearing was concluded Saturday night.

CARL ESTES TAKES SHOT AT HAMILTON

TULSA, Okla., March 31. (AP)—Anti-prorationists of the East Texas oil field will contest levy of the contemplated curtailment order by the Texas railroad commission to the last ditch, according to Carl Estes, editor of the Tyler Telegraph, who conferred with Paul Hedrick, oil editor of the Tulsa World, here today.

Estes is secretary of the East Texas Lease, Royalty and Producers association.

"I think we have a surprise in store for the 'mineral shepherds' who claim to be so interested in the prevention of waste in the East Texas fields," he stated.

"A rather peculiar incident has occurred since I arrived in Tulsa, in that Wallace Jenkins, partner of W. B. Hamilton of Wichita Falls, who persists in declaring that he is head of the East Texas producers group, called me over long distance telephone here tonight and volunteered to join our association in the injunction proceedings which will certainly be sought when the commission orders proration," Estes stated.

"This simply goes to show that Hamilton does not represent all of the producers in the new fields by a long shot," Estes concluded.

He left here tonight for Austin, to confer with former Gov. Dan Moody who is chief of the legal counsel for the anti-prorationists.

Wichita County Well Produces

Penetrating three and one-half feet into a rich oil sand topped at 1746 feet, E. J. Stump and associates No. 1 W. H. Barton in southwest Wichita county is rated at 250 barrels per day.

The well is located 3800 feet north and 1413 feet east of the southwest corner of W. H. Spiller survey, abstract 258, and approximately one and a quarter miles southwest of the Deep Oil Development No. 1 Munger. The producer is also 750 feet east of the old Lamber-Atlantic company's well, a consistent producer for some time but finally abandoned.

The completion of the well, which is a rank wildcat will be the means of opening up for further exploitation several hundred undrilled acres in the immediate vicinity, and plenty of new activity is expected to begin on the surrounding tracts as a result of the strike. The test was swabbing 11 barrels per hour.

775 Women Greet Mrs. Northcross At Opening of Cooking School Here

"Better Health" Stressed in First Lecture at Auditorium; Mrs. Newton Maer Introduces Speaker

By MRS. L. N. CASON
Record News Society Editor

"I would be happy if I thought you were one-tenth as glad to see me as I am to see you," said Mrs. Frances Northcross in greeting her audience of 775 attentive persons at The Wichita Daily Times and Record News cooking school which opened at the Memorial auditorium Tuesday afternoon.

"It's true we've had a little hard times all over the world but that only brings us a little closer together; we have to have a few shadows and a few dark clouds. And now we are going to have a real revival. I have learned to preach better than last year and we will have a revival for better health; a budget for better health."

"Life without service," the lecturer continued, "is a futile thing. Education is only of benefit as it gives service to mankind and of all institutions in the world, the most important thing is home."

Mrs. Maer Speaks

J. H. Allison of The Wichita Daily Times and Record News presented Mrs. Newton Maer, president of the Woman's Forum and representative woman of Wichita Falls who introduced Mrs. Northcross to an audience made up of many who attended the school in which she lectured in this city in 1930. "The cooking school," Mrs. Maer said, "is one of the big things we have to look forward to each year. Its influence is felt in so many homes of the city. It is such a wonderful thing that I wonder sometimes if we appreciate the efforts put forth by the newspapers who have investigated and brought us a lecturer from the best company in the country. A lecturer with a pleasing personality, a keen sense of humor and wide experience. In Washington just a short time ago, some 10,000 women attended her school each day.

"I take great pleasure," Mrs. Maer concluded, "in welcoming back a friend as well as an outstanding lecturer and I present to you again Mrs. Frances Northcross."

Mrs. Northcross made an interesting talk on health as a prelude to her demonstration of health products in preparing and cooking attractive dishes, which were later presented to the women in the audience.

"The children cannot hope to progress," she said, "unless they have strength and health." President Hoover was quoted as stating that if we could have one 100 per cent healthy generation, we would annihilate crime. "We are here for that objective," Mrs. Northcross stated. "Health must be your first obligation to the child and you cannot give it unless you know the A.

Cotton Co-Op Promises to Change Conditions Cited by Westbrook

HOUSTON, March 31. (AP)—A statement saying measures were to be taken "to overcome as soon as possible some of the conditions complained of" by Lawrence Westbrook of Waco, Texas, representative of the American Cotton Cooperative association, in his letter of resignation, was issued early tonight by the advisory committee of the Texas Cotton Cooperaitve association after an all-day executive meeting.

Westbrook, when he sent his letter of resignation to Chairman James C. Stone of the federal farm board on March 15, requested the board's "immediate inervention to protect the interests of 40,000 Texas members of the organization."

"It has become necessary," his communication went on, "to request that you make public certain information now in your possession relative to the condition of the Texas Cotton Cooperative association." Westbrook had insisted upon "immediate investigation."

Today's meeting was called by the American association and those attending refused to discuss the Westbrook matter further than in the formal statement. They said, however, power to accept or reject the Waco man's resignation rested solely with the American association.

Westbrook himself declined to comment, referring newspaper men to the statement itself.

WOMEN STUDY CULINARY ARTS

Mrs. Northcross Opens Second School Here

B. C. of nutrition. You make your sacrifices for the greatest institution in history, the home; the world depends on you. It looks to you. You are making the path a little smoother for some who will follow on."

Boston Cream Pie

Chatting easily with her audience, Mrs. Northcross proceeded to prepare Boston cream pie and filling for the delicious pastry, by the receipt given on the Tuesday program. She stressed the value of milk as a food, stating that it supplied nutrition for the brain and that digestible fats, vitamins and all nutrition necessary was found in good milk. Using Lehrack's pasteurized milk for her work, she mentioned numbers of scientists who recommended pasteurized milk; the kitchen tested Gold Medal flour was used as her favorite and she stated that women giving attention to such matters in research work, gave their approval to this flour. "The Best ingredients," Mrs. Northcross said, "are cheapest in the end."

As the filling for the pie was mixed, divided into two portions, one flavored with plain vanilla and one chocolate, the lecturer stressed the value of a balanced menu and advised that harmony be used in color. "There are vitamins in color," she said; "foods that have color are like ignition sparks." Variety in flavor and plenty of roughage were urged with a subtle hand in seasoning.

"We wear ourselves out running human machines," the audience was told, "and we must keen them lubricated." In preparing food, the lecturer used Morton's iodized salt to prevent thyroid tendencies and said that though the government has seen to it that our baking powder is all good, she chose Rumford's.

Fritter batter was made from the program recipe and cooked on the stage. Bacon was broiled to be used with fritters and tart jelly for luncheon. "Always broil bacon," the lecturer advised; "bacon smokes at 300 degrees and when fat smokes it is decomposed."

"We are marching to progress on the feet of little children," she continued, "and 40 cents out of each dollar should go for nutrition, that is for milk and dairy products; five cents should go for sugar, 15 cents for protein, 20 cents for cereal and 20 cents for fresh vegetables and fruits."

Men Attend

During the intermission it was noted that there were several men taking notes in the audience. An interested woman remarked that she had a neighbor who attended the school last year just after losing his wife because he wished to learn all he could to help his three sons. He stated that he received more help from Mrs. Northcross than in any study or practice.

At this time the lecturer made biscuits and all-brain muffins. Cookies were demonstrated on the stage according to the program recipe and a sponge cake ring made from a Gold Medal flour recipe was filled with strawberries, powdered sugar and whipped cream to be given to one of the audience later. Her last bit of cookery was cinnamon toast made from a strip of bread cut from the length of a loaf of Grandmother's bread, spread with two tablespoons of butter, two tablespoons of sugar, two tablespoons of cinnamon; the bread rolled and skewered with a toothpick, put in the frigidaire until chilled then toasted quickly and sprinkled with powdered sugar and cinnamon.

The stage was set as an ideal kitchen with the Texas Electric Service company furnishing the Hot Point electric range, the Frigidaire, Thor washer, vacuum cleaner and electrical appliances; the North Texas Furniture company furnished the handsome dining room furniture and easy chairs; china and exquisite Tiffin glass was loaned by Bailey-Moline company; Bebb's Floral company arranged the centerpiece of snapdragon, tulips and pussywillow and furnished the cheery pots of red geranium that stood about the room; the sheer embroidered Chinese linen on the table came from W. B. McClurkan and company; cooking utensils were loaned by Noble-Little Hardware company; the E. Z. stores gave the fresh fruits and vegetables and the A. & P. stores gave meats and Grandmother's bread. Crystal Pure water was given the audience by courtesy of the Crystal Pure Water company and Lehrack Ferguson Dairy Products company presented cream, ice cream, milk and cotttage cheese; Mistletoe Creameries, Inc., gave butter used in cooking; Morton Salt company the salt; Proctor & Gamble, Crisco; the Rumford company, baking powder and the Wichita Mill and Elevator, the Gold Medal flour, cake flour and Wheaties. Other companies cooperating were the Coca-Cola Bottling company, The Hub, India Tea Growers, Lever Brothers company, M. J. B. Coffee company, Montgomery Ward, Perkins-Timberlake company, Saul's Department store and Wichita Cleaning and Dye Works.

The well, Deep Oil Development company and Lindsay Drilling company No. 1 L. F. Wilson, located four miles north of Archer City, was flowing by heads, according to Harry Hines of the Deep Oil company. The gauge started under satisfactory conditions, Mr. Hines said.

Rothstein Suspect Win Habeas Corpus Plea

LAREDO, Texas, March 31. (UP)—Charles Schwartz, alias "The Count," linked with the Arnold Rothstein murder case in New York, was granted a hearing on a writ of habeas corpus at Laredo April 20, by Federal Judge T. M. Kennerly, today.

Schwartz is charged with extortion. He has applied for release on the ground that he was extradited from France to the United States, and according to a treaty between the nations, he can be prosecuted only for the offense for which he was extradited.

Sheriff Condren today placed Schwartz's bond at $2,500 until April 7, the date set for his trial in district court here.

Second Well Goes Down On Longview Church Lot

LONGVIEW, Texas, March 31. (UP)—Working in the shadow of the little Elmira chapel Cumberland church, six miles north of here, carpenters tonight placed the foundation timbers of the second derrick on the 29-acre church lot. A pipe line gang was approaching the church from the south, laying a line to carry off the oil of the Eslick church lot No. 1, which came in for a gusher near the parsonage last week.

Standing bareheaded by the first derrick, Rev. W. D. Harber and his congregation prayed for oil early one misty morning a month ago. Three weeks later they stood by the side of the same derrick to give thanks for the "black gold" which brought money to fight black sin.

The drillers' engines were stopped only at "meeting time" while the well was going down. Drillers of the second well have promised to do the same.

SENATE TO ACT ON BOND ISSUE

Engrossment of Measure Is Voted highway bonds should be sold for cash only, was adopted.

Martin said he had made that move to prevent the state from paying for road building with the bonds. He referred to the plan under which the state capitol was built.

In quick order the senate voted to table two other amendments by Martin. One proposed to print on the face of the bonds the statement that the state would never impose another tax except a gasoline and motor fuel tax for payment of the bonds. The second Martin amendment sought to fix the maturity date of the bonds at not later than 20 years from issuance.

Poage Raps Plan

Earlier in the afternoon Senator Purl sought to bring the resolution before the senate by engrossment, but he failed to get a second to his motion to move the previous question. As last week, Senator Martin was on his feet saying he would hold the floor "24 hours" to forestall Purl's proposal.

Speaking for his amendment which sought to eliminate the bond issue feature from the resolution, Poage said under his plan Texas could build 6,000 more miles of road in a year than under the bond issue plan.

"My plan would put the money on the roads, the bond issue plan would put it on the road to New York," Poage said.

Poage said it would require $184,000,000 in interest to retire the $212,000,000 in bonds.

Poage said he sought to correct an old fault in government, that of spending more money than the people made.

Plane Drops Flowers As Cold Victims Are Buried

A mile long funeral cortege followed the six bodies to the cemetery. In it were the parents of the dead children and the widow of the bus driver who gave his life trying to save those of his charges.

Neighbors from miles around came to pay tribute. Ministers from surrounding churgches aided in the services, held in the national guard armory, largest building in the town.

Austro-German Pact To Face League Study

BERLIN, March 31. (US)—The proposed Austro-German customs union, severely criticized by Germany's European war foes as a step toward Austro-German political unity, will be examined by the League of Nations council in May with Germany's guarded consent.

This was made plain today by Foreign Minister Dr. Julius Curtius in an impassioned peroration in the reichstrat explaining that the league will investigate the jurudical aspect of the customs pact.

QUAKE WRECKS CAPITAL CITY

Managua, Nicaragua, Left In Ruins

Fear was expressed for the lives of many other United States citizens, resident or visiting in Managua. There are 728 United States marines and 845 United States civilians registered as residents of Nicaragua.

The Lupone hotel, popular with Americans, was among the buildings reported razed. It was feared many lost their lives in that crash alone. Cathedrals, churches, houses and most of the main buildings in the city of 33,000 were reported razed or aflame.

The American and British legations at Managua were reported burning. None of the staff of the American legation, however, was reported injured. Temporary quarters were set up on the United States marine parade ground, wireless dispatches intercepted at Mexico City and relayed, reported.

A marine flier whose name was given as Hoke Palmer, reached Corinto by airplane from Managua. He related a tale of complete desolation, which was sent out from the wireless set of the motorship, City of Panama, in port there. He said the marines and the native national guard were rushing first aid to countless injured.

Palmer reported danger of food and water shortages in Managua. He said the water mains were broken, water spouting futilely into the streets. Lack of power made it impossible to fight the spreading fire with water.

Dynamite was used to blast a strip across the city, reports said, in an effort to check the flames. The national guardsmen directed this effort. They ran out of dynamite.

$35,000,000 Damage

Palmer's tale of horror was meagerly corroborated by occasional wireless messages being sent out by temporary sets in the burning city. Bodies lay in the debris-choked streets. Women carrying children fled before the flames.

The property damage was estimated at $35,000,000 in advices to the naval headquarters in Balboa.

Rescue planes were ordered to Corinto. United States army officials in the canal zone offered to supplement the naval rescue planes and the Red Cross offered its facilities. The naval authorities, however, indicated they felt their resources adequate for the present.

The American hospital at Managua was reported among the few buildings standing. It is being used as a center of relief work.

NOTED LABORATORY FINDS WAY TO END "ATHLETE'S FOOT"

You can never be certain that you are not one of the 10 million people in America today who are victims of "Athlete's Foot" infection—an unpleasant, annoying form of ringworm.

That is because of the infection's comparative mildness when first contracted, and its several peculiar ways of showing itself. You may notice tiny, itching blisters between your toes. Or the skin may become moist and thickened. It may turn either red or white, or even develop a scaly dryness.

If you discover any one of these symptoms, don't wait for complications. Follow the advice of authorities and douse ABSORBINE JR. on your feet twice daily.

For it was proved by actual tests in a famous New York laboratory that wherever this mild, yet powerful, antiseptic penetrates, it not only curbs but kills the tinea trichophyton, which causes "Athlete's Foot."

So after every exposure to wet surfaces—in public places and even in your own bathroom—play safe by using ABSORBINE JR. on your feet. For the tiny parasites breed and lurk simply everywhere, and are always ready to attack. All druggists, $1.25. W. F. Young, Inc., Springfield, Mass.

TWO FINANCIAL HEADS TO MEET

Mellon and Montagu Norman Will Confer

WASHINGTON, March 31. (UP)—Two elderly gentlemen who are dominant figures in world finance, Secretary of Treasury Mellon and Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, will foregather here soon to discuss the international economic situation and art.

The world at large has little interest in what the two gentlemen will say about art, though both are well-known as connoisseurs, but their discussions about such weighty matters as the gold and silver situation, the proposed international bank of credit, the projected Austro-German tariff union, and related subjects may have much to do with the course of future events.

Mellon, in his usual casually mysterious way, said that "undoubtedly" he and the Bank of England governor, whom he knows well, will talk about many things, but declined to specify the range.

The world financial situation that brings Mellon and Norman together is unique in some respects. It revolves in part about a peculiar development as regards the two precious metals which constitute the world's monetary system and basis of value—gold and silver.

The United States now has the bulk of the world's gold, a total of $4,689,000,000. It has been flowing in, to the worry of economists, at a tremendous rate, due to the attracting influence two years ago of the sky-rocketing stock market and the world economic depression of recent months, which has discouraged the call for it from other nations.

The presence of this huge stock in the United States, according to economists, may have a bad effect on the maintenance of the gold standard in some countries, which, in turn, would react unfavorably upon the United States.

The low price of silver, now around 30 cents—about half of normal—is blamed by economists for some of the world's ills. It has affected China, particularly, since China is on a silver basis.

LATE FREEZE TOLL MOUNTS

Pecans and Berries Added To Blighted Crops

Special to The Record News.

NEWPORT, Texas, March 31.—The blizzard and severe freeze last week-end did great damage to gardens and early truck in this section and some corn will have to be replanted. The Irish potatoes that were just under the ground and ready to come through were nipped and it is doubtful if they will do any good. Farmers would replant if they could obtain seed but there are very few seed potatoes to be had now as most dealers sold their stock out early. All hope is now given up for any fruit at all this season. The berry crop is said to be lost also.

PECAN CROP HARD HIT

Special to The Record News.

BYERS, Texas, March 31.—Time reveals more damage from the recent freeze than was first apparent. In addition to the total loss of the fruit crop the pecan crop has been damaged to the extent of perhaps 75 per cent as estimated by some of the pecan growers. Also owing to the moisture and sap in the tender branches some of the young trees are damaged. It is also noticeable that the rank volunteer oats and advanced wheat have suffered considerable damage.

Pretty Pre-Nuptial Honor Given Popular Bride-Elect

That the world loves a bride has been shown by the pretty round of courtesies showered on Miss Ruth Moore, the charming bride-elect whose marriage to Gordon Fulcher is to take place Saturday. Breakfasts, teas, luncheons and showers have followed one another in quick succession and are announced for each day up to that preceding the wedding. A charming honor, distinct in the lovely decorative motif, was a bridge and miscellaneous shower given Tuesday afternoon by Mesdames W. P. Ferguson and Arnold Cureton in the handsome Ferguson home in Country Club Estates.

Wedding bells in misty pink stressed the dainty color scheme of pink and green. Bowls of pink snapdragon, carnations and ferns made a bower of blossoms in the great living room where tables for bridge were covered with dainty green and centered with pink wedding bells which were topped with nosegays of lilies of the valley tied with green tulle. Beneath the bells, bonbon baskets held pastel candies. Score pads and tallies emphasized the wedding bell motif and the beautiful shower of gifts for the bride were presented in a great green wedding bell.

Bridge gifts were pretty wrapped in pink with green tulle bows and the hostesses' gift for the bride-elect, silver in her chosen pattern, was a lovely package stressing pastel colors and bells.

The frontispiece is a quaint print called "Spring". One boy looks somewhat natural up in a tree; a demure miss of probably eight summers with a flower wreathed head and embroidered pantalettes, carries a basket and feeds grass to a lamb while a small cavalier carrying a butterfly net, strives to attract her attention. A tiny birdcage and enormous bouquets of flowers fill the arms of the other tree maidens, all in flowing, tidy dresses.

◇ ◇ ◇

Butterflies and birds, flowers and flirtations; while in 1931 the same age group would be playing ball, flying kites, roller skating or if at school, you'd see the girls crowding the walks where they conduct enthusiastic games of "jacks."

◇ ◇ ◇

But when one peruses the magazine it is not difficult to see that children of that age were trained to be more decorous (if they were) for each God-ey's Lady's Book has a "Code of Deportment." Men as well as women received instruction in the fine art of manners. "A man of sense," for instance, "never exhibits haste; a thing done in a hurry is not likely to be well done."

◇ ◇ ◇

That sentence is an indictment of this decade for everything is done in a hurry. Man rushes madly through life, only slowing up when the road begins to slope down the last path. Feet that would linger then, too often slip.

◇ ◇ ◇

Men and women also make constant complaint that they have no time. The hours that must be squeezed out for quiet and mental rest are found with difficulty. Life that is systematized, specialized and put through on schedule could not be measured by deportment rules of 1860.

◇ ◇ ◇

Magazines in that day were conducted in quite different fashion from this. In the April number of which I speak, a paragraph addressed "To Our Correspondents," states, "The following articles are accepted," naming some half dozen and then adds "The following articles are not needed," and proceeds to kill the hopes of various writers. One correspondent's name is given and he is asked to send his address as they wish to write him. John Fletcher, did they use your story, I wonder. They said you had talent if you would describe your native scenes.

Texas had subscribers to the magazines in 1860. A special notice to Texas subscribers asks that they will please be particular in remitting. "If a draft cannot be procured," the directions read, "cut the note in two, send one-half and when receipt is acknowledged, then send balance of note."

A piece of Americana worthy of Mencken's magazine is this: "Married, at the Baptist church in La Grange, Mo., on Tuesday afternoon, April 10, by the Rev. J. B. Fuller, Mr. Charlton H. Howe, editor of the La Grange National American and Miss Fannie E. Slaughter of La Grange.

"We knew that our friend Charlton was always prone to commit Slaughter among the ladies; but now he is married, we do not see Howe he can avoid having his cup of happiness Fuller than ever. We tender our compliments to the happy pair."

Dorothy Dix Lists 10 Great Mistakes Made in Marriage

The ten great mistakes that men and women make in marriage are these:

First—Picking out the wrong individual for a mate. Undertaking to spend a lifetime with a man or woman who is antagonistic instead of congenial. Husbands and wives are purely a matter of taste. If they suit those who have them, all is well and happiness reigns in that household. If they rub each other the wrong way and get on each other's nerves, everything is wrong and the home is a place of strife and discord.

The success of a marriage does not depend upon the virtues and high moral qualities of the husband and wife but upon whether they like the same kind of cooking, upon whether they agree in politics and religion, upon whether they are movie fans or golf fiends or bridge sharps, upon whether they both enjoy the radio or loathe it, upon whether they like to step out or stay in, upon whether they are both highbrows or lowbrows.

Second—Not making a job of marriage. Expecting marriage to be a perpetual petting party or a picnic and throwing up their hands and quitting or getting sour and disgruntled when they find out that it is like everything else on earth, full of disillusions and disappointments and not all that it has been press-agented to be.

Every man and woman expect to have to put up with disagreeable qualities in their business partners and make allowances for their faults and to have to use tact and forbearance in getting along with them. It is only in their life partners that they demand perfection and consider themselves cheated when they find out they are married to mere human beings instead of godlings.

Third—Not really trying to make a success of marriage. Not putting their backs and their hearts into it and working as hard to make a success of it as they would of any other enterprise into which they had gone and in which they had invested all of their capital.

The man not trying to "sell" himself to his wife as he would to a customer. Making home a dumping ground for all of the ill nature and temper and irritability he dare not inflict on the public. The wife making no effort to keep herself attractive to the husband or make the home a place of peace and comfort and rest.

Fourth—Cutting out the soft talk. Dropping all love-making at the altar. Husbands and wives thinking that each will take the other's affection for granted, because the man brings home the bacon and the woman broils it to his taste.

Each heart hungry for the romance and the tenderness that the other never shows. Each starving for a little appreciation, a little flattery, a kiss that is warm with passion instead of cold and flabby with habit.

Fifth—Not definitely trying to keep in touch with each other. The wife becoming all mother or all bridge or all clubs. The husband becoming all business. There are plenty of husbands and wives who do not speak the same language or know the same people or read the same books and who at middle age sit up in silence when they are together, bored stiff because they have nothing to say to each other.

Sixth—Making no effort to be satisfied with their bargains. Turning the spotlight on each other's faults instead of each other's virtues. Dwelling on defects instead of good points.

Not saying, "Oh, well, perhaps Mary isn't all my fondest fancy painted her, but she is sweet and amiable and she worships me, and that's a lot to get in a wife." Not saying, "Uh, ugh, John isn't the movie hero that I thought I was getting when I married, but he is a good provider and keeps me soft and comfortable and I've got the spiffiest car in town." Not realizing that in marriage, as in everything else, we can hypnotize ourselves into believing what we want to believe.

Seventh—Trying to make over each other. Trying to turn each other into a rubber stamp of themselves. Denying each other the right of individual opinion.

Fault-finding. Criticizing each other's grammar and pronunciation and taste in dress and relatives. Each demanding that the other shall eat what he or she likes, wear the clothes that he or she picks out and have his or her soul saved according to his or her formula.

Eighth—Neither being able even to say the weather is pleasant without starting something. Each disputing every statement the other makes and thus keeping the home in a turmoil.

Ninth—Using no tact in getting along with each other. Bumping headlong into each other's little personal idiosyncrasies instead of gumshoeing nimbly around them. Each scorning to rub the other's fur the right way. Neither willing to take the trouble to placate the other or to approach a controversial subject diplomatically. The husband knowing perfectly well how to manage his wife and keep her eating out of his hands but not bothering to do it. The wife knowing she can jolly her husband along into doing anything, but not thinking it worth while to waste salve on a mere husband.

Tenth—Going to live with mother-in-law. Or letting mother-in-law come to live with them.

—DOROTHY DIX.

One of the incomprehensible manias that women have is for telling their family troubles. Their favorite indoor sport is opening up the skeleton closet and spending a merry hour or two rattling its bones, and they get so much kick out of being afflicted with mean husbands and wayward children that it pays them for having them.

All of us know wives who come and sob upon our breasts and tell us heartbreaking stories about husbands who mistreat them, about husbands who are habitual drunkards whom they have to fish out of the gutter; about lazy, loafing husbands they have to work for and support; about husbands who flaunt their infidelities in their faces; about husbands who beat them and kick them around worse than they would a dog. And as we listen to these women's tale of woe and wipe away their tears and anoint their bruises, we wonder why they put up with such treatment and stand such abuse when there is a divorce court handy around the corner.

But the mystery is really no mystery at all. The reason these wives stick to their good-for-nothing husbands is not through love nor faithfulness nor from a perverted sense of duty. It is because of the morbid joy they get out of broadcasting their secret sorrows. As long as they have a bad husband they have a living grievance that forms a perpetual subject for conversation, and that compensates them for all his faults, and they wouldn't part with him for worlds.

Of course, when a woman has the ill luck to draw a husband who is a total loss in the matrimonial lottery, she has a right to get what pleasure she can out of the situation by complaining about him to any one who will listen and, heaven knows, no one should be mean enough to begrudge her her consolation prize.

But it is not only the women who have wrongs who tell their family troubles. There are plenty of women with husbands and children who have no other faults and weaknesses than those common to all humanity, who blab everything that happens at home and who tell things that they should have their tongues torn out for repeating.

There are wives who rehash every squabble they have with their husbands for the benefit of the neighborhood; wives who will tell any casual acquaintance who will lend her ears about how she has to corkscrew every penny out of her husband and that he has a terrible temper and swears and curses when he gets mad and that he neglects her and is selfish and won't take her out except when he feels like going himself and that he was all lit up when he came home from a lodge meeting one night and that he doesn't seem to know how to get along and make money like some men and that she doesn't know anything, but she is suspicious of that blonde stenographer of his that he thinks is such a wonder.

And, strangely enough, it never seems to occur to the woman who is thus traducing her husband that she is being a traitor to him and disloyal to the bread she eats.

Nor does it occur to her that she is doing her husband irreparable harm because she is establishing his reputation in the community, as a drunkard or a philanderer or a tightwad or a poor business man when, likely as not, he is a good, kind, hard-working man who is devoted to his family and sober as the town pump.

All the same he has to pay for his wife's pleasure in telling her troubles.

Worse still, if possible, is the mania mothers have for complaining about their children. It is from them that we have mostly got our idea that the present generation of youngsters are hellions hurtling along on their way to destruction.

Almost every mother you meet fixes you with a glittering eye and tells you that she can't do a thing with her children, that they won't obey her or listen to anything she says and that she is afraid John will come to no good because he is running with a wild crowd and that goodness knows where Tom gets all the money he spends and that Maud is out every night in automobiles with strange young men and that Sally is lazy and selfish and extravagant and never thinks of anybody but herself.

And every gathering of mothers is a chorus of wails over how ungrateful children are and how poorly they repay all of a mother's care and devotion. You would think to hear the way they talk that it doesn't pay to raise a child and that it would pay a mother to drown a baby at birth as one would a superfluous puppy.

But the mothers don't feel that way about it at all. Most likely they know they would be in the poorhouse except for their childen. Anyway, they love them and are proud of them, and the only reason they complain of them is because they are obsessed by the feminine mania for telling their family troubles.

And they do this in spite of the fact that they are ruining their sons' reputation and tearing their daughters' good names to tatters.

Take that dirty ring out of your bathtub!

After a bath, hard water leaves a dirty ring. The soap combines with the hardness and makes scum. The scum collects dirt. The dirty ring sticks to the sides of the bathtub. It has to be scrubbed off.

But soften the water with Mel'o and there isn't any dirty ring on your bathtub. Mel'o makes water delightfully soft and a wonderful cleaner, with or without soap. It saves from ⅓ to ½ the amount ordinarily used. It makes soap more effective. Use Mel'o wherever you want soft water. Get it at your grocer's.

Kotex stays soft longer

One of the many reasons why you should demand this sanitary pad

KOTEX is soft, and it stays soft. It does not pack into chafing hardness after use. Millions of women have discovered that fact, and they are particular to specify Kotex.

One of the reasons why Kotex stays soft is the way in which it absorbs — quickly, scientifically over the entire length of the pad. Many other pads absorb in one concentrated area which soon becomes uncomfortable.

Kotex is guaranteed to last longer, stay soft longer, than any other sanitary pad. You can wear Kotex on either side, with no chance of possible embarrassment, with the same degree of efficiency. It is treated to deodorize. It is shaped to fit. And it is, of course, disposable.

WOOD OPPOSES FARM FUNDS

Appropriations Chairman Criticizes Group

WASHINGTON, March 31. (INS)—The federal farm board may face a "hornet's nest" if it goes before congress next year asking for more money.

This was indicated today with the declaration of Representative Will R. Wood, Republican, of Indiana, chairman of the house appropriations committee, that the board plan was "a flash in the pan." Wood has just returned from a vacation in Panama.

"Before I favor giving the farm board any more money it will have to show me that it is doing some good," Wood said.

He said the board had perhaps helped the farm situation "in some minor crops" but added that "you cannot legislate an economic situation."

Cooperation Difficult

While Wood endorsed cooperation among the farmers, he said it was a difficult task to draw them all together. The wheat situation is the result of world-wide over-production which no board could cure. With reduction of wheat acreage, he said, the situation may right itself.

"There will be a lot of cracked propositions to cure all the ills of the farmer in the next session," said Wood. "The equalization fee plan has no virtue and the debenture is worse. In the former the farmer pays the bills and in the latter the exporter gets the debenture."

Wood expressed hope the next congress would cut appropriations and that improving business would make unnecessary a tax increase. He said he would oppose a tax boost on the ground that it would hurt, instead of help, the business situation.

Hoover "Hands Off"

President Hoover does not intend to interfere with the policies of the board, particularly in its decision not to expend its stabilization program to the 1931 wheat crop. He feels that the board is well able to define and defend its policies, just as the shipping board and the Interstate Commerce commission are able to define and defend theirs.

Chairman James C. Stone, returning from a trip to Kansas, said he was advised there was a good prospect for a material reduction in acreage of spring wheat, both in Kansas and Oklahoma. He said wheat growers in these states had begun to realize that acreage reduction was the best plan that has been offered to cut down surplus wheat stocks.

Born Blind, Youth Surprised At Many Things When Sight Comes

PHILADELPHIA, March 31. (UP)—Eyes which never saw brought new sensations and revelations beyond expression today to Earl Musselman, 22, whose vision has been made by the skill of a surgeon's knife.

The color of flowers and the general appearance of human beings now seem to hold the most attraction for this youth who was born blind and who learned to know people and objects by sound and touch.

Musselman was born without pupils in his eyes. Six weeks ago Dr. G. H. Moore, a specialist on the staff of the graduate hospital, performed an operation. Yesterday the bandages were removed.

Musselman beheld a new world, a world of color sensations in which years of stored up imagination became real, and many impressions were found to be wrong.

"I was completely fooled," he said. "I thought I knew what it was all about, as the saying goes, but I was wrong. Besides all the things which I had wrong impressions of, there are so many things of which I had no impressions at all.

"The way bricks are set in a building; the way one color is different from another and one shade blends into another; the way trolley tracks run straight beside each other and the way they shine; the way a horse and motor vehicle move; it's all wonderful.

Musselman is not able to associate the various color sensations with names. That is one of the things he will have to learn.

"I'm trying to read with my eyes already," he said today. "Of course I can't read ordinary type, but the doctors say I'll be able to soon. The alphabet is simple and when my sight's a little better, reading will be no trick at all."

He has been able to read with his fingers for years.

STATE COSTS ARE ANALYZED

Government Costs Each Person $1 per Month

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, March 31.—Texas state government cost each person $1 a month flat during 1929, according to U. S. bureau of census figures compiled for the federal government by Vann M. Kennedy from records of the comptroller's department.

The per capita levy of state ad valorem taxes was $5.03 in 1928, as compared with $4.57 in 1928 and $3.86 in 1917.

Total revenues of the state for 1929 were shown by Kennedy's report to be $94,729,950, or $16.61 per capita. The difference between what was taken in and what was spent in government costs was represented in the purchase of bonds and school investments and distribution of school funds to districts and local schools.

License fees paid 44.6 per cent of the state's total receipts for 1929, as compared with only 12.5 per cent for 1917.

The sales tax on gasoline amounted to $16,006,660 in 1929, a decline, with part of the year on a lower rate, from the $19,211,576 collected in 1928.

During the year 1929 the state spent $34,299,927 on highways.

The cost of paying state officials declined from 16.7 per cent of the total state government costs in 1917 to 4.4 per cent in 1929.

The bonded or fixed debt of the state in 1929 was $4,367,200, or 77 cents per capita, as compared with $1.07 per capita in 1917.

Property and special taxes were shown to have increased 104 per cent between 1917 and 1929, and the increase was from $3.10 per capita to $5.09 for each person in 1929.

CITIES SEEKING CLUB CENTER

State Headquarters Site To Be Selected

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, March 31.—Austin club women were informed that clubs of Wichita Falls, San Antonio and other cities are making a new effort to win the Texas Federation of Women's clubs proposed state headquarters building away from Austin. The federation building committee is now considering a second site in Austin, after declining last week further to consider the M. C. Parrish lot on Rio Grande street after Mr. Parrish sued the state board to require completion of its purchase.

Mrs. Ben G. Oneal, Wichita Falls, has tendered the state organization, on behalf of citizens of her city, a free lot, it was said.

Other offers were made in tentative form, and were to be submitted to the building committee and Mrs. R. F. Lindsey, state president, at a meeting in Houston April 11. Mrs. Sam J. Smith, Austin member, will attend the building committee meeting in Houston. Plans for a revised building will be examined by the committee at this meeting.

The federation state charter calls for locating the headquarters building in the capital city.

The building committee has inspected two new building sites in Austin.

Mrs. J. F. Welder, Victoria, chairman of the federation building committee, said while in Austin late last week that a tentative selection has been made of one of the lots, subject to closing the deal for its purchase. Several members of the building committee said that the other cities' offers were not expected to divert it from closing its purchase in Austin, since the committee is without power to make the location elsewhere than Austin.

McLennan County Seeks Tax Slash

AUSTIN, March 31. (AP)—A committee of McLennan county taxpayers came to Austin today to request a reduction in the expenditures of that county. Committeemen talked with their representatives in the legislature.

The committee asked that salaries of McLennan county officers be reduced at least 25 per cent and that all unnecessary offices be abolished. The committee consisted of John Strauss of Robinson, T. C. Westbrook of Lorena, and W. D. Chapman of Hewitt. It asked further that one district court and one county court there be abolished.

Representative Ford of McGregor expressed the belief the requests might have come too late in the session. He said most of the officers received their fees under a general law and it was impossible to pass a local statute repealing that law.

Wilbarger Exhibit Attracts Crowds

VERNON, Texas, March 31.—Hundreds of people visited the industrial displays of the Vernon manufacturers during the three-day exhibit of Vernon and Wilbarger county products.

A booklet was given each visitor telling of the manufacturing features of Vernon. Twenty-five firms were represented and from figures compiled by the chamber of commerce they produced last year $4,075,930.16 worth of products. The raw materials cost $2,840,542.93. The invested capital represents $1,754,965.41. The concerns employ 720 men and women with an annual pay roll of $828,127.48. They pay in rent and taxes annually $60,859.65.

BANK ROBBED AT JENKS, OKLA.

Bandit Escapes Following $500 Raid

JENKS, Okla., March 31. (UP)—A bandit robbed the Bank of Commerce here this afternoon and escaped with cash estimated at less than $500.

R. K. Crain, bank official, was in the bank alone at the time.

The bandits commanded Crain go lie on the floor while he rifled the cash tills. Crain was then locked in the vault. From where he sounded the alarm.

The bandit escaped in a car which parked in front of the bank.

It was not known in which direction he headed.

"Who else wants whiter washes?"

Famous expert tells about new easy scrubless washdays

"STOP SCRUBBING CLOTHES!" Thousands have heard this thrilling advice. Thousands have watched as an expert demonstrated the new scrubless way to get a snowy wash—in hardest water.

Now it's your turn! Don't fail to see this amazing demonstration. Come early and get a good seat. Watch closely as the famous expert washes clothes the new way—the modern way—the way that gets clothes white as snow, bright as new!

The richer suds do it!

The whole difference—as the expert will explain—is in the suds. She uses a remarkable new kind of rich, lively, business-like suds that soak away every trace of dirt, leaving clothes so beautifully white—even boiling isn't necessary!

And how does she get those wonder-working suds? With Rinso, the hard-water soap! You'll see right on the platform how a little Rinso whips at once into lots of creamy, long-lasting suds. By actual test, Rinso gives twice as much suds, cup for cup, as lightweight, puffed-up soaps.

No water-softeners needed when Rinso is used! Not even the hardest water can take the life out of these business-like suds.

Rinso is safe for the finest cottons and linens. If it weren't, this famous expert would not be demonstrating it all over the country. In fact, she will explain to you how Rinso actually saves the clothes by keeping them from being scrubbed threadbare.

Marvelous in washers, too

The makers of 40 famous washers recommend Rinso. Better class laundries use it. Home-making experts of 309 leading newspapers heartily approve this hard-water soap. Come to the demonstration and see why!

"IN our Home Economics Service Schools we have made many discoveries—of utmost importance to housewives.

"For example, we have found by actual test that Rinso soaks out dirt and spots with little or no rubbing. It washes clothes bright and snowy without boiling. Naturally that spares the housewife's hands; and the clothes last much longer, too.

"In our home-making demonstrations we show women how safe Rinso is for their finest cottons and linens. We advise them to use it always in their washing machines and tubs. And in our demonstrations we tell them how fine Rinso is for dishes, too—and for all household cleaning."

Not An Accident

During the cold wave of last Friday and Saturday followed by rains in many sections, you had a plentiful supply of gas. This stinging blast of winter came suddenly, the temperatures dropping as much as fifteen degrees an hour. The cold followed several days of springlike weather.

The demand for gas jumped by leaps and bounds in a few minutes. Every stove in every home was suddenly turned wide open. During the peak of the cold, more gas was consumed in an hour than would be used in an entire day in summertime. Your demand for gas was more than four times what it was on the warmest day of the same week. But the gas was there the instant you needed it.

This service was not an accident, but represented the sum total of a large financial expenditure, an adequate gas supply, and a corps of well trained employes. This organization and these facilities had to be ready when you needed them, and the significant fact is that the facilities and organization necessary to serve you in these emergencies must stand by for a considerable portion of the year waiting your instant call for this vital service.

What would the city have done in such an emergency if it had depended on only a few wells in one gas field? How could it have given the necessary service with the pipe line owned by one group, the distribution company by another and the gas wells perhaps by still another, with divided responsibility all around? What would you have done without a well trained and thoroughly equipped organization back of your gas service—an organization which has learned through many years of experience how to serve you and how to anticipate your every need in keeping your homes warm? This organization is coordinated as one unit from the gas wells to your gas burner, and this coordinated effort is absolutely necessary to a dependable fuel service.

This is the difference between raw fuel at the well and a complete gas service at your burner. These emergencies are the real test of a dependable gas service.

Please remember when you go to pay your gas bill for the service rendered during this cold wave that the bill covers a good sized March blizzard.

A Love Letter Auction
Heat Purifies
Back to the Mount
France and Germany

By EMILE GAUVREAU

Shaw's "love" letters to Mrs. August Belmont (the former Eleanor Robson, stage star) fetch $4,500 at an auction. Mrs. Belmont is the auctioneer, acting in this capacity on the advice of the Irish satirist himself, who assures her that they are worth a lot of money. Mrs. Belmont found out how much, and is turning over the proceeds of love to aid unemployed women.

As revealed by a reading of these letters, Shaw was no great shakes at making love, despite his clever treatises on the subject. He is as flippant over the grand passion as he is over the rest of the emotions. Indeed, there is no evidence of any passion at all. Shaw's sense of humor or perhaps his ego would not permit him ever to become serious over any woman. If he had not married, we would say that he would make a fine addition to that company of illustrious bachelors who never even knew what romance was: Newton and Martin Luther and Kant and Pitt and Nietzsche.

The Chinese say that one picture is more powerful than thousands of words. Consider the latest photographs of the Hon. James J. Walker, attired in a beret and one of Sam Untermyer's bed sheets, sitting in a broiling California sun in melancholy contemplation of a cactus plant. New Yorkers at home meanwhile philosophically contemplate what might be described as the cactus of corruption. Sitting in the sun, the only conclusion Mayor Walker has reached, apparently, is nutshelled in the popular slogan: "Sunshine mellows; heat purifies."

It took 2,000 years for man to come back to the non-resistance gospel preached on the Mount. To come back to it theoretically, not actually. Mahatma Gandhi, Hindu leader, reiterates the wisdom of that gospel as the only way to end war. Love, he says, can cure all evils. Self-purification is the remedy for all social disorders. "You in the West," he says, "do not recognize the power of spiritual things, but some day you will. Then you will be free from war. The West is too materialistic, selfish and narrowly nationalistic.

There is more materialism, selfishness and narrow, nationalism in one square foot of France or Germany than in the whole of the United States. Despite our wealth, our power, our prestige, we are the last people in the world to desire war, and we would be the first to disarm, if we could trust our overseas neighbors to do likewise. But such trust would be as foolish as that which the lamb placed in the wolf.

Gandhi is right. Jesus was right. Buddha and Mahomet were right. Confucius was right. Socrates was right. But man is still a savage, fighting for food and shelter. And he will continue to fight so long as he thinks these are threatened.

The tariff accord reached between Germany and Austria brings protests from three powers: France Italy and Czechoslovakia, who contend that the customs union violates the 1922 League of Nations protocol wherein Austria promised never to forfeit or compromise its sovereign rights. The accord, as interpreted by the three powers, involves such forfeit.

France especially looks with disfavor upon the new "Anschluss" between Germany and Austria, since it sees in this entente the feared first step towards the realization of the pan-Germanic dreams of world power.

Germany should be watched. So must France. Both these nations suffer from illusions of grandeur. Napoleon is still a national hero with the French. The kaiser is still a much lamented figure with many Germans. The guilt of the next war must be laid at the door of either of these powers. Revenge makes nations as well as men, mad.

Then there was the young bride who grew suddenly jealous when her husband revealed he was in love with his work.

Fear and World Peace

THE mind of the militarist works in a peculiar manner. The ordinary mortal cannot hope to understand; all he can do is watch and marvel, and pray that some day enlightenment will come to him.

General Ludendorff the other day expressed himself, once more, on the causes of the world war; and he revealed his sincere belief that war came because Germany was not sufficiently prepared.

To be sure, Germany's war strength in 1914 numbered 5,000,000 soldiers. But universal conscription, says the general, existed in Germany "only on paper." This imposing array of soldiery constituted only 54 per cent of Germany's potential man power.

Furthermore, the general says, other nations knew that Germany was neglecting her defenses; knew that she had nowhere near as large an army as she might have had. This, he says, induced France and Russia to provoke an attack on her, in the hope that they might catch her napping. Germany's military weakness, in fact, was a cause of the war, in that it led Germany's enemies to jump on her.

Thus we are left to draw the amazing conclusion that if Germany's army in 1914 had only been composed of eight or nine million men, instead of a measly five, the peace of the world would have remained unbroken.

Absurd as all of this is, General Ludendorff is merely expressing the stock argument of the militarists. Make your military establishment so overwhelmingly strong that no one will even dream of making war on you, and you are safe; that is the credo. General Ludendorff has simply expressed it in its most extreme form.

The argument does not go over as well now as it did a generation ago. A world impelled by fear to keep the peace does not look attractive nowadays, and there are more people than there used to be to suspect that such a peace would be unstable. Fear, a usable force in world affairs, is selling at a new low.

We have not yet carried this new attitude far enough, however. In domestic affairs we still lean on the power of fear. We plan to keep crime down by making people afraid to break the law. We plan to keep public officials honest by holding over them the fear of being caught cheating. We try to make our neighbors think and talk as the majority thinks and talks, for fear of a hostile public sentiment.

Will a time come when we take as sensible an attitude toward the ure of fear in these fields as we are now beginning to take in the field of international relations? If and when it does we shall have an infinitely healthier society.

Reward the Faithful Servant

IF THE BIGGEST business enterprise in Wichita Falls, whatever it is, were to find its finances steadily running behind with its overdraft growing in the banks and its revenues falling, and if a new board of directors was placed in charge of that business and, notwithstanding depressed conditions growing worse in their period of operation, this board was successful in converting the overdraft into a cash balance of more than $100,000, at the same time reducing the company's net indebtedness nearly half a million dollars while making improvements of $177,000 in the company's plant, the stockholders in that company would very decisively veto any attempt to put in a new board of directors. Instead they would continue the board that had done so well and would give them a vote of thanks for their services.

The city of Wichita Falls is bigger than any business institution in it. The present city council has accomplished just what is recited of this hypothetical board of directors.

There is every reason to believe that if returned to office they will continue to administer the city's affairs efficiently, making needed improvements, reducing indebtedness; abolishing inequalities in taxation and, in time, reducing tax rates. All these things may reasonably be expected from this board of directors based upon past performance.

To remove them from office would be, in effect, to say that we didn't want further reductions in the city's indebtedness or an equalization and lowering of the tax burden.

Your vote next Tuesday for Harvey, McCutchen and Spoonts will be a vote to continue a careful administration of the city's affairs and of appreciation of faithful service.

Portrait of Man Talking to Himself

If I could see the kid, I'd tell him how awful the story will look when it breaks in the rags. . . . The public that adores his father and mother, and which embraced his grandfather, will hate him for his conduct. . . . The public never understands. . . . The newspapers never "get over" the entire story, and readers usually read in a hurry and leap at conclusions. . . . I can understand the kid's reason, however. . . . His mother is opposed to his young wife. . . . They couldn't get along—so, because he loves his bride more than anything else, he is shelving his famous father, who is brokenhearted. . . . It is a dramatic story, and all that sort of thing. . . . The youngster decided to give his father and vaudeville partner a "two weeks' notice" . . . It was so cold. . . . There was no "Dear Father, I am leaving you because of this or that" . . . It was a blunt statement: "This is to notify you I am through in two weeks' . . . The booking officials were amazed . . . The theatrical rags probably will announce it, unless someone intervenes and reconciles them . . . I hope this is done . . . Not only to keep his parent from being miserable in his graying years, but to save the boy from what certainly will prove to be a terrific boomerang . . . His father and mother have lived such clean careers on the stage nothing can tear them down . . . The audiences wherever you go always thrill when his popular papa's soft-shoe dance music is played, or when anyone announces an imitation of him . . . Surely there is someone in show business with influence enough to bring them together again.

There ought to be a law prohibiting thin people like Gertrude Lawrence from taking diet treatments . . . That's what the "inside" is to her so-called "breakdown" . . . The show in which she co-stars with Noel Coward ("Private Lives") is forced to close because of her sudden illness . . . Yesterday she went through a blood transfusion, so grave was her condition . . . They thought she would die . . . All because she melted herself from 110 down to 90 . . . Silly! . . . Better news is that Gloria Christie, once of the Shubert shows, who was in an auto wreck and in many other "accidents" has been secretly married for two months . . . to a wealthy westerner . . . That story from Hollywood about Larry Ceballos, the dance director, is amusing . . . Ceballos deserted Broadway and its girl shows to arrange dance routines for ensembles in the flickers . . . In Hollywood he brought suit against a rival director for thefting a dance idea . . . In court the judge asked Ceballos why he believed the dance idea belonged to him. "Because," said Larry, "I saw it first in New York."

The son of a rich father, he was schooled at an American collith in Constantinople . . . Unlike the average immigrant who comes to America without coin "Taylor" came here with plenty . . . And became a bus boy at the St. Regis hotel in New York . . . That was in 1907 . . . In 1917 he owned his first hotel—a 100-room establishment in the Swelegant Seventies . . . When she sings "When Your Lover Has Gone," when Frances Williams at the Richman holds onto the last note of the verse of "Love for Sale," which is the same note that leads the chorus, and when Etting sings anything . . . That column last week containing the clown news items was taken too seriously by Lou Shurr, the booking agent . . . For years he has been kidded by the champions, and never complained . . . The line about him didn't disconcert him so much as did his actor clients, who "sympathized" with him and told him how "terrible it was" . . . Jack Whiting, Irene Delroy and Billy Gaxton being among the comforters . . . Shurr probably would rather have his clients pay their commissions which would be more comforting . . . Big Business Girl . . By One of Them

Synopsis of Preceding Installments

Beautiful Claire MacIntyre, known as Mac, and Johnny Goodman are secretly married in college. Their ways soon lead in different directions, though they are desperately in love. Mac seeks a business career, as she feels that Johnny is undependable. Johnny, coming back from Paris, where he has played a summer engagement at the head of a college orchestra finds Mac working in the office of a big dry-cleaning establishment in Chicago, run by R. J. Clayton. And Johnny senses that the boss, R. J., is in love with Mac. This in spite of the fact that Clayton is married. Johnny, at the head of his own orchestra, announces that he and Mac are married. Mac, supposedly tired of Johnny's importunities, tells him they had better get a divorce. Johnny agrees. Clayton tries to get Mac to consent to marry him if he can divorce his wife. Mac gets an offer from Thorne, of a rival cleaning establishment. She promises an answer in a week. Johnny comes to the office in the hope of forcing Mac to see things his way, but she lets him know that she is definitely through with him. The sympathetic Clayton suggests that he and Mac go for a ride.

INSTALLMENT XXI

R. J. had said he would call for her at 7:15 that evening and they would drive out to the Vista, on the lake.

"I'd love a ride," Mac said, guessing at the same time what it would lead to. She'd take a chance. She had handled plenty of emotional crises—and expertly.

A yellow lace dress with little wings behind the shoulder blades and a skirt which touched the ground made her eyebrows so black her lips so red. She pulled her hair straight back and off her ears. It was too hot for wearing jewelry, so that she was particularly delighted when yellow orchids with ruby centers arrived from Mr. Clayton.

Mac was ready and downstairs at 7. She wondered vaguely what R. J. had done with his wife tonight and guessed that since he had suggested dresing, he must be staying at a hotel in town.

R. J. was the sort of man whose starched shirt never collapsed with the heat. He arrived looking as though he had just had a swim.

"Put on the bear rug and we'll run, because the soup will get cold."

Mac's short velvet wrap rippled away from her hips as she moved ahead of him down the brownstone steps. There was a limousine waiting, but Mac didn't recognize the chauffeur. She decided it must be a rented car. Was R. J. being discreet?

She talked a little nervously about the office as they slid rapidly north.

"My wife is in Minnesota, getting cooled off," R. J. explained. "She and her sister left Monday. As much as I hate living in town during this hot weather, I'd rather stay at a hotel than rattle around alone up there at the house."

Mac wondered if Hattie left him often. Wives who took long summer vacations form their husbands seemed very foolhardy to her.

The Vista was done in Spanish style. There was one table by the long open windows which overlooked the sunset water. It was reserved for "Mr. and Mrs. Clayton." There was Hawaiian music and a cooling system which made dancing possible in such a temperature. Charlie the head waiter, had seen Mac before and had not forgotten such a lovely, distinctive girl. But he had not seen her with Mr. Clayton and did not successfully keep the surprise out of his eyes. As they walked across the wide floor, some one spoke to R. J. Mac looked up quickly to see a man and woman hail him and then glance at her sharply.

"Of everybody in Chicago," R. J. said to the back of her neck, "that would have to be Mrs. Clayton's cousins."

Mac tried to look unconcerned, but she didn't care for the situation.

Mac ate cold chicken and drank the tall lime drinks. Suddenly she was aware that R. J. was telling her the story of his life. That was the penalty of knowing him more than casually!

"I'm almost 40, Claire, and I've been married 15 years. That's an awfully long time."

She smiled at him. There was nothing to say.

"I'm beginning to think that a marriage of convenience isn't the best thing in life. You know something about marriage, so I can talk to you like this. There ought to be more romance in marriage." Mac had a secret smile about that, having made up her mind that there ought to be less feeling and more common sense. Probably when she was 40, she, too, would reverse her ideas.

"You probably have heard that my wife started me in this business. She had a prosperous millinery business when we were first married, which she sold to give me capital for my own enterprise. I've always been grateful to her for that and I always shall be. We have always been very good friends."

Mac felt uncomfortable. She did not like to know things like this about people with whom she worked. She didn't like to get behind the successful exteriors of people, into their pasts.

"I spent 10 years living up to my wife's expectations of me. Of course all of my income doesn't come from my business. I've been quite lucky in investments."

It was nice of him to say he'd been lucky, Mac thought. She knew any success he had had with his speculations had come because he was keen. Probably Hattie was keen, too, with that financial awareness of women who went into business as stock girls and worked their way to the top.

Over raspberry ice, she listened with a mask of sympathy. R. J. didn't suggest dancing, but the two people who had spoken to him passed them many times. She tried to deceive herself into a nonchalant mood—this was just an appointment with her employer—but she had to admit that she knew darned well it was not entirely a business date.

They went out on the veranda after their iced coffee had been served and watched the swimmers on the float, bathed in a red light from the club lighthouse, like the statue acts in a circus. Their talk

The Record News Offers A Booklet on Modern Manners

One of the most important sections of this valuable booklet is that on good table manners. It begins with what the hostess should do in laying a table, tells all about serving dinner properly, and gives correct instruction as to how all kinds of foods should be eaten, not overlooking the much debated question as to whether asparagus is a finger-food or a fork-food. Then in the end it tells how to leave the table easily and gracefully. Nor is a formal dinner the only meal discussed; buffet breakfasts, luncheons, and suppers are also covered.

A copy of Modern Manners will be sent to any address for a cost and postage charge of ten cents. Use this coupon.

NEGRO PAGEANT DRAWS PRAISE

Music Critic Says Program One of Finest

By W. L. UNDERWOOD
Record News Music Critic

Throbbing, wistful chanting of the primitive black, tempered by the fervent religious passion of the Southland's negroes, first invited, then filled, then completely possessed the hearts of about 400 persons who heard the "Heaven-bound Pageant" given by Wichita Falls negro singers at the Memorial auditorium Tuesday night.

It is doubtful that any of those who formed the small audience could be convinced that Wichita Falls ever has had a program of musical entertainment which so completely gripped and moved every hearer to spontaneous, enthusiastic approbation. That the crowd present appeared but a handful in the vast auditorium did not in the least deter the singers. Being to them the most impressive occasion of its kind ever offered in this city, they were obviously attuned, by eager anticipation, to a great moment. They took full advantage of it. Their spirit was surpassingly zealous; their voices found in vibrant native timber an actual enrichment of the resounding organ which they formed; they followed direction with faithfulness that never wavered; and were completely at home in the peculiarly authentic atmosphere which their own native genius for deep feeling created.

Rhythm in Abundance

Rhythm is the heart and essence of the negro's singing, and rhythm was abundantly present in Tuesday night's program. Not only in the individual ensemble and choral numbers, with multiple repetitions of a short melodic theme rising to a stirring climax only to recede quickly, softly into quiet; but in the alternation of rapid, dancing tempos with slow, contemplative, lazy legatos. Mountain tops of intense feeling, ecstatic, punctuated declarations of assured salvation were achieved by the chorus of more than 100 voices; but they immediately and easily levelled to the quiet valleys of "Steal Away," or "Let the Church Roll On."

Lighting effects and carefully schooled tableaux added surprisingly to the "Heaven-bound Pageant" as presented here. Readings, with dramatic interpretation; ingenuous treatment of "Way Down Yonder" by a male trio; and a beautifully harmonized presentation of "Joshua at the Battle of Jericho" featured a domestic tableau given early in the evening. An excellent, swinging, exultant voicing of "Goin' to Walk all Over God's Heavn" also was included in that group, given by a sextet of mixed voices.

"Great Day" Climax

Subdued lights and a sonorous, plaintive choral support magically enhanced the singing of "Old Black Joe" by a tenor-baritone voice of startling quality. The appealing, ringing clarity of this solo voice made the hearer conscious of one possible flaw in the program: the soloist of "Old Black Joe" could have added brilliance to many choral numbers had he been provided with a prominent obligato.

Among the choruses, all of which were worthy of being classified as climaxes, "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," "Knock," "Steal Away" "Couldn't Hear Nobody Pray," "No Hidin' Place Down Here,' and "Lord, I Just Got Over," were conspicuous—until the singing of "Great Day" closed the program. White congregations rise spontaneously for Handel's great "Hallelujah Chorus;" but no vested oratorio choir ever sang the great "Messiah" chorus with more triumphant exaltation than that which throbbed, marched and found its Zion in "Great Day" as sung here Tuesday night.

The visiting pianist, from Fort Worth, contributed not only brilliant pianistic support to all ensemble numbers, but revealed the most remarkable solo voice heard during the evening—a rich, resonant contralto with a register which compassed a mezzo-soprano register for obbligato purposes.

Choral groups were interspersed with numerous selections by the Booker T. Washington high school male quintet.

Of 1,700 tobacco growers attending mass meetings looking to the organization of a bright leaf cooperative in Georgia, only two have voted against the proposal.

'Large Responsible Concern' Ready To Advance Million to City, Claim

'King Fisch' Tells How Candidates of 'Mystic C' Will Fill Treasury With Utility Gold

Unless the gas company reduces its rates at least one-third, Cox, Cone and Corlett, if elected councilmen in the city election April 7, will commence the installation of a city-owned gas distributing system, F. W. Fischer told an audience of 100 Tuesday night at a rally of the "citizens' committee" held at the Sam Houston school. The system, he said, could be completed by Nov. 1, and gas furnished at a rate not exceeding 50 cents per thousand cubic feet.

City to Get Rich

"A large responsible concern," Mr. Fischer declared, "whose source of gas supply is just as large and adequate as that of the Lone Star, has agreed that it will furnish to the city gas at the rate of 17 cents per 1,000 cubic feet. It will also advance to the city sufficient money to install its distribution system, approximately $1,000,000, accepting reimbursement out of the profits made by the city by selling gas to its citizens at 50 cents per 1,000 cubic feet. By doing this, the city can repay the debt in three years and then have its system free of debt and can then make a further reduction in gas rates or use the profits to apply upon its tax burden."

Figures presented by Mr. Fischer purported to show that a gross profit of $1,320 daily would be realized through a city owned gas system. A sum of $1,000 of this, he said, could be used to repay money advanced for installing the system.

Mr. Fischer was introduced to the audience as the "Kingfish." He roundly flayed the present administration, criticised the city council members and attributed to the mayor an ambition to be a "big business" man. "I don't think they are corrupt," he said of the council. "I don't believe they would steal your pocketbook." Mr. Fischer did term them as business men who were too busy with their own affairs to give city business its proper due.

Corlett "Beauty Entry"

E. VanDeventer subsequently referred to the present administration as "lame ducks."

P. B. Cox, W. B. Corlett and Fred L. Cone, "citizens' committee" candidates, were introduced and spoke briefly. Introduced by J. H. Crouch, Mr. Corlett was credited with being the "beauty entry" of the triumvirate.

C. K. Walsh, local attorney, deplored the "progressive" faction's campaign and ridicule, and asserted that it should admit that it is wrong and give way to the "citizens" candidates.

Announcement was made that further rallies of the "citizens" faction would be held Wednesday night at the Barwise school, Thursday at the Yale Evangelical church and Monday at the courthouse.

C. C. Fitzgerald of Linwood, N. C., harvested 90 bushels of yellow soy beans from a five-acre field.

Baptist Speaker Tells Why Mission Activities Decline

Dr. W. H. Knight, authority on missions and comparative religions, chose as his subject for Tuesday night, at the First Baptist church, "For the Name and Sake of Jesus," developing his message along the line of world-wide missionary endeavors on the part of the Christian peoples, especially the three and one-half millions of Baptists. Outlining the task of reaching around one billion people who have not heard the Gospel, and bringing the audience face to face with the Christian's lack of urge, he said:

"There are four chief reasons, vividly indicating how and why missionary endeavors seem to slacken. First, there seems to be a shifting of interest and emphasis. We feel that we must provide splendid buildings, equipment which even reaches the point of luxury and strive to satisfy desires and fancies; at the same time, thousands of church organizations, even in our homeland, have not the crudest building for a church home. Second, our sympathy for heathen religion has broadened. It is not enough to reform, but we must supplant and replace with the religion of Christ. Third, our conviction of sin and eternal punishment has weakened. No faith can thrive on doubts. Doubting is a sign of weakness, rather than of strength. Fourth, our lives too often stay close to the border line of right and wrong. We have allowed self to replace sacrifice. The greatest command give by God or man was that given by Jesus, 'go ye, therefore'."

Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 Doctor Knight's subject will be "In the Land of the False Prophet."

Members of the party said Morris fled from the girl's room as they entered it sometime after midnight.

Opposition Grows To Road Engineer

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 31 (UP)—Five senators have joined Senator W. O. Ray, Tishomingo, in his fight for the removal of W. M. Trotter as resident highway engineer in Southeast Oklahoma, Ray declared today.

Ray said that Senators Paul Stewart, John A. MacDonald, C. B. Memminger, U. T. Rexroat and Pres Lester had joined him in his fight on Trotter.

"Trotter is not a good road man and his roads in southeastern Oklahoma will show it," Ray declared.

Ray charged that Trotter has replaced local men in the different counties in road work and given the jobs to "favorites" of Trotter's.

Ray has laid the case before Governor Murray.

Sam R. Hawks, highway commission chairman, said the case has not been discussed with him.

"I have too many other things on my mind now to consider giving jobs or removing persons from jobs," Hawks said.

He Punched Tiger in Nose

Walter Caljus, attendant at a Milwaukee zoo, punched a full-grown tigress right square in the nose the other day. He had to, for he was unarmed when the tigress attacked Frank Tefelske, a painter, who was inspecting the cealing of her cage. Caljas leaped into the cage, clouted Kitty in the nose and then kicked her in the ribs. She backed away, startled, and Caljus got Tefelske out of the cage with only slight wounds. Later, however, Tefelske's condition became serious and Tuesday he died. Caljus and Kitty are shown above.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 31. (AP)—Frank Tefelske, 48, painter, attacked by a tigress a week ago, died in a hospital today.

Physicians said septicemia set in, and four blood transfusions failed.

ROAD BOARD'S BUDGET FILED

Highway Commission Seeks $1,338,180

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, March 31.—Budget of the state highway department for the next two years, calling for appropriation of $1,338,180 from the treasury and $345,600 from the highway fund for salaries and operating costs, was submitted before the house appropriations committee by Commissioner Cone Johnson and the state board of control.

Mr. Johnson said the department now pays salaries of its 18 maintenance superintendents and 18 division engineers from the highway fund, amounting to $172,800 per year.

The budget calls for salaries of $2,500 each per year for the three commissioners, and $8,000 a year for Gibb Gilchrist, state highway engineer.

There are 7,000 people employed by the highway department in Texas, Mr. Johnson estimated. These include office personnel, local warehouse employes and the crews employed by the state in direct highway maintenance work; It does not include the workers on state contract jobs, he said.

Defense Opens In Mail Fraud Trial

VINITA, Okla., March 31. (AP)—Defense witnesses went on the witness stand today in behalf of six of the eight persons on trial in federal court here on charges of conspiracy and use of the mails to defraud in connection with the sale of allegedly worthless stock in the Anglo-American Royalties corporation.

Counsel for Ben F. Fields, Tulsa investment broker, and Duric C. McIntyre, Tulsa, who was the corporation's president, waived presentation of testimony for the present. They may offer evidence later.

The session opened with O. J. Fleming, 77-year-old president of the Enid Bank and Trust company, attempting to show he had no connection with the sale of the stock. He told of purchasing other securities from persons who subsequently invested in the Anglo-American shares but said he never had advised anyone to buy the stock.

GIRL FREED IN MURDER TRIAL

Dancer Acquitted by Utah Jury Tuesday

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, March 31. (INS)—Verna Jean Dale, 21-year-old cabaret entertainer, was freed today of murder charges in connection with the "beer bottle" slaying of Sam Frank, Memphis, Tenn., jewelry auctioneer. A jury of 12 men returned a verdict of not guilty shortly after 11 o'clock today, after deliberating several hours.

The girl, whose real name was Lucille Crawford and who was born in Hampton, Iowa, was charged by the state with doping and gagging Frank in a hotel room here on Dec. 6 last. She planned to rob Frank, the state alleged, and when he failed to lose consciousness from the dope he was slugged over the head with a beer bottle. About $600 in currency and valuable jewelry was missing from Frank's effects when the body was discovered.

Geographic Society Confirms Byrd's Arrival at South Pole

WASHINGTON, March 31. (UP)—The National Geographic society today announced completion of its study of the data on the flight to the South pole by Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd and notified Byrd that he had attained the pole as closely as could be determined by the most advanced methods of navigation.

The committee of scientists which has checked Byrd's data for months, found that the maximum distance by which Byrd could have missed the actual pole was four miles.

"We are come to an unanimous conclusion," the report of the committee to the geographic society said, "that at very close to 13 hours 14 minutes, Greenwich civil time, Nov. 29, 1929, Richard Evelyn Byrd, acompanied by three companions, Bernt Balchen, Harold June and Ashley C. McKinley, was at the South Pole, insofar as an observer in an airplane, using the most accurate instruments and methods available for determining his position, could ascertain."

This committee reported to the National Geographic society's committee on research, the same committee which 21 years ago reported upon Admiral Peary's trip to the North Pole. The findings were transmitted to Byrd on behalf of the society by Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, its president; Dr. Frederick V. Covill, chairman of the committee on research, and Capt. R. S. Patton, director of the coast and geodetic survey.

"We congratulate you on the success of your Antarctic explorations," the three wrote Byrd in transmitting the findings, "and on your notable achievement in attaining the South Pole by airplane Nov. 29, 1929, the first time that the South Pole has been reached by aerial navigation."

The 15-page report of the experts, who since August, 1930, have been checking the data, contains within its discussion of Byrd's navigational methods a stirring story of how Byrd and his four companions sailed over the unknown Antarctic ice fields, subject to hazards which might arise at any moment and yet with painstaking deliberation, checked and rechecked delicate instruments, unmindful of anything except the accuracy of the observations they were making.

'Money From Home' Saves Honeymooners

EL PASO, March 31. (AP)—After finding more honeymoon adventure than they had bargained for M. H. Wallace and W. A. Gann, both 17, of Amarillo, were en route home today with their youthful wives.

Wallace told officers he and the Amarillo girl went to Portales, N. M., where they were married with Gann and his wife as witnesses. En route to El Paso, they wore out two automobile tires and ran short of money.

The youths gave their last funds to their wives for a hotel room, while they slept in the automobile. Yesterday they were questioned by detectives, who communicated with Wallace's father in Amarillo.

The elder Wallace promptly telegraphed officers $30 and the adventurers bought a new set of tires and departed.

Where Mark Twain breakfasted at 3 P. M.!

WHEN Mark Twain, the American humorist, lived in New York, he used to wander out of his house on Ninth Street and Fifth Avenue at mid-afternoon for his BREAKFAST. This he ate in a certain French hotel nearby which is even now a gathering place for epicures.

Its dining room, still becurtained in Nottingham lace, has looked out over the avenue for more than 80 years. Not long ago I, too, had breakfast there—but not at 3 in the afternoon! And, my dear good reader, if the immortal Mark Twain had ever eaten such pineapple fritters and bacon, I don't believe he would ever have waited so long for them. Those slivers of pineapple simply swooned in a delicate batter fried to a honey-brown crunchiness.

I've found the recipe for you. You can deep-fry them in the French fashion, in your own apartment for Sunday morning breakfast, if you like. Crisco is so fresh-tasting and non-smoking that no frying odors ever linger around to offend early afternoon guests. They can be used, too, as an accompaniment for other meat courses for other meals, or as a dessert by themselves.

Other fruit than pineapple can be substituted in the batter I'm giving you but I wouldn't risk substituting another fat. For Crisco is the only fat I know of that allows the real flavor of any food cooked with it, or in it, to assert its individuality. If you taste Crisco, yourself, just as it comes from the can, you can readily see how a fat so fresh flavored will preserve the delicacy of your most subtle foods. WINIFRED S. CARTER

PINEAPPLE FRITTERS

1 cup flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
1¼ cups canned pineapple cut in slivers
½ cup pineapple juice
1 tablespoon melted Crisco
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg (beaten)
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt. Add pineapple juice, lemon juice, well-beaten egg and Crisco. Mix well. Then stir in pineapple. Drop by tablespoonfuls into deep hot Crisco (360° to 375° F. or when inch cube of bread browns in 60 seconds). Fry to golden brown (about 2 minutes). Drain on unglazed paper. Dust with powdered sugar to serve as dessert. Serve plain with meat.

SUNDAY SUPPER CREAMED EGGS

6 hard cooked eggs — 6 slices of toast

Save out 2 egg yolks. Slice remainder of eggs thin and add gently to this cream sauce (mix well 2 tablespoons Crisco with 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon chopped onion. Then add gradually 2 cups hot milk and stir over a slow fire. Cook till thick. Then add 1 tablespoon chopped parsley). Arrange toast on hot platter. Pour creamed eggs over toast. Press 2 egg yolks through a sieve and sprinkle over top for a garnish.

ALL MEASUREMENTS LEVEL. Recipes tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. Crisco is the registered trade-mark of a shortening manufactured by The Procter & Gamble Co. ©1930, P. & G. Co.

Taste Crisco—then any other shortening. Crisco's sweet, fresh flavor will tell you why things made with Crisco taste so much better.

The Causes of Hernia

In speaqing of a hernia or rupture, we usually refer to the protrusion of a part of the bowel through an opening in the abdominal wall, although the terms may also apply to the protrusion of a part of any organ into or through the wall which contains it. In the abdomen it is possible to find cases where there are hernias of such organs as stomach, kidney, ovary, bladder and omentum, as well as the intestines. In fact, the liver and pancreas, because of their shape and antomical positions, are about the only abdominal organs which are not likely to develop a hernia.

The organ usually carries with it a sack of the peritoneum or membranous lining of the abdominal cavity. The intestines are by far the most common organ present in a hernia, and the usual place is the inguinal canal at the lower part of the groin on each side through which the spermatic cord passes. Hence this is the most common place for a hernia to take place in a man. In a woman, on the other hand, the hernia is apt to be a little higher up, taking place through the crural canal, through which the large blood vessels pass from the abdomen into the legs. With children, the navel is especially likely to develop a hernia.

These three locations may be considered to be natural openings through which a hernia most readily takes place, but a hernia may occur in other parts due to accidents, scars from operations, etc. The organs may also press upwardly into the chest cavity producing a hernia which does not show on the abdominal wall and is therefore difficult to diagnose. Where no actual tear in the membrances takes place, the cure of most abdominal hernias is quite certain if the proper measures are used.

Hernias are often present at birth from some weakness or defect of the tissues forming the abdominal wall.

The most common types of hernias are known as reducible, irreducible, obstructed and strangulated. A reducible hernia is one in which the organ may be readily pressed back inside the abdominal cavity. An irreducible hernia cannot be pressed back because it has either become adherent or enlarged so that it can no longer pass back through the opening from which it emerged. An obstructed hernia means that the bowels has protruded, producing a kink so that the bowel contents are bostructed. A strangulated hernia is the most dangerous because the circulation of the blood to the part which is passed through the opening has become stopped by pressure of the opening. There is a danger of gangrene and death within a very short time from this type of hernia. All hernias have the danger of becoming strangulated eventually unless they are corrected.

The cause of hernia is: first, some weakness or defect in the abdominal wall, and, second, an increase of internal pressure. Childbearing often weakens the abdominal walls and makes a hernia possible. Also any increase or decrease of fat too suddenly may weaken the abdominal wall unless the abdominal muscles are at the same time developed. Hard labor, lifting great weights, or the pressurre of internal flatulence may all be considered as contributing causes.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Sleeps too Much

Question—A. F. asks: "What would you think was the trouble with a young man around 30 years old who after a few days' work wanted to sleep for two or three days and nights? Gets up from his meals and goes back after eating a hearty meal and sleeps soundly."

Answer—Eight hours of sleep should be enough for anyone doing hard manual labor. If the young man feels the necessity for sleeping longer than this it is probably because he is overeating, or is in a very toxic condition.

Mushrooms

Question—B. J. D. asks: "What food value have fresh or dried mushrooms? What part of a chicken is easier to digest, the light or dark part?"

Answer—Dried or fresh mushrooms have only a small amount of food value, but are delicious additions to the diet when one is attempting to use a large variety of non-starchy vegetables. The white meat of fowl is usually more tender and digests in a shorter time than the dark meat.

Kidney Stones

Question—R. G. asks: "Will kidney stones cause pains in the back of the neck and head?"

Answer—The presence of kidney stones should have no effect on producing pains in the back of the head unless the stones have descended into the bladder. Pains and aches in the back of the head and neck are often reflex symptoms of an irritation of the bladder or other pelvic organs.

MURRAY PAPER STIRS ATTACK

Proposal Asks Action Of P. O. Department

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 31. (UP)—A copy of the Blue Valley Farmer, campaign newspaper of Gov. W. H. Murray, would be forwarded to the postmaster-general "for whatever action he deems expedient" under provisions of a senate resolution introduced late today.

The resolution, introduced by Senators Jennings and Mac Q. Williamson, condemned the publication for its "unwarranted and scurrilous attacks on Senator Knox Garvin in its March 26 issue." The resolution charged the newspaper was used to intimidate legislators and to "cover up conditions of vital state importance in other departments."

"This paper can be made the greatest hijacking proposition in Oklahoma," Senator J. O. Ferguson charged during the course of debate in the senate on the corporation income tax bill.

Murray Cross

The paper has been attacking the governor's enemies in the senate.

"I have lost faith in the state tax commission and the state board of affairs since those members bought the Blue Valley Farmer," Ferguson said.

Murray's answer was a tirade against newspaper men. In the afternoon press conference, the governor said:

"I'm getting damned tired of you fellows publishing gossip on my integrity. I have tried to play the game square, free and open.

"In my early days, I was used to honorable newspaper men. If every newspaper in the state goes against me I will not yield a damned inch," the governor shouted.

Change Approved

Meanwhile, debate raged on the income tax bill. A depletion deduction of 27½ per cent on gross income was allowed oil, mining and lumber companies in an amendment adopted by the senate.

The house approved senate amendments to the corporation license tax bill, providing a tax of $1 per $1,000 capital stock of all corporations. The bill goes to the governor for signature.

A bill appropriating $2,000,000 each year of the next biennium for weak school aid was set for special consideration tomorrow.

Youth Charged In Death of Doctor

O'DONNELL, Texas, March 31. (UP)—A charge of murder was filed against Jack Mitchell, 21, Lynn county farmer, in Tahoka today as the result of a shooting Monday night here in which Dr. C. E. Collins, prominent local physician, was killed.

A preliminary hearing for the young man will be held Friday morning in Tahoka.

The shooting was said by witnesses to have been the aftermath of an argument between the doctor and young Mitchell. Sheriff B. L. Parker of Lynn county who had been notified of possible trouble here, had just concluded a conference between the two parties which had apparently ended in peace, the physician agreeing to leave the scene.

He returned a few minutes later, Sheriff Parker said, carrying a shotgun which the officer tried to wrest from him as he approached young Mitchell and several others. Parker had previously searched both men, he said, but the youth in the meantime had secured a gun from his car nearby and the shooting followed with the sheriff holding on to the doctor's gun.

TOUGH LUCK

The old saying, "it never rains but what it pours" seems painfully true to the people who tried to help themselves in making a spring garden this season.

Before the first blizzard gardens were put in by enterprising citizens, helped by Wichita Falls merchants, and public spirited people. The blizzards came not only once but twice and the small plants which were just coming out of the ground were killed by the frost. Now these people have of course lost their labor and their prospective truck patches.

Mrs. McHam of the Family Relief association states that they are willing to try their home garden over if some benevolent persons or firms will again supply them with some seeds.

Call the Family Relief association, 2-2183, if interested.

Held in Killing

Elliott R. Hathaway, son of a Massachusetts state legislator, who eluded police of several states for 50 hours after the murder of Verna Russell, a girl nurse, is shown here following his surrender to authorities at Providence, R. I. He entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of killing the girl, whose bruised body was found in a clump of bushes alongside a road near Tiverton, R. I.

Four Bitten When Fugitive Baboon Loses His Temper

VENICE, Calif., March 31. (UP)—A huge baboon escaped from its cage on the pleasure pier here today and, angered by a police dog which sought to protect several small children, bit and scratched two women, a policeman and a negro before being shot to death by the officer.

The baboon, known to thousands of beach visitors as Jocko, was in a playful mood when it broke the lock on its cage. Jocko sauntered about the pier and had joined the children when the dog sensed the danger. He tried to drive Jocko away and the Simian became angered.

In the excitement that followed, those injured were:

Mrs. Irene de Molina, 32, bitten on the right hand and wrist and clawed on the right thigh in protecting her 5-year-old son.

Mrs. Florence Anderson, 54, knocked down, bitten on the left arm and leg, and clothing torn.

Heman Simon, 28, negro, who rushed to the aid of Mrs. de Molina, attracted the attention of the ape, and had his right hand almost bitten off.

Sergeant John Brunty, 39, Venice police department, attracted by the screams of the women, was bitten on the hand by the baboon before he could draw his gun.

Victory Seen For Motor Control Bill

AUSTIN, March 31. (UP)—Victory for strict rate and route regulation of motor truck traffic was apparently in sight when the Texas house recessed tonight. On repeated amendments to the pending regulatory bill, opponents could muster but 41 votes while its advocates retained 86.

The chief assault upon the bill was made by Representative W. E. Pope of Corpus Christi, in offering an amendment to prohibit rail lines from having an interest in truck lines. Pope charged that the bill before the Texas legislature is a duplicate in purpose of bills offered in other legislatures by southwestern railroad executives, and the draft fitted to Texas statutes was made by railroad attorneys.

Other bills are pending to regulate truck size, weights and manner of operation on the highways.

The house received its thousandth bill of the session today. There have been 575 offered in the senate.

DEATH BREAKS LONG INTIMACY OF ROCKNE AND BARRY HOLTON

Tributes To Rockne

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, March 31.—All his life was speed. Do it right, but do it quickly, he taught his quarterbacks. The best way to win is to pull the unexpected.

And so, with the swiftness characteristic of his whole life, Knute Rockne's death today closed the career of the most spectacular figure in American football leaving it dazed and shaken from the loss of a personality woven into the very fabric of the sport.

To those who have known and appreciated Rockne's genius as a creative mind and leader, to those who have gone out on the gridirons to fight their young hearts out for the coach they worshipped, to those who have sat at the fountain of his football knowledge and set forth to make their own careers as disciples of his famous "system"—Rockne's passing seems almost too shocking to believe.

It takes from football the most forceful, dynamic character the sport ever has known. It removes from the University of Notre Dame the man whose ability as a coach, philosopher and leader made the "fighting Irish" a gridiron by-word from one end of the country to the other.

"Miss me? Why should they?" he once said during the 1929 season when a leg infection forced him to withdraw temporarily from active direction of Notre Dame's football forces. "They went right on and won without me, didn't they?" It's the way it's done, not the man who does it."

The 1929 team went through its season undefeated, with Rockne's assistants doing most of the work, but what "Rock" failed to mention was that "his boys" won because they were inspired to do it for him.

Rockne made light of inspirational stuff himself. He delighted to tell dressing room stories, of his own skepticicism as an under-graduate and star end at Notre Dame before the war, yet paramount in many of his team's successes was his ability to arouse the emotion of his players.

NOTRE DAME SHOCKED AT TRAGIC ACCIDENT

SOUTH BEND, Ind., March 31. (AP)—Notre Dame and South Bend stood dazed and benumbed tonight—still scarcely able to realize that tragic death had taken Knute Rockne from them.

Student body, school officials, priests, professors, and townsfolk—from city officials to newsboys on the streets, whispered over and over to each other the same thing: It isn't possible." Flags were ordered lowered to halfstaff by Maj. W. R. Hinkle to remain so until after the funeral Saturday morning.

First reports of the tragedy were received in South Bend at noon, but they were unverified and no one was willing to believe them. By 12:30 p. m. the Notre Dame campus was filled with anxious, but still hopeful friends of "Rock."

At 1:30, when verification came, hundreds turned away silently and went to Sacred Heart church where they remained all afternoon.

The most touchingly sorrowful scene occurred in the athletic association office where Rockne made his headquarters.

Gathered in the small room were members of the coaching staff, players, student managers and office employes who had been associated with Rockne for years. Like every one else they at first refused to believe the first meager reports that came in. Herbert Jones, assistant business manager of athletics, answered all telephone calls; the others sat or stood silent with heads bowed.

After what seemed an enternity of waiting a messenger called Jones to the office of Father O'Donnell.

"Verification has come," he was told.

At the same time a reporter received the same stunning message from his office. Tears welled in the eyes of the men who had fought their battles for Rockne, and so probably knew him better. Frank Carideo, all-American quarterback, Capt. Tom Conley of the undefeated national champions of 1930; Al Culver, and Rock's two nearest assistants, Heartly "Hunk" Anderson, and Jack Chevigny, were speechless.

DOZEN DEFEATS IN 13 YEARS ROCK'S RECORD

(By The Associated Press)

In 13 years as head football coach at the University of Notre Dame, Knute Rockne led only 12 defeated teams from the field.

In only two years under Rockne did the Irish suffer more than one defeat. Their poorest season was that of 1928, when they were beaten four times.

Notre Dame's complete record for the 13 years of the Rockne regime shows 108 victories, 12 defeates and four ties. In compiling this record the Irish score 2,847 points to opponents 667. Five Rockne elevens were unbeaten, those of 1919, 1920, 1924, 1929 and 1930.

COACH HERE MOURNS LOSS

'The Real Rockne' Was Idol Of Coyote Mentor

By FRED THOMPSON

Death robbed Barry Holton, Coyote coach, of his best friend yesterday, the "real" Knute Rockne.

Not merely Knute Rockne the great football coach, but Rockne the pal, the real, genuine man, whom Holton had known and loved for long.

The loss shook Holton with sorrow, for he was one of Rockne's "gang." When word was received early Tuesday afternoon that Rockne had been killed in an airplane crash, big Barry Holton, massive physically, was reduced to a boy in tears.

He was asked by The Record News to give a word picture of the Rockne he knew, and he consented. When he had finished writing he wanted to do it over again, to try to do more justice to his old pal. But instead he turned to the reporter who had come for the copy and talked and cried. His original story is printed in the columns to the right, but as Holton fumbled around in his hotel room unearthing countless mementos of his days at Notre Dame, he gave a greater demonstration of his love for "Rock" than countless words could achieve.

"And he was only 43 years old! Here, look—some of his own writing," he said, and what he exhibited was two or three sheets of paper on which Rockne had outlined some football formations. "I knew him better than anyone else. What little things I can remember of him now! I knew him when he was poor. I helped him get into his first dress suit. I worked with him, slept with him, traveled to Europe with him, went to him in times of trouble, and he came to me in times of stress. Fame meant nothing to him. In the little intimate matters, between us two—there is where he showed his real heart."

The Meeting

Holton first saw Knute Rockne in Austin in 1913, when as a high school student he watched him play end with the Notre Dame team, which had come there to play the Longhorns. In 1916 Holton entered Notre Dame. He played on the Notre Dame team as center in 1917. In 1918 he withdrew from school and entered the army. He re-entered the school in 1919 and again played on the team. In 1920, he was given charge of a course in physical education, and that spring Rockne made him coach of the Notre Dame freshman team, on which played various future celebrities, including the famous "four horsemen," Harry Stuhldrehr, now coaching at Villanova; Elmer Layden, Duquesne coach at present; Charles Crowley, now coach of the Michigan Aggies, and Don Miller. This quartet, later to become famous wherever football was known, received their first serious instruction from Holton.

Since then the intimate relation between the two was maintained. In 1928 Holton, Rockne and several others formed a party and toured England and Europe. Holton attended all the coaching schools established by Rockne, beginning in 1924 when the school was held at Arkadelphia, Ark., to 1929, when the school was held at Dallas. They corresponded profusely, and for six years Holton was considered "one of the family" at Christmas dinners in the Rockne household. In Rockne's book, "The Four Winners," published in 1925, Holton is one of the characters.

The Last Meeting

They last met only three weeks ago at Dallas. Rockne was on a tour at that time. There Rockne presented Holton with a large blue and gold Notre Dame blanket. It was stretched out on the bed in Holton's room Tuesday afternoon and over it was spread countless letters in Rockne's handwriting, photographs, incidentals that had meaning for Holton, because they came from or pertained to Rockne. Grouped on the blanket—"which he touched just three weeks ago," Holton said with tears in his eyes—was Barry's storehouse of memories.

Memories Of Knute Rockne

To Many His Death Means the Loss "Not Only of A Celebrity, but a Pal," Writes Holton

By BARRY HOLTON
Coach, Wichita Falls High School

During the many years it has been my good fortune to know Mr. Rockne I have often wondered why someone like myself did not have courage enough to write something about the real Rockne and not Rockne, the football coach. But on second thought I know why this was never attempted. He would not have wanted it and when you love a man you will never even think of doing anything he would not like. Rock, as his gang called him, did not do the things he did for publication. Now that he is no more I guess many will offer testimony as to his greatness. It is my sorrowful task to mention a few of the "little things" I know about him and thus assure all that his teaching of football was indeed a thing of insignifance when compared to his charity, help and inspiration to the hundreds of men that God saw fit to place in his company and care.

I have known him since 1916 and in all possible situations of life. I knew him at his dinner table with Mrs. Rockne and his four children. I have watched his uncanny mind function during football games attended by over 100,000 people; I was with him outside the gates of Rome; I stood with him by the death-bed of George Gipp; I have seen him a poor man; I have shared his company since he has enjoyed material independence and prosperity, I have seen him weep with gladness and sorrow; I have known him—that is all.

From the time he was assistant coach to Jess Harper, of Notre Dame, in 1916, to three weeks ago yesterday when I sat in Dallas and listened with damp eyes to his story of his recent and serious illness I have known him and loved him. During all of these years of growing prominence during which he has reached the classification of America's greatest and most colorful leader on the college football field, I have found him absolutely the same genuine man. The Mr. Rockne of years ago did not change as providence blessed him with success. At Thanksgiving I visited him in Chicago during the nationally famous Army-Notre Dame football game, and then, as recent as this, his welcome and proof of his friendship were just as true and wholesome to me as they were years ago. His philosophy of life was great. He never admitted defeat, and this wonderful characteristic has been the single inspiration for many of his boys to "carry on." He always encouraged and even during times when defeat seemed inevitable he would cry to "keep battling." One time he told me that his toughest day was always his most pleasurable. Often I have heard men who thought they knew him speak of his humor, his cleverness, his ability as a disciplinarian, his leadership, etc., and I would say to myself how far they were from knowing the genuine man he was.

He was an actor, of course, but his acting was natural. It was Rockne himself. I have been with him when he would bend large crowds of listeners to his beliefs in life regarding courage, consideration for the other fellow, true sportsmanship and above all loyalty and ambition. These crowds, at one place then at another, could never have appreciated his kindness. They knew him on the surface. He, like other great men, was often approached by many who just wanted to see him and never has he ever failed to receive them. In Dallas last month as he lay resting in his room two men telephoned up and wanted to see him. I answered the phone. I did not ask Rock for permission but told them to come up. They entered and he sat up to greet them. Two old men who meant nothing to him, yet his welcome was as great to these old fellows as it was to the many others I have seen him greet. At another time I traveled through the oil fields of dusty Arkansas with him to help a friend who needed him. I have never known him to refuse anything and in my telegram to Mrs. Rockne I mentioned the loss the men of Notre Dame suffer in his passing. He was an optimist through and through. I saw him discover the loss of a $50 bill. He shrugged his shoulders and said: "It could have been one hundred." I was in New York with him and when reporters climbed on the boat and asked him if he met the Prince of Wales, he answered, "No, but I was pointed out to him." These examples speak for his quick mind.

As I have read Grantland Rice, Eckersall, and many other leaders in the journalistic world, I have always wished to add something to their stories about his charity and love for his boys that only we, the robbed, to speak of it as such, could speak of. These men have known him as talker, as the guest of a governor, as the leader of Notre Dames' great football teams as they sped across the busy streets of New York City or the thoroughfares of California, and not as his gang know him.

I am sure I join many others of Notre Dame when I sit with bowed head and share the sorrow of his family. America and the great institution of education have lost a potent factor but hundreds of others have lost not a celebrity but a pal. Tonight I know many will kneel in pure sorrow and realization. All will try, yet how impossible to admit, that Rock is gone. Only a memory remains. These former wearers of the Blue and Gold will cry out just as he has cried out to them in frantic tones. But their cry will not be to "go in there and battle." Their's will be a silent, interrupted cry, a cry between real gasps, when they pray that God will be merciful to his soul.

I recall the markings on the grave of Gray's mother, just outside London, which I stood and read with him. "Here lies the mother of some children, only one of whom had the misfortune to survive her."

ROCKNE KILLED IN AIR CRASH

Seven Others Die When Transport Plunges

Ambulances brought the bodies of the victims here from the farm near Bazaar where the great three-motored Fokker transport plane plowed into a pasture softened by rain and melting snow.

This town and Bazaar are about 140 miles southwest of Kansas City. The bodies are to be held here overnight while local authorities communicate with relatives of the victims.

Four Bodies in Plane

Farmers who helped extricate the bodies said four of them, those of two passengers and the pilots, were found in the plane's wreckage. They were badly mangled. The four others were found about 50 feet from the plane. First reports were uncertain as to the exact fate suffered by Rockne.

Identification was slow and difficult because of the torn condition of the bodies. By means of cards, billfolds and other material the process was finally completed.

Rockne's body was viewed and identified late today by William L White of Emporia, son of William Allen White, Emporia publisher and a personal friend of the Notre Dame coach.

The Fokker plane, regularly engaged in the Kansas City-Los Angeles mail and passenger service of the Transcontinental and Western Air Express, had left Kansas City at 9:15 a. m. in awaiting a consignment of mail, it was 45 minutes late in departing.

It was due in Los Angeles at 11 p. m. The first stop was to have been in Wichita, Kan.

Drizzle Falling

In the Kansas City area the air was murky this morning and a slight drizzle was falling from leaden clouds. Officials at the Kansas City airport, however, reported improved weather advices from Wichita, with a clear, flying ceiling between 3,000 and 4,000 feet.

Pointing its nose into the Southwest, the big Fokker had roared away. Within about an hour and a half it faltered above the farm of Seward Baker, four miles from Bazaar. It was flying low. The sky was cloudy. Edwards Baker, 20-year-old son of Seward Baker, was in the pasture.

The younger Baker and Robert Blackburn of Cottonwood Falls were the only known witnesses of the tragedy that followed.

"I heard the motors sputtering," Baker said. "I looked up, but was unable to see the plane. It was cloudy and I guess the ship was above the clouds.

"I watched and the ship came down below the clouds. I could see it plainly. Then the pilot seemed to give it the gun.

"The motors sounded all right and he shot across the sky for about a minute. Then one of the wings snapped off. It went sailing off to one side like a piece of cardboard and fluttered down.

"The rest of the ship just seemed to stop still in mid-air for an instant.

"Then it dropped to the ground."

Plane Noses Down

Blackburn said the motors had sounded as if they were backfiring.

"Then I saw an object fluttering toward earth," he said. "It was a wing of the plane. Then on the other side of me I saw the rest of the plane, plunging straight downward. Its nose dived into the pasture about half a mile from where the wing hit."

The two men rushed to the fallen plan. Great holes had been torn in the soft pasture land where the three motors had struck, nose downward. From the surrounding countryside farm hands ran to the scene.

Edward Baker said all the occupants of the plane were dead when he reached it. Some were in the cabin. Others had been thrown clear of the wreckage by the force of the plunge or the impact. Some of the bodies were badly mutilated. Clothing had been torn, in some cases almost stripped from its wearer.

The fallen transport was a tangled mass of steel and wire and wood. Mail pouches were strewn all the way from the lost wing to the plane itself.

Edward Baker ran to his home and telephoned to Cottonwood Falls for doctors and ambulances. These responded and the work of extricating the bodies began.

The theory here was that the plane's wings became coated with ice, causing one of them to break loose from the ship's body. It would have been impossible for the ship to have struck any obstacle.

TRANSPORT MANAGER INVESTIGATES CRASH

COTTONWOOD FALLS, Kan., March 31. (UP)—E. G. Edgerton, Wichita, Kan., manager of the Transcontinental and Western Air company, tonight said he was positive the ill-fated passenger plane neither exploded nor burned.

"I rushed to the scene of the crash and surveyed the wreckage," Edgerton said. "The wreckage was soaked with gasoline, proving beyond a doubt that there was neither an explosion nor a trace of fire aboard the ship."

Edgerton said he believed the crash was caused by a coating of ice on the plane's wing.

Louisiana's principal crops in 1930 represented a total farm value of $107,787,000.

Impress of Rockne's Personality Will Be on Football Forever, Runyon Says

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyr., 1931, Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, March 31.—Knute Rockne, killed in the very flower of his career, leaves the impress of his personality and genius on the game of football forever.

He was undoubtedly the greatest football coach of all time. I think that will be conceded. He was the greatest not only because of his evolution of football play, but because of his influence on the game generally.

Rockne, more than any other individual, was responsible for the growth and spread of football to its present big league proportions. There had been other great coaches and great leaders of the game before his time, but their interest and their influence was largely local.

It was Rockne, with his marvelous Notre Dame football teams, and through his own powerful personality, who made of football the national institution that it is today. He achieved, as a football coach, the greatest fame that has ever come to any gridiron figure. He made his alma mater the dream goal of nearly every boy in the land.

It was not my pleasure to know Rockne intimately, but I was one of his greatest admirers. I admired not only his success in his chosen field, but his forcefulness in speech and action, and his enormous influence on American youth. It is my contention that any man who is the greatest man in his own line of endeavor is necessarily a great man, and on that basis greatness cannot be denied Rockne.

Career Began in 1913

It was back in 1913 that the name of Rockne first came to the attention of the East. A football team from the then comparatively obscure University of Notre Dame (obscure from a football standpoint) appeared at West Point on the Hudson river to play a good army team.

This game attracted little or no attention before hand, because it was the general opinion of the eastern football experts that Notre Dame was nothing more nor less than a "set-up" for the Soldiers. Few of the experts attended, but they read with astonishment the next day how two young fellows, Rockne and Dorias, had whipped the Army by a score of 35 to 13 through the medium of a tricky flipping of the ball in a play called the forward pass.

The East had heard, vaguely, of this forward pass, to be sure, but thought of it as a freak play, not at all in accordance with the sounder tenets of football. The West Point Soldiers, having had a bitter taste of it, however, thought pretty well of the pass, and borrowed it for their own uses against the Navy a little later on.

Pritchard and Merrillat was the forward-passing combination that suddenly sprang up out of the snow flakes of a wintery day at the polo grounds to utterly confound the Navy, and thereafter the East took plenty of notice of the strange maneuver that had been brought to the Hudson by Rockne and Dorias and the Notre Dame football team.

Revolutionized Game

Today the youth of the land regard the forward pass as commonplace, but when Rockne and Dorias were young fellows, it was unquestionably the greatest step forward in football since the beginning of the game in this country.

Rockne was a first-class end in his football playing days at Notre Dame, which extended from 1911 to 1914. After graduating, he became assistant to Jess-Harper, the coach, and held this position from 1914 to 1918, when Harper retired and Rockne became head coach. In his last playing year Rockne was captain of his team.

His old partner in the history making forward pass, Gus Dorias, also became a football coach. He played in Notre Dame's backfield. No story of football evolution would be complete without great attention devoted to this celebrated pair.

Rockne, as he became familiar to football enthusiasts all over the nation, and to millions of movie fans through his football "shorts," was a blocky, sturdy built man, with the flat features of an old fighter, a rough-and-ready looking man,

REQUIEM MASS FOR ROCKNE

Notre Dame Priest Gives Eulogy

SOUTH BEND, Ind., March 31. (US)—The Rev. John F. O'Hara, C. S. C., prefect of religion at the University of Notre Dame, this evening said in a special religious bulletin:

"Knute Rockne has had a wider influence in developing the ideal of fair play than any other man of his generation; he did it under the banner of the Mother of God and we feel that She took care of him in his hour of need."

The bulletin carried a black bordered picture of Rockne in addition to the announcement. Father O'Hara announced that a requiem high mass will be celebrated in Sacred Heart church of Notre Dame at 6:20 a. m. Wednesday for the repose of the soul of the dead coach.

Rockne was a convert to the Catholic religion.

Example set by his players in attending holy communion before football games is said to have so impressed Rockne that he joined the church.

The story is told that one Saturday morning before a football game Rockne was unable to sleep and was sitting in the lobby of a hotel. He noted his players filing out of the hotel at an early hour and inquired as to the reason.

Their explanation that they were on their way to holy communion made an indelible impression on him.

Sports Editor, Shreveport Times

SHREVEPORT, La., March 31. (AP)—The most consistent club in the Texas league the past season, finishing third in the first half of the race, in the same position in the last half, and taking the show eerth on the complete standing, the Shreveport Sports may find it hard this summer keeping out of the cellar.

Changes on a wholesale scale, that skimmed the cream of all departments, with the exception of pitching, leaves the Sports on the rocky road, and probably in their worst state than any time since they gave up guarding the dungeon about four years ago.

In addition to changing most of its player talent, the club has also changed ownership, T. S. Hickman being advanced from business manager to president and part owner, and the old familiar Jake Atz being brought into the fold as part owner, and field manager. In the latter role he succeeds Arthur "Dugan" Phelan.

Many New Players

As skipper of the Sports, Atz finds himself surrounded with a few capable pitchers, left over from the 1930 fold, a few veterans of the Shreveport team and many new players brought in from leagues of lower classification in an effort to find respectable material to put on the field for the flag race. Majority of the young players are ones who were farmed out by the Sports last year. Some were sold to teams of lower classification but reverted to the Sports when the smaller leagues failed to function.

The strength and the batting power of the Sports of 1930 is gone. Ernie Holman, a fence busting third baseman and Cecil Stewart, a clever keystone guardian, are with the Dallas Steers. Blondie Baker, Well-Rope Perry and Dutch Krauss, other strong members of the 1930 Sports are with their old manager, Art Phelan, at Fort Worth. Bill Morrell was sold to the New York Giants and Tiny Owens was traded to Mobile. They were fair pitchers. Pete McClanahan, a slugging outfield, was drafted by Pittsburgh and Roy Hutson, outfielder, went with Owens to Mobile of the Southern league in a trade.

Behind the bat the Sports will have three candidates new to the team. The veteran Pete Lapan is on hand and Charley Rowland, who was with the Sports four or five years ago is back again trying for a catcher's job. The other backstop candidate is Hill, from the Mobile club.

Gus Whelan, a clever fielding first baseman, who slumped with the bat last year is trying to regain his 1929 form. He has a serious rival in George Johns, 180-pound Dallas youth, who fields well and hits the ball hard. Joe Huarts, who was in the short field is being given inside track for the short berth but Al Vincent and Don McShane who were farmed out last year, and Jimmy Vorhoff, who was in the Central league are seeking the berth.

Heinie Mueller and Horn, who were farmed out last season are leading candidates for the short field. Mueller returned in midseason and took part in 64 games. Both were in the Cotton States league. As a member of the Vicksburg club, Horn was voted most valuable player of the loop. He batted about .335 and fielded well and is up for his third time with the Sports. Shorty Smith, farmed out to the Cotton States league, in 1931 also bids for the job.

Problem at Third

The Sports' biggest problem will probably be at third base. Dutch Welsh, obtained from Mobile as an outfielder, is being tried at third base and Red Sanders, with Mobile for a while in 1930 is also after the hot corner job. Two youngsters, just out of independent ball, Lail and Derden are also working at the hot corner. Cleveland is expected to furnish the Sports with an infield candidate.

In the outfield the Sports have only Cy Cashion remaining. They have recalled Walter Parks and Sam Scaling and both will get serious consideration. Scaling was a heavy hitter in the Cotton States league last summer and Parks won the reputation of a slugger in the Southeastern league. Scaling is a big fellow, very fast, can throw and field and hits the ball hard.

Pewee Lewis, on the shelf in 1930, but a member of Nashville for several years previous, is being looked upon as a fixture. He is a very colorful player but not a dangerous hitter. Kunisch who was with Jersey City for a couple of seasons, the veteran Tommy Lovelace of Texas league fame, Joe Dwyer, a .335 hitter from the Eastern league, Al Mueller and Kinney, two other young players, are working as outfielders. Help for the outfield is expected from Cleveland.

Pitching Fairly Good

It is in the pitching department that the Sports appear best. They have Oscar Tuero, veteran spitballer; Pat Moulton, and Vernon Underhill, almost regular winners last season, and have taken on Red Roberts, formerly of Fort Worth; Buster Ross, formerly of Wichita Falls; Chester Ross from the Canton club; Grandpa Wood, from the Southeastern league; Ray and Mayfield, a couple of promising sandlotters and Oscar Estrada from the 1930 Sports. Estrada is now in Cuba endeavoring to make arrangements to return here. Lefty Ward, who was farmed out by the Sports will get another trial for a mound job.

The Sports have almost 50 players in camp but were late starting to train and it will be weeks before Atz will be in a position to tell what he really has in the way of good material.

Hearst Milk Fund Refuses to Stage Schmeling-Strib Bout in Chicago

NEW YORK, March 31. (AP)—The Hearst milk fund has withdrawn from promotion of the proposed heavyweight match between Max Schmeling and W. L. Stribling, now scheduled for the Midwest and will stage a substitute bout here, it was announced today.

In an official statement, Damon Runyon, Hearst milk fund promoter who signed the two heavyweights for the bout who could not stage the match here because of opposition from the New York State Athletic commission, said the fund was interested only in raising funds for charity here.

The Illinois State Athletic commission, with negotiations under way to stage the match in Chicago, ruled that 50 per cent of the profits must go to Chicago charities.

The substitute match here was not announced but the statement said it had arranged and would have the complete backing of the New York State Athletic commission.

'Rock's' Influence Will Live Forever

with a gruff voice. In reality, he was highly educated, an expert in chemistry, and given to reading what we call high brow literature. At one time he taught chemistry at Notre Dame betw spells of football coaching.

Players Adored Him

His young players always adored him, and his lightest word was the law with them. He preached to them the gospel of clean living, and of manliness, and any boy that ever played football under Rockne was all the better man for the experience.

He was most companionable, and a welcome figure in any group. He was a good conversationalist, a good raconteur, and I doubt if any football coach that ever lived was as popular with the newspaper writers.

He was a very sick man a couple of years ago. Blood clots in his leg made his a helpless invalid for a long time, and once his life was despaired of. But Rockne fought back to health with bulldog courage, and he lived to achieve last fall his very greatest football triumphs with one of his greatest Notre Dame teams.

It is the opinion of most football experts that the team which included the celebrated "four horsemen" was Rockne's masterpiece, but Rockne himself though extremely well of his 1930 group. He probably produced as many great individual players as any coach that ever lived, and he certainly produced more great ensembles than any other coach.

It is a sad thing that he had to be cut down in his prime, because even greater achievements lay before him. The entire world of sport will mourn his passing. And the nation generally must deplore the death of a man who was one of its greatest men-makers, and one of its finest influences for good.

ROCKNE EXCELLED AS SPORTS PSYCHOLOGIST

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

CHICAGO, March 31. (UP)—During the past two seasons, Notre Dame won 19 consecutive games and undisputed claim to the national gridiron championship. The longest string of straight victories amassed by Rockne's teams, however, was in 1919, 1920 and 1921 when the Irish won 20 straight games.

Knute Rockne was perhaps the foremost psychologist in the athletic world. One of his most famous tricks was worked on the 1926 team. On Nov. 27 that year the Notre Dame eleven was headed for an undefeated season, and Rockne remained in Chicago to attend a meeting of the Western conference while his team went to Pittsburgh to play Carnegie Tech and received a stunning defeat, 19-0. When the team returned Rockne did not say a word about the defeat.

The next week the Notre Dame squad boarded a train for Los Angeles to play Southern California and when the players opened their baggage to prepare for bed that night there was a program of the Carnegie Tech game in each suitcase. Rockne never did mention the Carnegie Tech game, but Notre Dame came through with a thrilling 13-12 victory over Southern California.

Never Had Alibis

Rockne could take defeat as gracefully as he could take victory. He never had an alibi for any of his losses.

"Take the bitter with the sweet," was one of his pet sayings.

Rockne perhaps developed more raw recruits into football stars than any other coach. Rockne's greatest player, George Gipp, who died on the Notre Dame campus after he had been picked as all-America halfback in 1921, had never played football before Rockne saw him kicking a football on the field one day. Some of his other great players who had never played football before they went to Notre Dame were Kiley, Mehre, Flannagan, Oberst, Mohardt, Weibel, Kizer, Huntsinger and Chilly Walsh.

Other coaches often were jealous of Rockne's successes, some even attributing them to the wealth of material available at Notre Dame.

"That is not true," Rockne always said. "We get good material but it's the tradition and environment that enables us to build up some players beyond the average."

There were always many obstacles in the path of the Notre Dame team. Rockne arranged the hardest possible schedules for them, never taking a "breather" if he could get a hard game. Many of the toughest games were played away from home.

In 1929 Rockne contracted a serious infection in his legs known as thrombo phlebitis and he directed his team from a wheel chair until ordered to bed by his physician. Rockne never fully recovered from this ailment, and had to wear rubber bandages around both legs until his tragic death.

The untimely end of the famous coach will leave a breach in the gridiron world which never will be filled. Rockne's spirit, leadership and coaching genius made him stand alone above all others.

Rockne's personality was so dynamic that his mere presence was felt wherever he appeared. His sharp, staccato voice made him one of the most spell-binding speakers in the country. Even in silence Rockne was a commanding figure.

He was a master craftsman at his chosen work. There never will be another like him. In his 14 years as coach he developed more players who became successful coaches than any other man.

Even though Rockne's voice and brain have been stilled forever, his spirit is certain to linger on and inspire Notre Dame to victories so long as there is a game of football.

Two Favorites Beaten In Women's Golf Meet

PINEHURST, N. C., March 31. (AP)—Two favorites were eliminated in first round match play of the North and Sound women's gold tournament today as Maureen Orcutt, Englewood, N. J., who yesterday won medal honors, led eight linkswomen into the second round.

The New Jersey girl won by the largest margin of the day, turning back Ruth Batcheler, Boston, 7 and 6.

In quick succession both Edith Quier, Reading, Pa., runnerup to Glenna Collett in last year's finals, and Martha Parker, New York, metropolitan champion, bowed before the fine shots of golfers of less prominence.

LEAGUE PLANS CLASS B MEET

New Goal Set Up for Lower Bracket Teams

AUSTIN, March 31.—For the first time in the history of interscholastic league athletics, class B schools this year will have the opportunity to compete for a class B state championship, according to Roy B. Henderson, athletic director of the University of Texas League bureau. A state meet for those class B schools which were eliminated in the district tournaments will be held at Denton, under the direction of Theron J. Foutz, at the same time the general state meet is being conducted in Austin May 8 and 9.

As has been the practice in the past, class B schools placing in the county meets will enter the competition against the class A schools in the district meets, and, if still winning, will be eligible to enter the state meet at Austin, also in competition with class A schools. The tournament to be held at Denton at North Texas State Teachers college will be open only to class B schools; it is being held chiefly for those class B schools eliminated in the district tournaments.

As in the state meet at Austin, the meet will be comprised of track and field events and tennis.

Norton county, Kansas, farmers donated enough wheat for a carload of flour to be distributed among drouth sufferers.

A move is under way to preserve the old French embassy in Austin, Texas, as an historic shrine.

Drawings Made In Girls' Net Tourney

Drawings were held for the girl's elimination tournament Tuesday evening to choose the representative in the district meet April 16. With the district tourney only two weeks off, the girls will start their tourney in preparation for this event as soon as the courts are in condition. Many of the leading contenders have been practicing on the high school courts, and expect to have a strong team by time for the meet.

Miss Olinger, the sponsor, announced that the doubles tournament will be held along with the singles tourney. There are only four teams in the doubles tournament, with the two teams consisting of Betty Jane Sehmann and Irma Cline; and Loraine Mathis and Jean Hunter considered as favorites. There are only eight entrants in the singles tourney, but some very good material may be seen in the daily practice.

The pairings in the doubles tournament are as follows: Betty Jane Sehmann and Irma Cline with Iva Lee Eubanks and Evelyn Lippard; Lois Corbin and Mary Hyatt with Loraine Mathis and Jean Hunter.

CARDS GET REST

BRADENTON, Fla., March 31. (AP)—Rain gave the Cardinals a holiday today. "The boys needed a rest," commented Manager Street. "They have been working hard and I was afraid they might be in danger of going stale."

EASTLAND IN OIL BELT MEET

Entries for Saturday's Day Of Contests Mailed

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, March 31—Coach Joe Gibson of Eastland mailed Coach P. E. Shotwell of Breckenridge the first list of entries for the Oil Belt Track and Field meet, to be staged here on a large scale next Saturday afternoon, Coach Shotwell announced today.

The Eastland High school athletics apparently are bidding for the honor of being the first winner of the first Oil Belt track carnival. Coach Gibson sent in a list of three contestants for every event.

Entries from the other Oil Belt schools, Snyder and possibly San Angelo High school, are not expected to arrive here before April 1, Coach Shotwell said.

Cold Weather Halts Activity of Steers

DALLAS, March 31. (AP)—Cold weather and a muddy infield halted activities in the Dallas Steers spring training camp today. Manager Morse allowed his pitchers and catchers to indulge in a short warm-up session under the grandstand, but other players remained idle. The Dallas and Wichita Falls exhibition series, scheduled Wednesday and Thursday, has been postponed to Thursday and Friday.

Spuds Open Steer Series Thursday

Carl Williams and his Spudders were driven out of the park yesterday by old man mud, and the squad worked out as well as they could on the hill behind center field, on a lot adjoining Spudder park.

The condition of the park, resulting from the recent deluge, caused the postponement of the two-game series with the Dallas Steers to Thursday and Friday. The games originally were scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday.

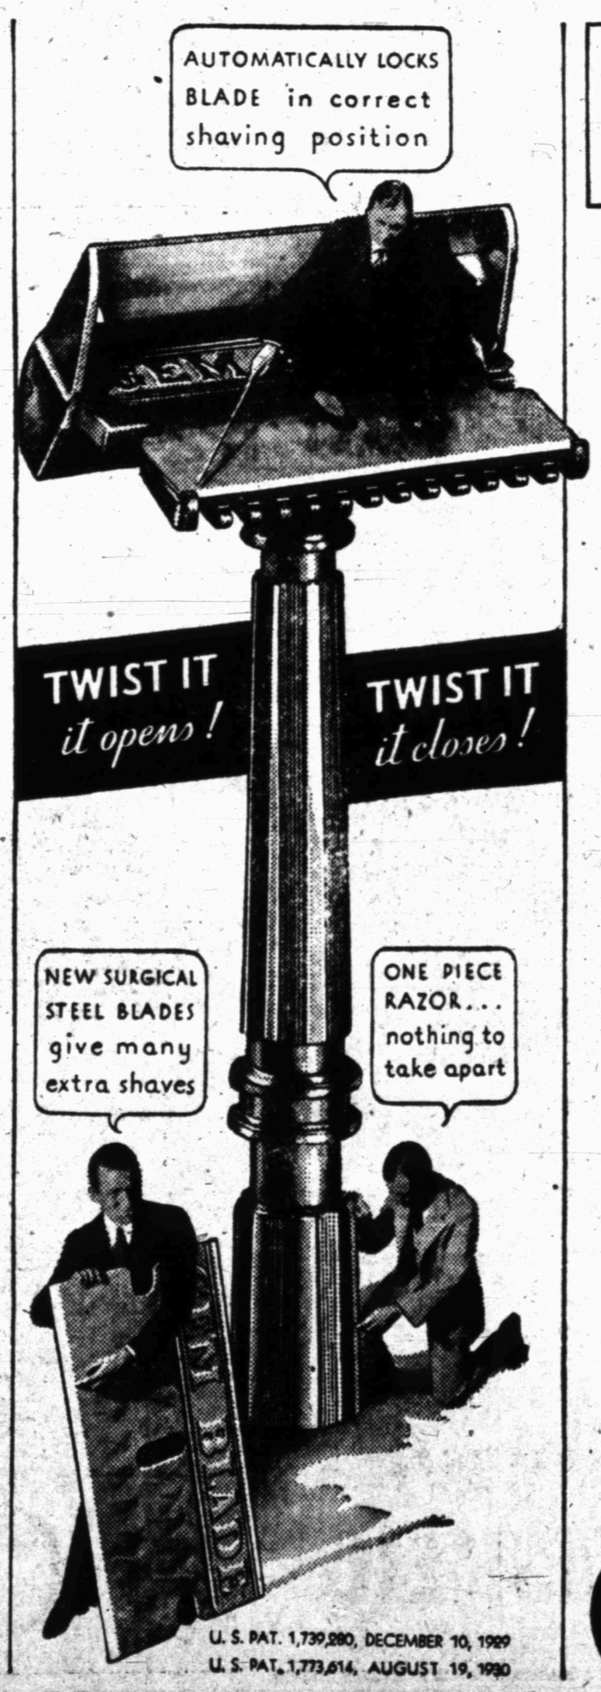

Weather Interferes With Cats' Schedule

FORT WORTH, March 31. (AP)—Once more the weather has interferred with Fort Worth's exhibition schedule. And, again the Texas Christian university Horned Frogs are sufferers along with the Panthers. The game between the Frogs and Cats scheduled for tomorrow was postponed because of the wet condition of the playing field. The Cats were unable to work today because of the rain.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, March 31. (AP)—After holding steady during the greater part of the day on trade buying and some covering by near month shorts, cotton eased off in the late trading today under liquidation and local selling promoted by the easier ruling of the stock market. July contracts, after advancing from 10.94 to 11.05, closed at 10.93, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 1 to 3 points.

Reports of continued unfavorable weather for crop preparations in the South were mentioned in connection with the early steadiness, but the opinion was expressed in some quarters that rains were adding to the supply of moisture in the ground and might prove beneficial in the long run.

Very little selling was reported here for southern account during the day and except for a spurt of activity toward the close business was generally quiet.

Liverpool cables said that Bombay selling in that market had been absorbed by local buying. Egyptian cotton futures in Alexandria were unchanged to 23 points higher.

Futures closed:

July	11.35	10.93	10.93-94

Dec.	11.53	11.43	11.43
Jan.	11.60	11.51	11.51-52

Futures closed steady, 1 to 3 points lower. Spots quiet. Middling 10.70.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, March 31. (AP)—Trading in cotton was only fair in today's market. Prices fluctuated narrowly but the general trend was slightly upward until near the close, although there did not appear to be other stimulating influences than unfavorable weather and some trade buying. Liverpool was hardly as good as due, but the news from India was more favorable and the market here started 1@2 points up and continued to gain slowly after the start on some trade buying. The improvement gained ground slowly all morning and in the early afternoon prices showed gains of 6@8 points over the previous close.

The proposal of a large Chicago manufacturer to buy 100,000,000 pounds of cotton scattered over eight months at prices not to exceed 12 cents a pound attracted interest but did not appreciably influence the market.

The sharp break in stocks caused the market to decline in the late trading; all active months making new lows 10@12 points under the highs. The market closed steady at the bottom showing net declines for the day of 3@6 points.

Port receipts 9,392; for week 26,212; for season 8,416,436; last season 8,060,478; exports 27,868; for week 45,661; for season 5,452,138; last season 5,757,160. Port stocks 3,848,380; last year 1,898,430. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 105,846; last year 94,031; spot sales at southern markets 6,793; last year 6,079.

Oil Group Hits New Lows While Market Fights Toward Stability

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, March 31. (US)—The stock market today showed greater evidence of approaching at least temporary stability, following its previous substantial downturn. When trading ceased, price changes were highly irregular, although declines were probably in the majority. Yet, Utilities as a group were able to show an average net gain for the day. It was a market dominated almost entirely by professionals and internal technical conditions. Various stocks dropped to the lowest quotations in several years, carrying them back years prior to the bull market peak of 1929. Oil stocks as a group were under persistent pressure. Volume dropped below the previous day's total.

Pools seemingly were inclined to furnish greater support to their favorites, encouraged perhaps by the logic of anticipating some sizeable rally because of the extent of the recent decline. In a few stocks the buying was characterized as better than speculative.

This description was applied to the demand for International Telephone & Telegraph, which opened up a full point. As disclosed here yesterday a leading New York bank has a large buying order in the stock for foreign account. In addition to this buying, which is not of a kind to follow up prices, there has been aggressive sponsorship of this stock by Cutten and other powerful interests. Today, one active speculative house selected I. T. & T. as holding out the greatest possibilities of any well-known stock for the "next bull market." The best comment on I. T. & T. was its performance during the recent general weakness.

Comparative strength of the utilities, led by Consolidated Gas and United Corporation, was in line with expectation that these issues would be utilized in an endeavor to stem the general selling wave.

Among industrials declines were scored in most of the leaders, but it was evident that a somewhat greater buying demand apepared on reactions. Most of the buying was of speculaitve character in hope of an early rally, although it was also inspired by knowledge that the railroad freight report for the past week would disclose an increase of 8,000 cars over the previous week, but still substantially below this time a year ago. Steel Common approached closer to its low for the year but closed off only the slightest fraction. American Can showed a small net gain.

The railroads as a group were pushed to new low ground, with some of its members at the lowest price in many years. Southern Railway, whose $8 dividend obviously is unsafe, sold down four points, and Southern Pacific, whose dividend of $6 has not been questioned as yet, broke three points. The latter probably will meet increased demand on any further reaction.

Led by Standard Oil of New Jersey, the entire oil group again declined to the lowest levels in years. Although these stocks may be entitled to a rally, the selling has been so persistent as to confirm the oft-repeated statement made here that the pressure seemed to come from liquidation of important holdings.

Allied Chemical, against whom the bear clique maintains continued pressure, was forced to new low ground, but the stock began to display evidence of a somewhat more persistent buying demand on the reaction. The stock harbors a very large short account, which may create basis for a run-in of the bears if the general market permits. Technical position of the stock seems to be its outstanding bull characteristic at present, since only moderate long-term investment buying has taken place.

Century Ribbon was reported to have attracted new market sponsorship and this was reflected in its equalling the former high price of this year. The company is stated to have substantially reduced its bank obligations.

Auburn again featured the motor group, ignoring the "investigation" of its wild performance and responding chiefly to the aggressive sponsorship of its friends. The market had opened strong but a drastic decline in the highly exploited General Asphalt brought in renewed selling.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 31. (AP)—Suddenly enlarged demand for May delivery of wheat turned all grains upward today. The increased buying of May wheat was attributed to speculators who previously had been sellers and who were apprehensive that supplies to fill May and June contracts might hereafter become more difficult to obtain. In this connection, significance was attached to the fact that beginning tomorrow the grain stabilization corporation would start successive ½-cent a bushel advance every 10 days on No. 2 hard winter wheat until the end of the present crop season, July 11.

Wheat closed nervous, unchanged to ⅜c higher, corn ¼@⅜c up, oats ⅜@⅞c advanced, and provisions varying from 5c decline to 5c gain.

The government report on interior mill and elevator stocks of wheat came after the close, and was not a factor in today's market but was generally construed as bearish concerning prices tomorrow. It indicated that total domestic supplies in all positions were 451,000,000 bushels against 391,000,000 a year ago.

Diminishing receipts gave independent strength to corn. Primary arrivals were 489,000 bushels against 610,000 a year ago.

Oats followed corn.

Despite downturns in hog values, provisions were firm, owing to reports that the cheap retail price of lard had stimulated consumer demand.

Closing Indemnities—Wheat, July 59⅞@60@61¼@61⅝c; Sept. 58⅞@60⅛c. Corn—May 61⅞@61⅞@62⅝@62⅝c; July 63½@63⅞@64½@64⅝c; Sept. 62¼@63½@63⅝c.

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, March 31. (AP) (U. S. D. A.)—Cattle receipts around the 11-market circuit uncovered a liberal showing of fed steers and yearlings with an especially large quota of the good to choice grades offered. Trade on fed steers and yearlings ruled steady 25c lower, the better grades at some centers taking the full 25c decline. Demand was sufficient to maintain steady prices on the limited supply of low priced heifers and slaughter cows. Chicago had a top of $10.35 on heavy steers while at Kansas City, three loads of choice 1,437-lb. Nebraska fed beeves sold at $7.40. Country demand for stockers and feeders was slow at steady 25c lower figures. Aggregate receipts were estimated at 38,400 as compared with 32,544 a week ago.

Hogs were tendered an uneven price decline of 10@40c, most points showing losses of 20@20c on weight averages 240 lbs. and down. The day's extreme top of $8.25 was paid at Chicago. Total offerings of around 90,300 were 26,000 heavier than last Tuesday.

The sheep supply numbered around 59,200 against 54,311 a week ago. Fat lambs were on a firm 25c higher basis and steady values prevailed on aged stock. A few native spring lambs in Chicago cleared up to $13.15 and choice fed wooled lambs made $9.35. Arizona springers at Kansas City sold at $10.75@11, while some of Texas origin brought $9@10.35.

TWENTY TESTS TO BEGIN WORK

New Locations Made In Joiner Area

Special to The Record News.

LONGVIEW, Texas, March 31.—Rigging up and drilling operations are scheduled to start today on approximately 20 new locations in the Bateman and Joiner fields, a survey shows.

While almost all of these new locations have yet to run the derrick, several of them have finished derricks and are putting machinery on the ground. Actual drilling will be under way on some of these locations by the latter part of the week.

These new locations, added to the fields will bring it to more than ever-increasing total in these two 350. The Joiner area, although smaller in extent than the proven area in Gregg county, is still leading the field in the number of operations. This is probably due to the fact that it had a four months start on the Lathrop pool.

The Lewis Production company has announced two new locations on a 40-acre lease of the Mrs. D. S. Willis 180-acre tract, William Chisum survey. No. 1 is in the center of the west end of the lease and No. 2 is located in the center of the east end.

J. M. Burnham and Anderson et al. have made three new locations on a 15-acre lease of the Giles 75-acre tract, M. J. Pru survey. No. 1 is already drilling. No. 2 is located 800 feet north and 168 feet east of the southwest corner of the lease. No. 3 is 1300 feet north and 166 feet east of the southwest corner. No. 4 is located 166 feet east and 120 feet south of the northwest corner of the lease.

The Phillips Petroleum company has two new locations on a 40-acre lease of the Mrs. D. S. Willis 180-acre tract in the William Chisum survey. No. 1 is in the center of the west end and No. 2 is in the center of the east end of the lease.

The East Texas Refining company has also made two new locations on the Willis 80-acre lease. No. 1 is located in the southwest corner of the lease and No. 2 is located out of the southeast corner.

J. C. Mabee has made four locations on a 40-acre lease of the W. P. Britt 870-acre tract in the M. J. Pru survey. The first location is 200 feet east of the southeast corner of the lease; the second is 200 feet out of the southwest corner; the third is 200 feet east of the west line and 688 feet north of the west line; the fourth is 600 feet north of the south line and 200 feet west of the east line.

The Tidal Oil company has made a third location on a 40-acre lease of the Mrs. M. P. Finney 100-acre tract in the Juan Ximines survey. The location is 150 feet south and 150 feet east of the southeast corner of the lease.

C. Stroud has made two locations on his lease in the Maria Lee et al. tract in the M. J. Pru survey. The first location is in the northwest corner of the south 37-acre lease. The second location is in the southwest corner of the lease.

The Turman Oil company has made four locations on a 32.5-acre lease on the W. E. Brightwell 72.31-acre tract in the E. G. Sevier survey. The first location is 150 feet west of the most southerly corner of the lease.

Numbers 2, 3 and 4 are spaced 377 feet apart running in line west of location No. 1 and all of the locations are 150 feet north of the southern corner of the lease.

The Big Business Girl

couldn't be so confidential here, away from the film of music, for the other wicker chairs were occupied. They smoked and listened to what was being said around them and watched the moon come up. Romance fell everywhere about them in long, soft folds. Time dwindled. The air was sweet and heavy.

After a while, they went in and danced once at Mac's suggestion. R. J. danced with none of Johnny's inventions and gay rhythms. Johnny! Mac wouldn't think about him here. It would make her too unhappy.

There were no empty chairs left when they returned to the porch. They leaned against the stone railing.

"What would you like to do?" R. J. asked. "I think you're being bored with this place—or with me." He liked to tease Mac. "But it's too hot to drink, too hot to go to the theater or a night club, too hot to dance. Like to take a long ride? I've got old whosis tied up for the evening—might as well use him."

"I'd love a ride," Mac said, guessing at the same time what it would lead to. She'd take a chance. She had handled plenty of emotional crises—and expertly.

R. J. told the driver to go north. They flashed past R. J.'s large stone house, very dark with only a light in the driveway. Mac thought about Hattie and looked away. R. J. pretended that he hadn't noticed what they were passing.

The air was growing cooler as they dipped into the glens.

"Claire," said R. J. suddenly, as though he had made up his mind to say something which had to be said quickly or not at all. He was looking ahead at the road, very soberly. "Do you think you would ever care about me?" It was a direct, frank question. Mac wasn't used to being made love to in quite this way.

"Why, you're married." She knew that was not a kind answer, but it was after all the truth. She could be outspoken too.

"Yes—of course," R. J. smiled at her solemnly and took one of her hands and pressed it flat between his two hard palms, and held it tightly. "It hasn't even entered into my scheme of things before to consider divorce. There has been no necessity for it. I have been living along fairly happily, occupied with my work and clubs and the sort of social life we manage to scrape up here and in Palm Beach and California. I've never fallen in love before. And I am in love now—but we'll talk about that later."

He squeezed Mac's hand. "I've never talked of divorce to my wife, but I think she'd be reasonable. I can't imagine her being anything except sensible. Of course it would take time. You would have to be kept out of it, too. I think she would go to Reno, though, and everything could be arranged."

Mac left her hand in his, but there was no sensation in it. It was just a hand. Here was a problem she had never faced; a married man in love with her. It didn't seem real. She liked R. J., admired him. He attracted her in many ways. But he had a wife. Why had he complicated a relationship which to her could never be more than an affair or a friendship?

Did he really think that all he had to do was to ask his wife to divorce him? Did he really think that a woman who had spent her youth on him, had helped him to grow, had gained social position and luxury through him—who no doubt loved him—would give him up so easily?

R. J. was waiting for her to say something.

"I don't know you very well, do I?" He shook his head in answer to her. "I don't really know how I could feel about you if you were free. It shouldn't make any difference, but it does. And of course I'm not free myself—yet." She didn't have to say any more. R. J. had released her hands, to pull her over to him suddenly. His lips were on her mouth and she couldn't get away.

"Claire, Claire," he kept whispering to her, kissing her eyes, her face. He drew her closer to him.

"Oh, please don't—please." Mac caught his hands in hers and held them firmly. She stared out over moonlighted fields and saw newspaper headlines. It wouldn't be well for her future to become involved in divorce scandal. She wanted to keep her reputation. She would need it in business. And she wouldn't wait for R. J.—if he ever could get a divorce. She didn't feel that she could ever love anyone enough to wait.

"What are you thinking about?" R. J. touched his lips to her cheek.

"I'm thinking we're being very foolish. I do like you. I really do. But I don't know—"

"I'm not going to give up hope. I'm going to keep right on thinking that Claire MacIntyre may change her mind."

Mac relaxed and did not hold him off now—it wasn't necessary. She held his hand as a friend would.

By the time they were back in the city, the conversation, which Mac had captured, concerned her job. She finally had courage enough to tell R. J. of Mr. Thorne's offer. He said he would have to think about it over the week-end. He didn't take it very well.

He looked down at her as she fitted the key in the lock, smiling somewhat cardonically as she thanked him for the evening.

"Good night, Claire. I hope I haven't upset you. Sleep well—and I'll see you in the morning." He lifted his hat formally and kept smiling that way at her.

AGED COUPLE FOUND DEAD

Murder and Suicide Seen In Shooting

MANSFIELD, Texas, March 31. (AP)—The bodies of N. M. Peck, 60, and his wife, 53, each with a bullet wound in the head and apparently lifeless since Monday noon were discovered in a bedroom of their home here today.

On the kitchen stove were the charred remains of food, which Mrs. Peck apparently had been preparing just before she was killed. A butter mold was in Mrs. Peck's lifeless hand when the bodies were found at about 2 p. m. by Elvira Williams, negro woman, who had gone to the Peck home to get a bucket of milk.

Peck's body was lying on the bed in a position that indicated he was sitting on its edge when he sent a bullet into his head. The body of his wife was lying on the floor nearby.

Justice Homer House returned a verdict of murder and suicide. Neighbors said the couple recently had a minor quarrel.

Peck cultivated a small crop near his home and during the cotton season worked in a Mansfield gin.

AROUND THE RADIO CLOCK

(Time is eastern standard throughout)

NEW YORK, March 31. (AP)—Identical operation of four units of the Columbia network on the same wave length "is not to be a synchronization experiment in the true sense," it was explained today.

Edwin K. Cohan, technical director of CBS, explained that approval to place stations WOKO, WHEG, KCAH and WHP experimentally on 1430 kilocycles during regular broadcast hours as soon as special precision frequency equipment is installed, involved only simultaneous operation.

"The stations will maintain their frequencies through the individual frequency control equipment, which will, however, be subjected to some frequency variation," he added. "The experiments are being conducted independently by the stations themselves. We, of course, will watch the results with interest.

Sam Lanin and his orchestra, formerly of the Troubadors, the pioneer radio program, returns to the air Wednesday night via WABC and station and in a new 15-minute weekly series. He will have the help of "Scrappy" Lambert and Dick Robertson, vocalists and Dave Elman, humorist.

A couple of screen stars also face the WABC network microphones Wednesday night. Claudette Colbert makes her debut as a vocalist in a new series at 10, to be known as personalities. Richard Dix is to be guest of honor of the musical cocktail, at 8:30 p. m.

A program described as "radio symphony" about which little has been announced other than a hint that it is to be some kind of an April fool stunt, is to be heard on WJZ and stations at 9 p. m. However, H. Worden Wilson, radio impersonator, gets a leading role, if there is such a thing.

Otherwise your dials may be set for:

9:30—Melodies from "The Mikado," pleasure hour, one WJZ chain, repeated at 11:15 for another group.

10:30 — John Held Jr., artist, writer, sportsman, interviewed by Grantland Rice, WEAF stations.

New Hampshire Memorial

CONCORD, N. H. (UP)—Plans are being made here for the erection of a bronze tablet in the state capitol rotunda as a memorial to Henry Wilson, vice president of the United States in the Grant administration and a native of New Hampshire.

Final Rites Said For Miss Emma Durham

Funeral services for Miss Emma Durham, 70, artist and teacher who had resided for 23 years in Wichita Falls, were held Tuesday afternoon from the home of her sister, Mrs. Scott Patton, 903 Tyler street. Dr. S. S. McKenney pastor of the First Methodist church, officiated. Burial was in Riverside under the direction of the Merkle Undertaking company.

Pallbearers were G. B. Harrison, W. M. Lankford, S. J. Stewart, S. R. Ward, S. H. Adams and C. A. Stearns.

Miss Durham conducted a private school here for 15 years prior to about five years ago, when her health began to fail. She was a talented artist, specializing in water colors. Her paintings were widely exhibited. She died Sunday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Patton, with whom she resided.

MARCH PROVES REAL 'LION'

Winter Records Broken By First Spring Month

Records in weather during the past winter season were broken during March, the first spring month, according to information given Tuesday by the United States weather bureau maintained by the Texas Electric Service company here.

The first March snows since 1926 occurred, with five inches falling on the first day of the month to herald the entrance of the March "lion." A light snow fell on March 27, melting as it struck the ground. A flurry of snow occurred on the next to the last day of the month, the 30th, late at night, making a total of three March snowfalls.

The coldest weather of the year occurred in March, when on the 27th temperature dropped to 19 degrees. A registration of 21 degrees in February was the closest approach to the March low temperature.

Although balmy weather prevailed at short intervals during the month, the March lion held sway for the greater portion, remaining on short call until the final day of the month when the equally famous and more desirable March "lamb" was allowed to usher the month to a close.

On March 12, Wichita Falls basked in sunshine with the temperature registering 79 degrees, the maximum for the month and a short respite from generally adverse weather conditions. The March, 1931, maximum, however, was bested in 1930 by an 80-degree registration.

Temperature registrations for the month as compared with March 1930 follow:

	1931	1930
Mean maximum	62.55	68.22
Mean minimum	38.81	41.06
Mean temperature	50.68	54.61
Maximum temperature	79	80
Minimum temperature	19	22

The greatest daily range of temperature was 34 degrees, occurring on March 4, 11, 12 and 27. The March, 1930, greatest range was 40 degrees, occurring on the 21st.

A total precipitation of 3.18 inches occurred during the month, as compared with 1.47 inches during March, 1930. Greatest precipitation of any one day was on March 1, with 1.50 inches. A total of six days during the past month had .01 inches of precipitation or more.

Frosts occurred on March 4, 9, 11, 27 and 29, a total of five days.

Three Churches Join In Special Services

The congregations of the the Highland Heights Christian church and the First Christian church of Burkburnett will unite with the membership of the First Christian church here Thursday evening in a service commemorating the institution of the Lord's supper 1900 years ago, which will be held in the First church Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, it was announced by Dr. H. T. Wood, pastor.

The service will be held under the lighted cross with special prayers, Scripture reading, music and communion. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Motor Truck Official Makes Talk Here

W. A. Wilson, field representative of the Texas Truck Owners Service bureau of Austin, addressed a special meeting of the manufacturers and jobbers division of the chamber of commerce Tuesday afternoon, urging opposition to proposed legislation to more strictly regulate the operations of motor bus and truck lines on public highways.

The chamber of commerce and its departments will not take sides in the issue, officials said.

Mr. Wilson is touring the state for the purpose of conferring with operators of trucks and buses.

Methodist Vesper To Replace Night Services

The evening service at the First Methodist church Sunday has been cancelled in favor of the 5 o'clock vesper service at which time Stainer's "Crucifixion" will be given, according to an announcement made by Dr. S. S. McKenney, pastor.

This service, which was written for tenor and bass soloists, will be given by the regular choir featuring Walter Robbins and Grover Bullington as soloists.

The program will be given under the direction of Mrs. Pearl Calhoun Davis with Mrs. J. W. Akin Jr. at the piano.

STRAND: "It Pays to Advertise" with Skeets Gallagher, Lucien Littlefield and Eugene Pallette. Short subjects and sound news.

MAJESTIC: George O'Brien in "Seas Beneath." Short subjects and sound news.

William Powell's latest, "Man of the World," after playing five slim days at the Strand, was jerked Tuesday night to make way for a two-day run of "It Pays to Advertise." The Powell picture was one of those crying shames that could have been so much better, if only—It just didn't click, maybe on account of the popular sophisticated hero wearing a derby and a checked vest.

◇ ◇ ◇

"It Pays to Advertise" is one of those all-star comedians, featuring Skeets Gallagher, Eugene Pallette, Lucien Littlefield and Louise Brooks. On Friday, the Strand will present a picture about which it need have no fears as to box-office results—"Strangers May Kiss." No matter whether that picture is any good or not, the house will be packed.

◇ ◇ ◇

There are several reasons. One of them is Ursula Parrott, who wrote "Ex-Wife" which was later produced on the screen as "The Divorcee." Another is Norma Shearer, who played in "The Divorcee." The fact that Ursula Parrott and Norma Shearer are again uniting their brains and beauty on this one will be enough . . . nor is that all, for there is a particularly attractive title (for once, the director had sense enough not to change the name of the book) and two charming men to play opposite Miss Shearer. One of them is the handsome Neil Hamilton and the other the delightful young fellow who has been climbing ever since he first appeared in "The Divorcee"—Robert Montgomery.

◇ ◇ ◇

While I'm speaking in the future like this, there's another prediction to make—the Majestic will be running the Strand a race on this packed-house business, with "Skippy." The combination of Jackie Cooper (of "Our Gang") in the title role, Mitzi Green as his sweetheart, and little Jackie Searl ("Sid" in "Tom Sawyer") as the village fraid-cat is too entrancing. Save me a coupla seats up front.

First Presbyterian Church Announces Special Concert

Selected works from many different composers, presented with widely varied arrangements of voices and instruments, will comprise the sacred concert to be given next Sunday night at the First Presbyterian church under the direction of Mrs. A. H. Mahaffey, organist.

Most of the vocal numbers announced for the program represent climatic portions of compositions devoted to the Easter theme. Excerpts from cantatas, chosen for this particular occasion, will be sung by picked ensembles.

In the group of instrumental selections for Sunday night, one of particular interest will be the "Feuillet d'Album," by Scriabine, to be played by Mrs. Alfred Miller, Miss Mathilde Donnell and William L. Donnell, violinists.

The concert will begin at 7:30 o'clock, replacing the customary evening service of the church.

Caught Cold Storage Fish

BARNSTABLE, Mass. (UP)—James Eldredge was puzzled when he found he had caught several salt water fish in his traps in a fresh water pond. Finally friends explained that the codfish had been obtained at a cold storage plant and placed in the traps as a practical joke.

MAGNOLIA, N. J. (UP)—The mauve decade was recalled here when two men, riding on tandem bicycle, were struck and injured by a motorist. The men, John Mangauo and Charles Tell, both of Philadelphia, refused to tell police why they were riding the old fashioned vehicle.

AUSTIN MAN SPEAKS HERE

Advertisers 'Smart Folks,' Says C. N. Avery

Advertisers were called "the smartest people in the world because they can create desires" in a talk given by C. N. Avery of Austin before members of the Ad club at the Kemp hotel Tuesday noon.

The speaker, who is president of the Texas Quarries company, deplored the defeat of the water bond issue in a recent election here.

"In the first place," he said, "water is a good chaser, and besides that, we need to drink more water if it is pure and plentiful. Wichita Falls has a wonderful opportunity to become a great city because of the good territory surrounding it. It seems to me that it shows a narrow view to defeat an issue which means so much to a city. You can do without streets or anything else, but you can't get along well without plenty of good water."

Advertising was called an "immense business of great importance" by Mr. Avery, who described himself as a man "who looks at all the billboards along the way, and reads all the advertisements in the paper."

All those present participated in a round table discussion of direct-by-mail advertising, conducted by Miss Sallie Hightower. Up-to-date prospect lists, interesting copy, attractive set-ups, seasonable issuance, dependable goods, and persistence were named as vital factors in successful development of business through advertising.

Speakers were introduced by Mrs. R. E. Davis, program chairman.

BEER SEIZED

Members of the sheriff's force Tuesday afternoon raided a residence on Lamar avenue, arrested three women who were charged with vagrancy and drunkenness, and confiscated about 15 pint bottles of beer.

Each of the three women was placed under $100 bond by O. L. Gibbs, justice of the peace.

GOLD, SILVER OR POVERTY

WHEN HON. W. B. WORTHAM was State Treasurer he said he could please anybody, that when a gold bug came in he showed him the gold in the vaults and he went away lauding the virtues of the single gold standard; when a silverite came in he showed him stacks of silver dollars, halves, quarters and dimes, and he went away singing the glories of the free and unlimited coinage of silver; when a Populist came in he carried him back to the storeroom and showed him an empty box, and he sat down and howled.

OUR PRESENT CITY COUNCIL rendered able help to bring the $700,000 Federal Building here, now giving employment to many of our worthy citizens. McCutchen, Harvey and Spoonts paid for $11,000 in stock in the Deep Oil Development Company which has found deep oil in the big Archer County gusher and in the KMA well, and more new wells are drilling than at any time in the last three years, giving employment to many good men and starting payrolls that will benefit every man and woman in this city.

COX, CORLETT AND CONE took no stock and contributed nothing to deep oil development. The opposition is a campaign of hate on a do nothing platform. On which side are you fighting? Shall Wichita Falls go forward or slip backward? Will we sit down and howl or look for the gold and silver lining in God's clouds of returning prosperity?

OUR PRESENT COUNCILMEN are builders and workers. They have reduced taxes and reduced the city's debt and placed the city on a cash basis in the two hardest financial years through which we have ever passed. They have worked for us faithfully for $10.00 per month and we owe them a debt of gratitude.

COME SEE US AT HEADQUARTERS, Suite 209 Hamilton Building. Phone us 9974. Enroll and enlist for the closing days of a winning campaign.

VOTE EARLY AND SOLIDLY FOR THE RE-ELECTION OF McCUTCHEN, HARVEY AND SPOONTS. ELECTION TUESDAY, APRIL 7, 1931.
