Fireworkers and paramedics carry a stretcher with an unidentified wounded man into a hospital in Asuncion, Paraguay, Friday. Powerful winds tore down a wall and split a makeshift stage in two at a sports stadium, killing 38 people and injuring 54 while the ruling party held a political rally, authorities said Friday.

Solti dies

LONDON — Sir Georg Solti, the world renowned conductor who led the Chicago Symphony Orchestra to fame, died Friday. He was 85. His executive assistant Charles Kaye said Solti died peacefully in his sleep while on holiday at Antibes in the south of France. Kaye said Solti had been taken ill on T day but did not state the nat of the illness. Hungarian-born Solti, who became a British subject in 1972, was an energetic conductor who generated the kind of excitement that sold out performances and brought audiences to their feet.

WASHINGTON — While Republicans attacked his credibility at a Senate hearing, Vice President Al Gore predicted Friday that a new Justice Department review would find his fund-raising calls from the White House "legal and proper." Mother Teresa dies at age 87

The body of Mother Teresa lies on her deathbed, flanked by Sister Nirmala, center with spectacles, her successor as Superior General of the Missionaries of Charity, and other Catholic nuns in Calcutta early morning Saturday, Calcutta time. The announcement of the death of the 1979 Nobel Peace Prize laureate came Friday evening, CDT. She was 87.

CALCUTTA, India — Mother Teresa, the Roman Catholic nun revered for her tireless dedication to the world's most wretched, died Friday surrounded by grieving sisters of her order. She was 87.

Crowds of weeping people stood in the rain before dawn in the streets outside her Missionaries of Charity home in central Calcutta. Pope John Paul II, President Clinton and other world leaders praised Mother Teresa and her commitment to the poor.

The frail, 4-foot-11-inch nun, who was born in Europe but became an Indian citizen during her six decades on the subcontinent, had suffered heart problems and other ailments for years and gave up leadership of her order in March because she was too ill to do the job.

Her successor, Sister Nirmala, told reporters that Mother Teresa died of a heart attack.

Mother Teresa's last words were, "I cannot breathe," said a close friend, Sunita Kumar. She said Mother Teresa then slumped down in her bed.

Nuns of the Missionaries of Charity indicated the funeral was planned for Wednesday, the 51st anniversary of the day Mother Teresa received what she said was a calling from Jesus "to serve him among the poorest of the poor."

Nirmala said a site in Calcutta had been chosen for the burial, but it was not immediately released. Nuns at Missionaries of Charity said the Vatican would be consulted before plans were finalized.

Mother Teresa's body was taken to a chapel at the convent and laid, with hands clasped, in the simple habit worn by members of her order — a blue-trimmed white sari and a long-sleeved blouse. Young nuns filed past, touching her feet in a traditional Indian gesture of respect.

The Vatican said Pope John Paul II would celebrate a Mass for her Saturday at Castel Gandolfo, his summer residence outside Rome. "Her death touched his heart very deeply," said the Rev. Ciro Benedettini, a spokesman.

Loss of friend of poor felt throughout world

Mother Teresa, the diminutive nun whose very name became synonymous with caring for the world's poorest souls, was mourned worldwide Friday.

Her death means "there is less love in the world, less compassion, less light," said President Jacques Chirac of France. "She leaves us a strong message which has no borders and which goes beyond faith: helping, listening, solidarity."

Mother Teresa died Friday of heart failure at age 87 in Calcutta.

K.R. Narayanan, the president of India, said her death represents "an immense loss" to millions of poor Indians who were touched by her charity and her embrace of the culture of the Asian subcontinent.

"Such a one as her rarely walks upon the earth," he said.

U.S. President Clinton called her "an incredible person."

"Mother Teresa is gone, but as the Gospels teach us these things endure: faith, hope and love. She had them in abundance," he said in a statement.

In Washington, the House of Representatives observed a moment of silence for the woman who just three months ago received the U.S. Congress' highest award, a Congressional Gold Medal.

Mother Teresa seems headed for sainthood

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Mother Teresa, who dedicated her life to helping the poor and the outcast, was considered by many as a living saint.

With her death Friday in Calcutta at 87, she now seems to be an ideal candidate to be declared a saint of the Roman Catholic Church. But the process could take some time.

Despite the price her health paid for her work, she doesn't appear eligible to be considered a martyr, a category that would speed the way, said a Vatican official familiar with the procedures.

Still, there is a great deal of interest in her case, with Pope John Paul II one of her leading admirers.

The case for canonization can be initiated by the bishop in the diocese where the candidate died — in this case, Calcutta.

However, only five years after a death can the bishop begin collecting proof of the "heroic virtue and reputation of holiness" of the person.

The church requires that two miracles attributed to the candidate's intercession with God be approved by the Vatican before canonization, except in the case of martyrdom.

Cityline callers, saddened, say princess had impact on their lives

Cityline Community Pulse

By Jimmy Patterson

An estimated 2 billion people worldwide looked on early this morning as Britain and the world bid farewell to Princess Diana, who was laid to rest after a moving memorial service at Westminster Abby.

Diana's death touched even the smallest corners of the world, and her impact has been made more obvious by the amount of conversation directed her way in the workplace, schoolyards and shopping malls around Midland.

Callers to Cityline's Community Pulse, most of whom have little or no connection to Britain or Diana, were overwhelmingly saddened at her passing, another indication as to her positive influence.

"Princess Diana brought a smile and a heart and a warmth to a cold and unemotional monarchy," said JoAnn Cromer. "The world has lost a special friend, but her sons, of whom much will be expected, have lost a mom. I pray for them and hope the royal family can acknowledge and attend to their emotional needs. I also pray for solidarity among the world's press and news agencies to boycott all photos of the fatal chase and crash."

Gerry Alsopp, a native Briton who has lived in America for 20 years and in Midland for the last three, was deeply saddened by the occurrences in his homeland this week.

"I am particularly grateful for those of my American friends who have expressed their condolences at the tragic death of one of England's greatest treasures," Alsopp said. "Many times since I was adopted by the USA I have been questioned — never unkindly — about the royal family and about what exactly they represent, particularly when any financial detail or question of their conduct is reported in the media. While I hopefully never responded defensively, I do try to explain the depth of loyalty and devotion most Brits feel toward the crown. There are transgressions in most families at some time or another and even though the entire family may be held accountable for one member it hardly justifies the destruction of the entire family.

"Princess Diana was indeed a bright star in a dark sky. She brought hope to those who doubted and rekindled faith to those who may have started to question the true value of the royal family and its role in Britain. Her loss is felt very

MOTHER: She wore $1 sari to accept Nobel Peace Prize

(From 1A)

Working in the slums of Calcutta 50 years ago, Mother Teresa started taking in the destitute dying in gutters, sheltering infants abandoned in trash heaps, soothing the ulcers of lepers and helping the insane.

A British TV documentary about her in 1969 brought "the saint of the gutters" international attention, and volunteers and donations poured in to the religious order she founded.

That allowed her to spread her work around the globe, with more than 500 missions in 100 countries by mid-1990, from the hovels of Third World nations to the ghettos of New York. Her order opened one of the first homes for AIDS victims.

"The world and especially India, is poorer by her passing away," said India's prime minister, Inder Kumar Gujral. "Hers was a life devoted to bring love, peace and joy to people, whom the world generally shuns."

Although India is predominantly Hindu, Mother Teresa was widely regarded as a national treasure who transcended religious divisions.

She received the Nobel Peace Prize in 1979.

In addition to her charity work, Mother Teresa used her fame as a platform to speak out strongly for conservative values, arguing passionately against abortion, contraception and divorce. She traveled as an envoy of the pope to preach devotion to life.

A tiny, frail woman bent almost double in her later years, she was as renowned for her humility as her charity.

Accepting the Nobel in the name of the "unwanted, unloved and uncared for," she wore the same $1 white sari that she had adopted to identify herself with the poor when she founded Missionaries of Charity.

She used the Nobel's $192,000 to help finance her charitable work, along with dozens of other financial prizes and donations from foundations and private citizens.

Born on Aug. 26, 1910, as Agnes Gonxha Bojaxhiu, she lived in Skopje, in what is now Macedonia. At 18, she became a nun in the Loreto teaching order and moved to India to teach in its convent schools.

Taking the name Sister Teresa after St. Teresa of Lisieux, the patroness of missionaries, she spent the next 17 years teaching at St. Mary's high school in Calcutta, eventually serving as principal. She fell ill in 1946 and was sent to the mountain town of Darjeeling to recuperate.

"It was in the train I heard the call to give up all and follow him to the slums to serve him among the poorest of the poor," she recalled.

In 1948, Pope Pius XII permitted her to leave her order, and she began teaching Calcutta slum children whose families could not afford to send them to school. The children called her "Mother Teresa."

One day, she found a woman "half-eaten up by maggots and rats" lying in the street in front of a hospital. She sat with the woman until she died.

After appealing to authorities for a building where the poor could die in dignity, Mother Teresa was given a hostel used by pilgrims next to the temple of Kali, the Hindu goddess of death and destruction.

She and a small group of nuns roamed Calcutta's slums, scooping up destitute people lying in the gutters.

Local people complained and a police commissioner was sent to the Nirmal Hriday (Pure Heart) clinic to investigate. Moved by the misery of the nuns' charges, he announced he would evict the women only when the complainers persuaded their mothers and sisters to take over the work.

The clinic remained the center of Mother Teresa's growing charity and the place she called home.

work: "No orphan child, no helpless beggar, no impoverished family will every walk alone again. They will walk with Saint Teresa at their side."

The Vatican said Pope John Paul II was quickly informed of the death and immediately prayed for her. He plans to celebrate a Mass on Saturday at Castel Gandolfo, his summer residence outside Rome.

"Her death touched his heart very deeply" because of his appreciation for her commitment to the poor, said the Rev. Ciro Benedettini, a Vatican spokesman.

Cardinal John O'Connor of New York was visibly upset as he spoke to reporters in New Jersey, where he attended a service ordaining a new bishop.

"The world loses a woman who walked this world," O'Connor said, pausing to regain his composure before continuing, "in as holy a fashion as any woman I've ever known."

Even the sports world acknowledged her death, with Yankee Stadium public address announcer Bob Sheppard reading a tribute before Friday night's game. Flags also were at half-mast in honor of Mother Teresa and Princess Diana.

Coretta Scott King, widow of the slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King, said in Atlanta, "Our world has lost the most celebrated saint of our times.

"This courageous woman gave hope to millions, and showed us the power of caring and human kindness," she said.

The 1979 Nobel Peace Prize given to Mother Teresa was one of the most rewarding ever made, said Francis Sjersted, chairman of the Nobel Peace Prize awards committee in Oslo, Norway.

She stood out "as an example of true self-sacrifice in humanitarian work. She became a symbol to the world," he added.

Italy's top AIDS researcher, immunologist Fernando Aiuti, said Mother Teresa "simultaneously kept her eyes on heaven and earth, trying to help all in a concrete way with charity but without false piety."

Chilean President Eduardo Frei said this "great loss ... causes a great deal of pain to all of us. Her commitment to the poor was remarkable. She was always with the poorest, everywhere in the planet."

Mother Teresa was born Agnes Gonxha Bojaxhiu in Skopje, in what is now Macedonia, on Aug. 26, 1910. In that city, the head of her mission, sister Tomislava noted: "These are terrible moments for us. Our mission is devastated."

Royals go home to mourn Diana, 'a remarkable person'

LONDON (AP) — Speaking from a heart whose warmth had been questioned, Queen Elizabeth II broke the royal reticence Friday over Princess Diana's death, calling her "a remarkable person" whose memory must be cherished.

On the eve of today's funeral, the culmination of a stunning outpouring of grief by millions who identified with "the people's princess," Diana's beloved sons, Princes William, 15, and Harry, 12, paid a private farewell visit to her coffin at St. James's Palace.

Hundreds camped overnight near Westminister Abbey, site of the funeral, and several million were expected to jam the capital today, in September sunshine, for what loomed as the biggest public turnout since V-E Day more than 50 years ago.

Countless millions worldwide were expected to watch on television, starting at 9 a.m. (5 a.m. CDT), with the body of the Princess of Wales borne through London, to the Gothic abbey and then on to her final resting place in Northamptonshire's green hills, six days after Diana, her new love Dodi Fayed, and their driver were killed in an automobile crash in Paris.

Throughout Friday night and early today people from all over Britain converged on London to claim spaces along the route of Diana's funeral procession.

Since Sunday's tragedy, the royal family had been roughed up by the tabloid press and criticized by ordinary people as remaining too aloof at Balmoral Castle in Scotland, failing to join in the public grieving.

Many felt the royals treated Diana badly during her marriage to Prince Charles, and should not have stripped her of the title Her Royal Highness after their divorce last year.

Hurt by the accusations, the queen and her husband, Prince Philip, mingled Friday with the crowds at London's royal palaces, which have been inundated with floral tributes. Charles and his sons also found the hands of ordinary people reaching out to them across the crowd-control barriers.

The queen returned a day early from Balmoral and stopped outside Buckingham Palace to talk to her subjects. The BBC said some along the barricades reported seeing tears in the queen's eyes.

William and Harry, with their father, visited the Chapel Royal at St. James's, where Diana's coffin rested in front of the altar. On Friday evening, a hearse carried the coffin to her Kensington Palace home, illuminated by thousands of flashbulbs from the crowds.

The boys and Charles followed in a limousine, looking straight ahead, not at the crowd, which was 10-deep along The Mall and had swelled to 50,000 people at Buckingham Palace. Some threw flower petals as the hearse passed.

In what was only the fourth live broadcast of her 45-year reign, the monarch said she spoke "as your queen and as a grandmother."

She spoke of the "overwhelming expression of sadness at Diana's death" around the world. And she spoke of her own admiration and respect — "for her energy and commitment to others, and especially for her devotion to her two boys."

She described her former daughter-in-law as "a remarkable person," "an exceptional and gifted human being."

"In good times and bad, she never lost her capacity to smile and laugh, nor to inspire others with her warmth and kindness," she said.

The 71-year-old monarch's voice was firm but showed signs of tightness from what has undoubtedly been one of the saddest and most difficult weeks of her reign. She stood near a second-floor window in Buckingham Palace, with her subjects visible in the background milling about the flower-lined Mall, and tried to answer her critics.

"We have all been trying in our different ways to cope," she said. "It is not easy to express a sense of loss, since the initial shock is often succeeded by a mixture of other feelings: disbelief, incomprehension, anger — and concern for those who remain.

"No one who knew Diana will ever forget her. Millions of others who never met her, but felt they knew her, will remember her," she said.

"I share in your determination to cherish her memory," the queen said.

The final years of Charles and Diana's 15-year marriage had been difficult ones for the royal family. Both admitted marital infidelities, and Diana had chafed under the Windsors' closed, regimented life as royals.

CALLS: Diana's death a 'wake-up call,' says local woman deeply and will be for a long time, but in the sense of true family value she has given the nation two sons, one of whom will one day become king and carry on the tradition and values his mother instilled in them: to recognize and care for the suffering of others. Diana was indeed a most beautiful and great woman."

Odessan Tina White told us of sending a letter as a small child after Diana's marriage to Prince Charles.

"She was such a role model to me at that young age," Ms. White said. "I wrote her a letter and told her how much I thought of her. She was beautiful and she had the world by the tail. She ended up writing me back, and I still have that letter."

Stacy Alfie likened Diana to "a ray of sunshine on a cloudy day."

"She did so much for people, especially for the children," Ms. Alfie said. "When Princess Diana died, the world lost its princess and a great humanitarian, and the royal family has lost its crowning jewel."

Kristen Schmidt thought of Diana as a "contemporary princess (who was) kind, good, beautiful, compassionate and feminine.

"Yet she was also independent, strong, uncompromising in her heart and a good citizen to the world," Ms. Schmidt said. "Spiritually and symbolically she was our female archetype of hope, peace and goodness in the world. Her death has brought a tragic sense of loss to us all.

"As a world culture we so desperately need to have a figure to represent who is so terribly lacking in humanity. Perhaps looking at the larger picture her death was timely. Perhaps it is a precious moment in history for all of us — men, women and children — to internalize her deeply feminine feelings and benevolent qualities. It is a wake-up call to be shared by more than one person. Can we not care a little more, and carry a little more? She was full of opportunity for giving, caring and participating in another person's life. Diana, I thank you for your blazing shower of love and for the map you left us to continue on your trail. May you continue living, always in beauty and peace."

A handful of callers expressed assorted negative feelings, mostly over the paparazzi implicated in her death; some expressed disappointment over Diana herself.

"I think Diana had a wonderful opportunity to be an example for the young people of her nation and I'm very disappointed in her behavior," Dorothy Lawson said. "I think she could've been a role model for not only England but for America too; a role model for what a mother could be like."

But again, an overwhelming number of respondents were greatly saddened at the princess's death.

"A few months ago I sat looking at photos of Princess Diana in a magazine admiring her beauty and poise," Cathy Springer said. "She had grown more beautiful with age. I remember thinking I would look forward to watching her mature and become even more beautiful and self-confident in the years to come. Now I know that will never happen and I feel cheated and robbed."

Added Lou Gene Flippin: "Diana is gone from our daily lives but she is embedded forever in our hearts, in our memories and in our history."

Midlanders FOR Prop 1 plan campaign for November vote

From Staff Reports

Former mayor Ernest Angelo and businessman Grant Billingsley, citizen leaders of the economic development fund campaign for the Nov. 4 ballot, announced Friday that the political committee supporting the measure will be called "Midlanders FOR City Prop 1."

The proposition calls for a 1/2-cent increase in the local sales tax rate, with half of the funds generated being used to finance a 15 percent decrease in city property taxes and the other half to fund economic development efforts by attracting new businesses and retaining existing ones.

The proposition is expected to be the only local measure on the ballot that will also include 14 state proposals.

"Midlanders FOR City Prop 1" will organize and implement the educational and informational campaign between now and Nov. 4, Angelo said.

"Our efforts will include advertising in electronic and print media, direct mail and telephone banks. In short, a modern-day campaign that will reach Midlanders with the facts about City Prop 1," he added.

"The positive response to this proposal has been overwhelming," Billingsley said. "People are hind Prop 1 because they want lower property taxes and because we need more good jobs."

K. Michael Conaway, a Midland CPA and a member of the Texas State Board of Public Accountancy, has been named treasurer of the group.

Angelo and Billingsley were asked last week by Midland Mayor Bobby Burns and the City Council to head the combined citizen support group and campaign organization.

Administration predicts a $63 billion surplus in 2002

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal budget will not only be balanced by 2002, as called for in last month's budget accord, but will show a $63 billion surplus, the White House predicted Friday.

That's the most optimistic forecast yet, nearly double the 2002 surplus projected earlier this week by congressional analysts.

"The nation's overall economic performance could hardly be better," said the annual summer economic review by the White House Office of Management and Budget.

The OMB predicted moderate growth over the next five years, with continued low inflation and falling interest rates.

It credited both the sound economy and the budget deal struck earlier this summer between President Clinton and Congress.

The report said the deficit for the current fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30, would be $37 billion — the smallest since 1974 and $90 billion below the initial White House estimate last winter.

Guerrillas gloat after 11 Israelis die in Lebanon raid

INSARIYEH, Lebanon (AP) — Gloating over the deaths of 11 Israeli soldiers killed in a commando raid into Lebanon, Shiite Muslim guerrillas showed off mutilated Israeli bodies Friday and called the battle a grave defeat for Israel.

In Tel Aviv, Israel's chief of staff said the military was "in pain" after its greatest combat loss in Lebanon in more than a dozen years.

A 12th Israeli soldier was missing and presumed dead. Four others were wounded when the commandos came ashore early Friday 30 miles north of the Israeli border — well outside Israel's security zone in southern Lebanon — and were met by Hezbollah militiamen, and Lebanese army soldiers.

Israeli warplanes, helicopter gunships and a gunboat joined the battle in a rescue attempt after the predawn raid by the elite Navy Seals went awry, said Lebanese security officials, who spoke on customary condition of anonymity.

A Lebanese woman and a baby were killed, and six other Lebanese civilians were wounded near the hilltop village of Insariyeh, about halfway between the southern ports of Sidon and Tyre. Six Lebanese guerrillas and a soldier were wounded.

Hours later, the battlefield was clouded with smoke from smoldering bushes. Nearby a 35-year-old woman lay dead in a BMW sedan, whose wounded driver had been taken to a hospital.

One guerrilla held up the head of a dead Israeli for photographers before a Lebanese soldier intervened. At a news conference in Beirut, the Hezbollah militia displayed parts of the dead Israelis, along with captured sub-machine guns, detonators and swimming flippers.

In Jerusalem, Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said his government was considering trading Hezbollah prisoners for the body of the missing Israeli soldier.

"We see every soldier ... as something precious, as part of our flesh that we have to provide a burial for in Israel," Netanyahu said.

Sheik Hassan Nasrallah, secretary-general of the Iranian-backed Hezbollah, warned Israel would encounter more roadside bombs and gunfire if it again attacks outside its occupation zone in the south.

"What happened ... was a grave defeat for Israel and a major moral and human loss for Israel's military establishment," Nasrallah told a news conference in Beirut.

The raid was like scores of commando forays Israeli elite forces have made into Lebanon over the past 30 years. This time, however, the casualties were greater than in any combat action since Israel set up its occupation zone in 1985 to protect its northern border.

"The (army) is in pain. It suffers with the families who lost their loved ones," Lt. Gen. Amnon Shahak, the Israeli military chief of staff, told reporters in Tel Aviv.

Shahak said the raiders planned to attack a "terror target" but were met with roadside bombs and automatic weapons fire. Military analysts suggested the Israelis may have planned to ambush a guerrilla motorcade.

The death toll was likely to increase demands by some Israelis for a withdrawal from the 10 percent of Lebanon that Israel holds. But Netanyahu said the army would remain in southern Lebanon until Israel's northern border is secure.

"Lebanon was next to the fence," Netanyahu told Israel TV. "If we leave Lebanon without the necessary arrangements, Lebanon will attack us and it can hit us very deeply inside Israel."

In Beirut, Prime Minister Rafik Hariri urged the U.S. and French governments to help prevent the Israeli retaliation that usually follows guerrilla attacks. He said more violence would only add to the pain south Lebanon has suffered for decades.

"The solution lies with a political rather than a military option," Hariri said.

Gore predicts Justice Department will find his actions legal

WASHINGTON (AP) — While Republicans attacked his credibility at a Senate hearing, Vice President Al Gore predicted Friday that a new Justice Department review would find his fund-raising calls from the White House "legal and proper."

Gore's comments were his first since the Justice Department's announcement this week that it would look into the possible need for an independent counsel investigation of his actions.

Responding to questions by reporters, Gore said he was "confident that when all the reviews are complete, they will find what I did is legal and appropriate. We're cooperating fully with the review and we went the extra step of making it all public. What this shows is the need for campaign finance reform."

The vice president addressed the issue in the midst of several appearances in New Hampshire, the first primary state in the 2000 presidential campaign in which he is expected to be a candidate.

In the Senate's campaign finance investigation, meanwhile, Republicans assailed the assertion of a former top Gore aide that the vice president did not know an event at which he appeared at a California Buddhist temple was a fund-raiser. Gore also has said he did not believe the event was a fund-raiser, although the Democratic National Committee collected $100,000 in donations linked to the April 29, 1996, luncheon. As a tax-exempt institution, the temple is not supposed to be involved in partisan politics.

"I know what a fund-raiser is and this was not a fund-raiser," David M. Strauss, Gore's former deputy chief of staff, told the Governmental Affairs Committee.

Strauss swayed few Republicans during his testimony, and Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa. countered: "We'll let others draw the inference whether all the $5,000 checks made it a fund-raiser or not."

GOP senators introduced at least 10 Clinton administration and Democratic Party memos at the hearing that referred to Gore's speech at the Hsi Lai Temple near Los Angeles as a fund-raising function.

Three nuns from the temple testified Thursday that $45,000 was collected the day before the event and $55,000 the day after — with the latter amount reimbursed to the donors from temple funds. When the news media began raising questions about the event close to the 1996 election, two of the nuns said, they destroyed documents showing the reimbursements.

Federal law prohibits a political donor giving a contribution that is not his or her own money.

Newly found Rembrandt plate to get first showing

WASHINGTON (AP) — On one side of the copper plate a second-rate painter did a quiet landscape 300 years ago. On the other side, a British expert discovered, was a unique etching by Rembrandt, signed and dated 1656.

The National Gallery of Art announced Friday that its Patrons' Permanent Fund had bought the plate with the help of an anonymous donor. Bidding at Christie's art auction house in London reached about $338,000. It will go on show for the first time Nov. 16.

"It's never been re-etched like so many of Rembrandt's plates," said Andrew Robison, senior curator at the gallery. "It's like looking over his shoulder as he worked."

An etcher uses sharp instruments to cut fine lines into a metal plate, wipes ink on the plate and prints it on paper. Robison said he could see tiny residues of ink in the grooves and thinks it was put on by Rembrandt himself. Tests that should tell more will take another few months.

The etching, considered one of Rembrandt's finest, tells the story from Genesis about the angels God sent to the aged Abraham to tell him that he would have a son by his wife Sarah. Abraham wondered if a man of 100 and a wife of 90 could have a child.

Panel urges thalidomide approval

Associated Press

BETHESDA, Md. — Thalidomide, once the world's most notorious drug, was recommended by a federal panel Friday for sales at American pharmacies with tight restrictions aimed at avoiding the birth-defect horrors of the 1960s.

The scientific panel urged approval by the Food and Drug Administration just for a small number of leprosy patients. But doctors are expected to prescribe it for a wider range of conditions, and all sides agreed that accidents were inevitable.

Even one of the world's top leprosy physicians, Dr. Thomas Rea of Los Angeles County Medical Center, told the FDA's advisory panel that "one day a thalidomide baby will be born" because of the approval.

"I don't know what I will do when I look that child in the eye," Ray said.

If the FDA follows the panel's advice, thalidomide would become the most severely restricted drug ever sold in this country.

That would be far different from 35 years ago, when the drug was banned worldwide after causing horrific birth defects in 12,000 babies. At that time, it was sold as a sleeping pill and morning sickness cure in 48 countries. No one had known that just one pill in early pregnancy could result in a baby with no limbs or with flipper-like arms and legs.

The drug was never sold in the United States because an FDA scientist uncovered early signs of toxicity and blocked approval. Still, some Americans got it overseas or in clinical trials,

Today, said the agency's Dr. Murray Lumpkin, experts know the risks and the drug is being studied as a medicine to treat only devastating diseases that leave their victims little hope.

Americans with leprosy are very rare — under 50 a year are diagnosed with the agonizing inflammation the drug targets — and most of them are in special research programs that already allow them to get experimental doses.

But the drug also is being studied for a host of diseases from AIDS-related wasting and ulcers to cancer, lupus and rheumatoid arthritis.

That means doctors probably will prescribe it to many more people than leprosy patients, the FDA panel acknowledged. But the scientists said thalidomide would still pose a danger without approval because it is sold underground, sometimes via the Internet, and smuggled from abroad with no government oversight.

Instead, the FDA panel said the government should set unprecedented curbs on which pharmacies can distribute thalidomide and force any company that makes the drug to educate physicians about the dangers.

A photo of a child thalidomide victim — ideally a videotape of such a child — should be shown to every doctor who prescribes thalidomide and every patient who gets it, the panel said.

In addition, the panel endorsed plans by New Jersey-based Celgene Corp., which hopes to become the first of three competitors to sell thalidomide, that would forbid pharmacies from distributing thalidomide until they receive a form signed by patient and doctor that both know the risks, and that a female patient is adequately protected against pregnancy.

The FDA is not bound by advisory committee decisions but typically follows them.

Lunden celebrates final early broadcast

NEW YORK (AP) — Happily handing off an alarm clock to her "Good Morning America" successor, Joan Lunden ended her reign as the longest-running host in morning television Friday and said she's looking forward to getting some sleep.

She worried about keeping her composure, and kept it during a two-hour sendoff through tributes from President Clinton, David Letterman and John Travolta. But the tears flowed when Celine Dion held Lunden's hand and sang "Because You Loved Me."

Lunden, 46, joined the show as a consumer reporter in 1976 and has been host for nearly 18 years. Los Angeles anchor Lisa McRee will replace her on Monday.

McRee accepted Lunden's "survival kit" of an alarm clock, sleeping pills and a coffee mug. An entry on Letterman's Top 10 list of things for Lunden to do: "Sleep until the middle of 1999."

"This has been a very rare and privileged seat to be in and watch while history is being made," Lunden said.

Friday's special was a more subdued version of Bryant Gumbel's sendoff from the rival "Today" in January. "Good Morning America" doesn't have the swagger.

America's favorite morning show a decade ago, it is consistently trounced in the ratings now by "Today," and ABC admits its format has grown tired. Two new executive producers have been hired, and there are questions about co-host Charles Gibson's status.

ABC's studio was decorated with magazine covers depicting a history of Lunden haircuts. She laughed through film clips of her bungee jumping off a bridge, walking down the face of a glacier and trying to keep up with Robin Williams.

Missing from the tribute was her former co-host, David Hartman.

Gibson said Lunden was a role model in balancing work and family. Despite nervousness from executives, she "put her pregnant stomach over the desk and not under it," he said.

Gibson admitted he's been thinking about leaving himself but said he has made no decisions. ABC News chairman Roone Arledge said he has been considering former "Fox After Breakfast" host Tom Bergeron and others as possible successors.

Freeway shooting victim had criminal drug history

Associated Press

EL PASO, Texas — A man gunned down on a freeway just before the morning rush hour had a history of cocaine-related convictions and had once been a fugitive in Mexico, according to court records.

Police are declining to discuss any possible motives for Thursday's shooting or whether it might be linked to drug-related violence that has engulfed neighboring Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, for the last two months.

"We're not going to know much else until the investigation gets further along," officer Al Velarde said.

Police found Humberto Lara, 27, after someone reported that a man was slumped over the wheel of a GMC Yukon that had pulled over on an Interstate 10 median near a downtown exit.

Authorities believe Lara had been shot while driving and managed to stop his truck before he died.

Velarde would not say how many times Lara had been shot or where, but did verify the Yukon had been peppered with bullets.

The El Paso Times said Friday that according to court documents, Lara had been sentenced to 10 years' probation in 1991 after being found guilty of one count of delivery of cocaine.

Lara was arrested again in 1994, along with his brother Francisco Lara, after police found about a half pound of cocaine in their house, records show.

Both brothers skipped bail and were fugitives for more than two years, officials said.

"I understand they had gone down to Mexico to hide out, somewhere near Guadalajara," said Javier Guerra of the U.S. Marshal's office in El Paso. "But the information we got was that things had gotten pretty hot for them down there, so they decided to come back."

It was not clear if the brothers later surrendered or were arrested.

But Humberto Lara eventually pleaded guilty in federal court to a count of conspiracy to posses cocaine with intent to distribute stemming from the 1994 arrest.

Lara's shooting was the most recent in a string of killings that have rocked the El Paso-Juarez area in recent weeks.

At least 18 people have been killed in Juarez in what may be a turf war ignited by the July 4 death of Amado Carrillo Fuentes, the reputed leader of Mexico's most powerful drug cartel.

Officer's web site under investigation

AUSTIN (AP) — The University of Texas police department is reviewing an Internet web site that was maintained by one of its officers, who arrested Longhorns football star Ricky Williams earlier this week.

The Austin American-Statesman on Friday reported that officer Eric Poteet maintained the site, Eric's One-Stop Cop Shop, that included a page called "The Nightstalker Files."

Poteet's introduction to the page said, "The stories you are about to read are TRUE. No names have been changed to protect the innocent because there are not enough innocents to protect."

It included accounts of arrests and observations of the people Poteet came across while on the job. The officer was suspended by UT after the Monday arrest.

The web site, maintained on a UT computer system, was no longer on the Internet Friday. Poteet did not respond to a call or an electronic message from The Associated Press.

University officials who oversee the computer system where the web site was located said they did not remove it.

"I would love to give my side, but am awaiting advice of counsel before I release a statement," Poteet wrote to the American-Statesman via electronic mail. "I will say in my own defense that the media is getting only a tiny filtered piece of the whole story."

The Travis County Attorney's office on Wednesday dropped a misdemeanor charge against Williams that he failed to identify himself to Poteet during a routine traffic stop.

According to Poteet's arrest report, Williams was pulled over for running a stop sign. Williams did not have his driver's license. He told Poteet his name was Ricky Lynne Williams.

Poteet arrested Williams after finding his name is listed as Errick Lynne Williams on his car registration and driver's license.

UT Police Chief Donald Cannon said the web site will be studied as the internal affairs department investigates Poteet and how he handled Williams' arrest.

"This web site is certainly not condoned by the University of Texas police department," Cannon said.

Ask the doctor

By Dr. Emilio Bombay
N.Y. Times News Service

Dear Dr. Bombay: In all the Apple-Microsoft talk of the last few weeks, Steve Wozniak has only been mentioned as the co-founder of Apple. Is he no longer alive? — Just wondering

Dear Wondering: Woz is very much alive. In any great collaboration of minds, there's almost always a powerful, artful, creative force to counterbalance the hard-edged business savvy it takes to make a dream become a reality. Look at the Beatles. John Lennon was the poet-dreamer-walrus, while Paul McCartney was the master of commercially acceptable pop. For a long while it worked, but one day something snapped. It was pretty much the same story with Woz and Steve Jobs, although to the best of my knowledge, neither man was married to a shrill, shrieking, talentless "artist" responsible for breaking up the finest rock 'n' roll band the world has ever known.

Woz was the dreamer. He was happy to build ridiculously low-priced computers in the garage. Jobs was the businessman. He saw the potential of putting a thinking machine on your desk. And he just wanted to make a few bucks in the process. He did.

Things were going fairly well until early 1981, when Wozniak's private plane smacked into the ground. Woz recovered, but he decided to take a sabbatical from the real world. He got married and went back to school, then sponsored a couple of money-losing music festivals. But at least he was having fun.

By the time he was through playing, Apple had moved on. Woz came back as a regular engineer, but the magic was gone. Jobs was already at work on the Macintosh, and Wozniak really didn't have much to do. He dropped out again — for good — in 1985, although it was with $45 million in his pocket. Not much by Bill Gates standards, but enough to get by on.

He tried marketing a super-duper remote control, but it never caught on, so he went back to his semireclusive lifestyle, helping charities and teaching kids what to do with a keyboard.

Head on over to www.woz.org to see what Steve is up to. Looks like a pretty good life compared with all those boardroom death-matches.

Dear Dr. Bombay: I have tried to get on America Online, but I keep getting (an error message). The problem is due, I believe, to when I let my grandchildren play games on the PC and I lost everything somehow. A friend unloaded everything and reloaded Windows 3.1, but I cannot get sound or color copies on my printer, and it will not acknowledge my modem.

— Offline

Dear Off: I bet that's the last time you baby-sit the rugrats for a while, right? Your friend was on the right track, but just didn't take it far enough. If your computer is so goobered up that it won't do anything right, the flush-and-fill method is often the best. But if you load Windows 3.1, remember it isn't very smart about recognizing what hardware you have.

You'll have to reload all the special driver programs that make things like sound cards and printers behave. Your peripherals probably came with some sort of installation disks. Just run them again.

Assuming that the ankle-biters didn't pour Snapple into it and kill it, you also have to tell each communications program, including AOL, what kind of modem you have and what COM port (sorry for the geek-speak) it's located on. And the next time the grandkids come over, try a nice game of checkers instead.

Computers as useful appliances offer practical tips

By Charles Stough
N.Y. Times News Service

The home computer may be the most useful appliance that is almost never found on wedding gift lists. Toasters, teapots, telephones, even toothbrushes (the electric kind) stand a better chance of making it to satin ribbons.

But few household tools get more use than a computer when it's performing to its potential. Apart from the obvious — budget manager, word processor, game player — it can be a source of direct, highly focused, fast advice. And unlike a mother-in-law, it performs without upraised eyebrows or judgmentalism.

Here's a sample of questions and answers culled from Usenet newsgroups, for example. There are thousands of such forums, each addressing a particular interest, hobby, business, lifestyle, age group or other subset. Consider:

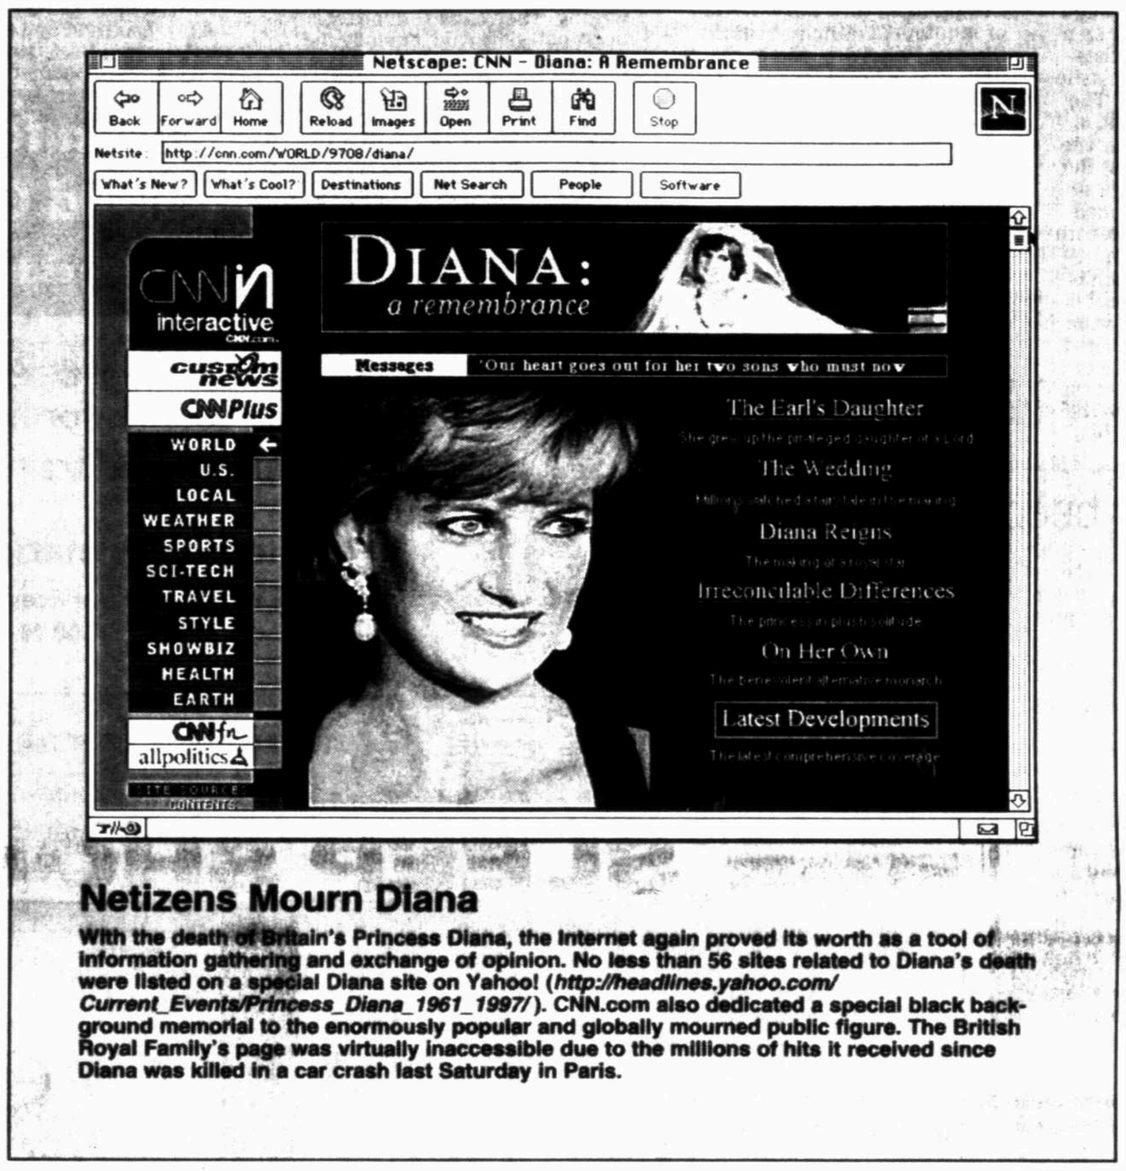

■ From the group rec.food.preserving, people canning jalapeno peppers are always advised to wear gloves when handling hot peppers. But if you peeled a few quarts of them before reading that little type printed in red in your cookbook, here's advice from a hospital emergency room on how to make the suffering stop: Soak your hands for 10-15 minutes in Ivory Liquid detergent, another 10-15 minutes in baby oil, and 10-15 minutes in Ivory Liquid again. Then rub on baby oil and wear cotton gloves for six to eight hours.

■ From misc.rural, a foul-smelling outhouse can be prevented by tossing in a double handful of wood ashes after each use. But a septic system is a better idea. If you have moved into a house and don't know where the tank is buried, see where the pipe exits the house, walk about 15 feet out and start digging.

Misc.rural is one of my favorite groups because it encourages a workable mix of self-reliance and neighborly decorum. When a contributor asked advice about the rude neighbor's undisciplined dogs rampaging through his property, killing small animals and chasing deer, the answer was "Use the Three-S system. Shoot, shovel and shut up."

■ The group misc.legal.moderated answers questions about collecting debts, dealing with landlords or tenants, inheritance and other general questions. Netizens Mourn Diana

With the death of Britain's Princess Diana, the Internet again proved its worth as a tool of information gathering and exchange of opinion. No less than 56 sites related to Diana's death were listed on a special Diana site on Yahoo! (http://headlines.yahoo.com/Current_Events/Princess_Diana_1961_1997/). CNN.com also dedicated a special black background memorial to the enormously popular and globally mourned public figure. The British Royal Family's page was virtually inaccessible due to the millions of hits it received since Diana was killed in a car crash last Saturday in Paris.

If you think your box is fast, take a look at the Janus

By George Johnson
N.Y. Times News Service

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Janus, recently christened the world's fastest supercomputer, is not much to look at: 84 tall gray cabinets resembling plastic gym lockers lined up inside a claustrophobic, fluorescent-lighted room.

Inside the drab enclosures, 9,072 Pentium Pro processors silently trade information, giving the computer, built by the Intel Corp. and installed this summer at Sandia National Laboratories here, the power to perform a once-inconceivable trillion mathematical operations per second.

Overhead the blowers for the cooling system roar, carrying away the tremendous heat generated by squeezing so many calculations into a tiny sliver of time. The noise is the sign that behind Janus's lifeless facade, an enormous amount of computational labor is being done. Computing power has increased so rapidly over the years that the announcement of yet another world's fastest supercomputer seems almost routine. Supercomputers are rated according to how many mathematical operations, like multiplying two numbers, they can do in a single second. Since these tasks involve keeping track of the position of the decimal point, they are called floating point operations, or flops.

Over the years, megaflop machines, performing millions of operations a second, have given way to gigaflop machines, performing as many as hundreds of billions. The new computer at Sandia is the first teraflop machine. Tera means trillion, and by cross-

At UCLA, mixed reaction to web-based courses

By Steven Knowlton
N.Y. Times News Service

When students at the University of California at Los Angeles call up the World Wide Web home page for a class on 20th-century American literature this school year, they will have a wealth of choices, including, the professor hopes, clicking on an audio button to hear an aria from an opera mentioned in a Willa Cather novel. But students taking another professor's course on Milton will find a bare-bones Web page, not much more than the course title and a reading list.

Professor Thomas Wortham, the chairman of the English department who is planning the more elaborate page, and Jonathan F.S. Post, a former chairman of the department whose page is being created without his input, are representative of the reactions to UCLA's announcement in mid-July that it will make home pages available for every course in the College of Letters and Science by Sept. 25, the start of the fall term.

At the very least, that means the university will provide students with a plain-text syllabus and an online chat room — a cyberspace spot where students can talk to one another in some 1,000 courses. At its most elaborate, the Web pages may use graphics and audio and video snippets to dress up lecture notes and provide links to take students to other relevant Web sites. Professors can choose to participate or not in creating and maintaining their class pages.

Although UCLA is believed to be the first major campus in the country to require home pages for so many courses, its action represents a growing trend in higher education to integrate the Web and the more encompassing Internet into class work.

But while many faculty members are cruising into cyberspace with enthusiasm, confident that they can make learning more rewarding, others are more reluctant to trade in conventional teaching tools for what they and other critics fear is just the latest fad in higher education.

Wortham said he was looking forward to offering an enhanced Web page. He could round up the tape players, slide projectors and other academic hardware "and lug them

Free web sites offering term papers make plagiarism easier than ever

By Leif Strickland
N.Y. Times News Service

Used to be, when you didn't want to do your own homework, you had to beg, cheat or buy a term paper out of the back of a magazine. Now, you can cruise the Internet and get one for free.

Just go online to a "cyber frat file," select a subject — English, science, business, law, history — find a paper and click on print.

The fact that term papers are available on the Internet is not what worries educators — that's nothing new. Before, commercial Web services offered papers for fees — ranging from $20 to more than $100 — and university students posted their own essays on personal Web pages. But these new services offer all the essays in one place, and they don't cost a dime.

"The tempting thing is that it's already digital," said Bill Weaver, an academic adviser at the University of Texas at Austin. "It's just a matter of copy and paste. Boom, they're done. It's nothing."

Some sites offer totally free access; others require the contribution of

Dear Marty: You can put any color or image behind the words and pictures on your home page by creating a background image. You create a small image and the browser places it in the background like a tiled floor. With some work you can make your background look seamless. JANUS: Nuclear fusion, missile impact simulations possible ing this threshold, computer science has made a qualitative leap in the ability to use information to model the world.

Janus is so fast and has so much memory (hundreds of billions of bytes, compared with millions in a typical personal computer) that it can simulate complex events — like explosions, nuclear fusion reactions, missile impacts or the crash of a comet into the Earth — with a fineness of detail that was impossible before.

"The increase in power has almost no precedent," said Dr. William J. Camp, director of computational science, computer science and mathematics at Sandia. "In one fell swoop, we've raised computing power by an order of magnitude."

When scientists re-create biological reactions in a test tube, they say they are working "in vitro," from the Latin word for glass. Experiments carried out inside the silicon chips of a computer are done "in silica." While two-dimensional simulations are now commonplace, adding the third dimension takes an enormous amount of additional computer power. Rendering a three-dimensional process in fine detail, and then having it unfold along the fourth dimension, time, strains even the most powerful computers.

In 1970, Camp said, supercomputers could roughly simulate a clump of matter consisting of a thousand atoms and follow its behavior for about a nanosecond, a billionth of a second. Re-creating this brief moment took those computers a few hours of intense calculation. In about the same time, Camp said, the teraflop machine can follow 100 million atoms for as long as a microsecond, a millionth of a second — an eternity on the atomic scale.

The new teraflop machine was ordered for the Federal Department of Energy's Accelerated Strategic Computing Initiative, which tries to use simulations to test nuclear weapons without the environmental and political risks of exploding them in the real world.

"For the first time we can do full four-dimensional simulations," Camp said. "That's really a qualitative change." In the past, he said, weapons simulations were not detailed enough to substitute for real testing.

Researchers at Sandia, a Department of Energy lab, recently used Janus to mimic a ballistic missile strike. For the missile to explode, the triggering mechanism must survive the initial impact and, a moment later, set off the explosion. By sifting through the simulated wreckage on a computer screen, scientists could see whether the missile was correctly designed. The accuracy of such models, of course, is only as good as the assumptions built in. But the teraflop computer allows scientists to play out the consequences of their theories with unprecedented precision.

The computer at Sandia is not used only for weapons work. It is nicknamed Janus because, like the Roman god, it has two faces: one side of the computer can be used for classified research while the other is solving unclassified problems.

Scientists recently used the teraflop computer to simulate the split-second timing of a nuclear fusion experiment. Janus was also used to analyze what would happen if a comet a kilometer, or about six-tenths of a mile, in diameter and weighing about a billion tons struck the Earth's atmosphere, vaporizing part of the ocean and setting off tidal waves.

"This is an experiment I would not want to witness first-hand," said Dr. Mark Boslough, a physicist at Sandia who worked on the comet project. "The simulation enhances our insight and understanding of the physics of big impacts in a way that would not be possible by any other means."

Boslough said that at teraflop speeds, computer simulation is coming into its own as a new way to do science. "Until recently, scientists have described themselves as either experimentalists or theorists," he said, "but computational science is rapidly establishing itself as a third branch of inquiry, and the one that is the most likely to lead to the next major breakthroughs in many areas of research."

Computers are becoming so powerful that scientists say they must remind themselves not to confuse the simulation with the real thing. "Supercomputer simulations greatly enhance, but will never eliminate the more traditional way of doing science," Boslough said. "Without a good experimental and theoretical foundation, it would just be garbage-in, garbage-out — trillions of times per second."

UCLA: Much of the impetus is financial into class," he said, but he acknowledged that "too often that does not happen."

Post, on the other hand, said he did not mind that the university was putting his syllabus on the Web because "my syllabus is not my course." But he added, "The greater concern that most of us would feel is that technology will be driving the teaching."

He also said he feared that "funding will be going in that direction and away from the classroom."

Much of the impetus for Web-based learning is financial. Many college administrators regard Web pages as effective marketing and recruiting tools.

In May, a new college guide ranking the 100 most-wired campuses was published by Yahoo, a popular Internet search service. In that survey, UCLA did not fare well against many other California campuses because it had relatively few courses with Web pages.

Wortham said UCLA's decision to build Web pages for all its courses had been made before the Yahoo ranking and had been driven, in part, by the need to justify a new computer fee that students are paying this fall.

"The idea was if students could see that the money was being utilized in the classroom, maybe they would go for it," the professor said.

The fee — $10 for each humanities course and $14 for each science course — was discussed in the last academic year, but many students objected, saying that their courses did not have Web pages and that they should not have to pay for services they were not receiving.

PAPERS: High school classrooms could be at high risk

an essay to get the password.

Some sites — with names such as Cheater.com and The Evil House of Cheat — don't mask the fact that they exist for the sole purpose of plagiarism.

But others take a higher road. Kenny Sahr, the 25-year-old founder of School Sucks, contends that his site serves as nothing more than a reference library to help students with research and writing. They can examine the bibliographies, he said, or study the approaches other students have taken.

Although most of the attention and concern over the sites have come from university education groups, high school classrooms may be the most at risk.

"This is all new to us," said Francine Burris, an honors English teacher at Arlington High School in Arlington. "Many high school teachers have had no help or education on use of the Internet. Generally, the students know more than we do about computers."

John, who graduated in May from Arlington High, said he pulled his senior theme paper off a Web site the night before it was due. He just changed a few words and typed his name on the top.

"I just didn't like the whole Shakespeare thing, so I looked for a paper online," said John, who didn't want his last name used, for obvious reasons. "I probably spent two hours just looking for it when I could have spent that time writing something. But I didn't really feel like it."

He can't remember what grade he received — a B or C — but he said the teacher did not find out, or if she discovered it, never mentioned it to him.

TOOL: Regulars in some groups become like pen pals

(From 1B)

■ A semiprofessional group, rec.arts.theatre.stagecraft, serves people who work in theater — amateur, school or professional. They share tips on how to make smoke, glass that breaks without gashing the actors, realistic but harmless gunshots and other stage illusions. It's a fun tour for the non-pro too. Until I got my computer, I had no idea there were companies selling easy-to-break bottles and dishware, speaking of wedding gifts.

Regulars in some groups become like pen pals. A contributor to misc.writing recently told of a trip to San Francisco, where a fellow struggling writer whom he had never met did precious chauffeur and guide duties. Misc.writing is a busy but only marginally useful group dominated by a few gabby show-offs and hopeless amateurs asking questions like "What is passive voice?" But you can save cab fare there.

Sometimes a fun question stirs something in a group and you can read clever trivia or hilarious comment. Rec.food.cooking had one of those when a contributor asked for favorite food moments in film.

Some answers: The spaghetti-kiss scene from "Lady and the Tramp," the lusty banquet in "Tom Jones," Meg Ryan's fake orgasm in the restaurant in "When Harry Met Sally," the bugs, worms and slugs that Timon, Pumbaa, and Simba scarf up in "The Lion King," Hugh Grant in "Four Weddings and A Funeral" discovering himself surrounded by ex-lovers, Richard Drefuss obsessively piling mashed potatoes onto his plate in "Close Encounters of the Third Kind."

It would take a very large collection of moviegoing chefs to come up with such a list around any kitchen. But with computers, all things become possible, and some even take gravy.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Building dedication

First Baptist Church of Midland, 2104 W. Louisiana Ave., officially dedicates its new education building addition and other improvements beginning at 6 p.m. Sunday.

The dedication service will be held in the new 13,860 square foot Fellowship Hall auditorium, which seats more than 1,000.

The Rev. Gary Dyer, pastor since June 1995, will lead the celebration. Building committee chairman Fred Poe will accept the keys from Jack Seefeldt of Johnson Seefeldt Architects and John W. Cooper IV of J.W. Cooper Construction Co., Inc.

First Baptist Church launched a capital campaign in the fall of 1995 to raise $5 million for building additions, renovations to the worship center, addition of nine preschool classrooms, office building renovation, a transportation and storage facility, and new parking areas.

The two-story expansion was added to the north end of the church building and houses the new auditorium, kitchen, and 16,000 square feet of classroom space for 400 adults. The former fellowship hall was remodeled to include nine preschool classrooms to serve around 180 children.

Former pastor L.L. Morriss and former education minister Bob Hopkins will participate in the formalities, and greetings from former pastors Daniel Vestal and Jim Denison will be presented.

Also on Sunday's program are members of the 1951 building campaign committee, Cliff Hogue and James Kerr. A fifth generation member of First Baptist Church, Midland High School sophomore Melanie Mims, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Mims, will give the dedication prayer.

A concert featuring Christian recording artists Steve and Annie Chapman, known for their frequent appearances on Dr. James Dobson's Focus on the Family, will be held at 6:45 p.m. following a short intermission.

In addition, the couple, who have been called "musical ambassadors to the family" by the author and psychologist, are conducting a marriage seminar from 2 to 5 p.m. today entitled "Married Lovers, Married Friends," and will perform at First Baptist Church's 8:20, 9:40 and 11 a.m. services Sunday.

All events are free. Child care will be provided. The community is invited to attend.

First Baptist Church was organized on Jan. 10 1886. It moved to its present location in July of 1954. Many additions to the church campus followed during the ensuing 43 years. Facilities include the main building, an activities building, an office building and print shop, and a transportation storage building.

The Food Pantry, now in its 12th year, is open each Wednesday afternoon to provide food for people in need. Persons coming to the dinner are asked to bring some canned goods for the Food Pantry. A Desert Auction is also held to raise funds that evening. Dress and decorations are "western" for this event.

Musical groups

Several new musical groups are being offered by First United Methodist Church this fall.

A vocal ensemble for women is rehearsing from 12:05 to 12:45 p.m. Thursdays. Those attending are asked to bring a brown bag lunch to eat after rehearsal. Suzanne Cate, minister of music at First UMC, is directing the new group which is open to non-church members as well as members.

Also a handbell choir for men and women begins at 6 p.m. Monday. No previous bell ringing experience is necessary, although it will be helpful to have some musical background such as band or piano. This will be a beginning level handbell choir and is open to non-church members. Openings are available for nine more ringers.

In addition, First UMC is inviting persons working downtown to bring a lunch on Thursdays and join the discussions of a noon time Bible study led by David Cameron.

The study group will read and discuss the Book of Acts. Pre-registration is encouraged, but not mandatory (682-3701). The course fee is $3.50 to cover the cost of the study book.

A new adult Sunday School class at First United Methodist is organizing Sept. 14. The class will begin with the short course, "Get Acquainted With the Bible," and then will move to the study of one of the books of the Bible. The class will be taught by Cameron and will meet during the Sunday school hour, 9:15 to 10:25 am.

Christian Assertiveness training for young singles and interested others is being taught from 6 to 7:30 pm in Room 202 at First U.M.C. Sundays in September. The training sessions will be facilitated by Jane Vaughan, an experienced teacher and trainer, as part of her internship for her master's of education. Pre-registration and reservations for child care are required; call 682-3701.

The Singles Ministry of First United Methodist Church is hosting a Divorce Recovery Seminar on Sept. 20 in Fellowship Hall.

The keynote speaker will be marriage and family therapist Dr. James May. Other presentations will be given by Jane Vaughan and John R. Rech.

There is no charge for the seminar or child care. A $5 donation will be requested for the catered lunch. To register for the seminar, child care, or to get more information, call the church office at 682-3701.

Workshop set

Alamo Heights Baptist Church, 1305 N. Midland Drive, will begin a Praise and Workshop Service on Sept. 14 that will continue on the 2nd and 4th Sundays of the month.

The services allow the congregation to participate in singing praise and worship choruses led by the church's minister of music, David Kirby, and the Praise Team, accompanied by a small instrumental ensemble. Occasionally, meaningful dramas and readings will be presented.

The message is presented by the minister of education and youth, Brad Wheeler. Everyone is invited. Nursery is provided for children age 3 and under.

Women's group

The women of Shekinah Glory Church are hosting a woman's conference today at First United Methodist Church, Main and Ohio. Service will begin with prayer at 9 a.m.

This year's theme is "She Shall be Called Woman." Speakers will be: Sis. Carolyn Gilbert; Sis. Sharon Lewis and Sis. Carolyn Porter. Psalmist: Sis. Carolyn Nelson; Sis. Katie Acrey and Sis. Pat Betts.

A salad luncheon will be served at noon.

Seminars set

"Walk Thru the Bible" Seminars presents a practical revolutionizing way to teach, train, or communicate with students or other teachers.

The seminar will be held at Crestview Baptist Church, 3300 Thomas Ave., located across from Kingsway Mall. The workshop, called "The 7 Laws of the Learner," will teach seven fundamental Scripture principals.

Cost of the workshop is $15 per person and will begin on Sept. 19 at 7-9:30 p.m. and end on Sept. 20 from 8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.

For more information or to make reservations call the church at 694-7701 and ask for Don Norris.

The Holy Ethiopian/Oriental Coptic Church will hold its services in the office at Coventry Apointe, 3329 W. Wadley Ave.

Services are set for 7 to 9 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 3 to 5 p.m. Sundays. The speaker will be King Haile Selassie II.

Discussion group

The Discovery of Life Church, a Science of Mind Center, is offering a discussion of "Conversations with God" from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Wednesdays at the church, 2311 Elizabeth Ave.

The discussion group will be facilitated by the Rev. Gerre Parker. Those attending are asked to bring a candle.

Also, the church has announced its participation in the Virtues Project, a program for children and youth that is being offered at 11 a.m. Sundays.

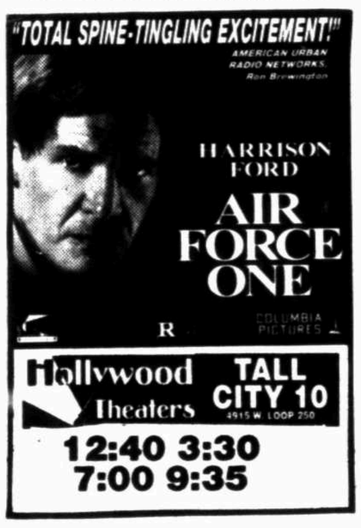

The Virtues Project is an initiative that began in 1991 to empower individuals and families to live by their highest values, said a release from the church.

Using the Family Virtues Guide as a text, the Virtues Project is an approach that calls people to remembrance of the virtues, the qualities of character and the simple elements of spirituality honored by all cultures and scared traditions, the release said.

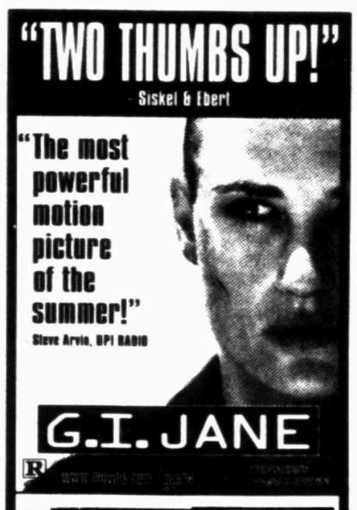

For more information call the church, 684-4230.

He devised the idea of the Alpha Course, which is for all those interested in finding out more about the Christian faith and is designed for non-churchgoers as well as new Christians. Dinner is included and sitters are provided.

For more information on the Alpha Program call the Rev. Stockton Williams or the Rev. Jeff Fouts, 683-4207.

Each session will start with a catered dinner in the Parish Hall at 6 p.m. The sessions close at 9 p.m. Weekly topics include "Who is Jesus?" "Why Did He Die?" "How to read the Bible," "Pray and Overcome Evil," "Hearing the Holy Spirit" and "Does God Heal Today?"

Golf Course Road Church of Christ follows 7 principles derived from the Bible

Staff Report

It's been 34 years since the Golf Course Road Church of Christ grew from a smaller church and formed what is now a congregation of roughly 1,700 members.

The expansion from the downtown North A and Tennessee location in 1963 to its present location at Golf Course, Andrews Highway and Tarleton was necessitated, according to church leaders, by the town's westward growth.

The ministries at GCR are based on the congregation's commitment to seven basic principles derived from the Bible, according to Tom Vermillion, GCR's Small Group and Family Minister.

"The first is that grace is God's provision," Vermillion said. "We are saved by grace through faith in Jesus Christ. Everything else we do is in response to God's saving grace rather than in an attempt to earn what God must freely give."

The second guiding principle is that worship is God's glory. "As a part of it's history," Vermillion said, "GCR worships a Capella -- without instruments. Sunday morning assemblies are a powerful experience of voices being lifted up in praise. GCR's music minister, Ken Young, directs Hallal Music, a nationwide ministry dedicated to making contemporary worship all that it can be. The focus and talents of Hallal continually bring energy and excellence to the assemblies at GCR."

The Bible being God's revelation is the third principle upon which the church is built.

"At a time when our culture is losing its foundations and our moral world is becoming vague, we believe that absolutes still exist in the universe. God's word reveals those absolutes to us. Lives based on those absolutes have an anchor that many lives lack," Vermillion said.

The Bible being God's revelation is the third principle upon which the church is built.

Bible study is a foundational component of ministry at GCR.

God's demand of purity is the church's fourth principle.

"GCR maintains an emphasis living out the principles of God's word in every part of our lives and pursuing personal integrity and holiness in everything we do," Vermillion said. "That purity and integrity is extended into our business lives, our marriages and on the playing fields of Midland. As a people we don't always live up to the standards, but that standard is our goal."

GCR has a number of ongoing ministries that reach out to the poor and hurting of the community, which help to fulfill the fifth guiding principle: Service is God's presence. Some of the GCR-sponsored services and programs include Divorce Adjustment, Grief Recovery, AA groups, professional counseling services and widespread member involvement in community service organizations in Midland.

The sixth principle states that growth is God's business.

"GCR believes that God intends for his kingdom to grow," Vermillion said. "The church has maintained a heavy commitment to overseas missions throughout the year as well as stateside evangelism and outreach efforts."

Vermillion added that GCR is committed to continuing to work alongside other believers in doing good and lifting up the name of Jesus in the Permian Basin.

The last principle driving GCR is that freedom is God's gift.

According to Vermillion, "We share a vision of being a church that is free in the spirit to be unbound by tradition in aggressively seeking innovative approaches to ministry and in allowing individual expressions of praise and service. We have a diverse congregation and see that as a blessing rather than a problem."

GCR is a unique congregation that has well-developed ministries for youth, single adults, families, senior citizens as well as to hurting and needy individuals. The church values strong Bible teaching, high-energy praise and service to the community. It provides belonging places through small groups, called CareGroups, that meet weekly in homes for relevant Bible study, fellowship, encouragement and prayer. Everyone at GCR is encouraged to be part of such a group and non-members are also welcome to be part of the groups.

Athens gets Games

LAUSANNE, Switzerland — This time, sentiment prevailed.
After the snub of 1996, the Olympics are returning to their Greek birthplace in 2004.
Athens was awarded the first Summer Games of the new millennium Friday, bringing the Olympics to the Greek capital for the first time since the modern games began in 1896.
"We're giving back to the Greeks what they gave to us," said Jacques Rogge of the International Olympic Committee. "The extra value of the Greek tradition made the difference."
The decision set off celebrations in the streets of Athens, where young people linked arms in traditional Greek dances near the Acropolis and motorists honked in joy. Ships in the western port of Patras sounded their fog horns.
Some of the jubilant Athenians said the decision was a sweet payback for Greece's devastating loss to Atlanta for the 1996 Centennial Games.
"They owe it to us because of 1996," said Yolanda Lalabake, celebrating in central Athens.
"There is a natural sympathy vote for Greece," said British IOC member Craig Reedie.

Frenship turns tables on Midland High

By Stewart Doreen
Assistant Sports Editor

WOLFFORTH — Last year's season opening win over Wolfforth Frenship was supposed to be just a memory for this Midland High football team.

But after Friday's 24-21 loss to the Tigers to open the 1997 season, the Bulldogs might have been foolish not to pay attention to one important detail — the game and the other team have to be finished off.

Midland High had the Tigers down 21-18 with seven minutes remaining at Tiger Stadium, just needing a stop. However, the one last stop to seal the deal never came, and when Frenship's Jason Haynie hit Brad Ritter for the final touchdown, it showed that one detail caused something worse — a loss to start the season.

Midland High	21
Frenship	24

"Maybe we relaxed, maybe we don't have that killer instinct," MHS head coach David Browning said. "We sat on our hands. This is a reversal from last year when we dominated the fourth quarter. This year, we didn't.

"You are always better off with a win. People say you learn from your mistakes, but you are better off with a victory."

A win seemed certain for the Bulldogs after a fourth quarter in which they were in control. In taking the lead 21-18, Midland High had an eight-play 71-yard drive that was close to picture perfect. All plays were on the ground and the line was as much the reason for the drive's success as ball carriers Shemond Davis and Camar Jackson. It was almost like Midland High had the momentum for good as fullback Damon Johnson busted through from two yards out.

That is when the drive took place. Frenship was solid and Haynie took his District 1-4A team for a 15-play drive and into the win column. The biggest play came on third and 11 at the MHS 49. Haynie dropped back and waited patiently for his receivers to make the right break. One receiver, Travis Denson did and Haynie threaded the needle for 27 yards. On the drive Frenship was 3-for-3 on third-down conversions, but Haynie's pass was the biggest play.

"That drive was the key and he (Haynie) had a great game," Frenship coach Bobby Davis said. "I told them before the drive that we have to come back and win it.

Lee sees Norman conquest

■ Rebels' running back rushes for 197 yards, four touchdowns in 49-7 rout of Coronado.

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

Midland Lee kept its regular season streak intact; Josh Norman began his assault on the Lee rushing record book; and the rebuilt Rebel defense technically hurled a shutout at Memorial Stadium Friday night with a 49-7 crushing of El Paso Coronado.

EP Coronado	7
Midland Lee	49

Lee has now not lost a regular season game in their last 19 outings, owning an 18-0-1 record over that span, covering parts of three seasons under head coach John Parchman.

And Norman — well, Norman was just Norman with 197 yards rushing and four touchdowns to begin his senior season. Norman now has 2,649 yards rushing in three seasons to move into second place on Lee's all-time rushing list, passing Jeff McGowan (2,529) and Walter Jones (2,605).

Norman still needs 1,377 yards to surpass Lee's all-time rushing leader Farris Strambler, who had 4,026 career yards rushing. That should easily come if Norman stays healthy since he had over 1,700 yards rushing last season.

"I guess my gimpy shoulder held up," Norman said after the game, taking a shot at a recent column item in the Reporter-Telegram. "It means a lot to me to get to number two, but I'm going to keep trying for number one.

"I'm happy we won the game, but I'm not really pleased with the way I played. We should have done better in the first half, but we came out and took care of business in the second half."

Lee held a meager 14-7 lead at the half after a second quarter showing that coach Parchman would probably like to put in his X-Files. If Lee fans could forget that 12-minute period, there are probably smiles today.

"Coronado used some defenses we hadn't seen with some eight and nine man fronts, and they came up with some big plays," Parchman said. "We made some good adjustments at the half and turned it around. We were bigger and stronger than Coronado and that wore on them there at the end. We still have a long way to go, but we'll take the win and move on. We were sloppy, but at least, it wasn't an effort problem."

Lee busted to a 14-0 lead through the early part of the second period on a touchdown by fullback Stacy Jones and another by Norman. Then, it appeared that the Lee headlights went out. The Rebels missed a couple of scoring opportunities and the T-Bird defense came up with a big play when they caught Lee quarterback Jeremy Deramus going back to pass, forcing a fumble which linebacker Joe Brilliant picked up, and he raced 26 yards for a touchdown. It was

Big Spring duo rips Monahans

By Lee Passmore
Sports Writer

BIG SPRING — The great experiment hatched by the coaching staff of the Big Spring football team yielded explosive results Friday night which left Monahans burned.

In an effort to give the offense more options, the Steers decided to pair workhorse Antwoyne Edwards in the backfield with speedy Tory Mitchell before the season started and committed themselves to running the Delaware Wing-T. After briefly stumbling at the beginning, Big Spring fully hit stride, as the pairing of Edwards and Mitchell worked almost as conceived on the drawing board to rout Monahans 24-2 in the season opener.

Edwards, the team's leading rusher for the last two seasons, turned in a typically stellar performance, rushing for

Buffs haunt former coach

By Tom Ruiz
MRT Correspondent

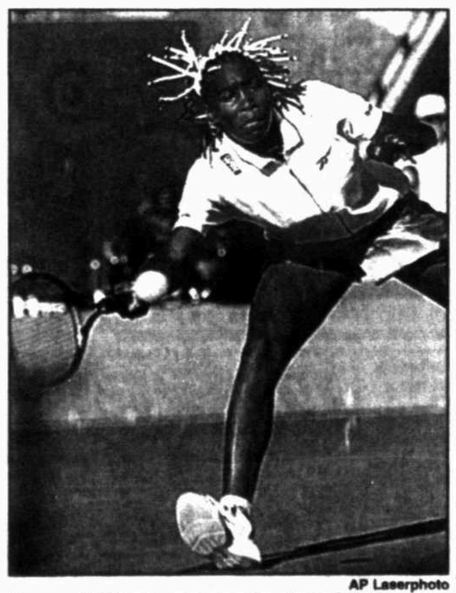

STANTON — The program that former Stanton coach Bill Grissom built came back to haunt him in the season opener as his Colorado City Wolves lost to his old team 25-7 here Friday night.

Those same seventh and eighth graders who entertained themselves on the sidelines by playing football during halftimes of games during Grissom's regime have been led to the next level by current coach Mark Cotton.

Cotton's Buffaloes rolled past the inexperienced Wolves by scoring twice in the second and fourth quarters. Cotton, who had questions about his running game, got them answered in a big way as Stanton piled up 231 yards on the ground.

"We ran the football really well," Cotton said. "But we didn't throw worth a darn."

Williams survives dogfight with Spirlea, moves on to face Hingis in final match

By Steve Wilstein
AP Tennis Writer

NEW YORK — Tennis found its Tiger Woods.

Venus Williams, no longer a curiosity or a teen pumped up by hype, emerged as a legitimate claimant to the future of women's tennis Friday when she advanced to the U.S. Open final and a showdown against Martina Hingis.

US OPEN
A USTA EVENT

No final in Grand Slam history has featured two players as young as the 17-year-old Williams and the 16-year-old Hingis, and their meeting Sunday could well presage the direction of the game for years to come.

Neither Hingis' No. 1 ranking, nor her triumphs at Wimbledon and the Australian Open are intimidating to Williams.

"I've never been the type of person who is scared," Williams said. "I can't let that hold me back. I won't. This is a chance of a lifetime, a tournament of a lifetime. I wouldn't be angry if I didn't win. But I'm not going to go out there and be afraid, because fear holds you back. I won't let it happen."

Beads clacking, arms flailing, legs splayed, the tall, gangly Williams became the first unseeded woman finalist in the Open era and the first to go so far in her debut since Pam Shriver in 1978.

In a match as brilliantly played as it was thrilling to watch, Williams showed guts, stamina and a creative flair to beat No. 11 Irina Spirlea 7-6 (7-5), 4-6, 7-6 (9-7). By comparison, Hingis' 6-2, 6-4 ouster of Lindsay Davenport was a boring warmup act.

Williams is still a raw talent, inventing her game as she goes along after being trained by her father, Richard, since birth to become a champion. While he's stayed away — he didn't even want her to play this tournament — she's been making history.

"I worked so hard for this all my life," Williams said. "I get to play on Day 14. Hey, Daddy, I don't have to come home now because I won."

Williams convinced her father to let her come four days before the tournament.

"I'm glad I'm here. He's glad," she said. "It's not like I'm going to say I was Andrews (1-0) took a 28-0 lead at the half over the hapless Tigers (0-1). Williams would score on runs of 7, 12 and 33 yards. Waylon Mayfield added an 81-yard interception return for a TD right before the half.

Sophomore Clint Smithson had 51 yards rushing and 38 on the ground for the Braves. Smithson added a 13-yard touchdown run. Quarterback Drew Rylander was 5-for-7 with 132 yards and one TD pass to Brandon Ramsey in the third quarter.

BALLINGER — The Greenwood Rangers took to the road for their season opener Friday night and despite 215 yards of total offense, lost to Ballinger, 26-3.

The Bearcats (1-0) had 322 yards of total offense in the game, 260 yards came courtesy of the Ballinger running game.

Greenwood struggled with the passing game as it went 1-for-10 with two interceptions. One of those interceptions was returned 52 yards for a touchdown by Ballinger's Aaron Workman. The only production Greenwood had was 210 yards on the ground. The only scoring came on a 34-yard field goal by Scott Reid.

Griffey stays in Maris chase

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The ball cracked loudly off the fat part of the bat and started on a long, high arc to left-center field. Two outfielders sprinted after it, and a rumble rose from the sparse crowd.

The clamor grew as the ball carried, but it soon turned to a groan as left fielder Matt Lawton caught up with the drive on the run just in front of the wall.

It was an unusual moment in the first inning at the Metrodome Thursday night, with the home fans disappointed that the visiting slugger had fallen short of a home run.

But it was no surprise, really. Just Ken Griffey Jr. giving another crowd another thrill. He did it four more times.

STANTON: Buffaloes roll

(From 1C)

While the Stanton passing game, led by Kyle Herm, has gained rave reviews state-wide, it was their running game that shined last night.

Herm only threw for seven yards but rushed for 82 yards while James Jenkins romped for 92 yards.

The Stanton defense was no chopped liver, either. It allowed the Wolves only 19 rushing yards, and 18 of those came in the second half. If not for Hill's 14 yards passing in the first half, the Buffaloes played almost a perfect half.

"Our young offensive line didn't identify very well tonight. There were five to six kids who have never played a varsity game up until tonight." Grissom said.

Grissom, however, admitted that this year's Buffaloes are an awsome bunch.

The Wolves' got a taste of how powerful Stanton is when the Buffs went on a 12-play, 63-yard scoring drive in the second quarter.

The key play in the drive came when Herm was surrounded by a pack of Wolves, but in Houdini fashion, he escaped what would've been a 12-yard loss and turned it into a 9-yard gain.

Eight plays later Herm scored Stanton's first score of 1997 on a two-yard sneak and a 7-0 lead at 11:55 of the quarter.

Then almost five minutes later, Herm scored from seven yards out.

Jenkins got into the act in the fourth quarter with twin touchdown runs of five yards.

The Buffaloes travel to Roscoe on Friday.

Toronto, Williams defeat Rangers, 5-1

TORONTO (AP) — Woody Williams' fastball was in the high 80s mph, at best. Against the hard-swinging Texas Rangers, it was more than enough.

"Tonight I had the best changeup I've had all season," Williams said. "When it's working that well, you can throw an 88 mph fastball when you're down in the count and get away with it."

Williams pitched 6 1-3 strong innings Thursday night and the Toronto Blue Jays snapped a season-high seven-game losing streak with a 5-1 victory over the Texas Rangers.

"It's the best I think I've thrown since the beginning of the season," said Williams (8-13). "It's frustrating not winning more, though. I feel my season is as much responsible for the way this team has played as anybody's."

Martin likes Richmond; Track doesn't like him

By Hank Kurz Jr.
AP Sports Writer

RICHMOND, Va. — In his pursuit of Jeff Gordon and his first career Winston Cup points title, Mark Martin is just trying to stay steady.

So it was fitting Friday when, at a track that has always given him a devil of a time, Martin finished 13th in first-round qualifying for the Exide Select Batteries 400 at Richmond International Raceway.

He'll start six rows behind Bill Elliott, who gained the top spot for the first time since 1995, and Kenny Irwin Jr., making his first Cup start.

Dale Earnhardt, back in the car after his mysterious and unexplained episodes of sleepiness and disorientation in the Southern 500 last Sunday, qualified 22nd with a lap of 123.570. He hasn't won in 50 races.

"I feel good," said Earnhardt, cleared to race after four days of testing showed nothing wrong. "As good as I feel today, last week is hard to explain. You always feel good when you find out how healthy you are."

For Martin, considering his history here, 13th is plenty healthy.

"We certainly didn't choke. We could have let it hang out a little bit more, but we don't like making mistakes right now," Martin said.

"We like to be very sure and very steady."

LEE: Norman runs wild

(From 1C)

the only score Coronado made all night with only 45 yards rushing and 83 passing.

"I guess you could say our offense scored all the points tonight," Parchman quipped.

Lee's Jose Primera saved Lee's bacon a couple of times in the first half, stopping two Coronado drives with fumble recoveries. Defensive end Ryan Wright also had a big night for the Rebel defense.

But as bad as the second quarter was, Norman put fears to rest by busting a 66-yard touchdown romp on the second play of the third period. Maybe it was the Star Wars program by the Lee band at the half that inspired Lee's rendition "Luke Skywalker" to open up the afterburners. Norman went on to score two more touchdowns before Parchman yanked him just shy of the 200-yard rushing mark.

And the reserves didn't disappoint with their chance on the field as senior Jason Hernandez romped 62 yards for a touchdown and sophomore Autry Pryor had a three-yard scoring run to close out the scoring. Lee kicker Chris Ulmo was good on five of six extra point tries and Deramus had a two-point conversion run.

Deramus completed six of 10 passes for 104 yards in his varsity debut at quarterback.

And now it's back on the road for the Rebels as they have mega trips to El Paso Franklin and Waco in the next two weeks. Maybe they can spread this explosion across the state.

BULLDOGS: Tigers rally

(From 1C)

"Overcoming and the win will help the club down the road. We worked hard during two-a-days and it paid off for them."

For the MHS defense, which at times looked as good as it has in a long time, that drive was exactly what it didn't need. Eric McCright and Melvin Jackson were especially good on the night with several tackles in the backfield and a safety between them. But the defense is making excuses, because it knew what needed to be done.

"No one was aggressive. No one had the killer instinct," McCright said. "Everybody seemed laid back. There are a lot of mistakes and they are all correctable."

For the game, both teams made mistakes that usually come out in a season opener.

The third quarter started with the continuation of some sloppy play that plagued parts of the whole game. Frenship fumbled the opening kickoff of the second half after leading11-8. MHS took over on the 15 and had a 12-yard run by Johnson and a three-yard run for paydirt from Ryan Stewart to take a 15-11 lead.

In the first quarter, Jackson threw an interception that bounced off the pads of Frenship's Tim Roten and in the arms of Ryan Kirby. Kirby tried to run the ball back but fumbled the ball after two yards. The ball was recovered by Midland High's Conley Gevecker.

In the second quarter, Midland High opened the scoring as Jackson connected with Lance King 10 yards down the field. The resulting 65-yard catch and run put MHS up 6-0. The Bulldogs, however, missed the extra point.

The Tigers really buried themselves in a hole on the following kickoff as they touched a kickoff going out of bounds at the Frenship four. On second down, Melvin Jackson shot through the defensive line and knocked Jonathan Shelby down at the one. Then, McCright followed Jackson's lead, swallowing up Haynie in the end zone for the safety and an 8-0 lead.

On the following free kick from the 20, MHS' return squad let the punt bounce, not realizing the ball was a free ball. Frenship recovered and put together a six-play drive capped by Shelby's 1-yard score.

On the next kickoff, Midland High's Weldon Cooks recovered the short kick, but he fumbled the ball right to Frenship. The Tigers closed the first-half scoring with a 25-yard field goal from Steven Todd.

But the game was close and the stats showed that. Midland High had 317 yards and Frenship had 320. MHS had 18 first downs and the Tigers had 21.

MHS' Davis lead the Bulldogs with 92 yards rushing while Frenship's Shelby equalled the 92 yards.

But in a close game, things have to be done to win. Plays have to be made and balls have to be caught. Jackson threw for 119 yards on 7-of-19 passing but had atleast seven passes dropped. That included three on the Bulldogs final drive. Also, MHS missed two extra points.

"We have to make the plays," Browning said. "The defense has to make the stop and the receivers have to make the catch. We have to execute."

Morris faces court fight

ROCKWALL (AP) — Texas prosecutors want results of a drug and alcohol test that Baltimore Ravens running back Byron "Bam" Morris failed, but they'll have to go to court to get them.

The National Football League has refused to voluntarily release the results to Rockwall County District Attorney Ray Sumrow. On Thursday he vowed to take legal action.

Consuming alcohol is a violation of the 10-year probated sentence Morris received in Rockwall County following his arrest on March 26 for possession of more than five pounds of marijuana, Sumrow said.

He could ask a judge to revoke the probation if it can be proved that Morris violated its terms. That could send Morris to prison for the entire 10-year term.

Jets favored to win for first time in years

Associated Press

It's going to be a strange feeling for New York Jets fans Sunday — cheering for a winning team and the betting favorite.

The Jets opened the Bill Parcells Era last week with a 41-3 trouncing of the Seattle Seahawks, and they are favored to beat the Buffalo Bills Sunday at home and double their 1996 victory total.

The Jets haven't been favored over Buffalo since Oct. 17, 1988, when they lost to the Bills 37-14. It also will break a string of 13 straight underdog appearances dating back to last September when the Jets were favored over the New York Giants, but lost 13-6.

It also will be the first time the Jets have faced a starting Buffalo quarterback other than Jim Kelly since 1985. Bills quarterback Todd Collins completed 25 of 39 passes for 299 yards and a touchdown, with two interceptions in a 34-13 loss to Minnesota last week. .

In other Sunday NFL games, Green Bay will be at Philadelphia, New England at Indianapolis, San Francisco at St. Louis, Washington at Pittsburgh, Tennessee at Miami, Denver at Seattle, Minnesota at Chicago, Tampa Bay at Detroit, the Giants at Jacksonville, Carolina at Atlanta, San Diego at New Orleans. Cincinnati at Baltimore and Dallas at Arizona.

Kansas City plays at Oakland Monday night.

STEERS: New offense works

(From 1C)

135 yards on 18 carries and scoring a touchdown. Mitchell, a converted wide receiver, was slower getting started but almost gave the Steers twin 100-yard performances, gaining 94 yards on nine carries and capping the scoring in the fourth quarter with a nifty 29-yard touchdown run around the left side.

The only danger the Steers seemed to be in all evening was self-created and that came at the beginning of the game when Mitchell fumbled and the Wolves recovered on the third play from scrimmage. However, that was about the only glaring mistake of the game for Big Spring.

"It started off a little shaky but we really picked it up," Big Spring coach Dwight Butler said. "I was really proud of our young people."

Indeed, several underclassmen came up big, and when their performances are mixed with established Big Spring seniors like Edwards and quarterback Gabe Mendoza, it's easy for Steer supporters to be optimistic. Mitchell and defensive linemen Dusty Clayton and Jason Brock, all juniors, came up big against Monahans as the Steers were dominant on both sides of the ball.

Theoretically, the defense pitched a shutout since the only Monahans points came when Edwards was swarmed under in the end zone early in the third quarter to make the score 10-2.

Monahans ran the Delaware Wing-T, just like the Steers but only not as well on this evening. It was a particularly miserable night for two-year starting quarterback Brandon Stephens, who was sacked five times.

"We're pretty quick (in the defensive line)," said Butler, who has proclaimed his team's lack of size as a weakness. "We just used what God blessed us with and that's a lot of speed."

That definitely showed up when Big Spring had the ball. The Steers' first three possessions were undistinguished, with Mitchell losing five yards on his first two carries. After taking over on the Monahans 48-yard-line late in the first quarter, though, Mitchell sprinted around the right side of the Wolves' defense for a 32-yard gain which seemed to awake the Steers. Edwards did the rest of the work from there, scoring on a seven-yard run three plays later to give Big Spring a 7-0 lead.

Edwards was the dominant back in the first half, gaining 82 yards, while Mitchell sparkled in the second half with 63 yards on only five carries.

"It's a different offense and there's more than just one guy to key on," said Edwards, who moved from tailback to fullback. "Everybody — when they get in a new position at this level — they want to be perfect. I told Tory not to worry and that he was going to be all right."

The closest Monahans came to threatening was after the safety in the third quarter, but following the free kick the Big Spring defense forced a three-and-out series. The Steers took over at their own 25 and drove down the field, capping a 75-yard, 10-play drive when Mendoza scrambled out of the pocket and hit John Lawdermilk for a 19-yard score to make it 17-2 on the first play of the fourth quarter. Mitchell's scoring run on the next series put the game away.

OPEN: Williams to meet Hingis in final

right or he was wrong."

Williams has been discovering herself more with each match at this Open, coming up with shots that had never been part of her repertoire — drops of incredible touch, volleys from every angle, running groundstrokes of balls that seem to be past her.

"I've learned a lot of things in this Open," Williams said. "I've learned to put more balls in play, not to go for winners so prematurely, not to rush things."

What the 6-foot-2 Williams never lacked, though, was a confidence that borders on cockiness, and she's shown that throughout the tournament.

It certainly appeared in a chest-bumping incident with Spirlea on a changeover in the second set, after Williams held serve to 4-3. Williams wore an intense expression as she bounced quickly toward her chair, and Spirlea had a sour, angry look as she came from the other direction more slowly. They collided at the net post.

"I was not going to move," said the No. 11 Spirlea, who has taken verbal swipes at several popular teens in the tournament in the past week. "She never tried to turn. I wanted to see if she would turn, and she didn't. She thinks she's the (expletive) Venus Williams."

Williams shrugged off the confrontation.

"I'm not having any injury from that bump," Williams said. "I thought we both weren't looking. I'm sorry she feels that way. It's not a big thing to me. No one said, 'Excuse me.'"

Spirlea tried all match to beat Williams with drop shots, and few worked. Williams had warned earlier in the tournament that it's not a good idea to hit drops against her.

"She must not have heard me say it, I guess," Williams said. "I mean, I'm going to get the drop shot, that's all there is to it. I love people that hit drop shots on me."

From her first match in Arthur Ashe Stadium on opening day, an appearance accorded her as a promising black player from the public parks of Compton, Calif., to the last points against Spirlea, Williams conducted herself with a blend of youthful joy and fearlessness.

Even facing double match point at 6-4 in the third-set tiebreaker, Williams didn't waver.

"I was thinking about going home," Williams said, "and I said, 'That's not the right thing to think, Venus, you've got to hold strong. Push those thoughts out of the way. It's not over. She has to win a point to win the match.' She had two match points. Somehow, she didn't win them. Somehow, I didn't let her win them."

She drilled a perfect running backhand that zipped by Spirlea and left the Romanian stunned. Williams then fended off another break when Spirlea netted a forehand. Two points later, with Spirlea serving, Williams lunged to whack a forehand return into the corner, and Spirlea could only dump it into the net to set up match point for Williams as the crowd roared.

When Spirlea, who had knocked out former champion Monica Seles, sailed a backhand wide to lose the final point, Williams leaped in the air and bounced up and down in disbelief. The championship her parents always told her she would one day win was now within her reach.

Hingis' romp over Davenport — the first of seven matches between them that didn't go three sets — lasted only 71 minutes and wasn't a work of art amid the tricky gusts of wind.

Hingis displayed all the shots that shaped her near-perfect year — deep groundstrokes, soft drops, angled scoops, acrobatic volleys.

"One side you're against the wind, one side you're with the wind. I never felt I was with the wind," Davenport said. "I always felt she was backing me up with some good shots. A lot of times when she's on the run, she hits very well because she has such loose hands, such soft hands."

Nothing fazed Hingis. Not the breezes, not the breaks of her serve in the first game of each set, and certainly not Davenport's timid attack.

No. 3 Vols, No. 5 'Noles invade Los Angeles

More Sports/4D

By Richard Rosenblatt
AP Football Writer

Peyton Manning makes a return visit to the Rose Bowl, Florida State coach Bobby Bowden brings his Seminoles to Los Angeles, and Bob Davie gets to stay at home for his Notre Dame coaching debut against Georgia Tech.

The 128th college football season moves into high gear Saturday, with 19 of the Top 25 teams in action, including three games matching ranked clubs.

Los Angeles becomes a football hotspot for a change when Manning leads No. 3 Tennessee (1-0) against UCLA (0-1). Manning, who had five TD passes in last week's 52-17 win over Texas Tech, must be thrilled with a chance to go against the Bruins' defense. In last week's 37-34 loss to Washington State, UCLA allowed Ryan Leaf to throw for 381 yards and three touchdowns.

"I'm excited about going back to play there," said Manning, who played one series at the Rose Bowl during a 25-23 loss to UCLA in 1994, It's a great stadium to play in, with lots of tradition and history."

UCLA freshman cornerback Damian Allen said: "If we play them the way we did Washington State, we'll get killed."

Elsewhere in the Top 25, it's Pittsburgh at No. 1 Penn State; Central Michigan at No. 2 Florida; No. 4 Washington at No. 19 Brigham Young; Indiana at No. 7 North Carolina; No. 24 Colorado State at No. 8 Colorado; Texas-El Paso at No. 10 LSU; Rutgers at No. 12 Texas; San Jose State at No. 17 Stanford; Appalachian State at No. 18 Clemson; Northern Iowa at No. 20 Iowa; No. 21 Kansas State at Northern Illinois; No. 21 Northwestern at Wake Forest, and Western Michigan at No. 25 Michigan State.

At Memorial Coliseum, the fifth-ranked Seminoles play No. 23 Southern California, whose starting quarterback, John Fox, has thrown two passes — one incomplete, the other an interception.

The Seminoles counter with Thad Busby, who passed for 1,866 yards and 16 TDs in '96.

"Thank goodness we have a veteran quarterback returning," Bowden said. "He's a good player and we're going to turn him loose. Last year, we had him under wraps some, because we felt like we had a very strong defense and kicking game. But this year, we're going to need more numbers from our quarterback."

Florida State is playing a Pac-10 team for the first time in 15 seasons. It's also the first time the Seminoles have played their season opener on the road since 1988.

Davie and the 11th-ranked Fighting Irish open the season at expanded and renovated Notre Dame Stadium against the Yellow Jackets, the first meeting between the teams since 1981.

"I don't mean to downplay it at all, but it's not a whole lot different than when I was the defensive coordinator," Davie said. "It's all about preparation. You don't all of a sudden on Monday or Tuesday before the first game start worrying about winning. You concentrate on the things you can control, and that's great preparation."

In addition to Davie, several other coaches are making their debuts Saturday, including Indiana's Cam Cameron, San Jose State's Dave Baldwin and Northern Iowa's Mike Dunbar.

University of Texas quarterback James Brown, left, takes the snap from center Ryan Fiebiger during last year's Notre Dame game. The Longhorns will host Rutgers in their season opener tonight in Austin.

UT's Brown brims with confidence for opener

By Chip Brown
AP Sports Writer

AUSTIN — Teammates say Texas quarterback James Brown is a changed man.

Maybe it was the "roll left," fourth-and-inches play he converted against Nebraska in last year's Big 12 championship. It enabled him to make good on a promise that Texas would win the game.

Or, maybe it's because he is in his fifth year.

Whatever the reason, teammates say Brown is more confident, more focused and more demanding of those around him.

Rutgers will be the first to see the new Brown when Texas opens its season Saturday night in Austin against the New Jersey team.

The Knights, who went 2-9 last year and are a five-touchdown underdog, lost their opener last week to Virginia Tech 59-19.

"James is a lot more confident," said senior center Ryan Fiebiger. "It's his fifth year, and he finally feels like it's his offense, and I really think it is. He's such a playmaker.

"Last year, he was more concerned about his shoulder and being able to perform. This year, he's a lot more upbeat and he's trying to encourage some younger players, and he's getting on some people for making mistakes."

Brown, who has thrown for a school-record 48 touchdowns and is considered one of the best quarterbacks in the nation, said, "I feel like I'm on top of my game, and I want to see what I can do out there."

Brown will be breaking in a new receiving corps after the departures of receivers Mike Adams and Matt Davis and All-American tight end Pat Fitzgerald.

"We are going to have two receivers and a tight end on the field who can catch the ball and make plays," Brown said. "I'm not worried about our receiver situation at all."

On defense, the Longhorns are attempting to replace a secondary that had all four starters go to the NFL.

Texas coach John Mackovic says the coverage schemes won't be loaded up.

"We are being very careful not to overburden them with everything we do, and yet we have to have a complete game plan," Mackovic said. "We can't have a game plan that's so simple that the opponents can pick it apart."

Saturday night will also feature the debut at tailback of Ricky Williams, who is making the move from fullback.

Rutgers' new coach, Terry Shea, knows what his outmanned team will be up against.

"Texas looks quick on tape. They might even be a shade faster than Virginia Tech. If we allow their running game to get out of control in the first half, we're in big trouble," he said.

Kansas coach hopes for improvement vs. TCU

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — If possible, Terry Allen would love to take advantage of one of the most trusted adages in football: The biggest improvement any team makes comes between the first and second games.

Does that mean Kansas, 1-0 after beating Alabama-Birmingham 24-0 last week, is in a good spot Saturday against a youth-laden TCU team seeing its first action?

Maybe. Maybe not.

"I think they kind of offset each othe ," said Allen, the Jayhawks' first-year head coach. "We have an advantage in that we have a game under our belt, and got rid of some of the first-game jitters with so many new people.

"But TCU has the tape. They can see what we did on offense and defense. I think it offsets."

TCU, a 52-17 loser to Kansas at home last year after committing six turnovers, returns 12 starters from a 4-7 campaign. Coach Pat Sullivan is counting on several newcomers, including seven junior college and 19 high school additions — something which could enhance the edge Kansas has for having already played.

Sullivan foresees a steady improvement, though.

"I can already see one problem we are going to have, but it's a good problem," Sullivan said. "That's deciding who's going to make our 60-man traveling squad for WAC games and who doesn't. That's going to be a lot harder than it used to be."

No doubt, the Horned Frogs have been paying close mind to the Jayhawks' Patrick Brown. In the opener, the senior linebacker returned two interceptions for touchdowns.

LSU won't overlook UTEP

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Texas-El Paso would seem like the perfect jump-start for LSU.

The Tigers are ranked No. 10, loaded with talent, picked to win the Southeastern Conference Western Division, and coming off a 10-2 season. What could they have to fear from UTEP — which is 7-31-1 in four years under coach Charlie Bailey?

Plenty. All the Tigers have to do is think back to last year's opener when they were heavily favored against Houston and had to fight back for a desperate 35-34 win.

"We didn't think that could happen to us, but you make a few mistakes against anyone and you're in trouble," said LSU guard Adam Perry. "We're going to see everyone's best effort and we have to be ready to give ours."

Coach Gerry DiNardo has been preaching one thing for weeks — UTEP. He insisted his players talk about no other game, wanting them concentrating on their first task, not the lofty expectations attached to the team.

"My observation is that we haven't gotten the big head," DiNardo said. "We haven't been reading the rankings."

UT officer who arrested 'Horn under review

AUSTIN (AP) — The University of Texas police department is reviewing an Internet web site that was maintained by one of its officers, who arrested Longhorns football star Ricky Williams earlier this week.

The Austin American-Statesman on Friday reported that officer Eric Poteet maintained the site, Eric's One-Stop Cop Shop, that included a page called "The Nightstalker Files."

Poteet's introduction to the page said, "The stories you are about to read are TRUE. No names have been changed to protect the innocent because there are not enough innocents to protect."

It included accounts of arrests and observations of the people Poteet came across while on the job. The officer was suspended by UT after the Monday arrest.

The web site, maintained on a UT computer system, was no longer on the Internet Friday. Poteet did not respond to a call or an electronic message from The Associated Press.

University officials who oversee the computer system where the web site was located said they did not remove it.

The Travis County Attorney's office on Wednesday dropped a misdemeanor charge against Williams that he failed to identify himself to Poteet during a routine traffic stop.

According to Poteet's arrest report, Williams was pulled over for running a stop sign. Williams did not have his driver's license. He told Poteet his name was Ricky Lynne Williams.

Poteet arrested Williams after finding his name is listed as Errick Lynne Williams on his car registration and driver's license.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 6, 1997

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Sept. 6, 1997:
Emphasize friendship and communications this year. Speak your mind, and be clear about expectations. Your ability to verbalize helps you get what you want. Work offers a plethora of changes, some of which you might need to adapt to. There is a possibility of going back to school to learn a new specialty. If you are single, you attract a lot of friends and potential lovers. In 1998, you will discover a special relationship. If attached, openness is instrumental to the quality of your relationship. Remember, there is a difference between honesty and openness. SCORPIO appreciates your mind.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ A friend upsets you and shakes up your day with a special partner. Stay mellow as you sort through what is going on. Relating on a one-to-one level is important for you and a loved one. Discussions need to revolve around goals. Tonight: Snuggle in.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ Others want to wear the pants; what difference does it make, anyway? A sudden change in plans gives you more insight into another's motives and ideas. Communications flourish when it comes to practical, daily issues. Tonight: Go along for the ride.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★ You were sure before, but news now tosses security to the wind. Be realistic about work and a personal matter. You might need to separate things, rather than letting all these different areas overlap. Check out a piece of property or investment. Tonight: Easy does it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ Let your more flirtatious side out. You add to the ease of communication that marks your relationship. But don't take any financial risks. A long-term partner surprises you with what he does. Maintain a sense of humor. Tonight: Be naughty and nice.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Take time to investigate a financial investment or a home improvement. You are stunned by a partner's response. Go with the spontaneous. Excellent communication marks a family discussion. Laughter happens naturally. Tonight: Be happy at home.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Reach out for others, and make what you want happen. You might do an abrupt about-face. Heed instincts with work and in your daily life. You might decide to start a new exercise plan or diet. Listen to another's suggestions and feedback. Tonight: Chat over dinner.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★ Financial well-being needs to be primary. You might want to spend or indulge. Think long-term. A child or loved one could coax you in the wrong direction. Instincts are right about money, if you pull back and don't react. Be careful with a flirtation. Tonight: Indulge yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ You are personality-plus. Use your high energy to complete a project at home. The unexpected occurs. Stay level with changes, and maintain a sense of humor. A friend whispers his opinions in your ear. Chatting and visiting make your day. Tonight: Ask for what you want.

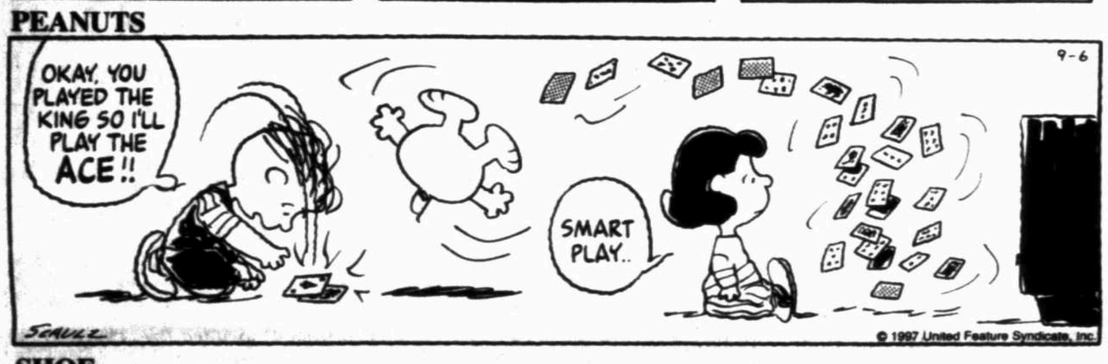

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★ Unexpected news might shock you. Be direct with someone whom you put on a pedestal and who might not understand where you are coming from. Mull over ideas. A misunderstanding is possible. Confirm meetings and plans. Surprises happen. Tonight: Heed instincts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Zero in on what is going on. Try to understand what is happening with a friend, who might act out. Detach, and get the whole picture. Others appreciate your suggestions. Listen, but don't necessarily offer any financial assistance. Tonight: The party is wherever you are.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★ You do the unexpected and might be jolted by news or another's demand. A partner shares his opinion about a work-related matter. You find out a lot about where he stands. Accept responsibilities; another will pitch in and support you. Tonight: Head out and about!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ Reach out for another, and touch base with loved ones who are at a distance. Popularity soars, and someone shares news. Be ready to take off at the drop of a hat. You are startled by what you hear. Rather than react, pull back to see the big picture. Tonight: Opt for new plans!

Willie Nelson announces Farm Aid concert to be held in Dallas this year

DALLAS — Willie Nelson is bringing this year's Farm Aid concert back to his home state.

Nelson announced Thursday that Farm Aid '97, a fund-raiser for family farms, will be held at Texas Stadium on Oct. 4. The home of the Dallas Cowboys will be donated for the day by team owner Jerry Jones.

Willie Nelson says he is glad to bring Farm Aid back to his home state.

"We're glad to bring Farm Aid back to Texas, my home, and an area with a proud tradition of hard-working men and women who struggle every day to make a living on the land," Nelson said.

The 12-hour concert will include performances by Nelson, John Mellencamp, Neil Young, John Fogerty, the Dave Matthews Band and the Allman Brothers Band. The Nashville Network will carry the show live.

Nine Farm Aid concerts, including two in Texas, have been held since it was founded by Nelson, Mellencamp and Young in 1985. It has given more than $13 million to farm groups and service agencies.

HILO, Hawaii — Police have recovered more than 1,900 tickets sold for a phony Spice Girls concert, a scam police say the promoter concocted to pay for a sex-change operation.

The concert featuring the British pop group was to have taken place July 29 on the island of Hawaii.

Akram Abdullah-Wasi, formerly known as John Lewis, allegedly told police he sold the tickets to raise money for the operation. He charged $40 for adults and $25 for students for the fake concert.

Police discovered the concert was phony after calling Spice Girls representatives. The bogus "Summer Blast 97," also was to feature the rap group Freak Nasty and local group Sunland.

Charges in the ticket scam are still pending, but Abdullah-Wasi was being held on unrelated theft and forgery charges.

LOS ANGELES — John Travolta has yet to win an Oscar, but he's about to be honored in a different way by Hollywood's elite.

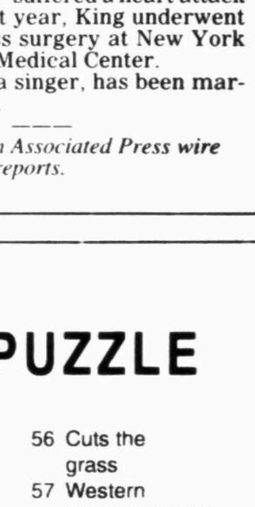

Travolta, nominated for Academy Awards for his roles in "Pulp Fiction" and "Saturday Night Fever," will be given the American Cinemateque Award at the Moving Picture Ball on Sept. 13.

Last year's winner was Tom Cruise. Other past winners include Rob Reiner, Eddie Murphy, Bette Midler, Robin Williams, Steven Spielberg, Ron Howard, Martin Scorsese, Sean Connery, Michael Douglas and Mel Gibson.

The black-tie event is the largest annual benefit for the American Cinemateque, a nonprofit film organization. Tickets begin at $400, and proceeds help fund its programs and exhibitions throughout the year.

MINNEAPOLIS — Sir John Gielgud's voice will play a starring role this Christmas.

Gielgud will narrate Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" at the Guthrie Theater this year, but he won't be there in person. A theater official recently traveled to London to record Gielgud's reading of the script.

Sir John Gielgud's voice will be used in 'A Christmas Carol.'

"His voice will marry beautifully with those of the actors on stage and is a perfect fit with the language of Charles Dickens," said Joe Dowling, Guthrie's artistic director. "It is a voice that will make a dramatic difference."

Gielgud, 93, who started as a Shakespearean actor in 1930, won an Oscar in 1981 for playing a butler in "Arthur."

The tape will play during this year's 42 performances of the play between Nov. 21 and Dec. 28.

LOS ANGELES — Larry King's seventh marriage began a day early.

King, 63, married Shawn Southwick on Friday, a day earlier than planned because he is scheduled to have an angioplasty Monday, said Maggie Simpson, King's publicist.

Simpson did not have details of the wedding. She said the newlyweds postponed the reception until mid-October.

Doctors expect King to make a full recovery from the angioplasty, a procedure in which a small balloon is inserted briefly into a blood vessel to clear a clog.

The Washington-based host of CNN's "Larry King Live" suffered a heart attack in 1987. Later that year, King underwent a coronary bypass surgery at New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center.

Southwick, 37, a singer, has been married twice before.

Arizona's Williams hopes for chance to beat 'Boys

DALLAS (AP) — Kevin Williams hopes the Arizona Cardinals will give him more chances to carry the ball against his old team, Dallas, and his old friend, Michael Irvin.

But it will take more than turning the Cowboys' former weapon against them now for the Cardinals to beat Dallas Sunday night. The Cowboys have beaten them 13 straight times and are coming off a 37-7 pounding of Pittsburgh.

That hasn't fazed Williams, picked up by the Cardinals as a free agent three days before training camp.

"I guess it's a natural reaction to be pumped to play your old team," Williams told The Arizona Republic. "It will be funny for me looking across the field at my buddies."

His best buddy, Irvin, caught seven passes for 153 yards and two touchdowns last weekend. But the Cardinals never threw to Williams in Cincinnati's 24-21 victory, Arizona's fifth consecutive opening loss.

The wide receiver hopes that changes Sunday for the home opener at Tempe. So do Arizona coach Vince Tobin and quarterback Kent Graham.

"I'd like to see him get his hands on the ball in our offense," said Tobin.

The 5-foot-9, 195-pound Williams was recruited as a speed receiver and return specialist after the Cardinals released Marcus Dowdell.

"I'm sure in the future he'll be a big part of our game plan like last year when Marcus Dowdell made big plays for us," Graham said.

The Cardinals have learned from their loss to the Bengals and Dallas' challenge will push Arizona to excel, Williams said.

"We're not that far away from putting it together," he said.

Cardinals receivers coach Vic Rapp said Williams helped the Cowboys win three Super Bowls and remembers what it takes.

But the Cardinals initially hedged. They were concerned about Williams' friendship with Irvin, whose off-the-field problems have been well-documented.

"It was guilt by association and I just think that's wrong," Williams said.

European committee nixes Martin's Ryder Cup appeal

By Ron Sirak
AP Golf Writer

The European Ryder Cup committee brushed aside Miguel Angel Martin's request to be reinstated to the team Friday and Martin said the matter now is in the hands of his lawyers.

"It's a tricky situation and my lawyers have told me not to say any more," Martin said from his home in Spain.

Martin, who has not played a competitive round since July 18 and had wrist surgery Aug. 5, was removed from the team Tuesday when he said he was not recovered enough to play 18 holes to prove his fitness.

His request that the committee wait until after the British Masters the week before the Ryder Cup to evaluate his condition was rejected Friday in a tersely worded statement.

"A letter from Miguel Angel Martin's solicitors has been received," European Ryder Cup spokesman Mitchell Platts said. "The Committee acknowledges this but will be making no further comment."

The timetable for Martin's legal challenge was not clear, but the Ryder Cup begins Sept. 26 in Spain. The European Ryder Cup committee and the PGA European Tour are based in England.

"We are informed it is very unlikely that an injunction (to stop the matches) would be successful," Ken Schofield, executive director of the PGA European Tour, said Thursday.

The position of the PGA of America and U.S. team captain Tom Kite has been to call the matter an internal situation for the European team. But Kite, speaking Friday at the Canadian Open in Montreal, made it clear he understood the difficulty of the situation.

"The decision has been made and now we'll see what happens. I feel sorry for him," Kite said about Martin. "I feel sorry for any player that gets hurt."

When asked if a player who has not competed in nearly two months and had surgery could be ready to play when the Ryder Cup starts in three weeks, Kite said, "Even tour people who are sympathetic with Miguel, well the reality is that you are trying to field the best team to win the Cup."

Martin, who was told by doctors not to even begin hitting balls until this weekend, earned the 10th and final qualifying spot on the European team. He was replaced by fellow Spaniard Jose Maria Olazabal, who was the next highest qualifier.

Martin has never played in the Ryder Cup while Olazabal is a veteran of four of the competitions. Martin, a 35-year-old who might never get another chance to play in the Cup, desperately wants to play particularly since the competition is being held in Spain for the first time.

He has accused team captain Seve Ballesteros, also a Spaniard, of wanting to replace him with Ballesteros' friend, Olazabal, all along.

But for now, Martin is letting his lawyers do the rest of the talking.

"It's in their hands," Martin said about the lawyers. "But what I will say is that I am looking forward to coming back to the tour very soon. I have to support the tour."

The British Masters begins Sept. 18, but Martin still has not hit any shots since his operation.

Mediate paces Canadian Open; Woods misses cut

Associated Press

MONTREAL — Rocco Mediate grabbed the midway lead in the Canadian Open on Friday and was upstaged by Tiger Woods, who missed the first cut of his pro career as he once again struggled on a course set up for a major championship.

Mediate, trying for his first victory since back surgery in 1994, was at 5-under-par 135 after 36 holes on a Royal Montreal Golf Club course tailored with the narrow fairways and deep rough of a U.S. Open course.

Phil Tataurangi was one stroke behind at 136 and PGA Championship winner Davis Love III was at 137.

Woods, who started his day with a triple bogey and ended it with three bogeys on the last four holes, shot a 76 and finished at 146, one stroke above the figure needed to qualify for the weekend rounds.

He had made the cut in all 25 PGA Tour events since turning pro, the 1996 British Open as an amateur and three international events going back to his missed cut in the 1996 Scottish Open, when he was still an amateur.

"It had to happen," the composed Woods said. "I can't play my entire career without missing a cut."

Mediate put up his leading score early in the day then sat back and watched as player after player fell victim to the swirling wind that plopped shots into the rough.

"These are definitely major championship conditions," Mediate said. "It is a national championship. I wore out all kinds of 3- and 4-irons," he said about the six par-4s that measured over 430 yards and played longer than that because of the wind.

Greg Norman, Payne Stewart, Fulton Allem and Stewart Cink were at 138.

First-round leader Robert Damron followed his 65 with a 75 and was at 140. And Jim Furyk, who shot a 66 on Thursday, shot an 80 to also miss the cut.

Woods started the day at 70 but made a seven on the first hole when he drove into the rough and then missed the green into the rough behind it. He chipped short, chipped long, chipped on and two-putted.

It was Woods 11th score of double bogey or higher in the U.S. Open, British Open, PGA Championship and Canadian Open.

Hall leads Bank One Classic

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Qualifier Walter Hall shot a 6-under-par 66 Friday to take a one-stroke lead after the first round of the Bank One Classic.

Hall, who turned 50 on June 12, had five birdies on the front nine and finished the day by making a 10-foot birdie putt on the par-5 18th at Kearney Hill Links. It is just his third Senior PGA Tour event and ninth overall involving senior players.

Montgomerie threatens walkout

CRANS-SUR-SIERRE, Switzerland — Scotland's Scott Henderson carded a 5-under-par 66 Friday and took the second-round lead in the European Masters, while Colin Montgomerie threatened to walk out of the tournament in protest of the state of the greens.

"Do you want the truth? If I didn't have a contract to be here I would have gone home as soon as I saw this," Montgomerie said, after a 72 put him at 137, nine shots behind Henderson's 128.

Montgomerie's anger wasn't tempered by a letter of apology from the president of the tournament organizing committee, who blamed the conditions of the greens on heavy snowfall during the winter followed by rain during the summer.

Diana, Rose of England,

you live within our hearts. Kindness, grace, & beauty, your lovely name imparts.
In your too brief life, you gave unselfishly... your time, your love, your care, your generosity.
In time of grief & mourning, your radiant face shines through. Though your life was troubled, you held steadfast & true.
To all that you believed in & there for all to see, in death as well as in life, you kept your dignity.
In the face of consternation, your character remained, untouched by those who harmed you, & wrongly sought to blame.
To your beloved sons, you left your legacy, to carry on your dreams, your charming spirit free.
God Bless You, lovely Princess. Heaven surely has a place, to comfort & console you in Angel's kind embrace.
Diana, Rose of England, the world will be grateful & adoring for all eternity.

AUTO ALBUM
1974 MUSTANG II

According to Jim Dunne, Popular Science magazine's Detroit Editor, the 1974 Mustang II was the a best news from Ford since the original Mustangs a decade earlier. The car was previewed in PS's June 1973 issue.

The original '65 (April 1964) Mustang was 181.6 inches long, but it grew. By 1973, the Mustang had become much heavier, and considerably longer (193.8 inches). For '74, everything was to be trimmed back, bringing the Mustang I I down to 175 inches overall length, with a much shortened 96.2-inch wheelbase— almost 13 inches less than in '73.

Hot V-8s were "out" in this new economy car. Some Pinto parts were used, but much of the Mustang II (even where it didn't show) was new. No longer a "muscle car," the new breed of Mustang for the mid-1970s depended on economy for its sales appeal in a time of bitter recession. (Financially, for many businesses, 1974 to 1976 was "the pitch)

A four-speed manual transmission was standard, with three-speed automatic optional. The gear ratio was 3.55 to 1 with either type.

The Hardtop and Ghia had the notchback body(as illustrated), with hatchback/fastback bodies on 2+2 and Mach I.

Motorland magazine praised the Mustang II for its ride and handling: much better than you'd expect in a subcompact size.

Road & Track magazine reported that as early as 1968, a woman at Ford Motor Company's stockholder's meeting asked Lee Iacocca (then president of FoMoCo) why the company was no longer building cars like her well-liked '65 Mustang. Iacocca took her seriously, and called for such a new model at a November 1969 management meeting. What was to become the Mustang II was soon planned and developed.

Because economy cars were gins at the time, first-year sales of the Mustang II were excellent! As the slogan said, it seemed to be "The Right Car at the Right Time!" But as other interesting small cars appeared on the scene a few months later, the Mustang II was no longer a novelty and sales declined.

The next big change was for 1979, when a new American-built Capri and a new Mustang was near-twins. The '79 Mustang was well-received, but it bore little resemblance to the original ponycar that had started it all!

Oldsmobile Bravada SUV wagon stocks luxe items of fine sedan

By Bob Plunkett
Special to Midland Reporter-Telegram

Oldsmobile's mid-size sport-utility wagon, Bravada, only comes one way... first-class.

Oldsmobile's wagon stocks so much standard gear that options have been limited to a towing package, engine block heater, CD deck and gold-trim exterior elements, as well as a new power sunroof.

OTSEGO LAKE, Mich. — A second generational design, which emerged in 1996, eliminated that truckish ride quality of the original Bravada because with the new edition Oldsmobile switched to a rigid chassis and installed compliant suspension elements.

In case you missed the fact that the Oldsmobile lineup blends a wagon into the mix of fancy sedans, understand that Bravada first appeared in 1991 as a plush sport-utility vehicle built atop the chassis of GM's compact-class pickup truck.

It featured a differential transfer case which put power to all wheels for superior pavement traction, yet the vehicle was never intended to compete as off-road warrior.

Bravada's original mission was to cruise wet or dry pavement routes in safe stance through any type of weather, and do so while enveloping passengers with deluxe comforts of a luxury vehicle.

Its shortcoming, in my opinion, was that the original Bravada rode rough like a truck and required too much effort to maneuver in traffic — not the comfort-oriented attributes usually associated with Oldsmobile's image.

Then came the new platform in 1995, first manifested with Chevrolet's lively Blazer and the GMC Jimmy. By the time Oldsmobile crafted a Bravada variation, it sported its own unique exterior trimmings, and a deluxe cabin with all seats covered in soft leather as standard issue.

Also, Bravada packed muscle under that sloped hood.

Its engine, an iron block 4.3-liter V6 with overhead valving and sequential central port injection, produces 190 hp at 4400 rpm and 250 lbs/ft of torque at 2800 rpm.

It mates to a 4-speed electronic automatic transmission that deletes all shifting hassles from the task of driving.

Bravada's muscle shows out best when climbing steep grades, like those one tester navigated in Michigan hills on a rugged gravel course near Traverse City. It zipped up slippery slopes as easily as if meandering down a dusty lane, but with traction applied evenly to all wheels.

On pavement, Bravada packs power in reserve to pass slower vehicles without fear of sagging — and if you pull a trailer, it can tow a load weighing up to 5,000 pounds.

It's this trailer-toting, slope-sucking, car-passing strength that nabbed my attention when testing the revamped Bravada, but what ultimately won my confidence came from its easy handling nature and that car-like ride quality.

Essence of Bravada's improvements may be traced to its foundation with the enhanced platform.

Reinforcing a boxed ladder-type chassis makes Bravada's platform more rigid so it resists twisting when in motion. This improves stability in turning and crossing road bumps.

Then add independent front suspension elements with upper and lower control arms and torsion and sway bars, a rigid rear axle outfitted with semi-elliptical leaf springs and stabilizer bar, plus De Carbone high-pressure gas shock absorbers at all four wheels for consistent damping, and the result becomes a luxurious ride quality that's smooth yet entirely predictable.

Another predictable mechanical element traces to Bravada's full-time 4x4 system, dubbed SmartTrak. Since it's always engaged, a driver never has to decide when to shift into 4-wheel traction — it's ready for assistance at any time.

SmartTrak combines full-time 4-wheel-drive with a Borg Warner transfer case, center differential, viscous limited-slip device, Eaton locking rear differential and Kelsey Hayes anti-lock brakes.

Bravada also stocks safety hardware, including integrated front and rear crash zones, daytime running lights and driver's-side airbag.

A disc brake at each wheel mark 1997 Bravadas, with the anti-lock system as another standard safety element.

The revised Bravada carves out generous interior space for riders.

Front passengers end up with ample head room, for instance, and at least three more inches of shoulder space over the former version. This ultimately translates to increased comfort in transit, particularly in the rear seat, where a mid-size wagon may sometimes seem confining.

Behind the 60/40-split fold-down rear seat, Bravada brings a cargo bay which expands to more than 74 cubic feet.

Another improvement in 1997 resulted in a one-piece liftgate for quick and easy access to the back bay.

Bravada's interior feels like the type you'd find in a a fine sedan, not some hulk

Driver and front passenger sit high, well above traffic, surrounded by fine appointments.

Interior elements use benchmarks borrowed from Oldsmobile's dramatic Aurora sedan, such as the form-fitting front bucket seats, canted toward luxury and comfort with lumbar and thigh support.

The list of stock features includes air conditioning and power steering, cruise control, power 6-way controls for driver's seat, overhead console with instruments (trip computer, compass, exterior temperature gauge, universal garage door opener), plus power windows and door locks, power mirrors, intermittent wipers, tilting steering wheel, a sound package for AM-FM stereo with cassette deck and power antenna, remote keyless entry, front tow hooks, top-mounted luggage rack and fog lamps.

Playing in the mud:
Automotive writer journeys off road

By Kenneth Chester, Jr.

Here I am negotiating a rather nasty stream bed after just descending a steep hill in a factory stock Jeep Cherokee. The deep mud is yet to come. (Photo by Sue Mead)

I normally spend most of my time test driving, writing and researching new cars and trucks. Recently, the Chrysler Corporation invited me to attend a Jeep Jamboree. Having never done any serious off roading in my life, the invitation grabbed my attention. I had a choice of attending one of four events: Arch Canyon, Utah; Palo Duro, Texas; Mount Pocano, Pennsylvania; and the First Rubicon Trail, California. The automaker was wise to include the degree of difficulty of the trails with each event; with a difficulty rating of one being very simple and ten being the most demanding. The Mount Pocano Jamboree had the lowest difficulty rating of the four events. Realizing that I did not have a clue of what to expect, Mount Pocano quickly became my choice to ease into this adventure.

A Unique Event

I should note here that the Jeep Jamboree is a unique event. It represents a loose association of local Jeep clubs, the factory, and the independent coordinator of the event, Jeep Jamboree USA, a division of Mark A Smith Off-Roading, Inc. of Georgetown, CA. The history of the Jamboree itself can be traced all the way back to the first one, then called Jeepers Jamboree, held in 1953 in California. The Jeep Jamboree is a weekend adventure designed exclusively for Jeep owners who wish to visit seldom-seen, hard to reach places—places that this type of vehicle was meant to go. This event is so big, that Jeep Jamboree USA publishes a annual guidebook. The 1997 book lists no less than thirty-four different Jamborees held all over the United States from March through October. In case you think that this is some fancy controlled media event, bear in mind that its designed for and open to all Jeep owners. The normal registration fees are $190 per adult, kids 7-14 $85 each, and kids 3-6 $55 each.

Off to the Pocanos!

As the day approached for my departure, I was uncertain as to what to bring and/or how to prepare. Should I invest in a sleeping bag and backpack like in my old Boy Scout days? (I didn't know if I would be sleeping out in the wild.) Some of my concerns were answered by the packet that arrived a few days prior to my departure. The rest of my concerns were wiped out by the time that I got to our staging area in Pennsylvania. I arrived at Allentown airport, where I was greeted by a Chrysler employee and teamed up with a new Jeep Wrangler and another Chrysler employee who rode with me to the Mount Airy Lodge. While I am sure that Michele Tinson, the employee who was my traveling companion to the Lodge, is very good at her job in safety/ environmental public relations, she didn't do so hot at navigating our way to Mount Pocano. (Sorry Michele, I know I promised that I wouldn't tell, but you didn't say it was off the record!) Despite our hapless fortune at directions and the wayward golf ball that attacked our vehicle just yards away from the Lodge, I did manage at least to get there. At the Mount Airy Lodge, I was assigned a big hotel room to myself (whew!.. the ground is too hard a place for me to sleep). After receiving the information packet on what was to occur over the next couple of days and a nice get acquainted dinner for the factory folks and the journalists, I looked forward to what my first day on the trail would bring.

Into the Woods

After breakfast, I picked up my bag lunch and headed to the back parking lot where our departure and the mandatory driver's meeting was to occur. What a sight! I saw all kinds of Jeeps — CJs, Wranglers, Scramblers, Cherokees, even a few pricey Grand Cherokees. I noted that the CJ series and Wrangler models dominated the Jeeps in attendance. Approximately 100 vehicles were accepted for this event, the first Jamboree to be held in the Pocanos while some 300 vehicles were turned away. I settled into one of the stock factory Wrangler units that Chrysler made available to the journalists. I was to drive the Switchback trail, one of the four that had been setup for this event. At the driver's meeting, I learned the right way to use a tow rope, (fabric ropes with loops at each end, not metal, since a broken rope can hurl that metal end like a projectile) and how to start and stop my vehicle with the key—using the clutch and the brake out on the trail was definitely not the right way to drive. Our guide remarked several times during our meeting that this trail will be very "technical". Technical meant that this was a tight course; slow going and full of obstacles set up to require you to think about how best to approach each and drive through successfully. We lined up and proceeded to drive for about two miles to the beginning of the course where trail helpers from the two local Jeep clubs: Jeeps R Us and the Blue Mountain Jeep Alliance staged each vehicle into the trail and spotted us at each obstacle to keep us from getting into big trouble. The neat thing that I noticed is the concern for safety and the respect for the outdoors that was consistently reinforced throughout the event. They even went as far as setting up "drive arounds" for owners who did not want to expose their vehicle to the risk associated with any obstacle.

Breaking Sterotypes

According to industry sources, only about five percent of sport utility owners actually use their vehicles for true off roading. A myth perpetuated in the media is that sport utility vehicles can be driven off-road without regard for obstacles, safety or weather. Nothing is farther from the truth. I did not drive faster than five miles an hour on any of the three trails that I experienced during my time in the Pocanos. Another stereotype is that such an event is a male dominated tromp through the woods. I met numerous women and children during this event; driving, spotting, staging and otherwise aiding in its success. During my trials and tribulations on the Switchback trail, I got to know the family in front of me during our trek through the woods. Steve, Deborah and Hilary Dagle of Selinsgrove, Pennsylvania drove their '94 Grand Cherokee on the trails. The family owns a jewelry store in Sunbury and was participating in their fourth Jamboree. Their nine year old daughter Hilary, became my friend, confidant and cheerleader during the course of this event. Hilary cheered her mom when Deb successfully negotiated some of the tougher obstacles, while making sure that I didn't bolt for the Lodge when the going got tough. A regular little trooper that Hilary. You got to wonder just how good she will be when she finally gets her drivers license.
