2 Inmates Dead...

Shootout Ends Prison Siege

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) —Two prisoners died today in a burst of gunfire at the city jail where inmates were holding three guards hostage, officials said. One of the guards was wounded slightly before the three-day siege ended.

Police sharpshooters with automatic weapons entered the second-floor lockup and began emptying the cells and taking the inmates to a nearby county jail. Three guns were recovered.

All three guards later emerged from the second-floor lockup. The wounded guard walked without assistance and the other two were unharmed.

Police Lt. J.O. Smith said seven or eight shots rang out at 5:32 a.m. in the lookup where 84 inmates had been holding the three guards hostage since Saturday morning.

He said some of the inmates apparently turned against the ringleaders of the siege and began firing. "The prisoners themselves have revolted against the leadership of their spokesmen," Smith said.

The dead prisoners were identified as Felix Lorenzo and Eugene Shaw. Lorrenzo, serving a 160-year term for a previous crime involving hostages, had been seen earlier wearing a guard uniform.

Guard William Nelton, 52, was grazed in the hand and leg. He was taken from the jail by ambulance. The other guards were identified as Dave Murray, 35, and Bob Hansen, 52.

The shooting ended the siege that began when an unknown number of inmates overpowered a guard, took his gun and used it to take the other two guards hostage in the lockup.

Sharpshooters were stationed on the roof of the three-story police building, situated about 4 miles from the Strip casinos.

Earlier in the day police had agreed to a list of 18 demands issued by the inmates dealing with jail conditions and prisoners' rights, but the prisoners refused to release their hostages.

Smith said "they didn't like all of them (the police responses)."

The points that were denied included demands for better representation by public defenders, improved facilities for Sunday religious services and radios in every cell.

A local attorney and a television newsman had served as mediators during negotiations with the inmates.

Inflation, Gas Trim Tourist Trade 15%

AUSTIN (AP)—Inflation, the gasoline crunch and the oil spill have teamed up to cut 15 percent of Texas' tourist income, according to Frank Hildebrand of the Texas Tourist Development Agency.

Hildebrand said Sunday on the radio panel program "Capitol Dateline" that all three will make big changes in travel patterns in Texas.

The first six seeks of summer were "severely depressed" by the gasoline shortages. Then as travel was beginning again in late July and August, the oil spill hit the lower Texas coast.

"I'm afraid, as the polution marches up the coast increasingly, the remnants of this summer travel season will be severely depressed ... and I'm afraid by the time this calendar year is over we'll see the travel industry down perhaps as much as 15 percent in gross receipts," Hildebrand said.

NEW FACES FOR A NEW TERM--A number of new faces were on hand this morning as Snyder Public School teachers and staff members reported to begin orientation for the new term. Elementary school pupils will register Tuesday from 8:30 to 4 p.m. at their respective school buildings. Teacher orientation and staff development activities will continue through Thursday, with pupils scheduled to report for classes on Tuesday, Sept. 4 (SDN Staff Photo)

Clements Restates Position

By The Associated Press

Texas Gov. Bill Clements restated his position opposing a lawsuit against Mexico Sunday night, bristling at suggestions that his family connection with SEDCO Inc. prompted his "stay cool" reaction to the oil spill.

Clements, appearing on Tom Snyder's "Prime Time Sunday" with Texas Attorney General Mark White, accused White of "beating his breast and acting lawyer-like" by suggesting that the state should sue Mexico as the result of oil spill damages.

The spill, which has poured thousands of gallons of oil into the Bay of Campeche since June 3, was termed the "worst oil spill disaster in history" by White, who criticized Clements for "giving away our trump card" by suggesting to Mexico that Texas is leaning away from a suit.

Piranha Fear Haunts Florida

MIAMI (AP)-Beneath the surface of Florida's inviting freshwater lakes and streams, authorities fear, may lurk a growing number of piranha - schools of which can strip a human to bone in minutes.

So far, only single specimens of the vicious South American carnivores have been reported in Florida waters. But those reports have prompted the state Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission to raise its guard.

"We know now that prianha could survive and reproduce in the wild in all of southern Florida as far north as Daytona," said Paul Shafland, director of the commission's non-native fish research laboratory in Boca Raton.

Compromise Reached

NEW YORK (AP)-State Department officials said today that the United States and the Soviet Union had reached a compromise in the stand-off over interviewing Russian ballerina Ludmilla Vlasova.

The announcement came from Washington as Miss Vlasova and 52 other Soviet citizens remained aboard an Aeroflot jetliner grounded at Kennedy International Airport.

According to the State Department representatives, Miss Vlasova will be interviewed by American officials at the airport aboard a mobile lounge - a kind of bus that ferries passengers from airport terminals to planes. Representatives of both governments will be present, they said.

Bus Drivers On Strike

By The Associated Press

More than 600,000 Southern Californians had to find a way to get around without buses today following the fourth strike in seven years in the area's only major public transportation system.

The Rapid Transit District walkout affecting four counties in the Los Angeles area came Sunday as two San Francisco transportation unions broke off contract negotiations.

In Cleveland, Ohio, employees of the Regional Transit Authority were back at work today, at least temporarily ending a wildcat walkout.

Stalling Death Sentence

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP)-Jesse Bishop was scheduled to die in the gas chamber today, but public defenders are stalling to give the confessed murderer more time to live.

Bishop had opposed appeals and other legal delays, calling them a "farce" that violated his rights and "prolonged the suffering" for him and his family.

But U.S. Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist on Saturday issued an indefinite stay of execution, and provided a series of questions to be answered by the attorney general's office and the public defenders who asked that the execution be stopped.

Directors Of Chamber Meet Tuesday

The Snyder Chamber of Commerce board of directors will meet at noon tomorrow at the Country Club, and one of the major items on the agenda is planning for a membership meeting set for tomorrow night.

Chamber members have been invited to a session set for 7 p.m. tomorrow in the fine arts auditorium at Western Texas College. Purpose of the meeting is to better acquaint members with the chamber's operation and to obtain input from the members in planning projects, etc.

The board also is scheduled to receive reports from the industrial team, from the membership committee, from the AJRA committee and from the July 4th committee.

Some new policies for the organization also may be submitted to the board for study and possible approval, said Bill Warner, chamber manager.

School Budget Hearing Tonight

Snyder School Trustees will meet at 8 p.m. tonight in the Snyder High School Student Center to conduct a public hearing on a proposed school budget for 1979-80.

The operating budget of $7,020,930 is expected to require local tax funds totalling $5,451,234 for operating the schools the coming year.

Ask Us

Q--I understand that a majority of the administrative personnel of Western Texas College made a trip to Ruidoso recently and would like to know if this was at college (taxpayers) expense.

A--Dr. Robert Clinton, WTC president, says that WTC administrators for the past five years have participated in a pre-school seminar the first week in August. Three of the meetings have been held in the Austin area and the last two in Ruidoso. During the three-day seminar they spend approximately eight hours in workshops and they have two afternoons of free time when they can plan the kind of recreational activity they wish. Faculty and personnel, while on college business, are allowed $12 a day for food, plus lodging. Any expenditures over this amount, plus whatever money they spend on recreation is an individual matter.

Tropical Storm Putting Damper On Oil Clean Up

MIAMI (AP)-Hurricane David was born today far out in the Atlantic Ocean as a tropical depression in the western Gulf of Mexico put a damper on efforts to clean up runaway crude oil, forecasters at the National Hurricane Center here said.

Conditions favored strengthening of both tropical systems, forecaster Gil Clark said. Hurricane David was located about 700 miles east of the LesserAntilles, while the depression was 150 miles south southeast of Brownsville, Texas.

The depression could become Tropical Storm Elena today if its winds reach 39 mph.

If David stays on course, Clark said, it was about 48 hours from the islands in the eastern Caribbean, plenty of time for it to strengthen or get much larger.

"It's moving right along, so it looks like it's almost certain to affect those islands," Clark said after issuing the 6 a.m. EDT advisories. "The strength may not change to much, but it does spread out over a larger area if it stays over water a long time."

The eye formed quickly, he explained.

"It's certainly turned into almost a classic pattern on satellite tonight," he said. "It's probably one of the most distinct eyes I've seen out in that area since satellites have come out."

Reconnaissance planes would fly into both systems later today, Clark said.

At 6 a.m., David was about 2,200 miles southeast of Miami - near latitude 11.88 north, longitude 49.0 west - moving west at about 15 mph, he said. Its highest sustained winds were 75 mph and gale-force winds extended 125 miles north of the center and 50 miles to the south, he added.

A tropical storm becomes a hurricane when sustained winds reach 74 mph.

The depression's highest sustained winds were 35 mph east of the center, while winds along the northeast Mexican and southern Texan coasts were lighter.

It was moving almost due north at less than 10 mph, Clark said. He advised south Texans to be ready to seek shelter, should gale warnings be posted later in the day as it neared Texas. Small craft south of Port O'Connor should stay in port, he said.

He said there was no way to predict the depression's possible effect on the runaway Mexican crude oil that has been threatening that coastline.

"It could affect the oil spill, but there's no way to say, because we've never had anything like this before," Clark said of the thousands of gallons of oil that have spewed into the Gulf since the well burst June 3.

Texas Register Subscription Rises

AUSTIN (AP)—Secretary of State George Strake has raised the subscription price of the Texas Register from $25 to $60 a year for most subscribers.

State government units and non-profit schools and libraries can get the Register for $40 a year.

The Register, published by the secretary of state, contains notices of state board and commission meetings, abstracts of attorney general's opinions, texts of new state agency rules, executive orders of the governor and similar notices.

New subscription rates take effect Sept. 7.

Special Session Set By Council

The Snyder City Council has scheduled a special session for 6:30 p.m. today at the city hall to consider several items involved in closing out the fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30.

One is the 1979-80 city budget, which was approved on first reading at the Aug. 6 meeting of the council. The public hearing was held on the budget at the same time it was presented for approval on first reading, but it still must have final approval and the tax rate must be set.

The council will get a report on the status of a landfill permit which is pending in Austin, and on the status of the capital improvements program.

Another item on the agenda for the special session is the city's participation in funding of the Senior Citizen Center and the Retired Senior Volunteer Program.

The city administration is in the midst of a change, with George Patterson leaving at the end of the week to become city manager at Highland Park and John Gayle of Tulia coming here to take over as city manager effective Sept. 1.

County Holds Budget Session

A hearing on the proposed budget for 1979 topped the agenda at today's meeting of Scurry County commissioners, but there had been no public response during the first hour of the session.

The general fund budget totals $2,185,043, and the hospital operating budget, the hospital building fund and road and bridge fund run the over-all total to $8,942,049, which represents a decrease from $10,172,304 from last year, due largely from lower requirements this year for the hospital construction project.

Commissioners were drafting a letter to go out over the signature of County Judge Preston Wilson in response to an inquiry from the Southwest Voter Registration Education Project, with headquarters in San Antonio. It sought information on precinct alignments and any plans for adjusting the lines to com-

Mondale Tells China...

Trade Pact Due Before 1980

PEKING (AP)-Vice President Walter Mondale told the Chinese people today that the Sino-American trade pact will be sent to Congress for ratification before the end of the year and said the United States is prepared to arrange a $2 billion, five-year credit line for China.

He also promised the administration will seek congressional authority to encourage American-businesses to invest in China "by providing guarantees and insurance" and said he would sign an agreement Tuesday pledging U.S. aid in developing hydroelectric power plants in China.

"We also stand ready to work with the Chinese government to reach textile, maritime and civil aviation agreements in the shortest possible time," the vice president said.

Mondale spoke to some 600 teachers at Peking University. The speech was to be televised nationally tonight - China has about a million TV sets for its 900 million people - and broadcast in part by radio this evening.

It was the first such nationwide platform provided for an American leader.

Mondale said the United States wants to broaden and deepen its relations with China "out of the same combination of principle and self-interest that is the engine of mature relations among all modern states."

"What we accomplish today lays the groundwork for the decade ahead," he continued.

"The 1980s can find us working together - and working with other nations - to meet world problems. Enriching the global economy, containing international conflicts, protecting the independence of nations these goals must be pursued from the perspective of our bilateral relationship. The deeper that relationship, the more successful that worldwide pursuit will be."

Auto Theft Ring Broken In Houston

HOUSTON (AP)—Police reported Thursday they have recovered 42 vehicles and arrested four men in breaking up a major auto theft operation.

Lt. Bill Bradley said at least 30 additional trucks, cars, wreckers and motor homes probably will be recovered.

Three men were charged with auto theft and the fourth was charged with theft of property over $10,000.

Bradley said the operation involved purchase of wrecked vehicles and taking the identification numbers and license plates and placing them on stolen vehicles. Through the use of faked titles, he said, the stolen cars were then sold.

old foes sparring

Muhammad Ali and Smokin' Joe Frazier put on a better show in their pre-fight posturing.

The Soviets and the Red Chinese are grimacing again at each other and not many are laughing. The old antogonists have been swapping verbal thunderbolts following an armed clash over their mutually extended border.

It's been a year since the last charges and countercharges took place between the countries but the uneasiness and the mistrust have always been there.

China's version is that Russian frontier guards lowered the hammer on a Chinese group innocently inspecting sheep pastures where Sinkiang province meets Soviet Kazakhstan in a remote part of Asia. Peking insists that one of their kind suffered mortal wounds. In addition, a veterinarian was hurt by gunfire.

Moscow doesn't deny the casualty count but told the story a little differently. Its account had a brave Russian group intercepting a Chinese patrol that had actually penetrated a half mile inside Soviet territory.

Either way, the incident likely would have been restricted to local accounts but for the fact that the propaganda ministries got excited and went to work.

Neither the Chinese nor the Muscovites, however, are ones to make a big flap over very little for no reason at all. It does not take a true student of international politics to suggest that what is involved here is jockeying for position preliminary to upcoming talks on improving Sino-Soviet relations, for which there is plenty of room.

Moscow has been pressuring for a "serious and positive Soviet-Chinese diâlogue," in the words of a recent officially inspired Pravda commentary on the subject, for a number of obvious reasons. One would include countering the ongoing Chinese rapproachment with the West and easing the potential military threat to its exposed Siberian flank.

Peking's agreement to the bilateral talks, which may or may not get under way this summer, was accompanied by a demand that the Soviets cease aiding their Vietnamese allies, a condition the Soviets must find impossible to grant and difficult to get around.

Now comes the border clash, first reported by the Chinese in a sharply worded protest. Moscow, in a delayed and muted response, gives every indication of preferring to play it down.

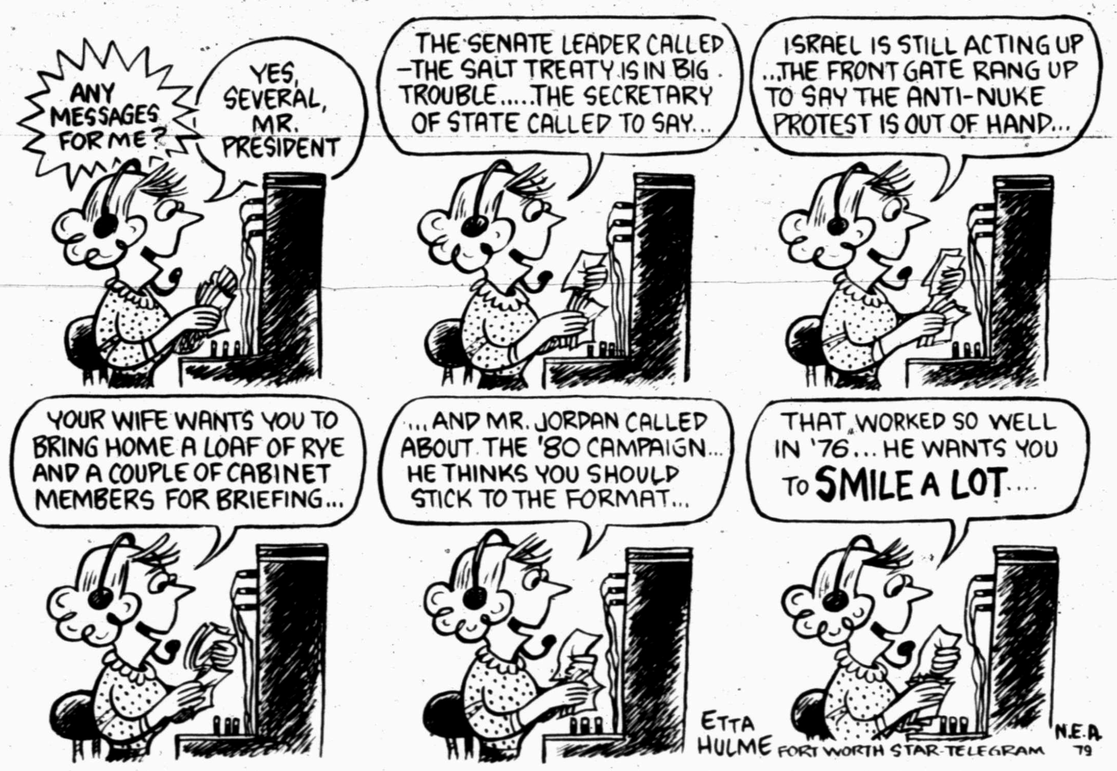

The real issue between the two leading advocates of the socialistic state is not, of course, sheep pastures or aid to allies or even ideological differences between competing schools of communism.

It is territory - Adolph Hilter used to call it 'living space' - the hundreds of thousands of once-Chinese square miles absorbed by the empire-building czars during the last century. Peking, taking a totally nationalistic and non-ideological position on the issue, wants the territorial question reopened. Moscow refuses to discuss it.

In this situation, silence is not golden but a guarantee of continuing friction.

It takes two to make a dialogue, as Ali and Frazier will tell you.

What Sino-Soviet relations at the present demonstrate is that it is a lot easier to start a fight than an honest discussion.

commentary

donald f. graff

War, as Karl von Clausewitz observed more than a century ago, is a continuation of politics by other means.

He might have added a footnote to that, to the effect that much the same goes to diplomacy, only it is politics played by a different set of rules. Tactics and ends may be the same - wheeling and dealing in hopes of out-maneuvering the other players - but all done discreetly. Appearance, if not everything, is still a good part of the game. Delivering a low blow or playing outside the rules is not to be shrugged off with a "Well, that's diplomacy."

Most of Andrew Young's predecessors at the United Nations understood this thoroughly. They may not have much cared for it, those that had been successful politicians on the home front, but they understood.

And for a politician, the leadership of the U.S. delegation could be a particularly trying experience. For all the glamor and prestige of the position, it has been essentially that of an errand boy for Washington.

In the early days, this did not much matter, except to occupants of the ambassadorship who craved a policymaking role. U.N. policy for the United States was essentially a matter of lining up a gaggle of allies behind Washington's position on an issue and doing a little horsetrading with the other bloc leader, the Soviet Union. Delegations not committed to either camp did not much matter.

The quintessential ambassador of this period, who also held the post the longest, was Henry Cabot Lodge. He shone in discreet dealings from power, playing out scripts written in Washington and never publicly upstaging another diplomat in a way that might lead to later friction. The Berlin blockade and airlift impasse was settled in a kitchen conversation over coffee with his then Soviet counter part.

A big man with ideas, principles and a public standing of his own - an Adlai Stevenson, Arthur Goldberg or Daniel Moynihan - usually has been uncomfortable in the post. And usually does not remain long.

Andrew Young, an all-pro politician before he was tapped by James Earl Carter to lead Washington's team in the glass house on the East River, also understands. Which makes his departure particularly ironic because it was politics that did him in. Politics of both the international and domestic varieties.

By the time he arrived in the United Nations, the good old days - if that's what they were - were long gone. The automatic U.S. majorities were no more and the so-called uncommitted nations accounted for a great deal. They held if not the balance of power, at least that of majority votes.

Young dealt with this situation skillfully and, as we have been so fullsomely informed in recent days made his greatest contribution in developing a new and potentially constructive American relationship with third world countries that had long distrusted it.

But the volatile politics of the Mideast are another matter. And there the reaction to his initiative, whether it was constructive but misunderstood or a mistake from the start, forced the president to let him go.

If Young's departure is a victory for longstanding critics at home, it is a Pyrrhic once because the circumstances have strewn politicial scenes both at home and internationally with wreckage. The Israelis may or may not have actively contributed to his removal, but in any case the price for them may in the end by high.

With Young's departure, there is at least a temporary end to maneuverings through the U.N. to get the Palestinans to accept Israel's existence. The P.L.O. is likely to pull back its feelers to Western governments, ending what slight prospects there might have been of participation in settlement negotiations. This may be what Jerusalem wants - now. But indefinitely? Neither the Palestinians nor the P.L.O. show any signs of vanishing and a peace cannot be made that ignores them.

It now appears very likely that there will be a U.N. showdown on Palestinian rights, a confrontation Young sought to avoid.

And while Jerusalem has won a public renewal of Washington's pledge not to deal directly with the P.L.O., public attention called to this understanding may lead to public resentment. The reaffirmation under duress of the Young affair, may have hastened and made easier what Israel most fears - a reversal of U.S. policy on dealing with the P.L.O.

For Jerusalem, that would be a diplomatic setback in the war agaisnt Palestinian acceptance not worth the winning of this political battle.

at wits end

I don't know what happens to people who wear white suits, white dresses or white shoes after Labor Day.

I personally am too cowardly to try it, but I suspect the "fate factor" is akin to going on a vacation in old underwear, facing the back of the elevator, or removing the label on a pillow under penalty of law.

My only experience is a friend who once wore white on Mother's Day. It was a T.S. situation (Too Soon). There was an unseasonal snow. A dog threw up on her in church. And three pigeons from the air mistook her for a capitol dome. She never defied the calendar again.

It takes a certain personality to wear white all year long. It never bothered Mark Twain, who said, "At age 71, the continued sight of dark clothing has a depressing effect on me." It didn't bother F. Scott Fitzgerald. It doesn't bother Steve Martin, and it certainly didn't bother Carole Lombard or Marlene Dietrich. (But then Carole and Marlene never slipped into a white terrycloth robe for a nap one afternoon and awoke to find three kids showing a home movie on their backside.)

All I know is I'm tickled to death the "white season" is a short one, running those 14 pale weeks between Memorial Day and Labor Day.

I have never worn anything white that doesn't wrinkle when exposed to air. There should be labels on white dresses that read, "CAUTION: This dress does not sit down. Please wear erect at all times." You doubt it? How come you never see a bride sitting down?

No one has ever been able to explain the spot mystique. Wearing white clothing is like wearing a dinner napkin. You could be driving a car minding your own business. When you emerge, there will be a grass stain on your jacket. Surgical nurses gave up white when they were unable to explain wine spots on them. I daresay if anyone in this country was really serious about finding an oil vein, they would do well to send out 5,000 women in the field wearing white shoes.

According to my calendar, I have seven more days in which to have dogs jump up on me, tomatoes squirt from my sandwich, colas spill over on me, mud to adhere and harden, coffee cups to leak, sticky fingers to grab, lipstick to fall, and pens to leak.

I feel like Mark Twain ... the continued sight of dark clothing is depressing . . . especially when it's white.

NEW YORK (AP)—Suppose for a moment that you're a wealthy parent of the three grown children.

Two have succeeded in their chosen businesses, but the third is in trouble. He made out all right for a while, but after a string of bad luck and mistakes, his affairs are a tangled mess.

He comes to you with a desparate plea. If you help him out, he says he has every hope of making it through the present crisis and getting back on his feet financially. If you don't, he'll probably go broke.

No handout, you decide immediately. It would be against all your principles, and might only postpone his day of reckoning.

But beyond that, your choices get more difficult. The child has a large family of his own, all of whom would suffer considerably from his financial failure. And in spite of your firm convictions about what is right, you're not very happy with the thought of standing idly by while it happens.

At that point, you start to consider another alternative - co-signing his note to help him borrow the money he needs.

That, of course, is the situation confronting the federal government right now as it awaits a formal proposal from Chrysler Corp. for loan guarantees to help it solve its considerable problems.

As President Carter told a town meeting in Burlington, Iowa, last week, "We are approaching the Chrysler question very cautiously."

Carter indicated he might support a loan-guarantee plan, provided that there was "a shared responsibility between the employees and employers of Chrysler, a heavy dependence on the private enterprise system, a minimum involvement of the federal government, and a maximum security for any loans the federal government guarantees."

The company, for its part, says it isn't asking for a "hand out."

"We're asking the government to help us offset the heavy cost of regulation," it said in a newspaper advertisement last week.

Would a federal loan guarantee, by itself, mean an end to Chrysler's problems? "No," says Ronald Glantz, a leading auto-industry analyst at the brokerage firm of Paine Webber Mitchell Hutchins.

Glantz pointed out that it is not just costly environment and safety regulations imposed by the government, but also competition from imports that has put pressure on auto industry profits.

In addition, he said, Chrysler is faced in the marketplace with the special problems created by its past errors and its size, which leaves it without the "economies of scale" that the two larger members of the "Big Three" enjoy.

The variables are so many in this complicated situation that guessing its outcome is a hazardous task. But if Chrysler does make it, Glantz ventured, chances are it will be as a smaller, reorganized concern.

Oswald: "Suit preference signals are one of the most important weapons defenders use."

Alan: "They help resolve a guess into a sure thing."

Oswald: "Whenever you're giving your parter a ruff, you should tell your partner how to get back to your hand if you have a re-entry."

Alan: "If you lead a low card for him to ruff, you're asking him to return the lowest of the suits that you might have a re-entry in. A high card would ask for the highest suit."

Oswald: "It was routine for East to win the spade lead and return a spade. What was not routine was to indicate that his only re-entry was in trump."

Alan: "East carefully led the three of spades! West ruffed the spade return. He knew his partner did not want a diamond return, and how could he want a club return when dummy had the ace singleton?"

Oswald: "East's suit preference signal for a club return was so incongruous with dummy's club holding that West realized East's unusual play asked for an unusual return."

Alan: "West returned a trump and East won with his singleton ace. He then led another spade to set the contract."

Cary Grant Looks Back

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actor Cary Grant, in a rare public appearance, looked back on the Golden Era of Hollywood when "there were lions" running the movie industry.

Grant, 75, on Thursday attended the presentation of the Earl Carroll Wall of Fame to the Society for the Preservation of Variety Arts. The concrete wall, covered with celebrities' signatures, used to be the Sunset Boulevard facade of the Earl Carroll's Vanities nightclub in Hollywood, now the Aquarius Theater.

Grant autographed the wall in the 1940s, but somebody stole the signature. He signed it again Thursday, his signature joining those of Greer Garson, Jack Benny, George Burns, Gracie Allen, Dick Powell and Cecil B. DeMille.

Beef Change Of Pace

"Different approach" is a common term these days, and no wonder. It's fun to have a change. That's true for cooks and diners, too.

Even a dish as traditional as stew can be altered for a new look and taste. Try putting the beef cubes on skewers for a novel and satisfying entree, suggests Reba Staggs, home economics director for the National Livestock and Meat Board.

Zippy Beef Cubes

1½ pound boneless beef, cut in 1-inch cubes
24 one-inch green pepper squares
2 teaspoons salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons lard or drippings
½ cup water
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
½ cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup brown sugar
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1 garlic clove, minced
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Thread 3 beef cubes and 2 green pepper squares, alternately, on each of 12 5-inch wooden skewers, beginning each with a beef cube. Brown in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Season with 1 teaspoon salt and pepper. Cover tightly and cook slowly on range top or in oven (325 degrees F.) 1 hour. Combine water, tomato sauce, green pepper, brown sugar, Worcestershire sauce, mustard, remaining teaspoon salt, garlic and lemon juice. Pour sauce over meat. Cover tightly and continue cooking 1 hour or until meat is tender. Serve kabobs with zippy sauce on rice. 6 servings.

Six ingredients make six sandwiches in a hurry! This one is different, too, because it uses dried beef from a jar or package with canned soup, cheese and buns, points out Reba Staggs, home economist with the National Livestock and Meat Board.

Dried Beef-Cheese Toastwiches

1 jar or package (4 to 5 oz.) dried beef
1 can (10½-oz.) condensed cream of mushroom soup
½ clove garlic, minced
1-8 teaspoon pepper
¼ pound Cheddar cheese, grated
3 buns, split and toasted
Butter or margarine

Shred dried beef. Heat soup with garlic and add pepper, cheese and dried beef. Cook slowly until cheese is melted. Serve on toasted bun halves which have been spread with butter or margarine. 6 servings.

Palette Club Sets Meeting

The Snyder Palette Club has scheduled its first meeting Thursday at 9 a.m. at the National Guard Armory.

Myrtle Joiner, president, urges all members to attend this business meeting. The club's yearbooks will be issued to members.

To help avoid overeating, use a smaller plate than usual and take smaller bites, suggests a foods and nutrition specialist.

Also chew food thoroughly before swallowing it.

Governor-For-A-Day...

Texas Tradition Hard-To-Explain

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP)—One of the hard-to-explain things about state government is the traditional governor-for-a-day celebration.

Most taxpayers can't see the need for it, but state senators seem to think they can't do without it.

Every time the Senate begins a legislative session or ends one, a new Senate president pro tempore, or assistant presiding officer, is "elected" for the following period. Actually there is very little election, since the senator is chosen on seniority of service. If two or three senators have the same amount of seniority there usually is a coin toss - or the honor goes to the senator who has to run for re-electon first.

The president pro tempore ranks immediately behind the lieutenant governor in the order of succession to the governorship if a chief executive should die or become unable to serve.

The main honor given the chosen one is the "governor-for-a-day" celebration staged by his supporters and lobbyists during his or her tenure.

On that particular day - when both the governor and lieutenant governor or supposedly out of the state - the president pro tempore is honored as Texas' governor with all its privileges and ceremony, including a day's pay as governor.

Actually, the real governor or lieutenant governor is usually in hiding at some country retreat, ready to rush to Austin in case a real emergency occurs.

In the past, some elected governors have had such little faith in governors-for-day that they locked their private offices and refused to let them inside. Others have carefully locked up all important papers and instructed employees of the governor's office to take orders from no one.

But the brief day of simulated power and glory lives on.

The latest all-day celebration was that for Sen. Bill Meier, D-Euless, whose chief claim to fame is that he holds the world's filibuster record of 43 hours.

Bands and choral groups from the University of Texas, Tarrant County Junior College and Fort Worth high schools furnished music. The governor-for-a-day marched to his swearing-in ceremony beneath the drawn sabers of the Ross Volunteers military unit at Texas A&M University. After Texas Supreme Court Justice Joe Greenhill administered the oath, a unit of the National Guard fired a 19-gun salute from cannon on the Capitol lawn.

There was a cake and punch reception in the governor's reception room, then a barbecue luncheon on the Capitol lawn. Meier's office said 1,100 tickets were wold at $10 each.

The current Senate pro tempore is Sen. Bill Braecklein, D-Dallas, whose governor-for-a-day celebration will be held in November.

Actually, Bracklein missed a good chance to be a real governor-for-a-day. Last weekend, Gov. Bill Clements was in New Mexico and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby was in Wyoming. However, Braecklein was also out of the state, in Alaska.

As a result, Speaker Bill Clayton, fourth in line of succession, served as governor, the first time a speaker has served since 1959.

The going rate for governor-for-a-day contributions is about $200 per lobbyist, according to a prominent Austin lobbyist. The amount of money raised from local supporters depends on the strength of the senator's campaign organization.

"Some of these senators take home a pretty nice check for the next campaign," said the lobbyist.

There have been some memorable governor-for-a-day celebrations in the past.

Sen. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso, was sworn in twice and celebrated twice - in Austin and El Paso. He was the first person with a Spanish surname to serve as governor of Texas - even a ceremonial one - since 1835.

Dallas Sen. Ike Harris served as governor-for-a-day in 1973, the first GOP governor of Texas since Reconstruction days. Sen. Betty Andujar, R-Fort Worth, was the first Republican woman governor-for-a-dav.

When Sen. Wayne Connally, brother to the former governor and present aspirant for the GOP presidential nomination, was sworn in in 1972, he spent the rest of his speech urging Texans to vote for Richard Nixon.

Austin oldtimers still recall the governor-for-a-day celebration of former Sen. Culp Kruegerin 1962. State government was moved to El Campo, his home town, for three days with various state agencies setting up office in tents. There also was an all-nations festival with Danish, Swedish and Mexican dancing and eats.

Moutainside Home Invaded By Black Bugs

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) —It still smells like dead fish at Devon Breitenbeker's mountain farmhouse, where members of his family spent six weeks fighting a mysterious invasion of billions of black bugs.

And Lisa Breitenbeker, 18, says experts tell them the pesty but harmless insects may be back in even larger numbers next summer, like a black tide inching down the mountainside to her home 50 miles north of Salt Lake City.

Early on the morning of July 7, the bugs began swarming around and through the Breitenbekers' home in what appeared to be an isolated phenomenon.

It was several days before the bugs were identified as bristletails, a half-inch-long relative of the silverfish. And it was six weeks before they were wiped out.

"At first you didn't want to go out of the house," Miss Breitenbeker said Sunday in a telephone interview. "It was really scary and you really felt helpless.

"Me and Mom were fighting like crazy to keep them out of the house. They were so small they could crawl through any little crack or surface," she said.

Several days after the bugs appeared, Box Elder County launched an aerial insecticide attack on the black horde. The next day, and for a month thereafter, teams sprayed up and down the mountainside.

But, Miss Breitenbeker said, "There were so many on the mountain that they kept coming."

Each morning, she said, family members would "sweep up piles and piles" of the bugs. "During the night they'd move in and we'd have tons more the next morning," she said.

"There for awhile they really smelled bad. It kind of smells like dead fish," she said. "They didn't eat anything in the garden. We don't know why they picked our house."

Still Cheaper Than Retail...

Hamburger For Schools Costing Record Amounts

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Agriculture Department is buying hamburger for donation to school cafeterias this fall and the prices it is paying are among the highest on record.

Even so, according to the most recent USDA purchase reports, the ground beef for schools is costing much less than that available to consumers at retail counters.

The main reason for this is USDA buys ground beef in wholesale quantities – a minimum shipment of 38,500 pounds - and does not have to stand in supermarket lines to do it.

Processors offer the meat to USDA under bid arrangements, and officials reserve the right to turn down those that seem too high.

As of Aug. 22, almost 2.5 million pounds had been bought by the department for the 1979-80 school year at an average price of $1.16 a pound.

The meat is of high quality and must come from "domestically produced livestock," which rules out using imported beef for the government's hamburger donations.

Comparatively, ground beef in retail stores averaged a record of $1.68 a pound in May before declining to $1.62 in June and probably less than that in July, according to USDA officials. Those prices are a blend of all kinds of meat, including "regular" hamburger and the packages of leaner ground beef.

For the 1978-79 school year, USDA bought about 80.6 million pounds of ground beef for donation at an average cost of $1.16 a pound, the same as the rate currently being paid for the coming year's hamburger.

But a year earlier, in 1977-78, USDA bought 93.9 million pounds of ground beef at an average cost of 72 cents a pound, illustrating that over the last couple of years higher prices for hamburger have affected the school donation program as well as retail store shoppers.

Last April, the Council of Wage and Price Stability announced that USDA and other federal agencies would reduce future purchases of beef by 25 percent as a sign "the federal government will lead the way" in fighting inflation.

Department officials say they are unable to tell at this time how much total beef will be bought for the 1979-80 school year. It depends to some extent on the price, one said.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said when the intended cutback was announced last April 19 that a 25 percent reduction would be put into effect.

"However," he added, "because of the popularity of beef with school children, we will increase these purchases when supplies again become abundant."

Thus, according to one source who asked not to be named, the recent decline in beef prices generally may "offer an opportunity" to stock up on hamburger for schools in case cattle and beef prices turn up again later on.

Poultry also is being bought for school cafeterias, but so far pork has not been included.

About 26 million children regularly eat in the nation's school cafeterias, which also buy food items on their own to supplement the donated commodities from USDA.

Dear Abby

Her Shopping Gets Mauled

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: In all the years I've been reading your column, I've never been so steamed. FRUSTRATED IN RUSSELLVILLE, ARK., complained because she—a "working woman"—had only her lunch hour to do her shopping, and the stores were always full of "little old ladies" and non-working mothers who could shop anytime but chose to do it during "her" lunch hour. And you agreed with her!

First of all, there is no such thing as a "non-working" mother. If mothers didn't work, they'd be arrested for child neglect. I put in a long, hard day caring for my family. I may not punch a time clock or receive a weekly pay check, but I work just the same.

Second of all, just because I don't work between 8 and 5 doesn't mean I have all day to shop. There are nap times for infants and pre-schoolers, appointments, housework, chauffeuring that I must work around, and if I have to do my shopping during the working woman's lunch hour, I'm sorry. I don't plan it that way just to inconvenience her. Sign me,

TICKED OFF IN TUSTIN, CALIF.

DEAR TICKED OFF: I'll take 20 whacks with a wet dish towel. The score on that one was WORKING MOTHERS: 322; ABBY: zilch. Read on for more brickbats:

DEAR ABBY: I've always been a big Abby fan, but when you agreed with that frustrated "working woman" who suggested that "non-working mothers" should schedule their shopping to accommodate the "working woman," you lost me.

I have rights, even though I belong to no union other than matrimony. I receive no income, but I feel well paid for my efforts as a homemaker. (I even do windows.)

Abby, please don't perpetuate the myth that mothers and housewives are "non-working" women. Please don't tell me how to rearrange my schedule, and I will refrain from advising people about their personal problems.

HAPPY COOKER IN YAKIMA, WASH.

DEAR ABBY: I am one of those "little old ladies" who is inconveniencing the working woman because I shop on her lunch hour. Well, excuuuuuuuze me!

Just because I'm 74, and look it, doesn't necessarily mean I sit in my rocking chair all day and can shop any old time I please. I happen to hold an office job that requires me to be at my desk at 8 a.m. And I'm usually riveted there until well after 5 every evening.

If the "working woman" finds the stores too crowded during her lunch hour, let her shop in the evenings, or on Saturdays or Sundays. There are plenty of stores open then.

BURNED UP IN BOSTON

DEAR ABBY: Please tell "working woman" that I am sick and tired of working women telling me when to do my shopping.

I chose to stay home and take care of my family just as she chose to work outside her home, and I consider myself just as much a working woman as she is. Before I made this choice, I also worked at an office job and, let me tell you, the job I have now is a lot tougher. But I'm not complaining.

I find that women who work outside the home resent housewives. Please get off our backs. We have our hands full.

MARGE IN CHICAGO

DEAR ABBY: Boy, have I got an earful for FRUSTRATED IN RUSSELLVILLE: Did it ever occur to you that little old ladies and non-working mothers have schedules to keep, too? If we must do our shopping or banking during your lunch hour, it's only a coincidence.

And, by the way, here in Texas the noon hour is the hottest time of the day in the summer, and I don't go anywhere unless I have to! Sign me,

Exercise problems

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB – I am a 67-year-old female. My doctor says I have curvature of the spine and considerable demineralization of the bones. I also have chronic asthma. I cannot walk outside in the cold weather.

I get no exercise. I have noticed I am getting a very large stomach lately. Is there any exercise you would suggest? Do you think an exercise bicycle is good for me?

DEAR READER – It's true that exercise will precipitate asthma attacks in some people, particularly in cold weather. The temperature seems to be an important factor.

I assume from your letter that by demineralization of the bones, you're talking about osteoporosis (softening of the bones), which is common in women your age.

With the combination of limited exercise and osteoporosis, it's no wonder that you're developing a large stomach. I'm sorry but I can't recommend an exercise specifically for you because people with osteoporosis must be careful about the kinds of exercise they do.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-10 on osteoporosis or dissolving bones. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents in check or coin with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper. P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

As I discussed in The Health Letter I'm sending you, certain kinds of exercise can cause weakened bones to fracture. That's why doctors suggest that women who have osteoporosis be careful about lifting heavy objects.

On the positive side, properly done exercises can help to strengthen your muscles and provide back support. For that reason, I think you should have some individual help on what kinds of exercises are good for you with your particular medical problem.

If your osteoporosis permits it, you can do sit-ups and modified leg lifts to strengthen your abdominal muscles. These are not likely to cause an asthmatic attack because you can do the exercises for a few minutes and rest. It's prolonged exercise that's more apt to precipitate asthma. And, of course, you can do them in the house without exposing yourself to cold weather.

The degeneration of the vertebrae may cause a person to lose height. With this shortening of the vertebrae, it's almost impossible to keep the stomach from enlarging. This is particularly true if the thoracic spine bends forward as well.

The abdominal muscles and the spine are somewhat like a bow with its string. If you bend the bow at each end, the string becomes slack. The abdominal muscles, like the string to a bow, are stretched from their attachment to the lower ribs at one end and to the pelvis at the other end. As the spine bends and curves forward, the abdominal muscles become slack.

If you are in a location where you can get some good advice from a physical medicine or physiotherapy department, it may be able to help you learn some exercises that can be useful without inducing any problems for you.

Aid Sought For Battered Fields In South Plains

LUBBOCK (AP)—U.S. Rep. Kent Hance called damage to storm-ravaged crops on the South Plains "the worst I've ever seen" and he says he'll ask Gov. Bill Clements to declare the battered farmlands a disaster area.

"I've lived almost all of my life in West Texas and I have never seen this kind of damage," Hance said after touring Deaf Smith, Castro, Lamb, Hockley and Terry counties Sunday.

Hurricane-force winds and massive thunderstorms walloped maturing crops with a one-two punch of torrential rains and baseball-sized hail Friday. Preliminary damage estimates exceed $10 million.

The National Weather Service clocked winds of 80 mph between Dimmit and Littlefield Friday night and minor flooding from heavy rains drove more than 100 persons from their homes in Olton, where large hail also shattered windows and windshields.

Heavy rain continued to pelt parts of the South Plains and Panhandle Sunday.

"Most of these crops were really good, maybe even records," said Hance. "Prices were finally up a little and a lot of these men were hoping to recoup losses from other years. This will really set the whole area back."

Officials estimated the storm devastated more than 150,000 acres of corn, cotton, grain sorghum, soy beans and sunflowers. Some of the crops were less than two weeks away from the fall harvest.

If the stricken farmlands are declared a disaster area, landowners would become eligible for special federal assistance and low interest loans.

2 Snyderites Get Degrees

ALPINE—Two students from Snyder received degrees from Sul Ross State University during the president's reception for summer graduates.

Emmalie Sleeper John received her master of education degree in speech-drama; and Nathaniel C. Smith received his master of education degree in history.

Sul Ross President Bob Richardson thanked the graduates during the brief ceremony for their "contributions to the university. Our business at Sul Ross is students," he told an audience of more than 400 persons, "and on behalf of the university, I would like to thank you for your dedication and hard work which these degrees represent."

Sul Ross conferred 116 masters and 86 baccalaureate degrees during the ceremony.

Gasoline Prices Could Speed Metric System

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The United States is still crawling along the road to the metric system, but the soaring price of gasoline may speed up the switch.

Authorities say it is easier and cheaper to convert fuel pumps to liters than it is to adjust them to register prices of more than $1 a gallon.

Bill DeReuter, a spokesman for the U.S. Metric Board, said a growing number of service station operators - particularly independents - are starting to sell gasoline by the liter. DeReuter said that $100 million could be saved by converting to liters instead of changing price-recording mechanisms.

It has been almost four years since the passage of the Metric Conversion Act, designed to encourage Americans to voluntarily adopt the measuring system used by most of the rest of the world.

Thus far, however, there have been few changes for the average consumer. The Metric Board itself did not get completely organized until last year; a proposal to convert road signs from miles to kilometers was abandoned because of negative comments.

In a report late last year, the General Accounting Office said that the alochohlic beverage industry had done more to convert than anyone else. But the GAO also said: "Most wines and distilled spirits that were converted to metric sizes experienced unit price increases greater than those that did not convert."

Supporters of the switch to metrics concede that there has been strong public opposition to abandoning the traditional system of feet and inches, pounds and ounces. But they also say that a lot of the ill-will is due to unfamiliarity and a lack of understanding.

"The 'anti-' feeling will disappear," said DeReuter, noting that virtually every state has some kind of metric education program for youngsters.

The non-profit American National Metric Council, including businesses and trade and technical organizations, also is trying to ease confusion.

The council has prepared a Metric Consumer Information Kit, including a wallet-size conversion card and two pamphlets, "The Metric System Day-to-Day" and "A Metric Reference for Consumers."

There is a $1.30 charge to cover postage and handling. It is available from: MCIK-ANMC, 1625 Massachusetts Ave. N.W., Washington, D.C., 20036. Enclose a self-addressed label with your order.

The U.S. Metric Association, a volunteer, non-profit group in Boulder, Colo., which has been promoting the use of the metric system for more than 50 years, says the easiest way to learn the new measurements is to forget the old ones. Don't try to convert back and forth. Find a familiar object that is about the size of the metric measurement you want to learn. A milimeter, for example, is about the thickness of a dime. Whenever you hear or see the word milimeter, think of a dime. In a sort while, you'll find yourself thinking metric.

Rangers Lose Again; Comer Blazes Office

ARLINGTON (AP) The Texas Rangers have lost four in a row and 29 of their 39 games since the All Star break, and pitcher Steve Comer says it all goes back to the trades the front office made during the season.

With a juggled lineup, the Rangers committed two errors behind Comer Sunday night while dropping a 6-2 verdict to the Milwaukee Brewers.

Comer, normally soft-spoken, exploded after the game.

"That's what happens when a club has no will to win, no one to keep it alive," said Comer, whose record dropped to 13-9.

Texas, which led the American League West until shortly before the break, was nine games back on Sunday, but staunch Rangers fans had contended the team was still refusing to quit.

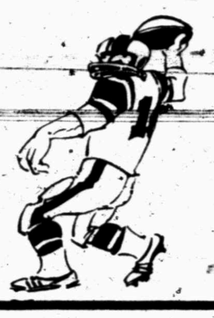

"No one quit? No one let down? That's easier said than what's done on the field and who's put on the field? You have to put your best nine out there and we can't make up nine games on California with a lineup I've had behine me a couple of times," Comer said.

"You hope for the team to turn around, but I can't see it. When you trade people away, it depends on what you get in return. What we got was a stockpile at first and a stockpile at center field. Dock Ellis, Oscar Gamble, Ed Farmer, they're not household names, but they're the kind you like to see in the clubhouse after a tough game. They pick people up. Now everybody picks up a hotdog and leaves. Great, it's time for spring training."

Lately, manager Pat Corrales has benched light-hitting shortstop Nelson Norman, despite his defensive abilities, moved Buddy Bell from third to shortstop and inserted Eric Soderholm at third base. Sunday night, Soderholm bobbled one grounder, and the Brewers hit two singles through him, including one off his glove that Bell at shortstop probably would have gotten had Soderholm not tried for it. Soderholm dived and missed on another shot of the variety Bell had consistently been coming up with all season.

Rookie Billy Sample started in center and got a late start on a fly by Sal Bando in the first that fell for a single.

Rams Ready, They Say; Knox: 'Buffalo's Not'

By The Associated Press

With the dress rehearsals over, the curtain going up on another National Football League season next Saturday night in Tampa Bay, the Los Angeles Rams, Buffalo Bills and the New York Giants are in midseason form.

"We are ready for the season," proclaimed quarterback Pat Haden, who ended his pre-season with 11 completions in 22 attempts for 149 yards and a touchdown as the Rams ended their 4-0 exhibition schedule with a 23-7 victory over the San Diego Chargers Saturday night.

Los Angeles, trying for its seventh consecutive National Conference title, lost defensive tackle Cody Jones for the season with a ruptured Achilles tendon, while Chargers guard Doug Wilkerson's season ended prematurely due to torn knee ligaments.

"The hitting was hard, but the injuries are also a sign of it being the last exhibition game," said Charger quarterback Dan Fouts, who added: "I think we're ready. Naturally though, we're not happy with the injuries."

Injured pride is the Giants' malady. They scored just 12 points in their final three preseason games - all without a touchdown.

The latest insult was a 14-6 loss to the New York Jets Saturday night.

"This is still the exhibition season and it doesn't mean a thing," center Jim Clack said.

"I'm not going to start worrying. We've got 16 games. Everyone is now 0-0."

"We're ready," said Pro Bowl linebacker Harry Carson, speaking strictly for the Giants' defense, which coughed up just 31 points in the four preseason games.

The opening kickoff Saturday night set the tone for the Giants, when Ernie Pough fumbled at the 17-yard line, setting up a 10-yard touchdown pass to Scott Dierking from Matt Robinson, who started for the first time since Coach Walt Michaels awarded him No. 1 status over Richard Todd.

Joe Danelo supplied all the Giants offense with field goals of 51 and 55 yards.

The Bills, like the Atlanta Falcons, finished the preseason without a win, losing 48-21 Saturday night to the Oakland Raiders, who got a pair of touchdowns passes from Ken Stabler to Ray Chester.

"We've not ready to start the season the way we played tonight," said Buffalo Coach Chuck Knox. "It looked like they hadn't been coached at all."

In other games Saturday, St. Louis edged Chicago 10-7, Tampa Bay tamed Cincinnati 24-13, Green Bay outlasted Atlanta 45-35 and Dallas nipped Pittsburgh 16-14.

On Friday, Miami completed its perfect preseason log with a 14-13 win over Philadelphia, Cleveland defeated Washington 21-9, Baltimore beat Detroit 17-7, New Orleans edged Houston 10-7, Denver beat New England 20-17 in overtime, and Seattle overwhelmed San Francisco 55-20.

States Delivers Skills At 'Cup'

MONTREAL (AP)-The United States has claimed the big international track and field victory that got away two years ago, boding well for the country's chances in the 1980 Summer Olympics.

The United States won seven of the 20 men's events and two of the 15 women's events at the three-day meet that ended Sunday at Olympic Stadium.

Three of the men's victories came on the final day - Larry Myricks with the second-best long jump in history, Renaldo Nehemiah in a tight 110-meter hurdles finish and the 1,600-meter relay team.

The U.S. men finished with 119 points. Europe was second with 112, followed by East Germany with 108, and the Soviet Union 102.

In the women's competition, pre-meet favorite East Germany won with 105. The Soviet Union had 97, just nosing out defending champion Europe with 96. The United States was fourth with 75, followed by the Americas, 67.

Miruts Yifter, the balding Ethiopian distance runner, and Evelyn Ashford, the U.S. sprinter, were named the outstanding men's and women's athletes in the meet. Each won two events.

Anderson Clinches Local Mens Golf Crown With A 145

Larry Anderson didn't come up with the lowest round of the day John Boren did. But his 73 was low enough.

Anderson fashioned rounds of 72 and 73 to grab the Men's Club Championship at Snyder Country Club last weekend, nipping the fast-finishing Boren by one stroke, 145-146.

Boren, who started off with a 76, ripped around the course with a 70 on his final round to claim second place in the Championship Flight. Buck Rambin, the defending champion, placed third with a 75 and a 73.

In First Flight action, Lanny Wadleigh carded scores of 79 and 77 to win first place by two strokes over Mel Galloway (81-77--158). Don Head was third with rounds of 82 and 81.

Second Flight winner Harold Lacik turned in a 166 (82-84) to nab top honors, while Duane Richard was right behind with a 167 (86-81), and Joe Michie was four back at 170 (84-86).

Gene Dow easily won first place in the Third Flight, marking scores of 81 and 90 for a 171 - six strokes ahead of second place Don Brock, 88-89--177. George Gann was third with a 94 and an 85.

Bobby Cumbie garnered honors in the Fourth Flight with his 98-93--191. Randy Mosley (99-94) and Tommy Lay (98-95) tied for second with 193s.

Rain Assures DAniel Title

MAPLEWOOD, Minn. (AP) Rookie Beth Daniel scored an 11-under total of 208 as her four stroke lead over Hollis Stacy held up after the final round of the $100,000 Patty Berg Golf Classic was cancelled due to heavy rains.

Wilson Edges Miller, Claims Fame Classic

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP)-Tom Watson had the title again in the Hall of Fame Golf Classic, secured in a sudden death playoff against Johnny Miller.

And he also had a crisp, two-word evaluation of the man he'd beaten in one of the most dramatic tournaments of the year:

"He's back," Watson said.

There seemed little question about it. Johnny Miller is, indeed, back.

He didn't say so himself. But his play through the towering pines that line the fairways on this famed course in the Carolina sandhill country left little doubt about it. The man who has suffered - with considerable grace and no complaints - through one of the most mysterious and perplexing slumps in golf history, came very close to ending a three-year non-winning string.

Septien Makes Good...

Kicker Boots Back

IRVING (AP)-Rafael Septien, the Mexican movie star who kicks for the Dallas Cowboys, went from rags to riches Saturday night as Dallas beat Pittsburgh, 16-14, in a pre-season finale for both National Football League clubs.

Septien treated a national television audience to a moment of high drama when he blasted home a 47-yard field goal with two seconds left in the game, providing the margin of victory.

Until that time, the sometime film actor stood to be the goat, having blown a point-after-touchdown attempt that kept Dallas on the short end of a 14-13 count until the very end.

Septien might never have had the shot at redemption had it not been for a gutty performance by Cowboy quarterback Roger Staubach.

Staubach had thrown touchdown passes of 12 yards to tightend Billy Joe Dupree and eight yards to rookie running back Ron Springs.

In the final 37 seconds, the veteran from Navy hit Drew Pearson, Tony Hill and Preston Pearson to set up Septien's decisive boot.

To that point, Staubach's 207-yard passing performance had been overshadowed by Pittsburgh's Terry Bradshaw, who ended the night with 154 yards through the air.

Bradshaw was giving valuable lessons to an injury-riddled Dallas secondary most of the night. All-Pro Dallas safety Charlie Waters is out for the season with a wrecked knee. His backup, Randy Hughes, missed the game with knee troubles. Bennie Barnes had to move in from his cornerback slot where replacement rookie Aaron Mitchell caught Brawshaw's attention.

Mitchell had 10 passes thrown at him by Bradshaw. Six were complete and two more drew penalties.

In spite of that, Pittsburgh crossed the goal line only twice with both touchdowns coming in the first four minutes of the second period. Franco Harris scored from the one and Jim Smith collected an eight-yard touchdown pass from Bradshaw.

Another of Dallas coach Tom Landry's rookie finds put Dallas back into the game. Wade Manning, who played baseball Ohio State, ripped off a 62-yard punt return to the Steeler 11 to set up the Cowboys' first touchdown - the one that preceeded Septien's PAT miss.

Cowboys Cut Five; Christensen One

DALLAS (AP)—The Dallas Cowboys announced their final cuts today, trimming the squad from 50 to 45 players.

The five players placed on waivers were: fullback Todd Christensen, first-year player from Brigham Young; offensive guard Tom Randall, second-year player from Iowa State; wide receiver Robert Steele, second-year player from North Alabama; offensive tackle Andy Frederick, third-year player from the University of New Mexico; and rookie defensive end Mike Calhoun, 10th-round draft choice from Notre Dame.

Police Report Suspected Overdose

A cocaine overdose victim was admitted to Cogdell Memorial Hospital Sunday night.

Snyder police officers reported the 23-year-old man had allegedly both inhaled and injected cocaine at his residence. He was taken to the hospital by private vehicle. Police were notified of the incident at 9:41 p.m.

The subject was admitted to the hospital for observation.

In other weekend activity, a theft and two minor traffic accidents were investigated.

Reporting the theft was Corrine Arnold, 1910 Ave. G. She told police a $500 motorcycle and a $25 bicycle were taken from her residence. That matter was reported at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

The first traffic accident was in the 1500 block of 26th St. about 6 p.m. Saturday. Involved in it were a 1977 Chevrolet driven by Pauline Alarco Carrisalez, a 1979 Pontiac driven by Abb Boyd and a 1970 Oldsmobile driven by James W. Lemons.

The second wreck was Sunday about 10:15 p.m. at the intersection of East Highway and Ave. E. It involved a 1979 Ford pickup driven by Gale Howard Bly and a 1966 Ford driven by Jay W. Hammond.

5,000 Females Queried...

Sex Harassment Survey Launched

By T. LEE HUGHES
Associated Press Writer

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—More than 5,000 female employees of the state are being asked if their male colleagues have given them "leering or suggestive looks," or made "sexual propositions."

The questions are part of a survey on sexual harassment being conducted by the Center for Policy Studies and Program Evaluation at Sangamon State University. Researchers hope to learn more about what had become a growing national issue - the sexual pressures on working women.

"It's been kept under wraps a little too much, and women are afraid to come forward with it," said John Collins, center director. "It tends to be a closet issue for those who are subjected to it and know anything about it."

Eight-page questionnaires were sent out this month to 5,192 female employees selected at random in 51 state agencies. More than 660 responses have been received so far, said Gay Davidson, a research assistant working on the survey.

Ms. Davidson said some women called to ask if they were sent a questionnaire because the center had been tipped that they had been sexually harassed.

They said they felt that new census figures would enable them to be more precise in setting the boundaries, since these will have actual population figures.
