Allen resigns; Clark named as replacement

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, opting for a national security adviser with more authority than he gave deposed Richard V. Allen, is turning to a long-time confidante with little experience in foreign affairs.

The president carried out the first major personnel shakeup of his administration Monday by naming Deputy Secretary of State William P. Clark Jr. to replace Allen, whose resignation was "mutually agreed upon."

At the same time, Reagan said Clark, 50, would be given daily access to the Oval Office, something Allen lacked.

Allen had reported to Reagan through presidential counselor Edwin Meese III, who coordinates domestic and foreign policy.

CLARK, A FORMER California Supreme Court justice, was Reagan's chief of staff when Reagan was governor of California and is one of the most senior members of the president's inner circle. He planned to begin work today in the same White House basement office Allen used.

The president, in accepting Allen's resignation, said no evidence of wrongdoing had been found in Justice Department and White House probes of the former national security adviser's conduct.

"It's rather unusual that someone who had been the subject of a lot of rumors and allegations over a long period of time could go through a rigorous and meticulous examination and be substantiated in every detail and still find himself in a situation where his resignation would be submitted and accepted," Allen said.

Later, in an appearance on ABC's "Nightline," Allen said he had asked Reagan to reinstate him Monday afternoon.

"It seemed that that was not possible precisely because of the accumulation of what I considered to be political circumstances, psychological circumstances," he said. "Having been cleared, the best thing was to take whatever burden might have been caused by my inadvertence or oversight away from the president."

ALLEN WAS PLACED on administrative leave with pay Nov. 29 pending the outcome of investigations into his acceptance of $1,000 from Japanese journalists and three watches from Japanese friends and errors in his government financial disclosure forms.

Moments after Allen left the White House, Clark met with reporters.

"As the president has directed, I report directly to the president on a daily basis or more often as the issues of the day might require," he said. Clark would thus resume a role exercised by Zbigniew Brzezinski in the Carter administration and Henry A. Kissinger, who was Richard M. Nixon's national security adviser.

But unlike Brzezinski and Kissinger, Clark brings only a year's experience in foreign policy to his White House post.

His nomination a year ago provoked a storm of protest in the Senate, and Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said: "He doesn't know anything about foreign relations."

But one senior member of the White House staff said over the weekend that Clark's appointment as national security adviser would demonstrate that the president felt that his performance over the past year as deputy to Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. should have resolved any doubts about his ability.

Asked about his qualifications, Clark said Monday that it was the president's role to determine whether he was fit for the position, which does not require Senate confirmation.

As the deputy secretary of state, Clark was an intermediary in a year of feuding between Haig and Allen, apparently winning Haig's confidence while serving as the official closest to Reagan in the State Department.

Clark said the conflict between the secretary of state and national security adviser was inherent in the structure of the jobs.

"I NOW MUST VIEW the area of national security from a presidential perspective rather than from a State Department perspective and I hope that that experience at the prior vantage spot will assist in the teamwork we all know must exist among the CIA, the Department of Defense, the State Department," Clark said.

Clark's new job, near the top of the government salary scale, pays $60,662.

Vallejo, Calif., police help residents of the area evacuate after heavy rains caused flooding. The violent winter storm has destroyed as many as 12 houses and stranded thousands of people with flash flooding. More than eight inches of rain fell in 12 hours in some parts of the state.

Nation overwhelmed by rain, snow

By ANDY O'CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

Mud hosed loose by an unrelenting rainstorm washed into California homes while sleet chattered on Northeastern rooftops, snow piled up in the Midwest and the South crackled with thunderstorms and tornadoes.

At least 13 people died in weather-related accidents Monday.

Up to 16 inches of snow fell on Wisconsin, smacking Milwaukee with its worst snowstorm in 35 years, rain pummeled Ohio and snow forced schools to close in Illinois and Michigan.

Weathermen estimated that 12 inches of rain fell in a 24-hour period in Marin County, outside of San Francisco. In an effort to keep people away from the flooding, northbound traffic on the Golden Gate Bridge was halted for four hours.

And the wind howled through it all.

WINDS REACHED 90 MPH at the top of the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. building in Cleveland, 85 mph on a mountain ridge at Park City ski resort west of Salt Lake City and 60 mph in parts of Illinois and Wisconsin.

"This miserable wind's been blowing since Sunday morning," Caribou County Commissioner Robert Anderson said Monday night after snow blown by 45 mph gusts closed roads in central and southern Idaho.

Thousands of people were forced from their homes and officials closed schools and highways as record-breaking rain pelted northern California, causing damage expected to run into the millions of dollars in counties around San Francisco.

A six-car Amtrak passenger train derailed in heavy rain at San Pablo, Calif., north of Oakland, injuring 13 people, none seriously. Rescuers had to use rowboats and helicopters to reach the train, since roads in the area were under up to five feet of water, police said.

A SEVEN-CAR SOUTHERN Pacific freight train left the track about 200 miles to the north at Alderpoint, causing no reported injuries. Authorities said that accident was probably also caused by the rain.

An avalanche at the Squaw Valley, Calif. ski resort buried two men for nearly two hours before they were rescued. The two were buried "under about 3 feet of snow standing upright," a deputy said.

The Sierra Nevada was smothered in up to 7 feet of snow.

"I've never seen steady snow this severe," said Brady Hodge, marketing director for Lake Tahoe's Heavenly Valley ski resort, which shut one side of its mountain because of too much snow.

The major roads crossing the Sierra were closed and thousands of skiers in the mountains for the New Year's weekend were stranded.

In Seattle, where snow is rare, the steepest streets were closed Monday because of 2 inches of snow and a sheet of ice.

New security adviser, President old friends

WASHINGTON (AP) — He couldn't come up with the name of the prime minister of South Africa, he had no opinion to offer on nuclear non-proliferation and he said he got most his knowledge of international affairs from newsmagazines.

But William P. Clark Jr., a wealthy Californian, had the ear and the confidence of Ronald Reagan, and in the end that's what counted. Reagan, taking office as president last January, named Clark as No. 2 man at the State Department.

Those old ties still count.

Reagan on Monday chose his friend as his national security adviser, a position of utmost importance in a White House where the chief executive lacks foreign policy experience.

Clark thus becomes a confidant on the most vexing and sensitive issues a president faces. And he becomes the White House counterweight to the State Department and all the institutional luggage it must bear in offering advice.

Clark succeeds Richard V. Allen, who arrived as an outsider and never built much rapport with Reagan or won the confidence of the inner circle.

By contrast, Clark and Reagan have been friends for 15 years. They struck it off in 1966, when Reagan was running for governor of California and Clark; a rancher, served as his Ventura County chairman.

In Sacramento, Clark became Reagan's chief of staff. He was the prompter who helped Reagan prepare for news conferences, the author of concise single-page "mini-memo" that summarized complex issues for Reagan.

Within five years, Reagan — brushing aside objections each time — appointed Clark to three judicial posts, elevating him from Superior Court to the California Supreme Court.

CRITICS POINTED OUT, to no avail, that Clark had flunked out of Stanford University and of Loyola University Law School and had failed his bar examination the first time around.

When Reagan brought him to Washington, speculation arose that Clark would be in the running for a future vacancy on the Supreme Court.

But Reagan wanted a friend at the State Department, where a forceful Alexander M. Haig Jr. was taking charge.

William P. Clark Jr.

Clark admitted that international issues weren't his forte. He said his foreign policy experience amounted to a 1967 visit to Chile — "72 hours in Santiago" is how he put it.

He said he leaned on Time and Newsweek for keeping up with international events, and he begged off expressing an opinion on a long list of issues.

Mobil to try Supreme Court

Company has two days to block Marathon purchase

CINCINNATI (AP) — Mobil Corp., with just two days left to block the purchase of Marathon Oil Co. by a rival bidder, is returning to the U.S. Supreme Court to try to derail U.S. Steel's acquisition of the Ohio oil company.

The 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Monday refused to delay the takeover by U.S. Steel, which a federal district judge in Columbus has said could begin after midnight Wednesday. Mobil is barred from the bidding by a court order issued on antitrust grounds.

"We now reiterate our prime concern is the preservation of some competition in this market, which a dismembering of Marathon could damage," Chief Judge George Edwards said.

"Nothing that Mobil has proposed in these belated filings would serve to protect the marketplace from the elimination, in times of shortage, of price competition provided by independent dealers previously supplied by Marathon," Edwards said.

MOBIL, THE NATION'S second-largest oil company, was expected to file its appeal in the Supreme Court today. It appealed directly to the high court to halt the U.S. Steel takeover Dec. 30 but was directed to exhaust its appeals in lower courts.

Mobil lawyers went to U.S. District Judge John Manos in Cleveland, who rejected their oral motion Thursday. They immediately asked the 6th Circuit to overturn Manos, but the appeals court closed for the holiday weekend without acting.

The appeals court said Monday that Manos did not err in rejecting Mobil's request for an injunction, and it reiterated its Dec. 23 ruling that Mobil's acquisition of Findlay-based Marathon, the nation's 17th-largest oil company, probably would violate federal antitrust laws.

Mobil had proposed selling Marathon's marketing structure to Amerada Hess Corp., which does not compete with Marathon in six Midwestern states. Mobil wants Marathon's estimated $2.8 billion holdings in the Yates oilfield in Texas.

"We are not convinced that Mobil's 'hold separate' proposal which would cut Marathon's refining and marketing operations from its oilfield production and reserves would cure the probable antitrust violations," the court said. "It would leave Marathon's refining and marketing operations at the mercy of basic suppliers (like Mobil) and make it more vulnerable to possible monopoly pressures."

MOBIL'S OFFER OF $85 a share for Marathon stock Oct. 30 was resisted by Marathon management, which arranged a "sweetheart" deal to give U.S. Steel control for $125 a share. Marathon also filed suit in Manos' court to block Mobil, alleging antitrust.

Mobil countered with an offer of $126 a share, which industry analysts estimate to be worth $6.5 billion — about $200 million more than U.S. Steel's offer — and asked for a temporary injunction in federal court in Columbus to block U.S. Steel's bid.

Both cases came to the 6th Circuit, which found a Mobil takeover probably would violate antitrust laws and barred it from buying Marathon shares. The circuit court also said U.S. Steel's options to buy the Yates field and 10 million shares of unissued Marathon stock were illegal.

Midland TEC faces cutbacks

By PATRICK DEAREN
Staff Writer

The Midland office of Texas Employment Commission evidently will survive first-round shutdowns of TEC offices across the state, but probably will face continued cutbacks in personnel, according to manager Ed Miller.

The Lamesa TEC operation, consisting of four employees, definitely will close as a result of federal budget cuts, according to District Director William N. Blisset.

A commissioners meeting in Austin today could decide the extent to which the budget cuts will affect the Midland office, which already is operating at barely half the staff it had a year ago.

"We now have eight vacancies that we're not allowed to fill," said Miller. "As a result, out of 34 persons on the staff Jan. 1, 1981, we only have 18. Of course, this is going to result in a cutback of services to the public."

Miller noted that in the current fiscal year he anticipates the local TEC office to make only 50 percent of the 10,761 job placements it made last year.

"We can't possibly do any more with the half staff we've had," he said. "This is going to cause delay in services to employers and to applicants. With the current boom, we have some 1,500 job orders in Midland-Odessa right now, but with the staff we have, we can't screen all these applications."

Miller indicated a possibility exists the Midland office will assume the duties of the closing Lamesa commission, though Big Spring TEC also is being considered for the additional responsibility. "Big Spring is a little closer, but we have a larger staff," he noted.

Among the theft and burglary complaints lodged with city police during the past 24 hours, an executive with The Great Cookie store in Midland Park Mall said $5,200 in bank deposits disappeared Dec. 29, along with an employee and store records.

Crazy thief pays back in triplicate

MORRISON, Colo. (AP) — Some judges order convicts to make restitution for their crimes, but an unidentified burglar here didn't wait for a court order.

Someone broke into Thurston's Dari-Treet over the weekend and stole about $34 worth of bacon, onions and fish, said Elsie Thurston, who owns the store with her husband.

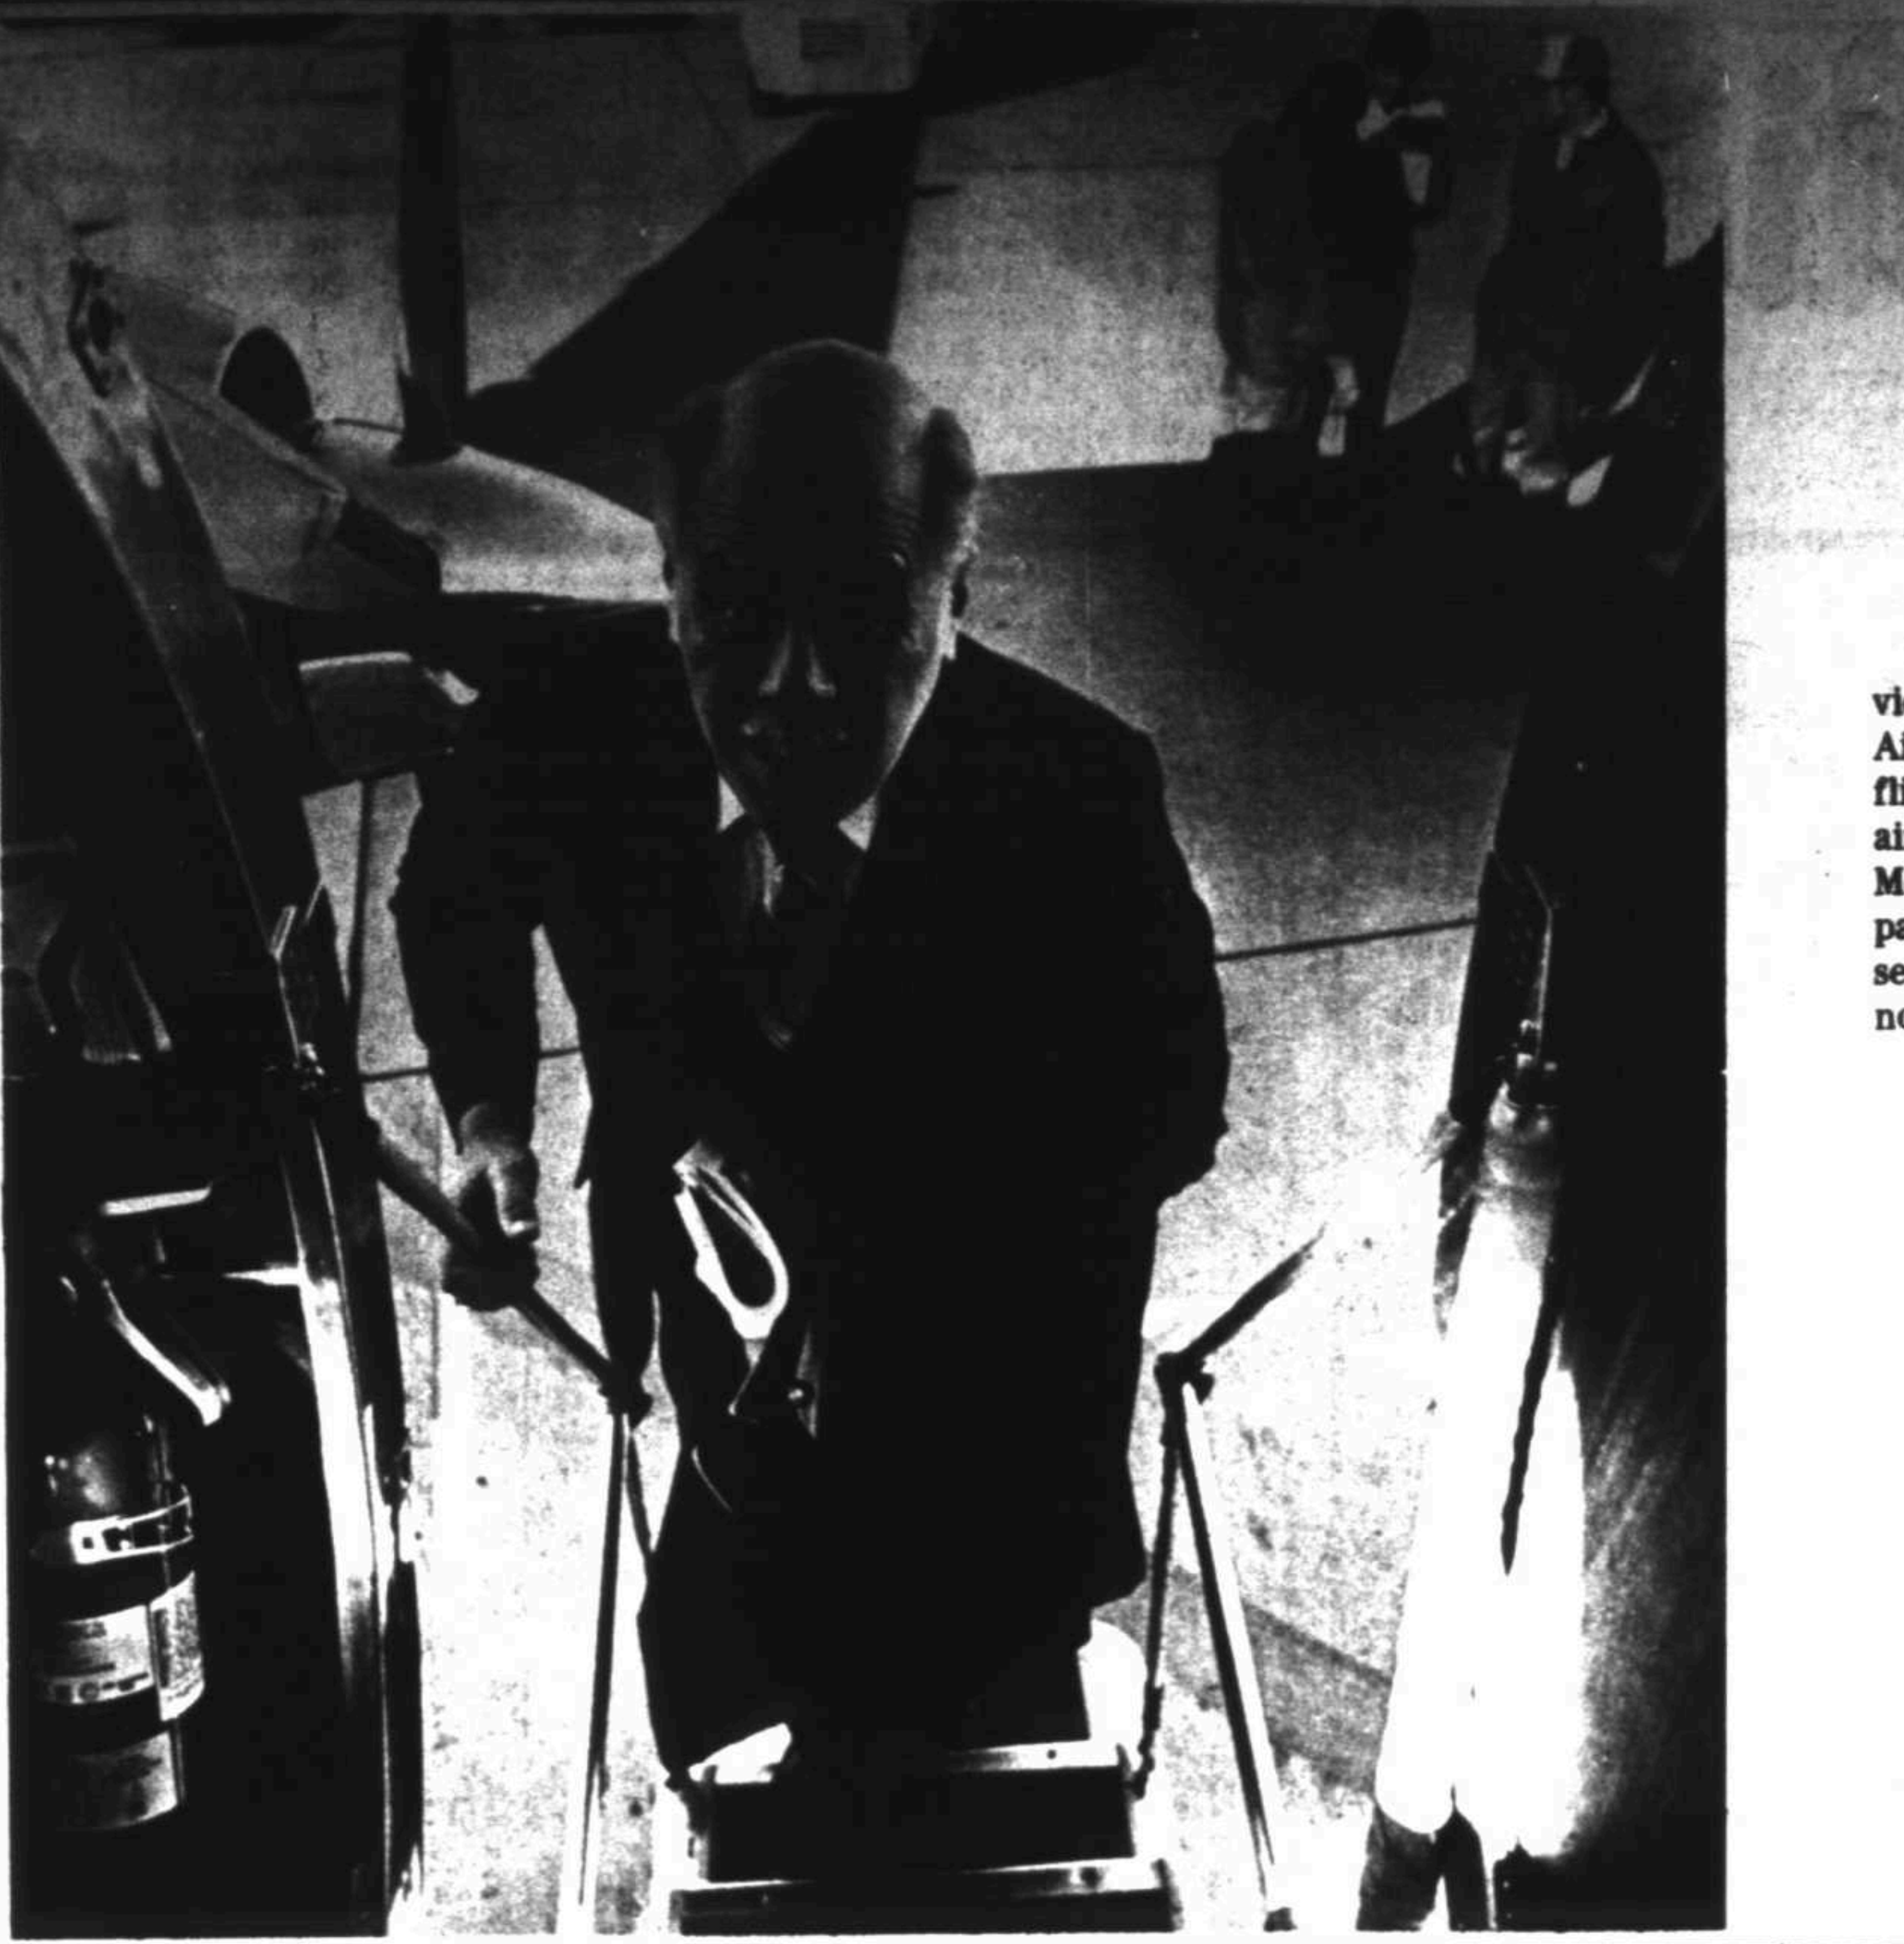
When Mrs. Thurston arrived at the store Monday, she said she found a note tucked into the door jamb. Tucked into the note were five $20 bills.

"I made a big mistake and broke into your store," the note read. "Please don't call the police."

Mrs. Thurston said she got a call later that day from a man who asked: "Did you get the money?"

She said she had, and asked why the store was robbed in the first place.

"I guess I'm kind of crazy," the thief replied.



Eric Norton, left, executive vice-president of Trans-Central Airline, boards the airline's first flight out of Midland Monday. The airline flies Swearingen MetroLiners, which seat about 30 passengers, and offers direct service to Tulsa, Okla., and non-stop service to Oklahoma City.

County's budget increases 30 percent

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Midland County Commissioners activated the county's 1982 budget which, at $8.8 million, is almost a 30 percent increase over last year's $6.8 million budget.

Much of the increase comes in salary and wage hikes, which, according to how you figure your mathematics, ranges from 8 to 14 percent.

The county employs about 300 people — from janitors and jailers to clerks and judges.

"All of the county employees — no officials — received 6 percent (wage hikes) in 1981, when bread was kind of hard to pay for," said Commissioner Charlie Welch.

That increase, which the Commissioners' Court approved in mid-year, was complemented by an 8 percent wage hike which went into effect Jan. 1.

"All elected officials received 14 percent (salary increases effective Jan. 1), except commissioners, who received 10 percent," said Welch.

The four commissioners, who set their 1982 annual salary at $22,755 per commissioner, are paid far less than the district judges, who each receive $50,000-plus per year in state and county funds, but not so much less than most elected county officials, such as the sheriff and district and county clerks, who are pegged at salaries in the low $30,000s. County Judge Bill Ahders, the county's chief administrator, is on the payroll for $40,800 this year.

In other action Monday, the commissioners:

—Authorized $24,000 yearly salaries for County Attorney J. Scott Henderson's investigator, Charlie Jones, and for District Attorney Vern Martin's investigators Dewey Lee and Robert Settles. The newly-amended salaries, which particularly benefited the county attorney's investigator, were requested by the county and district attorneys after Martin recently hired Settles out of Sheriff Dallas Smith's office. There he was a captain earning in the high $20,000s. But even with the $24,000 salary, Settles, who replaced DA Investigaror Jim Atwater, is taking at least a $4,000 a year pay cut.

—Authorized a pay rate from $4.90 to $5.30 per hour for part-time help and set the hourly pay scale for vocational-occupational education (VOE) high school students at $4 per hour. The previous rate was $3.75.

—Approved Kerr, Fitz-Gerald & Kerr's legal fee of $4,700 for work on Monahans Draw litigation in an ongoing Midland-Odessa feud over treated sewage water flowing out of Odessa, down the draw and just south of Midland.

'Papa' Keith trial begins

The murder trial of Milton Clyde "Papa" Keith, a co-defendant in a dual drug-related slaying in Midland about June 1, was to begin today with jury selection in Midland's 142nd State District Court.

Keith, in his mid-20s, is being tried in the shooting death of Tracy Endress at 507 Spraberry Drive. Also killed were Ms. Endress' friend, Charles Cole.

Keith and co-defendants Ollie Kemp and James Posey are indicted for murder and aggravated robbery in the deaths of the couple but are to be tried separately.

Kemp and Keith are being held in the Midland County Jail while awaiting trial. Posey is still at large.

Part of the prosecution's case against Keith is a written confession made by Kemp and an oral confession given by Keith early in June. Kemp's statement reportedly names Posey as the gunman and implicates Keith. The oral and written statements apparently are mutually corroborative.

The Keith-Posey-Kemp trio is accused of robbing Cole of cash and cocaine and then shooting Cole and his girlfriend in the head in the couple's bedroom.

Prosecuting the case are District Attorney Vern Martin's No. 1 assistant, David Joers, and coprosector Jim Rex. Defending Keith are court-appointed attorneys R. Sandy Torres of Midland and Robert Victor "Bob" Garcia of Odessa. Presiding judge is Pat Baskin.

Midland Memorial Hospital District purchased about 15,000 square feet of land from Conoco Inc., to be used for future expansion of the hospital, according to Arlene Strickland, MMH public relations director.

The $150,000 piece of land, located on the corner of Andrews Highway and West Texas Avenue, was purchased Tuesday.

In November, the MMH Board of Directors approved a $5,000 down payment to purchase the land "if possible."

Currently, Conoco has a Fasgas Service Station on the land adjacent to the old Knorr Furniture building, which also was purchased by the hospital district.

According to Ms. Strickland, MMH and Conoco have a 60-day cancellation option. Under this, either party has 60 days to notify the other of its intentions on using the land. If MMH wants the service station removed and to use the land before the end of three years, Conoco must be given 60 days notice. And the same applies to Conoco if that company wants the station removed and to use the land for another purpose until the end of three years.

Marcos accuses opponents

MANILA, Philippine (AP) — Philippine first lady Imelda R. Marcos said Monday that she believes the apparent kidnapping of the man who married her daughter in the United States was plotted by anti-government forces.

Court records in Arlington, Va., show that Imee Marcos, 26, married Tommy Manotoc, 32, in a civil ceremony Dec. 4.

Manotoc's family has accused President Ferdinand Marcos of involvement in the disappearance last Tuesday. Authorities believe Manotoc was kidnapped.

Crash survivors don't know mother is dead

HOUSTON (AP) — The father of two children who survived a New Year's Eve plane crash is confident they will recover physically, but worries about an emotional trauma they have yet to face.

Stacey Sadler, 9, and her brother Jimmy, 5, were in stable condition Monday after being transferred to Hermann Hospital from a facility in Durango, Colo., near the site of the crash.

"They do not know about their mother," James E. Sadler said. Joyce Branham, 39, was one of four people killed when a Sun West Airlines plane crashed and burned in a snowstorm Thursday night.

Sadler said his children would be treated for burns and bruises and that his son might require plastic surgery.

Sadler visited the site of the crash Sunday and said the wreckage "was nothing but a pile of rubbish. You can't even identify it as an airplane. How they ever lived through it is strictly a miracle. There is absolutely nothing left of the airplane."

Sadler credited rescue and medical teams as well as a woman and her four children who live near the crash scene with saving the pair.

Pat Seibert and her children were watching television when her husband Robert, a Frontier Airlines agent, called from the airport saying he thought a plane had crashed near their home.

The Seiberts hiked about a quarter-mile through the snow when they spotted flames from the wreckage.

"The plane was on fire," Mrs. Seibert said. "It was almost completely burned and there were two small children that we found.

"They were in pretty bad shape. We took off our coats and covered them up. They were whimpering but didn't seem aware of anything," Mrs. Seibert said.

Sadler said he spent an hour with the Seibert family Sunday, thanking them for their help.

Officials said the plane was en route from Albuquerque to Durango and was attempting an instrument-only landing when it missed its approach to the runway.

"The front of the plane took the impact," said assistant airport manager Leon Graham. "I assume the children were seated in the rear with their mother, and the tail section broke and threw them clear."

Mrs. Branham was thrown from the plane, but her body was found near the children. The bodies of the other victims, pilot Kelly Glendenning, 33, of Mesa, Ariz., and passengers Paul Bryant, 41, of Phoenix and Mary Peters, of Albuquerque, were found in the wreckage.

Atlanta bus driver raped, stabbed to death in her bus

ATLANTA (AP) — A bus driver who radioed to her superiors for help during an attack was found raped and stabbed to death in her bus, police said.

Bob Brennan, a spokesman for the Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority, identified the victim of the Monday night attack as Marjorie Melley, 35, who would have been with the transit authority four years on Thursday.

DeKalb County police supervisor Jim Newkirk said MARTA officials told them Mrs. Melley had signaled dispatchers around 8:30 p.m. that she was in trouble.

Police found the bus parked in a church parking lot near her Peachtree Road route in northern DeKalb County about 30 minutes later, but the driver was already dead, Newkirk said. She was found inside the vehicle.

The bus was parked at a Roman Catholic church on Lanier Drive not far from Oglethorpe University, the northernmost point on the bus's route from downtown Atlanta, Newkirk said.

Non-striking controllers want recognition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorneys for approximately 3,200 unionized air traffic controllers who refused to strike last August are asking that they be recognized as the only voice of the decertified Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization.

The lawyers said in papers delivered to the Labor Department Monday that the workers who elected not to join the walkout by most of the unionized controllers now are the "only lawful and bonafide members of PATCO."

A spokesman for the non-striking workers, Stephan Lesher, said the department has the authority to rule that the controllers who belonged to PATCO but remained on the job — who are calling themselves "Concerned Air Traffic Controllers" — represent the only voice of the union.

Representatives of the Concerned Air Traffic Controllers had said last week they want to conduct union elections, gain access to union money and be recognized as the official bargaining agent for FAA controllers in contract negotiations with the government.

In the papers they filed, attorneys for the non-striking controllers accused the PATCO leadership of "a breach of trust," contending that union leaders concerned themselves only with the needs of the approximately 11,500 who struck, while paying little attention to those who remained on the job and continued to pay dues until the union was decertified in October.

Lesher said controllers who ignored the Aug. 3 walkout by most PATCO members had paid $478,000 in dues through Oct. 3. The Federal Labor Relations Board ordered the union stripped of its exclusive recognition status Oct. 22, a decision the union is appealing.

President Reagan fired the controllers who struck the FAA, and has steadfastly refused to consider reinstating them.

Matthau, Crosby to join crowd on boulevard

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Walter Matthau and comedian Norm Crosby will get their wish upon a star this year, according to the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce.

Matthau will receive a star on the "Walk of Fame" next to Jack Lemmon's. Crosby's will go between Red Skelton's and Jack Benny's.

Matthau

Chamber publicist Therese Wells said it's not unusual for celebrities to pick the spot they want for the sidewalk stars along Hollywood Boulevard and Vine Street, and the chamber tries to cooperate when possible.

"We'll be putting Walter Matthau in next to Jack Lemmon" on March 10 in the 6300 block of Hollywood Boulevard, she said. Lemmon and Matthau have co-starred in such films as "The Fortune Cookie," "The Odd Couple" and the just-released "Buddy, Buddy."

Crosby "roamed Hollywood Boulevard. He actually looked for the spot he'd like," said publicist Gene Shefrin, noting there was a blank star between Benny and Skelton. The star will be installed in the 6600 block of Hollywood Boulevard on Feb. 24, Ms. Wells said.

Crosby

There are 2,500 stars along Hollywood Boulevard from Gower to LaBrea and Vine Street between Yucca and Sunset. "Roughly we've got about 750 blank ones left," said Ms. Wells, adding it will take about 60 years to fill all the blanks at a dozen a year.

NEW YORK (AP) — Television news anchors would rather read or listen to music than watch the tube in their spare time, but they view enough to say that Jessica Savitch and Dan Rather are the sexiest network broadcasters, a new survey says.

The survey, prepared as part of a promotional program for the Scotch Whisky Information Center, was released Monday and questioned 100 anchors at 85 television stations in 24 metropolitan areas.

Rather anchors the "CBS Evening News" and Miss Savitch is a weekend anchor for "NBC Nightly News."

More than half of those asked said they watch less than 10 hours of television a week, with only 12 percent listing TV viewing as their favorite leisure activity. Eighty percent of the respondents said they would rather read than watch TV, and 72 percent would rather listen to music than watch the tube.

•

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Jessica Lange is being sued by her filmmaker husband, Paco Grande, for $800 a week in temporary alimony, Grande's laywer says.

Grande is legally blind and lives on $85 a week in a shabby lower East Side building, according to his lawyer, Lawrence Fabian. A lawsuit seeking a divorce and alimony was filed in the latter part of 1980, shortly after Grande and Miss Lange separated, Fabian said. The actress since has had a child fathered by ballet star Mikhail Baryshnikov.

Miss Lange's lawyer, Maurice Spanbock, declined comment on the suit Monday.

•

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joe Hamilton, comedian Carol Burnett's husband, is recovering from a "moderate" heart attack suffered at his son's wedding last week and "the prognosis is good," a spokesman says.

Hamilton, a television producer, was stricken Thursday at the wedding of his son by a previous marriage, John, to Marion McCarter, said Miss Burnett's publicist, Rick Ingersoll.

Miss Burnett postponed a scheduled Jan. 8 weeklong guest appearance on ABC's daytime soap opera "All My Children," Ingersoll said.

•

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Producer Norman Lear and his partner Jerry Perencho have closed a deal to buy Avco Embassy Pictures, reportedly for about $25 million.

Perencho and Lear, creator of TV series such as "All in the Family," "Maude" and "Diff'rent Strokes," are partners in TAT Communications. TAT Communications spokeswoman Barbara Brogliatti said Monday the price of the movie company was not officially disclosed but the $25 million figure "seems to be the one most often mentioned" in industry publications.

Is big car comeback in the offing?

By STEPHEN JONES
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Despite years of talk about the auto industry's move toward smaller cars, the only Ford Motor Co. factory building cars this week is turning out full-sized luxury models.

While Ford's 18 other assembly plants in North America are closed to reduce inventories spawned by a sales slump, the plant in suburban Wixom keeps building Continentals, Lincolns and Mark VIs to meet a strenghtening consumer demand for big cars.

"We have seen a strong surge in the large and luxury car segments" of the car market, J.E. Cappy, general marketing manager of Ford's Lincoln-Mercury division, said Monday.

"Those cars have reflected a great strength right through the model year."

It's happening to other automakers, too. At the end of November, full-sized and luxury models generally were in shortest supply while the manufacturers had huge backlogs of many compacts and subcompacts.

Ward's Automotive Reports, an industry journal, listed 24 compact and subcompact models, of which 15 had inventories of 90 days or more on Nov. 30. Only three were in shorter than 60-days' supply. Automakers generally prefer to keep a 60-day supply of cars on hand.

Of 18 full-sized and luxury car lines, only three had backlogs of more than 90 days and eight had inventories of fewer than 60 days.

"One theory is only the affluent can buy cars right now," said David Healy, an analyst for Drexel Burnham Lambert in New York.

But another reason may be that the gap in prices between big and little cars is shrinking. At the same time, gasoline prices are holding steady and the manufacturers have been able to improve the mileage on the larger models, making them more attractive.

At General Motors Corp., only two of five divisions — Cadillac and Oldsmobile — sold more cars in the Jan. 1-Dec. 20 period of 1981 than they did in the same period a year earlier. For comparison, sales of Cadillacs increased 9.6 percent in 1981, while sales of compact Chevrolet Citations dropped 19.7 percent.

At Oldsmobile, sales of Olds 98 and Olds 88 models rose 13.9 percent and 6.7 percent respectively, while compact Pontiac Phoenix and subcompact Chevrolet Chevette models slumped 16.7 percent and 7.1 percent.

At Ford, sales for full-size models did fall from 1980 figures, but still fared better than their compact and subcompact counterparts.

Industrywide, 1981 car sales are off 4.9 percent through Dec. 20.

"There was always more demand (for big cars) than the sales showed," said John Stewart, GM marketing director. "When the initial panic (of 1973-74) was over, you got some of that reflected. The same is true now."

Prices for new compacts and subcompacts have gone up more than prices for the traditional larger models. Part of that increase is due to expensive new technology developed for the smaller cars, but automakers also have tried to squeeze more profit out of smaller cars, which now account for more than 60 percent of the total new car market. The result has been that the price gap has narrowed.

"You can buy a Chevy Caprice (full-sized) for about the same price as a Cavalier (subcompact)," Healy said. "Gasoline prices have really been flat for a year now and the prices of the new subcompacts are really pretty high."

Scowcroft expected negotiator

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retired Air Force Gen. Brent Scowcroft is expected to be appointed special U.S. negotiator for the Israeli-Egyptian talks on Palestinian self-rule, according to informed sources.

Also, other sources said Monday, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. will go to Israel and Egypt next week to discuss the autonomy negotiations and other issues. The Mideast trip will come after Haig attends a ministerial meeting on the Polish situation Jan. 11 in Brussels, Belgium.

Scowcroft would be the third special U.S. negotiator since the Palestinian autonomy talks began after Egypt and Israel signed their peace pact in March 1979. He served as national security adviser during the Ford administration.

'Classic' job discrimination said to exist in postal system

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associatd Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service provides "a classic example" of job discrimination, the only black member of its governing board charges.

Timothy L. Jenkins, a board member since 1980, outlined his complaints in an article in "Postal Life," a magazine distributed by the Postal Service to its employees.

"While males had seven times the success in attaining supervisory responsibilities as did minority persons and a three times greater success than did women, black employees of the Postal Service were disproportionately clustered in lower-paying jobs," he said.

Jenkins cited statistics provided the board last year to support his contentions.

He said he was "shocked to find" that white men occupied all five regional chief postal inspectors positions, 15 of 17 field postal inspectors-in-charge jobs, and 18 of 19 field assistant regional chief inspectors places.

Jenkins, chairman of a management consultant firm and a former assistant to the chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, said the commission receives more complaints from postal employees than from all other federal agencies combined.

Minorities and women account for about 40 percent of the Postal Service work force of more than 600,000 employees.

Jenkins also expressed frustration at delays in reaching a decision in a class-action suit accusing the Postal Service of racial discrimination in the Charlotte, N.C. area.

The case, now on appeal after a U.S. District Court judge ruled against the Postal Service, has been in litigation for almost nine years, and a similar Florida case has been pending without trial for more than four years, he said.

"Discrimination must be rooted out and not just trimmed. This is why I bring these facts to your attention," Jenkins said.

Announcing Midland National's Floating Rate 18-Month CD for THE NEW IRA:

The difference between simply retiring, and retiring well.

Ring Out the Old.
IRA's (Individual Retirement Accounts) have been around for a couple of years. Originally, IRA's were designed to provide people with tax deductions now, and additional income beyond Social Security benefits upon retirement. Unfortunately, only a limited group of people qualified.

Ring Up the New.
Under the New IRA, every working American is eligible. Financial consultants call it Congress' greatest gift to working Americans in 50 years. Indeed, the New IRA could mean the difference between simply retiring, and retiring well.
Beginning January 1, 1982, you can invest up to $2,000 ($2,250 per couple with one working spouse; $4,000 with both husband and wife employed) in an IRA and deduct this investment on your income tax return. By the time a 25-year-old reaches retirement at 65, for example, he or she could retire with over a million dollars.

Age	$4,000 Annually*	$2,250 Annually*	$2,000 Annually*
25	$3,436,569	$1,933,070	$1,718,285
30	$1,933,852	$1,087,792	$ 966,926
35	$1,081,170	$ 608,158	$ 540,585
40	$ 597,336	$ 336,001	$ 298,668
45	$ 322,795	$ 181,572	$ 161,397
50	$ 167,013	$ 93,945	$ 83,506
55	$ 78,618	$ 44,223	$ 39,309
60	$ 28,461	$ 16,009	$ 14,230
65	$ 4,480	$ 2,520	$ 2,240

Based on an average rate of 12%. Federal regulations require a substantial penalty for early withdrawal.
*Future value of dollars invested with annual deposits, annual compounding and annual interest rate of 12%. This table is for example purposes only. Actual rates, investment amounts, frequency of deposits and method of compounding interest may vary.

The Midland National Advantage.
To broaden your investment option, Midland National is introducing an 18-Month Certificate of Deposit for the New IRA. You simply open this IRA with a CD (minimum of $500), and you may add to it with deposits of $100 or more without extending maturity. The floating weekly rate is tied to the 6-Month Money Market CD.

Real Security vs. Social Security.
Midland National's 18-Month CD for the New IRA, unlike Social Security, is insured by the FDIC. And it's a sure way to get the tax break you need now, while assuring yourself a comfortable retirement later. For more information, call our IRA specialist, Venita Gaston, Assistant Cashier, 685-5292.

No deals with terrorists

Even though Italy's Red Brigades could not realistically expect the Reagan administration to meet their ransom demands for the return of their kidnap victim, Brig. Gen. James Dozier, still it's a good thing Washington has left no doubt of its intentions. There will be no negotiations with the kidnappers.

Italy's Premier Giovanni Spadolini has also made clear his government's determination against any deal with the Red Brigades and he has told the world that the United States supports him.

Meanwhile, the most extensive manhunt is being conducted in Italy since the Red Brigades murdered former Italian Prime Minister Aldo Moro in 1978. We can assume the first American victim of Red Brigades terrorism has resulted in the involvement of U.S. military and intelligence resources to aid in the search.

The capture of an American general serving in the NATO command structure is being seen as a quantum escalation of the Red Brigades' tactics that are closely coordinated with an international network of Communist terrorists. In a remarkably candid communique issued shortly after Gen. Dozier's abduction, the Red Brigades boasted of an "organization of Communist combat," including by name: The Red Brigades of Italy, the Red Army Faction (Baader-Meinhof Gang) in West Germany, the Provisional IRA in Northern Ireland, the Basque ETA in Spain. The communique described the United States as the supreme villain to be fought and the Soviet Union as the hero to be defended.

In fact, the international terrorist network proclaimed by the Red Brigades has been confirmed by recent events. Three months before Gen. Dozier was kidnapped, the German Red Army Faction fired a Soviet-made rocket at the armored car of Gen. Frederick Kroesen, who commands all U.S. forces in Europe. The missile missed him by inches. A few weeks earlier, terrorists were responsible for 11 coordinated bomb attacks on American military installations in Germany.

Claire Sterling, author of The Terror Network and a recognized world authority on terrorism, warns that the terrorist attacks against U.S. military installations and top U.S. commanders points "to the likelihood of renewed, protracted, and bitter terrorist warfare in Europe." She predicts that all of this "does not augur well for Gen. Dozier," who, she says, will first be exploited for his propaganda value.

The Dozier episode is unusually significant because it is the first test of resolve in the apparent open warfare being waged by the international terrorists against Western nations. As painful as it must be, neither the United States nor any of its allies can afford to reward terrorist crimes in order to ransom terrorist victims. For to do so would be to invite greater crimes and greater ransom demands. Nevertheless, if total prevention against terrorism is beyond the power of the NATO allies, punishment is not.

Accordingly, in a more forceful way than it has yet demonstrated, the Reagan administration should warn the Red Brigades that no stone will be left unturned in bringing them to justice.

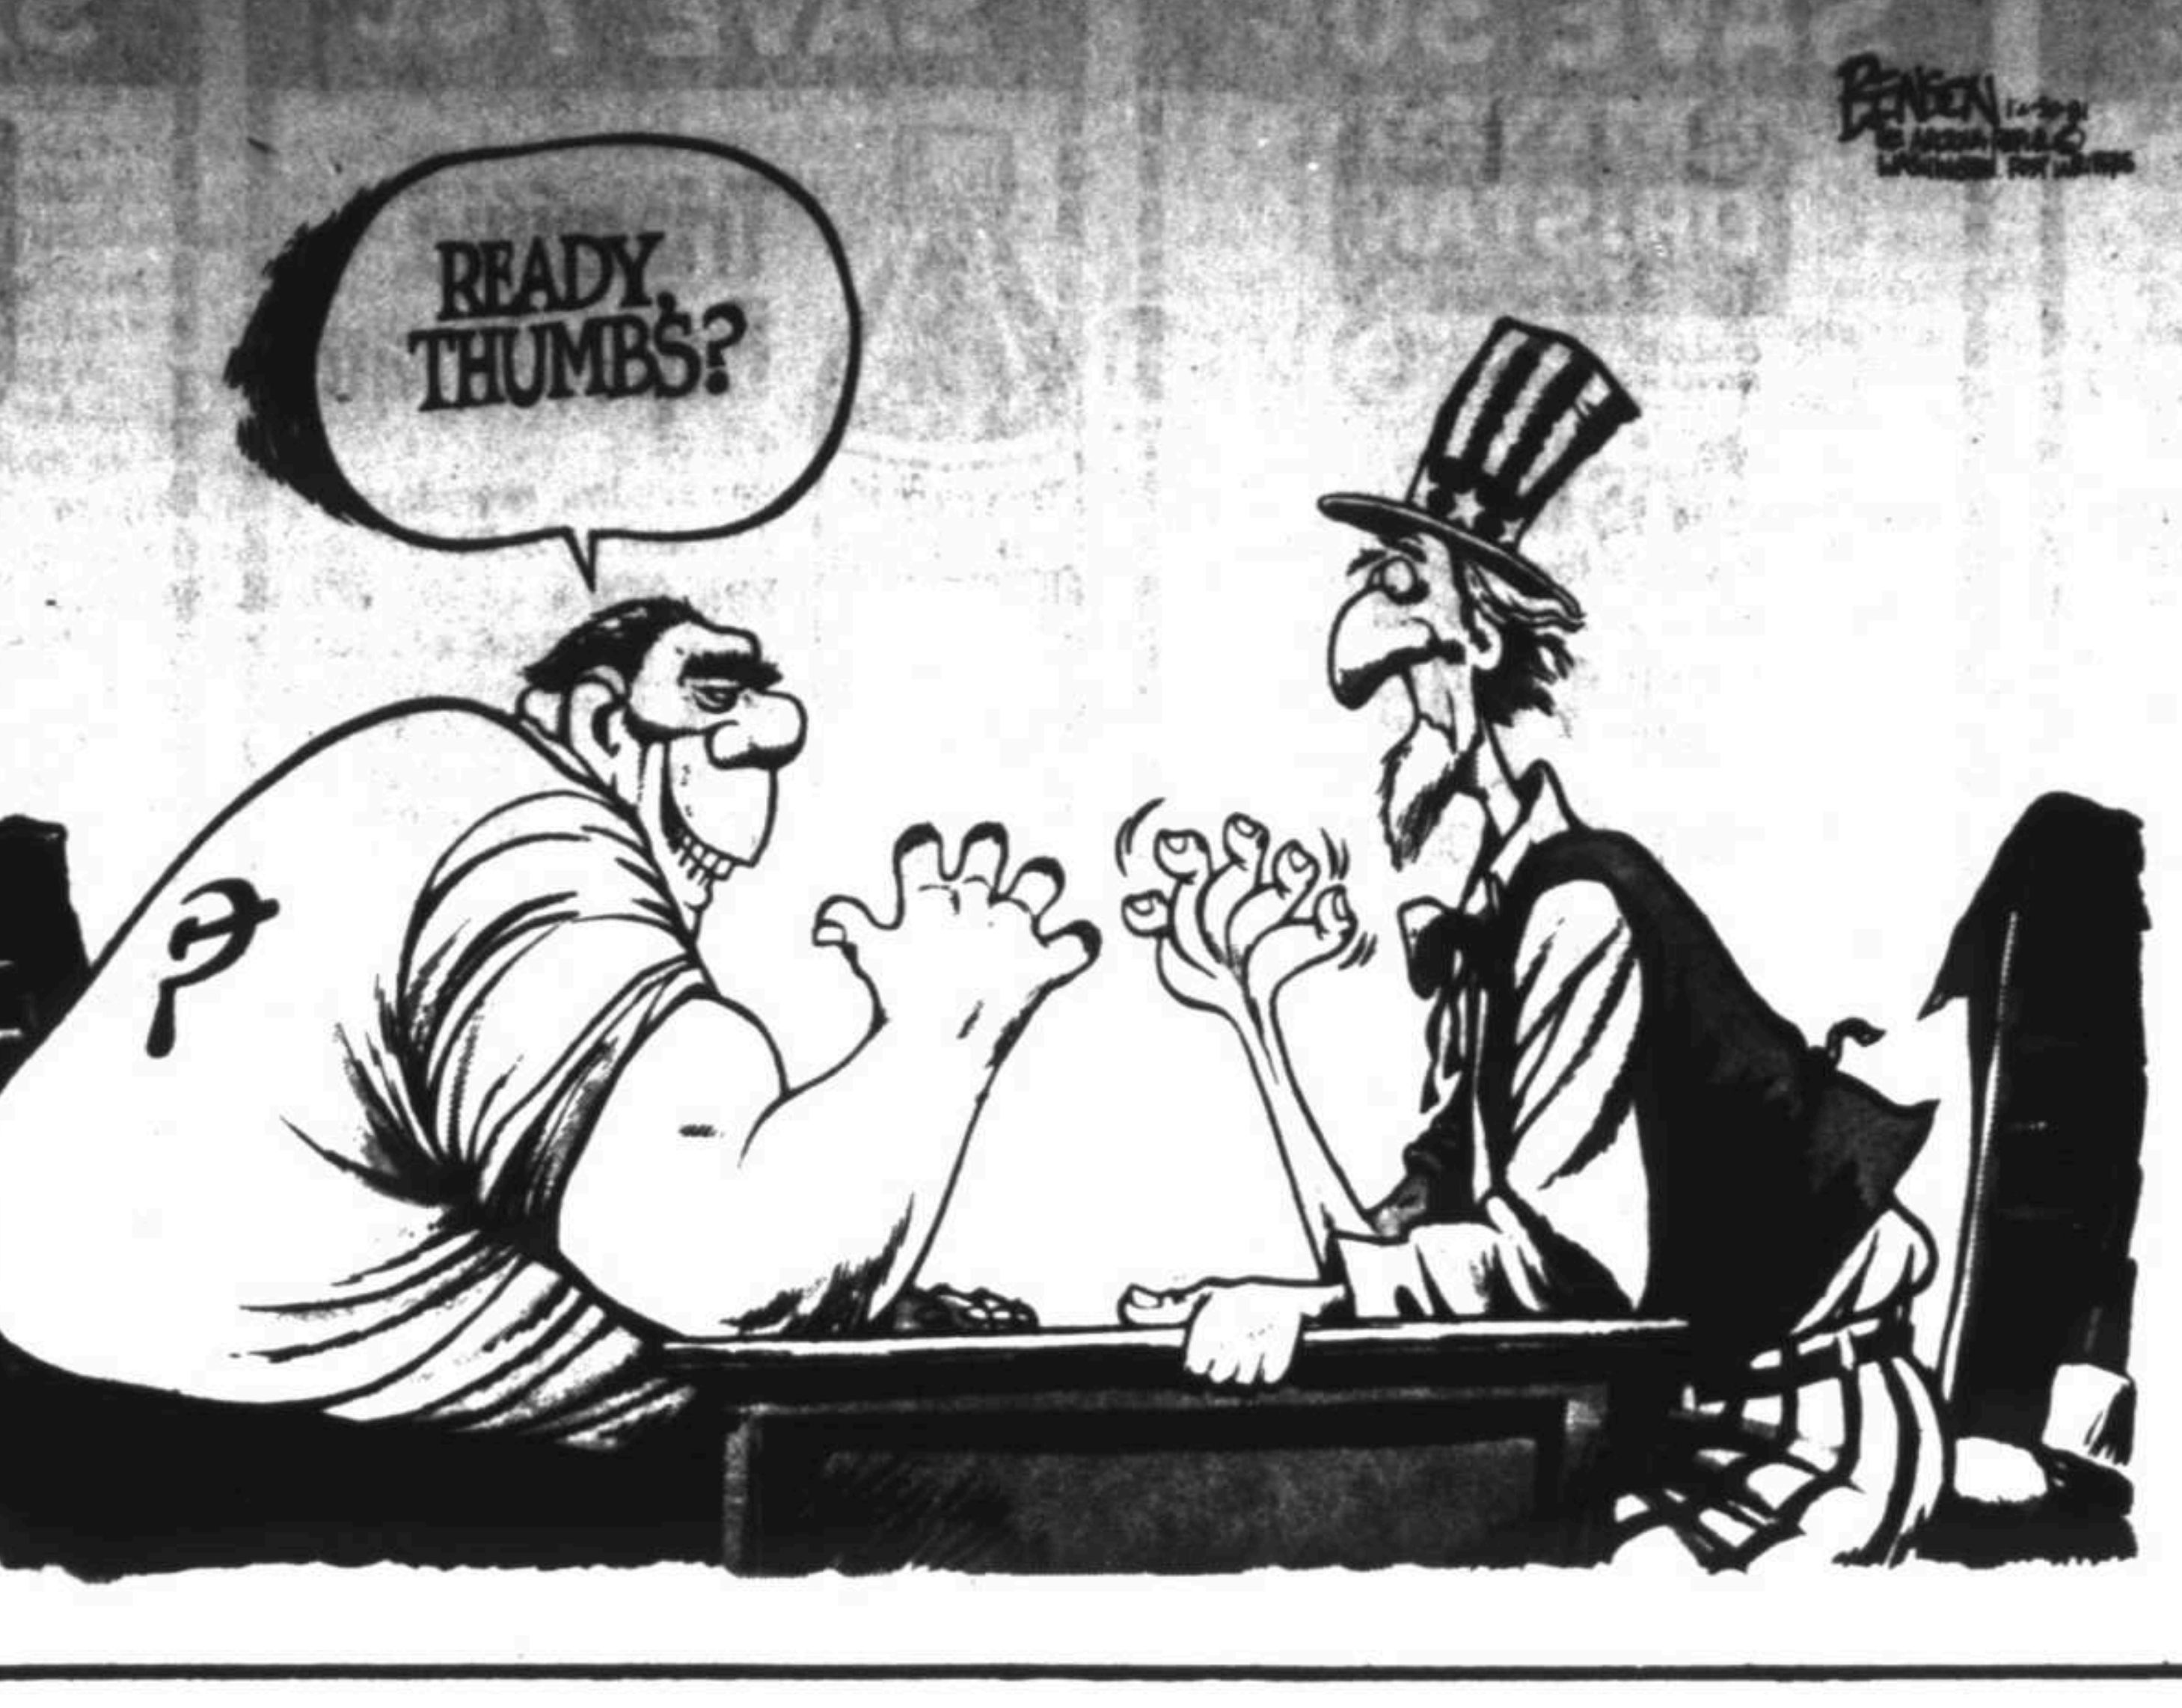
Stardust memories

Obituaries can tell the story of Hoagy Carmichael, but they can't explain it. This boy from Bloomington, Ind., was supposed to be a lawyer. He is said to have sketched out the melody of "Stardust" on the flyleaf of a lawbook, passing the time in his law office waiting for clients that rarely came in.

Those mysterious qualities that create our musicians and poets are bestowed by the muses with no respect for law degrees and other attempts to establish what people are going to do with their lives. Much will be said about Hoagy Carmichael's talent, and we would add a word about his courage in admitting his first choice of a profession was a mistake and enduring lean years on Tin Pan Alley doing what he really wanted to do.

And what he obviously was meant to do. It is hard to imagine the years from the 1930s onward in America without the accompaniment of Carmichael tunes. They remain like a pressed flower in a generation's memory-book, evoking dreams fulfilled and dreams denied, from puppy-love to steaming romance.

No one can say exactly what imparts a special magic to melodies like "Stardust," "Lazy Bones," or "Georgia On My Mind." All we can say is that few modern composers knew as well as Hoagy Carmichael how to reach with music into the most sensitive corners of the human heart. It is there that we feel the sad silence of his passing.



WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Jews being turned into Polish scapegoats

WASHINGTON — An ugly development is being monitored in the confidential cables from Poland. The military regime might be setting up Poland's tiny Jewish population as scapegoats for the misery that is sweeping across that tragic land.

Jack Anderson

The estimated 6,000 Jews remaining in Poland — mostly the elderly, pitiful survivors of the Nazi Holocaust — represent no threat to the regime. But they can be useful in the historic role of Jewish minorities in Europe — to deflect attention from corrupt, repressive regimes during times of public discontent.

The evidence so far is inconclusive. But the Polish authorities appear to be playing the Machiavellian game of blaming Solidarity for the anti-semitic attacks, thus discrediting the labor union, while at the same time suggesting that Solidarity is itself a nest of "Zionists."

Just 10 days after martial law was imposed upon Poland, the State Department cabled U.S. embassies in Warsaw and Vienna to watch for indications that the reported anti-semitic incidents were centrally coordinated.

"We would appreciate your giving Polish publications and Warsaw radio broadcasts special scrutiny for signs of anti-semitism," the cable requested.

The next day, the Vienna embassy cabled back a report that anti-semitic leaflets indeed have been circulating in Poland. The leaflets were described as inflammatory.

One leaflet slyly tried to hit the Polish masses where they live. It contained "a reference to Jews not having to stand in line to receive seven pounds of Kosher meat a week," the embassy cabled. The pathetic Jews in Poland are more likely to be found at the end of the food lines, but the report would cause resentment among a populace that has to stand in line for hours in hopes of getting its meager meat ration.

The confidential diplomatic cables disclose that a major distributor of anti-semitic leaflets is the so-called "Grunwald Group" — an ultranationalist, possibly neo-Nazi organization that surfaced last year as a counterforce to Solidarity.

Sources told my associate Lucette Lagnado that the Grunwald Group was set up with the approval of the Communist authorities — not the first time Lenin's disciples have set aside ideological purity for the sake of expediency. Anyway, it is obvious that its recent activities have the military regime's blessing.

Grunwald's anti-semitic propaganda leaflets have been sent abroad bearing a Gdansk postmark, "in an apparent effort to discredit Solidarity," the cable from Vienna reported. (Gdansk was the birthplace of Solidarity.) Since the declaration of martial law, the embassy cable noted, "this could not have been done — because of censorship rules — without the connivance of hardliners in the Politburo ... "

As for the source of the anti-semitic poison, the Vienna embassy cabled that the leaflets emanate from "a neo-Nazi movement in Sweden, which smuggled the leaflets into Poland."

The State Department investigation is being pursued primarily by the Human Rights Bureau under its newly appointed chief, Assistant Secretary of State Elliott Abrams.

The department's experts see no signs yet that Poland's Jewish community is in any physical danger, but they can't be certain whether respect for world opinion would lead the Communist regime to protect its Jews in the event of "spontaneous" outbursts ignited by the anti-semitic hate literature. In its attempt to paint Solidarity as both anti-semitic and Jewish-dominated, the Polish government may have sown the wind — but it is Poland's Jews who will reap the whirlwind.

TRICKLE-DOWN SAFETY?: To placate Detroit's automakers, the Reagan administration rescinded a federal safety regulation that would have required either airbags or automatic seat belts on new cars starting with the 1983 model year. This ignored the government's own estimates that airbags could save 8,000 lives a year.

Ironically, just as airbags have been rejected for the masses, the safety feature is becoming a trendy item for the well-to-do. Mercedes, BMW and possibly other manufacturers are quietly — if provisionally — planning to install airbags on their luxury model cars.

Ford, which has shown less enthusiasm for airbags than most other carmakers, possesses a dramatic example of the device's merit. One of the company's own safety experts was saved from serious injury when his Continental's airbag inflated on cue after a 40-mile-an-hour collision. The confidential Ford report on the incident said:

"Deployment of the driver unit (bag) resulted in prevention of potentially ... serious injuries ... The air bags deployed and the driver felt himself being restrained ... There were no lacerations or soreness ... There were no head injuries of any kind."

A few weeks ago, a Dearborn, Mich., policeman was similarly saved by the airbag in his Continental doing 30 mph. The officer was uninjured. "Those airbags are worth their weight in gold," he reported.

CHARLEY REESE

Constitutional solution is needed

Commentators and columnists by necessity often operate in a negative mode, to use computer jargon, so, for once, I would like to answer the question, "Okay, Smart-Mouth, what do you think we ought to do?"

Charley Reese

Well, we ought to scrap the present tax code and start over. We should levy a flat 10 percent tax on personal and corporate income, straight off the top with no deductions. In other words, tax gross income. This would not only simplify the system, but would also eliminate the inequities. We should also remove the neat little gimmick of allowing multinational corporations to deduct on a dollar for dollar basis from their U.S. taxes the amount they pay in taxes to foreign governments. This is nothing more than the U.S. taxpayers subsidizing a foreign operation.

We should abolish the Federal Reserve System, a private central bank, and place control of money and credit back into the hands of the Congress where the Constitution put it.

We should withdraw from the United Nations, the International Monetary Fund, and the World Bank. These are only gimmicks which the globalists use to further their own private ends. They are also used to sucker the American taxpayer into financing hostile powers.

We should nullify the NATO Treaty and bring our 300,000 Americans home. NATO is now out of date. The West Europeans don't want to fight the Soviet Union or liberate Eastern Europe or even spend a lot of money on their own defense. Nor does the Soviet Union want to invade Western Europe. Why should it? It can barely control Eastern Europe and it already gets everything it wants from Western Europe in trade and credit anyway.

As soon as our troops are out of Europe and we have made it clear to the Soviet Union that we don't care whether they invade Europe or not, we should declare war on Cuba and Nicaragua and remove these two Soviet outposts in our hemisphere. Then we should re-proclaim the Monroe Doctrine by making clear that we will not tolerate a Marxist government in the Western Hemisphere.

Having settled that, we should then dispense with the myth of free trade and erect high tariffs to protect basic American industry. This would stop the multinationals from closing down plants in the United States, moving them to sweatshops in foreign countries, and then exporting the final product to America. It's stupid to ask an American worker to compete with a Mexican peon or a Chinese coolee and it's stupid to let financiers erode the industrial base of this nation for the sake of short term higher profits.

We should re-establish a fair literacy test for voters and exclude anyone who is receiving an unearned government subsidy. There is no logical or sound philosophical reason to turn government over to people too lazy or too ignorant to have any but a selfish, narrow interest in it.

We should limit the terms a politician can stay in office and drastically reduce the salaries and perks. Public service should be a public service, not a profitable lifetime career.

We should end foreign aid, all federal welfare, all federal grants and subsidies, all federal aid and interference in education, and reduce government regulation to its proper function which is to protect against fraud. At the same time, we should pass some anti-monopoly laws with teeth in them and bust up most of giant corporations. If the government needs a solution to a problem, we could offer prizes for answers instead of giving grants to idiots to rephrase the question.

The most revolutionary thing I would propose is that we obey the Constitution.

INSIDE REPORT:

NSC reorganization may send William Clark to White House

WASHINGTON — A long overdue upgrading of the National Security Council (NSC) staff was approved in detail by President Reagan last week, with strong prospects that Deputy Secretary of State William Clark will succeed Richard V. Allen, now cleared by the Justice Department but still on furlough.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

Clark's switch to the White House, while still not assured, has been approved by Secretary of State Alexander Haig. The reorganization of the NSC staff, which has been in semi-limbo because of Reagan's former reluctance to see it gain the power it had in previous administrations, will give the new staff chief closer access to the president. If Clark gets the nod, he will immediately become a fourth member of the senior staff along with Edwin Meese III, James Baker III and Michael Deaver.

Reagan has heard strong advice from outside his White House staff to put a major figure like Clark or United Nations ambassador Jeanne Kirkpatrick into Allen's old slot, as well as giving the NSC staff much more influence.

A footnote: Reagan, searching for a top post for Allen, may send him to Brussels as the U.S. ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, or, conceivably, retain him briefly in his old job.

A PARIS SUMMIT

One piece of State Department advice that never saw the light of day would have sent President Reagan to Paris immediately after Christmas for a Big Five Western summit before threatening or imposing sanctions against the Soviet Union.

An internal State Department memorandum of Dec. 22 proposed that the president, in his Christmas message to the nation the next night, summon the heads of government of Britain, France, West Germany and Italy to Paris to discuss the Polish crisis. While there, the memo added, Reagan could attend a special mass to pray for Poland.

Describing the proposed summit as a way "to build an allied consensus" on Poland, the memo reflected State Department concern for Western unity even at the cost of delaying U.S. action. There is no sign the Paris summit idea received serious consideration at the White House.

BARRY JR. LIVES

Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr., the early front-runner, is still considered the man to beat for the 1982 Republican Senate nomination in California even though his lead in the polls has been sagging.

The main reason: His campaign war chest is now full, thanks to a highly-effective national fund-raising letter written by his father, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona. The need for multimarket television exposure means that no financially-threadbare campaign has any hope in California.

Goldwater's principal challenger, Mayor Pete Wilson of San Diego, never has been forgiven by many party activists for aggressively opposing Ronald Reagan's 1976 presidential bid. Accordingly, the biggest threat to Goldwater could turn out to be Rep. Robert Dornan, a flamboyant conservative who also is raising a bountiful war chest.

ANGER AT TRUDEAU

From top to bottom, the Reagan administration was infuriated by Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's statement that if martial law in Poland prevents civil war "then I can't say it is bad."

Trudeau also refused to halt a half billion dollars in food credits to Poland's military dictatorship, despite the U.S. decision to end all food shipments except those closely-monitored by charitable organizations, including the Catholic Church.

High administration officials here were astonished at Trudeau's apparent willingness to accept any regime at all in Poland so long as the Soviet Union did not invade with its own forces. In his recent press conference, Trudeau said, "There are circumstances where order has to be imposed," precisely the line taken by the military junta. President Reagan's policy, canceling all U.S. aid and demanding a return of Solidarity, is exactly opposite to Trudeau's.

KIRKLAND PICKS SEEGER

Signaling his plans for broadened influence in the Democratic Party, AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland has hired Murray Seeger, a nationally-known newspaper reporter and foreign correspondent as the labor organization's chief public relations official.

Seeger recently resigned as longtime Moscow correspondent of the Los Angeles Times, after reporting stints for Newsweek, The New York Times and the Cleveland Plain Dealer. He will be in charge of an office with expanded powers, including supervision over all AFL-CIO publications and full access to Kirkland and his Executive Council. The fact that he is well-known to Washington reporters and editors was a major factor in Kirkland's decision.

Although Kirkland and President Reagan see eye-to-eye on most foreign policy issues, including Reagan's anti-Soviet hard-line response to the Polish crisis, the top boss of big labor has led the political battle against Reagan's domestic programs. He plans a key AFL-CIO role for the Democrats in the 1984 presidential campaign in which Seeger's experience outside the labor movement is expected to be of major help.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Jan. 5, the fifth day of 1982. There are 358 days left in the year.

On this date:

In 1973, U.S. airlines began routine scanning of passengers with electronic weapons-detectors following a big increase in the number of hijacked planes.

In 1976, South Africa permitted television after years of resistance on grounds that TV might be morally corrupting or promote racial integration.

And in 1978, while visiting Normandy, France, President Jimmy Carter said the United States was determined that Europe's freedom never again would be endangered.

Ten years ago: President Nixon approved development of the space shuttle.

One year ago: Despite the opposition of President-elect Ronald Reagan, the Selective Service began registering teen-agers born in 1962 for a military draft.

Today's birthday: King Juan Carlos of Spain is 44.

Thought for Today: "Vanity plays lurid tricks with our memory." — Joseph Conrad, novelist, 1857-1924).

Nitinol — miracle metal has a memory of its own

By ALISON O'NEILL
(c) 1981, The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — It can straighten teeth and may intercept blood clots. It can stop runaway trains and put out fires. It could help send telephone conversations hundreds of miles.

This miracle worker is a metal called Nitinol, a material with a "memory."

The name explains its origins, both physical and historical: It is alloy of nickel (hence the first syllable of its name) and titanium (the second syllable) developed at the Naval Ordnance Laboratory (third syllable), now called the Naval Surface Weapons Center, in White Oak, Md.

Nitinol and its powers were first uncovered in 1962 by a Navy physicist who was looking for a way to get Navy missiles through the heat of reentry into the atmosphere. Since that time, experiments in both the public and private sectors have revealed a myriad of uses for Nitinol.

The metal derives its powers from "shape memory," which is activated by changes in temperature. This phenomenon is most simply demonstrated by dipping a long, thin strip of Nitinol into a container of ice water. Upon removal, the once-rigid strip becomes flexible and can be bent into a "U" shape. Then, upon reaching room temperature, the strip will straighten itself again, returning to the shape it "remembers" as its original state.

The principle behind many of the feats Nitinol can help perform is that, when its shape changes, force is created. Therefore, if overheated bearings on a freight train car begin to cause its axles to fail, a piece of Nitinol in the braking apparatus can be activated by the heat, causing the metal to shorten and release a spring-loaded pin, which in turn starts to put the brakes in motion. A similar reaction takes place when a fire sets off a Nitinol-controlled sprinkler system.

Navy physicist David Goldstein, an ebullient man skilled at explaining the intricacies of the physics of Nitinol and the explorations of its possible uses, says, "The military uses (for Nitinol) are, of course, our prime mission in life — its use in piping systems aboard ship and tubing systems aboard aircraft. We would like to see private industry pick up Nitinol and make usable items for the Navy."

Indeed, private industry has not let the public patent on Nitinol lie dormant. Goldstein said representatives of Raychem Corp., of Menlo Park, Calif., saw Nitinol being demonstrated at a trade show and turned around and developed "shrink-fit plastic tubing" for pipes in Navy ships and, later, weldless connectors for the tubing in F-14 fighter planes.

"The fiber optic system will carry as much message traffic as a phone cable three inches in diameter," he said. "It's the coming thing in communications ... The problem is that you can't use one glass fiber over 650 miles, so if the (connecting) fibers are one-half misaligned, you lose information.

He added that he expects the Nitinol fiber connector to do the trick.

Possible biomedical uses of the metal have spawned testing of a Nitinol blood-clot filter that would be inserted into the body in its straight, low-temperature shape and which, when heated by the blood, would return to the filter shape it had when it was originally created. In orthodontistry, braces made of Nitinol have proven less painful than those made of stainless steel.

Three 'cats staked in 8, 8A

Midland operators have staked wildcats in Mitchell and Martin counties, district 8. A Shreveport firm plans to drill Scurry County, district 8A.

MITCHELL POST HOLE

Cantrell Corp., Midland, has staked a 750-foot wildcat 13 miles south of Colorado City.

The No. 1 Winn will be located 1980 feet from the north and east lines of section 9, block 13, H&TC survey.

Apparently there are no wells of comparable depth near the drillsite.

MARTIN WIDCAT

Monsanto Co., Midland, will drill the No. 1 University to 13,300 feet, 14 miles northwest of Tarzan.

The site is 3/4 of a mile south of Devonian production at 12,280 feet in the Block 7 field. The field discovery well, Texaco's No. 1 "X", was drilled to 13,420 feet, the plugged back from field pay to 5,435 feet.

The new project spsots 660 feet from the north, and 1,980 feet from the east line of section 26, block 7, University Lands survey.

SCURRY VENTURE

IMC Exploration, Shreveport, La., will sink the 8,100-foot wildcat No. 1 T.S. Conarde, 10 miles west of Ira.

The stake is 467 feet from the south, and 1,800 feet from the west line of section 84, block 20, LaVaca navigation Co. Survey.

Within a 5/8 mile radius of the drillsite are six dry and abandoned holes with depths ranging from 7,330 feet to 7,575 feet.

GLASSCOCK DISCOVERY

Lario Oil & Gas, Odessa, has completed the No. 1-X Cooper, as a lower Wolfcamp oil discovery, 14 miles northwest of Garden City.

The well flowed 642 barrels of 47 gravity oil through a 16/64 inch choke, plus 31 barrels of water.

Production was through perforations between 9,619 and 9,825 feet which had been acidized with 4,000 gallon, and fractured with 12,000 gallons.

It was drilled to 10,096 feet, with five inch casing set at 10,060 feet.

The wellsite is in section 34, block 35, T-2-S, T&P survey.

'Final' offshore oil payment made to Louisiana

By BILL CRIDER
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The federal government's 'final' payment to Louisiana to end the old tidelands fight fell about $3 million short of the expected $21.5 million.

"This is still not the end," said state Attorney General William Guste in announcing the $17.8 million payment Monday.

Guste said state and federal accountants will meet soon to hash out their differences.

These include $788,000 in royalties which the state claims as its due from 19 offshore wells drilled since the final accounting started, and $1.29 million in wildfall profits kept by the federal government. Guste contends the state is exempt from such tax and the money must be returned.

"Further, we believe that the United States has withheld an additional $1.6 million for unexplained reasons," Guste told a news conference.

The settlement was supposed to be the final payment in the legal fight over the exact location of Louisiana's territorial boundry in the Gulf of Mexico — three miles off a meandering beach.

Within three miles, the state has jurisdiction. It sells seabottom leases to drillers and collects royalties, usually one sixth, from production. On the other side of the line, the federal government sells and collects.

Total payments to Louisiana involving disputed leases along the three-mile boundry is about $196 million so far.

In the over-all view, the state was a heavy loser in the territorial quarrel. Guste said the feds, at one point in the 1950s, offered a compromise settlement, which was rejected. It would have given Louisiana one-third of the income from oil or gas wells in the Gulf off Louisiana's shore, no matter what distance from the beach.

However, said Guste, the dominant voice in Louisiana's oil policy at the time was that of the late Leander Perez of Plaquemines Parish. Perez argued that, on his reading of the law, the state could get it all.

It was a costly decision for Louisiana.

Now there are thousands of oil and gas wells offshore, with drillers ranging to 100 miles out. The federal take, in lease payments and royalties from 1953 to 1979, runs to $34.5 billion. An estimate of payments to date would be around $40 billion.

One third of $40 billion would dwarf $196 million.

"But I am sure the federal government would have found some way to get it away from us," said Guste.

Sparkman pays dividend

CORPUS CHRISTI (SWN) — Sparkman Energy Corporation (ASE-SPM) announced its board of directors has declared a regular $0.25 per share dividend on the company's $1.00 cumulative convertible preferred stock. The dividend is payable January 29, 1982, to shareholders of record on January 15, 1982. Declaration date was December 30, 1981.

Sparkman Energy Corporation is listed on the American Stock Exchange under the symbol SPM. It is headquartered in Corpus Christi, Texas, and owns and operates natural gas pipelines, performs maintenance workovers and completion services on oil and gas wells, explores for and produces oil and gas, and trades in fuel oil and petroleum products.

MONAHANS — Rosary for Nina Aguilar, 70, of Monahans, mother of Bertha Garcia and Angela Najar of Midland, was to be recited at 7 p.m. today in the Wilson-Miller Funeral Home chapel here. Mass will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday in St. John's Catholic Church with burial in Grandfalls Cemetery.

Mrs. Aguilar died Sunday in a Lubbock hospital after a lengthy illness.

She was born April 28, 1911 in Fort Stockton. She had lived in Monahans since 1946. She was a housewife and a Catholic.

Other survivors include a daughter, three brothers, 10 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Fort Stockton area hit by earthquake Monday

FORT STOCKTON, Texas (AP) — An earthquake was felt in the Fort Stockton area at 10:56 a.m. Monday but no damage was reported, according to the National Earthquake Information Service in Golden, Colo.

The earthquake registered a magnitude of 3.8 on the Richter scale, said NEIS geophysicist Joe Minsch said in a telephone interview.

He said the NEIS received reports of the earthquake being felt as far as 20 miles to the north of Fort Stockton and 20 miles to the south.

The only other Fort Stockton-area earthquake in NEIS records measured 3.7 on the Richter scale in 1974 but the service received no reports of it being felt in the area, Minsch said. The NEIS is operated by the U.S. Geological Survey.

DC 10 engine troubles lead to another round of studies

By H. JOSEF HEBERT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air safety experts are scrutinizing engines on the DC-10 aircraft once again to determine whether improvements should be made to protect the plane in case of an engine breakup.

The new studies were ordered by the Federal Aviation Administration after an engine disintegrated, causing extensive damage to an Air Florida DC-10 last September. The pilot safely stopped the plane on the runway during a takeoff at Miami International Airport.

But the incident prompted new concerns among FAA officials about the DC-10 and its ability to survive even with an engine falling apart and the plane's lift devices damaged by flying parts.

Nearly three years ago, 273 people were killed when an engine on a DC-10 fell from its wing mount shortly after the plane took off from Chicago's O'Hare International Airport. And in 1977, the engine broke up on a DC-10 flown by an Asian airline, but the crew landed the plane safely.

Jaruzelski may expel union leaders

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Poland's martial law chief Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski indicated to Western European ambassadors that he might expel Solidarity leaders from Poland, diplomatic sources said today.

Jaruzelski, meeting in Warsaw with 10 Common Market ambassadors Monday, was imprecise and did not indicate whether Solidarity leader Lech Walesa might be among those expelled, according to the sources, who refused to be identified.

Walesa has been under house arrest since martial law was imposed Dec. 13.

Designer Sal Cesarani spiffs up black tie with a multicolored outfit, right. It includes madras jacket over dark vest, light trousers, wing-collared shirt and traditional black bow tie. At left, Piero Dimitri's forte, classic tailoring, is exemplified by the two-button houndstooth, side-vented jacket. Center, Dimitri's double-breasted two-button leather blazer.

Have wardrobe, will travel

By TIMOTHY HAWKINS
Special to Los Angeles Times

NEW YORK — Four menswear designers who gave spring-summer 1982 runway shows here recently could have all carried the same business card. It would have read: 'Have wardrobe, will travel."

Pinky & Dianne featured South American-inspired linen looks and Carnival in Rio silks in hot, bright colors. Sal Cesarani described his pastel seersucker suits, sailing whites and Madras jackets as clothes for commuting between town and country. Piero Dimitri's finely tailored suits, supple suede tops and casual belted jacket and cotton trouser outfits looked ideal for sojourns to the Italian and French Rivieras. And Ron Chereskin's sporty separates seemed suited for the young man whose idea of "going the distance" is the trip from the office to the health club.

A samba soundtrack at the Pinky & Dianne show set the mood for the design team's Rio-look — short-sleeve silk crepe de chine shirts in tropical and starfish prints. These brightly colored designs resembling Hawaiian luau shirts were shown with black, white or natural linen or silk trousers. These two young women who began as shirt designers still excel with tops, espeically with a Henley-collared silk shirt with solid body and wide-striped short sleeves, and a two-tone doctor's scrub shirt with V-neck and matching shorts in linen. Pinky & Dianne also make a smooth transition from silk to leather with a soft, cream suede blazer with subtle red and blue pin stripes.

Cesarani says the whole feeling of his spring-summer collection is "nostalgic — flashback with a modern American sense to it." His antique-striped dress shirts with contrasting collar, pastel sport jackets, varsity cardigan sweaters with sleeve stripes, subtle plaid suits in tropical wools with contrasting vest recall garden party get-ups and country club clothes of the pre-World War II era. There was also a strong yacht-club feeling to his white, captain's Bermuda shorts and matching epauletted shirt and to his yellow twill three-quarter-length schooner jacket worn with a white cotton knit sweat shirt and white china trousers. Cesarani also has a dapper group of evening looks, including sport jaket with high-notch lapels in turquoise, yellow, light blue, red or Madras plaid and dress trousers in white with a red or green leg stripe.

Although Dimitri has been designing in the United States for some years, his Italian heritage is always evident in the excellent tailoring of his suits. This influence extended to his sportswear in his strong use of leather: suede tops styled with deep V-neck and roll-up sleeves, scoop-neck tank tops and sleeveless shirts with abbreviated notch lapel, Dimitri's kimono-sleeved plaid cotton sport jacket, tie-belted at the waist, and his long-sleeved suede shirts tucked into cotton trousers cinched with a commerbund were reminiscent of something Rudolph Valentino might have worn on vacation.

Battered woman suffers setback

By LINDA ANDERSON
Lifestyle Writer

EDITOR'S NOTE: Although her name has been changed to protect her identity, the woman in this story is real and so is her situation.

Jane Doe had lived for years in constant fear of a husband who beat her. "He didn't have to be drunk to beat up on me...he thought it was big to beat up on me and brag about it," she said. "He didn't hurt the kids but he hurt me...he thought it was natural (to beat up on me.)"

Jane and her children transferred to Midland and the Center for Battered Women from another city and another center because "he was too close to finding us." She said she chose Midland because she had heard of the many job opportunites here.

Jane said she found work quickly. "We got in town on a Saturday and I had a job by Monday night."

"I'll work the rest of my life for these kids if I have to...I'd rather work the rest of my life than raise my kids like that (their former situation)," Jane said. "We've started church here."

Lillie Heitman, Assistant Director of the Center for Battered Women, said, "Jane has worked when she had the flu, when she had bronchitis so bad she could hardly breathe...has worked on her days off to get enough money for herself and her kids to move (into a place of their own)."

Jane located an apartment with a reasonable rent for herself and her children and was beginning to save up enough to enable them to move into it, when on December 27 her car was stolen.

On December 30 she was informed by the police that the car had been found, totally wrecked.

"There was $500-$600 damage to the car...and no leads to who did it," said Jane. "I owe $600 on the car (which must be paid off)."

Ms. Heitman said Jane has been working as hard as is possible in order for her and her children to have a home of their own and a stable family life, and she was just beginning to get on her feet when she lost her only means of transportation.

Jane said, "So far I have a ride to work...and hope to have a way to school for (my child)..." She has been "working nights and sleeping some in the daytime, an hour here, an hour there." But Jane's temporary ride to work will be ending in a few days.

Ms. Heitman said, "There's no way she can pay for a wrecked car plus get a new car plus pay rent plus child care."

A special account called the Sally Brammer Benefit Account has been opened at Midland National Bank to help Jane and her children through this difficult time. Sally Brammer is the Director of the Center for Battered Women. Anyone interested in donating to this account should mail any contributions to P.O. Box 2942, Midland, Texas 79702.

Homeless kids find refuge

By PATRICE STEADMON
Yuma Daily Sun

SAN LUIS, Sonora, Mexico (AP) — Pilar smiled and clapped her hands, breaking into the awkward, stumbling run of a 2-year-old.

She had just eaten, she had friends to play with, and she had a world to examine.

It was hard to imagine Pilar in a Mexican prison — or begging on a street corner.

But until a year ago in San Luis, there was no other place for an orphan or an abused or deserted child to go, says Brother Bernardo Castillo, founder of the only orphanage in the city.

When abandoned, the children wandered the streets and lived in the parks and alleys, learning to beg or steal to survive. Sooner or later, they'd be put in prison for their crimes, Castillo said.

That's where he found them when he came to Mexico about 13 years ago from British Honduras to work among drug and alcohol addicts, the work for which he had been trained as a missionary.

The preacher began seeking donations for the construction of Orfanitorio Betel, and 10 years later — in September 1980 — the two-story home for homeless children opened.

It was a long time coming, Castillo admits. "By myself, I couldn't have done it," he said in a recent interview.

Most of the money, labor and support came from the northern side of the border, not from churches or organizations in San Luis, Sonora, though that has begun to change now, he said.

Still, it was from Yuma, Ariz., businesses that donated materials and labor for a separate bathroom building have come.

And that in turn stems from the notice taken by Bobby Neff, a Yuma woman who has been visiting the orphanage since December when she saw it with a church group.

"It's amazing," Ms. Neff said. "Everyone we ask says yes, we'll help."

The food is prepared and the children are watched by a couple whose home burned, leaving them with nothing. The number fluctuates, but recently there were 36 children at the home that can hold 50.

About 10 of the children are orphans without any family, but the rest were the victims of situations that required they be taken out of their homes for a while — or of another situation familiar in border towns in Mexico, Castillo said.

People from the interior of Mexico come to the border looking for a way to get across into the United States, and they have no income while they wait for their opportunity, Castillo said. He said prostitution is one means of support for them, sometimes resulting in unwanted children.

Some of these children have been left with Castillo with promises that once a parent gets a job on the northern side, money will be sent to bring over the child, he said.

"Sometimes it works that way, sometimes it doesn't," he added.

"I have children here who have never been visited by anyone, not for one day," Castillo said.

Ms. Neff said that most people who visited the orphanage "are drawn to the babies, but my heart goes out to the older boys. They know that outside, things are different, that boys their age are riding bicycles and playing on Little League teams."

DEAR ABBY

Furneral need not be a grave affair

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: "Confused in Indiana" wrote to say she was "shocked" to learn that a friend went dancing the night she buried her husband. You agreed, saying you thought it was "inappropriate" for mourners to dance so soon after burying a loved one.

Who do you think you are to pass judgment in the first place? That woman has the right to mourn her husband any way she wants to!

After my father was buried, we went to my cousin's house where my father had spent many happy hours. He particularly loved the clubroom. Right after the funeral I went down there and found the jukebox playing and all the relatives dancing and enjoying refreshments. On the chair where my father had always sat was a baseball cap made of flowers. (Dad loved baseball.) That was the only floral arrangement that was not left at the cemetery. It was as though my father was there watching everybody do what he loved to do in life.

After all, Abby, haven't you ever heard of an Irish wake? My family is not Irish, but not everyone sits "shivah." — MERRY IN MARYLAND

DEAR MERRY: I've had many surprises in my mail, but one of the biggest was the number of readers who wrote to disagree with me. You're right — everyone has the right to deal with his grief in his own way, but somehow, dancing the day of the funeral seemed inappropriate to me. And it still does.

DEAR ABBY: A very close friend of mine, who is a successful management consultant, has the worst case of halitosis I have ever encountered! Being a professional myself, I am worried that my friend's problem may cost him professionally and socially. He's single as well.

I have polled my friends, and no one has come up with a suitable solution. He is such a lovely person and he must be told. But how? And by whom? — HIS FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: He must be made aware of his problem by someone who cares a great deal about him. I nominate you! If you can't find the words to tell him that he needs to see a dentist and/or a physician about his offensive breath, send him this column. It would be an act of kindness. Trust me.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a married woman (early 20s) and this problem concerns my best friend. (I'll call her Lila.) We are like sisters. Lila has been going with the same fellow (I'll call him George) for three years and they are practically engaged. George's grandmother was sick in the hospital, so Lila went to see her and they wouldn't let her in because "family members only" were allowed to visit. It has a caused a terrible rift between George and his family. George sides with Lila and so do I.

Abby, don't you think they should have considered this girl "family"? George's family say that as long as they are not married, she is not family. George's grandmother died a week later, and he is still on the outs with them. — LILA'S FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Since George's grandmother was seriously ill, it is understandable that only family members were allowed to visit. Lila should have checked before going to the hospital.

CONFIDENTIAL TO NAMELESS IN ATLANTA: If you're convinced you are hopelessly impotent, you are.

(Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple "do-you-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.)

The Super Handyman: Antiquing without a kit

By AL CARRELL

Do you remember when the paint manufacturers came out with antiquing kits a few years back? They were all the rage for do-it-yourselfers to use to refinish furniture. From the number of questions I've had about this process on call-in talk shows, there's still a lot of interest.

The process is simple. You apply a base coat of colored paint. When this dries, a glaze is then applied and partially wiped away. The wiping is done to different degrees in different areas of the furniture piece, and this leaves the antique look.

But you don't have to buy a kit. Any paint that is a semi-gloss enamel can be used. It should be applied as you would any other paint job. If need be, use a second coat to get the full coverage.

For the glaze, you don't have to buy a prepared glaze because it's easy to make your own. Start with clean varnish and add color from a tube of artists oil paint. If you look at the color chart for prepared glazes, you'll see that most have earth tones hues, but some have colors. The earthy look is attained by adding burnt sienna, raw umber or other earthy oil colors. If you want a colored glaze, it's usually best to include a touch of an earthy oil color to tone down the red or whatever.

When you get ready to apply the glaze, after you're sure the base coat is fully dry, just slap it on. You don't have to take any pains or worry about brush marks. But after the glaze starts to glaze over, you better know what wiping technique to use for the result you want. The logical wipe is to remove more of the glaze in the center of a piece than around the edges. This is the way a finish would wear off. How much you remove will control the way the piece will ultimately look. A coarse cloth will remove less glaze than would a tightly woven piece. Very coarse fabrics, like a piece of burlap or a carpet scrap, will leave steaks. Some people like the streaky effect and use them to try to resemble graining. There is a small graining tool that is very inexpensive and really lets you create a grainy effect with the glaze.

Another part of antiquing is simulating the little tiny dots that you find on real antique furniture. Most folks refer to them as fly specks. Of course, you could train a fly to do this, but a more reliable way is to employ a technique called spatter-dashing. This is easy and fun to do.

Use a black or very dark paint and pour some into a shallow container like a jar lid. Dip the bristles of an old toothbrush into the paint and hold the brush, bristles up, aimed toward the surface. Next draw a stick the size of a popsicle stick across the bristles. As the stick lets go of the bristles, they fly back and cause the paint to splatter onto the furniture. You have to draw the stick toward you or the paint will splatter on you. This is a technique you should practice on some throwaway surface until you get the finesse needed to get the right sized spots. Vary the stroke of the stick as well as the distance from the furniture.

This splatter-dashing step usually comes after the base coat and before the glazing, so be sure that the black paint used is not going to be dissolved when you brush on and wipe off the glaze.

One thing I really like about this type antiquing is that if there are any dents or scratches in the furniture, you may not even want to repair them. Old furniture, even priceless antiques, have the marks of being used. Corners are worn off, and there may even be worm holes. People who try to simulate antiques will create years of wear and tear through a process called "distressing." They may whip the furniture with chains or other objects. They will smooth off the corners with a rasp or file. They may stab the furniture with an ice pick to simulate worm holes. So if you're antiquing a piece that already is a little beat up, you probably don't even need to worry about the distressed look it has.

After you're done with whatever you're doing to the furniture, make up a neat story about the history of the piece. George Washington slept on the table, or it once belonged to Attila the Hun.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

When jeans get streaky

DEAR HELOISE:

I was wondering if you could help me with a laundry problem. Everytime I buy a new pair of blue jeans and wash them, they come out with light streaks in the denim.

I use a liquid laundry soap and softener sheets in the dryer. Do you think there may be something wrong with my washer or are the jeans defective? — L.T.

Glad you asked that question since, from what my readers write me, this seems to be a widespread problem and they are as fed up with it as you and I are.

No, it is not the fault of your washing machine, your dryer and, most of all, you. And, yes, the jeans are defective! (Some say on the label they are made to fade, so we are not talking about those.)

Listen to what the International Fabricare Institute has to say on the subject:

"Streaks in jeans or lines which look bleached are caused by the failure of the surface colors to be fully resistant to the care process. The rubbing off of the surface colors exposes an undyed portion of the fiber. Colors can also rub off and stain the person wearing the jeans.

"Who is responsible? The manufacturer which originally dyed the garment!

"Drastic color failure of this type can be controlled by better color application of the fabric in the original dyeing process. Some slight color loss can be expected on a new garment in wear, but this should not result in objectional light areas.

"Is there a remedy? None!"

Folks, there is one remedy we as consumers have and that is to take the jeans back to the store where we purchased them and get a refund when this happens to a new pair after only one washing.

Perhaps manufacturers will eventually get the message that this is unacceptable and will make a product that will hold its color.

I don't think it is being unreasonable to expect this. We're not asking for the impossible — just value that is fair and reasonable when we pay out our hard-earned money for an item. Agree? — Heloise

INSTANT BIB

Dear Heloise: Have you ever needed a quick bib or apron? We had been pinning a towel around a semi-invalid's neck. One day, a friend suggested I put a cord through the top hem of last year's calendar towel.

Eureka! Instant bib which was very acceptable to the gentleman.

We found several old calendar towels in the towel drawer so we put long white shoelaces in them and had several spare bibs. — Mrs. Evelyn Lauer

TOO-BROWN CRUST

Dear Heloise: Cut the bottom out of a foil pie pan to within one-half inch of the edge, then invert it over your pie to prevent the edge of the crust from getting too brown.

Easy and it works! Also, the foil pan can be used over and over. — Mrs. K.C. De Mouth

If you don't have a foil pie pan in a size to fit the pie pan you are using, a strip of aluminum foil works well too.

Just form a circle with it and lay it over the outer edge of the crust as you would the foil pie pan. — Heloise

NO CLOGGED DRAINS

Dear Heloise: I put a wad of nylon net in the bathtub drain when I wash my hair.

The hair clings to the net and is easily removed. — Rita O'Connell

Artist fires pottery in primitive manner

By RIC VOLANTE
Arizona Daily Star

RIVERSIDE, Ariz. (AP) — A few miles west of here, artist Susan Wooten has her "workshop" — a secluded, sandy bank of the Gila River.

The river water, a few mesquite branches and a supply of dry cow dung from the open range are all Ms. Wooten needs to fire the pottery and other clay objects she creates at her Kearny home.

The 34-year-old artist practices primitive firing, a technique used thousands of years ago by Indian craftsmen of the Southwest. Rather than heating her clay creations in a conventional kiln, she fires them in a dung-covered depression in the earth.

The technique was developed in the Southwest at least 2,000 years ago by the Hohokan and Mogollon cultures. Many native craftsmen still use the ancient method, but few non-Indian artists in Arizona use it.

Prehistoric craftsmen burned wood and outcrops of coal to fire their pottery, until the Spanish introduction of cattle and sheep in the late 16th century provided a continuous supply of dung.

Ms. Wooten digs a shallow pit about 3 feet in diameter, lets a mesquite fire burn in it until she has a glowing bed of coals, and places her pottery on it. She then piles dung directly over the pottery, enclosing the pit.

"I just pile it on and light it, and it takes care of itself," she said.

Another advantage of the unusual fuel is the color — usually violet — that it sometimes gives to the ceramic surfaces.

"I can't get those colors with wood or grass, but I can get them with dung," depending on what minerals the cattle have digested, she said.

Color is what the primitive firing is all about. By positioning the dung to allow more oxygen to reach the pottery, Ms. Wooten brings out orange and peach colors. And by sprinkling commercially prepared steer manure over the burning dung, she creates blue-black colors.

The type of clay used also helps determine color. Although clay can be purchased in stores, Ms. Wooten prefers to find most of hers.

Ms. Wooten works with two varieties she has found — a blue clay from the San Pedro River bank near Dudleyville, and a reddish-brown clay she digs near here.

Primitive firing has fascinated her since childhood, when her father, an Arizona cotton farmer, used to bring home primitive pot shards unearthed as he plowed his fields, but it was much later — after she stopped teaching to strike out on her own as an artist — that she learned the ancient craft.

Ms. Wooten builds her pieces by hand, rather than throwing them on a potter's wheel. Her work has included wall plates, bowls, jars, wind chimes and murals.

Tests on new contraceptive encouraging

By WARREN FROELICH
Copley News Service

SAN DIEGO — A synthetic brain chemical, many times more potent than its naturally occurring relative, has shown "very promising" results as a safe and effective "once a month" birth control pill, according to a team of University of California at San Diego researchers.

Clinical studies with the chemical called "super" LRF (luteinizing hormone releasing factor) show it can temporarily mimic a relatively common disorder that causes infertility in women.

The chemical does this by upsetting the delicate timing of the menstrual cycle, preventing the implantation of a fertilized egg in the uterine wall. Administration of the chemical is timed to the first three days of menstruation.

"The convenience of timing administration of the (chemical) at the onset of the menstrual cycle represents a major advantage for practical application to fertility control and offers the possibility for providing a 'once a month pill,'" the researchers said in an article to be published in the January 8 edition of the journal Science.

Dr. Samuel S.C. Yen, University of California at San Diego professor of reproductive medicine, said more work has to be done to make sure the effects of the chemical are reversible after extended use. So far, it has produced no side effects in women. And since it acts on a specific site in the pituitary, no deleterious effects are expected.

For more than a decade, scientists have been concerned about possible harmful effects from prolonged use of birth control pills. Use of the pill has been linked with liver, gallbladder and blood clotting disorders.

The researchers say they need about two or three more years of work before releasing the chemical for larger clinical studies.

Before it becomes available for general use, it must pass this larger test and then receive approval from the Food and Drug Administration.

"It's impossible to tell how long it will take," said Yen, who led the research team, which included Drs. Katherine Sheehan and Robert F. Caspar.

But so far there have been no problems.

"I'm excited because everything so far has looked so very promising," Yen said. "It has great potential."

Essentially, super LRF acts by making the uterus an inhospitable home for any fertilized egg.

Under normal conditions LRF, manufactured in incredibly tiny amounts by a section of the brain called the hypothalamus, controls the reproductive cycle by acting as a messenger between the brain and the body.

The chemical triggers the production of two hormones called luteinizing hormone (LH) and follicle stimulating hormone (FSH), secreted by the pituitary gland, which sits in a bony socket just underneath the brain.

These hormones, in turn, control the monthly ovulation cycle of women and are vital in the first few weeks of pregnancy.

If this cycle were somehow interrrupted, it was reasoned, scientists could develop a safer and more effective contraceptive than present birth control methods.

LRF was first identified by Dr. Andrew Schally of the Veterans Administration Hospital in New Orleans about a decade ago. Only a few weeks later, Dr. Roger Guillemin made the same discovery while probing through the extracts from 500 tons of sheep brains.

Both men shared the 1977 Nobel Prize for medicine for their work.

Since that time, researchers around the world have synthesized hundreds of close chemical relatives or analogs, trying to find the right combination of ingredients for contraception.

One of these analogs, about 140 times more powerful than LRH, was developed by Drs. Wylie Vale and Jean Rivier at the Salk Institute in La Jolla, Calif. Animal tests showed that the chemical had an almost numbing effect on the pituitary, resulting in time shifts within the menstrual cycle.

In early clinical trials, women were given 50 microgram doses of super LRF during the last half of their cycles. This induced premature menstruation, producing an effective method of contraception.

Yen wasn't satisfied however, since many women cannot figure out when they ovulate.

"I didn't see much hope of applying this for humans," he said in an interview in his office. "At that point I was discouraged."

But then he remembered an infertility disorder known as a luteal phase defect, which occurs spontaneously in both humans and monkeys. This condition occurs as a result of FSH deficiency.

Yen theorized that administration of super LRF very early in the menstrual cycle might temporarily mimic this disorder.

During the past two years, Yen and his team of researchers injected the chemical into 17 women during the first three days of their cycle.

The researchers found the injections extended the first half of their cycles by seven days. And it reduced the second half of their cycles from 14 days to seven.

By cutting the second half of the cycle in half, the uterus received an inadequate supply of FSH. The corpus luteum, which secretes hormones to prepare the uterus for implantation, stopped functioning by the time the egg arrived. As a result, the uterus became unable to receive and nurture a fertilized egg.

The research team also is working on a better way to administer the chemical — perhaps through a pill or even a nasal spray.

Experiments with men at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn., using the same chemical, so far have produced mixed results. The substance did suppress sperm production, but it had other failings, including impotency and hot flashes.

Yen said several drug companies have expressed interest in future commercial applications for female contraception. But they're still waiting for more research before making any commitments.

"The whole world is waiting for a better birth control pill, but it is not going to come easily," Yen said in a University of California at San Diego press release. "We have learned from the side effects and dosage problems of past birth control pills that the slower and more careful the evaluation we can give this new method, the better.

"I expect that when ours is refined it will give us another method of birth control, but will not replace the pill now available."

On the house

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Most people paint the outsides of their houses wth colors that please them. Which is as it should be. But a ride around any neighborhood will show you that many should also have taken into consideration what certain colors can do to the shapes and sizes of houses.

Color is used inside the house as a decorating feature — to make rooms look larger or smaller as well as prettier. It is rarely used that way on the outside, yet the face of the house is seen by far more persons than is the interior.

Many new colors and textures have been introduced by the manufacturers of roofing materials in recent years. The roof is the largest unbroken visual expanse in most houses, so it must be considered the key to exterior decorating. A roof that is light in color attracts the eye, thus giving small or very low houses a new dimension. On a contemporary house, a sense of airiness is created by a white roof. On a low-slung ranch, it makes the house seem higher. Entirely aside from appearance, a white roof helps to keep a house cooler, since it reflects part of the sun's rays, making it an ideal house topping in warm climates.

In the opposite way, a dark roof helps to cut the height of an unusually tall or steep-roofed house. Be extra careful when you select the color of the shingles on your house, since you will have to live with your decision for 20 or more years, whereas the sidewalls and trim can be given a different color every few years. Incidentally, the dark roof just mentioned is even more effective in reducing height when used with touches of bright accent color low on the sidewalls. Also along the same line, emphasizing the horizontal lines of a house make a house appear lower than it is. (For a copy of Andy Lang's booklet, "Guide to the Selection of Quality Roofing," with an asphalt shingle color chart, send 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P. O. Box 477, Huntington, NY 11743.)

Does your house have some element in it that stands out like the proverbial sore thumb? Are your windows of a size that don't seem compatible with the rest of the house? Paint them the same color as the rest of the house. That way they won't stand out. In the same way, if the house has a charming feature you want people to notice, paint it a different color.

In most houses, garage doors are either eyesores or certainly not especially pretty. Yet, haven't you often seen a garage door painted a color so different from the rest of the house that you actually see it before you see the house as a whole? To make people look at your house first and your garage door second, or not at all, paint the door the same color as the rest of the structure. At the very least, paint it a color that doesn't "clash" with the basic coloring.
scheme.

Recognition of the part that colors play in house exteriors was evident in the days of the colonists. The northern houses usually had dark colors that tended to absorb more heat than lighter shades, while southern houses had lighter tones that reflected the sun's rays.

Snoring isn't just for men

By ERMA BOMBECK

I like to think of snoring as a masculine trait, yet in my heart I know there are possibly two or three women out there who inhale loud enough in their sleep to make cattle restless within a 50-mile radius.

A doctor in Los Angeles has not only come up with a cure for women's snoring, he has established a breakthrough on how to get women to admit they snore. The cure: a mink collar studded with rhinestones.

For a mink collar studded with rhinestones, I'd admit to being a cat burglar in my sleep. The theory behind the mink collar is that it forces closure of the mouth, preventing mouth breathing which ultimately causes snoring. What a shame men can't dress up for snoring. For some of us it's like climbing into a bed every night on the San Andreas fault, knowing that within minutes there will be a rumble, the bed will shake and the Richter scale will go crazy.

Changing beds was suggested for men who snored. The only time that worked for me was when he slept in a bed in Orlando and I slept in a bed in Dayton.

Rolling them over on their sides was suggested. This gives substance to the theory that as long as you're awake, you might as well move something. A pillow stretched tightly over the face has merit — as soon as they work out a few bugs.

Personally, I like the proverbial knee on the throat while you shake them senseless and tell them to wake up and hear themselves snore.

"Do I snore?" I asked my husband the other night.

"I don't think so. Why?" he asked.

"Well, just because you can't hear me doesn't mean I don't. And if I thought I was robbing you of a minute's sleep, I couldn't sleep a wink."

"What are you driving at?"

"Marj bought herself a Persian lamb collar yesterday to sleep in to keep her from snoring."

"You're kidding. That makes no sense at all."

"Our dog has a collar and you've never heard him snore."

"So try a flea collar."

"All I know is it worked for Marj," I insisted.

I didn't have the heart to tell him the reason it worked is that she didn't sleep a wink all night for fear someone would steal the collar.

Marie Moore, Ph.D., R.T.

Webster defines hypnosis as "trancelike" — a condition that can artificially be induced, characterized by an altered consciousness and increased responsiveness to suggestion."

Marie Moore, Midlands reknowned hypnotherapist and counselor, states her meaning of hypnosis with a medical flair — "it's behavior modification through a self-induced altered state of consciousness to improve, control, eliminate, develop or correct personal traits."

Although some people may refer to her as a psychologist, she prefers hypnotherapist.

There have been literally hundreds of books written about hypnosis and, although many of them differ drastically, each publication seems to agree on one important point, the person being hypnotized need not anticipate any drastic happening.

According to Mrs. Moore, hypnosis is being used more and more as a mental therapy when patients are not responding to traditional treatment.

To some degree, hypnosis has been around almost as long as educated man, yet many experts believe that man has yet to explore the boundless regions of the mind through hypnotherapy.

"People are becoming more and more aware of how hypnosis can be used to control or correct social problems," explains Mrs. Moore.

Many of the ministers in the area have found hypnosis as a beneficial tool for counseling and it has been a common practice to refer cases to a hypnotist especially when the client has difficulty understanding the basis of his problem.

People come to Mrs. Moore for counseling in several different areas. Her clients often need help with weight control, smoking or alcoholism.

Then there is the more common mini-type problems where she can help a student with study habits, or any person with concentration and improve the memory.

Through hypnosis, she says she has worked with several business people in correcting social and marital problems. Through the basics of hypnosis, frustrations, anxieties and tensions can be eliminated. She has worked with speech disorders, the so-called "stage-fright", and the general inferiorities that affect relationships with other people.

Even when high blood pressure is caused by an emotional factor, several Midland physicians admit that through hypnosis, the problem can be alleviated. The simple habit of nail biting is another common problem that can quickly be corrected by hypnosis.

Mrs. Moore has had a successful record in working with older children who still have a bed-wetting problem.

However, one of her most interesting cases involved a lady with a weight problem. Her client weighed in excess of 200 lbs. The hypnosis process helped her quickly shed 30 pounds, trimming her weight to 180.

But, then the lady started gaining again and the basic weight control hypnotic formula was applied for the second time.

Again, the lady lost down to 180 pounds, but started gaining weight again. After a third try, Mrs. Moore put her client into a deeper hypnotic tgrance which revealed a problem that dated back to the woman's early childhood.

It was discovered whenthe lady was a little girl the parents told her that they would flush her down the commode if she did not behave. Somehow that childhood incident had triggered a mental process that would not allow normal weight loss.

After realizing the basics of her problem, the lady had little difficulty in losing down to 130 pounds. Another success story attributed to hypnosis.

Through one clinical session, Mrs. Moore has had great success providing therapeutic advantages for chronic pains.

This method is excellent for geriatric patients and many times the pain can be transferred to an inanimate object such as a pad.

Q: Does the hypnotist have full "control" over the subject's mind?

A: An emphatic not! No one can be hypnotized unless they want to be hypnotized. It should be pointed out that the subject is fully aware of what is happening in his surrounding environment at all times. Should something be asked of him that is against his will or moral principles, he would be able to awaken. The client accepts only those suggestions which he wishes to accept, all others are rejected.

Q: Does one need more than an "average" intelligence to be hypnotized?

A: Basically, no. Almost anyone can be hypnotized. Those who are the most susceptible are those with the ability to concentrate and those with strong imaginatgions. The stronger the imagination, the more susceptible the client. Cooperation also plays a big role in the induction of hypnosis. The more cooperation the client offers, the better the results are likely to be.

Q: Isn't hypnosis considered to deal with witchcraft and the super-natural?A: Absolutely not! Although we are now considered to be in the "Space Age" there are some people who still hold this very wrong misconception that hypnosis is a form of witchcraft. No hypnotist has any strange or unearthly powers at his command. He is no different than any other human being. He has simply been trained in the art of effective suggestions to obtain the desired results.

Q: -Does hypnosis render a person unconscious?

A: No. The client is never really in an unconscious state. He is merely in a very pleasant state of relaxation. He is at all times fully aware of what is happening around him.

Q: Should hypnosis deal only with the symptom of a problem?

A: Hypnosis should cover both the symptom and the underlying problem. As someone once said, "realizing your problem is half of the battle." Once the hypnotist can get the client to realize his major problem, he can then give positive suggestions to eliminate the problem.

Q: Doesn't hypnosis "dull" the mind?

A: Absolutely not! In fact, the mind is extremely alert and the senses are greatly sensitive during the actual hypnosis.

Q: Is there any danger that the client may not "awaken" from the hypnotic state?

A: No. Should the hypnotist leave the subject in silence for any length of time, the subject would come out of the hypnosis and pass into a regular sleep which he would awaken from a short time later.

Q: Will the effects of hypnosis "wear off"?

A: Not if the client has been instructed in the proper used of self-hypnosis. The more self-hypnosis is practiced, the stronger and longer lasting the effects will be.

Q: What does hypnosis "feel" like?

A: The client experiences a state of very pleasant relaxations. He may find the he feels a numbness or a tingling sensation, a feeling of warmth or coolness, or a muscle reflex might occur. But whatever the sensation, the client is at all times comfortable.

Q: If hypnosis is so good, why isn't it more recognized by the medical profession?

A: Because of its misuse in the earlier years of its history, hypnosis was condemned by some of the medical leaders of the 18th century. Despite its stained past, and the condemnation given it by the medical profession, it is again coming more and more to the surface. Many physicians are using hypnosis and more medical schools are offering it in their curriculum. These numbers are increasing every year. Naturally, after hypnosis has been more or less "hidden" for almost a century, one cannot expect an instant or complete acceptance of it. Obviously, it will take time to educate the public and those physicians that hold certain misconceptions about hypnosis, or that are yet unaware of the many benefits offered by hypnosis and the hypnotherapist.

Do you think that you defend as well as you play the cards? In that case, cover the West and South hands and decide how you would go about defending three no trump after your partner leads the two of spades. You are playing duplicate, so overtricks are important.

One thing you can tell from the auction and what you can see is that South ventured into no trump on a sketchy spade stopper, so he can't have much in his partner's suits. Your five low diamonds suggest that declarer has four tricks in that suit, and you can see a heart and a spade trick as well. Declarer must surely be able to develop either hearts or clubs for the three extra tricks he needs for his contract. The only major source of tricks for the defense is the spade suit, and you will have to unblock the jack of spades to free that suit for partner.

If you went up with the ace of spades at trick one and returned the jack, you are on the right track—but your defense is not good enough. Declarer wins the second spade in dummy and loses a club finesse. Your partner can cash one spade trick, but then the defense is through and declarer sails home with ten tricks.

You have overlooked the possibility that partner might have a tenace position in spades, and to run the suit you will have to unblock the jack while retaining your entry so that you can lead through declarer later. See what happens if you play the jack of spades at trick one!

Now when declarer loses the club finesse, West can lead a spade to your ace. You return the suit, and the defense nets three spade tricks and a club for an excellent score.

What if South held four spades headed by the 10-9? It's unlikely, for partner shouldn't lead the two from four to the eight. But even so, the defenders can recover. After winning the king of clubs West must shift to a heart, and the defenders get all the tricks to which they are entitled.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. For a copy and a scorepad, send $1.75 to "Goren-Four Deal," care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to Newspaperbooks.

Stock market loses

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market fell into a broad and steep decline in active trading today amid new fears about higher interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 9.04 to 873.48 after two hours of trading, erasing its 7.52-point gain Monday. Its transportation and utility measures also fell.

Losers led gainers by better than 2 to 1 on the New York Stock Exchange, with nearly 900 issues off on the day, and the NYSE's composite index skidded 0.79 to 70.41.

Big Board volume totaled 22.21 million shares at noon EST, compared with 15.51 million at that hour Monday.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 1.91 to 319.50.

Interest-rate concerns were raised anew by an unexpected surge in the nation's basic money supply reported Monday, and a leading economist's predictions today that some rates will again near their record-high levels of last year.

Economist Henry Kaufman of Salomon Brothers said the higher rates would stem from the heavy borrowing needs of the Treasury to finance the federal deficits, combined with the restrictive monetary policies of the Federal Reserve Board.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Utilities have good base for investment

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I am a college freshman, 18. With money I earned last summer, I bought 10 shares of three utility common stocks, at a total cost of around $500. I use my dividends to buy additional shares through the utilities' reinvestment plans.

I will be working again this summer and will have $500 more to invest. Should I buy more shares of my utilities? Or would it be better to take a long shot and buy stock of some other corporation?

Doyle

A. With utilities, you have a solid base for a good investment program. Utility common stocks are counted as conservative investments. Most of them pay good dividends, which have increased at moderate rates over the years.

By signing up for the dividend reinvestment programs of all three companies in which you own stock, you'll gradually increase your holdings. You're off to a great start for long-range investing.

It is, however, a conservative start. Most young people lean toward investments with more action — the potential for greater growth in value. At your age, you can take on the higher degree of risk that goes with growth stocks.

I'm not suggesting you take a really "long shot" in a highly speculative stock. But there are lots of stocks with moderate risk and greater growth potential than utilities. My suggestion is to pick one of those. If you can't find one on your own, ask a broker for recommendations.

•

Q. I am a widow, 71, living on Social Security of $507.70 a month. I have a home mortgage of $23,000, on which I pay $390 a month. This is my only indebtedness. I have $22,000 in a 182-day savings certificate, which will mature in two months. I need to replace my car and will use some of the certificate money for that purpose.

My broker talked me into selling two utility company preferred stocks, from which I received approximately $6,000 a year in dividends and buying shares of Growth Fund of America.

The broker said I needed "growth" to offset inflation. But I am worried that I gave up something secure and an income I could bank on for something I don't know much about. Did I make a mistake?

A. I think you did — by selling all of your preferred stock. Preferred stock, of course, pays fixed dividends that never change. That makes them right for people who need secure income. But, because dividends on preferreds do not increase, they do not provide protection against inflation, as common stocks do.

Growth Fund of America, like many other mutual funds investing in common stocks, has a good long-term record of gradual increases in the value of its shares. In 1981, however, its share value dipped, because stock prices in general declined slightly during the year.

The dividend yield on that mutual fund has been about 4.5 percent — far lower than you were getting on the preferred stocks you sold. If stock prices turn up again — as we all hope they will, your investment in the mutual fund shares should protect you against inflation. But my reaction is that you should have kept most of your preferred stock for income and put only a small amount of money into growth investments.

•

Q. Is it possible for me to "transfer" or "assign" dividends on stocks I own to another member of my family, so that the other family member will pay income tax on the dividends while I retain ownership of the stock?

A. Nope. By filling out and signing a "dividend order form," which you can obtain from the transfer agent — the bank through which the dividends are paid — you can have the checks paid to a family member or anyone else you designate. But, as long as you retain ownership of the stock, the tax liability for the dividends is yours.

Pension funds are powerful trump cards

NEW YORK (AP) — Labor unions may find it more difficult than before to sign up new members and obtain new benefits for them, but in the investment power of pension funds they sill hold a trump card.

They intend to play it too, says A.H. Raskin, a long-time authority on labor unions. Raskin predicts unions will concentrate much of their energy on deciding what stocks and bonds will be bought by the funds.

"Success for labor in this effort to penetrate the most resolutely guarded of capitlism's holy places could fundamentally alter a power balance that has been shifting heavily against unions," he predicts.

His analysis of "Pension Power" was written for The Journal of the Institute for Socioeconomic Studies, a research organizatin based in White Plains, N.Y.

Deciding what corporate securities will be bought with the multi-billion dollar assets of funds is a responsibility now exercised almost solely by management in the vast majority of fields, says Raskin, who for years served on the editorial board of the New York Times.

But the assets are too great, and the need to offset power losses in other areas of union-management relations is too compelling, to allow unions to forego having a greater say in investments, suggests Raskin.

The stakes are enormous. Assets of single-employer funds, which cover workers in one company, total $285 billion. Multi-employer funds add $50 billion to the total, and state-county-municipal retirement funds another $203 billion. They are growing swiftly too.

Raskin cites Department of Labor estimates that the assets total of private funds alone will "cross the trillion-dollar mark in five years and be just short of $3 trillion by 1995."

One union thrust is expected to be a quest for greater commitments to areas of social concern, including a greater stake in low-cost housing and prohibitions against investments in companies that engage in "anti-union activites," says Ruskin in a 22-page analysis.

Korean cabinet ends curfew

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The newly-reshuffled Cabinet today gave final approval for lifting a curfew that has existed since the end of World War II, a reform widely hailed by many South Koreans.

"The government has amply demonstrated its determination in action to set the national life on a course of liberalization, wiping out restrictive vestiges of the past," the independent Korea Times said in today's editions.

The curfew will expire at midnight. But all coastlines and the demilitarized zone that borders Communist North Korea will still be subject to curfew regulations because they are considered security-sensitive areas.

The Cabinet took administrative steps to abolish the curfew following instructions on New Year's day from President Chun Doo-hwan. The presidential directive came after the National Assembly late last year unanimously recommended the step be taken at the start of the new year.

The midnight-to-4 a.m. curfew was established by U.S. military authorities at the end of World War II in the capital area. The government later extended it nationwide, contending it was necessary for stability and to counter a threat from the north.

There have been calls in the past for ending the restrictions, and some political observers saw Chun's move as a step to demonstrate his government is stable.

The end of the curfew was one of several surprises for South Koreans, including a Cabinet shakeup Sunday that brought in a new prime minister and five other Cabinet members. Chun also announced he was liberalizing the student dress code.

But some criticized the curfew abolishment. Police and security chiefs said it was premature. Others argued the regulations had contributed to an orderly way of life.

Chemicals join the world arms race, scientists say

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world is on the verge of a chemical arms race because of the potential U.S. response to reports of Soviet-backed use of chemical warfare in the Third World, some scientists say.

Speaking Monday at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, scientists said evidence on the nature and extent of the use of chemical or biological weapons in Afghanistan and Indochina remains inconclusive.

But whatever the evidence, the U.S. response to the perceived threat could trigger a race in these weapons unless they are included in new international arms limitation talks, they said.

Dr. Arthur H. Westing, professor of ecology at Hampshire College in Amherst, Mass., said that even the best U.S. evidence of the use of chemical weapons by the Soviet Union and its allies is indirect and inconclusive.

Westing, who favors unilateral destruction of all chemical and biological weapons, said he questioned the motives of U.S. officials alleging possible use of these arms by the Soviets without hard evidence.

"To put the kindest light on this, one could say the U.S. is going off half-cocked and unprepared," Westing told a news briefing at the meeting.

"In a bad light, the U.S. may be trying to embarrass the Soviet Union and may be looking for an excuse to put new chemical weapons in the U.S. arsenal," added Westing, formerly a researcher with the Stockholm International Peace Research Institute.

Robert P. Mikulak, a science officer with the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, agreed that evidence on the Soviet use of chemical weapons isn't hard. But he disagreed with Westing's conclusions about U.S. motives and actions.

"There have been serious concerns raised about compliance with existing treaties," Mikulak said. "Whatever one thinks about the evidence, it is important that these concerns be dealt with satisfactorily."

"This is a worldwide issue, not a U.S.-Soviet issue," he added.

Mikulak did share concern about an arms race with such weapons and noted that an arms control meeting beginning in Geneva next month will attempt to ban all biological and chemical weapons.

The Geneva Protocal of 1925 prohibits the use of chemical and biological weapons in war, and the Bacteriological Convention of 1972 prohibits the development, production and possession of biological weapons. Neither treaty, to which the United States and Soviet Union are signatories, prohibits possession of chemical weapons.

"There are large stockpiles of chemical weapons in the U.S. and U.S.S.R.," Mikulak said. "People want to end this stockpiling and assure the destruction of chemical weapons."

A chemical weapon is any chemical substance, whether synthetic or naturally occurring, used for hostile purposes because of its poisonous properties. A biological weapon is a living organism, such as a disease germ, used for the same purpose.

Based on eyewitness reports and indirect evidence, the U.S. says the Soviets have been using chemical weapons, including lethal nerve gas and knockout gas, against rebel tribesmen in Afghanistan. There even are reports that Soviet troops have been injured when air-dispersed chemicals accidentally blew back on them.

The United States also says the Soviet Union is supplying its allies in Southeast Asia with fungus toxins used in the so-called "yellow rain" against rebels in Laos and Kampuchea, formerly Cambodia.

Economics factor in continued U.S. space program

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will stay in the space exploration business but will have to find more economical ways to do it because of federal budget cuts, says President Reagan's science adviser.

Dr. George A. Keyworth said Monday that the Reagan administration will continue unmanned planetary exploration and initiate major new space programs despite rumors it would cut such missions to save money.

But Keyworth said new missions to the other planets will be less complex and less expensive than recent billion-dollar projects such as Voyager, which returned spectacular data and pictures from Jupiter and Saturn.

The physicist said the administation is committed to major space science projects and will back building the Gamma Ray Observatory, a major astronomy spacecraft to be launched by the space shuttle.

Keyworth told the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science that the administration has begun a major reassessment of the space program.

This review will look at the future of the space shuttle, new earth-orbiting satellites and plans for another generation of planetary exploration craft, he said.

The study also will consider broadening the base of the U.S. space program to include more industry and university involvement, as well as more international cooperative projects to share the costs and responsibilities of space exploration, he added.

But looking for cheaper, more effective ways to explore space should not be construed as lack of support or commitment, he said.

"The Reagan administration is supporting a strong initiative in planetary science, and this includes a number of new projects that will develop using the capabilities of the space shuttle," he said.

Keyworth offered few details on the new projects pending completion of the program review and finalization of the fiscal 1983 budget about to go to Congress. He did indicate, however, that they may not begin until the end of the decade.

The science adviser said there is no truth to rumors the administration is considering shutting off communications with the two Voyager spacecraft now on the way to explore Uranus and space outside the solar system.

"The deep space network needed to receive data from Voyager still will receive support for data reception and analysis," he said. "We'd throw away billions (of dollars) for want of a few million by not funding such activities."

He said the Gamma Ray Observatory project would be a major one — on the scale of the Space Telescope, which will be launched by the shuttle in 1985.

This project would be a follow-up to the successful Einstein X-ray Observatory which scanned the heavens for objects emitting X-rays, he said. Both gamma rays and X-rays are invisible to the human eye and objects that project these types of radiation can be missed by conventional astronomy.

"There is a strong administration commitment to the Gamma Ray Observatory," Keyworth said in a later interview. "We have explored its potential and cost and believe it worthy of a major initiative."

Environmentalists: Cuts will affect pollution control

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency soon will go through a top-to-bottom reorganization that environmentalists say will cripple government efforts to fight pollution.

"This means the end of the agency," William Drayton, EPA's chief budget officer during the Carter administration, said Monday. "They have set out to tear EPA apart in order to get it off the backs of businesses."

Save EPA, a coalition of environmental groups fighting proposed budget cuts, said they have obtained internal documents showing that 50 percent of EPA's headquarters staff either will be fired or demoted in the reorganization, to be announced in a few weeks.

Drayton estimated that 80 percent of the people on the headquarters staff when Carter left office will have quit, been fired or demoted by next June.

EPA officials said the figure was greatly inflated.

The officials confirmed, however, that EPA Administrator Anne Gorsuch is reorganizing the agency. Sources, who asked not to be identified, estimated that 700 to 800 people out of 4,385 in the Washington headquarters will lose their jobs.

These officials said similar cutbacks will occur in the EPA's regional offices, which employ about 6,000 persons.

Drayton contended the figure could reach 1,500 fired in Washington headquarters. He said for every 100 positions eliminated at least 150 other people will be demoted to lower-paying jobs because of bumping rights in the government's civil service rules.

There were 5,298 EPA employes in Washington immediately after Reagan's inauguration, but that already has declined by 913, mainly from people quitting at a rate three times what it was during the Carter administration, Drayton said.

He said the internal documents show Mrs. Gorsuch hopes to slash the headquarters staff to between 2,085 and 2,785, as much as 53 percent below the level when Reagan took office, by June 30.

"Unable to repeal the country's environmental laws because the public would never stand for it, the Reagan team is working determinedly toward the same end through the budgetary and personnel back doors," Drayton said.

But John R. Horton, an EPA assistant administrator, said the reorganization was an effort by Mrs. Gorsuch to carry out the Reagan election mandate to streamline government.

"We are trying to make this agency effective and efficient," he said. "I have been in business all my life and when I looked at this organization I found so much excess in costs and numbers of people that there is no real chore in introducing efficiencies."

Horton called Drayton's estimates on layoffs and demotions "excessively high" and just a guess since the final plan has not been submitted to Mrs. Gorsuch.

Environmentalists already were unhappy over the Reagan administration's proposal to cut the agency's 1983 budget by 24 percent from its current levels of $1.2 billion. They charged that this level, if approved, would leave the EPA unable to carry out its job of protecting public health from air and water pollution.

Reagan hoping to influence Schmidt on Poland

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, hoping to avoid a split with allies over the Polish crisis, is trying to persuade West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt to soften his opposition to U.S. sanctions against the Soviet Union.

The two leaders planned to confer at the White House today and then discuss their differences over lunch.

West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher and Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. were joining their bosses for the talks.

Schmidt has disputed Reagan's assertion that Moscow instigated the Dec. 13 decree of martial law in Poland and has shown no willingness to join the United States in imposing economic sanctions against Moscow.

Likewise, very few of the 15 member nations of NATO have expressed much enthusiasm for the American action.

Meanwhile, the foreign ministers of West Germany and the nine other Common Market countries meeting Monday in Brussels, Belgium, failed to reach agreement on a unified response to the Polish situation, although they did issue a declaration pledging not to compromise the U.S. sanctions against the Soviet Union.

The foreign ministers discussed the possibility of imposing their own commercial restrictions on the Soviet Union and halting food and financial aid to Poland. Britain and West Germany, however, already had rejected such sanctions as ineffective.

But the representatives of the Common Market nations did agree for the first time as a group with the U.S. analysis that the Soviet Union is involved in the crackdown, along with East bloc members of the Warsaw Pact military alliance.

U.S. officials cautioned against expecting any agreement from Reagan's meeting with Schmidt today, but made it clear that Washington is counting on its allies for support.

Said one senior official: "If we're not to receive support from our allies for the steps we've taken, obviously this would be a serious matter insofar as this alliance of ours is concerned. There's no question about that. I don't think that's what's going to happen."

Haig will join other NATO ministers in Brussels next Monday to discuss the Polish crisis and assess the possibility of developing an alliance-wide consensus.

The U.S. official, who briefed reporters on the understanding he would not be identified by name, said Washington hoped for "parallel action from our allies where possible" and "complimentary steps" in other instances.

If You Know What An Owner/Operator Is...

You Know It's Worth $2,500 To Become One.

The only thing stopping a lot of good truckers from becoming owner/operators is the tractor cost. That's why Aero Mayflower developed a new tractor lease program. It's a way for owner/operators to get started. All it takes to begin is $2,500. As an owner/operator with Mayflower you'll get:

1. 56% of the line haul ($560 out of every $1,000.)
2. If the fuel goes up, so does your fuel surcharge.
3. Training (if you need it) at our expense.
4. Your own business with a very successful company behind you.

We'd like to tell you more. Call 1-800-428-1220 (in INDIANA call 1-800-382-1212) between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Eastern Standard Time.

Bulldogs, Rebels open District 5-5A play tonight

Midland High, Lee seen as contenders for district title

By ROBERT BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

The race is on in District 5-5A and from looking at the results of the nondistrcit games played so far this year, it seems like six teams have an excellent chance of going the distance for the title.

Midland High and Midland Lee should both be among the front runners in the race as each team has done well in its previous 17 games.

The Bulldogs, with two tournament titles to their credit, have a 13-4 record and have used the nondistrict games to give 16 players some varsity action under Coach Jack Stephenson's "wave attack" style of play. Tonight they will pit that experience against the Odessa Permian Panthers (7-10) at Chaparral Center with the sophomores starting at 4:15 p.m. followed by the junior varsity at 6:15 and the varsity at 8.

Lee will open its 5-5A schedule on the road tonight against Odessa High (9-9), also at 4:15, 6:15 and 8. Like MHS, the Rebels, under Coach Paul Stueckler, have fared well in their predistrict games posting an 11-6 record.

THE BULLDOGS received some good news Monday. "The best I've heard all day," said Stephenson when he found out the results of X-rays on his leading scorer Preston Robertson who suffered an ankle injury in Midland High's 67-47 victory over Lubbock Estacado Saturday.

"It's not a break," Stephenson continued. "I don't know where he'll be Tuesday (against Permian) at this point. He's still sore. Since it's not a break we can speed up the healing process. There are a lot of things you can't do when you think there is a break.

"I'd say he's a probable starter but we'll have to play the pain. He wants to play and that means a lot."

As to his team's chances of repeating as the District 5-5A champion and for making it three outright titles in the past four seasons (Permian and MHS tied in 1979 for the title and the Panthers won the playoff game to advance to bi-district), Coach Stephenson said, "I like our team's chances, but it is going to be much tougher than last year when we went undefeated. We won all 14 district games last year, but even then we went triple overtime with San Angelo and defeated Cooper by two points once."

San Angelo (10-4 in nondistrict play) is one of the teams that Coach Stephenson sees as a serious contender for the district title this year.

"It looks like just about anyone can win on any given night," he said. "Abilene High (also 13-4 in nondistrict play), San Angelo and Lee are going to be super tough and this year teams like Big Spring and Odessa High have a chance when they take the floor. It could be very interesting.

"I'm very proud of the way our kids have played this year. It's been a real team effort and I wouldn't trade what I have with anybody," he concluded.

Along with Robertson who is averaging 20.5 points per game, MHS has two other double digit scorers in the starting lineup, senior forward Don Sharnowski at 13.5 and senior forward Raymond Parker with a 12.7 average.

Joining his three top scorers on the starting lineup are senior post man Jim Gunnels (7.1) and senior guard Barr Bolger (3.4). Also, Doug Hixon (2.4), Scott Louderback (2.1) and Rob Franklin (2.6) have seen a lot of playing time.

COACH STUECKLER also sees a tough fight for No. 1 in 5-5A this season saying, "I've seen every team play and I think Midland High has the best team. From what I've seen, I think they have more talent but San Angelo and Abilene High are also good teams.

"Here's how I see the district," he continued. "I see Midland ahead of the rest but I see everybody else in the district about the same. It's going to be whoever catches fire, gets the hot hand, that's going to win it. I don't see much of a difference in the top teams."

And about his own team's chances?

"I think we're in a pretty good position," said Stueckler. "We have an 11-6 record and that's not bad at all going into district play. We're going to improve just a little bit."

Like MHS, the Rebels have some good players in their lineup and Coach Stueckler doesn't see any drastic changes from his predistrict games.

"We'll still be going pretty much with the same players, the same offensive, the same defensive formations and the same philosophy," he said.

Andre Van Buren is leading the Rebels in scoring with a 19.1 average while Alvin Dunson is scoring a 15.6 click. Among the players who share starting roles with Van Buren and Dunson are: Guard Randy Pepper averaging 9.0 per game, Barry Blackwell 7.2, Kenneth Brown 7.5, Olen Smith 5.3 and Steve Cherryhomes 2.5. These seven players carry the bulk of the Lee load.

"Kenneth Brown, our big man, I'll bet he hasn't had more than 10 practices becasue of football," said Stueckler. "He sould improve. At times he has been a dominating force inside on defense.

"Olen Smith, our 6-foot-5 center, has been playing reall good ball lately and our point guard Randy Pepper does a good job running the ball club and is a really good assist man."

Coach Stueckler let the scoring performances of his two big guns speak for themselves.

ELSEWHERE AROUND the 5-5A tonight, Big Spring will take its 9-7 record against Abilene High (13-4) on the Eagles' home court while Abilene Cooper (2-14) travels to San Angelo (10-6).

On Friday, Big Spring will be at Chaparral Center against the Bulldogs while Lee travels to San Angelo. Abilen High is at Permian while Odessa travesl to Cooper.

Midland High got some good news Monday when Coach Jack Stephenson found out his leading scorer Preston Robertson (32) didn't break a bone in his ankle Saturday against Lubbock Estacado. Robertson, who is scoring at a 20.5 per game average is listed as probable in the Bulldogs' District 5-5A opener tonight at Chaparral Center against Odessa Permian.

Rebels beats OHS, Mojo defeats MHS

By ROBERT BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Except for a four minute span at the start of the second half, the Midland Lee Lady Rebels had an easy time against the Odessa High Bronchos Monday night at Chaparral Center in their second District 5-5A game of the season.

Lee came out in the first quarter and took a commanding 20-10 lead and built it up to 46-24 at the half. OHS came out strong at the start of the third quarter scoring 11 unanswered points to cut Lee's lead to 46-35 before the Lady Rebels got back on track and returned to their first half form. Lee was ahead 61-41 at the end of three and were outscored 14-10 in the final quarter.

"I thought we played a good first half," said Lee head coach Shirley Stephenson. "I think we have a problem when we get way ahead. We were a little complacent in the third quarter then they realized what was happening and got their concentration back in the game a little more.

Shun Harris set the scoring pace for the Lady Rebels with 19 points while teammate Yshun King added another 12. Eight other Lee players contributed to the point total.

Harris and King were also Lee's leading rebounders in the game with 12 and eight respectively and King was the leader in the steals category with five. Lurdes Duran led the team in assists with four.

For Odessa, Karen Wallace was the top scorer with 19 points while Pam Allen and Valettria Jernigan added 10 each.

The victory upped Lee's season record to 13-6 (2-0 in 5-5A play) while OHS fell to 8-9 (0-2 in 5-5A).

In junior varsity action, Lee overcame a 40-43 OHS third quarter lead by outscoring the Bronchos 20-10 in the final frame for a 60-53 victory. Deanda Rhodes was the leading scorer with 17 points followed by Tanya Mayberry with 16 and Faye Oudems with 11. For OHS Oralia Gonzalez and Veronica Catano scored 12 poins each while Dolia Castillo added 10.

Midland High wasn't as fortunate Monday night in Odessa.

The Bulldogs dropped a 66-57 decision to the Odessa Permian Panthers in suffering their second District 5-5A loss in as many games. Permian is now 2-0.

The Panthers took a 17-12 first quarter lead and ran it up to 30-22 by the end of the half. In the third quarter, they extended their advantage to 48-36. MHS won the fourth quarter, but it wasn't enough to offset Permian's lead.

A key statistic to the loss came from the free throw line where Permian canned 30 charity points to Midland's 13. MHS won from the field by six points.

"They were a lot bigger than we were," said MHS head coach Jane Young. "I felt like they won the game at the free throw line. I thought our girls played well. They outrebounded us and beat us at the free throw line."

Shelia Christian led the Bulldogs in scoring with 14 points while teammates Janice Littlefield and Missy Larremore added 12 and 11 respectively. Jana Davis led the Panthers with 20 points and Melissa Harrison and Julia Wright added 14 and 12 respectively.

In junior varsity action Monday night, Midland High ripped Permian 52-24. Linda Cook was the top scorer for the Purple Pack with 13 points while teammate Melissa Mathis added 11. Angie Keck led Permian scorers with six points.

The MHS sophomores were 39-32 winners over the Panthers. Sally Seal led the way to victory with nine points and Sharon Mendenhall added another eight for the Bulldogs while L. Bartlett scored 11 for Permian.

IN OTHER girls 5-5A action Monday night, Abilene High defeated Big Spring 60-55 and San Angelo downed Abilene Cooper 75-41.

For Abilene High (10-5 overall, 2-0 district), Sonya Roberts hit a sizzling 23 points while teammate Tracy Hubbard added 13 to set the pace for victory over the Lady Steers. Big Spring (9-11, 0-2) was paced by Sherlie Rutledge with 21 and Elise Wheat with 13.

San Angelo (10-7, 2-0) got high double digit scoring from three girls enroute to its victory over Abilene Cooper. Elsa Ornelas scored 19, Jeanne Bryant 17 and Lisa Champlin 16. Cooper (10-7, 0-2) was paced by Angela Riggins with 11 and Carla Seldon and Renee Bryant with 10 each.

North Carolina near-unanimous No. 1

By TOM CANAVAN
Associated Press Writer

Preseason favorite North Carolina is the near-unanimous choice today as the No.1 team in The Associated Press college basketball poll following a week in which nine of the nation's Top 20 teams lost at least one game.

This week's poll, in which Virginia replaced previously unbeaten Wichita State as the country's No. 2 team, sets up a matchup of the nation's two top-ranked teams Saturday when North Carolina hosts the Cavaliers in a nationally televised game.

North Carolina, which raised its record to 9-0 with a victory over William and Mary last night, collected 56 of 58 first-place votes and 1,158 points — two shy of perfection. The Tar Heels also posted a thrilling 56-50 overtime decision over Penn State and downed Santa Clara 63-50 in winning the Cable Car Classic last week.

Virginia, 11-0 following a pair of victories over James Madison and one over Richmond, was tabbed No.1 on the final two first-place ballots. The Cavaliers received 1,095 points from the poll's nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Kentucky, now 8-1 following a 34-28 overtime victory over Notre Dame in a slowdown game and a harrowing 68-66 decision over Georgia last week, inched up one slot to No.3 with 894 points.

Six of the remaining seven teams in the Top 10 also were ranked there last week, but have played a game of musical chairs.

Missouri, DePaul, Minnesota and Iowa all jumped three positions and are ranked 4-7 respectively.

Missouri, 9-0 after victories over Southern Cal and Notre Dame, got 959 points. DePaul, 10-1, was next with 877 followed by Minnesota at 808 and Iowa with 740.

San Francisco, 11-1, slipped two positions to No.8 when knocked from the unbeaten ranks by Rice in the Rainbow Classic. The Dons, who received 628 points, rebounded later in the tournament to beat Wichita State, 9-2, which plummeted to No.9 following its loss to San Francisco and another to North Carolina State.

Tulsa, No.13 a week ago, closed out the Top 10 with 549 points.

Arkansas, 8-1, dropped six places to No.11 after being upset by Texas Tech. Louisville is 12th followed by Georgetown, D.C., Houston, North Carolina State, Alabama, Oregon State, Idaho, UCLA and St.John's, N.Y.

Last week, the Second 10 was Indiana, Alabama, Tulsa, Louisville, Oregon State, UCLA, Georgetown, Houston, Villanova and North Carolina State.

Idaho, 11-0, and St.John's, 9-1, are the newcomers to the Top 20, replacing Villanova and Indiana. Villanova lost the championship game to St.John's in the Holiday Festival, while Indiana dropped two games in the same tournament.

Cowboys have great deal of respect for San Francisco QB Joe Montana

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys have a great deal of respect for San Francisco 49er quarterback Joe Montana.

In fact it's hard to hear a Cowboy discussing Montana without using the word respect this week as they prepare to meet the 49ers Sunday in the National Football Conference's title game.

But it hasn't always been that way.

Going into their regular-season game against the 49ers Oct. 11, the Cowboys admit they didn't consider Montana to be a quarterback equal to a Ron Jaworski or a Terry Bradshaw.

It didn't take long for Montana to win their respect. The 49ers held a 21-0 lead at the end of the first quarter and went on to beat the Cowboys, 45-14, the worst loss Dallas suffered in more than a decade.

Ed "Too Tall" Jones, who hopes to spend some time face-to-face with Montana Sunday's, was one who wasn't in awe of Montana before what has been called the "Candlestick Park Massacre."

"To be really honest, I didn't have a whole lot of respect for the 49ers before that game," Jones said, "I played hard. But I still didn't think they could beat us regardless of what happened."

"I didn't know half the names of the whole team," Jones added. "Things started happening so fast that we couldn't get control of the game."

"Even though they beat us that day, they didn't beat the real Cowboys," Jones said.

Montana completed 19 of 29 passes for 279 yards and two touchdowns that day, but Dallas cornerback Dennis Thurman believes it was a one-shot deal.

"He (Montana) is a good quarterback and the way he has been playing they will be tough to beat," Thurman admitted.

"But everything he's done up until this game means nothing," Thurman said, "To beat us, he will have to have a repeat performance of the last game against Dallas."

Jones said he watched closely last Sunday as 49ers left guard John Ayers pulled out on every passing down to block New York Giants linebacker and rookie sensation Lawrence Taylor.

AP picks Bill Walsh as NFL's Coach of Year

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Walsh, who in just three seasons changed the San Francisco 49ers from the National Football League's losingest team to its winningest, was named today The Associated Press Coach of the Year.

Walsh was the overwhelming choice of a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters, named on 61½ of the 84 ballots cast. Forrest Gregg, who performed a "worst-to-first" feat with the Cincinnati Bengals, was a distant second with 15½ votes.

Don Shula of the Miami Dolphins received three votes, Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys got two and Dan Reeves of the Denver Broncos and Walt Michaels of the New York Jets received one vote apiece.

The 50-year-old Walsh, who doubles as general manager of the 49ers, piloted the team to a 13-3 record, the best in the NFL, in 1981. When he took control of the club before the 1979 season, it had won just 31 of its previous 86 games and was coming off a 2-14 season.

SAN FRANCISCO went 2-14 again in '79, then improved to 6-10 the following year before storming to its first winning season since 1976 and its first National Conference Western Division championship since 1972.

The redevelopment of the 49ers into an NFL power was achieved in two basic steps. First Walsh put together a potent pass-oriented offense, but one which often couldn't survive the team's defense. Then, in the 1981 draft and in major acqusitions after that, he built a defense into the second best in the conference.

Among the players he drafted his first year were Joe Montana and Dwight Clark, the NFC's leading passer and receiver this year. And in 1981 he used three of his first four selections to draft Ronnie Lott, Eric Wright and Carlton Williamson, three-quarters of San Francisco's defensive backfield, then picked up a pair of defensive stars with contract problems — pass-rushing end Fred Dean from San Diego and linebacker Jack "Hacksaw" Reynolds from Los Angeles.

Last year the 49ers' defense was the second-worst in the league. This year it was second-best.

WALSH SERVED his apprenticeship in the NFL starting in 1966 as offensive backfield coach for the Oakland Raiders, then for the next nine years was coach of the quarterbacks and receivers of the Cincinnati Bengals. During that stretch he developed Ken Anderson into one of the league's best quarterbacks. And in 1976, as San Diego's offensive coordinator, he was instrumental in turning Dan Fouts into one of the game's most explosive passers.

Walsh, who had been an assistant coach at Stanford during 1963-65, returned as the school's head coach in 1977-78 before being lured back to the pros by San Francisco.

Bengals' Anderson named Most Valuable Player

By JOE KAY
AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) — Quarterback Ken Anderson, one of pro football's most accurate passers, accepted a coveted honor in the same low-key manner in which he guided the Cincinnati Bengals to their finest season.

"It means a lot because your team is winning," said Anderson, who was chosen by a panel of Associated Press sportswriters and broadcasters as the National Football League's Most Valuable Player for 1981.

"Leading the league in passing and having good statistics is nice. But the ultimate is winning. That's what makes the award special."

Displaying the accuracy that made him one of the most feared quarterbacks in the mid-1970s, Anderson shattered several personal passing records in leading the Bengals to a 12-4 regular season mark and the American Conference Central title in 1981.

The 11-year veteran from Augustana College in Illinois threw for 3,754 yards and 29 touchdowns, completed 62.6 percent of his passes (his second-best career mark), was intercepted just 10 times in the regular season. He was the top-ranked passer in the NFL.

His precise passing earned him a spot on the All-Pro team for the fourth time in his career and put the Bengals in their first AFC title game.

After suffering through two injury-plagued seasons, the 32-year-old Anderson was benched for his poor performance in the first quarter of the 1981 season opener against the Seattle Seahawks. But Coach Forrest Gregg started Anderson the next week, launching the quarterback's record-breaking season.

"He came back like a champion," said tight end Dan Ross, who led Bengals' receivers with 71 regular-season catches.

Gregg, who thought about benching Anderson for the Bengals' second game against the New York Jets but decided to stick with the veteran, concurred with the MVP choice.

"He had a lot to overcome," Gregg said Monday. "He was sort of the second choice of the fans (who preferred younger backup Jack Thompson). It's tough to be playing in your home stadium, you're introduced as the starting quarterback and you hear the hometown fans booing. That has to affect any player, particularly a quarterback.

"Kenny really developed a mental toughness that enabled him to handle that kind of situation. I think that has earned him the respect of his teammates. It's turned everyone's mind around in Cincinnati. You don't hear any more boos when he's introduced."

Anderson thinks it was a case of the quarterback getting too much credit or blame for how a team performs.

"The real satisfaction is that those of us who have been here for a lot of years have been through the hard times," Anderson said. "It's nice to kind of rise up again together."

Tigers hire Smith as arbitrator

DETROIT (AP) — Tal Smith, former general manager of the Houston Astros, has been hired part time by the Detroit Tigers to represent the team in player salary disputes that go to arbitration.

Smith, who was fired by the Astros in a front-office power struggle after the 1980 season, operates a baseball consulting firm from Houston and works with several other major league clubs.

Last year he assisted the Oakland A's in salary arbitration victories over Mike Norris and Tony Armas which, Smith said Monday, saved the A's $440,000.

The Tigers, who could face as many as 11 arbitration cases this spring, have lost cases to second baseman Lou Whitaker and shortstop Alan Trammell in recent years as well as losing two celebrated bitter cases to Steve Kemp, the slugging outfielder who was traded to the Chicago White Sox last autumn.

Those cases all were handled by Bill Lajoie, a Tigers' vice president, and administrative assistant Dan Elve, who left the Detroit organization late last year.

Andrea Jaeger says fans sometimes resent her success

DETROIT (AP) — Andrea Jaeger, the 16-year-old tennis star who has earned $612,411 since turning professional two years ago, says fans — even those her own age — sometimes resent her success.

Jaeger, who still attends high school in Lincolnshire, Ill., was in Detroit Monday to promote the Avon Championships of Detroit, a $150,000 tournament beginning Feb.1 at Cobo Arena.

"There are a lot of times when the crowd is rooting for the other player, I think, because they don't want to see a 16-year-old win," Jaeger said. "Most kids are going to school, and then they come out and see us go out there making hundreds of thousands of dollars, and they can't accept it."

Jaeger was the youngest player ever to be seeded at Wimbledon (when whe was 15), but her 19-year-old sister Susy — a member of the Stanford University tennis team — says it is wrong to consider Andrea an overnight sensation.

"A lot of people think she made it quick, but it isn't so," said the elder Jaeger, who frequently travels with her younger sister. "She's been playing a lot since she was 8, because our parents were taking me out to play tennis and Andrea was tired of just being dragged along.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Bunge, Shriver win Avon matches

TENNIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sixth-seeded Bettina Bunge ousted Pam Teeguarden 6-4, 6-4, in the opening round of the $200,000 Avon Tennis Championships of Washington.

In other action, fifth-seeded Pam Snriver defeated Anne Hobbs of England, 6-4, 6-1; Leslie Allen beat Kate Latham, 6-1, 1-6, 6-1; JoAnne Russell defeated Betsy Nagelsen 3-6, 7-5, 6-4; Pam Casale eliminated Great Britain's Jo Durie 6-3, 6-1; Julie Harrington downed Peanut Louie 6-3, 6-4 and Beth Norton topped Zina Garrison, 6-2, 6-1.

NEW YORK (AP) — Steve Denton, runner-up to South Africa's Johan Kriek in the Australian Open, was named Volvo Grand Prix Player of the Month for December.

Denton jumped 50 places, to No.24, on the Association of Tennis Professionals' computer rankings last month as he reached the semifinals in two tournaments.

BASKETBALL

NEW YORK (AP) — San Antonio's George Gervin, who averaged 42 points a game last week in leading the Spurs to three victories, was named the Pepsi-National Basketball Association Player of the Week for the period ending Jan.4.

Gervin, who leads the NBA in scoring this year with a 33.0 average, is the first two-time winner of the award this season. The smooth shooting guard also won the award on Dec.7.

Gervin, who scored his 18,000th professional point during the week, collected 46 points in a 119-107 triumph over San Diego last Tuesday and chipped in with 42 in a 109-104 decision over Houston the following night. He capped the week with a 38-point performance against Denver Saturday night in 148-133 victory.

HOCKEY

MONTREAL (AP) — Center Wayne Gretzky of the Edmonton Oilers earned another National Hockey League Player-of-the-Week award, although this time he had to share the honor with Pittsburgh Penguins rookie forward Doug Shedden.

It was the third straight week Gretzky was honored and the fifth time this year he has won or shared the award.

Gretzky, who collected eight points in three games from Dec.28-Jan.3, was named mainly because of his five-goal performance against the Philadelphia Flyers last Wednesday night.

The five goals gave Gretzky 50 in his first 39 games, shattering the standard set by Maurice Richard and Mike Bossy, who both needed 50 games to score 50 goals.

The 20-year-old Shedden had four goals and four assists in a week highlighted by the first three-goal performance of his career in a 9-4 triumph over the Hartford Whalers last Saturday night.

HORSE RACING
Monday's Races

BOSTON (AP) — Lunamor, $3.80, registered a six-length victory over Indiana Boy in the $8,000 Worcester Purse at Suffolk Downs.

BOWIE, Md. (AP) — Wegone Daggone, $50.40, won the $20,000 Early Bird Purse at Bowie Race Course by a lenth over Gaylord's Secret.

MIAMI (AP) — Qualified, $47.80, finished 2½-lengths in front of Feeney Mill to win The Swoonalong at Calder.

Olajuwon comes off bench to pace Houston over Rice in SWC opener

By The Associated Press

They call him Akeem "The Dream" Olajuwon and Houston coach Guy Lewis' dream came true in Houston's Southwest Conference basketball opener.

Olajuwon came off the bench in the second half to dominate rebounding on both ends of the court, score 10 points and lead the 18th-ranked Cougars to a 83-61 victory over the determined Rice Owls Monday night in the SWC opener for both teams.

"It wasn't easy and it wasn't beautiful but it was one victory in the SWC," Lewis said. "I was just glad to see the clock run down."

Olajuwon, a freshman from Nigeria, got six rebounds on each end of the court and led an early second-half surge that put Houston ahead for good at 42-41 with 7:37 left in the game.

The victory put Houston in a tie for first place in the SWC with Texas Tech, which upset fifth-ranked Arkansas over the weekend.

In the only other SWC action Monday night, Baylor defeated Southwestern, 68-59, in a non-conference game at Waco.

Houston sophomore Clyde Drexler scored all nine of his points during the stretch when the Cougars took the lead and Rob Williams, slowed by a wrist injury, contributed 15 crucial points.

The surprising Owls, who upset sixth-ranked San Francisco and 20th-ranked North Carolina State in their last two games, took a 27-21 halftime lead, paced by high-scoring Ricky Pierce, who scored 37 points in the game.

Houston boosted its season record to 10-1 and won its ninth game in a row while the Owls dropped to an 8-5 record after winning the Rainbow Classic in Hawaii with their victories over Hawaii, San Francisco and North Carolina State.

The Cougars extended their series record to 21-1 over their crosstown rivals.

Terry Teagle scored 21 points to pace Baylor in the non-conference victory over Southwestern, but it took a steal by Teagle, a full court drive and layup with 3:05 remaining to give the Bears a lead they never relinquished.

Baylor, 7-3, held only a 34-30 halftime lead and trailed, 59-58, with 4:55 remaining in the game.

North Texas St 87, Pan American 83

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — Guards Furmia Nealy and Pat Hicks combined to score 7 points in 48 seconds, wiping out a 9-point deficit, as North Texas State beat Pan American University Monday for the first time ever in basketball, 87-83.

North Texas improved its record to 8-4 with its fourth straight win. The Mean Green had lost all eight previous games against Pan American.

Pan Am was leading 75-66 with 6:02 to go, when Nealy, a 6-1 sub, pumped 11 points during the final six minutes.

Hicks, who had 15 assists, drove the middle and hit a 12-footer to put North Texas ahead, 82-81, with 52 seconds remaining.

Nine seconds later, Nealy drove for a 3-point play after his steal. Kenneth Lyons then stuffed with 24 seconds left to clinch the comeback.

David Vasher sank 14 of 23 shots for North Texas State and scored 28 points. Lyons got 23 points and 11 rebounds.

Clinton Cobb scored 25 points and got 15 rebounds for Pan Am, which fell to 4-8.

New Mexico St 75, West Texas St 66

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — Guard Ernest Patterson scored 18 points and pulled down nine rebounds to spark New Mexico State to a 75-66 Missouri Valley Conference basketball win over West Texas State Monday night.

Patterson and fellow guard Rich Taylor combined for 19 rebounds as the Aggies crashed the boards and connected on 54 percent of their shots in the second half to break open the game.

NMSU outrebounded the Buffaloes 46-35 and that helped stall the West Texas State offense which entered the game averaging 87 points a game.

The victory upped NMSU's season record to 7-5 and evened their MVC mark at 1-1. West Texas State, also 1-1 in the conference, is now 7-3 overall.

Guard Eddie Harris with 17 points and Paul Perkins with 12 led the Buffaloes. Joining Patterson in double figures for the Aggies were center Renault Moultrie with 16 points and forwards Jamie Pena with 14 and Derek Sailors with 13.

NMSU led from the opening jump and held a 41-34 lead at halftime. The Aggies stretched the margin to 15 points, 59-44, on a layup by Sailors with 10:34 left in the game. West Texas State could get no closer than the final score.

Fresno State 56, Lamar 36

FRESNO (AP) — Rod Higgins and Bernard Thompson each scored 14 points to pace Fresno State to a 56-36 non-conference victory Monday over previously undefeated Lamar at Sellands Arena.

The Bulldogs, who shot just 40 percent from the field, hit 18 of 20 free throws while the Cardinals managed just four of eight from the line.

Fresno State, which entered the game with the nation's best defense — a 45.4 point a game average — improved its season record to 10-1. Lamar slipped to 9-1.

Texas-Arlington 77, Texas-San Antonio 69

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Texas-Arlington's Ralph McPherson scored 25 points and grabbed 10 rebounds to spark the Mavericks to a 77-69 college basketball triumph over Texas-San Antonio Monday night.

Jeffrey Stewart added 17 points for Texas-Arlington. The Mavericks hit nine of 10 free throw attempts in the closing minutes to boost their record to 4-5.

Texas-San Antonio, 3-9, was led by Dennis Mumford with 18 points and Tres Sowder with 12.

Texas-El Paso 73, Utah 61

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Terry White scored 21 points to lead Texas-El Paso to a 73-61 victory over Utah in a Western Athletic Conference basketball game Monday night.

White scored 12 of his points in the second half when the Miners broke open a tight game. Fred Reynolds and Byron Walker each had 16 points.

Utah was led by Pace Mannion with 16 points and Peter Williams with 11.

The Miners evened their conference record at 1-1 and boosted their season mark to 9-4. Utah is also 1-1 in the WAC and 6-7 for the year.

49ers' Reynolds heart of defense

By ERIC PREWITT
AP Sports Writer

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Jack "Hacksaw" Reynolds, middle linebacker and game film freak, has become the heart of the San Francisco 49ers' defense.

Today, he was to return to the practice field of the Los Angeles Rams, the team which let him go a year ago. The 49ers were forced south because of heavy rains which left their regular practice fields water-logged.

Next Sunday's National Football Conference championship match with the Dallas Cowboys will be San Francisco's 22nd game of the season, including last summer's exhibitions. Coach Bill Walsh says, "If we were playing 50 games, it would make Jack that much happier.

"He is consumed with football, even more than any addicted coach."

The 49ers discovered that about Reynolds as soon as he reported to summer training camp with his projector and began his nightly raids on the coaches' game-film library.

"He's made a tremendous difference, partly because of his film studies. But he leads the team in tackles, too," says Bobby Leopold, one of the several young San Francisco linebackers who seemed to improve so much this season.

Reynolds, 34, is the oldest player on the 49ers. Five linebackers are 26 or younger, and Reynolds has led by example — 117 tackles in the regular season — and with his words.

His leadership style includes encouragement and defensive signal-calling during games. Between games, he seems most concerned about the possibility of younger teammates getting overconfident.

"We were lucky," he said after the 49ers registered their first of two regular season victories over the Rams.

"We're learning more and more about each other all the time, and we've got to do that if we're going to get better. Every team either gets better or worse during a season. You don't stay the same," Reynolds said after a late-season 49ers' defensive performance which he went so far as to rate as not bad.

TCU golfer dies of heart attack

SAGINAW, Mich. (AP) — The state's top-ranked amateur golfer and the No. 1 player on the Texas Christian University squad has died of a heart attack.

Brion Carlson, 22, suffered a heart attack Dec. 31 at his Saginaw home. The TCU senior had a congenital heart condition, said Bud Erikson, executive director of the Golf Association of Michigan.

Carlson had been planning to turn pro this summer, Erikson said.

Since moving to Saginaw from Illinois two years ago, Carlson had won several statewide amateur tournaments at the Bay City Country Club.

Airlines fare increases, price wars confusing

NEW YORK (AP) — Their planes half empty, the nation's airlines have turned to a confusing combination of fare increases and price wars, along with incentives ranging from free cars to Green Stamps.

Airline officials say they hope stability will prevail in the industry in 1982, but there was little indication of it on the year's first business day, Monday.

"I've never seen such jockeying over fares," United Airlines spokesman Chuck Novak said.

In 1980, the American airline industry lost $225 million, the largest loss in history, according to Bill Jackman of the Air Transport Association of America, and "1981 is going to come in a close second." He said the ATA expected the major carriers' losses will be about $200 million for 1981's last quarter, after three break-even quarters.

Air Florida, in a first for the airline industry, said Monday it would offer passengers free Sperry and Hutchinson Green Stamps for ticket purchases on flights within Florida.

DISCOUNT fares and hotel packages "are not enough for Air Florida," it said. Effective Jan. 11, Air Florida said passengers will get a certificate worth 400 stamps for travel within Florida.

Spokesmen for the larger airlines expressed amusement at Air Florida's Green Stamp offer.

"I think that must be the end of the gimmicks," said David Lobb, a spokesman for American Airlines. "I hope this year (the industry) will return to normalcy."

But Lobb conceded that 1982 did not seem to be departing from the price wars of 1981, when the airlines were devastated by reduced traffic, higher fuel prices and cutbacks from the air traffic controllers strike.

Most airlines said they planned average $10 one-way fare increases this week, but only on selected routes. The fierce competition on New York-to-Florida runs showed no sign of abating, with fares reaching as low as $89 one-way between Newark, N.J., and Florida.

"FARES HAVE gone up and down like a yo-yo," said David Venz, director of public affairs for Trans World Airlines, which said Monday it will cut transcontinental fares effective Jan. 22.

TWA, along with the $89 fare from Newark, also planned to offer a traveling family free use of a rental car for four days.

In addition, it reduced cross-country fares as much as 41 percent on "Super Saver" tickets which must be bought 14 days in advance. Fares between the East and West coasts were reduced to $358, from a normal coach fare of $600.

Other cross-country carriers said they were studying TWA's move.

The major airlines hope the $10 increases will produce more revenue without discouraging travel. The Florida price war reflects a low level of reservations at what is usually a peak travel period from the snowy North to the balmy South.

American said it will raise its fares along with the other lines except on routes where it competes with Braniff International, which has not raised fares. Delta Air Lines also said it will impose a general increase, but with many exceptions.

EASTERN SAID it will generally raise fares $10, or $16 on some roundtrip tickets, but not in either its Florida service or its shuttle services between New York, Washington and Boston.

USAir said it would drop restrictions on its "Super Coach" fares between nearly 60 northern cities and Florida.

Music dominates Carmichael funeral

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — They played his music, sang his swing-era songs and quoted Hoagy Carmichael.

The Hoosier-born songwriter's final rites Monday afternoon were more of a concert than a funeral.

Born Hoagland Howard Carmichael Nov. 22, 1899, in Bloomington, the composer of 135 songs died Dec. 27 at Rancho Mirage, Calif., where he lived. The service was postponed more than a week so it could be held at his alma mater in the room named for him on the Indiana University campus.

After the service, he was buried next to his parents in Rose Hill Cemetery.

About 400 people came to Carmichael's funeral in the grand foyer of the university's Musical Arts Center. Nearly 100 people stood for the 90-minute service for the 1926 IU Law School graduate who donated $100,000 to the center.

At the start of the service, six music professors played such Carmichael classics as "Heart and Soul," putting more smiles than tears on the faces in the crowd. They also played a special piece, "Serenade for Gabriel," written by Carmichael for his own funeral.

President Reagan and his wife, Nancy, sent flowers.

Chancellor Herman B Wells, who attended IU when Carmichael did, said, "Truly Hoagy's songs are known wherever folks sing, and they have touched the hearts of untold millions."

Amtrak train derails in rainstorm injuring 13 people

SAN PABLO, Calif. (AP) — A soggy railroad bed weakened by a mighty rainstorm apparently was to blame for a derailment that injured 13 people on an Amtrak passenger train, officials said.

The San Francisco Zephyr, bound for Chicago, slipped off the track a half-hour after it pulled away from the Oakland station Monday afternoon in a fierce storm, said Amtrak spokeswoman Susan Dole.

None of the injuries was serious, according to officials at the two hospitals where the 13 were taken. The injured "walked in carrying their luggage," said Paul Meyer, adminstrative resident at Brookside Hospital.

Rescuers reached the 150 passengers on the derailed train by rowboat and helicopter, said Lt. Gary Ford of the Contra Costa County Sheriff's Department.

Some roads leading to the area of the derailment, near San Pablo Creek, were under 5 feet of water, Ford said.

Six cars of a 10-car train, including two locomotives, ran off the track about 17 miles north of Oakland, Ms. Dole said.

"The train just surged to the left. The train did not go over on its side, thankfully," said a passenger who declined to give his name. "Everything was handled quite well. People were calm," he said.

Southern Pacific owns the stretch of track, which was closed between Oakland and Martinez.

After more than 24 hours of rain, the roadbed under the track apparently was too weak to support the rails, said Southern Pacific spokesman Tom Buckley.

Southern Pacific also reported the derailment of seven cars of a 10-car freight train near Alderpoint, about 200 miles north of San Francisco.

Striking nurses reject contract offer

ASHTABULA, Ohio (AP) — Nurses who rejected a contract offer that would have ended their record 17-month strike say they are eager to return to the bargaining table, but hospital administrators say there is little to discuss.

About 100 unionized nurses striking Ashtabula General Hospital turned aside a package Monday that would have made them among the highest paid nurses in Ohio and returned them to their old jobs.

"A little money and the jobs we already had just wasn't enough after 17 months," Ashtabula General Nurses Association President Mary Runyon said after the secret vote.

"The bottom line of all this is that it's a union-busting situation," said Kathy Keller, past local president who led the strike.

HOSPITAL ADMINISTRATOR Floyd Farley said he was "appalled by the (union's) disregard for the well-being of this community."

"The hospital has addressed in this proposal the one real issue that has separated the hospital and the nurses — the return of the nurses' jobs," Farley said.

The 535-day walkout already holds the record as the longest by nurses, according to the American Nurses Association.

Union bargainers said they would seek a return to negotiations "as soon as possible."

Farley said bargainers will meet with the nurses but will not agree to demands for a modifed union shop and a voice in staffing levels of registered and licensed practical nurses.

Most of the striking nurses, who call themselves the "Ashtabula 100," have taken other jobs since the walkout began July 21, 1980. Only a few are experiencing financial difficulty, said Joan Kalhorn, a lawyer for the Ohio Nurses Association, parent group of the local union.

A national shortage of nurses that has made it easy for strikers to find work also has hurt the hospital's recruiting efforts.

ASHTABULA GENERAL, the only hospital in this northeastern Ohio city of 23,000, will reopen 16 beds Wednesday, increasing to 115 the number of available spots at the 234-bed hospital. Eight of the hospital's 10 divisions will be operating, Farley said.

"You have to remember that we were closed down by this strike when it happened. We've slowly built back up and we will continue to do so," Farley said.

A proposal similar to the hospital's latest offer was put forth by a federal mediator in September. The nurses accepted it on a close vote but the hospital rejected it.

"Something is happening to make them (hospital administrators) change their minds," Mrs. Runyon said. "We have to go back to the table and find out what."

Farley said the main difference in the two pacts was that the mediator's proposal said all nurses would return to their pre-strike positions. The hospital plan would have given working nurses the choice of either keeping their current jobs or returning to their pre-strike positions.

He said this would not prevent striking nurses from assuming their old jobs because the hospital believes many won't return.

THE UNION, WHICH originally sought a closed shop, changed its demand so that any nurse now working at the hospital would have a choice whether to join the union. But all nurses hired after the contract was approved would be required to join.

Money has never been a top issue in the strike. The base wage of $8.10 an hour is about 12 percent more than the striking nurses made when they walked out. Had they accepted the contract, they would have received that wage upon return as well as a boost to $8.90 an hour in May on the first anniversary of the contract.

Including supervisors, about 95 nurses are working in the hospital, said spokeswoman Barbara McClintock.

State official to mail plea of innocent

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The majority leader in the state House says he will mail in a plea of innocent to charges that he lied on applications for $941,630 in loans from the Farmers Home Administration.

Tommy Burnett, a Jamestown Democrat, appeared Monday before U.S. Magistrate Kent Sandidge III and waived a Jan. 14 formal arraignment hearing.

"I have entered a plea or will enter a plea. I signed a plea of not guilty and it will be sent to the court," Burnett said Monday.

The applications for the low-interest loans were in 1978 and 1979.

Burnett said he won't ask for a delay in the trial unless court proceedings interfere with legislative duties. No trial date was set.

"There's a good possibility that we will meet two or three weeks and go home for three or four months, then come back," he said. "How can we set a budget in January or February when the U.S. Congress hasn't set one for last year yet?"

He said although he has "serious worries" that the trial might interfere with his job as majority leader, he will be back at the Capitol Jan. 18.

Burnett applied for a loan of $31,630 to offset damage to his bean crop caused by a drought in 1977. A six-page indictment accuses Burnett of lying when he said 25 percent of his normal income came from crop sales. It also accuses the lawmaker of saying he sold no cattle "when in fact he received substantial income from cattle sales in 1977."

The indictment accuses Burnett of making false statements on government applications when he requested a loan for $750,000 in April 1978. It says Burnett, a legislator since 1971 and majority leader since 1977, listed on the applications that he owed debts to four lending institutions.
