TEXAS CITY, Texas (AP) —
A pipe at a Sterling Chemicals plant ruptured this morning, spilling benzene and other chemicals into the air, authorities said.

An undetermined amount of benzene, ethyl benzene, poly-ethyl benzene and a small amount of hydrochloric acid were released at about 9:45 a.m., said Laura Naumann, a Sterling spokeswoman. The chemicals are used to manufacture styrene, which other companies use to make plastics.

No injuries were reported,
but the city's 40,000 residents were ordered inside until the spill was reported under control about one hour later.

Texas City Fire Department
Capt. Mike Munez said Sterling's on-site fire department sprayed the vapors with high-pressure water. The runoff is being diverted into a pond at the plant, where it is being immersed in water and diluted. Officials also are shutting off the valves on each end of the pipe that apparently ruptured.

Benzene and ethyl benzene are flammable substances that can cause irritations if ingested.
Hydrochloric acid can cause corrosive burns and eye and nose irritations.

"Don't Forget...

Community gains understanding for need of abstinence program

By JEFF WEST
Staff Writer

"There are about 22 children on average born to students in the Pampa school system," said Stacey Ladd, program director for Worth the Wait.

Ladd quoted the figure at a meeting for parents and concerned citizens Tuesday night. She said the figure came from Pampa School Superintendent Dawson
Orr.

That is enough for an entire kindergarten class in five years, she said.

"We feel like we need to change the social expectation regarding teen sexual activity," said Ladd.

She told the large group at the M.K.
Brown Auditorium meeting room that a lot of parents have told her all teenage kids are going to have sex. But, she said, her first goal is to build a community atmosphere changing that attitude, so that in a year or two, everywhere kids go they are getting the same message. She believes Pampa is a good place to test the program because Pampa ISD already has an abstinence program in place.

Worth the Wait was founded in Pampa using a federal grant that is available through the state for teaching abstinence.
The program came about as part of the welfare reform legislation passed in 1996.

Ladd said the state gave Gray County a grant for 20 months and about $70,000, which is a longer term and more money than requested. She said she believed the extra time was given so that it would cover a full school year which would begin in the fall.

She introduced Dr. Dan Powell, a family doctor in Pampa who showed some of the slides as part of a program that he has presented to seventh graders in the past.

While preventing teen sexual activity involves a lot of issues, according to Powell, the first of the parent meetings last night primarily addressed Sexually Transmitted Diseases. He said from September of 1996 and September 1997

there were 224 cases of STDs reported to county health officials. A pregnant 16-year-old who has had eleven partners since she was 13, a 24-year-old who has been pregnant eight times and has five children, and a 14-year-old who has a high-risk pregnancy are some of the cases that have come to the county health clinic, Powell said.

"It is really a desperate situation. These are your neighbors children, these are children that your children attend school with, and in some cases, these are your children," Powell said.

Powell got a chuckle from the crowd when he said that safe sex was an oxymoron, like talking about the middle-east peace process. He provided statistics showing the high failure rate of condoms in preventing both disease and pregnancy.
Three or four holes per 100 condoms is considered acceptable by inspectors, he said.

He then presented part of a slide show that mixed statistics and graphic pictures of males and female organs that have been infected with some of the many STDs that are common, including herpes, advanced hepatitis, and AIDS.

In Gray County, Powell said, the "overwhelming majority" of people with STDs are in the age group of 15-24.

Pampa ISD Superintendent Dr. Dawson Orr then addressed the group about how all teachers in the Pampa schools are going to be educated, so that if a teacher hears discussion of a sexual nature, they can talk to the students about the consequences of sexual conduct.

He said that a program will be in place by the start of the next school year although he admits results will take several years to track as far as conduct. But hopefully, he said, attitudes can be changed more quickly.

Once a program has been devised, Ladd said, there would be other meetings for parents and concerned citizens to look over the material and make suggestions.

Pampa ISD Superintendent Dr. Dawson Orr and Stacey Ladd, program director for Worth the Wait, explained the reasons behind the implementation of an abstinence program for the school district. Worth the Wait was awarded $70,000 for abstinence education in Gray County.

Local photographers center of museum's new art exhibits

Photography by Louise Daniel and Jim Jordan of Amarillo will be on display at the White Deer Land Museum this week until the end of May.

Daniel holds a BA and a Masters of Education from West Texas State University. She was a teacher in the Amarillo School District for 37 years and served on the Amarillo College Board of Regents in 1996.

Photography started as an avocation with Louise. She earned 45 hours in photography at Amarillo College and now operates Panoramic Photography, a business in landscape photography. She is the recipient of the Distinguished Service Award and is a member of the Amarillo High School Hall of Fame.

She has shown her work in many area cultural centers including Square

House Museum, Panhandle Plains
Historical Museum, The Colony, Amarillo Art Center and Southern Light Gallery.

The photographs which Louise will show were taken with a camera which is nearly 100 years old. It is a large format camera which rotates on a turntable. She says that it can take a 360 degree view on a roll of film 8 inches wide and 6 feet long. Most of the old panoramic prints of Panhandle towns were taken with this camera.

Jim Jordan began his education at Amarillo College in music and photography. He is the Director at Southern Light Gallery in Amarillo.
He is a Trustee with the Amarillo Museum of Art.

White Deer senior student receives $1,000 Wal-Mart scholarship prize

Christa Srader of White Deer is awarded a $1,000 scholarship from Wal-Mart's Norma Powell

By MIRANDA BAILEY
Staff Writer

Christa Srader of White Deer has received a $1,000 scholarship as part of the Sam Walton Community Leader
Award program, sponsored by the Wal-Mart Foundation of Wal-Mart Stores, Inc.

Srader, a senior at White Deer, received this award based on her strong academic performance and involvement in school and community activities.

"This one had them
laughing the whole time," said Pampa Wal-Mart Personnel Manager
Norma Powell about Srader's interview with the judges.

Applications were reviewed by a team of qualified judges consisting of Jeanne Mitchell of Altrusa, Nanette Moore of the Chamber of Commerce and Susan Tripplehorn of the Pampa Economic Development Corporation — community leaders not affiliated with the scholarship program.

"A college education is so critical to success and opportunity in life. We like to reward students who choose to excel and move forward with their educational goals," said Powell.

Srader said she was grateful to Wal-Mart for choosing her as the recipient. She intends to study at West Texas A & M and major in Medical Technologies.

Children's performance 'giant' fun for students

By MIRANDA G. BAILEY
Staff Writer

"Fee-Fie-Go-Fum! I smell the blood of an Englishman!"

The Giant — well the Giant's feet — almost stole the show at the M.K. Brown Auditorium yesterday.

But not quite.

The Dallas Children's Theatre
National Touring Company's seven-member cast of "Jack and the Giant Beanstalk" kept the entire audience mesmerized as the old fairytale was brought to life with spectacular acting, extravagant costumes and lively music, set and props to match.

Pampa ISD hosted the show, which was made possible by grants from the Texas Commission on the Arts,
Celanese and the McCrory

Foundation. The M.K. Brown Auditorium was furnished with free as well.

"They don't charge the schools, which is wonderful,"

said Pampa ISD Fine Arts Consultant, Arlene Gibson-Kirchoff.

This may be the best children's show Pampa has ever seen, was one of representative of the comments Gibson-Kirchoff said she heard from those in attendance.

Reservations for the show were made a year ago in November, she said.

Students from approximately 20 other schools and area districts came to Pampa to see the hour-long production. Three performances kept the auditorium full with the laughter and glee of children from elementary to middle school age.

All but the last four rows were of the auditorium were filled at the last performance of the show.

"When the whole audience is quiet, you know it was good," said Barbara Baird, a former PISD secretary and an active volunteer who assisted with the program.

(Pampa News photo by Jeff West)
"Jack and the Giant Beanstalk" used GIANT feet props to portray the reality of a giant on stage for the numerous panhandle children who came to the performance. Pampa ISD Drama students helped the cast set up the props and scenery.

Cattleman appeals libel case against Oprah Winfrey

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — An Amarillo cattleman has made good on his promise to appeal the high-profile libel case he lost against Oprah Winfrey.

A jury decided in February that Paul Engler and other cattlemen had no valid claim against Ms. Winfrey, her production company and a vegetarian activist under business disparagement laws. Plaintiffs said Ms. Winfrey's April 16, 1996, show dealing with mad cow disease damaged the cattle industry.

During the trial, U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson decided that the cattlemen couldn't sue under Texas' "veggie libel" law, designed to protect food products from false disparagement. Twelve other states have similar statutes.

Engler appealed Friday to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, alleging the judge made incorrect rulings and other errors.

Winfrey's lawyer, Charles Babcock, said he hadn't expected Engler — one of the nation's largest cattle feeders — to follow through with his appeal.

"I thought, upon reflection, they would realize the futility of appealing this verdict," he said.

Papon, defiant, declares innocence in deportation of Jews

BORDEAUX, France (AP) — Former Cabinet Minister Maurice Papon declared his innocence today of crimes against humanity in Nazi-occupied Vichy France, insisting he had always tried to act in the best interests of France.

Papon, 87, is the most senior official of the Vichy regime ever to stand trial for war crimes. He is charged with ordering the arrests and deportations of 1,690 Jews from Bordeaux during World War II; all but a handful died at Auschwitz.

He addressed the jury today in the closing statements of his six-month trial, speaking for more than a half-hour in a clear, angry voice. Afterward, the panel of three judges and nine civilians filed out of the courtroom to begin deliberating.

"What should one have done?" Papon cried out at one point.

And at another: "Sometimes I ask myself, why me?"

He said the prosecution had distorted the truth and "cast aside the law to obey higher orders."

"This is what is called a political trial," he said.

He attacked the civil party lawyers, prosecutors and the media, calling himself a victim of "a media barrage, composed of lies, injustice and infamy aimed at intoxicating public opinion."

"My only hope is in the independence and courage of the court and the popular jury," Papon said.

Saying he had devoted his life to France, he insisted that to resign his post as the wartime deputy prefect of Bordeaux would have been to give in to fear and weakness.

"Staying in one's post sometimes takes more courage than resigning," he said.

He assailed the civil parties representing victims and their families in the case for arguing that even if he wasn't the key decision-maker of Vichy, he was part of a chain of responsibility that led to the deaths of Jews.

"I am either guilty or innocent!" he called out. "Collective responsibility is against the law."

Closing his remarks, he warned the jury that the world was watching.

"I say, be careful that France does not get hurt by this verdict —

Two-year-old drops from 3rd floor into woman's lap

NEW YORK (AP) — A woman who had moved her wheelchair into the shade of an apartment building wall became an unwitting hero when a 2-year-old boy fell from a third-floor window into her lap.

Barbara Jones, 31, in a wheelchair because she has had three strokes, was visiting her mother in Harlem on Tuesday. She told the Daily News she usually sits in another spot a block away, but moved because of Tuesday's hot sun.

"I don't go to that corner," she said, "I was talking to an old friend, and we got to the shade because of the heat."

Above her, Adonis Gomez was playing with a cousin on a sofa inside his apartment when he bounced out the only window in the room that lacked safety grates, his family said.

Adults cooking in the kitchen had opened the windows for fresh air.

The falling boy glanced off the left side of Jones' head, then rolled across her lap and fell to the pavement.

"I thought somebody threw something out the window," she said.

Adonis was in critical condition Tuesday at Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center. Jones suffered a bruise near her left eye.

"Thank God she was there," said Maria Gomez, the boy's grandmother.

The building's superintendent and owner may be given summonses for failing to install safety grates in the window, detectives said.

"outside our borders," he said. "It would be a humiliation for our nation to be linked with Nazi Germany in responsibility for Jewish genocide."

He also denied that France persecuted Jews.

"France should not be accused of this horror just because it took place on her soil," he said.

Stamps to commemorate the 1950s

WASHINGTON (AP) — Looking back at the 1950s, Americans loved drive-in movies, "I Love Lucy" and Dr. Seuss' "The Cat in the Hat."

Those were the top vote getters when more than 800,000 people cast their ballots to pick 15 stamps to commemorate the 1950s, the Postal Service announced today. The stamps will go on sale next spring.

Voting took place throughout February. The public is also to be asked to vote on subjects for other decades in the post offices' Celebrate the Century Program.

While the post office didn't release exact vote counts, it said drive-in movies were the top choice of Americans, with Lucille Ball's popular television show second and the chapeaued feline placing third.

Senate panel clears IRS overhaul

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill to make far-reaching changes at the IRS and extend dozens of new rights to taxpayers won unanimous approval from the Senate Finance Committee. But problems with agency's aging computers threaten to delay some changes for several years.

By a 20-0 vote, the panel Tuesday evening endorsed changes that go far beyond a bill passed by the House in November. A Senate vote was not expected before late April at the earliest, and not before the committee held another series of hearings focusing on IRS problems. "I think it's a major step forward for the American taxpayer," said Senate Finance Chairman William Roth, R-Dele., the bill's main sponsor.

The changes in the bill were so extensive that the Treasury secretary and the IRS commissioner issued letters cautioning that some provisions may have to wait until after 2000 so as to avoid conflict with IRS actions to prepare its computers for the new century.

"It will not be feasible to make any significant additional changes to the IRS systems prior to the 1999 filing season," IRS Commissioner Charles O. Rossotti told the committee.

One change to add names and telephone numbers of IRS employees on computer-generated tax letters "would entail a total redesign of customer service systems," Rossotti said. The IRS supported the thrust of the plan, he added, but the timing was at issue.

Another plan for the IRS to suspend penalties and interest if the agency failed to contact a taxpayer within one year was unworkable with the agency's current computer systems, Rossotti said.

While the IRS agreed it should "proceed expeditiously in any contact with taxpayers," Rossotti said "our systems are currently unable to accommodate" changes "with the speed necessary to make this proposal workable." Rossotti proposed making this a goal, instead of a requirement, and have the agency report annually on its progress. Roth said he would consider the plea, but still pressed to have taxpayer rights provisions implemented as soon as possible.

"As far as I'm concerned, justice delayed is justice denied," Roth said. The committee agreed to prioritize the taxpayer rights provisions and meet with the IRS to work out a compromise.

Roth's efforts were praised even by some who had other ideas for overhauling the tax agency. "The underlying bill is a good bill," said Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Nebr. "The problem with it, as I see it, is it costs too much money."

Highway planners think big in I-35's future, as study into trade corridor continues

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Highway planners said they aren't thinking small when it comes to the future of what could be Main Street for trade from Canada to Mexico.

Everything from the condition of existing pavement to where Interstate 35 is located are up for discussion as the I-35 Trade Corridor Study continues.

Planners at a Tuesday meeting in Irving said a study scheduled for completion in spring 1999 will examine such basic issues as costs and how to pay them.

But Joe Guyton, vice president of HNTB Corp., a Kansas City, Mo., consulting firm helping with the study, says there's more to consider regarding the future of the 1,500-mile highway.

After all, about 80 percent of the trade between the United States and Mexico moves through Texas, and most of that enters Texas at Laredo, I-35's southern terminus, he said.

The meeting was one of a series scheduled for major cities along the length of the interstate from Duluth, Minn., to Laredo. Meetings were scheduled for today in Austin and Thursday in Laredo.

Some issues raised at the 1 1/2-hour meeting in Irving:

— Would some realignment near metropolitan areas help move cargo more efficiently without worsening air pollution and commuter traffic congestion?

— What new and emerging technologies can help keep traffic moving?

— What improvements make the most economic and engineering sense?

— What kind of improvements would help move international cargo from truck to boxcar to aircraft and back again?

The planners offered objectives, rather than actual plans. The study, when completed, won't be a nuts-and-bolts blueprint so much as a game plan.

"We won't get into the kind of detail a lot of people would like to see," Guyton said.

But officials will consider local plans, such as a proposed bypass at Austin and I-35's route through the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

Al Lueddecke, transportation planning director for the Texas Department of Transportation, cited the example of the I-35 split between Hillsboro and Denton, placing both Fort Worth and Dallas on the route.

"One of the things being considered would be realigning I-35 between 35-E and 35-W to provide a true throughway (through Dallas-Fort Worth), away from commuter traffic," Lueddecke said.

They are part of a study begun in November by federal highway authorities and transportation officials in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa and Minnesota.

Congress has designated the highway as one of 23 high-priority corridors. Another is the Interstate 69 corridor from Northeast Texas to the lower Rio Grande Valley.

The bill would cost $6.5 billion over the first five years, but Roth made no provision for the second five-year period, leaving a gap of $9.5 billion that would have to be paid for.

The committee turned down an attempt to raise tobacco taxes by 10 cents a pack and speed up the first phase of a tobacco tax increase in the 1997 tax bill to fully pay for the IRS overhaul.

Roth's bill would restructure the IRS under a new oversight board with private-sector representatives, protect innocent spouses from IRS collection actions and eliminate the failure-to-pay penalty for taxpayers who agree to pay back taxes through installments.

But Sen. Kent Conrad, D-N.D., argued that one provision to shift the burden of proof from taxpayers to the IRS would have serious unintended consequences of making the IRS more intrusive in taxpayers' lives.

The proposal would require the IRS — not the taxpayer — to prove the case once a tax dispute got into court.

"It will make tax controversies more expensive, more intrusive and more inconvenient for taxpayers," Conrad argued. He cited supporting letters from 100 law school professors, a top judge on the U.S. Tax Court and former IRS commissioners.

The committee voted down Conrad's proposal to delete the burden of proof section, citing the numerous modifications and improvements to the original language.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, argued the burden of proof item directly responded to the stories of taxpayer abuse the panel heard in dramatic hearings last fall.

"Shifting the burden of proof will change the way the IRS does business," Gramm said.

The bill underwent several significant changes, two of which guaranteed the Treasury secretary and a worker representative, probably from the IRS union, seats on the seven-member oversight board.

Roth and other Republicans argued that guaranteeing a union seat on the board would give rise to potential conflicts of interest, since the union's interests might be at odds with taxpayers in general.

Mother pleads guilty in sex abuse case; daughter charged with perjury

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas woman has pleaded guilty to charges of aggravated sexual assault of her daughter, indecency with a child and bail jumping.

The woman, who hasn't been identified to conceal her daughter's identity, fitted the girl with a Norplant contraceptive device to conceal sexual abuse by her stepfather.

The 33-year-old woman's plea Tuesday brought a quick end to the trial and capped an emotional day.

Earlier in the day, a younger daughter was arrested on a perjury charge after recanting the testimony she gave in the 1996 trial in which her stepfather was convicted and sentenced to life in prison.

The victim in the case, now 16, also gave additional testimony against her mother before the woman pleaded guilty as part of a plea bargain. The mother was sentenced to 10 years in prison on each charge and must serve five years before she is eligible for parole.

employees diagnosed the illness as flu-like symptoms and sent him home.

When his temperature rose, Scoggins' mother took him back to the hospital early Monday, where he was diagnosed with meningitis.

"I'm not trying to knock anybody's diagnosis because that thing is very difficult to identify," Gotcher said. "But if more attention was paid to my wife's professional opinion, there's a good chance my son might be standing here next to me."

Hospital spokeswoman Paula Haenchen confirmed that Scoggins had been treated and released from the emergency room, but said she could not disclose diagnosis or other information because of confidentiality laws.

Mother charged in sibling shooting incident

CAMERON, Texas (AP) — The mother of a 13-year-old boy who was accidentally shot in the eye by his 12-year-old brother has been charged with child endangerment.

Wanda Ann Herrera, 30, of Austin, was arrested Tuesday in connection with the Monday shooting incident at Davilla.

A nurse at Scott and White Memorial Hospital called officers after the boy was brought to the hospital.

The boys and two other siblings, ages 4 and 6, were at their home without their parents at the time of the shooting, officers said. Officers do not know where the parents were at the time of the shooting.

Encouraging sweet charity

Americans are the most charitable people in the world. Every day, countless thousands of people are fed, clothed, housed and receive life-saving medical treatment as a result of this nation's philanthropic efforts.

I believe government should do whatever it can to encourage the continuation of these good works, and from what I've heard, most Texans feel the same.

One way to accomplish that is to make it easier for some senior citizens to contribute to charitable organizations. These seniors are individuals or couples who have worked hard, saved for their retirement and then found that they do not need all or part of the assets in their IRAs for living expenses. They would like to donate those funds to charity. They should be allowed to do so without being taxed.

Right now, IRA assets cannot be withdrawn to make a charitable donation without being subject to taxation at the time of withdrawal.

I recently introduced legislation to change this law. The Charitable IRA Rollover Act will allow donors to transfer assets they have in an IRA to a charity without having to pay taxes on their withdrawal first.

My bill would allow these generous individuals to direct their personal resources to charitable causes penalty-free. This would unlock an important source of charitable giving. And it would allow donors to give back to their communities without Uncle Sam jumping in and taking a cut.

Here's how it would work: A person who has reached age 59 ½ will be allowed to move assets from an IRA directly to charity or into a qualifying deferred charitable gift plan without being liable for taxes on the transfer funds.

This bill could provide a valuable new stream of philanthropy for our nation's charities. Current law takes as much as 38 percent of the gift out in taxes. My legislation will encourage America's best charitable instincts.

Recent studies show that retirement plan assets comprise a substantial part of the net worth of many individuals. For these people, these assets represent the main source of funds from which they can make deferred charitable gifts. The additional giving encouraged by the Charitable IRA Rollover Act would support increased public services through the nonprofit sector. This has become especially important during these times of government rollbacks and budget-cutting.

Every dollar that charities go without represents a child unfed, a homeless person deprived of hope, a symphony unplayed, a disaster victim unaided.

Since the mid-1970s, there have been signs in IRS offices all over the country that say, "COMMENDABLE ... BUT NOT DEDUCTIBLE." It's time to take those signs down.

"Does this 'opportunity to REDIRECT my career' mean what I think it means?"

Conservative feminists flip-flop

When the National Organization for Women stated its support for Kathleen Willey, you could almost smell the disappointment. Dashed were the hopes of more tales of feminist hypocrisy, a favorite theme ever since the presidential sex scandals took to the airwaves.

Willey, a former White House volunteer, told the CBS news program "60 Minutes" that President Clinton made an unwanted sexual advance after she met with him to ask for a job. The president, says Willey, tried to kiss her on the mouth, touched her breast and placed her hand on his genitals.

That's no way to treat a lady, and NOW president Patricia Ireland stepped forward to say so. "This is beyond the idea of a likable rogue or the womanizer and really into sexual assault, sexual abuse," Ireland said on NBC's "Today" show.

Other liberal women, including Rep. Nita Lowey, D-N.Y., and National Abortion Rights Action League President Kate Michelman, have also voiced their disgust. Said former Rep. Patricia Schroeder, a Colorado Democrat, "It makes my skin crawl."

The basic explanation for the feminist denunciation of Clinton is that the president's behavior has gotten so out of hand that feminists simply cannot let him hide behind their apron strings anymore. What no one seems interested in exploring is this: that this is the first truly credible accusation of sexual harassment we've seen lobbed against the president. That, contrary to popular belief, feminists don't just run around trying to snuff out any sort of sexual activity. That they really do weigh the evidence.

Because until now, it still looked pretty shaky. Despite the talk of "mounting numbers of women coming forward," there was really only one other sexual harassment accusation.

Sara Eckel

Eckel is a nationally syndicated columnist.

And that was by someone whose motivations were suspicious at best — not because she had big hair, but because she had a contract with "No Excuses" jeans and had made offers to sell her silence for a job in Hollywood. She also blew off NOW's Ireland, who had requested a meeting with her. That's not to say that Paula Jones doesn't have a case — she might — but rather to say that if Democratic women were reluctant to rally behind her, they had sufficient cause.

The Gennifer Flowers and Monica Lewinsky allegations, however tawdry, were about consensual affairs, which is not something feminist groups would take a stand on, anyway. (And really — would we want them to?)

But Willey is different. Not only does she appear to be extremely credible, she also does not seem to have a lot to gain from coming forward. And the incident she describes, if true, could certainly form the basis for a sexual harassment case.

Not that she would necessarily win — the allegations describe a single incident, and the legal standard for sexual harassment requires that the unwelcome behavior be repeated. But she certainly deserves to be heard. Just as Anita Hill did — which was all that her feminist supporters were asking for.

And speaking of the Anita Hill-Clarence

Thomas affair, I have another question: Why is no one noticing all of the interesting turn-arounds on the other side of the coin? I mean, what are we to make of all the Clarence Thomas supporters who are now shocked, shocked by the allegations against the president?

Consider Laura Ingraham. A former clerk to Thomas and a member of the Independent Women's Forum, a group founded by conservative women in response to their opposition of Anita Hill's testimony against Thomas, Ingraham has made a career out of bashing feminists on TV talk shows. So it was very interesting to hear her expressing sympathy for Willey on "Crossfire" recently. Not only did she say she personally believed Willey and thought that if the allegations proved true, Clinton would be guilty of sexual assault, but she also offered a compassionate explanation as to why Willey didn't come forward sooner: "I think she may have been in the same kind of denial that a lot of women in this kind of situation engage in," she said.

Regarding Willey's warm correspondences with the president, Ingraham also spoke like a true feminist: "When I first heard about the letters, I thought, wow, her credibility is really damaged. Then I actually put myself in her shoes. This is someone who supported the president, who admired the president, who went to him for help ... Was she just going to, you know, sue him? Take him to court? Was she going to give up everything she worked for and walk away from the White House? I don't think so. I don't think most women would do that in that situation. I think it is really unfair to think that."

Well put, Laura. I agree with you completely. Now I have just one question: Where were you when Anita Hill needed you?

A conspiracy theory for all seasons

Many ardent Clinton critics have picked up on some strange and suspicious events that cry out for investigation.

Let's start with a little incident.

The new movie "Primary Colors," based on Joe Klein's satiric novel of the same title, was expected to deliver a cataclysmic blow upon the crown of the wicked womanizer Bill Clinton. But, alas, the film turns out to be something more complex than a sarcastic and scornful assault. In Time magazine's words, it is "a funny, knowing, ultimately judicious film," a "wistful story about honor (and) about the joy and pain of an idealist's love."

Well now, every Clinton hater worth his spittle can tell you something fishy is going on here. One of the most vigilant abominators, Sen. Lauch ("Helm's Light") Faircloth of North Carolina, reportedly detected in this film a devious plot to make Bill Clinton appear human. According to the New York Post, Faircloth penned a letter proposing that actor John Travolta, a Scientologist, be hauled before Congress to find out whether Clinton offered to help the church in an ongoing battle with the German government in return for a favorable portrayal of himself. (A Faircloth spokesperson later said that the Senator had not written the letter and the newspaper's account was a "mystery.")

Now a big incident: Everyone knows that some of Clinton's detractors have charged him with involvement in the suspicious deaths of 91 people. Recently we learned of the sudden demise of James McDougal, the former Clinton business partner who was cooperating with independent counsel Kenneth Starr. McDougal was being held in solitary confinement at a Texas prison, but somehow, the skeptics believe, Bill Clinton got to him. "Chalk up another body to Clinton," said one of Rush Limbaugh's callers.

Now I will tell you some Little Known Facts, which I have obtained from sometimes reliable sources, about a few vintage mysteries. I urge you to draw your own conclusions about whether the independent counsel should expand his probe yet again.

—British authorities have just discovered the remains of 10 bodies buried beneath the London house where Benjamin Franklin lived from 1757 to 1762 and from 1764 to 1775. Little Known Fact: The person who lived in that house in 1763 was one William G. Blythe. Bill Clinton's natural father was William J. Blythe III.

—When Thomas Jefferson was serving as the U.S. envoy in Paris, he pursued at least two married French ladies. Little Known Fact: His boon companion and adviser on how to pitch the woo a la Francois was one Monsieur Guillaume LeClinton.

(Of little import to the independent counsel, but interesting nonetheless, is the fact that the scandalmonger who first published the tale of Jefferson's intimate relationship with the slave Sally Hemings was James T. Callender. Little Known Fact: Callender's source was a third cousin, twice removed, named Matthew Drudge, who got the story from one Lucretia Tripp and confirmed it with one Mata H. Willey.)

—President Glover Cleveland's bastard son was named Oscar Folsom Cleveland. Little Known Fact: Cleveland nobly supported the boy, even though his parentage was unknown, thanks to the fact that the mother had entertained several lovers. For some reason known only to her, she referred to her son as Wee Willy.

—While the Secret Service diverted the mis-sus, President Warren Harding made love with his much younger mistress, Nan Britton, in a coat closet off the Oval Office. Little Known Fact: That closet was in plain view of a steward named Will E. Clinton.

—President Harding died in San Francisco on August 2, 1923, from alleged food poisoning thought to have been caused by tainted crab meat that had been consumed in Seattle six days earlier. Little Known Fact: The person who served the crab meat was a lad with a southern accent named W.J. Blythe.

I think you will agree that Mr. Kenneth Starr's team has a few more rows to hoe before they can call it a day.

South Side Addition, Ten Acre Addition first additions to Pampa

Museum Mementos

Eloise Lane
White Deer Land Museum

The plat for the original town of Pampa, consisting of 38 blocks, was filed on April 14, 1902.

South Side Addition (Blocks 1-16) was the first addition to the original town of Pampa. The plat was filed on Jan. 11, 1907.

Ten Acre Addition (Blocks 58 and 59) and Cuyler Addition (Blocks 56 and 57) were formed from the suburbs of Pampa. The plat for Ten Acre Addition was filed on May 16, 1925. The plat for Cuyler Addition was filed on Aug. 21, 1926.

Tyng, the first avenue south of the Santa Fe Railroad, was named for George Tyng, first manager of White Deer Lands, who named the town for the pampas of the Argentine.

Craven was named for William M. Craven, manager of the Shoenail Outfit owned by Swift and Company.

Brown was named for Montagu Kingsmill Brown, co-manager with C.P. Buckler, of the White Deer Land Company. Barnes was the maiden name of M.K. Brown's wife, Josye Lucille.

Tuke was an official in the New York office of the White Deer Land Company.

Gray, Somerville, Russell, Cuyler, Ballard, Gillespie, Houston and Starkweather were extended — first to Brown and later to Tuke.

U.M. arms embargo levied against European nation

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Yugoslavia denounced a new Security Council arms embargo against it, saying supporters of the U.S.-backed embargo were trying to break up the country by encouraging separatists in restive Kosovo province.

The Security Council approved the embargo Tuesday to pressure Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic into concessions aimed at "substantial autonomy" for the majority Albanian population in Kosovo. The embargo follows a deadly anti-separatist crackdown that killed dozens of Kosovo Albanians last month.

The embargo is believed to be largely symbolic, since both the Yugoslav government and Albanian militants already are well-armed.

China abstained in the vote, saying the crisis was an internal Yugoslavian matter. Although Russia voted for the embargo, acting Russian Ambassador Yuriy Fedotov said Moscow did not consider unrest in Kosovo a threat to international security.

Following the vote, Yugoslavia's U.N. ambassador, Vladislav Jovanovic, condemned the resolution as an unprecedented interference in the domestic affairs of a member state.

In an apparent reference to the United States and Britain, Jovanovic accused "some permanent members of the Security Council" of encouraging Albanians who want to secede from Serbia, which along with Montenegro forms the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia.

"That policy will bring no good to their own countries, to Europe, to the world," he said. "On the contrary, it is counterproductive and dangerous to the legal system of international relations."

Jovanovic said the goal of the Kosovo Albanians "is the secession of this certain land from Serbia."

"Serbia cannot and will not allow it to happen under any conditions," he said.

In Moscow, President Boris Yeltsin's spokesman, Sergei Yastrzhembsky, sought today to ease Yugoslav concerns about the measure. Russia has maintained close ties to its fellow Orthodox Christian Slavs in Serbia.

"These sanctions should not be seen as punishment for Yugoslavia," Yastrzhembsky said. "We see no danger of full-scale armed clashes in Kosovo. We think there is every possibility that Belgrade and political leaders of the Albanian minority will find a way out of this situation by means of a political dialogue with the help of the international community."

Brisk growth probably unsettling for Federal Reserve

WASHINGTON (AP) — New home sales surged to a record high in February, one of many signs of buoyant economic growth that could unsettle inflation-wary Federal Reserve policy-makers meeting Tuesday.

Sales of new single-family homes jumped 4.8 percent to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 893,000, the Commerce Department said Monday. That broke the old record of 880,000, set in March 1986. The series goes back to 1963.

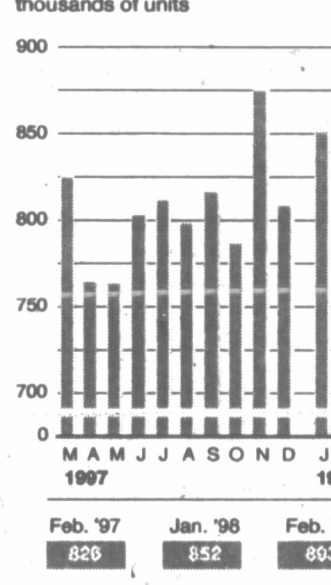

The report was just the latest in a string showing the economy has maintained considerable momentum this year, even though Asia's financial turmoil has cut into the export sales of some U.S. manufacturers.

Existing home sales also hit a record in February, rising to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 4.75 million. Americans' incomes grew robustly, retail sales picked up and unemployment returned to a 24-year low of 4.6 percent.

Economists don't think the unanticipated strength is enough to prod Federal Reserve policy-makers into raising short-term interest rates right away. It's enough to get them thinking about it when they gather they boosted the benchmark rate on overnight loans by a quarter percentage point to 5.5 percent. They've held off, minutes of their closed-door meetings show, because they've been looking for fallout from Asia to noticeably slow U.S. growth.

If they did not still anticipate some impact from Asia, Fed policy-makers probably would have raised short-term interest rates at least another half percentage point, said economist Martin Regalia of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

So far at least, Asia's crisis has proved more of a boon than a bane to the United States. It has cut interest rates, providing consumers with extra cash through mortgage refinancings. And many analysts now believe growth in the January-March quarter will top 3 percent, not much less than the rapid 3.7 percent fourth-quarter rate.

Unless a slowdown emerges in data for March or April, Fed members will "be on pins and needles" over raising rates at their May 19 meeting, Regalia said.

"The Fed doesn't want to see a significant (price) spike at the end of the year as this Asian thing wears off," he said.

Seventh grader convicted in sex-ring case

FAIRFAX, Va. (AP) — A 13-year-old boy who told police he was known around school as "Mr. Pimp" was convicted of attempting to arrange sex-for-pay between girls and boys at his middle school.

The boy said he had a list of girls who paid to be part of a sex club at the school, but the seventh-grader confessed to police before he arranged any sexual encounters, prosecutor John Murphy said Tuesday. "He was to be their pimp. They had to ante up $10 apiece," he said.

The boy then approached other boys in his class at Langston Hughes Middle School in Reston and told them he could arrange sex with as many as three girls at once, the prosecutor said.

In all, the youngster collected about $80 and spent the money on three Eddie Bauer T-shirts.

He was charged with two felony counts of "receiving money for soliciting other juveniles to perform sexual acts," but a Juvenile Court judge threw out one charge and reduced the other after hearing from two girls who testified they didn't intend to have sex.

The boy, who has a previous conviction for petty larceny, has been in juvenile jail since his arrest March 13 and will remain in custody until his sentencing April 20.

His parents sat in the front row of the courtroom, his mother sobbing quietly when the slight boy entered the courtroom handcuffed. He sat quietly beside his lawyer, while a bailiff twice his size sat behind him with one foot holding down the boy's chair.

The judge heard from a 13-year-old girl who testified she paid the boy $10 after he threatened her in a school hallway. The boy and his alleged accomplice then "called me up and said 'Are you going to be my (prostitute) and stuff?' and I said, 'I guess so,'" the girl testified.

Despite the girls' denials, Murphy said they understood they were signing up for a sex ring and that they would pay the boy a percentage for protecting them.

A 12-year-old girl also is charged with helping recruit girls. Her trial is set for next month.

The judge ordered that the names of the underage participants will remain secret.

Study: More banks charging non-customers

NEW YORK (AP) — Remember when ATMs unquestioningly dispensed cash without charging a fee?

Not only are those days long gone in many places, but bank surcharges also have risen significantly since they were allowed two years ago, according to a new study released today.

The study of 470 banks in 28 states, conducted by the U.S. Public Interest Research Group, also found that bigger banks charge non-customers more — and more often — when they use automated teller machines.

Those surcharges are in addition to fees banks often impose on their own account holders.

"ATM surcharging benefits high-fee, big banks and hurts low-cost alternatives such as credit unions and smaller banks," said Edmund Mierzewski, consumer program director at PIRG, a liberal consumer group founded by Ralph Nader. It supports a ban on the surcharges.

"Surcharges aren't only unfair to the consumers who pay them. They'll ultimately lead to bigger banks and fewer choices, which means higher fees for everyone," Mierzewski said.

Grieving Sister Of Suicide Feels Guilty As Charged

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the letter signed "Lesson Learned." You told the sister who wrote it that it is normal for survivors of suicide to experience guilt.

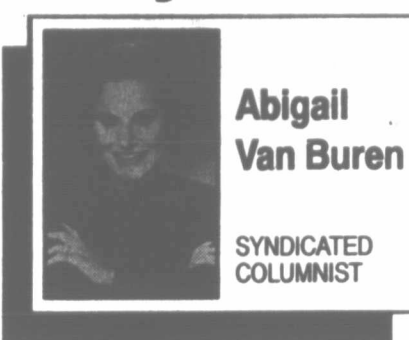

Abby, she didn't have time for a cup of tea because she "didn't have money" to go to a cafe! I'll bet the suicidal sister would have been grateful for a friendly cup of tea at her sister's. Her twin nieces would have distracted her from her own problems. The suicidal sister asked for one Saturday night. Again, the sister refused. I'll bet every Saturday night she spends with her husband will be haunted by her sister's request. I should hope she feels guilt — not for what she did, but for what she didn't do!

Even though I agree that the suicidal sister was responsible for her own life, she obviously felt very estranged from her family. Perhaps an outstretched hand could have made a difference. Her dead sister made no unreasonable demands. The sister who wrote is feeling guilty because she is!

Abby, you were far too easy on this lady. I'll bet you got a lot of flak on this.

SANDY IN STUYVESANT, N.Y.

DEAR SANDY: "Lesson Learned" was courageous enough to publicly admit her insensitivity and lack of understanding of her sister's needs. She is clearly suffering, and I saw no need to further chastise her for something that cannot be changed.

Yes, I did receive some flak for my answer. However, I also received some mail that was very helpful. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I saw the letter about the poor young woman who suffered from depression and chronic fatigue syndrome. I feel deeply for the sister who ignored her sister's call for help. When "Lesson Learned" told her sister that the younger woman didn't know what "chronic-living-fatigue is," it was clear that she did not understand that chronic fatigue syndrome is a real disease, for which diagnostic criteria were established by the Centers for Disease Control in 1988. The disease is insidious, leaving the patient constantly exhausted, depressed, and burdened with a myriad of problems.

Many medical professionals do not believe that the disease is caused by a virus, an enzyme deficiency, or any of the other scientific reasons that validate this as a physical disease. They believe it to be "mental" or nonexistent. Because of this, a vast majority of those who have it go undiagnosed. Many patients do not receive the proper medical care because of their physician's lack of interest in a disease with no known cause or cure, so it's passed off as hypochondria or a mental disorder.

Suicide among those afflicted with chronic fatigue and immune dysfunction syndrome (CFIDS) is high. "Lesson Learned" was devastated by the death of her sister, but it is doubtful she could have done anything to prevent it.

Horoscope

Your Birthday

Thursday, April 2, 1998

Diversity and change will be major factors in your life in the year ahead. Things look exciting for you socially as well as businesswise. Make these opportunities count.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Conditions in general should be rather pleasant for you most of the day. However, that which is most enticing and fun might not occur until towards evening. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In this present cycle it's to your benefit to practice "giving-living." The more you do for others, the more you're likely to receive in return.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your charming smile, quick wit and warm humor make powerful impressions that can spell success for you today. Put them to the test and you'll see.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Cupid might select you for his principle target today. Conditions look promising in the romance department for you and your special someone.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An alliance that is already of great significance might be strengthened even further today. Events over which you have no control will orchestrate the movement.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Lead by example today, because this will encourage those who are involved with you to help achieve your purposes. Their support is essential.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Pursue your rainbows today, because you won't be looking at life through tinted glasses. The bright spots you perceive do indeed exist.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Persons who are close to your heart will benefit from your presence and efforts today. You'll help them do what they will be unable to do on their own.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Others will need you today more than you will need them. When you enter into an arrangement, you'll increase its possibilities and winning potential.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This is a good day to focus your efforts on labors of love. Doing things you enjoy will provide an additional dimension of fulfillment and pride.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Being able to manage or direct others and have them like it is that extra special something you possess today. Instinctively, you'll know how to lead and inspire.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If your intuition whispers that your involvements will have a good bottom line today, don't ignore the voice. It knows a lot more than you do.

Harvesters defeat Dumas

By MATT HUTCHISON
Sports Writer

PAMPA — The Pampa Harvester baseball team opened their first district game at home against the potent Dumas Demons Tuesday afternoon, taking advantage of numerous fielding errors for a 7-3 victory.

Aaron Whitney got the call to the mound for the Harvesters and lasted through six and a half innings for an impressive performance. The senior retired seven batters single-handedly through strikeouts before handing pitching duties over to another senior, Jerod Prock, who saw his first relief action in district. Prock struck out one while working for the last three outs of the contest. Whitney received his first district win, striking out seven in six innings while allowing four hits.

The Demons came to Harvester Field sporting a flawless 2-0 record in district competition and an impressive 11-3 record overall. Heavily favored in the contest, Dumas is picked as one of the top teams in District 1-4A.

Whitney opened the first inning looking a little shaky, allowing one Dumas run by Pedro Charez. Charez originally drew a walk and had advanced to third after a throw intended for second baseman Caleb Snelgrooves ended up in the outfield. A balk by Whitney brought Charez across the plate.

But throughout the rest of the game, Whitney performed solidly for the Harvesters, allowing only two more runs in five innings of work.

Pampa looked lethargic at the plate through the first two innings, going out in order 1-2-3. But in the third, a string of clutch hits turned the game on its heels and solidly in favor of the Harvesters.

Catcher Jonathan Waggoner was the first Pampa player to reach base, drawing a walk. Outfielder Brent Phelps followed by hitting a grounder back to the pitcher, who missed the throw to first or second base and all runners remained safe. Snelgrooves capitalized with a solid RBI single that scored Waggoner and advanced Phelps before giving the plate to speedy center fielder Enrique Cabrales, who nailed a single to the outfield that scored Phelps and advanced Snelgrooves to second. Snelgrooves and Cabrales both advanced after a missed throw to the Dumas second baseman.

Shortstop Josh Blackmon followed with a sacrifice fly that scored Snelgrooves and advanced Cabrales to third. Cabrales followed Snelgrooves across the plate shortly after, sprinting across after a wild pitch. Shawn Harris was the last Harvester to score during the inning, trucking around the bases to cross the plate all the way from first base after a shot into the outfield by Brandon Hill was mishandled by the Dumas fielders. All told, the inning netted five runs for the Harvesters off a mere two hits and four big Dumas errors.

The rest of the game followed suit as Pampa was able to pull off the four-run upset and even out their district record at 1-1. For the season, the Harvesters move to 5-12.

Snelgrooves was two for four at the plate with three RBI while Cabrales was two for three.

"Our two pitchers (Whitney and Prock) were just outstanding. We played good defense and hit the ball well. Our two-out hits made all the difference in the world," said Pampa head coach Dennis Doughty.

Doughty praised the defensive work of Waggoner at catcher. He stifled Dumas rallies by throwing two baserunners out.

Pampa plays at Hereford on Saturday with the district contest starting at 1 p.m.

DUMAS — Pampa held off Dumas for an 8-7 victory in 9th grade baseball action last weekend.

Pampa is now 2-1 for the season.

Vivian Botello (1-0) picked up the win in relief while Kyle Keith pitched the seventh inning to get the save. Shawn Strate started on the mound.

"Keith came in and did a great job. With two outs and the bases loaded, he couldn't have been in a more critical position. However, he got that last out to help give us the victory," said Pampa coach Jason Murphree. "I was proud of the way all the guys hung in there."

Tanner Hucks had two hits and three stolen bases while Strate had two doubles and a stolen base. Jeff Warren, Kevin Schaub, Travis Lancaster, Josh Baker and Botello had one hit each. Botello had two stolen bases.

Pampa senior Faustine Curry was the 1997-98 recipient of the Hustling Lady Harvester Basketball Award. PHS head coach Mark Elms presents the award to Curry. Curry was also named What-A-Burger Athlete for the week of Sept. 15.

Astros fall in 11 innings

HOUSTON (AP) — Jeff Kent is taking his hot streak into 1998.

Kent had a career-high five hits, including a three-run homer, as the San Francisco Giants outlasted the Houston Astros 9-4 in 13 innings to win their first opener since 1994.

"I'm not a personal-best type of guy," said Kent, who set career highs last year with 29 homers and 121 RBIs. "I don't get into all that stuff. The key to the game was the job Charlie Hayes and Alex Diaz did, not me getting five hits."

With the score 4-all, loser C.J. Nitkowski walked Hayes leading off the 13th, and Hayes took third on Rey Sanchez's single. Darryl Hamilton's grounded to shortstop Tim Bogar, who threw out Hayes as the plate and Sanchez took third.

Diaz, a pinch-hitter, then singled off Bogar's glove to score the go-ahead run. Kent followed with an RBI double for a 6-4 lead. J.T. Snow was intentionally walked and Stan Javier hit a three-run double.

Winner John Johnstone allowed one hit in two scoreless innings as the defending NL West champions got off with a victory.

Kent, who set a team record for homers by a second baseman last year, previously had four four-hit games, the last on Sept. 20, 1995, against Atlanta. It was the most hits in a game for a Giant since Mike Benjamin had six on June 14, 1995 at Chicago.

"I don't know how many hits Kent ended up with but it seemed he was up a hundred times," Giants manager Dusty Baker said. "His double and Stan Javier's double really helped us out. We were about out of pitchers. I think both teams used just about everybody."

Craig Biggio made a costly double error and also grounded into a double play for the first time since Sept. 19, 1996, ending a streak of 658 at-bats without one.

"It was strange," Biggio said. "I had my first error in a long time and hit into my first double play. I guess I wanted to get all that stuff out in one game."

Giants starter Shawn Estes allowed four runs — two earned — and eight hits in 3 2-3 innings.

"He was pretty strong. He just got the ball up a couple of times," Baker said. "They were pretty sharp on the fast balls today, but they they've got guys who can hit fastballs. I thought Shawn threw pretty well actually."

Robb Nen, sent to San Francisco as part of Florida's salary purge, also pitched two strong innings for the Giants, striking out five.

"I threw more sliders today than I have in a long time," Nen said. "They've got a bunch of hackers over there so you don't want to give them all fastballs. I'm not going to get too excited about this it's only one game. For me, it's adrenal. It's something I thrive on."

Astros starter Shane Reynolds, who became the ace when Darryl Kile signed with Colorado as a free agent, gave up four runs — three earned — and seven hits in six innings.

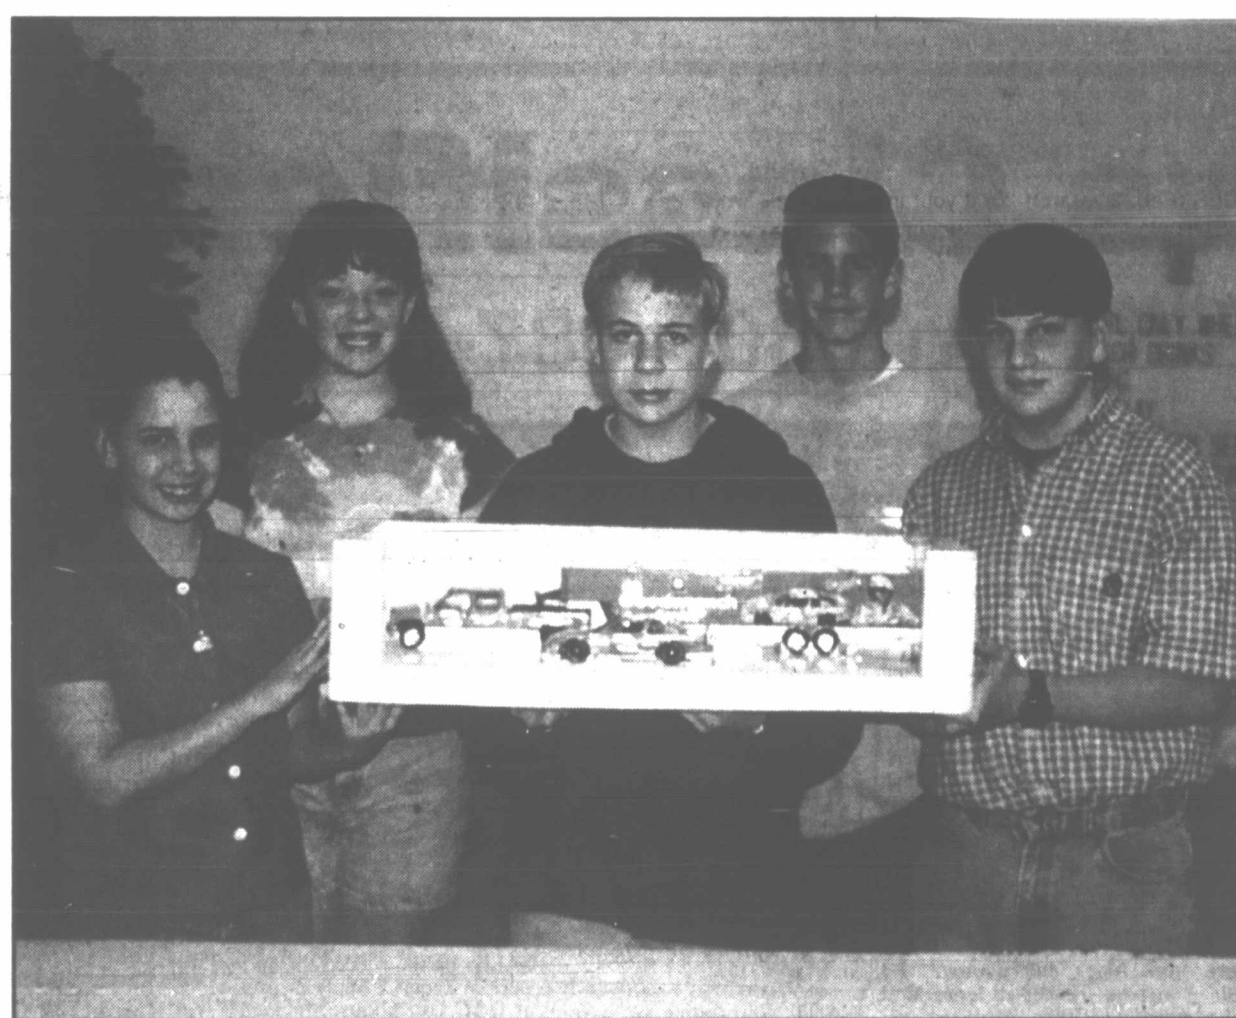

Houston went ahead on Derek Bell's RBI double in the first, but Kent homered in the third for a 3-1 lead.

Sean Berry homered in the bottom half, and Houston went ahead 4-3 in the fourth following a two-out error by Kent, who bobbled Reynolds's grounder to second. Biggio followed with a run-scoring single and Bell hit an RBI double.

Biggio's double error allowed San Francisco to tie it in the fifth. Sanchez singled, and took third when Biggio booted Hamilton's grounder and then overthrew first base. Bill Mueller followed with a sacrifice fly.

"That was a good game for the fans," Astros manager Larry Dierker said. "We hit the ball well a few times and we made an error that gave them a run."

Swim raffle

Pampa Swim Team members hold a scale model of the Dale Earnhardt Wheaties Race Car which will given away during a raffle April 18 at the Culberson-Stowers auto dealership, located at 805 N. Hobart. Swim team members are (l-r) Megan David (6th grade); Kelley Stowers (8th grade); Ryan Bradley (8th grade); Clay David (8th grade) and Garrett Johnston (6th grade). The model also has Earnhardt's autograph. A set of Bennie Williams' custom-made golf clubs will also be raffled off. The original race car driven by Earnhardt can be viewed by the public April 17-18 at Culberson-Stowers. The car is a limited edition and was only raced once. Raffle tickets are one dollar per person or six tickets can be bought for five dollars. Tickets can be purchased from various swim team members, Culberson-Stowers or Engine Parts & Supply. Call 665-3500 or 665-3032 for ticket information. Money from the raffle will be used to buy a computerized timing system for the swim program.

Rangers' opener spoiled by White Sox pitching, defense

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — New Chicago White Sox manager Jerry Manuel took the job knowing he could count on Frank Thomas, Albert Belle and Robin Ventura to anchor his offense. What he didn't know was how well his team would field or pitch.

In their season opener Tuesday, the White Sox gave Manuel reason to believe they'll do just fine with a 9-2 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Rookie shortstop Mike Caruso and outfielder Mike Cameron each made run-saving plays in the field, staff ace Jaime Navarro lived up to the billing and closer Matt Karchner got the last four outs without allowing a baserunner.

"If we can be consistent with our defense and pitch well, we'll be fine," said Manuel, a bench coach last season with the world champion Florida Marlins who replaced Terry Bevington after a disappointing 80-81 season.

The White Sox got off to an inauspicious start as Caruso — at 20, the youngest player to make Chicago's opening-day roster since Johnny Callison in 1959 — fielded a grounder by Texas' Tom Goodwin and casually threw to first. Goodwin, one of the fastest players in the league, beat it out.

Goodwin then stole second and moved to third on a groundout, bringing up Rusty Greer, Texas' best clutch hitter, and putting the always dangerous Juan Gonzalez on deck.

Manuel kept the infield back, but moved them in once Greer had two strikes. The strategy worked when Greer hit a bouncer to second. With the infield back, Gonzalez followed by grounding out to the mound.

Navarro, who allowed a major-league worst 267 hits last season, gave up leadoff hits the next two innings but they didn't hurt. He also allowed harmless singles in the fourth and fifth, then pitched a perfect sixth — striking out the last two — before being lifted.

"I came into this game feeling really comfortable and confident," said Navarro, off to a 1-0 start after going 9-14 last year.

Carlos Castillo did fine in his one inning of relief, but Keith Foulke got himself into trouble in the eighth, allowing RBI singles to Juan Gonzalez and Ivan Rodriguez before being pulled with the bases loaded and two out.

Even though Chicago was up 8-2, Manuel went with Karchner. Kevin Elster greeted him with a hard grounder up the middle that would've easily driven in two runs, but Caruso — who had his first big-league hit earlier in the inning — made a nice diving stop and flipped the ball to second for the forceout.

Texas' Fernando Tatis opened the ninth by driving a Karchner pitch over the wall in left-center, but Cameron leaped above the eight-foot fence and snared it.

It was the second time Tatis was robbed. In the fifth, Ventura made a nice stop of a sharply hit ball down the third-base line, spun and threw him out. Ventura also made a great play in the eighth, dancing along the steps of the Chicago dugout to catch a fly ball.

Ventura also had a nice day at the plate, hitting a two-run homer to straightaway center that began a seven-run fifth inning.

"He told me in the dugout toward the end of the game that I haven't seen nothing yet," Manuel said.

Belle, who scored on Ventura's homer after breaking up loser John Burkett's four-inning perfect game, also had a two-run single in the fifth, as did Cameron. Thomas had an RBI double in that inning and the seventh.

While the White Sox couldn't do anything wrong, the Rangers had trouble doing things right.

Although Burkett retired the first 12 Chicago hitters, the Texas offense didn't support him with any runs, wasting a three-hit day by Goodwin and two hits from Will Clark. The bullpen didn't look very sharp either as all four relievers used by manager Johnny Oates gave up hits and two were touched for runs.

Finley hits for 22 points as Mavericks slip by Grizzlies, 104-101

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — Michael Finley is making the most of a comfortable environment with the Dallas Mavericks.

Finley had 22 points Tuesday night in the Mavericks' 104-101 victory over the Vancouver Grizzlies, the third-year forward's career-high sixth straight 20-point performance.

"I'm just going out there and playing," Finley said. "The coach is giving me opportunities offensively and it just makes me feel more comfortable when the coach and the team has that much confidence in me."

The Mavericks, who earned their first series sweep of the season, needed all the help they could get, considering they were without Cedric Ceballos (knee injury) and center Shawn Bradley (stomach flu).

A.C. Green had 22 points without playing a minute in the fourth quarter, and center Eric Riley had a career-high 12 rebounds.

Although it wasn't pretty, considering the Mavericks almost blew a 13-point lead in the final quarter, Dallas finished up March with an 8-8 record, the team's first 500 month since going 10-6 in March 1995.

"We're trying to end on a positive note," Finley said. "Going into the summer with a little winning streak it makes coming back to training camp a lot easier. Hopefully, we can just keep winning and keep improving."

Ahead 84-71 at the start of the fourth quarter, the Mavericks watched the Grizzlies cut their lead to a point at 97-96 on Blue Edwards' 3-pointer with 1:41 left.

After the teams traded baskets, the Mavericks blew a chance to keep it a three-point game when Shawn Respert hit one of two free throws.

Erick Strickland, however, came up with a game-saving steal, when he punched the ball out of the hands of Shareef Abdur-Rahim, who was driving the baseline for a layup. The ball bounced into Finley's hands and he went on to hit both free throws to seal the victory.

"I came low and just got there as he was about to raise the ball and I just tapped it out of his hands," Strickland said. "I knew it was good ... and we were going to have a chance to ice the game."

A frustrated Grizzlies coach Brian Hill understood how important that play was, and chided Abdur-Rahim for not thinking.

"The ball should have been thrown directly into Country (Bryant Reeves), who had a wide-open lay-up inside," Hill said.

Hill had good reason to be upset, considering the Grizzlies lost for the 11th time in 12 games, and are 2-19 over their last 21.

"I'm just getting tired of coming out of time outs and we failed to execute at the end of games," Hill said.

Rockies down Diamondbacks

PHOENIX (AP) — Up until the first pitch, Andy Benes, Matt Williams and the Arizona Diamondbacks looked nothing like an expansion team.

Once Vinny Castilla and the Colorado Rockies got going, that's when the trouble started.

Castilla homered twice and drove in five runs and Darryl Kile pitched like the ace the Rockies expected Tuesday as Colorado spoiled the Diamondbacks' debut with a 9-2 win on opening night. Playing in its state-of-the-art Bank One Ballpark, which features a swimming pool beyond the right-center field fence, Arizona and its sellout crowd of 47,484 was hoping for a festive evening.

But Castilla brought the opening night fun to an end with his two-run homer off Arizona starter Andy Benes in the sixth inning. In the seventh, he hit a three-run shot off Clint Sodowsky.
