MISSING PILOT HAD RECORD FOR FLIGHTS

Airplane With Man Tinkering On Engine Reported And Some Believe This Is Missing Pilot.

ST. LOUIS, June 30.—The rugthe secret of the fate of Leslie H. Smith, air mail pilot hissing since Thursday night, as twenty army and civilian planes and the army airship, C-52, continued to scour the hills late today for a clue concerning his welfare.

From Hunter, Mo., one hundred and twenty miles southwest of here came the report that a plane was heard passing over the town at 8:40 p. m. on the night that Smith set out for St. Louis from Little Rock, with news photographs of the democratic convention at Houston. R. D. Robinson, of Piedmont, Mo., stated that he had seen lightning strike an object in the air, possibly an airplane, near Williamsville, Mo.

It is feared the storm which swept this heavily timbered and sparsely populated country may have proved fatal to the pilot who has a record of eight months' flying the mail without, being turned back because of bad weather.

Frank Robertson, president of the Robinson Aircraft company, whose De Havilind plane the flyer was piloting, stated late today that there was little likelihood Smith would be found alive.

MILL SPRINGS, Mo, June 30, (AP) —An airplane with a man working on the engine was reported seen near the Double Pond community, near here today. Whether the man was Leslie H. Smith, missing pilot or one of the searchers, was not determined.

Four Officials At Huntsville Quit; Former Paris, Texas, Police Chief Is Named New Warden.

Mead immediately announced the appointment of Andrew Schnault of Paris, Texas, as assistant warden and Tom Cauthen of Huntsville as dog sergeant.

Col. McDaniel was the only one of the resigning officials to give a reason for his action. His wife, he said, is ill with heart disease and must stay in a San Antonio hospital.

Col. McDaniel had been warden only a few months, having recently been appointed to succeed N. L. Speer, who was reported to have resigned because he objected to administering the death penalty.

Charges Filed On Lubbock Man After Beer Confiscated

Raid Made by Local Officers At House On 8th Street; Fifty Bottles Are Taken.

Already facing a one year penitentiary sentence on liquor charges, Charlie Burk was arrested yesterday in connection with a beer raid by local officers at 1621 8th Street.

Charges of possession for the purpose of sale were filed against Burk by County Attorney L. A. Howard. His bond was set at $1,000. It had not been made last night.

According to officers, Burk was recently found guilty of violation of the liquor laws in district court here and sentenced to a one-year term in the state penitentiary. The case is on appeal at the present time, Burk being released under bond pending the hearing of the appeal trial, officers said.

About fifty bottles of ice cold beer more than a hundred "empties," and numerous brewery apparatus were confiscated by the officers.

A search warrant was prepared from information furnished by neighbors of the house on Eighth Street, where Burk is said to have moved about a week ago.

Chief of Police John Lemond, L. A. Howard, county attorney; City Officer Brown; and J. C. Roberts, constable, conducted the raid.

FLOOD SUBSIDES

Tennessee Now Seems To Be Safe From Deluge

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 30. (AP) —The havoc of rain and windstorms which for two days had virtually paralyzed middle Tennessee appeared to have completely subsided late today. Communication lines were open in almost every direction and flood waters, while still mounting slowly through a large section of the storm area, offered no threat of further rise.

The twenty foot wall of water released when Burgess Falls Power dam on Falling Water river broke last night, spent itself down a ten mile gorge which was largely uninhabitated and then joined the waters of Caney Fork river, which had already spread desolation.

'Us Kids' Movie, With Plot, Local Actors to be Made In Lubbock, Shown Here

Avalanche - Journal and Theater to Stage Film

At last we have a chance to see ourselves as others see us! Beginning next week, people of Lubbock are to be the stars in a picture which will be made right here in Lubbock. And, who of us have not had movie ambitions at some stage or other during life?

"Us Kids" is the title of the film which will be made, under the sponsorship of the Avalanche-Journal and the Lindsey Theatre, by Jack Holman, director of the Kiddie Komedy productions. Actual camera work will start Monday evening when scenes will be made of the big water carnival at the "Tumble-N" city swimming pool. Mr. Holman says that he will have his klieg lights at the pool and that he will shoot some extra footage, if necessary to get the entire crowd into the picture. Scenes of the race, of daring divers, and of would-be Gertrude Ederles will make the carnival reel a colorful showing. After the film is shown here, it will be given to the city park board, who expect to show it in surrounding towns as an advertisement for the city pool.

Beware Of The Camera

Starting Tuesday, various scenes of local interest will be made in and around the city. Prominent people and places will be "shot," as well as

Musical Program And Lecture Are First Day Events

Redpath-Horner Chautauqua Opening Program Enthusiastically Received Here Yesterday.

Beginning with a delightful musical program by the Massey Five, the Saturday evening performance of the Redpath-Horner entertainers was enthusiastically received by a large audience. The Spanish melodies and folk song, as played by the Massey family, had a stirring appeal but "Turkey in the Straw", and "Dixie" brought rousing applause.

Joshua Lee, head of the public speaking department of the University of Oklahoma, and noted "soldier poet" lectured on "The Pot of Gold." From his opening pun on the creation of woman—"when God made woman, he pulled a bone"—until his last phrase, he kept the audience amused and interested. Not only does he have a fascinating sense of humor and a talent for expressing it, but Mr. Lee has a sound philosophy of life, which he has gained from service in the United States army and from years of observation and travel.

"Success that brings happiness is the only worthwhile success," said he. "Don't look to distant spheres for your pot of gold; it is all around you. Today is a cross section of your life."

"Money is not the acme of success, but every man owes it to himself to make a financial success to the best of his ability. That should be only secondary, however.

Smith Expected to General Plan of paign; Nominees Are Political Warhorses.

By W. W. CHAPLIN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

ALBANY, N. Y., June 30. (AP)—Councils of war to determine the strategy of the Democratic presidential campaign are to begin at once. Governor Alfred E. Smith will go to New York tomorrow and it was learned today that he has appointments on Monday with persons whose advice on political matters he values highly.

At these preliminary conferences the general plan of battle will be drawn up and all indications are that they will call for a whirlwind campaign that will lead Smith and his running mate, Senator Joseph T. Robinson, from coast to coast and from the Canadian border down into the southernmost states.

Governor Smith himself has revealed little of his plans but the fact that he is going to New York on Sunday, ostensibly to keep appointments on Wednesday, indicates that there are important matters to be discussed at once, even before those Fourth of July appointments.

May Start at New York.

On the Fourth the Governor is to speak at Tammany Hall and in the evening from the steps of the city hall. Observers of the political situation are considering the "Modern Columbuses" In Full Sail Set Out From New York, With Spanish Port As Goal.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, June 30.—Four modern Columbuses with full sails set on their trim little yachts started today on a 3,065 mile race to Santander, Spain. Tonight and tomorrow across their paths lie a thunder storm and a stiff southwest gale.

On one of the boats was a woman—Mrs. William Ross of Pelham Manor, N. Y., who shipped on her husband's Isabella as a deckhand.

Paul Hammond's 59-foot Nina of New York was first to cross the starting line off Ambrose channel lightship at 12:15 p. m. William J. Curtis, and J. Linton Riggs' 57-foot Pinta of New York was second, closely followed by Dudley R. Wolfe's 6-foot Mohawk of Boston. The Mohawk set her big reaching jib and quickly passed the other two, with a light southwesterly breze filling her sails. The Isabella, the smallest of the fleet—35 feet over all—was late in arriving and did not get away until an hour and fifteen minutes after the others.

Tumult and Shouting Over, Houston Appears A Drab and Desolate City

One-Eye Connally Is Disgusted with His Reception

HOUSTON, June 30.—With all of the shouting and most of the street cleaning done, Houston Saturday turned from the turmoil of nominating a Democratic candidate for president to the time honored summer custom in these parts of resting until the cool of the evenings.

A few banners hung dejectedly from downtown buildings. It was too hot to begin taking them down. Traffic officers, who during the week praised their horses along down town streets, sought shade, and hoofs of mounts sank into the pavement softened by a temperature well above 90 degrees throughout the day.

Souvenir and button vendors, their markets gone with the departing special trains and automobile caravans, packed their belongings and left town on foot, by rail, by blinds, and in delapidated automobiles.

"One-Eye" Fails.

"One-Eye" Connally, king of gate crashers, thoroughly disgusted with the heat and his reception by Houston officers and convention gatemen, left for an unknown destination during the morning. He notified a restaurant, where he had a Franking privilege, that he was leaving and that the sign announcing, "One-Eye Eats Here Every Day" could be taken down.

"One-Eye" told a few friends that Houston did not appreciate him and that he had been thrown out of the convention hall so many times he considered this treatment a personal affront and evidence that real talent is not appreciated this far south.

Furniture removed from hotel lobbies during the convention was replaced today and ropes about the elevator booths were taken down. A few traveling salesmen lolled about the hostelries, waiting until Monday to tackle their prospects. Streets were deserted and only those who were prevented by business from going home, were abroad.

Sam Houston Hall, which resounded with the best oratory the Democratic party can offer, and which was, the political nerve center of the nation was deserted.

A few workmen were taking down the decorations and packing them away for the Fourth of July. The state standards will be sent to executive com-

Owner Files Complaint Against Neighbor

Killing a neighbor's turkeys that wandered across into his farm yesterday resulted in the filing of a complaint against C. A. Kellner, who lives about eight miles from here.

Upon learning of the charges Mr. Kellner came to town and made bond of $300. The complaint charged that he shot the turkeys which were "eating the grasshoppers from the crop."

Hooks and Slides

I'm Fine. How's the King?

Complaining that government subsidies such as were awarded to the German, French and Swedish Olympic teams force real British amateurs to compete against professionals, W. J. Bailey, coach of the British Olympic team, says his boys will have no chance to win at Amsterdam.

Commenting upon the American team, which he admits is financed by popular subscription like the British teams he complains nevertheless as follows:

"It is well known that some of the athletes who oppose us in the Olympic games are open to suspicion. In America, any brilliant young athlete, footballer, or boxer can get a free university education because competition between the varsities is so keen that it is a matter of advertisement to win the athletic contsts. Those who are given facilities they could not afford to pay for are not really amateurs. They get free training and coaching and that would disqualify them under the strict English rules.

"Most of the British athletes who oppose thes young men are forced to work and work hard for a living. They can spare only a limited time for training, and I know, through my coaching duties this year, that many of them can get time off to go to Amsterdam only with difficulty."

Old Legs and Tender Heart

American League players who have watched the Athletics say that Connie Mack's team won't do this year and will be clear out next year.

They give him credit for having some fine pitching and a fine infield defnse, but they say that sure outs against other outfielders have been going for doubles against the slow-footed outfielders.

Speaker and Cobb, they say, have given away more runs than they could knock in and the younger members of the team are not as fast on their feet as a championship club has to be.

And they say that the club is not overburdened with heart.

Coleman and San Angelo Pace W. T. League Flag Race

Hubbers Continue To Have Road Jinx, Dropping Four Of Five Games Played In Last Week's Schedule.

BY JAMES R. DOW
Avalanche-Journal Sports Editor

With the West Texas League war cloud at least temporary cleared when the directors of the circuit removed J. McAllister Stevenson, known as the "Mussolini" of the West Texas League, and replaced him with E. E. Lowrie, of San Angelo, the loop continued through its first week of the last half of the schedule.

San Angelo, under the tuteledge of Earl E. (Red) Snapp, and the Coleman Bobcats, led by Bob Ocuchman were tied for the league leadership through Friday's game, each winning six of the eight games thus played in the last half schedule

Midland is third with five wins in eight games; Hamlin ranks fourth with a fifty-fifty basis; Lubbock in the fifth rung with only three wins in eight starts; and the first half winners, Abilene's Aces occupy the lower berth with only one victory in eight scheduled games.

Snappers, Colts Look Good

Sangelo and Midland displayed more punch in the last week play than the other clubs; San Angelo hammered out a 23 to 6 win over the Bob Cats, and again a 11 to 6 win over Coleman; defeated Hamlin by a 8 to 7 count last Monday, counted a 10 to 1 victory in the final game with Hamlin on Wednesday; Thursday rapped a 15 to 4 victory over Midland and Friday blanked the Colts 15 to 0.

Jimmy Maloney's Colts attacked the last half winners with three slugfest exhibitions defeated the Aces in three starts by scores of 16 to 8, 13 to 5, and 19 to 13 respectively.

After leaving the home stand where they put over two wins in three starts with the Colts the Hubbers took to the road and held on to their road jinx as they dropped three in a row to the Coleman Bobcats by scores of 7-5, 11-10, and 4-0, respectively. In the opening bill of a three-ply card at Abilene the Aces, after dropping six straights, came to the front and scored a 20 to 7 victory over Bennie Brownlow's Hubbers. The only game won by the South Plains entry in the road trip was Friday's exhibition with the Abilene Aces, 9 to 7.

Kallina League's Ruth

Ed Kallina, burly firstbaseman of the Abilene machine, continued to maintain his home run leadership of the circuit, despite of the row of losses hung up by the Tullosmen, Thursday in the opening game with the Hubbers Kallina hit out a pair of four base blows off Red Hill to boost his total for the season to twenty-five, and Friday annexed his twenty-sixth in a game with the Hubbers.

July 4th doubleheaders will hold much interest in this weeks play as Lubbock meets the Coleman Bobcats at the Merrill Park; Midland clashes with Abilene at Abilene, and Hamlin will entertain the Snappers at the Concho Park at San Angelo.

It May Be So!
Future Cities To Be In The Air

LONDON, June 30—Among numerous traffic prediction made by various experts is one from Sir William Owens, consulting engineer of the British Empire exhibition, that future cities will be built on stilts.

The butest section of a city is its center, he reasons. This is always increasing and the problem of accommodating the traffic, increasing along with the city's center, must sooner or later be solved.

"The center of London must, in course of time, devote all of its ground floor to traffic," he says. "This can best be imagined by picturing the buildings on stilts, and under the buildings and between these stilts an unrestricted sweep of traffic.

"Pedestrians will be elevated. They will neither have to climb upstairs over elevated bridges nor downstairs through tunnels.

"There should be as little likelihood of accident between pedestrian and traffic as there is now between pedestrian and steamboat. Lifts and starcases will be available for those arriving in vehicles."

MIDLAND, June 30.—Rufe Hale was in rare form today and struck out eight Midland batters while his club was getting 16 runs to win. A fight in the second inning between Rose and Tuck added to the massacres. J. M. White, president of the Midland club gave notice that he was filing protest on all three games played here on the grounds that San Angelo was playing eight class men.

He Joins Cards

His .459 batting average this past collegiate season caused the St. Louis Cards to offer Hugo Lindquist, captain of both the basketball and baseball teams at Illinois Wesleyan this year, a contract—and he accepted. Lindquist was voted the most valuable athlete of his conference. He plays first and the outfield. The Cincinnati Reds also wanted him, but the fact that Wally Roettger, outfielder with the Cards, also coaches basketball at his college gave the Cards the jump.

Bitter Contests Feature Saturday Wimbledon Match

Helen Wills Qualifies For Semi-Finals of Women's Tennis Tilt; Hennessey In Quarter-Finals.

(By Associated Press)

WIMBLEDON, England, June 30—Three of the most bitter five-set battles Wimbledon has seen today put Big Bill Tilden, ace of American courts, and two of France's great triumvirate, Rene Lacoste and Jean Borotra, into the "final eight" of the unfficial world singles championships.

In contrast to the strife on the mens courts, Miss Helen Wills dropped three "courtesey" games to Mrs. M. Holcroft Watson, before qualifying for the semi-finals of the women's singles 6-3, 6-0.

British crowds seldom have seen Tilden so worried as he was today in eliminating Pierre Landry, young Frenchman, 6-4, 2-6, 2-6, 6-1, 6-4. Rarely, too, has Lacoste, French stylist and American champion, faced a game that so matched his own and bothered him so much as the stroking of H. W. Austin, youthful Englishman. Lacoste won 6-4, 6-4, 6-8, 1-6, 6-2.

Jean Borotra, repulsed another youth, Pat Crawford, of Australia, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2, 7-9, 6-3.

John Hennesey of Indianapolis, entered the quarter finals through victory yesterday along with Henri Cochet, defending champion and Jacques Brugnon.

A Lubbockite Writes On The Big Show

What The Democrats Did At Houston And How They Did It Is Told Here

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Herewith is a report of the recent Democratic National convention, as seen by a Lubbock citizen. It starts with the opening of the session and brings it to its conclusion, presenting facts only, but all of the facts).

By DR. W. A. JACKSON

Head of the Department of Government at Texas Tech

The place of meeting for the Democratic National convention, 1928, is known as Sam Houston Hall. It is large enough to accommodate the crowds for a first class football game with plenty of room for a full size gridiron. An average of from 20,000 to 25,000 people attended the sessions.

The first session was called to order by the chairman of the national committee. He rapped with a small gavel for ten minutes. A larger one was secured, and after a delay of another ten minutes enough order was secured for the opening prayer.

Welcome Address Given.

After singing of the Star-Spangled Banner and America, with the crowd joining in on the latter, there was a short address of welcome by Mayor Biscomb. The chairman of the national committee read the call for the meeting of the national convention after which the convention adjourned.

The second session opened at [illegible] a. m. The bands played for [illegible] minutes before the convention was called to order. It took [illegible] pounding of the gavel to secure order after it was [illegible] for.

The list of temporary officers was read, about twenty-five of them. The entire list was ratified. The temporary chairman, Claude Bowers of New York, was then escorted to the platform from which he delivered the key-note address. He scored it on all Republicans in general and several in particular. It was during this address that the first demonstration occurred.

The roll of states was then called and each state announced its choice for each of the four great committees, the credentials committee, the committee on rules, the committee on permanent organization, and the platform committee.

No Dry Shirts There.

The third session opened with a general buzz of excitement over the probable report of the platform committee. There was lots of talk over Moody's dry plank—there were no dry shirts in the convention.

The credentials committee reported first. There were only five contests and in no case was a contesting delegation seated. There was a minority report for the Louisiana contesting delegation, but the majority report was adopted before the minority was heard. The committee on permanent organization recommended that all temporary officers be made permanent with the exception of the chairman. Senator Joe Robinson of Arkansas was selected as permanent chairman. After being escorted to the platform he delivered another tirade against the Republican party. His remark on religious liberty started a demonstration led by North Dakota. One by one all the states fell in except Georgia, Maryland, Virginia, South Carolina and one or two others. This was conceded a victory for Smith. It seemed that there would be a free for all when someone attempted to carry the Alabama standard in the march. At this point all of the reporters got busy sending dispatches to their various papers.

Rules Committee Reports.

The committee on rules then made its report. There material changes made in the rules of the preceeding convention. The famous two-thirds rule was specifically mentioned as being retained. Announcement of the personnel of the next national committee was also made at this session.

The fourth session was called to order at 7:30 p. m. by Chairman Robinson who got hard boiled. He intimated that there were some people in the convention who were not gentlemen. At least, he stated that all gentlemen would take their seats and there were some who did not.

After an unsuccessful attempt to change the basis of the composition of the next national convention there was an eulogy on William Jennings Bryan after which the bands played "Rock of Ages."

Roll Call Begun.

The long roll of states was then started by the secretary for the purpose of allowing the presentation of names for the nomination of president. Alabama yielded to Georgia. Georgia nominated Senator Walter George. There was a fifteen minutes demonstration. Arizona yielded to New York. Franklin D. Roosevelt presented the name of Alfred E. Smith and the convention went wild. The demonstration lasted for thirty minutes then Arkansas yielded to Wyoming. Former Governor Nellie Ross seconded the nomination of Smith. California made a seconding speech for Smith. There were attempted demonstrations following both of these seconding speeches, but they were cut short. Colorado yielded to Kentucky. Kentucky also seconded the nomination of Smith. Connecticut yielded to Pennsylvania. The lady speaker from that state was one of the best speakers of the convention. Delaware passed. Florida seconded the nomination of Senator George. Idaho passed. Illinois passed. Indiana nominated Evans Woollen. Iowa passed. Kansas nominated Ayres. Louisiana put another lady speaker who would have been a "wow" but for the fact that it was approaching midnight and the crowd was leaving. One also seconded the nomination of Smith.

Those who had not previously done so then went home.

New Session Opens.

The fifth session opened with a continuation of the roll call: Gov. Ritchie of Maryland seconded the nomination of Smith. Massachusetts likewise seconded Smith's nomination. Michigan passed. Minnesota seconded Smith's nomination. Mississippi passed Chas. M. Powell of Missouri then nominated Senator Jas. A. Reed. His nominating speech closed at 11:45 p. m. Missouri Oklahoma, Florida, Kansas, and the Philippine Islands participated in a parade. Only one of the Kansas standards however, got in the parade and it was so badly delapidated after a free for all among the Kansas delegation that it took two men to carry the pieces. Order was restored twenty-five minutes later. Montana passed. Mr. O'Sullivan of Nebraska nominated Gilbert M. Hitchcock. Nevada seconded the nomination of Smith.

The sixth session was continued with the roll call of the states. New Hampshire and New Jersey passed. North Carolina yielded to Tennessee and Mr. Hancock of that state presented the name of Cordell Hull. Everyone was restless during this speech as they desired to get down to the business of nominating the candidate. (Marvin Warlick slept throughout the greater part of this speech). North Dakota seconded the nomination of Smith. Ex-Senator Thomas P. Gore, from Oklahoma, the blind ex-senator, seconded the nomination of Jim Reed. For the first time, a bit of humor was injected into the nominating speech.

Gore Tells a Joke

He told the story of the negro soldier who went "too fur" and stayed too long and then made the application to the Republican nominee, Mr. Hoover. He also said that Senator William Borah still believed in Santa Claus, that he wanted to take up a collection to pay back the tainted money received by the Republican party. "But," said he of Borah, "How in the h—l does he know they ain't gonna steal no more." He stated that the Republicans had neither religion nor prohibition and that the only relief the party favored for the farmer was to relieve him of his farm.

A second Oklahoma speaker seconded the nomination of George of Georgia. Mr. Haney, of Oregon, seconded Smith's nomination. Rhode Island passed. South Carolina yielded to Texas. Mr. Ball of Texas then presented the name of Jesse Jones which was followed by a fifteen minutes demonstration led by the Old Gray Mare and the Old Gray Mare Band. This nomination was seconded by Mrs. Roundtree and Governor Dan Moody of the Texas delegation. South Dakota passed. Tennessee yielded to North Carolina. The governor of Utah seconded Smith's nomination. Vermont did likewise. Virginia passed. Washington seconded Smith's nomination. West Virginia seconded the nomination of George, Smith and then nominated Sweet of Colorado. Wisconsin, the District of Columbia and Hawaii seconded Smith's nomination while the other territories passed.

Seventh Session Begins.

The seventh session opened with the report of the platform committee. The expected fight over the prohibition plank did not develop. The platform was adopted as reported by the committee.

The secretary was again instructed to call the roll of states. At the end of the roll call Alfred E. Smith lacked only a few votes of having the necessary two-thirds mapority for nomination. Before the results could be announced a sufficient number of states changed their vote to enable him to secure the nomination on the first roll call. The convention again went wild.

The following morning the final session witnessed the naming of the vice-presidential nominee, Senator Joe Robinson of Arkansas, on the first roll call.

The show was all over.

Dillard Out For County Attorney

Old Settler Will Make The Race For County Office; Moved To Lubbock County In 1896.

J. J. Dillard, pioneer Lubbock county citizen, yesterday authorized the Avalanche-Journal to announce him as a candidate for the office of county attorney. He makes the following statement to the voters.

"He is one of the early settlers, having located in Lubbock county, in 1896, coming to Lubbock county and locating permanently in August of that year. He taught school during the fall of 1896 and spring of 1897, locating in the city of Lubbock in the fall of 1897 and residing in Lubbock continuously since.

"He practiced law in Lubbock and adjoining counties with success for a number of years, participating in numerous cases of note. Among them the civil suit of J. E. Ketner vs. Commissioners of General Land Office. This case was filed in Austin and was a mandamus proceeding asking the court to order the Land Commissioners to cancel long term leases on state school lands, located in Lynn county. He secured judgment for their cancellation. Was employed by the defense in two murder cases, one being tried in Plainview, the other in Tahoka. He has served as special district attorney and special prosecutor in numerous courts in the early settlement of the South Plains.

"He was for a number of years one of Lubbock's outstanding and leading citizens, assisting with his time and money in the development of Lubbock county.

"He established the Lubbock Avalanche in 1900 and continued to publish same until 1908. He was elected representative from Lubbock and twenty-six other counties in 1910, serving in regular and called session of the 32nd legislature. He introduced and secured the passage of many needed laws in West Texas. His slogan at the time of his election was "for the recognition of West Texas," and as to how well he accomplished this slogan can be ascertained by asking any of the pioneers of this section.

"Prior to his election as representative in 1910, Lubbock and other South Plains counties had been at all times prior thereto, represented by a man elected along the Texas and Pacific railway.

"After his election to the office of representative has been a resident of Lubbock and Lynn counties. In his election in 1910, he secured a plurality over each of his two opponents in every county in the district. In Lubbock county he received 960 votes out of approximately one thousand votes cast, thus losing only thirty-five votes in the county.

"Dillard advocated as one of his demands, that the legislature establish an Agricultural and Mechanical college in the 101 representative district. The bill was introduced but on account of no propaganda advocating its establishment, it failed of passage, but ever after, it was a live issue, and twenty-three years later the Technological College was established in his home town.

"He is a pioneer, doing and assisting at all times in the development of this section, devoting his time, ability and money to the upbuilding of his community; the hardships endured by him and many sacrifices were done without selfish motives, and it would be fitting for a liberal, broad minded citizenship to study his claims for the office of county attorney, and with all things eqhal, repay him by honoring him for his unselfish efforts in behalf of the Plains and Lubbock county in particular, by his election to the office he seeks."

AL TAKES REST

Catches Up On Sleep Lost At Radio

ALBANY, N. Y., June 30. (AP)—Governor Alfred E. Smith rested today to recover from late hours imposed on him by listening to the night sessions of Houston convention and to prepare for the tasks ahead of him.

He did not go to the capital at all, thus disappointing scores of state office workers who had planned a surprise demonstration for him. Hearing of their chagrin, he sent word that as soon as he came back from New York next Thursday he would gret them all in the executive offices.

At the executive mansion he did greet several hundred members of the chamber of commerce who marched through the rain to congratulate him. He made a brief talk from his front porch, but avoided touching on political matters.

Book Reviews

Anita Loos couldn't have been more witty, more witty, more pungent in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" than she is in "But Gentlemen Marry Brunettes," (Liveright), newly published sequel to the first mentioned volume.

In the new book, Miss Loos—that unique literary character who, in pigtails and apron was writing scenarios for David Wark Griffith, at the age of thirteen—takes up the story of Dorothy co-character with Lorelei in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes." However, as in the former volume the real story is insignificant. It is the manner of narration and the pungent quips of wit and sarcasm which impart spice to the sentences that furnish the reward for reading.

"Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," was an international success and merited the unstinted praise of such nonchalant literary observers as Henry L. Menekden and George Jean Nathan. "But Gentlemen Marry Brunettes" written in the same "slangly" flapperish style, is being adjudged even better. In fact, some of its chapters excel anything that has yet come from the pen of Miss Loos.

Lorelei and Dorothy became familiar persons to thousands through the medium of the former volume. Still later, through the moving picture based on the book, they were vitalized for millions. To all of these the story of Dorothy and the further life of Lorelei, after she has achieved her goal of a wealthy husband, will be interesting.

Sketchings, by Ralph Barton, who scored such a triumph in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" are just as humorous and as poignant in the sequel volume. Large, well-rounded type make the volume easily readable.

"But Gentlemen Marry Brunettes". By Anita Loos, with Sketchings by Ralph Barton. Boni and Liveright, New York. Price $2.50.

Edgar Lee Masters, Chicago jurist who penned "A Spoon River Anthology" and who thus sprang to a place of eminence in American letters, has written a long, narrative poem entitled "Jack Kelso", which critics are lauding as a pageant, in verse, of American history. It is to be published by Appleton's

Recent Club Encampment Best Ever Held, Says D. F. Eaton; Plans Are Laid To Broaden Scope Of Session

Fun and Work Mixed Into a Fine Program for Four H Club Meeting; Attending Youngsters Well Pleased.

"The greatest encampment of its kind to be held here—an overwhelming success which will remain a precedent for many years to come," is the description by County Agent D. F. Eaton of the 4-H club encampment held at the fair grounds here Wednesday and Thursday.

That the meeting met with success was shown by the fact that about 450 boy and girl club members, representing more than sixty clubs in seven South Plains counties attended. This number is said to be larger than the attendance of any previous 4-H club encampment held in West Texas.

New Plans Announced.

Following the encampment plans to make the meeting an annual affair including the entire South Plains area, were announced by Mr. Eaton. The proposed encampment will be held at Lubbock, a central point of this district. Arrangements will be made before the date of the next meeting for suitable buildings and Registration began Wednesday afternoon under the direction of W. P. Knox, area executive of the Boy Scouts, who was also in charge of games and stunts during the encampment. Livestock, grain and poultry judging at Tech constituted one of the main features of the encampment for the boys both Wednesday and Thursday. Seven boys will receive free trips to the Short Course at A. and M. College as a result of the judging contests. Winners will be announced in the near future.

Dress Carnival Successful.

The Cotton Dress Carnival held in connection with the Appropriate Dress contest, under the direction of Miss Louise Baird, county home demonstration agent, climaxed the program for the girls. Hardy and New Hope took high honors in the dress contests. Three first winners will be given trips to the Short Course.

Twenty-three girls and forty-three women entered dresses in the contests. In the first-class, Ruby Phillips, of New Hope, won first prize, a trip to the A. and M. Short Course; Frestina Woodruff, of Hardy, was second; Virginia Mathis of New Hope, third; Betty Sedgwick, Hardy, fourth; and Willa Mae Praether, of New Hope, fifth.

In the second division Margaret Schmidt of Hardy, won first place and a trip to the Short Course. Hortense Ashmore, of Wolfforth, was second; Bessie Moore, Carlise, third.

Mrs. A. R. Pendley, of Carlisle, won first in the woman's contest. Mrs. J. C. Stanford, of Southwest Ward, placed second; Miss Divie Brown, of Hardy, third; Mrs. E. R. Davis, Acuff, fourth; Mrs. Douglas Pounds, Acuff, fifth; and Mrs. A. F. Mathis, of New Hope, sixth.

In the team demonstration contest the Groswell Girls' team was selected as the best. This team will complete in the district contest.

The municipal swimming pool at Tumble-N park was turned over to the youngsters the second day of the encampment. Swimming in the municipal park near the fair grounds, hiking, playing, and organized stunts were included in the entertainment program.

Local Men Talk.

Mayor Harley D. Woods, B. Sherrod, president of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, and a number of local business men addressed the club members of the encampment at a general convocation Wednesday night.

A statement of appreciation was issued yesterday by D. F. Eaton; N. H. Payne, head of the Farm Bureau; and Miss Louise Baird to the individuals and firms that cooperated in putting over the program of the encampment.

Eats were furnished by the county farm bureau and the Chamber of Commerce.

DAILY MARKETS

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, June 30 (AP).—The cotton market fluctuated rather freely in today's short session under varied influences. Prices had no definite trend although they scored a sharp recovery in final trading after the market had eased off from an early decline. October contracts traded up from 2190 to 2216, closing at the latter figure, net 18 points higher. The general market closed very steady at a net advance of 17 to 18 points.

Liverpool cables were 11 to 13 penny points better than due and the market opened steady in sympathy. Soon after the opening October contracts traded to 2220 and December to 2210, or 18 to 22 points above the previous close. This bulge attracted realizing and some selling by ring traders on the reactionary theory and on may indications of little rain in the belt over night. Before the offerings were absorbed October had sold off to 2190 and December to 2183 or 27 to 30 points under the highs and 8 to 9 points below the previous close.

PREMIER ATTRACTIONS

SIX — BIG DAYS — SIX

Starting, Saturday, June 30th, Ending, Friday, July 6th

Brown-Menley

These two versatile young men waft you away on magical wings into a world of breath-taking entertainment. Vocal duets, solos, cathedral chmes, piano solos, readings, numbers in costumes and plenty good comedy, assisted by Mary Holdrege, an entertainer of note who hails from the Ozark Hills and gives true characterizations of the hill people.

ENCHANTING SCENE FROM "A GYPSY CARAVAN"
Feature Musical of the Premier—Last Night.

The Golden Ensemble

The Golden Ensemble is an aggregation of nine of the most artistic singers that it is possible to secure for an attraction of this sort. They present a colorful costumed production featuring the songs of the "Vagabond."

Special lighting effects, special stage settings portraying beautiful pictures of Gypsy life, and striking and spectacular climaxes continue from beginning to end of this gorgeous entertainment.

Songs from "The Bohemian Girl," "Carmen," "The Vagabond King," and other classics and popular songs of today, have been selected and blended in preparing an attractive, artistic presentation—all filled with the haunting melodies and graced with the fiery abandon so characteristic of this romantic tribe of people.

The opening scene is a woodland setting. All members of the company are costumed in lavish gypsy regalia; a tripod and kettle stand over a flickering campfire; the covered wagon and gypsy tent are in the foreground; stumps replace the ordinary seating arrangement, and the piano is screened by natural boughs.

Lighting effects are especially noteworthy, changing frequently as a great variety of vagabond numbers are introduced.

The second part of the program of this superior aggregation is novel and interesting. The Spirit of Opera, represented by means of ingenious lighting effects, appears on the scene and compliments the company on their artistic taste and musical excellence.

Then the spirit of jazz appears and challenges the popularity of operatic music, and thereon hinges a contest between Jazz and Opera. It paves the way for the presentation of such beautiful numbers as "The Sextette" from Lucia, "The Pilgrim's Chorus" from Tannhauser, and the "Trio" from Faust, and a dramatic climax to a most original and interesting program.

Demure, dainty dramatic, artist. A charming young lady who will win your heart and hand instantly. Night 8 p. m.

H. L. FOGLEMAN—Premier.

Enthusiastically hailed as "a crusader with an intense hatred of business inefficiency," "a great teacher," "a master orator," "a whirlwind speaker,' a veritable dynamo, pulsating with energy and vibrant with magnetism," "live, inspirational, practical, compelling."

The great part of Mr. Fogleman's life has been spent in helping the other fellow solve his biggest problem. In his many years experience as a public speaker and as a teacher, he has been privileged to study no less than 250 of the biggest business institutions in the country: the Standard Oil company of Indiana; the Ford Motor company; Firestone Tire and Rubber Co.; the Metropolitan Life Insurance company; the Cadillac Motor Co.; the Chicago Examiner, etc. etc.

To Mr. Fogleman the Building of a Life is of infinitely greater importance than the Making of a Living. But he proves conclusively that the one is a distinct result of the other.

He has trained more salesmen and delivered more talks in more business organizations than any other man in America.

No subject or business problems ever looks quite the same after Mr. Fogleman has taken it down from the shelf and talked about it.

Subject: "The Value of a Man." Wednesday, July 4th, 8 p. m.

"The Shepherd of the Hills"

A story that is typically American with scenes that are laid in the Ozark Mountains of Missouri. A tale of tender love and happy sacrifice—enhanced by the art of actors of first rank.

SMILING MASSEY FIVE—Opening Day Premier.

The Massey Five hail from the great Southwest. Take a look at them in their wide sombreros, leather chaps, and contagious smiles—aren't they breezy?

These exceedingly versatile musicians bring to the Premier a program of classical, old-time fiddling and modern melodies that will please any lover of music.

Dot Massey has been playing violin since he was eight years old. He is also a good trumpet player, and plays the piano and sings.

Allen Massey is a banjo player.

Mrs. Velma Massey Mabie is a pianist and has a very beautiful contralto voice.

Milton Mabie plays the saxophone and mellophone. He also possesses an excellent tenor voice.

Mr. Massey, the father of this most interesting group of family musicians is an old-time fiddler and promises that the old-time music part of their program will please any old-time music lover. He declares that "old-fashioned fiddling" is his "specialty."

Gilbert Jaffy

And His Orchestra

Gilbert Jaffy, violinist, is every inch a true artist. He takes his work seriously and loves it. Jazz has no place in his soul, and as a result he is a classic artist of the highest type.

Mr. Jaffy's orchestra is composed of two violins, 'cello, base and piano. With this combination the most beautiful of popular classics are played. Each player is an artist on his particular instrument.

Perhaps it could be said that Mr. Jaffy and his orchestra give a popular radio program, inasmuch as a great deal of his time during the past few months has been devoted to radio work.

Of course, a few of the popular melodies of the day are thrown in but they are played in a truly artistic fashion.

Joshua Lee

Lecturer, Humorist and Soldier Poet

Mr. Lee is the head of the Public Speaking Department of the University of Oklahoma. He is also author of a textbook on public speaking.

In 1916 he won the national oratorical championship oper 1400 college orators representing every state of the Union.

While serving the Colors in France he wrote a volume of "Soldier Rhymes," of which General Pershing said, "They are great."

Joshua Lee is a modern wizard of words. His voice is musical, magnetic and dramtic in power, and the wealth of the world is laid at every man's feet when he hears his lecture "The Pot of Gold."

Humor is his strong point, and he will make every Gloomy Gus augh—but pathos and the serious things of life come in for his attention in his lecture "The Patriotism of Peace."

Pithy Hints For The Farmer

The 1927 Yearbook of Agriculture contains 320 articles in which new scientific discoveries and progress in farm production and marketing are dealt with by experts of the department of agriculture. In addition it reviews the entire agriculture field for last year, including the annual report of the secretary of agriculture and statistics for the year.

Dogs in Ohio have killed as many sheep as those in the big western ranches, says the U. S. bureau of biological survey. (In the past two years Ohio paid out $767,904 for sheep killed by dogs.

The extension service of the United States has grown to the extent of employing 5,000 trained men and women throughout the country. Last year nearly 620,000 boys and girls participated in extension work through their 4-H clubs. But this is far short of the 6,000,000 rural boys and girls who are eligible.

Prof. O. E. Reed, in taking the position of chief of the bureau of dairy industry of the United States, has filled a vacancy that has existed since the first of the year when D. C. W. Larson resigned. Professor Reed was head of the dairy husbandry division of the Michigan State College of Agriculture.

Present farm price index is 148 per cent of the pre-war level, the highest in three years, reports the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. The advance is due to price increases in all farm groups, except dairy products.

A. A. Lawson, 73 years of age, of Post, is in a local hospital as a result of an automobile accident between Tahoka and Ralls yesterday afternoon.

A hand of the injured man is badly cut and mashed as a result of the accident but he was reported resting at a late hour last night.

The aged man was on his way to a church convention at Ralls when the steering gear of the car apparently broke, overturning the car in a ditch.

Will Adair, of Anton, visited friends in the city this morning.

J. W. Barfoot, of Jayton, was in Lubbock today on business.

Albert Carlson, of Hale Center, visited friends here today.

Removal Notice

July 1, 1928.

To Our Customers:

On account of our having to vacate our present banking room temporarily until better accommodations can be provided, we will move after banking hours on July 3rd to be located for business on July 5th in the Howard Building on Main Street just across the alley west of the First National Bank.

We hope you will bear with us until we can re-occupy our present banking quarters. We expect to be located in the Howard Building about three months. During this time we hope to be able to give just as good service as our temporary arrangement will permit us to give.

This change is necessary on account of our banking room now being inadequate to meet the requirements incident to our increased volume of business. Our gradual and increased growth is due to the Loyal Patronage and Business Support of our Good Friends, Our Customers. When we get located back in our banking room and with the new equipment, we hope to give you and the friends you bring us every convenience and accommodation possible to be had in any well managed and well equipped banking institution.

Thanking you very much for your indulgence with us in the meantime, we are,

Campaign

possibility that one of these talks may be made the occasion of firing the first shots of the campaign.

It is generally conceded that the general strategy of the campaign will be dictated by Governor Smith, but there are countless details which he must first discuss with persons better acquainted than he with national politics.

To date he has merely stated that he will conduct the campaign as he has conducted those for state office. This means that he will fight day and night, speaking at a great number of meetings, and also that he will confine himself to statements of what he expects to do if elected rather than to charges against the Republicans such as featured the keynote speech.

Much depends on the choice of a chairman of the national committee to succeed Clem Shaver and this seems at the moment to be one of Governor Smith's principal problems, for it will be Smith who dictates the choice.

It is generally believed that the man chosen will come from the east, but there seems by no means unanimity as to the choice might fall.

Raskob is known to be enthusiastic over the qualities of his running mate and is believed to have had a good deal to do with his nomination. Smith and Robinson campaigned in New York together in 1920 for Cox and they have a mutual respect for each other largely based on the admiration of one tireless fighter for another.

The details of the campaign still are to be decided on but one fact is certain, when it is over the country will have no doubt that it has witnessed a campaign.

mittecmen of each state as a gift from Mayor Oscar F. Holcombe. Amplifying apparatus, through which the voice of Democracy flowed for days, was being dismantled and will be placed in the city auditorium for the county political campaign.

Gates about the hall were locked and the giant buildings, shimmering in the summer sun, was desolate.

Rumcrods of pop stands around the hall, which sprang up over night like toadstools, were disappearing. A canvas-topped watermelon parlor was the only convention concession doing business at the old stand.

the most casual street incident. So beware of the camera. It may catch you at the most in opportune moment, even as you stroll nonchalantly down Broadway.

Then, Wednesday morning, every kiddie in the city, under the age of sixteen years, iscordially invited to attend the Avalanche-Journal-Lindsey Theatre free matinee at the Lindsey theatre at ten o'clock sharp. Movies will be made of all the children who come to this show and, in addition to seeing a good show, each kiddie will ge given an ice cream bar as he leaves. The scenes made at this time will be a part of the plot to "Us Kids"

Heroine N'everything

This film will not contain any advertising, but will be a real picture with a story Lieme. The narrative starts with the introduction of the high school boys and girls, and takes on a kiddie atmosphere when the heroine barks back to her childhood days. Te action in this part of the story is left up entirely to to children of Lubbock, and hundreds of them may take part in it. A large number may be used, also, in the picnic scene, which will probably be taken at the City Park, and in the scenes depicting the hostile Indians who are being lead by the villian to attack the picnic crowd and frighten the little girls, especially the heroine, who has shown her preference for the hero. But the plot thickens, in true movie fashion. The hero and the Scouts happen to be in camp a short distance away,a messenger is dispatched to the camp, and the Scouts and the hero arrive just in the nick of time to save the day. All in all, it will be a thrilling picture, and you will enjoy seeing the people you know act in it. The photography, titles and general make-up of similar films made in other cities are first-class in every way, and "Us Kids" will be a rare treat for the theater-goers of Lubbock. It will be shown for three days, starting Thursday, July 12th, at the Lindsey Theatre.

"If you have the itch for success, scratch for it!" and "most any kind of jocky can win a race on Man-o-War, but what sort of a showing can you make on Sparkplug? That's the test." are other terse, to-the-point statements which Mr. Lee made in the course of his speech.

Tahoka News

BY MRS. FRANK HILL

Birthday Party

Miss Ruth Suddarth celebrated her birthday anniversary Monday evening with a delightful little party at her home. A number of little guests shared in the games on the lawn and in the refreshments, which consisted of chocolate ice cream and cakes, served from a table centered with a candled angel food cake; iced in pink and twined with honeysuckle. Favors consisted of comical little figures composed from marshmallows and candy sticks, with bits of chocolate for features and decorative buttons.

The honoree was truly happy in the receipt of a generous display of gifts and will long remember the pleasure her little friends offered her by their presence and their thoughtfulness.

Edwards-Knight

Miss Ines Edwards and Mr. Sumner Knight were married at noon Saturday at the Methodist parsonage, Rev. R. T. A "MOONY" MONTH

June Notable For Brides And Bootleggers

June was a month of moonlight and moonshine.

The moonlight resulted in some fifty-eight sheepish, mooing couples reporting to the county clerk's office and asking for the papers to be "hooked up" for life.

And the moonshine resulted in numerous individuals and groups being arraigned in the local courts on charges of drunkenness, sale of and possession of the well known intoxicating commodity.

More marriage licenses were issued, and more arrests were made on liquor charge than any other single month for some time.

As for the linking together of moonlight—well, they sound something alike. And it is stated that their assistance have thus far been dissimilar results.

Three marriage licenses were issued yesterday to increase the total of June brides and to fifty-eight, which is much higher than any previous month this year. A total of 348 has been issued this year.

As for the moonshine side, several arrests were made yesterday by city and county officers.

Fair Officials Turn Eyes Toward 1928 Exposi

New Directors Will Be Selected In Next Few Days And Plans Are Being Laid For Greatest Fair In History

Co-operative Spirit Among Towns of Plains and The Genera! Crop Outlook To Help Make Fair, Belief.

With the entire South Plains territory on the threshold of what is predicted to be its greatest era of development and prosperity, officials of the Panhandle-South Plains Fair association are beginning to turn their attention to the 1928 exposition preliminary preparations on its to start this week. The fair will be held from October 1 to 6.

Ballots for the selection of the new directors wer mailed out to stockholders of the asociation yesterday and upon their return, the new board will be announced and officers elected. The four new directors will be elected from the following: J. J. Clements, B. C. Dickinson, F. R. Freind. E. B. Green, I. F. Holland, J. A. Hodges, N. L. Peters, and W. C. Rylander. They will join the old directors, Dr. I. b. Barr, outgoing president, A. W. May, Alex McDonald, M. B. Hilburn and S. C. Wilson in preparing for the coming exposition.

Co-Operation Is Praised

Due to the great co-operative spirit shown among the various towns of the South Plains during the recent months, officials of the fair said yesterday that indications pointed toward a great section-wide participation in the 1928 exposition. The co-operative representation of the 31 South Plains to the Fort Worth West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention was a splendid example of this co-operation which is expected to exist during the fair.

Decision as to methods of meeting the demands of the exposition for more grounds and buildings this fall will be made by the new board soon after their selection, it was said. The construction of a real livestock barn and exposition department is almost assured, officials said, due to the great increase in the department's work which has been an outstanding feature during the past two years. The poultry building will be enlarged to meet greater demands and special attention is to be paid to this department this year because of the unusual display of interest in the past year was said.

To Repair Buildings

All of the buildings on the grounds will be repaired this year and remodeled to meet the needs of various departments.

Present indications are that there will be a great increase in the amount of county, school district and individual agricultural exhibits, officials said as a number of exhibitors over the section have already begun preparing for them. The assistant manager of the fair will start out during the next week to arrange for the annual catalog, exhibits, space rent in the various buildings and other details in connection with fair.

As the fair will be held on day longer than last year, officials predict the attendance mark to be over the 100,000 mark, they said yesterday. The turnstile records from the 1927 exposition show that 92,006 persons passed through the gates during the five days, despite the fact that two days were unusually disagreeable.

A larger line of free attractions will be offered this year than in past years, it was said yesterday. Featuring the events will be a girls' high diving and water act, a high expense act and other outdoor performances. The greatest program of fireworks ever seen in this section will be given on the nights of the fair. An automobile is to be given away each day of the fair.

Plans for the new buildings are already being prepared and will be presented to the new board for consideration in their first meeting which is scheduled to come soon after the selection of the four new directors and the 1928 officers.

Others present were Misses Annabelle Pool, Crystelle Boone, Leaverton, Copass Bowen and Dr. Roland Peters of Galveston.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Smart, conservative women's ideas are getting broader all the time—when it comes to the shoulder treatment for their costumes, that is.

It occurred to me last week, noting the very broad-shouldered effect of one georgette frock with a double bertha, that this is just one way of achieving a very slender waist appearance. Maybe we are all working back to the mid-Victorian effect, where the feminine waist looked as if it could be spanned by a couple of hands, whether it could or not.

Capes, berthas, ruffled collars and drop yokes and all kinds of wide furs are in use on summer things. Quite a divergence, really, from those sleek, poured-in and moulded slender lines of last season.

Slenderizing Effect

Of course some of the fair debs just can't look broad-shouldered. Take June Hess. I saw her lunching at Pierre's, looking lithe and slender in a printed frock of tiny white and pink flowers on a dark brown background. But the pleated collar that rippled over her shoulders did tend to broaden them. The skirt had five little pleated ruffles to flare the frock out and heighten the effect of the slender waistline.

There's a vogue in vivid sports coats right now that is pleasingly stimulating. Mrs. George U. Harris has a homespun coat of blazing yellow and red figures on a cream background. Badger collars it. The sleeves flare to a very wide cuff. It is three-quarter length and looks tremendously smart topped by a small orange straw turban.

I have called attention to the feminine grace of white silk pique before. But to fully appreciate it, one should see Alice Kenny's tunic overblouse of it with a pleated ruffle finishing the V neck and a double ruffle flaring below the natural waistline. She wears it with a navy blue tailleur with three-quarters coat collared in soft grey summer fur.

Kerchief jewelry is new and quite in keeping with this summer that subdues the nonchalance of last season's sports things. Mrs. A. P. Messmore wore a little silver yacht placed amidships below the knot of the polka-dotted kerchief she were was a collar to a light blue cardigan suit of flannel.

The use of the bowknot, or "loveknot," as some just must call it, is running riot in all kinds of accessories and decoration. Bernice Chrysler has one worked out in dark brown on the tan upper to a three piece brown ensemble. With it she wears gold loveknots for bracelets and as a tiny ornament for a stunning brown pica straw hat with medium brim.

Brown progresses in smartness until I would wager the smartest of women each will have at least one formal brown gown for next winter. Genevieve Fox was the cynosure of all eyes on the Ritz roof recently, dancing in a beautiful and most unusual gown of cinnamon brown tulle with each tier finished in cream lace, with a moulded bodice finished with a square neck of lace.

Black, White and Red

The flair for red this season is a welcome thing. Mrs. R. G. Wilson topped a black-white chiffon ensemble at a garden party recently with a red hat of floppy straw, and wore red sandals with parchament hosiery.

White line collars and cuffs and even separate vestees of fine hand-worked linens are quite the vogue—making me wonder again if we are not enroute to days of elaborate details of dressing reminiscent of the mid-Victorian days. Mrs. Sidney Whalen has a lovely set of collars and cuffs of hand-worked linen on a medium blue sports suit. Mrs. S. Bryce Wing is another woman with chic who knows just how effective and feminine lingerie touches are to tailored costumes.

Mrs. W. M. Featherston, of Petersburg, is in Lubbock with her niece, Miss Lois Featherston, who was operated on here at the Lubbock Sanitarium.

5—Pre-Emptive Bids

Today are given further illustrations in the art of pre-emptive bidding. When to pre-empt and when not to do so is shown by the explanations following each sample hand.

Spades—X; hearts—A Q J X X X X X; diamonds—X X; clubs—X X. This hand is weak in every suit except hearts. A bid of three hearts may not shut out bidding. Bid four hearts.

Spades—A K Q J X X X; hearts—X X; diamond—none; clubs—A J X X. This hand does not contain any support for a heart bid. Bid three spades to discourage partner or opponents from bidding, as with normal support from partner game will be made.

Spades—A K Q 10 X X; hearts—X; diamonds—none; clubs—A Q X X X X. This hand is weak in hearts and diamonds. It contains strength in clubs. Bid one spade. In all probability the bid will not be bought at one spade, and you may be driven to three or four spades and then doubled by opponents. Encourage this double as in all probability you will make four spades on this hand.

Spades—X; hearts—A K Q J X X X; diamonds—Q X X X; clubs—A. This hand contains no support for a spade bid. A bid of three hearts will not shut out bidding. Bid four hearts.

Spades—A Q X; hearts—A J X X; diamonds—A X X; clubs—A X X. This hand contains one hundred aces. It contains support for a spade or heart bid. Bid one no trump.

Spades—X; hearts—X X; diamonds—A K Q; clubs—A K Q J X X X. This hand is weak in spades and hearts. Shut out all bidding. Bid five clubs.

Spades—A K Q 10 X X; hearts—K Q X; diamonds—K; clubs—X X X. This hand isto strong to pre-empt. It contains support for a heart bid. Bid one spade.

Spades—K Q J 10 X X X X X; hearts—X; diamonds—X X; clubs—X. This hand does not contain two quick tricks. It is too strong, however, to pass, as it contains eight sure tricks. A bid of one spade would guarantee partner two quick tricks, and in order not to deceive partner, bid four spades, immediately shutting out all bidding. This freak hand should not, however, encourage you to vary the rule of making an opening bid on two or more quick tricks.

One-Minute Interviews

The Dance Hall As a Medium Of Expression

Mary Barrows

"Bigger and better public dance halls are what America needs for its young folks, Mary Alice Barrows, lecturer and writer declared.

She knows her dance halls! Over a period of years she conducted research on the dance hall problem, visiting all kinds of halls in cities large and small, in every section of America.

"Dancing existed before speech, that is how natural it is," Miss Barrows said.

"You might as well try to stop the tides and the sun as to stop the inherent urge urge to dance. It is time that proper facilities for dancing are provided for every stratum of society.

"Dancing is human rhythm at work. Have you ever watched a baby's way of expressing delight? Always by repeated motions. Rhythmic motions. The natural way to express happy emotions is in rhythm.

"For rhythm, like the heartbeat, runs all through the universe. We cannot stop rhythm; it is part of us. Dancing is merely an arrangement of dllifferent steps and forms to interpret rhythm.

"We crave companionship, so we dance in crowds. It all depends on whether we are rich or poor, or whether we can have attractive surroundings.

"We who dance only in comfortable hotels must take thought for those who depend upon less expensive places. Inexpensive but nice dance halls are a real social need."

Louise Magee And M. M. Barnard Are To Wed Tomorrow

Secretary to Tech Faculty And Fort Worth Man Are To Be Married In Quiet Home Ceremony.

Miss Louise Magee is to become the bride of M. M. Barnard, of Fort Worth, tomorrow at 9 o'clock in a simple home wedding with Dr. J. C. Granbery officiating.

The bride is to wear a navy blue georgette ensemble with accessories of beige.

Mrs. William Tucker will play the wedding march from Lohengrin, and during the reading of the ceremony is to play chorus from Traumerei.

Immediately following the wedding the guests are to go to the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Whiteside, the bride's uncle and aunt, where breakfast is to be served.

The couple will go to New Mexico and Colorado for their honeymoon and after two weeks will be at home in Fort Worth.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding include the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Barnard of Quanah.

The Morning Avalanche Menu for the Day

BREAKFAST: Strawberries, cereal, cream, creamed smoked halibut, combination muffins, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Scalloped new cabbage with tomatoes, toasted muffins, radishes, fruit cup, luncheon cakes, milk, tea.

DINNER: Broiled veal steak, new potatoes in cheese sauce, grilled carrots, vegetable and bacon salad, lemon sponge pie, milk, coffee.

Four tablespoons cornmeal are added to 3-4 cup white flour to make the breakfast muffins. This proportions of meal and flour makes a light soft muffin pleasantly flavored but not crumbly.

Fruit cup can be used as an appetizer if chilled orange juice is added and the bananas are omitted.

Fruit Cup

One cup halves of strawberries, 1 cup diced orange, 1 cup sliced bananas, 1 cup shredded fresh pineapple, 1 cup powdered sugar.

Sprinkle sugar through the fruit, shaking the bowl rather than stirring the fruit mixture. Stirring will crush the fruit and spoil its attractiveness. Chill for at least two hours before serving. Serve in glasses or halves of oranges from which the pulp has been removed and the shells scraped clean.

Twentieth Wedding Anniversary Of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hamilton Recalled In Breakfast at Home Here Saturday

The Woman's Day

By Allene Sumner

Sumner

"Can you imagine that!" exclaimed the lady of the house the other night, as she read the evening paper. "The President can't leave on his vacation because his wife's sick!" There didn't seem anything in the bald statement to make one so surprised, but one caught in the lady's tone just exactly what she meant. To think that one could be President of the United States and be kept from his trip at the last moment because his wife was sick—just the way Dad had to stay home from the World's Fair, after they'd planned it for months, all because the children got the whooping cough.

Nothing gives us garden variety mortals such a mellow feeling at times as the realization that even those in the high places live about the same sort of lives subject to the same disappointments and uncertainties, as all of us.

ALL DOWDY GALS!

Had it ever occurred to you whether some of our most beloved ladies of fiction were chic, well-dressed or not? Me, neither! But I am interested in a current magazine article to the effect that not until the day of modern fiction offering so exotic a creature as Iris March of "The Green Hat" were ladies of fiction really well dressed.

"Suppose we start with Rebecca and Dowena," says the editorial. "We can almost hear the malicious whispers of the Norman ladies at Rebecca's appearance 'So barbaric! Did you ever see anything more frightful than that turban with those plumes and jewels?' And at sight of Rowena, there doubtless was a general raising of eye-brows, accompanied by murmurs about small Saxon town fashions."

An interesting subject, this, for a possible club paper for a program of lighter vein. Go through the classics and pick out the chic and the unchic ladies.

MODERN MOTHERS

The picture of sweet-faced, white-haired Mrs. Edwin S. Earhart, mother of Amelia Earhart, who was the first woman to span the Atlantic, interests me strangely. After all, the modern mother may explain the modern girl, though all the bonnet doffing is done to the latter.

Imagine a mother of 50 years ago, if her daughter had calmly announced that she was about to fly over the Atlantic. There would have been hysterics, faintings, reproaches to the tune of "you'll never see your mother again." Still, it's not fair to blame those mothers of 50 years ago, they were the same product of their times that modern mothers are of theirs.

GLEAMING SABERS

The flashing sabers that formed a canopy for Catherine Smith daughter of Governor Al Smith of New York, and her new husband Francis Quillinan as they left the Cathedral probably thrilled the heart of every girl who saw the picture. It's the same reason why all romantic America dashes to see a West Point movie which shows a wedding scene in the little church high up on the point with the newlyweds passing under the steel.

What makes this thrill? Is it the suggestion of male protection in the gleaming sabers, or is it the realization that a wedding with sabers really is something outstanding, a setting available only for a few? Is exclusiveness the appeal?

The encampment closes today but the delegates have returned. They were Mrs. R. P. Cook, Misses Virginia McLean, Margarett Cooper, Corlene Overstreet, Hubert Hopper and Peyton Waddill.

Songs Given At Marriage Are Sung Once More At Ceremony Celebrating the Anniversary.

A very beautiful and unusually delightful affair was the breakfast given by Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hamilton yesterday morning at 5:30 o'clock at their home, 1701 Avenue Q.

The breakfast was given commemorating the 20th wedding anniversary of the hosts.

Guests upon arriving gathered in the front yard which is beautiful with multi-colored flowers and palms. Pillows and Navajo rugs were arranged for the guests to be seated upon during the program preceding the breakfast.

Mrs. R. L. McKnight was the first to appear. Accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton's two talented daughters, Betty, at the piano and Jimmie on the violin, she sang "Love Me and the World is Mine."

Wedding March Again

When the notes of Mendelssohn wedding march were heard, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton marched through the doorway and stood in front of an improvised archway on the front porch. Mrs. Hamilton wore her wedding dress. It was of white organdie and Ventian lace. Dr. W. R. White gave a prayer and made a talk suitable to the occasion.

Before the guests entered the house Mrs. McKnight sang, "O Fair, O Sweet and Holy."

The two course breakfast was served in the old-fashioned manner. The forty-six guests were seated at one long table, which was covered in beautiful linen. Monogrammed napkins and place cards were at each plate, and a tthe hosts' plates there were a minature bride and groom.

Cut flowers were on the table, and the house was a bower of greenery.

J. W. Gamel, a life-time friend of the family, was toastmaster. He made a talk preceding a toast to the bride of twenty years by Elmo Wall. Mrs. Hamilton responded with remarks in meter.

Mrs. W. R. White gave a toast to the groom, to which he responded.

Dr. H. C. Maxwell gave a toast to the chosen daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton, to which they responded in a charming manner.

Delve In Reminiscence

Mrs. Marlin Smith jr., gave reminiscences of the wedding ceremony taken from the hostess' scrap book. The family have known her from infancy.

There follows exerpts from the write-up of the wedding which was printed in the Roswell Daily Record.

"James E. Hamilton and Miss Margaret Bird Beaty were married at 7:30 o'clock last night, with a pretty and impressive service at the New Baptist church in the presence of a large number of invited guests.

"Walter T. Paylor sang the pre-nuptial sole, "Love Me and the World Is Mine," accompanied by Miss Viola McConnell at the piano.

"Ushers were Messrs. Allison, Roy Parsons, Doctor Armstrong, and P. Y. Harpold.

"The groom and his best man, Wilbur Arnett entered through one door and the bride and her maid, Miss Jessie Armstrong walked down the center aisle.

"During the reading of the ceremony Heart and Flowers" song was played, and immediately following the plighting of the vows Mr. Paylor sang "O Fair, O Sweet and Holy."

"The bride's dress was of white organdie and lace, and she carried a bouquet of bride's roses. Her maid of honor wore a frock of blue silk mull and her bouquet was of sweet peas.

Miss Pearl Harrison, a former resident of Roswell, presided over the guest book.

Guests on this lovely occasion were: Messrs. and Mesdames J. H. Kimmel, J. W. Gamel, Elmo Wall, Marlin Smith jr., Fred Grayum, J. Harmon Jenkins, W. A. Stahl, J. P. Patterson, Claxton Draper, R. L. McKnight, Joe George, J. C. Davis, Carroll Thompson, S. A. Henry, Dr. and Mrs. W. R. White, Mrs. Ella Barclay, Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Ballinger, Mrs. Erie Studeman, Dr and Mrs. H. C. Maxwell, Misses Ada and Ruth Beaty of Roswell.

D. A. R. Chapter, Young In Lubbock, Will Do Its Part In Carrying Out Principals Of Patriotism In City

Newly Elected Officers To Take Charge In Fall And Plans Are Being Made To Further Order's Ideals

By EVERETTA LOVE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

"We are a comparatively young organization in Lubbock," said Mrs. Clyde F. Elkins, incoming regent of the Nancy Anderson chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, "but we intend to be active in the carrying out of those principles of patriotism upon which our order was founded."

The local chaper of D. A. R. was founded two years ago, with Gus L. Ford as organizing agent, and it was named Nancy Anderson after the revolutionary ancestor of Mrs. Ford, in accordance with the custom which allows the organizing regent the privilege of naming the chapter. There are at present 21 members in Lubbock. They are: Mesdames Gus L. Ford, Elsie Mathias Adams, W. L. Baugh, R. W. Blair, William Dingus, Clyde F. Elkins, Ida A. Harris, G. V. Harris, L. S. Harkey, Rab Kimmel, A. H. Leidigh, C. S. Mast, Miss Johnnie McCrery, Mrs. Chas. F. O'Neall, Miss Ella Norine O'Neall, Miss Nancy O'Neall, Mrs. E. W. Provence, Mrs. W. C. Rylander, Mrs. Wilda H. Stewart, Miss Elizabeth West, Mrs. H. B. Johnston.

Is Old Society

The Daughters of the American Revolution is one of the oldest and most famous of women's historical societies in the United States. Its membership is composed of those women whose ancestors fought in or gave direct assistance to the American revolution. Its purpose is broad, discouraging any sectionalism, and it includes many worthy projects in its national program, such as the stressing of conservation and thrift, the Americanizing of immigrants, and the marking of old national stage trails with bronze markers. It has been accomplishing some remarkable results with the immigrants on Ellis Island.

In Washington there stands Continental Hall, the beautiful national home of the D. A. R.s, in which are preserved the lineage books of the members. It is a muesum for many priceless documents relating to early American history.

State Well Organized

The state organization consists of a regent, and representatives sent from each local chapter, according to the size of its membership. The state regent of Texas is Mrs. James T. Roundtree, of Paris. The Texas group has been unusually active. A feature of its work has been the maintaining of scholarships and loan funds for girls in several of the state schools. It has a scholarship in the University of Texas, a loan fund in North Texas State Teachers' college, and it recently has voted to establish one in the Sam Houston State Teachers' college.

Lubbock D. A. R.'s, though rather few in number, have done their part toward assisting in all national activities. They have carried out the many beautiful customs of the society, observing Washington's birthday with a colonial tea, and Flag Day, by holding a program teaching the correct use of the flag.

Marker to Be Set

As a special project for the future, the local chapter is planning to erect a bronze marker in commemoration of an old Spanish trail which runs west of the city. It really comprises two ancient trails which converged at Singer's store for years the first stopping-place on the Cap Rock. Miss Lallah Boone, of the History Department of the Tech college, is especially interested in Texas history and she is assisting the D. A. R.'s, in finding the exact location of the historic store. It is believed to be at the north-east corner of the Tech campus.

In September, the recently-elected executives of the Nancy Anderson chapter will take office. Mrs. Clyde Elkins will succeed Mrs. Gus L. Ford as regent; Mrs. Clarence S. Mast, will be vice-regent; Miss Johnie McCrery will be secretary; Mrs. W. C. Rylander, registrar; and Miss Elizabeth West, historian.

Miss Laura Mae Terrell and Miss Louise Warren, who are attending Tech summer school, left yesterday to spend the week-end with homefolks in Plainview.

M. W. Etter, of Littlefield, was visiting in the city today.

Olive Roberts Barton Says:
Child's Character Depends On Physical Well Being

Back of character training is habit training, and back of habit training is health. The whole thing begins with the baby.

The physical habits and mental development of a baby are so closely related at the beginning of his interesting career that it is necessary to lay more emphasis upon his bodily care than upon his behavior.

Instinct governs him entirely—he knows when he is hungry or sleepy, or uncomfortable, from the beginning. In a few short weeks he knows that by crying he will get the things that will make him comfortable.

It is bad business, however, to allow a baby to get to the stage where he has to cry for things before he gets them. If he is comfortable he will not cry. His life should be run on schedule, and his wants anticipated. Not for one day, but for all days. Nothing should interfere with his regular routine of eating, sleeping, bathing, airing, or other needs. But it is bad business to allow him to get into the habit of crying for things he does not need.

We must get over thinking of him as "only the baby." Really he is the most important member of the family and should be treated as such. The highest percentage of deaths among babies occur in the first year. Intelligent care has reduced the figures in the last few years. However, constant vigilance is necessary. A baby cannot be systematically bathed, fed, aired and all the rest of his regiment carefully attended to one day, and be carelessly neglected the next. He is just as susceptible to cold or baccili from an unclean bottle one day as he is another. He should never be left to an untrained, indifferent, or too young nurse. Constancy and consistency are the watchwords for his safety.

Clothes for the new baby should be simple, soft, plain and easily washed. No embroidery is necessary. Enough changes of clothing should be provided, if possible, to keep him immaculately clean at all times. No ruffles or gathers or things difficult to iron—indeed ironing, except for appearance, is not absolutely essential to a baby's laundry. But all clothes should be washed thoroughly, rinsed thoroughly and above all, dried thoroughly before using.

If a baby is artificially fed, his bottles must be washed out daily with a bottle brush, in warm suds, rinsed thoroughly and then boiled for half an hour. Nipples must be boiled too. This destroys germs that breed in the milky film left inside. It may look clean and yet be dangerous. Only boiling can make it pure.

If possible, the mother should nurse the child. One thing science has not been able to do is make a food quite as perfect for young babies as mother's milk.

General Federation Has Attained Remarkable Success In Its Field Newly Installed President Finds

Mrs. John Sippel, Recently Elected Head of Women's Organization, Is Pleased With Record

WASHINGTON, D. C. June 30.—The General Federation of Women's Clubs, through its work on behalf of the American home, has attained a peculiar and remarkable success during the past few years which has opened the door for a greatly expanded program which will be dedicated to the upbuilding of community life, according to Mrs. John F. Sippel of Baltimore, Maryland, newly elected president of the General Federation.

"The new administration is loathe to lose the momentum of the constructive activity of past years, but feels that there is a genuine obligation to use the facts collected as guiding light and to extend and expand the work in the light of this knowledge, to build broad and high on the foundation laid now," said Mrs. Sipple.

New Standards Are Goals

"We have learned not only that millions of American homes were under-equipped for the efficient performance of the woman's world-old job by new world standards, but that at the base of these surprising defects lay the amazing and needless under-equipped of thousands upon thousands of American communities with facilities of efficient community life. They concern the policies governing the health department, fire protection, school equipment, insurance rates, property values and scores of other matters that call for the initiative of the General Federation's departments of Public Welfare, of Education, of American Citizenship.

"The enormous number of homes equipped with radios as revealed through our survey constitutes a challenge to our departments of Fine Arts and Education. Every day of the year, every hour of the day the radio is carrying some influence into the home. What influence? It is said that nine tenths of the programs are devoted to music. What sort of music? Is it our concern? I might go on indefinitely relating possibilities of great community activities through channels already organized in our eight major departments of work in the General Federation.

"Shall we not step out of the home into the community and during the next two years, concentrate our best energies and efforts toward the advancement and enrichment of community life? In this tremendous program I shall emphasize at all times not only physical betterment but a more profound spiritual development and increased attention and effort toward the cultural aspects of life."

The Floor of the Home
Armstrong's Linoleum

. . . the secret of good Linoleum Floors is in the laying

The days of brass binding and tacks are gone with modern Linoleum layers. We lay your Linoleum over heavy deadening felt, cementing the entire floor into practically one piece, built in floor. It is laid so that it will be permanently smooth, warmer, more silent, more resilient—so it will wear a lifetime. These floors do not buckle wave or crack.

Quietly Charming Floors

Quietly charming is an apt description of the lovely new Armstrong's Linleum. The new Jaspes—soft, subdued patterns that enhance without intruding. The quaint Dutch Tiles, Handcraft Tiles, plain colors, rich marble effects—no end of charming patterns.

Good Laying Means More Than Good Linoleum

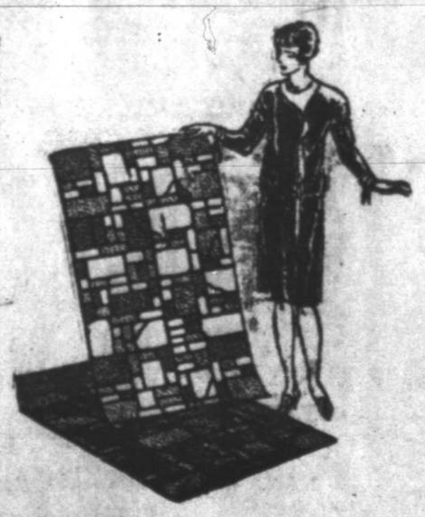
We keep a well trained Linoleum staff at all times, capable of doing fancy bordered jobs in combinations of patterns and plain colors; special parquetry effects or wall work.

We know that we do not lay all the Linoleum that is laid and yet the popularity of Linoleum floors is evident by the fact that our one store has laid over 14,000 square yards of Linoleum the first six months of this year. Our three Linoleum crews have laid almost 5,000 yards of battleship Linoleum in the last sixty days. Let us show you the beautiful patterns available, lay it as it should be and then tell you how to properly take care of it.

More Linoleum is destroyed by improper use of the wrong cleaning materials than is worn out.

Enduring Floors That Lighten Housework

After we have laid your Armstrong floor you can put the scrubbing brush on the "retired list." They do not have to be scrubbed. Just an occasional waxing, then a daily light turn with the mop will keep them fresh and clean. No cracks to clean out.



And in these modern times with so many things to occupy the time of the housewife, Armstrong floors GIVE more time in which to do these pleasant things.

Armstrongs Special Window Display

We especially invite you to see the special Armstrong window display sent us from Armstrong's plant at Lancaster, Pennsylvania. This display shows various patterns of Linoleum, gives some idea as to the manner of laying and is very interesting from many angles. This display weighs almost one half ton.

Increased Purchasing Power of Farmers Expected To Result Through New Development.

(Special to the Avalanche)

SAN ANGELO, June 30.—The San Angelo Board of City Development, through its dairy division, has launched a dairy improvement program that is expected to be felt in improved purchasing power of the farmers of this section through an increase in the production of dairy products and the number of pure bred dairy cows on the farms.

Dr. R. L. Rogers, veterinarian, who has been employed as dairy inspector for the city of San Angelo, has been engaged to carry on the dairy promotion work for the commercial organization, and has announced that his initial work will be directed toward taking dairy census in Tom Green and adjacent counties. This important work will be followed by the organization of bull circles and the furtherance of educational work in cooperation with county agents and the inauguration of that work in counties not enjoying the services of a county agent.

Ted R. Logan, chairman of the dairy division of the Board of City Development, pointed to the importance of developing the basic industries of this section in encouraging adoption of a dairy promotion program, and his recommendation to the board of directors was accepted in its entirety.

Due to the fact that the work being launched by the dairy specialist for the commercial organization is of long range, plans are being developed for a five or ten year program which is expected to develop the industry to its very highest efficiency in this section.

Man Is Instantly Killed, Asleep On Track

WEATHERFORD, June 30. (AP)—One of the two men asleep on the railroad track nine miles west of Weatherford was instantly killed and his companion received severe scalp wounds when a fast passenger train came by this afternoon. The injured man gave his name as Dock Turpin, Wyatt, Indiana, and said his companion's name was P. A. Young. He gave Young's address as Mount Peters, Indiana.

Turpin awakened as the train bore down on them and was almost clear of the track when struck.

Slaton Citizens Visit New Lynn On Goodwill Trip

Seventh Jaunt of Season Brings People Together In Evening's Program of Entertainment.

(Special to the Avalanche-Journal)

SLATON, June 30.—People of the New Lynn community, fifteen miles south of here, and a representative group of Slaton citizens mingled with each other through an entire evening of entertainment at the New Lynn school building Friday night. It was the seventh good-will trip for this season, sponsored by the Slaton Chamber of Commerce. About 300 people attended, over 75 of them from Slaton.

Messrs. Spears and S. Clair, two of seven school trustees in New Lynn independent district, made arrangements for the Slatonites to visit in their community.

J. W. Hood, preident of the Slaton Chamber of Commerce, spoke to the gathering. James Merrill, jr., gave a reading. The French harp band, a stunt feature, presented several numbers. D. F. Eaton, Lubbock County Farm agent, and Miss Halsey, Lynn county home demonstration agent, were present and made short talks.

Women of New Lynn served sandwiches, lemonade, ice cream and cake to raise funds for aiding their farm club activities. They are planning to send representatives to the Farmers' Short Course at A. and M. college this summer.

New Highway For Crosby Is Opened

North And South Route Is Open To Traffic After Bond Issue Voted For Cap Rock Crossing

CROSBYTON, June 30.—The new highway which has been under construction north and south through Crosbyton, the county seat of Crosby county has been completed and is now open to traffic. This road has been badly needed for many years, but owing to the difficulty of getting off the caprock south of Crosbyton its construction was delayed. A bond issue of $60,000 was made to cut down the caprock and at present the road is a one per cent grade at the caprock. This road gives a direct connection between Post City, the county seat of Garza county, Crosbyton, the county of Crosby county and Floydada the county seat of Floyd county.

This road has been put according to highway specifications and attempt are to be made to have it designated as a State Highway, as it is a very important highway connecting with Highway Nos. 7 and 84 at Post City with No. 53 at Crosbyton and with No. 28 at Floydada.

This road passes the Uncle Hank Smith Memorial park which is ten miles north of Crosbyton, where the West Texas Old Settlers association will old their reunion on August 15 and 16 of this year.

LEE Conshohocken Tires

Lee Shoulderbilt Balloons, Heavy Duty

In the "Shoulderbilt" fortunately, the appearance is quite in keeping with its ruugged, dependable performance.

"Heavy Duty" is indeed a fitting name for the Shoulderbilt. Over over-size is the best statement to paint the word picture. More rubber and bigger than other tires of the same marked size.

Put this Shoulderbilt alongside of others. It stands higher, looks bigger, and is bigger. Lee designs all "Heavy Duty" tires so as to perform better than expectations.

Of course, Lee craftsmanship means a plus value, too. That's one more reason why "Shoulderbilts," which cost no more to buy and far less to run, will make your tire money go the farthest.

Eleven Students Get Diplomas In Life Saving Here

Only One In Twelve Fails To Pass Tests; Lone Girl Draws Praise From Clapp, In Charge of Program.

Eleven out of twelve applicants successfully passed the requirements for membership in the Red Cross Life Saving Crops when the course conducted by K. N. Clapp, local Red Cross examiner, terminated Saturday morning.

Those qualifying, and their grades are: Seniors—Luther Williams, 91; Mis Lois Love, 90; Tom Everhart, 88. Juniors—Woodrow Holt, 96; John Hopper, 93; Odell Blackwell, 92; R. C. Douglas, 90; Clyde James, 89; Billy Crenshaw, 88; Carroll Thompson, 83.

Mr. Clapp was enthusiastic in his praise of Miss Lois Love, who enjoys the distinction of being Lubbock's first woman Red Cross life saver. "She is a dandy," he said, "the most apt pupil I've ever had, so quick in grasping the technique, and when it comes to determination and grit, she's a wonder. Look how she scored in competition with those boys, who had already passed the Boy Scout test! That young lady is all the fifty seven varieties of a good swimmer and a couple more."

Instruction Every Morning.

Instruction in the life saving course was given every morning at "Tumble-N" pool during the last two weeks, and, when it was completed, the senior test was given to all the pupils. Mr. Clapp gave the senior test because he believes that a junior should be equipped in an emergency with the same thorough knowledge as that of an adult. The only exception was that thirty, instead of sixty foot distances were required on the rescue carries.

If a dozen entries are secured, Mr. Clapp states that he will conduct another class, to be held in the afternoons, beginning July 11, due to the fact that several people were unable to enter in the morning classes. Those who wish to enter the July clas are urged to sign up on the bulletin board at the pool. If a dozen pupils are not registered, the final class will be held about the middle of August.

"Expert ability is not necessary to pass the test," stated Mr. Clapp. "A fair swimmer who will devote eight to sixteen hours to practice can generally qualify."

Oddities About The Convention

Now That the Big Show is Over

(By Associated Press)

Jesse H. Jones, Texas' "favorite son," as well as the man who gave $200,000 to the democratic party so it would hold its national convention in Houston, last night was classed as a "gate crasher" by an over-enthusiastic doorkeeper.

Mr. Jones had neither badge, credentials nor ticket. A policeman approached him and told him to leave the hall.

"But I'm Jesse Jones," the favorite son mildly protested.

"That doesn't make any difference—you can't stay in here," the officer replied, ushering Mr. Jones toward an exit.

Clem Shaver, chairman of the national executive committee, came to the rescue. Mr. Jones was allowed to stay in the convention hall waich he was instrumental in building.

Of all love affairs, one in Houston takes the cake. A parrot is in love with a girl.

He sits on a roof garden and refused to have anything to do with anybody but this particular waitress. He follows her with his eyes and if she neglects him too long he shrieks, "Lola, Lola," and keeps up such a racket that the pretty little brunette has to leave her customers to go to him.

She engages the parrot in animated conversation in Spanish. the only language the old bird knows. What they say is a dark secret.

If the other waitresses try to draw him out in English he rolls his eyes and sticks his head under his wing.

As the voting for the presidential nomination went along the New York delegates kept score. Almost every man and woman had a tally sheet. When the result was finally announced and the New York governor declared the nominee the entire delegation appeared in a parade for the first time. With Michael J. Cruise, New York City clerk, carrying the standard, Mrs. Caroline O'Day, the chairman; John W. Davis and James W. Gerard, the two former ambassadors and all the rest of the big crowd fell into line.

Alabama which has shown a disinclination to parade on a large scale at the convention carried its standard to the front for the grand march after the nomination. A. H. Marmichael the chairman, personally carried the emblem.

North Carolina decided everything by ballot. Even when demonstrations seemed imminent a vote was taken as to the tar heel state's participation. A small Smith minority in the delegation, however, gained the ballot when North Carolina prepared to parade for Cordell Hull of Tennessee.

In the big nomination parade plans were made for "Jimmy" Walker to ride the "Old Gray Mare," on which a young woman of extraordinary beauty leads the Texas band. The arrangement failed because the fair rider thought the Mayor was to be at one place when he was waiting at another. He was not late but was confused in the place of appointment. So the pretty girl rode again at the head of the band and smiled and smiled and smiled.

Downtown Revue

It is said that every person, before he dies, consumes at least a peck of dirt. But if he spent many of his summers in West Texas, the peck would be a bushel—as any man downtown yesterday could testify.

The advent of the traditional "tattooed lady" on Broadway yesterday created quite a stir of interest. Her large, bulky arms were covered with curious dark designs reminiscent of Borneo and the South Seas. Perhaps she was "just a sailor's sweetheart," and he wanted to brand her for his own. The sailor had the right idea in this day and time.

A truck carrying a load of office desks, bumped over a rough place in an alley, and dropped one of the desks, spilling innumerable papers out of the drawers. The wind immediately whirled them in every direction. Some harassed business man is probably wondering how to live and keep a "sweet" disposition, anyway.

Ice cream cones are in vogue now as never before. A man carrying five of them yesterday, crossed the street on a red light. "What's a red light to me?" he said. "I've got to get these red ice cream cones over to the boys at the office before the heat gets them down."

THROUGH LUBBOCK'S SHOPS WITH EVERETTA

I stopped by C. E. Stone's yesterday to see what they have been offering at special prices for the last day or two and I found some beautiful things . . . smart dreses, for misses and matrons, in printed chiffons, georgettes, and crepe Elizabeth; evening dresses of taffeta and filmy chiffon, in pastel shades, which are eloquent. But, the most distinctive dresses, which they are showing, are the ensembles. They are ideal for traveling wear: printed dresses and georgette coats lend one an air of quiet elegance. These dresses and some lovely spring coats may be obtained at reduced prices Monday, and hats, of every type and of excellent materials, are offered at half price.

Do you need a garden hose? You can get one, 25 feet in length, at the Acorn store for $2.48. And, you can also find there an Acorn electric iron, guaranteed for $2.49. It is the place for you to go if you need dishes or cooking utensils. How about that egg beater you've been needing for a long time, and can't remember to buy . . . aren't you tired of using a fork . . . or the ice pick which you lost the other day? And maybe you want a new tea-strainer or an aluminum pitcher. You should take time off some morning to go by the Acorn store and get all those "little things" that make life run more smoothly.

The other day I saw a 1914 model Packard, an old twin-six "clover leaf" ambling down Broadway . . . a quaint thing! At the time, I was riding in the very latest word in Packards, a smart club sedan, and I was very much impressed with the contrast between the two cars. The modern club sedan, besides being a masterpiece of beauty, has every convenience which genius can devise. It rides as smoothly as a ship "on a painted ocean" because both the back and the front seats are built within the spring of the wheel. It has two trunks, which contain five suitcases and a hat bix . . . and many other things, but go to the Sure Service station, and look one over for yourself.

I have heard a great deal lately of coniouration treatments, so I went into Milady's Beauty Shoppe the other day and found out all about them. The contouritor, by which they are given, restores to the face its correct, youthful contour. With deft, sure touches it corrects sagging muscles and erases disfiguring lines. Then, after you have had a contouration treatment, you may obtain from Milady's Shop the contoure preparations—a cleansing cream, skin food, and an unusual finishing lotion—which are to be used at home. And, incidentally, Milady's Beauty Shoppe is the only licensed Burnham shop in Lubbock.

The Lyric Theatre is continuing the program of good pictures which it has booked for the summer, by bringing to Lubbock Monday and Tuesday, "Streets of Shanghai." This picture, which has been released only a few months, is played by an all-star cast, headed by Pauline Starke. It is a thrilling story of old Shanghai, with its mysterious, menacing streets, its quaint, queer people, and its tragic mission schools. Pauline Starke plays the role of a brave young missionary, who is not afraid of the evils of China, and she is supported by Kenneth Harlan, as a hardy marine. Miss Starke has for several years been one of the most eminent stars of the screen, as a result of her sympathetic interpretations of many trying character parts. She is an artist, in every sense of the word, and "Streets of Shanghai," colorful and dramatic, gives her an opportunity to really display her talent.

Bathing suits of every size and color . . . tantalizing reds, cool greens, and subdued blacks and whites . . . you will find them all at Hawkins Dry Goods company. They are genuine all-wool Cadets, the kind that make swimming a pleasure! Hawkins has, also, the latest fashions in shoes, in two excellent lines—the Jacqueline and the Mirror of Fashion. I looked at one very striking pair, an advanced fall style. They are Jacqueline, high-heeled black patent, with beautiful genuine lizard vamps. Most all of the fall shoes, which are displayed by the Hawkins company, have the South American reptile, or lizard trim.

One day last week I was window-shopping with a friend of mine, who is to be married soon, and we had great fun planning her home. She is a person of rare taste, so I took her by the Rix Furniture company to show her a piece of furniture, that is displayed in their window, which I knew would appeal to her. It is a Colonial Solid Honduras mahogany Pier cabinet, with several shelves, a drawer, and, underneath, a large chest in which valuables may be locked. It is about six and one-half feet high and, thus, would lend height and dignity to a rather low living-room. The Honduras mahogany, of which it is made, is genuine mahogany of a rich color, and it has a Duco finish—a finish which will neither "check, crack, nor craze with age." It is really a masterpiece of Colonial craftsmanship. If you love the fine old styles of the South, you should have this Pier cabinet in your home.

This is undoubtedly the swimming season, but, when you "Tumble-N" remember that you are subjecting your complexion to a very severe test. You must prepare your skin for rough treatment. Dorothy Gray, the famous beauty specialist of Fifth Avenue, has devoted years of study toward making a preparation, the ingredients of which may be obtained only in Russia. For a shiny, overmoist skin, she has a Russian astringent lotion which whitens it and helps to make it taut, young, and fresh for many hours; then, for a dry skin, she has a Russian cleansing cream, which keeps it soft and pliable. There are no more excellent powder bases made than these which I have just mentioned. Besides, Dorothy Gray's Cherri Rouge, in blonde and brunette tints, is a cherry red liquid, which is also water-proof. You will find these preparations for sale at Bowden's Drug Store. Try them: they will help you to look your best when in bathing.

Did you know that the Hunt Grocery company has been in business right on Broadway for sixteen years? You will not wonder at the success which it has enjoyed if you will just go in, as I did, and look around at the unusual things which are offered for sale there. There is an endless variety of specialties in prepared fruits and condiments. For your fruit salad you may obtain green, red and natural color oranges, pineapples, and pears; honey-fruit cocoanut, in colors; kumquats; spiced whole peaches; and brandied cherries. There is, also, a compote—a combination of stuffed cucumber rings, Chinese kumquats, Italian chinetti limes, and cherries. Or you may choose spiced cantaloupe. Did you ever try any? It is delicious. So is the extra-fine Macedonian, a vegetable dish, and the spinach, both of which were packed in France.

The Blue Bonnett Shop has some stunning new hats in the fall French models. They are exquisite, both in color scheme and design. Some of the most clever sports styles are shown in small hand-made hats, with Angora trim, of grey and rose, orange and black. In the dress hats, there are three, in particular which I would like to describe. One is a close-fitting special horsehair weave, of a beautiful oriole green, which has about it a golden aura. A large velvet bow over one side is the only adornment. Another is a striking grey hand-tailored meline; and the last, is a charming model for matrons, of black horsehair braid, trimmed in sequins. The Blue Bonnett has, also, some wonderful evening and wedding hats.

In the City Drug Store the other day, I chanced upon the ideal talcum. It is sold only at Rexall Drug stores, and is quite different from any other powder. It is the finest grade talc imported from Italy and sold in heavy frosted glass containers. Cara Nome is one scent which you will love because it is not like any other that you have ever used. It is subtle, captivating. There are other scents, too, just as fragrant: Georgia Rose, Narcisse des Alps, and Shari. The Gentlemen's Talc, for after-shaving, is a very popular seller. Summer time is talcum time. You cannot get along without it, so why not choose the best?

On Monday only, at Mrs. Abney's shop in the Hotel Lubbock, you may obtain some exceptional values in hats. In order to make room for her mid-season shipment, she is sacrificing her $15 and $16 hats for $5—hats of such quality as the Debway, Belart, and Meadowbrook. You have only to see these hats to realise that it is a sacrifice. They are exquisitely fashioned of fabrics and of silky straws, in cool rummery shades. Sport hats, tailored hats, and dressy silks and satins . . . you will find any kind you want. Besides these, Mrs. Abney has some beautiful felts, which she has just received, in all colors, and in every individual style.

Someone with poetical tendencies has said, "In the spring, there is nothing more beautiful than cherry blossoms, pretty girls, and white gold rimless glasses." You will agree with the enthusiast, when you see the assortment of glasses which Dr. Millard F. Swart has in his rooms on the first floor of the Myrick building. He has them in every style—"a different shape for every face." Many people find that their appearance is really enhanced when they wear white gold rimless glasses, which have been chosen to suit the contour of the face. Perhaps you have some glasses already; if you have, you need another pair. Authorities agree that you should have one pair for general wear, and another for dress wear.

I went into Jackman's yesterday, looking for something new in sports wear, and I found it, just as I knew I would. They are quite the cleverest knicker suits I have ever seen. They are composed of trousers and jacket, in both long and short sleeves, the material being a light weight crash, which is not only cool, but serviceable. The colors, too, are delightful. They are not garish, neither are they drab. You may have a soft gray plaid, a dull blue, or a pleasing tan, suits with long-sleeved jackets with tiny blue stripes in it. The are $4.50, and those with short-sleeved jackets are $3.95. They are a worthwhile purchase.

Children's Part In Chautauqua Is To Begin Monday

Prizes Offered To Kiddies Who Win In Contests Set By Parade Leader; Plans Laid for Pageant.

The children's parade, which was to have been sponsored by the Chautauqua last Friday afternoon was postponed on account of weather conditions, and will be staged Monday morning at 9:00 o'clock.

All Lubbock children are invited to meet at the Chautauqua tent, on the corner of 13th Street and Avenue J, and participate in the parade. Several prizes will be given. One will be given to the child wearing the most comical costume; another, for the prettiest costume; and another for the best Chautauqua hooping costume. After the parade, there will be a ticket hunt.

Miss Nina Phelps, of Kansas City, will be supervisor of the Junior Chautauqua. The children are asked to meet at the tent from 9 to 12 o'clock every morning for a play and story hour. These children will present a pageant on July 6, the last afternoon of the Chautauqua program. No charge is made for membership in the Junior Chautauqua.

The program for Monday afternoon, at 2:45 o'clock, will be presented by Everett Kemp, literary reader and Miss Maurine Wallace, dramatic artist. Monday evening, at 8:00 o'clock, a selected cast of players will present "Tommy," a three-act comedy which has been notably successful in the East.

Of particular interest to music lovers is the Betty Booth Concert company, composed of Betty Booth, mezzo-soprano and pianist Hugo Brandt, Polish pianist, and Paul Clark, violinist, and director of the Paul Clark orchestra, which recently toured South America. Miss Booth, a native of Vienna, and a member of the imperial Vienna Opera company for two years, brought with her from Europe a great variety of beautiful and colorful national costumes which she will use in her concert work Tuesday, Miss Phelps states.

Dearest Marye

Sometimes I feel you are just a child, and I wish you would grow up. Other times you are much too old, and I wish you were not maturing mentally so quickly.

Naturally, when you married, I expected that you would, as we used to say, "settle." I supposed you would delight in housekeeping and that Alan would be the big consideration in your life, and that you would have children and delight to fuss over them, and that you would be protected and cherished the rest of your life.

As I look back, that was my ideal for myself, and I carried it over for you.

How did I know that you would resent protection, that you would hate housekeeping, that you do not want children, and that you feel that a job of some sort is the only salvation to protect you from boredom?

If you were to go into business with your friend, Jane, you would expect, I am sure, to work hard and to build up something solid. You wouldn't be satisfied just to play around with it. And that would mean much of your time, your thought and your energy would have to go into this new enterprise. I fail utterly to see why a business is so much more important than a home—or why you could not put the same interest into your home that you are willing to give to business.

As for your latest acquaintance, which you say starts on a highly scientific and commendable basis I take my old-fashioned stand—you are a foolish girl to play with fire as you do.

I wish you would come home for a visit. I would like to get you back to a less hectic, more wholesome type of life, and see if you could not get a saner perspective.

Your old room has been freshly painted and papered, and I have a lovely new rug for it. All your old furniture is there, besides a new chest of drawers, and it all urges you to return. Won't you consider it? Then we'll get straight on everything.

All my love,

MOM.

Speedy Justice Dealt Pair Now Awaiting Death

Mexicans Were Arrested for Series Of Attacks On High School Girls In San Antonio.

(By Associated Press)

SAN ANTONIO, June 30—Clemente Rodriguez and Esikuial Serbin, now in the death cell at Huntsville awaiting electrocution, were given a sample of the most rapid justice Bexar county courts have ever dispensed.

The men were arrested for a series of attacks on high school girls in San Antonio. Three such attacks occurred within a little more than a month. Three Mexicans were arrested and Rodriguez pleaded guilty, asking for mercy July 7, 1927. The jury gave him the death sentence. Serbin then pleaded guilty and was convicted and given the death penalty on July 9. On the night of July 11 the third prisoner Enrigue Mendoza pleaded guilty to robbery and was given a life sentence, which he is now serving.

The life sentence was agreed to in his case inasmuch as the evidence showed that he had been present, but did not show that he had participated in any of the attacks.

Efforts to obtain a new trial for the two sentenced to death lasted for more than a year, but they were finally sentenced here July 26 and the date of their execution set as August 21. The men were caught when Rodriguez was seen wearing a wrist watch taken from one of the victims. He asserted that Serbin had forced him to participate in the attack at the point of a gun. An appeal to Governor Moody for commutation of their sentences is being prepared.

WELL FLOW BOOSTED

BIG SPRING, June 30—Following a light shot, the Green Oil & Refining company well on the southwest quarter of section 127, block 29, W. & N. W. Clay ranch, increased its flow making 300 barrels through a bridge. The well is estimated to be good for 500 when the bridge is cleaned out. The well is also producing 3,000,000 cubic feet of gas.

DISCUSS PAVING

Big Spring Men Meet For Highway Program

BIG SPRING, June 30.—A highway meeting was held here on Thursday evening which was attended by thirty-five of Big Spring's representative business men. The paving of highway No. 9 was the principal subject discussed, but some time was given to the improvement of No. 1, already paved.
Highway No. 9, or Glacier to Gulf, has grown to be one of the most traveled highways in this part of the state, on an actual count made a few weeks ago a total of 1200 cars per day passed over this road.
A bond issue will probably be asked calling for the paving of this highway and the improvement of the lateral roads of the county.
A. K. Short of the Federal Land Bank of Houston and M. R. Bentley of the extension service of A. & M college were special guests for the occasion. The meeting was held at the "Flock Inn" one mile west of Big Spring on Highway No. One.

Third Party Movement Among Drys And Farmers Mentioned To Offset Smith Nomination By Democrats

Prohibition Party Is Leading Drive; Heflin May Be Asked For Aid In Dry Crusade

(By Associated Press)

HOUSTON, June 30—Representatives of the prohibition national party suggested organization of a "third party" movement among drys and farmers at a slimly attended conference here but none of the southern dry leaders active in the campaign for a prohibition plank in the democratic platform participated in the meeting or gave serious consideration to the talk.

Support of the Ku Klux Klan for the "third party" movement was believed likely by D. Harger, field secretary of the prohibition party, one of the speakers at the dry conference. Enlistment of Senator Heflin of Alabama, who has crusaded about the country against the nomination of Al Smith, also was believed probable by the "third party" men.

Leaders Are Democrats

But the southern prohibitionist champions were not there and they emphatically gave word today that they were democrats. Cone Johnson, of Texas, who was one of the most outspoken in the dry parleys preceding the convention and a bitter foe of Governor Smith declared: "I am a democrat. The democratic party is dry. It is what we want in the south. If a third party movement starts in the north and wants to join with us southern dry democrats that's all right, but we are democrats."

Harger announced that the prohibition national convention could be held in Chicago July 10 and he expressed hope for a coalition of farmers and drys into a third party at that time. Carl Vrooman of Illinois was one of those at a meeting today and Dr. Colvin chairman of the prohibition national committee.

At the same time, R. B. Creager republican national committeeman for Texas, was issuing a statement promising a vigorous campaign in this state for his party.

Betrayal By Leaders

"The Smith nomination," he said, "means a betrayal of the democratic party of the south by the politicians who have sold their principles in the hope of acquiring a mess of potage. Adoption of a dry platform delegation and the choice of the nation's outstanding wet to stand on that platform is farcial."

Alabama democracy will be loyal to the nominee, declared A. H. Carmichael, chairman of the delegation.

"We came here and fought for the best dry plank we could get and against the nomination of the New York governor, but now that Al Smith is the nominee he will carry our state because we are first of all loyal democrats."

Heflin Shocked, Grieved Says Action Mistake

TOWANDA, Pa., June 30 (AP)—When informed here that Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York, had been nominated for the presidency by the democrats at Houston, Senator J. Thomas Heflin, of Alabama, declared he was "shocked, grieved and dumbfounded".

"Smith's nomination is a mistake", the senator said. "He will, of course, be defeated in November."

Farm Plank Approved By Federation Head

CHICAGO, June 30 (AP)—Principles of agricultural relief embodied in the farm plank of the democratic platform were endorsed by Sam H. Thompson, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, who announced his organization would support the plank on which Al Smith will oppose Herbert Hoover for the presidency.

Arkansas To Honor Robinson As Nominee

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 30 (AP)—Arkansas will do honor to her first native son ever to be on the national ticket of a political party. When the "Joe T. Robinson special" train reaches Little Rock from Houston, where the democratic national convention named Arkansas' senior United States senator as Governor Alfred E. Smith's running mate in the presidential campaign, it will be greeted by a huge demonstration.

Invitations were sent broadcast over the state and a great crowd is expected to gather at union station to welcome the man who began life on an Arkansas farm, worked his way through college, became the democratic floor leader in the senate and now is his party's nominee for the vice presidency.

Citizens along the route of the train prepared to gather at their railroad stations and stage impromptu celebrations.

Cox Backs Smith As Democratic Nominee

DAYTON, Ohio, June 30 (AP)—Ex-Governor James M. Cox, presidential nominee of 1920, made the following statement:

"The democratic party has acted wisely in nominating Governor Smith. Since he, as the outstanding candidate, met all the requirements of character and capacity for high position, he would not have deserved the right to even mention the name of Jefferson if we had cowered before the same sort of bigotry that Jefferson so bitterly despised.

"Every ambitious American boy struggling against obstacles, every member of every class not shielded by the protection of wealth; every one who thrills at the spectacle of courage and candor contrasted with mental timidity, every citizen who yearns for vindication of a nation's honor from scandal and disgrace, will feel that after all there is a sense of justice and of self-preservation in a democracy.

"There has never been a whisper against Governor Smith's honesty, even in the virulence of five bitterly fought state campaigns."

Miss Mosher is holding a modern pipe beside it.

Its new high-compression engine—embodying the most advanced features of design—provides true fine-car smoothness, snap and speed. Its insulated chassis and silenced interior create true fine-car environment. Its modish Fisher bodies reveal a new expression of fine-car beauty; while such features as Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers and radiator shutters contribute the final touches of fine-car luxury.

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service

by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED

VIRGINIA BREWSTER is in love with an artist, NATHANIEL DAWN, but she is tricked into promising to marry FREDERICK DEAN in one year if she fails to earn $100,000 that he alleges her father cheated him out of. BREWSTER had lost his fortune before his death and VIRGINIA is left destitute.

She pawns some of her jewelry and OLIVER CUTTER promises to invest the money for her. She seeks work without success. She discovers that DEAN has bribed the agency not to help her. OLIVER gains her confidence and shows her attentions which NEIL resents, but she does not not like the familiarity with which his model, CHIRI, treats him.

VIRGINIA finally obtains a position she likes. Shortly after she is charged by CUTTER'S wife with trying to alienate his affections. She appeals to him to explain, and demands an accounting of her investments.

Then CUTTER confesses that he has not made a penny for her, but that he will give any amount to her if she will go away with him.

She denounces him and leaves his office. Her company offers to send her on a voyage as ship hostess. She goes to see NIEL but CHIRI'S presence in the studio spoils the evening.

The break between the lovers is widened when NEIL doubts her love after receiving a letter DEAN saying that she is angling for money. They both suffer in silence, and VIRGINIA sails before a reconciliation is effected. Her work and the hope of getting aid from one of her father's friends, O. D. LEIGH, in Haiti, helps her endure the heartache.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIII

Virginia pressed forward against the rail on the stern deck and peered from under a hand that shaded her eyes from the bright morning sun.

She was gazing at Moro Castle, glad to be seeing that gloomy relic of departed glory for the last time. It had fascinated her with its somber gray color and prisonlike atmosphere, that symbolized so perfectly her own bondage.

She had heard of the dungeons below the water line; she had listened to tales of horror and bravery about the old days of the Spanish reign; and she had come to think of herself as a prisoner in the shadow of that grim pile of stone.

Not until they sailed for Haiti would she feel otherwise, for not until then could she count off the miles, or knots as it were in this case, that separated her from the land where resided the man who might save her.

The colorful days of Havana that the passengers found so diverting and thrilling were only so many days of imprisonment to Virginia. She was held as helplessly against her wish to depart as though she were indeed incarcerated in a dungeon in Moro Castle.

It was slow torture, waiting amid lavish beauty and gaiety with pleasure-bent people who expected her always to be carefree and interested in their entertainment.

Their absorption of her did not extend to this early morning hour, however, and she took her farewell glance at the jewel-like city and famous old fortress undisturbed.

The first throb of the engines deep in the bowels of the ship had set her nerves to quivering with the excitement that attends an eagerly awaited moment.

She was dressed, hurrying to be on deck, when the welcome sound reached her ear. She struggled into her string colored linen dress, seized a sweater and flew up to experience the satisfaction of witnessing the steamer's departure from the scene of her impatient delay.

She was turning away from the rail having drunk in enough of satisfaction and sun glare, her mind on her obligation to the Blue Capella, when she was joined by a man she did not recognize as a passenger.

He was elderly and distinguished looking, with a thin tropic browned face.

"May I introduce myself?" he said in a piet, pleasant voice. "Just came aboard this morning. Name is Fiance—John Harvey. I was told you were the hostess and I presumed to believe I might speak to you."

Virginia smiled at him. "Why, of course," she returned politely. "The Agenia is just like a country house, you know. If you wish I'll present you to the other guests, but you're at liberty to count the roof as an introduction, you know."

"I think I'd prefer to meet them by degrees," Fiance assured her. "I'm not exactly a member of the cruise, Miss Brewster, so you aren't under compulsion to welcome me. Mr. Welkins kindly arranged to give me passage from Cuba to Haiti."

Virginia interrupted him with an eager little cry. "Haiti! Oh, are you are acquainted there?"

"Port au Prince has been my home for several years," Fiance replied, with a look of surprise for her inquiry.

Virginia's face was aglow. "Perhaps you know Mr. Leigh," she said quickly. "Oddly he is called by his friends."

"Old Oddly Leigh! We all know him by name down here in the islands, Miss Brewster, but I'm sorry to say I'm not personally acquainted with him. Matter of fact, no one has seen much of him lately. He rarely leaves his plantation and I've heard—"

He paused and glanced anxiously at Virginia. "By the way, is he a friend of yours?" he asked, trying to sound casual.

Virginia shook her head. "No," she said, "but my father knew him many years ago in India. It is my greatest wish to meet him on this trip and I thought, when you said you lived in Haiti, that you might introduce us."

"I'd be only too happy, but you will not need an introduction. Oddly will welcome the daughter of an old friend. I can vouch for that on his reputation. Only . . . well, since it will not shock you as it would if you knew him, I must prepare you to find him greatly changed from the man your father knew. The poor fellow has had his troubles."

Virginia's heart sank like a plummet. "Oh," she cried in consternation; "what has happened to him? I met a friend in New York who had heard bad news about him, but I didn't know then that it was the same man—the man who saved my father's life, I mean."

Mr. Fiance's lips set in a tight line. "It is hardly a subject you would care to discuss, Miss Brewster, I judge."

Virginia remained quiet for a moment. Then: "But . . . don't you see? If there is anything I ought to know it because I'm going down there principally to see him. It would be much easier, I think, if I knew what to expect."

"Yes, I believe it would," he agreed after a second thought. "Did you ever hear of Oddly's wife?" he added abruptly.

"His wife!" Virginia repeated. "Why, I don't remember that I ever did. I'm sure father never mentioned her in his diary or when he spoke of Mr. Leigh."

"Probably not. Most likely he never heard of her. No one had, I guess, until she suddenly appeared down here in the West Indies and dragged old Oddly's name through all the slimy bashwash of the islands. Then the story came out. She'd driven him from the states a few months after their marriage, and such was her hate of him because she lost him that she would not divorce him and marry the other man.

"Oddly couldn't do that because he didn't believe in divorces. So he took to roving, thinking, she'd free herself. But she didn't. And when she came to Haiti she was still Mrs. O. D. D. Leigh and all the world could know for all she cared.

"It did to Leigh what the sugar trust hadn't been ableto do. It broke him. You'll find him only the remnants of a man, I'm afraid, Miss Brewster."

"What became of . . his wife?"

"She went out in the gutter screaming in agony at a madman who didn't know how to handle a knife. . ."

He broke off sharply, suddenly aware of the effect of his words upon Virgina who was leaning against the rail, white faced and trembling.

"I'm sorry," he hastened to add. "Beastly of me, but I was thinking of the finest man in the world and what a woman did to him."

Virginia did not answer immediately. Finally she thanked him for telling her what he had and left him, to flee to her stateroom and try to compose herself to carry on her duties.

"Touch of the tropics?" someone asked her at the breakfast table, regarding her untouched plate.

"I suppose so," she answered.

"After Cuba everyone should take a good dose of salts," another advised placidly. "It isn't safe not to. Everybody eats too much there. Never had better fish in my life."

The remark started a general recounting of the days just past and Virginia slipped out of the conversation to commune with her own thoughts. They were not pleasant company but she could not get away from them. Besides, the situation in which she now found herself must be faced.

She had come upon a wild goose chase, it appeared. Still, on after thought, she realized that no one had said that Leigh had been impoverished by his wife's conduct. Stacy had merely spoken of "bad news," and surely the scandal and heartbreak would account for that.

Fiance, too, had mentioned only that her coming had "broken" her husband. That did not necessarily mean that money losses were implied. A man could be more terribly broken in spirit. He had specifically said "what the sugar trust had not been able to do."

Her heart ached for Oddly Leigh but she was glad of a slim thread of hope for her own future. Such a man as Leigh would do all that lay in his power to release her from the hold of anyone who held her father's honor at stake, Virginia knew.

She need not appeal to him for her own sake alone once he knew her story. For this Virginia breathed a prayer of thankfulness. She was chary about approaching anyone on her own behalf entirely. Her experience with Oliver Cutter had warned her of that danger.

But here was one person whom the whole world seemed to trust. A man who had known her father. Virginia felt she could pour out her heart to him in the sure knowledge that he would be as certain of Richard Brewster's innocence as she herself was.

But the uncertainty of his ability to help her now hung over the rest of the voyage to Haiti like a heavy black cloud. Had it been necessary she could have gone to Fiance and asked him directly if he knew anything of Oddly Leigh's financial affairs. But it would seem like prying to do so and she knew that she might be misunderstood unless she explained her reason for wishing to know, and she did not care to take Fiance into her confidence.

Virginia preferred to endure the suspense, knowing that it could not be for long now.

She got definite directions for reaching the Leigh plantation from Fiance, however, and then turned desperately to the task of entertaining the Agenia's passengers until the day should come when she would return to the ship with a heart full of thanksgiving or only a bitter, hopeless despair.

POWER FOR LIVING IS PROBLEM OF PRESENT-DAY PATRIOTISM

Men who gather statistics say that in the United States there are 285,000 young men of college age in prison, which is thirty-five thousand more than the number in college.

That startling fact brings the thoughtful person up with a round turn. It starts sober musings concerning the state of society. That more than a quarter of a million blighted young men should thus be not only personal failures, but also a burden and a menace to their fellows, is ominous; but worse yet is the revelation that something is fundamentally wrong with the common life of our time that it should produce such a tragic harvest. This disturbing condition may be approached from many angles. It is an indictment of homes, of schools, of politics and of churches. And when we contemplate the "big" criminals, the rich and powerful, who are out of jail but should be in, our minds become clouded with gloom. We may add further the grim fact that the so-called "leaders" of public life are apparently not concerning themseves with these fundamental moral issues, but are "playing politics" for place and privilege and power. Crime concerns them chiefly because of its predatory effect upon property and life; and not as a sign of a state of mind among a multitude of men and women, mostly young, for whom society is responsible. Is not the conclusion clear that the issue above all other issues in our time is how to help people to live good lives instead of bad? Should not the public concern be, first of all, how to purify and enlarge and sweeten the springs of general conduct? No economic or political question even approaches in importance this one of the preservation and development of the law-abiding, right-regarding, self-respecting type of character. Our day's much-discussed "moral slump" outranks as a public issue even world peace.

It is more important that mankind be good than that it be smart or rich. Ours is the most learned era in the long history of the human race—tho not sure that it is the wisest. We have acquired more new facts in the past fifty years than mankind ever learned before in a thousand years. Civilization's mastery of nature is marvelous. The secrets of the earth, of the sea, and of the air are spread in the daily newspaper. Man may talk and see across continents and oceans. He may ride above the clouds or beneath the waves. He has devised machines passing the dreams of the ancients. Yet he is not wise enough to be good. He may scarcely be trusted with the use of his own creations.

A great purpose, a great passion, a great love, a great loyalty, a great responsibility, a great experience do more to develop mind and character than a lifetime of books. Most of the men who have led the larger human movements have been devoid of what is technically called "education." Two of the wisest statesmen ever interviewed—Stambolisky, of Bulgaria, and Ibn Saood, of Arabia—had no special school advantages.

To plunge into the midst of the application of all of the foregoing, Jesus has been a greater educational force in the world than any university. Association with Him made leaders and builders, as well as saints, out of His commonplace apostles. Himself without the privileges of a higher education, Jesus was the world's wisest teacher. And His life was greater than His learning. What He was and did surpassed all that He said. To keep company with Christ was, and is, the highest education. As we review the life of the Lord, this truth stands out like a lone mountain peak: Jesus made men wise with a wisdom that was expressed in life. Good conduct and great characters were the output of His school. It is no mere fancy to say that Jesus was a university where in all comers learned the advanced lessons of life. The wisdom that He imparted expressed itself in service and in fellowship. His graduates constituted a "good society" that purified and beautified all of the life it touched. Many secular historians have pointed out that only Christianity preserved the decadent Roman empire from complete moral collapse. Apparently, we have missed the message of the past in our pursuit of education. Mere book-learning never made a people pure and powerful and happy. As it was in the Graeco-Roman era, when the most highly educated classes were the most rotten morally, so it is today, in certain groups and aspects of our civilization. The moral decadence which marks our literature has come down from the top and not up from the bottom. The filthiest forms of "humor" are to be found in the undergraduate publications of our hgher institutions of learning. The conspicuous public corruptionists have been mostly men with college degrees.

This big truth that cleverness cannot save society, turns our faces toward a still greater truth, which is that Jesus taught and practiced wisdom plus power.

In other and more old fashioned words, Jesus set about saving the world. He struck at the root of life's evils, which is sin; which, in turn, is lack of obedience to and harmony with the will of God. More than it needs education this bewildered and blundering world of ours needs salvation. It can only get right with itself by getting right with God. All the diversified curricula of all the schools can do less for an individual, and for society as a whole, than the new awareness of God which Jesus taught. He planted in human hearts the vast dynamic of love and of aspiration after holiness. He who quests for God will not miss real wisdom as a by-product.

There is not a single problem of modern life that may not be solved by injecting Jesus into it. The industrial problem, the social problem, the crime problem, the race problem, the educational problem, the peace problem, the international problem—every one of these will find a solution when it finds the Savior. For He came to bring power for a peace that is both inner, spiritual peace in the single heart, and peace in all the relationships of man with man. The Saviourhood of Christ is more comprehensive than even His friends have realized.

TEXT BOOKS

It has been charged and has not been denied, that the publicity efforts of the representatives of public utilities companies, has been directed toward the provisions of suitable text books for schools and colleges. The latest information on this point is to the effect that over one-third of the schools in the state of Texas have been supplied with utility text books, of companies operating in the Lone Star state.

This country tries to protect its public schools against the proselyting activities of representatives of religious denominations. It attempts to prevent the infiltration of subversive and treasonable political doctrines, and in most communities efforts are made to eliminate from textbooks that flavor of special pleading that is so inimical to independent thinking and sound scholarship. Is it not, therefore, destructive of sound educational ideals to permit the representatives of special interests of any sort for whatever purpose to supply the materials for teaching? Instruction ought to be as free as it, humanly speaking, can be made from all taint of propaganda.

Public utility interests contend with justice that in many instances the textbooks dealing with regulation of their companies contain blatant propaganda for government ownership and control. Where this is the case there ought to be a way to correct the situation, but it does not lie in resort to similar methods by interested advocates of private management and control. Perhaps the day will come when textbooks dealing with government in its relation to public utilities can be subjected to the impartial scrutiny of committees that adequately represent all shades of opinion. The question is one, however, that does not concern the public utility interests primarily.

Without intending it, the latter have launched an attack upon the educational systems of the country that holds a grave danger for the future. The student body may not be harmed and the community may in a material way be the gainer by the inculcation of conservative ideas about the policies to be pursued in the regulation of our public service corporations. The method thus used, however, is one likely to recoil upon the heads of its advocates. In any case, it is an experiment fraught with danger to the independence of our schools and universities.

Ability to swim is not a sure protection against drownng, but it reduces the danger; and only those who can swim have any chance in trying to save the lives of persons who cannot. The number of drownings in smaller communities emphasizes the fact that every generation must be taught how to swim; and in this latitude a public pool in the smallest town is worth all it costs—not only for comfort and pleasure, but from the viewpoint of economics. Summer vacation time is not altogether wisely spent unless every youngster be given an opportunity to learn swimming and make the most of that opportunity.

There is a plant called the Texas Jackbean, from which a beverage is being made and was served at a banquet recently, and none of the 500 present could tell it from coffee. However we do not know that this indicates that it is much kin to coffee, just because it resembles what is sometimes served as coffee at banquets.

The Big Roundup

SO THINK WE

We think that a lot of work might be done by a lot of people on a lot of vacant lots in lots of places in Lubbock.

—o—

We think that if all the reports from the Hobbs well be true that country must be pretty oily by this time.

—o—

We think that the Democratic convention at Houston fooled some people, but not very many. Most of us believed that Al would be nominated, but many people believe till yet that the Democrats will not win in the November election.

—o—

We think that after all the high winds and hot weather this section of the country has better prospects for a fine crop of cotton and feed stuff than most any other section of the state.

—o—

We think that the Lubbock high school band is doing a mighty good piece of publicity work for Lubbock. People are hearing about Lubbock in a way that is new to most of publicity organizations, and because it is different is a good reason for believing that it will have an effect that no other way would bring about as favorable comment.

—o—

We think that a zoning system in Lubbock would be very appropriate, and it is hoped that some plan may be worked out whereby something can be accomplished along this line.

—o—

We think it is time that Lubbock county get busy on her good roads program, so that we shall not be the last county in the state to have paved roads.

—o—

We think that Texas has been guilty of some very disgraceful things, but she retained her dignity in the recent convention, by casting her vote for Jesse Jones for president till the last vote was taken.

"The cat was making an awful noise last night."

"Yes, ever since she ate the canary she thinks she can sing."—Progressive Grocer.

PRSSS COMMENT

WRITERS GET OFF

It seems a rather fortunate thing that events occasionally take place in the South and West which attract northern writers so they can remind the people that they are Southerners or Westerners, as the case may be. Otherwise, we people here in Texas might forget and come to think that we're ordinary Americans. When we read some of the products of northern writers we see phrases and colloquialisms which we have not heard for years except perhaps from negroes, and we read of big broad brimmed hats chaps, boots and spurs, all of which we have not seen except in wild west shows in ages. Then we are told that all this is common place in Texas.

A few months ago a trial at Austin attracted a number of writers from the North and East. They apparently had certain ideas about Texas which they would not allow outward appearances to dispel. News stories sent out by these writers featured the western attire of the spectators in the court room, played up the broad sombreros, the colorful handkerchiffs worn about the necks of booted and spurred cowboys. Anyone who has ever passed through Austin knows that all this descriptive matter was pure bunk, but it was printed in hundreds of newspapers throughout the land, being carried even in many Texas newspapers.

Now the Democratic convention at Houston has brought other enterprising journalists whose ideas of the West and South apparently came from story books. One noted New York writer whose ability has brought him international recognition, using the term "Suh" in quotation marks at every opportunity in a copyrighted story, remarked on the colloquialisms heard among the women at Houston, declaring that they have preserved the Southern accent more than the men. "Sho nuff," "I reckon," "I'll declahe," and 'you all' were some of the phrases quoted as having been heard among a number of women. That perhaps makes interesting reading in Eastern papers, but it is likely to cause the Texas reader to believe that the writer either was manufacturing his story [illegible] been associating [illegible] Houstons 'colored pa[illegible].

Of course we have no cause to be ashamed of any Southern drawl that we may have, and perhaps but few objections will be offered when writers describe Texas as the "untamed West," but such writers can not expect to retain a high respect for their accuracy among Texas readers when they do this.—Vernon Record.

It is well that the Eastern writers are brought face to face with the people of the South occasionally, for it in most every instance gives them a better idea of the conditions that exist, and the nature of the people of this part of the United States.

The recent convention has given more people of the United States a real insight to the South than most anything else. It brought people from every state here, and they got first hand information of the ideas and issuees that obtain the South.

YOUR HEALTH

MIND PLAYS BIG PART IN ONE'S STATE OF HEALTH

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

It is a common view that health is merely freedom from disease; actually, however, the mere fact that a person is not sick in bed or is not suffering with serious and disturbing symptoms does not mean that he is healthful.

True health consists of a physical state in which one may have the greatest possible enjoyment of life. The person who is not aware in any way of disturbances or dissatisfactions in his body is not always healthful.

Not only should he be unaware of the body processes, but he should have a realization of force, driving power and impetus which will give him confidence in himself.

In order to have true health the mind must also function accurately, rapidly and satisfactorily. Such a mind is not possible in the presence of worry.

The experience of many years indicates that the person whose life is well regulated, who eats the right food, wears proper clothing, lives in suitable surroundings, sleeps enough and exercises enough, does not become excited or angry, is living a healthful existence.

Outdoor air, sunshine and exercise seem to induce in the human being that feeling of satisfaction with his physical munctions which is conducive to wholesome activity.

Good health habits are difficult to form late in life, particularly when much of the time may be spent in correcting bad habits rather than in building good ones. It is therefore desirable that the inculcation of health habits be begun in the earliest period possible, and that they be well established by the time the child has passed three years of age.

A well managed child sleeps, eats, plays, washes and does everything else in its life with a regularity that is almost clocklike.

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that an expert has figured out that figures show that the cost of city government has increased. We do not know that it takes an expert to find that, but even if it does we believe that one could rightfully say that it is more blessed to be an expert than a tax payer.

—o—

It is reported that Hoover thinks that the younger generation is a fine set of fellows. We presume that the twenty-one years of age and better, are especially interesting to him.

—o—

It is reported that a chairman's political affiliations are never learned until the inquest. It's too bad that China is not the only nation where this is true.

—o—

It is reported that Lubbock is having hot weather this year. What more could we expect with so much heated argument in Houston. We will all be glad when that convention is over. It started out hot and wound up dry.

—o—

It is reported that a few people object to the people who spray their lawns, letting the water get on the sidewalk. It is a funny thing what a little thing some people can complain about.

—o—

It is reported that the South Plains fair board is planning bigger and better things for the fair in 1928. We hope they will be able to make all the improvements possible, and we hope the fair will become so big in every other way that the carnival will not be the main attraction.

—o—

It is reported that the Lubbock band is having a great time and all of Lubbock is glad that they were able to make this trip. The High School band in Lubbock is one of the great features and we are always glad to know of their successes.

It is reported that San Antonio is widening 61 of the streets in that city. Lubbock had wide streets and allowed them to be cut down for paving purposes, and now they see the mistake. It is to be hoped that no other streets will be cut down as narrow as Main.

Our Sunday Morning Sermon

A PROBLEM OF TRUST
By MRS. MALTBY

Staff Captain Salvation Army

"Why is light given to a man whose way is hid, and whom God hath hedged in?"—Job 3:23.

When we speak or think of Job, we naturally think of one whom God allowed to be tested to the very utmost, but who, thank God, eventually came through the test as refined gold.

Job was not a fictitious person; he was a real living man. The prophet Ezekiel speaks of him, grouping his name along with Noah and Daniel. (See Ezek. 14:14). Also, the Apostle James, when illustrating the virtue of patience, speaks of Job. (James 5:11).

Patient Job

The story of how Job was stripped of his wealth, children and health, and how his wife urged him to curse God and die, is told in the book of Job. Then it seemed as he talked with the three comforters who came to his side, that darkness and perplexity only increased about him.

At the climax of this experience, God appeared to Job with still further revelations of His majesty, and as the smitten man measured himself with the holiness of God he was brought to the realization of his need of a Mediator or Daysman—one who should plead His cause with the great Judge. Yet, he realized he was not worthy to plead for himself. Amidst all the bewildering exchange of conversation we have the wonderful words of prophetic meaning, "I know that my Redeemer liveth." (Job 19:25). Finally, when Job had come to the end of himself, stripped of everything, God in wondrous power and blessing crowned all the remainder of his life with loving kindness.

One proof of the inspiration and authority of the Bible is the constant proof to us individually that it touches all the vital needs of our spiritual life today, even as it did of saints in the ages gone by.

Better on Before

God deals with the souls of men, leading them on to better knowledge of Himself. The young convert, rejoicing in the new found joy of sins forgiven, knows Christ as Savior, Redeemer and Friend and is oftentimes shielded from the more severe testings of faith in God. Conversion is only the beginning of the Christian life; God leads on to greater experiences. The blessing of full salvation leads on to a still better knowledge of God. Then there is the life of faith, the daily working out of these spiritual blessings in the practical every day life.

There is the deeper knowledge of God which comes only in the triumph of the soul over the powers of darkness. There are times when as intimated in the words of our text, the way may be had, and it would appear we are hedged in on every side. This is the time for faith to say, "I know that my Redeemer liveth." Sooner or later such times come in the experience of all. But faith in God always brings triumph.

Hudson Taylor, the famous missionary, once said, "God will sometimes allow Satan to build a hedge about us, fence us in and hinder our movements, but he cannot roof us in and prevent our looking up." So, dear Shut-in comrades, whatever your circumstances may be, you can look up, for Jesus lives. He says, "Fear not; I am the first and the last; I am He that liveth and was dead; and, behold, I am alive forevermore." (Rev. 1:18).

And because He lives, He will give us needful strength so that we shall be able to say, "Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through Him that loved us." (Romans 8:37).

"The time will come," shouted the speaker, "when women will get men's wages."

"Yes," said a little man in the corner, "Next Saturday night."—Good Hardware.

"Why is it that men don't come to church?" asked the parson.

"Probably because their wives refuse to let them sleep peacefully through the services and dig them in the ribs every time they get comfortable," replied the frank brother.

Early Days On The South Plains

BY J. J. DILLARD

Tribute should be paid to Frank Emerson Wheelock, pioneer, empire builder, and the "Father of Lubbock."

Wheelock built the first hotel in Lubbock county, in his town north of the canyon. After the promise he let the contract to some parties from Colorado, Texas, to move it to the new city of Lubbock to-be. After they worked about a week trying to move it on rollers they gave up the job. Wheelock tore it down and rebuilt it where it now stands. In the early days it was known as the Nicolett, but now goes by the name of Broadway hotel located at Broadway and Avenue H.

First Gin Is Built

In the fall of 1904, F. E. Wheelock and the incorporators of the Lubbock Mercantile company, the stockholders being composed of W. A. Carlisle, K. and Geo. W. Carter, together with W. O. Nairn and H. V. Edsall built the first cottoon gin at Lubbock (there being none other on the Plains.

The plant consisted of two 70-saw Murray gin stands, and the engine was a 60 horsepower double opposed cylinder type.

Wheelock superintended the construction of the gin house and the installation of the engine, and operated it for three seasons after its completion. The number of bales ginned for the season of 1904 was 389. When the engine arrived at Canyon City, 115 miles north of Lubbock, Wheelock approached a number of freighters, soliciting them to enter into contract to deliver the ponderous engine to Lubbock. All of them refusing, saying the job was too big at any price. Wheelock exhausted his list of team contractors without a contract.

Wheelock being one of those men who never say fail, decided to go and get the engine himself. He secured two large three and one-half inch wagons and three large teams, the best in Lubbock county. One team of draft horses of his own that weighed more than 3,000 pounds a large team of mules from Geo. C. Wolfforth and another 3,000-pound team of Percheron horses from Geo. M. Boles and left for Canyon. Arriving at Canyon he stopped at the lumber yard and built a large frame on the two wagons, out of heavy timber, and drove to the car in which the engine was located and soon had it on rollers and firmly anchored with log chains in a manner similar to the practice in logging camps years ago. The engine weighed 16,000 pounds. He drove the team with its load to Lubbock in five days.

Worked on Railroads

Wheelock gave much of his time to the development of Lubbock county. He made many visits to Chicago and other places to induce railroads to build to Lubbock, spending his own money for expenses.

When the Santa Fe was finally induced to build into Lubbock he donated $3,000 in cash, gave 20 lots and the right of way through two sections of land, and moved his residence, barn and other out houses at his own expense and gave the site and one year of his time to the Santa Fe.

When Lubbock was incorporated he was elected as its first mayor. He served six years at a salary of one dollar per year. The first unit of the water and sewer system was installed during his first term of office. He personally superintended the installation of its public utilities and at all times seeing that the public got value received for money expended.

When the Lubbock Independent School District was created he was elected as one of its trustees and continued to serve for twelve years.

When Ed Kennedy was promoting the building of the Lubbock, Altus and Roswell railroad, Wheelock was appointed at a mass meeting of the citizens of Lubbock as financial agent and was authorized to sign and approve all orders for money on construction work. He did this work so satisfactorily that he was honored later by his election as mayor.

Wheelock for a number of years farmed four miles east of Lubbock. He purchased the first sulky plow and the first row binder on the Plains. He purchased the second automobile in the county and with his brother operated the first automobile bus line on the Plains, operating it on schedule time from Lubbock to Canyon via. Plainview and operating at one time as many as five cars each way per day. This line was afterwards sold to R. C. Burns, now county tax assessor of Lubbock county.

First to Marry Here

Frank Wheelock and Sylva B. Hunt were the first couple married in Lubbock county, their marriage license being number one, and was issued by Geo. C. Wolfforth, the first county clerk of Lubbock county.

Wheelock consulted Joe E. Bos-

TWO VIEWS OF OUR DINING ROOM

At evening time our dining room
With flowers of beauty seem to bloom.
I enter it and think how fair
Is every red-embroidered chair!
How brightly do the goblets shine!
How white the linen, and how fine!
And in that most delightful mood
I glory in the sight of food.
For when we've said our simple grace
There gleams a smile on every face.

And now the food is carried in!
The maid is greeted by a din
Of welcome from the children small
Which grownups cannot check at all.
Here is a scene, I say, right then
To stir the souls of doubting men
We think all joy has left the earth
Here is the very peak of mirth!
When hunger finds the dining room
Delight rifts every cloud of gloom.

But now the evening meal is done,
The room seems bleak to every one.
The table strangely seems to be
A ghastly thing from which we'd flee.
The goblets have a sickly glare
And dull appears the table-ware.
The beauty of the room has paled
The lure and charm of food has failed.
Stuffed full in there I cannot stay,
"Come! Let's get out of here," I say.

Increase Of Installment Buying Proves Sound Basis of Plan; Is Seen As Underlying Factor In Nation's Rise

More Than Half of Gigantic Total of 25,000,000 Cars Attained Through Use Of Said Plan

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 30.—Were it not for the economically sound basis attained by instalment buying of automobiles and the increase, year by year, in the number of purchases on the partial payment plan, the United States might boast of scarcely more than half of its present gigantic total of 25,000,000 motor cars.

In fact the system of instalment buying, although condemned by a few as an unhealthy economic condition, is now generally regarded as one of the underlying factors in the unprecedented prosperity of America, it is pointed out by H. H. Brooks, general sales director of the Marmon Motor Car company. Millions of sales of automobiles on payments certainly have played no small part i nthe growth of motor car manufacture to first place in the industrial category, Mr. Brooks added.

Credit Is Essence of Business

"In purchasing a car on deferred payment," he continued, "the American citizens merely is taking advantage of the same credit privileges as are enjoyed by the largest industries and business houses. Credit, of course, is the very essence of business, and there is no reason why the opportunity to exercise this fundamental institution should not be extended to the individual automobile buyer. By simply dividing his unpaid indebtedness into a certain number of equal parts, the purchaser is enable to distribute the burden of the cost in proportion to the receipt of his income—hence the term instalment buying.

"Purchasing of motor cars on the time payment plan was instituted some ten years ago and has increased by leaps and bounds each year. Now, it is estimated that more than 60 per cent of the total automobile buyers make their purchases on the instalment plan and contrary to the belief of some, approximately one-third of the high-priced cars are sold by this system. In the medium-price field, the percentage of installment sales amounts to between 55 and 60 per cent of the total.

Luxury of Age, Necessity of Next

"Students of economics and social life agree that the luxury of one age becomes the necessity of the next. The automobile decidedly has become a necessity and it is evident that the average American has learned to set aside a specified portion of his sincome for the purchase and operation of his motor car the same as for food, clothing and other essentials.

"It would be difficult to overestimate the favorable effects of quantity buying, made possible by the instalment privilege, on the automobile industry. Increased purchasing power has resulted in increased and stabilized production. Manufacturers have been able to offer greater values each year because they have been enabled to buy material in larger volume, to plan ahead and to reduce the cost of research and experimentation.

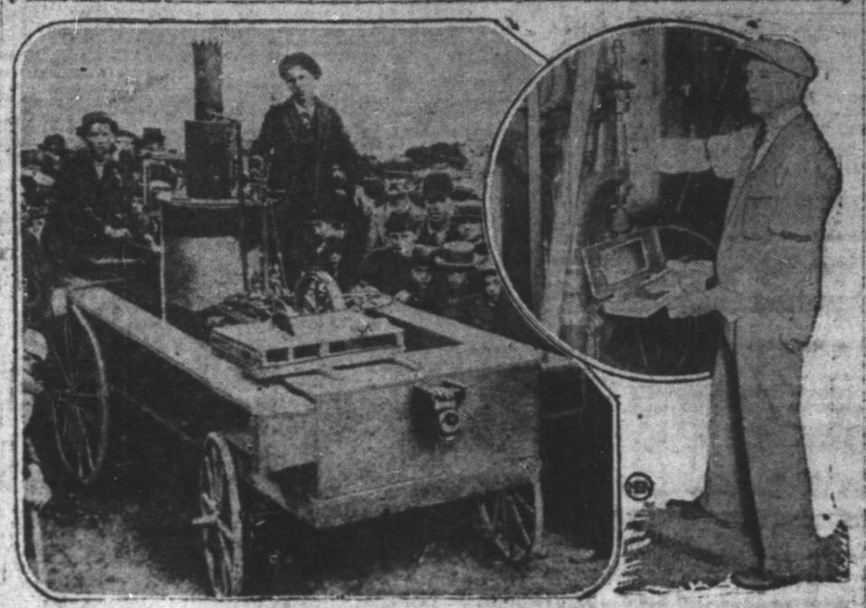
"Undoubtedly, there would be no motor industry as we know it today if it were not for the millions of dollars of individual credit that has been made available through the instalment plan."

ACCIDENTS LESS

Slaton Division Is First In Santa Fe's Rating

SLATON, June 30.—Reducing accidents 30 per cent has placed the safety council of the Slaton division of the Santa Fe railway, which includes hundreds of men, in first place as to safety rating on the Santa Fe system, and seventh place is held in the national rating for all railway safety organizations. This was announced here at a meeting of the railroad men, 125 attending. A. R. Tillman, safety supervisor, of Albuquerque, N. M., made the announcement. J. C. Barton, Slaton division superintendent, presided at the meeting.

Builder Of First Auto—A Coal Burner—Recounts Experiences



To the hum of machines in his shop in Spring field, O., H. E. Owen, shown at right, dreams of the "first auto"—a coal-burning steamer—he built in 1887. Photo of it is shown at left.

SPRINGFIELD, O., June 30.—In his little garagelike shop here, to the tune of his motor and lathe, H. W. Owens dreams of a glory that might have been his.

It is a dream of the lost possibility of being the first automobile pioneer and inventor in the United States. In fact, he is the first, Owen insists, although little credit, if any, is given him in official automotive circles.

Digging back into the recesses of his memory, Harry Owen, now gray haired and 46, recalls the day when at the age of 14 he caused a stir in his village by appearing on the streets with a smoke-belching, snorting contraption that moved without horse or man power.

It was in the spring of 1886, in Richwood, Ohio, that Harry Owen got his ideas from the locomotives that passed by the town. He locked himself in his room and drew his plans for his motor.

Builds Motor From Scraps

Without funds and denied aid by his father, a surgeon for the Erie railroad, the boy was forced to do all the work himself.

He raised $12.50 from the sale of old rags, copper and junk. With $2.50 of this he bought a crucible, which he used to melt old brass given him by friendly employees of the railroad.

Fools the Marshal

The village marshal was puzzled. He could not stop the machine from operating, as there were no laws to cover this emergency, so upon the pretext that the 150 pounds pressure registering on the steam gauge was dangerous, he ordered the boy to reduce it.

The reducing was accomplished by changing the position of the needle to read "50 pounds" instead of "150 pounds," and the marshal was satisfied, "owing that 50 pounds of steam wasn't going to hurt anybody."

In the fall Harry stored his machine in his father's barn, where a fire reduced it to ashes and twisted metal.

During the next few years the lad was kept busy making "steam wagons" for men over Ohio. They were much improved over his first attempt.

Now Owen works in his little shop in Springfield, inventing things for the cars for which others receive credit because of protective patents. Altogether, he has made and sold 27 patents on parts and accessories.

He holds no ill feeling toward those others, but says:

"Well, all I made mine for was to have a good time, and I did."

Frigidaire Very Popular Machine

Sales Demand Delivery In Carload Lots, With One Car Enroute Here To Be Unloaded This Week

Showing an ever-increasing popularity, as reflected in a steady rise in sales, Frigidaires are now being received at the South Plains distribution point here in carload lots, Davis Bros., distributors said Saturday, in announcing that a carload is now in transit to this city. The shipment is to be unloaded some time the coming week, it was said.

Hundreds of homes in this part of the state are now equipped with this convenience, and others are demanding installation almost as fast as machines arrive, Mr. Davis said. A wide distribution system allows the firm to reach even the remotest points.

Five main points are held by Mr. Davis as the cause of such popularity the machines hold. These are economy, practicability, carefree, powerful and beautiful.

Imposing List Of Advancements Are Found In New Nash

Twin-Ignition, High Compression engines, Custom Finish Salon Type Bodies Feature Car

Twin-ignition, high compression engine, and custom finished, Salon type bodies led an imposing list of advancements new to the American automobile industry when The Nash Motors company formally introduced its exclusive "400" series of cars to the motoring public. The cars are now on display at the Ragland Motor company, local Nash dealers.

This impresive presentation of sixteen entirely new models, engineered to a degree of operating efficiency and riding comfort never before attained in the same price class, is the answer of C. W. Nash to a universal demand for luxurious motor transportation at moderate cost. It is also a fulfillment of personal engineering ambitions that have extended over thirty-six years of sound, successful manufacturing in the vehicle field.

"400" Series Is Nash Ideal

"It has been the dominating ambition of my whole manufacturing experience," he said in ocmmenting on his company's crowning achievement, "to develop a line of cars of moderate price which would have everything in the way of appearanc, performance, comfort and quality that the country's costliest cars offer. This ideal has been completely realized, I believe, in the new "00" series. More than $2,500,000 has been invested in dies and machinery alone to enable us to build this entirely new type of motor car. Nothing I might say could add emphasis to this; it has been the ambition of my career to build such a car as the '400'."

Three complete groups of cars, equipped with the new motors of revolutionary but proved principles, enclosed bodies that set new high standards in coach building, and with a dozen separate but perfectly co-ordinated advancements in design and equipment, are included in this Nash offering to a fination of experienced and appreciative automobile users.

All Models Fully Equipped

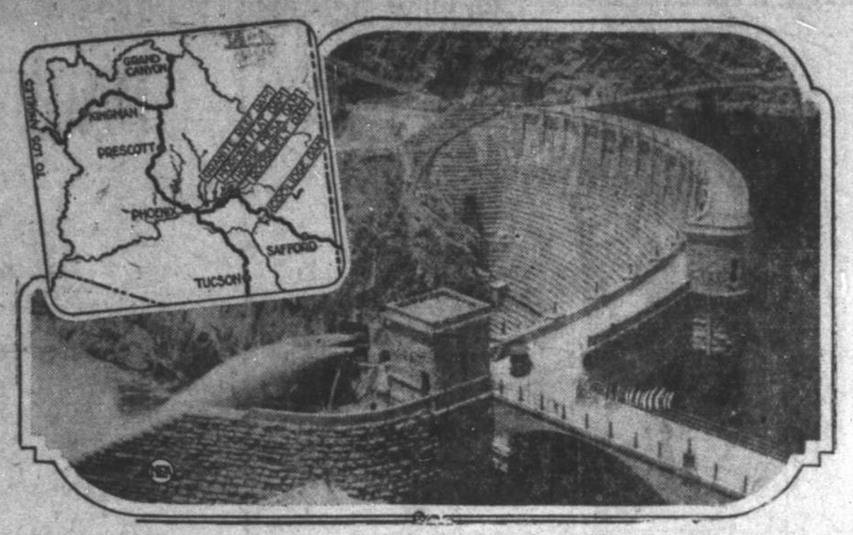
All models are equipped with full hydraulic shock absorbers, front and rear—Houdaille on the Advanced Six and Lovejoy ond the Special and Standard Six. Bijur centralized lubricating system, on the Advanced Six models, sends automatically metered oil changes to 21 chassis points at the depression of a convenient foot pedal.

New Motor Type

In the Standard Six models there is a new-type motor which combines the advantages o fhigh turbulence, high compression, aluminum alloy pistons with the same Invarstruts, and th seven bearing crankshaft and torsional vibration damper, with the L-head principle of construction to make a mortor design especially favorable to quality manufacturing in the field of lower-priced cars. High turbulence contributes directly to greater motor efficiency and economy, due to the intense agitaion of vaporized gases it sets up in the manifold and combustion chambers. The torsional vibration damper eliminates all vibration from the power stream.

The new Advanced Six models are capable of smooth speed from 75 to 80 miles an hour. The Special Six easily reaches 70 to 75 miles an hour and the Standard Six models have a speed "ceiling of 65 to 70. Of even greater interest than this safe speed range is the qualit yof performance delivere dby the new motors. At the get-away, top or intermediate speeds, in second gear or high, the performance is smooth and quiet and powerful beyond any comparison in this field. The pick-up is alert and sure and the acceleration even and luxurious to the last degree.

"Dam Highway" Joins Famous Reservoirs Of The Old West



Roosevelt dam is the oldest of the series of reservoirs along the new "dam highway" of Arizona. It is shown above, with map of the highway and its scenic spots in inset.

PHOENIX, Aris., June 30.—In this section of unlimited grandeur, a trans-state road has been developed to connect a series of man-made wonders which have caused it to be dubbed "the dam highway."

The pseudonym makes up in accuracy what it may lack in elegance, for on the east-west highway are six enormous reinforced concrete dams, controlling vast inland bodies of flood waters which are released as needed to irrigate an erstwhile desert.

The dams represent an expenditure of more than $25,000,000. They have converted sand dunes into thriving citrus orchards and vegetable gardens.

Within another six months two other dams will have been finished on the same highway. And when all parties concerned agree on the site for a dam on the Colorado river, the "dam highway" doubtless will be routed to include that structure, too.

The motorist, entering Arizona from the east, may first visit Coolidge dam across the Gila river, which is almost completed. The highway then leads in succession to the three great dams on the Salt river—the Roosevelt, Horse Mesa or Lowden dam, and Morman Flat dam. The fifth is Carl Pleasant dam across the Agua Fria river, recently completed.

More Dams to be Built

A sixth, of a different type but quite as interesting, is Granite Reef dam, fourth in the Salt river series. It is not a reservoir, but diversion dam.

The two to be finished next year are still another on the Salt at Stewart's mountain, and one on the Verde river at Horseshoe Bend or nearby.

The "dam highway," too, includes the already famous Apache Trail, mountain route following the path originally trod by warlike Apache Indians.

It includes a visit to the state capitol, Phoenix. It will take the motorist past several inland lakes of rare beauty, through the suguaro cactus regions, at least three Indian reservations and two national parks.

Other Scenic Wonders

One branch of the highway takes the motorist to Grand Canyon, which has held its claim to being the world's greatest scenic wonder.

Another branch goes to Tucson, which includes a visit to San Xavier Mission, one of the oldest settlements founded by white men in America.

On the "dam highway" itself will be found numerous Indian relics, including cliff dwellers' villages long since abandoned.

Snow covered peaks, some of which are white capped throughout the year, offer an attraction for the motorist who wants extremes in altitude, and who wants to camp near them for mountain trout fishing, hiking, exploring and general campcraft.

HOW'S SHE HITTIN'

By ISRAEL KLEIN

When the front wheels wobble and the steering is hard to control, there are two definite classes in which the possible causes for this shimmying can be placed. One is the slow speed shimmy and the other is the high speed shimmy.

Tire experts, J. E. Hale and C. R. Stewart of the Firestone Tire and Rubber company, have just completed an exhaustive study of shimmying.

Slow speed shimmy occurs up to about 30 miles an hour. It is caused by worn-out or bent parts that are closely allied to the steering system or to the wheels. Those listed are: loose drag link connections, loose tie rod corinections, loose king pin bearings, loose wheel, bent wheel, bent tie rod and bent axle.

The remedy is to tighten up these parts, or to replace those worn down with new parts. The loose wheels might need new bearings. Generally, however, slow speed shimmy is less troublesome than the high speed kind.

Much of the blame for high speed shimmy is directed at the manufacturers and designers. This occurs when the car goes well over 30 miles an hour. Some of the larger cars get the disease between 60 and 70 miles an hour, and many of them at a definite point in the speed curve.

The reason for this is that the wheels seem to fall into the periodic vibrations of the motor at that speed, and shimmy results. Sometimes there's a sort of gyroscopic action of the car that causes shimmy and sometimes, the engineers admit, the tires are at fault.

To prevent this sort of shimmy, however, the tire engineers suggest lining up the drag link assembly to as nearly a straight line as possible, balancing the wheel and tire assembly, raising the inflation pressure on the front tires, using stiffer springs or adding an extra spring, avoiding oil on the springs, using shock absorbers and keeping them tight, seeing that the axles aren't twisted and the brake drums aren't out of round, keeping the spring shackles tight, keeping the proper camber, caster and toe-in, seeing that the tires are evenly set on the rims and that the wheels run true, and eliminating all looseness by tightening or rebushing.

Of course, the tire men compliment the automotive engineers and designers for doing much toward eliminating the causes for shimmy as far as possible. And the automotive men return the compliments by avowing that much has been done to make tire a decreasing factor in shimmying.

Indianapolis Race Winner Selects "72" Town Sedan For Personal Car; He Is Chrysler Enthusiast

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

DETROIT, Mich., June 30.—One of Louis Meyer's first acts after winning the Indianapolis 50 mile race classic Memorial day was to use part of its estimated $50,000 to the winner to purchase his fifth Chrysler, a "72" town sedan. His last previous purchase, a Chrysler coupe, he drove 50,000 of them devoted to towing a race car. He has depended on his Chryslers to get him and his racing mounts to the various A.A.A. races for the last two years, including trips from coast to coast.

Meyer, a Chrysler Enthusiast

It was a mutual interest in Chryslers that brought together Louis Meyer, the driver, and Alden Sampsen, the owner, of the car which won the 1928 edition of the world's greatest gasoline race. Meyer has been a Chrysler enthusiast for several years. It was only natural, while at Atlantic City as mechanic for Frank Elliott prior to the stock car races there a year ago, that he should show interest in a tall, well built youth who had entered a Chrysler roadster in them. Alden Sampson was that youth.

Sampson and Meyer became fast friends through their Chrysler enthusiasm. When Meyer came to Indianapolis this year and heard a Millier special could be bought his thoughts immediately turned to Sampson. The car was bought a week before the race. What followed is now history. Meyer won at an average of 99.482 miles an hour—a new world 500 mile record for the tiny 91 cubic inch displacement cars.

Buy Lockhart's Car

Immediately after that race Meyer and Sampson bought another car, as well. It is the Miller special with which the late Frank Lockhart won the 1926 Indianapolis race and with which he appeared certain to duplicate in 1927 until it broke a connecting rod. Tony Gulotta, driving it for Lockhart's estate, had it well in front again this year until gas tank sprung a leak and dropped him to tenth place. It is conceded to be one of the best cars mechanically, and one of the fastest, in American racing.

In selecting his fifth Chrysler, Meyer said that its ease of handling, roadability, speed, surplus power and all around mechanical excellence were the deciding factors. Leaving Indianapolis with his new "72," he drove it to the races at Detroit June 10, then began a hasty trip to Los Angeles before returning to Salem, N. H., where he will race his winning car July 4.

Color Schemes of Madame's Dainty Creations Used In Motor Car Colors Put Out by Dodge

DETROIT, Mich., June 30.—Algerian blue, Norman beige, viceroy maroon, Brazilian brown.

These aren't the color schemes of chiffon creations which Madame wears so gracefully at afternoon teas and on country club terraces these summer days. They are only a few of the colors in which Dodge Brothers automobiles have been produced this year.

The American car buyer is definitely color conscious. He—ably supplemented by she—wants dash and brightness in the new car. Manufacturers who are awake to the fact that an increasing percentage of buyers have developed an acute color sense, have dashed a rainbow of tints over their models, according to Dodge officers.

Colors Vary in Shade

Color lists sent out to dealers by Dodge Brothers, Inc., show that various body types of the new Standard six may be obtained in malaga maroon, Yorkshire green, Algerian blue and peewee green.

Colors of the various body types in the Victory six line include tuscany brown, kensington green, brewster green, viceroy maroon, calgary green, aquamarine blue and dundee gray.

Goodrich Silvertowns

THE PLATE GLASS TEST. By pressing this glass against the Goodrich Silvertown, we show how its tread looks when pressing against the road. Read the facts below, and see what this tire means in mileage.

This one minute test shows how you can get months of extra service from your next tires! . . .

BALLOON tires are soft. They yield. Their tread flattens against the road. The center compresses, letting the shoulders of the tread come down to the ground.

Simple facts—but what a tremendous effect they can have on mileage!

Suppose the center had bulky masses of rubber where it should be flexible. Then pressure would crowd the tread out of shape—distorting the shoulder rubber—and uneven, choppy wear would shorten the life of the tire.

But Goodrich Silvertowns are molded to the shape of the famous hinge-center tread design.

To be sure of extra months of service from your tires—and cheerful service from your dealer—see us when you need new tires.

For instance, Al Smith got the nomination, and being as "wet" as Al is purported to ocurse he is not as bad as some of his enemies have pictured him, and probably not so good as some of his friends would be we can't see how. Of course he is governor of New York, and in the anti circles h is a real man, but in Texas—well we just can't see. Of have you think. But he has the nomination, and it is up to Al and Herb to make the race.

So far as we are concerned it will make very little difference who is elected. We talk about tariff and most of us wouldn't know tariff from a revenue officer. We talk about prohibition and think we really know politics. But do we?

We Don't Know Much

Somehow, we have an idea that most of us know very little. We can vote (if we have a poll tax receipt) and imagine we are a power behind the throne. Well, we are not. The boys feed us a lot of "air" and we take it on. We cast our vote and then go home and go to work. Really we do not expect very much and as a rule are not disappointed.

Hoover did his darndesht to starve us during the war, but he failed. He is the boy who put out the eatness Mondays and the treatless Tuesdays: He made us eat cornbread when we really wanted biscuit. He told us that the "boys over there" needed the flap-jacks, and we took his word for it. But we lived and actually had a pretty good time, everything considered.

Now he expects us to vote for him. Some of the boys may, but the fellow who spent six months in the ditches "over there"—saw the good wheat flour rot out in the open because there was do demand for it, while his daddy and brothers at home consumed milo maize and hegan, isn't going to do it. Outside of that Herb is a good boy and we all like him.

Al wants to be president because it is a better job than governor. [illegible] blame him, for every man should have an ambition to be better. Al may no be very wet, but he is so damp that southern Democrats want him to take the sunshine (not moonshine) cuhe for a while. Being a good Catholic may not hurt him much, but there are a lot of people who will slip him a "black ball" in November, for no other reason. Maybe Maybe they should not—we can't say, but we have lived in Texas long enough to know a few things—politics included.

Kentucky colonels aren't the only people who can cast a Democratic vote—there are a few while folks in Texas.

If Al is elected Texas will have a real president—he knows where Texas is, and that is a lot more than most of the presidents have known. eH might even give some Texas "bird" a nice appointive office, but we hope if he does that it doesn't smell like oil. Most of the boys down here are honest—but—well, why put up a temptation? Harding tried that one time and the ocurs are not through trying em yet. Democrats, however, are different, an dwe would not even predict suc ha thing.

Very few of us are pleased with the nominations—either democratic or republican. But unless the Lord gets sorry for us either Al or Herb will grace the throne for another four years. Both parties tried to see just how far they could go without taking the bankrupt law, and we hope they are satisfied. Herb will starve us and Al will drown us. It's awful, people, but take your choice. If you are damp, then Al will please you. Of course he can't do anything but talk, but his talk is wet—Maybe alcoholic. Haven't tried him yet, but we have a keen sense of smell.

Hoover is a good boy, but he knows more about eatless days than he "administration." If he is elected it will be because America got sore at Al and the Democrats.

In fact we think that America should join the bolsheviki—appoint a czar and cut out politics altogether. It is a trouble and expense. If you find a good man he won't run—and who in the dinckens wants the other kind? From now on we are not going to vote—just going to stick around and say "we told you so." We have $1.75 tied up in a tax receipt this year but somebody wants it at half price we will talk trade.

In the meantime, lets consider the high cost of living and the low price of cotton.

side of the county of its issuing. Wheelock went to Estacado where his intended and present wife lived and arranged with the minister of the church and with friends as witnesses, drove into Lubbock county and was married on the prairie returning to Estacado, where they were remarried at the Friends church.

Wheelock was elected as one of Lubbock county's first county commissioners when the county was organized an dserved two terms. At that time county commissioners received no salary but were paid $3.00 per day. However he was never too busy that he could not attend and look after the interest of the people who elected him.

The sessions were many to complete the organization and to build a court house, the material being freighted from Colorado City in Mitchell county some 125 miles south. The freighting was done with teams and it took from ten to twenty days to make the round trip, the time depending on the weather and condition of the roads.

In the spring of 1888 Wheelock planted sixty acres of spring wheat, the first planted on the Plains, and it was estimated that it would have produced thirty bushels per acre if it had been harvested. The same spring he planted one acre of cotton which matured but was not gathered. These were among the early farming experiments.

Purchased Fine Stock

Wheelock brought the second herd of registered Herefords to Lubbock county and after several years sold them to Jimmie Roberts at the best all-round price for the entire herd of any man in the south at that time.

Thus you have only a partial history of a man who can never be repaid for his efforts in the upbuilding and development of Lubbock and the South Plains. A man who was generous, liberal and unselfish an dat all times had the welfare and success of his adopted country at heart, never flinching but standing guard until the last, fortifying all efforts with his time, money and presence. May Frank live a score of years that he may see the fruits of his many hardships build an everlasting monument to his memory.

Public Utility Services
Indicate The Kind of Community You Live In

It must either lead in the development of the community or be a burden on its growth and progress.

In providing for future growth of a community a public utility expresses its faith by the investment it makes.

We point with pride to the plants of this company on the Plains. We believe each one represents the very latest and most modern electrical plants of the age. The efficiency of the plant operation makes for lower rates.

For dependability we doubt if any section has a more dependable source of electricity than the Plains.

The investments of many millions of dollars in the facilities of our plants indicates more than words the faith this company has in the future of this section.

The great expenditures made by us in recent months are only the beginning of our plan and determination to maintain such a character of public utility leadership that we will encourage growth and development of every community we serve.
