Reds Thrust Toward Pinsk As Famous German Line Is Shattered; Orsha Captured

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Wednesday, June 28—The Red Army thrust out two sharp pincers at the prize city of Minsk in White Russia yesterday as Moscow announced that the Germans' "fatherland line" was being shattered at enormous cost to the enemy both in casualties and equipment.

Twenty thousand Nazis were killed and 10,000 others surrendered in the liquidation of five already-riddled divisions of the enemy in a pocket between Vitebsk and Orsha, and at the other end of the blazing White Russian front 8,000 Germans were killed in three days of fighting around Bobruisk, the Russians reported in their early morning communique supplement.

Fighting In Mogilev

Orsha itself was captured yesterday and Red troops were fighting in the streets of Mogilev and in the outskirts of Bobruisk, Moscow announced. All are strategic railway junctions of considerable importance and heavily fortified German strongpoints protecting routes to Minsk.

The fall of both Mogilev and Bobrusk was believed imminent.

Simultaneously with the capture of Orsha other Red troops took Bor, a railway station 46 miles to west, and gained control of more than one-third of the main railroad between Orsha and Minsk, a segment of the line connecting Warsaw and Moscow.

Two Main Spearheads

Bor is about 75 miles northeast of Minsk, and at the same distance southeast the Russians captured Glusk, thus giving the Red armies two spearheads pointed directly at the biggest prize still to be reclaimed from the Germans in Russia proper.

Twenty thousand German officers and men were left dead on the bloody battlefield of the encircled enemy grouping in the Vitebsk area, the broadcast Russian communique asserted.

Already battered far below their normal strength of 12,000 each, the German divisions fought desperately in a futile battle, Moscow said, and finally accepted an ultimatum of surrender. Preliminary reports showed 10,000 Germans had been taken prisoner in this action.

Other Divisions Encircled

Even while announcing the liquidation of these units, identified by Moscow as the German Fourth, 197th, 206th and 246th infantry divisions and Sixth Airborne division, the communique said five other Nazi infantry divisions had been encircled by Russian drives east and south of Bobruisk.

Altogether, nearly 1,500 places of varying size were recaptured during the day's advance against

Yanks Slowed In Saipan Push

By RAY CRONIN
Associated Press War Editor

The forward push of American forces on Japan's Saipan island was slowed today as the Nippon defenders stiffened their resistance in apparent preparation for major infantry action.

In the mountain sectors of the irregular battleline across the center of the strategic island the Yanks employed flamethrowers and artillery to clean out Japanese nested in caves and cliff dugouts. On the west flank, Americans and Japanese were locked in fierce street fighting in shell-wrecked Garapan, the island's chief town.

Japs Lose Mogaung

On one other Oriental battle front — in distant Burma — the Japanese lost one of their chief strongholds, but in China's Hunan province the Nippon invaders launched a flanking movement in their fast-moving campaign to cut China in two and seal off the China coast from possible Allied invasions.

On the east coast, American supply ships were using Magicienne bay, an important anchorage brought under Yank control following the victorious drive across Saipan from the western beachheads.

In northern Burma, British and Chinese troops took Mogaung after three days of bitter fighting. The fall of that Japanese stronghold came as American forces gained 100 yards in northern Myitkyina, last important Nippon base in North Burma. The Americans there were close to contact with Chinese battling their way in on the town's west side.

Burma Road Severed

Chinese forces, according to Chungking, again severed the old Burma road 10 miles below Lungling, cutting off the Japanese base at Mangshih. American bombers hit the latter point heavily, apparently paving the way for a direct Chinese attack on the stronghold.

A Chinese communique said the Japanese invaders started a flanking movement southeast of Hengyang, important railway junction in Hunan province. Casualties on both sides were pictured as severe in fighting north of Hengyang.

The Hunan situation caused most Chungking quarters to agree that stronger opposition was needed if the Japanese were to be thwarted in their drive to take complete control of the Canton-Hankow railway.

Southwest Pacific

Southwest Pacific Allied headquarters reported today a 35-ton aerial bomb attack on Yap, in the Carolines, where nine Japanese planes were destroyed. The Yap raid, third within a week, has kept Japanese planes based there from interfering with Saipan operations.

Bombers also hit Woleai and Palau, in the Carolines, and blasted Nippon strongholds in the Dutch New Guinea, British New Guinea and New Ireland. A Jap freighter was sunk and three merchantmen damaged off northwest New Guinea.

Tech Post As Yet Unfilled

FORT WORTH, June 27—(Special)—Directors of Texas Technological college met here today to discuss a successor to President Clifford B. Jones but, after an all-afternoon session, adjourned "without announcement."

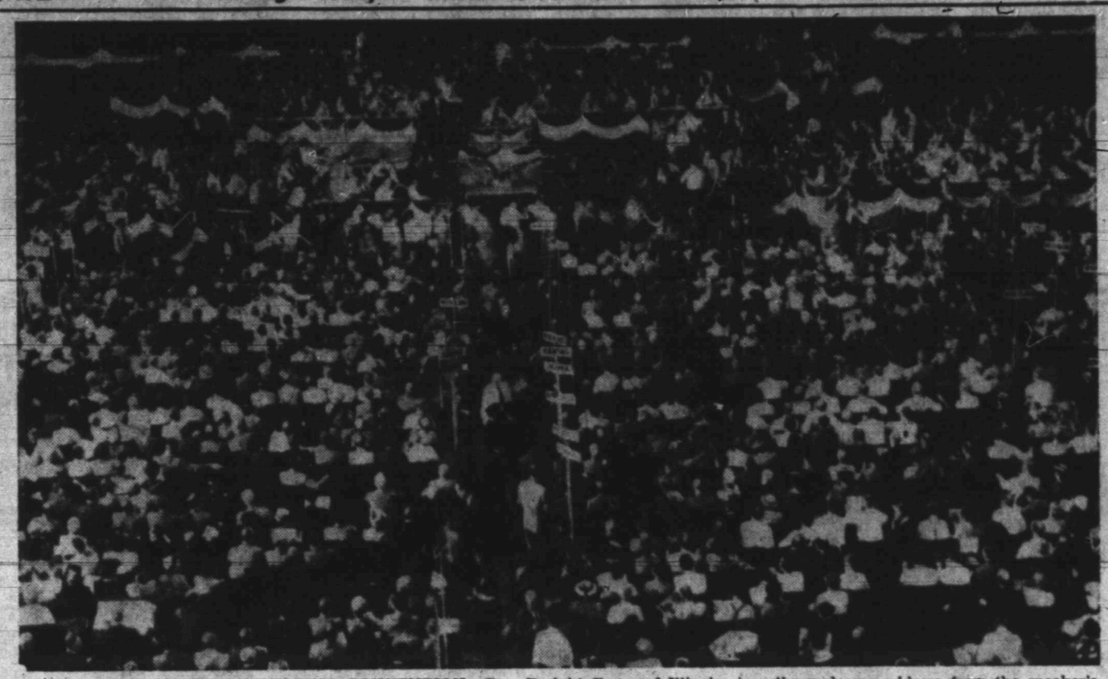

Charles C. Thompson, board chairman from Colorado City, said he and other members of the directorate hope "to be able to name the new president within a week or 10 days." Doctor Jones resigned on April 15, for personal health reasons, and was elected as president emeritus. He continues to administer to the office until selection of his successor.

Warren Flatly Declines To Run As GOP Platform Unanimously Adopted

Willkie Fails In Fight On Proposal

By JACK BELL
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

CHICAGO STADIUM, June 27 The Republican convention shouted its approval today of a platform bearing a foreign policy plank reported to have Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's specific approval, pledging prevention of aggression by "peace forces" without American entry into any "world state."

The GOP delegates thus adopted as a campaign document a statement of policy which Wendell L. Willkie, the 1940 nominee, had criticized as ambiguous and which 15 Republican governors had striven vainly to revise in the party's resolutions committee.

Floor Fight Taboo

The convention action came after at least two of the fighting governors, Walter Edge of New Jersey and William H. Willis of Vermont, had told reporters they thought nothing would have been gained by a fight on the floor. Senator Robert A. Taft, chairman of the drafting committee, read the platform and moved its adoption. There was no dissenting voice.

Edge, who previously had called the declaration "weasel-worded," said he was informed Governor Dewey, the prospective presidential nominee, had approved the text of the plank. Both he and Gov. Wills said they were looking to Dewey to amplify the statement in the campaign.

There remained, however, the possibility that Willkie, unsatisfied with the faliure to spell out Republican intentions along lines more acceptable to him, might bolt or remain silent during the presidential campaign.

The foreign plank went to the

Jealousy Leads Texan To Murder, Suicide

DALLAS, June 27. (AP)—Three children of grade school age were orphaned in an early morning shooting today when Foster Lee Fielding, 41, defense plant worker, killed his wife, Mrs. India Fielding, 28, then turned the gun on himself, Justice of the Peace C. B. Brown held in an inquest verdict.

Judge Brown said jealousy was assigned as the reason for the double killing in a note Fielding wrote last Friday and which was found in the man's pocket.

The children, Jim Allen, 12; Josephine, 10, and Foster Lee, jr., 6, and Mrs. Dorothy McNett, sister of Mrs. Fielding, were at the home at the time of the shooting.

Judge Brown returned a verdict of murder and suicide.

GOP Labor Plank Praised By Lewis, But AFL Chief Says Plan 'Disappointing'

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS
Associated Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO, June 27.—The Republican convention slashed at New Deal administration of labor laws today in a plank which was praised by aides of John L. Lewis but which AFL President William Green termed "disappointing."

The plank was quickly endorsed by K. C. Adams, editor of the United Mine Workers' Journal and frequent spokesman for Lewis, as "the best platform the Republican party has ever offered labor."

Green said in a statement commenting on the plank that "instead of being simple and direct, the language is general in character and susceptible of varied interpretations. It denies labor's request for the repeal of the notorious Connally-Smith (labor disputes) act. The Republican party has missed a great opportunity."

New Deal Accused

In sizzling language, the Republican labor plank accused the New Deal tonight of attempting to destroy collective bargaining and substitute a totalitarian labor front.

Lauding the Republican party as "the historical champion of free labor," the plank set down such charges against the Roosevelt administration as these: "Perversion" of the Wagner act, "political trickery" in the administration of labor laws, conversion of administrative boards into instruments for effectuating New Deal financial and economic theories, emasculation of the department of labor, freezing of wage rates at arbitrary levels.

Among the pledges were these: A secretary of labor "representative of labor," fair administration of the Wagner, wage and hour, social security, and other acts designed for the welfare of all labor, and equal benefits to all labor "regardless of political affiliation."

Hutcheson On Committee

Heading the labor subcommittee on platform drafting was William L. Hutcheson, vice president of the AFL and president of the carpenters' union. The plank reflected not only his views but those of John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers' president.

The plank made no reference to the Connally-Smith labor disputes act, repeal of which was urged before the committee by AFL President William Green. Nor did it specifically mention Green's proposed amendment of the Wagner act to provide stronger safeguards for craft unions.

Contract Let On School Building

Contracts for the construction of a new, 9-room grade school building, in the aggregate of $74,329.40, last night were let by the board of trustees of the Lubbock Independent school district—subject to approval of the War Production board, believed to be merely a matter of routine.

The new building, to be completed in 150 working days, is to be located in the Arnett-Benson addition, northwest of the city limits, bounded by Edna and First streets, and by Jefferson and Adams.

Sampson Gets Contract

Sampson Brothers Construction Co., sole bidder on general construction, was granted the principal contract in the sum of $61,352; plumbing and heating went to Roche Newton & Co., at $11,085; electrical work to J. D. Nelson, at $1,892.40. Minor changes in plans, principally in substituting a flat roof for a pitched one; and the elimination of a kitchen and eating room which could not be equipped until after victory, brought a total reduction in bids of approximately $23,000 over original bids received a month ago and rejected as too high.

All successful bidders were Lubbock concerns. Other bidders included:

Electrical—Lowrey Electric Co., Neill & Henry Electric Co.

Plumbing and Heating — Anthony Co., Bell Plumbing Co., and Samson Plumbing Co., all of Lubbock.

The California chief executive merely was repeating what he had said all along: That he had certain commitments to carry out to his own state and wanted no spot on the national ticket.

Convicts Are Charged With Killing Guard

HUNTSVILLE, Texas, June 27. (AP) — Four convicts who escaped from Wynne state prison farm June 20 when a guard, George T. Preston, was shot to death were charged with murder today.

In a complaint filed before Justice of the Peace Ernest Franklow, the slaying was attributed to Leonard Stockton, 42; James McLemore, 28; Eugene Padgett, 28, and W. M. Johnson, 30, all of whom were re-arrested a day or two after their escape.

At the time of the escape, prison officials said one of the four convicts had a pistol, with which he fatally wounded Preston in the initial break. Then the inmates broke into the prison farm arsenal and took other weapons.

Stockton and McLemore, serving 20 and 15 years, respectively, for robbery, were re-arrested near Jasper. Padgett, serving 99 years for murder, and Johnson, under eight-year sentence for burglary, were caught near Madisonville. None used firearms when they were overtaken by officers.

FORT WORTH, June 27. (AP)— Complete revamping of the entire state judicial system is recommended by a subcommittee on court reorganization which met here today in advance of the convention of the State Bar of Texas.

The group, subcommittee to the Texas civil judicial council, recommended that the state have only one court, with civil and criminal branches, and with trial and appellate levels. Such a change would require a constitutional amendment.

Nazis Reportedly Hurrying Troops To Front In Finland

By EDWIN SHANKE
Associated Press Staff Writer

STOCKHOLM, June 27. — Nazi troops marched through Helsinki tonight bound for the eastern front as the Finnish government agreed to remain in the war at the side of Germany on the Germans' promise of troops.

Even before the Finnish government in an official communique announced that solidarity and "perfect understanding" had been reached between Germany and the Finns, Nazi troops moved through the streets of the capital, singing Army songs.

The communique announced that in answer to a request for military help by the Finns, German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop had promised all the armed aid necessary for Finland to continue in the war against Russia.

The Germans appeared to be moving into all Finland, including Helsinki, and Associated Press correspondent Robert Sturdevant telephoned from Helsinki through the strict Finnish censorship that "I am moving—I emphasize moving—to the American legation tonight. Watch Berlin."

As a result of the development, relations between the United States and Finland were said to have been put on a "day-to-day basis."

Swedish press dispatches from Berlin said henceforth the Finnish military communique will be incorporated in the German communique, ending all Finnish pretense of fighting a separate war against Russia.

Von Ribbentrop reportedly gave a dinner last night at which Finland's formal acceptance of full collaboration with Germany was given.

Military opinion here was that the Germans could ill afford to spare as many soldiers from the Nazis' other hard-pressed fronts as they had promised the Finns.

British Outflank Caen, Cut Trunk Highway; Nazi Losses In Normandy Set At 70,000

By RUSSELL LANDSTROM
Associated Press Staff Writer

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, Wednesday, June 28—British troops striking out quickly on the eastern Normandy front after the fall of Cherbourg which boosted Axis losses to at least 70,000 men since D-day, yesterday outflanked the German stronghold of Caen on the road to Paris.

Late front dispatches said the British had reached the Odon river at a point five miles southwest of Caen after cutting the trunk highway and railway linking Caen with Villers-Bocage and Avranches at the base of the Normandy peninsula.

The British in two days had advanced more than seven miles from positions around Tilly-Sur-Seulles, captured 10 or more villages, overrun numerous enemy gun emplacements and now were on the verge of breaking into open country ideal for a showdown with German tank formations.

Nazis Short Of Men

A dispatch from Associated Press front correspondent Roger D. Greene said the British reached the Odon at 4 p. m., and quoted a British officer as saying that the Germans evidently were short of infantrymen to hold the ground in the area, although the enemy still packed a terrific wallop with his tanks.

Between 12 and 15 German tanks were destroyed during the day, and the British were cleaning up enemy remnants in Colleville, Tourville, and probably in nearby Mouen, five miles southwest of Caen, he said. The British also were fighting in the village of Grainville.

Other British units were reported within three miles of Caen on the west.

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British units sprang into action even as thousands of German troops were filing into American prison cages at Cherbourg and Allied repair experts were hurrying to make the prize port a springboard for huge reinforcements and supplies as the invasion went into its fourth week.

20,000 Taken In Cleanup

Twenty thousand Germans have been captured in the cleanup of the Cherbourg peninsula, the Allied communique said, "and more are being brought in."

A dispatch from Don Whitehead, Associated Press correspondent in Cherbourg, said the Americans had taken 22,000 in the peninsula drive, and that the captives still were being counted.

The total Axis prisoner bag thus far is at least 32,000 and probably will exceed that figure when the final Cherbourg count is tallied. The prisoners taken included those in Cherbourg and others captured in the advance on the port from the Barneville- St. Sauveur-Montebourg sectors.

The fall of Cherbourg late Monday night gave the Allies the port

British Retake Chiusi's Ruins

ROME, June 27. (AP) — British troops, striking hard at the core of German resistance some 80 miles above Rome, have recaptured the ruins of Chiusi in heavy fighting and tonight were slugging with infantry and tanks in the outskirts of Castiglione Del Lago, nine miles northeast of Chiusi on the shore of Lake Trasimeno.

Lt. Gen. Sir Oliver Leese's Eighth Army headquarters announced that heavy casualties were inflicted on the Nazis defending Chiusi, with more than 200 captured in the concluding stages of the battle. Although Leese's troops drove on to the edge of Castiglione Del Lago, front dispatches said the Germans were strongly emplaced in the town.

Yanks Also Slowed

Similarly stubborn enemy resistance had slowed but not stopped American and French divisions advancing along an approximate 70-mile line between Chiusi and the west coast. Fierce fighting was in progress southwest of the key city of Siena, 31 miles below Florence, with Yank forces reported gaining another five miles after occupying the rubbled town of Montieri.

Heavies Batter Budapest Area

LONDON, June 27. (AP)—American heavy bombers and fighters from Italy attacked Budapest military targets and a Yugoslav railway yard today, while the RAF's heavy Halifaxes, in one of their rare daylight missions, attacked German flying-bomb installations across the channel from England in unfavorable weather.

The German radio tonight said Allied raiders were over western Germany indicating the aerial assault of the continent was continuing.

(The Sofia radio, in a broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications commission, said Allied planes were over western Bulgaria and that others were flying over Albania and southwest Serbia.)

Strike From Russia

The eastern command of the U. S. Strategic Air forces announced that Russian-based American heavies attacked a German synthetic oil plant at Drohobycz, Poland, on Monday.

These attacks raised to five the number of Nazi-ridden European countries that felt the weight of Allied bombs in less than 24 hours.

Over the battlefronts in France air operations continued limited by poor flying weather.

Five hundred to 750 American Fortresses and Liberators based in Italy braved the bad weather with fighter escorts and bombed unidentified targets in the Budapest area through cloud cover. They met strong enemy fighter opposition and knocked down an undisclosed number of planes.

Radios Tell Of Damage

(The German and Hungarian radios said the bombers caused "fires and damage in several parts of the capital," and claimed German and Hungarian interceptors shot down "several" of the attackers. The Germans also said there was an air alarm at Bratislava, capital of the puppet state of Slovakia.)

The Halifax mission from Britian, made without loss, was the first heavy-bomber operation in 48 hours and the first blow since late Sunday on the Nazi flying-bomb emplacements in France.

The enemy projectiles continued to fall in southern England throughout Monday night and Tuesday with slightly increased intensity. A school and postoffice were among the buildings hit.

Austin Man Dies In Crossing Accident

AUSTIN, June 27. (AP)—Hubert Rogers, 51, Austin, connected with the State Fire Insurance commission, was killed in a grade-crossing accident here this afternoon.

Rogers was killed instantly when his automobile, going downhill, was hit by the train. The car was hurled 25 feet and Rogers' body was thrown clear of the wreckage.

Rogers, alone in his car at the time of the accident, was a native of Tennessee. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Rogers of Melissa; and three brothers, Woodell J. Rogers of San Antonio, V. Z. Rogers, Lamesa, and Claude Rogers, Frisco.

NAZI OIL CUT AGAIN

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, June 27. (AP) — The Germans' already acute oil shortage has been further aggravated by the loss of an additional 1,000 tons daily due to the RAF night raid June 12 on the synthetic plant at Gelsenkirchen, the air ministry reported tonight.

Argentine Sharply Hit As U. S. Ambassador Recalled

By FLORA LEWIS
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 27. — The State department announced tonight that American Ambassador Norman Armour has been recalled from Buenos Aires "for consultation," in a move hitting sharply at the militarist government of Argentina.

The United States and all but three other American republics have refused to recognize the regime of Gen. Edelmiro Farrell since it established itself by revolution four months ago. However, Armour stayed on in Buenos Aires, presumably in the hope that Farrell would take moves towards bringing his country into line with the general policy of hemispheric defense.

Armour is expected to leave Buenos Aires tomorrow or the next day. His recall indicates a stiffening of the American attitude toward Farrell's government. Further emphasis is provided by the fact that Mrs. Armour will follow the ambassador home.

While Armour's departure is expected to come as a heavy blow to Argentina, there has been speculation here that still further expressions of the American republics' disapproval of Argentina's government may be imminent.

A state department spokesman pointed out that this government has been in constant consultation with the other American nations and it can be presumed that they were informed of the American decision to bring Armour back.

Speculation that some move of SCHOOL LUNCHES—Not long ago Mrs. T. F. Wiesen, chairman of the P-TA school lunch program, explained aims for lunches in city schools in a talk over KFYO. A hot school lunch for every child is the ultimate aim but at present the committee is wondering how much interest there is in the proposal to have cafeterias in two or three schools.

After her talk, Mrs. Wiesen asked mothers who were in favor of serving lunches at school to drop a card to "School Lunch, % KFYO."

The response has not been heartening. Future action of the school lunch committee depends on whether or not the parents want lunches served at the schools.

Naturally the initial attempts must be slow and because it's impossible to get stoves and refrigerators, cafeterias cannot be installed in all of the schools. But if a start was made, that would be something wouldn't it?

If you are at all interested in seeing such a project underway, you may still drop a card to "School Lunch, % KFYO."

ON EXERCISES

IF you think that regular exercise will give you a new zest for life, make you healthier and help you to live longer, you have a surprise coming to you, according to an eminent physician writing in the July issue of a national magazine. You can do a lot more harm than good when you go all out for setting up exercises, he says.

A moderate amount of muscle tone and activity is essential to health, vigor and virility, according to the article. But to build up development beyond this point is wasteful and dissipating.

The old theory about getting up a few minutes earlier in the morning, standing by your open window and doing deep breahitng exercises is not the best idea. The rate and depth of breathing in relation to body needs is regulated automatically by nature. If the physical strain is increased, the respiration is increased accordingly. Deep breathing exercises merely dissipate energy faster without any physical improvement.

Violent exercises may prove injurious to the circulatory system. The writer, Dr. Raymond Pearl of Johns Hopkins university, says when one is young an occupation either at light or hard labor makes no difference in the rate of mortality. After the age of 40, it appears that a man shortens his life definitely in direct proportion to his performance of heavy labor."

So, while you may enjoy exercising vigorously to recapture the spirit of youth, it would be well to consider at what price you do it.

CRUMB JAR — Perhaps you will be interested in keeping a "crumb jar" when you realize that if each of us were to waste only one slice of bread a week, it would add up to one hundred million loaves a year—or enough to provide almost a 36-day supply for an armed force of a million men.

Simply toast all stale bread in the oven anytime it is "on." Then crush toast with a rolling pin and put crumbs in a covered glass jar. They'll come in handy for scalloped dishes, fruit betties, breaded chops and fish, crumb dressings on vegetables ,etc.

Green Bean Canning Method Is Given

The following method for canning green beans has been suggested by Miss Graham Hard of the war food emergency committee:

Use only young tender products which have been freshly gathered at the best stage for eating. Wash the beans thoroughly before cooking them, because the most dangerous bacteria that are the hardest to kill are found in the soil.

Pack Raw, Steam in Cans or Jars

Place 1 teaspoon salt per quart in the container first. Pack as tight and full as possible. Pour hot water to within 1 to 2 inches of the rim of the can. Set the can without the lid in the hot pressure cooker. (Any large vessel with lid may be used for steaming). Steam without the pressure and with the petcock open. Count steaming time as soon as steam issues from the petcock. Steam pints eight minutes and quarts thirteen minutes. Remove the can and press the food down. If the container is not full, use food from one can to refill all of the others. Have food well covered with liquid. Leave ½ inch head space in glass jars and ¼ inch head-space in tin cans. When glass jars are used, they must be placed in a warm cooker instead of boiling hot, and by the time the steam accumulates the jar will be heated enough to prevent breaking. Rubber that fits on the jar instead of the lid may be placed on the jar before steaming for ease in handling.

How To Seal

Have food hot when sealed. This is to shrink the food and drive out the air, and prevent loss of liquid, discoloration and flat sour. Cans and jars with self seal lids should be sealed air-tight before processing. Other lids should be loosened one-fourth turn and tightened after processing. (Follow manufacturers directions for the use of their particular closures).

Process:

12 lbs. pressure, glass jars, pts. 30 minutes, qts. 35 minutes. Tin cans No. 2 25 minutes, No. 3 30 minutes.

Store:

Store in a dry, cool, dark place where food retains vitamins longer and will not spoil as quickly.

Martin Says Demos Lose Control And Party Is New Deal Prisoner

CHICAGO STADIUM, June 27. (AP)—Rep. Joseph W. Martin, jr. (Mass), taking over his duties as permanent chairman of the Republican national convention, asserted today that the Democratic party has lost control over its own destiny and has become "a prisoner of the New Deal."

Addressing the convention immediately after his election as permanent chairman, Martin asserted that the coming presidential election is not merely a fight to put Republicans in office but also to "emancipate the Democrats."

Some Show Courage

"The Democratic party has been captured by a minority whose philosophy it despises," he said. "Thank God, some of its leaders realize this and have had the courage to revolt."

He said that in addition to the war overseas, another war is being waged at home—a "war between two eternally hostile ideologies."

"One idea," Martin said "is that of the free society—the society of free men creating their wealth with the instrumentalities of free enterprise under the protection of a representative republic."

"The other is the conception of the regimented and planned society, living upon vast streams of government debt and taking its shape and destiny from the directives of a bureaucratic elite under the command of a self-inspired leader.

Called Fascism In Europe

"You may call that anything you wish. In Europe they call it Fascism. Here we call it the New Deal."

Admitting that it was difficult to believe that "anyone would want to substitute" other forms of government for the American way, Martin said "we cannot be blind to what has been attempted."

"There is," he said, "a deliberate intention on the part of some to remake America in a way which would destroy opportunity and initiative. They would put an end to private industry. They would regiment all men and all women, and put all our people in shackles of bondage to an autocratic, power-lustful bureaucracy.

One Sure Cure

"The sure way to avert what would be a major transformation of our political and social ideals is to put a new governmental policy in effect in Washington."

Denying what he said was a Democratic charge that administration critics have no policy or program, he said the Republican party is the "bill-of-rights" party and does not believe that the constitution was set aside by the advent of war.

"The first thing the Republican party will do when it comes into power," Martin asserted, "will be to restore to Congress its responsibility and function as the people's special instrument of control over their government and their public officials."

Restore State Rights

He said the Republicans would restore the responsibility in matters of local concern to the state and local governmental subdivisions; that it would maintain genuine economy in government; that its taxing system would be made simple and equitable.

Labor would be permitted to retain "all the essential rights and just privileges it has gained," Martin said, while agriculture would be assured a "commensurate return on investment and labor," and private capital would be encouraged to venture into expanded production.

WARNING IS ISSUED

NEW YORK, June 27. (AP)—The British Information Services' office here released a dispatch received from London last night which said the proportion of eye injuries among rocket-bomb casualties is so great that the British ministry of health has warned people to stay away from windows during an attack.

The report said nearly all of the eye injuries had been caused by flying glass.

The Tower of London once housed a menagerie.

Holmes Bids Adieu To LAAF With One Of Largest Classes

With the words, "We both have other things to do, other places to go, other duties to perform," Col. Ralph E. Holmes bid adieu to the last of the many graduating classes he has watched complete their aviation cadet training at Lubbock Army Air field Tuesday. Class 44-F will soon follow the hundreds of other LAAF graduates who are now in combat and their commanding officer will immediately take up his new duties on the staff of Brig. Gen. Walter F. Kraus, in command of the Central Flying Training command.

The post gymnasium was well filled with relatives and guests of the new flying officers. The invocation was given by Chaplain Bernard A. Fenninger, and Capt. Russell DeW. Shively administered the oath of office. The honor student of the class, Lt. Jack A. Donahue, was recognized by Maj. Gordon J. Mott, director of ground training, in an individual presentation. The others of the class received their wings from Maj. Albert G. Arnold and Maj. Walter A. Gremban, commanding officers of the 2nd and 4th provisional training squadrons, respectively.

Several members of the class have already seen extensive foreign service. 1st Lt. Stanley B. Brown served as a radio operator and engineer in Alaska and Lt. Charles A. Johnson was stationed in Trinidad and the West Indies for almost three years before returning to this country to enter flight training. Lt. James E. Dunnington, as an enlisted man, served in Panama, Trinidad, British West Indies, Surinam in South Amercia and the Ascension Island.

One of the largest classes yet graduated from LAAF, the group was made up of men from forty-one of the forty-eight states.

Wells Warns Of Dairy Applications Deadline

Deadline for turning in applications for dairy production payments for the months of February, March and April is June 30, and must be turned in at the Agricultural Adjustment agency office, 1320 Avenue Q, according to Walter Y. Wells, secretary of the Lubbock county Agricultural Conservation association. Payments for February will be 50 cents per hundred pounds for whole milk and six cents per pound for butter fat; March and April, 60 cents per hundred pounds for whole milk and eight cents per pound for butter fat.

Applications will be received on and after July 1 for payments for May and June. Payments for these months will be 45 cents per hundred pounds for whole milk and six cents per pound for butter fat, Wells said.

He also announced that sudan grass seed loans are now available for seed stored on the farm. The rate has not definitely been set, but will probably be about five cents per pound for clean seed. Farmers will be given a two cent per 100 pounds storage allowance per month.

Anyone raising sudan grass is eligible for loans on any amount he produces on his farm, Wells added.

Local Rabbi Named U.S. Army Chaplain

Rabbi Isadore Garsek of the Congregation Shaareth Israel has been appointed chaplain, first lieutenant, in the U. S. Army and is to report July 14 to Harvard University, commandant chaplain school.

Rabbi Garsek, whose pulpit will be held open for him during his absence, said here Tuesday that he is making plans to leave Lubbock next week. His wife and two-year-old son, David, will stay in Fort Worth while he attends the chaplain school.

He came to Lubbock in December of 1938 and was the first rabbi of the congregation. During his pastorate the new synagogue at Avenue Q and Twenty-third street was built. He came to Lubbock after graduation from the Hebrew Theological school in Chicago.

Arrangements have not been made yet for a rabbi during his absence.

Prescription for SYNTHETIC RUBBER

Rx

Butadiene 3#

Styrene 1#

Mix well and process

HOW TO PRONOUNCE IT. You have seen the word in print frequently in the past, and you're bound to hear more of it in the future. This is how to say it: Byou-tah-die-een.

THE MAJOR INGREDIENT, approximately 75 per cent, of synthetic rubber is Butadiene. The name sounds like medicine, and the product is truly a great healing compound for the rubber ailments on both the war and home fronts.

In the vast Plains Butadiene Plant, (owned by Defense Plant Corporation) designed and built by Phillips . . . utilizing Phillips own patented processes . . . Phillips is headed for an annual production of 90,000,000 pounds of Butadiene.

This is just another illustration of the growing importance of the chemical values now being extracted from petroleum raw materials. It highlights the fact that Phillips refineries, in addition to producing gasoline, lubricants, and fuel oils, are also gigantic chemical plants, today, pouring out weapons for victory; tomorrow, producing new and better things from petroleum and petroleum gases.

Nearer and nearer draws the day when synthetic tires will be generally available . . . when you can drive into any Phillips 66 Service Station and buy as many tires as you want. Yet the uncertainties of war make definite prediction impossible. That is why it is just as important as ever for you to coax every last bit of travel from your tires.

To help you do that, call on your Phillips 66 Service Man. His Tire-Saving Service includes checking air pressures at least once a week . . . inspecting for nail holes, cuts, and bruises . . . examination of the tire carcass to warn you when re-capping is necessary . . . and crisscrossing with the spare every 3,000 miles.

Remember, Phillips Tire-Saving Service at the Orange and Black 66 Shield . . . the sign of famous Phillips 66 Gasoline and Phillips 66 Motor Oil.

FOR VICTORY: Buy more than before . . . 5TH WAR LOAN

Warning And Instructions Issued On Federal Use Stamp For Autos

Instructions have been forwarded to all zone deputy internal revenue collectors in the 144 North Texas counties to be on the alert for automobiles in use on and after July 1, 1944, without having properly affixed and displayed the automobile use stamp for the fiscal year beginning July 1, according to L. B. Barkley, field division chief of the Lubbock district office.

The stamps evidence payment of the $5 automobile use tax for the fiscal year and must be purchased on or before that date. The stamps are serially numbered, will be gummed on the face and will have provision on the back for entry of the make, model, serial number and state license number of the vehicle. A fine of $25 and/or a jail sentence of up to 30 days is provided by law for failure to purchase and display the stamp properly on the vehicle.

All Vehicles Involved

Every owner of a motor vehicle which is used upon the highways should call at his postoffice to secure the $5 use tax stamp and affix it to his vehicle on or before July 1, 1944, Barkley said. The various postoffices will sell the stamps over the counter for cash only, and no money order business with respect thereto will be conducted by the postoffices. Sale of the less than $5 denomination use tax stamp in postoffices has been discontinued. Such offices will stock the $5 stamp only and motor vehicle owners liable for the payment of the use tax for periods of less than a full year must obtain their stamps in lesser denominations from the collector of internal revenue. This would occur when use of the car begins in some month of the fiscal year after July.

Placement Of Stamp

The use tax stamp should be placed in the lower right hand corner of the windshield. Barkley said that in order to guard against loss or theft it has been suggested that in affixing the stamp, the windshield itself should be dampened rather than the adhesive side of the stamp. This method is recommended in order to keep the stamp intact upon the windshield. In addition, it is suggested that each motor vehicle owner should make a record of the serial number appearing on the use stamp for protection in the event the stamp becomes lost.

Members of the Lubbock Lions club, meeting in their luncheon Tuesday noon in the Hilton hotel, were entertained with songs by Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Machinists, sheet metal workers, automotive mechanics helpers, fire fighters, laborers, and practically all other skilled trades positions in keeping the mechanical and maintenance phase of the glider program rolling at South Plains Army Air field are in demand, according to Carrie Bell Turner, local Civil Service representative. Qualified men and women are asked to make inquiries at the office of the Civil Service representative located in the U. S. Employment Service office, 1207 Thirteenth street.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce "D" Day dance, to be held at the Cotton club from 8 to 12 o'clock tonight, should attract a huge crowd if advance ticket sales can be used as a criterion. The McDaniel string band, composed of ten pieces, will furnish music for the affair.

FDR Says Reaction To Post-War World Peace Plan Is Favorable

By HOWARD FLIEGER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 27.—President Roosevelt said today the administration's plan to unite the peace-loving nations of the world in an organization to put down future wars, by force if necessary, has met a generally favorable public reaction.

Mr. Roosevelt, in response to a question, said the plan he outlined ten days ago inspired lots of letters—all favorable so far.

He made the remark to a news conference shortly after the platform committee of the Republican national convention in Chicago made public a foreign policy plan opposing a world state and urging "peace forces" to outlaw aggressions.

Republican Proposal

The Republicans called for adequate postwar military forces to defend the United States and its outposts.

One of the main points of the program outlined by the President would set up an international organization of peace-loving nations to work for world stability. It would include a world council composed of the four major powers and "a suitable number" of other nations, and an international court. Participating nations would use armed force, if necessary, to prevent wars.

A reporter asked Mr. Roosevelt if his correspondents on the postwar plan included Wendell L. Willkie who last night denounced some of the language of the Republican foreign policy declaration as reported to him at that time. Mr. Roosevelt said he has seen no letter from his 1940 presidential opponent.

DeGaulle Expected Soon

An indication that Gen. Charles deGaulle of the French Committee of National Liberation will visit Washington early next month came from Mr. Roosevelt's news conference remark that French sources have asked whether the chief executive could receive the general between July 5 and July 9. The President said the dates were perfectly all right.

Recently there had been indications from abroad that deGaulle's trip might be put off because of this government's non-recognition of the committee's claims to be the provisional government of France.

Mr. Roosevelt set off another round of speculation about a trip abroad when — obviously in a teasing mood—he told a reporter he hasn't gotten to Normandy yet.

"Does that imply you are going?" the reporter asked. Laughing, the President said he wasn't talking in implications, then observed he is perfectly unpredictable, may go tomorrow but the chances are he won't.

War Veterans Group Organized At Tech

Students attending Texas Technological college, who are veterans of World War II, have organibed a Tech War Veterans association for the purpose of assisting in the rehabilitation of boys returning from military service.

Organized only a few weeks, the group now has 15 active members. Meetings are held the first and third Monday evenings at 7 o'clock in the administration building on the Tech campus.

Officers are: Charles Senning, commander; Henry Pederson, vice commander; Troy Davidson, secretary; Wiley Brassell, finance officer; and Bill Kennedy, sergeant-at-arms. Dr. Lewis Cooper is faculty sponsor.

The program and activities of the organization follows closely the American Legion pattern. Many of the members also belong to the American Legion. Membership in the association is open to all Tech students who are honorably discharged veterans of World War II.

BY, OF, and FOR THE PEOPLE

WOULD DRY UP ALL U. S. ARMY CAMPS

Editor, The Avalanche: From my point of view there is a class of unforgotten soldiers in our Army. Now these boys are sacrificing everything, just as any other soldier is doing, although no one seems to give him the same consideration his other buddies get.

So I want to speak a word in behalf of the soldier who thinks a sober man is worth more toward winning this war than one under the influence of intoxicating drink, and consequently refrains from indulgence of such. Now, there is a great cry going up from the liquor crowd that it would be dealing out injustice by taking advantage of our service boys and vote their beer and whiskey away from them while they are unable to defend the keeping of such.

Let us look from the forgotten side awhile. Just say even "if" it would be (as they say) taking advantage of these soldiers who want to drink, are we not taking the same advantage of those who do not want to drink by forcing them to have to live amid surroundings of drinking places. And be forced to live and associate with the ones who allow themselves to become intoxicated, or possess a strong smell of liquor on their breath? Don't these boys who are also fighting to preserve our nation deserve the same consideration as other soldiers who are doing no more for our country than those boys are doing? Wouldn't it be democratic to treat all of them alike as near as possible? And since the liquor drinking soldiers have had their way now for over two years of war, wouldn't it be only fair and just to let the non-liquor loving soldiers (and we do have them) to have their way on this issue for the next two years by taking liquor away from our Army camps? Did I hear someone say "that just can't be done?" Well, maybe not, but one thing we can do is to take legalized liquor away, and let them inforce the laws against illegal liquor. Now is there anyone who is selfish enough to say this would not be fair to all of our soldiers?

Then let us show enough democracy about us to vote liquor out of our Army camps for the next two years for the sake of those unforgotten soldiers who are fighting for your country. Will you?

Please read I Thessalonian 5:22.

Mrs. Jarrell Cox,
Tahoka, Texas.

(Dear Mrs. Cox: Thanks for your letter. But just to keep the record straight, liquor is not sold or served in Army camps. Only beer is available and that under the strictest of supervision. Very truly yours. The Editor.

WAR WORK

Editor, The Avalanche: I noticed in today's paper a headline, "Busiest Women Are Ones Who Find Time to Fold Bandages."

It set me to thinking. I, whose entire family, husband and two sons, is now serving in the armed forces of Uncle Sam. My husband wasn't "taken," he volunteered, while the older son was selected by Uncle Sam. But whether taken or given, makes no difference that I can see. Giving up one's family members, or having them taken, if you call it that, is having something vital taken out of one's life. To me it has been more like a major operation and left me without my usual energy.

When my children were small, the chances are I would have spent more time folding bandages than I have up to date, if the need had arisen then. I too, teach children, do my housework, care for my children without a man, direct plays, teach elementary music, art, take part in church work, and in the summers attend college and had the time of my life doing so.

I am just wondering if the main reason mothers with sons in the service don't contribute what others think they should is just a lack of youth energy? Or am I all wrong?

And another thing, is there a law of some kind prohibiting men from folding bandadges in their time.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Laura Reaa Cargile,
Lubbock.

Ticket Speculators At GOP Convention Find Market Bearish

CONVENTION HEADQUARTERS, Chicago, June 27. (U.P.) — Ticket speculators who had fond hopes of cleaning up on ducats to the Republican National convention weren't quite so happy today. The market had gone bearish on them—but very.

As late as yesterday morning, speculators were asking — and getting in some instances — as much as $50 for a block of single tickets to the full convention preceedings. By last night the accepted price had dropped to $25, and early today even that figure was being undersold generally.

A ticket agency operator, asked why and wherefore, said that "With the nomination in the bag for Dewey and no excitement guaranteed, the public just isn't interested in the convention." Others agreed.

Grazing Said Best Johnson Grass Killer

In speaking at the luncheon of the Optimist club Tuesday noon in the Lubbock hotel, Cecil Ayers of the department of plant industry at Texas Tech said that grazing is possibly the cheapest method of eradicating Johnson grass.

He said that with continuous grazing, or cutting with hoes, would keep food from being stored up in the rhizomes or roots. He said the Johnson grass could be killed, but it would require a continuous process.

He told of the many processes that were being used in experimentations at the college farm in an effort to discover an effective and economical method of eradicating the menace.

Ayers was introduced by Dr. R. S. Underwood. Two former members, Gordon Sanders and John Reed, were reinstated at the luncheon. President M. L. Shepherd, presiding at the luncheon, announced that the club would meet with the American Business club Friday, July 7, instead of their regular meeting date, Tuesday, July 4.

Farmers Advised To Turn In Measurements

Farm operators of Lubbock county have been advised that they will turn in their measurements of acreage of soil building practices they carry out this year to the Agricultural Adjustment agency, 1320 Avenue Q, the same as last year, according to Walter Y. Wells, secretary of the Lubbock county Agricultural Conservation association.

Farmers are asked to come in to the AAA office at their convenience to turn in these measurements. Wells said it would be impossible for anyone from his office to go to each farm in the county, therefore farmers are asked to cooperate in bringing in these measurements.

When these measurements are turned in the AAA office will hold them on file until application forms for soil building payments are received.

Eastern Storm's Death Toll Rises

PITTSBURGH, June 27. (U.P.)—The death toll in the tornado which swept the tri-state area of western Pennsylvania, north-central West Virginia and Maryland late Friday today rose to 154 with the number of fatalities expected to rise still higher among the more than 1,000 injured victims.

Five additional deaths were reported in the western Pensylvania area, while in the badly-damaged West Virginia area where the most casualties occurred, four more persons succumbed. The total for West Virginia stood today at 108, and in western Pennsylvania 43 persons are known to have died. Three fatalities occurred in western Maryland.

Meanwhile, rehabilitation work went ahead aided by civilian and military authorities whose workers probed the $3,000,000 wreckage for more victims.

Farley Won't Discuss Politics Until After Resignation Effective

SAN ANTONIO, June 27. (U.P.)—Jim Farley said today that he won't discuss politics until after July 12.

The one-time national chairman of the Democratic party said:

"My resignation as chairman of the New York State Democratic committee doesn't become effective until July 11.

"On July 12, the New York Democrats plan to give me a big dinner, and so if I want to be honor guest there I had better not say anything that might be embarrassing."

Farley has been on a business trip to Mexico City and now is en route to New York.

He pointed out that his reticence to discuss politics did not necessarily mean he would "go Republican" like Mrs. Farley, who yesterday announced she would support the Republican presidential nominee "no matter who he is" if the Democrats nominated President Roosevelt.

Farley plans to visit former Vice President John Nance Garner at Uvalde, Tex., before returning home.

Obligation For Higher Education Is Cutlined

LARAMIE, Wyo., June 27. (U.P.)—Dr. James F. Zimmerman, president of the University of New Mexico, was on record today as asserting that higher education is obligated to train the ablest leadership in re-educating our people in international affairs.

The University of New Mexico president spoke yesterday to the graduating class of the University of Wyoming.

"There will continue to exist among nations differences in theories of government, rivalries of economic interests, clashes of national ambitions, conflicts of races and classes and many other fundamental problems of human relations," he said.

He pointed out that most of these problems probably will exist even after the most idealistic actions of a post war league of nations or a similar organization.

Dean Service And Rotary Win Easily

Bill Dean's Service and the Rotary Club nines moved back into the thick of the races in their respective junior baseball marathons Tuesday afternoon as both won easily by comfortable margins.

Dean's Service romped to a 17 to 8 victory over Montgomery Wards in the National League race. Rotary Club punched out an 18 to 5 victory over the American Business Club in the American League battle.

Pile Up Lead

In the older loop, the Deanmen "teed off" on the delivery of Lawrence Balch and scored in every inning with an attack that picked up fast in the home stretch and accounted for 13 of the runs in the last three turns at the plate.

Robertson started on the hill for the Deanmen, and was only in trouble but one time, this in the third inning when Montgomery Ward staged an uprising that netted three runs, and tied the score, but this was the last threat, Jernigan finished the seventh inning for the winners as pitcher.

Wards combed ten hits off the Bill Dean chunkers, but were unable to throttle the winner's attack.

In the American League game, the Rotary Club used a seven run splurge in the second inning as a springboard, and went on from there on win with ease.

Eddins Has Big Day

While Higginbotham was limiting the ABC nine to four hits, and coasting along behind a comfortable lead, Eddins, star slugger of the Rotary nine, was blasting out a triple, two doubles and two walks in five trips to the batters box. The Rotary Club engineered three double killings in the field.

Bill Dean's Service will return today to face the Sears and Roebuck nine in the National League feature. The Sears team upset the Hemphill-Wells Cats Monday afternoon, and appear to be a much improved ball club that will give the Deanmen a busy afternoon.

The American League feature this afternoon will bring together two of the top teams in the race, the Optimist Club battlers, league leaders, will be facing the always tough Kiwanis Cardinals in the week's junior baseball feature.

Favorites Keep Pace In Texas Net Meet

AUSTIN, June 27. (AP) — State Tennis association's annual tournament moves into third day tomorrow with two of hottest favorites to win men's singles title—Defending Champion George Ball of El Paso and Sam Match of Los Angeles, currently stationed at Bergstrom Field giving every evidence they would be finalists.

Ball defeated a fellow townsman, Bobby Goldfarb, 7-5, 6-1, and Match eliminated Lt. William W. Mitchell of San Marcos Army Air field, 6-0, 6-0, in quarter-final engagements.

Match today polished off young Franklin McCarter in love sets to go into penultimate round.

Chief obstacle in Match's march to the finals in the lower bracket rests in Leo Laborde of Beaumont, one of the state's better netters, while chief threat to Ball's parade is Clyde Heppenstiel, Bergstrom Field.

Favorites in the women's singles division also came through today. Shelby Frizzell of Austin, Helene McCarter, Galveston, and Peggy Eby of Houston won in straight sets, while red-headed Mrs. John S. Seoggins of Galveston, waited over until tomorrow morning for her second round match with Ethel Norton, San Antonio, was ill.

Antelope Season To Be Limited In Texas

AUSTIN, June 27 (AP)—Texas' first antelope hunting season in many years probably will be confined to designated ranches in Culbertson, Hudspeth, Jeff Davis, Presidio, Brewster, Pecos, El Paso, Reeves and Terrel counties.

Although complete details have not been worked out, Will J. Tucker, executive secretary of the game commission, said it was now indicated that a series of hunts will be held and that no hunt on a single ranch will be for more than three days.

The open season is set for October and special licenses cost $5. Applications for licenses will be received at game department offices in Austin and a limited number will be awarded by a drawing for permits about September 1, Tucker emphasized.

The bag is limited to one buck antelope per hunter.

DIMAGGIO DEFERRED

PITTSBURGH, June 27 (AP) — Outfielder Vince DiMaggio was given a 90-day deferment by his draft board today, the Pittsburgh baseball club announced. An x-ray showed definite signs of stomach ulcers.

Segura Breezes To Net Quarter-Finals

EVANSTON, Ill., June 27 (AP)—Francisco (Pancho) Segura of Miami (Fla.) University breezed a step closer today to his second straight singles championship in the NCAA tennis tournament with a short-and-sweet triumph over Dale Lewis of Utah State, 6-1, 6-0.

In moving into tomorrow's quarter-final round with seven other contenders, Segura befuddled his young Rocky Mountain Conference foe with sizzling drives and tricky lobs for a quick third-round killing. The parade into the quarter-final was almost a solid Southern and Far Western bloc, including five of the six seeded players. Notre Dame's Charlie Sampson, who bested Bob Lewis of Utah, 6-4, 6-2, was the only Midwesterner to suryive the third round.

Hickman Is Winner

The East's last survivor fell when fourth-seeded Johnny Hickman of Texas trimmed Bob Davis of the U. S. Naval Academy, 6-2, 6-4.

Hickman, teaming up with Felix Kelley, also got Texas off to a good start in defense of its doubles title with a 6-0, 6-2 triumph over Michigan's Alden Johnson and Rey Boucher as the first round of two-man competition boiled an original field of 16 teams to eight.

The Texas duo is top-seeded, due mainly to the fact Hickman combined with Walt Driver last year to win the title. Driver is not competing in the current meet.

Lubbock Juniors To Play Dallas

AUSTIN, June 27. (AP)—Twenty-one teams are battling for spots in the state playoff of Junior American Legion baseball with division titles to be determined by July 9 and the state championship by Aug. 10.

The Lubbock entry in the state playoff race will meet in the winner of the eight team Dallas playoff for the Division 1 and 2 title, but the date and site has not been named.

More than 500 youngsters are included in the rosters of the teams, Director J. E. McClain of Austin said.

Austin and New Braunfels begin a playoff series Saturday the winner of which will meet the winner of the Laredo-Corpus Christi series for championship of Division 4. Laredo has eight teams battling for the Webb county championship and the winner meets Corpus Christi this weekend.

Waco represents Division 3 and will meet the Division 4 titlist.

Division 1 is also a one team affair, Lubbock.

In Dallas eight teams are playing for the county championship and also the Division 2 title.

McClain said there was a possibility that division winners may be brought here for a playoff tournament rather than have them play semi-finals and finals.

Forty-two states are competing in the National tournament this year.

Bartzen Knocks Out Schoolboy Champion

PHILADELPHIA, June 27. (AP)—Charlie Oliver of Perth Amboy, N. J., defending champion, was knocked out of the National Interscholastic tennis tournament today by Bernard Bartzen, fifth seeded player from San Angelo, Tex., who racked up an 8-6, 6-2 victory to reach the semi-final round.

The last Philadelphian also bowed out of the tourney when Glenn Bassett of Santa Monica, Calif., scored a 6-4, 6-2 triumph over Sam Handel, Middle States interscholastic junior and West Jersey junior champion.

Ray Also Wins

Another Texan, Ed Ray of Sinton high, and McDonald Mathey of Deerfield, Mass., academy, also entered the semi-finals. Ray disposed of Glenn Shively, of Phillips Exeter Academy, 6-0, 6-3, and Mathey defeated Frederick B. Smith, a Deerfield teammate, 9-7, 6-2.

Before bowing to Bassett, Handel outfought Richard Savitt of El Paso, Tex., 6-3, 2-6, 6-4, in the third round, while Bassett was eliminating Joseph Sheerer of Hill School, Pottstown, Pa., 6-0, 6-1.

Oliver downed Richard Randall of Oak Park, Ill., 6-2, 7-5. Ray moved into the quarter-finals with a 6-2, 6-2 victory over Ed Shipp of Lemoyne, Pa., High. Mathey defeated Edmund F. McGrath of Brooklyn, 6-3, 2-6, 7-5.

Shively reached the quarter-finals with an upset 6-2, 6-3 win over Robert David of Senn High, Chicago. Before losing to Mathey, Smith beat Alen Watson of Hill School, 6-4, 6-4.

INDIANS GET HOAG

CLEVELAND, June 27. (AP)—Outfielder Myril Hoag has been obtained by the Cleveland Indians on waivers from the Chicago White Sox, Vice President Roger Peckinpaugh announced today.

Hoag is a 36-year-old discharged war veteran, who also has played with the New York Yankees and St. Louis Browns.

Stan Musial Crowds Dixie Walker For Hitting Honors

NEW YORK, June 27. (AP)—The St. Louis Cards are pulling away from the field in the National League today but Dixie Walker of the Brooklyn Dodgers and Stan Musial of the Red Birds are hooked up in a tight battle for the batting championship that may go down to the final days of the season for a decision.

Walker's lead faded to three points as his average dropped down nine markers to .377 including games of June 26 while Musial approached the half-way mark with a .374 mark on 86 hits in 230 at bats. Although Dixie's hit production has dropped off, the Brooklyn outfielder still tops the majors with 95 hits in 252 trips including a league-leading total of 21 doubles.

The hitting race is strictly Walked and Musial as a 39-point gap separates them from Phil Weintraub of the Giants whose third place mark of .335 is only one point better than Brooklyn Augie Galan's .334.

French Bordagaray of the Dodgers was out of action have the week with a bad cold but held the lead in runs scored at 54 while Weintraub held the edge over Howie Schultz of Brooklyn with 48 runs batted in.

Pitching honors went into the service with George Munger of the Cardinals who had won 10 and lost one before he was called to duty Monday.

Hockett Takes Over Second In Hit Race

CHICAGO, June 27. (AP)—Cleveland's Otis Hockett made the biggest leap in the American League batting race this week by jumping from sixth to second place after fattening his average by 10 points to .338.

Thurman Tucker of Chicago still topped the list with a .369, dropping only two points off his batting beam of a week ago. Hockett was followed by Bobby Doerr and Irvin Fox, both of Boston, with .325 apiece; Detroit's Chuck Hostetler, who was second last week, with .319; Dick Siebert, Philadelphia, .315; Bob Estalella, Philadelphia, .314; Vern Stephens, St. Louis, .310; Wally Moses, Chicago, .309 and Bob Johnson, Boston, .308.

Doerr was tops in hits, with 79, and runs, with 47, while Cleveland's Roy Cullenbine still led in two-base blows, 19, and was locked with Frank Hayes of Philadelphia in home runs with eight.

Gordon Maltzberger, the White Sox fireman, headed the pitching records with a 7-1 record, while Buck Newsom of Philadelphia took over the lead in strikeouts by fanning 65 batsmen.

Ike Williams Signs To Meet Joe Pirrone

PHILADELPHIA, June 27. (AP)—Ike Williams, highly regarded Trenton, N. J., lightweight has been signed to meet Joey Pirrone of Cleveland here at the outdoor arena on July 10, Philadelphia promoters said today.

Williams, who scored a technical knockout over Cleo Shans of Los Angeles, in a 10 round main event at Madison Square Garden last week, has lost but one of more than 45 fights since he turned professional.

Relief Chunkers In American Sets Pace

NEW YORK, June 27 (AP)—Gordy Maltzberger of the Chicago White Sox and Mike Ryba of the Boston Red Sox are doing their bit to glamorize the forgotten men of the bull pen by helping their clubs run a pennant fever in the American League's first division.

The record books today revealed Maltzberg pacing the junior loop hurlers with a 7-1 record and Ryba close behind with 7 victories and 2 setbacks.

When Orval Grove, Bill Dietrich, Thornton Lee or Ed Lopat start to weaken, Jimmy Dykes calls for Maltzberg who twice has beaten St. Louis and Washington and once tamed Detroit, Philadelphia and Cleveland. Only the Boston Red Sox were able to beat him 3-2 in a 12-inning game on May 19.

Ryba, like Maltzberg, has appeared in 23 games, and matched the White Sox hurler in his won and lost record until he bowed to Washington Sunday, 5-4. Specs Klieman of Cleveland also has been called to duty 23 times but has not been as effective for the Cellarite Indians who have less complete games pitched than any other team in the circuit.

Ace Adams of the New York Giants has appeared in 24 games since he went back on relief, a far cry from the 70 that established a modern record last year, but enough to take up some of the slack on Mel Ott's uncertain staff.

Lick Upsets Favored Star In Golf Meet

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 27. (AP)—Louis Lick, 20-year-old University of Minnesota medical student from St. Paul, turned in the first big upset of the National Intercollegiate golf tournament today when he uncorked a sub-par round to drub medalist James Jackson of Washington university of St. Louis, 6 and 5, and gain a place in the semi-finals.

Joining Lick in the semi-finals were Johnny Jenswold of Michigan, Big Ten champion; Henry Hampelt, Baldwin-Wallace college's dark horse entrant, and Seldner Tom Messinger of Michigan.

Lick was three strokes under par for the 13 holes the match went.

OUR PLEDGE

WE pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands; One Nation, indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all.

That Monetary Conference

IT is doubtful whether widespread public interest could be aroused in the approaching international monetary conference, for which the American representatives were announced a few days ago by the President.

The reasons for public apathy toward such meetings are readily apparent. To most people, the subject of international finance is as vague as Sanskrit. They neither understand it, nor do they have any desire to go to the trouble of trying to understand. Since their ideas as to what it is all about are extreme vague, they simply aren't greatly interested in such proceedings.

This state of mind is unfortunate. The American people are vitally concerned with what may transpire in the approaching conference. The money meeting is filled with potentialities, both for good and for bad, which might affect this nation for years, even for generations, to come.

On the good side is the possibility that the conference might do something toward a practical stabilization of world currencies. It isn't likely that any such thing will be done, but it might be. If so, the American people are interested because it could mean that other nations would be placed in position to do the sort of buying which might help to keep our factories running and our farmers prosperous. Those nations certainly aren't going to be able to buy very much if their currencies are virtually worthless, as many were before the war, in terms of our dollar. This conference may go far in determining whether foreign people who might be eager to buy from us will have the means of buying.

On the dangerous side is the possibility that the conference might attempt to put crack-pot, untested theories into practice. Among these possibilities is one for which some of the leaders in the New Deal have been plugging for a long time. It is a scheme which is extremely involved.

But the gist of it is that Uncle Sam would put in most of the money in a sort of international bank, and would draw out little. Other nations would put in little, and draw out much. They would write their checks for just about anything they chose, and Uncle Sam would guarantee that they would be cashed.

Under such a scheme—and it has the support of no less a personality than Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau — the American taxpayer would support the bank which, in turn, would shoulder the financial burdens of the post-war world. A foreign nation wanting a handout wouldn't go to the trouble of appealing to the American people for help. That nation simply would write a check and the bank would cash it, and the American people probably would never know anything about it.

Fortunately, even though people generally won't pay much attention to the conference proceedings, some of the leaders in Congress and elsewhere will. These will have a sufficient grasp of the subject to know what is going on.

The American people will have to take the world of these few as to whether proposals of the conference appear to be for good or for bad. Americans should listen well at the proper time to what these experts have to say. They should insist upon action in accordance with the opinions and advice they deem best. Otherwise, they may discover too late that they are paying through the nose for their apathy.

Enemy Morale Still Strong

THE manner of recent German retreats in Italy does not encourage hopes that Germany may be on the verge of a collapse.

Naturally, it is heartening that the Nazis have had to give ground, at times very rapidly. But it must be acknowledged that, for the most part, their retreat has been orderly. A retreat is one of the most difficult of all military maneuvers. It is liable, momentarily, to turn into a rout. If any such thing is about to happen in Italy, it has not been reported.

On the contrary, it has been conducted with skill and, apparently, in accordance with design. It is not likely that such a retreat would be possible if the morale and the hopes of the masses of the German forces were gone. The enemy has fought too well to support the supposition that he or his nation are about to give way to despair and resulting panic.

True, it may be that the state of the morale within Germany cannot be judged by the conduct of the Nazi fighting forces in Italy. But if the whole of Germany can be judged by its forces in Italy, the enemy still may prove a tough nut to crack and crush.

"Scientists aren't so smart. Several years ago they all agreed that if an atom were split, the world would go to pieces, and now splitting an atom is a routine experiment," declares an editor. Yes, but isn't the world going to pieces?

The corpsman's uniform was white and he beckoned to Pinky and the other wounded soldier in the foxhole to follow him. Next thing Pinky knew he was on a train moving upward through dense clouds. It looked just like the train down home except that it was filled with all sorts of strange people. . . . .

About half the crowd got off at Heavenly Bend Junction, so Pinky and his friends got off, too. There is someone to meet everybody except Pinky, Rion, Emily and Mr. Caterwaller. They stand around feeling embarrassed.

THE elderly Jew had collected quite a few people by now, when his eyes fell on Caterwaller. He excused himself to the others, moved toward them, his kind old eyes smiling.

"Son, weren't you looking for me?" He took Mr. Caterwaller's nervous moist hand, pressed it warmly. "Welcome to Heavenly Bend Junction." Then he nodded and smiled at the others. "Nobody met you yet? Don't worry, he'll be along in a minute." He beamed again at Caterwaller. "How are you, son?"

Caterwaller had to wet his lips before he could speak. "You remember me?"

"Moe Kazinski—of course! What a thing to ask!"

Caterwaller blinked, overcome with emotion. It was suddenly so wonderful to have his name remembered, when he himself had felt forced to forget it for so long.

"Well, come along son, we'd better start."

"Where are we going?"

"Over to the house, I warn you, it's pretty crowded. Had to put six leaves in the dining room table last night, but—"

"I don't want to put you out," Caterwaller murmured humbly, hiding his inner eagerness. "Maybe I could stay with them—" he nodded toward Emily and the others.

"No, son," the older man told him firmly. "You're coming where you belong, finally."

Smiling, Caterwaller began formal goodbys to his train companions, but the old man interrupted, "Oh, you'll see them around. They'll just be down the street. See all of you later." And holding Caterwaller affectionately by the arm, the old man led him off.

Emily smiled, noting that Caterwaller's step was already more brisk and confident than it had been before.

"MISS KEENAN, will you excuse me, please? I'd like to say goodbye." It was Rion's voice which quickly drew her around. Something strange in his manner, something newly cool and distant. He was holding out his hand. Slowly she gave him hers. "There's somebody here for you?"

"Goodbye, Miss Keenan." He released her hand, turned to Pinky. "Goodbye, Corporal." A brief, military, little bow.

"Hey, I thought we were going to stick together!"

"Sorry."

They watched him stride off, toward a German officer who was leaning against the corner of the station house. The officer straightened up as Rion approached. They spoke briefly, turned and moved off . . . in a moment, were lost to view.

Emily and Pinky looked at each other.

Pinky was confused again. "I don't know . . . I don't get it."

"Pinky, are you sure this is the right place?"

"It must be, but—"

They turned then, to watch the train as it pulled out, passengers waving goodby from the windows. Pinky searched nervously around the station, that tiny fright creeping into him again. "Everybody's going but us!"

Emily shrugged. "Guess we're stepchildren."

"Maybe if we'd just stayed where we got off, somebody would have seen us."

"Or maybe we should have sent word ahead . . . 'wearing white carnation in buttonhole.' "

'Don't joke about it."

Look—maybe he'll know."

THEY stood very still, as the old colored man with the crinkly white hair approached. He looked as forlorn and forgotten as they felt.

"Forgive me for butting in, but did you, by any chance, see any colored folks getting off?"

He seemed so anxious that Emily immediately forgot her own problem. Come to think of it, I didn't," she answered. There were some on the train though . . . weren't there, Pinky?"

"Quite a few, I thought."

"Yes . . . well . . . all right, I just thought I might have missed them."

His so-obvious disappointment tugged at Emily. She felt it was almost sadder not to have anyone to meet, than not to be met.

"Were they supposed to get off?" she asked.

"Oh, no, not necessarily. That's up to them. Almost always most of them go on to the Big Valley. I just thought maybe . . ."

"Where is that? We were wondering."

"Up the line. The last stop. Some of us, my people, we call it the Picnic Grounds."

"Well, if your people are there, why don't you go out there?"

"I do. Wednesdays and Saturdays. But I live here, see. Sure is getting lonely, too. House as empty as a barn in pasture time. Well, I'm sorry to have been butting in."

"Don't go." It was Pinky who had spoken.

Extra Day Is Given Employes Of Board

AUSTIN, June 27. (U.P.) — Employes of the State Board of Control will have plenty of time to celebrate July Fourth.

Chairman Weaver Baker today announced that the board would close from Saturday noon until Wednesday morning, July 5. Monday will be charged against employes' regular vacation leaves.

Other state department were expected to follow the board's example.

Looking At Life - - - - - - By Erich Brandeis

A BOSTON fellow sued his wife for divorce on the grounds of cruelty.

She kept his house too clean he said in his complaint, and had made it a show place instead of a home, so that he can't enjoy it any more.

I don't know whether the court is going to grant the divorce, but I am anxious to find out.

The learned New York Times printed an editorial about this.

"Why didn't he go outdoors and hear the music of the birds?" asks the Times.

I don't think that is a pertinent question at all.

This Boston fellow isn't the only one of whom too much neatness and orderliness becomes almost too much to bear at times.

Men, as a rule, are not any too orderly. You have probably heard the story of the little boy whose mother was straightening out his room.

He stood it just so long, and then he said: "How do you expect me to find anything, Ma, if you put everything some place where I don't want it?"

Of course, being settled and married, I, too, have to have everything in its place.

But I remember those bachelor days when one sock was in one drawer and the other somewhere else.

There were trousers on the backs of chairs and shirts under the bed and pipes all over the place.

Yet, somehow, I never had any trouble finding whatever I needed.

Now everything is where it belongs, all my handkerchiefs and shirts and socks and pajamas are stacked up neatly in the proper compartments.

Somehow they have become strangers to me. The whole business is too formal.

AND some mornings when I am in my den downstairs trying to write, the vacuum cleaner in the bedroom directly above me sings its mournful, rasping song of cleanliness, almost driving me crazy.

When I play ball with my dog in the living room and it lands against a nicely papered wall or a lamp, my wife makes me feel as if I haven't much more sense than Deuce, the dog.

And heaven help me if I don't scrape my feet on the doormat when I come in out of a wet garden.

It's pretty awful at times But would I divorce my wife for it?

I should say not! If it weren't for our neat, clean, orderly, motherly wives, the American home would be a fine mess!

The National Whirligig

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

(During the Republican National convention Ray Tucker's Washington column will be written in Chicago.

CHICAGO—Allied artillery roaring above the Normandy peninsula and American bombs blasting the Japanese Grand Fleet's task force within earshot of Tokyo's advance outposts re-echo at the Republican party's most historic convention in many years—perhaps the most fateful gathering since the GOP nominated Abraham Lincoln in 1860.

Every Republican leader recognizes that Republicans are bucking a war and a national psychology based on prospective victories over the Axis all around the globe.

Franklin Roosevelt is only their nominal opponent, although a formidable one because of the current successes of our arms. And you can make a bet with the humblest delegate here that FDR, the Belasco of politics, will bob up with some fancy showman before this convention ends.

AGREEMENT: Thus the principal job of the convention is to try to eliminate the conflict, Allied victories present and future, foreign policy and postwar readjustments from the political contest.

If they can do that, they vision campaigning on the basis of domestic problems, and having a definite edge on the Democrats. In that kind of a slugging match they believe that they can win over enough disgruntled people to scrape through with a majority of the electorate.

The convention managers also scheme to place FDR on a hot and embarrassing spot by this strategy. In their foreign policy plank and in one of their candidate's first speeches they will say to him, in effect:

As American patriots—and the Resolutions committee chairman is Sen. Robert A. Taft, son of a distinguished President who advocated a World League to Enforce Peace many, many years ago—we will go along with you in urging establishment of some sort of a League of Nations of a Four Nations Alliance (the United States, Great Britain, Russia, China) to prevent future holocausts and to pass upon all disputes which threaten international security.

We will agree to the use of force, the details to be arranged later, to preserve world peace. That was the key point in William Howard Taft's diplomatic structure.

We will, naturally, conduct the war with no end in mind save victory. We will—and this is the Republican candidate speaking—not remove a single soldier or sailor, from Gen. George C. Marshall and Admiral Ernest J. King down to the humblest doughboy and gob, without justification.

Therefore, the Republicans will ask in substance: How about a presidential gentleman's agreement to the effect that all issues relating to the management of the war and postbellum arrangements shall not be dragged into the campaign? Why not, for the sake of United Nations harmony now and hereafter, run this political shindig as if the global struggle were an affair involving people on another planet?

STRATEGY: The Republicans are not entirely unselfishly patriotic in making this offer, as their spokesmen admit in off-the-record talks. They want to 'put FDR in a hole".

President Roosevelt, according to Republican strategists in Chicago, has only two alternative answers.

He can accept the opposition's offer and place statesmanship above partisanship, as Secretary of State Cordell Hull has done in his backstage discussions about postwar reorganization with Democratic and Republican members of the Senate Foreign Relations committee.

Or he can reject the GOP's proposal, and lay himself open to the charge that he puts a personal political triumph above the bipartisan making of a decent, healthier and greener world.

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Leman

GENERAL Eisenhower's mysterious radio message to European fishermen to remain in port until June 29—the third warning of the kind this month—naturally makes the Germans jittery.

The Nazis suspected that another invasion was in the wind but they did nothing about it besides tossing a few rocket bombs indiscriminately in the direction of London. A seemingly puzzling feature of the original Lombardy attack was that Hitler was aware that we were mobilizing landing craft but made no attempt to destroy them.

PROTECTION: Military experts testify that this was not all luck and that Goering's hawks were not asleep. Our High Command—months ago—took for granted that it could not assemble huge supply depots and great bodies of troops unobserved.

So it inaugurated a foolproof defensive system consisting chiefly of massed United States and British antiaircraft units and RAF night fighter planes.

The Nazis made one or two forays but were so badly slapped down that further efforts to seriously hamper the embarkations were abandoned. Aviators boast that if the Royal Air Force had known in 1940-41 as much about protection tactics as it does now, the famous Battle of London would not have been so devastating as it was.

SCARE: The Germans handled their air arm cleverly in the early period of the war when their blitzers were strafing the British Isles and their Stukas were shrieking at demoralized Polish and French troops. But they based their entire program on using planes. First ,to supplement ground forces and, second, to terrorize.

That was as far as they went. They do not understand the elementary principles of strategic bombing and now they haven't the means for such long-range operations.

One rule in modern aviation is, "If you would wreck your enemys war potential you must hit it." Uncle Sam's method for this is precision bombing; John Bull's saturation attacks.

Yet, in this acute crisis, the Germans have merely brought out another terror weapon, the robot comet, which only incidentally menaces our military effort because it cannot be accurately aimed.

* * *

ROCKETS: Engineers recognize that the "buzz-bomb" can be improved to pack a real wallop. Properly controlled, it will fulfill the dream of all ordnance technicians—superartillery of incredible range.

United States and European scientists, for years acquainted with the rocket principle, have tried to steer the unruly projectile by gyroscope.

In common terms, this device is a weighted spinning "top" inside the mechanism that moves a metal fin or rudder. Manipulation brings the missile back on its course whenever wind or other obstruction deflects it. Rockets equipped with gyros have been successfully managed in laboratory experiments, but apparently the Germans cannot get the best out of their fire-spitting innovation.

SUSPICIONS: The gift of a few United States tanks has started a feud between two Latin American countries. Back of the row is a strange story of intrigue and revolution.

Following the war between Peru and Ecuador, an inter-American commission settled a boundary dispute by ceding Ecuadorian territory to Peru. President Carlos Arroyo del Rio of Ecuador accepted the terms.

His proud little nation was furious at the dictator for knuckling to its ancient land-grabbing enemy. Quick to take advantage of popular resentment was Dr. Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra, a scholar with a wide political following but just then out of office.

He staged an uprising that unseated Arroyo del Rio and put himself in the presidential chair. At the critical moment his supporters, seizing a dozen tanks lend-leased by Uncle Sam, dispersed his rival's Carabineros.

Peru was angered by this sudden shift, believing its neighbor's new chief executive might repudiate his predecessor's treaty pladges. But Lima officials are even more bitter toward Colombia. They suspect that leaders in that nation instigated Velasco Ibarra to rebel and cancel a territorial agreement that is advantageous to Peru.

"My Life As An Axis War Prisoner"

Larry Allen Declines To Give Nazis War Secrets

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of three articles by the celebrated Associated Press War correspondent, Larry Allen, recently repatriated from a Nazi prison camp. Winner of a Pulitzer prize for outstanding war correspondence, Allen recounts in this series his experiences as a prisoner of the Germans.)

By LARRY ALLEN
Associated Press Staff Writer

I JUST have been released from 20 months in concentration camps, cellars and dungeons in Italy and Germany. It was no picnic. I know now how precious are bread and freedom.

Before my capture off Tobruk, Sept. 14, 1943, I traveled 125,000 miles with the British fleet in the Mediterranean and survived three sinkings and five torpedoings.

Larry Allen

From the moment I was a captive, I started an Associated Press news service and kept it up in every concentration camp I was in. Camp bulletin boards were my outlets; I sifted the truth from Italian and German newspapers. In Italy, the truth brought me solitary confinement: in Germany, threats of bread and water.

At Tobruk, as soon as I set foot ashore as a prisoner, I asked for an interview with Marshal Rommel. I was told he was too busy but the commandant promised me my release if I would disclose the disposition of the British fleet. My reply was, "Don't be silly!"

Taken to Derna, I went without food or drink for 36 hours, finally was given a bowl of putrid macaroni. Four days later I was flown to Bari in Italy.

All Ships "Sunk"

There began four months in a valley of death. Behind barbed wire, I lived with lice-infested Indian soldiers whose legs were like stilts, their emaciated bodies hideously distorted by the swellings of malnutrition. In those four months I never saw a bar of soap, had a towel or a pair of shoes. I wore only a torn, thin khaki naval uniform. My only food was a small plate of yellowish liquid called "pumpkin soap" and a little roll of hardtack bread that fitted into the palm of my hand.

The commandant said all Allied ships were being sunk and there were no Red Cross food parcels getting through.

I constantly protested for my release as a non-combatant war correspondent. Although my fingers were so swollen by chilblains it was difficult to hold a pen, I made a news bulletin board, translated Italian newspapers and ran a full-fledged AP news service for the thousands of prisoners who passed through the camp.

AFTER four months I was transferred to Chieti, one of Mussolini's political internment camps, converted to house American and British war prisoners. A 20-foot high brick enclosure stood before rows of barbed wire.

One small spigot was the only source of drinking water for 1,400 men. They had to stand hours in line to get a drop. There was a single cold water faucet for baths, but it functioned only a few minutes each day. The prisoners, jammed like sardines into red brick barracks, slept on wooden box slats and sackcloth filled with straw.

The news service went out in Chieti as fast as I could hear it over the Italian loudspeaker. The Italians objected repeatedly to the unvarnished, factual AP style of news presentation and finally banned my bulletin boards. Then, I gave verbal broadcasts. Finally news became so important with the purge of the Fascist party and the last hours of a crumbling Italy, I out the boards back.

Special Punishment

The Italian high command ordered the commandant to imprison me for seven days in a special punishment room. That was last Aug. 27.

After 48 hours, I sent the commandant a note: "I find it impossible to believe that I am being punished for writing the truth in a country which especially cherishes that characteristic." The following morning I was released to the comparative freedom of the camp.

News flashes flew thick and fast in Chieti, Bari, Bologna and near Milan in the early days of September, for I had trained your British officers to write the American way and to carry on the service in whatever camp they were in.

I spent five heavenly weeks in a British officer's internment camp at Fontanellata, near Milan. There in an Italian orphanage, I slept on spring beds, nuns did my laundry and for the first time as a prisoner I ate from white tablecloths and sat on ghairs. I entered a protest to Gen. Mario Toscani, commanding the Milan district, on the deplorable conditions at Cheiti. I was sent back there myself.

FSA Loans Even Being Paid Up In Advance

SAN ANTONIO, June 27. (AP)—Loans made to farmers by the Farm Security administration are being currently retired and even paid up in advance at a higher rate than at any other time since FSA was organized in 1936, C. V. William Broadnax, FSA district supervisor for South Texas, said today.

Out of 1756 borrowers in the 28 South Texas counties extending through the Rio Grande valley which comprise district 2, less than one tenth of one per cent are now delinquent, he said.

MARKET IS BULLISH

NEW YORK, June 27. (AP)—The stock market put on another bullish sprint today, one of the fastest of the year, as peace sentiment war further buoyed at the fall of Cherbourg and mounting political optimism at home touched off investment demand over a wide front.

Numerous issues touched 7-year peaks and blocks of as much as 10,000 Willys-Overland appeared.

Motors, steels, utilities, oils and industrial specialties responded to revived buying inspiration based mainly on post-war prospects for companies in these fields.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was up .1 of a point at 55.6 equalling the highest level since October, 1937, reached last week. It was the second broadest market since April, 1943, 1,001 individual issues registering. Of these, 563 advanced, 215 receded and 223 were unchanged.

Prominent in the "new high" class were General Motors, Willys-Overland, U. S. Steel, Republic Steel, American Water Works, International Telephone, Amerada, Sunray Oil, Kennecott, Delaware and Hudson, Certain-teed Common and Preferred (the latter up 6¼ on persistent recapitalization expectations), Gar Wood, Budd Mfg. and Stone and Webster. In front were American Telephone, Bethlehem, du Pont, Texas Co., and Owens-Illinois.

Douglas Aircraft slipped, along with Deere, Santa Fe, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, Goodyear, Johns-Manville and J. I. Case.

NEW YORK FUTURES

NEW YORK, June 27. (AP)—Cotton futures closed from 95 cents to $1.35 a bale higher today under the influence of the amended price control bill expected to increase textile prices to full parity levels.

Heavy buying by mills, commission houses and New Orleans interests sustained the uptrend which absorbed profit taking in late trading. Spot July cotton reached 22.13 cents a pound, marking the first time since 1927-28 that 22 cent cotton has appeared on the board.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, June 27 (AP) — Cotton futures advanced to new season highs here today and the market closed steady 85 cents to $1.05 a bale higher. Bullish features in the price control bill, now before the president, and absence of first July notices were responsible for the demand.

There was considerable price fixing and covering in the near months while commission houses supported the distants.

	High	Low	Close
July	22.33	22.18	22.33
Oct.	21.46	21.27	21.42

AVERAGE PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, June 27. (AP) — The average price of middling 15/16ths inch cotton today at ten designated Southern spot markets was 70 cents a bale higher at 21.89 cents a pound (new season high); average for the past 30 market days 21.35; middling ⅞ths-inch average 20.73.

GOP Platform

convention as part of a more than 3,000-word statement of Republican principles covering the fields of domestic and world problems.

With a pledge to promote "the fullest stable employment through private enterprise," the platform said remedies should be "based on intelligent cooperation between the federal government, the states and local government and the initiative of civil groups, not on the panacea of federal cash."

Expansion of the social security program was envisioned to cover those not now included, with stimulation of state plans for medical and hospital sservice for the needy. Low cost housing by state and local governments was endorsed when private financing is lacking.

The platform called for decentralization of government.

Agriculture Plank

In a farm plank pledging abundant production of food and fiber crops, the platform endorsed the principle of crop control as a "last resort" measure for dealing with any future "unmanageable" surpluses.

The party promised to restore peace-time industry at the earliest possible moment. Small business, described as the basis of American enterprise, was told it would be protected against discrimination. It also was promised aid through changes in taxation and elimination of "excessive and repressive regulation and government competition."

The platform peldged, to individuals and corporations, post-war tax reductions "consistent with the payment of the normal expenditures of government in the post-war period."

Spending Into Prosperity

"We reject," the document asserted, "the theory of restoring prosperity through government spending and deficit financing."

The party promised a "fair protective tariff on competitive products" to preserve domestic standards of living, but it offered the post-war world cooperation in removing "unnecessary and destructive" barriers to international trade.

In a labor plank, the party accused the Roosevelt administration of attempting to destroy collective bargaining in order to substitute a totalitarian labor front.

Another plank called for a constitutional amendment providing that no person shall be president for more than two terms of four years each.

Poll Tax Abolition

The party asked for the immediate submission of a constitutional amendment abolishing the poll tax as a condition of voting in federal elections.

Other excerpts from the platform:

Racial and religious intolerance—We unreservedly condemn the injection into American life of appeals to racial or religious prejudice.

We pledge an immediate congressional inquiry to ascertain the extent to which mistreatment, segregation and discrimination against negroes who are in our armed forces are impairing morale and efficiency, and the adoption of corrective legislation.

We pledge the establishment by federal legislation of a permanent fair employment practice commission.

Anti-poll tax—The payment of any poll tax should not be a condition of voting in federal elections and we favor immediate submission of a constitutional amendment for its abolition.

Anti-lynching—We favor legislation against lynching and pledge our sincere efforts in behalf of its early enactment.

Brazil was named after the dyewood which was the early settlers' chief export.

Argentine Recall

emphatic disapproval was in the making had been generated by a series of unusual conferences between Secretary of State Hull and Latin American ambassadors.

Recognition of Bolivia last week cleared Pan American dockets for taking up the Argentine problem, viewed here as especially grave.

Officials here have been particularly disturbed by a recent speech by Col. Juan Peron, Argentine minister of war, who called for an expansionist policy for Argentina and told his country that it should be prepared to fight.

The United States has had no diplomatic relations with Argentina since Feb. 25, when General Farrell took over the government from President Pedro Ramirez in a coup d'etat.

Argentina broke relations with Germany and Japan on Jan. 26, and opposition to this move was reported to have been a factor in Ramirez' fall. Since then, the Argentine government has not taken the measures agreed upon by all the American republics just after Pearl Harbor to protect the hemisphere against Axis aggression.

and railhead for the double-track railway leading to Paris. A 75-mile section of the track now is in Allied hands, extending from Cherbourg through Carentan and Bayeux to a point only a few miles west of razed Caen.

"We are continuing our attacking against the last remnants of organized opposition by elements of the enemy's forces holding out in Maupertus airfield, east of Cherbourg, and in the northwest tip of the peninsula," the communique said.

The American capture of valuable Cherbourg and the rapid British attack which gave the Germans no rest came almost four years to the day after Hitler had announced that "the war in the west is finished."

Fear New Landings

German broadcasts betrayed fears of new Allied "leap frog landings" along the French coast now that Cherbourg has been eliminated along with the big coastal guns the Germans had been manning around it.

Cherbourg fell to the American Seventh corps under Maj. Gen. Joseph L. (Lightning) Collins, who commanded American troops at Guadalcanal. The corps comprises the Fourth, Ninth and 79th divisions, it was disclosed by Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, who hailed the seizure as "a magnificent job."

"The fall of Cherbourg ends the second phase in the campaign of liberation," said Allied communique No. 43 at 11 a. m. (4 a. m. C. W. T.)

High Nazis Captured

Lt. Gen. Carl Wilhelm von Schlieben, Nazi garrison commander, and Rear Admiral Hennecke, German naval commander in Normandy, were the prize captives in Cherbourg, where Collins' men crushed the remnants of four German divisions and a naval complement. With 800 men, they came out of an underground fortress and surrendered Monday night. Their collapse gave the Allied troops a total of 20,000 men since the American break-through to the west coast and the wheeling movement which toppled Cherbourg. The prisoner total still is not complete.

A dispatch from 21st Army group headquarters said that five German generals thus far had been killed in Normandy and that 100 German tanks had been destroyed and 200 knocked out, at least temporarily, since D-day. Probably a large proportion of the tanks were wrecked in Montgomery's new drive which appeared to be building rapidly toward a full-scale test of Allied and German armored strength.

FDR Says He Will Okay Economy Acts

WASHINGTON, June 27. (AP)—President Roosevelt said today he will approve recently passed legislation to extend the life of the price and stabilization acts.

The chief executive told his news conference the bill will be signed Saturday to place it in effect July 1, expiration date of the present law. He said he probably will have a statement at that time.

At today's conference, he did not go into the legislation which passed Congress last week after administrationists won a compromise victory toning down amendments which price officials and some others had denounced as inflationary.

PARIS BEING MINED

NEW YORK, June 27. (AP)—The British radio, quoting French-Spanish frontier reports, said the Germans are completing plans for evacuating the German garrison from Paris, and the city is being heavily mined.

Air Power Tops Hopes Of Allies

By GLADWIN HILL
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, June 27 (AP)—In the three weeks of the western front assault Allied air power has far exceeded the expectations of even its most enthusiastic exponents and sober appraisal indicates there are still brighter prospects ahead—with certain important qualifications.

Air power had scored its first big point through the preparatory campaign against the German air force—an aerial offensive that proved so effective the Nazis just didn't have the force to put up the opposition that invasion desperately called for.

Luftwaffe Not Dead

But the Luftwaffe is not dead. It is only decimated and still is strong enough to inflict considerable blows. The Luftwaffe can make a comeback if the German airplane factories are not beaten down again and again.

The mighty D-day bombing of Normandy coastal defenses was praised alike by the Army and Navy. Before many days of the beachhead fighting had gone into history it became clear that this spring's bombing of German communications, a day and night endeavor for three months, had borne fruit. The Germans were able to bring up only enough ground reinforcements in Normandy to plug gaps and not make an effective counterattack.

Opinion of air power has a way of swaying wildly according to the latest piece of news. One week air power is a cure-all. The next the airplane isn't here to stay. To avoid this swing it is wise to look at some outstanding realities.

First, while air power can delay troop movements disastrously it cannot stop them. Railroad tracks can be repaired and improvised bridges can be thrown across rivers within a few hours. It is impossible to prevent troops from moving under cover of darkness.

Second, in daylight air attacks are subject to human fallibilities and natural limitations. Bombs bounce off some emplacements harmlessly. Enemy forces and our own at times are so deeply interlocked that it is impossible to bomb the Germans without endangering our own men.

Nevertheless, in the past three weeks the Allied Air forces have overcome some of their toughest hurdles.

Reds Smash On

the German bulge in the center of the eastern front, it was announced.

Fall of the key German defense points of Vitebsk and Zhlobin, 155 miles to the south, was announced by the Russians yesterday.

Orsha, like Vitebsk and Zhlobin, was subjected to merciless punishment from the Soviet artillery and air force, and Premier Stalin said in an order of the day that it fell to a swift by-passing maneuver in conjunction with a frontal attack."

Nazis Admit Retreat

The German radio already had acknowledged that Nazi forces were retreating in the Mogilev sector and said the Russians were striking in a new area south of Bobruisk, 70 miles southwest of Mogilev. Lates Russian dispatches showed Red Army troops swinging a scythe around Bobruisk, with the tip only 13 miles away on the south.

The Germans admitted also that the battle had "spread north of Vitebsk, where the Russians have thrown in large forces east of Polotsk," and conceded that "the big Soviet offensive does not seem to have reached its full development."

Thus the Red Army was in the process of rapidly caving in the whole German defensive system in White Russia, the so-called "fatherland lines," on a stretch 200 miles long.

Meanwhile, the Soviet offensive against Finland increased in pitch, with more than one-quarter of the Leningrad-Murmansk railway liberated and Soviet shipping already reported using the Svir river, which lines Lakes Ladoga and Onezhkoe (Onega).

Soviet Pressure Heavy

The Finns acknowledged Russian capture of Aunuksenlinna, on the Aunus isthmus, and said Soviet pressure was heavy all around Lake Ladoga, with violent battles raging in the Karelian isthmus north of Heinjoki. A Russian break-through north of Kali also was admitted.

Additional successes in the warfare against the Finns also were described by the communique almost at the same time that Finland was revealing her intention to fight on with armed support from Germany. Nazi troops were reported marching toward the battle zone in southern Finland.

Sheltozero, a district center of the Karelo-Finnish Soviet Socialist republic, was among five railway stations and more than 30 other populated places named in the communique as having been liberated by the Red Army drive between Lakes Ladoga and Onezhskoe.

EASTLAND, June 27. (AP)—J. T. Hamick, 42, oil field worker charged in connection with the death of Lt. Col. Roy Mitchell, has waived examining trial and been released on $2,500 bond.

A former American Airlines executive, Mitchell died in a Jackson, Miss., hospital last Wednesday. Sheriff John Hart said he had been injured while on a visit to Gorman, Tex., about June 8.

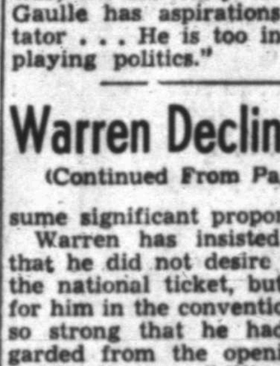

Hamrick was held by New Mexioc authorities at Carlsbad after a complaint had been filed against him before Justice of the Peace J. P. Chapman at Goman. Hamick waived extadition and was returned here Saturday by Sheriff Hart.

The Gallup Poll: DeGaulle Gets Support Of U. S. Public

By GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., June 27. — American voters who have given enough thought to the de Gaulle issue to have an opinion on it, vote overwhelmingly in favor of extending diplomatic recognition to the de Gaulle Committee as the provisional government of France.

This is revealed in a nationwide survey on the de Gaulle issue, which has stirred up a hornet's nest of controversy both in the United States and in England. Newspapers on both sides of the Atlantic have heatedly discussed de Gaule's action in demanding recognition, some praising him as a heroic spirit who personifies French resistance, others criticizing him as a presumptuous leader who stubbornly refuses to cooperate unless he can have his own way.

GALLUP

While only about half the voters of the United States can correctly identify de Gaulle and still fewer have followed the de Gaulle controversy closely enough to have an opinion, those who do have opinions are 2-to-1 in favor of granting the French leader his demands.

This is shown in the vote on the following question:

Should the United States recognize the de Gaulle Committee as the provisional government of France?"

The vote of those who are familiar with the situation and have opinions about it follows:

YES	66%
NO	34

THE ARGUMENTS

The argument put forth most frequently by voters who want to see de Gaulle recognized is that he has proved a loyal ally to our cause in fighting the Germans. For example:

"He's been willing to fight on our side right from the beginning . . . While other French leaders gave up and began cooperating with Hitler, de Gaulle never wavered . . . He seems to have the following of the French people . . . He is loved in France . . . His patriotism and courage entitle him to be recognized . . . We recognize other exile governments who have done less to help us than de Gaulle has . . . He is a responsible leader."

Those who oppose recognition name the following reasons most frequently: "De Gaulle hasn't been chosen officially by the French nation . . . How can we be sure the French themselves want him? . . . We should wait till after the war, it's too early now . . . De Gaulle has aspirations of a dictator . . . He is too interested in playing politics."

Warren Declines

sume significant proportions.

Warren has insisted all along that he did not desire a place on the national ticket, but sentiment for him in the convention has been so strong that he had been regarded from the opening day as the leading possibility.

Others who have been mentioned include Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio, Rep. Everett Dirksen of Illinois, Governor Dwight Griswold of Nebraska, and William Hutcheson, vice president of the American Federation of Labor.

Eric Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, also has figured in talk.

With Warren apparently adamant that he could not take the post, speculation moved back to these.

Largely Up To Dewey

It was generally agreed, however, that the final choice would be left largely to Governor Thomas E. Dewey who has piled up such a harvest of votes that his nomination for the presidency is assured tomorrow morning.

Dewey is reported to have wanted Warren and there is still the possibility he might prevail upon the Californian to accept a draft.

Warren's decision was announced after a caucus of the California delegation.

HOOVER SAYS FREEDOM DEPENDS ON CHANGE

CHICAGO, June 27 (AP)—Herbert Hoover, asserting the New Deal in milder form has followed tactics of European revolutions, told the Republican convention tonight that "only by a change in administration will our returning soldiers find freedom preserved at home."

He also declared that President Roosevelt apparently was engaging in 'power politics" and "personal power diplomacy" in foreign affairs.

"This convention is handing the leadership of the Republican party to a new generation," the former president and party elder statesmen said.

Principal Points

He made these principal points:

1. "Any compromise with Hitler or Tojo will destroy all hope of either freedom or a lasting peace."

2. The young people in the armed services want, most of all, freedom when they return from the war—"they want to be free to choose their own jobs and not be ordered to them by a bureaucrat."

3. Under the New Deal, there has been a progressive degeneration of freedom in America.

4. Freedom can be regenerated in this country but it means the "hard task" of action to "build self-reliance, stimulate initiative, and thereby create men and women of energy, of dignity and of independence."

5. "We are faced already with the gigantic problems of making a peace where freedom can live."

Marine Charged With Murdering His Bride

The 21-year-old Minneapolis girl was found April 4 in her home, her head battered, with evidence that she had been struck five times. She had come here last February to marry Horn, whom she had known in Minneapolis. Horn, admitted he had visited his wife the morning of the slaying, said he had left at 2 a. m. for the Mojave marine base. He denied any knowledge of her slayer.

In Cherbourg Hills Millions In Nazi Goods Among Loot

By DON WHITEHEAD
Associated Press Staff Writer

CHERBOURG, June 27. — An inspection today of Fort Du Roule disclosed stocks of ammunition and a huge inventory of stores worth millions of dollars.

And all the mysteries of this fort, the Germans' strongest bastion guarding the southern approaches to Cherbourg, have not yet been solved by American forces, now swarming the underground chambers driven into a cliffside and reinforced by steel and concrete.

Enough For Months

The deep tunnels held enough food, ammunition, guns and other supplies to have kept a large force supplied for months. There are thousands of cases of cognac, fine French wines, champagnes and liquers, and vast stores of everything from shaving cream to torpedoes.

Officers have not yet located the passages leading to all the series of levels, and there is the possibility Germans may still be inside the fortress. But they made no move to destroy it before our troops broke in.

Cpl. James Bresnahan of Waterbury, Conn., led a group of us through one of the great series of chambers, 300 feet below the cliff top where the Yanks first broke into the fortress. Thick steel doors were blasted open, and inside was an intricate, amazing installation.

200 Yards In Depth

The main tunnel was 200 yards deep, 38 feet high and equally as wide. Off the main tunnel were other rooms of the same height and width and about 50 yards in depth. An overhead crane was electrically powered for moving heavy weapons or ammunition.

An electric light system was found, along with telephones, automatically controlled ventilators and water mains.

By lantern light we walked through the tunnels. They were littered with clothing and equipment of the fortress' defenders.

Double-decked bunks ran along the sides of most of the tunnels where the men lived. Their personal belongings were strewn about in disarray. Some of the Germans had wrapped packages and addressed them to friends and relatives in Germany, but were caught before they could send them out. They contained pieces of silks and satins, cigars, tins of food and trinkets.

Torpedoes On Walls

One chamber that had been occupied by Marines contained 12 large torpedoes hanging on the walls in racks. Down the main corridors the walls were stacked high with boxes of radios, combs, lotions, soap, matches, cigarets, chewing tobacco, playing cards, toothpaste, shaving cream, razor blades and hundreds of other items.

Much of these huge stores will be a blessing to American troops, who are short of items available in quantity inside Fort Du Roule.

Almost all the bunks had food about them, and the lockers had half-eaten cans of preserves and foodstuffs.

Fighting In Italy

Livorno (Leghorn) and Pisa, put 10 miles between themselves and the useful port of Piombino, captured two days ago.

Nazi Equipment Losses

It was announced that the American First Armored division, veterans of the Tunisian campaign and the successful onslaught on Rome, destroyed or captured 22 enemy tanks, 25 motor vehicles, 26 anti-tank guns, 12 field guns and killed an estimated 300 of the enemy in a three-day period last week.

(Prime Minister Winston Churchill announced in London that total British casualties in Italy through the fall of Rome June 4 numbered 73,122 killed, wounded and missing).

Between 250 and 500 Italian-based American heavy bombers fought through screens of German fighters today and bombed unidentified targets near Budapest and a rail yard at Brod, Yugoslavia, despite cloudy weather.

Jap Decision In China May Hold Fate Of War's Length In Orient

By JAMES D. WHITE
Associated Press War Analyst
(Substituting for Kirke L. Simpson)

Japan is at a turning point in south central China, where Premier-General Tojo will choose between a passive defense based on the Maginot line mentality and an aggressive counteroffensive which if successful could prolong the war in the Orient.

The evidence is that he is choosing the latter course.

Literally, the Japanese Army already is at a fork in the road. From the strategic rail junction of Hengyang which it now besieges, one railway runs south to Canton, another southwest to Kweilin.

Uneasiness Over Route

Chungking dispatches now openly express fear that the Japs may take the road to Kweilin, 180 miles away.

The danger of a drive on Kweilin has been obvious since it became apparent that this summer the Japanese would take Changsha and for the first time invade the approaches to American air bases in southeast and southwest China, but the suggestion did not get past the Chinese censor until yesterday. No official hint was given as to why this subject now becomes mentionable, but it is possible that the Japs may already be on the road to Kweilin from Hengyang which may have been bypassed.

All fronts in the Far East are complicated, but the one sector which makes them comprehensible is the uniformity of Japanese policy and the way it ties in various fronts to a single objective.

With this principle in mind, widely separated pieces of strategy can be fitted into a pattern whereby Japan seeks to paralyze the weakest spot in the Allied line against her. In simple truth and without reflection upon the bravery and patience of the Chinese, this weak spot is China.

Clarence Wants To Be Punished So His Girl Will Take Him Back

HOUSTON, June 27. (U.P.) — A negro named Clarence was pushing guys named Romeo, Abbelard and Lancelot today for top honors in the realm of romance and gallantry.

Clarence's romance went astray last night when he socked his girl friend in an argument.

Today, Clarence called Deputy Sheriff E. C. Lindley to inquire if charges had been filed. Being of romantic nature, Clarence was not even slightly relieved to learn that his girl friend hadn't filed any.

Clarence reckoned he'd have to file against himself. Lindley said that was incredible and wanted to know why the whole thing couldn't be forgotten.

"Boss, I done wrong in hittin' that woman," Clarence explained, "and she ain't gonna take me back until I'm punished for it."

Volcano's Lava Again Advancing On Town

URUAPAN, Mexico, June 27. (AP) —Military trucks were in Parangaricutiro today to remove the last of the inhabitants as lava from the Paricutin volcano broke through a wall of rock and advanced on the town again.

An earlier flow of molton rock had solidified and dammed up the lava for several months, but yesterday it broke and the flow toward the village started again. Lt.-Col. Jesus Gaitan Esparza said it would arrive at the village in two weeks, but that he hoped the last of the villagers would leave during the day.

Collections through yesterday were $60,000,000 compared with $56,000,000 by June 30 of last year.

Lumber Controls To Go In Effect On Aug. 1
