Sharp on report

AUSTIN — State Comptroller John Sharp said Wednesday the White House should sell its plan to make government more efficient by taking it directly to the people.

"You have to go outside the Beltway, you have to go outside the established political structure and you've got to tell the American people what's in this report," Sharp said./4B

Zero tolerance

The Midland school district's zero tolerance drug policy was in evidence Wednesday when two juveniles were sent to Culver Youth Home for carrying marijuana onto the Midland Freshman High School campus.

A 15-year-old MFHS student — with one marijuana cigarette and cigarette rolling papers — was apprehended by campus administrators about noon Wednesday at the school.

About 3:30 p.m., MISD police apprehended a 16-year-old, who is not enrolled in the school distirct, with a small bag of marijuana, drug paraphernalia and an illegal knife — specifically a dagger.

Under new statues, the second teen was charged with a third-degree felony for bringing a weapon within 1,000 feet of a school campus.

Last week, students at Lee Freshman High School who were caught with marijuana were transported to Culver Youth Home.

ODESSA — A dangerous possibility of what could happen when handling explosives became a grim reality Wednesday when an Odessa officer was injured during a public explosives demonstration conducted by the PetroPlex Bomb Squad.

Ector County Independent School District officer Jim Loika was in stable condition at Medical Center Hospital Wednesday evening with an eye injury that was caused by the demonstration at the City of Odessa Training Facility.

Although at the time of the explosion it was uncertain what exactly caused the injury, officials at the scene speculated that the detonation of a pound of military C-4 explosives sent a rock or bullet fragment approximately 75 yards into a crowd of spectators.

U.S. literacy: Study paints bleak picture

Agency: Texans' reading, writing rank below norm

AUSTIN (AP) — Adult Texans' literacy levels are below the national average, according to preliminary results of a state survey released Wednesday by the Texas Education Agency.

The reading and writing skills of more than a quarter of Texas' 13 million adults ranked at the bottom level of the study, according to TEA.

That means they might be able to perform basic tasks, such as totaling a deposit slip or identifying specific information in a brief news story, the agency said. But they could not do more challenging work.

The Texas study was done in conjunction with the 1992 National Adult Literacy Survey conducted by the Educational Testing Service of Princeton, N.J.

Participants in the literacy study were tested in three areas: prose, document and quantitative.

The prose score was based on ability to locate information in written text, like newspaper articles or instructions. The document score was based on ability to locate facts in complex materi-

■ Nearly half of adults read, write so poorly that they are unable to function effectively in workplace.

By Liam Celis III
N.Y. Times News Service

Nearly half of the nation's 191 million citizens are not proficient enough in English to write a letter about a billing error or to calculate the length of a bus trip from a published schedule, according to a four-year federal study of literacy in America.

The study, released Wednesday by the Education Department, presented a bleak statistical portrait of the nation's literacy.

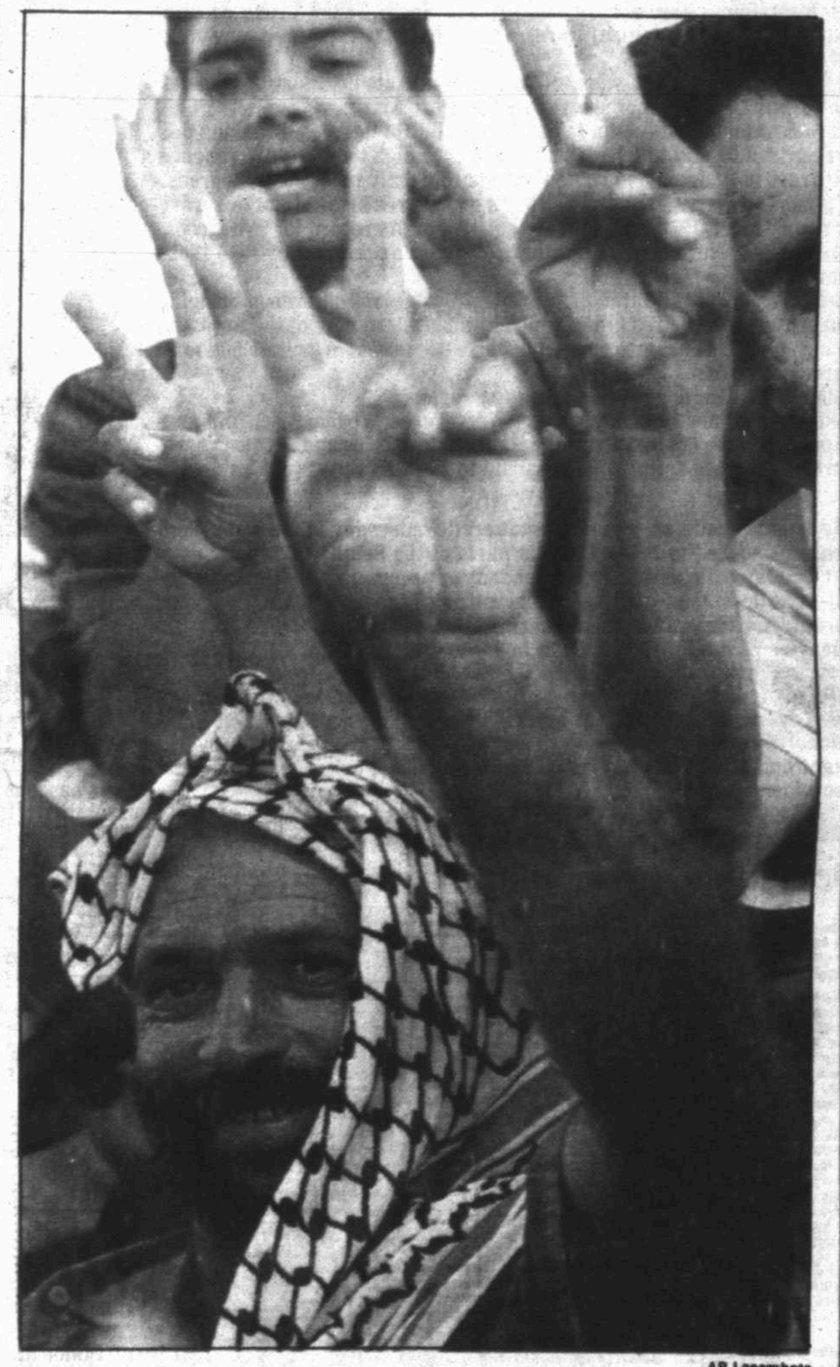

The department tested more than 26,000 Americans, in a representative sampling of adult population, with questions revolving around practical matters that people face every day, like gleaning information from a newspaper, reading a bus schedule, making out a bank-deposit slip and understanding instructions for prospective jurors.

Like previous studies, this report said nearly 10 percent of Americans say they have difficulty reading and writing: the usual gauge of illiteracy. But it went deeper by assessing how well people understand English and by including questions that require addition and subtraction.

Locally, Midland Need to Read's President Cindy Turland called the study "disturbing and something to be very concerned about."

"Everyone should make every effort

Gunman kills German tourist while wife recites safety rules

By Catherine Wilson
Associated Press writer

MIAMI — Uwe-Wilhelm Rakebrand had just arrived from Germany for a vacation with his wife. While he filled out his car rental contract, a videotape playing every five minutes in the background gave tourists tips about avoiding street crime.

Don't become another victim of the violence targeting tourists in Florida, the rental office video said. Don't stop for the "bump-and-rob" ploy.

Less than five miles away, as the 33-year-old Rakebrand drove a new red Toyota toward a Miami Beach hotel early Wednesday, the car was rammed twice from behind by a van. Safety pamphlet in hand, Rakebrand's 27-year-old wife told him to keep going, police said.

Disabled officers sue to end civilianization of police jobs

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff writer

A lawsuit filed Tuesday seeks to stop the city of Midland from civilianizing some police positions, claiming the move unnecessarily would strip several disabled officers of their jobs.

The changeover, effective Oct. 1, is an attempt by the city to circumvent the federal American Disabilities Act and the comparable Texas law, the Human Rights Act, according to the lawsuit filed in the 238th District Court.

"That's obviously intentional and in my opinion we can prove it," said attorney John E. Gunter.

In reply to the allegations, the city maintained its policy of refraining from commmenting on pending litigation, City Attorney Keith Stretcher said.

Terry Anderson's retelling is a frightening look at the inhumanity of terrorism.

Ex-hostage describes ordeal

'You are a spy'; 'No, I am a journalist'

NEW YORK (AP) — On March 16, 1985, Associated Press correspondent Terry Anderson was kidnapped by Muslim extremists in Beirut. He would be kept captive for 6½ years, the longest-held Western hostage in Lebanon.

His account of his ordeal, "Den of Lions," will be released next month by Crown Publishers. This is the first of a three-part serialization of excerpts from the book.

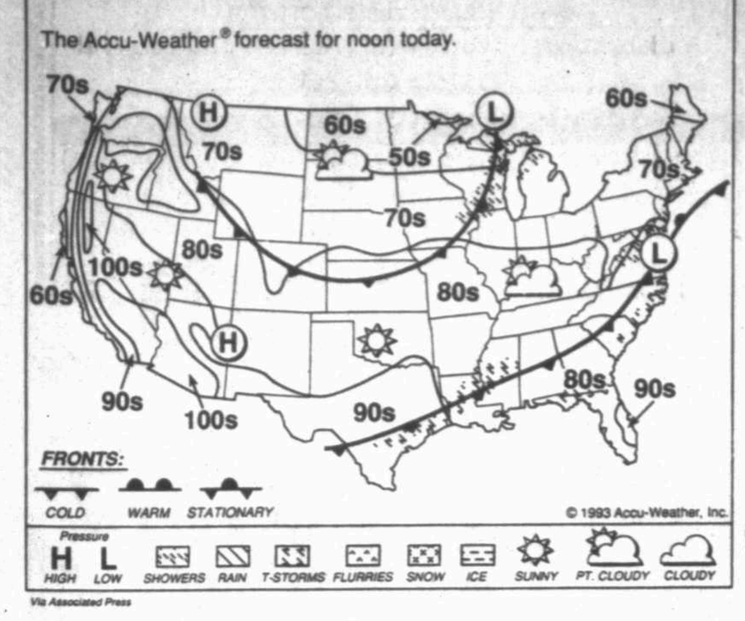

Anderson's retelling of those harrowing years is both a frightening look at the inhumanity of terrorism, and a profound self-examination. As he writes in a foreword, it is "an attempt to define who I was, and who I became."

Sunny skies, high 80s on menu

Staff report

Today's forecast calls for sunny skies with a high between 85-90 and south winds at 10-15 mph. Tonight should be mostly cloudy with a low near 60, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Friday should be partly cloudy with a high in the mid-80s.

After an overnight low of 65, Wednesday's high reached 80, compared to the record high for that date of 100 set in 1989. The record low was 53 set in 1956.

STATE

At least four cities across Central and South Texas broke records Wednesday for high temperatures as North Texas remained unusually cool after morning rains.

Temperature records were broken in San Antonio, Austin, Houston and Corpus Christi. Another was tied in Port Arthur.

In San Antonio and Austin temperatures hit 101 degrees, breaking daily records of 99 and 100, both set in 1963. The high temperature reached 99 degrees in Houston and busted a 6-year-old daily record of 98 degrees.

Corpus Christi hit 98 degrees. That's one degree higher than the previous record set in 1977. And Port Arthur tied a 1970 record for 96 degrees.

Meanwhile, North Texas weather produced a stark contrast to those record-breaking highs.

A cold front moved through the region Wednesday afternoon bringing temperatures in the 70s in the central and western part of the area and 80s in the east. Extremes ranged from 71 degrees at Wichita Falls to 92 degrees at Lufkin.

Light rain also developed across the region.

Skies were mostly sunny across West Texas Wednesday. Temperatures were in the 60s and 70s in the Panhandle and 70s and 80s elsewhere. Extremes ranged from 63 in Amarillo to 88 in El Paso.

NATION

Rain and thunderstorms were scattered Wednesday in the East. Temperatures soared to 100 degrees in parts of the South.

At midday, rain and storms extended over southern New England, the mid-Atlantic states, the Appalachian and Tennessee Valley regions, Florida, Arkansas and the southern Plains.

Heavier rainfall during the six hours ending at 1 p.m. CDT included nearly an inch in Washington, D.C.

Three water spouts developed off the central Atlantic Coast and one moved over land near Brigantine, N.J., damaging a house and trees, the National Weather Service said.

Lightning struck and injured a man in Pinellas Park, Fla., the weather service said.

INJURE: Odessa officer in stable condition

to have shattered his glasses," said bomb squad member Lt. Richard Pate of the Ector County Sheriff's Department. "It was either a rock or bullet fragment that the explosion sent this way."

Whatever the explosion sent into the crowd hit the left lens of Loika's glasses, causing it to shatter and injure his eye and face. Loika fell against a barrel sitting behind him and then fell to the ground. Paramedics attending the demonstration treated Loika until an ambulance arrived on the scene.

One of the paramedics, who did not wish to be identified, said it appeared that most of the damage had been done above the eye.

Ector County Chief Deputy Mark Donaldson said he was standing near Loika when the accident occurred.

"Everyone had their fingers in their ears during the explosion and when I took mine out, I heard something hit the barrel behind me," he said. "When I turned, I saw Jim Loika on the ground and someone was saying he had been hit with something."

The explosion was the last of about two hours of explosives demonstrations set off by the five-member bomb squad. Three tables of explosives and information were set up during the demonstration and the C-4 explosive that injured Loika was originally on display. It was taken off the table and set off at the end of the demonstration.

"This is terribly unfortunate," said Midland Police Department Sgt. Andy Glasscock, bomb squad member. "We all know what the dangers are of handling explosives. Once a month, the bomb squad explodes about 5,000 pounds of explosives. You know something like this can happen, but you just try not to think about it."

Pate said Wednesday's accident was the first that has occurred during either a public demonstration or the squad's monthly detonation of explosives.

"We have these public demonstrations about every three to four years for mainly area law enforcement who deal with explosives to show them what they may run into," he said. "We have never had an accident. Unfortunately, this shows the real dangers that we run into all the time."

SUE: Disabled officers file class-action lawsuit

(From 1A)

The class-action lawsuit was filed by officers Milton O'Bryant, Leonard Hendon Jr., Jimmy Cross, Joe Ortiz, Kevin Matlock, Harold "Ladd" Turner and unnamed "John Does." Several officers have expressed apprehension about being named in the lawsuit, Gunter said.

The officers claim they are being discriminated against — in direct violation of the ADA and HRA — because they are disabled.

If the positions are changed from commissioned to civilian, the officers will lose their jobs, their law-enforcement certification and the opportunity for advancement in their police careers, the lawsuit contends. In turn, benefits such as retirement may be subsequently lost.

The lawsuit was filed seeking a judge to grant an injunction to prevent the Oct. 1 civilianization until the court can decide the legality.

Ultimately, the officers want to be "reasonably accommodated," such as through alternative placement in the Police Department, Gunter said.

"All of them could be reasonably accommodated," Gunter said.

Gunter exemplified the situation with the case of Milton O'Bryant, who sustained a back injury after being ordered to undergo an endurance test, specifically leg presses.

"He is an outstanding police officer. He had the highest grades ever in the police academy he attended," Gunter said.

O'Bryant has held various duties with the Police Department including detective. Since his injury, O'Bryant has been "relegated" to a desk position, answering the telephone with no uniform, badge or gun, Gunter said. "He's practically treated as a civilian now," the attorney said.

"The chief is determined one way or another of getting rid of Milton O'Bryant," Gunter said.

The lawsuit claims the city has refused to make reasonable accommodations to O'Bryant and the other officers. "These are career people who should be treated with respect," Gunter said.

Gunter maintained that the Police Department has other commissioned positions that the officers, with limited disabilities, can perform.

"He (O'Bryant) could be the police chief and run the department better than it's run now," Gunter said.

O'Bryant's claims of employment discrimination because of his disability are not new to the courts. In September of last year, he filed a lawsuit in federal court, which the presiding judge refused to hear because O'Bryant was injured before the ADA. The case merits are pending in appeals court and are expected to be decided in November.

STUDY: Nearly half lack necessary literacy

to rectify this problem," Mrs. Turland said. "More people need to realize that programs like Need to Read are free and open to the public. More people than do need to take advantage of this program."

Although she did not have any current figures for Midland, Mrs. Turland said that the city does have a serious problem with illiteracy.

Insufficient education and a growing number of adults whose first language is not English were important reasons that the scores were so low, according to the study, conducted by the Educational Testing Service, the New Jersey company that administers the Scholastic Aptitude Test for college admissions and other standardized tests.

The study did not draw any conclusions about intelligence; rather, it assessed reading skills needed for the workplace and for civic activities like voting or jury service. Because the test was given in English only, there was no way to gauge whether native foreign-language speakers would have shown higher literacy rates in their first language.

In releasing the study, the Education Department called for a comprehensive approach to solutions, involving businesses, schools and community groups. Just as the Education Department of the Reagan administration used "A Nation at Risk," a 1983 study of the shortcomings of education in American, as a manifesto for change in the public schools, the Education Department under Clinton hopes the 150-page study will become a similar impetus. The department, in collaboration with the Labor Department, has begun studying improving job skills and on literacy in the workplace.

"The results are very sobering and they indicate the need for a much greater effort than has been expended until now," said Madeleine M. Kunin, deputy secretary of education, whose office oversees the research and statistical arm of the department.

TEXAS: State literacy level below average

als and combine it with prior knowledge to generate new information. The quantitative score was based on ability to glean mathematical information from documents.

On prose literacy, Texans' average was 259 of a maximum 500, according to TEA. The national average was 272.

On document literacy, the Texas average was 255, compared with 267 nationally.

Texans scored at the 258 proficiency level in quantitative literacy. The national level was 271.

A score of 225 or lower put people on the lowest of five literacy levels. The highest level was for those with scores of 376 or more. No more than 3 percent of Texans surveyed scored in the highest category.

Responding to the survey results, state Education Commissioner Lionel "Skip" Meno said Texas must consider how to meet the educational needs of those performing at the lowest literacy levels.

"Today's survey results would indicate that a basic education is still lacking for many adult Texans," Meno said.

"Many of these individuals will require retraining, additional education and continuing education to help our state and nation to succeed in an increasingly competitive global economy," he said.

About 28 percent, or 3.4 million, Texas adults don't have a high school diploma. Twelve percent, or 1.5 million, have completed less than nine years of school.

Meanwhile, Texas' allocation of $9 million for adult education programs ranks 46th among the states, according to TEA. California allocates $400 million and Michigan puts in $426 million.

Ironically, the national survey indicated that most Americans, even those at the lowest literacy levels, believe they read and write well.

Consequently, many adults may not seek help, according to TEA.

The survey was the first such study of Texans' literacy in 18 years, according to TEA. A 1975 survey estimated that one in five Texans was functionally illiterate, without the skills to function successfully in society, and one in three had only marginally competent literacy skills.

TOURIST: German follows rules, winds up dead

(From 1A)

But when he did, a single shot fired from the van shattered the driver's window and hit him in the back, killing him. The van sped away.

Police had no idea why the Rakebrands were targeted.

Late Wednesday night, however, they announced the arrest of a suspect, 19-year-old Ricondall Wiggins, on charges of murder and attempted robbery. Sgt. Gerald Green said a tip led to the break in the case. He would not elaborate.

Wiggins was alleged to be the driver of the van. More suspects were being including possibly a woman, Green said, characterizing them as "hunters."

"They're hunting for robbery victims. It could have been your family. It could have been anybody in the community," Green said.

It was the eighth slaying of a foreign visitor to Florida in a year.

"Vicious. Brutal. Disgusting. Horrible. Pick a word," said police spokesman Angelo Bitsis.

"We are completely outraged," said Liz Clark, a spokeswoman for Alamo Rent A Car, which rented the car to Rakebrand. "There is absolutely nothing the victim could have done to prevent this crime."

The killing brought swift reaction from the German government and the White House.

"Obviously, it's tragic, violence against foreigners as well as violence against Americans," White House press secretary Dee Dee Myers said. "It's something that the president is very concerned about."

Germany's foreign ministry repeated its warning that tourists have rental cars delivered to their hotels rather than pick them up at Miami International Airport. Travel advisories will be re-examined because of the latest attack, the ministry said.

More than 400,000 Germans travel to Florida each year, including about 250,000 visiting the Miami area.

Rental cars in Florida in the past have been easy targets, marked with special license plates, bumper stickers and window stickers.

But rental companies this year have been removing those distinguishing features and Rakebrand, an agriculture engineer from Adendorf, Germany, was driving a car without any such markings.

The precautions were no help.

"That's what makes this one so alarming, because these people did everything they could to protect themselves," said Gary Stogner, spokesman for the Florida Division of Tourism.

The name of Rakebrand's wife wasn't released, and Bitsis wouldn't comment on reports that she is four months pregnant.

Gov. Lawton Chiles, in Miami for hearings, changed his schedule to meet with the German consul general. He said he was "just so distressed I don't know what to say."

An eight-agency task force has made 215 arrests in the Miami area since the last tourist killing in April.

Highway signs directing tourists between the airport and beach have been added. Travel groups and rental car agencies are distributing safety brochures to visitors; Alamo's brochure comes in six languages.

ORDEAL: Former hostage Anderson gives his account

(From 1A)

From "Den of Lions: Memoirs of Seven Years," by Terry Anderson. Copyright 1993 by TMS Corporation. Published by Crown Publishers, Inc.

There was no conversation in the car, except for an occasional muttered "Down, down," and a shove with the foot, or a poke with a gun into my back. The gunmen said nothing to each other.

After 15 or 20 minutes, the car turned off the main highway straight into what seemed to be a garage. A metal door clanged down, cutting off the street noise. The doors were yanked open, and hands grabbed at me, pulling me upright, but careful to keep the blanket over my head. There were mutterings in Arabic, short, guttural, incomprehensible.

Someone slipped the blanket away, slipping a dirty cloth around my head at the same time, then wrapping plastic tape around and around. Other hands grabbed at my tennis shoes, yanking them off. Someone pulled at the gold chain around my neck, fumbled with the fastening until it opened. Then the gold bracelet on my right wrist, the watch on my left, also went.

"Don't," I said, involuntarily. "They're gifts. Don't take them."

"We are not thieves," one of the men said. He stuck my watch into my sock. Not the chain or bracelet. I never saw either again.

More tape, around my wrists and arms. I was pulled out of the car and guided clumsily to the side of the garage, pushed down onto a filthy blanket smelling of oil and gasoline.

My legs were taped tightly, around the ankles, knees, and thighs. I could no longer sit upright and slid sideways. One of the men lifted me up by my arm and shoulder and propped me against the wall.

The men talked among themselves for a few minutes, then several left. Only one seemed to be still with me, pacing back and forth.

After a while — 20 minutes? An hour? No way to tell — they came back. I was pulled upright, guided across the floor, and seated again.

"What is your name?" a voice asked, heavily accented.

"Terry Anderson. I am a journalist."

"Your company?"

"The Associated Press. A wire service."

The man seemed uninterested in my answers. Either he understood "wire service" — unlikely — or he didn't care.

"Why have you taken me? Who are you?"

Muttering in Arabic. "Quiet. We ask questions. Do you know where you are?"

"No." Explaining my deductions didn't seem wise.

"You are a spy."

"No. I am a journalist. I work for The Associated Press. What do you want from me?"

The interrogation went on, almost aimlessly, without heat. Accusations. Denials.

"Why do you have this?" A hand shoved something at me. Peering along my nose, through the small gap it made in the tape around my head, I saw the gold charm from my chain — an inscription from the Koran.

"It was a gift."

"You are Muslim?"

"No. Christian."

"Why do you wear this?"

"My wife gave it to me."

"She is Muslim?"

"No. Maronite. Catholic."

"You are not Muslim. Why do you wear words from the Koran?"

"They are beautiful. They are the words of God." He was obviously unsatisfied, and muttered to his companions. Then more serious questions.

"What other Americans do you know? Who works at your office?"

"I can't tell you that."

"You must say. Give us the names of all the Americans you know."

"No. I can't do that."

"We can make you."

"I know you can try. You can hurt me. But I can't give you the names of my friends."

"We have electricity. You know?"

ORDEAL: 'There was no conversation in car'

(From 2A)

"Yes. I know. But I still won't give you names. They are my friends. I can't help you kidnap them." I decided to take a chance.

"Can you call my office? Tell them I am alive? My wife will be very, very worried."

"You want your wife here? We can go get her, bring her here."

"She is pregnant. You would not harm her. You cannot be so evil."

"We will take her, too. No one can stop us."

"God will stop you. No one has to stop you. You will not do this."

"Give us the names."

"No. I'm sorry. I can't. Do what you want to. I still can't."

More demands. Refusals. Strangely, the procedure was still without heat. It didn't seem as if they really meant the threats. It was hard to believe they might carry them out, though nothing I had ever seen in Lebanon gave me any confidence in their humanity or reluctance to inflict pain. They just didn't seem serious about it.

It ended after perhaps 30 or 40 minutes. The men got up and left, except for one. He shoved me back against the wall, resumed pacing.

I could think of nothing except Madeleine, still in bed, sleepily kissing me goodbye at 7 a.m. Six months pregnant, her belly making a mound of the blanket. She would know soon, probably knew already. Don would have gone straight to the office, alerted the AP people there. They would have gone to our apartment, just a few hundred yards from where I was kidnapped.

I began crying silently, rocking forward and back against the wall, my knees shoved tightly between my taped arms. Who would tell her? How? I twisted my wrists against the tape, struggling against it. The guard came, bent over and, surprisingly gently, put his hand on my arm. "No. No. No good."

I stopped struggling and tried to compose my mind. Breathe evenly, smoothly, gently. Calm. Don't think. Calm.

(More than three weeks pass before the shackled Anderson is even allowed to sit up. Several hostages are brought together, though isolated by blindfolds and partitions. Anderson thinks incessantly of Madeleine; of Mickey, the wife from whom he seeks a divorce; and of their daughter, Gabrielle. He reproaches himself for not taking seriously enough an apparent unsuccessful kidnap attempt the day before he was seized. In the final passage, he describes his young guards.)

---

Twenty-four days. It must be about the 8th of April. I'd kept track by scratching a line in the wall next to my head each gray dawn, beginning with what I thought was the third day. My body was locked for hours each day in cramps from the effort of not moving. I was exhausted by the ceaselessly churning thoughts in my head, images of my family, friends, wrung by emotions so sharp and strong, my chest hurt.

Around and around, over and over, remorse, anger, pain. Replaying endless scenarios in which I escaped, gunned the car, jumped out and dropped my kidnapper with a karate blow, grabbed his gun and shot him — useless, childish plays. Humiliation of trying to pee in a bottle while lying down. Humiliation of being poked and prodded and cursed at. I knew I was on the edge of madness, of losing control completely, breaking down.

Finally, as one of the guards walked past my cot, I called out softly. "Chebab. Hey."

"Shu?"

"Tehki Inglisi?" Speak English?

"Lahsa." One moment.

He left, came back with another guard.

"What?"

"I can't do this anymore. I am not an animal. I am a human being. You can't treat me like this."

"What do you want?"

"A book. A Bible. And to move. You must loosen these chains. I will go crazy."

A grunt. The two guards exchanged a few words.

"I speak chef."

"Thank you."

The next day, late in the afternoon, the English-speaking guard came in and threw a heavy object on the bed. I reached for it, felt the smooth covers of a book.

The guard came around to the head of the bed.

"Good?"

"Yes, very good, thank you."

He began fiddling with the chain on my right hand. After some fumbling, he got the lock open, then replaced it, but allowing a foot or so more chain. Moving around the bed, he did the same on the other side.

"Sit up. But no look."

I sat up slowly, stiffly. He pulled the blanket off me and draped it over my head, leaving it hanging in front of my face. "Now look."

I cautiously pulled my blindfold up a bit, until I could see the book. Red, new. A Bible, the Revised Standard Version. I caressed it gently.

"May I read now?"

"Thirty minutes. Be careful. No look."

"Thank you."

I leaned forward so the blanket would hang down over my face, but allow light from the bulb above me to fall on the book in my lap. Opening the cover gently, I sniffed at the pages, inhaling the new-book, paper-and-ink smell like perfume. My back started aching almost immediately, but I ignored it.

I read the title page, the publishing and copyright information, the notes of the editors, slowly, carefully. Then: Genesis.

"In the Beginning . . ."

Dim, gray light. Blank ceiling, bare electric light bulb just visible over the top of the partition, but giving no light, since the electricity was off again. Snoring of guards. Tired. Just tired. Hours, long nights, praying. "Dear God. What have I done? I'm not good, I know that. I've cheated and lied. I've strayed so far from you. Self-indulgence. Stupidity. I'm sorry. But do something. Anything. I just can't do this. I can't."

It's surprising what you can remember when you have nothing to do but remember. At first, the mind is a blank. Jesus, I always thought I was smart. Where are all the things I learned, the books I read, the poems I memorized? There's nothing there, just a formless, gray-black misery. My mind's gone dead. God, help me.

Start with the memories. Forget the stupidity of not paying attention, of walking out into the street after one kidnap attempt, the very next morning, to give them your open, stupid self. That's done. You're paying. Think about Madeleine — so beautiful, all dark and flashing and loving. You're so lucky, to win this woman now, after all these years. What is she doing? What is she feeling? Stop. It hurts too much.

What about Mickey, and Gabrielle? I've hurt them both, greatly.

Gunmen kill 21 commuters in S. Africa

By Tina Susman
Associated Press writer

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — White rule is on its way out and sanctions will go with it, but South Africans hoping to greet democracy in a new Chevy and Levi's were warned Wednesday against over-optimism.

Violence and the leftover stigma of doing business with South Africa probably will keep major foreign companies away for years, political and business leaders here say — and international loans will be delayed until a new, elected government is in place.

Hours after ANC President Nelson Mandela announced that within weeks he would endorse lifting sanctions, at least 21 evening commuters were shot dead outside Johannesburg, police reported.

Mandela's statement followed agreement by black and white groups Tuesday to form a multiracial council that will help run the country until elections. The Transitional Executive Council will not have absolute power, but President F.W. de Klerk must consult with it on major decisions, forcing the white government to share power with blacks for the first time.

The decision clears the way for lifting of foreign sanctions limiting investments in South Africa and barring it from international loans.

The United States, the European Community, and most other countries have ended most major sanctions. Hard-hitting embargoes remain in effect in many U.S. cities and states, however, and much-needed loans from the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund remain out of reach for now.

Mandela told a news briefing that creating the transitional council "is going to lead to the lifting of sanctions. But no wise businessman is going to take the risk of investing in the country until the violence is stopped."

Political clashes have killed more than 10,000 blacks in the past three years.

Mandela's warning failed to dampen the first Made in U.S.A. trade expo, a sign of the changing times, which opened Tuesday night at the World Trade Center as negotiators in a room upstairs drafted the end of white rule.

Rock music blasted from the stereo of a Jeep Cherokee as browsers moved through stands selling fake fingernails, tapered ball bearings, portable toilets, pinball machines, spray starch, and even an American Humvee, an armored vehicle used by the U.S.

PLO official: Mutual recognition is agreed

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — Yasser Arafat asked the PLO's ruling board Wednesday to approve his peace deal with Israel, and one PLO official said the Palestine Liberation Organization and the Jewish state had agreed on mutual recognition.

Recognition and PLO Executive Committee approval are the key hurdles before the accord for Palestinian self-rule in the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip and the West Bank town of Jericho can be signed.

Arafat entered what promised to be a stormy meeting Wednesday night, still facing rear-guard opposition from radical PLO factions opposed to the peace accord. But he was expected to win the backing of nine of the 13 members attending, more than the majority required for approval.

The Israeli magazine Haolam Hazeh, meanwhile, quoted Arafat as saying Israel has agreed to a two-stage withdrawal plan from the Golan Heights in exchange for peace with Syria. There was no immediate comment from the usually secretive Damascus government.

■ More world news/8C

The gathering at Arafat's headquarters was held amid tight security. Security officers kept journalists out of the building.

One member who opposes the pact, Abdullah Hourani, grumbled to The Associated Press, "The Palestinians should not surrender and give the Israelis whatever conditions they impose on us." Hourani is head of the PLO's cultural affairs department.

Committee member Mahmoud Ismail, a member of the Iraqi-based Arab Liberation Front, said he would "reject the proposal on principle."

Foes of the plan say it ignores prime issues such as Israeli settlements in the occupied territories, the status of Jerusalem and the future of refugees.

Arafat arrived in Tunis after a brief stopover in Cairo en route from Oman, where Sultan Qaboos welcomed the peace accord. The trip was Arafat's first to an oil-rich Persian Gulf nation since the oil states broke with him three years ago over his support for Iraq after its invasion of Kuwait.

In Tunis, a senior PLO official said the PLO and Israel had agreed on a draft declaration of mutual recognition.

The official, a member of the PLO committee that supervises the Mideast peace talks in Washington, spoke on condition of anonymity. He said under the draft, Arafat would:

— Announce recognition of Israel and its right to exist.

Tensions mount in Bosnia as winter nears

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Muslim-led government and Serb troops moved into battle positions around Mount Igman before U.N. peacekeepers defused tensions Wednesday on the strategic peak overlooking Sarajevo.

A U.N. spokesman, Cmdr. Idesbald van Biesebroeck, blamed the momentary flare-up on a misunderstanding — an unannounced troop rotation. But the rapid reinforcement by both sides reacting to a perceived threat revealed the fragility of the U.N.-mediated truce on the mountain.

The Bosnian government, meanwhile, pleaded for international help to prevent an "enormous human catastrophe" for its malnourished people this winter.

The government urged the United Nations to take control of the transport and distribution of gas, water and electricity — often used as weapons of war — and to open land routes for convoys carrying food supplies.

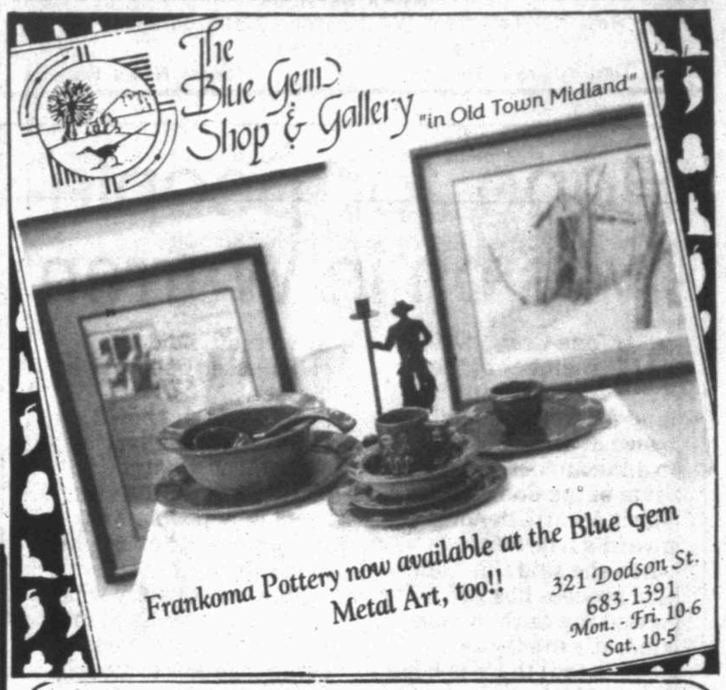

Bosnian radio reported nine dead and 40 wounded in heavy shelling by both Serbs and Croats of the Muslim sector of Mostar, where fighting has blocked many aid convoys to Sarajevo and central Bosnia. There was no independent confirmation.

Van Biesebroeck said U.N. observers first noted troop movements in the thousands by both sides on Mount Igman early Tuesday, indicating the combatants were preparing to clash.

He said the movement was caused by an unannounced rotation of government soldiers into the Igman area and was defused Wednesday in meetings that U.N. officials held with both sides.

Rebel Serbs wrested control of the mountain from government forces this summer. They reluctantly withdrew most of their troops last month to bring Bosnian President Alija Izetbegovic back to peace talks.

Hope for people lives on in Warren

Mona Craig, a member of the Leadership Midland Alumni Association's board of directors that in June announced the revival of the Community Spirit Award, denoted the award's true allure when she said the "selection process has renewed my faith in mankind. It's made me believe that there is hope for people."

Ms. Craig, of course, was talking about the selection of Warren, Ind., a farming community of 12,000 people, as recipient of the fourth Community Spirit Award. Warren won over 129 other cities that had submitted applications for the award. The community's volunteers worked feverishly for three weeks last December to turn Warren's civic center into a temporary school building for adjoining Southern Wells Community School District.

The neighboring school district's elementary school had been destroyed by fire, and Warren's leaders and volunteers responded with enthusiasm and hard work to put the former high school and elementary school into condition for school classes for Southern Wells students. As a result, students only missed one week of classes.

As Ms. Craig noted, the Warren application epitomized what the selection committee was seeking — people working together to overcome hardship.

That was exactly what occurred in Midland in 1987 when volunteers came together to save little Jessica McClure who had fallen into a water well. The impending tragedy was averted because people put thoughts of themselves behind and worked toward the goal of saving the little girl. After Jessica's rescue, former Mayor Carroll Thomas started the Community Spirit Award as a means of honoring communities that respond to crises the way Midland did. The award had been discontinued in 1992, but was revived by the Leadership Midland Alumni Association.

That's good. As this year's award attests, recognizing people and communities who go beyond the ordinary limits to help others is a worthwhile endeavor. Congratulations to the people of Warren, Ind. They exemplify what is best about extending a helping hand to others in need.

Israel stakes survival on promises

WASHINGTON — Ninety-nine years have passed since Theodor Herzl, appalled by anti-Semitism during the 1894 Dreyfus trial, energized the Zionist movement that produced the Jewish state. Now, it suddenly seems probable that there soon will be a second Palestinian state, of sorts.

Will

What sort? On the answer to that question, the survival of the Jewish state depends.

Jordan is geographically, historically and ethnically a Palestinian state. Like the other 20 nations of the Arab world, Jordan never expressed even the slightest interest in the establishment of another Palestinian state on the West Bank — until Jordan's 1967 aggression against Israel cost Jordan that land. However, the cynicism of the subsequent clamor for such a state is now irrelevant. Israel, by direct and public negotiations with the Palestine Liberation Organization, has played a card that cannot be unplayed. There shall be a PLO-dominated state carved into Israel's back.

Israel is attempting to trade land for peace. The trouble with such trades is this asymmetry: Israel yields something tangible and gets only promises that might prove as evanescent as Hitler's promise, after Munich, that he had made his last territorial demand.

Today, while watching the PLO's grudging disavowal of its rhetoric about the annihilation of Israel, recall 1988. Then, yielding to U.S. pressure to disavow terrorism, the PLO insisted that it had never done what it was disavowing — that what some called terrorism was legitimate resistance to Israeli aggression.

Shimon Peres, Israel's foreign minister, is a clever man who now asserts that the coming agreement concerns "not how to arrange the distribution of land, but how really to arrange the relations of people." Such cleverness is not conducive to confidence among Israel's friends who know that Israel is ceding control of the West Bank.

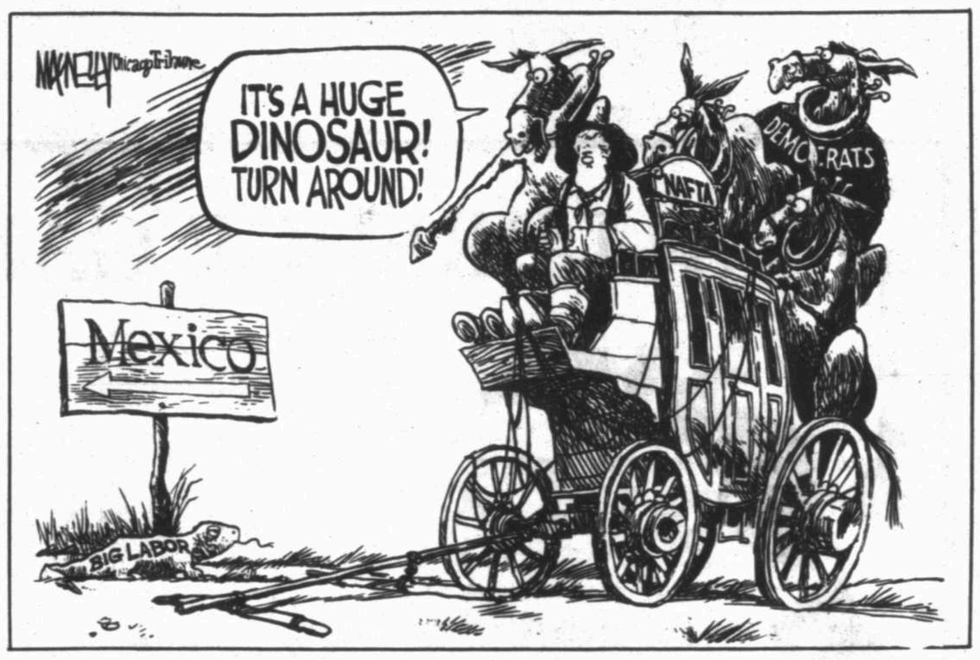

Before the 1967 war, Israel was 10 miles wide at its waist. Today it is 40 miles wide. Asked if Israel will again be 10 miles wide, Peres says: "(It) will remain the same 40 miles wide strategically because all the land we may give back in the future must remain demilitarized. . . for the duration of the autonomy period there will be, shall I say, division of labor when it comes to defense. The Palestinians will police their own life, their own community; Israel will remain responsible for the security of Israel and for the security of the Israelis in the territories."

But what comes after the autonomy period, which will be but a blink of history? For how long will a Palestinian state fathered by the PLO accept restrictions on its sovereignty regarding the acquisition of military assets and allies — restrictions that vitiate statehood?

Israel lives in a bad neighborhood, and the government believes it may become much worse unless something is done to slow the spread of Islamic fundamentalism. The government considers this a propitious moment for using the PLO to trigger peace agreements with Jordan and Syria that will dampen fundamentalist fires.

Palestinians have had execrable leaders. They supported the Ottoman Empire during World War I, Hitler during World War II, the Soviet Union during the Cold War. The PLO's Arafat and Jordan's King Hussein supported Iraq during the Gulf War. Now Israel is betting its life on this: A Palestinian state established by the PLO will have leaders willing to live, for as long as Israel's security requires it, with restrictions on its sovereignty that no other nation accepts.

George Will's column is distributed by Washington Post Writers Group.

Overpopulation threatens U.S. stability

If you want to do something to preserve the environment, stop immigration.

If you want to do something about the crime problem, stop immigration.

If you want to get the U.S. economy out of the permanent doldrums, stop immigration.

Reese

If you want to stop the rise of political extremism, stop immigration.

Otherwise, all your efforts to preserve the environment, to bring peace to America's cities, to get people working again, and to make sure our politics remain moderate and pragmatic will ultimately be in vain.

Numbers of people are at the root of all of the above.

Numbers of people are the key stress factor in causing environmental damage. Numbers of people of disparate cultures competing for economic existence are a large factor in big city crime.

Numbers of people competing for fewer and fewer jobs are driving down the standard of living in the United States.

Numbers of people and Congress's refusal to face the problem are lending weight to appeals made by political extremists.

It is not really an exaggeration to say that the world today has only one problem — population.

It is not really an exaggeration to say that the greatest threat to planet Earth comes from one thing — population.

It is not really an exaggeration to say that the greatest threat to the human race is one thing —population.

Since we live in the United States, our first step in controlling population growth should be to stop immigration, which is the main source of U.S. population increase.

Bear in mind that population must always be measured relative to the carrying capacity of the area occupied by the population. Too many people is the point beyond which the area occupied can no longer sustain life.

In the past, surplus population just migrated to a new area. We are descendants of such a migration. What destroyed the world of the Native Americans was not soldiers or congressional policies or treaties not kept — it was uncontrolled immigration. All the bad things that happened to the Native American happened because of population increase from immigration.

And now, it's our turn.

In the 1940s our population was about 150 million. Now it's about 250 million. By 2020 it will be about 350 million. I can tell you from personal observation that just going from 150 million to 250 million has been going half way to hell.

For a variety of reasons population growth is not a popular topic. Conservatives, I suppose, believe growth means growth of sales, and they always use the lame excuse that economic development will cure the problem of population growth. That's a dead fish on a hot pier. Ask the Indians and the Chinese how population growth has helped their economies.

Religious folks sometimes equate population control with forced abortions and forced euthanasia, but surely there is a middle ground between extremes of doing nothing and doing terrible things.

Our first priority as Americans should be simply to stop immigration. I argue for stopping it completely because the way our political system works, if you argue for zero immigrants, you'll get some reduction, but if you argue for some reduction, you are apt to get no reduction at all.

Arafat seeks peace to gain piece of Vineyard

The carrot dangled in front of the PLO is that if Yasser Arafat could get his people to agree on a peace settlement with Israel, President Clinton has promised to take him to Martha's Vineyard next summer.

Buchwald

The offer was personally made by the President to the PLO leader over the telephone. Reports indicate that Mr. Clinton told Arafat, "You've been bargaining in good faith and therefore you deserve a vacation on the Vineyard."

Arafat, who watches CNN day and night, responded, "Can I stay in Bob McNamara's house?"

"Of course you can. Bill Styron is painting it right now."

"How can I be sure that the people of Martha's Vineyard will accept me?" Arafat asked.

President Clinton reassured him, "I know everybody there. I'll introduce you to all the rich and famous, and I will arrange for you to play golf with Vernon Jordan."

"I'd like that. Vernon is a big man in Jordan ever since King Hussein named the country after him."

"Yasser, this is the dream of a lifetime. The island has beaches galore, a state fair in Tisbury and fireworks in Oak Bluffs. I'll introduce you to Carly Simon and James Taylor."

Arafat was dumbstruck. "How do you know Carly Simon?"

"Everybody knows everybody on the Vineyard. Besides, I am the President of the United States, so singers are naturally attracted to me. Yasser, sign on the dotted line and I'll have you swimming in the Atlantic Ocean in six months. Do you have a bathing suit?"

"Why do you ask?"

"I've never seen a picture of you in a bathing suit," the President said.

"That's because I prefer to go into the Dead Sea fully clothed. But your proposition sounds pretty interesting. What happens with the Israelis if it leaks out that you're taking me to Martha's Vineyard?"

"We'll offer to put them up in a bed and breakfast in Vineyard Haven."

"What about Mrs. Arafat? What will she do when she's there?"

"She'll go to luncheons with Hillary and walk on the beach with some of Martha's Vineyard's most famous writers. Does she play golf?"

"Not since they closed the Burning Tree course in the Gaza Strip."

"In that case we'll arrange for her to go sailing with Walter Cronkite and play tennis with Mike Wallace."

"Mr. President, it's very tempting to accept your offer, but if I make a deal for Palestine, will the United states throw in the Gay Head cliffs as well?"

"I can't promise you that because the cliffs belong to the Native Americans on the island."

"Not on my map," Arafat said. "Anyhow, I'll speak to Mrs. Arafat."

That's where the deal stands right now. It was a courageous move on President Clinton's part, particularly since he hadn't bothered to clear the idea with Hillary.

Cooperation deserves praise

I think we owe a pat on the back to the current city officials of both Midland and Odessa for their open cooperative effort. It is obvious that working together as an area is the most effective way to try to perpetuate economic prosperity for all concerned. Plans, facilities, and services can be shared to keep tax burdens low and attract business investment. Cooperation seems to be addressed more on a continuing basis and we should all benefit as a result.

There are many situations where consideration of working together is not only warranted but should be required. In some cases where there have been differences between Odessa and Midland, perhaps there has not been a general understanding of the situation and opportunity. The more that people know about a subject, the better the chance for a good decision. The Reporter-Telegram has played an important role in this regard by publishing applicable articles. I believe that most would appreciate a continuance of this particularly as related to opportunities for further cooperation.

One subject where additional coverage may be warranted is upper-level education. We are fortunate to have two community colleges and a four-year university in our area. Certainly the objective of cost effective sound education is one with which few would differ. There should be quite a number of ways in which the three facilities can work together. Probably much has been and is being done between the three schools but it appears that the general public could benefit from more information. The recent article in the Reporter-Telegram about enrollment at Midland College (MC) seemed to contain a surprise to many that the college has extension centers at Iraan, Fort Stockton, Big Lake, and Ozona. A series about the schools and how they fit and work together would be helpful to foster a better appreciation.

Thank you for your consideration of this suggestion and I encourage others to voice support of your efforts of this sort. Working together, both communities can benefit.

Council should explore cable

I agree with Ed Vogler, in that the Midland City Council should explore the possibility of bringing competition in the TV cable industry to Midland. I read in Time magazine that a federal court in Virginia ruled that the telephone companies could start their own cable-TV systems. I would like to see the Midland Reporter-Telegram report on a comparison of cable rates for cities of like size. It was reported by the media that the basic rate of cable subscribers in Odessa will decrease by some $4 per month. Please give us the facts as to what will happen to Midland.

TU Electric bill raises questions

Today I called TU Electric to ask about the "Customer Charge" on my electric bill. I was particularly interested in this because it was in addition to a 10 percent increase also included on the same bill. The amount of the customer charge was $7.20.

I was told that this charge was made to each TU Electric customer as our share of their operating expense. "This charge pays for their trucks, employees' salaries, fuel, billing, equipment maintenance, etc. I asked what they did with profits from electric bills. I was told, "I'm sorry sir, you asked what the $7.20 customer charge was and I told you." Are we being ripped off?

Clinton dilutes Bosnian hopes of American help

WASHINGTON (NYT) — The president of Bosnia came to the White House Wednesday to appeal to President Clinton to set a deadline for the use of force against the Bosnian Serbs if they do not lift their siege of Sarajevo. But Clinton's answer was essentially that the Bosnian leader should go back to the bargaining table and cut the best deal he can, because Washington is not coming to the rescue, officials said.

Clinton explained that Washington is willing to use diplomatic and economic sanctions to keep the pressure on the Serbs and Croats to be more conciliatory at the bargaining table, aides said. But Clinton added that there is simply no support among the Western allies for an armed intervention in Bosnia at this time, and Washington is not inclined to go it alone, officials said.

The Bosnian president, Alija Izetbegovic, reportedly told Clinton that his big worry is that even if he does return to the peace talks in Geneva and strikes a deal with the Croats and Serbs — something he was not sure he could sell politically at home — the Western allies would not come to monitor its provisions and he would be left on his own.

Officials said Clinton said he is still committed "in principle" to contributing American troops to monitor a Bosnian peace settlement, provided that it is a fair, enforceable deal. But Clinton and Secretary of State Warren Christopher also cautioned that such an American commitment would have to be approved by Congress, which would not be easy, officials said.

Before the talks began, Clinton told reporters that he would seek the approval of Congress before agreeing to let American troops participate in a peacekeeping force for Bosnia — the first time he has ever made such a vow. Clinton also stressed that such peacekeeping forces would have to be under NATO command and not U.N. control. Because NATO's top commander is an American general, NATO control would avoid the confusion of command and control that has arisen in Somalia, where American troops are serving under U.N. command, aides said.

"If we can get the Congress to support it, I think we should join in," Clinton said during an Oval Office picture-taking session with Izetbegovic. "It has to be able to be enforced or guaranteed by a peacekeeping force from NATO, not the U.N., but NATO."

Washington, Moscow sign military cooperation pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Les Aspin and his Russian counterpart signed agreements Wednesday to strengthen defense ties between the former Cold War foes, including a plan to hold joint peacekeeping exercises and set up a "defense hotline."

"This is a new symbol of the new ties between our countries," Russian Defense Minister Pavel Grachev told reporters after meeting with Aspin at the Pentagon.

Grachev, a general, later spoke with President Clinton during a White House meeting with Anthony Lake, the president's national security adviser. Clinton reiterated his support for Russian President Boris Yeltsin and expressed admiration for the Russian leadership's determination to make democracy work, a senior Pentagon official who attended the meeting told reporters afterward.

The agreements stem from last spring's Vancouver summit between Clinton and Yeltsin. Details on implementing the accords are yet to be worked out.

Aspin said the generals in charge of the American and Russian forces designated to participate in the joint peacekeeping exercises would meet Thursday to discuss details. He said it was too early to know when the exercises would be held.

The units picked to participate are the 3rd Infantry Division in Germany under the command of Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Holder Jr., and the 27th Motorized Rifle Division commanded by Gen. Maj. Anatoliy Sidyakin.

"It is an agreement that recognizes that the well-being and security of the United States and the Russian Federation are vitally related," Aspin said. "It is an agreement that seeks to put the years of superpower rivalry and nuclear confrontation behind us."

Among the other elements of the agreement:

—Establishing what Aspin called a defense hotline, a communications system linking the Pentagon and the Russian Ministry of Defense to permit easy telephone communication on routine matters. Grachev said it also could be helpful in an emergency.

—Setting up joint exercises between the two nations' navies and other armed forces.

—In 1994, exchanges of enlisted personnel and officers, to include arrangements for military members to attend each other's defense academies.

—Further study of ways in which submarine operations can be altered to minimize the risk of collisions. Aspin said the U.S. Navy had already made some changes as a result of recent collisions with Russian subs, but he would not elaborate.

Senate OKs revised national service plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate gave final approval Wednesday to a $1.5 billion compromise version of President Clinton's plan for students to earn college money in exchange for national service.

The 57-40 vote, mostly along party lines, gave Clinton the first all-new program of his administration. The bill now goes to the White House for his signature.

Clinton said the vote was "in the best sense of reinventing government." He praised the Senate action as "yet another opportunity for change for the American people."

The program could be up and running by next June, said Eli Segal, who heads Clinton's Office of National Service. The legislation goes into effect on Oct. 1.

The legislation fulfilled Clinton's campaign promise to create a domestic version of the Peace Corps, in which young people could serve their communities while earning money to help pay for college.

The bill was supported by 51 Democrats and six Republicans while four Democrats and 36 Republicans opposed it.

Senate Republicans, who had successfully stalled the measure earlier this summer, fought it to the end.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., the Senate Republican leader, accused the White House of sending conflicting signals by creating a new program at the same time it is proposing government reorganization with an emphasis on saving money.

"On the one hand, President Clinton says national service will be the centerpiece of his administration and on the other hand that he wants to reinvent government," Dole said in a floor speech. "Well, we think when we talk about reinventing government we're talking about less government, less new programs."

But Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass, who helped guide the bill to passage, accused Republicans of painting an inaccurate picture of the legislation.

"The fact that our colleagues misstate fact time and time again ... may be persuasive to some people but it does not represent accuracy, veracity or truth," he said.

He said if the program did not work, Congress could scrap it.

Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., who led opposition to the legislation, argued that the bill is "fraught with ... overlapping programs, unnecessary legislative requirements and cumbersome bureaucratic structures."

She called it ironic that the Senate was considering the legislation a day after Clinton presented his "reinventing government" plan to streamline the federal bureaucracy and cut costs by $108 billion over five years.

"We have lost a tremendous opportunity ... to lead the way in reinventing government," she said. "We chose to take the old tried and true way."

But Sen. Harris Wofford, D-Pa., countered that the National Service program was an "innovative public-private partnership."

Officials analyze 2nd Soviet file on U.S. POWs in Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — A second document from Soviet intelligence files indicates that during the late stages of the Vietnam war, Hanoi held hundreds more American prisoners of war than it eventually released.

The Pentagon is still analyzing both, but officials have cast doubt on their accuracy.

The most recent document was given to American officials in Moscow last week during a meeting of the U.S.-Russian Joint Commission on POW-MIA Affairs, a group organized last year to try to account for servicemen missing from Cold War-era conflicts.

The Pentagon on Tuesday evening released its English translation of the latest document but said it could not vouch for its authenticity, accuracy or validity "until it has undergone a thorough review by the intelligence community."

Asked about the document at a news conference Wednesday, Defense Secretary Les Aspin said it needed further study, but he seemed inclined to discount its accuracy.

"It may be authentic, in the sense that it came from the right people at the right time, and be inaccurate," Aspin said.

Q. What does the ambulance crew do to inform the hospital about patients that are being brought to the hospital?

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel

State Sen. Teel Bivins spoke to about 150 Republican supporters during a Wednesday luncheon where he recapped the past legislative session and bashed "the lady with the big white hair."

Bivins, who represents Midland in the 31st senatorial district, spoke to members of the Midland County Republican Women Organization and several county officials regarding the key issues of the 73rd legislative session that ended in May.

The senator praised the success of Republicans elected to the Legislature indicating "we got some muscle" in the Senate this past session. He said because of the 13 Republican senators, several Democratic issues were defeated.

"Because of several organizations like yours ... we are becoming the majority party in Texas," Bivins said to the cheers of the crowd. "For the first time ... we were a power to be reckoned with."

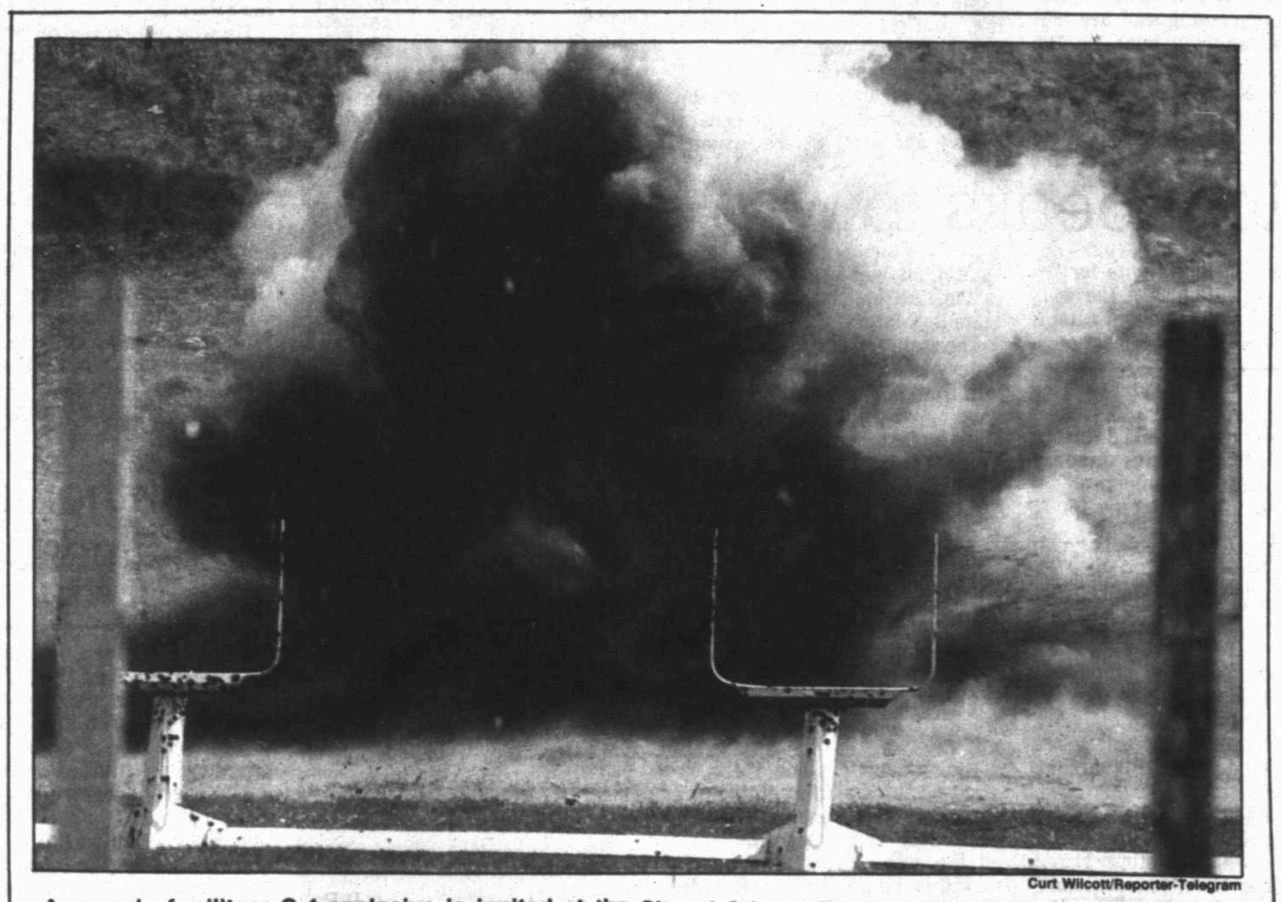

"We don't have the majority yet, but we do have the strength to kill bills," he explained.

He said the strength also worked to benefit numerous issues close to the hearts of Republicans including civil liability, product liability reform, trucking reform and health insurance.

Bivins said laws were passed that will prohibit plaintiffs from filing lawsuits in Texas courts against foreign companies and that will allow more competition for trucking companies.

Regarding health care and insurance, Bivins said "we stand for individuals being responsible for themselves ... It is estimated that one-third of all Texans are not

Bomb squad gives explosives demonstration

By Katherine Poteet

ODESSA — Permian Basin law enforcement officials and residents got a first-hand look at explosives that are found in the area and the kind of damage they are capable of at an explosives demonstration Wednesday.

The demonstration was conducted by the PetroPlex Bomb Squad, a five-member squad made up of Midland Police Sgt. Andy Glasscock, Odessa Police Officer Eddie Reed, Odessa Police Det. Vick Sikes, Ector County Sheriff's Lt. Richard Pate and Ector County Sheriff's Investigator Gary Clark.

A group of about 100 spectators watched as different explosives were detonated for about two hours at the City of Odessa Training Facility.

A summary of the type of bomb and what damage it could do was given before each demonstration.

In addition to the explosives, the bomb squad members took the group to three tables where both live and detonated bombs and bomb information were on display.

Glasscock showed several bombs that had exploded in Midland, including pipe bombs that were used during a rash of mailbox explosions.

"This one injured the kid who rigged it," Glasscock said, pointing to a twisted piece of metal. "He had just enough time to turn around before he got hit in the leg."

Glasscock also showed the group books and information on making bombs. The material — including books entitled "Explosives and Demolitions," "Mine/Countermine Opera-

Midland leader: Jamboree to be joyful memory

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

While Boy Scouts from West Texas reveled in the 1993 National Scout Jamboree last month in Virginia, President Clinton missed out on the event that attracted 30,000 scouts and 5,000 adult leaders.

"It will definitely be a joyful memory which they will have for the rest of their lives," Midland Scout leader Bob Templeton said of the scouts' week-long experience at the jamboree on the grounds of Fort A.P. Hill in rural Virginia.

"Very rarely will a scout be able to go to the jamboree. It's fun, memorable, significant (and) broadens their horizons," he said.

Five thousand scouts belong to the area's Buffalo Trail Council; only 100 scouts participated in the jamboree, which is held every four years.

For a young scout from a rural West Texas community, going to the jamboree was like "going from a back-waters situation" to a world-class event in a city setting.

While the 100 scouts from the Midland-based council mingled with scouts from throughout the United States and abroad, they also got to see and hear people of national and world import, including those in the political and military-industrial complex.

Templeton, who was on the National Scout Jamboree staff, said the scouts felt that Clinton or his emissary failed to show at scouting's biggest event due to "political pressure."

"We feel like he was bowing to his political pressure," Templeton said.

The Boy Scouts of America officially prohibits avowed homosexuals from serving as scout leaders.

Clinton, who has endorsed homosexuals in the military, has pledged that people will not be penalized or discriminated against due to their sexual preferences.

7th-graders to play part for environment

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff writer

LAMESA — Like a symphony orchestra, each seventh-grader at Lamesa Middle School will play his or her part to keep the environment harmonious or the entire "performance" suffers.

"Each student has an important part to play in the harmony between energy usages and the quality of our environment," said Luann Morgan, Midland district manager of TU Electric.

TU representatives visited the school on Wednesday to launch its "In Concert With the Environment" program. The Lamesa secondary school is the first one in Texas to institute the program, which teaches youngsters how to calculate energy conservation.

Students will input their own individualized research data into a computer to generate a personal action plan that outlines how many energy dollars they can save.

Janet Spencer, science teacher at Lamesa Middle School, teaches seventh-grader Tommy Flores how to calculate the environmental impact of his daily energy use.

"For example," Ms. Morgan said, "a student's report might show that recycling his family's aluminum cans would result in an energy dollar-savings of $1 per month and an environmental benefit of 194 ecowatts."

Ms. Morgan said ecowatts, a new concept, are gained any time an action is taken to use less energy more wisely, including car pooling, changing cooling or heating thermostat settings, using less hot water and recycling.

Students will be working with handbooks and com-

Travel loses adventure with all its conveniences

Every now and then, I am impressed that going over to the airport to take a flight is becoming more and more like hiking over to the bus station with a weathered suitcase to catch a ride.

Todd

The excitement of the flight is not just getting there almost before you leave, which is just about the case when you cross time zones in heading West.

It is dressing up for the trip — feeling like you are going some place in style and class — that is important.

Who wants to go to the airport dressed up (or down) as if you were taking the garbage out the back door?

Now, some folk do. And they break no posted rules. Their garb may be suitable for going to the rest room or strolling outside and into the pasture. For some people, there is hardly any preparation for airline travel other than just getting in there and out.

Fact is, at one time and particularly in the 1940s and earlier and as late as the 1950s and early 1960s, people used to dress up to take rides in passenger trains pulled by those soot-blowing, steam-powered locomotives. Those were the last days of the Pullman cars.

Certainly passengers donned or at least packed their fine clothing for luxury steamship trips across the oceans.

Like today, not all people "dressed up" in fashion for trips. Some didn't have the wherewithal to do so.

Today in some quarters, it seems fashionable to dress down to be in vogue or smart.

Airline travel has become almost ordinary — like going up and down in the elevator, except there is more talking in the cabin. For the flight crews, airline travel is still flying: a combination of fun, discipline, concentration particularly at takeoffs and landings, coordination, occasional hard work, and a lot of thinking and "staying ahead of the airplane."

Rarely is there panic or expressed thoughts of the airplane crashing or landing at the wrong airport or runway.

In another era, I suppose there was little thought of the train derailing. There was that rhythmic clocking sound, the click, click, click, click, of the train's steel wheels bearing mightily down on segmented steel rails mile by mile over vast expanses. That is what it seemed like, especially if you traveled day and night.

And bus travel, come to think about it, was somewhat interesting, if not amusing and anxious at times, in those days when you had to get off the bus to re-

SCOUTS: Clinton misses out on jamboree

(From 1B)

Templeton said scout officials "will not allow avowed homosexual leaders in the Boy Scouts. That stance is "paramount to our mission" to help young children become responsible citizens and to teach them to be "morally straight."

Templeton said the scouts were disappointed, too, that U.S. Secretary of the Interior Bruce Babbitt "was unable to appear. He canceled out," Templeton said.

"Clinton should have had an emissary out at the jamboree. This may be his only chance" to appear unless he is re-elected in 1996, he said.

"We had a big show for (President) Bush" in the 1989 jamboree, Templeton said. "Of course, Bush made a very nice show in '89. They flew him in on helicopter."

Bush, a World War II U.S. Navy aviation hero, lived in the Midland-Odessa area in the 1950s. He made a "non-political speech" at the 1989 jamboree, Templeton said.

"The president of the United States is always honored by the Boy Scouts of America. We teach our young scouts to show respect for the office," he said.

Before he left for the August jamboree, Templeton said the event represents a "pinnacle experience" for the scouts and would be "the experience of a lifetime that will take them through their adulthood."

One of the more significant things at the jamboree was the display of nations' flags, including republics of the former Soviet Union.

"This is first time Russians were there," Templeton said. "Before, the U.S.S.R. did not recognize scouting. "It was really a significant event. It was exciting."

Midland scout leader David Pearce noted that "Russia is one of the new scouting countries.

"It puts scouting around the world more now," Pearce said.

The scouts from various nations around the world were able to demonstrate harmony among themselves and to "put (socio-political-economic) matters behind themselves and befriend each other," he said.

Templeton said there are "lots of things in scouting that are big-time experiences," such as the high-adventure represented by the Philmont National Boy Scout Ranch in New Mexico and the cumulative work on scouting's highest rank, Eagle Scout. "And this (jamboree) is the biggest" event.

"If there are two things which we (in scouting) do extraordinarily well, it's Philmont and the Jamboree," Templeton said. "The mountain backpacking treks at Philmont are the pinnacle of high adventure."

The 100 scouts from the Buffalo Trail Council were among about 30,000 scouts at the jamboree in a setting of hundreds of pitched tents and campsites on the grounds of Fort A.P. Hill, a 7,000-acre paratrooper-training post.

At the jamboree, the scouts had opportunities for fun and games and to participate in rappelling, rifle shooting, archery, pioneering physics, bicycling, kayak handling, snorkeling, rafting, fishing, scuba-diving, and arts and science projects.

In addition, the scouts had opportunities to work on merit badges from more than a 100 fields, such as first aid, archery, rifle and shotgun shooting, space exploration, geology, woodcarving, backpacking, Indian lore, soil-and-water conservation, and cinema photography.

Among celebrities at the 1993 jamboree were "four-star general types" and Wall Street business executives.

"We attracted some high-level people" to the jamboree, Templeton said.

"The boys' eyes brighten up when a four-star general shows up," he said.

Templeton said the U.S. Army was impressed with the scouts' creation of a tent city virtually overnight.

"The Army is always impressed how we created and then broke down a city (of 35,000 people) with all of the services," Templeton said. "It's just a blank field" where the jamboree was set up.

"Never do I cease to be amazed" at the expertise of the scouts and their leaders in setting up the city: from kitchens to latrines and from telephone services and post offices.

"All those things that a regular city would need is pretty well done overnight," Templeton said. "You are going to run into problems" in building a town for 35,000 people.

"Instead of brick-and-mortar houses, it's tents," Templeton said.

Night-time events at the jamboree, which attracted much news media attention, drew up to 80,000 people "like a Woodstock setup."

BIVINS: Senator speaks to women's group

covered by health insurance. We expanded the availibility of health care without a dollar of tax money."

Bivins also indicated that Republican senators helped create a constitutional amendment prohibiting a state income tax.

The state senator said the 13 Republican senators blocked a bill to elect judges by wards and continue the present system of electing judges at-large.

He also touched on the public school finance issue calling it the "tar baby" of all issues. Bivins commented on the election results in which voters overwhelmingly defeated the "Robin Hood" proposition in which richer school districts would help fund poorer districts.

"We were told that not only did you not want Robin Hood, but you didn't want anything to do with Sherwood Forest or the Sheriff of Knottingham," Bivins said to the delight of the supporters.

He spoke about his distaste for the current legislation to keep the schools open for the next year.

"I didn't want to play chicken with the school children of Texas," Bivins said. "I didn't vote for the current legislation ... the only good thing I can say about it is, it appears to keep the schools open for another year."

Bivins said he hoped the state Legislature would have the school finance problem resolved in the next session that begins January 1995. He said the same problem has existed in New Jersey for 28 years.

The state senator criticized Democratic Gov. Ann Richards for her veto of a bill that he alleges would have saved the state millions of dollars by not paying Social Security for state employees hired after Sept. 1.

"Our good friend with big white hair vetoed the bill ... costing us a half a billion dollars," Bivins said.

Bivins indicated he will run for re-election next year. He was also supportive of U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, while blasting Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earl for his efforts to have Ms. Hutchison appear before a grand jury to investigate allegations of wrongdoing while she was state treasurer.

He said he would also support George W. Bush in his run for the governor's seat. Bivins said term limitations will likely be imposed in the next legislative session for state legislators.

The state senator touched on the lottery issue after fielding a question from one of his supporters regarding where the funds go in the state budget.

"The lady with the big white hair indicated that the funds would be dedicated to public education, but that never happened," he explained. "The more than $600 million a year goes into the state treasury's general revenue fund, of which 50 percent goes toward public education ... but that money would only amount to about 4 percent of the school budget ... so it wouldn't solve our problems anyway."

Bivins, who was one of the five state senators and five state representatives to be appointed to the conference committee that created the state budget, announced that this year's budget was the first "to live within the state's means ... and for the first time in a decade didn't burden you with any new taxes."

Midland County Judge Charles "Bro" Seltzer applauded Bivins for his work in helping sponsor a bill that created a fourth district court for Midland County, which is the first court created in Texas in the past six years.

"We needed that fourth district court ... I wanted to thank you for your work on that," Seltzer told Bivins before the group. "Your work on that will help with justice in Midland County where we have a terrible caseload."

Before the meeting, Bivins commented on a federal lawsuit filed against the state of Texas that called the new court unconstitutional because it was created without being precleared by the U.S. Justice Department.

"I was saddened to see such a lawsuit be brought," Bivins said. "It is troubling to me ... but I don't feel they'll be successful. The 5th Circuit Court of Appeals have already ruled in a similar separate case."

Bivins said since Midland County has four precincts and three district courts, he believed the fourth district court will create symmetry to the existing system.

"I believe the bill is constitutional and I don't see any problems getting it precleared. But I don't want to second-guess what the bureaucrats will do," Bivins said.

tions," "Deathtrap," and "Pyrotechnics" — had been purchased at area bookstores and trade shows.

"Basically, you are only limited these days by your imagination," he said.

Sikes explained different bombs that were designated as high explosives. He also told the group that not all explosives are made with the intent to hurt or kill someone.

"A lot of explosives are used in mining operations, especially dynamite and blasting caps," he said.

Sikes said dynamite was the most common form of explosive due to its inexpensive price of about 75 cents a stick.

Also on the table were military and civilian C-4 explosives, used to shred or shatter; gel explosives; TNT used by the military; power charges; a bomb that could be made from fertilizer and airplane fuel; and a military C-3 explosive made more than 40 years ago.

The demonstration — which Glasscock said was mainly for area law enforcement officials who could possibly have to deal with bombs in their day-to-day activities — left one spectator injured.

Ector County Independent School District officer Jim Loika was in stable condition at Medical Center Hospital Wednesday evening with an eye injury he suffered during the squad's last demonstration.

The bomb squad serves an area that extends from Van Horn to Abilene to Lubbock to the Mexican border.

TODD: Indifference takes adventure from travel

lieve yourself. Drug stores, which often served as bus stops, oftentimes were the target.

In those days before interstate highways, the buses often took back roads to pick up all sorts of rural folk and their makeshift cargo heading to the city from hilltop, drug-store or general-store bus stops.

It was just interesting to watch humanity in its forms both strange and familiar.

Still is.

But what is disconcerting about air travel today is the general indifference of travelers. It appears that they are far more interested in reading about the usual events of the day; drumming up, closing out or shoring up business deals; anticipating visits with kinfolk and friends, or escaping their familiar brand of reality.

The suspense, the drama, the fun, and the fact of the journey and the event itself seem to have been lost.

Have we become so calloused to aviation technology that we hardly notice the phenomenon of flight itself?

Are we no longer astounded and made child-like in awe over the miracle of flight, the beauty of the heavens, and the showplace that is our Earth?

Is air travel becoming so mundane, pragmatic and such of a common convenience that it is losing its charm and romance except to ardent aviation enthusiasts?

Is the highlight of the trip the swiftness with which the flight attendants serve drinks and peanuts, the merriment with which they do their vaudevillian routines to entertain the passengers, or the degree of smoothness or roughness of the landing?

Somehow, there has just got to be adventure in travel and not just a swift ride in a flying bus from here to there.

Traveling is more than just going over to the depot, bus station, port, or airport. It is an adventure.

Hutchison to appear before grand jury to answer subpoena

AUSTIN (AP) — U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison is to appear, under subpoena, before a grand jury today, bringing to a boil a three-month investigation into alleged wrongdoing during her tenure as state treasurer.

Ten other people were subpoenaed by the grand jury in the past two days, including key aides to Mrs. Hutchison and some of her top political fundraisers.

Mrs. Hutchison, a Republican, calls the grand jury probe a political witch hunt by Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle, a Democrat.

But Earle, who has gained most of his notoriety prosecuting Democrats such as former Attorney General Jim Mattox and former Texas House Speaker Gib Lewis, stands by the inquiry.

Less than a week after Mrs. Hutchison won election to Lloyd Bentsen's Senate seat June 5, Earle's office raided the Treasury and subpoenaed more than a dozen agency employees who worked under Mrs. Hutchison.

The grand jury on June 10 began looking into allegations that state employees and equipment were used for personal and political purposes during Mrs. Hutchison's 2½-year term as state treasurer.

Texas law forbids public officials from using their office for non-state business. The crime is classified as a misdemeanor or a felony based on the extent of the abuse.

Earle said at the outset of the probe that he had received information some crucial evidence was being destroyed as part of a possible cover-up of wrongdoing at the agency.

But he added at the time that he did not have "hard evidence that Kay Bailey Hutchison committed a crime."

Since then, at least two dozen former Treasury workers have appeared before the grand jury. They ranged from computer operators to personal assistants who have said that Mrs. Hutchison was an obsessive boss who once hit a worker out frustration and made a habit out of ordering state employees to do personal errands for her.

Prosecutors have declined to say whether Mrs. Hutchison is a target of their inquiry. But an Aug. 19 letter from Earle's office to the senator's attorneys suggested that she is.

"Your client has been accused of serious criminal conduct and along with others is subject to a criminal investigation," the letter said.

The discord between the senator's office and prosecutors has grown so heated over the past few weeks that Mrs. Hutchison's staff delivered documents to each grand juror at home, outlining complaints about Earle's investigation.

Mrs. Hutchison's spokesman, David Beckwith, replied "yes" Wednesday when asked if he had leaked a newspaper story so the grand jurors could read the senator's contention that she was being entrapped by Earle.

Mrs. Hutchison's attorneys have advised her to utilize her Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination and refuse to answer questions from the grand jury.

John Dowd, a high-profile Washington lawyer hired by Mrs. Hutchison after the probe began, said his client "doesn't gain a thing by talking to the grand jury. They don't want information, they want a circus."

Dowd, who represented then-Major League Baseball commissioner Bart Giamatti in the Pete Rose case, said Earle is "bullying Kay because he has more power than she does."

Mrs. Hutchison's attorneys say they do not believe the grand jury will return an indictment against the senator.

On Wednesday, the grand jury subpoenaed one of Mrs. Hutchison's key political advisers, three of her fundraisers and Beckwith.

Jim Francis, considered one of the strongest voices in Mrs. Hutchison's political camp, as well as fundraisers Jeanne Johnson, Sylvia Nugent and Elizabeth Blakemore all were asked to testify and bring documents sent to or received by former Treasury employee David Criss.

Criss resigned from the Treasury last year after acknowledging that he had written political thank-you notes for Hutchison on a state computer.

Earle's office had reviewed the Criss matter and concluded any wrongdoing was incidental.

But Criss, who has declined repeated requests for interviews, has resurfaced as a key part of Earle's current investigation. He has been subpoenaed by the grand jury and ordered to turn over a bundle of records.

Five other former assistants to Mrs. Hutchison at the Treasury were subpoenaed Tuesday.

Sharp: Plan should be taken to people

AUSTIN (AP) — State Comptroller John Sharp said Wednesday the White House should sell its plan to make government more efficient by taking it directly to the people.

"You have to go outside the Beltway, you have to go outside the established political structure and you've got to tell the American people what's in this report," Sharp said. "I think if you do that, you're going to force Congress to vote for it."

President Clinton and Vice President Al Gore have unveiled recommendations to cut the federal bureaucracy by reducing the government workforce, and merging numerous agencies. The White House said the changes could save $108 billion by the end of the century.

The federal review was modeled after similar audits in Texas in 1991 and 1993, which has been credited by the comptroller's office with $6.2 billion in savings.

Sharp, an adviser on Gore's task force, says the only way to gain approval of the plan is to bypass special interest groups and to garner bipartisan support.

'You have to go outside the Beltway, you have to go outside the established political structure and you've got to tell the American people what's in this report.'

—John Sharp
state comptroller

"Behind every inefficiency, behind every stupid thing the government does, there is a special interest group that knows it's inefficient, knows it's stupid and is making money off of it," he said.

Several government programs with significant Texas ties have been targeted by the task force that conducted the review of federal spending.

The wool and mohair subsidy, which largely goes to Texas producers, could be killed, saving approximately $923 million through 1999. And the federal helium program, centered outside Amarillo, would be examined to evaluate the need for government involvement.

In addition, the task force recommends that the Customs Service and the Immigration and Naturalization Service should improve their management of the border.

Sharp said, "every state is going to have to take some hits."

"What is good for the country is to lessen the costs and to better the way the government operates," he said. "If we have to take some hits in Texas, whether it be wool, whether it be mohair, whether it be helium or whether we have to reorganize NASA, the good far outweighs the bad for the state of Texas."

The task force, which included some of the Texans responsible for masterminding the state reviews, has recommended cutting out 252,000 jobs in the federal bureaucracy.

Group critiques media's involvement in cult standoff

DALLAS (AP) — Journalists covering the 51-day standoff between federal authorities and David Koresh's cult generally acted responsibly, but could've been more aggressive, a media group reported Wednesday.

The Society of Professional Journalists evaluated several aspects of the media coverage of the standoff and released its findings in a 27-page report.

The study concludes that if the cult was warned about the raid, it did not come from reporters for the Waco Tribune-Herald or a photographer for Waco television station KWTX.

The SPJ survey also provides more than a dozen guidelines for reporters and media managers to consider when faced with other conflicts involving hostages, standoffs or other crises.

"It is unlikely there will be another Waco, in the same sense," said task force chair Bob Steele, the ethics director of Florida's Poynter Institute for Media Studies. "But there will be many events that challenge journalists in the same way that Waco did.

"This report challenges journalists to learn some important lessons from what happened in Waco. Journalists can and must be better prepared to make ethical decisions, journalistic decisions, when directly involved in ongoing news coverage about suicidal or homicidal individuals."

The Tribune-Herald was lauded for spending eight months researching its seven-part series into allegations that the Davidians were stockpiling weapons and possibly abusing children.

Government officials asked the paper not to run the series and though the paper delayed it for a month for other reasons, the second installment ran Feb. 28, the day of the botched raid which left four federal agents dead. Six Davidians also died that day.

"We made a proper ethical decision based on the integrity of a number of people in this organization," said Tribune-Herald editor Bob Lott. "We walked it through very carefully."

Other Waco-area news outlets were challenged for not taking the same approach to the cult, which had been part of the community for decades.

The report questioned the hundreds of journalists who descended on Waco for not becoming more persistent once the daily FBI briefings became their primary source of information on the standoff, which ended April 19 when a fire engulfed the compound. Koresh and as many as 85 of his followers died just before or during the fire.

Freedom of information requests should have been filed and pools should have been formed at the sake of competition in order to get out the most complete information, the report recommended.

Dallas radio station KRLD was credited for broadcasting Koresh's 58-minute tape on March 2, which he said would lead to a surrender.

But KRLD and CNN were chastised for interviewing the self-proclaimed prophet live during the hours following the raid because they may have interfered with hostage negotiations. Other reporters were admonished for trying to telephone Koresh that same time.

THE SANCTITY OF LIFE

"Before I formed you in the womb I knew you, before you were born I set you apart; I appointed you as a prophet to the nations" (Jeremiah 1:5).

There is a sanctity of life that is purposefully being opposed in our society today. Each day, in so called "God blessed America", more than 4,000 preborn lives are snuffed out. These are real people who suffer capital punishment with no trial and no benefit of counsel before they are executed in a cruel and inhumane manner.

We the members of the Fairmont Park Church of Christ, stand in opposition to the Planned Parenthood abortion clinic. We do stand behind the powerful case for life as stated in Psalm 139:13-16:

"For you (God) created my inmost being; you knit me together in my mother's womb. I praise you because I am fearfully and wonderfully made; your works are wonderful. I know that full well. My frame was not hidden from you when I was made in the secret place. When I was woven together in the depths of the earth, your eyes saw my unformed body."

Many have unwittingly, unknowingly allowed an abortion. If that has happened to you we stand ready to be a source of assistance and encouragement. And, if you want to do something in honor of that aborted baby, why not work to help other mothers avoid the same mistake.

Health plan could trim medicare, medicaid

WASHINGTON (NYT) — White House officials have told Congress that President Clinton's health plan will be financed in part by squeezing $124 billion from the projected growth of Medicare and $114 billion from Medicaid over five years, lawmakers and their aides said Wednesday.

The administration's plans, disclosed in a whirlwind round of briefings on Capitol Hill in the last two days, dropped the White House squarely into politically hazardous territory only two weeks before the president is to unveil his health care initiative.

Medicare, which serves 36 million elderly and disabled people, is one of the government's most popular programs, and politicians who even suggest trimming it have often paid dearly. So the idea of including Medicare cutbacks as a central component of a new national health program immediately raised doubts on Capitol Hill about whether the White House was serious in its pledge to propose a reliable method of financing its proposals.

After the briefings this week, congressional experts who work on health policy expressed two reactions: amazement at the complexity of the president's plan and apprehension that the proposed cutbacks in Medicare and Medicaid were politically unrealistic. Without a reliable means of financing, the government would be forced to reduce the size of the proposed health program, raise taxes or borrow more money and thus increase the federal debt.

"The Clinton administration has relied too heavily on cuts in Medicare and Medicaid to finance changes in the rest of the health care system," said Rep. Henry A. Waxman, chairman of the House Energy and Commerce Subcommittee on Health and the Environment.

"It's going to be politically unacceptable, and I don't think the financing proposal is very realistic," the California Democrat said in an interview. "I don't think they can make cuts of that magnitude without doing harm to Medicare and Medicaid and the people those programs serve."

The administration says such concerns are unfounded.

Government pushes better nutrition in nation's schools

WASHINGTON (AP) — It can't threaten to cut allowances, suspend TV privileges, or even to hold back a gooey dessert. But the government's trying, like many a frustrated parent, to get youngsters to eat more fresh fruits and vegetables.

The Agriculture Department said Tuesday it will double the amount of fresh produce available in 25 million school lunches daily. It also plans to expand the variety. Experiments with lower-fat meats and cheeses also are in the works.

Consumer advocates applauded the decision, but said authorities need to do more, like cutting pesticide levels in foods and using promotional methods, like cafeteria videos, to "bombard" youngsters with the benefits of eating right.

The change is hardly radical, since fresh fruits and vegetables now account for only about 2 percent of the commodities supplied by the government to the school lunch programs.

"I think it's appalling that we only have 8.8 million pounds of fresh vegetables and fruits and it's of such a limited diversity," said Ellen Haas, assistant secretary of Agriculture for food and consumer services.

The variety has been limited to apples, grapefruits, oranges, tomatoes and baking potatoes. New offerings could include carrots, zucchini, celery and string beans, Haas said.

Science panel urges evaluation of abortion pill

■ More nation news/8B

WASHINGTON (AP) — An abortion pill widely used in Europe but forbidden in America should be rapidly evaluated by the Food and Drug Administration for sale in the United States, a panel of experts said Wednesday.

A committee of the National Academy of Sciences said the abortion pill RU-486 has been so extensively tested in France, Britain and Sweden that the FDA should consider it without requiring further clinical trials in the United States.

Researchers also should experiment with RU-486 for other uses, including as a "morning-after" pill and as a treatment for breast cancer and brain tumors, the NAS report said.

Abortion politics kept RU-486 off the U.S. market during the Reagan and Bush administrations, but President Clinton in January called for research into the drug. The academy received funding from the private Henry J. Kaiser Family Foundation to evaluate the science and the clinical uses of the drug.

More than 60,000 women have used RU-486 for abortions in Europe. The NAS report said that health officials there have found the pill in combination with another drug to be "a safe and efficacious medical treatment for early pregnancy termination."

European studies demonstrated that the pill could prevent pregnancy when taken up to 72 hours after unplanned or unwanted intercourse, or after a contraceptive method such as a condom has failed.

Because of the European experience, the NAS report said, an extensive U.S. drug trial such as the FDA normally would require "does not appear necessary" for the abortion use of RU-486 during the first trimester of a pregnancy.

U.S. clinical trials were recommended, however, on using RU-486 for second-trimester abortions. The committee said these studies should focus on dosage and side effects, such as pain, bleeding, infection and the surgery required if the drug fails.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Keep things shipshape on the job and career advancement will come more quickly. In December, a change of residence could prove lucky for a relationship. Early in 1994, enjoy the tall stories your competitors tell but do not be influenced by them. Take as much time as you need to get a job done right. Someone may try to deceive you next April. Romance blossoms as summer approaches.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: singer Billy Preston, actors Michael Keaton and Tom Wopat, novelist Leo Tolstoy.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your ability to pick and choose wisely comes in handy today. A domestic matter can be settled to your total satisfaction. Your best rapport now is probably with an old and trusted friend.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): First impressions count big. Be on your best behavior and spend extra time on your grooming. A good time to consider remodeling your home or office.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Rid yourself of a secret resentment before it destroys an important relationship. The work you do today will bring you new public recognition. It is OK to sign that binding agreement now.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A first-class day for business travel. Have confidence in your ability to succeed. Professional advice is helpful. Romance sparkles if you avoid making too many demands.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Friends and relatives come to you with interesting ideas. Be prepared to accept advice from people who can be helpful to you. Home life should proceed without a major hitch.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Some long-awaited good news arrives. Be ready to act at a moment's notice and you will achieve even better results than expected. Let go of someone who does not return your love.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You may have to direct most of your energy to helping others today. Someone could ask you to choose between career and family. Be thankful for the success you already enjoy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Get in touch with contacts who can give you valuable inside information. If a prominent person offers financial backing, there could be strings attached. Curb extravagance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Monied VIPs are impressed with your insights about the value of joint resources. If they contribute to your cause, they may ask you to keep it secret.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Letting your feelings and vulnerability show will win you support and trust. A private meeting helps you gain backing from a higher-up for one of your cherished projects. Repay a favor.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Important projects need close attention to detail. Your take-charge attitude and advance planning pay off, especially when combined with expert advice. Rethink an earlier decision.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Someone's advice or performance could disappoint you. Lighten up when it comes to describing your needs. Relying on your own research and inner compass will put you back on track again.

In 1990 Joel Wooldridge of Williamsville, N.Y., at 11 years and 4 months became the youngest life master ever. Three years later, a tournament veteran at 14, he is competing against the country's best and showing signs of a bright future.

North's one-no-trump response was a one-round force—the rest of the auction was natural, except that South's diamond rebid could have been made on a three-card suit.

West led the six of clubs (the modern tendency is to lead third-best from four cards) and declarer ran that round to hand, winning with the nine. A low spade was led to the nine, king and ace and a club came back.

Declarer rose with the ace of clubs and drew trumps in three rounds, ending on the table. A low spade was led and, when East inserted the eight, South read the position correctly (the nine of spades on the first lead had tipped the distribution) and played low from hand and West had to waste the queen of spades "on air."

The rest was routine. The defense did what it could by cashing the ace of hearts and continuing the suit. Declarer ruffed in hand, discarded a heart on the jack of spades and then led a club from hand. The defenders could not get more than two spade tricks, one heart and one club.

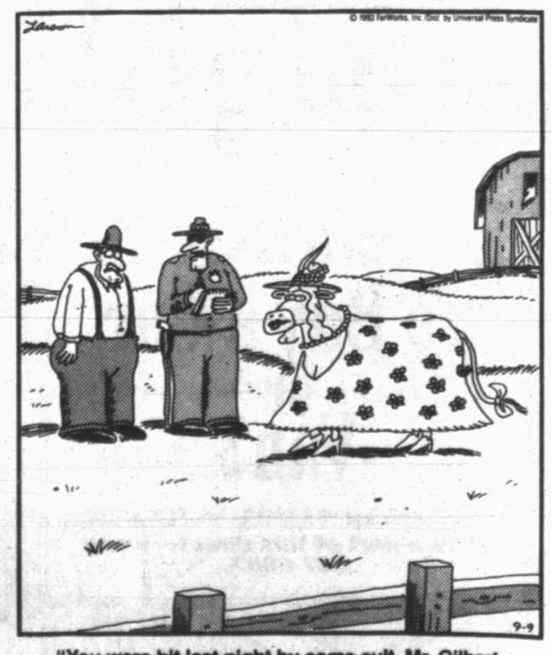

Declarer's decision in the spade suit is known as Restricted Choice. Briefly, if West held a doubleton Q 9, the defender would have to follow with the low card. If West held a 10 9 doubleton, West could play either card on the first round of the suit. Thus, the odds are two to one in favor of North's second card being the queen.

James Brown hopes new bridge will span generations

STEAMBOAT SPRINGS, Colo. — The Godfather of Soul himself is coming here next week to help townsfolk dedicate the James Brown Soul Center of the Universe Bridge.

Brown said he may even write a song about it.

"I hope the bridge is used like my music to reach across the gap between generations," Brown, 60, said Tuesday from his office in Augusta, Ga. "No telling what God has in store for me."

The bridge was named when City Manager Harvey Rose invited townspeople to compete for a $100 savings bond by submitting names for the $1.5 million span across the Yampa River.

A screening committee narrowed the 57 entries down to five that were historically correct, plus an honorable mention for the anonymous James Brown entry. Residents chose that one 7,717 to 7,459 over the New Stockbridge.

"People have a right to a choice," Brown said. "And I thank them for choosing me."

It will be Brown's first trip to Steamboat Springs. He won't perform at the dedication.

MADISON, Wis. — Ginger Rogers has settled an invasion of privacy lawsuit she filed over greeting cards, just in time for a local film festival honoring her work.

Rogers

Rogers, famous for her dance routines on film with Fred Astaire a half century ago, sued last year over birthday cards sold at a Madison bookstore that bore what she said was an unauthorized likeness of her.

Her attorney, Edward Marion, said Wednesday that the publisher cited in the lawsuit, Portal Publications of Corte Madera, Calif., settled out of court. A confidentiality provision was placed on terms of the settlement, Marion said.

The $1.95 card depicted film celebrities including James Dean, characters from the "Wizard of Oz," King Kong, Humphrey Bogart, and Rogers and Astaire.

Marion said Rogers, 82, would attend the film festival being presented next week by the State Historical Society of Wisconsin.

DUBLIN, Ireland — The world knows that Mia Farrow no longer thinks very much of Woody Allen, but she says in an interview published here that she wasn't wild about his films, either.

"I mean, Woody's films were all so — insular," she said in an interview published in the Irish Independent.

"He had his own family of actors, and everyone knew his movies took up most of a year. So I never got the chance to do anything else," Farrow said.

She was in Ireland for the filming of "Widow's Peak," directed by John Irvine and co-starring Natasha Richardson and Jim Broadbent.

LOS ANGELES — Director Herbert Ross, known for such films as "The Turning Point," "Steel Magnolias" and "The Goodbye Girl," is staging his first opera, Pucini's "La Boheme."

The popular romantic tragedy opens Thursday at the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion for seven performances, said Tom Jacobs, spokesman for the Los Angeles Music Center Opera Company.

"I direct in theater, and because of my background in ballet, I think musically. The challenge is to meet this fusion of drama and music that the opera represents," Ross said recently during rehearsals.

Ross, 67, was a dancer in the 1940s, then choreographed and directed on Broadway. He came to Hollywood in 1964.

Ross and his wife, Lee Radziwill, sister of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, will join an opening night audience Thursday that includes Whoopi Goldberg, Kathy Bates, Kirk Douglas and William Friedkin.

NEW YORK — James Michener says he wasn't always a sensitive man, but he's working to become one.

Michener

Writing in the September issue of "New Choices for Retirement Living," Michener, 86, offers some advice for young people. He said being brave and sensitive are among the absolutes in life.

"Be brave: Bold new ideas are always needed. Be sensitive: I grew up in a fearfully macho world, and I'm not too old to exorcise that evil inheritance; younger men can avoid , and young women should insist that th do."

The author of 40 books including "Tales of the South Pacific," "The Bridges at Toko-Ri," "Hawaii" and "Mexico" now teaches at the University of Texas and at Eckerd College in St. Petersburg, Fla.

"In another 10 or 12 years, I suppose I'll begin to slow down," he writes.

Al Gore makes rare debut on Letterman's TV show

By Scott Williams
AP television writer

NEW YORK — Vice President Al Gore smashed government-issue ashtrays and read his own Top 10 list on CBS' "Late Show With David Letterman" Wednesday.

Gore set the tone in a brief, backstage sketch that opened the show, poking fun at his own reputation as an earnest, uptight straight-arrow:

The vice president is seen almost anxiously pitching jokes at an unreceptive Letterman: "How about, 'I'm so stiff that I went for a checkup and the doctors declared me legally dead?" Gore asks, almost pleading.

Letterman rejects the I'm-so-stiff gags and counters, "How about 'Know what words are the president's favorite, the one he most likes to hear?" Gore doesn't know, and Letterman cracks up, telling him: "'Would you like fries with that?'"

Gore, gathering himself and glowering fiercely, rips into the comedian, saying, "That's the president of the United States you're talking about!"

Barrump-bump! Roll those credits.

Gore charmed the studio audience and host Letterman, receiving a standing ovation from the former and an invitation to return from the latter. Paul Shaffer and the CBS Orchestra even punctuated Gore's jokes with rimshots.

Singer Rick James denies torture allegations

LOS ANGELES (NYT) — Testifying for the first time in his torture and sexual assault trial, singer Rick James denied that he burned a woman with a knife and cocaine pipe, then forced her to have sex with his girlfriend.

The 45-year-old Grammy Award-winner is charged with aggravated mayhem, assault with a deadly weapon, torture, false imprisonment and forced oral copulation in separate attacks against women in July 1991 and November 1992.

Addressing the first allegations, James, best known for his 1981 hit "Super Freak," testified Wednesday in San Fernando Superior Court, 20 miles north of downtown Los Angeles, that he and the alleged victim — a 24-year-old woman — engaged in a daylong drug-and-cocaine binge in a utility room at his Hollywood Hills home, where she lived with him briefly.

Sometime afterward, James testified, he gave $300 to $400 to the woman and another female friend to buy groceries. The woman returned 1 1/2 days later with dirty bandages wrapped around burns on her legs, James said.

When he pressed the woman for an explanation, she said she was injured riding a motorcycle and would treat the wounds herself with medication from a drug store.

"I said, 'That burn was way too bad for ointment, and she should go to the hospital,'" he said.

Prosecutors contend that James burned the woman because he suspected she had stolen drugs from him.

PUBLIC NOTICE

BRIEF EXPLANATORY STATEMENTS OF PROPOSED
CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS
SPECIAL ELECTION
NOVEMBER 2, 1993

PROPOSITION NO. 1 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 9 proposes a constitutional amendment that would authorize the Texas Legislature to provide for the issuance of bonds for the state financing of start-up costs for historically underutilized businesses. The amendment provides that the legislature by law may establish a Texas historically underutilized business capital growth and start-up fund. The money in the fund may be used without further appropriation and only for a program established by the legislature to aid in the start-up costs of a historically underutilized business, as defined by the legislature. To carry out the program, the legislature may issue up to $50 million of general obligation bonds to provide funding. The legislature may require review and approval of the issuance of bonds, the use of the bond proceeds, or of the rules adopted by an agency to govern use of the bond proceeds. Bonds authorized by the amendment constitute a general obligation of the state.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to provide for the issuance of $50 million of general obligation bonds for the recovery and further development of the state's economy and for increasing job opportunities and other benefits for Texas residents through state financing of the start-up costs of historically underutilized businesses."

PROPOSITION NO. 2 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 86 proposes a constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature, by general law, to exempt from ad valorem taxation all or part of real and personal property used, constructed, acquired, or installed wholly or partly to meet or exceed rules or regulations adopted by any environmental protection agency of the United States, Texas, or a political subdivision of this state for the prevention, monitoring, control, or reduction of air, water, or land pollution. The amendment applies to real and personal property used as a facility, device, or method for the control of air, water, or land pollution that would otherwise be taxable for the first time on or after January 1, 1994. The amendment does not authorize the exemption from ad valorem taxation of real or personal property that was subject to a tax abatement agreement executed before January 1, 1994.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment to promote the reduction of pollution and to encourage the preservation of jobs by authorizing the exemption from ad valorem taxation of real and personal property used for the control of air, water, or land pollution."

PROPOSITION NO. 3 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 3 proposes a constitutional amendment to clear land titles in which the State of Texas relinquishes and releases any claim of sovereign ownership or title to an undivided one-third interest in and to the lands and minerals within the Shelby, Frazier, and McCormick League (now located in Fort Bend and Austin counties) arising out of the interest in that league originally granted under the Mexican Colonization Law of 1823 to John McCormick on or about July 24, 1824, and subsequently voided by the governing body of Austin's Original Colony on or about December 15, 1830. Title to such interest in the lands and minerals is confirmed to the owners of the remaining interests in such lands and minerals.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment providing for the clearing of land titles by the release of a state claim in a fractional interest, arising out of the voiding of an interest under a Mexican land grant, to the owners of certain property in Fort Bend and Austin counties."

PROPOSITION NO. 4 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 49 proposes a constitutional amendment that would prohibit a state personal income tax without voter approval and would dedicate the proceeds of any income tax, if enacted, to property tax relief and education. The amendment provides that a general law enacted by the legislature that imposes a tax on the net incomes of natural persons, including a person's share of partnership and unincorporated association income, must provide that the portion of the law imposing the tax not take effect until approved by a majority of the registered voters voting in a statewide referendum held on the question of imposing the tax. The referendum must specify the rate of the tax that will apply to taxable income.

The amendment also provides that a general law enacted by the legislature that increases the rate of the tax, or changes the tax in a manner that results in an increase in the combined income tax liability of all persons subject to the tax, may not take effect until approved by a majority of the registered voters voting in a statewide referendum held on the question of increasing the income tax. The referendum must specify the manner in which the proposed law would increase the combined tax liability of all persons subject to the tax. The legislature may repeal, or amend without increasing, a tax approved by the voters without submitting the amendment or the repeal to the voters. If the legislature repeals a tax approved by the voters, the legislature may only reenact the tax without voter approval if the effective date of the reenactment of the tax is within one year of the effective date of the repeal of the tax.

The amendment also provides that, in the first year in which an income tax is imposed, and during the first year of any increase in the tax, not less than two-thirds of all net revenues from the tax shall be used to reduce the rate of ad valorem maintenance and operation taxes levied for the support of primary and secondary education. In subsequent years, not less than two-thirds of all net revenues of the tax shall be used to continue such ad valorem tax relief. The net revenues of the tax remaining after the dedication of money for reduction of ad valorem maintenance and operation taxes shall be used for support of education. The maximum rate at which a school district may impose ad valorem maintenance and operation taxes is reduced by an amount equal to one cent per $100 valuation for each one cent per $100 valuation that the school district's ad valorem maintenance and operation tax is reduced by the minimum amount of money dedicated under the amendment, provided that a school district may subsequently increase the maximum ad valorem maintenance and operation tax rate if the increased maximum rate is approved by a majority of the voters of the school district voting at an election called and held for that purpose. The portions of the amendment relating to dedicating tax revenues to reduce the rate of ad valorem maintenance and operation taxes apply on or after the first January 1 after the date on which an income tax takes effect, except that if the income tax begins to apply on a January 1, the amendment applies to ad valorem maintenance and operation taxes levied on or after that date.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment prohibiting a personal income tax without voter approval and, if an income tax is enacted, dedicating the revenue to education and limiting the rate of local school taxes."

PROPOSITION NO. 5 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 18 proposes a constitutional amendment that would authorize the legislature to prescribe the qualifications of sheriffs. Currently, the constitution authorizes the legislature to prescribe the duties, perquisites, and fees of office, but not the qualifications for the office of sheriff.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment to allow the legislature to prescribe the qualifications of sheriffs."

PROPOSITION NO. 6 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 21 proposes a constitutional amendment that would abolish the office of county surveyor in Jackson County. The amendment also provides for the powers, duties, and functions of the county surveyor to be transferred to the county officer designated by the commissioners court.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment abolishing the office of county surveyor in Jackson County."

PROPOSITION NO. 7 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 57 proposes a constitutional amendment that repeals article XII, section 6, of the Texas Constitution, which currently provides that no corporation shall issue stock or bonds except for money paid, labor done, or property actually received, and that all fictitious increase of stock or indebtedness shall be void.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment repealing certain restrictions on the ability of corporations to raise capital."

PROPOSITION NO. 8 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 22 proposes a constitutional amendment that would authorize the commissioners court of McLennan County to call an election to abolish the office of county surveyor. The office of county surveyor will be abolished if a majority of the qualified voters of McLennan County voting on the question favor the abolition. If the office of county surveyor is abolished, the amendment requires the maps, field notes, and other records in the custody of the county surveyor to be transferred to the county clerk of McLennan County. After abolition, the amendment also grants the commissioners court of McLennan County the authority to employ or contract with a qualified person to perform any of the functions that would have been performed by the county surveyor if the office had not been abolished.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment to abolish the office of county surveyor in McLennan County."

PROPOSITION NO. 9 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 19 proposes an amendment to article VIII, section 13 of the Texas Constitution that would modify the provisions for the redemption of real property sold at a tax sale. The amendment deletes current language in article VIII, section 13 that allows the legislature to provide for the sale of property without trial to pay for delinquent taxes. It also states that the deed to the new owner vests a good and perfect title subject only to redemption as set out in this amendment or impeachment for fraud. Language is added limiting application of the current two-year redemption period to former owners of residence homesteads and land designated for agricultural use sold for unpaid taxes. When property is sold as the result of a suit to enforce collection of unpaid taxes, the amendment would allow the legislature to limit redemption to property used as a residence homestead or designated for agricultural use at the time the suit was filed. The amendment creates a second type of redemption for former owners of real property when property is neither a residence homestead, nor designated for agricultural use. These owners would have a six-month period in which to redeem their property by paying the amount of money paid for the property, including the Tax Deed Recording Fee, all taxes, penalties, interest, and costs paid plus an amount not exceeding 25 percent of the aggregate total. The amendment applies to redemption of properties sold at a tax sale for which the purchaser's deed is filed on or after January 1, 1994. For redemption of properties sold at a tax sale for which the purchaser's deed was filed before January 1, 1994, the former law is applicable and remains in effect.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment to modify the provisions for the redemption of real property sold at a tax sale."

PROPOSITION NO. 10 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 34 proposes a constitutional amendment that adds a new section 49-b-2 to article III of the Texas Constitution. This new section provides that, in addition to the general obligation bonds authorized to be issued and sold by the Veterans' Land Board (the "Board") by sections 49-b ($950 million) and 49-b-1 ($1.3 billion) of article III, the board may provide for, issue, and sell general obligation bonds of the state in an amount not to exceed $750 million to provide financing to Texas veterans. $250 million of the bonds authorized by this new section shall be used to augment the Veterans' Land Fund (the "Land Fund"). The Land Fund shall be used by the Board to purchase lands situated in Texas owned by the United States government, an agency of the United States government, the State of Texas, a political subdivision or agency of the State of Texas, or a person, firm, or corporation. The lands shall be sold to veterans in quantities, or terms, at prices, and at fixed, variable, floating, or other rates of interest determined by the Board. Lands in the Land Fund that are offered for sale to veterans and that are not sold may be sold or resold to the purchasers in quantities, terms, prices, and rates of interest determined by the Board.

New section 49-b-2 creates the Veterans' Housing Assistance Fund II (the "Housing Fund II"), and $500 million of the general obligation bonds authorized by the section shall be used for the Housing Fund II. The Housing Fund II is a separate and distinct fund from the Veterans' Housing Assistance Fund (the "Housing Fund") established under section 49-b-1 of article III. Money in the Housing Fund II shall be administered by the Board and shall be used to make home mortgage loans to veterans for housing within this state in quantities, on terms, and at fixed, variable, floating, or other rates of interest determined by the Board. The principal of, and interest on, the general obligation bonds authorized by this section for the benefit of the Housing Fund II shall be paid out of the money of the Housing Fund II. The principal of, and interest on, the general obligation bonds authorized by section 49-b-1 of article III for the benefit of the Housing Fund shall be paid out of money in the Housing Fund. If there is not enough money in the Land Fund, the Housing Fund, or the Housing Fund II, as the case may be, available to pay the principal of, and interest on, the general obligation bonds authorized by this section or by sections 49-b or 49-b-1 of article III, there is appropriated out of the first money coming into the treasury in each fiscal year an amount that is sufficient to pay the principal of, and interest on, the general obligation bonds that mature or become due during that fiscal year.

If the Board determines that assets from the Land Fund, the Housing Fund, or the Housing Fund II are not required for purposes of the fund, the Board may transfer the assets to another of those funds or use the assets to secure revenue bonds issued by the Board. The revenue bonds shall be special obligations of the Board and payable only from and secured by receipts of the funds, assets transferred from the funds, and other revenues as determined by the Board and shall not constitute indebtedness of the State of Texas or the Board. The Board may issue revenue bonds from time to time, which bonds may not exceed an aggregate principal amount that the Board determines can be fully retired from the receipts of the funds. The revenue bonds shall be sold in forms, denominations, and in installments, and bear a rate or rates of interest as the Board determines.

The general obligation bonds authorized to be issued by the Board by this section or be sections 49-b and 49-b-1 of article III shall be issued and sold in forms and denominations, on terms, at times, in the manner, at places, in installments, and shall bear a rate or rates of interest the Board determines. The bonds shall be incontestable after execution by the Board, approval by the Attorney General of Texas, and delivery to the purchaser.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment authorizing issuance of $750 million in general obligation bonds to augment the Veterans' Land Fund and the Veterans' Housing Assistance Fund and to fund the Veterans' Housing Assistance Fund II."

PROPOSITION NO. 11 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 31 proposes a constitutional amendment relating to the duties of trustees of local retirement systems which provide retirement and related disability and death benefits for public officers and employees and that do not belong to a statewide retirement system. The amendment provides that the board of trustees of such a system shall (1) administer the system of benefits; (2) hold the assets of the system for the exclusive purposes of providing benefits to participants and their beneficiaries and defraying reasonable expenses of administering the system; and (3) select legal counsel and an actuary and adopt sound actuarial assumptions to be used by the system.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment providing that the trustees of a local public pension system must administer the system for the benefit of the system's participants and beneficiaries."

PROPOSITION NO. 12 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 23 proposes a constitutional amendment providing that any person accused of a violent or sexual offense committed while under the supervision of a criminal justice agency of this state or a political subdivision of this state for a prior felony may, after a hearing and evidence substantially showing the guilt of the accused, be denied bail pending trial. If the accused is not, however, accorded a trial within 60 days from the time of his incarceration upon the accusation or indictment, the order denying bail shall be set aside unless a continuance is obtained upon the request of the accused. In the amendment, the term "violent offense" means murder, aggravated assault (if a deadly weapon was used or exhibited during the commission of the assault), aggravated kidnapping, or aggravated robbery. The term "sexual offense" means aggravated sexual assault, sexual assault, or indecency with a child.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment permitting the denial of bail to certain persons charged with certain violent or sexual offenses committed while under the supervision of a criminal justice agency of the state or a political subdivision of the state."

PROPOSITION NO. 13 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 13 proposes a constitutional amendment that amends article VII, section 17(a), of the Texas Constitution to provide that, of the $100 million currently appropriated by that section for the use of public institutions of higher education during each fiscal year, those institutions may also utilize this money to pay for acquiring, constructing, or equipping or for major repair or rehabilitation of buildings, facilities, other permanent improvements, or capital equipment used jointly for educational and general activities and for auxiliary enterprises to the extent of their use for educational and general activities. For the five-year period beginning on September 1, 2000, and for each five-year period thereafter, the legislature, during a regular session that is nearest, but preceding, a five-year period may, by a two-thirds vote of the membership of each house, increase the amount of the $100 million constitutional appropriation for the five-year period. The amendment also reflects name changes that have been made to some of the institutions of higher education for which such funding is available. The amendment adds the Texas State Technical College System to those institutions eligible to receive such funding, but limits its allocation of the annual appropriation to 2.2 percent of the total appropriation each fiscal year. The amendment also provides that each governing board authorized to participate in the distribution of money under article III, section 17, may also issue bonds and notes for the purposes of refunding bonds or notes issued under that section or prior law for the purposes of acquiring capital equipment, library books and library materials, paying for acquiring, constructing, or equipping or for major repair or rehabilitation of buildings, facilities, other permanent improvements, or capital equipment used jointly for educational and general activities and for auxiliary enterprises to the extent of their use for educational and general activities. The amendment deletes language in article III, section 17, which authorizes the legislature to designate a single agency to issue such bonds or notes in lieu of the governing bodies, and to transfer to that agency the authority to collect and pledge money to the payment of such bonds and notes as directed by the governing body of each eligible institution. Funds appropriated under article III, section 17, may not be used for the purpose of constructing, equipping, repairing, or rehabilitating buildings or other permanent improvements that are to be used only for student housing, intercollegiate athletics, or auxiliary enterprises.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment relating to the amount and expenditure of certain constitutionally dedicated funding for public institutions of higher education."

PROPOSITION NO. 14 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 45 proposes a constitutional amendment that adds a new subsection (e) to article III, section 49-h, of the Texas Constitution. The new subsection provides that, in addition to the amounts authorized by subsections (a) ($500 million), (c) ($400 million), and (d) ($1.1 billion) of section 49-h, the legislature may authorize the issuance of up to $1 billion in general obligation bonds and may use the proceeds of the bonds for acquiring, constructing, or equipping new corrections institutions, including youth corrections institutions, and mental health and mental retardation institutions and for major repair or renovation of existing facilities of those corrections and mental health and mental retardation facilities. The amendment also provides that the provisions of subsection (a) of section 49-h, relating to the review and approval of bonds, and the provisions of subsection (b) of section 49-h, relating to the status of the bonds as a general obligation of the state and to the manner in which the principal and interest on the bonds are paid, apply to bonds authorized by this amendment.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment authorizing the issuance of up to $1 billion in general obligation bonds payable from the general revenues of the state for projects relating to facilities of corrections and mental health and mental retardation institutions."

PROPOSITION NO. 15 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 37 proposes a constitutional amendment that would authorize the county commissioners court of a county to call an election to abolish the office of county surveyor. The office of county surveyor is abolished if a majority of voters of the county voting in the election approve the measure. If the office of county surveyor is abolished, the maps, field notes, and other records of the county surveyor are transferred to the county officer or employee designated by the commissioners court.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment to permit the voters of a county to decide, at an election called by the commissioners court, whether to abolish the office of county surveyor in the county."

PROPOSITION NO. 16 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 44 proposes an amendment to article III, section 49-i(b) of the Texas Constitution, which currently limits the principal amount of bonds outstanding at one time for the Texas agricultural fund to $25 million and for the rural microenterprise development fund to $5 million. The amendment would raise the principal amount limit for the Texas agricultural fund to $100 million. The amendment would also make the principal amount limit for each fund apply to the total principal amounts of both bonds and notes issued or sold rather than just the principal amounts of bonds outstanding at one time.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment authorizing up to a total of $100 million in bonds and notes to be issued or sold to finance the Texas agricultural fund for providing financial assistance to develop, increase, improve, or expand the production, processing, marketing, or export of crops or products grown or produced primarily in this state by agricultural businesses domiciled in the state."

Pack on shortest trip

■ Midland High has had a short week to prepare for Lubbock Monterey.

By Terry Williamson
Sports editor

LUBBOCK — Life is a bit brutal for the Midland High Bulldogs these days as one long and weary road trip is down and a quick bus turnaround looms before the wink of an eye.

After losing 35-21 to Irvin in El Paso, the Bulldogs have had a short week to prepare for Monterey's Plainsmen in Lubbock at 7:30 p.m. today. It is the shortest road trip of the year for the Purple Pack, but still covers some 230 miles.

It's not the distance that bothers Bulldog coach Ronnie Reeger, but the short week does cause concern.

"We've got to improve in a hurry," Reeger said. "There just isn't much time and we need to do several things differently if we hope to win a game.

"We've got to be more aggressive on defense and tackle much better. Irvin's (Caleb) Quinn (who had 267 yards rushing against MHS and three touchdowns) is a good back, but he isn't All-World. We made him All-World."

Now comes Monterey, a team that beat Roswell, N.M., 17-14, Friday at Lowrey Field in Lubbock, the site of tonight's game.

"You talk about different seasons,"

Kile no-hitter

HOUSTON — Darryl Kile, a low-budget starter on a multimillion-dollar staff, pitched baseball's second no-hitter in five days, leading the Houston Astros over the New York Mets 7-1 Wednesday night.

Kile, backed by excellent plays from third baseman Ken Caminiti and shortstop Andujar Cedeno in the seventh inning, threw Houston's first no-hitter since Mike Scott clinched the NL West championship with a 2-0 victory over San Francisco in 1986.

Kile (15-6) struck out nine and walked one. His gem came just after Jim Abbott pitched a no-hitter for the New York Yankees against Cleveland on Saturday. Seattle's Chris Bosio pitched the other no-hitter in the majors this year, against Boston on April 22.

An Astrodome crowd of 15,684 stood as Kile finished off the no-hitter in the ninth by retiring Todd Hundley on a routine grounder and striking out Tito Navarro and Chico Walker.

Trinkle dies

FORT WORTH — Jim Trinkle, longtime sportswriter and columnist with the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, is remembered by a colleague as "the premier wordsmith."

Trinkle, 71, who died Tuesday night after a long illness, was "a perfectionist in the printed word. He would rewrite and polish and tinker to get a phrase just right, or a word just right," recalled Pat Truly, a former sports columnist and now an editorial writer for the Star-Telegram.

"He didn't have a thesaurus on his desk just for show. He really used it to great effect," Truly said.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Friday at South Hills Christian Church in Fort Worth, followed by burial in Greenwood Memorial Park. Thompson's Harveson & Cole Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

Orioles trade

BALTIMORE — The Baltimore Orioles finally gave up on Glenn Davis, giving him his unconditional release Wednesday after bolstering their offense for the pennant drive by acquiring outfielder Lonnie Smith from the Pittsburgh Pirates for two minor leaguers to be named later.

Davis, the Orioles' second-highest paid player behind Cal Ripken, had not played for Baltimore since May 23. The oft-injured first baseman was activated from the disabled list Monday, and that night he got into a shouting match with manager Johnny Oates over being left out of the starting lineup.

Oates and the Orioles said that Davis' release had nothing to do with the argument.

■ Midland High girls teach dictator Pittman volleyball lesson.

By Amy Wolfenbarger

Taking a hint from former communist countries all over the world, the Midland High volleyball team staged their own coup d'etat recently and banished the dictatorship of 10th year coach Sonja Pittman.

Well, it wasn't as brutal as all that. Maybe Pittman has just softened a little bit after a few years.

After the Lady Bulldogs' first few matches, Pittman was not pleased with the results. So she did something that she has never done before and very few coaches ever do: she asked her players for advice.

Phonasa steady for Rangers

By Mike Butts

The name Indavong Phonasa may not sound anything like Rockne, Butkus or Bednarik. And even the NFL wouldn't consider Phonasa's native land — Laos — for expansion.

So what is a Laotian named Phonasa doing on the Greenwood Rangers' football roster?'

■ Area Football Roundup

Well, at the moment, he's leadi ng the team in rushing. And the way he plays football would in no way shame the above-named legends of the game.

Phonasa lead the Rangers in their 30-0 rout of Coahoma Friday with 75 yards on the ground, including a seven-yard touchdown run. The junior tailback stands only 5-foot-8 and weighs 150 pounds.

"He had a great game Friday," said Ranger coach Bob Purser. "He blocked well and ran (well)."

Phonasa move up to the varsity last year in the second or third week, Purser said. Against Lubbock Cooper he returned a kickoff for a touchdown and rushed for another. But he separated his shoulder in the sixth game and missed the rest of the season.

The 17-year-old came to the U.S. by way of Thailand and the Phillipines when he was six because "my parents wanted a better life."

He admits to feeling lost when he first got to this country. He said his cousin is the only other Asian in the Greenwood school district, but Purser said his teammates don't view him as someone

Temple vs. Permian, one to watch

Due to Midland High's game with Monterey at 7:30 p.m. today, the District 4-5A picking game is being run a day early. It will return to Friday next week.

Williamson

Old District 4-5A had a tough time last week with an overall 2-5 mark with only Midland Lee and Odessa Permian coming away with a win.

It was felt that the league would do a little better than that on opening week. There were some good opponents on the schedule, but this district is expected to perform well overall against good statewide competition.

Still, there is one game on the schedule this week that will keep things interesting. No. 5 state-ranked Odessa Permian hosts No. 4 Temple in a game that should tell us all we want to know about old Mojo.

Permian follows Temple with a trip to Amarillo High next week in a re-match of last year's quarterfinal contest. Amarillo High won that ice game to eliminate Permian from the playoffs.

Temple is coming off an impressive 63-0 win over Austin Johnson while Permian beat El Paso Coronado 17-3. Coronado is considered the strongest team in El Paso.

Many expected Permian to be a step below the teams it has produced the last two seasons. If Permian is down a bit, it should show here. A strong showing by the Panthers, however, will have district foes seeking cover.

This is the barometer reading for the league. Lee's 55-0 win over a weak El Paso Andress team left few conclusions to be reached other than Lee is pretty sound. Lee's big pre-district test will come next week against Amarillo Palo Duro, a team that rallied to beat Odessa High.

After a 4-3 record last week in the picking game, the mark should improve as the district has a better week this time around. Here goes for Week No. 2.

Midland High 17, Lubbock Monterey 15: This game is huge for the Bulldogs because MHS embarks on a cruise through rough waters after tonight. Monterey is 18-17-1 against the Bulldogs, but the Plainsmen are looking to the future, waiting for a large sophomore class to mature.

Midland Lee 45, El Paso Socorro 8: Run Rebel, run. See No. 10 Rebel run. Don't expect a pass. They won't need it this week.

Temple 28, Odessa Permian 17: Temple is 15-3 against 4-5A, but all three of those losses were on the road. Tim McGraw reports that Permian is 75-5-1 in Ratliff Stadium, losing only to Lee three times, San Angelo and Plano. Permian has never lost a non-conference regular season game at Ratliff. This is the first. Temple leads the series 1-0.

Odessa High 28, Lubbock Coronado 14: The Bronchos let one get away last week against Amarillo Palo Duro, but it won't happen this week. OHS leads the series 1-0.

San Angelo 34, Killeen Ellison 24: Expect fireworks, but the Bobcats are at home. Angelo leads the series 1-0.

Abilene Cooper 42, Newman Smith 7: This is the cure for a loss against 4A Brownwood.

Sweetwater 21, Abilene High 7: Sweetwater leads the series by a 7-4 count since 1982. Abilene High had over 400 yards of offense last week and didn't score. They won't get that much yardage this week, but will score.

LEE: Earning playoffs only half the battle takes the court at 2:30 in the MHS gym.

Lee (20-9 overall, 7-5 in district) finished third last year behind Abilene High and Abilene Cooper in the district, but because of the new rule allowing the top three teams in 5A districts to advance to post-season play, the Lady Rebels made the playoffs for the first time in about two decades. The last time Lee was represented in the playoffs was before its current players were born.

But although the experience was sweet, it didn't last very long.

"You know when you get to lick that first little curly cue on the top of a Dairy Queen cone, that's about all we got," said third-year coach Anita Corder.

And the anticipation of another playoff berth in the top-heavy 4-5A could be as agonizing as waiting for that first drop of Heinz ketchup.

"A couple of years, there's been some weaker teams in the district," Corder said. "But this year, they're all good. And (San Angelo) Central is very strong."

Corder also said that district champ Abilene High and runner-up Abilene Cooper should be strong again. Lee, Midland High, Odessa Permian and Odessa High round out the list.

Lee, which lost three starters including the district's outstanding hitter Tanisha Mills and all-district setter Courtney McHugh to graduation, is in an unfamiliar position, Corder said.

"Now we're in a position where we have to work to continue a winning tradition," she said. "That puts a whole new perspective on the season. The school expects (a playoff berth), the community expects it and the players expect it."

Lee also lost all-district middle blocker Carrie Zamora. Returning for the Lady Rebels are Tera Mander, a 5-foot-11 senior middle blocker, and Heather Huff, a 5-10 senior outside hitter. Huff was a second-team all-district pick while Mander was an honorable mention.

Although Lee lost two big hitters from last year's team, the biggest question mark at the beginning of the season was the replacement of McHugh, who was a two-year starter and as setter was the quarterback of the team. That tough assignment falls on juniors Roseann Sullivan and Christian Lance.

"I have two really good junior setters and from the first day of practice, I put them in competition with each other," said Corder, who runs a 5-1 offense in which the setter is the player most in demand.

"Either one of them could get the job done," Corder continued. "They're both somewhat inexperienced on the varsity level."

However, after more than a month since the first practice, Corder now considers that early question mark a possible strength.

"I first, I thought that would be our major weakness but they have both come along great," she said.

And the main hitters for the Lady Rebels seem very pleased with the setters.

"We have full confidence in them," Huff said. "They both have beutiful hands. They've really improved."

With two setters that are both capable of running the offense, Corder thinks depth is one of the Lady Rebels' biggest strengths.

"I told them just the other night that I've never had the kind of depth that we have this year," Corder said. "I mean, we've got four setters in the gym and at least three players in every position. The depth is so good that some of the players were griping about not getting to play so I've had to spend some time helping the players understand their roles."

Another strength, the players feel, is team unity.

"The team work, with our players as well as the coaches, is the best I've ever seen it," Mander said. "We're a close little family."

Much like their coach, the players also feel like a playoff berth is expected now. But Mander feels like the team is better prepared than they were last year.

"We learned a lesson and now we're more aware of it," she said.

Huff added, "Now we know that getting there is only half the battle."

PACK: Team changes yield quick results

really asked my players' opinions on who should be on the court and where they should be on the court," Pittman said. "They're very mature, a very sophisticated group of young ladies."

The solution was simple. Change the rotation a little bit. Maybe move the current rotation forward or back a position and see what happens. The result now has the Lady Bulldogs in synch.

"It made a tremendous difference in the team's court awareness," Pittman said.

What returning seniors Michel Ann Thompson and Casi Madison came up with could be the difference in MHS playing a mediocre season or making the playoffs from District 4-5A.

Saturday, Pittman will get a chance to see if the fall of her Iron, make that Purple and Gold Curtain, as the Lady Bulldogs host crosstown rival Midland Lee in both teams' district openers. Play starts at 1:15 p.m. with the junior varsity with the varsity to follow at 2:30.

MHS (17-15 overall, 6-6 in district) finished fourth in 4-5A behind Lee last season. Abilene High won the district while Abilene Cooper was second. Pittman and Lee coach Anita Corder both said they thought the race for the top three places could be wide open.

While Pittman surprised herself with her decision, none were more shocked than Madison and Thompson.

"She's always one to think of things herself," said Madison, who is one of three team captains and also a setter-hitter. "She always tells us she runs a dictatorship."

But something had to be done, according to Pittman.

"I would have to say inexperience was one of our weaknesses and we're a pretty quiet team," Pittman said. "They were great for seven or eight points (a game) but then it would just sort of fall off.

"If we have solved our problems, then I'm just thrilled to death," she said.

Thompson, a captain and a setter-hitter, also agreed that help was needed.

"You get to the point where you know you have a good team, but everything is just not clicking," Thompson said. "We were surprised it went as easy as it went. And once we got out on the court, we saw how many more options we had."

The changes have made Midland a lot more comfortable with and confident in the rest of the season, Pittman said.

"We haven't come down off a cloud yet," Pittman said.

Perhaps the biggest reason for the uncertainty at the beginning of the season was that Pittman was trying to assemble a different team from last year's.

MHS graduated the district oustanding defensive player Sheena Salcido, at outside hitter, and all-district performer and Laura Baressi at middle blocker. The Lady Bulldogs also lost their floor leaders Stephanie Saxon and Alicia Gonzales.

Madison and Thompson were the only returning starters and are the setters. Fellow seniors Stephanie Pirkle and Jodie Strain will be starting at outside hitter while sophomores Toya Zachary and Jamee Stennett are the middle blockers.

Pittman said that only two sophomores have lettered in her 10 years and that much of the preseason was spent "seasoning" Zachary and Stennett.

Despite having complete authoritarian control on her team the past nine years, Pittman said she likes her new strategy.

"I'm pretty proud of myself for that idea," Pittman joked, saying that she will consider making each season a democratic one.

After all, if the Lady Bulldogs can break down their own version of the Berlin Wall, a few district foes couldn't be that tough.

Sampras wears down Chang

Associated Press

NEW YORK — For two glorious sets, Pete Sampras and Michael Chang put on a show that deserved to be in the final of the U.S. Open.

They played with power and touch, speed and artistry, Sampras slugging shots as hard as he could, Chang running them down and driving them back just as hard.

■ U.S. Open

Then as the third set began and the hour grew late Wednesday night, Sampras simply wore Chang down game by game with 125 mph aces and baseline-kissing groundstrokes to march into the semifinals with a 6-7 (7-0), 7-6 (7-2), 6-1, 6-1 victory.

It was the first time Sampras beat his boyhood chum on a hard court in their professional careers. And it made Sampras, the world's No. 2 player, the obvious favorite to win this championship and take the title he first captured in 1990 when he was just 19.

The only other top-10 player in the tournament is No. 8 Andrei Medvedev, who could meet Sampras in the final. But judging by the way Sampras played against Chang, serving 13 aces and smacking 70 winners, nobody is likely to beat him.

"At the start, he was taking it to me, and that's not my style," Sampras said. "I'm not used to being on the defensive. Then I got in a good rhythm and Michael started missing some shots.

"I think I was a little uncertain at the start. I wasn't sure I should come in or what."

Chang knew he had to come out aggressively to have a chance.

"I had to make something happen," he said. "In the last two sets, I think I ran out of gas a little bit. I made a lot of errors from the backcourt. My goal was to put Pete on the defensive, to put him in a position where he's doing what he's not used to doing."

Only a few points made the difference in the second set.

"But even up two sets to love," he said, "I still think I would have lost the match the way Pete was playing."

Earlier, Arantxa Sanchez Vicario and Natalia Zvereva waited 8½ hours and played 8 minutes, the perfect match in another U.S. Open fiasco.

In a tournament plagued by sickness, injuries, rain and freaky upsets, nothing could have been more fitting than Natalia Zvereva's default Wednesday night after losing three games to Arantxa Sanchez Vicario.

This is a U.S. Open ruled by Murphy's Law, where anything that can go wrong, will go wrong. So it hardly was surprising when Zvereva turned to the umpire and said, in effect, "No mas," giving Sanchez Vicario a free pass into the semifinals.

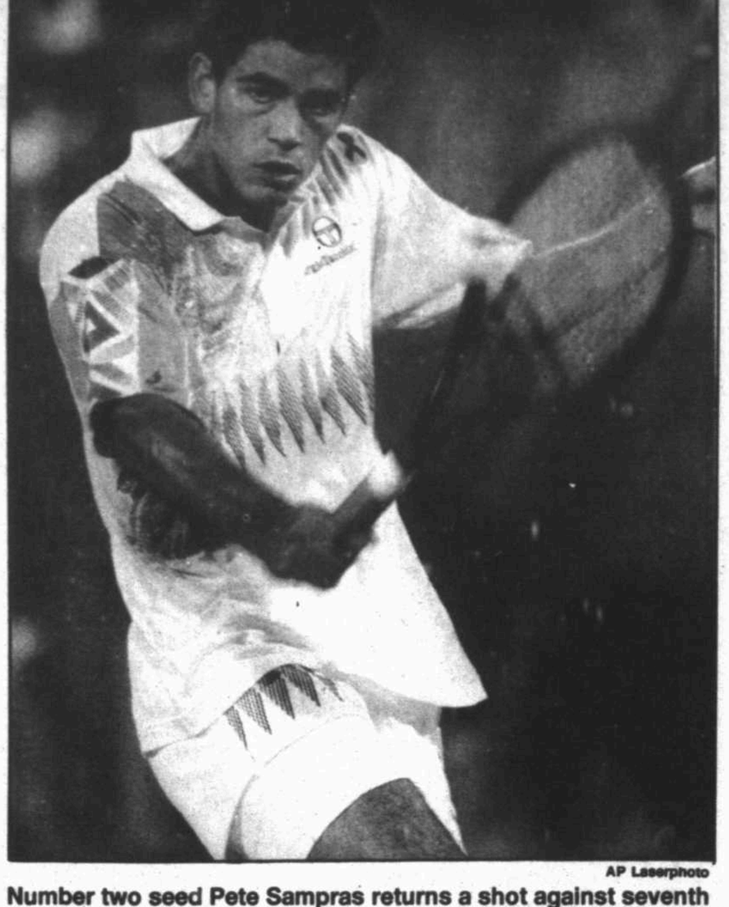

Helena Sukova, who knocked Martina Navratilova out in the fourth round, will play Sanchez Vicario after beating Katerina Maleeva 6-4, 6-7 (7-3), 6-3 in a match that ended nearly 11 hours after its scheduled start.

Persistent drizzle wiped out the day session, pushing the women's quarters to the evening, and driving everyone a little stir crazy.

"I just wait here in the locker room and listen to music," said Sanchez Vicario, who arrived at 10:30 a.m. EDT to practice for her scheduled 11 a.m. match. "I listened to three tapes. I read eight magazines, two books. I could not read anymore. My eyes were tired and my hearing was going, so much music."

And what did she read? A novel with the appropriate title of "The Other Side of Midnight."

Zvereva, meanwhile, was feeling sick. Two nights earlier she came down with congestion and a fever, she said, and a doctor prescribed "a whole lot of pills — antibiotics and some other stuff."

Number two seed Pete Sampras returns a shot against seventh seed Michael Chang during their match at the U.S. Open in New York Wednesday. Sampras won the match in four sets to advance to the semifinals of the tournament.

She spent the whole day hoping the rain would continue until Friday.

"My whole body aches," she said. "It is very weak and I am so hot and congested. I was praying, praying for it to be raining at 7:30, which didn't happen, unfortunately. I thought that if I would come out tomorrow I have a better chance. But it didn't rain, so I guess I had to just go out and try. But after three games I don't think I was able to give her a good fight, as I always try to do. I did not 'tank.' I mean, I had to go out and try."

"If I feel like I'm dying on the court, I am going to default," she said. "It would be a bit different in doubles because I am not playing for myself, I playing for a doubles team."

Kelly could miss Super Bowl rematch

Associated Press

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — Holdout Emmitt Smith may be missing from the Dallas Cowboys lineup for Sunday's Super Bowl rematch with the Buffalo Bills, but the Bills may have their own missing star: Jim Kelly.

Kelly said his right knee was sore and that he would be getting a magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) test Thursday to see if arthroscopic surgery would be necessary.

"If I had to play today, I couldn't because it's very painful," Kelly said after sitting out practice Wednesday afternoon.

Coach Marv Levy said the Bills will wait until the results of the MRI are in before making any decisions about Kelly.

"And we'll wait to see how Jim is feeling," Levy said. "If he's not feeling any better than he is right now, then he wouldn't play."

Kelly sprained his right knee twice last year, the second time during Buffalo's 52-17 loss to the Cowboys in the Super Bowl.

It was determined after the second injury that no surgery was needed and Kelly underwent an arduous rehabilitation program. In fact, Kelly speculated that the large amount of running he's been doing may have caused the current discomfort.

"It's just something that's been happening for the last 2-3 weeks," he said. "I've been doing a lot of running on it and it just feels like it's very painful."

Kelly said a hit the knee absorbed in Buffalo's 38-14 season-opening victory against New England may have exascerbated the injury.

"I got hit in the game once and it probably hurt for about five minutes and then it went away," he said. "That night, it really started getting sore and all of a sudden, it really started tightening up a lot on me.

"I took some medicine to hopefully get the inflammation out," Kelly added. "It's something that's worked in the past, but it didn't work this time."

Kelly said he has a high pain threshold "but when you can't drop back, I guess that sort of tells you."

The Bills' medical staff drained the knee of "a very small amount of fluid" Wednesday, according to Levy.

"There was no blood in the fluid, which is usually indicative of there being an injury," the coach said. "We are hopeful the removal of the fluid in there helps."

Kelly speculated that there "might be some fragments of cartilage that are left in there that are what's irritating it."

If so, Kelly said he would lean toward having the operation done quickly. If that happens, Kelly would be expected to miss at least three weeks.

The Bills have their first bye week of the season after the Cowboys game, and Kelly said he might consider postponing any operation until after the Dallas game.

"If I feel I can play and there's something that must be done, maybe we'll wait until after the game," he said. "But if I can't go in there and give it my best, it's time to get it done."

AREA: Buffs face big game with Colorado City

(From 1C)

Phonasa also starts at cornerback. And the Greenwood coach likes his dedication.

"He's a great kid," Purser said. "He's an honor student, quiet, has a good sense of humor, but not a cutup. He's got a strong sense of discipline. He Worked hard all summer to rehab his shoulder and never missed a practice, as far as I can remember, since the seventh grade."

The Loatian can remember playing only one sport in Loas — soccer. And he's not even sure what part of the country he lived in.

"I have no idea," Phonasa said. "I can't remember that far."

But the move has suited his family well.

"We're a whole lot happier here," he said.

And the Rangers are a whole lot happier becasue he's here.

Plenty of apparent mismatches show up on Friday's area schedule.

ANDREWS, 33-0 winners over Lubbock High last week, should go to 2-0 after visiting Hobbs, N.M., this week.

BIG SPRING will get quarterback Wes Hughes and wingback Todd Parrish back from a suspension Friday, but will be hard pressed to compete with Lubbock Estacado. Estacado had a surprise loss to Lubbock Coronado last week, but many feel they are one of the best 4A teams in West Texas.

RANKIN should have no trouble topping Forsan after starting its season with a 47-0 rout of Iraan. The Red Devils moved up this week in the state 2A Associated Press poll from fourth to second.

Speaking of Forsan, the Buffalos produced an upset by beating GARDEN CITY 26-15 Friday. Forsan had only won one game in the last two seasons, and the Bearkats beat Forsan last year 36-6. 1993 could continue to be a rough year for Garden City Friday when it plays at Ozona — a 6-2A team with playoff potential.

LAMESA will try to get its first win of the year at home against San Angelo Lake View. Lake View had offensive problems last season with only 80 points all year. But they totaled almost half of that in their opening night 36-35 loss to Del Rio.

STANTON travels to Colorado City after cranking up the season last week with a surprisingly easy 47-0 win over O'Donnell. Both Jerele Lee and Ricky Lucas rushed for over 100 yards as the Buffaloes gained 314 on the ground versus the Eagles. C-City opened the season with a 32-0 win over Hawley.

MIDLAND CHRISTIAN visits Ira in a 7:30 p.m. game Friday.

Junxia shatters 10,000 meters record

Wang finished the race in 29 minutes, 31.78 seconds at the China national track and field meet Wednesday, thrilling the crowd at Beijing Workers' Stadium.

The former record was 30:13.74.

Astros Kile no-hits Mets

■ Houston's Darryl Kile becomes the second pitcher in five days to throw a no-hitter by topping the New York Mets 7-1.

Associated Press

HOUSTON — A season that began with the most personal of losses for Darryl Kile peaked Wednesday night with the most professional of victories.

Kile, a low-budget starter on a multimillion-dollar staff, pitched baseball's second no-hitter in five days, leading the Houston Astros to a 7-1 victory over the New York Mets.

"The only thing I can think of that would be more exciting would be to win the seventh game of the World Series," said Kile, his hair matted from a post-game champagne dousing. "I thought I'd be nervous in the ninth but I just wanted to make certain I kept doing the things that got me that far."

Despite the jubilation, it didn't take Kile long to recall the first day of spring training, when he was told his father had developed a blood clot in the brain. Five days later, David Kile died.

"It's something I wish he could have been here to see and be a part of, and who knows, maybe he did," Kile said.

Kile, backed by excellent plays from third baseman Ken Caminiti and shortstop Andujar Cedeno in the seventh inning, threw Houston's first no-hitter since Mike Scott clinched the NL West championship with a 2-0 victory over San Francisco on Sept. 25, 1986.

"To tell the truth, he's had better stuff two or three times this year, but location wise and curveball wise, it was one of his top games," catcher Scott Servais said.

Kile (15-6) struck out nine and walked one. His gem came after Jim Abbott pitched a no-hitter for the New York Yankees against Cleveland on Saturday.

"He's had that kind of stuff several times this season but you have to be very lucky to throw a no-hitter," pitching coach Bob Cluck said. "It certainly wasn't me. I didn't say a word to him after the fourth."

Seattle's Chris Bosio pitched the other no-hitter in the majors this year, against Boston on April 22. The last NL no-hitter was by Los Angeles' Kevin Gross on Aug. 17, 1992.

An Astrodome crowd of 15,684 stood as Kile finished it off in the ninth by retiring Todd Hundley on a routine grounder and striking out pinch-hitters Tito Navarro and Chico Walker.

Kile, a 24-year-old right-hander, pumped his right hand, then threw both arms in the air after Walker swung and missed at a 1-2 breaking ball. Servais embraced Kile as he was mobbed on the mound by teammates.

"You won't see a better breaking ball than that and you won't see a better pitched game than that," Mets manager Dallas Green said. "That's not a cheap fastball he's got, either.

"You could have put a lot of clubs up there against Darryl Kile tonight and he still would have thrown a no-hitter. They made three great plays behind him," Green said.

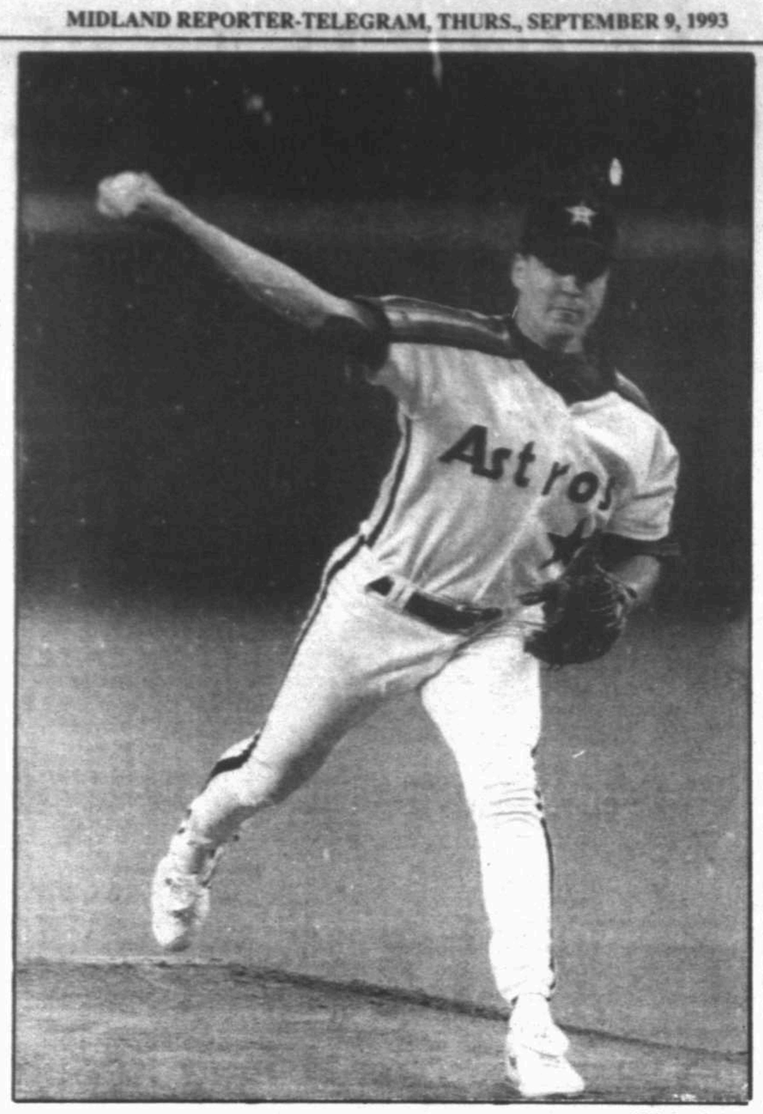

Kile pitched the Astros' ninth no-hitter. It was the sixth no-hitter against the Mets, and the first since San Francisco's Ed Halicki did it in 1975.

The loss was yet another indignity for the Mets, who have the worst record in the majors and are in the midst of their most embarrassing year — on and off the field — since their expansion season of 1962.

Kile, who split time between the majors and minors last year, began this season as Houston's fifth starter. He made six appearances out of the bullpen early this year while the Astros turned to high-priced free agents Doug Drabek and Greg Swindell.

But while Drabek ($4.25 million) and Swindell ($3.75 million) have struggled this season, going a combined 18-26, Kile ($247,500) has emerged as the Astros' best pitcher.

Kile pitched himself onto the All-Star team, going 10-1. He also won his first decision in the second half for a major league-best nine-game winning streak.

■ AL Roundup

ARLINGTON — Kevin Brown allowed seven hits over 7 1-3 innings and improved his career record against New York to 11-2 Wednesday night as the Texas Rangers completed a three-game sweep of the Yankees, 4-1.

The Yankees again failed to move into first place in the AL East, remaining one-half game behind the first-place Toronto Blue Jays, who again blew a late lead and lost to the Oakland Athletics 2-1.

New York also wasted a chance to move into first place Tuesday night when Oakland again rallied to beat the Blue Jays.

Texas remained second in the AL West, five games behind the Chicago White Sox. The Rangers took the season series from the Yankees, 9-3.

Brown's career winning percentage of .846 is the best all-time against the Yankees by any pitcher with 10 or more decisions. He also boosted his career mark at home against New York to 7-0 in eight starts.

White Sox 8, Red Sox 1

CHICAGO — Jason Bere tied the White Sox rookie record with 13 strikeouts, and gave up only two hits in eight shutout innings, leading Chicago past Boston.

George Bell and Lance Johnson each drove in two runs for the AL West-leading White Sox.

Bere (8-5) matched the team's rookie mark for strikeouts set by Frank Lange in 1910 against New York. The White Sox record is 16 strikeouts by Jack Harshman against the Red Sox in 1954.

Brewers 2, Royals 1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Ricky Bones pitched a two-hitter and John Jaha hit his 15th homer as Milwaukee beat Kansas City.

The third-place Royals, who lost to the last-place Brewers in their last game, fell seven games behind AL-leading Chicago.

Indians 15, Twins 8

CLEVELAND — Light-hitting Felix Fermin drove in a career-high six runs with a single, double and triple as Cleveland beat Minnesota.

Minnesota's Dave Winfield went 2-for-4, leaving him six hits away from becoming the 19th player to collect 3,000 in his career.

Jose Mesa (10-10) finally reached double figures in wins on his ninth attempt. He had gone 0-4 in eight starts since July 20.

Mesa allowed five runs and nine hits in seven-plus innings. He walked two and struck out four.

Orioles 6, Mariners 3

BALTIMORE — Chris Hoiles homered and drove in the go-ahead runs with a bases-loaded single in the eighth inning, leading surging Baltimore past Seattle.

Hoiles had three RBIs for the Orioles, who have won nine of 10.

Mike Devereaux opened the eighth with a walk off Kenny King (0-1). After a sacrifice by Harold Baines, Cal Ripken was walked intentionally. Gene Nelson came in and walked pinch-hitter Tim Hulett before Hoiles grounded a two-run single inside the third-base line.

Athletics 2, Blue Jays 1

TORONTO — Toronto blew a late-inning lead to Oakland for the second consecutive day.

Brent Gates had a two-out, two-run single in the ninth against ace reliever Duane Ward as Toronto again failed to add to its slim lead in the AL East. The Blue Jays started the day one-half game in front of New York and two ahead of Baltimore.

Toronto had a 6-1 lead over Oakland on Tuesday night and lost 11-7 in 11 innings.

Ward (2-3), who had bailed starter Juan Guzman out of a tight spot in the eighth, gave up a one-out single to Dave Henderson in the ninth. He walked Troy Neel and Mike Aldrete to load the bases and Gates then singled past the pitcher. Shortstop Tony Fernandez dived to stop the ball but by the time he got up two runs had scored.

Tigers 4, Angels 2

DETROIT — Mike Henneman became Detroit's career leader with his 126th save, and Detriot beat Califor a.

Henneman pitched the ninth inning for his 22nd save of the season. He broke the Tigers' mark of 125 saves set by John Hiller.

John Doherty (12-11) struck out a career-high seven in eight innings. He gave up two hits on seven hits.

The Tigers won their second in a row following a five-game losing streak.

Cubs win season-high sixth straight

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Kevin Roberson's pinch-hit triple with the bases-loaded capped a seven-run rally with two out in the eighth inning Wednesday as the Chicago Cubs won a season-high sixth consecutive game with an 8-5 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

With a 5-1 lead, Tommy Greene had held the Cubs with four hits and one run in 7 2-3 innings.

Nine batters later, he trailed 8-5.

Jose Vizcaino started the rally with a single and went to second on a single by Ryne Sandberg. Mark Grace singled to make it 5-2. Greene then walked Sammy Sosa to load the bases.

Expos 6, Rockies 1

MONTREAL — Rookie Kirk Rueter remained unbeaten by allowing one run in 6 2-3 innings and Montreal won for the 12th time in their last 13 games with a victory over Colorado.

The Expos swept the Rockies for the second time in two weeks.

Rueter (7-0) allowed six hits and two walks and struck out two. He has won his last five starts and had a string of 14 consecutive scoreless innings end on Roberto Mejia's RBI double in the seventh.

Mejia had three of Colorado's six hits.

Tim Scott pitched in 2 1-3 innings of hitless relief to pick up his first major league save.

Rueter escaped a first-inning jam when Eric Young was caught stealing and Dante Bichette grounded into a double play.

Larry Walker's 19th homer, a two-run shot, capped a three-run first against Armando Reynoso (9-10). Walker has hit .382 off Rockies pitching this season, with three homers and 12 RBIs.

Reds 6, Cardinals 2

CINCINNATI — Mark Whiten turned into a singles hitter one night after his four-homer, 12-RBI game, but Joe Oliver hit two homers and drove in four runs to lead Cincinnati to a victory over St. Louis.

Whiten, who tied the major-league record for homers and RBIs in the second game of a doubleheader Tuesday night, didn't come close to another homer. He singled in the second inning off Bobby Ayala (6-7), ending his streak of three consecutive homers, then struck out, grounded out and singled again.

Padres 3, Marlins 2

SAN DIEGO — Brad Ausmus singled to lead off the eighth inning and scored the winning run on a ground out to lift San Diego past Florida.

AL approves division changes

Associated Press

BOSTON — Baseball's proposed switch to a three-division format won American League support Wednesday after Cleveland and Detroit agreed to shift divisions, but the National League's position remained unclear.

AL president Bobby Brown said Cleveland agreed to play in the AL Central instead of remaining in the East, and Detroit would stay in the East instead of moving to the Central.

NL president Bill White said various alignments still were under discussion in his league, and others said the talks involved Atlanta and Pittsburgh, which both prefer the East.

The proposal, after Wednesday's change, calls for the following alignment:

AL East—Baltimore, Boston, Detroit, New York Yankees, Toronto.

AL Central—Chicago White Sox, Cleveland, Kansas City, Milwaukee, Minnesota.

AL West—California, Oakland, Seattle, Texas.

NL East—Florida, Montreal, New York Mets, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh.

NL Central—Atlanta, Chicago Cubs, Cincinnati, Houston, St. Louis.

NL West—Colorado, Los Angeles, San Diego, San Francisco.

Judge asks U.S. to reject Lorenzo

■ Recommendation now goes to Transportation Department to decide whether to deny air carrier application.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — An administrative law judge recommended Wednesday that the government deny a bid by Frank Lorenzo, banished head of Eastern and Continental airlines, to operate a new discount-fare air carrier.

Judge Richard L. Barton Jr. of the Transportation Department said the proposed airline, ATX Inc., repeatedly has defied the judge's orders and has filed "frivolous and vexatious" motions in its license application.

"If, as I have found, ATX cannot be trusted to comply with the department and the judge's orders during the course of this proceeding, it certainly cannot be trusted to comply with federal laws regulating the transportation of passengers and cargo," Barton said.

The judge's recommendation now goes to the Transportation Department to decide whether to reject Lorenzo's application. The judge's findings are likely to carry great weight with department officials.

But Richard Danforth, a spokesman for Lorenzo, said, "The recommendation is fundamentally and thoroughly wrong. We're absolutely confident the Department of Transportation will refuse to follow the recommendation."

Barton said ATX had demonstrated adequate financial fitness and managerial competence.

But, he said, the carrier "has not shown proper compliance disposition," a phrase he used to describe the Lorenzo-led airline's refusal to abide by his orders.

James Linsey, a lawyer for the Air Line Pilots Association that led the opposition to Lorenzo's application, welcomed the judge's decision.

"It's a hopeful sign for the '90s that the labor warfare of the '80s may be passed," he said. "Just as the controllers were rehired, Frank is retired."

The Clinton administration last month lifted the hiring ban imposed by President Reagan on air traffic controllers fired 12 years ago for striking.

Lorenzo had testified in unusual proceedings before Barton that his airline empire collapsed because of intransigent labor unions, not mismanagement.

He described himself as a successful manager for 30 years whose efforts to rescue troubled airlines were undermined by unrealistic unions.

ATX proposed to fly between the Baltimore-Washington area, Boston and Atlanta.

Lorenzo proposed in March to launch Friendship Airlines — later renamed ATX Inc. — along the East Coast. He controls 77 percent of the new carrier.

Eastern Airlines, already troubled when Lorenzo bought it in 1986, stopped flying in January 1991 after confrontations between Lorenzo and the unions led to a paralyzing strike.

The unions accused Lorenzo of deceiving his employees into accepting wage cuts and stock that later proved worthless. The unions also said Lorenzo took over airlines to make a profit by selling off their assets.

A federal bankruptcy judge in April 1990 awarded control of Eastern to a trustee after the company filed for bankruptcy. Later that year, Lorenzo sold his stake in Continental Airline Holdings and resigned as chairman and chief executive of the company. He remained a director of Houston-based Continental until January of this year.

Prices slip

NEW YORK — Crude oil futures slipped Wednesday in uneventful trading, but the market did not dramatically extend a sell-off that has pushed prices to three-year lows.

October delivery of light sweet crude oil finished at $17.03 per barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange, down 4 cents from Tuesday, when the price tumbled 66 cents.

Still, Wednesday's was the lowest final price since July 1990, before Iraq invaded Kuwait. Prices had neared $15 per barrel in the months prior to the war.

Figures released by the American Petroleum Institute showed a sharp drop in domestic supplies of crude oil. Refineries reduced production to 92.3 percent of capacity from 93.7 percent.

The API reported that crude oil stocks fell 7.404 million barrels to 339.565 million while distillates rose 1.728 million barrels to 126.299. Gasoline stockpiles rose 2.468 million barrels to 202.860 million.

Tuesday's drop in the market was linked to the International Energy Agency's reduced estimate for worldwide oil demand in the third and fourth quarters of the year. The IEA also said its estimate of August crude production by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries was 24.7 million barrels per day, up from July.

Among refined petroleum products traded on the Merç, unleaded gasoline for delivery in October settled up .11 cent a gallon at 49.05 cents. Home heating oil for delivery next month settled at 51.12 cents a gallon, down .01 cent.

Natural gas contracts for delivery in October settled at $2.283 per 1,000 cubic feet, up 1.1 cent.

Dollar gains

NEW YORK — The dollar gained on the Japanese yen on Wednesday as investors anticipated a cut in Japan's interest rates and progress in bilateral trade talks opening Thursday. The dollar finished mixed against other currencies.

In New York, the dollar finished at 105.60 yen, up from 104.25 on Tuesday.

In New York, the pound was trading at $1.5413, more expensive than $1.5400 on Tuesday.

Stocks fall

NEW YORK — Small-company stocks led share prices lower for a second day Wednesday as investors worried about the economy and corporate profits.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 18.17 points to 3,588.93.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by about 7 to 3 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 278.70 million shares, up from 229.32 million in the previous session.

Among other major market indicators, the Standard & Poors index of 500 stocks fell 1.87 to 456.65, while the NYSE composite index fell 1.43 to 253.16.

Fed: Recovery hits slow pace, inflation holds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The economy is chugging along at a "slow to moderate" pace with business activity on the East and West coasts lagging behind the nation's heartland, the Federal Reserve reported Wednesday.

The Fed said the general sluggishness was keeping price pressures under control with the exception of lumber prices, which apparently are climbing in anticipation of further demand for new homes caused by the lowest mortgage rates in 25 years.

The central bank noted bright spots in housing and auto sales, both helped by low interest rates, but it said overall the recovery continued to be spotty.

"Geographically, economic growth appears weaker on the East and West coasts while central areas such as Cleveland, Dallas, Kansas City and Minneapolis report stronger than average growth," it said.

The latest report, based on surveys compiled in July and August by the Fed's 12 regional banks, will be used by Fed policymakers when they meet on Sept. 21 to consider whether to make any changes in interest rates.

Analysts said the report, showing little pickup in economic activity or inflation, should persuade the central bank to keep interest rates unchanged.

JCPenney tailors selections for blacks, Hispanics

PLANO (AP) — JCPenney plans to become the first national department chain to sell merchandise aimed at black and Hispanic consumers.

Company officials said Wednesday that goods will be stocked over the next 30 days in women's, men's, juniors', children's and home departments that its research shows will have more appeal to minority shoppers.

"JCPenney is the first national department store to pursue this strategy," company spokesman Duncan Muir said.

The national chain has targeted 170 stores nationwide with black and Hispanic populations of at least 25,000 people in surrounding areas. Four stores in Dallas will receive the merchandise within the next month.

Clothing has been chosen to display more style, bold colors — getting away from pastels that are unflattering to darker skin tones.

The strategy is the result of almost two years of studies, consumer focus groups, merchandise-selecting and the success of a 1-year-old catalog featuring blacks, company officials said.

Some minority leaders are not as enthusiastic about Penney's efforts.

"If they would elevate their minority staff members to management positions and educate the company to their communities, then I would call that a positive contribution," said Victor Smith, president of Dallas' branch of the National Association of Colored People.

Dress Industries, Baroid to merge

DALLAS (AP) — Dresser Industries and Baroid Corporation said today that an agreement has been reached to merge the two companies.

The all-stock tax free merger would exchange 0.40 share of Dresser common stock for each share of Baroid common stock and is valued at approximately $900 million. The transaction is expected to be completed by mid-January 1994.

The merger would significantly expand Dresser's presence in the oil field services industry and contribute to the company's position as a major global supplier of services and equipment for oil and gas exploration, production and processing activities.

'Minors' account funds must benefit minor

By Bill Doyle

Q: I set up a "gift to minors act" account for my son. He's 19 years old and a sophomore in college. Do the rules allow me to use the money in that account for his college expenses before he reaches the age of majority, which is 21 in our state? Or do I have to wait until he becomes a legal adult, then transfer the account into his name?

Doyle

A: The rules specify that assets — money, securities or anything else — in a gift-to-minors account or the newer transfer-to-minors account are to be used only for the minor's benefit. Those regulations also say the account's custodian should not use those assets to pay expenses that are the parents' responsibility.

A college education certainly would benefit your son. But is paying for it your responsibility? That depends on your family finances.

If you are wealthy and families in similar circumstances pay their kids' college expenses, the Internal Revenue Service might contend you opened the gift-to-minors account to duck a parental responsibility and thereby save on income taxes.

Because your son has passed age 13, income from the gift-to-minors account is taxable at his income tax rate, which probably is lower than your tax rate. (Investment income greater than $1,200 received by a dependent child younger than 14 is taxed at the parents' top rate.)

At any rate, don't lose any sleep over it. Parents regularly use money from gift-to-minors accounts to pay their offsprings' college costs. If you do the same thing, it's unlikely you would be hauled on the IRS carpet.

Q: My child, who has a gift-to-minors account, is nearing the age of majority. When must I change the account into his name? Does the transfer have to be done officially, like filling out a form?

A: The transfer of the assets out of gift-to-minors-account form to the child's name alone should be done as soon as he reaches the age of majority under the provisions of your state's gift to minors act. That age varies from 18 to 21 in different states.

Yes, the change should be made "officially." If it's a depository account at a bank, go there with your son and his birth certificate. You'll be given the necessary forms to complete.

If stocks or other securities are in the account, the transfer agent for each security can handle the transfer. You can find the transfer agent's name, address and telephone number in the most recent annual shareholder report. Contact the transfer agent and find out exactly what procedure to follow. Some transfer agents handle things a bit differently than others.

Q: I just found out that my wife's father set up a gift-to-minors account for our daughter three years ago. I think that's great. But I also learned that my father-in-law is custodian of the account.

Shouldn't I or my wife be the custodian?

A: Not necessarily. The donor — your father-in-law — can name anyone as custodian. Grandparents often name themselves custodian of those accounts. That's one reason gift-to-minors accounts have been nicknamed "grandparents' best friends."

However, Grandpa should have filled you in about his plan long ago, so that the interest or dividends from the account could be reported properly to the IRS.

Q: Our daughter-in-law has given birth to twins. My husband and I want to open a gift-to-minors account for those darlin' girls. But we are told we cannot do so in both their names. Why?

A: Because that type of account can name only one minor — and one custodian.

Turkey, Russia to hold talks on conflict

MOSCOW (AP) — Alarmed by Armenian advances into Azerbaijan, Turkey's prime minister arrived here Wednesday for talks with President Boris Yeltsin on the growing threat of war on NATO's eastern flank.

While en route to Russia, Prime Minister Tansu Ciller criticized Azerbaijan for seeking only Russian help in the war with Armenian forces.

Turkey "cannot intervene in the domestic affairs of Azerbaijan," the Turkish agency Anatolia quoted her as saying. "But if Azerbaijan would make such a request, for their own good, it would not be correct to ask only Russia."

Ciller, who is making her first foreign trip since becoming prime minister in June, threatened last week to ask her parliament for a declaration of war against Armenia if it seized more Azerbaijani land.

Turkey sympathizes with Turkic-speaking Azerbaijan and is a historical enemy of Armenia. But, fearing a clash with Russia, it has avoided military involvement in the war over Nagorno-Karabakh, a Christian Armenian enclave fighting for independence in Muslim Azerbaijan. Armenia backs the separatists.

The war between the two former Soviet republics has killed 15,000 people and created about 1 million refugees.

Azerbaijani leader Geidar Aliev this week won a pledge of help from Russia to end the five-year-war with Armenia, whose forces have pressed deeper into Azerbaijani territory in recent months, alarming Turkey and Iran.

NATO-member Turkey is worried about Aliev's decision to reverse Azerbaijan's tilt toward Turkey and join the Commonwealth of Independent States along with its Russian-dominated collective security pact.

But Russia is worried about a Turkish buildup on Armenia's border, which Russian troops are helping guard. Russia also resents the efforts of Turkey, a historical enemy, to expand its influence in Azerbaijan and other Muslim republics of the former Soviet Union.

Aliev's appeal for help reportedly included a request for troops and weapons. Yeltsin's response will show how far Russia will go to maintain its influence in the region.

Although there have been no major confrontations this century, Russia and Turkey have fought eight wars in the last 300 years and each country considers the Caucasus within its sphere of influence.

Ukraine reels from plant, political blasts

KIEV, Ukraine (AP) — Four workers were reported killed and 27 injured Wednesday when an explosion tore through a Ukrainian industrial complex which includes the world's largest factory for building intercontinental missiles.

Moscow's Channel 1 evening news showed film of ripped piping and scattered debris, but did not make clear whether the explosion involved ICBM production facilities.

Elsewhere, under fire for a ships-for-energy barter with Russia, Ukrainian President Leonid Kravchuk agreed Wednesday to face a nationwide vote of confidence and step down if he loses, lawmakers said.

The president took the position during a closed-door meeting with members of Ukraine's parliament, a bastion of opposition that has demanded a tougher line in relations with Russia and the West.

Criticism came to a head after Kravchuk agreed with President Boris Yeltsin last Friday to hand over Ukraine's former Soviet warheads and Black Sea Fleet ships in exchange for Russian debt relief and nuclear fuel for Ukraine's power plants.

Russia and the West cheered the agreement, but Kravchuk was accused of he betrayal. The largest opposition party, Rukh, called him the "guarantor of the loss of Ukraine's independence."

Kravchuk denied he had given away Ukraine's ships and weapons, saying the agreement was the only way to guarantee independence because the nation's dire economy did not allow the luxury of another political battle with Russia.

Riot erupts during Haitian mayoral event

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (NYT) — At least one person was reported killed and several others wounded Wednesday when club and pistol-wielding thugs went on a rampage during a ceremony to reinstate this capital city's pro-democracy mayor.

Among those injured was the government's information minister, Herve Denis, who suffered facial lacerations when a rioter broke the windshield of the car in which he was riding.

The car carrying U.S. charge d'affaires Vicki Huddleston was stoned by demonstrators, but she was not injured.

The violence occurred during a ceremony to reinstate Port-au-Prince Mayor Evans Paul, who was routed from City Hall during the September 1991 army-backed coup that ousted Jean-Bertrand Aristide, Haiti's first freely-elected president. Paul had been accompanied to the two-story downtown municipal building Wednesday by Robert Malval, the country's new prime minister who was sworn in last week to head the new government that will pave the way for Aristide's return to power next month.

Paul and Malval arrived for the noontime ceremony shortly after some 30 uniformed police persuaded about 200 armed anti-Aristide municipal employees to vacate City Hall, which they had been occupying for the last six days. Some of the 200 recently-fired employees are believed to be "attaches," or civilian thugs hired by the Haitian army .

In men's wear for fall, power suit chills out

By Amy M. Spindler
N.Y. Times News Service

The power suit for men may live on. But the truly powerful can take a few liberties with their dress. Everyone treats them as if they're wearing pin-stripe suits anyway. IBM, that bastion of uniform dressing, is spelling it out in five-figure layoffs: a conservative suit isn't armor, after all.

NEW YORK — The blue pin-stripe suit, that smug cocoon of corporate dressing, is being slowly unraveled by New York's men's wear designers, who presented ing their spring 1994 collections recently.

Donna Karan opened her show with a clear statement of the season's message: the blue pin-stripe suit was worn with shirttails untucked and a tie pulled well away from the throat.

Even Ralph Lauren, the safe house for the cautious man willing to acquiesce to a designer label, had some fun at the blue pin-stripe suit's expense. His was split up for styling purposes, a double-breasted jacket with rolled-up, unhemmed wrinkled linen trousers and a collarless shirt, the tie wrapped around the waist as a belt.

And Calvin Klein just banned that corporate look completely.

The power suit for men may live on. But the truly powerful (for example David Geffen, in a white T-shirt and jacket in the front row at Calvin Klein) can take a few liberties with their dress. Everyone treats them as if they're wearing pin-stripe suits anyway. IBM, that bastion of uniform dressing, is spelling it out in five-figure layoffs: a conservative suit isn't armor, after all.

THERE ARE other reasons, too, that the efforts of America's most important designers are so focused on men's wear. The women's market is painfully near saturation — thus the rather forced, false battlefield of long skirts versus short. Not so the men's market. Most men have made little progress in accepting fashion change.

This is why there is such disparity between what men are wearing in offices and on the streets and what designers are showing. There hasn't been such a chasm since Pierre Cardin was sending out men's spacesuits in the late 70s. Cardin started the last men's wear revolution, getting men to rethink their wardrobes.

Ms. Karan didn't show spacesuits. But her collection will surely get men who pay attention to such things thinking again. She fulfilled her promise to sow the seeds "for the next millennium of men's clothes." The word "modern" is tossed about fervently in fashion, and usually it is wishful thinking. But in this collection there was barely a piece that didn't have a new twist to it.

Most of the seemingly new men's ideas this season have been in the styling — vest without shirt, shirts unbuttoned — gently massaging an emerging fashion market; Ms. Karan gave it a relentless pounding.

She accomplished the nearly impossible, introducing a fresh suit cut in her Donna Karan collection. Hers has two deep slashes in the jacket back, a double vent that parts like a slit in a woman's skirt. Another version has a single slit up the back, rising high enough to give movement to the entire jacket. This is a jacket cut to flatter a man's body.

IT WAS A carefully thought-out collection from an accomplished women's wear designer who is used to filling holes in wardrobes. And — sigh of relief — there was little retro here. This collection looked forward, with enough options to tempt fashion-phobic men. There were hunting-style jackets of mesh and suede; jackets without padding that hung like shirts, and high-waisted, suspendered navy trousers like marines wear.

Ms. Karan is also one of the few American designers in the spring season to address head-on a part of the market that Paris preys on but New York neglects: the young and hip. Her DKNY line offered frayed firemen's jackets, faded carpenter pants, wide-legged morning trousers worn with beat-up tennis shoes, loose linen overalls with a linen jacket and thick striped cardigan worn over it.

To make his case for a more modern way of dressing, Klein looked to 1940s Cuba. He showed ruddy linens, silk tweeds, linen Donegal tweeds, silk and linen blends in a range of colors from the band of the Havana cigar to its ashy tip. There was a wistful vintage romance here: low-cut, chest-baring T-shirts; vests and cardigans tucked into high-waisted, bunched-at-the-belt trousers; shortened ties; white spread-collar shirts, and sheer short-sleeved shirts. It was a subtle tribute to a sultry world before businessmen were media stars, when movie stars showed people how to dress. Klein's evening was an invitation to rumba: a white wool crepe dinner jacket with a spread-collar shirt.

RALPH LAUREN also conjured up another time and place, 1940s Marseilles, sweeping it into this decade with irreverent mixing and layering. While Lauren still gives an alcove over to his traditional trim suits, the news here is how he takes those suits apart. Tying faded bandannas at the throat and rolling the crinkled trousers, Lauren gave a dressing down to his traditional jackets.

There were faded striped shirts, beneath wrinkled shirts, with the jackets shrugged on as if an afterthought; top buttons of trousers left undone; butterfly bow ties with button-down shirts, the button-down collar unfastened; a low-cut vest with a flowing scarf at the throat and no shirt beneath. Almost everything was worn with broken-in espadrilles or leather sandals. Now that Lauren has established himself as the one-stop shop for the traditional, this collection is to educate his customer in breaking those traditions.

The group at Michael Kors's show was more a cheering section than a reserved fashion audience, rooting for Kors, who filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection this summer but who was upbeat and composed as as he gave a voice-over for his collection.

The men's wear borders are breaking down here as well. Kors called a pullover shirt with jacket and long loose trousers a "three-piece suit." Most of his shirts were shown open: one "suit" was an unbuttoned shirt, beneath an unbuttoned suit jacket, with drawstring trousers.

Music world leads way in 'hot' fashion

By Anne Rosenbloom

NEW YORK (AP) — Instead of looking to Paris for the latest trends, turn on MTV. Watch the colorful panorama of fashion across the screen and then feel the vibe on the street. It makes a very harmonious picture.

Music and fashion have long been intertwined — Josephine Baker and cloche hats, Frank Sinatra and sharkskin suits, Elvis Presley and brothel creepers, Jimi Hendrix and dashiki tops, Donovan and Nehru jackets, Janis Joplin and hip-huggers, Sid Vicious and bondage pants ....

More recently, sound waves have been washing up on fashion's shore so quickly that they've become buzz words, i.e. hip-hop and grunge. Once satisfied to inspire fashion trends, some music megastars now prefer to produce their own labels — and we're not talking records.

All the beats seem to be covered — from rap to rock to reggae. Chris Blackwell, founder of Island Records, backs retail and wholesale ventures. Rap impresario Russell Simmons opened a flagship store last April in Soho for his Phat collection. Even individual artists such as Play of Kid N'Play, Public Enemy's Chuck D and Jerry Garcia of the Grateful Dead are getting into the act.

DESPITE ITS competitive nature, the fashion world seems to be embracing these new players. Top designers seat them at runway shows, and retailers vie for their creations.

"There's always been a synergy between fashion and music. Now it's more prevalent than ever," says Kal Ruttenstein, senior vice president of fashion direction at Bloomingdale's. "Music people go out at night. They know what should be there and see what's missing. They have all the right stimuli to create exciting fashion."

Whether acting as financial backer, designer or something in between, the takes on fashion by this musical cast have at least one common thread: the clothes reflect the music.

"Just by its name, Island evokes an image. And we've carried it through to the fashion," says Blackwell from his home in Jamaica. Island Trading Company clothing, a wholesale and retail venture of Blackwell and designer Mary Vinson, features a vibrant mix of Third World fabrications in classic unisex shapes.

A key element, Blackwell says, is to generate income in Third World countries and to create "our own retail environment which is that mix of Third World art, fashion and music. But my associate, John Baker, before any of us, has been in fashion and music and the mixture of the two."

Baker, founder of Island subsidary called Gee Street Records (think P.M. Dawn), has a Gee Street clothing line set to debut this fall. It reflects the label's hip-hop roster in utility clothes with a message — be it gun control, ecology or anti-drugs.

Rap's reigning king, Russell Simmons, lives large with a $50 million empire but is determined to bring authentic hip-hop clothes into pop culture just as he did with music.

"You see, real hip-hoppers don't wear Cross Colours. Some hip-hop fans do, but certainly no artists," says Simmons, dressed in his own Phat designs of loose jeans and sweatshirt.

NOW AT ITS own store in New York's Soho, Simmons says Phat is "not just for black people. It's for people who consume black culture."

Rageman Chuck D of Public Enemy has had a fashionable thing going for more than two years. After conquering the mail order business, he's going wholesale with Rapp Style, unisex sportswear color coordinated from head to toe. Suede hi-tops finish the look.

Rapp Style is expected to generate more than $5 million this year with national billing, including JC Penney's, Nordstrom's and Tower Records.

For Chuck D, it's very definitely a matter of African Americans owning what they create. "I sold more Raiders caps than the Raiders sold themselves and I just got tired," he says.

Mike Diamond of the Beastie Boys is attempting a refined hip-hop look with the X-Large label and a Los Angeles outlet he owns with two friends. Nothing in the store, he says, is more than $80.

UNLIKE HIS contemporaries, Christopher Martin, or Play of Kid N'Play, always wanted to be a designer. "Music just took off first," says the co-star of the "House Party" movies.

For more than three years, Martin has quietly designed custom leather from his retail store in Queens. He recently launched a more casual line called Street Degree. He's also co-designing a collection called Flipside, rap-related styles for Starter Sportswear, a $250 million company known for licensed apparel featuring pro sports logos.

Jerry Garcia is allowing Stonehenge to produce neckties and scarves with images from his paintings and lithographs.

DEAR ABBY

Woman's nose out of joint after surgery

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for advising the mother of that 15-year-old girl who inherited her father's prominent nose to consult a board-certified plastic surgeon. I learned that the hard way.

Van Buren

The general public is not aware (as I wasn't) that nose jobs, facelifts, breast reduction and augmentation surgery are being done by dermatologists, and ear-nose-and-throat doctors. Also, some gynecologists are doing liposuction!

Abby, there are many doctors who are not board-certified plastic surgeons who are doing all of the above. I don't know why this is permitted.

The public should be made aware of the difference in training, certification, and the years of specialty training plastic surgeons receive.

I had to have my nose "corrected" after I chose an ear-nose-and-throat doctor for cosmetic surgery.

You could save many readers much time, pain and money by passing along my costly experience. I am signing my name, but if you print this, please sign me ... "NOSE" BETTER NOW

DEAR "NOSE" BETTER: Thank you for a valuable letter.

DEAR ABBY: Keep telling everyone who writes wanting to know if they should get a "nose job" to go for it. If they think they need it, they need it.

I'm 77 and would love to have rhinoplasty, but I doubt if a plastic surgeon would tackle the job on a woman my age.

Keep up the good work! — LONG BEAK IN PHOENIX

DEAR LONG BEAK: Don't bet on it. Schedule a consultation with a board-certified plastic surgeon in Phoenix (there are many; you could also ask your physician for a referral).

If you decide to go for it, please let me know and sign your letter "Beautiful Beak."

DEAR ABBY: Since people have been writing in about their unusual names, I thought you might be interested in hearing about mine.

My maiden name was "Bytheway" — pronounced just the way it is spelled, "By the way."

We often laugh when we recall some of the names we were called —"All the way," "Part of the way," and even "Half the way."

My father was called "Mr. So be it," "Mr. As you were," and even "Mr. Bygones."

When I first met the man whom I eventually married, he said, "By the way, Phyllis, what's your last name?" I explained that he had it backward — my name was "Phyllis Bytheway" — not "By the way, Phyllis." He had a good laugh.

My husband and I recently had our 53rd wedding anniversary. — PHYLLIS BYTHEWAY MALONE, OGDEN, UTAH

DEAR READERS: I telephoned Phyllis Bytheway Malone to congratulate her on her 53 years of marriage. I also asked if perchance the Bytheway family had their roots in England, because the name had an English ring to it.

She replied, "Yes indeed, but our name wasn't out of the ordinary; in England, there are families named Bythesea, Bythehills and Bythemill."

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were friends with a couple I'll call Steve and Marie for more than 35 years. Marie passed away several years ago, and we have continued to see Steve on a social basis as we always did, including him in family celebrations, having him to dinner, etc.

Over the past several years, I have cooked many meals for Steve who, by the way, cannot cook. I've never expected anything but a simple thank-you, but suddenly it occurred to me that never once has Steve brought over a bottle of wine, sent a plant for Christmas or even a card for my birthday. On those occasions when my husband and Steve and I go out for dinner, Steve has never offered to pick up the check. He is quite well-off and could easily afford it.

My question: Do you think Steve is just plain ignorant, cheap, or taking advantage of us? In our culture, many people seem to "forget" their friends who have lost their mates, but my husband and I are the only ones of our mutual friends who have continued to include Steve as always.

Abby, do you think I have a right to feel hurt, or am I making too much of this? We both enjoy his company, by the way. — MIFFED IN MICHIGAN

DEAR MIFFED: Your obvious generosity in including Steve, and inviting him to join you for dinner at your home and when you dine out, has become so routine, it's expected. You have a right to feel hurt. If he reads Dear Abby, this may wake him up.

AT WIT'S END

Growing up is painful for children, parents

EDITOR'S NOTE: Erma Bombeck is on vacation. She left behind a few of the "classics" that are most often requested by readers. This one first appeared in 1990.

By Erma Bombeck

To thousands of families across the country, this is the summer of their discontent. Especially those with teen-agers who just graduated from high school or college and are ready to move on.

Bombeck

There are emotions in the air that don't have a name. Hostilities are afloat that don't have rationale. Actions are exercised that don't make sense.

The family that played together, prayed together and were raised together, now get on each another's nerves. What's the matter with everybody?

A letter from Melissa, a graduating high school senior in Denver, offers an explanation. "My mother returned to working after being a housewife for 17 years. I was unprepared for this shock and didn't take it very well. For 17 years, I had someone there to give me aspirin if I was sick, make sure I ate right and did my laundry. Then she was gone.

"Lately, we have been having a lot of arguments. I now realize, after reading your book, why we have been arguing. When I was little, all I wanted to do was grow up, and my mother thought I was growing too fast. Now all I want is to be 7 years old and have my bicycle back, and my mother is ready for me to grow up."

Melissa said it pretty well.

What we're talking about here is panic. Panic of parents who have just been fired from a job they thought would go on forever and panic of children who thought parents loved them so much they would never abandon them.

Everyone is running around trying to act cool so no one can see how scared they are.

The parents are questioning whether they spent enough time with their children, taught them the right things, loved them enough. The kids are wondering whether they can make it outside the cocoon and where they will fit in. And what happens to them if they don't?

Everyone responds with the old standby — anger.

"Just wait till you get out there in the 'real world,' mister. You'll get your eyes opened."

"I'll be glad when I'm out of this house and won't have you on my back all the time telling me what to do."

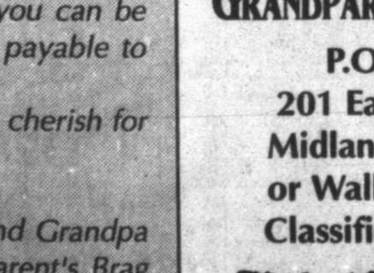

Wouldn't it be wonderful if parents could look at their teen-agers and say, "I want you to stay, but you can't."

Wouldn't it be wonderful if teen-agers could look at their parents and say, "I don't want to leave, but I must."

It's so much better to close the door gently on childhood — than to slam it.

House could decide NAFTA during October

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, considered the tougher battleground for President Clinton's push to expand trade with Mexico and Canada, is expected to deal first with the issue and could vote by the end of October, supporters said Wednesday.

As Congress returned to full force after its August break, supporters of the North American Free Trade Agreement stepped up their campaign and said they had to do a better public relations job and cast the pact as a "pro-growth, pro-jobs" issue.

"There's no question about it, the American people are somewhat confused," said Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill. "It's going to be our obligation to straighten them out and to lay out the facts about what NAFTA is and what it will do for our country."

Opponents of the pact — including many of the union and environmental groups that helped elect Clinton — contend the pact would prompt U.S. companies to ship jobs across the border for cheap labor and lax environmental laws.

Supporters note that Mexico already spends 70 cents of each of its export dollars on U.S. goods and predict that American exports would only increase under the pact, therefore creating U.S. jobs.

House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., and other supporters predicted a tough fight but ultimate victory in the House. The trade pact is expected to face a friendlier reception in the Senate, if it gets there.

Foley, talking to reporters, noted that the House leadership is divided on the issue. House Whip David Bonior, D-Mich., for instance, is rounding up votes against it; House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., has reservations but has not declared his voting intention.

The speaker said the debate on NAFTA could get hostile, "but I don't think it's going to be disruptive or corrosive in the sense of leaving wounds and scars that will affect other attitudes on legislation."

Some have wondered if an emotional battle on NAFTA would endanger Clinton's chances on pressing a health care reform bill.

Bill Frenzel, a former congressman from Minnesota tapped by Clinton to be the Republican pointman on the trade pact, said the GOP needed to do more to line up backing for the trade pact.

"Republican support needs to be reorganized, needs to be solidified," Frenzel said. "It isn't just lying there ready to be plucked. It has to be worked."

Some backers of the trade agreement say Clinton will have to do a better sell job on NAFTA, and U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor pledged the president's full commitment.

Kantor appeared on CNN's "Larry King Live" Wednesday night — a day after Ross Perot appeared on the show to assail NAFTA — to to push the White House position.

He said those opposing NAFTA "fundamentally don't believe American workers can compete. This president believes American workers can compete and win again as long as we grow markets and grow jobs in this country."

Senator: Iraqi chemical attacks hurt U.S. troops

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chemical toxins, including fallout from apparent chemical weapons missile attacks, are the likely cause of illnesses that have afflicted thousands of Persian Gulf War veterans, a senator asserted Wednesday.

Sen. Donald W. Riegle, D-Mich., said the evidence of contamination by nerve gas and other chemical agents "is compelling enough to justify a significant research commitment." He is seeking $5.7 million for the research in an amendment to the bill authorizing Defense Department spending.

A report by the senator's office cited two examples where the Iraqis appear to have attacked U.S. positions in Saudi Arabia with missiles carrying chemical warheads.

The paper said thousands of other Americans might have been sickened as a result of toxins released in the air and blown southward after U.S. bombings of Iraqi chemical and biological warfare plants around Baghdad.

The Defense Department contends there is no evidence that the Iraqis used chemical weapons during the Gulf War, or that allied bombing polluted the atmosphere. "We haven't been able to get any one standard link" that explains the physical problems of veterans, said a Pentagon spokesman, Air Force Col. Doug Hart.

More than 4,000 of the war's 450,000 veterans have reported suffering from "Gulf War Syndrome," which includes symptoms such as memory loss, skin rashes, chronic fatigue, heart and intestinal problems and joint pain.

Riegle's report, citing congressional testimony and other public documents, said it appears Iraqi chemical-laden weapons were launched across the Kuwaiti border into Saudi Arabia on Jan. 17 and Jan. 20, 1991.

The first struck near the Army 644th Ordinance Company, and the second near the Naval Reserve Construction Battalion 24. Since the war ended, 85 of 110 members of the ordinance company and 100 of 725 members of the Navy battalion have complained of Gulf War Syndrome.

The report quoted veterans from the two groups as saying they heard loud explosions followed by the sounding of alarms, sharp odors of ammonia and burning sensations on their faces.

Members of the naval unit were told it was a sonic boom and ordered not to discuss the incident.

As evidence of downwind exposure to coalition bombings of Iraqi chemical, biological and nuclear facilities, the report cited chemical detection alarms going off and a Czech government report that its troops had detected the chemical nerve agent Sarin in the air during the early stages of the war.

Ten of the 185 Czech troops are believed to be suffering from Gulf War illnesses.

Riegle's report said a third cause of illnesses may be the anti-chemical weapon vaccines administered before the war.

Sex policy at Ohio college raises eyebrows, laughter

YELLOW SPRINGS, Ohio (AP) — Students at Antioch College must offer mutual consent to kiss, then get consent again to go further, and again and again right up to having sex.

A school policy adopted in January to combat acquaintance rape and other sexual offenses was revised recently to state that obtaining consent is a continuing process.

"On one level it has been widely supported," said Jim Mann, spokesman for the college, where about 70 percent of the 700 students are women. "On another level it has been greeted with some humor."

Under the guidelines, "Verbal consent should be obtained with each new level of physical and-or sexual contact or conduct in any given interaction, regardless of who initiates it.

"Asking, 'Do you want to have sex with me?' is not enough. The request for consent must be specific for each act."

Mann said, "What this establishes is, 'I did say no.' It also establishes that if someone is drunk or passed out, they do not have the ability to consent."

The policy is enforced through an on-campus review of any alleged violations, with violators subject to disciplinary action that can include being kicked out of school, Mann said. Victims can also complain to police and be assigned advocates to represent them.

Mann said he knows of no reports of any violations since the new policy was adopted last January. He said new students arriving next week will participate in an orientation that will include a presentation of the policy and discussion of it.

Jonathan Platt, a 24-year-old Antioch sophomore, said the policy is "well-cushioned in common sense."

"The policy is not radical," Platt said.

Caryn McTighe Musild, a senior research associate for the Washington-based Association of American Colleges, said she knows of no school policy elsewhere as broad-ranging as Antioch's.

Ms. Musild said she believes it's part of an attempt by schools to intervene in campus violence by more clearly defining their sexual harassment and offense policies.
