House Republicans gather on the steps of the Capitol, Friday, to celebrate the completion of their "Contract with America."

Gingrich speaks

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a prime time prerogative normally reserved for presidents, House Speaker Newt Gingrich declared Friday night the Republican "Contract With America" was only a beginning, and summoned the nation to help "totally remake the federal government." In a nationwide televised speech from his Capitol office, Gingrich said the time had come "to balance the federal budget and to free our children from the burdens upon their prosperity and their lives." Page 16A

Buy a brick

Organizers of F.A.M.A. — First Association of Mexican Americans — are selling bricks for the Unity Park in Memory of Oralia Corrales. Members of the group will be selling the bricks through Sunday near Kay Bee Toys at Midland Park Mall. The 4-by-8-inch bricks — that can be printed with two lines of up to 14 letters each line — cost $25. They will be placed at the center of the park.

O.J. trial raises concern: chatty jurors

By Rick Hampson
Associated Press

You're sequestered 24 hours a day, week after week, with a group of complete strangers. But you're told not to discuss among yourselves the one thing you all have in common — the trial you're supposed to decide.

That is the jury's lot in the O.J. Simpson trial, and in any other complicated trial that isolates the jury for very long.

No one knows how often jurors succumb to temptation and disobey the judge's rote admonition: "Do not discuss the case among yourselves." Everyone has suspicions.

Jerry Goldstein, president of the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers, just laughed Friday when asked about the no-talk warning.

"It calls jurors' attention to it and probably encourages the weaker ones to do it," he said. "That's human nature. The more pressure you put on them, the more they're enticed by the prospect of the forbidden fruit."

But, he added, "The alternative (issuing no warning and just letting jurors talk) is equally troublesome."

The most recently dismissed Simpson juror, who in the selection process failed to disclose a domestic abuse complaint she'd filed against her husband seven years ago, said in a live TV interview Wednesday that the jury was troubled by racial tension and accused some sheriff's deputies of promoting it.

Team wins with word that was 'easy as pie'

It was the icing on the cake, or, more like the meringue on the pie for the United Way's winning team in the 1995 Midland Reporter-Telegram Corporate Bee for Literacy.

The United Way's team of Phil McKown, Linda Rust and John Smith, sponsored by Norwest Bank, may have thought spelling meringue for the win was easy as pie.

The corporate spelling bee, which was held Friday at Midland Center, benefits Midland Need to Read.

Eleven corporate spelling teams participated in the festivities. The other teams were Chevron, Bank One, Midland College, Mobil, Parker & Parsley, Texas Instruments, Arco, Texas Commerce Bank, Texaco and Exxon.

Clinton pledges he'll seek common ground

■ President says he will work with GOP, but plans to veto major bills if they're not modified in Senate.

Associated Press

DALLAS — President Clinton, looking beyond the Republicans' 100-day legislative spurt, promised Friday he would search for common ground with the GOP but would veto major bills if not modified in the Senate.

"I was not elected president to pile up a stack of vetoes. I was elected president to change the direction of America," Clinton told the American Society of Newspaper Editors. But then he gave his longest list yet of measures he said he could not accept.

They included the $189 billion tax cut bill approved by the House earlier in the week as well as environmental, welfare, crime, regulation and other House-passed measures.

Bidding for attention as Republicans in Washington celebrated their first 100 days in control of Congress, Clinton made it clear he would seek to be a player — and not a bystander — in the days ahead.

"We stand at a crossroads," he said. "In one direction lies confrontation and gridlock. In the other lies achievement and progress."

Clinton spoke to the newspaper editors on his way to a two-day swing through California, where he was expected to continue to outline his positions on bills before Congress.

Earlier Friday, talking with reporters aboard Air Force One, Clinton had praise for House Speaker Newt Gingrich, saying the "Contract With America" bills "would not have passed the House, I don't think, without his leadership."

"I don't want to see a big fight between the Republicans and Democrats," he said in his speech. And he added that many items in the GOP contract are similar to

Harvard rescinds admission to student who killed mother

By Anne Thompson
Associated Press

BOSTON — Gina Grant seemed to be the perfect candidate for Harvard University: an IQ of 150, honor society member, tennis team co-captain, tutor of underprivileged kids.

'I deal with this tragedy everyday...It serves no good purpose for anyone to dredge up the pain of my childhood.

— Gina Grant, honor student

Now Harvard has taken back its offer of early admission, after learning that Grant bludgeoned her mother to death with a lead crystal candlestick five years ago.

"I deal with this tragedy every day on a personal level. It serves no good purpose for anyone else to dredge up the pain of my childhood," Grant said in a statement. "I'm especially distressed that my college career may now be in jeopardy."

Banjo player Bud Wachter and tuba player Ed Goldstein performed at Bonham Junior High School in Odessa Friday. The duo are also to perform today with the Midland-Odessa Symphony.

Musician to pick instrument with a lot of different voices

By Georgia Temple
Staff Writer

When Andrew John "Buddy" Wachter performs with the Midland-Odessa Symphony today, he will be picking his first love — the banjo.

"I play a lot of fretted instruments, but I found that the most challenging one is the four-string banjo," Wachter said. "Most of my life is spent promoting the instrument in any way that I can."

He plays the five-string and four-string banjos. The former is played with three finger picks on the right hand, thus allowing the player to execute sequences of rolls. The four-string banjo requires greater proficiency because the musician must play every note individually, he said.

"It's an abysmally difficult instrument to play — like playing a violin," said Wachter, who has been performing publicly on the banjo since he was 13.

"Although it's difficult, the possibilities for emotion and color and dynamics exceed the other one. You have more variety, but it is very difficult."

Cracks in Chernobyl reactor casing threaten explosion, Ukranians say

KIEV, Ukraine (AP) — The concrete sarcophagus encasing the wrecked reactor at Chernobyl is deteriorating, threatening another release of radioactivity.

Ukraine, which is seeking billions in Western aid to clean up the reactor that exploded in 1986, warns that water dripping into the ruins could set off another uncontrolled reaction and spread radiation over a wide area of Europe.

But the U.N. atomic agency plays down that threat, saying the danger is limited to radioactive dust getting out and contaminating the local area around the power plant.

Ukrainian and Western scientists have worried for years about a growing number of cracks and holes in the sarcophagus put up around the damaged No. 4 reactor. They say radioactive dust could escape through the cracks.

But the crusted, lava-like fuel is also developing cracks, and Ukrainian scientists say that increases the danger. They say rain and melting snow that drip through the sarcophagus to the warm fuel mass could cause fission of uranium atoms, causing a vapor explosion that could burst the sarcophagus.

"Water getting inside the fuel mass ... might lead to a spontaneous and uncontrollable nuclear chain reaction," Boris Gorbachev, one of those responsible for monitoring the sarcophagus' safety, wrote in the newspaper Vse-Ukrainskiye Vedomosti.

Vladimir Tokarevsky, director of Ukrytia, the government agency that monitors the sarcophagus, also warns of the threat of an explosion because of water getting into the nuclear fuel.

"Initially we saw lava with a glass-like unbroken surface, but now there are numerous splits and dust emerging," he said of the fuel, which is monitored by remote cameras and other equipment.

'Water getting inside the fuel mass...might lead to a spontaneous and uncontrollable nuclear chain reaction.'

— Boris Gorbachev, safety monitor

David Kyd, a spokesman for the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna, Austria, said the U.N. agency considered an explosion unlikely but is concerned about radioactive dust filtering out of the sarcophagus.

The structure was "designed to last for 30 years, (but) it's very doubtful it will even last 20 years," Kyd said. "It is not air and water tight ... What they try to do is keep the radioactive dust inside with a sprinkler system."

If some of the sarcophagus crumbled and crashed into the rubble of the reactor, that would kick up so much dust that some would get out through the cracks, he said. That would create a radiation problem up to 20 miles from the reactor, he said.

Although people were moved out of the region after the disaster, the radioactivity would get into vegetation and then into the food chain.

"It's not something you can sneeze at," but it would not be cataclysmic, Kyd said.

The sarcophagus was hurriedly built after the reactor blew up and burned in 1986, pouring out a cloud of radioactive particles that spread over much of Europe.

Ukraine, which is heavily dependent on nuclear power for its electricity, is arguing with the European Union over financial help to cover the cost of cleaning up Chernobyl.

Western governments want the whole plant shut because of safety concerns, but Ukraine is demanding Western cash and expertise to help build replacements.

Kyd said estimates on the cost of a new sarcophagus range from $1 billion to $5 billion.

Volodymyr Usatenko, a Ukrainian physicist and Chernobyl expert, worries that the 10 years it probably would take to construct another sarcophagus might be too long.

"The danger is so huge that the situation (in that time) could become uncontrollable," he told The Associated Press during a recent international symposium about Chernobyl in Kiev.

Ukrainian experts also are voicing concern about radioactive water filling the basement of the No. 4 reactor.

Rwandans rebury thousands of victims' remains

By Karin Davies
Associated Press

REBERO HILL, Rwanda — They walked for miles up a long, dusty road, then stood silently under a blazing sun. They stood, too, in the downpour that followed, through speeches that lasted for more than seven hours.

It was time to bury the dead.

The remains of thousands of people were reburied Friday at a memorial service held for the 500,000 or more Rwandans who died in the ethnic massacres that began last April 7 and continued for three months.

Bodies were laid to rest, but Rwandans were left with their anger that, a year later, the killers remain unpunished.

"We shall look for these people, whether inside the country or outside the country," said Vice President Paul Kagame, drawing applause. "They must be held accountable, there is no doubt about that."

Kagame also said Rwandans "must be able to understand this sickness" that tore apart their country. "I think it's up to us, all of us ... to make sure ... that nothing ever happens again like this."

At least 10,000 survivors of the civil war attended the service atop Kigali's highest hill, Rebero.

The gathering was as much a protest as a funeral. Mourners carried protest signs and banners, and wore T-shirts with slogans that showed their anger at the slaughter and the failure of both their government and the international community to punish those responsible.

"To do nothing about the genocide diminishes all of us," said one sign. "Justice delayed is justice denied."

"We need to bury the dead, not to bury the truth," said one T-shirt. The Tutsi who wore it, a man who gave his name only as John, was mourning the loss of his aunt and 11 other relatives.

Their remains may have been among those of an estimated 6,000 bodies that were exhumed from makeshift, wartime graves and placed in 200 plain wooden coffins for reburial at a new cemetery on Rebero Hill.

Purple cloths lay atop the coffins, and on them, green wreaths with lilies and sweetly scented bougainvillea woven in.

One grave was designated to symbolize all those who died in the genocide.

Among those reburied were 13 people whose remains had been identified, including former Prime Minister Agathe Uwiliyingimana and other cabinet ministers, as well former opposition leaders.

Flags flew at half-staff Friday, and there was a moment of silence at the memorial.

"It is a terrible waste of life, of talent, of hope," said Egide Muzunbu, whose friend and leader of the Liberal Party, Landoald Ndasingwa, was killed along with his Canadian wife, Helene Pinsky, and their family.

The slaughter began April 7, 1994, just hours after the death of President Juvenal Habyarimana in a plane crash the night before.

The massacres, many with machetes, were carefully planned by extremists within the former Hutu government, mostly against minority Tutsis but also moderate Hutus.

No one knows how many people died. Some U.N. aid agencies estimate as many as a million perished. The government says it was more. The brutality ended when the Rwandan Patriotic Front, a Tutsi-led rebel group, overthrew the government in July.

"Never should the world have allowed such a tragedy, never should the perpetrators of such crimes be permitted to get away with impunity," U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali said in a message read by his representative, Shaharyar Khan.

"The task of reconstruction and reconciliation are formidable and demanding, but we must intensify our efforts to that end. This effort would the most fitting and enduring tribute that we can pay in the memory of those who lost their lives."

Roman Catholic, Protestant and Muslim leaders pleaded for reconciliation and peace, while Rwandan leaders said the massacre must not be forgotten.

"Today is a new beginning. There are some people, Hutus in general, who want the genocide to be forgotten. We have to fight against that," said Veniste Karambizi, a foreign office official.

"This is the third time of genocide in Rwanda's history. If we do not remember what happened this time, there will be a fourth."

Lost Lippi painting brings high price in British auction

LONDON (AP) — A painting by the 17th-century artist Lorenzo Lippi, which had been stored in a shed and forgotten, sold Friday for $144,000, Christie's auctioneers said.

Both the seller and the buyer requested anonymity.

The 5-foot-tall painting of Apollo and Daphne had hung in a home in Cornwall, southern England, but was moved to a shed during renovations 20 years ago and had been forgotten.

The owner recently contacted Christie's, which concluded the painting was by Lippi, who worked in Florence and died in 1664.

Hong Kong prepares to finish airport with 'army' of 14,000 live-in workers

By Marcus Eliason
Associated Press

HONG KONG — Rice: 850 tons. Meals per day: 55,000. Rolls of toilet paper: 416,000.

No detail is being overlooked as Hong Kong raises a 14,000-strong army of live-in workers for the final push to complete its $20.3 billion airport, the world's largest civil aviation project of the 1990s.

Officials want to complete the airport by the time the British colony is handed over to China in June 1997 — the final jewel in the colonial crown.

The airport project — four times as costly as Denver International at $4.9 billion — was delayed for months until late last year, when Britain and China finally reached agreement on funding the airport.

China had objected that Britain's plans leaned too heavily on borrowed capital which would saddle China with debts after 1997.

Britain has staked its prestige on bequeathing Hong Kong to China in the best possible shape. That includes building an airport to replace congested Kai Tak Airport and its one runway at the foot of mountains. Some approaches require a sharp and dangerous turn seconds before landing.

The cost of housing and caring for the workers who will build Hong Kong's new airport comes to more than $141 million.

The rice, toilet paper and other commodities will equip three "villages" of prefab housing being built for the workers on Chek Lap Kok, the islet which has been flattened for the airport.

Canteens, gyms, billiard rooms, barbershops, banks, post offices, stores and a cavernous laundromat will infuse a measure of normal life into this pale stain of dynamited earth and reclaimed ocean among the lush green islands of Hong Kong.

First preference in hiring will go to Hong Kong workers, said Project Director Douglas Oakervee during a media tour of the site Thursday.

But he expects a large contingent of foreigners. The rule book to be distributed to workers is in English, Chinese and Tagalog, the Filipino language.

The airport, 14 miles from central Hong Kong, is rated the world's biggest civil engineering project of the 1990s. It entails not just flattening the islet, but also pushing back the ocean to accommodate two runways, and linking the airport to the city by a tunnel and a 4,475-foot-long suspension bridge.

The Provisional Airport Authority says that before choosing onsite housing it considered other options such as ferrying in the workers each day or putting them on ships anchored nearby. One short-lived idea was to convert Russian aircraft carriers into dormitories.

But ferrying was discarded as a logistical nightmare, and ships were ruled out because of typhoons.

The contract to build the "villages" went to the Hong Kong arm of the British-based GMK company, which has built similar villages in Kazakhstan and the Falkland Islands.

Contractors can choose to house their workers in tastefully furnished single-occupant cubicles with private bathrooms or spartan six-person rooms with metal bunk beds and communal washrooms.

Workers will carry electronic cards which will double as room keys and credit cards to pay for meals.

But the effort to create a community atmosphere does not extend to allowing workers to bring their families with them, said Oakervee.

"They'll just have to sweat it out, basically," he said.

While separate sleeping quarters will be available for females, the work force is expected to be overwhelmingly male, he said.

Warm weather to stay in Basin

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for mostly sunny skies, a high in the lower 90s and southwest winds 10 to 20 mph, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Tonight will be fair with a low between 50 and 55.

Sunday is expected to be mostly sunny with a high between 85 and 90.

After an overnight low of 52, Friday's high was 88 compared to the record high for that date of 93 in 1989. The record low for today's date was 23 set in 1939.

STATE

Texans enjoyed mostly sunny skies, light breezes and warm temperatures Friday. Morning fog and widespread low level clouds over North Texas dissipated as temperatures and winds increased.

Readings across much of the state climbed into the 70s and 80s by afternoon, with 90s in South and West Texas.

Winds were generally from the south at 10 to 20 mph.

The North Texas forecast is for mostly sunny skies and warm temperatures today in the western half of the region. The eastern half will again have low level clouds and areas of fog developing near sunrise. Then mostly sunny, warm and windy. Afternoon highs will range from near 80 to near 90. Cloudy with overnight lows in the 60s followed by partly cloudy skies Sunday and a chance of thunderstorms. Highs in the low to mid 80s.

South Texas is expected to have partly cloudy skies and warm temperatures today and Sunday. Highs from the low 80s in the Hill Country to lower 90s in the Rio Grande Valley. Lows mostly in the 60s.

Forecasters said West Texas will have sunny days and fair nights through Sunday. Highs in the 80s and 90s with the lows generally in the 40s and 50s.

BANJO: Musician to pick instrument with symphony

(From 1A)

The five-string banjo has gained a great deal of popularity through bluegrass music, Wachter said. "The four-string banjo, whose roots were in the 1920s jazz, has lost almost all of its popularity. I think that's largely due to the fact it's a difficult instrument to play."

By the close of today's 8 p.m. Pops Concert at Odessa's Holiday Inn Convention Centre, Wachter will have performed on both types of banjos.

"My main goal is to have (audiences) experience our all-American instrument as a real instrument, not one that is stuck back in bluegrass music or Dixieland music or just being a rhythm instrument," said Wachter, who, since 1992, has performed worldwide under the auspices of the U.S. State Department.

"I play both, but I'm able to do all these different kinds of music on the four-string banjo."

This Baltimore, Md., native, said he wants symphony audiences "to experience the full range of color and sound and dynamics that are possible on the banjo, which is the national American instrument.

"For all practical purposes you can trace almost every instrument back to some instrument in Europe," said Wachter, who performed for classes at Odessa's Bonham Junior High School Friday. "But the banjo is a totally American thing.

"It can be traced back to the slaves in Africa. They weren't allowed to bring banjos with them, so the earliest ones were carved very primitively from gourds. They had cat-gut strings. This instrument has been through all our wars and fundamentally always was a rhythm instrument."

Wachter, who has performed with Arthur Fiedler, Richard Hayman, Skitch Henderson, Ferrante and Teischer, Benny Goodman, Max Morath, Clark Terry, Paul Lavelle, Bob Hope, Bela Fleck and the Count Basie All-Stars, has spent his career bringing the banjo into the limelight.

"What I have been trying to do is use the instrument like a real instrument. When people come to the concert, they will hear everything. Since there's a limited repertoire already written, I just borrow pieces for every instrument imaginable — classical violin pieces by Paganini, and melodies from Broadway shows, jazz of all kinds and ragtime music. A little bit of everything."

Wachter's first European tour in 1982 culminated in the taping of a television concert special, "Buddy Live," for the Saarland German network. The program's popularity has brought Wachter back to Europe for 26 concert tours. He has recorded four solo albums and appears on 18 others.

"Almost everybody I've talked to has said, 'I had no idea the banjo could sound like that.' If I play it right, it is a very versatile instrument with a lot of voices. It's a lot louder and fuller than a guitar.

"But, of course, it's an acoustic instrument," said the musician, who also plays the mandolin and guitar. "No amplification. All those changes in the sound, volume happen through the body. Arms, hands, the way you finesse the instrument is what brings it to life. It's not just done by plugging it into an amplifier."

The selections he will play at today's Pops Concert include a tribute to Stephen Foster, music from several Broadway musicals, "The Cowboys" Overture by John Williams and "An American Overture" by Frank Proto.

"The symphony is a whole new musical context in which the banjo can be experienced, and that's why I'm doing these symphony pops things," said Wachter, who has written a number of the arrangements.

"I'm not attempting to be the solo instrument out there and have the orchestra back me up all the time. I'm attempting to integrate what I'm playing with the orchestra so that the overall effect is something new the audience can hear. It's a whole new color because of this new instrument."

Wachter, who sang in choirs when he was young and began playing the harmonica when he was 5, grew up with a father who played the harmonica and the banjo-ukele and a merchant seaman uncle, George Cunningham, who played the banjo and guitar. His lifetime passion for the banjo began to take form on a Cub Scout bus trip when he was 9.

"One of the scout leaders whipped a little banjo off the top rack and started playing this song, 'The World is Waiting for the Sunrise,' which was written by Eugene Lockhart, June Lockhart's father," Wachter recalled.

"I was so excited about this instrument. My dad was with me on the bus. The scout leader was a music teacher. He had a music store two blocks from the house. I started taking lessons the next week. We rented a banjo, and I took my $3 lessons every week."

Since he was "very resistant to learning music formally," his father bought him record albums.

"I would copy these players off the records — Eddie Peabody, Django Reinhardt. I copied these two guys. I would take these records apart and sort of teach myself by ear. By the time I was about 14, I started to play pretty good."

On a trip to the dentist office with his mother, Wachter spotted the perfect banjo resting in a downtown shop window — "this incredibly beautiful old banjo from the 1920s, all carved, gold-plated, mother of pearl.

"I called my mother to the window. 'Look at this.' We went in to look at it and fell in love. In my mind, I knew if I had that instrument, I would take off. I could feel it."

The $300 price tag was too steep for the family. Wachter's mother called Cunningham, who checked on the instrument and reported back to the family that it had been sold.

"I was really heartbroken," Wachter said. He also was shocked when, two months later on his birthday, he received the coveted banjo from Uncle George, whom he called his biggest supporter besides his parents.

Wachter wasn't wrong about this banjo's impact on his life.

"That instrument inspired me so much. My playing took off. It came to me very quickly. That same uncle wrote to the company who made that banjo to find out more about it, and he sent them a tape of my playing."

The tape was forwarded to Eddie Peabody.

"I get a telegram from this guy (Peabody) to come and visit with him. The next year, I ended up playing at the Hollywood Palladium with him in this special show."

Wachter, who was in high school at the time, wanted the opportunity to perform on tour. The next year, this dream came true when he signed with Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians.

"I was an only child," said Wachter, who graduated from school a year early. "I had never left home for anything. My parents took me up to the rehearsal hall, and I didn't see them for a year."

The tour sealed Wachter's fate. "That really got it in my blood. Suddenly, I was in the business."

SPELL: Team wins bee with 'easy word meringue'

practice round with a word, definition and use of the word in a sentence.

One of the many spelling words Dingus offered included orbicular: circular or spherical; in botany, circular and flat.

For his use in a sentence:

An hour-glass-figured girl, Rose
Had a giant, orbicular nose.
Said her etiquette teacher,
"To play down that feature
Try walking about without clothes."

With those hijinx behind, the spelling bee started with two teams going out in the first round — Bank One and Arco. Texas Commerce Bank missed a word in the fourth round.

The sixth round saw three teams go down — first, Chevron, then Midland College and Parker & Parsley.

Texaco's team missed in the seventh round and Texas Instruments didn't fall until the 11th round, which left the final three teams. Mobil lost in the 12th round by misspelling "linguistically."

In the 13th round, with Exxon and United Way as the last two teams, the rules of the spelling bee altered to include rule No. 11. If one team misspells a word, the other team shall be given an opportunity to spell that same word. If the second team spells that word correctly, plus the next word, then the second team shall be declared the champion.

The United Way team missed "xerosis" and then Exxon spelled it correctly. But, Exxon missed the next word, "bouillon."

So, spelling bee rule No. 12 went into effect. When one of the last two teams misses and the other team, after correcting the error, misspells the new word, then the misspelled new word shall be referred to the first team. If the first team succeeds in correcting the error and correctly spells the next word on the list, that team shall be declared the winner.

The United Way team then spelled bouillon correctly and the word for the win, "meringue."

The Exxon team, which won second place, consisted of Beth Edgar, Jo Joplin and Cynthia Black.

Midland Need to Read, which will receive the funds raised, works to break the cycle of illiteracy by providing tutors to work with adults on a one-on-one basis to help them become literate. For more information about Midland Need to Read, call 685-4572.

The judges for this year's bee were Patricia Garcia, supervisor for Midland Independent School District's Volunteers in Public School program; Jack Lyle, Need to Read board member and tutor; and Constance Roe, assistant librarian at Midland County Library.

TALK: Do Simpson jurors chat too much?

(From 1A)

In a second TV interview Friday, Jeanette Harris sought to clarify earlier reports that she'd said jurors had talked about the case and had split into groups along pro-O.J. and anti-O.J. lines. She confirmed the cliques but said they were based on personalities, not on how jurors felt about Simpson's guilt or innocence.

The reason for the no-talk rule is clear: Jurors are supposed to listen to the evidence but not reach any conclusions about its significance until they have seen all of it and the judge has told them how to apply the law to it.

Usually, trial judges confronted with reports of improper jury talk merely warn them to stop. To reverse a conviction, a defendant would have to meet a stiff evidentiary burden — to show that jury talk actually created a prejudice against the defendant.

Last year convicted Hollywood madam Heidi Fleiss tried to get a new trial on the ground that jurors discussed penalties in her case and traded votes, agreeing to convict on one charge in exchange for a vote from one juror to acquit on a drug charge.

Two weeks ago a judge denied the motion, ruling that the jury's misconduct did not create prejudice.

In 1993, however, a federal appeals court reversed a drug conviction in a Pennsylvania case because the trial judge didn't do enough to investigate reports that jurors had talked among themselves.

The trial judge passed out yes or no questionnaires, and jurors admitted they had prematurely discussed the case but denied they had reached a conclusion as to guilt or innocence.

In that case, Third Circuit Court of Appeals Judge Edward Becker distinguished jury conversations that are "merely brief and inconsequential conversations about minor matters" from "full-blown discussions of the defendants' guilt or innocence."

The latter would justify a reversal. But the trial judge's questionnaire, he complained, raised more questions than it answered.

Experts say research indicates most jurors take their jobs seriously and follow the judge's orders. But, they agreed, some shop talk is inevitable.

"I had a case where the jurors were arguing so loudly you could hear them in the next room," said Gerry Lefcourt, a prominent defense lawyer. "Another time, one juror ratted out the other to the judge for talking (about the case)."

Lawrence Wrightsman, a University of Kansas psychologist who has studied juries, says jurors influence each other even if they don't talk specifically about the trial.

Using the Simpson case as an example, he said pro-O.J. jurors might not talk specifically about police Detective Mark Fuhrman's testimony, but could still convey their feelings to fellow jurors by talking about their own experiences with the police.

Several experts expressed sympathy for sequestered jurors' involuntary vow of silence.

"I was reading about the Simpson jury this morning, and I thought, 'It's rather inhumane,'" said Lawrence Heuer, a Barnard College psychologist and jury student. "What else do they have to talk about?"

Plenty, countered Lefcourt.

"They're all locked up; they all miss their families," he said. "They're all thinking up what else they can ask the government for. They all wonder when the trial's gonna be over."

COMMON: Clinton pledges to work with GOP

measures he has proposed.

Clinton has signed two contract measures already — one applying to Congress the laws that affect other agencies and the other limiting the right of Congress to impose mandates on states without paying for them.

He said he favors line-item veto authority that has now passed both houses, but in different forms. And he also said he could support a $16 billion package of spending cuts passed Thursday night by the Senate.

But Clinton basically suggested that nearly all other items in the contract passed by the House must be substantially modified.

He had especially sharp criticism for the tax-cut bill. He called it "a fantasy. It's too much. It's not going to happen. We can't afford it."

Clinton, who has yet to veto his first bill, also said he would reject any attempt to ease the ban on assault weapons enacted last year, or to interfere with a provision designed to put 100,000 new police on the streets. And he said he would veto any measure that rolls back efforts to clean up the nation's waterways and curb air pollution.

He said he would veto any legal reform with a "loser pays" provision. And he said he would not accept the House-passed regulatory reform program that would dramatically slow down the administration's ability to write new rules.

Fielding a wide variety of questions after his speech, Clinton:

■ Was applauded for a terse answer he gave when asked whether the United States should apologize to Japan for dropping the atomic bomb in 1945 and whether President Truman made the right decision. "No, and based on the facts he had before him, yes," Clinton said. Earlier, the administration had taken some heat from veterans groups for appearing to shy away from using the term "V-J Day" — Victory over Japan — to avoid alienating the Japanese.

■ Resisted a suggestion that his wife, Hillary Rodham Clinton, was retreating to a more traditional first lady's role after the Democratic defeats of last year. He noted that she had just returned from a 12-day tour of India, Pakistan, Bangladesh, Sri Lanka and Nepal, and he said, "I did not consider the trip either too traditional or unimportant."

HARVARD: School rescinds admission

(From 1A)

The university would not comment on Grant's case, acknowledging only that an early admission offer had been rescinded. Spokesman Joe Wrinn said Friday that Harvard occasionally withdraws such offers because of a sudden drop in a student's academic performance or because a student lied on the application.

The Harvard application asks whether a student has ever been on probation. Grant had been on probation until she was 18 as a condition of pleading no contest to the September 1990 killing of her mother in Lexington, S.C.

The university did not release Grant's application. Grant's attorney, Margaret Burnham, said Grant was not obligated to disclose something that happened when she was a juvenile.

Burnham said in a statement that she hoped Harvard would reconsider. She did not mention any possible legal action.

After the killing, Grant, now 19, moved to Cambridge to live with her aunt and uncle. She began attending Cambridge Rindge and Latin High School in 1992. Officials there said Grant is a student in good standing, but would not comment on her academic record.

Grant received her acceptance letter in January from Harvard. In the following weeks, someone anonymously provided Harvard officials with newspaper clippings about the killing.

Copies of the articles, obtained by The Associated Press, report how Grant wept at a hearing when police described how she stopped to wipe up pools of blood in the kitchen after smashing her mother's skull.

Grant's mother, Dorothy Mayfield, 42, had been hit at least 13 times. Mayfield, described in court as an alcoholic, had a blood alcohol level of .30 when she died, three times the amount at which drivers are considered legally drunk.

At the time, police said Grant and her mother had been fighting. Grant's attorney, Jack Swerling, said his client had struck out in self-defense.

But South Carolina prosecutor Donnie Myers argued the killing was premeditated. After the killing, Grant and her football-player boyfriend, Jack Hook, tried to make the death look like suicide by sticking a carving knife into the side of her mother's neck. Hook pleaded no contest to being an accessory to murder after the fact.

At the time, Grant was a nearly straight-A student and the head of her student government. A judge who placed her in juvenile detention for a few months granted her permission to move north and begin her life anew. Grant's father died of cancer when she was 11.

Grant lived with her father's sister in Cambridge until she was 16 and moved into her own apartment, supporting herself from a modest trust fund.

The Boston Globe Magazine ran an article on Sunday featuring Grant as one of two underprivileged students who succeeded despite their circumstances. It made no mention of the mother's beating death.

In the article, an administrator at her high school, Ruby Pierce, called Grant "bright, caring, loving, giving of herself at all times. To me, she's like the Ivory Soap girl."

The article said Grant was an orphan, but did not mention how her mother died. The newspaper said Friday that Grant told reporters who had written the article that her mother's death was too painful to discuss.

Doctors project positive outlook for separated twins

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Doctors say the long-term health prospects are excellent for 6-month-old conjoined twins separated in a 23-hour operation a month ago.

Bethany and Hannah Rainey were discharged from Wilford Hall Medical Center on Thursday. Their saga was previously unknown because their parents, Army Capt. Scott and Elaine Rainey of Fort Hood, had asked the hospital not to immediately release information.

The couple declined to allow photos of the twins, or to be interviewed, but did permit officials to discuss the procedure, which required 29 doctors and nearly a full day.

"They shared a rib cage, they shared a liver, they shared (a portion of) their intestines," said Air Force Lt. Col. Henry Cheu, a Wilford Hall doctor who headed the surgical team. "Their bony pelvis was fused together in a big ring."

The girls also had one normal leg each and a fused leg, and only one kidney each.

The couple declined to allow photos of the twins or to be interviewed, but did permit officials to discuss the procedure, which required 29 doctors and nearly a full day.

Conjoined twins occur about once in every 100,000 births. Of that small percentage, only 6 percent of them are linked like the Rainey girls.

"They should, within a few months as their development allows, be able to sit at the same age other children can, around 8 or 9 months of age," Cheu said. "At one year they ought to be able to stand. They'll only have one normal leg, so they'll have to pull up on one leg. But kids actually do very well on one leg."

Surgeons borrowed a special laser modeling technique from Wilford Hall's dental service to construct a plastic model of the twins' skeletal system to plan the complex surgery.

Cheu said separating the girls' shared leg was "something that's never been done before."

"What we were able to do was to split that leg in half, right down the middle, and save the tissues that belonged to each," he said. "Our hope is we will be able to reconstruct that in the future so they'll both have a thigh."

Doctors said the girls' defect was diagnosed before their Sept. 21 birth.

"It appeared from the studies they would probably be viable, and we explained that to the parents," Cheu said. "They chose to continue on."

Special newspapers sell out 1 week after Tejano star's murder

HARLINGEN (AP) — Special newspaper sections honoring Selena sold out almost as soon as they hit the racks in the Rio Grande Valley on Friday — one week after the Tejano music superstar was fatally shot.

"I couldn't find a paper," a disappointed Max Martinez said.

She said her 5-year-old niece wanted a picture of Selena, but she wanted one for herself, too.

Mrs. Martinez said Selena's slaying — allegedly by the founder of her fan club — still upsets her one week after she learned of the star's slaying at a budget motel in Corpus Christi.

"I've been going crazy crying and thinking about it," the Harlingen woman said.

Fan devotion to the Mexican-American Grammy-winner is especially strong in the Valley, a border region in extreme southern Texas that is roughly 90 percent Hispanic.

But music industry officials say the level of interest remains high nationwide.

"You can't keep anything in stores — records, videos, magazines. Everything is sold out. Everywhere," said Sandy Friedman, executive vice president of entertainment for Rogers & Cowan, Selena's Los Angeles publicity firm.

"They come every day. They call every day. We get maybe 100 to 150 calls a day," said Joel Nino, salesman at a Sam Goody record store in Harlingen.

Nino estimated that the store sold five to 15 Selena cassettes a week before her death. Since the March 31 slaying, the outlet has been selling out its daily shipment of 50 cassettes and 50 compact discs.

The Brownsville Herald, The (McAllen) Monitor and the (Harlingen) Valley Morning Star printed thousands of extra copies of special sections they had inserted into their Friday editions.

"It's the third sellout of my 28-year career," said Frank Lyon, general manager at The Monitor.

Lyon worked at a small weekly in Decatur, Ga., for his first sellout edition — the 1963 assassination of President Kennedy.

His second sellout came the day after Selena's death.

The Monitor printed 12,500 extra copies of Friday's eight-page commemorative section, beyond its normal 46,000 circulation for this time of year.

"This is a week later, after the tragedy, and people still can't get enough of Selena," Lyon said.

"I'm still amazed. Our lobby's still full," he said at noon, adding that the telephone lines had been jammed all morning.

Patrick Canty, editor at the Valley Morning Star, said people not only bought every newspaper in stock Friday morning, they stole all the Selena posters his newspaper had inserted in its racks earlier this week to promote Friday's 24-page Selena tabloid.

"All of the rack cards have been stolen, so we printed more rack cards. Now people are coming in to buy rack cards," Canty said. "It's incredible how strongly people feel about it."

Canty said many subscribers complained that their Friday papers were swiped from their lawns, and others had their papers "cannibalized" — stripped of all Selena items and left strewn on the yard.

One man threatened to cancel his subscription unless he was sold 20 copies, said Canty, whose paper initially printed 8,000 extra copies and decided before noon to print 5,000 more.

Doug Hardie, publisher at the Herald, said his paper never planned to sell advertising in its 12-page tabloid, which was accompanied with a full-page poster of the singer.

"When we announced that we were going to do a commemorative section, we started getting calls from potential advertisers at 7:30 a.m," Hardie said.

The Herald decided to sell ads, but it will donate proceeds to a charity chosen by Selena's family, Hardie said.

The Valley Morning Star said advertising proceeds from its special section will go to the Narciso Martinez Cultural Arts Center in San Benito; The Monitor said it will send its profits to DARE, an anti-drug campaign in schools.

Environmentalists urge delay in property rights bill

AUSTIN (AP) — Environmentalists urged legislative leaders Friday to delay consideration of a so-called property rights bill until the cost of the proposal can be determined.

In a letter to Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and House Speaker Pete Laney, the Sierra Club, the Environmental Defense Fund and the Texas Center for Policy Studies asked that a more complete report of the bill's fiscal implications be drafted before any further action is taken on it.

The bill by Sen. Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo, was endorsed by the Senate State Affairs Committee Thursday evening and now goes to the full Senate for consideration.

"Before the members of the Legislature vote on the broadest, most expensive ... bill (of this kind) in America, they ought to be fully informed on the consequences," the letter stated.

The bill would give landowners grounds to sue to recover losses in property value resulting from state or local government action. It also would require that landowners be warned about any effects government action would have on private property rights.

Governmental entities would be required to consider alternatives to any action that would result in the loss of private property value.

Opponents contend the measure would force government to defend expensive, frivolous lawsuits for enforcing laws meant to protect health, safety and the environment.

They say it also would require governmental entities to pay for complicated studies and cost assessments of their actions.

The Legislative Budget Board was unable to determine the fiscal impact of the bill on the state because the number of assessments required was unknown, the groups say in the letter.

They add that similar property rights measures proposed in other states and at the federal level have been estimated to cost millions of dollars.

Supporters of the bill, however, say it will protect fundamental rights of private property owners in Texas, where about 95 percent of the land is privately owned.

DEATHS

H.O. Trent

COLEMAN — Services for H.O. Trent, 98, of Coleman, father of Midlander Vernon Trent, are to be 2 p.m. Sunday at Elm Street Church of Christ with the Rev. James Bailey officiating. Burial will follow at Burkett Cemetery with Oddfellow graveside services. Arrangements are under the direction of Walker Funeral Home.

Trent died Friday.

He was born Feb. 16, 1907, in Tarrant County.

Trent married Ava Younglove on Oct. 4, 1931, in Coleman. She preceded him in death.

In 1980 he married Annie Merle Gray in Brownwood.

Trent lived in Odessa, Denver City and Coleman.

He owned and operated a lumber yard in Odessa; he also owned and operated Whites Store in Denver City for 20 years.

He was a member of Elm Street Church of Christ. He was a past grandmaster of the Oddfellow Lodge of Texas and a member of the Coleman Masonic Lodge.

Human, computer errors lead to faulty exams, promotion confusion

HOUSTON (AP) — Dozens of Houston police sergeants have found their careers in turmoil after human and computer errors led to a failure in a minority promotions program, The Houston Post reported Friday.

The foul-up stems from part of a 1993 settlement of an 18-year-old civil lawsuit with two minority officers groups. The settlement called for the city to evaluate promotions test results and eliminate questions that a disproportionate number of officers missed.

The Afro-American Police Officers League and the Organization of Spanish-Speaking Officers claimed that the promotion tests were unfair to minorities. The tests are used to compose a promotion list.

About 200 of the department's 834 sergeants took the latest exam in November to qualify for promotion to lieutenant. The competition is fierce because the city allocates only 168 lieutenant positions in the department.

When the test results originally were examined late last year, seven valid questions were mistakenly thrown out, said Craig Ferrell, director of the HPD Legal Services Unit.

The problem was discovered in February, after several officers complained about the results. The seven questions were reinstated, but another eight questions were ruled invalid and thrown out.

In a copyright story Friday, the newspaper reported that the department had to shuffle its promotion list, meaning many sergeants falsely believed they had ranked higher on the test than they actually did.

One Houston police sergeant, who asked that his name not be used, noted the irony of a program designed as an affirmative action effort that is now dividing the department along racial lines.

"It's doing more to promote disharmony and racism than it is to fix things," the officer said. "The morale of the department is being torn apart."

There may have been another problem. The city is investigating whether there were technical malfunctions in the computer used to scan the answers on the test.

Since the test was administered, six lieutenant slots have come open. Despite all the confusion, Ferrell said the same six sergeants who initially finished atop the list still qualify for the six openings.

Doug Elder, president of the Houston Police Officer's Association, said his union is evaluating what, if any, action it will take against the city.

"We will do everything possible to support our members," he said, adding that some association members have taken dramatic plunges on the promotion list.

Ferrell said he understands the officers' frustration, but there was little the department could do once the problems were spotted.

"A lot of this is beyond our control," he said. "We're trying to make sure this doesn't happen again."

Developer picks I-20 in Big Spring for new outlet mall

From Staff Reports

Big Spring has been chosen as the location for a new Planet USA Factory Outlet Mall, the developer announced Friday.

The mall — to be developed by New York-based Planet USA — will be located at the intersection of U.S. Highway 87 and Interstate 20 on an 80-acre tract. There will be approximately 150,000-square-feet of shopping space.

David Goldner, developer with Planet USA, said the mall is expected to draw customers from a 100-120 mile radius that includes Midland-Odessa, Lubbock, Abilene, San Angelo, Hobbs and Carlsbad, N.M.

He said Big Spring was selected because 6.6 million tourists visit area attractions annually; there are three operational Air Force bases in a 100-120-square mile radius; the university student population is a significant number in that radius; the traffic count at the intersection where the mall will be built is 25,000 vehicles in a 24-hour period; and the gross wages for the West Texas area are $7.64 billion.

The mall is expected to include manufacturer's outlet stores along the lines of Liz Claiborne, Calvin Klein, Polo, Van Heusen, Geoffery Beene and Mikasa, although none of these stores have yet been confirmed.

Construction is expected to begin early next year.

POLICE REPORTS

Emergency landing

An experimental aircraft had to make an emergency landing at Midland International Airport about 9:50 a.m. Friday, according to the Department of Public Safety. No one was injured.

The plane, a 90 Glasair, sustained propeller and undercarriage damage after having to land on a grassy area near a runway, officials said. The plane was scheduled to land at the airport to refuel, but the pilot was unable to lower the nose gear, necessitating the emergency landing, officials said.

The plane, piloted by Robert Dace Kirk, was en route to Lakeland, Fla., from Phoenix, Ariz. The owner of the aircraft is Edward R. Moses of Mesa, Ariz.

Casualties increase as government troops battle rebel extremists in Philippines

IPIL, Philippines (AP) — Government troops backed by helicopter gunships battled Muslim gunmen Friday in the hills where they fled after ravaging this southern Philippine town and killing dozens of its residents.

Military spokesmen said at least 20 people were killed Friday, including five civilians taken hostage by the extremist Abu Sayyaf group. One hostage who escaped said he was forced to dig graves for five slain gunmen who may not have been included in the military death toll.

Brig. Gen. Rene Cardones said more than 300 government troops were involved in the fighting and about 900 soldiers were on standby. "We are in a better position now than two days ago," he said.

Abu Sayyaf gunmen were blamed for Tuesday's attack on this predominately Roman Catholic town of about 50,000 people located about 485 miles south of Manila.

But the Philippine National Police said members of two other, larger Muslim groups —the Moro National Liberation Front and the Moro Islamic Liberation Front — joined in the raid.

Abu Sayyaf members have been linked to defendants in the 1993 World Trade Center bombing and to plots to kill Pope John Paul II and blow up U.S. airliners. The group has been blamed for numerous bombings, killings and kidnappings of Christians in the Philippines since 1991.

Police said Friday that 49 people died in Tuesday's raid, but the Department of Social Welfare put the figure at 52.

Friday's fighting was centered around the towns of R.T. Lim, 12 miles to the southwest, and Siocon, about 30 miles to the west.

Capt. Melquiades Feliciano said 13 people — five Abu Sayyaf members, three militiamen and five civilian hostages — were killed in the Siocon fighting. Seven more Abu Sayyaf members were killed near R.T. Lim, Feliciano said.

"I know this one," growled a government militiaman, referring to the body of an Abu Sayyaf fighter killed near R.T. Lim. "He was the one holding a B-40 (rocket-propelled grenade launcher) during the fighting."

The militiaman kicked the body, then knelt and bit off one ear.

Carlito Ingito, who was taken hostage Wednesday, said he was digging graves for five dead Abu Sayyaf fighters near R.T. Lim when the military attacked, enabling him to escape.

"I had finished digging the graves near a river and had already brought the bodies near the holes when the shooting started," said Ingito, whose clothes were soaked in blood. "I saw the chance to escape during the confusion."

Military officials said the gunmen were still believed to be holding up to 45 hostages. "We are keeping our fingers crossed that no harm will be done" to the hostages, said Emilita Ocampo, whose sister Jocelyn, was abducted Tuesday.

The violence in this western region of Mindanao, second largest of the 7,100 Philippine islands, raised fears of a bigger conflict between majority Roman Catholics and Muslims.

It also threatens peace talks underway between the government and the Moro National Liberation Front, the country's largest Islamic movement. Front leaders condemned the raid.

But military Vice Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Alfredo Filler said 14 Front commanders took part in Tuesday's raid.

Ipil residents said most of the gunmen spoke the Tausug language, used by Muslims of the Sulu Islands who resisted both Spanish and American colonial rule. Most Christians in the region are from families who immigrated after World War II and are considered unwelcome outsiders by militant Tausugs.

Western Mindanao is one of the most lawless and dangerous areas of the Philippines. Weapons are widespread, and gunmen often shift allegiance from one leader to another.

Several armed groups were once affiliated with the Moro National Liberation Front, which launched an insurrection in the early 1970s to establish a Muslim state.

Austrian cardinal remains silent regarding church's child abuse allegations

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The Roman Catholic Church will investigate sex abuse charges against Austria's top cardinal, who maintained his silence on the allegations Friday despite increasing public criticism.

Cardinal Hans-Hermann Groer, 75, is accused of molesting students at an all-male Catholic high school in the early 1970s.

He resigned Thursday as head of the Austrian Bishops' Conference — two days after being narrowly re-elected — under intense pressure from church and lay groups.

But Groer, a conservative named cardinal in 1986, has yet to address the charges or calls for him to relinquish his position as archbishop of Vienna — traditionally one of the most important figures in this predominantly Catholic country.

Groer applied for retirement last year when he turned 75, but Pope John Paul II left him in his post. The Vatican has not officially commented on the allegations.

Never very comfortable with the media, Groer has sought to avoid confrontation since taking over from the beloved Cardinal Franz Koenig, who at 90 is still more popular — and more visible — than his successor.

Groer, well-liked by older churchgoers and some younger conservatives, sought to reach out to more liberal Catholics, but his stiff asceticism has made it difficult.

At a packed news conference Friday, the new head of the bishops' conference, Bishop Johann Weber of Graz, first said he believed it was up to Groer to decide whether to seek an investigation or step down.

After repeated questions, a theology professor proposed a church investigation, and Weber made clear he supported the idea.

"I think this is a very important proposal ... which we have to deal with," Weber declared. He could not say when the investigation would begin.

The scandal began March 27 when a newsmagazine reported charges from a former seminary student that Groer, his religion instructor, had abused him repeatedly in the early 1970s.

Other former students at the all-male school at Hollabrunn, 40 miles north of Vienna, came forward with similar charges.

Many priests fear the scandal, if allowed to drag on, could prompt thousands of Catholics to leave the church, already divided over such issues as divorce and birth control.

Weber, a moderate, repeatedly hinted at the news conference that he disagreed with Groer's handling of the allegations. "I think the pope's sentence that the church should be a house of glass is very true," Weber said. By contrast, a formal statement from the conference, reflecting the opinion of powerful conservative bishops, expressed understanding for Groer's stubborn silence. "Silence is not a confession of guilt in any legal system," it said.

State prosecutors have not become involved in the scandal because the statute of limitations on any abuse that might have occurred has expired.

VALUE, SELECTION AND QUALITY

WHY PEDIATRIC DENTISTRY?

• The American Academy of Pediatric Dentistry says that a child's first dental visit should be within six months of the eruption of the first tooth and no later than one year of age.

• Primary teeth are important in the development of speech, facial and oral muscles, upper and lower jaws. They save the space for and help guide permanent teeth into position.

• It is important, easier and more cost-effective to recognize and treat minor problems early, before they become major and inhibit the development of permanent teeth.

• A child's early exposure to dental treatment sets the foundation for future dental health.

• Together, we can give your children a lifetime of fewer cavities, healthier teeth and gums - and more confident smiles!

Anti-Arab group's leader mocks Israeli government

By Dianna Cahn
Associated Press

HEBRON, West Bank — The Jewish extremist staged his own arrest, turning it into an event lapped up by the cameras.

Baruch Marzel raised his handcuffs in triumph Wednesday as he climbed into the police van, bragging that had he not turned himself in, "it would have taken them years to catch me."

Once again, Marzel, leader of the anti-Arab Kach movement, thumbed his nose at the Israeli government by coming in after 10 days on the run. He was set free on his own recognizance hours later.

Marzel then returned to his trailer home, where he has been running Kach unimpeded even though the group was outlawed last year after Kach member Baruch Goldstein killed 29 Muslims in a Hebron mosque.

The episode illustrated the government's reluctance to act decisively against Jewish extremists — despite assessments by Israeli leaders that Kach and other groups are potentially as dangerous as the Islamic militants who have tried to kill peace with bombing attacks.

Yossi Sarid, a member of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's Cabinet, said the government has failed in its pledged crackdown against Jewish extremists.

"They are making a mockery of the government's decisions," he said.

After the February 1994 Hebron massacre, nine extremists, including Marzel, were jailed without charges for several months. Other militants had their weapons permits revoked.

But all are back on the streets, holding secret meetings and distributing flyers with the slogan "our spirit will not be broken." Marzel said some 30,000 people have attended Kach meetings in the past year, and that membership has grown. There was no way to independently verify that report.

Jewish militants have also resumed road patrols in the West Bank — ostensibly to protect Israeli motorists. Critics fear the patrols will increase vigilante attacks.

Ehud Sprinzak, a Hebrew University expert on the Israeli right-wing, said the extremists were still a threat a year after Hebron massacre paralyzed Middle East peacemaking for weeks.

"The danger is of the kind that Goldstein posed, of an individual or a few individuals conducting a spectacular terrorist operation," Sprinzak said.

However, Sprinzak said since the Goldstein's rampage, Israel's Shin Bet security service has become more effective in keeping tabs on hardcore activists. Those include Kach, its offshoot Kahane Chai and other small fringe groups — in all, believed to number several hundred people.

"They are tailing them very closely," said Sprinzak.

Many extremists live among and draw support from the West Bank's larger settler community of 120,000. Some settlement leaders have threatened violence if the government tries to force them to leave or withdraws army protection.

Tests continue to verify or discredit mysterious weeping Madonnas

N. Y. Times News Service

CIVITAVECCHIA, Italy — It has been two months since five-year-old Jessica Gregori first spotted the tears of blood running down the face of the statue of the Virgin Mary in her family's front yard on the outskirts of this down-and-out port city.

Since then, all of Italy has been gripped by the mystery of the crying Madonna. The phenomenon has been made more compelling by reports of at least 12 other statues shedding tears of blood around the country — more than in the last 10 years combined.

Some of these have already been debunked: in one case, the "blood" turned out to be tinted olive oil and in another, it was red paint. But the most closely watched has been the Civitavecchia statue — a 17-inch-tall white figurine brought to Italy last year by a priest from a pilgrimage site in Medjugorje, in Herzegovina.

Late this week, a local judge ordered another round of tests on the statue, including a DNA test to see if its tears match the blood of Gregori family members. The order put a sudden halt to plans for a solemn Good Friday procession that was to transport the Madonna to a specially built chapel, equipped with lights and bullet-proof glass, inside the nearby church of San Agostino.

The Civitavecchia case has produced reams of commentary and theories: church historians note that the last big wave of miraculous apparitions in Italy occurred in the late 1940s, during the turbulent post-war period. Sociologists talk about a "collective angst" produced by Italy's ongoing political crisis. Dacia Maraini, a well known Italian writer, contends that the cult of the Madonna springs from an "archaic and irrational mentality," which fosters contempt of women.

The more technical theories range from remote-control devices to special contact lenses that expand and release liquid when subjected to heat. But a CAT scan ordered by a local judge showed no hidden mechanisms inside the Civitavecchia Madonna, while tests conducted by a church-appointed team found that the Madonna's tears were male human blood.

Despite the lingering questions, Civitavecchia, with a population of 60,000 and an unemployment rate of 21 percent, already has big plans for its Madonna, including a 1,000-seat sanctuary with a parking garage next door. The local bishop, who greeted the first reports wtih skepticism, says he is now a believer and that he witnessed the statue crying during weeks when it was kept sequestered in his residence.

The Madonna's biggest booster, though, is Pietro Tidei, the 48-year-old mayor of Civitavecchia, who — although a member of Italy's former Communist Party and an agnostic, has kept a crucifix he found above his desk in city hall.

"Frankly, we are thinking of business," he said, using the English word for special emphasis. "My position is that in a world in which people venerate hundreds of Madonnas, one more won't hurt. And because many want to believe — and I have already received letters from all over the world — than I say let's exploit it, let's pump it, let's promote it. If people want it, then we should give it to them."

No one can speak yet officially of a miracle: that must await the word from the Vatican, which typically takes a decade or more to decide such matters. But Tidei sees no point in waiting. "People can not follow the same pace as the Vatican," he said. "We will not wait 20 years to bring in hot dogs and religious souvenirs."

But many are still wary and fear a hoax. Once the wave of crying Madonnas began to spread, Italy's largest consumer rights organization, Codacons, took the unprecedented step of going to court in several communities, charging fraud and "abuse of public credulity.

Judge orders 'rosary women' to be quiet while attending church

GREENSBURG, Pa. (AP) — A priest called them vulgar. A few children were upset by them. And on Friday a judge said they're rule-breakers for praying so loudly in church that they drown out the choir.

Westmoreland County Judge Bernard Scherer sided with Holy Cross Church, which, tired of two years of disruptive behavior, sued the women for splashing holy water and refusing to pray quietly. Cecelia Miscovich, the only defendant to appear in court, agreed Thursday to change her ways.

The judge said Cynthia Balconi and Joan Sudwoj (pronounced SOO-wodge) can return only if the parish priest, the Rev. Angelo Ciuffoletti, agrees.

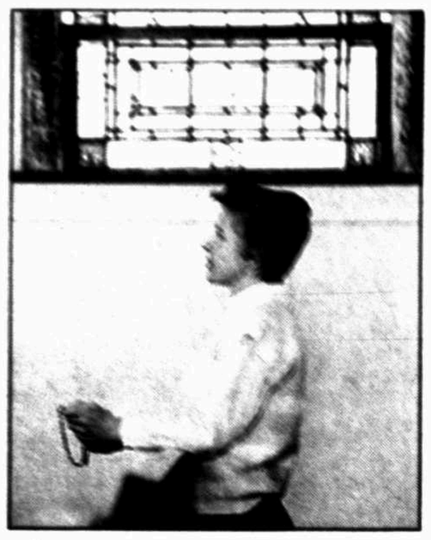

"If they come in and agree to abide by our rules and regulations, we'd probably let them in," said Vincent Morocco, the Greensburg Roman Catholic Diocese's lawyer.

After the ruling, deputies fanned out to give the decision to Sudwoj and Balconi.

"The judge has opened the door for the priest to ban them from the church, but that's never something we've tried to do," said James Falcon, the church's attorney.

Scherer said Sudwoj and Balconi violated the church's property rights and broke rules established by the priest. The judge prohibited the women — known in church newsletters as the "shouting ladies" and "rosary women" — from vandalizing the church, disrupting services or distributing literature.

The trio's motivations remained unclear even to church members and lawyers. No one answered at Sudwoj's house, and Balconi did not return a message left at Westmoreland County Community College in Greensburg, where she works as a computer operator in the data center. Miscovich had no comment.

Jan Sudwoj says the rosary in the last pew at an empty Holy Cross Church in Youngwood, Pa., following morning mass Friday. Sudwoj is one of three "rosary women" at the church who have frightened school children and drowned out the choir by saying loud prayers and splashing holy water during daily services, the church says.

Morocco said the women believe in a purported 1970 sighting of the Virgin Mary in New York City and last year passed out publications about it.

In a lawsuit, the congregation of 300 families accused the women of splashing holy water around the church without Ciuffoletti's approval and shouting down the priest during services. The lawsuit said the women ignored repeated requests from Ciuffoletti and Bishop Anthony Bosco to stop.

Ciuffoletti wrote in the church bulletin: "It is characteristic of vulgar people to shout and make a noise. God hears hearts, not voices. He hears our thoughts."

The congregation accused Sudwoj of instigating a shouting match with Ciuffoletti during one children's Mass. The priest said she railed at him about the morals of students at the nearby community college where she once worked and where Balconi still works.

Teachers said some children who saw the confrontation later cried, and some asked for definitions of words Sudwoj used — "fornication, adultery and homosexuality."

John Terrick, the church council's president, said frustration drove church members to court. "I think it's the kind of matter that I hoped would work itself out, without such drastic action," he said.

Earlier Friday, Sudwoj sat quietly through a children's Mass in the red brick, hillside church in Youngwood, about 30 miles southeast of Pittsburgh. She then began reciting the rosary during the last note of the service's last hymn. She kneeled alone in the last pew, bowed her head and spoke loudly enough that her words echoed throughout the building.

"Hail Mary, full of grace, the Lord is with thee," she said, hitting a higher pitch on "thee."

An hour later, she was still praying.

Reno pressures states to have sex offender registry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid a wave of legal challenges to such laws, Attorney General Janet Reno pressured states Friday to require sex offenders and child molesters to notify police of their whereabouts for at least 10 years after their release from prison.

Under a provision of the crime law enacted last year, Reno proposed minimum standards for state notification laws. The crime act provides that states failing to enact notification laws that meet the standards within three years could lose up to 10 percent of their Byrne anti-crime grants.

The Byrne grants, distributed to states by formula, total $450 million this fiscal year. For small states, the 10 percent cut could cost them about $200,000; in largest states, the penalty could reach $2 million.

"This law is about peace of mind," Bonnie Campbell, director of the Justice Department's Violence Against Women Office, told a news conference. "Parents, children and women everywhere need to know that local police are notified when child molesters and sex offenders are released from prison."

Campbell acknowledged that 40 states have some kind of notification law for sex offenders, but she said they vary widely, often require offenders to register their location only once and often fail to provide notification to other states when offenders move.

State or federal judges have struck down all or part of these laws as unconstitutional in at least seven states — Alaska, Arizona, California, Illinois, New Jersey, Louisiana and New Hampshire, according to the American Civil Liberties Union.

The Justice Department this week filed a friend-of-the-court brief in the New Jersey Supreme Court defending that state's notification, known as Megan's Law. Enacted Oct. 31, it was named after Megan Kanka, a 7-year-old Hamilton Township, N.J., girl who was raped and killed last summer, allegedly by a sex offender who lived across the street.

Going beyond many state laws, Megan's Law requires not only that offenders register with police but that communities be notified when a sex offender moves into a neighborhood.

A state judge upheld community notification but said judges, not prosecutors, should decide the risk each offender poses and only after a hearing. A federal judge struck down community notification as an unconstitutional additional penalty for any offender convicted before the law was passed.

Campbell said some courts also held community notification an unconstitutional violation of due process of law.

"We say community notification is not a punishment at all," Campbell said. "We think it's regulatory and justified by the fact that sex offenders are much more likely to reoffend than other violent offenders."

She cited a 1988 California Department of Justice study of 1,362 sex offenders that found they were five times more likely than other violent criminals to commit a sex offense after their release from prison. A 1995 Washington state study of 1,373 adult male sex offenders found that 12 percent had been rearrested for sex offenses an average of 4.6 years after release from prison.

Reno's standards allow each state to decide whether to require merely registration with police or also notification of selected groups such as schools, child-care providers and victims or community-wide notification.

The proposed regulations also require more than 10 years of registration by those designated sexually violent predators. They require that police verify the offender addresses at least annually and every 90 days for violent predators and that they inform states to which offenders move.

Georgia officials execute convicted killer despite British media protests

JACKSON, Ga. (AP) — A British-born killer was executed Friday night for kidnapping and killing a man in 1983, his electrocution coming just after a U.S. Supreme Court justice rejected a final request for a stay.

Nicholas Lee Ingram's impending execution had triggered a media frenzy in Britain and a torrent of phone calls and letters — including one from the archbishop of Canterbury — to prison and parole officials in Georgia.

Ingram, 31, was convicted of murdering J.C. Sawyer, who was robbed of $60, tied to a tree and shot near his home in Marietta, north of Atlanta. His wife also was shot but survived and identified Ingram as the killer.

Ingram, who holds dual citizenship, was born in England in 1963 to a British mother and American father. The family moved to Georgia a year later.

Ingram's mother had asked the British government to intervene. But Prime Minister John Major, visiting Washington, D.C., this week, declined.

In permitting the execution, U.S. Supreme Court Justice Anthony Kennedy upheld the U.S. 11th Circuit Court of Appeals' rejection of a three-day stay that had been granted earlier Friday by a federal judge.

In his earlier ruling, U.S. District Judge Horace Ward rejected Ingram's appeal in which he claimed he was secretly drugged during his 1984 trial with an antipsychotic drug that made him appear remorseless.

But he granted the three-day stay to allow the 11th Circuit to review his decision.

The execution was originally scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday, but Ward granted a one-day stay an hour beforehand.

Ingram's head and right leg were shaved to prepare him for the electric chair. Ward rejected a request by Ingram's attorney, Clive Stafford-Smith, to cite the state for contempt for preparing for the electrocution despite the stay.

"He felt like a sheep that they were shaving for slaughter," Stafford-Smith said.

State Attorney General Michael Bowers told the judge that the steps were taken before prison officials learned of the stay.

Georgia has executed 18 people since the state reinstated the death penalty in 1983. The last execution was in March 1994.

Judge must decide price of destroyed river rapids

By Al Bravo
Associated Press

PHOENIX — What price do you put on a wild river?

A federal judge is deciding how to assess restitution from men who blew up an underwater rock formation, turning a white-knuckle river ride into a far tamer affair.

Seven men admitted they blew up Quartzite Falls, a violent rapid on the upper Salt River that was held in awe by boaters and was run only by the best.

"It was invaluable, like the theft of a great piece of art," said Assistant U.S. Attorney Paul Charlton.

It also happened to be federal property.

Sentencing guidelines require the judge to weigh the value of what they destroyed as he imposes sentences.

In two weeks of hearings, U.S. District Judge Earl Carroll has indicated three of the defendants could be ordered to pay a combined total of $75,000 in restitution. After they're all sentenced, probation officers will decide how much each must actually pay.

The rock formation was in the Salt River Canyon National Wilderness Area of the Tonto National Forest, part of a section of rapids in the bottom of the canyon about 100 miles northeast of Phoenix.

'It was invaluable, like the theft of a great piece of art.'
— Paul Charlton, assistant U.S. attorney

Even tourists who don't get out of their cars know at least part of the canyon because U.S. 60 climbs in and out of it in a brake-burning series of hairpin turns and tiny scenic overlooks bound by sheer cliffs.

An average of 20,000 people a year raft at least part of the upper Salt River during the March-April season, according to Tonto National Forest officials. Fewer than 2,000 of those reach the site of Quartzite Falls, a four-day trip from the spot where most parties put in.

One of the defendants was a river guide who made his living from whitewater rafters. One was a paying passenger on one trip.

Some of the defendants said they were trying to make the river safer for rafters, and that it was too much trouble for people who didn't want to risk the falls to get out and walk around.

The rapids formed by the original 6-foot falls was rated Class 6, the most challenging. Two people died in the violent turbulence a couple of years ago. Now it's a mere Class 3, with only a 4-foot drop.

An engineer testifying for the prosecution estimated it would cost $313,000 to rebuild the fall. An engineer brought in by the defense said the job could be done for one-tenth that amount.

The government doesn't intend to rebuild Quartzite Falls, Charlton explained. The dollar figure is needed to establish a basis for ordering restitution payments.

Seven men pleaded guilty to destroying federal property with explosives, an eighth to being an accessory.

One, Richard M. Scott, an explosives expert, was sentenced Thursday to one year and one day in prison and fined $15,000; two others were yet to be sentenced.

Another was sentenced to three years probation; sentencing for three others was deferred for a year; one is a fugitive and believed to have fled the country.

Scott's attorney, Gene Stratford, compared the crime to an unauthorized construction project.

"I guess it's who issues the permit. These guys didn't have a permit," he said Thursday.

River runners were unforgiving. Some called it an act of eco-terrorism.

"It's tantamount to putting steps on El Capitan," said William Bradford of Newark, Del., referring to the rock formation in Yosemite National Park, Calif., that draws rock climbers from around the world.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, APRIL 8, 1995

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: A dramatic change in outlook will make you more philosophical about life's ups and downs. You finally learn to relax. Romantic influences will be especially strong in August. Take time out from work to get your personal life in order. Those who avoid overexertion will enjoy better health. Risky financial ventures abound early in 1996. Say "no" to unproven investments.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: country singer John Schneider, baseball player "Catfish" Hunter, comedian Shecky Greene, singer Julian Lennon.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Sports are a great outlet for nervous energy. Try a new one. A close alliance will benefit from your good mood today. Do some comparison shopping if thinking about purchasing a personal computer.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Generosity counts big in love; even a token gift can make a lasting impression. A blind date will more than meet your expectations. Taking care of your health will make family life less stressful.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Use finesse, not force, today. A give-and-take attitude helps nurture a parent-child relationship. A positive outlook is linked to good health. Your mate is a source of moral support.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Innovative changes will influence your lifestyle or travel plans. Once you get your act together, you will accomplish great things! Others are eager to jump on your bandwagon.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Start an exercise-diet program and stick to it. Greater loyalty and consideration will make a troubled relationship whole again. Earmark jointly-held funds for home improvements. Romance is terrific when both partners feel blessed!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Avoid prolonging an aggravating situation; cut your ties to a negative person. Making financial decisions with your mate or partner will reduce the number of arguments you two have. Recycle clothing or furniture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You now feel closer to a parent or sibling. A longtime wish will be granted. Be true to your high ideals. Having faith in yourself will help you reach a wise decision about romance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A compromise will create a stronger bond with a romantic partner or family member. A change of scene helps everyone relax and unwind. Check your car and road conditions before starting on a journey.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Someone is getting ready to leave the nest. An emotional tug-of-war could ensue. A loving relationship will be jeopardized unless you change your attitude. Decisive action helps avert a cash flow problem.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Read between the lines of a contract before signing it. Risky ventures are best avoided. Passing on gossip could backfire; keep your own counsel. Romance becomes more exciting once you reveal your true feelings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A newcomer can be either a breath of fresh air or a disruptive influence. The choice is yours. Do not let today's events divert you from important goals. Romance should be in full flower.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Once you unburden yourself to loved one, a great weight will be lifted. Climb out of a rut. New experiences are a source of valuable inspiration. Visiting a health club will bring special benefits.

Brando makes radio station offer it couldn't refuse: $20 per pledge

PHOENIX — Public radio station listeners got an offer they couldn't refuse from Marlon Brando, and now the station is $5,000 richer.

Marlon Brando phones in matching pledge to KJZZ-FM.

Brando phoned in a matching pledge offer while tuned in to KJZZ-FM during a fund-raising drive Wednesday, station manager Carl Matthusen said.

In town for a meeting of an environmental advocacy group, Brando promised to donate $20 each for the first 250 pledges the station received from first-time contributors.

The station announced the offer Thursday morning and reached the goal about three hours later, Matthusen said.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Bianca Jagger gets no satisfaction from the Republican-led Congress.

Mick Jagger's ex-wife joined Brown University president Vartan Gregorian in presenting the school's Alan Shawn Feinstein Awards for the Prevention of World Hunger on Thursday.

Bianca Jagger criticizes "Contract with America."

Jagger said the Republicans' Contract With America threatens to take food out of the mouths of needy children by cutting school nutrition programs.

"For the richest nation on Earth to deny food to its own children is a betrayal of its values and its future," she said.

Since divorcing the Rolling Stones' lead singer in 1979, Jagger has worked for human rights with such organizations as Oxfam and Amnesty International.

NEW YORK — "Live With Regis & Kathie Lee" turned into "Tape With Tony Bennett" on Friday when the broadcast was pre-empted by a bomb threat.

Someone saying he was "from Islam but a man of peace" called the WABC-TV studio during the morning broadcast and warned that a bomb was set to go off in 30 minutes, said police spokeswoman Officer Kathy Kelly.

Co-host Regis Philbin told viewers of the threat, warned the studio audience it was not a joke and directed an evacuation. A taped episode with Tony Bennett was played for the show's final 15 minutes.

Police searched for an hour but found nothing, Kelly said.

Philbin and Cristina Ferrare, who was subbing for vacationing co-host Kathie Lee Gifford, were interviewing supermodels Naomi Campbell, Elle MacPherson and Claudia Schiffer when told of the threat.

NASHVILLE, Tenn.— Goober says hey, he's doing opera.

George Lindsey, whose character on "The Andy Griffith Show" regularly announced "Goober says hey!" will have a mystery role in the Nashville Opera production of "Die Fledermaus" April 22 and April 24.

Lindsey, who also was on the long-running TV show "Hee Haw," said he appeared in the opera several years ago in the part of Dr. Falke. This time, neither he nor the company will say what he's playing.

"All I want to say is that it will be a lot, and I mean a lot, of fun," said John Hoomes, artistic director for the opera. "It will definitely be memorable and something you won't want to miss."

AURORA, Ill. — It's no Bull. Michael Jordan says he may have been driving the fairways instead of the lane if he had the chance to play golf as a kid.

Jordan whacked a golf ball Thursday in this Chicago suburb as he broke ground for the Michael Jordan Golf Center, a 30-acre driving range and 18-hole miniature golf course that will be open to underprivileged children.

"We just wanted to give an avenue for other kids to try to learn this game," the Chicago Bulls superstar said. "I hate to say this: If I had the opportunity to play golf when I was a kid, I don't know if I would have been playing basketball."

The center is expected to open in August.

Gingrich emphasizes need for change in federal government

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a prime time prerogative normally reserved for presidents, House Speaker Newt Gingrich declared Friday night the Republican "Contract With America" was only a beginning, and summoned the nation to help "totally remake the federal government."

In a nationwide televised speech from his Capitol office, Gingrich said the time had come "to balance the federal budget and to free our children from the burdens upon their prosperity and their lives."

The architect of last fall's Republican takeover in the House, Gingrich added, "The government is out of touch and out of control. It is in need of deep and deliberate change."

Democratic leaders responded sharply from an elementary school classroom in suburban Virginia. If Republicans get their way, said House Democratic Leader Richard Gephardt of Missouri, some kids won't get school lunches next year. "Republicans cut them to favor tax breaks for the wealthiest Americans," he said.

Added Senate Democratic Leader Tom Daschle of South Dakota: Republicans "have shown their true loyalties: to the forces of privilege and power who need no help, and deserve no special favors."

Earlier in the day, speaking to newspaper editors in Dallas, President Clinton pledged to work with Republicans, but said "I have no doubt" there will be some vetoes, as well." The president was flying from Texas to California when Gingrich spoke, and did not see the speech.

Gingrich's speech was the final act of a 94-day drama in which the new Republican majority brought 10 major bills to the floor of the House and passed nine of them. The list included a tax cut, changes in the welfare and civil justice systems, tougher crime measures, now pending in the Senate, and a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution, which fell one vote shy in a Senate showdown. Only a proposal for term limits failed in the House, and when it got to it in his speech, Gingrich shrugged and said "we failed."

Earlier in the day, Gingrich joined dozens of Republican lawmakers in a rally on the steps of the Capitol to celebrate completion of the Capitol. "Promises made. Promises kept," was their slogan.

The Georgia Republican's address prime time speech marked the first time a congressional leader of either party had received network coverage for a prime time address to the nation. CBS, CNN and CSPAN were televising the 30-minute speech, while NBC and ABC were sticking with their regular programming.

The silver-haired Georgian perched casually on a desk as he spoke, with an American flag serving as a backdrop. His normal rat-a-tat speech was slowed for his millions of listeners.

In his speech, Gingrich offered few policy proposals, although he said one congressional office building would be sold, and at least one parking lot privatized. Hearings will be held this summer on a plan to create a "flat tax" to replace the income tax, he promised, and health reform will be passed so people changing jobs can't lose their insurance.

For the most part, his speech was designed to lay the foundation for the coming battle to balance the budget over the next seven years.

"I am here tonight to say that we're going to open a dialogue, because we want to create a new partnership with the American people, a plan to remake the government and balance the budget that is the American people's plan — not the House Republican plan, not the Gingrich plan, but the plan of the American people," he said.

An estimated $1.2 trillion must be cut from planned spending over seven years to wipe out the deficits, and a fierce battle is expected in Congress this summer and fall.

Republicans are expected to propose major changes in Medicare and sharply scale back spending from dozens, if not hundreds, of federal programs. In a CBS interview following his speech, Gingrich said a few Cabinet agencies may be targeted for extinction, including Commerce, Energy, and the Department of Housing and Urban Development, and the departments of labor and education merged.

He sought to reassure the public about Republican intentions for Social Security — a political Achilles heel for the GOP since the retirement program was established 60 years ago. "I want to reassure all of you who are on Social Security, or will soon retire, that your Social Security is fine," he said. "No one will touch your Social Security."

Gingrich also said Medicare must change, and Republicans are expected to propose measures that would encourage future beneficiaries to enroll in managed care programs.

At the outset of his speech, Gingrich said that since taking over control of the House in January, "we're bringing about real change." Still, he said, "The contract's purpose has been to show that change is possible, that even in Washington you can do what you say you're going to do."

"It is the preliminary skirmish for the big battles yet to come," he said. Now, Gingrich said, "all of us together, Republicans and Democrats alike, must totally remake the federal government, to change the very way it thinks, the way it does business, the way it treats citizens."

Earlier, Clinton addressed the subject of Gingrich and the Republican majorities in Congress.

For his part, Clinton said that Gingrich would "claim a lot of credit for what he has done, and he should."

Speaking to newspaper editors in Texas, Clinton said he would work with the Republicans, saying the country does not favor "partisan gridlock. ... I want us to surprise everybody in America by rolling up our sleeves and joining hands and working together."

And yet, he added, "I have no doubt that there will be occasions when the veto will be used. We will have some unreconcilable conflicts," said the president, who has yet to cast his first veto.

Congressional Democrats have been far harsher in their criticism of the Republican program in recent days, saying it would cut spending on programs for the poor to provide tax benefits skewed to the wealthy.

Gephardt and Daschle spoke from an elementary school classroom in Virginia.

"We have seen a hundred days of tax cuts for the wealthy, and budget cuts for the middle class, said Gephardt.

Parent-daughter event excludes boys, some say

NEW YORK (AP) — Millions of American daughters soon will be skipping school and going to work with mom or dad, an event aimed at exposing young girls to male-dominated careers and building self-esteem.

However, organizers of the third annual "Take Our Daughters to Work Day" say they have been besieged with calls from irate parents asking: "What about the boys?"

Marie Wilson, president of the Ms. Foundation for Women that is the chief sponsor of the April 27 event, said it should remain dedicated to girls.

Many companies are heeding that call. But a number have substituted "career days" for boys and girls, a change that has angered Wilson and others.

"It misses the point," Wilson said. "What we are trying to do is keep girls' voices strong and their aspirations high. What does it mean when we say girls are not worth a day?"

The event is rooted in studies showing that from ages 9 to 15 years, girls' self-esteem drops and their sense of competence in math and science erodes.

This may help explain why, for example, many girls don't go into the male-dominated redoubts of computer programming, engineering and auto design.

Last year, between 5 million and 7 million girls participated in the nationwide work-in, the Ms. Foundation said.

A Roper Starch Worldwide poll for the foundation found that 125 million people have heard about the day and nine out of 10 viewed it positively.

'Many people felt it would be more constructive to include everyone. That's in keeping with our policy of inclusiveness. We don't want to discriminate.'

— John Harmon, Ford spokesperson

But those who don't see it that way seem to be speaking up more prominently this year.

One vocal critic is Christina Hoff Sommers, a professor of philosophy at Clark University and author of "Who Stole Feminism?"

"Boys need to be there too," Sommers said. "Young men need to see mothers at work. Sons are as much at risk academically as girls. It's a co-ed world, why not a co-ed holiday?"

Many companies including Nynex Corp., Gerber Products Co., Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. have broadened the day to include boys. The Associated Press has created a separate "Kids Day" for girls and boys.

"Many people felt it would be more constructive to include everyone," said Ford spokesman John Harmon. "That's in keeping with our policy of inclusiveness. We don't want to discriminate."

Others say broadening the day subverts the purpose. Boys, they argue, are constantly exposed to role models and opportunities girls just don't enjoy.

BP Exploration, a unit of BP America Inc., learned something else when it included boys.

At a video conference during its program last year, boys hogged all the seats where the video controls were located while the girls sat in the back, unable to participate fully, said Hugh Depland, a BP Exploration spokesman in Houston.

BP Exploration's employee committee this year decided to include boys again, but Depland said there will be assigned seats.

The company's Cleveland-based parent, on the other hand, is abiding by the day's original intent; activities for girls range from geologist exploration work to learning how to fix flat tires.

"The idea of the day is much more than a career day," said Argerie Vasilakes, BP America's development adviser. "It's specifically designed to reverse the negative messages that girls get: messages that they should be pretty and thin, quiet and polite."

Fifteen-year-old Margaret Bruening of North Olmsted, Ohio, went to work with her mother at BP America last year and said she feels strongly the day should be girls-only.

Asked if complaints that boys can't participate are valid, Bruening said: "I think that is a good point, but I think it's not as important as showing the girls they can do a job."

Unemployment rises, sparks recession worries among economists

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unemployment climbed to 5.5 percent in March as factory jobs fell for the first time since 1993. The Clinton administration welcomed the development after a period of torrid growth, but the news rattled the stock market and raised recession worries among some economists.

Shortly after the Labor Department reported Friday that the jobless rate rose from 5.4 percent in February, stocks began to fall. By 2 p.m., the Dow Jones industrial index was down 35.96 points, but ended the session at 4,192.62, a 12.79 loss.

The Treasury's benchmark 30-year bond was off as well, as investors worried about a new slide in the dollar, which set another record low against the Japanese yen.

"I think the stock market is probably worried about the possibility that this soft landing could turn into a hard landing," suggested economist Sung Won Sohn of the Norwest Corp. in Minneapolis.

But many analysts focused on the creation of 203,000 jobs in March amid indications that wage inflation remained in check. Despite the job growth, the unemployment rate rose because more people entered the labor market than found jobs.

"We have hit a glide pattern that is bringing steady job growth without inflation at a relatively low level of unemployment," said Labor Secretary Robert Reich. "We haven't had this good a combination of job growth and non-inflation for several decades."

Lynn Reaser, an economist with First Interstate Bancorp in Los Angeles, said the report and other economic indicators so far this year support "a soft-landing scenario," in which the economy slows to a sustainable rate of growth that will relieve inflationary pressures.

Sohn, the Norwest economist, agreed the economy probably has reached a soft landing, but added, "There is a growing possibility of something more than that."

Alan Davidson, president of Zeus Securities Inc. in Jericho, N.Y., was more emphatic. "We can kiss the soft landing goodbye," he said. "Recession will start within the next six to nine months."

A separate report from the Federal Reserve, meanwhile, added evidence the economy was slowing. It said consumer credit rose $8.2 billion in February, slower than the $9 billion pace a month earlier. Analysts maintain the growth rate in consumer credit appears to have peaked in November.

GOP proposes repeal of assault weapons ban; Clinton promises veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conservative House Republicans, supported by several Democrats, proposed Friday to repeal the ban on assault style weapons.

Republicans have made a top priority of lifting the ban, which was part of last year's $30 billion anti-crime law initiated by the Clinton administration. The repeal bill was introduced by members of the House Firearms Legislation Task Force.

The House plans to vote in May on the bill, and Senate Republican leader Bob Dole, a gun-control opponent, has said he hoped to have such a measure on President Clinton's desk by the summer. Clinton has said he will veto any such repeal.

"If the gun task force and the pro-gun lobby believe that they will repeal the assault weapons ban without a fight, they've got another think coming," said Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., who led the battle for the ban and the Brady handgun control law.

Schumer said he was particularly concerned about a provision in the bill that reaffirms the right of individuals to use any firearms at home for self-defense. People who were denied that right could bring civil lawsuits in federal court seeking damages.

"It repeals hundreds of ... laws that allow states and localities to determine who could have a gun in their home," Schumer said in an interview. "This is the most extreme position that I have seen in a long time."

Freshman Rep. Bob Barr, R-Ga., chairman of the firearms task force, said the provision "could very well" negate some state and local laws governing guns.

The ban, which prohibits the manufacture, sale and possession of 19 specific types of assault-style firearms and scores of copycats, is supported by major law enforcement organizations.

"These guns are eight times more likely to be used in crimes than conventional weapons," said Jim Pasco, a spokesman for the Fraternal Order of Police.

The repeal was left out of the big GOP anti-crime package that swept through the House in mid-February, which was part of the "Contract With America" agenda completed this week.

"It's going to repeal the Clinton gun grab and it's going to make homes safer for America," freshman Rep. Steve Stockman, R-Texas, told a news conference by members of the firearms task force.

In addition to repealing the assault weapons ban, the new bill also would create federal mandatory minimum sentences for use of a firearm in any serious state or federal crime. The new minimums would be five years for possessing a firearm, 10 years for brandishing one and 20 years for firing one.

The provision is designed to respond to complaints that enforcement efforts should be focused on criminals rather than gun control.

'Satan' arrives

The world survived SATAN's arrival Wednesday. But as in any B-movie horror film, don't be lulled into a false sense of security, say computer security professionals.

SATAN, an acronym for Security Administrators Tool for Analyzing Networks, is a software program made available over the Internet yesterday. By targeting a computer with a direct link to the Internet, a computer security professional or a digital thief can get an annotated blueprint detailing weak spots.

While there have been similar programs, and serious hackers already are familiar with ways of breaking into computer systems, experts say SATAN is significant because it is easy enough for novices to use.

On its first day of release, several thousand people downloaded copies of SATAN but there were no reports of break-ins, said Dan Farmer, co-creator of the software program.

IBM helps Vatican

The Vatican Library, founded in 1451 by Pope Nicholas V, housing 1.5 million books and 150,000 manuscripts, including the oldest known manuscript of the Bible, is visited by only 2,000 scholars a year.

But IBM, as part of a new business push announced Monday, intends to help the Vatican open its archives to the computing masses.

"All these wonderful books are only of use if they're read," said the Rev. Leonard Boyle, prefect of the Vatican Library. He said the IBM project would put the library's manuscripts and texts in digital form as a way of broadening the library's reach.

IBM, meanwhile, intends to expand into a field of information technology that focuses mainly on large corporations, universities and cultural institutions.

The technology initiative, called the IBM Digital Library, is the big computer corporation's effort to carve out an early, profitable niche on the so-called information highway.

Microsoft on track

Microsoft has begun sending out the final test version of Windows 95, the long-delayed successor to the operating system that runs nearly three-quarters of all personal computers in the world.

Officials of the software powerhouse said yesterday they are confident Windows 95 itself will ship in August, the latest target.

"There have been a lot of rumors about shipping schedules, but we have a good feeling that we're on track for August," said Yusef Mehdi, product manager for personal systems at Redmond, Wash.-based Microsoft.

The final test version includes the first full working model of the Microsoft Network, the controversial online service that will compete with other services such as America Online and CompuServe.

"Until now people have been able to do very limited usage of the network," said Mehdi. "With this version you can really go online for the first time."

Microsoft has been secretive about what the network will offer in the way of news and entertainment. "The big question is what kind of content will be available at product launch, and from all indications they'll have a lot," said John Girton, an analyst with Van Kasper & Co. in San Francisco.

Critics contend that by bundling the network with Windows 95 — which could sell up to 30 million copies in the first year — Microsoft will be able to dominate its competitors. They also claim Microsoft plans to use the network, along with its pending acquisition of Intuit, to control the emerging business of online financial transactions.

Gary Reback, the Silicon Valley attorney who has written about the potential dangers of the $1.5 billion Intuit deal, said that with its network, Microsoft is setting up "a set of vertical relationships extending all the way from the operating system to your pocketbook."

The launch of Windows 95 already has been pushed back twice.

It's time to get with the programs

■ If you don't already have a computer, it may be time to join the phenomenally growing ranks of those who are driving on the Information Superhighway.

By Jimmy Patterson

Use it or lose it.

The time-honored slight has now found a more polite usage in the 1990s, this decade of information technology.

Experts in the constantly-changing new technology fields insist that those with knowledge in computers will be those who have an edge on those who remain stuck in yesterday's outdated modes of information retrieval.

"The quote, 'The future belongs to the information literate' applies here," applies here," according to Loren Lindsay, director of library services at the University of Texas-Permian Basin and a primary reason why the Odessa school is a leader in information technology in West Texas. "Everyone will feel the effects of this communications revolution to various degrees. Information will be power for those who can gain access to it, and it will affect many jobs and transform them.

"With information doubling every 18-24 months, people are going to have to use this information revolution to keep current and to sort out the useless information."

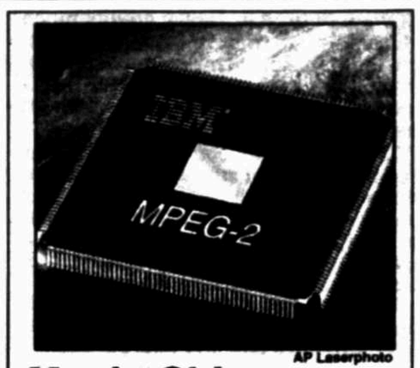

By the year 2000, experts familiar with the information revolution say that computers will become obsolete in a matter of days. While now there are programmers perfecting microtechnology, by the turn of the century, computers will be reinventing themselves.

Just as staggering is how quickly home computer ownership has grown, and how it is expected to grow in just the next two years. According to NBC News, computers were found in 18 million homes in 1992; in 1995, that figure has risen to 27 million, and by 1997, it is expected to have increased to 42 million homes.

According to Gene Mills, information systems manager at the Midland Reporter-Telegram, an estimated two-thirds of U.S. employees work in the services sector and "knowledge is becoming our most important product.

"It doesn't take long for skills and knowledge to become out-dated in this fast-changing world," Mills said. "Technological advances and the flood of new information make it harder to keep up with what is going on. Professionals and college graduates will suddenly find

This is a rendering of IBM's MPEG-2 computer chip, designed for use in applications such as movies-on-demand. IBM Microelectronics, headquartered in Fishkill, N.Y., described the device as having the real-time ability to compress high-quality video frames into the MPEG-2 compress format at the rate of 40 megabits per second.

On-line neighborhoods expand

From Alzheimer's to alcohol abuse, virtual support group meetings are a hot topic

In the constantly changing world of cyberspace, lending support and encouragement to other computer users through on-line support groups has become increasingly popular.

By Jimmy Patterson
Staff Writer

A 38-year-old Austin man comes to the realization he is addicted to cocaine. ... a mother in New Jersey attempts to cope with the murder of her young son by exchanging stories with others who have experienced the same tragedy ... an alcoholic in Los Angeles searches for answers to why he continues to drink ... a 27-year-old who has tested positive for the HIV-virus desperately searches for any piece of information that may one day lead to a drug that may prevent him from dying of an AIDS-related illness.

All four people have very different concerns. Yet they all four share one common bond: Alcoholics, AIDS victims, grieving parents and cocaine addicts are all joined together in the seemingly limitless world of cyberspace.

What 10 years ago was merely a gleam in the eyes of techno-holics the world over is now reality as computers and expanding information technology have widened the world of communications and created virtual communities joining together people who sit in their offices by day and living rooms by night.

Online support groups have become wildly popular and have evolved into a sub-genre on the Information Superhighway. No longer must the meek attend a meeting where they would be uncomfortable exposing their inner-most self. Now, they must simply log on to their personal computer or MacIntosh, dial up one of a growing number of online services, and interact with people who share the same concerns or problems.

Thousands of the stories these people share on public bulletin boards — where people freely exhange information that can be seen by anyone who logs on an on-line service — are fascinating, yet troubling, too.

"After reading a story on Prodigy (one of the most successful on-line services) from a girl who sought help about cocaine use by her and her boyfriend, I responded to her with my personal knowledge," a man from Austin writes. "At the time, I felt I had no drug problem. Additionally, I have assisted many people with drugs — and other forms — of problems.

"As our on-line discussions continued, I made many statements against 12-stepping but was not really aware of the 12-step guidelines. Nor did I intend on having any adverse effects on those that read these (bulletin) boards. It wasn't long until I was receiving many notes, both private and public, alerting me to the particulars of the board.

"After reading many notes I came to realize that I was an addict, even though I hadn't used drugs in a fair amount of time.

"While I consider myself intelligent and knowledgable, nothing changed my life more than actually reading other's experiences. All it took for me was one insight. So from this particular board, I get my life back.

"There are so many supportive people on these boards. They

Software programs can make April less taxing

By Andy Grieser
N.Y. Times News Service

You have less than three weeks until the April 17 tax deadline and a shoe box full of receipts. Plan on a long night with a pencil and calculator. Or with the computer.

Before you shell out $20 to $70 for tax preparation software, consider what you want to accomplish. It's often just as easy to do a return by hand (especially the 1040EZ) unless you need to itemize or fill out multiple schedules. The programs are a little more accurate than manual filing, but they won't take the place of a tax adviser.

"If you know that a particular expense is related to a personal (income producing) hobby, the software can help determine the allowable deduction," says William Yancey, a CPA and assistant professor of accounting at Texas Christian University.

"However, you cannot ask the right question if you are unaware that the correct tax treatment depends on whether the activity is a hobby, active business, investment or part of your duties as an employee."

Tax software changes every year with the tax codes; many companies offer updates to registered users.

Four well-known programs were tested — all are widely available for IBM-compatible systems on compact disc or 3.25-inch floppies. (A note: Even with the recommended 4 MB RAM, the CD versions of TaxCut and TurboTax took roughly twice as long to use as the floppy programs.)

Finally, software without bugs is like a picnic without ants. Two of the flashiest programs — TurboTax and TaxCut — have glitches (see summaries below). In both cases, the companies say, less than 1 percent of all users would be affected.

SUPPORT: Services offer 'meetings' for wide range of problems understand the emotions and the rage, and are willing to stay with you. Anytime I log-on, I can reach out and touch them via notes."

A woman in New Jersey credits much of her ability to survive with the interaction she has experienced while communicating with others on the Grief-Death topic of the Medical Support Bulletin Board on Prodigy.

"This source of communication has been my lifeline of support since April of 1992, when my first-born son, John, was murdered during an attempted robbery at the family business," says Lois Walter, a New Jersey mother. "The closeness of those who have been through the loss of a child by whatever means or reasons is unparalleled as a means of guidance, understandings and love shared.

"It does not take long for most of the public at large to act uncomfortable around those of us who have experienced the most profound of all losses. The wonderful, exciting thing about electronc communication is: It is always there, waiting when you need to vent.

"I have been able to bare my very soul on both the Homicide Survivors and the Death of a Child BB (Bulletin Board). I have, through this media, formed lasting friendships with the loving and understanding folks who have responded to my plea for support when it was desperately needed."

An anonymous abused woman has turned to her personal computer and the Prodigy service time and again.

"This board has gotten me through the darkest hours of my life, like whenever my ex makes bail and comes looking for me," she says. "I use this BB as my main support in getting whole again."

Critics of online support groups have one basic reason for judging that this type of venue is inappropriate if one attempts to fully confront their problem or addiction.

"There's no substitute for live meetings," a woman from Pennsylvania wrote. "However, through this BB and chat (a form of instantaneous on-line communication) we have shared wonderful support and help. We have made good friends. We are real flesh and blood people sitting at these computers who, through modern technology, can reach those who need Alcoholics Anonymous worldwide."

The numbers of people who own home computers grows at a startling rate every day. Therefore, those who can one day find help through an on-line service is also growing by leaps and bounds, and that can't be perceived as a negative.

While live meetings are the cornerstone of support groups, there simply are some people who, for whatever reason, choose instead to not face others with the same problem, but instead have plugged into cyberspace and have found answers through that means of communication.

"I drank alcoholically for 23-years," writes Jerome Carlson, of Duluth, Minn. "I have been sober for over seven years. The last year, since I found others like myself on the board, has been the best. We are few in numbers right now, but by being able to talk to people all over the country, we have found each other.

"Live meetings are a problem for some, including me. I just don't like being around a crowd of people. One on one, I love communicating with people. I am able to do that with e-mail, and also with other alcoholics I talk to around town and in my neighborhood. On the (alcohol abuse) board, I do not have to sit around with a bunch of other people. They may be nice people and their intentions may be good, but for me the results were usaully not in my best interests."

If there is a disease that is widely known, there will likely be an outlet for communications via one of the on-line service's bulletin boards. A man in Pittsburgh searches the Alzheimer's Disease BB in hopes of making what remains of his 81-year-old father's life a little easier ... a woman in Florida copes with the suicide of her mother by logging on ... and a man in Oklahoma tracks the latest information available on Adult-ADD research.

"There is more and more happening on the HIV front, and it's often difficult if one has a conservative physician — or no regular physician at all. Signing on to the (AIDS) board allows people access to information they might not otherwise be able to get. I have observed in many instances people taking the advice that they get on this bulletin board, approaching their physicians with it and seeing improvements in their conditions as a result.

"There are also supportive interactions between members which have provided great solace to people of all stages of infection and disease.

"One man in particular, his name is Jason, was very inspiring as he attempted to mediate and counsel people as he phased in and out of dementia during the last stages of his illness. His courage and compassion should be an example to us all."

N.Y. Times News Service

For all the talk of the "global village" and "electronic communities," America Online has taken steps toward making parts of cyberspace a little more local.

The online service set up thousands of newsgroup discussion areas based on U.S. and Canadian cities and put them under a category called America Online Neighborhood Newsgroups.

Want to learn about jobs in New York City? Head over to aol.neighborhood.ny.new-york.jobs. Curious what people are eating in Youngstown, Ohio? Check out aol.neighborhood.oh.youngstown.food.

Curiously, America Online has added entire countries under this "neighborhood" heading, creating paradoxically named groups like aol.neighborhood.nation.mexico.

Traffic in most of the areas — neighborhoods or nations — is very light so far. And, unless you're an America Online member, you won't be able to get to the groups (even though the format makes it appear that they'd be available across the Internet).

But if you want to talk about food and drink, look for a job, sell something or gab about politics in places like Anchorage, San Francisco and Battle Creek, Mich., this may be the place for you.

For each city, you've got such topics as Things to Buy and Sell, Food and Drink, Singles, and Politics.

So although these neighborhoods are pretty qeiet now, America Online is giving subscribers a chance to explore their own hometown before they visit the "global village."

How to get there: On America Online, use keyword Internet, then hit the newsgroups button, followed by add newsgroups. Then select America Online Inc. Newsgroups and America Online Neighborhood Newsgroups. Then add whichever groups you are interested in.

"We must constantly learn new skills and the Internet and other telecommunications media will play a huge role in learning these new skills."

Added Lindsay: "Technology is moving faster than we can anticipate. Last year we did projections about where library-access information technology will be in five years. Already we are pushing year three of those projections.

"Computers are going to get faster and smaller, and the software better. The result will be more and more information available quickly via computer. Desktop publishing, multimedia, virtual reality, etc. will become the norm."

Macintosh an easy choice for first-time users

N.Y. Times News Service

Q. I am interested in buying a computer just for home use. I am 66 years old. Can I still learn to use a computer, and where would I go for instruction? Can you recommend a home computer and equipment? N.C.

A. All it takes to master a computer is the desire to learn and the ability to overcome the natural fear the darn things tend to instill in us.

First on your list is picking a machine. And, at the great personal risk of getting lots of nasty mail, I'm even going to recommend a brand. Because this computer is for home use and you have no prior experience, you should buy a Macintosh. It is, quite simply, the friendliest computer ever made.

Look into any of the Performa models (available everywhere, including Wal-Mart) and make sure you get a modem, CD- ROM and at least 8 megabytes of memory.

To illustrate the ease in learning to use a Macintosh, in researching your question, I called around to see what kind of classes were available. I found that some places were phasing out their Macintosh offerings. The reason, supplied by one very honest representative, is that there just isn't that much demand for basic Mac classes. Why? Because they're just so easy to learn. Quite an endorsement.

But I think you should take a class because it will make learning even easier. You can get training from many sources, including most major computer stores, so call around and see what's available in your area. An introductory class should cost somewhere in the $100 range, and it will pay off greatly.

I and many of my friends have had particularly good luck with a company called New Horizons. They offer just about any class you could want and feature a policy that says if you didn't learn it the first time, you can retake the class free. You can reach them at 404-235-3500.

Q. Can a fax modem really take the place of a fax machine? I'm interested in getting one but am not sure it will do the job. S.W.

A. It won't do everything. Fax modems are great for receiving files and sending anything generated in the computer. However, if you want to fax a paper original, you'd need a scanner to make a copy. You might want to consider putting the fax function in your printer. Hewlett-Packard's OfficeJet (about $800) is a printer, copier and fax machine all in one.

Got a question? Write Don Wittekind, Atlanta Journal-Constitution, 72 Marietta Street N.W., Atlanta, Ga. 30303. E-mail: AJC Don on America Online; 75057,2274 on CompuServe; DSEV55B on Prodigy; computertalkajc.com on the Internet.

TAXES: Available programs range from easy to difficult

nology, $19. Requires 2 MB RAM, VGA, Windows 3.1 or later.

Complexity: Novice.

Ease of use: Moderate. Moving from area to area confusing.

Features: This is the bare bones, most basic of the four. If you can fill out a 1040, you can use this program. It's a good starting point for those trying to decide between software and a calculator. On the down side, many menu styles are used, which can clutter the screen with open windows and make it hard to move from area to area. No updates — so after you do your taxes, it's obsolete.

■ Simply Tax, 4Home Productions, $69.99. Requires 386 or higher, 4 MB RAM, Windows 3.1 or later.

Complexity: Novice.

Ease of use: Moderate. Unneeded steps must be skipped through.

Features: Not much flash here either. But this is among the most user-friendly programs. The input menu is set up like a book with tabs dividing subjects into comfortable, bite-size pieces. The main screen is divided into three areas: the input box on the upper left, an "Explanation" box (which explains each step) on the upper right, and the tax form across the bottom. It's nice to be able to see the form as it takes shape. However, it's a bit confusing and time-consuming to create a new return. Updates available for registered users.

■ TaxCut Final Edition CD-ROM, MECA Software, $39.95. Requires CD-ROM, 4 MB RAM, VGA monitor, Windows 3.1 or later.

Complexity: Novice.

Ease of use: Simple. TaxCut runs on a menu system that lets the user jump from area to area as needed.

Features: This is TurboTax's biggest competitor, with advanced moving graphics and voice-overs. However, TaxCut is geared toward average folks who have never taken an accounting class. Tax attorney Dan Caine's voice explains each step as the user goes through his form. And if that's not enough, a camera icon labeled "Dan Caine" opens a video window with Caine's talking head giving in-depth help on the subject that's giving you fits. The menu system is set up so subjects can easily be skipped and returned to later. Unfortunately, multiple listings (such as that for dependents) require a number of trips through the menu — one for each new item. Updates available for registered users.

TaxCut has a problem importing data from last year's "head start" version into the latest software. A fix disk is available.

■ TurboTax Multimedia, Intuit, $40-$50. Requires 486 or compatible PC, double-speed CD-ROM, 4 MB RAM, VGA monitor, Windows 3.1 or later, sound card and speakers.

Complexity: Intermediate.

Ease of use: Moderate. TurboTax uses a linear system that takes the user through every step.

Features: Artistic and flashy, by far the most special-effects-laden of the four. But though it looks great, it also is the most advanced of the programs, and assumes you know what you're doing. Video and dialogue are provided by talking heads in the form of Fortune editor-at-large Marshall Loeb and tax attorney Mary L. Sprouse. It also has a "summary" button that displays your work up to present. Updates available for registered users.

In TurboTax (and MacInTax, the version for the Apple Macintosh), there are glitches in six areas dealing with disability income, tips, depreciation, estimated taxes and capital gains. Fix disk is available.

Is Your Sound System Fulfilling Your Ministries Needs?
New Computer Technology Equalizes and Enhances Auditorium Sound

Do members of your congregation frequently comment that they couldn't hear everything being said during services? Outdated sound systems could be part of the problem.

David Percy
Caldwell Music

New technology in recent years now allows your church to advance from a standard "pa system" to a computer designed sound reinforcement system.

David Percy of Caldwell Music explains that the acoustic design software that Caldwell implements can help to equalize sound throughout the sanctuary. The software program EASE "Electro-Acoustic Simulator for Engineers" enables Percy to determine the exact acoustics for a given auditorium.

Acoustics can vary depending on the shape of the building and the building materials used in the walls, floor & ceiling. Also the placement of fixtures such as pughs, columns etc, have to be taken into consideration.

Once a detailed 3-D diagram of the church is prepared in the computer, Percy can determine exactly what the decible ratings, sound pressure level and degree of clarify one might hear from any position in the church.

The information that EASE provides helps Percy in his recommendations as to the size, placement and the wattage of speakers necessary for that particular church.

The combination of the EASE Computer program and Percy's sound equipment expertise allows the church, utilizing Caldwell's services, to have the most accurate, equally distributed sound and the best possible clarity.

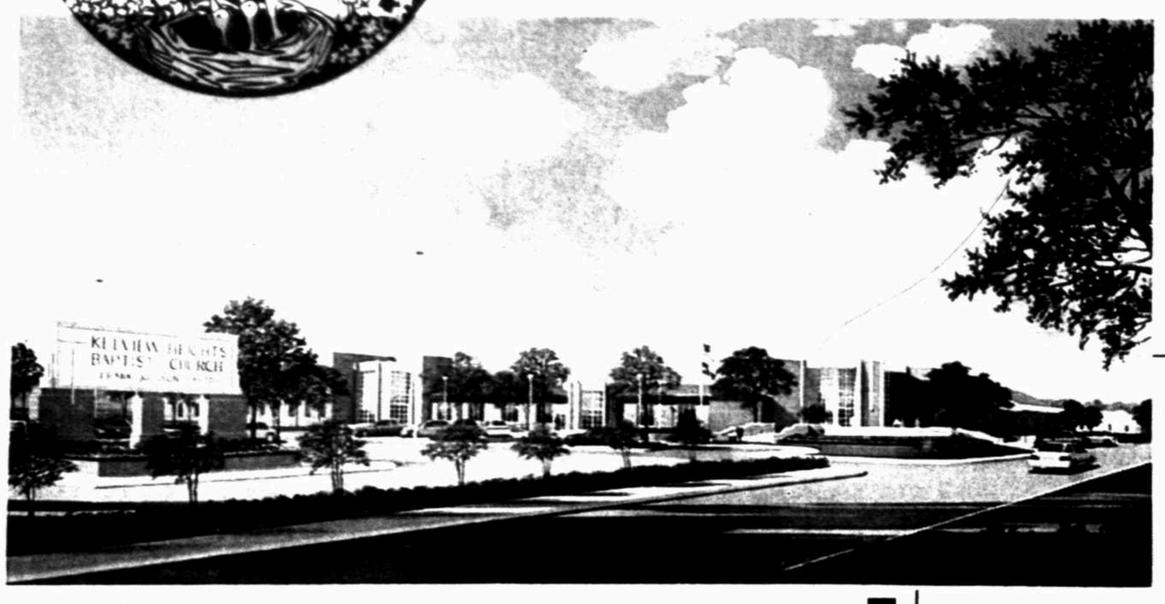

Percy adds that once the system is installed Caldwell's implements a regularly scheduled follow-up maintenance program to service whatever need might arise.

David Percy can be contacted at Caldwell Music Co., 3205 W. Cuthbert in Midland or call 697-0852.

Come Worship With Us!

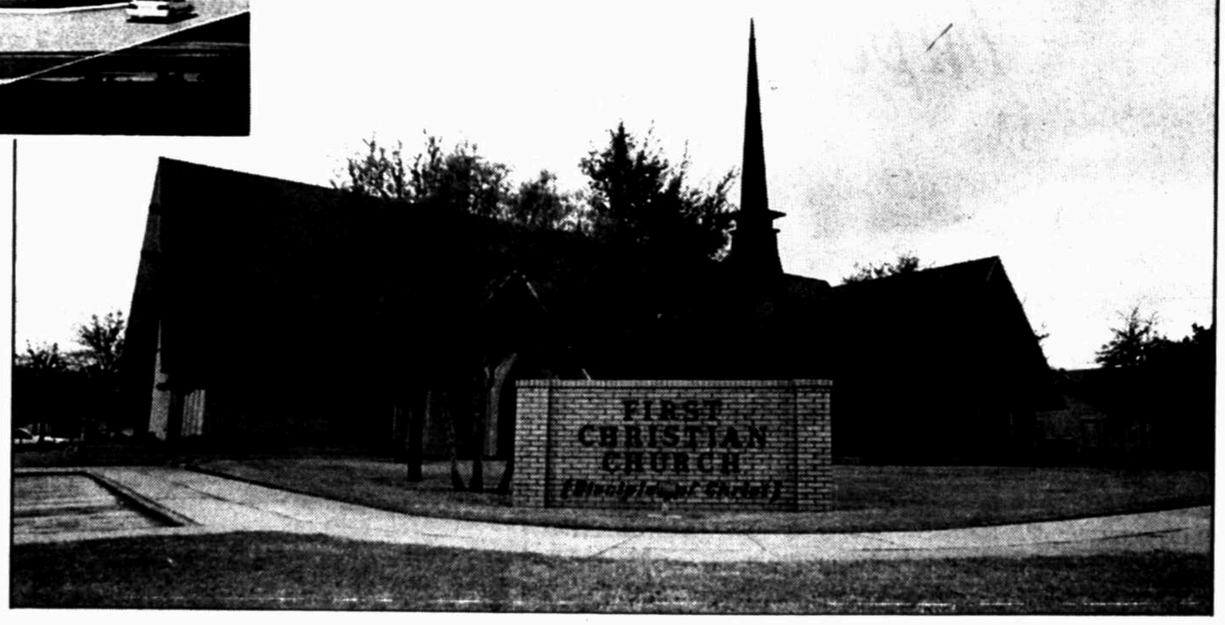

Kelview Heights Baptist Church

Kelview Heights Baptist Church will present a musical drama on Easter Sunday entitled "The Greatest Story Ever Told." There will be three special presentations on April 16 at 9:00 and 11:00 a.m. and 6:30 p.m.

This is a fully dramatized musical and is presented in a graphic set constructed for the program and in the costumes of the day.

See and experience the greatest story in human history as expressed in song and related in word. Reuben, a contemporary of Jesus, and Richard, a man of today's world, examine their lives and question who Jesus Christ was. Watch the events of the Easter story as they unfold. . .Jesus' triumphal entry into Jerusalem, His beating and crucifixion, His glorious resurrection, and finally His ascension into Heaven!

Kelview Heights, which has just completed an extensive remodeling, is pastored by Dr. Frank Johnson. Dr. Johnson will be honored April 30 by the congregation for 34 years of ministry to the City of Midland.

First Christian Church

First Christian Church is a Christian fellowship encouraging diversity and freedom finding to minister and worship together. Come worship and service God with the congregation. The church is located at 1301 W. Louisiana. Ministers are Rev. Tommy Potter and Rev. Bill Pennington.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

■ Singer to perform

Popular gospel singer Susie Luchsinger headlines Gospel Fest, set for 8 p.m. April 21 at Midland Center.

The musical evening, sponsored by Casa de Amigos, also features the Golden Girls of Fort Worth and local performers Tom Revilla and Shekinah Glory. Tickets, priced at $10, may be purchased at Casa de Amigos, 1101 E. Garden Lane, and Dollar Western Wear. The evening is made possible in part by a grant from the Arts Assembly of Midland and Texas Commission on the Arts.

Proceeds will benefit Citywide Community Services, a program of Casa that provides services to low-income elderly and handicapped persons.

For more information call 682-9701.

■ Mock trial set

Greenwood United Methodist Church is presenting a mock trial of Pontius Pilate at 7 p.m. Thursday.

The prosecuting team will be Bill Schneider, Carol Wakefield and Pat Starrak. The defense team will be Ernest Kiker, Carol Skinner and Virginia Farrow. Pilate will be played by Harold Thompson and the judge will be the pastor, the Rev. Dean Guest.

A nursery will be provided. For more information call 682-2101.

■ Services planned

Our Savior's Lutheran Church, 3309 W. Neely Ave., will present a series of special services commemorating the last week in Jesus' life.

Palm Sunday services at 8:30 and 10:45 a.m. will celebrate the triumphant entry of Jesus into Jerusalem, while Maundy Thursday's 7:30 p.m. service will include Holy Communion and the stripping of the altar.

The Good Friday service at 7:30 p.m. will feature a Tenebrae, or service of progressive darkness. Easter Sunday's services at 8:30 and 10:45 a.m. will proclaim the story of the risen Christ.

For more information call 694-4517.

■ 3 hour service set

A Good Friday Service of communion and reflection based on the seven last words of Christ is set for noon to 3 p.m. April 14 at First Presbyterian Church, 800 W. Texas Ave.

Those attending are invited to any or all of the three hour service. During the service, several local pastors will speak and music will be provided by different musicians. Child care will be provided for infant through 6 years old.

The service is being sponsored by Grace, Trinity and First Presbyterian churches and the Midland Corporate Ministry Board of the Presbyterian Church U.S.A.

■ Palm Sunday set

The Heroines of Jericho No. 458 and Delores Chapter No. 127 order of Eastern Stars are inviting the public to attend a Palm Sunday Service at 3 p.m. Sunday at the Greater new hope Baptist Church, 2400 E. New York Ave.

The message will be delivered by the Rev. Tony Williams.

■ Pageant planned

Alamo Heights Baptist Church, 1305 N. Midland Drive, is presenting "The Centurion's Story," an Easter pageant, at 7 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

For the sixth year in a row, more than 60 actors and singers will be on stage to portray the life, death and resurrection of Christ as seen through the eyes of a Roman centurion ordered to crucify Jesus.

A nursery will be available for ages birth through 3 years old. For more information call 697-3101.

■ Preaching set

The Rev. Lany Ashlock will preach Good Friday services at 7 p.m. April 14 at Cuthbert Avenue Baptist Church.

Services at 7 p.m. April 15 will be led by the Rev. Wayman Swoopes. Easter Sunday, following the 9:45 a.m. Sunday School, services at 11 a.m. will be led by the Rev. Don Knight. Dinner will be served in the Fellowship Hall after services.

For transportation to the services call 694-6075 or 694-1645.

■ Seminar scheduled

James May will present a "Blended Families" seminar at First United Methodist Church's Wednesday Night Live April 19 and 26.

May, who has a doctorate in marriage and family therapy from Texas Tech University, has co-authored a book and several articles that have appeared in professional journals. He also writes a weekly column for the Reporter-Telegram.

A licensed marriage and family therapist, May has presented numerous papers and conducted workshops at state and national levels. He also is a licensed chemical dependency counselor and a certified sex therapist. He has a private practice here.

The seminar will be presented at 6:30 p.m. in Room 100, First UMC, 305 N. Baird St.

Also, a "Basic Adult CPR" will be led by Max Comer in Room 101 and 102 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. during Wednesday Night Live. Cost is $35. Comer is certified through EMP America. Advanced registration for the CPR is required by calling 682-3701.

■ Parade planned

Grace Presbyterian Church plans the Children's Parade of Palms at the 11 a.m. service Palm Sunday.

Other services for Holy Week include a 7:30 p.m. Maundy Thursday Communion Service in the fellowship hall with the Children's Choir singing; a 7:30 p.m. Tenebrae Service in the sanctuary with Bible readings and the traditional extinguishing of the candles; and an 11 a.m. Easter Sunday celebration Service.

■ Report presented

Permian Basin B'nai B'rith Lodge 2409 will present a World Jewry Report featuring George L. Spectre at 7:30 p.m. today at the club at Mission Dorado, 1 Mission Boulevard.

Spectre is the associate director of the B'nai B'rith Center for Public Policy. The topic for the evening will be "Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union."

■ Presentation set

Trinity Presbyterian Church, 2800 W. Louisiana Ave., will present Dubois' "The Seven Last Words of Christ" at a Good Friday service at 7:30 p.m. April 14.

Soloists will be Marilyn Covington of Houston, Pat Snyder, Louise Crocker, David Messersmith, Clifford Nutter, Dick Snyder, Roger Allen, Tom Hunt, Geoff Walker and Ron Whitaker.

Child care is available. No admission will be charged.

■ Parade scheduled

First United Methodist Church, 305 N. Baird St., is offering its Parade of Palms services Palm Sunday at 8:30 and 10:35 a.m.

The Rev. Russell Parchman will speak on "Two Parables," from Luke 19: 36-38, 23:18-24. Music will be provided by the celebration Singers at the 8:30 a.m. service and by the Children's choirs and chancel Choir at the 10:35 a.m. service.

Also, a Maundy Thursday service will be at 7 p.m. Thursday. Holy Communion and the meditation will be given by the Rev. Mark Alexander.

Easter services are at the same time with Parchman speaking on "A Stone Rolled away," from Luke 24:1-11. Music will be provided by the Golden Bells, Junior Choir and Chancel Choir.

■ Service held

The Community of Joy will hold a 10:30 a.m. service at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave., Easter.

The message, delivered by the Rev. Mark Alexander, will be "Easter? That's About Bunnies and Colored Eggs, Isn't It?"

■ Holy Week celebrated

ODESSA — Redeemer Lutheran Church of Joy, 824 E. 18th St., will celebrate Holy Week using the theme "The Week That Changed the World can Also Change Your Life!"

The church's pastor, the Rev. Dean Kelm, said the services will focus on the last days of Jesus' life. A meal will be served at 5:30 p.m. Sunday through Thursday. Services will be at 6:45 p.m. Cost of the meal is a free- will offering.

A service of darkness, or Tenebrae, will begin at 7:30 p.m. Good Friday.

■ SMILE to meet

ODESSA — SMILE — Singles Moving in Love and Evangelism — will meet at 7 p.m. Saturdays in April at the Radisson, 5200 E. University.

Those attending the singles meetings are asked to bring a snack or beverage enough for themselves and one other. Babysitting is available by RSVP by calling Jon or Cindy Harrington, at work, 550-0005, or at home, 1-915-367-9344.

■ Lectures held

The 36th annual West Texas Lectureship Series will be held at the Lee Street Church of Christ, 101 N. Lee St., Sunday through Thursday.

This marks the 20th consecutive year the series has been hosted by the Lee Street Church. Around 80 speakers from throughout the continental United States attend the series and serve as presenters.

Coordinators of this year's lectureship are the Revs. Wayne H. Lemons and Gene E. Morris, the host congregation's pastor and assistant pastor respectively.

Theme for this year is "Let Your Light Shine." Events begin with a guest minister for the morning worship service Sunday followed by dinner for all the guests in the church's activity building. A special worship service will begin at 2:45 p.m. Group singing will follow the special service. A third guest speaker will deliver the message for the 7 p.m. Sunday service.

Monday through Thursday a full agenda of speakers will be participating. The event ends with a 5 p.m. talk Thursday followed by a banquet from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Midland Hilton.

Cost of the banquet is $20. All other activities are free. The public is invited to attend.

■ Teacher to speak

Jane Hellinghausen will speak at the Unitarian-Universalist Church, 3301 Neely at Midkiff Road, during the 9:45 a.m. Forum Sunday.

Ms. Hellinghausen, who holds a bachelor and master's of arts in sociology, teaches at Midland College. The group will discuss ideas for social outreach.

The church's Family Assistance Committee came up with the ideas of establishing a library overseas or working in prison ministries as possible outreach projects for the congregation.

Following the forum, a survey will be conducted to see how a church can best deal with the many social issues that need attention. For more information call the church, 694-4308.

■ Crusade to be held

BIG LAKE — The annual Festival of Faith city-wide crusade will be held Sunday through Wednesday at the Reagan County Community Center.

Richard Jackson will be returning as the guest speaker. Since last year's Festival of Faith, Jackson has retired as the pastor of Second Baptist Church, Phoenix, Ariz., and has moved his ministry to Brownwood. He is director of the Jackson Center for Evangelism and Encouragement. Jackson is a graduate of Howard Payne University.

Returning as music director is Jim Andrus, minister of music for the First Lutheran Church, Lubbock.

Services will begin at 10:45 a.m. Sunday, at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Monday and Wednesday and at 8 p.m. Tuesday. Choir practices will be held at 6:30 p.m. today and at 6:45 p.m. the other days.

Youth activities have been planned for Monday through Wednesday for those in middle school and high school. These will be at 6:30 p.m. in the front room of the Activity center.

Nursery will be provided.

Transportation will be available for all services. For more information or to arrange transportation call 1-915-884-2581.

■ Minister selected

The Lee Street Church of Christ has selected Wayne H. Lemons as its new minister.

Lemons replaces Lucius H. Alexander.

He is married to the former Verlene Pettigrew of Tyler. The couple has four children and 10 grandchildren.

■ Celebration set

St. Paul Christian Methodist Episcopal, 409 S. Lee St., is celebrating its anniversary and hosting a revival April 18 through 21 and again at 3 April 23.

Guest speaker will be the Rev. Rayfield Medcalf of Charlotte, N.C. The public is invited.

■ Festival planned

Midland Lutheran Church, 2705 W. Michigan Ave., will celebrate Palm Sunday with a Passion Sunday Festival, including communion, beginning at 10:30 a.m.

Special music will be presented by the Chancel Choir, the Joyful Singers and soloist Virginia Spaight. The procession also will include the Sacred Dancers and Sunday School children carrying palm branches.

Interim pastor, the Rev. Carol E. Spencer, will preach.

A nursery will be available.

The Maundy Thursday Communion Service at 7 p.m. includes the symbolic washing of feet and stripping of the altar.

The Good Friday Tenebrae service begins at 7 p.m.

All are invited to attend.

■ Mission planned

A prayer and healing mission is planned for St. Nicholas Episcopal Church, 2900 W. Princeton Ave., Sunday through Wednesday.

The mission will be conducted by Bishop William J. Cox and his wife, Betty.

Cox will preach at the 8 and 10:30 a.m. services Sunday. The teaching series will begin that evening and continue through Tuesday. A service of Healing will be held Wednesday. Each service will begin at 7 p.m.

Cox served as assistant bishop of Oklahoma from 1980 until his retirement in 1988. He later served as assistant bishop in the Diocese of Texas from 1992-93.

For more information about the teaching mission and healing service, call the church, 694-8856.

The public is invited to attend. A nursery will be provided.

■ Services scheduled

Four days of special services are planned at Grace Lutheran Church during Holy Week.

At the 10:30 a.m. service Sunday, each worshiper will receive a palm branch. The procession will march through an archway of palms.

The church will have a communion service at 7 p.m. Maundy Thursday, a Tennebrae service at 8 p.m. Good Friday, a sunrise service on the church lawn at 6:15 a.m. Easter and a festival service with communion at 10:30 a.m. Easter.

Worshipers are advised to wear warm clothing and bring blankets to the sunrise service. Breakfast will be served in the church fellowship hall after the service.

■ Special music set

Special music is planned for the 5 p.m. service Sunday at Greater St. Luke AME Church, 401 S. Adams S t.

The Rev. King Haile Selassie II, associate pastor, will speak on "World Hypocrisy and the Healing of the Sick."

For more information call the church, 684-6785 or Selassie, 687-4050.

■ Special services set

Memorial Christian Church, Andrews Highway at Cuthbert Avenue, will hold special services during Holy Week.

On Palm Sunday, there will be 8:30 and 10:50 a.m. services featuring the theme, "The Way of Jesus: Courage." During the late service, children will participate in a procession of palms.

Then, at 6:30 p.m. Sunday, Mark Withrow will give a special presentation on "The Trial of Jesus."

On Maundy Thursday, the Sanctuary Choir will present a series of anthems, during which groups of 12 will be invited to the communion table to share in the Lord's Supper. The service will begin at 7 p.m.

The sanctuary Choir also will present a Tenebrae Service — Service of Darkness — at 7 p.m. Friday.

All are welcome to attend.

■ Musical planned

Goodwill Baptist Church, 1508 S. Main St., is hosting its annual musical sponsored by the Youth Department at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Different choirs will perform, and the music will be followed by a youth social hour.

The Rev. L.H. Degrate, chairman of the Educational Board of the West Texas Baptist District Association, will speak on "Re-establishing Biblical Foundations for a New Day." DeGrate is pastor of Union Baptist Church in McCamey.

■ Programs planned

The community is invited to join Hollowell United Methodist Church in a celebration of Holy Week that culminates with an Easter Celebration Program at 6 p.m. Easter at 400 S. Marshall St.

Palm Sunday will be celebrated at Hollowell UMC at the 6 p.m. service by the Sunday School Department and Youth Choir.

Activities at 7 p.m. Monday will feature United Methodist Women and Communion Stewards; at 7 p.m. Tuesday, United Methodist Men and the board of trustees; and at 7 p.m. Wednesday, the Adult and Youth Choirs.

Then, at 7 p.m. Thursday, the Rev. Hadley R. Edwards, pastor of Hollowell UMC, will be the guest speaker at the Maundy Thursday service at Greater St. Luke A.M.E. Church, 401 E. Adams St.

The Easter Sunday Celebration program, "Christ Has Risen!: A Celebration of the Resurrection," will feature the Sunday School Department and the Youth Choir.

For more information call 689-3050.

■ Concert set

The Arizona Children's Choir will perform a concert at Crestview Baptist Church, 3300 Thomas Ave., at 6:45 p.m. Wednesday.

The concert is part of the Arizona Children's Choir's Texas Concert Tour.

The program will include music by Pitoni, Bach, Dvorak and Ives, plus folk music and a choreographed salute to the songs of World War I.

The ACC Program features around 100 children participating in one of three choirs. The touring choir consists of 25 singers ages 10 through 14.

■ Celebration set

First Baptist Church is hosting a community Easter celebration through Sunday.

"Behold the Lamb" is being presented by the combined 100-member Sanctuary Choir, orchestra and cast, directed by George A. Koehl, III.

The life of Jesus is being portrayed. Music and drama is being used to depict the people he touched and the message he shared.

The public is invited to attend performances at 7:30 p.m. today and at 6:30 p.m. Sunday in the church sanctuary, 2104 W. Louisiana Ave.

Child care is available free for ages birth through 3 years old. No admission will be charged. For more information call the church office, 683-0600.

■ Pageant presented

Crestview Baptist Church, 3300 Thomas, is presenting an Easter pageant entitled "Call Him Messiah" at 7 p.m. today and at 6 p.m. Sunday.

The program portrays the events of Christ's crucifixion and resurrection through music, drama, costumes and narration.

All are welcome to attend.

■ Drama presented

Kelview Heights Baptist Church will present a musical drama April 16, Easter Sunday, entitled "The Greatest Story Ever Told."

Three special presentations are planned that day at 9 and 11 a.m. and 6:30 p.m.

This is a fully dramatized musical with a cast and choir of 160. It is presented in a graphic set constructed for the program and in the costumes of the day.

The musical traces Reuben, a contemporary of Jesus, and Richard, a man of today's world, as they examine their lives and question who Jesus Christ was.

Letter against health books raises ire of constitutional liberties group

AUSTIN (AP) — State Board of Education member Donna Ballard was accused Thursday of putting "unprecedented and inappropriate" pressure on local school districts considering adoption of state-approved health textbooks.

The health books, approved by the state board before Ms. Ballard was elected to it, have been the subject of controversy over matters including their treatment of sex education, which some called too explicit.

People for the American Way Action Fund, which has fought for such issues as the teaching of evolution in science textbooks, blasted a letter to local school board presidents in which Ms. Ballard criticized the health textbooks.

Ms. Ballard, a Republican from The Woodlands, also listed in the letter school districts' options regarding the books, ranging from buying to rejecting them.

"I would encourage you, if you are predisposed to reject all books, to do so with the courage necessary," she wrote. "No decision will be accepted by everyone. To make a decision to avoid controversy is futile. What is best for our children should be our only criteria."

Harriet Peppel, Texas coordinator for People for the American Way Action Fund, said, "Ms. Ballard's communication with local school boards has seriously undermined the Texas State Board of Education's two-year-long deliberation on the textbook issue.

"Her commandeering of the process at the behest of extremist groups such as the American Family Association is damaging not only to other State Board of Education members but also to the students in their charge, who may be denied lifesaving information," Ms. Peppel said.

Ms. Ballard said she wants students to receive accurate information on sexually transmitted diseases.

Ms. Peppel said she would ask the state board to consider the propriety of Ms. Ballard's actions and evaluate what impact they may have had on local textbook adoptions.

Ms. Ballard said she wrote school board presidents in her education district — and to those outside her district who requested the information — after receiving numerous telephone calls.

"I think there's just a lot of confusion as to what they could do and what they couldn't do," she said.

"I've heard some people complain that I put my opinion in there. Well, I'm an elected official. That's what I am supposed to do. The people who voted for me didn't send me up here not to express my opinion."

The State Board of Education adopted the health textbooks for use around Texas after requiring changes, such as deletion of some explicit illustrations and of information on abortion procedures.

Some groups, such as the American Family Association of Texas, said the changes didn't go far enough.

Local districts may buy whatever textbooks they choose, but they must use local money to pay for books not on the state-approved list unless they obtain a waiver. They may not get a waiver to use state money to buy state-rejected books.

In the letter, Ms. Ballard said if she had been on the state board at the time, she would have voted against the books.

"Replete throughout are highly controversial and offensive sections and statements that are often politically charged," she wrote. "Furthermore, there is a consistent tone present that asks the child to make his own choices without regard to existing authority. I believe this is a fatal mistake."

However, she wrote, "As an advocate of local control, I will respect your board's right to make your own choice."

West Texas band mourns loss of Tejano star

By Garry Wesner
The Hereford Brand

HEREFORD — Two weeks ago, the Mexican-American band "Oxygeno" recorded an album at Q Productions in Corpus Christi.

This week, the band members made another trip to Corpus Christi, this time to join thousands of others mourning the death of Grammy-winning star Selena.

On their earlier trip, Selena took time to listen to Oxygeno's new work, said bass player Alfredo Avila, playing and replaying one song in particular that was written by Fernando Torres, Oxygeno's lead vocalist.

Selena's untimely death by gunfire last week struck members very hard, Avila said.

"I'm just glad she got to hear our last recording," Avila said.

The band members met Selena Quintanilla Perez and the Quintanilla family two years ago when the group, then known as "Brisa Marina," (Marine Breeze) were the opening act for Selena in Plainview. It changed the band's future.

"They said if we ever wanted to do some recordings, they were opening their own studio in Corpus," Avila said. The band was invited to sign with Q Productions. About eight months later, they did.

'She was very kind...very friendly—not just with us (band members). She would be there talking with us, joking. She was just like any other person.'

— Alfredo Avila
bass player

Abraham Quintanilla Jr., Selena's father, became manager and the band's name was changed to Oxygeno.

Last year, they toured for about six months with Selena, taking in territory from California to Florida, including extensive stops in Texas and Arizona.

"She was very kind. She was very friendly — not just with us," Avila said. "Every time we would come all the way down from West Texas to Corpus, she'd receive us with a hug and a kiss," he said. "She would be there talking with us, joking. She was just like any other person."

With the latest album finished, Oxygeno was preparing to tour Mexico with Selena later this year.

Now, Avila said, it looks like they will be going alone.

In fact, he said, band members were told while in Corpus Christi this week to plan a date to return there for a photo session for their new album.

"She really did open a lot of doors for us all over the country," Avila said.

While most of the nation watched funeral events on television, Avila and the rest of the band were there in person.

"To me I could feel a lot of pain going on. There was just a lot of sadness. It was just unbelievable. Even though we were there it was unbelievable she was in the coffin," he said.

While they were not all able to attend, fans of Selena across the country — and in Mexico — have been showing their support for the slain singer and her family.

Even in Hereford pink ribbons began appearing on car antennas this week as a salute to the singer.

"It's our way of paying out respects to the Quintanilla family," Avila said, a "way of saying they liked her."

Selena's death will not mean the end of their careers. He said the band will likely relocated to the Corpus Christi or McAllen areas within the next six months, to be closer to recording studios and the Quintanilla family.

Band members are: Avila on bass; Fernando Torres on lead vocals; Daniel Torres, drums and second vocals; Jesus Torres, percussion; Javier Torres, guitar, and Rene Trevizo, keyboards.

The death of Selena, Avila said, will have an impact on Mexican-American music.

"I think this period will live. The music's going to go on — especially hers. It's not going to end. We're going to remember her because of her music, ... It's going to be there because she touched us.

Guerrero in AA

MESA, Ariz. — Pedro Guerrero will begin his comeback attempt one step lower than he expected. Signed to a minor-league contract by the California Angels during the off-season, Guerrero was sent to Double-A Midland, rather than the Triple-A Vancouver club for which he and the Angels initially expected he'd play. And instead of being a fixture in the middle of the lineup, Guerrero will serve as a player-coach who will split time at first base, third base and designated hitter.

Guerrero, 38, was beat out for the first-base job at Vancouver by another veteran on the comeback trail, Leon "Bull" Durham. Former Seattle Mariners bullpen stopper Mike Schooler, trying to come back from arm injuries, will also start in Midland. Reliever Lee Smith, the Angels' key off-season acquisition, didn't report to Friday's mandatory workout in Mesa, but he phoned club executives to say he would be arriving in the Phoenix area Friday night.

Tracksters have one last fling

By Amy Wolfenbarger
Sports Writer

The Tall City Invitational track and field meet may be short on teams but there's definitely no shortage of talent as the 10 boys and girls teams gear for one last warmup before district meets begin next week.

Midland High and Midland Lee play host to the one-day event at Memorial Stadium which begins at 10 a.m. with the field events and running preliminaries and continues with the running finals at 1:30 p.m. The Bulldog and Rebel boys and girls teams and will be joined by girls and boys teams from Odessa High and San Angelo Central. Odessa Permian will field a girls team while Amarillo High rounds out the boys teams.

The talent begins with the San Angelo boys, who have been at or near the top of the team standings in every one of their meets so far this season. The Bobcats were originally scheduled to run some of their better athletes in the Texas Relays this weekend but pulled out at the last minute because of some nagging injuries.

But despite those injuries to San Angelo stars Sam Singleton and O'Keith Weatherspoon, MHS boys

Price is wrong; Haas slips into lead at 9-under

■ Nick Price misses cut, is denied third-straight major title; conditions keep Masters' leaderboard crowded.

By Ron Sirak
AP Sports Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. — There was something special about the leaderboard after the second round of the Masters. And if you were Jay Haas, something scary.

"It's pretty crowded, isn't it?" said Ben Crenshaw, looking at Haas' 9-under-par 135 sitting a stroke ahead of John Huston and Scott Hoch and two shots better than Crenshaw, Phil Mickelson and David Frost.

"It's about as crowded as I've seen it in a long time," Crenshaw said.

And he had a simple explanation.

"The conditions have everything to do with the scores," Crenshaw said. "There are spots where you can take liberties on the course. You couldn't do that last year."

The sun blazed brilliantly at Augusta National Golf Club on Friday. The course slowed by Thursday's steady rain quickened during the second round but was not yet at Augusta's notorious warp speed. As a result, par was once again an easy barrier.

And no one had an easier time with it than Haas, who rained iron shots on the flags almost at will and finished with four consecutive birdies while shooting an 8-under-par 64, the lowest score in the Masters in five years and just one stroke off the tournament course record.

But he was not the only one having his way with Augusta National. Thirty-seven players were below par after 36 holes and the cut was set at 1-over-par 145, tied for the lowest cut number ever. Thirty-six players broke par Friday.

"The greens are not usually as soft as they are now," Haas said. "Early in the week, I would have said 2- or 3-under would be leading after 36 holes."

Instead, his 9-under-par figure was just three better than Davis Love, Lee Janzen, Corey Pavin and Brian Henniger.

Player after player shattered 70. Hoch shot 67, Crenshaw 67, Love and Janzen 69.

An impressive — and for Haas, scary — pack of big names was at 4-under 140, just five shots behind, including Olazabal, Nick Faldo, Bernhard Langer, Fred Couples, Colin Montgomerie and Steve

Rogers satisfied as Rangers offer one-year contract

ARLINGTON (AP) — Pitcher Kenny Rogers, agreeing to terms with the Texas Rangers on a one-year contract for the 1995 season, said Friday it's satisfying to stay with the team.

The Rangers did not disclose salary details. But broadcast reports said the contract was in the $1.4 million range, with $3 million to $4 million having been set aside for Rogers.

"I said earlier that I don't think everybody realizes this, but I've been a Ranger almost half my life," Rogers said in the team's first day of full workouts in Florida.

"So reality set in when I thought that maybe there's a chance I may not be able to put on a Rangers uniform and be a Ranger anymore. And that was disappointing, I'll say that," he said.

"But I've been a Ranger for almost half my life, and hopefully I can keep on being one."

The 30-year-old left-hander was eligible for salary arbitration prior to the signing.

The club announced it will offer arbitration to catcher Ivan Rodriguez and third baseman Dean Palmer. In a surprise move, Texas declined to offer arbitration to John Burkett, whom the Rangers acquired from San Francisco last December.

Bulldogs face angry Cougars in 4-5A

By Bill Petitt
Sports Writer

Midland High moves from the hornet's nest into the Cougars' den in the District 4-5A baseball jungle today.

Following a tough 6-5 loss to Midland Lee on Wednesday, the Bulldogs now must face an angry Abilene Cooper team that is coming off an 8-7 loss to cross town rival Abilene High on Thursday. The loss was just the second for Cooper in 30 meetings with Abilene, and likely will drop Cooper out of the state's Top 10 rankings after being seventh this week.

More importantly, the loss puts Cooper a game behind Lee with five district games remaining. MHS meets Cooper at 2 p.m. today at Christensen Stadium.

"They have a good team all the way around," said Midland High coach Lew Kennedy. "It surprises me that they have lost as many as they have. Cooper is always going to be sound and they can play lights out when the game is on

Lady Rebels aim for 6-5A softball title, perfect ending

By Stewart Doreen
Sports Writer

It is real simple. Midland Lee can take home the District 6-5A softball title in its first year at the UIL level with a win over Abilene Cooper in Lee's regular season finale.

There is one problem for the undefeated Midland Lee team. The Abilene Cooper ball club they will face at the Bill Williams' Softball Complex today at 2 p.m. gave the Lady Rebels some troubles in their last go around on March 24.

"It's to the point where we are ready," Lee coach J.C. Gotcher said. "We've got our work cut out for us. It is the biggest game of the year."

Midland Lee will come into the game with a perfect 24-0 mark overall and 11-0 mark in district action. The Lady Rebels have only trailed a handful of times during the season, one time coming Wednesday in Lee's 7-2 win over Permian.

In that game Michelle Primeaux, pinch running for Emily Hayes, scored the winning run, coming home on a

MC's Kailahi shows off Lady Chap hoops

By Stewart Doreen
Sports Writer

Going into the Southwest Association of Women's Basketball Coaches women's All-Star game, Midland College's Joanna Kailahi wanted to show how good the Western Junior College Athletic Conference and the Midland College program really is.

So it was fitting that the WJCAC's all-conference performer would lead the West to their 94-88 win over the East Friday night at Chaparral Center.

"I wanted the other players to know we're still strong and for them to know which conference is the best," Kailahi said. "I want the conference to get exposure. It is the toughest conference."

Kailahi scored 24 points, which led all scorers, on 9-for-11 shooting to go with her eight rebounds and three blocks. However, it was her ability to make plays and lead throughout the game that impressed those who have seen her play this year.

"I call her Charles Barkley, because her strength is posting up on the inside," said West coach Johnna Pointer, who coaches Frank Phillips College. "She is also a really smart player. She made some great passes, and led the break a couple times."

"It is nice to have her on my side instead of playing against her."

Kailahi gives the credit to her teammates, like Carrie Moss from New Mexico who had 13 and Howard College's Eureka Ray with 9-for-11 free throws. The experience for Kailahi was a memorable one.

"At first I thought (playing with other WJCAC players) would be weird cause we were opponents during the season," Kailahi said. "But we jelled, and it was fun like a dream team."

Velarde joins 'Homestead Homies'

HOMESTEAD, Fla. (AP) — Twenty-nine players, a few dozen fans and just one major league scout were in attendance Friday as the players' union opened a spring training camp for veteran free agents.

Chris Sabo, Dave Stewart, Todd Stottlemyre, Mickey Tettleton, Dave Magadan, Mike Devereaux and Howard Johnson were among the veterans who took part in a light, two-hour workout under a blazing sun at the pink and aqua Homestead Sports Complex.

"We're calling ourselves the Homestead Homies. We're all misfits," former New York Yankees utilityman Randy Velarde said. Velarde is a graduate of Midland Lee and played collegiately for Lubbock Christian before being drafted by the Yankees.

Foremost on their minds was having a place to work out, but the free agents also were united in their uncertainty of returning to a job market in which salaries aren't what they used to be.

"I couldn't have picked a worse time to be a free agent. Bad luck is really falling my way," Velarde said.

He made $1.125 million in 1994 and had the best season of his career, but was offered only $200,000 by the Yankees earlier this week.

"That's an 80 percent pay cut — a tremendous cut and it's just too much. Their cutting off everything but my toes."

Many of the players in this unique camp are coming off good years rather than trying to bounce back from injuries or bad years.

"To see with your own eyes what's out there, it's shocking," he said.

Indeed, the roster of players who showed up on the first day of camp would make a very decent major league squad.

There are more than 150 free agents on the market, many of them with price tags too high for teams with low budgets or teams that only need to be fine-tuned.

"Spots open up, but teams aren't going to go after you until a spot opens. Some teams are calling me, but it's a matter of getting down to business," Sabo said after putting on one of the most impressive hitting displays during batting practice.

Many of the most talented free agents are staying away from Homestead, including Larry Walker, Orel Hershiser, John Kruk and Kevin Brown, because they feel deals are imminent.

M-Angels even score in 13

Staff Report

SAN ANTONIO — Several Angels made key plays late in the game here Friday to lift Midland to a 4-3, 13 inning win over the San Antonio Missions. The win left the Angels, along with the Missions and the rest of the Texas League West Division, at 1-1.

Angel catcher Jose Monzon and outfielder Bo Ortiz made sterling defensive plays with the bases loaded and one out in the bottom of the 12th inning. In the top of the 13th Angel third baseman George Arias lead off with a single and was later driven home by a Bo Ortiz hit.

Midland Pitcher Todd Blyleven got the win in relief. He pitched four shutout innings and got two of his three strike outs in the bottom of the 13th inning.

The Angels took a 2-0 led in the first when designated hitter Todd Greene homered after Oritz, who scored three runs in the game, had walked. The Missions battled back to tie the game in the seventh when Wilfredo Romero scored after he walked, stole second, went to third on a pass ball and came home on a groundout by Dan Melendez.

Angel starter Ryan Hancock pitched a solid six innings giving up only one unearned run while striking out four. But he lost a chance to get the win when San Antonio tied the game in the seventh.

Arias and Ortiz combined again for an Angel go-ahead run in the eighth inning when Arias' triple scored Ortiz to put Midland up 3-2.

the game. They did get balanced scoring with five players, hitting double figures. Wendy Morris from Tyler led the team with 19, Angelina's Vanessa Ray had 14, Paris' Sharon Sloane and Angelina's Maranda Roberts threw in 12, and San Jacinto's Tamla Garner had 11.

The West extended their lead midway throughout the second half. With six minutes to go the lead was 17, and with 3:25 left on the clock, the West was up by 19. Even a bombardment of three pointers by the East would not be enough as the West went on to win the first semifinal.

In the second game of the night, the East would make up for the performance of the other East team, taking it out on the North 95-74. This like the other game started out close, but foul trouble in the second half turned a four-point (46-42) game at the half into a blow quickly thereafter.

Six players scored in double figures for the East, making the win a true team victory. Tarshia Bronner, from the national powerhouse Trinity Valley, led the way with 14. Angelina's Catina Mollister, and Paris' Bertha Paschal and Rhonda Wilson had 13 each. Trinity Valley's Melissa Rollerson had 12 and San Jacinto's Kenya Matthews had 10.

For the North, McLennan's Lisa Brown and Grayson County College's Lori Brown had 13 each while another Grayson standout Kemi Ibitayo had 11.

The games showed the high-level of talent that exists in the states of Texas and New Mexico. It also gave the women a chance to have fun and show their stuff to scouts from all over the country.

"We have this weekend for them to go out on a good note," Pointer said. "It's for them to have fun and to meet girls they have fought against for two years."

"It's also a last time to show their skills before signing date."

The action will continue tomorrow, starting with the Sophomore Showcase game at 10 a.m. At noon, the consolation game will take place, followed by the finals of the three-point and free throw contests. At 2:15 p.m., the winners of last night's games will do battle.

MHS: AHS battles Lee after shocking rival Cooper

the line."

Abilene High stunned Cooper on Thursday with six runs in the top of the seventh inning. Leadoff hitter Scott Morrow went 2-for-5 and left fielder Jason Beaty went 2-for-4 with a double and an RBI to highlight the Eagles' rally.

Cooper will start left-handed sophomore Mike Anderson (1-1 in district play) today while MHS will likely go with Craig Coleman (2-1 in 4-5A action).

Midland High, 8-11 overall and 3-4 in district play, is in a fourth-place tie with Abilene High and needs a win over either Cooper or Odessa Permian on Tuesday to stay in the fight for the third playoff spot out of District 4-5A.

Jeremy Kimble went 3-for-3 with two runs scored and one RBI against Lee. Jason Rogers has hit two triples over the past three games to lead the Bulldogs offensively.

Lee will travel to Abilene to take on Abilene High in a 2 p.m. start. Thanks to Abilene High's win over Cooper, Lee leads the league by a game at 6-1.

"Abilene is the team that scares me the most," said Lee coach Jesse Benavidez, following Wednesday's win over Midland High. "We know we are going to go out and play against those teams right there with us. I have to make sure that we are ready for Abilene."

Abilene starts junior righthander John Daillies. He threw for 3 2/3 innings of no-hit relief Thursday against Cooper. If Dailles can't go the distance, crafty lefthander Marcus Lopez will be ready in the pen.

Lee will go with senior Lance Watters, now 3-0 in league play.

Phillips had three RBIs to lead the Rebel attack on Wednesday against Midland High. He hit a single with the bases loaded in Lee's four-run fifth inning, driving three runs in. Daniel Carrasco and Raymond Martinez each had two hits for Lee in the win.

GIRLS: Lady Cougars attempt to mar Lee's record perfect April Rice bunt in the top of the seventh inning.

(From 1C)

Lee will start Emily Hayes, 14-0 for the season, on the mound. Hayes has only allowed a few runs on the season, but they are just a blemish on what has been a dominating season, one that includes five no-hitters.

At the plate, sophomore Adrian Nobles, who had a key double in the first game between the two teams, leads the Lady Rebels in many offensive catagories including home runs and RBIs. Nobles, junior Susanna Reed and senior Christian Lance are the heart of the Lady Rebels line-up that has been key in outscoring the opposition by more than 200 runs, but the Lady Rebels know that they need to be ready for the Lady Cougars.

"We need to keep our heads in the game," said sophomore Jessica Garcia, who will likely fill in at second base for the injured Stephanie Gentry. "We need to stay focused and concentrate on hitting her (Cooper pitcher Hallie Woods).

Abilene Cooper is no slouch either. The Lady Cougars are 14-1 and 9-1 and are looking for payback when they come to do battle today. If there is a clear-cut advantage in the game, it is that Cooper knows through its experience in the UIL playoffs last year what the big game is like.

The Lady Cougars will be led by first baseman Kati Sargent, left fielder Melissa Parker and shortstop Jill Malone. Cooper coach Connie Finn feels that their bats, which were silent for most of the season, are going to make a great deal of noise in the game.

"Our kids feel more confident at the plate," Finn said. "It will be an advantage for us."

On the mound, Cooper's Woods, 12-1 and 9-1, will try to make up for the one mark of imperfection on her record. Though Finn knows Lee will put the ball in play, she is quite confident in her defense.

"We are ready to play," Finn said. "We are the top two teams in district. They are going to hit the ball, but we're ready to play defense."

Midland High, 16-5 and 6-4, will travel to Abilene for their 2 p.m. game with 9-8 and 4-6 Abilene High. The Bulldogs take the field with Katrina Kelley, 7-2, or Jennifer Shelton, 6-3, on the mound. The Bulldogs, who have won four straight games, can clinch the third-place spot in district with a win in one of their last two games.

The Bulldogs will play their season finale at the Bill Williams' Complex Tuesday at 4 p.m. against San Angelo.

TALL: Meet serves as final warmup before district

(From 1C)

coach Monte Stumbaugh said the Bobcats' travels through Midland will probably bring the same results that they've seen all season long.

"We've seen them at several meets this year," said Stumbaugh. "Every one of them they've won (the team title) going away. They are loaded. They've got someone good in every event."

Stumbaugh said that San Angelo will probably get the stiffest competition for the overall title from the Odessa High squad. Midland and Lee have some strong entries, who are ranked among the District 4-5A leaders and should vie for medals today, but lack of depth will keep the Rebels, Bulldogs and the Sandies from Amarillo High from challenging for the team title.

The Rebels should get a lot of points from the hurdle races, where in the 110-meter high hurdle race senior Roderick Mayfield, a state qualifier in the 300 hurdles last year as a junior, has the best time in the district of 13.95 seconds and junior John McAfee has the second-best at 14.11. In the 300 intermediates, Mayfield (38.16), McAfee (39.31) and junior Will Close (39.76) have the first, third and fourth-best times in 4-5A.

But Lee coach Mike Quimby would like to see where his relays teams stand with just one week from the district meet in San Angelo.

"We ran a pretty good sprint relay (400 meters) at the San Angelo Relays and I think they're looking pretty good but we're just still trying to experiment with the mile relay (1,600 meters)," said Quimby.

San Angelo has the top-ranked 400 relay with a time of 41.44 but one of its strongest legs, Singleton, could be limited. Lee has the second-best time of 42.28 while Midland High is third with 42.62.

San Angelo also has the top 1,600-relay time, just edging out Odessa High, while Midland is third at about four seconds behind the leaders.

"Our guys are competing real well," said Stumbaugh. "But we're just glad to be at home. We're tired of traveling. But I think we'll surprise a few people."

MHS' top performers include football star and Southern Methodist signee Roy Coats, who has the second-best time in the 100 with 10.66, just two-hundreths of a second faster than Lee's Melvin Dunson, another star running back. Charlie Juarez has the fifth-best time in the district in the 400 at 48.92 and the second-best in the 200 at 21.79.

In the girls division, the Lady Bulldogs are fresh off two meet-record setting relay performances at the ECISD Invitational last week in Odessa. But MHS coach Susan Nix's squad will meet a familiar foe in its battle for the team title. MHS has finished second behind Permian in two big meets including last week's meet. Odessa High will also figure into the mix for the team title.

MHS' strength lies in the legs of a strong core of young sprinters, including Tami Zachery, Talitha Belcher, Shelley Ray, Ogonna Merritt, Toya Zachery and Teresa Nobles.

Ray, Belcher and sisters Toya and Tami currently hold the top time in Region I in the 400 relay with a mark of 48.43. Fort Worth Trimble Tech has the next best time with a 48.45. That team will stay the same today.

But Nix will experiment with her 800 relay, which chopped two seconds off their season's best last weekend.

"I'm going to take Tami out of the open 200 for this week and put her on the 800 relay," said Nix. "We ran a 1:44 last week and I think if we put Tami in, we could get that down to 1:42 and Abilene's got the best time in the state with a 1:41."

Tami Zachery will replace Teresa Nobles on the second leg of the 800 while Nobles will replace Zachery in the open 200. Merritt, Ray and Belcher make up the rest of the relay.

The Lee girls will be led by a strong 1,600 relay and Kendra Albus in the 800. The Lady Rebels have the fourth-best district time in the mile relay with a mark of 4:16.92 while Albus ranks first in the 800 with a time of 2:27.50, more than two seconds ahead of the rest of the field.

Myers qualifies for region meet

RICHARDSON — Midland's Kristin Myers of the Big Spring Sidewinders gymnastics team placed fifth in the all-around competition here at last weekend's Level 9 State Championships. Myers qualifies for the region meet in Albuquerque, N.M., April 29. Myers got a 35.85 score. Sidewinder Hayley Whiteside got second in the floor exercises for an eighth-place 34.8 score and Linsee Dickerson of Greenwood scored a 34.2.

Midlander's horse 3rd at Manor

AMARILLO — A 3-year-old sorrel stallion owned by W.B. Yarborough of Midland earned a third-place finish in the Manor Downs Derby G2 here March 19 at Manor Downs. Cash Crunch was ridden by Steve Fuller and trained by Roy Marcom and finished the 350-yard race in 18 and 23 one-hundreths seconds to earn $8,781.

Mustangs win but lose Lee

Midland Christian got a thrilling victory 6-5 Friday over the Midland Lee sophomores but it did not come without cost.

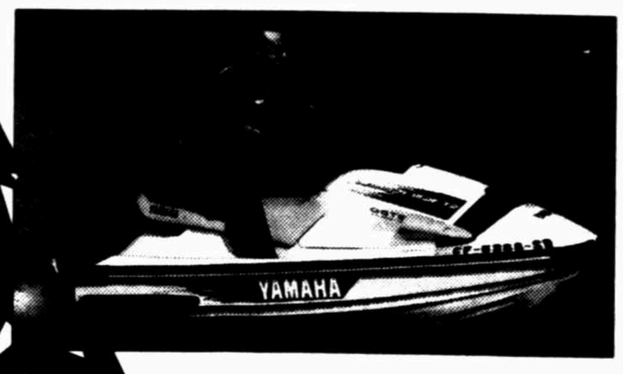

Allan Awtry and Cary Patteson both tripled in the seventh and final inning Friday to rally the Mustangs but MCHS' best pitcher and hitter, Colby Lee, was lost for the season after sliding into second base and breaking his leg in two places.

It couldn't have come at a worse time for the Mustangs, who play Gospel Lighthouse of Dallas today at 11 a.m. for the TAPPS District 1-A title. Lee, 4-0 on the mound, was scheduled to pitch today and try to lead the 13-5, 2-1 Mustangs to a championship. He also hits .350 for MCHS.

Awtry was 3-of-4 from the plate while Patteson was 2-of-4 to lead the Mustangs. The Rebels were led at the plate by John Purvis, who knocked in a two-run home run.

Chad Leascher (2-1) was the winning pitcher with four strikeouts.

MASTERS: Amateur Tiger Woods roars into third round

(From 1C)

Elkington.

Greg Norman came back with a 68 and was at 141 along with Loren Roberts, Raymond Floyd and Ian Woosnam.

Tiger Woods, the 19-year-old amateur, shot his second consecutive 72 and made the cut with an even-par 144.

"The greens are faster, but they are still holding," Woods said, "and the scores are showing it. They are taking it low."

Jack Nicklaus followed his thrilling 67 in the first round with a 78 and just made the cut figure of 145.

Tom Watson shot a 70 and was at 143, making the cut for the 21st consecutive year.

"I'm here to win, not to make cuts," the discouraged Watson said after struggling once again with his putter.

Haas had no struggle in shooting a round bettered in the Masters only by Nick Price's 63 in the third round in 1986. Price missed the cut this year at 149.

"Every time I looked up I felt like I was going to hit it close," Haas said. And that he did, rifling iron shots at the flag all day.

"Today I got in positions where I felt like I could fire at the flag," said Haas, whose uncle, Bob Goalby, won the Masters in 1968. "I certainly know the course. I've played countless practice rounds with Uncle Bob.

"I was signing my card and it was the first time it hit me that I made four birdies in a row," Haas said. "I was just thinking about what I was doing."

What he was doing was ripping apart the finely manicured grounds of Augusta National.

"It was just one of those days," said Haas, who has four top-10 finishes in 14 Masters. "I was in the zone."

Like Haas, Huston also made easy work of Augusta, shooting a nifty 66. But they did it in very different ways. While Haas was knocking his iron shots close, Huston was making putts from everywhere, rolling in a 20-footer on No. 5, an 18-footer on No. 6 and a 30-footer on No. 10.

"I was just following Jay Haas' footprints today," Huston said.

"I don't think I've ever come into this tournament with less confidence," Huston said. "This is a real boost."

Later, coughing after swallowing some water from a bottle, Huston said, "I think I'm going to choke." Then to laughs said: "I know you guys love that word."

Nicklaus falls back 10 strokes after trailing leaders by one in first round

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, seeking to win his seventh Masters, fell afoul of another second-round bear trap on Friday and fell from one behind the leader to 10 shots back after 36 holes.

The 55-year-old Nicklaus shanked and duffed his way to a 6-over-par 78 after an opening-round 67. He survived the 36-hole cut by a stroke.

"I hit a cold shank off the 12th tee," the exasperated Nicklaus said. "I hadn't done that since 1964 when I almost killed Bobby Jones and Cliff Roberts. Only today I hit a 7-iron. Back then it was an 8-iron."

The late Jones founded the tournament in 1934 and the late Roberts ran it. The 12th hole is a treacherous 155-yard, par-3 over the water. The hosel of Nicklaus' club hit the ball and sent it flying to the right just short of Rae's Creek. Nicklaus got the next shot on the green and two-putted for an inglorious bogey.

"It was hard to believe," Nicklaus said. "Then the ultimate insult came on No. 15 when I was just off the green in two and made a bogey-6."

The round started poorly when Nicklaus dumped a chip shot into the bunker on the second hole. Stunned, he made a bogey on a 555-yard hole he usually birdies.

Nicklaus staggered out in 39 then matched the number on the back side with shots seldom seen from the century's greatest golfer.

"I fluffed the chip shot on the second hole and I never felt comfortable all day," Nicklaus said. "I hit some terrible iron shots. I drove the ball well and the rest of my game disappeared."

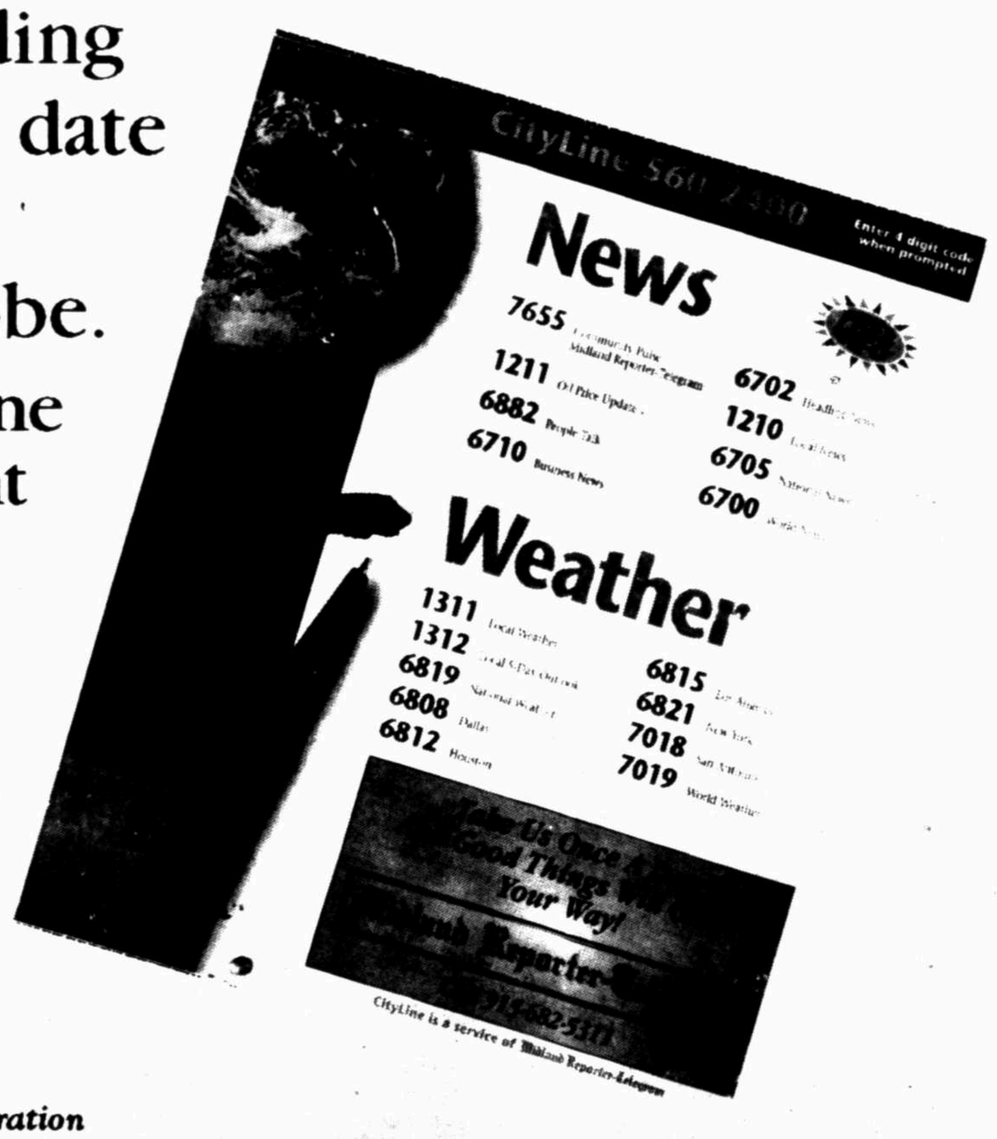

It tied for the worst round Nicklaus has ever shot at Augusta. He has had 21 top-10 finishes in 37 years in the Masters.

Nicklaus started the day one shot behind leaders Jose Maria Olazabal, David Frost and Phil Mickelson.

Kidd's triple-double leads Dallas

The Associated Press

■ NBA Roundup

DALLAS — Jamal Mashburn scored 31 points and Jason Kidd added 11 points, 13 assists and 10 rebounds as the Dallas Mavericks beat the Minnesota Timberwolves 111-94 on Friday night.

Mashburn scored 23 points while the Mavericks were building a 16-point halftime lead. Dallas, which has won eight of 10, pulled to within 1 1/2 games of Denver and Sacramento in the race for the eighth and final Western Conference playoff position.

Dallas stretched its home winning streak to five games, longest since a 10-game streak in 1990. The Mavs have won nine of 11 from the Timberwolves.

Lucious Harris added 15 points and Lorenzo Williams contributed 13 points and 16 rebounds for Dallas.

Christian Laettner had 22 points and Doug West scored 17 to pace the Timberwolves, who have dropped seven of eight.

Trail Blazers 127, Rockets 109

PORTLAND, Ore. — Clyde Drexler had a frustrating return to Portland as the Trail Blazers beat Houston to run their season record against the Rockets to 3-0.

Drexler, who received an enthusiastic standing ovation from the crowd at Memorial Coliseum, had 24 points, 10 rebounds and six assists in his first Portland appearance since he was traded to the Rockets on Feb. 14.

But things didn't come easy for for the Blazers' all-time scoring leader, who was 8-for-21 from the field and had seven turnovers before fouling out with 6:07 to play. Drexler had 40 against Golden State in his previous game.

Celtics 91, 76ers 81

BOSTON — Dominique Wilkins hit two 3-pointers within 29 seconds during a 14-0 third-quarter run to help the Boston Celtics beat the Philadelphia 76ers for their fourth straight victory.

Wilkins triggered the decisive run with a dunk off a pass from Dee Brown and had 10 points as the Celtics streaked from seven points behind to take a 68-61 lead into the fourth period.

Hornets 98, Bullets 93

LANDOVER, Md. — The Charlotte Hornets set a franchise record with their 45th victory, beating the Washington Bullets behind Alonzo Mourning's 25 points.

Chris Webber led Washington, which lost its 10th in a row, with 23 points, 11 rebounds and 10 assists, posting his second triple-double in 14 days. He also blocked five shots.

Larry Johnson added 22 points and 11 rebounds and Hersey Hawkins 17 points for Charlotte, which won its third straight.

Calbert Cheaney scored 23 points and Doug Overton 15 for Washington.

Pistons 104, Magic 94

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Rookie Grant Hill's 21 points, 11 rebounds and 10 assists led Detroit to a victory over Orlando.

Hill's first triple-double overshadowed a 31-point, 18-rebound performance by Orlando's Shaquille O'Neal.

O'Neal and Horace Grant had five points each in a 10-2 Magic run that cut Detroit's lead to 62-60 with 5:45 left in the third period.

Bucks 107, Nets 92

MILWAUKEE — Glenn Robinson scored 25 points and Eric Mobley had a career-high 14 with 10 rebounds as the Milwaukee Bucks sent the New Jersey Nets to their sixth straight loss.

The Bucks, who had lost four of their last five games, are now 29-45 and chasing Boston for the final Eastern Conference playoff spot.

The Nets, who have dropped 10 of their last 11 to all but put themselves out of playoff contention, were led by Armon Gilliam with 26 points.

Bulls 97, Cavaliers 88

CHICAGO — Michael Jordan, who so often carried the Bulls past Cleveland, was carried by his teammates as Chicago beat the Cavaliers.

The Bulls shot 51 percent despite Jordan's 9-of-27 performance. Jordan still scored 28 points, his United Center high, and added nine assists and eight rebounds as the Bulls improved to 7-2 since he came out of retirement March 19.

Scottie Pippen scored 25 points for Chicago, which posted its sixth consecutive victory and took a two-game lead over Cleveland in the race for the fifth Eastern Conference playoff spot.

Hawks 102, Pacers 90

ATLANTA — Steve Smith scored 26 points, including a 21-point outburst in less than five minutes during the third quarter, as Atlanta beat the Indiana for the first time this season.

Smith scored all of Atlanta's points while hitting five 3-point shots in the 4:48 span. He hit three of his 3-pointers as the Hawks boosted their lead to 69-46.

Late goal puts Mayde Creek in final

The Associated Press

■ UIL Soccer

PFLUGERVILLE — Mack Treece headed in the winning goal in the final minutes to give Katy Mayde Creek a 4-3 win over Arlington Martin in a Friday semifinal of the University Interscholastic League state soccer tournament.

Treece's opportunity came after Martin (23-4) goalie Nick Andersen moved away from the goal on a throw from the sidelines. Brad Bauerschlag threw the ball within 5-yards of the front of the goal.

Andersen missed the ball, but Treece didn't, giving the Mayde Creek (20-5) its winning goal with 2:21 left in the game.

Mayde Creek will meet the winner of the semifinal nightcap between Plano and San Antonio MacArthur for the state title at 2:30 p.m. Saturday.

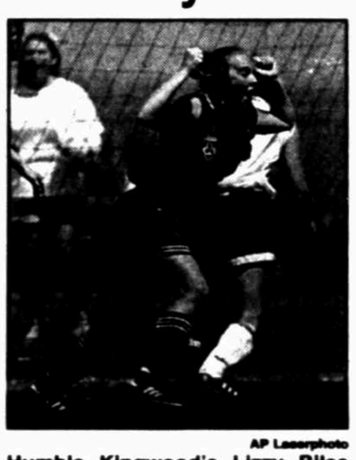

Mayde Creek shut down Martin in the second half blowing the Warriors' 3-0 halftime lead.

The Rams tied the game, 3-3, when Eric Kelly's headed in Matt Dowiak's free kick for his second goal of the day.

Plano 2,
San Antonio MacArthur 0

PFLUGERVILLE, Texas (AP) — Plano's Yi Cheng and Jed Hildebrand scored to give Plano a 2-0 win over San Antonio MacArthur on Friday and a berth in the University Interscholastic League state soccer finals.

Plano faces Katy Mayde Creek, a 4-3 winner over Arlington Martin, in the 2:30 p.m. finals on Saturday.

Humble Kingwood's Lizzy Biles celebrates scoring the winning goal against Plano.

Plano missed its chance for both its boys and girls soccer team to sweep the state titles. The Plano Wildcats girls' team lost 2-1 to undefeated Kingwood.

The Wildcats got on the scoreboard with 29:25 left in the first half when senior Hildebrand scored on Charlie Pratt's assist.

Cheng added the Wildcats' final goal with 29:22 left when MacArthur goalie Robert Reid slipped, allowing Cheng's kick into the net.

The shutout was Plano's fifth in seven games and fourth consecutive. In the last four games, the Wildcats have won 2-0 three times and 1-0 twice.

GIRLS SEMIFINALS

Humble Kingwood 2, Plano 1

Lizzy Biles scored with 42.8 seconds left in the game as Humble Kingwood defeated Plano 2-1 in the semifinals of the University Interscholastic League state soccer tournament.

The Kingwood girls remained a perfect 28-0-0 and will play in Saturday's championship game against the winner of the San Antonio Madison-Arlington Martin semifinal.

Biles' goal came on a header after a perfect inbounds pass on a corner kick by Erin Mahoney. It was the Mustangs' sixth corner kick of the game. Biles' score answered a game-tying goal by Plano two minutes and 15 seconds earlier.

Arlington Martin 2,
San Antonio Madison 0

Leslie Hutton and Gina Castellano each scored a goal as Arlington Martin blanked San Antonio Madison 2-0 Friday in the semifinals of the University Interscholastic League state soccer tournament.

Arlington Martin (22-3-1) will play in Saturday's championship game against undefeated Humble Kingwood (28-0).

Hutton put the Warriors up 1-0 with 20:18 left in the first half, and Castellano notched her team's only other score on a direct kick with 23:45 left in the game.

Madison (20-3-1) had two prime scoring opportunities, but Martin goalkeeper Leslie Herd preserved the Warriors' 15th shutout of the year.

Day of shattered records at Texas Relays

AUSTIN (AP) — James Beckford, Andy Kokhanovsky and the Baylor track team all won events for the second straight year, highlighting the second day of the 68th Texas Relays.

It was a day of shattered records.

The meet also saw former Midland Lee thinclad Traci Logan finish seventh in the 400-meter hurdles with a time of one minute, three and four one-hundreths seconds.

Beckford, of Blinn College, set a meet record in winning his second straight triple jump. His leap of 55 feet 9 inches broke the record of 54-7 1/2 set by Paul Emordi of Texas Southern in 1985.

Kokhanovsky, also of Blinn College, won his second straight discus throw with a toss of 201 feet 3 inches.

Baylor won its second straight 800-meter relay in 1 minute 21.59 seconds.

Other highlights included Derek Spears of Texas, who won the 400-meter intermediate hurdles in a time of 49.96 seconds, his first time under 50.

Gwen Wentland of Kansas State set a meet record of 6 feet 4 inches in the women's high jump, breaking the record of 6-3 1/2 set by Melinda Clark of Texas A&M in 1989.

Cynthia Rhodes of Texas A&M International set a meet record of 44 feet 4 3/4 inches inch in the women's triple jump, breaking the record of 43-11 1/4 set by Suzette Lee of Barton County Community College last year.

Rhodes also won in 1991 while at the University of Texas at Austin. Dickinson High School set a meet record in the 1,600-meter sprint medley relay with a time of 3 minutes 27.40 seconds, breaking the record of 3:28.85 set by Dallas South Oak Cliff last year.

Saturday features eight-time Olympic gold medalist Carl Lewis' appearance in two events — the 400-meter relay and the 100 meter dash. Joining Lewis on the Santa Monica Track Club's relay team is Leroy Burrell, world record holder in the 100 meters; Michael Marsh, 1992 Olympic gold medalist in the 200 meters; and Sam Jefferson.

Martinez survives tough first set to advance

The Associated Press

■ Tennis Roundup

AMELIA ISLAND, Fla. (AP) — Top-seeded Conchita Martinez of Spain survived a tough first set to beat No. 5 Amanda Coetzer of South Africa 7-5, 6-0 Friday in a quarterfinal match in the Bausch & Lomb championships.

No. 2 Gabriela Sabatini beat fellow Argentine Ines Gorrochategui 6-0, 6-3 and No. 3 Magdalena Maleeva of Bulgaria turned back Italy's Laurence Courtois 6-2, 6-2.

Martinez, last week's winner at Hilton Head Island, S.C., struggled in the first set, losing her serve in three consecutive games. But she broke Coetzer's serve in four of six games.

"That first set was one of the best sets I've ever played," Martinez said. "Amanda is very quick and gets to a lot of balls. She played very well that first set, but then got discouraged after she lost the set and didn't play as well the second set."

Also Friday, No. 8 Sabine Hack of Germany triumphed 6-1, 7-6 over Poland's Katarzyna Nowak.

All the quarterfinal winners have won tournaments this year. The only multiple winner on the WTA Tour this year is Steffi Graf, who won at Paris, Delray Beach and Key Biscayne.

Sabatini meets Hack in a semifinal match Saturday. The Argentine beat the German 6-1, 6-0 in their only meeting in 1992.

Estoril Open

LISBON, Portugal — Alberto Costa of Spain defeated second-seeded Andrei Medvedev of the Ukraine 6-3, 6-2 to advance to the semifinals of the Estoril Open.

With Medvedev out, third-seeded Thomas Muster of Austria was the only seeded player left.

But, Muster also had his problems before beating Javier Sanchez 4-6, 7-6 (7-3), 6-4.

Sanchez, after winning the first set, led the second 3-0 before Muster began his comeback.

Corel Championships

BOCA RATON, Fla. — Jimmy Connors and Bjorn Borg won their quarterfinal matches in the Corel Champions over-35 tournament and advanced to Saturday's semifinals.

Top-seeded Connors beat Mansour Bahrami 6-1, 6-4, while No. 2 Borg dispatched Guillermo Vilas 6-2, 6-1.

Johan Kriek beat Andres Gomez 3-6, 6-4, 6-3 to earn a semifinal berth against Borg, while Connors will meet the winner of a late Friday match.

■ Larry Holmes, 45, says he will quit if he loses title bid to McCall; Julio Cesar Chavez hopes to increase his fight total from 96 to 100 before the Mexican champion retires.

By Ed Schuyler Jr.
AP Boxing Writer

LAS VEGAS — It could be four and out for 45-year-old Larry Holmes.

It will be four to go for 32-year-old Julio Cesar Chavez.

They will fight on a card of five world championships tonight at Caesars Palace. One of the spectators is expected to be Mike Tyson, the former undisputed heavyweight champion.

Holmes will challenge Oliver McCall for the WBC heavyweight title. It will be Holmes' fourth title bid since he lost the IBF championship to Michael Spinks on Sept. 21, 1985.

"If I lose this fight, I'll quit right away," said Holmes, who could become the second-oldest heavyweight champion.

George Foreman, who turned 46 Jan. 10, became the oldest when he knocked out Michael Moorer in the 10th round last Nov. 5 — two days after Holmes' 45th birthday.

Chavez will be fighting for the 96th time and in his 32nd world championship match when he defends the WBC super lightweight title against Giovanni Parisi of Italy.

"One hundred fights and I will stop," said the champion from Mexico.

His record is 93-1-1 with 80 knockouts, and he also has held pieces of the junior lightweight and lightweight titles.

In the other three matches, Tony Tucker and Bruce Seldon will fight for the vacant WBA heavyweight title; Felix Trinidad will defend the IBF welterweight title against Roger Turner, and Luis Santana will defend the WBC super welterweight title against Terry Norris.

All the fights except Santana-Norris will be on pay-per-view beginning about 9:20 p.m. EDT.

The 29-year-old McCall and the winner of the Tucker-Seldon match would be in line for a lucrative fight against Tyson. All three are promoted by Don King, as is Tyson.

McCall, a former Tyson sparring partner, went shopping with the former champion last week at Caesars, and said Tyson told him, "Be sure you beat Larry, and we can make a lot of money."

McCall played a role in Tyson's shocking 10th-round knockout loss to James "Buster" Douglas on Feb. 11, 1990. Douglas got the fight after he outpointed McCall on July 21, 1989.

The Holmes fight will be McCall's first defense of the title he won on an upset second-round knockout of Lennox Lewis last Sept. 24 at Wembley, England.

Holmes and Tucker were fight victims of Tyson.

Holmes came out of a 21-month retirement to challenge Tyson for the undisputed title and was stopped in the fourth round Jan. 22, 1988. He said he is not interested in fighting Tyson should he beat McCall, unless it is in Tyson's first comeback fight after a four-year layoff.

Tyson, released from prison March 25, is expected to have a couple of tuneup bouts before challenging for a title.

In Holmes' first title bid, he outpointed Ken Norton and won the WBC championship June 9, 1978.

Holmes remained a champion until he lost to Spinks in 1985. Holmes also lost a disputed split decision to Spinks in their rematch April 19, 1986.

In his most recent bout, for the undisputed title, Holmes was outpointed by Evander Holyfield on June 19, 1992.

The 35-year-old Tucker won the IBF title by stopping Douglas in the 10th round May 30, 1987. In a bid for the undisputed championship, he was outpoined by Tyson on Aug. 1, 1987.

Tucker challenged Lewis for the WBC title May 8, 1993, and lost a decision.

This will be the first world title fight for the 28-year-old Seldon, who thought about quitting after consecutive losses in 1991. He was stopped by McCall in the ninth round April 18, and was knocked out by Riddick Bowe, now the WBO champion, Aug. 9.

The WBA title became vacant when the organization withdrew championship recognition from Foreman for failing to agree to a mandatory defense against the top-ranked Tucker. Foreman will defend the IBF title against Axel Schulz of Germany on April 22 at the MGM Grand in Las Vegas.

The Trinidad-Turner fight will open the pay-per-view show and will be followed by Chavez-Parisi, Tucker-Seldon and McCall-Holmes, which could start as late as 12:15 a.m. EDT Sunday.

Williamson changes mind, will go to NBA

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — A bruised and tired Corliss Williamson, who led Arkansas to the last two NCAA title games and the 1994 national championship, is headed for the NBA.

With his parents' blessing, Williamson said Friday he would pursue his academic degree later and play professional basketball next season.

The 6-foot-7 junior forward, who averaged 19.7 points as the Razorbacks went 32-7 last season, had said after Monday's championship game loss to UCLA that he planned to stay in school. He changed his mind Thursday.

"My emotions took over and made me say that," Williamson explained. "I didn't end my college career the way I wanted to. I wanted to go out on top with a victory. Unfortunately it didn't work out that way."

Coach Nolan Richardson said junior forward Scotty Thurman also was considering leaving, but hadn't reached a decision.

"I've visited with Scotty. There is nothing concrete," Richardson said.

Williamson's father said the consistent pounding his son took inside played a role in the decision.

"He got beat up so bad this year down low and never got the call," Jerry Williamson said. "I remember Shaquille O'Neal, who played at LSU. Everyone said because he's big those fouls don't hurt.

"We got to see the battle scars and the bruises around (Corliss') head and neck. He's hurting. If you are going to get hit like that, get paid to get hit."

Often double- or triple-teamed, Williamson made 55 percent of his shots and 67 percent of his free throws.

Arkansas won 65 of 77 consecutive games Williamson started. The Razorbacks' fortunes often hinged on how well Williamson performed. Five of his worst games came in Arkansas' seven losses this season.

On Monday, he made just three of 16 shots — his worst performance of the season — and finished with 12 points. Arkansas lost 89-78.

As a sophomore, Williamson averaged 20.4 points, and the Razorbacks won the national championship with a 76-72 victory over Duke.

"Winning the national championship was the greatest thing to ever happen to me," Williamson said. "I'll look back at this year, even though we didn't win, it says a lot for this team. It might the most favorite memory, even tough it doesn't look like it right now."

In his three seasons with the Razorbacks, Williamson scored in double figures in 83 of 91 games. He was a second-team All-America selection after both his sophomore and junior years.

"Everyone was looking for me to have mixed emotions about it, but this is something that Corliss has worked for since he was 11 years old," said his mother, Bettye. "He always told me he was going to play professional basketball. I laughed and said, 'Sure.'

"Today it's become a reality. I'm happy for him because this is his dream that has come true."

Williamson is a communications major from Russellville. Richardson said he, too, backed the decision.

"We go to school to get better educated. We are supposed to get better jobs," Richardson said. "I can't think of any better job than where he's going right now."

Andretti wins Long Beach starting position

The Associated Press

■ Auto Racing

LONG BEACH, Calif. — Michael Andretti was overpowering Friday in provisional qualifying for Sunday's Toyota Grand Prix of Long Beach.

Trying for his third pole in four races this season and the 30th of his Indy-car career, the 32-year-old Andretti set a track record of 52.705 seconds and 108.604 mph on the way to taking the tenative top starting position.

That broke the mark of 52.780, 108.450 set a year ago on the 1.59-mile, eight-turn downtown street circuit by Paul Tracy, now Andretti's teammate and third fastest on Friday.

Andretti broke the Canadian driver's mark early and often during the 30-minute opening session of qualifying.

The 1984 Long Beach winner actually turned seven laps under 53 seconds, a feat that only runner-up Bobby Rahal could match, hitting 52.876, 108.253 with less than one minute remaining.

Tracy was next at 53.011, 107.978, followed by Mauricio Gugelmin of Brazil at 107.728, Emerson Fittipaldi 107.444, Teo Fabi 107.371, Scott Pruett 107.205 and Robby Gordon, winner of last Sunday's race at Phoenix, 107.124.

Gil de Ferran, driving for the Midland-based Hall Racing Team, qualified 10th.

Al Unser Jr., the defending race champion and five-time Long Beach winner, had a terrible day.

First, the 1994 PPG Cup champion, who won eight of 16 races a year ago, had to compete in the second of Friday's two 30-minute qualifying sessions, with the slower qualifiers from last week after starting 17th at Phoenix.

Then, a frustrating mechanical problem limited Unser to just six laps in Friday's time trials aand he wound up 27th of the 28 drivers at 100.248.

First Union 400

NORTH WILKESBORO, N.C. — There's no catching Jeff Gordon, not even in qualifying.

Running his Chevrolet late in the first round of qualifying Friday for Sunday's First Union 400, Gordon claimed his fourth pole in seven races this season. His fast lap at North Wilkesboro Speedway was 118.765 mph, putting the young NASCAR star in prime position to win his fourth race this season.

Gordon hadn't started worse than fourth this year in six races. He's either been impressive or lackluster. When he hasn't won, he was 22nd at Daytona, 36th at Richmond and 32nd at Darlington. He won from the pole at Rockingham in February, and started from the pole at Richmond and Darlington. Gordon won last Sunday at Bristol, Tenn., from the second starting position.

For a change, Chevrolets didn't dominate the qualifying. After Gordon, Dale Earnhardt was the next Chevrolet, in fifth place, with a speed of 118.098 mph.

Brett Bodine was second in a Ford at 118.677 mph. Behind him were Derrike Cope's Ford at 118.353 mph and Bobby Hamilton in a Pontiac at 118.346 mph.

Track officials put up extra $200,000 to make Santa Anita Derby most lucrative Kentucky Derby prep race

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — It would be a natural rivalry — unbeaten Afternoon Deelites and 2-year-old champion Timber Country — except for one thing.

"They've only raced each other once," Timber Country's trainer, D. Wayne Lukas, pointed out.

Make that twice, and the moguls of Santa Anita Park hope they make it good today. Track officials put up an extra $200,000 to make the Santa Anita Derby not only the most talent-laden but also the most lucrative Kentucky Derby prep this year with a purse of $700,000.

Afternoon Deelites and Timber Country, who finished 1-2 a length apart in the San Felipe here March 19, are in a field of eight. They will face Louisiana Derby winner Petionville, Golden State Derby winner Jumron, and Larry the Legend, unbeaten this year and a winner over Timber Country in the San Rafael on March 4.

A day earlier, Afternoon Deelites' trainer, Richard Mandella, hinted that if his horse wasn't the favorite, he might have chosen an easier path to the Kentucky Derby on May 6 at Churchill Downs.

On Friday, Lukas espoused no such considerations for his Breeders' Cup Juvenile winner.

"We always planned to stay here. I never look around to see who's here and who's there," Lukas said. "We make our plans and let the others adjust to us. We like to go on the offensive."

The San Felipe was run at 1 1-16 miles, while the Santa Anita Derby is 1 1/8 miles. The Kentucky Derby will be at 1 1/4 miles. Lukas believes the extra sixteenth of a mile here might give his colt the edge, and other trainers agree.

"I thought Afternoon Deelites was unbeatable until his last race," said Hall of Fame trainer Ron McAnally, who does not have a horse in the Santa Anita Derby. "But Timber Country wins the San Felipe if it's another sixteenth of a mile long."

Lukas calls the Santa Anita Derby "the first race this year where we're in the scenario that makes sense for Timber Country. He's in his proper setting."

ROGERS: 'Pudge' offered arbitration

(From 1C)

Burkett, who was 6-8 with a 3.62 ERA for the Giants in 1994, is the National League's fourth-winningest pitcher of the 1990s.

Rodriguez batted .298 with 16 homers en route to his third straight Golf Glove Award last year, while Palmer hit .246 with 19 home runs.

Rogers led the staff in victories in the strike-abbreviated 1994 season, posting an 11-8 record while pacing the club in complete games (six) and shutouts (two). Among those was a perfect game on July 28 against the California Angels, just the 11th regular season perfect game since 1900 and the first ever by an American League left-hander.

Cadillac's Seville sedan geared for luxury or sporty flavor

BY BOB PLUNKETT
SPECIAL TO THE MIDLAND REPORTER-TELEGRAM

Poor Dennis Conner. The 4-time winner of America's Cup, sailing's ultimate victory and the oldest contested trophy in sports, had to work all afternoon in waters off San Diego last November in order to win a Seville Touring Sedan, Cadillac's 4-door dream machine.

Piloting Stars & Stripes '95 on its maiden voyage in a race for the Cadillac Cup that pits this new sailing yacht against its predecessor, Conner and crew — buoyed by several car writers aboard for ballast — beat Stars & Stripes '92, the boat Conner used to defend the America's Cup trophy against Australia's challenge in 1992.

Although lead changed several times during the Cadillac Cup race, Conner drew upon his legendary sailing skills and intimate knowledge of home waters to shag a timely gust of wind, which propelled the new boat across the finish line a few meters ahead of its competitor.

As a result, Conner will be driving his own new Cadillac to the Team Dennis Conner compound at San Diego when this famed sailor defends America's Cup in the 1995 series of races set to unfold this spring.

Why the tie between America's Cup, Conner and Cadillac?

As a primary sponsor of Team Dennis Conner, Cadillac lends financial and technical support to Stars & Stripes.

For instance, the Cray supercomputer and wind tunnel at General Motors Technical Center in Warren, Mich., were used to analyze and refine the yacht's carbon fiber hull and keel designs for optimum strength and aerodynamic fluidity. Similar tests led to development of Seville and its Eldorado coupe counterpart, as well as concept cars like Cadillac's Ultralite body, built from carbon fiber compounds which surpass aluminum for strength but pare weight by half.

Prior to the Cadillac Cup race, I picked up a Seville STS at the Team Dennis Conner compound and steered it across Coronado Bridge over San Diego's harbor for refresher tests which also took me up and down several California freeways.

Previous trials — including a 60-mile introductory spin along the shore of Lake Superior in Michigan's Upper Peninsula last summer plus a week's driving experience from my home base last fall — were recalled for that rush of adrenalin which came each time I slipped behind Seville's fat steering wheel and pumped up all that sporty horsepower.

Cadillac produces a sporty sedan?

It's true, and like new Stars & Stripes this new Cadillac is a design of world stature.

Seville's 4-door sedan and Eldorado's 2-door coupe, sharing the same chassis and high tech hardware, debuted in new format as 1992 models but for 1995 have gained significant new components to make them steer, ride, stop and run in neck-and-neck fashion with the best breeds of international class.

Like Eldorado, Seville offers two model choices.

Seville Luxury Sedan provides every comfort and convenience item you may imagine, then sets suspension and steering mechanisms, plus transmission gear ratios, to produce plush, smooth ride and drive qualities.

Seville Touring Sedan tunes these SLS components to create a more lively platform geared for the enthusiast driver, one who enjoys trappings of luxury but also seeks those adrenalin thrills derived from hard cornering maneuvers and fast-lane throttle action.

The 1995 models carry Cadillac's Northstar System, which goes beyond Seville's powerful V8 engine and smooth transaxle to encompass electronically-controlled suspension, steering, braking and traction controls.

That Northstar aluminum block engine, measuring 4.6 liters and outfitted with four camshafts, four valves in each aluminum cylinder and tuned port fuel injection, has been enhanced for 1995 models by 5 horsepower.

For Seville SLS, that means 275 hp on-board, plus 300 lbs/ft of torque to make this the most muscle ever mustere by a production sedan pushing power to its front wheels.

For Seville STS, specific tuning increases the engine's horsepower to 300 — the same as Corvette. Step on it and you'll feel massive thrust, despite the bulk of nearly two tons of machinery stretched over 17 feet of pavement.

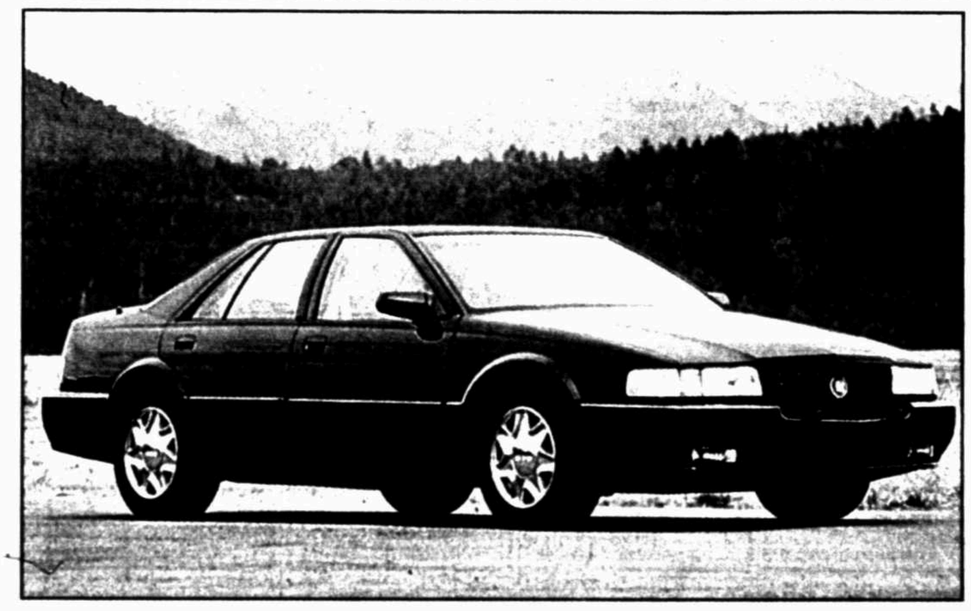

Fun comes from zipping to 60 mph in a mere 7.3 seconds.

Sophisticated electronics manage everything from that smooth-shifting 4-speed automatic transaxle to the anti-lock mode of disc brakes and a traction-curbing device, even Seville's road-sensing suspension hardware and components of rack and pinion steering.

All sorts of passive safety measures also show up on Seville now, such as steel reinforcements for the passenger compartment, two big airbags for front seat riders and easy to-buckle 3-point safety belts.

Cadillac fills the interiors of both versions with luxury gear.

Dodge and Skip Barber form long, term, racing and training partnership

Dodge Division and the Skip Barber Group announced the formation of a long-term partnership that will make Dodge the official car and engine supplier for all Skip Barber teaching and racing operations. Included in the agreement are the Dodge/Skip Barber Driving School, the Skip Barber Racing School, the Skip Barber Formula Dodge Race Series and the SCCA- and FIA- sanctioned Barber Dodge Pro Series. Dodge will also be the official car and truck of the Lime Rock Park race track in Northwest Connecticut. The agreement runs through 2001.

Dodge will supply all vehicles for all Skip Barber operations, which include racing and driving schools at more than 20 locations across the country, as well as provide engines for the Racing School, the Formula Dodge Race Series and the Barber Dodge Pro Series.

"This is a truly momentous agreement for Dodge," said Marty Levine, Dodge General Manager. "This agreement signifies how far Dodge has come as a brand. We believe we're the best choice to provide not only the breadth of vehicles and engines, but the performance image that is essential to be associated with an organization like Skip Barber.n

This year is the 20th anniversary for the Skip Barber Racing School, the world's largest. The Skip Barber Group teaches racing, advanced high performance, defensive and safe street driving techniques to nearly 5,000 drivers per year. Notable graduates include racing stars Michael, John and Jeff Andretti, Jeff Gordon and rising star Bryan Herta, as well as celebrities Tom Cruise, Paul Newman, Al Pacino, Victoria Principal and Jerry Seinfeld.

Dodge is a natural fit for our school activities and racing operations," said Skip Barber, president and CEO of the Skip Barber Group. "The range of products Dodge offers, from the front-wheel drive Stratus to the rear-wheel drive Viper to the all-wheel drive Stealth, allows instructors in the Dodge/Skip Barber Driving School to demonstrate all the different driving scenarios necessary to completely educate a student.

"For our Racing School and Formula Dodge Race Series, these sophisticated Dodge motors will not only give us more horsepower, but tremendous reliability, as well.n

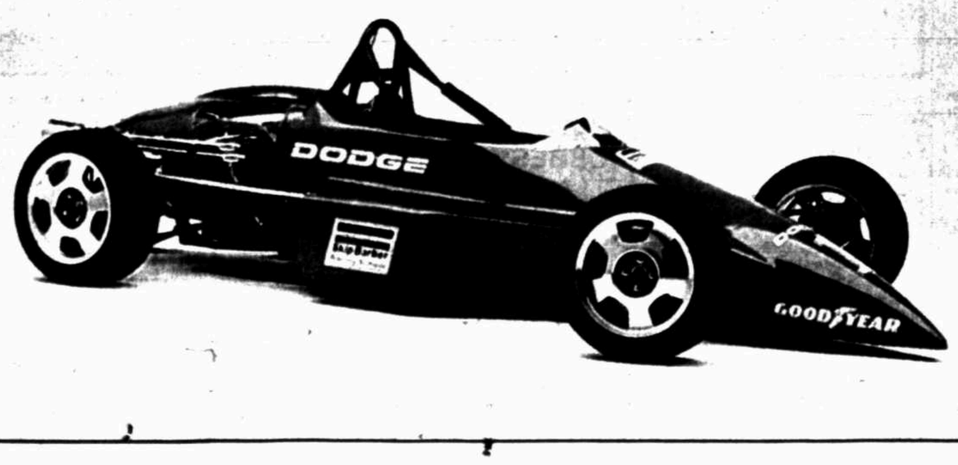

The Dodge/Skip Barber Driving School will utilize production Dodge passenger cars, while the Skip Barber Racing School will put students through their paces in Formula Dodge open-wheel race cars. All Racing School and Race Series cars will be powered by stock, virtually unmodified 2.0-liter Dodge engines.

The Skip Barber Formula Dodge Race Series is comprised of four regional championships, serving recreational racers as well as the career-minded, aspiring professional.

The Barber Dodge Pro Series (formerly the Barber Saab Pro Series) is considered the first major step to Indy Car competition. Drivers from around the world compete yearly in a 1 2-race championship that awards more than $600,000 in prize money. The 165 mph Barber Dodge race cars are powered by 3.5 liter Dodge V-6 engines.

The Skip Barber Group is based in Lakeville, Conn., near the Lime Rock Park race track, with other base locations in Sonoma, Calif. (Sears Point Raceway), Sebring, Fla. (Sebring International Raceway), and Elkhart Lake, Wis. (Road America).

1975 CHEVROLET CAPRICE CLASSIC

Just recently I had the opportunity to ride around town in a nicely restored 1975 Chevrolet Caprice Classic convertible—the kind illustrated here. The owner had purchased it some years ago, driven it as a "transportation car," and then let it sit idle in a shed out of town— until he eventually decided to restore the car. It's looking and running great now, and good convertibles from the 1960's and 1970's are currently in demand!

This '75 was Chevrolet's last big convertible. As car buffs will remember, no stock convertibles were made by American manufacturers between 1977 and 1981. Coupes with T-bar roofs had to suffice during that "no convertible" interval. In 1982, convertibles returned by popular demand, but the new ones were considerably smaller and plainer than the dreamboats of the '60s and '70's.

In 1975, Chevrolet's full-size (large) series included the modestly priced Bel-Air, mid-range Impala, and the luxury Caprice Classic. The latter reminded many of a Cadillac!

"Chevrolet makes sense for America" was the 1975 slogan, as the 1973-1974 gas shortages and long lines at the pump had created a big demand for increased fuel economy. Chevrolet's new 1975 "Efficiency System" included high energy ignition, the new catalytic converter (to reduce harmful exhaust emissions), Carburetor Air Induction, Early Fuel Evaporation System, the use of unleaded fuel in all engines, and radial tires (designed for "less rolling resistances")

The high energy ignition system featured a new smaller ignition coil housed in the distributor. Ignition "breaker point and condenser were eliminated, and the redesigned system made possible a spark that was up to 65 percent hotter than before!

There was also an optional economy gauge that was called an "Econominder," similar to the vacuum gauges once popular in the 1950s as an after-market accessory. Its needle swung through a semicircle of various color strips as the gas pedal was pressed, held steady or released. Keeping the needle in the green zone resulted in the best gas mileage.

All 1975 Caprice Classics had automatic transmission, power steering, power front disc brakes and heavy insulation for a quiet ride. Power windows and power door locks were optional.

In excellent condition, this convertible is now worth twice what it cost brand new!

Are you wondering what your old car is worth today? Local bookstores and public libraries now have books that list the values of most older American and import cars.
