Talbot innocent in drug trial

GUY TALBOT

By RICK BROWN
Staff Writer

ABILENE — Harold Gaida "Guy" Talbot was found innocent of federal charges of distribution of cocaine and conspiracy to distribute cocaine in federal court here today.

The eight-woman, four-man jury that took only three hours to acquit the Big Spring businessman. The verdict came at noon after jurors deliberated testimony spanning 20 hours and four days.

Talbot, 37, a former adult probation officer and investigator for the 118th District Attorney's office, contended that the witnesses against him were not credible.

Talbot allowed himself a small smile as the verdict was announced. But after the jury was dismissed he became more emotional, especially as he hugged his wife, Paula.

All the witnesses who complained against Talbot, forming the basis of a five-count indictment, were either granted immunity from prosecution or given plea bargains in exchange for their testimony.

Conviction on the five-count indictment could have meant a maximum prison term of 75 years and $125,000 in fines.

In closing arguments Thursday, defense attorney Ed Paynter of Abilene quoted presiding Judge Hal Woodward's charge to the jury that, to convict, the federal government's proof must be "of such a convincing character that you, each of you, would be willing to rely and act upon it without hesitation in the most important of your affairs."

Paynter told jurors that Assistant U.S. Attorney Richard Stephens had offered no corroborating evidence to the government testimony of Pat Gray, Dan Patterson, Donnie Reagan, Larry Clawson and Keith Bristow, who were all named as complaining witnesses in the Talbot indictment.

"Has the government filled the basket full and convinced you beyond reasonable doubt?" Paynter asked the jury Wednesday.

"Everything we have tried to tell you, we have tried to corroborate with things you can touch and feel," Paynter told the jury. He was referring to the more than 75 items of evidence entered to show that Talbot was otherwise occupied at the times he was supposed to have been engaged in illegal activity.

"You've had displayed before you over the last four days the two lives of this man (Talbot)," Stephens said during his closing arguments.

The government attorney demonstrated the few seconds it takes to pick up a small package such as cocaine and pay for it.

"It doesn't happen when Mrs. Stanley is around, when Dr. Stanley is around, when the banker's around, or when Mrs. Talbot is around," he said, referring to Talbot's "alibi" witnesses.

Testifying yesterday in his own behalf, Talbot, 37, president of Talco Inc., an electronics security firm at 701 FM 700 in Big Spring, admitted to using cocaine but said

School district faces state fund loss

TABS tests show progress

BY JIM BROWN
Staff Writer

Results from the Texas Assessment of Basic Skills (TABS) test show Big Spring students have improved on the scores of their counterparts last year.

The TABS test, established by the Legislature, has been administered to third, fifth and ninth graders in the state since 1979. The fifth edition of the test was given this spring in the Big Spring Independent School District.

The test measures basic skills in the area of mathematics, reading and writing.

The test results were presented to the school board Thursday afternoon by Helen Gladden, elementary curriculum coordinator.

Overall, the students taking the 1984 version of the test had higher mastery scores than last year's test takers.

The state mastery lever is 85 percent on each subject. This year all of the composite scores in the tested areas were above that level, except for fifth grade reading and ninth grade mathematics.

However, Mrs. Gladden warned the board that next year's scores would be substantially lower: "The Texas Education Agency has notified us to expect lower scores next year as they are changing the test and raising the competency level.

"They are considering eliminating the writing sample test segment because of overall high scores," she said.

Although ninth grade math scores continued to be low there was marked improvement, Mrs. Gladden said. This year's composite score of 78, while below the state mastery level, is substantially higher than last year's 68 or 1982's 70.

Fifth grade reading also showed improvement, although it still is below the mastery level. Several areas within the reading segment of the test showed enough improvement to raise the composite score from 1983's 75.9 to 82.82.

Ninth grade math remains the area needing the most work, she said, with five of 11 segments below the mastery level. Those areas are solving problems, 73; use of fractions, 54; solving personal finance problems, 45; use of measurement units, 77; use of ratio/proportion/percent, 52.

'There's no more investment income or buckets that I can reach into this time; we're just going to have to cut back.' Don Crockett

Students who fail to score mastery level on the ninth grade TABS test are tested each year they remain in school or until they achieve mastery.

Assistant Superintendent Don Crockett told the Big Spring school board yesterday that a 250 student drop in enrollment last year will mean a loss of $395,000 in state funds. He said budget cuts will be necessary.

"There's no more investment income or buckets that I can reach into this time; we're just going to have to cut back," Crockett told trustee Al Valdez.

State funding to local school districts is based on an average daily attendance (ADA). Funding for the coming academic year will be determined by how many students attended school here last year.

Crockett said today the district does not intend to replace 10 retiring and resigning teachers next year.

Crockett said state aid to the district may increase in 1984-85 because of the closing of a private school here.

"With the closing of Immaculate Heart, the system stands to gain approximately 90 new students this next year," said Crockett.

The board voted to close Marcy Annex and return the fifth grade classes to the original Marcy Cam-

LLOYD DOGGETT

HOUSTON (AP) — The Texas Democratic Party's convention was set to open today with a visit from a presidential candidate who won't quit and a day after its U.S. Senate recount showed a winner by just 1,345 votes.

But party chairman Bob Slagle predicted Thursday that the delegates will go home from the convention Saturday night unified in purpose — defeating President Reagan and other Republican candidates in November's elections.

"I think you're going to be seeing that Democrats smile a lot," he said. "And we're going to beat Reagan like a drum."

But the party does suffer divisions.

On Thursday, its executive committee certified liberal state Sen. Lloyd Doggett as the Democratic Senate nominee over conservative U.S. Rep. Kent Hance after a recount of the June 2 runoff results.

And the leading Democratic presidential candidates — Walter Mondale and Gary Hart — planned to meet with delegates today as Hart continues to contest the race Mondale says he's already won.

The state convention will choose the 200 Texas delegates to the Democratic National Convention. It is the third-largest state delegation.

Mondale, who last week said he has secured enough delegates to claim the nomination, said he was confident about the outcome.

"In the precinct caucuses, I did very well in Texas. As a matter of fact, it was one of my best states. So I expect to come out of this convention in good shape," Mondale said.

Hart, who refuses to concede, was scheduled to spend several hours talking with delegates today before going on to California.

"We're still in this race. We are pursuing delegates, we're calling delegates, we're going to where there are uncommitted delegates," said Debbie Graham, a Hart spokeswoman in Washington.

A top Mondale operative voiced doubts that Hart's personal campaigning would gain him much more support than he won in the May 5 precinct caucuses.

Mondale supporters, led by party chairman Slagle, are firmly in control of the state meeting, and Mondale backers make up the bulk of the convention's delegates and alternates.

Oil spot

Satellite helps pinpoint petro prospects

MIDLAND (AP) — What weighs 500 pounds, is the size of a subcompact car and takes photographs from 450 miles in space?

The answer is Landsat — a government-owned satellite that provides the petroleum industry with invaluable clues as to where best to look for new oil and gas fields.

"Its sole function is to obtain pictures of the earth's surface for use in obtaining new knowledge about the earth's oceans, forests and geology," said Dr. Robert G. Reeves.

Reeves holds a doctorate in geology from Stanford University and for the past six years has taught at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin, where he is dean of the college of Science and Engineering.

Reeves helped launch the nation's space program — including the Skylab project — when he worked for NASA in the 1960s.

He's also a partner in Orion Ltd., one of 10 or 12 Midland firms that use Landsat data for their own purposes or for sale to clients in the oil and gas industry.

The Landsat program began when a Thor-Delta rocket kicked Landsat-1 into a sun-synchronous, near-polar orbit in 1972. The satellites have a life expectancy of about three years, and Landsats 4 and 5 now circle the globe every 103 minutes — repeating their path every 18 days.

They transmit pictures by microwave relay to the Goddard Space Flight Center outside Washington, D.C. The data are recorded on special tape and the information is sold to anyone who wants it — including the Soviets and the Chinese.

Firms like Orion interpret the data and their clients then decide if it's feasible to further explore a given region for oil, gas, mineral and even water deposits.

Landsat pictures cover 13,000 square miles at a glance and generate "reconnaissance detail" about the area.

By comparison, high altitude aerial photos cover about 600 square miles and have to be pieced together into a mosaic that's subject to misinterpretation because of subtle differences in lighting and other factors as the pictures are shot.

"Landsat provides a synoptic view with a minimum of work," noted Reeves. "It's very cost-effective. It's part of a convergence of evidence that helps determine where to drill for oil and gas.

"It improves the chances of finding oil and eliminates unfavorable areas that otherwise would have to be eliminated by more costly methods — like sending in seismic crews."

As with most new ideas, Landsat had its share of critics in the beginning. "There was a lot of skepticism on the part of many geologists who felt it would not add any significant new information to what was already known about the oil and gas production areas in the U.S.," Reeves added.

But time proved the skeptics wrong. Citing the "serpentine plug area" in South-Central Texas as one example, Reeves said, "There have been a number of areas where Landsat has been directly responsible for discoveries where little drilling activity existed before because no one knew abut the existence of concentrated oil and gas prospects."

Weather

Fair skies return

By The Associated Press

Mostly fair skies dominated Texas horizons at dawn today, but a few scattered showers dotted portions of the South Plains and the Panhandle.

The shower activity was triggered by a weak upper air disturbance, the National Weather Service said.

Patchy low clouds had developed from the lower coast into South Central Texas near San Antonio.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 61 at Marfa in West Texas to 78 at the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station.

Winds were mostly from the southeast at 5 to 10 mph.

The forecast called for showers and thunderstorms to develop and continue into tonight across portions of West Texas, the coastal plains and the southern third of the state. The heaviest activity was expected in the Permian Basin, the Big Bend and far West Texas.

The rain activity was expected to continue in West Texas through Saturday and another area of showers was forecast for East Texas on Saturday.

Along the coast, forecasters expected southeasterly winds at 10 to 15 knots. Widely scattered showers and thunderstorms were possible tonight and Saturday.

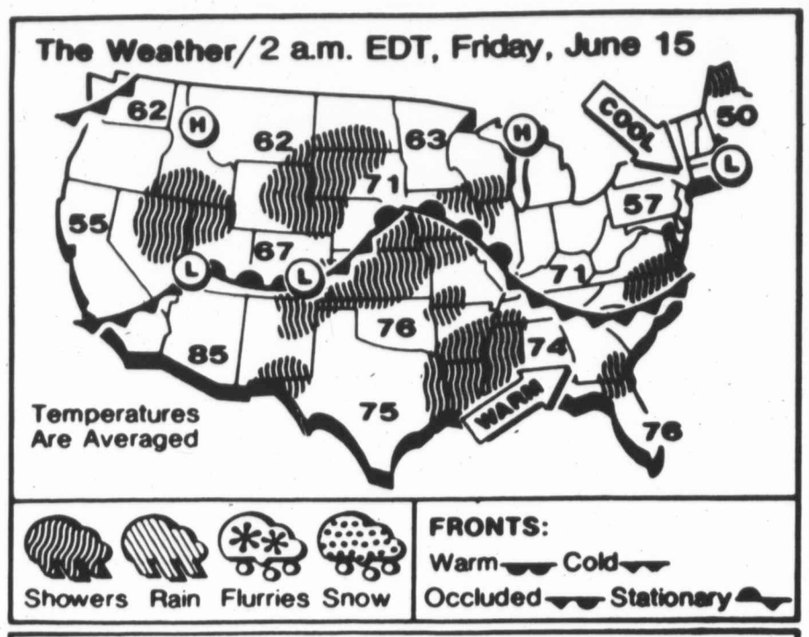

Thundershowers showed no sign of abating today over the western two-thirds of the country as the violent storms sent rivers over their banks and routed residents in the Midwest while promising more cool weather in the East.

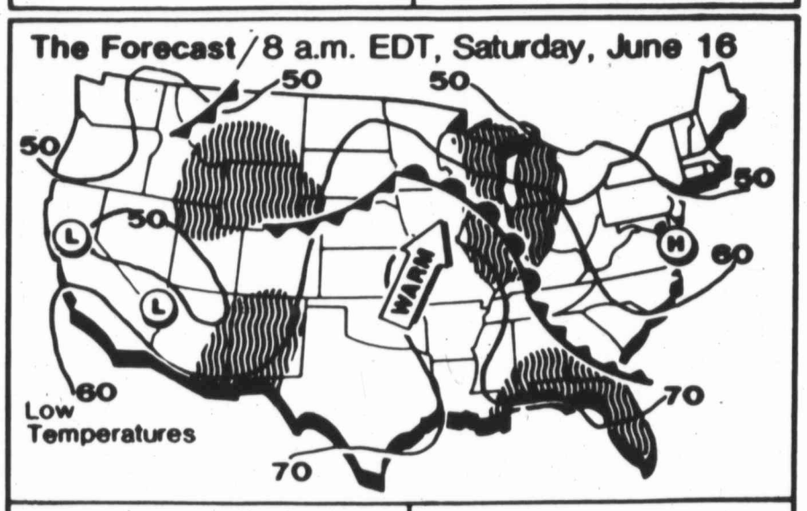

Heavy rain overnight caused flooding in the nation's heartland, with Minnesota, Iowa, northwest Missouri and east central Nebraska the hardest hit states.

Rain and thunderstorms were forecast today over the eastern half of the Gulf of Mexico coast, across the upper Mississippi Valley and the lower Missouri Valley and into the northern Rockies, the National Weather Service said.

Hail measuring 2½ inches fell on parts of Wyoming, where a tornado was reported late Thursday. Twisters also were sighted in Texas, Iowa, Nebraska, Louisiana and North Carolina, but no injuries or damage was reported.

West Texas — Cloudy tonight becoming partly cloudy Saturday. Scattered thunderstorms most sections through Saturday. A few heavy thunderstorms tonight in the Permian Basin, Big Bend and far west. Lows in the 60s, except near 70 Concho Valley and Big Bend lowlands. Highs 85 to 92, except 98 along the Rio Grande in the Big Bend.

Trial

he never sold it. He denied the two conspiracy and three cocaine distribution charges brought against him by the government. The defendant faced the jury to deny each charge during questioning from Paynter.

Gary Turner of Midland, former Big Spring resident and divorced husband of Ann Garrett Turner, said he got "a lot" of cocaine from Talbot starting in 1980 and that his addiction came about "through Guy Talbot."

He said he was a "good, reasonable citizen" before he began using cocaine, but that he beat his wife after he began using the drug.

Admitting that Talbot later advised him to "slow down" on his cocaine use, Turner said, "when these conversations went on we would probably both of us be sitting there doing it."

"Because of my particular circumstances, I feel that I overdid what Guy intended me to do," testified Turner, who also said he had stopped using the drug in late 1983 after receiving drug and alcohol rehabilitation treatment.

"Money was never a problem and that's why I guess I was lax about where I got it," said Turner. He said he received a $8,000-a-month divorce settlement from his wife two years ago.

"But for the Garrett Estate, you would be an average working man, wouldn't you?" questioned Stephens.

"That's exactly right," Turner replied.

Turner also testified that he supplied cocaine to persons who attended the annual "Elephant Hunt" private party at his ranch. He said the cocaine was left on a table in a bowl for anyone to use.

"Instead of having bean dip, you had coke, huh?" said Stephens.

"Probably both," replied Turner.

In Wednesday testimony, Talbot detailed what he called "mistakes" in an FBI report filed after a Sept. 13, 1983 meeting in Midland between him and FBI agents Jesse Rodgers and Norm Middleton. The report, which was not entered into evidence, was the subject of Rodgers' Wednesday testimony.

"I told them what I knew and what I believed to be true," Talbot told the jury of the meeting with FBI agents.

Errors that Talbot said the report contained included:

- That Talbot left the Howard County Probation Office April 14, 1981. Talbot said the date was April 14, 1980.
- That Talbot saw Dick Nickelson of Dallas use cocaine with former Big Spring resident Gary Turner at a September 1980 "Elephant Hunt" party at Turner's residence. "He (Nickelson) was in the bathroom, but I did not see Mr. Nickelson use cocaine," Talbot said.
- That Talbot made an effort to "flush down the toilet" a bag of cocaine at the party, resulting in a fight between Turner and Nickelson. Talbot said the fight was actually between himself and Turner. "To the best of my recollection, it did not involve Nickelson," Talbot testified.
- That 118th District Attorney Rick Hamby and Assistant District Attorney Don Richard attended the party. Talbot said he could not recall if they attended or not.
- That Talbot used his security company billing procedures to collect loans he had made Turner. "That's not true," said Talbot.

Under Stephens' cross-examination, Talbot admitted using cocaine during the time he was a commissioned peace officer. Talbot said he was not aware that his commission, which expired in April of 1983, was active at the time.

Talbot said he never sold cocaine.

Talbot also denied use of cocaine with Diane Cash, a former waitress at the Brass Nail private club on South Highway 80.

Testifying as a government rebuttal witness Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Cash told jurors she and Talbot several times passed a vial of cocaine back and forth under a table at the club during the summer of 1982, but that she never actually saw Talbot use the drug.

Mrs. Cash, who said her tips dropped from $125 a week to $25 a week after she received a government subpoena for the Talbot trial, testified that she sold cocaine for local attorney Roy Lee Ford while working at the Brass Nail. Ford pleaded guilty on Jan. 24 in San Angelo to one count of cocaine distribution during May, 1983.

2 in critical condition after shooting, wreck

ODESSA — Two Big Spring residents remain in critical condition in the intensive care unit of Medical Center Hospital, where they are being treated for injuries suffered in separate incidents, according to a hospital nursing supervisor.

Norma Brown of 632 Tulsa underwent surgery Thursday afternoon for a gunshot wound to the head, the nursing supervisor said. She has shown no signs of improvement yet, the supervisor said.

Mrs. Brown was transferred to the Odessa Hospital from Malone-Hogan Hospital in Big Spring, where she was first taken after a shooting incident.

According to Police Sgt. Bill Price, Mrs. Brown shot herself in the head with a .22-caliber revolver about noon Thursday. Mrs. Brown is a municipal court clerk typist for Judge Melvin Daratt.

According to Gwendolyn Fair, Daratt's court clerk, Mrs. Brown turned 37 on Tuesday.

William Leslie Estes, 39, of 1400 Harding also remains in critical condition in Medical Center Hospital after treatment for multiple injuries suffered in a Wednesday night accident in which he was thrown from his motorcycle.

Estes also has shown no signs of improvement, the supervisor said.

He was injured about 8:45 p.m. Wednesday when he lost control of his motorcycle on a curve in the 2100 block of Fourth Street, according to a Department of Public Safety report.

'83 property values near market value, study says

Single-family residences in Howard County were appraised in 1983 at 79 percent of their market value, according to a Property Value Study just released by the State Property Tax Board.

The statewide average for single-family residences was 81 percent, the study said.

The study also shows that other taxable property in the county was appraised very near its market value, except commercial and industrial real estate, which was valued at 75 percent of market appraisals.

Overall, taxable property in the county listed in 1983 was appraised at an average of 94 percent of market value. The state average was 84 percent.

In his bienniel reappraisal of property values here for 1984, Gene Pereira, chief appraiser of the Howard County Tax Appraisal District, last month posted new property values that totaled about 20 percent higher than the 1983 tax roll. He later withdrew most of the 1984 appraisal work under pressure from the public and the tax appraisal board. Real estate agents have said home values in the county decreased 10 percent from one year ago.

Pereira's reappraisal did not include oil and gas properties, which were listed at 106 percent of market value on the 1983 tax rolls.

According to the state study, other properties valued above 1983 market values in the county were market and agriculture acreage, 101 percent; and utilties, 103 percent.

Other 1983 property valuations included multi-family residences, 88 percent; vacant lots, 58 percent; farm and ranch improvements, 92 percent; personal business, 84 percent; and other personal property, 88 percent.

State property tax appraisal districts, created by the Property Tax Code of 1980, are required to reappraise property every four years. Howard County's district performs a reappraisal every two years.

The state's Constitution, as amended by the code, requires that taxable property be appraised at market value.

Statewide figures show levels of appraisal were highest in the categories of oil and gas, 102 percent; and utilities, 96 percent.

The lowest appraisal values were found in the categorioes of vacant lots, 61 percent; agriculture acreage, 74 percent; and farm and ranch improvemments, 76 percent.

pus. Crockett told the board the move would save the district over $50,000 per year.

The annex students will be housed in temporary classrooms moved to the Marcy Campus this summer.

In other action the board voted to buy a new phone system from ATS at a cost of $65,000.

AT&T submitted a bid of $72,843 and CCA a bid of $92,418 for the system and its installation.

Seven new teachers were hired, including two coaches.

Harold Bentley told the board that coach Jerry McGuire is resigning but will continue to work with the district on a part-time basis.

Mendoza waives parole hearing

A 36-year old Big Spring man today admitted violating his parole on a 1977 conviction on delivery of cocaine.

Robert Mendoza of 624 Caylor today waived his hearing on seven counts of cocaine distribution and technical violation of his parole agreement.

Mendoza admitted to one parole violation: possession and distribution of one-quarter ounce of cocaine on Sept. 3, 1982. Mendoza had pleaded guilty in federal court to the charge.

Mendoza was sentenced to 10 years to state prison in 1977 on a conviction of delivery of cocaine. He was paroled after three years, according to David Harmon, a state parole from Odessa. Because Mendoza admitted to the parole violation, his parole will be revoked, according to parole hearing officer Ted Welch of Lubbock.

At the hearing, Mendoza's lawyer, Patrick Abeyta of Lubbock, questioned Harmon on whether he objected to Mendoza serving his time in federal prison. Harmon testified he did not object.

Federal District Court Judge Halbert Woodward has not yet sentenced Mendoza on the federal drug charge. Mendoza is asking to serve his sentence on revocation of parole on the 1977 state charge at the same time that he serves his federal sentence in federal prison.

Decisions on parole revocation usually take two weeks to a month, according to Welch and Harmon.

Helen's a real trooper

LOS ANGELES — Singer Helen Reddy suffered a miscarriage this week, but she intends to be back on stage in New Jersey on Sunday, her attorney says.

"Her health is fine and she will commence her performances," attorney Gary Olsen said Thursday. He said he didn't know how many months pregnant the 42-year-old singer was when the miscarriage occurred Tuesday in Los Angeles.

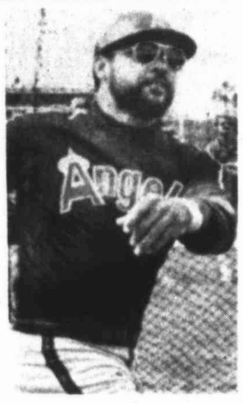

"I wish to thank the many people for expressing their care and concern regarding my recent personal medical problem.... Your best wishes are deeply appreciated," the singer said in a statement.

Ms. Reddy was forced to cancel appearances this week in Augusta, Ga., and Orlando and Fort Myers, Fla., but will sing Sunday in Millburn, N.J., as planned, Olsen said.

The singer, whose best-known recordings include "I Am Woman," I Don't Know How to Love Him" and "Angie Baby," is married to drummer Milton Ruth. She has two children by two previous marriages.

Reggie misses Porsche

REGGIE JACKSON

"It's one of the rarest Porsches in the country," the California Angels' slugger said Thursday. "It's painted to specs and has an interior matched to a Rolls Royce that I own. It's something in my collection that is irreplaceable."

The customized 1979 Porsche 930 was stolen Wednesday night from in front of a restaurant on the Pacific Coast Highway, police said.

A description of the car was broadcast throughout Southern California, but "we've struck out," said Officer Tom Little.

Jimmy's Billy won't talk

MACON — Billy Carter, the brash brother of former President Jimmy Carter, says he's concentrating on his business career — after turning down offers "to be a professional ex-drunk."

JIMMY CARTER

After zooming to national notoriety in 1977 when his brother won the presidency, Carter soon fell on hard times. He was forced to sell his property near Plains to pay back taxes and was investigated by the Justice Department for his links with the Libyan government.

But he says his life turned around after he got treatment for alcoholism between 1979 and 1981 at a military rehabilitation center in Long Beach, Calif., and that he hasn't had a drink since 1979.

"I turned down a couple of good offers to be a professional ex-drunk and talk to groups," Carter told the Macon Telegraph and News. "I wanted to get back into business, not travel so much."

In 1982, he moved to Waycross to become vice president for marketing of Scott Housing Systems Inc.

Open door policy

Reagan says he's working on talks with USSR

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, softening his tone toward the Kremlin, says he's opening the door to a possible summit with Soviet leader Konstantin Chernenko, while acknowledging he's not quite ready to extend an invitation.

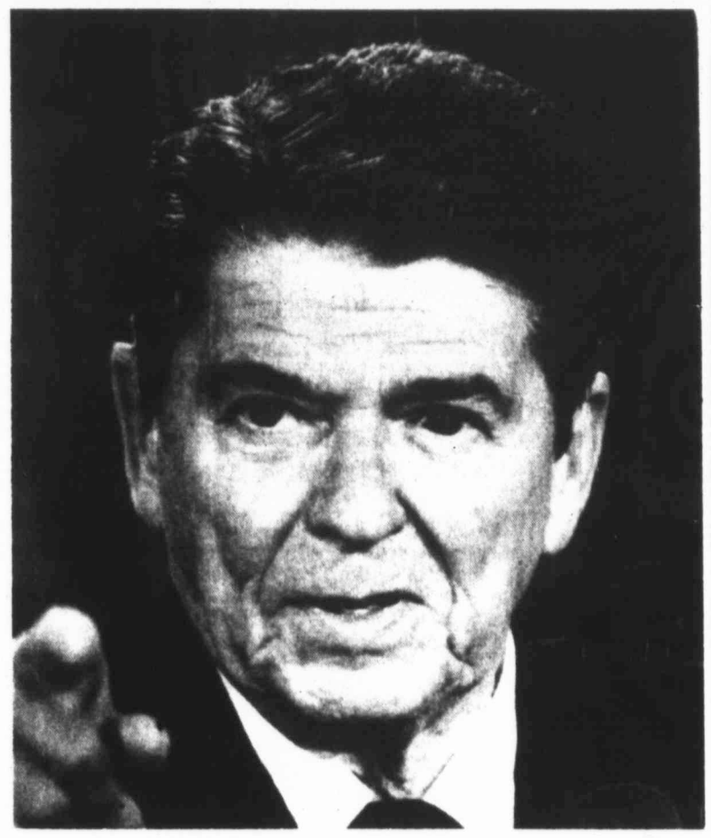

"The door is open," the president declared at a nationally broadcast news conference dominated by U.S.-Soviet relations. "And every once in a while, we're standing in the doorway, seeing if anyone's coming up the steps."

But when asked if his remarks could be taken as an invitation to his Soviet counterpart, the president replied: "We haven't reached that point yet."

Reagan also said he hasn't given "a flat no" to Chernenko's suggestion that the superpowers negotiate a ban on anti-satellite and other space weapons. "We're studying that whole situation," he said.

At the 25th news conference of his presidency Thursday night, Reagan also said:

- "I would look forward to a debate" with his Democratic opponent during the fall election campaign.
- His campaign never received the briefing book prepared for President Jimmy Carter before their political debate during the 1980 election campaign. Although copies of a "Presidential Debate Briefing Book" were found in the files of at least two campaign aides, Reagan said "the so-called debate briefing book of the Carter team never has been in our possession ... all that was uncovered were some position papers. ..."
- He'll sign legislation raising taxes only if he has assurance that legislation cutting government spending was on its way.
- He supports a House-passed bill imposing fines on employers who hire illegal aliens because it will help America regain control of its borders. But he said care had to be taken to avoid discrimination by employers who don't want to bother to determine "whether an individual is legal or not ...."
- If re-elected in November, he intends to serve all four years of a second term. "What the devil would a young fellow like me do if I quit the job," asked Reagan, who is 73.
- He's not willing to say yet whether he'd support changing the federal civil rights laws to prohibit job discrimination against homosexuals.
- There's been "no discrimination of any kind in this administration" and he's done more for minorities than any other White House occupant.
- The Republican Party platform should call for military parity with the Soviet Union, not superiority, which would be "counterproductive."

THAT WAY — President Reagan gestures during a news conference in the White House East Room Thursday night.

The questions at the East Room news conference repeatedly came back to the state of relations between the superpowers and what plans Reagan had to improve them.

An administration official, asked to interpret the president's statements on a summit, replied there was a "difference in tone, but not in policy, and that difference in tone is very significant because he's come a long way."

Reagan sounded more receptive to the idea of a summit with Chernenko, but he refused despite repeated questioning to spell out under what conditions he would agree to such a meeting. Nor did he say he was ready to take the initiative on setting up a summit.

Jacksons set summer tour

NEW YORK — The long-awaited summer concert tour by superstar Michael Jackson and his family will begin July 6 in Kansas City, Mo., followed by stops in Texas and Florida, its promoter announced today.

Chuck Sullivan, making the announcement on the "CBS Morning News," said he expected arrangements for the rest of the projected 42-concert tour to be firmed up within the next 10 days.

He said the tour will begin July 6, 7 and 8 in Arrowhead Stadium in Kansas City, and continue July 13, 14 and 15 in Texas Stadium in Irving, Tex., outside Dallas, and July 21, 22 and 23 in the Gator Bowl in Jacksonville, Fla.

Capacities of the three stadiums for football are 78,000 at Arrowhead, 65,000 at Texas and 70,000 at the Gator Bowl.

Tickets will cost $30 each, including a $2 handling charge, and be available by mail order only, Sullivan said.

News in brief

Soviet allies sign pact

MOSCOW — Nine allies agreed to meet the Soviet Union's import needs and create closer economic ties in order to ensure their supply of Soviet oil, according to a declaration issued today.

Members of the Council for Mutual Economic Assistance, meeting for the first time in 15 years, pledged to specialize and integrate their economies. Members include the Soviet Union, its six Eastern European allies and Cuba, Vietnam and Mongolia.

Iranian plane hijacked

MANAMA — An Iranian passenger plane landed and took off at Manama airport under mysterious circumstances today. Sources said the plane had been hijacked and had seven people aboard.

Foreign ministers of the six-nation Persian Gulf alliance said, meanwhile, that they would rely on diplomacy and peaceful coexistence rather than armed might to protect their oil tankers from Iranian attacks.

Beirut crossing closed

BEIRUT — Rival militiamen hijacked 19 semitrailer trucks traveling between the Christian and Moslem sectors of the Lebanese capital during the morning rush hour today, prompting officials to briefly close the only crossing.

The drivers were released unharmed, but the six-wheel trucks carrying fuel and food remained in the hands of the militias, which may have commandeered them for transportation of arms and ammunition, police said.

Drugs found at shrine

NEW DELHI — Indian newspaper reports say Sikh militants peddled smuggled narcotics and stolen gold, silver and jewels from their holiest shrine, the Golden Temple, to finance their violent campaign for autonomy.

Troops searching the temple in Amritsar found "huge quantities" of heroin and hashish, worth millions of dollars, that had been brought across the border from Pakistan, the newspapers quoted unidentified intelligence sources as saying.

Trudeau says goodbye

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, saying goodbye after 16 years in power, told his countrymen that Canada has finally reached maturity.

"I thought that these 15, 20 past years in a certain sense were the period of adolescence of our country, coming of age. The people of Canada have reached a certain maturity," Trudeau said Thursday night in a nationally televised farewell address at a convention of his Liberal Party.

INSIDE OUT — If additional funds can be collected in donations from the public, stray cats like this one can be kept in a new, better-suited facility.

Animal shelter can be a reality

Plans to build a new animal shelter suffered another setback this week when bids on construction costs came in well over what is available for the facility. Donations from the public could put the new shelter once again within reach.

Even before a fire in early May did some damage to the shelter at Second and Donley, it was obvious the facility was antiquated. Big Spring, and its pet population, have grown. The animal shelter has not.

Voters made it plain in 1980 they couldn't support a bond proposal to finance a new shelter, but an anonymous donation this spring put a new building within reach. Or so it seemed. Although $90,000 is available, construction cost bids were in the $150,000 range.

Volunteers stand ready to help out at the shelter, including donating time so the public can have better access. Councilman Jack Y. Smith, the liaison in this effort, is hoping a final push of private donations can make the new shelter a reality. We join Mr. Smith in support of this worthwhile cause.

Why a fuss?

Don't men get emotional when they watch those silly sporting events on television? They rant and rave when their team goofs up, or the other team scores. They pout if their team loses, and cheer in jubilation if they win. Guys, screaming at the television won't help your team. They can't hear you from your living room.

I personally don't understand men's obsession with professional sports on television. I can take it or leave it. Now, don't get me wrong. I like sporting events, but I don't get a big kick out of spending four hours in front of my TV watching 22 men get paid $40,000 a game to beat each others' brains out.

If I'm going to watch TV, I would prefer to see the movie of the week. I can always find out the score of the game of the decade later. The score is all that matters anyway. And being a professional sporting event, it'll be shown on television a dozen times during the next week. The movie of the week may never be shown again.

What I really hate about sporting events on television is when they are shown after the game is finished. There is no point of rooting or even watching the game if you know what the final score is.

If I watch a sporting event, I prefer individual competition. It is easier to identify with an individual than a team. Watching an individual compete, you can see their agony, their pain and their jubilation. I don't see how anyone can identify with 22 men who have their faces hidden by helmets.

Sunday, I and a group of friends watched Cal State and Texas University play baseball. Halfway through the seventh inning, I asked, who is playing, anyway? Glares and stares fell upon me. After they told me who was playing, I ventured to ask where Cal State was? Evidently, I should have known Cal State was in California.

I don't know who won, but I was for Texas. I started to root for Cal State, but I didn't like their uniforms, so I chose Texas. I did think Cal State was a neat name though.

There's also a series of games everyone has been talking about. All I have heard about is the NBA Championship series between the Boston Celtics and the Los Angeles Lakers. Well, after hearing so much about the games, I decided I should at least pick a team to cheer for. I like the Celtics, because I think the Boston Celtics has a neat ring to it.

If you are going to pick a team to root for I think you should do it by yelling for the team that has the neatest name, the classiest uniforms or the cutest player. I definitely don't think you should choose a team for its record.

My favorite football team is the Dallas Cowboys. Not because of its records, but because it has a neat name and chic uniforms. I'd like to see them in the Super Bowl, but they're still my No. 1 team if they are not. Like I said, the records don't matter.

Study links malathion to cancer

WASHINGTON — I've seen alarming evidence that the commonly used pesticide malathion causes cancer.

What's even more alarming, though, is that Environmental Protection Agency officials knew about this evidence years ago but ignored it in what one government scientist characterized as "little more than a 'cover-up' job."

Every backyard gardener is familiar with malathion. It has been recommended for years by gardening books and columns as the chemical of choice to get rid of insects that devour fruits and vegetables. But beyond the usual labels warning that it is poisonous to ingest, there has been no suggestion that malathion can cause cancer in those exposed to it.

In California, the exposure to malathion extends to millions of people who may never have sprayed a tomato plant or a fruit tree in their backyard. It was sprayed over huge areas of the state — including populated areas — to combat the Mediterranean fruit fly two years ago and is currently being used against the Mexican fruit fly.

But for more than five years the EPA has had good reason to believe that exposure to malathion can pose an unacceptably high risk of cancer. My associate Donald Goldberg has seen EPA files on the chemical. The evidence that malathion can cause cancer was documented in two studies in the late 1970s by the National Cancer Institute.

The EPA routinely reviews such studies and issues comments on the findings. In the case of malathion, though, the EPA reviewers simply edited out the NCI's findings of cancer risk.

Within the EPA, the peculiar review of the malathion studies is known as the "cut-and-paste" scandal. That's because the agency's reviewers posted up only those portions of the NCI summaries that could be quoted to minimize malathion's dangers, and scissored out passages suggesting that the chemical could cause cancer.

News of the cut-and-paste scandal eventually reached the ears of the EPA brass, and they hired Battelle Memorial Institute, an independent research laboratory, to evaluate the EPA reviews of the National Cancer Institute reports. Here's the Battelle analysis of one of the reports:

"There is no evidence of a critical review or evaluation of the (NCI) report or data contained in it. The portion of the conclusion added by the EPA reviewer would seem to be of little value in determining the validity of the report concerning the possible carcinogenicity (of malathion)."

The Battelle report also noted "highly suggestive evidence of a dose-related carcinogenic effect."

Incredibly, the EPA brass stood by the review that Battelle had lambasted.

Meanwhile, Dr. Adrian Gross, an EPA cancer researcher, concluded from his own study of the NCI data that as many as one of every 1,000 people exposed to "currently established tolerances for malathion" can be expected to get cancer.

"I should think that this represents an unacceptably high upper limit on the risk ascribable to malathion," Gross wrote in his report on the matter.

In a covering memo, Gross expressed himself even more strongly on the EPA's treatment of the NCI reports and Battelle's critical review: "We have here what amounts to little more than a 'cover-up' job and a recommendation that nothing of any consequence be done ..." An EPA official said the NCI studies would be reassessed, and said Gross was just "impatient with the bureaucratic response."

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: The defense Intelligence agency has conducted a "census" of Soviet weapons factories, and has identified 130 major assembly plants plus more than 3,500 support facilities. In a report on the subject, the DIA states:

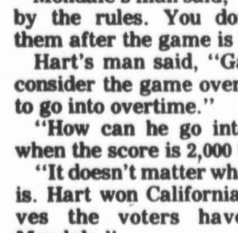

"The Soviet defense industry has grown steadily and consistently over the past 20-25 years. Their military industrial base is by far the world's largest in number of facilities and physical size, and it produces more individual military systems in greater quantities than any other nation. Physical growth and commitment of large quantities of financial and human resources are its most dynamic aspect.

"Production plants appear to be continually active, suggesting that as old weapons programs are phased out, new ones are begun, leaving little downtime or long periods of layoffs and inactivity. The cyclical process, the continuing facility growth and the high rates of production keep the arms industry in a high state of readiness to meet any contingency."

WATCH ON THE PENTAGON: It's hard to find anyone whose phone bill went down as a result of Ma Bell's breakup, but most of us aren't in as bad shape as the Air Force Space Command in Colorado. According to a recent memo, "the cost of moving a single-line, 'no button' telephone jumped from a flat $75 to as much as $800." Putting in a simple pickup device went from $7.50 to $445, while transfer of more complex phones went from an already-high $500 to a stratospheric $3,120. During a two-month period, labor charges alone were nearly $50,000, instead of the old, monopolistic $9,200.

● Social stratification is the latest trend at the Air Force's Tactical Air Command bases. Enlisted men's off-duty, on-base relaxation centers are being separated into non-commissioned officers' and airmen's clubs. Privates who felt the need for stripe-wearing drinking buddies used to be allowed into NCO clubs. Now the sergeants are pulling rank. At Nellis Air Force Base in Nevada, the split has been costly to the NCOs: Their now-exclusive club lost $18,000 in March and $17,000 in April.

They call it 'unity'

A summit meeting was held last weekend at a Holiday Inn on the outskirts of Washington between the leaders of the Mondale, Hart and Jackson forces to discuss Democratic Party unity. The conference was called at the behest of Mondale's campaign managers.

The Hart and Jackson people were stone faced.

Mondale's man was the only one smiling. "Now that the battle is over and our man has won, we feel it is time to heal the wounds of the primary race and work for a victory in November."

Hart's man objected, "The opera isn't over until the fat lady sings."

"We thought you'd say that," Mondale's man retorted. He pushed a buzzer and a fat lady entered the room and started to sing "Happy Days Are Here Again."

The Hart man stood up and said, "That's one more dirty trick. How do yu expect us to agree to unity when you pull a stunt like that?"

"We were only kidding around, to ease the tension," the Mondale man said. "Let's be serious. Mondale has the delegates and he's going to be the candidate. But we need to work together if we're going to beat Reagan in November."

The Jackson man said, "Mondale stole our delegates. We're not going to agree to unity until we get them back."

Mondale's man said, "We played by the rules. You don't change them after the game is over."

Hart's man said, "Gary doesn't consider the game over. He wants to go into overtime."

"How can he go into overtime when the score is 2,000 to 1,200?"

"It doesn't matter what the score is. Hart won California. That proves the voters have rejected Mondale."

Jackson's man said, "Jesse got cheated out of delegates in California and New Jersey."

Hart's representative said, "Gary doesn't want to be a spoiler. He is willing to meet Mondale halfway."

"What does that mean?"

"He will get up at the convention and say numerically Mondale has the delegates, but politically it would be a disaster to nominate him."

"What kind of a unity message is that?" Mondale's man shouted.

"It's the best Hart can do after the things Mondale said about him."

Jackson's man said, "I can't guarantee Jesse will even come to the convention if the Democrats don't change the rules."

Mondale's man took a sheet of paper out of his briefcase. "The candidate has given me permission to offer Gary the vice presidency on his ticket."

"Big deal," Hart's man said. "How can Gary be vice president when he can't stand being in the same room with Mondale?"

"A vice president never has to be in the same room with the president," Mondale's man said. "That's what makes the American presidency work. Mondale can always communicate with Hart through Lane Kirkland."

Jackson's man said, "Jesse wants to be secretary of state."

Mondale's man said, "We can't offer Jesse a Cabinet position if we don't win the election. But in the spirit of unity Fritz would like Jesse to nominate him at the convention."

"Jesse thought you'd come up with a stupid idea like that. He said if you did he would use the time to tell the country how he got cheated out of his delegates."

"That's fine with us," Mondale's man said. "Then it's agreed. We will announce to the press that the party has been unified."

The fat lady started singing, "San Francisco, open those golden gates," and Hart's man said, "Oh shut up."

Single and happy

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I'm in my mid thirties and still single. I have always wanted to get married, but somehow the right person just never seems to come along. Do you think it's really possible to be single and also happy? — A.G.

DEAR A.G.: Yes, it certainly is possible to be single and yet happy. To be sure, most people will eventually marry — although, as you know, that is no guarantee of happiness if you marry foolishly. But I have known many young men and women who have found fulfillment in their single lives.

The church is especially a good, wholesome place to do this. (Don't be tempted to get involved in activities — such as single bars or similar things — which won't help you morally and won't bring you into contact with people who will become real friends.)

Auxiliary remembers Mrs. Ayers

The charter of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of World War I Barracks #1474 was draped in memory of Margarette Ayers, who died May 14. The meeting was held June 9 at Kentwood Center.

Bernice Micallef, Sarah Findley and Winifred Wood served refreshments to Veterans Administration Medical Center patients, May 22. Members operated a bake sale at Big Spring Mall, May 26.

Rep. Charles Stenholm was the keynote speaker at the Memorial Day services at Trinity Memorial Park, May 27, as the Avenue of Flags was dedicated. In his address, he paid homage to the many war casualties from the nation's wars. Veterans groups placed wreaths at the base of the flag pole.

A small group of veterans, auxiliary members and friends met at the courthouse, May 28, where the salute to the flag was given. A speech on the meaning of Memorial Day was given by World War I commander Marion Irland. A wreath was placed at the base of the flag pole by representatives of several veterans organizations.

The next meeting will be at Kentwood Center, July 14.

Dr. Donohue

Can polio vaccination affect parent?

Dear Dr. Donohue: Can you say what should be done in the case of parents who have never been vaccinated against polio and whose child is due to receive the oral vaccine? I have heard it both ways, that the parents should get shots to avoid getting polio from the virus in the child's vaccine and that it's not necessary for the parents to be vaccinated themselves before the child's vaccination. — Confused.

Let's take this step-by-step so you can see where a contradiction might emerge. But first of all, I want to note that the passing on of polio from the child's vaccine to the unvaccinated parent is most rare event. It's so rare that if it happened it would be newsworthy.

Children in North America are usually protected against polio with a vaccine taken by mouth. It contains a live virus, but it is so weakened that it does not produce the disease. But weak as it is, there is a remote possibility it might become more potent as it passes through the child's digestive tract. This poses no threat at all to the child, and only the remotest danger to the parents who have not been vaccinated previously. After nearly 30 years of routine childhood vaccination there are not that many unvaccinated parents around anyway.

In most areas, the standard practice in your hypothetical situation (non-vaccinated parents and to-be-vaccinated children) is to go ahead with the child's vaccination and do nothing about protecting the parents. The second option is to vaccinate the unprotected parents by injection (not by mouth). That vaccine contains the dead virus. It has to be injected into the adult two months before the child gets the oral medicine. Many feel this delay in vaccinating the child is an unnecessary step, given the extremely slim possibility of any harm coming to the unprotected parents.

In 1981 there were two cases of polio thought to be related to the child's oral vaccine, an extremely small number in the face of the great number vaccinated. It would work out to be about one case for every 5 million doses. And let me emphasize again that what we are speaking of are parents who themselves have not been protected at the time the children get the oral medicine.

Dear Abby

Like father, like son, maybe daughter

DEAR ABBY: I'm engaged to be married soon. My girlfriend is dumb, but that's OK with me because she knows she's dumb, so she keeps her mouth shut.

I have heard that girls usually take after the mothers, and boys take after their fathers, so if we have children, the girls will take after her (dumb), and the boys will take after me (smart).

What if something goes wrong and I end up with smart daughters and dumb sons?

Please answer soon, as the wedding is in August and I don't want to spend any more money on the plans if I'm going to break the engagement.

PITTSBURGH PETE

DEAR PETE: It's not true that girls "take after" their mothers and boys "take after" their fathers. But if it were, take comfort in this oft-quoted ditty:

"A son is a son 'til he takes a wife,

"but a daughter is yours for the rest of her life."

So stop worrying. If "something goes wrong," you'll end up with smart daughters looking after you in your old age.

CURIOUS IN BOISE, IDAHO

DEAR CURIOUS: It's not true. I have no ghostwriters and never have had, but sometimes I wish I had a few, so I could blame somebody else when I goof.

Woman found guilty in 'baby smuggling'

LAREDO (AP) — A federal judge says a Utah woman convicted of smuggling infants into the United States broke the law out of a desire to help impoverished Mexican children and not for personal gain.

NELDA COLWELL

U.S. District Judge George Kazen on Thursday found Nelda Karen Colwell, 39, of Layton, Utah, guilty on three counts of conspiracy and aiding and abetting in the falisfying of records.

Kazen deliberated for about an hour and explained his decision for 30 minutes before pronouncing the verdict.

"Our laws of immigration sometimes interfere with our sense of what's human and what's right," Kazen told Mrs. Colwell, who trembled and wept.

"It's a tough responsibility and a very sad case because I don't view you as a baby peddler. I think you are a sensitive person... and this became a situation where your heart overruled your head," he said.

The judge said he would set a date for sentencing later.

Mrs. Colwell faces up to 15 years in prison and a $14,000 fine, but Assistant U.S. Attorney David Almaraz said he "really couldn't see her spending a day in jail."

"She probably didn't mean to get into this situation," he said.

Mrs. Colwell was indicted April 10 with three Laredo women who pleaded guilty to lesser charges in a plea bargain with the government. The indictment charged that the women offered to find homes for newborn infants of poor, expectant women in exchange for medical care, food and clothing.

Prospective parents from Utah would fly to the border to pick up their babies who were smuggled across, authorities said.

Almaraz accused Mrs. Colwell of playing on the emotions of adoptive parents and of encouraging parents to violate immigration law.

Hearings called on state caucus system

AUSTIN (AP) — Two state senators Thursday announced a series of hearings on the problems of Texas' presidential caucus system, which one described as "dinosaur whose extinction is long overdue."

Sen. Chet Edwards, D-Duncanville, said the caucus system "is an idea whose time has come and gone and the sooner we bury this dinosaur, the better."

Edwards and Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, held a news conference to announce hearings by the Election Code Study Committee, with the first probably in Austin during the special legislative session.

Edwards said he supports Walter Mondale for the Democratic nomination for president and Farabee favors Gary Hart. "This is not an effort to hurt any particular candidate," Edwards said.

Under the current caucus system, Texas Democratic voters do not cast a ballot for their preferred presidential candidate. They must instead return to their polling places 15 minutes after the polls close to participate in a precinct convention and choose delegates for each candidate.

Delegates then go to county and senatorial district conventions, where delegates to the state convention are chosen. Delegates are selected at the state convention for the national Democratic convention.

Reagan-Bush committees this year selected the Texas delegates for the GOP national convention after President Reagan received 99 percent of the vote in a non-binding Republican primary.

"Our goal will be to collect citizen input on the problems caused by the caucus system, so that the 1985 Legislature can consider a bill to require binding presidential primaries, while maintaining the political parties' rights to select convention delegates in whatever way they so choose."

6 Texas schools ranked among best

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are Texas public secondary schools recognized Thursday by Secretary of Education T.H. Bell as the best in the nation:

Junior and Middle Schools

Sinkhole filled; road restored

BOLING — A wild sinkhole that opened suddenly last summer and swallowed two pick-up trucks and a section of road has been tamed — filled in and paved over.

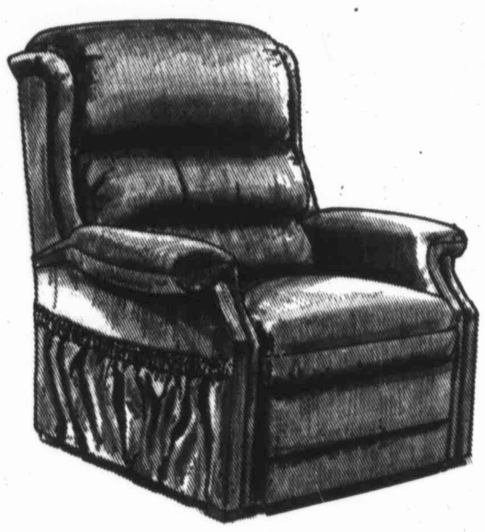

The sinkhole opened during the dark hours on Aug. 11 and before it could be barricaded two pickup trucks plunged into the 200-foot-long void. Both drivers swam to safety and were uninjured.

The Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation has filled in the hole with rocks and dirt and rebuilt the damaged road, FM442, at a cost of about $200,000. The road opened two weeks ago.

Officials said they believe the sinkhole was a natural occurrance and they don't expect others to develop nearby. There had been speculation that the sinkhole was the result of extensive sulphur mining in the area since 1920s.

Four tied for U.S. Open lead after first round

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (AP) — The monster that was Winged Foot one decade ago was tamed, and Hale Irwin was one of those with the whip.

Chasing his third U.S. Open title, Irwin shot a 2-under-par 68 and tied 1977 Open champion Hubert Green, Jim Thorpe and Mike Donald for the first-round lead Thursday at the 1984 U.S. national championship.

"Winged Foot is not quite the monster it was," Irwin said. But both he and Green warned it could turn tiger again, if cornered.

Ten years ago, at age 29, Irwin captured the Open with a 7-over-par 287. It was called the "Massacre at Winged Foot," as no more than seven golfers could break par for 18 holes in any of the four rounds.

On the first day this time, 11 players broke par-70 on a course that had been made purposely easier than it was 10 years ago.

"The rough is more manageable, and the greens are intentionally slower," said Irwin, who also won the Open in 1979 at Inverness.

Rain that fell Wednesday further slowed the greens and they might stay that way a while longer after a thunderstorm Thursday evening which caused a 45-minute halt in play. The delay forced six players in the 156-man field to finish the first round today. Temperatures were in the mid-80s with a cooling, clearing trend predicted for today.

The large group at 69, one shot back, included Spain's Seve Ballesteros, David Canipe, Lennie Clements, Fred Couples, Curtis Strange, Mick Soli and U.S. amateur champion Jay Sigel.

Unlike most of the golfers who competed over this 6,930-yard, par-70 west course at the Winged Foot Golf Club, Irwin found the back-nine easier than the front. He shot par-35 on the front and 2-under 33 on the back with birdies at No. 11 and No. 17, a 444-yard par-4 where he holed a 60-foot bunker shot.

Green, a non-winner on the PGA Tour since 1981, shot 33-35, and Thorpe, one of the few black players on the Tour, shot 32-36. Donald, tied for third three weeks ago at the Kemper Open, had 33-35.

A bogey on the 448-yard, par-4 18th cost Thorpe sole possession of the lead.

"I think I can win now," said Thorpe, who led the first round of the U.S. Open in 1981 before faltering. "It'll take under par to win."

Irwin shot a front-nine that consisted of two birdies and two bogeys to finish even. He birdied the 383-yard, par-4 11th with an 8-iron to 15 feet, then took another stroke from par on the 17th after his second shot plunked down in a bunker to the right of the green, some 60 feet from the hole.

"I think you're going to see the scores level off," Irwin said. "You always tend to see first-round scores lower than over the weekend."

Irwin's bogeys came on the first and fourth holes, and he said he got off to a slow start partially because of the painstakingly slow traffic clogging access to the club.

"That didn't start the day very well," said Irwin, who abandoned his car at the club's gate and walked the rest of the way to save a little time. "I don't think many of us got here very cool. We were a little hot under the collar, and I don't think you can blame us."

Green, 37, whose last Tour victory was in the Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open in 1981, had a front-nine consisting of three birdies and one bogey, on the 216-yard, par-3 third hole. He matched par on each hole on the back nine.

"Just in case there's a lot of Winged Foot Club members sitting around the clubhouse slashing their wrists about these low scores," Green said, "if God put some water on the greens, that's one thing, but P.J. (Boatwright of the U.S. Golf Association) is not going to touch them.

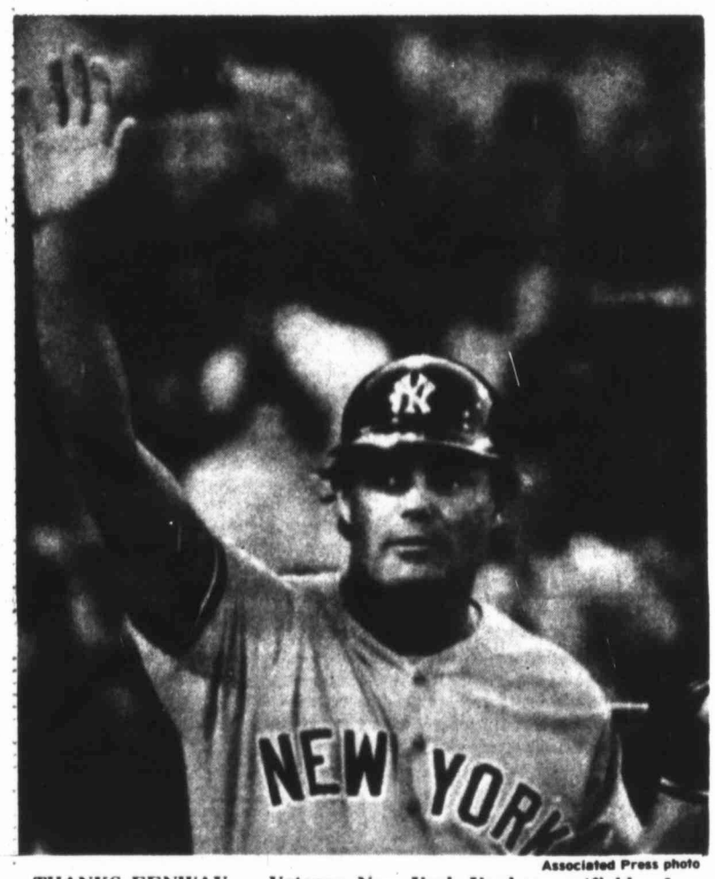

"And come Sunday, if it doesn't rain anymore, look out."

Thorpe, 35, a former running back at Morgan State, also had an all-par round going on the second nine until the 18th. He saved par on the 17th with a 16-foot putt, but he missed the 18th green, chipped to eight feet and 2-putted for bogey.

HAPPY WITH SHOT — Jim Thorpe smiles after chipping onto the 18th green at Winged Foot Golf Club in Mamaroneck, N.Y. Thursday during the first round of play in the U.S. Open Championship. Thorpe finished the day with a 2-under-par round 68 in a four-way tie for the first day's lead.

THANKS FENWAY — Veteran New York Yankees outfielder Lou Piniella waves to the crowd at Fenway Park in Boston Thursday night in respose to a crowd ovation as he comes to the plate in the second inning of the game against the Boston Red Sox. Piniella got three hits, and earlier in the day announced he would retire after Saturday's game in New York (see related story on 2B).

Braves' duo combines for one-hitter

By The Associated Press

Although Len Barker was pitching a one-hit shutout through seven innings, Atlanta Manager Joe Torre knew that he'd had enough.

"He just ran out of gas tonight," Torre said Thursday night after Donnie Moore completed the last two innings of a 3-0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds. "I think he's got to get used to the heat. He was getting away with some high breaking pitches late."

Moore retired all six batters he faced for his third save of the year. He extended his scoreless innings string to 17, including the last five without a baserunner.

Elsewhere in the National League, San Francisco beat San Diego 5-2, Philadelphia bombed Chicago 11-2, Pittsburgh edged Montreal 3-2, New York blanked St. Louis 6-0 and Houston tripped Los Angeles 3-1.

National League

Phillies 11, Cubs 2

Juan Samuel keyed a four-run second inning with a three-run homer and Tim Corcoran added a two-run shot in the sixth as Philadelphia won with a 15-hit attack at Chicago.

Giants 5, Padres 2

Jeff Leonard drove in three runs with a homer and a single and Johnnie LeMaster added a solo homer to help visiting San Francisco snap San Diego's five-game winning streak.

LeMaster got the Giants' first hit of Padres starter Tim Lollar, 5-5, when he led off the fourth with his third home run. A double by Chili Davis and a single by Leonard made it 2-0 in the same inning, and Leonard followed with a two-run homer in the sixth, giving him nine for the season.

Mets 6, Cardinals 0

Rookie Ron Darling pitched the first shutout of his career with a four-hitter and New York got all its runs at St. Louis on one-out, two-run doubles by Keith Hernandez, Hubie Brooks and Jose Oquendo.

Pirates 3, Expos 2

At Montreal, Pittsburgh benefitted from two Expo throwing errors and Brian Harper's double to score two runs in the ninth inning.

The Expos went ahead 2-1 on Jim Wohlford's RBI single in the eighth, but in the ninth second baseman Derrel Thomas threw away the relay on a double-play attempt, allowing pinch-hitter Jim Morrison to go to second. Morrison then scored when shortstop Doug Flynn misfired the ball after fielding Marvel Wynne's grounder.

Astros 3, Dodgers 1

Mike Scott and Dave Smith combined on a five-hitter to lead Houston to a home victory over Los Angeles.

Hearns, Duran ready to square off

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Roberto Duran will try tonight, on the eve of his 33rd birthday, to beat Thomas Hearns.

The Panamanian's bid for the World Boxing Council super welterweight title figures to be a much tougher task than the one accomplished on his 32nd birthday last year.

Then he beat Davey Moore, who was fighting professionally for only the 13th time, for the World Boxing Association's version of the 154-pound class championship.

Hearns, who is 38-1, with 32 knockouts, and who has won two world titles, is a 5½-2 favorite to win the scheduled 12-round bout at a 26,000-seat outdoor arena on the grounds of Caesars Palace.

Duran could care less.

"I'll beat Thomas Hearns by knockout. I'm much better than he is," said the triple world champion, who will be the challenger because he is defying a WBA edict.

But Hearns said if he wins — he also is predicting a knockout victory — "I will feel I've unified the title."

In the future for the winner of the bout looms a major match against Marvelous Marvin Hagler, the undisputed middleweight champion.

Hagler scored on a 15-round unanimous decision over Duran here last Nov. 10, but was criticized for his performance in some quarters.

Whoever wins tonight can boost the financial attractiveness of a fight against Hagler by winning impressively.

Each man reportedly is getting in the neighborhood of $3 million for the match, which will be seen on pay and closed-circuit television. It also will be televised live on a delayed basis to 27 countries.

"Duran is predicting a knockout, and I'm predicting a knockout," said Hearns. "So you know it's going to be a great fight, no matter who gets who first."

Hearns scored 30 knockouts in winning his first 32 pro fights and the WBA welterweight champion is known as the Hit Man from Detroit. But since being stopped in the 14th round by Sugar Ray Leonard for the undisputed 147-pound title here Sept. 16, 1981, he has scored just two knockouts in six fights.

Some observers feel right hand injuries, which Hearns says have healed, have affected his punching power.

Yankees' Piniella retires at age 41

BOSTON (AP) — Lou Piniella, a veteran outfielder who helped the New York Yankees to four American League pennants and two World Series championships, is hanging up his glove because of a chronic shoulder problem.

Piniella, who will be 41 in August, said Thursday he is retiring "in the best interests of the club and myself."

"We're back in the pack and this will give the club an opportunity to look at some younger people," Piniella said in an interview.

A couple of hours later, starting his final game in Boston, Piniella was given a standing ovation when he came to bat in the second inning. He responded with a single to center.

However, Piniella will remain in a New York uniform.

General Manager Clyde King said that he will continue as the Yankees' batting instructor and become first base coach on Monday, when waivers expire.

Roy White, a longtime New York outfielder, and the team's first base coach, has elected to move into King's office as a special assistant.

Piniella, who is in his 16th American League season, is working on the final season of a three-year contract. He has a lifetime .290 batting average and a .295 mark in 10 plus seasons with the Yankees.

Brother influences Kevin Warner's life

By RHONDA WOODALL
Church Editor

Tom Warner's influence helped his brother, Kevin, choose the ministry as a career. Today, Kevin Warner is the outreach missionary for East Fourth Street Baptist Church.

Tom, an Oregon minister, was the first real Christian influence in his life, Warner said. "My brother helped me understand the difference between religion and Christianity.

"After I got out of high school, my brother kept telling me about an experience he had had," Warner said. "He kept talking about 'being saved.' I didn't know what he was talk about, so he gave me a book ("How to be a Christian Without Being Religious") to read.

"Before (I read it), I was just trying to lead a good moral life and be a good boy. When I read the book I realized I had made a god out of my church. The book had a big effect on my life. It is through that book I came to know the Lord."

His brother also made it easier for Warner to leave the Catholic church, he said. Warner was raised in the church and attended Catholic school. "A lot of the big changes came with my brother. He paved the way for me. He was the first to leave the Catholic church. My dad thought it was just a fad my brother was going through. My dad sat and talked with him about it."

Warner's father understood his sons' decisions to leave the

KEVIN WARNER

Catholic church. "Dad made the statement, 'I'd rather you be a good Baptist than a bad Catholic.' He understood being a Christian meant more than just having your name on a church roll. He let us make our own decisions, and he supported us."

After "surrendering to the Lord at 18," Warner's life began to change.

"I became somewhat disillusioned with the Catholic Church. I love the Catholics, it's just that I question some of their doctorines. I talked to my parish priest and he didn't understand, so I left the church and began studying the Bible on my own. I thought all churches were the same."

Warner found a group of "sincere people" and began worshipping with them. He joined the church which happened to be Baptist.

After joining the church, Warner decided to go into the ministry. "I felt the Lord wanted me to do more than just attend church. That's how we moved to Farmington, N.M. A friend of ours started a mission (there) and asked us to come help start it."

During his ministerial career, Warner has worked with nine pastors. "I've learned something from everyone of them. They all had something to share."

One of the pastor he worked with in New Mexico was Bobby Fuller, pastor of College Baptist Church. "One of the extra blessing about coming to Big Spring was being able to get close to a good friend. Bobby found out about this position being open. He talked to Guy (White, pastor of East Fourth Street Baptist Church) about me. Then he told me about the position. I thought and prayed about it, and felt good about it."

Warner and his wife Toni helped Fuller with a puppet seminar at College Baptist Church last August.

Fuller also told Warner about the religion department at Eastern New Mexico University in Portales, N.M. Warner decided to attend and graduate from ENMU because the Bible program it offered.

Warner believes Toni and son Jason, 8, are an important part of his ministry. "I think if you ask any minister what the greatest asset to their ministry (is), you'll find at the top of their list the family. My family is the second most important thing in my life. The first thing is my relationship with God."

As outreach missionary, Warner helps oversee how the church's mission money is spent locally and internationally. He also works with the bus ministry, the children's worship service, and the Upper Room. His job includes making contact with newcomers and anyone who visits the church.

At East Fourth Street Baptist, Warner wants "to get as many (of) our own people involved as I can. I want everyone to feel a part of the ministry."

Warner also wants to increase mission education. "I think the more we understand about what missionaries are doing and what kind of people they are working with, the more we can improve our prayer life by knowing what and how to pray for the missionaries."

Warner pastored a church in Elida, N.M. prior to moving to Big Spring. While attending ENMU he was music and youth director at a church in Portales, N.M. Warner enjoys playing softball and the guitar.

Women continue Bible study

The ladies of Calvary Baptist Church continued their study of the book of Acts during a Bible study meeting, June 5 in the home of Gladys Sanderson.

The women studied "Planting Churches in the Cities." Since World War II, several churches have deserted the cities. Some churches, including Southern Baptist, have left the inner cities or downtown to resettle in the suburbs. The churches have gone to "where the people are." These moves have contributed toward evangelizing the suburbs, but often leave the cities without much Christian witnessing.

Following the Bible study, Mrs. Almas Sullivan was honored with a farewell party. She will be moving near Dallas. She has been a long-time member of the church and the WMU. She has served the church as organist.

The next meeting will be the Royal Service Missionary, June 19.

Prayer meetings planned

Fourteen area churches will sponsor a Spiritual Life Crusade at Big Spring High School Auditorium, July 1-6. Dwayne Stone of Nampa, Idaho, evangelist, will lead the crusade.

In anticipation of the crusade, the churches will gather to pray for the revival to be held in Big Spring. Prayer meetings will be held June 22 at Foursquare Gospel Lighthouse, 1210 E. 19th, and June 28 at Evangel Temple Assembly of God, 2205 Goliad. Both meetings which are informal will begin at 7 p.m. The public is invited.

Church celebrates mortgage retirement with services

Evangel Temple Assembly of God will be having a "Victory Homecoming Celebration" day, June 17, in celebration of the mortgage retirement of the church. Services will begin at 10 a.m. with Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Reagan, former pastors, and Dale E. Dailey, pastor, speaking.

At 3 p.m., the victory celebration service will begin with Rev. J.W. Farmer, superintendent of the West Texas District Council of the Assemblies of God, speaking. The afternoon service will be highlighted with an official burning of the note on the church. The public is invited.

Evangel Temple Assembly was found in 1961 as Faith Assembly of God. In 1966, the church relocated at to 2205 Goliad, and the name was changed to Goliad Assembly of God. Later the church's name was changed to Evangel Temple Assembly. In 1969, the present auditorium facilities was built.

Prison ministry program presented at meeting

Ethel Hickson presented a program at the June 4 meeting of the Women of First Church of God.

The program, "From Crime to Christ," was written by Helen Russell, pastor of the Baltimore Street Church of God in Baltimore, Md. Mrs. Russell, who developed a ministry for persons in prison, shares her experiences of being accepted and appreciated by the inmates.

Kathryn Thomas reviewed an interview with Warden John W. Allman of Big Spring Federal Prison. The prison has a capacity of 500 with 373 prisoners now. There are no violent inmates, no rapists, no child molesters and no murderers. The prisoners easily adapt to society because of encourage participation in community activities.

The next meeting will be July 2 in the church sanctuary.

Rev. Stanley chosen as convention president

By KATE POUND
Associated Press Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — National delegates of the Southern Baptist Convention chose the Rev. Charles Stanley, a conservative Atlanta minister, over two opponents for president of the 14.1-million-member denomination.

Stanley won 7,692 of the 14,822 votes cast to outdistance the Rev. Grady C. Cothen of Nashville, Tenn., who had 3,874 votes. The Rev. John Sullivan, the convention's first vice president, finished third with 3,174 votes. About 100 votes were invalid.

Stanley's election Tuesday was a victory for Southern Baptist conservatives, who have elected their candidate every year since 1979.

During the past five years the denomination has split into conservative and moderate factions. Convention leaders have said this meeting could line up the denomination along one side.

As a conservative, Stanley said, he opposes the ordination of women and backs prayer in schools.

"I am committed to Biblical authority," he said after his election.

Downplaying the conservative-moderate rift, Stanley, 51, said he did not believe he was elected by just one faction.

"You'll never get all Baptists to agree. I think we'll have to learn to live together and love each other," he said.

Helen Braun promoted

Mrs. Carroll (Helen) Braun of the Salvation Army was promoted to the rank of Captain, June 3. Commissioner Andrew S. Miller, on the recommendation of divisional commander Col. John Mikles promoted Mrs. Braun and her husband Carroll Braun.

Class met for luncheon

The Gleaners Class of Baptist Temple Church met for a luncheon in the church fellowship hall, May 31. The women reminisced about past events.

Minister seeks support for Wesley's Chapel in England

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The minister of Wesley's Chapel in England, the parent church of Methodism, is touring the United States seeking support for his church and helping some congregations celebrate the American Methodist Bicentennial.

The Rev. Ronald C. Gibbins has been pastor of the historic church since its restoration was completed in 1979. The church was established in 1778 by John Wesley, founder of the Methodist movement. Gibbins is the 65th minister of Wesley's Chapel, located on the northeast edge of London.

American Methodists contributed 52 percent of the $1.4 million cost to restore the chapel building. John Wesley House was restored in 1981 at a cost of $203,000. And the Chapel Keeper's house was restored this year for $72,800. The Benson Building, which houses a Methodist religious order, was restored for $28,000.

The final renovation is the Crypt, which will house the Museum of Methodism. It will cost $112,000 and reopen in September.
