Lebanese leader escapes explosion

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — An explosion tore through President-elect Bashir Gemayel's political headquarters today, but Gemayel escaped unharmed, private radio stations reported.

The stations said several people were injured in the explosion, which occurred in Phalange Party headquarters in Christian east Beirut at about 4 p.m. (10 a.m. EDT).

The cause of the explosion was not immediately known.

The radio stations said three floors of the building collapsed and that rescue workers were digging in the rubble in search of victims. An Associated Press Emplyoee in East Beirut said ambulances raced through the streets and that gunfire could be heard.

Gemayel, a Christian, was elected Aug. 23 by Parliament to head this divided Moslem-Christian nation. The president-elect has resigned as miltiary commander of the rightist Christian Lebanese Forces militia.

The Lebanese army took effective control of predominantly Moslem west Beirut for the first time earlier today without the support of international forces.

Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan said the army also would deploy in Christian east Beirut Wednesday after the last unopened crossing point between the two sectors of the capital was reopened.

Lebanese army units patrolled west Beirut after French peacekeeping troops sailed for home Monday night. No security breaches were reported as the army took over positions previously held by Moslem leftist Lebanese militiamen.

The 850 French troops left Beirut aboard four vessels.

The French arrived Aug. 21 to assist in the evacuation of Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas from west Beirut and help restore order in the war-torn capital. They were later joined by 530 Italian infantrymen and 800 U.S. Marines. The American and Italian forces left Beirut last week.

The PLO guerrillas were bottled up in west Beirut by Israeli invasion forces and evacuated from the capital under an agreement worked out by American negotiators.

On Monday, Israeli jets hit Syrian and Palestinian positions in eastern Lebanon's Bekaa Valley.

The latest raids killed 30 soldiers and guerrillas and left several military emplacements in flames, Lebanese radio stations said.

Israel's military command said the raiders wrecked one of Syria's Soviet-made SAM-9 missile batteries and returned home safely. The Syrian state radio said the Israelis wounded two soldiers and damaged six heavy guns.

It was the fourth time since Wednesday that Israel attacked Syrian and Palestinian positions in central and eastern Lebanon to avenge what it called violations of a July 23 cease-fire. The raid also came a day after Syria put its 220,000-strong armed forces on maximum alert, claiming Israel is the truce breaker in the 13-week-old Lebanon war.

Lebanese radio stations called Monday's air attack the heaviest Israeli assault on Syrian positions in the Bekaa since the cease-fire. They said warplanes roared over the valley for eight hours, hitting missile sites at Dahr al-Baidar and armor concentrations near Zahle, Tenayel, Saad Nayel and Tarshish. One leftist station called the attack a "new round of full-scale warfare."

Midlanders rally around Angelo

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Jack Kemp talked of an "esprit de corps," or driving force that makes the United States a great country, relating it to the need for people to rally behind President Reagan and his economic program.

But the real spirit that filled the atmosphere at noon Monday in Midland Center came from the 800-plus Midlanders who turned out to give hometown candidate Ernest Angelo Jr. a strong shove into his race for state senator from the 25th District.

The barbecue luncheon that cost $10 a plate featured such political heavies as Kemp, a leading Republican congressman from New York; Eddie Chiles, president and chief executive officer of the Western Co. and a strong GOP supporter; U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler of Hunt, whose 21st District will encompass Midland in January; State GOP Chairman Chester Upham; and 28th District state senate candidate Jim Reese of Odessa.

Angelo — a petroleum engineer, former mayor and member of the National Republican Executive Committee — listened to plaudits from the speakers, took an Eddie Chiles "I Love America Too" bumper sticker and joined hands in a victory sign with Kemp.

MIDLAND CENTER held a standing room only crowd, which surpassed plans by Angelo's committee for 700.

There was a feeling of conviviality as Chiles, serving as emcee, inserted toasty jabs at each featured person on the podium.

Kemp topped off the rally with his speech that embraced the present economic theory, intertwined with humorous stories of his football family and spiced with references to the Bible.

A former football player with the Buffalo Bills, Kemp quipped, "I know I'm a Yankee and I have to be careful what I say in West Texas." The father of "the third string quarterback of the Los Angeles Rams (son Jeff)," the New York congressman began by joking that football and politics are interlinked.

"If it hadn't been for football, Ronald Reagan wouldn't be where he is today," Kemp said amid chuckles in recalling the president's early movie career when he played the role of a football player. At one point in that movie, reminisced Kemp, Reagan was told to carry the ball and he answered, "How far, coach?"

That line, contended Kemp, "has rubbed off on our president."

Although Kemp has been mentioned as a presidential candidate as far back as 1972, early in the speech he set aside any such thoughts by the audience. "I was here in 1980 campaigning for Ronald Reagan. I'll be back in Texas in 1984 campaigning for President Reagan."

LOOKING BACK on his $6,000 salary as a player for the Buffalo team, Kemp said then his dream was to make the top salary, which at that time was $18,000. Today, his son makes 10 times what the congressman made, "and he's only half as good as his old man."

"But that's what this country is all about; it's a sense of boundless opportunity. There's nothing standing in your way."

And if the president's economic policy — a philosophy of supply side economics which Kemp helped author and advocate since the mid-1970s — succeeds, it will bring back to the country a "system of boundless chance."

"Without a healthy economy, without jobs being created, without the sense of growth we can not only not meet our social and economic problems but we can't meet our very human family problems that have so much to do with the future of this country.

"I think this president has been courageous in bringing about a regulatory policy, a tax policy and a fiscal policy that is able to put the nation back on the road to economic growth," he added.

Full employment without inflation is the key to getting the country out of the recession, Kemp contended.

HE DISAGREED with what he called liberal Democrats' view that a generous government is demonstrated by how big the safety net is. Instead, he said, the generosity of a country is reflected in how many people can be made self-sufficient.

Falling back on the Bible to support his theory, Kemp said, "The essence of a Judeo-Christian society indeed is part of the Talmud, is part of the Bible, that the noblest charity is to prevent people from having to take charity."

The congressman who is completing his sixth term suggested elected officials create a "safety ladder...high enough to challenge the very best in our society, will bring out the most creative, will bring out the entrepreneural talents, will bring out the productive genius of our society." And that ladder should be low enough so that "every child of God has a chance to put

County awards contract with unusual coin toss

By ED TODD

Midland County Judge Bill Ahders came up with a not-so-novel but workable solution Monday in making a tough decision: flip a coin.

"Do you fellows want to draw straws?" he had asked Davey Hutson and Rod Stephenson, building contractors who had made "ball-park" bids on moving the Tax Assessor-Collector's and Elections Administrator's offices several block southwest from the downtown courthouse to a new location at Front Avenue and Pecos Street.

The commissioners couldn't decide to whom to award the "emergency" contract, which could range upward from $10,000, including the relocating of the offices and building cabinets.

"I would be perfectly content with either one of them," said Commissioner Durward Wright.

Despite protest, county budget OK'd

By ED TODD

A county commissioner, and not the public, protested taxes Monday, when the Midland County Commissioners' Court approved the county's $10.6 million 1983 budget, which is 20 percent higher than last year's budget, and an 18.03-cent tax rate, which is a 4 percent hike.

The dissenting vote was cast by Charlie Welch.

"I think if I approve the budget, I approve the tax rate," said Welch in explaining why he voted "nay" on the proposed budget. "If it's over what our income is without a tax increase," said Welch, who has been a commissioner since 1969, "I'm against it."

Initially, Welch's stance — an abstention or a "no" vote — wasn't clear to his cohorts, newsmen or the minutekeeper, County Clerk Rosenelle Cherry.

"Oh, I'm naying it," said the commissioner. "I'm not voting for it."

He also voted against the tax rate which, like the budget vote, passed 4-1.

"Why are you voing against it?" asked Commissioner Win Brown.

"Because it raises taxes," he said.

IN OTHER MATTERS, Welch went with the majority. The commissioners:

—Gave architect Walter Pate the go-ahead to design plans for the proposed $6.8 million Jail and Courthouse Addition, to be built on the courthouse square and immediately north of courthouse, and to draw plans for the proposed $1.8 million renovation of the 1930-vintage courthouse. The Commissioners' Court plans to call a general bond election on Jan. 15 — same date of a proposed Bingo election — to finance the construction.

—Went along with The First National Bank of Midland's proposal in readying for the construction of the new Midland County Public Library, a proposed four-story edifice plus basement, which the bank has agreed to help make a reality by arranging bond financing and leasing library building space essentially to pay off the county's projected $8.8-million revenue-bond indebtedness to be incurred in the project.

—Set 30 mph speed limits on certain county roads.

—Put a 20,000-pound (10-ton) truck load limits on select roads.

THE LIBRARY project made headway after the Commissioners' Court agreed with the bank's proposal to raise from $100,000 to $150,000 the amount of non-recourse money the county would retain out of a $701,240 escrow deposit should the county and the bank "for any reason not be able to conclude construction of the new library."

In addition, the commissioners approved a request by Don McCall, the bank's executive vice president, for relocating utilities and razing the former American Legion Hall just south of the downtown library.

Last year, FNB President Charles D. Fraser announced that the bank would assist the county in constructing a new library to be county-owned and on county property but within the bank's envisioned Super Block North and adjacent to the bank's planned 40-story tower. Later in the year, the bank paid the county $701,240 for the 12 lots, including 2½ lots then owned by the

At last, parks becoming priority item

EDITOR'S NOTE: As Midland has grown, its parks system has not. As a result, the city's Parks and Recreation Department has been trying to recoup from years of neglect by city officials. This is the first of a four-part series examining the issue.

"Preserve our parks for future generations."

The message on this local bumper sticker sounds like a good idea, but first there must be parks that are suitable to be left to future generations.

In Midland's almost 100-year history, developing parks for future generations hasn't been one of the city's priorities, and in one case the city didn't keep what it had. As a result, today finds the city Parks and Recreation Department playing what seems to be a never-ending game of catch-up with its parks system.

In a Master Plan prepared in the mid-1970s for the Parks Department, it pointed to Midland as having "high per capita income and educational levels, fine homes and a growing skyline, an excellent school system, a progressive and prudent municipal government and lively cultural institutions.

"A closer look reveals many of a city's problems. Among these a long neglected park system stands out as a municipal embarrassment. Many Midland citizens have long been concerned about their parks but little has been done about them," added the report, prepared by Park Plan Associates.

Acquiring park land didn't rank as a priority for the Midland City Council until the past two to three years, city officials have admitted.

A STUDY ON THE history of Midland's parks prepared a few years ago by Mark Weston, a summer intern, disclosed that early-day Midlanders first sought recreation at a spot known as Chinagrove. Located east of town, it was the site for large picnicking groups.

Ulmer Park, site of the first Midland College, was used for an extensive sports program starting in 1910, the report stated. Cloverdale Farm, later known as Cole Park, had a 1 million gallon stock tank that was used as a swimming pool as far back as 1915. "Bought in 1927 as a water field, Cole Park was Midland's first park," it was stated in "The Who, When, What, Why Book of Midland Parks" prepared by Weston.

Next acquired was Pagoda Park in 1934, which was located at the junction of Andrews Highway, Wall Street and Highway 80, or where the Village Shopping Center is today. It became a major recreational spot for Midlanders.

"Pagoda Park's life was a short, but a foot on the rung of the ladder so that he or she can reach their potential."

What everyone wants in this country is sound stable prices and prosperity, he said. But despite President Reagan's efforts at lower taxes and reduced inflation, the one thing that has been left undone is the monetary policy.

Kemp predicted that Congress over the next two years will have to deal with the issue of a monetary policy. "It will be putting back into place a dollar which you can count. We must put back in place the credibility of our monetary policy once again."

The 47-year-old congressman continued on his theme of a sound monetary policy during the news conference, citing the need to become stabilized in face of the tumbling economy and peso in Mexico.

"Mexico and our Latin American friends will be dependent upon a sound monetary policy from us. It's an important foreign policy to have a peaceful, secure Mexico on our border."

The United States is going through difficult times, but Kemp believes it is for a purpose. Recalling a scripture from the book of Ecclesiastes, he said, "As gold is tested in the furnace of fire, the acceptable man, the acceptable woman is tested in the furnace of adversity. No doubt these are adverse times. The president is wrestling with problems the likes of which had not been wrestled with in the last decade or so."

Claiming that it is up to the United States to once again lead the world, Kemp said the country is concerned not only with problems of a majority of the people, but also those of a minority.

"That is the example of the Bible; that is the example of great leadership from time immemorial. We need men and women of integrity; men and women of honor; men and women who look into those fundamental values. That which our fathers bequeathed us must be earned anew. In a way we are earning anew the heritage that has been given to us by our fathers and our mothers."

IN SUMMARIZING, Kemp said that if "you take away industriousness, if you tax away thrift, you take away the driving force of the economy, you've taken away a chance for democracy, for political freedom. Inexplicably woven together is political and economic freedom."

But while he urged full support of President Reagan's economic policy, during a news conference afterward Kemp explained why he took a different fork in the road on the recent tax increase bill that the president supported.

"It's the opposite of Reaganomics; raising taxes is increasing the deficit," he said. And the Senate's override of Reagan's veto on the spending bill wasn't that vital of an issue.

One of the biggest problems with the tax increase bill came with the provision to tax dividends on savings accounts. To Kemp, this is a double taxation coming at a time when people are beginning to save more.

"That was a big mistake on savings and was one reason I couldn't support the bill. We should be talking of lower taxes on savings, not more."

Another aspect that raised his ire over the bill called for higher payroll taxes from employers. "The payroll taxes will be doubled from 3.1 percent to 6.1 percent over three years. That's the reason employers can't hire people. Small businesses are responsible for 90 percent of the workers today and it's hurting these people the most."

ADDRESSING SPEAKER of the House Tip O'Neill's proposal for a $1 billion public jobs bill, Kemp said, "Clearly, the American people are concerned about jobs. But I don't think they want more public service jobs. People want jobs in the private sector. I don't think the bill will pass."

Agreeing was Loeffler, who also had parted company with Reagan on the tax increase legislation. Citing figures to show that inflation had fallen to about 5½ percent, the interest rates down to 13½ percent and that housing starts are back up, he acknowledged that the recession isn't over yet. "To go to a $1 billion jobs program is gashing open a wound that we're almost through healing."

Of the tax increase bill, he said, "I had reservations about increasing taxes at a time when our economy is beginning to turn up."

Kemp came out against a Flat Rate Income Tax and an immigration bill in the Senate which would issue cards to illegal aliens, and pushed for Texas to pass enabling legislation to set up urban enterprise zones.

Under this legislation, businesses which locate in rundown urban areas would be classified in federal compensatory tax zones and hopefully would put many of the unemployed back to work, he said.

Current political stance suits Jack Kemp just fine

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

For almost 10 years, Jack Kemp has been standing next to the spotlight, serving as the best man rather than the bridegroom when it comes to that apex post called president. Recently, rumors became loud that the New York congressman was readying for Ronald Reagan's seat as he fought the president for the first time over the $99 billion tax increase bill.

But before he got far into his talk here Monday at the Ernest Angelo Jr. rally at Midland Center, Kemp made an announcement that he hopes will cause the talk to cease.

Instead of pushing himself for the 1984 presidential race, Kemp said he will be back in Texas that year to campaign for President Reagan's re-election.

In an exclusive interview with The Reporter-Telegram, Kemp said he was positive about a second round with a Reagan-Bush ticket.

"Yes, it's definite that Reagan will run for re-election," he said, adding that it will be a Reagan-Bush ticket for a second run and not Reagan-Kemp. "They have a good ticket going and they should keep it. And I'll strongly support it."

But as to when his day is coming for the spotlight, Kemp sidestepped on giving a definite answer.

"I've done pretty good. I don't think you have to be president of the United States to be successful in life. Besides, I want a position of real power...I want to commissioner of the National Football League...when (Pete) Rozelle gets through," he said, slipping in one of his quips.

A former football player for the Buffalo Bills, Kemp left the team and stayed in that New York city, where he was elected to Congress for the first time in 1970. Since then, according to news reports, he's won re-election with an overwhelming majority each time.

Turning back to the question, Kemp said that he has been successful in promoting "an idea whose time has come. I'm more ambitious for the idea of restoring economic incentive to the country than I am for political office."

His "idea" was the three-year tax cut and spending cut piece of legislation known as the Kemp-Roth bill. Along with William Roth of Delaware, the two dreamed up the idea in the mid-1970s and pushed it in Congress unsuccessfully.

But Ronald Reagan subscribed to the idea and Kemp became a favorite of the president's after his election.

Kemp, one of the originators of the supply-side economic theory, has a New York district facing a 12 percent unemployment rate which he admitted won't be solved soon.

Still a vocal fighter for his tax-cut theory, Kemp blamed continued high unemployment on the fickle monetary policy set by the Federal Reserve Board and its chairman, Paul Volcker.

"We need to restore a low interest rate monetary policy because oxygen has been shut off for consumers, for housing, for steel, for autos, for farms. So, what has been characterized as Reaganomics is really nothing more or anything less than what Paul Volcker says it is at 4 o'clock on the ticker on Wall Street on Friday" when the latest monetary figures are released.

Congress needs to get busy and force the Fed to follow a policy in which there can be some liquidity put back into the economy, Kemp contended. "There's been a liquidity crisis caused by an over-reaction of the Fed."

Tax cuts, he added, weren't designed to work in the face of a monetary policy which causes high interest rates.

With his half-and-half mix of sandy-colored and gray hairs, the 47-year-old congressman appears relaxed before a large audience. Standing in a position that calls to mind football players — hands clutched in the back and shoulders hunched forward — he speaks at a fast clip but with ease, slipping in short, humorous stories throughout the talk.

Kemp, who said he has fought tax and spending increases for 10 years, still supports a balanced budget, but not the amendment which the president wants. "I'm a conservative heterodox," he said of his disagreeing with the president.

To reach a balanced budget there must be a healthy economy, Kemp contended. Without it, the budget will never be balanced.

While Northeast congressmen have been criticized by oil and gas people for attacking their industry with high taxes, Kemp pointed out that he is a supporter of free enterprise.

"I voted against the Windfall Profits Tax. I'm for decontrol of natural gas and oil." With decontrol, he said, it means a larger supply of the product and less dependence upon Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, he said.

Despite protest, commissioners approve budget city, comprising the library property at 301 W. Missouri Ave., in turn, the county paid the city of Midland $146,091 in buying the city's 2½ lots of the property.

"Plans for the project have progressed smoothly," McCall said in a Sept. 2 letter to the county judge.

Should the library agreement between the bank and county collapse, then the county would retain ownership of the 12 lots, would "make do" with its 1957-vintage library library, and would keep $150,000 of the escrow deposit.

However, Commissioner C. DeWayne Davis, the liaison to the bank on the library project, expressed confidence that the project was going forward. The funds held in escrow, he said, would be for the library's "internal fixtures."

THE JAIL and courthouse addition gained impetus after architect Pate persuaded the commissioners to authorize him to begin drawing schematics on the projects and to have the courthouse ground surveyed for $2,500.

"We're ready to go to work," said Pate. "We're ready to go into the design stage."

Tentative plans call for renovating the courthouse for $1.8 million and essentially making a house of courts out of the five-story building, plus basement. Lodged there would be the three state district courts, the two county courts, offices of the county and district clerks, offices of the county and district prosecutors, and the law library.

The multi-story jail and courthouse addition, at a cost of $6.85 million, would include space for 225 inmates and, tentatively, offices of the justices of the peace and the constable.

"This will more than double our space," said Commissioner Win Brown. According to the architect's figures, the courthouse has 73,824 gross square feet, and the projected square footage of the jail and courthouse addition would be 72,841.

However, the commissioners briefly entertained adding a sixth floor to the courthouse, but Pate termed that proposal "very, very expensive."

Commissioners still are considering building a courthouse annex, 1½ blocks east of the courthouse, for housing non-court related offices of county government.

COMMISSIONERS put a 20,000-pound load limit on certain County Roads, including three two-mile roads — 130 West (Warren Road), 140 West (Davis Road), 150 West — which connect the Rankin Highway to Midkiff Road, and on County Roads 1135 South,1130 South, 1130 North, 1160 North, 60 East to Loop 250, and Cotton Flat to 150.

The load-zoning item on the agenda was prompted after Welch last week posted what turned out to be illegal signs barring heavy truck traffic on County Road 1160 North. "What I was trying to do was to save the road," he explained. State law requires that load-zoning signs, including weight limitations, be posted only after an engineering study.

The county judge may give "load permits," which would allow an overweight truck to travel a road but only after the trucker had posted a bond to ensure he would pay for any damage his trucks may have caused the road.

"That's fair," said Bill Harral, the county's consulting engineer.

"That's all we're saying," echoed Welch. "Get fair."

"The one who tears up the road ought to pay for it," said Harral.

Sheriff's deputies and Texas Department of Public Safety troopers can enforce load-zoning ordinances; the constable or his deputies cannot, said Harral.

Commissioner Durward Wright abstained on the load-zoning vote.

"I don't want to put something on their (the oil companies') back that would curtail their operations," he said. "I'm not voting for that, judge," Wright told County Judge Bill Ahders, "until more studies (are made)." Wright said the load zoning "might adversely affect oil companies."

"In case they tear up the road," said the judge, "the bonds would take care of the repair."

The commissioners also dropped the speed limit from 55 mph to 30 mph, effective immediately, in the Llano Estacado addition in far northwest Midland, on County Road 114 West to County Road 1207 South, and at County Road 110 in Airline Mobile Home Park. The commissioners set at 45 mph speed limit on County Road 1130 North to U.S. Highway 80.

County awards contract with unusual coin toss

which is to be occupied by late September, at a cost of about $181,000. In the early 1970s, Stephenson had moved the courthouse offices to temporary quarters a block east when the courthouse was renovated and expanded.

"It's awfully hard to make cost estimates," said Stephenson, who offered a $10,000 to $15,000 proposal for the job. "Of course, that's just ball-park figures; we're just reaching up in the sky."

Hutson had offered a $10,500 bid for move and an additional $12,000 for new cabinets. "That includes all the overhead and profits," he said. He also had agreed to submit a cost-plus bid.

The commissioners paused in indecision.

"Let me flip a coin," the judge to said to the abiding commissioners and the bidders.

He flipped the coin and slammed it on the table.

"You call it," Hutson told Stephenson.

"Heads," ventured Stephenson.

"Heads it is," said the judge, and the commissioners voted accordingly.

Police say two thefts reported at Holiday Inn Country Villa

In a rash of theft and burglary complaints lodged with city police during the past 24 hours, Dwight Nevil of Pottsboro told officers clothing and golf equipment valued at $1,345 were taken from his room at the Holiday Inn Country Villa, 4300 W. Highway 80, sometime Monday. There was no sign of forced entry.

Ava Warren of Pampa reported the theft of $765 worth of jewelry from the same motel Monday. There was no sign of forced entry.

An employee of the Pizza Inn, 3316 W. Illinois, said $600 in bank deposits were missing. The theft apparently occurred earlier in the month but wasn't discovered until Monday.

A break-in at the ARC Truck and Auto Body Repair Shop at 2700 W. Francis netted thieves $2,550 worth of stereo equipment, while a TV set, a stereo unit and four Timex watches were reported taken in a burglary of the Colonial Food Store, 610 N. Big Spring St., early this morning. The loss was placed at $445. Entry was gained by breaking a plate glass window.

An $860 self-cleaning oven was reported taken from a vacant house at 5001 Brunswick. Entry was gained by prying open the front door.

Police responding to an alarm at Lee Freshman School, 1400 E. Oak Ave., arrested a 23-year-old man who gave a Lubbock address and who police say is on probation for a previous burglary conviction.

Arriving officers said the suspect came out from behind a soft drink machine in the school Monday night and tried to flee through a window. A tire tool found nearby was taken into evidence.

Mauro brings up rejuvenated Veterans Land Fund

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

While managing the Veterans Land Fund is one of the less important functions of state land commissioner, Democratic candidate Garry Mauro focused his news conference Monday afternoon on the fact that money is now available for loans under the program.

Mauro, running half an hour late for the news conference at Midland Regional Airport, is opposing Republican Woody Glasscock for the statewide office in the November general election. He had little to say about his opponent, other than to insert a few jabs about the lack of a visible campaign from Glasscock. And Mauro acknowledged that Midlander W.E. "Pete" Snelson, whom he defeated in a runoff, hasn't given him an endorsement.

"The Veterans Land Board is back in business after nearly two years," Mauro, 34, said. Because a state law prohibits selling bonds for more than 12 percent interest, the board had been out of work due to interest rates which surpassed the limit.

However, the board recently sold $74 million in bonds and the money will be offered to veterans in amounts up to $20,000 at 8 percent interest.

More than 9,000 veterans are on the waiting list, he said, and the office should be able to process the applications at a rate of 1,000 per week.

Historically, the program was set up after World War II to allow veterans to buy ranches or farms and pay back the loans on a twice-a-year plan, or after the crops were harvested, according to Mauro.

However, today that $20,000 maximum will buy only a part of a ranch or farm, and Mauro is pushing to change the program so veterans can obtain low-interest money for home loans.

"So far, I haven't been able to convince Pete Snelson to support me. The campaign will be hurt some if I don't get it."
— Garry Mauro

"I think it's time to expand the program to include a veterans housing program so that veterans, using conventional financing, could choose to use this money toward the purchase of a home. With so many of our Texas veterans showing an interest in the loan program, I plan to ask the Texas Legislature next session to open this program for down payments on a home. We don't need to do the veterans a favor, just repay one," he said.

And with the approval last November by voters, the state will be able to sell another $250 million in bonds. Mauro said he hopes the money can be loaned out on a revolving basis; that as repayments come in it will go back out as additional loans.

Denying that he deserves the label of "liberal," Mauro said, "I'm always concerned when someone tells a lie. I have broad-based support from across the state."

But he's not sure if he will get Snelson's endorsement. Snelson, who was state senator from Midland for 16 years, decided to vacate that seat in favor of the land commissioner's race. He lost in a runoff to Mauro.

"So far, I haven't been able to convince Pete Snelson to support me. The campaign will be hurt some if I don't get it," he admitted.

Polls shows Mauro ahead of Woody Glasscock with a figure of 42 to 24 percent. Referring to some races in which the Republican hierarchy replaced candidates after the election with other people, Mauro commented, "One of my fears is that they'd replace my opponent with a qualified candidate."

Mauro doesn't follow other state candidates' philosophies that income from the oil and gas business will decline in the future. "We'll have deregulated gas. We'll see prices of energy increase" and bring in money to the land commissioner's office.

One of the jobs of the land commissioner will be to see deep gas wells are produced. "Using high technology, we can continue to increase oil and gas production," he maintained.

Money generated from the lands goes to fund the public education system, he noted. "With efficient management, we should be able to generate over $1 billion for the public schools of Texas. Not only will this be the first time in history for the fund to top $1 billion, it will help keep local property taxes down."

The General Land Office contributes $550 for each public school student in Texas from the mineral royalties and other income from state lands and offshore areas, according to Mauro.

Police facing charges

ATHENS, Texas (AP) — Three East Texas community police chiefs face charges that they hired unlicensed officers, at least three of whom had criminal records, a prosecutor says.

A Henderson County grand jury handed down indictments against Police Chief Dewey McSwain of Caney City, Police Chief Doug Curry of Seven Points and Police Chief John Roberts of Gun Barrel City.

Curry was indicted on four counts, McSwain on five counts and Roberts on three counts of employing unlicensed police officers, District Attorney Melvin Whitaker said Monday. Bonds of $500 were set on each count.

Computer can match colors

Recent assignments have included matching the color of a daisy for yellow polyethylene bread wrappers and the inside of sea shells for pearlescent buttons.

Episcopal church embraces nuclear arms freeze

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Episcopal church, traditionally cautious in its political stands, has strongly embraced the swelling movement for a nuclear arms freeze.

The Episcopal governing convention on Monday called for an immediate nuclear freeze by the superpowers and speedy negotiation of a verifiable 50 percent reduction in their nuclear arsenals.

The church also appealed to both East and West to adopt policies against any first-strike use of nuclear arms, and approved a resolution seeking a national interfaith conference to mobilize religious influence against the arms race.

The objective is "for more cooperative and effective action" of Protestant, Eastern Orthodox, Roman Catholic and Jewish representatives "towards changing nuclear arms policies, both here and abroad," the resolution said.

Establishment of a special "peace" office also was authorized to nurture peace concerns throughout the church, and to serve as liaison with other organizations committed to that cause.

Citing the 3 million-member denomination's swing to a "posture of peace," Bishop John H. Burt of Cleveland, head of an international and national affairs committee, said:

"People have become sensitized to the enormity of the nuclear danger and the necessity for more bold U.S. overtures to halt it, instead of rattling sabers and hurling epithets.

"We're saying stop it, enough," he said.

Vice President George Bush, an Episcopalian, spoke against a nuclear freeze when he addressed the church convention, but Burt said "we couldn't buy" Bush's position.

The convention also called for moving federal budget priorities away from "continuing increases in military spending" in favor of maintaining and restoring services to the needy.

"Increased military spending is inseparably linked with impoverishment of the poor and oppressed," the resolution said.

Bishop Maurice M. Benitez of Houston, a former Air Force officer, argued strongly against the call for a no-first-strike policy by the United States, saying it would jeopardize Western Europe and U.S. forces there.

Bishop Rustin R. Kimsey of eastern Oregon said it was clear that Episcopalians had a "more intensified" concern about the nuclear danger than at past conventions.

"This time, the people wanted strong language and strong action to make our voice heard, and to make known our fears and concern," he said at a news conference.

U.S. official says U.S.S.R. seeks relations with Israel

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top U.S. official says the Soviet Union may be seeking to re-establish relations with Israel as a means of enhancing its influence in the Middle East.

Richard Pipes, a Soviet affairs expert on the National Security Council, also says he believes Yuri Andropov, a former head of the Soviet secret police, has emerged as the leading contender to succeed Leonid Brezhnev once the Soviet president dies or steps down.

Speaking Monday to a gathering of the National Interreligious Task Force on Soviet Jewry, Pipes said there have been "some straws in the wind" recently indicating Soviet interest in normalizing relations with Israel.

Relations between the two countries were broken at the time of the 1967 Arab-Israeli war when Israel seized Arab territory on three fronts. Since then, the Soviet role in efforts to achieve a comprehensive Middle East peace settlement has been limited.

Discussing the succession struggle in Moscow, Pipes said Andropov, 67, recently has been attempting to cultivate the image of a liberal but is, in fact, a hardliner.

He predicted a less tolerant attitude toward dissidents in the Soviet Union if Andropov emerges as Brezhnev's successor, a view not universally shared by the State Department.

Big Spring teen-ager charged with robbery

STANTON — A Big Spring teen-ager has been charged with aggravated robbery following an attempted hold-up Monday at a Stanton grocery store, according to Stanton police.

According to police, Bob L. Moore, 17, is in custody at Martin County jail under bond set at $50,000 by Justice of the Peace F.E. Kennedy.

According to police, Moore, wearing sunglasses and a windbreaker with the hood up around his head, entered Bill's Friendly Food in the 200 block of North St. Mary's Street in Stanton about 10:30 a.m. Monday.

He went to one of the checkout stands and pointed a chrome-plated gun at one of the clerks, demanding money.

The clerk handed over an undetermined amount of money, but as the youth headed toward the next checkout stand, Bill Coggins, owner/manager of the store, struck the youth and held him until police arrived, police said.

Marijuana not 'innocent'

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've been using marijuana since I started attending college a couple of years ago, but I'm also interested in staying healthy. What harm can marijuana do if the person who uses it cannot become addicted to it? — Roy, New York

Dear Roy: There are any number of substances that can cause serious harm without becoming addictive. Even something as innocuous as vitamins can do damage if taken to excess. But, in any event, your assumption that marijuana is not addictive is open to question.

Dr. Ronald C. Bloodworth, of the Psychiatric Institute of Atlanta, says it is a misconception that physical or psychological dependence on marijuana does not occur. There is evidence that psychological dependence is common among people who use marijuana and that even some degree of physical dependence can occur. When marijuana users try to stop smoking, they often suffer from irritability, insomnia, anorexia and a general run-down feeling.

Marijuana is not as innocent a substance as you imply. Damage to nerve cells and decreased fertility are only two of the problems that regular users of marijuana may encounter.

For E.C. (Dallas, Texas): What you describe fits into the diagnosis I call decreased thyroid reserve or subclinical hypothyroidism. This is a mild deficiency of thyroid gland reserve due to a primary disease of the thyroid. The patients that I see have few if any symptoms, aside from being overweight. These patients have normal levels of T4 and T3, but elevated levels of TSH. Some, but not all of their peripheral responses to thyroid hormone are abnormal and can be corrected by prescribing proper thyroid hormone. The majority of patients I treat with this problem do well when give a tailor-made diet, exercise program, instruction in behavioral modification, and the proper thyroid hormone. Some of these patients are able to take weight off and keep it off for the first time in their life.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column).

Your horoscope

BY JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, Sept. 15, 1982

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Football star-turned-actor Merlin Olsen (TV's "Father Murphy") shares your birthday, as do actor/director Jackie Cooper, comedian Norm Crosby, "King Kong" actress Fay Wray and Cy Young winner Gaylord Perry (he won in both Major Leagues). Also born on this date: the "king" of country music, Roy Claxton Acuff. The confusion that has been holding you back suddenly ends. You are able to declare your independence in a number of different areas. A new job or promotion is in the offing. Enter contests in November. Although romance is pleasurable, a serious commitment is unlikely. Children influence many decisions.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Loved one's success triggers even loftier ambitions. Try to keep everything in perspective when making a decision regarding romance.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Do not let minor setback get you down. Although a former employer expects you to fall apart, you will emerge stronger than ever! Profits from sales rise.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Job offers come at the last minute. Present yourself in the best possible light. Travel holds some happy surprises. Accompany friends on errands and you find real bargains.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Exude confidence when approaching your boss for a promotion or raise. You meet a potential romantic partner at a business dinner. Keep your sense of humor.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Keep your nose to the grindstone or that leadership position you want will go to someone else. Greater income and prestige are involved.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your hard work pays off handsomely today. You find a benefactor to support a pet project. Beware. There could be a liar in your midst.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Get to know others in your profession by joining a club or attending a conference. You could uncover a job opportunity that you have only dreamed about until now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Money from refunds arrives just in time to solve a temporary cash shortage. Although government red tape slows you down, persist and you will eventually triumph.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): An old idea can be revised and turned into extra cash. Finish a project already on your desk or workbench before tackling anything new.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Legal negotiations can be successfully concluded. Sign those papers as soon as they are available. Technological advances make your life easier and increase profits.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A firm commitment could come unhitched. Working behind the scenes brings you good luck. Changes at place of employment work to your advantage.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Put your money where your mouth is. A co-worker is inclined to embellish the facts. Organization is what puts across a pet project or program.

Opening lead: Six of ♡.

We have had some discussion in these columns lately about freak hands. This one was submitted to Bridge World Magazine.

An action-packed sequence resulted in North-South reaching an excellent grand slam at clubs. East doubled to suggest a lead other than the suit his side had agreed upon, i.e., diamonds. West had no difficulty in deciding that, in that case, he should lead a heart. East ruffed for down one. Most unlucky.

A discussion between the editors of the magazine led to some argument as to whether six no trump could be made by South after the lead of the six of hearts. Indeed the editors found the analysis so interesting that they decided to make a contest out of it, and it is open to readers of this column.

Playing along double dummy lines, can South make six no trump after a heart lead? If you think declarer can, send the winning line of play to: Bridge World Contest, 39 West 94th St., New York, N.Y. 10025. If you think the contract must fail, send the winning defense to the same address. Entries must reach the magazine by October 1. All who submit the correct solution will receive, free, the copy of the magazine in which the solution is presented.

You can receive the solution even if you do not have the winning answer. All you have to do is enclose a large, self-addressed envelope with your solution. Or save yourself 20 cents and watch for the solution in this column early in October.

How do you choose the best opening lead? Charles Goren has the answer. For a copy of "Winning Opening Leads," send $1.85 to "Goren-Leads," care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to Newspaperbooks.

Support your teams

It's September and football fever is gripping many Midlanders who long for the crisp evenings of fall spent watching precisely-tuned football teams grind out yardage on the gridiron.

Local high school teams already are pitting their skills against those of adversaries and the action will continue on Friday nights at least through early November. Each year the Midland High School Bulldogs and Lee High School Rebels bring their fans hours of enjoyment and thrills. This year is no exception.

The local football action may take on a bit of added importance this year. A threatened National Football League players' strike could remove hopes of watching Sunday afternoon football on television, American professional football at least, and the only collegiate football games nearby are those of the Texas Tech Red Raiders, located in Lubbock two hours to the north.

While certain fans swear by professional or collegiate football, though, they're missing some real excitement and some good fun if they aren't attending the games of the local football teams. Countless hours of practice and personal discipline go into each football game. What you see as a fan is only the finished product.

And if anyone has ever told you that the team spirit and camaraderie of high school football surpasses that of the pros, they weren't teasing. The players, the coaches, the officials and, to a great degree, the fans each do their part with unrestrained enthusiasm — and it shows!

Although the season is already under way, the best is yet to come. District play doesn't open until Sept. 24. But you won't find the teams "coasting" at this point. The action is always full-tilt in the Rebels and Bulldogs games.

Don't let the action pass you by this year. Get out and support the team of your choice this season. Or better yet, get out and support both teams. You'll have a great time!

Pushing their 'religion'

While the advocates of the restoration of school prayer in the United States may seem shrill at times, consider a comparison with the way the Soviet Union manipulates its "religion."

Over in Soviet Russia, where constitutional liberties and individual rights are undreamed of, the world is being presented a prime example of how to go about the business of ramming a religion down a nation's collective throat.

The Soviet religion, of course, is atheism. For reasons of their own — maybe an increasing number of proletarians have been espied ducking furtively into the country's few remaining churches — the regime has now decreed a stepped-up "atheistic propaganda" campaign.

As part of this escalated drive, a Soviet publishing house has come up with an "atheist's calendar" designed to keep everybody on his godless toes. And the calendar is broken down into almost as many divisions as there are varieties of Christianity, Judaism and Islamiam.

The publication is designed, according to Kremlin-approved word, as a guide for both the active and the casual atheist. The approaches to devout atheism are set forth as "militant atheism," "science against religion," "ancient beliefs," "the people's view of religion" ad infinitum.

Over here, the school prayer supporters, with some backing from a few administration members, are willing, for the most part, to follow a constitutional route to permit the public school kids to bow their heads for a few seconds at the start of each class day — if they wish.

No such loose reins are tolerated in the Soviet atheistic mission, however, in their paranoia, the Soviet leaders obviously fear that any relaxation may lead a citizen here and there to suspect that there just might be a higher authority than the Presidium.

Help for hospices

In a year when congressional budget-cutters were busy slicing away at federally supported health programs, the likelihood that Congress would extend Medicare coverage to patients in hospice programs was slim. Yet when the $98 billion tax hike bill passed Congress recently, one of its provisions gave federal recognition — for the first time — to hospice programs, and more important, granted full Medicare coverage to hospice patients.

While this is not quite the miracle that some regarded it, it unquestionably is a welcome piece of legislation that will enable more terminally ill people to participate in a program designed to help them — as the hospice movement puts it — "live as fully as possible while dying."

This country's first hospice program began in California only a decade ago. Today, there are between 450 and 500 such programs throughout the United States. Some offer inpatient facilities for the terminally ill while others provide in-home services, but all seek to make the patient as comfortable as possible by easing pain with drugs, providing counseling to help both the patient and his family accept the fact that he is dying, and by offering home-care services to enable the patient to remain at home during his final days.

Many Medicare-eligible patients could not partake in these hospice programs because Medicare restrictions covered little if any of the cost. Under the new legislation, due to take effect Nov. 1, 1983, patients on Medicare with a terminal prognosis of six months or less can opt for a hospice program as an alternative to the traditional health services such as hospitalization. The federal government will pay qualified hospices for the cost of providing a wide variety of inpatient and home-care services to both the patient and family.

Covered services include nursing care, drugs, physician's services, counseling services for patient and family, and homemaker services.

The initial cost to Medicare is expected to run about $3 million, but, according to the Congressional Budget Office, over the next five years the hospice alternative will save the federal government at least $109 million. This savings comes in reduced hospital stays and the medical costs associated with hospitalization.

While the savings in Medicare costs is notable, the true value of this legislation is that it enables more patients to spend their last days at home surrounded by family and friends, instead of alone in the sterile, impersonal atmosphere of a hospital room.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Marcos has 'action teams' silence critics

WASHINGTON — Three years ago, I broke the chilling story that foreign dictators are sending their secret police to the United States to intimidate and silence critics. Some have been silenced permanently.

Jack Anderson

U.S. authorities not only are aware of these terrorist activities but, for diplomatic reasons, have failed to stop the tyrants from extending their repression to some of America's ethnic communities.

One of the worst offenders is the Philippines' congenial dictator, Ferdinand Marcos, who will be wined and dined at the White House later this week. The cause of humanity would be better served if President Reagan, instead of raising his glass to toast Marcos, would raise some questions instead.

The ugly questions can be found in secret intelligence reports which are available to the president. One top-secret report charges that for the past decade the Filipino leader has sent "action teams" to the United States "for the purpose of infiltrating, monitoring and possibly counteracting the threat of anti-Marcos groups." The report warns of "the possibility of violence."

In fact, violence has already struck the Filipino immigrants who work in Alaska's canneries. Most of them belong to Local 37 of the Alaska Cannery Workers Union. Their leaders have been staunchly pro-Marcos, with close ties to the Filipino consulate in Seattle.

But two anti-Marcos reformers, Gene Viernes and Silme Domingo, challenged the leadership and won top positions in their union in late 1980. The following April, Viernes visited the Philippines for the first time in his life and spoke out against Marcos.

Then, late in the afternoon of June 1, 1981, the two 29-year-old reformers were at work in the local's Seattle office when two gunmen came looking for them. Viernes died instantly in the volley of bullets.

Amazingly, Domingo, with four .45-caliber slugs in his body, chased the two assailants into the street, pointed them out to a bystander and managed to give their names to a medic before passing out. He died the next day.

The two assassins were later convicted. The prosecution argued that the two hitmen were members of a gang involved in high-stakes gambling in Alaska, whose activities were threatened by the union reformers. The gang leader, Tony Dictado, was convicted of ordering the murders.

But a "committee for justice," led by Seattle attorney Mike Withey, was not satisfied with the gambling motive. It suspected that the double murder may have been ordered by authorities in Manila, for these reasons:

— The convicted gangleader took the witness stand. He swore he did not order the murders, which, he insisted had nothing to do with gambling. He knew the truth but could not reveal it, he testified, "because my children would be killed in the Philippines."

— The head of Local 37, Tony Baruso, owned the murder weapon and was honored by the Philippine government five months after the killings. He clammed up at the trials under the protection of the Fifth Amendment. He pleaded the Fifth 109 times during the gunmen's trial, another 31 times during gangleader Dictado's trial. During the second trial, the defense attorney accused him of ordering the murders.

— The slain reformers were in contact with dissidents in the Philippines, including two labor leaders who were arrested last month by Marcos and accused of subversion. Inspired by their contacts with their colleagues in the Philippines, Viernes and Domingo spearheaded a resolution at a Hawaii convention of longshoremen which authorized the sending of an investigative team to Manila.

— The FBI and U.S. naval intelligence have a close working relationship with Filipino intelligence officers. These agencies have full knowledge of Marcos' intimidation tactics in this country. Yet they have shown no apparent interest in the murder case.

My associate Dale Van Atta questioned the Philippines Embassy about the murders. A spokesman said President Marcos had ordered an investigation, which was conducted by the labor attache in the San Francisco consulate.

The Philippines government's view is that the murders were strictly a local matter "involving union rivalries." Suggestions of any connection to the Marcos regime were drummed up by "critics on the West Coast just to embarrass the Philippines government," the spokesman said. "We are amazed that the Philippines government should be dragged into this."

Meanwhile, despite the three convictions, the Viernes-Domingo murder case is still open.

YOU READ IT HERE: President Reagan's headline-making peace proposal for the Middle East should be no surprise to readers of this column. I reported the main points of the administration's peace plan nine months ago. These included:

— Israel giving up Gaza and the West Bank.

— A "freeze" on Jewish settlements in the occupied territories.

— Full recognition of Israel's right to exist by all the Arab states, as a sine qua non to any peace agreement.

— International guarantees of the Arab-Israeli settlement reached through negotiations.

As I reported last December, President Reagan's plan is based on the Camp David agreement worked out by President Carter. Both Carter and Reagan interpreted the accord to include Israeli withdrawal from the West Bank.

But I also noted: "The U.S. interpretation, however, was never accepted as valid by Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin. He claims Carter misunderstood him during the negotiations, and insists that Israel intends to annex the West Bank territory."

INSIDE REPORT:

Primary may reveal 'populist soft spot'

BOSTON — Gov. Edward King's ability to close a still formidable gap before today's Democratic primary for governor will measure the economic soft spot in the right-wing populist movement.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

Polls and politicians agree that King's advocacy of capital punishment, jail sentences and other law-and-order measures reflects the mood of Massachusetts. His opponent, former Gov. Michael Dukakis, is still perceived in this class-conscious state as one of "them" — Beacon Hill, Harvard, Boston Globe, yet, enough of Dukakis' once-immense lead persists to make him the clear favorite.

That is partly due to the aura of incompetency enveloping King and periodic exposures of corruption in his administration. But key supporters of Dukakis admit Massachusetts voters never have put a high premium on efficiency or honesty. What really ails King is his economic posture amidst hard times.

King's soft underbelly is the perception that he favors the rich, reflected by his push for supply-side marginal tax cuts mainly benefitting upper-income taxpayers. That raises the question whether the supply-side can coexist with conservative social philosophy within the right-wing populist movement. The answer affects Ronald Reagan nearly as much as Ed King.

Consequently, the final two weeks television barrage by Dukakis seeks to intertwine King with Reagan and Reaganomics. A voter is depicted calling King "Reagan's favorite Democratic governor." A five-minute television address by Dukakis labels King a defender of Reaganomics. Over Labor Day, a new Dukakis commercial was aired calling the election a choice between President Reagan and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who backs Dukakis.

The strategy is rooted in pollster Pat Caddell's surveys for Dukakis showing Reagan's Massachusetts ratings as negative as Kennedy's are positive, while unemployment rises toward the national average. The Dukakis campaign, therefore, has seized on the recession as the antidote to the appeal of right-wing populism.

Yet the ideological fissure among Democrats here is so pronounced that the Kennedy endorsement of Dukakis was greeted by King statehouse allies as an air-clearing plus. "This really shows that Dukakis is the candidate of Harvard," one state senator told us.

No other state retains such political class-consciousness. At a Dukakis fundraiser attended by meticulously-groomed women at the tony Hampshire House on Beacon Hill, the conversation over cheese and wine was how the people of this state could even consider giving Ed King another four years. The answer in one matron's upper-class accent: "The Irish have been here for four generations but they still feel put upon."

The next night at an Italian-American fund-raiser for King at Caruso's in Saugus, outside Boston, speaker after speaker talked about shared cultural values, leading up to King's peroration to a cheering audience: "The Commonwealth of Massachusetts has returned to basic values. We believe in the United States of America. We believe in the pledge of allegiance to the flag. We believe in prayer in the school. We believe in rights for the unborn."

King parts company with Reagan a bit, adhering to populist sentiment, in rejecting traditional Republican austerity.

But King's populist credo is undermined by his obvious fondness for the company of the rich (much in Reagan's style), which is admitted by some staunch supporters. The governor's attempt to repeal the Dukakis income surtax is sound supply-side doctrine, but is open to attack from Dukakis as "a tax cut for the wealthy."

Nevertheless, a loss by King today would not be a plebescite mandating the return of the elitist establishment. State Senate President William Bulger, who has had his difficulties with King but strongly supports him for re-election, is perhaps the more authentic voice of right-wing populism in Massachusetts. He is even more anti-establishment than King and could never be accused of catering to the rich.

Politicians agree that Bulger would have wiped out Dukakis for governor. If so, the economic vulnerability of Ronald Reagan's favorite Democrat does not really signal the end of populist harassment for the establishment.

CHARLEY REESE

Free society necessary for opportunity

Now that it's clear that Ronald Reagan has sold out to the Wall Street crowd, conservatives should get on with the single most important task we face — forging an alliance between those who believe in true capitalism and the working men and women of this country.

Charley Reese

I said "true" capitalism because the kind of capitalism practiced by Mr. Reagan's Fortune 500 cronies, or some of them anyway, is not competitive free enterprise but a form of corporate welfarism.

Under the law, a corporation is just like a person, with one exception. A corporation can enter into contracts, borrow money, lend it, sue and be sued. The exception is that a corporation, so far as the law is concerned, is immortal.

That exception notwithstanding, if the government is to be fair, corporations and individuals should be treated alike. But in our corporate welfare state, this is not the case. Very big corporations have a decided edge over individuals. They receive more benefits than any army of welfare queens.

If you doubt me, just trot down to your local IRS office and pick up the instructions for filing corporate taxes and for filing individual taxes. You don't have to be an accountant to figure out which one gets the most breaks.

In Fiscal Year 1979, for example, individuals paid income taxes totalling $217 billion; corporations paid income taxes totalling $65 billion. I don't suppose there is anybody who imagines that the aggregate income of individuals exceeds the gross income of corporations. If there is, I refer you to the Fortune 500 rankings based on sales.

But unequal tax laws are just one aspect of our corporate welfare state. It would be nice to be an airline and have the government build your airports; or a trucking company and have the government build your highways; or a barge company and have the government dig your canals. It would be nice to have the government bail you out if you mismanaged your affairs, insure your overseas investment, guarantee your bank loans, and provide low interest government loans to your overseas customers so they can buy your products. A lot of programs which have been sold as "little people" programs are in reality corporate welfare programs. VA and FHA don't protect home-buyers; they protect mortgage lenders. The government won't send Marines to protect a local beer distributor's territory, but it will send troops and foreign aid to protect large corporate interests in foreign countries.

What's happened is that the majority of Americans are being played for suckers. Some good Americans, believing they are defending capitalism against socialism, go to bat for the status quo while other good Americans, believing the status quo is capitalism, opt for socialism.

We must begin to communicate and to understand that the status quo does not represent competitive free enterprise; it represents a corporate welfare state in which a relatively small monied class is maintaining its power by manipulating us into fighting each other.

The answer isn't socialism or the status quo, but a truly free society where the government plays it fair with all the citizens and grants no special favors to any one segment at the expense of the others.

The answer is a government which provides a stable currency so a working man can save and which prevents big corporations from gobbling up their competitors or bankrupting them.

Most conservatives and liberals really want the same thing: a free society in which there is opportunity for all and in which honest men and women won't work all their lives and end up with nothing but the dole.

Lawsuit requests damages

The widow of Paul Henry Salisbury, a Midland businessman, horse breeder and racer who was killed in a pickup truck-tanker truck mishap south of Greenwood Aug. 10, has filed an $11 million lawsuit in Midland's 238th State District Court against Tripp Construction Co. of Odessa.

The suit alleges that the negligence and carelessness of 60-year-old Paul E. Dardis, driver of the Tripp 18-wheeler tanker, caused the accident at Farm-to-Market Road 1379 and County Road 160 East. Dardis, who was killed in the collison, allegedly was speeding and ran a stop sign, according to the suit, and crashed into the pickup truck carrying Salisbury and his two sons-in-law, Paul Mathews and John Meador, who were injured.

In addition to the $11.25 million in damages sought by the widow, Nelda Salisbury, the suit's petition asks $200,000 in damages for Mathews and $50,000 in damages for Meador.

Salisbury, 45, was founder of Lact & Meter Maintenance Co., and his sons-in-law were employees of the company.

Mrs. Salisbury's attorney in the case is Ruff Ahders of Odessa.

Storm growth expected

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical Storm Debby, the fourth storm of the Atlantic season, moved toward the Bahama Islands today and was expected to strengthen, forecasters said.

Debby was upgraded to a tropical storm Monday night north of Hispaniola, the island shared by the Dominican Republic and Haiti, when a reconnaissance plane determined the depression had achieved sustained winds of 45 mph and higher, the forecasters said.

A tropical storm has minimum sustained winds of 39 mph. A hurricane has sustained winds of 74 mph or greater.

The storm, located about 375 miles east-southeast of Nassau in the Bahamas early today, prompted the Bahamian government to issue storm warnings today for the Turks and Caicos Islands and southeast Bahamas, forecasters said.

At 5 a.m. CDT, the center of the storm was located near latitude 23.0 north, longitude 72.0 west, and was moving toward the northwest at 12 mph.

Meanwhile, the remains of Tropical Storm Chris continued to pour rain over parts of the Mississippi Valley. The storm was downgraded to a depression Saturday as it passed over central Louisiana.

Parks becoming priority issue

distinguished one. The park was a favorite among Midland's population. Operating before 1936, Pagoda Park not only had the first public pool in Midland, but the only public pool between Fort Worth and El Paso. Olympic-sized Pagoda Pool featured a fountain in the middle," the report noted. A ballpark was started there in 1937 to house the Midland Braves, a minor league professional baseball team.

BUT AS THE city grew, that location was eyed by developers. In a letter dated April 2, 1948, David L. Harmon offered the city $75,000 for all of Pagoda Park except the area around the baseball stadium and an easement for U.S. Highway 80. In return, Harmon promised to begin construction of a shopping center four months after the title was received, the report noted. This offer was rejected.

But it wasn't too many years before the park was sold. In March 1954, the City Council accepted a bid of $393,000 from Herman Meyers. The land subsequently was developed into today's Walgreen's Drug Store.

In the history of Midland's parks development, land has had the following distinctions: former water fields, playa lakes, unusable land for development, adjacent to a school site, set aside for specific use.

The intern's study cited two factors that determined the city's present parks system configuration. The first factor stemmed from Midland's explosive growth from 1951 to 1959 when the system expanded. Although the City Council approved an ordinance requiring developers to donate 5 percent of their land for park purposes, "the city received undesirable property for park development. It was eventually repealed."

THE SECOND FACTOR leading to the parks system development was the "attainment of a large amount of capital for park development and improvements." The money came from the sale of Park Improvement Bonds and Pagoda Park, according to the report.

After that period of rapid growth, however, the council quit buying land for parks. Thus, when the city began another period of rapid growth in the late 1970s, the municipality found itself lacking in developed parks.

For almost 20 years, Midland didn't acquire any new park sites, according to Wayne Kohout, director of parks and recreation. "The last major park purchases were Rusk and Grafa, both in 1960."

Kiwanis Park wasn't fully developed until the past year, but Kohout said the land had been platted as a park in 1952. In addition, a 4.7-acre tract in northwest Midland was promised to be donated to the city in 1975, but the city has yet to see the deed, Kohout said.

Nada Baulch, chairman of the Parks and Recreation Commission, pointed out that no park land was acquired for the tract bordered by Wadley, FM 868, Big Spring and Midkiff. "All those years went by and not one park was built," she said.

"I'd rather see long-range planning for a parks system. Things are done for the parks department in a piecemeal fashion," she added.

"PEOPLE LIKE PARKS. Look at Grafa Park. It's packed with people a lot of the time. There aren't many young couples that live in this neighborhood. But they're coming from somewhere or there wouldn't be anyone in the park."

Mayor G. Thane Akins has lived in Midland about 24 years and has served in the capacity of either councilman or mayor for the past six years. During that long dry period when no park land was purchased, Akins said he presumed the council "had more than they could take care of in parks. The late 1960s and early 1970s were pretty dead in terms of growth. The thinking was that they needed to do more to bring parks up to a reasonable standard."

Kohout feels the council was remiss during the last half of the Seventies in not spending more to develop the parks.

"In the late 1970s, they were living beneath their means. They chose to save too much. There weren't any major city projects and they could have expanded the parks projects at this time," he said.

The last Master Plan which cited the parks system as an embarrassment to the city was developed in 1973-74. It was adopted by the City Council in late 1975, said Kohout, just before the growth boom hit Midland again.

"It's out of date," he said of the plan. "We recognized that in 1980 and we've been trying for the last two years to get it updated."

LAST WEEK PARKS officials conferred with some planners about the update and Kohout was optimistic the council might approve hiring the firm.

The City Council has been changing its attitude toward parks, according to Kohout who pointed out the 1982-83 budget includes monies to purchase two park sites.

"We're still behind on the parks system," he added. "We're behind now and we were behind when we had 60,000 population. You add another 22,000 more people and you're still behind."

However, Kohout is optimistic the change in the council's attitude will continue.

"If growth (of city parks) continues like in the last two or three years, we'll make up a lot of lost ground. In fact, we'll be up to where we should be, especially if the city quits growing so much."

Wednesday: A matter of monetary priorities.

Trial-stopping attempt fails

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A federal judge has rejected the government's last-ditch attempt to halt the trial of a lawsuit in which plaintiffs contend radioactive fallout from nuclear testing decades ago killed and sickened hundreds of people downwind.

Opening arguments were scheduled to begin today in the non-jury trial, which may last for months.

On the eve of the trial, U.S. District Judge Bruce Jenkins denied a government motion to dismiss the lawsuit, saying it instead would be "most appropriate to have a full-blown trial, where someone with some degree of rationality can deal with the full story."

Jenkins also rejected a defense motion that would have delayed the start of the trial until the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver could rule on the motion to dismiss the suit.

'Freedom fighters' begin trial for Brink's holdup with protest

NEW CITY, N.Y. (AP) — Police sharpshooters watched from rooftops as demonstrators denounced the FBI outside a courthouse hearing for five radicals charged with murder in the bloody robbery of a Brink's truck last year.

Inside the heavily guarded Rockland County Courthouse, three of the five defendants said they would not participate in the pretrial proceedings Monday, which were then postponed until Wednesday.

"I am a revolutionary and a freedom fighter," said Judith Clark, 31. "I do not recognize the legitimacy of this court to try me...The purpose is to criminalize freedom fighters and I am not a criminal."

She and four others, including former members of the Weather Underground and the Black Liberation Army, are charged with murdering two police officers and a Brink's guard in a $1.6 million armored car holdup on Oct. 20, 1981.

The defendants first asked to represent themselves without lawyers.

When State Supreme Court Justice Robert Stolarik denied the request, three of the five rose and said they would not participate.

After Stolarik ordered the case adjourned until Wednesday, the defendants raised their fists and shouted, "Free the land!"

Police patrolled in riot gear and on horseback as demonstrators calling themselves the Coalition to Defend the October 20th Freedom Fighters chanted "Who are the murderers? The FBI!" outside the courthouse.

Traffic on downtown Main Street was snarled and residents of this hamlet of 15,000 people lined the streets, some waving American flags in a counter-demonstration.

The FBI says the bungled holdup at a Nanuet shopping center was part of a broad conspiracy by a coalition of black and white terrorists who financed their activities through bank robberies and armored car heists.

In court, defendant David Gilbert told the judge that "we are neither criminals nor terrorists."

"It is because of my love for life that I am a freedom fighter against the racist system," he said.

The other defendants present Monday were Donald Weems, Samuel Brown and Kathy Boudin. Brown and Ms. Boudin did not stand with the other three or otherwise take part in the protest.

The group's supporters included members of the New Afrikan Freedom Fighters, who advocate establishing a separate black nation in the United States.

Perfect dream — Owning an island

By DAVE LARSEN
Los Angeles Times — Washington Post News Service

LOS ANGELES — The way Donald Ward greets visitors, barefoot and in a jump suit, you would think he was off on his own private island.

Except that Granada Hills part of Los Angeles does not qualify to everybody as a paradise escape. But if Ward cannot live on his own island, he does perhaps the next best thing: He sells them.

Sample listing: "Flagg Island off Rockland, Maine, with approximately five acres just two miles from the mainland across a sheltered channel. Considerably treed at the south end, but mostly meadow with pine trees, Flagg has two sand beaches plus anchorage for any size boat.

"It offers clam flats and, of course, lobster and fishing, and has a fresh water well. It also offers an old two-story Andrew Wyeth-style two-story house without wiring or plumbing, but solid enough for restoration."

AS OF THE LATEST NEWSLETTER of Private Islands Unlimited this particular property was offered at $71,500.

"I'm in the process of updating my listings," Ward said. "We have everything from $8,000 for a two-acre island off Nova Scotia to $3.9 million for 4,000 acres in the Fijis."

The latter includes coconuts.

Since Ward began the business seven years ago, he has sold 15 private islands. None so far this year, but unlike many other real estate salespeople, the blame can't be placed on high mortgage interest. The rates on dreams are much lower.

"I figure that 95 percent of my subscribers are island looky-loos," the salesman said. "Armchair dreamers."

TWO ISLAND SALES A YEAR, which was the total last year, is about all Ward ever expects.

"Financing isn't a factor, because so many of the transactions are cash," Ward said. "There are some cases of owner financing, but as for the institutions such as banks, most of them won't touch it.

"An exception might be, say, a parcel in the West Indies with a good house on it. Or else an operating resort that might show an income pattern."

But who cares about such trivia as interest rates and whether lenders can be found? Not when you have a good thing going such as a publication that summarizes 200 to 300 island properties available around the world, a register for which several thousand subscribers pay $15 a year to peruse.

"We have comparatively few renewals," the author of it said. "On the other hand, there seems to be a constant turnover of the newly interested."

MANY ARE JUST sunset collectors, savoring that distant getaway on which they will some day live in blissful seclusion, but a few are actual live prospects.

For them the 58-year-old Ward, working in blissful seclusion beneath a spreading backyard elm tree next to his 40-foot pool, gathers together (for an additional fee of $10) all additional information on the property in question — photo copies, maps, charts, surveys and house plans.

IF THE SUBSCRIBER does not find his heaven-on-earth in the current inventory, he or she may fill out a form to alert the firm and its network of brokers as to what is specifically sought. Sample question: "Do you want improvements (home-resort-agriculture-livestock-dock) or completely undeveloped?"

Ward, a University of Southern California foreign trade graduate whose main business is export-import, does not regard himself as a broker, but rather has such experts around the world seeking out requested islands and alerting him as new ones become available.

"The listings just keep rolling in," said Ward, who shares the commissions. "In terms of listings, I'm by far the biggest. There is a chap in Berkeley (Calif.), and also an island-selling outfit in West Germany. That's how I got started, as an agent for them."

THE COOPERATING BROKERS arrange all the showing, usually at the expense of the prospective buyer, Ward said.

"My last sale was a package of five islands off the coast of Maine," he recalled. "It was a woman, she paid a quarter-of-a-million dollars, and I have no idea at all what she wanted them for."

Eat your heart out. Manhattan isn't available anymore either. Be consoled, though, that the papaya-strewn island in the Fijis that was the setting for the film "The Blue Lagoon" is still on the market, for $2.5 million, give or take a bead.

"Islands aren't a boom or bust proposition. They are stable," the salesman said. "From an investment standpoint, consider the first we ever sold, off Panama seven years ago, 18 acres with plants, beaches, rock formations, coves. It went for $30,000. Since then it has resold four times, the last time for $150,000."

SOME OF THE PARCELS have waterfalls, extensive tropical plants and birds, boating facilities, lighthouses, unlimited fishing opportunities.

Many of the places have their own well, catchment or cistern. If desalinization is needed, Private Islands will put the buyer in touch with the appropriate people.

"I'd say about half our listings are improved, anything from a shack to a mansion," Ward said. "We don't handle anything that isn't livable. I declined one island off Florida that is at an elevation of only eight feet. In even a moderate storm, that wouldn't be a secure living environment, even though people have lived there."

Many women over age 30 giving birth for first time

By CAROLYN COIL
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — There's never a "perfect" time to have a baby, says Cathy Rieder, 32, as she cradles her 6-week-old daughter, Katherine, in the crook of her arm.

But "Katie's" birth in June couldn't have been timed better. Cathy, a teacher, has had all summer to spend with her daughter and enjoy the new condominium in nearby San Pedro she and her attorney husband, Erwin, bought just prior to Katie's birth.

Katie's arrival in June just sort of happened that way, says Cathy, but she admits that having a baby during school vacation was in the back of her mind when she and her husband planned to start their family. Having summers off is one of the nice benefits of teaching, she says.

KRISTIN PAYNTER'S birth two years ago also was well-timed.

Patty Paynter, 32, says her husband, Dale, 34, a softwear engineering specialist, received his master's degree two months before they planned Kristen. The day Patty's pregnancy was confirmed they put a down payment on their present home in suburban El Segundo.

"We wanted to be in the position where certain things were set or possible before we had a family," says Patty, who is expecting their second child any day.

When Susan Davis, now 35, and her husband, Nissen, 48, decided two years ago that the timing was right for them to have a baby, things didn't go quite as planned. She was told that her tubes were blocked and that she wouldn't be able to conceive.

But Susan, an airline attendant, says she wasn't going to give up her dream of having a child without exploring every possibility. Doctors at the University of California at Los Angeles told her there would be an 80 percent chance she would be able to conceive if she had microsurgery on her Fallopian tubes. Susan had the surgery in October 1980, and the following April she became pregnant. Scott Taylor Davis was born Dec. 6, 1981 — three weeks early.

CATHY, PATTY AND SUSAN are typical of women who are creating what is being called a mini-baby boom. They all were 30 or older when their first child was born, they are college graduates, each had been married for five years and they were home owners. And their children were planned.

While the majority of all babies born in the United States are born to mothers in the 18-to-30 group, there has been a growing trend in the last decade for women to postpone starting a family until their educations are completed and their careers are established.

IN THE '70s, there was a 66 percent increase in first births among women aged 30 to 34, according to a study from the National Center for Health Statistics.

The study says that the steady increase in first-birthrates for women in their 30s was occurring at a time when birthrates for women of younger ages fell. And the best-educated women are continuing to postpone motherhood.

The U.S. birthrate, which had dropped to a low of 14.5 babies per 1,000 population in 1976, climbed to 16.2 in 1980 and is expected to top 17 percent this year.

Janet Church, R.N., nursing supervisor for maternal and child health at Little Company of Mary Hospital in Torrance, Calif., says, "What we're seeing now is a lot of parents who have waited to have a baby." Of the 50 pre-admittance forms on file, 20 percent of the first-time expectant mothers are over the age of 30, she says.

"WE'RE LOOKING AT A whole group of people who are planning pregnancy," she says.

And they're doing more than just choosing a time that is right for them financially or career-wise. Church says some women will give up smoking and having even an occasional glass of wine as soon as they start planning to become pregnant. They do this, she says, because some birth defects and problems, such as low birth weight, have been linked to the mother's smoking and drinking during pregnancy.

Prospective parents often attend hospitals' maternity teas to find the hospital they like best, she says. Then they locate an obstetrician from among the doctors who practice at their chosen hospital.

ONCE THE WOMAN IS PREGNANT, the majority of these expectant parents take some type of childbirth preparedness classes, because most of the fathers plan to take an active role during labor and delivery.

"I want them (parents) to understand the process of labor, how to respond to contractions with breathing techniques and comfort measures, such as the coach (usually the father) rubbing the mother's back and offering praise and encouragement," says Pauline Filce, R.N., of Torrance, who has been teaching classes since 1973. Mothers learn prenatal exercises to help condition their bodies, and fathers learn how to help with relaxation techniques.

"I also try to get couples to talk ahead of time about how they might handle situations, such as night feedings. Mainly, we try to get them to talk together about parenting," says Filce, who also is the mother of eight children.

BECAUSE SOME WOMEN feel as though they have failed if they request medication during labor, she stresses two things during the classes: "The birth process is an experience, not a performance, and there is no success or failure."

The goal of the classes, she says, is an enjoyable birth experience and a healthy baby.

"It was really special having Erwin there when Katie was born," says Cathy, adding that she and her husband took classes in the Lamaze method of prepared childbirth. "I really felt I needed him there; I wasn't as nervous knowing he'd be there. It was the most exhilarating experience, the highlight of my life. We were a family from the beginning."

ALTHOUGH WAITING to start a family allowed the couple to accomplish certain goals — Erwin started a law practice and they were able to buy their condo — Cathy thinks a couple's ability to delay parenthood has its minus side, too.

"It becomes a decision you have to make. It's almost harder (than if pregnancy just happened)."

The state of economy often determines whether a woman will have a baby at a particular time and whether she will continue to work or will stay at home for awhile after her child is born.

Although Cathy loves her job teaching gifted children, she says it would be nice to have a choice to stay at home or to teach. "It's hard to be a wife, mother and teacher and to do it all well," she says. "It's sad today that women don't have the options to stay at home."

Anti-smoking documentary aired again

By ELAINE WARREN
Hearst Feature Service

LOS ANGELES — That craggy, good-looking cowboy with a cigarette forever dangling from his mouth, is roaming the West again.

But this time, instead of endorsing tobacco, he's doing some straight talk about the ravaging effects of cigarettes in a controversial anti-smoking documentary appearing on scattered television stations on the West Coast.

"Death in the West," a half-hour film featuring Marlboro Man-type cowboys who eventually died of lung cancer, originally aired six years ago in Great Britain. The film juxtaposes Marlboro Man commercials with no-nonsense interviews with doctors, Phillip Morris executives and six real cowboys suffering the effects of lung cancer, including one riding on his horse with an oxygen bottle strapped to his saddle and tubes connected to his nose.

After airing once in Great Britain, Phillip Morris Co., the manufacturer of Marlboro — the largest-selling cigarette in the world — obtained a court order against the British producer of the film, Thames Television, and an agreement eventually was reached barring further distribution of the film. Now, however, several hundred pirated copies have turned up in California and are making their way to television stations, some of which have already aired the film.

The Non-Smokers Rights Foundation, an educational and legal organization based in Berkeley, Calif., says it has distributed 100 copies of the film to health associations, volunteer agencies, schools and television stations throughout the country. About 25 television stations have copies of the film; some requested it, but most received it unsolicited in the mail, according to Andy Gould-Halpern, executive director of the group. The documentary has already aired in Sacramento and Boston and portions of it have been seen in Los Angeles and Minneapolis, Gould-Halpern says, but many stations are fearful of the legal consequences of running it.

In Los Angeles, KABC-TV heavily edited the film, deleted interviews with Phillip Morris executives, and broke it up into five concurrent news segments. The decision to run it that way, says assistant news director Ken Nelson, was due in large part to concern over unsettled legal questions.

Gould-Halpern claims that such fears are unnecessary, and said that when San Francisco station KRON-TV aired the film in May, it was never contacted by representatives or lawyers from Phillip Morris.

The film is reportedly devastating in its impact on viewers. At one point, the film shows cowboy Bob Julian sitting by a campfire, sipping coffee and lighting a cigarette with a flaming ember. "For Bob Julian, the roundup will soon be over," a narrative voice says.

"I started smoking when I was a kid and thought that to be a man you had to have a cigarette in your mouth," the 51-year-old New Mexico rancher testifies in the film. "It took me years to really discover that all I got out of it was lung cancer. Now I'm going to die a young man."

Julian and four of the other cowboys shown in the film are now dead.

Dr. Stanton Glantz, an associate professor of medicine at the University of California-San Francisco, says he has verified many of the film's claims. It was Glantz who last December received the original pirated copy of the film anonymously in the mail.

"I've spent several months researching the film's history and veracity," says Glantz. He has tracked down the film's sole surviving cowboy, John Holmes, a resident of Miami, N. M., who suffers from emphysema.

Glantz says he believes he was the recipient of the film because of his political campaigning on behalf of California smokers' rights ballot initiatives in 1978 and 1980.

"It's an amazingly effective film," says Glantz.

AT WIT'S END

By ERMA BOMBECK

I don't know how many of you have ever had a wild animal trapped in your house, but let me tell you it's nothing to laugh about.

You don't even have to see them to know that they're there. You just sense you're not alone. Sometimes when you walk into a room you hear a scurrying or shallow breathing. The other night as I was finishing up dishes, I saw a darting shadow out of the corner of my eye. Instinctively, I knew what I had to do — I became hysterical.

Husbands are wonderful. Right away, mine ran through all the Disney characters. "What kind of an animal was it? Ricky Raccoon? Rocky, the Flying Squirrel? Smokey the Bear? How about Dumbo? Pogo? Charlie Tuna? Name names, woman!"

"It was a disgusting roach and stop talking like he was wearing a letter sweater!"

"It was probably something you brought home in the grocery bag that will hitch a ride out of here tomorrow."

This bit of wisdom comes from a man who told me last year that a plague of crickets in my house was good luck and they ate two carpets.

Oh, I used to be naive about animals. I wanted to believe they wanted out as much as I wanted them out. I wanted to believe they were male, unmarried and traveling alone. That was before I lived on a farm. Every fall, like clockwork, I'd march into the town hardware store and place my order: "I want 15 traps, 35 boxes of painless death powder, 18 aerosol insecticide sprays, five bottles of fast-acting mists, five plastic swatters, and a mallet. What else do you have that's effective?"

The boy would say, "Ma'am, I've given you everything short of a nuclear stockpile."

"Do you think this will do it?"

"Have you seen the mouse again?"

"You got it."

Through conscientious and diligent weaponry, I was able to keep wildlife in our house to a minimum of one mouse until we decided to redo the kitchen. One morning, I heard a strange gnawing sound in the ceiling. I judged the gnawing to be about six feet long and furry. I called the contractor who said, "Why, that ain't nothing to worry about. It's probably only a rat. That's the way they sharpen their teeth."

I was sorry to move. It was a nice house.

Normal routine for chronically ill campers

By MARK DAVIS
AP Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — At first glance, they're just another group of kids out for a week or so in the woods at camp.

And that's exactly what Brandy McDaniel wants.

As director of pediatric social work at Duke Medical Center, Mrs. McDaniel is one of the forces behind Camp Kaleidoscope, a special camp that gives chronically ill children a chance to live as other children do.

"If you didn't know these children had serious illnesses, then you wouldn't notice any difference," she said. "They like to run and jump and play just like other children."

But these are special children. Some suffer from cancer, others have sickle-cell anemia. Many have illnesses which could claim their young lives.

Yet despute their grown-up problems, they're children — with children's wishes to belong, to be part of a crowd. That's what makes the outings at Camp Graham so important, Mrs. McDaniel said.

"They really are, on many occasions, taken out of the mainstream," she said.

Mrs. McDaniel says special camps exist for children with specific disorders, but camps catering to children with chronic diseases are rare.

This year, an estimated 70 children have attended the camp in two separate week-long sessions. One group of youngsters, aged 7 to 12, and a second group of campers between 13 and 17, went to Camp Graham, located in Vance County and owned by the Pines of Carolina Girl Scout Council. In case an emergency arises, a hospital is just 10 miles away in Henderson.

The staff at the camp is not the usual camp staff, either, Mrs. McDaniel said. Nurses, doctors and other medical specialists who are familiar with their charges accompany the children to the camp. While the children play, the staff keeps a close eye on them, Mrs. McDaniel said.

The greatest gift you can give a bedwetter and the rest of the family, too, is an end to this serious problem, and make no mistake, bedwetting is serious. It can cause complicated psychological problems that last a lifetime. It's so needless because bedwetting, when not caused by organic defect or disease, can be ended. DEAR ABBY

Husband's beers bought at wife's expense

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Why does a man have to stop off in a tavern after work to have a few beers with the guys he works with all day? We've been married nearly three years and have a 6-month-old son. I know Joe loves us, but after an 8-hour day working at construction, he feels he has earned himself "a few beers." So how many is "a few," Abby? When he comes home two hours late he says, "One guy buys you a beer, then you buy him one and so on ..."

I never know when to start cooking dinner because I never know how late he is going to be.

Am I wrong to feel that he is being inconsiderate? I can understand stopping off for a beer or two once in a while, but he's made a habit of stopping every night now. Joe has plenty of freedom. He bowls two nights a week in the winter, and in the summer he plays softball.

I'm home with the baby all day, and if he came home at a decent hour after work he could take over for a while and give me a rest. I hate to nag him, but this is really getting to me. What should I do? ANGRY

DEAR ANGRY: You have a right to be angry. You and Joe should set up some ground rules and decide which nights he will be late and how late he will be. The uncertainty and endless waiting are unfair to you.

DEAR ABBY: Why don't you quit sending people to church to "meet" a nice man — or woman? I was always under the impression that people went to church to pray. If I am mistaken, please set me straight. Sign me ... ALWAYS ON SUNDAY

DEAR ALWAYS: There are a variety of reasons why people go to church. Some go to pray, some go to pray that they meet someone. Other reasons:

1. Habit.
2. Training.
3. Fear of punishment from the Lord if they don't go.
4. To be seen.
5. To see who else is there.
6. To show off a new outfit.
7. To get spiritual inspiration.
8. To socialize.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have just had our first baby. We've been married only 14 months, and although this baby wasn't exactly planned, we are thrilled.

My mother-in-law said, "I hope you kids aren't going to send out any birth announcements to all our friends who sent you wedding presents, because it's the same as asking for a baby gift."

We had planned to send some, but now we don't know what to do. In your opinion, is sending birth announcements the same as asking for a present? — BABY MAKES THREE

DEAR BABY: It's not "the same," but it could be interpreted to some as a hint. Send birth announcements only to those of YOUR friends who are far away and may not have heard the good news. If there is a doubt as to whether you should send one — don't!

CONFIDENTIAL TO DONE WRONG IN LOS GATOS: Skip it. No one said it better than Francis Bacon: "By taking revenge, a man is but even with his enemy, but in passing over it, he is superior."

Cancer society rallies fellows against smoking

SEATTLE (AP) — The American Cancer Society has issued a call to arms against the tobacco industry, hoping to dispatch volunteers, instead of paid lobbyists, to pressure congressmen in the fight against smoking.

Allan K. Jonas, chairman of the society's national board, told the 13th International Cancer Congress on Monday: "For far too long the tobacco industry has played the political game as if it were solitaire. We have lost nearly every battle to them. Now our time has come."

Jonas, a Los Angeles businessman, said the 2½ million-member society has formed a Public Issues Committee to coordinate political action, and noted that the society often joins forces with the American Heart Association and American Lung Association to aim greater numbers at certain issues.

But he emphasized in an interview that the effort would not be lobbying in the traditional sense. "We can't put money into lobbyists because that's one we can't win" against the well-heeled tobacco industry, he said.

"Constituent pressure — getting people to write letters or to walk the halls of legislative bodies to talk to their legislators — can be so much more effective than hiring lobbyists."

In Raleigh, N.C., tobacco specialist John H. Cyrus of the state Department of Agriculture said tobacco industry officials were aware several weeks ago of the cancer society's plans.

He said state tobacco officials have not made any plans to mount a counter-campaign, but will listen closely to what kind of information the society puts out.

"We would just hope they would use factual information and not use half-truths and get them out of perspective," Cyrus said.

Jonas said the cancer society "must recruit all of our volunteers, acquaint them with the tools of political activity and make sure they get to know their legislators."

One cause for optimism, Jonas said, is sheer numbers. "The majority of us are non-smokers. Only about a third of the country are smokers," he said.

High on the list of targets, Jonas said, is the federal tobacco subsidy, a system of loan guarantees and services such as quality grading that funnels millions of tax dollars into a product that he contends causes an estimated 325,000 American deaths each year.

He said the society has tried for the past five years to repeal the subsidies, but even "with this Congress, faced with a great deal of cost-cutting and with grants of proven quality being cut, the tobacco subsidy cruised by once again."

Jonas said the society also is fighting for a bill, introduced with little success during this session of Congress, to rotate different warning labels on cigarettes.

"Right now we have the one (danger) label and it's been on there so long...it has no meaning any more," he said.

The proposal, similar to programs in some European countries, would establish seven or eight warnings aimed at different groups or dangers, such as cancers, heart disease and smoking's effects on pregnant women. Different warnings would appear on different packs, he said, and "we think it has dramatic possibilities the original warning never had."

He also called for dozens of smaller battles in city halls and state legislatures to push for such goals as requiring separate smoking and non-smoking areas in workplaces and public buildings, banning free cigarette samples and spurring enforcement of the prohibition against selling cigarettes to minors.

"Our goal is not to outlaw smoking," Jonas said, "but to educate the public so it can make intelligent choices and to take care of the children so they can make that choice when they're old enough to understand the implications."

Spantax says missing may be alive

MALAGA, Spain (AP) — Thirty-one passengers were still unaccounted for today following the fiery DC-10 crash that killed at least 46 tourists returning to New York from this Mediterranean resort, the civil governor's office here said.

Spantax Airlines, the Madrid-based air charter company that owned the jumbo jet, reportedly agreed with the figures, but noted the 31 missing people are not necessarily dead.

"They might be somewhere still trying to get recovered from the shock they must have suffered. Neither can we say for sure there are no more corpses in the wreckage," an airline spokesman said.

The Spantax office in New York on Monday said that 332 passengers had escaped the blazing wreckage and only two were missing. A spokesman today said he could not explain the discrepancies in the figures.

The chartered jetliner plunged to earth moments after the 12:30 p.m. (6:30 a.m. EDT) takeoff, careened across a highway and burst into flames. It was thought that bodies were still trapped in the tail of the plane, a rescue worker said.

Official figures released today said 316 people escaped death, including 49 who were hospitalized and 267 who were unhurt or discharged from the hospital. Nine people are listed in very serious condition.

The cause of the crash was under investigation, officials said. Military sources at the Malga airport on Monday mentioned engine failure as a probable cause of the accident and many survivors said the plane apparently didn't have enough power to take off.

"We are about to crash. We cannot do anything, an engine is failing," a Madrid newspaper quoted pilot Juan Perez as saying just before the crash.

The pilot survived along with six other crew members.

A Cuban passenger who refused to give her name said deaths could have been caused because "some of the passengers tried to save also personal items they were carrying in the cabin."

Medical personnel aided by airport officials and relatives of the victims are trying to identify the corpses, some of them said to be burned beyond recognition. The corpses have been taken to an airport hangar and those that are properly identified will be flown home for burial, officials said.

The National Transportation Safety Board in Washington dispatched three investigators to Malaga and McDonnell Douglas Corp., the California-based maker of the DC-10s, said it sent two investigators to help Spanish authorities.

One of the jet's engines was found in a field near the crash site.

Company sources quoted pilot Juan Perez as saying the plane was about 60 feet off the ground when it started vibrating and he tried to power down the engines to abort takeoff.

Lisa Kanstroom, 19, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was among the survivors who arrived at Kennedy Airport in New York early today. She said she had been sitting near one of the engines "and it started cutting on and off all the time. That's when we knew something was wrong."

After the crash, chaos broke out with "people pushing and trampling and wanting to get out, out, out," she said. "The roof was caving in and the floor was crumbling because of the fire."

Another survivor, Alfred McKeon, 26, of the Bronx, N.Y., said the pilot braked, "but it was too late, he'd run out of runway."

He said he thought the jet hit "about five cars, a wall, went across train tracks and came to rest in a gully."

Spanish authorities did not say how many vehicles the plane clipped or if there were any casualties on the ground.

Ma Bell states it doesn't lie to PUC, rejects accusations

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. has responded to an unprecedented attempt to dismiss its rate increase request by stating the phone company does not lie to the Public Utility Commission or the public and will not stand for such accusations.

Southwestern Bell responded Monday to motions by the PUC staff and two customer groups to dismiss Bell's case for a $471.5 million rate hike. A Bell spokesman said the Texas Municipal League also had asked the PUC to dismiss the case.

Oral arguments were scheduled today before hearing examiner Jacqueline Holmes.

Bell said in its 18-page response to the motions that the charges were "totally without merit or foundation...Southwestern Bell has not been 'deceptive' or 'misleading,' 'flagrantly' or otherwise."

As evidence of its honesty, Bell said that on Sept. 6 one of its witnesses advised the examiner and other parties of data that reduced the company's pension expense in Texas by over $17 million. This information was known only to the company, the response said.

"No clearer evidence is available that Southwestern Bell does not deceive this commission nor the public. Graceless accusations that it does are not to be tolerated," Bell said.

The Friday motions followed a day-long disagreement over information Bell had provided.

The staff sought the information during the summer to prepare its case against Bell's claim to $63 million paid to AT&T under terms of their 50-year-old "license contract."

Odessa man killed in motorcycle mishap

ODESSA — One man was killed and another was injured when their motorcycle slammed into the rear of a car near here about 5:45 p.m. Monday.

Howard Lee Mosee, 25, of Odessa died in Medical Center Hospital about three hours later. He was a passenger on a 1980 Kawasaki driven by 21-year-old Anthony Ferrara, also of Odessa.

According to the Department of Public Safety, Ferrara was weaving in and out of traffic on University Avenue about 2.5 miles west of Odessa when he ran into a 1974 Buick that had stopped to make a lefthand turn into a private driveway, throwing both men over the top of the car.

The driver of the car, 29-year-old Janet Boone of Odessa, was not injured. Ferrara was in stable condition at MCH with multiple fractures. Services for Mosee are pending at the Hubbard-Kelly Funeral Home.

Detroit schools close; Teachers walk lines

By The Associated Press

Detroit school officials canceled classes today after only a small fraction of the district's 200,000 students showed up on the first day of a teachers' strike, and 8,000 non-teaching employees face layoffs for the duration of the walkout.

The Detroit strike, which began Monday, left more than 17,000 teachers on strike in Michigan, New Jersey, Illinois and Pennsylvania, affecting more than 316,000 students.

Detroit's 11,000 teachers, who earn between $15,000 and $30,000 a year, rejected a proposal by the school board to give up four days of holiday pay. No new negotiations were scheduled.

The school board had also demanded that teachers take an 8 percent pay cut to help ease a $23 million budget deficit, but board President George Bell said any cut would be put off for three months pending a report on the budget problems by an independent panel.

Negotiations broke down early Monday on the issue of holiday pay.

"There's not one of us who doesn't recognize that times are bad for Detroit and Detroiters, but the school board is trying to take away things it took us 25 years to get," said Don Boyce, a striker at the Barton Middle School.

The city's 275 schools were open Monday, but only 7,366 of the 200,000 students showed up for classes and only 101 teachers crossed picket lines. Schools were ordered closed today.

As a result, 8,000 non-teaching school employees will be laid off until the teachers return to work. School Superintendent Arthur Jefferson said layoff notices were sent to administrators, secretaries, custodians and clerks, effective Friday.

At a picket line in front of Barton Middle School, Detroit Federation of Teachers representative Thomas Cook said many of the city's 114,000 unemployed — 18.1 percent of the population — "have been supportive" of the striking teachers.

But as he spoke, a motorist stopped at a nearby traffic light leaned out of his window and called the teachers "money-hungry," saying that when he was a teacher he was glad to earn $8,000 a year. But a driver behind the first urged the pickets to "hang in there."

Elsewhere in Michigan, about 1,550 teachers were on strike in six other districts with 34,000 students.

Teachers in Wyoming, a suburb of Grand Rapids, walked out Monday, and strikes continued in Troy, Novi, Traverse City, Lake City and Fenton. Teachers in Ferndale voted to report to work today without a contract.

Gen. Westmoreland sues CBS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. William C. Westmoreland is suing the CBS television network for $120 million over a documentary which said U.S. military leaders purposely underestimated enemy troop strength in Vietnam.

Westmoreland, who filed the libel suit Monday, called the program, which was broadcast in January, "vicious, false and contemptible."

In response, CBS News President Van Gordon Sauter said "we stand by the broadcast," which he called "a valid journalistic broadcast about an important issue in the Vietnam war."

The suit was filed in federal court in Greenville, S.C., according to Dan Burt, Westmoreland's attorney. The retired four-star general, who headed the Army for four years in Vietnam, lives in South Carolina.

The action seeks $40 million in general damages and $80 million in punitive damages. Westmoreland said the money will be donated to charity if he wins.

In the 90-minute documentary, "The Uncounted Enemy — A Vietnam Deception," the network said there was a conspiracy to falsify enemy troop strength to present a more positive picture of the war.

"When CBS first asked me to participate in the making of this documentary," Westmoreland told a news conference, "I had no idea that they had prejudged my participation in that war, nor that they would attempt to prove that I or anyone else was in any way capable of any illegal or improper acts."

Three months later, TV Guide magazine published a story entitled "Anatomy of a Smear, How CBS Broke The Rules and 'Got' General Westmoreland." CBS later did its own investigation.

The network stood by the show, but Sauter said at the time the word conspiracy should not have been used. He also said there were several violations of CBS News standards and procedure in the preparation of the broadcast.

County students below average on tests

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Students in schools in the Midland County area generally scored below the state average in the latest round of basic skills tests administered by the Texas Education Agency.

The annual Texas Assessment of Basic Skills tests were given to third, fifth and ninth graders throughout the state, with results being reported to the State Board of Education.

The TABS test is intended to measure students' performances in mathematics, reading and writing.

Results were reported to individual school districts in June, with regional and statewide results given to the State Board of Education at its September session. For testing purposes, the state is divided into 20 regions by education service center areas.

Midland County is in the service center area which includes the counties of Andrews, Martin, Howard, Glasscock, Reagan, Upton, Crane, Ector, Winkler, Ward, Loving, Terrell, Pecos, Reeves, Culberson, Jeff Davis, Presidio and Brewster.

A comparison of statewide figures with regional figures shows the following: Third grade, mathematics, statewide 77.8 percent and regional 76.4 percent mastered the objectives; reading, statewide 81 percent and regional 79.8 percent; and writing, statewide 81 percent and regional 77 percent.

Fifth grade, mathematics, statewide 75.7 percent and regional 72 percent; reading, statewide 73.6 percent and regional 70.4 percent; writing, statewide 81.6 percent and regional, 78.5 percent.

Ninth grade, mathematics, statewide 77 percent and regional 77 percent; reading, statewide 72 percent and regional 72 percent; writing, statewide 79 percent and regional 81 percent.

About 750,000 Texas public school students took the TABS tests in February. In mathematics, such skills as adding, interpreting graphs and using fractions are measured; in reading, such skills as identifying the main idea, following written directions and evaluating information are measured; and in writing, such skills as spelling, punctuation and understanding sentence structure are measured.

Texas Commissioner of Education Raymon L. Bynum said local school districts can use the test results to develop appropriate compensatory instructional programs for students who do not achieve certain levels of mastery in the basic skills.

Regional and state results can give state education administrators a picture of how well students are doing as a whole, and indicate areas in which changes are needed to make education better, Bynum said.

Liberals hoping for defeat of anti-abortion legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate liberals, after thwarting conservatives with filibusters, are predicting defeat for North Carolina Sen. Jesse Helms' efforts to push anti-abortion legislation through the Senate this year.

For the second time in a week, conservatives failed on Monday to beat a filibuster against legislation which says the Supreme Court was mistaken when it legalized most abortions in 1973.

The vote was 45-35, meaning conservatives must still find another 15 votes to reach the 60 necessary to limit the debate.

There was only one switch from a similar vote taken last Thursday, when Sen. John Warner, R-Va., voted to shorten the debate to 100 hours. He voted the other way last week.

A third vote on the filibuster was scheduled for Wednesday by Majority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee. That vote was expected to be a critical test of conservatives' ability to break the liberal filibuster against Helms' anti-abortion initiative.

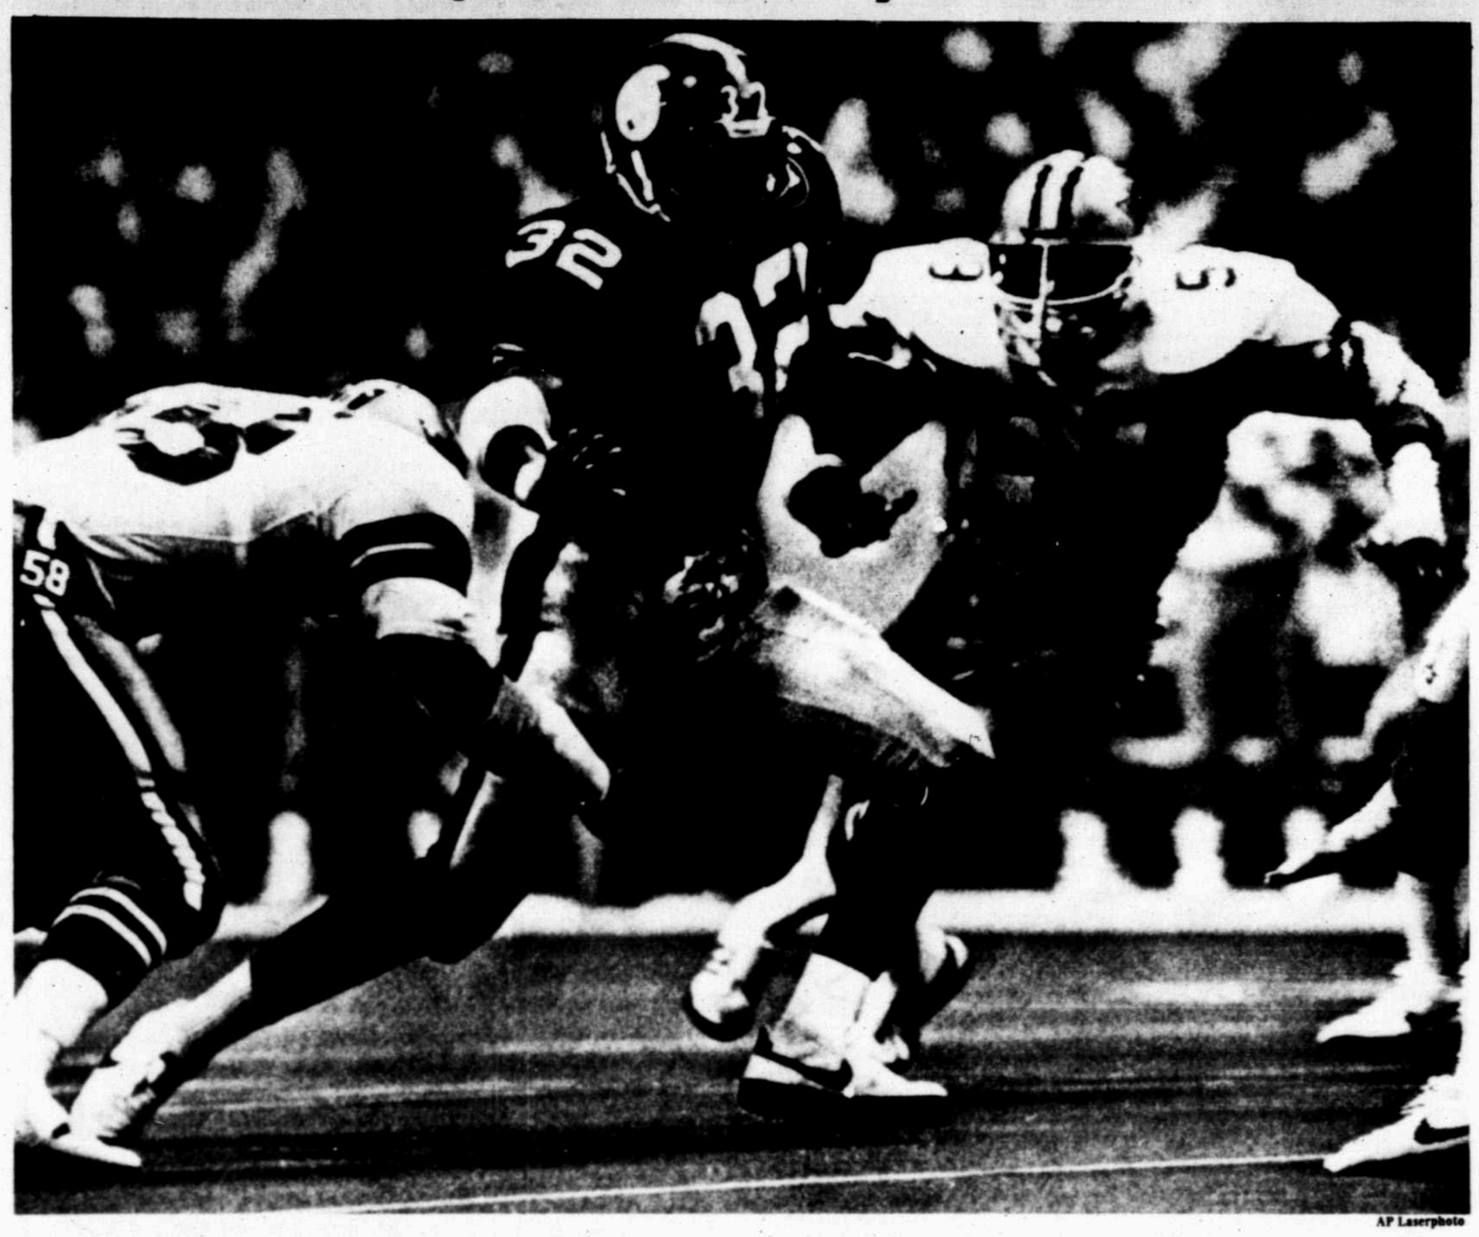
Steelers rip Cowboys' defense in 36-28 triumph



AP Laserphoto

Pittsburgh running back Franco Harris (32) demolished the Dallas Cowboy front wall Monday night. Here he goes for eight yards up the middle as linebackers Mike Hegman (58) and Guy Brown (59) finally stop him. Harris ran for 103 yards in the 36-28 Steeler win.

Bradshaw shows magic touch

IRVING, Texas (AP) - It was like a rerun of an old movie. Call it the Pittsburgh-Dallas story, starring Terry Bradshaw.

For want of a better title, call it "To Kill A Cowboy."

The Steeler quarterback had been the spoiler for the Cowboys in two Super Bowls during the 1970s plus two other regular season games.

Bradshaw proved Monday night he hasn't lost his magic touch against the Cowboys.

He threw three touchdown passes in an entertaining 36-28 victory that stopped Dallas' record of National Football League opening triumphs at 17.

THE CO-STARS were wide receivers Jim Smith and John Stallworth, who terrorized the Dallas secondary, and cornerback Dennis Thurman in particular.

Stallworth said it was a collision of two different NFL worlds.

He said "We have two different styles of play. We (the Steelers) are a physical team. We hit people--we hit people.

"The Cowboys are geared to finesse. They try to confuse you. We believe that when those two opposing forces clash, the physical team will win."

He also noted that the Cowboys' highly publicized victory streak helped arouse the Steelers.

"We were up for the game, of course..We knew they had that big winning streak...we had been hearing about THAT all week."

STALLWORTH BEDAZZLED Thurman, catching 7 passes for 137 yards and one touchdown, an 8-yarder.

Smith caught two scoring passes, including one over Thurman.

"They (the Cowboys) are a great team and we are not," said Bradshaw. "We needed this victory. It was more important to us than it was to them."

Dallas led Pittsburgh 14-13 at half-time but saw the game slip away after rookie Keith Wilis blocked Dallas quarterback Danny White's punt in the third quarter.

He had four touchdown passes but the blocked punt and two interceptions killed the team that had never lost a regular season game in Texas Stadium (18 games) with White at quarterback.

ASKED WHETHER the Steeler game plan targeted Thurman, Stallworth said, "We don't ever have a game plan aimed at one special guy. We look at tendencies not individuals. It may have looked like we were picking on Thruman but we were not conscious of doing that."

Willis' punt block set up Frank Pollard's one-yard touchdown run and the Steelers jumped ahead 20-14.

"The blocked punt was bad judgment on my part," White said. "I started to run. It was a complete shock to me...a terrible mistake on my part."

He added "We just blew it in the third quarter."

INTERCEPTIONS BY Rick Woods and Jack Ham gave the Steelers 10 more third period points on a 15-yard touchdown pass to Smith and rookie Gary Anderson's 26-yard field goal.

The former Syracuse star also had field goals of 43 and 40 yards, making Coach Chuck Noll's decision to get rid of Dave Trout a brilliant one.

Pittsburgh got Anderson from Buffalo last week.

White completed touchdown passes of 4 yards to Drew Pearson and 12 yards to Doug Cosbie in the first half to offset Bradshaw's scoring passes of 8 yards to Stallworth and 7 to Smith.

White had scoring shots of 45 yards to Tony Hill and 5-yards to Billy Joe DuPree after the damage had been done in the second half.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry said "I think we beat ourselves...we've been rated high all summer...maybe too high."

Chiles in stronger lineup than Rangers

Ranger owner in Tall City for political rally

By ROBERT BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

State Senate candidate Ernest Angelo fielded a strong team Monday afternoon at a Republican political rally in Midland Center.

In the starting lineup he had such notables as former Buffalo Bills quarterback and current U.S. Congressman Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., Texas U.S. Congressman Tom Loeffler, from Hunt; Texas Republican State Chairman Chester R. Upham; State Senate candidate for the 28th district, Jim Reese of Odessa; Midland Mayor Thane Akins and, taking command of the game as master of ceremonies, Eddie Chiles, owner of the Texas Rangers and avid GOP supporter.

Throughout the fast-paced game of politics in Angelo's behalf, full of fun-filled jabs by the speakers aimed at those sitting at the head table, Chiles managed to speak of baseball only in passing during the rally but took a time out to face the press and answer some questions about his baseball team; what problems the Rangers are going through, where possible corrections may lie and the value of certain players to the club.

The most pressing question concerned the team's managerial situation. Who, if anybody, is leading the way in search of a new general manager and will interim manager Darrell Johnson stay on after this season under the new GM?

"THE SEARCH is going much slower than I like, but we're making progress," said Chiles in reference to a replacement for disposed Eddie Robinson. "We've contacted a number of people and thought about a number of people but we'll probably wait until the end of the season before deciding."

And that leaves Johnson's job in limbo. Johnson came in when Don Zimmer left during the house-cleaning brought about by the Rangers' failure to win, a failure that still needs a remedy.

"I don't blame Darrell Johnson for that (the Rangers continued lack of winning)," said Chiles. "Darrell is a real good man and he's done a real good job with what he's had to work with. We're short on pitching and the hitters aren't doing the job. It's unfair to judge him by what's happened since he took over from Zimmer. But, any new general manager coming in has the right to hire his own field manager."

At least most of "what he already had to work with" was already organized. A late season trade with the New York Yankees brought shortstop Bucky Dent into the lineup for outfielder/first baseman Lee Mizzilli. But other than the normal September increases, few additions have been made.

As far as Chiles is concerned, "Bucky is doing a fine job here. His average is up from when he was in New York. I think he's found a home here."

THOUGH MANAGEMENT is part of the problem with the Rangers, or the first part an owner turns to when he's dissatisfied with a team's performance, Chiles admits that the personnel on the playing field aren't holding up their end and he indicated that there could be a lot of new faces next season.

"We're looking at everybody in triple A and some in double A," said Chiles. "At this time I think sevral double A and triple A pitchers will see a lot of service with the team next year. We'll probably dip into the free agent market a little bit too, but we've got a lot of talent in the minor leagues."

Texas' AAA team in Denver has produced one of the best surprises and most popular moves of the year. His name is Dave Hostetler and he can swing a hot bat while bringing the fans in the stands to their feet. When he comes to the plate, "Hoss" has his own music, the theme song to the television series "Bonanza" which had the late Dan Blocker starring as Hoss Cartwright.

"It was a very good move," said Chiles. "Yes, it really was. We had just acquired him from Montreal at the beginning of the season and we didn't know what he could do. When he played in Denver he looked good. He's a big plus in the game for everybody. We need about a half dozen more like him."

A half dozen more players like Hostetler and the Rangers would have trouble counting all their victories.

Intercity clashes open 4-5A volleyball

By ROBERT BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Volleyball players at Midland High and Midland Lee have had nearly three weeks to fine tune their game with non-district matches and tournaments. Now it's time to put what they've accomplished to the test for keeps as District 4-5A volleyball gets underway tonight.

The Bulldogs will have the home court advantage as they kick off their 4-5A season against Odessa Permian at MHS gym while Lee crosses the county line to take on the Odessa High Bronchos. For each matchup, the junior varsity will open action at 6 p.m. followed by the varsity at 7.

Midland High coach Linda Jolly, in her third year as head coach, has a bright outlook for her Bulldogs this season and she sees her team as well as nearly everyone else in the district as contenders for the 4-5A title.

"This year we've got a real good bunch of girls," said Jolly, "they help each other out. They still make a few mistakes but I can see where we're making some progress. These girls really developed, they can read and offense and no where they need to be. They picked up the system quick. I've been head coach three years and I've been with this group since they were sophomores."

AND AS a team to chase?

"I think San Angelo is going to be tough since they won the district the last three years," she said. "But I think we'll give them a good game. I don't think anybody is going to be weak in our district this year. I think everybody can give everybody else a good game."

Of the 10 girls on the varsity roster, three are returning senior lettermen led by Sheila Christian, Penny Griffin and Melinda Raschke. Four other seniors are on the squad, Lisa Coldewey, Theresa Haney, Jency Johnson and Laura Sherman while two are juniors, Maggie Marmolejo and Shauna Stokes and one a sophomore, Denise Lanz.

Inexperience is the key word Coach Janice Baulch used in describing her Rebels as they head into tonight's contest against Odessa High.

"We're basically a very inexperienced team even though we have five or six who played some last year. Of those players, only two saw a lot of action."

And in describing her team's performance from a 5-7 pre-district schedule?

"They play up and down, they're not consistant yet. They've improved quite a lot since the start of the year," said Baulch. "The main problem is this lack of consistancy. They get real nervous and that causes them to make more mistakes."

COACH BAULCH has her sights set on a school other than San Angelo this season as a favorite for the 4-5A crown. "From everything I heard, (Abilene) Cooper has a real strong team. From the past several years, you have to favor San Angelo but from talking to the San Angelo coach (Nita Vanoy), her team is like mine — inexperienced and playing in streaks, hot and cold."

The six lettermen Midland Lee has to start off the season are headed by Lesa Burnett and Felicia Farias, the two most experienced players on the squad, while Tina Lopez, Sharon McLaughlin, Sylvia Ochotorena and Carmell Scott each saw limited action in 1981. Also playing for the Rebels this year are Karen Carpenter, Lisa Mackey, Wendi Summers, Susan Stone, Theresa Thompson and Candy Warren.

Former fireman fires 63, sets NTPGA field ablaze

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Dwight Nevil, runnerup the last two years, was the talk of the North Texas PGA/Sahara Slacks Sectional Pro Am Monday with a course record-tying 63 at Green Tree Country Club.

As a result of his sizzling round, the 38-year-old former fireman who joined the pro tour in the mid-1970s, established himself as the man to beat in the four-day Sectional for North Texas PGA club professionals which got underway today at Green Tree.

But Nevil said, "I think Robert Hoyt, the way he has been playing, is the one to watch. He's so long. Today he had a 70 with five three putts and he was using medium irons to reach the greens."

NEVIL ALSO respects Benny Passons, the Fort Worth Meadowbrook pro who is the Minimax Point Player of the Year leader coming into the Sectional. "Benny is a good solid player and, most important, he thinks he can win."

Still, Nevil couldn't avoid the spotlight. What's amazing is that he bogeyed the first hole and didn't birdie either of the front nine par fives. But position and consistency were the name of his game. "My birdie on eight, a 15 to 18 footer, was the only long putt I made all day."

His front nine birds included three, five and eight. He began his back nine with a couple of 2½ woods to reach the par five green in two and leave himself a 1½foot putt for his eagle. He added birds on 14, 15 and 18.

Charles Bishop, Terrell's Oak Grove, and Ras Allen, Plano's Los Rios, tied for second at 67 and Passons' 68 was good for fourth.

Nevil enjoyed a couple of $60,000 years on the tour, winning the Magnolia Open, and bought e house in Pottsboro with his winnings. When he developed problems with his feet and legs he had to quit the tour. "I had too many bones in my foot and before I had surgery my leg would go numb." So, he simply became pro at nearby Tanglewood on Texoma.

SOMEHOW YOU get the feeling he'd like to shun his bridemaid's role in the Sectional. He finished second last year and two years ago tied Passons for second. "I finished six or seven back when I took a triple bogey on the next to last hole."

As for his 63, Nevil doesn't expect to see another at Green Tree this week. "The pins were in easy positions and in relatively flat locations. I think an eight-under might win the tournament."

Perhaps, the tough-to-escape Bermuda grass roughs, allowed to grow deep for the tournament, were the biggest shock to Metroplex golfers.

Despite his round, Nevil's team finished two strokes off the pace in the Pro Am which was won by with 54s by the teams of J.O. Dill, Hogan Park, Tom Tully, Tim Hanley and Raymond Nicholas and Val Howard, Vernon Hillcrest, Woody Lemons, David Belew and Johnny Walker.

Carlton first with 20 wins, Blue throws one-hitter

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The way Steve Carlton was pitching gave Philadelphia Manager Pat Corrales "goose bumps" — and the St. Louis Cardinals goose eggs.

"He just got stronger," Corrales said of Carlton after he pitched the Phillies to a 2-0 victory over the Cardinals with a three-hitter Monday night. "He's the best I've seen. It's amazing too, a man almost 38, pitching like he's 28.

"That's what desire and talent does for you. He prepares himself. He works hard."

With the victory, Carlton not only became the first 20-game winner in the majors this year, but also knocked the Cardinals out of first place in the National League East. The Phillies moved in front by a half-game.

Carlton retired the first 11 batters before giving up a double to Keith Hernandez. The left-hander, who has won the Cy Young Award three times, struck out 12 and walked none as he posted his fifth shutout of the season and 51st of his career.

The Phillies took a 1-0 lead in the first inning on a one-out walk to Gary Matthews followed by Mike Schmidt's run-scoring double.In the fifth, Carlton homered off Bob Forsch, 14-9, to make it 2-0, but it was his pitching — not his hitting — that had the Cardinals talking to themselves.

Dodgers 4, Padres 3

Steve Garvey slammed a two-out homer in the bottom of the 16th inningto break a 3-3 tie and lift Los Angeles over San Diego.

Jerry Reuss, 16-10, the eighth Los Angeles pitcher, earned the win. Chris Welsh, 8-7, the seventh San Diego pitcher, took the loss.

The game consumed five hours and 20 minutes, the Dodgers using 28 players, the Padres 22.

Joe Lefebvre and Gene Richards accounted for 11 of the Padres' 15 hits with six and five, respectively.

Astros 5, Braves 3

Harry Spilman's two-run triple highlighted a three-run, eighth-inning rally as Huston came back to beat Atlanta and give Joe Niekro a one-game lead over brother Phil in their career pitching matchups.

With the Astros trailing 3-2, Dickie Thon and Ray Knight singled to start the eighth. Spilman then sent a drive into the left-field corner and later scored an insurance run on Jose Cruz's sacrifice fly.

Phil Niekro, 14-4, saw his eight-game winning streak snapped and left the game after Danny Heep followed Cruz with a double.

Joe Niekro, 15-10, went the distance for the 13th time. He yielded 10 hits, struck out three and walked one. He is 5-4 against his brother.

Reds 5, Giants 4

Pinch-hitter Cesar Cedeno's bases-loaded single with two outs in the top of the 11th inning snapped a 3-3 tie and lifted Cincinnati over San Francisco.

Winner Joe Price, 3-3, worked out of two bases-loaded, no-out jams, in the ninth and 10th innings, before the Reds started the winning rally off loser Gary Lavelle, 9-7, with two outs in the 11th.

Paul Householder singled and went to third on a single by pinch-hitter Johnny Bench. Ron Oester was walked intentionally and Cedeno lined his game-winning hit to center.The Giants came back with a run in the bottom of the inning on Chil Davis' sacrifice fly.

Cubs 7, Pirates 3

Jody Davis and Jay Johnstone each hit two-run homers to back the combined six-hit pitching of Allen Ripley and Willie Hernandez as Chicago defeated Pittsburgh.

Ripley, 5-7, gave up five hits in the first seven innings, including a two-run homer to Dale Berra. Hernandez shut down the Pirates over the final two innings to record his 10th save.

Don Robinson, 15-10, was the loser.

"We might have had a little bit of a letdown tonight after beating the Phillies two games out of three," said Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner. "But they just had their hitting shoes on tonight."

IN THE American League Vida Blue ignored his own superstitions and continued to write a September song which the Kansas City Royals just might be singing all the way to the playoffs.

The 33-year-old left-hander hurled a one-hitter Monday night to subdue the Seattle Mariners 8-0 and keep the Royals in first place in the American League West. The only hit off Blue was Bobby Brown's two-out single in the sixth.

"I've always had a good September throughout my career," Blue said after winning for the third straight time this month. "September has always been good to me, and hopefully this will be another one.

"I just felt good and I had my rhythm throughout the game. I am a very superstitious fellow and today was the 13th, but I went through my normal routine and felt good."

He felt especially good after the Royals scored three times in the third inning, with Willie Aikens' highlighting his 4-for-4 night with a home run.

Angels 6, White Sox 4

Fred Lynn, reduced to pinch-hitting duty because of a rib injury, came through for the second time in as many chances in that role. Lynn broke a 4-4 tie with a single that knocked in two runs in the seventh.

"Freddie Lynn has taken two swings in two weeks, and won games each time," said Angels Manager Gene Mauch. "I'll tell you, there's not many Freddie Lynns."

"I'm not very good coming off the bench. And I get nervous when I'm pinch hitting, more nervous than usual when I'm at bat," said Lynn.

Tigers 4, Brewers 3

After Milwaukee's Gorman Thomas hit his AL-leading 35th homer in the top of the 11th, Lance Parrish stole Thomas' thunder, following a walk to Larry Herndon with a two-run blast off Pete Ladd for his 28th home run to win the game for Detroit.

"I had never seen Ladd pitch before," Parrish said. "Sparky (Anderson, Detroit manager) sent Chet Lemon out to tell me that if I saw the steal sign to Larry, I was supposed to treat it like a hit-and-run. I was just trying to make contact. I was just trying to get the bat out and hit it through the hole. You'll notice that it wasn't a particularly hard swing."

Orioles 8, Yankees 7

Baltimore overcame a 6-3 deficit and Dave Winfield's grand slam homer to edge New York and move within two games of Milwaukee. A three-run seventh, capped by Rich Dauer's second sacrifice fly of the night, pushed the Orioles in front to stay.

Pinch-hitter Dan Ford tripled and scored on Cal Ripken Jr.'s single. Gary Roenicke doubled and Rick Dempsey walked to load the bases.Dauer lofted a fly to right, scoring Ripken, and pinch-hitter Benny Ayala singled to drive in Roenicke.

Indians 3-4, Red Sox 1-3

Non-contending Cleveland severely damaged Boston's pennant hopes with the sweep. Ed Whitson tamed the Red Sox for the second time in less than a week in the opener. Ron Hassey's 11th-inning homer won the nightcap.

Boston blew a golden opportunity to at least tie the game in the bottom of the 11th. Carney Lansford led off with a double and Wade Boggs singled sharply to left, with Lansford holding at third.

Reid Nichols was ordered to attempt a safety squeeze bunt but third base coach Eddie Yost misread the sign from Manager Ralph Houk. Lansford came charging down the line as the bunt was popped to pitcher Tom Brennan, who threw to third, easily doubling Lansford.

Twins 2, Rangers 0

Al Williams won his fifth game in a row — the longest victory streak for a Minnesota pitcher this season — and Tom Brunansky supplied the power with a two-run homer.

U.S. clobbers Italy 13-2

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The United States routed Italy 13-2 Monday but Japan took sole possession of first place by beating Panama 7-2 and is set to fight South Korea for the title at the 27th World Amateur Baseball Championships Tuesday.

Powered by four home runs, the Americans built an 11-run margin over the Italians through the seventh inning before the game was called at the end of the inning under tournament rules.

They picked up their fifth victory against three setbacks and were mathematically eliminated from title contention when Japan posted its seventh win against only one loss in the 10-nation tournament.

Lowly Australia held host South Korea to a 6-6 tie at the end of the ninth inning of their game suspended because of time limit. The game will be resumed Tuesday morning.

Redwood yields much lumber

Because a redwood tree's trunk tapers only slightly as it reaches its full height of 350 feet, its lumber content is enormous. One acre of average redwoods yield about 70,000 board feet, enough to build five small houses. Prime stands of fir and pine yield about 7,500 board feet.

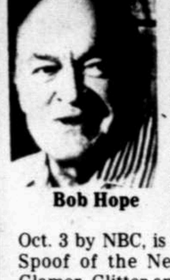
Burton, Taylor back together — for Bob Hope's television special

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor were back in each other's arms, but it was only an act — put on for comedian Bob Hope's upcoming television special.



Bob Hope

In the show, Hope portrays a doctor who performs surgery on a hidden patient. The patient, who turns out to be Burton, jumps up after the operation to kiss the surgeon's assistant, played by Miss Taylor.

Before Sunday's taping, Burton and Miss Taylor — who were married twice to each other — spent several hours chatting in her dressing room.

The special, to be broadcast Oct. 3 by NBC, is called "Bob Hope's Star-studded Spoof of the New TV Season — G-rated with Glamor, Glitter and Gags."

NEW YORK (AP) — Debra Sue Maffett says being Miss America gives her the opportunity to write her own ticket in life, and she hopes some day to be a talk-show host or run for political office.

Debra Maffett

The former Miss California, who was crowned Miss America 1983 in Atlantic City, N.J., on Saturday, said she hopes to use the pageant's $20,000 scholarship for undergraduate and graduate degrees in music at Lamar University in Texas.

"With the scholarships and notoriety, I believe I can pursue any area I want to very successfully," she said Monday.

Miss Maffett, 25, said she would like a career in entertainment, such as being the host of a talk show, and may even run for public office eventually.

Speaking of politics, Miss Maffett said she admires President Reagan.

"I didn't vote for him (in 1980), but if he runs again I would vote for him," she said. "As I'm getting older, I'm getting a little more conservative in my thoughts."

PIERRE, S.D. (AP) — The dress was blue jeans and high school sweaters. The entertainment was old rock 'n' roll records. And the guest of honor was Gov. Bill Janklow, who was celebrating his 43rd birthday.

Bill Janklow

The partygoers, who included Republican leaders and party faithful, paid $10 each to dance to the sounds of Bill Haley and the Comets and Fats Domino at a birthday party Monday night that doubled as a campaign fund-raiser billed as "The '50s Revisited."

Janklow cruised to the party in a green 1950 Ford and walked in with his shirttail hanging over his blue jeans and white sneakers. His wife, Mary Dean, was dressed in a white high school athletic sweater and skirt, bobby socks and sneakers.

Janklow, who is fascinated by the 1950s, is trying to collect the top 300 records of every year of the decade, and says he is now only about 100 short of his goal.

"I guess it's when life was simpler," Janklow said in explaining his interest in the era. "It was something we could all understand. We all have our memories of our youth, and this is mine."

Austrian artist finds rare art

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Alfred Bernsteiner, an Austrian artist and scholar, was browsing through an antique shop here when he found a dusty painting he thought was a bargain for $5,000.

Shortly after that, he says, someone offered him $125,000 for the watercolor of the Madonna with Infant, St. Ann and St. John.

Now, seven months and much detective work later, the 33-year-old Bernsteiner believes his initial hunch was right: that the painting is a priceless 500-year-old masterpiece by the German Renaissance painter Albrecht Durer.

The painting is now in a bank vault, said Bernsteiner. "It is almost holy," he said.

Durer lived from 1471 to 1528 and was the first German artist to win substantial recognition outside his native land, bringing the lessons of the Italian Renaissance to northern Europe. He is noted for his superbly proportioned figures, particularly in mythological scenes.

No one has ventured to price the Fort Lauderdale find, assuming it is a Durer, said Bernsteiner. But a Durer drawing sold for $800,000 at a New York auction several years ago, said Harold Joachim, curator of prints and drawings at the Art Institute of Chicago.

Bernsteiner's extensive search to discover the painter of the work began shortly after he bought it in February.

A London appraiser saw the painting this spring and pronounced it the work of a lesser artist. Then he offered Bernsteiner $125,000. Bernsteiner refused to sell.

Testing the painting with the latest infrared, ultraviolet and X-ray photographic techniques indicated the painting was not a recently produced fake, said Bernsteiner.

Following his suspicion that the painting might be by Durer, he turned to New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art, which referred him to a Chicago art laboratory, Walter McCrone Associates. The lab agreed to analyze parchment samples and paint pigments.

Researcher Lucy McCrone told Bernsteiner the parchment is 300 to 500 years old, with pigments used between the years 1300 to 1700.

"We can say that the age of the parchment and the pigments...are consistent with the possibility that the painting is by Durer," she wrote.

Bernsteiner said he has uncovered other evidence:

—Microscopes show Durer's monogram on both the front and back of the painting.

—The Madonna in the painting resembles Agnes Frey, Durer's wife, and St. Ann resembles portaits of Barbara Holper, the artist's mother.

—Infrared photographs and X-rays reveal the artist, who wrote notes on many of his works, scrawled the date 1494 and an inscription to his wife.

Princess Grace rests painfully in hospital

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — Princess Grace of Monaco rested uncomfortably with a broken thigh in a hospital today, 24 hours after the car the former American film star was driving plunged into a ravine, flipped and burned.

"Obviously she's in pain," a spokeswoman for the 52-year-old princess said. The spokeswoman, who declined to be identified, said a medical bulletin might be issued later on the princess' condition.

Earlier, the palace press office in the tiny Mediterranean principality said Princess Grace would be hospitalized for 10 days.

The princess, formerly the actress Grace Kelly of Philadelphia, fractured her thigh in the Monday morning crash but reportedly received no other serious injuries.

Her spokeswoman said brakes failed on the car she was driving in hills above Monte Carlo, skidded off a road after a hairpin turn and flipped several times as it plunged into a 120-foot deep ravine. The car then caught fire.

Joseph Chagra plea bargains

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — El Paso attorney Joseph Chagra was the only defendant in the assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. to reach a plea bargain agreement with the government before the deadline, a federal judge says.

Chief U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions would not reveal details of the plea bargain agreement, but confirmed minutes after the 5 p.m. Monday deadline that "the government has notified me of an anticipated agreement with Joseph Chagra."

"There is no anticipated agreement involving any other defendant," Sessions said after expiration of the deadline, which he had extended twice at the request of defense attorneys.

Sessions said he was "sure there will be motions, but I haven't received any yet" as a result of Chagra's plea bargain.

Neither federal prosecutors nor Chagra's chief defense attorney Billy Ravkind of Dallas would reveal details of the plea bargain.

Published reports have said Chagra will plead guilty to conspiracy and testify against alleged triggerman Charles V. Harrelson, 44, in return for a sentence of not more than 10 years.

Harrelson's attorney, Tom Sharpe Jr., could not be reached by telephone in Brownsville for his reaction to the plea bargain.

Chagra, 35, reportedly will not testify against his brother, Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra, 39, or Jimmy Chagra's wife, Elizabeth, 28 — necessitating at least two separate trials.

Prosecutors also will drop four other charges filed against Chagra in connection with the May 29, 1979, slaying of Wood, the reports said.

Galveston lawyer Warren Burnett, representing Mrs. Chagra, said Monday he anticipated a government motion to be filed this week asking that the cases be severed, but he said he did not know what form the separation might take.

Harrelson's wife, Jo Ann, 41, also is charged with conspiracy in connection with Wood's slaying.

Attorneys Abraham Kazen III and Ed Mallett worked Monday to hammer out the final details of Chagra's plea bargain in a meeting with prosecutors, and Chagra might appear before Sessions as early as Wednesday to enter his plea.

Both Joe and Elizabeth Chagra were brought to the federal building Monday from their respective jails, but Burnett said Mrs. Chagra was not involved in any attempt to plea bargain.

Burnett said, however, that he and other defense lawyers probably would filed amended motions to sever the cases and move the scheduled Sept. 28 trial out of San Antonio on a change of venue.

Joe Chagra's plea bargain, a reportedly apologetic letter that Elizabeth Chagra sent to Kathryn Wood — widow of the slain judge — and a hunger strike by Harrelson have contributed to news coverage of the case since Sessions ruled last month against a change of venue.

Sessions said he wanted to attempt to seat a jury in San Antonio before reconsidering moving the case.

Harrelson, who went on the hunger strike for two weeks until officials at a federal prison hospital in Springfield, Mo., began to force-feed him with a tube into his stomach, has returned to the Federal Correctional Institute at Bastrop to await trial.

In another development Monday, the government filed a motion asking that Belgian police question Yolanda Pietro, a former maid to Jimmy Chagra, about information she may have about the Wood killing.

Jimmy Chagra is charged with paying Harrelson $250,000 to shoot Wood to prevent the judge from presiding over his 1979 narcotics trial.

Hispanic mayors support Mark White

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A group of Hispanic mayors has endorsed Democrat Mark White for governor, calling Republican incumbent Bill Clements "callous and insensitive" to the needs of Hispanics.

But three hours after White announced the mayors' endorsement Monday, Clements was joined at a news conference by two Mexican-American leaders to proclaim "Hispanic Heritage Week," one of the leaders predicting that if Clements is re-elected "the Hispanic dream will come true."

At White's appearance, Waco Mayor Roland Arriola said Hispanic voters won't "be fooled by Clements. He has been callous and insensitive to Hispanics."

Eighteen of 50 Hispanic mayors in Texas have joined the Hispanic Mayors Advisory Committee to support White, Arriola said. The group did not include San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros, who has said he will endorse neither candidate.

At Clements' news conference, neither State Director Oscar Moran of the League of United Latin American Citizens nor Ed Bernaldez of the G.I. Forum would formally endorse the Republican incumbent, saying to do so would be a violation of their groups' charter.

But they praised Clements for an "open door" and appointing Mexican-Americans to positions in state government.

"Gov. Clements serves the people and not the office," said Moran.

Bernaldez said, "People of this country came in with a dream, and I believe that with Gov. Clements in office the Hispanic dream in this state will come true very soon."

His group was founded in 1948 to help Mexican-American military veterans.

Moran said Clements had named 160 Hispanics to positions in state government, but at the White meeting, Arriola said they were not significant jobs.

"We're tired of having rinky-dink positions," the Waco mayor said.

The Hispanic mayors said in a statement, "The negligence and apathy toward the cities we represent from the present governor has motivated us to become active in seeking a solution to our problems...We predict that Mark White will overwhelmingly carry every Hispanic precinct in the state."

Clements, however, said his polls show he is "comfortably ahead" of White. "I'll carry Bexar County," he said.

Accused murderer says he was defending himself

HOUSTON (AP) — A former security guard contends he was "fighting for my life" when Iris Siff, executive director of the Nina Vance Alley Theater, confronted him as he tried to rob her office.

"I do not feel that I had murdered anyone," reads a statement given to police by Clifford X. Phillips. "In my head, I was only defending myself. I feel that I was fighting for my life."

Attorneys for both sides closed their cases Monday, and State District Judge George Walker said final arguments would begin this morning.

If convicted, Phillips, 48, could be sentenced to life in prison or death by injection.

Prosecutors rested their case shortly Dr. Auerlio Espinola, a physician with the Harris County medical examiner's office, testified Mrs. Siff's neck was squeezed so hard a bone broke.

NOTICE OF FILING OF SOLID WASTE APPLICATION

ABBOTT BUILDING COMPANY has filed Application No. 1516 with the Texas Department of Health for a permit to operate an existing Type IV solid waste disposal site (brush, construction-demolition waste, and rubbish only) located approximately 3.1 miles west of the Midland Regional Airport, adjacent to the north service road of U.S. Highway 80, and 4.0 miles east of the intersection of U.S. Highway 80 and Loop 338, in Midland County.

The application covers approximately 9.5 acres of land and seeks a permit to receive solid wastes under the regulatory jurisdiction of the Texas Department of Health for disposal or other processing in accordance with the said Department's Municipal Solid Waste Management Regulations. A preliminary study of the application will be made by the Department and supplementary material may be required of the applicant.

Before the issuance or denial of a permit, a public hearing on the application will be held pursuant to the Texas Solid Waste Disposal Act (Article 4477-7, Vernon's Texas Civil Statutes) and the Administrative Procedure and Texas Register Act (Article 6252-13a, V.T.C.S.). Notice of such hearing will be published in a newspaper of general circulation in the area where the site is located at last thirty (30) days prior to the date of such hearing.

Additional information concerning this application should be requested from the above-named applicant or from the Bureau of Solid Waste Management, Texas Department of Health, Austin, Texas, phone (512) 458-7271.

Issued this 7th day of September, 1982.

Total move in costs of $5250 is based on 5% down or $3800 plus $1450 limited closing costs based on 15 days prepaid interest. The first year's payment of $673.30 (principal and interest only) is based on a loan amount of $71,400. The first year's payment and buyer qualification will be calculated equivalent to a rate of 150 7/8%, for 95% loan-to-value. Interest will be charged at a rate of 15 7/8% for the first 6 months of the loan. After the first 6 months interest will be charged at the most recent 6 months Treasury Bill plus 4.25%. The 7 1/2% maximum increase can be more if the original loan principal exceeds 125%. At each 5 year anniversary date, the adjusted to allow the remaining payments to fully amortize the loan.
