Explosion Victim

Christine Gerard, 13, is escorted to an ambulance by firemen after she and five other students were cut by flying glass when a San Diego, Calif., junior high school science fair exhibit exploded. William Gookin, teacher, was also injured. He was demonstrating how hydrogen gas is created when the flame from a Bunsen burner raced through a hose into a five-gallon bottle.

Cuba Charges Waters Violated By U. S. Ship

GOP To Continue Attacks On Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate minority leader, Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, reportedly has told President Kennedy the Republicans will continue to pound away at the administration's handling of the Cuban situation.

Administration leaders in and out of Congress have accused some Republicans of making inaccurate, irresponsible and dangerous charges about Cuba for political purposes. And these Democrats have urged a return to what they call the tradition of bipartisanship in international affairs.

A gesture in that direction was made last Monday night when Kennedy called 17 congressional leaders of both parties to the White House to report on Soviet Premier Khrushchev's assurance that he will withdraw some of the Russian troops now in Cuba.

SOME BRICKBATS

But one of those present at that briefing said Saturday Dirksen was not impressed and quoted the Republican leader as saying:

"Mr. President, I think you should know we're going to continue to pummel you about Cuba. There are going to be some brickbats thrown at you and not of the embroidered kind. We regard this situation as extremely critical and we are not going to be silent."

Long familiar with the ways of politicians, Kennedy was represented as taking this in stride. But Secretary of State Dean Rusk was said to have made it clear he was disturbed at the blunt language Dirksen had used.

Dirksen and House Minority Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana plan a fresh blast at the administration's Cuban policies at their first joint leadership news conference of the year early this week. This is familiarly known as the "Ev and Charlie" show.

The GOP leaders are convinced there is deep unrest in the country about Cuba. They obviously regard it as part of the political game to call attention to what they say is the Democratic President's responsibility to do something about it.

NOT LIKELY

On the other hand, Dirksen and Halleck are not likely to go along with some other party members who have proposed such remedies as a total blockade of Cuba. Nor are they expected to advocate invasion and occupation of the island although many observers can see no other way to destroy Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime quickly.

It is the two leaders' view that the situation is so delicate they ought not to try to back Kennedy into a corner where he might be forced by political circumstances to reject some possibly worthwhile proposal or might feel he had to adopt a risky course because of public clamor for it.

But they complain they can find no evidence of long-range administration policy for dealing with Cuba that goes beyond Kennedy's reported windup statement at the White House briefing that "We'll do the best we can."

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara outlined to the Senate Armed Services Committee Friday the administration's long-range plans on Cuba and Chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., expressed general satisfaction with them. He refused to say what they are.

TENOUS PROMISE

The Republican leaders regard as tenuous Russia's promise to withdraw some of the 17,000 troops remaining in Cuba.

Some of them said they brought away from the White House briefing the impression that the withdrawals probably would not include combat-ready troops. These are believed to number 5,000 to 6,000.

Some of the Republicans reported also that, so far as they can learn, the administration does not have any assessment of the number of Czechoslovakian, Polish—and even Communist Chinese—troops and technical workers who may be in Cuba.

Heart Fund Gets Youthful Lift At Theatre

The Heart Fund got a $70 lift Saturday morning when youngsters attending the morning show at the Ritz Theatre turned in that amount for admission. All youngsters attending were given an opportunity to contribute to the fund through envelopes passed out in the Big Spring elementary schools last week. Attendance was reported as "fair."

Mrs. Tommy Hubbard, chairman for the Heart Fund drive, said the response was excellent and her committee was pleased.

The city - wide canvass, with several hundred volunteers, gets under way at 1 p.m. today and will conclude around 4 p.m.

"We will try to contact every home in Big Spring during this canvass for the Heart Fund," Mrs. Hubbard said. "The contacts will be made by volunteer workers who will be identified by the official Heart Fund tag. This is not strictly a mother's drive, although most of the work will be done by them. There will be several husband and wife teams, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and FHA girls participating."

A simultaneous drive will be held in Coahoma today with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph White and Ray Echols spearheading the canvass.

Hazy Photograph Given As 'Proof'

HAVANA (AP)—Cuba accused the U.S. Navy Saturday of violating its waters Thursday and released a photograph of an antenna-studded ship cruising off Havana.

A caption accompanying the photograph identified the vessel as the Oxford and said it penetrated Cuban jurisdictional waters.

In the foreground of the picture was a Havana seaside drive landmark. The hazy photo appeared to be that of a converted merchantman that often can be seen from the Havana waterfront cruising across the horizon.

The cnarge followed a midnight speech by Prime Minister Fidel Castro accusing the United States of creating artificial tensions and making the seas off Cuba unsafe for navigation. Castro denied that his planes had attacked an American shrimp boat in the Gulf of Mexico three days ago.

The Cuban press also published pictures of eight men whose capture the government reported Friday, accused of launching counter revolutionary raids from Key Elbow, a tiny British island about 30 miles north of central Cuba.

The Cuban navy said the group hijacked two 33-foot trawlers that were recovered as the eight attempted to land arms. The group in the photos appeared to be dressed in fatigue uniforms.

Also photographed were rifles and ammunition alleged to have been used to organize rebel bands in Las Villas Province, plus Nicaraguan, American and Cuban money and emblems of counter revolutionary organizations.

Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa called on British ambassador Sir Herbert Stanley Marchant Friday night to discuss government charges that rebel raiders are using the British-owned key. An embassy spokesman described the session as amicable, however, and added that he did not think Roa made a formal protest.

Castro, in his midnight speech, read passages from Soviet Defense Minister Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Moscow speech Friday warning that a U.S. attack on Cuba would touch off World War III.

Denying responsibility for the shrimp boat incident, Castro said the shrimper "Ala" "didn't even fly a flag—a consequence of the state of chaos which imperialism has created in our waters."

In Washington, the State Department said it is waiting for an answer to its formal protest about the shrimp boat incident. The department said it had no other immediate comment on the Castro speech.

This Lesson Was Illuminating

LONDON (AP)—Peter Hicks, a fruit and vegetable dealer, has installed an electrifying unit in his auto as an anti-theft device. Anyone touching the vehicle is greeted by a blue flash and an electric shock.

Hicks says it may be a coincidence but, since he installed the device, "I haven't had a single parking ticket. Before that, I used to get one almost every day."

Earthquake Echoes Terrify Survivors

AL MARJ, Libya (AP) — The ruins of Al Marj shivered with fresh tremors Saturday, ghostly afterwaves of two big quakes that crumpled the town in a matter of seconds.

Small groups huddled in open ground devoutly murmured "Praise be God" at the end of each brief tremor. The new shocks lasted little more than a split second each, but this was small comfort to the fearful.

Authorities estimated that at least 265 persons died in the quakes that hit this ancient city of 12,000 Thursday night and Friday morning. About 500 injured have been taken to hospitals in Benghazi and Tripoli.

The number of dead was arrived at by adding known missing and known dead. There are 216 fresh graves in the cemetery outside the city.

"Some missing will show up and more dead will be found, but we now think most are accounted for," one official said. But a Libyan army spokesman, Lt. Bumedian Fariga, said, "The final figure will be over 300."

The U.S. diplomatic mission in Benghazi, reached by telephone from Rome, estimated that between 300 and 500 persons were believed buried under the debris of ruined buildings. However, the mission said the toll was estimated at between 500 and 700.

Premier Mohammed Othman Al Said visited the shattered city and proclaimed three days of mourning throughout Libya for the victims. The government thanked the United States and Britain for their emergency help.

Fully 80 per cent of the town's dwellings are either rubble or close to it. Several hundred people are housed in hastily built tent cities. But many of the inhabitants appear simply to have vanished—gone to stay with friends or relatives or camped somewhere under the open sky.

"The whole town will have to be rebuilt," said Fariga.

The freakishness of earthquakes is visible everywhere. An unblemished house stands next to one tumbled to dust. A plate glass window is all that remains intact of a store. The local government building is split and battered, but the police station is relatively untouched save for the clock — stopped when the quake struck at 7:18 p.m.

The U.S. Army hospital unit which flew in Friday decided not to set up the hospital because nearly all the serious casualties had been evacuated to Benghazi 70 miles away.

U.S., Russia Sliding Back Into Pre-Crisis Patterns

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
An AP News Analysis

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union are sliding back into the hostile pattern of name calling, rocket rattling and cold war maneuvering which often leads to some severe crisis in East-West relations.

The strong conviction in official quarters here after the Cuban crisis last fall that profound improvements were almost inevitable in Moscow-Washington relations is ebbing.

Hopes for early agreement on a nuclear test ban treaty through negotiation at Geneva have all but vanished. The United States favors resuming talks with Russia on the Berlin problem, as the Soviet government suggested last month, but positive results from such a further exchange on this critical issues are not now expected.

State Department officials privately agree the Soviet attitude toward the United States is hardening but enter one major reservation. Premier Khrushchev has not committed himself to a new policy of belligerence. The Kremlin may still be reviewing its policy as it was in the immediate postcrisis period. There is some evidence it is still on a zig-zag course, but the swing now is unmistakably to a tougher line.

Saturday the top Soviet negotiator at the Geneva disarmament conference, Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily W. Kuznetsov, left for Moscow only hours before the U.S. disarmament chief, William F. Foster, was due back in Geneva from Washington.

Nuclear test ban talks have moved into a deadlock in the last two weeks and Kuznetsov's departure is apparently a snub to further efforts at agreement, as promised by Foster.

What is happening in the nuclear test field is only one of recent tension - creating incidents that tend to harden East-West policies with a potentially profound effect on Allied as well as cold war problems.

The most spectacular evidence of a toughening of Soviet policy may actually be the least significant at the moment. That was Friday's speech by the Soviet defense minister, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky, in which he boasted of Soviet nuclear might and warned the United States that any attack on Cuba would start World War III.

This tough and belligerent talk, in the presence of Khrushchev, made less impression than might have been expected at the White House and the State and Defense Departments.

There are two reasons for this: Intelligence experts expected the Soviets to try to rebuild some of the prestige they lost in Cuba. The speech was delivered on the Russian equivalent of Armed Forces Day and violent statements are characteristic of national military days on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

Malinovsky's rocket rattling indicates that the movement in the Kremlin now is toward a much tougher policy, though flexibility remains in Khrushchev's hand and he has—as when he ordered his nuclear missiles out of Cuba—a vast capacity for reversing his course when self-interest dictates that retreat to a new front is the better part of wisdom.

Mexicans Greet Venezuelan Chief

MEXICO CITY (AP)—President Romulo Betancourt of Venezuela arrived from the United States on Saturday for an official visit to Mexico and received the warmest reception — and bigest guard — of his current tour.

Half a million Mexicans cheered, waved flags and showered the visitor, his wife and daughter with confetti along the avenues and streets from the airport to his hotel.

Quicker Tax Cut

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The AFL-CIO proposed Saturday a much quicker tax cut than President Kennedy has recommended, plus a big boost in government spending, to avoid a feared new recession.

Students Strike For Tougher Classroom Work

MILAN, Italy (AP)—Barricaded in their class rooms, the University of Milan's architecture students sat out Saturday night the 10th night of one of the strangest strikes in the curriculum of college capers.

They insist they won't let their professors in until courses are made harder and exams stiffer.

The professors are staying out, refusing to make the classwork tougher than it is.

"It looks like a stalemate," a spokesman for the 400 sit-in student strikers said. "We're not going to give in—and so far there have been no signs that the professors are going to, either."

Summit Plans?

GENEVA (AP)—The Soviet Union's chief disarmament negotiator flew to Moscow Saturday amid reports the Kremlin wants to generate a summit conference by entangling nuclear test ban talks here with the cold war issues of Cuba and Berlin.

U.S. Ambassador Says Chamizal Settlement Near

LAREDO, Tex. (AP)— Thomas C. Mann, U.S. Ambassador to Mexico, met with Texas officials in Laredo Saturday to discuss the Chamizal border dispute in El Paso.

"I'm optimistic and feel that a settlement is about to be reached on the problem," he said. "I think 85 per cent of the people of El Paso are in favor of the solution."

Mann, who returned to Mexico City late Saturday had two separate meetings, one of them with Texas Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr.

The ambassador has been in Texas several days discussing the Chamizal situation, a disputed 800 acres of land left on the Texas side of the Rio Grande when the river shifted more than half a century ago.

"It was just sort of a briefing session on the whole problem," Carr said. "Nothing was decided and nothing was supposed to be decided."

Shortly before noon Mann went into a 2-hour meeting with State Sen. Frank Owen of El Paso; Joe Friedkin of El Paso, chief of the U.S. section of the International Boundary and Water Commission; I. W. Miller, the commission's engineer in Laredo, and Bill Payce of the U.S. Embassy in Mexico City.

Owen and Mann called the session "a nice conference" but were non-committal about their discussion.

"We went over the problem but did not reach any conclusion," Mann said. "I was interested in learning what the senator knew about this and what he thought of it."

He (Mann) made no requests at all to us. This was just a discussion of the problems that might be encountered," Carr said.

The reorganization is the fourth major change in the 36th Division since its organization in 1917.

Under the change, units of the 36th in Corsicana, Kerens, Athens, Mexia, Temple, Wellington and Shamrock go to the 49th Armored Division in Dallas.

The officers were in Austin Saturday for a conference.

The reorganization has yet to be approved by the National Guard Bureau and Army.

AF Spacemen Spurn NASA

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two top space experts have chosen to stay in the Air Force rather than take higher-paying jobs with the civilian space agency, an informed source said Saturday.

The source said the National Aeronautics and Space Administration tried to hire Col. Charles E. Yeager, commandant of the aerospace research pilot school at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., and Maj. Robert M. White, also of Edwards, who holds the world altitude record for winged spacecraft.

Yeager was offered the job of directing the training of astronauts for the Gemini and Apollo programs—the same type of work he now does for the Air Force—and White was invited to accompany Yeager, the source said.

White and NASA research flier Joseph A. Walker qualified as astronauts by flying the X15 research plane, a rocket-powered aircraft, more than 50 miles high.

Some high-ranking Air Force officials reportedly are resentful at the expanding demands of NASA on the funds available for space research.

Balloon Launch A Race For Time

PALESTINE, Tex. (AP) — Scientists assembled here for a good look at the mysterious planet Mars through a balloon-launched telescope geared themselves for a race with time Saturday.

They calculate that the planet will move out of range in about three weeks.

Soviets Barred At Berlin Gate, Red Rites Delayed

BERLIN (AP) — Four busloads of Soviet soldiers were barred by U.S. authorities from entering West Berlin Saturday, delaying a wreath-laying ceremony with high-ranking Communists at the Soviet war memorial.

The Americans took the action at the request of British authorities, who had told the Russians that groups of military personnel going to the war memorial, near Brandenburg Gate, could not enter West Berlin at the U.S.-manned Checkpoint Charlie. Instead, a U.S. spokesman said, the Russians were told to use the Sandkrug Bridge British checkpoint, shortest and most direct route to the memorial.

The buses were held up more than one hour while American and Soviet officials negotiated.

Two other buses carrying a company of Red army soldiers and officers and a band passed through the British controls at the wall dividing this city without trouble.

A number of passenger cars carrying high-ranking officials, including Soviet Ambassador Pyotr A. Abrasimov and two Soviet generals, also were allowed to enter West Berlin.

While the buses were held up at Checkpoint Charlie, the ceremony in connection with Red Army Day was delayed and Communist officials were forced to wait in subzero weather. The ceremony finally started without the soldiers on the buses, who arrived later and laid their own wreaths.

A handful of West Berliners watched the ceremony, which began with the band playing a funeral march and ended with the Soviet national anthem. About 50 West Berlin policemen stood by in case of trouble but they had nothing to do.

This was the first time since last summer that Soviet vehicles were barred from entering West Berlin at Checkpoint Charlie. Two weeks ago, a Soviet bus was delayed by the Americans in retaliation for a similar incident involving an American bus on the Eastern side of the wall.

Western officials said they could not explain why the Russians wanted to cross at Checkpoint Charlie knowing they would be turned back.

"If they wanted to score a point or harass us, they certainly could have done much better," one official said. "Since the other buses used the Sandkrug Bridge and since high-ranking officials were forced to wait in the cold, we are inclined to believe that someone on the Soviet side just made an error by sending the buses to Checkpoint Charlie."

The incident was not mentioned by the East German news agency ADN when it reported on the various Red Army Day ceremonies held throughout the Soviet zone.

In observance of the day, the commander of Soviet forces in East Germany accused the West of planning to drag the world into a thermonuclear war.

Gen. Ivan I. Yakubovski, writing in the official Communist party organ Neues Deutschland, said Allied war plans call for using the West German army as the main attacking force.

"These dreams of midgets, who think they are giants, will be in vain," he added.

Cash Hangs On Tree For Hugh

Officials and deputies at the Howard County Court House gave Hugh Compton, operator of the lobby concession stand for the last 11 years, a farewell party Friday afternoon. Compton is moving March 1 to Austin.

A feature of the party, staged at 4:30 p.m. Friday in the office of County Superintendent Walker Bailey, was a money tree. The tree, decked out gaily in red cherries, used crisp $1 and $5 bills as leaves.

Friends of Compton provided the foliage. Mrs. Helen Acuff, who was a leader in the project, said there was $76 dangling from the tree.

Hugh was kept in the dark about the party and enticed to the second floor by Wade Choate, county auditor, on a pretense that something needed doing.

Cake and coffee were served. The Washington Birthday motif was carried out.

Two More Schools Select Spellers For County Bee

Two Big Spring elementary schools last week selected their spelling champions.

These youngsters will represent their schools in the Howard County Spelling Bee March 16. Winner of the county bee will be sent to Lubbock to complete in the regional meet, and if he wins there, will get a free trip to Washington D.C. and a chance to try his hand in the national spelling bee.

Bill Dawes, principal of Marcy school, announced that 11-year-old Joe Lewis, a sixth grader, is the champion of his school. Dawes said that a series of classroom eliminations reduced the field to eight and that the eight were then matched against each other.

Joe came out on top but he was closely pushed by blonde Linda Lanning, 10, a fourth grader who was selected as the Marcy alternate. Linda will spell in the county bee in event Joe should not be able to appear.

Joe is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Liverman, 3616 Dixon. He is a pupil in the sixth grade class of Mrs. Lela Porter.

Linda is the daughter of S. Sgt. and Mrs. Michael Lanning, 192A Hunter Drive. She is in Mrs. Dorothy Eubank's fourth grade.

Meantime, Boydstun school has also selected its contender for the county bee. M. R. Turner, principal of the school, announced that the champion of Boydstun is 11-year-old Barbara Jean Manley, a fifth grader in the room taught by Mrs. Dolly Benson. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Manley, 1106 E. 15th. Alternate for Boydstun school is Janice Majors, another fifth grader. She is in the room of Mrs. Virgil Smedley. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Majors, 1802 Alabama.

Turner said that Barbara is an exceptionally good speller and that the school is expecting her to make an excellent showing in the March 16 county bee. She won her title from 18 youngsters who were classroom champions in the school.

Air Force Coming Up With Rival To Polaris

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Air Force appears to be coming up with a midrange ballistic missile which could become a rival for the Navy's Polaris as a weapon on surface ships.

This was indicated last week in testimony before the House Armed Services Committee by the Air Force research chief, Lt. Gen. James Ferguson.

The new weapon—as yet unnamed—would be a mobile, midrange ballistic missile. The project still is in the study and early development stage with no decision reached on production.

But the possibilities for this missile take on added significance in light of U.S. backing for use of the Polaris on surface ships in a multination North Atlantic Treaty Organization nuclear force. And the weapon's chances have been helped by sympathetic interest from Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

Thus far a submarine-based weapon, Polaris could be used on surface vessels and interest in such use by a NATO nuclear force has been heightened by the fact that it would be cheaper and faster to convert ships than to build new submarines.

The projected range for the midrange missile would be about 3,000 miles while the advanced A3 Polaris now under development will be about 2,800.

In his testimony, Ferguson said the new system could be used in a vehicle able to operate over primary and secondary roads in Europe and elsewhere in the world or "it may also be deployed in fixed sites or on surface ships."

Under some circumstances, this view by an air officer might be regarded merely as another effort by the Air Force to move into the sphere of Navy operations.

However it was learned that the Defense Department has given support to studies of the possibility of using the midrange missile on surface ships, among other uses.

McNamara has proposed another increase in funds for study and development. For the current fiscal year, about $80 million was provided to initiate the study. McNamara has asked that the fiscal 1964 budget include funding of $143.1 million, to continue full-scale development of the new missile.

In submitting his request, McNamara said no decision has been made yet to produce and deploy the new missile but that "nevertheless, I believe it would be a good investment to proceed with its development at this time since we may need a weapon of this sort to fill the range gap between the Pershing and the ICBMs."

Record Price For Rabbits

HOUSTON (AP) — A grand champion pen of three rabbits brought a show record price of $3,500 Saturday at an auction sale at the Houston Livestock Show.

Joe Polichino, a beer distributor, competed in spirited bidding with Miss Gladys Brown, a University of Houston coed, before bidding the record price for the rabbits exhibited by Ronnie Anderson, 10, of Barker.

Bids by Miss Brown, a granddaughter of Edgar Brown, Orange industrialist and rancher, forced Polichino above the $3,000 mark.

The girl then outbid a restaurant owner and an oilman and paid a record $2,500 for the reserve grand champion pen shown by Bobby Kevil of Fort Worth.

It was a busy day for pretty Miss Brown. When the auction was over she had paid out $6,465.

Romney Keeps His Promise

ESCANABA, Mich. (AP) — Beaming as brightly as the February sun shining on him, Republican Gov. George Romney kept a campaign promise for a second inaugural Saturday and called upon Michigan to "pull itself together."

This inaugural was in this Upper Peninsula community of 16,000, to which hundreds of legislators, Republican leaders and ordinary citizens came to see Romney take his oath of office for the second time in two months.

And in a speech which followed, Romney promised his administration would pay heed to the special problems of the economically distressed, but resources rich Upper Peninsula.

Some of the 300,000 who populate the 16,500 square miles of Michigan above the Straits of Mackinac from time to time classify themselves as "forgotten citizens" as far as the more populous lower peninsula and state government at Lansing—500 miles away—are concerned.

"By cooperative actions, we can prove that we recognize our common interests as citizens of Michigan are far superior to our separate interests," Romney declared. "Michigan must pull together."

Family Of 10 Killed In Fire In Missouri

MOREHOUSE, Mo. (AP) — A family of ten was killed in a fire at their home Saturday.

Dead are Paul Saville, 47, his wife Shirley, 25, and their eight children, Paul David Jr., 10; Glenda Sue, 9; Hester, 8; Everett, 7; Alvin, 5; Michael, 2; Henderson 2; Zelda Mae, 4 months.

Chief of Police J. T. Kindred said the family was trapped in the one-story frame dwelling. The bodies were found in two beds, Kindred said.

"By the time the fire department got to the house, the place was all in flames," Kindred said. "I don't think those folks ever had a chance," he added.

Kindred said Saville was a disabled war veteran and had been living on a government disability pension.

The cause of the fire has not been determined. Kindred said the house was heated by a coal stove.

Hammer Victim Dies

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Carol Annette Clayton, 18, one of two girls bludgeoned with a hammer two days ago, died Saturday.

She received multiple skull fractures and brain injuries when beaten over the head with a hammer allegedly wielded by Rex Hintze, 17, of Salt Lake City.

Hintze, who had been free on $5,000 bail, admitted striking the girls with a hammer when he became enraged. He told Tooele County Sheriff Fay Gillette the girls wouldn't help him free his stuck car in the western Utah desert, so he chased them with a hammer and beat them over the head.

The youth was picked up by Salt Lake County sheriff's deputies here on the request of the Tooele County sheriff.

The second girl, Drinda Jane Atnes, 18, was still in serious condition.

A&M Wants University Title

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) —The Board of Directors of Texas A&M College voted Saturday to ask the Texas Legislature to change the name of the school to Texas A&M University and that the Texas A&M College System be changed to Texas A&M University System.

President Earl Rudder said that although the letters "A&M" were retained in the proposed name they were not intended to signify Agricultural and Mechanical as in the present name. He said: "The college has been traditionally known as A&M and these letters will continue to reflect the rich traditions of the institution."

Sterling C. Evans, Houston, was named president of the board of directors of the Texas A&M College System for the next two years.

John W. Newton, of Beaumont, was named vice president and Mrs. Edith S. Menefee, administrative secretary in the office of Chancellor M. T. Harrington, was re-elected secretary to the board.

Evans is a graduate of A&M and a prominent farmer-rancher. He has served on various agricultural committees and boards and is a director of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association.

Newton is the former vice president and general manager of refining for the Magnolia Petroleum Co. (now Mobil Oil); retired president of Norvell-Wilder Supply Co., Beaumont, and present president of the National Association of Governing Boards of State Universities. He is also a graduate of A&M and taught at the college for two years.

A total of $1,983,713 in contracts was awarded by the board of directors for construction projects through the A&M system.

Melvin Munn, Pampa humorist, will speak Sunday.

The morning session will feature a panel of Texas Tech journalism students including Max Jennings of Levelland, Claudette McInnis of Brownwood and Charles Richards of Jayton.

Snappy Salute

GATES OF HELL

By T. H. Tarbet, Preacher
Church of Christ, 2900 West Highway 80

The letter of criticism continues: "Now the scripture tells us that the gates of hell would not prevail against Jesus' church. But it seems Campbell had to start a reformation to restore the true gospel. Wouldn't it seem then that until Campbell came along that the gates of hell had prevailed against the church for a while and the world had been without it? So it seems to me."

Reply: In most, if not all the communities where the church was, during the days of the apostles, it ceased to exist when the Mohammedans over-ran that country. In many of these communities the church has now been restored. But for a long time there were not (so far as history records) any followers of Christ. Yet, the gates of hell had not prevailed against the church in that country. The true church still existed in its seed, the word of God (Luke 8:11). "The word of the Lord endureth forever" (I Pet. 1:25). As long as the wheat seed with its germ of life is preserved, the wheat plant is not destroyed.

In England and America a movement toward restoring the church began in the nineteenth century; but it was not started by Campbell or any one man.

Unit Marks Muster Day

Muster Day, climaxing a month of recruiting held by the Big Spring battery of the 49th Armored Division, Texas National Guard, was observed at the armory Friday.

"We have had three recruits in the past 10 days," Lt. Johnny Hooper, commander, said Saturday. "The open house, to which each enlisted man was asked to bring a guest, failed to turn up more recruits. We have openings for 22 enlisted men and two officers to bring the battery up to full strength of 66 enlisted men and five officers, and invite inquiries from any young man interested."

The Muster Day open house is a traditional feature of the National Guard, and dates back to colonial days, the local open house and muster was held Feb. 22 to coincide with Washington's birthday.

STAMP NEWS

Civil War Stamp Is Re-Scheduled

By HAROLD C. PERDUE

Post officials announce that the special United States issue for the 100th anniversary of the Emancipation Proclamation has been postponed. Originally scheduled for February, it will be re-scheduled for late spring or early summer. The third in the series of Civil War stamps will be issued in connection with some special ceremony of the Civil War Centennial Commission.

A new 6 cent precanceled Air Mail Postal Card was released Feb. 15 at Maitland, Fla. It is printed in red, on white stock with red and blue borders. The stamp depicts a bald eagle, at one time plentiful in the United States. However, only about 4,000 of the birds exist today in the United States. Used as a symbol of freedom, and often associated with our nation's coins, there has been a campaign to help preserve the few remaining eagles, with the Audubon Society as a leader in the campaign. Maitland was the place of organization of the Florida Audubon Society. The new postal card will be placed on sale in all post offices as present stocks are depleted.

Israel released its fourth air-mail series Feb. 13. Designed by Miriam Koroly, the multi-colored stamps feature native birds. The 0.55 denomination pictures a Hubara Bustard, a game bird that lives on the dry, open plains. Pictured here is the 0.70 value, showing a Scops Owl, a native tree owl. The 1.00 value pictures a Purple Heron, a long-necked wading bird.

Philippines recently released a one peso stamp in honor of Emilio Jacinto, in the series on Famous Filipinos. Finland has reissued three coat-of-arms stamps and three pictorials in a new currency.

Postmaster General Edward Day recently announced that all postmasters can now sell the 1¼ cent and the 2½ cent stamps in unprecanceled form. The 1¼ cent depicts the Palace of Governors in Santa Fe and the 2½ cent symbolizes the Battle of Bunker Hill. Until this announcement, these stamps had been available only in precanceled form to the holders of special mailing permits. This change in policy is in keeping with the attempt to make all philatelic items available to everyone in sufficient quantity to meet the demand. The stamps will also be on sale at the Philatelic Agency in Washington, D. C.

HAROLD PERDUE EXAMINES STAMP BLOCK
Everyday hobbyist to write column for Herald

Stamp Columnist Calls Himself 'Just A Duffer'

Harold Perdue, who today begins a weekly stamp collecting column in the Herald, describes himself as a pure hobbyist.

"If it were golf," he said, "you might call me a duffer."

His vocation is that of minister. A resident of Dallas, the Rev. Perdue is the son of a Methodist minister, the Rev. Guy E. Perdue of Hillsboro. After graduation from SMU and Perkins School of Theology, he served in pastorates at Texline, Midland and Amarillo before being assigned in 1961 to Coahoma.

When he was a lad, he had a great-aunt, a Navy nurse stationed in the Orient. The stamps on the letters she mailed back fascinated him, and he began collecting.

When he got into high school, like most other boys who find their time taken up with other things, he forgot about his stamps. About five years ago, however, he decided he ought to have a hobby and thought of his stamps. His modus operandi is similar to that of any average collector. He makes his own albums, using regular notebooks. While he has a general (worldwide) range, Rev. Perdue does have a couple of specialties.

One of them is in collecting first day covers, that is, envelopes cancelled at the post office where the stamp commemorates some person, thing, or event. (For instance, when the Sam Rayburn stamp was issued last year, the covers were mailed from Bonham.) Most of his covers aim at blocks, that is four corner stamps from a page of stamps, each one having a plate number.

His real specialty, however, is religion in stamps. The world is his field here, and any stamp about a religious event, place, a religious symbol or person attracts his interest.

Unlike some serious collectors, he has both cancelled and uncancelled stamps, so long as they fit in his scheme. He has contacts with whom he swaps covers and stamps, one of the most active being in Germany.

Rev. Perdue keeps up with several stamp journals and philatelic events. Information of interest from these will be reflected in his column, too.

But most of his writings will be beamed to the "duffer" audience in stamp collecting, but with enough of the other news to interest more advanced and serious collectors.

Bad Parking Leads The List

Hazardous parking led the list of 356 traffic violation tickets issued by Big Spring police from Jan. 20 through Feb. 16. Speeding came next with 54 tickets issued, driver's license violations with 41, and loud mufflers with 17.

Convictions, where the violator either paid his fine or went before the corporation court judge, ran to 242, or 68 per cent. Around 20 per cent are to be tried.

Other violations in which drivers were given tickets, and the number, were: Running stop signs 15, running red lights 13, improper turns 12, failure to yield right of way 12, following too closely 9, driving wrong way on one-way street 7, improper passing 3, improper start from parked position or by spinning wheels on pavement 10, improper registration 1, defective brakes 2, defective lights 8.

Speeding violations caught by the police department's new radar unit numbered 21.

Bible Course For Adults Set At HCJC

Another adult education course, this one in Bible, will begin at Howard County Junior College March 4.

The course is on "The Life of Christ," and it will meet each Monday from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. at the college with Leslie Kelley as instructor. It will examine the life of Christ from a historical standpoint as recorded in the New Testament. The course will cover the historical background showing how the Old Testament is related to the New. It also will touch on life as it was lived in the first Christian century, and will deal with the authorship of the Gospel and with the life of Christ.

Registration will be March 4, the day of the first class. Cost will be $10. Information may be had at the college.

The ladies hat-making course, taught by Mrs. Thomas C. Seebo, has been extended due to popular demand. Another course will be organized at its conclusion.

Tower Returns To Banking Panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said Saturday he has reassumed membership on the Senate Banking and Currency Committee and will rank second there only to Utah Sen. Wallace Bennett among Republicans.

Earlier in the shuffling of committee assignments among Senate Republicans, Tower had left Banking for a spot on the Senate Government Operations Committee.

The Texan said he moved back to Banking because the switch of another Republican with seniority over him to another committee enabled him to take over the No. 2 GOP position on Banking.

The elevation in committee rank also will let him serve on a subcommittee which will investigate Federal Housing Administration practices, a matter in which he is interested because of pending inquiries into FHA practices in Texas, Tower said.

Teachers' Meeting Planned At Odessa

Big Spring teachers and school administrators will turn out en masse March 8 for the 28th Annual Convention of the West Texas Teachers Association in Odessa. Students will have a three-day holiday that weekend.

About 3,900 teachers and administrators from the 15 counties in District IV of the Texas State Teachers Association. Theme for the convention will be "Our Goal —Educational Excellence." This is the second year in a row that the affair is being held in Odessa and it is that city's largest convention.

Sebron B. Williams, assistant superintendent for the Big Spring Independent School District, is president of District IV. S. M. Anderson, superintendent, is a member of the State Executive Committee.

Convention activities begin March 7 with a 7 p.m. House of Delegates meeting and banquet in the cafeteria of Odessa High School. Association officers, special convention guests and 160 official delegates from teacher association units in all the counties will attend. They will approve or reject numerous resolutions and will elect district officers for the next year. They will also elect delegates to attend a state meeting of Texas State Teachers Association.

All members of the district association are expected to attend the general session meeting at 10 a.m. March 8 in the Odessa High School fieldhouse. They will hear reports from numerous district committees as well as a principal keynote address by a featured speaker.

Many teachers will attend special luncheons sponsored by special teacher groups, and many of these luncheons are expected to feature speakers from throughout the state.

Thirty - eight section meetings will be held that afternoon, beginning at 1 p.m. and 2:30 p.m. Local teachers will take part in leadership of these meetings as well as attending for informational purposes.

The convention will feature commercial exhibits to be set up in the girls gym at Odessa High School. Here teachers may see educational aids and materials supplied by some 30 companies.

The 15 counties from which teachers will come to the convention are Andrews, Borden, Crane, Dawson, Ector, Gaines, Glasscock, Howard, Martin, Midland, Mitchell, Scurry, Upton, Reagan and Winkler.

More Students Needed For Mechanics Class

Tools and machinery for training automobile mechanics at Howard County Junior College under the Texas Employment Commission Manpower Training program are now being installed. A classroom has been set up at the school and the instructor, James Banks, will report for duty Monday. Classes will begin at 7 a.m. March 4.

Leon Kinney, manager of the TEC office here, said that he has 15 or 16 qualified applicants so far. He wants 20 for the first class and, if enough show up, a second class will be started. This second class would begin at noon and extend through 6 p.m. The classes will be run five days a week, 52 weeks in all. The trainee will have completed 1,560 hours of training in automobile mechanics if he finishes the course. Fifty hours will be allotted to orientation, another 50 hours will be used to introduce the student to shop work, and 300 hours will be allocated to the automobile engine.

The fuel system will be studied for 100 hours; the cooling system 60 hours; ignition, lighting and instruments 200 hours; chassis 300 hours; diagnosis of common automobile repair and maintenance problems, 200 hours; and basic principles of air conditioning service, 100 hours.

About the midway of the year, students will apply themselves to "live" cases — actual diagnosis and repair of cars in need of repairs.

Kinney said he is reasonably certain the 20 needed for the first class will be on hand March 4, but he would like to have a reserve list of applicants to make up a second class. Applicants are invited to go to the TEC office and inquire about the program. An applicant accepted by the class will be eligible for support payments during the time he is enrolled, if he is the head of a family. The present schedule calls for payment of $29 a week to each student.

An applicant must be at least 19 years of age and must be either unemployed or under-employed at this time. He must pass a standard test to show an aptitude for mechanics.

Kinney said that he has one applicant accepted who is 42 years old. He has another who is 38. However, most of the applicants range in age from 19 to 26 years. Kinney said he was particularly pleased with the obvious good character of those applying and by their evident interest in the program.

The college is being supplied with tools and machinery for the shop. And is also being allotted money to pay Banks for his services. The college has set aside a room for the work.

Ultimately, if the program proves as successful here as in other communities, there may be classes in other fields. One, now being given close study, is a class in cafe-cooking.

Meantime, the need for a full class in auto mechanics is occupying the time of Kinney and his TEC staff.

"We want to get this one well under way and show how well it works," he explained." Once this is accomplished we will be in a good position to move on with other plans."

Bus driver John R. Evenson, 40, of Ft. Atkinson, parked his empty vehicle near the shore of Lake Monona in Madison, Wis., while he left for coffee. The bus rolled backward into the lake and it took two wreckers and a dump truck three hours to haul it out. The bus brought Ft. Atkinson high schoolers for a Capitol visit.

Russia Loses Hemisphere Bid, Says LBJ

WICHITA FALLS (AP) —Vice President Lyndon Johnson said Saturday night that Russia has lost its gamble to extend the Communist empire into the Western Hemisphere.

Johnson said in a speech prepared for a dinner audience that the year 1962 is likely to be pinpointed "as of one of the decisive turning points in the cold war and of the whole long struggle between freedom and tyranny." He continued:

"First, after 15 years of containment, the Russian Communists gambled desperately in an attempt to extend their armed empire across the oceans to the Western Hemisphere. They gambled greatly—and they lost.

"Second, after that failure, the Russian Communists turned back to an empire in which—for the first time since communism came into existence—they found their own leadership and control defied and challenged by the Chinese Communists. And the whole myth of Communist unity exploded."

The vice president spoke at a banquet honoring U.S. Rep. Graham B. Purcell of Wichita Falls. About 1,000 persons attended.

Johnson said that when the Soviets moved missiles into Cuba "they found themselves facing the hard reality of an America ready, an America prepared, an America resolute.

"In the face of that preparedness and resolve, the forces of communism backed away.

"But there is one vital point which I believe needs to be brought home. The American strength which Khrushchev faced in Cuba—the strength which has held the line against aggression through all these years of the cold war—is not solely the strength of arms and planes and missiles and bombs. The greater strength which has carried us through these years of peril is the strength of this country's political system—the system of which all of us are part and to which each of us adds or subtracts strength and solidarity."

Johnson said the country needs to recognize that partisanship is not "the end-all and be-all of citizenship."

"In our national history, there are no heroes who made their names as partisans," he said. "The only men remembered—the only men worth remembering—have always been those who have placed the country above party and principle above partisanship. We shall have lost the keystone from the arch of our national strength if ever our values are otherwise."

Delayed Dispatch Tells Horror Of Earthquake

By RED GRANDY
Chief Photographer, Stars and Stripes

AL MARJ, Libya (Delayed) (AP)—Dawn broke Friday to reveal the full horror of the earthquake which struck this Eastern Libyan city of 11,000 Thursday night.

Huddled together, dazed and injured, residents of the city saw in the early light the full extent of the damage done by the quake which struck suddenly at 7:15 p.m. Thursday.

Nearly 70 per cent of the city was in rubble. Stone and mud houses collapsed instantly. Concrete buildings were left twisted by the first quake, which was followed by tremors.

In 15 seconds, the city, located in a fertile valley 50 miles northeast of Benghazi, was in ruins.

More than 250 dead and 500 injured were counted by Friday morning. The toll was expected to mount as rescuers continued the grim search for victims.

Throughout the night U.S. Air Force rescue teams from Wheelus Air Base, Tripoli, British Army units from Benghazi, and Libyan Army and civilian medical teams worked in darkness to help as many of the stricken as they could find.

Paramedics of the 58th U.S. Air Rescue Squadron based at Wheelus, the first Air Force emergency help to get here, found families clinging together in the rubble of their homes or beginning to dig out what possessions they could find in the ruins.

Some of the victims, searching the streets for members of their families, walked aimlessly, wailing in anguish. Some wandered in shock, waving their arms and moaning, oblivious to help offered them.

Work had already begun Friday morning to dig graves for the dead south of the city, which is bordered by flooded fields and mired by rain-drenched red clay streets.

Paramedics of the 58th Squadron were followed by more medics and the 7272nd Air Base Unit at Wheelus.

Led by Capt. Barry N. Shaklin, of Hillside, N.J., the men of the 58th administered first aid and drugs to the injured, searched the ruins for victims and helped in the evacuation of injured to a nearby Libyan Army hospital.

Airlift operations continued throughout the night and Friday from Wheelus, about 250 miles east of Benghazi. Emergency rations and other needed equipment were transported to Benghazi.

Within four hours after being alerted by Libyan officials Thursday night, Col. Irwin H. Dregne, commander of Wheelus Field and Lt. Col. William M. McDonald, commander of the 58th Squadron, had dispatched six aircraft with supplies to the stricken area.

Blood donor stations were set up at Wheelus and in Tripoli and American and Libyan volunteers joined in providing plasma for emergency use in Al Marj.

As rescuers worked through the night to save lives, tremors of Libya's worst earthquake could still be felt in the rubble-filled main street of the town.

An estimated 50 per cent of Al Marj's housing and commercial district was destroyed by the quake.

On board the first mercy flight from Wheelus Air Base to Cyrenaica was a team of medical technicians headed by Capt. Barry Shaklan of Hillside, N.J. These first Americans to reach the stricken city teamed up with Libyans and British to carry out rescue missions during the night.

Included in the team were S.Sgt. Robert Bennett of Portland, Ore., S.Sgt. Delbert Ray of Groves, Tex., Airman 1. C. James Dyson of Washington, D.C., and Airman 1.C. Loch Williamson of Carrollton, Ga.

A C47 piloted by Maj. Peter Scaandalis of Yuba City, Calif., flew medical supplied gathered by the Libyan government.

Two helicopters from Wheelus Air Base left for the stricken area early Friday, making refueling stops during the night at U.S. installations along the coast.

Operating from Benina Airport near Benghazi, a copter piloted by Capt. David Pittard brought the first of the critically injured to medical facilities in Benghazi at 2:00 p.m. Friday.

In the midst of the turmoil at the military hospital, a young Libyan mother gave birth to twins, and then turned to offer comfort and sympathy to the injured.

Record Low Temperatures Are Noted In South, East

By The Associated Press

Arctic cold numbed parts of the South and East with record low temperatures Saturday and threatened the first known freeze-over of Lake Superior, the world's largest fresh water lake.

Subzero temperatures were recorded in the Midwest and Northeast. Northern Florida had freezing weather with Tallahassee recording 23 degrees, a record low for the date.

A new push of Canadian air hit the northern Great Plains assuring continuation of the deep-freeze weather in the midcontinent that has made this winter one of the coldest of the century.

As far as is known, Lake Superior never has been completely frozen over. But Arthur Myers, U.S. meterologist at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., said an airline pilot reported Friday that the only water visible in the 400-mile-long, 100-mile-wide lake was in scattered patches not more than one to two acres in size.

Scattered light snow fell from the northern Rockies eastward through the Missouri Valley and into the middle and upper Mississippi Valley. Hazardous driving warnings were issued as sleet or freezing rain spread into eastern Missouri and southern Illinois.

Cold records for the date toppled for the third consecutive day in Charleston, W.Va., and Louisville, Ky. Charleston had a -2 reading and Louisville 5 above.

At Albany, N.Y., the -4 record for the date set 87 years ago was shattered when the mercury shriveled to -16.

Other low records set for the date included: Pittsburgh, -1; Philadelphia, 6; Hatteras, N.C., 15; Norfolk, Va., 15.

More than 18 inches of new snow fell in the Watertown and Lowville areas on western New York on the lee side of Lake Ontario.

Temperatures were below freezing in the Northeast with the teens or lower from the Dakotas to the northern Great Lakes and from Pennsylvania across New England. The 30s and 40s covered much of the rest of the country except for some 50s and 60s in Florida and the desert Southwest.

Temperatures in the Far West were about normal for the season and skies were generally clear except for some fog in portions of Washington and Oregon.

Widespread Rains Welcomed By Farmers And Ranchers

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Widespread rains were welcomed by Texas farmers and ranchers in the past week.

Some of the best rains fell in dry Southwest Texas and will make it possible for farmers to prepare land and start planting, John Hutchison, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, said.

The moisture and warmer weather, he added, will give small grains a chance to come back where they haven't been killed and should also start ranges to greening. Livestock over the entire state require heavy feeding.

The northern half of the Far South Texas District got a good general rain which will help crops and ranges. Moisture will enable farmers to plow and plant. Heavy feeding of livestock will continue for several weeks. The last freeze killed some early cotton, tomatoes and melons in the Rio Grande Valley. All will be replanted.

Beneficial rains fell over all South Central Texas. Moisture and warmer weather will revive vegetation. Corn and watermelon planting conditions became favorable. Flax and oats also benefited from the rain. Feeding will continue for some time.

Rains were general over the upper Gulf Coast area and were heavy in some areas. Oats show some recovery and furnish some grazing. Permanent pastures are showing little or no improvement. Feeding is continuing, he said.

Soaking rains in East Texas will materially benefit recovering oats and clovers but grazing is short. Feeding is heavy and the supply of feed is becoming short.

Moisture was short in Northeast Texas but oats are beginning to show some life. Heavy feeding is continuing and hay is becoming limited. Livestock are in fair condition; pastures are below average.

Light rains over Central Texas didn't solve the moisture problem except in a few areas. Oats are making a slow recovery but providing little or no grazing. Spring seeding has started. Feeding continued.

Rains up to an inch fell in the San Angelo area and heavier amounts hit in the southern counties of West Central Texas. The moisture will help but more is needed along with warmer weather, if the doubtful prospects for small grains improve. Livestock are in fair to good condition. Feeding is heavy.

Light snow and rain in far West Texas helped but more is needed. Livestock were in poor to good condition with feeding heavy. The cold hampered recovery of grains and has caused some losses of young lambs and kids.

Moisture is needed in most north central counties. Wheat made the best recovery from the freeze damage. A good rain would help all grains. Grains are furnishing little grazing and heavy feeding goes on.

Snow fell in several Rolling Plains counties but more moisture is needed. Only 2 of the 22 counties have adequate moisture. wheat improved but slowly. Feeding is general.

Snow was sufficient in most South Plains areas to green up wheat when warmer temperatures arrive. Livestock were in good condition with a lot of feeding.

Moisture was light in the Panhandle but wheat got some benefit. More moisture is needed. Wheat is making slow recovery. Cattle are still moving from wheat pasture to market. Heavy feeding goes on.

Wilson Exploration Company No. 1 J. T. Boyd was staked as an 8,200-foot exploration last week to seek the Mississippian in northeastern Howard County. It might be recalled that the first Mississippian production in the Permian Basin, although depleted many years ago, was tapped in the No. 1 Gartner in that area.

A pat on the back is due J. D. Campbell, city policeman, who happened to be at the right place at the right time. Better than that he reacted instantly when he saw a big truck rolling from its moorings. Consequently, he got it braked before any damage or injury could result. A mighty fine job.

Reports on the first year of the experiment initiated by the Big Spring State Hospital in conjunction with El Paso authorities have indicated glowing results. An arrangement for treating first-time of short-term mental patients in an El Paso hospital has drastically cut down on the number of patients sent from the hospital here for treatment. The implication is that other arrangements at strategic locations should cut the patient load down here to a point the hospital staff could do an even better job in intensive treatment.

Blount Probes County Graft

HOUSTON (AP)—The Houston Chronicle, in a copyright story, quoted Gregg County Judge R. E. (Peppy) Blount as saying Saturday he and private investigators have found evidence of irregularities in the operations of the East Texas county's government.

Blount was quoted as saying irregularities involving hundreds of thousands of dollars were found by a Houston investigative firm that has been working secretly in Gregg County since Wednesday.

Blount and Clyde Wilson, a partner in the Houston firm of Bradley, Wilson and Associates, said they have found evidence indicating "misuse of county equipment and manpower and illegal purchases paid for by Gregg County tax money."

The county judge said some documents appear to be bills submitted to the county for payment and accompanied by tax affidavits swearing the money was used for county purposes "when in fact it was spent for private use."

The Chronicle said Wilson, assisted by Kenneth Kipe, a staff accountant from Houston, and Jack Wolf, a Tyler court reporter, has questioned at least a dozen persons since Wednesday.

Blount said Wilson's investigation is being coordinated with a county audit that began after the county commissioners court in December hired Charles Stipe, a Dallas accountant.

The Chronicle quoted Blount as saying he hired Wilson's firm last week with the financial backing of former Gregg County grand jurors "and some other interested persons."

Wilson said he expects to be in Gregg County at least two more weeks and that his investigation will expand beyond the county departments so far involved.

A former state legislator, Blount was elected county judge last November in a write-in campaign against the then incumbent, Earl Sharp. Blount took office in December after Sharp resigned after being indicted by a grand jury investigating the slanted oil well scandal.

Blount said he probably has "agitated some officials" by making 16 speeches since December calling for greater economy in the Gregg County government.

He said other county officials have ignored his suggestions that such offices as county school superintendent, highway right-of-way buyer, and county juvenile officer be abolished. He also has asked that the county abolish the offices of at least three justices of the peace and three constables. The county now has seven justices and seven constables.

California GOP Group Jarred

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — A stormy fight between party regulars and conservatives jarred the state convention of the California Republican Assembly Saturday.

President Fred Hall abruptly called off the business session until Sunday after an uproar over the seating of challenged delegates at the opening meeting.

Boos and shouts of "Railroad!" greeted the action.

Hall told newsmen that the furor was caused by conservatives trying to disrupt the meeting as part of their drive to capture control of the volunteer party organization.

"I am speaking of Birch and Birch-supported people," he said.

'Dead' Man Lives Again

HOUSTON (AP)—A man came back to life Saturday after being officially dead 25 minutes.

St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital spokesmen said nurses and doctors had confirmed the death of Ollie Kerr, 35, but about 25 minutes later a nurse noticed an artery pulsating.

Kerr has been in critical condition since he was shot Feb. 18.

VACCINE GOES TO 390 MORE

COLORADO CITY (SC) — A total of 7,388 persons took the Type 3 polio vaccine in Mitchell County when 390 appeared for the second make-up clinic Saturday. Four hundred showed up for the first make-up last Saturday.

The vaccine for all three types was given at the schools in Colorado City, Westbrook, Loraine and Silver, and all all make-ups were given at the Barber Building in Colorado City.

The Type 1 vaccine went to 8,309 and Type 2 to 7,248.

Profit-Taking Skids Market

NEW YORK (AP) — Profit-taking on the stock market's prolonged advance finally grew strong enough last week to produce the first over-all market decline in 10 weeks.

The drop was a moderate one. The trading week was shortened to four days by the Washington's Birthday holiday. One session of vigorously rising prices could have produced a net gain instead of a loss for the week.

Bank Robbery —By Check

TEMPLE, Tex. (AP) — A robber forced a Temple widow to write an $11,500 check Saturday, and then fled with most of the money after a bank porter brought it to her home.

The victim, Mrs. D. B. Boyd, told officers the robber, about 6 feet tall and wearing a stocking mask, awoke her early Saturday by flashing a flash light in her face.

"I'm not going to hurt you, I just want your cash," Mrs. Boyd quoted the robber as saying.

Mrs. Boyd said the man asked for $30,000, but she told him she didn't have that much money.

She said the man then forced her to write a check for $11,500, and call a Temple bank to deliver the cash to her home.

About 9:30 a.m., W. C. Irons, a bank porter, arrived at the Boyd home with the money.

As she answered the door, the robber stood behind the door holding her hand. The porter started counting the money out to Mrs. Boyd, who asked him to just hand the money to her.

She said he explained that he was required to count out the money. At this moment, the robber, armed with an iron bar, stepped from behind the door.

Irons dropped the money. In his hurry, the robber grabbed all but two bundles of currency, totaling $2,000.

Highway Dept. Plans Trail Signs

AUSTIN — Daniel Boone did it by hacking notches in trees to direct pioneers to the overland trails. The Texas Highway Department plans to do it by posting "Trail Blazer" signs pointing the way to the Interstate highways.

Whether you're visiting the State Fairgrounds in Dallas, the international airport at Houston, or the shopping districts of El Paso or San Antonio, finding the way through the streets of a strange city to the Interstate highways will no longer be a puzzle when the Trail Blazers are eventually erected.

From top to bottom, this is how a Trail Blazer assembly looks: A black-and-white sign marked with "To." A blue sign bearing the cardinal direction, such as north or south, when needed. A red - white - and - blue Interstate shield sign bearing the number of the Interstate route number. A black - and - white sign with an arrow pointing the direction.

Rain Fails To Dampen Celebration At Laredo

LAREDO, Tex. (AP)—Unusual rain and cold failed to dampen the fiesta Saturday as Laredo went international in celebrating George Washington's birthday.

Officials of the U.S., Texas and Mexico embraced one another at the middle of the international bridge as cold rain trickled down their necks.

Later the officials joined in a four mile parade in which Mexico army units marched.

The cold rainy weather, unusual for this South Texas border city, cut into the size of the crowd, which police estimated the number at about 90,000.

The traditional "abrazo", an embrace that is a demonstration of friendship at the middle of the bridge over the Rio Grande this morning was impressive.

"Our reunion here today is irrefutable proof that the sacrifices of those two great patriots, George Washington and Benito Juarez, were not made in vain and that our two republics will always fight against any type of oppression," said J. D. Martin Jr., mayor of Laredo, when he welcomed the Mexican officials.

He spoke in Spanish. Juarez is the Washington of Latin America.

Martin called the officials' attention to this past October when all of the American nations backed the U.S. in its blockade of Cuba.

"At that time" we presented a common front as if one nation," he said. "Our firmness and decidesires to preserve it at any cost gave the world the answer to aggression."

Ernesto Ferrara, mayor of Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, answered Martin in English.

He lauded fighters of freedom in the Western Hemisphere — Washington, Juarez, Hidalgo, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Lincoln—and said:

"We are now in a new time with a new spirit and a new understanding. Together we are attacking our common problems. We are dedicated to liberty and dedicated to preserve that liberty."

Pegleg Peggy

Peggy, a Shetland pony with only three legs, now has a new artificial limb. The pony lost its right foreleg in a fence five months ago. Her owner, Charles Brazelton, Shawnee, Kan., spared her life and a veterinarian amputated a five-inch segment of the leg. A Kansas City company made the artificial limb which Harry Harris is shown fitting on. The pony was to be returned to her owner's home in Shawnee.

GARRETT WINS MORE HONORS AT HOUSTON

It was another round of victories for Horace Garrett and Ambassador Beaver Dam 30th at the Houston Stock Show last week.

The champ was picked Junior Grand Champion and Grand Champion of the Show. He also won first place in the Four Get of Sire and second place in the Dual Get of Sire.

Another entry of Garrett's was selected Grand Champion Senior Female and Reserve Champion of the Show. And still another, which he entered in conjunction with Beaver Dam, claimed Grand Champion Junior Female honors and Grand Champion of the Show.

"We are working for points," Garrett pointed out here Saturday. He had the champion sire of North America for 1962 and is working to retain the title in 1963.

Rash Of Windows Reported Broken

Five reports of car and building windows being broken out by rocks and pellet guns were investigated by Big Spring police Saturday morning. Four reports were in the east part of the city and one in the west.

Edd Rogers, 1311 Princeton, reported the rear window of his car broken; M. L. Gourley, 1409 Princeton, had the windshield of his car broken, and Gross Creamland, 107 E. 10th, reported a building window broken out, all by rocks.

Cook Appliance, 400 E. 3rd, reported a window, valued at $100, broken by a pellet gun, and R. L. Crowell, 813 W. 17th, received a broken rear window on his car, by rocks.

A picture window, 4x4½ feet, was reported broken in a house at 1205 Young about 7:30 p.m. Friday.

Get Flu Shots, Texans Urged

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The state Health Department urged Saturday that Texans get influenza shots despite the nearness of spring.

"Local health authorities are urged to report the presence of influenza-like illness," the department said.

Rain Dampens Some Areas

By The Associated Press

Light rain dampened some fringes of Texas Saturday as winter's latest norther beat a reluctant retreat.

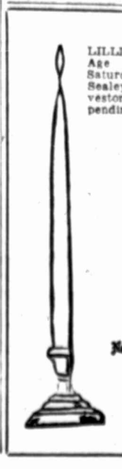

Light rain and drizzle fell now and then in far South Texas, along the coastal plains and in the Red River Valley east of Gainesville. A few trifling showers slipped into North Central Texas, but not enough to dent the punishing drought.

Enough rain fell at Laredo to cut the crowd for the annual parade given during the George Washington Birthday fiesta.

Most of West Texas was fair and the snow that fell there at mid-week was just about all gone. The Highway Department said all the roads that had iced up in the Panhandle, South Plains and West Central Texas were clear of ice and that travel was good.

NEW "ENGINEER OF THE YEAR"
Former holder Henry Nunn honors Dale Scarth

Midland Man Is Engineer Of Year

E. Dale Scarth, Midland, was honored as the "Engineer of the Year" when the Permian Basin chapter of the Texas Society for Professional Engineers held its awards banquet here Friday evening.

Scarth, an electrical engineer, is local manager of Texas Electric Service Company in Midland, and he has been active in community and church affairs.

Two other citations were made, one to R. B. Rush, Odessa, a "grand young man" of engineering in this area and associated with the profession since 1912, and Charles Fulkerson, Odessa, immediate past president.

SPEAKER

Louie Throgmorton, Dallas, speaker for the occasion, mixed tributes to engineering with his humor. Engineers, he said, are the men who do—and "they make us live better than any king." Most of the modern conveniences are the result of the adventure of engineers, he said, and without them some of our modern services couldn't exist. For example, had not dial telephones come along, it would take every woman in the country between the ages of 18 and 30 to handle today's volume of calls.

The presentation to Scarth was made on the basis of a book of specifications read by Henry Nunn, Midland, a veteran engineer who was honored three years ago as the chapter's outstanding engineer. Ken Esmond, also a previous winner and who once worked under Rush for the City of Odessa, gave Rush a bronze plaque recognizing him as a life member of the TSPE. Rush was one of the founders of the Basin chapter.

FULKERSON

Under Fulkerson's leadership last year, said Bascom Lynn, Midland president, the chapter experienced a 20 per cent growth with addition of 43 members. It ranked second in this respect in the state. More than 100 attended the dinner affair at Cosden Country Club. Owen H. Ivie, first vice president, gave the invocation.

Scarth has been with TESCO 13 years. He serves as a treasurer of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, is a board member of the Midland Symphony Association, first vice president of the Lions Club, and was 1961 Chairman of the Midland Community Chest. He is a member of the TSPE, NSPE, and the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

A native of Higgins, he is a graduate of the Booker High School and attended Texas Tech. He graduated from Oklahoma State University with a B.S. degree in electrical engineering. He and his wife, the former Helen Johnson, moved to Midland seven years ago, and are members of the Belview Baptist Church where he is a deacon. Sunday school superintendent and building chairman. They are the parents of four children and reside at 206 E. Dormard, Midland.

RUSH

Mr. Rush, now 73 years of age, has been in engineering from early manhood, having served as an instrument man on mapping and construction projects for the City of Greenville, prior to 1912. He was formerly city engineer at Greenville and Odessa, and was resident engineer for the Texas Highway Department in Odessa until his retirement in October, 1954.

Fulkerson has been a resident of Odessa since 1953 and employed with Pioneer Natural Gas Company. He is a member of NSPE and TSPE and is past president of the Odessa Chapter of American Business Club. A native West Texan, Fulkerson was born in Lamesa and attended public school in Tahoka. He is a graduate of Texas Tech with a B. S. degree in Petroleum Engineering, and has served two years with the U.S. Army Artillery.

Fulkerson and his wife, Dorothy, have two children. They are members of St. Luke's Methodist Church, where he serves on the Board of Stewards, is superintendent of the Youth Division of the Church School, and Chairman of the Worship Commission. He lives at 1216 Alpine, Odessa.

Previous recipients of the engineer award include H. E. Chiles, Fort Worth; E. V. Spence, Big Spring; Kenneth E. Esmond, Odessa; Henry Nunn, Midland; Wade Howell, Odessa; and Donald Klein, Odessa.

College Is Within Budget Allocations

Howard County Junior College is running well within its budget allocations, the January financial statement indicates.

Receipts during January amounted to $39,737, making $373,209 for the year. Of the $104,566 needed to hit budget estimates, $60,642 is due from the state, $25,000 in regular and summer tuition, and about $10,000 in anticipated taxes.

Administrative expense amounted to $3,261 for the month, making $16,918 for the year, and at this rate the expense will be below budget estimates for the year. General expense was $901 in January and $7,294 for the year; instructional administrative $2,908 in January and $15,627 for the year; instructional salaries and supplies $19,010 and $93,064 (spent and encumbered); library $1,509 and $9,752 (spent and encumbered); plant maintenance $15,061 and $42,230 (this is the only area with potential over-run and working scholarships likely would be the reason); athletic expense $1,538 and $7,325; student activities $816 and $1,927; capital outlay $252 and $13,209. This makes a total of $45,259 expended in January, a total of $207,348 for the first five months of the fiscal year, leaving $210,724 budgeted for the ramining seven months.

The interest and sinking fund showed $2,027 receipts in January, making $64,116 for the year and leaving $3,135 to be collected to meet the budgeted goal. No payments were made in January but for the year $23,972, including $14,000 in bonds, has been paid from this fund. This is $41,371 less than will be paid by the end of the fiscal year.

Student housing, which is a non-tax fund payable solely out of revenues, showed $22,115 cash on hand. Receipts for the month amounted to $14,830 and for the year $55,121.

Lake Superior May Ice Over

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP)—So far as man knows Lake Superior never has frozen over, end to end and side to side. But it is close to that now, and it shortly may close what little gaps of open water that remain.

U.S. meteorologist Arthur Myers said Saturday a Trans-Canada Airlines pilot flying over the 400-mile-long, 100-mile-wide lake reported Friday the only open water visible was in scattered patches not more than one to two acres in size.

Myers said extremely cold weather, which skidded thermometers here to 21 below zero Friday and to 8 below today, is likely to continue for a week and conceivably might last two weeks.

This has been one of Michigan's coldest winters in years.

"We could have a complete freeze-over," Myers said. "It has been ice-making weather every day for the last week."

Myers is asking the Air Force to take pictures next week from an altitude high enough to cover the whole lake—and show it for certain if a complete freeze-over develops.

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet weathermen offered a possible clue Saturday to the snow and cold that belted Europe this winter.

They said the traditional icebox of the Soviet Union — known as the "pole of cold" in northeastern Siberia — shifted westward and southward this year into the European part of the Soviet Union.

They did not guess why this happened, but Siberia was the warmest it has been in recent years while Moldavia and the Ukraine in the south shivered to the worst frosts in 50 years.

Mrs. Johnson To Ceremony

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon Johnson, wife of the vice president, will participate in ceremonies in Charleston, W.Va., next Friday to show her interest in federal projects for "disadvantaged areas."

The Area Redevelopment Administration said Saturday that Mrs. Johnson will officiate at groundbreaking ceremonies for a new community library.

The $138,000 library in St. Albans, a suburb of Charleston, is being constructed with aid of a $69,000 federal grant in an effort to stimulate the economy by providing jobs and also to contribute to cultural standards, the agency said.

Dr. Shipp Elected Chairman Of Board Of Allied Youth

Dr. Thomas J. Shipp, pastor of Lovers Lane Methodist Church in Dallas, has been elected chairman of the board of trustees of Allied Youth Inc. He succeeds Dr. Daniel A. Poling, editor of Christian Herald and founder of Allied Youth.

When a promising career with the St. Louis Cardinal baseball team was ended by injury, he felt called to the ministry. At his first sermon in the Lovers Lane church, there were 10 people including three alcoholics and their wives. Today his church numbers 5,700, but his early interest in alcoholics has increased. It is estimated 10 per cent of his church are reclaimed alcoholics and their families.

He has won numerous awards of community service, including the Dallas Jaycee award as outstanding young man of the city. He has been a leader in the Allied Youth program which endeavors to help young people become aware of the whole truth concerning the use of alcoholic beverages, and which offers a positive alternative.

Industrial Arts Teacher Of Year

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — C. P. Munz of Alvin was named "Industrial Arts Teacher of the Year in Texas" Saturday at the industrial teacher conference.

The association installed new officers. They are Dr. M. D. Williamson of Denton, president; Frank Miller of Snyder, vice president; and Thomas Bay of Brazosport, secretary-treasurer.

Included are five from Big Spring—The Rev. Robert F. Polk, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Dr. P. W. Malone and daughter, Mary Frances Malone, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy B. Reeder. There may be others to go from here.

So far, Lubbock has signed the most for the mission endeavor, 17 in all. Amarillo will send eight; Post six; Big Spring and Midland five; Wilson, Brownfield, Muleshoe and Friona, four each; Plainview, three; Shallowater, Odessa, Tahoka, Perryton, Lorenzo, Floydada, Crosbyton, Hereford, two each; Canyon, White Deer, Memphis, Sunray, Stratford, Andrews, Levelland Littlefield and and Andrews, one each.

Most of the participants will leave around April 20. They have received assignments to assist Japanese pastors in various churches in Japan (plus some in the Philippines). Texas Baptist churches have taken the lead in sending workers, also in raising half a million dollars for New Life Movement expense.

Americanism Orators

Contestants who appeared Friday in the American Legions' annual high school oratorical contest were (standing) Dan Cone and Barbara Thompson; and (seated) William Perkins and Jerry Parchman. Miss Thompson was the winner, and will represent Big Spring in a district elimination in Lubbock.

Barbara Thompson Winner Of Legion Oratory Event

Barbara Thompson will carry Big Spring High School's colors to a district oratorical contest on Americanism topics, sponsored by the American Legion. Miss Thompson, a senior, is the daughter of Sgt. and Mrs. Joe J. Thompson, 190-A Gunter.

Miss Thompson won over three other contestants in a local elimination Friday afternoon. She and three boys — Dan Cone, Jerry Parchman and William Perkins—spoke on "The Constitution—Worth Having, Worth Defending."

After each presented a prepared oration, they were called back for brief extemporaneous talks on various topics associated with the Constitution.

The speakers were graded on presence, poise and personality; composition and effectiveness, accuracy; and oratory and power to convince.

Local winners in the area meet in Lubbock soon for district elimination; the winner there goes to a state final in Austin, and the state winner goes on to national competition, in which the first place winner is awarded a $4,000 scholarship.

The oratorical contests are sponsored by the Legion as one of its Americanism activities, and has been held here for several years.

Jean Roberts Is Second In Contest

Miss Jean Roberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Roberts, 1600 Sunset, Big Spring and Mrs. Ellabeth Barnett of Forsan were presented in the Sul Ross "Best-Dressed Girl" contest on Feb. 12.

Miss Roberts was chosen runner-up in the contest. She is a sophomore English major and was selected to represent Ferguson Hall.

Student Council Delegates Chosen

By BONNIE SIMPSON

The delegates in the State Student Council Convention were selected this week. They are Susan Elrod, Paula Gordon, Dena Parker and Danny Wash. Delegates are determined by the number of points they have. Points are earned by selling calendars, working in the concession stand at basketball games, selling pepper and vanilla, and other projects. This year the convention is to be held at Abilene, March 21-23.

Monday, Feb. 18, an FHA meeting was held at 11:30 a.m. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the area meeting to be held in Odessa, March 23. A program "Staying in School," was given by Lanell Overton and Paula Gordon. Bettye Conger gave the devotional. Janette Rutherford was elected to answer roll call and Paula Gordon was elected voting delegate. Five girls, Pam McKinnon, Janette Rutherford, Orveta Fryar, Jody Jones and Roberta Hammack, are to model at the style show during the area meeting.

The juniors had a class meeting last week to discuss plans for the Junior-Senior banquet. The only open date for the banquet at this time is April 25, which is indefinite.

The seniors had a class meeting to order their invitations. Plans for the senior trip were also discussed.

Attention all seniors: Please bring $4.60 for your caps and gowns.

I am happy to report that both the boys' and the girls' basketball teams won district and are now waiting to play for bi-district. Howard County Junior College, and the girls play Bronte, March 5, at Colorado City.

Student Government Scheduled For March 8

By ANNETTE LEBCOWITZ

Most public offices on the city, county and district levels will be filled by BSHS students on Friday, March 8, as Student Government Day will take place. The campaigns and elections will be as realistic as possible. Every student paid a one-cent poll tax fee in order to vote. Candidates for both elected and appointed offices paid a 15-cent filing fee. The poll tax and filing fee were paid to the filing clerk who was in the office. The deadline was Feb. 20.

All BSHS students were placed in a political party. The two parties are the Nationalist and the Federalist. Students were divided up according to their English classes. Those students who are not taking English may register for either party or may be an independent. In the primary election which is to be held Feb. 22, students will vote only for their party's candidates. In the general election, however, they may vote for either candidate.

Students having English under the following teachers are in the Nationalist Party: McAlister, Burns, Davlin, Bunch, and Brandon. The Federalist Party teachers are: Rice, Bynum, Puckett, Farlow, Baker and Fisk.

All candidates for an elected office who win their party primary election must deliver a short speech in the school political rally Feb. 28. The general election will be March 4, and winners will be notified on March 6.

Winners will spend one-half day with their counterparts on March 8, beginning with a breakfast at 7:30 a.m., at the Settles Hotel. Those who win must be able to participate in the activities during the morning.

There are seven members of the Radio Club who will receive pins for participating in ten radio programs during the year. The students broadcast a show each Saturday morning at 10:33 a.m. on KBST. Spelling Bee Contestants Picked For County Race

By KAREN ELROD

The seventh and eighth grade students have been working hard on their spelling words for the County Spelling Bee.

Out of 162 entries, the homeroom contests have narrowed it down to these finalists: Burma Gentry, Andrea Primdahl, Brenda Lee, Jo Frazier, Johnny McCullough, Peggie Cooper, Jon Lebkowski, Woodie Fowler, Bill Owens, Larry Smith, Chris Butler, Mary Levenduski, Tracy Dean, Rodney Buchanan, Rebecca Copeland, and Doris Weaver from the eighth grade; Arden Drinkard, Raye Nell Dyer, Sharon Aldridge, Becky Roger, Linda Lile, Robert Chavez, Martha Jordan, Janet Allison, Romona Peden, Henrietta Piper, Kathy Kemp, Johnetta McCullough, Nancy Baird, Billy Anderson, Maria Benitez, Betty Hartman, and Sandra Patterson from the seventh grade. These students will compete for the honor of representing Goliad in the County Spelling Bee. The homeroom having the largest number of entries was that of Mrs. Cornelia Gary who had 30 contestants. The process of narrowing the field to two was a particularly difficult one for this room because all 30 proved to be excellent spellers.

Wednesday at noon, the FHA executive council met to discuss plans for attending the area meeting March 23. Also to elect a girl to register for Goliad, a girl to represent this chapter as voting delegate, and a girl to answer the roll call for Goliad.

Myers' Appeal Comes To Court Wednesday

John Edwin Myers will move one step nearer this week to knowing what the future has in store for him.

The confessed slayer of four persons, who is under conviction for the murder of one of his victims and facing death in the electric chair, will have his trial reviewed by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals. The first step will be oral arguments before the court in Austin Wednesday on the defendant's motion for a new trial.

Gil Jones, district attorney of the 118th District Court and who led the prosecution against Myers, will oppose the bid by Myers' attorneys that the itinerant cafe cook from Illinois be granted a new trial in the murder of Arthur DeKraai. DeKraai, a hitchhiking plumber from Ottumwa, Iowa, was shot to death a few miles west of Big Spring Sept. 1, 1961, and Myers, with his 14-year-old sweetheart, Donna Marie Stone, was arrested the same night in Midland.

ADMITTED

Myers, in statements to officers, admitted shooting DeKraai and said the hitchhiker was the fourth person he and the Stone girl had slain in an interval beginning Aug. 27 and ending Sept. 1. One was slain in Missouri and two in Illinois.

Myers, brought to jail here Sept. 2, 1961, had spent the past 15 months in Texas jails—all but a few weeks of which he has been in the Howard County jail where he is a prisoner now. He was out of his cell here when at Rusk, where the case was transferred on a change of venue. A jury there heard the case and, March 16, 1962, returned a verdict of guilty and assessed his punishment at death. Six days later, his court-appointed attorneys, Orvan B. Jones and Richard L. Stone, filed a motion asking a new trial. This was denied and the attorneys took the case to the appellate court.

REGARDLESS

Dist. Atty. Jones pointed out that the State Court of Criminal Appeals would have reviewed the case regardless of the new trial motion. In all cases where the death sentence is assessed the appellate court goes over the record of the trial.

Stone and Jones, in their motion for a new trial, attacked a number of developments in the trial, which they declare to have been errors. Their prime assault against the verdict, however, is based on alleged misconduct in the jury room by jurors. The attorneys allege that conversations in the jury room relative to testimony and to the character of the witnesses, was juror misconduct.

The records in the case, which comprise 900 pages of testimony and 131 pages in the new trial motion hearing as well as the lengthy briefs which the prosecution and the defense will offer Wednesday, are now in the hands of the appeals court.

Dist. Atty. Jones said that the hearing will be set for the forenoon. Both sides will be granted 40 minutes to present oral argument. When the argument has closed, the court will take its ruling under advisement. It is uncertain when a ruling will be handed down.

CHOICE

Should the court hold the motion is sound, the case will be remanded to the lower court. Should the court deny the motion and find that the defendant was given a fair and impartial trial, the way for his formal sentence will be cleared and a date will be set for his execution.

Meantime, Donna Marie Stone, the girl Myers traveled with on that tragic journey of 18 months ago, is in the custody of the Illinois Youth authority. She was returned to Illinois after the Myers trial and pleaded guilty to her part in the murders near Belleville of George Ballard and his 11-year-old daughter, Carole. These were the first two persons slain by the pair. She will remain in custody until she reaches 21 when a decision will be made on her future.

DENIED

In an interview some months after his conviction for DeKraai's murder, Myers declared that he had killed only one of the four victims charged to him. His story at that time was that Donna Marie had pulled the trigger on three of the persons slain.

Still Time To Write Courtesy Month Letter

You still have time to send in your letter of nomination for the most courteous salesperson in Big Spring. The first week of Courtesy Month ends today and your letter must be postmarked before midnight.

Some 48 letters have been received so far, according to Kenneth Pace, assistant manager of the Chamber of Commerce. Letters should be of 35 words or less and mailed to the Chamber.

The three best letters will each receive a $5 gift certificate, good at any store in Big Spring. The salespeople these letters name will receive a similar award. The 12 letter writers, selected after four weeks of the contest, will be judged in another contest with a $250 gift certificate going to the winner.

Nominations for the second week of the contest begin Monday.

Breeders Elect

HOUSTON (AP)—G. L. Paret, Lake Charles, La., rancher and oilman, was elected president of the American Brahman Breeders Association Friday.

Water District Off To An Even Start

An even start with last year was indicated in the monthly revenue report of the Colorado River Municipal Water District for January.

Revenues amounted to $195,007, up slightly from $192,380 for January of the year before. Revenues are based mainly on water payments that month for water consumed the previous month by the member cities and other customers.

Water taken by the member cities of Odessa, Big Spring and Snyder amounted to $106,867, a mild decline from the previous January when $110,246 came from this source.

Oil companies, however, paid $65,777 for water for their waterflood and repressuring projects as against $59,738 the same month a year ago. Here the gain was due to the year-end payment made by Standard-Sinclair Oil to bring their year's total up to minimum contract provisions.

Recreational revenues of $22,363, mostly from lease rental on lots, was almost the same as $22,395 the year before.

Operational expenses amounted to $32,882.89, of which $15,475 was in electric power for pumping. Administrative charges, including the district's contribution to employe retirement funds, was $23,725, and recreational expenses $2,009, making total disbursements of $58,618. This left $136,389 to be transferred to debt service and other indentured funds.

Petition Seeks To Commute Death

HOUSTON (AP)—The mother of condemned slayer Leslie Douglas Ashley said Saturday she has a petition signed by 14,000 persons asking that her son's death sentence be commuted to life.

Mrs. Sylvia Ayres said she will present the petition to the Pardons Board in Austin March 13.

Ashley, a female impersonator, and his girl friend, Carolyn Ann Lima, received death sentences for the 1961 murder of Fred Tones, a real estate man whose nude body was burned in a drainage ditch after he had been shot to death.

Ashley, 24, and the Lima woman, 20, were sentenced to die Feb. 28 but received a 30-day stay from Gov. John Connally.

Wayne Basden Enters Race For School Trustee Post

Wayne Basden, a local attorney, has announced he will be a candidate for the board of trustees for the Big Spring Independent School District in the April 6 election.

Prior to turning to the study of law, Basden was a teacher himself, having served in the Ysleta school system. He is 31 years of age and he and Mrs. Basden are the parents of five children.

"In offering myself as a candidate for school trustee, I do so with a deep sense of responsibility. I maintain an abiding and sustaining interest in the school system, its educational and athletic program," Basden stated. "I think I share a common concern in hoping that we provide the best possible facilities for the money we invest."

Basden added he was sure his past experiences in the teaching profession would stand him in good stead, if elected, when considering the problems of teachers and administration alike.

A veteran of the Armed Forces, Basden took his B.A. degree from Texas Western College in El Paso and his degree in law from the University of Texas.

He was born on a farm 20 miles north of Big Spring and has been a part of this community since 1957. Shortly after moving to Big Spring, Basden was appointed to serve as City Attorney. He held that position until he resigned to devote full time to the practice of law.

The Basden family makes its home at 615 Colgate Street.

Harold Talbot, an incumbent, and Bennett Brooke had previously announced as candidates for the board. Deadline for filing is March 7. Absentee voting will start March 16 and continue through April 2.

Officers Find Missing Car

A car, owned by Paul Ramage, Phillips Motel, was reported stolen some time Friday. Ramage said a man who had used the car occasionally was gone from the motel and had taken all his belongings. A message to all area police stations resulted in recovery of the car at 10 p.m. when a Howard County sheriff's unit located it on the south service road leading into the Cosden refinery. It was abandoned.

Other police activity Friday and Saturday morning included investigation of a stabbing in which a 19-year-old boy, Lonie Ranson, 709 Ohio, was cut in the left side. He was treated at Malone and Hogan Hospital Foundation and released, with no charges filed. He said he was stabbed by a woman in front of a North Side cafe at midnight.

The animal warden was advised to pick up a skunk, wearing a dog-tag, found inside KWAB-TV at 4:42 a.m. Saturday.

A report of a car, loaded with beer, and driven by college students, was investigated. The drinks and boys were turned over to college authorities.

Three minor accidents, with no injuries, investigated, were: Second and Scurry, with drivers, John Billings, 2206 Lynn Drive, and James Miller, 3223 Drexel; Second and Gregg, Fred Leon Bass, Coahoma, and Frank Rayford Liles, Forsan; Pennsylvania and Westover Road, Sostenes Gomez, 505 NW 4th, and Walter Lee Wheat, 421 Westover; Benton and Second, Janice Helen Wortham, 2612 Rebecca, Lester Dale Wilkinson, 620 Ridgelea, and Merle Watkins, Howard House Hotel.

Cotton Bagging Proposed By DA

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department wants the cotton industry to use more of its own material for bagging cotton and less of other materials such as hemp, jute and other hard fibers, many of which must be imported.

It will offer subsidies to manufacturers who make bagging material out of cotton and cotton wastes and sell it for use. The subsidy will be $1 per pattern or enough material to cover the normal 500-pound bale.

The offer is being made at a time when cotton markets are down and surpluses are increasing.

School Textbook Selection Hearing Slated Thursday

Selection of textbooks for 1963-1964 comes up for open hearing Thursday at 7:30 p.m., according to Sebron B. Williams, assistant superintendent for the Big Spring Independent School District. The hearing will be in the board room of the Administration Building at 100 E. 10th.

Textbook selection is made each year on about one-sixth of the subjects taught. All selections this year are for grades four and above.

Selection is a partnership process between state school officials and appointed local school boards consisting of teachers in the subject areas. Williams serves as an ex-officio member of this committee with 15 teachers.

Textbooks recommended for selection locally have already undergone a screening at both the state and local levels. From May to October of last year the many books offered by publishers for use as texts were checked by the State Textbook Committee. The number was eventually cut to five choices in each subject. Afterward the State Commissioner of Education studied the committee's report. He could remove up to three books from the list in each category, although he could not add titles.

The abbreviated list of books then received a similar screening process locally. Educators in the fields studied the books and made their recommendations about selection. These recommendations will be presented to interested citizens before final selection is made.

"There is generally little interest by the public in textbook selection," Williams said. "Last year only one person showed up."

"We welcome everyone to come to the hearing," he said. "The books are available for review by anyone interested in them."

Texts are adopted for an initial five or six-year period, and they are used until worn out or obsolete. The average annual cost per pupil for textbooks for the past 10 years has been $3.80. If these books were purchased by parents the annual cost would be between $25-$40 for each child.

Culling the many offerings, even after they have been cut to five or less in each subject, is no little task. This year there are 863 books on the adopted list of texts for grades one through 12, although not that many come up for adoption locally. The process of adoption after selection and recommendation by professional personnel has been used since 1929.

Jury Finds Torres Guilty, Gets 15 Years

A district court jury of 11 men and one woman deliberated two and a half hours Friday afternoon in finding Joe Torres, 25-year-old-latin American guilty of murder. The jury fixed his punishment at 15 years in the state penitentiary.

Judge Ralph Caton accepted the verdict in 118th District Court at 4:05 p.m. The jury had begun deliberations at 1:30 p.m. The trial had been in progress for five days.

Torres declined to waive his 10-day period of grace and accepted sentence. This was taken to indicate that he will seek a new trial and probably, if this is overruled, that his attorney George Thomas will appeal the case to the State Court of Criminal Appeals.

Meantime, as provided by law where the sentence assessed against a defendant does not exceed 15 years, Torres was released from custody under his original bond. Bond had been set soon after the April 18 slaying of Andrew Garcia Perez, 25, at $10,000. This bond will continue in force until the 10 days have elapsed.

The jury was kept in its seats through the noon hour Friday and Gil Jones, district attorney, closed the argument shortly after 1 p.m. The jury then recessed for its own lunch and as soon as it had returned marched into the jury room and began deliberations. It elected B. F. McCreary as its foreman and at 4:05 p.m. informed Judge Caton it had reached a verdict. Jones was delighted with the verdict.

Torres is alleged to have shot Perez to death April 18 as climax to a quarrel over a debt allegedly owed the defendant by the victim. The shooting occurred in the Flamingo Bar on the north side of town.

The jury consisted of Mrs. Cliff Proffitt, Joe Macy Gunning, William H. Keene, Jackie Jernigan, Leon A. Webb, Frank P. Adams, Lloyd Zack Gray, B. F. McCreary, D. M. Stroup, B. Loftin and James Stuteville.

Torres was represented by George Thomas and Roger Brown. Jones was assisted in the prosecution by Wayne Burns, county attorney.

DEAR ABBY

One Method Of Treatment

DEAR ABBY: Can you help me cure a woman of "telephonitis"? She calls me on the phone and I can't get her off the line. She's very interesting to talk to, but she takes up more of my time than I can spare. Besides that, my arm gets tired. She has a car, and her children are in school all day, but she prefers lengthy telephone conversations to a visit in person. She does this to others, too. It's getting to be a daily thing. How can I cure her without being impolite?

SORE EAR, TIRED ARM

DEAR SORE: The moment you hear her voice, say, "I'm sorry, I am in the midst of something and can't talk to you right now. I'll call you when I'm free." If you get "free" and have the time, return her call. If you haven't—don't. If she calls again, repeat the treatment until the patient is cured.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I am 17 and have started to like girls. My problem is I can't dance. I would like to learn how to dance from the nicest girl I know but I am not sure how to go about it. Should I invite her to my home, or should I go to her home? I have very few dance records and she has many. Should I invite her to my home and tell her to bring her records? UNINFORMED

DEAR UNINFORMED: No. Tell her you'd like to learn how to dance, and let her take it from there. She'll probably invite you to her home. If she doesn't—ask the next to the nicest girl you know.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I need some advice about a very touchy problem. I have the sweetest mother-in-law in the world, but one thing irritates me. We live far enough apart to write letters, and she writes to me at least once a week. I have never gotten a letter from her saying she is fine. Every time she writes she has just had an attack of something or other, or else something "dreadful" has just happened to her. It's getting so I hate to open her letters. I am always writing her that I am sorry to hear about this and that and hope that she is feeling better. I've tried ignoring her complaints, but in her next letter she asks how come I didn't mention her illness. Any suggestions? DEPRESSED

DEAR DEPRESSED: Know your mother-in-law's complaints for what they are, and don't let them get you down. It does her a world of good to be able to tell someone about her "attacks" and the "dreadful" things that have happened to her. Reply with compassion and sympathy and the wish that she improves soon.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO VIVIAN: No thyself! And "no" him, too, and you'll have less to worry about.

* * *

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Hate to write letters? Send one dollar to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif., for Abby's new booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Are So-Called "Bargain" Eyeglasses Really A Bargain?

Have you ever heard this famous quotation: "Quality Is Remembered Long After The Price Is Forgotten"? This is true. Of course, this doesn't mean that real values shouldn't be looked for whenever they truly exist. But, there is a difference in real value and so-called "bargains"...and this is especially true when it comes to eye care and eyewear.

So-called "bargain" eyeglasses may, in fact, not be a bargain at all. Unknown to the purchaser of so-called "bargain" eyeglasses, some important elements could be left out of the lens prescription, or a special type of bifocal or trifocal lens may be omitted, just to cut the cost of making the glasses. These omissions could result in strained eyes, discomfort and improper vision. Also, inferior quality frames might be used which could reduce the wearing comfort as well as the useable life of the glasses.

There is no good reason for risking priceless eyesight and comfort on so-called "bargain" eyeglasses, when real value in professional eye care and eyewear is available at famous Texas State Optical. For the past 27 years hundreds of thousands of people throughout Texas have learned to rely on TSO for outstanding professional eye care and finest quality eyewear at reasonable cost.

At TSO, your eyes are carefully examined by an experienced Doctor of Optometry...both for internal evidence of disease or defect and for visual abnormalities. If glasses are needed, an accurate prescription is formulated and they are prescribed and fitted to meet your exact visual requirements, and to give you the best vision and utmost comfort. If you need single vision glasses, your cost is as low as $14.85, including examination, finest quality lenses and frame; if you require bifocals, your cost is as low as $17.85, complete, with examination, lenses and frame. Convenient credit is available at no extra cost.

The next time you need professional eye care and finest quality eyewear, see the dependable TSO Doctor of Optometry in whom you can place complete confidence and trust for the care of your eyes and your vision.

Aiming The Right Way

Odessa High Assumes Lead In Golf Play

Odessa High's four-man team toured the muny course here Saturday in 317 strokes to take the lead in District 2-AAAA golf competition.

The erstwhile pace-setter, Abilene Cooper, had trouble with the rugged course and skidded all the way to a tie for fourth place. The Cougars registered a 341 for the 18 holes.

Odessa now has a 36-hole score of 624 and leads runnerup Midland by 14 strokes. San Angelo is third, at 640; while Big Spring, Cooper and Odessa Permian are all tied for fourth, at 642.

The next round of matches that count in district competition will be staged over the Hogan course fairways in Midland March 9.

Seasonal scoring:
Odessa 307-317—624
Midland Lee 306-332—638

Abilene Cooper 301-341—642
Odessa Permian 311-331—642
Midland High 310-336—646
Abilene 324-343—667

San Angelo finished second to Odessa here Saturday with a 323 and furnished the medalist in Cecil Salazar, who put together rounds of 36 and 39 for a 75.

Neil Robinson paced Big Spring to a 332 with a warm 77.

Three of Odessa's four players were in the 70's. Lans Hays wound up with a 39-38—77. Tommy Waggoner fashioned a 40-38—78. Claude Wise, the medalist two weeks ago in Abilene, had a 39-40—79.

Permian finished behind San Angelo with a 331 and one stroke ahead of Big Spring and Midland Lee.

One player on Big Spring's second team was disqualified because he picked up a ball on a green without putting it out.

Most of the other schools brought second teams, although they were not eligible to shoot for the team honors. Had it been eligible, Lee's second unit would have finished fourth in team competition, with a 331.

Three coaches who brought teams here played the course and Odessa High's Carl Beard was low with a 73.

Mantle May Join Mays' Bracket

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris, the Yankees two top money makers who are the only unsigned players on the team, are due early next week to talk contract, Yankee officials said Saturday.

There seems little doubt that they will come to terms.

Mantle, the most valuable player in the American League last year, may join Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants in the $100,000 bracket. He made about $85,000 last year.

Maris, who fell to 33 home runs from his record 61 the year before, is expected to take a cut from about $68,000 to $60,000.

Mantle is due Monday night, and Maris Tuesday.

The full squad reports Wednesday.

Pitchers and catchers have been working for several days, along with some of the regulars who reported early.

Tigers Sweep Relay Races

HOUSTON (AP)—Texas Southern overcame a biting north wind and a soggy, slow track Saturday to sweep all college relay races in the first annual Gulf Coast Federation outdoor track meet.

The Tigers, who last week set a world indoor record for the mile relay at 3:12.2, ran off and left the University of Houston, Lamar Tech and Prairie View in their specialty, winning in a good 3:14.

Les Milburn, Artis Bennett, Charley White and Ray Sadler teamed for the Tigers in the mile relay and Milburn, Herb Stevens, L. C. Smith and T. J. Bell brought home a winner in the sprint relay in 41.6. The University of Houston placed second in 42.2.

Houston managed two firsts, Laurie Elliott's 4:16.5 mile run and Bob Merlo's 53-1 shot put.

There were many scratches, apparently due to cold, wet weather.

Longhorns Rip SMU To Claim SW Cage Title

DALLAS (AP) — Texas felled Southern Methodist 92-76 Saturday night to win the Southwest Conference basketball championship.

The Longhorns ran their winning streak to 11 straight conference games and have only three left to play. Rice, the second place team, lost to Texas Tech and its 8-3 record handed the title to Texas.

It was Texas' second victory in Dallas in the past 10 years but it was an emphatic one over an SMU team that had burned Texas Christian with 109 points Tuesday night.

* * *

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Sharp-shooting Bennie Lenox scored 30 points as he led Texas A&M to an 87-54 Southwest Conference basketball victory over Texas Christian University Saturday night.

Lenox, a 6-2 junior, hit his first 6 of 7 shots from the floor and dropped in 12 field goals and 6 of 7 free throw attempts for the night.

* * *

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP)—Texas Tech ruined Rice's Southwest Conference title hopes with a 74-73 basketball victory via a wild finish before 8,500 fans Saturday night.

Rice tied the score at 73-73 after trailing by six points with only 42 seconds remaining.

Rice's Kendall Rhine dropped in 30 points and pulled down 27 rebounds before fouling out with 3:30 left. Tech's Sid Wall led his team with 23 points.

* * *

WACO, Tex. (AP)—A red-hot second half by Arkansas and deadeye shooting by Larry Wofford led Arkansas to a 67-61 basketball victory over Baylor Saturday night. Tommy Boyer of Arkansas also broke the national free throw record.

The game was in doubt until six minutes were gone in the second half when Wofford hit five field goals in a row.

Baylor's high scorer, Winston Moore, still ailing from an ankle injury, sat out more than half of the game. Boyer, Arkansas' national leading free throw artist, ran his consecutive streak to 44 before he missed his fifth free throw of the night.

Tiger Retains Fight Crown

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Dick Tiger of Nigeria retained his world middleweight boxing title Saturday night, battling challenger Gene Fullmer to a furious draw.

It was a bruising 15-round fight at Convention Center between the two rugged fighters, who each weighed 160 pounds.

Referee Vern Bybee scored the bout even at 69-69.

Judge Pat Diskin scored in favor of ex-champion Gene Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah., 71-67 while Judge John Romero called it for Tiger 70-68.

The outcome left undecided, at least for the moment, whether the 31-year-old Fullmer would hang up the gloves, a vow he had made if he failed in this attempt to regain the rulership of the 160-pound division.

But Fullmer said:

"I thought I won, I guess he thought he won.

"I said I'd retire if I lost, but I didn't lose. "I hope Tiger will give me another shot at it."

The nationally televised match was a repeat, but even better, than their first encounter in San Francisco last Oct. 23 when Tiger won a unanimous decision.

Conger's Shot Wins For Buffalo Queens

FORSAN — Class B Forsan, marking time for the playoffs, defeated Class AA Post, all bound for bi-district competition, in a girls' practice basketball game here Saturday night, 49-48.

Post shot ahead with 30 seconds to play by making two free tosses, then tried to freeze the ball. Forsan fouled the visitors again but Post failed on a one-and-one situation and the Buffalo Queens brought the ball down court.

Betty Conger hit a field goal with five seconds to play and nailed down the win for Forsan. Ann Wilson still had time to bring the ball down court for Post and fire at the basket. It went in, then came out and the victory was saved for Forsan.

The Buffalo Queens now have won 29 while dropping only three decisions.

Wilson scored an incredible 32 points for Post while Conger had 26 for Forsan.

Judy Hughes, Lanell Overton, Patsy Gooch and Susan Elrod did a splendid job in the back courts for Forsan.

Post plays Friona at Abernathy in bi-district competition. Forsan opposes Bronte.

Coach James Blake of Forsan said he was going to try and book a couple of practice games next week for the Queens.

Rice Soph Expelled After Bribe Offer

HOUSTON (AP)—A Rice University sophomore has been expelled for offering two basketball players $1,000 to shave points in last Tuesday's game with Baylor.

Rice officials did not identify the student but Johnny Frankie, the basketball coach, quoted the sophomore as saying he had won $8,000 during the football season and had been gambling quite a bit.

"He said he'd bet $40,000 and give my two guards $500 apiece to slow down the Baylor game and win by less than 14 points," Frankie said.

The fix was contigent upon Rice's defeating Southern Methodist in Dallas last Saturday by 15 to 18 points but the Owls were defeated, 86-70. Rice retained its mathematical shot at the Southwest Conference title, however, but coming back to defeat Baylor, 74-70.

Herb Steinkamp, a junior guard from Vandy, Ill., and Dick Cramer, a junior college transfer from suburban Bellaire, said the bribe was offered Feb. 14. They reported the offer later that day to Eddie Wojceki, the Rice trainer, and to Frankie on Feb. 15.

Frankie notified the FBI.

Robert Richtmeyer, FBI agent in charge, said he is investigating to determine if any federal statutes have been violated.

The Southwest Conference was jarred last year when a committee from the State Legislature investigated alleged game fixing by basketball officials. No charges were filed but two veteran officials were dropped by the conference.

The Rice bribery offer was made just three days after Jack Molinas, former Ivy Leaguer star, was sentenced to 10 to 15 years in prison in New York City for masterminding a $70,000 fix of college basketball games. Two other men also drew sentences as go-between in a ring that approached 47 players in 27 colleges.

The official Rice announcement Friday night merely said a student had been dismissed for attempting to bribe two players and that the players reported the attempt immediately.

Steinkamp said an intemediary asked Cramer and himself to visit the sophomore who lived in an apartment off the campus. He said Cramer and the students were in the same English class.

"I knew he bet on basketball games and I thought maybe he wanted some information," Steinkamp said. "I never thought he'd make us an offer to fix a game."

Rice's 6-2 record at the time left the Owls only two games behind Texas, the conference leader, with six games to play. The loss to SMU dropped them three games back.

"The point shaving in the Baylor game depended on whether we won at Dallas," Frankie said. "If we beat SMU by 15 to 18 points, then we'd be a big favorite against Baylor here."

Frankie expressed doubt the sophomore had won $8,000 on football games.

"Personally, I think he was lying—trying to build his story up," Frankie said. "He told them (Steinkamp and Cramer) he'd been trying to make some money and quit school and leave the country."

One law officer described the plan to bet $40,000 on a basketball game as fantastic.

"You would have to bet with every bookie in the country to get $40,000 down on a basketball game," he said.

Frankie said he believes the Owls had a bad night in Dallas because of the bribery offer.

"The word got around to the other kids," he said. "They got wind of it and I don't think they played their normal game."

Steinkamp, however, scored 22 points each against SMU and Baylor. He had entered the SMU game with an average of only 11.9 points per game.

Cramer, a substitute, scored three points against SMU and six against Baylor. His per game average was 6.3 points. A graduate of Bellaire High, Cramer transferred to Rice in 1961 from Del Mar Junior College in Corpus Christi.

Sweetwater Will Stage Snake Roundup Mar. 1

Two sportsmen's groups disagree on Gov. John Connally's proposal to merge the Game Commission and the Parks Board.

The Sportsmen's Clubs of Texas said "yes." The Texas Outdoor Writers' Association says "no." Both groups adopted resolutions.

A bill to combine the two state agencies passed the House and awaits Senate action. The measure would combine the nine-man commission and the six-man board under a three-member Parks and Wildlife Commission.

Rep. Ben Atwell of Dallas has a bill that would knock out the Sabine River Authority's power to penalize sportsmen for violating its rules.

The authority would retain the right to levy special fees for fishing and boating but could not prescribe penalties for violations or employ its own peace officers.

Fishermen at Lake Texoma caught 250,000 pounds more fish last year than in 1961, say Army Engineers.

A total of 2,700,000 pounds of fish were brought in from the lake in 1962, the engineers' report says, with the increase due to "an excellent white bass spawn."

Some veteran fishermen say the fresh water fishing fever is about to start. With a few distractions from salt water sources, the next 8 to 12 weeks belong to the bass, crappie, perch and catfish group, says one angler.

* * *

Experiments are under way to determine if white bass can be bred artificially in large numbers, says the Game Commission.

If successful, it will be possible to stock small lakes with white bass to help control rough fish, the commission says.

The Game Commission says it is alarmed at the dwindling number of nesting sites for white-winged doves in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

The commission said only 5,000 acres of native brush — home for the doves — remain out of about 1 million acres in the area.

Almost 400 hunters brought in 4,690 snakes last year.

Don't be surprised if you drop your line in a Texas lake and come up with a redfish or flounder, both salt water fish. Game Commission biologists report that fingerling salt water redfish and flounder, stocked in two fresh water reservoirs near Victoria, are growing more rapidly than expected.

Game and fish violations ran high in December, reports a law enforcement official. Game Commission officers handled 488 charges, 80 for night hunting.

Fines totaling $19,716 were paid.

The Tyler state quail hatchery has a program under way to provide Texas hunters with a new game bird — maybe a french red-legged partridge or a gray francolin. The hatchery, which supplies birds for public and private lands, released 21,770 bob whites in 8 counties during 1962.

Spring-time is also snake-time in Texas, report Game Commission officials. Care should be taken in weeds and brushy areas. Sportsmen are cautioned never to reach under rock piles or rotting logs.

A five-year record in Texas shows 357 bites by diamond backed rattlers, 23 by prairie rattlers and 258 by copperheads. No records exist for the coral snake, one of the most deadly.

Some fishing outlooks:

Cold weather threatens to slow fishing considerably after a fair week for anglers.

Texoma — Crappie biting but high winds and cold weather kept most anglers inside.

Possum Kingdom—Big crappie biting.

Whitney — Fair crappie strings taken.

Grapevine — Winds and cold weather slowed fishing, but some crappie taken.

Lake o'the Pines — Bream and crappie doing fair with fishing for blacks and catfish slow.

Belton — Sand bass doing good, channel cats fair but blacks slow.

Bridgeport — Strings of crappie taken.

Port Aransas — Cold halting fishing.

Port Isabel — Big red snapper taken.

Freeport — Prospects slow.

Galveston — Weather expected to keep anglers in.

New Delivery Saved Career Of Roberts

MIAMI (AP) — Robin Roberts of the Baltimore Orioles is a pitcher with a job and, at 36, a new lease on life.

Ten months ago, the one-time ace right-hander of the Philadelphia Phillies couldn't make that statement. Ignored in the National League expansion draft and dropped by the New York Yankees, Roberts was in the baseball breadlines, begging for employment.

Today, everybody's choice as the "comeback athlete of the year" after winning 10 games for seventh-place Baltimore, Roberts let the secret out.

He owes it all, he says, to a new pitch-second cousin to the screwball — which he borrowed from Milwaukee's Warren Spahn and Johnny Antonelli.

The critics had contended that Roberts, six times a 20-game winner, was over the hill after that dismal 1-10 record for the 1961 Phillies and because he stubbornly refused to develop an extra pitch after he lost his fast ball.

Last spring, after purchasing his contract from Philadelphia, the Yankees gave Roberts a trial at their Fort Lauderdale camp.

There was a sad parting with the Yankees, but Roberts refused to quit on himself. He asked Baltimore's general manager, Lee MacPhail, and manager Billy Hitchcock for a tryout. Last May 21 he signed an Oriole contract.

In desperation, he tried a letup pitch he had seen Spahn and Antonelli use with effect in the National League. Roberts releases it with an overspin flick of the right wrist and it sinks down and away from left-handed hitters.

Roberts concedes that the fast ball which accounted for many of his 244 big league victories doesn't overpower the hitters any more. But he believes it gained velocity with regular work for the Orioles last year, and looks faster because of the contrast with his new pitch.

Sands, Gail Meet Tuesday

ACKERLY — The Sands High School girls and Gail are awaiting the rubber game of their three-game series to determine a basketball champion in District 87-B.

The contest takes place in the Lamesa High School gymnasium, starting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Gail pulled even in the series by defeating Sands in Gail Friday night, 57-44. Sands had won the opener at home, 48-43.

Pam Stephens paced the Coyote attack by tossing in 14 field goals and 15 free tosses for a total of 43 points. Dennis tallied ten and Billeck four for the Coyotes.

Zelda Bodine connected for eight field goals and ten gratis pitches to lead the Sands attack with 26 points.

Dulio Nunez Hurt In San Juan Ring

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—Boxer Dulio Nunez of San Juan was treated at Municipal Hospital and released Saturday, after Cuba's Florentino Fernandez knocked him out in the ninth round of a scheduled 10-round middleweight bout Friday night.

Nunez said he had a lump on his neck where the blow landed but he expected to resume his boxing career after a short rest.

Fernandez, who fights out of Miami, dominated the fight, and stunned Nunez with a right hand to the chin in the ninth. Before Referee Enrique Velasquez could stop the fight, he had landed a dozen more blows.

Police escorted Fernandez out of the ring through an unruly crowd of 6,413.

The Puerto Rican fighter, who now has been knocked out in his last three fights, said he was not discouraged by the beating. "It was a good fight and the fans enjoyed it," he said. "I'm okay."

Longhorns Launch Workouts Monday

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas football Coach Darrell Royal faces the problem Monday of replacing two of the biggest contributors to Texas 1962 championship team: Linebackers John Treadwell and Pat Culpepper.

Royal will begin shaping his team in spring training.

He has excused all 15 junior players except quarterbacks Duke Carlisle and Tommy Wade so his assistants can bear down on last year's reserves and incoming sophomores.

"We'll just put them in the bull pen and call them when we need them," Royal said of such veteran Texas juniors as tailback Tommy Ford, tackles Scott Appleton and Ken Ferguson, and ends Sandy Sands, Charles Talbert, Ben House and Tony Crosby.

"We know what they can do," Royal said of the juniors. "If we had them out there, it's a cinch we would work with them—and if we worked with them, we wouldn't work as much with the younger kids."

Linemen Knox Nunnally and Jim Besselman plus freshmen Jack Howe and Dudley Suggs will miss the workouts because of injuries.

Royal plans to juggle his backfield during early workouts. Likely moves include sophomore wingback Ernie Koy to fullback; freshman quarterback Mike Boxwell to tailback; freshman tailback Phil Harris to wingback; and freshman tailback Leslie Derrick to quarterback.

Carlisle and Wade will work on offense only during the first part of the spring session. Carlisle has been Texas' regular safetyman on defense for two seasons.

Spring training will last four weeks. The squad will work out Monday through Thursday of each week and will scrimmage each Saturday.

Stellar Field Awaits Meet At Fort Worth

By MIKE COCHRAN

FORT WORTH (AP) — More than a dozen previous winners will be on hand this weekend for the Southwestern Recreation outdoor track meet.

The meet will feature rivalry between sprinters Dennis Richardson of Abilene Christian College and Billy Foster of SMU.

Foster won the 100-yard dash in the junior college-freshman division last year. Richardson won in the university 100.

The two speedsters finished 1-2 at indoor meets in Lubbock, Fort Worth and Dallas this winter, with Richardson nudging Foster in all three.

Abilene Christian returns to defend two team titles—university and junior college-freshman.

Abilene High School seeks a repeat in the schoolboy division.

Northeast Louisiana State won the college division but has not indicated whether it will return.

Jerry Dyes, voted the outstanding performer in 1962, returns to defend his championships in the university broad jump and javelin. He is a junior at Abilene Christian.

Jim Lancaster of Baylor, who won the shot last year as a freshman and set a record of 147 feet, 10½ inches in the discus, moves up to the university division and challenges teammate Franz Mazza.

Mazza, runner-up in the Southwest Conference shot put last year, underwent a hand operation and his effectiveness here is questionable.

Lancaster is favored in both events.

Three ACC freshmen who won last year move into university competition. They are Del Cothren in the high hurdles, Gary Burger in the 880 and Lynn Saunders in the 440.

Bill Miller, the soaring senior from McMurry, gets his final crack at the college broad jump record of 23 feet, 9¾ inches set in 1959 by James Baird of East Texas State.

Miller has done 25-9 and thus places Baird's mark in grave peril.

Other winning college entries returning are Frank Santiago of Howard Payne in 880, Jack Russell of McMurry in the high jump and Malcolm Robinson of Southwestern Louisiana in the mile.

Abilene and Dallas Jefferson, perennial track powers, are slated to duel for the high school championship. The only returning champion is David Jefferies of Abilene, winner of the state pole vault last year with a record 14 feet, ¼ inch. The record here is 14-1.

The meet opens Friday with high school preliminaries and finals in high school field events. Collegians join the action Saturday.

BSGA Sets Dates For March Meet

The Big Spring Golf Association will stage a Handicap tournament for members at the Muny course Saturday and Sunday, March 9-10, and is planning to stage two tourneys a month through April, May and June in order to establish handicaps for all players.

In order to become eligible for a big meet the BSGA is planning later in the year, all players must have played in at least five of the monthly meets to establish handicaps.

Details for the March 9-10 show were worked out during a meeting of the association held Thursday night in the Community Room of the First Federal Savings and Loan building. The conclave attracted about 30 members.

Entry fee for the March tournament will be $2. Merchandise prizes will be offered to the winners.

A match between picked teams of the association and the Big Spring Country Club is also being discussed, although no dates have been set.

Wranglers Shade Hawks On Links

Odessa College, defending National Junior College Athletic Association golf champion, defeated HCJC's four-man team, 5-1, in matches played at the Big Spring Country Club Friday.

A Big Spring product, Jimmy Patterson, helped the Wranglers turn the trick.

Patterson fired a 75 to defeat Greg Peay, HCJC, who settled for an 84 and teamed with Wrangler Leon Anderson to beat the Jayhawk tandem of Peay and Tommy Wilkerson in doubles competition and pick up another point.

In individual play, Anderson fashioned a sizzling six-under par 65 to beat Wilkerson, who settled for a 78.

Odessa's Bob Archer defeated Richard Clark of HCJC in another duel. Archer had a 79 while Clark toured the course in 82 strokes.

Benny Burleson, Odessa, turned back HCJC's Bill McWhirter in another test. Burleson finished with a 74 while McQuirter had a 76.

McWhirter and Clark halved their match in doubles competition with Burleson and Archer, however.

The Jayhawks will play Cisco Junior College at the Country Club here March 5 and are booked to go to Odessa for a return match with that team March 13. The Hawks open Western Conference play against South Plains March 14.

Sul Ross Opens Play March 15

ALPINE — Twelve lettermen make up the nucleus of the Sul Ross State College baseball squad schedule on March 15 against Texas Western College in Alpine at Kokernot Field.

In addition, Coach Ray Van Cleef, now in his fifth season, will have four transfers and four freshmen on the team.

The lettermen are headed by five 300 hitters from last year's club—Daryle Gibbens .375, Wilbur Huckle .361, Jim Sears .351, Bud Artwine .325, and Roger Reid .318. Jerry Tyson, standout pitcher (7-0; ERA 1.71) will be counted on for another fine season.

Transfers Steve Brown, Travis Thompson, Ed Shafer and Mark Saunders are expected to add depth to the club's pitching and reserve strength. Freshmen Tom Cunningham, Jack Fryman, Don Wall, Mike Compton, and Ralph Westbrook are also expected to add to the team's strength.

Expectations are high that the club will improve its 18-7 record of last season and be eligible for the NAIA National Playoffs scheduled at St. Joseph, Missouri in early June.

Tennis Pros Refuse To Carry Rocket

By The Associated Press

You only begin to realize the sad state of amateur tennis throughout the world when Rod Laver, Grand Slam amateur champion of 1962, admits rather sheepishly that he could win only two of 21 matches against Ken Rosewall and Lew Hoad in the recent professional tour of Australia and New Zealand.

ROSEWALL

The pros are now touring the United States and fortunately for Laver he will face Barry MacKay, Earl (Butch) Buchholz, Andres Gimeno and Luis Ayala just about as many times as he plays Rosewall. Hoad has skipped the American tour which ends late May.

After that the troupe will operate in Europe beginning in mid-July under the aegis of the International Pro Tennis Players Association. Tony Trabert, who in 1955 was the last American to win the Nationals at Forest Hills, is the advance man for the tour.

"The players will make up any loss of money on the tour," says Trabert. "But I think we will do fairly well. We hope for sponsorship from tennis groups in some places and we hope to leave some of the profits with groups who will help the sport."

The pros feel that "open" tournaments, in which amateurs and pros play, will be permitted someday. They believe that if England can put "open" tennis across, the United States Lawn Tennis Association will follow.

Amateur tennis people would like nothing better than to see southpaw Laver, the red-headed Rocket who won the United States, Wimbledon, Australian and French titles in 1962, come close against champion Rosewall and the other touring pros. It would raise the hopes of the plodding amateurs who have seen Australians win seven straight U.S. men's singles crowns. Laver didn't win his first match on the American tour until he got to Springfield, Mass. There he beat Ayala, a lesser light who figures to battle Buchholz and Gimeno for fourth spot on tour. Rosewall, MacKay and Laver are the name players.

When the pro netmen appeared in New York someone suggested it might be smart for the 5-foot-7 Rosewall and the 6-foot-3 MacKay to carry Laver. But the 142-pound Rosewall quickly pointed out that "honesty is the best policy."

"Beating Rod the way we did back home certainly convinced people that pro tennis is more than an exhibition. There is so much money at stake. We don't carry anyone."

So you made it look honest in a hurry?

"Yes, that's right," replied Rosewall who is called Muscles, because they are scarce on his tiny frame.

"Rod's game is not yet adaptable indoors," says Rosewall. "We play on so many different type courts. Indoors is a serve and volley game."

Rosewall beat Laver, 11 to 2 Down Under, and Hoad won all eight matches from the Rocket.

"I needed experience against the top players like Rosewall and Hoad," says Laver who seems like a frightened 153-pounder going against giants.

"I had less competition in my Grand Slam. I must get into the swing of playing every night against top competition. In the amateurs I'd have only one or two tough matches (semi-finals and finals) a week. Now I've got one every night. I feel I'm bound to improve."

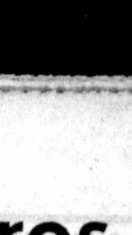

"It was pretty discouraging for me when I first started in 1957," admits Rosewall. "I was at the top of my game as an amateur in 1956 and then as a pro Pancho Gonzales beat me on tour, 50-36."

The tennis tour is similar to a hockey or basketball league. Six players are competing to eliminate two men. After 50 matches a 15-match playoff will pit the leader against the runner-up with $35,000 to the winner, $25,000 to the loser. The fifth and sixth players will get $10,000 and $7,500, respectively.

Not bad for less than four months indoors. It's enough to make almost any amateur want to turn pro.

Midland To Have Top Backfield

Congratulations are in order for James Blake, who has just given Forsan High School its third district basketball championship in the six years he's been on the job . . The last time the Buffs were in the playoffs was in 1958 . . . That year, Forsan yielded to a crackerjack Wall club in bi-district competition, 56-48 . . . Audrey Gill, the Midland director of athletics, asked the former Snyder coach, John Conley, if he were interested in the Lee job before Joe Newbill was hired . . .Conley seems to be very happy where he is — at Texas Tech . . . Harold Garms, the former Midland Lee aide who could see the Duane Grissett dismissal coming a long time in advance, is now an assistant to Glenn Frazier at Andrews High School . . . He might have occasion to move again next year . . . Isn't Jim Payne of Odessa Ector the highest paid coach in that city? . . Ector usually doesn't draw very well at home but the Odessa coaches are paid according to the length of their tenures . . . Midland High, now in the midst of spring football drills, figures to have a better backfield than does San Angelo, the 1963 favorite, with Bill Wood, Ross Montgomery and Bill Sallee ready to man posts back of the line . . If coach Harold King of the Bulldogs can solve his linebacking problems, his club could take it all in 2-AAAA without surprising too many of the coaches . . . John Macy, who recently ran the 50 miles from Galveston to Houston in 5 hours, 29 minutes, 30 seconds, is the same fellow who won the two-mile race in one of the last ABC Relays staged here . . . The Whitemarsh Country Club in Philadelphia may shortly announce it will stage a $125,000 golf tournament Aug. 8-11 as a replacement for the Eastern Open . . . Movie heavy Mike Mazurki, who inherited his pilt-down features from his blacksmith father, played in the first football game he ever saw.

Heyman Shines In Duke's Win Over Tarheels

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Art Heyman scored 40 points Saturday in leading Duke to a 106-93 basketball victory over arch rival North Carolina. It was the 15th straight victory for the second ranked Blue Devils.

The Blue Devils led the entire game as they racked up their 21st victory in 23 starts and finished their regular Atlantic Coast Conference season undefeated in 14 games.

Their 15-game winning streak is the longest in the nation for a major college team. Their undefeated conference record is the second since the ACC was formed nine years ago. North Carolina's undefeated national champions in 1957-58 also did the trick.

Duke held a 51-35 halftime lead which it extended to a 26-point lead at one point in the second half. North Carolina, however, sparked by their fine sophomore, Billy Cunningham, roared back and cut it to 10 points at one point.

Cunningham led the Tar Heels with 31 points. Heyman's 40 points were the high of his career.

Lakeview Top Gra-Y Team

Unbeatable Lakeview tops the card of teams in the Gra-Y basketball league of the YMCA.

Lakeview has trounced three opponents, allowing an average of five points to be scored by its competition while the Lakeview players were tacking up an average of 32 points a game. Lakeview also took two other decisions by forfeit, bringing its season record to five wins, no losses.

The team meets its closest competitor, Kate Morrison, Saturday at 9 a.m. Kate Morrison has taken three wins and has no losses at this point. Other games slated Saturday are: Park Hill and Washington at 9:30 a.m.; Cedar Crest and Boydstun at 10 a.m.; and Airport and College Heights at 10:30 a.m., Bauer has a bye.

In last week's competition Bauer defeated Park Hill by a score of 31-2, Lakeview took a forfeit from Cedar Crest, Airport edged past Washington 8-7 and Boydstun took College Heights by 10-8.

The All-Star basketball game for the Gra-Y teams comes up at 7 p.m. on March 23 at the Howard County Junior College gymnasium. Admission is 25 cents per person. Proceeds will go to purchase trophies and as donations to YMCA World Service.

Top scorers at this point are: James Brown, Lakeview, 38; Claude Tucker, Lakeview, 37; Richard Vera, Bauer, 30; Lee Harris, Boydstun, 29; Jody Florez, Bauer, 27; Luren Flores, Kate Morrison, 23; Tony Perez, Kate Morrison, 19; Roy Lee Warren, Lakeview, 15; Rocky Wooley, Boydstun, 12; and Rey Leos, Bauer, Gilbert Rodriquez, Bauer, and Gary Hinds, Washington, each with 11 points.

Illini Down Badger Five

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Illinois, taking the lead for the first time with five minutes gone in the last half, surged to a 89-77 victory over foul-hampered Wisconsin Saturday to keep its front-running spot in the Big Ten basketball race.

Wisconsin, hitting an amazing 74 per cent from the floor in the first half of the regionally televised game, led by as much as 31-20 before the Illini cut the deficit to 44-41 at the half time.

Ken Siebel, after scoring 13 points in the first half and helping the Badgers out-rebound Illinois, was benched with four personal fouls for five minutes in the last half.

While he was out, Dave Downey geared a rally that produced 18 points while the Badgers were held to four. It shot the Illini ahead 68-59.

Downey topped the fifth-ranked Illini with 22 points while Bill Burwell added 21 and Bill Small 19. The Illini set a Big Ten free-throw percentage by making 19 of 20 for .950. Ohio State held the old mark with 17-18 for .944 in 1960.

Siebel took scoring honors with 26 points.

Nagy And Fazio In Sports Shrine

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Steve Nagy and Basil Buzz Fazio, two colorful bowlers from Detroit, and the late Ebber Darnell (Sarge) Easter of Winston-Salem, N.C., were named Saturday to the American Bowling Congress Hall of Fame.

Nagy and Fazio were elected in balloting by 108 sports writers, sportscasters and ABC officials, while Easter, who died 18 months ago, was chosen by a board acting on the recommendation of a veterans committee.

The election of the three brought to 27 the number of men accorded bowling's highest honor. The Hall of Fame was founded in 1941. Formal induction ceremonies for Nagy, Fazio and Easter will be held March 21 in Buffalo, N.Y., during the ABC tournament.

Wynn Is Dubious Of Zone Change

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Early Wynn, around the majors 26 seasons man and boy and now trying a pitching "comeback" at 43, had a typically tart comment Saturday on baseball's new expanded strike zone.

"If I make it this season," said Wynn, who has no Chicago White Sox contract, "I'll have to see whether those umpires know there is a new rule and will enforce it.

"I don't have to tell anybody there were some in the league last season who hadn't learned the old strike zone. Seems to me they'll be more confused than ever if they're asked to learn a new one."

Wynn, still one shy of the coveted 300 victory mark, was released by the Sox after last season, ostensibly to seek a front office job in baseball.

He showed up in camp last week looking as though Manager Al Lopez had told him he still was a first-line pitcher. The pitching patriarch weighed in at 218, exactly the same as he finished in carving a 7-15 mark last season. Usually, Wynn shows up around 230 for spring training. He also had a new pair of shoes and a new glove.

"I bought them at the end of the season last year," grinned Wynn, making Sox observers wonder who was kidding whom about his "retirement."

Veteran Mentor Calls It Quits

PITTSBURG, Kan. (AP)—John F. Lance, coach of the Pittsburgh State College basketball teams for 41 years, announced his resignation Saturday.

The 65-year-old coach, winner of more than 600 games in his career at the college, chose a reunion of former basketball players to make his formal announcement. He said he would leave at the end of the current semester, terminating his association with the school.

Mote Named Coach

HAMILTON, Ontario (AP) — Kelly Mote, former North Carolina University and National Football League player, signed Saturday as line coach with the Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian League.

Three Ring Champions Due Back In Tourney

CHICAGO (AP)—Boxing's biggest amateur show—the 36th annual Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions—opens Monday night in Chicago Stadium.

With action going on in three rings simultaneously, the field of 240 will be trimmed the first two nights for the quarter-finals in each of the eight weight classes Wednesday.

The semifinals and finals will be in the Stadium a week later, March 6.

With the dropping of the Eastern Golden Gloves Tournament in New York last year, the Chicago meet has become national in scope. Teams from 31 cities in 20 states are entered. The tournament is sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

Three defending champions are back. They are, bantamweight Jim Moon of Cleveland, welterweight Rory O'Shea of Chicago, and middleweight Gary Brown of Denver.

Three who were beaten in the 1962 finals will be back for another shot. They are Carol Yeubanks, Wichita, bantamweight runner-up who now is the featherweight class; welterweight Wade Smith, who fought for Billings, Mont., and now is listed on the Muncie, Ind. team, and middleweight Jim Ross, Cincinnati.

Also returning is Roy McMillian of Cleveland, the 1961 welterweight champion who now is a middleweight.

Toledo won the team title last year with 19 points. One point is awarded for each bout won. Cincinnati was second with 17, followed by Chicago 16, Lowell, Mass., 15 and Fort Worth and Denver each 13.

Another close finish is predicted this time with these six cities again having strong representation.

Other teams come from Billings; Charlotte, N.C.; Louisville, Ky.; Nashville; Roswell, N.M.; Cleveland; Columbus, Ohio; Des Moines; Indianapolis; Detroit; Grand Rapids, Mich; St. Louis; Kansas City; Streator, Ill., Springfield, Ill.; Rockford, Ill.; Kenosha, Wis.; Green Bay, Wis.; Omaha; Memphis; Hollywood Calif.; Buffalo, N.Y., and Minneapolis.

All bouts are three rounds of two minutes each, but many never go the distance as the fighters come out swinging for knockouts.

Boxers in the first night's show of approximately 90 bouts will be in the four lighter weight divisions — 112, 118, 126 and 135 pounds. The bigger boys — 147, 160, 175 and heavyweight — will battle Tuesday.

Turner, Self Earn Awards

Bill Turner and Weldon Self have been singled out on the Coahoma High School football team by the Daily Herald for their stellar play during the 1962 season.

W. SELF

Turner, a 175-pound senior, won Back of the Year honors while Self earned Lineman of the Year laurels. The two received certificates at an All-Sports banquet held Friday night for Coahoma athletes in the Coahoma Junior High cafeteria.

Turner was the workhorse of the Coahoma backfield. He averaged about six yards per carry when lugging the ball. When the opposition had possession of the ball, he shifted to tackle and the results to enemy ball carriers were invariably devastating.

Coach Jimmy Spann said he would probably have been harder to replace than any man in the Coahoma lineup.

Self, a 200-pound junior, played center on offense and linebacker on defense for the Bulldogs. Spann referred to him as "the type of boy any coach would like to have on his squad, a boy who plays the game to the hilt on every play."

Football jackets were handed out to players during the banquet.

Texan John Rutherford Is Man To Watch At Daytona

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The gaudiest field of stock car race drivers ever assembled will shoot for more than $100,000 in prize money here Sunday and the word is: "Watch that young Texan."

The field of 50 cars begins the 500-mile grind over the 2.5-mile Daytona International Speedway at 1 p.m. EST. Some three hours later the winner will collect $29,350 plus lap money at $100 per lap.

Glenn (Fireball) Roberts, the home pro who was stock car racing's leading money winner last year, and tousle-haired Freddie Lorenzen of Charlotte, N.C., hold down the two front row positions, Roberts on the inside. The two won 25-mile preliminary heats two weeks ago to earn the pole positions.

Behind them will be a galaxy of veterans and rookies, with a sprinkling of top level Indianapolis drivers, including the 1962 winner Rodger Ward of Indianapolis, Ind. Also in the field are former Indy winners A. J. Foyt of Houston and Troy Ruttman.

Chevrolet drivers cut the biggest figure in pre-race trials in a fantastic display of speed. So well did the sleek Chevvys perform that veteran race observers piled the odds on them to win the fifth annual race going away.

Hulking Junior Johnson, the Ronda, N.C., veteran, and rookie John Rutherford, 24-year-old Texan, were easily the pre-race favorites, with the bulk of the odds going to the veteran.

These two, who have a private speed feud going that has the racing world agog, won 100-mile preliminaries here Friday and nailed down the two second row spots, Johnson on the inside.

Johnson averaged 164.083 miles per hour in running away from the field in the first of the two 100 milers. Rutherford, whose second race contained a field of 31 cars, creating quite a traffic jam, won by three car-lengths at an average speed of 162.969.

Scots In Front

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP)—Scotland defeated Ireland 3-0 in an International rugby match Saturday.

Brown Fights D. Charnley

MANCHESTER, England (AP) —Joe Brown, former world lightweight champion, renews his rivalry with British champion Dave Charnley on Monday.

Brown of Baton Rouge, La., twice put his title on the line against Charnley and won both times. The 37-year-old "Old Bones" knocked out Charnley in the sixth round in Houston, Tex., Dec. 2, 1959, and then outpointed him in London over 15 rounds April 18, 1961.

Since then Brown has lost his world crown to Carlos Ortiz of New York. Previously he had successfully defended his title 11 times, a record in the lightweight division.

"I want to have another crack at Ortiz," Brown said Saturday. "I'm sure I'm now back to the right condition physically, as well as mentally, to beat him."

Another victory over Charnley could help put him in line for another world title fight.

"I've beaten Charnley twice before and I think I can do it again," Brown said. "I know I am a couple of years older than when we last fought—but so is Charnley."

Charnley, 27, is trying to get back into the big time. He lost his British Empire title to Bunny Grant of Jamaica last year and recently was stripped of his European title because he failed to defend it.

Anderson Top Point Getter

Ronnie Anderson led the Runnels Junior High eighth grade basketball team in scoring during the season just completed with a total of 162 points.

Only other Yearling over the 100-mark was James Carver, who wound up with 112 points.

The Yearlings, who won 11 of 13 starts under coach Bobby Zellars, outscored the opposition, 457 points to 295.

The Yearlings outscored the opposition, 90 to 61 in first period play, 144 to 73 in the second quarter, 119 to 80 in the third and 104 to 81 in the fourth.

The local team ran up its highest score in a single game against Snyder Travis, which it beat, 48-24.

New Chapter Adds To Gas Sales Story

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP)—The Supreme Court has added another chapter to the controversy over federal control of interstate sales of natural gas.

The court ruled Monday that Kansas cannot require an interstate pipeline to spread its gas purchases equally among all the wells from which it buys in a single reservoir.

Kansas officials had argued the ratable take rule was vital to conservation and to the protection of correlative rights.

The court, by a 5-3 decision, said the rule invaded the Federal Power Commission's (FPC) exclusive jurisdiction over sale of gas transported in interstate commerce for resale.

The court had set up the current controversy in 1954 by ruling the FPC must fix prices on gas sold to interstate lines.

Early industry reaction to this week's decision was mild in comparison to the uproar of 1954.

The new ruling was described as a "potentially tragic" decision that will create chaotic conditions.

Some oilmen said the ruling adds urgency to the need for remedial legislation on the overall problem of federal regulation of interstate gas sales.

But there were some obvious signs of relief. There had been some fear the ruling might include a broad attack on a state's authority in the areas of production proration and conservation.

The ruling did not attack the theory behind ratable take. Instead, the court tossed out the method the Kansas Corporation Commission used in applying the theory.

The court indicated it would have had no objection had the Kansas commission imposed its ratable take order on the producer instead of the interstate pipeliner.

Applying the order to a purchaser instead of a producer, the court said, could seriously impair federal authority to regulate purchasers' cost structures and eventual costs to wholesale customers who sell to consumers in other states.

The majority opinion also indicated at one point the court concedes conservation authority to the states. It said the case did not involve the existence or scope of a state's power to conserve its natural resources.

"The problem is only whether the Constitution sanctions the particular means chosen by Kansas to exercise the conceded power if those means threaten effectuation of the federal regulatory scheme," the decision said.

Rig Count Gains Seven

MIDLAND — A gain of seven units was listed on Reed Roller Bit Company's Friday survey of rotary rig drilling in the Permian Basin. A total of 212 working rigs were tabulated on the once-a-week survey. The figure on the previous Friday was 205 active rotaries.

However, the latest figure was 12 below the 224 shown in the West Texas-Southeast New Mexico region at the same time last year.

Lea County, N. M., recorded an increase of three, up from 34 to 37, and continued at the head of the list. Pecos County, with a gain of two, from 15 to 17, moved into second spot.

The county-by-county survey, with previous week's total in parenthesis, includes:

Andrews 14 (13), BORDEN 2 (2), Chaves 3 (3), Cochran 0 (1), Coke 2 (0), Concho 0 (1), Crane 10 (8), Crockett 1 (2), Culberson 2 (2), DAWSON 6 (8);

Ector 16 (18), Eddy 12 (10), Fisher 2 (2), Gaines 9 (8), GARZA 0 (1), Hockley 2 (1);

HOWARD 2 (2), Hudspeth 1 (1), Kent 0 (1), Lea 37 (34), Loving 3 (2), Lubbock 0 (1), MARTIN 3 (2), Menard 2 (2), Midland 8 (9);

MITCHELL 2 (2), Nolan 2 (3), Pecos 17 (15), Reagan 2 (3), Reeves 3 (2), Runnels 5 (5), Roosevelt 1 (0), Schleicher 3 (1), Scurry 2 (2);

Stonewall 1 (0), Sutton 0 (1), Terrell 4 (4), Terry 1 (1), Tom Green 1 (2), Upton 11 (11);

Ward 8 (10), Winkler 4 (3), Yoakum 8 (6). Total, 212 (205).

Operator Ready To Test Perfs

Wichita - Albany tests through perforations are slated in Southwest Upton County at Bayview Oil Corporation of Dallas No. 1 Ethel Pethybridge. The wildcat was drilled to 4,940 feet and cemented 5½-inch oil string at 4,438 feet.

The pipe is perforated with a series of holes from 4,215 to 4,381 feet. No treatment has been reported.

Site is 660 feet from northeast and northwest lines of section 35, block 35, H&TC survey, six miles northwest of McCamey and one location southeast of the depleted South McCamey (Wichita-Albany) pool.

State Completes 166 Oil Wells

AUSTIN (AP) — The Railroad Commission reported Saturday the completion of 166 oil and 54 gas wells during the week.

This brought the year total to 1,343 oil wells, compared to 1,490 in 1962. The report showed 363 gas wells completed this year, compared to 534.

Three wildcat oil and five gas wells were completed. A total of 147 wells were plugged, 82 of which were dry holes.

Investment Drop Seen In Petrochemicals In '63

AUSTIN (AP) — Oil industry investment in petrochemicals will drop during 1963, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research said Saturday.

"The basic reason for oil industry activity in chemicals arises from the fact that the industry has generated large cash flows," Alfred Dale of the agency wrote.

"In recent years, oil companies have been confronted with declining investment incentives in the drilling and exploration area.

"This combination of circumstances, together with the fact that companies control raw materials sources, and have technical competence in process engineering, has made forward integration an appealing proposition."

Whether the oil industry will still move as vigorously into petrochemicals as it has in the recent past is debatable, he said.

"There are indications that oil industry investment in chemicals for 1963 will be below the 1962 level, and there is substantial overcapacity in many segments of the chemical industry at the present time," he said.

Dale added, however, that the long-term future looks very encouraging.

"It is a matter of importance to Texas that the oil industry, which has played so important a part in the economy of the state for 40 years, should be demonstrating its capacity to meet new opportunities for growth and development," he said.

Dale traced 1962 developments in the Texas petrochemical industry, which he said "continues to demonstrate the growth characteristics that have made it a major expansion component of the state's industrial base."

Although the chemical industry employment in the chemicals and allied products industry in Texas was at an estimated 45,000 in December, 9 per cent of the 500,000 total employment in manufacturing. About one in every seven workers in the nation's industrial chemical industry is employed in Texas.

Local Crime Rate Increases Faster Than The State Rate

A comparison of crime increase in the State of Texas, with that in Big Spring during 1962 does not paint a pretty picture. Big Spring is leading.

Big Spring police reports from April 1, 1962 through Jan. 31, or nine months of the fiscal year, shows that crimes considered in the major categories of murder, rape, aggravated assault, robbery, burglary, larceny, and auto theft, jumped 34 per cent over the same period of the previous year.

Col. Homer Garrison Jr., director of the Department of Public Safety, reported that major crime in Texas continued its upward spiral in 1962, outstripping the population increase, as an average of one offense was committed every 2½ minutes. Auto theft showed the largest increase with 10.5 per cent. The Big Spring increase showed 25.3 per cent with 46 offenses reported. Of these 33 were recovered.

The total number of arrests for offenses fell below that of 1961 but around 65 offenses were cleared in four arrests.

A breakdown of major crime offenses showed the following, with 1962 listed first followed by 1961: murder 5-5, rape 3-2, aggravated assault 76-66, robbery 11-5, burglary 207-138, larceny over $50, 125-92, larceny under $50, 338-248, and auto theft 46-33.

The total value of stolen property, for the two years, was $90,805.-28-$66,777.43. The value of property recovered was $61,182.21—$49.-557.49, an increase in 1962 of 23 per cent.

A comparison of traffic violations for the two years shows: 1962, 7,164, and 1961, 2,920, up 4,244. Damage to vehicles and property, because of accidents, jumped to $289,103 as compared to $217,264, up nearly one-third.

Juvenile activity indicated the total number of offenses jumped in 1962, over 1961, by 21 per cent, or 511 to 411. Minors in possession of alcoholic beverages jumped from 37, with fines totaling $660 in 1961, to 68 with fines amounting to $1,395 in 1962.

"We have problems in Big Spring, especially in areas in run-down condition which must be corrected before we will have a lessening of robberies, burglaries, and several other types of crime," Chief Jay Banks said. "A part of the juvenile problem rests in these areas. Some residents believe the publicity exceeds the problems, but those of us who deal with it know better.

"The police department would prefer lesser figures for all categories of crime. The number of offenses cleared up during each of the past three years has increased, but the problems are still there," he continued. "We can't take the attitude that, if we don't look it will go away, because it won't. It is the problem of the entire city, not just the police department."

Col. Garrison said the crime rate in Texas, per 100,000 population, increased from 2,122 in 1961 to 2,261.5 in 1962. The Big Spring figure, per 1,000 population, was 24.5 in 1962 compared to 18.4 in 1961, a much higher rate.

"The 1962 state figures, according to our statistical services section," Garrison said, "mean that on the average, there was one major crime every 2½ minutes, one murder every nine hours, one rape every 9½ minutes, one aggravated assault every 40½ minutes, one robbery every three hours, one theft every four minutes, and one auto theft every 32 minutes."

The police department has stepped up surveilance of known offenders in Big Spring, and has apprehended every possible suspect. The department covers an 11-square-mile area with round-the-clock patrol with seven regular patrolmen and the traffic division. Eighteen reserve officers, with the same authority as regular police, were added last September to bolster the force. Each of these men puts in a minimum of four hours per week, but the average per-man has been over six hours—mostly at night.

House Has Solid Results For The Week

AUSTIN (AP)—House members had some solid lawmaking results to show.

Senators kept explaining why they couldn't say what happened in their closed door rejection of a former state Supreme Court justice, W. St. John Garwood, nominated a University of Texas regent.

Both houses come back at 11 a.m. Monday.

The Senate confirmation controversy apparently will resume where it left off on adjournment Thursday. Sen. A. R. Schwartz of Galveston has promised a special speech. He says he will warn fellow senators that from now on he will not be bound by the traditional secrecy surrounding the required Senate's "advice and consent" on each governor's nomination.

Sen. Don Kennard of Fort Worth and others say they are pushing Gov. John Connally to resubmit the name of Garwood as a university regent.

Looking back over the week's score sheet, the House whipped out four important statewide bills Wednesday and Thursday. In Senate committees now are House-approved measures to lower the state sulphur tax, authorize creation of a Padre Island Seashore Area, merge the Game and Fish Commission with the Parks Board and let the Highway Department authorize 70-mile speed limits. The House also passed on to the Senate 16 local bills.

By contrast, the Senate approved and sent to the House only three local bills during the week.

In earlier weeks the Senate approved its versions of several important issues that are now in House committees.

These include Senate bills calling for strict controls on obscene movies, equal legal rights for women, and another Padre Island Seashore Area measure.

Supporters of the Padre Island Seashore Park, whose creation is already authorized by Congress, say they will try to use the Senate bill as a compromise vehicle rather than try to push the House-approved bill through the Senate. The House State Affairs Committee may act on the Senate-approved bill Monday night.

Connally spent last week in the hospital after a hernia operation and is expected to spend most or all of next week confined to his bed at the Mansion. Before entering the hospital the governor said that some time before March 1 he hoped to make his second speech to the legislature. He will complete new administration recommendations by laying out his idea of 1964-65 state spending—along with new revenue needs, if necessary.

Cuban Airliner Reported Buzzed

TORONTO (AP)—The Toronto Star said Saturday two American interceptor planes buzzed a Mexico-bound Cubana Airlines plane about 100 miles out of Havana Friday. Among the passengers were eight Canadians, including the writer of the story, Mark Gayn.

He said the two planes flew below the airliner, rocking it with their backwash, after which the Cubana plane appeared to change course.

Sherman Man Held For Rape

OLNEY, Tex. (AP) — James Robert Lewis, 43, of Sherman was charged with rape Friday night after an Olney girl, 8, told her parents she had been attacked by a truck driver.

Dist. Atty. Jack Neal said the girl was reported missing late in the afternoon and a search was started.

Neal said she later turned up at her home and told her parents she was picked up by a man, who attacked her after driving outside of the city.

Lewis was arrested eight miles east of here on Texas 199. Justice of Peace Sam Furr Jr., set his bond at $25,000. He was transferred to the Young County jail at Graham.

Judge Faces Slant Trial

LONGVIEW (AP)—Judge David Moore is scheduled for trial Monday in his own 124th District Court on charges of felony theft of oil through what the state contends is an illegally deviated well.

His is the first case to come to trial from the several hundred so-called "slant-well" indictments voted by East Texas grand juries.

Moore, 42 and on the Gregg County bench since August, 1957, was indicted Dec. 11 by a grand jury which voted 208 other "slant hole" bills.

Five others were indicted in connection with the same well and lease but dates of their trials have not been set. Those are E. W. Scates of Longview; L. D. Murphy, former Railroad Commission engineer; Don Baker of Corpus Christi, Gerald Teer of Robstown and Tom Cook Jr. of Longview.

Moore, of Gladewater, made two voluntary appearances before Gregg County grand juries and at an Austin hearing of the House General Investigating Committee.

Dacron Tube Sayes A Life

HOUSTON (AP) — Susan McCullough, 6, will return to her Princeton, S. C., farm home soon with a piece of dacron tube that saved her life.

Susan, a freckled faced youngster, is recovering at Methodist Hospital in the Texas Medical Center from an operation to restore the blood supply to a kidney.

Excess tissue was in the main artery supplying blood to the kidneys. Doctors said a small block higher up the artery is fairly common but one so extensive and in the section causing Susan's ailment was extremely rare.

A surgeon left the artery in place but bypassed the narrowed section by attaching a dacron graft.

"We've cried a river since we found out about this," said the father, J. A. McCullough. "Now we're so optimistic we're delirious."

The first hint of trouble came in November when their physician detected an unusual heart murmur and extremely high blood pressure.

Planting With The Wind And The Sun A Rewarding Effort

By KATHLEEN DOZIER

Planting with the wind and the sun produces riotous color, magnificent foliage and the heavenly perfume of the desert. Cultivating the native plants in gardens of the great Southwest is becoming increasingly popular, augmenting the elements, the rugged terrain and architecture of the area. Even city planning has encompassed the use of rugged desert plants for beautifying park areas.

If you are a newcomer to the area, and have decided to join up with Mother Nature, you will begin to inquire concerning the culture of the wild native plants and the kindred desert plants. If you can't find any general printed matter on the subject, then ask a native West Texan. He'll tell you "It ain't easy." Neither is it easy where rainfall is over abundant; the soil porous and amply supplied with leaf mold mulch and minerals. There, the problem is how to keep the plants from rotting and the weeds from out-growing or smothering the cultivated varieties.

Plants of the Southwest can quickly receive too much loving care. They like the alkaline soil, and they are accustomed to drouth. Thus, when your garden begins to grow, there is little concern with watering, mulching or fertilizing.

Entranced with the wild beauty of the cacti, the yucca and chamisa, the cottonwoods, the salt cedar and the aroma of grease wood, the newcomer is inspired with his new gardening plan. Taking off in the family bus he hasn't far to go to find, beyond several barbed-wire strands, a good crop of cacti, mesquite thickets and other desirable specimens. Generally there is no problem in receiving a digging permit from the land owner. Usually he will give his consent with his blessings. He knows the digging is rough.

So the newcomer receives a liberal education along with numerous blisters of assorted sizes and shapes, a couple of minor skin abrasions and a hitch in his back.

Should he be so lucky as to bring home a nice specimen, he then must dig carefully another chasm deep enough to accommodate those rascally roots. Of course, the smaller cacti—dangerous little demons—are much simpler to transplant provided they are treated with respect.

Examples of good planning and cultivation, using the natural landscape to advantage, are noted at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Truman Jones on Douglas St. and Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Stanley, 1601 Phillips.

Retaining the natural beauty, the acreage surrounding both homes features supplementary planting. Architecture in both instances is typical of the Southwest, stressing clean, low lines which cling to the canyon landscapes and enhance the grandeur of the rugged terrain.

PLANTS OF THE SOUTHWEST

Native growth which can be cultivated includes the Algerita, an evergreen with red berries, the crown of thorns, mesquite, the hackberry—hardy, prolific and the largest native tree, wild mulberry, Texas persimmon, sotal and cactus. Desert plants which thrive in this area are chollas, ocotillo, saguaro, rainbow cactus, desert spoon, the century plant, star cactus, barrel cactus, bishop's crown, hedgehog, lechuguilla Morman tea and the related sotal, Scotch broom, Torrey Yucca—large and small leaf, and the Great Torrey Yucca which grows to a height of 40 feet.

Skit Presented At Forsan Club

A skit, "Doorways to Freedom," was the highlight of the Thursday evening Forsan Study Club gathering at the school.

Participating in the playlet were Mrs. Ronnie Gandy, Mrs. J. C. Ferguson, Mrs. James Blake, Mrs. M. M. Fairchild, Mrs. W. M. Romans and Mrs. Oscar Boeker. The skit dramatized the role of teacher and mother in the lives of young people.

Hostesses were Mrs. Romans and Mrs. Boeker, with the devotion given by Mrs. Gandy.

Decorations on the refreshment table carried out the theme of Washington's birthday. The centerpiece was an eagle and the cake was decorated with flags and red cherries. Silver and crystal appointments were used.

Members of the club will meet at the school at 7:30 p.m., March 7 when they will visit the ranch home of Horace Garrett.

County Judge Lee Porter outlined the work of the judge's office, telling of the civil and juvenile cases that are handled there. During a question and answer period, the question of whether the city should have a county court of law was discussed.

New officers were elected. Those taking office will be Mrs. Harold Talbot, president, Mrs. L. T. King, vice president; Mrs. R. F. Polk, recording secretary; Mrs. C. C. Jones, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Robert Stripling, treasurer; Mrs. M. M. Edwards, parliamentarian; Mrs. Lloyd Wasson, reporter; Mrs. Allen Hamilton, press-book; and Mrs. G. H. The program, "Manage Your Way to a Better Day," was presented by Mrs. Crawford.

The next meeting is scheduled for March 7 at the home of Mrs. Gene Perry.

Desert Thongs From Arabia

The desert thong is still another vestige of the Lawrence of Arabia fashion fad. The summer sandal sports a twinkling jewel at the toe and a few more on the threads that tie around the ankle. Worn with thongs to keep sand out of toenails are thong stockings in desert shades, of course.

Circle Has Skit On Council Work

The origin and purpose of the United Council of Churches was the topic at the Tuesday meeting of the Fanny Hodges Circle of the First Methodist Church.

The program was under the direction of Mrs. L. L. Patton with Mrs. A. S. Woods, Mrs. John Ritenour and Mrs. Robert Hill taking part in a skit. It told how the organization works to serve the community and further understanding between denominations.

Mrs. Vic Baldridge was welcomed as a new member of the circle. Refreshments were served to 16, including a guest, Mrs. Verdell Turner.

A general meeting and luncheon will be held at the church on Feb. 26.

Springlike The Decor At Class Wives Meeting

Flowers which decorated the table at the meeting of the wives of "A" flight, Class 63-G, reminded us that spring cannot be far behind. While the guests enjoyed punch, little cakes, mints and nuts, a lively conversation developed. Mrs. Glenn G. Perry Jr. was hostess at the Wednesday afternoon meeting. Afterward, several members of the group adjourned to struggle with ten pins at the bowling alley.

The next OWC Hi and Bye coffee is set for 10 a.m., March 28. Class 63-E will be leaving soon after their graduation the evening of March 27, but we hope some of the wives will be able to attend the coffee to say a last "goodbye."

A recent birthday party for Mrs. J. D. Wolfe featured a special surprise — a birthday cake sent by her mother, Mrs. Helen McClanahan. Champagne was served with the cake to Capt. and Mrs. K. D. Robinson, Lt. and Mrs. G. H. Bauer, Lt. and Mrs. W. C. Wirstrom, and Lt. and Mrs. G. B. Kennedy.

Lt. and Mrs. George H. Vipond are having guests this weekend. They are Lt. and Mrs. Robert Kuefner, who, like the Viponds, come originally from Duluth, Minn. Lt. Kuefner is a student pilot at Vance Air Force Base at Enid, Okla.

Lt. and Mrs. James B. Studley entertained Lt. and Mrs. Chris Mills this week. Lt. Mills is with the Navy. They are en route from Brunswick, Maine, to their next base at Monterrey, Calif. Mr. and Mrs. Ronald W. Lindemann from Orleans, Mass., Mrs. Studley's parents, arrived yesterday to visit in Big Spring and will be here for Class 63-E's graduation.

Class 64-D had its monthly get-together last week. The hostesses for this month were Mrs. R. B. Meyers, and Mrs. G. B. Kennedy.

Yesterday Class 64-A wives added a new member to their ranks when Lt. Robert Staib married Miss Maryann Welzer in St. Ann's Catholic Church in Midland. Following the wedding a reception was held at the Midland Country Club.

Class 64-D wives met in the home of Lt. and Mrs. C. L. Chasteen last week. Amid the St. Patrick's day decor, lime punch and white cake with green frosting was served. Mrs. D. M. Blue presided over the business meeting as the new class coordinator.

Many of the student pilots and their wives are taking advantage of George Washington's birthday and thus a three-day weekend to make trips to nearby cities to visit friends. Others used the time to get some shopping done in Big Spring during the sales.

Diet Quackery Is Elbow Club Topic

Fads and quackery in diets was discussed by Mrs. James Cauble and Mrs. B. J. Petty at the Thursday afternoon gathering of the Elbow Home Demonstration Club in the home of Mrs. Jack McKinnon. The hostess gave the devotion.

The speakers advised members to see their physicians if dieting seems advisable rather than to be misled by false claims of some questionable products.

Mrs. L. L. Phemister was a nominee from the Elbow club to attend the Texas Home Demonstration Association meeting April 18 in Lubbock. Three nominees will be elected by the council to represent this area at the convention.

Mrs. F. M. Fulbright will be the club hostess on March 7.

Looking To Future

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Medley Jr. are newcomers who are looking forward to a good life here. Seated by his mother is Frank, while young Bill is held by his father.

Service Influenced Choice Of Profession

By JO BRIGHT

A tour of duty from 1956 to 1958 with the United States Marines had a great deal to do with the civilian profession of Frank Medley Jr.

While serving with the corps, Medley was stationed in Texas, Florida and California where he made Spanish-speaking friends. Fascinated with the language, he is now teaching Spanish and English at Runnels Junior High School.

Medley acquired another interest while in service. He met a pretty brunette in Jacksonville, Fla., who later became his wife. They were married there in 1957 and now have two sons, Frank, three, and Bill, 18 months.

Big Spring was home to Medley once before. His family lived here for eight years before moving to Lubbock, where he graduated from high school. When he returned to Lubbock to earn a bachelor of arts degree, Mrs. Medley accompanied him and did part-time secretarial work while he attended classes.

The family's introduction to Big Spring this January could probably be termed unforgettable. They came here to purchase a home the week before his job was to begin. Forced to move on a weekend, it was impossible to get utilities turned on. The weather had turned bitterly cold. The Medleys feel forever indebted to friends who opened their home to the family until they could get heat in their own house.

So far, there has been little time for outside interests since this is Medley's first year of teaching and his wife has been occupied making a new home. When leisure days come, however, they have leased three sections of land in Kimbell County where they will vacation and hunt. Also, they enjoy bowling.

Mr. and Mrs. Medley are interested in knowing if there is a League of United Latin-American Citizens chapter in Big Spring. He has served as supervising instructor for adult Spanish classes sponsored by this group in Lubbock.

The Medley family has joined the First Presbyterian Church.

CHURCH SUPPER

The St. Monica's Guild of St. Mary's Episcopal Church will sponsor a chicken spaghetti supper at the church on Shrove Tuesday, Feb. 26. Serving hours will be from 5:30 to 7 p.m. Cost of the meal will be $1 for adults and 75 cents for children.

I shall never again believe that women can't keep a secret now that I know eight of them did. All the hostesses for the Thursday morning coffee at the Big Spring Country Club kept mum about their plans to appear in Colonial costume for the morning affair . . even members of the house party were surprised to see the silver-haired hostesses with their pretty dresses and quaint bonnets.

While the Martha Washington style was right in line with George's birthday anniversary, Big Spring women put on some beautiful modern styles for spring of '63.

Various shades of popular pink were noted in the selections of a number of the guests. MRS. MERRILL CREIGHTON chose a dusty rose-pink wool two piece suit, the coat of which was trimmed with a raised detail of the same yarn. Her hat was a touch of spring flowers . . . MRS. R. W. THOMPSON'S suit was very nearly the same color and she wore a more tailored type small hat with a band of heavy white lace through which was seen a red ribbon . . . MRS. KNOX CHADD'S suit and hat were nearly shocking pink . . . with just a little more red than usual . . . Apricot was noted in a number of hats, particularly the one worn by MRS. HUGH DUNCAN which had a wide upturned brim with matching ribbon that barely draped over the brim . . . MRS. ADOLPH SWARTZ wore a hat styled with a South American air . . . The wide upturned brim was covered with material of muted apricot, beige and white stripes and her slippers picked up the apricot shade. MRS. R. L. BEALE was attractively dressed in a suit of tangerine wool with which she wore matching shoes with brown trim . . . MRS. H. G. KEATON accented her red outfit with silk slippers with bright stripes . . . MRS. GARNER McADAMS shut out the cold wind with a short clipped beaver jacket collared in mink, and with it wore her pretty hat of large print with orange, bright blue, touches of green and yellow.

The party was another of those fun affairs where everyone would like to come early and stay late because they get to visit with all their friends and meet some new ones.

Slips To Slice Long To Short

Slicing it off is the easiest way to shorten anything, including a slip that's too long.

Until recently this was considered sloppy, unless you took the time to hem the raw edge afterwards. Now a taffeta petticoat is on the market which has three possible hemlines, faggoted into the lower part of the skirt. The wearer can select the length she prefers and snip off the rest, leaving a finished edge.

New Texas Road Maps Are Ready

AUSTIN — The strikingly colorful 1963 edition of the Official Highway Travel Map of Texas is ready for the asking.

Designed to show Texan and tourist alike how to discover the Lone Star State's vacation "funtier," the Texas Highway Department publication is free to the public. Copies may be obtained by writing the Texas Highway Department, Travel Division, Austin. County tax offices have special cards for ordering copies of the map.

Within the year, 750,000 or more of the free maps depicting Texas delights in vivid full-color photographs will find their way to glove compartments all over the United States—and the world.

Keyed to the swelling Texas tourist industry—up 14 per cent in visitor volume last year—the new travel map urges users to "Discover Texas—Today's Funtier."

The 28 x 36-inch map shows that highways have been growing with Texas and contributing to the growth of its tourist industry. Multi-lane-divided highway miles now completed and indicated on the new map total 2,008 miles.

Nearly 50,000 miles of highways are shown on the current map. Some 22,000 miles of Farm and Ranch to Market roads are shown and all Interstate, U. S. and State highways are indicated.

Dr. Shaw To Visit Knights Of Pythias

Dr. Omos O. Shaw, Denton, grand chancellor commander of Texas Knights of Pythias, will make an official visit to the lodge here Tuesday.

His appearance will be at the Castle Hall, 1407 Lancaster, at 7:30 p.m. Reeves Moren, chancellor commander, and Dwain Leonard, deputy grand chancellor, will be in charge of the meeting.

Visitors are expected from lodges in Odessa and Midland.

Dr. Shaw, who has been a Denton chiropractor for more than 30 years, has held almost every office within the gift of Pythians. He served as chancellor commander of his lodge in 1948 and took the grand lodge degree in 1950. He served as president of the Texas Khorassan Society in 1960-61, and is chairman of the Pythian Home board of trustees.

For three years he was president of the Texas Chiropractic College Alumni Association. Dr Shaw also has been active in Optimist International, having been president of the club in Denton, a life member, lieutenant governor and later district governor. Optimist International named him its outstanding district governor that year.

Check For Brucellosis To Begin Here March 4

Re-check of cattle in Howard County to determine if the herds are still qualified to be certified as Brucellosis free will begin March 4. Herb Helbig, county agent, said that a meeting of ranchers and dairymen will be held in the courthouse at 7:30 p.m. Monday to outline plans.

Howard County was given a Brucellosis check in 1960. Under this system, a re-check after three years must be made to continue the county's certification.

ORIGINAL TESTS

The original tests, which ended May 7, 1960, involved 10,291 head of stock. All of these animals were tested and there were 21 herds in which suspect animals were found, 18 in which reactors were located and 72 others rated free of any signs of the disease.

Under the new program, all animals in the 18 herds where reactors where located in 1960, the 21 herds classified as suspect, and all dairy herds will be retested 100 per cent.

In all other herds—the 72 in which no evidence of Brucellosis was found—20 per cent of the animals will be tested this time. Helbig said there are more cattle on ranches and farms in the county now than there were in 1960.

VETS

Monday night, he said either Dr. L. K. Rice or Dr. Tom Montgomery, veterinarians with the Animal Disease Eradication program, will be present to answer questions which stockmen may wish to ask about the program. Also on hand will be a committee of Howard County cattlemen. Members of this committee are Loy Acuff, Jack Buchanan, Leland Wallace and Lawrence Davis. Others will be added to the committee and each member will have a specific territory of the county to direct.

Helbig said the agency predicted that from three weeks to a month will be needed to complete the re-test. A crew of men will be moved into the county, starting March 4, and will move from herd to herd on a prearranged schedule.

The Howard County Commissioners Court Thursday agreed to pay the salary of a man to help with the program. The worker is to be available for as long as a month and will be paid by the county at $12 per day.

OUTLINE

Acuff, Buchanan and Wallace met with Helbig last Thursday and a rough outline for the campaign was drawn. On the initial tests in 1960, excellent cooperation was afforded the testers by ranchers, Helbig said. He voiced the hope the same cooperative attitutde would be evident this time.

The certification of a county as being Brucellosis free is of tremendous importance in selling cattle and in moving stock over the state. Brucellosis is a disease which affects female cattle. It causes abortion in stock and milk from infected cows can spread undulant fever among human beings. Cattle which are proved reactors—shown to be infected with the disease—are destroyed.

SAMPLES

Crews of workers go to the herds and take blood samples from each animal to be tested. These blood samples are carefully labelled and are processed in a laboratory. The test is simple and takes little time.

Whether the laboratory will be set up in this county, as it was in 1960, has not been determined. The mobile laboratory is now in another county.

A Devotional For The Day

The Lord is nigh unto all . . . that call upon him in truth. He will fulfil the desire of them that fear him: he also will hear their cry, and will save them. (Psalms 145:18-19.)

PRAYER: O Lord, help us to believe that Thou knowest our every need and art willing to forgive us our sins if we are penitent of heart. We submit our lives to Thee to redeem them and direct them as Thou wilt. In Christ's spirit we pray. Amen.

(From The 'Upper Room')

When Friendship Is Disturbed—

It is of moment, of course, to the entire Big Spring community that negotiations are under way looking toward a change in ownership and operation of our own Cosden Petroleum Corporation. And it is only natural that concern would be felt about what eventually happens to an institution that has been so dominant so long in the overall community picture.

Rumors, which have a way of running faster than facts and snowballing in the process, have not helped to quiet what must be a normal solicitude as to how the local economy would be affected as well as the entire community well-being.

Cosden has been an integral factor in Big Spring's development too long to regard lightly a major change in policies as related to the local level.

The two have "grown up" together, as it were, and have marched hand-in-hand for more than 30 years. The relationship has been all the more intimate since 1940, when general offices were moved here, because it has been during this period that Cosden's continued sound growth has meant so much to all the city's growth.

Leaving the economics out of it, the whole Cosden "family" must be lauded without limit for what it has contributed to all of Big Spring's welfare. From the president to the lowest worker on the wage scale, Cosden people have been good citizens, contributing manpower, time, talent, and money to all of the area's good causes.

It is almost impossible to single out a public agency, a civic organization, a service institution, a welfare project or any meritorious undertaking that there does not appear support from the good Cosden people. The company itself, far beyond the average, has been such a "good citizen," too, that it has become a standard attitude that "Cosden will help." And Cosden has.

We do not discuss here the proposition that a company may be sold, if a seller and a buyer come to terms. We do not necessarily view with alarm that community participation would be disrupted, or that the community economy would be damaged. These are undetermined factors at this time.

But there is a restiveness locally that cannot be overlooked. It is the sort of uncertainty that occurs when an old friendship is disturbed.

Relief Through Saving

Hints have now gone out that the President will be willing to settle for parts of the tax reduction and parts of the tax reform program previously recommended. Presumably, the offer would settle for other parts of the barrage of proposals which would create a 10 billion dollar deficit if taken on their face.

Tax reduction is important, and it is needed. Deficits unfortunately occur sometimes under the best of intentions, but it is folly to deliberately create one short of an emergency which involves survival.

All the problems of this country and world were not created in a day, and they aren't going to be solved overnight by a massive frontal attack. It is well to state and to define problems, but it is not always necessary or wise for government to push a panacea without affording the people an opportunity to deal with them in their own way.

Pinching down on the proliferation of programs, holding the tightest rein possible on military spending commensurate with security, seeking ways to get off the treadmill of subsidies to commerce, agriculture and industry all will help bring expenditures into balance with income, even after some tax relief.

Time To Be Firm On Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON — Are Nikita Khrushchev's feelings and his possible annoyance over criticism from this country more important than an insistence on the basic principles of America's foreign policy? This question is asked because Adlai Stevenson, U. S. ambassador to the United Nations, has just made a curious comment bearing on that point. He told a luncheon meeting of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations that he "would not be surprised" if the Soviet premier took his troops out of Cuba "unless we make it too embarrassing for him to back down again."

WHAT IS so "embarrassing" about asking a ruler to fulfill his promises to maintain peace and to remove a military force that constitutes a threat to peace? Isn't it more "embarrassing" for President Kennedy to be confronted with criticism by members of both parties in Congress because the Soviet premier has dodged the issue and still seems disinclined to take all his troops out of Cuba?

A kind of pussyfoot atmosphere emerges in Washington from time to time. There is manifest worry about the sensitivity of an adversary instead of about the dangers of his policies. Every now and then high-level announcements are delayed or certain declarations by the Department of State are withheld for fear of offending the Soviet side.

THIS IS a strange course to pursue, and in the long run the firmness of the American position itself can be misconstrued. Sometimes this course has been erroneously called a "soft" policy or an "appeasement." In the present instance, it is simply a case of bad judgment in international dealings and is largely due to the inexperience of the administration.

SOME OF the experts on Soviet psychology, inside and outside the administration, are reported to have argued that President Kennedy ought not to make Mr. Khrushchev mad or to embarrass him in his domestic situation or in his relations with China. This problem was raised in a question that was asked President Kennedy on December 17 in a television interview with a panel of reporters. Their inquiry was whether Mr. Kennedy agreed with the Russian experts who felt that he should "protect Mr. Khrushchev" because the present Soviet premier might prove to be better than any successor. The President answered:

"NO, I DON'T think it is our duty to protect Mr. Khrushchev. This argument that his successor would be worse—I don't know what his successor will be like. What I think is our duty is to try to protect our vital interests, protect the security of the free world, and have Mr. Khrushchev understand our intentions clearly enough so that he can proceed about his business in a way which does not threaten our security, and does not bring a war."

This is a well-phrased statement of American policy, but it can be misunderstood when accompanied by a let-down in the demands that the United States has made upon the Soviets in reference to the Cuban problem.

ORIGINALLY, for example, President Kennedy called for on-site inspection to verify whether the Soviet armament had been removed from Cuba. But not long afterward—in fact, in the same December 17 interview—Mr. Kennedy showed that he had yielded on the matter of on-site inspection. He explained it in a way that indicated a sensitiveness to what might be called the Russian premier's "embarrassing" position in the negotiation. The President was asked if there would have been any "breakthrough" in the effort to bring peace in the world if international inspection of Cuba had been obtained. He replied:

"NO, I DON'T think that would have materially affected it, because I don't think we would have gotten the kind of inspection which really is necessary, because a totalitarian system cannot accept the kind of inspection which really is desirable. What you are saying, really, is that Cuba be opened, the Soviet Union be opened. They are not going to open it, because a totalitarian system must exist only in secrecy."

This implies a kind of acquiescence in the Khrushchev position, and actually may have weakened the United States negotiators on world disarmament in the conferences at Geneva in recent weeks. Was the attainment of on-site inspection blocked because of an acceptance in advance of the assumption that the Kremlin could really not agree to the proposal anyway?

THE TRUTH IS that all the concern expressed here about offending the Russians through public statements demanding that the Soviets cease their military threats in Cuba and elsewhere is needless. These don't constitute any "embarrassment" to the Kremlin, because it always operates in secrecy. The Russian press is permitted to print little, if anything, that President Kennedy or the head of any other outside government might say in criticism of Soviety policy. For all practical purposes, there is no immediate way of offending or "embarrassing" Mr. Khrushchev in a negotiation. "Embarrassment" for the Soviet ruler will come only when internal economic conditions have gotten so bad that the Soviet people will overthrow him, as they did the Czar.

MEANWHILE, the United States can only follow the principles that have been proclaimed again and again in the past and have been reiterated by Mr. Kennedy—namely, that the continued possession by the Soviet government of a military base in Cuba can only prove an "embarrassing" obstacle to world peace.

Week In Business

Contradictions Show On Business Barometers

By ROGER LANE
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Contradictory readings on the direction of the economy and business confounded pulsetakers during the week.

And if this added up to a muddy picture, there were few signs of haste among the economic doctors in Washington to clarify it by prescribing medicines urged by President Kennedy, notably income tax revision.

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., Senate majority leader, chided his colleagues for wasting time on secondary matters, and urged them to buckle down to legislating. Mansfield said six weeks had been lost.

STEEL BRIGHTENS

Perhaps the brightest development occurred in steel, but even a smart rise in production for the second straight week in this basic industry had its shadowy side.

The pickup in mill activity, amounting to nearly 10 per cent in the last two weeks, was spurred by stockpiling of big users as a hedge against possible labor-management conflict this summer.

Inventory building now thus may produce a corresponding slackening in demand later on when the inventories are consumed.

Typical of the cross-currents was a General Motors decision to pile up a one-million-ton reserve of steel by July 30, coupled with announcement of an economy-spurring program to lay out $1.3 billion for plants, equipment and special tools.

A round of price-cutting on stainless steel products touched off by U.S. Steel was another disquieting factor.

Another note of optimism injected by disclosure of record 1962 earnings by American Telephone & Telegraph Co. was offset somewhat by declines reported by U.S. Rubber Co. and other companies.

The stock market wobbled uncertainly, but gave ground most of the time.

During the week, sales on the exchange fell to a total of 16,945,955 from 22,608,490 a week earlier. Bond sales on the stock exchange for the latest week also dropped, totaling $21,745,000 — par value—against $33,591,200 the week before.

Personal income rose a bit to a rate of $452.4 billion a year in January, but only with the help of a $2-billion disbursement in GI life insurance dividends, a one-shot influence.

On the disappointing side was word that housing starts in January dropped 15 per cent from December to an annual rate of 1,242,000. Previously, retail sales and factory payrolls were reported down.

In other bad news, the government officially estimated last year's unfavorable balance of international payments at $2.2 billion, a good deal higher level than had been hoped for in early 1962.

And automobile production, a particularly buoying influence in the economy for more than a year, was slated during the week for the lowest level since last September during the 1963 model changeover.

Well-Done Husbands

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A 1900 weekly Arizona Graphic said on the subject "How to Cook Husbands":

"A good many husbands are entirely spoiled by mismanagement in cooking, and so are not tender and good.

"Some women keep them too constantly in hot water, others freeze them, others roast them, others put them in a stew, and still others keep them constantly in a pickle."

U.S.-Yugoslavia Relations Have Deteriorated Badly

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) —Relations between Yugoslavia and the United States have dropped to the lowest point since President Tito broke with the Soviet Union 15 years ago.

The Moscow-Belgrade split now seems to be healed. While Tito still demands freedom of action, Yugoslavia has moved back to the edge of the Soviet Communist camp, restoring intimate connections.

U.S.-Yugoslav frictions have been mounting for nearly two years, cooling a relationship that at one time brought the two countries close to alliance and also brought Yugoslavia $1.8 billion in aid.

Diplomats trace the deterioration to September 1961 when Tito was host to leaders of 25 so-called nonaligned nations—countries not bound to either East or West by formal military pacts.

During the conference the Soviet Union launched a series of nuclear tests that ended a tacit U.S.-Soviet agreement against testing.

The outcry in the West was bitter. The reaction of many leaders at the meeting here, including Tito, appeared in American eyes to be less than neutral. Some supported the Soviet action. Some remained silent. Tito said he understood the need for it. A few were critical.

Since then differences have been piling up.

Yugoslavs complain about attacks in the U.S. Congress, about public boycotts against Yugoslav exports, and about the anti-Yugoslav activities of refugees. The newest complaint stem from a threatened refusal of the International Longshoremen's Union to handle Yugoslav ships because of this country's trade with Cuba.

Yugoslav officials are more concerned with curtailment of aid, except for agricultural products, and about cancellation of Yugoslavia's status as a favored trading station. This might raise tariffs against some Yugoslav goods. Exports to the United States now total nearly $50 million annually.

U.S. diplomats here list American complaints about Yugoslav conduct. They are particularly annoyed at continued Yugoslav shipping to Cuba and what they consider to be Yugoslavia's effort to line up nonaligned countries in support of Soviet policies.

Belgrade officials express regret for the deteriorating situation but exhibit no plan or intention to do anything about it.

"We are not changing our policies of friendship and cooperation with nonaligned countries," Tito says frequently. But he avoids identifying his own country as one of the nonaligned.

Bacon Grease Approved For Frying

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Sir: What harm can come from using bacon grease for cooking, such as in frying eggs or potatoes?

My husband doesn't like the taste or odor of oil and I don't like vegetable shortening. I do very little frying but when I do, I use bacon grease which I keep refrigerated.

My sister says bacon drippings are dangerous to health.—MRS. J. B.

Personally I don't like bacon grease and we don't use it at our house but I can't say that it is dangerous to health. I'll give you both sides of the case, so you can do as you like.

Your sister might have two points in mind. First, the reheating of fat can cause rancidity and unpleasant flavor—but this applies more to oils, since I presume you would use the bacon drippings only once anyway.

Second, there's the matter of saturated fats as opposed to polyunsaturated, and the effect, still open to plenty of questions, on hardening of the arteries. The saturated (mainly animal) fats seem to have more influence in raising blood cholesterol levels.

Aside from these points, I don't know why you shouldn't use bacon drippings. The cholesterol problem could as well be applied, for example, to butter, and I gather that frying food in butter or lard remains a gastronomic favorite whatever the cholesterol aspect may be.

If your husband is healthy, has no heart trouble, no high blood pressure, and isn't obese, I'll just have to leave it to you and your family tastes as to what you use for frying.

Frankly, in our family we not only avoid the cholesterol issue entirely but also suit our own taste buds to perfection by using these new greaseless frying pans, the metal being permanently coated with material that eliminates the need of any kind of oil or fat for frying.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: When I am away from home I use an electric hot plate but would prefer a small electric sterilizer for my insulin needle and syringe. Where can I buy it?—MRS. F. E.

From medical supply houses. Another suggestion for travel is the use of disposable syringes and needles which are inexpensive and also available at supply houses.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I have bad breath. I brush my teeth every morning and have tried everything. Something is wrong with my mouth. Can you tell me what to do or where to go?—J.C.

Don't be too certain that there is something wrong with your mouth. Maybe there is; maybe there isn't.

I suggest getting at the trouble by a process of elimination:

1—Some foods (notably onions and garlic) can cause bad breath. Do you eat them regularly?

2—Steady smoking can do so, too.

3—Bad teeth, or irregular teeth which permit particles of food to be trapped after which they decay, are a common cause.

4 — Mouth or gum infections (trench mouth, for instance) can smell so strong that no mouth wash can overcome its effects. Besides, such infections should be cleared as soon as possible so they won't become chronic. (A visit to your dentist should show whether either 3 or 4 is involved).

5—Nose and sinus infections can cause bad breath.

6—And so can infections of the throat or lung.

For 5 and 6, a visit to a specialist would cover both areas.

If the breath is bad, there's a reason. Find the reason and you can almost always cure it.

Around The Rim

Customers Can Be Courteous Too

Here we are in a "Courtesy" month, and no fault-finding about this, except one is moved to wonder why pick on just the poor clerks and service people? Why do they have to be so pleasant when so many of the rest of us are roaming around town like sore-headed bears?

GRANTED, it's good business to have smiling people and maybe even some to kowtow a little, just to keep the customers coming back. And it's all right with me if everybody writes a letter nominating somebody else for the "most courteous" person. A little sugar is sweet, even if it adds calories.

Actually, I can't think of ever having been treated discourteously in any place of business in Big Spring, at any time, under any conditions. Maybe I ain't demanding enough.

OH, WILLARD SULLIVAN has abused me a time or two, but that's because he likes me; and Georgia Johnson sasses me only when she knows I want to be sassed. This may even be part of courtesy, for all I know.

Fact remains that the youngster who fills up your gas tank or the lady who brings out dresses to be tried on or the teller in your bank cage ought not to be under any more obligation to paste on a smile and utter a cheery word than any of the rest of us.

THIS COLUMN being as bold and daring as it is, I herewith propose a "Customers' Courtesy Month" and let's everybody get out and try to overwhelm the clerks with kindness. Might be surprised what would happen.

Customers can be pretty stinky, you know. There are some types:

The one who comes in and says, "You just can't find a thing in the stores here." And all the while this one was just getting in out of the wind.

THE ONE who complains that nobody pays any attention, when three clerks already have bade a greeting, only to find that the customer's nose was pointed at the ceiling all the time.

The one who fends off a proffer of help by wanting to "look for myself," then in a little while starts clamoring for "somebody to come wait on me." And the one whose "looking" extends from 1 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

THE ONE who is prompt to assert, "I saw the identical item advertised in the Dallas News for 29 cents less. What makes everything so high in this place?" (Gee, do you suppose the Dallas News made an error?)

The one who says, "This is exactly what I want, only in a size 14, and in ecru color, and with the buttons off to the side instead of down the front. Do you have that?" Yes, indeedy, but it'll take a little time.

THE ONE who takes the stuff home and waits about seven days to bring it back. (One clerk told me just this week that Christmas items are still returning.)

But mostly the one who forgets that the person ready to be of service may have been through a pretty rough morning too. Like, one of the kids turned up with the ear ache and wailing like mad; an element burned out on the stove; there was no coffee in the house; the dog had gotten out and disappeared, and the car wouldn't start. This, in addition to aching feet and likely a touch of bursitis on a cold morning.

THIS CAN HAPPEN to clerks, too, you know, and a Pollyanna attitude don't come easy on days like this.

Customers ought to realize this, and quit asking for the world wrapped in mink and tied up with gold ribbon. Let's just all settle for being friends.

New Look At European Market Issue

WASHINGTON — One factor being weighed in the balance in the current policy review is the timing of the attempt to bring about the entry of Britain into the Common Market. This is pointed up by a new proposal, still secret as to details, currently being circulated among the six Common Market powers.

IT ORIGINATES with the Foreign Ministers of Belgium and the Netherlands, Paul-Henri Spaak and Joseph Luns. They have been the most determined and outspoken of the ministers on the Common Market council in their support of Britain's entry. It is significant that they should now put forward a timetable conceivably meeting the objections of President de Gaulle.

The Spaak-Luns proposal calls for British association with the market for a certain number of years. During that period the principal differences over agriculture with the Commonwealth countries and their other products would be worked out. At the end would come full membership.

WHETHER THIS will be acceptable to the other four market members, and especially France, is uncertain. Whether Prime Minister Macmillan could assuage wounded British pride and accept such a compromise is even more doubtful.

But there can be little doubt that the timetable pressed by Washington and London was too hasty. As a wise Western diplomat, somewhat detached from these events, put it recently:

"THE WEST with your cooperation has accomplished so much in less than 18 years. It was unreasonable to think that after all that has gone before you could bring about the next stage of unification in a year and a half or two years. Ten years might have been a better estimate."

In many respects Europeans, along with de Gaulle, have resented what seems to be American dictation, or at any rate behind-the-scenes direction, of the terms for enlarging the European community. Thus Washington was reported to be saying that the neutrals—Switzerland, Austria and Sweden—could not be admitted, since this would spoil the unified front of opposition to the Communist bloc.

BUT DE GAULLE is moving on his own course. On the very day he gave his press conference laying down his dictate against British entry he received Prime Minister Tage Erlander of Sweden. In June the King of Sweden is to pay a state visit to Paris.

As an independent power with a far reach in Europe de Gaulle has sought to prove that he could do his own dealing. He received Denmark's Prime Minister, Jens Otto Krag, who emerged smiling from the Elysee Palace to say that the President of France has assured him that Denmark could become a member of the Common Market.

VISITING LONDON a few days later, at the end of January, Krag modified his earlier statement by saying that Denmark had no intention of seeking entry if Britain was not also admitted. Denmark is a member of the European Free Trade Association—the Outer Seven as against the Inner Six—that de Gaulle has tended to regard as a device, a kind of Trojan horse, to undercut the Common Market.

Can Kennedy Be Beaten?

WASHINGTON—In the era bounded by the glorious reigns of heavyweight champions Jack Dempsey and Joe Louis, roughly the period of voice-reporting as opposed to television presentation, we became accustomed to the telephonic or radio staccato of: "He's down . . . he's up . . . he's down . . . one . . . two . . . three . . ." The stories were told in truthful simplicities of vertical and horizontal postures of felled giants, of courageous recoveries, of bizarre plunges from the ring, of long counts, predestined triumphs and unpredictable defeats of seemingly unbeatable gladiators.

YET THERE IS a resistance to this sort of reporting—as honest as eyesight—when it is directed at the melodramatic bouts of John F. Kennedy. There are industrious readers of this column and, no doubt, of other columns, who clip passages which describe the President as prostrate in April of 1961 and others which depict him as landing a haymaker on Khrushchev's chin in October '62.

HOW CAN BOTH situations be true? Can the same man thrill the nation with a matchless Inaugural Address in '61, and leave the nation crying "Fake!" with his Economic Message in '63? Is he witty when he jibes at Rockefeller and Goldwater, but seemingly at his wits' end when he tries to justify Medicare or a Department of Urban Affairs? Is he loyal when he defends Lyndon Johnson, and disloyal when he allows the feeding of slow poison to Adlai Stevenson? Is it statecraft to gain the Congo in January and to alienate Canada in February? Can he justifiably be called decisive for joining the battle in faraway Vietnam, and be called indecisive for failing to join it in nearby Cuba?

THE BEST of the old sportscasters were able to call evidences of things that might have some bearing on the final outcome of the fight—a battered eye that was closing, a pair of knees that wobbled, a chin that was approaching its saturation point for right-hand punches. These evidences, correctly noted told the progress of the bout, and forecast its climax and denouement. The same, I think, can and should be done—or attempted—in the coverage of this Kennedy term which now begins to approach the summing-up that must take place next year.

CAN JFK BE beaten in 1964? The reporter who has called the ups-and-downs will have to concede that Kennedy can be floored, and that a good deal must depend upon an opponent's ability to catch the champion when and where he is weakest. Had the President been a candidate last autumn, and had the "discovery" of long-range missiles in Cuba come a little later or been exploited a little harder, Kennedy might well have gone down for the full count. Should the President be a little less lucky, or lose just a little of his remarkable sense of timing and powers of recuperation, he can be had.

BUT BY WHOM? The Republicans will not beat a seasoned President, whatever his temporary distress in foreign affairs, by offering a candidate of no experience whatever in warfare. Governor Rockefeller can challenge the President on "fiscal responsibility," but it is hard to believe that international crises will abate long enough to afford a calm discussion on economics. Sen. Goldwater, an intrepid military aviator and a "Why Not Victory?" man in foreign affairs, can punch with both fists at economics and international targets. But Goldwater is not a "hungry fighter" for White House honors. His decision to "wait till next year" is not the kind that will dethrone a dynasty as determined to stay put as the Kennedys are.

THERE IS, of course, the possibility that a favored candidate, as JFK will certainly be, can bring on his own defeat. Charles Evans Hughes had Wilson on the ropes. Dewey dawdled with me-tooism and lost to President Truman. Nixon played tangle-foot with too much straddling.

And John F. Kennedy, neither winning nor losing in Cuba, Vietnam and Berlin, neither convincing nor conquering on Capitol Hill, feeling the chill of cooling alliances in Britain, France and Canada, is not on the glory road by a long way. But an old political adage clearly applies for the Republicans in this pre-election year: You Can't Beat Somebody With Nobody.

This week's playbill has some top-notch movies, but they are mostly in the returning category.

Here's a run-down on the new films:

The Original 'Sin Cities'

A screen drama of the world's most notorious kingdom of sin and sacrilege, "Sodom and Gomorrah" opens today at the Ritz Theatre. This lavish multi-million dollar picture is a Titanus production which 20th Century-Fox is releasing.

In the film, Stewart Granger stars as Lot, who leads the Hebrews into the Valley of the Jordan and into Sodom; Pier Angeli plays Ildith, Lot's wife who turns into a pillar of salt; Stanley Baker portrays Astaroth, Prince of Sodom; Rossana Podesta is Shuah, Lot's daughter; and Anouk Aimee is Bera, the pleasure-mad Queen of Sodom.

A feeling of reality was sought by more than 100 days on location in Morocco out of the 11 months of production. The city of Sodom, as seen in the picture, is actually a fortified desert village carved out of rock some 4000 years ago on the southern slopes of the Atlas Mountains in southern Morocco. This was Ait-Benhaddou, a living setting right out of the Old Testament, untouched in the film, claims studio publicity, except for a towered wall built at the foot of the town to serve as the entrance to Sodom.

Robert Aldrich directed this Goffredo Lombardo-Joseph E. Levine presentation, with Maurizio Lodi-Fe serving as executive producer. Aldrich used some 3,000 native extras for the mass scenes of the film. These ranged from Arab and Hebrew tribes living in the area, to several thousand Moroccan cavalrymen who participated in the battle sequences.

A half-dozen languages were spoken on the location sets, ranging from New Yorkese to Oxford English, from Italian to French to Hebrew and Arab. The production units had to work in special shifts because of the diverse religions of the personnel. On Fridays the Arabs celebrated their Sabbath, on Saturdays the Hebrews rested and on Sundays the Christians observed their holy day.

After the filming in Morocco the "Sodom and Gomorrah" troupe returned to Rome for completion of the filming at the Titanus Studios in Italy.

Black Bird In A Half-Baked Pie

Thursday at the Ritz, we have another in a long series of horror movies allegedly based on works of Edgar Allen Poe. This one is "The Raven," in which the producers are said to have taken the essence of Poe's most famous work and translated it to the screen.

Of course, this was an impossibility. Poetry does not easily translate into any other medium, particularly such an eerie, totally subjective work as "The Raven." All the film makers got for their trouble was just another horror movie. As strictly a motion picture, however, "The Raven" is a bit better than the average in its class.

One of the main attractions of the movie is in its cast, an assemblage of the screen's most noted horror actors—Vincent Price, Peter Lorre and Boris Karloff.

"The Raven" brought Poe his first great recognition as a creative writer.

"Ironically, as with "The Raven," most of Poe's greatest efforts were written in the midst or aftermath of great personal sorrow or despair. "The Raven," published in 1845, was written after his young wife, Virginia, started suffering from the exhausting throat hemorrhages which were to result in her death in 1847 and to blight what began as a happy marriage.

After her death, Poe went through a succession of unhappy love affairs and even attempted suicide. Two years later, he fell ill while en route by train to Richmond, Va., from New York and got off at Baltimore where he was found by police wandering the streets in a delirious state. Poe was taken to Baltimore City Hospital where he died on October 7, 1849, in his 41st year.

And now a look at some of the returning films:

Barrel Of Fun In The Old West

"The Sheepman" is one of the funniest Western movies ever made. Starring Glenn Ford and Shirley MacLaine, this is the outrageous yarn of a cowpoke who "inherits" a passel of sheep in the midst of cattle country. Ford's problem: how to keep his sheep—and himself—from being wantonly slaughtered by the narrow-minded and somewhat violent cattlemen. His solution: out-tough the cowboys, and then out-slick them. The first step: look up the toughest bully boy in town and lick him, even though the victim isn't really in the mood for a fight.

Miss MacLaine, who has gone on to greater stardom since "The Sheepman" was made, provides romantical interest, and more. One of the screen's leading comics, she contributes enough sassy sex appeal to satisfy anyone's libido, and without resorting to the bad taste employed by some screen sirens.

The story is not really a spoof of Westerns, in spite of a strong tendency on the part of audiences to judge it so. Rather, it is satirical of the Old West itself.

There's hardly a calm moment in it.

For Suspense, Few Are Better

"Ring of Fire" comes back for about the third time, but it's still recommended for those who missed it before.

It's a good show, but not of the type which one generally sees more than once.

It was produced by Andrew and Virginia Stone, whose specialty is latching onto old worn-out properties which are about to be razed, or scrapped, and filming a suspense-type story around it.

For "Ring of Fire," the Stones took advantage of a wheezy old locomotive headed for the foundry, an ancient wooden trestle which was ready to fall down anyway, and large patches of Northwest forest land in which the brush was to be burned off to make way for more trees.

David Janssen is cast as a policeman who finds himself kidnapped by two young thugs and their female companion, played by Joyce Taylor. The quartet gets lost in the woods, one of the errant youths accidentally starts a forest fire, and Janssen saves the day and wins the girl with a suspenseful race in the old locomotive across the burning trestle.

For suspense, few movies are better. Which is why it's entertaining the first time and flat the second.

* * *

What About Baby Jane?

There is a suspense film which is better, however. This is "What Ever Happened to Baby Jane?"

This movie has several points to recommend it. First, the acting is superb, divided about equally between Joan Crawford and Bette Davis, two of the screen's finest actresses. Secondly, the suspense is terrible. Thirdly, the horror of the theme puts works like "The Raven" into their proper low-brow classification.

Viewers are advised to miss this one if they are too sensitive to out-of-the-ordinary themes. The plot is of two sisters, both half-crazed, one a former Hollywood illuminary, the other presently successful, each insanely jealous and fearful of the other.

We will not reveal what transpires, since that would be telling. Suffice it that, if you can take it, you might like to find out what did happen to Baby Jane.

Jules Verne Flies Again

"Five Weeks in a Balloon," the first book published by famed 19th Century novelist Jules Verne, is exactly 100 years old this year. As part of an International Centennial Celebration (apparently cooked up by Hollywood, but no matter), motion picture producer Irwin Allen has filmed "Five Weeks in a Balloon" for 20th Century-Fox, and the CinemaScope-DeLuxe Color production will appear Thursday at the Jet Theatre.

"Five Weeks in a Balloon" is adventure-comedy, with traces of science fiction elements that so pre-occupied Verne later in his career. It details the hilarious adventures of seven would-be explorers (five men, two women) who stage a madcap, 4,000-mile balloon race across Africa. Suspense is built and maintained as the adventurers progress from Zanzibar to Hezak to Timbuktu in an effort to reach the Gold Coast and plant the British flag before the whole region falls into the hands of slave traders.

Starred in "Five Weeks" are Red Buttons, as a scatter-brained playboy; Sir Cedric Hardwicke, as a (slightly) mad inventor; Fabian, as the inventor's balladeering assistant; Barbara Eden, as a beautiful missionary schoolteacher; Peter Lorre, an as insidious slave trader; Richard Haydn, as a British high-brow; Barbara Luna, as a mischievous native girl; and a remarkable chimpanzee named Chester (as an equally remarkable chimp named "Duchess").

And, Something For The Kiddies

A new "Tarzan" and a new "Jane" are introduced in "Tarzan, the Ape Man," an adventure of the famed King of the Jungle, filmed in wide-screen and color and the first "Tarzan" picture to be made by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in 17 years.

The new hero of intrepid feats in swinging through the tree tops, bubbling under water, and adventures with hostile natives, as well as such denizens of the African veldt as hippopotami, lions and elephants, is Denny Miller. The girl who becomes his jungle mate is Joanna Barnes.

The new "Tarzan" drama is replete with hair-raising happenings from its opening scene in which Jane, daughter of an Englishman, Colonel Parker, who operates a trading post in an African village, comes from London to rejoin her father. She and Holt, a white hunter, have aroused the hostility of the natives by rescuing an enemy Watusi. The natives set fire to the village and Jane, her father and the white hunter are forced to flee. They are led on a safari through the African wilderness by the grateful Watusi, who promises to take them to the ivory wealth of the famed Elephants' Burial Ground.

The action continues with thrills and suspense aimed at the younger set as the safari is charged by maddened elephants; Holt is caught in an animal snare; Jane is saved from death by Tarzan, who takes her to his treetop home. When she rejoins Holt and Parker, they are attacked by Kaluana warriors and once again are saved by Tarzan, who rouses the wild animals of the jungle to a thunderous stampede.

Mexicans Bristle At School Taxes

MEXICO CITY (UP) — Management and labor are clashing over a new one per cent education tax the government has ordered to help finance its ambitious educational program.

Mexico's school and teaching expenses take far more of the 1963 budget than national defense. A new one per cent tax was ordered recently to help pay for it.

The Mexicr City Chamber of Commerce filed an injunction against it, saying it was unconstitutional and inequitable. It joined about 10 others who have protested.

The Confederation of Mexican Workers defended the tax and attacked the chamber for its opposition.

Man Killed In Tavern Brawl

DALLAS (UP)—A man was shot to death and his son was critically wounded in a tavern near downtown Dallas early Saturday.

Killed was Refugio Alvarado Sr., 51. His son, Refugio Alvarado Jr., 27, was shot following an argument involving at least three members of the Alvarado family, six unidentified men and the manager of the lounge, police said.

Two Named To Railroad Posts

Hammer is a graduate of the University of Missouri School of Journalism, served as wire editor of the Port Arthur (Texas) Daily News, in the Air Force and later as public relations director for Johns Hopkins Hospital, the Air Force Association, and the Reading Railroad for nine years. He also was in charge of press and radio services for the American Railroad Association.

Webb Airmen Briefed On Air Operations

Seven Webb AFB airmen learned more about their jobs last week when they attended an orientation briefing by the Chief of Flight Service Stations — Midland Air Terminal, William P. Carlton.

Carlton and his associates, Ray E. Leverich and H. K. Hankins, explained to the airmen their part in air operations in calling the Midland Flight Service Station to give notification of every aircraft that leaves Webb on a cross country flight. Midland, in turn, calls Webb on every aircraft that is in-bound to the base.

Carlton stated that coordination in flight planning between Webb and Midland does much to eliminate the possibility of mid-air collisions or lost aircraft.

The seven airmen, representing the 331 FIS and the 3560th Pilot Training Group, attended the orientation briefing as part of an on-the job-training program for Webb personnel who deal with air operations.

Suspended Licenses Not A Problem For City Here

The City of Big Spring has no record of a city vehicle driver's license being suspended because of failure to comply with the Texas safety responsibility law. City Attorney John Burgess said the city's policy is to permit no driver to operate a vehicle, while his license is suspended because of noncompliance.

"This means that the accident must have occurred while he was driving his own vehicle without having liability insurance," he said. "Since the city carries fleet liability, a driver's license is not in jeopardy if the accident occurs while he is driving a city truck, car, or pickup."

The Waco Court of Civil Appeals ruled this month that municipal employes, whose licenses have been suspended because of failure to comply with the Texas responsibility law, may not drive publicly-owned vehicles. The ruling said that the individual may not drive the publicly-owned vehicles even though the municipality, or other political subdivision, may carry liability on the vehicles.

"Under this court decision," Col. Homer Garrison Jr., director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, said, "the department will be required to act against all drivers who have accidents, if they cannot comply with the provisions of the safety responsibility law, regardless of the ownership of the vehicle.

The director explained that the law requires everyone involved in an accident to show his ability to pay for damages caused to others. This can be done, he said, by depositing with the department, cash in the amount of the damages; by holding a liability insurance policy, or by obtaining written releases from all persons damaged in the accident. Penalty for failure to comply with the safety responsibility law in such cases is suspension of the driver's license.

"The City of Big Spring carries up to $200,000 liability insurance on all city vehicles except heavy fire trucks, tractors, and graders," Roy Anderson, assistant city manager, said this week. "This fleet insurance protects the city, but we do not permit unlicensed drivers, or those whose licenses are suspended, to operate vehicles." Fire trucks are not covered under the policy.

Says Growth Faster Than Bank Capacity
