Reagan's Third Victory On Capitol Hill...

Three-Year Tax Cut Approved By U.S. House

WASHINGTON (AP) — A historic three-year tax cut hailed by President Reagan as the path to prosperity now carries the resounding endorsement of Congress, putting the nation on the verge of the most sweeping economic policy change in half a century.

Reagan whipped the Democrats in their own House on Wednesday, winning on a 238-195 vote that was even wider than Reagan's earlier budget-cutting victories. Forty-eight Democrats defected to the president and only one Republican strayed the other way.

Only a formal vote today by the Republican-run Senate, which endorsed a similar bill 89-11 earlier Wednesday, was necessary to send the bill to a Senate-House conference committee to work out the relatively few differences in the two versions — perhaps as early as this weekend.

Rep. Barber Conable of New York, senior tax-writer in the House, said he expects the final bill to go to Reagan for his signature sometime next week.

Sending a bill to conference is usually a mere formality, but Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker implied today that may not be the case with this tax legislation.

"We'll just have to wait and see," he told reporters when asked if the bill would go to conference today.

He and Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., senior Democrat on the Finance Committee, agreed that the measure should be sent to conference immediately. But there were indications some senators might want to try to avoid a conference with the House by substituting some House provisions for those in the Senate bill.

The major obstacle looming for the conference is $47 billion worth of special tax breaks for the oil industry over the next 10 years. That was the biggest deal Reagan made to convince Democrats to bolt their leaders.

Reagan's bill would reduce total business and personal taxes more than $753 billion over the next five years — the largest tax cut in American history.

It features a permanent 25 percent cut in tax rates over three years, with rich and poor alike getting the same percentage reduction.

The first cuts would take effect Oct. 1, averaging about $2 a week for a typical four-member family in the last three months of this year. Larger reductions would follow in 1982 and 1983. Starting in 1985, taxes would be adjusted automatically each year to offset partially the higher taxes caused by inflation.

Reagan, who had spent much of the last few days personally persuading House members to accept his plan, was jubilant.

"We have made a new beginning," he told reporters. "We're back on the right road and we're making progress. And if we keep working together, we can reach that new era of prosperity we all want."

Senate Finance Committee Chairman Bob Dole, R-Kan., said House and Senate conferees should be able to resolve their differences quickly. They probably will start work Saturday.

The oil provisions will be the biggest issue, and there's a chance — though unlikely — that they could delay the entire bill.

The Senate bill includes $20 billion in oil-tax cuts, and liberals have vowed to filibuster any compromise that increases that figure. Such actions, however, often fizzle quickly when Congress is ready to take a big recess, as it is preparing to do now.

The House bill has $47 billion in tax breaks for the oil industry, and reducing those could alienate some of Reagan's conservative supporters.

The Reagan bill was favored by Congress over a rival Democratic plan that would have produced an average 15 percent cut in tax rates over 21 months, with an additional 10 percent reduction in a third year contingent on the economy performing as well as the Reagan administration forecasts. The Democratic cuts would have favored families with incomes less than $50,000 a year.

A typical four-member, two-earner family with $20,000 income would realize a $333 tax cut in 1984 when Reagan's bill is fully effective. The Democrats would have provided a $431 cut.

For a $40,000 family, Reagan's bill gives $1,697, compared with $1,806 under the defeated version.

The 5 percent of taxpayers earning more than $50,000 a year would get 32 percent of the individual tax relief in Reagan's bill. The 50 percent with incomes under $20,000 would get 15.8 percent.

In addition to cutting tax rates, both the House and Senate bills would:

—Reduce the "marriage penalty," which forces 17 million working married couples to pay more tax than if they were single.

—Cut to 50 percent the current top 70 percent tax rate on investment income.

—Allow a person up to $1,000 in tax-free income from a new savings cer-

Democrats In Disarray

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic leaders, in disarray after President Reagan's stunning two-house tax-cut victory, are looking to other issues and the 1982 elections as they plot a comeback strategy.

Outmanuevered and outvoted for the third straight time on Reagan economic plans, the Democrats who run the House are counting on the president's inability to mount the same kind of winning coalitions on social issues.

Reagan conquered the House with a coalition of Republicans, Southern Democrats and even some moderate and liberal Democrats usually loyal to party leaders.

Rejects Alliance

PARIS (AP) — The leader of the Iranian exile community in Paris has rejected any alliance with ex-President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, describing him as "a man who sent dozens and dozens of persons before a firing squad."

Bani-Sadr was granted political asylum in France Wednesday after hiding out for 43 days in Tehran and escaping by military plane. But former Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar, said he would not try to enlist Bani-Sadr in a united front against Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolutionary regime.

"The very question astonishes me," said Bakhtiar, the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's last prime minister. "How am I supposed to resolve my differences with him?"

Search For Guerrillas

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Police and kibbutz members combed the rugged Jerusalem hills today for a squad of Palestinian guerrillas who ambushed an Israeli bus and wounded four people.

One of the casualties was a pregnant woman shot in the stomach.

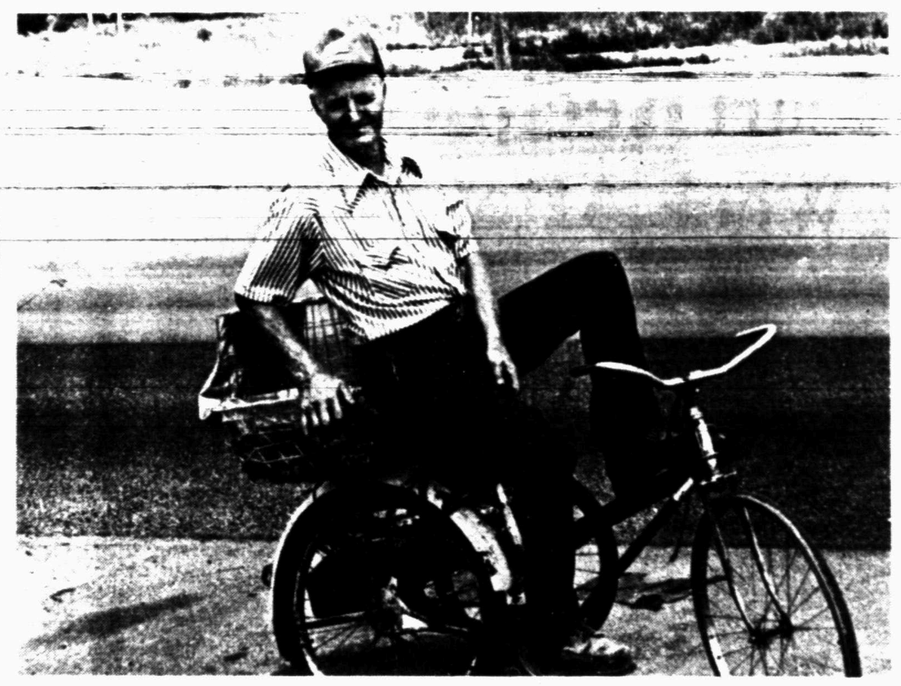

The ambush Wednesday night followed a dogfight between Israeli and Syrian jets over Lebanon. Each side claimed a kill, but only the downing of the Syrian plane could be confirmed.

It was the most serious outbreak of violence since Israel and the Palestinians agreed to a cease-fire last Friday.

1,000 Die In Earthquake

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Tehran Radio reported today that at least 1,000 people died in the major earthquake that leveled parts of seven villages in southeastern Iran.

Iran's official Pars news agency earlier said there were 836 confirmed deaths and 854 people injured, with the death toll expected to rise as rescue workers continued to dig through the rubble in Kerman province,

Final House Vote Due In Redistricting Plan

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A congressional redistricting plan that some legislators think will increase the state's Washington delegation to include eight Republican congressmen gets a final House vote today.

The bill, already approved in a different form by the Senate, won preliminary approval 76-67 Wednesday night after hours of stormy debate.

Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, sponsor of the bill, predicted the the final congressional district lines would be written by a 10-member conference committee.

Up to 36 conservative-minded Democrats teamed with the 38 Republicans in the House to defeat efforts to improve Democrats congressional chances.

"Thirty-six Democrats in this House have consistently voted with the 38 Republicans tonight," protested Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, at the end of a stormy non-stop five hour debate Wednesday.

He accused Republican Gov. Bill Clements and "a bunch of rich business men, all of them Republicans" with staging a last minute lobbying effort.

"This looks like a Clements bill and it smells like a Clements bill because it stinks," said Rep. Smith Gilley, D-Greenville.

Several amendments to improve Democratic chances in Congress failed by votes as close as 73-71..

The final big fight came on a complete substitute bill that Rep. Paul Ragsdale, D-Dallas, said would result in the Texas delegation to Washington including 22 Democrats and five Republicans — instead of the 19 Democrats and eight Republicans he said would result from Von Dohlen's plan.

Ragsdale's amendment failed 72-69.

Rep. Doyle Willis, D-Fort Worth, reminded the House that Democrats control the U.S. House by less than 30 votes.

"If we can save one Democratic congressman, it is possible we will be electing the next speaker of the House," he said..

Democratic Majority Leader Jim Wright, of Fort Worth, is in line for the next speakership — if Democrats retain the majority in 1982.

Changes in district lines in Dallas county made in an attempt to give minorities a good chance for electing a black congressmen have endangered both Democrat Reps. Marting Frost and JimMattox.

The Von Dohlen bill either puts the two in the same district or will cause Mattox to run for re-election is district with 66 percent GOP vote. Von Dohlen said there was a question of Mattox' residency.

An 81-64 approval of an amendment by Rep. Robert Saunders, D-La Grange, apparently will give Rep. Bill Patman a better than even chance shot at re-election.

Saunders said people in the rural counties in the gulf coast district preferred Patman to being placed in a new district.

The amendment also answered a plea by U.S. Rep. Ron Paul, R-Lake Jackson, who asked for a compact district including his home county of Brazoria. The House redistricting committee had recommended that Patman get Brazoria.

Otherwise the House redistricting bill contained many of the features in the Senate-approved measure.

Texas has 24 congressmen now, including five Republicans, but gets three more because of its growth the past decade.

In Poland...

Labor Unrest On Rise Again

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Labor unrest is on the rise again in Poland with workers mounting wildcat strikes to protest continued food shortages, higher prices, and the government's plan to cut meat rations.

Officials of the independent Solidarity union said today that transport workers in Warsaw scheduled a three-hour warning strike for next Wednesday to protest the cut in meat rations.

Other strike threats have already been announced by Solidarity chapters in Piotrkow Trybunalski and Czestochowa, south of here, and in Grudziz, near Bydgoszcz, in northwestern Poland.

A spokesman for Solidarity's Warsaw chapter, the largest branch of the 10-million-member union, said local union leaders were meeting today to discuss a possible warning strike throughout the Warsaw region.

About 2,000 workers at Warsaw's largest textile plant struck for three hours Wednesday and drivers at a Warsaw bus depot also walked off the job briefly, Solidarity members said.

Sporadic demonstrations over food shortages, proposed price hikes of as much as 400 percent, and the proposed cut in meat rations in the Communist nation began Saturday.

In Lodz, Poland's textile center, Solidarity members reported a third straight day of protests Wednesday with 10,000 people marching past the mayor's office behind a caravan of 56 horn-honking trucks.

After threatening a national strike, Solidarity scored a victory earlier this week when the government agreed to cut the meat ration for only one month, August, instead of two.

Couple Faces Drug Charges

Felony charges of possession of marijuana and possession of a dangerous drug were filed Wednesday against James Monty Pope, 22, and Cynthia Kay Pope, 23.

They had been arrested Tuesday night in a raid conducted by Snyder Police and Scurry County Sheriff's Department officers at a house east of town.

Officers reported confiscation of about a pound of marijuana during the raid.

Charges are pending against another woman suspected of having a dangerous drug in her possession. A substance believed to be a dangerous drug has been sent to Austin for lab tests.

The two suspects charged Wednesday have been released on bonds of $1,500 on two charges each.

The SDN Column

It happens every year about this time. We get a letter advising that we can get our same place in the football stadium that we occupied last year, if we order our sreason tickets right away.

This year's letter came at about the same time that we noticed the 1956 notices were sent out to local fans. The letters were almost identical, except for one item. The price for a 1956 season ticket was $6.25 for five home games, while the price for a 1981 season ticket was $12 for four home games. But, considering the times, we can't say it is out of line. In fact, we are ready to see some fooball at nearly any price.

But there are still a lot of things to be thankful for, especially if you live in America.

Just think how wonderful it is that Bani-Sadr went to France to seek political asylum instead of the United States.

★ ★ ★

These little pleasantries that come in over the news wire help us bear up under those annoying little happenings around our own office. Such as the mix-up of pictures in last Sunday's issue of the SDN, which switched the pictures of Ethel Wadleigh and Ada Lomax. This one we couldn't even blame on the computer. Someone just picked up the wrong picture when the Section B plates were being prepared for the press, and by the time it was discovered, the entire section had been run. The ultimate result was that Mrs. Lomax got her picture in twice, since it got in where it was supposed to in addition to the space that had been allotted to Mrs. Wadleigh. Fortunately, we were able to get Mrs. Wadleigh's picture in the other section, although nothing could be done about the mix-up in Section B.

These things cause us to keep our ulcer medicine handy.

CC-BCD Plan First Aid Class

A first aid course to comply with OSHA regulations is being planned here, members of the Board of County Development were told at a meeting Wednesday.

Bill Warner, consulatant to the BCD and manager of the chamber of commerce, said several loal firms have expressed interest in enrolling personnel in such a course. Warner said the chamber and BCD are looking into the possibility of coordinating such program through Western Texas College, or else conducting the course on their own.

Warner also gave the board a report on an industrial tour planned by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. Warner indicated that he probably would be unable to make this tour, due to projects underway here.

It was noted that a hearing on the American Magnesium reorganization case is to be held Aug. 10 before the U. S. Bankruptcy Court in Fort Worth. Warner said there were indications that at least two firms may be interested in acquiring the magensium company's facilities, although no official word had been received.

It was known that representatives of one firm have made at least two trips here to look over the AM property in recent weeks.

"Our big problem so far as industrial expansion is concerned is personnel, along with housing," Warner said. A continued need for additional rental housing is expected.

The BCD members were brought up to date on the organization's financial reports and prospects for the future in the Wednesday session, their first since March.

Guy Sullivan, chairman, presided, and other board members attending were Arel Faver, Clyde Hall, Dale Stuard and Morris Light.

Snow Might Replace Air-Coolers

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — A major university, a large corporation, a top engineer and two of America's leading scientists have combined their considerable resources to dig a hole in the ground and fill it with ice.

"It was just about as much fun and as exciting as anything I have ever done," said Theodore Taylor.

Those are seemingly odd words from a 56-year-old theoretical physicist who first shook up his peers with fission bombs and other atomic innovations at Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory.

But Taylor now calls himself a "nuclear dropout" and believes his simple "ice pond," tested at Princeton University, eventually may help save millions of gallons of oil and revolutionize the way people cool themselves and their products.

Taylor's idea was to fill a nylon-lined pit with ice from a snowmaking machine in winter and cover it with a plastic blanket to shield it from the sun. As warm weather turns the ice slushy, the cold water is pumped through pipes from the pond into a building.

As in conventional air-conditioning systems, air is blown over coils containing the chilled water. Warmed water is returned to the pond, where it melts more ice before being recooled by the remaining ice.

Scientists hope ice ponds will replace the compressors which cool freon gas in conventional air-conditioning, said Robert Socolow, director of Princeton's Center for Energy and Environmental Studies. The compressors run on electricity — generated by oil.

Donald Kirkpatrick, project manager and an engineer dropout from the space program, said an ice pond can cool a building for "2 percent of the cost of running a traditional vapor compression chiller."

Taylor said a snowmaking machine, which costs around $7,000, can produce about 8,000 tons of "ice" in a moderate Princeton winter. It costs about $35 in electricity to make 100 tons of ice, enough to cool an average house throughout a summer, he said.

Last year, Taylor took his ice pond theory to Freeman Dyson, a physicist with the Institute of Advanced Study in Princeton who not only advised him how to make a working model but also took time off to help dig the pit. The test pond kept a university storage building crisp throughout last summer.

Excavation is about to begin on a second ice pond, this one made to order for a new office building for the Prudential Insurance Co., which paid for the test. The three-story, 130,000-square-foot Prudential Pavilions building was designed for energy efficiency and to be compatible with ice pond cooling.

The second pond will be 20 feet deep, 120 feet wide and 160 feet long. Three snowmaking machines will fill the pond this winter with 5,000 tons of ice. The mound will be shrouded by polyurethane foam blankets and should be cooling the building next summer.

Prudential also is installing a traditional air-conditioning system as a backup in case all the ice melts and the water temperature rises too high before summer's end. But Kirkpatrick thinks the backup will mostly sit idle.

"The ice pond is extremely simple, but it works," he said. "Everybody wants to do something exotic these days—get 15 Ph.Ds and send them off on some boondoggle. But we have something very simple that has many real possibilities."

Socolow said ice ponds "work too well to be forgotten." He noted that the colder the climate where the machines are operating, the less expensive it would be to produce the ice.

Kirkpatrick said he and Taylor have been approached about installing an ice pond at an upstate New York dairy, where air-conditioning is used year-round to chill milk, butter and cheese.

But Taylor said the "most exciting" first application could come in the freezing of sea water. He said freezing sea water by passing it through snowmaking machines rids it of impurities. Once the brine is washed off the ice mass, the water is drinkable.

"In places like New York and Boston, you could add substantially to the drinking water supply at very low cost right now," he said.

Heart Recipient Alive 1 Week After Surgery

HOUSTON (AP) — It has been a week since Dutch bus driver Willebrordus Meuffels became the third man in history to be kept alive with an artificial heart, and doctors say the human donor heart he received four days ago still is beating strongly.

He was still listed in critical condition late Wednesday, but Hazel Haby of the Texas Heart Institute said Meuffels has stabilized and received two visits from his wife.

"The heart is doing real, real good and is beating very strongly," Ms. Haby said. "He continues to respond to verbal requests to move an arm or leg and shakes his head in the negative when asked if he is in pain. And his wife visited him again for a brief time."

A team of surgeons headed by Dr. Denton A. Cooley implanted the plastic heart last Thursday after Meuffels' heart failed following triple bypass surgery for replacement of diseased artery segments.

Cooley said he resorted to the procedure because it was the only means of keeping the patient alive until a human heart became available.

The plastic heart kept Meuffels alive 54 hours before the donor heart received from a 29-year-old Tennessee man took over at 12:24 a.m. Sunday.

Mrs. Meuffels, who has remained in seclusion since the Thursday surgery, visited the special intensive care suite the first time Wednesday and Ms. Haby said "his eyes opened wide and he moved his head from side to side."

She said he has not been able to speak since the surgery because of a tube placed in his throat.

Meanwhile, it was announced that Dr. Tetsuzo Akutsu, the designer of the artificial heart received by Meuffels, is resigning from the Heart Institute to return to his native Japan.

Saying the resignation is not related to the Thursday implant, Cooley said Akutsu's departure will delay further development of the artificial heart because it may take six months to a year to find a replacement for him.

Akutsu, 58, said he is resigning to become head of the department of artificial organ transplant at Japan's National Cardiovascular Center in Osaka.

"It will be a real loss to us but he will have a very outstanding position at one of the major universities in Japan with unlimited funding," Cooley said. "It is an outstanding opportunity in his own country."

Ms. Haby said it is just coincidental the announcement of the resignation came with the first use of Akutsu's artificial heart on a human.

Before joining the Heart Institute in 1974 as associate director of research, Akutsu had been director of artificial organs development at the University of Mississippi Medical Center in Jackson since 1966.

If there is anything more frustrating to a woman than being married to a man who mantains his closet for all seasons, I don't know what it is.

For centuries, women have gome through a ritual every spring and fall called "The Changing of the Closets."

It's as traditional as pumpkin pie at Thanksgiving. It has the pomp of the changing of the guards at the tomb of the unknown soldier. It's as predictable as the buzzards' return every sping to Hinkley, Ohio.

In the fall, I ceremoniously remove all the sunback dresses, shorts, see-through blouses and open-toed sandals from my closet and store them in boxes in my husband's closet. I replace them with winter dresses, coats, sweaters, long-sleeved blouses and boots.

In the spring, I remove all the winter dresses, coats, sweaters, long-sleeved blouses and boots from my closet, store them in boxes in my husband's closet and replace them with sunback dresses, shorts, see-through blouses and open-toed sandals.

The rite has not changed in 30 years.

Somehow, I have never sold my husband on the advantages of playing musical closet.

I do not understand his logic at all. He says:

"If you don't wear something you should throw it away."

"The world will not come to an end if you wear a short-sleeved shirt in November."

"You should never own more than one suit at a time unless you sweat a lot or you eat sloppy".

"There is never a time to wear white shoes. It's either too early or too late."

"Closets and hemorrhoids should never be discussed in a public forum."

"You should dress to be comfortable."

Now, how in the world am I supposed to make a fashion plate out of a man like that?

The other night there was a lull in an argument and I said, "And I suppose you're not going to change your closet over again for winter."

"I certainly am," he said. "I'm storing some waders, a fatigue jacket, three pink Mexican shirts, four golf sweaters, a beach robe and five pairs of shoes that I'm supposed to keep on with my big toe. I've stored them in your closet."

Sometimes I don't know when to shup up.

Woman Being Discharged From Navy

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Even though she was acquitted by a military panel of having a lesbian affair, Petty Officer Joan Dowling is being discharged from the the Navy "for the convenience of the government," a spokesman said.

The Navy said Wednesday that Miss Dowling, of New York City, will receive an honorable discharge within a week after eight years of service.

A lawyer for the 27-year-old sailor said Secretary of the Navy John Lehman had overturned the ruling of an administrative board, leaving her with no military recourse. The lawyer said "she has decided to toss it in" rather than fight the discharge in federal court.

Average life expectancy has gone from 47.3 years of age in 1900 to 73.8 years in 1979, according to U.S. health statistics.

Charles & Diana Spend First Day In Seclusion

ROMSEY, England (AP) — Prince Charles and his bride Diana were spending their first day of married life today in honeymoon seclusion with their host and hostess and 12 servants.

As Britain basked in a glow of joy, pride and patriotism induced by Wednesday's glittering royal wedding, and revellers celebrated into the early hours, the couple spent their wedding night at Broadlands, the country estate of Charles' second cousin Lord Romsey 90 miles southwest of London.

Surrounded by 5,000 acres of fields and woodland near this small country town of 15,000 people in Hampshire county, the 18th century mansion was the home of the late Earl Mountbatten, Charles' great-uncle and Romsey's grandfather, who was assassinated by an Irish Republican Army bomb in August 1979.

The prince's parents, Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip, honeymooned there after their wedding in November 1947.

The nearest public road is more than a mile from the 12-room Georgian mansion. The main guest bedroom, the Portico Room, with floral print chintz curtains and four-poster bed, looks out over landscaped gardens and the River Test.

But the away-from-it-all peace and privacy of Broadlands that began when the estate's big black gate shut behind the prince and princess of Wales at 6:11 p.m. Wednesday will last only two days.

On Saturday they fly off to a tumultuous welcome from the 27,000 pro-British inhabitants of Gibraltar. There they will board the royal yacht Britannia for a two-week Mediterranean cruise.

Charles and Diana arrived at Romsey by train from London's Waterloo station to be greeted by a cheering, flag waving crowd of 30,000 and the pealing bells of Romsey Abbey, where Mountbatten is buried.

The 20-year-old bride was in pink with a tricorne hat trimmed with a pink ostrich feather, while her 32-year-old husband wore a gray suit. They looked relaxed and happy as they waved to the crowd and smiled, then were driven in a Rolls Royce limousine from the station to Broadlands.

The rural peace of Broadlands contrasted sharply with the joyous crowds, deafening cheers, seas of waving red-white-and-blue Union Jacks and glittering pomp that surrounded the couple in London Wednesday.

An estimated million persons lined the 2-mile route of the wedding procession from Buckingham Palace to St. Paul's Cathedral, where 3,000 guests watched the couple take their marriage vows.

Yet London police reported only 10 arrests, on charges ranging from theft to drug possession, during the whole day. London police chief Sir David McNee praised the crowds for "making the only memory which will stay with us one of joy."

One wedding picture was featured on the front pages of all nine of Britain's national newspapers Thursday morning — Charles kissing Diana on the balcony of Buckingham Palace after the wedding while thousands outside the palace gates roared their approval.

Culprits Take Snake Silently

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Wanted: Monty Python. No, not the British comedy group, a real python.

Officials at Akron Zoological Park said someone apparently climbed over the fence and removed Monty, the zoo's only python, from its case late Friday or early Saturday.

Monty had been on display in a locked glass container in the zoo's garden for about a week.

Carleton Bailie, animal care supervisor at the zoo, discovered that the 5-foot-long Indian Rock serpent was gone when the zoo opened Saturday. He said the black-and-green, yellow-eyed serpent, part of the constrictor family, is worth $150 to $200.

"It's pretty harmless. It's not venomous," he said. But he said the python was not used to people.

"It's not much of a pet," he said.

The May "Bridge World" carries a humorous article by Harry Shearer of Wilmington, Vt., on individual tournaments and how to do well in them. He points out that there are special plays in these events. Here is an example of what we call the "individual" squeeze.

You are in six spades because you had mistakenly decided that your partner was an underbidder and he or she turned out to be an overbidder. Not that there are any roses on your slam bid, but there you are doubled with no play for it.

Anyway you don't give up. You lead dummy's queen of spades at trick two. You continue with the jack after West ducks. He wins that trick and triumphantly leads his last trump to stop any ruffs in dummy.

Now all you have to do is to run off five hearts while chucking the seven and jack of diamonds from your own hand.

Come to your hand with the ace of diamonds and cash your last two trumps. On the last trump West has to decide whether to hang on to the queen of clubs or king of diamonds.

This is an individual. He chucks his diamond winner.

British Share In Cost Of Wedding

LONDON (AP) — From $40,000 for the cake and breakfast to $10,000 for the bridesmaids' costumes, the wedding of Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer will be one of the most expensive in history — costing an estimated $2 million, Buckingham Palace officials say.

The huge bill, which will include everything from the cost of security and renting St. Paul's Cathedral to printing wedding programs for the congregation, is being shared by British taxpayers, Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Charles.

According to published reports and palace officials, these were among the major costs:

—$600,000 for security.

—$100,000 for decorations, flowers and barriers along the wedding procession route from Buckingham Palace to St. Paul's Cathedral.

—$100,000 for a pre-wedding reception Monday.

—$40,000 for the wedding breakfast and cake.

—$300,000 for a two-week honeymoon cruise on the royal yacht Britannia.

—$60,000 for Diana's sapphire and diamond engagement ring.

—$10,000 for the five bridesmaids' and two pages' costumes.

The costs are not limited to the taxpayers and royal family. Britain's two major television networks are spending $1.86 million between them on covering the wedding and are locked in a battle to win the nation's TV ratings.

Walking Is A Step In The Right Direction

Fitnes-concious Americans have been through it all. The impassioned tennis and racquetball craze... early-morning jogging machines... marathon fever... bicycling bliss... skiier's chills and thrills.

True, regular exercise will increase your energy, improve your health and help you towards a more positive outlook on life.

But, you needn't suffer through court fees and lift lines to enjoy the benefits of exercise. All you need do is start walking.

Walking is the most natural exercise known to man. It requires no special training, no particular terrain, no outlay of money.

It can be enjoyed equally well in solitude or in the company of others, in a light rainfall or on a clear, sunwashed day.

In this age of automation, however, walking has taken a back seat to car rides and subway shuttling, to status sports and crowded facilities.

Before technology taught us to substitute wheels for our feet, Thomas Jefferson observed that, "The sovereign invigorator of the body is exercise, and of all exercises, walking is the best."

While Americans in recent years have become increasingly aware or the value of exercise, our preoccupation with more glamourous sports has overshadowed the simple pleasures and the physical benefits - which can be derived from walking.

A brisk, 30-minute walk is considered to be an aerobic exercise, meaning that as you walk, you are increasing your body's ability to utilize oxygen.

At the same time, walking gently elevates the heart rate, therefore increasing the heart's efficiency as a pump and improving the body's metabolism in general.

As your heart becomes stronger and you achieve, with regular exercise, what is known in athletic circles as the "training effect," your resting pulse rate slows down and your blood pressure becomes lower. Your heart is actually under less stress because it is working more efficiently.

Of course, a brisk walk for one person may well be a snail's pace for another. Only an individual's age and physical condition can dictate what is or is not a "brisk" walk.

Under some circumstances, however, it may be advisable to consult with your physician before starting on a walking program.

Beauty Digest

This special walk is wonderful for toning your calves. Start by standing up straight, high on your toes, arms relaxed at sides. Then bend your knees until you're midway between standing and squatting, and start walking. Keep weight over back leg, stepping as far forward as you can with front leg. Stay upright — if you pitch forward, you'll lose your balance. Take 50 steps, work up to 90.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE — with Major Hoople

Dear Abby

Housewife Has Special Twist For Weight-Watching

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Several of my friends and I have hit upon a great idea for losing weight. We pull down our shades, lock our doors, and do our housecleaning in the nude! I know it sounds kooky, but here's what we do. We go from room to room and force ourselves to look at our bodies in every mirror we pass! There's something about a fat, unclothed body that spoils your appetite come mealtime.

Housecleaning is good exercise. There's lots of bending and stretching. There's only one rule: Always keep your stomach muscles tight. After a while, it becomes a habit, and those tummy muscles will be taut after the body is clothed.

This is no put-on, Abby. Pass this on to your readers. I don't know anybody who wouldn't like to lose 5 or 10 pounds, and this really works.

SLIMMING DOWN IN SCOTTSDALE

DEAR SLIMMING: Now, if you could arrange to watch yourselves eat in the nude, you'd have it made. And should you decide to cook in the nude, do wear an apron while frying bacon.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I have three daughters ages 7, 8 and 9. Ever since they were toddlers, I have been teaching them proper table manners, especially how to hold a fork or spoon properly.

My "problem" is the TV cereal commercials. Why do they show children eating cereal and holding the spoon like a shovel? When my children see children on TV eating like that, they think that's the correct way, and not the way I have been teaching them.

Thanks for listening.

MRS. B. IN JEFFERSON, LA.

DEAR MRS. B.: I wish children "holding spoons like shovels" were the worst examples seen on television commercials. However, in order to undo the damage, explain to your children that the children they see on the commercials have not yet been taught to eat properly.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I've been dating a married man for several years. His wife found out about us and is filing for divorce. I love him and he loves me, but he isn't sure he wants to get married again. So where does that leave me?

He has asked me to wait and see what happens after he works out his present problems, but he won't make any promises.

Abby, I'm young and attractive and don't want to spend the rest of my life waiting for a man who may never marry me, but I've been out of circulation for nearly three years and am very happy and fulfilled when I'm with him.

Should I invest any more time in what could be a dead-end relationship? Or would I be wise to hang around and see what happens? And if I do decide to hang around, how long should I give him to make up his mind?

UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: From the facts you've given me, your friend would like to put you on "hold" forever. Say goodbye now. If he really loves you, he will offer you what you want — marriage. If not, good riddance.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I married a man whose wife had died and left him with small children. I raised them all. My husband recently passed away. Are those children I raised still my stepchildren? And are their children still my grandchildren? And are my deceased husband's sisters still my sisters-in-law?

I am confused. Please let me know soon.

MRS. S.

DEAR MRS. S.: Yes. The relationships remain the same.

In Mexico...

Weapons Search Slated To Begin

MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) — Pistol-packing Americans crossing the Rio Grande to visit this border city may wind up in a Mexican jail if they run afoul of armed soldiers conducting random searches for concealed weapons, a police official says.

Col. Antonio Sangri Namur said Wednesday that the commanding general of the local Mexican army garrison has told his charges to start checking bars and restaurants catering to American tourists.

"It used to be that in the nicer places we didn't have any problem. But in places like the Drive Inn, we have information that up to 50 percent of the people in there are concealing weapons," said Sangri, second in command of the local police garrison.

The army, which enforces Mexico's strict gun laws, in the past looked the other way at popular tourist establishments. But Sangri said local criminals started showing up at the nightspots with handguns, knowing they were safe from searches.

Sangri held a news conference with American reporters at the United States consulate to warn tourists crossing from Brownsville, Texas, against toting pistols or resisting a search.

"They (tourists) will be handled with respect," Sangri said of Americans encountering spot checks. "All the soldiers will be uniformed and under the command of an officer. No one will be plainclothed."

All legal gun sales in Mexico are conducted through the national defense secretary. There are no legitimate gun shops although weapons are a hot item on the black market, said the colonel.

The crackdown will not affect American hunters who register their weapons upon entering Mexico and are limited to 100 rounds of ammunition. Mexico is especially popular during white-wing dove hunting season.

The Mexican army, not the local police, is in charge of enforcing Mexico's strict gun laws. Any guns confiscated are turned over to the local garrison.

U.S. Consul Wayne Griffith urged Americans to cooperate with the searches and warned them against assuming certain rights in Mexico.

"People sometimes forget they're in a foreign country here," he said. "And we're not here to get people out of jail. We are here to help get an attorney, notify their family and get medication, if needed."

A person found with an unregistered or illegal weapon probably will be jailed and could stay there up to a year before the federal prosecutor decides what to do with him, said Griffith.

"People forget when they come over here that they're leaving the American Constitution behind at the middle of the bridge," Griffith said.

Sangri said the crackdown was aimed at taking guns away from local criminals and reducing the high violent crime rate.

Americans bringing their families to dinner likely would not be searched, he said, adding, "But then, it's up to the officer to decide."

Recent visitors to Matamoros have described gun squads frisking all the men inside an establishment and checking women's purses.

"There's bound to be some negative reaction to this. But I think we should look at the larger picture. They're trying to make the city safer, open it up more to tourism," the American official said.

"Americans should not get excited about it if they see the soldiers come in."

Citizens Group Target Of Recruitment Flak

HOUSTON (AP) — A man in dark glasses, a woman roller skater and a Chicago native with a skull and swastika tattooed on his bicep are among 300 applicants for the Houston branch of the "Guardian Angels," a citizen's group that wages war against crime.

Houston coordinator Joe Perry, a two-year veteran of the volunteer security group which began patrolling New York subways eight years ago, said Wednesday he was pleased by the turnout — but city officials felt otherwise.

"The Guardian Angels are just not needed here," said Henry de La Garza, press secretary for Houston mayor Jim McConn, as the applicants signed forms on the steps of City Hall.

He said McConn's stand against the Angels was not changed by the presentation group founder Curtis Sliwa made to the City Council Wednesday morning.

"We are for people in Houston getting involved by reporting crimes and serving as witnesses, not by making arrests," de La Garza said.

He said the mayor doubted the Angels' seven-week instruction program was sufficient to teach trainees martial arts techniques and the ins and outs of the law.

Wednesday was the first day of a week-long recruiting effort by the Angels, and Perry said the 300 first-day applicants were more than he had predicted would be signed up during the drive.

Perry said he hoped to begin that training program next week, though the group has yet to find a headquarters. He said his qualifications include a brown belt in "tae kwon doe" karate and a black sash in kung fu.

The mayor is not alone in hoping that training never starts, de La Garza said.

"We have received a great deal of response every time Sliwa comes in and tries to register people," de La Garza said. "That response has been overwhelmingly against Sliwa and the Guardian Angels. The calls that we're getting are asking us to please get rid of them."

But newly-recruited "Angels" disagreed.

"How can you turn down an offer of help?" Ruben Barrera asked as he filled out an application form.

"Houston really needs it, the way they're killing now," said Lynville Colston, an 18-year-old high school student. "The police, seems like they ain't doing nothing."

Bruce Foster, a 21-year-old with a skull, swastika and the slogan "Life Is Not" tatooed on his thick arm, said growing up in Chicago had persuaded him the Angels are needed in Houston.

"It's no fun there when you're a kid," he said. "If you're not in a gang, you've got to be sure you're wearing neutral colors if you don't want to get beat up walking to school.

"From what I've seen of Houston, it's going to be just like Chicago if somebody doesn't do something about it."

Convicted Murderess To Marry Next Month

GREENVILLE, Texas (AP) — Donald Lee Laisure is a marrying man. By his own count he has repeated the vows 35 times and profited from the experience.

"I got (wealthy) by using my head. I looked for them (rich women) just like girls looking for rich oilmen," said Laisure.

But he insists his first 35 marriages didn't mean a thing — it's bride No. 36 who has stolen his heart.

Susan Denise Atkins, the former Charles Manson "family" member convicted of murdering actress Sharon Tate in 1969, has announced she will marry Laisure next month in the prison chapel at the California Insitute for Women in Frontera, Calif.

"I've never loved anyone else but Susan. I swear to God," said Laisure, 52, a balding, portly man described as a "character" by some of the other citizens of this city 80 miles northeast of Dallas.

Laisure drives a brown Fleetwood Cadillac with the words "Filthy Rich" emblazoned across the back in stick-on letters. The car, like his apartment, is adorned with snapshots of women - photos he says will come down when he weds Miss Atkins.

He claims to be a billionaire and says he doesn't have to work because he has "enough money to last until I'm 500 years old."

Laisure says he has wed 35 times and officials at the Hunt County clerk's office say they don't doubt it. County records show Laisure has filed for three divorces in the last year, and has signed two marriage licenses (in addition to the license to marry Miss Atkins) since March.

Spokesman Says Running Alone Is Much Safer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An insurance industry spokesman says it is safer to jog or walk alone as far as automobile accidents are concerned.

"A runner or walker increases the chances for injury when exercising with companions," said Jerry Johns, president of Southwestern Insurance Information Service, Inc. "Always run or walk single file when on public roads."

Johns also said in a statement, "Running or walking on public roads increases the chances of accidents when people run in the same direction traffic is moving. In most instances people should run or walk against the flow of traffic so they will be better able to anticipate and react to the movement of cars in the lane closest to them."

"He files all the time, and lots of times never goes through with them," one county clerk employee said.

Laisure says he has only married "beauty queens" with money and brains. But he insists he never swindled money out of his girlfriends.

"They would practically force the money on me," he said.

Laisure said it was love at first sight when he met Miss Atkins alongside a California freeway 15 years ago.

"I almost married her 15 years ago, but I married someone else," he said, refusing to explain why.

He said they saw each other on and off during the next few years and became so close he received psychic messages from California when she joined the Manson family.

Laisure insists Atkins had nothing to do with the murders. "She did not personally kill anybody. She's a scapegoat for the state of California."

The Reign of Terror, during which thousands of French aristocrats died on the guillotine, began in France on May 31, 1793.

At Indiana Factory...

Two Dead, Four Hurt In Shootout

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — A former factory worker whose firing was upheld recently by an arbitration panel opened fire in the plant with a shotgun, killing two of the panel members and wounding three other people, police said.

The gunman, Daryl McReynolds, 31, of Evansvillle, was seriously wounded during a gunbattle with police, in which he was hit with 12 shots, authorities said. Because he was hospitalized, he was not charged immediately in the shootings.

"I saw him holding the gun at his side," said Maureen Fischer, who was working as a temporary employee at Crescent Plastics Inc. when the gunman walked in Wednesday afternoon. "But the man across the aisle smiled at him and said 'Hi,' so I didn't think anything about it."

The gunman went into the back of the plant "and then I heard gunfire and I got under the desk," she said.

McReynolds killed Crescent Vice President Bernard Peak Jr., 43, and shop foreman Glenn Stahl, 53, with a double-barreled shotgun and then "cut loose and started firing at anybody," said police Lt. Frank Gulledge.

Two other workers were wounded.

An eyewitness said that when the gunman started to leave the building onto a loading dock, he ran into Vanderburgh County deputy Robert Beckham, 40, who was the first officer to answer a police radio call about the shooting.

Ralph Parker, who works at a bottling plant across an alley from the rear of the Crescent offices, said the gunman shot and wounded Beckham, who then stumbled behind a car and returned fire.

McReynolds, a machinist, was fired about six months ago for absenteeism and "poor work habits," said Ken Graves, Crescent's vice president for employee relations. He would not elaborate.

Officials of the company, which employs about 160 people to make tubing for refrigeration units, said McReynolds had worked there for five years before being fired. The Machinists union said he worked at the company 13 years. It wasn't clear why there was a discrepancy.

The union contested McReynolds' dismissal and the issue went to an arbitration panel, which upheld the action three weeks ago.

Police officials said Beckham and the two other officers, Evansville policeman David Gulledge and deputy Richard Bennett, fired 14 shots at McReynolds, hitting him 12 times. McReynolds' weapon was fired at least 14 times, police said. The shotgun had to be reloaded after every two blasts, officials said.

Police said Peak, of Newburgh, died at the factory and Stahl, an Evansville resident, died in a hospital emergency room.

Wounded employee Donald Sellers, 47, of Evansville, was listed in fair condition at Deaconess. Another wounded employee was treated at the emergency room and released.

Beckham was listed in fair condition at Deaconess, suffering from gunshot wounds to the hands, wrist and face.

Pathologist Testifies In Galveston Court Trial

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — A pathologist has supported earlier testimony that slain Amarillo police officer Barry Joe McGuire was lying on the ground when a gunman shot him three times last Christmas night.

Dr. Jose Diaz-Esquivel testified Wednesday in the third day of the capital murder trial of Victor Gutierrez, 24 and his brother, Guadalupe Gutierrez, 20.

The Amarillo pathologist, who performed the autopsy on the slain officer, said the trajectory of the bullet wounds made it inconceiveable that McGuire was standing when he was shot three times.

And he said the officer died instantly from massive brain damage caused by a bullet that traveled from the right side of the head to the left ear.

Witnesses testified earlier that the officer was beaten to the ground and then shot after he stopped a car with four men inside.

Prosecutors allege that the Gutierrez brothers, both of Dumas, Texas, killed McGuire after he stopped them for a routine traffic violation.

Two other men inside the car also have been charged in the slaying, but their trial dates have not been set.

State District Judge Ed Harris of Galveston, who is presiding over the trial moved here on a change of venue from Amarillo, postponed a decision Wednesday on whether to allow prosecutors to introduce into evidence photographs taken by Diaz before the autopsy.

Defense attorneys argued the photographs are overly gruesome and could prejudice the jury.

District Attorney Danny Hill of Amarillo was not in the courtroom Wednesday. The prosecutor was hospitalized here for tests after he became ill in the courtroom on Tuesday.

Man Finds New Way To Keep Cool In Summer

DICKINSON, N.D. (AP) If one radiator can cool a car engine, why can't several cool a house? Well, they can, says retired farmer George Heiser.

Heiser strung three $5 radiators together and hooked them up to a garden hose from his 85-foot well. He then built a box on top of the homemade cooler and installed an old attic fan at the end.

Prairie air as hot as 105 degrees is sucked in from the outside and enters the house cooled to 53 degrees, Heiser said. His total investment was $40.

"I'll put it up against any air-conditioner," said Heiser. "We haven't used the air-conditioner once this summer."

There's also been a surprise benefit to the novel cooler. The used, slightly warmed water is recycled to irrigate vegetables and shrubs.

Nat'l Safety Council Has Farm Safety Hints

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Safety Council is reminding farmers that even barnyard manure can be dangerous.

You can slip on it and fall, for one thing. Perhaps most serious is manure's ability to produce deadly gases, which can be fatal when inhaled in close surroundings such as a disposal pit.

"It is also responsible for the death of many cattle and hogs confined in buildings lacking sufficient ventilation, expecially while the manure is being agitated or pumped out," says the council.

The warning is part of the council's effort to promote National Farm Safety Week, which runs through this week. It is the 38th consecutive observance and traditionally is proclaimed by the president.

According to the council's estimates, in 1979 about 4,200 farm and ranch residents died and 380,000 were disabled in farm, home, public and highway accidents.

Agricultural work claimed 1,900 lives and resulted in 190,000 disabling injuries.

"The total cost of accidents to farm and ranch people exceeded $5 billion," the council said.

One of the highlights in this year's safety campaign is the use of gasohol on the farm — the mixture of 10 percent alcohol and 90 percent gasoline.

"It is more flammable and vaporizes faster than pure gasoline (at higher temperatures)," the council said.

Gasohol also can, in combination with water, lead to corrosion of a fuel tank, resulting in dangerous leaks.

In general, the council offers this advice concerning the use of gasohol on the farm:

—Gasohol can be used safely if recommended procedures are followed. There is an increased potential for fire or explosion. The safety rules for gasoline become even more important for gasohol.

—Alcohol, gasoline or gasohol blended with diesel fuel introduces hazards of an unacceptable nature. They should not be used.

—Modifications for increased power, the increased volatility of gasoline, engine enclosures and some front-mounted equipment contribute to increased fuel vaporization. This may result in a build-up of pressure in the fuel tank and a release of volatile vapor and fuel when the cap is removed.

Slain Priest To Be Returned

EDMOND, Okla. (AP) — The body of an Okarche priest slain in Guatemala was to be returned today to his hometown some 30 miles northwest of Oklahoma City, even though the Indians of his mission want him to be buried in their Central American country, a close friend says.

The Rev. Stanley Rother "was very much loved. After receiving word of his death, his parishioners went to a nearby mission and called his family, begging for his body to be buried in Guatemala," the Rev. Martin Levin, pastor of St. John's Catholic Church in Edmond, said Wednesday.

Levin said the body is in the process of being shipped back from Santiago de Atitlan to Okarche for burial, in accordance with Rother's will.

Rother had been slain about 1 a.m. CDT Tuesday in the Guatemalan city. He allegedly had witnessed the abduction of a parishioner on Jan. 3 from the front porch of his rectory.

Two American officials traveled to the remote village Wednesday to confirm his death, State Department spokeswoman Cindy Fox said.

Rother had been shot twice, the officials said, but a full report from the embassy is not expected until later today.

Levin had worked with Rother in Guatemala the past six summers. He called Rother's death a shock, but said it was expected.

"We knew it could happen. He had gone to Guatemala City on business in January and had received a message from a reliable government source that he was marked for death," said Leven, who became acquainted with Rother when both were students at Assumption Seminary in San Antonio, Texas.

"He caught a flight home and arrived here in shirt sleeves, stayed a couple of months and then went back," Leven said. Rother returned to Oklahoma in May to attend the ordination of his cousin, Don Wolfe.

"He reported things had cooled down," Leven said. "He said he had to go back, his people needed him during this critical time."

September Is Cattle Month

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Senate adopted a resolution Monday recognizing Longhorn cattle as the "acknowledged sovereign of the bovine world" and designating September as Texas Longhorn Cattle Month.

Sen. Peyton McKnight's resolution was sent to the House on voice vote after Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby quipped, "All in favor of the resolution signify it by mooing."

Acne not limited to teens

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 31 years old and have been having more trouble with blemishes the last couple of years than when I was a teen-ager. A dermatologist I consulted for a year gave me pills and some cream for my face. After I went off the pills it started all over again. I can't afford to keep seeing a specialist and I don't want to be on pills all the time.

I break out with big red bumps on both sides of my face and I also have a lot of blackheads. I wash my face twice a day and wash my hair every other day. Is it possible to have dry and oily skin at the same time? My forehead and just below my eyes is real flaky.

DEAR READER — You don't have to be a teen-ager to have acne; that is just when it usually begins. I do think that anyone who has persistent acne problems should see a doctor. In severe cases, treatment can prevent scarring and permanent blemishes.

There are three main aspects of treatment — drying up oily skin, promoting peeling to open pores to promote drainage and use of antibiotics to prevent bacterial action that leads to the red inflamed pustules.

You can't wash away blackheads. They are below the surface of the skin and are not dirt, but oily plugs of sebum formed by your skin glands. Soaking with warm water and gentle rubbing with a warm wet wash cloth helps.

To give you more details about the management of acne I am sending you The Health Letter number 8-2, Acne Can Be Treated. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. As it explains, you should avoid oily or greasy preparations for your face as these all make matters worse.

Vitamin A acid (not vitamin A pills) is a good peeling agent for the skin (tretinoin, Retin-A). I prefer the gel product as opposed to the cream to avoid oily problems. It is a prescription item that your family doctor can provide. However, you should know that peeling agents and antibiotics used in acne treatment increase your sensitivity to the sun. You can use a liquid sun screen containing PABA in the mornings to help you. Don't use a cream if you have acne problems.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 12-year-old girl and I read a letter to you about how much milk you need. My mother always says the same thing you said, that you need three glasses of milk a day. When I was younger I was fussy about everything. Now my only problem is milk. I hate it! My mother makes fresh yogurt every day. Would it be OK if I had four cups of yogurt every day instead of milk? She says I need the calcium for growth. Is it too late for me to benefit from it and have a healthy life?

DEAR READER — No, it is seldom too late to get some benefits from improved health habits. Yes, you can use the yogurt as a substitute for milk. The important point is to get enough good quality protein and enough calcium in your diet. The calcium supports your bone growth and at your age you are probably still growing. You will get about the same amount of calcium from your yogurt as you would from milk.

Witness Says He Was Told Of Plot

HOUSTON (AP) — A former bail bondsman has testified he might have saved three lives if he had gone to police in 1976 after Markham Duff-Smith told him he was responsible for his adoptive mother's 1975 "suicide."

Duff-Smith is accused of arranging the 1975 strangulation death of his adoptive mother, Gertrude Zabolio. He also is accused of contracting the 1979 shooting deaths of his sister, Diana Wanstrath, her husband and their baby.

In the fourth day of testimony in Duff-Smith's capital murder trial, Donald Wayne Chaline, 34, Wednesday told jurors he was afraid to tell what he knew until he read about the Wanstrath deaths in 1979.

"I felt some guilt," Chaline said. "If I'd said something sooner, all of this might not have happened."

Chaline said he sold insurance with Duff-Smith in 1975. The two met for drinks one afternoon, Chaline testified, and Duff-Smith "made a very harsh, brutal statement" as he complained about his financial problems.

"He said, 'I should have my mother killed.' He said it was going to be his money someday anyhow," Chaline said.

After Duff-Smith quit the insurance agency, Chaline said, he did not see him again until 1976, when the two men passed each other driving along a southwest Houston street and pulled over to talk.

Duff-Smith told him "he had gotten someone to kill his mother," Chaline testified. "He laughed about that police thought it was suicide. He thought that was kind of clever."

Asked why he did not go to police then, Chaline said, "I thought maybe I was implicated because of prior knowledge. It was just difficult for me to tell someone about it."

Chaline said after he read about the Wanstrath shootings, he anonymously contacted a newspaper reporter because, he said, "that way, police would investigate and I wouldn't have to get involved."

Wednesday's session ended mid-way through prosecutors' questioning of Chaline. In the hallway, defense attorneys Victor Blaine and Candelario Elizondo said they planned to cast doubt on Chaline's honesty when they got a chance to cross-examine him Thursday.

Mrs. Zabolio's strangulation with a pair of pantyhose was originally ruled a suicide. Then in another strange twist in the story, the 1979 shootings of the Wanstraths officially were ruled a murder-suicide.

But rulings in both cases had to be changed to homicide after Houston detective Johnny Bonds' 19-month investigation of the Wanstrath deaths turned up admitted killers in both the Wanstrath and Zabolio cases.

Two confessed "middlemen" — Florida investor Paul MacDonald and one-time associate of Duff-Smith Walter Waldhauser Jr. — have agreed to testify against Duff-Smith in exchange for lighter sentences.

Boston College Probe Not Ended, Says FBI

By JAMES FITZGERALD
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The FBI says its investigation into the 1978-79 Boston College basketball scandal has not ended with the indictments of five men.

"The investigation is continuing, and if it is successful, other indictments will be returned," said Kenneth Walton, deputy assistant director of the FBI's New York office.

A federal grand jury in Brooklyn, on Wednesday indicted one former Boston College player, Richard Kuhn, although informant Henry Hill has said three players were involved. Walton refused to comment when asked whether Jim Sweeney and Ernie Cobb, the other players implicated by Hill, were being investigated.

Hill was named as an unindicted co-conspirator.

The others indicted were brothers Anthony Perla, 30, and Rocco Perla, 31, and Paul Mazzei, 37, all of Pittsburgh, and James "Jimmy the Gent" Burke of New York City.

Burke has been reported as the mastermind of a 1978 robbery at the Lufthansa cargo terminal at Kennedy International Airport, which netted $5.8 million in jewels and currency. However, he has never been charged.

All five defendants pleaded innocent. Burke and Mazzei already were in custody, Burke for a probation violation and Mazzei for narcotics trafficking, Walton said. The others surrendered Wednesday and were released on $50,000 bail each. Trial was set for Sept. 23.

The defendants were charged with racketeering, sports bribery and interstate transport in aid of racketeering.

They allegedly tried to fix six Boston College basketball games against Providence, Harvard, UCLA, Fordham, St. John's and Holy Cross.

The indictment said Kuhn, a 6-foot-5 reserve forward from the Pittsburgh area, was paid up to $2,000 a game for shaving points so that Boston College would win by less than the point spread when favored and lose by more than the point spread when underdogs. That way, any bet on a Boston College opponent would win.

If convicted, the defendants would face a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and fines of $25,000 each.

Walton alleged that the point-shaving scheme was formed at meetings involving all the defendants. He would not say how much the men won, although he said they bet up to $100,000 per game. He said the bettors also lost at some of the games listed. Boston College's 1978-79 record was 21-9.

The college issued a statement expressing "sadness that a former student has become involved in a federal investigation of this sort." Kuhn left the school in 1979 without graduating.

Betting scandals have been the bane of college basketball since the 1950s, when an extensive scheme nearly brought an end to several schools' programs.

Negotiators Going Back In Session

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's negotiators were scheduled to return to the bargaining table today after a seventh-inning stretch of sorts that consumed most of the seventh week of the strike by major league players.

Marvin Miller, director of the Major League Players Association, returned from Los Angeles Wednesday night after briefing some 75 players on the status of the negotiations. Ray Grebey and the owners' Player Relations Committee already were here where the 26 club owners also met Wednesday, first separately, then jointly for about two hours.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Conference of Mayors got into the act where the federal givernment has thus far struck out. The mayors sent a telegram to Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn urging the parties to settle the strike.

"As of July 27, the cities have lost a minimum of $10 million in tax revenues," said the telegram, which was signed by Helen Boosalis, mayor of Lincoln, Neb., and president of the Conference of Mayors. "The loss to the cities' economies is in the hundreds of millions."

"This strike must be settled and we will do our part to move the negotiations forward," added Mayor Maynard Jackson of Atlanta.

Today marks the end of the walkout's seventh week — the 49th day — and the first bargaining session since the talks collapsed last Thursday in Washington, D.C., where they were moved at the request of U.S. Labor Secretary Raymond J. Donovan.

While there appeared to be no reason to expect a settlement in the immediate future, both sides kept insisting that they wanted to reach an agreement. The strike has wiped out approximately 25 per cent of the season, which has barely two more months to run.

"No votes were taken, but the overwhelming consensus was that the clubs want to bring the strike to a rapid conclusion and reopen the season," said Ed Fitzgerald of the Milwaukee Brewers, chairman of the board of the PRC. "We hope to achieve that end through the process of collective bargaining."

Oilers Ousted By Sweetwater

The Sweetwater Pirates erupted for four runs in the third inning which was enough to down the Snyder Oilers, 4-2, and eliminate the Snyder team from the Junior Teen Age District Tournament last night.

Donald Jones of the Pirates hurled a one-hitter and also paced his team at the plate with three singles and scored a run.

In other action, Cisco downed the Colorado City Colts, 5-4, to advance to the finals. The Colts, who absorbed their first loss in tournament play, were scheduled to meet Sweetwater at noon today. Both Sweetwater and Colorado City have one loss, while Cisco is unbeaten in the tournament.

Jimmy Cain got Snyder's only hit off Jones, a single in the seventh when Snyder got its two runs.

Chris Franklin had two singles for the Pirates, while Mike Alvarado had a double, the only extra-base blow in the game, and Brad Young and Gerald Todd had a single apiece.

Carliss Sanders of Cisco allowed Colorado City only three hits. Sanders also contributed to the victory with a pair of singles and scored a run. Frankie Seabourn and David Seabourn each had a double for Cisco, while Doug Hendricks, Doug Seabourn, Johnny Seabourn, Darrell Stuart and Mark Swanner had a single each.

Doug Chitsey had two singles for Colorado City. Henry Garcia got the only other hit off Sanders, also a single.

Colorado City broke with a thee-run first inning and added another run in the fourth. Cisco came back with three in the fourth, one in the sixth and the tie-breaker in the seventh.

Cisco will meet the winner of the Sweetwater-Colorado City game today and a victory would sack up the district title for the Panthers.

Ovett Unable To Set Record

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Britian's Steve Ovett ran the fastest 1,500 meters in the world this year in the fourth Budapest Track and Field Grand Prix, but failed to break his own world record in a race delayed more than two hours by winds.

Ovett covered the distance in 3 minutes, 31.54 seconds, short of his world mark of 3:31.4 set last year.

After 13 Seasons...

D.D. Lewis Going One More

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) - D.D. Lewis, the 13-year-veteran linebacker, romps through the grueling two-a-day workouts of the Dallas Cowboys like a young colt, determined to end his career with a third Super Bowl ring.

"I've got to make every minute of every day count because this is my last time around," said the familiar No. 50 on the Cowboys' team.

Lewis has a dream of going out on top with a Super Bowl victory in the Silverdome at Pontiac, Michigan next January.

"A lot of great players have never gone out with a Super Bowl win, including Roger Staubach," said Lewis. "It would be like calling your own shot."

Lewis said the Cowboys famed Flex Defense needs some major repair work before the team can realistically count on its sixth Super Bowl appearance.

"We have to quit giving up the big plays or eventually it will cost us," said Lewis, noting the secondary was a victim more than several times last year by the long bomb.

"I know one thing," he said. "Everybody here has their mind programmed for the season I think we have enough hatred for Philadelphia to keep us grinding through camp."

The Cowboys lost two out of three games to the Eagles last year, including the National Conference title matchup, to their fiercest Division rival.

"We played really good defense last year, but you can't call us great because the big plays killed us," he said.

"The Eagles were very good about shutting down the long gainers against them. They didn't permit many scoreboard surprises."

Lewis said if safeties Charlie Waters and Randy Hughes can overcome off-season surgery, the secondary will be much improved.

"Hughes' shoulder seems healed and Charlie's knee looks good ... it doesn't swell up on him. Of course, the ultimate test will come when he gets hit."

Lewis said he has been particularly impressed in camp with the front four of ends Harvey Martin and Ed Jones, and tackles Randy White and John Dutton.

"Boy, do they look good," said Lewis. "I don't know another team that has four like 'em. Our pass rush should be something this season."

Lewis said he hopes to totally enjoy this season.

"I hope I don't play like an old man," he said.

U.S. Adds To Gold Total In Late Events

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — All-American Kevin Magee led the United States basketball team to a 93-87 gold medal victory over the Soviet Union and swimmer Jill Sterkel won her fifth gold medal as the World University Games came to an end.

The Games officially closed today with a ceremony, but no events were scheduled.

The Soviets finished the 10-day games with 38 gold medals. Romania downed Cuba 3-2 in men's volleyball Wednesday, increasing its gold medal total to 30. The United States finished with 29 gold medals.

Magee, a 6-foot-8 forward from California-Irvine, scored 31 points to pace the American basketball victory. Working inside against 7-4 Vladimir Tkachenko and 7-foot Alexandr Belositeni, Magee fouled out with 3:59 remaining in the game and the Americans holding a seven-point lead.

The Soviets pulled to within one point a minute later before guards John Bagley of Boston College and Sidney Lowe of North Carolina State took over. Steals and driving layups put the game out of reach of the frustrated Soviets, who had played the Americans close all night.

Nikolai Deriughin led the Soviets with 21 points. Tkachenko added 16, most on them on flat-footed short shots.

"Magee was playing against two of the finer big men in the world," said U.S. Coach Tom Davis of Boston College. "It's very tough to play against men of that caliber."

Magee, who had averaged less than 10 points a game throughout the tournament, said: "I didn't do anything different. The coach told us to come out and hustle and play defense. That's what we did."

Howard Carter of Louisiana State scored 17 points for the Americans.

Sterkel, a University of Texas student, matched Romanian gymnast Nadia Comaneci's feat of winning five gold medals. Sterkel gave the U.S. women's 400-meter medley relay team a clear-cut lead by turning in a stunning performance in the butterfly leg. The United States won the gold in a record-setting 4 minutes 18.85 seconds.

Kim Linehan, also of the University of Texas, captured the women's 400-meter freestyle in a record 4:15.27. Linehan, who also won the 800-meter freestyle on Monday, was followed by the Soviet Union's Irina Laritsch... in 4:15.50 and Hanna Sherri of Stanford University in 4:21.01.

Atlantic Salmon Are Returning

HOLYOKE, Mass. (AP) — Almost 200 years after dams and pollution drove the Atlantic salmon from the Connecticut River, the popular gamefish is making an unprecedented comeback.

"It's kind of an amazing story," Boyd Kunard of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service said. "We've finally gotten to the point where we're seeing some success and convincing the skeptics it can be done."

In record numbers, the majestic, silvery fish are migrating from the North Atlantic into the Connecticut River this year, using artificial fish ladders to hurdle dams that have cut them off from their traditional spawning grounds since 1798.

At the Holyoke Dam, the first obstacle fish encounter on their journey from Long Island Sound, 300 salmon had been captured by early this month for breeding in hatcheries. That's a dramatic jump from the 123 taken last year.

Despite the double threat of acid rain and probable cuts in government funding, officials are optimistic about the future of the $60 million program.

"The salmon's return is a sign of how much the river has been cleaned up — it's proof that we can bring something native back," said program coordinator Steve Rideout of the Fish and Wildlife Service in Hadley, Mass.

The comeback can be traced to a 1965 federal law, the Anadromous Fish Act, which led to a partnership among the U.S. government, the four states touched by New England's longest river and the power companies that operate the river's dams.

Anadromous refers to ocean fish that spawn in fresh water.

Fish ladders and elevators at the Connecticut's three southernmost dams — Holyoke and Turners Falls in Massachusetts, Vernon in Vermont — have been built at a cost of more than $26 million, opening 173 miles of the 410-mile river to salmon.

When ladders are built by 1990 at the next two Vermont dams, in Bellows Falls and Wilder, salmon will be able to reach 270 miles upriver. Sometime in the late 1980s, Rideout predicts, fishermen should be able to cast their lines for the salmon.

Before the river's dams went up, 40,000 salmon migrated upriver every year, Rideout estimates. By 1997, officials hope to have 4,000 to 6,000 salmon a year migrating upriver to spawn and to be able to capture 800 of them for hatcheries. The offspring of hatchery salmon are used to stock tributaries of the Connecticut to create natural salmon runs.

But one aim of the restoration program — to have salmon reproduce naturally — could be endangered by acid rain.

Rain laced with high amounts of acid is threatening fish life across the Northeast and in Canada. The cause is still under investigation, but many naturalists blame coal-burning industry in the Midwest.

Rideout says some tributaries, like the West River in Vermont and the Salmon River in Connecticut, already have acidity levels too high for natural reproduction, although fish can still live there.

Money is a more immediate problem.

President Reagan eliminated the fish act's $3.5 million grant program through which the salmon project was to have gotten $130,000 next year, said Rep. Silvio Conte, D-Mass. He said most of the money has been restored via the Fish and Wildlife budget, although it's still uncertain how much.

Tax Cut

tificate.

—Wipe out estate taxes for all but a relative handful of Americans.

—Allow a special charitable-contributions deduction for those who don't itemize.

—Cut business taxes deeply through faster write-offs for plant and machinery purchases.

—Allow workers, even those covered by company pension plans, to avoid taxes on up to $2,000 a year put aside in a retirement account.

In Wednesday's closing debate, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said Reagan and his supporters were content to borrow many of those provisions from the Democrats' proposal. "But there is one prominent feature the administration refuses to adopt — and that is the targeting of tax relief to middle-income Americans," the Massachusetts Democrat added.

The real issue, said Rep. Guy VanderJagt, R-Mich., is that without action by Congress, taxes on Americans will rise by 22 percent over the next three years because of inflation. The Democratic measure would continue increasing the government's share, he said, but "by 1984, under the president's bill, every American will be keeping more for himself."

Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., said the Reagan bill will widen the gulf between rich and poor. "I cannot support a bill that does so much for so few and so little for so many," he declared.

Rep. Neal Asks for Investigation

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Rep. Stephen Neal, D-N.C., says he's asked the U.S. attorney general's office to investigate a letter from a conservative group he said tried to bribe him into voting for President Reagan's tax-cut plan.

Neal said the letter he received Friday was from John T. Dolan, chairman of the National Conservative Political Action Committee. Neal said NCPAC is spending $500,000 in 13 congressional districts on a campaign in favor of the tax program.

He said the letter promised to drop the campaign in his county "If you will make a public statement...that you intend to vote for it."

Two Mishaps Reported Here

Two traffic mishaps, one involving a truck and telephone lines, were reported Wednesday afternoon by Snyder police.

At 1:35 p. m., a truck driven by Mark Wayne Rodgers of Irving, knocked down telephone lines on College Ave. between 27th and 30th Sts. Owner of the truck is Industrial Transit Service of Dallas.

At 3:38 p. m., a minor mishap at 404 33rd St. involved a 1970 Buick driven by Cindy Kay Stout and a parked 1976 Ford owned by Bill Harrel Balliew of Albany.

Police also received a report that a 1977 Buick was missing from Brown and Gray Motors' lot.

Complaints were received concerning beer bottles being thown on lawns, fireworks and stray dogs.

The Soviet Union gave up extraterritorial rights in China in 1924.

Attention!!

How would you like it if the city council passed an ordinance that read...

"The drinking of all beverages in cans (except for beer) is now prohibited in all city parks & any other city owned property. Violaters will be fined from $100 to $200."

The above statement is not true but it could be. There is a similar ordinance up for a second reading Aug. 3, 1981, that is just as discriminating.

Atlantic Salmon Are Returning

HOLYOKE, Mass. (AP) — Almost 200 years after dams and pollution drove the Atlantic salmon from the Connecticut River, the popular gamefish is making an unprecedented comeback.

"It's kind of an amazing story," Boyd Kunard of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service said. "We've finally gotten to the point where we're seeing some success and convincing the skeptics it can be done."

In record numbers, the majestic, silvery fish are migrating from the North Atlantic into the Connecticut River this year, using artificial fish ladders to hurdle dams that have cut them off from their traditional spawning grounds since 1798.

At the Holyoke Dam, the first obstacle fish encounter on their journey from Long Island Sound, 300 salmon had been captured by early this month for breeding in hatcheries. That's a dramatic jump from the 123 taken last year.

Despite the double threat of acid rain and probable cuts in government funding, officials are optimistic about the future of the $60 million program.

"The salmon's return is a sign of how much the river has been cleaned up — it's proof that we can bring something native back," said program coordinator Steve Rideout of the Fish and Wildlife Service in Hadley, Mass.

The comeback can be traced to a 1965 federal law, the Anadromous Fish Act, which led to a partnership among the U.S. government, the four states touched by New England's longest river and the power companies that operate the river's dams.

Anadromous refers to ocean fish that spawn in fresh water.

Fish ladders and elevators at the Connecticut's three southernmost dams — Holyoke and Turners Falls in Massachusetts, Vernon in Vermont — have been built at a cost of more than $26 million, opening 173 miles of the 410-mile river to salmon.

When ladders are built by 1990 at the next two Vermont dams, in Bellows Falls and Wilder, salmon will be able to reach 270 miles upriver. Sometime in the late 1980s, Rideout predicts, fishermen should be able to cast their lines for the salmon.

Before the river's dams went up, 40,000 salmon migrated upriver every year, Rideout estimates. By 1997, officials hope to have 4,000 to 6,000 salmon a year migrating upriver to spawn and to be able to capture 800 of them for hatcheries. The offspring of hatchery salmon are used to stock tributaries of the Connecticut to create natural salmon runs.

But one aim of the restoration program — to have salmon reproduce naturally — could be endangered by acid rain.

Rain laced with high amounts of acid is threatening fish life across the Northeast and in Canada. The cause is still under investigation, but many naturalists blame coal-burning industry in the Midwest.

Rideout says some tributaries, like the West River in Vermont and the Salmon River in Connecticut, already have acidity levels too high for natural reproduction, although fish can still live there.

Money is a more immediate problem.

President Reagan eliminated the fish act's $3.5 million grant program through which the salmon project was to have gotten $130,000 next year, said Rep. Silvio Conte, D-Mass. He said most of the money has been restored via the Fish and Wildlife budget, although it's still uncertain how much.

Tax Cut

tificate.

—Wipe out estate taxes for all but a relative handful of Americans.

—Allow a special charitable-contributions deduction for those who don't itemize.

—Cut business taxes deeply through faster write-offs for plant and machinery purchases.

—Allow workers, even those covered by company pension plans, to avoid taxes on up to $2,000 a year put aside in a retirement account.

In Wednesday's closing debate, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said Reagan and his supporters were content to borrow many of those provisions from the Democrats' proposal. "But there is one prominent feature the administration refuses to adopt — and that is the targeting of tax relief to middle-income Americans," the Massachusetts Democrat added.

The real issue, said Rep. Guy VanderJagt, R-Mich., is that without action by Congress, taxes on Americans will rise by 22 percent over the next three years because of inflation. The Democratic measure would continue increasing the government's share, he said, but "by 1984, under the president's bill, every American will be keeping more for himself."

Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., said the Reagan bill will widen the gulf between rich and poor. "I cannot support a bill that does so much for so few and so little for so many," he declared.

Rep. Neal Asks for Investigation

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Rep. Stephen Neal, D-N.C., says he's asked the U.S. attorney general's office to investigate a letter from a conservative group he said tried to bribe him into voting for President Reagan's tax-cut plan.

Neal said the letter he received Friday was from John T. Dolan, chairman of the National Conservative Political Action Committee. Neal said NCPAC is spending $500,000 in 13 congressional districts on a campaign in favor of the tax program.

He said the letter promised to drop the campaign in his county "If you will make a public statement...that you intend to vote for it."

Two Mishaps Reported Here

Two traffic mishaps, one involving a truck and telephone lines, were reported Wednesday afternoon by Snyder police.

At 1:35 p. m., a truck driven by Mark Wayne Rodgers of Irving, knocked down telephone lines on College Ave. between 27th and 30th Sts. Owner of the truck is Industrial Transit Service of Dallas.

At 3:38 p. m., a minor mishap at 404 33rd St. involved a 1970 Buick driven by Cindy Kay Stout and a parked 1976 Ford owned by Bill Harrel Balliew of Albany.

Police also received a report that a 1977 Buick was missing from Brown and Gray Motors' lot.

Complaints were received concerning beer bottles being thown on lawns, fireworks and stray dogs.

The Soviet Union gave up extraterritorial rights in China in 1924.

Attention!!

How would you like it if the city council passed an ordinance that read...

"The drinking of all beverages in cans (except for beer) is now prohibited in all city parks & any other city owned property. Violaters will be fined from $100 to $200."

The above statement is not true but it could be. There is a similar ordinance up for a second reading Aug. 3, 1981, that is just as discriminating.

De La Garza, Other Demos Supported Reagan

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, was one of the surprises in the victory the House gave President Reagan on his tax cut bill — the second half of his economic recovery program.

Several Texas Democrats were expected to support the president's program Wednesday, but not de la Garza.

Not only is de la Garza a committee chairman — expected to side automatically with the Democratic leadership on such crucial votes — but he represents the Rio Grande Valley, one of the nation's poorest congressional districts.

The strongest pitch that Democratic leaders made for their tax bill was that it helped the working man while the president's bill was aimed at the wealthy. De la Garza said he didn't agree.

"Neither of these tax bills have any great benefits for the poor. What the poor need are better education, better jobs, better paying jobs, better housing," de la Garza said.

"And if this vote helps generate the economy, where it'll help in those areas as the president says it will, I'll be glad to continue to work with the president. I'll vote with him when he's right and vote against him when he's wrong, and that's the beauty of our system."

President Reagan called Rep. Kent Hance Wednesday afternoon, about 30 minutes after final passage, and thanked him for his courage in defying the House Democratic leadership to co-sponsor the administration's tax cut bill.

"I told him I appreciated his courage, and his faith, and that I enjoyed working with him," an elated Hance said after the House gave a 238-195 victory to the bill endorsed by Reagan and sponsored by Hance and Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., ranking Republican on the Ways and Means Committee.

Hance, D-Lubbock, credited the groundswell of public support, generated by the president's nationally televised speech Monday night, for the victory.

"Last Thursday, I didn't think we had a chance. But I had a feeling Friday it was winnable. Monday, it looked better, and then after the president made his speech and the phones started ringing, you could feel that things were changing," Hance added.

"The president's speech made the difference. We would have lost by five or maybe won by two or three votes if he hadn't made the speech. By noon today, I had 32 firm votes (from Democrats). We only needed 27 and I felt we could win it."

By the final gun on the president's bill, 48 Democrats — including eight of Texas' 19 Demos — had jumped on the bandwagon, while the Republicans lost only one of their block of 191 members.

On the anti-climatic vote on final passage, all but four Texans supported the tax bill, which won by a 3-to-1 margin, 322-107.

Hance wasn't surprised at de la Garza's vote.

"I knew we had a shot at him, but he wasn't on my list of 32," said Hance.

Reagan, in his feverish pitch toward Democrats it considered undecided, had de la Garza over at the White House Tuesday.

"Yes, I was over there yesterday and visited with the president, the vice president and the secretary of the treasury, but that really had no bearing on my vote. It was an evolutionary process, and I finally made my decision late in the debate on the floor," de la Garza added.

"We had a considerable number of telephone calls and telegrams. That had some bearing. We don't go by numbers, but it's an indication of the attitude in the communities. We knew the people who called in."

At the same time last week, House Democrats were claiming that four of the nine Texas Democrats who supported Reagan's budget were committed to the Ways and Means Committee tax bill, leaving Hance and four other "boll weevils" to vote for Reagan's plan.

But the thousands of calls, telegrams and letters from constituents, heeding Reagan's plea for their support on his tax bill, had their effect.

Not only did de la Garza defect, but the president got the votes of Jack Hightower, D-Vernon, and Ralph Hall, D-Rockwall, whom the Democrats had regarded as committed to them.

"It was a great victory," Hance said.

The key to winning the vote of Hall and Hightower, Hance said, was his assurance the tax relief given to the oil industry would have a strong chance for remaining intact through the House-Senate conference committee. Hance said Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee promised to battle to keep the oil provisions in.

"They'd been fed the rumor that Dole wouldn't be able to keep intact that part of the bill because Rostenkowski would throw it out," Hance said.

Hall, Hightower and White said last week they were committed to the bill of Ways and Means chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., because he accepted their pledges in exchange for putting oil tax relief into his legislation.

After constituents began calling over the weekend, Hall began wavering and said he wasn't absolutely committed. Tuesday, after the real bombardment of calls began, he said he felt obligated to the committee bill but would like to see the president have a chance with his program.

"I called the president about 30 minutes before the vote and told him I was going to support his bill," Hall said.

"He said he appreciated it, and I told him I hoped he'd keep the faith and keep the oil benefits in the bill through conference. The cinch 25 percent tax cut for three years had some merit to it, and his aid to little royalty owners was much better than the committee bill," he added.

"I've got many, many of those royalty owners in my district, drawing $300 to $400 a month, eroded away by the Windfall Profits Tax. It hit them and it wasn't really intended for them," Hall said.

"My decision was aided by thousands of calls, letters andor telegrams that flooded my office. And less than a hundred were opposed to the president. I had over 1,000 calls from Tyler alone, which is probably a result of the president targeting Tyler."

The president called a Tyler radio station, in Hall's district, on Tuesday and gave a newsman a 15-minute interview.

Before the vote on Hance-Conable, the House defeated by a 144-288 vote an amendment by Morris Udall, D-Ariz., that would have stripped all the oil tax relief and several other "sweeteners" that had been added in a bidding war for votes.

During the early floor debate, Barney Frank, D-Mass., argued in behalf of deleting aid for the oil industry.

"I don't mind the eyes of Texas being upon me. I mind the hands of Texas being in my pockets," Frank said.

All five Texas Republicans voted for the Hance-Conable bill. Besides Hance, Hall, de la Garza and Hightower, other Democrats voting for it were Sam Hall, D-Marshall; Phil Gramm, D-College Station; Marvin Leath, D-Marlin; and Charlie Stenholm, D-Stamford.

Hightower and Richard White, D-El Paso, made their way to Rostenkowski in the final minute of the vote to see if he'd release them from their pledges to support his bill.

"Rostenkowski said if he released anyone he'd have to releave everybody, and he didn't want to do that. He said we'd have to let our conscience be our guide," Hightower said.

White then recorded his vote with the Democrats and Hightower his for the president.

"With me, it was a matter of that you've got to be believed by people. If you give your word..." White said. "My district was for the president's bill by a very overwhelming margin, but the two bills were very much alike and I could live with either one."

White added, "I don't regret what I did. They put things in their bill that wouldn't have been in otherwise, and it forced the administration to come back even higher."

Hightower said Dick Gephardt, D-Mo., one of Rostenkowski's key lieutenants on the bill, had already released him from his commitment before he approached Rostenkowski.

"I don't have any malice toward them," Gephardt said after the vote, in reference to the defections by Hightower and Ralph Hall. "We had talked about it earlier in the day. I have no doubt that if it had been close, they would have voted with us."

Chimps In Experiments

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. (AP) — When chemical company officials want to make sure a new product is safe, they often need a chimpanzee for the tests. They look to the deserts of New Mexico.

There, they find the Primate Research Institute, a large laboratory complex at Holloman Air Force Base that is the home of the largest captive colony of chimps in the world.

About 175 of Bonzo's cousins reside at the institute, where they are the subjects of experiments that give scientists insight into how the human body works and how it would be affected by chemicals and other substances.

"There are arguments that results of tests on rats and mice can't be applied to humans," says institute director William C. Hobson. "But almost no one would argue that the tests we do with chimps are not relevant. Chimps are the animals you could say are man's brother."

Jack Weaver, assistant to the director, said the physiology of chimps is so close to that of humans that the apes can be substituted for people in experiments that might be dangerous.

The similarities between the apes and man have led to chimps being used in experiments on saccharin, new drugs and chemicals such as gasoline additives, birth control, hormonal problems and other areas of human health.

"Most of our work is done for people who are trying to get a high threshold level set," Hobson said. "They have to get new compounds approved for safety by a regulatory agency like the Food and Drug Administration. If the information comes from a primate study, then they'll give a smaller margin for error than they would for rats and mice.

"We often end up as the final arbitrator between a company with a new compound and the regulatory agency," he said.

For example, some of the 60 employees at the institute have been testing a new hormone drug for cattle.

"There is now a whole new generation of drugs to be used in cattle so that all of the herd will ovulate and come into heat on the same day and they can all be artificially inseminated at the same time," Hobson said. "We have been checking to see if the drug will be passed on to humans when they eat the meat."

So far, he said, the tests have shown the new drug is safe.

Another area of focus at the institute is reproductive biology. Because the chimpanzee's reproductive system is very similar to humans, scientists are able to test birth control methods on the apes.

Closely linked to the reproductive studies is the institute's breeding program. Since chimps are an endangered species, nearly all of the animals produced for experimental purposes have to be bred in captivity.

"We produce half of the baby chimps born in this country," Weaver said.

Fifteen males and about 50 females are kept in cages in a separate section of the complex. Their job: making babies.

"They've got it pretty good," Weaver said. "I've never heard of them needing encouragement."

The baby chimps are kept in a disease-free nursery until they are about a year old. The nursery resembles one for children, with diapered baby chimps frolicking on the floor with balls and toys.

"There's not that much difference between a chimp baby and a human baby until the human baby acquires language," Weaver said.

Hobson said the infant chimps provide researchers with a means to study infant sexuality and endocrinology.

"You couldn't draw blood from an infant human every day for a test," he said. "It wouldn't hurt them, but you couldn't do it for ethical reasons. You can with a chimp."

The baby chimps are born at the institute at a rate of 30 to 40 per year. After they reach a certain age, some are sent to other research facilities for experiments and others are kept at the institute for research there.

The chimp colony was begun in the 1950s by the Air Force for tests on primate behavior and to train chimps for space travel. Ham and Enos, two chimps who preceded man into space, were trained at the institute.

The Air Force maintained the facility until 1971, when it decided to get out of the monkey business and turn the lease over to the Albany, N.Y., Medical College. The New York school ended its long-distance administration of the facility last September when New Mexico State University at Las Cruces took over.

The medical college researchers also started a colony of Rhesus monkeys at the institute which today has grown to 400 monkeys.

Although Rhesus monkeys have been harder to acquire since their native India has stopped exporting them, Weaver said they still are being used in experiments that could result in death. He said the chimps are not because they are an endangered species.

Weaver said the Rhesus monkeys also are harder to handle than the chimps, which tend to identify with certain handlers and be gentler.

Weaver said the chimps at the institute are expected to live longer than their wild relatives, too.

"They live 35 to 40 years in the wild," he said. "We estimate they'll live about 50 years in our facility. Nobody's had a colony in captivity long enough to know."

Hobson and Weaver said treatment of the apes is aimed at making sure they live as long as possible.

"We don't want them mad at us and we don't want them damaged," Hobson said. "We have a very special job in being keepers of animals so close to men."
