Until yesterday, when the county commissioners, after a thorough inspection, accepted the Gray county courthouse, the graceful structure, built of light-colored brick and ornamented with figured terra-cotta panels just north of Albert Square was owned by the H. L. Case Construction company and material men.

Today the official family of Gray county is moving into the new courthouse. Yesterday, Mr. Case and Architect W. R. Kaufman announced that the courthouse was completed, "down to the last screw." Immediately, the commissioners began an inspection tour that lasted for an hour.

In a session of the court following the visual examination of the building, the county paid all the courthouse bills and attended to other matters. It was the longest meeting held by the court this year. Mr. Kaufman, Mr. Case, and various other contractors were paid by the county.

After an hour's discussion, the commissioners ordered that the fire and tornado insurance on the new courthouse be prorated equally among the various insurance agencies of Gray county, a total of twelve. The insurance will be written by the dozen companies for a three-year period for the full value of the building, $270,000 and on the furniture, valued at $30,000. The building will also be protected by explosion insurance. The Panhandle Insurance Agency, until yesterday, had the structure insured with a builders' risk policy.

The commissioners set the janitor's salary at $175. This amount includes the janitor's salary and that of any extra persons he may hire. Curtis Thompson, present janitor, was hired again.

The contract to paint the letters on the office doors was let to the Al Lawson Sign Service of Pampa. Cost of designating the offices will be ten cents a letter.

The commissioners unanimously approved Commissioner John White's suggestion that the letter "v" not be used for "u" in the lettering on the doors. Commissioner M. M. Newman said that "courthouse" spelled with "v's" instead of "u's" on the nameplate had drawn more adverse comment than if the courthouse had been painted yellow. He said the "Gray county courthouse" had caused many people "in his neck of the woods" to wonder if the commissioners and the architect "had gone daffy." Several months ago, Mr. Kaufman explained that "classic architectural spelling" had been employed.

The commissioners assigned the room in the extreme northwest corner on the first floor to Miss Myrtle Miller, county home demonstration agent.

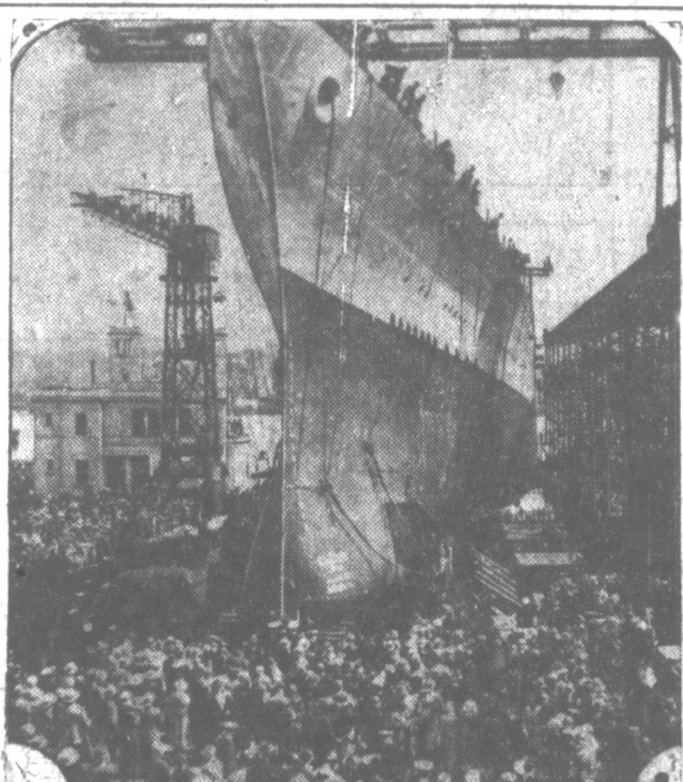

Upon motion of Mr. Newman, the commission voted to pay all outstanding bounties on rabbit and coyote scalps, and to discontinue the payment of all bounties.

Colleen Asks Divorce

LOS ANGELES, April 15. (AP)—Colleen Moore, film favorite, and her producer-husband, John McCormick have reached the parting of the ways.

The oft-rumored rift in their domestic life was climaxed yesterday by the filing of a divorce action by Miss Moore, in which mental cruelty was made the basis of her complaint.

While cheering throngs looked on, the cruiser Chicago, Uncle Sam's newest fighting craft, shown above, slipped down the ways at Mare Island navy yards, San Francisco. The Chicago, second of three ships ordered by Congress three years ago, cost $10,000,000 and is the largest to be launched on the Pacific coast in a decade.

PHILLIPS COMPANY WOOD TEST EXTENDS PRODUCTION NORTH OF MARLAND-FINLEY POOL LIMITS

The Marland-Finley pool was extended two locations north of production Saturday when No. 1 J. E. Wood of the Phillips Petroleum company 80 barrels an hour.

The well is now producing about 1,500 barrels daily, flowing natural. About eleven million feet of gas came with the oil.

The pay was found between 2,825 and 2,840. Total depth of the hole is 2,860. The first test was for 20 hours and showed 1,239 barrels. The first 24-hour test was completed yesterday morning and showed 1,531 barrels. The well is known as the No. 1 Wright-Wood. It is 330 feet north, 990 feet east of the southwest corner of the north half of the southwest quarter of section 13, block 3.

Offsets to the well are being drilled as rapidly as possible.

Well at West City Limits Is Now of Interest

Considerable local interest has been taken by local citizens in the Cockrell-McIlroy Oil company's No. 1 Castleberry, section 126, block 3, adjoining the city of Pampa, which has reached a depth of 2,500 feet. The well is being standardized at present and drilling will be resumed as soon as the process of changing from rotary to standard is completed. Gas is expected at 2,800 feet.

Empire Gas and Fuel company's No. 1-B Archer, section 139, block 3, four miles west of town, has been drilled to 3,355 feet and will be shot this week. At 3,000 feet 12 million feet of gas was found and at 3,135 the first oil was encountered. The well will be shot from a depth of 3,250 feet. The test is located 330 feet each way from the southwest corner of the southeast quarter of the section.

The twenty-seventh annual session of the Panhandle association of the I. O. O. F. lodge will convene in Pampa, April 29 for a two-day meeting. Delegates from every lodge in the Panhandle from Tulsa north will attend.

At the convention held at Plainview last year more than 500 members, exclusive of their wives were in attendance.

On the first day of the session, Tuesday, April 29, registration will begin at 8 o'clock at the local I. O. O. F. hall. A public meeting will be held at 10 a. m. at the First Methodist church. Rev. A. D. Moore of Plainview will deliver the invocation. The first speaker will be Rev. A. D. Moore of Plainview.

At a meeting place yet to be decided, the Decoration of Chivalry will be bestowed at 8 p. m. on the last day. The convention will close with a dance at the Schneider hotel beginning at 9 o'clock.

A team from each of the four ward schools and Junior high, will participate in the music memory contests. Man Helped by Legion Succumbs

Sullivan Light, a veteran of the World war, who was ill in Pampa for several weeks last winter and whose wife and three children still are residents of this city, died yesterday in a veterans' hospital at Sulphur, Okla.

Through the assistance of the local American Legion post and its auxiliary unit, the sick man was placed in the hospital for disabled veterans. His family left today for Sulphur, where the funeral services and burial were to be held. The children are seven, five, and three years old.

Love Is Denounced

Claim He Forfeited
All Rights To Membership

AUSTIN, April 15. (AP)—Declaring that Senator Thomas B. Love of Dallas had "abandoned his membership in the Democratic party," and "forfeited his right to become the party's candidate for governor," attorneys for D. W. Wilcox of Georgetown, chairman, and members of the state Democratic executive committee, today filed their answer to Love's application in the supreme court for a mandamus to compel the committee to place his name as a candidate for governor on the 1930 primary ballots.

The case will be submitted to the court tomorrow, and the tribunal will act directly on the application for a mandamus and a motion to dismiss it for want of jurisdiction. It probably will be several weeks before a decision is reached.

The executive committee meeting in Austin February 1, passed resolutions directing that when it meets June 9 to certify names of candidates it reject applications of those who failed to support the presidential nominees in 1928. Senator Love had stated in his application for a place on the ballots that he had not supported Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, but had voted for Republican electors.

The committee's answer to Love's petition declared he "cannot and will not meet the qualifications prescribed for candidates by the state committee, that he had 'failed and refused to keep the time honored pledges of a party fealty and is not in a position to force himself upon the party as a candidate,' adding that 'it had been the custom for a long number of years for the Democratic party to exclude from participation therein all persons save those holding a present party allegiance and having a bona fide intention to support the party nominees,' and that 'the practice of excluding those who are not willing to support the nominations made by the party is followed for the purpose of protecting the existence, purity and integrity of the party.'

Pointing out Senator Love's connection with the "Anti-Tammany campaign" in the 1928 presidential campaign, the answer declared he was "a faithless and undependable member" of the Democratic party. If, in fact he were a member at all.

Slaying Suspect Held at Dallas

DALLAS, April 15. (AP)—Sheriff Ed Blakeman of Collin county was here today to aid Dallas county officers in an investigation of a man arrested yesterday as a suspect in the slaying of J. R. Cotner, city marshal of Nevada, shot down by burglars March 14.

Officers said the man was identified through fingerprints as an escaped convict and an escaped prisoner from the Amarillo jail where he was held on a charge of robbery. He also was identified as a robber who held up a drug store.

Bill Jackson Returns From Cannibal Isles And Tells Stirring Tales of Experiences

Soles of the feet and palms of the hands are choice meat cuts of cannibals in the Dutch East Indies whose inhabitants are totally uncivilized, according to Bill Jackson, who with Vergil Nixon last night returned to his old stomping ground at Pampa after living months among cannibals of the South Seas.

While the primary purpose of their visit to the islands was to shoot a movie of the natives, they also went to satisfy a desire of long standing to visit the uncivilized portions of the Indian ocean. About next July, a motion picture factory of Hollywood will release an all-talking, all-color film called "Ki-Ki," which was taken by Jackson, Nixon, and J. C. Cook and J. C. Cook Jr., of Hollywood. It will be the first of its kind to be produced, is all-talking and all-color. While the four men were in the islands they used 40,000 feet of film in taking pictures of island scenes and cannibal life.

In relating to his friend, Lon Blansett, some of his most thrilling experiences, Jackson said that he and the three other white men of the party got a real scare last Christmas eve when they were surrounded by 500 cannibals, but outran them to the ship. At this particular island, called Thursday by sailors, it was unsafe to sleep on land so the party kept to their ship after night-fall.

The 60-foot launch was anchored in the brackish waters surrounding the island, and one night Jackson

McLEAN MAN IS FIRST TO WEAR "STRAW" HERE

The first straw hat seen in Pampa this year was being worn by Commissioner M. M. Newman of McLean.

Mr. Newman told the commissioners yesterday that it was a great deal warmer in McLean than here, and besides, he said, "it's been pretty warm this month even if it is just April. The time to begin wearing a straw is when the trees begin to get green. That's when a straw really feels good. And another thing, you fellows whose hair is either thin on top or totally missing have a good reason to want to wear your felt hats in April. Now, take me—well, my head gets hot."

On May 2, the Legion post will give a banquet for students finishing the seventh grade. The purpose of this will be to inspire the pupils to enter high school, and to impress upon them the desirability of continuing their educations.

Much interest in Pampa schools centers around American Legion awards which will be made at commencement time.

Winning students in each of the wards and in Junior high school will receive medals given by the local post, and a loving cup will be the Central high school award.

The winners will be selected from the upper ten students of each school, scholastically considered, and the basis will be scholarship, service, character, and leadership. The awards will be conferred by the Americanization committee of the Legion, of which P. E. Boyd is chairman.

BISHOP CANNON
MAY BE HEARD

Coercion Alleged to Have Been Tried in Letter

WASHINGTON, April 15. (AP)—A charge that the Anti-Saloon league has repeatedly violated the federal corrupt practices act was made today before the senate lobby committee by Representative Tinkham, Republican, Massachusetts.

Saying the league had collected and expended $67,565,313 from 1883 to 1926 inclusive, Tinkham testified that only "nominal returns" had been made for the clerk of the house of representatives of the sums used for "political purposes."

Tinkham, a wet, demanded that the committee obtain the names of at least the larger contributors. He said these had never been made public.

He also requested the committee to summon Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, and the books and papers of the Southern Methodist board of temperance and social service, of which Cannon is chairman.

Cannon has informed the committee he would be glad to appear and furnish any information desired. Tinkham already has requested the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church and the Federal Council of Churches.

Senator Robinson, Republican, Indiana, asked Tinkham if he would object to the league using money to educate people to enforce the law.

"I am for the enforcement of the law," the witness replied. "I think the Anti-Saloon league should obey the corrupt practices act."

He said "large sums of money" were being raised by the league for political purposes, and read a letter sent out last June by Foster Copeland, chairman on a league committee, which appealed for contributions.

"The money was to be used to 'build a public sentiment' in support of prohibition, the witness said, and specifically 'to reflect dry congresses' and 'a dry president.'"

Turning to the Southern Methodist board of temperance and social service, which he charged with engaging in "offensive and coercive lobbying activities," Tinkham read a letter he said had been written in 1926 by Bishop Cannon to Senator Curtis, now vice-president.

The letter asked Curtis, who was senate Republican leader, whether "those in control of legislation in the senate are willing for the country to understand that they are willing for congress to adjourn without passing important prohibition legislation."

"This letter was clearly an audacious sectarian appeal with an implied threat of political reprisals," Tinkham said.

PUBLIC FORUM

Editor, Pampa Daily News:

I have read with more than passing interest your editorial in the April 13 issue of the Pampa Daily News, entitled: "What Kind of Farmers Needed?"

I certainly think the editorial timely and to the point. Too many people have been in the past, and are yet, to a certain extent, taking it upon themselves to tell the farmers what they ought to do and how they may manipulate things in order that they can get and have a square deal.

Farmers are advised to do this or that or the other by those who have had little or no direct experience with the solution of the farmers' problems. Many times, perhaps in most instances, if these same people who are so eager and willing to offer the farmer free advice and a sure cure for all ills, were forced to earn their living from tilling soil, they might not thrive nor accomplish any more than the present generation of farmers who are doing the best they know or have ever been taught. In many instances, no doubt, many of these would-be free farmer advisers would find out that many of their pet theories and plans would fail to "pan out" as they are so ready to have others believe that they would.

In the last twelve years, I have devoted the major part of my time to the teaching of agriculture. During these twelve years, I have had many and sundry occasions to come in contact with the farmers and to know in detail many of their vexing problems. In a small way, perhaps, I have been of some assistance in helping the farmers solve some of these problems.

As I have just stated, I have devoted the last twelve years of my life to teaching agriculture. Not only have I had this experience, but I was reared on a farm and owned and operated a farm for more than twenty years of my adult life. So whatever I may say in conclusion, I have learned by actually doing the thing that I have here referred to.

I know the farmers of Pampa trade territory and their problems as well, perhaps better, than anyone else. I know that they have and will continue to have many vital problems to face and solve. But, their present need is not diversification, and I believe in diversification with all my heart. I also believe in crop rotation as a general farm practice. But when I know and fully appreciate the great outlay the wheat farmers are forced to make for wheat farming implements and machinery—from $5,000 to $7,000—I hesitate to advise them to spend more for other kinds of machinery and implements with which to carry on these other farm enterprises.

For the interest on the investment and the depreciation on these implements and farm machinery are no little items. At best, a large part of the farm machinery and implements are in use for only a few days each year. And when depreciation and interest on the investment are taken into account, it is surprising the success that many of the farmers make.

I make bold to state that for the present at least, wheat should constitute our major crop and farm enterprise. In the future, no doubt, the acreage will be divided into smaller farms. Then, if it ever comes, will be time enough to preach diversification of farm crops.

For at present we are not suffering from a shortage of any or either of the major crops. But on the contrary the opposite of this is true. Federal department of agriculture reports given out March 28 of this year show that we are not likely to suffer from this cause in the near future. According to this report, the farmers are not cutting the acreage of any of the major farm crops but on the contrary, in almost every instance, these crops are being increased in acreage. A few statistical facts obtained in the aforementioned government report may not be out of place.

1. Acreage in oats for 1930, 2 1-2 per cent increase.
2. Barley acreage increase for 1930, 17 per cent.
3. Rice acreage increase for 1930, 9.4 per cent.
4. Feed grains, corn, kaffir, milo, higer, feterita, etc., increase in acreage this year 2.7 per cent.
5. Beans, increase in acreage, 1.5 per cent.
6. Peanuts increase in acreage, 1.5 per cent.
7. Potatoes increase in acreage, 3.4 per cent.
8. Cabbage increase in acreage intended, 4 per cent.
9. Tobacco, intended acreage increase, 5.7 per cent.

The cotton farmers are being told that unless they decrease their acreage they will be in dire distress.

We are told and re-told today that this is an age of specialization. Then if we accept this philosophy as true and correct, why should not the farmers of Pampa specialize in the production of wheat? Especially since they have suitable land, an ideal climate, and the implements and machinery necessary to carry on with?

It would follow from a study of the facts that Henry Ford is correct in saying that we are coming to a shorter day and week as the solution of what some people would describe as a problem that has no solution. This is the first of a series of articles that I shall write upon present farm conditions.

The keynote of the convention was given as spiritually trained leadership, with several speakers of prominence in the Baptist church on the program for addresses. The Rev. A. L. Aulick of Austin was general chairman.

Most of the convention time was assigned to departmental conferences and discussions of Sunday school activity. Special efforts to arouse increased interest in Sunday school work through adoption of a program aimed at attracting both young and old drew attention of delegates.

Included in the list of speakers were: T. C. Gardner of Dallas, state secretary of the Baptist Young People's Union; former Governor Pat M. Neff—Dr. F. B. Thorn of Waco; Dr. W. R. POWER

CONOCO Gasoline is actually tested dozens of times in the process of refining—but it is called Triple Tested Gasoline because all of these tests converge into three main tests—for starting—acceleration—power!

These are the things that motorists want—and are entitled to get—from the gasoline they use. A gasoline may be ever so powerful—but if it is not volatile enough to start the motor quickly and give rapid acceleration in traffic—it will not satisfy today's demands. And easy starting, swift acceleration, are mere snares if they are not backed up with power for every need—economical power!

CONOCO Gasoline meets all three of these important practical tests—that's the reason so many people insist on Triple Tested—

Norma Lee Is Crescent Star

A lovely brunette from "Old Kentucky," Norma Lee is bringing to the Crescent theatre today, a delicious Southern accent which is not the least of the charms of this very popular stage beauty.

"Wise Girls," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talking picture which opens today at the Crescent theatre, will be Norma Lee's first talking picture, despite her years of success on Broadway.

Her debut in this production is particularly fortuitous in that her part of "Kate Bence" is one she originally created on Broadway when "Wise Girls," then known as "Kempy," broke all records for domestic comedies by running fifty-three weeks.

"Kate" was a particularly nice character to play because she is so very human," says Miss Lee, whom Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has placed under contract. "Kate is an impetuous, self-willed person who is determined to go on the stage, and who needs a good lesson to teach her that she really loves Duke Merrill, and that all of her aspirations are just apple sauce."

"At first she isn't quite kind to her father, who has spent a young fortune on her clothes and education. She thinks her folks are in the way. She even pounces on poor helpless Kempy Jones and marries him in order to have a legal escort to take her to join a show at Atlantic City! Kempy, however, turns from a lamb into a lion—and Kate is absolutely bewildered by his change of front."

"Duke Merrill gets Kate in the end—but there are many funny situations before that eventuality."

"It was lots of fun to play 'Kate' in the talkies because they offered so much more chance to develop the character. She didn't have to stay within the walls of one room. She moves in and out of the 'Bence' house at will. This additional mobility added much of strength and interest to her part."

"I do hope I never have to do just straight, conventional leads. Colorful parts like 'Kate' are so much more fun!"

HOW ONE MAN ENDED "RHEUMATISM"

Stomach Troubles, and Built up His Strength At The Same Time

There is a way to get rid of rheumatism pains along with pains in the stomach, back and sides—and until you try it you can blame only yourself for your suffering. It's through the use of the remarkable medicine Tanlae that for years has steadily but quietly been performing almost miraculous benefits for millions. Here's just one case out of thousands who have in their joy taken the trouble to write us. His name is Mr. R. F. Burbage. Mr. Burbage, a transfer man, suffered for 18 years from rheumatism and so he had to earn his living like you and I had just about despairing when as a last resort he tried Tanlae. "I could hardly move about or raise my arms up. To go up or down stairs it would seem like my knees would break. The pains were awful and crippled me up. Besides rheumatism, my digestion was bad and I was rundown generally. It was a mighty big handicap!" — business. Finally I began Tanlae and it was the best for me. It began at once to overcome my muscular rheumatism and now have not an ache or pain and am a well and new man. I recommend Tanlae with unbounded confidence. Other remedies may promise but Tanlae performs—a real medicine that backs claims with a guarantee. Accept no substitute. At all druggists.

Bridge Club Meets Monday at Home of Mr. and Mrs. John Peake

Mr. and Mrs. John Peake entertained last evening for the Twin Six bridge club. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Saunders were their special guests, and the club members present were: Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Buckler, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shepherd, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Allison. High score favors were awarded Mrs. Johnston and Mr. Allison, after which delicious refreshments were served. Suggestions of Easter lent added interest to the bridge tables and the plates.

Eleventh Birthday Celebrated Saturday With Matinee Party

Jack Allison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Allison, celebrated his eleventh birthday Saturday with a matinee party at the Rex theatre, followed by refreshments and the cutting of the birthday cake at the Canary Sandwich shop. A number of attractive gifts were presented by the friends who attended. The following were guests: Paul Schneider, Lillian Rice, George Lane, Gladia Atteberry, Shirley Akers, Elizabeth Freedman, Ann Swastman Medra Richardson, Don Foster, Mary Frances Hamlett, Bob Mitchell, Jane Daniels, Barbara Johnson and John Henry Hinkle.

Mrs. Arthur Swanson Hostess at Attractive Week-End Bridge Tea

A prettily appointed party of the week-end was given by Mrs. Arthur Swanson, who entertained members of Club Mayfair and other friends at her home with four tables of bridge.

The Easter theme of decoration predominated in accessories for the game and the setting for tea, with a color combination of pink, yellow, and green featured.

Easter baskets filled with colored candies marked covers at the quarter tables when refreshments were served, and a green bud vase and pink carnation which centered each table was given as a cut favor.

Mrs. R. G. Hughes made high score for club members, and Mrs. Hal Peck for additional guests. The cut favors went to Mrs. M. D. Oden.

"Yesterday Johnny fell and broke his arm."

"The wife was nearly frantic. She telephoned Dr. Smith, our family physician, but he was out. The only other doctor she could think of was out, too."

"Well, the boy was howling and she was almost in hysterics when I got home. I glanced through the yellow pages in the telephone directory and got in touch with a nearby physician immediately."

"Thirty minutes later Dr. Smith called up, but by then the arm had been set and Johnny was smiling through his tears."

"The 'yellow pages' are the Classified Telephone Directory. In them you can find 'where to buy' almost anything or everything—thus:

(1) If you want your radio repaired, look under "radio business." You'll find many radio repair companies listed.

(2) If you want a refrigerator—a place under "refrigerators." It will give you numerous local dealers to choose from.

(3) Certain trade-marked articles, such as Seiberling tires, are listed. Look under "Seiberling" and you will find the Seiberling trade-mark and a list of local dealers.

In other words, the Classified Telephone Directory includes four classifications:

1. Businesses, professions
2. Services
3. Commodities
4. "Trade-marked" articles.

The idea behind this "Where-to-buy-it" directory is to tell you quickly, conveniently, clearly, where to find whatever you want. Its use will save you minutes. Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

BUY NO DESK

Until You've Seen the Sensation of The Business Show

Buy no desk until you have seen Skyscraper, the new desk by Shaw-Walker. You'll marvel at the downright cleverness of it. You'll revel in the rich beauty of it. You'll be amazed at the organized features of it. And you'll gladly pay the moderate price asked for it. Your people, too, will thank you for an easier and better day's work.

Murder.
Backstairs

BEGIN HERE TODAY

DORIS Matthews, lady's maid, is murdered Friday night after 11:30 in a summerhouse on the Berkeley estate, by a blow with a heavy perfume flask, presented to MRS. BERKELEY by SEYMOUR CROSBY.

The body, rock-weighted and tied with CLORINDA BERKELEY's scarf, is taken from the lake Saturday morning by DETECTIVE BONNIE DUNDEE, who summons CAPTAIN STRAWN.

MEMBERS OF HOUSEHOLD: (all under suspicion) Mr. and Mrs. George Berkeley, who have quarreled late Friday night over Clorinda's engagement to Crosby, close friend of the social secretary, MRS. LAMBERT; GIGI BERKELEY, who sprinkled all persons in drawing room Friday night with perfume from the murder flask, later placed in Mrs. Berkeley's bathroom by WICKETT; butler; DICK BERKELEY, who after having been missing all night turns up while his mother is accusing EUGENE ARNOLD, chauffeur, engaged to Doris, of having murdered Doris and Dick out of jealousy.

Mrs. Berkeley is forced to admit she dressed her for dinner because Doris said she used too much perfume; admits also she instructed Doris to wait up for her but says Doris was not in her rooms when she (Mrs. Berkeley) went up to bed at 11:40. Roused print of Doris's mouth on bathroom mirror proves girl was there and that a struggle took place.

Clorinda Berkeley, not in love with Crosby, introduced by Mrs. Lambert, social secretary, admits having been in summerhouse about midnight after crime was committed, which she says accounts for perfume on her slipper soles. Perfume flask had been placed in Mrs. Berkeley's bathroom by Wickett, butler. Clorinda denies witnessing crime.

Gigi Berkeley, who sprinkled every one Friday evening with perfume from murder flask, says she saw Doris crying and talking with Crosby after 11. Arnold says he left note for Doris breaking appointment in summerhouse and supplies alibi for murder hour, but says he saw man leaving grounds at midnight. Strawn orders police to round up JOHN MAXWELL, former suitor of Clorinda Berkeley.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXV
Fifteen minutes later Captain Strawn and Bonnie Dundee were strolling together from the garage toward the rear of the big stone house.

"What do you think, boy?" Strawn asked, scowling thoughtfully.

"I think Arnold has told the truth, Chief. Aside from the fact that there isn't a trace of that confounded perfume on the uniform he was wearing yesterday, or on his shoes—"

"What about that half-empty bottle of cleaning fluid on his dresser?"

"I've got a bottle of the same stuff on my chiffonier at the Rhodes House," Dundee grinned. "Pretty good to remove spots, and a chauffeur must need it more than I do."

"And pretty good to cover up the stink of perfume, maybe," Strawn said.

grew. "Hey, what the devil!"

"Guess who!" a disguised voice demanded hoarsely from behind him; as two small brown hands were clapped over his eyes.

"The Pest again!" Strawn deduced, flinging up a big hand to seize her arm. "Where did you come from? Didn't I give orders for all of you to stay in the house?"

"I've been shadowing you!" Gigi panted, laughing. "I trailed you to the garage, quick up the stairs after you and saw you quail with fear when Arnold said he'd kill you if you said one more word about poor Doris stealing Abbie's perfume. And I must say I didn't blame him a bit! Of all the silly theories you've been reeling off to-day, that takes the prize!"

"I'll have you put in jail to keep you from butting in," Strawn threatened.

"Oh, no! You need me around to laugh at you in the right places!" Gigi contradicted. Then, making her voice very deep and gruff, extraordinarily like Strawn's: "Then let me tell you what happened, Eugene Arnold! Falling in with your plans to save every nickel you could get your hands on, honestly or crookedly, Doris Matthews stole that valuable crystal flask, filled with $32-an-ounce perfume, sneaked out of the house with it to meet you, not knowing you'd called the date off; went to the summerhouse to wait for you, was found there by Dick Berkeley, who proposed marriage to her; accepted him because he could give her more than you ever could, and was letting him make love to her when you came upon them. And in a jealous rage you killed her, while Dick Berkeley ran away like the coward he is!"

"I don't know," she added, in her normal voice, "whether to be an actress or a detective! But you'll admit you were a wow, Captain Strawn! I thought I'd choke to death trying to keep from laughing out loud!"

"Yeah, damned funny!" Strawn growled, while Dundee laughed wholeheartedly.

"Listen, Captain Strawn!" Gigi commanded, suddenly very serious. "Anyone who knew Doris Matthews could tell you she wasn't the kind of girl who could have stolen a pin, much less a silly flask of perfume to help her swell build a filling station! And, as I've told you before, she'd have laughed in Dick's face if he'd asked her to marry him, and then she'd have slapped him if he'd tried to kiss her. As a suspect, Eugene Arnold is a wash-out."

"How about you to take his place?" Strawn suggested.

"Ideal!" Gigi laughed. "Let me tell you about it: I was sore at Abbie for having slapped me before company. I snuck into her room to get even with her by pouring out the rest of her precious Fleur d'Armour. Doris caught me in the act. Loyal maid protects mistress at all costs. Chases naughty child down the hall, down the back stairs and out into the night. Naughty child flies into a rage, bangs loyal maid over the head, and—"

"Oh, no!" she shuddered. "I can't go on, even as a joke. I—I was crazy about Doris. Anybody who knew her would have been!"

Without another word she tore herself out of Strawn's grip and fled to the house, stumbling sometimes, her eyes blind with tears.

"Punny kid!" Dundee smiled. "But she's right, Chief. This is the very devil of a case and jumping to foolish conclusions will get us nowhere. By the way, what about John Maxwell? Something Arnold said seemed to ring a bell in your brain. Do you know Maxwell?"

"Slightly," Strawn replied. "Son of one of Hamilton's former police chiefs. Old man's dead now. The boys had pretty rough sledding; had to step in and be a daddy to his younger brothers and sister. Paid his way through college and law school, after his mother married again. Just passed his bar examinations, according to the papers. Ran into him on the street yesterday; told me he was going into the district attorney's office and try to work up into assistant district attorney."

"And he was wearing a light-gray topcoat and a gray felt hat when you saw him?" Dundee suggested.

"Right! But so were probably a thousand other young men on the streets of Hamilton. The point is, he's big and tall, and he was an all-round athlete star in college. If Arnold's telling the truth, it was pretty certain that it was John Maxwell who strolled around these grounds with Clorinda Berkeley last night. If so, I want to know what he saw! That Berkeley girl has told so many lies—"

"Probably to keep John Maxwell's name out of the mess," Dundee pointed out. "Women in love do some mighty queer things—Well, what next, Chief?"

"Guess I'll have to go at the rest of the servants. No use keeping 'em tied up longer than necessary."

"Sort of—saving Crosby?" Dundee asked, and the two detectives looked at each other with significantly raised eyebrows.

Wickett met them in the back room so I just took it to my room—me and Peggy room together, sir—and we got to giggling about it, and wondering what kind of love letter—"

"It was you that opened it, not me!" pretty, black-eyed, black haired Peggy Harper cut in sharply. "Me—I wouldn't dream of opening anybody else's love letters—"

"Well, you read it, too, didn't you?" Della sobbed.

"I tore the envelope a little bit, opening it with a hairpin, and then I was scared to take it to her, though me and Peggy heard her go to her room—"

"Wait a minute! What time was all this? First, what time was it when you took the letter to her room and found she wasn't there?"

"It was nearly 11 when I went downstairs to find me an apple, so it musta been just about 11 o'clock when I couldn't find her in her room. I don't know exactly, 'cause I didn't look at no clock or nothing."

"And how long before you heard her going into her room?"

"I dunno! 'Bout five or ten minutes, I reckon," Della replied sulkily. "Then we heard her telephone ring, kinda faint-like, 'cause the door was closed, and right after that we heard her door open again, and we guessed she went downstairs, but we didn't look out, so we didn't see nothing."

"Did you hear her return again?" Strawn asked.

"No, but we wouldn't nohow, 'cause me and Peggy was already in bed and pretty near asleep when her phone rang. And we didn't hear nothing else all night, did we, Peggy?"

"Not a sound!" Peggy corroborated eagerly. "Geef! It sure is too bad—a nice, pretty girl like Doris—"

"All right, girls. Get along with your work now, but don't leave the house without my permission—Well!" and Strawn turned to Dundee, after the two girls had scurried out of the sitting room.

"Doris's room next, eh? I'm getting pretty anxious to have a squint at that letter she was writing to her sister in England."

"So am I," Dundee agreed, as they ascended the back stairs.

"Anybody try to get into the girl's room, Wilkins?" Captain Strawn asked the detective on duty in the third floor hall.

"No, sir. All quiet up here. Haven't seen a soul except a young man who said he was Dick Berkeley. He's in his own room up front now."

Dundee opened the unlocked door and stepped aside, to let his chief precede him into the murdered girl's room. It was very small, not much bigger than a closet, but Doris Matthews had succeeded in making it homelike, even pretty. There were a narrow wooden bed, a tiny rocking chair, a flimsy little book rack, a table and a cheap dresser, all freshly painted a soft green, undoubtedly decorated by her own hand, for an almost empty quart can of green enamel was tucked away on an upper shelf of the miniature clothes closet.

"Guess she bought and made these curtains, too," Strawn said gruffly, fingering the pale yellow-and-green flowered voile that fluttered at the narrow window.

Only the carpet on the floor was out of keeping with the immaculate daintiness of the little cubicle. It was a worn square of gaudily flowered carpeting.

In the closet they found four pretty but inexpensive silk dresses, a very English-looking, jaunty little tweed suit, and a lightweight fall coat. On a shelf was a hat box, containing a saucy green beret and a close-fitting cloche of silky, dark-blue felt.

"Good taste in clothes," Dundee said softly, almost as if he were speaking to the girl who could never flush with delight at another compliment; but his chief had turned to the table and was gathering up the closely written sheets of an unfinished letter.

"This ought to tell us a lot about Doris Matthews," Strawn said. "And—by George, it does!"

The iron-gray head and the black one bent together over the last letter Doris Matthews would ever write.

"Dorothy Kathy—it began—" "I have been too miserable, too busy and too happy to write you as often as I should. I've destroyed your last letter, as you asked me to, but I think I can remember most of the questions, and I'll try to answer them."

"First: Yes, I've been terribly homesick for England and for you, until—but that will come later."

"Second: Wickett is well, and the same old darling. I don't know how I could have lived the first two weeks here, if he hadn't been here, too, to buck me up. He sends you his love, and offers you my job when—but that comes later, too! I'm saying it up for a grand climax!"

"Third: Mrs. Berkeley is as impossible and tyrannical as ever. Poor thing! I can't blame her much because of what I wrote you last time, and because she simply isn't a lady, and hasn't the ghost of an idea how real gentleness treat their servants."

Strawn chuckled. "Wonder how Abbie is going to like that, when the papers get hold of this letter?" They went on reading.

"For instance, she slapped my face this evening when I was dressing her for dinner. I probably shouldn't have said what I did, but I simply couldn't hold my tongue any longer. Of course it had to do with what I wrote you about before, and I spoke for Gigi's sake."

"I've told you how adorable the child is, how crazy I am about her. We are the best of friends, and Mrs. Clorinda is still kindness itself to me. She will make a very great lady some day."

"And now some real news for you, darling! Guess who arrived this afternoon. Mr. Crosby! I haven't seen him yet, but of course I shall. I dread it, in a way, because—Oh, well, you knew all about that! He is engaged to Clorinda Berkeley. It's to be announced at a big party tomorrow night, and the old warhorse is simply on her head with excitement. Think that, with Mrs. Lambert's help, she's going to conquer Hamilton society, then march triumphantly upon New York, Paris and London!"

"Mrs. Lambert is the same sweet, considerate 'great lady' she always was. If only she were the mistress! But about Mr. Crosby. I can't see how he can possibly marry again so soon. It seems like only yesterday that that awful insect—" two years in preparation. Cannibal fight for the soles of the feet and the palms of the hand, Jackson said. In cooking their neighbors the cannibals cut the bodies up into small bits before stewing them.

The travelers brought back hundreds of souvenirs and curios with them. A native boy, who was educated at a Dutch mission school in the islands, and who acted as interpreter, returned with them. Jackson said he bought the boy his first shoes and his first shirt and that he walked about like an American who is wearing his first skis. The boy is now in California at the Hollywood studios. He, as the rest of the natives, uses his toes with as much dexterity as he uses his hands. Jackson was first attracted to him when he picked up a cigarette with his toes and began smoking it.

The Americans landed on the islands on Dec. 2 and stayed there until January. Previously they visited the Hawaiian Islands, Japan, and many Chinese ports. They were gone from the States seven months. The Dutch Indies are south and east of Borneo and northwest of Australia.

In their tour of the islands they hired enemy tribes as guards. Jackson said it would not have been safe to hire guards on the island being visited. One of the most interesting islands they toured was Bali, which is star-shaped and is due south of Borneo. Their guide was an Australian who had been in the Islands 22 years. He killed several natives each day to hold their respect.

Jackson and Nixon will remain here for about two weeks before returning to Hollywood. Jackson is well-known here and today is busy receiving the congratulations of his friends that he escaped the man-eaters. He said he will be on hand for the annual American Legion rodeo, which he aids in promoting every year.

"Bad Boy" Again Escapes at Nolan County's Jail

SWEETWATER, April 15. (P)—Led by Hope Leonard, self-styled "Nolan county bad boy," eight prisoners escaped from the county jail here today.

Officers believed the prisoners were aided by an outside party. It was the fifth escape from the jail this year. Besides Leonard, held for theft, the other prisoners were Jules Armstrong, held for theft and burglary; Ben Bratcher, held for theft; Buster Morton, held for criminal attack; Leonard Smith, held for forgery; Green Dillon, held for forgery; and Joe Stokes and George Carroll. One prisoner refused to leave.

Production Has Large Increase Over Country

TULSA, Okla., April 15. (P)—Coincidental with increases in oil prices by various companies, the estimated daily average production of light and heavy gravity oil in the United States for the week ending April 12, climbed a modest 42,211 barrels, recording 2,558,496, says the current report of the Oil & Gas Journal.

The light oil increase was 37,054 barrels daily average for the week ending April 5 was 2,526,285 barrels.

Oklahoma's 29,485-barrel gain contributed principally to the gain. Of this 16,260 was added by the Seminole, and 12,045 by the Oklahoma City fields. Declines in the Gulf Coast and Southwest Texas fields caused the decrease in heavy oil production. Slight gains were reported in the Eastern and Rocky Mountain areas while California remained virtually constant.

Kansas production was 124,950 against 117,320 barrels for the previous week.

Liquor Bill Proposed

LONDON, April 15. (P)—The House of Commons, by a vote of 215 to 142, today gave a Liberal member leave to introduce a bill to entitle the board of trades to suspend or cancel the certificate of any master, mate, or engineer engaging in the illicit importation of intoxicating liquor into United States territory.

A daily breadline will be started soon in Washington, D. C.

More Homes in Which to Take Visitors Needed

The need of more homes in which to entertain delegates to the annual convention of the Seventh district of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs in this city, April 23, 24 and 25, was stressed yesterday afternoon at the monthly session of the Council of Clubs; and it was decided that unless Mrs. Tom Clayton and her reservations committee had secured enough promises of accommodations by the last of this week, it would be necessary to ask each of the federated clubs of the city to furnish homes for the same number of delegates it had members or pay for hotel accommodations for that number.

It was urged that each member of a federated club signify her intentions at once by telephoning Mrs. Clayton. Members of the Business and Professional Women's club and the A. A. U. W. and College club having their homes or apartments in the city, also were urged to entertain delegates during the three-day meeting. The council asked only that lodging and breakfast be furnished the guests, luncheons and dinners, as well as transportation, being provided for by committees.

An outline of the convention program was presented by Mrs. C. T. Hunkapillar. In view of the large crowd expected for the president's dinner on Thursday evening, the 24th, it was arranged that all local reservations should be made by noon on the Tuesday preceding. Mrs. Charles Thut, vice chairman general of the convention, was placed in charge of the tickets for that and other convention meals.

The council session was attended by the following delegates from the eight club units: Mrs. Tom E. Rose, chairman and presiding officer; Mrs. W. A. Bratton, Mrs. James Todd, Mrs. S. A. Hurst, Mrs. A. H. Doucette, Mrs. Arthur Swanson, Mrs. J. D. Sugg, Mrs. Tom Eller, Mrs. Hugh Isbell, Mrs. Floyd McConnell, Mrs. C. T. Hunkapillar, Mrs. S. A. Hurst, and Mrs. Tom Clayton.

Agreement Is Reached in Naval Problem Today

LONDON, April 15. (P)—The American and British naval delegations today reached agreement regarding the so-called safeguarding, or "escalator," clause for the naval treaty by which powers signing the tri-lateral limitation pact may protect themselves against competitive building by non-signatories.

Ambassador Morrow, American member of the treaty drafting committee, set himself up as a prophet this morning and became immediately popular with the American delegation by forecasting they would be able to sign the treaty and still catch the Leviathan home next Wednesday. He said that at the rate the committee was progressing they would have the document ready for signature at next Tuesday's plenary session.

The Leviathan is due to sail from Southampton at about noon Tuesday. It obviously will have to be held up to allow the American delegation to get aboard, but probably not later than early Wednesday.

although the ship's owners offered to delay its departure a full twenty-four hours. Delay of a great liner like the Leviathan to such an extent is almost unprecedented. Six voluminous reports of the first committee of the conference were issued this morning. These reports comprise all the work done at the conference and contain practically all the material which will form the treaty. They were given formal approval at yesterday's plenary session.

HERE'S PROOF

THIS is to certify that I was diagnosed as having cancer of the stomach by three up-to-the-minute physicians, before I was brought to a chiropractor's office by Uncle Frank and Aunt Mary Cope. I was hardly able to sit up at that time, and had lost 47 pounds. I had a Radiologic analysis which verified the diagnosis of the other doctors.

With the Copes' aid I purchased a card of Radiologic Vibrations—that being Armistic Day, 1929. Today—March 15, 1930—I have gained 32 pounds, can work hard every day, and feel good all the time. I was too sore to be adjusted for the first few weeks, so I just took the Radiologic alone for the first three weeks. I was dismissed today—and I can do a man's work and feel good all the time.

I can highly recommend the Radiologic and Chiropractic.
