BERKELEY, Cal.—Imagine a national society in which every applicant for membership must be at least 75, a society which has two distinct groups open only to possibly 100 living persons in the entire world.

Such a society has sprung up here in honor of Abraham Lincoln. It already has spanned the country to Massachusetts. Its first president is 95

Such is the background, so to speak, of the Abraham Lincoln Fellowship whose motto is "We Saw, Heard, Met or Knew Him." Its outstanding purpose is to "glean and reserve every incident obtainable from the personal contract of its members with Lincoln," according to Arthur H. Smythe, executive secretary and treasurer, of Berkeley.

First National Meeting

The first national meeting of the Fellowship will be held in Berkley on Lincoln's birthday. It is expected that some 100 charter members will gather at the temporary headquarters here. Another year should see the organization with permanent headquarters either in Chicago or Springfield, Ill.

Death already has made its inroads into the Fellowship. The Rev. Henry Herbert Smythe, 76, of Falmouth, Mass., first chaplain, died in November. The post of chaplain will be filled at the Lincoln day meeting.

Also, at that time, Ovid Edouard Pettis, of Oakland, Cal., 84, a drummer boy throughout the Civil War will become a vice president.

Clear Way For Bonus Measure

Final House Action Expected Next Monday On Legislation To Give Veterans More Money On Certificates

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11. — The way was cleared today for final house action next Monday on legislation to give war veterans more cash on their service certificates.

The ways and means committee narrowed consideration today to two proposals, one of which it is expected to approve tomorrow.

The choice lies between increasing loans and approximately $500,000,000 as advocated by Representative Bacharach, Republican, New Jersey, and the proposal by Representative Fish, Republican, New York, to pay off one-fourth of the face value of the certificates at a cost of about $850,000,000.

House leaders were ready tonight to bring up either plan under suspension of rules Monday, shutting off extended debate and amendments.

At the same time, the leaders expect action on a $12,500,000 hospital bill to increase facilities for caring for ill veterans. The possibility also was seen of action on a pension bill to prodive allowances for windows and orphans at an estimated cost of $18,000,000 the first year.

Search Under Way For Band Of Texas Bandits Wednesday

GIDDINGS, Feb. 11. (AP)—An extensive but fruitless search for the band of robbers who looted the Lexington bank of about $7,000 this morning was underway tonight. Sheriff J. J. Burtschell said clues were meagre.

The vault and safe apparently had been opened by working the combination locks, Sheriff Burtschell said. The time lock was set to open at 6 a. m., and the sheriff believed the robbery occurred a short time after that hour.

Earnest Young Granted New Trial As Sentence Reversed

AUSTIN, Feb. 11 (AP)—Earnest Young, one of two escaped former inmates of the San Antonio state hospital alleged to have killed Johnnie W. Bradshaw and to have thrown his body into the Guadalupe river, won a new trial today when the court of criminal appeals reversed his 50-year sentence.

Brown Refuses To Give Information

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11. (AP) — Postmaster General Brown flatly refused today to furnish the senate committee investigating postoffice leases with data collected last summer for a report to President Hoover.

His appearance before the committee was marked by frequent and sharp clashes with Chairman Blaine as the Wisconsin senator attacked Brown's contention it would be "incompatible with public interest" to provide the information.

Blaine characterized the postmaster general as "arrogant and impertinent." The witness accused the committee chairman of "lecturing" him and said he would answer the questions in his own way.

Farmers' Supper Is Attended By 300

Short Course Delegates At Annual Event

Mrs. M. S. Hudson From Hale Center Is Toastmaster; All Food Served Products Of Lubbock County

Prominent Speakers Will Be Heard For Last Time With Closing Sessions At Tech College Today

BY J. SAM LEWIS
Avalanche Staff Writer.

THREE hundred "farm folks," as Mrs. M. S. Hudson, of Hale Center, toastmaster, described them, attended the annual Lubbock county supper of the third annual Texas Tech short course in the college gym, enjoyed a meal prepared by Lubbock county farm women, from Lubbock county raised products and served by Lubbock county boys and girls and then listened to words of encouragement, praise and admiration.

It was a gala occasion, with the farmers who have been attending the short course enjoying the social aspects of the program by meeting on a common ground the out-of-county and out-of-state visitors. There were three snappy, interesting talks by persons who had a message to give, a peppy toastmaster, who kept the crowd on tiptoe, with uncertainty as to just which one would be the next victim, some good community singing led by J. O. Ellsworth, of the college faculty, and real, honest-to-goodness dance music by college students.

Food Contributed.

Following the songs, and invocation by George C. Cooper, president of the Lubbock County Farm Bureau, the meal was served. The turkey, dressing, beets, blackeyed peas, milk, butter, bread, etc., all were produced in the county and contributed by 10 clubs. Topping it off was home made mince pie with

To Start Jail Razing Today

Local Labor To Be Used For Dismantling Structure To Make Way For Proposed New Federal Building Here

Work of razing the Lubbock county jail is scheduled to get under way this morning to make way for Lubbock's proposed federal building and expedite start of construction of a new jail.

The county commissioners court Monday employed D. N. Leaverton, local contractor, to supervise dismantlement of the jail. Local labor will be used. Contract for erection of a new jail building probably would be let within 30 days, County Judge E. L. Pitts said following Monday's meeting.

A large percentage of fixtures in the present jail will be used in the new structure, which probably will be built to accomodate 100 prisoners without overcrowding and to provide satisfactory means of segregation, the county judge said.

Prisoners will be confined to the Lubbock city jail and the Hale and Crosby county jails while the present building is being razed and a new one being built.

Eleven men sentenced to the state penitentiary were taken to Huntsville, Wednesday, by O. B. Conley, chief deputy sheriff, and J. P. Edgar, deputy United States marshall. Three federal prisoners of this district at the same time were transferred temporarily to the Tarrant county jail at Fort Worth,

Edison Says Business Is On 3-Year Upward Trend

Eighty-Four-Year-Old Inventor Interviewed On Birthday; Gives Success Recipe

(By The Associated Press)

FORT MYERS, Feb. 11.—Thomas A. Edison, 84 years old today, told reporters business has started a three-year trend upward regaining the level of activity that prevailed before the depression.

The answer was to a question asking how long it will take the country to make the ascent.

Human endeavor can never control cycles of business depression and prosperity, the inventor added, however. "It lies in the very nature of man," he said. "We will always have them."

As to the unemployment problem, Mr. Edison felt he was unable to prescribe a remedy. After studying the question, he wrote:

"This question is several sizes too large for me."

Another query, inquiring as to the proper course for an honest, hard working man who could not obtain a job, although his family was in privation, puzzled the inventor.

"That's a sticker," he remarked. Then he wrote: "Turn him over to the Red Cross which represents us all."

The interview was the first public event of the celebration of Mr. Edison's birthday. In jovial humor and with a broad smile lighting his face under his thatch of snow white hair, he wrote answers to written questions submitted previously by newspapermen.

Moderns are not living at too great a pace was one opinion. The people do not crave too many luxuries was another.

Mr Edison declared prohibition

Deluge Of New Bills Offered On Wednesday

More Than 250 Proposals Are Called Up In Texas House And Senate As Period For Introduction Expires

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Feb. 11 —The period suggested by the constitution for the introduction of bills expired today and some 250 proposals were sent up in both houses of the legislature.

Both branches had passed rules believed to permit the introduction of bills for some time longer, but many sponsors of proposals were unwilling to take a chance. The result was that the house met in the afternoon for the first time in many days, even standing at ease for a long time to allow members to finish writing some of the proposals.

Most of the bills were introduced in the house, the total in that body being swelled to more than 250. Three hundred and fifty bills have been introduced in the senate.

With the bills being received in such large proportions, no one knew what all of them contained. However, several important proposals were known to have been included

One of the most important was a bill by Representative Metcalfe of San Angelo to redistrict the state as to members of the house of representatives. Metcalfe, who previously had introduced a congressional redistricting bill, had been working on this bill for a long time and had redrafted it several times. The final draft was signed by 35 other house members.

The senate, in executive session, confirmed all governor's appointments which had been sent to it except Frank Baldwin, Waco newspaper editor, appointed to the board of education. Some opposition to Baldwin's appointment had been expressed.

Frat Men Await Outcome Of Raid

ANN ARBOR Mich., Feb. 11. (AP)—The members of five leading Greek letter fraternities at the University of Michigan tonight awaited word from university authorities and the police regarding what action would be taken as a result of a series of early morning liquor raids on their houses.

The raids were made by local police at 4:30 a. m., and resulted in the appearance in justice court today of 79 students found in the houses. The raiders reported that whisky gin and beer were found.

The fraternities raided were Phi Delta Theta, Delta Kappa Epsilon, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Theta Delta Chi and Kappa Sigma. The officers said they found a total of 51 quarts of whisky wine and gin and a half barrel of beer, distributed among the five fraternity houses.

Construction of the highway would necessitate the building of a $1,000,000 bridge across the Canadian river near Tascosa.

Expenditures Of Cannon Up To Committee

Methodist Bishop Is Facing Charges Of Failure To Report Funds In Anti-Smith Presidential Campaign

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Bishop James Cannon, jr., crippled with arthritis, slumped in a big leather chair more than three hours today while the senate campaign funds committee questioned half a dozen bank officials regarding deposits and expenditures by the southern churchman during his anti-Smith drive in 1928.

The committee met under authority of a resolution by Senator Glass, Democrat, Virginia, the Methodist bishop's home state, and on specific complaints filed by Representative Tinkham, Republican, Massachusetts, that Cannon violated the corrupt practices act by failing to report expenditures of funds entrusted to him in his campaign to defeat the Democratic presidential candidate.

Tinkham also attended the hearing. He charged in his complaint that Cannon received $65,300 from E. C. Jameson, a New York financier, for use in the campaign, but had accounted for only $17,000 in a report to the clerk of the house.

Three Men Are Seriously Burned In Gas Explosion

CANTON, Kas., Feb. 11. (AP)—Three men were burned severely late today when the Kaegi No. 1 gasser of the United Petroleum corporation took fire from the backfire of a motor truck.

The injured men were Harry Brown, Phil Schegel and Carl Bond all of Wichita. They were taken to a hospital at McPherson, Kas., where it was said all were expected to recover.

The well, producing 15,000,000 feet of dry gas daily took fire from a spark from a truck on which the three burned men were loading casing. Two other men standing nearby were not injured. The truck was demolished.

"We must have facts, however," Mayor Clements said Wednesday.

"Anyone who is dissatisfied and has a complaint to make will be given a hearing by the commission. This evidence will be gathered and tabulated for further use by the commission. It is only through the gathering of tangible evidence that we will be able to accomplish any material results."

Following Thursday's session, a conference of mayors and city managers from 52 Northwest Texas cities will be held here on Friday. The conference was called by Mayor Clements and invitations issued to all towns and cities in this territory. According to local officials, all those receiving invitations have replied that they will attend and approximately 100 mayors and managers are expected.

Make Drastic Relief Demand

Appropriation Of $15,000,000, Free Food, Shelter, Clothing And Utilities Asked Of Oklahoma Governor

(By The Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 11.—Drastic relief petitions instead of an unemployment parade advanced on the Oklahoma statehouse today.

Demands for appropriation of $15,000,000 as well as free food, shelter, clothing, lights, water, gas, beds, and street car tickets were made by a delegation from the Trades Union Unity League to Robert Burns, lieutenant governor.

Governor W. H. Murray, who only the day before apparently thwarted a parade on the capitol by instructing the national guard and police to prevent it, was in Springfield, Ill., for a Lincoln day speech.

The petitions seek payment of $20 a week to heads of families supplemented by $3 for each dependent and $15 per week for single persons. They ask repeal of vagrancy and eviction laws, donation of the facilities of utilities, unemployment insurance legislation; milk and lunches for children; opening of public buildings for living purposes; three meals a day for every one and warm clothing and shoes.

Airmail Line Through Here To Be Sought

Representatives From Seven West Texas Towns To Meet Here Next Month To Form Permanent Organization

Representatives of seven West Texas cities on a proposed airmail route and of other towns in the territory will meet here in March and possibly will form a permanent organization to work toward establishment of the airmail line.

That much was decided at a meeting of 22 air enthusiasts Wednesday at Big Spring, where a temporary organization was effected and plans made to determine the amount of airmail being sent from towns on the proposed route. The proposed line would extend from Amarillo to Big Spring via of Lubbock, including Canyon, Plainview, Tahoka and Lamesa. It would bridge an existing gap between the northern and southern transcontinental routes.

Local Men Named

John L. Vaughan, Lubbock postmaster, and Gerald Wren, of Lubbock, were elected chairman and secretary respectively of the temporary organization.

Mr Vaughan plans to ask each the chairman of the aviation committee of the chamber of commerce in each town on the proposed line, or some other person interested in airmail possibilities, to serve as chairman of a local committee. The

Call On Hyde In Fight Over Pending Plan

Senate Asks Secretary Of Agriculture If Proposal Will Permit Use Of Loan Fund For Purchase Of Food

Seek Early Answer

Resolution Offered By Sen. Borah And Is Unanimously Adopted; Rebellion Gains Momentum In Senate

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The senate tonight called on Secretary Hyde to say whether the pending drouth relief measure would permit use of the $20,000,000 loan fund for purchase of food, clothing and medicine by the farmer borrowers.

The resolution calling for an interpretation by the administration was offered by Senator Borah, Republican, Ihado, and unanimously adopted at the end of a day of fierce debate over the proposal.

Agree To Resolution

Senators Robinson and Caraway, of Arkansas, who defended the loan agreement against an uprising of Democrats and Republican independents, agreed to the resolution as an answer to their insistence that the farmers could buy food and clothing with their loans.

Administration leaders hurried into conferences tonight with President Hoover to seek a prompt answer from the secretary of agriculture to the Borah resolution.

The rebellion against the $20,000,000 drouth relief compromise gained momentum in the senate but leaders of both parties still were confident of ultimate approval.

Glass Joins Opposition

Opponents of the compromise were joined during the day by Senator Glass, Democrat, Virginia, who characterized the compromise as an "abject surrender."

The compromise had been accepted by Senator Robinson, as a substitute for the bitterly disputed $25,000,000 Red Cross appropriation originally sponsored by the coalition.

Comely Cop Says Fiancee Kidnaped

NEW YORK, Feb. 11. (AP) — Handsome George Wandling, famous as the most comely cop on the sidewalks of New York, wept today as he announced a young and wealthy widow strangely missing was to have been his bride this spring.

The patrolman, who tramps a beat on Columbus avenue, notified his superiors yesterday that Mrs. Imogene Stella, 36, had vanished. He said he believed racketeers had kidnaped her, seeking a large ransom from her estimated million-dollar fortune.

The jaunty bluecoat, wearing a $1,400 ring with a pigeon blood stone, which he said was a Christmas gift from the widow, told detectives he was the chief beneficiary in her will. Others seeking to share in her fortune sought to have her change it, he said, because he was "only a cop."

Hijacker Forces Victim To Borrow Money During Holdup

The holdup man climbed into Hudson's car and they drove to a cafe where Hudson borrowed $20 from a friend. The bandit also got his watch.

"I'll leave your car at Canyon," the hijacker said as he put Hudson out. But he didn't.

Romance Eludes Youthful Trio After Arrest In Connection With Robberies

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, Feb. 11. — Romance eluded a youthful trio, two boys and a girl, as they were placed in jail here today to face accusations in connection with holdups in Iowa, Oklahoma and Texas. They gave their ages as 18 and said their homes were in Sioux City, Iowa.

In written statements which the trio made to detective Lieutenant Luther Phillips, they said they left Sioux City last Sunday with forty cents and a pistol. They arrived in Dallas today with $17 and an automobile.

The youths further stated they held up a filling station Sunday night at Onawa, Iowa, near Sioux City, and obtained $35. The 40 cents, they said, had bought barely enough gasoline to carry them that far. The next day they said they took $17.75 in a holdup in Oklahoma.

The girl, who wore overalls, a sailor blouse and boy's shoes, said she and one of the boys planned to be married as soon as they could become established where he could get a job.

Two Attractive Parties Featuring Valentine Motif Are Given Here

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche Woman's Editor

THE Plainsman who writes daily in The Daily Journal and finds it necessary to resort to such things as championing the causes of masculinity and patriarchy, has flung down the gauntlet for The Woman's Angel referring to her in those flattering terms of "that militant feminist" and inviting a "spirited answer."

It all arose over a trifling thing that happened during the week-end an incident of no moment whatsoever, but, since she has received the challenge, The Woman's Angle must rise to the defense of her kind. The Plainsman became so incensed over what he considered a lapse of firmness in a bridegroom George P. Putnam, that he devoted a considerable part of his Monday to think up remarks to make about him and his bride, the former and present Amelia Earhart. Then, not content with it all, he invited an answer from The Woman's Angle.

That wasn't necessary. She would have answered anyway just to keep him from crowing around the office.

The question isn't a new one. The Plainsman and T. W. A. have been arguing since away back in 1924, when they first met, over the right of women to retain their maiden names after marrying. T. W. A. of course, since she is the ardent feminist that she is, believes that every woman should retain her name if she wants to. She believes in fact, that the only ideal government is a matriarchy and that if things were really carried out in proper order the men would assume their bride's names in marriage!

And, as to Amelia Earhart's marriage agreement that she shall retain her maiden name, even though she is married. The Woman's Angle is on the front row applauding her spirit. Why shouldn't she retain her own name? Can there be any comparison between the mellifluence of "Amelia" and the austerity of "George P. Putnam?" Is there not a possibility that she has become attached to her name after carrying it around with her and sharing her experiences with it through the years? Why should she relinquish it now, even for that of a very companionable husband?

The Plainsman, to be sure, is mourning the decline of masculine dominance—the passing of those good old days when men were men—so he thinks. But T. W. A. believes his lamentations are over a myth. She thinks there may have been days when women were more subtle about exercising their authority, but that they had no less power.

The woman's Angle can't see that the matter of the name is of such importance as long as the marriage is over with. This isn't the first time that a woman has retained her maiden name when that was the cognomen by which she became known before her marriage and it won't be the last time.

THE GANN-LONGWORTH FEUD

AFTER all of these months, the Gann- Longworth feud has come to an end in Washington and the elite there and elsewhere are looking around for something else to talk about.

Probably I'm not social-minded enough or do not have the proper respect for the Washington conventions, but I haven't had much patience with the feud. There's no doubt about it, I'm a small-town woman. All these intricacies of prestige and position mean absolutely nothing to me.

We have the counterpart of the Washington feuds in Lubbock, even, in the little offenses over party invitations that arise when a hostess happens to overlook someone who feels that she is due an invitation out to lunch or tea. Idleness leads to such things as these in most instances. One who has plenty of employment—mental as well as physical—isn't likely to spend a lot of time counting up the obligations that other people have and worrying over whether or not she is going to be invited to every party that is given.

My personal formula for that would be a suggestion that the same amount of time be spent in developing some charm and personality so that she would be in demand places. There are such a lot of interesting things to be done in the world that I can't understand how anyone has time to sit around worrying over social position.

Women At Tech Course Are To Hear Martindale Lecture

Concluding Program In Tech Third Annual Homemakers Course Will Be Given At College Today

Concluding lectures in the Homemakers division of the third annual Texas Tech short course will be given today at the college and, after the last lecture, women who are attending the course will attend a reception extended by the home economics department of the college in the home management house.

Wednesday's feature was a lecture delivered by Mrs. Minnie Fisher Cunningham, of College Station, in the engineering auditorium in the morning. Approximately 200 women heard her talk, including a number from various points in this section of the state, who are here for the short course.

Today's feature will be a lecture on "What the Women Can Do to Aid Agriculture," and W. T. Martindale, director of American Farm Bureau Federation, is to talk. This lecture will be given at 10:45 o'clock.

Dean Weeks To Talk

Dean Margaret Weeks, of the home economics school at the college, will talk on "Ideals for the Modern Home" this morning at 10 o'clock and at 12 o'clock, Miss Jean Dorrel, associate professor of applied arts, will talk on "Color in the Home to Make it More livable."

In addition to Mrs. Cunningham's talk on Wednesday, Miss Johnnye Gilkerson, assistant professor of physical education at Texas Technological college, talked on "Exercises for Health" and gave demonstrations of the exercises in the morning.

"The ideal of health is a realization of the highest physical, mental and spiritual possibilities of the individual," she said in her talk yesterday. She stressed the importance of suiting the exercises to the individual and gave reasons for exercising.

"Good posture is a matter of habit" she said in telling of its importance to the individual.

Two Others Speak

Following a meeting with the men's division immediately after lunch, women heard two talks during the afternoon. Mrs. Dude Buster, assistant professor of clothing and textiles, talked on the removal of stains and Miss Mayme Twyford, associate professor of foods, talked on vegetable dinner and new ways of preparing vegetables.

Commonplace stains were discussed by Mrs. Buster, who gave a list of fundamental rules to follow in stain removal and demonstrated these. Telling first of the importance of vegetables in a diet, Miss Twyford told of the functions of various types of vegetables in the diet and suggested menus using them.

"It may seem strange for me to be discussing an abstract subject like the relation of the family and the home to the state at a time like this when distressed conditions on every hand cry aloud for practical concrete methods of reconstruction. But diagnosis is as important as treatment and I think it is valuable to discuss the various factors which contributed to this dislocation," Mrs. Cunningham said in her talk.

Homes Fundamental

"Homes existed before governments, as we know them, existed at all. And in countries where governments have failed, homes have continued to exist. Homes have survived tyranny, revolution, anarchy and reconstruction. Fires, tornadoes and earthquakes have not destroyed them out of the land," she continued, "and it is fair to assume then that they are a fundamental need of the human heart."

Governments developed as service organizations for people living in groups, but people lost sight of this beginning as the centuries rolled on, so that they began to regard the government as a machine for the enforcement of laws, collection of taxes and such things, she said, offering as a panacea for some of the present distress "a painful backtracking".

"People must again draw near to their government and do some managing of their own government affairs. Bring the government back into its true relation as a service organization to the home—and keep it there," she concluded.

EXACT METHOD OF ROASTING COFFEE PERFECTS FLAVOR

Controlled Roasting, Patented by Hills Bros., Gives Flavor No Other Coffee Has

To sip a cup of Hills Bros. Coffee after drinking other brands is a most revealing experience. There is a wealth of full-bodied, savory flavor that is almost startling. What's more, it is a different flavor.

The way Hills Bros. Coffee is roasted is responsible for this deliciously different goodness. Instead of being roasted in bulk—as most coffees are—Hills Bros.' rare blend passes through the roasters, evenly—continuously—a little at a time.

The chief factor in the success of this process is the perfect control of the flow of coffee and of the heat. This insures an even roast such as the bulk method can never equal. The ultimate result is a matchless, uniform flavor in every pound.

In order to keep their delicious coffee fresh, Hills Bros. pack it in vacuum. Air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is completely extracted from the can, and kept out by this process. Ordinary cans, even if air-tight, do not keep coffee fresh. Ask for Hills Bros. Coffee by name and look for the Arab—the trade-mark—on the can. Sold everywhere by grocers.

The new Ford is an economical car to own and drive

Low first cost, low cost of operation and up-keep, and low yearly depreciation mean a distinct saving to every purchaser

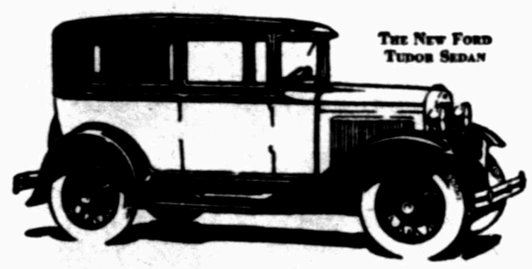

THE NEW FORD is a splendid car to own and drive because of its attractive lines and colors, safety, comfort, speed, reliability and long life.

There are, in addition, three other features of importance to every far-seeing automobile owner . . . low first cost, low cost of operation and up-keep, and low yearly depreciation.

During the life of the car, the day-by-day economy of owning a Ford will amount to considerably more than the saving on the first cost. You save when you buy the Ford and you save every mile you drive.

The reasons for this economy are simplicity of design, high quality of materials and care in manufacturing and assembling. Many vital parts are made to limits of one one-thousandth of an inch. Some to three ten-thousandths of an inch. Throughout, the new Ford is an outstanding example of fine craftsmanship in automobile engineering.

The more you see of the new Ford—the more you talk to Ford owners and experienced mechanics—the more certain you become of this fact. . . . It brings you everything you want or need in a motor car at an unusually low price.

Here's the Way to Treat Those Miserable Colds So Prevalent Here Now

WITH scattered cases of flu breaking out in this locality, don't take chances with colds NOW—it's too dangerous! Unless checked quickly, colds tend to pull down the body resistance and may pave the way for an attack of flu with all its serious complications.

1 At the first sign of stuffiness or irritation in the nose or throat, snuff some Vicks VapoRub up the nose several times a day. This will often check a cold at the start.

2 If the head is all "stuffed up"—clogged with mucus or phlegm—or there is much coughing, melt a teaspoonful of Vicks in a bowl or kettle of hot water and inhale the steaming vapors for five minutes at a time. This treatment has a remarkable effect in clearing the air passages, easing the breathing, soothing the irritation, relieving the cough, and helps to prevent the cold from spreading.

3 At bedtime, in order to get the benefit of its long-continued stimulation and inhalation effect, rub Vicks vigorously over the throat and chest and cover with warm flannel.

4 If possible, stay at home until the cold is broken. Complete rest helps the body to throw off the cold more quickly.

(Mother!—treat children's colds promptly, but avoid "dosing." Too much internal medicine often upsets the child's digestion and lowers the vitality. Being applied externally, Vicks does not upset the stomach, and can be used freely and as often as needed without the slightest harmful effect.)

DON'T TAKE CHANCES WITH COLDS NOW!

"The Best Place to Shop, After All"

1931 a full set of the world's Leading Tires at 1/2 GOODYEAR the old prices of only 30 months ago

L. E. GRIMES

Notice

This is the "Economy News Of Welcome" To the Visiting Farmers of the South Plains, who are attending the Texas Tech short course and every citizen of Lubbock and the South Plains.

You can buy one tire or a dozen at the new low prices at the begining of this New Year 1931. While the prices in the past few months have dropped to the unbelievable present lowest figures the "SUPER CONSTRUCTED GOODYEAR TIRES HAVE NO EQUAL FOR LEADERSHIP AND ECONOMY WITH QUALITY."

A Correction That Will Save You Money in Your Tire Buying
"I Will Buy Only the Leading Make of Tires!"

Five Tire companies in the United States sell nearly 70 per cent of all the Tires sold and these tire makers must offer the public outstanding values.

This is true, and it directly follows, that the leading tire maker must likewise lead all others in value, quite as definitely as in sales.

COLD FACTS SHOW THAT GOODYEAR IS THE LEADER OF EVERY MEASURE, EXCEPT ONE.

This exception: Goodyear is not the oldest Tire maker. But Goodyear has made more tires for motor vehicles than any other manufacturer, by millions.

And Here Are Two Reasons Why Goodyear Is the Leading Maker of Tires

ONE

The famous Goodyear All-Weather Tread is superior in traction. Note how the deepcut tight-gripping blocks are placed in the center of the tread, where they belong. Press the palm of your hand upon the tread and feel how the blocks grip and pinch the flesh. This illustrates the All-Weather Tread's hold-fast action on pavement or road.

TWO

The patented Goodyear Supertwist Cord Carcass is superior in vitality and long life. Under continued flexing or sudden road-shock, where ordinary cords fatigue or snap, the extra-elastic Supertwist cords stretch and recover, like rubber bands. Ask your Goodyear Dealer to show you on his cord-testing machine the extra stretch—up to 61 per cent greater—of Supertwist cord over the best standard cord.

The Eloquence Of Lincoln

IN RECENT years we have been accustomed to having our presidents speak on a great variety of topics. Thus we become acquainted with their views and abilities outside the realm of purely political matters.

It happens that the utterances of Abraham Lincoln outside his political deliverance are meager. His debates with Stephen A. Douglas, in which he gained fame as a speaker, and his Cooper Union address, in which he introduced himself to the East, dealt with issues long since passed away. His skill as a political orator was generally recognized but his reputation for eloquence in other lines was gained late and is founded on limited productions. The mass of his utterances while president had to do with the war. While clear and succinct they gave little opportunity for demonstration of his real powers of composition.

Possibly the fact that Lincoln's entire time was taken up with the war, and that the demands of the conflict submerged every other interest, may be responsible for Lincoln's falure to leave more examples of his ability to say the proper word in the happiest way. That he had few equals, perhaps no superior, in facility of expression is now acknowledged. And this verdict of postority, for it was not promptly recognized at the time, rests on the productions—the Gettysburg address and the second inaugural.

In an address at Cambridge university some years ago, Earl Curzon in citing supreme masterpieces of English eloquence mentioned three. One of those was the toast of William Pitt following the battle of Trafalgar. The others were the two efforts of Lincoln noted above. For sympathetic expression of condolence the Mrs. Bixby letter is not less a model. Outside his political utterances Abraham Lincoln did not leave a mass by which we may judge of his ability in expression but what he did leave is enough to stamp him a master of English eloquence.

There are many people in the South and in Texas to whom the memory of Lincoln is merely the memory of a figure in American history—no aura of heroics surrounds him in their minds. In fact, to The Morning Avalanche, the Civil War president is superceded by many other of our countrymen from the standpoint of being a national hero, yet in the broadmindedness of a new age he has undoubtedly stamped himself as one of the principal actors on the stage of life which is particularly ours.

Whatever he may have been or may not have been, Lincoln had a major role to play and he played it as he saw fit. One honor that was his and continues to be his, is that of ability to use the spoken word to an advantage not often paralleled. His eloquence is admitted, even by the descendents of those who were his war-time enemies.

Those of us who live today have but two pictures of the gaunt man whose responsiblity it was to administer to this country when it was divided against itself. We have the picture painted by his friends—another painted by his enemies. Both are probably overdrawn—sketched in the white heat of hatred and distrust which today has all but been forgotten. At any rate, Lincoln, like the rest of us, had his good points and his bad and today, upon his anniversary, we bid him honor for at least his ability to lead through the medium of his talent to which both friend and foe have paid homage.

TOO MUCH VARNISH

The notion has gone abroad that we live in the scientific age, though it might as well be said that we live in the applesauce age, since neither is particularly true. There is certainly a vast amount of more or less scientific information cluttering up the horizon and passed carelessly around, but the very fact that we swallow it proves how refreshingly unscientific we are. We are, in fact, as omnivorous as the goat and the ostrich, and we gobble questionable information as the pelican inhales fish.

There is nothing the matter with the sane and sober scientist whose life is spent in the pursuit of information that may or may not be important. There are things to be discovered, and scientists will discover them; that is their job, and most of them are working at it. But when the new discovery reaches the ultimate consumer, it may be a long way removed from the temperance and restraint of its first statement. Its qualifications are rubbed off from it, its caution is squeezed out of it, and it becomes the sort of dogmatic utterance that would dismay a respectable scientist.

Practical Health Problems

10,000,000 CHILDREN IN U. S. HAVE DEFECTS

(This is the second of four articles by Dr. Fishbein on child welfare problems.)

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hegia, the Health Magazine

In opening the White House Conference on Child Welfare, held in Washington in November, President Hoover listed briefly some of the deficiencies that need to be corrected among the 10,000,000 children who can, by the aid of preventive medicine and proper social an economic study, be made more happy and of greater value to the state.

Of the 45,000,000 children in the United States today, only 35,000,000 are normal in the reasonable interpretation of that word.

It is estimated that at least 6,000,000 are improperly nourished; 1,000,000 have defective speech; 1,000,000 have weak or damaged hearts; 382,000 are tuberculous; 342,000 are crippled; 50,000 are partially blind, and 14,000 are totally blind; moreover, 675,000 demand psychological study because of the problems in behavior which they present; 450,000 are mentally defective or mentally retarded; 200,000 are delinquent, and 500,000 are dependent.

If the figures are added, it will be found that this list totals far more than the 10,000,000 children that it represents. It does this because of the intimate relationships that exist between physical defects, mental defects and psychological and sociological problems.

The dependent child is itself a great problem. When the dependent child is mentally retarded, it is even more of a problem. When it is malnourished it is almost a hopeless problem, and when to this is added some gross defect, such as blindness, hardness of hearing or a damaged heart, the community has a castrophe to consider.

The vast majority of children in these groups that can be characterized grossly as abnormal are practically all subject to several of the defects that have been listed. To assign them to any special group of investigators ,to any special department of the state, or to any single source or assistance is merely to attack one phase of a problem, which must be considered as a whole if any real progress is to be made.

No doubt, with these considerations in mind, the president of the United States, who has had great experience in humanitarian activities for the child, called the conference in which all of the various specialists who are concerned with such matters met to exchange the knowledge that they had accumulated in their special fields.

Any group of fathers and mothers may believe that these problems of abnormality do not greatly concern them. This would be a form of unreasoning and ignorant conceit not warranted by the actual evidence. There is hardly a home in the United States today in which there are children, where there is not also a problem in behaviorism, in nutrition, in development and in character study.

Greater Strife Probable

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—President Hoover and the senate finally having arrived at a deadlock which definitely promises an extra session of congress, unless an eleventh hour compromise is reached, it is interesting to consider what the row is about.

Times, as anyone can see, are hard.

The administration has taken various steps to relieve distress, but the senate, feeling that not enough had been done, wanted to give $25,000,000 more from the United States treasury to the Red Cross to clothe and feed cold, hungry people. The president objected, on the ground that such charity tends to pauperize its recipients. Besides, according to Chairman John Barton Payne of the Red Cross, in a later statement, the Red Cross does not need the extra $25,000,000. In fact, he refused, in the Red Cross' name, to accept it.

Nevertheless, the senate voted the $25,000,000. If the Red Cross will not take it, several senators have suggested that it can be handled by some other agency, like the Salvation Army.

BUT THE house of representatives is more amenable to the administration than the senate. Accordingly, knowing the president to be opposed to it, the former body gave a majority against the $25,000,000 allowance.

That hangs the appropriation up, so far as the present congress is concerned.

However, this congress will end on March 4, and the next house of representatives, as well as the senate, certainly will be less responsive to presidential wishes. It probably will o. k. the $25,000,000 treasury contribution if afforded the opportunity.

THE MAIN obstacle is that the new congress will not meet until December 7, unless President Hoover calls an extra session, and he surely will not do so in order to get the $25,000,000 allowance made, considering that he strongly disapproves of it.

Yet there is one means by which the senate can force him to issue the summons, and, once called together, congress can do whatever it pleases.

The senate can accomplish this by refraining from passing bills granting money to run the government beyond the end of the current fiscal year, ending June 30. Should it do so (even though only one cabinet department is left unprovided for) an extra call will be unavoidable some time between March 4 and June 30.

ALL SIGNS are that such is the policy the senate will adopt.

Obviously, if there is an extra session, for the purpose of over-riding the president's wishes, it will open with relations greatly strained between the White House and congress, the senate especially.

Even though the president's hand is forced, as suggested above, many politicians believe he will delay calling the lawmakers together until about June 1, when the winter will be over and the $25,000,000 not so much needed. Still, that will not prevent great bitterness of feeling between the occupant of the executive mansion and the legislators who are opposed to him.

Not only will there be at issue the matter of the $25,000,000, but many other sources of friction are certain to develop themselves. Indeed, predictions are freely made that the extra session, if called, will continue, with constant quarreling, all summer and fall, until it merges into the regular winter session, ending only with the opening of next year's pre-convention activities, preceding the 1932 presidential campaign.

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S supporters, who want the nation's executive head left to solve the problem of hard times without congressional criticism, contend that an extra session will be exceedingly bad for the country's business. Those who take the opposite view argue that it is precisely in such periods of stress as today's that congress is most needed.

How one decides the question for himself depends upon what one thinks of Mr. Hoover's competency and fair-mindedness as compared with congress'.

The rival viewpoint relative to the disputed $25,000,000 relief proposition, the nub of the wrangle on which the discussion of the moment hinges, are admirably set forth by two contrasting Washington publications of recent date—the Washington Post, presenting the administration's side, and the railroad brotherhood's organ, Labor, presenting the senate's.

THE POST, in its issue of Jan. 31, describes the vote for the $25,000,000 appropriation as an attempt at "a raid on the treasury for the establishment of a permanent system for feeding citizens at public expense," and in its issue of Feb. 1, adds, "In its essence" this "scheme is Socialism, which in turn leads to Communism."

Labor, in its issue of Feb. 3, says: "Every distressed man will feel that President Hoover and the American Red Cross have kept him and his family hungry and cold when congress was eager to provide food and shelter," adding that "This is the most shocking, astounding, incredible news that has gone over the wires from the nation's capital in many a day."

Many won't buy radios because they are still in the experimental stage, and yet they have telephones.

TOMORROW: THE PRIVATE WHO REFUSED TO BE A GENERAL"

For GINGER'S SAKE

by ETHEL HUESTON

© 1930 THE BOBBS-MERRILL CO.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GINGER ELLA TOLLIVER was bored. Ginger's father was a minister, and her stepmother a very wealthy woman, but life in the little town of Red Thrush, Iowa, ran too slowly to suit Ginger and her set. So she announced to her friends, EDDY JACKSON, PATTY SEARS and WESLEY MEEKER, that she was going to start a Home for the Bored.

To JENKY BROOKS, wife of old BENNY BROOKS, an ally in whom she could trust implicity, she confided her intention of organizing a Junior Country Club. She asked Jenky to act as her agent in the purchase of the Mill Rush farm, a 10-acre tract with an old farm house, from JOPLIN WESTBURY. The rest of her plans were still in her head, unformulated.

"And," she told Jenky, "be sure and bring him down in his price. About half of what he asks will be right."

To Jenky, who, with her husband was to be chaperon, the venture promised a great many dollars saved, as a summer on the farm would mean a trimming of living expenses. The house on Mill Rush held interesting possibilities for an imagination as fertile as Ginger's. On the other hand, it was doing its present owner no good, and he was anxious to sell. Westbury finally got down to $2000, whereupon Jenky said she would have to ask Ginger's advice.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IV

But Joplin Westbury did not wait for Jenky to see Ginger Ella. He knew Ginger from of old and was well aware that she was not above turning a neat financial trick herself when she had a good chance. And he had no intention of letting this sale slip through his fingers.

Before Jenky was down the stairs he had Ginger on the telephone.

"Say, little bond-holder," he began cheerfully, for he and Ginger were great friends, "I guess you're not so over-nourished on banknotes but what you'll turn an honest dollar if you see your way clear, eh?"

"I hope to tell you," declared Ginger illuminatingly.

"Well, now, you know that school teacher that used to live with you at the parsonage—who married that blind man— Yeh, Brooks, Mrs. Brooks. Well, she wants to buy a little piece of land from me, and she's going to ask your advice about it.

"Now, you know me, Ginger, I make a sale when I can. You give her the right advice, and the day she signs up for it, I'll send you my check for $100. That's what I think of your opinion. Guess that's a fair enough proposition."

"It certainly is," agreed Ginger. "And I think I can advise her to your satisfaction if the price is right."

"Well, I'm going to make it right. Now, I'm asking 2000, but I won't stick at 1800. Listen, Ginger, just between us, I'd let it go for 1500, 250 down and 25 a month. Now, tell you what I'll do. Anything we get out of her over 1500, I'll give you 10 per cent, and in addition to your hundred. The land's good enough, but I can't rightly use it myself, and the farmers don't seem to fancy it."

Ginger laughed delightedly. "That's just corking," she said. "I'll see what I can do. You're a great old sport, Joppy, and I think we can do business."

Her confidence was not ill-advised .They did do business, and within 24 hours Ben and Jenky Brooks had bought Mill Rush for $1500, paying $250 down. And Ginger had a check for $100, which she generously divided with Jenky, to that woman's boundless delight.

The news that Ben and Jenky Brooks had taken over the Mill Rush place to operate as a sort of summer home for themselves and a general club for the youth of Red Thrush created a sensation in the community but on the whole met with a surprisingly favorable reaction.

Ben and Jenky were well liked, and had the respect and the goodwill of every one in town. The hope that they would do well and make money out of the enterprise upon which they had so boldly embarked was unanimous. That Ginger should sweep into immediate dominance of all arrangements caused no surprise at all, for she had always been known as Jenky's general boss, taking entire credit even for the marriage of the strangely assorted pair, and considering them in a unique way to be her personal proteges.

Naturally in a move of such magnitude, Ginger instead of either of them should play the leading role.

The more ardent and active members of the regular Country Club frankly admitted that they would be glad to be rid of what they impatiently called "those youngsters." It is not easy for middle-aged parents to indulge in foolish frivolity before the amazed and disappoving eyes of growing-up sons and daughters.

Even in the forties, former village belles take no real pleasure in being relegated to the comfortable chairs along the wall during the best dances, and the daughters were now come of an age to be greatly sought as partners even by men old enough to have better judgment.

Prolific Author Taken By Death

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 10. (AP) — The author of the Grace Harlowe stories that have thrilled schoolgirls for two decades is dead here at the age of 43.

Although she wrote the Grace Harlowe stories under the name of Jessie Graham Flower, and many other stories under pseudonyms, her name was Josephine Chase. For many years she lived quietly in a big house in the northern part of the city.

"The only time people will ever know I'm me will be when I die and they write my obituary," she once said.

She wrote the Marjorie Deane series, following the little girl as she had in the Harlowe series from childhood to marriage. Then she used the pen name of Pauline Lester. The "Long Trail Boys" followed, then "The Adventure Boys" under the name of Ames Thompson, and the "Patsy Carrol" series and the "June Allen" books under the name of Grace Gordon.

She was the author of many other books.

Nature Produces a New Rare Flavor in Coffee

For a Real Change Taste the Rare Tang and Rich Mellow Body of Coffees from Central America . . .

(PUBLISHERS' PHOTO SERVICE)

From Lofty Mountain Plantations Mules Carry These Coffees to Town

(FOLGER PHOTO)

The Second Stage in the Journey of Rare Central American Coffees to Folger. Into the hold of a Panama Mail liner for the sea voyage to San Francisco, the U. S. Port of Entry.

HERE'S a suggestion. If you want something different in coffee, try—not just another "brand"—but an utterly different KIND of coffee. Then see what happens.

We procure our coffees from tiny mountain districts along the West Coast of Central America. A region that, experts now concede, produces probably the fullest-flavored coffees known today. Where nature leaves out the "rough" offensive oils. You taste only pure, invigorating flavor. Flavor so rich that you just can't help making the kind of coffee men can't forget.

Introduced by Folger

Years ago this coffee was first served in the famous Bohemian restaurants of San Francisco where it was introduced by Folger. Travelers tasting it there were captivated by its unusual flavor. Flavor produced by a peculiar combination of rich volcanic soil, altitude, sun's rays and tropic rainfall—that is found nowhere else in the world.

Connoisseurs among the European nobility, it is said, even went to Central America to purchase private plantations, first to supply their own tables and later to exploit commercially. Thus the fame of these rare coffees spread around the world.

The Folger Test

Would you like to see for yourself just how different these coffees are—in richness and in flavor? Here's a test that is as simple as it is fair.

Tomorrow morning drink Folger's. The next morning drink the coffee you have been using. The third morning drink Folger's again. In a morning or two you will decidedly favor one or the other; the best coffee wins. That's fair, isn't it? 101

Matador Cagers To Appear Here No More This Season

McMurry Games Were Last For 1931 Tech Cagers At Home; Game With Sul Ross Called Off; Leave Soon On Trip

Lubbock fans have seen the last of the 1931 Texas Tech Matador cagers on the local court. A tentatively scheduled game with Sul Ross was called off yesterday when coaches and officials of the schools could not reach an agreement after several exchanges of telegrams and long distance conversations.

The Matadors play a return series with the Canyon Buffaloes next Wednesday and Thursday nights at Canyon, returning home for the week-end to rest before setting out Monday morning for New Mexico and El Paso where they close the season next Saturday week.

In New Mexico they will play one game with the New Mexico School of Mines at Socorro on Monday night, going thence to Albuquerque for a series with the University of New Mexico. From there they journey to the border for a dual set with the Texas School of Mines, a return engagement.

Open Relations With N. M. U.

The games at Albuquerque will signalize the opening of athletic relationships between Texas Tech and the University of New Mexico. Reports have it that all Albuquerque and the student body of the university plans a feature event, and the basketball attraction is expected to draw a large crowd. The football teams of Texas Tech and the University of New Mexico meet for the first time next fall when they play to what looms as one of the biggest grid attractions in Lubbock for the season.

The home and foreign basketball season for the Matadors in review up to date reveals that the Scarlet and Black have played fourteen games, all but three of them at home. Of these they have won nine dropping one to the Southwestern Teachers of Weatherford, Okla., two to Simmons University and two to the West Texas State Teachers' Buffaloes. They split with the Oklahoma Teachers, swept a series with the Texas Miners, lost a pair to Canyon Buffaloes, one to Simmons at Abilene, defeated McMurry at Abilene and won from Abilene Christian College at Abilene. Back home after the Abilene spree they lost a single to Simmons, defeated A. C. C. twice, and drubbed McMurry a pair of times. Seven games yet remain on the schedule, and the Matadors shall have passed a decidedly successful season, considering the circumstances if they win five of them.

Second Annual Student Match Has Big Entry

Meadowbrook Club Is Scene Of Qualifying Rounds Of 18 Holes Now; Tournament Proper Starts Tomorrow

The second annual student golf tournament for Texas Tech students officially opens today with the fairways, roughs and greens open for qualifying rounds. A large number of students qualified yesterday. It is necessary that all scores for the 18-hole qualifying round be in the hands of W. G. McMillan, owner and manager of the Meadowbrook Golf club, by tonight so that pairings may be made.

Every student who plays a qualifying round will be eligible for championship competition, and every student at Tech is eligible for the qualifying round. There will be no entrance fees attached to the tournament, McMillan says.

The tournament proper starts tomorrow with the first rounds in all flights. Pairings will be announced tomorrow and will be placed on display in the rotunda of the administration building on the campus. Players are asked to arrange a definite time for their matches with their opponents, this being difficult for club officials to do because of classroom conflicts.

Prizes by Local Firms.

Valuable prizes will be awarded winners and runners up in both the championship and consolation flights, the finals of which will be played Sunday at the Meadowbrook course.

BIG SPRING, Feb. 11 (AP)—Knute Rockne, flying to California, stopped here a few minutes today, told a group of young athletes, "I'm not here to talk football," and proceeded to talk football.

The famous coach said that Texas colleges were producing teams as good as those from the east and middle west. He said he had learned some new methods from young Texas coaches at a school in Dallas. Texas players, he said, now reach college well schooled in fundamentals by virture of high school coaching.

BASKETBALL PLAYS and PLAYERS

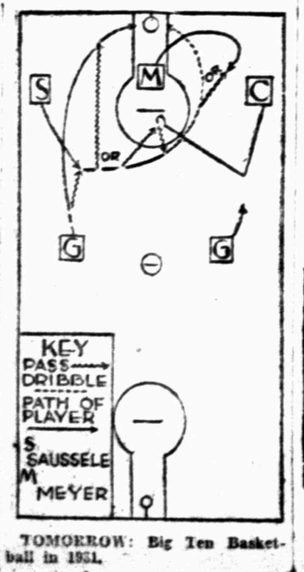

BY EVERETT S. DEAN
Basketball Coach, Indiana U.

The accompanying chart demonstrates a play used by Washington university of St. Louis, twice champions of the Missouri Valley conference. This formation is the one in which Meyer and Saussele worked to stand first and third in conference scoring. Both men made the mythical All-Valley team.

The play and its variations are commonly used in the Valley conference. It is the slow set variety and can be used with or without blocking.

Don White, coach of the Washington Bears, was a scoring ace on Purdue's championship team of 1929. White was the greatest scoring guard the Big Ten conference has seen. His teams at St. Louis have finished high every year during his long stay there.

Creighton university, victors this year over the strong Pittsburgh team, finished in a tie with Washington last season. A. A. Shabinger is coaching his ninth season at Creighton and this season bids well to be one of his best. Last year Creighton defeated Syracuse, one of the few teams ever to beat Hyatt and his teammates at Pittsburgh.

ADVERSITY

MAKE THEM GREAT

FOG-LIKE, legend has long since wrapped itself about the figures of Washington and Lincoln. Of each little but myths are left .... myths of an epic quality through which it has become nearly impossible to see the man. Standing, god-like, in the sun of a nation's adoration, each casts a shadow that obliterates the very traits that made him great ... those intensely human qualities which made decision hard when a people's fate hung in the balance.

Yet it is from these very human qualities that made failure always imminent that we can best draw inspiration for courage when courage is most needed.

Lincoln and Washington are immortal because each met and mastered very human problems in the face of his own limitations. They were often petty, grueling tasks whose accomplishment meant no Homeric reward, but only further thankless labor, only other obstacles to be clear by human skill in the face of human failings.

Not a heaven-sent inspration ... but preservance and tireless work in the face of Valley Forge, official jealousies, subordinate blundering and a shilly-shallying congress brought victory to Washington in 1781. Not divine omniscience ... but the weary struggles of a gaunt, perplexed countryman dedicated a reunited nation to a glorious destiny in spite of bickering politicians, incompetent generals, military unfamiliarity, a scolding wife and a mad actor's gun.

These, then, are the real Washington ... the real Lincoln ... men whose works live on to inspire posterity because their responsibility called forth their utmost powers. To a nation faced with economic discouragements their problems make ours seem quite insignificant and petty in comparison.

sexes had grown so startingly good at sports as to keep their most agile elders on the constrant defensive to retain their laurels, a state of affairs entirely too vigorous for warm Iowa summers.

An even more practical objection to the free use of the Country Club by the juniors was the fact that it was almost impossible to stock provisions enough to satisfy their never-ending thirsts and hungers for they seemed to be entirely lacking in the modern calory-consciousness.

The consensus was, given them a club of their own by all means, and if we have to help support it, we will.

The more conservative members of the social set felt that the safest and sanest thing to be done for the children was to get them away from their elders in the social life. Certainly their pure young innocence was less likely to suffer early defilement if kept in complete segregation from the daring unconventionalism that had overtaken so many parents at middle age.

The robust middle class was particularly pleased, reckoning that the hours of gay, exhausting bodily labor that confronted their children in the renoviation of Mill Rush could not fail to contribute the red blood, sturdy muscles and becoming tan quite incompatible with the tea-drinking, incense-burning, cocktail-shaking amusements to which the upper classes had become addicted. So many hard-working people try to comfort themselves with the notion that a healthy body is father of a healthy mind!

But among them all not one was more genuinely delighted than Phil herself who had observed the signs of mental depression in her pretty stepdaughter with increasing concern. In the beginning of their life together she had tried—as the rich are prone to do—to insure her contentment with lovely, costly gifts, with pretty clothes and with expensive tours.

Ultimately she thought it would be a good thing for Ginger to marry Eddy Jackson, in which case she planned for them a house and finely equipped laboratory for Eddy's agricultural experiments in the outer fringe of Doorndee, where they would have the freedom and privacy to which every young couple is entitled, but where she and Mr. Tolliver, when he had retired from active participation in church affairs, could joyously superintend the development of the future "little Gin and Gingers," as Ginger herself flippantly referred to her hypothetical progeny of later date.

Eddy, Phil told herself, was a nice boy and he understood Ginger. Best of all he had a sense of humor, was, in fact, what Ginger called a real human being and had fallen in love with Ginger in her days of bare-skinned knees.

It frequently happened that Ginger was tied up with engagements with different college boys home for vacation, or with the friends who came with them, in which case she usually managed to work Eddy into the party as an escort for her friend, Patty Sears. That was really wherein lay Patty's greatest value — in taking Eddy off her hands and yet keeping him in the party.

For Eddy was a powerful ally, a valuable addition to any party. He was older than the others and he never lost his head. The townspeople liked and trusted him, regarding him as a sort of reliable balance for the heedlessness of the average youth, and more than once he had been efficacious in extricating his associates from the embarrassing difficulties their immature emtionalism had goaded them into.

Ginger's own emotions, as far as men were concerned, were in a state of safe but deadly somnolence. She was not at all sure that she believed in love; her personal opinion was that she probably did not. Love, she found, was apt to be either rough or messy, and neither manifestation appealed to her.

Also, as she cheerfully confided to Phil, "if occasionally one does let go for a minute and lapse into complete eroticism—see Freud—one is so flushed and perspirey the rest of the day it simply isn't worth it!" Taken all together she was against love. "Something to do," she said, "that's all people need."

NEGOTIATIONS START

PARIS, Feb. 11. (AP)—Negotiations with a view to clarifying the Franco-Italian naval differences are still going on, a foreign office spokesman told the Associated Press today. He said there was nothing extraordinary about the visit here of Robert Leslie Craigie, of the British foreign office and that Mr. Craigie had come merely to resume his conversations with government officials.

Cotton Active Trading In Wednesday Market Livestock Demands Are Fair For Cattle Trade Grain Little Change In Cash Grain Mart

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 11. (AP) — The most active trading the cotton market has experienced in some time developed today. After a strong opening due to good Liverpool cables, the market continued to advance on heavy local and foreign buying and active short covering helped by firm stocks and a bullish private estimate of domestic consumption during January of 456,000 bales. Prices advanced to levels 13 to 14 points above the close of yesterday before the demand was satisfied. Late in the morning and during the early afternoon prices reacted 10 to 12 points from the highs on realizing and on the weakened technical position due to the heavy covering by shorts. The market was rather erratic in the late afternoon and eased off at one time on reports of financial trouble in China but later rallied some, the general market closing steady at net advances for the day of 7 to 11 points.

The closing of the exchange here tomorrow for Lincoln's birthday probably was responsible for some liquidation during the afternoon.

Liverpool came in 7 to 8 penny points better than due and private cables said the continent and Bombay bought. Manchester reported a fair cloth trade to the home trade and South America. First trades here were 10 to 12 points up and the market continued to advance until at the end of the first hour May traded as high as 11.2 and October at 11.70 or 10 to 14 points above the previous close.

postmaster and a banker of each town would complete the local committee, according to the Lubbock postmaster's plan.

Principle duty of the local committees will be to determine the amount of airmail being sent from their respective towns and to arrange the data for presentation at the meeting here in March.

To Compile Data

Data from all of the towns will be compiled at the meeting here, and a decision will be made as to whether or not it is advisable to organize a permanent group to work toward establishment of such an air line. Towns in territory adjacent to those on the proposed route will be invited to send representatives.

The meeting here will be held between March 5 and 10, it was announced following the conference at Big Spring, where Lubbock, Lamesa and Big Spring were represented. Two representatives of American Airways, inc., also attended the meeting, which convened at 10 a. m. at the Settles hotel.

Eight men represented Lubbock at the meeting. They were Mr. Wren and Mr. Vaughan, who went to Big Spring by automobile, and six who flew to the conference. Gregg James, J. H. Hankins, Dick Smith, N. L. Peters and G. P. Kuykendall went in a monoplane owned and piloted by S. T. Shoff.

Speculation For The Rise Occupies Most Of Stock Mart Time Wednesday

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 11. (AP)—Speculation for the rise occupied most of the stock market's time today, but late selling, mostly profit-taking, nullified results of the earlier enthusiasm.

Coppers and utilities provided leverage for the advance, which started after a quiet and irregular first half hour. Specialties needed little persuasion, once the rally got underway, nor did the pivotal industrials require much producing to record new highs for the movement. Rails however, refused to be converted. Best prices of the day in the general market represented net advances of 2 to 9 points, but when the average was struck after the close the gain of 90 stocks had dwindled to about half a point and the rail group was lower.

Sales Fall Off.

Sales of approximately 4,700,000 shares fell 100,000 below yesterday's.

The reaction was coincident with Under-Secretary Mills' statement here in which he said the bonus outlook was perhaps not as favorable as Wall Street had been hoping. It was rather significant that United States government securities, in the bond market, were liquidated after Mr. Mills' speech had been circulated.

There was a fractional firming of copper prices. Freight loadings for the week ended January 31, were 36 per cent lower than the corresponding week of 1930, the largest drop, with one exception since early in October, so any improvement in productive activity is not being reflected in traffic, now the lowest in about 16 years.

club has been steadily growing among the youngsters of the city and those in charge are making arrangements to take care of a houseful, nearly 1,000. The management wants every boy in town in the age limit given above to attend the show. Parents are also invited.

A veteran actor, one which only a few of the youngsters have ever seen on the screen—Charlie Chaplin—will appear in the feature picture of the matinee while Mickey Mouse will make his first appearance in his special boys' comedies also. Chaplin will be shown in "Shoulder Arms."

Besides the two pictures, there will be special music by the Hollywood Mickey Mouse band and surprise entertainment. Election of officers of the Lubbock Mickey Mouse club will also be held during the morning.

The club is sponsored by Lubbock merchants and membership cards are to be obtained through them. Every boy between five and 14 in the city is eligible for membership. On following Saturdays more Mickey Mouse shows will be given and the youngsters are promised worlds of entertainment.

Don't forget boys, be on hand at the Palace Theater at 9:30 Saturday morning for the big show.

Lincoln

tary, is 81. Despite his age he has traveled twice across the continent at his own expense in the interest of the unique organization.

William H. Wharff, of Berkeley, aged 95, will be seated as president. He claims to be the oldest living Mason, both in age and number of years in the fraternal order.

Recalls Seeing Lincoln

Last Independence day Wharff participated in the municipal celebration of the Fouth by reading Lincoln's Gettysburg address in a loud, clear voice. He vividly recalls meeting Lincoln during the Civil war.

The by-laws call for an honorary vice president who shall be someone who actually heard Lincoln give his immortal Gettysburg address Searching about the country for several months, Secretary Smythe learned that William Corse of the Sixth Massachusetts cavarly, now 87 and blind, and a resident of the Soldier's Home in Minneapolis, was one of those few now living of the audience which applauded that memorial address. Corse wrote to the secretary, saying he would consider it a great honor to serve as vice president.

Others Are Eligible

Others who can prove that they listened to the Gettysburg address are eligible to become vice presidents. Ida M. Tarbell, who has written so widely of Lincoln, is assisting the officers of the Fellowship in finding these few remaining men and women who are asked to be vice presidents.

And now for the other special inner circle honors of the Fellowship, which will be limited to even fewer than 100 persons. There is the Lincoln-Douglas debate membership, limited to those persons who heard these debates in Galesburg, Quincy and Freeport, Ill. Then there is the Cooper Union club, limited to those who heard the famous speech which Lincoln made in Cooper Union, New York.

Name Candidates For Frosh Queen

Eleven additional candidates for freshman queen at Texas Technological college were nominated and three student council representatives elected at a meeting of the freshman class Wednesday in the administration building, according to Matt Seymour, frosh president.

Three freshman queen candidates had been nominated at an earlier meeting. The fourteen nominees are:

Tena Alexander, Evelyn Heatly and Mona Gowan, who were the first nominees, and Mildred Price, Eleanor Aycock, Dorothy Griffin, Louise Garrison, Harriet Roach, Josephine Caraway, Harriet Swaim, Margaret Lindsey, Tempy Boone, Ruth Norman and Beatrice Casteel.

The freshman queen election, which is sponsored by The Toreador, student newspaper, will be held February 23 and 24.

Student council representatives elected and respective schools were: Garland Smith, liberal arts; Walter Storres, engineering, and Jessie Young, agriculture.

Livestock

MIDDLEWESTERN LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 11. (AP) — Cattle trade today was marked by a fair demand for better grades of weighty steers at mostly steady prices while lighter weights ruled steady to slightly easier. Chicago had a top of 11.25 on heavy steers and secured 10.50 for best yearlings. In Kansas City choice 1371 lb. steers landed at 10.00 and choice 752 lb. mixed yearlings brought 9.40. Fed steers are selling from 6.50@8.75 with kinds at 8.00 and above well conditioned. Finishers this week have taken out a good sized quota of fleshy feeders at 7.75. Receipts were estimated at 29,000.

Lighter weights of hogs, 230 lbs. and down, sold slowly at steady to 10 lower rates while heavier weights closed dull at 10 to 25 lower levels. The top of 8.10 was paid at Chicago. Offerings were around 115,500.

Increased receipts of sheep prompted a 25 to 50 decline in prices on fat lambs and some weakness developed on aged stock. Outsiders in Chicago brought numerous loads of choice lambs at 9.00@9.15 while at Kansas City best offered sold at 8.85. The supply numbered around 82,000.

Short Course

whipped cream.

H. J. Bower, the "ramrod" of the short course, introduced Mrs. Hudson. She said she had sold a ticket to the dinner to a man from El Paso at the annual farm bureau state meeting recently.

Norman Blaney, of Chicago, praised the previous speakers of the course for "stealing all my thunder," told a few stories on W. T. Martindale and others and then switched to cooperation in marketing.

"Sometimes we almost think of cooperative marketing as a panacea for all our farm ills," he declared. "I looked up the word in the dictionary. It seems to mean something between a miracle and a phenomenon."

The early settlers, both of Texas and the Southwest as well as of the nation, had to cooperate to build their homes, schools and churches, he pointed out.

"You can't stand still because the other fellow is advancing and his ratio to your standing still will make you slip backwards," he said.

Report Given.

Mrs. Luther Griffin of Hale Center, read a report of the activities of the home demonstration work in her county. Mrs. Julia Kelly, a former Lubbock county girl, is the agent and two of her girls recently won a state college scholarship. There are 13 clubs for women, eight for girls, reaching 23 out of the 29 communities in the county.

Mrs. Minnie Fisher Cunningham associate editor of Extension News, a Texas A. and M. publication, before beginning her talk, took occasion to thank the Lubbock people and the college faculty for the splendid course.

"If you all go into this 4-H pantry work and have one of them on every farm in Texas, a lot of our fear about this mass farming we hear much about, will vanish," she declared. "The members of the 4-H family pantry clubs are not in the bread line at this time."

Texas farm women, she said, produced goods valued at $3,875,000 during 1930. This was done by over 30,000 women and girls in 119 counties in the state. Of this vast sum, $1,575,000 represented canning work; $609,000 for gardens; $574,000 for clothing; $549,000, for poultry; $400,000 for dairy; $95,000 for home furnishing, and $13,000 for rugs.

At the afternoon session, held in the livestock pavilion at the college with James Burroughs presiding, W. T. Martindale, of Chicago, and Bloomington, Ind., American Farm Bureau Federation public relations expert, gave a comprehensive "agricultural policy." He outlined the part that farmer organizations play in the general scheme of affairs.

How the Kansas Crop Improvement association functions and its relation to the state agricultural college, was explained at the afternoon session by Dean L. E. Call. K. S. A. C. furnishes a man to act as secretary, part time stenographic work and other incidentals. Most of the inspectors are members of the faculty. The association is "largely self supporting," he declared.

R. V. Miller, secretary of the state pure seed board, in a prepared address on his work, told about the operation of the seed board in the state in the handling of certified and pure seeds. "Regulations are prepared by the board and administered by the commissioner of agriculture," he declared.

"Certification of the state board for seeds represents a number of items entering into the growing of the seed," he said. "A reputable farmer or firm of qualified breeders is represented, the seed is free of weeds, gathered under actual seed inspection in the field and has the proper isolation to insure purity.

Don Jones Talks.

Don L. Jones, superintendent of the Lubbock state experiment station, led a discussion on the work in this section. Pat Nix was the first seed man to grow certified seed, and James Burroughs followed quickly, he said.

"The main items for the farmer to know about seed are its germination, its purity and later its yield," according to Mr. Jones. "Pay little attention to looks," he added.

Bagged seed methods were outlined.

S. E. Cone, local seed dealer, told of the efforts of his fellows to keep the seed on the South Plains pure and to handle it. Seed from this area has gone to the Argentine Russia and Australia. There is a demand for grain sorghums from all sections of the country, especially New England states.

Dealers and farmers are urged to see that South Plains seed is kept up to a high standard.

Today, the closing program, is as follows:

Livestock, with W. L. Stangel presiding.

Morning, management of farm flocks by R. C. Mowery; sour or sweet cream or butter, K. M. Renner; livestock feeding, L. E. Call; producing butter fats, W. L. Stangel.

Afternoon, livestock outlook for 1931, L. D. Howell; demonstration of hog killing, F. G. Harbaugh.

Woman's program, addresses by Dean Margaret Weeks; W. T. Martindale and a demonstration on color in the home by Miss Jean Dorrel.

In the afternoon a reception will be held in the home management house for all the visiting ladies.

Scout Leaders Busy In Area

Fourteen Men Affiliated With Boy Scout Movement Constantly Since Organization Of South Plains Council

Men active in South Plains Area council activities include 14 or more who have been affiliated with the Boy Scout movement constantly since organization of the council, according to D. T. Jennings, area executive, of Lubbock.

The observation presented a parallel in South Plains history to the records of nationally known figures who have served as volunteer leaders in the Boy Scouts of America since the organization was transplanted from England. Start of the American scout movement began 21 years ago. This is the organizations' national anniversary week.

Those Active In Work

Those who have been active in scouting in this area since the program was launched here, according to Executive Jennings, include:

T. A. White, F. A. White, George W. Dupree, J. T. Trigg, K. N. Clapp, and Dr. Paul W. Horn, all of Lubbock; Dr. J. C. Loveless and J. D. Dyer, both of Lamesa; Ben C. Coln, of O'Donnell; J. T. Herd, of Post; J. W. Hood, of Slaton; A. B. Sanders, of Ralls, and George S. Link, of Spur.

That the scout movement throughout the nation is one in which volunteer leadership predominates is indicated by the fact that of its 235,000 officials, less than 1,500 are professionals. Volunteers include more than 28,500 scoutmasters, who give of their time without remuneration other than satisfaction which they gain from the service.

Leaders Are Prominent

Thousands who were scouts in the early days of the movement have continued their connection as scoutmasters, counselors, and in other volunteer capacities. Not a few scout executives, the professional leaders in the movement, started as Boy Scouts.

The Boy Scout movement appears to have a remarkable hold upon its leaders. It is unusual among national organizations in that it has, among its present leaders, many men who were active in its organization and in its councils 21 years ago.

Colin H. Livingstone, of Washington, D. C., its first president and now an honorary vice-president and member of the national executive board, was one of those who participated in the organization of the Boy Scouts of America.

Other founders of the Boy Scouts of America who are participating today are Daniel Carter Beard, national scout commissioner; John Sherman Hoyt; William D. Murray; Frank Presbrey, of New York; G. Barrett Rich, of Buffalo, and George D. Porter, of Newark, N. J. All are members of the national executive board today. With Dr. James E. West, chief scout executive, and other scout leaders, they wear the badge denoting 21 years or more of active work for the Boy Scouts of America.

Each president of the United States from President Taft on, not only has been honorary president of the Boy Scouts of America but has actively contributed to progress of the movement.

Bread Price Described As High Compared With Wheat

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11. (AP)—Bread was described today as a price aristocrat when compared to its ancestors, wheat and flour.

Ethelbert Stewart, Commissioner of labor statistics, said it cost more than it should in view of the cheapness of its materials.

He presented statistics to show the price of bread in 51 cities is higher relatively than the wheat price and also higher than the average price of all other food products.

The cost of virtually all ingredients of bread, except condensed milk, have dropped recently, Stewart said.

TOBACCO CAPITAL VOTES OLD GOLD BEST

Ripley Believe It or Not PROVES IT

RICHMOND AWARDS O.G. BIG VICTORY OVER RIVAL BRANDS

I went down to Richmond, Virginia, the other day. Richmond, one of the nation's capitals in tobacco products, where they know tobacco like Detroit knows motor cars.

I gave 904 Richmond smokers one each of the four leading cigarettes . . . with the names hidden by a black mask.

"Don't try to guess 'em, Richmond!" I said. "Just smoke 'em . . . and pick out the cigarette that tastes best."

It was the same old story. Again, O. G. rolled up a decisive majority vote. Chosen by the world's foremost tobacco town for its superior throat-ease and smoothness.

If that isn't a Supreme Court decision . . . what is?
