Walter Winchell's Column

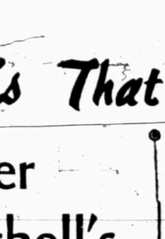

Being The Private Papers Of A Cub Reporter

JOSEPH Connolly, the president of King Features, and almost everything else, syndicates most of the features you read . . . Mr. Connolly supervises all the articles, frinstance, written by Mussolini down to Winchell . . . Last year he was in Rome and decided to call on Il Duce . . . "Have you an appointment?" a flunky said . . . "No, I haven't." Joe replied, "I just want to see him; I admire his stuff" . . . It took what seemed quite a while, when suddenly the dumpy Caesar came to his office door and impatiently said: "What DO you want?" . . . "Not a darn thing." Connolly answered as he started to chuckle, "I just thought YOU'D like to meet YOUR boss!"

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Until Lubbock and South Plains readers become acquainted with Walter Winchell's column, this new and sparkling feature will be run on Page 1—EXCLUSIVELY in The Journal. Star reporter, radio commentator and movie actor and critic, Winchell's column, while not necessarily expressing the view of The Journal in its every statement, is one of the finest newspaper features available today. It appears before millions daily, "from border-to-border and coast-to-coast.")

George Jean Nathan describes "Hellzapoppin" the new revue at the 46th Street asylum, as being "funnier than the Pulitzer Prize" . . . Well, funnier than both was the National B'casting firm's deletion of the show's name in a news broadcast Sunday night . . . "It's the name of a new show," almost screamed an impatient newsreporter, "and a new show is an event—it's news!" . . . "Nevertheless," was the reply, "it's out—unless you say it very fast" . . . The official admitted later that the score of that show isn't used on the network to avoid saying "Hellzapoppin" . . . The same broadcaster found it necessary to mention Sherman's historic: "War Is Hell!" . . . That was allowed only after the word Hell was changed to Hades . . . Oh, tish!

THE apparent revival of the road has stirred up a lot of colorful yarns about stunts pulled by troupers in the old days to lure customers. S. J. Kaufman was relating some of them in Reuben's last night . . . There was the time "The Great Lafayette," a magician, found himself, at his opening performance in a new town, facing an audience of only 85 people. He walked out to the center of the stage and made the following speech: "Ladies and gentlemen, there's no sense in giving a performance for such a handful of people, so I am going to ask you all to step out to the box office and get your money back. Not only that," he continued, "but in appreciation for your showing up, each and every one of you will receive a dollar in addition so you can also have dinner on me tonight" . . . With that he strode off the stage. The next night the house was jammed!

Kaufman also told about the smartie, some years back who hired the local opera house for one night in a small Pennsylvania town for $100. He engaged no ushers or other staff—just the four walls and lights . . . About a month before the evening he had hired the theatre, he put a large sign on the most prominent billboard in town, stating in huge letters: "He Is Coming!" . . . About a week before the fateful night he put another sign over it, reading: "He Will Be at the Opera House on October 31!" . . . The day before the event he changed the sign to the simple legend: "He Is Here!" . . . The following morning he put up another sign: "He Will Be at the Opera House Tonight at 8:30!" . . . That night the slicker himself sat in the box office, and sold tickets at a dollar a head to a capacity audience . . . When the crowd got inside and the lights went up all they could see on the stage was a huge sign that read: "He Is Gone!"

New Morning In Relations Seen As Result Of Munich Four-Power Agreement

By RUDOLF JOSTEN
Associated Press Staff Writer

BERLIN, Oct. 3.—A trade treaty with the United States emerges as one of the new goals before Germany, now that Czechoslovak sudetenland has been won in bloodless victory.

Economic supremacy in the Balkans and understanding with France are others.

Border Moves Forward

The Sudeten occupation marked the second time in less than seven months that the nation's border had been moved forward. Austria was the first.

Germans reckoning of the future generally saw in the Munich four-power agreement for partitioning Czechoslovakia and in the British-German pledge not to war against each other a new morning in European relations.

Colonies In Background

It appears, however, that colonies have been relegated to the background momentarily.

It is said, unofficially, that Chancellor Hitler and Prime Minister Chamberlain touched upon the question but briefly.

Germany's interest at present appears primarily centered upon economics — domiation of the Balkans as far down as Turkey and including Hungary, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria, all of which countries economics Minister Walter Funk visited on a recent tour.

AFOL Convention Is Opened In Houston

HOUSTON, Oct. 3 (AP)—American Federation of Labor delegates opened their 58th annual convention today to debate and vote on policy proposals shaping the federation's future attitude toward the New Deal and its program of social and economic reforms.

Preconvention developments, coupled with an A. F. of L. executive council report calling for revision in legislation affecting the workingman, indicated federation leaders were becoming increasingly critical of government administrative boards.

Labor officials predicted the big test would come when the convention is asked to decide how far the A. F. of L. should go in opposing senate confirmation of Donald Wakefield Smith's reappointment to the National Labor Relations board.

Federation leaders, after denouncing the board's rulings in some cases as "pro-CIO", appealed to President Roosevelt in August to replace Smith when his term ex-

Lax Conditions Are Uncovered In Probe Of Convict's Death

HUNTSVILLE, Oct. 3. (AP)—Lax conditions, but no malicious acts, were uncovered in the Texas prison board's investigation of the death of a negro convict, Joseph Wearden of Victoria, chairman of the board, announced yesterday.

"There has been a lack of good judgment, in fact, the poorest kind of judgment was used" said Wearden after a committee had found that K. C. Morris, 21, the convict, died from natural causes.

The negro, who had been in a tiny cell for 11 days on a bread and water diet with a solid meal every 36th hour, gorged himself upon release from the cell. This, rather than a whipping administered after his release, was responsible for his death, Wearden said. A "cardiac condition" also contributed to the cause of death, he explained.

Red Raiders Welcomed Home

This will give you an idea of what went on at the Santa Fe station here last night when a crowd of 3,000 cheering football fans welcomed the Texas Tech team home from Buffalo where, on Friday night, they beat Duquesne, 7-6. The young man on the crowd's shoulders is Halfback Elmer Tarbox whose fine play at Buffalo was a prime factor in the victory.

Cotton Men Of Area Assigned As Classers To Assist Loan Program; To Check Closely

With the movement of cotton getting under full steam, preparations to handle loan cotton were made Sunday by Harry W. Thompson, supervisors of cotton classifiers of the United States department of agriculture in this area. Thompson met with approximately 40 cotton men of this area Sunday in making plans for the handling of government cotton loans, into which the bulk of the South Plains' crop will be placed.

M. E. Heard, head of the department of textile engineering at Texas Technological college, sat in on the meeting and offered the services of the department in any way to aid the loan work.

To Use South Plains Men

"Due to the fact that West Texas cotton is so very hard to class, we think that West Texas cotton men can class this cotton better than classers from other parts of the state," Thompson said. "So in line with this thought, we are going to use all of the South Plains cotton men that have passed the government examination to class this West Texas cotton."

Any warehouse that desires a licensed classer to class cotton is invited to communicate with Thompson and a responsible licensed classer will be promptly assigned there.

Set Of Standards At Tech

Classers will report daily to Thompson's office and checks will be made on them to see that grade and staple standards are met. A complete set of government standards are available at Tech and may be used at all times for checking grades made by the classers, Thompson said. All classing will be strictly in conformity to the U. S. D. A. cotton standards act and under supervision of a member of the board of examiners.

Most of the loans will average from 7 to 7.5 cents over the area, it was said today, the staple ranging 13-16th to seven-eighths and the grade around good middling.

A steady stream of vehicles passed through the safety lane on Avenue Q between Broadway and Main street this morning.

The lane will be conducted through Saturday, from 8 to 12 in the mornings and 1:30 to 5:30 o'clock in the afternoons. Sgt. W. M. King of Austin and seven members of the department of public safety have charge.

Red slips are being pasted on windshields of cars with bad wheels, poor brakes, defective horns, and other faults that hinder safety in driving.

Ways Studied To Stimulate Consumption

Domestic Subsidy Proposal Made; Smith Leads Fight For Greater Loans

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Government farm experts are studying possible ways to increase domestic cotton consumption as a means of cutting down the nation's enormous surplus of the commodity.

It was reported authoritatively one of the proposals under consideration contemplates subsidies for textile manufacturers who agree to turn out cotton goods for sale at reduced prices to relief and low income families.

Program Is Considered

President Roosevelt already has directed the agriculture department, officials said, to invite leaders of the producing, marketing and manufacturing sections of the cotton industry to consider a program based on the domestic subsidy proposal at a meeting here soon.

Meanwhile, with an estimated surplus of more than 13,000,000 bales in existence, cotton belt senators have been clamoring for the government to increase its present cotton loan rate of 8.3 cents a pound to 11.8 cents, the maximum allowed under the farm law.

Says South Faces Bankruptcy

Chairman Smith (D-SC) of the senate agriculture committee, leading the fight for bigger loans, contends the South will go bankrupt unless its cotton income is boosted. Production control programs, under which the federal government pays farmers for holding down their cotton acreage, have not prevented accumulation of the huge price-depressing surplus.

Administration leaders contend solution of the cotton problem depends largely upon a greater use of the staple in this country. They have opposed any increase in the loan rate on the ground it would hold domestic prices above the world level and thus discourage exports.

When a swing struck him on the head, three-year-old Charles Owen Ross, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ross, jr., of route 3 suffered a crushed skull Sunday afternoon.

The child was taken to Lubbock sanitarium, where surgery was necessary to raise the skull bone. It was said this morning at the sanitarium he was resting better and his condition was not considered critical.

The accident happened in Twenty-seventh street park. The three-year-old boy and several other children were playing in vicinity of the swing.

Ross is a salesman for Waples-Platter company.

Minister Gives Answer Today To His Critics

'I Have Nothing To Withdraw Or Regret' He Declares In House Of Commons Debate

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Prime Minister Chamberlain told an intent house of commons today that "I have nothing to withdraw or regret" concerning the four power accord of Munich for the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia.

Chamberlain began his defense of his bargain with the German chancellor and the premiers of Italy and France after it had been bitterly assailed by Alfred Duff Cooper, who resigned Saturday as first lord of the admiralty because the Munich terms "stuck in my throat."

Prayers Are Answered

"When the house met last Wednesday" the prime minister recalled "we were unded the shadow of a great and imminent menace.

ACCLAIMS FDR'S EFFORTS

LONDON, Oct. 3 (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain today acclaimed the contribution of President Roosevelt to last week's negotiations which averted a European war.

"The voice of the most powerful nation in the world" spoke across the sea to sway Europe's statesmen to ways of peace, declared Chamberlain in his defense in a tense house of commons of the Munich four-power accord for the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia.

War more stark and terrible than it had ever appeared before, seemed to be staring us in the face.

"Today we know that the prayers of millions (for peace) have been answered."

Chamberlain received a great ovation from the government side when he rose to speak at 3:32 p. m. (10:32 a. m., e. s. t.)

Responsibility Overwhelming

"The responsibility of the members of the cabinet during the last few weeks has been almost overwhelming," he said. "Some of us will carry the mark of it for the rest of our days."

Declaring that haste in reaching a settlement of the Czechoslovak crisis was imperative, Chamberlain

Library Application 'Beat The Deadline'

Application for a federal Public Works administration grant toward the construction of a joint Lubbock city-county library building, estimated to cost $35,000 was among those which "beat the deadline" in the Fort Worth regional PWA office Saturday, according to information given this morning.

O. R. Walker, local architect, prepared the application of the city and county commisisons.

The application, it was explained, had to be filed before Saturday to be considered for any part of PWA money appropriated by the last congress. The proposal that the city and county consider the building of a separate library building had been made only one week before.

PWA assistance sought is $15,750. If granted, the city and county will share the remaining expense.

The present county library is housed on the second floor of the courthouse in rooms which are badly needed for official departments, officials explained.

Larger-Than-Usual Throng For Dollar Day Is Seen For Today

An early-arriving crowd this morning indicated a larger-than-usual throng for today's monthly first Monday "dollar day" in Lubbock.

Downtown streets were well crowded before 11 a. m. and parking spaces were at a premium.

Evidence that the cotton picking season is at hand was reflected in the presence of large numbers of Mexicans.

The big attractions of the day were the remarkable bargains which merchants of the city offered for the special occasion.

Clever People The Chinese, It Appears

SHANGHAI, Oct. 3. (AP)—An old Chinese and Japanese legend about orangoutangs was applied to the Oriental war today.

A Japanese correspondent reported he had it from a reliable Japanese source that the Chinese had 5,000 orangoutangs trained to throw hand grenades.

Furthermore, the correspondent wrote, he was told the Chinese had been capturing and training the animals in southwestern provinces for the past ten years.

There frequently have been legendary stories in the Orient of trained orangoutangs.

School District Tax Valuations Show Big Gain

Increase of nearly $1,500,000 in assessed valuations in Lubbock independent school district within a single year was reported this morning by A. C. Jackson, assessor-collector.

The gain, amounting to slightly more than 6 per cent, is the largest for any year in the history of the district.

The assessed valuations total of $25,572,070 is the largest since 1931, when the figure was $28,342,350. In 1932, because of the depression, valuations were cut 20 per cent arbitrarily to a total of $23,158,760, and since then, gains from year to year have been continuous.

Total $24,104,140 Last Year

This year's new figures compare with $24,104,140 last year.

The gain was far in excess of the estimates of officials and was chiefly due to the amazing increase in the value of personal property, Jackson reported. Within the year, the personal property valuations climbed from $4,694,060 to $5,417,330, a gain of $723,270 or more than 15 per cent.

During the same period, values of real property increased by $744,660 from $19,410,080 to $20,154,740, a

J. W. Kerley Maintains Record For Paying His Taxes First

J. W. Kerley of 2417 Thirteenth street, maintained his record as Lubbock county's No. 1 taxpayer Saturday, when he appeared at the office of H. B. Bryan, assessor-collector, before office hours, to pay his 1938 taxes.

"He has been the first man to pay them each year since before my time," said Bryan. "He was here about 7:15 o'clock that morning."

Mr. and Mrs. Dan W. Powers, 1649 Broadway, were the first to pay poll taxes for the year. They also paid their other taxes.

Bryan said books are now open and persons who desire to pay taxes may do so. Numerous firms and some individuals also pay their taxes under the split-tax system, paying half this fall and the rest in June.

Der Fuehrer's Entry Follows His Soldiers

Sudetens Are Invited To Join 'Our March Into A Great German Future'

By MELVIN K. WHITELEATHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WITH THE GERMAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION IN SUDETENLAND, Oct. 3. — Adolf Hitler personally assumed power over this former Czechoslovak territory in a triumphant military procession today and declared that "never will this land be torn from the reich."

Following his armies through the heart of Sudetenland he made two stops to accept guardianship of all Sudeten Germans and invite them to join "our march into a great German future."

Henlein Hands Over Territory

At Wildenau, on the frontier, Sudeten Nazi Leader Konrad Henlein symbolically handed the entire Su-

He ate with Konrad Henlein and other dignitaries in a tent pitched by the roadside on the edge of Eger. During the half hour no one was permitted to pass the troop [illegible] armored cars, and private vehicles accompanying the German army of occupation clogged the highway [illegible]

Through the 17-mile ride from Wildenau to Eger Hitler was acclaimed as a liberator. The Fuehrer rode the entire distance standing in an open automobile, his face solemn and his arm ever raised in salute.

Inspect War Machines

Hitler's first halt in his new domain was at Haslau, where he inspected anti-aircraft and anti-tank companies drawn up in the former Czechoslovak army-Sudeten free corps no man's land.

Eger duplicated the reception given to him along the route. After the ceremony at the market square he visited the house where Prince of Wallenstein, generalissimo of the Hapsburg army in the Thirty Years' war, was killed by an assassin Feb. 25, 1934.

The prince was a forerunner of Hitler in advocating any sacrifice for the greatness of the German nation. He also visited Eger's show piece, the old castle of Frederick Barbarrosa.

Hitler spoke in the market place of Eger, one of the "capitals" of Sudetenland, from a platform colorfully surrounded by flower girls in their picturesque costumes.

"Over this Germany, this greater Germany, is its shield, is its sword as protection," the fuehrer declared.

He stepped unexpectedly before madly cheering crowds at Eger, in

Davis Denied Place On November Ballot

AUSTIN, Oct. 3 (AP)—Secretary of State Edward Clark announced today he had declined to certify Arlen B. (Cyclone) Davis of Dallas as a candidate for governor on the Peoples Pension party in the November general election.

Davis, who filed a petition Saturday, said he would seek to compel the secretary to include his name on the ballot by mandamus proceedings.

In a letter, Clark gave the following reasons for refusing to certify Davis:

"1. I certified the nominees of all political parties on September 20, 1938, and your request for certification was therefore too late to be accepted.

"2. I do not agree that the procedure for organization of the Peoples Pension party and the method of nomination were reasonable.

"3. Your petition shows that the Peoples Pension party has endorsed all of the Democratic nominees for office with the exception of the nominee for governor. If I should certify you as a nominee for governor of Texas for the Peoples Pension party, I would in effect be permitting you to run as an independent candidate since I would be approving a subterfuge for such purpose."

Clark said he requested it was necessary to deprive Davis of the privilege but, in view of his previous rulings, he had no other Man Being Held — Police this morning held a man accused of the theft of a pair of glasses, a pair of smoked glasses and a comb from a car parked down town, said B. P. Millsap, police court recorder. Owner of the glasses and comb is unknown. The man, at the same time, had in his possession a suede leather coat, identified from papers in the pockets as belonging to H. C. Harris. The man was picked up in the 500-block on Avenue S and said he was from California. He was turned over to the county.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 52), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells.

Just get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a reliable "WOMAN'S" tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and those disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life.

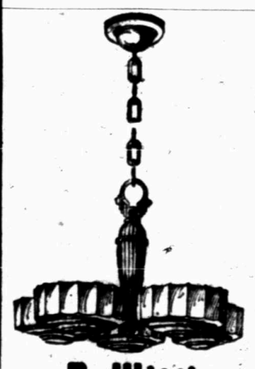

Pinkham's is WELL WORTH trying.

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

Just a common cough, a chest cold, or a bronchial irritation of today may lead to serious trouble tomorrow. They may be relieved now with Creomulsion, an emulsified Creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medicinal combination designed to aid nature in soothing and healing infected mucous membranes by allaying irritation and inflammation and by aiding in loosening and expelling germ-laden phlegm.

The Medical Profession has for generations recognized the beneficial effect of Beechwood Creosote in the treatment of coughs, chest colds, and bronchial irritations. A special process was worked out by a chemist, for blending Creosote with other ingredients so that now in Creomulsion you get a good dose of genuine Beechwood Creosote which is palatable and may be taken frequently by both adults and children.

Creomulsion is one preparation that goes to the very seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm. When coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles due to common colds hang on, get a bottle of Creomulsion from your druggist, use it as directed and if you are not satisfied with the relief obtained, the druggist is authorized to refund your money. Creomulsion is one word, ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

"See Your Optometrist Regularly" Good Advice

Glasses a necessity now instead of luxury due to the invention of printing.

The history of the invention and the inventor of spectacles is rather obscure. However, the honor of the invention is attributed to several men, namely, Roger Bacon, an Oxford monk who died in 1294, Alexander de Spina, a Dominican monk of Pisa who died in 1313 and Salvino d' Armato degli Armati, a Florentine gentleman, who died in 1317.

Little demand for lenses existed until about the beginning of the 16th century, and from then on a very rapid development is noticed in testing and grinding as exemplified by the strict regulations of the "Worshipful Guild of Spectacle Makers" of England and Nuremberg. The apparent reason for the slow start of ophthalmic lens demand and development lies in the fact that the public could not appreciate ocular aid in the pursuit of their daily work. Tilling the soil does not require good vision, and since only a scholar could read and only a rich man could buy a hand copied book, few people required spectacles.

Printing Developed

In 1450 a man by the name of Gutenberg changed all this. Some doubt exists as to whether or not he invented the printing press, but it is certain he placed printing on a highly practical basis, thereby opening the gate for the flood of printed information to come. His contribution to the art of printing not only popularized reading but it indirectly gave a tremendous stimulus to the refractive branch of the ophthalmic profession and increased the demand for ophthalmic lenses.

In order to learn to read and enjoy the new book now available, one had to be able to see the print clearly and any lack of visual efficiency became obvious and called for the necessary correction. Without stretching our imagination, we can regard reading as the underlying cause for modern refraction and spectacles. Throughout the Middle Ages ophthalmic lenses were synonymous with "Reading Glasses" and the wearer of spectacles was regarded with respect as being a man of culture on the strength of his ability to read.

Glasses As Necessity

Modern times have enlarged the field for good distance vision through the introduction of the automobile and the motion picture. Today, glasses are regarded as a necessity instead of a luxury. Reading is the most complex visual activity of man and tends to reveal even small visual inefficiencies. Most people consult their optometrist to have their eyes examined for "Reading Glasses" and the aid given their distance vision is regarded as auxiliary service.

The main criterion for a man's visual efficiency is his reading comfort. Quite often even the most painstaking refraction (examination) does not yield a correction which gives this desired comfort. Further investigations frequently point to motor anomalies (eye muscle weaknesses) and the necessary orthoptic (correct muscle) treatments are advised and instituted. The objective aimed at is, of course, reading comfort and efficiency.

BEADING ROLL USED IN THE METRONOSCOPE.

Making Reading A Pleasure Instead Of Hard Work

Reading is work, even when done for pleasure, and the only way to avoid unnecessary eye strain is to increase reading speed and efficiency, Dr. Millard F. Swart states.

Reading efficiency can be increased through use of the Metronoscope, designed to perfect a smooth left-to-right swing of the eyes and an accurate return sweep to the next line, he says.

"Avoidance of eye strain is important because it can induce other ailments," Dr. Swart declares. "Correct existing visual defects and then stop reading when drowsy and when the eye muscles have to be jolted into activity. Read only normal-sized type under a good light."

Act Of Reading Is Complex Job

That the act of reading is a highly complex and arduous performance can be easily seen, according to Dr. Millard F. Swart. First, we must remember that a total of 12 independent muscles are involved in the binocular response.

The average adult reader reads at the rate of about 300 words per minute, and makes about 90 fiations and 15 regressions (a total of 105 fixations) per 100 words.

113,400 Adjustments Made

If this average reader would read at this rate for thirty minutes, he would have read a total of about 9,000 words and would have made, on the average, about 9,405 fixations. Therefore, the 12 extra-ocular muscles (six in each eye) make together a new, delicate and precisely coordinated adjustment 9,450 times at the rate of 5.2 adjustments per second. If the individual adjustments of each muscle are considered, the staggering total of 113,400 different adjustments is arrived at, which represents work.

Spend as little as one hour a day reading newspapers, magazines, or ordinary business data, and at the end of the year you will have read the equivalent of forty books, or 13,000,000 words, also says Dr. Millard F. Swart. High school and college students, office workers and professional people read even more than this. A stenographer may average 60,000 to 75,000 words a day; scholars twice this much.

"The tree that never had to fight for sun and sky and air and light; that stood out in the open plain and always got its share of rain, never became a forest king, but lived and died a scrubby thing.

Good timber does not grow in ease — the stronger the wind, the tougher the trees; the farther the sky, the greater the length; the more the storm, the more the strength; by sun and cold, by rain and snows, in tree or man—good timber grows." Adv.

More Books And Papers Now Read By Public Daily

Optometry is endeavoring with aid of science to improve reading habits.

Contrary to popular belief, reading has not become a lost art due to the ever-increasing popularity and competition of the auto, radio and movies. Actually the greatest American public reads more now than it ever did before, and statistics can be cited to prove it.

It is customary for publishers to bemoan their hard lot, accusing the public of forsaking literature for the strident charms of the radio and movies and auto. It would be silly to deny the powerful appeal of our three great national amusements, but somehow we manage to crowd into our day the daily newspaper, "Gone With The Wind," and "Life" as well as Charlie McCarthy, the new Ford and Robert Taylor.

We Read More

Perhaps a few harsh words can be said about the average quality of our reading, but the fact remains that we read more and more as the years march by. Consider the facts:

The volume of publications on the modern news stand has increased 170 per cent since 1900.

Newspaper circulations in 1937 exceeded that of 1922 by 11,600,000 copies.

Since 1920 we have seen the rise of the enormously popular 'Time, Esquire, Reader's Digest, Life and Look.

The pulp magazines—devoted to adventure, crime, true stories and Westerns—have increased their circulation 6,000,000 in the past ten years.

Some sixty pocket size magazines crowd the news stands.

"Anthony Adverse" and "Gone With The Wind" have each sold, so far, a million and a half copies.

The largest of the weeklies now prints more than 3,000,000 copies a week, and there are nine other periodicals with circulations above the two-million mark.

That would seem to indicate that we are becoming a nation of readers. To keep the record straight, it has also been computed that the average pupil in the schools today is required to read approximately fifteen times as much as a pupil at the same level of instruction in 1300.

Increase Presents Challenge

To the optometrist, this striking increase in reading presents a definite challenge. He is concerned lest we strain our eyes doing this near-point work without adequate compensation; and is endeavoring, with the aid of science, to improve our reading habits.

That his fears are not altogether unfounded was proved recently. Eye-movement photographs taken by American Optical Company scientists of over 3,000 subjects of all ages, taken at random from various sections of the country, revealed that not more than 25 per cent of them were reading with real efficiency.

Furthermore, the latest estimate places the number of school children handicapped by inefficient vision as approximately 3,000,000 for the United States only, or one-eighth of the nation's school population. These figures were arrived at after careful study made by the National Education Association cooperating with the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

Compensate Nature

It is obvious, therefore, that if we continue to step up our reading activities we should compensate Nature by subjecting ourselves to annual eye examinations and taking advantage of modern methods, devised by optical scientists, to improve our reading speed.

By all means continue to read more and more if you wish, but give your eyes the same consideration you would your auto. Conserve them, train them and you can keep pace with the evolution of the world as depicted in the innumerable books, magazines and newspapers which pour unceasingly from the press.

Crippled Eyes Need Not Be Accepted As Failing

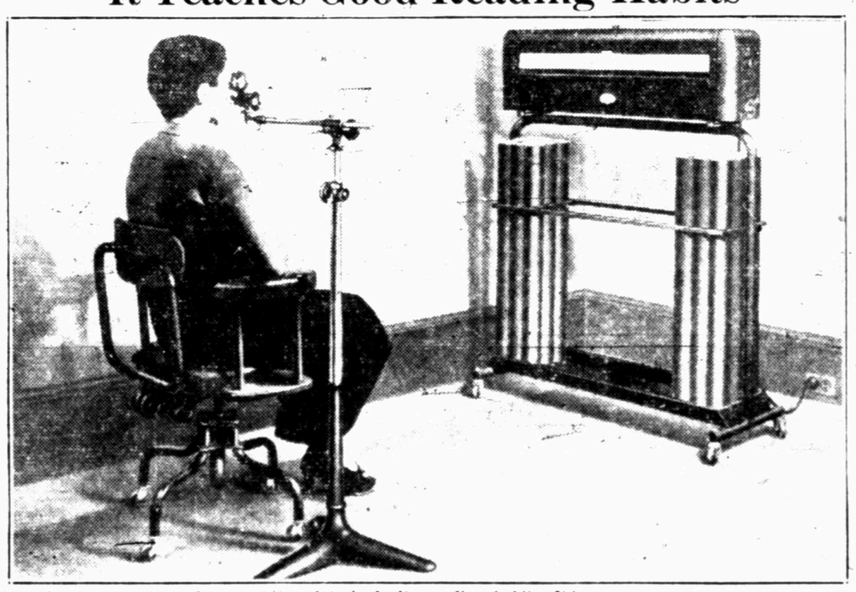

Crippled eyes need not be accepted as inherent to human beings and civilization any more than crippled legs need be. Both are due chiefly to neglect or lack of knowledge. A baby is born with tiny legs and fairly well developed eyes. Usage develops the legs and generally they become normal, healthy adult legs without defects. Why should not the eyes develop into normal healthy adult eyes without defects? The difference must be found in abuse of the eyes, in the artificial world, but not of the legs.

It Takes Movies Of Reading Eyes

THE OPHTALMOGRAPH PHOTOGRAPHS LIGHT REFLECTED FROM THE EYES AS ONE READS. THE RESULTANT READING GRAPH REVEALS UPON ANALYSIS THE SUBJECT'S READING.

It Teaches Good Reading Habits

The Metronoscope is used to correct and train faulty reading habits. It has three shutters in front which open and close in sequence exposing words printed on a reading roll.

Reading Program To Help School Failures

A comprehensive reading instruction program, if instituted in all schools, would enable many of the 1,500,000 students who fail annually to pass their studies, Dr. Millard F. Swart states.

To put such a program into effect, he says it would be necessary to have close cooperation between parents, educators and eyesight authorities, coupled with the use of a newly developed preventive and corrective reading technique.

Poor Readers Fail

According to Dr. Swart, reading efficiency or its lack determines to a large extent the success or failure of students in schools. Numerous cases of failure have been noted, he says, among those who have sufficient intelligence to meet the ordinary school requirements but find that the assigned work impossible because they are poor readers.

Dr. Swart's suggested reading program consists of (1) a thorough eye examination as scientific data, he says, show that some of the most common types of reading disability are related directly to eye defects that can be corrected; (2) a test of mental ability; (3) eye movement photographs to be taken with the Ophthalmograph during the act of reading so that reading habits are accurately known; and (4) controlled reading training made possible by the development of the Metronoscope, an instrument used to correct and train faulty reading habits.

Cost Negligible

The cost of such a program would be negligible, Dr. Swart states, as the money saved by preventing failures would pay for the expenses involved.

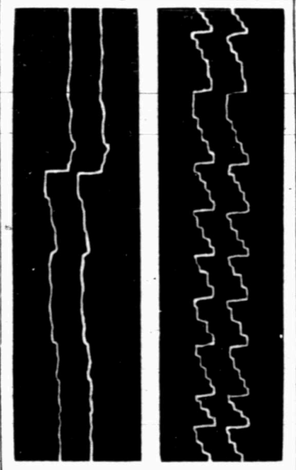

Optometrists who are equipped with the Ophthalmograph and Metronoscope are in a unique position to cooperate thoroughly in such a reading instruction program, Dr. Swart states. Educators as well as parents can send failing students to them to have their eye movements photographed and remedial training given, so that these unfortunate youngsters will have the opportunity to pass their courses like their companions.

Developing Personality High Goal Of Education

The true and high goal of education is the development of personality and building of character which will result in right living. Merely to increase the knowledge without character would be to create a power without proper control. The more learned and skillful a man becomes, the more dangerous he may be to society, unless the power of his knowledge is guided and controlled by true moral principles. The welfare of the community, the future peace and progress of our political, industrial, and social life will depend not only upon the intelligence but upon the moral character of our young citizens. There is no other sure and stable basis for the public welfare.

Great vision have those who recognize that the goal of Education is "For every child spiritual and moral training to help him to stand firm under the pressure of life."

Reading Charts

[A] [B]

A—Fifth grade boy needing remedial work in reading makes 300 fixations per 100 words. Makes 125 regressions per 100 words. Silent reading rate approximately 20 words per minute.

B—High School student who is an excellent student makes 76 fixations per 100 words. Makes 2 regressions per 100 words. Reads 371 words per minute.

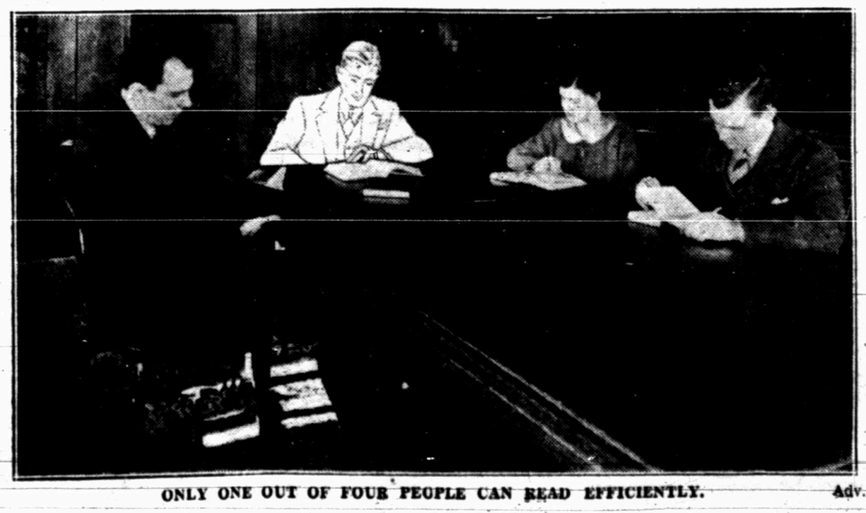

Good Readers Are Generally Good Workers

Most efficient readers are usually the most efficient workers, statistics have shown recently, according to Dr. Millard F. Swart, Optometrist.

A test in one place of business showed the office chief had a reading speed of 600 words. A high percentage of all failures in school are not only due to poor mentality, but to lack of proper skill in reading. Also, a person is often considered dull through being a slow reader, when the fact is that his eyes are not working efficiently. He may need glasses or corrective reading training.

In the office of Dr. Swart, complete equipment for conditioning eyes for greater speed and efficiency in reading has been recently installed. As an experienced Optometrist, Dr. Swart is well qualified to undertake this work, which is today becoming an important part of modern optometry.

Every great teacher has driven this truth home. There is no life, no hope, no happiness for anyone who is concerned (consciously or unconsciously) solely with themselves. Adv.

Eyes Photographed While They Read

Reading Habits of Children and Grown-ups can now be studied scientifically and made more efficient.

By DR. MILLARD F. SWART

As early as 1899 the value of eye movement photography as a diagnostic method was recognized and an experimental camera made at Wesleyan University. Following this, many other cameras were built, but because of their great size and cost they were impractical for general use.

After years of research, design and experimentation, American Optical Company scientists succeeded in developing a relatively inexpensive camera that has already proved itself superior to the intricate, costly laboratory instruments. This instrument, called the Ophthalmograph, is compact, portable and easily operated. Guesswork had at last been taken out of the diagnosis of reading skill.

The Subject Reads

The diagnosis is made by having the subject insert his face into one end of the rectangular device in such a way that light-beams are focused on the corneas of his eyes. At the rear of the instrument is a 100-foot roll of film moving at the rate of one-half foot a second. The subject reads text-matter printed on a card before his eyes. As his eyes move across the lines, the light-beams are reflected from his corneas to the film, leaving a photographic record of his optical oscillations—one track for each eye, in a pattern much like an irregular stairway.

Then comes the diagnosis, as skilled as the interpretation of an X-ray by a radiologist. If the light-track indicates an excessive number of fixations (momentary stops as the eye jerks across a line of type), if there are too many regressions or retracings by the eye to get the meaning what has just been read, and if the light-track pattern indicates a lack of rhythm, then the subject is eminently suited to become a patient in reading.

3000 Cases Tested

The skilled reader scans a line swiftly, sweeps his eye back to the beginning of the next line in about one-fortieth of a second. At each fixation of the eye upon a word symbol, a certain number of letters or words are clearly seen in the small spot in the retina which alone has sharp enough vision for reading. The number of words identified at a glance is the span of recognition. The span of the average efficient college reader is 1.2 words. Out of 3,000 cases tested, only one showed a recognition span as high as six words.

As a companion instrument to the Ophthalmograph, American Optical Company scientists developed the Metronoscope. This instrument, used to correct and train faulty reading habits, has three shutters in front which open and close in sequence, exposing a third of a line of words printed on a reading roll which unfolds in the same manner as a player-piano roll. The subject is thereby forced to read correctly, for the operation of the machine will not permit him to pause excessively long or to retrace in his reading. In addition, the roll can be speeded up, teaching him by degrees to increase his reading speed.

Strange Reading Cases Seen By Ophthalmograph

Unusual reading habits and defects have been disclosed through use of the Ophthalmograph which photographs eye movements in the act of reading.

These strange cases, as reported by American Optical Company's Bureau of Visual Science, consisted of (1) an 8 year old boy who reads backward as well as forward and has read at the phenomenal rate of 2,202 words per minute; (2) a subject who reads almost entirely with his right eye, the left eye being used very little in the reading process; (3) an 8 year old boy who, because he could not find the beginning of a new line of reading in the usual way, retraced the line just read and then dropped down to the beginning of the new line; (4) a high school student whose reading graph disclosed that one of his eyes tended to move horizontally and the other vertically when he attempted to read.

See Your Optometrist At Least Once A Year

Let me tell you how to keep those eyes of yours in good condition. Go to see your Optometrist at least once a year. Defective vision is a drain on the entire nervous system. Keep your eyes in perfect condition—then you will have more pep, energy and vitality. If your eyes are defective, they rob other organs of your body of nerve energy and after a day's work with defective eyes you are all worn out, and sometimes neglected eyes cause you to be cross and irritable.

Proper Reading Habits Keep Eyes Healthy

Dr. Swart Outlines Methods to Help Your Reading and Keep Your Eyes Healthy.

Here are some interesting things for everybody to know about proper reading, particularly parents:

1. Be sure you read with an ample supply of light on the page. It should come from over your shoulder so that no shadows are cast on the page.

2. Detailed work and small print reading should be taken in short bits. Don't overwork eyes.

3. Sit correctly while reading. It gives the eyes proper energy.

4. Watch for signs of eye-strain. Bloodshot eyes mean overworked eyes. Headaches and scowling or squinting reveal a need for glasses.

5. If a child avoids reading or reads slowly, have his reading speed tested.

6. See an Optometrist periodically for examination.

These suggestions by Dr. Millard F. Swart are to help your reading and to keep your eyes healthy. Dr. Swart has recently installed a new instrument called the Metronoscope which conditions the eyes for fast, efficient reading. His work on reading is already outstanding in the community.

Reading Devices Now Well-Known Report States

Figures concerning press, radio and movies are available from a survey made about the interest aroused by the Ophthalmograph and Metronoscope, instruments developed by the American Optical Company to aid in the solving of the reading problem.

More than 400 newspaper articles, many of them liberally illustrated, have appeared in the daily press all over the country; eight national magazines have published feature stories; Pathe News showed the instruments in use at Roosevelt High School; and Columbia Broadcasting System presented them over the air in the first Reading Clinic of the Air, October 13, 1937.

The instruments have also been exhibited at 20 professional and 10 educational conventions; more than 4000 professional men and educators have written for information; they have been used at two reading clinics held at New York University and George Peabody College for Teachers, and again used at the latter institution during its second annual Reading Laboratory Institute, July 7-16.

Awards Made

Earl Taylor, member of American Optical Company's Bureau of Visual Science, has been awarded the Distinguished Service Foundation of Optometry's gold medal for his contribution to the instruments, and in 1937 the Associated Industries of Massachusetts gave American Optical Company a Merit Award for its part in the development. Optometry Renders Public Service

Optometry is a scientific profession with a sound basis wholly in accord with modern science, with a wide field of it's own to render a service.

Optometry has made more rapid educational progress than any other profession in the same length of time.

The practice of optometry embraces scientific procedures that have to do not only with the anatomy and physiology of the eye, and eyesight itself, but with mathematics, physics, psychology, and the many other measures concerned with vision, as well.

We believe we have a profession, built upon ideals, that gives to the world a most valuable assistance in its pursuit of life and happiness; and that it always has made and will continue to make adjustments in its procedure, each decade bringing forth its own needs.

Freshmen Facing Still More Tests

No. Carolina University Finds Out If They Can Read—Correctly

CHAPEL HILL, N. C.—And now another test to see what makes the lowly freshman tick!

They know about his health, his I. Q., and his psychological reactions. They are finding out today if he can read—correctly.

All freshmen at the University of North Carolina here who fail to pass two or more courses are introduced to a camera-like device—called an Ophthalmograph—which records the actual behavior of reading eyes.

Eyes Are Trained

If their eyes hesitate too long or retrace their movements too often over a sentence, they are due for a session with another instrument — called a Metronoscope — which increases eye reading speed and the number of words which can be seen at a single glance.

Use of diagnostic and remedial reading training methods of this kind in all educational institutions will be common practice within the next few years, Dr. Millard F. Swart predicts.

Early examination may mean the difference between high and low grades throughout college. Students today must read fifteen times as much as those who went to school in 1900 and their success depends primarily upon the efficiency of their reading habits, it is claimed.

Office Workers Aided

Dr. Swart also predicts that the efficiency of office workers, stenographers, copy readers and others engaged in near-point work will be stepped-up at least 30 per cent during the next few years through the universal adoption by [illegible] ness of these scientific methods of reading speed and reading comprehension training.

Cleaning Up The Trip

By Collier Parris

A GRAND RECEPTION, boys and girls, although a fitting one, and the Texas Techs, players and coaches extend heartiest thanks to all of you for meetin' the train last night.

It was a road-weary gang, but to pass the nervous minutes of the home stretch, the football car was filled with more or less melodious and considerably less harmonious, warbling and fast talking. The lads were ready for the reception, but quite surprised that so many turned out.

Members of the Touchdown Club—for men only, you know—will have opportunity tonight to hear about the trip and the game from coaches and players.

SOMEWHAT OF A DAMPER fell across the homecoming when the boys learned yesterday at noon the high school scores of the district, especially the Westerner defeat. The Westerners have no better supporters and well wishers than members of the Tech grid squad. More regretfully than Lubbock High's defeat, however, the boys took news of Rusty Johnston's tough break and that young man's illness, which means a tough break for the whole team, of course.

The District 1 teams were sort of "one-point" victims, eh? And so were a lot of teams over the country Friday and Saturday, including the Duquesnes.

Of interest, however, was the fine showing the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes made against the Harvesters. That must have been a battle, and the Tornadoes are due congratulations.

Well, there's quite a lot to remember about the Buffalo trip and the game and the various sidelights, and you'll be hearing things for some time to come.

One item that hasn't been mentioned very fully regards the fine treatment extended the Techsters all the way. Buffalo folks went out of their way to make it a pleasant visit for the Raiders, and they know how to make you feel at home. The "cold" attitude you hear concerning Easterners did not prevail at Buffalo.

The Erie County American Legion, sponsor of the game, just couldn't be too nice. The newspapers were swell in their pre-game treatment, during and after the game. It is an unusually friendly gang of sports writers Buffalo has, and they gave Tech quite a break, congratulated the boys for their game, admitted their surprise at seeing them go so hard, and in general made quite a fuss over the scarlet clad youths, "who behaved themselves so gentlemanly and performed so nobly, on and off the field."

AMONG OTHER THINGS . . . The wicked block applied by Charley Calhoun to Mazonet, Duquesne end, which removed the latter from the game . . . Charley's turn to be the "goat" found him in swell performance . . . His defensive work and his punting almost made up for the costly fumbles, however . . . The holding penalty inflicted against Tech when Bill Davis "just couldn't help it, Coach," reached out for a lineman's leg—and caught it—The unusually fine punting of the game on both sides . . .

A penalty that wasn't recorded . . . Happened this way: Tech made a first down on a running play, needing about four yards . . . Duquesne was off side . . . After some discussion, play continued, from about the same spot . . . Fans and scribes thought Captain Murphy had refused the penalty, Tech having made first down anyway . . . It wasn't until we were coming home that Murphy explained he had allowed Duquesne to be penalized . . . The penalty gave Tech a one-foot advantage . . . Official statistics should read: Penalties—Texas Tech, once for 15 yards; Duquesne, 4 for 20 yards.

Other statistics show Tech to have surpassed in three major departments—scoring, passing and punting . . . Of which the first is the most important . . .

In offensive passing, Tech tried four, completed 2 for total of 41 yards, compared with 10 attempts, two completions for 35 yards by Duquesne . . . Tech; on pass defense, batted down four, intercepted four, while the Dukes caused two of Tech's to be incomplete, intercepted none . . .

Featured by Calhoun's 60-yard punt—he actually kicked it more than 70 yards, on the fly—Tech's punting average was 37 1-2 yards to Duquesne's 34 1-2 . . . First downs, as you know, favored the fighting Dukes, 9-7, and the eastern team outgained Tech on running plays, 192 yards to 168. Subtract the 30 yards Duquesne lost from scrimmage and the 19 Tech lost, and the Dukes lead in net gain, 162 to 149 . .

Texas Tech's lateral passing brought deep breaths, then loud cheers from the crowd . . . The Raiders have learned to get rid of that ball when they're in trouble, and four times the laterals worked . . . Once it didn't work, as planned, but it didn't fail, either . . . Holmes broke through and ahead, was half-tripped, but managed to stumble forward for a long gain . . . Could he have gained his balance, it would have been a touchdown, because he's just about as fast as they get in football . . .

As he fell, he flipped the ball sidewise, hoping, more than planning, for a successful lateral . . . Nobody was there, and the ball fell loose, rolled about eight yards forward . . . Tearing up alongside was Rex Williams, Center, and how he got there that fast is still a big mystery . . . but he fell on the loose agate for a nice gain . . . The drive later broke down, but Holmes' staggering run and Williams' recovery provided a highlight of the ball game.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5 — Wait and see if it isn't Gomez vs. Lee in the opener; Ruffing vs. Bryant in the second and goodness knows who in the third . . . Cubs' pitchers are all tired out or their chances would be better . . . At that, you can get offers here the Bruins carry the Yanks to six games. That is if you spot a few points . . . Yankee special pulls out late today for the Windy City with our Dr. Sid Feder aboard to keep you posted on doings en route . . . It was a blow to this chronicler that a back-firing stomach forced him to cancel his Chicago reservations . . . But we expect to be on hand at the first game at the Yankee stadium next Saturday to give you the low and inside.

Football situation: Well, well and well . . . Prof. Crisler did all right for himself out at Michigan, didn't he? . . . And we hope Charlie Bachman doesn't feel too hurt because he sure was loaded for that one) . . . And Prof. Lou Little at Yale—what was the matter with him? . . . If you know the learned tactician, you know that when he starts shedding those crocodile tears, he has a lot more in his pocket than Turkish towels . . . We sort of thought Bo McMillin and Co., would sneak up and topple Ohio State . . . And Tuss McLaughry of Brown can step up for a bow . . . His team beating Harvard was not entirely unexpected, but it was a feat, nevertheless.

Major Biff Jones' stand against Minnesota showed one and all they had better keep the storm warnings up. . . . Clemson, after a great start, folded against big time opposition . . . Just the same Red Dawson of Tulane, who lost to Clemson in the opener and tied with Auburn Saturday, will have to step fast to show his team is of Southeastern conference calibre. . . . Alabama and Tennessee are the class down there . . . By the way, where was that Florida whizzbang we have been hearing about? . . . Also Rice? . . . We picked Notre Dame to stop five or six. . . . They beat Kansas 52-0 . . . Consoling thought: maybe it was the "B" team old Elmer Layden had in there.

Suppose you've already noted that the Pirates eliminated the Reds from the National league race, and then the Reds turned around and eliminated the Pirates — which we call pouring it on. . . . The Pittsburgh pitcher in both instances was Red Lucas, an old Red. . . . This is baseball for you: Bob Feller fans 18 Detroiters to win the major league strikeout record, but loses the ball game. . . . You may be looking at the next heavyweight champion of the world when you watch Gunnar Barlund against Lou Nova tonight.

Otto Flynn Wins Second Time In Junk Car Race On Sunday

Otto Flynn driving his Model A No. 16 came across the finish line about two car lengths ahead of L. B. Gaither, last week's winner, for his second win in eight starts in the local junk car derby Sunday. The entire race was the hardest fought of any up to date. Flynn's fan rammed a hole in the radiator and just as he crossed the finish line his motor was so hot that it stuck. The card had to be towed from the field.

L. B. Gaither driving a souped up Model A was crowding Flynn to the limit and had juggled for a passing position on the last lap only to have o. 17 hit him on the next to the last turn and ran completely his rear wheels stopping him momentarily, allowing Flynn to finish ahead of him with his badly damaged jalopy.

Yanks And Cubs To Battle For Championship

Associated Press Sports Writer

The baseball world took a deep breath today and wondered just a little how come it still retained some semblance of sanity at the windup of as whacky a season as the game ever has worked its way through.

There was still the problem of getting the World series out of the way, but that was up to the New York Yankees and Cubs, who begin the classic in Chicago Wednesday. The rest of the fellows are just along for the ride now. They finished their work yesterday, saving for the finale the silliest situation of all—Master Bobby Feller fanning 18 batsmen in one game for a new major league record and losing the game.

New All-Time Attendance

Of course, there was no question of sanity involved when it came the magnates' turn to count the profits. You can't laugh off more than 10,000,000 paid attendance for a season, a new all-time high for one campaign.

BROADCASTS APPROVED

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (AP) — After several days of waiting, the official word has come from Baseball Commissioner Landis that there will be the usual World series broadcasting via all networks this year.

Descriptions are to start 15 minutes before game time and continue to the final out. Regular schedules from Wednesday on will be set aside as long as the series lasts.

Hardly any doubt existed that the two pennant races were the cause of the big payoff. In the American league, the Yankees made it interesting by letting the other fellows make a fight of it through the entire first half. But when the Cleveland Indians went into their annual mid-summer night's dream, and the Boston Red Sox lost their one-and-only pitcher, Lefty Grove, the Yanks started to roll and rolled right in with their third straight pennant.

National Is Whackiest

But for the tops in whacky ups-and-downs, the National league race had it. First, the Giants seemed to be on the way to a third straight flag. But the injury jinx finished them. Then Pittsburgh went out in front, but, like the Indians, the Pirates "choked up" when the going got tough. So it was up to Gabby Hartnett and his "We'll Gamble On It" Cubs.

Gabby took over the reins from Jolly Cholly Grimm in July and the Cubs didn't seem to be headed anywhere. Down through the stretch they had it, however, winning 21 and tying two of their last 27 games, sweeping an all-important series from the Pirates last week, and clinching Saturday.

Reds Surprise Of Year

Surprise of the year, though, were the Cincinnati Reds under the game's No. 1 tactician and magician, Will McKechnie. He took the 1937 cellar occupants, put in a rookie here and an old timer there, and wound up in fourth place. They even put on a fancy finale yesterday by trouncing the Pirates, 5-4, while the St. Louis Cardinals, a dismal disappointment in sixth place, whipped the Cubs, 7-5. The Cincinnati pitcher in the windup was Johnny Vander Meer, who turned in the greatest hurling job of the year with two straight no-hit, no-run games, something never done before.

In the American league, the fourth place finishers were the Detroit Tigers, who wound up under Del Baker after a surprising dismissal for Mickey Cochrane in mid-season. They ended the campaign on the upbeat, taking the Indians twice, 4-1 and 10-8. It was in the opening game that Feller fanned his 18 for a new all-time high. Hank Greenberg went through the afternoon without a homer and thus failed in his chase after Babe Ruth's 60-for-a-season record. Greenberg was stopped at 58.

Epidemic Of Sore Arms

Perhaps the outstanding development of the year was the epidemic of sore arms that struck the star pitchers, Dizzy Dean, after costing the Cubs $185,000—a record price for a pitcher—hurled only 75 innings. Carl Hubbell and Lefty Grove, certainly the two greatest left-handers of this generation, were stricken. Paul Dean and Schoolboy Rowe were returned to the minors. Van Lingle Mungo wasn't any more use to Brooklyn than their doubleheader win over the Phillies yesterday, 7-3 and 7-2.

Two other managers, besides Grimm and Cochrane, "got the bounce" during the season. Gabby Street was let out by the St. Louis Browns, although he, with the help of Buck Newsom, one of the year's four 20-game pitching winners, pulled the Brownies out of the cellar. The Cards and Frankie Frisch came to the parting of the way. Another was added to the ranks of unemployed when Jimmy Wilson, wily pilot of the Phillies, resigned over the final week-end.

Few Parting Shots

By way of adding a few parting shots: Jimmy Foxx came back, sinus and all, to win the American league batting championship. Ernie Lombardi did it in the National . . . Lou Gehrig and Paul Waner finished under .300 for the first time in their careers . . . Phillies and Athletics couldn't be beat—for the cellars . . . Casey Stengel, jinxed all the way, did a neat job of masterminding the Bees into fifth place in the National . . . They lost their finale 3-2, to the Giants yesterday, with Vince DiMaggio fanning four times for an unofficial season total of 129—a new big league record . . . Joe DiMaggio's 32nd homer gave the Yanks a 6-1 windup win over the Red Sox . . . A's and Senators split the finish—Washington 5-2 in the opener; Philadelphia 4-2 in the afterpiece . . . Browns did the same with the White Sox: Buck Newsom clicking 4-3 in the first; the White Sox 3-0 in the second.

Southwest Teams Battle In Intersectional Games This Week; Steers Face Sooners

BY FELIX R. McKNIGHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Some of the more poisonous teams will carry the Southwest conference torch into important intersectional games in the east and on the Pacific slope next week-end.

Tagging along behind its rugged little 150-pound Davey O'Brien will be Texas Christians 197-pound average powerhouse in an invasion of Philadelphia for a date with Pop Warner's Temple Owls—tripped by Pitt Saturday.

S. M. U. To Play Marquette

On the same night, Friday, over at Chicago's Soldiers Field, the improving Southern Methodist Mustangs, its offense banging away, will meet Marquette in a game expected to draw some 65,000.

Out on the coast at San Francisco the Texas Aggies—perhaps that Aggie team they've been waiting for—will throw its dynamite offense against a Santa Clara team that only Saturday whaled the daylights out of Stanford, 22-0.

Down in Louisiana's capital, Baton Rouge, the flattened Rice Owls, knocked off again by Oklahoma in a stunning opening upset, will try to find themselves against the potent Louisiana State Bengals.

Longhorns Face Sooners

To complete the intersectional schedule, Texas' Longhorns, back in the cellar again after a flash against Kansas, run into the Oklahoma Sooners in their annual classic at Dallas.

Baylor's invasion of Fayetteville for a conference game with Arkansas completes the schedule.

Weekend developments were highlighted by Rice's stumbling failure to halt Oklahoma. Big Ernie Lain wasn't exactly stopped cold by the Sooners, but he was considerably chilled and his passing antics were almost completely smothered by rushing ends who crowded him for time. Oklahoma fought back after Scat Sullivan had led Rice to an early touchdown to win, 7-6.

O'Brien Licks Arkansas

Again it was O'Brien who handled the fireworks for T. C. U. in a 21-14 licking of Arkansas.

The Aggies beat a very respectable football team when they brought in Tulsa university, 20-0, at Tyler's rose festival. Getting the blocking they have needed for years, Aggie runners, headed by Dick Todd, punched Tulsa's line while the big Farmer wall held off Tulsa so well they never threatened.

Southern Methodist, using a batch of backs who couldn't miss, poured it on Arizona's Wildcats, 29-7, after giving away a touchdown lead.

Texas faces a very gloomy weekend. Oklahoma, which just plain outplayed Rice, will be tough customers to pick on in the Texans' comeback attempt after a 20-0 defeat by L. S. U.

Downtown Quarterbacks Called Into Special Session Tonight

Downtown quarterbacks have been called into a special session at 8 o'clock tonight at Lubbock hotel by Coach Pete Cawthon.

A verbal rehash of the Duquesne-Tech game is the big order for the meeting.

Coaches Cawthon and Dutchy Smith will be principal rehashers. Thurman Bostick, varsity end, will relate his experiences of a trip through Buffalo with Rudy Vallee.

All downtown quarterbacks are urged to attend.

Chicago Plans Big Parade To Honor Cubs

BY GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Oct. 3 — Those scrapping Chicago Cubs, not a truly great ball club, but hotter than is lawful, came home today to a jubilant townsfolk, bringing with them another National league pennant.

There was a parade for Gabby Hartnett's honeys, starting at Wrigley field and winding down through the city, in tardy tribute to a bunch of fellows who didn't know when they were licked.

Players Worse For Wear

The players, who clinched the flag only two days ago at St. Louis and were somewhat the worse for wear, would vastly have preferred to spend the day in strenuous resting-up for the start of the World series Wednesday against the New York Yankees. But there's no putting off of a parade once the confetti is paid for.

GLOOM IN PITTSBURGH

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 3 (AP) — The gloom that shrouded Pittsburgh's baseball fandom today was thicker than the autumnal fogs which roll into this valley at the headwaters of the Ohio river.

In hotel lobbies, barber shops, street corners and offices—where only a few days ago World series visions had been seen and discussed in excited tones — talk about the Pirate collapse was conducted in whispers.

The darkest spot was the hotel dining hall, where a chamber of commerce "victory" breakfast had been scheduled for the homecoming team this morning.

Sam Waters, vice president of the Pirate baseball club, announced that 170,000 checks and money orders, enclosed in applications for series seats at Forbes Field, would be returned "in a few days."

The club had built an enlarged press box — to seat 600 — and had bleacher seats ready for erection in preparation for baseball's biggest attraction.

The boys dashed home from St. Louis last night on a special train, and everything was very sober, for the celebrating all had been attended to on the previous evening.

Aren't Scared Of Yanks

When they finish their parading today, the senior league champs won't have a thing to do until 11 a. m. tomorrow, when they are scheduled for a brief practice at Wrigley field. The Yanks are to work in the afternoon. The Cubs, by the way, claim they are not at all scared of the Yanks.

One thing for sure about this Cubs team, it isn't licked now. After the cat-fight it has been through the past month, in which it had to win 21 out of 25 games to nose out the Pittsburgh Pirates, it isn't likely to get in a strained condition about the World series.

Hartnett, the big catcher-manager, is grinning again and wearing his cigar at a cocky angle. He has two badly damaged fingers, jammed by foul tips on Thursday and Friday, yet he swears he will be in there when the shooting starts on Wednesday. Augie Galan, regular outfielder, still is in the hospital with a twisted knee and won't get into the series, but Phil Cavaretta will replace him with no appreciable loss of strength.

Hartnett says he won't decide upon his pitching choice for the first game before tomorrow night, at the earliest, but it is almost a foregone conclusion that he will lead with Bill Lee, his 22-game winner, following up with Clay Bryant and Dizzy Dean. There is a suspicion that Gabby would like to shoot Dean at the Yankees in the opener, because Diz has an awful lot of "Moxie" and is a money pitcher. Yet it wouldn't be right to deny Lee the honor.

LAUNDRY SOAP DOES IT

An old-fashioned method of stopping bureau drawers sticking in damp weather is to rub the track or the runner the drawer slides on with laundry soap. Drawers that stick chronically should be planed down a little, but this should be done with much care and only when the wood is thoroughly dried out.

Raiders Greeted By Crowd Last Night

There was someone at the train to meet the Red Raiders Sunday night.

Whatever wonderment they may have harbored about a reception was answered as a shouting tenth of this city's population started to gather at the Santa Fe station forty-five minutes before train time. The Matador band, in full uniform, was tuned up and ready to go a half hour before the boys arrived.

Various campus organizations aided in cheers, both concerted and individual.

Carried To Automobile

As each Tech player stepped from the train platform he was hoisted to the shoulders of waiting freshmen and carried to a waiting automobile. They were a smiling lot, those Red Raiders.

Friday night's 7-6 conquest of Duquesne was fresh on their minds and the influx of students and townspeople into seeing distance of their car helped brighten their spirits.

Only casualty of the Duke encounter was Big Bill Davis, junior tackle, whose knee was badly injured when blocked by Quarterback Barron of Duquesne. Barron sustained a broken shoulder on the play.

Davis Definitely Out

Davis definitely is out of competition for the Oklahoma City university contest here Saturday night but may get back into action against Montana university at Missoula the following week.

Ty Bain, who intercepted one of Bubbles Barnett's lightning passes in St. Louis on the journey to Buffalo, is suffering a badly swollen eye. Eye specialists believe that he will recover sufficiently to get into uniform soon.

The rest of the Raiders were a bit stiff and travel-weary from the game and long ride.

Fifteen players who got into the Duke scrap will be given a day of rest this afternoon. Others making the trip and those remaining behind will start serious practice for the Goldbug game.

Dixie Series Game Ends In Tie Sunday

BY FELIX R. McKNIGHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

BEAUMONT, Oct. 3 — Still one game away from a Dixie baseball title, Atlanta's Crackers sent long Tom Sunkel, one of the minor league baseball's fastest left hand throwers, against Beaumont's Exporters in the fifth game here today.

Only an amazing throw-in from right field by Barney McCosky prevented the Crackers from winning the series yesterday, but as it was they were satisfied to wind up a torrid afternoon's work in gathering duck with a 13-inning, 3-3 tie.

Trout To Pitch For Texans

Manager Al Vincent, the Exporters pugnacious leader who simply hustled his boys into that tie yesterday after they were twice down, planned to send his eccentric righthander, Dizzy Trout, in against the Atlantans. Trout won 23 games over the full season route, but hasn't fared too well in the playoffs.

Should Beaumont win today's game, another game will be played in Beaumont to decide yesterday's tie, league officials announced. The Crackers have won three; Beaumont none.

Atlanta started with a rush yesterday, scoring two in the first frame on Bolling's single, Chatham's triple and Hill's long fly. In the fifth Beaumont knotted it after two were out when McCosky and Tate walked and came in on Mullin's single and Vincent's double.

Mauldin walked in the Atlanta seventh, went down on Oetting's sacrifice and, moved in on Peters' single. Vincent started the Exporter eighth with a single, went to third on Fleming's single and scored on Dixie Parsons' looper into left.

The Beaumonters opened the final inning with Mae Fleming's double but couldn't get a score in before darkness halted the game. The Exporter pitchers, Tate, Stith and Dietz, gave up only six hits over the 13 innings.

McCosky pulled his classic throw in the twelfth, spearing Pinch Hitter Lipscomb's line drive and firing the ball to Catcher Parsons while on the run to Catcher Oetting by a scant foot at the plate for a sensational double play.

Only Twenty-Two Schoolboy Teams Unbeaten, Untied

BY HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Staff Writer

They start firing with both barrels in the Texas Interscholastic league football campaign this week and judging by results of the first month's shooting a dove never led a more hazardous life than a schoolboy gridiron team.

The hunter's paradise is a dwindling group of undefeated, untied teams that enters October's crucial stretch the smallest number of clubs with perfect records for this stage of the race in Interscholastic league annals.

Twenty-two remained today and chances were good that before the end of the week the list would be cut to a dozen.

Feature battle of the week, which shows 54 games on the schedule, is the Conroe-Austin (ouston) tilt, this being the only game matching teams with perfect records. Other standouts send unbeaten, untied Cleburne against Wichita Falls, which has one tie on its record; the conference games in the Oil Belt matching Brownwood with Ranger and Sweetwater with Abilene; a championship tilt in the Fort Worth district between Masonic ome and North Side, and Corpus Christi at Brackenridge (San Antonio) in a feature interdistrict struggle.

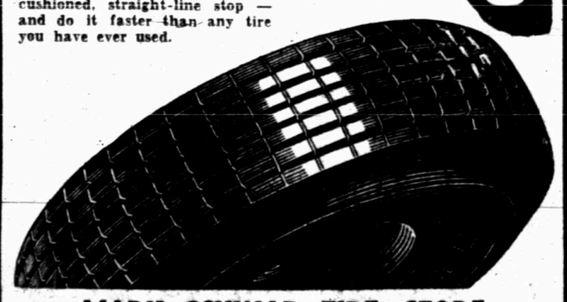

Another game of importance throws Highland Park (Dallas) against the state defending champion Longview Lobos who last week played Port Arthur, a South Texas power, to a 13-13 tie. Highland Park is regarded as the strongest team in the Dallas area.

Included in this week's schedule are 21 conference games involving 12 districts. Five intersectional tilts and 23 interdistrict clashes are also carded along with one of international nature, this matching Laredo, an unbeaten team, with Mexico City. Laredo has one tie on its record.

Undefeated, untied teams remaining are: Childress, Graham, Brownwood, Sweetwater, Cisco, Ysleta, Gainesville McKinney, Tyler, Livingston, Lufkin, Cleburne, Corsicana, Waco, Conroe, Lamar (ouston), Sam ouston (ouston), Austin (ouston), Goose Creek, Robstown, Mission Mercedes.

New Archeological Specimen Found Near Post Said To Be 200,000,000 Years Old

(By Staff Correspondent)

POST, Oct. 3 — A new archeological find, two new types of "Unios," or fresh water clams, estimated to be 200,000,000 years old, were uncovered near here recently by George Doughty, amateur archeologist, in company with Dr. E. M. Bingham, sr., and Hobart Chapman, of the Battle Creek museum. Discovery was on the Swenson ranch in Crosby county, north of here.

"These have never before been found here," Doughty explained. "They are a sort of shell fish and are about an inch and a half long. I do not think there are very many specimens of that type in the country. We found them in the red beds on the ranch, across the line from Garza county."

Interesting Reptile Uncovered

Dr. Bingham, long a personal friend of Doughty, was on his way home from a trip to New Mexico. He is curator of the Battle Creek museum, one of the larger institutions of its kind in the United States.

Specimens of fossils, mammals, birds and reptiles were found by the party. Several teeth of a triassic age animal much like water dog of today, were found as well as dinosaur, stegocephalian and phytosarin specimens.

One interesting specimen was the vertebrae of a phytesain reptile much like an alligator. It was a ball and socket, about 4 inches in diameter and nearly as long, with both sections about the same size. "The animal is the nearest approach to our alligators of today, that we have found in that age," Doughty explained. "It is estimated to be about 200,000,000 years old."

Unusual Specimen Found

An unusual sample of a fossil wood that had almost turned to coal, was picked up on the trip. The specimen found was about 2 inches wide by four inches long and from half an inch to three quarters inch thick. Grain of the wood can be seen and until an expert has determined what wood it is, Doughty said he could not identify it. He classed the wood as related to pine.

A small sample of a fossilized wood, partly burned, was found. Both specimens were estimated to be at least 20,000 years old.

The school has seven teachers and the superintendent. Enrollment is considerably larger than last year, due to new families coming into the county.

The PLAINSMAN Says:

That Girl on Broadway says frequently a kiss is something a husband uses to seal up his wife's mouth when he'd like to give her a paste in the eye.

Two hitchhikers were standing out on Avenue H and after an hour's fruitless effort to get a ride one said, bitterly, to the other:

"That's right. Just stand there doing nothing while I'm working my thumb to the bone!"

YOU probably noticed in the paper the other day where General George Van Horn Moseley marked his retirement after 43 years in his country's service by a few pointed remarks regarding wild public spending, efforts on the part of the present administration to set up centralized authority over everything, and with a warning to his countrymen against the possibilities of a dictatorship.

You probably also noted in the paper where Secretary of War Woodring proved the statement that "the hit dog always howls" by issuing a scathing rebuke to General Moseley, over whom Mr. Woodring no longer has any control.

Regardless of whether you agree with the Moseley statements, or with the Woodring rebuke, you would, if you knew him even casually, respect and admire Van Horn Moseley.

Less than 10 years ago the genial was in command of Ft. Bliss at El Paso and was highly regarded by civilians and soldiers alike.

Off or on duty, there was nothing "stuck up" about Van Horn Moseley. He never played the "stuffed shirt" role so popular with so many high army and navy officers.

WITH civilians, he was a highly agreeable, pleasant, "regular guy." With the troops, he was "a soldier's soldier" who could take his share of the rap—and did.

At the time of the 1930 abortive revolution in Mexico, General Moseley was in command at Bliss and in the sporadic fighting in Juarez, the opposing sides were so situated that bullets were whizzing across the river into El Paso, endangering life and limb.

Seeing the seriousness of the situation, General Moseley piled himself into a battered army car and, driving alone, went over to Juarez, called "time out" in the fighting and suggested that opposing officers rearrange their positions so "inadvertant shelling" of El Paso would stop.

Opposing Mexican officers were personal friends of each other and also friends of the general. They were happy to oblige, and the general went back home as if nothing had happened.

That incident is fairly indicative of the kind of a guy General Moseley is—straight-from-the-shoulder, forceful, clear-thinking.

BACK in the dark ages, when man was wearing a breechcloth fashioned from the skin of a wild animal; when he was living in a cave and subsisting on partially cooked meat and the roots of wild herbs; when he was just one jump—and no very long jump at that—from the animal, there was one law and one law alone among him and his fellows.

That law was might makes right.

The genus homo has passed through many a cycle since that early day.

He has learned to read and write. He has conquered the air and the depths beneath the waves. He has learned a lot about sanitation and hygiene. He has completed many inventions and he has built shining cities.

He fancies himself to be highly intelligent and thoroughly civilized.

He even goes in for what he fondly calls "culture."

Yet even today, in an era that is supposed to be enlightened, the law of the cliff dwelling and the jungle is still in force.

"Might makes right."

IF this statement shocks your aesthetic sense, don't blame The Plainsman.

Blame the disgraceful invalidation of treaties; blame the dismemberment of little Czechoslovakia because of the sword-rattling demands of the most arrogant Caesar of our times; blame the conditions, world-wide, which permit "diplomats" to munch caviar while engaged in an international poker game with the rights and the possessions of a weak little country simply because Adolf Hitler has the strongest army in the world—built up in violation of international agreements—or, at least, is a good enough bluffer to make once proud nations believe he has the strongest array of armed might under today's sun.

Of course, The Plainsman, like you, and you, and you, is glad that Europe was yanked back from the brink of war.

Perhaps, as it looks from this vantage point, thousands of miles away, giving in to Hitler was the only way to postpone a holocaust.

No diplomat or no nation can be blamed for the "trade out" which threw Czechoslovakia to the German wolves.

The blame goes much further back than that.

The blame goes—and must rest—upon the European nations which, in recent years, sat idly by in slow decay and permitted a power-mad dictator to jockey himself into a position to force a situation such as that at Munich the other day.

AS human beings, we are a far cry from the cliff-dwelling and the dank caves of the streaked dawn of man's early existence.

But the thing we call civilization—and its twin, culture—have been proven again to be but thin veneer.

The same might which made "right" when the world was young still makes "right" in this day of so-called "advanced thought."

As someone aptly remarked a good many years ago,

"Human nature is human nature—and you can't scratch it out!"

Oklahoma's new breed of cattle, 33 inches high, calls for something special in cowhands. Midgets, with experience on rocking horses, please apply.

Mussolini once boasted "I am not a man—I'm a world event."

Assuming that's true, right now it looks like Hitler is a regular world series!

IF it were anybody else under the sun, The Plainsman would offer sympathy to Weldon Bailey Chapman, coach of the Lubbock High school Westerners.

Weldon has lots of luck—and it's mostly bad. Up at Oklahoma City the other day—with the finest team in many years—Weldon lost the services of Halfback Rusty Johnston, if not for the season at least for most of it, as result of a tricky appendicitis. Then, badly handicapped by the loss of Johnston and because of the attending psychology, Oklahoma City's Capitol Hill team eked out a 14-13 win over the locals, thereby spoiling what looked like it might be an undefeated season.

But the reason we aren't offering sympathy to Weldon Bailey is because he's not the kind of a guy who needs sympathy.

He has proven upon many occasions that he "can take it."

No matter how vicious mey be "the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune," Weldon comes up with that million dollar smile of his and goes right on down the line trying his dead level best.

That's what makes him such a great guy and what makes misfortune such a tragedy to his many friends.

AN outstanding football coach, a real sportsman and one of the finest gentlemen in all these parts, Weldon Chapman is one of Lubbock's greatest assets, win, lose or draw.

His example and influence is worth many times his pay to this community.

Players and other boys in the Lubbock schools system can't help but gain from contacts with the little fellow reared in an orphanage and who has become an institution in our city.

The Story So Far: Judith Goodloe has the code of an old Maryland family to live up to. Reuben Oliver has wealth, and the ethics of his own making. Desperately loving Judith, Reuben proposes to her when the Goodloe finances collapse. Gary Brent, the man Judith loves, has left her. Marriage to Reuben means keeping the pleasant life she has always known, so Judith accepts.

Chapter 14

Strangers To Each Other

They were engaged to be married. They had been engaged an hour, these two who were almost strangers. They had much to say to each other, yet they said only that which could not remain unsaid. All the dear foolish incoherencies, the breathless murmurs, the divinely silly personalities, were unuttered. If their hour was less than perfect neither seemed to notice. They were at peace, sitting on the grass in the shade of the maple.

From under long lashes, Judith looked critically at her future husband—at his lean brown hands, his leaf-brown eyes with inexhaustible wells of strength behind them, at his firm mouth with its elusive hint of gentleness — She wondered why she had ever thought him amusing?

"He is wise," she decided, "but he is guileless too. He is being cheated—" She said with brutal frankness: "I don't love you—you know that."

"Why—" he came back from some far country, "yes, I know it." He wondered how he could accept it so calmly.

"I—I really don't know you," half apologetically.

"Perhaps, when you do?"

"There is someone else," dogmedly.

Silence. A hawk flew over the garden. It cast a dark shadow.

"Who?"

But he knew before she answered that it was Gary Brent. He reflected that he should not dislike Gary, since to his idiocy he would owe his wife. But he did dislike Gary. Intensely he disliked him. The conceited ass! The dunce!

"I guess most girls imagine themselves in love with Brent. He has the thing women fall for—small talk and flattery. You'll get over it," gruffly.

"I'm afraid I won't. So if you want to change your mind—?"

"Nonsense!" Did he want to stop the sun from shining? Did he want to shut all beauty from his life? He started to argue with her to convince himself — "You'll be much better off with me. Brent will never amount to anything—you'll see."

"That wouldn't matter, if he loved me," simply.

If anyone had told him in the old days that he would want to marry a girl who did not love him! A girl who was openly pining for someone else. Where was his common sense? Where was his self respect?

"You're really being foolish," she persisted. "You're being a poor business man too—taking us on is going to be frightfully expensive."

He turned to smile at her whimsically. "I've always had to pay pretty well, in one way or another, for everything I ever got." He broke off a tiny sprig of the boxwood. It gave out a spicy odor between his fingers. "Life is like that—my life. There's always been—a price."

She reflected watching him that so far she had never been called upon to pay for anything. She reached out and took his hand.

His fingers closed over hers. The sprig of box lay warm between their palms—a fragrant symbol. He wanted to tell her that all the kingdoms of the world would not be enough to lavish upon her, but the words stuck in his throat, so he just sat there inarticulate and happier than he had ever been in his life.

Buying Her

She walked with him to the gates. At parting his arms closed around her. "I'm going to love you so, Judith—be so good to you—give you everything."

He kissed her full upon her red lips and the power, the cleanness, the beauty of his passion touched her — went surging through her, not the pure ecstasy of Gary's touch, but something that was neither triumph nor humility, but an odd blending of both.

Halfway home Reuben dismissed his car and walked the remaining mile and a half across green fields and through dim woods.

He was going to marry Judith. She beat in his heart like music and ran like wild honey in his veins. The fact that he was literally buying her with a boxwood hedge and sundry considerations hardly registered upon his consciousness.

His mind turned to ways and means. It would take all of $200,000 to straighten out old Mrs. Goodloe's complicated affairs and Jim's mesh of debts. Then they must have something to keep going on. No use to preach thrift and economy to persons who did not know the meaning of the words.

"Five hundred thousand dollars will do it," Reuben figured mentally. "I have half of that amount lying idle. I'll arrange for the rest at the bank tomorrow." He tasted in full the power of his money. The taste was sweet.

As he reached his gates Hugo emerged from some bushes and flung himself upon him.

"Well—well! Did you miss me, old timer?"

Hugo whined his delight.

The man felt a sudden need to confide in someone. He went down in the path, took the dog's head in his hands. "She's coming to live with us, Hugo. The princess out of the fairybook."

His voice was a bit husky. Worriedly the dog licked the man's face unsure whether his master was happy or unhappy. Perhaps Reuben did not quite know either. She did not love him.

Judith, making her slow way to the house with the measured tread of a sleepwalker, was surprised to find that much of the restless uncertainty that had been her portion since Gary's departure, had mysteriously left her. She had saved Gran, Jim, the hedge—that was triumph. She had saved herself from being one of those futile, boring women, who die by inches, crying for a happiness that has eluded them. She loathed that type of woman. Married to Reuben Oliver she would be a busy person. Important. Beloved. Unconsciously she held her head higher.

That evening, in Gran's own bedroom she confided the news to her. Casually, gayly, she confided it.

"Wish me happiness, darling and get ready to go shopping."

Mrs. Goodloe, at her desk, doggedly adding up a long column of figures as though in the end she could beat them down, smiled absently at the girl from harried eyes. "Wait—just a second, Judy—Fourteen thousand and twenty-nine plus six per cent—"

With a sweeping hand, Judith pushed the paper aside. Captured the pencil. "Didn't I tell you to wish me happiness, young woman? Where are your manners? I'm going to marry Reuben Oliver."

For the first time in all the years old Mrs. Goodloe failed to meet a situation. She sat staring a long moment, then collapsed in her chair, repeating in parot fashion: "Going to marry Reuben—"

She was still laughing shrilly and crying feebly, when, an hour later, Judith gave her a sedative, tucked her in bed and put out the light. When she had closed the door softly her grandmother was demanding, over and over, to know which was preferable—to be hanged for a crime one did not commit or to get

NEW SAFEGUARD FOR TEXAS

Plan of the Texas State Highway patrol for a special method of handling traffic created by football games deserves the commendation of every motorist.

The plan, in brief, is to station men along principal highways at distances up to 50 miles from the larger stadia on game days. While patrolmen naturally will be on the alert for reckless and drunken drivers, their major function will be to keep traffic moving at an even pace and to avoid congestions. Expectation is that most motorists inclined to speed will be more observant of the rules of law and common sense because of their knowledge that an officer may be upon them the instant they incline to recklessness.

Need for the precautions now being taken has been apparent for some time. Football crowds in Texas have been growing in size for some time. It is self evident that when many thousands of automobiles converge toward any central point at any particular time, traffic hazards are increased. It is inevitable too that a few in any such crowd will be just plain fools. Strong arm of the law is the only curb for them.

Steps being taken by the patrol should mean greater safety for all motorists. It is certain to mean the saving of lives every week-end during the football season.

Preface To War

"Roosevelt Luck," In Form Of World Crisis, Took Public Attention From "Purge's" Flop

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 — Although so many Democrats walked out on the President in the primaries that the "purge" became largely a flop, believers in the celebrated "Roosevelt luck" still have their heads up.

A European crisis and a disastrous hurricane in the northeast came along just in time to bury the "purge" debacle as a major news story and to spotlight F. D. R. in two roles wherein he could hardly miss gaining public support.

It always happens that way, according to those who think Roosevelt's luck never fails.

Took Him Off A Spot

With no war clouds to face or hurricane wreckage to clean up, the President would have had to stand and answer questions in the wake of his failure to beat a single conservative Democratic senator among those for whose defeat he worked or hoped.

Dutcher

But his failure in the primaries is blurred, temporarily at least, as the national picture shows Roosevelt assuming his place as the national leader in a situation of international peril and as the benevolent leader in Washington extending federal aid to storm-stricken areas. Harry Hopkins, strongest single individual behind the "purge" except Roosevelt himself, becomes an agent of mercy as he goes to confer with the New England governors on hurricane-flood relief.

Finally, the last act of the "purge" primaries turned in the one Roosevelt victory over an anti-New Deal Democrat when Congressman John J. O'Connor of New York, chairman of the House Rules committee, won the Republican but lost the Democratic nomination.

O'Connor may be re-elected, but he loses the strategic post which enabled him to block administration bills. Thus even some of the sourness of the "purge" debacle was mitigated at the last minute.

None of this means the President won't eventually have to face the consequences of his lost battles against Senators George in Georgia, Tydings in Maryland, Smith in South Carolina and Gillette in Iowa. In the next Congress men are going to be "for" Roosevelt or "against" him and if Roosevelt doesn't adopt a more conciliatory attitude toward the Democratic conservative wing, Capitol Hill will be the scene of a running cat-and-dog fight rather than an agency for producing legislation.

An Important Choice

Roosevelt must choose whether he prefers to compromise with men of the type he has tried and failed to defeat in the primaries or to continue to wage war in the hope of forging 1940 issues by accentuating the liberal-conservative cleavage. The first course means inevitable retreat, the second a strong possibility of defeat.

Tentatively there are three main points of the Roosevelt program on which he must have congressional co-operation if he is to get anywhere. They are: 1. Anti-monopoly legislation, which Roosevelt would like to see go far toward changing the American business system. 2. Government reorganization. 3. Tax revision which New Dealers would like to see enacted along lines of social-economic reform.

On these fronts Roosevelt can elect to wheedle a little bit from Congress or to refuse compromise and seek to popularize the issues pending an effort to dominate the party and its presidential nomination in 1940.

reprieve one did not want?

Judith didn't know the answer. In the morning Amanda was quite herself.

The Goodloe-Oliver engagement was a nine days wonder.

"Mrs. John Walleston Goodloe announces the engagement of her granddaughter—"

A choice morsel of news. A young beauty of famous family about whom romance hovered with a capital R, was not to marry Gary Brent after all, but Reuben Oliver, a man from nowhere, who had literally pulled himself up by his bootstraps and whose doubtful millions had grown quickly and by devious ways.

Almost immediately Goodloe's Choice took on new life. Gay house parties—one after the other. Guests arriving at all hours, departing at all hours. Reuben's shining cars taking them thither and yon—to the city, to shops, to theatres, to Gibson Island where his yacht waited to steam down the Chesapeake. The nights—great golden moon, shimmering sheet of water—were made for romance, music, laughter and through them all danced Judith,—a stranger. Not the old reckless, gipsying, unthinking Judith, but a poised, careful person, an actress who had stepped into a role and was consciously bending all her efforts to give a good performance—that of happy fiancee to an important man.

Gary, the old longing, were pushed into the background. All day and far into the night there was never a minute in which to think. She gave such a clever imitation of perfect happiness that even Reuben was deceived.

"She's forgotten Brent already," he gloated, "she loves me."

And that was as it should be. He felt not the slightest inferiority where Gary was concerned. He was a better match for Judith than Gary Brent with his tumbledown old house, his mouldy furniture, his lack of ambition—Gary accepted his poverty with the same smiling good nature with which he accepted irritations. "I'm a go-getter—a better man."

Tomorrow: Bad News for Reuben.

The magazine "Steel" was only moderately hopeful for production improvement this month.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were fairly higher compared with Saturday's finish: Dec. 64¼-⅜, May 64¾-⅝, down ⅛-¼, down Dec. 46 ¾-⅞, May 49¼-½, and oats unchanged to ⅛ up.

Considering Loan Request

The government is considering a Czechoslovak request for a total loan of 3,000,000 pounds ($100,000,000), he said.

Duff Cooper broke into bitter sobbing when he said he had tried to swallow the Munich terms "but they stuck in my throat."

He explained his resignation with a bitter denunciation of the way Chamberlain directed British policy throughout the crisis over Czechoslovakia.

Those tied were Woodrow Wilson of Lubbock, B. C. Hulsey of Rochester and William T. Smith of Amarillo. Wilson was lucky on the draw and won top award, with Hulsey second and Smith third. Jack Anthony of Lamesa was fourth.

Dr. S. Z. Frasier of Lamesa, defending champion, was eliminated in the final round.

Class B results were Charles Graves, Lubbock, first; Lee McGuire of Lamesa, second, and S. K. Frazier of Lubbock third. In consolations, M. L. Council of Lubbock was first, Wayne Ashley of Lubbock second and Jack Cooper of Hale Center third. Thirty players competed.

Play started at Hilton hotel early Sunday afternoon and still was in progress when the halt was called shortly before dawn.

Cotton Problem

because of bumper world crops, the administration recently inaugurated an export subsidy program for that grain. No similar action has been undertaken, however, for cotton.

Officials said that subsidized processing of cotton for relief and low income groups might provide an outlet for some of the 7,000,000 bales of cotton the government is holding as collateral for loans to producers. Sale of this cotton to manufacturers at less than the market price would subsidize them indirectly, it was explained, and permit distribution of the finished products to the needy at low prices.

Officials said adoption of the subsidy program also would benefit idle textile workers.

Valuations Gain

gain of slightly less than 4 per cent.

Increase in personal valuations, Jackson said, is due primarily to new businesses established within the district to the larger mercantile stocks and to the greater number of automobiles than last year.

The gain in real valuations is due entirely to the building within the district within the year he said.

Tax Rate Remains Same

The district tax rate was set by the board of trustees several days ago at 95 cents on the $100 of assessed valuation the same as last year.

One important factory in the gain, Jackson said, has been the thoroughness of the canvass of taxable property. For that fact, the assessor-collector gave much credit to H. D. Stanley, his chief deputy.

Meeting of the board of trustees within the next day or two, Jackson said, will now be necessary to study and approve the roll.

New Outbreaks Of Violence In Holy Land; 38 Killed Today

JERUSALEM, Oct. 3. (AP)—At least 38 persons were killed today in new outbreaks of violence in the Holly Land, bringing to 106 the number of deaths since Saturday.

Six persons were killed when a house in Jaffa was blown up by a bomb early this morning.

Twenty Jews, including 11 children and three women, were slain and three were wounded when an armed band, described by officials as Arab rebels, raided a suburb of Tiberias on the Sea of Galilee.

Official figures placed at 67 the number of Arabs killed Saturday in two large-scale engagements with Britain troops and police.

Hitler's Entry

the third and most populous of the four Sudetenland zones his troops will occupy before Saturday.

Hailed As "Liberator"

Almost half of the six minutes of his speech was taken up by the crowds, cheering and heiling their "liberator."

"I greet not only you, but the entire Sudetenland, which in a few days will belong to the reich," he told them.

"Welded together in unity we must stand together. All must support each other.

"Deutschland is happy over these days.

"Not only you—the whole nation—is experiencing these days with you.

Whole Nation Rejoices

"The whole nation rejoices with you.

"Your happiness is that of the 75,000,000 in the reich that was hitherto."

The fuehrer evidently was referring to the fact that Germany's population soon will be almost 80,000,000.

"Similarly your sufferings of the past period were also our sufferings," he exclaimed.

"In this solemn hour let us thank Almighty God that on our way thus far he has blessed us and pray that that under his guidance our steps in the future may also be guided right."

Train Crosses Border

Almost at the same time that the first German troops entered Eger from three sides at 9:30 a. m. (3:30 a. m., E. S. T.) the first German railroad train with German trainmen crossed the former frontier.

In places of honor with the fuehrer's personal black-shirted body guard were the Sudeten German "free corps" of Eger, the Sudeten labor service and formations of men and women gymnasts in grayish blue costumes.

Konrad Henlein, the Sudeten Nazi leader whom Hitler named Sudeten reichs commissioner for his work in behalf of annexation, accompanied the chancellor.

Symbolical Ceremony Held

They crossed the former German border into Sudetenland at Wildenau, one-half mile from Henlein's home town of Asch, at 11:16 a. m. (5:16 a. m. E. S. T.)

A symbolical ceremony was held.

The Germans customs barrier was raised slowly and the band struck up Deutschland Uber Alles and the Horst Wessel song.

Hitler's automobile was followed by 12 motorcars with army officers and numerous cars of storm troopers. Twelve motorcycle soldiers also were in the parade.

Hitler, instead of meeting Czechoslovaks at their old customs house, was greeted by delegations of Sudeten women in colorful native costumes.

Army Preceded Him

They wore maroon blouses, with green and blue satin skirts.

Hitler came into Sudetenland several hours after his army, which formally annexed the Asch-Eger region, heart of the territory, at 8:05 a. m. (2:05 a. m. EST).

Thousands lined along cold, drizzly streets were hoarse from cheering the army, but they somehow found even greater cheers for their new fuehrer.

Hitler's automobile was preceded from Selb, Germany, by two armored cars and detachments of brown-shirted storm troopers, who remained at the border.

Airplanes flew over as Hitler entered the new territory.

The chancellor rode with his adjutant and Henlein, the official welcomer.

About 2,000 German troops commanded by General Walter Von Eichenau had rolled across the frontier at Wildenau, in camouflaged trucks, for the early occupation of the Asch-Eger region, third of the zones being taken over progressively by the Nazis.

He declared that Britain must be prepared to fight against any other attempt by any nation to dominate Europe by force, and added:

"For that principle we must ever be ready to fight, for on the day we are not prepared to fight for it we shall have forfeited our empire, our liberty and our independence."

Receives Tremendous Ovation

Chamberlain, appearing to defend his "peace with honor" deal with the dictators of Germany and Italy, received a tremendous ovation from government supporters as he entered the house. His followers left their seats to give him a roaring reception as he took his seat on the treasury bench.

The diplomatic gallery was packed by representatives of almost every country in the world, including United States Joseph P. Kennedy, for the opening of the full dress debate on the Munich bargain for the partitioning of Czechoslovakia.

Duff Cooper rose immediately to explain his position.

I Am Not Certain"

"I felt lonely and isolated," he said, "when he heard Chamberlain from a window of No. 10 Downing street tell a cheering crowd last Friday that he had returned with "peace with honor."

"That there was cause for relief last week, I am aware but that there was cause for self-congratulation I am not certain," Duff Cooper said.

The opposition loudly cheered Duff Cooper when he entered the house a few seconds before Chamberlain.

Amid the cheering, William Gallacher, only communist member of the house of commons, shouted at Chamberlain:

"Shameful! Hitler's yesman!"

Failed To Make It Plain

Duff Cooper, saying that he had "a painful and delicate task," in explaining his resignation, declared he realized the majority of the house "is most anxious to hear the prime minister and that I am standing between them and him.

"The great defeat of our foreign policy of recent months and recent weeks is that we have failed to make it plain to other countries," he said.

He said Britain should "let them know where you stand and what, in certain circumstances, you are prepared to do."

Parliament reconvened after his recess which began so dramatically last Wednesday when Chamberlain announced the invitation from Adolf Hitler to come to Munich for the conference which redrew the map of central Europe.

It was expected the debate would last three days. The public awaited intently indications of the attitude of big figures outside the cabinet, such as ex-Prime Minister David Lloyd George, Anthony Eden, former foreign secretary and Winston Churchill.

Chamberlain had reviewed the situation in a brief cabinet meeting before facing the house of commons. The government issued a white paper including the correspondence between Chamberlain and Hitler before the Munich conference and the agreements reached at Munich. All this material previously had been made public.

If You Want To "Settle Down," Don't Do It In Marriage, Dr. Paul Popenoe Says; Speaks To Convocation At Tech Today

If you want to "settle down", do it in a graveyard—not in marriage.

That was the advice offered to Texas Technological college students this morning by Dr. Paul Popenoe, director of the Institute of Family Relations in Los Angeles.

Marriage is not a static relationship but a dynamic one requiring the constant, continued cooperation of two persons in order to be a success, he said at a convocation of students and faculty in the gymnasium.

Should Have Understanding

Speaking on preparation for marriage in college, Dr. Popenoe emphasized the need for one to understand himself, to understand others, and to understand marriage before he goes into that relationship. Marriage is not a "mysterious visitation not just an accident", but something for which one should scientifically prepare oneself.

The address in convocation was one of three sponsored on the campus today by the college YM-YWCA.

A person should be "grown up" emotionally and socially, should not be too self-sufficient nor too dominant, should understand the liability of marriage, he said in speaking of need for one to understand himself.

Should Know The Difference

Then, in understanding others, one should know the difference in a lemon and a peach. "They might look the same in the moonlight." A girl and boy should not start "going steady" when of public school age and marry without ever knowing others and comparing.

"Recognize that marriage is just a relationship," he said. "It might also be an institution, but as far as you and your husband are concerned, it is just a relationship—the freest in the world." All that one does in a marriage ceremony is to assume responsibility before witnesses. After the ceremony, the success of the marriage depends on the voluntary actions of the two concerned.

Before the convocation, Dr. Popenoe made several observations when visiting in the YM-YWCA office in the new library building.

Idea Is Scorned

"Most any two persons of modern intelligence, good will, determination and idealism can make a go of marriage," he said. Dr. Popenoe scorns the idea that only two persons are intended for one another, although not minimizing importance of love in marriage.

He is a staunch defender of the morals of the "younger generation." The "older generation" always has maintained that the "younger generation is going to the dogs," he said. "Young people now have a good deal of idealism."

One purpose of an education is to produce a good citizen, and the importance of marriage in citizenship cannot be underemphasized, he said. Later, in convocation, Dr. James M. Gordon pointed out when introducing Dr. Popenoe that, "One of the objectives of college is to learn how to live."

Have High Morals

Young persons of today have high morals, "considering that we have given them slight help in school or elsewhere," he said.

Approximately 300 colleges in the United States now offer courses in family relations, he said. Tech is one of those colleges. A home economics class in family relations and several other classes heard an address by Dr. Popenoe in the engineering auditorium this morning on "Factors Making for Successful Family Living." He was to conduct a forum in the women's dormitory lounge at 2 o'clock this afternoon on "How Can You Tell When You're Really in Love."

Scientific training for marriage should begin in junior high school, Dr. Popenoe said this morning. Special courses need not be introduced, but training for marriage might be offered in social science, physical education, psychology, literature, and other courses, he said.

No Banned Subjects

He said he hadn't found any "acknowledged masterpiece that doesn't deal with sex and marriage." He mentioned Shakespeare's "Hamlet" as an example.

"There aren't any banned subjects any more in the intelligent part of the population," he said.

Dr. Gordon, chairman of the executive committee, pointed out that Dr. Popenoe is a member of various national scientific organizations, was active in social work during the World war, and is author of several books. Dr. W. F. Fry, Bible instructor, gave the invocation. In convocation, Dean James G. Allen, chairman of the convocation committee, presided.

Revenue For General Fund Estimated High

AUSTIN, Oct. 3. (AP)—Revenue for the state's general fund today was estimated by State Auditor Tom C. King at $26,550,000 each for fiscal 1940 and 1941.

His estimate was based on a report of revenues and expenditures for the year ended last Aug. 31 and contemplated no changes in present taxes.

The state completed the last fiscal year with a deficit of $16,741,530 in general revenue. King estimated this would increase to $19,377,921 by Aug. 31, 1939 if there were no changes in the tax structure.

Last year the state spent $2,868,644 more in general funds than it collected.

Building Permits Totals Near $2,500,000 Mark Here Today

Building permit totals continued their steady march toward the $2,500,000-mark this morning with the authorization of construction of two better-type residences, according to records in the office o the city building inspector.

The permits were to W. B. Sides, owner, and M. G. Dysart, contractor, residence at 2118 Fourteenth street, $4,000; and Spiro Cotsenes, owner, and W. A. Knapp, contractor, residence at 2105 Thirtieth street, $3,600. Six other permits for small sums also were issued.

Permit total for the year was increased to $2,464,036, the records showed.

Total for the new month of October also was off to the fair start of $17,530, but it is improbable that the full month's total will equal the $403,500 of October last year, when a $300,000 permit for the new Texas Technological college library was issued.

Connecticut Man And Five Of Eight Children Blast Victims

DEEP RIVER, Conn., Oct. 3. (AP)—Louis Beckwith and five of his eight children are dead—victims of an explosion that sent flames roaring through his home yesterday while he was trying to start a fire in the kitchen stove with an inflammable liquid.

The five children perished in the flames. Beckwith lived long enough to drive the three who escaped to a dairy where aid was summoned. His feet were so badly burned he could not manipulate clutch or brake but the children did it at his direction while he steered.

Vehicular Travel Is Increased This Year; Fatalities Fewer

AUSTIN, Oct. 3 (AP) — Vehicular travel in Texas increased 281,000,000 miles the first eight months of the year but highway and street fatalities were 224 fewer than in the same period last year, state police said today.

They reported 1,021 fatalities this year represented a drop of 17 per cent. Vehicular travel through August was more than 9,000,000,000 miles.

Labor Leader William Green Is Given 10-Gallon Texas Hat

HOUSTON, Oct. 3. (AP)—William Green, American Federation of Labor president, acquired a huge 10-gallon hat today to wear with his ever-present cane.

The hat was the gift of Governor James V. Allred of Texas who appeared at the opening session of the American Federation of Labor convention to welcome the delegates to the state.

It costs about $71 a year on the average to keep a pupil in school in the United States.

Fair Officials Still Swamped

Officials and employes of the Panhandle-South Plains Fair association started the intricate detail work today which will answer many questions concerning the operation of the 1938 exposition.

It is assured, said officials of the association, that the fair which closed Saturday night has been a financial success, though not to the same degree as last year because expenses were considerably higher. But it will be two weeks or longer before anyone will know definitely just how much this year's fair has earned.

Improvements May Be Delayed

It is certain, officials said, that the net will be insufficient to pay off all indebtedness for new permanent improvements. That, however, is not unexpected although it likely will mean that some of the improvements tentatively planned this year will have to wait.

Another time-taking task will be the preparation of checks for winners in various departments. Most of the livestock exhibitors were paid Saturday because nearly all are exhibiting elsewhere this week. Most of the prizes have been paid in the agricultural department except in the individual classes.

To Receive Checks

Winners in all departments, association officials reminded anew, will receive their checks through the mail as soon as they are prepared. None will be delivered personally, so it will be useless for them to call for their awards, the officials said. Just when the checks will be ready for mailing is uncertain, but it will be some time this week.

President Alex McDonald, speaking for directors of the association, expressed delight with the success of the fair. He and others had been frankly uneasy because of their knowledge that crops of the area are not as good as last year. Another factor contributing to uncertainty was the question as to what the effect would be on fair receipts of attractions which played Lubbock just before the exposition opened. While officials agreed that crop conditions and the previous attractions undoubtedly hurt fair receipts, neither was to the degree which might have been possible.

Suit For Debt Adjusted

Unpleasant incidents were few. Suit for debt was filed against the Sheesley carnivals Saturday, but that claim was adjusted satisfactorily, officials said, without going into court. In only one instance were papers of attachment filed against the operator of any concession, officials said, and that was against a restaurant operator who then made settlement.

Some of the officials were outspokenly none too pleased with the Sheesley policies, even though the final financial settlement was entirely satisfactory. One source of criticism by many midway patrons Saturday night was their complaint that many of the concessions hiked prices sharply while cutting down on lengths of rides and tent performances.

In its annual report to the convention, suggesting the board's discretionary powers be curtailed by amendments to the act, the council asserted some LRB rulings were "an unwelcome intervention in labor's internal problems by a government bureau."

The council's report suggested changes in the Social Security act affecting old age insurance and unemployment compensation, advocated more loan funds for low-cost housing under the U. S. housing authority, and recommended that the A. F. of L. develop a policy toward the problem of adding health and medical insurance to social security.

HYE PARK, N. Y., Oct. 3. (AP)—President Roosevelt rested at his home here today, enjoying the first real relaxation he has had for many weeks.

Under present arrangements he will stay here a week, then go to Washington and will return to Hyde Park after a brief stay in the capital.

Japan's Policies Unchanged In Spite Of Officer's Withdrawal

TOKYO, Oct. 3. (AP)—Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye said today in his first statement as foreign minister that Japan's policies, particularly those respecting China, were unchanged since the resignation of General Kazushige Ugaki last week.

Konoye assumed the foreign office portfolio when Ugaki quit suddenly in a row over the China affairs board, which had been called a "second foreign office."

New Families At Ropesville

(By Staff Correspondent)

ROPESVILLE, Oct. 3 — Ropesville is apparently on the verge of a program of expansion as new city officials are preparing to tackle a program of civic improvements.

When steps towards a water system and probably other utilities was discussed by city leaders, it was found that the mayor had moved away, with two commissioners, leaving but two officials in office. The Hockley county commissioner's court was asked to call an election to name new officials.

R. K. (Cap) Lindsey was chosen mayor, in place of J. R. Evans, who has moved, and Aubrey Gate and Otto L. Sims in place of Wayne W. Daniel and W. B. Evans. Holdover aldermen are R. H. Carter and W. A. Rainwater.

New Families In Project

Just what has been done towards a program of a water system and street paving has not been made known.

Meantime the town, and also the surrounding territory, has shown a steady growth. Several new residences have been erected and more are planned, some new business concerns have opened up and there has been a lot of repair work done.

Ropesville Community project, to the north and east, one of the few government rehabilitation projects operating in a satisfactory manner, was increased by 30 new families last spring. There will be 19 more to be selected by October 15 and they will be moved onto the colony by the first of the year.

A score of new families at one time is something to crow about and 48 in less than a year is also something more.

Business Fairly Good

Lanan Bissett, cashier of the bank, explained that while some sections of the territory had badly spotted cotton, crops, he thought the country as a whole was in fair condition.

Farmers, he added, did not have to borrow as much money for operating expenses for the crop, as normally. They had a good carryover from 1937 operations.

There will be some cattle fed out, mostly in small bunches. Cotton harvesting is later than usual.

Crosbyton Man Is Handy With His Knife; His Carving Good

(By Staff Correspondent)

CROSBYTON, Oct. 3.—Handiest man in town with the knife is David (Uncle Dave) Willis, a pioneer resident here, who delights in carving out useful articles from wood.

Uncle Dave runs a tourist camp, and spends the major portion of his time in carving. At the recent Crosby County fair he exhibited a hand carved fruit bowl, about 12 inches across and as high, and a smoker's stand, 30 inches high.

"He can fix anything—all you have to do is to take it to him and he can repair it," said Mrs. W. M. Curry. He is the best woodworker I know of."

Many Crosbyton residents have him repair their furniture and household cabinets.

'Dead End' Kid Shot By Cupid

Their money must have been on the greyhound out in front, as this picture of Catherine Marvis, Hollywood dancer, and Leo Gorcey, oldest of the movie "Dead End" kids, was taken at the Culver City dog track. Or maybe its' love, since it is reported that Miss Marvis is engaged to marry Gorcey. She is from Atlanta, Ga.

First Bale Of Cotton Brought To Morton Brings In $112.40

MORTON, Oct. 3 (Special)—First bale of cotton ginned in Morton brought to its owner, M. D. Koehn, a total of $112.40 this week, said Mayor H. P. Woot.

The bale, ginned by Russell Gin company, weighed 30 pounds. The gin company purchased it at 10 cents a pound. Business men contributed a premium of $31. Cottonseed brought additional profit.

Koehn, farmer of six miles west of Morton, received more than $60 more than he would had the bale been the second ginned here, on basis of Wednesday's market quotation and using approximate figures.

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

San Antonio Is To Be Oil Host

(By The Associated Press)

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 3 — Oil men from all parts of Texas are expected here for the annual convention of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas association, to be held Thursday and Friday, October 27 and 28.

Business sessions this year will include speakers of national note. The association's president, Charles P. McGaha of Wichita Falls, is scheduled to address the convention on matters that will not only be vital to oil men, but of immediate interest to Texas citizens.

Committee reports, bringing together a cross-section of statewide and national oil problems, will include state, local and federal taxation, theft prevention work, social security, simplification of and elimination of over-lapping reports to state agencies. Tax matters will be discussed in detail at a special group session during the convention.

Entertainment is being prepared by a special "wildcat" committee headed by A. L. Buchanan, the association's vice president for Southwest Texas. The annual banquet will be on Friday night, October 28. Twenty-five Texas cities will be represented by about 250 players in the association's annual handicap golf tournament, competing for the W. B. Hamilton cup which was won last year at the Dallas convention by Ed Herron of Houston.

BELOW ARE COMMENTS FROM LUBBOCK MOVIE-GOERS AT THE ADVANCE SCREENING OF "MARIE ANTIONETTE" HELD SATURDAY MORNING AT 10 O'CLOCK.

'A superb picture — masterfully portrayed.—J. C. Jenkins.

The characterization, continuity and filming are superb. Norma Shearer was at her best. One question.—with democracy so in question here today, was the production of this picture wise and timely? . . . I doubt it.—Unsigned.

Wonderful scenic effect, outstanding acting. Marvelous. Best picture I have ever seen.
Mrs. H. F. Godeke.

A great picture!
Mrs. W. B. B. Montage.

Mrs. Tom Pyle.

The picture is too big a thing for my limited vocabulary to comment on.—Mrs. K. D.

A very good historical picture and a superb cast.—B. G.

It was a grand show. I wouldn't have missed it for anything.
Mr. B. G.

As great as Norma Shearer. I should like to see a picture of this sort with more accurate historical portrayal of events.

AWAY WITH FROTH

Remove the foam that forms on boiling jelly, jams and fruits with a large spoon frequently dipped into cold water. If you don't, the froth will settle throughout the jam in the jars. It won't do any harm, but your jam won't look so attractive.
