Pact to end prison lawsuit in Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — State officials today signed the legal agreement they hope will end a 13-year-old federal lawsuit against the Texas prison system.

"The war is over. The side of reform has won," said Robert Gunn, chairman of the state Board of Corrections.

Gunn, of Wichita Falls, said he hoped the agreement would send a message to what he called "a certain subversive element" within the Texas Department of Corrections which has fought reform measures.

"I think we're going to see a totality of dedication" toward meeting the agreement, he said.

The agreement calls for phasing in a series of reforms over the next six years. It was signed by Gunn, Attorney General Jim Mattox and TDC Director Ray Procunier.

Mattox said the signed agreement would be sent immediately to Vincent Nathan, the court-appointed special master for the prison system, with a request that it be submitted to U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice, who must approve it.

Justice ordered sweeping reforms in the prison system in 1981.

"This has been one of the longest and costliest lawsuits ever faced by the state of Texas," Mattox said.

"The current prison board and the TDC administration are firmly committed to improving our prison system and getting the state's taxpayers out from under the continuing costs of this lawsuit," Mattox said.

The settlement calls for the state to reduce overcrowding at the existing 26 prison units by bringing the total number of inmates down to 32,500 by Sept. 1, 1989. Half of that reduction must be achieved by Sept. 1, 1987.

The current population is about 37,562. TDC officials said that before reaching those dates, they plan to build new housing for inmates who have been moved out of existing units.

Gov. Mark White, who in the past has voiced concerns about possible early release of prisoners to meet the population limits, did not attend the signing ceremony.

Instead, he issued a three-paragraph written statement in which he said he supported the decision by Mattox

Q. — What are the sand fleas all over town?

A. — County Entomologist Deanna Myers said she has received several calls about the insects, which have apparently invaded many local homes. She said they are called sand fleas because they "hop," but in reality they are not a flea but rather an insect of the order Collembola. They are not parasites, she said, and are basically harmless "nusiance" insects.

Bell probe

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The U.S. Attorney's Office in Fort Worth is investigating up to $15 million that Fort Worth-based Bell Helicopter might have overcharged the federal government, according to a report in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Carl Harris, Bell's chief spokesman, said the company is "aware of an investigation" by the U.S. Attorney's Office.

Missing plane

TOKYO (AP) — The government said an aircraft that disappeared off the Soviet coast on Thursday belonged to the Soviet airline Aeroflot.

Japan Defense Agency sources, who spoke on condition they were not identified, said the plane vanished from Japanese military radar screens while flying over the Sea of Japan, north of Japan's main island of Hokkaido.

Japanese officials would not say whether the plane was known to have crashed.

Church to build $1 million addition

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

A major building project for Snyder's First Baptist Church — one now estimated in excess of $1 million — has been formally approved by the congregation and is now in the detail planning stage.

The end result will be a new two-story "education building" addition to the church plant — an addition which will overall increase the church's facilities by approximately one-third.

The facility will be designed specifically for pre-school and adult education Sunday school classes. It will be built at the site now used for the church's north parking lot and will expand First Baptist facilities to the north all the way to 26th St.

A major feature of the addition will be an outdoor activity area designed for use by church members. It will be located at the corner of 26th St. and Ave. Q. across the street from the current Furr's Super Market.

A home owned by the church, now located at this site, is to be moved. Pecan trees in the residence's yard are to be maintained, adding to the landscaping of the area.

The building addition and the related need for added parking space will expand the existing church plant to further take up the one-block area just southeast of the downtown square.

In addition to moving the red tile-roofed home to accomodate the construction of the outdoor area, two other houses across the street and just east of the church are to be moved. Also, three existing buildings in the block will be leveled.

Buildings to be razed include those now housing Louise's Coffee Shop — which will be relocating across the street into a

Twirler, flag corp members selected

New auxiliary members for the 1985-86 edition of the SHS Black and Gold Marching Band were named Wednesday following competitive auditions Tuesday afternoon.

A total of eight new faces will be joining the band's flag, rifle and twirling units for the 1985 marching seasons.

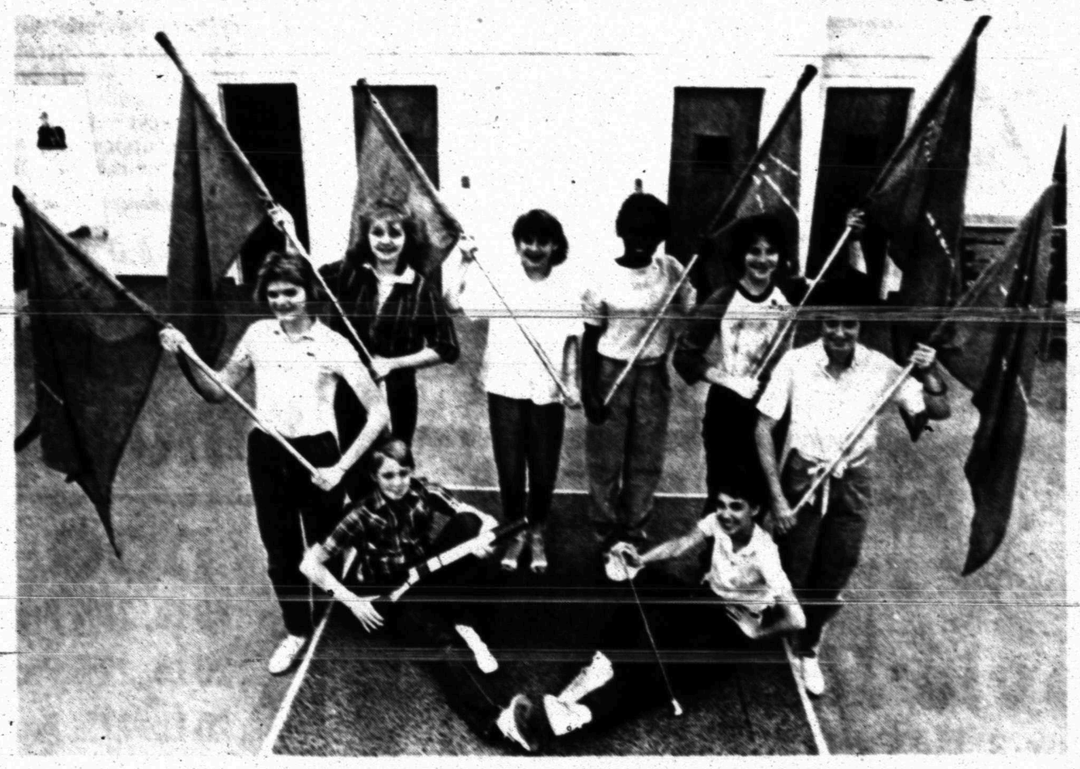

Freshman to be Shannon Warren will be joining senior Denise Hood as the band's second feature twirler.

Hood was the only twirler performing with the band during the 1984 season.

Stephen Williamson, also a freshman to be, will be the only addition to the rifle squad as a replacement for one graduating member of the 1984 unit.

Six new faces will appear in the flag unit in 1985 as replacements for graduating seniors.

Early a.m. rollover injures local driver

Ray Anthony Alarcon, 22, of 1907 Scott St. was listed in stable condition at Cogdell Memorial Hospital Thursday morning recovering from injuries sustained in a one-vehicle accident west of the city.

According to Department of Public Safety highway patrol accident reports, Alarcon was driving a 1976 Honda automobile westbound on County Road 362 — just west of the intersection of Farm Roads 1697 and 1609.

The wreck was noted around 3 a.m. Thursday when he apparently lost control of the vehicle on a curve.

The car left the roadway and rolled over — coming to rest on its wheels.

Alarcon was thrown from the car during the rollover and sustained injuries described as serious facial lacerations along with abrasions and bruises to other parts of the body.

Alarcon's 19-year-old brother Robert was a passenger in the vehicle at the time of the mishap but he was not thought to be seriously injured.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A successful diet requires snackrifice."

A preacher passed along this story from a Sunday school class.

In a Sunday morning adult class, a member asked the teacher the distance in actual miles from Dan to Berrsheba. "All my life I have heard the familiar phrase 'from Dan to Berrsheba,' but I have never known the distance."

Before the answer could be given, another member raised his hand and inquired. "Do I understand that Dan and Beersheba are the names of places? I always thought they were husband and wife, like Sodom and Gomorrah."

Wrong again....

Jim Erwin, principal at Northeast, likes to involve parents and their children in school.

Jim says a youngster went home one evening, and finally told his parents there was to be a small meeting of parents at the school the next day.

"Well, it's just a small meeting. Do you think we ought to go," the mother asked out loud.

"I'm afraid so," said the boy. "It's just you, me and the principal."

If the Supreme Court really expects separation of church and state, how come the federal government still observes so many religious holidays?

Closing down on Good Friday, Thanksgiving, Christmas, Easter, etc. seems like involvement in the observance of a religious event... We're not opposed to such holidays, but it just doesn't seem consistent.

MAKING PICTURES — The second grade students at Northeast Elementary School toured the Scurry County Museum and made pictures of wild flowers Monday, May 13. The flowers were laid on developing paper and exposed to the sun. Then the paper was placed in water for one minute to develop. As it dried the design became apparent. The teachers for these students are Mrs. Farmer, Mrs. Fleer, and Mrs. Martinez.

Terrorists holding hostages threaten catastrophic event

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Islamic Holy War group has sent color pictures of six missing Frenchmen and Americans to Beirut newspapers and threatened "catastrophic" consequences unless alleged terrorists held in Kuwait are freed.

The stark "final warning" was published in Beirut newspapers today along with photographs of the men, kidnapped in Lebanon between March 16, 1984, and March 22 this year.

Saying it will not wait long for Kuwait to act, the group declared: "We shall terrorize America and France forever."

The photographs, sent in plain envelopes to the dailies, were accompanied by three typed Arabic-language statements signed by Jihad Islami, or Islamic Holy War, a shadowy group which is believed to be holding seven westerners hostage.

The three different statements were addressed to the families of the hostages, to the Rev. Jesse Jackson and "the international public, namely the American people."

It was not clear whether Jihad Islami meant it would punish the hostages if Kuwaiti authorities did not free the alleged terrorists, or take some other action.

The six men in the color photos were identified as U.S. Embassy official William Buckley, the Rev. Benjamin Weir, the Rev. Lawrence Jenco and Terry A. Anderson, the chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press, all Americans; and Frenchmen Marcel Fontaine and Marcel Carton.

There was no picture and no mention of Peter Kilburn, 60, a U.S. citizen also said to be held by Jihad Islami. Kilburn, a librarian at the American University of Beirut, was reported in poor health when he disappeared on Dec. 3, 1984.

The packages were the first public communication from Jihad Islami and the first time any conditions for the release of the hostages were publicly spelled out.

The letter to the hostages' families said: "For the last time, we wish to stress that all contact with your abducted relatives will be cut off and the consequences will be catastrophic if you do not act seriously and force your governments to intervene for the release (of the alleged terrorists in Kuwait)."

The statements gave no details of the number or nationality of the people Jihad Islami wants released in Kuwait. But the newspapers said seven Iraqis and three Libyans are held in Kuwait on bombing charges.

The six kidnap victims in the set of individual photographs all appeared gaunt. There was no indication when or where the photographs were taken.

Aid pouring in for victims of fire at MOVE living area

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The sign reads, "It's not home, but it's all we have."

And for a 6-month-old child and a woman in her 70s, two of the 255 people whose houses were charred ruins after the MOVE assault, the temporary shelter was a haven from the streets and a sign that the City of Brotherly Love had not forgotten them.

Temple University opened its 11-floor Jefferson Hall dormitory, lawyers and carpenters offered their services, and food, clothing, and other necessities began piling up as the community pulled together to try to ease the pain of neighbors who became refugees overnight.

In the devastated west Philadelphia neighborhood, 53 homes were burned to rubble and eight others were severely damaged during the confrontation Monday between police and members of the radical group. The runaway blaze came after police dropped a bomb on the roof of MOVE's row house and firefighters were unable to move in because they feared snipers.

Damon Robinson, 18, one of 56 people staying at Temple, looked like a typical Temple student Wednesday in his jeans, red sneakers and white t-shirt — the clothes he was wearing when police evacuated his block Sunday.

"We were supposed to come back (home) the day after. It really was 'The Day After,'" Robinson said, referring to a television movie about a nuclear holocaust.

But Robinson, who plans to attend Temple this fall, had nothing but admiration for Mayor W. Wilson Goode. "He took full responsibility," Robinson said of Goode's decision to assume the blame for the destruction of the neighborhood.

Robinson said he returned to the site of his home, across the street from the MOVE house, and found "a big empty space. Just a frame with no front, no second or third floor."

"I didn't even know it was my house. A police officer had to point out 'this is your house right here.'"

Temple set aside four floors for victims of the fire and welcomed them with signs like, "It's not perfect, it's not home but it's all we have. Welcome to Temple," and, "We're glad you're here!"

The university tried to connect their previous phone service to the service in the rooms, offered free change to make phone calls, allowed them to use the swimming pool and gym.

"I just think that everything's going to work out," said Temple President Peter J. Liacouras.

A clothing collection bin was placed in the main entrance of each Temple building. Meals were provided in the dorm cafeteria.

The city will reimburse Temple $23.50 a person each day for meals and housing, but the university will absorb other costs of keeping the dormitory open, such as electricity and maintenance, said Patrick Swygert, vice president. "We think it's a good investment in our community."

Karla Nurczyk, associate director for residential life, said the residents ranged from a 6-month-old girl to a woman in her seventies. She said one little girl came in clutching four or five Cabbage Patch dolls and won't let them go.

Minister Says Christian Unity Outweighs Doctrinal Disputes

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: As a minister of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), I want to applaud your response to "Cut Off in Virginia," whose son-in-law has forbidden her and her minister husband from visiting their home. You said, "Until you respect your daughter's right to religious freedom, forget about your 'rights' as a grandparent. You have none." Good for you!

"Cut Off's" letter indicates a lack of understanding of both the Gospel and of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ). Sure we believe in "believers baptism" and understand that to be immersion. However, we have never claimed to be the only Christians, and have worked to bring the unity of Christ's people, recognizing all Christians, whatever the denomination, to be brothers and sisters in Christ.

I can only pray that "Cut Off" will someday be able to ask the forgiveness of her daughter and son-in-law and come to know their love and the love of the grandson.

RONALD E. NOWLIN,
A DISCIPLE MINISTER,
REDONDO BEACH, CALIF.

DEAR DISCIPLE MINISTER: I heard from many Disciple ministers, including Kenneth L. Teegarden, general minister and president of the Disciples of Christ in the United States and Canada, conveying the same message.

However, not all my readers agreed with me. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Your curt response to the grandparents who told their son-in-law that his son was going to hell indicates that you are as intolerant as you accused these grandparents of being.

If you were in a burning building, would you be insulted by a warning from a fellow man? The intent of religious zealots is not to insult, but to warn.

It would behoove us all to examine and re-examine our beliefs. For just because the Constitution of the United States guarantees us freedom to worship God in any manner that we choose, it does not guarantee that God will be pleased with that choice.

We must put aside the popular misconception that as long as we are sincere, we'll be pleasing to him. Many, many examples in the Bible show that he wants and demands our very best in the way that he commanded it.

AN ASPIRING
PLEASER OF GOD

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Cut Off in Virginia": How sad that a Christian couple alienated themselves from their daughter and grandchild because they accuse her of "condemning" their grandchild to hell for being christened in the Episcopalian church!

Our beautiful granddaughter was recently christened in an Episcopalian church, and we are so proud that our daughter and her husband are providing our grandchild with the love and support of the Christian faith in whatever church they feel comfortable in. When so many other families are burdened with illness and severe problems, "Cut Off" should thank God that she has a healthy grandchild with loving parents.

"Cut Off" and her minister husband should reread the rich heritage of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) and remember that one of the founders, Barton Stone, was a Presbyterian, and the purpose of the Christian Church was to unite Christians.

Your advice was strong, but as usual, excellent. Religious freedom must come before freedom to be prejudiced!

I will pray for Pastor and Mrs. Cut Off, that they might set aside their pride, embrace forgiveness and love, and enjoy their family.

ANOTHER MINISTER'S WIFE,
MRS. JAMES BRADFORD,
WATSONVILLE, CALIF.

Texas House approves shrimp, oyster bill

AUSTIN (AP) — House members have given quick preliminary approval to the shrimp and oyster regulation bill that touched off a 20-hour Senate filibuster two weeks ago.

Final House approval could come today on the measure that would put the state Parks and Wildlife Department in charge of the industry that brings in a multi-billion catch each year.

After about three minutes of discussion Wednesday, tentative approval came in a voice vote. The House approved amendments that mean the measure must go back to the Senate — where Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, filibustered against it for 19 hours, 52 minutes, ending on April 30.

The changes include a "sunset" provision that would end the Parks and Wildlife Department regulatory authority in 1991 — when the Legislature could decide whether to renew the law.

The other amendment bars the agency from setting any rules until it conducts a study of the shrimp and oyster industry.

House sponsor Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, said he expects the Senate to agree with the amendments.

"It was a way to appease the bay shrimpers," he said, referring to the opposition that inspired Truan's unsuccessful talkathon.

Bay shrimpers fear the Parks and Wildlife Department would give an advantage to gulf shrimpers who are their competitors.

Also Wednesday, the House approved a proposed constitutional amendment that would allow six-member juries in civil cases tried in state district courts.

The Texas Constitution now requires 12-person juries for such trials. The proposal by Rep. Nicholas Perez, D-El Paso, would allow judges to opt for six-member juries.

House members sent the proposal to the Senate in a 107-35 vote.

What does it mean when you suddenly jump-raise your partner's suit after you have bid two suits of your own? Certainly you have a good hand

Although you should be short in the unbid suit, your bid might be interpreted as asking for a control in that unbid suit for partner to bid six. Or it could be asking if partner had good cards in his suit, enough strength so that the opponents would not be likely to take two tricks in the agreed-upon suit.

In today's hand, whatever North intended by jumping to five spades, South had the answer. He had the heart ace, and his six spades to the A-Q constituted a good strong trump holding. So he bid the small slam. The right play to make the slam required that declarer restrain his avariciousness.

Certainly seven might be made if the spade king were onside with the suit splitting. But seven is not the contract. Here it is right for declarer to first play the ace of spades. He cannot afford to have West win the spade queen with the singleton king, since East will then make a further trump trick. Although in the current deal, North-South have nine trumps between them, it is frequently right to lay down the ace first, even when there are only eight trumps in the combined hands.

5A baseball playoffs halted until court dispute settled

HOUSTON (AP) - A court dispute over the eligibility of two Aldine High School players has taken the state Class 5A high school baseball playoffs off the diamond.

University Interscholastic League Director Bailey Marshall started notifying the 32 Class 5A teams Wednesday that playoffs in their classification would cease until the court dispute is settled.

Playoffs in the other four classes will continue, Marshall said.

Marshall made the move after State District Judge Marsha D. Anthony extended a temporary restraining order that prohibits the Aldine school district from enforcing the state's education rules that prohibit a student from participating in extra-curricular activities if he or she is not passing all subjects.

Judge Anthony is hearing the cases of seven school districts that have challenged the new statutes that went into effect in January.

The case involving Aldine is last on the list of those pending and the state playoffs can't resume at least until it is resolved, Marshall said.

Marshall acted under provisions of another restraining order obtained by the mother of a West Orange Stark student which asks postponement of the playoffs if Aldine is allowed to play. A hearing in that case is scheduled May 23.

Aldine defeated West Orange Stark last week in the first round of the Class 5A baseball playoffs using two players school officials said did not qualify under state guidelines that require students to pass all courses to be eligible for extra-curricular activities.

Bennie Dallas, mother of West Orange Stark third baseman Johnny Dallas, obtained the Orange restraining order. Mrs. Dallas said her son was ineligible at the start of the season but that she abided by the stricter rules and thought other students also should comply with those rules.

Marshall said the playoffs likely would be delayed at least until the weekend.

"We'll just have to wait until the courts decide," Marshall said. "But the big problem is when this is over with and we have to decide how to resume the playoffs. Then everything we do will be wrong."

Marshall said the UIL, which administers high school competition throughout the state, could decide to play games over a shorter period of time or complete the Class 5A schedule one week later than the rest of the state playoffs.

The judge began hearing the case of the Spring Branch Independent School District, involving Houston Stratford football player Nick Stamos, who was declared ineligible after failing a geometry class.

The student's father, Chris Stamos, testified that his son should be able to play in the school's final spring practice game Wednesday night.

The judge allowed the youth to participate in the game without ruling on the restraining order.

Stamos testified he did not understand the rule at the time it was implemented. He also said the rule was too strict and arbitrary.

The Stamos case was the only one considered so far in the day-long proceedings.

Valentine offered Texas managership

NEW YORK (AP) - Doug Rader is apparently about to be fired as manager of the Texas Rangers.

Rumors that Rader's job was in jeopardy were confirmed Wednesday night when New York Mets' third base coach Bobby Valentine said he had been offered the Texas post.

Valentine was to meet today with Rangers' majority owner Eddie Chiles, team President Mike Stone and General Manager Tom Grieve in Houston, where the Mets are playing the Astros.

"I've been offered the Rangers' job. Grieve gave me a verbal OK, but he said everybody has to agree. They might just drag it out until the weekend," Valentine told the Stamford (Conn.) Advocate.

"Tom told me that Eddie and (Stone) have to finalize everything and that's why they're all flying down here," he said. "I'm asking for a three-year contract. If they decide to offer me only one year, well, I guess that's something that could go wrong."

Reports began circulating early this week that the Texas management had decided to fire Rader. The Rangers, who were last in the American League West last season, lost their fifth straight game Wednesday night to the New York Yankees, 6-5 in 10 innings, as their record fell to 9-22, worst in the major leagues.

Error gives Yankees win

NEW YORK (AP) - The game, and the game-ending play, summed up the way things have gone this season for the Texas Rangers.

"It gives you a heartache," said first baseman Pete O'Brien, whose error with one out in the 10th inning Wednesday night gave the New York Yankees a 6-5 triumph over the Rangers. "You try to do so much, and you end up overdoing it."

Texas relievers Greg Harris and Dave Schmidt held the Yankees without a hit after the third inning. O'Brien had not made an error in 314 chances un-rallied from a 5-1 deficit against Ron Guidry.

But, the end result saddled Texas with its fifth straight loss and left the Rangers with a 9-22 record - worst in the major leagues. The defeat came amidst published reports this week that the Rangers' management had decided to fire Manager Doug Rader shortly.

Kersh, Conway stars of All-America meet

SUPERPORT, La. (AP) - Double winner Charles Kersh of Pearl, Miss., was named the most outstanding track athlete Wednesday night at a meet that drew champion athletes from Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Oklahoma and Texas.

Another record-setter, Hollis Conway of Shreveport, was named the outstanding athlete in the field events in the Shreveport Journal's seventh annual All-America Meet of Champions.

Kersh set a meet record of 8 minutes, 34.6 seconds in the 3,000-meter run, in which he edged James Jackson of Lewisville, Texas, and shaved more than 24 seconds off the old mark. Kersh then came back to win the 1,500-meter run in 3:58.2.

It became a three-victory performance by the Kersh family

George won the 800-meter run in

Conway, meanwhile, broke another meet record with an effort of 48 feet, 4½ inches in winning the triple jump.

And, though Conway cleared 6-10 in the high jump, he was beaten by Cedric Barryer of Beckville, Texas, whose 7-foot leap set yet another meet record.

The only other boys' record was by Bobby McDaniels of Crossett, Ark., who threw the discus 184 feet, 4 inches.

There were two records in the girls' division - an 11.1 in the 100-yard dash by Jennifer Buford of Lafayette and a 55.58 in the 400-meter dash by Texas state champion Sylvia Brydson of Silsbee, Texas.

TIGER SOCCER TEAM -- The 6-7 year-old Tigers won their division and took third place overall at the San Angelo Soccer Association Summer Fun Tournament, held last weekend. The Tigers defeated the San Angelo Panthers 3-0, the Rams 8-0 and the Vikings 2-0 on the first day of play. They lost to the El Paso Supersonics 3-0 and defeated the Vikings again 2-1 on the second day of competition. Razorbacks favored at SWC outdoor meet

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) - Olympic silver medalist Mike Conley leads the Arkansas track team as it seeks its fourth straight Southwest Conference outdoor track championship this weekend.

Add to that the advantage of competing on their own turf and the Razorbacks look like the favorites. A tight race for second is to pit Texas, Houston, Southern Methodist University and Baylor.

Arkansas, coached by John McDonnell, also has won five straight SWC indoor championships and 11 straight cross country championshipos.

The last team other than Arkansas to win a league track title was Texas A&M in 1981. Arkansas also is the 1984 and 1985 NCAA indoor champion and won the NCAA cross country title last fall.

Conley, who won his medal in the triple jump at the 1984 Summer Olympics in Los Angeles, holds the conference meet record of 56-2¾ in that event. His best this season is 56-4½.

Assistant track coach Ted King of Arkansas said there will be a new triple jump record after the meet Friday and Saturday. "Mike will beat that and rightly so," King said. "The new runway, particularly at the take-off point, has a beautiful consistency and is bouncy. So, there should be a lot of great performances this weekend."

The teams will be competing on a new long jump and a triple grandstand at the Razorback track.

Conley has won every SWC long jump competition the past four years. His best jump this year - 26-7½ - is short of the meet record set in 1981 by Olympian Carl Lewis.

Highlights of the meet include competition by four NCAA champions and defending conference champions in 12 of the 17 events.

Three runners entered for the 1,500 meter-run have posted times below the SWC record of 3:42.53, set by Baylor's Todd Harbour. SMU's Paul Rugut ran a 3:37.81 two weeks ago, Arkansas' Paul Donovan has run 3:39.88 and Rice's Gawain Guy has turned in a 3:41.00.

SWC record-holders entered in the meet include high jumper Bill Jasinski of Arkansas, pole vaulter David Hodge of Baylor and 200-meter sprinter Kirk Baptiste of Houston.

Texas' Patrick Sang is to defend his 1984 SWC title in the steeplechase, SMU's Rod Jones in the 400 meter, SMU's Roald Bradstock in the javelin, Texas' Marty Davenport in the discus and Texas A&M's Arturo Barrios in the 10,000.

In the women's competition, Houston and Texas are expected to continue to dominate the overall championship. Houston has won the women's title the past two years.

Houston's Carol Lewis, an Olympian and sister of Carl Lewis, is to compete in five events.

Drug trafficking being investigated

NEW YORK (AP) - Authorities investigating drug trafficking in the Pittsburgh area have questioned between 20 and 30 major-league baseball players and uncovered evidence of transactions in bars, hotels and the parking lot at Three Rivers Stadium, Sports Illustrated reported today.

The magazine said the money laid out was substantial - tens of thousands of dollars a year in some cases - and that one of the dealers was a man who worked as a food caterer in the clubhouse of another National League team and who trafficked with the players both in the clubhouse and in hotel rooms.

Mac skips Davis Cup

NEW YORK (AP) - John McEnroe, America's No. 1 tennis player, reiterated his displeasure with a code of conduct required of U.S. Davis Cup members and says he will skip the international competition this year.

Signing the conduct code became a requirement after officials of Louisiana Pacific, a United States Tennis Association sponsor, were displeased at the antics and comments of McEnroe and Jimmy Connors last December.

Drug agents seize millions in heroin

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Federal drug agents have seized four pounds of uncut heroin estimated to be worth more than $6 million from two Lebanese men who authorities say planned to sell the drug to an Austin resident.

The confiscated "China white," the purest and most potent form of heroin, has the highest street value of any heroin confiscated in Austin, said police, who estimated its value at $6.4 million.

Federal Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) agents arrested Gabriel Youssef Rizk, 27, and Hanna Elias Mina, 62, Tuesday at a Ma. riott Hotel.

U.S. Magistrate Philip Sanders set $1 million bail for both men on charges of possession with intent to distribute heroin. Rizk and Mina remained in the Bastrop Federal Correction Institution Wednesday.

The agents seized Rizk's briefcase, loaded with 1,922 grams of estimated 95 percent pure Lebanese heroin, a drug agency spokesman said.

An affidavit filed in federal court in Austin said agents had information that Rizk and Mina were to sell the heroin to an Austin resident.

"We're still trying to identify one person. We know they met with him," said Ronael Steadman, agent in charge of the Austin office of the DEA.

Agents Tuesday followed Rizk and Mina to Austin from a hotel near Houston Intercontinental Airport, Steadman said.

Federal agents, assisted by Austin police, arrested Rizk as he left his hotel room Tuesday afternoon, while other officers arrested Mina in the hotel bar, court records said.

Neither of the arrested men, who are Lebanese, speaks English, according to authorities. Judge Sanders appointed an attorney for Mina, who he said had been in the United States about four days.

Rizk, who gave an Austin address, has lived in the United States 2½ years, Sanders said, and was enrolled in classes at Austin Community College.

House gives tentative okay to seat belt law

AUSTIN (AP) — The House has joined the Senate in voting to fine Texans up to $50 for riding in the front seat without wearing seat belts.

The 79-56 preliminary vote Wednesday advanced the measure to the formality of a final House vote that would send it to Gov. Mark White.

House members praised the bill as a life-saver and criticized it as typical of over-protective government.

"Next thing after seat belts and next thing after air bags is going to be helmets in cars," said Rep. Ketih Valigura, R-Conroe.

The U.S. Department of Transportation has said air bags would become mandatory in cars in 1989 if seat belt laws are not enacted in states representing two-thirds of the nation's population.

The federal threat comes after years of education and advertising aimed at urging, cajoling and scaring motorists into buckling up. Bill sponsor Rep. Bill Messer, D-Belton, said about 15 percent of Texans now use seat belts. The law could immediately spark 80 percent usage, he said.

"There's not anything this Legislature has the opportunity to do to save more lives, reduce injuries on the highway and save more money," said Messer.

The bill would require seat belt use by drivers and front-seat passengers in autos and pick-up trucks with a load capacity of 1,500 pounds or less.

Violators would face fines of $25-$50. The law would go into effect Sept. 1, but penalties would not be meted out until Dec. 1.

Rep. Rick Perry, D-Haskell, offered the "Bubba amendment" that would exempt more pick-up trucks. But the House voted 84-52 to kill Perry's plan to exempt passengers in pick-ups with 1,500 pounds of carrying capacity.

Senate filibuster ends with compromise plan

AUSTIN (AP) — A Senate filibuster on proposed extension of the state's wiretap law came to a halt early today after proponents agreed to allow new restrictions on the use of covert entry to plant electronic devices.

Sen. Craig Washington, D-Houston, began the filibuster at 11:40 a.m. and kept the floor for 12 hours and 14 minutes. Washington said the present law is like using a "shotgun to kill a mosquito. It's overkill."

The filibuster ended at 11:54 when Senate leaders including Lieutenant Governor Bill Hobby compromised on an amendment by Washington that would allow covert entry for planting of a "bug" only as a last resort.

Language on the compromise was drafted overnight to be taken up on the Senate floor.

"I'm glad we worked something out," Washington said early today, after his filibuster ended. "What I was trying to do all along was to help the innocent, but at the same time not handcuff law enforcement to the extent that they couldn't get at the bad guys."

However, despite the compromise, Washington said he will vote against the bill when it comes up for a vote.

Before the filibuster, Washington and Sen. Ed Howard, D-Texarkana, sponsor of the bill, debated the pros and cons of wiretaps, which were first authorized by the Legislature in 1981. The statute included a "sunset" provision requiring that the law expire in 1985 unless given new life by the Legislature.

In objecting to provisions in the law that allow covert entry for planting listening devices, Washington said "This is not a law-and-order issue. This is a Fourth Amendment issue. This is an encroachment on our right to privacy."

Howard accused Washington of overreacting. He said there are adequate safeguards already in the law to protect individual rights and that law enforcement agencies have shown a trend toward less use of wiretaps, but that authorities need to have the authority to use electronic surveillance when necessary.

"The overriding concern is to give our law enforcement agencies the ability to stop the horrendous problem of drug trafficking," Howard said.

Since the Texas law became effective, the Texas Department of Public Safety has sought only 47 court orders for a wiretap, Howard said. Those investigations resulted in 175 arrests and 57 convictions, with other cases pending, and the seizure of drugs worth $13 million, Howard added.

He said even the Texas Civil Liberties Union, which opposes wiretaps, has acknowledged that the DPS has used the law "judiciously."

Washington is the third Senator to filibuster this session.

On April 30, Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, held out for 19 hours and 52 minutes to protest a bill that would regulate Texas' shrimp and oyster fishing industry. On April 15, Sen. John Leedom of Dallas and his Republican colleagues kept the floor six hours in opposing a bill to set up a separate presidential primary.

Critical after liver transplant surgery

DALLAS (AP) — A 42-year-old Texas City high school baseball coach was in critical condition today following nearly 11 hours of liver transplant surgery, which doctors proclaimed successful and then began another transplant, a Baylor Medical Center official said.

The operation on Freddie Carlton, winner of 10 district championships during his career in Texas City and Wharton, ended at 4:55 a.m., said hospital spokesman Steve Habgood.

"Everything went very well," Habgood said.

Carlton was listed in critical condition in the hospital's intensive care unit after receiving the new liver, which came from the El Paso area, Habgood said.

The liver transplant surgery — the second for Baylor Medical Center — was performed by Dr. Goran Klintmalm.

Report gains in predicting storms

HOUSTON (AP) — Growing numbers of people moving into beachfront and coastal areas has left coastal residents more vulnerable than ever to the hurricane problem, says the director of the National Hurricane Center.

Neil Frank, a frequent critic of the booming development of beachfront and low-lying coastal areas, said Wednesday that weather forecasters can predict hurricane movement two to three days in advance with 10 to 15 percent more accuracy than 10 years ago.

"But we've put tens of thousands of more people on our coastlines," he said at a news conference during the 16th Conference on Hurricanes and Tropical Meteorology, sponsored by the American Meteorological Society.

Frank said the increase of people moving into storm vulnerable areas offsets forecasters' improved abilities to predict the storms.

"The improvements are not moving fast enough to keep up with the movements of people," Frank said.

More people along the coasts mean it will take longer to evacuate the areas in the event of a severe hurricane. Local officials in popular areas face the dilemma of drawing up evacuation plans which may not be in place until after 20,000 or 30,000 new people move in, Frank said.

"You've got a whole bunch of new people," he said. "Will they move? We don't know.

"If we got a Force 5 (the severest hurricane) and lost 10,000 people, this society is not prepared to accept all the potential consequences," he said.

Unlike airplane crashes, which often prompt a huge public outcry, "What's going to happen when 10,000 people die" in a storm? Frank asked. "We're now more vulnerable to the hurricane problem than any time ever."

Frank said that fortunately such huge storms, like one that left at least 6,000 people dead on Galveston Island in 1900, are extremely rare.

"It may well take that kind of event" to wake people up to the dangers, he said.

Frank suggested that one way to dissuade beachfront development would be to eliminate government subsidies, which often are used in the construction of roads, bridges and sewers.

"If we took the incentives away, people would not be exposed to these kinds of risks," he said.

The last significant Gulf of Mexico hurricane was Alicia, which battered the Houston-Galveston area in August 1983, causing more than $1 billion in damage.

Family contact helps elderly

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My 80-year-old grandmother has begun to display some loss of memory (senile tendencies). I have encouraged family members to keep her in touch with reality. Are we helping or hurting her?

DEAR READER — You are helping her. As the elderly age, they exhibit mental changes that are due to progressive loss of blood circulation to the brain's higher centers. These centers control several functions, including recent memory, emotional stability, judgment and cognitive reasoning.

Loss of memory can be a particularly disturbing symptom because it occurs relatively early and the patient is often aware of the deficiency. Most older people I know are grateful when younger associates and family members gently "refresh" their memories.

Senility is a more advanced form of higher-center malfunction. The confusion that senile patients suffer is often terrifying. For example, imagine yourself being unable to place familiar faces, recollect where you were going and how to get there or remember the day of the week. And, consider: The situation isn't going to get better tomorrow as your hangover improves.

Healthy and mentally competent people sometimes have trouble understanding the isolation and loneliness that the aged experience every day of their lives.

It must be a great gift, given with love, when family members keep an 80-year-old lady in touch with reality. I commend you. Too many families today are content to put Granny in a nursing home; their only contact with her may be a greeting card at Christmas. I hope that someday you and your family will be fortunate enough to receive the same care and attention that you are giving so freely now.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I was in a car accident several years ago. I was sitting in the passenger seat with my legs crossed and my ankle went through the dashboard. My ankle wasn't broken, but I suffered a severe sprain. Since then, my ankle has been weak and I find myself "cracking" it several times a week to relieve stiffness. Did my ankle not heal properly? Is there something I can do now to correct the problem?

[illegible] joint is stabilized by a number of tough ligaments. At the time of an injury, these ligaments are suddenly stretched; they can even tear or rupture if the injury is severe enough. Once the ligaments have been forcibly expanded, they slowly heal — with time — but they never regain a normal degree of tightness. Therefore, the ankle is somewhat weaker after a sprain; that is, the ligaments are unable to stabilize the joint to the degree they could before the injury.

Unfortunately, the ankle becomes more susceptible to further sprain, and each time the ligaments are extended, they heal a little more loosely.

As a result, the ankle bones move a little too much. This causes stiffness and a tendency to "crack" or pop. Sometimes patients can actively crack their knuckles.

Your ankle, because of the accident, is probably not as good as it once was. An orthopedic doctor can assess the degree of damage and give you suggestions about living with your impaired ankle. Ordinarily, surgical repair is not indicated because it is so technically difficult and does not really improve the mechanics of ankle motion.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101. Due to volume of mail, individual questions cannot be answered. Questions of general interest will be answered in future columns.

Ex-San Antonio councilman cleared

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Former city councilman Joe Alderete, cleared of felony theft charges, claims politics motivated the district attorney's office to seek an indictment against him.

And Alderete, acquitted of the charges Wednesday by a district judge, says the indictment cost him his seat on the city council in April's elections.

"People understand indictments to mean guilt," he said after state District Judge Phil Chavarria Jr. ordered a directed verdict of innocent.

"There was never any reason for the indictment," he said. "What the district attorney's office has done has been a waste of the taxpayers' money."

Alderete had been accused of soliciting a $5,000 donation from Tesoro Petroleum Corp. for the San Antonio Neighborhood Youth Organization, then pocketing half of it as a finder's fee.

Chavarria issued his ruling after the prosecution rested its case and Alderete's attorney asked for the judge to declare his client innocent.

Perhaps the most damaging evidence against the prosecution's case came early Wednesday from state District Judge Raul Rivera, who denied he ever attended a meeting at which a finder's fee for Alderete was discussed.

Tuesday, former SANYO chief accountant Ruben Arriola, testified he and Rivera met with Alderete and discussed the finder's fee in 1980 when the donation was solicited. Rivera was an attorney at the time.

Gramm said top PAC money user

WASHINGTON (AP) — Phil Gramm received $1.3 million from political action committees — more than any other Senate candidate — in his successful bid for John Tower's open seat last year, according to a report by the Federal Election Commission.

Among Texas congressional candidates, only Jack Fields, an incumbent Republican from Houston, made the top 10 for PAC money receipts and spending.

The FEC report listed the 50 top spenders, including Texans Mac Sweeney of Wharton, a Republican who won his race against incumbent Bill Patman and incumbent Democrats Charles Wilson of Lufkin and Martin Frost of Dallas.

Unsuccessful Democratic challenger Andrew Stein of New York spent the most among the House candidates — $1,779,281. Fields spent $934,921.

All 435 House seats were up in 1984 as they are every two years. Senators have staggered six-year terms, so about a third were up for election.

Gramm, won big in his race to fill the seat John Tower left. Gramm received $1,326,875 from PACs, according to the FEC. He defeated Democrat Lloyd Doggett, who was 11th among PAC money raisers, getting $802,687.

The election commission, which monitors adherence to campaign finance laws, said its analysis was based on candidates' reports dating from Jan. 1, 1983 to Dec. 31, 1984.

Gramm was fourth in spending at $9,452,357, according to the report. Doggett was sixth, spending $5,889,458.

The biggest spender was North Carolina's incumbent Republican Sen. Jesse Helms, who spent $16,499,387 to keep the seat. His challenger, Gov. Jim Hunt, was third, behind successful West Virginia Democrat Jay Rockefeller, who was running for an open seat.

The top House PAC money receipient was then-Budget Committee Chairman James Jones, D-Okla. He received $662,861 from the special-interest groups.

Once they register with the FEC, PACs can donate up to $5,000 to each candidate for each election (primary, runoff, general). Individual contributors can give a maximum of $1,000 per candidate per election.

Fields, at seventh, received $345,216 from PACs. Wilson was 22nd at $284,156. Frost was No. 46 at $238,904.

Sweeney was 35th in spending, at $651,528. Frost was 37th at $653,542; Wilson was 48th at $607,575.

Contractor was 'fairly accused'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief executive officer of General Dynamics, conceding that the giant defense contractor was "fairly accused" of submitting unallowable bills to the Pentagon, says a 700-person team is scrutinizing past billings to weed out questionable charges.

Church plans new facilities

new building — and two structures to the west of First Baptist. These two buildings, which both front Ave. R, are now used for church activities related to young adults and singles.

The plans to date have been under the guidance of a church planning and survey committee appointed in August of 1984.

Heading this committee was Fred Cross. Other members were Lynn Bethel, Durelle Gorman, Wilson Howell, Glenna Jones, Wayne Monroney, Ned Underwood and Ann Walton. Ex-officio members of the committee were D.D. Shelburne, Ben Brock, John Bullock, educational minister, and church pastor Ken Branam.

The next steps in the process to complete the project will be the appointment of a building committee and a finance committee from among the church membership.

The finance committee will be charged with determining how funding for the project will be completed.

The last major building project at First Baptist was undertaken in 1979, when the chapel was added at a cost under the $1 million now projected for the education building.

These monies were raised from among the church membership in less than two years, church officials note.

The new project is now undergoing detail drawings being prepared by the architectural firm of Whitaker, McQueen, Jones and Associates of Lubbock.

This work is expected to take from four to six months to complete.

No budget agreement yet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Budget Committee, meeting in unprecedented secrecy, has a tentative agreement to preserve next year's Social Security cost of living increases, but no accord so far on a package of spending cuts needed to reduce huge federal deficits.

"There was really very little enthusiasm on either side" for curtailing the Social Security benefits, Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., said as the panel met for nearly five hours, breaking up shortly before midnight with an agreement to resume in the morning.

In addition to the Social Security agreement, Rep. Pat Williams, D-Mont., said there was a consensus for granting full inflation allowances for low-income programs.

But several sources, who spoke only on condition they not be identified by name, said the panel made little progress on domestic or defense spending, despite what one participant described as a "lovefest atmosphere" free of the partisan wrangling that characterized open debate earlier in the day.

"There's some hope out there that we haven't had before" that a bipartisan agreement is possible, said Rep. Delbert Latta, R-Ohio.

The decision to clear the committee room of reporters, television cameras, lobbyists and the public came on a bipartisan, 26-3 vote, and Rep. William Gray, D-Pa., said, "It seems we ought to stop making long speeches and start talking turkey."

Democrats went into the session seeking Republican support for a freshly minted plan to trim spending by $56 billion next year without raising taxes or curtailing Social Security benefits. The proposal also calls for more domestic spending and less defense spending than many Republicans would like.

Several sources said Schumer suggested Democrats increase their proposed level of defense spending for next year by $6 billion — in exchange for Republican agreement to the balance of the Democratic budget. Schumer could not be reached to confirm the proposal, but sources said no vote was taken.

The committee is drafting an alternative to the budget approved narrowly last week in the Republican-controlled Senate. That plan would freeze Social Security benefits for one year, reduce defense below what Reagan had said previously he would accept, and trim billions more from domestic programs to achieve savings of $56 billion.

Death knell sounded for campaign reform

WASHINGTON (AP) — The next congressional elections are still 18 months away, but the death knell already is being sounded on Capitol Hill for legislation designed to limit the role of political action committees in campaign financing.

"It does not seem likely that anything major will get through this session," says Elaine Milliken, counsel of elections for the Senate Rules and Administration Committee.

"It's likely there won't be anything this year," agrees Kathy Jarvis, staff director of the House Administration elections subcommittee.

The conventional wisdom on Capitol Hill is that election finance reform must be attacked very early in a two-year session — after members are finished with one campaign, but haven't started serious fund-raising for the next.

Bills have been introduced this year on both sides of the Capitol. However, they arrived without fanfare, and neither Senate Rules and Administration nor the House elections subcommittee has scheduled hearings.

"Legislation will not be passed in the next two years," said Jay Angoff, staff counsel for Congress Watch and a supporter of campaign finance reform. "People are already getting into serious fund-raising for an election that's a year and one-half away."

Randy Huwa, a lobbyist for Common Cause, agreed that campaign finance reform remains an "uphill" fight.

Political action committees run by business, labor and ideological groups contributed a record $104.9 million to congressional races in the 1984 elections, the Federal Election Commission reported.

This is up from PAC contributions of $83.6 million in the 1981-82 campaign period, $55.2 million in 1979-80 and $34.1 million in 1977-78, the FEC said.

A study by Common Cause, a self-described citizens' lobby, said House members seeking re-election last year got almost 80 percent of the $75.6 million PACs contributed to all House candidates, picking up $4.58 for every $1 given to challengers.

In the Senate, incumbents got $2.97 for each $1 going to opponents and collected about 65 percent of the $29.3 million PACs spent on the 33 Senate races last year, according to Common Cause.

The organization, which advocates changes in election finance law, said PACs last year accounted for nearly 30 percent of all campaign money. This is up from 24 percent in 1982, Common Cause said.

On Wednesday, the FEC reported that candidates spent a record $374 million on last year's congressional races, up 9.3 percent over the 1982 elections.

Angoff of Congress Watch said many reformers believe congressional campaign financing will not be radically changed in the absence of another scandal similar to Watergate, which prompted public financing of presidential elections.

"I don't agree that a big scandal is necessary," he said. "Eventually Congress will get so fed up they will voluntarily bite the hand that feeds them. But a big scandal would help things along."

New tax plan has higher execptions

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has settled on major elements of a tax overhaul plan that would mean a higher personal exemption, lower rates and fewer deductions for most Americans.

Reagan, however, will delay the proposal a week while the House struggles with the 1986 budget.

The president plans to launch a speaking blitz on behalf of the plan with a televised speech from the Oval Office on May 28, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Wednesday.

Reagan agreed to the delay at the request of Senate Majority Leader Robert J. Dole and House Minority Leader Robert Michel. A splashy introduction of the sweeping tax measure could divert House members' attention from the urgency of slashing the deficit by reducing spending, the GOP leaders contended.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., whose House Ways and Means Committee originates tax legislation in Congress, the delay could be costly. "Delay saps the cause of tax reform — and raises doubts about the president's nerve," Rostenkowski said.

Nevertheless, "The basic decisions are essentially made," Speakes told reporters. "There may be some additional refinement by the Treasury Department as they put the president's decisions into the computers. But the basic, fundamental decisions are made by the president."

According to an administration official, who asked not to be quoted by name, the president's proposals will include:

—Reduced individual tax rates. Present law has 15 rates for couples and 16 for single people, ranging from 11 percent to 50 percent. Reagan wants to compress those brackets into three: 15 percent, 25 percent and 35 percent.

—Boosting the personal exemption. Present law permits a taxpayer to avoid taxes on $1,040 for himself or herself, the spouse and each dependent. Inflation is expected to raise the exemption to $1,090 in 1986. The president's plan would boost it to $2,000.

—Eliminating many deductions and limiting others. The plan will continue to allow deduction of home mortgage interest, for example, but seeks to repeal the writeoff for state and local taxes paid. People who itemize deductions would be allowed to continue deducting most charitable contributions, but the special writeoff for those who do not itemize would be repealed.

—Most employer-paid fringe benefits would continue tax-free. The major exception would be to tax the first $300 per year of health insurance premiums that employers pay for workers.

—A tougher minimum tax on corporations, which — like the present minimum tax — is designed to assure that profitable firms pay some-federal income tax no matter how many deductions and credits they use.

Cotton field edges may need spraying

Some jumbo grasshoppers have been seen in the area. If you have had a problem with this pest in your cotton in the past then you might consider spraying the edges of your field. The thresshold for jumbo grasshoppers is more than two square yards in vegetation around fields to be planted in cotton. The young hoppers are easier to kill than the adults. The thresshold for other kinds of grasshoppers is 10-20 per square yard.

Some of the insecticides which can be used to control grasshoppers in non-crop land next to cotton are:

INSECTICIDE	FORMULATION	CONCENTRATE/ACRE
Carbaryl (Sevin)	80S	10-30 oz.
Carbaryl (Sevin)	XLR	1-3 pints
Malathion	91%ULV	8 fl. oz.
Malathion	57% EC	1 1/2--2 pts.
Orthene	75S	2--2 2/3 oz.
Pydrin	2.4EC	2 2/3--5 1/3 oz.

Alternative control methods: Use a seed treatment or a N-furrow systemic insecticide at planting.

On Jan. 31, 1971, astronauts Alan Shepard, Edgar Mitchell and Stuart Roose landed safely in the Pacific Ocean in their Apollo 14 spacecraft after the third moon landing.
