Bluebonnet buyer under Fed scrutiny

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

James M. Fail, a Phoenix, Arizona insurance executive who led the acquisition of Hi-Plains Savings and Loan Association FSA of Hereford and 14 other Texas thrifts in 1988, is under investigation by authorities of several states and the federal government for misleading insurance regulators and other officials.

Fail committed $120 million to purchase the thrifts and the government pledged to pay him $1.85 billion in subsidies. However, Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum said last week that Fail acquired the thrifts with only $1,000 of his own money.

Fail is under investigation in Arizona, California and Iowa for apparently misleading insurance regulators in those states.

Fail is also under Congressional scrutiny for failure to tell federal regulators that he, as a director of a company, had been indicted. According to Fail's own testimony in 1983, the company had been indicted in Alabama in 1976.

Fail was charged with securities violations in connection with the incident, but that charge was dropped after Fail reached an agreement with Alabama officials that barred him from doing business in Alabama.

Fail's insurance companies have also been fined or saddled with regulatory orders because of improprieties. On July 3, the Arizona Department of Insurance suspended the license of Fail's Farm and Home Life Insurance Co., placing the company under its supervision. The company's liabilities exceeded its assets by at least $15 million, state insurance officials said.

The Alabama indictment led to a guilty plea from one of Fail's companies. That would have been enough to make it highly unlikely that Fail, through CSFB Corp., Inc., could have acquired the thrifts from the government.

The group of savings and loans is now known as Bluebonnet Savings Bank. It includes associations based in Odessa, Lamesa, Dallas, Mesquite, Mineral Wells, Slaton, Hurst, Richardson, Lancaster, Colorado City, Big Spring, Houston and Lufkin.

Hi-Plains Savings and Loan Association FSA was created by the Bank Board in 1985 after the former Hi-Plains Savings and Loan Association was placed in receivership. For almost four years, HPS&L was managed by University Savings Association of Houston.

At the time HPS&L and the other thrifts were acquired by Fail, HPS&L was $65 million in the red with losses of $740,000 per month for the nine months ending Sept. 30, 1988. The Bank Board, in a news release at the time of the Fail acquisition, said HPS&L was troubled by delinquent loans and real estate owned by the thrift that comprised 36.4 per cent of the association's gross assets.

On Dec. 22, 1988, the Bank Board announced that Fail and CSFB Corp., Inc., were acquiring the 15 insolvent Texas thrifts the next day. The Bank Board agreed to a package of $1.85 billion to help fund the acquisition and make the thrifts solvent, including an $836.7 million 10-year note payable in installments. The new company received an installment of $250 million in 1989. The thrift had a prosperous 1989, but federal subsidies made up 85 per cent of Bluebonnet's assets.

CSFB Corp. is to contribute $120 million in capital over 10 years, based on how well the company performs, but Fail's initial cash investment with the Bank Board was only $1,000.

The Senate Subcommittee on Antitrust, Monopolies and Business Rights is examining whether federal regulators adequately screened Fail's past legal and regulatory problems before approving his purchase of the thrifts.

Fail's attorney, Stanley M. Brand, told the New York Times that his client "had fully complied with federal disclosure requirements." The Times reported that Brand said Fail "fully complied with regulatory procedures. ...Federal authorities were fully and properly aware" of Fail's indictment and his company's guilty plea.

DR. JERRY KLEINPETER, CINDY SIMONS, RON MAYS
...Part of the team at Cedar Creek Hospital

Hospital wants to help

A Hereford branch of a newly-opened Amarillo hospital is hoping to ease minds in Hereford and the surrounding area.

Easing minds is the business Cedar Creek Hospital is in. The hospital deals with various mental health problems in children, adolescents and adults, from learning disabilities and other problems for children to drug and alcohol abuse for adults.

Cindy Simons runs the Hereford office, located in the Professional Building on North 25 Mile Ave. in Hereford. At an open house and grand opening of the Hereford office on Wednesday, she explained that her office offers free referrals and initial consultations to help persons with problems. The problems do not have to be their own; it could be a problem another family member, or a friend, is encountering.

The office also will have a variety of seminars and educational programs to work with schools, organizations and businesses. Simons said many of the seminars will deal with how to spot problems and to help keep problems from beginning in many areas.

Also working with the local office is Dr. Jerry Kleinpeter, a psychologist who has been practicing in the area for about six months.

Ron Mays, administrator of the Amarillo hospital, said the unique facility and program has been refined so everything patients do helps with their therapy.

"We are trying to dispel the myth of a dull, drab place where a patient would see a doctor once a day, get medication, and the rest of the time sit around," Mays said. "We use a progressive model where everything patients do, everything from breakfast to group sessions to all of our activities are therapeutic."

"Many times patients who have been with us longer become therapeutic with other patients and help them get through tough times."

"What we are trying to do in Hereford is serve the community in whatever way we can. If someone has a problem, any kind of problem, we can assess their problem and refer them to whatever service they need. It could be Alcoholics Anonymous or the Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center, or it could be to a public agency, or some other organization. We want to work with doctors and teachers and other professionals in Hereford so that if someone has a problem or a question we can see what we can provide for them."

Jubilee schedule set

The annual Town and Country Jubilee will kickoff on August 5, with a week of activities running through August 12.

Waldo Baxter and Garth Thomas are co-chairmen of the 1990 Jubilee, the theme is "Texas' Best-Deaf Smith County."

The Jubilee will begin August 5 with the Jubilee Road Rally. This event demands skillful driving through Hereford by two-person teams.

On August 9, the Hereford Riders club will host a team roping at 7 p.m. at the Hereford Riders Club Arena.

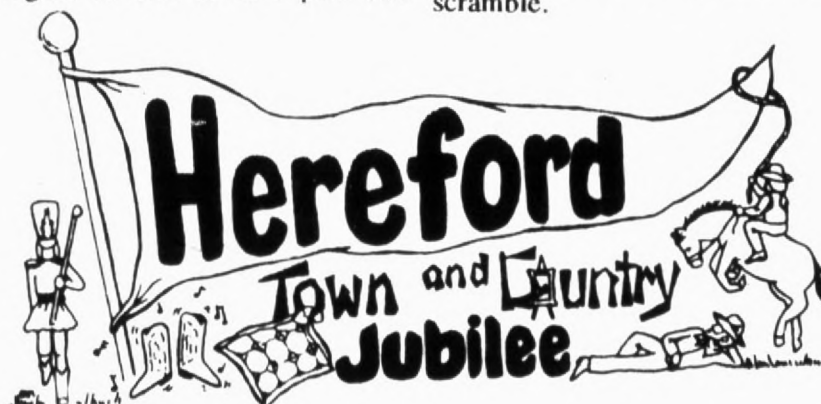

A new event this year is the Jubilee Softball Classic. The tournament will be open to all Class D players and will be held August 10-12 at the Church of the Nazarene. The tournament will also have a home run hitting contest, with players to vie for honors for a $5 entry fee.

On August 10, the Jubilee of Arts, sponsored by the Pilot club, will open at noon at the Community Center. Chairperson Linda Minchew said a few booths are still open, but many artists and craftmakers from Texas and New Mexico have already reserved booths to give everyone the opportunity to view and purchase original, handcrafted items and art. The Jubilee of Arts will be open from noon to 6 p.m. on August 10 and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on August 11.

The annual Hall of Fame All Girl Rodeo and Fajita cookoff will be held August 10 and 11 at 7 p.m. and

The rodeo will feature loads of fun at The Barn, six miles west of Hereford on FM 1058, then north on FM 1057 for two miles. The indoor facility provides excellent seating for the bronc riding, team roping, breakaway, barrel racing, goat tying, bull riding, and the kids' calf scramble.

August 12 at 3 p.m. at The Barn, northwest of Hereford.

The fajita cookoff will be held at 5 p.m. on August 10 at The Barn to help boost the rodeo. The second annual cookoff is sponsored by Hereford CattleWomen, and is also an enjoyable way to salute the beef industry.

A dance, featuring the Clyde Logg Band, will be held following the August 11 performance.

The big day for the Jubilee is August 11.

The day will begin with the Greg Black Memorial 10K Run, 2-Mile Walk and 2-Mile Fun run at 8 a.m. The event is sponsored by Taco villa

San Antonio doctor to aid Parmer probe

BOVINA (AP) - By the time a Parmer County grand jury meets next month, a district attorney said he hopes to complete an investigation into the deaths of six children whose mother is considered a possible suspect.

Diane Lumbra, formerly of Bovina and now a resident of Garden City, Kan., has been charged in Kansas with first-degree murder in the May 1 death of her son, Jose, 4.

That investigation led Parmer County District Attorney Johnny Atkinson of Farwell to open a probe into the deaths of five of her children and one other child when Mrs. Lumbra lived in Bovina. The children, who died between November 1976 and March 1984, ranged in age from 6 weeks to 4 years.

Parmer County authorities have enlisted the help of a San Antonio pathologist to develop evidence in the case, the Amarillo Globe-News reported.

Dr. Robert Bux, a forensic pathologist with the Bexar County medical examiner's office, confirmed Friday that he had been retained by Parmer County to assist in the investigations.

"I'm still trying to get records ... more stuff has to be sent in from a variety of places," Bux said.

Although no exhumations of the dead children's bodies have been ordered, Bux did not rule out that possibility.

"I wouldn't know at this time, but I don't see why not," he said.

The Texas deaths include:

- Joanna Lumbra Garza, who died at the age of 3 months on Nov. 30, 1976, at Parmer County Community Hospital at Friona;

- Joselionel Garza, who died at the age of 2 months on Feb. 13, 1978, at Lubbock's Methodist Hospital;

- Melissa Garza Lumbra, who died at the age of 3 on Oct. 2, 1978, at Parmer County Community Hospital;

- Ericka Aleman, who died at the age of 6 weeks on Oct. 8, 1980, at West Plains Medical Center in Muleshoe;

- Melinda Ann Garza Lumbra, who died at the age of 5 months on March 28, 1984, at Plains Memorial Hospital in Dimmitt.

Ms. Lumbra is accused of smothering Jose Lumbra on the night of May 1 in her Garden City home, before bringing his body to a hospital emergency room.

She was freed in June after posting a $50,000 surety bond, according to Kansas authorities.

Kansas District Judge J. Stephen Nyswonger has set a trial date of Sept. 19. Testimony from 80 or more potential witnesses is expected, prosecutors say.

Pre-trial hearings are scheduled for Aug. 15-16 and possibly Sept. 13. Motions expected to be filed will include whether evidence collected from the questionable deaths in Texas will be admissible during her trial and whether statements Ms. Lumbra made to law authorities after she was arrested will be admissible.

Several witnesses who have been summoned are experts in the field of infanticide, prosecutors said.

Farmer's Market will begin Wednesday

The 1990 Farmer's Market, sponsored by the Agribusiness Committee of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, will start Wednesday at 5 p.m. in the parking lot of the Ranch House Restaurant in Hereford.

Committee co-chairmen Burl Miller and Bob Beville said fresh homegrown produce from Deaf Smith County and the surrounding area will be sold each week through the rest of the season.

Persons wishing to sell goods at the market should contact the chamber at 364-3333.

EADES

Eades resigns council position

Long-time City Commissioner R.W. "Bud" Eades has resigned his Hereford City Council seat.

Eades submitted a letter of resignation to Mayor Wes Fisher at last Monday's city council meeting. Eades resigned to pursue personal interests and plans to move to Amarillo.

Eades has served for many years on the City Council and has long been active in industrial and economic development for the city and the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. He recently served as the volunteer director of the Hereford Area Economic Development Commission.

"We were at a Texas Municipal League meeting in Amarillo on Thursday night, and it didn't seem the same without Bud there with us," said Commissioner Tom LeGate. "I hope we can get someone to serve in Bud's place that will be just as interested in the city as was Bud."

And if you are really feeling creative, try to set the words of your poem to music! Use a familiar song, like "Oh Susanna" or "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

Have the entire family write a rap song!

FAIL

In a 1983 hearing in Alabama, Philip Stano, an attorney for the Alabama Department of Insurance, submitted a sworn statement given by Fail to Texas insurance regulators on June 18, 1979. Stano told the Alabama commission that "On numerous occasions (Fail) lied to the Texas insurance department" by checking the "no" box on questions about whether he had ever been indicted or whether he had ever been sued in a civil lawsuit.

Stano also filed a letter dated Aug. 5, 1982 from a lawyer with the Florida state insurance department that said Fail apparently misanswered questions on filings there about legal and financial problems.

Fail, questioned by Stano, conceded he had been indicted but said he had not been indicted by Texas regulators. He said a Florida filing had been withdrawn because "so much bad information" had been forwarded to Florida from Alabama.

In 1988, when the Fail-led group was attempting to acquire what became Bluebonnet, Fail checked "no" on two forms asking whether he had ever been indicted. On one form, he mentioned the indictment in a section on civil lawsuits. On another form, he noted the guilty plea of the affiliated company, but said he was only a director.

On a third form, Fail certified that none of his affiliates had ever plead guilty to a felony.

Wayne G. Frena, the Dallas-based analyst for the Bank Board that reviewed Fail's background in 1988, told the Senate subcommittee that he did not have enough time or information to complete his review. Frena told the subcommittee he was opposed to Fail's eligibility to acquire the thrifths because of his indictment but was overruled in December 1988 by Bank Board officials in Dallas and Washington.

Frena said he did not know of the 1976 guilty plea by Fail's former corporation. Frena also said he never saw a copy of the 1976 indictment, despite requesting copies of it from Fail's attorney, until after the Bank Board approved Fail's acquisition of the thrifths.

The New York Times, Arizona Republic and Albuquerque Tribune contributed to this story.

After the 10K Run, the 10th Annual Jubilee Parade will begin at Hereford High School. Hosted by the Whiteface Kiwanis Club, co-chairmen Jim Ward and Hawk Kreig said this year's parade should be one of the best ever. Categories to be judged this year include commercial, religious, community service, agribusiness, open division and overall.

Local firms wishing to enter are urged to contact Kreig, Ward or the chamber. Implement dealers, trucking firms and service companies are also urged to take part. The chairmen said they would like to have as many tractor-trailer rigs as possible take part in the parade to show how many great trucking businesses are located in the county.

Youth groups and bicycle groups are also urged to enter.

After the parade, action moves to Dameron Park for Jubilee Junction: Over 50 game and food booths will be set up throughout the park.

Food booths will include good ol' Texas barbecue, steak on a stick, hamburgers, hot dogs, fajitas, cotton candy, homemade ice cream, watermelon and much more.

After eating, you can enjoy many games, including horseshoes, volleyball, golf putting, obstacle courses or Wheel of Fortune. Other games can entertain younger folks, like a coin treasure hunt, wood wonders, dunking board, face painting and several races.

The Women's Division will again sponsor a Diaper Derby for babies, and the Deaf Smith County 4-H will sponsor a petting zoo and pet parade.

Coming back this year is the Kangaroo Kourt, sponsored by Deaf Smith County Crimestoppers. If you have someone in mind who needs to be "arrested" and "put on trial," keep them in mind for the Kangaroo Kourt.

Also highlighting Jubilee Junction will be the Jubilee Junction Stage. Chairperson Jeannine Zimmerman has put together a full afternoon of entertainment featuring local talent to fill the afternoon.

To help dress up Hereford for the Jubilee, the Hereford Key Club is renting red, white and blue bunting for store fronts. Persons wishing to reserve bunting may call the Chamber at 364-3333.

Brennan resigns from bench

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush is moving quickly to choose a successor to Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan, whose surprise retirement deprives the court of its leading liberal and may lead to a dramatic shift in American law.

Bush's choice will help determine the court's approach - possibly well into the next century - to abortion rights, affirmative action, freedom of expression and other contentious issues.

Bush planned to meet with advisers today to begin looking for Brennan's replacement. The Republican president said he intends to choose the best qualified person, even if it means triggering a confirmation battle in the Democratic-controlled Senate.

Bush received a facsimile of Brennan's resignation letter as he boarded Air Force One in Wyoming on Friday. The Supreme Court had hand-delivered a copy of the letter to the White House at 7:40 p.m. EDT.

Buy right to eat right

NEW YORK (AP) - Choosing nutritious low-fat foods is the first step toward a healthful diet. But for many people, this isn't an easy task.

"Eating right depends on buying right," says Janet Helm, a registered dietitian and contributor to the Environmental Nutrition newsletter.

"Although there's been an explosion of choices, the keys to smart shopping are still the same," she says. "Make a list before going to the store and scour package labels once inside to compare choices."

Some tips from Environmental Nutrition for smart shopping:

- Choose whole fruits over fruit juices. Whole fruits have more fiber and no sugar is added.

- Buy evaporated skim milk as a substitute for cream in recipes or your coffee.

- Look for beef cuts with "loin" or "round" in the name. Sirloin, tenderloin, eye of round, or top round are among the leanest cuts.

- Choose enriched 100 percent whole-wheat breads and rolls including French bread, Italian bread, pita bread, English muffins, bagels and bread sticks.

- Compare fiber and sugar content of cereals. Select oatmeal and other hot cereals without added fat and sweetened fruit. Look for cold cereals with a grain, not sugar, listed as the first ingredient.

- Look for reduced-fat cheese or cheese made with part-skim milk, such as mozzarella and ricotta. Make sure these cheeses have no more than 5 grams of fat per ounce.

- For low-fat snacks, choose pretzels and popcorn, but not regular microwave popcorn, which is high in fat. Low-fat cookie choices include fig bars, vanilla wafers, graham crackers, animal crackers and gingersnaps.

- Buy frozen dinners with less than 10 grams of fat per serving or about 3 grams of fat per 100 calories.

- Select low-fat frozen desserts like sherbet, sorbet, Italian ice, low-fat frozen yogurt, popsicles and frozen fruit bars.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - At 22, with Olympic gold behind her, gymnastics has finally become fun for Mary Lou Retton.

"Now I perform, I don't compete and that makes a real difference," Retton said.

Retton was the sensation of the 1984 Summer Olympics in Los Angeles. Her gold medal, in the all-around competition, was the first ever for an American woman gymnast.

"When we were practicing for the Olympics, we spent eight hours a day in the gym," she said Monday. "The time in between practice, we were too tired to do anything else."

Board of directors and members of the Circle of Friends have supported and participated in numerous programs and projects this past year.

The organization has two major sources of funding: the annual membership drive, with membership parties held in surrounding area towns; and the sales of the Caring Touch Christmas Cards.

Each November area school children are given the opportunity to enter their Christmas card designs in a contest. More than 1,000 entries are received each year and the designs of the six top winners are used for general sales. Neiman Marcus stores also sell these cards.

The Circle of Friends hosts holiday parties for children in the pediatric oncology department. Hereford Circle of Friends entertained at last year's Christmas party with the appearance of Santa Claus, refreshments, gifts and games for 30 patients, parents and siblings.

The organization also sponsored a Hereford child at Camp Alphonse, a camp for pediatric patients in the summer. In addition, members provided lunches for the Parents Camp.

The Smoke Free Baby program, a project designed to educate new parents about the dangers of passive smoke and one that offers suggestions to keep the babies smoke free, has also involved Circle of Friends members. Newborns in area towns have been provided with "Smoke-Free Baby" bibs in hospitals.

The organization has also supported weekly "dialogue" support groups for cancer survivors and their families. The weekly meetings are held so that participants may talk, listen and learn.

Among the other projects which the Circle of Friends has supported include co-sponsoring the play, "Charlotte's Web," with the Ronald McDonald House, in February. The production was performed by Amarillo Children's Theatre and proceeds are being used for the children's cancer programs in the Texas Panhandle. The organization assisted in sponsoring Crazy Maze and Chubby Checker to benefit the Cancer Center, and its members have participated in the area health fairs including supporting the Breast Cancer Screening and Skin Cancer screening clinic.

Serving as hostesses, hosts

Elizabeth and Herbert Vogel's home, located at the north end of Ave. F., will be the site of the second annual Circle of Friends Membership Party set from 7:30-10 p.m. Friday, July 27. The theme of the event is "Come See the Llamas and Other Friends". Membership, which is open to the public, is priced at $25 per couple or $15 per person. Those attending the informal affair will be served hors d'oeuvres and beverages and may also bring their cameras for photographs with the Vogels' llamas. The Circle of Friends is a volunteer organization established to work in support of cancer patients and the programs which benefit them. It also helps support the research and patient care programs at The Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center in Amarillo. Among those to serve as hostesses and hosts for the evening include, from left, Billie Hopson, Herbert Vogel, Helen Langley and Don Graham.

Last minute travel tips

It's not too late to plan a great summer getaway, and take advantage of many terrific bargains still available this year, according to travel expert Hal Gieseck.

Some of Gieseck's helpful hints for planning your vacation:

- * Investigate heavy discounts on cruises. Eleven new cruise ships have been launched this year and the cruise lines are competing for passengers with a variety of special offers. For instance, some travel agents and travel clubs offer hefty discounts to passengers who book their cruises at the last minute. Or, if you're planning a vacation for later in the year, look into "early bird" discounts. There are also savings on "pot luck" cruises—trips where the cruise line chooses your destination for you. Many operators also offer free passage to children who share their parent's cabin.

- * Take advantage of hotel discounts. Many motels are offering steep mid-week and weekend discounts and special weekend packages.

- * Don't take alot of cash with you—it's dangerous and also unnecessary when you consider that bank credit cards are accepted by eight million merchants in 187 countries.

According to the National Automated Clearing House Association (NACHA), Americans fail to take advantage of Direct Deposit because they don't know enough about it. For instance, American companies could increase productivity by at least four to five billion dollars a year if all employees were paid via direct deposit.

The curlew can fly non-stop for more than 2,000 miles. Since most of the bird's flight is over water, he doesn't have much of a chance for a breather—especially since the curlew can't swim!

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says we have found wealth when we have found enjoyment in unbought pleasures.

The cost of living is always the same: All you have and a little bit more.

Judge Wesley Gulley claims he overheard a man remark to Joe Kerr: "Gosh, it's been a long time since we've had a rain," and Kerr answered, "Don't you know Hereford has a city manager form of government. We're not supposed to have a reign."

Nothing helps the overall community attitude like a good, soaking rain. The rainfall Friday morning may have been short of expectations in places, but it sure was a morale booster!

The showers were as welcome as an IRS refund check but, in one area, it makes a problem even worse--we've got weeds in our sidewalks and curbs, vacant lots and along the highways. We've also got untended grass, weeds and trash around the residential areas. With the annual Town & County Jubilee coming up, we all need to help beautify Hereford.

We noticed that James Roberts, editor down at Andrews, wrote about a similar problem in that city. He has called on the city and county to do something about mowing vacant lots and cleaning up alleys. Roberts says city and county crews have shied away from mowing weeds or grass on private property due to interpretation of Texas law.

"It doesn't have to be that way," says Roberts.

"City and county-owned fire trucks enter onto private property to fight grass fires, trash fires and residential fires all the time. Police and emergency vehicles also go onto private property in the interest of the public good."

"The only time an owner of a vacant lot is interested in expending time, money and effort to mow, clean and trim the property is if a prospective buyer is in the offing. And to attempt to force an owner to maintain a city lot is a move fated for delay, frustration, interminable paper work, hassle, and is not cost effective either for the city or county.

"The general public in a community benefits from a maintenance program against weeds, grass, and tumbleweeds. For health and safety reasons, the public is the beneficiary from a mowing program...and it's the public, through its taxing entities, that ought to take care of the problem. Just as private engineers are employed to determine what streets need seal coating, why not a weed committee representing the public to study, analyze and chart lots, alleys, streets and highways needing mowing or cleaning?"

"The committee, appointed by the county and city and composed of citizens, health officers, the fire marshal, could annually determine lots to be maintained for health and safety reasons."

Roberts concluded by suggesting the county judge and mayor "ought to sit down with the county attorney and work this problem out. Where there's a will, there's a way--legally."

Larry Crabtree, publisher at Vernon, tells about Wilbarger County man whose business affairs seemed to have perpetual scrutiny from the Internal Revenue Service.

The IRS man was conducting an audit of the man's individual tax return. The agent noted that the individual listed a substantial contribution to his church.

The auditor called the church office and asked the preacher, "One of your members listed a $50,000 contribution to the church building fund. Can you verify that contribution?"

The preacher was quick, even with the IRS on the line. "Well, the records are in the other office, but I can assure you that if he didn't, he soon will!"

BABBLING BROOKS

By JOHN BROOKS

Boy, what a weird baseball season this has been.

We've had, what, seven no-hitters this year. Nolan Ryan had his sixth career no-hitter, breaking his own old record.

We finally had a new new record set. Last Tuesday, the Twins used the renowned combination of Gary Gaetti-to-Al Newman-to-Kent (Buy A Vowel) HrbeK to twice turn triple plays against the Red Sox. That's the first time that's ever happened in the major leagues: never-ever since 1876 until Tuesday.

On Wednesday, the Twins and Red Sox were at it again. The teams combined for 10 double plays, the most ever in a nine-inning ballgame. The Red Sox, who have fielded slow teams since 1901, hit into six of the double plays, tying an American League record held by the Red Sox of previous, slow-footed years.

The Twins, though, are the story this week. They're ahead of the famous combination of Joe Tinker-to-Johnny Evers-to-Frank Chance. I don't know that Franklin P. Adams would have written a poem if he had to use Gaetti to Newman to HrbeK instead of Tinker to Evers to Chance. There aren't a lot of words that rhyme with HrbeK (Vanna, just give him a vowel), and the combination doesn't lend itself to an easy meter. There ain't no iambic to its pentameter.

Brunansky turned on the ball, But it became a wreck: Gaetti to Newman to HrbeK. Reed ground down the line, then hollered "What the heck!" Gaetti to Newman to HrbeK. They were two triple plays in the very same game, Gaetti to Newman to HrbeK. But they couldn't do it at the plate, And they lost the game, Despite Gaetti to Newman to HrbeK. I had to try.

Well, I've seen a lot of rain in the last week or so.

Of course, I haven't seen any here, but I was gone for awhile. I saw it rain almost two inches in the middle of the Arizona desert, out between Phoenix and Tucson.

It had been super-dry out there, just like here. All that changed out there beginning last Thursday, when a tornado struck Casa Grande, about 20 miles west of Granny's house in Coolidge.

About 4 a.m. last Sunday, I was awakened by brilliant lightning, heavy thunder and pouring rain. Granny and I were soon busy putting out pots and pans to catch all the drips. When your annual rainfall is only four inches a year, you're not quite as picky about a leak or two.

It rained over and inch, and Granny and I sat out on her front porch and watched the rain and enjoyed the giant cool down. It got down to about 60.

I drove back later on Sunday (all day), and I saw how the desert could have been swamp not that many years ago. That is exactly what it looked like, with all of that rain on it.

I drove and drove and drove, then called Granny when I got home 13 hours later. It had rained another inch, and it was definitely wet. One of the good things about the desert is they get four inches of rain a year, and if you're gone the day it all falls you have to wait a long time.

Don't call the old bowling alley the old bowling alley anymore, asks Henry Reid.

Henry has officially renamed the old bowling alley the Professional Building, with all of the offices in what used to be the old bowling alley.

When you drive by the old bowling alley, you know it's not the old bowling alley anymore because a brick wall about three feet high has been erected on the north side. On the brick wall it says Professional Building, not Old Bowling Alley. So remember that all of those professional offices are not in the old bowling alley, because the old bowling alley is now the Professional Building.

It will probably take a little longer for us to quit calling the old bowling alley the old bowling alley than it has for some to quit calling Hereford Junior High, La Plata Junior High.

Editorial opinion around the state

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from Texas newspapers:

July 16

Lubbock Avalanche-Journal on oil spill prevention:

It is no sure-fire preventive for major oil spills - certainly not at the moment - but the agreement in Congress to phase out most single-hull oil tankers over 20 years is an important step toward eliminating such disasters.

Senate and House conferees reached the compromise late last week while deliberating creation of a $1 billion emergency oil spill response fund. That bill may be law within a few weeks.

The decision to require double-hull construction for tankers has been among the most difficult issues facing negotiators ironing out differences in House and Senate bills on the fund.

The House wanted to phase out single hulls by the year 2005. The Senate wanted only to study the issue a while.

The compromise requires double hulls in all new tankers. Most existing tankers would be retrofitted with double hulls or taken out of service between 1995 and 2010. A few single-hull vessels could operate until 2015.

Another apparently effective corrective measure, according to Texas Land Commissioner Gary Mauro, is dumping oil-eating microbes onto slicks caused by leaking tankers.

Double hulls may be the best solution in the long run, but it is reassuring to know that the microbe technique, called bioremediation, may be an effective stopgap measure.

We have had our fill of spilled oil.

July 14

Houston Chronicle on chicken eaters:

Now it's official, chicken is America's No. 1 meat, topping beef last year by three-tenths of a pound in per capita consumption. And that's OK with Texans, even if we're still No. 1 in the beef business: The Texas broiler industry has grown with the demand, and the state is now sixth in the nation in broiler production.

Ranching remains a key industry in Texas, but that doesn't mean we can't accommodate chickens too. Diversification is the name of the game.

July 14

The Houston Post on conversion to natural gas:

A brief but heartfelt round of applause, please, for United Parcel Service. It announced this week that over the next five or so years it will be converting its 2,700-truck delivery fleet in the Los Angeles area to burn natural gas. The company also plans to do the same in Houston, Dallas and other major cities. UPS will not reveal an exact timetable for the Texas projects, but expect them to begin in a matter of months.

When a major fleet operator like this - UPS has about 60,000 trucks nationwide - makes such a move, it has a real impact. ...

Almost any company using more than a handful of vehicles can help both itself and its community with such a move. Not only is exhaust pollution from those vehicles sharply lessened, natural gas costs about one-fourth less than gasoline per mile traveled. It is also reported to be easier on engines, reducing repair costs.

When UPS begins its program here, it likely will move fairly quickly; this area has only about one-fourth the UPS trucks of Los Angeles. But

THE VOICE OF BUSINESS

CURBING HEALTH CARE COSTS

by Dr. Richard L. Leshner, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

WASHINGTON — The cost of health care in the United States is soaring more than 20 percent per year, placing severe strain on many public and private organizations, and posing a very real threat to the economic vitality of the nation.

Unfortunately, this drama has not electrified public opinion, at least in part because there is no villain to provoke outrage. To the contrary, there are some very sensible reasons why health care costs are rising so fast.

The first, and most obvious, is that citizens of the United States presume a natural right to extensive health services regardless of our condition or circumstance. Other industrial nations routinely deny expensive treatments to people. Patients over 50 cannot receive kidney dialysis; infants with severe disabilities are denied heroic measures. Americans would never stand for such arbitrary limits.

We want the best and we want it now. In other countries, many elective surgeries must be delayed for months or years. Again, we would never stand for such a thing.

Yet another reason our medical costs are so high is the tab for research and development of new medicines, a disproportionate share of which is done in this country.

Of course, explaining the reasons for a problem does not make it go away. Clearly, health care costs are out of control. We simply must do something.

What we do not need is to impose a national health care system or simply embrace a program of federal funding for health care. We have all surely learned by now that federal assumption of responsibility for anything is a sure-fire prescription for chaos.

Still, there are some practical options available by which we can make incremental progress. We need legislation to make it easier for small businesses, and self-employed persons, to obtain health insurance at reasonable rates. For the uninsured poor, we should assure basic Medicaid coverage, restoring the program to its original intent, and defining clearly the government's responsibility. We need federal legislation allowing establishment of state pools for uninsurable individuals, with losses financed by general revenues or other broad-based funding.

We can curb the rise in health care costs without abandoning our principles or turning our backs on the poor. All it requires is a little common sense, and a realistic appraisal of the limits of government intervention.

The Dallas Morning news on the drug war:

Reports from Mexico City that the United States is planning to either give or sell Mexico as many as 12 helicopters, along with radar and other equipment, is still more proof that the Bush and Salinas administrations are committed to continuing the battle against drug smuggling.

Valued at about $60 million, the package quadruples what the United States now extends to Mexico in the war against drugs. News of this initiative comes in the wake of a recent U.S. announcement that Mexican anti-narcotics law enforcement personnel will be stationed in the United States in about the same manner as U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agents operate in Mexico. ...

While the latest news on the U.S.-Mexico diplomatic scene underscores the ongoing commitment of both governments to fighting the drug smugglers, it is especially noteworthy insofar as it also is a triumph over occasional diplomatic missteps. Whether from concern over the impact of drugs on youth or the challenge that rich cocaine traffickers represents to state security, both nations must not allow themselves to be deterred from continuing the fight against drug trafficking.

July 16

Austin American-Statesman on NASA reassessment:

The Hubble telescope has a blind spot, the shuttle fleet is grounded over fuel leaks and two astronauts are being disciplined, one for reckless behavior by participating in a pylon race in New Braunfels in which an accident cost a racer his life. There's not been much good news for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration lately. A lot of that is NASA's fault, not for errors of commission so much as for errors of omission.

After getting over the shock of the Challenger disaster, it appeared that the agency was again a going concern. But NASA is now coming under political fire and experiencing a loss of public trust. It certainly cannot afford either.

... Something is basically amiss at the space agency, and more hearings are certainly warranted. Perhaps it's time to "stand down" and take a hard look from the outside and find the problems before proceeding. Social problems are here and now. Space can wait until we learn to do it right. Perhaps the heavens can wait.

July 12

El Paso Herald-Post on Albania's turmoil:

There's a fitting symmetry to the drama unfolding in Albania, Europe's last Stalinist outpost.

Just a year ago, mass movements of refugees in Eastern Europe launched events that eventually brought down half a dozen communist governments. Now the last domino is teetering.

President Ramiz Alia is learning that "democratization" is easier to launch than control.

Pressed, too, by the usual socialist economic ills, Alia has announced plans to liberalize. And he started to end his country's long self-imposed isolation. ...

But the government meant to draw the line at political pluralism. The police state built up by dictator Enver Hoxha over 40 years ago has remained intact since Hoxha's death in 1985. Not surprisingly, police responded with gunfire when would-be emigres sought refuge in the foreign embassies late in June.

Repressive tactics have not stemmed the crisis. The shooting prompted riots in Tirana and the government was forced into concessions.

Alia should realize that cosmetic moves cannot save him. Eastern Europe's experience should have made it plain by now that "democratization" does not square with one-party rule and a ubiquitous secret police.

Now that its people are shaking off their fear, Albania turns out to be not so different as rulers would like to believe.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

My husband Shorty and I are new residents of Hereford, having relocated with the company for which we work.

While I have not yet had time to make many new friends, I felt impelled to share with you my first impressions, based at this time solely on professional contacts.

I have shopped in several stores here and have found the prices competitive with the stores where we used to live. In those instances where the prices are higher, this is more than offset by the service, courtesy and friendliness exhibited by the store's personnel. More than once I have gone to the wrong store searching for an obscure item. Not only did the clerks refer me to the proper store, but several times have called in advance to see if the other store had what I needed, thereby saving me much time and trouble.

This friendly attitude is also readily found at the several dining establishments we have visited.

There is a real and tangible atmosphere of community in Hereford and realizing the concerted effort involved, we wanted to let you know that your efforts are succeeding.

Shorty and I are looking forward to a long and pleasant life here in our new hometown. Thank you all for making moving so much easier and for making us feel welcome.

Go Herd!

It's a bird, it's a plane, it's a Schlingen Gloussen

BY KAY CRISMON
Staff Writer

What is it? Where did it come from? Are there anymore like it in the world? Probably not.

It's called the Schlingen Gloussen (junk fantastic machine), but don't let the name fool you.

"My son, Richard, who lives in California, told me to find something to do with my retirement time and stay out of his mother's hair," Jerry Albracht, inventor of the Schlingen Gloussen, said. "He told me to make him something out of junk so that he could let people know what kind of a dad he has. Now, he can plug this in and say, 'see for yourself'."

Albracht and his wife, Pauline, have lived in Hereford for 57 years. Before he retired, he was a highway engineer. They are members of St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

Albracht has been retired for nine years and likes to keep busy with some of his hobbies such as gardening, making furniture, restoring antique furniture, and playing the organ, harmonica, and trumpet. He even enjoys singing, but his wife questions as to what classification his singing would fall under.

It has taken three months and 400 hours to build the Schlingen Gloussen. "I had to make it 56 inches tall, 29 inches wide, and 58 inches long so that my son can take it back to California with him when he comes to visit in August."

The Schlingen Gloussen consists of plastic bottles, bedsteads, caps, beer and soda pop cans, tons of glue, fingernail polish, various marbles, paper, styrofoam, used hoses, three compressors, railroad spikes, baby food jars, tops, corks, balloons, toys, fiddle strings and bow, sewing machine, parts of a dishwasher, dryer, humidifier, water pump, different size springs, bicycle wheel, lawn mower wheel, different size screws, light bulbs of all sizes, dimmer switches, 50 caliber World War II shell casings and a few more items.

It makes the sounds of a large truck, a duck quacking, different types of bells, horn honking, choo-choo train and other strange sounds.

"Don't let all these items fool you though, they are not all glued together to make one big conglomeration," he explained. "One wheel turns as the choo-choo runs beside the picturesque countryside and a bike rides on top of the wheel. The sewing machine honks a horn with each stitch and two toy rabbits dance on top of the machine. S.O.S. lights turn off and on with other lights shining to show off the toy inventor caught in a wheel; a violin bow plays across a can to pick up the beat; a pig turns slowly roasting on a rotisserie; and a billow swells in and out producing the sound of a duck call."

There are many Texas stickers highlighting the Schlingen Gloussen such as "I have Tex appeal" to let the people in California know where it came from.

"I've been asked to make another one but my wife would probably send me to the nut house or she'd go in my place if I tried it again. I would never be able to make another one exactly like it, but who knows...I may be inspired, in some way, to invent something completely different," Albracht explained. Isn't that the way inventors become famous?"

Albracht will be demonstrating the use of the Schlingen Gloussen at Stevens Chevrolet-Oldsmobile in the near future. The time will be announced in the Hereford Brand.

There are two novels buried in the 1939 New York World's Fair time capsule: Margaret Mitchell's Gone with the Wind, and Arrowsmith by Sinclair Lewis.

Safety tips for trucks

Staying on the road to safety: The journey can be easier if trucks and other large vehicle tires are properly serviced by professional mechanics.

Never work on a truck tire or wheel unless you're properly trained and have read and follow Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) regulation Section 1910.177 and wheel manufacturer's literature, remind safety experts, who offer the following pointers:

DO go to a garage if a truck tire has run any distance while completely or partially deflated flat. The tire or wheel could have been dislodged or damaged to the point that, inflated, it can cause an explosion or serious injury.

DO go to a garage where the tire is disassembled, repaired, and both tire and wheel are inspected by a trained repairman for damage, undue wear, proper matching of all components, then properly inflated and assembled in a safety cage.

DO have a new tire put on if yours has a manufacturing date older than 15 years.

DON'T put a 16-inch tire on a 16.5-inch rim. If you do this and over-inflate the tire, the tire will explode before it will fully fit on the rim.

All doctors use a standard procedure of examination to diagnose a patient's condition in order to arrive at a plan of treatment. Your doctor of chiropractic uses the same time honored methods of consultation, case history, physical examination, laboratory analysis and X-ray examination. In addition, he or she provides a careful chiropractic structural examination, with emphasis on the spine.

The examination of your spine to evaluate structure and function is what makes chiropractic different from other health care procedures. Accidents, falls, uneven stress, tension, or over-exertion may cause an inability of the spine to move as a dynamic organ. This can result in minor displacements or derangement of one or more of the vertebrae, causing irritation to spinal nerve roots directly by pressure or indirectly through reflex. Alleviating this irritation can cause your body to operate more efficiently and more comfortably.

Cohesiveness, maturity key to 1990 Buffalos

By SAM W. WALLER
Sports Editor

For the past two years West Texas State University football coach Steve Graf has been forced to rely on underclassmen to do the job and the results have not always been pretty.

But Graf says the 1990 Buffalos could make a dramatic turnaround.

"I really feel like we're in a position to be very competitive in the Lone Star Conference," Graf said Friday while in Hereford for the Buffalo Football Scramble. "Maturity is the No. 1 factor on our team -- we only graduated six seniors last year, four the before and we're only going to have six seniors this year."

"We've been playing a lot of youngsters -- 13 freshmen in '88 and 19 in '89. The great thing about all that is maturity factor is unbelievable. We've been growing up physically, mentally and, probably most important, in our cohesiveness as a team. The past two years we were all wearing maroon jerseys but we hadn't developed into a true team. I think all that has changed now."

Graf added that this year's squad reminds him somewhat of the Buffs' 1986 LSC championship edition.

"You can see things developing," he said. "It's been real exciting for us coaches. I just don't know exactly what's in store yet."

"In 1986 when we returned that entire team from 1985, I knew what was in store. I see the potential of this group being equal to that and so my excitement and enthusiasm is equal to the way it was in 1986."

Ronald McDonald House to sponsor Hogan Tour event

AMARILLO--The Ronald McDonald House of Amarillo will sponsor the first-ever Ben Hogan Amarillo Open on Sept. 3-9 at Amarillo Country Club.

"Amarillo is very fortunate to be chosen one of 30 cities to host a PGA-sanctioned Ben Hogan Tournament in 1990," said Tourney Co-chairman Dean Kelley. "We anticipate this event will be held in Amarillo indefinitely, and therefore have long-term benefits for both Amarillo and the Ronald McDonald House."

"The Ronald McDonald House has helped more than 3,000 families over the past six years," said executive director Pat Cathcart. "and the House will receive a majority of the net proceeds of the event."

"The businesses and individuals of the Panhandle have really gotten behind this benefit by sponsoring exciting events during the week-long tournament."

Wednesday, Sept. 5, Merrill Lynch will host a 10-man Shoot Out with one winner determined in nine holes. Affiliated Foods will sponsor the Junior Golf Clinic scheduled for 5 p.m. that day. At the clinic, junior golfers will be able to receive instruction from Ben Hogan Tour players and members of the Northern Texas PGA. Panhandle-area agents of the State Farm Insurance compa-

Graf's optimistic outlook was bolstered recently when three Buffs, wide receiver Keith Williams, defensive lineman Maurice Hobson and punter Mark Bounds, were named to the preseason Division II All-America team by College Football Preview Magazine.

"Maurice is one of the few seniors we have this year," Graf said, "and the leadership he has shown the younger players is invaluable. Keith is going to finish the year with a lot of school records and Mark averaged over 40 yards a kick last year."

Perhaps the toughest challenge for Graf this fall will be taking on the role of interim athletic director at WTSU in addition to running the football program. While the added workload has already meant some late nights, Graf said he did not feel there would be any problems.

"I'm going to do everything I can to make it not affect my job as a football coach," he said. "If you look at it realistically, obviously our athletic program is in a critical state. I'm going to have to work my tail off. I guess that's the best way to put it."

"The interim capacity is such that it's going to let me see if (both jobs) can be done. I feel that as a manager, as an organizer, I've got what it takes. I'll find out pretty quick and if I can't do it, I'll be the first to admit it."

West Texas opens the season Sept. 1 at Sacramento (Calif.) State with the first home game set for Sept. 8 against Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo.

4-H shooters

Sims foursome takes win in Buff scramble

Two teams carded scores of 65 Friday in the Buffalo Football Scramble at Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

The annual event, which benefits the West Texas State University football program, teamed local WTSU supporters with Buffalo coaches and players.

The foursome of Dick Sims, David Workman, Earl Stagner and Buff quarterback Dan Buesing claimed first place on a scorecard playoff. The team of Keith Kelso, Vanessa Sims, David Hopper and WTSU defensive line coach Mark McCarty was placed second in the eight-team field.

Prizes for the winning teams were tickets to Buff home games while WTSU souvenirs were raffled off during a hamburger supper after the scramble.

Oldsmobile Scramble scheduled for Aug. 12

The 1990 Stevens Oldsmobile Scramble has been scheduled for Aug. 12 at Hereford's Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

Entry fee will be $25 per person plus cart and green fees. Tee times will be assigned starting at 9 a.m.

Scoring for the tourney will be handicapped using the Oldsmobile Scramble Handicap System. Each four-man team's Oldsmobile Scramble handicap must be no less than plus one and no more than plus eight. A plus eight handicap will be assigned to all teams whose handicap figures out to plus nine or higher.

Only one member per team may have a negative Oldsmobile Scramble handicap, but all four may have positive handicaps.

The winning team from the local round will be joined by Pitman GC head pro Brent Warner for the sectional round, scheduled for Aug. 27 at Comanche Trails GC in Amarillo.

Sectional champions in both net and gross divisions will compete in the national finals at Walt Disney World Vacation Kingdom in Lake Buena Vista, Fla. The net division finals will be held Sept. 28-Oct. 1 with the gross division playing Oct. 12-15.

Pittsburgh bullpen pitches in on winning effort

By The Associated Press

For the first-place Pittsburgh Pirates, it's a total team effort these days. That includes their "no-name" bullpen, which is really pitching in.

"When you turn it over to our bullpen, you know you're in good hands," starter Bob Walk said after watching the Pirates' relief corps save his 4-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers on Friday night.

It was just another night at the office for the Pirates' bullpen, which is doing the job despite lacking a big-name closer such as Dennis Eckersley or John Franco.

The Pirates' bullpen is 9-0 with six saves in its last 21 games and leads the NL with an 18-7 record and 2.45 ERA.

Friday night, it was Ted Power's turn to slam the door.

"We don't have a lot of guys who can throw it 95, 96 miles an hour ...

but we can throw in the lower 90s, have guys who can throw some good hooks (curveballs) and changeups for ground balls. We get a lot of ground balls with two outs," said Power, who finished off the Dodgers for his fifth save.

In other NL action, it was Chicago 5, San Francisco 4; Cincinnati 5, Philadelphia 1; St. Louis 4, San Diego 2; New York 6, Atlanta 1, and Houston 12, Montreal 6.

Walk had a two-hit shutout until Kal Daniels hit a two-run homer in the seventh. Stan Belinda pitched out of a jam later that inning and Scott Ruskin did the same in the eighth before Power worked the ninth. Mike Morgan (8-8) was the loser.

Cubs 5, Giants 4

Shawon Dunston and Joe Girardi had RBI singles with two outs in the bottom of the ninth as the Cubs rallied for their fifth consecutive victory.

Jeff Brantley (3-2) gave up a one-out double to pinch-hitter Greg Varsho. Varsho stole third and scored one out later on Dunston's single.

Dunston stole second and Brantley balked him to third before Girardi singled up the middle for the game-winner.

Mike Bielecki (4-8) relieved Cubs starter Steve Wilson and pitched 2 1-3 hitless innings for the victory.

Reds 5, Phillies 1

Norm Charlton pitched a two-hitter through six innings as Cincinnati—punctuated by a 15-minute brawl—beat Philadelphia.

Rob Dibble pitched three perfect innings for his eighth save.

Jeff Reed went 3-for-3 with two RBIs to make a loser of Jeff Parrett (3-8).

Cardinals 4, Padres 2

Willie McGee continued his hot hitting with a single and a two-run double as St. Louis beat San Diego behind John Tudor's pitching.

Tudor (8-3) became the Cardinals' first eight-game winner with four-hit pitching through seven innings. Lee Smith finished for his 13th save.

The Cardinals broke a 1-1 tie with a three-run fifth highlighted by McGee's double off Ed Whitson (7-7).

Mets 6, Braves 1

Sid Fernandez allowed four hits over 7 2-3 innings and struck out 10, leading New York over Atlanta.

Fernandez (6-6) didn't allow a hit until Greg Olson led off the sixth with a single. The Mets scored three runs on four hits in the first inning off a shaky Steve Avery (1-4).

Ryan notches win No. 299 with a little relief help

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

They are two different personalities with two different pitches, linked by their pursuit of one monumental milestone.

Nolan Ryan, the quiet man with the quintessential fastball, won his 299th game Friday night as the Texas Rangers beat the Detroit Tigers 5-3. He'll try to become the 20th major league pitcher to reach 300 victories on Wednesday night at home against the New York Yankees.

"I'm not big on numbers and there's only two numbers I've really cared about and that was 5,000 strikeouts and getting victory No. 300," Ryan said. "Now I have a chance for the second one. It's something I've been looking for."

Bert Blyleven, a goofy cutup with a great curveball, has further to go to get No. 300. He picked up his 279th victory as California beat Cleveland 9-4.

While Blyleven (8-5) struggled through five innings, giving up four runs on 10 hits, Ryan (10-4) was sharp in winning his fifth straight decision. He allowed only one hit in six innings before leaving in the seventh when his back stiffened up.

Steve Buechele, activated from the disabled list earlier in the day, hit a two-run homer off Steve Searcy (1-1).

In other games, Toronto beat Oakland 8-5, Boston split a doubleheader with Kansas City, losing 5-0 and then winning 3-1, Baltimore defeated Chicago 3-2 in 10 innings, Minnesota downed New York 2-1 and Seattle beat Milwaukee 6-4.

Angels 9, Indians 4

In Anaheim, rookie Lee Stevens hit his first major league homer and drove in four runs and Mike Fetters preserved Blyleven's victory with four shutout innings for his first big league save.

Bud Black (8-5) gave up eight runs on 10 hits in 5 1-3 innings.

Blue Jays 8, Athletics 6

In Oakland, Jose Canseco hit two home runs for the second straight game, but Toronto overcame that as Kelly Gruber homered and drove in four runs.

Astros 12, Expos 6

Glenn Wilson knocked in three runs, including two in a six-run second inning, as Houston capitalized on the wildness of Montreal pitchers.

Danny Darwin (4-1) was the winner, allowing three hits and one walk in seven innings. The Astros chased Kevin Gross (8-6) by scoring three runs in the first inning without a base hit, then scored six more times in the second.

John Cerutti (6-6) beat the Athletics for the first time in eight lifetime decisions. Tom Henke got his 18th save despite allowing pinchhitter Ron Hassey's RBI single in the ninth.

Gruber hit a three-run homer, his 21st, in the first off Curt Young (5-4).

Royals 5, Red Sox 0

Mike Greenwell hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning, ending Boston's 25-inning scoreless string, as the Red Sox salvaged a split in Kansas City.

In the opener, Kevin Appier (5-3) pitched a three-hitter and struck out a career-high 10 in his second shutout of the season. Roger Clemens (12-5) fanned eight to pass Cy Young on the Boston's all-time list with 1,348.

Dana Kiecker (3-4) allowed six hits in 8 2-3 innings. Luis Aquino (4-1) lost despite pitching a five-hitter.

Orioles 3, White Sox 2

Randy Milligan's two-out single in the bottom of the 10th inning scored Phil Bradley from second base with the tie-breaking run as the Orioles beat Chicago.

Bradley drew a one-out walk from Bobby Thigpen (4-4) and Milligan hit a foul pop that dropped when first baseman Carlos Martinez misjudged it.

Bradley then stole second and scored when he beat left fielder Ivan Calderon's throw on Milligan's single. Mark Williamson (8-1) won his seventh straight decision.

Twins 2, Yankees 1

In Minnesota, Allan Anderson pitched a four-hitter and Junior Ortiz singled home the winning run in the ninth inning.

Brian Harper doubled off Dave LaPoint (5-7) with one out in the ninth, Kent Hrbek was intentionally walked and Ortiz's single scored pinch runner John Moses.

Anderson (4-12) improved to 4-0 lifetime against New York.

Mariners 6, Brewers 4

Omar Vizquel and Harold Reynolds hit RBI singles in the ninth inning as Seattle won at Milwaukee.

Keith Comstock (5-2) was the winner and Mike Schooler got his 25th save. Randy Veres (0-2) took the loss.

Will Arkansas, others really change leagues?

SEC

Hogs need partner

An AP Sports Analysis
By HARRY KING
Associated Press Writer
FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) - The University of Arkansas is going to the Southeastern Conference. Period.

Naw, too easy. There's gotta be a catch. Well, yeah, a tiny one - the Razorbacks may need a dance partner.

When the SEC presidents decided a few weeks ago to pursue expansion, they made it clear that they wanted to bring in at least two teams at a time. Arkansas, Miami, Florida State and South Carolina were mentioned.

That SEC announcement had a ripple effect. Now, the Atlantic Coast Conference is talking to Miami and the Metro Conference, which includes Florida State, is to get together to discuss adding football.

Georgia Tech - the alma mater of UA Athletic Director Frank Broyles - has been mentioned as a companion for the Razorbacks.

Apparently, Broyles likes the looks of the SEC. So does Chancellor Dan Ferritor, who says all the Southwest Conference teams share the same rival - Texas. He believes Tennessee, Alabama, Auburn, Louisiana State University, etc., would renew interest in college football in Arkansas.

"If we're not able to re-interest fans in the excitement of college football, I don't know where it's going to go," Broyles said. "I think that means we have to have exciting games, we have to have good rivals."

Ferritor says Arkansas is moving independent of other discussions. "We have our timetable and it's moving along," he said. "If they're interested in the University of Arkansas and extending an offer, and we want to accept it, it's because they want Arkansas and we want the Southeastern Conference. It's their problem what to do... I don't mean to be calloused, it's just that that's outside of my control."

A few weeks ago, Broyles appeared ready to sign on the dotted line. He was out of the country this week, attending the British Open, courtesy of a friend.

"We're moving as fast with him out of the country as we would with him in the country," Ferritor said.

Ferritor ready

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) - When the people from McKinsey and Company come around, University of Arkansas Chancellor Dan Ferritor will be ready.

The consulting firm was hired by the Southwest Conference to do a strategic review of the league - a review prompted by the possibility that Arkansas will join the Southeastern Conference.

So, what will Ferritor tell them? "We've got to figure out a way to broaden the fan base that we've got," he said. "It's very difficult to play in front of 18,000 people and then go out and recruit a student athlete and say, 'Come to the University of Arkansas because we're gonna put you in front of 18,000 people.'"

Ferritor was at the league's meeting in Dallas on Tuesday when the SEC presidents decided to hire the consulting firm.

He called it a good meeting. "I used words like productive and constructive, which are the kinds of things you use when you are trying not to say anything and it really wasn't what I was trying to do," Ferritor said. "Because I thought that the degree of openness and frank problem discussion as well as listening was certainly the strongest of any of our Southwest Conference meetings that I've been at."

He said there are no taboos, no sacred cows for the consulting firm.

The possibility of moving to the SEC, he said, is not a matter of Arkansas being unhappy in the SWC.

"We have elected to have a national intercollegiate athletics program," he said. "We have elected that that be a broad-based program. Once you make that kind of decision, you have to say what's best for the institution."

At one point during the meeting, someone wanted to talk about television contracts. Not Ferritor "because I don't want to be in an

A consulting firm hired by the SWC to look at the league's future is to report back in September.

By the time that report is in, Arkansas' decision might be final - there's not much time for waffling.

Imagine football coach Jack Crowe pitching the UA to a Texas athlete with the situation up in the air. If the Razorbacks are going to be in the SWC, Crowe can tell the parents their son will play a couple of games a year in the Dallas area; if they're going to the SEC, he can tell them that their son will be on WTBS' national telecasts a couple of times a year.

But, what if he doesn't know? What the fans want is awfully important, Ferritor said. There have been letters and telephone calls, even polls by state newspapers.

"It hasn't been unanimous, but I'd have to say the support has been very, very strong," he said.

Those fans who want to leave the SWC because they believe that Texas-schooled officials gang up on Arkansas are way off base. Those same fans will be moaning and groaning the first time an Arkansas touchdown is called back at Knoxville, Tenn., or Baton Rouge, La.

"If I thought we could stop complaints about referees by going to the Southeastern Conference, I'd make the decision right here," Ferritor said.

Being part of an expanded SEC would mean improved prestige or image - Ferritor calls it identification - for the Razorbacks. That makes it easier to get in the door when it's time to recruit the athletes that enable a school to compete nationwide.

The tarnished national perception of the SWC is real, Arkansas was 10-1 going into the Cotton Bowl and ranked No. 10. A 10-1 SEC team probably would have been No. 4 or No. 5.

The company line is that the UA is very, very seriously considering the SEC. To say that it's a done deal is risky, Ferritor said.

"If you want to put your neck on the line and bet your family and your house on it, go right ahead," he said. OK, the money is down.

empty stadium that's being televised around the world because that makes me a pro team and that's not what college athletics is about."

One idea discussed by the presidents is getting away from the league's eight-game round robin and forming an alliance with another league. Those steps could lead to attractive matchups with the likes of Oklahoma and Nebraska, he said.

"All of a sudden you've got a kind of excitement you might not have had before," he said. "That's something new."

The consulting firm is to report back in September.

Meanwhile, Ferritor said, talks with the SEC are proceeding.

"I think the process has gone extraordinarily fast," he said. "Bureaucracies work very slowly. At the time it first came up, I said I would like to see it happen sooner rather than later. I haven't changed my timetable one iota."

"I hope by the end of September, the beginning of the school year, that we'll have a good solid idea of what we're going to do," he said. "I think we have to. It's not fair to everybody else. If we're going to make a move, we have to go ahead and let folks make their adjustments. If we're not, we need to get this discussion behind us and look forward to playing the Longhorns."

"If somebody were to have told you two years ago that a topic is going to be broached on the first of June of the magnitude that interests this many people and that the issue would be settled by Labor Day, you would have said, 'Naaaah.'"

Ferritor called the hiring of the consulting firm an aggressive step by the conference and said it means an opportunity for the conference to "creatively think about the future and map out possible strategic decisions. That sounds like gobbledygook but it isn't."

First SWC shot unfired

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN

DALLAS (AP) - Looks like it was easier for the South to secede from the Union than for the Arkansas Razorbacks to leave the Southwest Conference.

Any sense of urgency about the Razorbacks jumping into the greener pastures of the Southeastern Conference was shoved to the back burner when league presidents, including Arkansas chancellor Dan Ferritor, voted to hire a consulting firm.

After probing, prodding and examining the SWC fore and aft, McKensie & Co., a Dallas consulting firm, will tell the league executives what they need to modernize going into the next century.

Tim McKensie and his workers will enlighten the SWC presidents sometime in September on changes they need to make to keep pace with the SEC, Pac-10, Big-10 and Big Eight conferences.

Arkansas seems to be pulling back from earlier secession talk that had the Hogs becoming an SEC member by the start of the 1991 season.

Arkansas athletic director Frank Broyles said he thought it was a strong possibility the Hogs would stay in the SWC because of recent aggressive thinking.

Then Broyles went to the British Open in Scotland without a formal meeting yet to take place between the Hogs and Roy Kramer, the SEC commissioner and expansion talk revolutionary.

Broyles also said 1992 would be the earliest Arkansas could play in the SEC even if it did defect from the SWC after 75 years as a member.

SWC commissioner Fred Jacoby said he is getting vibes that the SWC is going to come out stronger and more progressive because of the mutual courtship between the SEC and the Hogs.

"I got a strong feeling from the president's meeting that we are going to keep the conference intact," he said. "You don't take 76 years of history then just discard it in 30 days."

Supposedly, the SEC master plan is to nab the Hogs and get Texas A&M and Texas to follow.

There have already been rumblings that the Aggies and the Longhorns would catch a royal ripping in the Texas Legislature.

Some Texans and alumni wouldn't take kindly to what many would consider the traitorous act of leaving a home league for the far-flung SEC operation.

The SEC might back down on Arkansas aspirations when it discovers that Texas and A&M won't peacefully tag along.

There are some conspirators who believe the SEC really doesn't want Arkansas anyway because there aren't many television sets in the state.

Certainly not like the television sets the Aggies and Longhorns would click on in Houston and Dallas.

Baylor coach Grant Teaff has suggested it would cost the state of Texas $100,000 a year for the Aggies and Longhorns to play their games in SEC stadiums.

This could be a long war. From this corner, the guess is the SWC will soon abandon its round-robin schedule. The best format for the nine-team league would see schools play six games on a rotating basis, leaving two more games free each year to schedule attractive intersectional opponents.

Also, there will likely be a change in the way television money and home gate receipts are doled out.

Of course, Arkansas could still leave the SWC cold. The fans, in polls by the Arkansas Democrat and the Arkansas Gazette, indicate they are ready to bolt for the SEC.

Ferritor said the school doesn't pay attention to polls.

But the Arkansas front office does listen to alumni with money who support the Hogs' athletic programs. Wonder what a poll of Arkansas alumni would say?

There's a long way to go on this one but if you are an Arkansas fan go ahead and buy Cotton Bowl tickets for the next two years. You should be safe.

If Arkansas really is seceding from the SWC, the first shot hasn't even been fired on Ft. Sumter.

Move means more than money

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) - There is a perception, the University of Arkansas chancellor was told, that a move to the Southeastern Conference is tied to television, i.e., money.

Dan Ferritor smiled and pointed his finger at the man asking the question. A media creation, this perception, he said.

"It's an easy handle," Ferritor said. "Oh, I can see that. I can put a dollar sign on that. It's difficult to hang your hat on the fact that you want to be in a conference where you have good rivals, where you get people excited about playing three or four teams."

Arkansas is a charter member of the Southwest Conference and Ferritor said one of the problems with the SWC is, "Everybody has the same rival, that's Texas."

A few weeks ago, the SEC presidents unanimously endorsed expansion by pairs and put Arkansas and Florida State at the top of the list. Ferritor and UA Athletic Director Frank Broyles made it clear they wanted to hear the SEC pitch.

Some believe Arkansas is long gone.

"For someone to have said it's a done deal before we have a chance to do that is not a very good thing to say," Ferritor said. "It might be that person's judgment that it's going to go in that direction. If you want to put your neck on the line and bet your family and your house on it, go right ahead."

"But what I say is that our options are open and we're very, very seriously looking at the Southeastern Conference and if it turns out to be a better deal for Arkansas, for its fans and its students, that's what we're going to go," he said. "It's not going to hinge on whether we get $200,000 more of revenue from the TV contract or not. That's not going to be how the decision is finally made."

So, he was asked, what factors will be considered? Mostly, he talked about appealing opponents - teams that would fill a stadium. "What are the kinds of teams we'll be playing; what kind of competitive excitement that we can build."

Would Mississippi State or Vanderbilt be more attractive than a TCU, a Rice or an SMU?

"You can't ever get yourself in a situation where over half of the teams are above the median, it just doesn't work," he said. "So there is always going to be somebody that loses and somebody that wins. The issue becomes one of balance."

He praised Vanderbilt basketball and raved about Mississippi State baseball.

"So, they bring something to the table," he said. Putting people in the stands is a must, he said.

Ferritor, 50, said, "I don't see the same kind of interest among the students that there was when I was in school."

"I don't know if there's anything we can do but that question has to be asked," Ferritor said.

Will Arkansas fans drive 200-250 miles to Fayetteville when they can see five games on television on most any Saturday?

"The reason you should go to Fayetteville is because you're playing the hated bears of Kitcha McCoo," he said. "You'll come to see us play Texas, but you need to have exciting football, you need to have a reason for coming that not only strikes your brain but tugs at your heart a little bit."

When the SEC expansion came up, there was some hostility - much of it from the Texas media, Ferritor said. "The more it's been talked about, I think the more the people in the Southwest Conference are recognizing that it's a good opportunity, come what may, for the Southwest Conference, Arkansas or no Arkansas, to sit down and ask serious questions about where it ought to be four or five years from now," he said.

Some people have theorized that the SEC is wooing Arkansas to get to Texas and Texas A&M and the TV markets in Dallas, Houston, etc.

"That's a theory of Texas sportswriters," Ferritor said. "Arkansas sportswriters talk about TV revenue."

"It's a little offensive, to be honest. What Arkansas brings to any conference is incredible fan support, a good strong university that any conference would be proud of. It brings an athletic program that is considered to be the third best in the nation, it brings a self-supporting program, it brings a program that has been without a major NCAA violation for 32 years. It brings an athletic department that has made a serious and strong commitment to graduating athletes.

"When you put all those things together, Arkansas brings a lot to the table," he said. "Not to criticize Texas or Texas A&M, but we don't have to carry anybody's lunch pail."

"What we don't bring to the table is a great big population base. The population base is one consideration, but I think - it sounds hokey - but what you're able to accomplish and demonstrate you've accomplished is something else. From the SEC's point of view, I think Arkansas has accomplished what they want in a team."

For instance, in the past 25 years, Arkansas is the only SWC team that has played in a Jan. 1 bowl game other than the Cotton Bowl.

"The Texas writers may not like it, but the SEC probably knows that," he said.

Deep in the interview, money came up again.

"I don't mean to suggest that we're not interested in additional revenue,"

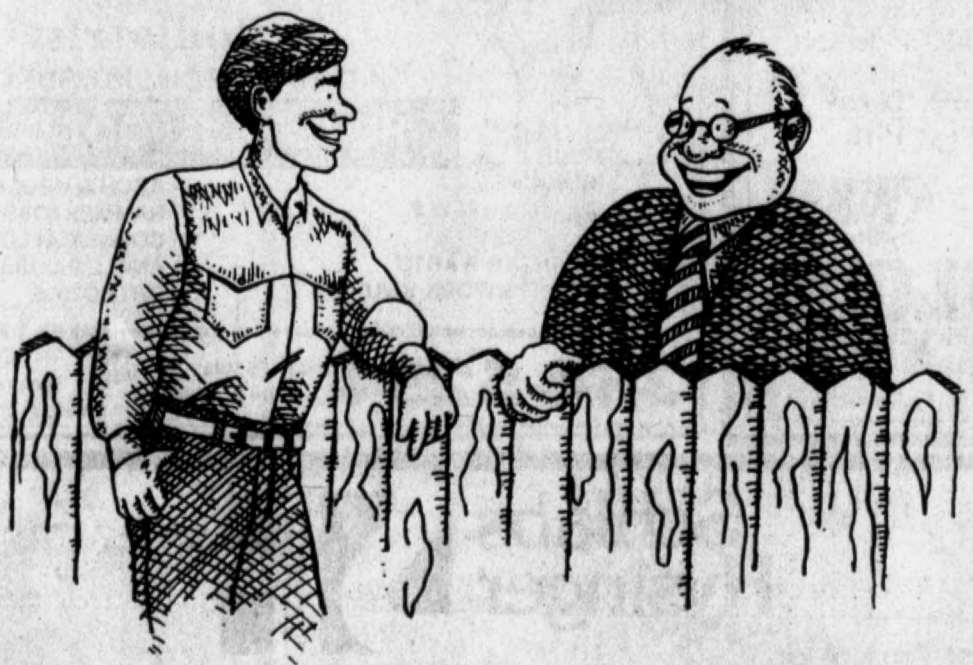

he said. "It's just that the dollar sign alone is not going to be what makes this decision. It is not the issue, not necessarily the tipping point issue. You would not make a decision that would cost you a lot of money, but you might make a decision that's a push. Now, everybody is assuming that the Southeastern Conference is better than a push and, in fact, is a strong new revenue stream."

"That might be the case but that won't be the only factor that's considered in this judgment."

"There are other considerations we have. We have fan consideration. Fans mean more to us than plunking down an amount of money for a ticket; they mean people who are interested in the University of Arkansas, they are people who send their kids up here, they are people who hire students from the University of Arkansas."

"It's not that it's not a business, but it brings so much more to the university," he said.

Tokyo has top food costs

WASHINGTON (AP) - Tokyo, where sirloin steak is more than $20 a pound in grocery stores, continues with the highest retail food costs, according to an Agriculture Department survey.

The informal survey involved a marketbasket of items checked in May by the department's Foreign Agricultural Service in 18 world capitals. The survey has been conducted periodically for many years to show how U.S. food prices stack up against those in other countries.

Cost of the Japanese grocery list of 15 items was $117.33 against 13th-ranked Washington, D.C., at $52.69.

Boneless sirloin steak was $20.75 per pound in Tokyo, compared with $4.43 in Washington. The least expensive was $1.07 per pound in Buenos Aires, Argentina.

The conversion to U.S. dollars was based on exchange rates at the time of the survey, the agency said.

According to the survey, here are the costs of the food marketbasket in May in the various foreign capitals, in U.S. dollars.

Vegetable production up in '90

WASHINGTON (AP) - Vegetable farmers are boosting production this summer, including both fresh market and processing crops, the Agriculture Department reports.

The prospective acreage for seven selected fresh market vegetables in the summer season was estimated at 271,000 acres, up 4 percent from a year ago.

Increases were reported Wednesday for carrots, celery, sweet corn, head lettuce and tomatoes. Decreases from a year ago were indicated for cauliflower, while broccoli was about the same.

Plantings for the major vegetable crops for processing were estimated at 1.63 million acres, up 8 percent from last summer.

Increases were indicated for sweet corn, cucumbers for pickles, green peas and tomatoes. The acreage for snap beans was reported down from a year ago.

Money complicates European subsidies

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States is keeping the pressure on the European Economic Community to negotiate an end to export subsidies, but Agriculture Department officials say money may become a problem.

One of the favored weapons in the U.S. trade arsenal is the 5-year-old Export Enhancement Program, or EEP, which provides "bonuses" or subsidies to make U.S. commodities cheaper for selected foreign buyers.

But Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter said Tuesday the U.S. subsidy program is modest compared with the $10 billion annually spent by the 12-nation European trade bloc on farm export subsidies.

Further, he said, the House Appropriations Committee recently cut the subsidies under EEP to $500 million from the $900 million the administration had requested for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

Yeutter said export subsidies are "probably the most important part" of the ongoing trade negotiations under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, or GATT.

The 97-member GATT is scheduled to conclude the current Uruguay Round of talks by the end of this year.

Despite possible cutback in EEP funding, Yeutter said he is optimistic the trade talks will conclude favorably. Many in Europe are beginning to view export subsidies as to large a financial burden, he said.

"If we can have a successful negotiation on export subsidies, a lot of countries around the world will benefit, including the United States," Yeutter said in a telephone news conference with farm broadcasters.

Undersecretary Richard T. Crowder, who directly oversees international and commodity programs in the Agriculture Department, said EEP programs are "in place for all the major targeted customers and markets" of American farmers.

Crowder said the subsidy programs serve a dual purpose: for achieving and maintaining a market share for U.S. agricultural exports, and "for the trade policy effect that it will have on the (Europeans), particularly as we enter the critical phase" of the trade talks.

"So, we are prepared to use EEP as aggressively as possible to ensure our competitiveness in the world market against those $10 billion of export subsidies," he said.

Yeutter, asked if European community policies had changed as a result of trading pressure over the years, said there has been "very little" so far.

"They have been bringing their (domestic) price support levels down in a modest way over the last two or three years, but not enough to have very much effect on production thus far," he said.

"We've been pointing out to them they need to bring those stratospheric supports down much closer to world market prices."

The high supports stimulate production, and the surpluses are dumped on the world market through European community export subsidies, Yeutter added.

The agriculture secretary was asked if the United States had backed off at last week's economic summit in Houston from an earlier position calling for the elimination of export subsidies. Now, the questioner said, it appears the United States would settle for a reduction.

"We have by no means altered the U.S. position," Yeutter replied. "We did not have to change it one iota in Houston."

The key language used in the Houston agreement was worked out a year or so ago and remained unchanged, he said. It calls for a "substantial, progressive reduction" in subsidies.

"We believe that calls for ultimate elimination," Yeutter said. "The (European community) knows that's our interpretation."

But how long that might require is another matter, he said. The United States has proposed a five-year phaseout of export subsidies, but the (European community) "objects vigorously" to that timetable, Yeutter said.

Rural unemployment lower, overall

WASHINGTON (AP) - Unemployment in rural America has eased since the harsh times of the early 1980s, but an Agriculture Department analyst says there are still pockets where jobs are scarce.

Moreover, said Leslie A. Whitener of the department's Economic Research Service, the general improvement in the rural job picture apparently has stalled, at least temporarily.

After declining for four years, the rural unemployment rate remained unchanged from a year earlier in the first quarter of 1990, averaging 6.6 percent.

"This may mean that non-metro (rural) employment rates are leveling off as rural areas complete their recovery," Whitener said. "Or it may reflect the recent slowdown in the national economy."

Whitener said current indicators

"do not point to a substantial weakening of the rural labor market," although there will probably be a "more moderate job growth and stable unemployment rates" for the remainder of 1990.

On an annual basis, rural unemployment rose to a peak of 10.1 percent nationally in 1982 and 1983. It dropped to 6.2 percent in 1988 and 5.7 percent in 1989.

Whitener said that compares with a metro unemployment rate of 5.2 percent last year. Before the slump of the early 1980s, rural rates were lower than urban rates, he said in the July issue of Agricultural Outlook magazine.

"Non-metro employment conditions are increasingly important for farmers, as greater numbers of farm families turn to off-farm earnings to supplement farm income," he said.

According to the 1987 census of agriculture, more than half of all farm operators held off-farm jobs that year.

"While rural joblessness has declined overall, many pockets of high unemployment persist," Whitener said. "Unemployment in non-metro counties in 1989 ranged from 1.2 percent in Faulk County, S.D., to 34.5 percent in Starr County, Texas."

Also, he said, some population groups, particularly minorities and teen-agers, continue to dominate the unemployment picture.

In 1989, 15.3 percent of the rural teen-agers, 12 percent of the blacks and 9.3 percent of Hispanics were without jobs. Rural black teen-agers were reported at an unemployment rate of more than 32 percent.

About 2,400 of the nation's 3,000-plus counties are classified as rural. Of these, 900 or 38 percent showed the brightest employment picture in 1989. A full one-third of these counties were spread throughout the Midwest, New England, the mountain states of Nevada, Idaho and Montana, and the Eastern Seaboard states of Virginia and North Carolina," Whitener said.

A large proportion of these low-unemployment counties depend greatly on farming, and farm-dependent counties traditionally have had lower jobless rates, he said. Even so, many of these agricultural counties have had sizable population declines and little or no employment growth in recent years.

On the other hand, more than 600 counties, or 25 percent of all rural counties, had unemployment rates of more than 8 percent, one and one-half times the national average last year.

"Some of these high-unemployment counties, particularly in Texas, Alaska, parts of the Southeast and the Mississippi Delta are dependent on natural gas and oil production," Whitener said.

Most of these counties have seen some decline in unemployment since 1986, but their rates are still high.

High unemployment rates in other rural counties have been more persistent over time, he said. Mining areas of Michigan, Oregon and parts of Appalachia were hit hard during the early 1980s and have not yet fully recovered.

The manufacturing, timber and resort areas of the northern Pacific and Great Lakes states also have experienced persistently high unemployment rates, largely because they depend on seasonal employment, Whitener said.

"Chronically high unemployment rates also typify the Indian reservations of the Northern Plains and the Southwest, as well as areas of the Mississippi Delta and Southeastern states with predominantly poor Hispanic or black populations," he said. "Limited employment opportunities and work forces with low levels of education and training characterize many of these counties."

German unification will affect exports

WASHINGTON (AP) - The rejoining of East and West Germany will mean some changes for U.S. agricultural exporters, an Agriculture Department trade expert says.

East Germany has imported up to one-fourth of its annual grain needs, said Steven Yoder of the department's Foreign Agricultural Service. Part of that has been U.S. corn and durum wheat for pasta, and sometimes some oilseeds.

But when East Germany is united with West Germany and becomes a part of the European Economic Community, "we're likely to lose those grain markets - regardless of what happens to East German grain production," Yoder said.

Yoder recently visited both East and West Germany for a firsthand look at farm production and markets. He was U.S. agricultural attaché in East Germany during 1980-84.

"The other thing we've got to do is establish a strong presence for U.S. farm and food products in the East German marketplace before our competitors get it all sewn up," he said.

Yoder said traders from West Germany and other Western European countries "are moving into the market in a big way with consumer food products."

The West Germans, or course, have a language bond with the East, Yoder noted. Some have lived in East Germany and can go back to renew contacts.

"Sure, the market is not without risk," Yoder said. "There are no guarantees in such an unsettled situation. However, there are a lot of opportunities up for grabs, too."

The main thing, he added, is that U.S. traders "can't sit back and wait for everything relating to new-to-market food products to jell."

Yoder's remarks were in the forthcoming August issue of AgExport magazine published by the USDA agency.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: We are having a family crisis. My 14-year-old daughter is pregnant. She is far too young to be a mother, and this can ruin her life. We are strongly considering an abortion. She can't be more than about eight weeks pregnant. I hate the thought of an abortion, but I can't stand by and watch her life ruined. We would like some solid information on just what state of development the pregnancy is in. We are not asking you to make a decision, just give us the facts without the moralizing.

DEAR READER: I know these are difficult decisions for parents caught in this situation and even more so for your daughter. I'm not sure how you know that the pregnancy is only eight weeks. If she has been having regular periods, that would mean she got pregnant about two weeks after her last period, or it should now be about 10 weeks after her last period.

At eight weeks the embryo should be about 30 mm (1.2 inches) in length. It has just begun to have a recognizable human form. The internal organs of the tiny embryo have begun to form. The tiny limbs are beginning to be jointed, and there are primitive hands and feet with the beginnings of fingers and toes. There is evidence of developing genitalia, although it is not possible yet to tell if it is a male or female. Although the original neural tube has developed and the enlargements for parts of the brain are there, it is still very primitive. It is not until about the fourth month of pregnancy that a miniature brain as we visualize it is evident. Even then it is far from functional.

At eight weeks, the embryo stage is complete and thereafter the baby is a fetus. That does not mean the fetus can survive outside the uterus. Only the early basis for the subsequent development of the body has been achieved.

There is a very good understanding of what is happening at each stage of a pregnancy, and just what organs and functions are present at each week of development. While I cannot make people's decisions for them, I do believe anyone considering the abortion question should be informed on these basic biological facts. I have summarized them in Special Issue 34-06, The Beginning of Life, which I'm sending you posthaste. Others who want this issue can send $1 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/34-06, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

A lot of the spontaneous abortions are caused by developmental abnormalities that are incompatible with sustaining life in the uterus. Many such fetuses have abnormal chromosomes. In other cases there may be an abnormality of the umbilical cord. Known abortions equal about 10 percent of all live births. Many factors can be involved, but travel by air, rail or car has not been shown to increase the incidence of spontaneous abortion, despite the common belief it does.

MRS. REED GALEN POWELL
...nee Carla Marcelle Calaway

Calaway, Powell united in marriage at Canyon July 14

Wedding vows were exchanged Saturday afternoon, July 14, in the Hudspeth Bed and Breakfast Inn of Canyon by Carla Marcelle Calaway of Hereford and Reed Galen Powell of Colorado City, Texas.

Justice of the Peace Hale of Canyon officiated at the formal single ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry Calaway of Colorado City and the groom's parents are Mrs. Judith J. Maisel of Jenks, Okla. and Donald Lewis Powell of San Angelo.

The "Wedding March" was played by Wendy Smith on an old player piano. Dianna Benge and Kim Golden sang "For All We Know," "In This Very Room," "I Can't Help Falling In Love With You," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Escorted by her parents, the bride walked down the 1909 staircase which featured antique stained glass windows in the background. The ceremony was conducted in the Hudspeth House parlor in front of the fireplace accented with two 21-stem vintage Spanish candelabra from Mexico City Cathedral. The candelabra were decorated with ivory candles, chantilly lace and ivy. A eucalyptus wreath hung over the mantle.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a formal-length gown of candlelight lace. The dress was form fitting with lace sleeves accented with droplets of pearls. The bodice and shoulders were adorned with applique lace and iridescent sequins. A band of lace encircled the high neckline and outlined the oval-shaped sheer yoke. The back was open with a silk bow decorating the waistline.

The full fingertip-length veil of imported silk English illusion fell in tiers from a derby hat fashioned of silk organza and accented with matching lace encrusted with seed pearls.

She carried a cascading silk bouquet designed of ivory and mauve roses and azalea blossoms. Mauve gypsophila, antique lace and seed pearls adorned the bouquet which was created by Marsha Burrus of Colorado City.

Miss Cody Michelle Calaway of Hereford served as maid of honor. She wore a tea-length dress of mauve and pink floral print designed with an open back which was accented with three roses. She also wore mauve and pink roses in her hair and carried a lace umbrella adorned with pink roses, baby's breath and mauve satin ribbons.

Heather Nicole Calaway of Hereford, the bride's niece, was honorary bridesmaid.

Dane Lay Powell of Colorado City served as best man. The bride's mother was escorted by her son, Randel Carl Calaway of Hereford, and the groom's mother was escorted by her son, Dane Lay Powell.

A reception followed in the Georgia O'Keeffe diningroom. A three-tiered strawberry cake adorned with mauve and ivory flowers, silver candelabra and a silver service set accented the bride's table which was covered with a mauve cloth and ecru overlay. Other refreshments included mints, nuts and strawberry punch.

The groom's table, covered with an antique lace cloth, was decorated with an antique crystal vase holding mauve and pink roses. Coffee was served with the groom's Italian cream cake.

Members of the houseparty were Paige Powell of Colorado City and Blis Powell of Jenks, Okla., sisters of the groom.

Karen Ward of Lewisville, Texas, the bride's cousin, presided at the register.

Rice bags were distributed by Michael Calaway of Hereford, the bride's nephew, and Brittany and Kali Powell of Colorado City, nieces of the groom.

Following a wedding trip to Ruidoso, N.M., the couple will reside at 142 Northwest Drive in Hereford.

The couple was feted with a fiesta dinner Friday, July 13, on the outside wooden deck of the Hudspeth House. Hosting the event were Mr. and Mrs. William Maisel.

A bridal brunch was given for the bride at the home of Glenna Calaway June 30. Quiche, salad, fruit and dip, croissants, coffee and tea were served.

NEW YORK (AP) - Mayor David Dinkins is wearing dark glasses around the office after being hit in the eye with a tennis ball at a celebrity tournament.

Dinkins, 63, saw a doctor Monday after John Sharpe James of Newark, N.J., "hit a ball with some force, or pace as we call it in tennis, and I sort of got blinded," he said.

The ball sent Dinkins' glasses flying and knocked him to the ground. The injury left him highly sensitive to light, but he continued the match Sunday.

Abundant Life

BY BOB WEAR

The gift of speech is a great one, and may be the most useful in some of the most important areas of life. There is, however, a grave difficulty facing us. It seems that efforts are being made to make this element of freedom absolute. This effort, in itself, is a real threat to freedom. All sources of information available to us reveal that there is no absolute freedom, in any area of human behavior.

In general, we seem to be equating freedom of speech with freedom of expression. Regardless, there is no such possibility as absolute freedom,

Plan tropical theme party

Whether the weather's sultry or chilly, a tropical theme party can be a delightful way to "get away from it all" without the expense of an actual vacation in the tropics.

Transport yourself and your guests to the relaxed, intoxicating atmosphere of a far-off Polynesian island by decorating the party room with wicker furniture and palm trees and asking guests to come in their favorite tropical print shirts and summer dresses. Some pretty Calypso music on the stereo can help set the atmosphere. The drinks, of course, should carry on the tropical theme—pour tropical treats such as pina colodas and daiquiris.

and all efforts to try to make freedom absolute are threatening the freedom. There must be restraint, and, of course, there will be difficulties and conflicts in choosing these restraints. In some areas of freedom, we have libel laws which are reasonably well applied. This constitutes a restraint of freedom, but all of us appreciate these laws.

It may be that we have over-emphasized our rights. In fact, it might be helpful to all of us, and better for the common good, if we thought of our freedoms as privileges rather than rights; privileges that must not be misused or abused. True freedom, freedom that has any possibility of surviving, is not the freedom to do as we please.

"Have we too much freedom? Have we so long ridiculed authority in the family, discipline in education, rules in art, decency in conduct, and law in the state that our liberation has brought us close to chaos in the family, and the school, in morals, arts, ideas, and government?" - Will Durant.

Whether it is 'freedom of speech' or any other freedom, every source of enlightenment available to us is revealing that all freedom must be exercised with wholesome restraint.

All of the good things in life, including our freedom of speech, are corrupted by misuse and abuse, and are eventually lost.

Hudspeth House in Canyon site of wedding Saturday

The historic Hudspeth House in Canyon was the site for the marriage of Tanya Gaye Jones and Mark Louis Carder, both of Canyon, Saturday morning. Officiating was the Rev. Dan Jones, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Canyon.

The bride is the daughter of Betty Jones of Hereford and the late Lee Jones. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W.B. Wilson of Amarillo and the late Alvin Carder.

The couple exchanged vows inside a white latticed gazebo which was adorned on the outside with hanging baskets of fern. The inside of the gazebo was draped by lace swags which were flanked by two antique candelabra holding crystal votive cups. In the center of the gazebo there was a lace draped unity table which held a hurricane lamp and a rose unity taper that was lit by the bride and groom at the conclusion of the wedding ceremony. The gazebo's deck was accented by white Grecian urns holding summer flowers.

Tanya Tucker of Tulsa served as maid of honor and Trey Durham of Amarillo was best man.

Beth Frye of Hereford and Sonya McElroy of Groom were bridesmaids and groomsmen included Greg Carr of Omaha, Neb. and the groom's brother, Mike Carder of Brenham, Texas.

Guests were escorted by Richard Diegelman and Mike Moser, both of Canyon.

Candles were lit by the groom's nieces, Jinny Carder of Brenham and Melissa Denham of Lubbock. They were attired in floral print dresses in muted shades of pink and rose. Each was fashioned with puffed sleeves marked by bows at the shoulders, lowered bodices with an off-the-side bow at the dropped waistline and graduated hemlines. They also wore wrist corsages of miniature pink and white rosebuds.

Gwen Hicks of Canyon, accompanied by Nelda Rogers, also of Canyon, sang "Wind Beneath My Wings", theme from "Ice Castles" and "The Wedding Song."

The bride was presented in marriage by her brothers, Craig Jones of Amarillo and Kirk Jones of Grand Island, Neb. She wore a gown of ivory heirloom lace fashioned with an open sweetheart neckline and leg-o-mutton sleeves with puffs of lace at the shoulders ending in petal points over her hands. The fitted basque bodice was covered in pearls and iridescents and the neckline dipped low in back and was adorned by a large ivory satin bow. The full skirt was trimmed at the hemline with scalloped lace edged in pearls and swept into a chapel-length train.

The bride's ivory hat was covered in pearl encrusted appliques and the brim of the hat was edged in scalloped lace and miniature pearls. The back of the hat featured a pouf of silk illusion net and a cluster of ivory roses and pearl sprays held the tiered fingertip veil. Cascades of roses and pearls fell from the left side of the hat.

Complementing the ensemble were the bride's jewelry which consisted of a pearl and diamond drop necklace and matching stud earrings given to her by the bridegroom.

She carried a Victorian style cascading arrangement of English ivy, silk blush roses, stephanotis and ivory roses interspersed with loops of illusion ribbon and pearl sprays. Arranged in the center of the bouquet as something old was an antique lapel watch that belonged to the bride's maternal great-grandmother.

Bridal attendants wore tea-length gowns of rosette bridal satin with high-low hemlines touching the heel at the back. They were also fashioned with open sweetheart necklines, off-the-shoulders, asymmetrical draped bodices, stand-up ruffles with satin bows at the shoulders and matching off-to-the side bow at the elongated waistlines of the softly gathered skirts. They carried colonial nosegays of silk dusty rose camellias, daisies, rosebuds, lace loops and baby's breath with graduated streamers of rose, pink and ivory tied in love knots.

The groom's sister, Debbie Denham of Lubbock, invited guests to register at the reception held in the Hudspeth House.

The bride's cake was served by Leslie Cansler of Amarillo and Emily Simonton of Montgomery and the groom's cake was served by Lezlee Addison of Seminole.

Jill Harrison of Hereford ladled punch and Rhonda Howard of Canyon poured coffee. Also, assisting was the groom's niece, Nicole Wagner of Rancho Cucamonga, Calif.

The bride's table was covered with an ivory lace cloth over a rose underlay and was accented by silver candlesticks holding rose tapers. The bridal bouquet completed the decor. The Amaretto spice cake featured beveled edges and cornelli lace in an original design of three-tiers arranged on pedestals which created a spiral effect. The top tier held two rose tapers and cascades of rose silk flowers and robins spiraled to the final tier which held a mirror and a picture of the bride and groom set in an antique frame.

The chocolate groom's cake was designed in the shape of the state of Texas. The Texas Department of Public Safety logo was reproduced on the top of the cake as was the couple's names and their wedding date.

Served at the buffet brunch was an assortment of finger foods including water chestnuts wrapped in bacon, silver dollar sandwiches and a variety of meats and cheeses.

Leaving for a seven-day Caribbean cruise to the Virgin Islands, the bride wore an off-the-shoulder floral print dress in hues of pink. The couple will make their home in Canyon.

The bride graduated from Hereford High School in 1983. She received a bachelor of science degree in elementary education from West Texas State University. She will teach the third grade at Northwest Elementary School in Hereford in the fall.

The groom, a 1982 graduate of Tascosa High School in Amarillo, graduated from WTSU with a degree in criminal justice and is a 1987 graduate of the Texas Department of Public Safety Academy. He is employed as a highway patrol trooper in Canyon.

Out of town wedding guests represented Hereford, Dimmitt, Amarillo, Dumas, Houston, Austin, Dallas, Vernon, Ohio, Oklahoma, Kansas, New Mexico, Florida, California and Nebraska.

Red Cross Update

BY BETTY HENSON

The board of directors will meet at noon Tuesday in the Red Cross office. Herb DeLaRosa, new chairman, will give a report on the Red Cross National Convention held in May.

The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross has videos available for home viewing. They include home pool safety and others on aids. The videos may be borrowed from the local office.

There are now materials available for "Mi Hermano", a 30-minute video for non-English speaking people concerning aids or sida. There are other materials to go with the video to use as a course on HIV/AIDS.

The video on the "Emergency Test" will be available soon. If you missed the television version, you may borrow the video and find out how much you know about responding to emergencies.

Thanks is extended to the water safety instructors and aides that are helping teach water safety to children and adults. The local chapter doesn't have enough volunteers to teach all of the classes requested or available through the Red Cross. This is the time to begin learning the skills necessary to teach these classes. Call the Red Cross office if you would like to become an instructor.

The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross is a United Way Agency.

Wheat named Who's Who

Steven Wheat has been nominated for honorary award recognition and will have a biography published in the Who's Who Among American High School Students, 1989-90.

As a Who's Who student, Wheat may apply for a $1,000 scholarship from the $65,000 to be awarded this year.

Since 1967 Who's Who has been the largest, most respected publication in the nation recognizing students for their achievements in academics, athletics and extracurricular activities. The program's value and commitment to the highest standards have been acknowledged by the American Library Association and PTA. Over 14,500 high school faculty members, youth directors and national education organizations nominate students for this honor.

Between the Covers

BY REBECCA WALLS

The time is 1967-1968, in the month and days before the Tet Offensive. In the White House, President Lyndon Johnson is desperately looking for a way out of the morass. Marines in the field are barely holding Khe Sanh. In the back streets of Saigon, a beautiful young Vietnamese woman is sold into a life of prostitution and drug addiction.

Brady Marshall, a tall, Harvard-educated Kennedy protege, has been chosen by Johnson as his special ambassador to Vietnam. Marshall's mission is to bring back the critical information that will allow LBJ to overrule General Westmoreland and his advisors and start withdrawing American troops. Marshall's son enlisted in the Army awaiting orders that will send him into action and this gives Marshall even more reason to succeed.

Seeing Marshall as the most dangerous man in Vietnam, a CIA senior agent weaves a trap, but finds it more difficult to deal with Marshall's body guard, a war hardened Marine. From the brutal action in the field to the elegant ambience of Saigon's last fine French restaurant, comes the unfolding of a war in Vietnam. A Time of War by Michael Peterson, mines the chaos, the complexities, the endless savagery and the haunting memories of a world called Vietnam.

The Lady of Situations by Louis Auchincloss is the story of Natica Chaunceh, the daughter of a ruined financier who is forced to rely on a kindly matron for her glancing acquaintance with the aristocracy of Long Island. Natica knows that such a life would not satisfy her intellect even though it is a life that dazzles many.

At a time when anything more than a modest show of ambition is considered unbecoming to a lady, Natica must seek her own fortune in the fortunes of others. With wet determination and a gift for finding opportunity in improbable situations, even at the risk of a scandal Natica emerges as an unlikely, and unforgettable, femme fatale.

Morris West's new novel Lazarus is a powerful story of the church, and its leader in crisis. His Holiness Leo XIV, the Vicar of Christ, is doubly threatened with death: suffering from cardiac disease that requires open heart surgery, and targeted for assassination by a terrorist group, the Sword of Islam.

As Leo looks at his mortality, he begins to see the world anew. With a past history of being an ironfisted reactionary, surrounded by a phalanx of rigorist cardinals, and crushing dissent at every turn, Leo now sees the need for tolerance and humility. Resolved to overturn his hard-live policies and throw open the church, Leo will now have to join dubious battle with the very forces he himself has put in place. Leo and those close to him are swept into a fierce international conflict as the terrorists move into position for the kill.

Those who enjoy romantic storytelling may want to add Tracy Stern to their list of authors. This I Promise You is a modern day Cinderella story. The death of Kati Meier's beloved grandfather marks the end of Karl-Gustav-Becker's half-century reign as owner of one of Europe's grandest, most luxurious hotels, Baden-Baden's Waldhotel Becker.

The Wald hotel is renowned for its "Old World" elegance, first-class service, and celebrated clientele. Overwhelming financial problems and responsibilities of running such a famed establishment threaten to close its doors forever or even worse it may fall into the hands of a stranger. Kati finds herself in the center of the maelstrom as she alone begins a perilous struggle to carry on the legacy her grandfather so lovingly created.

YOUR EYES

KERATOCONUS

Every so often, a complete eye examination identifies a patient with keratoconus, a condition where the central area of the cornea bulges forward, becomes irregular and gets thinner. In mild cases, there is a slight loss of vision. In more severe cases, vision loss is greater. The patient suffering from keratoconus may also complain of headaches, seeing halos and eye strain.

This condition may be helped through use of rigid gas-permeable lenses. The rigid lens exerts pressure on the cornea and may stop it from becoming so cone-shaped and irregular. This kind of treatment can be so successful that the need for an eventual corneal transplant may be eliminated. Before the advent of the hard contact lens, which has now been superseded by the rigid gas-permeable type, there was no way to control this condition. And the gas-permeable lens allows enough oxygen to reach the eye, so that the patient is comfortable wearing it.

In keratoconus, the protruding cornea is not always obvious. Nor are bulging eyes necessarily keratoconus. The patient should be seen by the optometrist for diagnosis.

PHIL SCIUMBATO

Former resident cited Officer of the Year

Former Hereford resident, Phil Sciumbato, chief deputy of the Bella Vista, Ark. Sheriff's Office, was named the American Legion Law Officer of the Year for his drug-awareness efforts among the school-age children of Benton County, Ark.

Sciumbato, who has led the department since moving to Bella Vista Village nine years ago, received the award at the 72nd Annual Convention of the Arkansas Department of the American Legion. The convention was held at the Excelsior Hotel in Little Rock, Ark. July 7.

Sciumbato is the son of Bea Sciumbato of Hereford and the late Carl Sciumbato. He married former Hereford resident, Lynn Fisher, daughter of Mayor Wes and Pat Fisher. A 1964 graduate of Hereford High School, Phil attended West Texas State University and currently resides with his wife in Bentonville, Ark.

Sciumbato was nominated for the coveted award by the Legion's Northwest Area Commander, Marshall Sayner, and his nominating biography was written by Cal Osterman, historian for Bella Vista Post 341.

Osterman's nomination reads in part, "Sciumbato freely gives of his off-duty hours to crusade for the federal government's war on drugs program. He speaks at all schools in Benton County at least once a year. His message...Please join me in the national war on drugs...He has distributed over 5,000 pieces of anti-drug data in 12 months."

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) - The phone cord is one of the most important ties that binds close friends and lovers in the modern age, say Professor Harry Reis.

Reis, a University of Rochester psychologist, says, "In the old world, if one of your favorite people moved far away, it was very hard to have the intimate conversations that feed a close relationship. Chances were good that everyone you felt close to lived within about a mile."

The phone changed that, he says, making it possible for those who love each other across long distances to nourish their relationship with a call.

Architectural Style Gives it an Elegance and Character All Its' Own ITALIAN VILLA PLAN SPLENDID

FEATURE HOMES

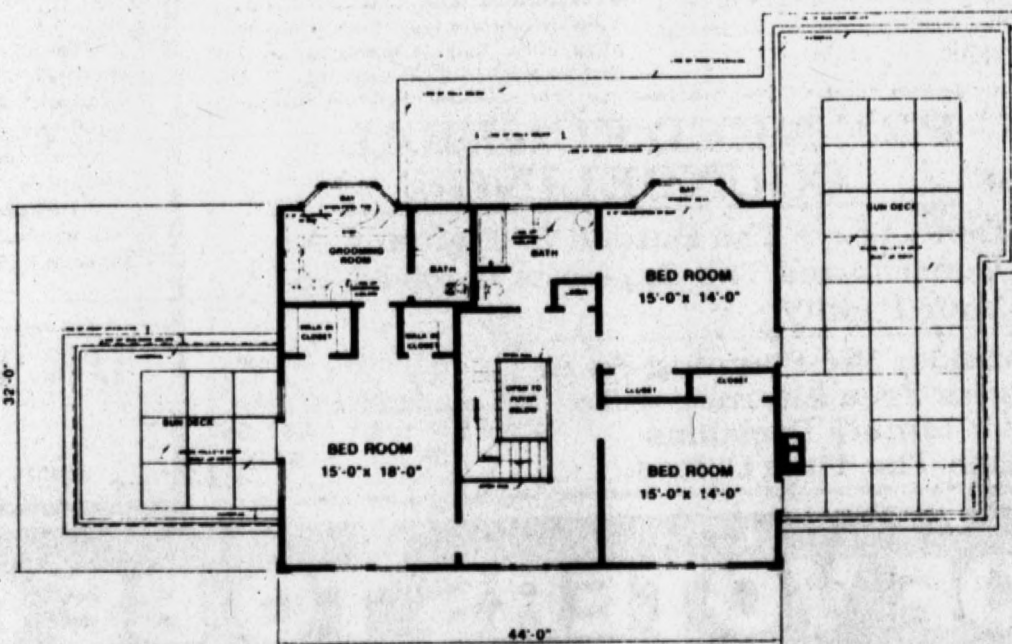

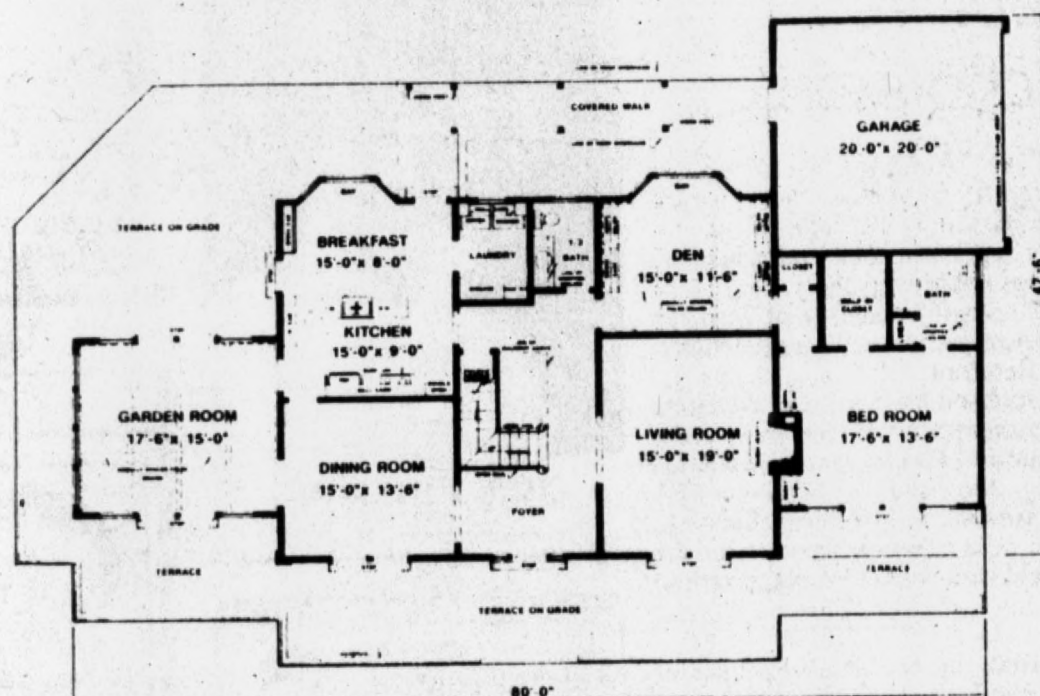

BY W.D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.

The formal facade is exemplified by ornate multilite windows, eight of which are doors for all around access to the terrace on grade that is surrounded by a wood rail. A matching wood rail is shown above the two wings of this plan, symbolizing a widows' walk. The exterior construction is of stucco and the perfect symmetry and corner quoins add the finishing touch of grandeur.

King sized rooms are shown for all formal entertaining. The foyer leads to the open rail stair for second floor access and the living and dining rooms mandate an unsurpassed spaciousness and traffic flow. The garden room further extends the elegance of this home plan and the family, kitchen, breakfast, guest bath and utility area extend the width of the basic house. Bay windows are shown for the breakfast room and den and false beams accent the den.

The master bedroom suite or guest bedroom suite is located on the first floor and there is an additional master bedroom suite located the full depth of the second floor. The remaining two bedrooms are serviced by a central bath and an exterior door is provided to the upper decks from each of the bedrooms on this level. Bay areas shown on the first floor are also expanded into the second floor.

The plan is Number 3512. It includes 3,565 square feet of heated space. All W. D. Farmer plans are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information write W. D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

Watch out for home liabilities

By POPULAR MECHANICS
For AP Newsfeatures

If you're a homeowner, it's likely that at some time or another you'll hire somebody to work on your home. Your homeowner's liability insurance will cover you for certain situations but not all, leaving you open for personal lawsuits.

Keep in mind that in terms of insurance coverage, degrees of responsibility vary from state to state. They also depend on what type of labor you might employ: domestic, casual or professional.

A domestic worker is hired to perform ordinary household duties such as preparing meals, mopping floors, making beds, etc. Domestic workers are entitled to Workers' Compensation insurance in many states. Depending on the state's laws, insurance is purchased by the employer or jointly by employer and employee. The coverage provides cash benefits and medical coverage for workers who become disabled due to an on-the-job injury or sickness.

In one case, a New Jersey court ruled that a teenager who accidentally cut off his toe when he was hired to mow the grass fell under Workers' Compensation rules. Because of this, the situation wasn't covered under the homeowner's regular liability insurance and a $2 million personal lawsuit resulted.

When covered by Workers' Compensation insurance, an employee can't sue his or her employer, so it's a mutually beneficial system.

Casual labor refers to people you pay to work around your house on an occasional basis such as babysitters age 17 and under, minors who might do odd jobs or an adult hired to do painting or repairs on a part-time basis. Casual workers are excluded from Workers' Compensation laws, but are covered on most standard homeowner's policies.

Professional labor includes anyone a homeowner enters into a written contract with to work on his or her property. Remodeling contractors, like carpenters, roofers or landscapers fit into this category. These workers should have their own insurance. In most states, they can't be licensed without it. It is still your responsibility to make sure these professionals are insured, so ask to see their certificates of insurance.

You are totally liable for any damage to property or personal injury involving uninsured professional on your property. Also, if a professional is using any of your equipment, such as a ladder, you are liable for injury caused by any defect in that equipment. If he suffers an injury falling from his own ladder, you are not liable.

The gray area in liability is with casual labor. They're probably covered under your homeowner's policy, but only up to a certain amount.

For example, if you employ an uninsured college student to paint your house, and he falls off a ladder and suffers permanent spinal damage, your $50,000 liability isn't going to satisfy him or his attorney.

Before amateurs engage in high-risk work on your property, talk to your insurance agent. It may be to your benefit to buy extra insurance, since you can have your policy altered to include a specific individual.

Remember, when purchasing a homeowner's policy, you must disclose any hazards on your land, such as a hole or a pond. If you don't, you won't be covered in the event of an accident involving that hazard. Also, check out an umbrella liability policy. For about $100 you can buy $1 million worth of protection that covers situations well beyond the basic liability policy.

Decorate home with stencilling

Stenciling is a relatively easy and economical way to decorate a home - old or new.

Whether you desire an authentic period look or a contemporary look, the possible combinations of design and color give you plenty of options from which to choose.

Although it's common today for custom stencilers to unify a room using patterns from draperies and furniture, old-house owners, striving to recreate the past, will want to use stencils common to the period of their home.

Many of the stencils you'll find commercially are designed with the feel of colonial and country homes. Fortunately for old-house restorers, reproductions of stencils found in historical homes are also available.

In those rare instances when nothing you find seems appropriate, you can always make your own stencils. Sometimes patterned after old wallpaper or perhaps a design found carved in wood trim, homemade stencils are truly a unique way to decorate your rooms.

In its briefest form, creating your own stencil involves tracing the design onto Mylar film with a permanent marker and then cutting out the design with a razor blade-type knife.

Surprisingly, stenciling is a very easy technique to learn. As far as materials go, you must use a stencil brush if you expect expert results. Choose a natural-bristled brush rather than a synthetic one: the bristles on the latter are too stiff.

Although you can use water-based paints, most experts use oil-based Japan paints. The main advantage Japan paints have is that they dry instantly, which eliminates the smudging that can result from moving a stencil over an area of still-wet paint. Also, the color quality of these oil-based paints is much superior. By nature, they provide the ability to shade and make the paint look old, something you can't do with most acrylics.

Correct caulk can combat cracking

By READER'S DIGEST
For AP Newsfeatures

Most homeowners know that caulking cracks in the exterior of their house helps reduce heat loss in winter and makes it easier to cool in summer.

Caulk also keeps out moisture and pests. But with so many kinds of caulk available, deciding which to buy can be daunting.

Here are the facts so you can fill those cracks:

Choosing the Caulk:

Caulking compounds are sold in bulk cans, in cartridges for use with a gun, in squeeze tubes and in rope-like strips good for temporary seals around storm windows and air conditioners. For a homeowner, it's usually most convenient to use cartridges in guns.

There are six basic types of caulk: - Oil-base caulk is inexpensive and will bond to most surfaces including wood, masonry and metal. But it dries out relatively fast and is recommended only for temporary fixes.

- Latex-base, water-thinned caulk is fast-drying and will take paint very well. It's a good all-around caulk that is easy to use and relatively long lasting.

- Butyl rubber caulk is long-lasting and best suited for making metal-to-masonry joints.

- Polyvinyl acetate caulk is a durable material that adheres to all surfaces, including paint.

- Silicone caulk is long lasting and takes well to all surfaces except paint.

Because paint won't adhere to pure silicone caulk, it's usually best to choose clear caulk or a color that goes with the color of your house. Or use a silicone acrylic caulk, which is paintable and fairly durable.

- One-part polyurethane caulk is the longest lasting of all the compounds. Applied to a properly prepared surface, it will last for up to 40 years. But it won't take paint and it comes in a very limited number of colors.

Where to Apply:

Caulking is needed wherever two materials or parts of a house are joined.

- Where windows and doors meet siding, including under sills and above drip caps.

- At all corners formed by siding.

- Where the foundation meets siding.

- Where the chimney meets siding.

- Between the underside of eaves and gable molding.

- Between masonry steps, porches, patios, decks and the main body of the house.

- Around pipes, exhaust-fan outlets and clothes-dryer vents.

- Between siding and any part protruding from the main body of the house.

- Sizable cracks in wood siding, concrete, roofing and masonry surfaces may require a permanent repair job, instead of caulk. But you can fill many cracks wider than a half inch with oakum (loosely twisted hemp or jute fiber impregnated with tar).

How to Apply:

1. Before you begin, be sure to prepare the surfaces to be caulked. Scrape away any dirt, grease and old compound with a putty knife; finish cleaning with a wire brush. To ensure adhesion, most caulks require wiping the surface with a solvent such as mineral spirits - check the label directions. When dealing with a lacquered aluminum surface, first remove the lacquer with xylol, then wire brush the surface and finally apply a metal primer with a rust-inhibiting agent.

2. For an average-size job, use a cartridge inserted in a caulking gun. Cut the end of the nozzle diagonally at a width equal to that of most cracks, and push a long nail down the spout to puncture the inner seal. Squeeze the trigger slowly and draw the tip along the seam you want to fill. Work at a slow, even pace. If you want to be sure a joint is filled completely, push the tube along the joint instead of pulling it.

3. Weather affects how caulk goes on. Caulk on a mild, dry day when it's over 50 degrees. On a hot day, refrigerate caulk for an hour or two to keep it from running. To keep unfinished tubes of caulking fresh, plug the hole in the tip with a lod common nail.

Questions and answers

By POPULAR MECHANICS
For AP Newsfeatures

Q - During my last paint job, I covered the floor of the room I was painting thoroughly but when I finished I found I had tracked latex paint throughout the rest of the house. How can I remove the stains on the carpet and varnished wood floors?

A - To avoid tracking paint into unprotected areas, many pros wear galoshes that they step out of when leaving the work area. Getting dried paint out of carpeting is difficult. You might try scraping the carpet fibers with a razor. If you have a high-pile carpet, you might be able to get away with carefully cutting out some of the stained fiber.

Do not use solvent on the varnished wood floor. Try washing the paint spots gently with a steel wool soap pad. If that doesn't work, try scraping off the paint with a razor blade.

Q - We'd like to change the color of our kitchen appliances. Is there some paint we can use in order to avoid buying a new stove, refrigerator and dishwasher?

A - You cannot change the color of your range easily. To withstand high heat levels, ranges are hot-dipped into porcelain. The finish is so hard that no other coating will adhere well when exposed to heat. You would have to remove the porcelain finish and refinish with a silicone-base paint, the only type of paint that can withstand the heat.

While dishwashers, washing machines and clothes dryers are also porcelainized to resist rust, refrigerators and freezers are usually finished with enamel. Enamel finishes should be rubbed with No. 1 steel wool to produce a suitable bonding texture and sprayed with a paint formulated for metal. Auto finishes can be used to recreate the luster of the original finish.

Q - There's a large depression in my basement wall and chunks of gravel are exposed. What's the best way to repair the depression?

A - The condition you describe is called "honeycombing" and can be patched with vinyl polymer patching compound. If the cavity is deep, it may be best to fill it in two stages - first with a thin coat and then with a finish coat - to prevent the patching material from sagging.

Interest in model railroading as a hobby began after the Chicago World's Fair of 1933-34. Model railroad exhibits at the fair spurred this interest.

Ann Landers

DEAR READERS: Yesterday I printed several letters, both for and against, about couples showering and bathing together. Since I raised the question, it seems that the readers want to write about nothing else. So here's more:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: That kinky idiot who wants his wife to shower with him is a perfect example of what's wrong in our society. Every semblance of privacy has been stripped away from women. I am tired of sick people who are obsessed with the ultimate in self-gratification. No wonder our world has become a sewer. -- Chicago

DEAR CHIC: Thanks for your point of view. Read on and you will discover that there's a lot of difference in opinion out there.

FROM VANCOUVER, WASH.: My husband and I love to bathe and shower together. Both create a wonderful aura of closeness. We've had thoughtful, reflective baths and hilarious showers where we sussed our hair into Statue of Liberty spikes and laughed ourselves silly. Showering and bathing together has created genuine closeness. There are no comments about protruding bellies or time-widened derrières. It's a wonderful way to strip away all pretenses and be totally real.

LONGVIEW, WASH.: My grandparents are of Japanese descent. They used to tell us about the family baths in their homeland where discussions were had on every conceivable subject and three generations had a wonderful time. Such a thing would be impossible today. Maybe that's what's wrong with the world.

KALAMAZOO, MICH.: I married a lovely guy who treats me beautifully, caters to my needs and is really a love. But he's a bit of a mama's boy, which I knew from the day I met him. On our honeymoon he suggested that we bathe together.

It sounded like a fun idea so I said, "OK," climbed in first and got the bubbles going. Lo and behold, here he comes with his rubber duck! I had to bite my lip to keep from laughing. We've been married many years and are extremely happy. He's an executive in a big company and travels for his firm. That rubber duck goes everywhere with him and I've never said a word. Obviously it's linked to his childhood and gives him a feeling of security which is just fine with me.

PORTLAND, ORE.: Couples who enjoy bathing together should invest in a jacuzzi. It's fabulous relaxer and can be a terrific turn-on. After 20 years of marriage things were getting a little ho-hum. Then we discovered this marvelous energizer. It has introduced us to a whole new way of life.

MORRISTOWN, N.J.: When my husband and I build our home six years ago, he said I could do it any way I wanted but he would like to design the bathroom. Guess what he told the architect? "I want a great big shower stall in the master bath -- big enough for two, with six shower heads!" At first I thought he was crazy but later I began to see the wisdom in it. Whenever we have a little spat, we make up in the shower. It's better than a marriage counselor.

SAN BERNARDINO, CALIF.: When anyone mentions showering, I am reminded of an incident that will go with me to my grave. It was Saturday morning and my husband and I had gotten up a little later than usual. The doorbell rang. It was a Federal Express delivery. Our very young son answered the door. "Where's your mommy?" the man asked. "In the shower," our son told him. "And your daddy?" The child smiled and said, "Oh, he's in there, too. 'They always do that.' The moral of the story is never underestimate the intelligence of your children.

Found: Pick-up tire in my CRP land. L.K. Williamson, 364-1933. 14393

Patrick Duffey: "Having a working smoke detector increases your chances of surviving a fire in a home fire by half. As a husband and father of two boys, I'm appalled to hear that more than one-quarter of smoke detectors in American homes aren't working—mostly because the batteries need replacing. Here's a reminder: next time you buy batteries for a toy, a radio, or a camera, pick up a couple for your smoke detectors. And check your detectors at least once a month."
