Authorities await lab results in Conrad slayings

By MARILYN POWERS
Staff Writer

Texas Rangers and the Gray County Sheriff's Office are waiting on lab results of tests being conducted on evidence brought back from Missouri in connection with the Sept. 30 shooting deaths of Brian and Michell Conrad and Michell's son Zach Doan.

"They're still waiting for the Texas Department of Public Safety crime lab facility results," said DPS Trooper Daniel Hawthorne of Clarendon. "We're waiting on them to compare the evidence from the two scenes and see what we have.

"I'm sure they're wanting to be very detailed and cautious," he said.

The evidence was brought back Oct. 21 by representatives of the Rangers and sheriff's office after they traveled to Missouri to examine the evidence and the suspect in the shootings. The evidence they brought back was submitted to DPS labs on Oct. 24, Hawthorne said.

"I'm not allowed to discuss specific pieces of evidence," he said. Information on the type of evidence and the number of pieces of evidence was not available.

Levi A. King, 23, last of St. Louis, Mo., has been charged with the shooting deaths of a Missouri couple and is being held without bail in the McDonald County, Mo., Jail in connection with the couple's deaths.

"King's attorney expressed a wish for him not to make a statement," Hawthorne said of the attempt by Texas and Gray County law enforcement officers to interview King in connection with the Pampa deaths.

King was arrested on the evening of Sept. 30 as he was trying to re-enter the United States at the Mexican border in El Paso, according to the Associated Press. He was charged with two counts of first-degree murder.

At the time of his arrest, King was driving a pickup truck owned by the Missouri couple who were the double homicide victims in Missouri.

The bodies of Orlie McCool, 70, and his 47-year-old wife, Dawn, had been found that day by a relative at the couple's rural Pineville, Mo., home. Authorities believe the McCools were killed on the after-

City-county voting requires separate polling places

By MARILYN POWERS
Staff Writer

Some things just can't be made easy.

That's the case when both city- and county-held elections are scheduled for the same day.

Polling locations for Pampa city elections are always in City Hall for early voting, and M.K. Brown Civic Auditorium for election day, said City Secretary Phyllis Jeffers.

A new law, House Bill 2309, took effect in time for the current city election concerning the proposed economic development corporation, she said.

The new law states that in any municipal election, one 12-hour voting day must be provided if fewer than six weekdays of early voting are scheduled. If more than six weekdays are provided, the city must provide two 12-hour voting days, Jeffers said.

The wording of House Bill 2309 does not include county-held elections, Jeffers said.

Counties may, however, schedule early voting days on Saturdays and Sundays, at the county's discretion, said County Clerk Susan Winborne.

This option was exercised during early voting in the current county-held election concerning nine proposed amendments to the Texas state constitution. Polls were open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Oct. 30 for registered county voters.

County-run elections cannot be limited to one polling place on election day due to state law.

"In a county-held election, the law says that there has to be at least one polling place in each county commissioner's precinct," Winborne said. "And the law further states that there has to be at least four commissioners per county. So there can never be just one polling place; there has to be at least four."

"I don't have any control over that, and the county clerk doesn't have any control over that," Jeffers

Buddy Poppy Week brings focus to war veterans

By DENNIS SPIES
Editor

Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 1657 in Pampa will observe Buddy Poppy Awareness Week beginning today.

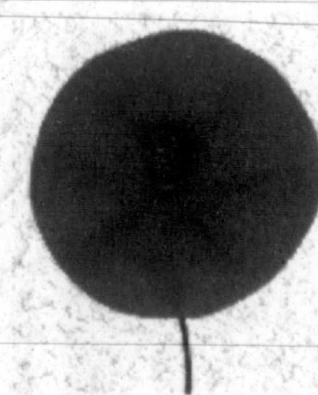

The practice of selling poppies has been around since 1921. Disabled and needy veterans assemble the poppies which are distributed on Nov. 11, Veterans Day. There is no cost to the public, but donations are welcomed and accepted.

According to information from the VFW Web site, proceeds from the Buddy Poppy program are used for assistance to needy or disabled veterans and their dependents, widows or orphans, and also maintenance of the National Home or other facilities that care for veterans.

Donations also help with entertainment, rehabilitation and monuments and memorials to perpetuate the memory of deceased veterans.

The origin of the poppy dates back to 1915 when a Canadian veteran of World War I, Col. John McCrae, wrote a poem titled "In Flanders Fields" where the bright red flowers created a contrast among the rows of white crosses.

Selling replicas of the original Flanders' poppy began in some of the allied countries after the Armistice. The Franco-American Children's League began the first sale of poppies in 1921 to help children in the war-torn areas of France and Belgium.

When the Franco-American League was dissolved, Anna Guerin, who was known as the poppy lady from France, asked for and received the cooperation of the VFW.

The VFW began distributing poppies before Memorial Day in 1922 and became the first veterans' group to organize a nationwide distribution. The poppy then became the official memorial flower of the VFW in the United States.

Members of DeLay legal team once worked for Earle

AUSTIN (AP) — Rep. Tom DeLay has relied on friends for support in the face of felony indictments, but for his legal strategy he's tried to get close to his enemy.

Two members of DeLay's legal team once worked for Texas prosecutor Ronnie Earle, who heads the investigation into DeLay's 2002 fund-raising for Republicans and sought the indictments against him alleging money laundering and conspiracy. Their insight into how Earle works could help DeLay as he prepares for trial.

"If you've tried a case before with the opposing counsel, you can anticipate the moves they make, the voir dices they make, how they pick their jury, the canned arguments — they make the same arguments over and over — so you have a feel for them," said Joe Turner, an alum of Earle's office who is representing John Colyandro, one of DeLay's co-defendants.

DeLay's Austin attorneys Bill White and Steve Brittain worked with Earle and some of his assistants early in their careers. Along with Turner, three Democratic attorneys now represent Republicans who are being prosecuted by Earle, also a Democrat.

Political parties play a big role in the case, which revolves around the fund-raising activities of DeLay's political action committees, led by Colyandro and Jim Ellis, another co-defendant.

Two grand juries allege DeLay and his associates circumvented a state law that prohibits corporate money in state elections by funneling it through the Republican National Committee in a scheme to put more Republicans in Congress and the Legislature. Under Texas law, corporate money is only permissible for political campaigns' administrative expenses.

Last week, DeLay got the judge in his case removed because the judge had given about $5,000 in the last five years to Democrats. His legal team argued that the judge's political support of DeLay's opposing party was enough to cast doubt on his ability to be impartial.

State ag officials cautioning producers about dubious pesticide phone sales

AUSTIN — Texas Agriculture Commissioner Susan Combs is advising farmers and ranchers to be cautious when dealing with solicitors peddling pesticide products over the phone.

The Texas Department of Agriculture has recently heard from several producers who have been contacted at their homes by telephone marketers offering products.

"Legitimate pesticide dealers usually don't initiate sales through telemarketing," Combs said. "Products that are pushed over the phone are usually touted as more concentrated, more effective or just cheaper. In many cases, producers who take up the offer end up very disappointed."

Combs noted that TDA frequently gets calls from pesticide applicators who are unhappy after purchasing products over the phone.

In some instances, the product is not registered for use in Texas.

Taking extra time to know what you are buying can prevent headaches and possible violations of state pesticide laws.

"The best advice is to buy pesticide products from your local licensed dealer," Combs said. "These are folks who can answer all your questions regarding a product's safe use, its effectiveness and its success in your particular area."

Combs advised applicators to follow some precautionary steps if they choose to deal with telephone marketers:

—Ask if the product is registered with TDA.

—Ask if the product label requires the applicator to be licensed before purchasing or using the product.

—Remember that all products must be used according to label. The seller may claim the product can be used on a particular pest or crop, but unless the label permits it, the applicator can be held liable for misapplication.

—Ask for details in writing (such as the label and Material Data Safety Sheet).

—Ask for references.

—Ask for the price, ingredients and concentration so you know what you are getting and can compare prices. Some products have been diluted, so it is crucial to get all the facts.

—Get the person's name, company name and phone number.

—Hang up if a telephone marketer won't answer all your questions. Any legitimate dealer will provide all the information you request.

Combs also reminded producers that if they want to know if a pesticide product lives up to the claims from a phone salesman, they can always call the Texas Department of Agriculture's Pesticide Division at 1-800-TELL-TDA.

Economic development means progress for this community

I have refrained from waxing poetic about the economic development corporation because I cannot vote on it. I am a resident of Amarillo.

However, I do have an opinion on the matter. If I could cast a ballot, I would vote for it.

Why? Because if a community does not take steps to move forward, it can only go either nowhere or backward.

Maintaining the status quo is a comfort zone for a lot of folks, but it does little to initiate progress. If a community is to grow and prosper, it must take bold steps that will spur growth and prosperity. Folks should not sit back and placidly watch as the community deteriorates and fades away.

From what I have learned about the previous EDC, there were mistakes made. Of course there were. Mistakes are made every day. People who make mistakes learn valuable lessons that will preclude making the same mistakes again. That is progress.

Those who do not make mistakes are those who do nothing.

For me, it is a question of marching into the future or living in the past.

Whichever side you favor, the smart thing to do is to vote.

When I edit stories or letters to the editor for the newspaper, I follow Associated Press style. It is a standard that I have found to be productive and useful.

One of the things I have changed constantly in copy, especially in the economic development issue, is the use of the word citizen.

It sounds really great, like the participants in the French Revolution, calling each other citizen all the time.

However, according to the AP Stylebook, "A citizen is a person who has acquired the full civil rights of a nation either by birth or naturalization. Cities and states in the United States do not confer citizenship." And I agree with that assessment.

That is why if you wrote citizens referring to Pampans instead of Americans, it was changed to resident.

Letters to the editor, when not bombastic, can often convey needed information to other parties. We cap the length of letters at about 300 words.

Some readers have submitted letters on the EDC question that were too long to print.

We don't have the resources to open up that much space.

Therefore, if you wrote a long letter, it did not get printed. As a wise man once said, "The shorter the gooder."

Monday's newspaper will include pieces from both sides of the EDC issue on this page. Be sure and look for it.

One of my grandsons is learning about politics from his father.

The family was discussing the true meaning of Christmas a few weeks ago.

"Yeah," the 8-year-old said. "Christians and even Democrats believe in that."

Our Readers Write

Our freedom and responsibility — Vote

As a community and individuals we must unite in harmony and prosperity. In the very near future we all have the opportunity to make this reality come alive for the better interest of every walk of life in Pampa and America. If you have not already exercised one of the best freedoms we have as Americans, you still have time to vote.

There are many current items listed in our areas of responsibilities that impact every American in our land of the free. I encourage all registered voters to take a time out from your busy schedules to show up at the voting polls on Nov. 8 to make a difference for all.

Things to expect from an EDC

What do we want from an EDC? It seems to me we want other people to come and enjoy our business climate and our social structure. In other words, bring investment into our community on a long term basis. This should be the target of an EDC, jobs and assets.

What must be done to be successful in this effort?

1. Promotion. Let others know about us and our assets.
2. Optimism. Invite all to visit and meet our friendly and optimistic people.
3. Knowledgeable. Answer their specific questions with clear and concise facts.
4. Supportive. Show we really care through special actions including money.

Some think the past EDC flunked in meeting our optimistic hopes. Maybe they did, or maybe not. At the end of 12 years we had taxed ourselves to give it $9,154,000 ($2,000,000 from visitors). What do we have for this money?

- $5,000,000 worth of taxable assets (businesses).
- $6,000,000 + annual payroll (250 + jobs).
- $1,500,000 owned assets (buildings and land).
- $500,000 cash (city).
- $1,000,000 worth of excellent Pampa promotion.

Not bad, if you ask me. Now, some people would claim it should have been twice as good, but most have not been willing to stick their necks out and serve on boards in our community, preferring to sit in the shadow and say, "They should have done this or that."

Starting at ground zero, our past EDC did make some mistakes as they learned about the complications of economic development and I believe they would pass on to a new EDC the following recommendations.

- A. Keep the community informed.
- B. Use sub-committees/individuals as consultants.
- C. Keep focused on long term projects.

I believe we must have an EDC if we are to positively affect our long term future. For if we just rely on the momentary oil boom to control it, I'm afraid we're in for serious trouble. The EDC is not a magic wand, but continuing the effort already started will make a significant difference in the long run. Vote for the EDC.

Cheney mysteriously silent on Plame leak

Dick Cheney has a long and wonderful record of service to America. As vice president, he's helped carry forward the Reagan focus on making support for freedom central to our foreign policy. But the indictment of his top aide raises important questions.

1) Did he discuss with "Scooter" Libby whether to release Valerie Plame's name to the media?

2) When her name did surface in the press, did he ask Libby if he was the source?

3) When a probe was ordered into who leaked the CIA operative's name to the press, did he ask Libby if he was the source?

4) Since he himself had twice told Libby about Plame, what did he say to Libby when he read media reports that Libby had told a federal grand jury that he learned about Plame's role from a reporter?

Now that the indictment has told us that it was Cheney who first told Libby about Plame, the vice president's long silence on his role here becomes less reasonable.

Here we have a vice president sitting quiet while a special prosecutorial inquiry swirls around the White House — and the president demands to know who leaked. A vice president who remains silent about his own role in telling his top aide about her job.

It is simply beyond believability that Cheney — with national attention on the matter ratcheting up day by day — never asked his chief of staff about what he'd done, or about the inconsistencies between what Cheney knew and the story Libby was telling.

Cheney's silence is especially hard to understand when we consider the media battering that Bush — his boss — was taking on this. When the president asked for a special counsel, would it not have been reasonable for Cheney, Bush's loyal No. 2, to call in the group that was working on the Wilson/Plame matter to check if any of them was responsible for the leak?

That Libby may have lied before the grand jury came as a surprise to most of us. But it was no surprise to Cheney. He knew full well that his aide was being disingenuous in telling a grand jury that he first learned about Plame from Tim Russert. Cheney knew because he knew that he was the one who had told him, not some journalist.

Once Cheney realized that his top aide may have committed perjury, did he call Libby to account? Demand an explanation? Press him on whether he was, in fact, the leak? And if he didn't, why not? Was his silence a signal that it was OK for Libby to continue to cover up his role?

Dick Morris was an adviser to Bill Clinton for 20 years.

Let us, for a moment, play the liberals' game

It's desperation time for the Democrats. Dejected because prosecutor Patrick Fitzgerald didn't indict just about everybody in the White House and confirm their fantasies about lies that were never told, they are demanding that the president apologize for I'm not quite sure what.

Their cardboard hero, Joe Wilson, runs around claiming that the president used 16 words to lie us into war when he said in his state of the Union speech: "The British government has learned that Saddam Hussein recently sought significant quantities of uranium from Africa."

Pay attention to that. He didn't say that Saddam tried to buy African uranium — he said the Brits said he did. In other words, that statement was true. The British government did tell us that Saddam Hussein sought significant quantities of uranium from Africa. Moreover, they still insist that Saddam sought to buy yellowcake from Africa. Moreover, the French and German intelligence services also agreed with that claim.

In the run-up to the war every major Western intelligence agency also agreed that Saddam had weapons of mass destruction. The Democrats who voted to invade Iraq all saw the same evidence about WMDs that the president saw, and they accepted it just as he did. Where are the lies here?

So, from what I can gather, the liberals who run the Democratic party want the president to lie by saying he lied, and want him to apologize.

Okay, let's play their game and go through the looking glass into liberal wonderland. Let's say that everything the liberal media, and the liberal pundits and the liberal Democrats and poor disoriented Joe Wilson are saying is the absolute truth. The President of the United States lied us into war in Iraq. So how do we set things right?

Obviously we have to apologize to the Iraqis for having invaded their country. Wouldn't we be obliged to put that statue of Saddam Hussein back up and reinstall Saddam in his marble palaces from which we noon of Sept. 29. Both victims had been shot with a firearm.

After taking the McCools' pickup, investigators believe King traveled Interstate 40 on his way to the Mexican border. The Conrad home is located about 10 miles north of I-40 and about 13 miles south of Pampa on Highway 70.

A name tag with the name Brian Conrad was found in the pickup King was driving at the time of his arrest, according to the AP.

"Authorities in Missouri had contacted the investigators in the Pampa case and informed them of a possible link," Hawthorne said in a press release at the time the Texas peace officers traveled to Missouri.

The caliber of bullets recovered from the bodies of the Pampa victims matches the caliber of one of the weapons King has been accused of stealing from his father's home, according to the AP report.

The DPS lab results will be released to the Texas Rangers and Gray County Sheriff's Office, the investigators in the Pampa case, Hawthorne said. The next step will be for the law enforcement entities to decide whether to press charges against King in the Pampa shootings.

If charges are filed, the law enforcement agencies share their information with the district attorney's office. It is the district attorney's responsibility to bring the case before a grand jury, which decides whether to indict the suspect on the charges, Hawthorne said.

"We feel confident we're moving in the right direction," Hawthorne said Thursday concerning King's status as a suspect in the Pampa shootings.

The Conrads and Doan were found dead at their home early Sept. 30 after a 911 call reported a shooting at their address off Highway 70. Michell Conrad's unborn child is considered a fourth victim in the case.

said. "It's mandated by the state."

The county is in charge of state and national elections, as well as county elections, meaning that those elections will also involve polling at several locations.

Early voting in county-held elections may, however, be located in just one place, usually the county courthouse in Gray County.

Polling locations on Tuesday for the county-held election on proposed constitutional amendments will be at seven locations.

Precinct 1 voters may cast their ballots at Lefors Community Center; Precinct 2, Lovett Memorial Library in Pampa; Precinct 3, Grandview-Hopkins School; Precinct 4, Lovett Memorial Library branch in McLean; Precinct 5, Travis Elementary School in Pampa; Precinct 6, Austin Elementary School in Pampa; and Precinct 7, M.K. Brown Civic Auditorium.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesday. Voters must have their voter registration cards or current driver's licenses with them in order to vote.

with the term "Buddy" as a tribute to the veterans who died in war, and those crippled or scarred for life.

The VFW decided in 1923 that Buddy Poppies would be assembled by disabled and needy veterans who would be paid for their work. In 1924 disabled veterans at the Buddy Poppy factory in Pittsburgh assembled poppies, and the Buddy Poppy designation was adopted.

The VFW registered the name Buddy Poppy with the U.S. Patent Office in 1924. The trademark guarantees that all poppies bearing that name and the VFW label are genuine and the work of disabled and needy veterans. VFW Post 1657 will host their annual dinner from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Friday at 105 S. Cuyler. There is no charge to the public but donations are welcome. Residents attending the dinner will have an opportunity to purchase a "Buddy Poppy" at that time.

unjustly evicted him and allow him once again to be Iraq's absolute dictator? Shouldn't we apologize for having driven him from power and then hand him a ton of money to rebuild all his palaces, finance the reconstruction of his country and his torture and rape rooms, and re-establish his secret police?

Let's say we did all that to right the terrible wrong we did to Iraq by allowing ourselves to be deceived into attacking them? What would we expect to happen?

I think the answer is obvious. Saddam would systematically murder, maim, rape or imprison the millions of Iraqis who cooperated with the coalition forces in trying to democratize their nation. Then he'd torture and imprison or execute millions more for having voted in a new constitution and a new government. And he'd be back in Niger trying to buy yellowcake and bribing UN officials with "oil for food" money.

If we were egregiously wrong in invading Iraq, shouldn't we pay for our mistake by putting everything we destroyed back together?

One more thing. While we're wandering through liberal wonderland, let's think the way liberals think. They believe that it is the right thing to do to take from those who have, skim a lot off the top to finance the liberal bureaucracy, and give it to the have-nots, in small doses, of course. You have to keep them dependent on the Democratic Party. The more you take from the haves — who you think became haves by dishonest means (you know, by working-for-it) — the more you'll have to expand your bureaucracy and ladle out more goodies to the have-nots living on your liberal plantation. And since we owe so much to the Iraqis for having unjustly attacked them, should we not expand our generosity to them and bring them onto the progressive plantation?

I'm sure Saddam would go along. After all, his party, the Baathist party, was a socialist party, just like today's Democratic Party. I guess that's why they feel guilty over having helped get rid of him.

VOTE AGAINST THE EDC ON THE LARGE YELLOW BALLOT AT MK BROWN AUDITORIUM NOV. 8TH

Sean Smith, who is Treasurer of the Pampa Economic Development Promotion Committee (pro EDC) and also publisher of The Pampa News, refused to sign the forms that would have allowed a poll watcher at the EDC election November 8th. To authorize a poll watcher requires the signature of the treasurer of this organization, yet he would not grant this request.

The fact that the publisher of The Pampa News has taken a position in favor of another EDC is an abuse in itself. Voters should also ask themselves this question:

WHY does the treasurer of the pro-EDC organization object to a poll watcher??

People in the news

ROME (AP) — Roberto Benigni says he's grateful to the United States for bringing film to the world.

"There is nothing that has brought them to the world like cinema has," Benigni said during a recent meeting with the foreign media. "I'm grateful to the United States for the art of cinema."

The 53-year-old actor-director also said there are huge differences between Italy and the United States, and that every time he travels to the U.S., he is struck by the difference in colors and smells.

ROANOKE RAPIDS, N.C. (AP) — Dolly Parton will take part in a groundbreaking ceremony this week for an entertainment complex planned for northeastern North Carolina.

The ceremony for the $129 million project is scheduled Friday in Roanoke Rapids, where the entertainment complex will be constructed along Interstate 95, organizers said. Six counties bid for the project.

Parton's brother, country-gospel entertainer Randy Parton, plans to operate the complex. Officials hope it will be the first of a number of similar operations in the region. Parton's company is Moonlight Bandit Productions Inc.

Grand Ole Opry members Jeannie Seely, Jim Ed Brown and others will also attend the groundbreaking ceremony.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Dick Gordon, former host of the public radio news and talk show "The Connection," will host a new nationally syndicated talk show beginning early next year.

The unnamed one-hour program will air on WUNC-FM, also a public radio station, on weekdays, probably in the early afternoon, the station has announced.

It won't be a revised version of the two-hour "Connection," which was more of a traditional call-in show that Boston-based WBUR canceled last summer.

Gray County Child Protective Services gets help from United Way

Texas Department of Family and Protective Services, better known as Child Protective Services, completed 251 investigations of alleged abuse/neglect in Gray County alone during the fiscal year 2004.

Of those investigations, the agency found that abuse or neglect occurred in 61 of those situations. The total number of children abused or neglected in Gray County was 92. During the past year, the number of children placed in out of home placements almost doubled. The agency provided foster care to a total of 96 Gray County children during the 2004 fiscal year with 41 of those children being removed during the 2004 fiscal year.

In the past, the role of Child Protective Services has often been misconstrued. As the community becomes more aware of the role the agency plays and the community becomes more involved, it is hopeful the number of children having to be placed out of the home will decrease.

The cases involving children being placed in foster care are the most challenging and difficult to handle. Some of these cases result in the reunion of children with their parents, some result with children being permanently placed with relatives, and in some cases the rights of the parents to the children are restricted or terminated.

While the children are in substitute care, it takes several entities to be able to meet their needs. It is not only critical that a child be safe, but that their medical, emotional and educational needs are also met. It is important children in substitute care continue outside activities if they have been participating in them or to have the opportunity to participate in these activities if they have not done so before and would like to try them.

The payment to foster parents is only sufficient to meet the most basic needs of the children. In order for these children to be able to attend camps, participate in extra curricular activities, have sufficient school clothing, and and nice presents for the holidays or special occasions, it takes the support of the community to provide for them. These children have had to deal with many losses in their lives and nothing replaces the losses they have endured. It is important for these children to know that people do care about them and will continue to care for them.

The children from Gray County come from a wide and varied background and are of all ages. Some of these children stay in care for a short period of time and others for many years. All of these children continue to have opportunities for success with the help of community resources and individual people. There have been several children returned to their parents during the course of this fiscal year, and many were able to stay with relatives.

There have been several adoptions during the course of this year, also. Some of these adoptions were by relatives and others were by foster parents who have taken care of

PUZZLED ABOUT EYECARE?

QUESTION: Does regular health insurance cover eye examinations?

ANSWER: Yes, many insurance plans cover routine eye exams under the preventative care provisions of the policy. This examination includes screening for cataracts and glaucoma, and eye health examination and vision testing. If your examination is related to such concerns as diabetes, eye infection, eye injury or glaucoma for example then this examination will be considered medical and not routine. We are providers for many plans including: BCBS, Aetna, IMS, United Health, Icon, and First Care. Since coverage can vary we suggest that you call our office with specific insurance questions.

WT to host Music Career Day

CANYON — The Department of Music and Dance at West Texas A&M University will play host to high school juniors and seniors from across the state during its annual Music Career Day Nov. 14.

The event begins with registration and a breakfast reception at 9 a.m. in Mary Moody Northern Hall Atrium. A full day of events will kick off with an opening session at 9:45 a.m. with various campus representatives as well as WTAMU students in a "What is it going to be like?" ses-

Students and their parents also can learn about the different types of majors available in music."

Rehearsals will begin at noon with the Symphonic Band. The WTAMU

Collegiate Choir and the Orchestra rehearse at 1 p.m. At 2 p.m., Music Therapy will host an open house in Mary Moody Northern Hall, Room 224.

The department will conduct scholarship auditions by appointment beginning at 3 p.m. Campus tours also will be available.

Registration for Music Career Day is available online at <http://www.wtamu.edu/academic/fah/mus/prospect/CareerDay.html>. For more information, call 806-651-2840.

Cotton farmers must contact agency before cashing check

ABILENE — Northern Rolling Plains producers who recently sold cotton and were given a check with the Texas Department of Agriculture as a joint payee are required to obtain an endorsement from TDA prior to cashing or depositing the check.

In general, assessments must be paid before an endorsement will be given, but if other parties are named on the check, producers must contact the TDA to find out specifically what procedures to follow.

Although both TDA and Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation will make every attempt to be as accessible as possible, producers are strongly encouraged to call before going to any office.

For more information, contact TDA's Austin office by calling (512) 463-7593 or the West Texas Regional office at (806) 799-8555. The number for the foundation's Childress office is (940) 937-6564.

NSAIDs may raise ulcer risk

(NAPSA) — According to a study published in The New England Journal of Medicine, medications known as nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drugs (NSAIDs) are responsible for gastrointestinal complications that have led to more than 100,000 hospitalizations and 16,500 deaths in the United States.

NSAIDs include prescription and over-the-counter aspirin, ibuprofen and naproxen-medications that millions of Americans take every day to control varying types and degrees of pain.

People may be at increased risk for stomach ulcers if they take NSAIDs on a daily basis. In fact, as many as 20 percent of those who take NSAID pain relievers daily may develop stomach ulcers.

If your doctor thinks you may be at increased risk for developing a stomach ulcer, he or she may recommend a proton pump inhibitor (PPI)—a type of medication that can be taken along with your pain medication. PPIs, when taken along with NSAIDs, can reduce the risk of developing a stomach ulcer by limiting the amount of acid the stomach produces.

Alternatively, a medication known as misoprostol can be taken to reduce the risk of stomach ulcers from NSAIDs by helping to protect the stomach lining.

"Traditional NSAID therapy is a crucial first-line treatment in the fight against chronic pain. However, potentially serious gastric side effects are often a deterrent to continued treatment," says James M. Scheiman, M.D., Division of Gastroenterology, Department of Internal Medicine, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. "By adding a PPI to long-term treatment with NSAIDs, many Americans may be able to decrease the risk for developing gastric ulcers."

To learn more about stomach ulcers, talk to your doctor and visit www.ulcer-risk.com.

Pick snack foods that pack an energizing punch

(NAPSA) — Too busy to find something healthy to eat? Before you make another trip to the vending machine, you might wish to consider a smarter snacking option — one that requires no prep time, but can boost your energy level.

That's the advice from nutritionists who recommend we take a closer look at convenient snacks to fuel our bodies with energy.

"Often, when people are busy and on-the-go, they end up eating foods that are not nutritious and portions that are too large. The result is that we then end up feeling sluggish," says Leslie Bonci, M.P.H., R.D. "I recommend buying foods that are portion-controlled and that fuel your body with both carbohydrates and protein. This helps make snacking more healthy by controlling the amount of food you are putting in your body."

Bonci, nutritionist for several athletic teams, including the Pittsburgh Steelers, Cincinnati Reds and Toronto Blue Jays, encourages people looking for a quick and nutritious energy boost to try individually wrapped cheese wedges.

"Look for cheese, which provides both calcium and protein, to help fuel your body with energy," she says. "In addition to being an energy source, protein helps build strong muscles, hair and nails. Cheese is a great quick snack and makes a wonderful, healthy platter for a holiday party."

Bonci recommends foil-wrapped Laughing Cow

Gourmet Cheese Bites and the Mini Babybel line of all-natural cheeses, which come individually wrapped in red wax.

She also has some simple energy-boosting tips that are great for people who have limited time but need maximum energy:

- Get an extra hour of sleep.
- Stick to an eating schedule; take an energy break every three hours.
- Drink regularly: sparkling water, tea, a splash of juice in seltzer, and tomato or vegetable juice.
- Eat smaller amounts more often.
- Don't rely on caffeine for energy; it is a stimulant. A latte with skim milk and a granola bar is more nutritious and energizing.

• Include some protein at every meal and most snacks. Good choices include milk, yogurt, cheese, eggs, beans, poultry, fish or meat.

Bonci's recommendations also include what she calls "Energy Detractors." By avoiding these pitfalls, you can help maintain a higher energy level from your diet.

- Skipping meals;
- Not getting enough sleep;
- Eating large, infrequent meals;
- Overdoing it on alcohol;
- Eating high-sugar/high-fat snacks; and
- Skimping on fluids.

November is National Diabetes Month

Dr. Fred Simmons, a therapeutic optometrist of Vision Source in Pampa, is encouraging anyone who has, or may be at risk for, diabetes to have an annual eye exam. November is National Diabetes Month.

"Diabetes affects 18.2 million Americans, 5.2 million of whom may not know they have the disease," Dr. Simmons said. "One of the health problems associated with diabetes is diabetic retinopathy, a disease of the eye which can cause blindness."

Diabetic retinopathy can weaken and cause changes in the blood vessels that nourish the retina. Symptoms may include blurred vision, cloudiness or "floaters."

"But the early stages of diabetic

Early detection and treatment are essential, Dr. Simmons added, because once damage has occurred, the effects are usually permanent.

'Texas Terry' couldn't resist chance to drive for former Cowboys quarterbacks

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Being a Texas native and longtime Dallas Cowboys fan, Terry Labonte realized the uniqueness of the call while he was still on the phone.

Labonte was talking to Roger Staubach and Troy Aikman — the two quarterbacks who won the Cowboys' five Super Bowl championships. They are also the owners of a new racing team for which the two-time NASCAR champion will drive the first five races next season.

"To have the opportunity to help these guys kick off their team, being from Texas, it was just an opportunity I couldn't turn down," Labonte said Thursday. "It would certainly be hard to tell Roger and Troy no. It's exciting for me."

The 1984 and 1996 Nextel Cup champion known as "Texas Terry" was introduced as the first driver for the Hall of Fame Racing team. Labonte will run the 2006 season-opening Daytona 500 and the four races after that before journeyman driver Tony Raines takes over.

With Labonte driving, Hall of Fame Racing is assured of making the first five races. Even if the car doesn't qualify on speed, Labonte has a provisional as a past champion.

"We have, in my opinion, one of the finest race car drivers ever to kick off the season and give us some leadership all of us need," said former Trans-Am driver Bill Saunders, a co-owner with Staubach and Aikman who is the team's managing partner.

More than two years after forming the team, Hall of Fame finally introduced its drivers and crew chief Philippe Lopez at Texas Motor Speedway, where the Nextel Cup Dickies 500 will be run Sunday.

"I'm excited about being an owner, it's got my competitive juices going," Staubach said.

"It's a challenge we have before us. We recognize that," Aikman said. "We go in with eyes wide open and recognize there will be a lot of hard work involved. But we anticipate having success."

The team also rolled into Victory Lane its No. 96 car. That number was reached by multiplying the Nos. 8 and 12 jerseys Aikman and Staubach wore as quarterbacks since those car numbers are already used by two of NASCAR's most popular drivers: Dale Earnhardt Jr. and Ryan Newman.

NFL BYE WEEK

Cowboys have a lot to look forward to in second half

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Bill Parcells spends hours studying the roster of his Dallas Cowboys. Everywhere he looks, he sees reasons to worry.

Both starting offensive tackles are woefully inexperienced and their backups are straight off the NFL's scrap heap. Linebacker is the other position he's been concerned about since training camp, and this week he had to put the most experienced one on injured reserve.

Don't even mention "experience" and "running back" in the same sentence. The veteran on the roster has played 13 career games, none in almost a month.

Then there's special teams. With Dallas on its third kicker and second deep snapper, Parcells probably uses a roll of antacid tablets as a paperweight atop his list of potential replacements. He's not happy with his punt coverage unit either.

Flawed as they may be, the Cowboys are still looking pretty darn good halfway through this season.

Dallas went into its bye weekend at 5-3, one win shy of last season's total and in the thick of its first legitimate division race since Parcells' office belonged to Chan Gailey.

Although Parcells' first Cowboys team peaked at 7-2 and made the playoffs at 10-6, the future seems brighter now than ever in the Big Tuna era. More pieces are in place for long-term success, everyone has a better understanding of what the boss wants and there's the bonus of the NFC East being up for grabs.

"I really don't think we're going to die easily," said Parcells, who has a year left on his original contract and seems very likely to stick it out at least that long.

"I think they will compete. So far, they've done that every game out. That can serve you well as you go. When you get used to doing it, it becomes a habit. That can be a very good habit."

The Cowboys also have developed the very bad habit of taking games down to the last second. They've had two easy wins and six nail-biters. They've won three, by a combined 10 points, and lost three, also by a combined 10 points.

"With a little luck, we could be better off," Parcells said. "With bad luck, we could be a lot worse off."

Still, it's progress for a team that already had lost four games by at least 16 points midway through last season. Parcells also thinks it could be character-building. He wouldn't be surprised if some games that have been 17-14 start turning into 24-10.

— Bill Parcells
Head Coach, Dallas Cowboys

"In my experience, if you have a team that really competes hard, these close games you have been playing turn into a little wider margin. You get a little battle-hardened and you get more disciplined," he said. "That's what it's about. You can't crack. Sometimes you have to crack a few times before you figure out how to stop from doing it."

The first sign may have come last Sunday against Arizona. Parcells challenged players to take control and they did. The Cowboys went ahead on their first drive, built on it with their first defensive touchdown since 2003 and went an entire game without a penalty for the first time since 1989.

"We kind of wanted to set a standard," defensive tackle La'Roi Glover said. "Let's put on tape what we want to be: dominate defense, a productive offense and special teams that can get the job done."

Parcells' fingerprints are all over the key changes that have made Dallas respectable again: switching to a 3-4 defense; newcomers who are bolstering that scheme; and Drew Bledsoe's career revival that has made the offense worth watching again.

While Parcells was willing to give Bledsoe a chance after Buffalo gave up on him, he didn't expect the 33-year-old to be this good.

Perhaps sparked by the myriad doubters, Bledsoe is the NFC's top-rated quarterback. He's completed 64 percent of his passes and has thrown for 13 touchdowns with only six interceptions, several of those coming on heaves at the end of a half. There also hasn't been much talk about him holding the ball too long or looking like a cement statue in the pocket.

Instead, the buzz has been about Bledsoe and Terry Glenn picking up where they left off in New England. Bledsoe and Keyshawn Johnson finding a groove — their brief sideline flare-up notwithstanding — and Jason Witten continuing to emerge as one of the league's top tight ends.

The running game hasn't been as good as expected, in part because lead back Julius Jones struggled against defenses intent on stopping him, then missed the last 3 1/2 games with a sprained ankle. Rookies Marion Barber III and Tyson Thompson have done so well filling in that veteran Anthony Thomas was released this week.

"I really feel like when we're efficient, and when we execute our assignments, we're pretty hard to handle," Bledsoe said. "The challenge in front of us is to be more consistent and bring that to the field every week."

The Dallas defense has been vulnerable to deep passes and 2-minute drills, especially the combination of the two. But they didn't allow a touchdown the first 56 minutes of each game so far against division rivals Washington, New York and Philadelphia, which counts for something.

Dusters sign three WT assistants

AMARILLO — Three West Texas A&M University assistant football coaches have signed contracts to play for the Amarillo Dusters of Arena Football League 2 (af2) for the 2006 season.

Anton Paige, Sione Ohuafi, and Kert Turner, who have helped coach the Buffaloes to a 9-1 record in 2005, will try to help the Dusters improve their 9-9 record last year, which included a playoff win at Oklahoma City.

Turner will be back for his third season next year with the Dusters, who competed in the now-defunct Intense Football League in 2004 and won the championship.

Last year the center/nose guard played all 18 games and recorded 10.5 tackles (1.5 for a loss), one sack, two batted balls and one fumble recovery.

"I'm real excited about coming back and being a part of the Dusters," Turner said. "Now that I'm living in Amarillo I have a real sense of the community and the West Texas people."

The native of Hampshire-Fannett played collegiately at Tarleton State University in 2002 and 2003 and was a two-time All-American and the Lone Star Conference North Offensive Lineman of the Year in 2003.

Ohuafi, a Channelview, Texas, native played at the University of Indiana from 1999-2001, and transferred to Abilene Christian University for the 2002 and 2003 seasons.

"I can't wait to see what we have coming to camp this year, and what we can do," he said. "We got rid of some of the cancer on the team and brought in a lot of talent. Plus, we finally have a true offensive/defensive line coach."

Ohuafi is also returning to the Dusters for his third season.

Last year in seven games, also at the center/nose guard position, Ohuafi had 6.5 tackles (1.5 for a loss) and one sack.

Paige led the Lubbock LoneStars of the IFL in 2004 with 51 touchdown catches and another four TD's on runs in 11 games, Paige signed with the Dusters prior to the 2005 season. But he was unable to play due to a knee injury.

"I'm fine, and it was very disappointing to see the guys competing like they did, and I could not be a part of it," Paige said. "This year will be something new, and I am looking forward to bringing my talent to the field."

The native of Royal Palm Beach, Fla., played at Texas Tech University in 2001 and 2002. The Red Raiders were 16-10 and went to two bowl games during Paige's two years.

He received the Fred Jacoby Sportsmanship Award following Tech's 19-16 loss to Iowa in the 2001 Alamo Bowl.

Duster Head Coach Steve Perdue said he is very pleased to have the trio play in 2006 for the Dusters. "Anton had it in his mind that he was going to be the best receiver in the 'deuce' last season," he said. "And we expect to see that this year (2006)."

Perdue said that Ohuafi and Turner are "phenomenal players, and you have build your team in af2 up the middle with outstanding line play."

The Dusters begin the 2006 season April 8 at the Arkansas Twisters.

O'Neal out two to four weeks with ankle sprain

MIAMI (AP) — Heat center Shaquille O'Neal will miss two to four weeks with a sprained right ankle, adding to the team's early-season injury woes.

O'Neal flew with his team to Milwaukee on Friday, shortly after learning results of an MRI exam performed earlier in the day. The team said earlier he was listed as day-to-day; a formal announcement of the updated diagnosis was expected after the team's arrival in Milwaukee.

The news, first reported by The Miami Herald on its Web site, probably wasn't surprising to teammates, who seemed resigned to playing without the 12-time All-Star after seeing him hobble and grimace after Thursday's 105-102 loss to Indiana.

"He's the most dominant player in the game," Heat forward Udonis Haslem said Thursday night. "If you don't have him it definitely hurts you. At the same time, the other guys have the opportunity to step up."

Jags hope to end scoring slump against Houston

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Byron Leftwich is tired of talking about Jacksonville's failure to score 30 points. He calls it a meaningless, overrated plateau that has nothing to do with winning and losing games. Yet, the quarterback desperately wants to end the streak Sunday against Houston and prevent the Jaguars from tying the NFL record.

"Hopefully we can do it this week," he said. "It would be nice to end all the talk about it."

The Jaguars (4-3) have played 57 consecutive games without topping 30 points, one shy of the league record set by Cleveland between 1995 and 2002 (the Browns didn't field a team in 1996-98). The Jags could match the mark against the Texans (1-6), who are giving up nearly 28 points a game this season and are coming off their first win.

Jacksonville's streak began after a 33-3 victory over the Minnesota Vikings in 2001, and has continued through a coaching change, a quarterback controversy and several offensive overhauls.

Coach Jack Del Rio said before the season that he strongly believed the Jags would top the mark several times this year, especially with running back Fred Taylor healthy and with the addition of versatile receiver Matt Jones.

It hasn't happened. The Jags have yet to score more than three touchdowns in any game. They have averaged a little more than 18 points — and that includes two touchdowns in overtime victories against the New York Jets and Pittsburgh.

"Just one more point than the opponent every Sunday. That's plenty," Del Rio said, downplaying the possibility of tying the dubious record.

But the record has become a hot topic in the locker room.

NBA dress code not out of line

CHICAGO (AP) — When the NBA unveiled its new dress code, there was so much whining and opining you'd have thought David Stern wanted to bring back short shorts. Or make players wear plaid in an oh-so-attractive polyester blend.

Judging by what we've seen this first week, the new edict is about as restrictive as lint. Stern may have come off looking like the fun police, but he's not requiring anything different than what virtually every other employer does. Less, actually. Guys don't have to be buttoned down in a three-piece suit and tie. They can still wear jeans and be so hip it hurts.

And if a jacket and dress shoes can help win back fans turned off by some of the off-court shenanigans, what's so awful about that?

"We can wear jeans and collared shirts. That's just so basic and so easy, I can't believe anybody would even say anything about it," Chicago Bulls forward Eric Piatkowski said. "I was a little bit worried that they were going to tell us that to and from the airport, going to hotels and whatnot, that we were going to have to wear suits."

"They were awfully easy on us. It could have been much worse."

Besides, from the looks of some of the outfits this week, a dress code isn't putting a major cramp in anybody's style.

LeBron James was decked out in a white collared shirt and red, V-neck sweater under a black velour pin-striped dress jacket when he arrived for Cleveland's opener Wednesday night. Richard Hamilton traded in his customary Rip City jersey for a cornflower-blue suit and matching blue-and-white striped shirt — with his No. 32 stitched on the back of the collar. Tyson Chandler paired jeans with a long suede coat.

Even A.I. cleaned up, wearing a white dress shirt, and gray slacks and sport coat for Wednesday night's game in Detroit.

"I follow the rules just like I've always done," James said. "I don't have a problem with it."

There were plenty who did, however. When the NBA announced the dress code, it was accused of everything from micromanagement to racism. But let's not forget that the NBA is first and foremost a business, and its image was in need of a good scrubdown even before last year's ugly brawl in Detroit.

When Michael Jordan was around, he was so impeccably dressed he looked like he'd stepped out of GQ. But as the league got younger and that line between sport and entertainment faded, players started looking more shabby than chic. Instead of suits, you saw saggy, baggy jeans, and throw-back jerseys. Workboots, not wingtips. Oversized chains and medallions that looked tacky no matter how many carats of diamonds they contained.

That hip-hop appeal may have worked with the kids, not so much with their parents and corporate America — the folks who pay the league's bills. The growing list of run-ins with the law didn't help, making the NBA seem too edgy for the mainstream.

"It's nice to have the luxury of wearing whatever you want, but they're trying to change the image of the NBA. Guys have gotten bad press over the years and they're trying to clean it up," said Bulls guard Kirk Hinrich, who had to upgrade his wardrobe with some new shoes and shirts.

TERRIBLE TERRELL

Owens apologetic

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Terrell Owens apologized to the Philadelphia Eagles on Friday, one day after blasting the organization for not publicly recognizing his 100th career touchdown catch two weeks ago.

"I've had an opportunity to talk with the Eagles organization and I have learned that the team does not recognize individual achievements," Owens said in a prepared statement. "It has been brought to my attention that I have offended the organization and my teammates. Therefore, I would like to apologize for any derogatory comments toward them."

Shortly before Owens' apology, coach Andy Reid didn't rule out suspending the All-Pro wideout following his latest comments, which included more criticism of quarterback Donovan McNabb.

"I take care of those things in-house," Reid said. "I obviously will address the player and those people I need to talk to and work this thing out."

It's unlikely Owens would be suspended now that he's apologized.

In an interview with ESPN.com on Thursday, Owens took shots at the team and McNabb. He made his 100th career TD reception in a victory over San Diego on Oct. 23, but the accomplishment was not acknowledged on the video screen.

"That right there just shows you the type of class and integrity that they claim not to be," said

Owens, who became the sixth receiver in NFL history to reach the milestone. "They claim to be first class and the best organization. It's an embarrassment. It just shows a lack of class they have. My publicist talked to the head PR guy, and they made an excuse they didn't recognize that was coming up. But that was a blatant lie. Had it been somebody else, they probably would have popped fireworks around the stadium."

Owens also said the Eagles (4-3) would be better off with Green Bay's Brett Favre at quarterback.

"A number of commentators will say he's a warrior, he's played with injuries," Owens said of Favre. "I feel like him being knowledgeable about the quarterback position, I feel like we'd probably be in a better situation."

Owens and McNabb feuded throughout the summer and didn't speak to each other for a prolonged period. McNabb, a five-time Pro Bowl quarterback who helped the Eagles win the NFC championship last season, has played through several injuries this season, including a sports hernia that will require surgery.

Owens has 47 catches for 763 yards and six TDs in seven games. He's been upset with the Eagles since management refused to redo his contract just one season into the seven-year, $48.97 million deal he signed when he came to Philadelphia in March 2004.

Batch to start for Steelers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Charlie Batch always thought he could be an NFL starting quarterback again despite being pushed out by the Detroit Lions after four seasons.

What Batch didn't realize was that it would take four years for that next start.

Batch, who has barely one quarter's worth of playing time since being the Lions' primary starter from 1998-2001, will replace the injured Ben Roethlisberger for the Steelers in Green Bay on Sunday. Batch will be playing in a city where he's started twice before, though nearly all of the Packers' starters have changed since he last played there in 2001.

Since then, Batch has been content to be his hometown Steelers' No. 2 or 3 quarterback, even as he watched what he considered to be less talented and less polished quarterbacks struggle throughout the NFL.

Steelers coach Bill Cowher acknowledged that keeping three experienced quarterbacks as he did this season in Roethlisberger, Batch and former starter Tommy Maddox was a luxury, but a move he was willing to make because the position is so critical.

RRC sets monthly allowables

AUSTIN — The Texas average rig count as of Oct. 21 was 655, representing about 48 percent of all active land rigs in the United States.

In the last 12 months, total Texas reported production was 339.8 million barrels of oil and 5.7 Trillion cubic feet of natural gas. Texas natural gas production represents approximately 30 percent of total domestic U.S. natural gas production.

The Texas Railroad Commission's estimated final production for August 2005 is 23,170,052 barrels of crude oil and 416,114,663 thousand cubic feet (Mcf) of gas well gas.

The Commission derives final production numbers by multiplying the preliminary August 2005 production totals of 22,293,902 barrels of crude oil and 372,528,794 Mcf of gas well gas by a production adjustment factor of 1.0393 for crude oil and 1.1170 for gas well gas. (These production totals do not include casinghead gas or condensate.)

Texas natural gas storage reported by the Commission for September 2005 is 287,856,011 Mcf compared to 320,382,094 Mcf in September 2004. The October 2005 gas storage estimate is 303,555,230 Mcf.

The Texas Railroad Commission's Oil and Gas Division set initial November 2005 natural gas production allowables for prorated fields in the state to meet market demand of 22,130,942 Mcf (thousand cubic feet).

In setting the initial November 2005 allowables, the Commission used historical production figures from previous months, producers' demand forecasts for the coming month, and adjusted the figures based on well capability.

These initial allowables will be adjusted after actual production for November 2005 is reported.

Weston Teichman and Whitney Wichert, both Pampa High School students, were recently nominated for Wendy's High School Heisman Award.

Teichman

Awarded in conjunction with the collegiate Heisman, this program celebrates the nation's top high school seniors who best exemplify a well-rounded "citizen-scholar-athlete."

PHS Principal Danny Seabourn nominated the two based on their academic aptitude, athletic ability and commitment to the community.

"We believe it's important to celebrate success in all facets of life," Seabourn said. "The Wendy's High School Heisman is the ultimate way to showcase students' diverse achievements for all to see."

Created in 1994 through a partnership between Wendy's and the Heisman Memorial Trophy, the program has recognized outstanding youth for 12 years.

"These students are truly in a league of their own," said Archie Griffin, two-time winner of the Heisman Memorial Trophy and program spokesman. "Each student nominated for the award has gone above and beyond expectations to help those in need enhance their education and pursue their dreams."

The program involves five phases — nomination, state level, state winners, national level and national winners. Entries are initially evaluated by ACT Assessment during the state competition. The national level is presided over by a select panel of judges.

Twelve national finalists will be invited for an all-expense paid trip to New York City on Dec. 9-11 to participate in Heisman weekend festivities. ESPN 2 will feature all national finalists during the Wendy's High School Heisman Awards Ceremony Dec. 11.

To track a student's progress through the competition or to find out more about the program, log onto www.wendysheisman.com on the Internet or call 1-800-244-5161. All nominees will be posted on Wendy's High School Heisman Web site this month.

Alexa Silva, a senior at Pampa High School, was recently recognized, PHS Principal Danny Seabourn said, by the College Board's National Hispanic Recognition Program.

Silva

The National Hispanic Recognition Program, established in 1983, is a College Board program that provides national recognition for academic achievement of Hispanic high school seniors and identifies them for post-secondary institutions.

Students enter the program by taking the Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test as high school juniors and by identifying themselves as Hispanic.

From more than 150,000 students nationwide, approximately 4,500 of the highest scoring students initially qualified. In the final analysis, 4,800 students have been recognized by the program as a scholar or honorable mention finalist.

Brent Porter of Boy Scout Troop 257 recently earned the rank of Eagle Scout, Scouting's highest award. The Eagle Court of Honor was held at the Museum of the Plains in Perryton.

Presiding over the ceremony was David Scott, Golden Spread Council

Autumn Leaves

Sunshine highlights some leaves on the branches of this colorful tree.

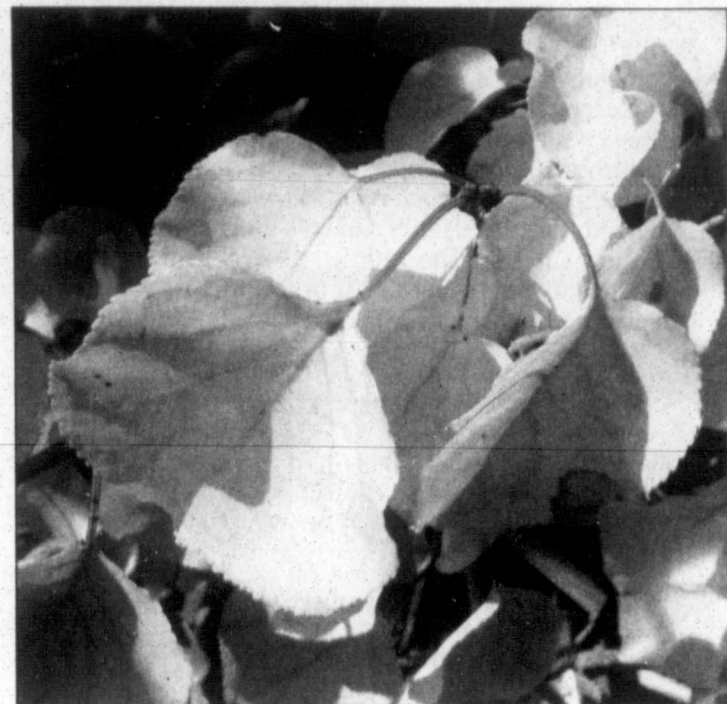

This tree's yellow leaves are emphasized by the still-green leaves on its branches and by the greenery around it.

Story and Photos
by Marilyn Powers

Some green color remains in the foliage of this tree.

Red stems add even more color to bright yellow autumn leaves.

A dramatic change in the color of some types of foliage is one of the indications that autumn has arrived.

Some trees, shrubs and vines in the Pampa area are sporting various shades of red, orange and yellow in response to the seasonal climate changes.

Jeff Barnett, general manager of West Texas Landscape Nurseries, said that there are many deciduous trees which grow well in this area that can turn bright colors in the fall.

Various varieties of oak turn shades of red, orange and yellow. Red oaks sport red leaves in autumn, and burr oaks turn a bright gold color, Barnett said.

Several kinds of maple also have bright autumn leaves of red, orange or gold.

Bradford pear trees will often develop red leaves for autumn.

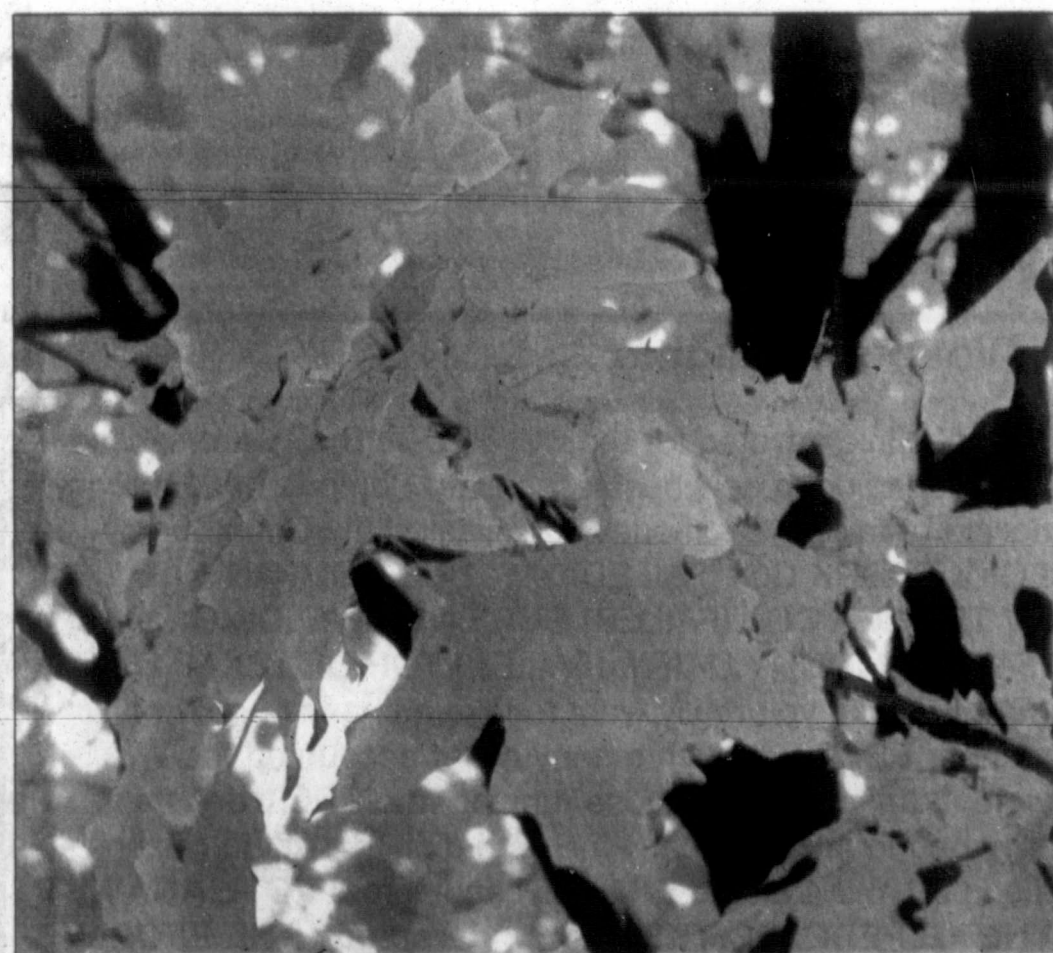

"A couple of different varieties of ash give some nice color. Washington hawthorns turn real nice colors this time of year, too," Barnett said.

Another choice for orange and red fall foliage for this area is the Chinese pistache, he said.

The show won't last forever, however. All too soon, the bright leaves will fall and winter will make its way into the area.

This tree's red leaves make it stand out among its neighbors, which are all still sporting green foliage.

A yellow border increases the impact of these reddish-orange leaves.

PPHM exhibit to celebrate 'horned' pieces

CANYON — Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum in Canyon will open "Sharp Horns, Soft Seats: The Art of Horn Furniture" Nov. 12. The exhibit will include items from the museum's collection as well as a number of pieces borrowed from other collections. The exhibit will continue through April in the Furniture Gallery.

Unique pieces in the exhibit will include a chair owned by Amarillo founder Henry B. Sanborn, a hall tree designed by Charles Goodnight with bison horns as coat and hat hooks, a rocking chair that belonged to a former Canyon family, and a chair brought to the Panhandle from Kansas. A hat rack that reportedly won a prize at the 1904 World's Fair in St. Louis will also be part of the exhibit.

The American frontier captured the imaginations of many people in more settled parts of the United States throughout the 19th century, a press release from the museum reports. The frontier decreased in size by the late 1800s, but romanticism about the region increased, as reflected in art, literature, and even craftsmanship of the period.

During the 1880s and the 1890s, this romantic interpretation of the frontier can be seen in furniture made of animal horns that became popular throughout the States, especially chairs for hunting lodges, offices, libraries, trophy rooms, and saloons. Several presidents, including Grover Cleveland, Benjamin Harrison, William McKinley, and Theodore Roosevelt, received horn chairs as gifts from supporters.

German craftsmen probably brought the idea of using horns to make furniture to the United States. Furniture made from stag horns became popular by 1800 in regions that later became Germany. Some of this furniture was displayed at the 1851 Crystal Palace Exhibit in London, and it became increasingly popular during the later half of the 19th century.

Most of the horn furniture made in Texas and the Midwestern United States utilized horns from longhorn cattle and usually was obtained from slaughter houses.

German-born cabinetmaker Wenzel Friedrich (1827-1902) of San Antonio probably was the best known maker of horn furniture in Texas. A number of other craftsmen in Texas and elsewhere, mostly German immigrants, produced a variety of such furniture until longhorns became scarce about 1900. Horns and antlers from bison, elk, deer, and moose also sometimes were used to make furniture, especially in the western United States.

A Voter's Thoughts.....

A lot of citizens voted for the first PEDC. They were excited about bringing in new businesses into Pampa.... $10 million dollars of tax payers money was wasted!!!!!! Count them; FORK STORK CO., (FAILED) U.S. BUS COMPANY, (FAILED) RV TRAILER CO., (FAILED) SCRIBNER WELDING CO., (FAILED) MOODY DAIRY, (FAILED) TOP OF TEXAS DAIRY, (FAILED). Do you really want to take a chance again with another EDC? So much money never accounted for. We were in the dark while those running the EDC didn't think they had to answer to anyone, and didn't, until the citizens stood up and shouted ENOUGH and voted! VOTE AGAINST THE 4B PEDC. DO THEY not understand? THE PEOPLE HAVE LOST FAITH IN THE PEDC!!!!

executive board member. Lisa Hill, assistant Scoutmaster of Troop 257, delivered the Scouting segment "100 Scouts," and Denyce Scott, Adobe Walls Eagle Committee member, narrated "The Legend of Eagle Mountain," the program Porter chose as the theme of his ceremony.

Porter was officially presented by Eagle Scout Joseph Nunez of Amarillo and his uncle, Eagle Scout Scott Martin of Denver, Colo. Porter then spoke of his climb up Eagle Mountain.

Roland Nunez of Amarillo, Scoutmaster of Jamboree Troop 1731, spoke to Porter of future challenges and other mountains on the horizon. Porter's parents, Jack and Dana Porter, were given pins, and Porter called his grandparents, Fred and Lynda Martin of Pampa, forward to present them with an Eagle statue in appreciation of their support.

Excerpts from several letters of congratulations were read from President Bush, Gov. Rick Perry and other dignitaries, and Porter received certificates of congratulation from various Congressmen along with a U.S. flag from Rep. Mac Thornberry and a Texas flag from State Rep. Warren Chisum. The flags had been flown over their respective capitals at the request of the donors in honor of Porter's achievement.

A reception, at which a video on Porter's Eagle Scout project was shown, followed the ceremonies.

Only two out of 100 scouts achieve Eagle Scout status. To qualify, a scout must earn no less than 21 merit badges. Porter earned 42. In addition, he completed requirements for lifesaving, snorkel, and scuba certifications along with his mile swim.

For his project, he removed a 77-foot paving brick walkway at the Museum of the Plains. He re-graded and widened the walkway before replacing it, spending more than 175 hours of labor on his project.

Porter has been a scout for 10 years. He was a Tiger

Cub in first grade then progressed through the ranks as a Bobcat, Wolf, Bear, and Webelos.

Upon completion of his Twentier Patch, he was awarded the Arrow of Light, the highest award given in Cub Scouts. He also earned "God and Me" and "God and Family" emblems through First United Methodist Church.

He joined Boy Scout Troop 256 in the fall of 2000, making Scout, Tenderfoot, Second Class, First Class, and Star. In January 2003, he became a member of Troop 257 and achieved his life rank, beginning his final quest for Eagle. He earned his "God and Church" emblem in February.

After being elected by his peers to the Order of the Arrow, scouting's honor society, Porter completed his Ordeal in August 2002 and his Brotherhood in August 2003. He is currently lodge secretary (communications coordinator) of the Lodge Executive Committee.

He has served in various leadership positions while involved in Scouting including senior patrol leader, assistant senior patrol leader, scribe, patrol leader, and OA troop representative.

Porter attended the National Boy Scout Jamboree at Fort A.P. Hill in Virginia this past summer and was OA troop representative for that group as well.

He is currently a sophomore and honor student at Perryton High School, where he is a member of the band's percussion section and participates in golf. He has competed both academically and musically in UIL, has been selected to Five States Honor Band and K101 Honor band, and has competed in district solo competition in mallots.

Porter was named to the National Honor Roll, the United States Achievement Academy and is an All-American Scholar.

"He Only Takes The Best"

A heart of gold stopped beating.
Two shining eyes at rest.
God broke our hearts to prove to us
He only takes the best.
Little did we know that morning.
The sorrow the day would bring.
The end was sudden, the shock severe.
We never knew that death was so near.
When days are sad and lonely,
And evening shadows fall.
We hear your voice and see your face.
Your sweet memory lingers on.
God knew you had to leave us.
But you didn't go alone.
For part of us went with you.
The day God called you home.
Loving You,
Connie and Your Family

Larry Joe Hall, a professional guitarist and singer/song writer who later became a Minister of the Gospel at age 21. Brother Hall has memorized much of the bible through his years of study preaching/teaching subjects concerning the end times, dealing with the book of revelation - Eph., Hebrews, etc - and what role the church plays today.

Larry and his wife Doris of 38 years, have two daughters, a son, and three grandchildren. Doris is also an accomplished teacher and singer of the gospel. When she ministers in song, people are blessed as they are drawn into the presence of God.

Together they have traveled many places in the United States, Canada, Germany and Holland preaching the word of God with power.

You will be blessed as you sit under their ministry.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I believe that if you call someone using a speakerphone, you should immediately inform the person you're calling that the conversation isn't private. My husband called me at work recently from our home using the speakerphone. Our children were within earshot. I commented that I was going shopping after work to buy a video game system as a Christmas gift for our son. My son heard me, and now I feel that I can't get it for him because it will no longer be a "surprise."

My husband thinks it's no big deal and doesn't feel he should have to tell the person he's calling that the conversation could be overheard.

Personally, I will from now on assume that I am on speakerphone when someone calls me until I know otherwise. But I think you would do us all a favor by alerting people to proper speakerphone etiquette. -- AGGRAVATED IN DEVILLE, LA.

DEAR AGGRAVATED: I don't blame you for being upset. Speakerphone etiquette? To allow others to listen in is a breach of trust and privacy. When I receive a phone call, I assume that the call is private -- and I'm sure my feelings are shared by at least 90 percent of the population. People should not have to "assume" they are on a speakerphone every time they take or make a phone call. Your husband owes you an apology.

P.S. Buy the video game system for your son anyway. If you don't, he'll be "surprised" -- and disappointed -- that you didn't.

DEAR ABBY: My parents had a bitter divorce. Our mother refused to be in the same room as our father, and in the end, my brother and I were always forced to choose between our parents.

When I proposed to my girlfriend, my mother forbade me to invite my father to the wedding.

My fiancée and I realized that our future children would also be forced to choose between their grandparents. It was a legacy we didn't want them to inherit, so a full year before the wedding, we arranged for everyone to attend religious family counseling. When Mother was confronted with the reality of having to forgive and compromise, she literally disowned me, saying that I was "dead" to her. Then, one by one, Mother forced each family member to choose between her and me. In the end, even my brother disowned me.

Most people say, "Good riddance" and "You're better off without them." I disagree. Where is the virtue in loving only those who love you back? As long as it doesn't disrupt my marriage, I feel I should continue to make every legal attempt to reconcile. Am I crazy? -- MICHAEL IN TEXAS

DEAR MICHAEL: You're not crazy. You are coping with abandonment in a way that is healthy for you. I wouldn't recommend it, but it's your life, and you must live it the way you see fit.

DEAR ABBY: I am a single man in my mid-30s. I have some cards, letters and pictures of the woman who was my first love. We dated through high school and for several years afterward, but broke up for good about eight years ago. I have accepted that we will never be together, but I can't seem to throw these things out. What should I do with them? -- SENTIMENTAL IN ARIZONA

DEAR SENTIMENTAL: Pack them in a box and store it in your garage or storage area. That way, they'll be out of the way, and as the saying goes, "Out of sight, out of mind."

DeLay picks ex-Earle workers for team Doing it right

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. Tom DeLay has relied on friends for support in the face of felony indictments, but for his legal strategy he's tried to get close to his enemy.

Two members of DeLay's legal team once worked for Texas prosecutor Ronnie Earle, who heads the investigation into DeLay's 2002 fund-raising for Republicans and sought the indictments against him alleging money laundering and conspiracy. Their insight into how Earle works could help DeLay as he prepares for trial.

"If you've tried a case before with the opposing counsel, you can anticipate the moves they make, the voir dres they make, how they pick their jury, the canned arguments — they make the same arguments over and over — so you have a feel for them," said Joe Turner, an alum of Earle's office who is representing John Colyandro, one of DeLay's co-defendants.

DeLay's Austin attorneys Bill White and Steve Brittain worked with Earle and some of his assistants early in their careers. Along with Turner, three Democratic attorneys now represent Republicans who are being prosecuted by Earle, also a Democrat.

Political parties play a big role in the case, which revolves around the fund-raising activities of DeLay's political action committees, led by Colyandro and Jim Ellis, another co-defendant.

Two grand juries allege DeLay and his associates circumvented a state law that prohibits corporate money in state elections by funneling it through the Republican National Committee in a scheme to put more Republicans in Congress and the Legislature. Under Texas law, corporate money is only permissible for political campaigns' administrative expenses.

Last week, DeLay got the judge in his case removed because the judge had given about $5,000 in the last five years to Democrats. His legal team argued that the judge's political support of DeLay's opposing party was enough to cast doubt on his ability to be impartial.

The removal of the judge, Bob Perkins, set in motion a judicial carousel as Earle protested the political contributions of the Republican judge who removed Perkins and then the state's Supreme Court chief justice who tried appointed a replacement for Perkins.

The next court hearing probably will decide whether DeLay's trial will stay in Austin, a Democratic stronghold, and whether it will be separated from a trial for Ellis and Colyandro.

The former attorneys for Earle's office say Earle usually leaves the litigating to his assistants, and that's what they're expecting in this case.

White, a Vietnam veteran, worked for Earle in 1977. He worked more closely with Rosemary Lehmberg, Earle's first assistant district attorney and a prosecutor on DeLay's case. Though he said he respects Earle's assistants, his opinion of Earle's courtroom abilities is not very high.

"The best thing for Tom DeLay would be if Ronnie Earle tries the case himself," White said.

'Ronnie is an icon to stay in office as long as he has, particularly in a town as political as Austin, and you make no friends as a district attorney.'

— Steve Brittain
Attorney

In private practice, White is now a criminal defense attorney who handles some federal cases. His clients include former Texas prison chief James "Andy" Collins, who last month was acquitted of accepting kickbacks from VitaPro foods in exchange for approving a $37 million contract to buy the company's soy-based meat substitute to feed Texas prisoners. Collins was convicted in 2001, but a federal judge overturned the jury's decision.

Brittain's introduction to Earle came while trying to help his boss, then the Travis County attorney, defeat Earle in his campaign for district attorney. After Earle won, he asked Brittain to work for him and Brittain agreed.

Brittain helped start a special crimes unit in Earle's office to oversee official misconduct cases, which includes the public integrity unit now investigating DeLay.

"Ronnie is an icon to stay in office as long as he has, particularly in a town as political as Austin, and you make no friends as a district attorney," Brittain said.

The thinking behind the unit was to limit cases involving public officeholders to a single district attorney's office, where a high level of expertise would guard against complaints filed for political reasons.

"This seems to me to be contrary to that," Brittain said of the DeLay indictments.

He said he is concerned "about any prosecutorial office using grand juries and criminal prosecution to affect policies."

Brittain spent three years then worked for Roy Minton, another top Austin criminal defense lawyer who is representing other defendants in the investigation centering on the 2002 elections.

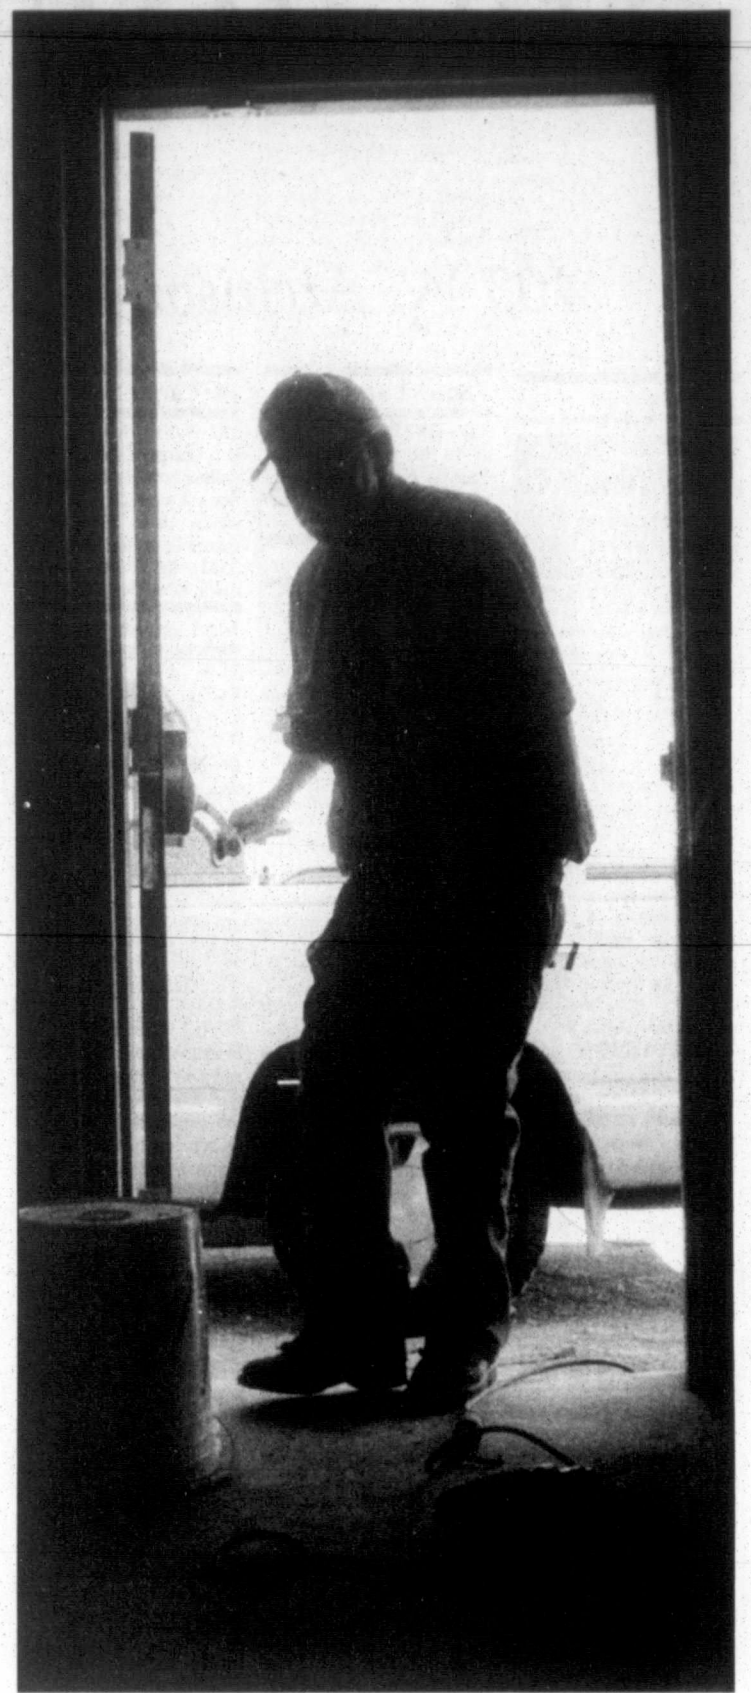

After Republicans took control of the Legislature for the first time in more than a century, DeLay pushed the Legislature to pass a new congressional voting district map drawn by DeLay that gave Republicans the advantage in the 2004 elections. With more Republicans in Congress, DeLay became House majority leader, a position he was forced to give up when indicted in September.

Brittain opened his own practice in the mid 1980s as a criminal defense lawyer.

Turner was in Earle's office in 1980 and helped him prosecute former state Sen. Gene Jones, a Democrat, on charges of official misconduct. Jones pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor of misusing state computers and was defeated in the following election.

He worked for three years in Earle's white collar crime unit that Brittain helped set up. He also worked as a federal prosecutor.

After opening his own office in 1982, Turner represented Ruth Ridell, one of the members of the Branch Davidian group that engaged in a 51-day standoff with federal agents before the sect's compound went up in flames killing leader David Koresh.

Houston mayor relies on private sector to help his city

HOUSTON — On a bridge over Buffalo Bayou, well-heeled Houstonians celebrated the public-private partnership responsible for transforming the concrete-lined swamp leading into downtown into a landscaped waterway.

Mayor Bill White thanked the project's three lead entrepreneurs and then tallied the city's recent accomplishments: about 150,000 new residents from Hurricane Katrina, evacuation of several million from Hurricane Rita, the hiring of several thousand people at a city-sponsored job fair and the Houston Astros win of the National League pennant.

"Just a typical month in Houston," he said.

Maybe not typical, but a good example of the pace that White set after taking office last year, and one he hopes to continue after his re-election on Nov. 8.

When the municipal bureaucracy can't or won't move fast enough, White — like a host of other businessmen-turned-mayors around the country — turns to the private sector to push through his pet projects.

"I want a performance-oriented government that produces results," White said.

"That's contrary to a government based on sound bites and images."

White, 51, is a Harvard-educated lawyer, former deputy U.S. energy secretary and former chief executive of Wedge Group, a holding company with energy and real-estate interests.

Although a former Texas Democratic Party chairman, he never held elective office before becoming mayor, like New York's Rudolph Giuliani and Michael Bloomberg and Los Angeles' Richard Riordan.

White, who has no strong opposition in this election, used the private sector in at least a dozen projects, including the renovation of Buffalo Bayou, during his first term.

He created a foundation of private citizens who in 90 days raised $1.1 million for training and equipment for Houston police through gala events and donations.

He enlisted businessmen to build a downtown park, landscape freeway medians and expand hike-and-bike trails around the city.

He convinced the Rotary Club to install dialysis machines at a city health clinic, and got construction companies to donate time and equipment to raze abandoned buildings frequented by crack cocaine users.

He hired multi-millionaire David Saperstein for $1 a year to be the city's first traffic czar, and asked corporate campaign contributors to increase by $20,000 the annual salary of city lobbyist Ann Travis, a former aide to Republican U.S. Rep. Tom DeLay.

"For a leader not to utilize the private sector when the city has a wealth of talented, concerned citizens with the means and experience to help the city and will donate their services — especially when speed is an issue — wouldn't be prudent," said developer Dick Weekley, whom White has enlisted for many of the beautification projects.

While White gets high marks for efficiency, city officials and advocates for the poor have begun to question whether speed is the only factor in running a government.

"It's efficient the way he gets things done, but we have an obligation as elected officials to oversee what's happening," said City Councilman Gordon Quan.

"We're kind of an afterthought sometimes."

The downtown park deal, Quan said, required $10 million of city money for the $58 million project.

Prop. 8 affects landowners

HAWKINS, Texas (AP) — Two generations of Rex Coulter's family have raised livestock and leased oil exploration rights to energy companies on 800 acres of this mineral-rich part of East Texas.

But the Coulters could lose some of that land when Texas voters decide on a constitutional amendment designed to clarify a volatile property rights issue. The amendment, Proposition 8 on Tuesday's statewide ballot, would force the state to relinquish land claims to 1,820 landowners who have long paid property taxes in Smith and Upshur counties.

If Proposition 8 fails, ownership rights could be determined in court, a lengthy process that landowners fear. In the end, landowners could be required to repurchase land from the state.

"I need this to be over with," said Coulter, an engineer who says his family has "thousands of dollars" of royalties tied up in escrow accounts.

The dispute started several years ago when real estate investors claimed strips of land totaling 5,600 acres are actually vacant, thus belonging to the state. The vacancy claims have held up mineral royalty payments from oil companies to the owners and kept owners from investing in or selling portions of land.

The state has already ruled that the land is not vacant, a decision that has produced lawsuits and court appeals, forcing legislators to call for this dispute to be one of nine ballot issues Tuesday.

Discrepancies in land records go back to the 1830s. Texas law allows anyone who identifies a vacancy — an undeeded piece of land that becomes state property — to apply for 1/16 of the land's mineral royalties as a finders fee.

State Sen. Kevin Eltife, R-Tyler, who drafted the proposed amendment, said it is necessary despite the state's ruling of no vacancy.

"The only way to bring closure for landowners is to have a constitutional amendment that clears the title and has the state giving up any claims," Eltife said.

Tyler attorney Ben Jarvis, who owns land and placed vacancy claims on behalf of investors, said the amendment simply furthers the confusion.

"It says the state relinquishes the land, but it doesn't say who gets it," said Jarvis, who would not take a position on the proposition.

Vacancy claims have been a major disruption in the area since the 1990s.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, Nov. 7, 2005:

You might often find yourself in the midst of a row or two. Many people express their opinions, and you might need to listen, but don't feel that you necessarily have to follow through on them. You have a strong sense of which direction to go. Listen to your inner voice. Your emotional responses generally will be right-on. If you are single, you might find relating a bit tough, as others could be challenging and unstable. This behavior could change if you're moonstruck by someone. Your positive attitude might flow into your bond. If you are attached, your partner might be a lot more assertive than in the past. Let this person have his or her day and point of view. AQUARIUS tends to make situations confusing.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★★ Your fire could break through at any moment. Just pick and choose your words with care. Confusion surrounds meetings and talks. Work with a partner. Listen to this person carefully; he or she has logic behind his or her words. Tonight: Remember your goals. TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★ Frustration mounts at work. You're hot under the collar. You might not be able to identify what is really getting to you. Take some time to think through your feelings and how you have been hurt. Tonight: Check in with an older friend or relative. GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★ Take the high road and try not to get caught up in strong feelings. You will need to deal with them, but take your time. A knee-jerk response won't be on target. The facts might be distorted right now. Tonight: On a fact-finding mission. Talk about feelings with someone who understands you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★ You mean well, but whatever you do seems to backfire. Use care with investments, insurance policies and other important dealings. Someone might randomly let loose and get angry at you. Distance yourself. Tonight: Get into a hobby in which you can forget your problems.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★ Although you have the best intentions, you might be in the middle of a gigantic backfire. Tempers seem to flare up. You could be frustrated, as logic doesn't work. Emotions run high. Step back. Tonight: Think positively. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★★★ You might want to think about what goes on today rather than participate. Confusion and high emotions mix together. Ask questions and attempt to clear the haze. Maintain your sense of humor. Tonight: Yip up a storm.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ Be smart — pull out of hot issues before you become too involved. Avoid risks — financial and emotional. Someone might be on the warpath. Realize that someone is not telling you the whole story. Tonight: Ever playful. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★ You cannot win for losing. No matter which way you turn, you encounter an issue. Be smart — rise above the problems and go in your own direction. Understand that others, including you, could be under pressure. Tonight: Head home. Screen calls.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★ You might surprise yourself with just how irritated you can get seemingly out of the blue. What is going on might be the result of sitting on your feelings. The time has come to talk. Tonight: Start sharing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ You might have expenses that you hadn't anticipated. How you deal with them could be very different than usual. Be open to a new approach. Others might trigger strong reactions. Claim your power. Tonight: Do necessary financial research.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★ You might be oblivious to what is happening around you, but others are grumbling. A domestic matter emerges, which you might have to handle. Stay calm even if others cannot. Tonight: What makes you happy?

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★ Sometimes you need to duck. Right now, many different conflicts and needs could come into play. Do as much behind closed doors as possible. Stay cool and do what you need to do. Don't trigger. Tonight: Early to bed, or at least let others think that you are unavailable.

THE PAMPA NEWS CLASSIFIED CALL 669-2525 TO PLACE YOUR AD

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, Nov. 6, 2005:

You have a special way of expressing yourself. As a result, what might have been impossible to accomplish last year is a piece of cake this year. Make communicating a high priority, and don't stand on ceremony with others. Take the high road. Avoid being petty. Surprises surround risks, creativity, romance and children. You might be quite delighted. If you are single, romance might not be stable, but it will be fun as long as you remain secure. You also could hook up with someone very unusual. If you are attached, keep the lines of communication open, even if you are frustrated or tired. CAPRICORN encourages you to talk more.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

 You seem to have a natural ability to organize and draw others together. A partner not only supports you but also delights in your skills. Don't kid yourself about a friend. He or she might be far more "out there" than you realize. Tonight: Think about tomorrow.

This Week: Meetings bring results through midweek, but actions need to back up the words.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

 Make plans for a getaway or drive, or meet a friend halfway who is at a distance. A new environment helps refresh your mind, body and energy. You might be able to understand someone better as a result. Tonight: Walk the least-trodden path.

This Week: Step up to the plate, and you'll hit a home run.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

 You love to run around and be busy. You are an airy sign who wishes she could fly! A loved one or dear friend needs quality time and attention. Share more of the inner you. Tonight: Bond by being vulnerable.

This Week: An overview might help direct your energy where it counts.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

 If you have time to even think about spending some time alone, it would be surprising. Others quite obviously want you to be part of their plans. You might feel like saltwater taffy, as you are pulled in so many directions. Tonight: Certainly not alone.

This Week: Work up a plan with an associate, then act.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

 Finally, you'll get some downtime if you don't answer the phone and make yourself scarce. Can the big Lion do that? You need to if you are going to keep your energy up to par. You have a lot of responsibilities — right now. Tonight: Favorite chair and favorite takeout.

This Week: Others run the show. Don't buck the trend.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

 You cannot hold yourself back. You might want to express your more mature side, but the Kid in you comes out. Suddenly, you let loose and share with others one of your favorite pastimes or hobbies. Tonight: Let it all hang out.

This Week: Work and responsibilities — is there anything else? Not for a few days.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

 Happily enjoy time at home. You don't have to socialize every moment. In fact, centering and visiting with roommates and family feels good. Ignore a call that might have you heading out the door. Tonight: Watch a favorite TV show.

This Week: Let your creativity flourish, and others will work with your ideas.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

 You say what you want, and others respond. Take advantage of the moment, as this isn't likely to happen all the time. You might surprise a child or loved one with an unusual idea. A difficult partner finally chills. Tonight: Catch up on others' news. Yacking away.

This Week: Work from home if you can. Be creative and imaginative.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

 You might be thinking about a new purchase, and, in fact, you might decide that today is the day. Check out someone's opinion you trust. Though you might not like what you hear, it could be instrumental in making your choice. Tonight: Balance your checkbook.

This Week: You see life differently from others. Express your ideas and thoughts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

 The Moon in your sign energizes you even more than usual. You could surprise someone with a decision, call or plan. Free yourself from your past locked thinking. You will be happier. Your creativity surges, especially when you get into a physical activity. Tonight: Carry on as late as you want.

This Week: Listen to your finely honed money sense. Ask plenty of questions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

 Take a hint from Libra and Leo. As high-energy as you are, you still need some downtime. Follow a dream or something you have wanted to do for a while. Don't allow another's opinions to rain on your parade. Tonight: Early to bed.

This Week: Your smile radiates, and others jump. Isn't this more like it?

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

 Your unpredictability delights your friends and others in general. Gather people together. You might need to make a special effort toward one person. Don't hesitate. Ignore your inner voice. Insecurity might plague you. Tonight: Where the action is.

This Week: Plan and research. Take action Thursday.
