City Budget Is Discussed

The annual budget hearing for the City of Pampa got underway at 10:40 a.m. today — 70 minutes late — with five residents on hand.

City Atty. Bob Gordon and City Mgr. Fred Brook launched the public hearing in the City Commission Room of City Hall with an explanation of how the proposed budget was drawn up and a run-down of the main sections.

Only residents present for the hearing at 10:40 a.m. were Mrs. Willis White and Mrs. A. D. Hills, both representing the Pampa League of Women Voters; and C. L. Carter, Mitchell Hill and Frank Carter.

Main reasons for the lateness of the opening time on the hearing was the opening of bids on valves and fittings. James Cowan, city director of public works, late this morning was tabulating the eight sets of bids.

Bid On Fittings

Bidding were Morrison Supply Co., Amarillo; Rohan Co., Waco; Well Machine and Supply Co., Fort Worth; Clowe and Cowan, Amarillo; San Antonio Machine and Supply, Waco; Viking Supply Dallas; M. V. McKee Co., Lubbock; and Morelane Co.

On a motion by Commissioner Frank Dial, the City Commission agreed to continue the practice of using a rotating list for the purchase of gas for city vehicles. And a 12th name—L. C. Long—was added to the supplier list.

It has been the practice in the past to begin at the top of the list, have the first person sell the city 3,000 gallons of gas, then move on down to the second. And so on. Only wholesalers are on the list.

The other 11 names on the list are P. K. Oil, Continental Oil, Phillips Petroleum, F. E. Hoffman, Wilcox Oil, Champlin Oil, Gulf Oil, Magnolia Petroleum, Buckingham Oil, Chas. Burton Oil and Utility Oil and Supply. The procedure will continue till Sept. 30, end of the city's fiscal year. The city buys an estimated 100,-

Monday Rain Is General In Panhandle

Pampa and the Top o' Texas area Monday night got a good dose of thundershowers, just enough to cool things off from a blistering Labor Day.

A total of .15 of an inch of rain fell on Pampa, according to Station KPDN. Pampa's official weather station. It followed an afternoon which saw a high mercury reading of 91 degrees.

The low temperature early this morning was 64 and by mid-morning it had climbed to 71.

There was not a drop of rain in McLean and residents there needed it more — for the Monday afternoon high was 94 degrees, which dropped to a low early this morning of 68. By mid-morning it was 80 and rising. A bit of wind Monday night knocked down a few tree limbs, it was reported.

Perryton Monday night got a rainfall of .34 of an inch, reported to be general over the area. It was somewhat heavier to the south and west of Perryton. It began at 5 p.m. Monday and continued till near midnight.

Dewey's Decision Pending

Future Plans To Be Aired Tonight

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 7 -- UP -- Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, twice the Republican party's presidential candidate and for 12 years New York's chief executive, announces Tuesday night whether he will continue his political career or return to private life.

The 52-year-old Dewey will go on a statewide television network to announce whether he will seek a fourth term as governor or will quit after 25 years of public service.

There was no inkling what he would do, but his close associates believed he would withdraw from the gubernatorial race in favor of U.S. Sen. Irvin M. Ives.

Dewey worked on his closely-guarded announcement in the privacy of his Pawling farm during the weekend. It was generally agreed that if he had decided to retire he would have to use strong language to avoid a "draft."

Ike Knows Dewey's Plans

President Eisenhower, it was said, has known Dewey's plans for some time. The President took the position that while he would like Dewey to head the state ticket again, a man who has had so much public service has earned the right to make up his own mind.

As governor, Dewey is one of the nation's most powerful political leaders. He demonstrated his strength at the last Republican national convention when he whipped the state's representatives behind Mr. Eisenhower. In order to wield the same authority in 1956 he would have to run again. An ex-governor without patronage strings has little to say.

Dewey's unmatched up-and-down political career began in New York city as a Republican ward worker more than 25 years ago. His first political job was appointive and ironically he first made headlines in a job given him by a former Democratic governor, Herbert J. Lehman, now U. S. senator. Lehman named Dewey "crimebuster" to clean up vice and racketeering in New York city.

First Bid In 1938

Dewey made his first bid for statewide recognition in 1938 when he opposed Lehman and lost by a small margin. He came back in 1939 to be elected district attorney of New York county and in 1940 he lost the GOP presidential nomination to the late Wendell L. Willkie.

TANK OF WINE, LOAF OF BREAD AND THOU IN THE WILDERNESS

ROSEVILLE, Calif., Sept. 7 -- UP -- When police spotted a group of hobos filling up cans, bottles and any other containers they could find at a railroad tank car they decided to investigate.

All but two of the hobos fled. One who remained staggered noticeably. The other lay prostrate across the tracks.

The tank, before the party, had been filled with wine.

Troop Positions At Amoy Blasted

TAIPEH, Formosa, Sept. 7 -- UP -- The Nationalist Chinese announced Tuesday that a combined air-sea attack blasted Red artillery and troop barracks near Amoy and destroyed or damaged more than 100 Communist military junks massed around Nationalist-held Quemoy island.

The Nationalist defense ministry said Generalissimo Chiang Kai - Shek's air force and navy blasted Red targets in a daylong attack.

The combined forces sank a Red gunboat and five large motor junks. They damaged or sank 100 other war junks, the Nationalists said.

Troop barracks near the Red Chinese port of Amoy were damaged, as were troop emplacements around the port and its surrounding islands.

Hundreds of Nationalist war planes took part in the attacks along with "strong" naval forces, the defense ministry said.

The war planes concentrated on the junks, which probably would be used by the Chinese Communists as invasion craft if they attempt to take Quemoy Island, 15 miles off the mainland and about seven miles from the port of Amoy.

The air-sea assault was described by the defense ministry as Generalissimo Chiang's first "major retaliation" against the Reds for bombarding Quemoy. Two American officers on Quemoy were killed in the Red shelling.

The combined operations began at dawn and continued throughout the day, the ministry reported.

First reports by airmen returning from the raid said Communist installations had been damaged heavily.

They said at least seven Communist bodies had been spotted on one island. Red troops fled in terror on other islands in the ring around Quemoy.

Most of the fire was concentrated on the hundreds of junks which could be used in a Communist attempt to invade the heavily - fortified island which lies near the mainland of Red China.

Gen. Chang Yi-Ting said that "if we can sink the junks, not many of them can swim for it."

Chang said all Nationalist planes returned to base safely, although they had been exposed to heavy anti-aircraft fire.

Nationalist warships met no opposition from the Red Chinese navy in carrying out their attack on Communist shore batteries, Chang said.

The Chinese Communists dropped propaganda leaflets on Formosa, also threatened with invasion, early Monday when Taipeh was blacked out for almost three hours.

No bombs were dropped, however, and the capital city of Taipeh remained calm.

Ike Warning Put In Record At Joe 'Trial'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 -- UP -- A Senate committee investigating censure charges against Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy Tuesday heard a warning from President Eisenhower against the exercise of "arbitrary power" by Congress.

The committee, winding up its presentation of documentary evidence on five general charges against the Wisconsin Republican, put into its records a May 17 letter from Mr. Eisenhower to Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson. The letter said the "ultimate responsibility" for the executive branch of government must remain with the President.

The communication, previously disclosed, played a vital part in the recent Army - McCarthy hearings. In it Mr. Eisenhower forbade Army witnesses to testify about conversations administration officials held on the Army-McCarthy dispute.

Committee counsel E. Wallace Chadwick also placed in the record a copy of a memorandum by Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., citing the precedents for the President's refusal to divulge certain information to Congress.

The documents bore on two of the current charges against McCarthy: That he made use of a confidential 2¼ page FBI document and that he called upon government employes to give him secret information from government files in violation of their security oaths.

SEATO Meet Winds Up

Asiatic 'Doctrine' Ready For Signing

MANILA, P. I., Sept. 7 —UP— The eight - nation SEATO conference practically finished its work Tuesday and preparations were being made to sign an Asiatic "Monroe Doctrine" treaty at a formal ceremony at 4 p.m. Wednesday.

U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles was reported to have placed the "Monroe Doctrine" label on the treaty at secret sessions which hammered out the last details of an agreement designed to protect southeast Asia against Communist aggression.

The conference agreed Tuesday to drop the word "Communist" from a clause defining the type of aggression the eight member nations will guard against.

The United States will sign the treaty with the reservation that it interprets the pact as being designed to halt "Communist aggression."

Article four of the draft, which contains a preamble and nine articles, covers the type of alliance to be formed. This still was in dispute when the conference ended its second session today.

There also was some question as to whether phrases on "self determination" and "anti - colonialism" should be in the preamble or in a separate article.

Eight articles have been approved informed sources said. These include:

New Storm Coming Up Off Florida

MIAMI, Sept. 7 —UP— Edna, the season's fifth tropical storm, blew up to full hurricane force Tuesday about 500 miles east-southeast of Miami with winds as high as 85 miles an hour.

A Navy hurricane hunter plane now scouting the storm reported that the hurricane's intensity was increasing.

Shipping and other interests in the Bahamas were advised to use caution.

In an early advisory the Miami Weather Bureau estimated the storm was centered 100 miles northwest of Turks Island in the Bahamas and was moving west-northwestward at eight to 10 miles per hour.

The disturbance had followed the trail of Hurricane Carol, which brushed the Carolinas and swept into the New England states last week, killing 53 persons and leaving $300 million damage.

The new storm, closely watched since it was first observed last Thursday as an easterly wave, also came almost on the heels of Hurricane Dolly, which blew itself out harmlessly in the Atlantic last week.

Global A-Pool Is Welcomed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 —UP— American officials declared Tuesday that the Allied agreement to create an international atomic pool marks the dawn of a new atomic era for the free world and a sharp diplomatic defeat for Russia.

From the summer White House in Denver, President Eisenhower disclosed Monday that the United States and six other nations have agreed to form the agency to "foster the growth and spread of the new atomic technology for peaceful use."

He said "atomic materials for projects sponsored by this agency will be set aside for that purpose." And with a nod to Russia, he expressed the hope that "no nation will long stand aloof from the work of this agency."

When he first launched his atoms-for-peace plan last Dec. 8, Mr. Eisenhower urged the Russians to join for the good of mankind. The Allied agreement to go ahead without them only came after they made it clear in months of sporadic negotiations that they definitely would not participate.

Officials said the main purpose of the Allied move is to spur the worldwide development of atomic energy for power, medicine and countless other purposes which will better man's life.

Grand Jury Will Meet Sept. 27

A new Gray County grand jury will be empaneled Sept. 27 in 31st District Court.

Dist. Atty. Tom Braly late this morning announced the empaneling date and said the grand jury would probably consider the case in which Wade Thomasson, of Pampa, was threatened last week.

Homer Bell and Jesse Calvin Bell, both of Estelline, who are out on bond in connection with the case, have been bound over to the Grand Jury.

The normal number of forgery, theft and break-in cases will also be heard, Braly said.

Delp Well Is Back In Production

Gray County's best bet for a producing oil well late this morning looked even better.

In four hours the Phillips No. 1 Delp, located 16 miles northeast of Pampa, flowed 80 barrels of oil through at ½-inch choke. Prior to that, it flowed 90 barrels in four hours through a ¾-inch choke and 160 barrels in 1¼ hours through a ¼-inch choke.

The shake-out was six-tenths of 1 per cent of water and the flowing tubing pressure was 600 pounds through a ¼-inch choke. The gravity at 7 a.m. today was [illegible].

The hole is staked out in Sec. 110, Blk. M-2, BS&F Survey.

Airline Crash Being Probed

SHANNON, Ireland, Sept. 7—UP —The bodies of 12 Americans killed when a Royal Dutch KLM airliner crashed into the River Shannon will be flown to the United States Friday, the airline said Tuesday.

The bodies, together with those of the 16 other persons killed in the still-unexplained crash Saturday, lay in the administrative KLM offices at Shannon airport Tuesday. The non-Americans will be flown to Amsterdam Tuesday night.

Salvage workers were trying to raise the wreckage of the KLM Super-Constellation from a mudbank in the middle of the Shannon estuary, one mile and a half from the airport.

The mudbank is above water at low tide, but the clinging black mud has hampered salvage operation.

Twenty-five of the dead were asphyxiated by gasoline fumes after the crash and three drowned in the rapidly rising tide. Twenty eight other persons aboard the plane were saved.

Holiday Traffic Toll Lower Than Safety Council Estimate

By UNITED PRESS

More than 500 persons died violently during the Labor Day weekend but the traffic death total was the lowest in six years, a survey showed Tuesday.

Traffic deaths totaled 354 for the period from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Monday, the lowest for a three-day Labor Day holiday since 302 were killed in 1948. Drownings accounted for 85 deaths, plane crashes killed 13 and miscellaneous accidents 59, for an overall total of 511.

The National Safety Council said the traffic death total, though tragic, was "definitely encouraging because it followed a downward trend of traffic deaths in America." Surveys have shown that 300 to 325 persons are killed during a three-day, non-holiday summer weekend, depending on the weather. The safety council had made a pre-holiday estimate that 390 persons would be killed in traffic.

The past weekend's death toll started out at a slow rate Saturday, shot up Sunday night and Monday morning, then suddenly tapered off.

Texas led all the states with 25 traffic deaths. California and Michigan each had 22, Illinois 21, New York and Missouri each had 18, Kentucky 15, and Ohio 14.

Texas Toll Heavy

By UNITED PRESS

Texas' celebration of the Labor Day weekend was a bloody one.

A total of 40 Texans died violently, 25 of them in highway accidents, including a family of five migrant farm workers who were killed Monday in a train-truck collision near Hearne. There were seven drownings, five homicides, and three deaths from miscellaneous accidental causes.

The Texas Department of Public Safety had forecast, before the three-day weekend began, that 30 persons would lose their lives in highway accidents. That compared with the 27 who died over the Labor Day weekend in 1953 and the 32 who were killed in Fourth of

'Mutt And Jeff' Creator Dies

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 —UP— Harry Conway (Bud Fisher), 69, creator of Mutt and Jeff, died of cancer at Roosevelt hospital Tuesday.

Fisher's "Mutt" said to be the first comic strip, appeared in the San Francisco Chronicle in 1907.

Fisher incorporated in it his tips on the races at a bay area track. He had what was described as a "phenomenal streak of luck," mushrooming Mutt's bankroll daily, and the newspaper's circulation rose with it.

Jeff joined the cartoon later, resulting in the now-famous title, "Mutt and Jeff."

President To Confer 2 Medals Of Honor

DENVER, Sept. 7 —UP— President Eisenhower checked out of an Army hospital early Tuesday and drove to his Lowry Air Force Base office for the presentation of the Congressional Medal of Honor to two young Korea war heroes.

The chief executive entered Fitzsimmons Army hospital here early Monday and remained overnight. The White House said he merely underwent "a regular, annual checkup."

Mr. Eisenhower was to confer the Medals of Honor Tuesday afternoon on M.Sgt. Ola L. Mize, 23, of Gadsden, Ala., and 1st Lt. Benjamin F. Wilson, 33, of Vashon, Wash.

An Army contingent from Fort Carson, Colo., arrived at the Air Force base, where the summer White House offices are located, to form an honor guard for the two Korean veterans.

Five members of Mize's family, including his mother, Mrs. Lulu Belle Mize, and his young fiancee, Miss Betty Ruth Jackson, both of Gadsden, were in Denver for the ceremony.

Wilson also had five close relatives on hand to watch him receive the coveted honor, including his wife, Mary, his son, David, and his mother, Mrs. Melbourne James, all of Vashon.

Both men were cited by Congress for conspicuous gallantry and outstanding courage, above and beyond the call of duty.

Mize, now assigned to the station hospital at Fort McLellan, Ala., was cited for his action against the enemy near Surang-Ni, Korea, on

German Family Conquers Sea, Faces Immigration Troubles

GALVESTON, Sept. 7 —UP—A German family that made a 12,000-mile voyage in a 29-foot sailboat looking for a "palm-studded island" faced immigration troubles Tuesday after achieving the goal.

Wilmuth Goerland, 53, and his wife and two small children docked the Dugong, which in Polynesian means the "Sea Cow," here from the Canal Zone after an on-again off-again voyage that began 13 years ago when Goerland decided to retire from a post with Dupont Chemical Co.

Goerland told immigration officials he and his wife bought the Dugong to roam the seas looking for a "palm - studded island we could call our own." But they visited Mrs. Goerland's parents in Hamburg, Germany, first and were caught in World War II. They fled from Germany in 1949 and have sailed from port to port, working at odd jobs, ever since. In the interim, Goerland found he had lost his U. S. citizenship during his stay in Germany.

Goerland said that Galveston may not "be our own" but it is palm-studded and he would be happy to call the whole thing off if immigration officials can straighten out his citizenship status.

Commercial Atom Plant Work Begins

SHIPPINGPORT, Pa., Sept. 7—UP— Construction crews began building in this tiny Ohio River town Tuesday the first civilian atomic power plant in this country.

Workmen riding giant earth-moving machinery swarmed over the clearing where President Eisenhower, by waving an atomic "wand" in Denver some 2,000 miles away, activated a remote control tractor shovel Monday to break ground for the $45 million plant.

Duquesne Light Co. engineers and Atomic Energy Commission officials set late 1957 as the date when the history-making generating station, powered only by a 10-ton core of uranium, will begin piping electricity to homes, schools, and factries in the Pittsburgh area — steel making capital of the world.

The crowd at the groundbreaking ceremonies burst into cheers as the electronically controlled shovel leaped forward and dug a 30 foot furrow seconds after Mr. Eisenhower interrupted an electrical circuit with his radioactive wand in Denver.

The agreement was based on contracts previously negotiated by the union and the B. F. Goodrich Co., and the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co.

U.S. Reappraising Its Global Policies

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Foreign Analyst

The eight-nation conference now under way in Manila is the first of two steps in an historic reappraisal of United States world policy.

The second step will be taken when the Western powers meet, probably late this month, to decide the part Western Germany shall play in the defense against Communist aggression in Europe.

Two serious defeats for the free world made the reappraisal urgently necessary.

First, there was the military defeat in Indo-China. Second, there was the diplomatic defeat in Europe when France killed the European Defense Community pact.

Defeat Inevitable

It is clear now that the defeat in Indo-China was inevitable.

Victory would have been possible only had the United States intervened directly, at the risk of war with Communist China and possibly with Soviet Russia.

The task of the countries conferring in Manila is to prevent any further Communist encroachment in southeast Asia.

The conferring countries are the United States, Great Britain, France, Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines, Thailand and Pakistan.

It is hoped that out of the conference will come a Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO), corresponding roughly to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

It will be designed primarily to keep southern Indo-China, Thailand, Burma and Malaya from falling to communism.

There seems to be no chance that the southeast Asia agreement will bear comparison with the North Atlantic agreement in strength.

There is unlikely to be any commitment that the signatory nations would go automatically to the aid of any of them which might be attacked. Probably there will be no general staff, and there will be no standing army.

Similar to ANZUS Pact

Hence, the southeast Asia agreement will resemble more closely the "ANZUS" pact, concluded by the United States, Australia and New Zealand for Pacific defense, which provides for consultation in event of an attack.

The exception to the "consultation" limitation is the Philippines. The United States is committed to defend that country automatically.

An important part of the southeast Asia agreement is likely to be the first organized attempt to combat Communist subversion in that part of the world.

In the absence of an agreement, Red subversion might turn into open aggression as it did in Indo-China. With an agreement, there seems reason to hope that the march of communism in southeast Asia may be stopped.

Warm Bath

LANCASTER, N. Y. — UP—Seventeen-year-old Joyce Chiuppi saw smoke through the bathroom window, but thought something was burning in an ashcan. She continued to loll in her cool bath until a fireman banged on the bathroom door, tossed her a robe and told her to get out fast. The house was on fire.

CIO Says Ike Favors Big Firms

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 —UP— Jack Kroll, director of the CIO Political Action committee, charged Monday that the Eisenhower administration is concerned only about "big corporations" and other business interests.

"Today there is no... sympathy and understanding in Washington for the problems of the average man and his family," Kroll said in a Labor Day statement.

He urged America's working men and women to study the problems confronting them so they will be able to vote "wisely and put democracy's house in order" next election day. He said the voters face "a fateful decision on the future of their families."

"Never in any two years of American history has so much of the nation's wealth and treasure of natural resources been so looted for the benefit of so few as in the past two years," he said.

James B. Carey, CIO secretary-treasurer, issued a similar statement. He said in a prepared radio address that the government is in the hands of "the Cadillac-and-country-club set."

THE MARQUEE

BY DICK KLEINER

TV STAGE RADIO RECORDS PEOPLE

Color television is worth waiting for. It may be quite a wait, depending on your budget, because the cheapest set announced so far is well up in the $800 neighborhood, which is a fairly exclusive neighborhood.

(Joke — husband goes out, buys expensive color TV set without telling wife. She sees red.)

(Joke — another husband, same situation. Wife gets the blues.)

But, when that day comes, it will be a frabjious one, because color TV is truly beautiful. I watched CBS-TV's latest demonstration. They shot "The Big Playoff" in color, and the gowns and jewelry and furs and Bess Myerson were captivating.

There's a hidden cost in color TV for the consumers, too. Commercials are practically irresistible. You've never seen anything more glamorous than a tube of chlorophyl toothpaste being lovingly squeezed by Gess Myerson. Makes you want to rush out and brush teeth. Anybody's.

The Wayne has turned. Again. This would be Bernie Wayne, one of today's top composers. Every so often, it seems, Bernie changes his styleand creates pleasant music in a different vein. Sometimes the change is so drastic it's a different artery.

He started out writing straight pop tunes — "Laughing On the Outside, Crying On the Inside" and "You Walk By." Then, a year or so back, he switched to straight instrumentals — "Vanessa," "Veradero," "Tropicana." Now he's switched again, to two different tracks.

Coral has just come out with "The Broadway Story," a record you'll have to listen to yourself. It's a Wayne's music-and-word picture of Broadway, different and delightful. And he's just written a real swingy rhythm tune called "Do Me Good, Ba-Baby," which is his first effort in that direction.

Wayne was cornered in his pleasant office in the Brill Building, which is cort of a vertical Tin Pan Alley. He was in the process of packing for a quick trip to Chicago, to plug "The Broadway Story." Between stuffing clothes in a plaid suitcase he talked about the current state of music.

"There seem to be two trends at once," he said, "which is odd. Generally music goes in one direction. Now it's going in two directions. There are the lush instrumentals on one hand, and the rhythm and blues songs on the other."

He shoved a white sports packet in the bag.

"I prefer writing instrumentals," he said, "because you have more freedom. You can say more, sometimes, with music than with lyrics, and you can try different things. You can pioneer with instrumentals."

Into the bag went a navy blue suit.

"But I guess what I really like to do most is try new things. It's a challenge to attempt something you've never done before. I'm trying something new this fall — I've been signed to do the background music for the movie, 'Moll Flanders.' And sometime I'd like to do a musical comedy."

Don't be surprised at anything Wayne does. As long as it's different.

And then there was the bobby-soxer with a crush on Tyrone Power. She vowed that someday she would run up to him and kiss him.

"One of these days," she said, "kiss right in the Power."

CBS' Galen Drake was pretty badly battered when his car crashed on a New Jersey highway. He had a concussion, several bad cuts and a bruised side. But he says he knew how to relax, and that minimized the damage.

P. S. Drake is president of something called the Relaxation Club of America, which is how so much about the gentle art of relaxing.

John Tillman, a local New York newscaster, plays it very cozy. He not only wears the TV uniform — blue shirts — but blue undershirts, too.

He could give you the shirt off his back, and still be televised.

Jane Talk

By JANE KADINGO

Pampa News Women's Editor

VERY MUCH in the news these days is the Neiman-Marcus 17th annual fashion exposition in Dallas. It's one of the biggest fashion show conventions of the year. According to a United Press report on the opening day (Monday), the Dior "flat" look has its influence, but not as drastically as first believed.

"THE SMALLER but lifted bustline, the emphasized hipline and the longer torso gave Monday night's audience. . . . a shapely picture of the 1954 season, despite rumors to the contrary," the report says.

In fact, below is a report of the entire evening's event, by Anne Lee, UP fashion writer:

An exposition ball followed the presentation, heralded as the greatest single showing of fashions in the world. This year a near $5 million worth of fine jewels, furs, apparel and accessories was paraded down gilded fashion runways by sleek models.

Supporting the promise of a shapely season ahead was the introduction of one of nine items representing the first presentation of Christian Dior apparel outside his Paris salon — a black underpinning to serve as the basis for the new high-busted look.

Outstanding in the fabulous collection were show stoppers such as a 25 carat diamond tiara. . . a gold kid trench coat. . .a white ermine halter. . .a broadtail coat with great chinchilla collar. . .and an evening sheath striped in bold green and blue sequins and worn with what is probably the most expensive ensemble of pear-shaped emeralds in the world.

Punctuating the showing was the Byzantine silhouette inspired by mosaics and which feature the exposition theme for 1954, a "Mosaic of Fashion."

Noted was the turn to wool for evening wear, the use of fur on fur, the rage for shirtdresses of handsome fabric, the importance of greatcoats for day and evening wear, the return to the fur-touched dressmaker suit, the emphasis on the short formal, the flattery of large collars and the delight in nude and ornately trimmed footwear.

The second showing of couturier designs from America and abroad will be held at the store Wednesday night. Proceeds from the exposition showing and from the exposition ball will benefit the Permanent Acquisition Fund of the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts.

Although it's hard to get in the mood during our still-warm weather, cooler days are not far away. That also means it's time to start thinking of a new fall coat. Styles along that line have the same "new look" this fall that even has touched nearly every fashion item.

The loose-full silhouette continues to receive endorsement; the slim coat gets stronger support, especially man-inspired overcoats; the fitted silhouette increases in representation and the shorter-than-long (36- to 40-inch coat) is important news in costumes. These silhouettes are, therefore, in tune with the two prevailing dress silhouettes: the easy and casual, and the flared corset look.

Fitted coats are seen in all variations. The slimmed down dress coat, the 38-inch tunic, the elongated hipline trumpet flare, the midriff or corselet fitted coat with ballerina skirt, the bloused back and the belted coat with ease above waistline and the reefer give scope to the fitted look.

Women's Wear Daily's fashion writers find that three-quarter or seven-eighth coats from the slim box line to flared effects topping two-piece sheath dress are prettier than ever. Rich colored velours, zibeline broad cloths, cashmere, camel with tweed, jersey, flannel, crepe, are sometimes touched with fur.

White furs on black-white tweeds, or velvety coatings, namely mink, beaver, ermine, muskrat offer excitement to the fur-trimmed coat story. A big talking point in that many of these wide cape-like collars are removable, revealing finished neckline beneath.

Bigger, wider and flatter collars this season. The sailor, portrait, the cowl effect that wraps high or opens to shoulder spanning width, the harness or bolter that folds about the face, and the frame collar set apart from cardigan neckline.

Fur coats follow the same two major trends — greater casualness, through eased lines; and greater elegance, with big crushable collars, gently dropped shoulders and narrow sleeves.

The suits that are making the biggest fashion impression for fall are the box suit, the semi-fitted box suit, the bloused suit and the very tailored suit. We show the semi-fitted box suit (left) by Nettie Rosenstein in pale mauve lightweight katchouka wool. Suit has half belt, matching velvet collar and slim skirt. The flat mink stole is by Leo Ritter. Claire McCardell's three-piece costume (center) has brief fitted jacket in red and a gray silk blouse teamed with skirt in muted red plaid. Box jacket appears (right) in this suit by Jane Derby. Jacket is in brown, beige and black Lesur tweed with fringe buttons closing the front. Straight skirt is black.

Return Of Man-Inspired Tailored Suits Highlights Coming Fall Fashion Scene

By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Most significant highlight of the fall suit picture is the return of the tailored suit, the man-inspired influence that's felt in coats as well.

This comeback of the tailleur is a near-paradox in that this is a year in which fashion is characterized by soft, easy lines and a true femininity. The tailleur, therefore, gets gentle handling. Designers have used pin striped flannels and satin-faced broadcloth for this suit and particularly like showing it in black, brown and oxford gray.

The very lightweight suit (feather-weight tweed), box and semi-fitted box suit and the bloused suit create fashion fireworks this year. Nettie Rosenstein favors the boxy suit but gives it easy lines. Tweeds, important in all collections for coats, suits and dresses, are soft and light in this fall's suits. These are ideal for wear under coats and many have been designed with companion coats.

Very short jackets, cropped just at the waistline, share top billing with the bloused jacket. Designer Claire McCardell likes this brief jacket set off by skirt in contrasting color. Blousing is always at the back with a smooth front and belt below the blousing. This is an easy, graceful line typical of fall fashions.

Shoulder lines in all fall suits are narrower and natural. This includes the tailleur, made feminine by hand-picked edges and shawl-collars.

Cut-away suits that copy a man's dinner jacket, the corselet suit and the waistcoat suit are dressy for town. These follow a slim and molded silhouette, sometimes have gracefully pleated skirts.

Skirt lengths, incidentally, are about 14 inches in most collections. But generally, designers feel that American women will continue to wear the length most individually becoming to them. In any case, there's no drastic change.

New Cotton Fabrics Introduced For Fall

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

New cotton fabrics are being introduced for cool fall weather. Some are blended with silk or rabbit's hair, some with suede and flannel. Cotton dresses have earned a place in the budget-and-fashion-wise woman's fall wardrobe because of their washability, fine styling and easy ironing.

The patterns of these dresses are exciting and varied. There are embroidered motifs, fruits, flowers, hearts, paper dolls and doves.

Striped cottons are more interesting, too, featuring thin lines of iridescent colors. Plaid cottons are sparked with embroidered dots.

Now the homemaker is being offered cotton yardage that's wrinkle resistant, permanently pleated and embossed or crinkled to make ironing completely unnecessary.

Of course, it's always a good idea to double check the tag of the no-iron cotton dress. Sometimes the no-iron feature of a dress may depend entirely on the length of time it's been in the dryer.

Colored cottons, of course, should always be washed in warm, rather than hot, soapsuds and should be dried out of doors.

If you want to avoid ironing any cotton garment, remember to hand press it while it's damp, or better-yet, while it's dripping wet. Smooth collars and cuffs, hem and seams, and all ruffles.

Fabric Mixing Told For Campus Wear

By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Fabric and fabric combinations are getting a big fashion play this fall. This applies to back-to-college fashions just as much as it does to high fashion.

This year, corduroy is used in combination with other fabrics (cotton, jersey, leather) for more fashion interest.

Corduroy is, of course, cotton and thus makes the ideal teammate for all types of cotton in suits and separates. It's at its prettiest when it's used in combination with cotton prints: blouses, dresses or coat linings.

Corduroy with wool jersey, one of the newer fashion combinations, is seen in perfectly-cued colors so that blouse and skirt might harmonize absolutely. Fashion interest lies in the combination of the two textures and therefore, they're usually used in plain colors.

Print is handled effectively, however, in circular corduroy skirts that are topped by black jersey blouses.

Bold taffeta plaids look new as a dressy touch for blouses or dresses, for trimmings and accessories.

School bells have begun ringing all over the country and this is the time when the breakfast bell should ring loud and clear, too.

About a third of 10,000 students polled recently admitted they eat little or no breakfast. That points up an alarming nutritional problem. Every medical and nutritional authority emphasizes the importance of a good breakfast for children and teen-agers.

The Utah Experiment Station studied breakfasts in two junior high schools. They found, although children of this age have very high nutritional needs, many of them ate skimpy, inadequate breakfasts and did not make up the resulting nutritional lack at other meals of the day. These findings confirm studies made in other states.

The Utah study revealed that boys eat better breakfasts than girls. For example, boys ate twice as much breakfast cereal as girls, and about twice as many eggs a week as girls. Boys ate more bread, too.

But both boys and girls generally fell short of a good breakfast. Nutritionists of the Utah station say a good breakfast should contain milk, foods rich in vitamin C such as oranges and grapefruit and tomato juice, cereal, egg or other high-quality protein food, and bread.

Milk, according to the nutritionists, contributes most protein to children's breakfast. Nevertheless, only two groups of boys had the full cup of milk for breakfast — the minimum recommended amount. Furthermore, although vitamin C is needed daily, less than 12 per cent of the children had orange juice or tomato juice daily.

Many other state reports on breakfast habits of school children show the same dangerous indifference to breakfast. It should supply from one third to one quarter of the day's nutrition. When it doesn't, children grow tired easily, become listless at school dropping behind in their studies.

Now, with the beginning of the school year, nutritionists, teachers, P-TA, and careful parents are stressing the vital part a good breakfast plays in a good school day. The louder the breakfast bells ring, the healthier and happier our crop of future citizens will be.

If Baby likes to sleep on his stomach, it's safe to let him do so provided you've given him a firm, flat mattress on which he can move his head easily. Most often, babies believed to have smothered have died from a rapid and complete infection. In the opinion of many doctors it's best that Baby sleep on stomach and safer, too.

When you start giving Baby fruit, begin with a teaspoonful. It should be strained, of course. Gradually increase the amount to three or four tablespoonsful a day. Use the little cans of prepared food. They may be kept safely in the refrigerator for two or three days if they're covered. Baby may like the same fruit day after day or he may want a change. But try to get him started tasting different fruits so that his food habits are not fixed.

The emotional climate of the family is important to Baby. He's aware of loud, angry voices, bickering or arguments. He also knows when you're upset or nervous. Confusion and hurry will make him feel tense and anxious, too. In other words, he'll reflect the atmosphere about him even though he doesn't understand the words that are being said. So it's important to keep the atmosphere about him as calm and quiet as possible.

GRACE FRIEND

Dear Grace Friend

My daughter was widowed during the Korean conflict after a brief marriage.

She has now fallen in love with an attractive young man and they have announced their plans for a wedding.

We are very happy about it and want to give them a wedding since my daughter didn't have one the first time she married.

Would you tell us how to word the wedding invitations and also would you say that in this instance she could wear white?

Mrs. L.

Dear Mrs. L.

Your wedding invitations will be issued like this:

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jones request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter Nancy Martha Nelson to etc . . .

In the above case use her given name plus the name of her late husband. If you prefer, you may use her name as Nancy Jones Nelson . . .

It would be incorrect for her to wear white. Instead she should choose a pretty pastel with which she will wear a small hat which may or may not have a brief veil as she wishes.

WEDDING INVITATION

Dear Mrs. Friend

A cousin of mine living in another state is going to be married soon. This week I received an invitation to the wedding.

I feel this is very bad taste as they know I can't possibly come to the wedding. Does it mean that I should send a gift?

Mary

Dear Mary

It isn't bad taste at all to send wedding invitations to members of the family too far away to attend the event. It simply means "we are sorry that you aren't close enough to attend this gala occasion but we want you to know that we have thought of you and would want you here if possible." It should be accepted in that light and as an announcement would.

Send a gift or not as you wish. Usually one's family is anxious to send a relative a wedding gift. If for some reason you don't want to, just don't.

Mississippi Legislature In Session Over Racial Issue

By BILL MIDDLEBROOKS

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 7 —UP— The Mississippi Legislature was called into special session Tuesday to tackle the segregation issue. One proposal before the session would authorize abolition of public schools to keep Negroes out of white schools.

One brief constitutional amendment — the private school plan— topped a list of items aimed at strengthening the state's legal position on the race issue because of the May 17 U.S. Supreme Court decision outlawing public school segregation.

The proposed amendment, which would have to be ratified by the voters in the November general election, would empower the Legislature to abolish public schools should Negroes make an organized effort to crack the color barrier.

The plan was similar to one approved by the Georgia Legislature and upon which Georgians will vote in November. Gov. Herman Talmadge of Georgia is spearheading efforts to get it approved there.

In South Carolina the people ratified an amendment authorizing the Legislature to remove the requirement for the state to provide an education for all children.

A school plan for South Carolina, advocated by Gov. Nominate George Bell Timmerman Jr., still is being studied. It provides an "alternate" school arrangement whereby schol patrons who don't want a non-segregated building petition for a segregated school. It was presumed under the arrangement that white patrons would do the petitioning.

The Mississippi amendment would authorize the Legislature to sell public school buildings and lands, and appropriate funds to operate private school systems.

The Louisiana Legislature, acting to preserve school separation, passed a constitutional amendment last May providing that segregation be maintained under the state's police power. Another bill would authorize school superintendents to assign students to schools.

Stockyards Mark Set

CHICAGO, Sept. 7 —UP— The billionth animal to arrive at the Chicago stockyards since its opening in 1865, was sold Tuesday for $1 a pound.

Bert Fevold, Humboldt, Iowa, brough his 1,180 pound Hereford steer through the gates of the stockyards Monday to complete the billionth animal mark.

William Wood Prince, president of the Chicago stockyards, was to give Fevold a $1,180 check at welcoming ceremonies Tuesday. The dollar-a-pound price is more than four times higher than the average present market.

The steer will be placed on exhibition by the stock yards after the company unrolls its plush welcome mat. The yards' stone gate was decorated with bunting and flag.

During its 89 years, the Chicago yards has received more than 200 million cattle, more than 25 million calves, more than half a billion hogs, and about a quarter-billion sheep.

Fossil Head Found

ZUMPANGO, Mexico, Sept. 7 —UP—The 450-pound fossilized head of a prehistoric mammoth was found in a field near here, it was reported Friday. A farmer, Ignacio Ramirez Tapia, and his 12-year-old helper, Marcelino Rojas, made the discovery as they worked in an irrigation ditch. The fossil will be turned over to the Mexican National Institute of Anthropology.

She suggested that a pact be made and that any person caught in a tnatrum pay a penalty for his temperament by bringing a bottle of whisky for the whole company the following day. A few weeks later, Ann's own cork popped and the next day she showed up with two bottles of firewater.

"Hey, the agreement is just one bottle for temperament," she was reminded by her leading man, Don Porter.

"I know," said Ann. "But this bottle is for my temperament yesterday and this one's for the explosion I feel coming on today."

MOST BITING yarn about the extreme youth of men in television is told by friends of veteran star Ted Lewis.

Ted, who once thrilled mom and pop when he lifted his battered silver - lined top hat and sang "When My Baby Smiles at Me," made his TV bow on a live variety show. Much to his surprise, he found himself working with striplings who had never seen him in action.

All went well until dress rehearsal, when the youthful producer of the show registered horror as Ted took his place before the cameras.

"Everything's wonderful, Mr. Lewis," the producer said on dismissing the company for dinner. "Your music's fine, your singing's great and I like your clothes.

"But for Pete's sake, will you get that OLD HAT blocked before we go on the air. It looks awful!"

WILLIAM EYTHE tells of the time he was producing a revue peopled with young talent never before seen by the public. Among them was a shapely teen - aged dancer who would do her specialties during rehearsal, then rush off to the wings to continue reading a book.

Because the young miss was so beautiful and clearly headed for stardom, Eythe and the show's writers became intrigued with her literary pursuits.

For days they made bets on whether she was reading William Faulkner, Kathleen Winsor or Ernest Hemingway. Finally Eythe decided to find out, followed her offstage, peeked at the book's title. Then he returned to his cronies.

"She is reading," gulped Eythe, "The Bobbsey Twins in the Adirondacks.' "

Church Inefficiency

Every so often, and much to our delight, some school teacher lets the cat out of the bag as far as money is concerned and gives us a chance to comment on some of the inanities of the public school system.

Almost simultaneously there were two reports from the school front that ought to be of interest to parents and taxpayers. One was in a recent issue of This Week, a weekly news magazine in which a school teacher, George Weinstein, said as the title of the piece: "Let's Cut School Vacation." The second was a United Press report from Chicago on the convention of the American Federation of Teachers (an AFL union), recommending to schools that they seek a starting salary of $4,500 for school teachers, increasing to $8,000 in eight steps or less. The union also recommended that a school day should not exceed five and one-half hours of supervised activity.

The figures given by Weinstein in his article are of interest. He pointed out that our schools are closed more than half of each year, the average school remaining open for business 180 days a year. Of this total, he added, the average pupil is present in school only 153 days a year.

Naturally Weinstein's approach to the problem of the number of days the schools are in operation was a little different than we would take. He feels that the schools should be open more days of the year not in the interest of economy or efficiency but for the purpose of giving the schools greater control over the minds and time and energies of the children. He doesn't recommend that the students be engaged in actual training during all this time, either. The time now being given to summer vacation, he feels, could be done with a sort of vacation camp school in which academic training and "book learning" would be sublimated or eliminated in favor of non-academic subjects.

He doesn't suggest, however, that teacher work a full year like those who must dig up the money for taxes to pay the teachers. Such a program would, he admits, send teachers' salaries up 20 to 30 per cent which "sends the school budget up proportionately and adds several points to the tax rate."

All this, of course, is just another move in the direction already blue-printed for California in which the students will be taken before kindergarten age, will be kept under school control during the summer and then, naturally, through the winter months. When this was first proposed there were serious repercussions, even from a member of the San Diego Board of Education who made known his objections through the newspapers. Yet here we have another approach to it, this time through the medium of a nationally distributed magazine reaching millions of readers. And nowhere in the article or the magazine is there any objection raised to the idea of completely taking over the lives of our youngsters so that they can more readily be conditioned to the particular form of statism being urged by the school officials at moment.

As Weinstein points out, we have a $15 billion investment in school property in the United States gathering dust week after week during the summer months and through all sorts of holidays and weekends during the school year.

It is little wonder that, in these times even those who are not opposed to the statism being taught their children in the schools are beginning to look askance at the operation of the public schools and the manner in which they are run. And it may be that if there is some question in the minds of those paying the bills on the lack of efficiency in the schools that there will be a growing question as to whether the school system, itself, is a sound basis upon which to build. There may be a growing question in the minds of some as to whether a free enterprise system of education which would have the opportunity to work efficiently and economically as free enterprise must work, wouldn't do a lot better job of educating the future generations of America.

Maugham's Advice To Young Writer Is To See World

By HENRY McLEMORE

(Henry McLemore has been ordered to take a short vacation during which time we are substituting a daily column by J. P. McEvoy, the well known humorist.)

By J. P. McEVOY

When I visited Somerset Maugham in London not long ago he was about to celebrate his 80th birthday. As you know, he is probably the most popular writer of English in the world today.

"I just want to ask you one question," I said. "It's about an interview you gave years ago to the editor of 'Hobo News.' He told me that when he interviewed you, you said a wealthy woman asked you one day, 'What would you advise me to do about my son? He wants to be a writer.'

"And you told her: 'Give him $500 and tell him to go to the Devil.' "

"That's true," said Maugham. And I went on to explain to her that with $500 he couldn't possibly starve, but he couldn't live on it very long either. And then he would have to get busy and work.

"He would have to go to all kinds of places and meet all kinds of people, have all kinds of adventures, and then he'd have something to write about."

"I don't know it but that's the kind of life I have been living as a Roving Correspondent for some 20-odd years. A good part of my adult education gathered in this way comes under the heading of "Geography."

All you little children going back to school this week will be glad to know that the best way to learn geography is to walk around on it instead of looking at all those colored blotches on the maps until you get spots before your eyes.

Finland is just one of those until you go there, which I did a few years ago. There I lunched in Helsinki, the capital, with a Finnish editor.

I asked him: "What are you doing here about the Iron Curtain?"

He replied: "We don't know about the Iron Curtain, but we know all about the Iron Shoulder. For hundreds of years we have lived next door to the Russians and that heavy Iron Shoulder is leaning against our door all the time. If the door gives ever so little there is an Iron Foot in the crack, and the rest follows."

"Then what does it feel like to be a Finn?"

BETTER JOBS

Reasons Why U.S. Should Get Out Of United Nations

Since the newspapers publishing these articles have been distributing "Let's Get Out of UN" buttons, I want to give some further information as to why I think this is so important.

I have just been reading a pamphlet issued by the United Nations under the heading of "Teaching About the United Nations and the Specialized Agencies" and "Our Rights As Human Beings, A Discussion Guide on the Universal Declaration of Human Rights."

This Declaration of Human Rights was adopted on December 10, 1948 in Paris by a vote of 48 of the nations for it and no nations against it, with eight absent. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was chairman of this Declaration of Human Rights. It has many statements in it that are rational, many that are vague and some take away from certain individuals their inalienable rights. Some that take away from an individual the right to plan his own life so long as he permits every other individual to plan his own life. Some that take away from an individual his right to be a steward of his life. That is the reason I am against the United Nations and believe that the United States should get out of it.

The United Nations uses the words "human rights" to mean that man is entitled to certain things. It uses the words right and entitled interchangeably so there is no question as to what is meant.

Now I want to quote some of the Articles in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. Article 22 reads:

"Everyone, as a member of society, has the right to social security and is entitled to realization, through national effort and international cooperation and in accordance with the organization and resources of each State, of the economic, social and cultural rights indispensable for his dignity and the free development of his personality."

Under these rights they list:

"Everyone has the right to work, to free choice of employment, to just and favorable conditions of work and to protection against unemployment."

In other words, the government proposes to furnish employment. But the government has no tools with which to furnish employment unless we believe in state communism—that the state should own the tools and that they should not be owned by the human beings who produce them. That is the same philosophy as adopted by the New Deal; it is a complete repudiation of the American belief as set forth by our Founding Fathers on a voluntary government. It is an adoption of an involuntary government that gives the government the right to take from one person to benefit another. And none of these so-claimed "rights" can be had out of the air; they can only be supplied by material things, which are taken by taxation from one group to give to another.

Article 23, paragraph 3 says:

"Everyone who works has the right to just and favorable remuneration insuring for himself and his family an existence worthy of human dignity, and supplemented, if necessary, by other means of social protection."

Note the words "and supplemented, if necessary, by other means of social protection." It is not frank enough to say that "other means" means giving the United Nations, with 59 votes to the United States' one, the right to tax the United States to supply these "other means of social protection."

Article 24 says:

"Everyone has the right to rest and leisure, including reasonable limitation of working hours and periodic holidays with pay."

But who is going to furnish the leisure and the pay for holidays when the workers produce so little that he must work long hours to support himself and his family. The worker will either have to work for less on other days than he worth or the consumer will have to pay more or capital will have to work for less to furnish the pay for holidays. Which method does the U N propose to put these "rights" into effect?

Article 25 reiterates by saying:

"Everyone has the right to a standard of living adequate for the health and well-being of himself and of his family, including food, clothing, housing and medical care and necessary social services, and the right to security in the event of unemployment, sickness, disability, widowhood, old age or other lack of livelihood in circumstances beyond his control."

But if he has this right and does not produce the wealth to supply these services himself, then someone else must produce for him. And according to this Declaration, he has this right even if no one thinks he is worthy enough that he is willing to voluntarily give him these blessings. Of course the solution, but they do not frankly say so, is that the United Nations will have the right to tax the various nations to supply these trumped-up rights. No one has a right to something he does not earn or that someone does not voluntarily give him, but has to be secured by aggression. And that is the way these unnatural "rights" will be secured—by aggression—by the UN having the power to tax the prosperious nations, the nations that are more nearly based on the belief that man must live by the sweat of his brow. But we are completely repudiating the philosophy of the Bible that man must live by the sweat of his brow, and substituting for God's or Nature's laws arbitrary and whimsical laws made by man.

These are some of the reasons why we are making available buttons with the inscription "Let's Get Out of UN." Anyone who wants to retain the American way of life with a voluntary government istead of an involuntary government, as the UN will be, can secure without cost one of these buttons by calling at any of the newspapers carrying this article. Additional buttons may be had for 5c each if readers want to help protect the American way of life based on a voluntary government rather than an involuntary government.

South Carolina Not Giving Up Public School System

By RAY TUCKER

(While Ray Tucker is on vacation there will be guest columns by several prominent newspaper editors. Today's column is by S. L. Latimer, Jr., Editor of The State, Columbia, S.C.)

By S. L. LATIMER, JR.

COLUMBIA, S.C. — The report seems to be abroad that South Carolina, where the prime case in the United States Supreme Court segregation ruling arose, has abandoned, or is abandoning, her public school system. This is not correct.

When public school bells rang for the new session, not only did pupils of both races take up where they left off last May, but many were enjoying new facilities, and better transportation. Attendance is compulsory between the ages of 6 and 16.

South Carolina proportionately carries the heaviest public school education load of any state in the Union, and with about the most limited means of financing it. This state ranks 43rd in per capita income, but tenth in the nation in percentage of per capita spent on education. There are 642 children of school age for every 1,000 wage-earners. Of the state's entire budget, this year, 40 per cent goes to the schools, not including capital outlay. In addition, local communities spend large sums.

Rumors about the status of South Carolina's public school system stem, no doubt, from a state constitutional amendment voted in the 1952 general election, while the segregation case was pending, but before the court's decision.

This amendment struck out a paragraph making it mandatory upon the General Assembly to provide for the operation of a public school system. Most people hadn't known of the provision, which was inserted in 1895, and furthermore, there was no yardstick by which to measure compliance. So it was of no real effect.

The schools are operating now without such a mandate, and with the largest appropriation in history. Just because a state has the power to abolish a service, does not necessarily mean that it will exercise that power. At least one state in the Union has never had such a requirement in its constitution and there may be others.

Frankly, the amendment was passed with the idea that if South Carolina ever wanted to revise the present system of education there would be no constitutional prohibition to overcome, not even an ineffective one.

No one in authority, including Gov. James F. Byrnes, who often has been misquoted on the matter, has ever said that South Carolina was going to abandon public education. In the first place, the governor has no such prerogative, and in the second place what he said several years ago in a public address was that while he would regret to see it, if the court's decision was adverse to the separate, but equal, facilities doctrine, this state might reluctantly, as a final resort, be forced to abandon the present system. But the authority is with the legislature, not with the governor. And he has recommended no such legislation.

South Carolina officially makes no bones of the fact that it is hopeful that it may continue segregation within the framework of the Supreme Court ruling. A committee, appointed on authority of the all-white, all-Democratic legislature, is studying circumvention possibilities, though it can make no final report until it knows the terms of the Supreme Court's order.

The state branch of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, which would like for segregation lines to be broken down without delay, has announced that it will not formulate a statewide plan of action of its own before its annual meeting in October.

So far, it should be remembered, the Supreme Court has only issued a pronouncement outlining a basic doctrine. A decree is yet to come, and no one knows what it will provide — what time will be allowed for compliance and by whom, or how, the order will be enforced. The Court is to hear, at a date yet to be set, arguments as to what the terms of implementation should be.

The State of South Carolina was not a party to the case from this state and therefore only the Clarendon District from which it arose will be affected by the original Supreme Court order. The NAACP, however, has started suits in several other districts. The State of South Carolina aided the Clarendon school district in its fight, but never was joined in the action.

In 1951, South Carolina began a program of improvement of facilities and transportation involving around $175,000,000, a lot of money for so small a state. Much has already been done, and work is proceeding on all building previously approved. The total so far spent is $100,000,000. A 3 per cent general sales tax provides the money. But equalizing the schools began years before the present controversy over segregation.

Schools for both races have the same number of grades (12), teachers get the same state pay, rights. They work the same number of months. Every child living a mile and a half from school and outside the corporate limits of a town or city is transported to and from classes free. All Negro schools are manned by Negro teachers and principals; all white schools by white teachers and principals.

In the meantime, let no one think that South Carolina has abolished her public education, or that she intends doing so soon.

The CRACKER BARREL

One of the things that impresses me about Ike is his off-hand ability not to be impressed by anybody. The House Committee on Communist Aggression after conducting exhaustive hearings in Chicago, New York, Munich, and Berlin, said they felt it was necessary for the free nations to end all diplomatic and trade relations with Iron Curtain countries in order to win the cold war. And when Ike heard the results of these long studies he said, right off, "Oh, I don't think so."

Viereck lost a son, killed, in World War II while he was in prison and he is in hard circumstances. None of the organs of "public opinion" which mournfully deplore compulsory "conformity" and the "atmosphere of fear" when actual Communist traitors are under fire, has ever reconsidered the Viereck case or the savage atmosphere in which he and others in similar condition were put to ordeal. The radio was used to inflame public hatred of Viereck in Washington for a year before his "trial."

Viereck's intimacy with House is beyond question. He says House told him that it was he, House, who advised Roosevelt to make his dramatic flight to Chicago in 1932 to accept his first presidential nomination and insists that House had great influence with Roosevelt throughout his first term. That would include the period in which Roosevelt, with cynical contempt for his undertaking and for the intelligence of the people, completely abondoned his campaign platform and tried many of the fundamentals of the Philip Dru revolution. These included the packing of the federal courts, frustrated then but accomplished later as Roosevelt's term was extended for life; the seizure of "new instruments of power"; a flat threat by Roosevelt to impose legislation himself if Congress refused to obey him and the sustained attack on the severalty and sovereignty of the states.

Viereck says it was House, who picked the late pro-Communist professor William E. Dodd, an obscure pedagog at the University of Chicago, to be ambassador to Germany in Hitler's time. The late Ed Flynn, boss of the Bronx, wrote that this was a case of mistaken identity. Roosevelt, he said, had wanted President Harold W. Dodds of Princeton. Eleanor Roosevelt later horned into the mixup and the truth about the choice of old Dodd may never be known. At any rate, he did his worst to arouse trouble for the United States while he was in Germany and he crowned his career with a hit and run job in Virginia in which he ran down a little Negro girl and tried to escape. His son was routed out of a government job by congressional action and his daughter, who wrote two books on her good times in Germany, married a man who led an "army" in a "march" on the capitol in Albany which included many figures familiar in such revolutionary activities.

Mr. Viereck says that House lost ut with Roosevelt after about 1936. oosevelt's mother, Sara, had irrited mama's boy by admonishing im to do whatever House advised. ouse had cultivated Sara and Mrs. om Lamont, a determined woman arried to a docile money-changer t the head of the house of Morgan. She was as red as a slit hroat and a pioneer among the ult of rich Americans who thought it would be fun to have a bloody revolution.

Viereck wrote all of the articles which appeared in Liberty magazine in the late '20's under the name of E. M. House. And he believes, in view of the fact that House freely used him as ghost, that House had a spook for the writing of Philip Dru." Moreover, Mr. Viereck thinks House lacked the creative ability to compose this novel, awful though it was from a literary standpoint.

Pegler Gets Autographed Copy Of Philip Dru Book

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—I have obtained a autographed copy of Colonel E. M House's prophetic revolutionar novel, "Philip Dru: Administrator," predicting a great deal the program of the Marxian Democrats which was substituted fo constitutional government unde Wilson, F. D. Roosevelt and Harry Truman. This copy, published in 1920, is inscribed "for George Sylvester Viereck, whose path has now pleasantly crossed mine. E. M. House, 1930." The 1920 edition was published by the same firm, B. W. Huebsch, of New York, which put out the original work in 1912, the year that House engineered the nomination of Woodrow Wilson for his first term.

George Sylvester Viereck, to whom it is inscribed, spent almost five years in prison during and after World War II charged with having failed to report to the government sufficient details of his employment by the German (Nazi) government as a propagandist in the United States. He had been "pro-German" in the first war, which was another way of saying that he courageously opposed the British and French propaganda depicting the German people as brutish Huns and the French, with their Napoleonic glory, as unoffending victims of a foul aggression.

At the same time, William Randolph Hearst established a reputation for great patriotism and courage by exposing the British propaganda and political manipulations which ultimately dragged the United States into three world wars, inflated the currency to a trifle of its original and normal value and debauched the Republic, all according to the plot of "Philip Dru: Administrator."

Viereck, a poet as well as a propagandist, was born in Germany 71 years ago. He insists that, although he was incidentally pro-German, his primary purpose was to convince the American political authorities and the people that we had nothing to gain but doom by butting into the wars of Europe. His prosecution in the second war was one of the many judicial atrocities of a furious administration which put men and women on the rack for expressing opinions which they had an absolute constitutional right to express. Most of them insisted that they had a moral and patriotic duty to God and country, to utter the thoughts for which they were persecuted.

Viereck lost a son, killed, in World War II while he was in prison and he is in hard circumstances. None of the organs of "public opinion" which mournfully deplore compulsory "conformity" and the "atmosphere of fear" when actual Communist traitors are under fire, has ever reconsidered the Viereck case or the savage atmosphere in which he and others in similar condition were put to ordeal. The radio was used to inflame public hatred of Viereck in Washington for a year before his "trial."

He says House told him that it was he, House, who advised Roosevelt to make his dramatic flight to Chicago in 1932 to accept his first presidential nomination and insists that House had great influence with Roosevelt throughout his first term. That would include the period in which Roosevelt, with cynical contempt for his undertaking and for the intelligence of the people, completely abondoned his campaign platform and tried many of the fundamentals of the Philip Dru revolution. Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK, N. Y. — Every now and then any man has the right to get up on his hind legs and yell for the sweepers to come in and broom away the trash. In case the sweepers haven't got a broom, I'll put up a dollar for a new one, if you can buy a new one for a dollar these days. What needs sweeping out, and has for a long time, is the profession of head-shrinking, commonly called psychiatry. It needs sweeping out not because the boys who practice it don't know their business but because they can't keep their mouths shut and they seem to have less professional rectitude than a medicine man hustling swamp water off the tail-gate of a mule wagon.

Every time some crime worthy of a full column on Page One comes along you can put it down that as the night follows the day some well-heeled head-shrinker is coming right out in print with a diagnosis of what ails the criminal involved. This is done purely in the interests of getting one's name on Page One along with the criminal's and is accomplished without ever having seen the monster, without any case history whatsoever and strictly off the cuff.

I am so certain of this procedure in bad ethics that I am five skins ahead of a man with whom I bet the other day. Four adolescents of normal, self-respecting families were arrested and charged with at least one provable murder, torture of vagrants, whipping of two girls and assorted mayhem on helpless, hapless citizens who happened to cross their paths. The newspapers of New York, as of elsewhere, probably, forthwith gave the case considerable space. I bet a colleague $5 that within 24 hours at least three psychiatrists would offer voluntary comment on the psychiatric aspects of the case and I was willing to make it eight-to-five that a certain practitioner would lead the pack. My boy took the first part of the bet but ducked the other angle. I could have won another $5—the specific psychiatrist I mentioned, who is noted for rushing into print with diagnoses of notorious patients he never has met, was the first in line. As usual.

They tell me, a bubble-head layman, that a psychologist does not have to be an M. D., but a psychiatrist must be. The last I heard, the American Medical Association wears a perpetual frown directed at M.D.'s who rush themselves into public print and achieve a measure of unethical publicity. The last I heard, also, self respecting M.D.'s back swiftly away from issuing any kind of diagnosis of the ills afflicting a person they have not even met, much less treated.

I can cite exactly 11 times in which the above-mentioned publicity hound has rushed himself into these long-distance diagnoses via the newspapers and all I am wondering at the moment is how often does a man have to transgress before his more reticent and professional fellows in the AMA call a halt lest he smirch all of them?

This fellow is no worse than at least two others, all of whom find, it apparently easy to diagnose at the end of a telephone wire. It is a nauseating spectacle. It not only stains the profession in general but most certainly degrades the practice of psychiatry. How can any sensible man or woman have the slightest respect for such men and the medical art they practice? They put psychiatry on a circus level and not many notches higher than a Gypsy fortune teller's tent.

Great and noble work is being done in psychiatry. Enormous good has been done and thousands once doomed to unhappy, twisted lives are living in the sunshine of emotion because some quiet, devoted psychiatrists went to work on them.

In the case of the four sadistic adolescents now in jail, the spectacle of rushing into print was sharpened by a little man who works day and night in virtual anonymity to help his fellow men. After three days of reading the pompous public diagnoses of his bellowing associates, he turned quietly to a colleague and said: "I always think it best if you see the patient first."

Baxter First Former TOT Champ To Repeat

By BUCK FRANCIS
Pampa News Sports Editor

Rex Baxter, Jr., of Amarillo became the first two-time champion of the Top o' Texas Invitational golf tournament when he swept past Don Kaplan of Borger in the finals yesterday afternoon, 4-3.

Baxter thus re-wrote the record books in two departments, that of being the first to successfully defend a title and also being the first former champion to win again.

One of the largest galleries in recent years followed yesterday's battle of the teen-agers for the TOT title. Neither, despite their youth, (Baxter is 19 and Kaplan 18) wilted under pressure.

In fact, Baxter was at his best in posting five birdies and six pars on the first 11 holes to go five-under par figures and take a 5-up lead. Kaplan was even with par through 11 holes but it was not near good enough to keep pace with the amazing Baxter.

Kaplan Rallies

Kaplan, who only graduated from Borger High School last spring, then rallied to win 13 and 14 with pars when Baxter went into his only slump of the round.

Baxter, however, regained his stride to post a par on 15 to halve the hole and close out the match.

In semi-final matches yesterday morning, Baxter disposed of rugget Bobby Briggs of San Antonio, 2-1, while Kaplan was winning by the same margin over the remaining Pampan in the title running, C. F. McGinnis.

H. L. Bradley, Borger, who tied with Briggs for medal honors but later lost out in a playoff, won the Top o' Texas Flight (alias the championship flight consolation) with a 4-3 win over James White of Pampa in the finals.

All flight winners were awarded a wrist watch while the runners-up received a travelling bag. Baxter and Tommy Cox of Pampa, the latter winner of the first flight, each received a trophy in addition to the wrist watches awarded to the flight winners.

Bradley, in winning the Top o' Texas Flight, was presented with a set of woods and a pair of shoes.

All consolation winners received a caddy cart.

The largest field in the tourney history, 206, took part in the just completed tournament.

Following is yesterday's championship match card and the results of all flight winners and consolation winners:

Win 7 Of 8 On Final '54 Homestand

The Oilers closed out their finest homestand of the season last night by sweeping a doubleheader from the Plainview Ponies to tighten their hold on first place in the West Texas-New Mexico League standings.

The locals won the first game of last night's twinbill, 3-1, and then outlasted the Ponies in the nightcap, 7-6, amidst threatening weather that once held up the game 20 minutes.

Last night's twin victories gave the Oilers seven wins in the eight games of their final scheduled homestand of the 1954 season.

By winning both games of the Labor Day bargain bill, the Oilers stretched their league lead to 1½ games over the idle Clovis Pioneers. The Oilers will close out their season at Amarillo tonight and tomorrow night.

For Clovis to overtake the Oilers, she would have to win all four of her remaining games should the Oilers gain as much as a split in their two-game series with Amarillo.

The Oilers could clinch first place by sweeping the Amarillo series regardless of how Clovis does in her remaining games.

Vibert Clarke will likely get the mound assignment for the Oilers in tonight's game. He will be seeking his 17th win of the season.

In last night's twinbill, the Oilers scored all of their runs in the third inning of the nightcap off ex-Oiler Don Tierney to win 3-1. Jonas Gaines went the route for the Oilers in posting his 15th win of the campaign.

A two-run error and a run scoring double by Doug Lewis accounted for the three Oiler markers.

The Oilers broke loose with six runs in the first inning of the nightcap and then went on to a 7-6 win. Eight of the nine Oilers in the lineup hit safely in the big first inning.

Braves Slip Into 2nd Place In NL

By NORMAN MILLER
United Press Sports Writer

The irrepressible Milwaukee Braves, who keep bouncing back like a slap-happy boxer with an iron jaw, levelled their best punches Tuesday at the title-hungry New York Giants as the "old champ" Brooklyn Dodgers appeared just about counted out.

On Labor Day, 1954, time was running out, too, on those other battle-scarred champs, the New York Yankees, who are finding the pangs of old age too much of a handicap in their pennant bout with the spirited Cleveland Indians.

As a result of the heavy holiday strife, the "magic number" for the Indians was 13 and for the Giants 16. That meant any combination of Cleveland victories and Yankee defeats that added to 13 would clinch the pennant for the Indians. The same situation prevailed around the No. 16 in the National League.

A Safer Lead

The Indians, with a 4 1-2 game lead over the Yankees, appeared to be in a safer position than the Giants, who lead the Braves by four and the Dodgers by five. The Yankees have only 17 games left to catch Cleveland, while Milwaukee has 19 to catch the Giants.

While the Giants divided a double-header with the Philadelphia Phillies, the Braves vaulted into second place by sweeping the Chicago Cubs 13 to 2 and 6 to 1, and the dispirited Dodgers were bounced twice by the Pittsburgh Pirates 9 to 6 in 12 innings and 9 to 7. The Giants won the opener from the Phils 8 to 4, but lost the nightcap 5 to 4 in 11 innings to Robin Roberts' 20th victory of the season.

In the American League, both the Indians and Yankees split twin bills. Bob Lemon beat the Orioles 6 to 1 with his 21st triumph in the opening game, but Dick Kryhoski's 10th inning bases-loaded single gave Baltimore a 3 to 2 nightcap win.

Jimmy Piersall ruined the Yankees' hopes of gaining ground when he walloped a two-run eighth inning homer that enabled the Boston Red Sox to win the second game 8 to 7. New York won the opener 6 to 5 when Andy Carey singled with the bases loaded in the ninth.

There were many who scoffed that the Braves were playing "over their head" when they went on a rampage last month and climbed to within 3 1-2 games of first place on Aug. 15. And there were many "I told you so's" when they slumped and dropped back 7 1-2 games off the pace as late as Aug. 31.

But here they are again within striking distance of the lead, with a nine-game winning streak, and with slugger Ed Mathews on a hitting spree! Mathews collected eight hits Monday, including his 35th homer.

Roberts Gets 20th Win

Hank Thompson drove in three runs with a homer and two singles in pacing the Giants to their win over Philadelphia. However, Roberts made it 20 victories for the fifth straight season with a six-hitter in the second game.

McLean Tigers Rated Team To Beat In District 1-A Race

By BUCK FRANCIS
Pampa News Sports Editor

McLEAN, Sept. 7 — "I don't know where they get it," was the reply of Coach Hap Rogers of the McLean Tigers when asked what he thought about his Tigers being tabbed as the 1954 District 1-A grid favorite.

"I'll tell you the team that's loaded," Rogers said, "and that's Lefors. They've got some big boys over there," he added.

The biggest squad in McLean history greeted Rogers and his assistant, Clinton Williams, when the opening practice session was called Aug. 23. Forty-two boys have donned McLean uniform for the forthcoming season.

The Tiger roster lists 13 returning lettermen, many of whom played a big part in leading McLean to an 8-2 season last year. Both losses last year came in conference play, to Canadian (0-12) and to Lefors (7-12).

The Tigers defeated Memphis, the team that represented the District 1-A in the post season playoffs, 20-13.

Five of McLean's 13 lettermen have earned three numerals while five more have won two letter awards.

The three-year lettermen are tackle Wayne Woods; guards Arthur Vineyard and James Jolly; quarterback Rickey Mantooth; and fullback Rodney Gunn.

Winner of two letter awards are ends Jim Farren and Troy Smith; tackle Don Trew; and halfbacks James Smith and Charlie Vineyard.

All 10 of the boys listed above are named on Roger's probable starting lineup for the coming season. The other starting post will be manned by Bob Boyd, 172-pound center, who has one letter.

Boyd and Charlie Vineyard are the only non-seniors listed on the potential starting eleven. Both Boyd and Vineyard are juniors.

Four other boys on the Tiger roster are seniors, bringing the total to 13 on the McLean squad of 42.

The Tiger squad this season is being bolstered by the addition of students from Alanreed whose school is being consolidated with McLean High School.

"Some of our Alanreed boys are showing promise," Rogers said. Rogers pointed out that virtually all of the Alanreed boys are playing football for the first time.

The Tigers will open the season at Shamrock Friday night.

Following is the 1954 McLean schedule and the complete squad roster:

Builder Appointed To Fill Unexpired Term Of Maybank

COLUMBIA, S.C., Sept. 7—UP—Gov. James F. Byrnes has appointed Charles E. Daniel, a Greenville construction company owner, to fill the unexpired term of the late U. S. Sen. Burnet R. Maybank.

In a statement issued from his office here, Byrnes said Daniel had advised him he would not seek the full six year term in the Nov. 2 general election.

The State Democratic Executive Committee last Friday nominated State Sen. Edgar A. Brown as the party nominee to replace Maybank, and anyone besides Brown seeking the Senate seat in November will have to do so as a write-in candidate, since the certification deadline was midnight Friday.

"Before the Senate adjourned, a resolution was adopted that the Senate shoud reconvene on the call of majority leader Knowland and Minority Leader Lyndon Johnson," Byrnes said.

"Senator Johnson could not attend the funeral of Senator Maybank. Senator Knowland was present. He advised me that in his opinion the Senate would meet as soon as the committee considering the charges against Sen. McCarthy completed its work. He said other business would be transacted by the Senate," Byrnes said.

"South Carolina is entitled to two senators in the Congress," the governor declared.

Primaries Set Today In Arizona

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 7—UP—Arizonans vote in their primary election Tuesday after a campaign marked by apathy of average citizens and half-hearted debate by the candidates.

No national issues have developed, except that the Democrats this year would like to recapture ground lost to Republicans in the past four years in this normally Democratic state.

Interest centers in finding Democratic candidates to beat Republican incumbents, Gov. Howard Pyle and Rep. John Rhodes, the first congressional district. Democrats also want to return a member of that party to the office now held by Rep. Harold E. Pattem (D-Ariz.) who leaves Congress for the insurance business.

The Democrats on the basis of registration figures should have little difficulty in winning the general election if they have picked the right men. All registrations were cancelled last January by legislative action and new registrations show the state has 203,303 registered Democrats and 82,315 Republicans.

Registration figures often mean nothing, however, in Arizona politics.

Democrats choose between two men for the gubernatorial nomination. They are former U. S. Sen. Ernest W. McFarland, Florence, and state Sen. William F. Kimball, Tucson. Both are lawyers. McFarland, former majority floor leader in the Senate, was defeated in 1952 by Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.).

Arizonans elect two congressmen this year. In the first district Rhodes, Republican incument, will run without opposition.

'Tiger Balm' King Succumbs

HONOLULU, Sept. 7—UP—Simple Buddhist rites were held Monday for Aw Boon Haw, millionaire Chinese publisher and philanthropist who died here Saturday.

Monday night, members of the 72-year-old tycoon's famliy will fly his enurned ashes to Hongkong where traditional funeral services will be held.

The aging Chinese, known internationally as the "Tiger Balm king," arrived here Aug. 25 after undergoing a stomach operation in Boston earlier. He was hospitalized in Queens hospital on Aug. 28 following a relapse.

Churchill Planning For NATO Talks

LONDON, Sept. 7—UP—Prime Minister Winston Churchill will attempt to set on Wednesday the date for a nine-nation conference to consider bringing West Germany into the North Atlantic Treaty alliance despite a luke-warm German attitude and outright French opposition.

He has summoned his cabinet for a Wednesday meeting and hopes by that time to be fully informed on the views of West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

It was expected that Churchill would press to get the conference started by about next Tuesday, and it was hoped that U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles would be able to attend.

Could Come By London

Dulles, now in Manila attending the organizational meeting of a NATO-like Southeast Asia organization, could fly home by way of London.

Sen. Alexander Wiley, chairman of the U.S. Senate foreign relations committee, meanwhile acted as Dulles' eyes and ears here.

He arrived in London during the week-end after talks with Adenauer and has been invited to Churchill's country home at Chartwell for lunch Tuesday.

On Wednesday he will confer with British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and then will fly on to Paris, heart of the European defense crisis, for talks with French Premier Pierre Mendes-France.

Italy Agrees

Italy was the first to agree to the nine-nation conference which British officials were pressing in capitals of the West.

Italian Foreign Minister Attilio Piccioni in Rome accepted the invitation at once. Other nations would be the United States, Britain, Canada, France, Germany, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg.

The nine-nation meeting would be a prelude to a later full-dress NATO foreign ministers conference to decide on German sovereignty and rearmament.

Laredo Granted Flood Funds

LAREDO, Tex., Sept. 7—UP—The city of Laredo has been granted $240,570 emergency funds by the Federal Civil Defense Administration to repair flood damage, Mayor J. C. Martin said.

The grant included $128,000 for rehabilitation of the city water treatment plant; $81,770 for repairs to streets and bridges and $30,000 for repairs to the sewage plant.

Martin said the FCDA is considering granting additional money for streets and bridges. However, he said it appears considerable repair work in Laredo must be done for which emergency funds won't be granted.

Laredo had requested a total of $727,837 from the FCDA.

Scribe's 'Files' Lost In Capitol Cleanup

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7—UP—What's new in Washington:

One newspaperman returned from his vacation to find that workers around the Capitol had destroyed his "files." The reporter had a couple of hundred telephone numbers penciled on the walls of his phone coop in the Senate press room. Painters had covered his doodlingers with white paint.

Barnee Breeskin, the long-time band-leader at the Shoreham Hotel, says that Sen. Russell Long, the Democrat from Louisiana, is the best jitter bugger in Congress. The baton man says the southern gentleman "kicks up a lively leg, and he does his best when we strike up 'Tiger Rag.'"

Commonly, old hens in hot weather don't lay many eggs, they just lie in the shade. But the lady chickens during the long, dry spell this year fouled up the statistics. The butter and egg publication called "poultryman" quotes the Department of Agriculture as saying the hens dropped 4,766,000,000 eggs during July, 6 per cent above the 10 year average.

Mark Evans, CBS radio and TV man hereabouts, has been on a big-game spree in Africa and bagged an elephant. In glee, he cabled his office here allowing that he has a mind to chop off one foot of the critter and have it done over to look like an ash tray. Here is some news for Mr. E: Dr. William Mann of the zoo says you have to be careful how you saw off the foot of a pachyderm. "If Mark wants to go in for something big," the zoo man said, "he can whack the leg off up to the knee joint and make himself an umbrella stand." William Brown, taxidermist at the Smithsonian Institution, adds that an ash tray made of an elephant's foot can cost a hundred dollars or more. "Umbrella stands run a lot higher," Brown said. "There are only maybe half dozen tanners in the country who could handle the job. I would not do it for $1,000. I've got all the taxidermy work I can handle."

A lot of people in the country probably didn't eat too well over the Labor Day holiday. Over 300 chefs were in Washington for a national convention. All men. As one chef put it: "Everybody knows women can't cook."

A lot of soldiers overseas are a little confused at the police jargon that comes at them over the radio in the who-done-it programs. So the Armed Forces networks have released a list of code numbers so that the GIs will know what it is all about. Things like "211," which means a hold-up. And "214," which means there has been a disturbance or a fight. A "484-P.S." means a purse snatcher.

School Lunch Fund Program Is Pro-Rated

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7—UP—The Agriculture Department announced Monday how much money each state would get this year for operation of school lunch programs.

A total of $67 million, just over four-fifths of the $83,236,197 appropriated by Congress for the program, was divided up. Most of the remainder will be used to buy and distribute foods to specifically meet the nutritional requirements of children.

The funds were apportioned on the basis of the number of school children between five and 17 years old, and the per capital income of each state. They will be paid quarterly.

Each $1 of federal money must be matched by $1.50 of state funds, provided the state's per capita income equals or exceeds the national average, then the matching requirement drops by the same percentage.

Texas received the second largest amount, $3,733,000, with New York first with $3,924,943.

Other state allotments included: Arkansas $1,477,101; Colorado $545,100, Kansas $705,166, Louisiana $1,639, 413, New Mexico $427,859, and Oklahoma $1,186,352.

Tourist Draw Opens Monday

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Sept. 7—UP—The final link that will tie Florida's central Gulf coast into one big tourist playground was forged Monday with the opening of a $21 million bridge across lower Tampa Bay.

The 15-mile span of bridges and causeways, named the "Sunshine Skyway," links peninsular "dead-end" St. Petersburg to a direct route down the Gulf coast. It took more than three years to build, culminating some 30 years of planning by tourist-conscious leaders in the area.

Chile Suffers Strike

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 7—UP—The government promised "drastic" action Saturday to restore order in the strike of 50,000 workers throughout Chile Saturday. The government charged the stoppages were "politically inspired" and warned it would bring responsible agitators to justice.

Meet The Lucy Family

By LUCILLE BALL

Written for United Press

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 7—UP—There really isn't much outside of buying a new hat that a woman would rather do than chat. And I'm no exception.

I'd like to get personal about the "Lucy" family, all the people around Desi and myself and tell you some of the things you may not know about them.

Let's start with Ethel. I'll never forget the first day I met Vivian Vance. She came in dressed to the teeth. How could I forget the horror on Viv's face when I stomped in, babushka on my hair, no make-up, pedal pushers and loafers?

I sized her up, pumped her hand and said: "Let's go!" Despite the comic overtones of the first meeting, Viv and I became fast friends, lifelong buddies if you will, within fifteen minutes.

When we get to wear some of those odd costumes the writers dream up for us, Viv acts like a kid at her first birthday costume ball. It hits me the same way and we have a ball.

Now, Bill Frawley, I've known Bill for many years and one of my great thrills on this show has been to have Frawley on our team. Let's face it, the gruff exterior and heart of gold that Frawley displays as Fred is just exactly Frawley.

Bill knows every score, every batting average of everyone since the big blizzard. Greatest treasure is his watch engraved to him after a Yankee World Series.

Our producer, we call him the brain, is Jess Oppenheimer, who also is head writer. Jess has consummate good taste, great showmanship, and is a great craftsman.

Our writers are Bob Carroll Jr. and Madelyn Pugh. Bob is a red-bearded character who plays tin flutes and travels around the world. Madelyn is a lovely young thing with a warm smile and a brilliant mind. Without this trio, there'd be no "I Love Lucy."

Now let's see. Bill Asher as a director is topped only by the fact that he became a papa twice during production of the series.

Karl (Papa) Freund, the Academy Award winning director of photography, is a jolly giant of a man with a soft Viennese accent who makes everyone and everything look wonderful.

There's another actor on the show. Oh, yes, Ricky, my husband-bandleader.

SHOCKING FLORAL DESIGN—An electrical engineer in the General Electric laboratories at Pittsfield, Mass., "grew" this unusual "sunflower" while measuring electrical voltages. "Petals" of the flower are electrical discharges around two terminals charged with an electrical voltage.

Reds Thought Of Trying De Castries

HANOI, Indo-China, Sept. 7—UP—Brig. Gen. Christian de Castries disclosed Monday that his Viet Minh Communist captors apparently toyed with the idea of trying him and certain members of his staff as war criminals.

Later the idea was abandoned (10 words censored).

De Castries left for Saigon Monday to report to Supreme Commander Gen. Paul Ely on the last days of Dien Bien Phu and his months of captivity with the Reds.

De Castries had recovered visibly in the two days since his release by the Reds and promised that within eight days "I will have recovered my form." His hair now is almost white and he had lost 25 pounds.

The hero - general revealed he meant to resume his army duties almost at once. "I had too much time for rest in the Viet Minh camp," he said.
