

Foster child being taken away

State agency harassment claimed

By EILEEN McGUIRE
Last week, local foster parents James and Donna Van Ness said goodbye to a little girl whom they fear is headed for an institution.

The separation between the Van Nesses and 9-year-old Kelly (not her real name), their foster child of nearly two years, came at the end of a court hearing May 21 when District Judge Jim Gregg ruled that the Department of Human Resources had the right to remove her from the foster home.

The Van Nesses are now fighting what they allege is the culmination of several years of harassment from the welfare department. The harassment, they say, began when they started procedures to adopt another foster child, Leann.

"The state fought us all the way," Donna said. "They didn't want us to go through with it because we were foster parents, because she came from a local family and because we wanted to keep Leann's maternal grandmother as her grandmother.

Leann's adoption became final last year. The child's relationship with her grandmother was kept intact, said James. "And it's worked out beautifully."

Yet the Van Nesses allege that the state continues to disapprove of the adoption and has been harassing them ever since. Donna, who was president of the Howard County Foster Parents Association until last week, said some of the harassment took place at meetings, in front of other members.

Some of the harassment, she said, took place at board meetings of the state association which has refused to accept her resignation as regional vice president until the matter with Kelly is cleared up.

"Everytime I said anything at the state board meetings, I'd be told by the department's supervisor that I shouldn't have said what I did."

"Donna came home in tears after the last local meeting," James stated. "She was insulted by the supervisor in front of everyone."

The Van Nesses claim that the state employees have no right to interfere with what goes on at the foster parents' meetings.

"The meetings are the foster parents' meetings, not the state's," Donna said.

"We do not work for the state. We are not compensated in any way for being foster parents. We are reimbursed for expenses, but the expenses are always more than what the state allows. We don't make any kind of a profit at this."

"We are helping the state, not working for them," James added.

At that point, Donna produced a 59-page guidebook published by the State Department of Public Welfare, entitled "Minimum Standards." The pages outlined detailed regulations from maintaining a foster home.

She also displayed a sheet that had been kept on Kelly, according to welfare guidelines, which the Van Nesses were required to fill out — listing date, reason and follow-up — each time they spanked the child.

"I am a licensed food handler," Donna said. "I have to be or I can't be a foster mother. They even tell us when to change the sheets on the bed!"

"All of these regulations were passed in Austin," she said, flipping through the pages of her guidebook. "You don't find out about these until after you become a foster parent. Then they hit you with it. We've been trying to get the regulations changed for a long time."

The Van Nesses claim that foster-parenting is over-regulated, making it more complicated than it needs to be. More complications are, according to them, what set off the incidents leading up to Kelly's removal from their home.

"After we adopted Leann, the welfare worker said that Kelly's social security payments were going to be transferred to the state rather than continue to come directly to us," James stated.

"The welfare department was going to act as a middle man, making things even more complicated than they already were and we couldn't see it."

James said that the issue was dropped and then brought up again the Friday before Kelly's removal.

"The worker came out here and told me that she had transferred Kelly's social security over to the department. You have to understand that I was real mad. I went into the bedroom and got our license and then tore it up into little pieces and laid them on the table in front of her. I told her she could come and get the kids whenever she was ready."

JAMES VAN NESS

DONNA VAN NESS

James said that the license would have expired soon and that they were in the process of getting relicensed. Destroying it was an act of anger, he said, "but they jumped on it."

Thomas Hosier of Midland, Child Placement Supervisor for the Department of Human Resources, denies that any harassment took place to his knowledge.

He said that Kelly was removed from the Van Ness foster home because "The Van Nesses became very upset with the program. They withdrew from the program and we could not leave her."

He said that new regulations have come into effect during the last two years that now disallow some things that were permitted before the changes.

He said that it is mandatory by law that the foster children's social security benefits be administered by the state welfare department and that that law was already in effect the first time the department requested that Kelly's social security payments be made to the state.

"The social worker who initially requested it did not follow through with it," he said. "That worker is no longer with the department. He ignored instructions."

Hosier said that the worker was not fired. "He voluntarily resigned."

Hosier also denied that Kelly's removal from the Van Ness home was in any way connected with Leann's adoption.

"This doesn't have anything to do with that," he said. "The adoption arrangement was made by the Van Nesses with the natural parents."

Asked what the state's attitude was toward the adoption, Hosier replied "We do not recruit adoptive parents from foster parents."

The Van Nesses say that Kelly and another foster child, a 9-year-old boy, were improperly transferred from their home to another.

"They were supposed to give us a week to prepare the kids," said James. "When a child is transferred from one foster home to another, they're supposed to be prepared for it with visits to the new home. First, they go to the new home for a short visit, then longer ones and finally, they are moved."

"The kids are supposed to be eased into the new home, not jerked from one to another," Donna added.

"The worker said it would take a week to place the kids somewhere else and I said 'fine,'" James continued. "But then they came out later and took the boy."

He said that the boy was picked up after school for a visit to another foster home. Later, the worker called COMMENCEMENT — Big Spring High School Commencement Exercises were held Tuesday evening. Seated on the stage were the speakers and honorees shown above. From left, they were Craig V. Fischer, assistant principal; Michael Evans, who gave the invocation; student speakers Janet Whittington and Barry Fish; school board member Charles E. Beil; guest speaker, Dr. Kenneth G. Patrick, pastor of First Baptist Church; Harold D.

Bentley, assistant superintendent of schools; Lynn Hise, superintendent; Dr. James E. Mathews, school board member; John F. Smith, high school principal; and Morris Molpus, assistant principal (partially obscured by microphone). The 1979 class was the first class not to have to worry about rain during commencement; they are shown below as they listen to the speaker in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Starting salary pegged at $30,000

Davis named city manager

Mayor Wade Choate announced this morning that Don Davis, city manager at Palestine, Tex., has been named to fill the position vacated by the recent resignation of Harry Nagel. Davis' starting salary will be $30,000 annually.

Davis, who will assume the city manager's post June 18, was the city council's unanimous choice. It had reviewed applications from 17 candidates and interviewed five prospects personally.

A native of Lubbock, Davis has worked in related city positions for the past 13 years and has implemented many new and innovative programs in three Texas cities. He holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from Texas Tech University and has done graduate study towards a MPA degree at Tech.

As city manager of Palestine, a city of approximately 18,000 residents in East Texas, Davis was responsible for the overall management of 1975 employees in all areas of city responsibility.

He implemented the first tax reevaluation program since 1958, coordinated a successful $9 million bond election for capital improvement, prepared and submitted requests for various grants ranging from the Community Development Block Grant and FAA Grant for a Master Plan at the airport, to the Library System Grant for a Community Library needs analysis and E.P.A. Grants for sanitary sewer system improvements.

Davis also did extensive work to update the accounting procedures and urban planning rules and regulations in Palestine.

Prior to accepting the position in Palestine, Davis served as assistant city manager for the city of Hurst, for over eight years, and often served as acting city manager in the absence of the city manager. During one such absence, he served as city manager for five consecutive months.

While serving as a city official in Hurst, he prepared and administered federal grants for the construction of a sanitary sewer outfall main, a comprehensive police management survey, acquisition of various types of law enforcement equipment, and the Emergency Employment Act.

He worked closely with the city council in Hurst and assisted with the conversion of a predominantly volunteer Fire Department to a force of 30 at two manned fire stations and initiated joint purchasing with the county and neighboring municipalities of selected items. Davis was also interested in the progress of Hurst and assisted the city council in the formation and organization of a Citizens' Advisory Commission for a capital improvement program and served as staff liaison with a 120 citizen Goals for Hurst program.

Following his graduation from Texas Tech University in 1966, Davis went to work as the administrative assistant to the city manager of Lubbock. While serving in that capacity, he recommended and implemented a complete reorganization of the sanitation collection system, which decreased the number of personnel while increasing the level of service by providing an extra day of brush pickup. He also worked with various civic and community organizations in the city of Lubbock.

In making the announcement, Mayor Choate said "we had Don and his wife in Big Spring twice before a final decision was made. After personal interviews with Mr. Davis, we felt that he was the best qualified for the position and were pleased to be getting someone of his vast experience and knowledge to manage the city of Big Spring. Don also works well with people and should be able to provide our community with the direction it needs during the years to come."

Davis, who is married and the father of two, will "be a welcome addition to our city and we're glad to have them," Choate concluded. Davis is a member of the International City Management Association, the Texas City Management Association, the East Texas City Management Association and the YMCA Honorary "500 Club." He is a former member of both the North Texas City Management Association and the Urban Management Assistants of North Texas.

Palestine recently elected a new mayor in Jack Rogers who has stated again that he plans to carry out an election promise to call for a referendum to see if the voters want to do away with the city manager form of government.

At the time of his resignation, Davis was being paid $25,000 a year by the City of Palestine.

His wife's name is Linda. Their two children are Jason, age 7; and Jaylon, 4.

Action /reaction: You guessed it

Q. Back in January, an article in the Herald said the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum was trying to book country singer Marty Robbins for an April concert. What happened? Is he going to appear in the near future or did it fall through?

A. You guessed it. Coliseum Director Carl McMillen said that the Police Association had planned to sponsor Robbins' appearance here but by the time a firm decision was made, Robbins had already been booked for an engagement elsewhere. There are no current plans to make another booking attempt.

Hitt will revive skiing memories in Italy minus whizzing bullets

Clark Hitt of Wichita Falls, son of Mr. and Mrs. C.O. Hitt of Big Spring, will revive some of his skiing memories when he returns to Northern Italy in June for a reunion of former members of the famed 10th Mountain Division.

This time, there won't be any bullets whizzing through the air or mortar shells exploding nearby.

In all, 244 World War II veterans of America's only ski division are planning for the reunion. More than a quarter of a century ago, the special ski-equipped troops played an important role by breaking the German defense line across the Apennine Mountains.

As America's only ski division, Hitt and his comrades were tagged with a rather elitist reputation when they finally entered WW II in December 1943. Lavish spreads in such magazines as Look and Sports Illustrated did nothing to tarnish that image.

Today, the division is still unique because it comprises the largest post war association in the country. The group has a newspaper published quarterly and holds frequent reunions.

When they are gathered in Italy next month, some mayors plan a celebration for the Americans' return while Italian mountain troops from the war also plan a party in Florence. A memorial service will also be held to honor the 990 members of the division who were killed in battle.

Most of the time Hitt was associated with the division, he was the only Southerner in the company. Most of its members were from the north and east.

Because he was known as "The Texan" to the bunch, Hitt was made a packmaster of his company's mules, which were put to good use in the rugged mountain terrain. The job wasn't half bad, according to Hitt, because he was the only person given his own mule for riding.

Hitt's memories of the war include the capture of Mussolini's mountain palace, where he was stationed when Germany surrendered. He also recalls the capture of Mount Belvedere, key to the entire Nazi defense in Italy.

Hitt surrendered wounds from mortar fire. Hurt on the same mission was Robert Dole, who later was to become a Republican senator from Kansas and who was Gerald Ford's running mate in the last presidential election.

Some of Hitt's most vivid memories are of the rough training division candidates had to go through at Camp Hale, 9,300 feet high in the mountains in Colorado.

"It was by far the most physical thing I ever did," Hitt recalled.

After a few days of basics, the ski troops were put through two weeks of maneuvers that lasted six hours a day, six days a week in below zero temperatures at Cooper Hill. For Hitt, it was especially difficult because he had been before on skis.

The diet wasn't served up by any gourmet cook, either. They were feeding on frozen C-rations.

After the war, many of Hitt's cohorts were credited with bringing skiing to mainstream America. Prior to WWII, skiing had been considered a "rich man's sport."

More than a few of the 10th Mountain Division's veterans returned to California to establish ski resorts at such places as Vail, Steamboat Springs and other locations.

One of Vail's most popular runs is named after a famous Italian battle objective of the 10th Mountain Division, Riva Ridge.

Hitt returned to Texas after the war. He was an elementary school principal at Crowell five years, coached at Lancaster four years and taught in the Dallas schools 19 years.

Much has happened to Clark and the nation since Germany caved in 1945 but for Hitt and most of the 10th Mountain Division survivors, their memories of the war will remain forever green.

HC summer registration set

Registration for first summer term at Howard College will be held Thursday from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon, from 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. and from 6:00 to 8:00 p.m. in the college library. Classes begin June 1 and end July 6. Late registration will be conducted through June 4. A comprehensive schedule of classes will be offered.

One can call the registrar for specific information.

Marine warnings out in coastal region

Thunderstorms rumbled through North Central Texas and along the coast early today, causing some street flooding and prompting the National Weather Service to issue special marine warnings for high winds and rough seas.

Street flooding was reported at Fort Worth and Corsicana, where an estimated six inches of rain fell during the evening and early morning hours. Forecasts called for more scattered thunderstorm activity.

Orientation for BSSH vols to begin June 5

The Student Volunteer Program for Big Spring State Hospital will begin June 5, 1979, with an orientation in the Tollett All-Faith Chapel on the hospital campus from 9 a.m. until 12 noon. Anyone age 14 and older is invited to participate.

This year's program will offer a wide variety of experience for students interested in spending a portion of their summer vacation helping others. Positions available include: Auditorium Assistant; Music Therapy Assistant; Art Therapy Assistant; Office Assistants from Rehabilitation Services, Volunteer Services, West Psychiatric Unit and Multiple Disabilities Unit; Dentist Office Assistant; Chapel Activities Aide;

Library Aide; and Physical Therapy Assistant. Students may give as few or as many hours as they wish, allowing them time for their summer activities.

"The basic value of this program each summer is the opportunity given to these young people to experience actual job situations in a health-care setting. This helps them decide if this is the type career they want to choose. Of course, the real value is the joy that comes from helping someone," states Shirley Shroyer, Coordinator of Volunteer Services.

Anyone interested in the Student Volunteer Program should contact Volunteer Services at Big Spring State Hospital. Interviews will be conducted June 4, 5 and 6.

Van Horn's Frontier Days, AJRA Rodeo slated June 27-30

VAN HORN - Van Horn's 22nd annual Frontier Days and AJRA Rodeo have been set for June 27-30.

This year, the celebration bids fair to be the best ever. Many new features have been added. A special day honoring old timers of the area has been set at the old Clark Hotel, which is being converted into a county museum. Fun day activities are also planned.

One of the new features, the Frontier Run, is scheduled Saturday, June 30. Starting at 7 a.m., a one-mile fun run will be staged, followed by two and five mile runs. First, second and third place prizes will be offered in the runs.

Applications should be made through the Van Horn Chamber office.

A parade will be held Saturday, June 30, starting at 10 a.m. Prizes for winning floats will be offered by the Chamber. Out-of-town people are being encouraged to enter floats.

Some audiences could practice good manners

People who perform before other people, whether it be in sports or in the arts, invariably note that, on occasions, the bleacher crowd could take lessons in behavior.

Spectators are too often rude, restless, non-attentive and downright insulting. That sort of demeanor is not discouraged at a wrestling show, which depends on ham and sham for support at the gate. Such action at a concert, a ballet or a play is reprehensible, however.

THE ROWDIER ones sometimes try to divert attention from the stage or the arena by creating a scene of their own. In short, that kind loves an audience.

One of the worst kinds of audience groups is the clan which noisily troupe into a place after a performance has begun, sits still long enough to watch one of their own kind complete an act and then arises as one to beat a hasty retreat.

There should be a special sort of seat for those kind of people — either the kind that collapses and shoots them into a basement or one that compels them to remain until the entire performance is over.

It's irritating to some performers for two people to carry on a conversation in front of them, as if they had met there for that purpose.

On more than one occasion, an actor has stopped in the middle of his dialogue and leaned over to address the noisy gossipers by saying, "You'll have to talk louder. I can't hear what you're saying."

A spectator who goes to sleep in his chair is several paces better than the roving kind that can't sit still long enough to listen to part of a song.

The performer loves an audience which recognizes talent when it sees it and shows the people on stage or the athletic field that it appreciates the thoroughbreds of the particular endeavor, either with the clapping of hands, standing and, quite often, both.

PEOPLE ATTENDING a performance or an athletic contest often have to depart the scene but those with good breeding do it as inauspiciously as possible.

Professional performers learn to accept criticism and catcalls for their lack of contribution to a cause but the amateurs similarly afflicted deserve a better reception. What they are doing is a labor of love and they need all the encouragement they can get.

Human nature

Around the rim

Robbi Crow

What is human nature? What causes people to be rude? Friendly?

Human nature is that little twinge you get in your gut that causes you to do just the opposite of what a considerably less than friendly person requests of you (or maybe I should say 'demands' of you).

It's also the main motivator which computes all members of the human race to more than happily oblige that person who has a specific complaint or request and reveals it in an understanding and friendly way.

Those people who work closely with the public know what I'm talking about.

EVERYONE SHOULD be aware of one unwritten law of human nature, disposition and temperament — treat the party you have a request for or complaint to with the same respect you would want them to treat you.

"I know," you say, "The Golden rule but right — Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

Well, don't knock it! It works pretty well.

Asking instead of demanding; understanding when mistakes are made instead of being the first to point directly at the guilty party; as well as just plain general courtesy will accomplish much more.

People have a tendency to be rude to someone who is rude to them, but in the same token, friendliness is catching too.

Irate phone calls, unpleasant visits and constant badmouthing of people in the newspaper business are almost enough to discourage anyone who thinks he might be interested in pursuing the field.

Your house burns down — blame it on the newspaper; your daughter didn't win the beauty pageant — blame it on the newspaper; your dinner party was a flop — blame it on the newspaper. Go ahead, we're used to it.

Listen, we're not perfect — and only a small minority of us claim to be.

When we do a story, we usually give it our best shot. Then, out from nowhere come the timely occurrences that just happen to be a part of the newspaper business.

Five hundred inches of copy, only 350 inches of space to put it in.

What do you do?

Who gets cut, who doesn't?

What parts of each story get eliminated, what parts don't?

It's the job of the editors of each section to make such decisions.

I'VE FOUND OUT first-hand that the aftermath of such 'story whacking' isn't always a pleasant experience.

It just so happens that every now and then the "most important part" of the story, according to the story submitter, was the part that was cut.

Since the Herald charges no fee for the printing of, for example, club news, I can't sympathize with those people who rudely phone in their complaints and say that they are tired of hearing that "same old story" (too much copy — too little space.)

People, that "same old story" happens to be the "same old truth." If you've heard it for the last 10 years, be prepared to hear it for the next 100.

We can only work with what we have!

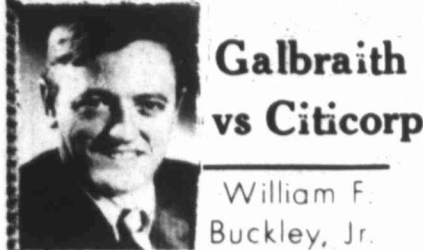

True, there are several who call or come in with legitimate gripes. More often than not, these people are more understanding than those who come in griping about the price of tea in China.

As I've heard several newspaper people say, "We don't make the news, we just write it."

What I've been trying to convey is that we're human too and (get ready for this) we also make a few mistakes every now and then. But who doesn't?

To make a fairly long Rim a little longer, I'd like to apologize for cutting the "wrong part" of one club story in particular.

Obviously human error strikes again, but human nature may be the next thing to strike.

Galbraith vs Citicorp

William F. Buckley, Jr.

I have been made privy, not by initiative of any of the principals, to an exhilarating exchange of correspondence, and I drop my concerns with atomic war, death by radiation, Gulag, and Teddy Kennedy, to let you in on it.

SYNOPSIS: Citicorp, the large national bank, elects a new director, namely William E. Simon, Secretary of the Treasury under President Ford, author of "A Time for Truth," and one of the nation's most eloquent and penetrating defenders of human freedom.

PLAYERS: John Kenneth Galbraith, professor-emeritus of Harvard, unquestionably the most influential socialist in the western world and the most eloquent and resourceful advocate of that social disease.

WALTER B. WRISTON, Chairman of Citicorp who throughout his career has been more than merely a commercial executive — he has defended the broader context in which economic freedom operates.

Now, in his famous book, William Simon posed a question that has occurred to a lot of us over a number of years, namely: What reason is there for those who believe in human freedom as practiced in the private sector, to contribute to institutions substantially devoted to propagating socialism? I mean, Republicans don't, as a rule, contribute to the Democratic Party. Zionists don't contribute to the PLO, never mind any abstract commitment to political freedom.

If the overwhelming majority of the faculty of Princeton University (to use a historical example) declares itself for McGovern for President, and if sensitive students of the academic curriculum conclude that reading lists and classroom instruction concert to superordinate collectivist values over individual liberty — is it reasonable to expect contributions to Princeton from men devoted to the vitality of the private sector? No, says William Simon.

Well, Professor Galbraith had a bright idea. He would turn the argument around and use it against Citicorp, in punishment for electing Simon as a director! Accordingly, he addressed a letter to Mr. Wriston which was transmitted by the U.S. Office notwithstanding its formal commitment to refuse to carry black-mail.

Mr. Galbraith, with customary semantic ingenuity, characterized the position of Simon as follows: "Mr. Simon has called for philanthropic boycott by corporations and others of educational institutions employing people with views of which he disapproves."

That is an unfriendly way to say that Mr. Simon believes that the Chamber of Commerce shouldn't be expected to sustain the Fabian society; but let it pass.

In reverse, as you will I believe agree, the same principle applies to a corporation with which Mr. Simon is so responsibly associated. The possible effect on depositors, borrowers and other clients could be considerable, for the number of liberals and public workers whom Mr. Simon condemns is, by his own admission, extremely large. And they are, in my experience, disposed to stalwart belief and response.

I UNDERTAKE TO render this in plain English. What Mr. Galbraith is saying is: If Citicorp elects as one of its directors someone who believes free enterprisers should boycott socialist institutions, socialists can hit back and do the same thing — i.e., boycott Citicorp. "No one," Professor Galbraith, who did not major in logic writes, "can object to the same action as a response."

A guide to avoid bee stings

Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I was stung by a bee some time ago and got a violent reaction. They told me to carry a pill of some kind because if it happened again it might be fatal. What is the latest serum used? What tablet should I have on hand for emergency? — C.C.G.

That time of year again. Bees caused more than their share of problems last summer in the U.S.

Violent reactions to insect stings do occur, but thank goodness, serious ones are rare. Subsequent stings are usually more violent. For the serious reaction (when a person passes out, for example) the only effective treatment is an injection of epinephrine (Adrenalin). Among other things it helps restore proper breathing. You can buy kits, but these have to be prescribed by your doctor. They include a disposal syringe. People who've had kits longer than three years should have them replaced, because the medicine may lose potency in that time.

Antihistamines help for less severe reactions, but desensitization (the serum to which you refer) is wise for anyone prone to such insect-caused symptoms. You would receive several injections of weakened bee venom until your body learns to handle the substance without reaction.

Since the season is upon us, here are some tips for people like you.

Avoid light-colored clothing, perfume or fragrant toiletries.

Never go barefoot. Bees hidden in underbrush don't take kindly to being stepped on.

Wear protective clothing, but if you wear a covering net, be sure it is not loose, allowing bees to get under it. Trapped bees are angry bees.

In short, look and smell as little like a flower as possible. Be especially careful after a rainstorm, when bees are doing "catch up" work and may light on any likely object.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I read an article recently that said chocolate contained caffeine, the same as tea and coffee. Is this true and is it harmful to one's health? — J.M.K.

Chocolate contains a bit of caffeine.

It contains more of another stimulant — theobromine. So you'd have to restrict it if you have to restrict caffeinated coffee. Either substance may cause a mild stimulation of the central nervous system and act as a mild diuretic (increasing urine excretion). Caffeine is primarily found in coffee, tea and cola drinks.

Dear Dr. Ruble: My father had gout. Now, at 37, I find I have it, too. My father told me he thought I'd get it, too, and he was right. How common is it for a father and son to have gout? — D.K.

There is some family relationship in gout, but not enough to predict that the son or daughter of a parent who had it will get it. Studies on this vary. Figures range from 6 percent to 18 percent, meaning that, depending on the study, from 6 to 18 percent of gout patients have histories of it in their families.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Editor:

We had always lived in Big Spring until recently and I never really appreciated the utility departments until now.

We have moved to Sand Springs where we deal with the City of Coahoma.

Our water bills for the last two months have totaled $119. We moved here Sept. of 78 and our water bill has never been over $16.00. We have no leaks anywhere. We have called the water dept. and they tell us there is nothing wrong with our meter and to "pay it or we will turn it off." There is no way we could have used this much water. But yet we have to pay it or live here without water.

The people of Big Spring should be grateful that their water dept. is organized and fair. I never really was thankful for them until now.

My answer

Billy Graham

— we have developed the capacity to destroy the human race with our bombs.

The Bible says two things about the human race that you need to know. First, it tells us that man is made in the image of God. That gives a dignity and meaning to human life, because it tells us we are not an accident on this planet. Second, it tells us that we have rebelled against God and the image of Him that we bear has been marred and distorted. I think history demonstrates that.

But there is a further thing to be said. The Bible says man can be restored. God created us, and He can re-create us as well as we turn to Him in repentance and faith in Christ, His Son. "Therefore, if anyone is in Christ, he is a new creation; the old is gone, the new has come!" (II Corinthians 5:17, New International Version).

Do not let pride stand between you and God. You need God's grace because you are sinful and have not obeyed God perfectly. But God wants you to come to Him, and make you into the person He created you to be.

Has own slaughter

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — The annual slaughter of seal pups off Newfoundland has drawn official condemnation from Congress as well as protests from environmentalists.

But what is not generally known — and what sanctimonious members of Congress conveniently overlook — is the fact that the United States government runs a similarly bloody seal slaughter of its own each summer in the tiny Pribilof Islands of Alaska.

Last year, federal employees clubbed and bled to death more than 25,000 seals from 2 to 60 years old on the barren islands of St. Paul and St. George, far out in the Bering Sea north of the Aleutian chain. The pelts bring upwards of $100 each. After processing in this country, most of the sealskins wind up in fur salons abroad. About 1 percent of the annual kill is used for food.

UNFORTUNATELY, THE program is as uneconomical as it is inhumane. Last year, according to internal Commerce Department documents, the operation ran almost $4 million in the red. The deficit was $3.3 million the year before, and $2.8 million in 1976.

This means that every Pribilof Island seal pelt that graces the back of a wealthy European woman cost the American taxpayers approximately $160.

Ironically, the Alaskan seal hunt, which weakens the U.S. government's lofty moral position with environmental groups and other nations, was born of a sincere effort to save the Northern Pacific Fur Seal from extinction.

In a treaty, initiated in 1911, Russia, Canada, Japan and the United States agreed to stop killing the seals in the open sea — a wholesale slaughter that was wiping out the species. The agreement called for a limited "harvest" on the Russian and American islands where the seals come each summer to mate.

In 1966, Congress passed legislation making the federal government responsible for the 850 Aleuts who live on the two tiny islands. The only livelihood open to them is the seal hunt and processing of pelts. This gives year-round employment to 35 residents and summertime work to about 150.

Basically, the Pribilof Islanders live in a welfare state — food, shelter and fuel are all provided by Uncle Sam. "Practically everything on the islands was built by the U.S. government, except for the two Russian Orthodox churches," the Seattle-based project director Walter Kirkness told our reporter Keith Sinzinger.

The four-nation treaty, which requires the Russians and Americans to give part of their seal kills to Canada and Japan, expires next year. Pressure is growing to let the treaty lapse and return to open-sea seal hunting. Japanese fishermen complain, for example, that the seal herds are a threat to their operations.

SOME U.S. OFFICIALS believe the seals have reached their maximum numbers and feel the balance of nature can be maintained without the annual slaughter. And the current "environmental rage" prevailing in the United States is certain to carry weight as the government formulates its treaty renegotiating position this fall.

Milton M. Kaufman, member of the U.S. treaty delegation and president of Monitor International, a conservation group, calls the treaty "basically exploitive in concept," and decries both the practical and the philosophical effects it has had.

"To kill wildlife for luxury garments is simply not consistent with ecological humanism," he says. As for the Pribilof Islanders, their life on the dole is "an unhealthy socioeconomic environment for any American citizen."

Greenpeace, the international environmental group, has asked President Carter to end the annual seal slaughter. The group plans an expedition to the Pribilofs in June, when the killing starts. They want to record the operation on film, and possibly engage in non-violent interference with the hunters.

MARINE MAYHEM: The Army is quietly trying to collect $65,000 for damage done by a few good men in the 313-man Marine detachment that was stationed at Fort Meade, Md., until last fall. The high-spirited jarheads made a practice of breaking down barracks doors and walls with boots and rifle butts, according to an Army spokesman.

It is not known for certain what gave rise to the Marines' destructive tactics. The Army spokesman said he thought they were simply tucked out by all the guard duty they had to pull and broke up the barracks as a form of relaxation. The Marines took no disciplinary action against the culprits, he added.

WATCH ON WASTE: Congress gave the Department of Energy $600 million to set up a program of grants to local governments and public institutions that want to find ways to conserve energy — but the applicants may wind up paying more than half that amount just to fill out the DOE forms.

The form worked out by DOE bureaucrats is so complicated that even the agency admits it will take about 84 hours to complete. Grant applications are routinely filled out by specialists in the arcane art of grantmanship, and the going rate for these experts is about $30 an hour.

Multiplying this by the 125,000 applications DOE expects to get gives an impressive $315 million for the 10.5 million man-hours of work filling out the forms.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: What do Jimmy Carter and Zimbabwe Rhodesia guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo have in common? Both are honorary alumni of Morehouse College in Atlanta. The small, predominantly black college, the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s alma mater, gave Nkomo an honorary doctor of laws degree May 20. Carter got his honorary LL.D. in 1975.

SCOREKEEPING — Along with all the other duties of being president of the Women's Softball Association, scorekeeping sometimes falls as a duty for Carolyn Yeager. Like all the other officers, Carolyn is a member of one of the teams, and meets with a board of directors composed of representatives of each team to make rules. Carolyn plays for the Bad News Bears.

SCOUTING — Bill Battle, coach and Pam Honea of the team sponsored by Big Spring Savings Association talk about the game in progress on the field. Battle regularly turns out to scout the other teams, hoping to spot a weakness. In addition to BSSA, Tallant Printing, Silver Streak and the Bad News Bears all represented on this page, there are nine teams. Coahoma, New York Life, M&M Construction, Cosden, Ackerly, Nu-Way, the Big Spring Herald, YMCA and Spanish Inn, which make up the Women's Softball Association. Participation is growing, as 1979 marked four more teams entering the league.

Major Ugandan districts taken over by Tanzanians

ARUA, Uganda (AP) — Tanzanian and Ugandan troops headed for Idi Amin's home village today after completing a triumphant march across northern Uganda and establishing the new Ugandan government's authority in all major district capitals.

The task force from Kampala entered Arua, he capital of the deposed dictator's native West Nile district, without opposition Tuesday as residents shouted "Tanzania! Tanzania!" and waved tree branches.

Townpeople said about 500 of Amin's troops abandoned Arua on Monday, fleeing to Zaire and Sudan with hundreds of vehicles, radios and TV sets.

They reported Amin had not been seen in Arua since mid-April, soon after the Tanzanians and their anti-Amin Ugandan allies captured Kampala, the capital 220 miles to the southeast.

Nearly every shop in Arua had been looted. Residents said most of the people fled several days ago after Amin's soldiers told them the Tanzanians were coming to massacre them.

Amin's cottage near the airport was empty. Nearby were a police helicopter and the silver Citroen-Maserati he used to drive in car rallies with "Suicide Sarah," the singer he married in 1975.

Tanzanian military commanders said their next objective was Koboko, Amin's home village 30 miles to the north.

Arua was the last of three northern district capitals reported held by the remnants of Amin's army. It was occupied after a six-week march by one column from Kampala that moved east to the Kenyan border, then trekked to the northwest, and a second force that advanced north from the capital to link up with the eastern column.

Lira, one of the three district capitals, fell on May 16. The eastern column took the Amin troops there by surprise, killing at least 65 and capturing 15. Four days later Gulu, a district capital 120 miles east of Arua, was occupied without a fight.

After crossing the Albert Nile at Pakwach, midway between Gulu and Arua, the combined force clashed on Sunday with troops of Amin's mechanized Rhinoceros Regiment. Six Tanzanian soldiers were killed and 14 were wounded, but there was no report of casualties on the other side.

The troops from Kampala found no evidence of a force of 3,000-6,000 Amin troops and hundreds or thousands of mercenaries from Arab countries which an American mercenary named Daniel Pierre Walther reported he had seen assembling in the Arua area for a counteroffensive.

In Kampala, meanwhile, the new government said it would ask Kenya next week for the extradition of Amin's chief adviser, British-born Robert Astles, and 47 other high-ranking officials who fled as the invasion force of Tanzanians and Ugandan exiles closed in on Kampala.

Police officials said Astles, who became a Ugandan citizen, is being charged with one count of murder for extradition purposes but that other murder charges may be added later. If convicted, he probably will be executed.

CLARENCE KELLEY

Kelley has new role

MIAMI (AP) — American Express has a former TV cop pushing its travelers checks, but the makers of a jewelry identification device have gone one better — hiring ex-FBI director Clarence Kelley.

Kelley was to be in Miami Wednesday to film a commercial for a laser device that photographs the interiors of precious jewels for quick and accurate identification.

"Yes, it smacks of commercialism," said Kelley, who is on the board of Gemprint Co., which markets the device. "It is a position which is beneficial to me financially."

"But it also removes as a strong possibility the profit in stolen diamonds once it is known that this type of equipment is available," he said from his home in Kansas City, Mo.

For those of you not up on your television history, that stern-faced, hatted figure promoting American Express traveler's checks is Karl Malden, star of the old television series "The Streets of San Francisco."

Playing cop backfires

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mayor Dennis Kucinich's attempt to play cop in the arrest of three grade-school boys found in a no-trespassing area has ended with charges dropped and a stern rebuke from the boys' parents.

Police had booked the boys on juvenile delinquency charges Monday after Kucinich caught them playing baseball in a fenced-off, empty park pool near his home and detained them personally.

Baez on new crusade

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer-activist Joan Baez has launched a new Vietnam protest, but this time it's against the Vietnamese government and not the United States.

Ms. Baez and her fledgling Humanitas-International Human Rights Committee Tuesday announced a U.S. campaign against long-term imprisonment of thousands of "prisoners of conscience" in Vietnam.

The folk singer, a highly visible figure during the anti-Vietnam War protests of the 1960s and 1970s, saw no irony in her new crusade.

Haley takes boat ride

NANAIMO, British Columbia (AP) — Like his ancestor Kunta Kinte centuries ago, Alex Haley found himself taking an unexpected and unwanted boat ride Monday.

Haley, author of the best seller "Roots," which traces his family's history back to his ancestor's capture and enslavement, rented a motor home and drove to Horseshoe Bay with a companion for a look at West Vancouver.

They got into the wrong traffic lane, however, and found themselves lined up bumper-to-bumper with a couple of hundred other vehicles heading to Vancouver Island.

Rather than complicate the matter, Haley elected to go along for the ferry ride to this Vancouver Island city, a 90-minute sailing across the Strait of Georgia.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, MAY 31, 1979

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have to be more astute than usual in your relations with others for most persons are dependent on their pride and can get upset if they feel it has been slighted. Give encouragement when possible.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Although fun is on your mind, it could prove very costly now, so get at the work you have to do instead. Be energetic at some special talent you are perfecting and needs more work on it.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Do nothing that could start arguments at home. Try to help kin instead. Paying compliments to new contacts can gain you their good will now. Avoid one who could be detrimental to you socially.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use more care than usual if you are to steer clear of accidents, either driving or walking. Not a good day for new contracts of any kind.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Cut down on extravagance and save your money for a possible rainy day. Don't argue over a small account or you lag behind in credit quickly. Show you are a reasonable person.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Be tactful in handling an annoying situation and impress others favorably. Steer clear of the social for the time being. Tend to important business now.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You feel very limited but if you get busy on routines you find you make real progress. Analyze the situation well and you know how to improve matters. Get on the cheerful side of life.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't argue with friends who are under pressure and could be short with you. Get busy at your own work and avoid the social altogether for the time being. Take time to study, too.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are displeased with conditions in general but be patient and they soon get better. Observe all rules and regulations that concern you and avoid legal worries.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Find the right way to complete tasks ahead of you and save time. Not a good day to start on new interests, outlets. Steer clear of a new contract with an axe to grind, avoid trouble.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make sure you go through with an agreement you made or you get into serious trouble. Don't expect too much affection from a loved one today. Do something that will bring about a reconciliation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be fair with a partner and understand other's views better for best results. Be encouraging to others and all works out fine for you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Not a good day for taking risks, but fine for showing devotion to close ties and friends. Buy a thoughtful gift for a loved one and pave the way for greater understanding.

WINS TEMPORARY SUPPORT — Bianca Jagger, wife of rock star Mick Jagger, leaves superior court in Los Angeles last week following a court appearance in which the judge ordered Jagger to pay her $12,000 in temporary support. Also he was to pay her medical bills not to exceed $2,500. Further action in the support and divorce trial was continued to June 8th.

Not easily transmitted

Mono myths cleared

NEW YORK, N.Y. — If you discover that your best friend has mononucleosis, should you run to the doctor? Not necessarily, since the disease is not as easily transmitted as we once thought, says the June issue of Seventeen Magazine.

"There is still a lot of misunderstanding and myth about mono," says Dr. Ellis Caplan, assistant professor of medicine at Johns Hopkins University Medical School in Maryland. A diagnosis of mononucleosis often brings about visions of isolation from friends, weeks (sometimes months) of total bed rest, lost semesters, wretched athletic careers and ruined lives. But a good deal of these grim thoughts are simply not true. "Mono is a benign, self-limiting disease that clears up without specific treatment and leaves no ill effects," says Dr. Caplan.

Scientists have discovered that mononucleosis is caused by the EB virus — a close relative of the virus that gives us cold sores and shingles. Studies indicate that a patient's family or spouse is no more likely to develop mono than someone who is not so closely exposed to it. Although doctors have no definite explanation for this, they have found that the EB virus is so widespread, many people are unknowingly infected by it during infancy and have developed EB antibodies. Antibodies increase people's immunity, thus preventing them from contracting mono, regardless of their proximity to the infected person. Typically, the symptoms of mono are a miserable threesome: sore throat, swollen glands in the neck, and armpits and an enlargement of the spleen. Usually the first signs of the disease are fever, extreme fatigue (some patients want to sleep all day) and a generally sick feeling during the first five days.

Definite diagnosis of mononucleosis can almost always be made on the basis of a physical examination and a three minute blood test that can be done right in the doctor's office.

In general, patients can expect the disease to last a few days or a few weeks at most. Relapses do occur, but are usually mild. Once recovery from a mono infection is complete, an individual's immunity is lifelong.

Where to find dates

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Nick, 19, who lives in Huntsville, Ala., has a hard time meeting girls. Millie Karras, 18, from Fresno, Calif., and Jeff Browne, 18, who resides in Columbus, Ohio, will give Nick a few pointers. Welcome.

Doctor Wallace: I have considered writing to you many times about my problem, but have always decided against.

My problem is that meeting new girls is difficult for me. Both my friend and I are always going places looking to meet nice girls, but never have much luck.

I am a better than average looking guy, very outgoing, love to play all sports, but a little shy.

I have graduated from high school, which cuts out the social part of knowing everybody and having everybody know you. Where can I go to meet a nice girl even though I'm shy? — Nick Nick: If there is a college near you, most often evening classes. Why don't you see if there is a course you might enjoy? There are many nice girls on campus.

Don't forget church youth groups and of course, in summer there is always the beach or a favorite swimming hole.

Hi Nick: As a girl I'll tell you where we go to meet new boys — pizza parlors, concerts, high school and college football games, church functions, amusement parks, fairs, the beach, shopping malls, teen discos, parties, any place where cars are shown, movies, restaurants, college campuses and record stores. These are starters. Hope they help. — Millie Hello Nick: I have found that the easiest place to meet girls is at rock concerts. Girls go there to meet guys so it's a natural.

While you are waiting for a rock concert in Huntsville, check out your local roller skating rink. It's a great sport and an excellent place to meet girls. — Jeff

If you would like to be a teen guest writer, please write to me in care of his newspaper stating your sex and age.

Faulkner installed as PTA president

Mike Faulkner was installed as president of the Washington PTA when members met May 22.

Other officers include Linda Cathey, vice president; Linda Baker, secretary; and Sharon Anderson, treasurer.

Another meeting will be held Thursday at the Family Country Kitchen for old and new officers in order to plan next year's activities.

At present, plans are being made for cross walk workers for fall and it was voted to have a raffle at the fall carnival to give away tickets to a Dallas Cowboys football game.

The Cactus Chapter American Business Women's Association met at the Tumbleweed Room at Howard College May 21 at 7 p.m. with Frances Swann, president, presiding.

American Business Women's Association is actively concerned with the achievements and advancements of women through education.

Guests in attendance were scholarship recipients Angie Fulgham, student at A&M; and Tammie Lewis, student at Howard College.

Mrs. Doris Huibregtse presented the program on "Women in Management." She is Mid-Management Director and Business Instructor at Howard College. She holds the B.B.A. and M.S. degrees from Texas A & I University, Kingsville.

She is active in many professional organizations including the Texas Business Education Association of which she is chairman of the Long Range Planning Committee. Mrs. Huibregtse gave an informative talk on working women today. She told of 10 successful women in Texas and the way in which they became successful in their jobs. Women earn 40 percent less than men even though they perform their jobs as well. To be successful, she advised you have to get a foot hold in the door and keep climbing, never sit back, when you know you can do a job, do it to capacity.

Helen McDonald was vocational speaker. She took over McDonald Rental business after her husband's illness. She is semi-retired but still has some rentals, she enjoys meeting people and helping those starting out in homemaking.

The attendance contest was won by the Goldenrods. Neida Colclazer, Gail Earls, and Ester Trantham will go to Denton in June for the State Cinderella Beauty Pageant. A class on poise will be conducted at Howard College June 2 and 9. Instructor will be Jan Gillit. Those interested should call Mrs. Colclazer, for further information.

The Altrusa Club of Big Spring met May 24 in the Patio Room of the Holiday Inn. Mamie Roberts, vice president, presided due to the illness of President Bonnie Bennett.

The invocation was given by Mary Lynn Welch.

The members elected Mrs. Roberts delegate and Frances Hendrick alternate to represent the club July 22-26 at the Altrusa International Convention to be held in the Crown Center Hotel in Kansas City, Mo.

Mrs. Hendrick, chairman of International Relations and her committee, Johnnie Winham, Irene Orenbaum, and Ruby Billings, were dressed in various Mexican fashions. The tables were decorated with dolls of foreign countries and members were given flowers to wear in their hair.

Guest speaker, Mrs. Carlos Bres, was introduced by Mrs. Hendrick.

Mrs. Bres, a Big Spring native, lived in Mexico City several years, receiving her master's degree from The University of Mexico. She used as her subject, "Mexico City."

Mrs. Bres revealed various relaxation and cultural areas of interest in Mexico, including Puerto Vallarta, Mazatlan and Cozumel as well as the pyramids in Mexico City and the ruins in Oaxaca.

"English is spoken everywhere," concluded the speaker.

The next meeting will be May 31 in the Patio Room of the Holiday Inn at 7 p.m., with Pat Highley in charge.

Order of the Eastern Star, Laura B. Hart Chapter No. 1019, met May 24 with Worthy Matron Carol Huff presiding.

She introduced her grand officers including Mrs. Jo Duncan, Chapter Caring Committee; Steve Baker, Masonic Strength Committee, Big Spring No. 67; and Norma Grant, Chapter Caring Committee, Coahoma, No. 409.

Special guests for the year, Julianne and John Conley, Odessa No. 477, were also introduced.

A program was given by Laveria Ann Mitchell and Linda McCormick. Officers of Laura B. Hart No. 1019 honored worthy matron Carol Huff and Worthy Patron Paul Sweatt with an ice cream and cake reception. Gladys Fiveash, Ruth Sweatt and Mrs. McCormick were in charge of refreshments.

Following the presentation of gifts to the worthy matron and worthy patron, a program was presented by Mrs. Clara Garcia, Bernardo and Robert Garcia, Jodie, Sara and Teddy Molina.

Gifts were presented to the 1978-1979 officers by the worthy matron and worthy patron. Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Slim Fiveash, Gladys Fiveash, Evie Eastham, Mrs. Mitchell, Candy Daniel, as well as all officers and pro-tems were thanked for the services, contributions and support.

Five chapters were represented at the meeting. Registration committee included Mrs. Sweatt, Cindy Thompson and Edna Malone.

Retardation— Not a Dead End, Only a Detour!

DEAR ABBY: Enclosed please find my check for $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope for your booklet "How to Have a Lovely Wedding."

This wedding has to be specially lovely, because it is for a special daughter and a special young man. Both were labeled retarded as children, but have overcome their handicap and grown into mature, capable people. (She is 31 and he is 29.) Both work and are able to manage their own affairs with a little assistance from both sets of parents.

Friends and relatives are so happy that this beautiful couple found each other. If they were growing up today I'm sure they would not be labeled retarded, but would be considered to have "learning disabilities." They will be married in a church because their religion means so much to both of them.

This is my first letter to Dear Abby, and the only advice I need is how to make this wedding one of the loveliest our family has ever had.

REJOICING IN N.Y.

DEAR REJOICING: Thank you for a beautiful letter bearing a message of hope for all "special" children and their families. May the happy couple enjoy all of God's blessings.

If you need help in writing letters of sympathy, congratulations or thank-you letters, get Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for all Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Laaky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212

Desk and Derrick held its May meeting on the 21st in the Refinery Conference Room, Cosden Oil & Chemical Company.

Linda Slater was accepted by the Board of Directors into membership of the Big Spring Desk and Derrick Club.

Via Ballou was elected as delegate and Sue Warren as alternate to attend the ADDC Convention this fall in Edmonton, Alberta, Canada.

Sue Warren introduced the speaker for the meeting, Christi Bonewitz, Yield Accountant for Cosden Oil & Chemical Company, and a member of Desk and Derrick. She presented a chart originated by her which illustrated the method of accounting for all oil related products received, used, stored, and shipped by the Cosden Oil Refinery.

Included in her presentation were samples of actual source documents from refinery personnel used by the Yield Accounting Department to obtain information on the status of the various products.

The brief talk gave Desk and Derrick a general idea of the operation of the Yield Accounting Department. Since she will be moving out of the area shortly, Christi was presented with a gift as a token of appreciation from the club at the end of her presentation.

There will be no meetings in June and July. So the August birthday meeting was discussed. Aug. 20 will be the date for this meeting and it was decided to make it a covered dish and cake supper at the home of Venita Blasingame.

Clements speaks on gas situation

Rationing, restriction not necessary for Texas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gasoline rationing and restricted service station hours will not be necessary in Texas, Gov. Bill Clements said Tuesday.

Clements said he already had powers to control gas sales before President

Carter issued an executive order granting the nation's governors that authority.

The governor said the Legislature that ended Monday granted him the same emergency authority Carter gave state chief executives.

"I don't feel the need for going into drastic plans of odd-even days or odd-even numbered license tags, closing on weekends or closing on Sundays," Clements said.

"I don't feel the crisis is that severe at this point and further we are not ready (for complicated plans)," he added. "We're trying to get our facts together."

Carter said Tuesday he has signed an order giving governors authority to make gasoline stations remain open on weekends, to set minimum purchases and to institute an odd-even selling system.

"It's interesting that Mr. Carter decided that instead of him retaining all this authority in Washington and handing down from the mouth, so to speak, daily bulletins of what we should be doing, that he is now delegating this authority to various governors of the states," Clements added.

The governor said he was not contacted directly by the White House about the president's order but learned about it from news reports.

Legislation consolidating all executive branch energy offices into one department also conferred broader emergency powers to the governor during energy shortages, he said.

Shamrock will move to Dallas

CLEVELAND (AP) — The giant Diamond Shamrock Corp., which has 1,100 employees in Cleveland, is moving its headquarters to Dallas, partly because of what it described as an anti-business attitude of Mayor Dennis J. Kucinich.

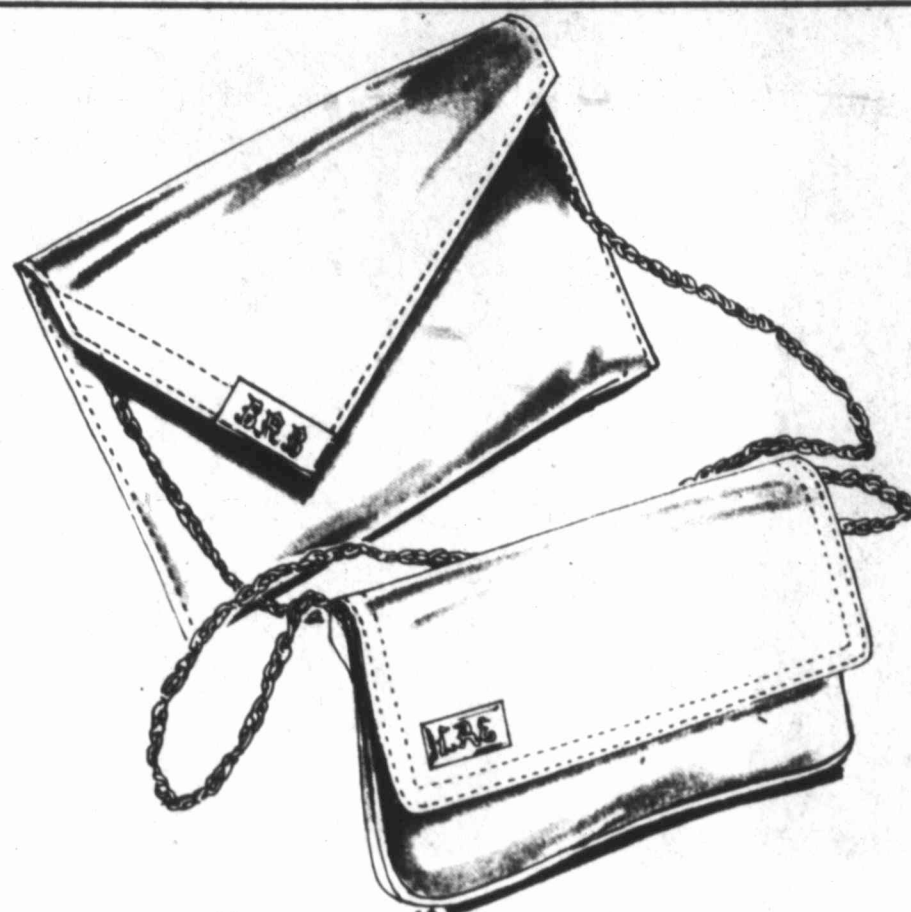

Reacting angrily, Kucinich said: "We're not patsies for anyone. When a big business views this administration with trepidation that can only be good for the people."

William H. Bricker, Diamond Shamrock president and chief executive, said Tuesday the major reason for the move is to place the company's headquarters closer to its oil, gas and coal assets in the Southwest.

The first 30-40 executives will move to Dallas in August, he said, and will be joined by another 100 within a year. All of the company's downtown Cleveland jobs would be eliminated within five years or less.

Bricker said Diamond Shamrock, an energy, technology and chemical company, also is studying the future of research and technical facilities in nearby Concord Township, where 800 persons are employed.

"The political, economic and educational climate in Cleveland, and particularly the antibusiness attitude on the part of our city administration, was also something we could not ignore," Bricker said. "In recent months, several key employees decided not to join us, based principally on the image Cleveland suffers from on a national basis."

Cooke's empire sold to native Californian

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The House that Jack Built and household names like Kareem, Magic and Marcel — are being bought by Los Angeles real estate man Dr. Jerry Buss.

The purchase for about $67 million of the 16,000-seat Forum, pro basketball's Lakers and the pro hockey Kings from Jack Kent Cooke gives Los Angeles a homegrown sports entrepreneur.

Until now the baseball O'Malleys from New York, former Canadian Cooke and football franchise owners moving from the East have controlled the pro sports market in the Los Angeles area. One exception was formation of baseball's Angels by former movie cowboy Gene Autry.

The 46-year-old Buss, who holds a doctoral degree in physical chemistry from the University of Southern California, showed the necessary financial muscle when he bankrolled a great deal of the struggles of World Team Tennis for five years.

He owned the Los Angeles Strings, putting Ilie Nastase and Chris Evert together to win a WTT title last year.

Buss also was a part owner of the San Diego, Anaheim and Indiana franchises before the 10-team WTT folded last fall.

Winning the WTT trophy only cost him "a couple of million," he joked. He has estimated his fortune in 30 years of real estate has grown to $350 million. He quit a research job with an aircraft company in 1968 and sunk his entire savings into one apartment building — the first of very many with 5,000 units in Los Angeles and another 5,000 in other cities.

The 66-year-old Cooke and Buss made separate announcements Tuesday that they are finalizing the package deal, the largest transaction in sports history. In addition to the Lakers, the Kings and the 11-year-old Forum, the sale also includes Cooke's Rancho, a 13,000-acre ranch in the California Sierra.

"I am elated," said Buss in a statement released by spokesman Bob Steiner. "It is something I have wanted for a long period of time. It is like a dream come true. It's very exciting for me to work with people like Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Marcel Dionne. And I'm excited about the arrival of Dale McCourt."

To add to Laker center Abdul-Jabbar, a five-time NBA most valuable player, and high-scoring Kings center Dionne, the Lakers recently signed Earvin "Magic" Johnson, who led Michigan State to the national collegiate championship. And the Kings won an appeals court verdict in the struggle over young center McCourt of Detroit.

Calling Cooke's Forum "The House that Jack Built" recalled the importance of Babe Ruth 40 years earlier for Yankee Stadium — "The House that Ruth Built."

Cooke built the Forum for $16 million in 1967 following disagreements with the Los Angeles Coliseum Commission over conditions for use of the Sports Arena by the Lakers and Kings.

National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle had urged Cooke to divest himself of other sports interests if he desired to stay affiliated with that league's Washington Redskins.

MAKING THE BUCKET — Washington's Elvin Hayes, 11, drives to the basket and Seattle's Jack Sikma, 43, and Lonnie Shelton, 8, in their NBA game Tuesday in Seattle. Seattle won the game 114-112 giving them a 3-1 lead in the series.

Sonics fight by Bullets in overtime thriller

SEATTLE (AP) — Dennis Johnson says the Seattle Super-Sonics only have to remember last year to keep from squandering their lead in the National Basketball Association championship playoffs against the Washington Bullets.

"Everybody on this team is remembering last year," said Johnson after the Sonics defeated the Bullets 114-112 in overtime Tuesday night to go ahead 3-1 in the best-of-seven finals. "We had the lead then and relaxed. The next thing we knew, we were being blown out."

Last year, the Sonics led in the final series 3-2, but got pasted in Game Six in Washington, 117-82, and the Bullets went on to win the championship.

The next game in this series will be played Friday in Landover, Md., with Game Six, if necessary, here on Sunday and Game Seven in Landover next Wednesday.

Dennis Johnson also said it doesn't mean a thing that the Bullets were down 3-1 against San Antonio in the Eastern Conference finals and came back to win the series, only the third time in NBA history such a comeback was made in the playoffs. It has never been done in the championship round.

"We're not the Spurs," said Johnson, who tipped the last Bullets shot into the hands of teammate Jack Sikma with three seconds remaining in the overtime. "We don't get all the publicity that the Spurs do, but they don't play defense like us. We aren't your average team. We're not going to lose the 3-1 lead."

Dennis Johnson and Gus Williams, the two Sonics guards, once again paced Seattle. They got 32 and 36 points, respectively. They got lots of help inside from Sikma, who had 20 points, 17 rebounds, five blocked shots and aided in getting Washington's three big men Elvin Hayes, Bobby Dandridge and Wes Unseld — to foul out of the game.

Washington Coach Dick Motta was angered about those foul calls, claiming San Antonio Coach Doug Moe set the stage for them when he criticized the referees after the final game of the Eastern Conference playoffs.

In that last game, the referees were accused of favoring the champion Bullets," said Motta. "I honestly feel we are the victims of Doug Moe's outburst. Seattle played the last 14 minutes and did not have a foul called against them. I am very upset."

"I don't believe you can play an NBA game and not have a foul called on a team in the last 14 minutes," said Motta.

Actually, the Sonics had two fouls called against them in the last 16:28, but none in the last 8:47.

Sonics Coach Lenny Wilkens said his team knew it had to win. "It was a must game for both teams and we knew they were going to go all out. There was a lot of tension, so our team was tight in the beginning."

The Bullets finally had their guards break out of their shooting slump with Kevin Grevey and Charlie Johnson hitting for 18 points apiece. Hayes also scored 18, while Dandridge and Unseld had 16 each.

"We can still win this thing," contended Grevey. "We have come back from being down 3-1 before. But it will be tougher this time. Seattle was not San Antonio."

BIG SPRING, TEXAS, MAY 30, 1979

Steady competition makes no difference to sensational Lopez

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP) — Steady competition, no matter what the sport, makes one a better performer, right?

Not so, claims Nancy Lopez, the darling of the Ladies Professional Golf Association.

The leading money-winner on the tour last year when she captured nine tournaments, including five in a row, for a season's total of $189,813, the 22-year-old is ready to defend her title in the $100,000 classic which gets underway Thursday at the par-72, 6,410-yard Wykagyl Country Club course.

Lopez is playing less competitive golf than she did since joining the circuit less than two years ago.

There are reasons for the decline in competition, not the least of which was her marriage last Jan. 22, the date of her 22nd birthday, to Tim Melton, a TV sportscaster from Harrisburg, Pa., whom she met on the way towards finishing in a deadlock for 13th place in the Lady Keystone Classic.

That defeat snapped Lopez's five-tournament win streak, which helped her capture female athlete of the year honors from The Associated Press. It also opened a new way of life.

"Now I don't have to be the No. 1 golfer," smiled Lopez after playing a nine-hole practice round. "My No. 1 priority is my marriage."

"Last year, I played in 25 tournaments, while this time I have scheduled only 21. That is still a lot of golf but people may not think so. Check the records. The less competition has not altered my game."

A quick perusal of the statistics reveals that Lopez already has won four tournaments and has amassed an earnings total of $103,000.

"Less competition has not taken away from my game," she added. "Mentally, I am a lot stronger. It's better to come into a tournament after a week's layoff rather than play six straight times."

"I have discovered that the extra week of competition makes one more fatigued rather than making you sharp."

Lopez, who skipped last week's tourney in Corning, N.Y., was more than satisfied with her abbreviated round Tuesday.

"I like Wykagyl very much," explained the always-smiling 5-foot-7 athlete. "It's a great course and I always think back to my final round last year when I beat out an excellent golfer, JoAnne Carner."

LaMotta's wife sues for royalties

NEW YORK (AP) — The third wife of former middleweight boxing champ Jake "The Bronx Bull" LaMotta has sued the boxer for money she claims he owes from royalties on his autobiography.

Sally Falleye LaMotta said Tuesday that under a 1971 divorce settlement her husband promised to pay her 20 percent of the royalties from the book, "The Raging Bull."

Mrs. LaMotta, now a resident of Davie, Fla., said she was also entitled to 20 percent of any money her former husband earned from the movie version, which will star Robert DeNiro in the title role.

LaMotta, 56, has been serving as technical adviser in the film production. Mrs. LaMotta claimed that she had received no payments under the agreement.

In a twist in the case, the process server who delivered the court papers to LaMotta's Manhattan apartment said the papers were accepted by a woman identifying herself as Debora LaMotta, the boxer's fifth wife.

Walling's hit pushes Astros past Reds

HOUSTON (AP) — Although Randy Niemann turned in a strong pitching performance to record his first major league victory, it was a lucky "break" that set up the game-winning hit.

The hit came in the bottom of the ninth inning off the bat of pinch-hitter Dennis Walling, who sliced a bases-loaded single to score shortstop Craig Reynolds and give the Houston Astros a 2-1 win over the Cincinnati Reds Tuesday night.

The game was tied 1-1 when Reynolds singled to open the Astros' half of the ninth inning. With first baseman Cesar Cedeno at the plate, Reynolds broke for second on the pitch, then stopped in his tracks.

"That break was just enough to move (shortstop Dave) Concepcion toward second, and Cedeno hit the ball right where he had been," said Astros manager Bill Virdon. "It was the difference in the game."

Reynolds moved to third on the play, with Cedeno going to second. Reliever Doug Bair intentionally walked Jose Cruz to load the bases and set the stage for Walling's heroics.

Niemann, who was recalled from Charleston May 17 when Vern Riffe was placed on the 21-day disabled list, had to pull out of his first start with the Astros when he developed a blister while pitching against San Diego in a game Houston won 6-3.

He still had the blister Tuesday night, but managed to overcome some bad moments early in the game and go the distance, scattering eight hits while striking out six and walking none.

"I threw a lot more breaking and off-speed pitches than I usually do because they're a fast-ball hitting club," said Niemann. "And the guys behind me were playing great defense. I just tried to get it over and depend on the rest of the team to get the outs."

Asked if pitching to the hardhitting Reds made him nervous, Niemann said, "Last week was my first major league start, and I was really nervous then. Meeting the Reds didn't make any difference, because I was as nervous as I could be, anyway."

His teammates gave him a calming advantage in the first inning when Cedeno lashed a single to left center, stole second and went to third after Reds catcher Johnny Bench threw the ball into centerfield.

Cruz blasted a triple to leftcenter off loser Paul Moskau, 4-2, driving Cedeno home with the go-ahead run.

The Reds came right back, however, with Bench

SAFE LANDING — Astro Shortstop, Craig Reynolds (No. 12), bounces back up, after sliding into third base during the ninth inning. Ray Knight, (No. 25), for Cincinnati makes the late catch. Reynolds went on to score the winning run on a hit by Denny Walling. Houston beat the Reds 2-1 in Tuesday night's game.

Valentine, Rogers ignite Phillies past Expos

Baseball Roundup

By The Associated Press

Ellis Valentine's three-run homer capped a five-run, fifth inning and Steve Rogers pitched a six-hitter as Montreal beat Philadelphia. Rogers triggered the fifth-inning outburst with a lead-off single and Warren Cromartie later delivered a two-run double before Valentine's fifth homer of the season.

The Expos had provided Rogers with a 2-0 lead in the second inning when Chris Speier doubled in two runs. Perez and Valentine both hit RBI doubles in the seventh to stretch the Montreal lead to 9-0.

Brewers rout Yankees, Catfish

Cecil Cooper slammed a pair of bases-empty homers and Robin Yount added a two-run double as Milwaukee handed winless Catfish Hunter his fourth setback. Cooper's 11th homer of the year and second of the game broke a 2-2 tie in the sixth inning and three infield hits and Yount's double, which right fielder Reggie Jackson misplayed, helped the Brewers to three more runs in the seventh. Milwaukee's Moose Haas scattered seven hits, including home runs by Jackson and Graig Nettles.

Parrish's hit sparks Tiger win

Lance Parrish snapped an 8-6 tie with a run-scoring single in the eighth inning following a two-out intentional walk to Jason Thompson. Lou Whitaker opened the eighth with a single and was sacrificed to second. After Rusty Staub flied out, Thompson was purposely passed, but Parrish spoiled the strategy with his game-winning hit. The Tigers also got a two-run single from Alan Trammell and a two-run double from Jerry Morales and Parrish had an RBI double. Rookie Dave Tobik earned his first major league victory with one inning of relief.

Palmer stifles Royals bats

The Baltimore Orioles survived a 10-count and flattened the Kansas City Royals Tuesday night.

One night earlier, the Orioles dropped their 10th consecutive game in Royals Stadium. But Tuesday evening, Ken Singleton, Rich Dauer, Gary Roenicke and Lee May unloaded haymakers and the Orioles pounded the Royals 8-1, their first success in Kansas City since June 4, 1977.

"Hell, does this feel good," exclaimed Manager Earl Weaver. "You get to wondering what the hell you have to do. Last year it was 100 percent Kansas City and last night (Monday's 5-4 16-inning loss) we had plenty of chances but still couldn't win."

Baltimore ace Jim Palmer, making his first start in 10 days since complaining of soreness in his right arm, retired 13 Kansas City batters in a row between the first and fifth. He allowed five hits, struck out three and walked two before Tippy Martinez relieved in the eighth when Palmer's forearm tightened again.

Wortham's arm scalps Indians

Bill Nahorodny doubled home two runs and Richard Wortham blanked Cleveland on four hits for eight innings. Nahorodny's double came in the fourth inning off loser Eric Wilkins after Alan Bannister singled and Lamar Johnson walked. The White Sox scored two more runs in the sixth on RBI singles by Milt May, making his debut with Chicago, and Rusty Torres.

Angels slip past Mariners

Bobby Grich collected three hits and drove in three runs while Jim Barr scattered eight hits before needing help from Dave LaRoche in the eighth as the Angels posted their fourth consecutive triumph. Barr replaced scheduled starter Nolan Ryan, who remained behind in California with his injured son and then was delayed by the grounding of a DC-10. Grich delivered a two-run double in the seventh inning. In the fifth, his single scored Brian Downing all the way from first. Ruppert Jones and Bob Stinson homered for Seattle.

Mets rally past Red Birds

John Stearns and Steve Henderson belted run-scoring doubles to highlight a four-run rally in the seventh inning and lead New York over St. Louis. Lee Mazzilli's double, one of 14 New York hits, triggered the New York uprising off St. Louis right-hander Pete Vuckovich. An inning later, the Mets added an insurance run on two singles and Richie Hebner's sacrifice fly in support of Pat Zachry, 4-0, who yielded nine hits in 71-3 innings.

Baker's single gives Bums win

Dusty Baker's fly ball single to deep center field drove in the winning run as Los Angeles rallied for three runs in the ninth inning to defeat San Francisco.

The Dodgers had scored twice in the ninth and had the bases loaded with one out and Baker hitting against San Francisco reliever Dave Roberts. Baker lofted a fly ball over the head of Giants center fielder Bill North for the game-winning hit.

Run-scoring singles by Reggie Smith and Steve Yeager gave the Dodgers their first two runs of the inning.

Perry, Padres sweep Braves

Dave Winfield homered and Gene Tenace cracked a two-run triple to help Gaylord Perry record his 271st career victory as San Diego defeated Atlanta in the first game of their double-header.

The Padres completed their sweep as Ozzie Smith's run-scoring single broke a tie in the eighth inning.

Parker blast Bucs past Cubs

Dave Parker is starting to shake out of his "slump." You know it when he tells you so.

The Pittsburgh Pirate star never hesitates to blow his own horn, as many know, and that's exactly what he did Tuesday night after helping his team blow out the Chicago Cubs 8-0.

"It's about time for me to put something together," said Parker after hitting two doubles and a home run and driving in three runs.

Defeat Arkansas, 6-2

Midland Cubs continue winning

By The Associated Press
Eric Grandy singled home Chico Alfaro in the fifth inning to help Midland beat Arkansas, 6-2, Tuesday night in a baseball game matching Texas League division leaders.

In other Texas League action, El Paso clubbed Shreveport, 13-7, and Tulsa beat San Antonio, 6-3. Amarillo's scheduled contest at Jackson was postponed because of rain.

After Grandy singled home Alfaro, Bill Hayes had a two-run single and Arkansas was never able to catch up. Henry Mack, 3-1, was the winning pitcher for the Cubs and Len Strelitz, 3-4, was the losing hurler for the Travelers.

Midland has a four and a half-game lead over San Antonio in the Texas League Western Division while Arkansas has a two-game lead over Jackson in the Eastern Division.

Rich Brewster's two-run homer in the bottom of the eighth gave El Paso an 8-7 lead over Shreveport. Charlie Phillips, 2-1, was the winning pitcher for the Diablos. Steve Cline, 6-2, was the losing pitcher.

The Tulsa Drillers scored four unearned runs in the fifth inning and went on to take a 6-3 victory over the San Antonio Dodgers. Chuck Lemson was the winning Tulsa hurler. Mark Nipp was charged with the loss.

Top FBI investigator assigned to probe assassination of judge

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — An army of federal agents, commanded by the FBI's foremost criminal investigator, have begun a sweeping search for the assassin who shot U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. to death.

The judge, known as "Maximum John" because of the stiff sentences he assessed drug offenders, was shot once in the lower back in the parking lot at his apartment Tuesday morning. He was dead on arrival at a San Antonio hospital.

The bullet tore through his abdomen, damaging vital organs and lodged in the upper right chest, said Frank Castillon, chief investigator for the medical examiner's office.

FBI spokesman David Cassens in Washington said the assassin probably used a small caliber rifle.

Wood, 63, the second federal official involved in West Texas drug investigations to become the target of a shooting in the last seven months, was believed to be the first federal judge assassinated.

Attorney General Griffin B. Bell, declaring "we cannot have a country where judges are assassinated or killed," assigned top FBI criminal investigator James O. Ingraham to direct a team of 40 agents in the case.

"We don't intend to leave a stone unturned," said Bell, a former federal judge.

U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, today asked Bell to offer a $25,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of Wood's killer.

"It is vital that the person or persons who committed this outrageous, lawless act be arrested and brought before the bar of justice as quickly as humanly possible," Bentsen said in a letter to Bell. "This vicious, unprecedented assassination must not go unpunished."

"I urge that you offer this maximum reward possible under the law to help assure that the assassin of Judge Wood feels the full force of the law," Bentsen said.

President Carter reacted to the assassination with anger, saying, "The killing of a federal judge...is an assault on our very system of justice."

Three weeks ago, Wood requested an end to protection given him since assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr narrowly escaped death when his car was riddled by gunfire last November.

The attack on Wood occurred less than a mile from where Kerr was ambushed.

But Pauline Clark, the judge's landlady at the fashionable Chateau Dijon Apartments, said Wood told her recently he felt his life was in danger.

U.S. Marshal Rudy Garza said Judge Wood told him, "If someone really wants to kill me, all the protection in the world would not prevent it."

Bell said marshals were being assigned to protect four federal judges in the San Antonio area.

Judge Adrian Spears, whose office is next to Wood's, had marshals in his outer rooms while a reporter interviewed him in his chambers. A phone call from Bell interrupted the interview.

Spears' son, James, 28, was visiting relatives at a condominium across the street from Wood's apartment.

"I was the first one there. He was lying on his back he wasn't conscious. I took his pulse and felt nothing, nothing," James Spears said.

Another eyewitness, who asked not to be identified, said

"he just slowly wheeled around and fell to the ground."

James Spears said he called police and an emergency medical team and arrived at the scene at the same time as the judge's wife, Kathryn.

She ran to his side moments after the shooting and tried to comfort the unconscious judge, said James Spears. "She went inside their apartment and got a pillow for his head. She loosened his clothes. She was very bewildered, very upset."

Wood had been presiding over drug cases developed by the U.S. Attorney's office in San Antonio. They centered in El Paso, with a Midland grand jury also investigating.

One of the most publicized cases was that of El Paso resident Jimmy Chagra, a professional gambler charged with conspiracy to possess, import and distribute cocaine and marijuana.

Wood was to preside over Chagra's trial, due to start in Austin on July 23. The trial was postponed from Tuesday.

Chagra's lawyers asked at an April pretrial hearing in Midland that Wood remove himself from the case, but Wood refused, saying he would be unbiased.

U.S. Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez told the San Antonio News from Washington the murder of Wood was "an out and out challenge of the federal government's capacity to control crime."

Gonzalez said Kerr visited him last week, and he warned Kerr he remained in danger and Wood was in "extreme danger."

John E. Clark, a former U.S. attorney in San Antonio, said, "A judge who sentences people in criminal cases can potentially make a lot of enemies. Judge Wood was known for being pretty stern. He had very strong views about crime and punishment and had a reputation for dealing very strongly with people convicted in his court, particularly in drug cases."

Former assistant U.S. Attorney John Pickney said that after the initial shock he wasn't surprised.

"I think he enjoyed the reputation of being known as 'Maximum John,' but there was always the feeling on my part that some of the defendants he sentenced may have been very bitter about it."

On the light side

Proposal with a kiss

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Rep. John Lewis introduced his proposal on the House floor, and, after light debate, Victoria Spangler accepted.

The Jacksonville Democrat had promised his girlfriend a surprise to commemorate the seventh week since they met, and Tuesday he proposed marriage — in the form of House Joint Resolution 1979.

In the resolution, Lewis, 29, pledged his "undying love and devotion" to Miss Spangler, whom he first saw on a Capitol elevator.

"Be it further resolved that John W. Lewis III desires to walk hand in hand with Victoria Spangler for the rest of his life and does hereby ask for her hand in holy matrimony," the measure concluded.

After light debate and approval by about a dozen lawmakers, Miss Spangler was escorted to the House floor where she accepted a ring and bouquet from Lewis and sealed the transaction with a kiss.

Unusual tasting fish fry

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — An anonymous Arkansas angler has absconded with about 60 pounds of bad taste, according to the director of the nation's largest freshwater filtered aquarium.

The culprit hauled 12 largemouth bass — weighing about five pounds each — from the aquarium at Mid-America Center Museum in Hot Springs.

But the fish were being treated with formaldehyde to cure a fungus and the water in the aquarium was being treated with copper sulfate to kill algae, according to Jerry Porter, director of the museum. He said the mix ought to produce an interesting taste for the poacher's fish fry, but probably would not be fatal.

Porter said the aquarium contained 30 to 40 fish of various species and sizes, and speculated the fish had been caught with a lure of some sort.

$1,149,972 to be spent in collecting weather data

A $1,149,972 contract has been awarded to Colorado State University for equipment to be used in collection of weather data here and in three other U.S. cities.

The announcement was made Tuesday by Rep. Charles Stenholm (D-Tex.). The funds will be used for digital satellite data collection and analysis through Project SKY-WALKER.

The project entails atmospheric resources management at locations in Big Spring, Auburn, Calif., Miles City, Mont., and Goodland, Kan.

Art enrichment for children, adults available at HC

A course designed to encourage children's creativity will begin June 5 at Howard College.

The course will be on Tuesday and Thursday mornings, 9-11:30 a.m., in the Art Building. The 20-hour class will end June 28. Enrollment will be limited to 18 children in the 5-9 age bracket.

Children will experiment with the basic colors through the medium of sponges and water colors. Barbara Merworth, local artist and Lamesa continuing education art instructor, will instruct the course.

Cost of the class will be $20. Upon registration, a materials list will be presented which will enable participants the opportunity to purchase them before the first day of class. Cost of materials will be approximately $20.

A watercolor class for adults will begin Tuesday, 7-9:30 p.m. The 15-hour course will be each Tuesday night until July 10. Cost of the course will be $15.00. Upon registration, a materials list will be presented which will contain the $30 approximate cost list of necessary items.

Barbara Merworth will teach the course. She studied watercolors under Robert Gartland.

Interested participants must pre-register in the Adult and Continuing office located in the Horace Garrett Building. For more information, call 267-6311, ext. 70.

YMCA offering swim program to Colorado City residents

COLORADO CITY — Mike McCracken, director of the Big Spring YMCA, said that the new extension program being offered to Colorado City residents makes the YMCA the first organization of its kind in Big Spring to spread to other communities.

The YMCA is offering a progressive swimming program to Colorado City youths during four summer sessions. The first begins June 4 and will continue through June 14 at the Ruddick Pool in Colorado City.

Several divisions will be offered during each session. Tadpole classes will teach ages 3-5 basic strokes. Basic strokes will also be taught to ages 6 and older in Polliwogs. Advanced swimming, emphasizing individual medley with rotary breathing, will be taught to Minnows.

The instructions will be given in 30 minute sessions, Monday through Thursday. Advanced lessons will be at 9 a.m., Minnows at 9:30 a.m., Tadpoles at 10:30 a.m. and Polliwogs at 11 a.m.

Instructors will be YMCA Certified in Water Safety and Lifesaving.

The fee is $15 for the first child and $10 for each additional child in a family.

The total number of participants in each of the four summer sessions will be limited to 60.

Applications may be mailed with the fee to the Big Spring YMCA, P.O. Box 1428, Big Spring.

More information is available from the YMCA, 915-267-8234.

Three Big Spring High grads selected for ASU scholarships

SAN ANGELO — Jennifer Denyse Smith, Joni Jan Cline and Toni Ann Cline, all of Big Spring, are recipients of Angelo State University Presidential Scholarships for the 1979-80 academic year.

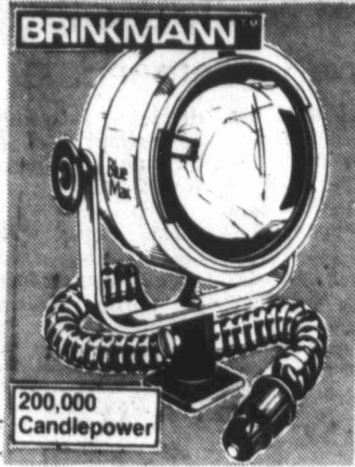

Miss Smith, a May high school graduate, has served as yearbook editor, Junior Class president, choir vice president and pep squad secretary. She also is listed in Who's Who and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney R. Smith.

Joni and Toni, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Cline, are Big Spring High School graduates. Both have been active in FHA, 4-H, DECA, Tri-Hi-Y and tennis activities.

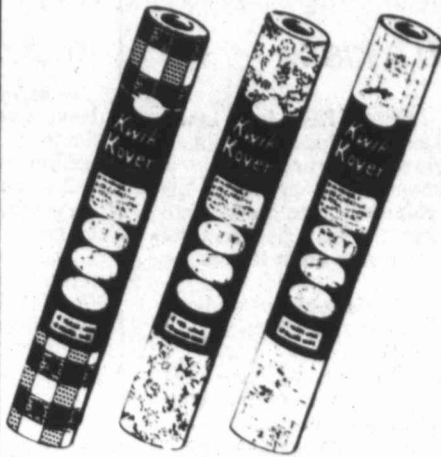

Selection for the scholarships is based on ACT testing scores, honor society memberships and recommendations by high school counselors.

EMT course to be offered this summer

Howard College will be offering three courses during the summer session in Emergency Medical Technology. The classes will meet during the evening hours of 6 to 10 p.m. in room 111 of the PA building.

The first course EMT-1400 is a basic course on the care of the acutely ill or injured with emphasis on diagnostic signs, airway management and Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation. Additional topics include soft tissue injuries, fractures, medical emergencies, extrication, bandaging and splinting.

Successful completion will allow the student to write the examination to be certified as an Emergency Medical Technician administered by the Texas Department of Health Resources, but students will not be certified until successful completion of EMT-2201. This course will meet on Monday and Wednesday evenings, 6-10 p.m.

EMT-2201 is a continuation of EMT-1400 with emphasis on clinical training and emergency ambulance runs for evaluation of acquired skills and knowledge. Students will have periodic evaluation conferences with course coordinator. Successful completion will allow the student to be certified as Texas EMT-A (BASIC).

EMT-2401 is an advanced course on the care of the acutely ill or injured with emphasis on Shock and Fluid Therapy. Additional topics include diagnostic techniques, general pharmacology and medical emergencies. The practicum will include clinical experience in the Emergency Room, IV Team and Intensive Care Unit. Applicants for this course must be Texas certified EMT's. Successful completion of this course will allow the student to write the examination to be certified as EMT-Special Skills (Intravenous Therapy) administered by the Texas Dept. of Health Resources.

This course will be taught Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6 to 10 p.m. Registration for the summer session at Howard College will be May 31 in the Anthony Hunt Library.

Additional information for these courses may be obtained from Knack Cox, instructor for the EMT courses, by calling Howard College, 267-6311, ext. 25.

'America's Sweetheart' dead

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Mary Pickford, who reigned as America's Sweetheart during the colorful, formative period of American movies, is dead at 86 after 13 years of seclusion in her legendary home, Pickfair.

Her death Tuesday was attributed to a cerebral hemorrhage suffered last Friday.

The journey to the hospital was one of the few times Miss Pickford, whose golden curls and spunky innocence won her the adulation of millions, had emerged from the mansion since she withdrew from public life in 1966.

In 1976, she appeared before cameras at Pickfair to accept an honorary award "in recognition of her unique contribution to the film industry and the development of film as an artistic medium" from the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, which she helped found.

Miss Pickford was perhaps the first great international screen idol. In an era of such stars as Greta Garbo and Gloria Swanson, she was the first to have her name in marquee lights and the first to command thousands of dollars a week. She was box office gold for such movies as "Pollyanna" and "Poor Little Rich Girl."

The romance of the Pickford name grew when she married the screen's most dashing hero, Douglas Fairbanks Sr., in 1920. Even five years later, 300,000 people went to see them.

Miss Pickford was known around the world as "America's Sweetheart," a title that stuck after it first appeared in 1914 on a marquee over Grauman's Chinese Theater.

She was born Gladys Marie Smith in Toronto, Canada, April 9, 1893, and made her stage debut at 5.

Her first film was a one-reeler in 1909, "The Violin Maker of Cremona," directed by aspiring, young Dr. Griffith.

Her fame grew and by 1916 she became her own producer with a 50-50 partnership in the releasing company. Three years later, she was earning $675,000 a year against half of the gross of her films.

"In 1929, it was time to grow up again," she said. "I bobbed my hair and did my first talkie, 'Coquette.' It was not my favorite film. Actually, I have no favorite for I have never been completely satisfied with anything I did. But my public accepted me at last as not only an adult, but an adult that has an illicit affair."

"Coquette" won her the Oscar as best actress. After the 1932 film, "Secrets," she quit acting. "I knew it was time to retire. I wanted to stop before I was asked to stop," she said.

Miss Pickford remained active in the film industry. She retained ownership in United Artists, which she had founded in 1920 with Fairbanks, Chaplin and Griffith. She produced movies, starred on radio and helped found the Motion Picture Relief Fund.

Fairbanks and Miss Pickford divorced in 1936 and the following year she married Charles "Buddy" Rogers, who had been her co-star in the 1927 "My Best Girl." They had two foster children, Ronald Pickford Rogers and Roxanne Pickford Rogers.

Her fortune was estimated at $50 million.

Funeral services were pending.

First United Methodist Church pastor appointed

The Rev. Edwin Chappell of Abilene will succeed Dr. Weldon Butler as pastor of the First United Methodist Church here, it was announced Tuesday night at the Northwest Texas Conference of the United Methodist Church in Amarillo.

Dr. Butler, associated with the local church for four years, who becomes the Plainview District superintendent.

The Rev. W.O. Rucker, minister for the Lamesa-Northridge-Gail circuit the past four years, is the new minister of Big Spring's Wesley United Methodist Church. He will replace the Rev. August Aamodt who, after two years at Wesley, is transferring to the Louisiana Conference. The pastor for the North Birdwell-Garden City circuit will be announced at a later date.

Aamodt will become the chaplain for the Glenwood Hospital in West Monroe, La.

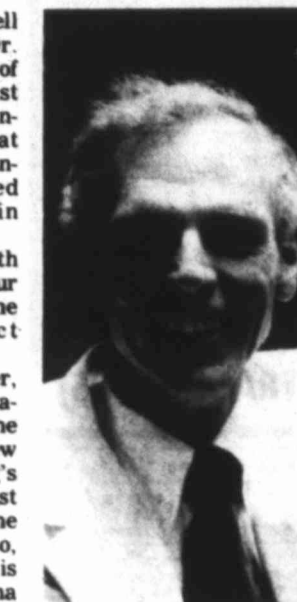

Ronald Hamby, a native of the Big Spring area, goes to the Colorado City FUM church after pastoring St. James UMC in Abilene the past six years. He succeeds Robert Ford, who becomes minister in Midland after four years at Colorado City.

Oland Butler is the new minister for the Lamesa-Northridge-Gail circuit. He goes there from the Pampa St. Paul-Lefors circuit, where he served three years.

William R. Fleming, who pastored the First United Methodist Church here briefly, has been named the new superintendent for the Lubbock district.

Bishop Alsie Carleton, bishop of both the Northwest Texas and New Mexico United Methodist Conferences, made a total of 44 ministerial changes among the numerous charges in the large conference.

During the years 1950 to

EDWIN CHAPPELL

Dr. Chappell is now serving as pastor of the Aldersgate UMC in Abilene. The church is located just east of the campus of McMurry College.

Prior to that time, he served churches in the New Mexico Conference, Albany, El Paso, First UMC, Lovington, N.M., First UMC, Alpine, Tex., and Bond Memorial Methodist Church, El Paso.

He received his B.S. Degree from McMurry College in 1957, his Master of Divinity Degree from SMU in 1961 and his Doctor in Divinity degree from McMurry in 1976.

His wife is named Laura. She graduated cum laude from the University of Texas at El Paso. Two daughters are married and living in Abilene, Lee and Laura Jane. The Chappells will bring two children with them here. They are Kimberly Brooke, a sophomore in high school, and Gil, a high school freshman.

Arts, crafts to spice RV show at coliseum

West Texas arts and crafts exhibitors will be a part of the upcoming Greater Big Spring Rotary Recreational Vehicle and Outdoor Show Saturday and Sunday in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum here.

Members of the organization agreed to allow arts and crafts enthusiasts to participate after inquiries were received from several area artisans.

The show was originally limited to RV, boat, motorcycle, camping and sporting goods dealers.

However, Greater Rotary Club members expect a large crowd of patrons who will be interested in almost every type of exhibit.

Reservations for small booth spaces are now being accepted with a limited number of exhibit areas still available. Only about 25 various exhibits will be accepted in order to provide a wide variety of displays.

Public hearing set in Lamesa

LAMESA — The Lamesa city council has set June 18 as a date for a public hearing on Texas Electric Service Company's proposed rate increase.

The council also voted to suspend the rate increase for a period of 120 days.

Texas Electric Service Company is seeking a 16.1 per cent boost in rates from Lamesa customers.
