NOBODY'S BUSINESS

BY JULIAN CAPERS JR.

Austin, Sept. 16.—The legislature, with Gov. Allred's message recommending regulation of liquor traffic as the first major problem to be attacked, plunged this week, after brief organization routine, into this troublesome question. Members had for their consideration, upon the opening of the session, two bills representing probable extremes of viewpoint. Neither will be adopted, of course, but the final measure will be a series of compromises. Current opinion is that the law adopted will eliminate the old-fashioned custom of standing at the bar with one foot on the decorative brass rail. Constitutional ban on the "open saloon" will eliminate standup drinking. Probably liquor will be sold by the drink only in hotels, cafes and other bona fide food-serving establishments. A rather high license fee, designed to raise substantial revenue, while still not permitting bootleggers to thrive in competition, likely will be another provision.

Next for consideration will be a method of compensating fee officers, to vitalize the constitutional amendment abolishing the fee system. And third on the governor's program is the old age pension amendment. This matter contains more political possibilities than all the others combined. To finance the pensions, the whole question of state revenue and taxation will be opened up, and sales tax advocates are preparing to stage a vigorous drive to push their plan. They will meet opposition from Gov. Allred, who has said: "There are plenty of other ways to raise revenue." He will no doubt urge some of the 17 new sources of taxation he proposed at the regular session, practically all of which failed of passage. Legislators here report more interest among the home folks in old-age pensions than in any other subject before the solons.

President Roosevelt has given American business a "breathing spell" nationally, and following the same line of thought, Gov. Allred has virtually assured the state's billion dollar oil industry a legislative breathing spell so far as the special session is concerned. Up to last Saturday, the governor declared he had received not a single request to submit oil legislation of any kind, and he plainly said he "was giving no consideration" to submitting new oil laws. His statement answered rumors and propaganda circulated by those with whom the wish is father to the thought. The governor takes the attitude that the railroad commission and the attorney general are doing a reasonably good job of controlling oil production, and East Texas oil men attending the last prorator hearing here let it be known plainly they are tired of being made a political football every few months by those whose interests are served by keeping a continual state of real or threatened chaos in the oil business.

The Oil States Compact, written by Allred and Col. E. O. Thompson, rail commission chairman, adopted by most oil producing states and ratified by congress, went into effect last week at the Oklahoma City meeting. It declares for "conservation of oil to prevent physical waste" and specifically declares against "stabilization, price-fixing or regimentation to promote monopoly." It marked virtually complete victory for Allred and Thompson in their long fight against federal bureaucratic control of Texas oil. The legislature, when it gets into the revenue question, may seek to increase oil taxes, but so far as the gover-

Loraine Theatre Robbed Of Machines

Parts valued between seven and eight hundred dollars were stolen off the projecting machines at the Loraine Theatre some time after the show Saturday night and before Monday morning. Both the machines were stripped of their heads, lens and sound amplifiers. Entrance to the building was gained by prying open the front doors with a tire tool. The tool and a pair of pliers were found inside the building by Leonard Davis who discovered the loss Monday at noon. Should the equipment be recovered Mr. Reddell stated Tuesday that the show will resume operation on schedule. In any event regular shows will be resumed as soon as equipment can be replaced, whether it be the stolen property or new parts. Mr. Reddell asks the public to bear with him until the damage can be repaired. The show for Friday and Saturday of this week has been canceled but he hopes to be ready to start again on Sunday but it may not be possible.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Lindsey of Abilene are visiting in the home of Mr. Lindsey's brother, John Lindsey.

Texans are about to witness a substantial blow at depression that will put many thousands of workers on payrolls immediately, as the state highway department prepares to let highway improvement contracts on the largest scale ever recorded for a similar period of time. Nearly $38,000,000 of work is scheduled to be contracted between Sept. 24 and Dec. 15. Regulations call for completion of this great program by July 1 next year. It took from May, when the $38,000,000 state and federal funds was made available, until now to get the program started. Four months of the best construction weather have passed. But from now on it is promised Texas will see some real job-giving activity.

Gov. Allred, contrary to reports published thruout the state, is NOT a candidate for appointment to the federal judgeship of the Northern Texas district. His friends say he has endorsed another candidate. The governor himself told this correspondent: "I am not in any sense an applicant for the post."

Atty. Gen. Bill McCraw will sponsor a service training project under the National Youth Administration. Eight hundred and fifty young men and women 16 to 25 will be placed in public offices thruout the state, paid small wages by the government. They will not replace regular workers. They will probably acquire a fair working knowledge of practical politics, and naturally be in close touch with those who run politics in the counties. And they will be grateful to McCraw, who expects to make future political races.

Ed Clark, No. 1 secretary to the governor, saved Sen. John Redditt of Lufkin, his senate seat last week. Redditt, president pro tem of the senate, became governor for a day when the governor and lieutenant governor both left the state. He was about to be sworn in as governor, by Chief Justice Sharp of the Supreme Court, when Clark suddenly recalled that taking the oath would vacate Redditt's other office.

The late Huey Long once got rid of a lieutenant governor he didn't like by tricking him into taking the oath as acting governor, but nobody remembered the incident but sharp-witted Clark. Redditt served his day out, but without taking any oath.

Loraine Defeated Divide Here Friday

Making fourteen first downs to Divide two the Loraine Bulldogs defeated the Divide team here last Friday afternoon 33 to 0 in a blazing September sun.

The Loraine team outweighed the Divide team almost twenty pounds to the man and the heavier boys could do almost anything they wanted to with the visitors. Divide never threatened to score. Loraine scored her first touchdown during the first five minutes of play in the second quarter after the first quarter had gone scoreless. A pass to Mahon gave them the extra point. Soon after the kickoff following the touchdown Chubby James intercepted a Divide pass and ran 50 yards for the second touchdown. They plunged the line for the extra point but failed to make it. Soon after the opening of the second half Lee received a Divide punt and ran 70 yards for the third touchdown. A pass for extra point failed.

Divide failed to gain and kicked to Loraine in midfield and they marched steadily down the field for another touchdown. After the kickoff Divide again failed to gain and punted to mid-field from which position Loraine promptly carried the ball for another marker. Safford received a pass for the extra point, making the score 33 to 0.

In the final minutes of play Safford tried a field goal from the twenty yard line but missed by inches.

Divide tried six passes, completed two and had one intercepted. Loraine tried nine passes, completed four and had one intercepted. Coach Williams' team showed up well on both offense and defense. Their blocking was good against the Divide team but when they got up against a strong team they may not be so good but we have hopes that they have learned the importance of blocking and can perform as well against the stronger conference teams. The ball carriers, James, Lee, Mahon and Simmons performed nicely and should be able to get plays even against a much stronger team. In fact every man on the team showed up well including those who had never played in a game before, and with a little more experience should turn in some good games this year.

The team will go to Roby Friday afternoon of this week for the first conference game of the season. Several fans should follow the boys to the Fisher County capital.

Infantile Paralysis Is Fatal To Evans Child

Jack York Evans, three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Foy Evans, died about nine o'clock Monday night after having been stricken with Infantile Paralysis last Friday.

The little fellow was stricken Friday and every attention was given him in an effort to relieve him of his suffering but in spite of the attention his little body had been too weakened by the disease and his spirit passed to the great beyond Monday night at nine o'clock.

Funeral services were conducted at the home Tuesday at 2 P. M. with the Rev. J. W. Wood of Bauman officiating. After the service his body was taken to the White Church cemetery and laid to rest under the direction of G. W. Hendrick.

Jack is survived by his mother and father and three brothers, Louise, Foy Gene, and Billy Lee Evans.

Mr. and Mrs. Evans and family have the sympathy of the entire community in their great sorrow.

WHAT IS YOUR GUESS

A representative of the News interviewed several farmers and business men this week and asked the question: What is your guess on the number of bales of cotton to be ginned in Loraine this season? Here are the answers received:

W. J. Coon: Our crop will be around 65 per cent of our largest year. I think we will gin about 9,425 bales.

Doc Givene: I have never seen cotton develop so rapidly as it has the last few days. My guess is 10,000 bales.

Glen Coon: My guess is about 8,500 to be ginned.

J. C. Hall: My guess is 8,012 bales to be ginned in Loraine.

Bob George: Of course, I am a new comer but unless providentially hindered we will gin 9,500 bales.

N. J. Brians: About 7,500 bales. Virgil Wimberly: I think we will gin around 8,000 bales.

G. B. Tartt: About 8,000 bales. Otto Hackfeld: About 8,000 bales.

August Hackfeld: I think we will gin 9,325 bales this year. Earl Hallmark: 7,000 bales.

Lee Walker: Between 7,000 and 7,500 bales.

Kirk Taylor: 7,300 bales.

Wiley Walker: Around 8,400 bales.

T. J. Riden: Unless something unforeseen happens we should gin 7,500 bales.

What is your guess on the crop this year?

One guess is as good as another but the fact remains that we have a good crop.

Willis C. Brown Buried Sunday

Funeral services for Willis Clifton Brown, 62, were held at the Methodist tabernacle Sunday afternoon at three o'clock with Minister John Rice of Abilene officiating. Arrangements were in charge of G. W. Hendrick.

Death came to Mr. Brown Saturday night at 10:20 following a long illness. The past several months he had been confined to his home.

For many years Mr. Brown has been a familiar figure in and around Loraine. He moved to Loraine in December 1904 and has spent the years in farming, ranching, feeding and shipping cattle. He lived a clean Christian life and for many years was active in civic enterprises.

Willis Clifton Brown was born in Hayes County, Texas, March 13, 1873, and was the son of T. R. and Francis Brown. He moved to Coleman County, Texas, in November 1876 and his early life was spent on cattle ranches in Coleman County. He moved to Loraine in December 1904. He was married to Miss Adeline Howell September 20, 1910. He was baptised into the Church of Christ in June 1922.

Mr. Brown is survived by his wife, Adeline Brown, five brothers, Eugene and T. I. Brown of Brownfield, Texas, Leman Brown of Santa Anna, Texas, Charlton Brown of Mineral Wells, Texas, and Fenton Brown of Coleman, Texas, and two sisters, Lorena Brown of Coleman, Texas and Mrs. Effie Marless of Globe, Arizona.

Out of town relatives who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brown, Mineral Wells, Mrs. Leman Brown, Ogden and Odell Brown, Santa Anna, Mrs. Fenton Brown and Retomay Brown, Coleman, Mrs. Gene Brown, Brownfield, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Turner, Colorado, Mrs. Ell May and Mrs. Doyle Kiker, Colorado.

Out of town friends were: Mr. and Mrs. Tom Weaver, and Mr. and Mrs. Gilmore, Pryor Dr. Raymond Wray, Abilene, Congressman Geo. H. Mahon, Judge and Mrs. Benton Templeton, A. E. Madden, Mr. and Mrs. Will Farrar, Mr. and Mrs. Nick Farrar, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Gunn, of Colorado, and others.

Flower girls were Mrs. W. F. James, Mrs. Claude Spikes, Mrs. Hubert Thomas, Mrs. Tom Turk, Misses Gladys Spikes, Bessie Hendrick, Fern and Ruth Coon, Oza Gunn, and Mrs. Mattie Taylor.

Pallbearers were D. E. Gunn, T. J. Newton, J. C. Hall, T. R. Bennett, Earl Brown, and L. B. Walker.

COTTON CROP IS LATE COMPARED TO LAST YEAR

The cotton crop in this territory is late this year as compared with last year. Up to Wednesday night of this week only 4 bales had been ginned from the present crop. To the same date last year a total of 1,375 bales had been ginned.

DEMONSTRATION COUNCIL TO MEET SATURDAY

Assassination of Senator Long Stirs the Nation—Great Britain Ready to Take Sanctions Against Italy—
Ickes Versus Hopkins.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union.

HUEY P. LONG, United States senator and political dictator of Louisiana, is dead, the victim of an assassin's bullet. As he passed through a corridor of the state-house in Baton Rouge, where the legislature was passing more laws to solidify his control over the state, he was shot once through the body by Dr. Carl A. Weiss, Jr., of Baton Rouge, one of the "Kingfish" political opponents. The assassin was immediately shot to death by the senator's ever present bodyguards.

The surgeons and physicians worked unceasingly to save Long, but his strength steadily waned and shortly after 4 o'clock Tuesday morning, about thirty hours after the shooting, he passed away.

Long's body lay in state in the rotunda of the Capitol building while many thousands passed by the bier. The impressive funeral services were held on the front terrace and the dead senator was interred in a sunken garden of the Capitol grounds. Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, the young minister who deserted a rich parish in Shreveport to follow Long, was the only speaker at the funeral. The only music was the song, "Every Man a King," played in minor key and dirge time by the State University band.

Though the man who killed Long was known as one of his political foes, the real story of the assassination was shrouded in uncertainty. Earl Christenberry, secretary of the late senator, declared that Long was murdered as a result of a conspiracy; that a number of his enemies formed a "jury of death," and that Doctor Weiss was selected by lot to fire the fatal bullet. To those who are familiar with the conditions in Louisiana this story does not sound especially fantastic.

What will become of Long's "empire" is a question that agitates all his followers, and all the people of the state as well. For the present, it seemed likely, the members of the Long machine will sink their personal ambitions and try to hold the organization intact. It will be difficult for them to decide on a successor to the "Kingfish" as their leader. Gov. O. K. Allen is considered too mild and peace-loving. Seymour Weiss—no relative of the assassin—treasurer of the Long organization, is the strongest man in the lot, but he always has drawn back from holding a public position. Allen A. Ellender, speaker of the house, may be the man finally selected, though Lieut. Gov. James A. Noe is to the fore.

Political leaders of all parties expressed their deep regret for the assassination of Senator Long.

MUSSOLINI tacitly consented to the appointment of a committee of five nations by the League of Nations council to handle the Italo-Ethiopian embroglio, and after protest agreed that Great Britain and France should be among the members of that body. The other members are Spain, Turkey and Poland.

Senor Salvador de Madariaga of Spain is the chairman, and he and his associates at once began the task assigned them. Each country is represented by its chief delegate, being besides Madariaga, Eden of England, Laval of France, Rustu Aras of Turkey and Josef Beck of Poland.

Soon after the assembly of the league opened its session, Sir Samuel Hoare, British foreign secretary, electrified the gathering by an outspoken warning to Italy and France. He declared Great Britain recognized Italy's need for expansion and raw materials but would not admit these could not be obtained peaceably. Pounding the tribune, he said:

"Britain stands for steady collective resistance to all acts of unprovoked aggression." He paused, struck the tribune again, and repeated quietly:

"Steady collective resistance to all acts of unprovoked aggression."

Sir Samuel more than intimated that Great Britain was prepared to take sanctions against Italy in case of aggression provided all the other members of the league shared the risk; and if not, then England was prepared to isolate herself from the continent. This seemed to put it up to Premier Laval of France, to choose between the friendship of Britain and that of Italy. Laval, meanwhile, was trying to persuade Mussolini to accept another plan he had devised and postponed his speech to the assembly.

Representatives of the Netherlands and Sweden were the first to support Hoare's position, announcing their countries would fulfill all obligations, including collective penalties, if any member became a victim of aggression.

In two speeches in Rome Mussolini gave indication that he would not be diverted from his purpose to conquer Ethiopia. Though in one he said "the Italian people want peace provided it is accompanied by justice," in the other he declared "we shall march straight on." The Ethiopian government announced that "telegrams from the northern frontier show that the Italians are making important troop movements on the Ethiopian and Eritrean frontier, indicating an early offensive against Ethiopia."

Accepting the advice of his "brain trust," which includes Everett A. Colson of the United States, Emperor Haile Selassie instructed his representatives in Geneva to reject all solutions thus far offered by the powers for settling the quarrel with Italy. These are a tripartite mandate over Ethiopia, as suggested by France, with the League of Nations guaranteeing Ethiopia's independence and territorial integrity; France's proposal for an Italian protectorate similar to that of the British in Iraq, and an international police force similar to the one that occupied the Saar.

PUBLIC WORKS ADMINISTRATOR ICKES and Work Progress Administrator Hopkins got into such a quarrel over the spending of the $4,000,000 fund that the President had to call them to Hyde Park, together with the third and neutral member of the works relief triumvirate—Frank G. Walker, the director of the national emergency council and administrator of applications.

Others called to the important works relief party included Daniel Bell, director of the budget; Charles West, under-secretary of interior; Cornington Gill, assistant of Hopkins; Fred Ironsides, administrative assistant of Walker, and Col. Horatio Hackett, chief of housing in the PWA.

Mr. Roosevelt was determined to have peace, and told those present that the prime necessity at this time is to make jobs quickly, always keeping in mind the idea of turning workers back to private industry as business warrants. This looked like a victory for Hopkins, who favors quick jobs, over Ickes, champion of permanent public works. The President has declared that he hopes 3,500,000 persons can be removed from the relief rolls and put to work by the first of November.

LEAD attack on the Guffey soft coal act has been opened by 16 coal companies operating in Harlan county, Kentucky, in Federal court at Louisville. They brought suit for injunction against its enforcement, charging that it violates the federal Constitution in these ways:

1. It violated the fifth amendment, which forbids taking property without due process of law.

2. It violated the tenth amendment, which reserves to the states, or to the people, all rights not granted the federal government or forbidden the states.

3. It attempts to delegate legislative power.

4. The section levying a 15 per cent tax on all coal production, with a 10 per cent refund to producers submitting to the code provided by the act, is "an unconstitutional attempt on the part of congress, under the guise of taxation, to punish those producers of bituminous coal who are unwilling to surrender their constitutional rights."

5. Congress has no jurisdiction over and no power to legislate upon certain matters covered by the act or the code. The companies declared they would refuse to submit to the act and the code it authorizes.

Former Federal Judge Charles I. Dawson filed the action as counsel for the plaintiffs. Judge Dawson recently left the bench to re-enter private law practice after declaring unconstitutional the NRA and other New Deal measures.

UNIVERSITY of Michigan is rejoicing over a gift of $5,000,000 for enlargement of its graduate school. The money is donated by the Horace H. and Mary A. Rackham fund, based on the bulk of the estate of the late Horace H. Rackham, Detroit philanthropist.

One million dollars will be spent to purchase a square block of land adjoining the present campus and for a new building. The remainder will be employed as an endowment. The income will be used to promote research. By the terms of the agreement the school will be known as the Horace H. Rackham School of Graduate Studies.

The purpose of the gift is twofold.

Dr. Mark S. Knapp, director of the fund, said, "First, to create a memorial, and, secondly, to place the university on a firmer foundation as one of the greater universities in this country. It will provide means for original research, funds for which have been lacking."

REACTION of American business and financial men to President Roosevelt's latest public statement that his basic program has reached substantial completion and industry will have a breathing spell ran the gamut between mild hope and downright unbelief. Those who permitted themselves to be quoted were generally extremely cautious in their expressions, but there was usually a vein of skepticism in their remarks. Wall Street brokers were gladdened by a spurt of trading at higher prices, but bankers were more than doubtful, and economists insisted that a balanced budget, which wasn't mentioned in the President's letter to Roy Howard, publisher, was a prime requisite.

Silas Strawn, former president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, said: "Business men generally will say that the improvement in some lines of business has been in spite of, rather than because of, the activities of the administration."

Politicians regarded the letter as Mr. Roosevelt's opening of his campaign for re-election, and praised or decried it according to their party affiliations. Frank Knox of the Chicago Daily News, a potential candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination, called it "just another promise" and set forth the many campaign promises which Mr. Roosevelt has failed to keep. Senator Black of Alabama said the statement was "a wonderfully clear explanation of his program, its original aims and its execution. It should be a call to those engaged in business to co-operate in further national progress."

Howard had written the President that many business men had become convinced that there could be no real recovery "until the fears of business have been allayed through the granting of a breathing spell to industry and a recess from further experimentation until the country can recover its losses."

In a long letter the President replied that the legislative program of his administration had reached substantial completion and "the breathing spell of which you speak is here—decidedly so."

THREE men who made independent investigation of the deaths of 256 war veterans in the Florida hurricane reported they found no evidence indicating culpable negligence on the part of any persons. They were States Attorney G. A. Worley of Miami, Aubrey Williams, representing Federal Relief Administrator Hopkins, and Col. George E. Hams of the veterans' bureau, representing President Roosevelt. This finding was denounced as "whitewash" by James E. Van Zandt, commander in chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; John J. Skillman, commander of the Miami chapter of the same organization, and other representatives of veterans' societies. Van Zandt's statement called on President Roosevelt to ignore the official report and take action against "officials guilty of negligence."

RESTORATION of the Greek monarchy is coming nearer and presumably former King George will be the man to occupy the throne. Premier Tsaldaris has put himself on record as favoring the restoration, and President Zaimis has indicated he will be willing to resign to make room for a king.

Tsaldaris said in his statement: "I attribute the nervous tension at present existing in public ranks and the army to general anxiety concerning the question of a constitution. I consider democratic royalty as the natural regime for Greece and ask the people to vote for it in the impending plebiscite."

"WE WENT to war on foot, and we're joining the parade the same way," declared about 150 of the grizzled veterans who attended the annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic in Grand Rapids, Mich. So these sturdy old men marched in the big parade while the rest, numbering some 250, rode in automobiles. Here were all that remained of the hundreds of thousands who answered the call to the colors in Civil War days, save for a few who were kept at home by extreme age and illness. Some of the states had no representatives in the line, but their flags were carried nevertheless. From other states there were but one or two. It was a pathetic but inspiring procession, watched by thousands whose eyes were dimmed by tears and escorted by Sons of Veterans, American Legionnaires and Veterans of the Spanish war.

Oley Nelson, 91, of Slater, Iowa, was elected commander-in-chief, to succeed Albert E. Stacey of Elbridge, N. Y. In a session of the organization the proposed reunion at Gettysburg next year with the Confederate veterans was discussed, and Commander Stacey made it plain that the affair would not be held under the official auspices of the Grand Army. The plan originated in Pennsylvania.

EDWARD L. DOHENY, one of the wealthiest of America's oil magnates, died in Los Angeles at the age of seventy-nine years, after a long illness. His oil interests were mainly in California and Mexico. In 1924 Doheny and his old friend, Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior under Harding, were involved in the investigation of the government's leasing of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve in California to Doheny for exploitation.

Doheny was twice tried and twice acquitted, on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government and of giving a bribe of $100,000 to Fall. The latter, however, was found guilty of taking a bribe and went to prison.

Huey Long Is Dead
Power in Personality
A Ship of Horror
Bathub Danger

Huey Long is dead at forty-two years of age.

Arthur Brisbane

The world says: "How young, how pitiful, to die without full opportunity!"

Everything is comparative, Alexander the Great, who died at thirty-two, was ruler of half the world at twenty-five; Keats died at twenty-six; Shelley at thirty. Today, men do not develop as rapidly as in old days, when Napoleon thought of suicide because he had done nothing at an age that found Alexander ruler of the world.

The death of Huey Long, regretted throughout a nation that loathes cowardly assassination, is important not alone because of Senator Long's powerful personality, but also because of its possible effect on the national election of 1936.

Senator Long is gone; his power ceases, as though he had never lived. Others will pick up the reins of power. In New Orleans and Louisiana; another will take his place in the senate. Efforts, futile, will be made to find "another Huey Long."

There is nothing left but the memory of a powerful man, again emphasizing Goethe's definition of "personality," "as the highest good fortune of earth's children."

France discourages crime, and really discourages it. The dreaded prison ship, La Martinique, is on her way to the criminal colony in French Guiana with 773 convicts locked in eight strong iron cages in the hold, with iron bars, cement floors, wooden benches, hammocks, and overhead a criss-cross of pipes that would fill the cages with deadly live steam if mutiny broke out.

No parole board sits in French Guiana. Each man ordered to the ship receives a new suit of clothes, a blanket, an extrapair of wooden shoes. That, with perhaps a few books and packages of chocolate from relatives, constitutes his wealth as, wrists chained, the convicts march, single file, up the gangplank, between rows of bayonets.

They go to prison, to stay in prison. It is a hard system, but being murdered on the American plan is also a hard system.

Within a few days two women, one past sixty, the other seventy years old, have been found dead in their bathtubs, apparently drowned. The slippery surface of a porcelain tub is dangerous for older persons. They should observe the greatest care; a slip, the head striking the edge of the tub, can easily cause unconsciousness, followed by drowning.

Rubber factories should make and extensively advertise rubber mats for the bottom of bathtubs, with a suction arrangement to prevent slipping.

While the League of Nations talks peace and arbitration Mussolini recalls his consuls from various places in Ethiopia, reminding you of the clergyman who had a call to a large city. His little daughter said, "Papa is in his library, praying for light, and mamma is upstairs packing."

The Douglas airliner, called the "Flying Laboratory," has just flown from Kansas City to Newark, N. J., through the "sub-stratosphere," which means about 20,000 feet up. At that height very "thin" air, with engine supercharged and propellers properly "lifted," makes high speed possible. The flight was 1,125 miles, nonstop; passengers wore oxygen masks.

Mr. Max Baer, of the Jewish race, will fight on September 24 Mr. Joe Louis, of the African negro race, and already $300,000 worth of the tickets have been sold. The price for a good seat is $25.

Mr. Baer, who gave a pitiful exhibition, not long ago, when he permitted his "heavyweight championship of the world" to wriggle off of the hook, now promises to "chase that boy (Joe Louis) out of the ring in two rounds."

Publicly Mr. Joe Louis gives an imitation of "Brer Rabbit," and says little.

Maneuvers demonstrating French war power, as it stands today, convince European experts that France possesses "the strongest military machine in the world." She possesses, also, men willing to fight, as shown at Verdun and elsewhere.

The government, floating five hundred million dollars more of interest-bearing notes, rejoices because they are snapped up "in a day." Of course they are "snapped up" under prevailing conditions. Men with money are as glad to hide it away in government notes and bonds as men in a cyclone country are glad, temporarily, to hide away in cyclone cellars.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart
National Press Building Washington, D. C.

American Diplomacy

Washington.—For fifty years, American diplomatic methods have been the subject of tittering among the trained agents of foreign nations. True, they never laughed openly or in a loud guffaw at the international practices of the United States but it is a well-known fact that American methods were always mentioned somewhat in a spirit of mirth. And well they might be. The American government with its system of constantly changing its foreign emissaries and never has kept standing diplomats and individuals on the job very long under any circumstances. The condition of American diplomatic capacity is shown no better than by the latest debacle—the Russian recognition case. As usual, the American government got licked on the diplomatic field. It may reassert itself yet by breaking off relations with the Russian Soviet government but it is uncertain at this writing whether that can be done with safety.

What I am trying to say is that in according recognition to the Soviets, American statesmen were not clever enough to guard against the more shrewd and better trained negotiators shrewd here by Dictator Stalin. The result is that our protests about Soviet communist propaganda in the United States were rejected, tossed bodily out of the window with an ejaculation that the objection had no basis.

Let us go back to the original negotiations, "the events leading up to the tragedy" as it were. It will be remembered that in 1933, President Roosevelt invited the Russian government to send a commission here for a discussion of relations, or lack of them, between Moscow and Washington. He told the Russians that he wanted to be a good neighbor to them and wanted them to be a good neighbor to us. He saw no insurmountable problem or obstacle to recognition of the existing government of all the Russias; the government was functioning and it was entitled to be regarded as a sovereign power. He proposed, therefore, that consideration be given to establishment of formal relations between the two powers.

Maxim Litvinoff, a Soviet official corresponding to our secretary of state, appeared in Washington and negotiations for recognition were open.

It was decided early in those conversations that the war debt of the Czarist government to the United States should be set aside and a settlement worked out after the two nations had reached an agreement on other phases of international relationships. The Soviet always has disclaimed any obligation in connection with the debt contracted by Czar Nicholas during the World war and the United States has had nothing to show for the several hundred millions advanced to the Czar except some L. O. U's.

The proceedings developed numerous hitches but each was ironed out in turn and in a series of communications exchanged between Mr. Roosevelt and M.

Numerous Hitches

Litvinoff, the various pledges and promises usual between nations were made. Included in these pledges was one which since has become the bugbear of a controversy and which, if American recognition is withdrawn, will be the crux of the incident.

Almost constantly since the Soviet system overthrew the Czar and destroyed all vestiges of the monarchical government in Russia, the communist party of Russia has been engaged in world propaganda. World revolution is its aim. It proposes and constantly fights for overthrow of the system which enables individuals to make a profit; which enables individuals to earn money of their own and to save and invest or spend that money as they choose. Common ownership of everything is the objective and government by the "proletariat—everyone—is demanded."

M. Litvinoff pledged his government to curb such activities in the United States. But that pledge was a year ago. It seems to have been forgotten. Communist propaganda has gone on and continues to go on in this country on a broad scale. The efforts were so bold that eventually our Department of State could not overlook it. After mulling over the records for weeks, Secretary Hull, recommended to the President that Washington call the attention of the Soviet to its pledge. Mr. Hull's recommendation lay in a White House pigeon-hole for some weeks and it was not until the Communist International met in Russia and fiery speeches criticizing the United States and advising revolution were made. This was the straw that broke the camel's back. Mr. Roosevelt gave his approval to Mr. Hull's proposal for a protest. It was made and promptly rejected, as I have mentioned above.

The Soviet foreign office rejected the protest on the ground that the Communist International was not a part of the Red government; that it was a political party over which the Russian Soviet government had no control and that consequently the American government could not properly accuse the Moscow authority with having broken their pledge to avoid interferences in American affairs.

That trick was one among many which the American government failed to foresee in negotiating Russian recognition. It is a splendid example of how our diplomatic representatives fall in their work.

The Soviet took advantage of an opportunity. It is true that the Communist International is a political party but the Communist Internationale in Russia is not comparable to the Democratic or Republican political party in the United States. It is the only political party and it decides what the government shall do and is responsible to no higher authority. Thus, when the Communist Internationale took the freights of revolution into the United States, it is hard to understand why the Russian government did not have some finger in the pudding.

The American government has warned Russia of "serious consequences" if the communist propaganda does not cease. Such an expression between nations can mean only the breaking up of diplomatic relations. Whether Mr. Roosevelt will go that far is still undetermined.

As we look back over the Russian affair, one can hardly fail to characterize it as a misadventure. Mr. Roosevelt said he wanted to recognize Russia because great economic advantages would flow from that act. There would be much more trade, much new business developed. Department of Commerce figures reveal, however, that sales to Russia were about $114,000,000 in 1930 but that they have dropped down in the last year to about $30,000,000.

So, apparently we have gained nothing but some trouble by recognizing Russia.

What did the Russians gain? First, they undoubtedly have broadened the field of their communist and revolutionary propaganda. Doors were opened to them in this country that were closed before recognition was granted.

But undoubtedly the outstanding victory recorded by the Russians in persuading America to recognize the Moscow government lies not in the American field at all. Their greatest gain was in their relations with Japan. The last several years have witnessed continued friction along the frontier between Japan and Russia. There was a constant threat of war. Strange as it may seem, as soon as negotiations were opened between the United States and Russia, the international relations between Russia and Japan began to improve. There has been almost no trouble on that border since. The reason is that before recognition the Japanese appeared to feel they would have the moral support, at least, of the United States in any controversy developing between them and Moscow. So the books will record another victory for foreign diplomats, another defeat for the hit and miss diplomatic system of the United States.

(And the debt contracted by the Czar's government and disregarded by the Soviet is as much unsettled as the day that the Czar was murdered.)

Activity in Politics

The passing of Labor day in Washington seems to be the signal for the bulk of government officials to return to their desks and to their work with that return comes swift and burning activity in politics. Usually, also, the passing of Labor day sees the return to Washington of other types of vacationists—Washington being what it is in August—and they, too, bring back new political ideas. Hence, just at this writing Washington is deluged with all kinds of political fireworks.

As far as I have been able to analyze the situation, there are three distinct classes. The first embraces those who go out on vacations to see whether they can find as much or more support for the administration in power as the time than in the previous vacations; a second group includes those who go out with a determination to find that the administration is in a tailspin and losing ground rapidly, and the third is made up of vacationists who do not concern themselves directly about politics but who cannot avoid political discussions because of their residence in Washington. So, just now, we are surfeited with political declarations that Mr. Roosevelt is stronger than ever before; that he has lost so much ground that his election is improbable and the unbiased assertions that he has gained in some communities and has lost immeasurably in others.

Coupled with this boiling stage of the political pot insofar as individual action is concerned are two developments of importance: the Republican National committee has been called to meet here and rather well authenticated rumors are extant that "Big Jim" Farley is ready to resign as Postmaster General and devote his time to his other job—the chairmanship of the Democratic National committee. These two incidents can be construed only as meaning that the Republicans are getting ready to fight after a long sleep and that "Big Jim" after a transcontinental tour, sees some reason for an early start in the campaign to re-elect Mr. Roosevelt in 1936.

SYNOPSIS

As Alan Garth, prospector, is preparing to leave for his mining claim in the Far North, a plane lands at the airway emergency station. In it are Burton Ramill, millionaire mining magnate; his daughter, Lilith; and Vivian Huxby, pilot and mining engineer. Believing him to be only an ignorant prospector, the man offers to make an air trip to Garth's claim, although they refer to his samples of platinum-bearing ore as nearly "worthless." Lilith Ramill, product of the jazz age, plainly shows her contempt for Garth.

CHAPTER I—Continued

The girl stopped in the entrance to peer around the cubbyhole kitchen, her scarlet-smeared lips curled with disgust. Though soap-clean, everything in the place looked crude. The air was choky from the smell of cheap bacon.

Huxby sprang up to place the chair at the near end of the table. He lifted the boiling teapot from the stove and started to fill a tin cup with the black brew.

"Pardon our not waiting, Lilith," he apologized. "I did not wish to waken you with the refueling. Planned to do it while you breakfasted."

"Quite thoughtful of you, darling. But you need not think I'll drink this lye or eat any of these beastly messes. Not for me. You can have your steersage garbage. I'll keep to cabin fare."

She faced about and went back through the passage. Huxby stood hesitating. Mr. Ramill motioned him to sit down.

"You stocked the cabin with enough wines and delicatessen to last several days. Finish your meal."

The mining engineer shot a glance at Garth. "I've had enough oats to founder a Scotch cow. May as well see to the refueling."

Tobin rose stiffly and followed Huxby into the storeroom. Mr. Ramill took a last sip of the boiled tea, favored Garth with a patronizing smile, and opened his gold-mounted cigar case to offer one of the choice Havanas.

Garth declined. "I never smoke. It deadens the nose."

"Deadens—What's that?" "Though man has the sense of smell, compared with dogs he lacks the ability to scent. Yet even a trace of it may be of use in the bush."

The investor's portly body quivered to his chuckle. "I've heard of nosing out prospects! First time, though, it's been done to my knowledge." He caught himself up. "At least, Mr. Huxby considers it possible your discovery may be worth an examination. That leaves only the question of terms, in case we find the mine promising enough for me to make an offer."

Garth spared an inquiring glance. The portly gentleman gave him a bland smile.

"I believe in encouraging prospectors. They find new districts. With that in view, I buy numbers of undeveloped prospects, taking the risk of heavy losses. Though I drop thousands on some mines, I have made a fortune from others. But the average prospector, like yourself, stakes his all. Ninety-nine times in a hundred, he is cleaned out by total failure. If your lode looks at all possible, I'll pay you up to a thousand dollars cash for it."

"I'm not selling," Garth said. "I like to play a game through to the end, win or lose."

The investor's eyes hardened. "What's your idea?"

"One year's lease, and sixty per cent of the gross returns to me."

Mr. Ramill blinked. "Sixty per cent of gross? You're crazy!"

"Like a fox. Same kind of nose." It was Garth's turn to smile. "Not so keen, though, for galena. Better for scenting out alloys of gold, iridium and platinum."

The last word knocked the benevolent encouragement of prospectors speechless. Yet, after a moment of blank staring, he managed a half-giving look.

"Garth," he muttered. "That must be it. These prospectors, alone in the wilds for months at a time! He raised his voice. "Too bad, young man. If you'd make it gold and silver, I might have been able to swallow the bait. But platinum! That's a bit too thick. Platinum is found in quantity only in Russia. Very little anywhere else. Only a minute quantity in North America."

He rose as if to go. Garth gave him a regretful look.

"Yes—too bad, sir. Now I'll have to go outside. I may even have to wait until the ice goes out next year before I can dig a gull into taking that lease."

Mr. Ramill left the kitchen without seeming to heed this plant. When Garth followed him into the storeroom, he was quieting some dispute between Huxby and Tobin. The visitors put on their headsets and walked down to the wharf.

Garth went into the bunkroom. Before long Tobin came to open the door a handbreadth. He chuckled.

"Uh—lad, you got your book in their gills. Pilot's tinkering with the motor. Changed the oil, but no move to refuel. Ain't rushin' to flop off."

Garth kept on lathering his beard.

When he came out, his cartridge belt was buckled about his waist. It held his sheath-knife and belt-ax. In one hand he carried his rifle, in the other the rest of his small outfit, strapped on his pack board.

Down on the wharf Mr. Ramill puffed cigar smoke through his headnet while he watched Huxby's examination of the motor and propeller. Miss Ramill was not in sight.

"Right-o, Tobin," said Garth. "Shamming it is. When that bus came down, you never heard a sweeter motor—every cylinder hitting true. Wish I felt as sure of that southbound Belanca."

"Don't fash yourself, Mr. Garth. She'll make Fort Smith on schedule."

"Then here goes for my next play."

He went down the slope to lay his pack and rifle a little way out from the base of the wharf. After that he fetched his canoe from the bank. He swung it down into the shallow water within close reach of the pack.

Mr. Ramill came shoreward rather hurriedly for so dignified a gentleman. "One moment, Garth. I've consulted with my engineer partner. He still thinks it may be worth our while to investigate your prospect."

"What! In view of my terms?" "They're outrageous! Still, it is just possible the—er—mine might just tify them. The least we can do is to inspect the lode. I make no deals sight unseen."

Garth spoke as if to himself: "An air ride, free, and only a few hours' delay. Time enough to make the trip out before the freeze-up."

He lifted his pack up again on the wharf, and swung the canoe over his head to take it back to its previous position, bottom up, on the bank. When he returned he carried his pack and rifle out to the airplane. From the cabin came the rhythmic dissonance of a jazz-dance tune. The plane evidently was equipped with a long-distance radio receiver.

Through the wire gauze of the big rear window he saw Miss Ramill reclining on the heaped pillows of an unmade berth. The shelf at her elbow held bottled and packaged foods and a wine bottle. Garth laid down his rifle and pack on the wharf near the door-steps.

Ashore, at the storeroom, he found Huxby trying to boss Tobin into helping to load the gasoline. Annoyed by the old man's refusal, and still more by the indignity of mechanic's labor, the pilot engineer took up a case of twin five-gallon gasoline tins in his arms and started cautiously down the slope to the wharf.

Had Garth taken the same load, either he or Huxby would have had to return for the other two cases. He roped three cases together and tipped the thirty-gallon load upon his back. As if the pack had been a feather-weight, he went down the stony slope with the smooth gliding step of a moccasin wearer.

Out at the end of the wharf, a deft stoop and twist lowered his heavy pack upon the planks without a jar. As he straightened up he saw Miss Ramill step down from the cabin. She had donned her leather pilot trousers and jacket but held the helmet in her hand.

Through the mesh of her headnet he saw that her eyes were lustrous from wine. They gazed out at him with a look of reluctant admiration. No man of her acquaintance had ever toted such a back-breaking pack, either lightly or at all. But her forced respect gave place to a show of disdain when he ventured a friendly smile.

"How gallant!" she jeered. "He has sacrificed his whiskers. Can it be he hopes to enervate the fair sex?"

"Was that why I shaved?" Garth inquired. "Feminine intuition is wonderful. I thought I did it to make dozing easier."

"Oh, you mean what they call fly dope. But I see none of the sticky or smelly mess they tell about. Your face looks clean."

"Thanks for the compliment. But I'll soon have to take to the usual grease and spruce pitch. Just used the last of my frogite."

The girl flushed with resentment. "Frogite! Don't lie to me. I know how you westerners tell fantastic falsehoods to tenderfeet."

"You do? By the way, in the North we say chechacos, not tenderfeet. As for the frogite, it's no fancy. Years ago, Seton remarked the fact that mosquitoes never sting frogs. I—er—I know a man who experimented and who finally obtained chemically the substance exuded by the skin of frogs. There are plenty of pests where we are going. You'll have to keep behind your nets—or take to grease and pitch."

Before the girl could reply, Huxby called down for more gasoline. He had managed to get one tin of his case up to the cockpit and had emptied it into a wing tank.

Garth swung up to him with a whole case balanced on his shoulder. It was far easier than totting a deer over broken country. After hoisting aboard the other cases and Huxby's second tin, he ducked under the front strut of the wing. His rifle and pack lay where he had left them.

The radio had been tuned in on what probably was the Edmonton relay of the London metal market report. The announcer started to give the last quoted price on platinum: "Refined platinum, per troy ounce, twelve pounds, seven shillings and—"

A whine and shriek like static cut across the voice. The loud-speaker blared into jazz.

Splashes told that Huxby was tossing the empty cans and cases into the river, instead of down on the wharf. That small yet wanton waste proved that the mining engineer was a stranger in the North.

Garth stooped forward under the wing strut with his rifle. Miss Ramill stood with her very artificially waved semi-bobbed hair bared to the breeze. Upon taking off her mosquito net to put on the leather flying helmet, a swarm of insects had at once attacked her. She was trying to flit them off in order to replace the protecting gauze.

"D—n your North country!" she exploded.

"Wait till you reach one of our muskew swamps, Miss Ramill. You'll call this heaven. But why the flying suit? Going to pilot the bus?"

"Is that any of your business?" "None whatever. Pardon my impertinent curiosity. Only, as there are not three seats in the cockpit, I was moved to wonder if you, instead of your fiancee, are to be my riding mate."

"Yours?" "How else? Or does the gentleman imagine he can find my prospect without a guide?"

"Dad will make you give Vivian your route map. I'll not let you have my seat."

This time Garth did not smile. The girl was due for a lesson. "Sult yourself—and tell Huxby he can head for the North pole."

"Indeed!" "Quite so. He and your father can go there, or to the other place—and you with them. You're not only a selfish snob. You're a brainless fool to fancy a southern pilot can back-track a canoe-route through unmapped forests and muskew country."

The girl's blue eyes flared with outraged pride and vanity. Garth smiled. He had paid her back in full for her arrogance. It was worth waiting over until another season for his fortune, up in that hidden valley of the Rockies.

But before he could stoop under the strut to recover his pack from the cabin, the girl called out to him: "Wait! I did not understand. If it's really necessary for you to act as Vivian's guide—But you had no call to be so rude."

Though he turned back, it was with no intention of humbling himself. He was not duped by her seeming change to amiability. It had been too sudden for sincerity.

"A woman has no more right to be rude than has a man," he replied. "When I hear you apologize, I'll consider whether an apology is due from me."

The smile left her rouge-smeared lips. He had never before seen so disagreeable a look on any woman's face. But before she could find words to vent her feelings, Huxby peered down over the side of the cockpit, flustered from exertion and annoyance.

"Don't be all day, Garth. Cast off the lines—Sorry, Lilith, that I'm not to have your company."

"Don't worry, old dear," she said. "This wootsy pest will soon be a thing of the past. Only a few hours of the affliction, and we'll be rid of him."

CHAPTER II

Treachery.

Garth followed Miss Ramill in under the monoplane's wing. He did not offer to hand the girl up into the cabin, or help ship the steps. Women's rights did not include courtesies to return for insults.

He cast off the tall mooring line and swung aboard, with the coiled rope and his rifle. As the plane drifted clear, the breeze swerved it head off from shore. Huxby paused a moment to jerk out a question: "Route?"

For answer, Garth pointed westerly. Huxby set the propeller whirling with the self-starter. With rapidly increasing headway, the plane skimmed out on the smooth river.

Rifle between knees, Garth settled down upon the cockpit seat at the pilot's elbow. Huxby was first to speak. When the plane soared above the west bank of the great river, he leaned close to shout a repetition of his question: "Route?"

Garth looked outside before pointing. The plane had climbed nearly a thousand feet.

Even to a man who had spent years in the North, this view of the sub-arctic landscape was a puzzling maze. On the ground, Garth would have had slight trouble retracing the course he had followed in and out of the wilderness. From the air, everything looked different. For all his flying experience, Garth could not, as he had expected, strike a baseline. Though he knew the general direction of his find, he was unable to guide the plane as the crow flies.

At his sign to bank, Huxby frowned but brought the plane around in a wide curve. Very soon, upriver from the reeling station, Garth sighted the small swamp stream on which he had begun and ended his trip into the unknown. This was a familiar point of departure. From it he again directed the pilot to the westward.

Somewhat under an hour later, the swamps and low ridges ended at the upheave of an eastward thrust mountain range. A near view of the barren peaks caused Garth to twist the course about on a sharp angle to the southwest. Those mountains had not appeared any too familiar. The difficulty of finding landmarks recognizable from the air had not lessened. For days on his trip in and out, he had traveled through dense forests of spruce that shut off almost all wide views, even of the mountains.

The westward rise of the country had by now forced the plane up another thousand feet. Higher slopes ahead called for still more altitude. The jagged skyline reared a thousand feet or more higher than the plane. Huxby started to climb. Until within a mile of the savage cliffs he ignored Garth's advice to lessen the angle. Then, as the plane swept past an out-jutting peak on the right, Garth signalled towards the gap between it and the main mass.

The highest point of the pass was more than half a thousand feet lower than the plane. Huxby pushed the stick forward and shot down for the gap on a long slant. The monoplane soon drove in between the towering precipices and steeply pitched side slopes of the immense cleft. A little more, and the cleft crooked to the north. The plane banked around the turn. Below the bend the cleft widened in the nerve of a glacier. Further down the expanse of snow-ice pinched into a narrow gulch. The gulch ran down into a deep mountain-rimmed valley. Down the rough bed tumbled a stream of milky glacier water.

Garth noted moving dots on the tundra and white specks up on the rocky slopes above them. But Huxby saw neither the caribou nor the mountain sheep. He had at once spotted the lake in the valley bottom. He angled on down as if to plunge into the silvery sparkling ripples of the lake. The monoplane swooped above the upper shore and drove on towards the foot of the lake-at-full speed. Garth pointed to the intake from the glacier stream, and signalled for a descent.

Snail, a Mollusk, Belongs to Land, Water Variety

A snail is a mollusk and properly belongs only to mollusks living on land or in fresh water, which says a writer in the Montreal Herald.

As Pulmonates because they have lungs (Latin, pulmo) and breathe air instead of extracting oxygen from water by means of gills as do the sea-mollusks. These pulmonates are of three kinds: 1, those living on land; 2, those living in fresh water; 3, slugs. Both of the first two are protected by shells to which they are permanently attached, yet may extend the body to some distance outside of them. The third kind (slugs) have no visible shell, only a small plate beneath the skin, and are wholly terrestrial. All these are virtually alike in internal structure, subsist mainly on vegetable food, are of two sexes, and reproduce by means of eggs.

As a snail, carrying its shell up right on its back, crawls slowly along all we see of it is the squarish head at the forward end of a soft but muscular, tapering body called the "foot," the under surface of which is a tough, elastic sole by slight movement of which the animal hitches itself forward.

"Clermont," Fulton's Steamboat

The steamboat built by Robert Fulton was called the "Clermont."

Lesson for September 22

JAMES (A GREAT CHRISTIAN LEADER)

LESSON TEXT—Acts 15:1-21; James 1:1-7.

GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he hath been approved, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord promised to them that love him.—James 1:12.

PRIMARY TOPIC—What James Tells Us to Do.

JUNIOR TOPIC—James' Motto for Juniors.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Meet Life's Tests.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Message of James for Today.

Three individuals by the name of James are mentioned in the New Testament. In all probability this James was the brother of the Lord and the writer of the Epistle which bears his name.

1. James Presiding at a Church Council (Acts 15:1-21).

1. The controversy in the church at Antioch (vv. 1-5). A most difficult problem confronted the church, threatening its disruption into a Jewish and Gentile division. It was not a question of the admission of the Gentiles into the church. That had been settled some years before when Peter received Cornelius and his household. The question now was, on what ground could they be received? Should Gentile believers be required to keep the Mosaic law as a condition of salvation? In order to settle the matter, Paul and Barnabas were sent to Jerusalem for the decision of the mother church.

2. The Deliberation of the Council (vv. 6-21).

1. Peter speaks (vv. 6-11). He argued that God had borne witness to the acceptance of the Gentiles by giving the Holy Spirit to them as unto the Jews. Since God had not put a difference, it would be folly for them to do so.

2. Paul and Barnabas rehearsed their experience (vv. 12). They told how that God had set his seal of approval on the preaching of salvation by grace through faith.

3. The argument of James (vv. 14-21). He took the fact declared by Peter and showed how it harmonized with prophecy (Amos 9:11-15). He showed that the reception of the Gentiles was not in conflict, but in harmony with God's plan. He made clear God's plan as follows:

a. To take out from among the Gentiles a people for his name (v. 14). This is what is now being done by the calling out of the church.

b. After the church is completed, Israel will be converted and restored to their land by the Lord himself at his return (vv. 16, 17).

c. This will be followed by the conversion of the world through the agency of converted Israel (v. 17; cf. Rom. 11:15). Having shown that there was no conflict with the Scriptures rightly divided, he gave his judgment that the Gentiles should not be troubled with the things that are Jewish, but should be warned against the perils of heathenism, such as meat offered to idols, fornication, and blood.

4. The decision (vv. 22-29). The mother church unanimously endorsed James' recommendation. They sent a letter stating the decision of the conference. This decision was duly delivered to the church at Antioch and was received with rejoicing.

II. James Giving Counsel to Christians (James 1:1-7).

1. Concerning trials (vv. 2-7).

a. The Christian's attitude toward them (vv. 2-4). They were to meet them joyfully because of their beneficial effects. Trials reveal fidelity, and by their effects develop the grace of patience.

b. The Christian's supreme need in these trials (vv. 5-8). It is wisdom to meet them intelligently. He makes clear that the source of this wisdom is to God and that the means of gaining it is asking in faith, and the very liberality of God is the guarantee that the needed supply will be provided.

c. The rich and the poor are sharers alike in affliction (vv. 9-11). Frequently the poor man thinks that the rich are free from testings, whereas they are usually more severely tested.

d. The blessed reward of enduring the testing (v. 12). The one who faithfully endures the temptation shall be awarded the crown of life.

e. The source of temptation (vv. 13-17). Temptations spring out of human desire. They do not come from God. Sin is not necessarily the desire, but the gratifying of it improperly. When one is thus led away by his natural desires, sin is conceived which brings forth death. In such case, sin is the gratification of a right desire in a wrong way.

Life

Life is not so complex if we do not persist in making it so. We need faith; we need to be brave, to keep the corners of the mouth turned up and not down. And after all it is only a step at a time.—Ralph Waldo Trine.

Affliction

Much of what a man tells you in the hour of affliction, in sudden anger, or in any outpouring of his heart, should be sacred. In his craving for sympathy he has spoken to you as to his own soul.

DOG GONE

Skippy, the wire-haired terrier of Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Curtis of Kansas City, mysteriously disappeared, but they could still hear his whining about the house. After 35 hours of searching and growing belief in spoons, they found him. He had gone into the attic and fallen down an air chute behind the bathroom wall. They lifted him out by bringing his foot in a noose.

Women Who Have Pains

Try CARDUI Next Time!

On account of poor nourishment, many women suffer functional pains at certain times, and it is for these that Cardui is offered on the record of the safe relief it has brought and the good it has done in helping to overcome the cause of womanly discomfort. Mrs. Cole Young, of Leesville, La., writes: "I was suffering with irregular periods. I had quite a lot of pain which made me nervous. I took Cardui and found it helped me in every way, making me regular and stopping the pain. This quieted my nerves, making my health much better." If Cardui does not benefit you, consult a physician.

PledgeI will think, talk, write...
Texas Centennial in 1936! This is to be my celebration. In its achievement I may give free play to my patriotic love for Texas; her past; my confidence in its glories that are to be...

This country is certainly blessed with an abundance of feed for another year. Since the great shortage of feed this year it certainly looks good to have such an abundance. It behooves every farmer to put away enough to run his farm for at least two years for we never know just when another short crop might come our way.

Quite a number of barns and other means of storing feed are being built over the country. We have not heard of any trench silos being dug in these parts but that method might prove to be just what we need to take care of the large amount of bundle feed.

Just thinking of what might take place in our school situation within the next few years makes us think that it might have been a wise thing for this district to have taken advantage of a PWA loan and grant to build some extra rooms onto our school building.

If the school expands and progresses as it should the next few years we are going to need about four more rooms to take care of the increase in enrollment.

Even though enrollment does not increase so rapidly there are at least two subjects, home economics and manual training, that should be taught in our school. Lack of room is probably the reason the subjects are not being taught now.

It might be well for all of us to think along the lines of an expansion program for next year.

It might be that an expansion program in our school next year will include the transfer or consolidation of a nearby district or two. There is one district near here from which a large per cent of pupils transfer to Loraine each year. The parents of these pupils are anxious for their children to have every advantage possible and they feel like an affiliated high school is better, thus they transfer out of their home district.

Nothing makes you feel older than to visit the town where you grew up. The people who were grown when you left don't seem to have aged much, but the youngsters surely have changed. Mrs. Jimpson was at our house the day we moved from the old town and her daughter, Viola, was an infant. Well, we saw Viola today and she has her second divorce. The Potter Baby who slipped away and climbed through our fence is now living with her third husband and her twin brother has just separated from his wife. We have been here in the dear old town several days and we feel like an old, old man. Our youngest sister married only a few months before we left and now she has a divorced daughter living with her. Our oldest sister has two granddaughters who are divorced. --Claude Callan.

JUNIOR MUSIC CLUB MEETS

The Loraine Junior Music members since the club organization in 1930 met in the home of their counselor, Mrs. W. R. Martin, for an evening of merriment on the eve of the opening of the fall school term.

Musical chorals, games and a sing-song were entertainment features with solos from the talented young singers, Mr. Arnold Marshall, Miss Geneva McGehee and Miss Winnadell Rowland.

Samuel C. Harris, Jr. of Glade-water and Geneva McGehee of Lubbock were out of town guests and were charter members of the club, both winning the state contests for junior song birds in 1931. Since that year contestants have made a good showing for the club in yearly contests and has put Loraine on the map as having excellent talent among its young people.

The club members attending were: Samuel C. Harris, Jr. of Geneva Nelson, Arnold Marshall, Winnadell Rowland, Opal Martin, Billie Marie Rowland, Ruth Anne Hall, Wynona Hardin, Eldon Mahon, Roy Baird, Jr., Lella June Harrell, Emma Louise Zellner, Margaret Ruth Edwards, Ray Preston, Faye Johnson, Loyd Brame, Lanthus Brame, Jessie Scott Thomas, and Jimmy Ruth Glass, Louise Ohlenbusch, club artist, has moved away.

The kitchen was turned into a cafeteria since the weather would not permit a weiner roast and hot dogs with all the fixings were served followed by much hilarity such as only a high school group of boys and girls can make.

BAPTIST NOTES

There were quite a number absent from Sunday School Sunday morning. We miss you and covet your presence in all of our services. Remember your place is not filled by another, let's be found faithful and striving to keep the Sabbath Day holy.

At the eleven o'clock hour Rev. Hardin read Colossians, 1st chapter, 1st 18 verses, and spoke to us on "The Preeminence of Christ," stressing the 18th verse of the chapter, "Christ is the Head of the Body, the Church who is the beginning, the first born from the dead, that in all things he might have preeminence. His text for the evening hour was found in the 15th chapter of Luke, 11th to 23rd verses. The subject was, "The Prodigal Son and the Prodigal Father."

The B. Y. P. U. meets at the church promptly at seven o'clock each Sunday evening. The adults are urged to come and join in this training study.

The W. M. S. have their Bible study on Monday afternoon at the church.

We are to have a teachers meeting next Wednesday evening, September 25th, and our pastor urges every teacher and officer in our Sunday School to be at the church on that date. He has some things of interest to talk to us about so let's be there 100 per cent.

L. M. Bedford returned home Saturday after a three months absence.

TO PATRONS OF LORAIN HIGH SCHOOL

Our records show that the majority of failures in high school are caused by students being absent from classes. In order to eliminate absences as much as possible we wish to acquaint the patrons of our school with our methods of dealing with students being absent.

A student who is absent from school must bring a written excuse from home signed by a parent or guardian, before he will be admitted to classes and allowed to make up work. An unexcused absence will lower a student's grade 3 points. An excused absence will lower the grade 1 point. Two unexcused absences will keep any student from the "A" honor roll and 4 unexcused absences will keep the student from being on the "B" honor roll.

We are asking that the patrons please co-operate with us in the matter in order that we may have as few failures as possible.

Students who must be absent from classes representing the school in any way will make up their work before leaving or make satisfactory arrangements with the teachers.

Ed E. Williams, High School Principal.

Pete Heild a former resident of Loraine, who has been in the Rio Grande Valley for the past several months, was a visitor here the first of the week.

BAUMAN NEWS

Rev. H. N. Balderree preached at Bethel Church Sunday morning at the eleven o'clock hour. This was Bro. Balderrees last message to the church, he having moved to Desdemonia, Texas where he has accepted a full time church. The people of Bethel wish him great success in his new field of service. He returned to his church at Desdemonia for services Sunday night.

There will be preaching at Bethel next Sunday. The name of the preacher has not yet been announced.

The Loraine Band came to Bauman last Friday night and rendered a nice program. The crowd was small but those present enjoyed it very much.

WEEKLY HEALTH LETTER

Austin, Texas, Sept. 16.—Heart disease ranks first in the list of killers today. During the past thirty years it has been steadily increasing. Few people ever associate impairment of this vital organ with diseased mouth conditions. Yet in a very real manner the health of the heart and its consequent ability to do its work properly can be definitely affected by an unhealthy mouth.

While, of course, there are many other causes for heart impairments than diseased teeth, gums, or tonsils, there certainly is every good reason to establish and maintain daily and periodic prophylactic measures so far as the mouth and teeth are concerned. Not to do so is merely adding another menace to the heart already beset with disease potentialities that seem to be a part of present-day life.

"If the individual will assume his responsibility by consuming a nourishing diet, keeping his mouth clean through daily brushing, and have a regular inspection by his dentist and physician, undoubtedly a fair proportion of heart disease, not to mention many minor ailments, could be eliminated that have their origin in diseased mouth conditions.

"Unlike public health control measures, dental supervision is a highly personal matter. There is no legislation covering the situation, nor is there any enforcement officer to keep one in line. Therefore, common sense and reasonable concern for one's heart should prompt interest in teeth, mouth, and throat.

"As an authority tersely puts it, 'Keep your heart out of your mouth and your mouth germs out of your heart.'

WEEKLY COTTON REPORT

The samples from selected representative gins in Texas classed this week reflect slightly lower grades and shorter staples as compared with the classification reported last week.

For the season to date, about 93 per cent of the samples classed has been applicable to the Extra White and the White Standards, of which about 22 per cent was Strict Middling, 56 per cent was Middling, and 15 per cent was of grades below Middling. About 7 per cent of the samples classed to date was applicable to the Standards for Spotted Cotton, most of which was Strict Middling Spotted.

One of the most significant features of the report this week is the increase in the proportion shown for cotton having staple length shorter than 7-8 inch. This week 7 per cent of samples classed had staple shorter than 7-8 inch. The increase in this short cotton is very pronounced for District 8, the Sandy Coastal Plains. Over 34 per cent of the samples classed from this district classed shorter than 7-8 inch, and the cumulative results for the season show that over 25 per cent of the samples from this district this season have been shorter than 7-8 inch. Despite the increase in cotton of this designation in District 8, only about one and one-half per cent has been shorter than 7-8 inch for the State as a whole to date.

DEMONSTRATION CLUBS TO HOLD OPEN HOUSE

To present to the local club and to the county at large the work hat has been accomplished by the women and girls working as club demonstrators, open house will be held this coming Tuesday for the Lone Star, Bauman and Looney clubs, Wednesday for the Plainview club and Friday for the Fairview,latan and Hyman clubs. The improvements in bedroom work will be presented to show how to make a room more interesting, comfortable and efficient. The improvements in the yards will be to make the home grounds more attractive, to increase the valuation of the place and to create a "stay at home" atmosphere for the children. In every instance the work has not been completed for no demonstration is ever completed, but the demonstration visited will present to the visitor some of the things that can be done under very little expense, also what can be done with determination and expended energy.

Everyone is invited to visit one or more of the places and see what has been done during this year's program period.

C. C. Stribling and family of Mission spent Friday and Saturday here with Mr. Stribling's sister, Mrs. G. B. Tarrt and family.

FOOTBALL GAME

Loraine won its opening football game over Divide Friday by a score of 33 to 0. The first touchdown came in the second quarter when Mahon plunged over. James passed to Mahon for extra point. James plunged the second touchdown over but the extra point was not made. The third touchdown also came in the second quarter when James plunged it over. James passed to Swafford for extra point. On the kick off of the 3rd quarter Lee received the ball and ran about 65 yards for a touchdown. Mahon plunged for extra point. The fifth and last touchdown came also in the 3rd quarter when James intercepted a pass and ran 50 yards for a touchdown. The try for extra point failed. The football boys were proud of the way the town backed them. We hope that we still have the cooperation in the next games that we had in the first.

We would like to have as many as possible to go to Roby Friday and help us win because it will be a tough game. BEAT ROBY!

FRESHMEN NEWS

Roy G. Edwards was gone this week end. He went to Denton to help get his big sister started off in college.

The freshmen had their pictures taken this week. Nearly everyone says they still had a funny look on their face when the camera was snapped.

Some of the members of our class were still half asleep Monday morning from staying up so late at the Mexican Fiesta. We hope they enjoyed it.

The Sophs are setting a bad example for the Freshmen. One of them was seen sleeping at his desk Monday morning in the study hall.

We are glad to report that Miss Ruth Britton, who underwent an operation for appendicitis some two weeks ago, is back on the job at the telephone office.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this method of expressing our sincere thanks to all our neighbors who were so kind to us during the illness and death of our dear baby. We want to especially thank the doctors and nurse who worked so faithfully to restore him. We especially appreciated the beautiful floral offering.

May you find such faithful friends in a trying time like this. Mr. and Mrs. Foy Evans and family.

Bruce Hart moved his family to Loraine last week and are living in the Claene Rowland house. Bruce has accepted a position as bookkeeper at the East Loraine Gin.

JUNIOR NEWS

Well Juniors, two weeks of school is over and just look what all has happened. Our boys have won a football game and it was also played in Friday 13. The best ball players, we think, are in our class. There's W. F. James, Jiggs Albright, Jesse Compton, Price Hall, Charlie Prescott, and Glen McWhirter. No wonder we won the football game! The pep squad leader, Ruth Anne Hall, is a member of our class and the coach is our sponsor. Our class surely has what it takes to get along, so come on Juniors and let's go!

—Reporter.

SENIOR NEWS

The seniors are thrilled over getting to order their rings Friday. We are going to order invitations today.

Miss Lee came o school Monday with a smile on her face as usual.

Juanice Hart still rattles as much as usual. How extraordinarily odd!

Aldin Lee has left us. We don't know how long, though.

Rue McCarley doesn't "giggle" as much as she use to. What's the matter, Rue?

Did you know:
1. Jimmie Glass got to school on time Monday morning.

2. Evelyn Land went to Colorado Saturday night?

3. Lula Mae Roberts is as smart as ever?

4. Doris Narrell has a cold?

5. Juanice is expecting to get a class ring and two more of some sort?

Office girl(nervously): "Please, Mr. Bennett, I think you are wanted on the phone."

Mr. Bennett: "You think! What is the good of thinking?"

"Well, sir, the voice at the other end of the line said, 'Hello, is that you, You old idiot.'"

PEP RALLY

On Friday 13, 1935, at 1:00 o'clock the students of Loraine High School met in the auditorium for a pep rally to let the Loraine Bulldogs know that they were all backing them. The band played several snappy tunes and the student body gave a few yells. Then talks were made by football boys and Mr. Williams. The pep rally must have done some good because the Bulldogs were not defeated and the student body turned out nearly a hundred per cent for the game.

Loal Brown: "I heard that you don't like to go to school. What is the matter?"
Ormon D.: "It is not the school I don't like, it is the principle of the thing."

Mr. Williams: "You can't sleep in my class."
Jiggs: "If you didn't talk so loud I could."

By HUGH BRADLEY
One of America's Foremost Sports Authorities

In his college days Bradley became widely known as a football and baseball player. Since then he has been writing about these and other sports. He has acquired such a wealth of information that he has been called a "walking sports encyclopedia."

Bradley's comments on sports of all kinds which will appear in this paper will always be rich in information and that information will be accurate, but, at the same time, you will find his style as exhilarating as the high spots of sports about which he writes. His comments will be of interest to you, whether you are an ardent follower of certain sports or have only a nodding acquaintance with them.

Watch for these entertaining and informative comments which appear under the heading . . .

Hugh Bradley Says:

Becoming Sports Frock With Jabot Is "The Top"

PATTERN 2341

It is not easy to find a sports frock that plays No Favorites when it comes to showing up the imperfect figure. But here's one that flatters regardless, by the very simple device of a rippling jabot collar. But notice that our designer has not sacrificed one whit of the tailored chic and easy freedom the sports frock needs. The pleated sleeve for arm action—pleats in back bodice and skirt for freedom. Here is just the most perfect model for one of the lovely new printed satins that are being shown in such delicious pastel shades. A tie silk would be lovely and any number of cottons are available for a simpler version. Accent with matching buttons.

Pattern 2341 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32. Size 16 takes 3 1/2 yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to the Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth St., New York City.

Smiles

AND THAT, THAT

Husband—Will you miss me when I am away.
Wife—I guess I will. You've always been too good a dodger at home.

STILL A SCALPER

"Our Indians are rapidly becoming civilized."
"Yes; met one the other day who's only a ticket scalper now."

She Awakened

He—What did you do when you got your first kiss?
She—Nearly fell out of my cot.

Quick, Pleasant Successful Elimination

Let's be frank—there's only one way for your body to rid itself of the waste material that causes acidity, gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts. Your intestines must function and the way to make them move quickly, pleasantly, successfully, without griping or harsh irritants is to chew a Minessa Wafer thoroughly, in accordance with directions on the bottle or tin, then swallow.
Minessa Wafers, pure milk of magnesia in tablet form, each equivalent to a tablespoon of liquid milk of magnesia, correct acidity, bad breath, flatulence, at their source, and enable you to have the quick, pleasant, successful elimination so necessary to abundant health.
Minessa Wafers come in bottles at 35c and 60c or in convenient tins at 20c. Recommended by thousands of physicians. All good druggists carry them. Start using these pleasant tasting effective wafers today.

Here Are Some Items Box Scores Never Revealed

SARATOGA, like Pimlico and a very few other tracks, is vastly squeamish about its clubhouse clientele. Both polo shirts and Manhattan bad men are barred from the exclusive enclosure.

Tommy Low, former Olympic welterweight champion, is owner of a boys' club. When Babe Ruth watched the Giants and the Braves from a field box the other day Rabbit Maranville was the only player to come over to greet him. The mother of Garry Levan, Princeton backfield star, is president of a bank in Steubenville, Ohio. His father is running for mayor of the town.

What could Col. John S. Hammond, the hockey and Madison Square Garden baron, have told the cop who let him off after he was caught speeding across the Queensboro bridge the other afternoon? The three placing judges at metropolitan race-tracks wear spectacles. The man who wrote the Sunday baseball law, one of the best of reasons why New York club owners get richer, had to pay his way into Yankee Stadium the next year. The Giants, though, sent him two season passes. Since it probably cannot be helped, it may as well be mentioned that Jack Curley plans to reveal 20 new wrestlers during the winter campaign. Francis T. Hunter, the former tennis top-ranker, says that, when time permits, all strokes in this game are best and most easily executed with the body sideways to the net.

Younger polo players are fretted at the rumor the United States team already has been selected for the matches in England next year in spite of the promise that the September open would provide the real test. The team is reported to be made up of Mike Phipps, Cecil Smith, Tommy Hitchcock, and Winston Guest and much of the younger anger arises because Smith is an out-and-out pro.

Perry and Moody Are Tops in Tennis World

George Weiss, supervisor of the Yankee farm system, complains that it is impossible to make quick grabs for the matches in England next year in spite of the promise that the September open would provide the real test. The team is reported to be made up of Mike Phipps, Cecil Smith, Tommy Hitchcock, and Winston Guest and much of the younger anger arises because Smith is an out-and-out pro.

Under the income tax laws in operation Max Schmeling would have to pay $69,800 worth of taxes if he received a $150,000 purse for fighting in the United States. This would leave him $80,200, which would be subject to a far higher German tax. Rube Marquard, the pitcher who won 19 straight, now sells $10 par-mutuel tickets in the Suffolk Downs pari-mutuel department. Roxy Romanelli, the former jockey, is a messenger in the judge's stand there. The O'Mahoney-George wrestling affair in Boston was the first grappling show Jim Milton, the race-track starter, had witnessed in 35 years. The other exhibition was in Louisville and was particularly enjoyable because one of the wrestlers got thrown out of the ring and into the bass drum.

One of the country's most successful bookmakers obtained his first stake in the rag-picking business. The most eminent of them all once was a bus boy and washroom attendant at Coney Island and along Broadway. Although he was raised in Ybor City, that section of Tampa which is so justly celebrated for tobacco and rum, Al Lopez neither smokes nor drinks.

PERHAPS the pardon of those two amiable and eminent gentlemen should be asked before the subject is mentioned. Yet, with or without such generous permission to spill the works, one fact daily becomes clearer concerning the Dean brothers. It is that those two illustrious citizens are in imminent peril of being deposed from their proud posts as the most feared members of the St. Louis Gas House Gang.

By this I do not mean to suggest that the dizziness boys are becoming a couple of soft touches. Even though his success against the Giants has been somewhat less than remarkable this year it is more than likely that the elder pride of the family will end the season with 25 victories. When you add to that the 20 triumphs to which Paul probably will eventually be entitled, you have an imposing total in a league where 95 winning efforts usually entitles your side to a generous share in the World Series. So it would be silly to hint that the possessors of such rare hurling talent are slipping merely because luck has not been quite as generous with them as it was a season ago.

Also it would be decidedly unfair to two up and coming strong arm members of the same gang. If Joseph (alias Ducky Wucky) Medwick and John (alias Pepper) Martin happen to be receiving a main share of the applause right now it is solely upon their own merits. Even though their attacking averages may not be quite up to those of the once famous Fox-Simmons or Ruth-Gehrig combinations it has been years since the fans have been fascinated and opposing teams bedeviled by such a pair.

Of course, the individual excellence of the two is not exactly a matter of red hot news. Medwick, as was almost exclusively predicted by this department before the event, was one of the brightest stars of the 1934 World Series, while Martin had achieved fame even previous to that. Yet it also is true that, until recently, their real value to the champions had been greatly obscured by the better press-agented performances of the brother act.

Medwick, Martin Are Real Ogres of Cards

In June, for instance, I sat on the bench with the Giants. Even then while piling up what seemed to be an imposing lead they were fearful of the Cards, who were so happily engaged in wrangling among themselves that they were giving little thought or effort to winning games. When asked what particular section of the Cards they were most scared of, eleven of Bill Terry's hopefuls replied "the Deans," two of them said Frankie Frisch and three more votes were scattered among Martin, Medwick and Rip Collins.

The other day I asked again. Five of the Giants confided that they still get a funny feeling whenever they see a Dean coming out of a dugout, even though they have been more than a trifle successful against the brothers this season. Nine others frankly, freely and with a considerable spitting and crossing of fingers to ward off jinxes were willing to tell that portion of the world which knows a good paper when it sees one that if some kidnaper could get around to taking Medwick and Martin on a long vacation they felt more than reasonably sure that their lives would be full of merriment and the clink of World Series gold.

Afterwards (I give service as well as long sentences, gentlemen) I stood at the Polo Grounds gate and asked the same question of 20 fans. Nine men and three ladies, after making sure that it wasn't a touch, immediately decided that Joseph, alias Ducky Wucky, and John, alias Pepper, were the strong-arm boys who had been doing the most notable execution for the gang all year. Six fans, all males, held out for the Deans while Frisch drew a lady vote.

Just what all this proves—aside from indicating that Brooklyn pulled its usual bone a year ago when it could have had both Medwick and Martin together with considerable change left over from the $50,000 which was demanded, but not expected, for them—is something that need not be stressed here at any great length. Yet, when the two can overcome even the glamour of the two great pitching brothers' while achieving renown, it does seem to point out that the way to all-around success in baseball is much the same as it was in Ty Cobb's heyday.

Mr. Cobb had more than a fair share of ability but he was truly great because he exerted himself strenuously to make the most of it all the time. It is the same with the two broad-brawed slugging heroes of the Gas House Gang.

Bill Terry's one weakness as a ball-player, the words are his own, is that he never has been able to slide properly. Until he performed for Edmont in the Western Canada league in 1921, Floyd Caves Herman's nickname was "Lefty." Then a shrill voiced lady fan rechristened him Babe.

Old Fashioned Patchwork Quilts

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK
From all indications quilt makers will be busy this winter making more quilts. Quilts are still very attractive for needle workers, and any suggestion on this work will be welcomed.

Patchwork Quilt making is much easier today than during Colonial days. Patches are more easily obtained. Diagrams and cutouts for patches and books of instruction are printed. All of these make the work easier and more quilts are being made.

Grandmother Clark's Book No. 20 on Patchwork Quilts contains 30 quilts with cutting diagram for patches, also several ways to assemble 12 and 18-inch quilt blocks.

This book contains information and diagrams for the quilts shown above and many other old designs. Send 15 cents for this book No. 20 and receive it by mail.

Cares for Her Young

Oliver Deiter's mother came running to take his part when he quarreled with two young men in Wilkes-Barre, Pa. The two young men were taken to the hospital, bruised and battered.

Oliver, seventy-one, and his mother, one hundred, were held for a police court hearing.

PARENTS SHOULD WATCH CHILD'S REPORT CARDS

"Parents should spend more time in analyzing the scholastic report cards their sons and daughters bring home," writes Don Chalmers Lyons in Hygeia in "An Analysis of the Significance of School Report Cards."

Good or bad grades are not so important as is an evaluation of what those grades actually represent as indicators of social adjustment. The grades which appear on the report card are more than mere indicators of scholastic ability; they are key letters to character and, for the parent who is willing to take the time and trouble to analyze them or to have them analyzed by the child's instructors, they may reveal hitherto unguessed phases in the child's mental, physical and emotional make-up.

Harder work and more study are not panaceas in every case of scholastic failure. Some students have only a limited mental capacity; beyond a certain point, increased study is of no value because of actual inability to assimilate and correlate knowledge. While such students can obtain fair or even good grades if they are carrying a light load of work they are almost certain to fail if they are forced to carry a heavy schedule. It is better to lighten the scholastic load and allow a pupil of this type to take an extra half year or several summer school sessions, if necessary, to complete his high school work than to make him struggle on to failure and the development of a sense of inferiority under an intolerable load.

New Type of Education

Many universities and private institutions now offer for adult students certain courses in which the real professors are children, two, three and four years of age. This new type of school may be called a nursery school, a child institute, a child research center or a preschool laboratory. It makes little difference what it is called. All such schools exist for the purpose of giving the elders an education.

In her article "Pupil—or Professor?" in Hygeia, Elizabeth M. Stal-naker explains how a group of nursery school children showed by their natural responses the right and wrong ways of training children and how they worked out in truly stimulating and enlightening manner various problems of community life.
