Flaming Youth In Action

Jimmy Allred A Factor To Be Reckoned With In Years to Come In Texas

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
Record News Staff.

FLAMING YOUTH is a swift traveler.

Fighting Jimmy Allred made one of the most remarkable races for high office in the memory of the oldest inhabitant. Fighting Jimmy is a product of the west. He is a product of Texas schools. He is a very young man. He had won his laurels as a public prosecutor before he entered the race as a contender for the office of attorney general.

He had won a place among the lawyers of the Wichita county bar and he has won a place among the political campaigners of West Texas. He ran second in the July primaries. In the run-off he was pitted against Claud Pollard who had been practicing law for a quarter of a century and was well-known in political and legal circles the state over. Pollard is fifty-three. Fighting Jimmy is 27.

There was only one argument used against Fighting Jimmy. His critics or opponents said that he was too young. When fighting soldiers are needed, youth has the call. When office holders are needed the politicians say that age should have the call. Fighting Jimmy made a marvelous speaking campaign before the July primaries. He made another marvelous speaking campaign in the run-off contest.

* * *

HE was an unknown in many sections of the state before he threw his hat in the ring and asked the democrats of Texas to nominate him for the office of attorney general. Now Fighting Jimmy is known in every section of the commonwealth. He lost the nomination, but he received a tremendous vote. He trailed behind the winner 10,000 votes.

In all the larger cities and towns of the state the veteran lawyers, in printed newspaper advertisement, appealed to the voters to cast their ballots for Claud Pollard. In one way the defeat of Fighting Jimmy is victory for the veteran lawyers. And yet had it not been for the voters of Harris county, the home of Pollard, the chances are Fighting Jimmy would have won the nomination. Harris county and the city of Houston gave Pollard a majority of more than 15,000 and it was this majority that won the prize for the south Texas lawyers.

Fighting Jimmy ran like wildfire in his home city and county. Pollard made a magnificent showing in the county of Harris and the city of Houston. Wichita Falls has a population of less than 60,000. Houston is one of the large cities of the southwest and has a heavy voting population. Flaming Youth defeated Fighting Jimmy in Harris county or rather the vote of Harris county defeated Flaming Youth.

* * *

BEHIND the argument of flaming youth was a powerful organization of the elderly lawers of the state. Regardless of all of this, Fighting Jimmy should be proud of the race that he ran. He should be proud of the friends that he made; he should be proud of the remarkable total vote that he received and that the argument that defeated him in the last analysis was that his years were too few, and if placed in the office of attorney general he might smash some of the historic traditions that cluster about the place.

Flaming youth isn't a handicap. Fighting Jimmy can come again. He is of the west and the west is growing at a rapid rate, for surely the time is coming when half of the voters to be found under the skies of Texas will be found in the territory lying between the foothills of the Rocky Mountains and the city of Fort Worth.

Fighting Jimmy did not take down the prize but he placed West Texas on the map and he placed Jimmy Allred among democrats to be reckoned with by the politicians and the people in coming years.

$1.30 TAX SET BY CITY FOR COMING YEAR

No Change to be Made In Assessments, Council Has Decided

Taxpayers of Wichita Falls will pay no higher rate of taxes for 1926 renditions than for those of 1925, it has been decided by the city council. The commissioners have been informed by Mayor Shepherd that no necessity existed for an increase and that the normal budget of expenses could be comfortably handled with the revenue from the same rate as that of 1925. An ordinance has been passed fixing the current tax rate at $1.30 on the hundred dollars.

One remarkable feature of the tax rate was brought out at the meeting which revealed that despite the city's growth in population in the past five years, thereby necessitating a much greater increase in municipal expenses, the tax rate had actually been materially lowered in the same time.

Tax Valuations Gain.

The tax collectors report for this year, while not yet completed, indicates that an approximate valuation of $44,800,000 is the assessed value of all property in this city, showing an increase of nearly $5,000,000 over the report of last year. There have been some increases in governmental expenses which will require approximately the increased revenue, and still permits the city council to maintain the remarkably low rate of $1.30 on the hundred. This assessment is for 1926 taxes and will be due and payable in January of next year.

The $1.30 tax assessment is divided into two distinct funds; 90 cents going for general purposes and 40 cents for interest and sinking fund on a municipal indebtedness of $2,955,000. The 90 cents general fund is divided into four appropriations as follows: 60 cents for general expenses such as salaries and different office expenses; 15 cents for streets; 12 cents for parks, and 3 cents for the library. In the matter of municipal government, Wichita Falls probably spends less for purely administrative purposes than any other city in the nation. Only 60 cents on the $100 valuation goes for this purpose, whereas the average city spends as much as a dollar on this one item alone. There is not another city in Texas which has as low a rate on the tax assessment as a whole, and none have near the low rate Wichita Falls has on purely administrative expenses.

Cut Assessment.

Statistics for the past five years show that the city has not only improved very much in city administration, but has materially cut the pro rata tax assessment. In 1922 the tax rate was $1.55 on the hundred dollars valuation; in 1923 and 1924 the rate was $1.50, while in 1925 the rate was lowered to $1.30 and the same rate is established for 1926 by the city council.

While the city is preparing to vote an additional indebtedness in bonds of something like $750,000, it was estimated that in all probability within 12 months the increased amount of assessed valuation will take care of this additional expense and the tax rate would not be increased but very little if any. This estimate is well founded and will doubtless prove itself within the next year.

Texas Regents Ask Big Appropriation

AUSTIN, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Plans of the regents and President W. M. W. Splawn for a university of first-class were reflected Monday in their request to the board of control for appropriations of $7,421,672 for all branches for the biennium starting Sept. 1, 1927. President Splawn asked the board to recommend to the legislature such support for the university as to make it an institution "somewhat comparable with the wealth and possibilities of the state."

Appropriation of $806,000 is asked for construction of a state museum on the university campus. "Next to a library, a museum is indispensable to a university," President Splawn said. "Moreover, Texas has a great and glorious history."

Rhode Island Manufacturing Town, Scene Of Former Disorders, Is Thrown Into Tumult Again

MANVILLE, R. I., Aug. 31.—(AP)—State police and striking operatives of the Manville-Jenckes company's plant here engaged in a pitched battle tonight when a crowd of strikers and sympathizers numbered 1,800 tried to storm the bridge-head leading to the mill.

One man tried to break through and was pushed back by the troopers. The crowd then rushed the police cordon and the troopers drove them back with tear gas bombs.

After three quarters of an hour the fighting still was in progress, with the police still occasionally hurling a bomb as further attempts to take the bridge were made.

Shortly after 9 o'clock troopers fired a volley into the crowd. One man ran into a store bleeding from the arm. There were probably others injured. The bridge which leads from Yell square across the Blackstone river and the railroad to the mill was unoccupied except when troopers made an occasional foray forward to attack the crowd, which jammed the square in a furious mob, and retaliated with a bombardment of stones from piles brought to the bridgehead. Later the troopers fired another volley of six shots, one of which struck a boy in the leg. A third person, a man is reported to have been hit also. The boy was carried to a store, of which a window was shattered by another bullet.

The troopers are aided by more than a score of deputy sheriffs.

Her oldest sister, Helen, marries Bill Hepworth, settles down and has a baby, Cassie, the second oldest, marries her employer, Morley Kaufman. They do not get along, and Cassie tells Merry that Morley is in love with Fifi Pell, a woman who does not live with her husband.

Jinny, the youngest of the sisters, is engaged to Derrick Jones, one of Merry's old admirers.

Merry meets Bill Erskine through Cassie and Morley. Bill is the catch-me-if-you can type of bachelor, and it takes Merry a whole year to get herself engaged to him. Then he keeps putting off the date of their marriage, until Merry's patience is worn threadbare. Finally he goes to Florida to be with his dying father, and tells Merry they'll be married when he comes back. She makes no comment, and he goes away angry.

That afternoon Merry and Jinny go downtown on a shopping trip. They bump into Cabby Marsh, a friend of Morley Kaufman's sister, Muriel. Merry deserts Jinny and goes to lunch with Cabby, a dark, handsome young chap who makes her think of Tony Gaines, somehow.

"She's Gone to the Movies With Mr. Hefflinger!" Jinny Gasped.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVI

While the two girls were undressing for the night, Moms and Mr. Hefflinger came back from the movies.

From the window Merry saw them coming up Chester street, arm in arm, walking very slowly as young lovers walk together.

"I'm going to hear what they say to each other," Jinny whispered, when she heard the sound of Moms' key in the front door. She tiptoed into the hall in her bare feet, and passed over the banisters into the hall below.

Merry stealthily followed her. Together they stood there, at the head of the stairs, and eavesdropped.

"Wouldn't you like a snack of something before you go upstairs?" they heard Moms ask. They could see her shadow on the wall below them, as she took off her hat.

"I always sleep better myself, if I have a little something in my stomach. And there's some baked beans in the ice box," she added.

"Well, a baked bean wouldn't be so bad," Mr. Hefflinger admitted playfully, "especially if they were baked by a certain fair lady's hands, Sadie."

Sadie! So he was calling her by her first name, now! It had gone as far as that! Merry's eyes met Jinny's in a startled frown.

"Of course, I baked them! Who else would bake beans in this house I'd like to know?" Moms sniffed. "Not those lazy girls of mine! And I never was one to buy my beans from a canning factory. Not me, Ed Hefflinger! I like my own good home cooking best—"

The sound of her voice was deadened by the closing of the kitchen door.

Jinny, shaking with silent laughter, pattered back to the bedroom and threw herself down on the bed.

"Isn't that priceless?" she giggled, when she could get her breath. "The old girl wooing Mr. Hefflinger with her baked beans. I'll bet you 10 cents she lands him, too. That'll be nice, having a step-papa in the house—I don't think!"

"Don't be silly! She never would put any man in Dad's place," Merry answered. Her voice was sharp because she was dreadfully afraid that was exactly what Moms intended to do.

What was it Moms had said only this afternoon? "If I marry again." It was plain that she had marriage in her mind.

And how awful it would be to have Mr. Hefflinger sitting at the head of the table in Dad's old place! To have him lolling in Dad's easy chair in the sitting room! To have him fussing around the house—Dad's house—all day Sunday!

"But if it's going to happen, nothing can stop it from happening," Merry made up her mind finally. "If Moms wants to marry him, there's no use worrying over it and getting a wrinkle."

No use crossing bridges until you got to them! And Merry never had worried for very long about anybody's affairs but her own, anyway.

She smiled drowsily into the darkness of the room, presently. The air in it was sweet with the fragrance of Cabby Marsh's violets in the toothbrush glass on the window sill. It was of Cabby Marsh that Merry was thinking as she dropped off to sleep.

In the morning she walked over to Cortelyou street to help Cassie with her packing.

"Mrs. Kaufman is having her breakfast," said the little Norwegian maid who opened the door of the flat.

The dining room was at the end of a long hall that ran down through the flat, past the little library and the bedroom.

As Merry passed the door of Cassie's room, she poked her head in to see if the mistress of the home was having her coffee in bed. But the room was empty.

Two large wardrobe trunks stood in the middle of the floor, and the bed, the dressing table and all the chairs were covered with Cassie's finery.

A jar of rose crystals was half emptied on the mossy rug, and a rainbow collection of silk stockings were piled on the bedside table.

"We're in the dining room. Come on in!" Cassie's shrill voice called, and she went on down the hall.

The day was gray and misty, and the yellow-shaded lights were turned on above the breakfast table.

Morley, in a black silk house coat, sat at his usual place. And on the arm of his chair Cassie was perched, like a big yellow butterfly. She was wrapped in a negligee of daffodil-colored chiffon, and one of her hands lay on Morley's big square shoulder.

With the other she was feeding him grapefruit from a frosted glass bowl on the table in front of her! Morley was looking up at her with the pleased and peaceful expression of a baby at his 10-o'clock feeding!

"Hello, Sweetums!" Cassie greeted her sister. Her smile was radiant even if her eyelids were still swollen from crying. "Do sit down and have a cup of coffee and a cigaret." She pushed her black enameled case across the table toward Merry.

Merry sat down at the table and took a cigaret. But she did not light it. She tried smoking, but it made her sick.

She wished she had not come. She might have known that Cassie would be over her "peeve," by this time. She was always quarrelling with Morley, and then making up the next minute!

"Morley and I are going up to the Crow's Nest to spend the day, as soon as we finish breakfast," she said now to Merry. "Just the two of us—with no horrid people along to spoil things for us. Aren't we, Monk?"

When Cassie was feeling very loving and sweet toward Morley she called him "Monk." She kissed him now, on his bald spot, to remind him that he was getting old. Then she trailed out of the room, with Merry following after her.

"Everything's all right, honey," she said, when the bedroom door was closed between them and Morley. "I told him I was going to leave him, and it just knocked him silly! He all but got on his knees to me to stay, and I made him promise not to see Fifi Pell any more."

She sat down beside Merry on the edge of the bed, and put one slim arm in its chiffon sleeve, around her shoulders.

"I think there wasn't much to the affair, anyway," she went on, with a broad-minded air. "Fifi just came to him to ask him how to invest some money, and I suppose she flirted with him a little. No man ever kept his head when a good looking woman made eyes at him, I guess—Moreley's no worse than the rest of them. And, as Moms says, you may just as well live with the demon you know as with the one you don't know."

She laughed and kissed her sister on her cheek. Merry had never known her to be so affectionate. She gave her a bottle of gardenia perfume that she didn't want, another kiss, and sent her home.

Merry had promised Cabby Marsh that she would go somewhere to dance with him on Wednesday night.

But on Tuesday night she telephoned him and told him that she couldn't make it.

For on Tuesday afternoon, just before it was time to close the beauty shop, a man she hadn't seen for five years walked in and turned all her plans topsy-turvy in five minutes.

She did not know him at once.

He came in, slung a salesman's leather case down on the table in the front of the shop, and asked to see Madame Dale.

While Merry was walking to the room behind the shop to call Lillie, her mind was busy with the man who had just come in.

Where had she seen him before? She knew that voice, that smile, that way of moving his head as he talked. She knew the gray eyes and the charming devil-may-care smile.

Then all at once it came to her who he was—Les Purcell, the hero of her high school days, long ago! The man who had given her the first kiss she had ever had. She wondered if he remembered it, still?

Probably not. Men forget things like that. The things that mean so much to women.

But all the same he remembered her.

"Aren't you Merry Ann Lock?" he asked her when she went back to him. "Didn't you go to East High school?"

She said she had, and by the time Lillie came out of the back room, they were talking over old times.

"Our babyhood," Merry said, laughing into his gray eyes.

He was a salesman for a firm that made a world-famous cold cream. When he had taken Lillie's order, he sat down and waited until Merry was ready to go home.

"I'll take you in my little car," he told her. At the curb was a roadster of the same make as the car he had driven to high school, years before.

The next night at half past eight it was standing at the curb in front of the old Chester street house.

Moms and Jinny had gone over to Mrs. Jones' house to play "500" with her and Mr. Jones, and Merry was all alone with Les Purcell.

"You don't remember a ride we once took in that little old car you used to have, do you?" Merry asked him, as they sat side by side on the old horsehair sofa in the sitting room.

She looked intently at him, her lips half opened like the petals of a rose.

She had the inborn instinct of a "man's woman." She knew, without ever stopping to think about it, just how to look at a man, how to smile at him and when to look wistfully at him.

It was natural for a man to think of love making when he was with Merry Locke, as it was for him to think if water when he was thirsty.

Nature had fashioned her to be all softness and, sweetness and allure. And she had never been more seductive And she had never been more seductive colored organdie dress she had had for two years.

Les Purcell moved over to her side of the sofa.

"Do I remember that night?" he repeated. "Do I? Well, just guess I don't remember anything else but."

"I've always been a little bit ashamed of it," Merry said, shyly, looking down so that he lashes made a shadow on her soft cheeks.

"Why be ashamed?" he asked in a most matter-of-fact way. If a girl doesn't pet these days, she's 'out'."

He slid close to her on the old sofa, and took her in his arms to kiss her again, after the five years.

The light from the yellow floor lamp beside the piano, struck on the side of his face, and for one fleeting instant he looked like Tony Gaines! Then he turned, and the resemblance was gone—a mere trick of light and shadow, and Merry's imagination.

But Merry couldn't have let him kiss her then. She suddenly wanted him a thousand miles away from her.

She got up and walked across the room to the piano. Her hands made a splashing sound as they fell against the keys.

"You look like a man I used to know, Les," she said coldly. "Just the side of your face, when you turned it toward the light."

She began to play the piano. She was still playing it when Moms and Jinny came home at eleven o'clock. And Les Purcell was playing solitaire at a table he had drawn up to the horsehair sofa.

Jinny giggled as she looked at him.

Jinny and Merry eat breakfast because their father's chair is occupied by Mr. Hefflinger. What do the girls think of the future possibilities? You'll know tomorrow, in "The Petter."

FREDERICK, Okla., Aug. 31.—Crop conditions in Tillman county are good, the only menace to cotton at present being boll and leaf worm invasions, which are lessening, according to farmers. Shopping assures satisfaction

If there is anything you want satisfaction in, it's a shoe. You compare it with others. You look for style. You judge values. Then you decide. Here you find comparison very helpful.

So with coffees. They differ widely. Only by comparing their flavors can you choose the one coffee you prefer.

If we could take you through our modern roasting plant you would see why each pound of Folger's is the source of dozens of cups of rich, full-flavored, delicious coffee. You would know why its high quality makes it economical.

But we ask you to take nothing for granted. Simply compare Folger's with the brand you are now using by making the Folger Coffee Test. It is the logical, easy way to shop for coffee.

The Folger Coffee Test: Drink Folger's Coffee tomorrow morning; the next morning drink the coffee you have been using; the third morning drink Folger's again. You will decidedly favor one brand or the other. The Best Coffee Wins. That's fair, isn't it?

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

IN a democracy the voice of the people when registered is the unmistakable verdict of the popular will. In July more than 8,000 democrats declared against a fourth term of the Fergusons at the top of the hill. It is not necessary to quote the figures of the July primary. In the balloting on July 24 the attorney general lacked but 17,071 votes of having a majority of all of the candidates for the nomination for the office of governor.

Now the voice of the people has thundered forth for a second time and by a majority of 250,000 in a total vote which may go to 800,000 when all the returns are in. They have again declared the house of Ferguson must disappear from the top of the hill. There can be no quibbling this time.

In the run-off the lines were drawn. It was the house of Ferguson against the house of the fathers and a vast majority of those who participated in the election declared that the house of the fathers should be filled for at least one term of two years by Dan Moody, the man of the hour in the tabernacle of Texas democracy.

Their verdict carries with it a declaration of their abiding faith in the cardinal tenets of the gospel of Jefferson and a warning that those who trifle with the principals and policies of government first enunciated by Thomas Jefferson may do it at their peril but are certain to be cast out by those who follow the standard of Jefferson and believe in responsible government at all times, high ideals in office, honest expenditures of public money and sane and impartial enforcement of all laws.

It goes without saying that the men and women who are responsible for this victory of this people are for peace within the borders of Texas. They are opposed to political insanity. They are opposed to creed insanity. They believe in the forward movement.

They are for the development of the resources of Texas. They are for conservatism in action and they are for wise legislation along the proper line. Texas is a marvelous commonwealth, Texas has resources staggering to the intelligent mind. Texas has millions of acres of virgin soil that should be cultivated to supply the needs of man.

Texas has all the raw material and should become the greatest of manufacturing states. Texas should be willing to be taxed for the education of all children of all the people. Individuals are nothing; the state or its future, is everything.

There should be peace in Texas, orderly law enforcement in Texas, development of resources in Texas and tolerance in Texas.

On with the procession.

A RECORD ITSELF

IT has remained for the District of Columbia, federal capital city of the United States to spring something entirely new and different in the way of scheduled automobile charges upon an unsuspecting motoring public. Heretofore in Washington a permit to drive an automobile has been a continuing grant, without necessity of renewal. Some drivers in the capital have held their permits from the very beginning of such things.

Now it has been decided that driving permits must be renewed yearly at a cost of $3 per year. Such a charge of course, prevails in many of the states of the Union. But here is where the joke arrives. It only costs $1 a year to register and operate a motor car in the District of Columbia, therefore the fees from permits to drive will bring in the government more than three times the money of registering automobiles. No state in the Union can match that record.

HOW THEY GET THE MONEY

JOHN BULL is a business man. His income from liquor taxes the last fiscal year amounted to more than $750,000,000. John Bull's war debt to the United States is something like $4,000,000,000. If Mr. Bull keeps up his present lick how many years will it take him to pay off the American war loan.

AGUILDO A MAN OF HIS WORD

STAR county is away down on the banks of the Rio Grande river. Star county is peopled by Spanish Texans. It is a Spanish speaking county and the county officials make use of the Spanish tongue although they are masters of English. Aguildo Guerra is the most powerful politician in Star county. He is a democrat. He comes of an old democratic family. He is an absolute political boss although he does not like to be called a boss. His people follow his lead. They take his advice.

In the July primary Star county gave the house of Ferguson something like a thousand votes and Dan Moody six or seven votes. In the run-off the red headed attorney general visited Star county and he made one of his best talks of the second campaign.

He was the guest of Leader Guerra and the latter was captivated by the candidate and his talk.

They are not strong for the invisible empire in Star county. They had read a lot of stuff in the public press and whispers had been busy in Star in the month of July. Their whispers were directed against Moody and his cause. Leader Guerra was satisfied with the candidate and satisfied with the statement of the case that the candidate had made as well as his definition of the issues which were uppermost.

Star county reversed itself in the run-off. Star county voters switched and they gave Moody 1,100 votes and they gave the house of Ferguson three votes. Hidalgo ran true to form in the July primary and again in the run-off. Hidalgo is the home county of Sheriff A. Y. Baker and County Engineer Pat Devine.

These democratic stalwarts of the lower Rio Grande country accompanied the attorney general when he made his pilgrimage to Star county and by making a single speech captured the Guerra brothers and their followers.

Senator Archie Parr of Duval county stood pat in August on his July record. He plumped the vote of Duval county for the house of Ferguson but he did not obey the orders of the house of Ferguson. Almost to a man his followers voted for Allred for attorney general and Hatcher for state treasurer notwithstanding that Pollard and Ball were the names on the Ferguson Forum ticket.

Senator Parr follows his own flag and he went down in the ditch with the house of Ferguson but his majority in his senatorial district which covers the Magic Valley is away up in the thousands.

All the old guard leaders in the valley backed the attorney general for governor and at the same time they backed the king of Duval for state senator in every precinct of his district. It must be true that politics make strange bedfellows.

SPEAKING OF AGE

TEXAS politicians have had a vast deal to say of young men in politics and the folly of nominating the same to office. Charles W. Eliot was 92 when death called him. He was 35 when he was elected president of Harvard college.

No doubt it was a great shock to elderly gentlemen then on earth in New England when the trustees of Harvard elected a youth of 35 to the presidency of the most historic institution of learning under American skies.

Flaming Youth won away back in the remote past and Flaming Youth will continue to win in all fields of endeavor. It isn't age that counts; it is equipment.

OHIO REPUBS LEAD THE WAY

OHIO republicans in state convention assembled demanded the repeal of the primary election law. New Jersey repealed the law last year. New York repealed the law. It is up to Texas lawmakers to do something.

A Romance In Old Brandy

By Michael Arlen.

"Disloyal moods!" said Valentino thoughtfully. "That's good!"

"Fidelity," said Mr. Lapwing, "can cause the devil of a lot of trouble in the home, unless it is well managed. Fidelity needs just as much good management as infidelity. I am telling you this," said Mr. Lapwing, "because I think fidelity is beautiful and I hate to see it made a mess of. I draw from my own life, from my first marriage. I stuck firmly to those guns which you so aggressively brought into the conversation. A year or so went by. Then her parents approached me and suggested that we should come to some agreement, either to live together again or to arrange a divorce on the usual lines. They were good people. Their argument was that we were both too young to go on wasting our lives in this shilly shally way.

"By this time, of course, the matter of my quarrel with my wife had faded into nothing. There remained only the enormous fact that we had quarrelled and that, since neither of us had tried to make the quarrel up, our love must obviously be dead.

"I referred her parents to her, saying I would do as she wished. She sent them back to me, saying she was quite indifferent. A divorce was then arranged by our lawyers; and I was divorced for failing to return to my wife on her petition for restitution of conjugal rights. The usual rubbish.

"To be brief, it was not long before I married again. But now I was older and wiser. I had tasted passion, I had loved; to find that passion was yet another among the confounded vanities that are perishable.

"Valentine, I married my second wife with an eye to the mother of my children. I married sensibly. I have, as you know, a considerable property; and I continued to desire, above all things, an heir to my name and a companion for my middle years. That I have a companion now in you—and in Valerest—is due to the infinite grace of God; that I have not an heir to carry on my name is due to my own folly.

"My second wife was of that type of woman whom it is the fashion of our day to belittle as 'matronly,' but from whose good blood and fine quality is forged all that is best in great peoples. The difference between my affection for her and my passion for my first wife is not to be described in words; yet when she died in giving birth to a dead child you will easily understand how I was grieved almost beyond endurance—not only at the shattering of my hopes, but at the loss of a gracious lady and a dear companion.

"I was at a South Coast resort the summer after my second wife's death. One morning on the sands I struck up a great friendship with a jolly little boy of three, while his nurse was gossiping with some of her friends. Our friendship grew with each fine morning; and the nurse learnt to appreciate my approach as a relief for a time from her duties.

"You will already have seen, Valentine, the direction of my tale; the irony of my life must already be clear to you; nor can you have failed to see the pit of vain hopes that sometimes awaits those who stick to their guns. As my young friend and I sat talking one morning, or rather as he talked and I played with handfuls of sand thinking how gladly I had called him my son, he leapt up with a cry of joy; and presented me to his father and mother.

"My first wife had grown into a calm, beautiful woman. Yet even her poise could not quite withstand the surprise of our sudden meeting after so many years; and it was her husband who broke the tension, and won my deepest regard forever, by taking my hand. From that moment, Valentine, began for me, and I think for them both, and certainly for the boy, as rare and sweet a friendship as, I dare say, is possible in this world.

"People like ourselves, Valentine, must, for decency, conform to certain laws of conduct. The love that my first wife and I rediscovered for each other was not, within our secret hearts in our power to control; yet it did not need even a word or a sign from either of us to tell the other that our love must never, no matter in what solitude we might meet, be expressed. Her husband was a good man, and had always understood that our divorce had not been due to any uncleanliness or cruelty, but to what is called, I think incompatibility of temperament. So that until she died soon after, the three of us were devoted friends and constant companions.

"And that," said Mr. Lapwing from the shadows, "is all my story. More or less."

Valentine sat very still. Mr. Lapwing paced up and down. Silence walked with him.

Valentine muttered, "I'm sorry. It's a dreadful story. Good Lord, yes! May I have some more brandy, please?"

"It's not," snapped Mr. Lapwing, "a dreadful story. It is a beautiful story. Help yourself."

"Well," said Valentine, "call it beautiful if you like. It's your story. But I should hate it to happen to me."

"There are," said Mr. Lapwing, "consolations."

Mr. Lapwing paced up and down. "Consolations."

Valentine said: "Oh, certainly. I suppose there always are consolations. All the same, I should hate to be done out of my son like that. For that's what it comes to."

Mr. Lapwing was in a distant corner of the room, his face a shadow among shadows. He said: "Exactly. That is why, Valentine Chambers, I said there are consolations. My wife's second husband was Lawrence Chambers."

Valentine said: "Oh!"

Mr. Lapwing touched him on the shoulder.

Valentine said: "Good Lord, I might have been your son!"

"You might," said Mr. Lapwing. "Easily. But it has come to almost the same thing in the end, hasn't it? Except, perhaps, that I have not a father's right to advise you."

Valentine said violently: "You've got every right in the world to advise me! Considering what you've done for me all my life!"

"Then," said Mr. Lapwing, "don't be an ass."

Valentine saw Valerest's mocking eyes, heard Valerest's mocking laugh, and about his mind walked Mr. Tuppy with his old unsmiling eyes. He muttered: "But, look, Valerest will just think I've given in!"

"So you have," said Mr. Lapwing. "Well, then," said Valentine bitterly, "It will all—"

"She'll grow," said Mr. Lapwing. He was tired. "And, Valentine, she has got more right to be an ass than you have. Remember that. There's no use being sentimental about it, but they put up with a lot of pain, women. Remember that. And—"

"But look here," said Valentine, "if I—"

Questions from the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

In Choosing a Husband, Girls, Listen First to Your Heart, for Only Love Can Make Marriage Endurable.

A young woman wants to know whether she shall be guided by her heart or her head in the choice of a husband.

Both. For the marriage that is based on cold reason alone is just as disastrous as the one that is the result of mere impulse. To be happy though married a woman must have a husband who not only fires her fancy but who comes up, at least measurably, to her ideal.

The girl who marries for her head, who takes the man because he is a good catch, who can give her social position and an establishment and jewels and motors, is never a happy and contented wife. She soon comes to the end of the purchasing power of money, and then she finds that the one thing she wants most she cannot buy—and that is love.

Town houses and country houses and ropes of pearls and limousines, are all highly desirable things to have and they add to any woman's bliss, but they are the frosting on her cake of life. They are not the cake itself. That alone is made of the sweetness of mutual love, and if a wife has not that all the remainder are dust and ashes in her teeth.

Many a millionairess who is the mistress of half a dozen palaces never knows what it is to have a real home. Sables will not keep a woman's heart from freezing to death for lack of the warmth of human love and sympathy, and many a woman who sits down to a banquet every night of her life is starving for understanding and companionship.

Matrimony is a long and a hard road for a woman to travel. It involves suffering and sacrifice, the putting of another before herself, the adjusting of her own point of view to another's, the patient endurance of personal peculiarities that get upon her nerves. Often putting up with injustice. Forgiving slights, neglects. Forgetting impatient and cruel words, whipped out in anger of under the stress of nerves.

It is only love that makes marriage worth while, that takes the sting out of its sacrifices, that sweetens its bitterness, that glorifies its drabness and puts pep and ginger into its long, dull days.

Want Government To Protest Films

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., Aug. 31.—(AP)—The advisability of the providing space in the new government archives building that is to be erected in Washington for motion picture films of historic events was discussed with President Coolidge today by Will H. Hays, "czar" of the movies. Any final views of the president on the matter were not indicated.

The need for storing such films under safe conditions with government supervision was emphasized by Mr. Hays, who remarked upon their valuableness to posterity. "Think," he said, "of the value that would be attached today to a motion picture of Lincoln delivering his Gettysburg address."

The films that would be placed under government protection go back to the time when Theodore Roosevelt was active in public life and include many of the world war, picturing such scenes as the signing of the peace treaty at Versailles and the return of General Pershing. There were also many of presidential inaugurations.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

TO A FOE

Let not the word of pardon wait,
Too long. We soon forget to hate,
Since none can hate and still be glad;
We soon forget the hate we had,
But speak the friendly word too late.

Thank God for friends, among them those
Who now are friends who once were foes.

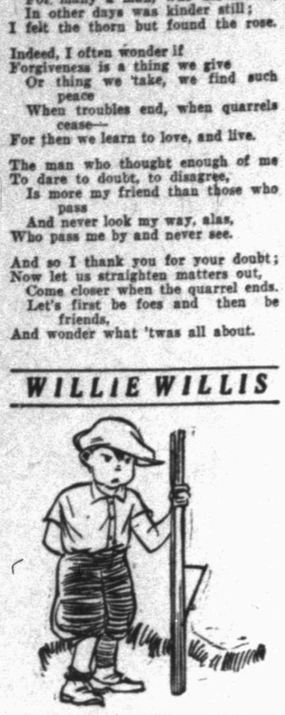

For many a man, who did me ill,
In other days was kinder still;
I felt the thorn but found the rose.

Indeed, I often wonder if Forgiveness is a thing we give
Or thing we take, we find such peace
When troubles end, when quarrels cease—
For then we learn to love, and live.

The man who thought enough of me
To dare to doubt, to disagree,
Is more my friend than those who pass
And never look my way, alas,
Who pass me by and never see.

And so I thank you for your doubt;
Now let us straighten matters out,
Come closer when the quarrel ends.
Let's first be foes and then be friends,
And wonder what 'twas all about.

What Do You Know About It?

1. Why are some substances explosive,
2. What is gun cotton?
3. How is camphor essential to high explosive shells?
4. Where does most of the camphor supply come from?
5. Where did a disastrous explosion recently occur?
6. What caused the above explosion?

A BLOW-UP

It is curious that the elements hydrogen and oxygen, which combine to form the commonest and, from a biological point of view the most important, substance on this earth, namely water, cannot meet without a violent explosion. If pure oxygen is let into a tank of hydrogen the two gases explode in a sheet of roaring flame—hence the danger of hydrogen gas for balloons. It was once felt that somehow a container strong enough to hold the gases in combination could be made, so a tank of very thick steel with several air chambers and outer costs was constructed and filled with oxygen. The experimenters then went off some safe distance and turned on a vale that let in oxygen. Although the strongest container that was ever constructed, the whole thing was instantly blown to atoms.

Now what do you know about that?

Answers to yesterday's questions:

1. There are millions of suns beside ours; most stars, except a few planets, are suns.
2. There are many other moons beside ours; Jupiter, and Saturn each have several.
3. The lines visible on Mars are not definitely known to be canals; as they often disappear it seems unlikely tiat tsey are feats of permanent engineering.
4. There is probably no appreciable moisture on the moon.
5. Water is not absolutely known on Mars, but if the white caps at the poles are not snow, then nobody has suggested what they might be.
6. The earth does not travel around the moon, but vice versa.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

BY MARY BLAKE

VIRGO

Today's planetary aspects are favorable until noon. They then undergo a very decided change and become quite adverse. In the morning, cheerfulness of disposition, optimism and energy will be engendered. After noon, there will prevail influences that are not conducive to harmony, or productive of effort. Although the "favorable" time is brief, much good work can be accomplished and success can be safely assured for all that is attempted. Thereafter, it would be advisable to abstain as much as possible, from all that savors of newness and originality. Poise, too, must be established in order to avoid the pitfalls of impulsiveness and anger.

Children born today will be practically free from infantile ailments. In early childhood, however, they will show weakness and anaemic tendencies, for which scientific treatment must be sought. Later on, the signs denote that they will attain a rugged physicality, which will enable them to attain a normal maority. Their characters will not be strong. In an ever-ready desire to please, and an uncurbed ambition to be popular, they will yield very readily to the voice of the temper and, unless this tendency is curbed by discipilinary measures at its inception, their "easy-goingness" is likely to land them in serious difficulties. They will not have any great ambitiaon, nor will they show any evidence of self-control.

If today is your birthday, you are "hale and hearty," magnaimous, open-hearted, as well as open-handed. You never permit yourself to worry, and take life's failures and disappointments "standing up." Your presence and companionship always cheers and enlivens and you manage to get out of life all the happiness that there can be found in it. You also radiate contentment and, by your example, make all those associated with you look on the bright side. You are not even and advocate of the truism that "there's a silver lining to every cloud." You ignore the clouds.

You are lacking in all "finesse." Your speech is brusque, but never unkind, and your friends always know where you stand. You, of course, revel in sentiment, and are enthusiastically devoted to your Kith and Kin. You are whole-heartedly demonstrative and affectionate. In your home you are a "gloom dispeller" and, as a natural result, all love and admire you.

I'M THE GINK

I'm the gink who carries a little book with the addresses of all the girls I know written down in it. I think it is quite the thing. I refer to it as a "cluck" book. Every time I have a "date" with a girl I put her name and address down. I make a specialty of girls who are reputed to be a bit "wild." No matter whether they are or not, I tell people they are. I am quite proud of my book. I injure reputations and all that, but, boy, you should see my book. "Do I know any wild women? Boy, just look." I think I am quite the thing.

Paducah Crops In Good Condition Leaf Worm Held

PADUCAH, Aug. 31.—From present indications the leaf worm has been stopped in this county. The farmers have tried all sorts of remedies, but have finally settled down to using calcium arsenate, which has proven very effective.

The weather is cool and showery, favorable to the worms, but the success of the campaign seems assured.

The cotton crop in this county looks like 1-2 bale per acre or better, and a large number of pickers will have to be imported to get it gathered.

G.O.P. In Texas Ready To Welcome 200,000 From Camps Of Democrats

AUSTIN, Aug. 31.—The republican party is preparing to welcome "a hundred thousand recruits," from the Ferguson camp to suport its nominee for governor, a republican party official disclosed here Monday.

The republicans expect to cast their full strength of 100,000 in the general election, plus these "recruits" and to give the democrats a bitter end fight for the lection, the party official said.

The republican state convention September 7 will welcome the Fergusonfolowers to its camp, he predicted. The republican primary nomination probably saved the party from having its nomination dictated by non-party leaders, he said.

"Texas will be a two-party state this year," the republican said.

No Fight On Dan

"The fight is not a fight against Dan Moody, the nominee," he said, "like the democrats' fight was two years ago against Mrs. Ferguson.

Ours is a straight away republican campaign for the governorship of Texas. We're going to get 100,000 recruits from somewhere, and we will be able to cast the full party strength of aproximately 100,000 this fall. Most people were fooled when the republicans polled only 15,000 votes in the primary."

Primary Helps

The republican primary this year served as a benefit to the party in two ways, he said. By making its strength and permitting its own nominee, without the influence of some non-party leader who has a large bloc of votes at his command.

The republicans will not forsake their own nominee to support any independent candidate, the official said. He declared that the "recruits" must take the republican nominee already chosen or that if there is a bolting element of the democratic party otherwise, it would put two opponents in the field against Moody.

"If there are only 275,000 or 300,000 votes polled in the general election," the man said, "somebody better watch out. The republicans aren't asleep this year.'

RUM WAR ON IN EARNEST

Government Combats Wiley Trick of Big Liquor Smugglers

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Aug. 31.—A new phase of the government's war against the rum runners has opened on the Vermont-New Hampshire Canadian border.

Collector of Customs Harry C. Whitehill today announced an aggressive campaign against a steadily growing army of runners believed to have been driven off the ocean by increased coast guard activity.

The newest bootleg war will be fought out on 58 highways along a 140 mile front by 389 border patrolmen, 100 customs men and four patrol boats on Lake Champlain. The patrol, now operating 26 automobiles, all seized from rum runners, is more than self supporting from the number of cars confiscated and fines collected.

Increased customs activity has had a response from the rum forces and today practically every possible means is resorted to by the runners to bring in their loads. Smoke screens have made their appearance on several highways and conveyances range from pack horses to airplanes.

Most of the smugglers operate from bases in Canada where their machines are thoroughly overhaulede before each are thoroughly overhauled before each told the border patrol after his capture that he never crossed the line on the same set of tires.

The average rum car is fitted with false bottom, sides or panels and recently the practice of carrying liquor in spare tires was uncovered. Automobile liquor trains run in groups of two or more cars. The accepted train runs a pilot car 200 yards ahead. If the leader is stopped the others turn and escape. Many trains also have a rear guard car that is swung across the road and abandoned should an attack develop from that quarter.

The average rum runner smuggles silk and tobacco on his return trip to Canada. it has been discovered; and this activity has led to closer co-operation between the Canadian and American customs forces.

Body of Man Is Found on Ranch

SAN ANGELO, Aug. 31.—(AP)—The finding of the body of a middle-aged white man, by river guards, on the D. Hart ranch between Dryden and Lozie, the Rio Grande, was reported here today by Mauricio Valadez, deputy sheriff of Tom Green county upon his return from Del Rio and other border points.

Muscles torn from the corpse indicated that the man might have been killed by wolves, although death from thirst is one theory, Valadez said. Nothing was found on the body to prove identification.

Erie Nighty Is Ghostly Apparition

DALLAS, Aug. 31.—(AP)—An apparition that appeared to be an animated night gown startled residents of Wills Point as it dashed through the streets of that town last night. At the same time the police were chasing the same eery thing in the Katy railroad yards here. The ghostly vision was a negro who had escaped from the city hospital here in his night gown.

He was first reported in the railroad yards and the police made a dash for the locality. But wraith-like, the fleeing negro was next reported from Wills Point miles distant.

Awakened residents saw only the white garment, since the head and legs of the black were at times invisible in the dark.

S. P. Executive Has Praise for Panhandle

CHILDRESS, Aug. 31.—(AP)—A glowing picture of the immediate future of the Texas Panhandle was painted by President W. R. Scott of the Southern Pacific railroad who visited here yesterday with M. E. Scott, formerly superintendent of the Denver and Rio Grande railroad.

President Scott predicted that within five years there would be more than six cities in the Panhandle country with populations between 24,000 and 30,000 and also some of greater population.

He said the Panhandle was one of the greatest tonnage areas in America and that it would continue to increase. Within 60 days he believes Panhandle oil pools will produce a 100,000,000 pounds of crude oil daily. He also predicted that several new railroad lines would be constructed to serve this section of Texas. The Childress Chamber of Commerce is making an effort to induce the Southern Pacific to build from San Antonio to Childress.

GOT THE WRONG BANK

KIRKWOOD, Mo., Aug. 31.—(AP)—A bank robber who forgot to bring a sack, a stubborn young woman who refused to lie down, an unidentified person who seized a telephone and gave the alarm, and a siren perched on top of the city hall contributed to the failure of an attempted holdup today of the Kirkwood bank by three men.

The bank saved $15,000 in cash by the odd combination of circumstances, but the robbers escaped while police rushed, in answer to the alarm, to the wrong bank.

Young Lawrence was cleaning the weapon when it was discharged accidentally. The charge ripped through the kitchen door, killing the girl instantly.

Arthur rushed into the house, stood for a moment over her body and then went to the barn and killed himself.

You Go to Well, Wherever You Like

LONDON, Aug. 31.—(AP)—The use of a word with four letters meaning an extremely hot place described in the Bible is considered indelicate by May Moore Dupres actress. She declined to utter it at the opening of a new revue last night.

When the time came for her to say vigorously, "You go to—," she merely uttered in a weak voice, "You may go wherever you like."

The press agents had worked the audience up to a state of expectancy for the actress had announced that she would not say the word. At the climax Miss Dupres was showered with bouquets. She insists that she will not use the word and the producer of the revue is talking of a broken contract.

Lila Lee, understudy, is not of the same mind as the leading lady. "I see no objection to the word," she said.

At that time she charged that Miss Milanoff was in the house and in the alienation suit she asserted that the dancer persuaded Wright to oust her from Taliesen and by "false representations contrived to keep her away" from the home.

Reduced Rate On Long Distance Calls Put In By Telephone Company

Important changes involving a general readjustment in long distance rates, and in the evening and night period during which reduced rates apply, are announced by F. M. Hoag, general manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company. The changes are effective October 1. They are made, Mr. Hoag states, for the benefit of users of long distance service and to eliminate service difficulties which the present schedule has brought about.

The net result of the readjustment in rates will be a saving to the telephone users of the country of approximately three million dollars a year. To all points 150 miles or more distant the rates are substantially reduced. Within the state boundaries, however, reduced rates begin with points 100 or more miles distant. For example, from Dallas to San Antonio the basic station-to-station rate will be $1.40 instead of $1.70 to St. Louis $2.60 instead of $3.50 to New York $6.15 instead of $8.80.

Science Helps.

Long distance cables, carrier systems, vacuum tube repeaters, loading coils and other improved devices and methods, resulting from continued scientific research and development applied to the telephone industry, have effected economies on the longer circuits, and have a share in making these reductions possible. A few rates for distances between 24 to 110 miles will be adjusted to make the schedule consistent throughout, but in these cases the increase of basic person-to-person rate will be only five cents.

One of the interesting changes from the public's viewpoint is that by which one and one-half hours have been added to the reduced rate period. Reduced rates on station-to-station calls will begin at 7 p. m. instead of 8:30 p. m., as formerly. Between 7 p. m. and 8:30 the discount will be approximately 25 per cent of the day station-to-station rates, and from 8:30 p. m. to 4:30 p. m., about 50 per cent of the day rates. These discounts will apply where the day station-to-station rate is 40 cents or more, with a minimum reduced rate of 35 cents. Because of the unsatisfactory service conditons which brought it about, the existing midnight discount is discontinued.

Under the new schedule station-to-station calls may be made at substantial reductions as early as 7 p. m., and persons wishing to take advantage of the lowest rates of the 24 hours may make their calls any time after 8:30 p. m. Thus, although the midnight discount is discontinued, the longer reduced rate period and the substantial reductions applying in basic rates to distant points mean that this change will make little difference in the most of night calls.

By this move the company expects to improve service by eliminating complications at midnight which have resulted in delays and put a heavy burden on its facilities and employees. At the more important centers it has meant retaining a large force of young women operators to care for a sudden and short-lived burst of traffic. During much of the time the operators kept on duty in anticipation of this temporary rush have had little to do, then a short period in which they have been entirely too busy to give the best service, and following that a sharp tapering off in business at an early morning hour when few of the girls could return to their homes.

With this condition growing more pronounced, the company has been facing a difficult and serious responsibility. It has become necessary to maintain dormitories in the larger central offices in which many operators, required only for a short period have been used for the rest of the night. These tours of duty, of course, have been undesirable and hard to fill. The spreading of the long distance traffic over the lengthened reduced rate period will relieve this situation.

Another change that will be welcomed in the extension of the privilege of reversing charges to include station-to-station calls — whether placed during the day, evening or night—where the rate is 25 cents or more. In the last few years the use of long distance service has been increasing constantly and many situations now arise where the reversal of charges is of advantage to the customer who calls for a certain number. Hence this privilege is an added convenience and saving to the public.

Detailed announcements of the new long distance rates and practices will be obtainable at the Southwestern Bell Telephone company's office before October 1.

Shotgun Proves Potent Influence For Oratory Study

FREDERICK, Okla., Aug. 31.—A shotgun pointed at one's head is a most potent influence toward the sudden acquisition of oratorical ability and should be incorporated in every public speaking course of the country, according to Patrolman E. I. May, Lynn Blackwood and Tom Cooper, who attempted to arrest a man here on a charge of disturbing the peace Sunday. The offender met the officers with a shotgun and they talked until he allowed them to lower their arms and finally talked him into submitting to arrest.

NO IMPORTANT CHANGES MADE IN GRID RULES

New Edicts on Kicks And Passes Are Major Shifts

COYOTES OUT TODAY

With the Coyotes turning out for the first work session of the year this morning at 8:15 o'clock on the Junior college field and baseball in Texas on the wane as the Dallas Steers draw further and further out front, Wichita Falls sport attention turns to the gridiron.

What kind of a team will Coach Bud McCallum have? How does it stack up with the rest in this section? What are the new football rules? Some of the questions asked.

On the whole, though apparently weak in the backfield through graduation and ineligibilities the Wichita Falls squad has a fairly promising outlook. Both Reese and Baggett are having their troubles in Electra and Vernon, this portion of the state's two other major teams.

But it is too early to make any predictions about the strength of any of the three clubs.

In regards to new rules, there are few and these not very important.

"Hurry Up" Yost, the Michigan mentor, sets down in detail the changes and what they mean.

Says Yost:

"There are only three changes of importance in the football rules for 1926. These are the rules affecting the forward pass, the safety and the status of a ball that goes out of bounds.

Incomplete Passes Penalized

"The new forward pass rule says that the second and third incomplete forward passes, which shall be made before a first down, shall be penalized by a loss of five yards for each incomplete pass. Thus if a team tries a forward pass on any down there is no penalty unless—during the same series of downs—it has already attempted a forward pass which has been incomplete. In other words, the penalty of five yards is inflicted for a second uncompleted pass between two first downs. On the fourth down there is no five-yard penalty—the old rule governs, which is the loss of the ball.

"I cannot see that this change will in any way materially affect the forward passing attack.

Must Kick After Safety

"The new safety rule provides that the team making a safety shall put the ball in play on the 20-yard line—instead of the 30 as formerly and must kick on the first down. The object of this rule, no doubt is to discourage intentional safeties. Again, I can not see that this change will materially affect the game in any way.

"Under the new rule a blocked kick that goes back over the end line is a safety against the kicking team, no matter who recovers the ball.

Chance of Injury Lessened

"The out-of-bounds rule provides that a kicked ball which strikes any player who is entitled to get it and then goes out of bounds shall belong to the team that touches it last on the field of play. This is to prevent a wild scramble for the ball on a cinder track or close to obstruction where the player might get hurt.

"A blocked kick that goes over the sidelines belongs to blocking team. This again, prevents wild scrambles.

"In my opinion the changes are beneficial to the game, except that I would have preferred forward passing encouraged rather than discouraged. However, the penalty inflicted for an incomplete pass is so small that those who believe in the passing game will still continue to use it liberally."

EULAS WINS ANOTHER

BEAUMONT, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Dunning's single with the bases full and none out in the tenth scored Dick Morgan with the run that won for Beaumont from Shreveport 6-5, today the deciding game of the series. Morgan and Blankenship both pitched good ball, but a Beaumont rally in the tenth did not seem difficult. Nason hit a home run inside the park in the second innings. Deviveros was unable to play and the infield was shifted. It was the first inning he had missed this season.

INDIANS CLIP YANKEE LEAD

Victory Over Browns Puts Tribe Five and Half From Top

CLEVELAND, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Cleveland won today's game from St. Louis, 6 to 5, in 12 innings, thus cutting New York's margin to five and one-half games. St. Louis took an early lead of five runs by reason of doubles by aVngilder and Gerber and Rice's home run with a runner on base. St. Louis blew up in the sixth and Cleveland scored five runs, tying the score on an error by Gerber. Sensational catches by Rice prevented Cleveland from winning in the tenth and eleventh innings. The winning run was scored by reason of daring base running by Summa. He hit a double with one out. L. Sewell walked and Lutzke hit a grounder to Gerber, the latter fumbled but recovered quickly and he was about to throw to first when Summa dashed for home and slid in under the throw. Manager Sisler and Coach Williams of the Browns were banished by Umpire Rowland in the ninth for protesting when Rowland ruled a drive by Gerber a foul.

PRE-CUP TEST SLATED TODAY

French Davis Duo Tackles American Team At Brookline

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 31.—(AP)—On the turg courts of the Longwood Cricket club tomorrow two international doubles battles are scheduled in which America and France will clash in a preliminary test of Davis cup strength.

Pitted against R. Norris Williams and Vincent Richards, defending champions, in the upper half of the drive for the national team championship will be the Wimbledon winners, Jacques Brugnon, and Henri Cochet. In the lower half, the two singles aces of the invading contingent, Rene LaCoste and Jean Borotra, will face the veteran star, William M. Johnston and his fellow Californian, Edward G. Chandler, the intercollegiate title holder.

There was justification for American confidence tonight, in the crushing victories scored by the Johnston-Chandler and Williams - Richards teams. The Californians completely overwhelmed Neil Sullivan and Fritz Mercur, a combination of present and past Lehigh university net stars.

Richards and Williams also scored decisively over Alex Gravem of Chicago and Harry R. Guild. Boston, 6-3, 6-1, 6-3.

Cochet and Brugnon were swept off their feet by a syclonic attack by Arnold W. Jones and W. W. Ingraham of Providence, R. I., in the first set of their match and it was only by daring and spectacular rushes to the net that the Frenchmen were able to stem the tide with a four set victory at 1-6, 6-2, 6-3, 7-5.

Borotra and LaCoste won from John Barr and Wilmer Allison of Texas. 6-3, 6-1, 7-5.

LUCY HURTS SHOULDER

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 31.—San Antonio overcame a one-run lead in eighth inning today with a four-run rally and captured the deciding game of the series with Wichita Falls by a 7 to 4 score.

A combination of three hits, an error, a wild pitch and a tumble by Lamb while chasing a fly ball accounted for the Bears' victory upheaval. Phipps started the drive with a double to left and was safe at third a moment later when Benton dropped Hodge's throw on Bodie's bounder to the box. Good followed with a single to right, scoring Phipps and sending Bodie to third. Rabbitt ran for Bodie and was thrown out at the plate on an attempted squeeze play with Ciglin on the bunting end. Good went to second and Siglin was safe at first on fielder's choice. Segrist hoisted out to left, but Wirts was credited with a triple on a hit to right when Lamb fell down while going after the catch. Good and Siglin scored. Lamb was taken from the game with an injured shoulder, Williams replaced him. The Spudder right fielder has been having tough luck here. He came up with a sprained ankle the other day. Wirts came home with the final run on a wild pitch.

Wichita Scores First.

The Spudders broke the ice in the second inning, a walk to Benton, a single to Fitzgerald and a sacrifice fly by DeFate scoring a run.

The Bears forged ahead temporarily in the third, scoring two runs, on four hits and an error.

Both clubs scored in the fifth. Turgeon hit a homer for the Wichita Falls run. Singles by Flashkamper and Phipps with Golvin's sacrifice accounted for the Bear tally.

A double by Fitzgerald with sacrifices by DeFate and Lapan gave Wichita Falls a run in the sixth and tied the score. The Spudders came back in the seventh and scored another. LaFayette opened with a single to right. He was forced at second by Turgeon. Jenkins walked. Lamb grounded out to first unassisted and Benton singled through the box, scoring Turgeon. Fitzgerald fouled out to right.

The Wichita Falls team left for Beaumont and a two-day stand. San Antonio entertains Dallas here Wednesday.

Gorman Travels Many Miles to Meet Mantell

Jackie Gorman has done quite a bit of traveling for a match with Dutch Mantell. He made several trips to Amarillo and approached the came to Wichita Falls twice rugged one first hand for a battle. He when Mantell was on the card and tried to force him into a bout. Then Sunday he jumped in his car and drove to San Angelo, saying just before he departed:

"Try just once more and see if you can't get that guy to meet me."

Meantime, the Peek-Komonoff card originally billed fell through. Matchmaker Alec B. Ross "tried once more" with Mantell, asking him to come down and fill up the gap in the wrestling program as well as "clear his name" as regards the Gorman matter. The Dutchman in exasperation pulled the unexpected by okehing the match and declaring he would arrive in Wichita Falls Wednesday.

So Gorman no sooner lands in San Angelo than he must turn right around and come back again, all to meet the boisterous foe he has pursued for nearly five months. If Jack could be paid per mile for his match he'd become a wealthy man. And the dopesters have it Mantell, incidently who still yaps for police protection, will take Gorman to a rough and ready lacing, notwithstanding the fact Gorman gave Mantell a terrific drubbing last year in Plainview.

Gorman is expected in the city today.

Wild Bill Kendall, Yaqui Joe's opponent in a return match on the same card Thursday night, is due here today, also. His match is to be a finish affair with the Indian picked as the favorite regardless of the defeat of Kendall registered over the Redman here several weeks ago.

Get Ready To Pay Off, Boys! Hornsby's Gang Has Started Playing Rough Again!

THE LAST ROUND
Wherein a Goliath Scoffs at a David

BY NORMAN E. BROWN.

Jess Willard's reign as heavyweight champion of the world was a very unsatisfactory one. First of all the game seemed to hold no lure for him. He had made money while fighting the other "hopes" and had topped off that modest fortune with the big purse he received at Havana.

Besides that, who was there that could give him a battle?

Frank Moran, big blonde Pittsburgh mauler whose "Mary Ann" punch was his main stock in trade, was signed to fight Willard in a 10-round no-decision battle in New York the following March. The bout was a poor one, however. In August of that same year Willard fought Soldier Kearns an exhibition at Plattsburg. He was idle all of 1917 and the following year had but two fights. Both of these were in July. Both were exhibition bouts, 10 rounds, one against Jim Golden in Ft. Riley, Kan., and the other against Tim Logan in Chester, Pa.

In the meantime a young, strong shouldered, trim waisted young man had broken into the fight game out west mainly to furnish himself with money. He took life lightly, finding it hard, with his youth, vitality and desire to wander, to settle down.

Wanders East Alone.

He had started fighting in 1915. His success against coast boxers prompted him to drift to New York. He failed to attract much attention there, and what was worse, failed to collect any worth-while purses. He was discouraged when he went back to the Pacific coast—there to meet Jack Kearns, who became his manager.

Under Kearns direction Jack began to take fighting seriously. Kearns matched him cleverly and bit by bit began to draw attention toward him.

Kearns took Dempsey east. On the way they left a trail of cold and stark heavyweights. With Rickard's help Dempsey and Kearns waged an intensified campaign to put Jack over as the leading contender for Willard's crown. The task became easier as he piled up knockouts over Porky Flynn, Homer Smith, Bill Brennan, Arthur Pelky and others. Then Fred Fulton, tall Minnesota plasterer, and a champion in ring appearance at least, was selected to check Dempsey—or make him. Fulton made him, involuntarily. Dempsey, at the first gong, rushed to Fulton's corner and beat him down under a fusilade of lefts and rights in just 27 seconds.

This victory came a short time after Willard had finally expressed a willingness to risk his crown, but against Fulton rather than Dempsey. The bout, therefore, practically forced Willard to meet Dempsey.

Willard went into the ring supremely confident of victory. He dreaded training and was cocksure enough to believe that he did not need to train hard for Dempsey. Road work bored him so he did but little of that. He carried 15 or 20 pounds excess fat into the ring with him—some of it around his tummy of course.

Into that soft flesh Dempsey drove his right less than a minute after the two squared away in the ring. As Willard drew his hands down to protect himself Dempsey stretched out as a tiger springs and drove his left to Willard's cheek. The big hulk went down like a poled steer. The side of his face had been cut open.

He seemed beaten in that first round but weathered it through despite the fact that he was sent to the floor seven times.

In the second, though still dazed, he rocked Dempsey with one of his dead-arm rights to the jaw but had not the strength left to carry through his attack. The third round is recited in detail nearby. Willard did not go out for the fourth. And I for one believe he showed judgment. No one can say, after the beating he took, that he was yellow.

How Giant Willard Went to Defeat

Third Round—Dempsey sprang at the helpless champion with tigerish ferocity at the call to battle for the third round and plied him with a succession of jaw breaking uppercuts that brought the blood sputtering from the champion's mouth. Willard tottered about the ring, his face in a pitiful condition, covered with blood and bruises, while his great stomach rose and fell like the billows on Maumee Bay. This was conclusive proof that the champion's wind was not in good condition.

Following the uppercuts Dempsey hooked his left to the face, driving the champion about the ring in a helpless condition. Once again the challenger's heavy exertions told on him and he sparred for time, which was heartily appreciated by the champion.

Just before the minute's rest had elapsed Jack Hemple, one of Jess's seconds, tossed a towel from the champion's corner into the ring as an open confession that Willard could fight no more and that Jack Dempsey was the new heavyweight champion of the world.

As the towel fluttered down into the center of the ring there was a great roar of voices all over the mammoth arena acclaiming the new pugilistic title holder.

One woman enthusiast managed to reach the new champion's corner and imprinted a vigorous kiss on the champion's cheek. The conqueror and conquered finally left the ring for their dressing rooms, the smiling Dempsey riding the shoulders of his enthusiastic admirers and the sad mutilated Willard walking with the assistance of his faithful trainers.

Reese's Grid Outlook At Electra None Too Good

Coach Reese has been putting his gristers through light workouts the past week in preparation for the 1926 grid season. He has been drilling the boys only on passing and punting but the workouts will grow stiffer as the season goes on.

Reese faces quite a few serious problems in building up a team. He is forced to use much raw material which cannot replace the lost stars. Pug Sanderlin, captain of the 1925 team, will be badly missed on one of the ends. Mike Brown will be back to hold down one of the ends but thus far, Reese has not found a man capable of filling Sanderlin's shoes.

Buzzy Smith and Brewer Smith, both guards, will be hard to replace in the line. Clayton Avens, tackle, Mike Brown, end and Roy Coolidge center; are the three letter men in the line who will return. Jonnie Lebus is the only backfield regular on deck. Rees will lose three backfield regulars from the 1925 squad but they will not be missed as badly as the linesmen as Rees has men to replace them. The three backfield men who will not be back are John Louie Wright, Vincent Trammel and Bob Moore. Louis Kent will probably be one of the halfbacks and Gerald Gillum the fullback.

Gillum probably will be called upon to do most of the toe work, but if he fails Kent will be given a trial. Carnahan will be expected to fill the other halfback position.

Carnahan is a good passer and Reese probably will work up many pass formations and use Carney on the hurling end. Joe Moore, last year with Denison, is expected to help the Tigers out.

Lendon Smith, Harry Preston, Clenton Waters and Tracy Bell loom as potential regulars.

CINCY BRIGADE LOSES

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 31.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals replaced the Pittsburgh Pirates as leaders in the National league pennant race by winning both games of a double header today, 6 to 1 and 2 to 1, from the world champions while Cincinnati was losing to Chicago. Hornsby's men thereby gained a three-point advantage over Cincinnati with Pittsburgh one point further back.

Sotheron Allows 3 Hits.

Allan Sothoron held the Pirates to three hits in the final game and struck out six men. It was the first complete game he has pitched this season. The contest was unusual in that there were no extra base hits.

The Cardinals bunched hits in the seventh inning for their two runs and knocked Morrison out of the box. Singles by Hafey, O'Farrell and Thevenow, combined with a walk and a sacrifice, brought in the scores.

Pittsburgh's home run was brought in in the fourth when Rhyne singled Cuyler bunted and Barnhart walked, filling the bases, Grantham sacrificed, scoring Rhyne.

Wee Williams Sherdel, the little Cardinal lefthander with the tantalizing slow ball, held the Pirates to seven hits in the first game while Lee Meadows, formerly a Cardinal and now one of the aces of the Pirate staff, was slammed to all parts of the park. Hornsby's men collected a dozen safeties including two home runs and a double, during the seven innings the bespectacled right handed worked.

Bell Homers.

Two singles and an error by Rhyne gave the Cardinals a run in the second inning. Singles by Douthit and Southworth and a home run by Bell added three more in the third. Hafey hit a home run in the sixth and the Cardinals final run came in the seventh on singles by Bottomley, Bell and Hafey.

Cuyler hit a home run in the fourth for the Pirates' one score.

The paid attendance was announced as 2,279, bringing the total for the three days of the series to 88,779 paid admissions. A threat of rain held down the crowd.

CUBS JOLT REDS, 1-0

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Chicago gave Cincinnati's pennant aspirations a jolt today by shutting out the Reds, 1 to 0, in the final game of the series, which was won two games to one by the Cubs. Cooney's double in the ninth inning, followed by Gonzales' single broke up a pitching duel between Jones and May. Only two hits were made off Jones while May was touched for nine and was in trouble several times, but managed to tighten up and strike out his opponents in the pinches.

My Favorite Stories

FIXING THE BLAME AT ITS SOURCE

This little story has one merit, at least. Of my own personal knowledge I can testify that it is true.

A tired business man in New York, coming home after a particularly enervating day, had occasion, or thought he had, to speak sharp words of reproof to his 8-year-old son. He wound up by sending the youngster to bed without any supper.

That night, stealing into the youngster's room to se whether he had fallen asleep, his mother found him wide awek and very scornful of her advances.

"Why, Jackie," she said, "you shouldn't be surly toward me just because your father scolded you. I'm not to blame."

"Yes, you are too!" stated Jackie. "You married the big stiff, and now I got to stand for him!"

INDICTMENTS ATTACKED.

Sinclair and Doheny Carry Fight to Appeals Court.

WAHINGTON, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Indictments pending here against Harry F. Sinclair and W. L. Doheny, oil operators, and Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, growing out of the naval oil leases were attacked as invalid today in briefs filed on behalf of the men in the District of Columbia court of appeals.

Frank J. Hogan, acting for Doheny, said the indictment of his client was based on the erroneous assumption that President Harding had the power to transfer administration of the naval oil reserves from the navy to the interior department and therefore had no basis.

SO THAT'S THE REASON!

Modern Youth Merely Endeavoring to Live Up to Its Reputation.

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—(AP)—A desire to be shocking prompts young girls to smoke and drink, Mrs. Alfreda J. Howell of New York, special counsellor to high school girls said today in an address before the Illinois vigilance association. The custom of "petting" which she traced to modern literature and the movies is more dangerous, she said. "Young people merely are trying to live up to their reputations."

Latest News of the Markets

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Unexpected strength and activity developed in today's stock market which was featured by a series of remarkable buying demonstrations in railroad shares, several of which touched the highest price ever recorded. Industrials, which had been dull and irregular in the early trading, also bounded upward at the close under the leadership of such recent favorites as U. S. Steel common and General Motors.

Bear traders who had sold stocks heavily during the past week or two on the theory that money rates would stiffen and price react, were caught unawares and hastened to cover as pools began to bid up stocks in all sections of the list. Labor day week is traditionally a period of quiet and indecisive markets but this week is likely to prove an exception, judging by today's performance.

Except for the publication of another batch of earnings statements, bearing stricking testimony to the current prosperity of companies in widely varied lines of industry, there was nothing in the day's news to account for the sudden outburst of bullish enthusiasm. Predictions of higher call money failed to materialize the official rate holding at 5 per cent all day with plenty of funds available despite the calling of about $10,000,000 in loans.

The combined net operating income of the first 80 railroads to report breaking total of $122,000,000 for July as against an earlier estimate of $110,000,000. The average of 20 leading railroad shares touched the highest level since 1913. Atchison was again the outstanding individual performer, soaring over five points to a new high record for all time at 160⅝, as against a low of 122 earlier in the year. Other issues in that group to break through th eyear's previous high prices, some of them to the highest quotations in 20 years were Chesapeake and Ohio common and preferred, Illinois Central common and preferred, Delaware and Hudson, Missouri Pacific, Southern railway, Canadian Pacific, Norfolk and Western, Rock Island and Chicago Great Western preferred the net gains ranging from fractions to nearly five points.

U. S. Steel common selling ex-dividend 1¾, more than made up the quarterly payment, closing at 150½, the day's high. General Motors also closed more than two points higher at 210. The advance in the oils was slowed up by the announcement of a cut in gulf coast crude prices by the Humble company, but new high prices for the year were attained by Phillips Petroleum, Texas company and Standard Oil of California. Buying of the petroleum shares was stimulated by favorable merger and dividend reports involving some of the large independent companies.

Nearly a score other issues also broke through to new 1926 maximum prices, the list including such widely diversified shares as Abitibi Power, Adams Express, Amalgamated Leather, Butterick Publishing, Congoleum, Commercial Solvents "B," Hartman corporation, R. M. Macy, Union Tank Car and Thompson's restaurants.

Time money rates were unchanged. Prime commercial paper was firmer being quoted at 4¼ to 4⅜, instead of 4¼ to 4½.

Renewed strength of French francs, which ruled five points higher around 293 cents, the highest quotation since the Poincare government took office featured the firm foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held steady at $4.84¾ and most of the continental rates improved slightly with the exception of Spanish pesetas which rallied 10 points to 15.23 cents.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 31.—(AP)—The cotton market was at times quite active today and at other times comparative quiet. While the opening showed indications of a reactionary trend and market firmed up owing to unfavorable accounts of the progress of the crop and insect damage. Two very bullish crop estimates also had a stimulating influence and prices soon gained 18 to 20 points from the initial lows. After a period of comparative quiet and very narrow fluctuations the market rallied again in the early afternoon ona fresh batch of unfavorable crop reports. At the highest of the afternoon prices showed recoveries of 20 to 23 points. Prices eased off a few points in the final trading and the close showed gains for the day of 15 to 21 points.

Three private crop reports gave condition averages ranging from 58.6 and 62.1 and crop estimates from 14,380,000 to 14,650,000 bales.

Liverpool cables in better than due but first trades here showed two points down to two points up. October soon traded at 17.70 and December at 17.86. These were the lows of the day. The rally which promptly followed the slight opening decline carried October up to 17.88, December to 17.86 and January to 17.82, or 18 to 20 points above the opening lows.

After a period of narrow fluctuations the market had another rally during the afternoon which carried October to 17.90, December to 17.89 and January to 17.86 or 20 to 23 points above the early lows. The close was a trifle off from the best.

Exports for the day totaled 28,856 bales.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(AP)—The cotton market was steadier today on reduced crop estimates and less favorable weather reports. December contracts which had sold off to 17.47 on the decline early yesterday advanced to 17.95 in today's late trading and closed at 17.93, the general market closing steady at net advances of 23 to 27 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of three to eight points in response to relatively firm Liverpool cables, reiterated reports of declining Egyptian crop prospects, and prospects for showers in some parts of the south. Buying was stimulated to some extent by publication of a private report placing the condition of the crop at 58.6 and the indicated yield at 14,380,000 bales compared with the government's mid-August indication of 15,248,000 bales.

The market met a good deal of realising as prices approached the 18-cent level and was absorbed on reactions of eight or nine points during the day. Prices firmed up again later on detailed weather reports showing rains in Oklahoma and the prospect for further showers in that section. A little trade buying as well as covering was reported on the late advances, and there appeared to be some rebuying by traders who had taken profits on long cotton toward the end of last week.

October sold up to 17.90 and January to 18.00 in late trading net advances of 18 to 25 points on the general list. The close was within a point or two of the best.

Three private end-August crop reports gave figures on the indicated yield ranging from 14,380,000 up to 14,650,000 bales and averaging about 14,540,000. These figures were regarded as confirming recent reports of deteriorating crop prospects and probably brought in some covering in anticipation of a low crop figure from the government next Wednesday.

Private cable advices from Alexandria said the condition of cotton plants was unsatisfactory and the outlook for the crop of Sakellaridis, had been damaged 20 per cent.

Exports today 28,856, making 303,404 so far this season. Port receipts 59,146; U. S. port stocks 669,113.

Worsted wools are getting calls from a few mills that have not been very active factors in the wood market. This new edmand is usually for a moderate volume, but members of the wool trade consider the movement a healthy sign.

NOBLE JR., NEW MOVIE HEAD

Son of Wichitan Takes Charge of Theatres In City

A change in the management of the Dent theatres in Wichita Falls, comprising the Strand, Olympic, Majestic, Palace and Mission shows whereby John Paxton, former manager, goes to El Paso and T. B. Noble, Jr., formerly of that city comes back to Wichita Falls, was made public Tuesday afternoon. T. B. Noble, Jr., a former resident of Wichita Falls and son of T. B. Noble, one of the city's best known business men arrived Monday afternoon to assume his new post, taking charge immediately.

Mr. Noble in 1919, operated with his father the old Empress theatre on Indiana avenue, selling that late in that year, and after a short period entering the services of the Southern Enterprises, working for that company in Galveston, Oklahoma City, Muskogee, Beaumont and Palestine. Three years ago he became connected with the Dent theatres, serving as manager at Corsicana, Sherman, Tyler, and last, since November, 1925, at El Paso.

He stated Tuesday night that there would probably be no change in the personnel or policy of the organization here.

Noble declared that he was glad to get back to Wichita Falls. "It has been six years since I left," he remarked. Mrs. Noble will arrive from El Paso in about two weeks.

Bigamy Charge Filed in Court

Charges of bigamy were filed by the district attorney Tuesday naming Eldon Gaskins of this city, who was immediately arrested and bond set at $1,000. The complaint against Gaskins was made by Myrtle Gaskins, his wife by a marriage in 1924. Gaskins filed a divorce suit in November, 1924, seeking a dissolution of the marriage bond between them, alleging infidelity, but this, she told the district attorney Tuesday, has never been acted upon by the court. Gaskins, she charged, married again a month or so ago.

Gaskins is under three indictments in the state courts charging violation of the prohibition laws. Gaskins was also charged Tuesday with theft of property of value over $50 by conversion, complaint being made by W. L. Kaneaster.

Key Man In Case Is Dead

CLEVELAND, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Investigation into the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton, Ohio, publisher, took a new turn today, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer, with the report that new evidence which points to the murder of Patrick Eugene McDermott, missing "key man" of the investigation, has been uncovered.

It was said that statements of a woman living in a town near Canton made to authorities indicates that McDermott was murdered July 28 and that his body was shipped to New York in a trunk.

The clue, uncovered it was said through tracing McDermott's movements following the Mellet murder, led deeper into the underworld which has figured in the investigation from the start and implicated the unknown "higher ups" who, investigators feel, were responsible for the plot against the crusading publisher.

According to the story said to have been told by the woman, two shots were fired in a house adjoining her's on the night of July 28. Later, she is said to have told authorities, a truck was driven to the house and a heavy trunk was taken to a railroad station. Investigation has revealed, it was said, that a trunk was sent to New York on that date and statements of the man living in the house in which the shooting is said to have occurred that his sister went to New York and that the trunk contained her clothing have been proved untrue.

Cleveland authorities, investigating McDermott's movements, have redoubled their search for Mrs. Catherine Barnes, 41, in whose rooming house McDermott is believed to have lived as Charles Conner after the Mellett slaying.

Woman Slays Four Children

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Mrs. Otto Fuller today asphyxiated herself and four of her children in atwo room basement flat after her husband, Otto Fuller, had sought vainly for employment for several days. A fifth child was saved by neighbors.

Mrs. Fuller put two of the children in one bed and placed three more in bed in another connecting room. She stuffed the doors and crevices in both rooms with rags and locked the windows. Then she turned on the gas in both rooms and lay down on one of the beds to die.

Neighbors smelled the escaping fumes and called the police. When they arrived four of the children were dead. Mrs. Fuller and the fifth child, Winifred, 11, were still alive. They were taken to a hospital where the mother died.

The Fullers were saddled with debts, neighbors said. They were unable to pay the rent on their tiny apartment. Fuller was looking for work today when the tragedy occurred.

(CITATION BY PUBLICATION.
The State of Texas. To the Sheriff or any Constable of Wichita County: Greeting:

You are hereby commanded to summon Marnie Snyman by making publication of this citation once each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your county, to appear at the next regular term of the 78th District court of Wichita County, to be holden at the Court House thereof in Wichita Falls, on the 1st Monday in September A. D. 1926 the same being the 6th day of September A. D. 1926. Then and there to answer a petition filed in said court on the 7th day of August A. D. 1926 in a suit, numbered on the docket of said court No. 18715-B wherein Mrs. Eleanor Snyman is plaintiff and Marnie Snyman is defendant and said petition alleging, that plaintiff and defendant were married on September 4th, 1917, at Albuquerque, N. M., and lived together until Jan. 6, 1926, plaintiff prays for divorce upon the grounds of cruel treatment, that he abused her and used toward her rough and unseemly language which injured and wounded her feelings and rendered life miserable for her. That he frequently applied to her without cause of provocation vile language and opprobiolus epithets. That the defendant is a South African by birth, and a man who has no refinement by nature, but was rough and unthoughtful. That just a day or two before Christmas, 1925, without any cause or provocation whatsoever the defendant struck plaintiff and inflicted upon her personal violence, and on that occasion as well as on many others he violently abused her.

That there has been born to said marriage two children, a girl, Dorothy Snyman, about 7 years of age, and a boy, Jack Snyman, about 5 years of age. That about Jan. 8, 1926, the defendant took said children and fled with them from the State of Texas to some place unknown to plantiff, and that she has not since seen or heard from her said children. That said conduct on the part of the defendant has resulted in the greatest suffering to her and since she does not know and can not find out where her children are she has suffered great agony.

Herein fail not, but have before said court at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ with your return thereon showing how you executed the same.

Given under my hand and the seal of said court at office in Wichita Falls, Texas, this the 7th day of August A. D. 1926.

Leaman Gratified With Results Obtained in One-Day Drive

With only one day's energetic effort and little previous preparation the local committee appointed to conduct the drive for new memberships to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, turned in a total of 421 new memberships at 6 o'clock yesterday evening when the drive closed. The committee had aimed at the 500 mark and would no doubt have gone far above that mark had they not encountered much trouble in not being able to locate their men. Many business men are out of the city just now and hundreds of likely prospects were not interviewed in the matter.

Ray Leeman, assistant manager of the west Texas body, who conducted the drive, was highly gratified at the results obtained and he received the assurance that many more new members would be added by the time the convention opens here next year. The memberships are $10 each and there is hardly a business man in the city who will refuse to take a membership when interviewed in the matter.

The local chamber of commerce assisted Mr. Leeman in making the drive and helped a great deal in getting committees together for the work. Wichita Falls will soon be next to Fort Worth in point of membership for this city to be the leading city within the organization by the time of the convention here.

Swanson "Tried" By Lodge Court

The first of a series of frolics planned for the season by the Odd Fellows and other branches of the order was held Monday night at the hall when a mock trial was the principal feature of the entertainment, F. G. Swanson, local attorney, was on trial because of his unmarried state.

H. J. Bruce was judge; Judge B. D. Sartin was in charge of the prosecution and others taking part included Arthur Stips, Dr Pollard, Judge P. A. Martin, Mike Newman, Dr. L. O. Parnell, Judge J. W. Akin, Judge J. R. Ogle and E. F. Bohmfalk.

Joel H. MacGregor sang a group of Scotch songs with piano accompaniment by J. S. Pitman.

Announcement was made that on September 25 the Odd Fellows expect to have a down town parade and go to a point on the Seymour road where the encampment branch, by a special dispensation will put on all three degrees in the same evening. Barbecue will be served to members and visitors. Several hundred are expected from Oklahoma and adjoining towns and communities.

The Canton branch will hold their ceremonial early in October, it was said.

Bradley Speaks Before Ad Club

An opportunity for success awaiting the young man or woman entering the business world is in the field of advertising, T. A. Bradley, advertising manager of Perkins-Timberlake department store, told members of the Advertising club Tuesday in the regular meeting at the Kemp. Talent, study and resourcefulness are necessary for those entering the field of advertising, the speaker said.

The profession is still young and is yet to be developed, Mr. Bradley said. He mentioned as an especially attractive field for women department store advertising where women do 90 per cent of the buying.

A report of his recent trip to New York, Philadelphia and other eastern cities was made by Claude Miller. He attended the twenty-second convention of the Associated Advertising clubs of the world as a delegate from the Wichita Falls club, and gave a detailed report.

Enertainment was furnished by Misses Helen Willgus and Mildred Schaefer who played ukelele accompaniment for several vocal selections including "Elnah," "How Many Times" and "Paddling Madeline Home."

Short talks were made by Alva Willgus and W. S. Abbott who discussed possibilities of helping young men and young women to decide on a business or profession.

Checks Sent Out By Southwestern

Southwestern Power and Light company sent thousands of checks to local people through the mail today in payment of the regular quarterly dividend on its preferred stock. This payment of dividends demonstrates again the worth of the investment service given to the residents of this state by the company.

Some years ago it was no easy matter for a resident of this section to find a reliable stock in which to invest his funds. Part ownership of the larger, prosperous companies was usually granted only to those in the financial centers.

An indication of the value of preferred stock of Southwestern Power & Light company to those who have become stockholders is given by its dividend record. Southwestern Power & Light company has paid dividends on its preferred stock regularly and promptly since the stock was first sold to the public over 13 years ago.

Sutton Here For Bridge Conference

L. G. Sutton, assistant attorney general of Texas will arrive in this city today from Austin to be in conference with Attorney W. F. Fred Weeks concerning briefs for litigation in the Red river free bridge injunction. The case is now on appeal before the court of civil appeals in Austin following the decision given by Judge George Calhoun in the Travis county district court. An injunction restraining the state highway commission from expenditure on construction of the bridge near Burkburnett.

The case will probably come before a higher court in November, it was said. The brief in the case has been prepared. Mr. Weeks said and Mr. Sutton will appear in the case and confer with him concerning its presentation before the appellate court.

SCHOOLS READY FOR THE BELL

Buildings In City System Renovated And Put In Condition

Schools are waiting for the bells to ring, W. W. Brown, secretary of the school board, said yesterday in speaking of the opening of the public schools of Wichita Falls on September 13. Buildings have been renovated and remodeled during the summer months and everything is ready for the fall session starting Monday morning, September 6, at 9 o'clock.

Floors have been oiled in all the buildings along with other work; desks are in good order; Carrigan school has had four additional rooms built during the summer; Alamo has had an addition of a combination auditorium and cafeteria; arrangements for a cefeteria annex has been made at San Jacinto school, the secretary said.

Hunt Reports To Real Estate Men

Plans for acquiring a street flusher are well under way and it is expected to be on the streets within a short time, according to a report made to the Wichita Falls Real Estate board Tuesday at noon by Street Commissioner J. W. Hunt. The street force has been doubled in order to make a cleaner Wichita Falls, and the force will be tripled if necessary, Mr. Hunt told the realtors.

The flusher which is to be used here will cleanse a thirty-foot street at one drive, although two drives and possibly three will have to be made for some of them.

Leaman Speaks.

Ray Leaman, assistant manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, spoke briefly on the work of the organization in advertising west Texas. "In the past five years more people have gone on the land, put their hands to the plow, built a house, raising cottle, pigs and chickens in west Texas than they have in Florida or California.

"The citizens are not boomers. My belief is that the eyes of America are on this great section of ours for men to come in and fight nature, to work with nature and build them a place in the sun."

Mora C. Clark was the chief speaker before the board and he told of the possibilities of making the Wichita irrigated valley one of the greatest pecan producing section of the country.

He corrected an erroneous idea that a majority of people believe that there is only one kind of pecan, the native tree that grows in the forest and along the banks of creeks and rivers. Mr. Clark pointed out that the high grade, paper shell pecan, a much larger nut than the ordinary native fruit, has been developed from fifteen trees selected from a million in Texas.

W. S. Curlee, general chairman arrangements for the state convention of realtors which meets here the latter part of September, asked that all committees begin work on preparation for the visitors who are to come.

A. L. Huey, president, was in charge of the meeting.

A diversion from the regular program was enjoyed when little Miss Willa Virginia Engle, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Ingle, sang a group of popular songs with piano accompaniment by her mother. She sang "Kentucky's Way of Saying Good Morning," "Always," and "Moonlight and Roses."
