TEXAS TEACHERS WANT BAN ON CIGARETTE

GULF PIPE LINE IS FIRST TO PAY SCHOOL TAXES

Citiens Are Asked to Pay Now and Assist in Meeting Salary Needs.

A check for $3,000 was received by the Ranger school district yesterday from the Gulf Pipe Line company, in payment of the company's school taxes for this year. The company declined to take advantage of the full time allowed them by law for the payment of the tax, in order to assist the school district in meetin this month's payroll. City Tax Assessor Ringold urges that all Ranger citizens who can possibly do so, follow the lead of the pipe line company in making early payment of the school taxes.

Letters are being sent out by the tax assessor to officials of the Chamber of Commerce, Retail Merchants' association, the 1920 club and other civic organizations, appealing to them to assist in every way possible in securing early payments of the school tax. The letter explains the urgency of the appeal as follows:

Tax Assessor's Appeal.

"I am appealing to you on a matter of civic importance and ask that you encourage every citizen of Ranger who possibly can to pay his school tax at once."

"Nothing is more important to the building and good morals of a community than good schools."

"You cannot have schools without funds. Some of the men who have heretofore pledged their private property for the benefit of the Ranger schools have reached their limit. It is now up to every citizen of this community to do his or her part. The teachers must be paid. You cannot expect them to work without pay, nor can you expect them to give their very best to the schools if they are working on half pay."

"Let's pull together and keep Ranger in the lead of our sister cities."

CARTER'S WELL ON LANGFORD STARTS THINGS

Half a Dozen Others Follow His Successful Completion in Shallow Pay.

Although lack of water continues to hold up the operations which all oil men say is coming with rain, there is one spot in the Ranger territory which is showing a fair amount of activity.

That is out to the west, where Barney Carter started things with his Langford No. 1. Several other strings are operating in his footsteps, in that shallow pay district.

Carter himself, it is understood, will drill a second well.

The States is offsetting his No. 1.

George Beggs is putting down a well near by.

The Sinclair has rigs up on three locations, Nos. 4 and 5 on the Davis and the Earnest No. 10, in the same general territory. It is said that successful completions in any of these wells will call for other offsets.

Operations in other sections are virtually at a standstill due to lack of water.

PHILADELPHIA'S ELITE MIXED UP IN RUM EXPOSE

By Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 26.—Further investigation made today in connection with the raiding yesterday of an apparently deserted warehouse by prohibition agents revealed the trail of an alleged illegal sale of intoxicants led to the doors of well-known clubs, certain hotels and exclusive residences.

Frank Gold, alleged by government agents to be connected with the raided place, is under bail for further hearnig by a United States commissioner.

While federal agents were raiding the place, they answered the ring of the telephone and received orders for delivery of choice intoxicants. No names have been revealed by the government agents but they promise interesting developments.

Thumb Prints Figure in Fatty's Trial

MISS RAPPE HAD TORN GARMENTS AT OTHER TIMES

Defense Announces Its Evidence Will Be Presented Monday.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 26.—The defense is to close its taking of evidence in the Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle case next Monday, it was announced today when court adjourned over the week-end. It was not announced whether Arbuckle would take the stand.

Finger prints bulked large in today's proceedings. The prints in question were found on doors of rooms in the hotel St. Francis, where Arbuckle gave the party last September at which Virginia Rappe is said to have received fatal injuries at the comedian's hands and as a result of which he is on trial.

Ignatious H. McCarthy, former investigator for the federal department of labor, was called as a finger print expert by the defense to controvert testimony offered by E. O. Heinrich of the University of California, a consulting criminologist. Henrich had sworn that thumb prints on the door of the room when Miss Rappe was found injured were those of the defendant and that these and others indicated a struggle between Arbuckle and Miss Rappe.

McCarty's qualifications as an expert were under fire from the prosecution when court adjourned. He admitted he had never testified as an expert before.

Among other witnesses, Philo McCullough, a motion picture actor of Hollywood, and Mrs. Florence Bates of Santa Anna, Cal., friends of Miss Rappe, both testified they had seen Miss Rappe double up and tear at her clothing.

According to previous evidence, Miss Rappe did this at the Arbuckle party.

SAYS MARINES STOPPED TEXAS MAIL ROBBERY

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Marine guards recently frustrated a planned train holdup and mail robbery in Texas, Assistant Postmaster General O'Shaughnessy announced today. He did not reveal the details but spoke of the case in announcing the success of the mail guard plan.

O'Shaughnessy also said the marines had been asked for after department agents had learned that raids throughout the country on the mails were being planned this winter and had already more than justified their presence. Besides the Texas case, similar plans at other places were frustrated and generally robbery of the mails has dropped noticeably, Mr. O'Shaughnessy said. There was evidence, he said, that some of the robberies had been carefully planned on a big scale, as was that recently in New York.

Relative to the protest of the governor of Wisconsin against the right of the marines to fire at persons beating their way on trains, O'Shaughnessy said that was a matter entirely within the hands of the navy department, as the postoffice department had no authority over the marines and simply designated what trains and tracks it desired guarded.

LACK OF DEEP PLOWING HELD FLOOD CAUSE

Water Which Swept San Antonio Could Have Been Held in Land.

By Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Nov. 26.—If the farmers living in the basin of the Olmos creek had plowed their land deep before the rain in September that flooded the business district of San Antonio, they would have stored in the ground nearly one-third of the water that fell, which would have gone a long way toward insuring them a crop for 1922 and would have lessened by practically one-third the amount of water which came down the Olmos creek, according to H. M. Madison, farm agent for the San Antonio & Aransas Pass railroad. Seventeen inches of rain fell in the Olmos valley Sept. 8 and 9, causing the San Antonio river to flood large areas of the business and residence districts and causing a damage estimated at $4,000,000.

Mr. Madison a few years ago for the government geological survey made a very careful and exhaustive study of the soils in this section during which time he studied the logs of over 750 wells.

"A hard compact soil will not absorb an inch of water during a heavy rain," said Mr. Madison, "but a soil that has been loosely plowed will absorb from four to seven inches of water at such a time in twenty-four hours. It has been demonstrated in many parts of the country and is an established fact that the soil itself can be made a reservoir for the storage of water which can be held in the soil by keeping the surface cultivated and used later for the production of crops.

"With a seventeen-inch rainfall in the basin of the Olmos if the land had all been plowed and put in the best condition it might have absorbed as much as seven inches, in which case the amount of water coming down the creek and into the San Antonio river would have been so greatly reduced that the flood problem would not have been nearly so serious."

RANGER HIGH'S FOOTBALL RECORD SHOWS VALUE OF GOOD TEAMWORK

Ten Victories in Eleven Starts Is Evidence That Light Team Can Win If Well Coached; What Rampagers Did and Who They Are.

When sixteen or eighteen Ranger youths turn in their football equipment tomorrow morning, they will be able to do so with glowing hearts, for they have in the last three months performed an athletic miracle.

Those same players last year were beaten by large sized scores in nearly every start. This year they smothered personal ambitions as to positions and such like, and welded themselves into a team that functioned together. Result: They have a record of which any high school could be proud—eleven games played, with only one defeat, and that by the team that was runner-up for the district championship. That was no walkaway, either.

Team work was the secret of their success; and the hustling, aggressive spirit which teamwork breeds.

Started Early.

They had a start on it early in the season, as was shown when they went to Dublin and walloped that eleven. The score was close, but the victory was an augury of more to come, and it settled the players to their task. The next week Comanche was played, and the showing was even better than the adverse score of 13-0 indicates. From that date, their game steadily improved, and they tackled all comers without breaking at any time.

This is especially noteworthy when it is considered that Ranger's team was light and in many of the games was outweighed ten to fifteen pounds per man. Neither was it a great forward passing aggregation, as are most lightweights with a winning record. No, it used its speed in dashes and plunges, and found no adversaries that could stop its running attack. It found no adversaries, especially during the latter part of the season, who would puncture the line or round the ends or forward pass consistently, as the following record proves, in the weekly games beginning Sept. 24:

The Record.

Ranger	7	Dublin	0
Ranger	0	Comanche	13
Ranger	13	Eastland	0
Ranger	7	Cisco	7
Ranger	35	Gorman	0
Ranger	62	Mingus	0
Ranger	13	Breckenridge	0
Ranger	24	Cisco	0
Ranger 2nds	19	Mingus	0
Ranger	14	Breckenridge	7
Totals	194	Totals	27

Independent Games.

Ranger 7, Thurber High School-American Legion 6.

That makes a grand total of 201 points scored by High school to 33 by all opponents.

Much of the success of the team, of course, is due to the excellent coaching and leadership it had throughout the season. Not only was there Coach Bill Hart, but throughout the season he enjoyed the assistance of H. M. Winkler of Simpson-Alexander's. Winkler, for the benefit of those who may not know, is an ex-college player of high claiber and last year was line coach at Mississippi A. & M. He worked with Hart untiringly in teaching the practical way to get results out of their efforts, and the result is seen in the precision with which the plays were executed, to the discomfiture of the physically stronger opponents.

The Players.

That is the record of a team which averaged only 143 pounds and with the exception of Dunkle, the 180-pound guard, were all near the average in size. In fact Lonsdale at the other guard was the only player exceeded 150.

To the line, composed of C. Alworth, Hubbard and Heasley at ends; Terry and Pruitt at tackles, Dunkle and Lonsdale at guard and Henshaw at center, must undeniably go most of the credit for the term's success, and this is said with all due respect to the excellent work of the backfield. There were two particular spots at which the opposition was smothered and a gain almost certain. One of these was an off-tackle brush, just outside C. Alworth. He and Terry made a splendid team at boxing the tackle and it was seldom that Huffman and Schertz failed to find a hole waiting for them at this place. The center trio, with Henshaw leading the van, also were good holemakers. As Austin Huffman put it today, "All I had to do was to follow Henshaw. and I was sure to go through." On the other wing, sturdy "Fat" Pruitt stood out like a tree against a hurircane. No play ever went over him this year. He was a rock upon which the flood beat, but that was all. Cleo Hubbard, who started the season at right end, and Bob Heasley, who moved out from the tackle position when Hubbard left school, also played consistent football and were snaggers de luxe.

So much for the line, gents. Those who saw it in action must admit it was good enough to be called "GOOD." The playing of every member delighted old football players who followed the team.

The Backfield.

As to the backfield, it got plenty of limelight. Composed of two flashy broken field runners in Schertz and Huffman, and two dependable and quick-thinking players in T. Alworth and Charlie Mills—who also had streaks of brilliancy—it functioned at all times. In fact, it was the interference put up by these latter two that made the left end runs so effective. They had the edge in that feature of the attack, Mills' accurate toe also came in handy with only two misses after touchdowns all season.

Those were the regulars. In all, there are eighteen who may receive sweaters. Among them in Zarfonetis, who filled in at both halfback and guard in dependable fashion; Hunt, who earned a first string place in the final game, after getting a late start; Ralph Getts, also of the line; Boyd Russell, in both line and backfield; Yonkers at fullback in the first Breckenridge clash and other games, and Phil Simpson, the lightest member of the squad, but who proved himself to be a clever end.

Here's the dope on the squad:

Player and class—	Age	Weight
Schertz (c) soph	18	150
Terry, senior	17	142
Huffman, soph	17	150
Lonsdale, soph	15	157
Mills, senior	18	140
C. Alworth, junior	17	138
T. Alworth, junior	17	138
Heasley, junior	17	144
Pruitt, freshman	15	143
Hubbard, senior	19	142
Henshaw, senior	18	138
Dunkle, junior	19	180
Zarofonetis, freshman	15	134
Hunt, junior	18	134
Getts, soph	17	137
Yonkers, soph	15	144
Russell, soph	17	136
Simpson, senior	16	132

At glance at the classes will show there is prospect for a strong team next year, as but three regulars, Terry, Mills and Henshaw, will be lost through graduation.

WEATHERFORD WOMAN ROBBED AND LEFT TIED

Special to the Times.

WEATHERFORD, Nov. 16.—Two unidentified men late Friday afternoon attacked Mrs. John Messer, 65, living three miles from town and after robbing her of $200 left her bound hand and foot. The goman struggled for moer than an hour against her bonds and was later found exhausted by an elderly woman of the neighborhood.

At the time the men entered the house Mrs. Messer was alone, her husband having gone to town on business. The first intimation of intended violence was when one of the men suddenly pinioned her arms from behind. Another searched her person for money and removed $200 in curency that had been pinned to an undergarment. After securing the money the men tore a sheet into strips and bound her hand and foot, Mrs. Messer stated. Her hands were drawn back until they almost touched her feet and the men made their escape leaving her screaming loudly for help. Despite her suffering, Mrs. Messer managed to drag herself toward the door of her home where her cries attracted the attention of passersby.

The money taken by the robbers represented the victim's savings from the profits of a watermelon patch which she had planted and tended herself. Officers have been furnished with a detailed description of the two men are are scouring the country for them.

By running a hundred yards in 11 4-5 seconds recently, Miss Elizabeth Lines of London, Eng., established a new record for women runners.

BIG JOBS OFTEN FOUND BY 'HELP WANTED' ROUTE

Of all the mediums available to you in locating openings for services that you can render, by far the most immediate is the "help wanted" advertisements of the daily newspapers, magazines and trade publications.

This avenue is immediate because here you know definitely that somewhere, somebody requires services that you are ready to offer, says Jacob Penn, in Leslie's Weekly.

Misled by those whose information is derived from fancy rather than from fact, many have been led to believe that good openings cannot be located through "help wanted" advertisements because, as they have been informed, good positions are not advertised.

Nothing is further from the truth. I have tested this source in my job-hunting days, and for clients and during this experience I have inserted advertisements calling for men and women of large caliber with salaries ranging from $3,000 to $25,000 per annum. But the best proof is to be found in the newspapers, magazines and trade publications. A glance any day, especially on Sunday, will convince anyone that "help wanted" advertisements are really excellent opportunities for those out of employment, or seeking to obtain better positions.

"Help wanted" advertisements for both ordinary and executive positions usually appear in the classified columns at the end of the newspaper or magazine.

When employers find it impossible to obtain the persons they desire through the classified columns, or because they want to make their wants known in a more conspicuous manner to obtain a greater number and variety of applicants that ordinarily do not read the classified advertisements they use the full run of the newspaper or magazine after the style of the ordinary display advertiser.

In special cases, where business men desire to connect with persons of special training and experience they have recourse to the "Business Opportunities" advertisements under the heading "Business Connections Desired."

A surprisingly large number of women of high social standing in Great Britain have recently applied for positions.

The majority of the women engineering students in the Kansas University are taking up courses in architectural engineering.

CALOMAL, SALTS AND PURGATIVES HARMFUL

IRRITATE MEMBRANES AND CONTRACT MUSCLES UNNECESSARILY

Many things in the medical profession that were considered all right in our grandfathers' time are not approved today. Among them are the purgatives and laxatives which cause griping pains and irritation when they act. Calomel, salts and cathartics irritate the membranes and contract the intestinal muscles, leaving the bowels in a disordered condition and hindering rather than helping nature in its work.

Ferrasal acts in nature's way, gently and smoothly. It heals and relaxes the intestines. It neutralizes the acids which cause 90 per cent of all digestion troubles, and it cleanses and purifies the whole digestive system.

Buy a box of Ferrasal from your druggist today—he will refund your money if it does not help you.

CHINESE POLICY LOOMING UP BIG AT WASHINGTON

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The problem of naval limitation has been left in background while the Far Eastern negotiations are developing step by step; the policies of the powers toward China has been advanced to a point where it may soon resume a place of predominating interest in the arms conference.

It was indicated today that both the American and British experts had virtually completed their work on details of the American reduction plan and would be ready to report to the conference early next week. The Japanese experts had no similar announcement to make, but it was assumed they would not permit themselves to be put in the position of delaying seriously the progress of the negotiations.

Ratio Only Obstacles.

The crucial point in the discussions as viewed by the American delegation at least is the 'five-five-three ratio" of capital strength which forms the basis of the American plan, and it is upon that feature that considerations of the conference are expected to center when it turns again to the naval question.

It was said authoritatively today that in the opinion of the spokesmen of the American government all questions relating to auxiliary craft are of collateral importance only and can be settled easily, once there is agreement on capital ships.

DALLAS U OFFERS BO M'MILLIN BIG MONEY TO COACH

DALLAS, Nov. 26.—Bo McMillin, quarterback of the famous Centre college eleven, will coach the Dallas university football team next year, if what is said to be the most attractive offer ever made to a youthful gridiron star is accepted. McMillin has been offered $7,000, according to officials of the university. McMillin has not been heard from. The university officials are expecting a favorable reply.

BEATTY SAYS CONFERENCE HAS ACCOMPLISHED MUCH

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 26—Admiral Earl Beatty told the Ottawa Canadian club today that "if the Washington conference were to close its doors tomorrow it would have accomplished something toward releasing the world from the burden of armament and the taxation that it involves."

He said that his very presence in Ottawa today indicated that all goes well at the conference.

"The limits imposed upon various countries under the Hughes proposal," he said, 'are not derogatory to the dignity of the great empire to which we belong," and added he was sure that "the empire on the seas will be as safe in the future as it has been in the past."

There Is Undoubtedly a Belief Prevalent in Ranger

That we kill our meat locally, because it is always fresh

—This is entirely erroneous, not only as to that belief, but also the reason. It has always been our contention, supported by all scientists, medical men and provision dealers of any experience, that meat killed under a tree, and dressed on the ground, amid dust, filth and flies, improperly washed, and hauled in a dirty wagon, is unfit for human consumption. And when sold from a peddling wagon, handled by a man continually handling his team and harness, it becomes a crime; it is a menace to public health, which, because of the freedom accorded every man in America, is allowed to go unchecked.

—Our meats are killed in the most modern plants, especially equipped for the purpose, thoroughly cleaned, GOVERNMENT INSPECTED, cooled immediately, then thoroughly chilled. They are shipped in refrigerated cars (thoroughly cleansed after each trip), and after they arrive in Ranger, placed in our own coolers, kept at an exact constant temperature until consumed. A well hung piece of meat, kept at such temperature, becomes tender and has that sweet, clean taste which can be obtained in no other way.

—We have never had a single piece of home-killed meat in our house in Ranger.

AMERICANS IN NORTH MEXICO NOT ALARMED WHEN HELD FOR RANSOM; IT'S JUST ONE WAY TO PAY 'TAXES'

By Associated Press.

EL PASO, Nov. 26.—Mexican bandits in the Parral-Jiminez mining districts are numerous, but they operate in small bands and have no chieftain with sufficient power to give much trouble. These bands of robbers and kidnappers only rob and hold for ransom Americans who have money, or who can get money. They seldom harm anybody.

This is the declaration of J. C. McDonald, an El Paso automobile salesman, who frequently goes to that district and knows a number of Americans there.

Americans are robbed in turn by these outlaw bands, Mr. McDonald declared. The bandits will rob one American one week, a different one next week and after one has been robbed he will be exempt for a year or two. Americans usually "kick in" freely, laugh about the "tax" and think little of it, Mr. McDonald said.

Few Reports Made.

Such occurences are so numerous, he said, that little report is made of them. Usually the victims are mining men and the company stands the loss and often does not report it to the American consul or the Mexican officials, according to his statement. For example, he said, the names of the five Americans who were held for 25,000 pesos were never given out. The American consulates say they do not know the names, the mining companies refused to give out the names because they did not want to be pointed out as protesting and the state officials of that country reported they were investigating, according to Mr. McDonald.

The five Americans were kidnapped on the Parral-Veta Grande road the same night he was in that vicinity. The Americans made a deal with their captors, paying 5,000 pesos, of the 25,000 pesos demanded, being accorded 80 per cent discount for cash. The Americans went back to their jobs, charged the money as overhead expenses and began to breathe the assurance that it would be a long time before their turn would come again.

"I traveled on the same road about 10 o'clock that night," said Mr. McDonald, "an hour before the bandits held the five Americans for ransom. They probably knew I was on the road and they do not molest anybody except those from whom they know they can get ready cash. They did not bother me, but were waiting for others whose turn it was to be captured. The next day I saw the Americans and spoke to one of them, a physician engaged at the Veta Grande mining camp. He told me that the bandits had a cable stretched across the road at a sharp turn and a car driven by the Americans was stopped with a crash.

"The bandits demanded 25,000 Mexican dollars as ransom and held four of the men, releasing the fifth to enable him to go to Parral for the money. The fifth man returned with 5,000 pesos and the bandits were pleased, as the money came within two hours.

Adventure With Ring.

"The doctor was wearing a ring, a keepsake. Fearing the bandits would rifle his pockets, he slipped the ring from his finger and put it in his mouth. The robbers took him as spokesman for the party and he had to drop the ring. But the bandits didn't see him, so the next morning the doctor returned and found his ring. He told me they thought little of the occurence, that it simply was their turn to pay tribute. As a formality a claim was filed with the organized government and officials reported that they were making an investigation.

"There are many American prospectors in the hills who travel in pairs and arm themselves. The bandits seldom molest them."

Mr. McDonald said he had traveled through the district a number of times and always found that as far as life was concerned the country was safe now.

Thousands Surround Memorial Hall at Opening of Conference

Charles E. Hughes. President Harding Arthur J. Balfour

Thousands of visitors to, and residents of, Washington, D. C., crowded about Memorial Continental hall on the opening day of the limitation of armaments conference to get a glimpse of the distinguished statesmen who will make history enter the famous building. The above photographs of the President, Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes, presiding officer of the conference, who startled the world by proposing that the United States, Japan and Great Britain scrap their naval building programs, and Arthur J. Balfour, head of the British delegation, were made upon their arrival at the hall.

SHORT SKIRTS, BARE KNEES NOT IMMORAL, WOMAN OFFICIAL SAYS

By Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—There'll be no regulation of skirt lengths, no ban on bare knees, no outcry against the bobbing of tresses or the parking of corsets by her employes when Miss Annie Mathews takes over on Jan. 1 the office to which she has just been elected as register of the County of New York—the richest political plum that has ever fallen into the lap of a woman in New York, if not in the entire United States.

Not that the $12,000-a-year register-elect hasn't very decided ideas on clothes and all the allied arts so precious to women. Indeed, she has spent the greater part of her forty-odd years studying the clothes problem, first as dressmaker, then a designer and finally as an importing modiste.

For Personal Liberty.

But she has even more decided ideas on the question of personal liberty.

"I am opposed to all prohibition," she said. "It is impossible to make women or men moral by legislation. The human race can be improved only by education that will make them appreciate the good and the artistic.

"If any of my young women employes ask for my advice on clothes, I shall give it. And the most important thing I will tell them is to wear something appropriate for the occasion. A woman's business attire, or house attire certainly should be simple."

Busy herself at the time receiving congratulations at her campaign headquarters, Miss Mathews' attire emphasized her formula. A plain blue serge dress, softened at the throat by a bit of embroidered linen collar. Black high shoes. No jewelry. Copper colored hair simply coiffed.

Good as Ever.

"Skirt lengths, bobbed hair, the question of corsets or none," she went on, with a twinkle from behind her pince-nex glasses, "are largely matters of taste—and of figure. All this talk about depravity among young women makes me a bit weary. I believe the young people are as good as young people ever were.

"Of course there are and always have been extremists. But—well, I don't think I will be troubled with these, for I can tell a great deal about character by the clothes one wears. Yes, even the standardized clothes of men."

Miss Mathews enters on her new job of keeping the county's deeds, mortgages and leases with but one preconceived idea—that there shall be no prejudices either for or against any of her 150 employes because they happen to be women.

LYNCH LAW 'OLD STUFF' TO CANADIAN ESKIMOS

By International News Service

EDMONTON, Alta., Nov. 25.—The "unwritten law" is not exclusively a white man's statute. A strange tale of a lynching by Eskimos on the Arctic coast has been brought down by Corporal E. N. Cornelius, recently returned from Herschel Island and Coronation Gulf.

Ahak murdered Agleutuk in Konghermust. This village lies far to the east of Fort McPherson. The murder, it is said, was in cold blood.

Ahak went off across the tundra on a hunting expedition. For months he hunted muskox and caribou. The snow was deep when he returned, with his dogsled piled high with furs and meat.

No shouts of welcome greeted him. The village folk were silent. As he strode among the huts they bent black looks upon him. Ahak knew the meaning of the reception. He went to his igloo, took off his worn hunting clothes and arrayed himself in his best garments. Then he sat down upon the skin of a Polar bear and waited.

The villagers found him sitting mute and motionless, like a statue of copper. Their leader started to make a speech. Ahak silenced him. Speeches were useless. A deerhide rope coiled outside would be more to their purpose. He stepped outside and pointed out the rope. Silently, without fuss, Kasahovi and Amokuku, strongest men of the village, placed a noose about Ahak's neck and strangled him. They left him dead on the snow at the door of his igloo.

Corporal Cornelius arrested Kasahovi and Amokuku and took them to the police barracks on Herschel Island. The two Eskimos will be brought out to civilization for trial next spring.

U. S. WILL NOT LEASE LEGION HOSPITAL TILL 1923

AUSTIN, Nov. 26—Chairman S. B. Cowell of the board of control, today announced that it would be Jan. 21, 1923, before the American Legion memorial hospital at Kerrville would be leased to the federal government. He said that recent negotiations with the federal officials had divulged the fact that the federal government would not lease the hospital until the buildings were completed.

CLAIMS SPY SWINDLED HIM WHILE INTERNED

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 26.—K. Karber, said by his accuser to be in reality Armguard Karl Graves, famous internaticnal spy and declared to have been personal secret investigator in America for the former German emperor, has been placed under arrest here and charged with obtaining money under false pretenses.

The charges were made by Dr. J. Peterson of Miami, who was interned with Karber at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., during the war, and who declares Karber obtained money from him on representation that the alien property custodian held $20,000 worth of Karber's property. Dr. Peterson says he found this to be untrue.

TOWN BOOTLEGGER IN BAD WHEN CUSTOMER BECOMES OVERJOYFUL

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—The entire community of Harvard, Ill., notified Judge Landis today that they would attend the trial of Robert Ritchie, alleged community bootlegger.

Harvard is a typical community town, with a high school, fortnightly club, community singing, and a community Christmas tree.

The town, led by Mayor Maxon, turned out to search for the bootlegger when a drunken man was seen on the main street, and with the aid of a Chicago detective, he was found. Now the whole town will aid in his prosecution.

Why Buick Valve-in-Head Motors Have More Power

Internal combustion motors are heat engines. The more heat retained in their cylinders, the more power they generate.

Water-jacketing space absorbs heat.

Buick Valve-in-Head Motors have about 20 per cent less water-jacketing space than the L Head type and about 15 per cent less than the T Head type.

That is one of the reasons why Buick Valve-in-Head motors have more power.

ON USING SCRIP.

The issuance of scrip to F. & M. bank depositors cannot fail to be beneficial to Ranger's commercial structure. While there does not appear to be as great and as insistent call for relief as that from the depositors of the Guaranty bank, there will naturally be many who need scrip as a method of using the moneys of which they are temporarily deprived. Some will need it for necessities, though perhaps not so many as in the previous closing, for the concensus of opinion is that those in and about Ranger are more nearly employed than was the case during the summer. However, there will be many who, though not hard pressed for necessities, will have to forego the customary joy of Christmas giving if scrip does not give them access to their savings. Thus the scrip plan is at once a matter of genuine community spirit and co-operation, and of good business as well. At least that element can well enter into the plans of some merchants who are able to carry the load for six or eight weeks. Others, of course, may not be in a position to do this, so it will not necessarily be a reflection upon them if they do not co-operate to the fullest extent in the scrip plan.

There was some misconception of the use of scrip last time. A lot of its holders did not understand the difficulties under which the business men labored in carrying it. Some became insulted at the restrictions governing its use. Conversely, some few business men were insulting in their attitude toward those who tendered scrip. Their manner gave the customer the impression that he was an object of charity rather than a citizen who was accepting scrip and using it in good faith, because the merchants had indorsed the plan. Business men of this latter class were few, to be sure, but they cast a tinge of distrust over the plan, with many persons.

There is no need for that to happen again. The people should understand that while nearly every merchant in town will accept it—some gladly some philosophically—there are others who will not care to handle it, for reasons of their own. And they will be within their rights in such a decision.

But in order to save embarrassment to anyone, either customer or business man, there might be a series of signs, setting for the exact stand of the house in that particular. "We Do Not Accept Scrip," one might read. It is self explanatory. Another might say, "We Accept Scrip," which would mean the proprietor could handle a moderate amount of it in exchange for necessities. Still another might go further, saying, "We Accept Scrip CHEERFULLY," printed in tall, fat, red letters. Then the customer would know the proprietor was anxious for his business. That way, everybody would be satisfied and no one's feelings would be ruffled.

In this connection, Rangerites might be reminded that the city's banking situation appears solid and worthy of support. It stands to reason that a bank which opened up after the collapse of inflated values, cannot have any very bad loans. That is something few banks, in few towns, can say, for agriculture and other interests have had losses to take, just the same as has oil. From all angles, it would appear that money is now safer in Ranger's bank than anywhere else in the country. Think it over.

MARINES NOT GOD.

With all due regard to Postmaster General Hays and his laudible efforts to insure safety of the mails, Saturday's press dispatches indicate that the matter is going a step too far.

United States marines should have no power of life and death, such as is given them by the instructions to shoot any person loitering around a mail car. They are young men, mostly, noted for a willingness to engage in aggressive action, rather than for having a judicial temperament.

Hoboes may be potential bandits, as the authorities point out, but men are not punished for what they may be, but for what they are caught doing. And that is right. There are lots of hoboes, and most of them are hoboes through no fault of their own, but because the ills of the country have forced them to it.

They have some rights left. Legally, those rights may not include the privilege of riding trains without paying fare, but actually, the practice is so common that little effort is made to stop it. Thus they may be said to have a common law right to the privilege. The mail car's position on the train makes it a desirable one to ride. It can be boarded away from the station lights. There are no officious brakemen and conductors to harry them. It is close to the engine and the cinders do not pepper one who rides atop, at least so badly as on other coaches. Therefore, hoboes ride it.

A marine is supposed to be able to protect himself and the mail, too. That is his job. But he has the better position. Let him, like any other guard of any other valuable, be on the defensive, and fight when attacked.

Especially, he should have no right to shoot men from the top of a moving train, without warning, as was done the other night between Washington and Pittsburgh. The country, whatever its sentiments as to hoboes and safety of the mails, should waste no time in letting the administration know that it does not care for martial law, with the power of life and death administered by irresponsible youths.

STEAMER HELD TILL SOLDIERS GET PASSPORTS

By Associated Press

COBLENZ, Nov. 26.—The missing suitcases containing the passports of two American soldiers who left here for Antwerp yesterday on their way home was found here this morning by the military police. The military police, who found the documents, expressed the belief that the satchel had been taken from the train by a jealous woman. The passports are being rushed to Antwerp by courier, and arrangements have been made to delay the sailing of the steamer Cantigny until the documents arrive.

SCRIPTURE

Galations 6:1-9.

Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual, restore such an one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself lest thou also be tempted.

Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ.

For if a man think himself to be something, when he is nothing, he deceiveth himself.

But let every man prove his own work, and then shall he have rejoicing in himself alone, and not in another.

For every man shall bear his own burden.

Let him that is taught in the word communicate unto him that teacheth in all good things.

Be not deceived, God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.

For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting.

And let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not.

BABE RUTH SHOWS BELGIAN WAR LEADER HOW HE BANGS 'EM OUT

General Baron Jacques, commander-in-chief of the Belgian army, did not want to leave New York until he had seen one of the city's most prominent citizens—namely, "Babe" Ruth, King of Swat. General Jacques saw the American doughboys in Belgium play baseball and became an ardent fan. When he heard that "Babe" was appearing on the vaudeville stage he asked to be presented to the Home Run King. The photo shows "Babe" showing General Jacques how he grips his bat for a circuit clout.

FRENCH FLAG IS BURNED BY ITALIAN MOB

By Associated Press

TURIN, Italy, Nov. 26.—Anti-French demonstrations, which were precipitated last night following newspaper accounts alleging harsh words were used by Premier Briand of France to Senator Shanzer, head of the Italian delegation at Washington, were continued here today, with the result that 300 troops had to be called in to restore order.

The most serious incident in connection with the demonstration occurred when the mob seized a French flag and burned it amidst hostile acclamations against France.

Thanksgiving, 1621-1921

Thanksgiving, with all of its good times, has come and gone and the celebration of the Thanksgiving of 1921 was a far different one from the first Thanksgiving, celebrated by our forefathers in 1621—300 hundred years ago.

It was in the bitter December weather of 1620 that the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock. Their prospects for the future were dreary beyond description but they began their work of construction, staunch of heart and with a courage sublime.

The passing of Thanksgiving, 1921, brings us forcibly to a realization of our many blessings, and our festivities were an expression of our appreciation of those strong men and women who made Thanksgiving possible, and whose memory 300 years has not dimmed. Ranger was thankful and Ranger people showed it in a benevolent as well as in a social way, for not only did the Thanksgiving dinner given by the Retail Merchants' association bring comfort to many homes, but there were many private donations to those less fortunate.

The social activities of the week centered around the Elks' ball given Wednesday night at the Summer Garden, the 1920 Club party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Barnes Wednesday evening, the Shrine Club smoker Wednesday evening, the football game Thursday, and a number of private parties and dinners. It was indeed a gala occasion, a Thanksgiving long to be remembered, a Thanksgiving truly typical of the American spirit, which first showed itself 300 years ago.

After the guests had arrived the president of the class announced that she had received a parcel post notice, but on opening the notice, she found that it was not for her, but for Miss Lindsey. The delivery of the package was then effected, and the gifts were brought in in a big basket and given to the honoree. Among many handsome and useful gifts that were received was a handsome bedspread, the gift of the Young Men's Sunday school class.

Auction Bridge—No. 7

"Know the leads and when to make them.
"Know the tricks and when to take them.
"Know the rules and when to break them.
"Know the laws and ne'er forsake them."

Ace is high and deuce low in the play of the cards.

You must follow suit, but holding no card of the suit led you may either trump or discard.

A no-trump declaration makes each card worth its face value, and the highest card of the suit led wins the trick.

There are two scores to be played for, trick and honor (penalties and bonuses in addition).

The trick score is credited to the side that wins more than six tricks. The honor score to the side that holds the majority of the honors.

The object of the game is to score more points than your adversaries, tricks and honors combined, by taking as many tricks as possible.

This is done by winning the rubber.

There are three ways in which tricks are taken:

1. By high cards—that is, by playing the highest card of the suit led.

2. By "ruffing" of "trumping"—that is, by playing a trump on a trump on a plain suit, when no card of the suit is held in the hand.

2. By "establishing" and "bringing in" a long suit. A suit is "established" when the highest unplayed cards of that suit are held in the hand, and these cards will take all the remaining unplayed cards of that suit. An established suit may be received on the deal, (for instance, ace, king, queen and jack, with or without other cards), or it may be necessary to force one or more high cards out before the suit is established. (For instance, if queen, jack, ten, and one or more smaller cards are held, the ace and king must be played before the suit is established).

A suit is "brought in" by taking a trick with each remaining card held of that suit (the adversaries' trumps having been exhausted).

A suit cannot be "brought in" unless it has been "established," but a suit is frequently "established" which is not "brought in." To bring in an "established' suit, the holder of it must have the lead, and the trumps against him must be exhausted.

Dummy.

As soon as the player to the left of the declarant has led, the next player to the left, the declarant's partner, shall place his cards face up on the table. The declarant then plays the hand.

Before placing his cards upon the table, the declarant's partner has all the rights of a player, but after doing so he takes no part whatever in the play, except that he has the right to:

1. Ask the declarant whether he holds any of a suit renounced.

2. Call the declarant's attention to the fact that too many or too few cards have been played to a trick.

3. Correct the claim of either adversary to a penalty to which the contestant is not entitled.

4. Call the attention to the fact that a trick has been erroneously taken by either side.

5. Participate in the discussion of any disputed question of fact after it has arisen.

6. Correct an erroneous score.

These laws for dummy are strictly enforced.

Etiquette.

Etiquette plays a most important part at the card table. To offend against etiquette is far more serious than to offend against a law. In the latter case the offender is subject to the prescribed penalties. In the former his adversaries have no redress.

In bidding, the declarations should be made in a simple manner, for example, "one spade," one no-trump," "pass," "no," "double." They should be made orally, and not by gesture.

Aside from his legitimate declaration, a player should in no way indicate the nature of his hand, or his pleasure or displeasure at a play, a bid, or a double. A player should not play a card with such emphasis as to draw attention to it.

There are many conventions and many localisms that creep into the game, but the author finds the experts use but few, and therefore none are given in these articles.

The foregoing article is somewhat in the nature of a repetition, but many players, even those who have been playing auction bridge for a long time, do not seem to understand these most important phases of the game.

Questions and Answers.

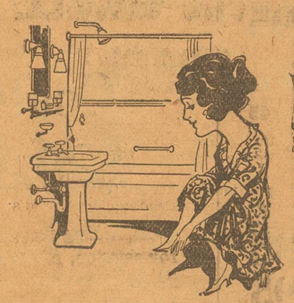

Q. In bidding, does the number of tricks or the value of tricks count? For instance, if one person bid two spades, would another have to bid three or four clubs to make a higher bid?

A. Numerically higher. Three clubs, three diamonds, or three hearts beat two spades, or even two no-trump.

Q. With the following hand should an original bid be made by the dealer?

Hearts—Queen, 10, 8, 6, 4, 2.
Clubs—King, 9, 5, 4.
Diamonds—Queen, 10.
Spades—King.

A. No bid should be made originally, because the long suit does not hold top honors nor quick tricks. On the second round, however, dealer might be justified in showing the suit.

AGE 105, THREE TIMES A WIDOW, GETS KICK OUT OF LIFE PICKING TALL SUITORS

"Why shouldn't I bob my hair like the rest of the girls? I'm only 105, and I expect to break the record of my grandmother, who lived to be 125 years of age," said Mrs. Rivka Zippe, the "youngest girl" in Newark, a resident of the Daughters of Israel home for the aged. She is so full of the joy of living and the curiosity of her sex that her companions at the home call her the "telephone." "I attribute my youth to my diet," said she. "I eat no meat and very little bread. Milk, broth and coffee are my chief foods. During the night, if I lie awake, I plan what I shall talk about the next day and how much I shall enjoy the years I still have to live. I love life—I cannot say how much. My favorite diversion is playing with dolls. I dress them in the gayest colors I can find and give them the prettiest names. Again I think I am 16 and about to be a bride. I have lots of fun planning my trousseau. Miss Sheskin, the head nurse here, tells me how pretty I look and advises me which one of my suitors I shall accept. I always take the tall man. Each of the three husbands that I left buried on the other side of the ocean was tall."

If any of your doubting friends tell you that the story about Jonah being swallowed by a whale is a "fairy story," just show them this picture. Look for the answer at the mouth of this humpback whale caught off Hyuquot Whaling station, on the west coast of the Vancouver Islands. This whale will yield about 1,000 pounds of juicy steaks, twenty-five barrels of oil, one and a half tons of bone, and about two tons of fertilizer. Now that whale meat is being extensively used for food no part of the animal is wasted.

COULDN'T KILL HIMSELF, WANTS TO BE EXECUTED

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 26.—In Warden Fenton's ten-year experience as head of the Nebraska state penitentiary he has never had a prisoner like Charles Nichols, sent from Cheyenne county a few days ago to be executed in the electric chair on March 1, 1922, for the murder of his sweetheart, Emma Carroll, on June 17, last.

Nichols has refused to talk with any attorneys and declares that he will not appeal to the supreme court from the sentence imposed upon him. He is taciturn, but not sullen. He simply says he wants to die, and he does not want anybody to interfere with him in getting his wish.

Nichols is 43 years of age and belongs to the family of a Kimball county rancher. The girl was 25 years of age and ran the family farm. Her father was dead, one brother in the asylum, another gone where no one knows and only her demented mother with her. Nichols began paying attentions to her four years ago, and, becoming engaged, he removed to the farm and helped her with the work.

Three times had their wedding day been set, but each time it had been postponed, because of the objections of the girl's sister. Finally she broke the engagement entirely and told him he must leave the farm. He got his gun and told her that if she would not promise to marry him, the following day he would kill himself. She coaxed him to go with her to his brother's farm, but on the way he stopped the auto, called the girl to him, and then killed her. She died at once. When help came Nichols was found unconscious. He had shot himself near the heart and in the head, but neither bullet proved fatal.

When he recovered he was put on trial. He refused to make any defense and was convicted of first degree murder. When the judge asked him what he had to say he replied: "Only to say that I am ready to die. I wanted to die when Emma did. I have wanted to die every since."

And that is all he will say to the warden.

Friday, "Beau Revel," featuring Florence Vidor and Louis Joseph Vance, and comedy. Saturday, "Judge Her Not," featuring Jack Livingston and Pauline Curley; also comedy.

TEMPLE.

A story frankly melodramatic is "The Branded Soul," the Stoll film adaptation of a novel by "Rita," which will have its initial showing at the Temple theatre today. Besides its uncommon plot, depicting the struggles of a man's soul, its fall at the beck of passion, and its ultimate atonement. the picture has some remarkable photographic novelties.

There are two brothers—twins—in the story, and both parts are played by Reginald Fox. Double exposure is used so skilfully throughout the production that the two brothers are seen together time after time, once in a fierce grapple, so that it is almost unbelievable that the same actor is playing both parts.

Prison scenes, actually taken inside Dartmoor, the great English prison, and in the desolate quarries and moors about it, are vivid, and give an interesting comparison with penitentiaries in this country.

A prison escape into the fog, in which for the first time it is said, the famous English mist has been caught by the eye of the camera, gives an atmosphere of mystery and thrill to sensational events which follow, one on the heels of the other.

The drama of "The Branded Soul" arises from the love of the two brothers for one soul. She in turn, loves Geoffrey, but his brother, crazed by jealousy, has him "framed up" for forgery and sent to prison. It is then that conscience haunts him, he changes place with his brother after the latter escapes into the fog, and gives up his life so that the two people he has wronged so horribly, can take up their shattered lives in happiness at last.

Besides Reginald Fox, who makes the brothers so different they are each separate and living human beings, Madge Stuart gives a finely modulated, highly emotional rendition of the girl Renee. The others of the cast are adequate, the photography and production all that could be desired.

MAJESTIC.

Corrine Griffith, in a Salome costume, does the dance of the Seven Veils in "The Single Track," the Vitagraph production which will be shown at Majestic theatre today and Monday. It is based upon a novel by Douglas Grant and was directed by Webster Campbell.

In one of the opening scenes Corinne, as one of the society entertainers in a series of tableaux, succeeds in disrupting the proceedings when as Salome she makes John the Baptist ridiculous, thus paying him back for imaginary insults.

The scene is exceptionally elaborate. The head of John the Baptist is in a charger on the table. The man playing this role sat cramped in a box under the table all day while Corinne and her director arranged his beard. They could not agree as to just how it should lie on the table. Corrine believed it should be dishevelled, while Webster Campbell was of the opinion that it must lie in artistic arrangement.

"John" was not consulted as to how his beard should be arranged and was forced to submit to the torture of having it pulled and twisted while star and director argued. They compromised, however, and the picture was taken with John's beard both ways.

In dancing Corinne overturns the table, exposing the fake. In performing the action the table landed on the star's ankle and severely bruised it, but the courageous Corinne refused to lay off. Disregarding the severe pain in her rapidly swelling ankle, she continued to dance until the scene was finished.

"The Single Track" is a story of spectacular scenes and rapid action. It takes its name from a single spur track on a railroad that when completed will connect the heroine's mine, all that remains of a wasted fortune, with the main line.

LIBERTY.

Cecil B. DeMille's latest production, "Something to Think About," is different in theme from anything he has attempted in the past. He has expended his artistry and meticulous attention to detail upon an intensely human story of real folks. The result is a picture in every respect up to the usual De Mille standard. "Something to Think About" shows today at the Liberty theatre.

The story, written by Jeanie Macpherson, who transcribed "Male and Female" and "Why Change Your Wife?" to the screen, centers around Ruth Anderson, daughter of the village blacksmith. A rich man, David Markley, lives in the neighborhood and, becoming interested in Ruth as a small girl, sends her away to school. She returns a young and beautiful woman, and it is understood that she and Markley are to marry. On the impulse of the moment she elopes with a youth of the village. Her husband, killed in an accident, leaves her destitute, and, returning to her native town to find her father blinded, she is in despair, until a series of dramatic events leads to her reconciliation with Markley.

A cast that is practically all-star interprets "Something to Think About." Gloria Swanson has the role of the heroine and proves that she is just as effective an actress in gingham as she is in fine clothes. The picture marks the return of Elliott Dexter to the screen as leading man. Theodore Roberts is admirable as the old blacksmith and Monte Blue has an important part. The picture is a Paramount.

ATHENS SAYS U. S. IS TO RECOGNIZE CONSTANTINE

By Associated Press.

ATHENS, Nov. 26—The Protevoussa, organ of M. Gounaris, the Greek premier, announced recently that the United States government would soon recognize King Constantine.

The newspaper asserted that, after the elections in November last, the United States government complained "that the Greek government had not announced to the White House the second advent of King Constantine to the throne."

In those days, says the Protevoussa, Greece was represented in Washington by a junior and unfledged member of the diplomatic service named M. Drakopoulos. This young diplomatist having misinterpreted the instructions of the then prime minister, the late M. Rhallys, briefly communicated to the American government that there was no occasion to announce the return of King Constantine to the throne, inasmuch as he had never ceased to be the lawful sovereign of Greece.

This is said here to have created the impression that the obligations assumed by Greece during the Venizelist regime would not be recognized. To eliminate this impression, the Hellenic government categorically declared to Professor Edwards Capps, then American minister in Athens that Greece fully recognized those obligations.

MAJOR LEAGUE OWNERS MAY MAKE NO CHANGES IN 1921 MANAGERS

By JACK VEIOCK,
International News Sporting Editor.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Major league managers who finished the 1921 season at the helms of the sixteen big league clubs seem pretty sure of their jobs for another season.

Unless present signs fail there will be no managerial shifts and if this holds true the coming winter will set a record, as there has never been a "hot stove" season in which one or more managers' heads were not lopped off.

Last winter there were several charges. Johnny Evers took Fred Mitchell's place at Chicago and Mitchell succeeded George Stallings at Boston. Wild Bill Donovan came out of the International league to manage the Phillies. Hughie Duffy stepped into Ed Barrow's boots at Boston and Tyrus Cobb succeeded Hugh Jennings at Detroit. At Washington Clark Griffith retired to the business of being a club president and appointed George McBride to handle the reins of the Senators.

Two of the managers installed last winter failed to last out the season, Evers being succeeded at Chicago by Bill Killifer and Donovan being dropped by the Phillies in favor of Irving Wilhelm. The owners of the Cubs and Phillies have announced that Killifer and Wilhelm will pilot their 1922 entrants in the big show and the rest of the managers are apparently securely anchored.

McGraw on the Job.

Rumors to the contrary, John McGraw will be the guiding spirit of the Giants again next year. He may take Johnny Evers back to assist Hugh Jennings in coaching the team, but in the heat of the pennant race McGraw will be on the old bench, telling 'em what to do.

Rumors that Huggins was to be deposed have quieted down since the world's series. Just how the Yankee colonels could let Huggins go after he won a pennant for them and made a hot fight in the world's series against the Giants is a point that a good many critics cannot fathom and, generally speaking, they agree that Huggins stands better than an even chance to stay.

Uncle Wilbert Robinson, popular and in great demand by Brooklyn fans, can scarcely be sacrificed by the Brooklyn club even though he might want to go elsewhere, so the three New York clubs are seemingly set in a managerial way.

Hugh Duffey and Fred Mitchell delivered at Boston and will stick; Connie Mack is not thinking of tying the can to himself at Philade'phia and Wilhelm is signed for 1922.

McBride Solid.

George McBride did very well with the Senators. He is solid with Griffith. George Gibson, though he stood on shaky ground when his team was beaten out by the Giants, looks like a good bet to manage the Pirates again and Pat Moran is firmly rooted in Cincinnati.

Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker are prime favorites in Detroit and Cleveland. Kid Gleason and Killifer will return to Chicago and Rickey and Fohl will be found at the helms of the Cards and Browns. This accounts for all of the managers and it looks sure that all will be leading rookies and regulars toward the training camps in March.

The managerial array and the tenure of "office" they have had in the big show follows:

National League.

McGraw, New York	19½ years
Robinson, Brooklyn	7 years
Moran, Cincinnati	3 years
Rickey, St. Louis	3 years
Gibson, Pittsburgh	2 years
Mitchell, Boston	1 year
Wilhelm, Philadelphia	½ year
Killifer, Chicago	½ year

American League.

Mack, Philadelphia	21 years
Huggins, New York	4 years
Gleason, Chicago	3 years
Speaker, Cleveland	2½ years
McBride, Washington	1 year
Cobb, Detroit	1 year
Duffy, Boston	1 year
Fohl, St. Louis	1 year

President Michael Sexton, of the National Association of Professional Baseball clubs has sent out circular letters to every member of the minor league organization urging attendance at the annual meeting at Buffalo Dec. 6 to 9. Says Mr. Sexton:

"I believe that our approaching meeting will be one of the most important and interesting that this association has ever held. Hon. Kenesaw M. Landis, commissioner, will be in attendance and will have a double message, of great interest to all, to deliver. At our opening session he will speak directly to baseball people, club officials, players, umpires, scorers, sport writers and all persons directly connected with the game, and on Wednesday evening at our annual banquet his message will be to the great body of sport loving people of the United States and Canada. This message, I am sure, will be of such interest and importance that it will be carried by the several press associations to all parts of our jurisdiction."

WASH AND JEFF TO PLAY A. & M. NEW YEAR'S DAY

DALLAS, Nov. 26.—Washington and Jefferson college of Washington, Pa., one of the four undefeated teams in the East this year, will play the Texas Aggies in a post-season game here on New Year's day, according to an announcement today by officials of the State Fair association. The game will be played in the new stadium, which will accommodate about 15,000 persons.

The Aggies are regarded by some football followers in Texas as the representative team of the Southwestern conference, having won more games than any other team in the conference. This will be the first game ever staged by an undefeated eastern eleven and a Southwestern conference team.

COAST TEAM TO SCOUT FOR TALENT NEXT YEAR

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 26.—The scouting system, as followed by the major leagues, will be adopted next season by the San Francisco club of the Pacific coast league, according to George Putnam, secretary and part owner of the Seals.

Putnam said he believed Coast legaue teams had overlooked more possibilities than they had signed and that the way to change this situation was to engage a scout. Other teams in the league are expected to follow San Francisco's example.

AGGIES WILL CLAIM SOUTHWESTERN TITLE

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Nov. 26.—Letters for 1921 were awarded members of the A. & M. football team today. The men will also be given gold footballs in the event A. & M. is declared champion of the Southwest football conference.

The Aggies played five conference games, winning three and tying two.

The festivities that usually accompany the close of the football season ended tonight with the corps dance. Several hundred guests attended, from all over the state.

NOTED DOG DRIVER MEETS DEATH THROUGH THIN ICE

THE PAS, Manitoba, Nov. 26.—The trail of Walter Goyne, winner of the 1920 Canadian dog derby and one of the best known sportsmen in the Northwest, has ended in Moose lake.

Goyne, it was believed, went through thin ice to his death while driving a nine-dog team. He was crossing the lake, eighty miles from The Pas, en route to a fishing camp, when the ice gave way.

NAVY PLUNGES THROUGH LINE TO BEAT ARMY

Touchdown in Second Quarter Is Only Score; French Causes Scare.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26—The battleship of the Navy eleven plowed through the heavy seas of the Polo Grounds today, battered the Army's fortifications in the rain, captured the annual service championship game, 7 to 0, and took the lead in the series. Since 1890 the Navy has won twelve times and the Army eleven.

The Navy scrapped its airplanes upon discovering early in the game that dreadnaughts were more effective for making progress against the enemy. It made an attack with line plunges and end runs that resulted in an advance of fifty-three yards to a touchdown early in the second period. Barchel was the stellar battle cruiser in the progress toward the white line and indeed throughout the game. From his own 44-yard line, he circled end on a kick formation for twenty yards. Conroy and Barchel then alternated in driving off tackle from a tandem formation until the former smashed through for a touchdown, followed by King's goal. The progress to the goal comprised thirteen plays, during which the Navy earned first down four times.

Outrushed and outplayed in the line, the Army threatened to tie up the game late in the last quarter as the result of the brilliant work of French. Receiving a punt on his own 40-yard line, he ran back ten yards and followed this up with a 28-yard run around his right end, with interference provided by a double shift of the backs before the ball was passed.

PUBLISHERS APPROVE TYPESETTING COURSE

MACON, Ga., Nov. 26.—Thirty vacancies were created in publishers' typesetting school here when during the past month that number of students finished the course of instruction and went out to accept positions. One went to New Orleans, one to Texas, and some went to North Carolina, Kentucky, and other states.

The course of study that was arranged four months ago, as a requirement for each student, was sent to owners of monotype, linotype and intertypes in various parts of the country, and their opinion of the practicability of the course was asked. Some approved it most heartily; others said it was thorough, but that it contained requirements that no student could meet within less than two to four years. Some superintendents of printing plans gave this latter opinion, based, perhaps, on their experience with the progress of apprentices. It has been found, however, that nine out of ten of the students who undertook the course about four months ago completed it before the end of the four months.

The Macon Educator, a monthly paper printed by the students and edited by the president of the Georgia-Alabama Business college, is being sent to all who are interested in the work of the school either as prospective students or as former students, or backers.
