Al Dillard at the First Savings and Loan Association has a bear by the tail, but he'll risk life and limb trying to help the Bulldogs football team. He is shown about awning high above the sidewalk changing his headlines on THE CRIER. Just as all other news media, he has his problems too. Sometimes the lines have to be rewritten several times because of the shortage of some letters. And, sky typesetters have to pick a day when the wind is not too high. His trusty? ladder requires perfect balance with very little help from sidewalk superintendents.

WINDING LINE

You know how when winding on a new line the spool jumps and runs generally makes things difficult. Next time, wind your line through a book. Pages of book will put just enough pressure on the line and book steadiness keeps spool from jumping.

Burk Kings Overcome Tulsa Oilers In Fourth Quarter Spurt 47 to 19

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health

The teeth of Americans contain at least one billion cavities, each a potential source of toothache, dental authorities now estimate. They say tooth decay is so wide spread that involves 95 of every 100 persons and is still increasing.

A virtually incurable chronic disease which must be prevented if it is to be conquered at all, tooth decay is a particularly nemesis of elementary school-age youngsters although all ages are vulnerable to its ravaging pain.

Children are said to develop cavities at about the same ratio as do adults—approximately one per child per year. But scholarly surveys show that whereas one-third of the adult need for filling is being met, only one-fifth of the cavities in children's teeth are being repaired.

The reason, Texas Health Department dental officials speculate, is that so many parents still cling to the totally false notion that so-called "baby teeth" are unimportant because they are temporary. The frequent result is that good dental health for children is still relatively scarce commodity.

In an attempt to reverse the trend toward almost universal poor dental health among youngsters—particularly in underprivileged homes—the dental division of the Texas State Department of Health gives financial and education support to dental clinics in selected local health departments around the State.

The addition of fluoride in carefully controlled amounts to public water supplies is known by dental researchers to be an efficient deterrent to dental decay. The State Board of Health has reaffirmed its belief that fluoridation is safe and effective, and recommended that local communities consider the practice wherever applicable and practicable.

There is one positive step all parents can take to avoid the fate of toothlessness among their children, dental scientists agree. It's a simple step, requiring only that youngsters be taken to a dentist for tooth and gum inspection before enrolled in school each fall.

Before the visit is over, the dentist will have tutored the youngster in good dental hygiene at home, hoping the habits will take hold and last into adulthood.

When enough children have received such instruction, and make it part of their daily lives, the blight of tooth decay may slowly fade from the American scene.

If you must clean fish at home, try inserting fish in a large plastic bag before scaling. Clear bag allows you to see what you are doing, but loose scales can't escape.

TULSA, Okla. — Before a capacity crowd at Kirkland Stadium Saturday night the Burk Kings spoiled the Tulsa Oilers debut in pro football by a score of 47 to 19.

The Oilers, newly formed team of Tulsa, Okla., will participate in the P.F.L. (Professional Football League of America) in 1966.

Although the final score was decisive the outcome of the game was in serious doubt until the final quarter, when the Kings rang up 20 points in the waning minutes.

The scoring began in the early minutes of the first quarter with Jerry Bettis running the last 16 yards of a 65 yard march. Tulsa drove to the King's 15 but stalled and Richard Guinn kicked a 25 yard field goal.

Later Fred Thompson of the Kings intercepted a pass and ran 43 yards to score.

In the second quarter, Tulsa's Chuck Stanley ran 55 yards to score, Guinn kicked the extra point.

Kings' Ron Duke took the ensuing kickoff on his own one-yard line and ran 99 yards to score.

A pass from Gene Guthrie to Bob Steward for 30 yards and a touchdown, ended the first half with the score 27-10.

Tulsa Quarterback Lynn Capps passed to Carl Dupins, who ran 69 yards to score. Guinn added the extra point.

Gene Guthrie of the Kings was trapped in the end zone for a safety and 2 points. The third quarter score: 27 to 19.

In the final quarter the Kings scored 20 points on a two-yard sneak by Guthrie; a Guthrie to Bettis pass for 30 yards and finally Bettis ran 23 yards for the final score of the night.

Phillip Fancher kicked the P.A.T. except two (one was blocked). Tulsa's linemen were huge and their backfield both fast and powerful but they were up against a great team of Kings, who have developed into a powerful machine this year.

A play-by-play description was broadcast by Radio Station KOMA, Tulsa, and the superlatives bordered in awe at the work of the smooth efforts of the Kings in action.

Tulsa will replay the Kings in Burkburnett, Sept. 18, at Jr. High Stadium, 8:00 p.m.

OPEN THE RICHES OF THE SEA

UNTAPPED RESOURCES

Now that many of the mysteries of the universe are closer to solution through the space program — a comparable challenge for knowledge faces us in the depths of the ocean.

The combined government and private programs in oceanography total over 1 1/2 billion dollars per year, a financial outlay one-third as large as the United States
space program and growing at a more rapid rate.

Both the industry and Department of Defense programs seek support. A prime example of the need by all concerned in the field, is the exploration of the oceans
for mapping as well as the development of resources.

We approve the legislative recommendations of Rep.
Paul C. Rogers (D. Fla.) for the establishment of a National Commission on Oceanography. It would authorize the President to appoint a commission to investigate the current status of the U. S. in the field of oceanography and recommend a future course of action best geared to our national needs and development programs.

The commission would be composed of five persons from the field of industry, five from government, and five from the universities and laboratories participating in oceanography work.

It would be given two years to complete its assignment and submit a report to the President and Congress.
It is hoped that the result will enable industry to proceed independently in those areas where it is best fitted, and to work with scientists and government in the attainment of greater knowledge and achievement in developing the oceans' resources for mankind.

The American Petroleum Institute reports that U. S. reliance on oil as a primary source of energy resulted in total domestic consumption of more than 4 billion barrels of petroleum products during 1964. This is the equivalent of almost 900 gallons for every American man, woman and child.

Writing in the FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin, Commissioner E. Wilson Purdy of the Pennsylvania State Police says: "Greater demands than ever before are being made on our police by American citizens for the preservation of law and order. Law enforcement agencies are presently in the most critical, crucial, and abstruse era of modern American history. The entire social structure is changing from day to day. In most of our communities, where social and economic changes have taken place, you will find a restless, moving, ever-growing population which results in new tensions, new conflicts, and new demands for police service. The most alarming characteristics possessed by some of our citizens are a disrespect for authority and many times, an outright defiance of law and rebellion against the moral code."

Walter Bouldin, president of the Alabama Power Company, says: "The charm of government power is its low rates, and the low rates come from an injustice that takes the labor of many men to beneficia relative few."

MARCHING THROUGH THE SOUTH

Various pro-Constitution, "extremist" organizations have recently bought space on billboards to display the picture of Martin Luther King attending the training school for Communist at Monteagle, Tenn.
In Nashville this billboard caused so much commotion that the Chamber of Commerce took a stand against it. The Barons of Business are going along with anything decreed by the Great Society, as long as it does not hurt business; for profit regardless of principles for doing business with anybody. They will hire, fire, buy from and sell to anybody for profit, including Red China. Nibble by nibble, all racial discrimination of any kind will be prohibited. The fatcats will go along. They'll do anything for a dollar—even a 45 cent dollar.

One if not the main reason businessmen are going along with the Great Society is fear.
The fatcats fear the government and the unions.

Under the "civil rights" bill
an enlarged army of federal bureaucrats and FBI agents
will again march through Georgia laying waste to the Constitution and the Southern way of life and leaving in their wake swarms of "civil rights" carpetbaggers to intimidate the people and supplant local law with federal law. Lower court justices, who hate to be reversed, are already intimidated, along with most businessmen. Any intelligent person must ask,
"If the federal government can force a state to its knees at bayonet point under the guise of a Supreme Court edict (legal or illegal) in regard to education,
then in what field is a state sovereign?" The answer is nowhere. Our nation is on the verge of anarchy. We are headed toward a Negro revolution,
a second Civil War, dictatorship. Little Rock, Oxford, Selma, Chicago—we have seen only the beginning. There will be much blood in the streets
South and North. As agitator John Lewis said to a group in Selma, "This is a revolution, this is a war! Postal and railway express workers report a constant stream of mail order guns and ammunition to Deep South Negroes.

In a directive entitled, "The Time is Now," American com-rat leaders ordered at least 100,000 people to march on Washington on August 28 of 1963, and they successfully ordered that the march be peaceful. They stated, "The legislative proposals of the President are major weapons in the struggle..." Here they are speaking of the then proposed but now passed civil rights legislation. So pleased were the communist leaders with the prospect of advancing their cause
by using "civil rights" movement that they bragged: "The Communist Party greets with boundless joy the present revolution freedom movement of the Negro people and will spare no sacrifice to help bring about its total victory now..." Lead-

secretary and left arm of Martin Luther King.

Edmund Burke said: "Because half a dozen grasshoppers under a fern make the field ring with their importu-nate clink, whilst thousands of great cattle, reposed beneath the shadows of the British oak, chew their cud and are silent, pray do not imagine that those who make the noise are the only inhabitants of the field;
that of course they are many
in number; or that, after all,
they are other than the little shrivelled, meagre, hopping, though loud and troublesome insects of the hour."

The insect of the hour is Martin Luther King. I do not hate Martin Luther King. I hate only the things he sits-in for.

Magic Formula For Juvenile Decency Includes Patience, Skill, Experience

Juvenile Decency Duo—lack of shoes fails to hamper lad at left and his friend as they prepare for anti-litter campaign in "Keep America Beautiful" program, typical of community service activities of thousands of Boys' Clubs of America members.

In the sometimes wild, usually puzzling, often aggravating world of today's teen agers, it is difficult to establish many normal, continuing behavioral patterns. Understanding their mercurial changes in thought and action, discovering their motivations, learning to harness their super-abundance of energy, takes time, patience and skill. One organization, which has learned much about youth living in the Boys' Clubs of America. Today, in some 650 Boys' Clubs, well over 600,000 deserving boys offer dramatic proof of what the vast majority of our nation's youngsters can achieve under trained, professional leadership. In San Antonio, a group of Club members operates a free moving van service for old or sick people. In Dayton, O., another group paints the homes of old, sick, or poverty-stricken neighbors. San Diego Boys' Club members work with mentally retarded children and make progress previously considered impossible. At Macon, Ga., the Club members "de-fuse" abandoned refrigerators rendering them harmless as traps for playing children. Newark, N. J., boys are enlisted in a "Junior Crime Fighters" program which is credited with playing a major role in reducing both juvenile and adult crime. In scores of other cities, thousands of Boys' Club members are enrolled in similar programs, all designed to combat juvenile delinquency by encouraging Juvenile Decency. Running these Clubs, which are privately supported, costs money. In fact, a great deal of money or some $20,000,000 annually for the more than 650 individual Clubs. Funds are provided through Community Chest, United Fund, civic, service, labor, veterans' and fraternal organizations and through many other private sources. Responsible citizens in about 450 communities, supervise the staffing and operation of each Boys' Club, which is part of the overall Boys' Clubs of America. Heading the national organization is Richard M. Nixon, elected board chairman succeeding the late Herbert Hoover, who served in the post for 25 years. Serving with Mr. Nixon is a distinguished board of directors, headed by president A. L. Cole, vice president of the Reader's Digest. John M. Gleason, internationally known as an authority on youth problems serves as national director. Under the dynamic leadership of these men, this national youth-guidance organization is providing daily proof of the value of a positive approach to juvenile delinquency. As one Boys' Club director explains it, "we try to give every boy the lift he needs."

Play it safe—while at play! As careful as you may be you're going to run into a dangerous situation sometime during your adventures into the great outdoors.

It can happen when you're walking, sitting, lying down, boating, skiing, fishing, swimming, shooting, hunting — or merely observing.

Fact of the matter is danger lurks everywhere — indoors, outdoors, at home or aboard. Too often people are caught unprepared when the surprise incident happens.

How do you prepare yourself for the unexpected? That's mighty hard to do unless you are anticipating trouble. But there are a few precautions you can take, and a few items you can carry with you, that will minimize the danger.

For instance, if you're headed for an area where snakes may reside—stick a snake bite kit in your pocket, tackle box, or gun case. We carry one in the trousers pocket every time we hunt or fish. In addition there's one in the fishing tackle box, and the ammo box or the gun case.

We've had only three encounters with snakes, but one was enough to impress this angler with the importance of being prepared.

Once a rattler wraps itself around your arm you'll not forget this little precaution.

However, we suggest you don't wait until something happens to form the habit of carrying along a snake bite kit. They're small, not much larger than a medium-size pocket knife and their weight is nil.

If you are going boating — then good life preservers are a must.

We used to think it foolish to wear a life jacket while fishing with the old buddy in a safe boat well equipped with floatation.

But not after the little 14 ft. fiberglass rig hit a submerged boulder and knocked both of us overboard—and one of us unconscious.

It's a peculiar sensation to awaken 10 to 12 feet under water and not know which direction is up. Teaches you one thing though—that a life jacket or ski belt can be man's best friend.

One doesn't shy away from life jackets after an experience like that. In fact he seeks them out, and is even mighty careful about his choice.

Let others chide you if they like, call you sissy or "fraydycat"—you just wear that jacket anyways. At least you wont end up in the briny deep.

Nowadays you can buy a cigarette-pack-size pair of inflatable water wings; or an inflatable shirt. They keep you afloat providing you're conscious enough to squeeze the pack or pull the release cord on the shirt when the accident happens.

But with a good life preserver already on you're as close to 100 per cent safe as you can get and still be in the water.

Storms create big problems. You'll be surprised how suddenly a storm can get into high gear. If your motor conks out, or the boat springs a leak during a storm you're in real trouble, even on a relatively small lake—not to mention a Texas size one.

That's when you need to call on flares. Most people think of flares in terms of big boats and the Atlantic or Pacific waterways—or maybe the Gulf of Mexico. But they're mighty, mighty handy on lakes—when the helping hand of a friend is needed.

Genrus makes a compact "Lifesaver" kit that resembles the tear gas pen that women are beginning to carry in their purses. Works on the same principle but is a little more potent. It will eject the flare some 350 to 450 feet into the

BOYS' CLUBS STRENGTHEN NATION'S STANDARDS

by J. Edgar Hoover, FBI Director

Citizenship in a democracy such as ours demands diligent preparation and training. Our young people today face a future filled with glorious opportunity, and at the same time, tremendous problems. Upholding our way of life from the threat of atheistic communism, curbing an alarming increase in crime which threatens to sap our society's strength and lifting the moral and spiritual standards of our Nation—these are among the tasks facing our youth.

Boys' Clubs of America plays a significant role in preparing many young boys for the challenge ahead. By instilling in them a deeper understanding of our Nation's heritage, by fostering in them increased respect for law and order, by encouraging them toward useful and constructive pursuits, this organization helps build better citizens for tomorrow. America owes a deep debt of gratitude to Boys' Clubs of America for its noble efforts. This organization merits the support of each of us.

"Littering" Up The Place

The canine "Mother of the Year" is a new kind of dog hero. Currently the title-holder is an English Setter named "Queen" (center), the proud mother of 124 puppies. Almost tying her extraordinary record are "Princess" the runner-up with 107 pups, and "Jo" with a mere 99 to her credit. All three mothers live happily at the Purina Pet Care Center in St. Louis where, by doing what comes naturally, they are aiding researchers in their studies of how nutrition helps produce more and healthier puppies. The frisky and handsome English Setters are living testimonials to the value of proper nutrition. Their diet has been plenty of balanced dry dog food, water—and good portions of love. They've never even sniffed table scraps or required vitamins of any kind. Pet owners and other canine mothers can surely benefit from their experience. Healthy dogs are likely to be healthy breeders.

Boys' Clubs Help Boys Face Future

Boys' Clubs of America help boys of high school age prepare for the future through "Career Club" programs. With the aid of advisors, boys explore various occupations, learn how to file an application, handle a job interview, what it takes to hold a job, and qualities to develop for job advancement.

Eighty percent of the 650 Boys' Clubs of America provide well-stocked libraries, staffed by professional librarians, where boys can follow the adventures of Huck Finn, learn about atomic energy, or just have a quiet spot to do their homework.

J. Edgar Hoover says, "Boys' Clubs of America play a significant role in preparing many young boys for the challenge ahead. By encouraging them toward useful and constructive pursuits, this organization helps build better citizens for tomorrow."

Health and Safety Tips From AMA

Going on a Labor Day picnic? Don't let bugs spoil your outing. And we aren't speaking of the bugs you're thinking of—ants, flies, mosquitoes, ticks, chiggers and the others. We're speaking of those unseen bugs that inhabit contaminated food and water causing such ills as food poisoning, gastroenteritis and typhoid and paratyphoid. Too many people do far too much to invite these unseen bugs to their picnics, says Today's Health, the magazine of the American Medical Association.

Disease organisms, if present in food, multiply rapidly in warm temperatures. The trunk of your auto on a Labor Day weekend most likely will be warm, if not downright hot. Prevention and avoidance are the keys to picnic safety. So don't do things with food on a picnic that you wouldn't do at home. Don't expect picnic food to keep any better than food at home. You wouldn't keep potato salad in the sun on a winnow sill at home from early morning to suppertime. Cooked meat combined with somewhat moist bread makes an ideal breeding place for bacteria. Don't make up your picnic sandwiches the night before. Take the ingredients along in your picnic refrigerator and make the sandwiches on the spot. Clear, running water does not mean pure water. A sparkling stream can be loaded with contagion. Take your water from home, or draw it from a tap of tested pure water at the picnic grounds. Don't let food poisoning spoil your picnic and don't run the risk of a serious illness from water-borne disease.

Museum Offers Reward for Peanut Butter Relics

The American Museum of Peanut Butter History has been established in Chicago. Although the project may seem a little nutty, the Peter Pan Co. plans to make the museum a mecca for people interested in peanut butter lore. The museum will house artifacts connected with peanut butter history from 1890 to 1925, including the various devices used by women to make their own primitive form of peanut butter at the turn of the century. In those days, housewives had mills to grind the peanuts, small ovens to roast them, and blanchers to remove the red skins—all operated by hand cranking. The Peter Pan Co. will shell out a year's free supply of peanut butter to every family donating an authentic relic. The average family eats about 50 pounds of peanut butter per year. Peanut butter was invented by a St. Louis physician in 1890 as a high protein health food for his patients. By 1896, it was being served regularly to patients at the Battle Creek, Mich., Sanitarium. About 1900, small devices began to appear on the market all over the country, enabling women to make peanut butter in their own kitchens.

In the early years of this century, women made peanut butter in their own kitchens with crude devices such as stove-top ovens for roasting peanuts, blanchers for removing the red skins, and mills for grinding the nuts. Fifteen years later, country store-keepers were making peanut butter with somewhat larger equipment in much the same way, and selling it by the paddle-full from wooden tubs. These methods prevailed until after World War I when the industrial manufacture of the product began. Patrons of the arts and peanut butter buffs with antiquities of any kind connected with the making of peanut butter can write to the museum, Main Post Office Box 4474, Chicago.

"Everybody should be a newspaper boy," says Yogi Berra

"I was. And I believe it develops traits that will be important whether you're going to be a ball player or a corporation president. "It teaches dependability, for one thing. I know it isn't easy to get those papers around when the weather's mean, but those kids do it. "(Trying to hit 30 or 40 front porches every day with folded papers never hurt any kid's pitching arm, either.) "Being a newspaper boy teaches you to be a good businessman too. You learn how to handle money and to save some—as so many of these boys do by buying U. S. Savings Bonds regularly.

"The dollars they save in Bonds might help put them through college someday. Right now, they help Uncle Sam keep our country strong.

"I'm proud to have been a newspaper boy. It's a big job."

Food SECRETS

By BETSY PALMER
Panelist on "I've Got A Secret" Monday Nights, CBS-TV

My secret this week: The barbecue is my favorite time of year. Why? — the rest of the family does the cooking and the mess is outside, not in my kitchen! Sometimes "we" cook everything outside, but other times I make a casserole and a gelatin salad in the afternoon and we eat it outside — easy for the family, too. Here are some of my favorite barbecue recipes:

KEBABS. Place 1 pound beef cubes in shallow pan; top with 1 cup prepared garlic salad dressing. (Or use 1/2 cup cubes and prepared Parmesan salad dressing.) Marinate in refrigerator at least 6 hours or overnight. Arrange on skewers with green pepper slices, tomato wedges, and onion halves. Broil 3 inches from heat, turning frequently and basting with marinade — takes about 20 minutes. Makes about 4 kebabs.

BARBECUED BEANS AND FRANKS. In a 1 1/2-quart casserole, combine 1 can (1 lb. 12 oz.) baked pea beans; 1/2 cup barbecue sauce with hickory smoke flavor; 4 strips bacon, cooked and crumbled; and 4 frankfurters, cut in slices. Bake at 400° for 30 minutes, or until bubbly. Makes 4 or 5 servings.

WHAMBURGERS. Stir 2 tablespoons all-purpose barbecue sauce and 1/4 teaspoon salt into 1 1/2 pounds ground beef. Shape into patties. Broil on one side; turn. Spoon additional barbecue sauce over patties and broil until browned. Makes 6 servings.

FRUIT FLAVORED GELATIN makes a refreshing salad. In a vegetable salad, try using a teaspoon or two of dry French salad dressing mix for flavor. Worcestershire, Tabasco, or soy sauce also help to accent vegetable and meat flavors. A tablespoon or two of vinegar and a dash of salt are important, too. A creamy souffle salad is excellent for meat and vegetable combinations. When making gelatin reduce cold water to 1/2 cup. Add 2 tablespoons vinegar, 1/4 cup mayonnaise, a dash of pepper, and a tablespoon of grated onion. Chill until very thick; then whip before folding in 2 cups meat and vegetables.

IT'S UP TO YOU

The Penalty of Socialism

It is well known that a greater degree of prosperity has been attained in the United States than in any other country. It is also well known that until recently we have enjoyed more freedom and less government intervention than in any other country. There is nothing in all the record of human experience to indicate that Socialism can succeed. It never has succeeded anywhere. There is more hunger, less medical care, and less adequate housing in all the Socialist countries than there is in the free countries.

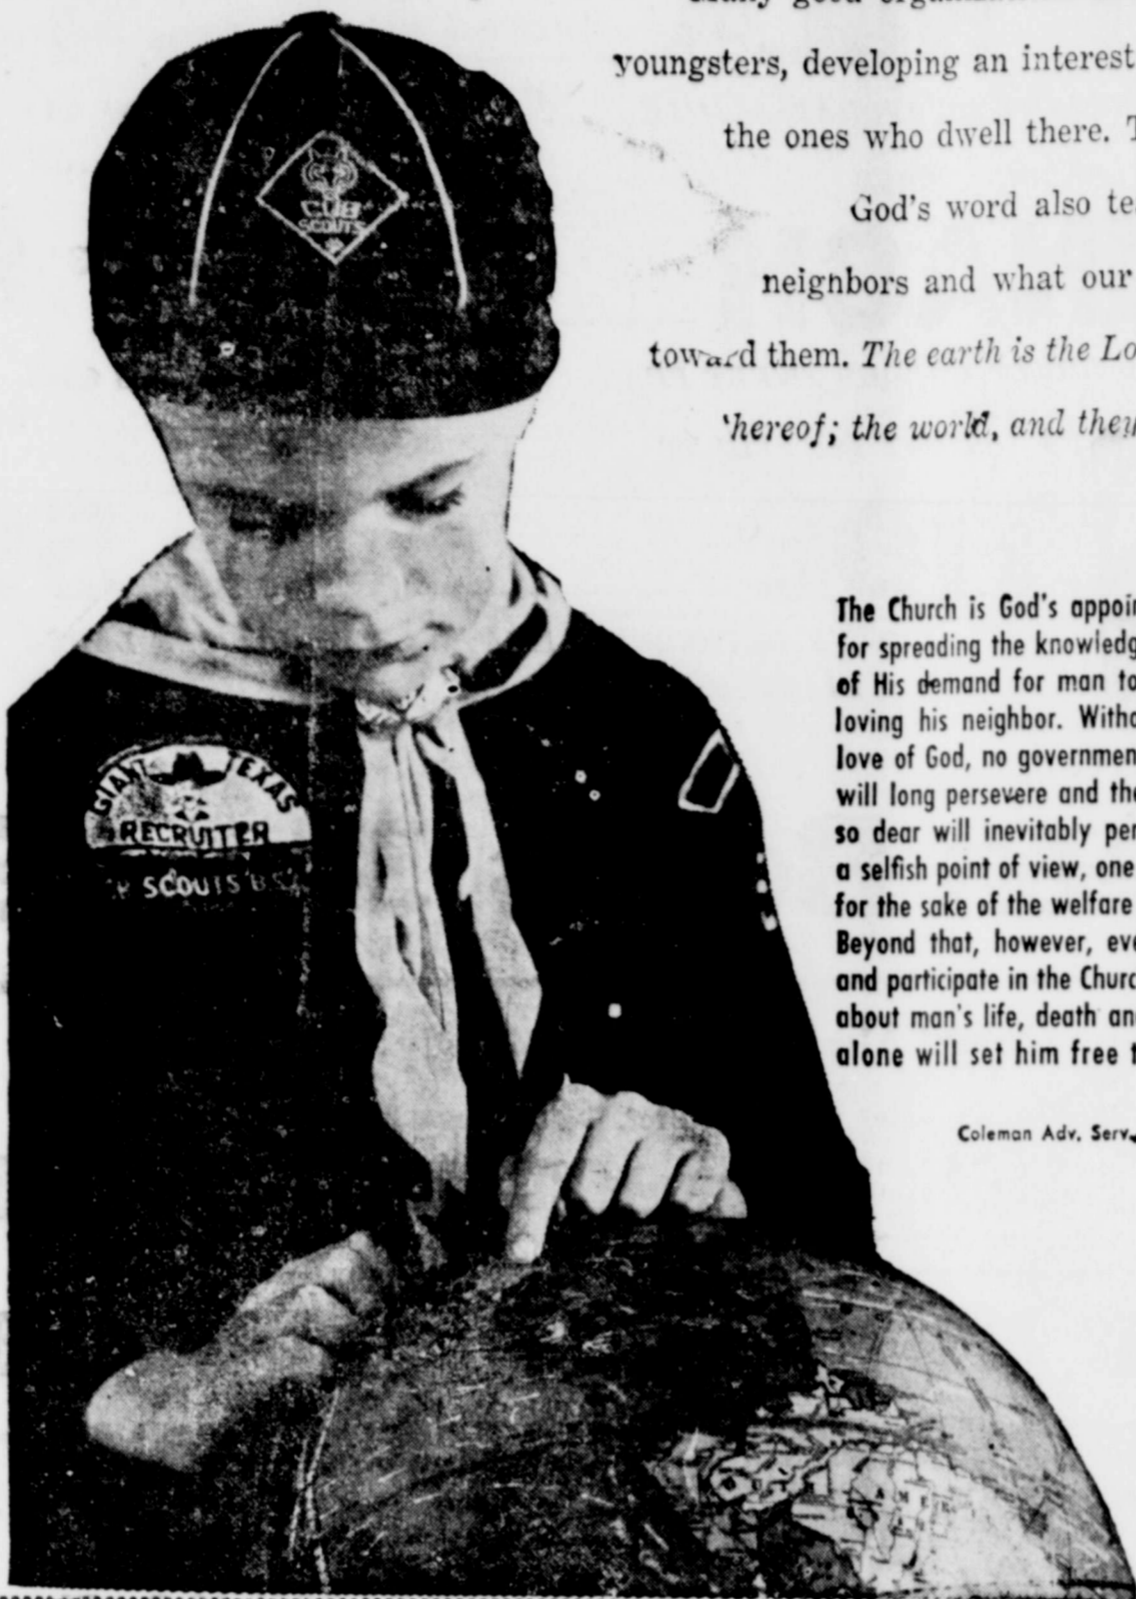

Sweden is cited as a successful Socialist country, but even there, a family often must wait 10 years for a house in which to live. Young married folks often live with their parents or in one room, sometimes for many years, before a house or apartment becomes available. There is much boredom, suicide, and sexual promiscuity among teenagers is openly countenanced. One cannot survey the world and fail to see that there is far more prosperity and satisfaction in the free world than in the Socialist countries. Why, therefore, the demand for increasing Socialism in our country?

But someone answers, "We must have the Welfare State," which is another name for Socialism, in order to provide for the weak and the helpless. Again, let me say that the weak and the helpless have a far harder time in the Socialist countries than in the relatively free countries. Economic well being has been achieved almost in direct proportion to the degree of freedom existing in a given country. Nowhere has so much been done to lift the burden of toll from the backs of men, to assuage suffering, and to conquer disease as in formerly free America. This was not an accident. It was the result of the freedom, free enterprise, and Capitalism that has existed in our country. We may expect that this will change if we continue deserting freedom and resorting to more and more Socialization.

WORLD WIDE INTEREST

Many good organizations are working with our youngsters, developing an interest in other lands and the ones who dwell there. The church through God's word also teaches us about our neighbors and what our attitude should be toward them. The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein.

Coleman Adv. Serv.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

into the sink. Prolonged cooking also may bring about a color change and loss of flavor as well as loss of nutritive value, says the agent.

Fryers are expected to be in greater supply for the next several weeks, so look more "specials" on this versatile summer meat item.

This prediction comes from the Texas A and M University Extension consumer marketing specialist.

Specials also will be seen on some steaks over the weekend. Beef roasts will be among low cost items. Ground beef will continue as a popular economy selection.

The best pork values will be found among shoulder roasts and steaks, spare-ribs and cured hams. Franks and cold cuts are reasonable in price, and they also offer more servings for the money than many other types of meat. There is no waste with these.

Summer vegetables add an incomparable sparkle and touch of color to meals. When appetites suffer because of the warm weather, the rich reds, greens, golds and creamy whites entice appetites. And they also add nutritional value to the meal in addition to the variety in texture.

The vegetable counter offers a variety of Southern peas, with the blackeye variety leading in greatest supply. Okra is becoming more plentiful. Carrots, celery, green onions, radishes and head lettuce are good choices. Squash, Bell peppers cucumbers and green beans are moderately priced. Quality varies, so make selections carefully.

Offerings at the fruit counter include cantaloupes, watermelons, seedless grapes and plums. Freestone peaches, many of them the Elberta variety, are available. If you freeze peaches now for preserve-making later on, either freeze the fruit unsweetened or write on the container the exact amount of sugar used in preparation for freezing. Then subtract this amount from the total called for in the recipe when you make the preserves.

Milk and dairy products continue abundant. Weight watchers may want to use fresh skim milk since both forms have most of the fat removed.

Mrs. Jack Marshall and members of the Foods and Nutrition Committee for Wichita County are working on plans for foods and nutritive information to be made available to all interested homemakers and all age groups. For complete information about special meetings and bulletins, contact Thelma Wirges, county home demonstration agent, 305 Federal building.

Flying Is Always Modern

These businessmen, women and their plane were considered "modern" in the 1930's. Mid-calf length skirts for the ladies and double-breasted suits for the men were the ultimate in high fashion apparel while the Ford Tri-Motor was the latest fashion in commercial air transport.

Passengers—the Ford could carry only 12—marveled at its speed, comfort and luxury. The co-pilot (the stewardess was yet unheard of) was ever present to collect tickets, explain how to adjust seats, safety belts, ventilators, heaters, and point out places of interest en route—except, of course, when his services were needed by the pilot!

The noise of the Ford's three engines made conversation difficult, yet, if you wanted a breath of fresh air, all you had to do was open the window! What "modern" means today is a far cry from thirty-odd years ago. To hundreds of passengers on jet airliners "modern" means gourmet meals, movies and a swift arrival at their destinations, so very important to hurried business executives.

But one convenience of air travel was modern in the 30's and is still modern today. The Air Travel Card, "The World's Most Honored Credit Card," enables passengers to charge their trips on 130 airlines. This year alone the airlines will transport more than 90 million passengers to their destinations.
