Witnesses say Railroad Commission favors oil

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

ODESSA — The Railroad Commission of Texas, which regulates the state's petroleum production, was lambasted here Friday by West Texans who claimed the RRC is lax in policing the oil fields, is permitting pollution of fresh underground water sources and is failing to govern the major and independent oil producers.

"It's apparent to me there's some serious problems," said Texas Rep. Gerald Geistweidt, who chaired the State House of Representative's water subcommittee information-gathering session on oil field pollution. The subcommittee is responsible to the House's Natural Resources Committee, which is headed by Midland's Tom Craddick. What happens to the water subcommittee's findings is up to the Natural Resources Committee and to the Texas Legislature.

Witnesses who appeared before the five legislators in the day-long session at Odessa College testified that the RRC is negligent and lax in its duties and tends to favor the oil industry's quest for increased oil-and-gas production over protecting the remaining fresh water in West Texas aquifers and streams.

Witnesses alleged that the RRC's laxity allowed oil and brine from leaking casing to contaminate fresh water sources. They also contended that open pits along the Colorado River were draining in the river and thus into Spence Reservoir, which supplies water to Midland, Odessa, Big Spring and other cities in the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

RRC SPOKESMAN Jerry Mullican said the commission is under-manned in its 200-person field staff but is diligent.

"The Railroad Commission has long been concerned and aware of its responsibility to protect water...from pollution in the drilling and production of oil and gas," testified Mullican, who is director of the RRC underground injection control section.

Mullican said the RRC in 1938 granted its first injection-well permit. And today, he said, some 46,000 saltwater injection and disposal wells are in the state, which has 750,000 wells of which 250,000 "are still producing oil and gas."

"Oil activity is booming now," Mullican observed, "and when that happens, our efforts have to double. Unfortunately, our staff has not doubled."

But in the wake of citizens' critical testimony against the RRC, Mullican assured the some 50 West Texans at the hearing: "I'll guarantee there'll be some action on it (any complaint). It will be investigated."

Mullican noted that the RRC has required the lining of pits since 1966. He said a lining's usable life "depends on how well it's maintained."

And on the pit question, Geistweidt suggested the oil industry simply let the water evaporate and then somehow dispose of the salt and other residue.

"Throw it in the ocean or somewhere else where it wouldn't matter," he proposed.

Midway in the hearing, Geistweidt, a Mason rancher-attorney who seemed to be getting oriented to the oil patch, appeared slightly piqued that the House water subcommittee was taking complaints which logically belong in the RRC's files.

"It's not right," he said, "for citizens to come before a legislative committee to get the Railroad Commission to do

Haig blames staff for leak of quotes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. blamed "my loyal staff" Friday for a leak of alleged notes which quote him as predicting that Egypt may turn its back on Israel.

The State Department, meanwhile, launched an investigation to find who was responsible for leaking the material. The notes are sure to embarrass Haig, even though they reflect views he was widely known to have held.

"Egypt will go back to (the) Arab world with (the) United States isolated as Israel's sole defender," Haig is alleged to have confided in private meetings with his staff, according to an account in The Washington Post Friday.

Haig commented on the report at a news conference held in Bal Harbour, Fla., that was relayed to reporters in the State Department.

The secretary also revealed that American military advisers in El Salvador may be allowed to carry M-16 rifles for protection, relaxing a restriction that they carry only sidearms.

At the conference, Haig charged Nicaragua's leftist government is responsible for the "wholesale slaughtering" of the Miskito Indian population of that country.

In the printed account of his private staff meeetings, Haig was said to have called British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington a "duplicitous bastard" and criticized members of President Reagan's staff, although not Reagan himself.

The Post said the notes had been taken by a participant at meetings between Haig and key members of his staff over the past year.

"HENRY KISSINGER had his Oriana Fallaci and I have my loyal staff," Haig told reporters at the new conference. Ms. Fallaci, an Italian journalist, once conducted a candid interview with Kissinger that embarrassed the former secretary of state when it was published. Kissinger confided things he later said he regretted.

Haig declined to comment on any specific points of the notes and appeared to question whether the quotations were accurate.

"I'm not going to comment in any way on an alleged compendium expanded over a period since March of last year over an extensive period of deliberation," Haig said. "To do so would be lending a level of credibility to those alleged reports that are neither justified nor would be good sense."

While not commenting on the specifics, Haig cracked three quick jokes about the leak:

"First, I couldn't have been me speaking. It was too clear.

"Second, I don't recall at any period in my year-plus incumbency at the State Department such exciting staff meetings.

"Third, I hope this finally puts to rest the charge that there is no imagination in the State Department."

A STATE DEPARTMENT spokesman, Alan Romberg, said an investigation had been ordered to determine who leaked the notes, but declined to say whether it could include asking staff members to take lie detector tests.

At the White House, deputy presidential press secretary Larry Speakes said he had spoken with Reagan about the story and "he didn't have any reaction I wish to convey to you."

The excerpts said that on Oct. 15, after Great Britain claimed that Saudi Arabia was exerting pressure to prevent it from joining a proposed Sinai multi-national peace-keeping force, Haig made his comment about Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington.

"European Friends — just plain cowardly. British lying through their teeth on MFO (Multinational Force and Observers). Saudis never pressured British and Europeans on MFO," Haig was quoted as saying.

Truck full of lettuce overturns

Two men escaped serious injury when this 1979 Peterbilt truck overturned on the FM 1788 off-ramp of eastbound Interstate 20 about 8:50 a.m. Friday. Driver Cyril Smith, 31, of Hackensack, N.J., and passenger James L. Barba, 24, of Greenville, N.C., were treated for minor injuries at Midland Memorial Hospital. The 18-wheeler was carrying a load of boxed lettuce.

Reagan says defense increase buys security

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said Friday that "the very safety of this nation" hinges on his proposed increases in defense spending.

Citing information that he said only he and a few others have, Reagan said "a number of years" remain before the United States can begin closing "the window of vulnerability that has opened between us and the Soviet Union."

Reagan said the pace of the nation's economic recovery also rests with Congress, which he said must approve his $757.6 billion spending plan for fiscal 1983.

"They can delay this recovery very much if they do not give us the further cuts that we're asking for," he said.

The president made his remarks in a 20-minute conference with newspaper editors and television and radio station news directors invited to the White House for briefings with administration officials and a luncheon with Reagan in the state dining room.

He brought up the question of defense spending, which he wants to increase by 18 percent next year, in an opening statement.

"There are things that in this job, there is information that you have, probably you're the only person, plus a few immediately around you, who have that information," he said. "I am as firm in my conviction that the very safety of this nation requires that we go forward with the defense spending program as we've laid it out."

He continued:

"The difference in the potential and what the Soviet Union has built up to and the rate at which it is increasing building is going to leave us still a number of years before we even begin to close the window of vulnerability that has been opened between us and the Soviet Union."

The president said that most of the defense spending is for manpower, maintenance and for readiness.

"If we eliminated all the major weapons programs that are scheduled, it would only reduce next year's deficit by $6.5 billion," he said. "At the same time it would send a message to the world that we were unilaterally disarming."

Reagan has forecast a 1983 deficit of $91.5 billion.

While White House aides have said the nation would pull out of the economic recession late in the spring or early in the summer, Reagan told the news executives he has been "trying to avoid a date" for the recovery.

He said that any period discussed by the administration becomes similar to "a statement of fact."

"Suddenly, if you pass the first day of that particular month, and something has not happened as yet, it will be viewed as a calamity," he said. "So we think it is just better to tell you that we believe that things are going to improve in the second quarter and we believe we will be on an upturn in the latter half of the last two quarters of the year."

BUT, HE SAID, "THE PROGRAM of course depends on the Congress passing the second installment which is the budget that we have up on the (Capitol) Hill as of now."

Federal Reserve Board Governor Lyle Gramley also predicted Friday that a modest recovery was likely to get under way sometime around the second quarter of this year.

Gramley, one of seven members of the central bank's policy-making board, told a group of money managers the Federal Reserve is "very glad" to receive a strong endorsement from Reagan for its anti-inflationary tight-money policies, which have been blamed for pushing up interest rates.

The president, who had been critical of the Fed in recent weeks, issued a conciliatory statement at his news conference Thursday, pledging to work with the bank in reducing inflation.

Reagan said Friday that since his program of tax and budget cuts went into effect in October, "there has been a decided increase in private savings."

Thus, he said, "there is hope on the scene of capital."

However, the Commerce Department reported Friday that personal saving last month dropped 4 percent to an annual rate of $115.7 billion, the second monthly decline in a row.

And the national saving rate, with figures lagging the rest of the report by one month, fell to 5.8 percent in December after hitting 6 percent in October and 6.1 percent in November.

Rent may level off, TAA president says

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

An estimated 4,000 to 6,000 new apartments units should be opening up within the next year and that should level out the rent costs in Midland, according to the president of Texas Apartment Association, Barry Gillingwater.

The Austin man spoke to members of the Midland and Odessa apartment associations during a luncheon Friday at Ranchland Hills Country Club and focused on what is being done to improve the image of apartment managers throughout the state.

Even with the additional apartments, he noted the market may be tight, "but you'll be able to find an apartment. We won't have a bust here, but you'll see some leveling off in rent prices." As to future rent costs, he added, "It's supply-side economics — whatever the market will bear."

He noted that rents in Midland had been behind until the past couple of years. And what may have seemed like large rent increases primarily were just a catch-up. Gillingwater added that rents will continue to "eke up," mentioning a 5 to 10 percent a year rise.

"Figuratively, if you pay $100 a month, the increase should be $10. If anyone out there is gouging you, you've got to get it straightened out." And during his talk he warned the managers not to increase the rent and fail to put it back into maintaining and improving the apartments.

"Some owners are taking advantage of their situation," he said. "If you're getting more rent, put back some of that money into the apartment. If you keep raising the rent simply because there is a 100 percent market, you need to start doing repairs. Otherwise, you're hurting the rest of TAA."

This bad manager, he noted, hurts the TAA image. "We're out to get the bad TAA member out of the organization. And we should be able to take care of the bad landlord."

TAA members, he noted, represent "property with a market value exceeding $13.5 billion, real estate taxes exceeding $225 million, fire and extended coverage insurance premiums from $45 million to $55 million and an estimated 20,000 full-time employees."

Apartments, he noted, "provide one of the basic necessities in life, and that is housing." And in this state there is a diminishing supply of apartments coupled with an increasing demand for apartments.

In outlining the benefits offered by TAA to apartment managers, Gillingwater said, "The short-term goal and the long-term goal of TAA is to improve the public image and perception of rental housing industry. To a large degree, our public image depends on the degree to which we handle our tenants."

Historically, the landlord conjures up a bad image, he said, mentioning the cartoon character of Snidely Whiplash.

To change that image, Gillingwater suggested the TAA members "disseminate positive information on the local and state levels. We're responsible business people working for the good of our residents."

He noted that tenants often mention the owner shouldn't make a profit from an apartment complex. In answer, Gillingwater said, "This industry is a vital part of free enterprise — working for a profit. We're in this business to make money. We've only been ekeing out a 3 to 4 percent profit. I find it frightening that people would think

Witnesses say RRC favors oil industry

what they are supposed to do now."

ODESSAN JIM BATTE, who claimed that his underground, so-called drinking water has been rendered unpotable by oilfield brine seepage into his water supply just northwest of Odessa, said he was appreciative of the committee's willingness to ponder complaints against the oil companies and the RRC. Batte said he was primed to "use bullets and a rope instead of ballots and reports" in getting his problem aired and solved.

"I hope you haven't gotten to that point yet," quipped Geistweidt. "Give us an hour's head start."

Batte said he was not satisfied at all with what has gone on in the past. He said Robert Bradshaw of the Texas Department of Water Resources' staff in Odessa checked out his underground water and suggested that since Batte's problem was "oil-field related," he would "have to turn it over to the Railroad Commission."

By law, the RRC is charged with protecting ground waters in and around oil fields and thus overpowers the Water Resources Department.

Batte suggested that a quick panacea might be in allowing Water Resources to take over the RRC's job of protecting fresh water in the oil fields and adjoining areas.

Geistweidt was not so persuaded.

"I'm not sure how much you could accomplish moving things from one agency to another," the legislator said.

"We've ridden that horse long enough," Batte countered in voicing his confidence in Water Resources. "Let's change mounts and see if we can get a little faster ride."

"The Railroad Commission does have tremendous authority," noted Rep. J.W. Buchanan of Dumas.

Geistweidt, however, said, "There's nothing to prevent the Water Resources from being dominated" by the same practices carried out by the RC.

Rep. Jerry Cockerham of Monahans defended the oil companies.

"Most of the major oil companies are very concerned over preserving the natural, fresh water," he said.

Cockerham also took exception to Batte's charge that the RRC tended to "procrastinate" on a violation until the "statute of limitations ran out."

"Now, I flatly do not agree with that," Cockerham said. "On a general scale, I found them (RRC) to be very responsive."

ODESSA RANCHER Bob Steakley, who lauded water as "sacred and precious and necessary for life support," said the oil industry's "old standard way of doing things" has resulted in contamination of water formations and land.

Steakley handed Geistweidt a patch from a lining of an open pit.

"It's kind of interesting," said Geistweidt. "It looks like a garbage bag we use to carry trash out."

Another witness, Orval Allen of Dumas, said "It really has become disheartening in trying to get something done" about the RRC's shutting down of offending pits or getting the RRC to demand that oil companies plug abandoned oil wells and repair leaking casing in existing wells.

"If they're under-staffed, I say give them the staff they need," Allen said of the RRC.

Iraan rancher Clayton Smith said his complaint about oil field brine seeping into his drinking water went unheeded by the RRC until he sent out letters voicing his grievances to the Environmental Protection Agency, Texas Gov. Bill Clements, congressmen and, among others, to Water Resources Department officials.

"These oil companies are repeatedly doing things like this (not plugging wells) day in and day out," he charged. "We going to face the day when we don't have any water. None."

ENVIRONMENTAL geologist Midge Erskine of Midland said she has "seen the (water) problem deteriorate" in West Texas since 1976. "It's not getting any better," she said. "The ground water is contaminated," she said.

Mrs. Erskine accused the RRC of not properly regulating the oil industry. Specifically, she claimed the RRC district office in Midland had not followed up complaints of open pits and suspected misdeeds in salt-water disposals, such as that at Whalen Lake near Andrews, which she had told the district office.

"The Railroad Commission by law is supposed to protect our fresh water," she said. "They are not doing it."

Mrs. Erskine also said that she has been adyised of a case in which well pluggers used 10 sacks of cement to close a well but charged an oil company the price of 100 sacks.

"Do you have any documentation that this is going on?" asked Cockerham. "We've heard a lot of accusations that are unfounded."

The Monahans legislator, who also is a minister, said he personally thinks the oil companies "are doing a good job."

However, Mrs. Erskine was critical of Archie Farr, director of the RRC's Midland district office. She said that Farr once "stood out there in the oil" in Whalen Lake in Andrews County "and said it was iron sulfide."

She was Farr was mistaken.

"I'd like to take you (legislators) out in the field to show you what is going on" in the way of violations of RRC rules and regulations. Mrs. Erskine suggested the on-site tour of the oil fields would be even more convincing to the legislators than "listening to us rant and rave about it (oil field pollution.)" Geistweidt indicated that the committee might take Mrs. Erskine up on her offer.

She contended the overall quality of water will not begin to improve "until everyone is doing their job." Saying that she approves of salt-water disposal, she cautioned that brine should be disposed of properly in sealed-off formations well below the fresh-water aquifers.

"We don't have that much water in this area." Like some others, she was adamantly against using fresh water in secondary recovery of oil.

Briefly, Mrs. Erskine digressed from water pollution and said that officials "should not accept gifts," including "free airplane rides to football games and Christmas gifts" from the private sector.

"And I don't think it should be allowed," she said.

Geistweidt, who appeared somewhat surprised by the accusation, said the charges should be investigated.

"If the attorney general will not pursue the matter, we (legislators) will," he said.

REX DUNN, a Seminole cotton ginner who is president of a soil-and-water conservation district, told of his apprehensions of illnesses and deaths possibly related to high-salt contents of water and of chemicals in water consumed by humans.

Panhandle rancher Gene Hall said that his ground water has been adversely affected by oil field brine. "There's very little water down there for livestock purposes," he said.

Hall said that he doesn't always get satisfaction from the RRC.

"The water people (Water Resources) are more concerned about the water," interjected Rep. Foster Whaley of Pampa, "and the Railroad Commission can't be unreasonable with the oil companies; they can't be dictatorial."

Hall said he was concerned about water for future generations.

"Once it's polluted, it's always polluted," Hall said.

The legislators and their audience recognized the indispensability of water.

"We're going to need water after the oil is gone, don't you think?" Whaley asked.

Pleasant weekend expected in area

A pleasant weekend is in store for residents of the Permian Basin, if what National Weather Service forecasters say is correct.

The NWS at Midland Regional Airport has indicated that partly cloudy skies and warmer temperatures are expected today, with fair skies and continued moderate temperatures on Sunday. The high today and Sunday should reach the mid-70s, while the low tonight should be near 40.

Friday was another springlike day in Midland as a near-ideal temperature of 70 was reached during the afternoon, while the overnight low was 40. Those extremes were pleasant compared with the all-time records for the date of 80 in 1948 and 18 in 1955.

No rainfall is in the forecast, and the month's total remains at 0.01 inch and the year's at 0.43 inch.

profit is a dirty word."

He also recommended managers explain where the money is going — that it costs $8 an hour to hire someone to clean the swimming pool or the yards, that taxes are going up, that interest rates are high for building the complex.

Unless the apartment associations' can create this better image and explain why costs are up, cities face opposition from organized neighborhood groups. And he said that what happens in California ripples out to Texas in a few years.

California, he said, instituted rent controls a few years ago and that has stopped the housing market in that Pacific Coast state. "It's stifled free enterprise in the apartment industry out there. Rent control is a real bad deal — no investor will come in and create more housing."

Under Texas law, Gillingwater added, rent controls can't be imposed.

Mistrial declared in conspiracy trial

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A federal judge declared a mistrial Friday in the trial of five law enforcement officers from Bessemer charged with conspiracy in the alleged torture of six black prisoners.

The all-white jury returned to the courtroom late in the afternoon and reported it was "hopeless deadlocked" on the conspiracy charges against the officers, all of whom are white.

However, jurors decided that the officers were innocent of abusing three of the prisoners, but could not decide on a verdict in regard to the other three prisoners.

The officers were charged with using cattle prods, beatings, shots fired from blank guns and syringes to force information from six prisoners.

U.S. District Judge James Hancock set a new trial for April 5. All five defendants will face retrial on the conspiracy charges.

Lt. Douglas Acker, Sgt. Lamar Cruce, Officer Stephen Crump and state liquor agent Robert Bassett each were charged with directly abusing the prisoners. Bessemer Police Commissioner Max Williams was charged with knowing and approving of their methods, or only conspiracy.

The jury deliberated half of Thursday and most of Friday before reporting it was deadlocked.

The six prisoners were Amos McCrary, Gates Pritchett, Anthony Carter, Michael Tartt, William Kennard and Alfred Washington.

In returning its partial verdict of acquittal, the jury decided that Acker, Cruce, Crump and Bassett were innocent of abusing McCrary, Pritchett and Carter. The jury was deadlocked on whether the officers abused Tartt, Kennard and Washington.

Pecos churches honor Dr. Coleman

PECOS — Dr. Viola Coleman of Midland will be honored today and Sunday by two Pecos churches.

Dr. Coleman will meet with local residents from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. today at Friendship Methodist Church Hall, while at 11 a.m. Sunday she will speak on Afro-American history at St. James Baptist Church.

DEATHS

Joe Fulfer

Joe Fulfer, 23, of 2608 Maxwell died early Friday at his home after a one-month illness.

Graveside services will be at 4 p.m. today in Resthaven Memorial Park with the Rev. Lindsay McQuoid, associate minister of St. Luke's United Methodist Church, officiating. Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

He was born Jan. 8, 1959, in Guyman, Okla. He lived in Gruver before moving to Midland in 1980. He was a 1981 graduate of The University of Texas at Austin with a degree in economics and was an accountant at John Wilson Drilling Company. He was a Methodist.

Survivors include his mother, Marie Fulfer of Midland; a brother, Jay Fulfer of Midland; and two sisters, Joy Moore of Bury St. Edmunds, England, and Sue Smith of Woodward, Okla.

The family requests memorials be directed to Hospice, P.O. Box 2621, Midland, 79702.

Police investigate burglaries

Midland police investigated a rash of burglaries which occurred in the early morning hours Friday and another which came in the aftermath of a major traffic accident.

Some $60 in cassette tapes were taken and $200 in damages inflicted in the burglary of an auto belonging to Ron Cotton of 1209 W. Texas Ave. The burglary was reported to officers at 6:36 a.m. Friday.

Sam Hollis of 111 N. G St. told investigators at 7:40 a.m. that an AM-FM cassette player valued at $400 was taken in the burglary of his vehicle.

At 8:19 a.m. Curtis McFarland of 1506 W. Illinois Ave. reported that a stereo, jacket and hat were taken in the burglary of his vehicle, parked at his home.

At 1:27 p.m. Donna Chappell told police that items valued at $675 were taken from a vehicle involved in a major accident in the 4200 block of W. Wall St.

Police also investigated the burglary of a building at Resthaven Memorial Park. According to a police report, $1,100 in items were taken from a building on the premises.

Rabies cases double in last 3 years

ATLANTA (AP) — The number of documented cases of animal rabies has more than doubled in the United States in the last three years, the national Centers for Disease Control said Friday.

At least 7,000 cases of animal rabies were reported in 1981, and the CDC is still receiving reports of animal rabies from December, said veterinary epidemiologist Dr. Gregory Parham of the CDC.

In 1978, a total of 3,298 cases of animal rabies were reported in the United States, the CDC said in its Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report.

Iowa led the nation last year in the number of reported cases of animal rabies with 889 cases — a 68 percent

Benefit to be today

A benefit dance to help cancer victim Gilbert Martinez with his medical bills will be held today from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m. at the Alamo Dance Floor, Interstate 20 and Midkiff.

Two bands, Bando Macho and Mas Pesado, will donate their playing services and homemade Mexican food will be served.

Tickets will be $6 at the door.

British government pulls out of DeLorean

LONDON (AP) — The British government declared the U.S.-run De Lorean Motor Co. in Northern Ireland insolvent Friday, but receivers said they hoped to restructure the company to keep it in business and salvage some jobs.

"We have lost a great deal of money," said Northern Ireland Secretary James Prior after announcing in the House of Commons the government's decision not to invest more money in the business.

British taxpayers have poured nearly $148 million into the firm, which was founded four years ago in partnership with former General Motors vice-president John Z. De Lorean.

His dream to provide an affordable luxury sports car for the American market foundered on rocky economic conditions and a slump in U.S. car sales.

Less than 5,000 of the 7,000 gull-winged, stainless steel cars built at the plant in troubled Belfast have been sold. De Lorean originally hoped to build 30,000 of the cars a year for the U.S. market.

Princess Diana pictures infuriate queen

ELEUTHERA, Bahamas (AP) — Bahamian officials rounded up several foreign photographers and took them off this Bahamian Out Island after photographs of a pregnant Princess Diana in a bikini angered her mother-in-law, Queen Elizabeth II.

Two rival British tabloid newspapers apologized to the royal family Friday for printing the photographs of the vacationing princess and her husband, Prince Charles.

The photographs were made with long lenses from dense tropical underbrush.

Photographers from several photo agencies and from United Press International were taken into custody Thursday and taken to the local airport after the reaction in England reached the Bahamas, photographers reported.

Dozens of photographers from Europe and the United States flocked to Eleuthera this week when the royal couple arrived for a private, 10-day retreat on the secluded island of Windermere.

Charles and Diana, expecting their first child in June, are staying at Provender Villa, a four-bedroom house owned by the royal family.

The photographs of the couple on the beach, taken Wednesday, were published Thursday in the Sun and the Daily Star, two mass-circulation dailies. Both papers apologized Friday and said they were withdrawing their teams of reporters and photographers from the Bahamas.

Space Shuttle-3 pilot Gorden Fullerton jumps out of the emergency egress cage after a simultated escape from the Space Shuttle.

Glenn can't believe it's been 20 years since flight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chunks of flaming metal streaked past the windows of Friendship 7 as it hurtled back to Earth. John Glenn wondered if the heat shield were breaking up, whether his back was getting warm. If so, he thought, "that's all she wrote."

Millions of Americans tracked that flight on Feb. 20, 1962 — the first orbital mission of a U.S. astronaut. But only a handful were aware of the fiery drama which had Glenn squirming in his seat as the tiny space capsule re-entered the atmosphere.

"I can't really believe it's been 20 years," Glenn says.

"I remember thinking, if that's the heat shield breaking up, I'm going to start feeling heat on my back," he said an interview in his Senate office. "It concentrated your attention rather wonderfully."

Friendship 7 circled the Earth three times, and Glenn was facing backwards as it began the tumble into the Atlantic. If the heat shield were breaking up under the enormous friction of reentry, space capsule and astronaut would disintegrate long before splashdown.

The automatic control system was inoperative; Glenn was working the manual controls. But it was impossible not to keep thinking about his back.

He recalled "being almost super-sensitive on the back and, boy, is that getting warmer and squirming around and, meanwhile, you're working the hand controller and get this thing going right because the automatic system was out ... and I remember thinking, if I start feeling heat on my back, that's all she wrote.

"But there's nothing I can do about it so you just keep right on working like you were trained to do it."

As it turned out, the flaming material Glenn saw was pieces of the retro-pack, the rockets used to slow down the space craft for its return to Earth.

Glenn returned to a dizzying national celebration. He was a hero, America's Buck Rogers, the Marine officer who put the nation back in the race to space.

He was honored at the White House and addressed a joint session of Congress. Millions of New Yorkers turned out for a ticker-tape parade.

"There was so much acclaim and so much adulation and so much of everything that poured over us like syrup from the day I got back," he recalled. "It went on and on and on and on and on."

"Annie and I were very concerned that our kids would get warped out of shape and they were in their very early teen years at that point." But the family survived. "I think we did a pretty good job keeping our kids and our family together.

"It gave us some tremendous opportunities to know a lot of people we might not have otherwise known."

And it gave him the kind of name recognition that is invaluable in politics.

Now a U.S. senator from Ohio, Glenn is often mentioned as a possible 1984 Democratic presidential candidate.

"It's mainly hard for me to believe it's been that long," said Glenn. "...It would be rather a rare day that somebody didn't mention something about it. So, I talk about it so much that the whole thing still remains very vivid. It seems to me like it happened a few years ago."

United Way may lose 10% of funding

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — The local United Way stands to lose 10 percent of its 1982 fund if employees at the nuclear weapons assembly plant, upset with Catholic Family Services, continue to pull out of the drive.

The employees, who contributed $220,000 of the $2.06 million pledged this year to United Way, are upset that Catholic Family Services will provide job counseling to workers who voluntarily leave Pantex, the final assembly point for the nation's nuclear weapons.

Bishop L.T. Matthiesen, head of the Amarillo Roman Catholic Diocese, announced establishment last Saturday of a "solidarity peace fund" to provide financial aid and counseling help for workers who may want to leave Pantex.

Last August, Bishop Matthiesen spoke out against the Reagan administration's decision to manufacture and stockpile neutron weapons.

Astronauts finish rehearsal of launch despite problems

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Astronauts Jack Lousma and Gordon Fullerton on Friday completed a successful dress rehearsal of the launch of the space shuttle Columbia, but there were minor problems that could have delayed an actual launch.

The 33-hour dry run for the planned March 22 launch was completed at 10:16 a.m. EST, 16 minutes behind schedule.

Two of the difficulties, extreme fog and failure of a steering unit, would have interfered with an actual liftoff, according to officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

A third snag, this one in a computer program, was peculiar only to dry runs and would not have affected a regular launch.

Shuttle launch Director George Page joined Lousma and Fullerton in calling the test a success, despite the difficulties.

"The run was successful and accomplished our objectives," Page said.

Lousma, who will be commander of the planned seven-day mission, added, "We look for some of those things to happen."

Fullerton, Columbia's pilot, said, "We learned a lot from it. We recommend that every crew go through this in the future."

The steering problem was in the solid-rocket booster involved a "rate gyro assembly," which sends information to the spacecraft's computers to steer the craft.

"The ... failure evidently would have stopped a (real) launch ... but we went on with the countdown," Fullerton said after he and Lousma left the Columbia's cockpit after the test.

Secretary of State Alexander Haig and AFL-Cio president Lane Kirkland meet head-on at the AFL-CIO's annual mid-winter meeting of it's executive council in Bal Harbour, Fla., Friday. The labor group is at odds with Reagan's economic and foreign policies.

Craddick top area spender

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — State Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland, was the top spender among Midland area House members during fiscal 1981, according to an audit of House and Senate spending released recently by the State Auditor's Office.

According to the audit report, dated Dec. 30, 1981, Craddick spent $41,492 for operation of his House offices during the year. Those expenses included $25,101 in payroll expense, $5,130 for communications expense, $2,399 in other operating expense, $913 in travel expense, $5,678 in postage and $2,302 in other House services.

Spending by other Midland area lawmakers included Reps. Jerry Cockerham, R-Monahans, $37,555; Jay Gibson, D-Odessa, $38,974; Joe Hanna, D-Breckenridge, $18,408; and Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring, $40,805.

Former Rep. Richard Slack, D-Pecos, also spent $11,930 during the year, while former Rep. Mike Ezzell of Snyder spent $5,391.

Slack's term expired Jan. 13, 1981, and Ezzell resigned Oct. 15, 1980.

Rep. Al Price, D-Beaumont, was the top spender among all House members with $70,779 in total expenses.

On the Senate side, Sen. W.E. "Pete" Snelson, D-Midland, spent $89,851, including $74,710 for salaries and per diem pay, $1,387 for supplies and materials, $1,317 for communications expense, $6,316 for other operating expenses, $2,689 for travel expense, $1,471 for services and fees, $1,950 for postage and $7.41 for printing.

State Sen. E.L. Short, D-Tahoka, spent $94,560 during the year.

Houston Sen. Walter Mengden, a Republican, was the leading spender in the Senate with $162,275 in total expenses.

Haig clashes with labor leaders over Poland embargo

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. clashed Friday with AFL-CIO leaders in a foreign policy face-off that produced a fresh Reagan Administration repudiation of labor's call for a full-scale economic embargo against the Soviet Union.

Haig told a news conference afterward that he rejected the AFL-CIO's demand for the embargo, saying the grain embargo tried by then-President Carter in reprisal for the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan did not work.

But he said the administration wasn't ruling out any options for dealing with the imposition of martial law in Poland.

Haig said the federation's call for the embargo was "very understandable, but unfortunately, from my point of view, we had an experience with a grain embargo ... and without a unified approach (with Western allies), it would be self-defeating ... an unjustified punishment of the American farmer."

The secretary of state contended the United States and its allies already have acted in a "historically unprecedented way" to bring pressure on both the Soviet Union and its Warsaw Pact partner.

"If we spend all of our time criticizing Western nations, we are going to risk turning a profound Eastern failure into a profound Western failure, and I will have no part of that," he said.

Haig indicated that the question of extending "future credits" to Poland is the issue "of greatest importance," but did not support the AFL-CIO's demand that the Polish government's current debts to U.S. banks be recalled.

AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland told a news conference later that the more than two-hour meeting with Haig didn't produce agreement on major issues such as Poland.

Kirkland said that, while Haig did not rule out a full-scale embargo, "he made some statements that would indicate that he is more impressed by the case against, rather than the case for," such an action.

The labor leader also said Haig expressed doubts, "which I considered a negative view, about the desirability of calling the loans into default."

Haig had suggested any full-scale economic embargo would, in effect, be a grain embargo, saying grain represents about three-fourths of U.S. shipments to Poland.

President Reagan in late December suspended shipments of some high-technology items to the Soviets, but the AFL-CIO said the administration hasn't gone far enough and that Reagan has reneged on a commitment to take stronger actions if martial law were not lifted.

Haig said the American labor movement historically has been a "bulwark against totalitarianism," and said he found the meeting with labor leaders "very, very productive, very challenging and spicy." But he said the AFL-CIO leadership seems "impatient" about the response to the Polish situation by the United States' Western allies.

Asked about this, Kirkland said, "that's correct if you add anothr clause — our Western allies and our government."

Haig's meeting with the executive council lasted twice as long as the session held Tuesday with Vice President George Bush.

Rule would reguire parents be told of birth control

WASHINGTON (AP) — Health and Human Services Secretary Richard S. Schweiker on Friday formally proposed a regulation that would require family planning clinics to notify parents if their teen-age daughters are given birth control pills, diaphragms or intrauterine devices.

"The government should not construct a 'Berlin Wall' between parents and children," Schweiker said in a statement. "We should also not assume teen-agers will risk becoming pregnant rather than let their parents know they are sexually active."

Liberals in Congress, several national medical groups and Planned Parenthood of America have charged that Schweiker's notification rule will discourage teen-agers from using contraceptives and lead to more pregnancies and abortions.

The proposed rule, which will be published Monday in the Federal Register, would not require the clinics to get parents' consent. But they would have to notify the parents within 10 days after giving any prescription drug or device to an "unemancipated minor" 17 or younger. Since boys normally would get only non-prescription condoms at a clinic, the rule effectively covers only girls.

The public has 60 days to comment on the proposal.

At a Feb. 9 hearing, Rep. Henry A. Waxman, D-Calif., chairman of a House Commerce subcommittee on health, told Schweiker that he was putting "Big Brother government between the parent and the child." Some conservatives feel the rule should be stricter and require parental consent.

PRESIDENT Reagan endorsed Schweiker's rule at a news conference Thursday, saying "young people couldn't get their appendix out without their parents' permission. ... I think the government has no business injecting itself between parent and child in a family relationship and where it is very definitely a problem of concern to parents who are responsible for the children."

The regulation would waive the notification requirement if it "would result in physical harm to the minor by a parent or guardian." But the rule states that this "exception is meant to apply to cases where there is evidence of a history of child abuse, sexual abuse or incest, or where there are other substantial grounds to determine that notification would result in physical harm."

"The exception does not apply to cases where notification would result in no more than disciplinary actions of an unsubstantial nature," the proposal states.

The rules would not require parental notification if the teen-ager was getting a prescription drug to treat venereal disease.

Schweiker said, "It is paradoxical that parents must give written permission before a child can go on a school trip, but when drugs and devices with potentially serious health consequences are prescribed, federal policy until now has not recognized parental involvement and responsibility."

He said parents have a right to know when their child is given a prescription drug or device that puts the child's health at risk.

The proposed regulation is hinged on a line in last year's Adolescent Family Life law passed by Congress that said the programs should "encourage and sustain the role of the family in dealing with adolescent sexual activity and adolescent pregnancy."

SCHWEIKER also cited a Planned Parenthood study that found "an overwhelming majority of sexually active teen-agers would continue to use contraceptives with parental knowledge, while only 4 percent would continue to be sexually active but not use any contraception."

That study, by Planned Parenthood's Alan Guttmacher Institute, found that 54 percent of the teen-agers' parents already knew they were using contraceptives and 18 percent said they would go to the clinics anyway even if their parents found out.

Texas Gov. Bill Clements explains proposed changes in the country's immigration policies for Mexicans. Clements and Gov. Roberto de la Madrid of Baja California, Mexico, left, and Gov. Bruce King, right, of New Mexico met Friday.

Local governments forced to reduce services, up taxes to cope with cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Local governments are being forced to reduce services and raise taxes to cope with the federal budget cuts pushed through by President Reagan during his first year in office, according to an Associated Press survey of county officials.

And that trend appears certain to accelerate with the latest cuts that Reagan requested in the 1983 budget he sent to Congress on Feb. 1.

"Most counties are in rough shape and they'll have trouble surviving under the present direction of the new federalism," said Mike Murphy, a Democratic commissioner of Grays Harbor County, Wash.

"To maintain current efforts, local taxes must go up together with fees," said John H. Hoober, administrator of Lancaster County, Pa. "Even then, some services will be curtailed or eliminated."

Murphy and Hoober were among nearly 300 county officials from all parts of the nation who responded to the AP survey.

Nearly two-thirds of the officials said the only way they can deal with reduced federal assistance is to raise taxes and cut services.

FOR MANY AMERICANS it appeared likely that the increases in local taxes and user fees would outweigh any savings realized from the federal income tax cuts that are part of the Reagan economic program.

County officials also expressed strong doubts that local government would be treated fairly by the states in the distribution of federal block grants.

While many county officials said they are seeing some wavering in public support for the Reagan economic program, most said backing for the budget cuts remains strong.

In most cases the questionnaires were filled out before the president outlined his new federalism plan and sent his budget to Congress.

The survey was conducted in cooperation with the National Association of Counties, which opens its annual convention in Washington on Monday. The principal topic of discussion will be administration plans to turn back 43 federal programs to state and local governments, beginning in fiscal 1984.

Meanwhile, Mayor William Donald Schaefer of Baltimore, a Democrat, told the congressional Joint Economic Committee on Friday that transferring aid to the states would be "a disaster" for the cities. "We will not have the political clout" in state legislatures to overcome suburban and rural influences, he said.

Democratic Mayor Joseph P. Riley Jr. of Charleston, S.C., said cities welcomed the additional responsibilities of new federalism. But he said budget cuts were denying cities the resources needed for continued growth.

Although defending the goal of making local government more self-reliant, Republican Mayor William H. Hudnut of Indianapolis said cities "have taken our fair share of the budget reductions." He added, "It's time to look elsewhere for further savings."

IN HIS RESPONSE TO THE AP survey, William David Smith, executive of Fayette County, Tenn., described the political dilemna of local officials. "I see local support for the president's program," he said. "But when local taxes have to increase to maintain essential services because of federal cuts, local government will be blamed and Reagan applauded."

But many officials remain hard-line backers of the president and his economic program.

"Taxpayers favor it overwhelmingly," County Judge Melvin L. Burks of Lynn County, Tex., said of Reagan's program. "Loafers and welfare groups do not like it. As a whole, our county supports his program."

Paul Sevigny of Caledonia County, Vt., said the impact of the budget cuts would be "less waste in spending" and added that he believes Reagan "is headed in the right direction."

Dick Hoppes, county judge of Crook County, Ore., where the unemployment rate is 20 percent, said, "Most people here are cognizant of the effect of things beyond his (Reagan's) control and are on a wait-and-see basis."

Hoober noted that Lancaster County, Pa., is a "heavily Republican area. Local support is good but beginning to waiver."

Murphy was one of several county officials from the state of Washington who said local governments were seeking new taxing authority from the state legislature.

He said Grays Harbor is "far from a typical county. We are well off financially at the present time. We have laid off no employees and have cut no services. This will not continue if the administration continues along present lines."

As for the political impact, Murphy said, "I'm a Democrat, but my Republican commissioner friends are getting nervous."

Plan proposed to legalize alien workers

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The governors of Texas, New Mexico and Baja California, Mexico, recommended a four-point plan Friday for making it easier for Mexicans to legally work in the United States.

The plan would include issuance of an exit visa by Mexico, an entry visa by the United States and a non-counterfeitable Social Security card to Mexicans entering the country.

"As long as we have a subclass of people who come to this country to work who are in fact illegal, we will have problems," said Texas Gov. Bill Clements. "I want to make these people legal."

Clements met with Gov. Bruce King of New Mexico and Gov. Roberto de la Madrid of Baja California as a subcommittee of the Border Governor's Conference to prepare suggestions for the Reagan administration and Congress, which is to begin consideration of the president's proposed immigration policy next month.

The conference includes governors of the four U.S. and six Mexican states that share a common border.

King said the proposals were not discussed before the meeting with California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. or Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbit, who are not members of the subcommittee. Gov. Alfonso Martinez Dominguez of Nuevo Leon, Mexico, who is a member of the subcommittee, was unable to attend and was represented by de la Madrid.

Reagan has proposed an experimental two-year guest worker program that would allow 50,000 Mexican laborers to enter the United States and work temporarily; amnesty for illegal aliens already in this country and fines for employers who employ undocumented aliens.

The governors are not satisfied with the Reagan proposal and came up with the alternative plan, which Clements will present to the administration and the congressional committee considering the issue within the next few weeks.

Referring to Reagan's amnesty program, de la Madrid said, "We do not consider our Mexican citizens who are here working as criminals. We suggest that rather than amnesty, an adjustment of status be put into effect."

Under the governors' plan, Mexicans who wanted to enter the United States would apply with their government for an exit visa. Upon crossing the border, they would be given the entry visa and the new Social Security card, which also would be issued to U.S. citizens who applied for a new card.

"The Mexican nationals would no longer carry this tag of being undocumented aliens," de la Madrid said. "We would like to see that this documentation be rapid and that it gives them the freedom of movement and freedom of choice of residence and jobs."

The fourth point of the governors' proposal would be a "relocation fee" paid by employers of illegal aliens to return the aliens to Mexico.

Clements said there was a "vast difference" between what he and the other governors were suggesting and what Reagan has proposed.

He said the administration's plan to locate illegal aliens currently living in the United States and issuing three-year visas to them would not work because most of the aliens "are migrating back and forth across the border."

The Mexicans who wanted to remain in the United States should be put on a fast-track to citizenship rather than given temporary amnesty, he said.

Record steer sale nets $31,000 in San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A 1,225-pound Charolais steer named "Mellow Yellow" was auctioned for a record $31,000 Friday at the San Antonio Stock Show and Rodeo.

Two local truck sales firms, Rush Enterprises Inc. and Janoe-Kenworth, made the joint bid which surpassed last year's record price of $28,000 for the grand champion steer.

"I was really excited that the steer brought that much money. I wasn't expecting it," said Doug Edwards, a senior at Fredericksburg High School, who showed the animal.

Edwards said he planned to use most of the money to pay expenses at Texas A&M Uniersity where he will major in agriculture business.

Marvin Rush, one of the bidders for the truck firms, said plans called to donate the steer to Boysville, where it may be resold to raise funds.

The reserve grand champion steer was a Maine-Anjou named "Macho Man" and shown by Tommy Shroeder of Georgetown. Beef Barons Restaurants bought that animal for $23,000.

S&L clerk sentenced to six months for embezzlement

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton sentenced former Citizens Savings & Loan Association clerk Darla Jean Rogers to six months in prison and five years probation during a noon hearing Friday in federal court.

Mrs. Rogers, 20, of 3406 Sinclair, had pleaded guilty earlier this month to a one-count indictment alleging she embezzled more than $25,000 from the Midland savings institution last year while she was a tax and insurance clerk for the firm. An FBI investigation began Oct. 22 when Citizens Savings detected the missing money.

In addition to probation and the six-month prison sentence, Bunton ordered her to make restitution of $1,788. The rest of the money has already been repaid.

Noting an autobiography Mrs. Rogers had prepared for the court, Bunton said: "I can't help but be extremely sympathetic to your situation, but you violated a position of trust and I have a responsibility to the community. You knew at the time it was wrong.

"I wish I could find it in my heart to give you (straight) probation, but I believe a split-sentence is best. I wish you the very, very best."

Details of the autobiography were not disclosed, but defense attorney Bill Smith noted she grew up in an alcoholic environment that "was the worst you could experience, even in prison. It is no excuse, but she didn't have the background and learning experiences most of us had. She's sorry for what she did."

Bunton ordered Mrs. Rogers, who is free on a personal recognizance bond, to report to the federal marshal's office March 15. He said he would recommend that she serve her sentence at a federal prison facility in Fort Worth. "It has an excellent counseling program," he added.

Kenneth Carter of Odessa, a former loan officer with the First National Bank of Odessa, is expected to be sentenced March 8 for his involvement in an unrelated fraudulent loan scheme there from Feb. 1979 to April 1980.

Carter, 35, already has pleaded guilty to a two-count federal indictment alleging he bilked the bank out of more than $150,000. He faces a maximum of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine. The most Mrs. Rogers could have received was five years and a $5,000 fine.

Former policeman says 'don't be hero'

By BILL PARRY
Copley News Service

"Don't try to be a hero," the former police inspector said.

"If you find a thief in your house, don't confront him. I can't stress that enough.

"He's in a state of panic. He thinks if he stabs you that will take care of his problem."

That is the studied advice from Robert A. Hair, a security consultant and a retired deputy inspector with the New York Police Department, who has seen his share of stab victims.

"Crime is increasing and there are fewer policeman than ever," the white-haired former police officer said. "So this is a problem every homeowner should be thinking about. But nobody does anything about it until after their own place is broken into."

Nationwide, a burglary is committed every 13 seconds by a thief who gains entry via an unlocked door or window or breaks an inadequate lock. The FBIsays home burglaries, most of which happen during daylight hours, increased 14 percent in 1980 alone and the big majority were committed by thieves who wanted money in a hurry. So they took items they could sell easily — cameras, television sets, stereos, jewelry and coins.

There are piles of statistics to show that it pays to protect your home against the rising tide of residential burglaries because, as Hair says, "your chances of being a burglary victim are very good and getting better. But no one does anything until it is too late."

Hair suggested barriers that will slow down or discourage thieves as a common sense approach to home security. "Not everyone can afford a complicated, expensive electronic system," said Hair in an interview. Then he quoted an old saying — "Let no one be a thief with me as a helper."

Hair said there are five basic barriers: "Delay time is important — every second you delay him helps your chances;" physical — locks, fences; animal — dogs; energy — lights, alarms, telephone; natural barrier — a house on a mountain top; human — a security guard.

But Hair called the telephone the first line of defense. "Don't try to be a hero," Hair repeated. Pick up the telephone and call the police or sheriff. Don't waste any time trying to figure out how to arrest the suspect or frighten him off. Call for help by the professionals.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, February 21, 1982

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Author-humorist Erma Bombeck, film director Sam Peckinpah, and Texas politician-turned-schoolteacher Barbara Jordan celebrate this birthday with you. Also born on this date: Fashion great Hubert de Givenchy, singer Nina Simone and Tricia Nixon Cox. In the months ahead, loved ones play a key role in advancing your career. Be careful not to fool yourself about the way things stand in September and October and things will go swimmingly where business is concerned. Be practical. Get more organized and even sudden changes will not throw you for a loop. Confident and determined, you are destined to go far.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A restless mood can lead to extravagance. Use any free time to best advantage. Collect materials for preparation of tax returns. A romantic connection brings a joyful reaction this evening.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You may feel sentimental today. Get in touch with relatives at a distance. Work pressures ease, allowing you to enjoy yourself. A change of lifestyle boosts your self-confidence.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Study new information on career matters but postpone making a final decision. A minor family crisis commands your attention. You are now able to mix business with pleasure.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Domestic and family matters occupy much of your time. Showmanship pays off handsomely for those who are entertaining at home.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Tempers flare due to lack of consideration. Be especially tactful with an older person who may be feeling neglected. Tend to any long-distance phone calls early in the day.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Some of your day is spent preparing for the upcoming week. Avoid gossip and intrigue by keeping certain information to yourself. A gift you receive starts you on a new hobby.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be diplomatic if offering constructive advice. An opportunity to combine business with pleasure delights you. A handmade gift pleases a friend and saves you money.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Make this a day of putting others before yourself. Mate could feel neglected if you try to work at home. Friends are apt to be more supportive than romantic partner.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A good day for entertaining at home. You can mix business with pleasure successfully if you choose the guest list carefully. Romance is on the minds of many young Sagittarians.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Church services put you in a happy, serene mood. Put your creative ideas on paper. People around you will be in a loving mood. Help a small child solve a problem.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Seize a golden opportunity to mix business with pleasure. Accept an invitation to an influential person's home. Dress smartly to make a good impression.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Do not let your imagination run away with you today. You have plenty of time to stay abreast of current trends.

It's here. The new Individual Retirement Account. The IRA. A personal tax sheltered retirement savings plan for everyone. And it's available at First Savings & Loan Association of Midland. You can literally retire a millionaire, assuming you begin the plan in your late twenties. Not bad. Huh? Accumulations can be very substantial regardless of the age you begin.

Accumulations at retirement based on age of enrollment*

At Age 27 — $1,044,533	At Age 45 — $142,530
At Age 30 — $758,329	At Age 50 — $76,380
At Age 35 — $441,826	At Age 55 — $37,123
At Age 40 — $253,998	At Age 60 — $13,826

How much does it cost?

It's your choice. You decide what you want to contribute annually up to $2,000. At First Savings, we help you tailor your contributions so you can get the results you want at retirement.

How do you start?

Start by coming into First Savings. All IRA's are not the same. And First Savings IRA's have distinct advantages. For complete information, come by, or call us at 683-5681, and ask for a free brochure. And start making plans to retire rich.

*Figures above are based on the assumptions that $2,000 is invested in the account every year until age 65 and that the funds invested draw interest at 11% compounded annually until that age. Your interest rate may be higher or lower than 11%. Substantial penalties are required for early withdrawal.

Paris burglars are busiest

The Los Angles Times-Washington Post NewsService

PARIS (AFP) — Paris burglars are the busiest in the world, staging 26 break-ins per 1,000 inhabitants each year, it was recently reported here.

The national insurance statistics office said that the French capital led Los Angeles, which recorded 25 burglaries per 1,000 inhabitants; New York, with 22; London, 17; and Chicago, 11.

Brussels reported eight burglaries per 1,000 inhabitants, while Japanese burglars registered four in Tokyo and two in the country as a whole.

The insurance bureau figures include break-ins at private homes and offices.

French burglars appear to like the life in the capital, as few operate in the provinces. So few that France as a whole rates only seventh on the list of countries surveyed.

The United States topped the national list, with 15 burglaries a year per 1,000 inhabitants, ahead of Israel with 14; West Germany, 12; and Britain, 11.

The safest place is Spain, where burglars visit only one house a year per 1,000 inhabitants, the report concluded.

Texas has only Islamic school in West

By CHERYL COGGINS
Austin
American-Statesman

BLANCO, Texas (AP) — Maybe the truckers tearing through the little towns of Twin Sisters and Kendalia haven't heard the cry of the man in the tower yet.

And the regulars down at the Blanco Dairy Queen probably haven't looked up from their Coke floats to discover someone dressed like Jesus sitting across the booth.

But the woman from Iran and the teacher from Pakistan know about the rolling chant that serenades the hillsides five times a day. They know of the men and women in robes and sandals who bow to the east, of the dome that breaks into the Hill Country horizon.

The chant comes from a 134-acre Central Texas ranch that has been turned into a school — said to be the only one of its kind in the Western world — for the study of Islam.

"There are Islamic institutions in the world, but they are not using traditional methods," says Ali Hasan, the farm manager at the school. "There is a closer teacher-student relationship here. The students stay as long as it takes to learn. There is no question of anybody flunking out here."

The American Institute of Qur'anic (Koranic) Studies, which opened in early January about 12 miles south of Blanco, is the result of the work of a loosely structured group of Muslims who have established a 50-family community in San Antonio.

SINCE ITS ESTABLISHMENT two years ago, the group has formed the Zahra Trust, which raised the money to buy the acreage and livestock, build the mosque, and hire a faculty.

Although this Kashmiron-the-Blanco might not be traditional Texas, the Muslims who developed the site say it and San Antonio were selected from proposed locations all over the world.

"Members of our community were looking for an area that would be a suitable climate, where there wouldn't be too harsh winters," said Daood Abudl Haleem, the dean of the school and the imam (prayer leader) of the mosque.

"And the people here are friendly people," he said. "We've had many visitors and three people have joined."

Some of the 25 students and staff members living and studying at the school say the institute will attract Muslims from around the world because the practice of Islam in the Blanco countryside is "purer" than that found in many Islamic countries.

The fundamental religious idea of Islam is that a believer, called a Muslim or Moslem, surrenders to the will of Allah, who is viewed as the only god. Followers must adhere to a strict creed that requires five daily prayers, a welfare tax, fasting and a pilgrimage to Mecca.

"I'M FROM IRAN, and I was born a Muslim," said Hajar Alawi, one of the students at the school. "The Islam being lived here is far better than anyplace I've ever been. It's because so much of the inward has been forgotten in Islamic countries."

Sitara Khan, who was born a Muslim in Pakistan, also thinks the enthusiasm of converts helps keep practices at the school closer to the original intent of the Koran, Islam's sacred book, which is studied in classes through the day at the institute.

For many of the institute's Western converts, their new way of life has meant relinquishing carpools and designer jeans for prayer five times a day and strict segregation of the sexes in most situations.

"It's not proper for a man and a woman to be together alone under any circumstances unless they are married," said Imam Daood, who started studying Islam 16 yearsr ago as a student at Portland State University. "Marriages are usually arranged, but not against anyone's will. They are permitted to meet under supervision with other people around."

Samiha Fisher is one of the institute's female students. Like the other women, she is dressed is long robes and is covered except for her hands and face.

"It's not that we don't think women are equal to men," said Imam Daood. "But by the nature of men and women it is better this way. Man is very attracted to women. And in terms of praying, he doesn't think of Allah if women are praying in front of him. Women aren't that way."

FISHER SAYS she used to be a regular at the discos in Portland, Ore. before her husband went to the library one day and discovered the Koran.

"I like to disco dance and go to parties," said Fisher. "I didn't want to become a Muslim. But my husband said 'Become a Muslim or I divorce you.'"

Now she feels odd, she says, if she wears short sleeves. She likes the protection of all the clothing and the rules of social relationships between men and women.

"It's difficult to go disco dancing and dress real cute and be dancing with a man who is not your husband," she says. "You become interested. But with Islam you are protected from that."

Already students from Argentina, Spain, England and Pakistan have applied for admission to the school, which provides free instruction and room and board for the 60 students it will accept for two-year course.

There has been little reaction from the Blanco community, primarily because the Muslims have been so quiet and reserved in their approach to the town.

"I REALLY DON'T think they are (aware of the mosque)," said Dr. Dan Murray, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Blanco. "There really has not been an reaction."

Cleric captures 'saintly' life of Luther

By LAURINDA KEYS
Associated Press Writer

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — With the 500th anniversary of Martin Luther's birth coming up next year, the Rev. Lee Roy Brandes thinks the Roman Catholic Church may eventally make the Protestant founder a saint.

Catholic scholars also have talked about such a possibility, but the Vatican has sidelined the idea, at least for the present.

"Martin Luther is probably one of the three prime movers of Christendom, with St. Augustine and St. Thomas Acquinas," says Brandes, a Lutheran minister who left his Torrance church last year to put the life of Luther into a 55-minute film.

"The time may very well come when the Roman Catholic Church may make Martin Luther a saint," Brandes says. "He did Christendom a great deal of good, though at that time he was considered a heretic."

"A Man Named Luther," produced, paid for and starring only Brandes, will be premiered at Lutheran colleges throughout the country April 30. One of those premieres will be at California Lutheran College in Thousand Oaks, near Brandes' private organization to promote Lutheranism, Encounter, Inc.

Brandes says he's arranging to have the film shown on television.

The film is based on a three-part dramatic monologue that Brandes has performed for several years, illustrating Luther's life as monk, defender and evangelical.

"It covers 41 years of his life, from the time he goes into the monastery to his death," said Brandes, 56, who holds a doctoral degree in communications from Claremont College.

He prepared for the role by immersing himself in Luther's troubled life.

"I told myself I was Martin Luther; that I had nailed up the 95 theses," he says, referring to Luther's unprecedented protest in 1517 against the Catholic church.

Rev. John Garlock

The Rev. John Garlock of Dallas will speak at the Christian Life Center, 2901 W. Kansas Ave., Sunday at 10:50 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Most of Garlock's ministry has focused on Bible teaching, ranging from the college classroom to short-term leadership seminars. He has been a retreat speaker for the U.S. Coast Guard Academy, for conferences of Bible college teachers, Full Gospel Businessman's conventions and Camps Farthest Out.

His parents, the H.B. Garlocks, were among the earliest missionaries to parts of West Africa, and he spent some of his boyhood with them in Ghana. This early exposure to missions has been followed by several years as a missionary. He was for 10 years director of South African Bible Institute near Johannesburg and for four years academic dean of Continental Bible College in Brussels, Belgium.

Currently Garlock is an instructor in Homiletics, World Missions and other subjects at Christ For The Nations Institute, Dallas.

The public is invited to attend.

Blizzards forcing church cancellations

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Recent blizzards in the Midwest have crippled church operations, shrinking attendance and contributions, pushing up heating costs and often causing cancellation of services.

The U.S. Lutheran Council recounts numerous disruptions, including:

The Rev. Dr. Milton J. Nauss trudged more than two miles through snow to hold services at a St. Louis Church, but only eight of 2,500 members showed up.

In Pipestone, Minn., at the scheduled ordination of the Rev. Richard Swanson, only seven of 40 invited relatives got there, and, he says, "It was the only service in town." Installed at his first pastorate in Sturgeon Bay, Wis., he's twice had to cancel Sunday services.

Says the Rev. Frederick D. Hubert Alexandria, Ind.: "Attendance is down, offerings are down, but costs are definitely up."

The Newspaper BIBLE

HELP A BROTHER; DON'T KNOCK HIM

You have no right to criticize your brother or look down on him. Remember, each of us will stand personally before the Judgment Seat of God. For it is written, "As I live," says the Lord, "every knee shall bow to me and every tongue confess to God." Yes, each of us will give an account of himself to God.

So don't criticize each other any more. Try instead to live in such a way that you will never make your brother stumble by letting him see you doing something he thinks is wrong.

As for myself, I am perfectly sure on the authority of the Lord Jesus that there is nothing really wrong with eating meat that has been offered to idols. But if someone believes it is wrong, then he shouldn't do it because for him it is wrong. And if your brother is bothered by what you eat, you are not acting in love if you go ahead and eat it. Don't let your eating ruin someone for whom Christ died.

Don't do anything that will cause criticism against yourself even though you know that what you do is right. For, after all, the important thing for us as Christians is not what we eat or drink but stirring up goodness and peace and joy from the Holy Spirit.

If you let Christ be Lord in these affairs, God will be glad; and so will others. In this way aim for harmony in the church and try to build each other up.

Peoples Bible Missionary Church, 1201 E. Spruce St., is holding a City Wide Fellowship Day Sunday beginning at 2:30 p.m.

Guest speaker will be the Rev. Robert Lathen, pastor of Mt. Calvery Baptist Church. The Rev. L.L. Martin, pastor of Peoples Bible Missionary Church, invites the public to attend.

Christian Home celebration scheduled

The Midland Seventh-day Adventist Church, 3114 Travis St., is observing Christian Home and Family Altar week beginning Sunday. A variety of programs, discussions and lectures will be presented to help develop Christian families.

The public is invited to attend.

Clergy invited to guest consul's talk

ODESSA — David M. Zohar, consul at the Consulate General of Israel to the Southwest at Houston, will be speaking at Temple Beth El in Odessa Feb.28 at 3 p.m.

The talk, "Middle East Update for Christian Leaders," is open to all clergy in the area, regardless of faith.

Clergy speak against Salvadoran aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Numerous church leaders are reiterating their opposition to U. S. military aid to El Salvador's ruling junta, and calling for a mediating approach.

With the U.S. administration stepping up its supply of arms, Archbishop John R. Roach, president of U.S. Roman Catholic bishops, noted their stand against such aid, and said:

"If the United States is to play any constructive role in ending the fratricidal conflict, it should be by strengthening the political will of those willing to dialogue, not massively increasing the destructive capability of the armed forces."

He said "responsible church voices in El Salvador" have repeatedly called for a negotiated settlement.

Among Protestant leaders expressing similar views, a United Methodist panel on international affairs criticized the Reagan administration's threat to do whatever necessary to keep the present junta in power.

"The real issue in Central America is the demand for political, social and economic justice by the people..." the panel said in a letter drafted to Reagan. "Soviet exploitation is not the basic problem."

West Point factory keeps up gray tradition

By PAT FERGUS
Associated Press Writer

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — For more than 150 years, cadets at the U.S. Military Academy have studied, paraded, drilled and dined in what has become known as "cadet gray."

For nearly as long, tailors and seamstresses have stitched and snipped away in a factory on the academy grounds, turning stacks of gray cloth into the uniforms that give the cadets' famous "long gray line" its hue.

Today some 70 civilian federal employees keep that tradition going, producing about 4,000 uniforms a year for each incoming class of cadets.

"I don't think the cadets always appreciate how much work goes into their uniforms," said Gene Zarzycki, the factory manager.

Of the three U.S. armed forces academies, West Point is the only one to have either a uniform factory or a distinctive uniform just for undergraduates. Undergraduates at the Naval and Air Force academies wear variations of the regular Navy and Air Force uniforms, manufactured by private companies.

GRAY WAS chosen as the color for cadets in 1816 to honor the gallantry of Gen. Winfield Scott, who led his gray-clad troops to a victory over the British two years earlier, during the War of 1812.

Not much of the design has changed over the years, said John Murphy, a 35-year factory employee who recently retired as its manager.

Even after women were admitted to the academy in 1976, the basic uniform design has remained the same, although it had to be adapted slightly, Murphy said.

Skirts were added for some occasions, but the only other changes were in size and shape, said Murphy. Women, like men, wear slacks when on parade.

In the old days, he said, cadet uniforms were much heavier — and the heavy wool uniforms were required attire summer or winter, even for gym class.

TODAY, MURPHY SAID, the uniforms are a lighter weight wool and summer dress uniforms are cotton or a light polyester-wool blend. Cadets may now wear a black sweater instead of a gray jacket at some informal situations, such as classes or study sessions. In the 1950s, a black, hooded winter parka was added for winter.

New cadets, called fourth classmen or "plebes," are fitted in the summer for a wardrobe to last four years. The wardrobe consists of a long overcoat, a short overcoat, a full-dress coat, a winter parka, two dress coats, three pairs of heavyweight gray trousers, five pairs of lightweight gray trousers and six pairs of white trousers for warm weather.

> "By 4:30 (on 'R-day') we have some kind of uniform on them. They come in looking like who knows what, but by the end of the day they look like cadets."

All but the cadets' shirts, shoes, hats and accessories are manufactured at the academy uniform factory, and the considerable cost of proper cadet attire is covered by the cadets' annual stipend.

The short coat of the cadet's full-dress uniform — the most expensive item in the wardrobe — costs a cadet about $250. A long dress overcoat costs about $200.

Prices are "adjusted" as expenses rise, meaning they have gone up most years, said Zarzycki, although they are considerably below what non-military tailors would charge.

NEW CADETS ARE fitted for their uniforms on "R-day," the day they arrive at the academy to register. It's also the day they have their hair cut to academy specifications and learn some basic drills.

That afternoon, they line up on the parade ground for the first time — shaven, shorn and in uniform.

"By 4:30 that day we have some kind of uniform on them," said Lt. Col. Stephen Seffins, the officer in charge of the academy store and the clothing factory. "They come in looking like who knows what, but by the end of the day they look like cadets."

In the factory's cutting room, long, stacked bolts of fine wool, used to make dress jackets, are carefully cut into pattern shapes, says Murphy. The cloth costs about $15 a yard.

Other workers cut bulkier wool for winter parkas, starched cotton twill for summer pants and lining material.

IN ANOTHER ROOM, sewers attach various parts of the developing uniforms — sleeves to jackets, linings to sleeves and pants legs to pants legs. The fancy touches — stripes, braids and chevrons — are added in a third room.

In the winter, which is the factory's slow season, workers get started on the thousands of pairs of pants, jackets and coats that will be needed when the new cadets arrive in July. They also make repairs and alterations — adapting the uniforms to fit the changing sizes and shapes of the cadets — and attach stipes, braids, chevrons or other decorations to denote new rank or class.

While uniform trousers and more informal coats are made throughout the year, production-line fashion, the fitted dress coats are entrusted to the special care of the tailors, who sign their work and receive bonuses by the piece — each of which take eight to 10 hours to complete.

Farm agencies, programs face financial cuts

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — There will be less money for fighting grasshoppers, fire ants and gypsy moths if Congress goes along with President Reagan's budget proposals for the next fiscal year.

Brucellosis, cattle ticks and witchweed also are due for budget cutbacks under the Reagan package sent to Congress last week.

In all, the Agriculture Department's spending in the fiscal year that will begin next Oct. 1 would be cut by 17 percent to $23.5 billion from $29.4 billion this year.

Although most of the cuts would come from food stamps, housing programs and a few others, some other functions that are important to farmers and consumers also are under the ax.

Of seven agencies in USDA which are grouped together as "marketing and inspection services," only one — the Food Safety and Inspection Service — would have its spending increased in 1982-83.

It would get $320.6 million, a 3.6 percent increase from $309.6 million this year. FSIS, as the agency calls itself, is responsible for the federal inspection of meat and poultry.

According to department budget papers, the increase would include additional funds "to strengthen efforts to prevent, detect and control toxic chemicals that can enter the nation's meat and poultry supply."

But for the other agencies in the group, 1982-83 will mean belt-tightening.

One example is the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service — APHIS — which oversees a number of programs aimed at protecting U.S. livestock and crops from disease and pests.

Some operations in APHIS that would be affected by the Reagan budget proposals include:

—Brucellosis eradication, $59.9 million next fiscal year, down $31 million from this year. The major objectives will be to "control the spread of the disease, especially in states which have a high incidence" and to "encourage states and producers to participate in voluntary disease control programs."

—Screwworm control would get a $6.6 million increase to $52.7 million so that the production of sterile screwworm flies used in the program could be maintained.

—Gypsy moth spending would be cut to $673,000 from $5.2 million this year. Efforts have been aimed at preventing artificial, long-distance spread of the pest and to confine eradication efforts to isolated infestations. However, "current technology cannot prevent the natural spread of these moths."

—Imported fire ant research, $2.63 million, down from $5.92 million this year. APHIS "will continue to survey and conduct regulatory work but will not provide funds."

Pink-clad Arab Knights try for Lebanese control

By TOM BALDWIN
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — As the commander of Beirut's newest militia, lawyer Nasib Khateeb freely admits that his private army has kidnapped citizens, stopped and frisked motorists at gunpoint and occasionally shot it out with the undermanned Lebanese army.

"We are an armed force acting like any other armed force in Lebanon. These are security measures," he says.

Camped in tents and underground bunkers on what once was a soccer field, Khateeb's Arab Knights were a surprise when they showed up almost overnight in their red combat fatigues — which quickly faded to an unmilitary pink — to become the latest addition to the dozens of private armies that are jockeying for control of the country.

Khateeb says his arms come from Syria, as do his military advisers and a few of his fighters. Most of his 2,000 regulars and 10,000 part-timers are Lebanese, he said in a recent interview.

Western and Lebanese critics view the Arab Knights as a disguised Syrian presence to supplement the 22,000 Syrian military personnel that the Arab League sent to Lebanon to police the aftermath of the 1975-76 civil war.

In a combat-weary country where the number of private armies is estimated to range up to more than 100, the Arab Knights, at the very least, are one more armed force to be dealt with if fractured Lebanon is ever to be reunited the way the U.S. State Department says it must be to bring peace to the Middle East.

Dubbed the "Pink Panthers" by some of their neighbors in mostly Moslem West Beirut, the Arab Knights are an example of how private armies have taken over parts of the country after the authority of the army and national police force was eroded by the civil war.

Their stated intentions are noble.

"We want peace and a united Lebanon," Khateeb says. "We want to provide security for the people in the area. We established our military base on a sporting field because we did not want to steal somebody's building like the other militias do."

Nevertheless, they did frighten people when they first appeared in the Manara section of the city. One night, when their uniforms still were red, the Arab Knights went from building to building and inquired about empty apartments.

Residents bolted their doors, switched off their lights and pretended to not be at home.

The next morning, a group of Manara residents sought the aid of another militia that happened to have fighters whose families lived in the Manara area.

Family missing in Lake Dallas

LAKE DALLAS, Texas (AP) — Law enforcement officers continued to comb the Lake Lewisville area Friday for a couple and their two young daughters who vanished while gathering firewood Sunday.

Since Wednesday, about 100 officers and volunteers who have used helicopters and horses to search some 400 acres around the lake north of Dallas concede they are "at a dead end," said Lake Dallas Police Chief Y.G. Carr.

"With a family as stable as this one was, we have to suspect the worst," Carr said.

The only trace of Kenneth and Alice Merillat and their children was their car, which was found near the western shore of the lake Sunday night.

A window on the automobile had been smashed, but authorities said they believe it was from vandalism.

Neighbors last saw the couple and Kayleen, 6, and Kendra Lee, 5, as they left to gather driftwood at the lake, a Sunday afternoon ritual for the Lake Dallas family.

After Merillat was reported missing from his job as an installer for General Telephone Co. Monday, co-workers entered the house and found a package of meat and can of frozen lemonade had been left out to thaw.

Police have all but ruled out accidental drowning, since Merillat, 32, has scuba diving experience and friends said other family members were good swimmers.

Police found two knives with red stains near the lake, but doubted they were connected to the disappearance. The knives are being analyzed.

Searchers also talked to a woman who saw what might have been the father and daughters walking across the dam with another man.

"Someone talked them into leaving with them," said Bob Lester, a longtime friend and co-worker whose family moved here from Michigan with the Merillats last April. "They are not there. I know Kenny real well, and he can get close to someone real quick. There's some reason he's not coming home, and he can't do anything about it."

GTE spokeswoman Terri Bronocco said Merillat's "supervisor says he is an outstanding, dependable and dedicated employee.

Witness says Pack had high ethics

Another former inmate tells startling tale of abuse

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Testimony from convicts that painted Warden Wallace Pack as sadistic man who tortured prisoners is nothing more than an attempt to confuse the jurors, a prison spokesman says.

"This is a defense tactic to prolong the trial and confuse the minds of jurors as to the reputation of Warden Pack," said spokesman Rick Hartley.

Pack's reputation was at the heart of testimony last week in the capital murder trial of inmate Eroy Edward Brown, 31, a convicted burglar from Waco. He is accused of drowning Pack last April 4 near a prison farm, and may be tried later in the shooting death of Ellis Unit farm manager Billy Max Moore.

Defense attorney Craig Washington contends Brown acted in self defense, and introduced testimony that Pack and Moore were cruel and abusive to prisoners and had threatened to kill Brown on the day of the incident.

But Hartley disputed testimony that the officials mistreated Texas Department of Corrections inmates, and that Pack had ordered some prisoners drugged and supervised the killings of others.

"The defense seems to be trying the reputations of Wallace Pack and Billy Max Moore, instead of the reputation of Eroy Edward Brown," Hartley said during a three-day recess in the trial. Testimony is to resume here Monday.

Hartley said Pack "was a man of high ethics, high morals and honest. I have never heard a complaint aimed at Wallace Pack."

During the week's testimony about 20 current and former inmates said Pack regularly abused them and subjected them to physical violence.

The most startling tale of alleged abuse by Pack was offered Friday by former inmate Tommy Carlisle of San Antonio. Carlisle was serving a sentence for murder with malice at the Wynne Unit when he said the warden, then a major, tortured him and ordered another inmate beaten to death.

He accused Pack on two separate occasions of holding a gun to his head "because I was attempting to inform the federal court of an inmate's killing," Carlisle testified.

In an effort to get out of prison because he feared for his life, Carlisle said he severed his Achilles heel tendon. The former inmate testified he was placed in a straitjacket, put on the floorboard of a car and kicked repeatedly en route to the hospital.

When he got back to prison, Carlisle said he was placed in solitary confinement and stripped. He said Pack handcuffed his hands over his head and said he was "going to teach me a lesson."

The warden took a pair of pliers and plucked the hairs from under Carlisle's arms and crushed his nose and penis with the tool, he said.

The ex-inmate also said Pack, in 1971, ordered other prisoners to beat inmate Melvin Austin. Carlisle said Austin was beaten and placed in cell where he died of a heart attack.

But Hartley said he personally checked into the incident and discovered Austin had a history of heart trouble and died in 1970, not 1971 as Carlisle testified. The TDC spokesman also said a coroner's report showed no marks or bruises on Austin's body.

Doctor saw track marks on officer's arms

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Former undercover narcotics agent Creig Matthews had "track marks on both his arms" when he was treated in a hospital emergency room in January 1979, a physician testified Friday.

Dr. Mohammed Afzal Qureshi of Fort Worth said Matthews told him the needle marks were "part of his profession."

Prosecutors called Qureshi to the witness stand in their case against former Tyler Police Chief Willie Hardy, charged with conspiring to deny two drug defendants their rights by lying about Matthews' drug use at their trials.

Matthews told hospital officials he developed hallucinations after a drug was slipped into his drink, Qureshi said. The agent said Hardy asked him to wait a few days for the symptoms to disappear but that he was "upset and worried about damage," the doctor's records showed.

Matthews refused psychiatric help, however, Qureshi said.

Hardy's attorney, Rex Houston of Henderson, suggested the hospital might have stuck needles in Matthews' arms without Qureshi's knowledge.

Earlier Friday, Houston questioned Matthews' former partner whom he later married, Kim Ramsey Matthews, about the "complete flip-flop" in her account of drug use by the agents.

Until they were questioned by the FBI last summer, the couple steadfastly denied any wrongdoing during an eight-month undercover operation that netted 121 drug indictments.

But after the first FBI questioning session, she said, they decided to tell the truth about the drug use, false cases the pair made against drug defendants and the firebombing of Mrs. Matthews' car after Hardy refused to pay for mileage on it.

Prosecutors asked her why she turned to drugs and criminal acts after receiving "glowing letters of recommendation" from superiors at the Plano Police Department, where she worked before going to Tyler.

"My problem started when I went to Willie Hardy for help and he didn't do anything about pulling Creig up from under cover and getting help.

Drop in peso to affect border merchants

MCALLEN, Texas (AP) — Border merchants braced Friday for a drastic downturn in sales and many stopped taking payment in Mexican pesos following a 40 percent drop in peso purchasing power.

The peso devaluation is expected to have a heavy impact in the Rio Grande Valley, where many Mexican nationals shop and invest.

"We're not taking any pesos," said Raul DeAnda, manager of Sound Centers, a stereo and electronics store. "We received word from Mexico City this morning that it's still floating at 38 or 41 to the dollar. We're not going to take it until it stabilizes."

The exchange rate had been 27 pesos to the dollar before Mexico's central bank announced late Wednesday that it would allow the peso to float to a new value.

A 30 percent inflation rate in Mexico had eroded the peso until economists said it was dangerously overvalued.

DEANDA estimated 60 to 70 percent of his sales are to Mexican nationals crossing the Rio Grande on shopping sprees. Some stores surveyed estimated up to 90 percent of their business comes from Mexico.

The McAllen Chamber of Commerce estimates almost one-fourth of retail sales in the city are to Mexican nationals. The chamber called a special meeting for Monday to discuss the peso development.

Merchants on Friday reported fewer shoppers than normal at La Plaza Mall, a large shopping center 10 miles from the border.

"It's kind of slow," said Oscar Perez, assistant manager at Zales.

"Yesterday we started taking the peso at 40 to one but decided to stop when it kept fluctuating," he said.

Most Mexican shoppers learned Wednesday night of the peso fluctuation and were prepared to get less for their money, merchants said.

"All of them knew what was going on," said Arnold Garcia, manager of Panorama Electronics, located in a shopping mall at nearby Brownsville.

"Some of them came in wanting to buy, saw the 40 to one rate, and got disappointed and walked out," he said.

Garcia said his store, which depends on Mexican nationals for 60 percent of sales, was accepting pesos at a 40 to one exchange.

RETAIL sales generally slow down in February before zooming during the Holy Week, a traditional time for Mexicans to vacation in South Texas and shop, he said.

The overnight drop in peso power forced some customers to abandon layaway items, said George Hernandez, assistant manager of The Ranch clothing store in Brownsville.

"We're just not accepting pesos at all. Why take a gamble? We've already lost money on the pesos we took in Wednesday and could not exchange before the fluctuation," he said.

Ninety-five percent of sales at the store are to Mexican shoppers, who pay either in cash or with Amercian Express cards.

Businessmen in the Rio Grande Valley remember the 1976 peso devaluation, when the Mexican government also allowed the currency to float to a new exchange rate. At that time, the peso was devalued from 12.5 pesos per dollar to 20 pesos per dollar.

Merchants and bankers have noticed a gradual decline of the peso over the last two years.

"THIS THING was coming and we knew it was coming but we didn't know exactly when," said Fidel Rodriguez, manager of a downtown Brownsville department store.

The situation in San Antonio, about 100 miles from the border, was the same as the Valley.

"It will be only the rich Mexicans who will be able to afford to come over here to buy or to spend vacations," said Raumond Coy, a salesman at a San Antonio clothing store. He predicted the "bottom will drop out" of the city's clothing sales to Mexicans.

Arab states fear revolution will spead to Bahrain

By EARLEEN F. TATRO
Associated Press Writer

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — This island nation, a playground of oil sheiks and a booming banking center, has become the focus of concern for Saudi Arabia and other conservative Arab states. They fear Bahrain could become the beachhead for the spread of Iran's Islamic revolution to the Arab side of the Persian Gulf.

The arrests here in December of 60 Islamic fundamentalists crystalized fears that Iran is finally ready to carry out Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's threat to export his three-year-old revolution.

When Bahrain's government announced the arrest of 45 Bahrainis and 15 other Arabs, it said the men had confessed they were trained in Iran to foment a mass uprising which was to culminate in the overthrow of the island's ruler, Sheik Isa bin Salman al Khalifa, and the proclamation of "the Islamic Republic of Bahrain."

The allegations of an Iranian-inspired coup attempt, although officially denied by Iran, lent new urgency to efforts of the six conservative states on the Persian Gulf's southern rim to band together for mutual protection.

Last May, eight months after the Iran-Iraq war broke out, Saudi Arabia and Bahrain along with Kuwait, Qatar, the United Arab Emirates and Oman formed the Gulf Cooperation Council which was billed as a Persian Gulf version of the European Common Market.

Lately, however, the council's talks have turned to security with meetings of their defense ministers and interior (police) ministers.

Days after the Bahrain crackdown, the Saudis and Bahrainis signed a mutual security pact and called on other Persian Gulf states to join in. Sheik Khalifa urged all Arab states to impose a trade ban on Iran and set the pace by closing its doors to all Iranians and barring Iranian planes and ships from its ports.

According to accounts in newspapers on the Arab side of the gulf, Cooperation Council defense ministers, meeting the end of January in Saudi Arabia, adopted resolutions calling for a bolstering of air and ground defenses.

How far the Arab states of the Persian Gulf will be able to go in responding to an Iranian challenge remains unclear. But the tone of the state-guided press of the area has become strident on the subject of Iran. This seems to signal more open support for Iraq in its war against Iran. The Arab nations of the gulf area have helped Iraq finance its war effort with $16 billion to $30 billion, according to reports published in the area.

The member nations of the Gulf Cooperation Council produce about 25 percent of the Western world's oil imports, netting about $150 billion a year. At the end of 1981, according to a Kuwait central bank report, the financial assets of the partners totaled $86 billion.

Except for supporting Iraq, the council nations may find it difficult to bring their economic muscle to bear on Iran, where stricter controls have cut to a trickle the traditional trade with countries such as Bahrain and the United Arab Emirates.

Militarily, the council states are much weaker. Their defense forces, totaling 134,000 personnel or about half of Iran's military manpower, are untested in combat.

Of the six member nations, Bahrain appears to be the most logical target for any attempt by Iran to spread Khomeini's revolution. Before Bahrain became independent from Britain in 1971, the Iranian monarchy claimed sovereignty over the island.

The island's 350,000 people are equally divided between the ruling family's Sunni Islamic sect and the Shiites who predominate in Iran, whose majority population is non-Arab. The Shiites also claim 17 million other adherents around the Persian Gulf, a third of them in Iraq.

Bahrain, whose security rests on 2,500 lightly armed policemen, relies heavily on Saudi Arabia, 16 miles away on the Arabian Peninsula. But as one prominent Bahraini said, "The Saudis can help defend Bahrain against internal threats but not external onces."

This well-placed Bahraini, who asked to remain anonymous, added, "We believe they (the Iranians) cannot make a coup against us, but their plan is going to continue, here or elsewhere. They can kill people, take hostages, burn buildings and then Iran is ready to send its warplanes and Hovercraft.

Reddell has furry business

By LINDA GILCHRIEST
Beaumont Enterprise & Journal

SILSBEE, Texas (AP) — The workroom behind Willard Reddell's home is damp, rather dreary and has the pungent smell of musk.

Except for the freezer in the back corner, the room could have sprung from the pages of a pioneer adventure story. Reddell is a fur trader.

The fast-talking Reddell, who has bartered furs for more than 51 years, buys any type fur from east Texas and Louisiana that he thinks can be marketed to big fur houses in New York and Canada.

"I'm one of the best (traders) around, at least 2,000 trappers thenk I'm the best," he claims.

Fur trappers have only the months of December and January to market their kill. Because of this limited season, Reddell spends much of his time on the road, visiting individual hunters and gathering furs for wholesale buyers.

Raccoons, bobcats, foxes, minks and nutria, freshly killed and ready for processing, are piled on his workroom floor. Reddell will skin the dead animals and dry the skins on boards before offering them to wholesalers.

"Some years, I make a little (profit)," he said. "Other years, I don't make a damn thing. This year, nobody's wanting anything but coons."

The trader said 1979 was the last boom year for furs. Since that time, the market has fallen off for many animals, including the bobcat. Reddell attributes the problem to federal government regulations that prohibit selling hides outside the country.

"I see about 50 to 70 trappers a week," he said. "It's a very competitive business. Women, young kids and old men — I buy from them all.

Condors aiding cousins' breeding

By MARTIN ANDERSEN
Associated Press Writer

PIURA, Peru (AP) — A team of Peruvian and U.S. scientists are breeding Andean condors in captivity in an experiment designed to save California condors from extinction.

The scientists have placed young Andean condors hatched at the Bronx Zoo in New York and at a Maryland wildlife research center in their natural habitat in the Peruvian wilds.

The researchers say they are developing a practical, efficient way to save the fast-disappearing California species, now believed to number between 20 to 30 birds, from going the way of the Carolina parakeet and the passenger pigeon.

MIKE WALLACE, 31, a bearded wildlife researcher from Westbrook, Maine, who coordinates the project, said in an interview that because the California condor is so rare, it is necessary to test techniques for the capture, breeding and eventual release into the wild of their more numerous South American cousins.

"Captive breeding is being recommended as one of the fastest ways of rebuilding the population of the California condor," Wallace said. "By removing the eggs from a breeding pair in captivity, it may be possible to obtain six times as many eggs as that produced in nature, much as taking the egg away from a chicken causes it to lay another."

"WE'VE FOUND the technique works with Andean condors," he added. "If our present success continues and the techniques we're developing here are used, it seems very probable that any (California) condors produced in captivity could also be released into the wild and live as if they were born there."

It's not a technique that has won universal approval from environmentalists. One U.S. conservation group, Friends of the Earth, says human meddling will hasten the bird's demise. Other opponents say more emphasis should be placed on habitat protection rather than on human contact with the bird.

Wallace said that, although the researchers' immediate concern is to save the imperiled California species, the project's long-term effect would be to further the state of the art of preserving endangered species generally. Successful trapping, using rocket-propelled nets, and radio telemetry (fitting the birds with solar-powered radio transmitters) techniques developed during the course of the project are two research spinoffs with possibly wider application, he said.

Student art competition winners will be district contest entrants

Midland elementary and secondary students who placed first in the annual Cultural Arts Contest, sponsored by the City Council PTA, in January, are competing in the District 17 contest this weekend. The theme this year was "What Makes Me Smile."

Those primary students placing in the art division were Robert Neatherlin, third grader at Sam Houston Elementary, first place; Jennifer Sowders, first grader at Emerson Elementary, second place; and Stephanie Baugh, first grader at Bowie Elementary, third place. First graders Jennifer Loftis, Emerson Elementary, and Lara Barris, Bowie Elementary, received honorable mention.

Students placing in the intermediate level of the art division were Donnie Diaz, fourth grader at Anson Jones Elementary, first place; Jason Smith, fifth grader at Houston Elementary, second place; and Will Watson, fifth grader at Houston Elementary, third place. Receiving honorable mention were Tanya Constable, sixth grader at De Zavala Elementary; Charlie Faubion, fifth grader at Bowie Elementary; and Beverly Linquist, fifth grader at Houston Elementary.

David Walvoord, from Midland Freshman High, won first place in the junior high school level of the art division.

Students placing in the senior high school competition of the art division were Rozena McCabe and Stacy Reeves, both Lee High School 12th graders.

At the intermediate level of the music division, first place went to Scott Repmen, fifth grader at Bowie Elementary, and second place went to Connie Kreger, fifth grader at Houston Elementary.

Missy Kibler from Midland Freshman High won first place in the music division at the junior high level.

Literature division winners at the primary level were Holly Hawkins, third grader at Bowie, first place; Matt Robinson, second grader at Bowie, second place; and Timothy Nettles, third grader at Houston, third place.

Intermediate level winners in the literature division were Stewart Taylor, fifth grader, Houston, first place; Lisa Sayer, fourth grader, Henderson, second place; and Kevin Considine, fifth grader at Rusk, third place.

Literature division winners at the junior high level were Danny W. Dutton, Lee Freshman, first place; Stephanie Walker, Midland Freshman, second place; and Jennifer Reese, Midland Freshman, third place. Honorable mention went to Kelly J. Simmons of Lee Freshman, and Brad Edgar and Kelin Jones, both of Midland Freshman.

Positive outlook matters more to man blinded by shooters

By JAMES BRONSON
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — Material things don't matter to Rosendo Rodriguez that much anymore. They used to. But that all changed when a shotgun blast blinded him three years ago.

Rodriguez, 40, an inventor, entrepreneur, university student and community activist, recounted the incident at his Survival and Life Support Supplies store in suburban Gardena.

He and a female companion were asleep when some young thugs pounded on his door at 3 a.m., looking for "Joe and asking about ownership of a red pickup truck."

The woman answered the door and a youth again asked who owned the truck parked in front of the house. When Rodriguez came to the door and told the man he was the owner, a shotgun-wielding youth suddenly appeared and Rodriguez slammed the door.

"I knocked her out of the way in time but he shot through the door and hit me in the face," Rodriguez said.

He was rushed to a hospital and then transferred to Harbor-UCLA Medical Center, where surgeons removed his eyes during six hours of surgery. After nearly two weeks of treatment, he was released. But he had dizzy spells and trouble keeping his balance and had to be re-hospitalized at the Veterans Administration Hospital for 4½ months.

"It was there that they told me I didn't have any eyes," Rodriguez said. "I knew I had been shot in the face but I thought that someday the bandages would be removed and I would see again."

The thugs who shot him were apparently looking for a member of a Gardena youth gang. The man they were looking for, Rodriguez believes, lived a few doors from Rodriguez and had a truck similar to his.

The gunmen were never apprehended.

weekly commodity market review for saturday's market pages

Commodity prices were mixed this week as interest rates, the dominant force behind the markets recently, appeared to be stabilizing.

Aggressive sales of gold, possibly from the Soviet Union, pressured all the precious metals markets and technical selling added to the pressure, furnishing sharply lower close on the week.

While Midwestern weather moderated, cattle and hogs have not recovered from the effects of several weeks of severe conditions. This continued to put an upward bias on the meat futures complex during the week.

Corn and wheat eased on concern over the course of interest rates and U.S./Soviet block relations. Also, the projected planting intentions released Thursday suggested lower prices.

Cotton acreage was in line with expectations. The export levels of cotton are not meeting projections and heavy deliveries on the Mch contract have furnished lower prices.

Gun training used as attack deterrent

By JOHN BERHMAN
Copley News Service

ESCONDIDO, Calif. — Katharine "K.C." Barnett was cool and determined as she took the line at Shooters Emporium here. Aiming at a paper target of a man's silhouette, she deliberately squeezed off six rounds from her Model 19 Smith and Wesson revolver.

"Another member of the class told me she could see I mean business," the 23-year-old woman said later. "And I do."

That was on a Tuesday night. Five days earlier, Barnett told police, her estranged husband broke into her home and assaulted her. He was arrested on rape and sodomy charges.

On Friday, Barnett phoned the Emporium and inquired about lessons. By Tuesday night, she had completed a crash course. Then on Thursday, she bought a Model 19 revolver.

"My life was threatened and the life of my 10-week-old son was threatened, and I don't want that to happen again," she said. "Next time, I'll have some protection."

BARNETT'S CASE is not an isolated incident. Escondido residents — like those all over the country — are becoming more and more frightened of crime.

And, like Barnett, more and more of them are arming themselves.

"A lot of people are just fed up with the increasing crime rate, and they're afraid they could become victims of it," says Bob Embesi, the straight-talking, straight-shooting instructor at Shooters Emporium.

"It's hard to believe all the stuff that is going on today, homes being broken into and people robbed, rapes. You can't go home and look at the evening television news without hearing of some major crime occurring."

His sentiments were echoed by all of his students.

Asked if he had ever been confronted by an intruder, electrical engineer Tom Kadien, 23, who just bought a gun for what he termed "home protection," answered: "No, and I want to keep it that way."

Sandy Morris, 42, said she was taking Embesi's class "because if I ever need to use a gun, I want to know how to use it right. I'm really concerned about all the break-ins you hear about."

Added Max Schmidt, a La Jolla retiree, "I want to be able to protect myself. We have a lot of burglaries, even down in La Jolla.

A blonde woman from nearby La Costa who asked that her name not be used said she had taken the class twice, adding: "I live alone and I'm afraid of burglaries. We have lots of burglaries in La Costa. A lady was raped a few doors down from where I live."

EMBESI, 41, a burly ex-Marine who spent 24 years in the Marine Corps, including the last 12 years as a range officer and several years as a championship competitor in both pistol and rifle shooting, says applications for his two-day course, Monday and Tuesday evenings, have been on the increase since late September, when 60-year-old Marie Miklossy shot and killed an intruder who mugged her in her home.

But Embesi tries to keep the class to a maximum of 12 people so he can provide adequate attention for each student. He says he stresses safety in the use of guns — especially in the home — as well as nomenclature of guns and ammunition and, of course, how to shoot.

Mondays are spent in the classroom, and Tuesdays on the 24-lane range, which Embesi says is the only one of its kind in San Diego County and, at 12,000 square feet, the largest in the country.

Class hours are from 7 to 10 p.m., and the total cost, including the use of ammunition and a gun, is $35.

"We have people from all walks of life taking the class," Embesi says. "Many of them have never even fired a gun in their life. I would say about 60 percent of those taking the class are women.

"We have each person fill out a questionnaire, including why they are taking the class. The reasons vary from 'for recreation' to 'because my husband has a gun' to 'I just want to know how to use a gun.'

"But the bottom line is self-defense."

Embesi, who has taught the class ever since the facility opened just a little over a year ago, says the Miklossy incident is the classic example of self-defense.

After Miklossy used her late husband's .38-caliber handgun to kill her assailant, she became a cause celebre in Escondido.

During the subsequent investigation — the district attorney's office later called the shooting "justifiable homicide" — dozens of people called the widow or wrote letters to newspapers praising her action and her good sense in having a gun around the house and using it.

BUT THE Miklossy case also caused a lot of worry at the Escondido Police Department, which reported receiving an average of about five phone calls a day from people wanting to purchase guns for self-proteetion.

A concerned Police Chief Jim Connole eventually issued a statement that said in part, "As police officers, we feel that guns in the hands of untrained citizens could cause more problems than they solve.

"The incident that occurred in our city was rare and doesn't always have such an ending. If the citizens of Escondido would install proper locks and locking devices on their doors and windows — and use them — the chances of their home being entered would be greatly reduced.

"In fact, three out of four residential burglaries last month were accomplished without using force to enter.

This woman is trying her hand at shooting targets at The Shooting Emporium in Escondido, Calif. Escondido residents have been taking advantage of ex-Marine Bob Embesi's class in efforts to protect themselves against possible attacks and burglaries.

Ocean's potential amazing

By W. FROELICH
Copley News Service

The sea is the womb of all life:

Yet this vast span of water — covering some 70 percent of the planet's surface — still strikes a chord of awe, if not fear, in most. There's something about its power, its chemistry, that sets it apart.

"I think that's because we don't understand it well," said William Fenical, a chemist at the Scripps Institution of Oceanography in La Jolla, Calif. "If we're going to use the ocean, we've got to understand what's going on; we've got to become really knowledgeable about it."

Only recently have scientists and businessmen become aware of the sea's full potential for everything from food to drugs, from minerals to energy.

Indeed, much of what we know about the sea today comes from research only several decades old.

It was 1872 when the Challenger, the first ship equipped for a scientific inquiry of the sea, set sail from England. The vessel, on its 3½-year mission, was fitted with such technological marvels as a thermometer, used to record the ocean temperature; heavy rope to capture animals and plant life in nets; and piano wire to measure ocean depths.

Along with this technological advancement has come a greater appreciation of what the sea could offer if used with wisdom.

Bulldogs avenge earlier loss to Rebels, 79-65

Abilene High downs Abilene Cooper to win District 5-5A title

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Writer

Although nothing worked out right in District 5-5A Friday night for the Midland High Bulldogs and the Midland Lee Rebels, the Purple Pack did prove that they don't have short memories.

MHS rolled over the Rebels by a 79-65 margin and it may have been as bad as it sounds. At least, it was convincing. And the memory of blowing a nine-point lead to Lee with 1:58 left in the game in the first half was partially washed away.

But for the Bulldogs, nothing can really wash away that first half defeat completely since MHS could have owned the first half crown with a win over Lee. They didn't get it, went into a tailspin, and saw Abilene High walk away with the loop title Friday night after a 39-37 win over Abilene Cooper.

The AHS victory also knocked Lee out of playoff contention, so it was the Rebels who had to take the double dose of bitter juice as the season ends.

The Bulldogs may have been as loose as any time this year and never looked back against Lee after a 16-5 advantage in the first period. In fact, MHS coach Jack Stephenson played all 16 of his players in the first quarter alone and every Bulldog saw plenty of action as the Bulldogs cruised to a big 24-point lead in the third period. They never had to worry about the final 1:58 of play in this one, but just in case, Stephenson put his starting five on the floor late in the game to insure that it didn't happen again. Fourteen Bulldogs got in on the scoring act.

However, word trickled courtside that Abilene High had won over Cooper before the final gun sounded. It wasn't that the victory was hollow for MHS or the loss bitter for Lee, but it was the fact that the season was over that hurt both sides. This game meant little in the whole context of the season just lost.

"I don't care what anybody says, but the best team didn't win the district championship," said Stephenson after the news that Abilene High had won the crown. "I think our fans saw that tonight. I wish all those beautiful people had another chance to see us play and I wish all our great seniors had a chance to be in the playoffs. They all deserve more. I don't feel bad for myself, but I do for the fans and kids."

Later word came that Big Spring had pulled an upset over San Angelo, 62-59, in Big Spring and that was another setback on top of the pill already swallowed. For Lee and Midland High to gain a district playoff, AHS had to lose Friday and San Angelo win. Neither happened.

But the state of affairs did little to hamper the Bulldogs in this one. They connected on 16 of 31 shots in the first half while Lee was hitting seven of 25. Lee played even with MHS in the second half, with the exception of early in the third quarter when Midland High ran off nine straight points for a 44-21 lead. They later led by 24 points when Rob Franklin drove the lane for a dazzling layup. Lee cut the margin to 10 in the fourth period on a Alvin Dunson bomb with 2:14 left, but Johnny Pannell and Barr Bolger answered with buckets to put it out of reach again. The starting five for MHS then came back on the floor and put it away.

"I don't think we played very well," said Lee coach Paul Stueckler. "We didn't shoot well in the first half and Midland High ran up a big lead. We just were never in the game. Jack (Stephenson) played a lot of kids. I think he sensed that things were under control. I sensed it too.

"Our kids seemed to wane a little in the second half. We were hitting around 50 per cent of our shots this year until late in the season. I don't know what it was. We would have liked to had that 20th victory, but I guess it wasn't to be."

Lee's Dunson led all scorers with 27 points, matching the performance he turned in against MHS in the first half victory, but he didn't seem as dominating this time around. Andre Van Buren had 11 points and Randy Pepper 10, but 6-6 Kenneth Brown was held to a mere four points.

With the traffic jam caused by Stephenson's liberal substitution, it's hard to tell who was the dominating force for the Bulldogs. Everyone seemed to play well as the team hit 50 per cent from the field with a 30 of 60 effort.

Raymond Parker led the way with 16 points while Preston Robertson and Jim Gunnels each canned 13 for the Pack. But the Midland scoring summary reads like the Midland phone book with 14 of 16 players scoring. Only Marc Noland didn't get in the game for MHS and he was home sick glued to the radio.

Abilene High got 16 points from Brett Enzor and 10 from Mike Simmons to down Cooper, but Cooper had the last shot with three seconds left. Cooper had the ball with 19 seconds left and trailing by two. The Cougars took three time outs during that span before missing the last shot. Greg Dusckas led Cooper with 11 points.

In Big Spring, the Steers, a team which improved with every outing in district play, got 14 points from John Green, 11 from Jearld Wrightsil and 10 each from Gary Harris and Blake Rosson. San Angelo's Lorand White had 18 and Jeff Kasner 16, but the Bobcats blew a 43-41 third quarter lead in the final period as the Steers outscored the Bobcats 21-16.

In the only other district game, Odessa High nipped Odessa Permian, 53-52, in a game that also had little meaning.

Midland High finishes the season with a 22-9 record while Lee is 19-12. Two fine records. MHS lost nine games by 21 total points, six in the last five seconds of play, including one to Lee. MHS now leads the local series by a 25-20 margin. Lee's luck was almost as bad. They had a one-point loss to Cooper and a four-point loss to Abilene High after gaining a share first half title with back-to-back wins over AHS and MHS.

MHS had a sweep on the night as the sophomore team defeated Lee 49-45 behind 14 points by Ken Johnson. MHS took a 78-55 win in the JV game with Pannell 14, Tony Carrasco 12, Terry McGowan 11 and Fred Franklin 10. James Davis led Lee with 12 and Earl Riley had 10.

Midland Lee's Kenneth Brown (51) looks like a downtown tower as Midland High's Preston Robertson searches for a way to get over the 6-6 intruder Friday night at Chaparral Center. Fleetwood takes defeats in stride

By MIKE CRUVER
Sports Writer

ODESSA — The Midland Boxing Club found the going rugged Friday night in the third round of boxing in the Golden Gloves competition at Ector County Coliseum as MBC lost three of four matches in the Open Division.

Felix Munoz, 119 pounds, was the only Tall City boxer to win as he decisioned rugged David Mata of Pecos Evening Optimist in a close battle. Losing Friday night were Eddie Rodriguez, 119; Robert Ochoa, 132; and Tony Lopez, 139.

MBC coach Rick Fleetwood took the losses philosophically, "Eddie was boxing for the first time ever and Robert's first fight was Wednesday when he won by a knockout. They fought as well as could be expected."

Rodriguez drew burly Ray Cortinez of Abilene Friday and it was Cortinez' bulk against Rodriguez' speed. In the end, it was the Key City fighter's bulldog tenacity to stalk and bully Rodriguez around the ring to keep him locked up against the ropes that spelled the difference. When given the chance, Rodriguez was able to use the ring to dance and his superior hand speed enabled him to land several solid blows.

Cortinez scored the only knock down of the bout when he land a overhand right to the chin that put Rodgiguez on the seat of his pants just as the bell sounded to end the second round.

Ocha squared off against crafty Mundy Villesca of Fort Stockton and was never able to solve the unusal defense that he employed. Villesca covered up differently each time and that tactic seemed to keep Ocha off balance.

Villesca controlled the fight and never let Ocha gain any momentum. Ocha's best round was the second when he managed to catch Villesca on the ropes and connected with several sharp jabs and an uppercut. It wasn't enough as Villesca recovered and controlled the third round to take the decision.

In Lopez' fight, Jaime Garcia of Pecos Evening Optimist never let the Tall City boxer get untracked. Garcia worked on Lopez with body punches and he was in command from the opening bell.

MNC only Open Division victory didn't come easy as Mata proved to be a handful before Munoz won by a decision.

Mata opened the fight by throwing more punches with few connecting while Munoz bided his time like a hungry tiger waiting for an opening before attacking. He never found a crack in Mata's defense and had to wait until the second round before delivering any solid licks.

Early in the second round, Munoz caught Mata with his guard down and a blow turned his face into a mask of blood from a battered nose. Munoz knew he had Mata in trouble and tried to deliver a knockout punch but Mata managed to stay clear .

Mata came out looking for a knockout of his own in the final three minutes but wily Munoz slipped and danced out of danger while scoring with repeated jabs to Mata's bleeding nose.

Fleetwood said, "Our kids always draw tough fighters over here. That's alright with us because its makes us stronger down the road." He added, "We won the Ochafight. The judges ruled on who threw the most leather, not on who threw the most effective punches."

Despite the losses MBC is still in the thick of the race for the team title. Fleetwood said, "Odessa, Abilene, Pecos and MBC have a chance to win it. We are still in pretty good shape as we Midland's Jim Hall, the design wizard of the auto racing world, looks over his "Yellow Submarine" at the Museum of the Southwest. The car won the Indy 500 in 1980. Four of Hall's inovative car designs are featured at the museum through March 28.

Jim Hall: a tale of American Spirit

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Writer

The story of Midland's Jim Hall is carved on asphalt in the fast lane of life. It is one of sweat, blood, tears and triumph — the stuff novels are made of.

Hall's life is also the stuff from which America extracted a way of living, of giving and of winning. It has been called the "American Spirit". Hall is a study in frustration and tragedy — of losing and winning — of simply living on an oval at 200 m.p.h.

It is also the story of the "American Way" where the mind is free to express in all sorts of forms even though those ideas are crushed by greed, misunderstanding or fear. But the will and the mind was there to overcome and greatness took hold in pioneer-like fashion.

It all started as a boy of 19 when Hall went racing through the Sports Club of America. It made no difference that he was supposed to be 21 in order to race because, "Things weren't so organized back then and no one ever told me I couldn't race."

BY 1958, Hall was racing internationally in the U.S., Canada and Mexico. He was also getting a degree in mechnical engineering at MIT.

In 1961, Hall moved to Midland and, with Hap Sharp, formed Chaparral Cars, Inc. They built a "state of the art" cer and went racing. In October of 1962, however, Hall placed fourth in the Mexican Grand Prix and Sterling Moss offered Hall a ride on the European Grand Prix Circuit.

So Hall went to Europe in 1963 for a year. It was a year that he didn't enjoy.

"In 12 races that year, it rained nine times and that was tough on a West Texas driver," Hall remembers. "In Germany, the only thing I understood on the menu was ham and eggs, so I had ham and eggs every day. It was easier in France because I didn't have to eat. I always got sick when we crossed the French border. We all had to live in second class hotels and life just wasn't much fun."

That experience prompted Hall to come back to Midland with the decision to race and design in the United States, which brought about the creation of the Chaparral 2 in 1963. Hall was on the way to changing the world of racing forever.

The Chap 2 was the first car with an aerodynamic design to reduce lift and set road racing on its ears. Hall won 16 of 21 races in 1964 and the U.S. road racing championship. "I don't think anyone has ever had a year like that," Hall said.

"Everyone then thought that all cars had to suffer with a certian amount of lift, and I guess I was the first guy in the world to realize that we should make aerodynamics work for us instead of against us," Hall said. "Someone told me that you are lucky if you come up with one good idea in a lifetime and I guess this was mine. The single thread that holds my racing career together has been to find ways to apply down load on a car in the right places. All that wind is going by, so you might as well find a way to use it and that's what I have tried to do."

HOWEVER, Hall's inventions were not received well. In 1965, Hall took the Chap 2 to the Indianapolis Motor Speedway to test it. It was his idea to further improve his aerodynamic design of the Chap 2 by adding a rear moveable wing that would apply even more down load on the car in the right place, into the rear wheel hub. Hall was going to enter the Indy 500 with the information gleaned from the Indy test.

That test brought about the creation of the Chaparral 2F in 1967. It had the same chassis design as the Chap 2, but featured the moveable rear wing and could do 210 m.p.h. Hall felt at the time that the new 2F was the most versitale car ever built, but in 1967, it won only one race because of transmission problems, a problem that was corrected, only to find out that the Indy brass had banned the moveable wing in 1968 after some other racers had gone to the wing design of less worthiness which produced some major accidents.

"I felt at the time that the ban was directed at me and I was insulted," Hall revealed. "It was like banning the wheels of a race car because one came off."

The year of 1968 was not a good one for Hall. In addition to one of his creations being banned by auto racing, Hall was in a horrible accident in Las Vegas during a race. The stinging wreck left Hall with a badly shattered leg and in a ball of fire. It took him over a year to recover and he was never the same driver again.

"In 1970, I tried to drive again, but I was running anywhere from eighth to tenth and was far behind everybody. I decided to give up driving and stick with designing and racing cars," Hall said.

BUT THE ban of the moveable wing in 1968 was still very much on the mind of Hall. He came up with an answer in the Chaparral 2J, the famous "vacuum cleaner" of the race world.

"The 2J was my answer to no wings," Hall gleefully says to this day. "It was not a race car to begin with, but a test car. It was the first ground effects car ever built. It's not a pretty thing, but the car was amazing. The thing can actually climb a wall."

The 2J featured an auxiliary snow mobile engine over the rear axle to drive a pair of fans which evacuated air from under the car. It became known as the "Hoovercraft" for its vacuum cleaner effect on the race track. It did pick up sand off the track and scatter it in the faces of drivers behind. That also led to another ban by the sport of racing. The 2J, in fact,

SWC Indoor Track, Field Championships start tonight

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

FORT WORTH (AP) — If you're going to the ninth annual Southwest Conference Indoor Track and Field Championships in Tarrant County Convention Center tonight, get there before 7:10.07 o'clock.

The highlight event of the program, the 60-yard dash, is scheduled for 7:10 p.m. and the world record holder in the event, Houston's Stanley Floyd is scheduled to be in the blocks.

Floyd has covered the distance in 6.02 seconds. Although teammate Carl Lewis is scholastically ineligible this spring, there will be some stiff competition on the boards for Floyd, a sophomore transfer from Auburn.

Baylor footballer Bruce Davis, who won the Dallas Times Herald Invitational in 6.11 seconds after Floyd withdrew because of muscle spasms in his back, will be entered.

Two other footballers Phillip Epps of Texas Christian, who finished second in the Dallas meet, and Texas' Herkie Walls will run along with Texas A&M's Rod Richardson, who was second in the SWC meet last season.

The SWC record is 6.06.

Defending champion Arkansas was a heavy favorite to repeat again with Texas, Houston and Baylor representing the most severe challenge to the Razorbacks.

Arkansas hopes to run up a big lead before its premier event, the three-mile run. The Razorbacks scored 20 points in the three-mile last year and return each competitor.

The SWC coaches figure some 95 points should win the team title although the Texas Aggies won two years ago with 102.

The Aggies are not a threat this year although Jimmy Howard is expected to successfully defend his high jump championship.

Lewis, the long jump and yard dash king here, will not be the only defending champion missing.

Shot put star Michael Carter of Southern Methodist will not participate because of a leg injury suffered in football.

Arkansas was expected to dominate the distance runs.

Girls Region I play at Chap

Midland College's Al Langford Chaparral Center will be the site of the Region I girls basketball tournament next Friday and Saturday.

The pairings for the 5A tournament Friday will match the winners of districts 1-2 (El Paso) vs. the 7-8 (Fort Worth-Arlington) at 6 p.m. while the winner of 3-4 will play the 5-6 winner at 8 p.m.

San Angelo will be representing 5-5A against 6-5A in bi-district. Lubbock Monterey, the defending state champion, faces Amarillo in the 3-4 playoff.

The championship game will be played at 2:30 p.m. Saturday at the Center.

Tickets will be $2 per session for students and $3 per session for adults.

Greenwood boys win 85-46, Girls in playoff against Iraan

GREENWOOD — The Greenwood Rangers ended District 14-A play Friday night with a 10-0 record (26-2 overall) when they defeated the Grandfalls Cowboys 85-46 here.

The game, which was originally scheduled for Feb. 5 but was snowed out, belonged to the Rangers fron the second quarter on.

Grandfalls was able to keep the first quarter score close, trailing 18-15, but were blown out in the second giving Greenwood a 39-20 lead at the half. The Rangers outscored the Cowboys 16-13 in the third quarter and 30-13 in the fourth for the 85-46 final score.

Stuart Burleson canned 15 field goals and five free throws to lead the Rangers with 35 points teammate while Homer Lopez added 18. Adrian Moore led Grandfalls with 26 points.

The Rangers will face Robert Lee in their first Bi-District playoff game sometime next week. The site and time will be decided on a later date.

DUE TO an ineligible player in two games of the first half race on the Greenwood girls basketball team, Iraan was declared the winner of the first half which sets up a playoff game tonight in Iraan against Greenwood to determine the conference representative in Bi-District.

Hammer sinks Brigham Young

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Craig Hammer scored a career high 22 points to lead Utah to a 68-61 upset victory over Brigham Young in Western Athletic Conference basketball action Friday night.

Hammer scored 16 points in the first half as Utah grabbed an early lead after trailing just once, 6-4.

BYU was led by Fred Roberts with 21 points and Steve Trumbo with 13 in the low-scoring game.

Angelo Robinson scored 14 for Utah while George Furgis added 12. Utah's Peter Williams had 10 despite sitting out much of the game in foul trouble.

The victory improved Utah's record to 5-7 in conference play and 10-14 overall. BYU fell to 6-6 in WAC play and 14-11 overall.

Utah moved out to an 18-10 lead midway in the first half on the strength of four straight field goals by Hammer. Roberts scored 12 to keep BYU in the game. Utah led 30-24 at the half.

Zorn, others expect strike

SEATTLE (AP) — Seattle Seahawks quarterback Jim Zorn and three other veteran players said they expect a players' strike during the 1982 National Football League season.

A fifth Seahawks veteran, Dave Brown, disagreed with his teammates at a news conference Friday and said he thinks a strike is unlikely.

The collective bargaining agreement between the players and the NFL Management Council, which represents the owners, expires on July 15. The NFL Players Association is seeking 55 percent of the gross revenue brought in by the NFL's 28 clubs.

"I think if things continue right now on the path they're on, I think of there being a strike during the football season are very great," said Seattle player representative Sam McCullum, a wide receiver.

Zorn was critical of the NFLPA and said, "Because we've blown it (a strike) out of proportion, because we've made such a big deal about it, I would say there would be."

Lamesa sinks Fort Stockton, 70-56

LAMESA — The Lamesa Golden Tornadoes ended the basketball season here Friday night with a 70-56 win over the Fort Stockton Panthers, giving the Tors a season record of 26-6 and a 5-3 District 2-4A second half record.

Victor Spencer led a two-pronged Lamesa attack with 26 points while Shane Jackson hit for 22. Ron Reeger had 14 points for Fort Stockton and Mike Morales 10.

Lamesa jumped to a 14-9 lead in the first period and led at the half 33-21.

have our most experienced fighters still to fight. Joel Abila will fight Monday in the finals, Kevin Taylor fights Larry Kirby of San Angelo today and Munoz has another fight so we still have a good chance." Fleetwood added, "Of course, our experienced fighters don't have that much experience since our club is only four years old and this is only the second year that we have had fighters in the Open Division."

Midland picked up another victory Friday when Lee's Wayne Brandt, 169 pounds, defeated George Bancroft of Big Spring in a high school football bout that featured a lot of punches and very little defense. Brandt exhibited a wild windmill punch that looked awkward but was effective as he decision Bancroft.

Lee's Glen Pierce was slated to face Big Spring's Tony Fuentes in another high school football match but he was a no show.

Gilbert Hernandez, 79 pounds, tangled with Anthony Cortez of Odessa Boys Club in a match that was a late match.

In one of the more entertaining matches of the evening, Randy Rawls, 155 pounds, of Big Spring decisioned Permian's Robert Miller in a bout that saw only offense. Both fighters threw punch after punch that was stopped by nothing but the other guy's head. Rawls' win helped restore a little dignity to his team as it came on the heels of two sorry Big Spring performances.

The only knockout of the evening was recorded by Pecos Evening Optimist's Dan Levario when he connected with a booming right to the chin of Abilene's John Cortinez.

The tournament continues through Monday with fights slated today at 2 and 7 p.m. and wrap up Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Rutherford wins at Indy in Hall's 'Yellow Submarine'

never won a race before the ban came.

"The car probably did more to keep the race tracks clean than bother the drivers behind it," Hall says. "None of my cars were illegal until seen and I got to the point where I felt everything was illegal. There were no Chaparral Cars built in 71-72 because I felt that everything was illegal.

But in 1978, Hall got the urge to try Indianapolis again. USAC relaxed its rules that year, allowing owners to purchace completely built engines and that opened the door for Hall. Another step toward history.

"Until that time, you had to buy Offy engine parts and you had to find someone with that type of expertise. We didn't have it. In 1978, they allowed us to buy a complete Cosworth engine and that made a lot of people competitive. I got a Lola car and put the Cosworth in it, and Al Unser became available at that time and we had a good crew," Hall stated. "We were really going to Indy in 1978 on a look-see mission. We had a three year plan, but we won the thing in our rookie Indy car season. In fact, we won the triple crown of racing that year (Indy, Pocono and Ontario) and no one had ever done that. But the 500 races were the only races we won that year and didn't win the national championship."

THE LOLA was not a creation of Hall and he had better things in mind, despite being racing's king in 1978.

Of course Hall produced the famous "Yellow Submarine" in 1979, taking the ground effects principal even further. Hall's design created low pressure under the car and made it hug the pavement like nothing before it. The Chaparral 2K didn't win with Al Unser in 1979, but it did with Johnny Rutherford aboard in 1980. And Rutherford won the national points championship that year also.

Rutherford had bad luck last year in the Indy race as well as during the entire 1981 season, but Hall promises to be back this year when the season starts in Phoenix in March.

"I'm not ready to say what we have done this year," Hall states, "but it's basically the same car with some modifications."

And coming from Hall, maybe some spies better be set loose in Midland. That can only mean the racing world could be caught with its pants down again. And as a member of the CART board of directors, Hall is in a much better position to protect his creations now.

Hall's story is not over. He's still in the fast lane. But if you want to see the story to this time, try the Muesum of the Southwest where his cars are on display until March 28.

Terry Mauney, who took a four-stroke lead in the opening round of the Glen Campbell Los Angeles Open Thursday with a 63, dropped into a six-way tie for second Friday behind Tom Weiskopf with a 136 two-day total.

Weiskopf posts 134 score to lead Glen Campbell Los Angeles Open

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Midnight struck twice Friday for the Cinderella-man of the $300,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open, Terry Mauney.

He lost the four-stroke lead he took into the second round after a competitive course record 63 on Thursday when he carded a 2-over-par 73 in the second round, giving him a 36-hole total of 136.

Veteran Tom Weiskopf, runner-up to Johnny Miller by two strokes last year, fired his second consecutive 67 for a 134 total halfway through the 72-hole event at the par 35-36—71 Riviera Country Club.

Tom Watson, the leading money winner on the TPA tour for five straight years before Midland professional Tom Kite took top honors in 1981, also shot a 67 Friday and equaled Mauney's 136.

Mauney bogeyed the final hole to lose exclusive possession of second place over the 7,029-yard Rivieria course.

"This round was crucial for me," said Mauney. "I didn' want to embarrass myself. It's great to have premier players like Weiskopf and Watson, pressing. I like the situation and I hope we're in the same group Saturday."

The three finished with many in the field of 144, including Miller, still on the course.

While most of the leaders are in the millionaire class, Mauney has earned just $6,655 this year and was the last player to get into the field for this event, barely qualifying on Monday.

Weiskopf said, "I played well and the guy who wins here Sunday is gong to be a fine player. When I'm playing well, I'm always confident and I'm playing well. There is a little more pressure when you're leading."

Watson predicted many low scores through the weekend if the warm weather, with little wind, continues at this course bordering the Pacific Ocean.

"I haven't been putting well, but today I was putting better," Watson said.

Victory in the event will be worth $54,000 on Sunday.

Following Friday's play, the original field was to be cut to the low 70 and ties for the nationally televised rounds on Saturday and Sunday.

Postlewait takes one-shot lead in Bent Tree Classic

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Kathy Postlewait shot a 1-under par 71 Friday for a 36-hole total of 7-under par 137 and a 1-shot lead over two players in the $150,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association's Bent Tree Classic.

Postlewait led the 110-player field following her opening day 66.

Barbara Moxness and defending champion Amy Alcott were second at 138. Moxness shot a 71, while Alcott fired a 70.

Lynn Stroney was fourth at 139, while JoAnne Carner and Sue Ertl tied for fifth at 140.

Sandra Haynie and Pam Dietzen were tied for seventh at 141.

Ertl, the touring pro from the Bent Tree club, shot the day's best round with a 66, while Dietzen shot a 69. Stroney, Carner and Haynie shot 70s.

Postlewait played what she called "a very boring round." She finished the day with 17 pars and one birdie, that coming on the 485-yard par-5 ninth when she dropped a five-foot putt.

Thursday, she carded six birdies and 12 pars.

"I just never had it close enough to go for a lot of birdies," she said. "I found myself between clubs a lot today. It's tougher for me to control the ball when I'm swinging three-quarters all the time."

On the greens, Postlewait was forced to scramble, sinking seven putts of 4-to-5 feet oo stay in the round.

But her biggest battle of the day may have been getting up in the morning.

"I am not a morning player," she said. "I had to go off at 8:27 and I don't function very well that early. I can get up and drink coffee at 8:00, but golf isn't my bag at that time period. Ten o'clock is more my cup of tea."

Alcott was 2 over par, while Ertl showed she knew her course by firing a 66.

Lendl easily handles Amaya in two sets

LA QUINTA, Calif. (AP) — Top-seeded Ivan Lendl needed only 47 minutes to defeat unseeded Victor Amaya 6-1, 6-1 Friday in the quarterfinals of the $200,000 Congoleum Classic men's tennis tournament.

The triumph ran Lendl's victory string to 43 matches.

Unseeded Raul Ramirez of Mexico scored an upset, downing No. 3 Roscoe Tanner 6-4, 5-7, 7-5 in a match that lasted almost three hours.

Second-seeded Eliot Teltscher had an easy time against No. 7 Harold Solomon, recording a 6-0, 6-4 victory at the La Quinta Hotel Tennis Club. Fourth-seeded Yannick Noah of France also advanced to Saturday's semifinal round with a 6-3, 6-4 decision over unseeded Phil Dent of Australia.

Lendl, the 21-year-old Czech star who has won eight consecutive tournaments, was extremely sharp against Amaya.

"He is not the kind of player who uses quickness and movement," said Lendl. "I knew that if I returned well against him, there was nothing else he could do."

Ramirez used his serve-and-volley game to knock off Tanner.

"My main strategy was to attacq his second serve, hustle a lot and get a lot of balls back," explained Ramirez. "My game mainly is volleying, to get to the net, and that was effective against Tanner."

Lendl faces Ramirez in the semis, with Noah going against Teltscher. The winner of Sunday's finals will collect $32,000.

Shriver defeats White 6-4, 6-2

HOUSTON (AP) — Top-seeded Pam Shriver broke Wendy White's serve four straight times in the second set and took a 6-4, 6-2 victory Friday night to win a semifinal berth in the $100,000 Avon Tennis Championships of Houston.

Shriver will play Saturday against the winner of Friday night's other quarterfinal match between Sue Barker of England and Italy's Sabina Simmonds. Diane Fromholtz will play Bettina Bunge in the other semifinal match Saturday.

Shriver, generally regarded as the No. 5 women's player in the world, is top-seeded for the first time in a professional tournament.

She expressed dissatisfation with her game Friday night, constantly berating herself on the court and frequently casting anquished glances at her coach, Don Candy, who was in the stands.

However, Shriver's volley game was effective against White.

Both players held serve in the first set until White's turn when she trailed 4-5. With the score 15-15, White double-faulted. Shriver then drove her to the backhand corner on the next point and crushed a lob attempt to make it 15-40.

White then hit a backhand into the net and the set ended with the one service break.

Both players lost their first two serves of the second set. But from then on, Shriver was in charge, holding two serves and breakiing White twice more.

"I wanted to attack her backhand," Shriver said, "because she has a better forehand and I didn't want her to get grooved on that side. Besides, I usually attack the backhand because I feel more comfortable chipping the volleys from that side."

Ashford shatters 60-yard dash mark in San Diego

By NORM CLARKE
AP Sports Writer

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Evelyn Ashford shattered the world indoor best time in the women's 60-yard dash with a clocking of 6.48 seconds in the San Diego Invitational Jack In the Box track meet Friday night.

The mark was marred by a controversy as three of the runners — half the field — thought it was a false start and quit running early.

Ashford's time shaved .12 second off Jeanette Bolden's recently established mark of 6.60. Diane Williams was second, well behind at 6.76, and Japan's Emi Akimoto was third, but with no time recorded.

Meet officials at first announced that the race would be rerun, but later declared the results official.

Apparently Bolden had her starting block slip at the gun and she, along with Alice Brown and Yvette Bullard, pulled up after less than 20 yards.

Ashford, the two-time World Cup champion in both the 100 and 200-meter sprints, jumped to a commanding lead early and steadily pulled away. She had won the 60 in the meet in 1981, but her time then was 6.68.

In the women's high jump, Debbie Brill, who last week lost her indoor world mark when Colleen Reinstra went 6 feet, 6¾ inches, won for the fourth time this season, defeating Reinstra.

NBA ROUNDUP

Spurs hold off Nuggets 126-121

George Gervin followed up a 49-point effort in his last game with 38 points and Mike Mitchell added 27 as San Antonio posted its fourth straight victory, holding off a frantic Denver rally to defeat the Nuggets 126-121 in National Basketball Association action Friday night.

Mitchell hit a critical jumper with 21 seconds left that opened a 125-121 lead for the Spurs, who led virtually from start to finish.

San Antonio had a 118-105 lead with five minutes left on Gervin's final basket. But the Nuggets, who had their own three-game winning streak snapped, then outscored the visitors 12-1 and trailed 119-117.

Denver later had two chances to tie the game following San Antonio offensive fouls. But the Nuggets' final opportunity was wiped out by an offensive goaltending call on Dan Issel with 37 seconds to go. Mitchell then hit his jumper from deep in the corner.

Rookie Gene Banks added 18 points — 12 in the second half — for the Spurs, and Mark Olberding contributed 15 before fouling out.

Kiki Vandeweghe led Denver with 23 points, Alex English and David Thompson both totaled 22 and Issel had 18.

Bucks 106, Cavaliers 88

Sidney Moncrief scored all of his 26 points in the first three quarters, helping Milwaukee to a 106-88 victory over Cleveland Friday night and extending the Bucks' winning streak to 11 games, longest in the NBA this season.

The Bucks, topping Philadelphia's previous mark of 10 consecutive victories this season, handed the Cavaliers a seventh straight loss.

Brian Winters, who scored 10 of his 20 points in the final quarter, made three straight baskets early in the period, as the Bucks pulled away from an 80-73 third-quarter lead. Their final lead of 18 points was their largest of the night.

James Silas finished with 16 in the first quarter and a game-high 31 for the night, tying his high for the season. James Edwards added 19 points for the Cavaliers.

Milwaukee remains undefeated in nine games this month, and the Bucks' 38-14 record remains tied with Philadelphia as the league's best.

The Cavaliers, with four new players added to the roster this week, dropped to 11-41 for the season, worst in the NBA.

Suns 104, Knicks 90

Len "Truck" Robinson scored 29 points and Dennis Johnson hit 20 of his 28 in the first half Friday night to lead the Phoenix Suns to a 104-90 victory over the New York Knicks.

The loss was New York's fourth in a row and only the second victory in the last 10 road decisions for the Suns.

Phoenix didn't get its first lead until Johnson stole the ball and scored with two seconds left in the first quarter to put the Suns ahead 30-29.

The Suns then scored the first eight points of the second quarter and went on to lead by as many as 14 twice before the half ended with the Knicks trailing 58-46.

Kyle Macy, who had 10 of his 18 points in the third period, helped Phoenix take its largest lead, 70-52, with a basket with 7:24 left in the third quarter. But New York outscored the Suns 17-7 in the next five minutes to cut the edge to 77-69.

Bill Cartwright scored 19 points to lead the Knicks, while Maurice Lucas had 15.

Rockets 103, Nets 96

Moses Malone scored 34 points, including three in a pivotal final-quarter spurt, leading the Houston Rockets to a 103-96 come-from-behind victory over

Allen buys part of CFL's Alouettes, joins front office

MONTREAL (AP) — Like pulling a rabbit out of a hat, Montreal Alouettes owner Nelson Skalbania appears to have restored credibility to the Canadian Football League team by unveiling George Allen as president and chief operating manager of the troubled franchise.

The 59-year-old Allen also has agreed to purchase 20 percent of the Alouettes, with an option to become the majority shareholder.

Allen, a successful National Football League coach with both the Washington Redskins and the Los Angeles Rams, has until Dec. 31, 1982, to purchase 20 percent of the club and until Dec. 31, 1983, to exercise the majority ownership option.

"I feel I've proven myself as a coach," said Allen, whose won-lost-tied record of 120-54-5 ranks him fourth on the all-time NFL list for winning percentage. "One of my goals has been to be an owner.

"I was once offered 5 percent of a ball club in the NFL, but the offer was taken back before I could exercise it."

Allen was referring to an offer by the Redskins, the team he coached from 1971 through 1977. While there, Allen, using mostly veteran players he acquired by trading draft choices, moulded Washington into a contender and guided them to the Super Bowl VII following the 1972 season.

His last coaching job was with the Rams in 1978, the team he started his head coaching career with in 1966. Allen was fired by Los Angeles owner Carroll Rosenbloom after only two exhibition games in 1978. His exit was hastened when several players walked out of training camp to protest Allen's harsh training methods.

The job awaiting Allen in Montreal is a formidable one. The Alouettes squeezed into the final playoff spot in the Eastern Division in 1981 despite a 3-13 won-lost record. Their season was also a disaster financially as Skalbania lost more than $2 million, prompting the CFL to make the Alouettes' situation a topic of discussion at the league meetings earlier this week.

But Allen is eager for the challenge. He has even recruited an Alouettes' investor — a California business friend named Willard Harris.

"There's no doubt in my mind we can turn this club around. Otherwise, I wouldn't be here," said Allen. "Money isn't that important to me.

"The opportunity to do something is more important."

Allen said he had mapped out a three-year rebuilding program for the Alouettes, prompting Skalbania to say: "George says three years, but with the talent we have, I'm hoping it will only take one year."

Allen was repeatedly asked whether his duties with the Alouettes will include coaching, but he replied he would decide within the next few weeks after pressing administrative matters were settled.

"There are 14 or 15 coaching applicants," Allen said. "I'm going to interview everyone I think is a bonafide candidate.

"If I don't find a coach, and the other areas of the club are in good hands, I would consider coaching..."

One of the names suggested in the coaching derby was that of Jack Pardee, a long-time associate of Allen's in both Los Angeles and Washington. Pardee quit his assistant coaching job with the San Diego Chargers on Thursday to accept a marketing position with a Texas oil firm. Allen termed it "pure coincidence" that the move came the same day he agreed to join the Alouettes.

Commenting on the status of Bob Geary, the Alouettes' general manager who has been without a contract since Dec. 31, 1981, Allen said: "I'm impressed with Bob. I want him in the organization. In my opinion, he's an important man in the Alouettes' future."

Is Vince Ferragamo, the former Rams quarterback who had his woes after signing a four-year, $1.8 million contract with Montreal last season, a part of the team's future as well?

"I'd like to sit down and talk with Vince about his future and what's best for Vince Ferragamo and the Alouettes," said Allen, who briefly coached Ferragamo in 1978. "As a former coach, you hate to give up someone you know."

Allen said he expected import receivers James Scott and Billy "White Shoes" Johnson will return, but he wasn't as certain about middle linebacker Tom Cousineau because "I don't know all the legalities of his contract."

Asked whether he would sign more American players despite the Ferragamo failure last year, Allen replied:

"I'm not opposed to having American football players, but I'm interested in getting Canadian football players who are dedicated and can play."

But Allen, regarded as a liberal spender when shopping for talent in the NFL, promised he will be tight with the purse-strings.

"I'm an owner now, you know," he said.

Trask maintains lead in pro bowling tournament

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Art Trask overcame a slow start in the fifth round by averaging 230 for his last six games to maintain the lead Friday afternoon in the $150,000 True Value Open pro bowling tournament.

Trask, of Fresno, Calif., lost his first two games of the round, shooting below 200 each time. He came back with scores of 229, 259, 224, 201 and 243 before losing his last match, 268-231, to Dick Weber. The 32-year-old Trask leads by 39 pins going into the final round of match play before the five finalists are determined.

Al Stonum of South San Francisco is second with 7803, compared to 7842 for Trask. Stonum owns a superior 13-3 match play record, but is averaging 218, four pins per game less than Trask.

Weber, the 52-year-old Hall of Famer from St. Louis, moved to third place with 7645 after winning five of eight games, while rolling 1799 for the round. One of his losses came at the hands of his 19-year-old son, Pete, who prevailed 244-201 in their first head-to-head confrontation on the Professional Bowlers Association tour.

Pete Weber, 19, stands in ninth place with 7565, winning only two other games after defeating his father.

Alvin Lou of El Cajon, Calif., who led going into match play, now is fourth with a 7-9 overall record and a 7641 total.

Registration for Pee Wee Softball at Y in March

The Midland YMCA will take registrations for its Pee Wee Softball program from March 1 to March 21. The program is for boys and girls in kindergarten, first, second and third grades and emphasizes parent/child involvement.

Mom and dad can play in the field with their youngster and offer coaching and encouragement. No child is eliminated from participation if their parents cannot participate.

Teams are formed by grades and neighborhood school districts with games from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. either Tuesday or Thursday. There is no bench. Everybody plays.

Program fee is $10 for YMCA members and $20 for Limited members. Team t-shirts are included and players need supply only a standard baseball glove.

Register at the Alamo Y, 901 N. Midland Drive; Park Center Y, 1509 Orchard Lane, or Washington Y, 1600 E. Wall. Since the Y relies on volunteers to fill coaching positions, adults are invited to contact the Y if they wish to coach a team.

Islanders can set NHL record for consecutive wins against Rockies

BY BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — They've won the Stanley Cup the past two years — but the New York Islanders are still looking for respect. They hope to get it Saturday night — along with a National Hockey League record 15 consecutive victories.

"There are still a lot of people around who don't think we have a great team," said Islanders left wing Clark Gillies. "But if we get the 15 wins, there's going to be a long time before anybody breaks that record. They're going to have to give us some respect."

The Islanders, who haven't lost since Jan. 20, will play the visiting Colorado Rockies at the Nassau Coliseum in their bid to break the 52-year-old record they tied Thursday night in Philadelphia.

Since dropping a 3-2 verdict to their local rivals, the Rangers, the Islanders have outscored the opposition 94-33, including 35-4 in the third period.

"A streak like this cannot go on forever," said right wing Duane Sutter of the Islanders. "One night we're going to have a off night and the streak will be broken. But we're going to try to keep it going as long as we can. And as long as we don't get outworked, not many teams are going to beat us."

In order to tie the record set by the 1929-30 Boston Bruins, the Islanders had to rally from a 4-2 deficit to defeat the Flyers 7-4, outscoring them 3-0 in the final period.

While the Islanders have been piling up victories, the Rockies had had their problems. Colorado hasn't won on the road in the past 15 games, a streak dating back to Dec. 12.

On the surface, it seems as if the Islanders have the NHL record already in hand. But at least three Colorado players will be playing with extra incentive.

Rockies goalie Glenn "Chico" Resch, a mainstay with the Islanders for just short of seven seasons before being traded to Colorado last March, doesn't think his team will roll over and die Saturday night.

"We'll give them one of their toughest games," said Resch, who along with former Islanders Bob Lorimer and Steve Tambellini will be making his first trip back to Nassau Coliseum since the trade last year.

"They've been blowing people out and I know that record is important to them," Resch said, "but the three of us will be higher for the game than for any this season. It's the first time back for all of us and, of course, we want to make it special."

If Islanders Coach Al Arbour continues rotating his goaltenders, as he has done throughout the streak, then Billy Smith will face the Rockies — and his old pal, Chico. In the seven seasons Smith and Resch shared the Islander netminding duties, they developed a deep friendship. Perhaps more importantly, neither one showed the slightest jealousy about the other's success.

Despite that winless road streak and possession of the NHL's worst record (13-36-11), the Rockies are playing their best hockey of the season. They take a four-game unbeaten string — two victories, two ties — into Saturday's game.

Waltrip wins post for Richmond 400

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Darrell Waltrip, last year's Winston Cup Grand National point champion, won the pole position Friday for Sunday's Richmond 400 race at Fairgrounds Raceway.

Waltrip, who has won the last two Richmond 400s, turned in a fast lap of 93.256 mph in a Buick on the .542-mile track but fell short of breaking the qualifying mark of 93.695 mph he set here two years ago.

Winning the outside pole was Morgan Shepherd, who hit a speed of 93.167 mph, also in a Buick.

The next three qualifiers in order were Benny Parsons, 92.919 mph in a Pontiac; Joe Ruttman, 92.636 mph in a Buick; and Joe Millikan, 92.373 mph in a Buick.

Richard Petty, who had been considered doubtful because of a foot injury he suffered in a wreck last Sunday at Daytona, took part in the qualifying and earned the 15th spot with a speed of 91.024 mph.

Petty has started in 304 consecutive Grand National races, a record for the National Association of Stock Car Auto Racing. He has won 13 races on the local track, where the string began in the Capital City 500 on Nov. 14, 1971.

"I didn't know until I got here how my foot would feel when I tried to drive the car," Petty said. "I got in the car this afternoon and I will be able to drive the car on Sunday."

Petty added that "there is no pain at all when I mash the gas, but there is some pain when I hit the brake pedal. It's not something I won't be able to live with."

In the event he needs relief help, Sam Ard will be standing by.

Among those knocked out of the top 20 spots Friday who will have to earn berths in the 30-car field Saturday were Neil Bonnett, whose speed of 89.653 in a Ford was the 23rd fastest, and Indy driver Tom Sneva, whose speed of 88.138 mph in a Buick was the 28th fastest.

Geoff Bodine hit a speed of 96.207 mph in a Pontiac and won the pole for Saturday afternoon's Eastern 150 Late Model Sportsman race.

In the next four spots will be Ard, 96.038 mph in an Oldsmobile; Jack Ingram, 95.576 mph in a Pontiac; Tommy Ellis, 95.069 mph in a Pontiac; and Bob Shreeves, 95.013 mph in a Pontiac.

PERMIAN DISTRIBUTING INC., LARRY STEWART PRES., DENISE STEWART V. PRES., DUANE HOOVER V. PRES., IS MAKING APPLICATION TO THE TEXAS ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGE COMMISSION FOR A GENERAL CLASS B WHOLESALERS PERMIT ON THE ADDRESS OF HWY 80 S/S, 11 1/2 MI W. COURTHOUSE, MIDLAND COUNTY, MIDLAND, TX.

MONITION: By virtue of an order issued out of the United States District Court for the Western District of Texas, Midland/Odessa Division, in Cause No. MO 82-CA-23, Civil Action, The United States v. One 1978 Cadillac Deville, Two-Door, VIN: 6D47S8E609993. I did on the 18th day of February, 1982, seize said goods. All persons claiming an interest in said goods are notified to appear for hearing at the United States District Courtroom at Midland, Texas, on the 10th day of March (at noon), 1982, next, if that be a day of jurisdiction, and if not, then on the first day of jurisdiction thereafter, than and there to interpose a claim to the same, and to make their allegations in their behalf.
William J. Jonas Jr., United States Marshal. By: Gail B. Boggs, Deputy United States Marshal, Western District of Texas.

NOTICE TO ALL PERSONS HAVING CLAIMS AGAINST THE ESTATE OF BERTHA BEATRICE MAYHEW BYRNE, DECEASED
Notice is hereby given that Original Letters Testamentary for the estate of Bertha Beatrice Mayhew Byrne, Deceased, were issued on the 15th day of February, 1982, in Cause No. 6806, pending in the County Court of Midland County, Texas, to: Helen Byrne, 1411 West Tennessee, Midland, Texas 79701. The independent Executrix may be contacted at that address, or in care of J. K. "Rusty" Wall, Attorney At Law, P. O. Box 303, Midland, Texas 79702.
All persons having claims against the estate of Bertha Beatrice Mayhew Byrne, Deceased, which is currently being administered, are required to present them within the time and in the manner prescribed by law.
DATED THIS THE 18th day of February, 1982.
By: J. K. "Rusty" Wall
Attorney for BERTHA BEATRICE MAYHEW BYRNE, Deceased

THE STATE OF TEXAS
TO: L. H. ADAMS, and to all whom it may concern, Respondent.
GREETINGS:
YOU ARE HEREBY COMMANDED to appear and answer before the Honorable District Court 238th Judicial District, Midland County, Texas, at the Courthouse of said county in Midland, Texas, at or before 10 o'clock a.m. of the Monday next after the expiration of 20 days from the date of service of this citation, then and there to answer the petition of MARTHA MADSEN, Petitioner, filed in said Court on the the 9th day of February, 1982, against L. H. ADAMS, Respondent, and the said suit being number 30,729 on the docket of said Court, and entitled MARTHA MADSEN v. L. H. ADAMS, the nature of which suit is:
Trespass to try title and for quieting title in Martha Madsen on real property described as Lots 15 & 16, Block 2, Greenhill Terrace Addition, an Addition to the City of Midland, Texas. L. H. Adams claims some right or title to said property by virture of being a stockholder in Green Hill Terrace Company, a Texas Corporation, which owned the property in question at one time.
Issued and given under my hand and the seal of said Court at Midland, Texas, this the 17th day of February, A. D. 1982.
Attest:
Madge B. Wallis, Clerk,
of the 238th District Court,
Midland County, Texas.

WILD RIVER CANYON IS FOR SALE

Bids are being sought for over 14 acres of C-3 zoned land, appraised at over $2,000,000, located near the southeast corner of Andrews Highway and Loop 250 and which contains Wild River Canyon theme park. Approximately 10 building are included in the sale, along with numerous water structures. Personal property and equipment are not included unless bids specifically state.

The property is ideal for continued use as a theme park, or for conversion to apartments, condominiums, townhouses or office and commercial use.

Plans are available for conversion of the park land and adjacent 30 acres, also zoned C-3 into an office complex. In addition the numerous landscaping improvements, waterways, and existing buildings make the site ideal for an architecturally pleasing apartment, condominium or townhouse development.

Separate bids are being solicited for personal property and equipment, arcade equipment, architecutural specialties and ride equipment. Minimum bid on any grouping of these items is $5000. Items will not be sold on a piecemeal basis.
