Greenspan defends rates

Chairman: Little pain now to head off trouble later

■ Federal Reserve official insists central bank is not trying to choke recovery with interest rate increases.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Alan Greenspan vigorously defended the Federal Reserve's string of interest rate increases this year, arguing before disgruntled senators Friday it was far better to take some credit pain now to head off serious economic problems later.

In the face of a blistering attack, complete with critical editorial cartoons blown up to poster size, the chairman of the Federal Reserve calmly insisted that the central bank was not trying to choke off the recovery. He said the Fed was merely making sure that unexpectedly fast economic growth this year does not translate into rising price and wage pressures next year.

The central bank pushed short-term interest rates down to a 30-year low in late 1992 and kept them there for over a year. But Greenspan said continuing with that policy this year "would have posed a risk of mounting inflationary pressures that we perceived as wholly unacceptable."

Taking an optimistic view of the future, Greenspan said he believed the central bank's strategy would be able to keep inflation contained and prolong the economic recovery.

Clinton gets page 1 headlines, but not kind he wants

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House headlines were not the ones President Clinton might have chosen: a "cave in" on human rights in China and a top aide taking a presidential helicopter to play golf.

Clinton and his advisers cut their losses quickly on two fronts — announcing the departure of the errant aide and then releasing potentially embarrassing new papers on Hillary Rodham Clinton's commodities trading in the midst of the hubbub.

But the fallout on Clinton's China reversal is likely to linger.

The president, who goes to Europe next week to participate in D-Day 50th anniversary ceremonies, tried to clear the decks before his trip by getting the China decision behind him.

His action to renew most-favored-nation benefits to Beijing was widely expected. But Clinton had all but painted himself into a corner by his past strong statements on the need for progress on human rights.

Bold front-page headlines everywhere told a story that must have made White House officials wince: "Clinton Reverses Course on China," read The Washington Post; "Clinton Caves In on Trade vs. Human Rights," said the Los Angeles Times; "Profit Motive Gets the Nod" and "A Policy Reversal" read two headlines in The New York Times.

The Wall Street Journal told its readers Clinton had administered only "a slap on the wrist" in announcing he was separately banning Chinese gun and ammunition imports and keeping earlier sanctions in place.

Clinton said there was no point in isolating China, the most populous nation in the world, and that his new approach offered "the best opportunity to lay the basis for long-term sustainable progress on human rights."

But his decision to break the link between human rights progress and trade benefits for China, a year after he insisted there should be such ties, was seized by critics as a further sign of administration vacillation and drift on foreign policy.

Meanwhile, the telling photograph — taken by staff photographer Skip Lawrence of the Frederick (Md) News-Post — of a Marine guard saluting White House aides as they boarded a shiny presidential helicopter after a round of golf graced many front pages.

Hail storm hits, damages cars, homes on west side

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff Writer

Storms continued to rip through Midland late Thursday night wreaking havoc on residents in the west part of town and causing extensive damage to homes and automobiles.

Numerous windows were broken and hail was reported to be golf-ball sized by area residents.

However, other parts of Midland suffered little or no damage other than some street flooding. Residents in the north part of Midland saw no hail and only a brief shower.

Meteorologists at the Midland office of the National Weather Service recorded winds up to 64 mph.

The NWS spokesman said the storm hit Midland about 10 p.m. and hit at the office, which is located at Midland International Airport at 10:15 p.m.

The NWS office issued a tornado warning for Midland County that lasted from 10:07 to 11:15 p.m. after baseball-sized hail was reported at the intersection of County Roads 60 and 1788. The warning was issued despite no tornado being sighted. The spokesman said hail that size indicates favorable conditions for a tornado.

Wife's assisted suicide confirms family's cause

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Janet Adkins planned her death carefully, teaching her husband, Ron, to cook and choosing three prospective new wives for him.

She took her family to a therapist to help prepare them. On Memorial Day 1990, the couple and their three grown sons laughed and cried as they looked at family slides.

Several days later, Adkins flew to Michigan to meet Dr. Jack Kevorkian.

She rode in his rusting Volkswagen bus to a campground, where the retired pathologist hooked up his "suicide machine."

He first attached a heart monitor, then put an intravenous tube in her arm. The tube delivered a saline solution until she pressed a button that injected thiopental, a coma-inducing drug, followed moments later by potassium chloride, which stops the heart within minutes.

Adkins, 54, described as strong and decisive by

Tonton Macoutes resurface in political arena

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Shouting "Duvalier or Death!" members of the disbanded Tonton Macoutes militia returned to Haiti's political stage Friday, formally reorganizing to join Haiti's army against possible foreign attack.

The rebirth of the Macoutes dramatically illustrates the rise of anti-democratic elements in Haiti since the army overthrew elected President Jean-Bertrand Aristide in 1991.

Holding up a portrait of former dictator Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier, a Macoute spokeswoman declared that the militia members "already occupy the four corners of the country. Now we are in readiness."

"We are here to tell the army it is not alone," said Bertha Desaint, cheered by 100 Macoutes surrounding her in a downtown office. "We will defend our country to the end, even if it turns to dust and ashes."

Among their weapons, she said, would be pickaxes, machetes and voodoo.

A mile away, hundreds of Haitian soldiers and police, carrying old carbines, paraded around the Presidential Palace in a show of unity. Marching three abreast, the soldiers goose-stepped through the palace gates at the end.

Duvalier formed the Macoutes after coming to power in 1957 to ensure he would not be overthrown by the military. The force, named after a Haitian bogeyman who kidnaps children in a sack, became widely feared because it could kill, extort and steal at will.

The Macoutes melted away moments after a popular uprising in 1986 ousted Duvalier's son, Jean-Claude "Baby Doc" Duvalier. However, hundreds were lynched by revenge-seeking Haitian mobs.

Macoutes began resurfacing individually after soldiers overthrew Aristide in 1991. In recent months some have joined new army-backed paramilitary organizations.

Some former Macoutes have reversed their previous denials of membership. They include the president of Parliament's lower house, Frantz Robert Monde, who was visiting Washington on Friday.

Members of army commander Raoul Cedras' family also were Macoutes, and the father of Haiti's powerful police chief, Lt. Col. Joseph Michel Francois, was a leader of Duvalier's presidential guard.

Cedras and Francois led the military coup against Aristide, a parish priest who gained national popularity for daring to speak out against the Duvalierist terror.

At the news conference, Desait asserted that the Macoutes were unarmed and that they would defend their country with "machetes, knives, rocks, pickaxes" and voodoo.

"Our genius," she declared, "will destroy their planes and helicopters by remote control!"

She acknowledged that some Macoutes "made mistakes, but not more than those made after 1986 (when the Duvalier dictatorship ended)."

Monthlong contacts had been made with Macoutes throughout the country in preparation for Friday's official announcement of their revival, she said.

Sharon declares candidacy in campaign to topple Rabin

JERUSALEM (NYT) — Ariel Sharon, whose Rambo approach to war and politics makes Israelis either love him or hate him, declared his candidacy for prime minister Friday in a campaign to topple the Labor-led government of Yitzhak Rabin.

Recent opinion polls suggest that Sharon's chances for victory are slender at best.

But in Israel it can be easier sometimes to ignore the frequent sonic booms than the pronouncements of Ariel Sharon — former general, former defense minister, former trade minister, former housing minister but continuing believer in his own ability to set a goal and make it happen.

And so Israeli politics skipped a long beat today when he took a swipe at the elected leader of his Likud Party, Benjamin Netanyahu, and said he would run in 1996, when Israel for the first time will choose its prime minister in a direct popular vote. Until now, the national leader has been the person heading the party able to cobble together a majority in Israel's 10-party Parliament.

Dismissing Netanyahu as an ineffectual leader, Sharon proposed a sort of mega-primary for all parties on the Israeli right.

Rwanda's dead wash ashore in Ugandan lake

KASENSERO, Uganda (AP) — The nameless dead washing ashore outnumber the living in this Lake Victoria fishing village.

They died unspeakable deaths in Rwanda and now, in the final indignity, their bodies are collected like so much garbage, wrapped in plastic and dumped without ceremony in mass graves.

About 1,800 anonymous dead already are buried here, beside a banana grove on a high bluff overlooking the lake. The lone memorial is a faded purple and yellow floral wreath hung from a crooked stick.

Workers in tattered clothes, surgical masks and rubber boots and gloves methodically unloaded about 30 more bodies Friday from three long canoes that gathered the dead from nearby shores of the largest freshwater lake in Africa.

A dump truck waited to transport the piles of dead from this village of about 1,200 people 80 miles southwest of Entebbe, to the bluff where a bulldozer scraped a new hole in rich red and rocky earth.

The lone mourner was a middle-aged Hutu woman, Teddy Nalubowa, who cried softly on the beach where the bodies were unloaded. She was haunted by memories of a childhood in Rwanda and fears for relatives left behind.

"I feel sad, very sad," she whispered. "Why are all these people dying for nothing?"

An estimated 200,000 people have been killed in Rwanda since April 6 when the death of the president in a suspicious plane crash touched off a murderous rampage between ethnic Hutus and Tutsis and rekindled a civil war.

Tens of thousands of the bodies — no one can say whether they are Hutus or Tutsis, their bodies so badly decomposed — were dumped into Rwanda's meandering rivers. After weeks, thousands of them have floated into Lake Victoria.

Alex Joseph Apecu, the central government's district representative, said Uganda officials now estimate there are up to 10,000 bodies in the lake that is the headwaters for the Nile. The original estimates of tens of thousands were an exaggeration, he said.

No one will ever know exactly how many. Some bodies are trapped beneath the lake's abundant water hyacinths. Others have sunk.

Beaches along parts of the lake are littered with decomposed bodies, including those of small and badly mutilated children.

Between 100 and 200 were washed ashore Friday on one 15-mile stretch of shoreline. Some were half buried in the sand, others sprawled on the beach in grotesque positions. A few bobbed in the water lapping the shoreline. A large black and white pig was eating one of the bodies.

Severed limbs dotted the shoreline in grisly testimony to the savagery in Rwanda.

"The majority of the bodies do not have bullet wounds, which would indicate death by torture," said Apecu.

Most have been hacked to death. Some were simply bound with their arms behind their backs and tossed into rivers.

Government officials are going village to village trying to convince the people the popular Nile perch and tilapia fish hauled from the lake are still safe to eat if cooked properly. The perch only eat live fish and the tilapia only vegetation, they say.

But fishermen are worried.

Hussein Kisekka, a fisherman living in one of the dozen grass huts in the village of Mutemante, 60 miles southwest of Entebbe, said he could still sell fish. But the price of an 11-pound Nile perch has dropped from $2 to 60 cents.

Fish markets in Kampala and along Lake Victoria have few buyers.

Relief agencies are paying Ugandan peasants and fishermen about $10 a day to collect the bodies — a good day's pay for men who typically earn just $2 or $3 a day.

Sarajevo circus performance charms audience

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — It was a far cry from Broadway, but the entertainment-starved audience obviously came ready to be charmed.

So they used their imagination, ignored the war damage to the surrounding buildings and soaked up the late-spring sun Friday to enjoy a children's theater performance put together by American director Peter Schuman.

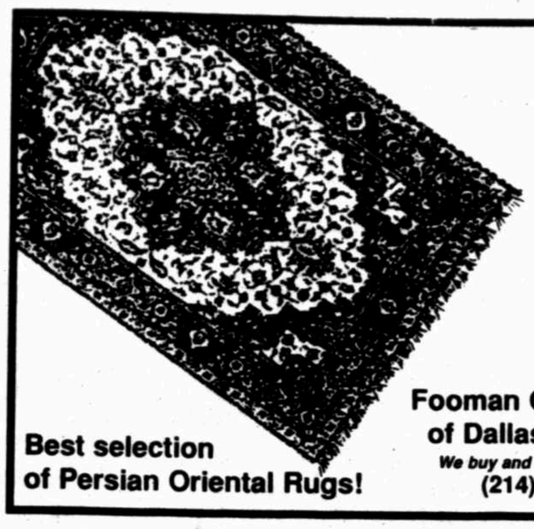

Schuman, who arrived a week ago, knew the first performance was going to be rough. With transportation still difficult in the city, it is hard for the local fledgling actors to rehearse their routines together.

"I know you haven't had enough rehearsals, but you're all performers, so go out there and perform," he told them in a pep talk just before the curtain — a hand-painted sheet held in place by two people — went up.

The audience of about 200, mostly kids and their parents who gathered in the square in front of the shrapnel-pocked National Theater, quickly caught on that it was a circus.

Backed by a three-piece band providing the cues, actors in crude horse costumes were put through their paces, then the roles were reversed: a horse character directed "businessmen" with mock briefcases through a similar routine.

After the show, people hugged him and slapped him on the back while offering congratulations. Schuman was satisfied. But he's still looking to improve for performances Saturday and Sunday.

WEATHER WATCH

DAMAGE: Hail storm hits Midland

(From 1A)

The NWS received numerous calls of golfball-size hail reported around the city as well as four inches of rain reported. Only one-tenth inch of rain was recorded at the airport.

The storm was the result of an upper level low pressure system over New Mexico that moved from east to northeast combining with low level moisture in place here and south to southeast winds helping create an unstable atmosphere, the NWS spokesman said.

Midlander Larry Shackelford, who lives in the 4300 block of Bedford Drive, said a good majority of the neighborhood around Alamo Junior High suffered extensive damage ranging from broken windows to stripping vegetation of its leaves.

He said golf-ball sized hail pelted his home, vehicles and yard around 10 p.m. Thursday night and had still not melted by 12:30 p.m. Friday.

"I had a two-and-a-half foot pile of hail outside my front door," he said.

His roof was damaged as well as the vegetation on his property.

"Anything green is on the ground," he said.

Shackelford said his wife's vehicle suffered severe hail damage with both rear-view mirrors broken out by the hail.

Shackelford said the damage extended to all around his home. His next door neighbor's skylights were broken out as well as another neighbor's truck windshield. He said another neighbor's travel trailer had all of its windows broken out as well.

"It was really bad," he said.

He said his insurance company representative indicated he would have to get back with him because the claims were coming in faster than the company could respond.

One local insurance agency scheduled appointments for today for policy holders whose vehicles suffered hail damage in the Wednesday and Thursday storms.

Apple Creek Apartments, 4000 W. Illinois Ave., had numerous windows broken out during the storm.

NWS meteorologists are forecasting rain-free weather for the weekend with a chance of rain returning to the forecast for Memorial Day.

Today should be partly cloudy with a high near 90 and southeast winds 10-20 mph. Tonight should be mostly clear with a low in the mid-60s.

Sunday should be partly cloudy and warmer with a high in the mid- 90s. Memorial Day's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with a chance of isolated afternoon and evening thunderstorms. Highs should be in the mid 90s with lows in the mid 60s.

After a high of 84, compared to the record high of 101 set in 1985, temperatures dipped to 57, which is less than 10 degrees warmer than the record low of 49 set in 1992.

STATE

Texas weather took a breather Friday, one day after tornadoes rocked the state.

Thunderstorms edged North Texas along the Red River during the afternoon Friday, the National Weather Service said.

Severe thunderstorms struck the ranch areas between the Pecos River and San Antonio on Friday. Baseball-size hail shattered windshields in Brackettville, about 30 miles east of Del Rio.

The storm also dropped billiard-ball size hail and 1 to 2 inches of rain around the Carrizo Springs-Crystal City area, east of Eagle Pass.

Otherwise, skies were mostly cloudy throughout most of the state, except for clear to partly cloudy skies along the Rio Grande and the lower Gulf Coast, the weather service said.

A few isolated afternoon showers also fell on the Panhandle.

Afternoon highs ranged from 67 in Amarillo to 92 in McAllen.

It was quite a contrast from Thursday afternoon, when tornadoes, hailstorms and windstorms swept Central Texas from the Hill Country toward Corsicana.

At least 12 people were injured and severe damage was reported in the areas surrounding Lampasas, Copperas Cove and Mexia.

Texas should be a sunnier place during the Memorial Day holiday weekend with partly cloudy skies prevailing statewide, except for a slight chance of thunderstorms today in everywhere but West Texas.

Highs should be in the 80s and 90s, except for around 100 along the Rio Grande. Morning lows should be in the 60s, except for some 50s in West Texas.

NATION

Thunderstorms dumped rain and hail across the eastern half of the country, from the mid-Atlantic states to Texas on Friday, while scattered showers fell in parts of the Northwest.

The thunderstorms produced hail as big as softballs in Brackettville and Big Wells, in southern Texas, and the hail smashed some car windows.

Almost an inch and a half of rain fell in Lufkin, Texas, in six hours and more than half an inch fell in Lawton, Okla.

HOME: Writer returns to 'rebuild Russia'

(From 1A)

writings on the cruelty of the communist system got him expelled from the Soviet Union in KGB handcuffs in 1974.

His books — among them "One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich" and "The First Circle" — also won him the Nobel Prize in literature in 1970 and acclaim as Russia's conscience and greatest living writer.

Some Russians question whether he has been away too long to have much impact in a Russia changed radically by the fall of communism.

But about 4,000 people stood in the rain for hours at Vladivostok's central square waiting for Solzhenitsyn. When he arrived in a white Japanese minivan from the airport, shouts of "Hurrah!" rose from the crowd.

Solzhenitsyn, 75, looked pale and tired after a 38-hour trip from Cavendish, Vt., where he lived the last 18 years. Evincing an occasional smile, he said he was overwhelmed with emotion at his long-awaited homecoming.

"I know I am coming to a Russia that is torn, discouraged, disoriented, changed beyond recognition, convulsively searching for itself, for its own true identity," Solzhenitsyn said in a 10-minute speech.

"I hope in meeting with many people to verify my impressions, and I am ready to revise them. But I would like during these meetings to help to find together with you a true path out of our 75-year-old quagmire, to find a future so that our people, our children, our nation, finally will discover the light and spiritual peace."

Solzhenitsyn, who was born as the Bolsheviks seized power and long predicted communism would not last his lifetime, stood with his sons Stephan and Yermolai and his wife, Natalia, who clutched a handful of white flowers.

A sign held up in the crowd read: "We ask for forgiveness. Welcome to your homeland. All of Mother Russia is waiting before you."

Someone asked him whether Russia could be revived.

"Yes," he said. "It will be difficult, not easy or fast, but we have lived through other hard times. ... Truly, our fate is in our own hands, beginning with every step of life, with every small choice. ... How life goes depends on us, and not on how someone from above in Moscow or somewhere else sends down a decision."

Solzhenitsyn was greeted at the airport by local government and Russian Orthodox Church leaders as well as 150 Russian and foreign journalists.

"We bow to the conscience of Russia," said a banner held by Boris Gavrilov, who came to catch a glimpse of Solzhenitsyn.

"He was the first who began to break the yoke of ideology on our souls, and we are beginning to feel like free men," said Gavrilov, who smiled broadly with a mouthful of gold teeth.

From Vladivostok, Solzhenitsyn plans to travel by train across the country to see the sweeping changes Russia has undergone since he was exiled from the then-communist police state under KGB guard in February 1974.

He will live in a red brick home overlooking the Moscow River on the outskirts of the capital.

On his first stop on Russian soil, in the far eastern city of Magadan, Solzhenitsyn stooped and touched the ground, looking exultant as a crowd of journalists and well-wishers pressed around him.

"I am so overwhelmed with so many different kinds of emotions," he said.

Magadan is in the Kolyma region, where an estimated 3 million inmates died in labor camps from exposure and exhaustion, and Solzhenitsyn paid them homage.

"I come to bow to the Kolyma land where many hundreds of thousands of our countrymen, who were executed, are buried," he said.

"Today, in this period with so much political change, people easily forget these millions of victims," he said in a voice throbbing with emotion.

City officials presented him with bread and salt, a traditional Russian welcome. Buffeted by strong winds, he kissed the bread and repeatedly crossed himself as he stood on the airport tarmac with his wife.

The writer touched the ground several times. He was embraced by another former inmate of the camps, Miron Otlif, who sobbed with emotion.

Solzhenitsyn, who hopes to serve as an inspiration to Russia as it wrestles with the transition from communism, blamed the oppression of the Stalin era for many of Russia's problems.

"The sources of today's flood of problems in the land are from those times," he said. "According to ancient Christian tradition, the earth is where the innocent victims are buried and it becomes holy, and we will hope that the Kolyma region will become the light for the future recovery of Russia."

ECONOMY: Greenspan defends rate increases

(From 1A)

"If we are successful in our current endeavors, there will not be an increase in overall inflation and trends toward price stability will be extended," he said.

However, Democrats on the Senate Banking Committee remained unconvinced, contending that the central bank was threatening to push the country into a recession because it was more concerned about pacifying unreasonable inflation fears on Wall Street than protecting the jobs of Americans on Main Street.

"These so-called pre-emptive strikes against inflation ... have a withering effect on the recovery," said Sen. Jim Sasser, D-Tenn. "Tight monetary policy not only jeopardizes job restoration but wage restoration as well."

"It would be foolhardy for us to needlessly bring this economic expansion to a premature shutdown," contended the committee's chairman, Don Riegle, D-Mich.

Greenspan stood his ground although he conceded that the central bank had not foreseen the sharp increase in long-term interest rates and the financial market turmoil that was triggered when it moved to boost interest rates for the first time in five years on Feb. 4.

Some have charged that the market was thrown into a tailspin because the central bank failed to adequately explain its moves. The Fed has also been attacked for making only small quarter-point rate increases at first, with critics arguing that financial markets saw these as too tentative in the face of a rapidly expanding economy.

Greenspan defended both the size and timing of the Fed's actions, contending that any more dramatic moves at the beginning would have risked even greater market turmoil as investors struggled to adjust to rising rates.

He also blamed the spike in long-term interest rates, which are set by financial markets, on the economy's brisk performance.

While there has been a slowdown from the torrid growth rate set late last year, the government reported Friday that the gross domestic product still grew at a better-than-expected 3 percent annual rate in the first three months of this year as brisk consumer spending offset the adverse effects of the severe winter.

The upward revision in the GDP, from an initial first-quarter estimate of 2.6 percent, sent financial markets tumbling initially as investors continued to dump bonds at every whiff of higher-than-expected growth, believing this means rising inflation down the road.

Greenspan's testimony had little effect on the markets. Private economists said the comments were mainly in line with previous Fed statements.

When pressed to predict when the Fed might act again, Greenspan specifically pointed to the official statement the Fed made when it last raised rates on May 17.

That statement was widely viewed as signaling that the Fed is through tightening for a while because it has accomplished its objective of switching policy to a neutral stance that neither spurs nor retards growth.

"Greenspan left the impression that the Fed can pause now and not adjust policy for awhile," said David Jones, chief economist at Aubrey G. Lanston & Co. in New York.

Jones predicted that Fed policy will remain on hold until September.

Riegle and Sasser both told Greenspan that the Fed should not go further in its rate increases before assessing the impact of the earlier increases.

Complaining about those moves, Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., held up an editorial cartoon depicting the Fed chairman with a sign proclaiming, "The economy is picking up. We are doomed."

"Every time the economy comes out of the water to catch its breath, you push it down again," Sarbanes said.

DEATH: Husband takes on cause after wife's suicide

(From 1A)

friends, decided it was better to give up life than spend it losing her memory to Alzheimer's disease.

As the fourth anniversary of her June 4 death approaches, her stockbroker husband is constantly reminded of her. People approach him on the street and media attention remains intense.

"Certainly I still grieve for Janet and still think of her and she'll always be a part of my life. We were married for 34 years. We grew up together and went through life together," said her husband, who hasn't remarried.

She was Kevorkian's first assisted suicide, catapulting him to the center of the debate over whether it is legal and moral to help terminally ill people kill themselves. Since then, Kevorkian has assisted 19 more deaths.

Adkins played the French horn and the piano, and loved philosophy and good literature. The couple traveled widely and shared a love of classical music that took them to France for several years, where he served in a military band.

They read books together, played tennis and hiked.

"She was an adventurer," her husband said. "She climbed Mount Hood. She went to the Himalayas and to Nepal and she went up in gliders and in a hot air balloon."

By 1989, she had trouble reading and stopped playing the piano. She was diagnosed that year with Alzheimer's. The family took every step to fight the disease, including an experimental drug program at the University of Washington in Seattle.

The couple, members of the Hemlock Society, believed in the right to die long before her diagnosis. Once she made the decision to end her life before her illness became too severe, they had to struggle to find someone qualified to help her.

Losing his wife, Adkins said, was like losing a part of himself.

He recalled a doctor who told him that his best option was to shoot his wife in the head. Another doctor feared regulators would discover he had prescribed an overdose.

Now the right-to-die cause consumes Adkins' life. He is the Oregon Hemlock Society's president and spends much of his time traveling the lecture and talk show circuit.

"I feel that if I can help in any way by talking to you or to anybody else, by giving people a choice to leave this life with their dignity still intact and not force the tremendous suffering required by some religious groups, I'm doing something worthwhile," he said.

There's an urgency to his message: "I know that as I speak to you this very moment, that thousands of people are dying in ways that we would not allow dogs to die."

His views have hurt his business. Old friends have shunned him. He finds some solace in the support of his three sons.

"Actually, my convictions are stronger now," said Ronald Adkins Jr., the eldest at 36. "She did what she felt she needed to do, and it strengthened us. I would like the same choice myself."

Adkins, 61, believes resistance to establishing a right to die will eventually crumble because the public is frustrated with doctors who prolong suffering, hospitals that profit from extending life without meaning or value, and politicians who refuse to write laws giving the terminally ill the final decision about their bodies.

"It's like a river," he said. "The river is running and flowing that way and you can't hold it back."

PRESS: Clinton gets wrong kind of headlines

(From 1A)

"If ever a picture was worth a thousand words, this was it," said Rep. Roscoe Bartlett, R-Md., who helped circulate the photograph on Capitol Hill and thrashed the White House roundly for misusing taxpayer's money.

It all added up to the kind of publicity the White House could have done without.

The helicopter episode — although jumped on by the White House before it had time to take hold as a full-blown scandal — is certain to be cited repeatedly by Republicans as a sign of hypocrisy and arrogance within the White House.

David Watkins, the White House's chief administrative officer, was forced to resign. And Clinton promised taxpayers would be reimbursed.

That lessened the potential damage of the episode, but it still remained an embarrassment to a president who is trying to demonstrate strong leadership and reverse slipping approval ratings.

The negative headlines came as Clinton prepared to embark on a politically delicate mission — a series of speeches in England, France and Italy honoring the allied invasion and World War II veterans.

Commandos capture kidnappers, free hostages

MOSCOW (AP) — A 24-hour hostage drama in a wild mountain region of southern Russia ended Friday with commandos freeing four captives unharmed and recovering millions of dollars in ransom money.

Three of the kidnappers were arrested and the fourth died in a shootout, authorities said.

It was the second high-stakes kidnapping in the area in five months, highlighting the crime wave that is sweeping Russia.

The kidnappers, granted the helicopter they demanded along with a three-man military crew, took off Friday morning from the resort city of Mineralnye Vody with four hostages.

Army helicopters carrying anti-terrorist squads were close behind, said Maj. Viktor Gusakov, an Interior Ministry spokesman in the city.

About three hours later, the kidnappers landed near the village of Bacha-Yurt in Chechnya, a breakaway Russian province known for its fierce warrior culture and ruthless criminal gangs.

Three of the kidnappers were captured almost immediately, said Alexander Kalmykov, a police official in Mineralnye Vody. The fourth gunman tried to flee into the nearby woods and was killed in a shootout, he said.

At least three of the gunmen were identified as residents of Chechnya.

There were conflicting reports about the size of the ransom paid, ranging from $4 million to $10 million.

In Chechnya, Interior Minister Apti Barsnukayev told the Interfax news agency the ransom was recovered in full, but there were unconfirmed reports that the kidnappers had burned some of the money.

The kidnapping began Thursday near Mineralnye Vody, a resort 800 miles south of Moscow.

Four men armed with guns and a grenade seized a bus loaded with schoolchildren, teachers and parents. Leaving the driver and most of the male passengers behind, they headed for the airport with 29 hostages, including eight children.

With police surrounding the bus, the gunmen threatened to decapitate the children, then demanded weapons and narcotics.

Police: Psychiatrist in lawsuit opens fire in office, kills 2, injures 1

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A psychiatrist involved in a lawsuit opened fire in a court reporter's office Friday, police said. A pregnant lawyer and a former judge were killed before the 15-shot pistol jammed.

The shooting suspect was identified as Dr. Julio Mora. He was chased down and held for authorities by the owner of the court-reporting firm where the shooting occurred.

Mora, whose 68th birthday was Friday, was charged with two counts of first-degree murder and one count of attempted murder for the wounding of a third person.

State law also allows murder charges to be filed in the death of a fetus, but prosecutors had not decided whether to do that, said police spokeswoman Sonya Friedman.

Police identified the victims as Karen Marx, 30, of Palm Beach, who was four months pregnant, and Clarence Rudolph, 56.

Maurice Hall, 45, a lawyer and retired judge from West Palm Beach, was wounded in the abdomen. He was listed in good condition after surgery at West Broward Hospital.

The shooting occurred in a sixth-floor office where Rudolph was giving a deposition in a civil case that involved Mora. Also in the office were the two lawyers — Marx and Hall — and a court reporter.

"Fifteen minutes into the deposition the gentleman pulled out a gun," said Bret Tannenbaum, owner of Coastal Reporting Services. "He fired six shots, two into each person. The gentleman's gun jammed. He ran out.

"This was a preplanned thing," Tannenbaum said. "(Mora) said some pretty weird things yesterday."

He refused to elaborate.

Police would not release details about the civil case, and said they had no motive for the shooting.

Tannenbaum said he heard six shots and went after the gunman, thinking the gun was empty.

"The police told me later that the seventh shot had jammed and it was a 15-round automatic," he said.

Driver tries to use doll as passenger

DIX HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — A driver got a ticket because her passenger was a dummy.

Amelian Woff, 58, tried to sneak onto the new carpool lanes on the Long Island Expressway with a baby doll in a car seat next to her, police said.

The Suffolk Highway Patrol put the brakes to that idea. Wolf was pulled over and given a ticket. She faces up to a $65 fine.

The carpool lanes, which opened Wednesday on a 12-mile stretch, are reserved for vehicles with more than one occupant from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays.

Officer John Capute said he saw Wolf's car go by Thursday and noticed a baby seat in the front. But he said the seat looked odd, and the driver gave him a sheepish look.

So he pulled her over, and found that the baby seat just held a doll, "all dressed, all dolled up, with a pacifier in its mouth," he said. "But it didn't look real at all."

Shootout in Albuquerque claims three lives

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A former state legislator, his son and a sheriff's lieutenant were killed Friday in a shootout that erupted when authorities tried to take the son in for a mental evaluation.

Lt. Bill Sibrava and former Republican state Sen. Joe Mercer died at University Hospital shortly after the shootings, said Sheriff Ray Gallagher. Mercer's 30-year-old son, Stephen, died during the gunfight at his southeast Albuquerque home, said sheriff's spokesman Ernie Watson.

The elder Mercer, a candidate for governor in 1986, was apparently killed in the crossfire.

"We aren't sure who shot him. We believe it was his son. We're not sure at this time," Watson said.

Five deputies, including Sibrava, were attempting to serve papers taking Mercer's son in for a mental evaluation Friday afternoon when the younger Mercer pulled a gun and began firing, hitting Sibrava.

"They went in the house and talked to him for just a little bit. He did not want to go," Watson said.

Two of the four deputies returned fire, Watson said, killing Stephen Mercer.

Watson said the elder Mercer had accompanied the deputies, who sought to have his son evaluated at a veterans hospital in Albuquerque.

The younger Mercer had been involved in a seven-hour standoff with Albuquerque police last week and had held off police for 45 minutes on Thursday, Watson said.

"There were a lot of deputies serving the order because there was a propensity for violence," he said.

Joe Mercer, 57, had run for governor in 1986 in a six-candidate Republican primary. He finished second to Garrey Carruthers, who went on to win the general election.

Mercer had represented northeast Albuquerque in the state Senate from 1977 to 1984, serving as minority floor leader from 1980 to 1984. He had served in the state House of Representatives in 1975 and 1976.

A graduate of the University of New Mexico and Harvard Law School, Mercer had been vice chairman of the state Judicial Council in 1984 and had served on a number of other state committees.

He is survived by his wife, JoAnn, and two other children, Matthew and Jennifer.

Sibrava was a 19-year veteran of the Sheriff's Department. He leaves a wife, Angelita, and daughters Sabrina, 15, and Shelly 13. He was the first Bernalillo County deputy killed in the line of duty since 1969.

Shell plant explosion, fire forces evacuation

BELPRE, Ohio (AP) — An explosion at a chemical plant sent flames shooting hundreds of feet into the air Friday and produced a mass of thick, black smoke that forced 1,700 people to flee.

Three employees who were in the Shell Chemical Co. plant were missing Friday afternoon, plant manager Arnie Dittmar said. He would not identify them, but said their families had been notified.

Late Friday afternoon the fire was brought under control and people were allowed to return to their homes.

No injuries were reported, and it wasn't known whether the smoke and fumes were toxic. The plant produces a thermoplastic rubber used in automotive parts, footwear and adhesives.

Fifty to 75 of the factory's 480 employees were working at the time of the explosion, spokesman Mike White said.

The plant along U.S. 50 is a complex of buildings covering about 15 acres, located about a mile from this Ohio River town of 6,800 people.

The fire began around 6:30 a.m. in one building and spread to at least one tank, which collapsed, said Washington County Fire Capt. Chris Forshey. He did not know the tank's contents.

The cause of the explosion was not immediately known.

Before the fire was controlled, it shot flames 300 to 600 feet high, and its heat was so intense that firefighters had to back off at one point.

In a statement from its Houston headquarters, Shell said the fire was contained to the plant.

Two of the burning chemicals were petroleum-based solvents cyclohexane and styrene monomers, said Ohio Environmental Protection Agency spokesman Rob Berger. Both are used in the production of plastics and can produce irritating or poisonous gases.

Authorities evacuated 15 homes in Porterfield, five miles west of Belpre, and later ordered the evacuation of everyone within a one-mile radius of the plant.

A nearby portion of U.S. 50 was closed, and schools in the city and some surrounding areas canceled classes. The Coast Guard was advising commercial and recreational boaters to avoid the Ohio River at Belpre because of the smoke.

POLICE REPORTS

Accident

BIG SPRING — A Nebraska man died in a one-vehicle accident early Friday morning when he veered across the center of an overpass and dropped to a Farm-to-market road below, according to a Department of Public Safety spokesman.

Donald Froien, 66, of Omaha, Neb., was pronounced dead at a Big Spring hospital at 12:11 a.m. Friday.

He was heading westbound on I-20 one-tenth of a mile west of Big Spring in a 1990 International truck-tractor. He was traveling across an overpass when his vehicle veered across the center median, struck a guardrail and dropped from the concrete embankment to a farm-to-market road below, the report said.

Murder

GIDDINGS — A Lee County jury has convicted an Odessa man of murder in connection with the rape-murder of a 72-year-old Burleson County woman, according to the Lee County district attorney.

Charles Raymond Supak, 27, admitted to Texas Rangers that he had sexually assaulted Lydia Charanza Schumacher while burglarizing her home on Jan. 20, 1988, but he blamed a co-defendant in her death, the district attorney said.

The case was moved to Giddings on a change of venue ruling. The punishment phase of hate trial will begin Tuesday.

Prior to the trial, District Attorney Charles Sebesta said he would seek the death penalty if Supack was convicted.

Groups to join for memorial ceremony

Staff Report

BIG SPRING — The Big Spring VA Medical Center and the Veterans Council of Howard County are joining for a memorial ceremony at Trinity Memorial Park at 2 p.m. Sunday.

VA Medical Center Chief of Staff Dr. Darryl H. Powell will serve as master of ceremonies; retired U.S. Air Force Lt. Col. Edmond H. Crandall will be the keynote speaker. The honor guard from Goodfellow Air Force Base in San Angelo will present, post and retire the colors.

"Even in these times of relative peace and accord, we have recent reminders that the price of peace can be very dear indeed," said a representative with the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Some of these reminders are the recent deaths of paratroopers of the 82nd Airborne Division who were killed when a fighter plane crashed into the transport they were boarding for a practice jump; the Army Rangers who died in a savage ambush in Somalia; and infantrymen of the 1st Infantry Division — "The Big Red One" — killed during the Persian Gulf War.

Each Memorial Day the country pauses to honor those who died in service to America, from all generations and all wars.

But this year, the VA will pay special homage to a group of Americans who helped change the course of history and helped preserve a world in which the ideals of freedom and individual rights could flourish. Ceremonies will honor the veterans who participated in D-Day — the invasion of Normandy on June 6, 1944.

As lottery sales climb after 2 years, dog racing hits slump

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas lottery officials Friday celebrated the second year of continued growth, but the game's success has been at the expense of pari-mutuel wagering, specifically dog racing, officials said.

Two years after the first lottery ticket was purchased by Gov. Ann Richards on May 29, 1992, more than $4.25 billion in tickets, including lotto, have been sold.

"We have no sophomore slump. We expect to continue the sales the way we are going and hopefully have a successful third, fourth, fifth year as we continue to go on," said Texas Lottery Director Nora Linares.

Average daily sales for the second year were 42 percent higher than the first year, Ms. Linares said.

But the lottery's success has translated into a bad day at the races.

The amount wagered at dog race tracks in Corpus Christi and Harlingen has dropped 40 percent and 42 percent respectively since the lottery has come into full swing, Texas Racing Commission executive secretary David Freeman said.

"Anytime there is competition for the discretionary dollar, someone is going to lose," Freeman said.

He said the lottery is easier to play, and with 15,000 retail outlets selling tickets, much more accessible.

Freeman said the tracks could be more aggressive in advertising, but the Legislature may ultimately have to help.

"There is going to have to be the ability for these racetracks, through legislation perhaps, to get into an off-track betting situation where they can have their product throughout Texas," he said.

Ms. Linares said she believes that lottery and racing can "live together."

She said if the Legislature allowed lottery tickets to be sold at racetracks more people would attend.

New phone service may end prank calls

HOUSTON (AP) — A new Southwestern Bell service will allow Houston phone customers the luxury of tracking not only the number of incoming calls, but names of those making the calls.

Premiering June 1, the service is a first in Texas.

Austin is the only other city in Texas with Caller ID, and that service only provides customers with the phone number of the incoming call, not the caller's name.

"Caller ID is a convenient way for people who want additional security in their telephone service to avoid undesirable calls," said Rick Gamez, a Southwestern Bell general manager.

"It's really an electronic peephole."

By early 1995, Southwestern Bell hopes to have the Caller ID service available in most metropolitan areas in Texas.

The Caller ID panel, which can be purchased for about $50 from Southwestern Bell, displays the number, the time and the date of the call. With the expanded service, the name of the person or company to whom that number is assigned, also appears.

All of the information appears after the first ring, even if the phone remains unanswered.

The panel is a small rectangular box, and can be programmed to display information in Spanish or English.

To date, approximately 18,500 customers in the Houston area have pre-ordered the caller ID system, 88 percent of those also ordering the name ID option.

Southwestern Bell has also developed other services to protect the identity of callers wishing to remain anonymous.

"The system does not force a caller to leave their number," said Wayne Alexander, vice-president of general management.

A phone user can block his number from ever being sent to a Caller ID customer two ways and both are free.

One is a phone number blocking option through Southwestern Bell that prevents the caller's number and name from every being transmitted.

The other, a per-call option, blocks the release of a phone number if the caller dials the star-digit on the phone pad, then 67 or 1167 before dialing the phone number.

On the receiving end, those Caller ID customers who want anonymous callers rejected can do so.

An anonymous caller will then hear a message letting them know that their call has been rejected.

The caller ID service will cost businesses $7.50 a month and residents $4.95. Both services can be ordered for $6.50. The other services vary in cost and can be bought in complete packages of about $9.

Jazz play tune on Rockets

By Chris Sheridan
AP Sports Writer

SALT LAKE CITY — The Utah Jazz won a game they desperately needed by finally playing like a team.

After failures in Games 1 and 2 that were marked by unbalanced scoring and Hakeem Olajuwon's dominance, the Jazz reversed those trends Friday night and beat the Houston Rockets 95-86 to cut their deficit to 2-1 in the Western Conference final.

The Jazz, who never trailed, got strong contributions from almost every player. Karl Malone had 22 points and 16 rebounds, Jeff Hornacek had 17 points, Jay Humphries 15, David Benoit 14, John Stockton 13 points and 11 assists and Tom Chambers added 10 points.

In the first two games, only three players — Malone, Hornacek and Stockton — scored more than 15 points in a game.

Olajuwon missed his first eight shots of the game, misfired on seven of 16 free throws and was reluctant to pass the ball when faced with double coverage. He finished with 29 points and 13 rebounds, but it was easily his worst game of the series.

Utah opened a 12-point lead at halftime, upped it to 18 in the third quarter and didn't let Houston get closer than eight in the final period.

Utah had a 53-39 edge in rebounding, made 4-of-7 3-pointers while Houston went 6-of-21 from beyond the stripe, and shot 42 percent to Houston's 36.

The Jazz will look to even the best-of-7 series in Game 4 on Sunday afternoon.

After going 4-for-15 from the field in the first three quarters, Malone hit his first three shots of the final period as Utah took an 84-67 lead. Humphries' 3-pointer with 5:45 left made it 89-74, and from there it was only a matter of keeping Houston from going on too big

Coach 'K' to NBA?

Duke basketball coach Mike Krzyzewski admitted Friday he is looking at other coaching opportunities.

The Herald-Sun of Durham quoted sources close to the Krzyzewski family as saying there was a 50-50 chance that he will leave for the NBA after being recruited by NBA commissioner David Stern. See story/3B.

Meadows dies

DUNCANVILLE — Longtime girls high school basketball coach Sandra Meadows, a widely respected and extremely successful teacher on and off the court, died Friday from widespread cancer. She was 59.

Meadows won 904 games from 1958-93, with 743 victories and four state titles coming at Duncanville High.

Among her many achievements was a state-record 134-game winning streak from December 1987 to March 1991, the second-longest in national girl's history.

Meadows' Pantherettes dominated the 1980s, going 313-43 and winning state titles in 1987-88 and 1988-89.

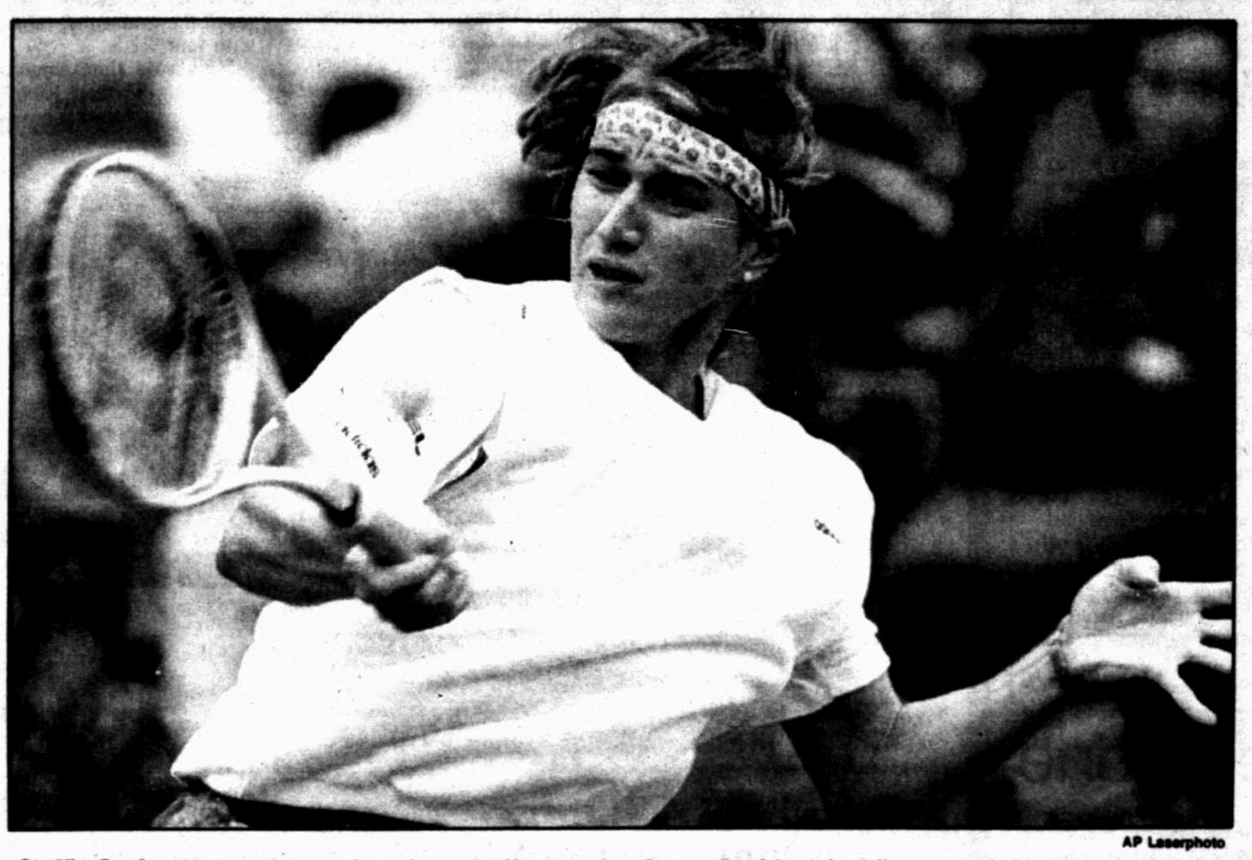

Meadows previously coached at Castleberry High, where she went 42-33 from 1958-61; and Olton High, where her teams were 121-74 from 1961-68.

PARIS — Top seeds Pete Sampras and Steffi Graf won today and advanced to the fourth round of the French Open, but Mary Joe Fernandez, the women's runner-up last year, was upset by Romanian Irina Spirlea.

Three other seeds — No. 11 Thomas Muster, No. 16 Richard Krajicek of the Netherlands and No. 15 Helena Sukova of the Czech Republic — also were upset, leaving only seven of the 16 men's seeds and eight of the women's seeds even before the tournament reached the halfway point.

Ines Gorrochategui of Argentina beat Sukova 7-6 (10-8), 7-6 (7-1), and Australian Patrick Rafter won 6-4, 5-7, 6-3, 6-3 over Muster, who ousted Andre Agassi in the second round.

Mikael Tillstrom of Sweden, a qualifier ranked 226th playing in his first Grand Slam, surprised Krajicek 7-6 (7-4), 6-2, 6-3 to earn a fourth-round match with Sampras.

Rangers head to cup finals

■ New York earns first trip to Stanley Cup finals with double overtime win.

By Mike Nadel
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — The agonizing ecstasy that is the New York Rangers' quest for the Cup continues.

Seeking their first sip of Stanley Cup champagne in 54 years, the Rangers earned their first trip to the NHL championship round since 1979 with a 2-1 double-overtime victory over the New Jersey Devils on Friday night in the seventh game of the Eastern Conference final.

Stephane Matteau scored at 4:24 of the second overtime, sending the Madison Square Garden crowd into a frenzy and the Rangers into the finals for the 10th time. New York, which plays host to Vancouver on Tuesday, has won three titles — none since 1940.

The Rangers, who had the NHL's best regular-season record, held off their legendary Cup Curse despite allowing Valeri Zelepukin's tying goal with 7.7 seconds left in regulation.

"It's an important step to get where we want to get to," Rangers captain Mark Messier said. "It was an incredible series, obviously — three overtime games. Two strong teams going at it."

The Rangers outshot the Devils 48-32 and dominated both overtimes but couldn't claim the series until Matteau's unassisted goal.

Matteau carried the puck behind the New Jersey net and tried to center a pass to Esa Tikkanen. But the puck

Raven called up, Angels fall

Staff Report

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Slugger Luis Raven was called up to Triple-A Vancouver, first baseman Chris Pritchett suffered an injury and the Midland Angels found the current 12-game road trip turning into "National Lampoon's Vacation" here Friday.

With all the lineup changes for the Angels, it was Arkansas' Paul Ellis, however, who turned the tide of the game early by driving in the Travelers' first six runs and boosting them to an 8-3 victory.

Raven, who is currently hitting .310, led the team in home runs (18) and runs batted in (57). That alone created havoc in the Angels already depleted fielder's corps. But an injury to first baseman Pritchett could keep him out of the lineup at least for today's double header.

Emo hopes for clean start at Indy 500

By Mike Harris
AP Motorsports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS — Emerson Fittipaldi not only knows what it takes to win a race, he also knows the best way to start one.

The beginning of the Indianapolis 500 presents the most stressful and dangerous moments to the drivers trying to get into the rhythm of a long event.

Sunday, as usual, it will be 33 race cars, buffeted by extreme turbulence, accelerating to more than 220 mph on the main straightaway and trying to squeeze through the narrow first and second turns in a matter of seconds.

A year ago, the turns on the 2½-mile oval were narrowed by eliminating the apron at the bottom of the banked track and replacing it with grass and a narrow concrete rumblestrip that sounds a loud warning when a car ventures onto it.

"I think one of the most difficult things I experienced last year is going to happen again this year," Fittipaldi said. "When you hit traffic with the new configuration ... you'll be in the turbulence of the guy ahead of you and you're going to lose the downforce.

"You're going to lose the front end of the car, and that's going to be a fight that will have to be fought the whole race. Not just myself, but all the drivers. And I think the toughest part of the race, trying to follow someone close enough that you can come out of the corner and have a run on them and pass before the next corner."

Fittipaldi, a two-time Formula One champion and the 1989 IndyCar PPG Cup winner, won the Indy 500 in 1989 and again last year. Sunday, he will start from the outside of the front row, the third-best qualifying position in the lineup.

The pole-winner has the most victories, 14, in the 77 Indy races, followed by second place with 10 wins and third with nine. But a driver starting in the middle of the front row has not won since Mario Andretti in 1969.

Al Unser Jr., Fittipaldi's teammate is on the pole Sunday, with Raul Boesel alongside.

Asked what would happen at the start of the race, Fittipaldi said jokingly, "They will let the man on the outside of the front row lead into the first turn."

Once it starts, Fittipaldi knows precisely how he wants to approach the big-

STILLWATER, Okla. — Adam Robson hit two home runs and drove in six runs to lead Texas Christian to an 11-3 victory over Memphis in the Midwest I regional Friday afternoon.

Reid Ryan, son of major league strikeout king Nolan Ryan, scattered eight hits over seven innings for the Horned Frogs (38-20), who play Saturday against the winner of Northwestern (La.) State and Cal State-Fullerton.

Memphis State will play the Oklahoma State-Illinois State winner.

In Robson's last visit to Allie Reynolds Stadium, he also homered twice and drove in six runs in a 9-8 loss to Oklahoma State in April.

Against the Tigers (50-10), he hit an RBI-double in the first inning to help stake Ryan to a 2-0 lead and a three-run home run in the fifth off Dan Goehne (13-3) to give TCU a 6-2 lead.

Robson closed out TCU's scoring with a two-run home run to left in the seventh.

Ryan (7-6) gave up a two-run single by Scott Curtis in the fourth inning that tied the game at 2, but he settled down and kept Memphis State in check after that.

Nate Weimer and Jeff Ince led off the Tigers' eighth with consecutive singles. Jeff Baker relieved Ryan and got Curtis to hit into a double play on the first pitch. Michael O'Keefe singled to score Weimer, but that was it.

Astros escape Wild Thing, stop Phillies

Associated Press

■ NL Roundup

PHILADELPHIA — Wild Thing was at it again Friday night.

This time, his team escaped the trouble he created. On the night of his return to Philadelphia, Mitch Williams hit a batter and walked another in the ninth inning but the Houston Astros held on to beat the Phillies 4-2.

Williams, traded to Houston on Dec. 2 after giving up the World Series-winning home run to Toronto's Joe Carter, was greeted by a standing ovation as he took the mound in the ninth.

He promptly walked Jim Eisenreich, then hit Mickey Morandini in the back before getting Kim Batiste to fly to left.

Expos 4, Rockies 2

MONTREAL — Rookie Gabe White pitched six strong innings in his major-league debut as Montreal defeated Colorado.

White, a 22-year-old lefthander who was recalled from the minors on Friday, gave up four hits and struck out six before leaving for a pinch-hitter in the seventh. He gave up one hit and a walk through 3⅓ innings before Andres Galarraga hit his 17th homer.

Giants 4, Marlins 3

SAN FRANCISCO — John Patterson's first career grand slam gave San Francisco a victory over Florida.

Patterson's grand slam off Dave Weathers (5-3) in the fifth inning brought the Giants back from a 1-0 deficit. Returning home from a disastrous 3-7 road trip, San Francisco won its third in a row.

Weathers gave up only two hits in the first four innings before the Giants came to life.

Braves 7, Cubs 2

ATLANTA — Greg Maddux won his eighth game and David Justice hit a two-run homer as Atlanta battered Mike Morgan early in a victory over Chicago.

Maddux (8-2) allowed five hits, two runs, walked two and struck out seven in seven innings. He won his fourth consecutive decision and the Braves won for the fifth time in seven games.

Mets 10, Reds 2

NEW YORK — Pete Smith pitched an eight-hitter and Todd Hundley drove in three runs to send New York to a victory over Cincinnati.

Smith (3-5), who lost five of his last six decisions, struck out four and didn't allow a walk in his first complete game of the season and the 11th of his career.

Hundley's two-run homer, his ninth, and a two-run homer by Luis Rivera, his third, sent the Reds to their sixth loss in seven games.

Padres 8, Cardinals 6

SAN DIEGO — Phil Clark's homer led a barrage of six extra-base hits in two innings by the normally light-hitting San Diego Padres, who handed St. Louis ace Bob Tewksbury his second loss this season.

It was the worst outing of the year for Tewksbury (8-2), who allowed 13 hits and eight runs in 4 2-3 innings.

The Padres entered with a .243 team batting average, tied with San Francisco for the worst in the majors. Their outburst got Scott Sanders (2-3) off the hook after he allowed a three-run homer to pinch-hitter Bernard Gilkey and a two-run shot to Tom Pagnozzi in the fourth.

Yankees finally stop KC's Cone

Associated Press

■ AL Roundup

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — David Cone's 28-inning scoreless streak ended with a five-run first, and Jimmy Key won his sixth straight decision to lead the New York Yankees past the Kansas City Royals 5-2 Friday night.

Cone (8-2) was coming off three consecutive shutouts and was trying to become the first nine-game winner in the majors. But leftfielder Vince Coleman had a double error in the first and Daryl Boston hit a three-run homer.

Luis Polonia singled leading off, Wade Boggs walked and Coleman dropped Don Mattingly's popup into short left after a long run. Coleman's throw to third for a force on Polonia then bounced away from Gary Gaetti.

Polonia scored on the play, and Jim Leyritz's sacrifice fly made it 2-0. Paul O'Neill then walked and Boston hit his first home run of the season.

Brewers 5, Mariners 2

MILWAUKEE — Milwaukee ended its club record 14-game losing streak, beating Seattle on B.J. Surhoff's three-run homer in the eighth inning.

Brian Harper doubled off Bill Risley (2-3) with one out in the eighth and pinch-runner Matt Mieske took third on Dave Nilsson's flyout. Davis intentionally walked John Jaha to put runners at the corners, and Surhoff hit his first homer since Sept. 29, 1993.

Milwaukee hadn't won since May 10, when the Brewers were tied for first place.

Angels 6, Blue Jays 2

TORONTO — Phil Leftwich pitched seven strong innings and California scored six runs in the sixth inning to beat Toronto.

Leftwich (3-4) went 7⅓ innings, giving up two runs on seven hits. He walked two and struck out six.

Toronto took a 1-0 lead in the second inning on an RBI single by Carlos Delgado.

But California went ahead 6-1 in the sixth on a two-run double by Bo Jackson, a run-scoring double by Eduardo Perez, a bases-loaded wild pitch and a two-run single by Chad Curtis.

The Blue Jays got a run in the eighth on Paul Molitor's run-scoring double.

Toronto starter Al Leiter (3-4) went five innings, allowing four runs on five hits. He walked four and struck out three.

Twins 5, Tigers 2

MINNEAPOLIS — Kevin Tapani won his fourth straight start and Scott Leius drove in three runs, leading Minnesota past Detroit.

Tapani (5-2) allowed four hits in 7⅓ innings, struck out five and walked none. Rick Aguilera pitched the ninth for his 10th save in 11 chances.

Tim Belcher (2-8) allowed five runs and eight hits in seven innings, struck out four and walked five. His ERA dropped from 7.23 to 7.14.

Alex Cole's RBI double put Minnesota ahead in the third, but Detroit took a 2-1 lead in the sixth when Junior Felix doubled and Danny Bautista hit his second homer of the season. Bautista entered the game just 5-for-27 (.185) with four RBIs.

Minnesota then went ahead 3-2 in the sixth when Kirby Puckett singled, Belcher walked three consecutive batters, including Leius with the bases loaded, and Matt Walbeck hit an RBI groundout.

Leuis added a two-run double in the seventh.

Indians 3, Athletics 2

CLEVELAND — Paul Sorrento led off the ninth inning with his fifth home run of the season, giving Cleveland a victory over Oakland.

Cleveland, returning from a 2-4 road trip, won its seventh straight home game since May 1.

Sorrento drove a 2-2 pitch from John Briscoe (2-2) into the mezzanine seats in right field. All three Cleveland runs scored on solo homers.

Jose Mesa (4-2) pitched two scoreless innings in relief of Dennis Martinez for the victory.

Cleveland took a 2-0 lead on consecutive third-innning home runs by Jim Thome and Sandy Alomar, the eighth and ninth hitters in the Indians' lineup. Thome drove a 3-2 pitch over the fence in center for his fifth home run, and two pitches later, Alomar homered to left, his fourth.

ANGELS: Raven gone

(From 1C)

when he slid into the wall and injured his lower leg. He left the game after finishing the inning but did not return after his leg began swelling.

Pritchett currently has 33 RBI so he and Raven combined for 90 of the Angels' RBI. Brian Grebeck, who has now played five positions in the Angel defense, took over for Pritchett at first. Grebeck has connected eight of his last 12 at bats and reached base on 11 of 15.

The Angels finish up the series with Arkansas today with the first game starting at 6 p.m. Then they have Sunday and Monday off before hosting San Antonio in Midland on Tuesday.

Ellis broke it open for the Travelers, who are now on a two-game winning streak, with a grand slam home run in the second to give Arkansas a 4-0 lead. He came to bat again in the third with the bases loaded and got the walk to bring in another run. Then in the fifth, Ellis got his sixth RBI of the night with a single.

the Y-LINE 560-2400

On June 3, CITYLINE, in conjunction with the Project Awaken Task Force, will launch the Y-Line.

What exactly is the Y-Line, you ask?

Simple.

The Y-Line is an interactive telephone service geared toward the youth of Midland County.

The Y-Line will offer answers to frequently asked questions that youths have, and will also feature entertainment options in which youth callers can participate.

Interactive Movie Polls.

Health and Social Concerns.

Youth Community Pulse Polls.

Local Activities sponsored by area youth groups.

It's all on the Y-Line. And it's all free.

The Y-Line will be entirely voiced by youths in Midland County. It's a service for young people. By young people.

One problem -- we need your help. In order to make the Y-Line as successful as many youths have said they foresee it, the Y-Line is in need of sponsors to help underwrite operating costs. Sponsorships are available beginning for as little as $100 per month.

A $100 sponsorship will give you the opportunity to display your company's support of our youth in a weekly directory publicizing the Y-Line in the Reporter-Telegram; a $350 sponsorship will get you the same directory ad, plus an on-line sponsorship of one of the 25 categories available on the Y-Line.

For more information on how you can help, call Jimmy Patterson at 687-8852.

Help Midland's youth help themselves.

Johnson scours college ranks for pitching

By Frank Luska
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS — One of his most recent searches for a pitching prospect took Sandy Johnson to Omaha, N-N-N-Nebraska, for a college game delayed by snow and sleet. The thermometer registered a f-f-frigid 31 degrees.

Scouts go anywhere and everywhere to find someone who can throw a baseball 60 feet, six inches that someone else can't hit 450 feet, six inches. In this extreme case, the Rangers' bird dog might as well have been scouting penguins.

Johnson spent that night in a relaxed state within his hotel room. He lay across a radiator to thaw out. He also savored the aftertaste of a gourmet dinner.

"Sandwich and bag of chips at 7-Eleven," chirped Johnson, recounting the menu. "Ah, that's livin'."

Johnson is living on the road and traveling at Mach speed to prepare for the free-agent draft in June. A recent trip illustrated a road well-traveled.

Up at 4:30 a.m. in New York. Fly to Pittsburgh. Drive to Akron. View a double header. Return to Pittsburgh. Fly to Phoenix. Check in hotel. Length of day with time changes: 24 hours.

All is done to locate baseball's version of the Hope Diamond — a kid with hope of pitching in the major leagues. Johnson isn't alone in his quest. He's a face in a large crowd of scouts.

"Everyone's looking for a college pitcher who's close. Even if he's not close, close by today's standards," said Johnson.

Today's standards are lower than yesterday's, and yesterday was no golden era. Is pitching a lost art or is there a shortage of artists? The majors are full of guys who can't pitch pennies.

'We're rushing every college kid to the majors. Nobody can wait. Nobody has patience. A kid never gets to learn how to pitch like he used to.'

— Sandy Johnson
Texas Rangers scout

Johnson has spent 36 years in the game as player, manager and, since 1984, head of the Rangers' scouting system. He knows an accomplished pitcher when he sees one. He has seen few lately.

He thinks he knows why.

"We're rushing every college kid to the majors," he began. "Nobody can wait. Nobody has patience. A kid never gets to learn how to pitch like he used to. He comes up able to get one pitch over the plate, and he's close on a second.

"So, he's really not ready to face big-league hitters. He gets too much of the plate. And he gets hammered."

Someone suggested to Johnson that the strike zone has shrunk to the size of a phone book. The high strike — above the waist and below the letters — has vanished. The batter feasts on a knees-to-waist zone.

Johnson wouldn't disagree. He noted another weapon has been eliminated from the pitcher's arsenal. The inside pitch is practically illegal. Once it was a celebrated weapon of Don Drysdale, Nolan Ryan and Bob Gibson. Even the source of nickname for Sal (The Barber) Maglie.

"You could live inside then. Now a kid goes inside and he's warned even if it's an accident," Johnson said.

Pitchers also earned nicknames to denote durability. Iron Man. The Big Train. Chief. And so on. Today it's more like Fragile: Handle With Care.

Were injuries this common in yesteryear? Johnson thinks not.

"Not too many years ago, you never heard of a rotator cuff," he said. "I think it's pain tolerance. They feel a tweak or twinge and shut themselves down. They don't feel right, so they don't pitch."

Money was never this good, either. With millions at stake, self-interest reigns.

"How many times did Ryan or Sandy Koufax feel 100 percent?" wondered Johnson. "Now they want to feel perfect. If they have a blister, they can't make it. Big money dictates so much."

Johnson better relates to a time when conversations like this took place on the mound:

Pitcher: "It hurts when I throw from there."

Manager: "Then throw from where it doesn't hurt."

Added Johnson: "Now, anytime there's any concern, they're taking X-rays and MRIs."

Johnson shares Ryan's theory that kids don't throw as much in their youth anymore. Arms don't develop necessary strength. The trend is to baby an arm and thus, the disappearance of pitchers engaged in long toss or pepper games.

Other factors to account for poor pitching are obvious. Expansion promoted 30-40 Class AAA pitchers to the majors. There they face hitters stronger through weight training. So it goes, and often over the fence.

De La Hoya survives knockdown for knockout

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Giorgio Campanella caught Oscar De La Hoya's attention early, then paid the price for doing so.

De La Hoya, stunned by a knockdown only seconds into his fight Friday night with the Italian challenger, came back with a furious assault to knock Campanella down twice before finally ending the fight with a flurry of punches in the third round to retain his WBO junior lightweight title.

"I felt I could stop him with my power," De La Hoya said. "It just took some time to get going."

It was the 13th straight win as a pro for the Olympic gold medalist, but it did not come without some anxious moments.

The unheralded Campanella caught De La Hoya with a crushing left hook 15 seconds into the scheduled 12-round fight, sending him to the canvas on the seat of his trunks.

De La Hoya was up quickly at the count of four and did not appear seriously hurt, but Campanella continued to get the better of the exchanges throughout the round.

"A lot of times when fighters don't warm up properly, they get hit," De La Hoya said. "That's what happened to me. I didn't feel strong, so I didn't warm up a lot."

De La Hoya, 130, seemed to find his rhythm to begin the second round, going to a left jab that landed early and often. He was dominating before hurting Campanella with a left-right combination followed by a flurry that put him to one knee.

Campanella, also 130, survived the round, but De La Hoya came out in the third round with another flurry that put the challenger down again 15 seconds into the round. Campanella was up at the count of six but another flurry prompted his corner to throw in the towel and referee Joe Cortez stopped the fight at 38 seconds of the round.

De La Hoya, of East Los Angeles, was paid $500,000, while Campanella earned $25,000. Campanella fell to 20-1 in his first fight outside of Europe.

The short but exciting fight topped a card of three title fights at the MGM Grand Garden arena, none of which lasted past the third round.

Earlier, Roy Jones Jr. staked his claim to being boxing's best middleweight with a single devastating left hook that sent Thomas Tate sprawling to the canvas.

It was the only punch of the second round for Jones, who was defending his IBF middleweight title for the first time against Tate.

"Sometimes I don't even know my own skill," Jones said seconds after taking Tate out.

The fight came to a sudden end only seconds into the second round when Jones shot out a left hook that crumpled Tate's knees.

Tate managed to get up at the count of seven, but staggered toward a neutral corner and his cornerman, Eddie Mustafa Muhammad, ran to him on the ring apron asking referee Richard Steele to stop the fight.

Steele obliged, ending the fight at 13 seconds of the round with the disbelieving Tate protesting the decision.

Jones, making the first defense of the title he won a year ago from Bernard Hopkins, ran his record to 26-0 and scored his 23rd knockout of his pro career. Tate, 159½, of Detroit, fell to 29-3 in losing his second title fight.

Labonte hopes to stay hot at Coke 600

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — Not even coming to Charlotte Motor Speedway can dampen Terry Labonte's spirits.

At age 37, Labonte is enjoying a resurgence on NASCAR's Winston Cup circuit. He again has good equipment and good people — and has a chance to win races and championships.

And he is enjoying himself again.

"It's just fun being in a race car where you know that when things go right, you've got a legitimate chance of winning," Labonte said as stock car racing's top drivers prepared for Sunday's Coca-Cola 600 at Charlotte. "It gives you a lot of confidence knowing that you have a good car and good people behind you."

Labonte, the 1984 Winston Cup champion who subsequently drifted into some mediocre driving jobs, broke a 135-race winless streak last month with a victory at North Wilkesboro, N.C.

■ Coca-Cola 600

It was another example of the good things Labonte has accomplished in only his first year driving one of Rick Hendrick's Chevrolet Luminas.

Now comes a big challenge for Labonte: Charlotte's 1½-mile trioval.

Labonte has run in 15 Coca-Cola 600s, and he has an average finish placing of 16.86. In 31 career Winston Cup events at the track, his average finish is 15.97. He has finished on the lead lap only three times.

"I've probably had more trouble here than any other place we run. Tough place," said Labonte, who will start 10th Sunday.

Of his terrible string of misfortunes at Charlotte, Labonte said, "I'm not at all disappointed."

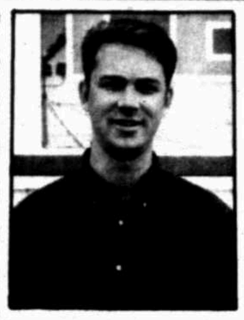

Driving a car that's competitive on a weekly basis can do that for a driver.

"I'm not doing anything different," he said. "I'm just with a good team. Equipment means so much, and I feel fortunate to be with these people. It's been a while since I've been with a good team — that can win."

Labonte spent 1987-1989 driving for Junior Johnson in a union that failed to live up to expectations. From there, it was one year with Leo Jackson, followed by three seasons driving for Billy Hagan; under whom Labonte won the '84 title. The old magic could not be duplicated.

Last year, when it was rumored that Ricky Rudd would leave Hendrick's three-car stable, Labonte was approached to see if he had an interest in replacing him.

NFL audit Cowboys for unreported revenue

DALLAS (AP) — Cowboys owner Jerry Jones says the team is operating within the National Football League's revenue-sharing plan and did not underreport money for visiting teams.

The NFL is auditing the team to determine whether Jones failed to share proceeds from permanent seat licenses, also known as seat options.

Under the league's revenue-sharing plan, visiting teams receive about 38 percent of gate receipts, not including income from luxury suites.

If the league finds Dallas' accounting procedures are improper, the Cowboys would have to pay an additional $20,000 per appearance to teams visiting Texas Stadium.

At the NFL owners meetings this week, Jones agreed to present Texas Stadium's financial records to the NFL. However, he maintains that the funds in question are not part of the league's revenue-sharing plan.

"Since the stadium was built in 1971, then owned by Clint Murchison, then Bum Bright and now me, revenues from seat options have never been a part of the visiting teams' manifest, and in my view it still isn't," Jones told The Dallas Morning News.

"The league approved the Cowboys' stadium deal on three different occasions, and we're operating within those parameters."

The funds, covering a period starting in 1991, represent proceeds from premiums the team imposes on season-ticket holders who want to retain the options to purchase seats through 2008.

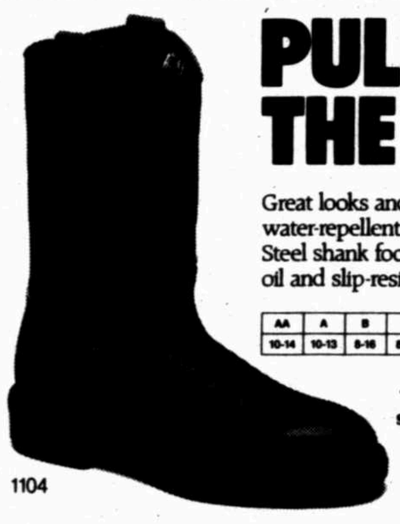

San Francisco 49ers president Carmen Policy, who is on the NFL's finance committee, said some owners are upset with the Cowboys over the situation. But he said the owners don't suspect Jones of intentionally trying to shortchange them.

"If the finding of the committee is contrary to Jerry's position, I'm confident it was not part of some malicious scheme," Policy said.

Under the new collective-bargaining agreement, teams have to categorize revenues and disclose financial revenues to the union to determine the salary cap.

An audit by the NFL Players Association discovered $17 million in Dallas funds it considered improperly classified.

Jones wanted the funds prorated into the salary cap because he will collect $11 million of the $17 million in future seasons.

INDY: Fittipaldi tries for consistent race

gest race of the season.

"What goes on in my mind on race day is that trying to keep the car as consistent as you can from lap one to the end of the race," the Brazilian said.

"A lot of people think that driving Indianapolis, you have to drive easy to finish the race. But I never did."

The 47-year-old Fittipaldi has won this race twice with late moves that were a direct result of hard driving.

In 1989, he and Unser, then on different teams, went wheel-to-wheel into the first turn two laps from the end. The two bumped wheels, Unser spun into the wall and Fittipaldi went on to take the checkered flag.

Last year, Fittipaldi took advantage of Nigel Mansell's lack of oval experience on a restart late in the race and easily won Indy for the second time.

"It's a 500-mile race, but you drive it hard from lap one to the last lap," Fittipaldi said.

German leads qualifiers for Spanish GP

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — Germany's Michael Schumacher was the leading qualifier for the Spanish Grand Prix Friday as drivers and officials worked to find ways to improve safety following the deaths of two drivers in the past month.

Race stewards, on orders from the International Automobile Federation (FIA), had barred Schumacher's Benetton-Ford team from morning practice after the team manager complained the FIA's new safety rules might make Formula One races more dangerous.

The stewards later accepted Benetton's assurances that their cars met the new safety standards. Schumacher — winner of the first four races of the season — then drove in the afternoon qualifier, clocking 1 minute, 23.426 seconds — 1.154 seconds faster than No. 2 Mika Hakkinen of Finland.

Several other teams also returned to the track in the afternoon after having missed the morning trials because of concern over the new regulations. Only nine cars, representing five of the 14 teams, made morning practice runs. A race can be canceled if fewer than 12 cars are entered.

The disagreement was sparked by a letter that Benetton-Ford manager Flavio Briatore wrote to FIA president Max Mosley saying initial tests showed the new technical changes would render the cars even less safe.

Team managers met with Mosley late in the morning.

denly I'm playing my best tennis," said Tillstrom, 24. "I'm thrilled."

He said playing Sampras would be fun, adding, "If I can return his serve, maybe I can beat him."

Sampras, playing his best tennis of the tournament, overwhelmed Paul Haarhuis of the Netherlands 6-1, 6-4, 6-1 in just 99 minutes. Jim Courier, the men's runner-up last year and champion in 1991 and 1992, also advanced with a 6-3, 6-1, 6-1 drubbing of Sweden's Jonas Bjorkman.

So did fourth-seeded Andrei Medvedev of Ukraine, but with difficulty. He outlasted Canada's Greg Rusedki, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2.

Sixth-seeded Sergi Bruguera of Spain, the defending champion, beat Ronald Agenor of Haiti 6-3, 6-3, 6-3.

Graf dropped her first set in three matches in a 6-0, 4-6, 6-2 win over 76th-ranked Joannette Kruger of South Africa. Kruger, whose two victories here were her first ever at a Grand Slam, grinned broadly when her second-set comeback drew spirited applause from the Court A crowd.

Also advancing was No. 12 seed Mary Pierce, a resident of Florida representing France, who crushed Lori McNeil 6-0, 6-0. Pierce, seemingly headed for a semifinal match with Graf, has lost only two games in three matches, the best showing of any player in the tournament.

No. 7 seed Natalia Zvereva of Belarus beat Austria's Judith Wiesner 7-5, 7-5 in a second-round match that has been suspended by darkness Thursday.

Sampras had not played Haarhuis before, but was wary of the Dutchman's record as a Grand Slam giant-killer — with victories over John McEnroe, Goran Ivanisevic and Boris Becker.

"I didn't want to give him an opportunity to get into his game and I did a pretty good job of that," Sampras said. "I didn't take him lightly by any means."

Sampras said he was trying not to be distracted by the fact that a title here would make him the first man since Rod Laver in 1969 to win all four Grand Slam championships.

"It would definitely be a very sweet story if I could come through and win here," he said. "It's definitely the biggest challenge of my career to win here, so I'll do everything I can to do it."

"I didn't feel I was playing bad, but he was playing too good for me," Haarhuis said of Sampras. "He has a good chance to win."

The 20-year-old Spirlea, 41st in the world, outran and outhit the 10th-seeded Fernandez in a one-sided 6-4, 6-1 victory.

Graf and Pierce are now the only seeds among the eight women left in the top half of the draw. The bottom half of the men's draw also has been depleted with the ousters of No. 2 seed Michael Stich No. 3 seed Stefan Edberg.

Injuries haunt Fernandez

PARIS (AP) — Last year, Mary Joe Fernandez came within one set of winning the French Open. It was supposed to be her breakthrough, the event that would finally catapult her to the top of women's tennis.

But the 10th-seeded Fernandez showed Friday that she wasn't ready to take the next step. After taking a 2-0 lead, she lost 12 of the next 15 games and was upset 6-4, 6-1 in the third round by Irina Spirlea, a 20-year-old from Romania.

"When she got into the match, she got confident and started playing very well," Fernandez said. "She played a solid game and didn't give me an opportunity to get back into it."

In the quarterfinals last year, Fernandez made one of the most remarkable comebacks in Grand Slam history, overcoming a 1-6, 1-5 deficit and five match points to defeat Gabriela Sabatini. In the semifinals, she lost only four games in beating Arantxa Sanchez Vicario. She lost in the final to Steffi Graf 4-6, 6-2, 6-4.

Since then, Fernandez, 22, has been plagued by injuries and illness, playing only 17 matches this year before the French Open. However, she appeared to be in good form last week when she defeated sixth-ranked Kimiko Date and the eighth-ranked Sabatini in winning a tuneup tournament at Strasbourg, France.

Simpson takes early Colonial lead

Associated Press

FORT WORTH — Scott Simpson shot 131 for 36 holes Friday and took the early lead in the uncompleted second round of the storm-disrupted Southwestern Bell Colonial.

But the former U.S. Open champion was far from confident that his 9-under-par total would stand up when officials are able to get the weather-troubled tournament back on schedule.

"Nine under is pretty good, but I'm not sure that's going to be leading," Simpson said after rounds of 66 and 65 over the rain-sodden Colonial Country Club course.

With almost half the invitational field still awaiting their second-round starting times, however, his score actually served as a target more than a lead.

Rookie Guy Boros, son of Hall of Famer Julius Boros, played his second round in 64 and was tied for second among the 36-hole finishers at 133.

He shared the spot with Steve Pate, who also had a second-round 64, and Mike Reid, who shot 67-66.

■ Golf Roundup

Gary Hallberg was next after two 67s.

Hale Irwin, with a 6-under 64, led the 53 players who will begin second-round play Saturday morning at 7:30 a.m. CDT.

They were stranded on the course by a series of thunderstorms that disrupted play Thursday. They marked their positions and returned Friday morning to complete first-round play.

Irwin, 48, a winner in the Heritage Classic last month, had only four holes to go. He birdied the last three, took the first-round lead and then had the rest of the day off.

Other leaders from that half of the field included Nick Price and David Frost, each with a 65; John Cook and Tom Lehman, a runaway winner last week in the Memorial tournament, each with a 66.

LPGA-Corning

CORNING, N.Y. — Nancy Ramsbottom's 71 Friday was seven strokes worse than her opening round, but good enough for a two-stroke lead midway through the LPGA Corning Classic.

Ramsbottom, who has not won in 10 years on tour, was at 135, 9-under-par at the 6,070-yard Corning Country Club course. Martha Nause, whose 69 was the best score of the chilly, blustery second round, was at 137.

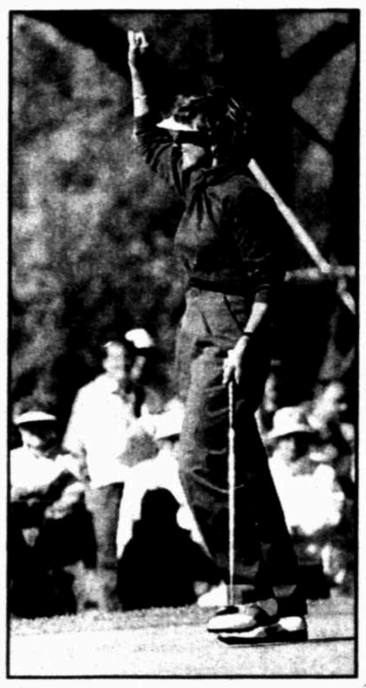

Bell Atlantic

MALVERN, Pa. — In 25 years of playing professional golf, Jim Dent has never made a shot like the one he did on the way to a share of the first-round lead at the Bell Atlantic Seniors Classic.

On the 441-yard 13th hole at Chester Valley Golf Club, Dent was in deep trouble — on a cart path, behind a tree and headed for at least a bogey. Then he hit a doozy.

Rather than take a drop off the cart path, Dent opted to hit a 4-iron off the stones and around the tree. The shot stopped four feet from the hole, and Dent made the second of three consecutive birdies.

"It might have been the best shot of my life," he said.

Sun Devils take lead at NCAA's

WEST LINN, Ore. (AP) — Defending champion Arizona State took sole possession of the team lead Friday and the Sun Devils' Emilee Klein overtook teammate Wendy Ward for the individual lead at the NCAA Women's Golf Championship.

Klein, a sophomore, had birdies on the 15th and 17th holes to finish the day at 3-under-par 70 on the hilly Oregon Golf Club course. She had a 54-hole score of 7-under 212 heading into Saturday's final round.

Ward, the second-round leader, was at 214. She had bogeys on 17 and 18 Friday to finish at 74 for the day.

First-round leader Caroline Peek of Furman was also at 214 after shooting her second straight par round of 73.

Jill McGill of Southern Cal shot a 72 Friday and was in fourth at 217, five shots behind the leader.

Klein said even though Ward is her teammate, there's strong competition between them.

"It feels good, obviously," Klein said. "She's a great player, I can't count her out. We're rooting for the team, but we still want to win."

Arizona State has a three-day score of 5-over 881. The Sun Devils and Southern Cal entered the third round tied for the lead, but none of the four Sun Devils in the team scoring Friday shot above 74 so Southern Cal lost 12 strokes.

Klein pulled even with Ward by making a 20-foot putt on 15.

"I had a lot of shots on the front side for birdie," she said. "I got to the back side and I felt more comfortable, making long putts, which I hadn't done."

Black wins quarterfinals

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Wayne Black of Southern Cal, the nation's top-ranked singles player and No. 1 seed at the NCAA Men's Tennis Championships, beat second-ranked and sixth-seeded Laurent Orsini of Mississippi State 6-2, 6-2 in Friday's quarterfinals.

Black, along with unseeded Joakim Appelqvist of Mississippi, second-seeded Marcus Hilpert of Arkansas and unseeded Mark Merklein of Florida advanced to Saturday's semifinals.

Yabba-dabba-DON'T

■ Clever marketing and baby-boomer nostalgia notwithstanding, "The Flintstones" movie doesn't exactly promise a gay, old time.

By Michael H. Price
N.Y. Times News Service

Its third prehistorical fantasy in less than a year spells a decisive crackup for Steven Spielberg's movie factory.

"Jurassic Park" lifted the art of special effects to a new plateau. "We're Back: A Dinosaur's Story" was meant to be nothing more than little-kid fodder, and can be forgiven on many counts.

But "The Flintstones," directed by Brian Levant with all the subtlety of an elbow in the ribs, is a picture that aims low and misses wide, pretending mass appeal but neglecting even the rudiments of storytelling.

Checkpoint: Cave-persons Fred Flintstone and Barney Rubble are captured by a lynch mob, never mind why. As the nooses are fixed about their necks, the guys start spouting some sentimental dreck about friendship. In the near background, the director has the unfriendly villagers doing "absolutely nothing but milling about!"

This is typical of the slack narrative style in a movie that, curiously, also turns out to be an uncomfortably hostile class-war polemic, barely camouflaged by its live-action re-staging of the famous (I balk at saying "beloved") cartoon series.

If television's original "The Flintstones," dating from the early 1960s, was a bald-faced knockoff of "The Honeymooners," then the new version owes more to "Roseanne" — the likeness emphasized by the presence of that crass and repetitive sitcom's John Goodman in the key role of the proletarian caveman Fred Flintstone.

Casting is adequate, although I always thought Jerry Falwell would make a better Barney Rubble than Rick Moranis, who landed the role. Elizabeth Perkins as Wilma Flintstone and Rosie O'Donnell as Betty Rubble look

Where several have gone before

Captain Jean-Luc Picard is joined by a foe from the past and a friend from the future in "All Good Things...", the final episode of "Star Trek: The Next Generation." From left: John de Lancie as "Q," Patrick Stewart as Picard, and Gates McFadden as Beverly Crusher.

The final voyage of the starship Enterprise?

▶ After seven years and 178 episodes, the syndicated TV series "Star Trek: The Next Generation" is being cancelled.

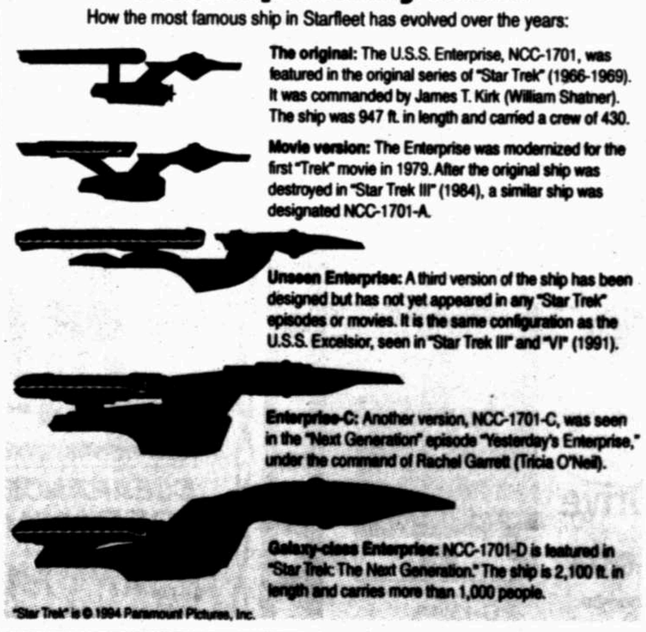

▶ The final episode airs the week of May 23, at various times on 218 stations. The cast is currently filming the motion picture "Star Trek: Generations," which will premiere at Thanksgiving.

▶ Another show, "Star Trek: Deep Space Nine," will continue to be produced. Yet another spinoff, "Star Trek: Voyager," is being planned for syndication beginning in 1995.

▶ Demographics show "Next Generation" to be the number one hour-long series among men aged 18-49. The show has been nominated for 46 Emmy awards and has won 16 for sound editing, sound mixing, makeup, costume design, art direction, music, special effects and hairstyling.

Starship history chart

How the most famous ship in Starfleet has evolved over the years:

The original: The U.S.S. Enterprise, NCC-1701, was featured in the original series of "Star Trek" (1966-1969). It was commanded by James T. Kirk (William Shatner). The ship was 947 ft. in length and carried a crew of 430.

Movie version: The Enterprise was modernized for the first "Trek" movie in 1979. After the original ship was destroyed in "Star Trek III" (1984), a similar ship was designated NCC-1701-A.

Unseen Enterprise: A third version of the ship has been designed but has not yet appeared in any "Star Trek" episodes or movies. It is the same configuration as the U.S.S. Excelsior, seen in "Star Trek III" and "VI" (1991).

Enterprise-C: Another version, NCC-1701-C, was seen in the "Next Generation" episode "Yesterday's Enterprise," under the command of Rachel Garrett (Tricia O'Neil).

Galaxy-class Enterprise: NCC-1701-D is featured in "Star Trek: The Next Generation." The ship is 2,100 ft. in length and carries more than 1,000 people.

For "Star Trek: TNG" it's so long to TV, hello to the bigger screen

By Scott Williams
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK — How righteous it is that the two-hour grand finale of "Star Trek: The Next Generation" should have echoes of Kurt Vonnegut's time-travel masterpiece, "Slaughterhouse Five."

After seven seasons, 178 episodes and 16 Emmys, "Star Trek: The Next Generation" — let's just call it "TNG" — is calling it quits, leaving TV as the highest-rated show in syndication history.

■ The finale of "Star Trek: The Next Generation" airs Sunday from 4-6 p.m. on KPEJ-Ch. 24 (Cable Ch. 5).

Its finale is grand indeed. Just like Vonnegut's hapless hero, Billy Pilgrim, Capt. Jean-Luc Picard (Patrick Stewart) finds himself shunting back and forth in time between his present, his past and his future.

And, like Billy, our Picard is in a waking nightmare. Shunted 25 years into the future, he finds himself retired, tending his vines in France and suffering the 24th century's version of Alzheimer's disease.

He shunts back to his "present" long enough to report his experience and begin a medical examination. Suddenly, he loops back into his past, seven years earlier, just before he is to take command of starship Enterprise.

The trouble is, Picard's consciousness adapts to each of these realities, so that whatever phase he inhabits seems to be the "correct" one. He remembers only bits and pieces from his other incarnations. Which is real?

Trek fans begin to hyperventilate at this, fearing the worst. Is it Picard's deteriorating brain? Or is it just cheap plot tricks?

Relax, Trekkers. Screenwriters Ronald D. Moore and Brannon Braga aren't about to make a "St. Elsewhere"-style exit. "TNG" is not the paperweight fantasy of an autistic child.

As Picard continues to leap around in time, he learns of a phenomenon — "a space-time anomaly in the Devron system" — that exists in his present and in his past, during his first mission on the Enterprise.

Yet as Picard (and we Trekkers) recall, Picard's first Enterprise mission was the series debut, in which he first encountered his eternal nemesis, the capricious, omnipotent Q (John de Lancie).

This time around, there's only the anomaly and no sign of Q. What's wrong with this picture?

That tantalizing clue, of course, will be of absolutely no help to you.

Like so many episodes of "TNG," the central dramatic problem of the finale is a puzzle that its characters must solve. And, ah, what characters.

It's not cheating to tell you that Picard's past contains Lt. Tasha Yar (Denise Crosby), killed off in the first season, who reprises her role as the tough-cookie security officer.

Eddie Murphy is back as funny-guy cop Axel Foley in 'Beverly Hills Cop III.'

BROKEN AXEL

■ The third time is far from a charm as Eddie Murphy, John Landis dredge up allegedly witty cop story yet again.

By Dolores Barclay
AP Arts Editor

Flash forward to the year 2004: Eddie Murphy has a new movie — "Beverly Hills Cop 7."-

Well, stranger things have happened in Hollywood, and to actors who can't seem to move beyond one character.

■ "Beverly Hills Cop III" is playing at the UA Cine 4.

Murphy owes his fame and fortune to the "Beverly Hills Cop" and "48 HRS." movies. Interestingly, his characters in both movies and their sequels are the same: Axel Foley as maverick cop; Axel Foley as con man. And Axel Foley is little more than one of Murphy's routines on "Saturday Night Live."

Now comes "Beverly Hills Cop III," perhaps the dumbest of the cop trio, but still a movie bound to fill Paramount Pictures' bank

Release of 'Jafar' sets brisk home video pace

By Deborah Yu
N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — Riding through the Target store in a red shopping cart, 2-year-old Keegan Doheney sat up and took notice when he saw the brightly colored package.

He knew what that was all about.

"Mama!" he said, pointing to a video of "The Return of Jafar." The video is the sequel to Walt Disney's animated film "Aladdin," and hit store shelves last week.

"He loves it. It cheers him up," said Keegan's mother, Wendy Doheney of suburban Agoura, who bought the video. "Genie is his favorite character."

Burbank, Calif.-based Walt Disney Co., whose Buena Vista Home Video subsidiary released the animation, said more than 1.5 million copies were sold in its first two days. The video already tracks ahead of "Pinocchio" and "The sufficiently the part and even bother to master that annoying rapid-fire chuckle that the uninventive Hanna-Barbera Studios used for many of its women characters.

STONES: One belligerent movie

But beyond all the baby-boomer nostalgia and self-conscious wordplay, this is one belligerent movie, too honked-off even to concentrate on plain entertainment value. The committee-rigged script (credited to only three names, though involving at least eight contributors) makes much of establishing Fred as an overbearing if generous halfwit, Barney as a brainy little guy who'd do anything to help his old pal Fred, and their households as an ideal of lower-middle-class solidarity.

The snakes in the garden are Kyle MacLachlan and Halle Berry, come the fall guy in an embezzlement scheme. This is virtually the same plot device that has figured in two other TV knockoffs of recent vintage, "The Beverly Hillbillies" and "Addams Family Values," and in this light one is moved to wonder what all those contributing writers were up to while they were supposed to be working.

Figuring out clever ways to cartoon something that already was a cartoon, no doubt. Or thinking up gimmicky casting, like hiring Elizabeth Taylor to play Fred's antagonistic mother-in-law. Or figuring out how to reduce two major juvenile roles, the Flintstones' kid Pebbles and the Rubbles' kid Bamm-Bamm, to inarticulate ry, playing a cutthroat boss/secretary combo who line up some lucky worker to land an executive promotion and in the process beannoyances.

Or more likely, all that brainstorming went into marketing ploys — selling that Flintstones trademark via McDonald's and Frito-Lay tie-ins and new home-video editions of those crudely animated TV cartoons. There's even a McDonald's product-placement scene in "The Flintstones," underscoring the movie's existence not so much for the sake of cinema, as for the sake of tastelessness in dining and merchandising.

TREK: Fate of all humanity at stake

(From 1C)

And it's not cheating to tell you that most of Picard's friends are alive and kicking 25 years in the future. Time, it seems, will not treat all of them fairly.

Picard's No. 1, Riker (Jonathan Frakes), is a cantankerous admiral; Worf (Michael Dorn) is a Klingon politician; LaForge (LeVar Burton) is a novelist; and Data (Brent Spiner) holds the Lucasian chair of mathematics at Cambridge!

Will Picard and friends converge on the anomaly in three time periods? Did we mention that the fate of all humanity is at stake?

The payoff to all this is, of course, spectacular, deft and fitting. It does honor to the series, the characters, and the Star Trek universe.

It also leaves us with one overwhelming question: Why, oh why, is "TNG" leaving first-run syndication now, at the peak of its profitable, creative game?

The Denebian slime-devils at Paramount, which owns the Trek franchise (and kept it buried for 10 years), are making cute noises about converting the "TNG" franchise to movies, just as they did with classic "Star Trek."

Paramount points to its "TNG" movie, "Star Trek: Generations," due out at Thanksgiving; its spin-off series, "Deep Space Nine," still in first-run syndication; and next year's second spinoff, "Star Trek: Voyager."

Yeah, yeah, yeah, ... but why can't we keep "TNG" on the air?

Money. Paramount was looking at a "mature asset" that could only get costlier — higher salaries, fees and production costs. At the same time, its revenue would remain relatively flat, maybe even wane a trifle less obscene.

Folding the "TNG" tent lets Paramount close its books on one set of syndication deals and open them, more profitably, on another.

Does that sound like a cynical, heartless, Hollywood shuck?

It's the cruel truth, folks. But, hey, that's life in the 24th century.

ON SCREEN

(Condensed movie reviews by Los Angeles Daily News film critics. The rating system for the film list is: 4 stars — Don't miss it; 3 stars — worth your while; 2 stars — Has it moments; 1 star — if you must) (For use by NYTimes News Service clients)

N.Y. Times News Service

BAD GIRLS: Silly, sporadically fun western, in which Madeleine Stowe, Mary Stuart Masterson, Andie MacDowell and Drew Barrymore indulge in all the dumb cowboy movie cliches guys have for decades. The negligible plot is something about prostitutes-turned-outlaws-turned-good guys. Guns and glamour keep facing each other down, while our interest trots off into the sunset. R. Rating: ★★

CLEAN SLATE: A well-structured comedy mystery that takes a little too long to kick into humorous gear. Dana Carvey is a private detective who loses his memory whenever he sleeps. Valeria Golino is the femme fatale who he can never remember how to please — let alone where he hid the invaluable ancient coin she gave him for safekeeping. Mick Jackson ("The Bodyguard") directed, more carefully than he perhaps should have. PG-13. Rating: ★★½

CROOKLYN: Spike Lee's semi-autobiographical film about a 1970s Brooklyn family breaks some new ground for the incendiary filmmaker — mainly by not being very incendiary. Lee's usual yelling and screaming and goofy visual tricks mar this occasionally well-observed memoir. It's best when it focuses on the only girl among five rowdy children, played with toughened charm by 8-year-old Zelda Harris. PG-13. Rating: ★★½

THE CROW: This dark, visceral rendering of James O'Barr's comic books is also a haunting tribute to the late Brandon Lee, whose graceful performance will doubtless establish him as a cult figure on a par with his father Bruce Lee. Rookie director Alex Proyas has made one of the most visually striking violent movies in recent memory — and don't forget the killer alternative rock score. All in all, an impressive package. R. Rating: ★★★

FOUR WEDDINGS AND A FUNERAL: "Enchanted April" director Mike Newell tackles a more contemporary collection of Britons in this stylish and winsome romantic comedy strung out over two years' worth of social gatherings. Hugh Grant shines as a commitment-phobic Londoner in non-pursuit of a forthright American beauty (Andie MacDowell), but the entire ensemble cast is first-rate. A fine, frothy entertainment, perfect for the date crowd. R. Rating: ★★★

THE HOUSE OF THE SPIRITS: Bille August's ("Pelle the Conqueror," "The Best Intentions") interpretation of Isabel Allende's sprawling family saga is powerful and compelling, retaining much of the book's magical realist sensibility and its overriding theme of the redeeming power of love. The cast of international superstars is a mixed blessing: Jeremy Irons and Meryl Streep are first-rate as the tyrannical patriarch and psychically gifted matriarch, but the predominance of Anglos does, to some extent, rob the tale of its ethnicity. Still, it's a beautifully filmed, first-rate adult entertainment. R. Rating: ★★★

MAVERICK: Lightweight fun in the Wild West. Mel Gibson pours on the charm as the conniving gambler, Jodie Foster is almost as slick as the woman who loves and robs him, and original TV Maverick James Garner lends his solid presence to the role of a questionable lawman. "Lethal Weapon" purveyor Richard Donner emphasizes thrills and laughs; William Goldman's script is his cleverest since "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid." PG. Rating: ★★★

WHEN A MAN LOVES A WOMAN: An upscale San Francisco family's struggles with the twin evils of alcoholism and co-dependency are meticulously detailed, but the tale is never particularly affecting. Meg Ryan and Andy Garcia are solid as the unhappy couple, and their story is certainly instructive; but as directed by Luis Mandoki ("White Palace"), the screenplay by Ronald Bass ("Rain Man") and Al Franken ("Saturday Night Live") gives us no particular reason to care about these people and their problems. R. Rating: ★★½

WITH HONORS: Insensitive Harvard students learn lessons in humanity from a homeless bum in this sentimental, simplistic social study. That the derelict is played by Joe Pesci, disappointingly, does not mean that he's psychotic; just occasionally embarrassing, excruciatingly adorable and almost always right. Brendan Fraser is the young man whose eyes are opened widest; Gore Vidal has fun as a conservative professor. PG-13. Rating: ★★

SIRENS: A silly but pleasing, nudie film with pretensions. Supermodel Elle MacPherson leads a phalanx of less-known but equally luscious luminaries around a 1930s erotic Eden — painter Norman Lindsay's Australian estate. Sam Neill, clearly bored, plays the outrageous painter. Hugh Grant and Tara Fitzgerald are the English clerical couple who try to talk him out of painting naked ladies, only to find their own repressed blood a'boiling. R. Rating: ★★½

After 150 shows, Conan feels better all the time

By Scott Williams
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK — It was little more than a year ago that an unknown Conan O'Brien surfaced as David Letterman's successor as host of NBC's "Late Night" show.

Since then, he's been grilled by the press, dissed by critics and, according to every rumor floated in the trades, primed for firing from his job at NBC's second-best late-night franchise.

So why is this man smiling?

"Before I even auditioned for this job, I remember (executive producer) Lorne Michaels saying, 'Whoever gets this job is going to have to get the — kicked out of them for six months and not mind it.'

"And I nodded my head. He's right."

To his credit, O'Brien has taken every lick since his Sept. 13, 1993, debut A 31-year-old ex-writer for "The impsons" and "Saturday Night Live," he came on the scene in the glare of the media's hottest spotlights.

"You don't follow David Letterman, come out of nowhere, be pretty new at it, make your mistakes on the air, and do a completely whole different thing with it and not have people hit you over the head with a baseball bat," he said.

He remembers his elation after the first show. "We really all liked the first show, and I had a good time, and we were all going, 'Yeah! Yeah!' And it just suddenly hit me: 'This is not about that. This isn't about any one night.'"

And he remembers his initial reviews.

"We got a lot of good press and I remember thinking, OK, when's it going to come? I remember the day that Chevy (Chase) was canceled, thinking, 'OK. Here we go. Strap in.'"

And the rumors of his imminent demise? "It's the new thing to write about," he said. "If I didn't have this job and someone else did, I'd be reading these stories and saying, 'They're talking to ME!'"

These days, however, O'Brien is talking like somebody whose troubles — as well as 150-plus shows — are behind him.

His show has grown from a 1.7 rating, with an 8 percent audience share in its first quarter, to a 1.8 rating, 9 share in the second. He keeps 41 percent of the "Tonight" audience. Letterman's finale season rated in the mid-2s.

"It's a two-fold process," O'Brien said. "I've now done a lot of it. I love being out there. I'm so used to looking in the camera that I don't think about it. I'm having a good time.

"That's half of it. The other half is people have to get comfortable with you."

O'Brien said he and his staff felt they'd turned the corner when Letterman returned to the show and was lavish in his praise for O'Brien's show.

"What Letterman pointed out is that it's a completely different sensibility. ... You don't see it anywhere else in TV."

CHAMBER: Fans need not panic

(From 1C)

comply with the publisher's Wednesday sales embargo.

"This is the first time we've tried something like this," says Crown President Glenn Hennerly. "They did it in Atlanta with 'Scarlett,' but I think Grisham is probably the only author now who could command this attention."

In Grisham's hometown of Oxford, Square Books owner Richard Howorth opened his doors at midnight. "We have 7,500 copies in stock, but we don't expect them to last," Howorth says. Grisham is scheduled for an autographing session June 1, but Howorth cautions fans not to come unless they have already purchased a copy from his store.

Grisham fans who haven't bought their copies yet need not panic. Doubleday shipped an unprecedented 2 million copies — a record first printing for a hardback book. The plot, like all Grisham's novels, revolves around a lawyer. In it, a young Chicago attorney attempts to free a Klansman from death row in Mississippi.

■ "The Chamber" is now available locally at Waldenbooks, B. Dalton Bookseller and Hastings Books, Music and Video.

"The public is dying for more Grisham," says Gigi Weinrich, chief buyer for Oxford Book Store in Atlanta. "We've gotten more calls about this book than any other. . ." Oxford ordered 1,500 copies for its stores, compared to 1,000 for "The Client."

At Barnes & Noble in Buckhead, supervisor Monifa Johnson braced for a run on the books. "We ordered 650 copies, which is six times more than we normally order for a potential best seller."

Grisham, who appeared on "Today" Thursday and is set for "Charlie Rose" at 10 p.m. Friday, continues to be a publishing phenomenon with 46,317,918 copies of "A Time to Kill," "The Firm," "The Client" and "The Pelican Brief" in print. The movie of "The Client" is scheduled for a mid-July release.

JAFAR: 'Return' sets sales record

(From 1C)

Fox and The Hound" in their initial sales.

Disney said "Return" set a sales record for all video-only releases.

"It's our first made for video (animated) release," said Disney spokesman Steven Feldstein, adding that "The Return of Jafar" marks the first of a series of straight-to-video animation to be launched by the company.

Lynne Zappala, music and movies specialist at Target, said only 200 videos remain out of 3,000 copies the store ordered a week ago. The store is selling "Return" at $15 compared to the suggested retail price of $22.99.

"It sells really well," she said. "We've gotten a lot of calls about it."

The 66-minute video picks up where "Aladdin" left off, with the revenge of the evil magician Jafar. Jafar escapes from his imprisonment in a magic lamp and tries to wreak havoc in the palace. Aladdin and his Genie had trapped him in the lamp to thwart his plans to take over the kingdom of Agrabah.

To date, home video sales of "Aladdin" tops the list at Disney, Feldstein said, with 24 million copies purchased. "Beauty and the Beast" comes in second with 22 million videos sold while "101 Dalmations" is third with 15 million copies. Fourth is "Fantasia" with 14.2 million copies and fifth is "Pinocchio" with 12 million units sold.

Disney said it developed a home video sequel for "Return" instead of an animated feature to capitalize on the popularity of "Aladdin," which made $217 million at the box office. Waiting for a feature film would take at least five years, the company said, and it already has other projects in the wings.

The video retains many of the cast and crew, with the notable exception of Robin Williams for the Genie's voice. Williams was replaced by Dan Castellaneta, the voice of Homer on "The Simpsons."

Zappala said that the release of the video also should rekindle interest in "Aladdin" merchandise at the store — such as dolls, books, toys.

Unetha Young, a mother of two living in Los Angeles, said she's buying the sequel because her whole family liked "Aladdin." Not only does it keep her 2-year-old son, Anthony, riveted to the TV screen so she can be free to make dinner, it's a film her 32-year-old husband enjoys.

"You know, there's a kid in everybody," she said.

COP: Axel tackles counterfeiters

(From 1C)

accounts.

This time around, Axel tackles a counterfeit ring that uses a theme park, WonderWorld, as its headquarters. There are no surprises, there's no real police work to unravel, and there are no mysteries. It's all very predictable with lots of gunplay, noise and blood.

The movie opens in Detroit, where Axel and his fellow cops are about to raid a chop shop and walk right into a double-cross involving some carjackers, who are selling stolen government printing paper, and some counterfeiters, led by WonderWorld's head of security, Ellis DeWald (Timothy Carhart).

The carjackers are blown away and the cars are riddled with bullets, even though the cops can't seem to shoot straight and never think of blowing out the tires so the bad guys can't get away.

But our superhero is in hot pursuit and almost nabs DeWald when he's stopped by the feds, who say they want him to get away so they can trace his operation.

Only one problem: Axel's boss is killed in the gunfight, and Axel wants revenge. A clue sends him to WonderWorld in Southern California ... and Beverly Hills.

Once there, the Beverly Hills jokes abound: At the entry gate to the Beverly Hills Police Department, you can push a special button if you wish to report a homeless person on your lawn.

Judge Reinhold reprises his role as Billy Rosewood, who now has his own office. Hector Elizondo appears as Flint, a seasoned cop waiting for his retirement.

Bronson Pinchot pops up once again as Serge, the gallery owner who now sells weapons for "upper-income urban fighters." It's an over-the-top stereotype that adds little to the movie except to provide a certain device Murphy gets to use later on.

Axel just about destroys WonderWorld trying to nail DeWald and his crew. With the amusement park as a backdrop, there are lots of thrills with broken rides, perky actors in animal costumes, smart-aleck kids and annoying theme park music.

Ultimately, it all erupts in an explosion of silliness.

John Landis ("Trading Place " "Coming to America") direc from a screenplay by Steven E. de Souza. Murphy's language is cleaned up a tad in this third installment, but Axel is still Axel.

Reinhold's Billy is still all wide-eyed wonder and he remains the good little cop who flirts with firepower. Elizondo gives excellent support in an understated turn. Theresa Randle provides a love interest for Axel as Janice, a WonderWorld computer wiz.

Without the R rating, blood and violence, "Beverly Hills Cop III" would be a good one for the kids. Adults might yawn.

Mace Neufield and Robert Rehme produced with Mark Lipsky as executive producer. Running time: 103 minutes.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

■ Church to hold Shoe Fair

Greater St. Luke A.M.E. Church, 401 S. Adams St., is holding a Shoe Fair from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. today.

Many types of secondhand boots and shoes will be exhibited. Those interested in purchasing the shoes will make an offer of what the shoes are worth to them.

Also, Boy Scouts and Larry Gilbert and Willie Mason will conduct children's games and activities.

Breakfast, prepared by the men of the church, will be served from 8:30 to 10:30 a.m. A donation of $3 is suggested. Then a "Soul Food" dinner, prepared by the women of the church, is set for 11:30 a.m. Suggested donation is $4.

The grand finale will be a "Balloon Ministry." Bible messages will be attached to balloons that will be released at 2:10 p.m.

■ 5th Sunday event set

Cuthbert Avenue Baptist Church, 3308 W. Cuthbert Ave., will be having a Fifth Sunday Singing from 6 to 8 p.m. Sunday.

Also, the church is presenting a Bible study conducted by its pastor, the Rev. Don Knight, Wednesdays.

A question-and-answer session will be held each week. Also a prayer request list will be made and published in the church's bulletin each Sunday.

For more information call the church.

■ Bible school planned

"Exploring God's Kingdom: Adventures in Prayer" is the theme of this summer's Bible school at St. Paul United Methodist Church, 4501 Thomason Drive.

The school will be held from 9:30 a.m. to noon June 6-10. Classes are open to children from age 3 through sixth grade.

Registration forms are available at the church office during business hours. For more information call 694-3544.

■ Annual conference set

The 85th session of the Northwest Texas Annual Conference for the United Methodist Church is set for June 6-9.

Bishop Alfred L. Norris will preside at the session, which will be held at First United Methodist Church, 305 N. Baird St. The Rev. James Moore, pastor of St. Luke's UMC, Houston, will be the conference preacher. Norris will preach for the Service of Ordination and Consecration on June 8.

A special VISION 2000 Celebration barbecue and rally are planned for Centennial Plaza on June 7. The rally will feature special music and preaching by Moore.

Other worship services, events and meals are planned throughout the week. Displays of church boards and agencies, as well as related church programs, will be available throughout the four-day session.

Representing Garden City UMC and Asbury UMC will be the Rev. Kenneth James. Lay representatives will be Orin Wade for Asbury UMC and Mildred Harris for Garden City UMC.

■ Church honors seniors

First Presbyterian Church, 800 W. Texas Ave., will be honoring its graduating seniors during worship Sunday and June 5.

Those seniors include Caroline Bryant, Caroline Castello, Jennifer Chase, Christi Cowden, Jean Garay, Alan Hall, Courtney Hawkes, Karmen Hendrix, Carrie McKague, Hadley Tyler and Nicole Williams.

■ Association names president

The Evangelical Christian Publishing Association voted this spring to establish the Evangelical Christian Publishers Outreach, Inc., and named Midland native Johnnie Godwin, former Broadman-Holman executive, as president of the new organization.

"As the driving force behind ECPA's participation in the Moscow Book Fair, Godwin demonstrated a passion for international publishing," said Doug Ross, executive director of ECPA. "It is his vision and drive to make ECPO really happen that made him the obvious and unanimous choice."

Godwin, who has felt a life-long calling in the area of Christian publishing, describes the board's request that he head up ECPO as "an answer to prayer. This invitation matches the vision of what I feel called to do."

ECPO provides the vehicle for ECPA publishers to help Christians abroad who lack adequate knowledge or resources to do their own publishing.

■ Vacation Bible School set

Vacation Bible School at First Presbyterian Church, 800 W. Texas Ave., is set for 9 to 11:30 a.m. June 6-10.

Gift of water joins gift of love at baptismal ceremony

By Peter Steinfels
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — "We thank thee, Almighty God, for the gift of water." The water that the Rev. Howard T.W. Stowe was praying over last Sunday was in the baptismal font at St. Ignatius of Antioch Episcopal Church on West 87th Street in Manhattan, where he is the rector and where he was about to baptize three young parishioners.

At Stowe's side was the Rev. Thomas Mafora, who had his own special reasons to be thankful for the gift of water. Mafora is the rector of All Saints' Anglican Church in Khuma, South Africa, a black township in the western Transvaal.

In the best of times, Khuma is not exactly paradise on earth. But in recent years, with the closing of some of the gold mines that had drawn thousands of workers to the area, many of Khuma's 35,000 people have been unemployed.

Then the region was blistered by South Africa's worst drought in the 20th century. In February 1992, the white farmers on the Town Council of Stilfontein cut off Khuma's water supply.

The consequences of this were not altogether lost on the white authorities. Almost immediately, they warned whites in the area that their domestic servants who lived in Khuma had no water or sanitary services available and therefore could contaminate their employers with cholera, dysentery, diarrhea or other diseases.

"You are hereby requested to insure that your domestic servant/employee does not prepare any foodstuffs or handle any utensils unless she has washed herself properly," the Town Council announced.

While the whites may have been spared, Khuma's blacks were not. Word of the deaths and diseases wracking the township soon reached St. Ignatius of Antioch, a sister parish with All Saints since 1990.

St. Ignatius is an unusual parish. The Mass on Sunday, celebrated with the priests' backs to the congregation and rich with more Latin than one is likely to hear this side of Rome, would make the heart of the Vatican's Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger leap with joy — until he realized that two of the celebrants at the altar or in the pulpit were women.

The solemn ritual does not keep the parish from offering help to parishioners and neighbors with AIDS or from running a soup kitchen and weekend shelter for the homeless. Informed of Khuma's plight, St. Ignatius quickly raised $20,000 from parishioners, friends and several other Episcopal parishes to pay for the drilling of a well in Khuma.

"We thank thee, Almighty God, for the gift of water," Father Stowe said in his prayer. "Over it the Holy Spirit moved in the beginning of creation. Through it Thou didst lead the children of Israel out of their bondage in Egypt and into the land of promise."

Last Sunday was the feast of Pentecost, or Whitsunday, and so Father Mafora preached about the sudden transformation of Jesus's disciples by the coming of the Holy Spirit. Recounting the dissipation of the disciples' fear, he could not help but speak of his own country and its passage out of bondage.

'We thank thee, Almighty God, for the gift of water. Over it the Holy Spirit moved in the beginning of creation. Through it Thou didst lead the children of Israel out of their bondage in Egypt and into the land of promise.'

—Father Stowe

In June 1976, he said, the schoolchildren of Soweto, armed with "no weapon but the weapon of the Holy Spirit — hope," were able to galvanize black South Africans to express their outrage over the government's policies of apartheid.

Mafora, a short, solid man of 52, had witnessed that protest. After Mass last Sunday he recalled his days as a priest at St. Paul's Anglican Church in Soweto.

It was near a crossroads where the marching schoolchildren confronted the police on June 16, 1976. The children fled into the churchyard, which was bombarded with tear gas, he said, and the first one killed was Hector Peterson, a 13-year-old parishioner of St. Paul's.

At All Saints' Church in Khuma they call it Jacob's Well, after the place where Jesus told the Samaritan woman that he would give the water of eternal life (John 4:14). The well is in the churchyard, and people can get water free when they need it.

Since late last year the rains have returned. ("We call them rains of blessing," Mafora said.) The local authorities have begun to construct a better water supply for the whole township.

SATURDAY, MAY 28, 1994

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Look forward to plenty of fun, joy and laughter! After a busy summer, you will be ready to make some changes. Form partnerships and sign contracts in the fall. A long-term investment plan is essential. A promotional idea will hit home in December; you reap new financial gains early in 1995. An expanded communications network will keep you hopping in March. Celebrate the coming of spring with a special reunion. Romance should be much more fulfilling by this time next year.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: Olympic pentathlon legend Jim Thorpe, singer Gladys Knight, actress Sondra Locke, "James Bond" creator Ian Fleming.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Better communication will improve your personal relationships. Speak from the heart. Refuse to be pressured into doing something impulsive. It is your reputation that could suffer.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Remember, you do not have to be alone unless you want to be. A love affair could change the course of your life. Find out exactly where you stand financially.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): It pays to stay socially active! You will find yourself in the right place at the right time. A friendship is going through a period of transition.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Try to get on better terms with a neighbor or relative. Spending some time alone may help you see things more clearly. Give yourself a break; take a trip out of town.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A friend or relative applauds your creativity. Accept this person's heartfelt compliments gracefully. Blowing your own horn is no longer necessary. Sit back and bask in loved one's approval.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Greater self-discipline will help you reach a long-cherished goal. Learn to say "no" to over-indulgence and extravagance. Eating healthier foods will boost your energy level.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The loss of a love is always painful. Do not despair! You are more resilient than you think. A labor-saving device may be too expensive to be practical.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Assess a current project before launching any new ones. If you want to see a newcomer again, make the first move. A troubled relative or friend needs a sympathetic ear.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A true pal helps you find a speedy solution to an annoying problem. An idealistic act will win praise from those who really count. Let your intuition guide you in affairs of the heart.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Romance will surprise you! Refuse to let sentiment interfere with business. If tempted to give unsolicited financial advice to a loved one, proceed with caution.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): News from those at a distance promises you increased profits or prestige. Another person's intentions become more obvious with the passage of time.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emotional strain or worry could lead you to lash out at the wrong person. Apologize. Doing something nice for a pal will relieve stress. Rich desserts may not agree with you; choose fruit instead.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are intuitive, adaptable and multi-talented-eager to be all things to all people. They prefer a casual lifestyle and are not too keen on pomp and circumstance. Nevertheless, they will handle themselves well at even the most formal events.

Singer's husband posts bond, remains free on assault charge

NORTH MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. — Tammy Wynette's husband posted $500 bond and remains free on a charge of assaulting a television cameraman. He requested a jury trial.

George Richey and his attorney appeared Thursday before city Judge David Witherspoon. No trial date was set.

Chris Collins, a cameraman for WCSC-TV in Charleston, said in a complaint that Richey grabbed him and shoved him into a table in the lobby of the Alabama Theatre, where Wynette had been performing.

The argument in February started when Collins tried to get a crowd shot. He said Richey told him to leave and followed him into the lobby before shoving him.

Collins said he suffered a pulled muscle and a pinched nerve.

LOS ANGELES — Daryl Hannah's "ethereal" beauty led Karl Lagerfeld to hire her as pitch-person for his new fragrance.

"Daryl Hannah, for me, is a woman who has the look, the attitude and the way to move in life," Lagerfeld said Thursday. "She is what I think the complete woman of the late 20th century could be, should be."

The scent is called "Sun Moon Stars."

ROME — Director Gabriele Salvatores, who won an Academy Award for the 1990 release "Mediterraneo," has joined the fight against video pirates.

He plans to make a 60-second film for movie theaters and television discouraging people from buying pirated cassettes. Italy's video pirates produce 40 percent of the home videos sold in Italy.

"People who buy pirate cassettes are feeding the networks of organized crime," Salvatores said Friday at a news conference.

"Films are like holiday trips and they need to be experienced as their organizer intended," he said, refering to the poor quality of pirate videos. "Otherwise they can become nightmares."

GENEVA — Princess Diana took up a new charity role Friday when she participated in the first meeting of an advisory commission of the Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement.

The commission met on the outskirts of Geneva to avoid massive media interest in the princess, who has been scaling down her public activities. She said in December she was going to devote more time to her children and get away from public life.

Bodine Williams, spokeswoman for the International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies, said the Geneva meeting was the first opportunity for the 12-member commission to meet.

The commission was established to consider priorities and policies of the Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement, which is active in Muslim countries. Princess Diana is already vice president of the British Red Cross.

LOS ANGELES — As television's tenacious Lt. Columbo, Peter Falk solved heinous crimes in his rumpled raincoat. His daughter, Catherine, wants to catch real-life crooks in a crisp police uniform.

Falk, 23, has passed all the necessary tests and needs only to undergo a background check before she can enter the police academy to become a Los Angeles officer, said her former attorney, Marvin Mitchelson.

Mitchelson represented Falk two years ago in a dispute with her father when the actor refused to pay her college tuition at his alma mater, Syracuse University. The matter was eventually settled out of court, but father and daughter have since been estranged.

"She's a go-getter. She's very upbeat," Mitchelson said Friday. "She's a hard worker and likes to get down and get with the real people who work. She's tough and strong."

Wal-Mart and K mart had refused to sell the Nirvana album "In Utero" because the back of the package pictured fetuses and one of the songs is "Rape Me," but Geffen Records is hoping to get around the ban.

According to Musician magazine, conservative stores will receive special versions of the album package on which the fetuses will be airbrushed out and the song will be renamed "Waif Me." The music inside will be unchanged.

For the men and women who have given their lives to their country in times of war, statues have been built, citations and medals bestowed. Until now, however, the four-legged heroes have gone unhonored.

The first-ever War Dog Memorial, a life-size bronze of Kurt, a Doberman pinscher who served with distinction on Guam during World War II, will be unveiled at the Pentagon on June 20.

The sculpture, "Always Faithful," was created by Susan Bahary Wilner of Greenbrae, Calif., who was commissioned by the United Doberman Club and veterinarian William Putney, commander of the 3rd War Dog Platoon on Guam.

Putney says Kurt saved the lives of 250 Marines trying to take back Guam when he went out ahead of the troops pointing to warn them that enemy forces were ahead. The Japanese bombarded the dog with grenades; surgery performed by Putney failed to save him. Twenty-four American dogs died in the Pacific during the war, says Putney.

Distributorships Now Available

PART-TIME INCOME OPPORTUNITY

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has early morning routes which need to be filled with dependable individuals with reliable transportation. Often asked questions:

➥ Is it worthwhile for adults also?

YES! 95% of our Distributors ARE adults! Morning Routes are attractive for:
- ★ ADULTS who have fulltime jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job!
- ★ MOTHERS who can't justify a small job AND daycare, because as a Distributor, you don not need daycare!
- ★ COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- ★ SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added retirement income, cr just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends!

➥ How much money can I make as a Distributor?

Depending on the size of the route(s), from $350 to $800 monthly, in some cases...even more!

➥ OK...but how long does it take?

The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday-Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, depending on the size of the route(s). Also some time is needed each month to collect from subscribers. Many Distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in the subscribers' papers and having payments mailed to them. Some collecting in person will be necessary though, particularly on some routes more than others.

➥ When do the papers have to be delivered by?

Papers must be on the yards by 6 am Monday-Friday, and 7 am on weekend mornings.

➥ Do I ever get a day off?

The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, most Distributors do take days off by finding a friend, family member, or another Distributor to substitute for them!

➥ What else?

A small deposit is required.
