Snake King Out With A Feathered St. Patrick To Lead Rattlers Away

He Has a Bird Guaranteed To Kill Snakes in Any Amount Anywhere

HOUSTON, Sept. 17. (AP)—Tentative plans for a fight between a "mystery bird" and a rattlesnake were made Friday by officers of a local club. The mystery bird will be furnished by W. A. "Snake" King of Brownsville. Hans Nagel, Hermann park zoo keeper, has agreed to furnish a rattler.

Mr. King, who was in Houston enroute to New Orleans, refused to say what kind of bird he will back against the snake. He stated it was a large fowl and is not a native of North America.

Can Exterminate 'Em

"The object of a fight between this bird and a rattlesnake is to show the people of Texas I have found a bird which, if bred in large numbers, will help exterminate rattlesnakes," declared Mr. King. "Humanity would benefit by such a program and I see no reason why there should be any objection to the fight."

That the bird will actually fight the snake, regardless of whether it is staged by artificial or natural lighting, will be guaranteed by Mr. King, he said.

Guarantees It

"I know what this bird will do and I will guarantee it will fight any rattlesnake," declared Mr. King. "There will be no alibis from me."

CARS CRASH; WOMAN HURT

Mrs. B. E. Styles Suffers Loss of Teeth in Auto Smash Friday

Mrs. B. E. Styles, 2008 Collins street, suffered the loss of several teeth and was badly shaken up early Friday night when the automobile in which she was riding collided with another car at Brook and Eleventh. The woman driver of the second car was also bruised and shaken somewhat.

The accident came when the two drivers apparently failed to see each other in the maze of traffic on the busy corner. Neither machine was running rapidly, which accounted for the slight injuries resulting from the impact. Both cars were somewhat damaged.

Mrs. Styles was taken to a hospital for medical attention and was later taken to her home.

El Jardine De Los Suenos—the most gorgeous of all home beautifuls in the entire south and the most elaborate home in the state, will be formerly opened to the public the latter part of September.

No adequate advance word-picture of the Garden of Dreams is possible. Its beauty defies description, but suffice it to say that with the efficiency and artistry of modern architecture has been blended the color-flecked romance of Old Madrid and sunny California.

The public today may lift aside a corner of the curtain that still covers the lovliness of the new home by a view of the furniture to be placed therein. This is now on display in the windows of the Freear Furniture company. It was selected by Ivan Murchison on recent trips to the eastern markets, is all Period and Spanish style and has been gathered in from all corners of the globe. Its remarkable beauty will be the more readily apparant on display surrounded by furnishings of less elaborate pretentiousness.

No prices will be given on this, but the interested public is invited to view the display in the Ninth street windows of Freear's.

ROAD HEAD A PAWN AS TWO SIDES CLASH

Written Charges To Be Presented Soon to Committeemen

AUSTIN, Sept. 17.(AP)—Written charges against Hal T. Moseley, chairman of the state highway commission, and John Cage of Stephenville, member of the commission, have been prepared and will be presented to the governor's nomination committee in the senate of the 39th legislature in special session, by supporters of Attorney General Dan Moody, governor-nominee. These charges, said to have been done with the assistance of Senator A. E. Wood of Granger, Senator Walter Woodward of Coleman, will contain the basis of Moody's opposition to their confirmation by the senate.

While Moody's forces are said to be greater now in the senate than those of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, the administration's supporters are planning a coupe de etat by putting before the senate a motion to pospone confirmation of Moseley and Cage until the regular session of the legislature in January.

17 For Dan

Senator Wood has claimed that 17 members of the senate will carry out the wishes of Moody, who has openly opposed the highway commissioners, and several administration senators state that they doubt that Moseley and Cage will be confirmed. It requires only 11 votes to oust an unconfirmed appointee of the governor.

Should the senate confirm the highway commissioners, it would be a great victory for the administration, and a repudiation of Dan Moody's nomination for governor, as he based his campaign primarily on the administration of the highway department. Former Governor James E. Ferguson, so senators who conferred with him Friday said, is very anxious to obtain the confirmation of Moseley and Cage. However, if it appears that there is no chance for their confirmation, efforts will be made before the senate in executive session to postpone the confirmations to the 40th legislature.

Memphis Sheep To Be Brought To Local Fair

Reservations Are Made For Show Space for An Entire Carload

Reservation was made yesterday with the Texas-Oklahoma Fair association for a show space for an entire carload of thoroughbred sheep which will be brought here immediately following the close of the Tri-State fair at Memphis, Tenn. This consignment of fine sheep is the property of Watson Lovett of Zanesville, O., who has taken away many first prizes with his thoroughbreds.

George D. Keith general director of the livestock department at the fair, announced that this consignment would offer some keen competition in the sheep department, and added that new entries never entered here before are registered in almost every section of the livestock department. He stated that there will be a much greater livestock show this year than ever before, and is becoming somewhat concerned over the possibility of lack of space and pens for the great numbers of livestock that will be brought in.

COOK TEST IS GOOD FOR 100

Large Crowds Out for Bringing in of Number 1 Dangelmyer

One of the largest crowds that ever witnessed the bringing in of an oil well in North Texas was on the ground Friday afternoon when Lynch, Stahl and Burrell, Ardmore operators, drilled out the plug in their No. 1 Dangelmyer, two miles north of Munster in northeast Cook county. The well which is strictly a wildcat, being situated 12 miles southeast of the Hooser pool, the nearest production, was bailing at the rate of 35 or 40 barrels from the sand at 796 to 808 feet.

Due to considerable pipe trouble and the fact that the bailing is through over 50 feet of mud, oil men who were on the scene believe production will increase to 100 or more barrels daily when the hole is thoroughly cleaned out.

Leasing activity is at a high pitch in the vicinity and royalty trading was reported brisk. The town of Saint Jo which is the nearest railway station is crowded with operators and scouts.

The new discovery is located in block 17 of the George Ivy survey.

FAIR BOOSTER TOUR ENDS IN GALA FASHION

Wichita Falls Evangels Get Home, Tired But With a Record of Credit

Tired and worn, yet happy in the thought of having carried the name of Wichita Falls to a dozen Northwest Texas and Southwest Oklahoma, cities and towns, 16 enthusiastic supporters of the Texas-Oklahoma Fair came home late Friday. On the last day of the three day automobile journey they visited Mangum, Altus, Tipton, Frederick and Davidson, Okla. Everywhere they told with enthusiasm about the coming Wichita Falls exposition and everywhere they were given the most cordial welcome that a Wichita Falls delegation ever received. They were also given assurance that thousands of people are coming here to see the October exposition. The delegation, under auspices of the Texas-Oklahoma Fair association and chamber of commerce left here Wednesday morning.

Leave Mangum

In five automobiles, the party left Mangum, where the Greer county Free Fair was in progress, about 9 o'clock Friday morning. Altus was reached shortly after 10 a. m. The delegation was met by Jasper Pendleton, genial secretary of the Altus Chamber of Commerce. With he and Mayor R. E. Shepherd in the lead, a number of the larger stores of the city were visited. Brief musical programs were rendered at each place. Drug stores had been warned that the party was coming and everywhere they stopped to partake of a soft beverage, the money was refused for the Altus Chamber of Commerce had passed the word around to "charge everything the party wanted to that organization." Altus business men were apparently glad to see the visitors and indicated a real interest in the City that Faith built with their questions about the city and opportunities. It was a wonderful reception which Altus gave.

A Steady Growth

That city gave every appearance of a sure and steady growth. Many new homes have been erected. Considerable work is under way in the business district. Crops are excellent. Cotton picking is under way in full blast. Much cotton has already been ginned. In one corner of the square sits a new bale of cotton used as a traffic post. The county harvested a great grain crop and now is gathering what promises to be one of

10 Mexico Bandits Face Firing Squad As Troops Run Down Murder Gang

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 17.(AP)—Ten suspected bandits have already been killed as a result of the Rosenthal outrage. Mexican troops still are searching the district where the crime was committed for bandits.

Today seven suspected outlaws were killed by federal soldiers in a clash near Huitzilac where Jacob Rosenthal, the American was kidnaped last Sunday. Three suspects were killed the night before in the same district.

All armed men were being stopped and interrogated by the searching troops as under the recent law the carrying of arms is forbidden.

Three prisoners were brought to this city today who had been captured near the scene of the outrage. They were picked out by Joseph Ruff, Rosenthal's son-in-law, from a line up of 50 prisoners and identified by him as part of the gang that robbed his party of Sunday and kidnaped his elderly relative, who later was killed by his captors when a rescue was imminent.

It is believed the three prisoners will be executed promptly.

Dr. E. F. Priestly, an American physician, resident in Mexico City, was sent to Cuernavica by the United States embassy to hold a post mortem on the body of the murdered American. He reports three great knife wounds were found on the body. There was also a bullet hole in the forehead the shot apparently being fired after Rosenthal was dead.

SEVERE CRASH PUTS TWO MEN IN HOSPITALS

W. H. Hammon and T. Flannery Sustain Injuries; 3rd Man Is Bruised

Three men were injured, none critically, when a three-way traffic smash-up five miles northwest of town on the Electra road totally wrecked three automobiles and piled them, shapeless masses of twisted junk, in ditches along the highway, at 4:30 Friday afternoon.

W. H. Hammon, prominent oil operator of the city, and Tom Flannery, an employe of the Guernsey Dairy farm west of town were the most seriously hurt. Ed Pinkerton, an employe of the Langford Motor company was bruised up somewhat but was able to go on about his work. That all three men were not instantly killed was a source of amazement to those who saw the results of the crash.

Taken to Hospitals

Hammon was in the clinic hospital last night suffering with some severe cuts about the face and with numerous bruises and abrasions on the body; while Flannery was in the general hospital with a broken arm, a deep gash on the chin and several minor cuts and bruises. Attaches at both medical institutions said that neither man, so far as could be learned, was in a serious condition.

The wreckage of the three cars was about as complete as possible. The crash came, eye witnesses reported, when the Hammon roadster and the Guernsey Dairy truck came together and hurtled into the Langford truck. Flannery, it was reported, was running north on the highway, as was Pinkerton, while Hammon was coming south from Iowa Park. Flannery undertook to circle the Pinkerton truck, which was running slowly, and collided with Hammon's car.

Third Car Hit

The impact of the crash and resulting rebound hurled the cars into the Pinkerton truck, which was unable to dodge or stop. When all three stopped rolling they were scattered in shapeless profusion along the roadway.

It was feared for a time that Hammon was critically injured. He was unconcious when brought into the city, and rumor spread rapidly that he had been killed. After examinations had been made at the hospital, however, it was found that he was not suffering from any major hurts. He regained conciousness later in the evening.

THE PETTER

—By— Beatrice Burton
Author of "Love Bound" "Her Man"

Illustrated and Copyrighted by Johnson Features, Inc., 1819 Broadway, New York City

READ THIS FIRST:

Merry Locke, pretty and gay as her nickname, is a born flirt. She has no ambition beyond a good time and plenty of beaux. At 20 she fails in her business course, because she does not study. Then, when her father dies, she goes into Lillie Dale's beauty shop at a tiny salary.

At that time, she is having the first real love affair of her life. The man in the case is Tony Gaines, an ambitious young lawyer who wants to marry her. Their engagement ends when Merry goes out with other men, and Tony goes to Montana to live. A year later Merry hears that he is engaged to another girl. She tries not to care.

Helen, the oldest of the Locke sisters, marries and later dies in childbirth. Cassie, the second oldest, marries her rich employer, Morley Kaufman. Merry envies her her soft, easy life, although she knows that Morley is having a secret love affair with Mrs. Fifi Pell. Jinny, the youngest sister, elopes with Derrick Jones, who lives next door, and goes to live with his parents.

Through Cassie, Merry meets Bill Erskine, a wealthy bachelor much older than herself. She becomes engaged to him, but he keeps putting off the wedding day.

Moms takes Lillie Dale and a Mr. Hefflinger into the house as boarders. A year later she marries Mr. Hefflinger. With her stepfather "ruling the roost," the house is no longer the pleasant place it once was to Merry.

She meets Les Purcell, a hero of her high school days, and goes out with him, more to escape from the house than for any other reason. She does not know he is married, until his wife threatens him with divorce and then tries to kill herself. Morley's sister, Muriel, tells Bill Erskine the story. He goes to Florida, when his father dies there, and writes to Merry telling her that he is sure she is the wrong girl for him. Moms promptly announces the engagement and writes Bill a letter to let him know that he can't jilt Merry in that fashion. One night Merry goes out dancing with Jinny and Derrick's "crowd," and finds herself a Wall flower for the first time in her life. She flirts with a man at the next table, to amuse herself.

There Were Shadows Undr Her Eyes, And at the Corners of Her Mouth.

Now Go on With The Story

CHAPTER LI.

Merry gave the man at the next table a swift, sidewise glance from under satiny lids and dark curved lashes. Then she looked quickly away.

She took out her little vanity case, and as she powdered her short tip-tilted nose, she could feel his eyes on her, still watching her. A dimple flashed in and out at the corner of her mouth.

She turned her head and looked at him again. He was a dark, heavyset man with intent brown eyes and a bulldog sort of face. No one to wave flags over, as Merry remarked to herself.

"Here! What are you doing—flirting with that man?" Jinny's high voice asked suddenly, just behind her.

She and Derrick had stopped dancing in the middle of the dance, and she dropped down on the chair beside Merry, still flushed and panting.

"No, I'm not exactly flirting with him," Merry answered with a toss of her head, "I just happened to look up at him, and he smiled at me. But who could blame me if I did flirt with him? I'm not having much of a time sitting here by myself, you know."

Jinny turned her head and spoke to her husband. "Go and bring Angus back here where he belongs," she said sharply.

Derrick started off but Merry called him back. "No don't take him away from his blonde. You aren't doing me any favor by bringing him back to me!" she said. "I'll tell you what you can do for me, though—gt me a taxicab. I'm going home."

"Indeed you're not" piped up Jinny. "You're going to stay right here, and Angus Miller will just have to come back and dance with you! I wonder what he thinks he is, ditching the crowd this way!"

But Merry wouldn't listen to her. Nothing, she declared, would make her stay at the White Peacock a second longer.

"I have a beast of a headache anyway," she fibbed, "and really I'm not having a good time. I don't know your crowd, and --well I'm just going home, that's all."

She swayed to her feet, a little faint and dizzy from the "juney" she had had in her ginger ale.

Jinny and Derrick took her to the door, arguing with her all the way. Insisting that she stay. She kept shaking her head, even after she was inside the taxicab and on her way home.

She never remembered the ride. But all at once the cab stopped, and looking out, she saw that they were in front of the Chester street house. The headlights hit a path before them on the rough pavement.

The driver sprang out and opened the door. He had the slip in his hand. "A dollar and a half," he said, peering at it.

"But I haven't any money," Merry answered stupidly. Her head was going around and around as the cheap liquor she had drank, began to take effect.

There was a light in the sitting room of the house. Moms must be waiting for her.

Walking as if she were very tired, or very sick, she went up to the front door and rang the bell.

"Got a dollar fifty?" she asked, when Moms opened the door, looking startled and puzzled.

"How did you happen to come home so early?" her mother asked, taking her old brown purse from the pocket of her apron. "Aren't you well?"

She paid the cab man and followed Merry into the house.

A little wood fire burned in the grate, for the spring night was raw and chilly. Merry sank down into a chair in front of it, and began to laugh.

"I'm well enough, but—I'm old, I guess," she answered harshly. "Old at twenty-two! Try to figure that out on your piano!"

Moms got up and bent over her. "Merry, you've been drinking!" she cried accusingly. "No wonder you're talking like this. Come on, now. Get up and I'll help you upstairs to bed! What have you had to drink?"

But Merry pushed her away with a weak little movement of her hands.

"I haven't had much to drink, Moms," she said, shaking her head and closing her eyes wearily, "not as much as you think I've had. I'm really pretty sober."

But Moms insisted that she go to bed, and so finally she went. Dimly she listened to her mother's voice, going on and on about the evil of drinking strong liquor.

"It's wrong for anyone to touch it," she was saying, while Merry slowly and clumsily undressed herself. "It's bad enough for a man to drink, but how much worse for a woman! There's nothing on earth so low as a woman who drinks."

Merry paid no attention to her. Her tired brain kept repeating: "I was too old for that young kid tonight. He thought I was too old for him. Think of it! Me! Too old for him! Think of it!"

At last she was in bed, the lights were out, and the room was silent. She slept as soon as her head touched the smooth coolness of the pillow.

It may have been three or four hours afterward that Merry woke up.

The house was perfectly still and the curtains at her bedroom windows swayed back and forth like ghosts in the soft air of the spring night.

She lay there for a moment idly watching them. Then she swung her feet out of bed, and slipped into her kimono.

She turned on every light in her room, locked the door and walked over to her dressing table.

The mirror gave her back the reflection of her face, the soft purplish shadows under her eyes, the tired droop of the lovely mouth, the whiteness of it.

Then she thought of Jinny's face that night under its tiny green sports hat. She thought of the faces of the three other girls in Jinny's party. The pert pointed faces with the unmistakable stamp of extreme youth on them.

"Why, I'm old compared with them!" she knew, suddenly.

Girls nowadays started to be grown women at fifteen or sixteen. Almost before they were out of the cradle and slangy and "peppy." Pep!—that was the great thing for a girl to have these days! Pep and youth, short-skirted nd brazen-lipped!

Compared with sixteen, twenty-two really was old! Merry sighed as she realized it, and switched off the lights.

She was back in bed, wondering whether she had gumption enough to get up and cold-cream her pallid face when she heard an automobile coming up the street.

It came nearer and nearer, and then with a little rush it seemed to turn in at the driveway before it stopped.

Once more Merry was out of bed in her bare feet. She ran across the room and peeped out of the window. There in the moonlit driveway stood Cassie's new Rolls car, and getting out of it was Cassie, herself! She had a bag in one hand and a leather hatbox in the other!

"Sst!" Merry hailed her, and then called in a low voice, "I'll be right down!"

She slipped into her little pink felt slippers, and pattered down through the darkened house to let her sister in. As she reached the bottom of the stairs, the cuckoo clock in the dining room sang out that it was two o'clock!

Two o'clock! What on earth was Cassie doing, coming here at two o'clock in the morning?

"I'll bet a hat she's left Morley!" Merry thought excitedly, as she opened the front door, and let Cassie into her mother's house.

Cassie gives Merry some information which greatly surprises her in Chapter LII of "The Petter" Monday.

AUSTIN, Sept. 17. (AP)—Including the royalty payments made to the University of Texas by the Big Lake Oil company and the Texan Oil and Land company on production for the month of August in the Reagan county field, the total sum received by the University from this source amounted to $4,345,128.19. On the basis of one-eighth royalty the total value of oil produced by these two companies in that field is $34,761,025.52. Prospects are regarded as favorable for the development of a big field upon university land in that new producing district. The Magnolia Petroleum company already has one producing well there and other wells are being drilled.

CLEAR DOCKET IN FREDERICK

Judge Mathews Gives Rapid Fire Divorce Cases In Single Hearing

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept. 17.—Ten divorces in a little over ten minutes is the record of District Judge Frank Mathews in a one-day term of court held in Frederick Thursday. In adition to these non-contested divorce cases the judge disposed of fourteen or fifteen other non-jury cases.

This one day session was for the purpose of clearing the docket for the regular term of district court which will open in Frederick September 27. Two murder cases of more than passing interest to Tillman county are to be heard at that session of the court.

Mrs. J. M. Wrigley and son, Charles, who are accused of killing their husband and father, J. M. Wrigley, are expected to go to trial early in the session. Wrigley was murdered as he lay asleep by someone who fired a shotgun from an open window or from the door of Mrs. Wrigley's bedroom, evidence at the preliminary hearing showed.

The other murder case is that of T. Stamps who killed his son-in-law, Marion J. Short, on an uptown street of Frederick, before a large crowd of spectators, alleging at the time that Short was twisting his daughter's arm.

Andy Breaks A Rule; Speaks Up

NEW YORK, Sept. 17. (AP)—After unusual precautions had been taken to shield Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon from reporters and photographers upon his arrival today from abroad the secretary himself broke his rule of declining interviews and talked to newspaper men.

He declined to discuss European affairs and said his trip abroad had merely been a pleasure and vacation tour. At no time had he discussed issues of national or international character, he said, although he had met a number of distinguished statesmen, including Primier Mussolini of Italy at Rome.

The secretary arrived on the Berengaria. He was taken off the liner at quarantine on a special revenue cutter.

Trouble Feared In Chinese Sectors

SHANGHAI, Sept. 17. (AP)—The Toho News Agency reports from Peking that General Yang Sen, commander of North Chinese troops at Wanhsien, has advised that he anticipates trouble between Szechuan troops and a second British naval expedition which is reported proceeding toward Wanhsien to renew efforts to relase two British steamers held there by the Chinese.

General Yang Sen announces his intention to fight to a finish.

British gunboats and Chinese land troops fought an engagement September 5 at Wanhsien in which several British officers and men were killed. Chinese casualties were estimated at 2,000.

DRUSE REPULSED

BEIRUT, Syria, Sept. 17.(AP)—Druse tribesmen commanded by the Druse sulton Attache and Chiefs Rachid Talih and Abd-el-Arslan have attempted a surprise attack on a French column operating in the Djebel Druse country, but were driven off with considerable losses. The French used bombing planes against the tribesmen, who were aided by Bedouins and Damascans.

The French took a number of prisoners and the tribesmen left some of their dead on the field.

GOOD FOR THE COWS.

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 17.(AP)—Policemen here have a merry practice of throwing their straw hats into an electric fan at central station instead of providing food for bovines at the end of the straw season. But this was discontinued Friday by order of Detective Captain Harvey, because one hat tossed into the "merry-go-around," broke a blade of the fan.

Now it looks like a better winter for the cows.

Systematic Robbers Loot Mail Car of $137,000 As Train Runs Peacefully Through Chicago Suburbs

Two robbers, working with system and obvious knowledge of mail movements, robbed the mail car of a Grand Trunk railway train of $137,000 in negotiable currency on the outskirts of Chicago. Photos show a train passing the spot at which the robbers escaped from the train into a waiting automobile and, inset, police and other authorities inspecting tracks left by the car which headed back into the "bad lands" of Chicago.

Egyptian Cotton Buyer Visits Ma

AUSTIN, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Vicomte Gabriel de Fontaree of Paris, France, and Armant, upper Egypt, cotton grower and buyer in America studying the cotton conditions, Friday visited Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, and Attorney General Dan Moody, governor-nominee.

Vicomte Fontaree is the guest of H. A. Wroe, Austin banker, and said he was here with the view of investing in cotton growing land in west Texas, besides being on a mission for the French government to make a report on cotton growing conditions with a view of developing the industry in French provinces in Africa and the Malay Archipelago, particularly in the French Congo in Africa.

"We have suitable lands for cotton cultivation in our provinces, plenty of water and the weather conditions are excellent but we lack transportation facilities and methods for the disposition of the crop," Vicomte Fontaree told the Associated Press. "We expect to produce in the future, more of the world's supply of cotton. When we build roads, which will be at great expense, the cotton industry will flourish in our provinces."

Vicomte Fontaree said he received about sixty cents a pound for the Egyptian coton grown on 5,000 acres in upper Egypt.

Fall Weather To Make Appearance In Texas Today

DALLAS, Sept. 17.(AP)—September's summer weather is due for a compromise with fall tonight and Saturday in Texas, if the federal weather bureau's forecast issued here today, pans out.

Part cloudiness all over the state, with showers in the west and on the coast, and colder weather in the north portion, are promised.

As it is, many Texans have found no reason to discard their straw hats, even though September 15 has passed. The thermometer failed to concur with the unwritten fashion law about putting away summer head gear, and from the number of straws still in evidence, the thermometer will have the last word in the matter. The women, of course, started wearing felt hats in August, as usual.

OIL VETERAN GIVES ADVICE

Aged Driller Says Lots Of Hard Work Makes Him Strong

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 17.—Hard work, lots of it, and clean living, is the advice that Charles A. Whiteshot, 87, and standing six feet, four inches in height and asserting that "I am as strong as an ox," gives to men who want to grow old slowly. Whiteshot has had a variegated career as an oil man, engaging in most of the fields from Oil Creek, in southwest Pennsylvania, down to Nigger Creek, west of Mexia, in east central Texas.

His ambition is to assist oil men and others to have an accurate and comprehensive history of the American oil industry written. He personally has collected much information that he wants to turn over to the historians who will prepare the story of oil.

A letter from Philadelphia says that Whiteshot is now attending the Sesqui-centennial exposition there. He walked there from the Great Lakes Naval station near Chicago, taking with him neither money nor baggage. To Philadelphia newspaper men he said: "I made a profit on the trip at that. I left Chicago without a cent and when I arrived in New Jersey a policeman gave me a nickel to cross the ferry, and as the fare was only four cents, I am keeping the penny as a souvenir of the hike." He left Chicago on August 1 and reached Philadelphia on September the 7th.

Whiteshot was a naval inspector during the World war, checking up shipments of oil and gasoline that went to the navy. He was discharged in 1919, and then drifted back to his old job of driller and expert fisherman. Whiteshot has perfected some contrivances in fishing lost tools that will perpetuate his name.

On his 26 days trip, he was to walk one during daylight, and spend the night at police stations so the record could be kept straight.

Yom Kippur Is Observed Here By Jewish Audience

The celebration of Yom Kippur, the day of atonement, began in Jewish congregations of the city last night with a solemn service at Temple Israel at 8 o'clock Friday evening. Rabbi Samuel Phillips talked on "If Not Now, When?"

Music was in charge of Mrs. H. Goldstucker with Mrs. Carrie E. Wilcox at the organ.

"The celebration of the day of atonement is an ancient institution and dates back to early Bible times, Rabbi Phillips said. "The day is celebrated by all loyal Jews, whether orthodox or reformed, through total abstinence from business occupations as well as from all food, drink and pleasure," he said.

Stores operated by Jewish merchants will be closed today in observance of the holiday.

A memorial service will be held Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock when Rabbi Phillips will preach on "Hope and Immortality."

Salvation Army In Need of Cars For Transportation Work

Should any one wish to do his good turn on Sunday, he might help the Salvation Army Sunday afternoon by using the automobile to bring children from a distance to and from the Sunday school, it was announced yesterday at the Army. A contest is going on between the blues and yellows to increase Sunday school attendance, and so far, has had unusually good results. An increase of 40 per cent was shown at the last meeting.

The contest continues two more weeks, and those who desire to offer their services by bringing children to the services are asked to get in touch with Lieutenant Deborah Rice at the Salvation Army hall.

YOUTH BACKS JAZZ CLAIM

Seninarian Declares His Attacks Founded On Absolute Fact

CHICAGO, Sept. 17. (AP)—Wilfred O. Cross, a youthful and obscure seminarian who suddenly leaped into notice under an avalanche of criticism from students, college president and bishops because of his article on morals of undergraduates published in a church paper, sees the hubbub as "an amusing storm in a tea cup."

In a letter to the Daily Illini, student publication at the University of Illinois at Urbana, Cross claimed that he had been the victim of newspaper sensationalism because of his "bit of hack writing in an abscure paper."

"I am certainly no fit person to try panning institutions as immoral," he wrote. "To most people, my own moral standards are shockingly perverted. In this amusing storm in a tea cup I am surprised to see myself represented as an impossible fanatic canting over the souls and sins of my fellow collegians."

Cross, however, stands back of his article and after coming to Chicago last night from his home in Pontiac, he maintained that the only error was one of literary emphasis, rather than of facts. Published in two sections in The Witness, an Episcopal paper, the article said that immorality in American universities was traceable to co-education. The author declared that women now participate in drinking bouts to an astounding extent, referred to back door deliveries of gin to a sorority house and related a pajama dance by collegians of both sexes in the aisle of a sleeper bound for a foot ball game.

WHITE HOUSE SHINES ANEW

Coolidge And Family To Find It Gleaming As They Return

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. (AP) A repaired and renovated White House was in complete readiness for the impending return of President and Mrs. Coolidge from White Pine camp, N. Y.

Painters, cleaners, mechanics and other workmen have toiled throughout the summer to make the homecoming pleasant and the executive mansion testified today through its epic and span condition to the success to their efforts.

A new coat of spotless white glistens on outside walls. A new dust-proof roadway replaces the old gravel approach to the front door. A new electric elevator runs smoothly from the basement to the upper floors and old things are made to appear new. These include the famous east room which has been given a freshness it has not known for years. Even the wood bins in the cellar have been cleaned and refilled to keep the hearth fires burning this fall and winter.

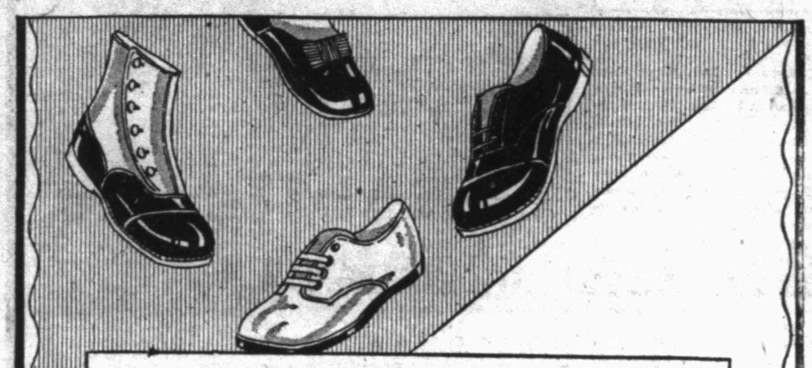

Gardners Busy

Gardners, too, have done their best. The lawns have taken on a fresh green hue. The evergreen hedges have been clipped. The rose gardens are brilliant with the last blooms of summer.

Over the executive offices where the president works things remain much the same as when he went away. The draperies have been cleaned and rehung. The old carpet has been renovated and is ready for the imprint of more footsteps. The silken folds of the Stars and Stripes, placed at the right end of the president's desk by Mrs. Coolidge lend the chamber its only colorful touch amid the dull greens and grays of the walls and the carpets.

EDUCATION NEED OF HOUR

TEXAS democrats, in state convention assembled in the city of San Antonio, declared for "the education of all the children of all the people." They declared for liberal appropriation for the maintenance of the public schools of the commonwealth and all institutions of higher learning maintained by the taxpayers of the state. Lawmakers of the 39th legislature are in special session. They are reminded that a people's convention made a ringing declaration for liberal appropriations for the rural schools as well as for the city schools and the university and colleges. Speaking of the duty of lawmakers, the San Antonio platform says:

"Our constitution declares that a general diffusion of knowledge being essential to the preservation of the liberties and rights of the people, it shall be the duty of the legislature of the state to establish and make suitable provision for the support and maintenance of an efficient system of public free schools. Free public education is a primary duty of government and public schools should be in all things generously maintained and supported. We declare for such revision of our laws relating to public education as shall insure an equality of educational opportunity to all children of Texas, regardless of whether they live in cities, in towns or rural communities; and especially, do we favor such revision of our laws relating to public education as will make possible the establishment of centrally located high schools in the rural communities of this state to insure that the boys and girls living outside the cities will have an equal opportunity in the matter of securing a high school education."

Nothing ambiguous about the foregoing. It is a message and it is couched in the simple language of the people. Now the committee that drafted the platform was presided over by Dr. Samuel Palmer Brooks, one of the foremost educators of the southwest. Speaking of rural schools and the necessity for liberal appropriation, the San Antonio platform says:

"Experience has demonstrated that a stabilized minimum per capitia school apportionate of $15 must be provided year by year besides an adequate appropriation of an equalization fund to aid the rural schools if an efficient school system is maintained and equal educational opportunities are afforded to all the children of all the people. The revenue now available for the support of the schools for the next ensuing scholastic year appears insufficient to provide for the maintenance and support of an efficient system of public free schools for the period of time contemplated by the constitution. We recommend that the legislature supplement the revenues of the public schools to such an extent as may be found necessary and by such means as shall be by them found most practicable, to the end that the school children of this state may not suffer by reason of a short school term."

All intelligent men and women, all humane men and women, all the people regardless of religious creed or political affiliation should favor liberal appropriation for the education of all the children of all the people. Education banishes, to a large extent, poverty and its pangs; education makes for high ideals and high standards of citizenship; education makes men and women think and reason for themselves and when they think and reason for themselves they are never lead by demagogues and they do their own voting at election time.

Texas should be made first. Rural schools of Texas should be made first. Texas university should be placed among the first under American skies, and the colleges of the state, training and otherwise, should be among the first in the republic.

The makers of the San Antonio platform had something to say relative to free textbooks and the law which provides for the same. Read the declaration:

"The educational survey commission authorized by the 38th legislature has filed its report. In order that our people may profit from the results of its investigation, the 40th legislature is urged to give its suggestions very careful consideration. We favor corrections in the free textbook law and are opposed to the frequent change of textbooks, resulting in tremendous cost to the people and believe that this money should be saved and restored to the school fund to help educate the youth of this state."

There were 1500 accredited delegates to the San Antonio convention. They spoke for 830,000 Texas democrats. There was not a descenting vote when it came to the adoption of the report of the committee on platform and resolutions and the platform is the latest and freshest expression of the democratic people of this commonwealth.

PUBLICITY FOR AL

"KEEP Al Smith in New York," was the slogan of the speakers at the invisible national convention of the political invisible held in the city of Washington.

Publicity is the thing. This New York governor is getting it a plenty. New York democrats are going to draft him for governor for a fourth term and the campaign that will follow between the democrats and the republicans will be of the history making kind.

"Keep Al in the office of governor," will be the slogan of the democrats. "Keep Jimmie Wadesworth in the United States senate," will be the slogan of the republicans, and Wadesworth is as wet as the Saint Lawrence river.

THE PENN'S SAFETY PROGRAM

LOTS of people in the east ride occasionally on the Pennsylvania railroad, so there will be general satisfaction over the announcement that the Pennsylvania is about to spend $8,000,000 on the installation of automatic signals and train control devices designed to increase safety. The company takes pride in its program, and justly, for no other railroad ever embarked on so expensive or so extensive a safety project except, perhaps, one in which a long period of years was allowed for its completion. The Pennsylvania is going to put its plan through without delay.

Although a number of railroad wrecks have occurred lately, they have been decreasing the past decade and there is a good reason to believe that this latter tendency will continue. But while every mechanical device that will promote safety is to be hailed with delight, it will still be necessary to keep watch on the human element lest it become reckless. The so-called "personal equation" must still be taken into calculation.

Bearing this in mind, however, one cannot but derive encouragement from the new appartus. For example, one device is of such a nature that if the train passes a signal showing any other condition except a clear track the airbrakes will be automatically applied. Other appartus, electrically operated, will reproduce in miniature in the engine cab, for the benefit of both the engineman and the fireman, the signals on the track. A hazardous situation will be directed to their attention by a whistle.

That human ingenuity succeeded in inventing appliances which make us less dependent on the alertness of railroad employes while traveling is occasion for rejoicing and no doubt will mean that lives will be saved which under the old system would be lost. The inventors have not attained the fame that has gone to some of the discoverers of devices that have been of benefit to mankind, but society owes them a tribute of thanks.

SEEING THINGS

WIRELESS telegraphy enables us to send messages around the world. Radio makes it possible for one in Wichita Falls to tune in on a broadcasting station thousands of miles distant and listen to the human voice or a band concert Heavier-than-air machines carry passengers from point to point at a speed of more than a hundred miles an hour.

Now comes Charles Edison, son of the electrical wizard, tells us that the time is coming when the baseball fans in one city can remain at home and witness a world's series in another city. This will encourage several millions of fans in the United States to hope that Mr. Edison is not merely seeing things and that his prediction will come true, so that they may see things.

But if the television becomes a reality probably we shall hear a mighty protest from sports promoters. The hundreds of thousands of dollars poured into the playing of the baseball classics, or at least a big portion of the money, will remain in the pockets of the game's patrons. They will sit in their homes or offices and watch the game, play by play.

Likewise the champions and near champions of the pugilistic world will have to accept smaller purses. The promoters will not be financially able to offer a quarter or a half million dollars to the contestants, if fight lovers are privileged to remain outside the city where the battle is staged and witness it at little or no expense.

The baseball club owners may build higher fences around their parks and the fight promoters may stage all bouts indoors, but we assume the inventive genius of the Edisons and their kind will overcome this by giving us a sort of X-ray television that will at least give the same advantage as that enjoyed by the youth who views the proceedings through a knot hole in the fence.

Pathetic Figures

The Infernal Machine

By F. Britten Austin.

Sitting alone down there in that bare cabin in the depths of the ship his hands worked convulsively in repetition of his tense clutch upon the balustrate of the dock as he lived through the scene again—say once more the magistrate nod his calm acquiescence.

Shriek out a warning— Would they believe him? He knew only too well that they would not. He had no proof—only his word, the word of a man obviously eager to postpone the processes of the law. Would the shipping company hold up the great liner, throw perhaps a hundred thousand dollar's worth of coal into the sea in despair of identifying the fatal lump, upon his mere assertion? He knew that they would not.

The liner was well upon her course now—he was experienced enough to diagnose the full-powered evenness of the revolutions which set every plate and girder and fitting of her in subdued vibration. Down below—in those hellish stokeholds—the half-naked firemen were shovelling the coal into the white-hot glare of her furnaces, shovelling and again shovelling until at last one lump that left their shovels for its fiery bed . . . he jumped to his feet again in a shriek of terror, banged against the door with frenzied fists.

For all response, he might have been alone in a world destitute of man. His blows ceased suddenly, with that brusque reaction of the physically-unstable, as though in an exhaustion of the reservoir of force which had poured so tumultuously through the open sluicegates of his being. Physical weakling as he also was, he sank down, his brain drugged in the stupefaction of an immense fatigue.

He slept, while that gloomy little call about him, deep down in the mighty organism, quivered with the rush of the great liner as she hurried out to sea.

How long Jake Gravinsky lay in blessed unconsciousness at the foot of that door he did no know. He was awakened by its opening, by a sudden glare as the electric light was switched on. One of the detectives stood over him, accompanying a steward who brought food.

With dulled faculties that fumbled for definition of the vague terror he knew to be somewhere in the back of his mind—what was it?—he rose stiffly to his feet, tottered to his bunk. Then, seated, he looked up at the detective and remembered. His teeth chattered in the shiver which came over him. His lips parted as if for sudden utterance, but he could only stare dumbly. What use was it?—his brain began to work again—even if they turned around now the very next shovelful of coal might . . . He balked at exact imagination of the cataclysm.

His deep-lying, bitter hatred of the aw and its representatives surged up in him suddenly, presented to him doubtless by his subconscious self for solace, blotting out all else. Anyway, they were all in the same boat!

After a glance around the cabin, a test of the screwed-tight porthole, the detective motioned out the steward.

"Not so much of that noise, now!" he said, standing over his prisoner. "Or we'll tie you up and gag you for the rest of the trip—you understand?"

After one last nod of significance the detective left him to his food turned the key once more upon him.

The first mouthful nearly choked him but then, hunger awaking at the taste, he ate ravenously, was still unsatisfied when all was finished.

The dishes he put down jarred and rattled with the pulsation of those mighty engines, far away and hidden, indefatigable, so sure and steady in their unvarying whirr and yet to him so full of menace.

He flung himself down upon his bunk in an exasperated effort to escape an involuntary visualisation of the terror to come; to sleep if possible. But still the whirring in his head continued, beyond his inhibition, placing before him again and again those pictures of impending doom at which the sweat came clammy on his brow. Like a machine it was, he thought, half delirious under his obsession, an infernal cinema machine — yes, that was it—the fever mounted in him—in his head was a whirring cinema machine over which he had no control. He sank at last into an uneasy sleep, in a dream where that cinema machine in his head was geared somehow to the whirring turbines, was itself that infernal machine that should explode . . .

He was awakened from a nightmare, where he was clutched by nameless things, by the two detectives standing over him.

"Time for exercise, Jake," said one of them, as the prisoner stared blankly into his face.

He roused himself stupidly, grasping only two outstanding facts. He was still alive. That infernal whirring in his head had stopped.

The three of them passed out of the cabin into the long corridor, tenanted only by cleaners and an occasional hurrying steward, climbed stairways, and again stairways, and finally emerged into the damp, early-morning chill of the open air. They passed aft to the steerage deck where a few sailors were busy with hose and swabs. No other passengers had yet made their appearance.

His terror woke alive again in the wretched prisoner as, between his captors, he walked up and down that deck at a pace which they dictated to him. In his sleep down below there, the menace to his existence, although ever at the back of his consciousness, had lost actuality — seemed unbelievable when he awoke. Up here, on the deck of the great ship whose white super-structure lifted and sank against the greys of a stormy sky, her shrouds moaning in the cold wind which smote him like a douche, he was brought sharply back to contact with reality. It was real—terribly real—this ship solitary upon the vast ocean where great waves rolled with foaming whitenesses under the torn clouds of an incipient gale. Even her immensity dipped to their turbulence.

He glanced along to the rows of boats swinging high up above the terraced promenade decks, ready for the almost unthinkable catastrophe, glanced still higher to where the four enormous funnels poured out volumes of black smoke that mingled with the low clouds. They fascinated him, those funnels. He could scarcely turn his back upon them when the limit of the deck was reached and he faced aft once more.

He looked at them again with a strange relief when yet once again they turned. They were still vomiting their smoke, valume upon volume in endless succession of emergence, black smoke that was normal and still normal welling and still welling in an even laziness of black coils that rolled about the funnel-tops ere they were torn away by the wind. He agonized for the sudden upward burst of flame from one of them . . .

Questions from the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

Sage Advice to a Schoolteacher Who Wants to Be Married—How Can a Mother Be Rid of Her Insolent, Grafting Daughter-in-Law? — Two. "Miss. Sixteens" Who Plan to Elope for a Thrill.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a lonely school teacher in a small town. I am good-looking and clever and I want to marry, but there are few eligible men here. Is it right for me to encourage the attention of high school boys in the hope that in a few years the difference between our ages will seem less wide? Or should I take a widower with children who I suspect wants an unpaid housekeeper and cook?
ANXIOUS SCHOOL TEACHER.

Answer:

If you are not in love and have a good job why do you want to marry? Especially as none of the men you are contemplating can give you half as pleasant a lot in life as you now have.

There are two logical reasons for a woman marrying. One is if there is some particular man with whom she is so vividly in love that she feels she cannot exist without him. The other is if the man can give her luxuries she craves and which she cannot get herself. But for a woman to marry just to be a marrying, for her to marry a man she doesn't love and who is poor is the most idiotic thing than any nit-wit female can do.

For marriage even under the best conditions and where there is love to glorify it, is hard on a woman. It calls for perpetual sacrifices and self-abnegation. It brings sickness and suffering and the agony of child-bearing to most women. If she marries a poor man she must work harder and longer hours every [illegible] than any other laborer on earth and get no salary envelope at the end of the week.

Nothing on earth but loving some man better than she does herself makes marriage worth while for a woman, and why so many girls who are carrying salaries that enable them to live easily and dress well give up their soft snaps to marry men for whom they have no real feeling and who doom them to the hardships of a poor man's wife is one of the mysteries of the feminine psychology that no one can explain.

As for you marrying a high school boy, that is sheer madness. Time will not lessen the gap between your age and his, as you optimistically suggest. It will widen it, because women age so much more quickly than men. Ten years isn't so much difference between a woman of 30 and a youngster of 20, but a woman of 40 is middle-aged, while a man is still a boy at 30, and at 60 a woman is an old woman, while a man at 60 is just at his prime.

Cradle-snatching is an unholy trade for a woman to engage in, and she is always punished for it. For when the man comes to himself he always resents having been taken in while he was a mere child by a sophisticated woman. And even when he doesn't leave her for some girl of his own age he becomes a sour, disgruntled husband who takes his discontent out on his wife.

The widower with children is scarcely a better chance. The stepmother's road is about the thorniest one that any woman can elect to tread, and only an affection for a man so great that it makes her willing to bear martyrdom for his sake can repay her for choosing it.

Instead of marrying just anything you can happen to find in your small town, why don't you take your money and go off to some college and take a special course, so that you can get a better situation to teach in a city where you will have a wider selection in men to pick from? Girls don't have to stay put nowadays. They can go forth just as men do to seek their fortunes.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

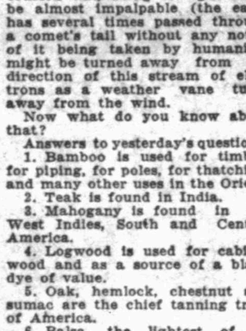

GIVE ME AN OLD MAN

Give me an old man for a friend
When I am young a man who knows
The country just around the bend
A little nearer to the snows.
For men will fail upon life's trail
Who only on their youth depend;
Give me a boy to share my joy
But give me an old man for a friend.

I know how brightly skies will bend
With beauty when the heart is young,
When nights and coin we freely spend,
And cups are passed, and songs are sung.
But I shall learn that wicks that burn
The brightest soonest reach the end,
And, in the hour when nights are dour,
Give me an old man for a friend.

Give me a young man to attend
My dancing steps, when nights are fair,
But when the dance is at an end,
I hope I find another there.
Some fine old man life's sky to scan,
I hope the hand of God will send—
A prodigal is a merry pal
But give me an old man for a friend.

What Do You Know About It?

DAILY SCIENCE SIX

1. How much larger is the sun than the earth?
2. Has the sun shown any signs of cooling off?
3. Is the sun rotating?
4. Has the sun an orbit?
5. What direction is the sun coursing in?
6. What are sun spots?

Answers to these questions in tomorrow's Record News.

COMET TAILS AND THE SUN

It has long been observed that as comets approach the sun their tails swing away from it, and thought comets circle around the sun, they always change the position of their tails as they go. A theory to explain this is that beside sending out heat and light, the sun gives off a flood of electrons, or minute charges of electricity, individually minute, but taken all together they might constitute a celestial river of power. The comet's tail, being so light as to be almost impalpable (the earth has several times passed through a comet's tail without any notice of it being taken by humanity) might be turned away from the direction of this stream of electrons as a weather vane turns away from the wind.

Now what do you know about that?

Answers to yesterday's questions:

1. Bamboo is used for timber, for piping, for poles, for thatching, and many other uses in the Orient.
2. Teak is found in India.
3. Mahogany is found in the West Indies, South and Central America.
4. Logwood is used for cabinet wood and as a source of a black dye of value.
5. Oak, hemlock, chestnut and sumac are the chief tanning trees of America.
6. Balsa, the lightest of all woods, is found in South America.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

BY MARY BLAKE

VIRGO

Today's planetary aspects are favorable, although they influence the emotions more than they will create the urge to work along material lines. It is an exceptionally favorable opportunity for all literary or artistic work, as there will be sensed a great felicity of expression produced by clearness of vision. It is, above all, a most auspicious occasion for lovers and for those—and these, above all, should be lovers—who today enter the wedded state. Alike for those who by solemn vows, consumate who b syolemn vows, consumate an engagement by marriage, the signs denote happiness and an ever increasing love, unmarred by any of those unfortunate differences that too often lead to estrangement and mutual dislike.

Children born today will not, according to the signs, develop any indications of phenomenal pulchritude. They will, however, possess healthy bodies and sound constitutions which, if at any time, the occasion should demand it, will equip them to combat successfully illness or disease. Temperamentally, they will be winsome and attractive. Their natures will be sympathetic and kindly. Those in trouble will always seek them out, and never go away empty handed. They will be endowed with a fund of common sense, and, although they may never become intellectually brilliant, their advice will be sound, and their outlook on life clear and sane.

If today is your birthday, you are, in all things, conscientious and painstaking, no matter whether the task committed to your care be congenial or irksome. Your natural difference, which is the result of excessive introspction, militates somewhat against the attainment of your desire to achieve, and this can also be said of your occasional impetuosity and headstrong propensities. Your disposition is, on the whole, tender, kindhearted, and loving. When you have, in your impulsiveness, said or done anything to hurt, you are quick to make amends, and generally succeed in removing all traces of the hurt. You are a good manager, and know how to make the best of what you have. This does not, however, take away from you the desire to have more, nor dull your ambition to go after it.

You form friendships very readily, and generally rely more on first impressions than on after acquaintance. Your home life is happy and harmonious.

She is a blonde with features
Of purely Grecian mould,
Blue eyes and cheeks of roses,
And locks of rippling gold.
She never turns with envy

All day without complaining
She stands upon her feet,
In fair or stormy weather
Her smile is always sweet.
And yet I do not make her
My own forevermore,
Because she is a dummy

Rampant Westerners Tag It On Fletchermen, 10 to 1

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17.(AP)—The Cardinals pennant bound, recovered their lead in the National league today by smothering the Phillies, 10 to 1, while New York helped them along by defeating Cincinnati. It was the Cardinal's fourth straight victory in the present series here. They salted the game away in the opening inning by a four-run rally which knocked Willoughby out of the box and sent Knight to his rescue. The latter fared little better before the Missourians who touched him for a dozen hits in eight innings. The Cardinals ran wild on the bases and paid little attention to the Philadelphia opposition, as Sherdel held them safely all the way, by keeping their eight hits scattered. The final St. Louis score was made on a freakish home run which resulted when Leach, chasing Thevenow's fly crashed into a bleacher wall and collapsed, allowing Thevenow to circle the bases.

French Sweep U. S. Net Meet

Richards Loses Five-Set Semi-Final Battle To Gene Borotra

FORREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 17. (AP)—The rout of America's tennis forces by France's sharp shooting stars was completed today when Vincent Richards, the youngest and last of the defenders, went down to a heart-breaking five-set defeat at the hands of Jean Borotra in the semi-finals of the national men's singles championship.

Although seemingly on the verge of exhaustion throughout the last two sets, the colorful "bounding Basque" had the grit to pull out an uphill victory while the blond New York youth tossed away one golden opportunity after another with as erratic an exhibition as he ever has displayed. The scores were 3-6, 6-4, 4-6, 8-6, 6-2. Borotra's courageous triumph assured an all-French final for the lawn tennis championship of the United States a spectacle unprecedented in nearly 50 years of the tournament's history and startling in its setback of the prestige of a nation that until the week had dominated nearly all it surveyed on the courts over a seven year stretch.

La Coste Other Finalist

Borotra will meet Rene La Coste tomorrow at 3 p. m., to decide which will take the American title over seas for the second time in its history and for the first time since 1903.

Only twice before has even one foreigner reached the American finals, 24 years ago—in 1902—Reginald F. Doherty, British ace, won the all-comers, only to be defeated by William A. Larned in the challenge round then in vogue to decide championships. The following season however, Hugh L. Doherty, second of the two famous English brother, lifted the title.

Cochet Fails

LaCoste who won the American indoor championship in New York last February by defeating Borotra in the finals also had an uphill battle on his hands today before he joined his rival compatriot in the title bracket. The cool and calculating stylist took the measure of his countryman, Henri Cochet, whose spectacular attack accomplished the downfall of the six-time American champion "Big Bill" Tilden yesterday.

Cochet seemed headed for another startling triumph today when he romped through the first two sets in impressive fashion, but he tired, lost control and succumbed finally to the remorseless steadiness of LaCoste. The scores were 2-6, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Aggie Line Mentor Centers on Guards

COLLEGE STATION, Sept. 17. (AP)—Line Coach Claude Rothgeb of the Texas A. and M. football sduad is concentrating on his guard prospects, trying to develop two or three players to succeed Dansby, Speed and Ochterback of last year's team, none of whom return this fall.

The Aggies do not have a veteran guard on the squad, but five youngsters have been showing up exceptionally well. J. A. Rektorick of Violet, H. P. Wylie of Dallas, W. R. Bodine of Temple, W. L. Crawford of Palestine, and E. E. Figard of Galveston have excellent chances of making the grade, according to Coach Rothgeb.

At the other positions, the Aggies are better fortified with older men. Captain "Ox" Dietrich of Dallas, and Z. W. Bartlett of Marlin probably will be the two regular tackles, while J. V. Sikes of Leonard and P. M. Price of Honeygrove are two letter candidates for wing positions.

BEARS BUY FIRST SACKER

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 17.(AP) Purchase of Daniel Harris, promising young first baseman of the Dover, Dela., club of the Eastern Shore league, was announced Friday by the San Antonio Bears. The purchase was outright and Harris will report here for spring training.

NO REASON TO DOUTHIT

Cardinal Fans Call Youngster Great Outfielder

No one would mistake young Taylor Douthit, Cardinal centerfielder, for Tris Speaker or Ty Cobb after a close scrutiny of the lad. Especially at the plate. He hits from the third base side and everybody knows Cobb and Speaker constantly violate the rules of etiquet and turn their backs on the first baseman while batting.

Douthit may lack a bit of the finesse of these masters in centerfield too. But try to buy him from the St. Louis Cardinals.

He is quietly and unobtrusively struggling along, doing a bit more than his share to carry the St. Louis Cardinals along at the top of the National League heap and keep the hope of a flag flopping up and down in the breasts of Missourians.

This is Douthit's first season as a regular with the club, which makes his brilliant work all the more remarkable. The St. Louis club has owned him for two or three years but after acquiring him from the Fort Smith club of the Western Association they farmed him out first to St. Joseph in the same outfit and then to Milwaukee. It wasn't until he had won his spurs with the American Association outfit last season that the Cards decided he was ripe.

With the Milwaukee team Douthit hit .372 in 92 games and stole 26 bases. With the Cardinals he has maintained a fair batting average—above .300, and is playing good ball in center. He has a world of speed. The knowledge of batters that comes with experience will make him a more valuable outfielder in the coming campaigns. His main fault at bat is an apparent awkwardness. This doesn't prevent him, however, from connecting with the ball. And after all that is the main purpose in making faces at the pitcher.

There may be sweeter centerfielders among the younger generation of major leaguers but ever durned baseball bug in St. Louis and suburbs will douthit if you try to say so.

Archer City defeated Iowa Park Friday at Archer City, 14 to 0, in the first football battle of the season for both elevens.

Iowa Park received the initial kick-off and launched an offensive that proved very difficult to halt. After making two first downs, the Hawks failed on the third attempt and the ball went to Archer City on the latter's 30-yard line.

On straight line plunges, Black and Hodges carried the oval to the Hawk's 10-yard line. From there Morrison carried it over for a touchdown and then kicked goal.

From this point, the teams seesawed from one end of the field to the other until the close of the half with Iowa Park having the advantage in yardage made.

Iowa Park received again at the start of the second half and started another march up field. They charged to Archer City's 15-yard line where Filmore fumbled on a line buck and the Wildcats recovered.

On two end runs and a crisscross, Archer City advanced to the Hawks' 15-yard line from where Larkin carried the ball over and kicked goal.

During the remainder of the game both teams resorted to forward passes in a final effort to score a touchdown. Iowa Park completed two passes for a gain of 40 yards while Archer City made two, netting 20 yards.

Beasley, Iowa Park right halfback, was easily the offensive star of the encounter, gaining almost at will throught the Archer City line. He was stopped without a gain only twice during the entire game. His runs ranged from 10 to 25 yards.

The game was a tough one for Iowa Park to lose because the Hawks outplayed their opponents in many respects, but three fumbles cost their downfall.

For Archer City, Hodges and Black were the offensive leaders with Morrison and Larkin coming through for occasional long gains.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

Ty Cobb is now a millionaire—the first baseball player to enter that class. He is now on his second million.

Which is Ty Cobb's answer to the men who have maligned him on the ball field for what they termed his "high hatting," his fight and his zeal.

Cobb used that same desire to win in business, with the money that his prowess on the ball field earned him. He had the qualities that make for success.

Any real grounds then for criticising him?

* * * *

Speaking of Cobb, one of his Tigers is leading the American league in batting these days and he gives an interesting interview on the subject of his success. The man is Bob Fothergill.

"What are your theories regarding batting?" Fothergill was asked recently.

"I haven't any theories. I just walk up to the plate and smack the ball," was Bob's reply.

After all that is the main idea.

One could expect that, in this day of science, high powered thinking, and high powered selling of one's thoughts that Robert the Rocker would deliver a lengthy and deep sermon on the ins and outs of being a great batter.

As it is Mr. Fothergill's views prove that the primitive desire and ability to strike hard and true with a given weapon in the hands is still something to be utilized.

And while we're on the subject of ball players.

There's a lot of discussion going the rounds of American league cities these days anent the speed and agility with which the New York Yankees acquired the services of "Dutch" Reuther, lefthanded veteran lately with the Washington Senators.

Here was a pitcher who, although discarded by the National league, had proved a winner with the American league champs. He had turned in some good games this year. The Yankees, out in front, were aware that their pitching staff, while carrying on because of the great batting strength of the team, is an uncertain proposition at times and that the crafty Reuther would be valuable in a short series, such as the inter-league classic.

Did Connie Mack and Tris Speaker, leaders of the only teams in the league which still have an outside chance of overtaking the Yankees, realize this? Did they muff a chance to claim Ruether, not only to strengthen their own clubs, which are still mathematically in the race at least, but to prevent the league leading Yanks from cinching their hold on first place?

Either this oversight must be accepted as the reason or their failure be assigned to Ruether's large contract or the judgment of both Connie and Speaker that Dutch collapsed suddenly a few days before he was put on the market.

If either club hesitated to take Ruether because his acquisition would mean paying him a big salary the move was penny wise and pound foolish. The addition of Ruether would have put new life in either team and drawn more folk to the ball parks.

If they opined that Ruether was done they should have realized the possibility of his coming to life again—long enough to help the Yanks. Most any move would have been preferable to handing the league leaders possible strength in the closing weeks of the campaign.

All the public knows is that the Yankees got a veteran southpaw who may well be expected to give the Yankees some real assistance in leaving the Athletics, Indians and other clubs farther in the rear before the season ends.

It surely is a hard one to figure out.

Longhorns Stage Hard Scrimmage

AUSTIN, Sept. 17.(AP)—Doc Stewart, Texas university pigskin mentor, sent his charges through 45 minutes of hard scrimmage Friday. The candidates showed to fair advantage, despite the heat.

"Potty" McCullough of Waco, letter man of last year, was used at center on one team, and "Red" Wray, promising sophomore from Donna, shifted from center to guard.

Ed Beular of Beaumont, captain of the 1925 freshman eleven, showed promise as quarterback on the so-called first team, as did Rufus King of Austin, regular 1925 fullback.

Dick Fender of Fort Worth, former T. C. U. athlete, was effective in smashing the tentative first string forward wall.

GIANTS SHADE REDS, 5 TO 4

Frisch Socks Home Run In Tenth For Victory Margin

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.(AP)—Frank Frisch, Giant captain knocked the Cincinnati Reds out of first place in the national league today by whacking a homer into the right field stands in the tenth which gave New York a 5 to 4 win. Adolfo Luque, the Cuban, commenced with sterling mound work for Cincinnati, and even contributed to the scoring by poling out a single in the fifth which brought Hargrave in to tie the game, one all. But he weakened in the eighth when the Giants found him for four hits and three runs, tying the game again. The Reds tallied their second in the sixth when Ford sacrificed with the bases full, scoring Dressen and again scored in the eighth when Dressen doubled Critz sacrificed and Hargrave singled. McGraw used his auxiliaries in the eighth to tie the count. After Jackson was safe on a hot grounder to Dressen, Bentley batted for Fitzsimmons and singled. Cohen ran for Bentley and Farrell for Jackson. Farrell scored on Mueller's single. Lindstrom walked and Cohen and Lindstrom came in when Frisch lined one beyond Critz's reach. The Reds, however, tied the score again in the ninth after two had been retired but they were mulated by Frisch who slammed his homer into the stands with two out and none on base. Luque was succeeded in the eighth by Donohue who was followed in the box by Rixey. McGraw used Scott and Ring to help Fitzsimmons.

VANCE DOWNS BUCS

BROOKLYN, Sept. 17.(AP)—Another defeat at the hands of the Robins, 3 to 1, fastened the worlds champions even more securely in third place today. Dazzy Vance was hit only at intervals by the Buccaneers, they reached him eight times for safeties but Cuyler's homer in the fourth was the only one accounting for a score. Carmen Hill pitched steadily for Pittsburgh, conceding but four hits. He lost his game, however, when he walked two men with the bases full in the fifth forcing over two runs. A hit by Vance in the same frame gave the Robins their third run.

DETROIT, Sept. 17.(AP)—Washington received better pitching than Detroit and won its fourth straight victory over Detroit today, 5 to 4, in ten innings. Four Detroit errors figured in the scoring. Crowder was wild, passing seven men, but Marberry let the Tigers down with one hit turning back three pinch hitters in a row in the tenth inning.

Sensational Victory Streak Brings Jones To Finals In Nat'l Amatuer Tournament

SHORT HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 17. (AP)—The most sensational winning streak of golfing history today brought Bobby Jones of Atlanta to the portals of another great tournament triumph with a brilliant victory over Francis Ouimet of Boston in the semi-finals of the national amateur championships five and four.

It was the second attempt of the veteran New England star to withstand the sweeping power of a Georgia whirlwind which now has passed over 13 consecutive victims in the last three years of the amateur title struggle. But, as in their duel of two years ago, at Merion, Ouimet went tumbling down after a gallant but hopeless stand which tonight found only George Von Elm of Los Angeles in the path of Bobby's drive toward his third consecutive championship.

Lopsided Win.

Ouimet was decisively beaten yet he was not disgraced. The champion of 1914 despite a costly tendency to hook his shots from the tees played one of the best matches of a long and colorful career. But Jones, covering the thirty-two holes of the contest in one under even fours, pushed over the fairways at such a terrific pace that Ouimet was confronted with an almost impossible task.

As sensational as Bobby was today, he was compelled to share the glory of remarkable stroking with the flaxen haired Von Elm, who brought off an overwhelming triumph over George Dawson of Chicago in the other semi-final, 11 to 10.

Von Elm drew from his bag a set of clubs which seldom failed him today and he romped through the match with a medal score only a shade less remarkable than that of the champion. Over the 18 hole route of the morning round in 76, to lead Dawson by six up, Von Elm dashed away at such a record breaking clip in the afternoon that the former University of Illinois player was soon left far behind.

Ouimet Same Putter.

Ouimet was the same wizard with his putter today that he has been in his in his early round matches against Eustace Story of England and Frederick J. Wright, the young Massachusetts state champion. But his putter came oto late to rescue many holes on which his drive failed him. He could not match the tremendous power and marvellous direction of Jones from the tees and it was in the wide margin of their driving that the story of victory and defeat was told.

Baltusrol in addition to carrying the largest acreage of sand in the links realm of the east was lengthened to 6,710 yards for the 1926 championship, yet only once did the champion need to go for his brassie. Booming high and deep over the hilly fairways, his drives reached out so far that mid-iron and niblick did for the Atlantan what wood could not bring to Ouimet—a sure and saving second to almost every green.

In accuracy as well as distance, Ouitmet failed from the tees. He could not seem to straighten out the ball from the very start of the contest.

Shaute Holds Biffing Hugs To Meager Five Hits

CLEVELAND, Sept. 16.(AP)—Cleveland made it three straight from New York today winning 5 to 1 and cutting the Yankee's lead to three and one-half games. New York remained in its batting slump and gathered but five hits off Shaute, making two of the five in seventh. Like Levsen and Buckeye, who held New York to two hits each in yesterday's double header Shaute was wild, passing six batters. In fact the Yanks scored their only run as the result of Shaute's widness. Shaute walked three men in a row in the seventh, the first of the three scornig on an infield out. Cleveland took kindly to Hoyt's offering from the start and followed up his passes with hits that produced the five runs. The Indians could do nothing with Braxton or Thomas who went the last four innings.

McCallum Expects Real Test For Pack In Game With Walters Club Today

Oklahomans Invade Wichita Falls Gridiron At 3:30—Coyotes Fairly Heavy But Little Slow.

Grid fans of Wichita Falls will get their first taste of the pigskin sport this afternoon when the Coyotes of Wichita Falls high school battle the strong team from Walters, Okla., champions of their district last year and reported to have a powerful combination again this year. The game will be played on the Junior college field at 3:30.

With only four letter men back from last year ready to go, McCallum's task of picking a winning eleven from the 40-odd candidates out is a difficult one. Yesterday Bud announced that the probable line-up would be as follows: Stephens, left end; Holstein, left tackle; R. Brown, left guard; Pinney, center; Hunky Ray, right guard; Edmonson, right tackle; Captain Dobson, right end; Rayzor, quarterback; Mills, right half; McKinney, left half; Allred, fullback. McClain has been designated to officiate.

Friday afternoon's practice of the Red and Black was featured by a lengthy session of blackboard strategy in preparation for the opening tilt today. Conditioning exercises furnished the rest of the entertainment for the athletes.

Prospects in the Coyote camp look fine, according to coach and manager, but there is much greenness that needs to be ironed out of the rookies before a rounded squad can be presented for real interscholastic league competition. More than 40 candidates have signed up and several more are reported to plan coming out.

Just Who's Who.

A list of candidates with approximate stack-up shows much material: Wilkes Dobson, captain, lettered '24 and '25 with the Coyotes; Neal Pritchard, out last year; Melvin McKinney, sub last year; Walter Pinney, letter Coyotes '25; Jimmie Rayzor, letter Denton last year; Bob Turner, letter Carmen, Okla.; Dale Dublin, new; Olin Dickey, out last year; G. Stephens, baseball man, new to football; Frank Williams, new; Perk Ray, basketball and track star, new to football; Hunkie Ray, Coyote reserve '24, letter '25; Maurice Allred, out last year; Vernon Flowers, junior high; Marconi Hobbs, letter '24, ineligible last year; Eggleston Ramey, new; Lofton Edmonson, played two years, no letter; Fred Adams, new; Bennett, new; M. A. Smith, new; Jack Leggett, out two years; Clarence Beavers, new; Kenneth Mills, basketmall star new to football; Holstein, played two years, no letter; R. J. Brown, new; Jewel Risk, lettered junior high and Coyoes '25; Ed Napier, new; P. Newman, new; L. Dameron, new; Vernon Bullard, out last year; Earnest McGehee, played several years, no letter; Roy Neal, lettered two years at junior high, ineligible last year; John Harell, new; W. Johnson, new; Filmore Meredith, new; Elmer Bashara, new; Otho Tollett, played junior high; Bill Ballard, lettered three years in Arkansas; Coyal Francis, letter '25; Ernest Tarkenton, out last year; Pete Powell, noted Ed Powell's third younger brother, played with junior high; Robert Randolph, new; Lynch, Sulphur Springs, letter man; Clyde Fly, lettered junior high. This list as furnished by Gus Hoenscheidt, football manager, will probably be increased by new arrivals Monday, according to Captain Dobson.

Squad Little Slow.

Among the new men Perk Ray, Mills, Allred, McKinney and Brown are showing up especially well. Several more are expected to make the grade from the new material as yet unknown. The heavy assignment Saturday will probably be used to try out the mettle of a large number of men and should go far toward bringing out some of the stuff yet undiscovered.

Coach McCallum avers that, although there is plenty of weight, the team stacks up in practice and scrimmage thus far as exceptionally slow. Much practice in footwork will be the order the coming week.

Perk Ray, who made a trip up to the enemy country of Walters early in the week, says Walters seems to have another good team and is ready to give a large account of itself in Saturday's imbroglio.

FAIR BOOSTERS

the big crops of history. It is estimated from present outlook that 75,000 bales of cotton wil be gathered. Altus held its fair last week. It was a great success, a new attendance record being hung up.

Only a brief stop was made at Tipton. The delegation reached Frederick at the noon hour. Following lunch the down town section was serenaded. Frederick, too, gave the visitors a hearty handclasp and invited them to come back. At 2:30 the fair grounds was reached and here the Wichita Falls men saw some of the best farm exhibits they viewed on the entire journey. Each community of the county was represented with an exhibit. The Women's Clubs were likewise represented with some of the best exhibits that have been collected for a Tillman County fair.

Auto Races

Automobile races featured the entertainment program. Before a grand stand packed with 2,000 of the home people some fast races were run. The Wichita Falls men again entertained "musically." Mayor Shepherd sang several solos and every time he was given a most appreciative encore. Before the program was concluded, the visiting party gave the crowd in the grand stand somewhat of a thrill in the form of an automobile race. Four small cars used in a push ball contest were given the party. Four men were placed on each of these cars which ordinarily carry one passenger and the race was run. Joe Huckins, driving a bike, piloted his party to the wire in the quickest time. Several mishaps were narrowly averted. Numerous articles from the pockets of the men were lost as the cars speeded around the track at lightning speed. The car driven by Mayor Shepherd brought up the rear. After this Mr. Shepherd invited Tillman county to visit the fair.

Every courtesy one could imagine was given in Frederick. President J. S. McClelland and Secretary J. G. Brown of the Tillman County Fair Association had reserved grandstand seats for the visitors. Cold drinks were furnished at the pleasure of the party. In fact everything was free to the Wichita Falls men. Using the language of Mayor Shepherd it was "the greatest reception a party of Wichitans has every received."

Frederick, like other places visited showed many signs of progress. Several miles of streets have recently been paved. New buildings were under way and progress and prosperity was in evidence everywhere. More than 1,000,000 bushels of wheat were marketed this year and now the county expects to gather 90,000 bales of cotton, which next to 1924, will be a banner year in the country's history. This was Tillman county's thirteenth fair. It ended Friday night.

Places visited during the three days were: Iowa Park, Electra, Vernon, Chillicothe, Quanah, Childress, Wellington, Mangum, Altus, Tipton, Frederick and Davidson.

Shepherd Satisfied

"I feel this was the most successful trip of this kind we have ever made," Mayor Shepherd said last night. "I believe the towns visited gave us the best reception I have ever known. If all the people of Wichita Falls could only know just how those people made us feel it would make them prouder that Wichita Falls is their home and that Wichita Falls is located in the heart of such a wonderful country and such a wonderful people. I hope and believe that Wichita Falls will, profit as the result of the trip."

Kearns Case Up To Court Today

Rickard's Attorneys Gird Loins For Legal Battle

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17.(AP) Attorneys for Tex Rickard, promoter of the Dempsey-Tunney heavyweight fight in the Sesquicentennial stadium next Thursday night prepared today to meet the various legal moves put in motion to interefere with the big sporting event. All of Rickard's legal matters in connection with suits already brought or contemplated here have been placed in the hands of Francis Shunk Brown, former state attorney general.

Tomorrow in common pleas court, the action brought by a "tax payer and ticket holder" to prevent Rickard from advancing any money to Dempsey and Tunney will be heard. It is a violation of the boxing law of the state to pay fighters before a contest.

State Holds Off.

Counsel for the "tax payer and ticket holder" said that Jack Kearns, Dempsey's former manager was one of the interested parties in the action. Kearns is pushing a suit in New York to recover $333,000 from the heavyweight champion.

William A. Schnader, deputy attorney general said the state would not intervene although he would be in court "as an interested spectator."

Rickard said he had no intention of paying either Dempsey or Tunney any of the fight money before the bout.

B. C. Clements, president of the Chicago Coliseum club who claims to have a contract with Dempsey to meet Wills first, arrived here today, conferred with lawyers and friends. He gave out no information.

On advice of counsel he said, he must remain silent until the suit is brought. Mr. Clements showed the purported contract with Dempsey and said that no court could refuse to recognize the injunction granted in Indianapolis.

Oh Yes, Oh Yes.

"I don't like to interfere with the fight here next Thursday but I do demand that justice be accorded me and the Coliseum club" said the Chicago promoter.

Clements did not call on any of the members of the boxing commission to lay his case before it according to the secretary of the commission. It was intimated that the boxing commission had no interest in the Indiana case and would not interfere with the fight so long as all Pennsylvania laws were lived up to.

Sports Through Bob Edgren's Eyes

GENE ENLISTS SCIENCE

Gene Tunney, who reads books, magazines and newspapers, points to the fact that scientists are trying to find a way to release the stored energies of the atom.

"I weigh 186 pounds and I'm not exactly an atom among fighters," says Gene, "but I expect to release some stored energy next week that will make up for any slight difference in weight between Dempsey and myself."

They used to call Jimmy Wilde "The Mighty Atom." That was because Wilde, flyweight champion of the world could deliver a terrific punch. Tunney may be a mighty atom compared with Jess Willard, Jack Johnson, Jim Jeffries and John L. Sullivan, who all scaled above two hundred pounds. Willard, the biggest of all champions, weighed 243 when he won the championship and 265 when he lost it to Dempsey. Gene may even be a mightier atom compared with Dempsey, who will probably be a little over 190 pounds when he goes into the ring with Tunney, who will scale about 180.

A locomotive weighing many tons can pull a string of freight cars up a mountain. An atom weighing practically nothing could throw a locomotive off the track, if its power could be released and controlled. Ten pounds of weight may mean nothing to Tunney.

Unknown Have It Tough Off Jersey

Gertrude Ederle went to Atlantic City for a swim. One would think that Trudy had done enough swimming for a year or so.

Probably Miss Ederle could swim right out to sea at Atlantic City without getting into trouble. But the same day that she went swimming a young man swam a hundred yards off shore and was paddling along peacefully when an alarmed lifeguard called for assistance, launched a boat and went out to rescue him. The boat approached the swimmer and a life buoy was thrown to him. Not wishing to be rescued the swimmer headed out to sea and left the buoy behind. The boat was rowed after him, and the swimmer was grabbed, in spite of his protests, and dragged in over the gunwhale. Still protesting that he wanted to swim and not be rescued, he tried to jump out, and somebody who insisted on a rescue walloped him on the mouth and knocked out a tooth. He was taken ashore and put under arrest for resisting a rescue. On that same day in another New Jersey bathing resort a swimmer paddled through the surf and on coming ashore was thrown into the coop for "breaking the law of common sense" by risking his life in the water instead of wading in up to his ankles and staying on the beach, while the wild waves were slashing around as wild waves will.

Moral—If you want to swim off shore along the New Jersey coast swim the English channel first and get a reputation.

When Tex Rickard announced sixteen days before the date of the Tunney-Dempsey bout, that the advance sale for Sesqui-Centennial event had passed the one million dollar mark, some gentlemen who were instrumental in driving the bout out of New York must have gnashed their teeth.

Rickard, a Square Promoter.

It's useless to deny that Rickard's reputation as a promoter helped draw that first million dollars. Rickard has run many championship bouts, and he's never had a "bloomer."

Rickard has made a lot of money with some of his boxing affairs. Never as much as he might have made if allowed to conduct all phases of his business himself—but quite a bit at that. He has lost money with some bouts, but there's one thing about Rickard, and the public knows it. He never starts anything without finishing it. He has a quiet way of overcoming all obstacles. They've had Tex "down and out" theoretically, many times, but he bobs right up somewhere else and goes placidly on with his arrangements. Rickardis square. When he makes a promise he keeps it. Fighters like to fight for Rickard because they KNOW they'll get their money—get whatever Rickard has promised, whether Rickard makes or loses money himself. Many other promoters slip from under when things go wrong, but Rickard doesn't. The public knows that when it buys tickets from Rickard it won't be disappointed by a cancellation at the last moment.

Hence the million dollar gates. Rickard has had three of them now, with Dempsey and Carpentier at Jersey City, Dempsey and Firpo at the Polo Ground in New York, and now with Dempsey and Tunney in Philadelphia. Some record! They'll be shooting at that a long time before any other promoter beats it.

The case of Jack Dempsey—returning to the ring after a three-year lay-off, has been compared to that of John L. Sullivan, Jess Willard, and other champions when they came back as "mere shells" only to be knocked out.

But Dempsey's case is slightly different. He doesn't know the taste of whiskey, and never smoked a cigar or a cigarette in his life. While he hasn't been fighting he hasn't been doing a lot of things that old time champions did between fights. How good Dempsey is inside won't be known absolutely until he faces Tunney, and if there's a quick knockout, either way, it won't be known then. As Dempsey says: "Anything can happen in a fight between two men who can hit." Both Dempsey and Tunney can hit.

How Far Back Do You Wash Your Face?

Remember when you were a child and they told you to wash your face and hands? Then you would come back with your face glistening—and your neck and back of your ears still smutty and grimy?

INDIANS SCRAP SILL SOLDIERS

Ludgate's Warriors Battle in Season Opener September 25

Fort Sill's soldier boy eleven has practically been secured to furnish the opposition for the first game of Ludgate's Junior college Maroon and Gold squad, according to an announcement Friday night by Coach Ludgate. The opening encounter has been set for Saturday, September 25, on the Junior college gridiron.

The soldier boys every year boast a first-class crew and are expected to give the college boys a real test. The local collegians would be entitled to several feathers in their hoods if they should come off a victor, or even with a close score. There will now be plenty of incentive for hard work next week for the whole camp of two dozen huskies.

Games are then to follow with Cordell Christian college, strong in Oklahoma junior college circles last year; Cameron Aggies, North Texas Aggies, John Tarlton and Decatur Baptist college. Coach Ludgate is angling for still another contest or two, which should be settled soon.

FEARING BURIAL ALIVE, SHE ORDERS BODY HELD

MADRID.—Fearing burial alive, Senora Isabelle Cardoza, widow of a rich manufacturer, took unique precautions to prevent this. After her death her executors opened a letter she had left and found the following directions: "My heirs shall, after my supposed death, keep my body in a warm room for six months, or until two doctors, after careful examination, decide and certify there are unmistakable signs of death. Then my heart is to be pierced and my body cremated."

Jim Delaney Gives Tunney Rapid Fire Mitten Drill

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 17. (AP)—Jack Dempsey buckles into the final three days of training tomorrow refreshed and relaxed as a result of a lay off today.

The world's heavyweight champion indulged in some mild exercise this morning at his bungalow to keep his highly tuned muscles in a harmonious pitch.

STROUDSBURG, Pa., Sept. 17. (AP)—Gene Tunney was back on his game today in his training for his championship bout with Jack Dempsey. The challenger was in rare form this afternoon after what was considered a slump in his condition yesterday. He boxed two fast rounds with Jimmy Delaney, the protege of Mike Gibbons, who looked much like his tutor as he dashed into mix it with the contender.

The St. Paul light heavyweight started the workout by throwing a barrage of lefts at Tunney's head and body. Tunney got in a terrific right to Delaney's face and fought off half a dozen fierce assaults in the first round.

"He's dynamite today," said Delaney between rounds as Billy Gibson, Tunney's manager wiped blood from his face caused by a slight nose cut. In the second round Tunney drove another hard right to Delaney's head, staggering him. Delaney however, came back strong and fired a hard right to the body at the bell.

Jimmy gave such a good account of himself in his initial workout yesterday that Tunney apparently decided he would speed up with the St. Paul boy so there was no lack of thrills today. The affair was strictly business.

Lipton Tea, Inc., Starts Big Advertising Campaign

PRODUCTS OF FAMED FIRM TO BE PUSHED

Quality Materials of a Famed Concern Will Be Given Space

Every retail grocer in this city will soon feel the tremendous effect of the new newspaper advertising campaign that has just been started by Thomas J. Lipton, Inc., Tea merchants. The campaign is the largest that has ever been launched by Lipton. It calls for three insertions a week.

Every possible form of dealer help has been included in the campaign—window streamers, display cards, store and counter cards—all printed in full color. Nothing has been neglected that will help the retail grocer sell more Lipton Tea than he ever sold before.

This year Lipton sales are far beyond those for a similar period in any of the forty years that Lipton Teas have been on sale in this country. Those enormous sales have been traced to the aggressive advertising campaign that Lipton conducted last year added to the fine quality and delicious aroma of Lipton's Teas.

Sustained Advertising

The new advertising campaign will be more sustained, will have wider coverage and more frequent insertions than any previous campaign that Lipton has used. The demand from the public will increase in proportion and the live retailer will profit.

Thomas J. Lipton has a fine story to tell the public. He grows, blends, packs, ships and distributes his own teas. From the day the tea bush is planted to the moment that you put its choicest leaves into your teapot and pour on boiling water, Lipton care and Lipton supervision have taken care of every process. That is why Lipton Teas retain that dilicious fragrance that comes from the sunny hillslopes of Ceylon, where Lipton has his estates and where the world's finest teas are grown. That is also why the greatest tea-drinking countries of the world—Ireland, Scotland, England and Wales—choose Lipton's.

It is forceful advertising of the type that will be used in this new campaign and the unrivalled skill of Lipton experts that have given Lipton's "the largest sale in the world." Wise retailers will take full advantage of every form of cooperation that Lipton's is giving them in this campaign and will cash in strong on the demand that is sure to follow. There are good profits and a quick turnover to be made by them selling Lipton's Teas.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Individual Coffee Cakes—Two cups flour, three-quarter teaspoons salt, four tablespoons sugar, three teaspoons baking powder, four tablespoons shortening, one egg, one-third cup milk. Sift dry ingredients. Mix in shotening, add beaten egg to milk. Add to dry ingredients. Divide dough in six pieces. With hands roll out each piece on board very long and thin. Spread with butter. Cut each roll in two. Beginning in center twist two pieces together. Bring ends around to form crescent. Sprinkle with chopped nuts. Put in greased pan. Bake fifteen to twenty minutes in hot oven. While hot, brush over with thin icing made with one-half cup sugar moistened with two tablespoons hot water.

Celeried Peas—Mix two cups cooked green peas with one more cups of diced, cooked celery. Add one and one-half cups medium white sauce, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper. Turn mixture into buttered bake dish. Scatter buttered breadcrumbs over top. Bake, uncovered, in hot oven till heated through and nicely browned. One or two quartered, hard cooked eggs may be added. Add a gay colored garnishing before serving, strips canned pimento, green pepper rings, cross sections of stuffed olives, grated raw carrot or sprinklings of paprika.

TOILET SOAP

Keep a glass jar in your bathroom for your small pieces of soap. When three-quarters full add a teaspoon of glycerin and the juice of one lemon. Boil until it thickens. This makes an excellent soap for face and hands and also whitens the skin.

Combination Dish—Take five three chopped, hard cooked eggs (or as many as needed), combine with white sauce. When well mixed and heated add chopped, red pimento, three-quarter cup. Pour into serving dish. Garnish with riced yolk of herd boiled egg and sprinkling of chopped parsley.

Fruit Snow—One tablespoon gelatin, one-quarter cup cold water, one cup boiling water, one cup sugar, three egg whites, one-half cup fruit juice, one tablespoon lemon juice. Soak gelatin five minutes in cold water. Add boiling water, sugar and lemon juice. Strain, chill till consistency of thick cream. Fold gelatin mixture a little at a time into stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour in large mold first dipped in cold water. When firm unmold and serve with custard sauce made of the egg yolks.

THE PERFIDY OF THE SCOT

Among golfers this one is at present having a more or less deserved circulation.

A Yanke enthusiast on his return home from the grand tour was telling his friend of his experience on foreign links.

"Say," he said, "the Scotch are a mighty tricky race. You know what I mean—liars and that sort of thing.'

"Surely not all of them," protested his audience.

"Well, I'm only going by a sample specimen that I ran into. He many not have been typical but I'll say this for him: he was a sharp practitioner. I met him one morning at a club in the Lowlands. I was looking for a partner and he seemed to be alone, too, so I said to him:

"'What do you generally go around in?'

"'Oh,' he said, 'about 105 or 106 when I'm on my game.'

"'That's me too,' I said, 'if I break 110 on any course I'm doing pretty well. I guess we're pretty well mated. Suppose we play together for a shilling a hole?"

"Well, he took me up," continued the American, "and he turned out to be a terrible liar. Why, that Scotch son-of-a-gun made an 82 and I had to play my head off to take three shillings

WHO'LL BE ON PROBE BOARD

Capital Wonders How Many Moody and Ferguson Men Will Place

AUSTIN, Sept. 17.(AP)—Despite absence from the city of most members of the 39th legislature, which Monday will reconvene here in call session, political prognosticators were busy Friday.

The dopesters focalized their interest on the membership of the house investigating committee, which Speaker Lee Satterwhite will announce not earlier than Wednesday. Just how many supporters of Dan Moody to place on the committee apparently is a major problem before the speaker.

In view of Thursday's passage of the King-Purl resolution, authorizing investigation of state departments, by a margin of 104 to 22, some of the strongest Moody men in the house feel the committee should be unmistakably dominated by supporters of the democratic gubernatorial nominee, if not composed entirely of Moodyites.

Loftin to Aid.

Representative Rubin Loftin of Henrietta, Ferguson floor leader, gave notice the Ferguson house minority expects to take a part in the inquiry, when he expressed to the Associated Press the hope that Satterwhite would appoint four Ferguson supporters on the committee.

Loftin declared a strong representation of Ferguson would free the committee from the taint of political partisanship, and give its report of the finding of any corruption more weight than that of a committee absolutely dominated by Moody men. He said Satterwhite had not asked for his opinion, but that he would be glad to suggest to him eight Ferguson members who would make competent, conscientious and impartial investigators. He said Cecil Storey of Vernon and F. A. Dale of Bonham were among the eight.

Concensus of observers are that Satterwhite will name six or seven recognized Moody leaders, and three or two members from the Ferguson side. The vote for the resolution was in the ratio of about seven to two in favor of Moody supporters, and the observers point out it is reasonable to assume the speaker will approximate this ratio in his selection.

Seven Against Three.

Three representatives conceded committee posts, if they are able to serve, are Claude D. Teer of Granger, a close personal friend of Moody, and chairman of the committee on state affairs that favorably reported the King-Purl investigation resolution; Alfred Petsch of Fredericksburg, floor leader of the resolution proponents; and R. L. Bobbitt of Laredo, slated for speakership of the 40th legislature, who closed the argument for the proponents.

Naming of the chairman by the speaker is not specified in the resolution, though it is agreed there would be little objection to his doing so. Whether appointed by the speaker or elected by other committee members, Teer is expected to be chairman.

The investigation will center about the highway commission, text book commission, and pardon board. Appropriation of $25,000 from the contingent expense fund was voted for the inquiry.

HAS NEW X-RAY

One of the latest and most modern and equipped offices in the city is that of Dr. L. D. Parnell on the fourth floor of the Staley building which has recenly been enlarged and refurnished. Dr. Parnell has installed an X-ray machine which carries a 750 watt hookup.

The machine was installed by J. A. Smith of the Dallas exchange, F. C. Vogt, factory representative from Chicago, and B. M. Dobell of Dallas who have been in the city the last three weeks. It is a Snook Xray made inclusive by the Victor X-ray corporation of Chicago.

The machine takes two views of X-ray pictures at one exposure. It is the latest make to be found in the United States or Europe, and a similar one is used in the Mayo brothers clinic at Rochester, Minn.

Dr. Parnell has also purchased a floroscopic tale for making pictures, viewing any part of the body withotu moving the patient.

Miami Prepares For Severe Storm

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 17. (AP) With a barometric drop expected in a few hours, Miami and Miami beach were fortified tonight against a tropical storm or hurrican proportions that was reported sweeping out of the Carribean sea with its center near Nassau in the Bahamas.

Local weather officials said the storm apparently was following the path of the July hurricane, which took a toll of many lives and huge property damage in Florida and the Bahamas.

Boat men had removed all small craft from the bay and adjacent docks and early tonight the causeway between Miami and Miami beach was covered with spray as waves dashed high against it.

DALLAS MAY GIVE SITE

AUSTIN, Sept. 17.(AP)—Representative George Purl of Dallas Friday wrote the Dallas Chamber of Commerce, suggesting it get an option on a site for a state psychiatric hospital.

The regular session of the 39th legislature passed the bill authorizing the hospital, but made no appropriation, and Representative Purl is hopeful the 40th legislature will make the necessary appropriation.

WITNESSES ON COURT PARADE

Daugherty Trial Continues As Long Line Is Called

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.(AP)—The parade of prosecution witnesses continued their march today across the trampled arena of the Daugherty-Miller fraud trail.

Under continual protest of Max D. Steuer, counsel for Harry M. Daugherty, attorney general of the Harding regime, and of William S. Rand, counsel for Thomas W. Miller, alien property custodian at the same time, a score of minor and major government officials trooped across the witness stand, some being seated in the chair only long enough to identify themselves.

Objections Made.

Objections of counsel for the defendants who are charged with defrauding the government of their best services in permitting release of $7,000,000 realized from the sale of assets of the American Metal company impounded during the war, were based on assertions that the prosecution was "burying" the case under a mass of irrelevant testimony.

Hardly a witness took the stand today without Steuer rising to repeat his objections.

To each objection government attorneys responded that all was subject to connection and would all tend to prove the guilt of the defendants. As a rule Judge Mack overruled the objections and permitted the questioning of witnesses and entering of documents to proceed.

Lewis J. Bailey, former chief of the bureau of investigation, told of the activities of Jesse W. Smith in the department of justice under Daugherty's reign as attorney general. One of Smith's first acts, according to Bailey was to install himself in office and send for a list of all employes of the department. Smith demanded that opposite each name a notation be made showing whether the employe was a democrat or republican. The list came back to him, Bailey said, with marks showing the employes that were to be retained and those who were to be discharged or transferred.

Few Changes Made.

Few changes were made, Bailey testified, but only "a lot of talking" on his part saved old and trusted employes from the official "ax." Bailey said that shortly after Daugherty assumed office he told him that any time he had important matters to discuss with him and he, Daugherty, was too busy "just tell Smith and he'll let me know about them."

The government used Charles E. Stewart, administrative officer of the department of justice, to identify railroad vouchers and expense accounts for Daugherty and Smith that showed them in New York on April 19, 1921—the date of an alleged rendezvous with Merton, King and Miller—and September 30, 1921, the date of the champagne dinner in the Ritz-Carlton hotel when Miller handed Merton two checks for $6,453,979.97.

Defendants In Hall-Mills Case Plead Not Guilty

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Sept. 17. (AP)—The four defendants indicted for the murder four years ago of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, pleaded not guilty late today in supreme court.

The bail of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall widow who has been at liberty in $15,000 was ordered increased to $40,000 and she was released when that was furnished.

Henry and Willie Stevens, her brothers and Henry Carpender, her cousin were remanded to jail without bail.

Illinois Town In Danger of Flood

BEARDSTOWN, Ill., Sept. 17.—(AP)—A thin line of sand bags stood tonight between Beardstown's seven thousand residents and the rising waters of the Illinois river. More than a hundred men, some of whom have labored without sleep since Wednesday worked along the mile long levee which protected the city from the river's waters, staunching the weak spots in the wall of sand bags.

Women found a share too, in the battle against the river's churning currents. They drove trucks filled with sand to the edges of the levee and put the sand in bags with which the dike is being bolstered, while other groups served coffee to the wormen.

Tonight the river stood at 22 feet one and three-fourth inches less than four inches below the top of the dike, with the flood's crest slowly swelling as the Sangamon river emptied into the Illinois nine miles above the city, the burden of a Wednesday freshet.

Only if the weather remains fair without further rain or wind will the barrier hold back the flood waters according to C. O. "Dad" Miller, in charge of the levee workers, who has labored 70 hours at his task.

Goes to Trial On Charge of Murder

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 17. (AP) Apparently the least concerned of those present, Tom Johnson sat Friday through the first day of his trial here for the murder of Leonard Erdall, former University of Minnesota football played.

The rather mild looking individual who says he has killed 14 men, and committed more than 1,700 robberies, at first acted as though he was prepared to enjoy the trial, changing as the day wore on to a show of boredom.

Nine jurors were selected when court adjourned until Monday.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.(AP)—Uncertainty of weather conditions over the week seemed responsible for considerable covering in the cotton market early today but after selling up to 16.59 for December, prices reacted owing to reiterated reports of increased hedge selling and larger private crop figures. December reacted to 16.37 and closed at 16.40, the general market closing easy at net declines of 8 to 11 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of three points to an advance of two points. Prices worked up in early trading on covering by recent sellers and local buying promoted by apprehensions that one of the tropical disturbances might reach the belt and relatively steady Liverpool cables. October contracts sold up to 16.40 and January to 16.70, net advances of 8 to 10 points, but the initial demand seemed to be supplied at these figures and prices turned easier under renewed liquidation combined with southern selling.

Reports that one of the tropical storms was likely to reach the south Atlantic coast and that another of less intensity might work into the eastern belt had no appreciable effect on the early afternoon market while the more optimistic view of mid-September crop figures, was promoted by a private report estimating the indicated crop at 15,100,000 compared with a prospect of 14,800,000 two weeks ago.

The decline extended to 16.20 for October and 16.48 for January contracts, net losses of about 11 to 13 points, but the market steadied at these figures on a renewal of covering for over the weekend and later fluctuations were irregular. Last prices, however, were within two or three points of the lowest, under southern selling in the last half hour.

There was some comment on the week end figures showing a sharp increase in the movement of cotton into sight, but the factors chiefly discussed during the day were the larger private crop figures and the reported increased volume of southern hedge selling.

Port receipts today 53,316; U. S. port stocks 758,943. Exports today 42,989, making 766,597 so far this season.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 17.(AP)—The cotton market was a little active today than has been the case of late and prices were more two sided and fluctuated rather freely but within a moderate range. Prices after a better start declined 20 to 22 points during the morning on the generally favorable weather in the belt hedge selling and liquidation. A storm bulletin announcing that storm signals had been ordered up on the east Florida coast caused prices to rally after mid-session and most of the earlier decline was recorded. While the market eased off again in the last hour the reaction did not go very far and the losses for the day of six to ten points.

The opening was somewhat irregular, first trades showing one point up to seven down. Prices rallied slightly after the start to 16.40 for October 16.55 for December and 16.61 for January, or one to five points above the previous close. These proved to be the highs of the day.

The market then turned easier and before the decline was checked October traded as low as 16.15, December at 16.33 and January at 16.39, or 22 to 25 points under the early highs and 18 to 21 points under the previous close. These were the low points. Prices rallied 17 to 20 points after mid-session on the storm warning but did not retain all of the gain. Exports for the day totaled 408-989 bales and for the week 244,190.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.(AP)—The stock market broke sharply today under the weight of heavy selling for both accounts. Speculators for the advance started to bid up prices at the opening on the strength of no change in the New York federal reserve bank re-discount rate, but bear traders, sensing a lack of public participation fired a broadside of selling orders which sent prices crashing 3 to 10 points, as hundreds of "stop loss" orders were touched off.

Stock market observers who attempt to explain market movements by development in the day's news, attributed the selling to the "Mexican situation" but in other quarters this was regarded as more of an excuse than a reason. In making circles the steady decline of stocks in the face of favorable trade news was looked upon as a correction of a temporary over-bought condition. Considerable uneasiness still exists over the credit situation, despite the decrease in re-discounts and the maintenance of the 4 per cent central bank rates and this was intensified by the marking up of the call money rate 4½ to 5 per cent in the early afternoon.

The weekly mercantile reviews reported further improvement in business despite damaging weather in certain sections of the north.

The selling movement reached its greatest intensity in Warner Brothers Pictures "A" which dropped from 62⅞ to 51⅛ and then rallied to 53½ where it was off nine points on the day.

Standing out in bold relief against the swiftly declining market was the common stock of the General Motors corporation which touched a new high of 154¼ for the present issue, sold down to 149⅝ and then snapped back to 153 for a small fractional net loss. U. S. Steel common did not possess the same recuperative power, selling down from 147 to 143¼ and rallying about a point from the low.

Allied Chemical dropped from 139¾ to 135½, American Can from 56⅛ to 52⅝, American Smelting from 149¼ to 144⅝, Baldwin from 118¼ to 115⅝, DePont from 314½ to 307⅛, General Asphalt from 84½ to 79¼, Hudson from 58⅝ to 53, International Combustion from 48 to 42½, Mack Trucks from 112⅝ to 108, Radio from 50¼ to 46⅛ and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe from 206 to 197⅛, but all made partial recovery from the low level. Cudahy Packing opened four points higher at 110, a new high record, and maintained most of its gain.

Rails yielded with the industrials, but losses were not as large. The high priced issues such as Atlantic Coast Line, "Nickel Plate" common and Canadian Pacific were the hardest hit.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were easy. Demand sterling held firm around $4.85 but French francs yielded slightly, being quoted just above 2.80 cents. Other recessions were nominal.

YAQUIS SLAY 80 SOLDIERS

Federal Troops Made Night Surprise Attack On Camp

NOGALES, Ariz., Sept. 17. (AP) A dispatch to the Herald today from Guamas, Sonora, Mexico, stated that 80 federal soldiers were killed and an unknown member wounded in a night attack on the military outpost of Vicam, Sonora, by Yaqui Indians Wednesday. A few of the marauders were killed by the troops before they retreated the message said.

The insurgent natives have torn up 25 miles of railroad tracks and burned telegraph poles, thus destroying all communication across the reservation. Americans today were reported making for the border, by means of any transportation available.

Unconfirmed rumors pointed to further concentration of troops at Vicam, Ortiz and Mapoli, Sonora, in preparation for a drive on the Indian stronghold at Sierra de Bacetete but no word was given out by the military.

Yaqui squaws and their papooses were reported fleeing toward isolated border points with the intention of crossing into the United States. Another rumor was that a large amount of ammunition destined for the Indians had been seized 25 miles south of the international line.

DUN'S REPORT.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.(AP)—Dun's tomorrow will say:

The expected autumn broadening of commercial activities has begun to develop more fully, it is extending through most channels of manufacture and distribution and there is nothing in sight now to give rise to apprehensions of an early trade reaction. There are, on the other hand, various constructive forces present which hold out the promise of a maintenance of wholesome progress over the last quarter of this year. The current week's heavy financial operations in connection with income tax payments were without preceptiable effect on the money market thus giving further proof of the strength of the banking situation and it is significant that the ratio of mercantile failures to the number of business concerns has recently been declining. Supplementing this encouraging tendency, statistics of bank clearings, cotton consumption, foreign commerce and railroad freight traffic make satisfactory exhibits the reports of car loading being especially favorable.

Weekly bank clearings $8,941,968,000.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.(AP)—Grain values swung downward today, reversing the Thursday market. In wheat there was a lack of aggressive support until holders of bids started to take profits. Weakness in Winnepeg, better weather in the Canadian northwest and a weak technical position was responsible for the decline. At the close wheat showed a net loss of 1⅝ to 2⅛c, corn was down 1⅝ to 2c, oats off ¼ to ⅜c and provisions varied from unchanged to 30c off.

Little attention was paid to a forecast for heavy to killing frost over paris of North Dakota tonight, and corn averaged lower with wheat and on selling by some buyers of the previous day. County offerings were more liberal.

Oats showed relative strength as compared with corn although averaging lower wit hthat grain.

N. "Pop" Wiggins of Dallas spoke on "N-o Let George Do it." Musical numbers and reading were also featured on the lengthy program. W. B. Hamilton, superintendent of the Sunday school was toastmaster.

Among the other speakers of the evening were Mrs. P. P. Langford, Mr. Hamilton, Mrs. Horrace Robbins and Oral Jones. The invocation was said by the pastor, Rev. Walter J. Johnson. Rev. Frank M. Richardson, presiding elder of the Wichita Falls district of the Methodist church, south, said the benediction.

Miss Mathis Entertains.

Miss Ella Merle Mathis entertained with two readings. An entertaining skit, "Lester de Pester" was given. Vocal duets were given by Miss Mildred Martin and Paul Rutledge. A singsong was led by Joel H. McGregor.

"The city of Wichita Falls has a wonderful future because of faith which is first taught in the Sunday schools," Mr. Hamilton said in a short address to the assembly. He told of the value of the Sunday school and its influences and benefits to the community.

Mrs. Langford gave a group of personal instances of visits in Sunday schools and brought a helpfulness to the students and teachers gathered at the church.

"I believe it is easier to do a big thing than it is to do a little thing," Mr. Wiggins said in his address. People don't rally to a little program," and he gave a vivid recital of the world's biggest program before the late war. "Appeal from a big standpoint is always appreciated. All we need is the decision and the will to do it," he declared. Laying up treasures in Heaven is the finest thing in the world, bringing men and women to Christ.

Need Leadership.

"We need leadership," he told the Sunday school assembly, "and no one can be a good leader unless he can follow. He must have loyalty to leadership, and the leader who is best is the one who appears to lead the rest. You win leadership, you can't demand it."

The big task of the Sunday school is teaching, and he named five facts in reaching the pupils, "reaching, teaching, winning, training and using." A graphic recital of a man brought to consciousness of leadership was given by the speaker in recounting the story of William Reynolds.

Announcement was made by E. F. Bohmfalk, educational director, of the following special Sunday school services: Sept. 26, promotion day; Oct. 3, rally day; Oct. 10, photographer's day; Oct. 17, family day.

It was voted to hold regular meetings of officers and teachers of the Sunday school once a month to better acquaint them with the workings and plans of the organization.

Music during the evening was also furnished by the Orthophonic through the courtesy of the Nunn Electric company. The dinner was served to the guests by members of the Annie Laurie Long league.

Faith Capable Of Everything Says Evangelist Here

"There are more infidels in this country than ever before. If people believe God's word they'll act like it. You act but what you believe," Evangelist A. E. Davis of Kentucky who is conducting an interdenominational meeting at the tent on 18th and Holliday said to a large congregation Friday night when he preached on "What Shall I Do To Be Saved?"

"Faith—there is not only faith for healing, but faith for anything," he said. "There is no restlessness, no anxiety, no humanistic effort in faith. It's relaxation.

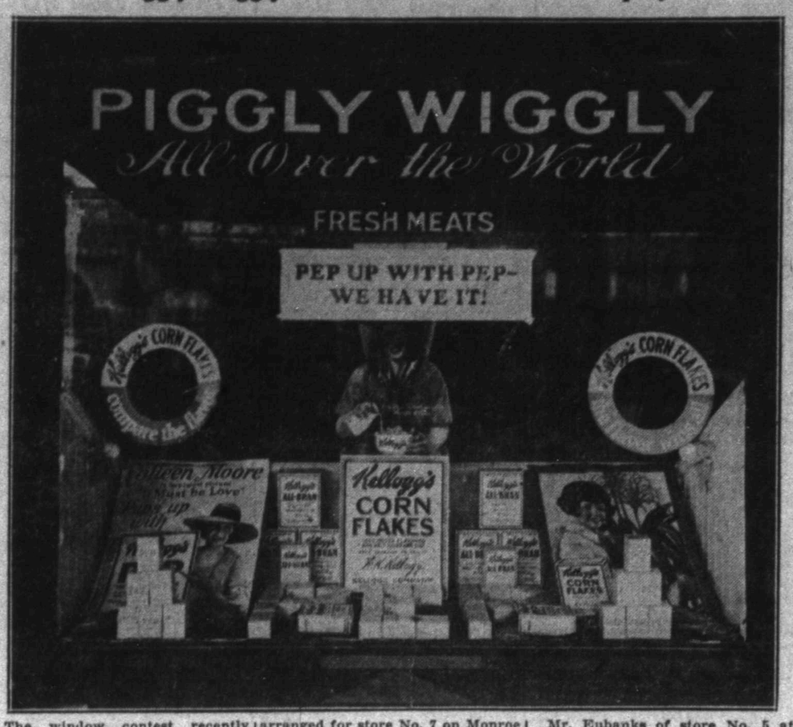

"The first thing to do to be saved is to realize the lost condition of the soul and need to be saved. Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ repent of your sins, and be saved. "There is no reformation but a transformation."

He took his text from the 16th chapter of Acts and drew his conclusions from that part of the Bible.

The first healing service of the revival was announced for Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock. A morning service will be held Saturday at 9:30 o'clock, an afternoon service, Sunday at 2:30 p. m.

Piggly Wiggly No. 7 Wins In Window Display

The window contest recently conducted among the eleven Piggly Wiggly stores of Wichita Falls produced for Kellogg Products excellent results whether considered either from a display or merchandising viewpoint.

An enormous amount of money is spent by national advertisers for such display material as was used in the creation of these windows. Certainly the expenditure is justified when it is put to such excellent use as in the first prize window, Store Manager Steve Sanders arranged for store No. 7 on Monroe street.

Mr. McCleary, advertising and display manager for W. B. McClurkan Co., who judged the contest, complimented Sanders very highly on his window, stating that the trim had every feature of good display. It was attractive to the passer-by because of a well chosen color scheme skilfully worked out in tissue paper and the excellent grouping of merchandise and advertising matter. Results are bound to follow such effective display.

Mr. Eubanks of store No. 5 at 816 Indiana won second prize on a display which was built around a roof garden scene, dolls being seated at a table made of Kellogg boxes in chairs of the same unique material.

The neatness and good arrangement of merchandise won third prize of Mr. Wiggle of Store No. 2 at 704 Indiana.

A well arranged display at Store No. 10 on the Seymour road deserved honorable mention.

WICHITANS TO DALLAS MEET

Shippers Advisory Board To Be Attended By Local Men

Quite a number of Wichita Falls business men are expected to attend the quarterly meeting of the Southwest Shippers Advisory board which convenes in Dallas Sept. 23 at the Baker hotel. A number of local business men are members of the board, and those who are not members, but are interested in the coming session, may become members by application now and secure the reduced railroad rate to Dallas which is being offered on all roads. The rate is round trip fare for the price of a one way fare and is issued on the certificate plan.

No Costs

There is no cost whatever connected with the work and no dues are required for membership; neither is there a registration fee collected at meetings. Those wishing to attend the meeting can become members and take advantage of the rate given by the railroads, and J. W. Chatham, traffic manager for the chamber of commerce will be glad to handle these applications for those wishing to go.

These boards are composed solely of producers, shippers and distributors of freight, including representatives of any industry, and were established at the solicitation of the car service division of the American Railway association to co-operate with the railroads in matters reciprocally related and to assist in anticipating car and transportation requirements that service programs might me formulated in advance to take care of all traffic movements as they come on.

Rates Not Considered.

Rate matters are not considered by any advisory board. Railroads submit reports at each meeting, giving an outline of their equipment and transportation facilities, prospective movements, service charges, etc. The various chambers of commerce throughout the territory render reports giving the economic situation in their respective cities, including bank clearings, building permits, stocks, sales, etc. The commodity committee of the board submits reports of their industries together with estimate of car requirements for the succeeding ninety days, which information the railroads and the car service division use in making provisions for handling the traffic in prospect.

Police Open Drive On Speeders As Traffic Situation Grows Worse

A hot denunciation of motorists who persist in speeding in the city limits and a warning that the police department has tolerated speed law infractions long enough was made Friday by Chief of Police George Hodgins, who at the same time issued orders to his men to clamp down on the offenders.

"I wish we could invoke the California law here," the chief declared in commenting on what he termed the inadequacy of the law as regards speeding. "Out there," he said, "a fine and a stiff jail sentence as well can be imposed; while here a fine is all that we can give."

Hodgins declared he intends recommending to the city judge that the maximum penalty—a $200 fine be assessed in speeding cases hereafter. The usual $10 or $15 assessment, he believes, has little or no effect as a deterring agency, and he proposes to bring into use something that will have an effect.

Lyle Donohue, traffic captain for the city police department, joined with Hodgins in declaring that the speed craze was becoming serious in the city. Donohue was inclined to blame a late afternoon rush for the summer table as responsible for much of the trouble. The police, he said, found the speeding mania particularly in evidence around 6 o'clock when the traffic flow is heaviest and many motorists seek to reach their residence, perhaps a couple of miles from the business district, in two or three minutes.

All other hours bring their bursts of speed, however, and the police, noting the growing tendency to "step on it," are proposing to put a stop to it.

"We have had a number of traffic accidents in the past few weeks," Chief Hodgins said Friday afternoon. "One youngster was killed and several folks have been more or less seriously injured, to say nothing of the damage done to the cars. It will only be a question of time until there is a disastrous accident, and we want to avoid this if we can. We intend to arrest and prosecute to the very limit from now on."

Ardmore Organist To Give Concert At First M. E. Sunday

Miss Agnes Weeks, of Ardmore, talented organist wil give an organ recital at the First Methodist Church Sunday evening at 7:45 p. m. The public is cordially invited to hear her program. In recent press notice from the San Antonio Express of Miss Weeks recital there, says of her, "The Organ recital given by Miss Weeks proved a real musical treat to the 1800 persons present. Miss Weeks proved herself a thorough musician, possessing a clear, brilliant organ technique, as well as a keen musical appreciation. She has no mannerisms to detract from her good organ style."

Miss Weeks is a friend of the family of Dr. Walter J. Johnson, and is at present a guest in their home. The public is invited to hear her, and there will be no charge for her program. The following numbers will be played:

1. "Prelude and Fugue," G. Major, (Mendelssohn.)

PROGRESS OF FAIR IS TOLD

T-O Officials Tell the Business Council What's What

The weekly luncheon of the business council of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce which was held yesterday at the Kemp hotel, was held under the supervision of the Texas-Oklahoma Fair association and business men of the city were treated to three excellent addresses, two of which gave in detail the progress and future plans of the 1926 Texas-Oklahoma fair.

E. G. Hill, vice chairman of the council presided and introduced W. B. Hamilton, president of the fair association.

Mr. Hamilton brought optimism in his talk by telling of the many flattering phases of the fair situation at the present time. With all indications pointing to a greater livestock exhibit, a greater agricultural exhibit and many new entertainment features, there seems to be nothing lacking to bring great success to the fair.

Improve Oil

One of the new endeavors will be to bring the oil department up to a higher standard and this department under the supervision of L. H. Cullum, will be among the best at the fair.

George Keith, who supervises the livestock department, has already filed more entries than ever exhibited at the fair before, and many more are to come, Mr. Hamilton explained. He also told of new agricultural exhibits from New Mexico, and that a number of new counties in Oklahoma were contemplating showing here.

Mr. Hamilton became very enthusiastic in mentioning the poultry department, for in this department the greatest improvement is being developed. Ira Brown, superintendent of the poultry department, has hundreds of inquiries, and only this week found it necessary to go about providing a number of additional coops for the poultry exhibits.

200 GIRLS AT 1ST MEETING

Reserves Organize Friday As First Club At Junior College

Two hundred girls were present at the first Girl Reserve meeting of the year at Junior college Friday morning when a "welcome program" was given for the benefit of the many new students in the building. This meeting upheld a tradition of several years, namely that the Girl Reserve club is the first to organize every year.

Miss Jane Moore, new president of the club extended a hearty welcome to the old and new girls, explaining the meaning of the "big sister" movement, concluding her talk with a personal welcome to her own "little sister." Miss Joline Woods responded in behalf of the new girls. Especial mention was given the fact that Girl Reserves have worked a change from the old method of making new students feel their insignificance to the new way of helping them to feel at home in the school.

Thanks For Miss Wilson

A standing vote of appreciation was extended to Miss Ivo Wilson, who left Friday night for Lubbock, for her work in the club. Misses Edna Bobo, Evelyn Hardeman and Harriett Peterson gave short talks of appreciation for Miss Wilson's help.

The devotional, led by Miss Wilson was in the form of allegory on truth, and was concluded with a prayer and the song, "Teach Me to Pray," sung by a hidden choir of girls accompanied by Lorene Tucker.

Edna Bobo, who was in charge of the program, introduced Miss Rebecca Meadors, who played a violin solo, accompanied by Miss Dorothy McCloud, "Just a Cottage Small" was sung by Miss Frances Phillips accompanied by Lorene Tucker.

Plans were made for the attendance of the members at the funeral of Mrs. Millington, former teacher in the school and sister of Miss Mary Tancred, past president of the Girl Reserves. The meeting was adjourned with the singing of the Girl Reserve song, "Follow the Gleam," led by a chorous of girls in uniform.
