Country club gets favorable review

By Pat Blair

Preliminary plans for the proposed Rockport Country Club Estates development north of Rockport drew favorable nods from members of the city council Monday night — although official approval is pending the outcome of an October 12 public hearing.

The proposed development just off Highway 35 North took up a large portion of Monday's council session, but city aldermen found time to adopt the 1981-82 budget ordinance and tax rate and approve two zoning requests following a joint hearing with the Planning and Zoning Commission.

And in other action relating to the P&Z board, the council approved the commission's recommendation that Barbara Armstrong be appointed to fill a vacancy created by the resignation last month of Dana Taggart.

The budget adopted — in time for the start of the new fiscal year Thursday — was the $2,377,290 city budget presented in public hearing last month. Also adopted with no changes from prior presentation was the 1981-82 tax rate of 60 cents per $100 valuation.

The new rate is based on 100 percent valuation of property as new required by State law. Mayor Walter S. Falk Jr. pointed out Monday night that this will be the first year Rockport has assessed property on a 100 percent basis.

In one of several items relating to the Rockport Country Club Estates, preliminary plans for the Phase I of the multimillion dollar development were presented to the joint session of the council and the zoning board.

Gene Urban, engineer on the project, told the council the project developers will seek two variances from city zoning laws. One variance is to allow utility easements in front rather than behind the residential lots.

Urban told city officials the request is being made because of the number of trees in the area: "If we put the easement in the rear, we would have to cut a 20-foot swath." He said that, since area has to be cleared in the front for streets, the developers propose to lay utility easements in the front behind the curb line.

The second variance to city zoning laws is a request for waiver of the requirement that blocks be 1200 feet in length. Urban said this would conflict with plans for the golf course development.

Both these requests will be presented in a public hearing at 7:15 p.m. October 12.

In their recommendations later, planning and zoning board members suggested that the preliminary plans for the development be approved conditional on the results of the October 12 hearing. The city council accepted the zoning board's recommendation but deferred a decision until after the hearing.

In other action relating to the country club development, city officials accepted a letter of intent from Carl Krueger, president of the corporation board, to request annexation of each phase of the project as it is completed.

The project consists of residential development, an 18-hole golf course and other recreational facilities to be completed in two construction phases. Half the golf course will be completed in each phase.

The council referred to the city staff for additional study a request by the developers that Rockport Country Club Inc. purchase effluent from the Rockport sanitary sewer system. Proposed use of the effluent is to water the golf course greens.

Alderman Burt Mills originally made a motion to approve the concept of the purchase and work out details, but that motion died for lack of a second. Alderman Murray McMillan explained his position: "I don't think we're against it (the proposal) But we need to talk about it."

Following the joint public hearing that began at 7 p.m. — and on recommendation from the planning and zoning commission — the council gave approval to one zoning change and granted special use permits on another.

Special use permits were granted to Dean Monroe for property at 1701 South Church, to allow the existing building — presently the Bargain Barn — to be extended toward the rear of the property and converted into a skating rink.

Approval was granted to Barbara Wells and Shirley Jo Casey for rezoning property on Gagon at Cornwall from residential to B-1 business. Purpose of the request is to operate an art studio on the property.

Also recommended by the zoning board — and approved by the council — was an amendment to the city zoning ordinance that will require developers to install street lights in new subdivisions.

In other action Monday, the council:

—Approved a new city electrical ordinance.

—Approved a recommendation from the city's board of development for payment of $1,000 to the Chamber of Commerce in partial payment for new multicolor brochures advertising Rockport. Total cost of the brochures is slightly more than $5,000.

—Approved an amendment to the city's personnel policy to allow accumulation of up to 30 days vacation time at the end of one calendar year.

Motorcycle rider injured

Rockport motorcyclist Charles Griffith is treated by paramedics after an accident which occurred Monday, September 28, on Highway 35 South. Griffith, southbound, ran off the road after Dallas County Judge John Orvis, northbound and attempting a left turn, failed to yield the right of way to the cyclist. Griffith suffered a severe compound fracture of his lower right leg and was taken to Memorial where he underwent surgery for the injury. [Pilot Photo by Becky Werhan]

Capt Brownie receives State Hospitality Award

By Becky Werhan

"The Texan who most exemplifies the typical Texan in the mind of the traveler; the Texan who is the most charming and the most hospitable to the traveler."

That's part of the criteria for the Governor's Texas Hospitality Award. The man who embodies the spirit of Texas hospitality and is the recipient of this year's award is Rockport's own Captain F.M. "Brownie" Brown.

As skipper of the Sea Gun's "Whooping Crane", Captain Brownie has taken thousands of visitors, some from foreign countries, to see another kind of traveler — the great endangered whooping crane.

Al of the country's major ornithologists, including Roger Tory Peterson, and many other well-known birders have traveled to the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge with Captain Brownie for the past 17 years and he's always made good on his promise to them that they will see a whooper.

The skipper was one of several honorees at the sixteenth annual state conference for tourist development luncheon held this past Friday. Governor Bill Clements spoke at the luncheon and made the awards presentation. Until his name was announced as the winner of the award, Captain Brownie had no idea why he was at the luncheon.

"I was really tricked," said Brownie. "They got me up there by telling me it was the owner's (of Sea Gun), Mac Bentley's birthday. We went up there and had a tour of the company headquarters and then we had this birthday party with cake and everything. Well, when we came back to the hotel, there was this luncheon going on and all of the sudden, there was my son, his wife and my two daughters. It was my wife, Willie Belle's birthday, too, and they said that was why they were there."

The group, supposedly representing the company, proceeded to the luncheon and Brownie says, "I was about to fall asleep, when I heard my name called." The governor presented the skipper with the award and congratulated him on the honor.

Brownie says he "feels very good" about winning the award but about the high honor, says, "I don't even know if I'm the kind of man that this should go to."

The people who've gotten a chance to see the rare whoopers because of Captain Brownie would probably disagree with him on that. One of his well-worn copies of "A Field Guide to the Birds of Texas" bears this hand-written message: "First time I've seen a whooper in flight. Glorious!" and is signed Lady Bird Johnson. Mrs. Johnson has taken Brownie's tour twice. Other passengers include past presidents of the National Audubon Society as well as many society members from all over the country.

Ironically, Rockport's best known bird-watcher never took a trip with Brownie — Connie Hagar, whom Brownie credits with "putting Rockport on the map" was never well enough to take the crowded trip, but sent the captain many passengers and often came down to the Sea Gun dock to see them off and talk to Brownie.

Brownie recently made a big decision. "I did a lot of worryin', stayin' awake nights and thinkin' and I made up my mind that I was going to work till I die."

His eighteenth season of birding begins soon, on October 20. In addition to daily fishing charters, the "Whooping Crane" will make the trip to the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge every Wednesday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, leaving the dock at 1:30 p.m.

The man who has seen more whoopers than anyone in the world, Captain Brownie says, "Oh, I never get tired of seeing them. I get excited. I'm anxious to pick out the first ones every year.

"I love that birdwatching."

Pirates brace for aerial show against Robstown

By Bob Crawford

Welcome to the DeJuan Oaks Show Pirate fans and players will remember him from a year ago when he single-handedly brought his Robstown Cotton-pickers back to win over the Pirates in the final few minutes of the game.

Well, Oakes is a year older, stronger, wiser, and playing on his home field. This week the Pirates of Rockport-Fulton must go into Robstown to play the Cottonpickers.

Oakes is the do-everything quarterback for the Pickers. He leads an undefeated team into the game this week, and has been known to fill the airways with footballs throughout the game, and from any place. The Pickers are 4-0 as they come in, having beaten Kingsville, Laredo Martin, Calallen and West Oso.

The team has scored 131 points in the four outings, averaging 32 points per game. Oakes, last week against West Oso, threw for over 300 yards and ran for 80 in that victory.

Not to be forgotten are Horace Epps, who comes out of the backfield for passes and is a fine runner as well; David Guy, who can catch anything tossed his way; and Joe Wyatt, another outstanding receiver.

The Picker defense has been just good enough to win. As a unit, they have yielded 76 points. However, they've been winners because Oakes kept the other side hopping.

The Pirates will enter the contest with a 2-2 record, running into real trouble in their last two outings against GP and Flour Bluff. The Pirate running game did not produce a 100-yard gainer against Flour Bluff, and the air game is still suffering short of what it was a year ago.

This may well be the week when all things come together for the Pirates who have expressed a dislike for losing with such statements as, "This losing gets old quick," and "We can play so much better. We know we can."

At this point, the Pirates must reach way down to see if they can rise above more of the same. Oakes and company will not be an easy target.

Rockport youth critical following hit-run

Jeffery G. Zlock, 17, of 703 Rowe, Rockport, was admitted to Memorial Medical Center in Corpus Christi suffering a fractured left femur and "massive" head injuries after he was struck by a hit-and-run driver Friday night.

The driver of the car involved, Exal Junco Lopez, 26, of 903 South Pearl was charged with failure to stop and render aid and misdemeanor driving while intoxicated after he was arrested early Saturday, more than three hours after the accident.

Police said Zlock was jogging on the side of the road on Broadway about 10:40 p.m. Friday when he was struck by Lopez's car, southbound on Broadway. The incident occurred near the intersection of Broadway and Victoria.

A unit of the Aransas County Emergency Medical Service (EMS) responded to the call and transported Zlock to the Corpus hospital where, as of Monday afternoon, he was listed in critical condition in the Intensive Care Unit.

Lopez was arrested by police about 2:05 a.m. Saturday in the parking lot of Rockport's Circle K. Bond was set at $25,000 on the charge of failure to stop and render aid and $500 on the DWI charge.

Sunday gumbo chefs needed

If you're an Aransas County area resident with an out-of-this-world gumbo recipe — and you haven't already entered the Seventh Annual World Championship Gumbo Cook-off — Bill Mayhood is looking for you.

Mayhood is chairman of this year's Gumbo Cook-off, one of the highlights of the upcoming 1981 edition of SeaFair — and he still has a few openings in the October 11 (Sunday) competition for the World Championship Gumbo Chef honors.

"Saturday is filled," Mayhood said, "but we still have a few openings Sunday and we particularly want more local talent to enter."

Trophies are awarded for first, second and third-place gumbo and for showmanship on both days, and the event is climaxed on Sunday with the pitting of the first-place winners from both days against each other to decide the Grand Champion.

Gumbo chefs who haven't yet entered are invited to call the Rockport Area Chamber of Commerce or Bill Mayhood, at 729-9213, to get their roux in the judging.

United Nations: short-lived hope

COLUMNIST JAMES Kilpatrick was angry the other day, angry over the 170-0 vote by the General Assembly of the United Nations to censure South Africa for going into Angola after SWAPO terrorists who have been endeavoring to take over Namibia, a sort of non-country.

That is to say there are no Namibian people, no national flag or anything else to identify that piece of real estate as a sovereign state whose people's rights needed defending.

In the resolution against South Africa no account was taken of the fact that SWAPO troops are armed by Soviet Russia, that the invaders of Namibia who fled to Angola included thousands of Cubans. At best the UN condemnation of South Africa was an endorsement of a few men, ambitious for wealth and power.

EARLY ON, MANY years ago when the United Nations was established, I was naive and idealistic enough to think that the organization might somehow be the best hope for a peaceful and happy world. That hope was short-lived.

In short order I saw the establishment of new states inhabited by people with no concept of government of any sort, democratic, socialist, communistic or whatever. The while along with the rest of the world I watched the rise of leaders whose only attributes were the desire for power and wealth — and be damned to the people.

In most if not every instance the natives of the so-called new countries (some call it the Third World) fared better under the British raj, or the Portuguese, French, Dutch or others.

Quite appropriately, Kilpatrick suggests that news of the United Nations should be carried on the comic pages to dwell with Doonesbury and his friends.

Call this racist if you will, but a couple of thousand years of history stand as evidence that there are people of this world who are capable of governing and others who must in the interest of civilization be the governed. Rudyard Kipling called it "the white man's burden."

NOW IS A TIME FOR realism, yet it is at least doubtful that it will prevail in the halls of the U.S. Senate and Congress. In point of question is the sale of five supersophisticated surveillance and combat patrol planes, AWACS, to Saudi Arabia.

That the sale goes through is almost certainly vital to the future of this nation, even the entire free world. Evidence, however, is that this is not understood by the gentlemen in Washington, or if it is they still prefer to play the game of politics as usual.

To anyone who may think I make too much of this issue I would only invite them to examine a map of the Middle East. Looming large — almost dominating the area between the Red Sea, the Persian and Arabian seas — is Saudi Arabia.

Aside from its oil reserves it may be regarded as a vast wasteland, populated by little more than three million people, mostly uneducated roving tribesmen. Take away its oil and most people might easily say, forget it.

But no, Saudi Arabia is the key to the survival of the western world. It is a country surrounded by countries ripe for communist domination, Iran, Iraq, Jordan, Syria, South Yemen. And across the Red Sea, countries such as Ethiopia already dominated by Soviet influence.

Our friends in the area are only Egypt and Israel and there in each instance the friendship is tentative. Because of its attitude toward the United States, Egypt is very much of an outcast in the Arab world which sees us as being partial to, and only really concerned with, the well-being of the state of Israel, a circumstance which is more than half justified.

Let the AWACS sale fall by the wayside and Egypt's position will be even more untenable amongst its neighbors. Our friendship with Israel, in the eyes of the realist, exists only because there is no one else and here I of course speak of Prime Minister Begin's Israel.

Strange, but one must ponder what history will make of a crucial situation in which a tiny country of something over three million souls can so greatly influence one of the greatest powers on earth. Tragically, to what extent still remains to be seen.

WISELY, REASONABLY, the United States should not only sell the AWACS to Saudi Arabia, but in addition, cultivate the confidence of that country to the greatest extent possible — and frankly, with a veiw toward in the nearest possible future, establishing strong military bases there.

True enough, President Reagan is doing his utmost to complete the sale, but at the same time he has a track record that makes him in the eyes of most in the Middle East an ally if not a pawn of Israel.

Consider: he has identified Jewish settlements in Arab territory as being legal, contrary, incidentally, to his three predecessors who consistently called them illegal. In addition Reagan's national security advisor, Richard Allen, has justified Israeli sorties into Lebanon as justified.

Raids on a French-built nuclear plant in Iraq, the raid on apartment houses in Beirut followed by shipment of more war planes to Israel; all of these things have done nothing other than enhance the prospects of Soviet ascendancy in the Middle East.

Were an Arab to approach me and say, "Your President's heart is with Israel to such an extent that he can give only halfhearted acknowledgment to the realities of the Middle East and the potential effect they may have upon the civilized world," I am sorry to say, I should be hard put to offer a refutation.—ahab

State Of The Region

By Juliet K. Wenger
Coastal Bend Council of Governments

Water supply and water quality are basic ingredients for much of the planning, the prosperity and the controversy of the Coastal Bend, as well as of much of Texas.

A constitutional amendment will be on the ballot November 3 that should receive careful study by voters. Sometimes amendments are almost afterthoughts to voters about to leave the booth. Because of the importance of this issue, it deserves informed judgement by the voter favoring or opposing it.

It is proposed as a means to finance water resource projects, including water development, conservation, water quality enhancement, and flood control.

If the amendment is approved, it will earmark one-half of the state's excess tax revenues for water projects.

Enabling legislation would create three funds:

One would be available for loan assistance to local political subdivisions.

Another would permit the Texas Water Development Board to purchase an ownership interest in reservoirs to assure construction and development.

The third would pay for research and flood control planning to accomplish the other two.

Department of Water Resources show that 92 percent of the water in our area used for urban needs, municipal, manufacturing, power generation and mining, is supplied by developed surface water resources, which are reservoirs or lakes behind dams on our rivers or the rivers themselves.

By the year 2000, 98 percent is projected to be surface water, and only two percent from wells.

Potential problems that are anticipated in this area by the department report include physical condition of some of the smaller systems within growing areas; distance from reliable sources of supply that run up the cost of treatment and delivery facilities; and accessibility of water rights.

At this time, in the Coastal Bend, western Nueces and Kleberg Counties and Beeville are in the process of obtaining surface water because well water is inadequate in supply or quality, and Alice and San Patricio County are studying expansions. Complexities of financing improvements today are being encountered in all instances.

Growth across the state of Texas is causing many areas to face shortages of water today or in the near future. The report shows that the total projected urban water needs that will be supplied by the Choke Canyon Lake and the Lake at Mathis is expected to be about 169 and 345 thousand acre feet per year in the years 2000 and 2030 respectively.

This would mean the Coastal Bend region would need an additional surface water supply between the years 2015 and 2020 to meet urban water needs.

A bond guaranty program would be provided with as much as $500 million of the general credit of the state used to guarantee payment of principal and interest on bonds issued by qualified local units of government for water supply, quality, conservation and flood control.

Q. I vitamin B-15 really good for increasing energy? What else is it good for?

A. Vitamin B-15 has been considered fairly controversial in this country. The Russians, however, apparently use it widely and consider it a life-saving vitamin because of its success in treating many conditions such as circulatory problems, heart conditions, elevated blood cholesterol, various skin conditions, emphysema and premature aging.

Research on B-15, or pangamic acid (as it is also called), reveals that it supplies oxygen to the cells and the heart and also acts as a detoxicant, which makes it helpful in treating alcoholism and drug addiction. It has been used successfully in treating chronic hepatitis, early liver cirrhosis and has been shown to improve physical energy.

B-15 was originally isolated by the late Ernst Krebs, M.D. and his son, E.T. Krebs Jr. of San Francisco. It is a water-soluble vitamin which occurs naturally in apricot kernels and other seeds, rice bran and polish, whole grain cereals and brewer's yeast. It is nontoxic.

Until next week, Folks, stay happy and healthy! It's a beautiful world!

Price of weddings still on the rise, says specialist

COLLEGE STATION — Wedding price tags are up 30-500 percent since 1970, according to Cindy Wilson, a family life education specialist on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, at Texas A&M University System.

A special philosophy and a cost-cutting strategy can help offset these price hikes, she suggests. Couples must want to keep the price of their wedding reasonable before it can happen. This desire and their philosophy about marriage will go a long way toward making economy a reality, she adds.

"Remember, the wedding itself does not make the marriage, and no amount of money can ensure wedded bliss," Miss Wilson says.

"The marriage is made by the two people in it — loving, communicating and working daily to make their relationship the best it can be."

A second major step in creating a beautiful yet economical wedding is a cost-cutting strategy based on an understanding of what makes weddings so expensive.

One survey of manufacturing and service industries involved in the wedding business revealed the greatest increases in prices wer for sterling and silverplate flatware, bone china, crystal and a luxurious bridal suite for the honeymoon.

Items which increased less than 100 percent were the diamond engagement ring, toaster, tuxedo rental, reception banquet, wedding cake, marriage license, bridesmaid's dress and wedding gown.

Weddings have become more traditional than in the past few years, but there is one significant change, Miss Wilson says.

To accommodate today's higher prices, families are sharing the wedding costs. Newlyweds, and often the groom's family, share the cost with the bride's family more than in the past.

Since couples tend to be older when they first marry, they often have incomes to help defray the wedding expenses.

Average attendance at wedding receptions has lowered, which helps reduce the cost of that event, the specialist notes. Afternoon receptions are more popular and tend to be less expensive.

Wedding couples are now giving their attendants less costly gifts, and rental shops for bridal gowns and bridesmaids dresses make low-cost wedding attire available.

To decrease wedding costs, Miss Wilson recommends these ideas:

1) sew or rent a wedding gown and bridesmaids dresses

2) prepared the reception food and hold the reception in a rent-free location

3)make wedding gift selections carefully

4) narrow down the guest list

5) have fewer attendants

6) share the wedding costs between the newlyweds and their families.

Tony Rinche, Rena Marlar and Ruth Strickland returned from a 10-day sightseeing trip across Texas, into Arkansas, Louisiana and Missouri. Ruth was the driver for the entire 4200-mile trip. They enjoyed several stage performances by western entertainment groups in Missouri and Arkansas, but the highlight of their trip was attending a passion play in Eureka Springs, Arkansas, where they were part of an audience of 4200 people.

Paula Hernandez recently treated the officers and the employees at the Live Oak Bank to a Friday morning Mexican breakfast.

Water treatment, finances occupy Goose Island water board meeting

By Pat Blair

LAMAR — A promise of action on the non-functioning water treatment plant and finances — including an interdepartmental loan to meet a $15,000-plus debt obligation — occupied a three-hour meeting of the Goose Island Lake Estates water board Thursday evening.

Some seven or eight residents of Goose Island Lake Estates attended the meeting of the Aransas County Municipal District No. 1 — the district which provides both water and sanitary sewer service to Estates residents — at 7:30 p.m. in the District's office, 1002 8th Street in Lamar.

Herman Little, attorney for the district, told board members that a representative from the California-based firm that designed the district's water treatment plant will arrive on November 2 to begin a study of the plant.

The plant, which treats the water for Goose Island Lake Estates residents and other district customers, provided good water for some six to eight months following its installation, according to members of the district's board, but gradually deteriorated.

Since that time, however, the plant has not functioned properly and water from it is not acceptable by State standards.

Little told board members once the problem has been identified by the design firm's representative, it will be corrected by the project contractors, Isles Construction Company of Corpus Christi.

Little added that the representative would be here for up to two weeks if necessary to help solve the problems with the plant.

Opening a discussion of the district's bills, Secretary Stephen C. Shenk told members that a bond interest payment on a 1978 bond was due as of October 1. The payment was for $15,325.

Shenk added that the district had a certificate of deposit in the amount of $11,888.50 due to mature on September 29 and that a balance of $4,514.52 remained in the district's operating account.

"You need a motion," said Board President Richard Hughes, "to loan the tax department the money ($3436) to pay the bond and let the bills ride until next month," to which Shenk replied, "You're very perceptive."

Board member Doughtry Roberts made the motion to loan the operating expense funds to the tax account "if necessary" to meet the bond payment.

Members then authorized payment of remaining bills as money becomes available to the district.

Board members also took an action that should bring some funds into the district in the near future, with the engagement of the law firm of Calme, Linebarger and Graham for collection of delinquent taxes in the district.

The board has been assured of immediate legal action by the attorneys.

A scheduled item on Thursday's agenda, consideration of a tax rate for the year, was deffered because the board of equalization did not come to an agreement on property evaluations in its meeting last Wednesday.

During a report on development in and near the district, Little told board members he had been contacted by a representative of Sea Gun who "inquired about the availability of potable water and sanitary sewer service" for Sea Gun through the district.

Little added that although it is "too early" to work out any arrangements at this time, "I believe the opportunity may arise for more discussions."

Board members heard from Al Conway, a Harlingen attorney representing Southmore Savings & Loan. Conway told them the savings and loan company "have foreclosed on martgage and own a considerable portion of Goose Island Lake Estates."

He continued that the company paid a little more than $85,000 in delinquent tax bills last year "and we have to make plans to liquidate our indebtedness on the property." Conway was present at the meeting to learn more about the water district's operations and about Goose Island Lake Estates.

Pet Talks

By Dr. Hap Lutz

Dr. Lutz is a former instructor of diseases of dogs and cats in the college of Veterinary Medicine at Texas A&M University.

DOES YOUR CAT HAVE CANCER?

Feline Leukemia Virus (FeLV) and FeLV-related cancers could be the problem.

All living creatures and even plants can become infected with many potentially fatal viruses, but only a few die of these virus infections. Not all viruses cause disease, and it must be remembered that a virus is not a disease in itself.

A virus can be a disease-causing agent that may be partially or completely successful in overcoming the body's defenses; or it may be destroyed by the body's defenses and not cause disease.

A virus called the feline leukemia virus (FeLV) has been found to cause certain types of cancers in cats.

The types of cancers caused by FeLV are:

Lymphosarcoma-This is the most common cancer caused by FeLV. It is a cancer of the cells called lymphocytes that are found in lymph nodes, lymphoid tissue, the thymus gland, blood, and bone marrow. This type of tumor grows to a large size. The most common forms affect the intestines in the abdominal cavity, and the thymus gland in the thoracic cavity.

Leukemias-The leukemia forms of FeLV affect blood cells and are associated with anemia.

Prevention-Research work is being done by most of the veterinary colleges and commercial drug companies to develop a vaccine against FeLV.

A vaccine has recently been developed that is thought to be effective. At the present time, it is being trial tested. However, it will be several years before enough statistics are compiled before the Federal Drug Administration gave their permission for commercial use of the vaccine on our pets.

Human Hazard-Even though humans can develop lymphosarcoma and leukemia, there is no evidence to date that the FeLV of cats is transmissible to humans or other animals.

Harold Phenix to hold watercolor workshop

Harold Phenix, Houston watercolorist, will hold a three-day workshop at Estelle Stair's Art Gallery in Rockport October 30 and 31 and November 1.

Anyone who wishes to attend the workshop is asked to call the Gallery at 729-2478.

Phenix has held a one-man show at Live Oak State Bank here in the past. Five of his paintings are featured in "The Texas Gulf Coast: Interpretations by Nine Artists."

He was featured in the July issue of "Southwest Art" and exhibits at the Jack Mier Gallery in Houston.

Ag extension specialist offers tips on care of winter lawn

COLLEGE STATION — Hot summer weather has taken its toll on home lawns — and homeowners — throughout Texas. But there's still more work to be done to insure a weed-free winter lawn and good recovery of the lawn next spring.

"Lawn insects, including chinch bugs, white grubs and armyworms, must be controlled during late summer and fall," says Dr. Richard L. Duble, turfgrass specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. "Where these insects damage the lawn, winter weeds rapidly invade the weakened turf and spring recovery is often poor. Timely applications of insecticides such as diazinon or chlorpyrifos (Dursban) will control most lawn insect problems."

According to Duble, fall fertilization is another requirement for maintaining green color and promoting early spring green-up of lawns. A dense, vigorous turf produced by proper fertilization also keeps winter weeds from invading lawns.

He recommends applying a complete fertilizer with a 3-1-2, 4-1-2 or similar ratio of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash at a rate of 1-½ pounds of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet of lawn. This would be 12 pounds of 12-4-8 fertilizer per 1,000 square feet.

"Straight nitrogen fertilizers and fertilizers high in phosphorus (the middle number in the fertilizer analysis) should not be used for established lawns," cautions Duble.

"If winter weeds have been a problem in past years, apply a preemergence herbicide (chemical weed killer) for additional protection against weeds," suggests the specialist.

"Materials containing atrazine, benefin, bensulide and dacthal provide preemerge control of many winter annual weeds. Some preemergence herbicides are available in formulations with fertilizers, which simplifies application."

Of course, it's important to follow label instructions in regard to grass species and rates of application when using herbicides. Materials containing atrazine should not be used around trees and shrubs.

As far as disease control is concerned, Duble suggests applying a fungicide on St. Augustine lawns to prevent damage from brownpatch. Not only is brownpatch unsightly, but weeds generally invade the lawn in disease-weakened areas. Also spring recovery

"Another fall task for homeowners is to remove excess accumulations of grass clippings or tree leaves from the lawn," points out Duble. "The excess debris from these sources increases thatch accumulation and creates a favorable habitat for insects and disease organisms."

So, for attractive lawns this fall and to insure good spring recovery, homeowners need to fertilize and use preventative pesticides as well as mow regularly.

Fort Sam hosts retiree open house to answer questions on changes

SAN ANTONIO — Military retirees interested in the latest developments concerning their retirement benefits are urged to attend the annual Retiree Open House at Fort Sam Houston Friday and Saturday, October 16-17.

"We invite all retired service people and their dependents to attend the open house because this information is vitally important to them", said Maj. Gen. (ret.) Edward I. Creed, chairman of the Ft. Sam Houston Retiree Council, the volunteer group which sponsors the open house.

"There have been some significant rulings made lately that many people will want to take advantage of."

Retirees will learn about the Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting System (DEERS) which verifies which family members of both active duty and retired military personnel are eligible for medical benefits.

DEERS is a mandatory program instituted by the U.S. Congress to ensure that only those eligible for medical benefits receive them.

Another program to be discussed at the Retiree Open House is the Survivor Benefit Program (SBP). SBP enables a retired military person to surrender military retirement pay to his or her survivors, but a person has to enroll in the program before they retire. However, SBP is currently offering an open enrollment period through September, 1982, for those who did not elect to participate in the program the first time it was offered to them.

The Retiree Open House diner dance at the Fort Sam begins October 16 with a Houston NCO Club at 7:30 p.m.

The program on Saturday starts at 8 a.m. and continues through 4 p.m. at Willis Hall, AHS Building 2841.

Keynote speakers on Saturday include San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros; Lt. Col. Robert R. Kauffman, of the Department of the Army, Retired Activities Division; Col. Elmer Faust, senior vice-president of National Bank of Ft. Sam Houston; and Brig. Gen. Tracy E. Strevey, BAMC Commander.

Added features of the open house include free mini-physicals for the attendees and the opportunity to talk with Fort Sam Houston directors about legal matters, transportation, finance, commissary privileges, education, exchange and recreation services.

In addition, civic, patriotic, and retired military organizations will be represented.

Those who wish to make a reservation for the dinner dance and find out more about the Retiree Open House are asked to contact John Fuschich, retirement services officer, at Building 341, Ft. Sam Houston, San Antonio, Texas 78234, or call (512) 221-5958.

Rockport pumper team to compete at Refugio fair

REFUGIO — The Rockport Volunteer Fire Department pumper team will demonstrate their skill and speed at the Refugio County Fair pumper races this Saturday, October 3. The pumper races will be held on the county fair grounds at 5 p.m. and are only part of the many exciting events offered at this year's fair.

New events and changes in the fair are causing a lot of excitement and enthusiasm. A chili cook-off, cowboy horse races, increased number of livestock and poultry to be auctioned, and a horseless rodeo for County youth are new or changed events, reports Glen Naylor, Fair Board chairman.

A cutting horse show is being added again after a couple of years' absence. Jackpot roping has been added, also. With the new improved roping chutes, much more use is being made of the covered rodeo arena where activities can be held in any kind of weather.

Books to the Saturday night rodeo, produced by Vic's Rodeo Company, will be open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Saturday, October 3. The number to call is 512-526-4681. A capacity crowd is expected with a large group of cowboys participating.

Quality and numbers of 4-H livestock have improved due to last year's sale, adds Naylor.

Arts, crafts, many commercial exhibits, food items and needlework can be seen in the Exhibition Building and a flea market will be located in the area of the barbecue area, Naylor states.

First place team

The Rockport Volunteer Fire Department's six man pumper team is ready to prove their skill at the upcoming Refugio County Fair pumper races. The team, recent first place winners in the San Marcos Chilypiad races hope to better their all-time competition record of 14.7 seconds with their performance in Refugio. That record time was set in a race against the Portland team, here in Rockport last August. Pumper race time varies due to the host city's water pressure, but the team is confident they will set a new record in Refugio. Team members are [top] John Kelly, [left to right] Rick McLester, Ronnie Roberts, Team Captain Willard Cox and Louis Solis. The sixth team member, Todd Reynolds, is not pictured. Chrysanthemums never go out of style

By Ted Brice,
The Garden Editor

Chrysanthemums can be traced as far back as the Ming dynasty. There are as many historians claiming the chrysanthemums originated in Japan as there are who claim China as the originating country for the chrysanthemum. Many people think the flag of Japan displays the rising sun when in fact originally the yellow-red center of the flag of Japan was taken from a spider chrysanthemum.

Chrysanthemums moved from the Far East to England where a lot of cross breeding took place by many hybridizers and the English chrysanthemum was produced. The chrysanthemum then migrated to the United States where today it is the largest year-round pot plant grown.

There are many individual types of chrysanthemums. Basically we have the Garden Hardy which grows outside in the landscape in mass plantings. Then we have the disbud which can be grown in flower beds or in pots. Basically the requirements of both types are the same. Within the two above-mentioned types we have additional breakdowns such as the Incurve (Football Type), the Spider, the Decorative, the Reflex, the Pompon, the Anemone, the Spoon, the Quill and the Brush and Thistle.

We have two methods of obtaining chrysanthemum plants — by cuttings and by seeds. When planting chrysanthemums from seed you will never obtain a true cultivar because of the cross pollination. The professional and show grower always plants anew from cuttings. This ensures a true cultivar. The Garden Hardy type will repeat year after year from the same root system. When the Garden Hardy type has completed its blooming cycle and the leaves have turned brown, cut them back to the ground level and mulch with leaves. They will return in the spring.

Chrysanthemums like a slightly acid soil with a good organic base. Mums do not like wet feet, but to do their best and reward you with good blooms in size and color they should never be allowed to dry out. When planting chrysanthemums never overcrowd them. Plant the mums on 15- to 18-inch centers.

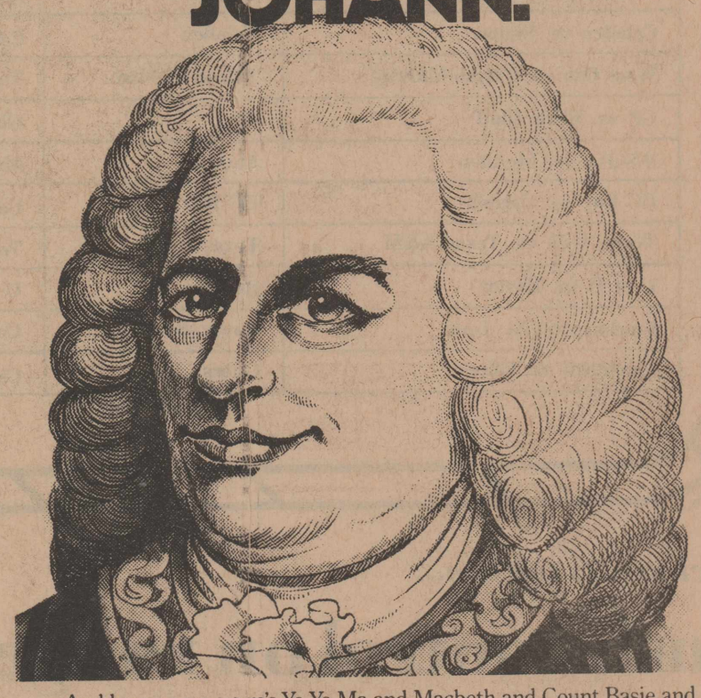

Chrysanthemums need to be fed on a regular basis every two weeks to obtain the maximum in bloom and clarity in color. Remember mums, as well as other plants, must have the fertilizer converted into a liquid before they can use it. If you use a water-soluble fertilizer such as a 20/20/20 you are furnishing fertilizer in liquid form to begin with, ready for the mum to use at once. If you will pinch back the chrysanthemum you will get an abundance of blooms.

Throughout the South and Southwest, we have many chrysanthemum chapters that are associated with the National Chrysanthemum Society, which welcomes visitors to their monthly meetings and shows. If your area does not have a Chrysanthemum Society Chapter and there is a minimum of 10 interested people, I will be most happy to help you set up a chapter and obtain your national charter. If you are interested, you may contact me by writing to this newspaper.

So long for now and good gardening till next time from your Garden Editor, Ted Brice.

Brush control on rangeland can double livestock production

By Robert Haney
TAES Science Writer

Texas rangelands are being robbed every year of 40 to 50 percent of their food productive capacity by a tenacious enemy, brush.

An estimated 80 percent of the State's 90 million acres of rangeland has brush problems ranging from light to severe, according to Dr. Charles Scifres, range scientist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

"If we can regain control of this land, we could get a great increase in livestock production each year. It's estimated that effective control of mesquite alone would increase annual beef production in the State by 68 to 136 million pounds," Scifres says.

"Of course, control of a variety of other brush types such as the oaks and mixed brush could result in an even greater increase of livestock and range related products."

There is no single, perfect method for controlling brush, according to Scifres, who is making a lifework of helping Texas landowners fight these invaders.

Every available approach to coping with the brush problem, whether chemical, mechanical, biological or burning, is characterized by certain weaknesses as well as obvious strengths, Scifres says.

Weaknesses of conventional single-treatment methods include 1) incomplete control of target population of brush, 2) failure to control troublesome species associated with target species, 3) treatment cost that is too high and/or life of treatment effect which is inadequate to provide economic return, and/or 4) killing desirable forbs, such as certain native legumes.

Research is underway to provide alternatives to the traditional single-treatment approach by developing systems which take advantage of the unique strength(s) of each method while compensating for (or overcoming) it's charateristic weakness(es).

Development of effective Integrated Brush Management Systems (IBMW) requires that all processes for designing, implementing, and maintaining range improvement — from the development of objectives for a given management unit to assessment of economic feasibility — be given appropriate consideration.

Thus, Scifres says, no two IBMS would necessarily be expected to be exactly the same because of differences in the objectives of land use.

Since herbicide-firebased systems have proven effective for improvement of rangeland supporting stands of certain difficult-to-control species, a selected example is given to illustrate research progress.

This brief presentation is not meant to imply, Scifres emphasizes, that other approaches would not be effective and assumes that grazing management is sound for the management unit to be improved.

Spiny aster, also called "wolfweed", infests some of the more productive lowland range sites on the Coastal Prairie. Treatments with conventional herbicides have not been effective and mechanical top removal provides only temporary suppression.

However, shredding followed by application of one lb/acre (active ingredient) of picloram pellets effectively controls the spiny aster.

Prescribed burning at about three-year intervals, depending on rainfall, perpetuates suppression of the spiny aster and promotes the more desirable range forage species.

Other systems which appear promising are prescribed burning with picloram pellets applied immediately after the fires for McCartney rose; tebuthiuron pellets and prescribed burning for whitebrush; and aerial sprays of 2,4,5-T plus picloram and prescribed burning for running mesquite.

continued research on new herbicides such as hexazinone and refinements in the use of prescribed burning may further enhance the landowner's alternatives for developing effective systems to meet specific needs.

With ever-rising costs of all potential treatments, the range manager of the 1980's must become increasingly skillful with investments in brush management.

Although more research is needed, Scifres says, the IBMS approach appears promising for meeting a wide array of brush management needs.

IBMS research will continue to focus upon utilization of new technology while refining the use of methods such as prescribed burning for their applicationin an appropriate sequence to achieve specific range improvement goals, Scifres concludes.

Seguin takes care of own

By Ida Kenny, director
Senior Communications Center

Following cuts in many Federally-funded grants, Seguin has offered an example that could solve the funding problems for the elderly individuals that are isolated in their homes and need a hot meal to enable them to stay in their own homes.

A united organization of the different churches prepares and delivers meals that have been cooked by the Texas Lutheran College. The church group packages and delivers them to the individuals.

Their work is partially funded for costs of mileage by the Retired Senior Volunteer Program and those served pay for their meals on a sliding scale basis. This is in addition to a central nutrition site in Seguin where a hot meal is served five times per week for approximately 63 individuals.

A central Guadalupe County kitchen prepares an average of 153 meals per day that are then delivered to Seguin, Marion, Sweet-Home and Statler nutrition sites for the elderly. They have, in turn, contributed over $6,171.41 in free-will donations to pay for the meals over the last eleven months.

This enables many an elderly individual to remain independent and self-sufficient, where they would have been unable to do so without the meals.

Meals from this central kitchen in Seguin also are delivered to Comal County, Wilson County and Karnes County for an average daily attendance of 352 elderly individuals. They, in turn, have contributed over $17,949.57 over the past 11 months in voluntary donations.

No fixed amount is asked — the individual is asked to donate whatever he or she feels they can afford. If you multiplied the 352 individuals by the $1,000 per month, for the average cost in a nursing home, the State would be saving $352,000 per month by lending the elderly a helping hand.

"Members of the City Council, it has been said that 'man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn' and it is sad — but when our City Government thinks it is more important to spend over a million dollars on art...and let 500 old people go without food, or meals — IT IS BAD!

"When you let 500 old people go hungry while our City Council people, their wives and employees go galloping off to Switzerland on a luxury trip to sell our precious land to foreigners —IT IS REALLY BAD!

"We can't expect the federal government to do everything for us. We have depended upon it for too much too long. But there are millions of dollars you have collected in sales taxes from me and others like me — millions you have collected in property taxes and garbage fees, and sewer fees, and any other fees you can dream up. These have been wasted on coal-burning plants, on atomic plants and other nonsense.

"You've given City employees an eight percent raise, with all their other benefits, yet you say, 'let the old people starve!' SHAME ON YOU!

Shrimporee on schedule

ARANSAS PASS — The weekend of October 23, 24, 25 marks the thirty-third annual Aransas Pass Shrimporee.

The time-honored event, sponsored by the Aransas Pass Chamber of Commerce, will begin Friday, October 23 with the traditional blessing of the shrimp fleet berthed in Conn Brown Harbor.

The ecumenical clergy will lead the boat parade as they seek the blessings of a bountiful harvest of shrimp and the safe return of the boats and their crews. A backdrop of religious pageantry will set the stage for this age-old custom, which dates back to eighth-century England.

Saturday morning, October 24, will see the Shrimporee parade entries, more than 100 in all, wind their way through the streets of Aransas Pass en route to Roosevelt Stadium where games, food berths, and arts and crafts are on display.

The queen of the shrimporee will be crowned at 1 p.m. Immediately following, the Shrimporee beauty pageant will begin with categories for youth and adult beauties.

The stadium will also be the scene of the games for contest enthusiasts of all ages. Contestants will be able to choose from the hula hoop marathon, the Great American Bubble Gum Blow-off, the World Famous Shrimp Eating championship and of course the Men's Sexy Legs contest.

The urban cowboys in the crowd will be judged in the cowboy hat contest and teams of five people will attempt to unseat the Aransas Pass Rotary Club from their throne in the Great Outhouse race.

An authentic reproduction of a gunfight will be staged with five fast drawing gunfighters, sponsored by Pearl Beer. These gunfighters will putting on four or five gunfights each day in front of Judge Roy Bean's Shack on the stadium grounds.

The chamber of commerce will be providing 15 different kinds of foods and chamber officials expect several thousand people in attendance.

Goliad schedule released

Officials of the South Texas Race Association, operators of La Bahia Downs in Goliad, have announced details of the stake schedule for their 1982 Spring Meet.

Association president Leonard Von Dohlen III predicted a world record non-mutual Derby Purse for the 1982 South Texas Derby. The Lone Star Brewery and the Goliad Chamber of Commerce will add $12,500 to the Derby Purse, and Von Dohlen said this should result in a gross purse estimated at $125,000.

This added money will help keep Texas as the country's Number One non-mutual racing state. the horse industry is booming nationwide, and with record purses like these horsemen throughout the nation are expected to compete.

La Bahia previously held the non-mutual Derby Purse record when it ran its 1974 Derby with a gross purse of $29,450. The present record is $67,212 and is held by Val Verde Downs in Del Rio.

La Bahia Downs added $5,000 to its Derby in 1981 and its gross purse was $64,186. The 1981 Derby was won by Kid at Heart.

Track officials are confident with the $12,500 added money the $125,000 purse is attainable. South Texas Derby trials are scheduled for March 20 with the finals and consolations set for March 28.

A number of innovations are being added to the 1982 South Texas Derby. There will be $2,000 in Nominators and Trainers Awards. Each trial heat winner will receive a $400 gold and silver Nelson Silva Trophy Belt Buckle.

The number of consolations will be determined by the number of paid in full entries. Nomination deadline without penalty is December 1.

The companion feature will be the 1982 Texas Futurity "Breeders Stake" for two-year-olds.

Here also a record purse is forecast. The Texas Futurity, with an estimated purse of $350,000, will have at least $25,000 added. As of this release the final figure is not set.

The 1981 Futurity had a gross purse of $226,764 and was won by Pampers Oh. The 1981 purse broke the previous La Bahia Downs record purse of $151,700 set in 1971.

The Texas Futurity trials are scheduled for March 27 with the finals and consolation to be run Sunday, April 4.

The Futurity will offer Nominators and Trainers Awards of $4,000. Like the Derby, the trial heat winners will receive a $400 gold and silver trophy belt buckle. Nomination deadline without penalty is December 1.

A complete schedule of other stakes and features includes the Great Texas Championship Series, Goliad Graded Championship Series, Zaragosa Sprint, La Bahia State Bred Feature, Anticipation Feature, Yellow Rose of Texas Dash and Mission City Dash.

Hornets put 36-6 sting on R-F Pirates

By Bob Crawford

It was one of those times when all things seemed equal — size, speed, etc.

However, the difference proved to be execution, both by the Flour Bluff offensive and defensive units in one sense, and another execution by the yellow flags left on the ground in another.

Flour Bluff riddled the Pirate defense for over 300 yards on the ground in their 36-6 win over the Pirate Stadium last Friday night.

The Pirates were flagged for 120 yards in penalties, many of which came against the defense at crucial times, allowing the Bluff to keep drives alive. Rockport's defense played well on the first two plays of the Hornet possessions, but then everything went crazy in the scheme of things, and Flour Bluff converted 11 total times on third down to pick up important first downs.

The Hornets used a balanced running attack, using four runners to knife and dart through the Pirate defense.

A hint of things to come was seen early in the first quarter when the Hornets broke for a 62-yard touchdown run, but had the run called back. Three things became evident on that play; the Bluff had speed to break away; the Pirates were back to their arm tackling habits; the officials were going to play a big part in the game.

Late in the first period, Rockport punter Adam Harden got a good roll on the ball and pinned the Hornets back in their own end of the field. But between the Bluff and some strange penalties called against the Pirates — Flour Bluff moved the ball down to the Pirate 30 yard line.

Quarterback Todd Sells must have studied last week's game films of the Gregory-Portland game, because he pulled some of the same wizardry performed by Kent Harris a week earlier and kept the football and scored on a 29-yard run. The extra point put the Bluff out front 7-0.

A Pirate fumble and a penalty set up the next Flour Bluff score. Sells, a fine runner, did some more of his magic and got into the end zone a second time.

Harden, operating at the helm for the Pirates, had a rough night as he coughed up the ball twice and threw for two interceptions. One of those fumbles came near the end of the half after David Kelly had intercepted a Hornet pass, and the Pirates were on the Bluff 20 yard line knocking on the door as time ran out in the first half.

Lupe Contreras had also gotten the ball for the Pirates on another interception, but the Pirates failed to make anything of it.

Rockport came hustling back in the third quarter only to have a fumble by Dwayne Walls stop their progress. Flour Bluff took that mistake and pushed the ball down the field in 12 plays for the score.

The Pirate defense, led by Eddie Naro with 23 total hits for the game, gave up yards sparingly on the drive until Joe Trumble broke loose for a 31-yard scoring run. That score and the two point conversion allowed the Hornets to jump ahead 22-0.

The Pirates put together an 80-yard drive to get their only points for the night following the kickoff. Walls and Michael Simmons ran harder in that drive than they had all night.

A big play in the drive came on a Harden scramble as he tried to pass. Not finding a receiver, he moved downfield to pick up an important first down. As the drive continued, the ball was eventually advanced to the four yard-line.

Simmons skirted his right end and got the Pirates on the board. Perhaps, this was the beginning of another Pirate comeback.

Unfortunately not. The Bluff added two more scores and the Pirates fell back into drawing penalties at crucial times. In fact, Simmons took a kickoff back 85 yards only to have a yellow flag wipe it out.

Along with Naro on defense, Scott Meyer, Scott McMillan, David Kelly and Matt Logan all had at least 11 hits on defense. Those are linebackers and secondary people. That probably means that the offensive line of the Bluff was doing a number on the Pirate defensive line to spring their backs loose.

So, what turned out to be a game with equal players, did not end with equal players.

JV Pirates beat Bluff

Rockport-Fulton used a powerful running game to demolish Flour Bluff's JV 32-0 in Flour Bluff Thursday night. The victory brings the JV's record to 2-1 for the season thus far.

On the merits of some fine running by backs Steve Arkell and Mike Riddle, the Pirates rolled up over 300 yards on the ground in the contest. Riddle led all runners for the night with 204 yards, and he would have pressed the 300 yard mark if three long runs had not been called back.

Arkell added 125 to the total, sending both backs over the 100 mark for the second time this season.

Things began going wrong for the Bluff early in the game when the Pirate defense forced a punt on the first possession. The ball was kicked short, and speedy Robert Dominguez picked up the ball and returned it 32 yards for an apparent score, but a flag called the play back.

The Pirates made up for the flag as they moved the ball into the end zone, scoring on a three yard run by Arkell.

Rockport's next score was a long time coming, and a bit bizarre at that. David Cochran recovered a Hornet fumble to stop a Hornet threat. The Pirates were unable to move the ball so Bobby Dingenary had to go into punt formation. His punt did not appear to be anything special as it left his foot, but it hit and began to roll and roll and roll.

Sixty-three yards later the ball came to rest on the Hornet seven. A flag was thrown at the end of the play, however, letting the Hornets out of the hole. Eventually the Hornets had to kick.

Then Riddle broke for a long run to the end zone, but a yellow flag brought that back. The Pirates continued to grind the ball down the field and eventually overcame the penalty and scored on a run by Riddle from eight yards away.

Philip Ochoa recovered another Hornet fumble on the next series, and the Pirates took advantage, getting an Arkell run of two yards for the six. That score gave the Pirates a lead of 18-0 by halftime.

Rockport nearly pulled off a long scoring pass play late in the half, but the ball was thrown too close to the the sideline and Derek Conn stepped out after making a nice catch of the ball.

The second half belonged to the Pirate defense. Flour Bluff managed only four yards on the ground for the final 24 minutes of play, and the quarterback for the Bluff did not complete a pass becuase he was gunshy from the rush of Pirate attackers, especially Benny Crabtree and James Thomas.

Arkell fumbled in the early going of the third peirod, but Tom Weaver got the ball back for the Pirates on a recovery of his own. Riddle converted that turnover on the very next play, going 42 yards for the TD. Riddle added the two points after the score, and the Pirates led 26-0.

Kevin Billeiter was responsible for setting up the next Pirate score as he intercepted a pass at the Pirate thirty-seven yard-line.

Flour Bluff dumps Rockport frosh, 20-6

Playing the best game of the season thus far, the Pirate Freshmen were in the game all the way, but fell short on three occasions to score in their 20-6 loss to Flour Bluff.

The loss keeps the Pirates winless, and Flour Bluff has yet to be beaten.

Rockport got into trouble early on a fumble, but Rodney Adkins got the ball back on a recovery for the Pirates. The Pirates came back, using a long pass from quarterback Louis Solis to Bill Mott to move across midfield.

The drive continued until the Pirates got to the Hornet 30 - yard line. A penalty finally took them out of position, and they had to punt the ball away.

The Bluff fumbled the ball at their own ten, and Grant Jones recovered for the Pirates. Somehow, the Pirates never got it, losing a perfect opportunity to take the lead.

From the seven, Flour Bluff began to move the football. At first it was a bit at a time, but then they hit the bomb for 54 yards, giving them first and goal at the Pirate seven.

That play would have gone all the way if it had not been for a tremendous effort by Ronnie Wagoner who chased the runner down from behind. Flour Bluff tried to take themselves out of scoring opportunities with a penalty but they regrouped and put the ball into the end zone.

Before the second quarter was over, the Bluff added another score on a quarterback keeper. That score came as a result of a pass interception made earlier by the Hornet defense.

In the second half the Pirates got in hot water when Wagoner punted for just eight yards. However, the Pirate defense handled it well and stopped the Bluff.

The Pirates move down to the Hornet 12 yard line on their next drive, but again it appeared that the Pirates are so unaccustomed to scoring that they can't. Somehow a dropped pass, a penalty, and an interception stopped the attempt.

Rockport's defense got the ball back for the offense on a fumble recovery.

Bill Mott recovered a fumble later in the fourth period at the Pirates' twenty-eight. After failing to move the ball, Rockport punted and the defense held.

After a Hornet punt, the Pirates finally got on the scoreboard following an incredible play. The Pirates flooded the passing zone near the goal line, and Solis hurled the ball.

Ronnie Sifuentes had the ball for a moment, but it slipped away. However, before the ball hit the ground, Mott extended his arms and made a catch of the ball. Rockport had the ball at the three yard line. Shawn Johnson put the ball into the end zone to give the Pirates a score.

Flour Bluff went on to score again, but the Pirates had played their best to date. Wagoner led all tacklers from his linebacker position, and Mott ran a close second.

Rudy Soliz, filling in for the injured Trinelle Walls, knifed his way through the Flour Bluff defense for 45 yards on nine carries to lead the offense.

'Eyes of Texas' to be focused on Rockport's Jane Turner

The "Eyes of Texas" will be focused on Jane Turner sometime within the next few months.

Jane and her doll house reproduction of Rockport's historic Mathis House were the subject of a special visit to Rockport this week by Bill Springer with the well-known "Eyes of Texas" television show.

Springer came to Rockport Monday afternoon from Houston to film Jane and the house which is currently on display in Estelle Stair's Art Gallery on Austin Street.

The house — Jane's most ambitious house to date and the third reproduction doll house she has built — was commissioned by the Mathis Family, who made a $10,000 donation to the Rockport Art Association's building fund.

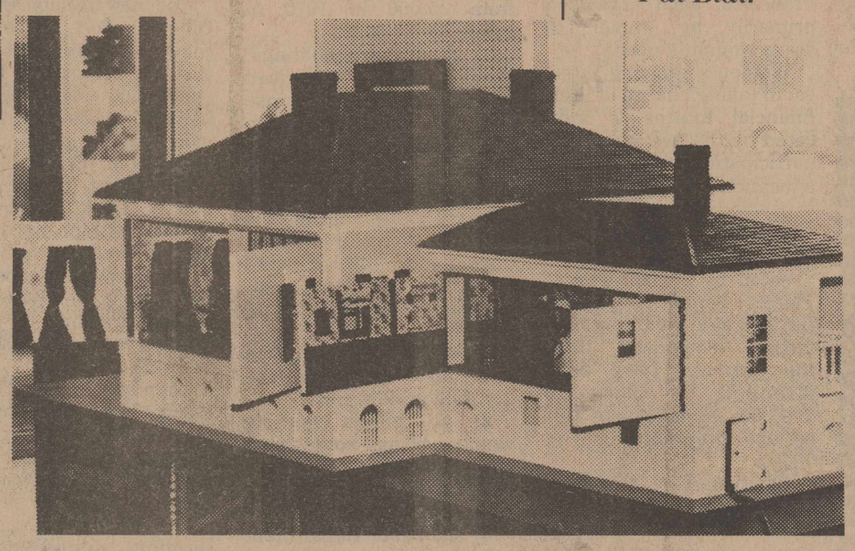

Springer said Monday the segment on the house will be aired on "Eyes of Texas" "sometime between the end of October and May" but no specific date has been selected yet.

He added the show will air in Houston one week before it is shown in the Corpus Christi area.

Everything in the house is a copy of the Mathis House as it was circa 1870, in keeping with the Mathis family's request. Rugs, furnishings and other acces - sories are faithful copies of the actual items in the home located on 621 South Church and the doll "family" is dressed in clothing copied from Mathis family photographs.

Jane's first doll house, constructed about two years ago, was modeled on the Gingerbread architectural lines seen in some of the older homes in the Galveston area. Her second house was an external reproduction of the Smith home on Broadway.

Area has high lung cancer rate

"Some 6,000 Texans will be diagnosed as having lung cancer this year. Of those, 5,500 will die within five years with the Gulf Coastal and Port areas having an excessive incidence of lung cancer."

This hard-hitting fact was just one of the issues addressed by Dr. Charles A. LeMaistre, president of the University of Texas System Cancer Center, Houston, at the Corpus Christi fund raising luncheon for M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute September 18 at the Nueces Club.

The luncheon — hosted by Charles Butt, president of H.E. Butt Grocery Company; Bill Carl, president of Carl Oil and Gas; and Paul Haas, president of Corpus Christi Oil and Gas — marked the beginning of the M.D. Anderson Annual Campaign, an 11-city tour across Texas.

Butt, 1981 M.D. Anderson Annual Campaign Chairman, said the fund drive, held every fall, secures private donations to aid in cancer research, treatment and patient education at M.D. Anderson Hospital.

"Over $1.2 million was raised in the 1980 Annual Campaign comprising 20 percent of the total funds raised for the hospital," explained John Bush, executive director of the University Cancer Foundation. "Our goal is to beat that figure and we are confident this will be accomplished through the leadership of Charles Butt."

"Forty percent of the world-renowned cancer center funds come from state appropriations. Federal cutbacks will have a negative impact on cancer research and funds from the private sector are vital for the continuation of breakthroughs in cancer research," Butt added.

The funds obtained through the annual campaign are used as seed money to provide one-to-three year grants for young scientists beginning initial cancer research projects.

"Our goal is to eliminate cancer as the number two killer," Dr. LeMaistre said. "We haven't licked cancer yet — but the potential is there."

Arbotec t injections working

Injections of arbotect are giving "real good luck" in treating live oak decline, says county agricultural agent Mike Rothrock — provided the treatment is done as soon as possible.

"It is real critical to treat trees as soon as you suspect the disease," Rothrock said.

Live oak decline — which, despite its name, strikes just about all species of oak trees — has been a problem in this area for several years.

"It is not an epidemic," Rothrock added. "It's spotted — but you can find the disease in most areas of Aransas County."

The disease is caused by a fungus (arbotect is a fungicide) and results in the gradual decline, and eventual death, of the tree. That, Rothrock said, is one of the problems in recognizing the period from onset to death of the untreated tree may span from three to six years.

"You just see a little more decline each year," the county agent elaborated.

Treatment consists of injecting the tree with the same type of apparatus that is used to inject trees inflicted with Dutch elm disease in the North.

However, Rothrock added, the owner of the tree

Rothrock added he will provide information on supplies and procedure for making the apparatus and injecting the tree.

Anyone who wants to make the kit himself or herself can contact Rothrock either at his Sinton office — 364-2334 — or at the Aransas County Courthouse on Rockport's regular visit here next Tuesday. Rothrock added the kit can be made for less cost than it can be purchased.

Kits can be ordered through at least some area nurseries, Rothrock added.

Tax discount offered

Rockport residents who pay their city ad valorem taxes 90 days early — in October — will receive a three percent discount on those taxes.

Discounts for early payment of taxes and penalty and interest charges for late tax payment were officially adopted in Monday's meeting of the Rockport city council.

City Secretary Herman Johnson pointed out that the penalty and interest rates, although adopted by the city council, are actually set by the State of Texas — and are double the rates for last year.

Residents who pay their city taxes in November will receive a two percent discount and those paying in December receive a one percent discount under the newly-approved city ordinances.

Penalty and interest rates are assessed beginning in February and are a total of seven percent penalty and interest if tax is paid in February; nine percent in March; 11 percent in April; 13 percent in May; 15 percent in June; 18 percent in July. After July, an additional one percent will be added per each month delinquent.

Sheriff's Report

An eight-month-old black Labrador Retriever was reported stolen last Wednesday afternoon from the front yard of the dog's owner, Howard Brown, 110 South Kossuth.

Brown told deputies it was the second time the dog had been taken, adding that about a week earlier, he saw his dog in a 1979 or 1980 Blazer parked in front of the Ice Box at the Market/Highway 35 intersection. He said he recovered the dog at that time.

The missing animal is solid black, has a small scar on the top of its head and was wearing a red collar at the time of Wednesday's theft. The dog is already trained and answers to the name of "Blue."

Brown estimated the dog's value at about $300.

Vessel burglarized

A fuel pump valued at $140 was taken when the "Tequila Shiela", a boat owned by Roy Stuman, was burglarized last week.

Stuman said the vessel was in Palm Harbor Marina slip 15 at the time of the burglary which occurred between 5 p.m. September 18 and 5 p.m. last Tuesday.

Woman investor: Women need educating

Despite a growing financial sophistication, many women still fear making investment decisions because they generally lack the education and experience necessary to do so.

In a recent survey of working women conducted by the Investment Company Institute, 75 percent of those married said they play an equal role with their husbands in saving and investment decisions.

Almost 72 percent of the unmarried women made savings-investment decisions themselves and 25 percent said they made them with the help of others. But about 36 percent of these woman who play an active role in their financial affaris do not feel comfortable making decisions. The women who totally refrained from decision-making gave reasons such as: they lacked the education to make the right decisions, they were afraid to lose money or they didn't know whom to trust.

The survey also found there was a startling lack of diversification in unmarried women's (including divorced, widowed and single women) financial holdings; an overwhelming number have only savings accounts. One of four also owned U.S. Savings Bonds, but only 15 percent owned stocks and less than eight percent owned mutual funds of any kind. This lack of diversification is, in most cases, attributed to an information gap with respect to various investment alternatives.

Women are showing a growing need for financial education. In response, there are investment books especially for women, regular money information columns in women's magazines, special promotions for women by financial publications and financial seminars.

Women's banks have been opened in more than half dozen cities stretching from New York to San Francisco, each organized primarily by women to serve women's needs.

Women's growing interest in taking charge of their financial futures is indicated by the overwhelming participation in a series of educational seminars about investing and finance, "Financial Freedom: Taking the First Steps." Created by Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Incorporated, the nation's largest investment firm, the seminars have been attended by close to 200,000 women since this national program began in 1976.

Conducted by Ann Benson, Investor Information Specialist for Merrill Lynch, the seminars cover such topics as setting personal financial goals, understanding the language of investing, selecting a financial advisor, retirement planning and tax-favored investment strategies.

"Women know more about money than they think they do," says Merrill Lynch's Ann Benson. "They have a critical eye and extensive experience as consumers. To learn about the world of finance, all you need is common sense and confidence. It's a question of putting your money to work."

What is women's current financial power?

1) From 1970 to 1979, 12 million women joined the labor force, accounting for 60 percent of its growth.

2) As stated in the Wall Street Journal, 50.4 percent of American millionaires are women.

3) According to the New York Stock Exchange, women represent 49.1 percent of all adult stockholders. About 13.5 million women participate in stock ownership, mutual funds or pension plans.

4) Women control the spending of almost half a trillion dollars a year, and contribute about one fourth of total family income.

5) Earnings: Total earnings of working women rose 150 percent since 1970, to $390 billion from $127.4 billion.

6) High-salaried women: Working women earning $25,000-a-year or more rose from 25,000 in 1970 to 1,055,760 in 1979.

7) Credit card holdings: Women holding American Express credit cards rose from 0.7 million in 1972 to 2.1 million in 1980.

It is the growing number of working women that appears to be shifting the balance. Women holding paying jobs, once a small minority, soon may outnumber those who stay at home.

1) In 1980, women were hired for 60 percent of the 2.4 million new jobs.

2) 41 million working women bring home paychecks totaling an estimated $390 billion or more each year.

3) The Labor Department estimates there will be as many as 54.3 million women workers in the United States by 1990.

4) In 1950, women professionals numbered 1.8 million. In 1980, there were 6.9 million.

5) In 1950, only 15 percent of the 6.4 million managers and administrators were women. In 1980, female representation in the managerial category was 26.1 percent.

6) Enrollment in colleges and universities is now 50 percent female.

7) Latest statistics indicate that women account for 13.4 percent of the nation's doctors and 13 percent of the lawyers.

In the past, there was a strong statistical link between a wife's decision to work and her family's financial needs. Now, however, well-to-do women have been returning to the labor force at a rapid rate.

According to recent Labor Statistics, 46 percent of the U.S. families whose annual income was between $15,000 and $50,000 had working wives.

Therefore, not only are women assuming an active role in managing their personal finances, they are now more self-supporting, larger contributors to the family income, and their salaries are a major factor in the status of top-income families.

"But women still tend to play it safe," says Ann Benson. "They often make the mistake of undervaluing their net worth and putting extra cash in low-yield savings accounts, rather than in financial programs that offer larger returns. With education, and the confidence that comes with it, we see a greater desire by women for growth as well as security."

Plans underway for Texas supertanker port

BAYTOWN (CN) — If a newly-formed consortium of petroleum and chemical companies stays together and within nine months accepts a federal construction license, Texas may be bragging on a deepwater port for oil supertankers off the Texas coast by 1986.

The third try to build the second such facility on the Gulf Coast is now off the ground and is expected to produce the new superport within five years if everything goes according to plan.

Drew Lewis, Secretary of the U.S. Department of Transportation, has signed a license for construction of the estimated $191 million port which would be the second such installation on the Gulf of Mexico.

The first, Louisiana Offshore Oil Port 18 miles south of Grand Isle, started test operations in May of this year and is programmed to begin regular operations in November.

The new facility will be called Texas Offshore Port. It will be built by a consortium (group) of four petroleum and chemical companies. It would when fully operational unload approximately 50,000 barrels of crude oil per day at a single point mooring buoy in water 71 feet deep about 12 miles off Freeport.

The crude, to be moved by tankers' pumps, would be carried by a 56-inch submerged pipeline to near Jones Creek west of Freeport harbor.

The oil would then be pumped ashore for refineries in the Freeport area through the Seaway Pipeline to a major pipeline junction at Cushing, Oklahoma, to the U.S. midsection.

Members of the TOP consortium are Phillips Investment Company, a subsidiary of Phillips Petroleum, as operator; Dow Chemical; Continental Pipe Line, a Conoco subsidiary; and Seaway Pipeline Company, which is owned by seven oil companies.

The line would stop at Seaway Pipeline's terminal southwest of Freeport, an installation which is now tied in with the U.S. Strategic petroleum Reserve at Bryan Mound.

At the beginning, TOP would unload about 350,000 barrels of oil per day from fully-loaded supertankers weighing up to 200,000 deadweight tons lightened.

The current timetable calls for construction, which should take about 18 months, to begin within two years and to be completed within five years.

TOP has nine months to accept or reject its construction license.

Secretary Lewis said the port would cut the cost of transporting crude oil and significantly reduce the risk of environmental damage from oil spills.

Rick Middleton, a lawyer from the Sierra Club, an environmental group, said environmentalists have not opposed offshore ports as long as they are properly constructed.

The Sierra Club is challenging a proposal to build an on-shore port for supertankers near Galveston, Middleton said. He added that he hopes construction of the offshore docking facility near Freeport might help scuttle the Galveston project.

Secretary Lewis said that while he was approving a license for the Freeport project, he was not necessarily opposed to the Galveston port and that the two might serve different markets.

George Pierides, engineer in the federal Ports Division of the Department of Transportation, said as far as he knew there were no objections to the off-Freeport site at public hearings held earlier this summer.

"I think these people are serious this time. They see the need for bringing in their own oil (despite a worldwide oil glut at this time)," he said.

Use of the terminal must under the license requirements be open to the public with the tariff to be charged to be determined after costs are known.

The construction license signed September 21 in Washington allows TOP to postpone building tanks at the pipeline's end as long as it can lease three million barrels of capacity from Seaway Pipeline, which now has a capacity of 4.2 million barrels.

TOP could be expanded to carry 650,000 barrels of crude per day, but until it exceeds an oil flow of 50,000 barrels daily it won't need to build three proposed tanks, Pierides explained.

Two previous attempts have been made to build deepwater offshore oil ports off the Texas coast. The first was proposed in 1972 by Seadock Inc., a consortium of 12 major oil companies which spent some $20 million on the proposed port.

The major firms withdrew from that consortium — a terminal 26 miles off Freeport in 110 feet of water — when license agreements did not satisfy them in early 1978.

In 1978, the Texas Deepwater Port Authority, created by the Texas Legislature to take up where Seadock left off, tried to find backing for a a $1.25 billion offshore port. Oil firms took note of declining foreign crude imports and declined to sign user agreements.

TOP's license was granted sooner than anticipated. It was originally to have been okayed in December, said Pierides, because previous work done by the Coast Guard and the applicants could be applied to the new proposal. While new environmental assessments had to be drafted, much of the information in prior impact statements could be updated.

Whether TOP members will accept or reject the license remains to be seen, Pierides said. "It depends on how the fortunes of imported oil go. These companies appear to know that they will continue importing foreign oil, even from the North Slope and Mexican oil. And Mexico is building some large loading facilities now."

The term of the deepwater port license is 20 years with an option for a 10-year extension.

According to Pierides, TDPA's enabling legislation still on Texas' books could provide a way of financing the Texas Offshore Port.

Husband, wife team in new wall-papering business

If you have a wallpapering job but you're "all thumbs" when it comes to pasting and hanging, you may be interested in Rockport's newest business — Richard Garcia's wallpapering service.

Working out of his home, Richard just got his business off the ground this past week — but he's no novice to the wallpapering profession. He was employed for 11 years in Arkansas "hanging paper," so he brings experience — as well as a pledge of reasonable prices — to his business here.

Assisted by his wife, Pashia, Richard can be contacted at 729-3031 before 8 a.m. or after 5 p.m. six days a week and will take on both residential and commercial jobs. He doesn't supply the wallpaper himself, he added.

The Garcias currently are working on a project at Bayhouse Condominiums and with Sandpiper and Live Oak Real Estate companies.

They moved to Rockport four months ago.

It seems everybody connected with the airline industry has a gripe. The pilots, the air controllers, the passengers.

So what about flight attendants, those glamour girls with the glamour jobs, who used to be called "stewardesses"?

She is Betty, only that isn't her real name either, but flight attendants have to be careful.

"You can't use my name and you can't use the name of my airline either," Betty said to me in the clandestine interview she requested.

Why not?

"We're told not to have an opinion," she answered. "If we're asked a question, we're supposed to just smile and pretend we didn't hear it. If my airline found out I was talking to you, they would fire me, but there are some things that really need to be out in the open."

Such as?

"Such as we're an endangered species because we can't get anything to eat," Betty said.

Explain.

"They expect us to work 13-hour days, but not only are we not provided time to eat, we aren't even provided food. There are just enough meals for the passnegers. The only way we get something to eat is if a passenger refuses his meal."

You get only what a passenger turns up his nose at?

"If we don't get a chance to get to a junk food machine, that's it. Plus, we're not supposed to eat where anybody can see us. We were about to start out on a long flight the other day and I found a leftover sweet roll. I decided to eat it to get something in my stomach. I thought nobody could see me, but a supervisor walked in and wrote me up for eating."

Allow an employee to eat one day, and she'll be asking for restroom privileges the next.

Go on, I said to Betty.

"We get all the ones now who used to ride the bus. They complain constantly and they do weird things. They go in the restrooms and smoke pot, and they even go in the restrooms and have sex."

Sex?

"They do it all the time. They meet on the airplane and then go into the restroom and have sex."

I could have made a remark about the "friendly skies," but I decided not to.

Betty was just getting around to what really has her burning.

"We have to stay in dump hotels on layovers," she said.

Spare us no details.

"We stay in what they call 'airline rooms'. The airlines have a deal with the hotel, so the hotel doesn't bother to take care of the rooms.

"The air conditioning never works. There will always be at least three light bulbs out. And you'll find all sorts of things under the beds. They never clean under the beds. One girl put a banana under her bed, came back a week later, asked for the same room and, sure enough, the banana was still under her bed.

You have complained to your airline and to the hotel?

"Sure," said Betty, "but nobody listens. We don't want luxury. All we want is simple comfort and cleanliness. It's the least we can ask. Without it, we just get frustrated and it eventually takes away from passenger service."

Next time the flight attendant is a little tardy with your martini, consider the fact that she might be hungry and she might have slept the night where a hog would have felt uncomfortable.

And remember to knock before entering the restroom.

CONGRESSMAN BILL PATMAN REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON

The United States is in a risky position as it competes with the Soviet Union for supplies of strategic minerals in parts of the world that are unstable economically, socially and politically.

Dependence on foreign sources of such important minerals as cobalt, chromium, manganese, vanadium and platinum is potentially a greater problem than our dependence on foreign oil.

Fifty-two percent of the world's oil supply is controlled by OPEC, while the lower part of Africa controls 95 percent of the world's vanadium, 53 percent of the world's manganese, and 52 percent of the world's cobalt.

We — and the other industrial nations — are at the mercy of small countries in remote parts of the world which can, overnight, cut off our supply or raise prices of these minerals to outrageous heights.

Becuase of the explosive situation in the southern region of Africa, the United States could face cutoffs or shortages of the minerals which are necessary to produce nearly all the goods we manufacture, from jet planes to automobiles.

The Soviet Union has great power in this area, especially in Angola and Mozambique. Soviet, Cuban and East German troops cast an ominous shadow over the entire area. And South America faces domestic disturbances as well.

In 1973 Leonid Brezhnev minced no words in announcing the Soviet Union's goals for strategic minerals.

"Our aim," he said, "is to gain control of the two great treasure houses on which the West depends: the energy treasure house of the Persian Gulf and the mineral treasure house of central and southern Africa."

Our own current supply of some of these vital minerals would be exhausted in less than 90 days if the foreign supply were shut off. We need these minerals for defense as well as industrial use.

Our nation must take steps at once to stockpile these strategic minerals. Not to do so could mean disaster in a world crisis.

At the same time we build our stockpile from world markets, we must encourage greater exploration and development of mineral resources we have under U.S. soil, including our public lands.

Our practice of withdrawing vast areas of public lands from exploration and mining is hurting. Every care should be taken to protect the environment, but I believe we should aggressively follow a policy of multiple use of our public land.

We have domestic resources of many of the strategic minerals we now import. Cobalt, platinum, manganese, vanadium, chromium, titanium, and aluminum could be produced in our own United States. A major problem today is that domestic production costs more than present world prices.

One suggestion is that we provide our mining industry with price security to encourage production of these strategic minerals within our own borders.

I am co-sponsoring a bill called the National Minerals Security Act of 1981. This bill would:

—Establish a council to develop and implement a national minerals policy.

—Require the Secretary of the Interior to review all land use plans under the Federal Land Policy and Management Act to consider the suitability of public lands for mineral location and leasing.

—Amend the Internal Revenue Code to encourage capital formation for strategic metals mining.

—Require that all money from the sale of materials in the National Defense Stockpile be used only to acquire strategic and critical materials.

—Review antitrust restrictions to see if they are consistent with the policy of the Minerals Security Act.

I would like to hear your views of this proposed legislation. Please write to me at 1408 Longworth Building, Washington, D.C. 20515.

FROM THE

"Low Down" Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

WASHINGTON, D.C. HOW SAFE?

Representative Guy V. Molinari (N.Y.)"...Since the beginning of the year, three members of my staff have been assaulted here in Washington D.C. During the recess a member of my staff stopped at a red light, and before he knew what was happening, three hoodlums entered his vehicle, beat him severely and drove his car to an isolated area. There he was beaten again and thrown into his trunk, where he remained for a couple of hours. He finally managed to pry open the trunk and escape, which conceivably could have saved his life.

"A couple of months ago, the wife of one of my staff members was riding the Metro with her two children in broad daylight and was held up by hoods armed with guns.

"These are not isolated instances, but typical of criminal activity that occurs daily in the Nation's Capital. Indeed, there are a substantial number of Members of Congress who have been mugged and held up over the past couple of years.

"Violent crime is a national problem, especially in our big cities. But, to have the situation be as severe as it is in the Nation's Capital is a national disgrace.

"To think that the Capital of the richest country in the world is riddled with violent crime, and to think that the millions of visitors each year that come to Washington to view the beautiful exhibits must do so at the risk of their lives, is a situation we simply cannot accept.

"We can no longer bury our heads in the sand hoping that this problem will go away. In my judgement, it is getting worse, and we are going to have to declare war on crime in the Capital district.

"I am going to send a copy of this statement to the members of the D.C. Committee in this House as well as in the Senate. I am also going to urge my colleagues to join me in this effort and to work together to come up with a reasonable solution to this problem as quickly as possible.

"I am calling upon Congress to carefully review this serious problem and come up with new ideas..."

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

Why should members of the House and Senate be asked to solve a crime problem that is the responsibility of the Washington D.C. Police Department? The D.C. Committee should ask the Washington police Chief for the answers.
