Bid to complete budget, tax hike work fails

AUSTIN (AP) — A new bid to complete work on the state budget and a tax increase failed in the House today, continuing to deadlock action on the special session's final day.

After repeatedly failing on Monday to find enough votes to immediately enact the largest tax increase in state history, House leaders today sought to soften a "doomsday" plan that had raised the ire of Republicans and some conservative Democrats.

But that tactic angered other Democrats who insisted that lawmakers whose districts benefit from higher taxes should be required to vote for them. The House rejected the amendment plan on a 106-36 vote.

If action isn't completed on the $38.3 billion budget and a $5.7 billion tax increase by midnight, lawmakers would be forced into another special session.

"I don't know what went wrong," House Speaker Gib Lewis said Monday night after a chaotic day in which the House failed repeatedly to ratify a compromise tax plan to pay for the $38.3 billion budget compromise.

"I think its down for the session," Lewis said. "I don't see how we can ... solve this Tuesday (today)."

Senators voted 26-5 in favor of a $4.8 billion increase in the state sales tax, which would rise from 5¼ percent to 6 percent, and other levies.

Both the House and Senate also had approved an $889 million increase in the gas tax, which would remain at 15 cents a gallon instead of rolling back to 10 cents on Sept. 1 as currently scheduled.

But 100 of the 150 House members were required to vote for the big tax bill so it could take immediate effect. That was the catch. The closest the House came on a series of ballots was 91, as Republicans and some conservative Democrats balked.

Rep. Mike Toomey, R-Houston, said many of those lawmakers were upset by a so-called "doomsday" clause Democrats put in the state budget that would strip away spending increases for universities in the conservatives' districts if the 100 vote total wasn't reached.

"If they're going to rape us ... we're going to fight," Toomey said. "The whole process is being stalemated by some other members trying to get 10 more conservatives to vote for a tax bill that their districts don't want them to vote for."

Lewis, the House speaker, said the failure to act could mean lawmakers will be summoned into another special session when the current one ends tonight.

" ... I don't see any effort for anybody to change their vote. So therefore, I don't see where we can progress any further," Lewis said.

Failure to pass an immediate tax hike, Lewis said, would reduce the total tax haul by $313 million and keep the budget from balancing, as required by the Texas Constitution.

New city budget formula has tax hike

Calling the situation a "shared problem," city council members proposed Monday a different approach to offset a projected budget shortfall--a plan which broadens the method of addressing it to include just over a 12 percent increase in city taxes.

Councilman Paul Zeck proposed the idea at the council's fourth budget planning session of the summer. His "scenario" included the possibility of a tax rate increase, an option councilmen had indicated they would like to avoid at earlier sessions.

Calling the dilemma faced by the city a "shared problem," however, Zeck said he favored the tax idea as a means of spreading the effects of the budget shortfall.

Such a tax increase would enable council members to downgrade plans for a utility rate increase from a high figure of 31 percent to Zeck's proposal of 20 percent.

The current minimum bill for water, sewer and sanitation services is $13.20 per month. A 20 percent increase would place it at $15.84 and would generate an estimated $340,000 in additional income.

Zeck's plan calls also for a reduction in employee benefits, although not to the degree at least discussed at two earlier budget sessions.

The proposed cuts involving personnel would see the city discontinue its current practice of "buying back" untaken sick leave days--a budget savings estimated at up to $70,000.

In addition, the city would discontinue the practice of paying the 7 percent Social Security payments designed to be borne by employees.

City staffers would see no immediate reduction in pay, however, since the Social Securi-

Witness profiles drug buy

A Snyder man who aided in a drug probe here last February told a district court jury Tuesday morning that the son of a woman from whom he had just bought drugs forced him to "do" the drugs before he left because the man had seen law enforcement officers parked in the neighborhood.

Bobby Frank Roemisch, 26, the chief witness against drug defendant Mozelle King, testified that he bought drugs on several successive occasions from Mrs. King in early February.

After one of those times, he said, Mrs. King's 27-year-old son, Charles Allen "Junebug" King, came in and said he had seen two Scurry County deputies parked a few blocks away. They were identified as Chief Deputy Andy Anderson and Joe Cheyne.

Roemisch, who described himself as a recovering drug addict, said King then forced him to take the drug, a pill of Dilaudid or hydromorphone, before leaving the Koko Palace, an east Snyder nightspot.

"What happened was, Junebug went and got a syringe, and I had to inject it there," Roemisch said.

The witness told the eight-woman, four-man jury that he had a history of drug abuse and was serving a 10-year probated sentence for aggravated assault when he was arrested for DWI early last February.

After agreeing to work undercover, he made several "buys" of Dilaudid and returned with the pills to deputies, he said.

Mrs. King, 46, of 3208 Ave. L, and her son were indicted on

Recognition due for blood efforts

An appreciation event for the individuals and organizations which plan and support blood drives in Scurry County will be conducted at noon Wednesday.

The luncheon will be at the Snyder Country Club. Some 30 individuals are expected to receive appreciation plaques.

Local blood drives are jointly sponsored by the advisory council for United Blood Services of Lubbock and the Cogdell Memorial Hospital Auxiliary.

Wednesday's event has been planned by workers with each group. New officers for the UBS board include Dr. James Howell, president; Phyllis McGinnis, vice president; and Margaret Beaver, secretary.

Howell will serve as master of ceremonies Wednesday. Representatives from UBS are expected to include Lisa Pearson, director of donor resources.

Members of the UBS advisory board here include:

—One-year terms: Carol Davis, Wilma Dillard, Cy Miller and Esma Kingston.

—Two-year terms: Margaret Beaver, James W. Howell, Babe Miller, Kathy Minemier, Bob LaCoe and Sallie Tate.

—Three-year terms: Sue Birdsall, Joe Cheyne, Betty Doan, JoAnn Nunley, Phyllis McGinnis, Pat Moffett, Betty Monroney and Jim Robbins.

Three more blood drives are scheduled this year. These will be conducted on Aug. 25, Oct. 20 and Dec. 15.

Rural ISD tax chore to stay with district

The Scurry County Appraisal District has agreed to continue to collect taxes for the county's two rural school districts and will present a collection budget for the district's board to consider during a special session Tuesday.

That meeting will begin at 8 p.m. Also to be considered will be a 1988 appraisal budget as well as the contract with Thomas Y. Pickett and Associates of Dallas, the firm doing appraisal work for mineral values.

Pickett is asking an estimated $2,500 hike in fees over the current $57,500.

Regarding tax collection services, representatives from both Ira and Hermleigh ISDs have indicated they wish the appraisal district to continue to collect taxes for each district.

Recent discussions sought the consolidation of this task with either the district or the county tax office.

These discussions eventually saw all of the Snyder-based taxing entities opt to consolidate with the tax office. The most recent change had Snyder ISD moving from the appraisal district to the county.

The change to only two school districts will reduce the appraisal district collection budget from last year's actual expenses of $50,845 to the current proposal

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Retirement means the living is easy but the payments are harder."

Marcus Metzger, grandson of Howard and Viola Gracy, came to town for a visit with the grandparents just in time to enjoy the Snyder 4th of July and the Scurry County Rodeo.

Marcus, age 2, really got into the rodeo. A cousin, Debbie Hayes, took the San Antonio youngster to his first rodeo.

During the bull riding event, one of the contestants was stepped on by one of the large animals. The rider's injury required he be taken to the hospital.

While clowns were trying to round up the bull and put it back into the pen, the animal passed by the area where Marcus and Debbie were seated. In compassion for the injured cowboy, Marcus took off one boot and threw it at the bull. A second boot was just about to be hurled when the older cousin stopped him.

Someone in the arena had to help retrive the boot, and Debbie had a hard time correcting the youngster since those seated around were throughly enjoying the sideshow.

We know a teen who swears his grandmother taught him his first word--BINGO.

Public officials could take a lesson in credibility from youngsters.

Seldom do you see kids talking out of both sides of their mouth. Kids' honesty may be shocking, but always refreshing.

A congressman from the Deep South recently sent out two news releases in the same package. One release attacked the House budget resolution for not cutting enough spending.

The second release told of the congressman's successful efforts to pass favored energy and water appropriation bills for his district.

Poindexter says...

Pardon never promised

WASHINGTON (AP)--Rear Adm. John M. Poindexter says he never was offered a presidential pardon, although the White House says such a step was considered as a means of getting the former national security adviser and his aide, Lt. Col Oliver M. North, to testify in the Iran-Contra affair.

However, the administration now is not discussing the possibility of a pardon for either Poindexter, who resigned last November when the secret sale of arms to Iran and the diversion of proceeds to the Nicaraguan Contras was revealed, or North who was fired.

The pardon issue come up in the House-Senate Iran-Contra hearings Monday, when Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, asked Poindexter if anyone ever talked to him about a pardon or if he knew of a Dec. 16 White House meeting last year at which one was discussed.

Poindexter said he had "certainly not" been approached about a pardon and knew nothing about any such meeting.

Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the White House could find no record of the meeting, which Stokes said was attended by the president, Attorney General Edwin Meese III and then-White House Chief of Staff Ronald T. Regan.

However, Fitzwater said Dec. 16 was the day the White House issued a statement calling for a grant of immunity for Poindexter and North as an inducement for them to testify before the House and Senate investigating committees.

"The White House was considering any number of options for getting the story out and getting North and Poindexter to testify, and among these were granting of immunity and a pardon and ordering them to testify and anything else they would think of," he said.

Fitzwater said the then-House majority leader, Rep. Jim Wright of Texas, who is now speaker, "called for a full pardon at that point and made it a part of the public debate...and so it was considered in that context."

However, the spokesman added, "The feeling was that granting of immunity was the right way and the president recommended that in an effort to get the story out."

Terry Eastland, a Justice Department spokesman, said Meese had "no recollection about any discussion of a pardon," but didn't rule out the possibility.

Asked about more recent suggestions by former presidential aide Patrick J. Buchanan and others for a presidential pardon, Fitzwater said, "We have not discussed a pardon and don't think it is appropriate to do so."

Neighbors Object to Man's Whistling While He Works

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1987 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I live in a beautiful home alongside another beautiful home. The elderly gentleman and his wife who own it work on their yard all year around, and it looks wonderful. The problem? The man whistles. Oh, my God, how he whistles! From early morning until late at night that insidious sound comes through closed windows, doors and walls. The sound is nerve-racking. When he stops for a few minutes, we hold our breaths and say a silent prayer. But luck is not with us because he starts to whistle again.

We had a cookout for friends on our patio last week and our neighbor started whistling again. By the time the food was served, everybody was snapping at each other. Abby, this walking tea kettle is making our lives miserable.

My husband says there is no way we can stop a person from whistling. Can you help us?

BJ DuBIEL, WELCHES, ORE.

DEAR BJ: Your neighbor whistles! What a joyful sound! Would you prefer neighbors who yelled, screamed, fought and threw things all night? Or neighbors whose kids played rock music from dawn until dark? Some folks have neighbors whose kids practice the tuba in the daytime and drums at night.

And you're complaining about a neighbor who whistles! Hallelujah and praise the Lord, lady. Send him a case of something to wet his whistle, and count your blessings.

DEAR ABBY: I hope you can settle an argument between my husband and me. He says now that we are married he has the right to know all about everything I have ever done — every boyfriend I ever had, everything we did, every place we went, etc. He says a wife has no right to privacy as far as her husband is concerned. He is driving me crazy with his pestering to tell him "everything."

I say that what I did before we got married is none of his business. What are your thoughts on the subject?

PESTERED

DEAR PESTERED: Same as yours, and it's not a case of one woman supporting another woman. A man is entitled to the same right to privacy. I refer to past "romances" — prison records and children born out of wedlock excepted.

DEAR ABBY: An article in a recent issue of Reader's Digest lays practically all the blame for impoliteness in America on the young. This is nothing new. The older generation has always criticized the younger generation. I would like to defend today's youth:

I have witnessed several instances where an older person showed no consideration for a younger person. For example: An older gentleman pushed ahead of me to pay at a gas station. When I informed him that I was also waiting in line, he said, "I just have to give the cashier my $20."

"And I just have to give the cashier my $10," I replied.

"Then give it to him!" he said curtly.

Abby, I'm 24, but many people mistake me for a teen-ager because I look like one. Consequently, I am treated like a kid and know firsthand that most adults are very rude to kids. They either think that kids have no rights, or they lump them together as "troublemakers."

The problem of rudeness in this country is not the fault of the young people; it's the fault of the older generation who are responsible for teaching courtesy and setting a good example for the younger generation to follow.

SETTING MY OWN EXAMPLE

DEAR SETTING: Hear, hear!

Woman pleads guilty

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A lawyer says he'll seek probation for a Texas woman who pleaded guilty to federal charges that she used interstate telephone lines to hire someone to murder her husband.

At the request of her husband, U.S District Judge A.J. McNamara Monday let Carolyn Sue Huebner, 29, of San Antonio, remain free on $5,000 bond until her Aug. 26 sentencing. She faces a maximum punishment of 7½ years' imprisonment.

Standing with his arm around his sobbing wife's waist, Larry Huebner told the judge: "I stand behind her...Both I and our (5-year-old) daughter need her now. I do not fear for my life from Carolyn."

"To a great extent, it's you, Mr. Huebner, who are making the decision," McNamara said.

Son's biting is a problem

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My son, 2, enjoys biting whenever anything is taken away from him. We've tried many different kinds of punishment, but he laughs, throws something or bites back. I know about the "terrible 2s," but this is ridiculous.

DEAR READER — Youngsters often take great delight in exploring their environments, "flexing their muscles" — and getting a rise out of adults. Think of it: Here's a 2-year-old who automatically becomes the center of attention by chomping at will. Of course, biting is inappropriate behavior, yet consider the amount of reinforcement he receives. The attention may be worth the temporary discomfort of punishment.

I suggest that you discuss this problem with your son's pediatrician. A professional who knows both the child and the family is in a secure position to give you advice about how best to discourage the biting pattern.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Eight months ago I suffered an injury to the nerve that goes to my deltoid muscle. It was atrophied, and my arm has dropped down about three-quarters of an inch out of its socket. Is there anything, in addition to physical therapy, that would help my shoulder repair itself?

DEAR READER — The deltoid muscle, on the outer surface of the shoulder, serves primarily to adduct the arm; that is, it enables us to raise our arms straight out, away from the body. The deltoid also helps to hold the shoulder in place. After a nerve injury to the muscle, atrophy (withering) and weakness will almost invariably result.

The purpose of physical therapy is to train other muscles around the shoulder to do some of the work of the damaged deltoid. Evidently, this has not been successful for you. I suggest that you see an orthopedic surgeon. Such a specialist may by able to operate on your shoulder to re-stabilize it. In addition, many medical centers have physiatrists — M.D.s who are trained in rehabilitation. This is another option you might consider.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Why is water more beneficial than juices and soft drinks?

DEAR READER — When our thirst center tells us to drink, it is responding to water depletion of our systems. Therefore, water is what we need. Juices contain fruit sugar (and vitamins) as well as water. Unless a person is overweight, I believe that juice is an appropriate substitute. However, soft drinks contain many ingredients, some of which — like caffeine and other additives — are not beneficial to health. Colas are OK as a snack but, technically, they are non-nutritious "food." You would do better to slake your thirst with water — or juice — and leave the soft drinks for a treat.

If you have questions about HIATAL HERNIA, you can get answers in Dr. Gott's new Health Report on the subject. Send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to ask for the Health Report on Hiatal Hernia.

Check sending to stop

WASHINGTON (AP) — Businesses owed money by the federal government won't have to worry about the checks getting lost. There won't be any.

In a major overhaul of the way the government pays the 200,000 businesses that provide it with products and services, the Treasury Department launched a program Monday to pay its bills by electronic transfer and create a checkless government.

Businesses will have no choice. Under the "vendor express" program, the government simply will stop issuing them checks.

Officials reported no initial problems as the first three agencies made the switch. They were the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the Education Department and the Health Care Financing Administration.

The Treasury Department's Financial Management Service, Uncle Sam's bill payer, expects to save the government $18 million annually by doing away with paper checks for payments to businesses.

Officials estimate each paper check costs 26 cents to print and mail, while a computer transfer of money costs only three cents.

The direct deposit method has been an option individuals could choose for a decade for such government payments as Social Security benefits, federal pensions and pay checks.

New immigration law said not discouraging legalization efforts

WASHINGTON (AP)--Some 305,400 aliens have sought legalized status under the new immigration law, according to federal officials wo deny that applications are down and that people are fearful of seeking legalization.

"We stand by our previous statement of 2 million applications during the one-year eligibility period" which began May 5, Alan Nelson, director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, said Monday at a news conference.

He said there is "no basis" for suggestions from some in Congress and opponents of the new immigration law that legalization applications have been slower than expected.

Nelson also said the fact that more than 300,000 aliens have come directly to the INS in 2½ months "should once and for all rebut...allegations" that people are reluctant to seek legalizations because of a fear of deportation.

Border apprehensions rose 35 percent in June, but Nelson denied that the increase, coupled with the railroad boxcar deaths of 18 Mexican nationals, signifies that the nation's new immigration law isn't working.

The newly implemented immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 attempts to stem the flow of illegal aliens crossing the border. It seeks to accomplish this through employer sanctions, amnesty provisions for aliens who have been here continuously for the past 5½ years, an agricultural workers program allowing migrant workers to enter the United States during harvest season and alocating increased resources for border patrol.

The June apprehension level of 93,790 illegal aliens was up more than 24,000 from May, but was below the June 1986 figure of 133,400 apprehensions. The June numbers followed two months of sharp decline that marked the lowest level in at least five years in border apprehension for the spring months.

Tuner tunes organ pipes to perfection

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — The next time you hear a pipe organ, listen closely. It took someone like David Johnston hundreds of hours to make it sound that way.

He's not a piano tuner who makes one-hour house calls. Johnston makes church calls, and he stays months.

That's how long it can take to perfect the largest, most complex and most versatile musical instrument, which offers a panorama of sound that almost can duplicate an orchestra.

Johnston is a voicer and tonal finisher — organ talk for the guy who makes it sound the way it should. Easier said than done.

A piano has 88 keys. An organ can have more than 200 keys, 32 pedals and thousands of pipes, and Johnston attends to each one individually — and lovingly.

He recently finished work on a new organ at St. Paul's Church in Concord. Johnston, who works for Austin Organs of Hartford, Conn., and Bob Leslie of Concord, an organist who was the consultant for the church, spent 70 hours a week for two months adjusting each of the 2,480 pipes.

"Some people think an organ is just another fixture in a building," Johnston says. "But a musical instrument is a very personal thing."

Each organ is built by hand, like a custom-made, three-piece suit. Unlike a piano or a trumpet, an organ is designed for a specific room.

Such care also makes pipe organs extremely durable.

"There's a good chance that if the earth is still here 10,000 years from now, the St. Paul's organ still will be there. They don't burn out after 10 years," says Johnston.

It may be 70 or more years before the organ needs any maintenance other than an occasional $400 tuning, Leslie adds.

The St. Paul's organ is worth about $250,000. Most of the pipes are a mixture of tin and lead; the larger ones are zinc, some are poplar and mahogany, and a few are copper. Different material provides different effects.

The pipes vary from pencil-length to 16 feet, and the wood pipes weigh up to 300 pounds.

By comparison, St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York City has an organ with more than 9,000 pipes, some up to 32 feet long. It weighs more than double the approximate five tons of the St. Paul's organ. The Mormon Tabernacle organ in Salt Lake City has about 11,000 pipes.

"Size doesn't make the organ," Johnston says. "The idea is not to blast people out, but rather to make certain the full sound of the organ is heard. A big organ can be buried in a room, dead in a wall."

But each organ has its own sound. Some feature the deliberate, chamber-music sound of the baroque period of Bach and others the more flexible, softer sounds of 20th century French composer Francis Poulenc.

It took 16 months to build the St. Paul's organ and five weeks to install it.

As the tonal finisher, Johnston, who has 18 years experience voicing organs, is the last person to work on the instrument.

St. Paul's, rebuilt after a 1984 fire, has near-perfect acoustics, he says. Its hand-plastered walls and uncarpeted floors don't soak up sound, and it seats only about 600 people.

After the organ was installed, Johnston needed a day to tune it to ensure the pipes had the right pitch — a C note has to be a C before he can work on the tone or quality of the C sound. Each pipe gets separate attention.

With Leslie at the console, Johnston adjusted one pipe at a time, using a special cutting knife to increase or decrease the windways for the best tone quality. That's called voicing a pipe.

"It's done with a great amount of feel," Johnston says. "The sound is in your head."

Special scaffolding had to be built to work on the larger pipes. One 16-foot pipe took a half-day to adjust. Johnston and Leslie had to carry it down a ladder, make an adjustment, carry it back into place, listen, then do it all over again several times until the sound was right.

The pipe length determines the number of vibrations per second within the pipe, and that determines the pitch, how high or low a note is.

St. Paul's organ has four divisions, or keyboards, including the pedal division; 44 sets of pipes called ranks; and 33 distinct instrumental sounds known as stops. A good organist plays them all and knows how they interact.

At St. Paul's, only 47 pipes can be seen by the congregation. The other 2,433 fill a hidden chamber above the choir. The largest are in front; the smaller pipes usually are placed in back because their shriller, higher pitch carries more easily.

The organ was ready for use during Easter services, and fully tuned at the end of April.

"The next day, I felt like my last child had left the house to get married," Leslie says. "I was sad about leaving the organ."

Getting a clue from the lead

When the opponents haven't bid, it isn't easy to place the outstanding cards. The best declarers base their play on their knowledge of the defenders' tendencies. Look how South hit upon the winning play to score two overtricks in four hearts.

The bidding needs explaining. South opened one no-trump to protect his doubleton queens just in case he might find partner with A-x-x or K-x-x in both black suits. Then, when North bid an artificial two clubs looking for a four-card major, South jumped to three hearts, hoping to convey that he had a six-card major suit. The raise to four hearts ended the auction.

Declarer won the diamond queen lead with his ace, drew trumps and led a diamond to dummy's 10. When that held, the only question was how he might make 12 tricks. If East held a black king, another trick could be gained by leading toward the queen of the same suit. But there was another important indication. The fact that West had not led a black suit suggested strongly that he held both black kings. That was the best explanation for his leading from Q-J-8 of diamonds. So declarer cashed dummy's club ace and diamond king and then ran all his hearts. At the end, West blanked his king of clubs so that he could protect the K-J of spades. South now led the club queen to West's king. Hapless West had to lead away from his spade king to present declarer with 12 tricks.

A new book by James Jacoby and his father, the late Oswald Jacoby, is now available at bookstores. It is "Jacoby on Card Games," published by Pharos Books.

50TH ANNIVERSARY — Jim and Helen Wadleigh celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with a dinner at Martha Ann Woman's Club. The couple's children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren were in attendance with 24 of their 25 family members present. Jim met Helen Nachlinger in Sept. of 1936 while he was working on the new St. John's church being built in Hermleigh. They were married there June 28, 1937. Since this year's anniversary date fell on Sunday, they were able to attend services in the same church where they were married 50 years ago. (Private Photo)

This recipe makes 7 crusty-topped biscuits, just the right number for supper at my house. The biscuits bake together where they touch and separate with soft, tender shreds when you pull them apart.

HERBED PAN BISCUITS

¼ cup finely chopped onion
1 teaspoon Italian seasoning
1 tablespoon margarine or butter
1½ cups all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup shortening
1 beaten egg
⅓ cup milk
1 tablespoon margarine or butter, melted
2 tablespoons grated Romano or Parmesan cheese

In a small skillet cook onion and Italian seasoning in 1 tablespoon margarine until onion is tender but not brown. In a mixing bowl stir together flour, baking powder and salt. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Combine onion mixture, egg and milk; add to flour mixture all at once. Stir until dough clings together. On a lightly floured surface knead 10 to 12 strokes. Roll or pat dough to ½-inch thickness. Cut with a floured 2½-inch biscuit cutter. Place biscuits close together in a greased 8-inch round baking pan. Brush the 1 tablespoon melted margarine over tops. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake in 450-degree oven for 12 to 15 minutes. Serve warm. Makes 7 biscuits.

Nutrition analysis per biscuit: 217 cal., 5 g pro., 22 g carbo., 12 g fat, 42 mg chol., 313 mg sodium. U.S. RDA: 12 percent thiamine, 10 percent calcium.

Fruit desserts popular

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — As Americans continue to watch their weight and waistline, fruit is gaining in popularity as a dessert.

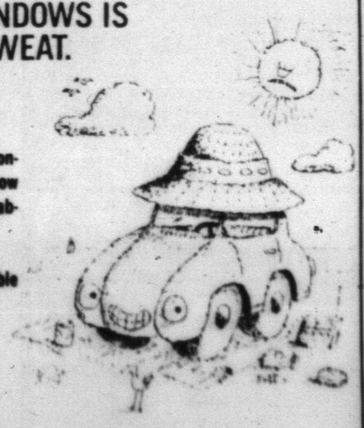

In fact, fresh fruit is served for dessert 54.4 percent of the time, according to a Better Homes and Gardens consumer panel.

A good way to serve fresh fruit is to combine new or unusual fruits with old favorites. Better Homes suggests teaming kiwis, papayas and mangoes with strawberries and grapes. The fruit platter will look colorful while providing a variety of tastes.

National League roundup...

Don Schulze shows his stuff

by The Associated Press

Don Schulze, called up from Tidewater because of injuries to the Mets pitching staff, allowed just three hits in 6 1-3 innings Monday night as New York defeated Atlanta 9-2.

"I knew the Mets had an exceptional staff when I was traded from the Cleveland organization (last May) and I wondered if I'd ever get a chance to move up," Schulze said. "The injuries helped get me here quicker than I expected and now I want to stay."

Schulze started poorly, allowing Ken Oberkfell's first homer of the season in the first inning, but he got plenty of offensive support from Len Dykstra, who had the first four-RBI game of his career.

Elsewhere in the NL, it was Montreal 4, Houston 1; Cincinnati 10, Philadelphia 6 in 11 innings; San Diego 7, Chicago 4; and Pittsburgh 7, San Francisco 6.

Reds 10, Phillies 6

Cincinnati rallied from a 6-0 deficit for the fifth time this season and beat Philadelphia with four runs in the 11th inning.

Kurt Stillwell's double and a throwing error by right fielder Glenn Wilson allowed Nick Esasky to score from first base for the go-ahead run against Mike Jackson, 3-8. Eric Davis had a two-run double and Dave Concepcion an RBI single to complete the four-run inning.

John Franco, 6-3, the fifth Reds' pitcher, worked two innings of hitless relief for the victory.

Expos 4, Astros 1

Montreal won its eighth straight game and handed Houston its ninth loss in 11 games as Dennis Martinez pitched a five-hitter and Mitch Webster hit a two-run homer.

Martinez, 5-1, struck out four and walked two as he pitched his second complete game of the season. It was the eighth time in the last 11 games that the Astros failed to score more than two runs.

Jim Deshaies, 8-4, gave up eight hits in six innings as Houston lost its fourth straight game.

Pirates 7, Giants 6

Pittsburgh got three-run homers from Al Pedrique and Andy Van Slyke, offsetting three San Francisco homers and a two-run double in the ninth inning by Robby Thompson.

Winning pitcher Brian Fisher, 5-6, allowed four hits, including homers by Will Clark and Jose Uribe, in seven innings.

Mike LaCoss, 7-6, took the loss.

Padres 7, Cubs 4

Carmelo Martinez knocked in two runs and keyed a four-run seventh inning with an RBI single for San Diego against Chicago.

Bob Tewksbury was the loser in his first NL start after being traded by the New York Yankees to the Cubs. He allowed eight hits and five runs in six innings.

Mattingly now making records with his glove

by The Associated Press

As soon as Don Mattingly stopped tying records with his bat, he started matching major-league marks with his glove.

Mattingly tied the record for putouts by a first baseman with 22 Monday night as Tommy John and the New York Yankees beat the Minnesota Twins 7-1.

"Another record. Just what I need," Mattingly joked. "With two outs in the ninth, I saw it on the board and I couldn't believe it. I'm really not doing anything on those, just catching the ball," he said. "The credit goes to Tommy."

Mattingly was 0-for-4 from the plate, however, and ended his American League streak of extra-base hits in 10 straight games. Moreover, he aggravated an injury to his right wrist and "may have to miss a few games," Yankees Manager Lou Piniella said.

John, 9-3, pitched a seven-hitter in the matchup of AL division leaders at the Metrodome. He walked one, struck out one and had Minnesota hitting groundballs, the way he usually wins.

Mike Pagliarulo broke open a scoreless game with a two-run homer in the fifth off Les Straker, 5-6. Mark Salas hit a three-run homer in the seventh.

In other AL games, Cleveland took Kansas City 9-5, Toronto beat Texas 5-3, Baltimore defeated Chicago 4-1, Detroit edged Oakland 5-4, Milwaukee bruised Seattle 13-11 and California got past Boston 3-2.

Blue Jays 5, Rangers 3

Garth Iorg homered twice and doubled and Toronto beat Texas for the ninth time in 10 games this season.

John Cerutti, 6-2, gave up three runs on five hits in 6 2-3 innings. Tom Henke pitched the final two innings for his 19th save.

Charlie Hough, 10-6, took the loss. Larry Parish homered for the host Rangers.

Indians 9, Royals 5

Brook Jacoby went 4-for-4 and Cleveland beat Bret Saberhagen and slumping Kansas City.

Saberhagen, 15-4, was tagged for six runs on 10 hits in 3 1-3 innings.

Phil Niekro, 7-9, won his 318th career game and first since June 20 despite giving up five runs in five innings. Doug Jones finished with one-hit relief.

Orioles 4, White Sox 1

Ken Gerhart hit a two-run single during a four-run fifth inning and Baltimore won its sixth straight game in rainy Chicago.

The game was called in the top of the sixth after being delayed twice in the fifth.

Mike Griffin, 2-3, pitched four innings for the win. Neil Allen, 0-4, took the loss.

Brewers 13, Mariners 11

Robin Yount and Glenn Braggs each drove home three runs as Milwaukee won a wild one against visiting Seattle.

The start of the game was delayed two outs, 38 minutes by rain.

Chuck Drim, 4-5, got the victory. Mike Morgan, 7-11, took the loss.

WTC signs 3-point artist from Amarillo

New Western Texas College men's basketball coach Tony Mauldin has signed Amarillo High graduate Lance McCown to a letter of intent.

McCown averaged eight points and four rebounds for Amarillo, which won the state Class 5A tournament in 1986 and reached the regional finals last season.

"He's a good kid from a winning program," said Coach Mauldin of the 6-1 player. "He shoots the three-point shot well and we're looking at him primarily as an off-guard."

McCown, who likes WTC because "I believe Coach Mauldin will not only make me a good basketball player but a better person as well," will be joining the team as a walk-on.

"He is prospectively a good student. We're expecting good things from Lance," said Coach Mauldin.

Stars battle Clyde tonight in Hamlin

HAMLIN – Snyder's Little League All-Stars take on Clyde in the first game of a best-of-three playoff series at 7:30 here tonight.

Game 2 of the series is tentatively slated for 7:30 p.m. Thursday, while a Game 3, if necessary, is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Friday.

In other area action, Abilene Dixie defeated Abilene Southern 13-4 on Monday, to advance in the playoffs.

The series are double elimination, but only if neither team suffered a loss in Area competition. Southern had lost last week to Abilene Northern, and thus was eliminated with Monday's defeat.

Neither Snyder or Clyde have suffered a defeat in post season play.

In the other area tournament, Albany hosts Winters this evening. Albany is undefeated but Winters has one loss.

Winners of the three series will advance to play each other next week in Abilene.

Girls wrap up play in Class 2A tourney

DENISION – Monica Harbin and Mandy Baker smacked two singles apiece in Snyder's first Division I game of last Saturday's UGSA Class 2A Tournaments here, but it wasn't enough to overcome Midland.

Jessica Rocha also pegged a double and Mendy Winter knocked a single as Snyder fell 6-5.

Snyder advanced its Division I and III teams to the best-of-three playoff series Saturday, after three days of "pool" play. Both squads lost their first two games, however, and were knocked out of a chance for a championship.

Snyder Division I lost its second game 9-2 to Abilene South while Snyder Division III lost 15-4 to Abilene South and 5-4 to Denison. Both took fourth place in their respective tournaments.

In the second Division I game, Snyder got five singles - one each from Jami Brown, Nicole Lawrence, Amy Vaughn, Jessica Rocha and Lochie Applin.

In Snyder's 15-4 loss to Abilene South in Division III play, Dessie Ware clubbed two singles and Louise Cates and Trina Brown added one each. In the second game, Ware, Trina Brown, Jennifer Spence, Kim White and Angie Burleson punched one single apiece.

Snyder placed four girls on the all-tournament teams - Jami Brown in Division I, Lisa Rodriquez in Division II, Annette Ramos in Division III and Teri Sue Henry in Division IV.

Snyder's Division I, II and III squads were all honored with sportsmanship awards.

Abilene North won the Division I crown. Abilene North also won in Division IV.

Midland broke through to win the Division II championship with Abilene South placing second.

Sweetwater copped the Division III championship.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO CONDUCT WEATHER MODIFICATION OPERATIONS IN THE STATE OF TEXAS
Date of the first of three weekly publications of this Notice: July 7, 1987.
1. Notice is hereby given that the Colorado River Municipal Water District has filed an application with the Texas Water Commission for a State permit to conduct weather modification operations to change or attempt to change the natural development of clouds for the purpose, objective, period, and by the method summarized hereinbelow.
2. The Colorado River Municipal Water District has a valid Texas weather modification license. The initial license was issued on December 18, 1974, and was renewed in 1976, 1977, 1978, 1979, 1980, 1981, 1982, 1983, 1984, 1985, and 1986.
3. The purpose of the weather modification operation is to increase rainfall to affect water resources. The period of the permit is March 1 through November 30 during the years 1988, 1989, 1990, and 1991.
4. The proposed weather modification operation is to be conducted for and on behalf of the Colorado River Municipal Water District, P.O. Box 869, Big Spring, Texas 79721-0869.
5. The proposed weather modification operation is to be carried out in both an "operational area" and a "target area" to cause the intended effects to occur only in the target area. The operational area is that area described as being the area between an outer boundary which is defined by a line that encompasses the block of counties of Lynn, Garza, Kent, Fisher, Nolan, Coke, Sterling, Glasscock, Martin and Dawson, and an inner boundary which is that of the target area.
6. The area to be affected by the proposed weather modification operation is the target area. The target area is that area described as bounded by a line beginning at a point of origin at Big Spring, Texas, and running along Highway 87 in a northwesterly direction to Lamesa; thence, north-northeast on Highway 87 to the north border of Dawson County; thence, east along the northern boundary lines of Dawson, Borden, and Scurry Counties to Highway 84; thence, southeast along Highway 84 to Roscoe, in Nolan County; thence, south-southeast to Maryneal; thence, southwest to Silver in Coke County; thence, west-southwest to Highway 87 at a point approximately 13 miles northwest of Sterling City; thence, northwesterly along Highway 87 to the point of origin at Big Spring, Texas.
7. The methods and materials to be used in conducting this operation are summarized herein: A licensed meteorologist will select cumuliform clouds for cloud-seeding using a weather radar display, standard meteorological analyses, forecast techniques, observations, and pilot reports to direct an aircraft equipped to dispense the seeding particles, silver iodide crystals, into the updraft air at cloud base.
8. Persons interested in knowing more about the technical aspects of the proposed operation should contact the applicant or the Weater & Climate Section of the Commission.
9. A public hearing on this application may be called by mailing a petition that requests a hearing to the Executive Director, Texas Water Commission, P.O. Box 13087, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711. The petition must contain (1) the signature, full name, address, and phone number of each person requesting; (2) a statement that each person is at least 18 years of age and resides or owns property in the operational area; and, (3) a description of each person's interest and how that interest would be adversely affected. Requests for hearing must be received by the Commission within 30 days of the date of the first publication of this notice. More information on calling a hearing can be obtained through the Legal Division of the Commission.

Poindexter says chief of military wasn't consulted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former National Security Adviser John M. Poindexter testified today that the Reagan administration decided to sell arms secretly to Iran beginning in 1985 without consulting the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the nation's top military officer.

Poindexter told the congressional Iran-Contra investigative panels that even so, officials were "very careful to adjust" the quality and quantity of weapons shipments to avoid having a "decisive impact" on the outcome of the Iran-Iraq war. "Other kinds of weapons were requested" that administration officials refused to provide, he said.

Poindexter was asked about the military implications of the weapons sales as he began his fifth and final day of testimony at the nationally televised hearings.

Former White House Chief of Staff Donald Regan, Attorney General Edwin Meese, Secretary of State George Shultz and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger were expected to testify before the hearings conclude early next month.

Gen. John Vessey was chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff when President Reagan gave his assent for Israel to sell U.S. arms to Iran in the summer of 1985. Vessey was succeeded in October of that year by Adm. William Crowe, who served in the post during the direct U.S. sale of weapons to the Iranians.

Poindexter said Reagan consulted Weinberger before deciding to go ahead with the sales, and said it was "up to the secretary of defense" to make the decision about consulting Crowe on the military implications of the sale.

Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., said Crowe found out "by accident" in late June or early July of 1986 about the sales, after several transactions already had been made.

Poindexter's statement that the weapons sales did not affect the balance of power in the prolonged Iran-Iraq war is consistent with the administration's longstanding position about the weapons shipments.

Poindexter did not say what other weapons the Iranians sought that the administration refused to provide.

But he said U.S. policy was aimed at ensuring that neither side could win the war, and that the United States wanted to make sure Iran did not lose to Iraq.

Working through a secret channel of communications, Poindexter said, U.S. officials stressed to the Iranians that the Soviet Union would never permit a defeat of the Iraqis. He said Reagan authorized the sharing of some secret intelligence information with the Iranians to help convince them of that position.

The first few moments of this morning's hearing were businesslike and lacking in the type of combativeness that Poindexter displayed on Monday.

At that session, the 50-year-old rear admiral defiantly defended every action he took in the Iran-Contra affair. He insisted that he made Reagan a stronger president by not telling him about the diversion of Iranian arms sales proceeds to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

City budget proposal made ty money now paid would be considered a portion of the employee's current "salary."

The net effect of this would be no change in current take home pay until a proposed increase in Social Security payments goes into effect later this year.

If the city had continued to make the employee's SS payment, this mandated increase would have seen an increase in the current budget of some $20,000.

During earlier budget discussions, the council had noted that if the city had backed away from paying the employee's share of Social Security without considering this payment as a portion of their salary, a savings of from $100,000 to $130,000 would have been realized.

This approach--which Zeck stressed Tuesday is not a part of his plan--would have been in effect a 7 percent across the board pay reduction for all city staff.

Even with the elimination of the employee benefits and a 20 percent increase in base utility rates, Zeck noted, the city's budget shortfall of some $600,000 would still not be totally addressed.

The remaining deficit was estimated Monday at from $160,000 to $190,000. To remedy this, he suggested half of this amount be eliminated by a tax increase and half be addressed by City Manager John Gayle in the areas of personnel cuts in the budget.

It was estimated Monday that a 3 cent increase to the current city tax rate would generate an additonal $80,000 in income, raising the rate from the current 25½ cents per $100 valuation to 28.7 cents.

Regarding how Gayle could make personnel cuts for the corresponding savings of from $80,000 to $95,000, the council said this would be at his option.

Suggested methods included consolidation of staff positions, elimination of staff positions or across the board cuts in pay.

At the first budget session June 16, the income shortfalls were linked to falling sales tax returns for the city and an unexpected drop in water sales.

The sales tax losses--an item tied to the overall economic downturn both here and across the state--were estimated at $220,000. Coupled with declines in the state franchise tax and taxes related to liquor sales, this tax income loss was figured at $238,000.

Added to this was a projected loss of $158,000 primarly tied to declines in water sales.

The losses in income for the current budget year are compounded by an increase of some $300,000 in capital outlay expenses projected for the coming city budget.

The largest increase in budget items involve the capital improvements, specifically a $184,000 expense related to water treament plant improvements; some $54,000 to replace sanitation equipment; and almost $75,000 to replace street equipment.

Tax collection task will stay of $10,984.

Chief Appraiser Ray Peveler noted Tuesday that this budget includes a portion of one district staffer's salary or approximately $5,500 of the $10,984 total.

Justice Blackmun is being treated

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Harry A. Blackmun has an excellent chance of recovering after treatment at the Mayo Clinic for prostate cancer, a clinic spokesman says.

Blackmun, author of the landmark 1973 ruling legalizing abortion, underwent surgery for prostate cancer in November 1977. He has experienced "a small and localized recurrence," clinic spokesman Michael O'Hara said Monday.

"The justice is undergoing treatment which is not incapacitating and is short-term," O'Hara said. "The prognosis is excellent."

Blackmun, 78, was staying at a Rochester hotel near the clinic, a switchboard operator said. He did not return phone messages.

The cancer, in the same area where the earlier malignancy occurred, was detected during a routine examination earlier this month, O'Hara said.

several counts of delivery of a controlled substance in April. She is being tried on four counts.

Roemisch is currently serving a six-month county jail sentence for DWI. He and several law enforcement officers and a Department of Public Safety chemist have testified in the trial, which began Monday.

District Attorney Ernie Armstrong and defense attorney Bill Wischkaemper of Lubbock are trying the case before District Judge Gene Dulaney.

The case is expected to go to the jury by Tuesday afternoon.

American flags go up on reflagged Kuwaiti tankers

FUJAIRAH, United Arab Emirates (AP) — The Stars and Stripes were hoisted on the masts of two Kuwaiti tankers today as U.S. warships prepared to escort the first convoy of reflagged vessels into the perilous waters of the Persian Gulf.

Pentagon officials said the trip was tentatively scheduled to begin tonight.

Maritime shipping officials said the flags were hoisted without ceremony on the supertanker Bridgeton, formerly the al-Rekkah, and the oil products carrier Gas Prince, formerly the Gas al-Minagish.

"The flags are up," said the Fujairah-based agent of a Western shipping company.

Both ships were lying at anchor 2 miles apart in international waters in the Arabian Sea south of the Strait of Hormuz, the narrow gateway to the gulf.

The American missile cruiser USS Fox, the missile destroyer USS Kidd and two frigates were moored nearby.

In Washington, Pentagon officials said Monday the reflagged tankers would set out for Kuwait and pick up Navy escorts tonight or early Wednesday. The Persian Gulf is eight hours ahead of Eastern Daylight Time.

The American flags were hoisted on the vessels shortly after the U.N. Security Council unanimously voted for a U.S.-sponsored resolution demanding an end to the nearly 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war.

Iran, which has targeted Kuwaiti vessels in recent months, has said it will not be deterred from attacking the tankers despite the U.S. presence. Today, the revolutionary government led by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini said it considered "unjust" a U.N. Security Council resolution calling for a cease-fire in its war with Iraq.

Exact timing for the first escort has been left to Rear Adm. Harold J. Bernsen, commander of the Mideast Task Force, "but everything is ready," said one official.

A shipping company official at Fujairah said Kuwaiti ships usually depart their anchorage in midafternoon and travel the strait at night to reduce the risk of an Iranian attack. He spoke on condition of anonymity.

Both Iran and Iraq have attacked foreign merchant ships in their war. Since last September, Iran has attacked Kuwaiti vessels and ships traveling to Kuwait, charging that the Persian Gulf nation aids Iraq. Kuwait is Iraq's western neighbor at the gulf's northern end.

The Reagan administration agreed to register 11 Kuwaiti tankers under American flags and provide them with U.S. protection to ensure oil can travel through the gulf to the West. Kuwait has also leased three tankers from the Soviet Union, which provides protection for them.

The prime minister of Kuwait, Crown Prince Saad al-Abdullah al-Sabah, said Monday that the United States will decide how to respond to any attacks on the reflagged tankers or their escorts.

"There is no agreement" between Kuwait and Washington on how to retaliate, he told a news conference.

The first two Kuwaiti tankers appeared ready to sail except for the hoisting of the Stars and Stripes.

The former Al-Rekkah, a 401,382-ton behemoth that ranks as the biggest in the Middle East and about sixth in size among the world's ships, became the Bridgeton over the weekend. The name and technical home port of Philadelphia, which the Al-Rekkah never visited, were painted on its sides and stern.

Anchored about two miles away was the former Gas Al-Minagish, a 46,723-ton liquid petroleum gas carrier newly renamed Gas Prince, also of Philadelphia. Both vessels bear the red "C" funnel insignia of the Chesapeake Shipping Co., their nominal new owners.

Man suspected of sexual assault to take AIDS test

HOUSTON (AP) — A parolee charged with sexually assaulting two teen-agers must submit to a blood test to determine whether he has been exposed to AIDS, a judge ruled.

Citing the interests of the victims and the safety of employees and inmates at the Harris County Jail, State District Judge Patricia Lykos on Monday ordered Clarence Shelvin to take a blood test to determine whether he has been exposed to AIDS or other sexually transmitted diseases.

Prosecutors said the case was the first in Harris County and a spokesman for the Texas Attorney General's office said it was believed to be the first time in Texas a suspect in a criminal case has been ordered to take a test for the deadly virus.

Shelvin, 26, has been charged with aggravated sexual assault in the alleged attacks on two boys.

He was paroled from the Texas Department of Corrections in May after serving six years of a 16-year sentence for burglary and another case of sexual assault of a child.

Police have said although they have no reason to believe the man has been exposed to AIDS, acquired immune deficiency syndrome, they asked for the test as a precaution for the boys, ages 15 and 17.

John Paul Barnich, an attorney for the AIDS Foundation in Houston, criticized the ruling. He said whether Shelvin tests positive or negative, the victims still will have to be monitored for several months.

The Anti-Federalists

Not everybody wanted a constitution

By Tom Tiede

PHILADELPHIA (NEA) — When the Virginia legislature asked Patrick Henry to represent his state at what would be the Constitutional Convention of 1787, the great patriot of the Revolution declined. When asked why, he is said to have explained specifically, if not eloquently, that he "smelt a rat."

And he was not the only one. The birth of the U.S. Constitution was anything but a harmonious occasion. The nation already had a document of laws called the Articles of Confederation, and many if not most Americans of the time were loath to begin and suspicious of changing the rules.

Indeed, there were those who said the rules could not be changed. Not by the men meeting in Philadelphia at least. There was a provision in the Articles that specifically prohibited anyone but members of the Confederation congress from altering the government, and to do so was a treasonable offense.

Thus it was that thousands of leading people wished only to preserve the civic status quo. And some of them, like Henry, boycotted the Philaldelphia gathering. Nine of the 74 delegates elected to the convention refused to accept their appointments, and 22 others attended only sporadically or not at all.

Some of these men were not so much motivated by politics as business, it must be said. They stayed home to attend to other things. But the majority were sending a message to Philadelphia that they hadn't won the war to lose the peace; a new government would violate the spirit of the Revolution.

And they didn't just object passively. They formed an influential movement to protect the still youthful confederation. The adherents included, for a time anyway, men like James Monroe, George Mason, Sam Adams and John Hancock. As a group, the protesters came to be known as the Anti-Federalists.

Patrick Henry

What a name. It was grossly misleading and applied by Constitutionalists who wanted to smudge this opposition. The Anti-Federalists were actually the most federal of citizens, and perhaps the most democratic of the day; they simply did not agree with the idea of a greater centralization of power.

And they came by the contrariness from experience. Patrick Henry was an example. He had been born under English rule in Virginia, and learned early the plight of the commoner subjected to concentrated authority. He failed as both a shopkeeper and farmer when foreign aristocrats were in control.

Even when he became an attorney and politician, Henry was kept in place. He was a member of the Virginia House of Burgess, when it was dissolved following colonial agitations. He then organized a rump session and called for a continental congress: "Give me liberty, or give me death."

That phrase put Henry's neck near a noose. He felt the idea of individual primacy was worth the risk. He was far more in favor of Everyman than the majority of the people who wrote the Constitution. Even George Washington was aloof, and he did not want the wealthy making laws for the poor.

Henry said the delegates at Philadelphia were "high-born." The description was not completely accurate, but the oratorical rhetoric struck a national nerve. The Anti-Federalists believed English nobility would merely be replaced by American nobility if "the overgrown rich" had their way.

The constitutional critics also feared the vestment of prerogatives in an overall executive. They did not want to be governed "but by God." The constitution of Pennsylvania went so far as to mandate the rotation of men in public office, "to reduce the danger of the establishment of autocracy."

This means the anti-federal movement was at once in favor of civil and states rights. And that was a conflict that contained elements of racism and disarray. Henry and some others recognized the inconsistency, but they still thought the flawed Articles of Confederation were preferable to the unknown.

So, 32 delegates either snubbed or walked out of the Philadelphia convention. And three more who stayed through to the end did not sign the Constitution. In all, 39 delegates signed. Thus, if mathematics matter in things of this sort, the proceedings were balanced on a hair: the final margin of support, in point of fact, was just 39 to 35.

George Mason was one of the delegates who did not sign. He was a Virginian, like Patrick Henry. Mason claimed the bold document (then lacking individual protections) was oppressive. "I should have lost this hand," he said later, raising an arm in public, "before it should have marked my name to the new government."

Such were the emotions of the moment. Some Anti-Federalists even talked of civil war. But the crisis was to be eclipsed by the requirement of unity. Congress eventually added the Bill of Rights to the Constitution, and the Anti-Federalists went on to become part of what is today the Democratic Party.

As for Patrick Henry, he also mellowed, again out of necessity. When the French Revolution was accompanied by atrocity and madness, Henry worried the radicalism might infect America. Just before his death, in 1799, he was elected to the Virginia state legislature — as a Federalist.

Missing states

Rhode Island is often cited as the only U.S. state of the original 13 that did not support the creation of the Constition. But there were actually two states so disposed. The second was New York, which, then as now, had a reputation for a stubborn insistence on doing things its own way.

Rhode Island declined support by not sending a delegate to the Philadelphia proceedings. The state was worried that the big jurisdictions would dominate the small, for one thing. It was also the only state in the union to be able to meet its debt obligations under the peculiarities of existing law.

New York withheld its support in another way. It sent three delegates to Philadelphia, including Alexander Hamilton. Two of the men left the convention in disgust, and although Hamilton was to sign the document, he did not represent a quorum of his delegation, as the proceedings required.

Gulf sanctions likely

WASHINGTON (AP)--With U. S. warships ready to begin escorting Kuwaiti tankers in the Persian Gulf, the Reagan administration is promising to push for sanctions if necessary to enforce a United Nations resolution calling for an end to the Iran-Iraq war.

Two Kuwaiti oil tankers flying the American flag will get under way and pick up Navy escorts tonight or early Wednesday Persian Gulf time, according to Pentagon officials who spoke only on condition they not be identified.

The two tankers, renamed the Bridgeton and the Gas Prince, were at anchor Monday in the northern Gulf of Oman, south of the entrance to the Persian Gulf at the Strait of Hormuz.

"Our forces are in place and the authorization has been finalized," one souce said Monday.

There is an eight-hour time difference between Washington and the Persian Gulf.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater would not say when the escorts would begin but said the paperwork necesary to put the Bridgeton under the U. S. flag would be completed today.

"There is no change in the schedule," he said when asked if the escorting of Kuwaiti ships would be postponed because of Monday's U. N. vote.

"They are separate issues in the sense that this resolution calls for an end to the war," Fitzwater added. "The reflagging is a measure that can be taken to protect the tankers that are flowing through the gulf and to deter any activity there. Those are proceeding on parallel tracks."

The presidential spokesman said the administration hoped Iran would "take a second look and find reason to abide by this cease-fire."

Iraq supported the resolution, but Iran said in advance it would not heed the U. N. action.

Pioneer continues to build wagons for himself, others

PALESTINE, Texas (AP) — Family photos cover the fireplace mantle. A large print of The Stagecoach by Norman Rockwell hangs above the couch. The furniture is made with wagon wheels and is covered with western motifs.

Family and horses. Carl Kruger's living room tells the story of his two loves.

Kruger moved from Kansas to Palestine 10 years ago to be near his daughter, who lives next door. And with him he brought his talent for building wagons.

The sign outside his garage says The Carriage Shop. Inside, Kruger brings the days of horse-drawn transportation back to life.

In all, Kruger has built about 4 carts and wagons — just for his own use. He hasn't kept a count of how many wagons and harnesses he has built for others.

"I've always loved horses and loved to fool with stuff like that," he said.

"It's fascinating to me because I did it for so long. Why, when the wife and I were first married, we went to town in a lumber wagon."

Kruger's family prompted him to build his first harness and wagon in 1941.

"We had three children and it was too much to take them out all on ponies, so I built a wagon as a way to take them all," he said.

From there, he almost built a business out of his hobby. "I do it more as a hobby than to make money — you could got too involved," he said.

Kruger's showcase piece is a stagecoach he built when the nation was celebrating its bicentennial.

The idea for the coach came from a magazine article. From there, the project was his alone. He drew the plans, making the coach on a five-eighths scale so it could be pulled by a team of Shetland ponies.

Another craftsman was going to make the wheels, but he got sick and Kruger had to do them himself.

"Putting the tires on the wheels — that was the hardest part," Kruger said.

It took him 1½ years to build the 1,400-pound coach, steam bending the wooden sides and blacksmithing the frame and tongue. It is authentic down to its seat and window covers and kerosene lanterns for lights. It is pulled by a team of four ponies usually bridled in an elaborate "parade" harness that Kruger made. He uses his wagons and stagecoach mainly for parades.

Falwell, Swaggart meet with official

WASHINGTON (AP) — A national association of TV preachers is developing an ethics code with "teeth in it" in response to congressional inquiries triggered by evangelist Jim Bakker's fall, say television evangelists Jerry Falwell and Jimmy Swaggart.

"I think open discussions, hearings and things that are of a voluntary nature are certainly in order," Falwell said Monday. His Jerry Falwell Ministries of Lynchburg, Va., took over when Bakker resigned as head of the PTL, or Praise the Lord, television ministry last March.

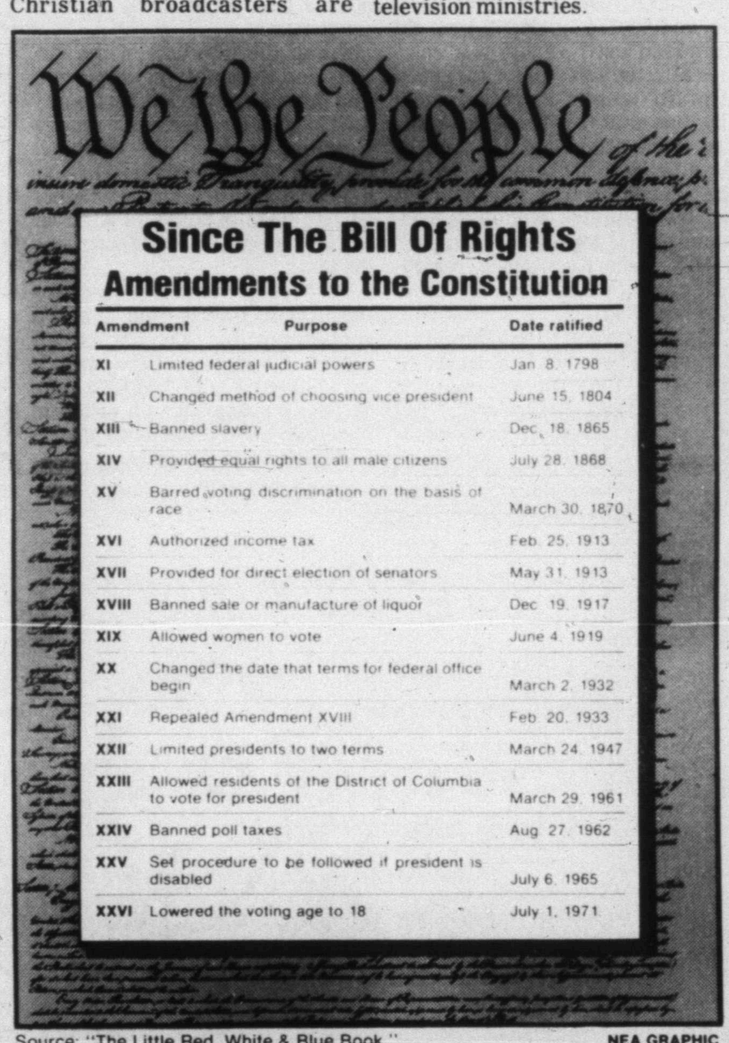

"But most of us who believe in the 1st Amendment and practice it, want to be very sure that while we do scrutinize ourselves that we don't become answerable to Caesar," said Falwell.

Swaggart said the nation's Christian broadcasters are capable of policing themselves and are going to prove that with their new ethcis panel. He operates Jimmy Swaggart Ministries of Baton Rouge, La.

"I don't really see the need for congressional scrutiny," said Swaggart. "We should scrutinize ourselves. We should be the cleanest, the most honorable, the most honest on the face of the earth. That's what we preach, that's what we should do."

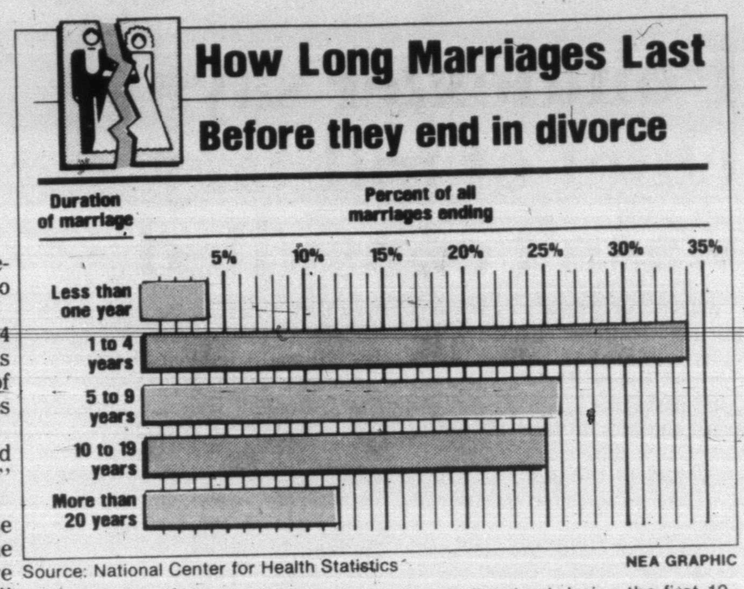

The comments followed an hour meeting with Rep. J.J. "Jake" Pickle, D-Austin, who last week sent letters to 11 television evangelists asking how they would feel about congressional hearings into their operations.

Pickle, chairman of the Ways and Means oversight subcommittee, said he plans hearings sometime in the near future designed to determine how federal tax regulations apply to television ministries.

Two boys meet in aviation record bid in Dallas, Texas

DALLAS (AP)--A California boy, during one of his stops in a bid to become the youngest aviator to fly across the country, has met a competitor who has already claimed the feat.

Christopher Lee Marshall, 10, of Oceano, Calif. was scheduled to leave Dallas at 8 a.m. today for Montgomery, Ala. On Monday, he landed at Red Bird Airport in Dallas, where he was greeted by John Kevin Hill, 11, and Hill's parents.

"After we looked at the pilot, we decided we weren't too much worried about this particular one. He didn't impress us," Hill said.

"He (Christopher) never checked with the National Aeronautics Association...so in our books he's just another guy flying across the United States. Just someone who is copying John Kevin Hill.

Attempts to set flight records must be cleared with the NAA, which sets specific guidelines for such achievements, Hill said.

"They claim they're not out to set a record. We don't know what he's doing," Hill said. "We wish him the best of luck and all the success in the world on this thing."

John, who has received offers for endorsements and will appear in a anti-drug abuse commercial, says Marshall's flight bothers him "maybe just a little bit."

But Yates said the trip was "a learning experience, not a record-setting expereince."

"We did indeed get the idea (for the flight) from John and there's just absolutely no friction on our part at all. It would be neat if the two kids on down the road worked for the same airline or were both astronauts," Yates said.

The youth already has mentioned that the mountains and terrain is nothing like what he has seen in his geography textbooks, Yates said.

"I hope they both solo on their 16th birthday," he said.

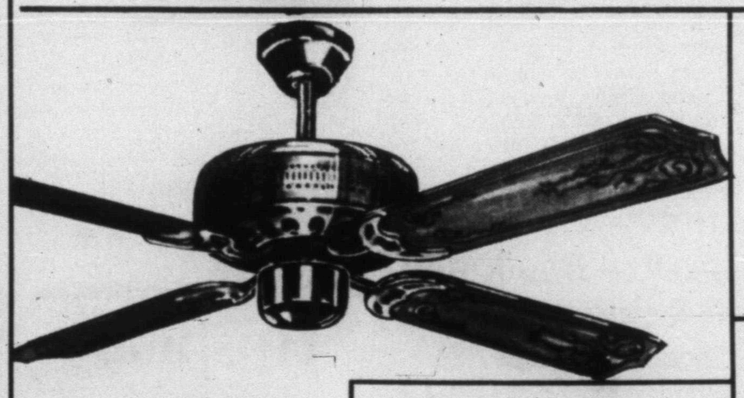

Marshall flew into Childress Airport at 1:45 p.m., saying he enjoyed the trip from Albuquerque International Airport.

Hill and his flight instructor flew in hops from Los Angeles to a July 1 landing at Washington D. C.

Marshall took off Saturday from his coastal hometown of 150 miles northwest of Los Angeles, flying to Bakersfield, Calif. and on to Palm Springs, where he spent the night. He is too young for a pilot's license.
