The fact that new home construction remains vigorous in Midland despite a sluggish overall economy raises many questions: Who's doing the building? Who's doing the buying? And how long can it be expected to continue? The Reporter-Telegram investigates the answers to those questions and takes a look at the overall home market in a three-part series beginning Sunday.

Family Fun Day

Midland music fans will have a choice of listening to bluegrass, gospel or barbershop at Saturday's Family Fun Day in Centennial Plaza. The event will also feature children's games and activities and food booths. Scheduled peformers include Susie Hitchcock and her country and western dancers, the Lone Prairie Horn Quartet, the Perry Bluegrass Band, Final Foursome Barbershop Quartet, and Z4U Zachary Brothers Gospel Group. The gates will open at 10 a.m. and performances are scheduled to be staged from 11 a.m.-3 p.m. The KGEE Country Showdown will be presented from 4-6:30 p.m. and the Nashville group Wild Rose will take the stage at 6 p.m. Admission is $2 and proceeds will benefit the annual house repair project Christmas in April.

Judge rebukes AG

AUSTIN — A federal district judge on Friday publicly reprimanded Attorney General Dan Morales, saying he had "dishonored his office" in releasing a videotaped deposition by television evangelist Robert Tilton. U.S. District Judge Sam Sparks harshly criticized Morales for ignoring an agreement with Tilton's lawyers not to release the videotape. At one point the judge chided Morales that "even someone taking a pre-law school aptitude test" would have known better than to have reneged on the agreement. /7C

Governor says he lacks authority to open WIPP

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Gov. Bruce King on Friday disputed Energy Secretary James Watkins' assertion that the governor has the power to open the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant.

King said Watkins' comments Thursday during a tour of the plant were apparently born of frustration.

"They've just become very frustrated that they can't make it happen," King said of the Department of Energy's unopened nuclear waste repository near Carlsbad. "They're just trying to figure out where the 'on' buttons are."

Watkins told WIPP employees threatened with layoffs that King could grant an interim permit that would allow plutonium-contaminated trash to be shipped to the facility for a test phase.

Vice president delivers stinging attack on Perot

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Vice President Dan Quayle on Friday delivered the Bush campaign's most direct and forceful attack yet on Ross Perot, calling the undeclared independent candidate a "temperamental tycoon who has contempt for the Constitution of the United States."

As the Bush team searches for weapons to use against Perot, the vice president offered voters what amounted to a political ultimatum: elect a Republican Congress to work with President Bush in a second term, or choose a Democratic president.

Bush refuses to apologize in Rio speech

■ President defends environmental record; negotiators race against Sunday deadline for accord on Third World aid.

By James Brooke
N.Y. Times News Service

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil — President Bush told world leaders at the Earth Summit on Friday that he had no apologies for his administration's environmental record and called for a "prompt start" to carry out the accords signed here.

"America's record on environmental protection is second to none, so I did not come here to apologize," said Bush, rebutting the criticism heard since the Rio summit meeting began last week.

He also vigorously defended his opposition to a treaty to protect rare and endangered plants and animals, a position that put the United States outside a vast consensus of support by almost all of the 172 nations represented at the talks.

"That proposed agreement threatens to retard biotechnology and undermine the protection of ideas," Bush said. "It is never easy to stand alone on principle, but sometimes leadership requires that you do."

The president's defiant speech came as the pace of events at the talks accelerated with the arrival of dozens of world

Court rejects bid to protect flora, fauna

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court on Friday made it more difficult for environmentalists to force the federal government to protect endangered species and other natural resources.

The 7-2 decision effectively means that groups and individuals cannot sue the government solely in behalf of the general public interest — or the flora and fauna they seek to protect. Instead, they must demonstrate that without help from the courts, they would suffer specific harm to themselves.

The ruling was a victory for the Bush administration, and, coincidentally, was issued the same day the president was defending U.S. environmental policies from worldwide criticism at the Earth Summit in Brazil.

The court reversed a lower-court victory for wildlife groups that seek to preserve endangered species outside U.S. borders. But envi-

State plays hunch, bets 2nd lottery game will win

AUSTIN (AP) — Players of the Texas lottery who are tired of the first game — Lone Star Millions — can try their luck at the new game called Texas Match Up.

Lottery officials said Friday that Texas Match Up tickets were already on sale in some areas and will be available Monday to most of the nearly 15,000 retailers statewide selling lottery tickets.

"This is not unusual to have two games out on the street. As a matter of fact most lotteries have two games, if not six or seven," Lottery Director Nora Linares said.

The record-breaking first game had sold an estimated 157 million tickets two weeks after it started May 29.

"With sales volumes like that, we decided to bring out our second game at least three weeks ahead of schedule," Ms. Linares said.

Yeltsin reveals Moscow held U.S. airmen in 1950s

WASHINGTON (NYT) — The Soviet Union shot down nine U.S. planes during the 1950s and imprisoned at least 12 American airmen for an unknown period, according to a letter from Russian President Boris Yeltsin handed-delivered to two U.S. senators on Friday.

The U.S. government has publicly acknowledged only two such incidents, both in 1960. The fate of the pilots is unknown.

Yeltsin wrote that an investigation had also revealed that during World War II, 716 U.S. servicemen, most of them bomber crews who had crash-landed, were interned in the

Many defy etiquette rules for Texas flag

By Pauline Arrillaga
Associated Press writer

DALLAS — If Emily Post knew, she would cringe.

Thousands of Texans are defying the rules of proper etiquette and breaking the law as well. Businessmen, advertisers, even members of the governor's staff have all been guilty.

But these and other offenders have a chance to redeem themselves on Flag Day — if they learn how to properly hang their Texas flags.

The Legislature sets specific guidelines for displaying the flag, but they are not clear to many people, including Gov. Ann Richards' staff.

At Richards' inauguration ceremony last year, the Lone Star flag was hung vertically with the blue stripe on top and the white stripe on the audience's right. John Murphy, an administrative assistant at the Houston Chronicle, said this was wrong.

"I was shocked at the governor's inauguration when the flag was wrong," Murphy said. "I've seen it hung incorrectly countless times at functions of the state of Texas."

When displayed vertically, the flag should be hung with the white stripe to the audience's left.

In 1933, the 43rd Legislature thought knowing how to handle the flag was so important that state lawmakers amended the constitution to include some guidelines.

The Texas flag is equally divided into three parts: two horizontal stripes, one red and one white, flanked by a perpendicular blue bar with a lone white star in the center of the blue field.

According to state law, the flag should be dis-

WEATHER SUMMARY

Threat of storms lingers

Staff report

Today's forecast is fair in the morning becoming partly cloudy in the afternoon with a 20 percent chance of afternoon thunderstorms, a high in the low 90s and winds southwest 10-15 mph, according to the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport.

Tonight is predicted to be partly cloudy with a 30 percent chance of evening thunderstorms and a low in the mid 60s.

Sunday's forecast is partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of afternoon thunderstorms and a high in the lower 90s, the NWS said.

Yesterday's high was 86, compared to the record high of 104, set in 1947. The record low for today's date is 57, set in 1979.

STATE

Flooding and tornadoes threatened West Texas Friday as an upper level disturbance approached the area.

Although conditions remained unstable throughout the state, skies were party cloudy and without rain in the remainder of South Texas and most of North Texas.

A tornado watch was in effect for the western Panhandle, South Plains, Permian Basin and Trans Pecos. A flash flood watch was issued for parts of the Edwards Plateau and the Concho Valley.

Severe weather also rumbled across the northern and southeastern sections of South Texas, prompting a severe thunderstorm warning in Harris County.

NATION

Rainshowers and thunderstorms drenched parts of the South, Midwest and Texas on Friday, triggering minor floods in several states. Rain also fell in Maine and the Northwest, and some snow flurries hit the Northwest mountains.

Unseasonably cool temperatures moved across the West, accompanied in many areas by gusty winds.

The heavy rains in the South triggered at least one traffic fatality, in Alabama, where a van skidded off a rain-slickened highway.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

LOCAL/AREA REPORTS

High-speed chase ends with collision

Staff report

A cross-county high-speed chase ended in a collision late Friday afternoon at a trailer park southwest of Midland.

The chase began in Odessa when Gary Lee Snider, 37 — the driver of a red Trans-Am — ran a stop sign. Although officers signaled him, the driver refused to stop and led patrolmen on a chase from Odessa to Midland, reaching speeds in excess of 110 mph, according to Texas Department of Public Safety reports.

Snider was halted when he collided with a Midland Sheriff's vehicle at Westgate Trailer Park, located south of Midland. One Midland deputy was injured in the chase.

Snider was transported to Memorial Hospital & Medical Center where he was in custody late Friday evening. The event was still under investigation at press time.

Law enforcement assisting in the pursuit and apprehension of Snider include the Odessa Police Department, the Midland County Sheriff's Office, the Midland Police Department, the Permian Basin Drug Task Force, DPS, and the U.S. Border Patrol.

Police seize drugs

ODESSA — The Permian Basin Drug Task Force arrested eight men and seized illegal drugs, guns and cash late Thursday.

Tom Finley, task force commander, said authorities found an ounce-and-a-half of rock cocaine, $4,400 in cash and four firearms at a house in the 900 block of Bernice Avenue.

Arrested were Horachio L. Soto, Ector L. Soto, Cruz L. Soto, Luis R. Soto, Gilberto O. Lujan, Hector M. Payen, Joaquin C. Soto and Alfredo L. Soto.

"Some of them were known to us for a while," Finley said. "They were suspected of dealing lots of cocaine in Odessa."

The guns were of concern to authorities, Finley said, because they had been altered — apparently to appear as automatic weapons. Three of the guns were semi-automatic, he said.

The men were reportedly taken to the Ector County Jail, but bond information was not available Friday because of a computer failure.

Man found dead in truck

HOWARD COUNTY — A Big Spring man was found dead in his truck Thursday.

Howell Wes Butler, 74, apparently died of natural causes, Howard County Sheriff's reports said.

Butler had been missing since Wednesday. He was found in his truck about one and a half miles west of Big Spring and one-fourth of a mile south of Interstate 20.

An autopsy has been ordered.

ATTACK: Quayle calls Perot 'temperamental tycoon'

(From 1A)

tween the elected branches, it would make this worse," Quayle asserted in a speech in Washington to the Federalist Society, a conservative legal organization.

"So let us return to the tried and true," he continued. "Let us elect a president — Republican or Democrat — and give him a Congress that responds to presidential leadership. Give one party the authority and responsibility to govern."

James Squires, Perot's spokesman, said: "Mr. Perot never suggested any contempt for the Constitution, only for the quality of leadership in Washington. That characterization is typical of the kind of distortion that has dominated the political dialogue in presidential elections over the last decade or so."

He said Quayle's description of Perot as "temperamental" was "an effort to distort his persona in the public mind," and added, "That, too, is a key tactic of Republican presidential politics."

The vice president's speech, which was coordinated with the president's top campaign advisers, was the latest in a series of addresses Quayle has been giving in an effort to force conservative views into the forefront of the Bush campaign message at a time when Quayle's advisers believe the Republican right is deserting to the Perot camp.

The vice president's arguments foreshadowed a Republican strategy of depicting Perot as too risky a choice to replace a safer, if less exciting, Bush.

Quayle's go-for-broke argument, with its implicit suggestion that a Democratic White House and Congress would be preferable to Perot, gave voice to the fear that Perot's candidacy has ignited in the political establishment in both major parties.

The vice president's remarks made him the highest-ranking official in the administration to attack Perot directly, even as Bush is refusing to do so himself.

Quayle has hurled a few off-the-cuff barbs at Perot when asked about him by reporters. And Quayle's wife, Marilyn, recently accused the Dallas billionaire of trying to "buy the White House," prompting a retort from Perot that the Bush team was "hiding behind their women." But up to now the vice president had not made the sort of frontal assault that he offered in Friday's speech.

"There's no doubt that he has tapped into a deep well of frustration in this country," he said of Perot. "He draws his appeal largely from the claim that he is a man who can 'get things done,' even if he's reluctant to say exactly what 'things' he has in mind — other than nullifying representative democracy with a bizarre scheme of government by polls."

Quayle, apparently referring to Perot's concept of an "electronic town hall" that would use telephones and television to allow public comment on major decisions, called Perot "a false solution to our problem."

As president, Perot "would add to the gridlock, then compound the people's frustration by elevating the blame game to an art form," Quayle said.

Then, in an allusion to Perot's billionaire status that brought laughter from the audience, he added, "I'd like to say 'talk is cheap,' but somehow that doesn't capture the spirit of the Perot campaign."

Quayle said Perot has "an interesting approach to that most wonderful work, the U.S. Constitution," quoting Perot as saying: "Germany and Japan are winning. Why are they winning? They got new constitutions in 1945.

"Mr. Perot, we do not need a new constitution," Quayle continued. "Our Constitution has served us well. My friends, it would be a very bad idea to replace a genuine statesman with a temperamental tycoon who has contempt for the Constitution of the United States."

Quayle's office provided a transcript of remarks that it said Perot made on the ABC News program "Good Morning America" last Oct. 22.

According to the transcript, Perot did make the remarks that Quayle cited, but did not suggest rewriting the Constitution.

PILOTS: Russia admits downing planes, holding men

(From 1A)

Soviet Union, some of them "held in isolation for a year or more."

Russia has also determined that 262 American pilots survived being shot down over North Korea in the early 1950s, and 59 of them were interrogated by Soviet authorities, Yeltsin wrote. There was no information, he wrote, that any of the pilots had been held in the former Soviet Union.

No documents are yet available on Americans missing from the Vietnam War, the Russian president wrote, except for "several" soldiers who apparently went AWOL while in Japan and were smuggled to the Soviet Union and from there to other parts of Europe.

The letter was an unprecedented acknowledgement that Americans in some numbers had been imprisoned or interned by the Soviet Union. It was delivered Friday by Gen. Dmitri Volkogonov to Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., chairman of the Senate's POW-MIA Affairs Committee, and to Sen. Bob Smith, R-N.H., the panel's ranking Republican.

Though a number of documents were also turned over to the committee on Friday, Kerry said the names and fate of the servicemen involved are not yet known.

Russian officials "are actively investigating whether or not some Americans might have survived up until present times," Kerry said. "They have not said to us that is impossible. They have not said no."

U.S. officials were forced to admit spy flights over the Soviet Union for the first time in May 1960, when U-2 pilot Francis Gary Powers was shot down and put on trial. He later was exchanged for a Soviet agent. In July 1961, the Soviets downed another spy plane over the Barents Sea, releasing the two crewmen six months later.

According to Yeltsin's letter, Soviet records show that in August 1953, there were 12 American airmen being held — eight in prisons or camps and four in "special psychiatric clinics."

Kerry said that through intelligence sources, "We have long known about the aircraft being downed ... and we've long had stories about survivors. We have never had an admission as to those survivors."

During World War II, Yeltsin wrote, the Soviet government interned 716 U.S. servicemen, "mainly bomber crews" who were forced to land in the Soviet Union or in liberated areas of Eastern Europe.

"The Stalin government applied a double standard" to these crewmen, the letter said. Some were immediately repatriated, while others were put in camps.

The number is higher than previously known. The most famous incident occurred in 1942 when a B-25 bomber on the Doolittle Raid on Tokyo landed in Vladivostok and its five crewmen were interned until they managed to escape a year later.

LOTTERY: State unveils 2nd game 3 weeks early

(From 1A)

The games are similar. Both are $1 scratch card games that offer instant cash prizes for tickets with three matching amounts.

Both also offer tickets that can enter a player into 12 weekly, $1 million drawings, which start next week.

The odds and prize structures are different.

One in 7.9 tickets in the Lone Star Millions game is a winner, while the odds of winning in Texas Match Up are one in 6.8.

Lone Star Millions offers prizes of $2, $5, $10, $20, $50, $100, $1,000 and $10,000. About one of every 600 tickets has the three "Entry" designations which can be used to enter the $1 million drawings.

Texas Match Up offers prizes of $2, $4, $10, $20, $75, $200, and $20,000. About one of every 375 tickets has the "Entry" designations.

The "Entry" tickets for the $1 million drawings will come from these two games.

Advertising for the new game will start June 22 and will feature the Turnipseed Triplets, Doug, Dennis and Dwight, who appear in identical attire that reflects their last name. Ms. Linares said the brothers are from Alabama. "We tried in Texas, but we couldn't find anybody this nerdy," she said.

Ms. Linares said she believed people would continue buying the Lone Star Millions tickets despite the introduction of the new game.

But she conceded, "We try to remind retailers that the fever of the first game and the first three to four weeks is not going to be the same anymore."

Of reports that many homeless people were spending money buying lottery tickets, Ms. Linares said, "We are not here to promote people using their last dollar to buy a lottery ticket, and I hope that they don't do that."

TEXAS: Thousands defy rules for displaying state flag

played with the blue field to the observer's left and with the white stripe on top. When the flag is flown with the white stripe on the bottom, it is a signal of distress.

No, hanging the Texas flag incorrectly isn't an offense that could lead to jail, officials say. But defacing the state or American flag is a misdemeanor offense punishable by a maximum jail sentence of one year and a fine of up to $3,000.

Joe Parish, president of Capitol Flag Co. Inc. in Houston, said one way to learn how to hang the Texas flag is by reading the rules for the American flag.

"The Texas flag has the exact same code of ethics and conduct as the American flag," Parish said. "It's just not enforced as strictly."

"White to the sky. That's the best way to remember," said Carl McQueary, museum director for the Daughters of the Republic of Texas.

McQueary said the constitution also lists rules for the use of the flag, but these, too, are broken.

"A lot of the things you're not supposed to do, you see every day," he said. "It's not supposed to be used for decoration on napkins or boxes, but you see this all the time. It's not supposed to be used for advertisements, and boy, that's a very popular thing to do."

McQueary remembers learning about flag etiquette in elementary school and said it is a shame that most schools no longer teach the specific guidelines.

"What's kind of sad is hanging the flags used to be done with great ceremony, now no one really has that job," McQueary said. "So many other things get recognition in Texas history; it should be treated with the respect it deserves. Hanging the flag should not be a chore."

WIPP: Governor says he has no authority to open plant

(From 1A)

But King reiterated Friday that he has no authority to do that without the approval of Congress — which is working on WIPP legislation — and until a federal court case is resolved.

Once those matters are cleared up the state will be supportive of the Energy Department's efforts, he said.

"I won't try to throw roadblocks and things," King said in an interview.

The governor said he has instructed the state Environment Department to move quickly with its review of a permit application from the Energy Department to store mixed hazardous and radioactive waste at WIPP.

The Energy Department maintains it has met the criteria for so-called interim status — permission to store waste during the permit process, a complex procedure which could take up to two years.

The Environment Department made a preliminary determination the federal agency didn't qualify for the permit.

Then a federal judge ruled in a lawsuit by Attorney General Tom Udall that WIPP could not take waste until the state issued the permit and Congress approved a measure withdrawing the land from public access.

The Energy Department has appealed.

The state regulates the disposal of mixed hazardous and radioactive waste under the federal Resource Conservation and Recovery Act. It is one of the major ways the state can exert influence on the federal waste repository.

The Energy Department plans to bury waste from the nation's defense installations some 2,150 feet below the surface in salt beds at the $1 billion plant. The department says the facility is ready to operate.

"When you go down there and look at it, it's very impressive," King said.

King said it looked like a more desirable method of storage than the above-ground facilities where some radioactive waste is being held at Los Alamos National Laboratory.

PROTECT: Court deals blow to environmentalists ronmentalists said Friday's ruling packed a more sweeping impact, affecting domestic cases as well.

(From 1A)

"I think it's a disaster," said Brian O'Neill, a lawyer representing environmental groups in the case. "It's going to make it tough to get into court. It says to the administration it can disregard the law ... and participate in the extinction of animals around the world."

Others said the ruling creates obstacles to enforcing other federal laws for protecting the environment.

The court said individuals suing to enforce the Endangered Species Act must show specific, concrete harm to themselves — even if Congress favored granting a broader right to sue.

Justice Antonin Scalia wrote for the court, "We have consistently held that a plaintiff ... claiming only harm to his and every citizen's interest in proper application of the Constitution and laws — does not state a case or controversy" fit for court resolution.

Otherwise, he said, Congress could "transfer from the president to the courts the chief executive's most important constitutional duty, to take care that the laws be faithfully executed."

Justice Harry A. Blackmun, in a dissenting opinion joined by Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, said, "I cannot join the court on what amounts to a slash-and-burn expedition" attacking environment laws.

Blackmun said the ruling allows "an expansion of power of the executive branch" at the expense of Congress.

Justice John Paul Stevens joined in the result reached by the majority but on the narrower grounds that Congress did not intend the endangered species law to apply to federal projects in foreign nations.

The case stems from a 1986 Reagan administration policy — defended by the Bush administration — that federal agencies need not consult with the Department of Interior over overseas projects that may affect endangered species.

The policy reversed one approved by the previous administration of President Jimmy Carter.

Three groups — the Humane Society, Defenders of Wildlife, and Friends of Animals and Their Environment — challenged the new policy in a federal lawsuit.

The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled in 1990 that the wildlife groups had standing to sue because two members studied endangered species in foreign nations and said they plan to return there.

One member challenged participation by the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation in the Aswan High Dam project in Egypt on grounds it could threaten the survival of the Nile crocodile.

Another said the Mahaweli River dam and irrigation project in Sri Lanka, with funding from the U.S. Agency for International Development, could imperil the habitat of elephants and leopards.

Scalia said the two members' visits to the project areas "before the projects commenced proves nothing." He said their lack of any "concrete plans" to return bars them from claiming any personal injury.

It is "pure speculation and fantasy to say that anyone who observes or works with an endangered species anywhere in the world is appreciably harmed by a single project affecting some portion of that species," Scalia said.

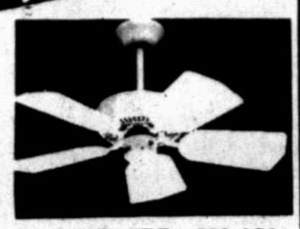

O'Neill, the environmental groups' lawyer, said his clients must be ready to show judges they have imminent plans to travel to areas affected by government-supported projects.

"From now on, we'll walk into court with airplane tickets," O'Neill said.

Don't be the last to find out what's happening.

Officials locate lost evidence to help Demjanjuk

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department said Friday it has uncovered evidence misplaced 14 years ago that could help the defense of John Demjanjuk, convicted of being the Nazi concentration camp guard known as "Ivan the Terrible."

In a statement, Assistant Attorney General Robert S. Mueller, III, said the department has had since 1978 interrogation reports in which two other guards at the Treblinka concentration camp say another man, not Demjanjuk, operated the gas chamber there.

The materials, gathered for the prosecution of Feodor Fedorenko, another Treblinka guard, "were apparently maintained in the Fedorenko files from that point onward," Mueller said.

He said that while preliminary evidence indicates no wrongdoing by Justice officials, the matter will be taken up by the department's Office of Professional Responsibility, which investigates possible prosecutorial misconduct by Justice attorneys.

SUMMIT: Bush has no apology for Earth policy

leaders, many of them offering decidedly different views of environmental issues in speeches at the conference hall.

A major development of the day was an agreement among negotiators, after days of talks, to adopt a voluntary set of principles in favor of preserving the world's forests, which had been a goal of the United States and other wealthier countries.

But the agreement omitted a call for a treaty to be negotiated that would make such principles binding.

Other negotiators were still in session Friday evening, racing a Sunday deadline to try to come up with an accord in a multibillion-dollar aid package that would enable the Third World countries to preserve their environmental resources.

In another arena of activities, Bush and other leaders signed the treaty intended to reduce the threat of global warming by limiting emissions of carbon dioxide in the earth's atmosphere. The treaty had long been viewed as a centerpiece of the summit talks, despite widespread criticism for its lack of specific timetables for emission curbs.

In contrast to other Western leaders speaking in Rio on Friday, Bush did not make public any major financial initiatives, although the United States called for creation of a long-term $1.4 billion fund to monitor climate change, and for other money to help poor countries pay for preservation of their forests.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl of Germany, a nation widely seen to have assumed a major leadership role in Rio, promised to increase Germany's aid for development of poor countries to 0.7 percent of its gross national product, nearly double its current level, and promised accelerated reduction of its carbon dioxide emissions by 25 percent to 30 percent by the year 2,005.

In another move seen as upstaging Bush, Prime Minister John Major of Britain called for the World Bank fund that provides environmental aid to be increased from the current level of $1.3 billion to at least $3.3 billion in the next several years.

In yet another pledge for aid that contrasted with the U.S. caution on financing, the 12-nation European Community also promised $4 billion to further the Earth Summit's goals. It was unclear how much of the European money was new money or money that had already been appropriated.

Bush, attempting to mend fences with environmentalists, met in the morning with a delegation of U.S. leaders of environmental groups and in the afternoon posed for photographers in a rainforest near Rio.

It was unclear whether his efforts would succeed, since the many private environmental groups gathered in Rio continued to excoriate what they characterized as U.S. inaction and even hostility to the goals of the summit talks.

One group, the Frieds of the Earth International, said the world's leaders had "squandered a historic opportunity."

Inside and outside the main conference hall, the biggest applause went for Fidel Castro, who proved his durability as a tribune for anti-American sentiments among many people in impoverished countries.

"Viva Fidel! Viva Cuba!" shouted passers-by Thursday night when the Cuban leader arrived at his luxury Copacabana hotel, the Rio Palace.

Seeming to take aim at Bush in his speech Friday, Castro drew cheers when he strode to the platform to denounce the industrialized countries as guilty of most of the world's environmental problems.

"Consumer societies are fundamentally responsible for environmental destruction," said Castro, calling for what he said should be a more just distribution of wealth in the world. "The ecological debt should be paid, not the foreign debt."

Bush, who gave Castro's speech a few perfunctory hand claps, seemed to be picking up the gauntlet thrown down by one of the last communist leaders in the world.

"There are those who say that it takes state control to protect the environment," he said. "Let them go to Eastern Europe, where the poisoned bodies of children now pay for the sins of fallen dictators — and only the new breeze of freedom is allowing for cleanup."

The speeches and activities of the world leaders virtually shut down Rio de Janeiro, a coastal city of 5 million. Schools closed, supermarkets stood empty, and long-feared traffic jams never materialized, as Rio's population either left town for a four-day weekend or stayed home to watch the parade of world leaders on television.

With gray skies, scattered showers and temperatures in the 60s, Rio's beaches were largely deserted.

Virtually all visiting leaders were lodged in high-rise luxury hotels facing the crashing surf of Rio's southern beaches.

Worsening African drought robs Kenyans of their livelihood

WAJIR, Kenya (AP) — Five months ago, Mumin Abdelleh owned camels, cattle, sheep and goats. Now he was sitting on the hot sand at a relief camp in the hot noonday sun, waiting for handouts of corn and beans.

"Here have been many droughts before," said the gaunt 80-year-old, stroking his grey beard. "But at least I was left with some animals. This time they are all dead."

Abdelleh and his wife, Amina, were among thousands of people sitting by beehive-shaped huts of thorny bushes that have sprouted around the northeastern Kenyan administrative town of Wajir.

Children clustered around mothers, blank eyes blinking only at the sound of maize and beans being dished in tin cans. Some, too weak to sit, lay motionless in their mothers' laps.

The scene is being repeated throughout northeast Kenya, struck for a second straight year by severe drought. The United Nations and the government say 1 million Kenyans face famine unless immediate action is taken.

Although the desperation of the situation has been apparent for some time, it was only this week that President Daniel arap Moi appealed for 175,000 tons of food for the year and $24 million to transport it.

Some opposition leaders and aid officials had warned earlier that the drought was worsening. Last month, a report by four humanitarian organizations said the suffering was "unparalleled in Kenya ... yet the situation has been allowed to deteriorate."

The hardest hit are the districts of Wajir, Mandera and Marsabit. The report said they were "in the grips of a medical-nutritional emergency."

Malnourishment averaged 55 percent and was up to 70 percent among children under age 5, with one child in 1,000 dying daily, the report said.

The Rome-based U.N. World Food Program is seeking 84,000 tons of food, mainly grains, to feed the needy over the next six months. In addition, the government is seeking $875,000 for medicine and $3.8 million to provide water.

The trouble started in early 1990 when the annual long rains failed. For the next 20 months, the nomads watched scattered clouds drift away, the vegetation wither, and water holes dry up.

"We always hoped the rains would come," Mumin Abdelleh said.

Some reacted as their ancestors had done for centuries and took their herds to neighboring Somalia and Ethiopia. But those areas, too, were gripped by drought — and plagued by banditry and clashes between rival clans.

"Some have trekked for hundreds of miles," said Ahmed Mohamed, a relief worker with the Africa Inland Church. "The bones you see around are of their last camels."

Reports of livestock deaths began circulating in August. The government publicly admitted famine only in late May.

Zimbabwe's killer crocs get new duties

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — Trappers have captured more than 40 crocodiles in a lake in northern Zimbabwe after fatal attacks on tourists and residents, a breeder said Friday.

"It was a choice of selective captures or large-scale killings," said Jon Hutton, executive manager of the Crocodile Assocation of Zimbabwe. "It was better to move them than to have people demanding we eradicate them."

Two Zimbabwean tourists and five villagers have been killed by crocodiles along the shores of Lake Kariba in the past year, according to wildlife experts.

Crocodiles kill between 20 and 30 people in Zimbabwe each year, but the number of attacks at Lake Kariba is unusually high.

The National Parks and Wildlife Department authorized the capture of 60 suspected killer crocodiles from the shores of the 3,231-square-mile, man-made lake. About 25,000 crocodiles are believed to inhabit Lake Kariba.

Over the past three months, 12 trappers captured 43 large males using meat as bait, Hutton said. He said the captured reptiles were sent to farms for breeding.

The crocodile association is made up of 44 crocodile farmers who earn about $3 million in annual export income.

13 blacks die in South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Thirteen blacks died in nationwide violence, including three killed by tires burned around their necks, police said Friday.

Meanwhile the opposition African National Congress said it is planning nationwide demonstrations over stalled constitutional talks between majority blacks and the minority white government.

Police in the KwaZulu black homeland said a "people's court" sentenced four youths to death in the Kwamushu township near Durban, and three were found dead with stab wounds and burned tires around their necks, a practice called "necklacing." The fourth youth escaped, police said.

Necklacing was used in black townships in the mid-1980s against suspected collaborators with the white government. The ANC and other black groups condemned the practice, and it disappeared until recent weeks.

In other violence, attacks on commuter trains in the Johannesburg area killed four people, and three others were found shot to death in the Katlehong township south of Johannesburg.

Two men were shot to death and four wounded in a political attack at a factory near Johannesburg.

In eastern Cape Province, police shot to death a man they said attacked them during an arrest attempt in Queenstown.

Chronic violence has claimed 12,000 black lives since 1984.

A power struggle between the ANC and its rival, the Zulu-dominated Inkatha Freedom Party, has been blamed for much of the fighting. The ANC accuses government security forces of instigating violence to destabilize the black opposition, a charge the government denies.

The ANC plans nationwide protests, including work stoppages, next week to pressure Pretoria on stalled talks for a new constitution that would end white minority rule.

Two hostages may be released, Germany says

BERLIN (AP) — The government said Friday two German relief workers who are the last Western hostages in Lebanon would be freed soon.

The newspaper Bild reported that Chancellor Helmut Kohl's envoy, Bernd Schmidbauer would return to Germany with the two men on Monday.

Freedom for Heinrich Struebig, 51, and Thomas Kemptner, 30, held captive for three years, would end a terrifying period that saw Americans, French, British, Germans and others fall into the hands of Muslim extremists.

In all, 90 foreigners have been kidnapped or disappeared in Lebanon since January 1984. Seventy-seven have been freed or said they escaped, and eleven others were killed or died in captivity.

The last hostage released was Terry Anderson, former chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press. Anderson was freed in December after nearly seven years in captivity.

At the Earth Summit in Rio de Janeiro, German government spokesman Dieter Vogel said that Schmidbauer would return to Tehran, Iran, within days.

"Schmidbauer has negotiated and reached a basic agreement that the hostages will soon be freed," Vogel said. "People there probably saw it would be better for German-Iranian relations and overall Middle East relations to Germany if these hostages are finally freed."

Earlier, Vogel told a Cologne radio station that the government had not agreed to any ransom or exchanges.

Dormant volcano stirs quakes

THE BOTTOM, Saba (AP) — A volcano dormant for more than 350 years stirred Friday on this small Dutch Caribbean island, causing two mild earthquakes and leaving residents jittery.

No one was injured in the predawn earthquakes, but geologists were rushing seismic equipment to monitor further disturbances. The geologists determined Friday that the temblors — the latest of 24 to hit the island since June 4 — were caused by the volcano that formed Saba.

The quakes are the first in recent memory and have caused increasing concern among the 350 residents of the island's main town, which is on a plateau surrounded by volcanic domes.

"People are upset. They're not sleeping at night. They're just waiting for the next one," said Diane Medero.

The last eruption of the volcano came just before the Dutch settled Saba in 1640, said Alan Smith, a geologist at the University of Puerto Rico who has studied Saba for the Netherlands Antilles government.

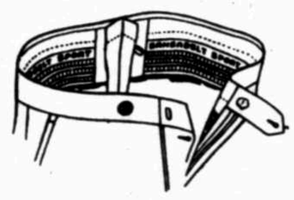

Smith said the quakes were centered about five miles below the surface of the island, indicating that volcanic magma, or lava, was rising toward the surface. He said the geologists installing the monitoring equipment Saturday would try to determine if the lava would reach the surface.

The strongest of the quakes hit Wednesday night and measured 4.2 on the Richter scale.

U.S. diplomatic honesty eludes allies

By Bernard D. Kaplan
Hearst News Service

■ Analysis

PARIS — Some of the media point to a glaring contrast between the way President Bush has been isolated by America's allies at the Earth Summit in Rio de Janeiro and the way they rallied around his leadership during the Persian Gulf War.

A comparison of allied reaction to the two episodes is worth making. But the claim that, in one case, the allies enthusiastically rushed to support U.S. policy while in the other they have stampeded in the opposite direction shows a misunderstanding of how the U.S.-allied relationship really works.

The judgment of one leading U.S. newspaper that, at Rio, Western Europe and Japan have asserted a new-found "independence" of Washington and "created a diplomatic challenge" to America is equally an oversimplification.

As Francis Pym, a former British foreign minister, puts it: "The Europeans have never been shy about challenging American policies and leadership as long as they are confident of doing so without risk."

Pym adds, "The French, Germans and others always seek immediate advantage from exploiting differences with the United States while (simultaneously) they rely on the Americans to defend the intrinsic interests of the West as a whole."

At the Rio conference, he notes, only British Prime Minister John Major, among America's European allies, sought to deflect the abuse heaped on Bush by much of the rest of the world.

Major declared that, although he would sign the controversial biological diversity agreement for protecting rare animal and plant species, Bush had justifiable reasons for refusing to sign.

Major also defended America's conservation record.

Other allied leaders at the Earth Summit distanced themselves as far as possible from the U.S. president, implicitly contrasting their own good-guy status with Bush's role as the summit's heavy.

Pym describes such behavior by most of America's transatlantic allies as more or less habitual and certainly not confined to the current environmental debate.

"The Europeans take the position that that's the price America pays for being world leader," he says.

French foreign affairs analyst Patrick Wajsman says it is a "myth" that, in forming the war coalition against Iraq, Bush had the full and speedy backing of most of America's allies.

"Far from it," Wajsman says. "Most of the allies, with the exception of Britain, exhibited misgivings, second thoughts and a marked reluctance to follow American leadership in the crisis.

"Right up to the moment fighting began, France and Germany were conducting behind-the-scenes diplomatic maneuvers entirely on their own to avert war."

An unnamed Bush administration official has accused some of America's allies of bowing to fashionable, "politically correct" attitudes in agreeing to sign environmental treaties in Rio de Janeiro which, in fact, many of them have no intention of ever living up to.

The anonymous source implied that many industrialized countries were happy to let the United States take the heat from the global environmentalist lobby and the developing nations while they hid behind a shield of diplomatic deceit and hypocrisy.

The French newspaper Le Monde, which often reflects the views of the French government, called the U.S. criticism "self-righteous and self-serving."

But some European analysts say there's a kernel of truth in the American complaint.

They add that the Earth Summit illustrates the basic difference in how the Americans and Europeans practice international diplomacy.

Jean-Jacques Louissere, author of a diplomatic history of the post-World War II era, says, "American diplomacy can be just as devious when it's thought necessary as that of any other nation, but, for reasons of historic tradition, the Americans pride themselves on principled behavior in their dealings with other countries."

According to the French historian: "U.S. officials may tell lies to foreign governments, but it is not normally their practice to start out with the intention of lying."

European diplomatic tradition is different, he says.

"Unlike the Americans, Europeans believe diplomacy should be used to advance interests, not principles," he explains. "Principles don't change; interests do."

Sarajevo defenders mount offensive

SARAJEVO, Bosnia and Herzegovina — Maj. Sefer Halilovic held one finger in his ear to block the blast of heavy artillery shells exploding less than 100 yards away from the government headquarters in central Sarajevo on Friday, and spoke urgently into his walkie-talkie.

"This is your chance, Juka," he said.

A mile away, a 35-year-old former debt collector and repossession man, Juka Prazina, crouched behind a wall near the high school for police cadets, 12 hours into a battle for the heights of Vraca that overlook the heart of Sarajevo.

The battle, begun at dawn Friday, was one of the fiercest since Serbian forces began their siege of the city two months ago, and Prazina's volunteer fighters were barely a rifle shot away from taking the heights.

In the war for Sarajevo, Serbian forces in the mountains surrounding the city have what amounts to a free-fire zone for a devastating array of artillery guns, tanks, mortars and anti-aircraft weapons that are used as cannon against ground targets.

Below them, in the bowl of the city, men like Prazina, many of them part-time fighters in jeans and down vests and running shoes, and most with only automatic rifles and pistols, struggle to retake the heights and silence the guns that are reducing much of this 500-year-old capital to rubble.

Friday, the defenders mounted a counter-offensive, using one of two captured 1960s-vintage tanks to fire across the Miljacka River from a park beside the presidency, the site of the government headquarters, and following up with an infantry assault across the river and into Serbian-held territory in the districts of Grbavica and Vraca.

At nightfall, they had advanced several hundred yards into the Serbian strongholds and were threatening the last Serbian dug-outs in the Vraca heights, around the burnt-out shell of a hotel built for the 1984 Winter Olympic Games.

AP Laserphoto

Serbian soldiers take positions on the front line.

The intensity of Friday's fighting, in which at least a dozen people were killed by Serbian artillery barrages against civilian districts in the older part of the city, closest to the guns on the Vraca slopes, made officials doubtful of the cease-fire that the Serbian nationalist leader, Radovan Karadzic, said he would observe beginning on Monday.

For now, the battle for the Bosnian capital shows no sign of relenting. The defenders, running short of ammunition and desperate to break the Serbian encirclement before starvation sets in among a civilian population that is close to exhausting supplies of food and water, have fought every day this week to break through the siege, taking heavy casualties.

The Serbian forces, more than a week into their continuous bombardments that have devastated every quarter of the city, have responded to the defenders' advances by attempting breakthroughs of their own, down the Vraca slopes and into the heart of the city.

The situation has placed new strains on Halilovic, a 40-year-old artillery veteran who quit the federal Yugoslav army last September to protest the Serbian-led forces' attacks on towns like Vukovar in Croatia, where similar weapons were used to level the city and killed and wounded thousands of its inhabitants.

Now, Halilovic faces some of his former comrades-in-arms from Yugoslavia's artillery battalions, who have changed their badges to support their claims that they are no longer under Yugoslav command but part of an autonomous force controlled by the Serbian nationalist leaders of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

The new Bosnian force with which the major defends this city is little more than a ragtag army.

"It's what you see — a citizens' army," the major said, listing the motley assortment of men he commands. His list included taxi drivers, chefs, soccer players, merchants, high school and college students, university professors, journalists, musicians, bakers, poets and dancers. According to senior government officials, the defenders number fewer than 5,000 all told, and by Halilovic's account, only 400 to 500 are professional soldiers who crossed over from the Yugoslav forces.

It is a force that is less than two months old, and it grew from a motley assemblage of individual militias with names like "Dragon of Bosnia," "Alf's Army" and "King Tomislav's Dragoons" that were formed when rumors of impending war first swept across Sarajevo after Bosnia and Herzegovina declared its independence in March.

They live by their wits, using runners who sprint through the city's streets, amid exploding rockets and shells, to carry messages that cannot reach headquarters by other means because walkie-talkie batteries have run out or because telephones have failed.

"They fight with their hearts," said Ejup Ganic, a U.S.-educated engineer who is one of the vice presidents of the Bosnian republic.

Ganic compared the siege of Sarajavo with that of Leningrad, now St. Petersburg, by Nazi troops in World War II and to the anti-communist uprising in the streets of Budapest in 1956, which was crushed by Soviet troops.

He said the similarities lay in the fact that ordinary people, facing overwhelming military superiority, were fighting for their survival and for what he called their "democratic liberties."

The point is one that is insistently made by Sarajevo's defenders. Because the Serbian forces say they are fighting to carve out what they've called "ethnically pure" enclaves in Sarajevo and elsewhere where they can govern themselves, the fighting here has frequently been described by Western officials as an ethnic conflict.

Schism threatens Orthodox church

MOSCOW (AP) — The Russian Orthodox Church stripped the head of its Ukrainian branch of his rank and privileges Friday, and bishops appealed for unity to avoid a schism that could have serious political consequences.

Metropolitan Filaret of Kiev will be allowed to remain a monk but can no longer administer any sacraments, said his successor, Metropolitan Vladimir of Kiev.

The rare move by the synod of 94 bishops could lead to a religious schism between Orthodox believers in Russia and Ukraine, and raise tensions between the countries, long bound by one main church.

The two former Soviet republics already are feuding over territorial questions and ownership of the Black Sea fleet.

Russians celebrate freedom

MOSCOW (AP) — President Boris Yeltsin pulled over his limousine to chat with boys selling soda, but spurned a neighborhood that had stuffed its stores with goods Friday, Russia's first independence day.

The capital was decked out in white, blue and red Russian flags for the new holiday marking Russia's June 12, 1990, declaration of sovereignty from the former Soviet Union. Diehard Communists frustrated with Yeltsin's economic policies denounced the occasion as a day of mourning.

Yeltsin refused to be fooled — or to wink and play along — when officials in southwest Moscow hurriedly repaved streets and filled store shelves to create a false impression of plenty for his holiday tour.

"I completely changed my route, because the planned route had been too well prepared," he told reporters.

Before the collapse of the Soviet Union, the practice of filling the stores for visits by Communist Party leaders was so common that Russians even had a special word for it — "pokazukha," or "just for show."

But Yeltsin's aides said he insisted on seeing the truth, even if it was painful.

Instead of visiting Supermarket No. 57 — stuffed with sausage, cheese and other foods just for the day — Yeltsin directed his limo to turn onto Moscow's busy Ring Road.

Then the car swerved to the curb so he could talk with two teen-agers selling Pepsi-Cola along the street. He suggested they could find a more convenient spot, but wished them well, Tass reported.

Yeltsin told workers at a meat factory that his economic reforms would continue, despite soaring prices that have severely pinched the average family.

"Not one step back, only forward, no matter how hard it may be for the people and the president," he said.

Last June 12, Yeltsin won election as Russia's first popularly-chosen president. He promised Friday that he would soon give up his second job, as prime minister.

"As soon as I see that (Deputy Prime Minister Yegor) Gaidar's team has become strong enough that I can leave the post of prime minister, that's what I'll do," he said. "It will happen in a few months, definitely this year."

In hot, sticky weather, thousands of Muscovites gathered on Manezh Square outside the Kremlin for a free performance of traditional Russian folk music.

Pizza Hut pushes for serving pies in school cafeterias

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fresh-delivered pepperoni pizza should be allowed in school cafeterias, Pizza Hut and its supporters told Agriculture Department officials Tuesday.

But opponents said USDA would be relinquishing too much authority to state regulators if it eased its rules.

Witnesses testified before a panel that is deciding how to change the regulations to comply with congressional action allowing restaurant pizza to be part of the national school lunch program.

The current rules don't allow fresh pizza topped with meat unless it has been inspected by federal meat inspectors. Restaurants use meat that is federally inspected, but the premises are inspected by state and local authorities.

Pizza Hut was rebuffed by the department in an effort to get the rules changed. So Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., whose district includes Pizza Hut headquarters, pushed through legislation to accomplish the same thing.

Glickman, testifying for the change, said it was "designed to give fresh pizza companies and fresh pizzas regulatory parity with other meat product companies and meat products being sold in the school lunch program."

"I would not have sponsored this amendment if I thought in any way that it might lead to lowering the public safety and health of foods served in school lunches," Glickman said. "It does not and will not."

'If students want fresh pizza for lunch, they should get it," he said. "They should not be denied their choice because of Byzantine federal regulations that require unnecessary, duplicative federal inspection and red tape."

Stanley J. Emerling, executive vice president of the National Association of Meat Purveyors, told the panel that the proposed change delegated so much authority to the states that federal officials "will not know where to look for violations to begin with."

Emerling urged the department to "establish a specific food safety compliance program that will assure the public that school children and others who eat the pizzas have not been subjected to any additional risk to their health and well-being."

Many foods sold to schools are exempt from the present rule.

Jo Ellen Miner, food director of the Minneapolis public schools, said her district supports the change "as we try to do everything we can to keep the kids in school and eating at the school cafeteria during their lunch periods."

"We have proven that students are brand conscious," Miner said. "By offering them a quality brand product they recognize at an affordable price, more students stay in the lunchroom."

John R. McGlamery, retired food and drug administrator for North Carolina, testifying for Pizza Hut, said that "no purpose would be served by requiring federal controls over the processing of meat-topped pizzas."

Michael W. Pariza director of the University of Wisconsin Food Research Institute, who said he was also testifying on behalf of Pizza Hut, said pizza "is one of the safest restaurant foods available."

"Pizza is thoroughly baked and usually eaten soon afterward," Pariza said.

Wimp successor

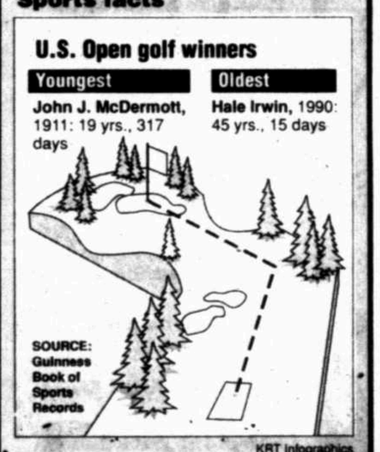

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Alabama promoted assistant David Hobbs to succeed Wimp Sanderson as head basketball coach Friday, closing the door on a plaid period that ended in turmoil.

Hobbs, an assistant under Sanderson since 1985, had been acting head coach since Sanderson quit last month amid charges he struck his secretary.

The move to the top was bittersweet for Hobbs, 43.

"I'm very happy to be up here. I'm not crazy about the circumstances," he said. Still, Hobbs called the Alabama job "one that dreams are made of."

Bavaro signs

CLEVELAND (AP) — Former All-Pro tight end Mark Bavaro, who was released by the New York Giants last summer because of knee problems, signed a contract with the Cleveland Browns on Friday.

Bavaro rejoins Browns coach Bill Belichick, who as an assistant with the Giants for seven seasons.

"The Cleveland Browns and Bill Belichick, I think, are going to give me the best opportunity to get back into the NFL," said Bavaro, who turned down a job as the Giants tight ends coach.

Bavarro, who sat out all last season, signed a one-year deal with the Browns. Terms of the contract were not disclosed.

Snead poised for a runaway

■ Proving his first-round course-record 65 was no fluke, J.C. Snead pads his lead at the Senior Players Championship with a 66.

Associated Press

DEARBORN, Mich. — J.C. Snead proved his course-record 65 in the opening round of the Senior Players Championship was no fluke when he came within a stroke of it Friday.

Snead shot 66 for a 36-hole record of 131, an improbable 13-under par. He threatened to make a runaway of the $1 million event considered one of the majors on the Senior PGA Tour.

The old halfway mark was 11-under by Jack Nicklaus in 1990, when the tournament was played at nearby Dearborn Country Club.

And Snead could have been better!

He was 14-under after a birdie at the 17th, but bogeyed No. 18.

"I started and finished crappy. But it was good in between," said Snead, nephew of the famous Sam. "It was just kind of down the fairway and on the green from there."

His nearest challenger, left-hander Bob Charles, was five shots back after a 69. Dave Stockton, who shot 67, was at 138.

Nicklaus, who designed the 6,876-yard, par-72 TPC of Michigan layout, skipped this tournament to practice for the U.S. Open at Pebble Beach.

Yet Snead couldn't shake the bogey he made at the 417-yard finishing hole.

"I was trying to work it right to left up there," Snead said. "I hit 3-wood off the tee, then 4-iron. I really had to blister it, but it would have been plenty if I hadn't pulled it left.

"It's kind of disgusting to blow the

Chaps are Champs

Midland College golf team wins its first national title

Staff report

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — The flirtation is over. Midland College is officially a national champion in golf.

The Chaparrals, frustrated over letting the National Junior College Golf Championship slide away while playing the host role at home last year, ended a miracle run here Friday at the McCormick Ranch course to win the national title by two strokes over host Scottsdale Community College.

Miracle? Well, consider the fact that MC stood in seventh place after two of the four rounds and it's easy to see that this was one tough climb up one tough hill. But the Chaps did it.

Thursday, MC moved to within two strokes of third round leader Florida Community College. The Chaps then posted a final team round of 293 Friday while Florida CC fell off the pace with a 313 to stumble into fifth place.

MC ended the national tournament with a four-day 1,186, two strokes ahead of Scottsdale CC. Central Alabama finished at 1,194 while Odessa College placed fourth with an 1,197 after flirting with second place after two rounds.

The national championship netted MC's Delnor Poss 1992 National Coach of the Year honors and a dump into McCormick Lake. The Chaps tossed the boss into the course lake after the victory.

"We played extremely well," Poss said. "The whole team was steady all week."

The key to victory came down to the last three holes of the tournament just as you would expect against a national championship field.

"We played the last three holes three-under-par as a team and that turned out to be the margin of victory," Poss said. "I can't say enough about these guys and I can't say that there's any six guys who deserve a national championship any more than these guys do."

Valley Mills retains Class A title

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Donnie Sadler drove in two runs during Valley Mills' seven-run second inning, then threw 4 2-3 solid innings of relief Friday as the Eagles earned their second straight Class A title with a 9-4 victory over Flatonia.

The victory was the 18th straight for Valley Mills, which won University Interscholastic League championship titles in 1983 and 1991.

The 20-2 Eagles tied Colmesneil for the most Class A titles and matched their 1985-86 feat of consecutive crowns. The division was created in 1979.

Sadler, a sophomore, pitched a one-hitter in Thursday's 6-0 semifinal victory over Detroit.

He started Friday's game at shortstop, but relieved Hobie Reich in the third after the Eagles starter walked his sixth batter.

Sadler, 7-1, struck out the first two batters he faced and went on to allow one run in the seventh. The game ended with the bases loaded.

UIL Baseball

Flatonia, making its first UIL tournament appearance, ended the year 21-7. Jacob Olmos, who couldn't retire a batter in the second inning, fell to 4-2.

The junior walked three batters and surrendered a double before being relieved by Rodney Williams, who pitched five innings of Flatonia's combined no-hitter in Thursday's semifinal against Baird.

But Williams couldn't get out of the jam, surrendering two singles, a walk and a hit batter.

Valley Mills scored twice more off Williams in the third, but did not threaten the rest of the game.

Pitcher Jacob Olmos of Flatonia puts the tag on Valley Mills' Kenneth Wood , but Wood reaches home safely on a wild pitch and Valley Mills goes on to capture a second straight state baseball title with a 9-4 victory Friday in Austin.

Class 2A Final
Shiner 5, China Spring 4

Wayne Otto struck out 10 China Spring batters, fueling Shiner's victory and giving the Comanches their second 2A title in as many tries.

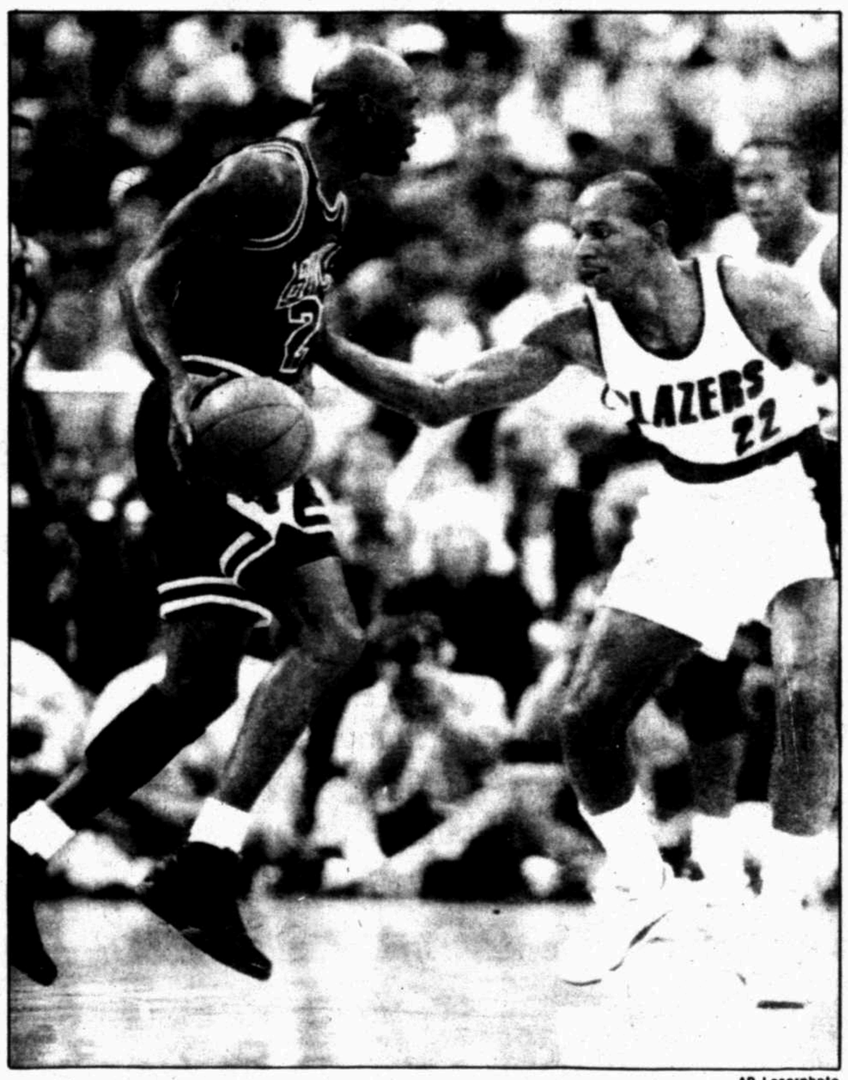

Shiner (21-8) used a three-run first inning as a springboard to its sixth consecutive victory and first state championship since 1981.

China Spring, playing in its fifth UIL tournament and fourth in six years, fell one game short of adding a third title to its 1987 and 1989 trophies. The Cougars ended the year 26-3-2.

Otto, 6-4, opened the game by allowing the first two China Spring hitters

Bulls regain control of NBA finals

Chicago's Michael Jordan, left, is held away from the basket by Portland's Clyde Drexler in the early going of Game 5 of the NBA finals Friday night, but the bald Bull eventually broke free to score 46 points.

■ Michael Jordan leads the way with a 46-point effort and Chicago takes a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven NBA finals.

Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. — Michael Jordan and the Chicago Bulls, again playing their best when the stakes are highest, regained control of the NBA Finals on Friday night.

Jordan scored 46 points and Scottie Pippen had 24 points, 11 rebounds and 9 assists in the Bulls' 119-106 victory that gave them a 3-2 lead over Portland in the NBA championship series.

Clyde Drexler scored 30 points for the Trail Blazers, gunning for their first NBA title since 1977.

Chicago can become the NBA's third repeat champion in six years with another victory in Game 6 at home on Sunday or in Game 7 at Chicago Stadium on Wednesday.

Unlike last season, when the Bulls breezed to a 15-2 postseason record on the way to their first NBA title, they have struggled for consistency in the 1992 playoffs, losing seven games along the way.

By taking a 19-point lead in the first half and then staying safely in front Friday night, Chicago won again when the outcome of a best-of-7 series was in the balance.

Three times — against New York, Cleveland and Portland — the Bulls have split the first two games at home, won Game 3, then were tied 2-2 by losing Game 4. On all three occasions, they have come back to take the fifth game.

An overtime loss in Game 2 and a poor performance in the fourth quarter in the fourth game had the Bulls in a sour mood, and they took it out on the Trail Blazers in the first half, hitting 61.5 percent of their shots.

Leading 66-54 at halftime, the Bulls hit the first three baskets of the third period on jumpers by Jordan and John Paxson and a fastbreak dunk by Pippen.

A layup and two free throws by Jordan with 6:26 left in the quarter put Chicago ahead 82-62.

Portland closed to 92-78 as the Bulls' only real problem all night — foul trouble — resurfaced late in the period. But Cliff Levingston's rebound basket with 1.0 seconds left enabled the Bulls to take a 16-point lead into the final 12 minutes.

The Blazers made 35 of 44 free throws and the Bulls 37 of 45 in the foul-plagued game.

Jordan's two free throws gave the Bulls a 99-81 lead with 9:37 left. He was called for his fifth foul just 44 seconds later and was removed from the game. Jordan came back to match Rolando Blackman's career playoff record of 43 points against Portland with a jumper at the 5:22 mark, giving the Bulls a 109-91 advantage.

The Trail Blazers tried to get back in the game with a 10-1 spurt, as Drexler and Terry Porter, who scored 17 points, had two baskets apiece. That closed the deficit to 110-101.

But another Portland comeback victory was not in the cards when the Bulls scored the next five points, all on free throws, to seal the outcome.

With the Trail Blazers' loss, the Western Conference champion is now 1-10 at home in the NBA Finals in the last four seasons, with the only victory by Portland on Wednesday. Before the Finals, those four teams won 30 of 31 playoff games at home.

Chicago, which lost Game 4 despite starting with a 10-0 run, surrendered a game-opening layup to Jerome Kersey before scoring 10 consecutive points, 6 of them by Jordan.

Harold Henning, Kermit Zarley and Tommy Aaron were at 139. Henning shot 68, Zarley even-par 72, and Aaron 73.

Aaron started the day just a shot behind Snead. But he made double-bogey six at the first hole and struggled the rest of the way. Zarley, who had two victories in 28 years on the PGA Tour, had five birdies and five bogeys. Henning ran off a string of four birdies on the front side to turn at 33.

Simon Hobday matched Snead's course record with a second-round 65 and was tied with Lee Trevino, Al Geiberger and Jim Ferree at 140.

"If J.C. continues to play like this, nobody's going to catch him," said Hobday, who birdied four of the first five holes on the back side in a bogey-less round. "The weather is the key. The wind hasn't been too bad."

Ferree, who shared third place with Charles and Zarley after the first round, started the second round at 5-under and got it to 8-under with a birdie on the 13th. But Ferree, whose 61st birthday was Wednesday, bogeyed the final four holes for a 73.

Both Trevino and Geiberger shot 70.

"Five shots isn't an insurmountable lead," Charles said. "If the weather changes, anything can happen."

Snead won eight times on the PGA Tour, but is winless since joining the Senior circuit in 1990. He was in a playoff with DeWitt Weaver at Lexington, Ky., in September and Weaver holed a birdie on the second extra hole to win.

CHAMPS: Poss named Coach of the Year

(From 1C)

MC sophomore Grant Thomson shot a 72 on the last round to finish at 292, just one stroke off the medalist pace that was won by Scottsdale's Mike Tomkins, who had to fire a tournament best 68 on the final day.

Still, Thomson won first team All-America status with his effort. In fact, MC has had the No. 2 medalist in the national tournament three years running.

"I finished second overall, but it didn't even bother me because I was more interested in the team," Thomson said. "It's fantastic. We're really pumped."

MC sophomore Steven Armstrong also earned first team All-America honors. Armstrong had a Chap best 71 on the final day for a 295 total, tied for fifth in the medalist chase.

"After finishing second to Brevard last year on our home courses, we felt like we really missed an opportunity. But we accomplished what we set out to do this time," Armstrong said. "We improved steadily every day here and we didn't make any of the mistakes we made last year."

Odessa College's Luis Delgadillo completed an impressive showing Friday with a 74, placing third in the medalist chase at one stroke behind Thomson with a 294. Jason Williams of Brevard also had a 294.

Midland College's Shaun Bishop also had a great tournament with a 296, placing seventh overall. Darren Griff ended with a 305 while Guy Redford had a 315.

The Chaps have taken a couple of well placed shots at the national title, but it took a real ladder climb to nail it down. MC placed third in 1990 in Florida, then took second last year at home. It seemed only natural that the third time would be the charm for that first golf title in the school's history.

MC played in 15 golf tournaments this year and won 11 titles. The were also second in two other tournaments. There was little room for improvement.

Today, there is no need for improvement. The national title is coming home.

to reach second and third. But he came back to strike out the next five batters.

Only two more Cougars reached base in the second through fifth innings. Otto fanned the first two hitters in the sixth.

China Spring fought back for a four-run, two-out rally, knocking out Otto and roughing up reliever Daniel Boedeker, who pitched a complete game five-hitter in Thursday's 3-0 semifinal victory over Holliday.

Class 3A Final
Queen City 4 Bellville 3

Gaylon Dixon's two-run single in the fifth inning propelled Queen City to its first 3A state championship, avenging last year's title game loss.

The Bulldogs scored two runs in the first and another pair in the fifth to secure the crown at the 44th annual University Interscholastic League tournament. They finished the year 24-4, riding a 12-game victory streak.

Last year, Queen City was defeated 5-2 by Falfurrias in the championship game.

Bellville, 24-4, making its second tourney appearance, tried helping coach David Cerny keep up with his brother Steven, who earlier Friday guided Shiner to the state's 2A title.

Klark Reynolds, 12-2, won for the second straight day. He pitched 3 1/3 innings of no-hit relief in Thursday's 6-5 semifinal victory over Graham and tossed a complete game Friday.

Reynolds contributed at the plate, too, singling home shortstop Cliff Jones in the first. The senior pitcher advanced to third when his hit was misplayed by right fielder Ryan Labay. He then scored on Phillip Hamilton's single.

Class 4A Final
Robstown 10, Bridge City 1

Mike Gutierrez threw the third no-hitter of the two-day UIL tournament, beating Bridge City and giving Robstown its second consecutive Class 4A title.

This is the first time in the 44-year history of the tournament that three no-hitters have been thrown in the same weekend. Gutierrez's no-hitter is the tourney's 16th all-time and first in 4A since 1967.

Robstown has been the most dominant team at the last six University Interscholastic League tournaments, appearing five times and reaching the finals three of those years.

The Cotton Pickers won the 1991 tourney after losing the title game the previous year. They became the first back-to-back winners since Brenham won three straight between 1986 and 1988.

Gutierrez, 7-2, joined Class 5A's Mark Senterfitt of Freeport Brazoswood and A Flatonia's duo of Rodney Williams and Aaron Masek with no-hitters in this year's tournament. Those gems came during Thursday's semifinals.

The 1949 and 1967 UIL tourneys saw two no-hitters. One of the 1967 gems came in 4A as South San Antonio's John Langerhans beat Beaumont Forest Park 3-0.

Angels end four-game skid by beating Diablos

Staff report

EL PASO — The Midland Angels ended a four-game losing streak Friday night with a 5-3 Texas League win over the El Paso Diablos.

The victory insured that the Angels will end this 12-game road trip at least at the .500 level with one game to play here tonight before returning to Angels Stadium Sunday to face the San Antonio Missions.

Midland won five of six games to start the road trip in San Antonio, but had lost four in a row to the Diablos before staging the drought buster Friday.

Midland jumped to a 5-0 lead in the game, scoring four runs in the fifth inning that saw the Angels score on a sacrifice fly by Dan Rumsey, RBI singles by new Angel catcher Mike Musolino and Walt McConnell and a passed ball.

McConnell also scored on a sacrifice fly by Terry Taylor in the second inning.

Midland starter Paul Swingle (5-4) got the victory while Darryl Scott picked up his eighth save while pitching the night and striking out John Byington to end the game.

Swingle had a shutout going until he was charged with all three runs in the El Paso seventh before getting an out.

Midland catcher Mick Billmeyer has been called to Triple-A Edmonton of the Pacific Coast League for the second time this year. Billmeyer, 28, was called up to Edmonton for nine games on April 25. He had one hit in eight at-bats (.125) before being optioned to Midland again on May 4. In 21 games with the Angels, Billmeyer hit .130 with no homers and nine RBI.

Musolino, a catcher from Palm Springs, replaces Billmeyer. Musolino, 24, hit .250 with one homer and 13 RBI for Palm Springs and got his first RBI for Midland Friday.

Little League World Series adds night games

Associated Press

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. — Night games and a new, longer format highlight the changes that will be evident when the Little League World Series begins later this summer.

American teams from the South and East will play the first night game on Aug. 24, and the loser will not be eliminated for the first time under the new format, which more than doubles the number of games in the annual tournament.

"This gives teams more opportunity to play toward the championship," Little League president Creighton Hale said of the round-robin setup.

"Each team will play three meaningful games to determine who will play in the semifinals," tournament director Joseph Losch said. "This will keep them busy all week."

Until this year, the eight teams played a single-elimination tournament that took just seven games to complete. The new format will take 15 games to complete, including four each on the first three days of the Series.

Previous tournaments ran from Tuesday to Saturday, while the new format requires a Monday to Saturday schedule.

Lights were erected earlier this month.

In addition to the South-East night game, other first round games include the USA Central region against the West and, in the international bracket, Canada against Latin America and Europe against the Far East.

After each team's first three games, the top two in each bracket will play in the semifinals.

14 hurt when team van flips

Associated Press

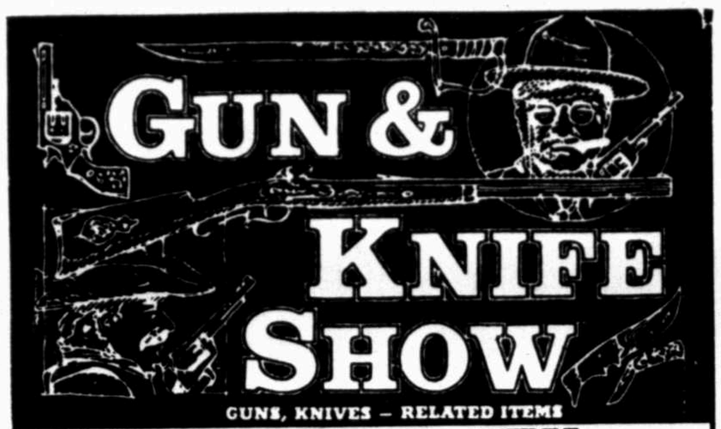

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — Fourteen members of a Houston diving team, including the coach and her mother, were injured Friday when their van flipped on Florida's Turnpike.

All 14 were taken to Palm Beach County hospitals, several with serious injuries, according to hospital and law enforcement officials.

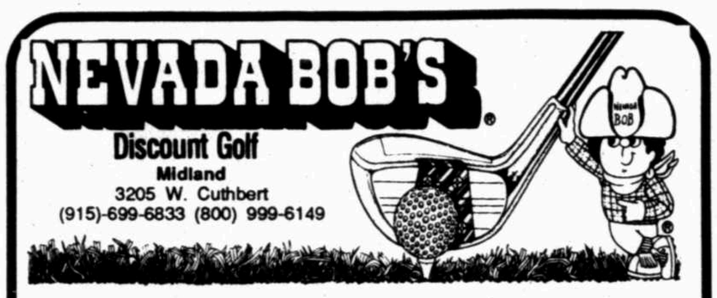

The van driver, Matin Acosta-Trant of Houston, apparently fell asleep at the wheel about 8:15 a.m. just north of the Palm Beach Gardens exit, said Florida Highway Patrol trooper Anthony Stafford.

The southbound van flipped several times before crashing into a ditch, Stafford said. He said charges were pending against Acosta-Trant.

The group was part of a swim club called the Cougar Divers for junior and senior high students in the greater Houston area, Feng said.

Smiley, Puckett lead Twins to win

Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — Kirby Puckett hit a two-run homer and John Smiley won for the sixth time in seven decisions as the Minnesota Twins beat the Chicago White Sox 5-1 Friday night.

Smiley (6-3) gave up seven hits in 8⅔ innings, struck out seven and walked three. Rick Aguilera finished for his 17th save in 20 chances, retiring pinch-hitter Carlton Fisk on a flyout.

Charlie Hough (2-3) allowed five hits in six innings but walked eight for the second time this season. He was victimized in the first inning when a throwing error by third baseman Robin Ventura allowed two runs to score.

Chili Davis, who hit 29 homers in 1991 in his first season with the Twins, homered in the fourth for a 3-1 lead. He had not homered since May 29 and has just three in 165 at-bats this season.

Puckett hit his 13th homer of the year in the sixth. Puckett, who also singled in the third, is 19 for 43 in his last nine games with four homers and 14 RBIs.

American

George Bell's RBI single put Chicago ahead in the first, but the Twins took the lead in the bottom of the inning when Ventura threw away Brian Harper's grounder after walks to Shane Mack and Kent Hrbek.

Indians 3, Yankees 0

CLEVELAND — Charles Nagy pitched a career-best five-hitter for his fourth straight victory, and Danny Tartabull committed a costly error as Cleveland beat New York.

Nagy (8-3), who lowered his ERA to 2.22, has all five of the Indians' complete games and both of their complete-game shutouts. He walked none, struck out five and was aided by three inning-ending double plays.

Cleveland has turned 73 double plays, most in the majors.

Carlos Baerga, Kenny Lofton and Paul Sorrento each hit RBI singles for Cleveland, winner of three straight. The Yankees, starting a 14-game road trip, have lost four in a row.

Red Sox 5, Blue Jays 0

TORONTO — Wade Boggs hit a grand slam in the fifth inning, and Frank Viola pitched 7⅓ shutout innings Friday night as Boston collected just its fifth victory in 14 games.

Boggs hit his fifth home run of the season and third career grand slam after Dave Stieb (3-6) walked Tony Pena, Scott Cooper doubled and Jody Reed walked.

Viola (6-4), just 6-13 against the Blue Jays, gave up six hits, struck out five and walked three as won for the first time in five starts since May 16.

Orioles 6, Tigers 0

DETROIT — Leo Gomez hit his first career grand slam and Chris Hoiles homered twice as Mike Mussina recorded his first career shutout.

Mike Mussina (8-1) pitched a six-hitter, struck out six and walked one in his second complete game this season. His ERA against the Tigers in four career starts dropped to 0.79 ERA.

Scott Aldred (2-6) was tagged for five runs and five hits in 3⅓ innings as the Tigers lost their fourth straight and dropped into last place in the American League East.

Angels 5, Royals 0

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Mark Langston scattered seven hits for his first shutout in two seasons as California beat Kansas City in Wally Joyner's return to Anaheim Stadium.

Langston (6-4) ended his three-game losing streak as he pitched his first shutout since a 9-0 victory over Minnesota on Sept. 11, 1990. He struck out six and walked one in pitching his first complete-game victory since last July 16 against Baltimore.

Mariners 4, Brewers 1

SEATTLE — Seattle, in its first game following approval of the $106 million sale of the franchise to a Japanese-backed group, got seven-hit pitching from Erik Hanson and Russ Swan and beat Milwaukee.

Hanson (3-9) gave up seven hits in seven innings, struck out four and walked three as the Mariners began a seven-game homestand following a 2-7 road trip.

Tigers borrow cash for payroll

NEW YORK (AP) — The Detroit Tigers borrowed about $5 million to make payroll in the last month because they were running out of cash, baseball officials said Friday.

The officials, who spoke on the condition they not be identified, said commissioner Fay Vincent told baseball executives at this week's quarterly meetings that he had to deal with an instance in the last quarter where a club got into a cash-flow problem.

Vincent did not identify the club during the meetings, said one executive who attended, but several officials said they had been told the club was Detroit. One official with direct knowledge of the transaction said the amount borrowed was in the mid-seven figures.

An agreement made early this year between the commissioner's office and banks headed by Citibank established a line of credit for at least $300 million. Tigers president Jim Campbell did not deny that the team tapped into that line of credit.

Pair suspended for part in brawl

NEW YORK (AP) — Detroit Tigers pitcher John Doherty and Cleveland Indians catcher Sandy Alomar Jr. were suspended by American League president Dr. Bobby Brown on Friday for their roles in a bench-clearing brawl on June 8.

Doherty, banned for four games, and Alomar, banned for three, have appealed the ruling and remain eligible to play pending the outcome of hearings to be held later this season.

With the Tigers leading 8-1 on June 8, Doherty hit Glenallen Hill of the Indians to start the sixth inning, then nearly hit Alomar with the next pitch.

Alomar charged the mound and kicked Doherty in the stomach as both benches emptied. No punches were throw, but Doherty and Alomar were both ejected.

Fractured hand sidelines Sosa

CHICAGO (AP) — Cubs outfielder Sammy Sosa sustained a fractured bone in his right hand Friday when hit by a pitch and will be sidelined four to six weeks.

Sosa was struck by Montreal right-hander Dennis Martinez in the fifth inning and suffered a fracture of the fifth metacarpal.

Sosa is hitting .238 with five homers and 16 RBIs.

Snyder extends streak in Houston

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Cory Snyder extended his hitting streak to 10 games with a tie-breaking infield single in the eighth inning as the San Francisco Giants beat Houston 3-2 Friday night, sending the Astros to their season-high sixth straight loss.

Kirt Manwaring singled to start the eighth off reliever Doug Jones (3-4). He went to second on a sacrifice by Jose Uribe and moved to third on Willie McGee's fourth hit of the game, a single to left.

After Will Clark was intentionally walked, Snyder hit a dribbler down the third-base line and beat it out for a hit, scoring Manwaring.

Mike Jackson (2-1) got the victory and Rod Beck pitched the ninth for his third save.

Pirates 3, Mets 2

NEW YORK — Randy Tomlin, the ultimate Met-killer, beat New York for the second time in six days.

National

Tomlin (8-3) improved to 7-0 lifetime with a 1.75 ERA against the Mets, including a six-hit shutout last Sunday in Pittsburgh. He is 13-14 with a 3.18 ERA against the rest of the National League in his three-year career.

A home run in the seventh inning by Howard Johnson, his first in 106 at-bats since May 5, stopped Tomlin's scorless streak at 26 innings overall.

Cubs 5, Expos 2

CHICAGO — Derrick May's three-run homer with two outs in the eighth inning powered Chicago past Montreal.

Jose Vizcaino led off the eighth with a double and was sacrificed to third by Doug Dascenzo. Ryne Sandberg then grounded to third and Vizcaino was caught in a rundown while Sandberg took second. Andre Dawson, who earlier hit a two-run homer, was walked intentionally and May hit Dennis Martinez' next pitch into the right-field bleachers for his first homer of the season.

Braves 6, Padres 4

ATLANTA — Pinch-hitter Deion Sanders tied the score with a homer and Ron Gant hit a go-ahead run-scoring single in a three-run eighth inning, sending the Atlanta Braves past San Diego.

The Braves won for the 11th time in their last 13 games.

Sanders led off the eighth with a homer off reliever Mike Maddux (0-1). Otis Nixon then beat out a bunt single — his third hit of the game — stole second and took third on Terry Pendleton's single before Gant singled to center off Larry Andersen.

Phillies 8, Cardinals 5

ST. LOUIS — Darren Daulton hit his seventh home run in eight games as the Philadelphia Phillies beat slumping St. Louis.

The Phillies built an early 6-1 lead before St. Louis scored four runs in the fifth. But Philadelphia pulled away with a run-scoring infield hit by John Kruk in the sixth and Daulton's 11th homer in the seventh.

Daulton, who also had a run-scoring single in the third, is 7 for 17 against St. Louis pitching with four home runs in four games and 10 RBIs.

Reds 4, Dodgers 3

CINCINNATI — Bill Doran's two-run single in the eighth inning rallied the Cincinnati Reds past Los Angeles.

Doran's one-out single off Roger McDowell (3-6) gave the Reds their seventh win in 11 games and completed a night of pitching misery for the Dodgers.

Forsman builds two-stroke lead at St. Jude

Associated Press

PGA

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Dan Forsman weathered a course-record charge by Jim McGovern, scrambling to a 5-under-par 66 Friday and building a 2-stroke lead after two rounds of the storm-plagued $1.1 million St. Jude Classic.

PGA Tour officials suspended play Friday evening with 77 golfers still on the course after two delays totaling almost three hours.

The second round will be concluded Saturday morning with the third round beginning after the field is cut to the low 70 and ties.

Forsman, a morning starter who registered the last of his three PGA Tour wins in 1990, carded six birdies, three bogeys and an eagle for a 36-hole total of 12-under 130.

McGovern tied the course record at the 7,006-yard, par-71 TPC at Southwind course with a 9-under 62.

First-round leader Peter Persons was able to shave only one stroke off par in the second round and joins four others three strokes behind Forsman at 133.

U.S. Open champion Payne Stewart turned in a round of 7-under 64 and was among five players at 8-under 134.

PGA champion John Daly shot a 1-over 72 and at 1-under was in danger of missing the cut.

Masters and defending St. Jude champion Fred Couples completed 10 holes Friday and is at even-par for the tournament.

Forsman, whose top finish this year was seventh in the Houston Open, said his confidence continued to build as he played Southwind's soggy fairways and soft greens.

A 2-foot tap at No. 16 had put Forsman at 10 under for the tournament, but a poor tee shot led to a bogey 5 at the 17th.

Forsman rallied on the front nine with a 15-foot birdie putt at No. 1 and an 8-footer for a birdie 4 at No. 3.

A chip that found the cup from 25 feet away at No. 5 was good for an eagle 3, but Forsman 3-putted from 25 feet at the 6th hole and then parred out.

Tut's relics enshrined in new gallery

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — King Tut's solid gold burial mask and hundreds more of his most valuable treasures have a new home at the Egyptian Museum in Cairo.

The King Tut Gallery was opened in April, its 400 relics gleaming after a thorough spring cleaning. Every day, up to 7,000 visitors view the gold and glitter the boy pharaoh took into the afterlife in 1323 B.C.

For decades, visitors wanting to see the treasures had to wait an hour or more in badly ventilated corridors, then were whisked through narrow aisles, past dusty, poorly lit showcases.

"It was awful, disgraceful," said Mohammed Saleh, the museum director.

Generations of tourists knew the old gallery as the Gold Room, for the burial paraphernalia it held, or the Jewelry Room for the 143 stunning jewelry pieces that had adorned the wrappings of Tut's mummy.

Only 30 visitors at a time could fit into the old gallery. The new one accommodates 300.

Twelve galleries in the museum display 1,703 pieces from Pharaoh Tutankhamen's tomb in southern Egypt, which archaeologist Howard Carter found on Nov. 22, 1922. Saleh said it took two years to design the new gallery, by far the museum's most popular exhibit hall.

The Egyptian Museum opened its first Tutankhamen exhibit in 1927, when Carter's discovery of the treasure-packed tomb in the Valley of the Kings was still fresh in the world's memory.

Americans and much of the developed world were introduced to King Tut three decades ago. Starting in November 1961, many of his treasures toured the United States, Canada, Japan, France, England, the Soviet Union and West Germany.

Tut's most famous relic, the gallery's centerpiece, is a gold burial mask that covered the mummy's head and shoulders.

It depicts a youthful face with narrow eyes, fleshy lips and pierced ears beneath a striped headdress adorned with a vulture's head. The mask is more than 21 inches tall and weighs weighs 22½ pounds.

Also in the new gallery are two of three coffins that cradled Tut's badly decomposed remains. The third coffin, with the mummy, was left in the tomb, now closed to tourists.

Don't be the last to find out what's happening.

State seeks to close Sears auto repair

Associated Press

Sears Roebuck & Co. may have run afoul of authorities in California, but local employees say their auto repair customers should have no complaints.

The state of California is seeking to revoke Sears' license to repair cars because undercover investigators were overcharged an average of $223 per visit during a probe that lasted more than a year, according to authorities.

But Rodney Smith, a service advisor in the Midland store, said local automotive service employees "go by the book." He said they are careful to tell the customer beforehand about charges, specifying flat rates and added charges such as labor.

He added that the local Sears repair center does not perform tune-ups or work on carburetors, but works on automotive electrical systems as well as performing tire, battery and shock aborsorber service.

California officials alleged that the 106-year-old Sears, Roebuck & Co. used its reputation as a reliable American institution to fleece customers.

"There's a saying, 'You can count on Sears.' I'm here to tell you in auto repair you cannot," said Jim Conran, director of the California Department of Consumer Affairs. He charged that there was "a systematic looting (of) the public," and that customers outside California may have been affected.

Sears blasted the investigation as incompetent and seriously flawed. The company vowed to vigorously contest the charges in court.

"We've offered auto repairs for more than 60 years and we have a hard-earned and outstanding reputation for trust with our customers," said Perry Chlan, a spokesman at Sears' headquarters in Chicago.

California officials alleged that employees were forced to meet sales quotas through a restructuring of wage and commission structures.

Authorities said the investigation began in December 1990 after a rapid near-doubling of cosumer complaints.

There was reason to believe that the scheme was not confined to California, Conran said, noting that Sears' California operations were divided among two out-of-state regional offices.

The state moved to revoke or suspend the auto repair registration of all 72 Sears auto shops in California through an administrative law challenge.

Such action does not involve any fines or criminal penalties. If the registration is not entirely revoked or suspended, there can be intermediate measures such as forbidding certain types of repairs, such as brake jobs.

But Conran said that his department would also work with state or local prosecutors who might seek to investigate the auto repair operations.

The Bureau of Automotive Repair sent undercover investigators 48 times to 33 Sears repair shops statewide. Agents used cars with systems that had been carefully assembled, documented and sometimes left with a minor problem.

The worst overcharge was $585; the lowest was $22, authorities said. There were six undercover runs in which no unnecessary work or parts were sold.

Investigators made 38 undercover runs through 27 shops from December 1990 to December 1991, resulting in overselling 90 percent of the time, the state said. Ten additional runs were made last January, after Sears was told of the probe. The latter runs found some overselling, but of lesser amounts.

Staff writer Mella McEwen contributed to this report.

Store chains refuse to sell Magic's AIDS book

TROY, Mich. (AP) — Some store chains are refusing to sell Magic Johnson's book on preventing AIDS because of its blunt language about how to avoid the sexually transmitted disease, the book's publisher said Friday.

Times Books Publisher Peter Osnos said Kmart Corp. and the Walgreen's Co. drug store chain were among retailers objecting to the book.

The book, "What You Can Do To Avoid AIDS," was written by Johnson, who retired from professional basketball because he has the AIDS virus.

Kmart spokeswoman Mary McGeachy said the retailer decided against carrying the book in its main stores, but is selling it through its Waldenbooks subsidiary.

Kmart's main stores carry a limited number of books, and most are geared toward young children, McGeachy said from the company's headquarters in Troy.

"We're not a bookstore," she said. "The book is very informative, but it's also very graphic. It should be available to teen-agers, ... (but not) a 3-year-old while their mother is buying a lawnmower."

Waldenbooks carries more than 15,000 titles, compared with the 1,800 carried in Kmarts, McGeachy said.

W. Texan files lawsuit over safety violations

GRAND ISLAND, Neb. (AP) — A West Texas man is suing the Monfort meatpacking plant in Grand Island for $1.5 million, claiming company officials fired him for reporting plant safety violations.

Edward O. Murphy of Odessa filed the lawsuit recently in U.S. District Court in Lincoln. Murphy, a former safety manager for Monfort, claims company officials tried to coerce him into ignoring safety violations and then fired him when he didn't comply with their demands.

"They (Murphy's allegations) are completely without merit and that's all we have to say at this time," said Gene Meakins, vice president of public relations for Monfort, in Greeley, Colo.

Murphy's lawsuit states that he began work as safety manager for Monfort's Grand Island plan Aug. 18, 1986.

Murphy contends company officials threatened to fire him on Nov. 30, 1990, if he continued to note ammonia leaks at the plant that exceeded safety regulations. Ammonia gas can pose a health risk if inhaled.

In his suit, Murphy said he continued to try to comply with safety regulations, though he said he was told to ignore safety violations.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration levied $1.09 million in fines against Monfort for 197 safety violations on March 27, 1991.

However, Monfort has disputed the violations and attorneys for both Monfort and OSHA are currently discussing the citations, an OSHA spokeswoman said Thursday.

The lawsuit says Monfort officials knew Murphy cooperated with the OSHA investigation and that he was fired 22 days later.

Murphy's suit seeks $500,000 in damages.

Because Murphy was threatened with losing his job, Murphy's attorney Steve Guenzel of Lincoln contends Monfort violated the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organization Act.

The lawsuit seeks an additional $1 million against Monfort for Murphy's emotional distress and the damage done to his reputation as a result of his firing.

The suit also says Monfort officials spread false rumors about Murphy's sanity in February 1991 and he asks for $50,000 in damages for the defamatory statements.

Alignment puts Moon in Earth's shadow late Sunday

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Earth's shadow will slide over the full moon Sunday night during a partial lunar eclipse visible throughout the Americas.

The Earth will block sunlight from 69 percent of the moon's surface halfway through the three-hour, easily visible portion of the eclipse.

It can be seen simultaneously in all time zones from most areas of North, Central and South America, but not from northern Alaska.

The eclipse will reach its maximum at 12:57 a.m. EDT Monday, or 9:57 p.m. PDT Sunday.

The easily visible umbral stage of the eclipse, when the moon is in the dark part of Earth's shadow, starts at 11:27 p.m. EDT. The lighter penumbral stage begins at 10:09 EDT.

For many Pacific time zone viewers, the eclipse will be half over before the sky is completely dark, according to Griffith Observatory in Los Angeles.

Spread of gambling casinos worries Nevada officials

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — As New Orleans prepares to add a casino to its adult entertainment and other cities consider following suit, the nation's once-racy gambling meccas are going after the family tourist dollar.

Louisiana's Legislature on Thursday approved a single state-controlled casino for New Orleans. Illinois officials are considering a $2 billion four-casino complex proposal for Chicago.

Gambling also has been proposed in Gary, Ind.; Adelanto, Calif.; Bridgeport and Hartford, Conn.; and in Canada. Many Indian reservations have opened casinos and some states have legalized riverboat gambling.

"Sure, we're concerned about it," said Mike Campbell, press secretary to Nevada Gov. Bob Miller.

"As gaming spreads across the U.S., Nevada is going to have to redouble its efforts at economic diversification and ensuring that Nevada becomes a premier resort destination," Campbell said Friday.

Roger Gros, editor of two casino trade magazines in Atlantic City, N.J., agreed.

"It's not good news for Atlantic City," Gros said of the New Orleans casino. "For Atlantic City to get any further they have to appeal to a larger segment of the country."

Reaching out to families is the key, Campbell said.

New Orleans is noted for its all-night bars and the strip joints on Bourbon Street. But it's also a family tourist town, with art galleries, historic architecture, a world class zoo and a modern aquarium.

Las Vegas was once promoted as a racy Disneyland for adults. But gambling has lost its sinful connotation in recent years and Las Vegas has been going after the family tourist dollar with theme parks and multimillion-dollar "megaresorts" with plenty to do for the kids.

Atlantic City is trying to beef up its convention business, and attract families with summer festivals and theme parks, Gros said.

Facts About The BIBLE

BY JOHN LEHTI

WHEN THE ISRAELITES FIRST ASKED FOR A KING TO LEAD THEM AGAINST THEIR ENEMIES, SAMUEL, THE PROPHET, WHO WAS THE LAST OF A LONG LINE OF JUDGES, (SPIRITUAL LEADERS OF THE TRIBES) CAUTIONED THE PEOPLE (CIRCA B.C. 1000) HE EXPLAINED TO THEM ALL THE LIBERTIES, WHICH THEY ENJOYED, THAT THEY WOULD BE GIVING UP — ONCE THEY HAD A KING! (I SAMUEL 8:10-19)

AND NEVER DID A PROPHET PREDICT MORE TRULY! FOR IN THE FIVE HUNDRED YEARS THAT KINGS RULED OVER ISRAEL NEVER WERE THE PEOPLE FREE FROM BONDAGE. EACH MAN HAD TO WORK ONE MONTH OUT OF A YEAR FOR THE KING, TEN PERCENT OF ALL HIS CROPS AND CATTLE WENT TO THE THRONE, HIS BEST LANDS INVARIABLY WERE USED BY THE KING, HIS HEALTHIEST CHILDREN PUT TO WORK IN THE PALACES, AND EVEN WHEN HE WENT TO PRAY IN THE TEMPLE HE WAS TAXED! EVERYTHING SAMUEL HAD PREDICTED CAME TO HAPPEN!

NEXT WEEK: A PARABLE!

RELIGION IN BRIEF

■ Moore to speak at church

ODESSA — Evangelist Carl Moore is speaking at The Potter's House Christian Fellowship Church, 3607 Dixie St., Monday through Friday.

The 7 p.m. talks are entitled "Juneteenth Celebration: Free at Last." For more information call 550-7202.

■ Teens finish 4-year course

Twenty-three Permian Basin teens were honored recently for completing a four-year Christian gospel study course entitled "Seminary."

The course is sponsored by The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. In addition, three students received certificates for completion of one, two or three years.

The youths were recognized with a dinner and commencement program held in Odessa in May. The program was hosted by Jerry Zant, seminary teacher in Midland, and included addresses by Krista Stanton and Wendy Lewus; a musical number by Stephanie Bushman and Paula Gray; an adult guest speaker, Blaine Bushman of Midland; presentation of the graduates by Steve Vore of Odessa; and presentation of diplomas by Stake President Lloyd Hales of Midland. The program was based on the theme for the year, "Choose You This Day Whom Ye Will Serve," based on Joshua 24:15.

The graduates included Lila Harrison, Courtney Logan and Doug Wallace, all of Big Spring; Bonnie Cox of Fort Stockton; Ben Belk, Donovan Bushman, Stephanie Bushman, Paula Gray, Justin Griffin, Joy Jones, Andy Lewis, Wendy Lewis and Krista Stanton, all of Midland; Sara McKenzie of Monahans; Brandon Chandler, Joey Chesser, Errick Huber, Susan Knezek, Craif Linde and Laurel Linde, all of Odessa.

Those who received certificates of achievement were Christina Deval and Jill Little, both of Midland; and Hazel Apodara of Seminole.

Seminary involves high school-age students who study gospel principles and values contained in the Old and New Testament, The Book of Mormon and other LDS scriptures.

■ Church hosts patriotic musical

The Children's Department of Midland First Church of the Nazarene, 1208 W. Wall Ave., will be presenting a patriotic musical drama entitled "Stars and Stripes" Sunday.

The public is invited to attend this patriotic celebration at 10:45 a.m.

■ Brandsetter to be director

Sheri Marie Brandsetter will be installed Sunday as director of Christian Education at Grace Evangelican Lutheran Church, 3000 W. Golf Course Road, during the 10:30 a.m. worship service.

Brandsetter

Miss Brandsetter, the daughter of Fred and Helene Parise of Roswell, N.M., is a 1987 graduate of Roswell High School. She has been serving an internship at Grace Lutheran during the past year and last month received her bachelor of arts degree from Concordia College, Seward, Neb.

As director of Christian Education, Miss Brandsetter will assume the daily administration of the congregation's educational programs, provide resources for the boards of Christian education and youth, develop programs of ministry to families, young adults and the elderly, stressing evangelism in each area of ministry.

■ Early bird mind forum set

An "early bird" Science of Mind Forum is offered by the Permian Church of Religious Science at 9 a.m. Sundays.

Science of Mind, as originated by its founder, Ernest Holmes, ties ancient mysteries to modern scientific concepts, with Christ as the focal point. The Forum will present different speakers leading discussions on topics concerned with the New Thought movement and its relationship to the mystery religions of ancient Egypt, Chaldea, Persia, India and Greece as precussors of Christianity.

Ted Windecker will speak Sunday on "The Way it Works." The series is open to the public.

Churches host bible school

■ Bellview Baptist Church, 1710 N. Big Spring St., has scheduled Vacation Bible School for Monday through Friday.

Hours are 7 to 9 p.m. Children 4-years-old through sixth grade are invited to attend. "Fantastic Journey" is the theme for the Bible School this year.

A special emphasis is planned nightly. Included are "Bring a Friend" Monday, "Tacky Tennis Shoe" Tuesday, "Ugly Tie" Wednesday, "Backward Clothes" Thursday and "Favorite Cap" Friday.

Parents Night will be at 8:15 p.m. Friday. For more information call 682-9474.

■ Crestview Baptist Church, 3300 Thomas Ave., will hold its annual Vacation Bible School Monday through Friday.

Hours are 9 a.m. to noon. Classes are available for 4-year-olds through sixth grade. In addition, a bible study will be provided for parents.

Special activities include Bible stories and puppets.

All children and adults are welcome. For more information call 694-7701.

■ Church host new video series

"Loving, Lasting Relationships," a video by Gary Smalley and John Trent, begins at 10 a.m. Sunday at Kelview Heights Baptist Church and continues through Aug. 9.

In this new video series, Smalley and Trent, offer practical advice based on Biblical principles.

"In 'Loving, Lasting Relationships,' you'll learn to improve communication, increase understanding and enhance interpersonal relationships through insights into personality blending, the role of forgiveness and conveying unconditional love," said Jerry Berry of Kelview Heights Baptist Church.

Video topics are "Discover Your Personality Strength," "Bringing Harmony to the Family Zoo," "Word Pictures: A Language of Love," "Multiply the Impact of Your Word Pictures," "Faith that Empowers Love," "The Power Source of All Loving Relationships," "Settling for the Best" and "Gaining Greater Love Through Trials."

The public is invited to attend.

■ Carlos Zachery to perform

Singer and musician Carlos Zachery performs at Holy Assembly Temple of Praise, 1508 E. Industrial, at 3 p.m. Sunday.

The public is invited to attend.

■ Seminary to offer class

The West Texas Extension Program of Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary will offer the class "The Church as a Worshiping Community" July 5 through 16 here.

Pre-registration continues through June 29.

Robert M. Shelton, academic dean and the Jean Brown Professor of Homiletics and Liturgics at Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary, will teach the course. Shelton is a graduate of the Cumberland Presbyterian Theological Seminary and Princeton Theological Seminary.

This course is a six-hour required course for the master of divinity program at Austin Seminary. It is designed to equip students to function in local congregations as leaders of corporate worship. Students study the character and shape of the corporate worship of congregations during various periods in the history of the church. In addition, students investigate how liturgy and theology have been and continue to be related to each other in the Christian movement.

The classes will meet at Trinity Presbyterian Church, 2800 W. Louisiana Ave., Sunday through Thursday evening beginning July 5 and concluding July 16 for 30 class hours.

For more information call the Rev. A.J. Moreau, director of the Presbytery of Tres Rios, at 682-2514.

■ Family conference to be held

"Faith and Faithfulness '92" Conference will meet June 25-27 at Trinity Presbyterian Church, 2800 W. Louisiana Ave.

Long

Debenport

This family conference will include an opening worship Thursday, 18 workshops Friday and Saturday morning, ending with worship and the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper at noon June 27.

Providing the leadership will be the Rev. Patricia Lane, pastor of Crestholme Presbyterian Church, San Antonio; the Rev. Flynn V. Long Jr., pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Big Spring and pastor moderator of the Synod of the Sun; the Rev. Andrew Edington, president emeritus of Schreiner College, Kerrville, and author, translator and creator of "The Word Made Flesh," a down-to-earth version of the Old and New Testament; Jane Clancy Debenport, director of music at Trinity Presbyterian, and the Rev. Judy Fletcher, co-pastor at Westminister Presbyterian, Houston.

Workshops being presented include, "Spiritual Fourmation in the Reformed Tradition," "Helping Your Congregation to Grow on its Peacemaking Journey," "Scripture: Text, Language and Form," "La Mision y el trabajo de la Iglesia," "Family Communications," "The Winter of Life: A Grace Filled Season," "Reading the Old Testament through New Testament Eyes and Vice Versa," "Teaching Creativity" and "Giving that Feels Good."

Area residents presenting four of the 18 workshops include Diane Comstock, Samaritan Counseling Center of West Texas; The Rev. Joe Turner, pastor of First Presbyterian, Odessa; Linda Goddard, president of CLER Ministries, Midland; and Ms. Debenport.

All children and youth activities will take place at Grace Presbyterian Church.

For more information about the conference contact the Registrar, Faith and Faithfulness '92, P.O. Box 2222, Big Spring, Texas 79721, or call 682-5297.

■ Special services set

The New Jerusalem Baptist Church, 1801 N. Carver St., will celebrate the 21st appreciation service for the church's pastor and his wife, the Rev. and Mrs. John F. Campbell, this month.

Services are planned at 7:30 p.m. June 24 through 26 and at 3 p.m. June 28.

The public is invited to attend.

■ Church plans revival

Hughes Street Church of Christ, 1701 Highes Street, will host its annual revival Sunday through June 21.

Smith Bibens, evangelist and editor of the Christian's Expositor, will speak on a variety of topics related to restoring New Testament Christianity.

Bibens has researched and published a number of studies contrasting the theory of evolution with the Biblical account of creation. One night will be devoted to a study of that subject.

Meeting times are 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday, 7:30 p.m. Monday through June 20 and 10:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. June 21.

Offerings will not be solicited during evening or afternoon services. Children are welcome.

For more information call 697-4848.

■ Vaughan to speak

Douglas B. Vaughan will speak at Community Bible Church, 1108-B S. Midland Drive, on Father's Day, June 21.

Vaughan will be speaking during the Sunday school hour from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. and again during the 10:45 a.m. to noon worship service. During these times, Vaughan will speak on how Christians view God as Father, with emphasis on God as "Abba" Father.

Vaughan, a licensed clinical psychologist associated with Christian Psychological Associates, Nashville, Tenn., received his doctorate from Rosemead Graduate School of Psychology, with theological studies at Talbot Seminary.

In private practice, he is experienced in leading numerous therapy groups for adult children of alcoholics and other dysfunctional family disorders. He is founder and coordinator of the Association of Christian Counselors in the Nashville area.

For more information, call 699-6928.

■ Spirit Wind to perform

Spirit Wind '92, the Northwest Texas United Methodist Annual Conference Youth Choir, will perform at St. Luke's United Methodist Church, 3011 W. Kansas Ave., at 8:30 and 10:50 a.m. June 21.

The choir, which also performs at First United Methodist Church June 20, is a select group of United Methodist senior high youth from throughout the Panhandle and West Texas area. They were selected from more than 170 who auditioned in Lubbock, Amarillo, Abilene and Midland in January and represent communities and churches of all sizes.

For the 11th year, Spirit Wind is directed by Bert Bostic, director of program and music at St. Luke's United Methodist Church, Midland. Jon Johnson, director of music for the First United Methodist Church, Levelland, has co-directed the group for the past four years. The choir is accompanied by Debby Vester, music assistant and organist for St. Luke's UMC, Midland.

For the performance at St. Luke's UMC, Spirit Wind will perform music written by masters such as Allessandro Scarlatti and G.F. Handel as well as music from contemporary composers such as Jane Marshall, Lloyd Pfautsch, John Yarrington and Allen Pote.

Standard choral literature such as "The Kind of Love My Shepherd Is" by Harry Rowe Shelley, "With A voice of Singing" by Martin Shaw, "O Love How Deep" by Everett Titcomb will be part of this year's concert. Two spirituals also will add another dimension to the choir's performance as they sing William Dawson's "Ev'ry Time I Feel the Spirit" and "Ride on King Jesus" arranged by Alice Parker.

This year's tour will include 15 performances throughout West Texas and the Panhandle including a performance at First United Methodist Church at 5 p.m. June 20. A covered dish dinner will follow in the church's Fellowship Hall.

The public is invited to the performance at St. Luke's UMC and at First UMC. For more information call either church.

■ Energy program set

The Unitarian-Universalist Church, Neely Avenue at Midkiff Road, will present a program entitled "Wind Energy and the Texas Turbine Project" at 9:45 a.m. Sunday.

The program will be presented by Dr. David M. Eggleston, well-known energy engineer, author and teacher. Eggleston is also co-author of the book "Wind Turbine Engineering Design," published in 1987.

Eggleston will survey the current business climate for wind energy and give a progress report on the Texas Wind turbine project, a program to manufacture a large, 500 KW utility-sized wind turbine utilizing Texas manufacturers. The machine will stand on a 144-foot tower and have a 132-foot diameter rotor.

Child care will be provided.

The public is invited to attend.

■ Women's Day slated

White's Chapel Church of God in Christ, 1106 E. Cherry Lane, will host a Women's Day program at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Guest speaker will be Mrs. Mary Weatherspoon.

The public is invited to attend.

St. Mark's UMC's Guatemalan trip participants are, from left, Kemit Mouton, Margaret Mouton, Steve Stephens and Carmen Martin.

Midlanders leave for mission

Four Midlanders left this week on a medical mission to Chichicastenango, Guatemala, where they will be guests of the Guatemalan Methodist Church.

While there, they will be visiting hospitals, clinics, orphanages, women's projects and other work projects.

Those Midlander are the Rev. Steve Stephens, pastor of St. Mark United Methodist Church; Margaret Thomas-Mouton, director of Area Methodist Outreach Service; Kemit Mouton, Conoco systems analyst; and Carmen Martin, speech pathologist. The four members of St. Mark's UMC will be joined by eight doctors, nurses and other volunteers from Lubbock, Amarillo and Andrews.

They return Thursday.

Gun rights advocates, Libertarians demonstrate at Perot headquarters

DALLAS (AP) — Gun owners and members of the Texas Libertarian Party staged the first demonstration at Ross Perot's campaign headquarters Friday, urging the likely presidential candidate to take a hard line against gun control.

About 25 members of the North Texas Arms Rights Coalition and Libertarians held signs and banners during the hourlong demonstration.

As with other issues, Perot's statements show he cannot be buttonholed on one side of the debate over guns.

"I want to get the guns out of the hands of violent people," Perot often says. But he opposes registration of gun owners and a waiting period for purchase of guns, likening them to "taking aspirin for a cancer."

"We hear too many contradictory things," said Wayne Burnham, president of the 500-member coalition. "We're tired of mixed signals on gun control."

The demonstrators carried a large sign that said "Ross Take A Stand. Defend the 2nd," referring to the Second Amendment right to bear arms.

Perot could not be reached Friday. But during his appearance on the "Today" show Thursday, he advocated stiffer penalties for criminals who use guns.

"The only thing that I can see that'll really clear everybody's head is have penalties for using weapons — guns, knives, you name it — for violence, that are so severe that even if you're drunk, high and halfway crazy, you'll probably not take your gun into a 7-Eleven store," Perot said.

He then warned the solution "won't be pretty but we'll do it."

Libertarian vice presidential candidate Nancy Lord, who was visiting Dallas for this weekend's Texas Libertarian Party convention, attended the demonstration and said Perot's comments show he does not respect individual rights.

"Our concern is he's dangerous, that he's a man who has no respect for the Constitution," Ms. Lord said.

She also expressed outrage that Perot is still studying issues. "How dare he get on national TV and tell the American people they can just wait until he makes up his mind about what he wants to do to them," Ms. Lord said.

But Burnham said the gun rights coalition, which has endorsed Ms. Lord and Libertarian presidential candidate Andre Marrou, could support Perot if he clearly advocated their stance.

"He doesn't want to commit. I don't believe that fundamentally, somebody of Mr. Perot's age and obvious intelligence can still have some real questions as to whether people should have an absolute right to self defense," Burnham said.

Gramm travels less, Bentsen still wealthy, forms report

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Phil Gramm, who traveled across Texas in a whirlwind of activity two years ago on behalf of Republican candidates, wasn't as much of a frequent flyer last year.

Personal financial disclosure forms released Friday for all 100 senators showed Gramm, R-Texas, made significantly fewer trips in 1991.

In one two-week stretch in 1990, Gramm made some 60 stops on behalf of Victory '90, the state Republican Party's campaign to support Republican hopefuls.

Last year, he accepted a total of 14 trips or hotel accommodations mostly in Texas, but also with visits to Beverly Hills, Calif.; Green Bay, Wis.; and Savannah, Ga.

Republican organizations in California, Georgia, Tennessee, Texas and Wisconsin paid to bring in Gramm, who chairs the National Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee.

Two Texas state Senate candidates and Harris County Sheriff Johnny Klevenhagen also flew the senator into town for events.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, accepted two paid trips last year, traveling to Detroit and Miami for a day to speak to the Michigan and Florida Democratic parties.

The disclosure forms, which detail how senators make and invest their money, showed Bentsen retained his status as one of the wealthiest members of Congress.

Since the forms allow lawmakers to reveal their assets and liabilities in broad terms, it is not possible to obtain a precise estimate of their finances. Members of Congress also are not required to disclose their personal residences, automobiles and other, smaller assets.

But Bentsen detailed assets worth several millions of dollars, including a blind trust he set up in 1989 to manage some of his investments. The Lloyd M. Bentsen Qualified Blind Trust was worth over $1 million in 1991, he reported.

The state's senior senator also holds millions of dollars in farming, ranching and corporate interests, real estate, and checking and money market accounts.

Gramm, while far less wealthy than Bentsen, also holds significant real estate assets, centered in the College Station area, as well as hundreds of thousands of dollars in annuities.

Conjoined twins progress slowly

HOUSTON (AP) — Doctors said conjoined twins who were separated in surgeries earlier this week continued to make progress Friday, but remained on ventilators to help them breathe.

Dr. Timothy Bricker, chief of cardiology at Texas Children's Hospital, said Tiesha remained in good condition, while Iesha remained in fair condition.

The sisters, whose last names and hometowns have remained confidential at the family's request, had been joined from their chest to their naval, with connective tissue between their hearts, a fused liver and a shared bellybutton. They were separated Tuesday in a series of surgeries over eight hours that involved more than a dozen physicians.

Texas Children's spokeswoman April Renberg said the "extensive thoracic surgery" has kept the girls hooked to ventilators as they continue to try to breathe on their own.

Judge criticizes Morales for reneging on Tilton pact

AUSTIN (NYT) — A federal district judge on Friday publicly reprimanded Attorney General Dan Morales, saying he had "dishonored his office" in releasing a videotaped deposition by television evangelist Robert Tilton.

U.S. District Judge Sam Sparks harshly criticized Morales for ignoring an agreement with Tilton's lawyers not to release the videotape. At one point the judge chided Morales that "even someone taking a pre-law school aptitude test" would have known better than to have reneged on the agreement.

"I make this a public reprimand that Attorney General Morales ... under these circumstances dishonored his lawyers first, dishonored his office and has not served the citizens of this state," Sparks said.

As Morales left the courtroom, he used his strongest anti-Tilton rhetoric to date, pledging to do whatever it takes to stop Tilton's ministry from what Morales contends are illegal, deceptive acts.

"Robert Tilton is raping the most vulnerable segments of our society, the poor, the infirm, the ignorant ... who believe his garbage," Morales said. "I regret there's no way we can put an immediate stop to his activity."

Morales said he is continuing a criminal investigation of Tilton's Word of Faith World Outreach Center ministry, based in Farmers Branch, near Dallas, while appealing Sparks' earlier order not to investigate the evangelist under state deceptive trade practices law.

He said Tilton and his lawyers are making it difficult because he has "tens of millions of dollars at his disposal."

Amy Tilton, the oldest daughter of the evangelist, reacted strongly to Morales' use of the word "rape" against her father.

"The term rape is outrageous," Amy Tilton said outside the Austin federal courthouse. "People are not being raped; people are not being hurt."

Morales acknowledged that his attorneys had agreed not to release Tilton's deposition to the media. But he said that agreement had to be ignored because open records laws required its release.

"If a similar series of events were to occur, I would handle it the same," Morales said, saying one of his primary responsibilities is to open government.

The judge said the attorney general's staff at least should have notified Tilton's attorneys when they discovered they had to release the videotape to a Dallas TV station.

That would have given Tilton's attorneys an opportunity to ask the court for a protective order banning its release and Sparks said he would have granted that order.

"This society cannot exist when the highest legal officer in the state won't honor his lawyers' agreements," Sparks scolded Morales.

Sparks criticized Morales' investigation of Tilton in March, saying then that his office's conduct was unprofessional and bordered on unethical. One issue in that hearing was Morales' release to the media of documents alleging Tilton was deceiving church contributors.

Sparks on Friday characterized Morales' most recent behavior as "unprofessional and unjustified."

The judge decided against fining Morales or the state. Tilton attorney J.C. Joyce of Tulsa, Okla., said that was a proper decision because taxpayers should not be forced to foot the bill.

"It's exactly what we expected," Joyce said. "I hope the attorney general's office quits attacking Rev. Tilton."

Morales told reporters after the reprimand that he will not back away from his commitment to open government.

"If the people of Texas want the attorney general to operate in secrecy, they're going to have to elect another person," Morales said.

Lubbock girl's death due to malnutrition, police say

LUBBOCK (AP) — A 7-year-old girl apparently suffered through six months of malnutrition before police found her body at the home of her father and stepmother, authorities said Friday.

Police began investigating Stephanie Danielle Carman's death as a homicide after an autopsy showed the girl "was extremely anemic" and died from "chronic malnutrition."

The death was ruled a homicide by Justice of the Peace Jim Hansen Thursday. No arrests have been made in the case.

The blond, blue-eyed girl weighed only 43 pounds when police discovered her body Monday prone on her bedroom floor in a pool of vomit.

Hansen said the girl, who was just over 4 feet tall, should have weighed about 61 pounds.

Stephanie's father, Steven Carman, and stepmother, Patricia Carman, had dialed 911 after the girl appeared to stop breathing, according to police reports.

Stephanie was pronounced dead about 5 p.m. Monday at University Medical Center.

Hansen said Steven and Patricia Carman had claimed in the past that Stephanie suffered from an eating disorder.

"The parents said she would eat constantly including non-food items and feces, and that she had been in treatment for three months," Hansen said Friday. "This week, they said the deceased had gone to the other extreme and refused to eat."

No one answered repeated phone calls to the residence of Steven and Patricia Carman on Friday.

Police expect to present their findings to the Lubbock County district attorney's office next week.

Stephanie had been living with her father and stepmother since she was 2½ years old, said Lubbock police detective Wayne Casey.

Before that, the child had lived with her biological mother, who now resides in Louisiana, Casey said.

Dropout rate decreases, district says

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas school districts reported the third consecutive decline in dropouts in 1990-91, totaling 3.9 percent of students in grades seven through 12, state education officials said Friday.

Of 1.37 million students enrolled in those grades, there were 53,965 dropouts reported, Joe Wisnoski of the Texas Education Agency told a State Board of Education committee.

Using that annual "snapshot" figure, TEA estimates that 21 percent of seventh graders would leave school sometime before graduation. The state's goal is to reduce that figure to no more than 5 percent in 1997-98.

"There's a lot of room for improvement still," Wisnoski said.

Minority students overall were disproportionately represented among dropouts, although all ethnic groups showed declines in dropout rates in 1990-91.

Minorities made up about 48.7 percent of the student population that year, but accounted for 69.1 percent of all dropouts.

Of Hispanic students enrolled in grades seven through 12 in 1990-91, 5.6 percent were reported as dropping out; American Indians, 6.6 percent; blacks, 4.8 percent; Asians, 2.8 percent; and whites, 2.7.

SATURDAY, JUNE 13, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: The business trips you make this summer could mean speedy career or financial advancement in October. Romance adds an extra glow to the winter holidays. Rounding up new allies early in 1993 will make you feel more secure where employment is concerned. Budget your resources carefully as spring approaches. Unexpected expenses, connected to health or lifestyle, could arise next May. A cash reserve makes the situation much easier to handle.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: tennis player Bettina Bunge, artist Christo, actor Malcolm McDowell, football great Red Grange.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You can double your output or spending power by teaming up with a friend today. A call or letter could change certain plans. Devote some time to pursuing a hobby that always cheers you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Sudden changes could threaten your security; stick to conventional behavior. A festive evening gives you a brilliant idea. Sports activities can rescue a loved one from the doldrums.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You feel like a master builder today; tackling a do-it-yourself project brings inmediate satisfaction. The spirit of giving is alive and well tonight. Come to the rescue of a friend.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You may be able to reap rewards from your association with someone influential. A wealthy individual comes through with a sterling offer. Tie up loose ends.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): It is best to meet a relative's negative attitude in a constructive, non-combative way. There is nothing to be gained by worrying over things you cannot control. Focus on your strengths.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A sudden development on the business front could make you headstrong. Postpone making a final decision until things have settled down. Be more objective about your mate's suggestions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The morning finds you basking in the afterglow of yesterday's events. You might have to make a business decision that will annoy someone close to you. Try to negotiate a compromise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Things continue to bubble along nicely on the social scene. Nevertheless, a part of you longs for some quiet time alone. Blow the whistle on someone who has behaved recklessly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A favorable financial trend is glimpsed; keep it alive by avoiding extravagance. Promising more than you can deliver will irritate someone important. Be practical.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The mail and the phone wires will be humming with interesting news today. Instant rapport with a neighbor could lead to romance. Avoid revealing too much too soon.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Try to remember a business idea that comes to you in the predawn hours; it may be just the thing to help you get preferential treatment from an authority figure.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): News from afar, perhaps about an unexpected visit, gives you a good feeling this morning. Be flexible if your social plans are suddenly changed. Romance beckons.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are both spiritual and practical, ready to take on the difficult tasks that others may shun. These lively youngsters want to find out exactly how things work. Do not be surprised if they take apart your smaller household appliances to satisfy their curiosity! These Geminis' uncanny ability to solve a mystery makes them excellent detectives and researchers. Frugal and self-disciplined, they are unlikely to have any money worries. Their savings grow by leaps and bounds.

Filmmaker Spike Lee asks black press to back movie

BALTIMORE — Filmmaker Spike Lee asked black newspaper publishers to do the right thing and support his new movie about slain civil rights leader Malcolm X.

Lee

"I need the support of the black press," Lee said Thursday at a convention of the National Newspaper Publishers Association.

The movie, which stars Denzel Washington, is to be released in November. Lee dismissed criticism by some black leaders who questioned whether his film will provide an accurate portrayal of Malcolm X.

"You don't have to love my movies," he said. "But it's very important that we all get behind this film. It angers me that people are talking about this film and they haven't even seen it yet."

"Most young people don't read anymore, I am sorry to say. I hope they will be inspired and see how heroic Malcolm X was," he said.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Morris Dees, the lawyer who has won civil lawsuits for families of hate crime victims, plans to resign as executive director of the Southern Poverty Law Center he helped establish.

Dees

Dees, 55, said he asked the law center's board to appoint six-year board member Edward Ashworth, 44, to replace him. The board did so in April.

Dees said he will continue as the center's chief trial counsel and spend more time on litigation and new projects than on day-to-day management of the non-profit organization.

"I'm basically a trial lawyer, and that's what I'll be doing," Dees said.

The 21-year-old center runs Klanwatch, which monitors white supremacist activities, and Teaching Tolerance, which distributes material on racial tolerance and a video on the civil rights movement to schools nationwide.

NEW ORLEANS — Andre Young, aka rapper Dr. Dre of the group N.W.A., surrendered to police to face additional charges stemming from a fracas in a New Orleans hotel last month.

Young, 27, was booked on two counts of aggravated battery stemming from the knife wounding of two teen-agers May 22.

About 50 people were involved in the brawl in the lobby of the Sheraton Hotel, and about 90 policemen, including some on horseback, were needed to break it up, said police spokesman Sgt. Marion Defillo.

Defillo said the rappers attacked the officers.

The brawl began when the rappers, who were in New Orleans for a radio convention, became angry when they were denied entry to the hotel because they didn't have passes, Defillo said.

UNIVERSAL CITY, Calif. — Andre Harrell, who has launched the careers of such rhythym and blues acts as Heavy D. and The Boyz, Guy and Jodeci, has signed a deal with MCA Inc. worth more than $50 million, MCA announced.

Harrell's new company, Uptown Entertainment, will provide music, film and television projects for the MCA Music Entertainment Group, Universal Pictures and Universal Television, MCA chairman Al Teller said Thursday.

"Through entertainment, people can envision better situations for themselves," said Harrell, 31.

Harrell has had success making music careers with his Uptown Records label.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Country musicians John Anderson, Holly Dunn and Paul Overstreet were among entertainers who posed this week for photos to be used in a 1993 calendar to raise money for children with AIDS.

Other performers who posed include Skip Ewing, Shelby Lynne and B.B. Watson.

Ten percent of gross proceeds from sale of the $9.95 calendars will go to the Childrens Hospital Los Angeles, which treats youngsters with AIDS.

NEW YORK — With the summer social whirl revving up in the Hamptons, one requisite stop this weekend is a cocktail party at Martha Stewart's in East Hampton. It will benefit Planned Parenthood of Suffolk County.

Among those expected at the party today, milling about in the crowd of 700: Calvin and Kelly Klein, Christie Brinkley, Jann and Jane Wenner, Mark Hampton, Linda and Morton Janklow, Herbert Ross and Lee Radziwill.

Kathleen Turner will give a reading, "The 10-Minute Margaret Sanger," including excerpts from a new biography of Sanger, the birth-control pioneer, by Ellen Chesler.
