Ask Us

Q—How much was the sheriff's salary raised?

A—The amount, $3,000, was inadvertently left out of Monday's commissioner's court story. His current salary is $31,865, so it will be $34,865 effective Jan. 1, 1994.

In Brief

Endorse Bush

FORT WORTH (AP) — A majority of the state's Republican senators have endorsed George W. Bush's unannounced bid for governor in hopes of persuading him to enter the race against Gov. Ann Richards, an Austin political consultant said.

At least 10 of the state's 13 GOP senators have signed an endorsement letter, consultant Karl Rove was reported as saying in today's Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

"It says 'George. We want you to run,'" Rove said. "I think there is a unanimity among these senators that Richards can be beaten and that George is the guy to do it."

Bush could not be reached for comment, but he said earlier this month that he had been meeting with party leaders and would announce by Labor Day whether or not he would enter the 1994 race.

Warden Woods promoted

Price Daniel to lose assistant warden, too

Les Woods, who opened the Price Daniel unit here and has served as its senior warden for the past four years, announced today that he would be leaving Snyder to accept a promotion as the senior warden in Beeville.

Woods, 40, will assume his new duties at the 2,250-bed maximum security McConnell unit about Sept. 1. Coming to Snyder as warden will be Bob White, currently warden of the 500-bed Diboll Detention Center.

Also, Price Daniel assistant warden James Black has been named warden at the Diboll unit. Art Villarreal, assistant warden at the Fort Stockton detention center, will move to Snyder as assistant warden.

A 20-year veteran of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, Woods came to Snyder in the summer of 1987 to prepare the Price Daniel unit for its acceptance of inmates on Aug. 12, 1987.

The Snyder assignment was Woods' first as a warden. Since being in Snyder, Woods has become active in community affairs. He is a current director of the Snyder chamber of commerce, a member of the Rotary Club and of Colonial Hill Baptist Church.

Woods moved to Snyder from Palestine where he served as assistant warden at the Coffield unit in Anderson County. He had worked at the Coffield unit since 1984. Woods began his career as a correctional officer in November, 1972. He also had TDCJ assignments at the Beto I and Wynne units.

A native of Palestine, Woods graduated from Sam Houston State University in 1981 with a degree in criminal justice. He also attended Henderson Junior College. While in Snyder, Woods has served as an instructor in correctional officer training for Western Texas College.

His wife, Jane, is employed by the Department of Pardons and Parole in Snyder. They have two children — Melinda, age 19, and

SISD enrollment drops off slightly

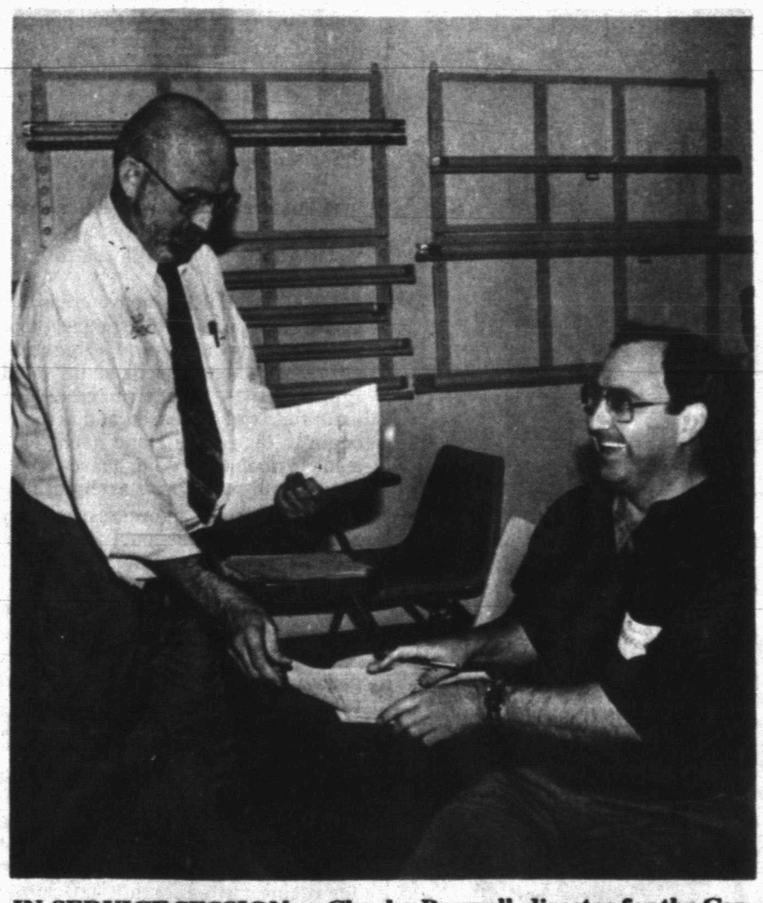

First-day enrollment was down slightly in Snyder public schools, according to information released this week by the SISD administration office.

The largest notable decrease in students is at the pre-kindergarten level, where enrollment fell from 101 in 1992-93 to 62 this year.

Enrollment for the fall semester on all SISD campuses totals 3,350 students, down 93 from the 3,443 enrolled on the first day of school last year.

By grade, there are 181 seniors, 199 juniors, 236 sophomores and 267 freshmen at Snyder High School. Snyder Junior High has 280 eighth graders and 288 seventh graders.

An elementary count indicates 272 students in sixth grade, 278 in fifth, 256 in fourth, 289 in third, 228 in second, 229 in first, 229 in kindergarten and 62 in pre-kindergarten. Eighteen are enrolled in early childhood and 15 in self-contained classes.

No redistricting out here, West Texas justices plead

SWEETWATER — The Texas Judicial Districts Board got a clear message at a public hearing concerning judicial redistricting here Monday — We're doing fine. Leave us alone.

A large group of district judges and attorneys from the 7th Administrative Judicial District, which includes an area from Post to Brownwood and Odessa to Abilene, made the trip to voice their opinions.

The board is considering several redistricting plans, including one which would leave the 132nd District — representing Scurry and Borden counties — as it is.

Two other plans, formulated by Chief Justice Tom Phillips, would make some changes in the 132nd District. Justice Phillips' first recommendation, Plan A, would place Scurry with Garza, Kent and Stonewall. Borden County would be placed with Howard and Glasscock counties.

In the second, Plan B, Scurry would join Garza, Kent, Stonewall, Crosby, Dickens, Floyd and Motley counties under two justices. In this plan, Borden, Fisher, Howard, Mitchell, Nolan, Glasscock and Coke would be served by two other justices.

Other districts in the area would see similar arrangements under those plans.

Those speaking Tuesday stressed travel and tradition as key objections. They cited the distances a litigant, judge or attorney would have to travel to go from one end of the district to another. It isn't convenient, they said, for someone to have to drive 70 to 80 miles for a temporary restraining order.

It would also be harder to get a temporary restraining order signed, as an example, if the judge is in Motley County trying a case and the complainant is in Snyder.

Representing the 132nd District at Monday's meeting were District Judge Gene Dulaney, District Attorney Ernie Armstrong and Adult Probation Officer Sy Tabor.

While Judge Dulaney did not address the public hearing, he observed, "You can see why they need to do some housecleaning in some of these area which are overlapping, but that's not a problem here."

Chief Justice Phillips resided at the hearing, which was one of nine scheduled throughout the state. Six have been held. Future meetings are scheduled in Plainview, Georgetown and El Paso.

Redistricting was mandated in 1985, when Texas citizens adopted a constitutional amend-

Kimberly Mays denied 'divorce' but can remain with legal father

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — A judge ruled today that Kimberly Mays' biological parents should have no contact with the teen-ager swapped at birth in 1978 and declared the man who raised her to be her legal father.

Circuit Judge Stephen Dakan sidestepped Kimberly's wish to "divorce" or sever all ties to birth parents Ernest and Regina Twigg.

Even though genetic tests showed the Twiggs to be her birth parents, the judge said that before he could sever any ties he would first have to make a formal, legal declaration that the Twiggs were Kimberly's biological parents.

The judge said that even legally acknowledging the Twiggs as the biological parents would be detrimental to Kimberly. He simply did not make that declaration, and declared Kimberly's plea for a "divorce" to be moot.

Referring to the birth parents, Ernest and Regina Twigg, the ruling said "the effect of this judgment is that the plaintiffs have no legal interest in or rights to Kimberly Mays." It said that the legal status of Robert Mays "as father of Kimberly Mays remains unchanged."

The decision came a week and a day after a civil trial in which 14-year-old Kimberly sought to "divorce" the Twiggs so she could preserve her life with Mays, the man who raised her since the switch at a rural Florida hospital.

The judge said that: "Robert Mays and Kimberly Mays can proceed ... with any adoption proceedings."

The Twiggs were seeking visiting rights at the trial, and they had promised to appeal all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The way to live longer is to cut out the stuff that makes you want to live longer."

Come on moms and dads, let 'em be kids!

Over the years, we've heard such statements normally directed to well-intended parents of teens who feel the urge to grant adult privileges and activities to their siblings.

School got started this week, and we read where a group of kindergarten kids in the affluent Dallas suburb of Plano pooled their allowances and hired a limousine to drive them home to celebrate their first day of school.

We've come to accept those ultimate splurges for such things as proms and graduation....but to celebrate the opening day of school in kindergarten is a little much.

Somebody's parents need to spend a little time in detention hall. We don't want to think about what the little darlin's will be demanding by the time they become graduates.

We can be thankful for small favors...like living in a small community.

The kind of "first day" stories we like to hear is the one told by Ty Brunson, fine arts chairman at Western Texas College.

Brunson's son, Austin, was looking forward to the start of school on Monday. Mom and dad were also excited, and wanted to record the event on camera.

On the way to school, Ty told his son that he wanted to get a "shot" in front of the school. Austin objected. He was even adamant. "Dad, I just don't want to do it."

The father was equally insistent. "This is your first day of school and we're going to get a shot."

Austin finally resigned himself, but asked, "Will the doctor do it?"

'Barefoot' auditions scheduled

Auditions for the Ritz Community Theatre production of Neil Simon's "Barefoot in the Park" begin this evening in the junior high auditorium.

The auditions will be held from 6-7 p.m. today and 7-9 p.m. Thursday.

There are six in the cast of the popular comedy about newlyweds.

In addition to the newlyweds, Corie and Paul Bratten, the bride's mother, Mrs. Banks, and the eccentric Victor Velasco, the cast also consists of a funny telephone repairman and an exhausted delivery man from Lord and Taylor.

Sudan condemned as supporter of terrorism

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Islamic African nation of Sudan is being condemned by the United States as a supporter of terrorism for harboring radical Arab terrorist groups, U.S. officials say.

American diplomats were to notify the Sudanese government in Khartoum of the decision today, making the country ineligible for virtually all U.S. assistance. Humanitarian aid, including a planned $50 million this year to help starving Sudanese, would not be affected.

The action by the State Department coincided with reports of evidence linking Sudanese diplomats in the United States with the terrorist plot to bomb targets in New York City, including the United Nations. Five Sudanese men are among 11 suspects charged in connection with the plot.

A taped conversation between the alleged ringleader of the plot and a federal informant implicated two Sudanese diplomats at the country's U.N. Mission as accomplices, according to an ABC News report this week. The diplomats have denied any involvement.

Sudan joins Iran, Iraq, Libya, Syria, North Korea and Cuba on the terrorist list.

U.S. officials said Tuesday the decision by Secretary of State Warren Christopher to declare Sudan a sponsor of terrorism was not related specifically to the ABC report. Christopher made the decision over the weekend, officials said.

Ahmed Sulaiman, who is taking over as Sudan's ambassador to the United States, called the move "very lamentable and bad news." He said his assignment was to promote good relations with the United States.

Sulaiman, who currently is Sudan's envoy to the United Nations, denied in a telephone interview that any Sudanese diplomat had participated in the New York bombing plot.

Sudan has been providing sanctuary to extreme terrorist groups for some time and U.S. officials have brought up the matter repeatedly for months without a substantive response, one U.S. official said.

Another official said the FBI was continuing to investigate any possible link of Sudan diplomats to the New York bombing plot.

The officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said Sudan had a pattern of relationships with the Abu Nidal organization, a radical Palestinian group implicated in the bombing of Rome and Vienna airports in 1985, with Hezbollah, the Muslim fundamentalist group, and with Hamas, a radical Palestinian organization.

The two men cited in the ABC account were Siraj Yousif, the counselor to the Sudanese U.N. Mission, and Ahmed Mohamed, the third secretary. The network, citing U.S. intelligence sources it did not identify, said the two men actually were intelligence officers for the Sudanese government.

Yousif called the ABC report "absurd and ridiculous."

A State Department report in April concluded that Sudan's increased support for radical Arab terrorist groups was directly related to the extension of National Islamic Front influence over the government.

Snyder host to region's wardens

Price Daniel Senior Warden Les Woods today is hosting a warden's meeting for the western region at Snyder Country Club.

Conducting the morning business session was Mike Moore, regional director. Also attending are Ernie Dixon, from the western regional office in Childress; and Capt. Mike Searcy of Snyder, on temporary duty at the Childress office.

Wardens are here from Childress, Amarillo, Pampa, Abilene, Lamesa, Tulia and Snyder.

Cartel planned to hike coffee prices

By The Associated Press

It's enough to give you caffeine jitters: The world's major coffee-producing nations are forming a cartel to cut supply and raise prices.

What's next? Bean rationing? Lines at the coffee shop? Odd- and even-numbered days on which you can fill up your mug?

Whatever the outcome, American coffee lovers say, they'll keep drinking.

"I think people pay an awful lot for coffee already, and they'll keep paying the price," said Heather Cole, who serves all manner of coffee drinks at Uptown Espresso in Seattle, a city with more espresso makers than Las Vegas has slot machines and a loving civic relationship with the beverage.

"I think people here are more serious about their coffee than they are about their food," Cole said. "They don't mind paying more for coffee."

About two dozen African and Latin American countries, meeting in Uganda, said Tuesday they will establish an OPEC-like Association of Coffee-Producing Countries. Members plan to hold back 20 percent of their exports, beginning Oct. 1.

"Our objective is to attain realistic prices for coffee," said Antonio Lodder, Brazil's commerce minister.

The economies of producing countries have suffered from the sharp decline in prices that followed the 1989 demise of an export quota system. Producers earned $5.6 billion from coffee last year, down from $11 billion in 1987, Uganda President Yoweri Museveni said.

The cartel actually might stabilize the market, said Niki Zuckerman of Tulsa, Okla. She and her husband own the Gold Coast Coffee Roasting Co., a bean seller and cafe.

Mrs. Zuckerman said profit margins are so low on some South American plantations that many farmers are turning to other crops.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is there any agreement within the scientific community as to whether a disease such as diabetes or alcoholism is inherited?

DEAR READER: There certainly is agreement about diabetes, which is clearly inherited — or at least is the consequence of an abnormal genetic pattern. The relation between alcoholism and the genes is speculative, however.

Although many experts are convinced that problem drinking is an inherited disorder, the consensus is far from unanimous. Studies to confirm this are being performed in medical centers around the world.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please discuss pancreatitis.

DEAR READER: The pancreas is a gland, lying beneath the stomach, that produces insulin and digestive enzymes. When it becomes inflamed (pancreatitis), these enzymes are inappropriately released and actually begin to digest the gland itself. This leads to abdominal pain, nausea, vomiting, rapid pulse, shallow breathing and fever, which can progress to jaundice, diabetes, semi-coma and a variety of serious metabolic abnormalities.

In the United States, more than 80 percent of pancreatitis is caused by blockage of the pancreatic duct (from gallstones or tumor) or by alcoholism (alcohol is toxic to the pancreas, as well as to the liver, heart and brain). Trauma can cause pancreatitis.

The diagnosis is established by a series of X-ray and blood tests, including the serum amylase, which is a pancreatic enzyme released into the bloodstream in the presence of acute (or recurring) pancreatic inflammation.

Treatment includes fasting (to rest the pancreas), intravenous fluids (to provide nutrition and combat dehydration), pain medication and other drugs to counteract the metabolic abnormalities.

Surgery may be necessary to remove gallstones or correct obstruction of the pancreatic duct. Alcohol, for obvious reasons, is permanently prohibited.

Acute pancreatitis is a dangerous disorder, requiring hospitalization and intensive therapy. The consequences of chronic pancreatitis, such as diabetes and maldigestion, are treated with appropriate methods, including insulin and dietary alterations.

In the event you might require surgery, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "An Informed Approach to Surgery." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

Health debate bipartisan

TULSA (AP) — Bob Dole is so well known for opposing President Clinton's initiatives that he jokes about getting an honorary degree so he can change his nickname from "Senator Gridlock" to "Dr. Gridlock." But not when it comes to health care.

Of course, the true test for Dole on health reform comes a month or so down the road when Clinton offers his health care initiative. But for now, the partisan storm of the recent budget debate is being replaced with the conciliatory language of bipartisanship.

Dole even went so far as telling governors Tuesday he's flexible when it comes to requiring employers to fund much of the program, as well as imposing a higher cigarette tax. Those are two likely components of Clinton's plan certain to meet some Republican opposition.

"It is too early to start putting out benchmarks," Dole said in extending an olive branch to the president, and sending a signal to his party. "I think we ought to see what he has first before we start knocking it."

The Senate Republican leader's remarks represented the clearest evidence yet that, despite certain differences, the politics of health care will be far different from budget politics.

For good reason.

First and foremost is public interest. Even Republicans likely to oppose the Clinton plan acknowledge the public is clamoring for health care reform, so any appearance of obstructionism carries big political risks.

"This is one of those rare issues that affects every person's life in such a very personal way," said Carol Rasco, Clinton's domestic policy adviser. "So people are watching us closely."

Also, Republicans aren't unified on health care, as they were against Clinton's economic plan.

And the more civil tone of the health care politics stems a lot from substance — as this critical debate opens, there is considerable agreement between Clinton and Republicans.

Dole and GOP Chairman Haley Barbour said their party shares Clinton's commitment to universal access and coverage; Republican governors left a private meeting with Clinton convinced their concerns about state flexibility were shared by the president.

When you're hot, you're hot

By Phillip Alder

In the Bridge Federation of Asia and Middle East Championships, held last June in Mauritius, the finishing order of the first four teams was the same in the Open and Women's Series: South Africa, India, Egypt and Pakistan. The first two teams qualify for the world championships that are about to be held in Santiago, Chile.

The Indian Open Team led most of the way, being passed near the finishing post by newcomers from South Africa (which has just returned to the international bridge fold). During the Indian hot streak over the first seven days, this deal occurred.

South was the Indian player Avinash Gokhale. His opening bid of two hearts showed a three-suiter short in diamonds. His hand had to have one of four distributions: 4-4-1-4, 4-4-0-5, 4-3-1-5 or 3-4-1-5.

North, Rajesh Dalal, hating the whole business, passed. So there was Gokhale in a 3-3 fit.

West, who had read all the textbooks, led a trump. (When you know declarer has a three-suited hand, usually a trump lead will be best.)

After South called for a low heart from dummy, East won with the king and returned a heart. Declarer won with dummy's ace and cashed his A-K of spades, dropping West's jack. Now came a spade to dummy's 10, West being unable to ruff. A club to the ace allowed Gokhale to cash the spade queen and discard dummy's last club. A club ruff in dummy brought South's total to seven tricks, and he still had the good heart queen in his hand.

When you're sizzling, you're sizzling.

Kevorkian trial intrigues experts

DETROIT (AP) — Society's fears, hostilities and sympathies about death and dying will also go on trial if Dr. Jack Kevorkian takes his case to a jury.

The issues in the assisted-suicide case are volatile, the key players passionate. Whatever the outcome, one thing is certain.

"You'll have one hell of a trial," said Arthur Caplan, an authority on medical ethics.

If a trial comes to pass, some believe it could have the social impact of the 1973 Roe vs. Wade abortion ruling, the drama of the 1925 Scopes "monkey trial," and the media hoopla of the William Kennedy Smith rape trial.

A Kevorkian trial would not have a direct legal effect beyond Michigan.

But some experts speculate that if Kevorkian prevails, doctors quietly prescribing overdoses of drugs to terminally ill patients will do so more openly. Other states with laws against assisted suicide might toss them out. More terminally ill people might choose to die the Kevorkian way. Poor people might be coaxed into suicide to spare their families the burden of hospital bills.

"I would predict the Kevorkian trial would be the start of a major debate that will take anywhere from five to 10 years to resolve and will push abortion aside as the major social issue facing Americans," said Caplan, director of the University of Minnesota's Center for Biomedical Ethics. "It would have enormous international attention."

That is just what Kevorkian and his flamboyant lawyer, Geoffrey Fieger, are hoping for.

"This is not a test case. I see it as THE case," Fieger said. "It will begin a domino effect in every state."

Kevorkian practically begged to be arrested after he helped a 30-year-old, terminally ill Michigan man kill himself Aug. 4. At a news conference, Kevorkian detailed his role in the death because, he said, he wanted prosecutors to have all the ammunition they needed to press charges.

Michigan's law against assisted suicide needs to be challenged and the issue put to rest, he said.

Dear Abby

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1993 Universal Press Syndicate

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dear Abby is on a two-week vacation. Following is a selection of some of her favorite past letters from 1977.)

DEAR ABBY: When I married my wife 10 years ago, I had a mustache. I kept it for two years, and she never complained about it. Then I shaved it off, and she told me to please leave it off because she never liked it. OK, so I left it off, but here's the problem:

Every year for the last six years, we have had a celebration in town called "Frontier Days," which lasts for a whole month. Nearly every man in town grows a beard, mustache or goatee just to get into the spirit of the celebration.

Every year I go through the same thing. It takes me three weeks to get my mustache grown out, and I wear it for a month because I want to be "one of the guys," and I enjoy it.

As soon as I start growing the mustache, my wife refuses to kiss me, love me or have anything to do with me at bedtime.

Well, seven weeks is a long time for a fun-loving, healthy guy like me to go without a kiss. Any suggestions?

MISSING SOMETHING

DEAR MISSING: Get a false mustache that can be glued on and removed easily. That way you can participate in "Frontier Days" without missing anything at night.

DEAR ABBY: If the husband is all dressed up in a pale blue jacket and light slacks and looks like he's going to Hawaii, shouldn't the wife dress accordingly, instead of wearing a black gabardine suit like she's going to New York?

How can I tell these friends of ours that they look like they don't belong together? It's odd, and people talk.

Should I mention this to the wife? Or should my husband mention this to the husband?

A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: I don't recommend talking to either one about it. More important than whether people "look" like they belong together is whether they feel like they belong together.

DEAR ABBY: My husband refuses to tie his shoelaces. He steps into his shoes and lets the laces drag. We have a son in second grade who lets his laces drag on purpose. When I tell him to tie them, he says, "Daddy don't."

Now I don't know what to say or do. At school, the children are graded on neatness, and our son always gets a black mark because his shoelaces are never tied. I've tried to tell my husband he is setting a bad example for our son, but it doesn't help.

So how do you train a child to tie his laces when his father doesn't? And when he gives me this "Daddy-don't" talk, what do I say?

CAN'T WIN

DEAR CAN'T: When the boy says, "Daddy don't," say, "I know — but Daddy should. And Daddy is too big for me to spank. But you're not!"

DEAR ABBY: On which side does a girl wear a flower in her hair if she wants to let a man know that she's available? I'm going to Hawaii soon and must know.

CANDY

DEAR CANDY: A flower over the left ear means I'm taken, a flower over the right ear means I'm available — and a flower over both ears means let's negotiate.

Gonzalez HR lifts Rangers past N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Texas Rangers needed a pickup after Kevin Brown pitched his worst game in the majors, and Juan Gonzalez and Kenny Rogers came through with the needed lift.

"I kind of foresaw somebody popping one out there and it worked for us," Rangers manager Kevin Kennedy said after Tuesday night's doubleheader split with the New York Yankees.

Brown lasted just one out and 26 pitches in losing the opener 11-4. With the Rangers trailing 1-0 in the second game, Gonzalez hit a drive at least 420 feet into the visiting team bullpen in left field. It was his 36th homer, tied with Barry Bonds for the most in the majors, and sent Texas to a 3-2 victory.

Rogers (11-7) won his third consecutive start and improved his record against the Yankees to 5-0, allowing four hits in 6 1-3 innings with four strikeouts and four walks.

For most of the night, Melido Perez (6-11) was even better. He had a two-hitter until Gonzalez's sixth-inning homer, and struck out 10.

In the opener, New York scored six runs in the first, taking the lead when Brown (9-9) walked the first two batters and Don Mattingly hit his 14th homer, his second in as many at-bats.

"He said he wasn't hurting, but he said he didn't feel well," Kennedy said of Brown, who had won his previous eight decisions against the Yankees. "Maybe he has the flu. I don't know, but I hope that's all it is."

Jimmy Key (15-4) won his third consecutive start, allowing four runs and 10 hits in seven innings with five strikeouts and no walks.

"I did not pitch a very good game for me," Key said. "I came away with a win because of the way the guys swung the bats."

Bernie Williams had four hits and drove in four runs, including a three-run homer in the eighth off Bob Patterson.

The split dropped New York one game behind first-place Toronto in the AL East and dropped Texas 4 1-2 games behind Chicago in the AL West.

Jordan murder case...

More evidence is discovered

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A gun and a videotape are the latest pieces of evidence in the killing of Michael Jordan's father, a sheriff said.

Robeson County Sheriff Hubert Stone said lawmen have recovered a .38-caliber handgun they believe was used to shoot James Jordan. He said the gun has been sent to an State Bureau of Investigation lab for ballistics tests, but he gave no further details.

Stone also said suspects Larry Martin Demery and Daniel Andre Green, both 18, videotaped themselves with an NBA championship ring, golf shoes and a watch they are accused of stealing from James Jordan.

"We weren't dealing with two Einsteins here," said Jim Coman, director of the State Bureau of Investigation.

Stone's comments about the gun and videotape were made to the Chicago Tribune, Charlotte Observer and Fayetteville Observer-Times.

One of the key clues linking Demery and Green to the slaying was telephone calls the two men made while cruising in James Jordan's car, investigators said. The calls started only hours after police say the two teens killed Jordan on July 23 and dumped his body in a creek just 50 yards inside South Carolina.

They made the first call to a 1-900 porn line. Then they called a soldier at Fort Bragg, The News & Observer of Raleigh reported.

The soldier, Green's half brother, led investigators to Green and Demery, who are charged with first-degree murder, armed robbery and conspiracy.

"That one really pushed us through," Cumberland County Sheriff Morris Bedsole said of the interview with the soldier. "He told us who had the car."

It wasn't out of the ordinary to discover an abandoned car in Cumberland County. When Jordan's Lexus 400 was located near Fayetteville on Aug. 5, authorities recorded the vehicle identification number and checked a crime computer to see if it had been reported stolen.

There was no such report.

The identification number came back as belonging to James Jordan, but police didn't link his name to Michael Jordan. A state trooper called several phone numbers found inside the car, tracing the Lexus to the dealership in Glenview, Ill., that sold it.

They knew the car. They had sold it to Michael Jordan.

The next evening, Aug. 11, two detectives visited the 13-acre Jordan estate east of Charlotte to speak to James Jordan's wife, Deloris.

She insisted that the Lexus must have been stolen, and that her husband must be driving another of the family's many cars.

"We were sort of surprised that she was able to maintain as normal a composure as she was," Detective Robert Rollins told The News & Observer. "We're sitting there saying, 'Look, this is looking pretty bad. This man has been gone for three weeks, his car has been found.' Most people would have been hysterical."

But Deloris Jordan believed her husband had taken her advice and was somewhere on vacation.

The final break in the case came last Friday, after detectives traced the subpoenaed records of calls made from the cellular phone. Investigators called Demery and Green, who came in for questioning Saturday.

By early Sunday morning, Demery "admitted participating in the death of James Jordan."

NFL roundup...

Bledsoe, McMahon get starts

by The Associated Press

Drew Bledsoe is getting the chance to show his coach whether he's ready to be the starting quarterback. Jim McMahon has already shown his coach enough.

Bledsoe, the top pick in last April's draft, will start at quarterback Friday when the New England Patriots host the Green Bay Packers. Coach Bill Parcells isn't ready to hand the No. 1 spot to his prized rookie, but he said Tuesday he is giving Bledsoe the chance to impress.

"He has to get the chance to play against another team's No. 1 unit," Parcells said. "I think he needs to do this."

McMahon, who has already started for three NFL teams, convinced coach Dennis Green with his two exhibition performances and his past record that he should be the No. 1 quarterback for the Minnesota Vikings.

"Jim has gotten the nod as the starter," Green said. "He has an excellent winning record as a starting quarterback."

During 11 years in the NFL with Chicago, San Diego and Philadelphia, McMahon is 62-27 as a starter and 19-2 in the NFC Central Division.

Sean Salisbury will backup McMahon. Rich Gannon, Brad Johnson and Gino Torretta are Nos. 3, 4 and 5 on the depth chart.

For Bledsoe, a good performance against the Packers could lead to a start in the Patriots' final preseason game against Kansas City. Parcells has said the starting quarterback against the Chiefs on Aug. 27 is probably going to be the starter for the regular-season opener Sept. 5 at Buffalo.

Parcells did not say which of his three other quarterbacks — Tommy Hodson, Scott Zolak and Scott Secules — would follow Bledsoe on Friday.

Eagles

Bubby Brister is another quarterback being given a chance to impress. Coach Rich Kotite said Brister, who was signed as a free agent last month, will start for Philadelphia in Saturday night's exhibition game against the Atlanta Falcons.

Chargers

San Diego removed the franchise player designation on defensive end Leslie O'Neal in the hope of getting him to sign a contract and report to camp.

O'Neal is free to negotiate with other NFL teams, but the Chargers hope he will accept their three-year contract offer. Financial details haven't been disclosed.

49ers

Quarterback Steve Bono underwent surgery to repair a separated left shoulder and will be lost to San Francisco for up to eight weeks.

Bono, Steve Young's backup, was hurt late in the second quarter of the 49ers' 16-13 exhibition win at Denver on Monday night. Young also is out with a fractured left thumb, sustained the week before in an exhibition against the Los Angeles Raiders.

The injuries to Bono and Young leave the 49ers with two untested quarterbacks — third-stringer Bill Musgrave and rookie Elvis Grbac, neither of whom has ever started an NFL game.

Redskins

Washington's Mo Elewonibi and Joe Jacoby began the task of solidifying an offensive line that will be without its best pass blocker for the 1993 season.

Jim Lachey suffered a torn knee ligament that will sideline him for the year in the Redskins' exhibition opener Aug. 9 against the Cleveland Browns.

Kile tosses 3-hitter in Houston victory

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astros pitcher Darryl Kile impressed everyone, including himself, with his performance against the Florida Marlins.

Kile gave up only three hits in the 4-0 shutout victory over the Marlins Tuesday night.

Kile, who made his first All-Star team this year, struck out eight, walked only two and was never really in trouble as he pitched a complete game.

Other than the hits, the Marlins managed to get only three fly balls out of the infield as Kile (13-4) registered the low-hit game of his career.

"It was quite a pitching performance," Astros Manager Art Howe said. "I don't know if he can get any better."

"This is the best game pitched against us this year," Marlins Manager Rene Lachemann said. "He had an outstanding fastball and breaking ball and he put it wherever he wanted to put it.

"It was the best fastball and the best pitching performance I've seen, especially for this time of year when most guys' arms are tired. I was impressed."

"This is probably one of the best games I've ever thrown in my life," Kile said.

The Astros took a 3-0 lead in the third after Biggio doubled with one out. One out later, Biggio scored on a single by Jeff Bagwell. Eric Anthony drove in Bagwell with a triple and scored when second baseman Bret Barberie committed an error attempting to throw out Anthony at third.

The Astros made it 4-0 in the fourth. Luis Gonzalez led off with a single, took second on a single by Eddie Taubensee and scored two outs later on a single by Biggio.

SCC MGA Blowout is scheduled

The Fifth Annual Men's Golf Association Blowout Partnership Golf Tournament will be played Friday through Sunday at Snyder Country Club.

Friday's opening day features registration, practice rounds and special activities in the evening.

Saturday play will be in a low-ball format, while Sunday's final 18 holes will be played as a scramble. Shotgun starts at 8:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. will begin play both days.

Also included in Saturday's festivites are a putting tournament, sponsored by the Women's Golf Association, closest to the pin competition, sponsored by West Texas State Bank and Snyder National Bank, and a shrimp and fish feast at dinner.

Saturday's fun winds up with a dance. Music will be provided by the Highway 67 Band.

Snyder Country Club's Men's Golf Association will sponsor hole-in-one prizes during Sunday's final round.

NCAA puts Auburn on probation

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Auburn's football program was placed on two years probation by the NCAA today for a pay-for-play scandal that former player Eric Ramsey disclosed with secretly recorded tapes two years ago.

The NCAA also banned the Tigers from postseason play or conference championships, as well as from playing on television, either live or in a delayed broadcast, for one year.

Auburn was given the option of delaying the TV ban for one year. The Tigers are scheduled to open the season Sept. 2 on ESPN against Mississippi.

The NCAA violations, which occurred during the era of former coach Pat Dye, also brought the Tigers a loss of athletic scholarships.

The fallout from the Ramsey tapes began last year, with Dye forced to resign first as athletic director and then as head football coach following the team's final game on Thanksgiving Day.

Funds for bribery probe

HOUSTON (AP) — Harris County Commissioners have unanimously granted $10,000 for an investigation into bribery allegations against County Judge Jon Lindsay.

Commissioners had twice rejected a request by County Attorney Mike Driscoll, indicating they objected to his intention of hiring private investigator Clyde Wilson and to the vagueness of the request.

Rose Garcia, chief of the county attorney's general counsel division, said the latest, more detailed version of the petition includes no request for funds to hire Wilson. Driscoll was not at Commissioners Court on Tuesday.

The funds approved are to be spent for "discovery costs, court reporter fees, travel, parking fees, witness fees, document retrieval, copying and subpoenas," according to the agenda notice.

Former Houston banker and developer Billy Wayne Chester has accused Lindsay of taking more than $100,000 in bribes to reroute a county road through property owned by Chester and a former business partner.

Launch war games

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — U.S. and South Korean forces deployed only miles from Communist North Korea have begun the world's largest computer-simulated war games, the U.S. military said today.

Exercise Ulchi Focus Lens 93 includes 12,000 military and civilian defense forces using high-tech computer simulations for conducting the defense of capitalist South Korea, the military said.

The exercise, which ends Aug. 30, involves complex video games using computers linked via satellite to others in the United States and Germany. The aim is to train senior officers for war, the military said.

The games are classified, but a U.S. Army press release said a profile of the "enemy" forces shows they "are commanded by a retired Korean general who is familiar with a wide variety of plans, doctrine, tactics and assets."

"Movie technology" used

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Scientists using formerly top-secret submarine-hunting equipment described by Tom Clancy in the "The Hunt for Red October" got their first-ever glimpse of an undersea volcano erupting.

"I just about jumped out of my skin when I saw the monitors," said Steve Hammond, manager of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's Vents Program at Oregon State University's Hatfield Marine Science Center in Newport.

Your Birthday
Thursday, Aug. 19, 1993

There could be numerous pleasant surprises in the offing for you in the year ahead. You must be careful, however, that self-defeating thoughts don't spoil them. It's imperative you look for the positive side in all your endeavors.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you feel like you are being pulled in two different directions today, that might be true and it could also be your own fault. You must be firm when you make a decision, not indecisive. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be careful about making commitments today without first having a clear understanding of what you're getting into. There's a chance you'll bite off more than you can chew.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Steer a middle course today if you find yourself among friends with conflicting views. It's okay to arbitrate, but not to show partiality.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Where your reputation is concerned the end does not justify the means today. Don't use tactics to advance your interest that could tarnish your image.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There is a friend of yours who always takes an opposing position to the one you hold. If you encounter one another today, neither is apt to have any patience for the other. Be careful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be careful in transactions today where there is something of material value at stake. If you don't know what you're doing, you might suffer a costly loss from your lack of knowledge.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Stall for time today if you feel like you're being pressured into making a decision of which you're unsure. Poor judgment could cause you to make an error with lingering ill effects.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You might have to contend with a heavier work load than usual today, so be careful what you volunteer to do that could make this condition worse.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't impose yourself on any social situations today where you are not warmly welcomed. If you aren't invited, it's their loss, not yours.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Important developments must not be taken for granted today. For instance, don't assume a critical situation is firmly secured, when it may be held down just with a paper clip.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Nothing advantageous will be gained today by trying to impose an unpopular suggestion on unresponsive listeners. If you don't scrub the idea, they might.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Better put a lock and key on your money belt today, because you might be lacking in financial discipline. It won't be hard to spend more than you should.

Officers kept busy Tuesday

Snyder police closed cases involving theft and burglary Tuesday and made four unrelated arrests.

On May 29, Tina Burleson had reported the theft of two bicycles. Two 16-year-old boys have been identified as suspects in the theft. The bicycles have been recovered and the case has been forwarded to the district attorney's office.

The two juveniles are also suspects in a residential burglary, reported to police on May 31 by Rudy Ubando. Most of the items have been recovered. That case has also been sent to the DA's office.

Three of the four arrests made Tuesday also involved juveniles. Officers arrested three boys 13, 14 and 16, in the area of 33rd Street and Austin at 4:50 p.m. for probation violation.

Police also arrested a 34-year-old man at 11:09 p.m. in the 4500 block of College Avenue for misdemeanor driving while intoxicated.

At 1:18 p.m. Tuesday, a worker at the Texas Department of Human Services notified police that someone had sprayed paint on the building. A report for Class B criminal mischief was filed.

Police worked an accident at 3:49 p.m. at Snyder High School. Involved were a 1982 Oldsmobile driven by Easter Smith of 501 35th Street and a parked 1992 Chevrolet owned by Richard Logston of 3806 Galveston.

At 5:07 p.m., police were notified that a bicycle had been taken from the 1000 block of 24th Street. A report for Class B theft was filed.

At 9:43 p.m. Tuesday, Mary Beckham of 3721 Ave. U reported damage to her door. A report for Class B criminal mischief was filed.

Bombing injures official

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Suspected Muslim militants opened fire with submachine guns and set off a bomb today in an attack on Egypt's interior minister. He was badly wounded and several of his guards were killed.

Interior Minister Hassan el-Alfy, 57, was shot in the right arm and stomach during the attack on his motorcade. He was in serious condition at the Police Hospital, police sources said.

The number of casualties was not clear. Ambulance drivers at the scene said at least seven people were killed. Police sources said four of el-Alfy's guards died and at least 12 people wounded.

The Interior Ministry is leading a government crackdown on Muslim radicals who have carried out a 19-month campaign of violence to topple the secular government and install strict Islamic rule.

El-Alfy had been the governor of Assiut province, a hotbed of Muslim extremism, before becoming interior minister in April. Some militants had said they welcomed his appointment, saying it could lead to a decrease in the confrontation with the government.

El-Alfy has kept up the battle with radicals, but under his direction there have been fewer widespread arrests and shootouts. He also has pledged to stop abusing prisoners. However, military trials of extremists have proceeded.

Today's attack occurred in downtown Cairo near government ministries and the U.S. Embassy. There were no reports of casualties at the embassy or on the American University campus, but frantic parents rushed to the university to locate their children.

Four or five gunmen shot at the minister's car and then fled in the direction of nearby Tahrir Square, one of the city's most crowded areas, witnesses said.

Among the dead were el-Alfy's personal bodyguard and a parking attendant at American University, the state-owned Middle East News Agency said.

Joe Smith

1911-1993

LOVINGTON, N.M. — Services for Joe F. Smith, 82, of Lovington were held Monday in Smith-Rogers Funeral Home Chapel with Sam Kitching, minister of the Third and Central Church of Christ, officiating. Burial was in the Lovington Cemetery.

Mr. Smith died Saturday in Hobbs Healthcare Center.

He was the brother-in-law of Forrest Beavers and Esthalee Haney, both of Snyder.

Born on Feb. 28, 1911, in Jack County, he married Elois Beavers on Jan. 9, 1936, in Snyder. She died on March 25, 1992. They moved to Lovington in 1941 where he was a utility manager and later city manager until retiring in 1976. He was a member of the Church of Christ and a charter member of the Lovington Volunteer Fire Department, Lions Club and Country Club. He was also active in Boy Scouts and Little League Baseball.

Other survivors include two sons, Jerry of Lovington and Meredith of Hobbs; five grandchildren; and six great-grandchildren.

Deputies note two arrests

Sheriff's deputies arrested two men for probation violations during the past 24 hours.

Arrested at 4 p.m. Tuesday was 19-year-old Brian Dewayne Jackson of 1000 30th St. Jackson was arrested on warrants for aggravated assault and probation violation.

At 8:05 a.m. today, Raymond T. Vasquez Jr. turned himself in at the sheriff's office for revocation of probation. The 28-year-old man is from Loraine.

ment requiring the legislature to enact a reapportionment of the judicial districts following each federal decennial census. The amendment also established a Texas Judicial Districts Board to reapportion the districts if the legislature failed to do so.

The legislature did not adopt a plan in its last session; therefore, the constitution requires the Judicial Districts Board to undertake the task and submit a redistricting order to the Secretary of State no later than Aug. 31.

The order would not become effective unless approved by a majority of each House of the legislature.

Sen. Steve Carriker, D-Roby, said Tuesday that the legislature did not have time to address the issue because it had "so many important deadlines to meet before adjourning," including the school finance issue.

Carriker noted Tuesday's opposition to any major changes in West Texas, and stressed "It will still be the responsibility of the next legislative session to approve any changes made."

Warden

Robert, 13.

Black has been assistant warden in Snyder since March of this year when he returned to Snyder from where he had served as major at the Marlin Detention Center.

Black, a veteran of eight years with the TDCJ, was one of the original staffers when the Price Daniel unit opened. A 1981 graduate of Palestine High School, Black went to work for the TDCJ in 1985 at the Darrington unit at Rosharon.

In 1988, he was promoted to sergeant and assigned to the Coffield unit near Palestine. In 1989, Black was promoted to lieutenant and assigned to help open the Snyder unit. He served here until July of 1991 when he was promoted to captain at the Roach unit in Childress.

Black and his wife, Octavious, have four children. Twins Anthony and Terrell are high scool juniors. Another son, Nathan, is 13. A daughter, Vianca, is two.

Killed over parking space

AUSTIN (AP) — A 25-year-old University of Texas student was shot and killed during a dispute over a parking space, police say.

Anh Tuan Hoang, 19, has been charged with murder in the Saturday shooting death of Farouk Omais and was being held on $50,000 bail Wednesday, Austin police said.

Omais, who was a native of West Africa, suffered two gunshot wounds, including one to the back of the head, according to officials at Brackenridge Hospital. He was pronounced dead early Sunday.

According to an arrest warrant affidavit, the shooting took place Saturday after Hoang and a group of five other men went to the condominiums where Omais lived to visit a friend.

As the group was preparing to leave the parking lot, Omais pulled up and said he wanted his parking space, according to the affidavit.

The men argued, and Omais was hit in the face and shot, the affidavit said. Omais was a civil engineering student and would have graduated from UT next year.

Governor promotes super collider

TULSA (AP) — Texas Gov. Ann Richards is telling fellow governors how much the super collider is worth to their states, but Oklahoma Gov. David Walters says he's not sure the project can support its price tag.

Walters said that during the National Governors' Association meeting this week in Tulsa, Richards provided governors with a list detailing the millions of dollars in contracts given to companies in their states.

Figures for super-collider contracts ranged from $8,032 for Tennessee to $192.2 million for California. Oklahoma was listed at $18.9 million.

The $10 billion atom smasher is being built near Dallas.

Walters said he and Richards never spoke about the research project during the convention, which was fine with him because he says he's not sure he supports the project.

"This is one time I am glad there is a (congressional) delegation that will dive into this," Walters said.

Star Wars test rigged

NEW YORK (AP) — A "Star Wars" test was rigged in 1984 to mislead the Kremlin, but Congress got fooled as well, The New York Times reported today.

The faked data made its way into closed briefings that helped persuade Congress to keep the money coming for the Strategic Defense Initiative, the newspaper said, citing unidentified intelligence and military officials.

"It wasn't designed to deceive Congress," one military officer said. "It was used improperly."

The deception was originally meant to trick the Soviets into wasting a fortune trying to counter the U.S. effort to build a space-based shield against nuclear weapons, four former Reagan administration officials told the Times.

Scientists had failed in three attempts to hit a target missile with an interceptor missile. So for the fourth attempt in June 1984, they rigged both missiles to help ensure a hit, the Times reported.

"We would lose hundreds of millions of dollars in Congress if we didn't perform it successfully. It would be a catastrophe," one scientist said.

"We put a beacon with a certain frequency on the target vehicle. On the interceptor, we had a receiver," making it easy for the missile to home in on the target, the scientist said.

"The hit looked beautiful," the scientist said, "so Congress didn't ask questions."

The former officials said the deception program was approved by Caspar Weinberger, defense secretary from 1981 to 1987.

Young not anti-religious

HOUSTON (AP) — Young adults who shun church are not so much anti-religious as individualistic, says a Southern Baptist researcher.

Ron Dempsey says survey responses came from students at Kentucky's University of Louisville and Jefferson County Community College, but results are applicable throughout the Southeast.

Seventy percent of the unchurched students indentified themselves as Christian, but more than 50 percent indicated disillusionment with organized religion. They cited historical instances of oppression and negative personal experiences.

About 30 percent indicated that religion is a "private affair," while "many indicated they just hadn't found the right place to worship" or lacked time for it.

Dempsey, who summarized his findings at a meeting of the Southern Baptist Research Fellowship, recently was named associate dean at Presbyterian College in Clinton, S.C.

Diversified

By Mike Morrow,
County Extension Agent

The 20th annual Sheep and Goat Field Day is set for Sept. 2 at the Texas A&M Agricultural Research and Extension Center located north of San Angelo on U.S. Hwy. 87.

The morning program opens with registration and commercial exhibits from 9 until 9:45 a.m. The remainder of the morning is devoted to a walking tour under the direction of Dr. Tom Fuchs of San Angelo, entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Tour stops and those manning them include: "Boer Goats," Dr. Frank Craddock, San Angelo, Extension sheep and goat specialist, and Norman Kohls, Garden City, Glasscock County Extension Agent; "Pasture to Packer Program," Dr. Rick Machen, Uvalde, Extension livestock specialist; "Automatic Image Analysis Progress/Polypropylene Contamination of Wool," Dr. Chris Lupton, San Angelo, wool and mohair lab leader with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station; and "Disease Losses in Sheep and Goats," Dr. Andres de la Concha, San Angelo, assistant professor of veterinary pathobiology with the Experiment Station.

The tours will conclude with an optional stop on computer applications for agriculture presented by Stan Bevers of Vernon, Extension economist.

The afternoon program begins at 1 p.m. under the direction of Dr. Brian May, San Angelo-based executive director of the Mohair Council of America.

The afternoon speakers and their topics include Pierce Miller, San Angelo, vice president of the American Sheep Industry Association, "Special Updates on Critical Topics — the Wool and Mohair Incentive Program;" and Perry Bushong, Mountain Home, president of the Texas Sheep and Goat Commodity Board, "Predator Check-off Program."

Also, Dr. Evret Newman, El Paso, regional veterinarian, Texas Department of Health, "What Ranchers Should Know About Rabies," Dr. Dan Waldron, San Angelo, assistant professor, Experiment Station, "Sheep and Goat Breeding Research Plans;" and Dr. Ed Huston, San Angelo, Experiment Station professor for animal science, "Supplemental Feeding for the Upcoming Fall and Winter."

The day will conclude with an optional tour on the economics of hand treating mesquite on the Llano school land adjacent to the center. Dr. Darrell Ueckert, San Angelo, Experiment Station professor for rangeland ecology, and Dr. Jake Landers, San Angelo-based Extension range specialist, will conduct the tour.

Further information is available from Dr. Carl Menzies, resident director for the Experiment Station, telephone (915) 653-4576.

Field Day set Sept. 14 at Halfway

HALFWAY — Survival of agriculture in the 21st century is a challenge being met through the continued efforts of scientists at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. Their efforts to improve and strengthen the nation's food and fiber supply will be put on display here Sept. 14 at the 84th annual field day of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

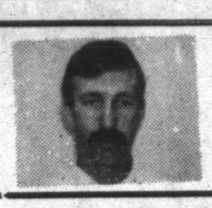

Wagons will transport visitors to research sites at the Experiment Station's High Plains Research Facility here. It is 14 miles west of Plainview on U.S. Hwy. 70. Tours will be conducted from 1 to 4 p.m.

This year's tour will have four featured stops, a walking tour, a youth tour, an open house at the computer training center and several exhibits, said Jerry Jones, research associate and chair of the event. The featured stops will be insect management, cropping systems and weed control, cotton breeding, and irrigation scheduling with PET.

A walking tour will be conducted at the grape vineyard and a youth tour will be conducted for fourth grade students from Lamb County schools. The Computer Education Center will display its facilities and provide examples of individual instruction in several programs.

The latest research equipment and experiments, such as a high speed chemigation pivot, advanced strains of glandless cotton and peanut research will be on exhibit. Home economists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will also have displays.

The field day is a cooperative presentation of the Experiment Station, Extension Service, High Plains Research Foundation, USDA-Agricultural Research Service, Texas Forest Service and Texas Tech University.

SCS Notes

By Michael Squires
Range Conservationist

When is the last time you visited with the SCS office to revise and update your FSA plan? This is something that each producer should do at least once each year. The importance of keeping your plan current cannot be overemphasized.

When a producer becomes the operator of a new farm it is crucial for him/her to come to the Soil Conservation Service Office and see if that particular farm has had a plan developed.

The plan, when developed, remains with the farm, not with the producer.

There are many producers in Scurry County who have taken over new farms this past year and still have not checked with the SCS office to verify if there is a current plan on file and that the plan is one which the current producer can follow. Again, the importance of assuring that the farm you now operate has a conservation plan cannot be stressed enough.

Each year, the Soil Conservation Service spot-checks specific farms. The farms, which are chosen randomly, are selected by the ASCS office and referred to the SCS office. Farms are selected on the basis of having highly erodible soils.

When the field check is conducted, it is with the intent of determining whether or not the plan, which has been developed for that farm, is being actively applied.

If it is found that the plan is not being actively applied, the results can be that the current producer may lose all benefits of the farm program for at least the current year. It can also result in all persons associated with the farm losing benefits. In some cases there can be substantial fines assessed too.

These are just some of the reasons why it is so important for producers to maintain a current plan on file with the SCS office.

Take a few minutes and call or come by the SCS office and ask to review your conservation plan. Especially if you have purchased, leased, or inherited any new cropland, you should make it a point to come by the SCS office and review your plan.

All information given herein is for educational purposes only. Education programs conducted by the ASCS, SCS and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Entomology Report

By Mark Logan, County Entomologist

HICKORY SHUCKWORM

The hickory shuckworm is a nut feeder of pecans in the Scurry County area. Damage from this pest is inflicted by the larvae as they feed within the shuck of the pecan. Since the pecan kernels obtain all their nourishment through the shuck, this feeding damage can seriously impair nut quality. At harvest, shucks often stick to the shell where feeding has resulted in premature shuck death.

The adult hickory shuckworm is a small dark brown to grayish black moth about ⅜ of an inch long with a wing span of a little over ½ inch. The larva is creamy white with a light brown head and grows to about ¾ inch long before pupating.

The hickory shuckworm spends the winter as a larva in hickory or pecan shucks. There are as many as 5 generations each year. Light nut drop will often result from larval feeding, but economic losses are rare before shell hardening. Nuts fed upon before hardening simply fall off the tree and do not complicate harvesting or reduce the overall nut quality.

Once shell hardening occurs halfway down the shuck there is usually a significant increase in hickory shuckworm activity. Female moths begin to lay eggs in greater numbers and more of the larvae survive to infest pecan shucks. This nut stage usually occurs around the end of August in this area.

Treatment levels for the hickory shuckworm in pecans is based on the previous year's infestation. If more than 20 percent of the harvested nuts were affected by the hickory shuckworm last year then a treatment would be justified this year. Treatments should be applied when pecans reach the gel stage. A second treatment should be applied 10-14 days following the first treatment. Be sure and read and follow label directions carefully when applying insecticides.

Crop report

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Another week of hot and dry weather has taken its toll on Texas agriculture. Dryland crops have been destroyed and thousands of acres have been lost to fire, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reports.

Kenneth Cook, district Extension director in San Angelo, said West Central Texas needed at least three inches of rain last week to save the cotton crop and to keep acreage from being burned. But they didn't get it.

Additionally, Menard County, near San Angelo in West Central Texas, lost 13,000 acres of forage to range fire. Cook said the loss of forage acreage is devastating because West Central Texas didn't make any hay this year and the drought has left little or no protein in the form of grass for livestock.

The following specific livestock, crop and weather conditions were reported by district Extension directors:

PANHANDLE: Soil moisture adequate to short. Cattle good. Hay baling active. Preparing land for wheat seeding. Cotton fruiting well. Most sorghum headed; some turning color.

SOUTH PLAINS: Soil moisture short. Ranges need moisture. Crop irrigation continues; many crops in stress. Cotton bolls 90 to 95 percent set. Corn 40 percent denting. Sorghum heading; some turning color. Potato, onion harvests continue.

ROLLING PLAINS: Soil moisture short. Livestock good. Wildfires prevalent. Stock water getting low. Irrigated crops good. Pecans, dryland cotton, sorghum stressed; some cotton dropping fruit. Harvesting milo. Peanuts good.

NORTH CENTRAL: Soil moisture adequate to very short. Cattle good; supplementation continues. Light green-up in pastures; more rain needed. Harvesting corn, milo; yields disappointing. Cotton yield potentials reduced. Need more rain.

NORTHEAST TEXAS: Soil moisture short. Cattle good. Pastures improved but short. Hay supplies short. Corn, sorghum harvests under way. Cotton fair. Sweet potato yields lowered. Planting fall gardens. Good pecan prospects.

FAR WEST: Soil moisture short to adequate. Livestock fair to good. Pastures, ranges poor to excellent. Row crops maturing rapidly. Harvesting melons, chilies, red, green peppers. Pecans sizing well. Planting lettuce, onion beds.

WEST CENTRAL: Soil moisture very short. Ranges dry, brown; many acres lost to fire. Little to no hay. Harvesting some grain sorghum; yields fair to good. Time running out on cotton. Peanuts stressed. Vegetables burning up.

CENTRAL TEXAS: Soil moisture very short. Pastures declining rapidly; grass fires breaking out. Some low stock water levels. Corn yields lower than expected. Peach harvest complete. Harvesting watermelon. Some scab in pecans.

Toys advertised on television often become important parts of a child's birthday and holiday "wish lists." The Federal Trade Commission has recently alerted parents to help children learn about toy ads on TV.

Although TV ads are an important source of imformation about toys for children, some children, especially the younger ones, may have trouble figuring out from an ad how a toy works outside its imaginary setting or whether toy parts are sold separately.

It is important to talk with children about how to understand television advertisements for toys. As with all products, toys advertised on TV are made to appear as appealing as possible. Point out to children that the purpose of advertising is to sell products. Not all information about a toy may be contained in an ad.

It is important to teach children how to evaluate toy advertisements. Some important points to consider:

Toys ads may exaggerate a toy's performance. A toy on TV may appear to make elaborate sounds or move by itself when, in fact, it cannot. You could discuss how special sound effects, production techniques, camera work, or editing can be used to enhance a toy's operation. Many ads show toys being used in make-believe settings in ways that are unrepresentative of how they work in real life. You may want to help children focus on the part of an ad showing a toy's real-life operation.

Toys may require special skills or extensive practice. In some ads, toys may look easy to play with or operate. In fact, they may require hours of practice before they can be used as shown. In addition, you may want to remind children that because of differing levels of skills and talents, not all toys are appropriate for all children.

Toys may not include all the pieces displayed in the ad. You may want to help a child determine what pieces actually come with a toy. Some toys may be shown with parts from more than one package while others may be depicted in elaborate play settings not readily duplicated at home. Children may want to watch and listen for such key phrases as "pieces sold separately" or "no batteries included."

Toys may have to be assembled. Toys in ads may look ready to play with when, in fact, they require assembly. In some cases, the assembly may be difficult or time-consuming. Children may want to note whether an ad states "some assembly required."

Children can learn to be skilled toy consumers. Talk with children about advertising. Encourage them to discuss with you the ads they see on TV. After you buy a toy, discuss whether it performs the way they thought it would. Ask what additional information they need about a toy before purchasing it or whether another toy would be a better buy.

As with any product, find out information about a toy before purchasing it. Carefully examine the toy and its packaging in the store or ask friends for their experiences. Try to determine how the toy actually performs, what pieces come with it, and how much assembly is required.

Check the recommended age level on the toy packaging before buying. This is the manufacturer's guide to the appropriateness of the toy and skill level required.
