For every 100 girls who join Girl Scouting, 18 will develop hobbies used during their adult life. It was scouting which introduced Margaret Allison Bruning to paleontology, a profession Bruning hopes to pursue. Bruning received the coveted Gold Award at a ceremony recently.

"You will want to meet tomorrow in hope that you can live

To pass on some of this feeling that only Scouting can give.

So, it's not the pin or the promise, nor just the law I live That cause me to love Girl Scouting, it's the feeling that Scouting can give."

These simple words describe the emotions of Margaret Allison Bruning, a 1994 Big Spring High School graduate, who received the coveted

"Gold Award" Saturday during a ceremony at First United Methodist Church. The award is the equivalent to the Boy Scout "Eagle Scout Award."

For Margie, 19, the presentation of the award was the culmination of a dozen years of Girl Scouting. "I started scouting as a first year Brownie when I was seven," she said.

"I wanted to join because I saw a group of Brownies walking down the street one day and I turned to my mom

Pesticide license class offered

Producers can earn credits

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

According to Dawson County Extension Agent for Agriculture John Farris, area producers will soon have the opportunity to complete training to meet one of the requirements for obtaining a private applicator license for the application of certain pesticides.

The training program is scheduled for Monday, Jan. 23, at 8:30 a.m. in the Dawson County Community Building at South 8th Street and Houston Avenue in Lamesa, Texas.

To become a licensed private applicator, a producer must attend a Texas Agricultural Extension Service training program, make a passing score on the TDA private applicator examination, and submit an application to TDA along with a required $50 fee.

Once a producer passes the test and receives a TDA Private Applicator License it is valid for five years.

According to Farris, in addition to the Extension training program on Jan. 23, TDA personnel will also offer testing at the Dawson County location beginning at 1 p.m.

Producers holding TDA private applicator certificates dated prior to Jan. 10, 1989, currently may continue to buy and use restricted-use and state-limited-use pesticides, but cannot supervise employees with this certificate.

The private applicator training program is available to those persons not previously certified and to those previously certified who will be supervising the application of restricted and/or state-limited-use pesticides and who wish to obtain a TDA private applicator license.

Persons planning to attend the training session and take the TDA test are encouraged to obtain a copy of "Using Pesticides - Private Applicator Manual" from the Dawson County Extension Office for review and study prior to attending the session.

Stenholm hoping for budget victory

By ANA RADELAT
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — For Rep. Charles Stenholm, the fourth time may be the charm.

The West Texas Democrat has tried three times, but failed — usually by narrow margins — to win House approval of a constitutional amendment requiring Congress to balance the federal budget.

A two-thirds majority, or 290 votes in the House, is needed to approve the amendment and send it to the states for ratification. Stenholm's proposal fell 12 votes short of approval last year.

While most Democratic initiatives are stymied by the new Republican majority, the GOP's "Contract With America" gives Stenholm another chance to pass his balanced budget

Mitchell Co. court takes care of housekeeping

By KELLIE JONES

COLORADO CITY — The Mitchell County Commissioners tended to some annual housekeeping duties during their regular meeting Jan. 9 by selecting a salary grievance committee, setting salaries for county employees and setting a reimbursement fee for jurors.

At the beginning of each year, commissioners select nine people to serve on a salary grievance committee as well as three alternates. Judge Ray Mayo said the names were selected from those who had served on the grand jury in 1994.

"All those who had served had their names put in a hat and we drew nine of them and then selected three as alternates," Mayo said.

Those selected were: Frank Biggers, Nolan Russell Jr., Stanley Hackfeld, Billie Woods,

Mayo says commissioners also approved a measure for elected officials to be paid on a salary basis instead of on the amount of fines or fees charged

The committee will be responsible for hearing any grievances from county employees about Commissioners voted to pay jurors $6 a day when they show up for jury duty. If selected, they will be paid $10 a day.

Other items approved during the meeting included:

•Approved the guidelines for the county's depository contract. They are advertising for bids for a banking facility to handle their accounts for the next two years. The bids will be opened at 10 a.m. Feb. 13.

•Approved a budget amendment for the justice of the peace. The budget had to reflect a recent decision by commissioners to allow a secretary to work part time in each JP's office during the day.

•Appointed Steve Manning to chair the Historical Commission. He replaced Jim Baum who served as chairman for several years. The commission is an organization of local citizens responsible for preserving the county's historical integrity.

Chamber sets direction for 1995

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

The Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce had its first Board of Directors meeting of 1995 Wednesday and defined several goals it has for the coming year. New chamber President Jim Weaver said as with any enterprise the chamber needs to have purpose and direction. During the meeting, new officers committed to visiting at least five chamber members per month until everyone has been contacted. The purpose of these visits will be to gain feedback from the following questions: 1) Why does Big Spring need a chamber; 2) What do you as a member feel are the most important issues facing the chamber; and 3) What would you as a member enjoy doing with the chamber in 1995? According to Weaver, the answers to these questions will help give the necessary purpose and direction to the chamber. He added it is imperative that the public be made aware of the services and products that are available locally. Another issue receiving much discussion was the expansion of Moore Development For Big Spring Inc. Because both organizations are working under the same theme "Building A Better Future Through Team Work," a way was found to offer the Moore Board the space it needs at no additional cost. In the past, the chamber has provided clerical and secretarial services to the Moore Board at cost, but by restructuring Moore Board's operations, it will no longer have need of those services and that funding can be used to lease additional space in the chamber building. Following the discussion, the chamber's Executive Committee was authorized to work out the details of the restructuring project with the Moore Board. The chamber also feels like it should be doing more to assist existing businesses and during budget discussions, expressed interest in appropriating $40,000 for retail development. This project would be handled by Frances Wheat, the chamber's vice president for Retail Development. According to the chamber, this funding would be used for co-operative advertising by local businesses; seminars to train employees of member businesses to provide better service to their customers; and other similar areas. Where the business community is concerned, the chamber has taken the stance that it not only has a duty to attract new businesses but also to support those businesses that are already in Big Spring.

and told her I wanted to be just like them."

Margie, who has sold over 4,000 boxes of cookies in her lifetime, cites Girl Scouts as being a primary positive influence in her life. For that reason, she chose the theme "Heroes" for her award presentation. "I've always seen Girl Scouts as heroes," she said. "I'm learning disabled and Girl Scouts taught me that I'm all right. It brings out hope for me."

To receive the Gold Award, Margie was required to complete a major services project. "I developed a clown troupe for my church which teaches sermons by way of skits," she said. "It was really a lot of fun and the other girls in the troupe have been a big help."

Her mother, B.J., is proud, saying she sees her daughter as a hero. "She has hung in there and accomplished a lot even though some people have been less than tolerant of her learning disabilities and hyperactivity."

"Many are the times I have hurt for her when other people made fun of her for being in Girl Scouts or for being differently abled. Margie has rarely responded to remarks or other people's reactions and concentrated on reaching her goals."

B.J. spoke fondly about her daughter's years in scouting, referring to them as a "great and glorious adventure." The adventure included being an exchange student in Costa Rica, travel to Canada, Montana, Ohio and Georgia.

It was the trip to Montana which is primary in Margie's mind. "I got to go on a dinosaur dig with world famous paleontologist Jack Horner," she said. "I fell in love with the whole idea."

Margie is currently attending Sul Ross University in Alpine majoring in archeology and vertebrate paleontology - the study of fossils and backbones. "If it wasn't for Girl Scouts, I wouldn't be majoring in what I am," she said.

"We hear a lot about the lack of heroes for our young people," B.J. added. "But I think we just don't look in the right places. In Margie's 12 years in Girl Scouting, I've met many heroes."

amendment. But some Republicans - led by Texas Rep. Joe Barton - wanted to add a provision that would prevent Congress from raising taxes without three-fifths votes of the House and Senate.

The so-called supermajority provision has little support in the Senate, however, and some House Republicans balked at the requirement.

Threatened with the defeat of a contract provision, Gingrich has been forced to allow Stenholm to offer his alternative when the House votes on the balanced budget amendment next week.

Stenholm said he left the supermajority provision out of his amendment to win the votes of moderates on both sides of the aisle.

"The votes are not there to pass the Barton amendment," Stenholm insisted.

While chances that Stenholm will muster 290 votes this year look good, he continued to lobby his colleagues Wednesday.

Gingrich delayed the balanced budget vote for a week so GOP leaders could persuade Republicans to abandon their support for Stenholm's bill. The 73-member Republican freshman class has been urged to promote Barton's plan.

"Get interviewed by as many talk show radio programs between now and next week as you can," GOP newcomers were urged in a notice faxed to their offices.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce mounted its own campaign to defeat Stenholm's plan and approve Barton's. "The chamber believes that such supermajority requirements, which place Congress' ability to raise taxes beyond simple congressional majorities, provide the discipline needed to cut government spending," chamber Vice President Bruce Josten said.

Recommendation:
Move bad soil

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The San Antonio City Council has recommended that the contaminated landfill next to the Alamodome be moved at a cost of about $3 million, Mayor Nelson Wolff says.

Wolf made the announcement Thursday after a closed-door City Council briefing by Cooke-Joyce Inc., the environmental firm hired by the city to oversee the cleanup.

The landfill, consisting of thousands of cubic yards of contaminated soil, has enraged residents of the area around the sports arena.

DA admits guilt
in DWI case

BRYAN (AP) — Prosecutor David Barron says he is "absolutely, totally and unequivocally guilty" of a drunk driving incident that led to a November traffic accident in downtown Anderson.

Barron, the district attorney for Grimes, Madison and Leon counties, said Thursday in a written statement that he plans to plead guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated. That charge will probably be filed next week, said County Attorney Joe Falco Jr.

"I will not hide behind the technicalities of the law because as district attorney I have a sworn duty to uphold the law," Barron said. "I broke the law. I'm ready to face my punishment."

Anti-discrimination policy hits a snag

DALLAS (AP) — The city of Dallas is the latest municipality to encounter a stumbling block in its attempts to enact a policy benefiting homosexuals.

A divided City Council voted 9-5 earlier this month to prohibit the city from discriminating against gays and lesbians in hiring, firing and promotion. But the council was told Wednesday it may have voted improperly and now plans to reconsider its action.

Cece Cox, president Dallas Gay and Lesbian Alliance, said Thursday she was heartened by the initial council vote, but expressed disappointment with opposition to what she called a "basic and simple" measure.

First speech is to veterans

AUSTIN (AP) — George W. Bush told a group of veterans Thursday they were a natural audience for one of his first speeches as governor.

"I will understand the traditions and honor and commitment that veterans have gone through because I was raised by one of the greatest veterans, in my prejudiced opinion, that our country has ever produced," Bush said, referring to his father, former President Bush, who flew fighter planes in World War II.

"It's with great pride that my inaugural speech in (the Capitol) is made to people with whom I share a common, kindred spirit."

Bush's speech reiterated many of his campaign themes. He vowed to focus his efforts on education, juvenile justice, child support accountability and welfare reform.

He also drew laughs after sharing a story about how he nicked his throat shaving the morning after his inauguration.

"My wife said, 'What's the Bush said he knows the next four years will be filled with hard decisions.

"I may make some people mad along the way," Bush said. "But I am one of these few fellas in politics that actually used to do something that I liked to do, which was manage a baseball team.

"I am going to do what I think is right. And if that's acceptable, I hope it is. And if it's not, you can come see me at The Ballpark at Arlington four years from now."

House adopts fund raising guidelines

AUSTIN (AP) — Public watchdog groups are hailing reforms to fund-raising guidelines for legislative caucuses but say further improvements are needed.

"It's a good step forward," Tom Smith, state director of Public Citizen, said of the rules approved Thursday by the House.

Under the new rules, House caucuses must disclose contributions from special interest groups. They also are prohibited from fund raising during and 30 days before a legislative session and cannot be funded with tax dollars via House funds or individual members' dues.

Caucuses are groups of lawmakers who spend money on staff and research to monitor bills and gather information for their legislative agenda.

An amendment to the rules by Rep. Kevin Bailey, D-Houston, requires caucuses to file reports of contributions and expenditures with the House chief clerk. Financial reports were voluntary under the rules as first proposed.

legislative session, when that money was given for a specific purpose — to try to influence our votes," said Bailey, who heads a caucus of progressive House members.

Rep. Layton Black, sponsor of the House resolution containing the rules, also has filed a bill addressing caucuses.

Under that measure, caucuses would be required to file financial reports with the Texas Ethics Commission or face criminal and civil penalties.

Black said his bill would provide an enforcement mechanism that's missing under the House rules.

Branch Davidian's parents file wrongful death lawsuit

WACO (AP) — The parents of a 17-year-old woman who died along with her 1-year-old daughter when the Branch Davidian compound burned in 1993 have filed a $52 million wrongful death lawsuit against the government.

The lawsuit was filed Thursday in federal court on behalf of Australians Oliver Gyarfias Sr. and Elizabeth Gyarfias. The defendants are the federal government and former supervisors of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

Aisha Gyarfias, 17, and her daughter, Startle, died in the April 19, 1993, fire that destroyed Mount Carmel. David Koresh and nearly 80 of his religious followers died in or just before the blaze.

Aisha's brother Oliver

Gyarfias Jr. left the compound during the 51-day standoff, which began Feb. 28, 1993, when federal agents stormed the prairie home seeking to serve Koresh with search and arrest warrants. Six Davidians and four ATF agents died in the ensuing gunfight.

The lawsuit was filed by attorney Kirk Lyons of Black Mountain, N.C.

Aisha Gyarfias was 13 when she became one of Koresh's wives, former sect members have said. Her parents deny the accusation, citing her marriage to sect member Greg Summers.

Koresh, however, confirmed that Aisha Gyarfias was one of his wives and that Startle was one of his many children in a videotape he made during the siege.

State should pay out-of-state winner

DALLAS (AP) — A New Jersey policeman should be paid the $10.5 million that Texas lottery officials have said they won't pay, the author of the state's lottery law says.

Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, told the Dallas Morning News Thursday that the money should be paid to Scott V. Wenner, 37, of Riverside, N.J., because the state has a moral obligation to pay.

Wilson was the sponsor of the 1991 legislation that legalized the Texas lottery.

State Lottery Director Nora Linares says that the state won't pay Wenner because the Pennsylvania company that sold Mr. Wenner the ticket isn't licensed by the Texas Lottery.

She also said the company violated state rules by selling the $1 ticket in the Nov. 23 drawing for more than its face value.

Mrs. Linares told the newspaper that she wouldn't comment on Wilson's remarks until after she meets with him next week to discuss the matter.

The lottery director has said she is simply following the law and that her decision has nothing to do with the fact that Wenner is from out of state.

Dale Ossip Johnson, an Austin lawyer who represents Wenner, said he was "extremely pleased" to hear of Wilson's remarks.

Say no to amendment 10

Much has been said about Charter Amendment VIII, giving city employees a grievance process step before court.

However, there is one amendment which seems to have slid through: Amendment 10, which effectively takes away our right to recall elected officials.

While the Big Spring City Council needs the ability to remove council people who are not making meetings, are being drunk or such, the citizens' right to recall their elected officials should not be impeded.

Amendment 10, as it is currently worded, makes no mention of, nor provision for, citizens to recall or otherwise take action against elected officials who fail to meet qualifications required by the city charter or state law.

The wording is innocuous enough that many people might not catch it, but the amendment would do away with recall elections.

We are the ones who put these people into elected office in the first place; we should share, with City Council, the right to recall these people should we decide they are not doing their job.

Defend your right to representative government. Vote in Saturday's charter amendment election, and cast a "NO" vote for Amendment 10.

You want historic change?

"What do you think you're going?" my father said.
"I'm sitting down," I said.
"Not in my seat, you aren't," he said.
"This isn't your seat," I said.
"Your seat's at the other end," he said.
"No, my seat is not at the other end," he said.
"My seat is this seat. You may sit at the other end."
"Wait a minute," I said. "Is this a joke?"
"You're beginning to annoy me," he said.
We were at the dinner table. The dinner table in his house. He is almost 80 years old. For my entire life, at the dinner table he has always sat with his back to the window, looking into the room. No one was ever allowed to sit in his chair.
Now he was telling me that his chair is the one facing the window — the one at the other end of the table.
"When did this happen?" I said.
"When did (ital) what (end ital) happen?" he said.
"When did you change chairs?" I said.
"About two years ago, if it's any concern of yours," he said.
"That's not true," I said. "I was here visiting you last Fourth of July, and you still were sitting in the regular chair."
"I am not going to have this conversation," he said.
Some people think that the Republican takeover of the Congress was the biggest change in the last year. Some people think that various political upheavals around the world were the biggest change. To me, those are minor. A big change is when your father, after a lifetime of dinners, decides to change his chair at the table.

"Why did you change your chair?" I said.
"I don't have to answer that," he said.
"Please," I said. "I have to know."
"I changed because I wanted a change," he said.
"You wanted a change," I said. "For your entire life you refuse to sit anywhere but in the chair looking away from the window. And then one day you decide you don't like that chair."
"Do I have to listen to this?" he said to my mother.
Before she could answer, I noticed that she was sitting in a different place at the table, too — on the same side she always sat, but closer to his new chair.
"So you had to move, too?" I said to her.
"I didn't have to move," she said. "I chose to move."
"You're on the same side as always," I said. "But you're farther down the table."
"That's so we can talk to each other," she said.
"You realize something, don't you?" I said to my father. "Your whole adult life you have turned your head to the right to talk to her. Now you have to turn your head to the left."
"I'm ending this conversation," he said.
"Seriously," I said. "For all these years at dinner you've talked to her left profile. Now all of a sudden you want to get used to talking to her right profile?"
"Just eat your meal," he said.
"What's behind you?" I said.

"Don't turn around — just tell me what's behind you."
"The Toby jugs," he said.
The Toby jugs are porcelain figurines in the shape of people's faces. They're actually pretty ugly. My father and mother have had them in the dining rooms of the houses where they've lived all of their adult lives. My father could always look at them at dinner. Now they were behind him.
"How do you know they're there if you can't see them?" I said.
"Stop asking questions," he said.
"Why would you not want to look at the Toby jugs?" I said.
"I've seen the Toby jugs," he said. "That white one, of Winston Churchill — that was the first one we bought. During the war."
I looked behind him. The Winston Churchill Toby Jug was, indeed, on the bottom shelf of the cabinet.
"Even on Bryden Road," I said. "Even in the old house. You sat with your back to the window, and you could see the Toby jugs. It was a different window — but you never let anyone sit in your chair, just so you could look away from the window."
"So?" he said.
"So?" I said. (ital) "So? (end ital) So you want me to just sit here and not wonder about this?"
"No, I don't want you to sit here," he said. "I want you to sit (ital) there." (end ital)
There, down at the other end of the dinner table. With my back to the window.
"Why have you done this?" I said.
"I decided to look out the window," he said.

Pets being put to death due to rabies outbreak

EDINBURG (AP) — A rabies outbreak is prompting several people to call animal-control officials to have their pets put to sleep.
"A lot are saying they don't want their dogs any more or they can't afford to have them vaccinated," said Rogelio Tijerina, chief inspector of the Hidalgo County environmental health division. "So far, we've had more than 40 calls from people trying to find out how they can get their animals picked up. We normally get about eight a day."

In an attempt to curb the outbreak, which already claimed the life of a 14-year-old Edinburg boy, Hidalgo County commissioners approved an emergency ordinance Tuesday.

The mandate, which imposes fines for pet owners whose animals are caught unvaccinated and without a leash, goes into effect midnight Monday.

County animal wardens and Humane Society officials have been flooded with calls, and scores of dogs have been dumped at the Rio Grande Valley Humane Society animal shelter.

The shelter has reached its capacity of 300 dogs and cats, mostly strays. But several were former pets abandoned because of the rabies outbreak, officials said.

Workers are killing any unwanted pet as soon as possible because of overcrowded conditions, which began since the news of Rolando Bazan's rabies death.

Officials also have cut the number of days a stray animal can remain at the shelter from 10 to five. Strays from the Edinburg area are no longer being put up for adoption.

The rabies outbreak also may have killed a 19-year-old breeding horse.

Veterinarian Adalberto Garza shipped the animal's head to state laboratories in Austin on Thursday to test for the disease, which has victimized eight domestic animals.

Results are expected by Saturday. If confirmed rabid, the horse will be the outbreak's first livestock victim.

Breeding horse falls to rabies

EDINBURG (AP) — The rabies outbreak sweeping through South Texas may have killed a 19-year-old breeding horse.

Veterinarian Adalberto Garza shipped the animal's head to state laboratories in Austin on Thursday to test for the disease, which has victimized eight domestic animals and a teen-age boy in recent weeks.

Results are expected by Saturday. If confirmed rabid, the horse will be the outbreak's first livestock victim.

The mare died about 11 p.m. Wednesday after suffering for at least two days from disorientation, abnormal irritability and an inability to swallow — classic symptoms of the deadly virus.

The horse was from the Lorenzo de Zavala Elementary School area where six dogs and a cat have been confirmed rabid since Christmas. The horse was part of a herd of 20 and had close contact with the owners.

All warm-blooded animals are fair game for the disease. Coyotes and dogs are the most common transmitters.

Five South Texas horses have been confirmed rabid since the epidemic hit Starr County in 1988. The deadly virus also has claimed the lives of at least eight cows and one goat, according to statistics from 18 South Texas counties.

What's up with Lenin?

Debate on what to do with him just won't go away

MOSCOW (AP) — Vladimir Lenin died 71 years ago, but the debate over what to do with his corpse won't go away.

In recognition of Saturday's anniversary of the Soviet founder's death, a handful of people renewed calls for burial of his embalmed body.

Lenin's corpse was put on display in a tomb on Red Square after he died in 1924. It was one of the Soviet Union's most revered and most visited monuments.

While most Russians are more concerned with the violence in the breakaway region of Chechnya, St. Petersburg Mayor Anatoly Sobchak revived the cadaver controversy last week when he appealed — again — to President Boris Yeltsin to bury the body.

Sobchak had hoped to bury Lenin on Saturday — the anniversary of Lenin's birth — in the city that once bore the Soviet leader's name, Leningrad. Sobchak and others have cited a purported line in Lenin's will requesting burial, but Lenin's grand-niece has said he never made a will.

Izvestia published a letter Wednesday by a biologist who worked in the Red Square mausoleum for more than 30 years, urging the burial of what he said was a decomposing body.

But officials at the Volkovo Cemetery in St. Petersburg, where Lenin's mother and sister are buried, said no preparations have been made to transfer his remains there.

Yuri Leonov, spokesman for the president's office, said, "The president is busy with many things. Who knows if he'll have time to address this." Unlike the many Russians who shrugged off Sobchak's latest appeal, Elena Borisova still feels passionate about the waxy-looking 5-foot, 4-inch corpse, encased in glass for more than seven decades.

The embalmed body of Vladimir Lenin, founder of Soviet Union, lies on display inside the Lenin mausoleum in Moscow's Red Square, in this October photo. Lenin died 71 years ago, but the debate over what to do with his corpse, on display for seven decades, won't go away.

"He was a genius," said Borisova, a tour guide who has led thousands of visitors through the mausoleum over the past 20 years. "He should not be moved. You can't mess with the body of a great man."

Lenin look-alike Alexander Koklenkov is also opposed to the burial, for less ideological reasons. He occasionally dresses as the Bolshevik leader and charges people to have their picture taken with him near the tomb.

"It's a good way to make some money," Koklenkov said. The controversy over the body began in 1989, when theater director Mark Zakharov first publicly suggested that Lenin be buried.

The idea was deemed heresy at the time, but gained popularity after the 1991 collapse of the Soviet Union. Supporters included the mayors of Moscow and St. Petersburg and the Russian Orthodox Church.

Pressure for burial later waned, following the success of hard-liners and Communists in the 1993 parliamentary elections. They advocate leaving Lenin's remains in the Red Square tomb.

Meanwhile, lines of visitors to the tomb have also subsided. And many Russians are complaining about the cost of keeping Lenin presentable for the trickle of tourists and mourners still fascinated by the dead body.

GOP tells White House to lay off Newt attacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Warning that relations with Democrats have "gone from bad to worse," a leading House Republican is suggesting that cooperation with the White House depends on ending attacks against Speaker Newt Gingrich.

That caution to the Clinton administration from House Banking Committee Chairman Jim Leach, a moderate Republican from Iowa, became public Thursday — on a day that tensions eased in the Senate.

For much of the day Senate relations had been sour too, as Republicans lost their first attempt at stopping a Democratic filibuster. The vote came on the fifth day of debate on legislation to force Congress to pay for regulations it imposes on states and localities.

Just before midnight Thursday, senators worked out a unanimous agreement to limit amendments on the legislation.

Employees suspended for shocking co-worker

ROCKY MOUNT, Va. (AP) — Three people forced a mentally handicapped co-worker to wear an electronic dog collar and used it to give him shocks in a fake lie-detector test.

The three MW Manufacturers employees were suspended without pay for three days and placed on probation for a year, company president Mike Harman said Thursday. The company and police were investigating.

The employees fastened the dog collar around their co-worker's leg, told him it was part of a lie detector test, then shocked him with the collar when he didn't give correct answers, Harman said.

"I think it was their idea of a practical joke," he said.

Trade
deficit
worsens

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the Clinton administration's aggressive campaign for trade agreements, America's trade deficit is worsening and on track toward a record exceeding $150 billion for 1994.

The Commerce Department reported Thursday that the deficit in November climbed 4.3 percent to $10.53 billion, up from a revised $10.10 billion in October.

U.S. exports of goods and services, helped by a giant surge in sales of commercial airliners, were up 2.2 percent to a record $61.16 billion.

But imports climbed at an even faster pace of 2.5 percent to $71.69 billion, the seventh straight month they have hit a new high. The gain in November reflected in part a higher foreign oil bill and more imports of autos. The trade gap is the difference between imports and exports.

The Clinton administration, which counts among its greatest achievements a round of market-opening trade agreements, blamed the deteriorating trade performance on unequal economic growth rates among America's major trading partners.

"On the good news, our economic recovery continues. That puts American consumers in a position to purchase goods from abroad. The bad news is other economies are not performing as well," said White House press secretary Mike McCurry.

But some private economists contended that major trade barriers, especially in Japan and China, were to blame as well.

Striking United Auto Workers union members picket outside General Motors Corp.'s AC Delco Flint East complex in Flint, Mich. Thursday. About 6,800 UAW workers walked off the job on Wednesday. GM has told more than 10,000 workers at the other assembly plants not to report to work Friday.

Strike curtails GM production

Production has been stopped or curtailed at three General Motors Corp. assembly plants because of a strike that stopped the flow of auto parts.

About 6,800 workers at GM's AC Delco Flint East complex walked out Wednesday in a dispute over staff size, overtime and outside contracting.

About 14,200 workers were told not to report to work today at assembly plants in Pontiac, Lansing and Janesville, Wis. Other GM plants could be forced to close by early next week as parts run out, said Joseph Phillippi, an analyst for Lehman Brothers in New York.

The Pontiac and Lansing plants, which make the Oldsmobile Achieva, Pontiac Grand Am, Buick Skylark and full-size pickup trucks, were completely shut down. The Janesville plant, which was partially closed, makes the Chevrolet Tahoe, GMC Yukon and the Chevrolet and GMC Suburban.

There also were reports late Thursday that GM had shut down its Buick City large-car assembly plant in Flint, which has about 4,400 workers. A company spokesman could not confirm the shutdown.

Talks between GM and the striking United Auto Workers Local 651 were to resume today.

"There's some progress," Local 651 president Dale LeBeau said after a bargaining session ended Thursday evening. "There's a considerable way to go."

LeBeau wouldn't discuss the status of individual issues.

The strike stopped production of spark plugs, filters, dashboard instrument clusters, fuel pumps, cruise controls and a variety of other parts used in most GM vehicles.

The issues in the dispute are nearly identical to those that caused two GM strikes last year.

Delayed 911
response

his family

HUSTONVILLE, Ky. (AP) — When Charles Rogers left his wife and three of his children in his burning house and called 911, the phone didn't ring at the state-of-the-art emergency dispatch center 10 miles away.

Rogers reached the sheriff's office in neighboring Casey County — 20 miles in the other direction.

Then things got worse. "The dispatcher was told 'Chicken Bristle,' the area where Coleman lived, said Casey County Deputy Sheriff Marvyn Crutcher. "Our dispatcher said, 'Chicken Gizzard Road?' and they said yes."

Chicken Gizzard Road is in Casey County, and three officers were dispatched there. When no fire was found, they tracked the report to Lincoln County.

By the time firefighters arrived at Rogers' one-story frame house — 28 minutes after he called 911 — his wife and the children were dead.

The delay has prompted an investigation into the routing of emergency calls in this rural community. Officials were unsure Thursday what caused the apparent glitch in Lincoln County's high-tech emergency telephone system; no dispatchers had been disciplined.

Rogers and his wife, Lillian Coleman, awoke in smoke about 3 a.m. Wednesday. The fire apparently was started by a burning log that rolled from an unprotected fireplace and ignited a couch.

Coleman refused to leave when she couldn't wake three of her children, two boys and a girl ages 4 to 11. Authorities believe the children were overcome by smoke while they slept.

Rose has been calming influence

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Under Lt. Gen. Michael Rose, U.N. peacekeepers have quieted Sarajevo, helped make peace between Bosnian Croats and Muslims, and kept alive isolated Muslim enclaves.

For Rose, a former British special forces commander who departs Monday after a year as the U.N. military chief in Bosnia, these achievements are the only measures of success for a U.N. force that "can persuade and persist, but never compel people to stop fighting."

Attacked by the Bosnian government, aid officials and even members of his own staff for failing to strike harder against the Serbs, the wiry 54-year-old coolly defends his mission.

Suddenly there was peace in the camps

GOMA, Zaire (AP) — Peace has come suddenly, unexpectedly to the Rwandan refugee camps that blight the verdant landscape of eastern Zaire.

It came, apparently, from the blazing guns of Zairian soldiers, from the arrest and expulsion to Rwanda of troublemakers and from subtle changes in the way aid agencies manage the camps.

Acts of brutality and intimidation so common two months ago are almost unheard of now. Aid workers no longer are menaced by the defeated Hutu soldiers.

With a crack in the concrete stairs, children sweep the floor at the Muko Elementary School in Amagasaki, near Kobe, western Japan, as the school resumed classes today for the first time since Tuesday's earthquake which claimed more than 4,100 people.

Survivors fight new threats

KOBE, Japan (AP) — They survived earthquake and fire. Now thousands of Japanese are fighting hunger, bone-chilling cold and the threat of disease.

The quake Tuesday turned Kobe, a modern port city, into smoldering ruins without enough electricity, food, fuel and clean water for its 1.4 million people.

An aftershock of magnitude 3.6 jolted Kobe today. Seismologists said it was among the strongest of more than 800 aftershocks, since Tuesday's devastating quake of magnitude 7.2.

As of this afternoon, the death toll stood at 4,431 with 656 still missing and 23,600 injured, according to police. About 280,000 people were living in emergency shelters.

Pipes were so badly damaged that water had to be shut off today to about 1 million homes, the Health and Welfare Ministry said. Some 110,000 households had no electricity and nearly 850,000 had no natural gas.

Kansai Electric Power Co. said it hoped to restore service

If it were summertime, the situation would have been bad. We're lucky.

Naoto Sato

within a few days. But the local gas company estimated it would take a month to repair broken lines and restore service.

Delayed by fires and lack of equipment, rescuers searched frantically for more survivors from Japan's deadliest quake in 70 years. Eight people were found alive today, including five women in a collapsed apartment building, said Japan Broadcasting Corp.

Swiss search dogs have found 13 people, but 12 were dead and the only one found alive died at a hospital, Swiss team leaders said.

With no running water, sanitation is becoming a major problem in crowded earthquake shelters. Every day, refugees shuffle through the rubble-strewn streets to collect water in plastic canisters from broken mains.

Tens of thousands of people were trying to make their way out of the city, by foot if necessary and carrying their possessions on their backs.

Some people could be seen pushing baby carriages filled with food, clothing and other supplies. Some were weeping openly.

Naoto Sato, a Kobe city official, said as yet there were no reports of disease due to contaminated drinking water.

"If it were summertime, the situation would have been bad," he said. "We're lucky."

The cold weather — nighttime temperatures have been hovering around freezing — has prevented bodies from decomposing in the rubble. But it probably also has killed some people who survived the quake but were trapped in the wreckage.

Officials admitted that overcrowded shelters were critically short of all necessities.

Russian troops trying to force rebels out of Chechen capital

GROZNY, Russia (AP) — A day after seizing rebel Chechnya's presidential palace, Russian forces tried to force Chechen fighters out of their capital today and bombed the last open road out of the city.

Civilians tried to flee through a snowstorm that dumped six inches of snow on the city. But Chechen fighters kept up their resistance, despite being forced to retreat Thursday from the presidential palace and train station.

Russian jets and artillery blasted a market about two miles southwest of Grozny's center on the road leading west out of the capital. One bomb went through nine stories of an apartment building, causing an unknown number of civilian casualties.

The capture of the presidential palace was a rare morale boost for the Russians, demoralized by weeks of bloody fighting against outgunned, outnumbered Chechens.

"The military phase of restoring the Russian Constitution in Chechnya is now practically over," President Boris Yeltsin said in a statement.

"The subsequent mission to restore law, order and civil rights will lie with the Interior Ministry."

But the Chechens, who established new positions across the Sunzha River from the palace, played down the significance of the burned-out palace.

"Our new headquarters is set up and the fighters are in their positions," Chechen Defense Minister Aslan Maskhaev said at a news conference in Nazran, capital of neighboring Ingushetia. "We're ready to continue our fight for freedom."

Shakhid Atsayev, 33, said he and fellow Chechen fighters laughed when Russians used bullhorns to demand they lay down their arms and surrender.

"The Russians don't even have to think about trying to send a government here," he said. "We will fight to the end, and when we die, we'll send our 10- and 12-year-olds with Kalashnikovs. Chechnya won't be a quiet country until it is free."

Khmer Rouge taking credit for killing

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The Khmer Rouge claimed today it killed a University of Texas professor and wounded her husband and accused them of being involved in hostile military activity.

However, the government and a witness said the attackers probably weren't Khmer Rouge fighters.

Susan Ginsburg Hadden was killed Sunday while touring the Banteay Srey portion of the 12th century Angkor Wat temple complex. Her husband, James Hadden Jr., was wounded. Their Cambodian guide also was killed.

"We exploded mines and fired B-40 (rockets) at them," the Khmer Rouge said in its daily radio broadcast. "One died and another was injured."

The Haddens' driver escaped and said he watched from the nearby forest as attackers shot them and robbed their van. He said the attackers were bandits, not Khmer Rouge guerrillas.

Cambodian government officials also doubted the attackers were members of the guerrilla group, saying the Khmer Rouge would likely have taken the husband captive.

The Khmer Rouge ruled Cambodia from 1975 until 1978, and killed hundreds of thousands of people.

Its broadcast said the American couple were at the temples in Siem Reap, 160 miles northwest of Phnom Penh, to create a "military situation" against the guerrilla group.

Khieu Kanharith, a senior information ministry official, said it wasn't clear who was responsible. He said the Khmer Rouge claim was intended to drive foreign tourists away from Siem Reap, where the hundreds of ancient Angkor Wat temples are a major attraction.

The Khmer Rouge has been launching terrorist attacks and kidnapping foreigners in an attempt to scare off much-needed tourist and business dollars.

Lady Hawks win, close monster road trip

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

SNYDER - The Howard College Lady Hawks, though obviously sick to death of the road, won a battle of wills - not to mention a game - Thursday night.

Several times, the Western Texas College Lady Westerners appeared ready to take control of the basketball game. The Lady Hawks, however, denied WTC just enough to take a 65-58 win.

Amber Lacey scored 24 points and KeeKee Black and Eureka Ray added 11 apiece to lead the Lady Hawks, who improved to 19-1 overall, 3-0 in conference play.

WTC (9-13, 2-2) tried its best to force the tempo, but each time it appeared to be turning the game into a fast-break special, the Lady Hawks succeeded in putting on the brakes.

"At first, we were rushing things," Black said. "But when we finally slowed down and just ran our offense, we were able to score."

"They definitely wanted to play an up-tempo game," Howard coach Terry Gray said. "We came over with the frame of mind that we were going to play a slower tempo. Overall, I think we kept the tempo in our favor."

The Lady Hawks won the bat-

tle for tempo with their conference-leading defense, forcing 16 turnovers and limiting WTC to only 35 percent shooting from the field.

The Lady Westerners opened each half with rallies that gave them a lead, but each time Howard responded by turning up the defensive heat.

Trailing by six at the half, WTC opened the last 20 minutes on fire. Jackie Wright, who led the Lady Westerners with 19 points, scored six in succession, and her teammates added a pair of three-pointers for a 35-33 lead with just less than 17 minutes remaining.

Black, however, halted the run with a put-back basket to tie the game, then Lacey gave the Lady Hawks the lead with a short jumper.

Twice more during the game,

Western had possession and a chance to take the lead. Each time, however, Howard came up with a defensive stop and points on the other end of the floor.

A crucial point came with just less than four minutes remaining when the Lady Hawks, holding a slim 52-48 lead, did not allow WTC to get a shot off before the 30-second shot clock expired.

"We just stress defensive stops so much," Gray said. "It's just a personal goal of the kids - to make the stop when they have to. I felt the major momentum changer came when we kept them from getting a shot off before the shot clock went off."

The Lady Hawks weren't quite out of the woods, though. WTC again closed to within two on a jumper from Diane

Black responded, however, with steals on consecutive WTC possessions, Joyce Howard contributed a three-pointer and Lacey added a jumper and a pair of free throws to give Howard a 61-52 lead with 57 seconds left, and the Lady Hawks were finally able to pull the curtain on their monster road swing.

"They are so ready to play at home, they really don't know what to do," Gray said. "It'll almost be like a road game for us."

Black was much more direct. Asked if the team was ready to stay home for a while she answered: "Man, are we!"

The Lady Hawks play Monday night at 6 p.m. against Frank Phillips in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Winning three road games to open conference play was a huge achievement, Gray said.

"When the schedule came out, (assistant coach Matt Corkery) looked at it and felt that if we could take two of these three on the road, we'd be in good shape," Gray said. "We thought three in a row would be stretching it."

Swimmers diving into Invitational

By DAVE HARGRAVE
Sports Editor

The Big Spring swim teams put in an 8,000-yard workout Tuesday, prompting Junior Alex Padilla to say, "I just want to go home and eat."

Why the steep workout? Well, you might think it's because the team is preparing for its only hometown meet of the season, and that might be part of it. More likely, though, it's just a case of sharpening the skills after a long holiday break.

"After this past weekend, when we swam slower times than we have all year, I think the boys realized they had to pick up the pace," said Big Spring coach Harlan Smith. The boys didn't necessarily swim poorly Saturday at the Monahans Invitational, their first meet of '95, but Smith expects times to rise each meet, and they didn't in some areas.

"It wasn't that bad; it was just one of our off meets," said Eric Smith, who is also the coach's son. "We weren't as prepared as we should have been, and it paid off. It paid off badly."

At least the boys are merely battling to return to and then surpass pre-holiday form. The girls are battling a more pressing problem - departures.

Several of the girls' more experienced swimmers, including stars Ronna Osborn and Brandi Kaz, did not return to the team after the holiday break. That leaves BSHS with just nine ladies in the pool, and seven of them are freshmen.

"I think they've pulled together, and they've got the attitude that, 'Hey, we are the swim team,'" Smith said. "In the past, maybe they looked at the seniors and thought the seniors would do all of the work, and get the points, and that freshmen don't mean much to the team. They can't do that now."

Freshmen Alma Gonzales, Shawn Harris and Allison Thomas said the loss of talented teammates doesn't mean it's time to quit.

"A lot of people have quit, but I think this group we have is going to stay on," said Thomas.

"Even if the practices are harder,"

The girls are likely a year away from competing for the district title, but the boys' team is active and well in the District 4-4A hunt. The district meet is next month in Pecos.

"The only team that's given us trouble is Pecos, and everybody else that's given us trouble is out of our district, and every time we've gone against Pecos we're missing a few people," Chris Bongers said. "This meet we should have everybody here, and it should be a pretty good turnout. We should beat everybody that gets in our way, hopefully."

Whether Big Spring can win its Invitational Saturday is up in the air, but expect to see a sharp performance from the locals.

That is, if recent practices are any indication.

"The workout today, our first since the weekend, we went 8,000 yards," Smith said Tuesday. "They did not miss a send-off, they didn't miss a stroke, they didn't miss a stroke. The attitude seems to be better now. We know the guys that are with us are going with us for district, because this is the last six weeks before the district meet. All those that have failed are gone. We have no more worries about who is going to be with us, grade-wise. This is it. All the guys are in the water, and they know this is the final push for the district meet. This is what we've been looking for."

Houston's Robert Horry (25) and Otis Thorpe (33) jump to block the shot of New York's Monty Williams Thursday. Horry was called for the foul. New York won 93-77.

Knicks stomp Rockets in NBA Finals reunion

HOUSTON (AP) - John Starks overcame his playoff past against the Houston Rockets.

Starks wouldn't be deterred by memories of his last game in the Summit and peppered the Rockets with 22 points, leading the New York Knicks to a 93-77 victory on Thursday night in a rematch of the NBA finalists.

"You could feel the intensity from last year," Starks said. "I think I played under control and took the ball to the basket more. I can't worry about what happened last year. I'm beyond that now."

Starks hit 2-of-18 from the field last June 22 when the Rockets beat the Knicks 90-84 in Game 7 of the championship series. This time, he was 9-of-17 from the field and went 3-of-3 from 3-point range.

"There's been so much written about that, he may carry it with him a long time," Knicks coach Pat Riley said. "People remember that but it's over. John's been holding that in for a long time."

New York ended a 5-game regular season losing streak in the Summit and won for the 10th time in 11 games.

The Knicks hit their first four shots of the game while the Rockets were missing their first five shots, establishing a trend that lasted throughout the game.

"It's just a solid win for us," Riley said. "We started strong, which was very important. They had a couple of runs but we held them off and had just a solid win."

Houston never led in the game and managed only one tie at 53-53 in the third quarter. New York outscored Houston 30-18 in the fourth period.

Hakeem Olajuwon led the Rockets with 28 points and 17 rebounds. Otis Thorpe added 15 points. Derek Harper scored 16 points for the Knicks and Patrick Ewing had 15 points and 18 rebounds.

■ Dallas receiver to test free agency, looks toward Arizona

PHOENIX (AP) - Unrestricted free agent wide receiver Alvin Harper is saying no to Dallas, and apparently Arizona coach Buddy Ryan is wondering whether he'll say yes to the Cardinals.

Harper, in Phoenix for the Slam Fest, said he would find it very hard to stay with Dallas, where he said he felt used.

"I was like an outlet, like an extra outlet socket in the living room," Harper said. He had a single catch during Sunday's 38-28 Dallas loss to San Francisco in the NFC championship game.

"I thought I had an opportunity to show them, the coaching staff and the world, that I'm a big-time receiver because Deion Sanders was covering me the whole game," he said. "We didn't even challenge him. They never called my number to go against him."

Ryan was in Mobile, Ala. on a scouting expedition Thursday and couldn't be reached for comment. But he has dropped wide receivers Gary Clark, Ricky Proehl and Randal Hill, along with quarterback Steve Beuerlein. And he has said the 8-8 Cardinals need a leaping, play-making receiver like the 6-foot-3 Harper.

In the regular season, Harper, 27, caught 33 passes for 821 yards and a team-high eight touchdowns. In 1993, he snagged 91 passes for 1,665 yards and 10 touchdowns.

Harper said Thursday he felt he could fit in here or with anybody's offense. "If (Ryan) wants to talk to me, the doors are wide open," he said.

And at a salary of $668,000 for the season that just ended, the price might be right, though it appears he probably could command much more.

Harper said, however, that money isn't important.

"I know wherever I go, I'm going to get a healthy amount of change," he said. "I want to be happy, with a good team, and try to establish a winning tradition with that team."

And the Cardinals could be winners, he indicated. "If they keep that defense they have right now. They need an offense. If they can get a quarterback and a big-time receiver, I think they'll be winners," he said.

The Cardinals were No. 27 in the NFL in offense last season, last in touchdowns.

Another dome for Houston?

HOUSTON (AP) - A state lawmaker is trying to revive scrapped plans for a domed stadium in downtown Houston.

State Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, filed a bill in Austin on Thursday seeking a citywide referendum to ask citizens what they think about building a sports facility district in downtown Houston.

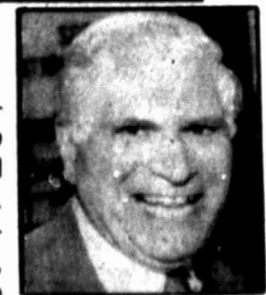

Creating such a district could help put together a financing plan to pay for a new stadium, which, in turn, would help revitalize downtown, Wilson hopes.

"A downtown sports stadium should be the anchor for our downtown," Wilson said. "If you don't have a healthy central business district, it hurts the whole economy, it hurts jobs, it hurts the crime rate. A city needs to be healthy from the inside out."

If you're going to watch the America's Cup, you'll be alone

A hoy and avast, ye mates! Haul that fore-deck or raise the spinaker, prepare for the leeward run, find someplace to hide the lanyard and call Buffy over at the country club and tell her I won't be joining her on the back nine.

Steve Reagan Sports Writer

As you might infer, I've never gotten too excited by the America's Cup. The biggest thing I've got against the -ahem! - sport is that watching it is like watching a computer screen saver.

There's no doubting that it's pretty. In fact, it's just about the prettiest sport around, next to figure skating or cheerleader competitions.

OK, Reagan, now that you've proved you're a sexist, would you mind making a point?

Watching those sleek boats cut through the waves is pretty, no doubt about it, but on TV the America's Cup is the exact opposite of hockey: In hockey, the action moves too fast for you to watch, while yacht racing's too darned slow.

The average speed of an America's Cup yacht is about 13 knots, which translates to about how fast I return calls to bill collectors.

The races begin with two boats heading upwind. Then, they round a mark and head downwind.

Then they head back upwind. Then, just for the fits and giggles of it all, they sail downwind.

Then they repeat all that two or three times. Sounds exciting to me.

OK, I realize that there's probably some America's Cup fans out there, even in landlocked West Texas.

If I've offended you ... good. Seriously, I believe that yacht racing is like bowling or golf, where it's better to be a participant than a spectator.

Of course, I wouldn't have a life.

Or friends. But who needs those? Anyway, the races are here, and will be a part of our lives for the next few months.

So, light up the old briar pipe, pop open a Perrier, loosen your tie, plop down on the couch and enjoy.

The rest of us will miss you.

Steve Reagan came to my attention that America's Cup racing was considered a sport. I found this surprising because when a bunch of rich folks gather to race their multi-million-dollar yachts, it's usually called a soiree or some hoity-toity name like that.

Sidewinders star in Austin

The Sidewinders, Big Spring's competitive gymnastics team, scored high this past weekend at the Capital Gymnastics meet in Austin.

Kristen Myers was just one of the Sidewinders' standouts in the statewide qualifying meet. Myers won the all-around title in the Level 9/ages 14-15 division with a score of 35.9.

Hayley Whiteside finished third in Level 9/ages 9-11. Her scores were 7.95 (vault), 8.9

(bars), 8.9 (beam), 8.75 (floor) and 34.5 (all-around). Others competing in Austin were Lindsee Dickerson (32.4 in Level 9/ages 12-13), Stephanie Stewart (35.025 in Level 10/ages 9-12) and Casey McKim (33.95 in Level 10/ages 9-12).

The Sidewinders were coming off their strong finish at the Jingle Bell Classic Dec. 17 in Richardson. Whiteside, Stewart and McKim all came home with fourth-place finishes.

Whiteside was 33.7 all-around in her division. Stewart scored 33.105 and McKim score 34.45.

Bird experts to swoop into town for Cranefest

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Imagine the satisfaction of nursing a wounded animal back to health and seeing it survive in the wild.

Mary Lee and Sherry McDaniel are doing just that with Last Chance Forever, a conservancy program caring for injured and sick birds based in San Antonio.

The two women will be in Big Spring Feb. 4 during Cranefest '95 for a flying demonstration with eagles, hawks, owls, falcons and vultures. When they are not caring for the birds, McDaniel and Lee concentrate on children's educational programs.

The fee to attend the program is $5 per person. If you want to attend all the events of Cranefest, the tickets are $34 for all meals, tours and activities. For more information, contact the chamber at 263-7641.

Lee has worked with the United States Forest Service and as an interpreter for a wildlife education company in Houston.

She is responsible for the daily operation of the Theater of Birds program presented during the summer at the San Antonio Zoo.

McDaniel has a special interest in parrots and also works with the San Antonio Zoo.

Through her knowledge, she is able to educate the public about nature and birds of prey.

Throughout the year, McDaniel is responsible for maintaining the health and conditioning of performing birds.

Each summer, she participates as an educational interpreter with the Theater of Birds at the San Antonio Zoo.

Last Chance Forever is a nonprofit organization dedicated to the rehabilitation and release of injured and orphaned raptors and birds of prey.

Since its inception in 1978, the group has cared for thousands of birds. 80 percent are released back into the wild.

Sherry McDaniel, left, and Mary Lee pose with some of the birds of prey they rehabilitate. They are with Last Chance Forever, a nonprofit organization, who treat thousands of birds who are sick and injured. McDaniel and Lee will give a flying demonstration at Cranefest '95.

Weekend goes to the dogs

Special to the Herald

Big Spring's two winter dog shows will be Saturday and Sunday at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. They have attracted entries from all over the U.S. The 838 dogs represent 108 American Kennel Club breeds and breed varieties.

"The Big Spring dog shows draw more out-of-town overnight visitors to Big Spring than any other event of the year," said Big Spring Kennel Club president Diane Linhart. "All 838 dogs exhibited this year are probably dogs from outside our city."

"The shows are an important local revenue-producing source, and we appreciate support the Chamber of Commerce has given in helping keep the shows in Big Spring."

Admission is free to the public for both Big Spring Kennel Club's show Saturday and for Concho Kennel Club's show Sunday. Judging begins at 8 a.m. each day and runs to mid-afternoon. An informal match show starts at 6:30 Saturday evening.

"Big Spring Kennel Club won one of the AKC's prestigious new Community Achievement Awards in 1994," said secretary Carole Owen. "Public education is extremely important to our club. It is the reason we have maintained a free admission policy."

"We urge Big Spring families to come learn more about dogs and dog care. There's no better place to meet reputable breeders and to discover if the breed you think you want to own is really the best choice for you."

Many unusual dog supplies and canine specialty items not available in West Texas will be featured by 17 dog show vendors. Items include hundreds of dog books, jewelry featuring most breeds, antique dog collectibles, custom dog leashes and designer dog beds. Vendors include a dog artist, a dog photographer, and a scissors and clipper sharpener.

For more information, call 263-3404, or contact show chairman Diane Hart, (915) 687-3281.

Brush up on parenting techniques

By JANET AUSBURY
Features Editor

The 14th and Main Church of Christ will present a parenting seminar Jan. 28-29, taught by Carl and Smitty Brecheen. Carl Brecheen will also speak for the class and assembly Sunday morning, Jan. 30.

The Brecheens are the parents of three children. Carl is director of the Bible Teacher's Workshop at Abilene Christian University and has taught the university's family relations course since 1961.

He has a doctorate in religious education and is a member of the National Council on Family Relations. Since 1974, he and Dr. Paul Faulkner have conducted the 10-hour "Marriage Enrichment Seminar."

Smitty Brecheen holds degrees in home economics and elementary education, previously coordinated the early childhood division of the University Church in Abilene and coordinates women's classes for the church.

Both the Brecheens have professional certification in the Association of Couples for Marriage Enrichment.

The seminar runs from 9 a.m.-4:15 p.m. Topics include "Strong Families," "Effective Discipline," "How to Survive the Teenage Years" and "Parenting Models." A noon lunch is provided and child care is available.

Those interested in attending the seminar or who would like more information should contact the church at 263-1303.

Liquor law divides church, restaurants

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — A city ordinance has allowed churches to prevent nearby establishments from serving liquor, but several restaurant owners think it's time for a change.

"I question it," said Tom Danner of T.J. Motts Restaurant. "It's like allowing a single belief to govern the economics of the downtown area."

T.J. Motts is one of three restaurants in the city's central business district that has tried recently to get permission from the Central Christian Center for a liquor license.

The district in recent years has attracted more restaurants, including some that have extended their hours to right service and added — or want to add — liquor to their menus.

Church presents divorce recovery seminar Feb. 4

By JANET AUSBURY

Divorce. Nobody likes to think about it happening. However, statistics show 50 percent of marriages fall victim to it.

Even marriages between people firmly grounded in church and faith may not be immune.

To address the special problems that devout Christians must deal with when a marriage is troubled, First United Methodist Church is presenting a divorce recovery seminar 9 a.m.-3:30 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 4.

The seminar is similar to that which the church presented last March in response to churchgoers' requests.

All are welcome to attend. The seminar is targeted to anyone who has experienced a failed marriage, whether the divorce is not yet final or is several years in the past.

Tom Vermillion, minister to singles at the Golf Course Road Church of Christ in Midland, will conduct the seminar.

He is divorced and conducts seminars and workshops throughout the country to help divorced people cope with practical and spiritual problems.

The seminar will give perspectives on divorce from a Christian viewpoint, but also

The seminar will give perspectives on divorce from a Christian viewpoint, but also address concerns such as getting through the stigma of a divorce, financial concerns and dealing with ex-spouses.

One point the seminar stresses is that churchgoers have not done something wrong by getting a divorce.

Participants may preregister for the seminar by calling First United Methodist Church at 267-6394. Registration fee is $10 and includes lunch and child care.

Those who do not preregister may register at the church at 8:30 a.m. Feb. 4. Juice, coffee and donuts will be provided.

MELCHIZEDEK -- MAN OF MYSTERY!

IF EVER THERE WAS A MYSTERY, A PUZZLE IN THE BIBLE, IT WOULD HAVE TO BE THE PRIEST-KING, MELCHIZEDEK, THE KING OF SALEM IN THE ONE MEETING ABRAHAM HAD WITH MELCHIZEDEK, HE IMMEDIATELY RECOGNIZED HIM AS SUPERIOR TO HIMSELF IN THE EYES OF GOD! MELCHIZEDEK BROUGHT TO ABRAHAM BREAD AND WINE, AND BLESSED HIM. THROUGHOUT THE SCRIPTURES HE IS REFERRED TO AS THE HIGH PRIEST OF GOD COMING NOT FROM A FATHER OR A MOTHER, HAVING NO END TO HIS LIFE AND NO BEGINNING. STUDENTS AND AUTHORITIES ON THE BIBLE HAVE SPECULATED ENDLESSLY ON THIS PRIEST-KING; SOME HAVE ARGUED THAT HE WAS A SURVIVOR OF THE FLOOD, THE PATRIARCH SHEM, OTHERS THAT HE WAS AN ANGEL OF GOD—ONE JEWISH TRADITION IS THAT HE WAS THE MESSIAH; SOME SAY THAT SALEM WHERE HE RULED, LATER BECAME JERUSALEM—BUT ONE THING IS CERTAIN, WHOEVER MELCHIZEDEK WAS, HE CERTAINLY AROUSED THE CURIOSITY OF SCHOLARS DOWN THROUGH THE AGES!

THE ASTERISKS (*) SHOW THE KIND OF DAY YOU'LL HAVE: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult.

Mom, kids overwhelmed by her anger

DEAR ABBY: I am a 33-year-old mother of two beautiful young children. I'm married, usually happy, and I work. (I have a very relaxed, no-stress position.) I wish I could blame my problem on stress, but I have none that

I'm aware of. So what's my problem? When I get mad at my kids, I "lose it," and I scream at the top of my lungs. I never hit them -- but I scream so loud it scares them (and me) to death. I don't know where it comes from; all of a sudden, I lose control. Then afterward, I'm so ashamed -- I hug them and tell them I'm sorry. I don't know why I lash out like that. I love my kids very much and fear that my verbal abuse will scar them for life. Do you have any suggestions? --EXPLOSIVE MOM

DEAR MOM: Most of us have been trained from early childhood to suppress our anger; but it would be far better if we expressed it appropriately. Admitting anger verbally is one way to diffuse it -- it's like releasing steam from a pressure cooker. When you sense that you are reaching the boiling point, try the techniques suggested by the National Committee to Prevent Child Abuse:

- (1) Put your hands over your mouth and count to 10. Or 20, if necessary.
- (2) Stop in your tracks. Press your lips together and breathe deeply.
- (3) Phone a friend and tell your friend how upset you are.
- (4) Recite the alphabet, or a poem you have committed to memory.
- (5) If someone can watch the children, take a short walk. Smell the flowers. Cool off.
- (6) Take a warm bath, or splash cold water on your face.
