Montford clarifies 'port' stand

By SPENCER SANDOW Staff Writer

State Sen. John Montford said this week that while he supports building a four-lane highway from I-27 at Lubbock to Midland, he isn't advocating that as a 'port to plains' route which would bypass Big Spring.

"After visiting with several of my constituents in Lubbock and Big Spring, I do not feel it is practical to designate any route for a 'port to plains' highway via Midland, therefore I am not planning to go forward with any such proposal," Montford wrote in a letter dated Nov. 25 to Granville Hahn, president of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce.

"I made this reference simply because Sen. Grant Jones (D-Abilene) and others passed a resolution designating a 'port to plains' route through Snyder and Abilene on U.S. 84. I did not feel this resolution was properly presented to the Legislature because it was 'slipped' through."

The resolution, sponsored by Jones in the Senate, was signed by the governor May 7. The legislation carries no funding provision, but does request the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation to designate U.S. Highway 84 as the "Port-to-Plains Highway" in "publications and travel literature."

Montford had written a letter to several communities several weeks ago — but not Big Spring — about his recent proposal to extend I-27 from Lubbock to Midland.

Montford's action drew a negative response from the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce which supports upgrading the Big Spring to Sterling City section of U.S. Highway 87 to four lanes, with the expectation that Highway 87 might some day get the "port to plains" designation.

Montford clarified his position this week, saying there should be a controlled access divided highway between Lubbock, Lamesa and Midland/Odessa "just like the present Lubbock-Lamesa-Big Spring divided highway on U.S. 87." He wrote that there is "no funding or authorization by the federal government to extend I-27."

Montford said he has requested MONTFORD page 2-A

Egyptian explosives may have started fire on hijacked jet

VALLETTA, Malta (AP) — The deadly fire that swept through the hijacked Egyptair jet during a rescue operation was probably set off by explosives used by Egyptian commandos, not by the terrorists' grenades, a source close to the Maltese investigation said.

Egyptian troops blasted their way into the Boeing 737 Sunday evening, and 58 people died. The hijackers had shot five people before the assault, killing one, an American woman.

Autopsies completed Thursday showed that burns and smoke inhalation killed 44 people, explosions killed eight and seven were shot dead, including three hijackers and Scarlett Marie Rogenkamp, 38, of Oceanside, Calif., sources said. Many of the people killed by fire or fumes also had wounds from gunshots or grenade shrapnel, one source said.

Government spokesman Paul Mifsud said autopsy reports indicated "most of the passengers died from smoke inhalation," but would not comment on the cause of the fire aboard the jet.

He declined to provide details of the autopsies until magistrates complete their investigation of the hijacking, which began Saturday when terrorists commandeered the jet soon after it left Athens, Greece, for Cairo, Egypt.

The Maltese and Egyptian governments have said the fire was started by the grenades hurled by the hijackers. Egypt said they were phosphorus grenades, which generate intense heat.

The commandos entered the cabin by blasting a hole in the cargo hold below the passenger compartment and blowing out three emergency exits over the wings.

"The explosion was apparently detonated under some of the passengers and killed them," said the source close to the investigation. He spoke on condition he not be identified because he said he was not authorized to brief journalists.

The fumes from the resulting fire killed many passengers, he said.

Although Maltese officials have publicly expressed support for the Egyptian raid, many privately voiced disappointment or anger.

"They wanted to kill the hijackers at all costs," one official said.

Some witnesses said the commandos made too much noise, probably warning the terrorists an assault was imminent.

"Where was the element of surprise?" the source said, noting that the commandos entered the plane through the rear cargo entrance EGYPTIAN page 2-A

Israel may let envoys talk to U.S. officials

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel may allow two diplomats recalled from the United States to return for questioning by U.S. officials investigating the case of a Navy analyst accused of spying for Israel, a government source said today.

Meanwhile, The New York Times reported today that an internal Israeli inquiry was said to have determined that Jonathan J. Pollard, 31, the American arrested on charges of selling classified documents to Israel, was an operative for a secretive Israeli counterterrorism bureau.

The government source, who spoke on condition of anonymity, told The Associated Press that the diplomats would only be allowed to return if they kept their diplomatic immunity, which would shield them from providing answers that could compromise Israeli security interests.

A final decision on whether to allow the questioning was expected to be made by Prime Minister Shimon Peres, Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir and Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin. They have been meeting daily on the controversy.

Several Israeli newspapers said today that FBI agents would be allowed to talk with the diplomats in Israel.

Israeli sources have identified the two diplomats as Yosef Yagur, the science attaché at the consulate-general in New York, and Ilan Ravid, deputy science attaché in the Washington embassy.

Israel radio said Peres has sent a message to Secretary of State George P. Shultz expressing Israel's willingness to return whatever documents it can find that may have been bought from Pollard.

An Israeli official denied that Peres sent a letter but refused to rule out any other communication between the premier and U.S. officials on the subject.

"We said from the beginning we are ready to cooperate with the United States, and I won't go into whether there have been diplomatic exchanges between us and the United States," the Israeli official said.

"We are aware of the seriousness of the entire matter and that's why we are having a thorough examination of it," said the official.

He refused to say when the investigation would be completed but said it would be "reported between the two governments and not publicly."

The New York Times, quoting a "highly placed Israeli source" who was not identified, said an internal Israeli investigation found that Pollard volunteered in 1984 to provide classified information, and that a senior Israeli official ap ISRAEL page 8-A

Wreck takes traffic death toll in state for week-end to nine

By The Associated Press A head-on collision near Austin that killed four people has increased Texas' Thanksgiving holiday traffic death toll to at least 9, authorities said today.

The two vehicles collided on U.S. 290 in Travis County at 11:35 p.m. Thursday night after one crossed into the path of the other, a Texas Department of Public Safety dispatcher said.

Leslie Fred Kuhn, 44, and Jean Baker Kuhn, 44, both of Denton, and two unidentified passengers in their car died at the scene, the dispatcher said. The driver of the car that caused the collision was hospitalized in serious condition, he said.

At least five other people have been killed, three of them from out of state, in Texas traffic accidents as the four-day Thanksgiving holiday weekend began. The unofficial reporting period ends at midnight Sunday.

A Sinton woman died Thursday night when her car struck a cow that had wandered onto a farm road, according to state troopers.

The woman, identified Angela Cruiss, 21, was rushed to a Corpus Christi hospital where she was pronounced dead on arrival. The accident occurred about 6:30 p.m. three miles east of Sinton, troopers said.

Earlier Thursday, an Arkansas woman was killed when she was struck by a car as she walked on an East Texas interstate highway.

Tammy Otwell Battles, 25, of Little Rock, was killed as she was walking in the eastbound lane of Interstate 30, eight miles west of New Boston, said Vickie Gregg, a police communications operator for the Department of Public Safety in Dallas.

She said state troopers were investigating the 4:15 a.m. Thursday accident.

Richard J. Brouillette, 28, of Longview, was killed when the car he was riding in swerved and crashed, said Longview policeman Lloyd Phillips.

Phillips said the driver of the car, Carla Blackmon, apparently was blinded by bright lights, making her lose control of the car.

Twain festival leaves town in shambles

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP) — The seven-month festival celebrating the 150th anniversary of Mark Twain's birth may have given Hannibal a big boost as a tourist attraction, but it left the city's government in a shambles.

With the celebration in its final week, the Mississippi River community of 19,000 people is without a mayor and three of its 12 city councilmen, victims of a bitter squabble caused at least in part by the festival.

"The sesquicentennial celebration has done remarkably well under adverse conditions," former Mayor John Lyng, a member of the festival commission, said in a recent interview. "Out of a budget that eventually reached $850,000, we are only about $20,000 to $25,000 short and we should make that up with collections, sales of inventory and pledges by the end of the month."

Even before the event opened last spring, it ran into problems. A $1.5 million budget was proposed, but that was trimmed to just over $560,000 as citizens and corporate contributors had second thoughts.

Organizers had envisioned a long series of concerts by top groups, permanent additions to the historic downtown district and even an international balloon race.

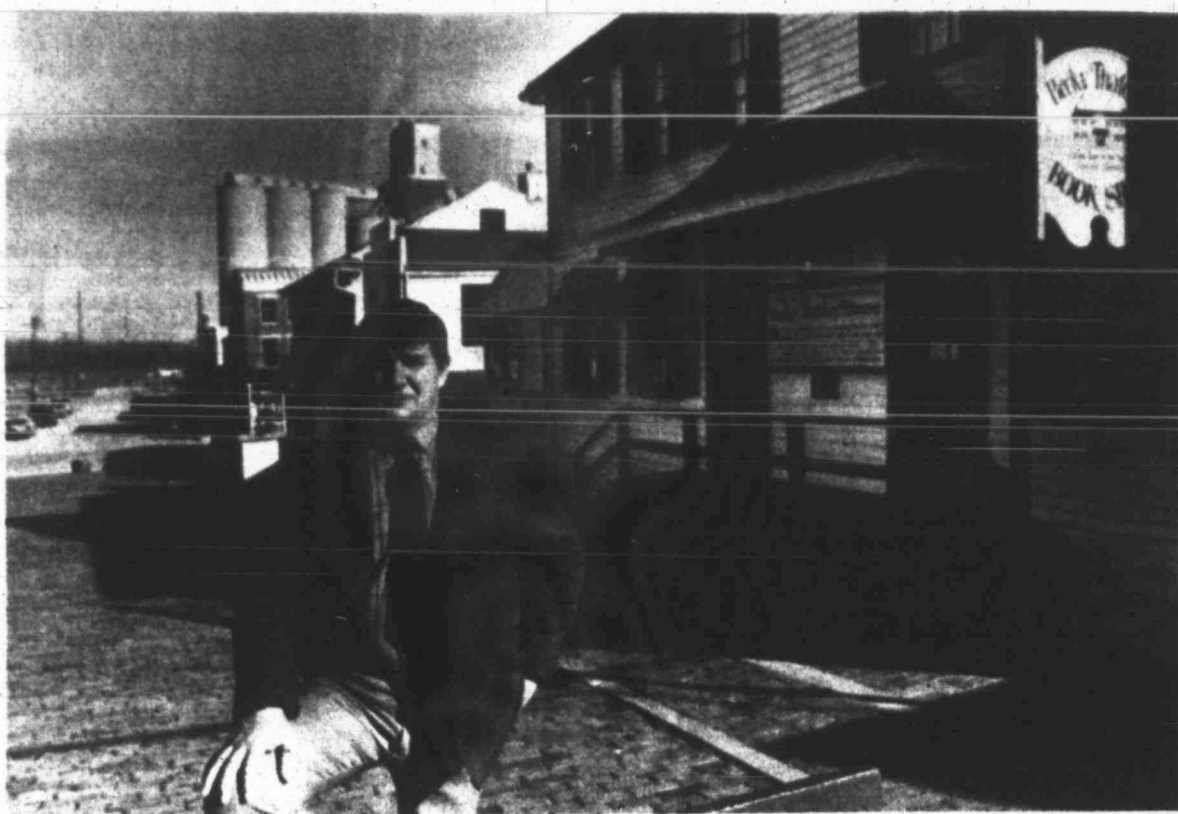

Some of it worked, some of it didn't. An amphitheater was built on the southern edge of the town's waterfront, but a theme stage planned for the northern part didn't materialize. The balloon race also failed to come off and some of the musical events were canceled.

Meanwhile, Lyng was defeated soundly as he sought re-election. Most attribute the loss to anti-festival sentiment.

However, Lyng's successor, Richard Cerretti, resigned Nov. 12 after being threatened with impeachment. Three councilmen accused him of misusing city equipment and labor and illegally taping telephone conversations.

The three councilmen, Wayne Pafford, John Hamilton and James Dexheimer, also resigned. All four men said they would seek re-election for their offices in a special election in February.

Twain would have loved it.

Hannibal, Mo., Mayor Pro Tem Paul Arnett Jr. stands along the town's historic district near the Becky Thatcher Book Shop. Hannibal's seven-month festival celebrating the 150th anniversary of Mark Twain's birthday ends this week.

"When politics enter into municipal government," he once wrote, "nothing resulting therefrom in the way of crimes and infamies is then incredible. It actually enables us to accept and believe the impossible."

Twain — Samuel L. Clemens — was born on Nov. 30, 1835 in nearby Florida, Mo., but grew up in Hannibal, which was the setting for "Adventures of Tom Sawyer" and "Adventures of Huckleberry Finn," whose publication 100 years ago was recalled on some souvenir T-shirts.

Cerretti had made the festival an issue in his mayoral campaign, saying there were better ways to spend city funds for economic development.

"I wasn't critical of the festival itself," Cerretti said Wednesday. "I was critical of the planners. We spent huge sums of money and got nothing for it."

"We got monthly financial statements, but they were not accurate or complete. They still aren't. My personal feeling is that they're trying to hide something. Or maybe they don't have a book-keeper, I don't know."

"In any case, the festival failed in its objective to fill our hotels and restaurants with paying customers."

Although none of the impeachment charges against Cerretti involved the festival, his criticism of the festival had provoked resentment within the council.

The council voted last month to suspend the mayor with pay pending an impeachment hearing, which was canceled after the resignations were announced.

"Basically, I think the sesquicentennial was the first point of disagreement between the mayor and the council," said Lyng. "It wasn't the biggest, but it was the first."

Local feelings were not soothed either, by an article in the Aug. 6 Wall Street Journal, which city officials said "did a hatchet job" on the town and the festival by listing all of its negative aspects.

"The reporter found and quoted lots of critics of the sesquicentennial, but apparently wasn't as zealous in his pursuit of the other side of the story," wrote Gil Stuenkel, managing editor of the Hannibal Courier-Post.

Through it all, however, the festival drew several hundred thousand visitors over the summer and nearly paid for itself.

"We'll know after Nov. 30," the official closing, said the Rev. Peter C. Hauser, who quit the sesquicentennial commission in the spring because "there were waves threatening to sink the ship." He's changed his mind, however.

Failures

Donald Jay, executive director of the Texas High School Coaches Association, said the 18 percent figure "seems to be very conservative."

"We received reports indicating that some junior varsity and freshman teams lost almost half of their players," he said.

While a majority of the reporting districts held their losses to under 20 percent, figures from several districts showed that their football teams lost in excess of 40 percent of their players.

For example, the Livingston school district in East Texas lost more than 43 percent of its football roster.

"It hit us real hard, both in our football and our band programs," said Livingston Superintendent E.F. Lewis, who ordered after school tutorial classes twice a week for failing students after the impact of the no pass, no play rule became apparent.

Lewis said the six-week suspension period is too long.

"I think two or three weeks at a maximum would get the message across to students," he said. "The rule needs to be changed."

However, the O'Donnell school district, about 40 miles south of Lubbock, reported no casualties to any extracurricular activity from the rule.

"We came in with the attitude that even though we thought it was a bad rule, we were going to accept it for now and find ways to overcome it," said Superintendent Dale Read. "We started off from day one to head off any problems with it."

Weekly grade checks were instituted and tutoring sessions were required for students who were in danger of failing, Read said.

But Read also said the rule is too harsh.

"Six weeks is a long time for a 15-year-old youngster," he said. "I think you could get their attention back as much with one or two weeks."

Maltese authorities say one hijacker survived and identified himself as Omar Marzouki, 20, a Tunisian. He is under guard at St. Luke's hospital in Valletta.

Egypt says the hijackers were renegade Palestinians financed by Libya and acting under its orders, a claim that Libya denies.

The Maltese government said the only demand the hijackers made was that the plane be refueled, and they did not reveal their next destination. Officials in Egypt have said the terrorists intended to fly to Libya or Tunisia.

Prime Minister Carmelo Mifsud Bonnici, who had negotiated with the hijackers and finally approved the commando assault, was horrified as he watched from the control tower.

He "screamed over and over, 'Get the people out!'" the source said.

Under terms of the 12-year contract with Wichita Falls Energy Co., customers of Dallas Power and Light, Texas Electric Service Co. and Texas Power and Light will receive 75,000 kilowatts of energy from a cogeneration facility to be built near Wichita Falls.

Customers will begin receiving the electricity in 1987.

Construction on the facility will begin in December, the release said.

Board reviews expenditures

COLORADO CITY — The Mitchell County Hospital Board Tuesday night reviewed expenditures from the first month of the new fiscal year.

October revenues exceeded the hospital budget by $14,500 while expenditures peaked at $10,000 above the set monthly amount.

Hospital administrator Ray Mason said, "I'd like to say we're going to do it every month, but I don't think it's going to be consistent. We're going to see the ups and downs that we have this past year."

Mason reported a total loss of about $82,000 for the month of October and also said $500,000 in tax collection has been transferred in the month. "We payed off the note that we had going into the new year and that's been taken care of."

Raymond Webb, purchasing agent for the hospital, resigned after nine years and already has been replaced by Dorothy Starr, who comes to this position from another department in the hospital.

Finally, the board is working on a possible change regarding voting sites in Mitchell County. "Three sites currently exist," said Mason, "the school administration building, the Civic center, and the courthouse. I'd like for all the voting to be done at the Civic Center so that all three could be consolidated and make the voting process easier."

If passed, the loan site would be utilized in all elections, but must also be approved by the Civil Rights Division in Washington.

CHICAGO — A fire broke out in the engine of a DC-9 jet bound for Milwaukee from O'Hare International Airport, forcing the evacuation of 45 people, but no injuries were reported, officials said.

LAKE WORTH — An explosion tentatively blamed on natural gas rocked a mobile home park, killing three people and injuring two others, authorities say.

The Thursday night fire is believed to have been caused by a natural gas explosion in a floor furnace in a home in the Fort Worth-area mobile home park, city Fire Department spokesman Butch Hall said.

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. — A Texas family of three en route to a Thanksgiving dinner with relatives was killed when their light plane smashed into fog-shrouded foothills, authorities said.

FAA issues directive

WASHINGTON — In the wake of last weekend's Egyptair hijacking, the Federal Aviation Administration has ordered U.S. airlines to begin making security background checks on all new employees who have access to restricted areas.

FAA spokesman Fred Farrar said Wednesday the directive applies only to U.S. airports, not foreign airports over which the FAA has no direct jurisdiction.

Commuter rail traffic paralyzes in Tokyo

TOKYO (AP) — Saboteurs firebombed a train station and sliced railroad communications cables today, paralyzing commuter rail lines in the Tokyo area and creating chaos for up to 10 million travelers, officials said.

Acts of vandalism were reported at the same time in six other parts of the country, including the cities of Osaka, Kyoto and Hiroshima, but with less serious impact on rail service, the government-run Japan National Railways and National Police Agency reported.

No injuries were reported in any of the incidents. The national police said 48 people, including a leader of a radical leftist group, were arrested in connection with the sabotage.

Tadashi Ito, a spokesman for the Tokyo Metropolitan Police Department, said the wrecking apparently was done in sympathy with striking railway employees. But a union official denied any link.

The employees are opposed to plans to make the deficit-ridden government train system private and drastically cut its workforce.

Later, police searched the headquarters of both the union and the leftist group, the Chukaku-ha, or Middle Core Faction, but did not say if anything was found. National Police Agency officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said signal and communications lines were cut in 34 locations near Tokyo and Osaka. About 4 million commuters each morning use the Japan National Railways lines serving Tokyo, a city of 12 million.

Kyodo News Service quoted Transport Minister Tokuo Yamashita as saying that over the course of the day the disruptions affected about 10 million people in the Tokyo area and about 830,000 in Osaka.

However, railway spokesman Takashi Miyashiro estimated the number affected at 6.5 million people. Some service was restored on all affected lines in time for the evening rush hour, he said.

Another railway spokesman, Mikio Takahashi, said the sabotage began at 3:20 a.m., when underground cables were cut in the Tokyo area.

About the same time, three railway signal boxes in Osaka were burned, Takahashi said. The other incidents occurred in the cities of Hiroshima and Kyoto, and in Chiba, Saitama and Kanagawa prefectures adjoining Tokyo.

Altogether, officials were forced to halt service on 22 commuter lines, including 20 in the Tokyo area.

One vandalism attack in Hiroshima caused delays of up to 2½ hours for high-speed "bullet" trains between Tokyo and the southwestern main island of Kyushu.

Opinion

Just look around, U.S. is still tops

As U.S. competitiveness in world markets declines and we worry about economic decay, our living standards remain the world's highest — far higher than those of the competitor we most fear: Japan. While the difference in per capita income between the two nations is no longer enormous, the U.S. is still comfortably ahead: $14,093 vs. $9,717, and the average of U.S. hourly wage last year was $9.17 vs. Japan's $6.06.

These numbers reflect living conditions in Japan that most Americans wouldn't tolerate. The average Japanese home is only half as large as the American (and twice the price), only 34 percent of Japan's communities have modern sewer systems, and central heating, modern kitchen appliances, even washers and dryers, are relatively rare. This doesn't mean Japan is poor. Most Japanese families have televisions, modern sound systems and cars.

Yet while nearly a fifth of Americans live near or below the poverty level, 50.9 percent of Japanese dwell in housing of less than Japan's average size (818 square feet), 11.4 percent in homes smaller than 473 square feet, the equivalent of a tiny American apartment. Of course, geography and culture are as important as money in determining how people live. Many young Japanese still wear shorts in winter to learn to live with the cold, so central heating is less prized by them. Scarce land and high density force Japanese homes to be small; privacy is more important to individualistic Americans than to group-oriented Japanese.

But money still matters. The Japanese may be savers, not spenders, but they still simply have less money than Americans. We may have our slums, but it will be a long time yet before this country ceases to be the most comfortable place to live in on earth.

Political column cuts too personally

One of the heaviest burdens of high office, according to Washington mythology, is the scrutiny of one's private affairs. Idealistic men and women run for office or accept appointments out of a dedication to public service, only to find the press investigating things that have nothing to do with official performance — finances, marital problems, unsavory friends. Occasionally we are warned that this incessant prying is liable to drive all the good people out of government.

A bizarre feature of the New York Times' daily Washington page is a good example of this nasty genre. It's called "Not-So-Vital Statistics on..." and provides a wealth of intimate and potentially embarrassing personal details about the mighty, none of which have the slightest bearing on how they carry out their sacred duties.

You would expect Cabinet officers and members of Congress to resent this assault on their privacy. You would be wrong. All the published information is cheerfully provided by the subjects themselves.

You want to know Tip O'Neill's weight? He says 265 pounds. How about Jesse Helms' favorite drink? A vanilla milkshake. Ronald Reagan's waist measurement? 36 inches. Education Secretary William Bennett's favorite time of day? Early morning. No question is too personal to be answered.

Several prominent officials have been divulged whether they wear pajamas to bed. The President and his former aide, Michael Deaver, both said they do. Education Secretary William Bennett, Assistant Defense Secretary Richard Perle and Ambassador to Germany Richard Burt claimed to do without. Those readers who indulge erotic fantasies about Sen. Robert Byrd or former United Nations Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick, alas, were left in the dark about their bedroom attire.

Certain patterns emerge in the answers. Those respondents who provide information about their daily routines profess to work brutally long hours. Jeane Kirkpatrick reported regular 11-hour workdays. James Watt boasted of habitually working from 7:30 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Then-Secretary of State Alexander Haig topped them all, claiming to work no less than 13 hours a day, six days a week, plus working "at home on Sundays." In Washington, what counts is not what you achieve, but how late you have to stay to achieve it.

Other types of bragging abound. Kirkpatrick listed as one of her favorite books The Federalist Papers. James Watt ostentatiously described his religion as "practicing Christian." Burt noted that he drives a BMW and a "classic Morgan Plus 4."

As usual, the greatest revelations are inadvertent. Anyone who gives his favorite food as "fresh beluga caviar" and his hat size as "60 (European)," as Perle did, has smeared himself more thoroughly than the most malicious reporter ever could. Nothing could summarize Tip O'Neill's defects better than what he counted as his favorite memory: his first glimpse of the Capitol. It may explain something about his foreign policy views that Al Haig listed his favorite actress as Shirley Temple.

Absurd though the feature may be, it also ends up being a little pathetic. What their answers to these fatuous inquiries reveal is that a lot of the people in public office are so vain that they see nothing wrong with volunteering all sorts of intimate facts about themselves. Anyone with a minimal sense of dignity would toss the offending Times reporter out the nearest window.

All this brings to mind Judge Richard Posner's remark that what most people want when they demand privacy is not to be left alone, but to be allowed "to manipulate the world around them by selective disclosure of facts about themselves."

The politician hasn't been born who objects to being portrayed in print as sober churchgoer, loving spouse and generous friend. And apparently most officeholders, given the chance to be the sole subject of a New York Times feature, will obediently answer outrageously personal questions. What Washington's powerful want to keep secret is not what's private, but what they fear is incriminating.

Who'll take the first step in cutting federal deficit?

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — The big question mark that hangs over America is whether taxes should be increased or spending cut to stabilize the federal government's shaky finances.

If the spending spiral isn't stopped, most economists agree, the American people can anticipate higher inflation, higher interest rates and higher unemployment.

The amounts may be astronomical, but the problem is simple: Next year, the federal apparatus will spend nearly $1 trillion but will collect less than $800 billion in taxes. The $200 billion difference will be added to the staggering national debt, which members of Congress would rather leave for their successors to worry about.

The bottom line is obvious: The federal government is spending too much or taxing too little. Either the government should make some drastic spending cuts or raise more taxes.

Those who benefit from government spending, not surprisingly, want to raise more revenue. This has always been the response of the special interests, which don't want to lose their privileges, and the federal administrators, who don't want to reduce their budgets. They never offer to cut their extravaganzas.

Whenever the public shows signs of alarm over spending excesses, the special pleaders call for more taxes. They usually get their tax increase, which relieves the financial pressure. But the federal administrators never use the new taxes to reduce the national debt; they merely find new ways to spend the money.

The government has always spent all the taxes it has collected, plus as much extra as it could get away with. The result has been skyrocketing taxes, which somehow never catch up with the deficit. During our 38 years on the Washington Merry-Go-Round, the median family's income has grown nearly eight times. But the taxes this average family pays on its income has shot up more than 246 times.

The constant quest for more taxes has had a deadening effect on the economy. Multiplying taxes tend to stifle whatever is taxed. Government subsidies, in contrast, tend to increase whatever is subsidized. So the government taxes work, savings and production; it subsidizes non-work, welfare and consumption.

What America needs, in our opinion, is not more taxation but less spending. Waste-buster J. Peter Grace has found 2,478 ways to increase federal revenues without increasing taxes. He would merely cut waste, inefficiency and misspending.

You can find out whether your representative supports the campaign against government waste by asking him whether he has signed up with the Grace Caucus.

DIPLOMATIC DIGEST: Can Syria succeed in Lebanon where Israel and the United States failed so tragically? The Syrians are certainly trying to exercise the influence over fragmented Lebanon that eluded the Israelis and the Americans. Our intelligence sources have been clocking the movements of the leaders of the myriad Lebanese factions to and from Damascus, where they plead their case in hopes of obtaining Syrian support. But it's a tricky business for the Syrians. Though a "Syrian connection" is regarded as a plus in the Byzantine world of Lebanese politics, dependence on aid from Damascus is also resented. The Syrians are trying to make sure that no single Lebanese faction gets too strong.

WATCH ON THE PENTAGON: Rep. Jim Bates, D-Calif., has had it up to here with the Naval Investigative Service and wants it eliminated. What first ticked the congress off was what he called the "inadequate investigation by NIS of the gun-smuggling charges involving Vice Adm. Joseph Metcalf III."

But what really took the rag off'n the bush, as Snuffy Smith would say, was the Navy sleuths' failure to uncover the years of espionage by the Walker family, which might still be going on if John Walker's ex-wife hadn't gone to the FBI. Bates has introduced legislation that would give the Naval Investigative Service's functions to other agencies, which he hopes will do a better job.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: Will the continuing and embarrassing discoveries of U.S. complicity in Nazi war criminals' escape from justice ever end? First there was Klaus Barbie, the SS "Butcher of Lyon." Documentary evidence showed that American counterintelligence people employed him, then helped him cheat the hangman by arranging his flight to South America. Then there was evidence, which the Justice Department's Nazi hunters are still evaluating, that the infamous Dr. Josef Mengele was allowed to slip through our fingers. Now Justice is investigating whether Alois Brunner, an ex-Nazi now living in Syria, had American help in fleeing Germany after the war.

Reagan toughed it out at the summit

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON — President Reagan emerged from his summit meeting in Geneva mildly triumphant, having demonstrated that at 74 years of age he can go head-to-head with the leader of the Soviet Union for more than five hours without giving anything away.

He held firm on "Star Wars," argued the U.S. case against Soviet military occupation of Afghanistan and made a plea for improvement in human rights.

Did he accomplish anything beyond making his positions clear to Mikhail S. Gorbachev?

The jury is still out on human rights. By refusing to discuss the subject despite an intensive post-summit public relations campaign, Reagan administration officials have left the impression there may be something going on.

There is no reason to believe, however, that Reagan and Gorbachev made a dent in the nuclear weapons race. Nor was there a meeting of the minds on Afghanistan, Nicaragua or other regional disputes.

This distresses at least one analyst, Helmut Sonnenfeldt of the Brookings Institution, who says that is the most dangerous aspect of U.S.-Soviet relations and involves real wars.

The Geneva summit was a get-acquainted session, an ice-breaker after more than six years of rhetoric, impasse and tensions. The fact that it took place, involving an American president who had castigated the Soviet Union as "an evil empire," may make the world a slightly safer place.

But what about the next summit, in Washington in June, and the one that will follow, in Moscow in the summer of 1987?

Will Reagan or Gorbachev be under pressures to produce results?

There are as many opinions, it seems, as there are Kremlinologists.

But in some ways a consensus is already forming, based largely on the economic situations in the United States and the Soviet Union.

Most experts agree that Gorbachev's first priority is to rebuild the Soviet economy. He may be able to maintain military programs while also retooling aging industries and even improving living standards. But competing with Star Wars could be an impossible burden.

His concerns that the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative will put weapons in space, opening a new and dangerous frontier, may be genuine. There is no doubt, however, he wants desperately to spare the Soviet economy of the burden of competing with Star Wars. So he will keep hammering away at the American anti-missile program.

Reagan faces economic pressures, too. Congress is eager to reduce the deficit and will take a hard look at defense spending in the seven months before the next summit meeting.

"In a gradually worsening economic situation," says Jonathan Haslam of the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies, "there will be increasing pressure to reduce programs without an immediate payoff."

That could mean chipping away at Star Wars and its projected budget of $26 billion for research over five years on an anti-missile shield. Congress may accomplish what Gorbachev could not in Geneva: slowing down Reagan's pet program.

And the Soviet leader would not have to agree at the next summit to cutbacks in strategic nuclear weapons to achieve his goal on Star Wars.

Apart from the U.S. and Soviet economies, there are other pressures building on Reagan and Gorbachev. America's allies in Western Europe are not entirely sold on Star Wars. They are likely to be urging concessions on Reagan. In Moscow, meanwhile, the Communist Party Congress meeting in February may influence Gorbachev's agenda in ways not yet foreseen.

In any event, says Blair Ruble, who directs the Soviet studies program at the Social Science Research Council in New York, "There will be pressure to do more at the next summit than they did in Geneva. There will be political pressure on both leaders to do something more dramatic. What that will be won't be known until we get closer."

Misha Tsypkin, an expert on Soviet affairs at the Heritage Foundation, says in the months ahead "the essential thing for the United States is not to get a summitry syndrome, that you have to sign something, an important document, at every summit."

Barry Schweid has covered diplomacy and arms control for The Associated Press since 1973.

Dear Abby

Home for the holidays: How long is too long?

DEAR ABBY: Christmas will soon be here, and my annual visit to my parents is upcoming. (We live 600 miles apart.) I always look forward to my visits home, and I know they feel the same.

But by the time my stay is over, they seem relieved to see me and my three children leave. (The kids are fairly well-behaved.)

Abby, how long do you think is appropriate for a visit of this kind? And how many days would be overdoing it?

THEIR LOVING DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: No one answer can apply to everyone. Much would depend on one's interpretation of "fairly well-behaved," as well as the tolerance level of the grandparents. Since you sense that the length of your stay may be "overdoing it," try cutting your visit a little shorter next time, and see if your parents try to talk you into staying longer.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the young mother who wanted to warn people against letting their children run down the sidewalk with glass baby bottles. (Hers fell and had to have stitches in her chest.)

Any child who is old enough to run is too old to be drinking milk from a bottle!

Bottles should be used for feeding infants — not as pacifiers to keep a child quiet or entertained. Doctors will tell you so.

SHARON IN PRINEVILLE, ORE.

DEAR SHARON: Several did.

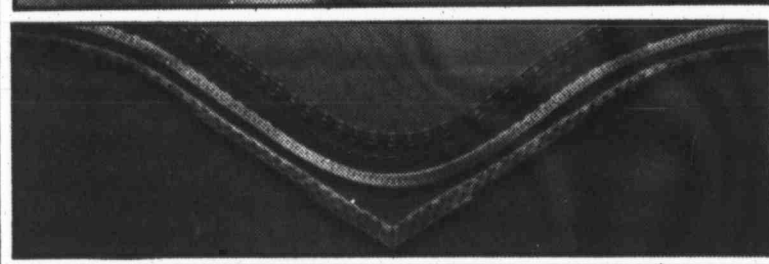

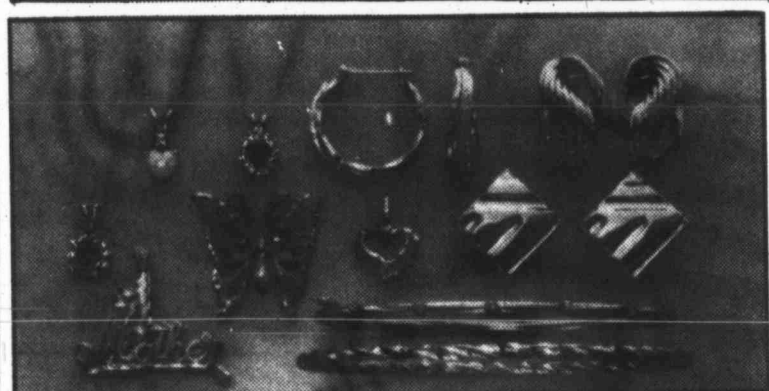

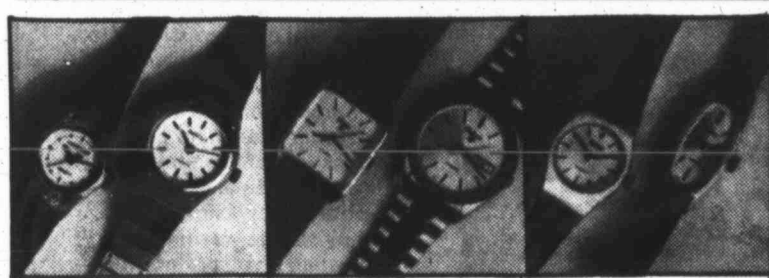

DEAR ABBY: I think I have hit upon a great idea to sharply reduce the number of unplanned teen-age pregnancies.

Change the euphemism for sexual intercourse from "making love" to "making babies." Maybe then the romantic fantasies young girls have would be replaced with reality, and they wouldn't take such foolish chances.

Dr. Donohue

Facial hair growth may be result of imbalance of hormones

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I hope you can offer some insight into my problem so I can either seek help or make the best of it. I am a female in my 30s. I am growing facial hair. In addition, I am hearing from others that I am taking on masculine facial features. I don't know if this is something abnormal or a natural process in some women as they get older. I really am badly in need of some advice. —A.S.

The appearance of hair in places where it normally shouldn't be is the result of imbalance of hormones. Even a slight dominance of male over female hormones can cause it.

Now usually this imbalance isn't serious and the woman solves the cosmetic embarrassment with simple steps involving removal by electrolysis, shaving, or epilation with special chemical preparations.

I cannot tell from your letter exactly what you mean by other masculinization symptoms. But when you mention that, you prompt other thoughts and make me suggest further investigation.

When simple hair growth occurs with other changes, such as deepening voices, hair growth on thighs and chest, thinning of scalp hair at the temples and crown, and lessening of menstruation, more serious imbalance is likely. While women do make masculinizing male hormone, they should not be making it to the extent of producing such changes.

Behind such hormone imbalance may lurk such events as a tumor of the adrenal glands, a major source of the male hormones. That prospect alone should be sufficient reason for an examination. Sometimes ovary disorders can be part of this general picture.

I don't want you worrying yourself silly over all these medical ghosts I am reluctantly raising. I feel comfortable in doing that because of the knowledge that all these problems can be treated successfully if present. Promise me that you will have that examination.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: A question regarding calcium, and I know you are getting sick of them. I understand that the lower your stomach acid the greater difficulty you have absorbing calcium. What does this mean for people who do have low stomach acid? — Mrs. T.Z.

It's true that you have to have stomach acid to absorb calcium carbonate, the most common form found in calcium tablets. And as we grow older the acid production does wane. But don't worry. You get very good absorption, even in the face of diminished acid production, if you take calcium carbonate with meals. And of course you get similar effect in the food calcium included in those meals.

Do you have problem hair? Dr. Donohue's booklet, "Good Health for Your Hair," shows how proper treatment can result in healthier, more attractive hair. To get a copy, write Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

parently associated with the office of the prime minister's adviser on terrorism oversaw his activities.

Raphael Eytan, an adviser on counterterrorism, was named Tuesday by two Israeli newspapers as Pollard's recruiter, but he was quoted by the daily Maariv as saying "my name is in the news by mistake."

The Times reported that its source said Pollard was never asked to provide information directly related to U.S. national security or weapons systems.

The Israeli probe found that the counterterrorism official sought U.S. intelligence concerning Arab military capabilities, the Times said. The newspaper said the unit Pollard allegedly supplied information to looks into all forms of terrorism against Israel.

When asked to comment on the main points in The New York Times' story, State Department spokeswoman Sondra McCarty said, "I have nothing on any of them." Because of the time difference, Israeli officials were not immediately available for comment.

The Times said independent corroboration for the investigation's results could not be obtained and some findings could serve the interests of government and political leaders by emphasizing they were not aware of the operation.

Peres on Thursday refused to discuss the Pollard case during an interview on Israel television, but said U.S.-Israeli relations "are very close."

A Foreign Ministry official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said Israel was "fully cooperating" with the United States on the case. U.S. officials in Washington have claimed the opposite.

According to a source, who spoke on condition he not be identified by name or position, Pollard was in touch with Ravid just before the FBI arrested Pollard on Nov. 21.

Pollard's wife, Ann Henderson-Pollard, was arrested shortly afterward and accused of illegal possession of secret documents.

According to the Israeli source, both Yagur and Ravid worked under the direction of Menachem Tasa, science counselor at the embassy.

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Texas A&M's first Southwest Conference game this season turned the Aggies' season around, but it was the first quarter of Thursday's Thanksgiving Day massacre of Texas 42-10 that put them in the Cotton Bowl.

The 15th-ranked Aggies stopped No. 18 Texas four times inside their 4-yard line in the first quarter, held on for a 7-0 halftime lead and they blew the Longhorns away with a 21-point third quarter explosion over a 3:36 time span.

The victory gave the Aggies the outright Southwest Conference championship and the host berth in the Cotton Bowl for the first time since the 1968 event.

"Stopping them on the goal line was the turning point in the game," Aggie Coach Jackie Sherrill said. "When you go for it and don't make it, it takes something out of you. For this time and this program, it's probably the biggest victory I've had."

The Aggies, 9-2, will meet the Auburn Tigers in the New Year's Day Classic and the Longhorns will play Air Force in the Bluebonnet Bowl on New Year's Eve afternoon.

The Aggies beat Texas Tech 28-27 when the Red Raiders failed to convert a two-point conversion in the final seconds.

"Texas Tech was the turning point for our season," said Aggie quarterback Kevin Murray, who threw three touchdown passes. "We brought it all together at Lubbock."

Murray also said stopping the fourth down plunge by Texas' Ed-win Simmons in the first quarter was a key to the victory.

"Anytime you hold a team like Texas on the goal line it gives you a lift," Murray said. "This place was going wild."

A Kyle Field record 77,607 witnessed the Aggie victory and Sherrill thinks most of the Aggie fans in the crowd will follow their team to Dallas.

"We're trying to get the Cotton Bowl to put in 20,000 extra season," Sherrill said. "With us and (Auburn running back) Bo Jackson, they won't have any trouble selling tickets."

Murray threw touchdown passes of 10 yards to Jeff Nelson and went to freshman flanker Rod Harris for scoring shots of 9 and 32 yards.

Roger Vick had a pair of 11-yard touchdown runs and Ira Valentine scored the final Aggie touchdown on a 3-yard run with 4:10 left in the game.

The Aggies burst to a 28-0 lead before the Longhorns could break the shut out with a career long 57-yard field goal by Jeff Ward and Todd Dodge's 10-yard touchdown pass to Russell Hays in the fourth quarter.

"We played a good football team tonight and they had the best team tonight," Texas Coach Fred Akers said. "We tried to be at our best but we weren't."

The Longhorns, despite their somber mood, accepted the Bluebonnet Bowl invitation.

"Sure, we're let down," he said. "Like I told the Bluebonnet Bowl people, we wanted to go to the Cotton Bowl and we are disappointed."

"But we'll get over this. This team has too much character not to swallow disappointment."

Cowboys roast Cardinals

IRVING (AP) — Danny White's four touchdown passes, including two to wide receiver Tony Hill, carved up the Dallas Cowboys' favorite Thanksgiving Day turkeys, the St. Louis Cardinals.

Thursday's 35-17 victory put Dallas one-half game ahead of the New York Giants in the National Conference East.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry said it was one of the Cowboys' better offensive performances.

"We had a good game," he said. "The Cardinals are always tough for us. They played us a tough first half."

"We got better as the game went on," said Landry. "Danny looked great particularly in the second half. Danny's last two games have been excellent."

Landry said he pulled some trick plays out of his playbook for the Cardinals.

"We were scrambling up to the last minute trying to get some plays into the game the Cardinals hadn't seen before," Landry said.

"I feel good because we are in position to win the NFC East now if we play good the rest of the way."

The Giants come to Texas

Stadium for a showdown Dec. 10.

"I was really worried at first," Landry said. "The Cardinals looked really good. Then they kind of sagged in the second half. That happens to a team that's not in the race."

Cardinal Coach Jim Hanifan said, "We gave it a good shot. I thought the way we played the first half, we were ready."

He credited White with sharp performance.

"White was the difference," Hanifan said. "He found the open receiver almost every time."

White now has seven touchdown passes in the last two games.

"I've got a lot of confidence going now," he said. "I think our offense is finally coming together."

Dallas is 9-4 after the Thanksgiving Day triumph while the Cardinals fell to 4-9. The New York Giants, 8-4, can regain a share of the NFC East lead by defeating Cleveland on Sunday.

The Cowboys, who lost to the Cardinals 21-10 on Nov. 4, used White's unerring marksmanship and a Hill pass on a trick play to subdue the Cardinals and clinch a National Football League-record 20th consecutive winning season.

White's fourth scoring pass was a 53-yarder to Hill in the third period. On Dallas' next possession, Hill threw a pass for only the second time in his career. On a reverse, Hill hit tight end Doug Cosbie with a 42-yard shot to set up Tony Dorset's three-yard scoring run.

White's three touchdown passes in the first half carried 18 yards to Mike Renfro, 19 yards to Cosbie and 16 yards to Hill.

Hill's catch with 1:08 to play gave Dallas a 21-17 halftime lead in a pass-happy offensive show.

Dallas' lead at the time was precarious because Cardinal quarterback Neil Lomax rattled the Cowboy secondary with ease. Lomax had a 5-yard scoring pass to Roy Green and set up Stump Mitchell's 2-yard scoring run and Novo Bojovic's 38-yard field goal with his sharpshooting.

Dallas is 14-3-1 in Thanksgiving Day games, including a 4-0 record against the Cardinals.

White hit 14 of 26 passes for 235 yards while Lomax completed 28 of 43 for 319 yards.

The Cowboys got a quick gift from Mitchell, who fumbled to Dallas' Eugene Lockhart at the Cardinal 33. A holding call on Jeff Griffin on a third-and-20 incomplete pass gave Dallas another first down at the Cardinal 17. Two plays later, White found Renfro for an 18-yard touchdown pass.

The Cards charged 71 yards in 11 plays to tie the score, with the touchdown coming on Mitchell's 2-yard run. Lomax completed a 14-yard pass to Green to keep the drive alive on third-and-seven from the Dallas 26.

Dallas' John Dutton recovered another Mitchell fumble at the Dallas 1-yard line to kill a St. Louis threat, but Novo Bojovic put the Cards ahead with a 38-yard field goal.

Cosbie made a diving catch of White's 19-yard pass behind St. Louis linebacker Niko Noga to give Dallas a 14-10 lead.

The undaunted Cardinals took advantage of cornerback Everson Walls' holding penalty on third down at the Dallas 19 to lead again 17-14 on Lomax's five-yard pass to Green. A 13-yard scoring pass to J.T. Smith positioned the Cardinals for the touchdown.

Dallas Cowboys wide receiver Mike Renfro (82) skips into the end zone on an 18-yard pass play against the St. Louis Cardinals.

Lions feast on NY Jets, 31-20

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The Lions again found there is no place like home this year. And though the New York Jets were not invited for a holiday dinner, Detroit roasted them.

Quarterback Eric Hipple and defensive tackle William Gay turned New York's visit into an ambush as the Lions surprised the Jets with a 31-20 National Football League victory Thursday.

Hipple fired four touchdown passes — three to Leonard Thompson — and the Detroit defense, led by Gay, recorded a season-high seven sacks as the Lions improved their record to 7-6, 6-0 in the Silverdome. The Jets remained atop the AFC East with a 9-4 record, one-half game ahead of Miami and New England, who could tie them with wins on Sunday.

Detroit's running netted only 62 yards, but it served its purpose, giving Hipple time to throw when he wanted to.

"As a team, we did not play well," said a dejected Jets Coach Joe Walton, whose best running back, Freeman McNeil, missed the game with an ankle injury.

"I don't think any of our team was into the game that much. They took advantage of our mistakes and made the most of them."

Hipple and Thompson teamed up for TD pass plays of 25, 8 and 44 yards. Hipple and Mark Nichols worked a 38-yard TD pass play against the stunned Jets, who seemed flat after their emotional 16-13 overtime victory over New England last Sunday.

"I think the Jets are Super Bowl caliber," Hipple said. "I don't know if they were today, but the talent is there."

"Not having McNeil had to hurt them. Also, it's very hard for a team to come into the Silverdome. There's so much noise. I know it bothers them."

Gay turned in three sacks in the first half, causing one fumble and recovering another. The Lions turned both mistakes into scores, charging to a 17-3 halftime lead which they stretched to 24-3 early in the second half.

"We got out there and really got aggressive," Gay said. "We had to jump on them."

"Up and down, up and down. That's the way this game goes. Now we've still got a chance to make the playoffs."

The Jets' first touchdown came on a 35-yard pass from Ken O'Brien to Al Toon. Pat Leahy kicked field goals of 29 and 27 yards for the Jets. O'Brien hit Mickey Shuler with a 8-yard TD strike with 56 seconds to play.

Hipple finished with 19 completions in 39 attempts for 269 yards. O'Brien was 23 of 36 for 281 yards, many of them when the game was out of reach.

O'Brien, who led New York to three victories with 85 completions for 1,235 yards, was named AFC offensive player. Marion, who had three interceptions and a fumble recovery for New England, earned the division's defensive honors.

Craig compiled 560 yards from scrimmage during the month to earn NFC offensive honors and Wilson won the defensive award for his play on the Bears' team that hasn't allowed a touchdown for 13 quarters.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Ex-Vanderbilt strength coach E.J. "Doc" Kreis and a former pharmacist received one year of unsupervised probation for selling steroids to a Clemson University coach without a prescription.

Kreis and former pharmacist Melvin "Woody" Wilson pleaded guilty Nov. 18 to a misdemeanor charge of selling the steroid dianabol to Sam Colson, then the strength coach at Clemson University in Clemson, S.C.

McEnroe advances tourney

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — John McEnroe, who scuffled with reporters and photographers on Tuesday, beat South African Danie Visser 6-4, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3 in the second round of the $1.5 million Australian Open tennis championships at Kooyong.

McEnroe, the No. 2 seed, was given a first-round bye, while Visser on Thursday eked out a 4-6, 7-6, 6-0, 2-6, 8-6 first-round victory over Texan Bill Scanlon.

Former NBA star gets degree 16 years later

HOUSTON (AP) — Elvin Hayes, a former National Basketball Association All-Star, says getting a degree 16 years after he dropped out of college will be "the most important thing I've done in my whole life."

"I'm not just a basketball player. I'm a total person, and finishing my education has brought balance to my life," the 39-year-old Hayes says.

Next month, Hayes will have earned a degree in speech and recreation.

"It's the most important thing I've done in my whole life," he says.

But the transition from professional basketball player to one of the oldest students on campus was painful at times, Hayes recalls.

For years, Hayes says, he was accustomed to reading only the sports pages of newspapers. Suddenly, he was required to read heavily and write essays for difficult senior-level courses.

At one time, he says, he doubted he'd be able to complete his degree program.

Perseverance paid off. Hayes' grades steadily improved and he made the dean's list last summer.

One day, Hayes says, he hopes to get a college coaching job.

In 1968, during his senior year, Hayes dropped out of the University of Houston to heed the call of professional basketball.

By the time he played his last game with the Houston Rockets in April 1984, the 6-foot-9 Hayes was the league's No. 3 career scorer and rebounder. He missed only nine games during his 16-year career and was All-Pro three times.

But Hayes says he was too ashamed to tell anyone he didn't have a college degree. "It was always a thorn in my side," he says.

Finally, in September 1984, Hayes says he "ran out of excuses" and re-enrolled at UH-University Park. And he quickly encouraged younger UH athletes to get their degrees and scolded them when they missed classes.

"The athlete must have something to prepare him for life after sports," Hayes told the Houston Chronicle in a story published Thursday. "Universities and colleges must go further than just keeping athletes eligible. Our goal must be to graduate people."

Hayes admits he used basketball as a way to leave his hometown, Rayville, La.

"Sports is good. For a lot of kids, it's a way out of the ghetto. But for every one kid who makes it in sports, 12 others get sucked down the tube of life," he says.

Hayes says he rarely talks to his four children about sports, but constantly urges them to get a well-rounded education.

His oldest son, Elvin Jr., entered St. Francis University in Pennsylvania this fall, where he is doing well academically and playing basketball as recreation, the elder Hayes says proudly.

Third World suffers shortage of Bibles

NEW YORK (AP) — Bible translators printed 25 million copies of Scripture in African and Asian languages last year but said that was still not enough to keep up with the explosive growth of Christianity in the developing world.

In Africa, some converts are buying the Bible on the black market, said John Dendor-Samuel, who spent 22 years in Africa helping translate the Bible into African tongues. The Christian population there is growing by "leaps and bounds," according to the World Council of Churches.

"At least in one case, I know a person paid the equivalent of 40 British pounds (about $55) for a copy of the Bible," said Dendor-Samuel, vice president of the Summer Institute of Linguistics in Dallas.

The Institute is one of several church organizations in the United States dedicated to translating the Bible from the original Hebrew and Greek texts into other languages.

The institute has some 2,000 linguists and 3,500 supporting personnel currently working on translating the Bible into 200 African languages, Dendor-Samuel said.

John Erickson of the United Bible Societies, an umbrella organization of 100 Bible societies around the world, said his group supplied 7.7 million Bibles, both full texts and separate New Testaments, last year to Christians in countries from Papua New Guinea and Indonesia to India.

The biggest challenge may come in China, where authorities have recently permitted the publication of Bibles and other Christian literature for the first time since the communist takeover in 1949.

"We could have printed and distributed twice as many Bibles worldwide last year, if we had sufficient resources — more money and manpower," Erickson said. "We spent $26 million set aside as our 1984 budget, but we needed another $7 million just to carry out all specific programs."

The Bible societies face financial difficulties partly because churches and Bible groups in many developing countries cannot pay for the Bibles, "even though they are offered at highly subsidized prices," Erickson said.

The United Bible Societies donated millions of Bibles last year in half a dozen African countries, he said. Each Bible costs $3 to $4 to print and distribute.

In Africa, the financial difficulty is compounded by translating into languages that do not have alphabets.

"The translators have to go into a tribal village in Africa and live there with the natives four or five years before starting to devise phonetic signs and establishing grammatical rules," said Dendor-Samuel. "Only then can we think about translating the Bible into that language."

"Even if there was a written language, translating the Bible is not an easy task because of cultural differences and difficulties in finding corresponding words or ideas to convey the meaning of the Scripture," said John Lindskoog of Wycliffe Bible Translators in Huntington Beach, Calif.

For example, Lindskoog said, a phrase like "take Jesus into your heart" might have to be translated "receive Jesus in your liver" for an African tribe.

Translators often encounter similar difficulties with native Indians in South America, the aborigines of Australia and the people in Papua New Guinea, Lindskoog said.

Wycliffe's research shows 5,445 languages in use around the world. So far, translators have prepared Bibles in 235 languages. Work is proceeding in 750 languages, Lindskoog said.

"We have a long way to go to complete our work, making the world's best-selling book accessible to all people," Lindskoog said.

"We've done a good job in helping the famine-stricken people in Africa with food and other material aid," he said. "But we should also try to help hundreds of thousands of people who are turning to Christianity for spiritual salvation by providing them with the Bible they can read."

Christmas season comes with Advent

By KIM KIRKHAM
Religion Editor

It's the Christmas time of the year. People are decorating trees, making shopping lists, wrapping packages and lighting candles for Advent.

Advent begins Sunday and continues for four Sundays until Christmas Eve.

In the Christian Church, Advent is a period of preparation for the celebration of the birth of Christ at Christmas, and also of preparation for the second coming of Christ, said Flynn Long, pastor of First Presbyterian Church.

The word Advent is from the Latin word adventus, which means "coming."

Advent has "a pre-Christmas feel," said Long. It "is supposed to be sort of a waiting, watching period. Christmas is supposed to be a celebration."

"Different churches have different ways of observing Advent," Long said.

Many churches have use an Advent wreath which has five candles. One candle is lit each of the four Sunday with the fifth being lit on Christmas.

"The church usually concentrates on the meanings of Christ coming, both his coming at Bethlehem and his coming in glory, coming again," Long said.

Cloths, table runners and altar decorations are usually decorated in a purple or violet color during Advent, he said. The colors for Christmas and Easter are white.

Advent also is the beginning of the Church Year, said Long. The date when the season was first observed is uncertain.

"During the fourth century, probably in Spain or Southern France, the church began to develop a season of celebration for the 12 days of Christmas," Long said.

The Church Year has two major holy days — Easter and Christmas, said Long. "The rest of the Christian year kind of revolves around them."

Each holiday has a period of preparation before it — Lent at Easter and Advent at Christmas.

Powers to give Advent sermon

An Advent sermon, "The Three Invasions," will be presented by Carl Powers, pastor of First Church of the Nazarene, at the church's 10:50 a.m. Sunday service.

The rejoice choir and soloist Cecilia Ward will add musical responses to the service as the congregation begins "A December to Remember."

Kinderchurch for preschoolers and Children's Church for those in grades one through five convene in Kid's Korner during the morning service.

Sunday School classes for all age groups precede the worship service, beginning at 9:45 a.m.

A "Celebration of Praise" begins at 6 p.m. Sunday. The audience participates in praise, prayer and testimonies. Powers will deliver a sermon as part of the service.

Religion roundup

WASHINGTON (AP) — A blind student, denied state and federal vocational rehabilitation aid because he is studying for the ministry, contends the action violates his free exercise of religion.

The case, involving Larry Witters, a student at the non-denominational Inland Empire School of the Bible in Seattle, is pending before the U.S. Supreme Court. Witters was denied aid on grounds it would advance religion, a position upheld by Washington's supreme court.

"Arguing Witters' case, attorney Michael P. Farris said there was 'no justification to single out ministerial students for exclusion' from vocational aid. He said they 'do not have to be quarantined' from society to avoid establishing religion."

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Although Pope John Paul II wants efforts halted to get women admitted to the Roman Catholic priesthood, hundreds of American women still seek that role, says the Women's Ordination Conference.

Its coordinator, Ruth Fitzpatrick, says interest in women's ordination has not dwindled among the 1,800 members of the conference since its founding in 1977. Its annual meeting here, planned only for women seeking ordination, attracted about 200 nuns and lay women.

A Chicago archdiocesan report of meetings with parish lay leaders recently found most of them would rather have female priests and married priests than not enough priests.

NEW YORK (AP) — Most people have become "habitual non-readers," says a Scripture specialist, a condition that has been added to illiteracy as an obstacle in regard to the Bible.

Unless it is "heard through the ears, the great majority of people in every country will not receive it," says the Rev. Tom Houston, president of World Vision and former head the British and Foreign Bible Society.

He told the 1985 annual meeting of the American Bible Society.

"It is not just that the majority of people in the Third World are not yet literate or able to read. It is that the majority of people in our Western countries like the United States are habitual non-readers."

CHICAGO (AP) — A poll of 480 grass-roots advisers to a committee revising the United Methodist hymnal found that most of them oppose any attempts to change traditional language about God to sexually inclusive or feminine forms.

However, the lay and clergy "consultants" spread across the country indicated willingness to change exclusive nouns and pronouns about people to inclusive terms.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — "I'll give them communion, but they can't become members of the church," a California pastor said at a special consultation on pastoral counseling of couples living together outside marriage.

The minister's view was among opinions reflecting confusion about the issue at a conference arranged by the American Lutheran Church for pastors and specialists in theology, psychology, sociology and demographics of cohabiting couples.

None of them was found willing to participate, despite unsuccessful efforts to involve them. Jerie Smith, administrator of the Twin Cities Single Adult Ministry Project, said, "The church seems to be the one place where they feel they cannot be open."
