Arab Troops Turn Back Israeli Planes

AMMAN (UPI)—Arab troops, Israeli warplanes and fought an hour-long artillery duel across the border.

Council To Open Bids Tuesday On Data Processing

City commissioners will be busy Tuesday opening bids on several important items to be purchased for municipal operation.

Topping the list will be bids on a data process system to update City Hall's accounting system.

Bids also will be taken on sprinkler systems for city parks, the cost of which will be borne by the Gray-Pampa Foundation through its recent $100,000 contribution.

Other bid openings will include purchase of Bunker uniforms for the city fire department, removal of junk cans, a street sweeper, two pickups and a tractor-mower.

Consideration will be given to the following agenda items:

Approval of a contract with City Atty. Bob Gordon for collection of delinquent taxes.

Amending an ordinance controlling parking on the northwest corner of Kingsmill and Gray Sts.

Approval of monthly bills and routine salary changes for January.

No Arab losses were reported in either incident but "it is believed the enemy suffered some" in the artillery duel late Friday 22 miles north of the Dead Sea, Jordanian spokesmen said.

Iraqi troops in Jordan said the Israeli warplanes appeared just before sunset Friday, apparently for an attack, but Iraqi anti-aircraft fire "forced them to flee." The announcement did not say where the incident occurred or how many planes were involved.

Rioting Reported

The reports climaxed a week in which Middle East tempers flared with Arab reports of Israeli air raids and Israeli denials, rioting among Arabs in Israeli-occupied areas, and new big power peace moves.

In Cairo, Egyptian officials Saturday welcomed President Nixon's promise that the United States will take new peace initiatives in the Middle East. Dr. Mohamed Hassan El Zayyat, an Egyptian government spokesman, said if Nixon's pledge was to adopt a more even-handed Arab-Israeli policy, Washington "would really return to shouldering its responsibilities."

No Comment On Notes

He refused to disclose the contents of notes received by President Gamal Abdel Nasser from Nixon and Soviet Communist Chief Leonid Brezhnev, saying only they were in reply (See TROOPS, Page 3).

Nixon Fires Off Directives To Stem Obscenity

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI)

—President Nixon fired off a series of directives to government departments from his Florida White House Saturday, including a call for stepped-up federal efforts to stem the flow of obscene materials through the mail to juveniles.

After an evening of concentrated foreign policy discussions Friday at his home on this semi-tropical island adjacent to Miami, Nixon did some early morning paper work before setting out on a leisurely houseboat ride on Biscayne Bay with his old friend and next-door neighbor, Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo.

The extent to which Nixon has confidence in Rebozo as a closemouthed confidant was demonstrated when Rebozo, a local real estate and banking figure, sat in on a dinner table discussion Friday with the President, Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, assistant to the President for international matters. They talked about Nixon's forthcoming European trip, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the tense situation in the Middle East.

Subsequent foreign policy discussions were anticipated later Saturday and sometime Sunday, Rogers and Kissinger remained ashore while the President cruised on Rebozo's 30-foot, yellow shallow-draft houseboat, The Coccolobo. Nixon and Rebozo were accompanied only by secret service agents.

Coast Guard patrol craft kept private boats at a distance. Before beginning his midday cruise, Nixon signed a fourth series of directives to departments and agencies.

His obscenity directive went to Postmaster General Winton M. Blount, asking him to explore and report on "ways to counter the use of the mails for the purpose of sending obscene materials to juveniles."

Other directives included: An order to presidential science adviser, Dr. Lee DuBridge, to look into "possible cost reductions in specified portions of our space program."

Nixon also wanted a study on (See NIXON, Page 3)

Ky Flies Home, May Not Return For Nixon's Visit

His Departure Causes Surprise in Diplomats

By RAY F. HERNDON

PARIS (UPI)—South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky flew home to Saigon from the peace talks Saturday and said he did not know if he would be back to see President Nixon when he visits Paris at the end of February.

Ky is the supervisor of the South Vietnamese negotiating team, and the possibility of his absence during Nixon's visit Feb. 28 - March 2 caused surprise in some diplomatic quarters.

Ky's departure coincided with high-level reports that American and North Vietnamese negotiators already have established contacts that might lead to full-fledged secret talks similar to those that ended in an agreement on the total halt of U.S. bombing raids last fall.

Should Help Talks
Nixon's visit is expected to give a fresh impetus to the

The usually effusive vice president looked somber and slightly tired. He shrugged off questions on the results of the talks confirming merely that the Communists have so far ignored all his calls for direct talks with him.

Henry Cabot Lodge, the American delegation leader, strengthened the belief that the talks were moving rapidly into a full-scale secret bargaining when he refused to discuss in public reports of preliminary contacts with Hanoi delegates.

Secret Talks Coming
Well-informed observers said Saturday the National Liberation Front (NLF) was ready to engage in direct negotiations with the Americans and also start full-scale private talks with them on various matters.

An NLF spokesman limited himself to saying that "any question can be raised by the interested parties at the conference table."

Meanwhile, rumors swept Paris that the NLF might free one or several American prisoners in a goodwill gesture during the Tet holidays. But the NLF spokesman said he had no information on that matter.

Asunsolo and other witnesses in the two countries indicated the suspected meteor thundered to earth in the almost impassable terrain of the Sierra Madre Mountains south of Chihuahua and north of Durango, Mexico.

"It was the brightest light since Haley's Comet in 1908," said Asunsolo, editor of the newspaper El Heraldito. He said he felt the impact when the (See FIREBALL, Page 3)

AUSTIN (UPI)—The lopsided work schedule of the legislative branch of state government, which has lawmakers rushing through the bulk of legislation in the last days of biannual sessions, is one reason Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes is insisting on rules reform.

In the first four weeks of the current session, the legislature has passed exactly one bill.

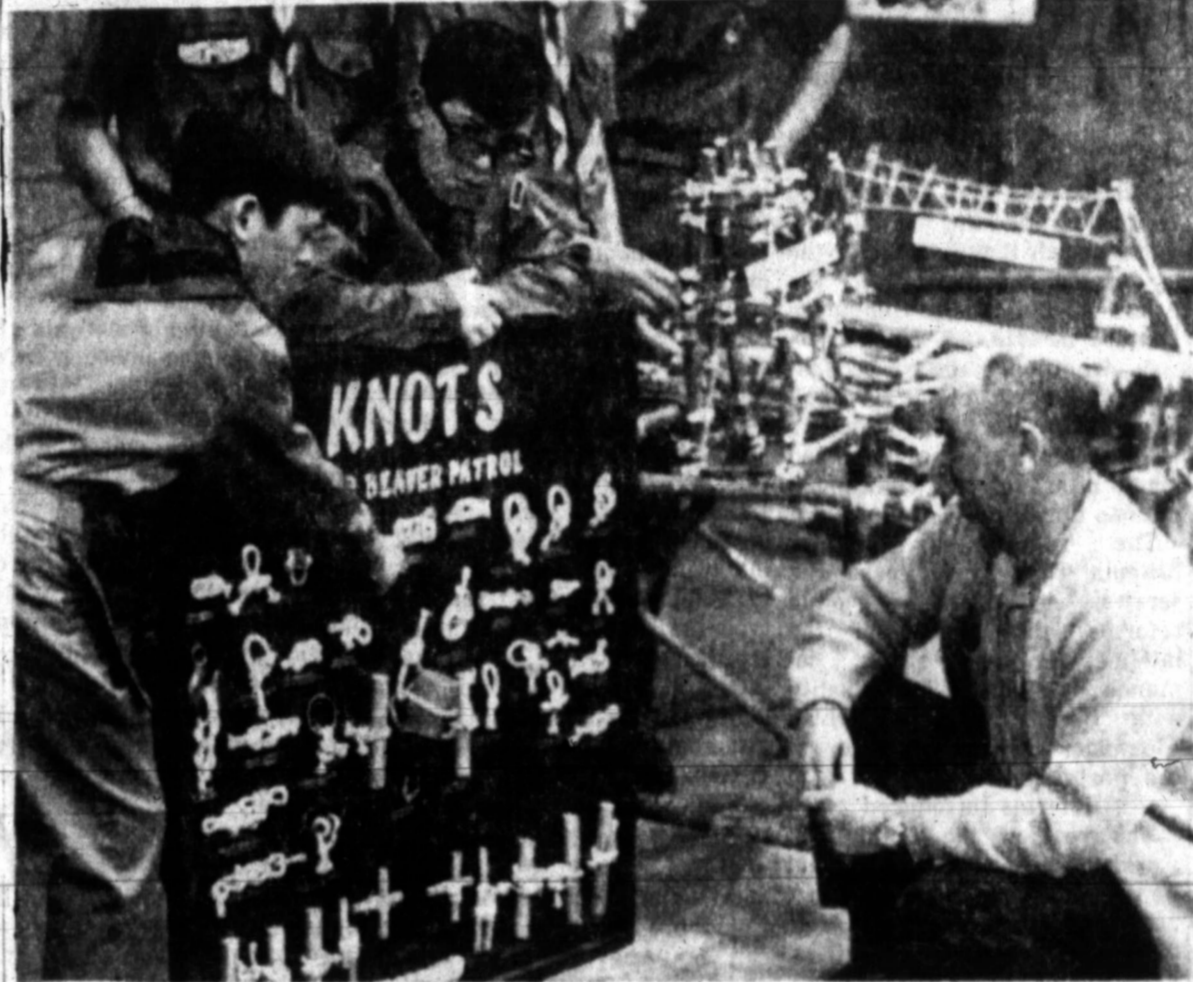

It is an apparent repeat of the 1967 session of the Texas Legislature which passed 527 bills in the last four weeks, 64 per cent of all legislation enacted that session.

Speaker Gus F. Mutscher, who is less enthusiastic about rules reforms, said he is attempting to alleviate the last minute crunch by getting his committees to work sooner, particularly the appropriations committee.

Will Not Rush
But the appropriations chairman, Rep. W. S. Healy of Paducah, said "we're not going to rush it up."

The legislature starts slow and finishes fast partly because some legislators like it that way. When the June 2 adjournment date approaches, legislators will work far into the night and act on dozens of major bills.

Conference committees frequently delay their reports until the final hours or days; then with time running out, the rest (See BARNES, Page 3)

Security Forces Foil Attempts On National Police Headquarters

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese security forces Saturday reported arresting two Viet Cong suicide squads and foiling a plot to blow up national police headquarters and a runway of Saigon's Tan Son Nhut air base.

In war action, Viet Cong gunners shot down three U.S. helicopters and a jet fighter-bomber, killing eight Americans and wounding 30. Eight Viet South-Korean soldiers also were killed in the helicopter crashes.

New terror attacks were reported as the Tet, or lunar new year, holiday approached. (See POLICE, Page 3)

Administrators Seek Best Sex Education

By WANDA MAE HUFF
News Staff Writer

Ever since Eve ate the apple and offered it to Adam, parents have worried how to teach their children "the facts of life."

In Pampa schools, teachers and school administrators plan to teach sex education in separate classes for boys and girls, and to stress "the process of growing into young ladies and gentlemen."

"Controversy has been raging lately about a group called the Sex Education Information Council of the United States and the objectionable material this group supplies for sex education of school children," Mrs. O. C. Penn, R.N., school nurse, said.

"We have learned the nature of SEICUS material is to destroy the morals of youth and to keep them obsessed with sex by using pornographic literature disguised as school textbooks," Dr. James F. Malone, school superintendent here, said.

"We are positively not going to use this material in any form in Pampa schools. Any change in the present program will be initiated by the school board, the administration and the director of school nursing services, but we are making no plans to change the existing

Donald Wright Named Outstanding Farmer

Donald J. Wright, Dimmitt, was named the Outstanding Young Farmer of Texas for the year 1968 by the Texas Jaycees. The announcement was made official at Saturday's banquet, hosted by the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Second place winner was Curtis A. Graf, Vernon. Dean P. Mikeska, Temple, was in third place, and Richard Wayne Winters placed fourth. Wright will represent Texas at the national finale in April, conducted by U.S. Jaycees.

The four were selected from a roster of 28 young farmers, each outstanding in his field.

Dolph Briscoe, Uvalde farmer, business man and banker, himself a multiple winner of "outstanding" achievement honors, was speaker of the evening, congratulating both the winners and the Pampa Jaycees for their success.

"Young people of America today want opportunity," Briscoe said. "A few years ago it seemed they were most intent upon security; they wanted to be sure of their economic status before they were willing to start to earn it."

But the situation has changed in the past few years, Briscoe went on. Agriculture today in America is a success story such as few other nations can comprehend, the speaker noted. It takes 50 per cent of the population of Russia to provide the agricultural products that 10 per cent of Americans supply, he said.

Union Oil Co. officials, drillers of the well, said they would accelerate their efforts to clean up the estimated 235,000 gallons of oil that has poured into the Pacific since Jan. 28.

Union Oil President Fred Hartley said, "In our opinion, the well has been plugged. As anticipated, minor residual (natural) gas is continuing to work its way to the surface. For added insurance, the hole will be filled with cement to the surface."

Special crews sealed the leak from a fissure in the ocean floor early Saturday after pumping tons of "mud," as the cement is called, into the well six miles offshore.

Some 450 to 500 men spread straw on the oil on beaches and in harbors to absorb the black, acrid-smelling goo. Working from skiffs, the men then gathered the oil-filled straw for burning. Union plans to corral oil with booms and suck it aboard barges.

Patches of oil were reported as far south as Point Mugu, about 40 miles south of here. The Santa Barbara harbormaster said little additional oil has been washed into the harbor since earlier this week.

Look Alikes Cause Confusion

An unidentified Pampa woman probably thought she was Public Enemy No. 1 for a while Saturday morning and was slightly embarrassed, also.

Floyd G. Vaughn, 308 Lowry, walked out of Citizens Bank and Trust Saturday morning and found that his car was missing.

Vaughn, who had only been in the bank about 15 minutes, immediately called police and told them his white-over-gold Pontiac was missing.

Police located the vehicle about 30 minutes later in downtown Pampa. A woman was sitting in it.

Officer Jim Woods asked the woman what she was doing in the car. She looked around and, horrified, discovered she'd gotten in the wrong vehicle at the bank.

The woman's own car looks like Vaughn's vehicle. After Vaughn heard the woman's story of woe, he didn't press charges.

Despite The Clamor, Russia Rules Czechoslovakia

By ALINE MOSBY
VIENNA (UPI)—Not a single Soviet film has shown in a Prague theater since the Aug. 21, 1968, Soviet bloc invasion of Czechoslovakia. No Soviet music graces the Czech radio. Young men set fire to themselves in despair over the continuing Russian occupation. That's in Czechoslovakia itself. The rest of the world already is busy sweeping the Czechoslovak upheaval under the rug in order to get on with the business of East-West coexistence and avoid nuclear holocaust.

While the Czechoslovaks resent their invaders, they also bitterly swallow the truth that in the world order today the gestures for the victim could only be feeble.

Some diplomats did not show up to eat caviar at Soviet receptions in Bulgaria. Some Soviet concert contracts were torn up in England. There were some angry, but only diplomatically angry, speeches in the United Nations. NATO met and issued stern warnings about the sovereignty of nations. Mourning Over

Despite hand wringing, France and the United States rapidly are forgiving Russia—or at least no longer seriously scolding her—for subduing Czechoslovak reforms. Now that a decent period of mourning is nearly over, both sides are returning to the road of mourning East-West coexistence. The Soviets, for example, are eager to discuss nuclear arms limitation as has already been made official by Moscow's proposal on President Nixon's inauguration day last month that American-Soviet talks on the subject begin promptly.

The desire on both sides for East-West detente is why the Russians accomplished their intervention in Czechoslovakia without Western nations lifting a finger, and why Western diplomats have resumed sipping champagne at Soviet embassies. The satellite nations who assisted in the invasion also are attempting to resume bridge building.

Internally, a Stalinist-like repression has washed over East Germany and Poland. The press throughout the bloc thunders about the dangers of "revisionism," but in relations with the West only East Germany sends out the icy blast of the cold war.

Snubs Unnoticed

Hungary and Bulgaria stress the line that "events" in Czechoslovakia did not and should not influence relations with Western countries. The first Hilton Hotel in a Communist country is sprouting in Budapest. Minor snubs from Western diplomats to the government in Sofia went unnoticed. All of the bloc nations are pursuing frevently trade with the West.

Why did the Soviet Union invade?

Despite 20 years under a Communist dictatorship, the Czechoslovaks had not rejected memories of the democracy under which they lived after the ashes of the Austro-Hungarian Empire in 1918.

A traditional coup brought communism to power in 1947. Then a strict terrorist regime reigned long after other Communist nations began to de-Stalinize.

The refusal of dictator Antonin Novotny to ease the screws or start economic reforms, the disgust of the intellectuals and strong demands by Slovaks for equality with Czechs brought Slovak Alexander Dubcek to power in the party Jan. 5, 1968.

Reforms Introduced

The rest of the Communist world looked on in astonishment as reforms were introduced that never had been dreamed of in other de-Stalinizing countries. Freedom of travel was granted. Banned Boy Scout uniforms were brought out of mothballs. The founders of the 1918 democracy, Eduard Benes and Thomas Masaryk, again were revered.

Dubcek even allowed a free press, never granted in any sensible dictatorship. Groups sprang up that appeared to be evolving into political parties. The government was told it no longer would be a stepchild of the Communist party.

If the Russians had not intervened, some political analysts think, Czechoslovakia would have become a more liberal Yugoslavia, say, but remaining in the Warsaw Pact.

But with dissent blossoming like dandelions, the Russians themselves believed Czechoslovakia was on its way to being not very "Communist," to be getting too far away from Russian-orientated socialism. The Russians said the Czechoslovak party would "lose its leading role," meaning Czechoslovakia could have wound up a multi-party Socialist state with Communists no longer the dictators and the nation no longer part of the Russian sphere.

Last Straw

Russian officials have said that the last straw was predictions in the Western press that Poland, East Germany or the Ukraine "colony" in the Soviet Union itself would explode next.

Situated in the heart of Europe, a non-orthodox Czechoslovakia, as the Kremlin saw it, could not only infect its neighbors but no longer would be a protective buffer state for Russia.

Dubcek's sin, then, was to insult Russian "real politik" that winds back through history to Stalin, Peter the Great and Ivan the Terrible. As K-mnologists often note, a main factor in foreign and domestic policy of the Moscow Communist regime—as with its predecessor—was firmness.

From the Soviet point of view, the invasion could be counted a qualified success, at least in the short run. The Soviets lost world prestige and in the long run may have kindled hatred and even more desire for change in Eastern Europe. But world opinion is known to be of little import to the Soviet Union.

As Soviet Communists themselves say, the 1956 crushing of Hungary and the 1953 crushing of revolt in East Germany were successes because in 1969 Hungary and East Germany remain tranquil members of the Communist bloc.

Soviets Survived

The Soviets survived the Hungarian invasion with their own regime still in power and all other members of the Russian "empire" including Czechoslovakia even more securely bound to Russia, at least for the time being.

Despite cries that the international Communist movement was split forever by the August invasion, the breach between the Soviets and disapproving French and Italian Communists was neatly papered over. The world Communist summit conference, a pet Russian project to reaffirm their rule over the international movement, was postponed by the invasion. Now it is safely back on the agenda for May.

Alone in the Soviet bloc, renegade Romania condemned the invasion. But party leader Nicolae Ceausescu not only quickly turned silent but promised to participate more actively in Warsaw Pact affairs and may agree to Warsaw Pact maneuvers in Romania this spring.

Some political analysts believe the August invasion was a political blunder because the Russians found no puppets to form a government and lost Czech friendship possibly forever. Nevertheless, the Red army accomplished a so far stable government that has carried out Soviet demands for "normalization," or a return to a more orthodox Communist regime.

Troops To Stay

The reformist leaders promise the repressions are "temporary" until reforms can be introduced. Soviet troops are expected to stay indefinitely.

Despite occasional demonstrations, usually by young people, the Czechs have managed a skillful but precarious balancing act in carrying out their obligations to the Kremlin, with the reformists still keeping the confidence of a large portion of the people. Liberals have been fired on Soviet orders but other progressives take their places. The press has been curtailed but still is more free than the press of other Communist nations.

Analysts see three possibilities for Czechoslovakia's future:—If serious strikes or riots break out, a Stalinist crackdown could come from the increasingly strict Dubcek regime, from a new government of more pro-Moscow conservatives or, if all else fails, from an outright Soviet military occupation government.

—A stalemate between Russians and Czechoslovaks with the latter lying low for a year and then quietly attempting relaxation.

—Complete democratization if a Dubcek type comes to power in Moscow.

UPI correspondent James O. Jackson in Prague thinks the second possibility is the most likely, although the others are not ruled out.

Terms Modified

If Czechoslovakia remains calm and if Vietnam continues to fade, peaceful East-West coexistence will increase but on Communist terms modified since the invasion.

The Kremlin sees the pre-crisis events in Czechoslovakia as reflecting economic and ideological interference by the West. As a result, Polish party leader Wladislaw Gomulka re-

November. "The two systems defined peaceful coexistence in what it affectionately calls its 'Socialist commonwealth,' sovereignty and frontiers mean nothing if ideology threatened.

However one may regard the whole question of coexistence, it may be well to quote the words of a Russian poet lashing out at Moscow's critics:

"What are you clamoring about? The disturbances? Leave all that alone—it is a quarrel of Slavs amongst themselves, an old domestic quarrel already weighted by fate... the family animosity is incomprehensible to you... You menace us with words—just try to act. There is room for your sons in the fields of Russia in the midst of graves... The poet was Pushkin writing during the 1831 uprising of Poles against Russians. In 1969, the new Russia still has its own convictions about what constitutes its "domestic" affairs which are no one else's business.

Shaw Trial Jury Takes Trip To Evidence Witness' Claim

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—The Clay L. Shaw conspiracy trial jury went into the French quarter Saturday to see whether a star state witness who complains of being hypnotized by his enemies could find an apartment where he said he heard Shaw plot to kill President John F. Kennedy.

After a false foray into a pink brick apartment house at 1323 Dauphine St., the witness—Charles I. Spiesel, 50—led the jury into a drab, balconied house at 906 Esplanade Ave., where Shaw lived in 1963.

Spiesel, a New York public accountant, testified Friday that in June, 1963, he heard Shaw and nine or 10 other men in an apartment house at Dauphine and Esplanade discuss ways of killing Kennedy and getting away.

Denies Knowing Oswald Shaw, 55, a retired New Orleans business man, is charged with plotting in 1963 with Lee Harvey Oswald and David W. Ferrie—both now dead—to assassinate Kennedy. Shaw denies even knowing Oswald and Ferrie but is on trial on criminal conspiracy charges.

Criminal Dist. Judge Edward A. Haggerty Jr., wearing a red sports jacket and mopping his brow with his handkerchief, said he would order Spiesel back on the witness stand to tell what success he had finding the apartment.

But it was understood that Spiesel led the jury into one apartment in which two girls had given a party Friday night. One was still in bed when Spiesel led the jury in about noon.

Spiesel, a natty little bald man, testified Friday that he introduced himself to Ferrie in a New Orleans saloon, one June night in 1963. He said Ferrie took him to a "brownish stone" building where he introduced him to Shaw.

He said Shaw, Ferrie and other guests at a party talked about killing Kennedy with a high-powered rifle and flying out the killer on an airplane.

Spiesel said a young "bearded, blond" man sitting next to him—he declined to identify the young man as Oswald—said he was "ready, willing and able to do the job."

Jurors Join Spiesel The defense insisted on having Spiesel lead the jurors to the scene Saturday to determine "whether this man knows what he is talking about."

Defense attorney F. Irvin Dymond cross-examined Spiesel extensively Saturday in an effort to break down his reliability as a witness. He concentrated heavily on Spiesel's hypnotic experiences and a $16 million suit he filed against the Pinkerton Detective Agency in New York.

Spiesel said he had been hypnotized against his will "possibly 50 or 60" times in period of 15 years. He said some people in New Orleans had tried to force him into hypnosis "from time to time" since 1961.

Dymond asked Spiesel how he knew when people were trying to force him into hypnosis.

"They try to catch my eye—catch my attention," he said. Dymond noted that Spiesel's New York suit claimed that certain people had given him hypnotic illusions.

Education

(Continued From Page 1) of the legislature level," she said. In junior high school, we use the film "It's Wonderful Being a Girl" because this film stresses communication between girls and their mothers and teaches them the processes of growing up are normal, natural and nothing to be shy of," Mrs. Penn said.

"Both films are shown to mothers and daughters at separate times. After the girls see the film, they are encouraged to talk to their mother about it. We hope these films help bring mothers and daughters closer, because one of the most important things is communication between parents and children," she said.

The film takes two junior high age girls in their everyday activities at home and school and explains how differences develop in growth and maturity. In home lives, pictured in the film, the mothers talk to their daughters and answer questions frankly and with out hesitation," Mrs. Penn said.

After the film, either the nurses or physical education teachers talk to the girls, explaining growing up is "more than knowing the processes of growth. It's learning how to look and act like a young lady, to sit, walk, and stand, with correct posture, to wear your clothes neatly and in good taste, to maintain good health practices, and to care for your skin, hair and complexion," she said.

As yet, the school nursing service does not have the right film for boys but plans to review one for eighth and ninth grade boys Feb. 28 at Carver Educational Services Center. Parents and others interested in how sex education is taught in Pampa are asked to see the film, Mrs. Penn said.

"Sex education for boys in Pampa is inadequate. As yet, we have no films which teach this properly, and have no organized classes either in junior high or high school. We are concerned about the right way to teach sex education for boys and are working to get a program started," she noted.

Cancer Directors To Attend Meet

Two directors of the Gray County Unit of the American Cancer Society, Texas Division, plan to attend the organization's state executive board and committee meeting in Austin on Feb. 11 and 12.

They are Mrs. Jack Foster and Mrs. Kermit Lawson, both of Pampa.

Mrs. Foster serves on the state service committee. Mrs. Lawson is a member of the state unit certification committee and the public education committee.

Barnes

(Continued From Page 1) of the legislature has no choice but to accept the conferees' decisions or scuttle the entire piece of legislation.

But the state constitution and the legislature's own rules also contribute.

The constitution required the legislature to convene Jan. 14, but did not permit the new governor and lieutenant governor to take office until Jan. 21, thus preventing the legislature from doing anything substantial during its first week.

The legislature lost another week waiting for Barnes and Mutscher to name committees, and another week waiting for those committees to get organized. Now it must wait another week or two for Gov. Preston Smith to make his budget recommendations.

"I would like to see pre-filing of bills and standing interim committees," Barnes said. "The workmen's compensation bill, for example, could have been filed before the session and we could have at least preliminary hearings on it."

"If we had committees based on seniority, with members assigned to committees permanently, the speaker and lieutenant governor would only have to assign the new members and the committees could get to work sooner," Barnes said.

"If we had annual sessions, the governor would only have to work on a one-year budget and he could get that ready a lot faster."

With these changes, Barnes said, "the legislature could act more quickly and could be better informed."

But prospects for these changes are dim. Annual sessions would require a constitutional amendment, and Smith is opposed to that.

Barnes won the approval of both houses two years ago to experiment with pre-filing of bills and standing committees based on seniority.

But he did not use the authority because of his move from the speakership to the lieutenant governor's office, and his successor Mutscher, abandoned the whole project.

Local Units Put Out Fire at Pump Station

Two Pampa fire units answered a fire about 6:50 a.m. Saturday at a Cities Service pump station four miles west of Pampa.

The blaze from the fire, which burned two pump houses, engines, a water pump and tank batteries, could be seen in the south part of Pampa.

Firemen were able to turn off some of the gas lines and were back in the station by 8:15 a.m.

And Another Thing

By RUTH LEWIS

My eyes blinked the other day when, in checking the list of physicians in the Pampa telephone directory, I came across "M. C. Overton, Jr."

M. C. Overton. What a set of memories the name brought. For Dr. M. C. Overton of Lubbock, father of the local physician, was my young son's first and only physician up to the youngster's 13th birthday.

The elder Dr. Overton, now deceased, was so much more than a pediatrician that, to young, inexperienced mothers, he took on the character of Father Confessor and something close to a saint. Dr. Overton never was too busy to listen, however trivial the mother's problem might turn out to be. And even his voice—slow, calm, reassuring—was like a benediction.

Many such telephone calls, perhaps, were an imposition on the patience of a busy man, but the doctor never gave indication of this fact. I suppose he thought, "After all, this might be one case where a really difficult situation exists; the least I can do is find out."

The Overton family, I have learned since coming here, is mainly concerned with medicine.

"We just don't know any better," the Pampa physician notes. For instance: Dr. M. C. Overton, Jr., is the father of a son, Marvin II, who is a neurosurgeon at Fort Worth. Another son, Todd H., who had thought to break the family chain, became a lawyer—but now is studying medicine.

Philip Overton, a brother, has a son, P. M. Overton, who is an orthopedic surgeon at Austin. Another brother, Robert W., studied medicine two years before becoming a TWA executive.

As for the M. C. Overton uncles, there was Dr. Bruce Overton, former textbook editor for The MacMillan Company and compiler of an abridged dictionary. There also was Dr. George B. Overton, professor of medicine in 22 schools in Europe and Mexico as well as the University of Iowa.

Many distinguished Texans trace ancestry back to Kentucky. The Overtons do just that.

Lubbock children brought up under Dr. Overton's care came to love and revere the man, as their parents did. He had a routine in checking a young patient for any ailment involving the throat or chest. "May I have a spoon?" he would ask. And, using the spoon as a tongue depressor, he would look as far down into the small throat as possible. Once the children were convinced that this process would not "hurt," they seemed to enjoy it. Or maybe it was just having the doctor there.

There came a time, as such times always come, when Dr. Overton's care was vital. Our 4-year-old, who had never yet had a so-called "childhood infection", came down with scarlet fever. I recall describing the symptoms to the doctor over the telephone. When I mentioned a rash on the chest, he said at once, "I'll see him; it might be scarlet fever."

Of course the word struck terror to the parents, but Dr. Overton's quick use of an anti-toxin and his directions for care had our young man on the mend much sooner than we had expected.

But there came a climax whose details are burned on my brain. Suddenly the child had a relapse. It was evening and I was alone with the boy, his father having been called out of town. Without warning, as it seemed, the youngster turned white, and his forehead broke out in huge drops of sweat. He was unresponsive to my voice and his hands and feet were cold.

I flew to the telephone. Dr. Overton was calm as usual until I described the symptoms when abruptly he told me, "I'm coming out."

He was at the door in minutes. By then the pallor had abated a little but the child still lay motionless, pale, his eyes closed. He was covered with all the blankets I could lay my hands on in a hurry and the situation would have seemed absurd if it had not been so close to tragedy.

Dr. Overton felt the pulse and nodded. "He's coming out of it," he said. Then the boy opened his eyes.

"It's just the old doctor come to see you," the physician said, gently smiling.

Then he turned to me. "We may have given him a little too much aspirin," he said. "He'll be all right now."

As I closed the door on the visitor and came back to the bedside, the young patient spoke for the first time.

"You didn't give him any spoon," he said reproachfully.

Copter Downed

Reporting details of the American aircraft losses, the U.S. command said two Army UH1 helicopters were downed Thursday near Phan Rang 165 miles northeast of Saigon.

In one crash, two South Koreans and an American were killed and an American was wounded. In the other, six South Koreans and an American were killed and two other U.S. crewmen were hurt.

Five Americans were killed and two wounded when a U.S. Marine CH43 helicopter, flying wounded troops from a battlefield near An Hoa near Da Nang, was hit Friday afternoon. Spokesmen said the chopper was not marked with red crosses.

Earlier Friday, a Marine F4 Phantom jet was shot down near An Hoa, killing one crewman. The other was wounded but parachuted to safety.

The civilians killed in the ambush near Saigon were employed by the U.S. army contractor. The jeep was moving through a rubber plantation area shortly after dawn Saturday when the attackers opened fire with automatic weapons.

Two of the unarmed civilians were killed trying to escape, and the third was seriously burned by a rocket propelled grenade fired at the jeep.

Fireball

"We ran up to the roof and saw a very big round ball moving from south to north," he said before the object crashed. "It was not red, but an intense blue-white."

Reports from such mountain towns as Parral, Santa Barbara de Oro and Valle Allende said the Mexican residents saw the fireball and felt it pound to earth. Asunsolo said the impact created "a tremendous tremor" that shook the ground for hundreds of miles so hard that "some windows broke."

Reports from Parral, in the northern state of Chihuahua, said residents tumbled from their beds, thinking it was an earthquake.

Panhandle Water District News

By FELIX W. RYALS

The Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District held its regular quarterly meeting on Monday of the past week.

The three Directors, who were elected on Jan. 14, were administered the Oath of Office by Carson County Judge Clarence Williams. The newly elected Directors will serve for a two-year period.

Officers elected by the District were as follows: President, Fred S. Vanderburg; Vice-President, Phil H. Hawkins; Secretary, Raymond C. Blodgett; Other Directors are James D. Skaggs and Stewart Purvines.

January 23, 1969 marked another milestone in the history of water for this area. On Jan. 23, 1956 the Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District, South of the Canadian River, in Texas, was voted into existence by the water-conscious people of the area.

Prior to 1955 very little was known, to the general water using public, about the underground water reservoir of the Panhandle area. Most of the meager information accumulated before 1955 was secured by graduate students from Texas A&M University during the summer vacation periods. The only other source of data was that compiled by oil and gas company geologists. This information was mainly for the use of the individual companies.

When the District was voted into being it was empowered by the laws of Texas to do certain specific things. We are carrying a portion of these powers and functions this week. Next week we will carry another portion.

Powers, Duties, Functions
To formulate, promulgate and enforce rules and regulations for the purpose of conserving, preserving, protecting and recharging the underground water of the underground water reservoir or subdivision thereof.

To formulate, promulgate and enforce rules and regulations to prevent the waste, as herein defined, of the underground water of the underground water reservoir or subdivisions thereof.

To require permits for the drilling, equipping and completion of wells in the underground water reservoir and to issue such permits subject to such terms and provisions with reference to the drilling, equipping and completion thereof as may be necessary defined.

To prevent waste, as herein defined, of the underground water reservoir or subdivision thereof and to regulate the production therefrom so as to minimize as far as practicable the drawdown of the water table or the reduction of the artesian pressure; provided, however, the owner of the land, his heirs, assigns and assigns, shall not be denied a permit to drill a well on his land and produce underground water therefrom subject to rules and regulations promulgated hereunder to prevent waste, as herein defined.

SPEED READING COURSE SCHEDULED FOR PAMPA AREA

Arrangements have been made to conduct a SPEED READING COURSE here in Pampa, to be taught in evening classes. The average person today reads between 150-300 words per minute and comprehends about 55 to 65 per cent. This course guarantees that its graduates will read at least 1,000 words per minute and with a marked improvement in comprehension. However the spokesman said, "the guarantee is a bare minimum, because the average person can increase his speed TEN TIMES with a profound improvement in comprehension and concentration."

The average graduate of this course should be able to read 1,000 to 3,000 words per minute and attain the 80 percentile in comprehension. This means, after graduation, a person should read books of average length in 45 to 60 minutes and understand, enjoy, and remember them better than ever. Those who enroll will attend ONE CLASS PER WEEK, for NINE WEEKS and will receive a DIPLOMA upon completion.

Those who are interested in further details may attend one of the FREE, one hour orientation lectures that have been scheduled. At these meetings the course will be explained in detail, including requirements, tuition, and class schedules. A person may attend one of these meetings without obligation to enroll.

These meetings will be conducted at the Emerald Room, Coronado Inn, Pampa, Texas, at the following times — p.m.; Fri. Feb. 14, 6:30 and 8:30 p.m.; Fri. Feb. 14, 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.; Sat. Feb. 15 10:30 a.m., 2:00 and 4:30 p.m.

This course offered by ACCELERATED EDUCATION SCHOOLS of Amarillo, was created by Dr. Wade E. Cutler, a Ph.D. of psychology and has nearly 10,000 successful graduates, including over 500 in the Golden Spread.

If you are a professional person, or a college student or a college-bound high school student and want to keep up with our rapidly changing world, be sure to attend one of these most informative meetings. There is no obligation. Classes are limited to 18 students and class places will be reserved on a first-come, first-serve basis only. Classes will start Feb. 20. Be sure to attend one of the early meetings for a wider schedule choice.

Mrs. Charley Bell lost her father on Monday. Her mother still lives in Austin. Mr. Ar-buckle died in his sleep. He was 91 years old.

Bill and Lorene Thompson were Amarillo visitors on Tuesday, combining a visit with their kids, Ray and Ruella, and business.

The senior Winters, from a farm near Enid, Okla., were weekend visitors of the Kenny Winters on Hay Hook Ranch last week. "Forty-Two" sessions were the order of the day — and night!

Kay and Gene Judkins of Pampa were visitors at their former church home in Skellytown last Sunday. Since I taught Lori when she was a tiny little thing and since the energetic young Judkins have always seemed very special to us it was nice to see them. Kay, who teaches physical education in Pampa Junior High, has taught both of my young nieces, Lynn and Cindy Pulse, and is high on the admiration list of their brothers Randy and Bryan. Randy's baseball team was co-coached by Gene and Ray Jones last year. So the young couple will be missed in the many circles in which they were active.

The Terrys and Ernie Jones were "company" at the Pulse home last Sunday. Formerly we were there a great deal, and they out here, but like our own children and grandchildren, their lives are so busy that we don't see much of them now.

It was particularly good to see Lee Pulse and Clifford Pulse. Lee, who recently started work for a construction company, after long weeks of waiting, was home for dinner, and Clifford is not working now. He loved his job and his employers and fellow workers, but there wasn't any time for studying to keep his grades up.

Flossie Stockton phoned on Tuesday. Stated that she'd filled in at Alice Harvey's bridge club once more. Flossie is enjoying those sessions. A visit we enjoyed recently was with the Raymond Campbells. Raymond, who worked for Kewanee Oil Co. for many years and who, in partnership with Paul Kemp, ran cows on what was once the old Lewis Ranch, is a wonderful conversationalist and Dode is a wonderful chocolate cake-maker. So it was really a nice occasion. Raymond, who once shocked feed here, riding his cowhorse old Erownie over every day after work, was next door neighbor to the John Reynolds in the Kewanee Camp and since the Reynolds were as full of pranks as the Campbells, no one ever knew what might happen!

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Close students of President Nixon's forensic style say that his platform manner, particularly on television, has greatly improved since his 1960 debates with John F. Kennedy.

In the opinion of some analysts, however, he still fails at times to synchronize his gestures for maximum effectiveness. They feel that his hands and body movements do not always coordinate with what he is saying.

This seems a rather niggling point and is not something the average observer would be likely to notice. But everything a president does is subjected to intensive scrutiny.

I have therefore been making a study of Nixonian gesticulations. For what they may be worth, my findings are submitted below.

Nixon does not have a characteristic gesture as distinctive as the famous Truman karate chop or the Kennedy forefinger stab. His gestures are less emphatic and tend to run in series, with three basic formations.

To me, the most striking thing about his style is his amazing ambidexterity. He can gesture with either hand, and one is as expressive as the other.

I didn't keep a tally, but it is my impression that he favors the left hand slightly.

At a news conference, Nixon customarily awaits questions with hands clasped behind his back. His replies then will be accompanied by one, or a combination, of the following manual maneuvers:

- (1) A two-handed basketball manual maneuver;
- (2) A two-handed basketball push shot;
- (3) A one-handed palm-up testing-for-rain motion, and
- (4) A baseball umpire's "safe" signal.

For variety, he may touch the little finger of his left hand with his right forefinger, or put his left hand in his pocket. Only another is the old-barn over on their grass lease. The subject matter as well as the painter herself make the gifts doubly beloved.

BE EXTRA CAREFUL WITH EYE MEDICINES

Eye drops are easily contaminated. When using an eye dropper, try not to touch the eye when instilling eye drops. Otherwise, the dropper can pick up germs which can injure the rest of the medicine in the bottle. Always keep the container tightly closed. Store in a cool place.

If the liquid develops a precipitate, or particles of matter cloud the appearance, do not use them. The odds are the eye drops are decomposing and unfit for use.

Scientists in Dallas Are Tackling Some of World's Toughest Problems

By WILLIAM P. OPPEL

RICHARDSON, Tex. (UPI) — At a quiet center 20 miles north of downtown Dallas scientists are tackling some of the world's toughest problems, ranging from a cure for cancer to how our planet was born.

"The work we do here is more appreciated in Washington than in Dallas," said Al Mitchell, public affairs director for the Southwest Center for Advanced Studies (SCAS).

"There is always something going on but we never have an impact story. We don't put men in space. We just write lines in textbooks," Mitchell said.

The center may prove to be a guideline for higher scientific research and learning in Texas and the nation. But with the influence it carries, goes controversy.

Legislature in Middle

The SCAS controversy is between the College Coordinating Board, a committee created by former Gov. John Connally to oversee college education in Texas, and the University of Texas Board of Regents. The Texas Legislature is set to act as referee and judge.

Both boards basically agree SCAS should belong to the University of Texas system but at this point all agreement ends.

Presently SCAS doesn't have the power to grant degrees and the College Coordinating Board would like to keep it this way.

The CCB would also allow any graduate student to study at SCAS no matter where he was enrolled. The Board of Regents would only allow UT students to study at the center.

The Regents would like to establish a four-year undergraduate school at the SCAS site, located some 20 miles north of downtown Dallas in the suburb of Richardson.

Says Facilities Adequate

The CCB says Dallas County does not need another undergraduate school, that with the present state schools in the vicinity (University of Texas at Arlington, North Texas State at Denton, and East Texas State at Commerce) along with the private colleges and universities (Southern Methodist in Dallas, Texas Christian in Fort Worth and Dallas Baptist College), the North Texas area already has adequate facilities.

The regents counter this argument with "that's fine for 1969, but what about 1975?" And the regents don't exactly warm up to the CCB's proposal of placing enrollment limits on the area schools — an action that would go into effect if the legislature approves the CCB's plans for SCAS.

Al Mitchell, public affairs director for SCAS, said the original purpose of the center "in a nutshell, was to create a scientific community in Dallas."

Center's Work Outlined

What the center has done was to put instruments measuring cosmic rays in a satellite orbiting in a Venus orbit around the sun, dig for rocks 120 feet below the earth's surface that prove the North Pole was once located in the South Pacific, plus a number of other ventures in between.

In an age when three Americans circle the moon just 70 miles above its surface, a device measuring cosmic radiation — even as far away as Venus — is not going to blast its way into the headlines.

But one scientist at SCAS is planning on doing a little blasting of his own that could put the center in the limelight. Dr. Chaim Richman is working on a "pion dosimetry" research project that could kill cancer cells in the human body.

Among other projects currently going on at SCAS are the photographing of microscopic fossils that can be enlarged to any size in a three-dimensional effect; the study of Auroras (images of light that appear about six times a year in the skies of northern Canada); DNA research and space studies.

The Southwest Center for Advanced Studies currently ranks fourth among universities in the number of projects aboard NASA satellites, ahead of such other prestigious schools as Stanford and UCLA.

SCAS even has its own glassblower. "I make it, they break it," says Lloyd Jones.

But even the glassblower is not exempt from research projects although his most famous product came on his own. "I have developed a bottle with no inside and no outside," Jones said, although he admitted he hasn't found a use for it except as an unusual Christmas present.

No Local Students

The center does not have any students of its own. A university will allow a graduate student to perform his scientific research at SCAS, but he must return to his home university to present his thesis and graduate.

Although SCAS is primarily concerned with, as Mitchell says, "Seeking new knowledge and making it available," the center is not without its lighter side.

The underlying attitude of the scientists and students who constantly create at the center is summed up by one greeting which hangs in a biology laboratory: "Happy New Yeast."

INTEGRATED MARKET

PHILADELPHIA — Amish and Mennonite farmers have new business neighbors at the Ridge Mart where the Pennsylvania Dutch sold their products for 99 years.

Twenty-two Negro merchants Thursday opened stalls with them, all under the same domed roof in a move designed to build black economic enterprise. Furniture, school supplies and other household goods were sold beside the scrapple, sausages, jellies and home baked bread.

Webster said: "It's good."

Crazy World Of Washington

By LEON BURNETT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Odds and ends from the nation's capital — mostly odd:

Mrs. Vance Hartke, whose husband has been in the U.S. Senate for 10 years, advised the wives of newly elected senators not to make the same mistake she did.

In the early days after their arrival in Washington from Indiana, she said, her small children turned on the tears every time she left them with a baby sitter to attend a party. She finally started telling them: "I have to go into the city to work," which stopped all the fuss.

She quickly switched back to the truth, she explained, when she heard one of the youngsters telling a neighbor:

"Daddy goes home to the state, a lot, and mother puts on an evening dress and goes into the city to work."

There's an onomatopoeia crisis at the Agriculture Department. How to represent in print the booming sound a male prairie chicken makes to attract a hen in mating season. Since 1922, the department reported in a booklet, various writers have come up with these widely varying versions: C-a-o-o-o-oo-oo, choo, choo. Old Mul doon. Zoo-oo-woooo-yooou. Oooowoo-woo-woo.

Durned old f-o-o-l.

Boomabom. Oolo-o-woo.

A bank a half-block from the White House has one of those blinking signs that gives the temperature, the time and the day of the month.

On the first and second days of February it flashed, respectively, "32nd" and "33rd."

No matter that Clifford M. Hardin, the new agriculture secretary, was born and educated in Indiana, and was a college professor in Wisconsin and Michigan before becoming chancellor of the University of Nebraska.

What impressed Sen. Everett B. Jordan, D-N.C., was: "He has roots in North Carolina, way back, and that will help him a lot."

Burgeoning crime in the District of Columbia has brought considerable criticism, down upon the city's law enforcement folks.

This was compounded by embarrassment when two gun-brandishing bandits grabbed off over $900 in traffic-fine collections from the Court of General Sessions — right across the street from Main Police Headquarters.

NATIONAL ELECTRICAL WEEK MEANS PROGRESS FOR YOU IN MORE WAYS THAN ONE

Some of the printed materials that Reddy's Area Development Department has created are displayed by one of Reddy's co-workers.

Advances in electric appliances, equipment and electric service — all to make living and working better for all of us — are acknowledged during National Electrical Week.

But other services for the betterment of our city which Reddy happily performs may not come to mind.

For example, Reddy has co-workers trained in helping you to attract new business and industry, to aid you with ideas in ways to keep your city looking smart as well as beautiful, to help you with printed materials necessary to tell new industrial prospects why your city is a good one.

And, right now, Reddy has a new film ready for showing to your clubs and organizations. It's called "Money Grows Here" and shows in beautiful color the advantages that new industry can have by locating in our area.

Your Public Service manager will gladly arrange a showing for your group.

Harmony, There Isn't, But Points There Is For LSU

Mick To Go South But Playing Status In Doubt

NEW YORK (NEA) — "It's the strangest relationship I've ever seen," said Bobby Roberts, Clemson basketball coach. "The way they argue! They hardly ever agree on anything. But, evidently, it has paid off."

Roberts was discussing the inflammable coexistence of Press Maravich and his son, Pete. Press is the basketball coach at Louisiana State University and Pete is his All-American guard, and the nation's leading scorer.

When Press was head coach at North Carolina State, Roberts was his assistant and Pete was a little kid who used to dribble a basketball to the movies.

"I remember," said Roberts, "when Press would want Pete to practice his free-throw shooting. Press would challenge him to a contest, and would usually win. Pete would end up crying. Real tears. He'd cry for anything."

"Press would be helping him with a math problem and they'd start arguing about that. Press would say, 'Now, look! There is only ONE way to do math.'"

Roberts recalled a time when Pete, in the ninth grade, saved up money to buy an air rifle. Press drove him to town to get it.

"Press had an old '53 Buick that drove like a truck. Traffic was heavy this Saturday afternoon. And Press was trying to parallel park his car with horns blowing all over the place. Pete got out and slapped his pocket. He had forgotten his money at home.

"We drove back for the money and the whole time Press is really chewing him out. Pete is in the back seat bawling like a baby. I said, 'Gee whiz, Press, get off the kid.' And Press said, 'You keep out of this argument.'"

On the court Pete had always called Press "Dad," until a game last year against Georgia. "Press told me about it," said Roberts. "LSU was up by a point with seven seconds left in the game. Pete had a one-and-one at the free throw line. There was a timeout. Press told him to bear down, that this was important. Pete was walking onto the court and turned his head and said, 'Don't sweat it, coach.'"

Press acknowledges that harmony is missing at times from their relationship. "You know how sons are," he said. "They get pretty independent-minded. They do not always listen to their fathers. Sometimes I tell one of my assistants what I want Pete to do. They tell him. And Pete comes to me and says, 'Dad, I think I've corrected that hitch in my jump shot.'"

"One thing about Pete, he wants to win at any cost. I remember when he was five years old. We'd play monopoly and when he was stuck in a corner, he'd cry that the dice was fixed. We used to play HORSE or 21 when he was in high school. I had a behind-the-back shot that I used when I was in trouble. He'd scream that it was unfair. And when I was about to shoot he would stick out his tongue, make funny faces, jump up and down. Anything to win. He's like Adolph Hitler in that respect."

"Couple weeks ago I told Pete to help his four-year-old sister, Donna, drink her milk. I told him to race her and let her win."

"When they got down to the bottom, Pete gulped his first."

Pete, said Press, takes a loss so hard it is two or three days before they return to speaking terms.

"There have been times," said Pete, "when we didn't see eye-to-eye on the court. During one timeout last season, he wanted to run a certain play. I opened my big mouth to disagree. He said, 'Dammit, I'm coach here and don't you forget it.' Then he swatted me across the back of the head."

"I quit giving him advice on the court. I don't think he appreciates it."

Press and Pete Maravich

By MILTON RICHMAN
NEW YORK (UPI) — The Yankees have shipped Mickey Mantle's uniform south.

SPORTS

The Tampa Daily News

They have no guarantee he'll ever wear it.

They're hoping he will, naturally, but from the negative way he's been talking lately they're beginning to suspect he won't.

The switch-hitting 37-year-old slugger has told some of his closest friends his legs are bothering him more and more lately and that he'll probably call it quits in Florida.

This doesn't necessarily mean he might not change his mind. Before signing two years ago, he said 1967 would be his last season. Maybe, anyway. It wasn't. Then one night last summer he told one of the Detroit players 1968 definitely would be it. But when Dick Young of the New York Daily News reported in November he wouldn't play again, Mantle angrily denied it and said he might.

Making the decision obviously is tormenting him. He'll feel much better after he does. He loves the game and being an active part of the Yankees.

Legs A Factor

They have another job waiting for him the day he retires. Should he decide to continue, there's another $100,000 contract waiting for him, his seventh in a row. He can get more if he wants but that's the last thing in his mind right now. What he's thinking about primarily is the condition of his legs and his distaste for being embarrassed.

"I get embarrassed when I go half way across the country for an All-Star game and strike out," he says.

It happened to him in Houston last summer and in Anaheim the summer before.

To most, they were merely two strikeouts. To Mickey Mantle they meant much more.

Not all NFL owners stood up and cheered over Vince Lombardi's switch from Green Bay to Washington. The part that bothered them most was his not completing his contract with the Packers.

"Then what good is a contract," grumbled one of the owners.

The owners, it seems, are afraid Lombardi's action may establish a bad precedent. Bad, that is, for them. You know how they feel.

Industry must use a different yardstick dept.

Apparently not everybody felt William D. Eckert did such a pigeon poor job. He already has been offered several others, including one that would top his pay during the time he served as Commissioner.

It's nice to report Yogi still hasn't lost his touch.

Some time had gone by since anybody heard him get off a typical Berra-ism and it looked like he might be in one of his infrequent slumps. But the chunky, 43-year-old Mets' coach pulled himself out of it beautifully the other night at a dinner where he told how much he enjoyed working last season with fellow coaches Rube Walker, Eddie Yost and Joe Pignatano.

Said Yogi:

"I never was with a gooder buncha guys."

THE BIG TWO — Pampa's Jim Gallman and Tascosa's Mike Sundiff battle for a rebound Friday night during Tascosa's 45-44 victory over the Harvesters. (See other picture, story page 9).

Jockey-Jockey Ends Male Rule

HIJALEAH, Fla. (UPI)—The track bugler raised his horn to his lips, but he didn't blow the traditional call to the post.

Instead he blared out "My Diane," and the walls of male invincibility on American thoroughbred tracks came tumbling down.

Through the breach rode willowy Diane Crump to cheers—and some sprinkled boes—and become the first woman to compete professionally against male jockeys on a major U.S. thoroughbred track.

Her mount for this historic seventh race at Hialeah Park Friday was no spirited Arabian, no white stallion. Just a nervous bay-colored steed far out of his class. It mattered not to his 20-year-old rider.

Bridle 'n Bit at 48-1 finished 10th in the 12-horse field at the end of the 1 mile run. Diane's once-bright red and white silks, her perspiring face and wisps of blonde curls that tumbled from under her riding helmet were covered in dust.

Felt Good

"I feel real good," she said, her doll-like blue eyes glistening with excitement. "I felt like a regular jock out there."

She discussed her horse and believed she got as much run from him as possible although he finished 17 lengths behind the winner. An experienced exercise rider for several years, she made none of the common first-time mistakes, like slipping out of a stirrup, or dropping her whip.

"Everything was just as expected," she said "I had always heard that going into the first turn is where the riders cuss each other, but nobody said a word."

Diane, whose father operates a Tampa Bay marina near Florida Downs, has made it plain she does not want to be a crusader. "I just want to ride race horses."

She is a native of Woodmont, Conn. near New Haven, and came to Florida with her family about six years ago.

Other Girls Thwarted

Boycots by male jockeys thwarted two other girl riders earlier this racing season—Penny Ann Early in Kentucky and Barbara Jo Rubin at nearby Tropical Park.

But Hialeah officials and the state racing commission made it clear stiff penalties would be levied against a jockey refusing to ride against a girl

Beard Takes Lead

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI)—Frank Beard, who placed 12th on the PGA money list last year, although he failed to take a single tournament title, shot a four-under-par 68 Saturday for a two-stroke lead in the $100,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic with a 72-hole score of 11-under-par 277.

Beard's round was one of 20 under 70 as the touring pro tore up the four courses—Indian Wells, La Quinta, Tamarisk and Bermuda Downs—used in the 90-hole Hope event. Beard, who played LA Quinta, had five birdies and an eagle on his card but even so it wasn't the best one turned in.

That distinction went to Bert Yancey, who blistered Indian Wells with a seven-under 65. Yancey's round included six birds, an eagle and a bogey. However, he was nine strokes behind Beard.

Billy Casper, admittedly playing his best round of the year, shot a 69, also at Indian Wells. Art Wall had a 70 and Jack Montgomery a 67 to tie for second place with nine-under-par totals of 279. Wall played La Quinta and Montgomery Indian Wells.

George Knudson shot a 69 to stand all alone at 280 while Orville Moody, third-round leader Rod Funseth and Kaiser International winner Miller Barber were at 281, seven under par. Moody had a 72, Funseth a three-over 75 and Barber a 69.

U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino, who started the fourth round a stroke behind Funseth, also had his problems. He staggered home with a 75 that dropped him into a five-way tie at 282 with Gene Littler (73), Bob Charles (72), Bobby Nichols (71) and Dave Hill (71).

Bob Murphy (72), Tom Shaw (68) and Britain's Tony Jacklin (72), were tied at 283. The 248 group was made up of Ray Floyd (72), Charles Coody (68) and Everett Vinnant (71).

Heitman Paces Aggies to 90-82 Victory

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI)—Mike Heitman and Billy Bob Barnett, with 20 points apiece, paced league-leading Texas A&M Saturday to a 90-82 victory over Rice in a Southwest Conference basketball game.

A&M broke open a tight game during a two-minute period in the second half by scoring 12 straight points, bringing them from a three-point deficit to a nine point lead.

The Aggies were ahead 62-53 with 11:13 left in the game and kept an eight to 13-point lead the rest of the way.

Both teams had four of their five starters in the double figures, but the Cadets hit a 59.2 per cent from the field to Rice's 39.2 and out rebounded them 54-50.

Jim Naples led Rice with 18 points, but A&M's hot percentage from the field coupled with 32 points from the foul line proved too much of an advantage.

A&M led 38-36 at the halftime before a near capacity crowd of 7,000 spectators. The game was televised throughout the state.

A&M is now 6-1, and Rice is now 2-5.

Rebs Edge Pampa, 45-44

By RON CROSS

AMARILLO — Tacosca came off the ropes in the third quarter to stagger Pampa then put the finishing touches on the Harvesters and knocked them out with eight seconds to play on Friday night in an exciting basketball game that you'd ever want to see.

Sub Gary Bogan, who had missed a free throw earlier in the final period that could have locked the game up, connected on a pair with eight seconds to play to give the Rebels a 45-44 victory in the District 4-4A battle before a packed, screaming mob in Tacosca gym.

Tacosca, the first half district champ, and Pampa both stand 5-1 in second half play while Borger, a 89-65 winner over Lubbock Friday night, kept its second half slate clean at 6-0. Besides dimming Pampa's chances of a second half title and playoff hopes the Rebels also broke a five-game Harvester winning streak with some leads up infighting at the start of the third period.

Pampa held a 20-18 halftime lead but the Rebels took the second half tipoff and scored three quick baskets, two on steals when the Harvesters were trying to get the ball in bounds.

Tacosca raced to a 22-20 lead on Jim Ryan's bucket with 7:29 left in the third period and the Harvesters could never come closer than one point.

Bill Thomas's bucket at the 4:29 mark made it 25-25 but with 1:21 to go the Rebels held its biggest margin of the evening, nine points, at 37-28. When the period closed Pampa trailed 37-30.

Tacosca quickly jumped to another nine point spread, 39-30 at the opening of the final quarter but Pampa reeled off seven straight points on free throw and basket by Billy Thomas, a pair of free throws by Jim Hollis, and John Epperson's bucket.

The Rebels went into its stall and with 35 seconds showing led 42-39 and Edward Moultrie leaped to the charity stripe.

Moultrie hit the first shot but missed the second in hopes of a three-point play that didn't work.

Tacosca had hit only three of 3 from the free shot line entering the final period but the Rebels hit six of 11 in the final two minutes and four of seven in the last 20 seconds.

Tacosca led 43-42 with eight seconds left when Bogan stepped to the line and made 10th shots.

Moultrie hit a long one handed shot for the Harvesters. The first and third quarters proved fatal for the Harvesters. Pampa hit only one of nine shots from the field in the first period and trailed 11-6.

In the third quarter the Harvesters were outscored 19-10 and hit only two of seven field shots.

Neither team scorched the nets. Pampa hit only 13 of 33 from the field for 39 per cent and Tacosca was worse, hitting only 38 per cent on 18 of 47.

It's hard to figure how they won since the Rebels made only nine of 24 from the free shot line and Pampa pumped in 18 of 23.

Hollis led the Harvesters in scoring with 13 points and made four baskets, all in the second period. Billy Thomas played his best all-around game of the season and contributed 11 points.

Robert Mauldin led the Rebels with 12. Roger Case hit 11 and Jim Ryan added 10.

Pampa hosts Lubbock Tuesday and journeys to Lubbock Coronado Friday night.

The Tacosca B team scored a 43-42 victory over the Stockers, now 10-9 for the season.

Thompson led Pampa with 18, Jenkins hit 9, Jordan 6, Brumfield 4, Johnson 3 and Hood 2.

HARVESTER COACH Jim Cunningham walks with Jim Hollis after the senior forward suffered a knee injury Friday night against Tacosca. Hollis was able to return to the lineup and led Pampa in scoring with 13 points.

Allison Boys Remain Perfect

Allison was extended to the limit Friday night but kept its perfect record intact Friday night by edging Briscoe, 30-27 in a conference game.

The victory gave Briscoe the league title and the district tournament will get underway next week in Canadian.

Briscoe's girls took a narrow 51-48 victory to earn a split. Bill Walker paced Briscoe with 11 points, Mark Meek and Rusty Atherton added seven each. Weldon Parker had 6, Bill Hefley 4 and Anthony Francis 2.

Mike Dyer and Dukes paced Allison with 10 points each. Alton Lahberger had 8 and Dean Keys 6 and John Richardson 5.

Pro Athletes Among Best Dressed In U.S. Today

By LEE MUELLER, NEA Sportswriter

NEW YORK (NEA) — When pin-striped baseball uniforms were introduced to Brooklyn several decades ago, a fat, vociferous woman seated on a buggy behind third base was indignantly offended. "Naah, look at Candy Britches," she shrieked, referring, of course, to the striped peppermint stick of the day. "Hey, Candy Britches! What ya say."

The team, it was reported, went home and burned its uniforms. From that day to this, fashion has been a touchy subject with professional athletes. A few years ago, if a guy in the hairy-chested world of sports mentioned "fashions," he might find himself thrown into a cold shower.

It is an odd note, then, that according to one of the nation's leading fashion authorities — professional athletes today are among the world's best-dressed men.

Robert L. Green, fashion director at Palyboy Magazine, says it all stems from the athletes' sociological background and newly found affluence, rather than specific taste.

"The athlete today enjoys an unusual amount of renown and financial success," he says. "For the most part, he is from a middle-class or lower-class background. Dressing better is an extension of his drive to succeed, to get himself out."

Robert L. Green, fashion director at Palyboy Magazine, says it all stems from the athletes' sociological background and newly found affluence, rather than specific taste.

Green won the race from a standstill field which also included Olympians Erv Hall of Villanova and Lennox Miller of Southern California.

Other winners included Phil Tobin of St. John's, who took the 1,000 yard run in 2:08.8 — second best time posted this year; Andy O'Reilly of Villanova in the 800 yard run in 1:53.3; and pole vaulter Lee Smith of Miami of Ohio, who vaulted 16 feet, 4 inches.

Evans reared to his sixth victory of the indoor campaign by taking the 500-yard run in 57.0 seconds.

O'Reilly nipped Olympian Wade Bell of Oregon at the tape in a race in which Bell was disqualified for pushing at the finish line.

Carlos Gets Cheers, Boos From Bronx Fans

NEW YORK (UPI) — The lukewarm reception he received in his hometown seemed to burn Olympic sprinter John Carlos more than the upset loss at the hands of a comparative unknown.

Carlos, a Brooklyn-born runner, now attending San Jose State, was the lone Olympian failing to post a victory Friday night in the fourth annual Madison Square Garden Invitation indoor track and field meet.

The San Jose sophomore who raised his black gloved fist on the victory stand at Mexico City was beaten by Jim Green of the University of Kentucky in the 60-yard dash. Green, who also beat Carlos in the Sugar Bowl race in New Orleans last December, set a meet record for the event with a clocking of six seconds flat.

Carlos described the mixture of boos and cheers that greeted him as "a pretty shaky reception. I couldn't concentrate on the race."

Green won the race from a standstill field which also included Olympians Erv Hall of Villanova and Lennox Miller of Southern California.

Other winners included Phil Tobin of St. John's, who took the 1,000 yard run in 2:08.8 — second best time posted this year; Andy O'Reilly of Villanova in the 800 yard run in 1:53.3; and pole vaulter Lee Smith of Miami of Ohio, who vaulted 16 feet, 4 inches.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago Black Hawks coach Bill Reay said today he would use Chico Maki on the second line as a replacement for Dennis Hull when the club skates against Toronto Maple Leafs Sunday night. Hull suffered a strained knee ligament in Thursday night's game at Detroit and will miss Chicago's next five games.

Randy Puts 64 1/2 Throw In Tuneup

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — It may be awhile before anyone beats Willie Davenport.

The Olympic high hurdles champion reeled off his 10th straight indoor victory Friday night in the ninth annual Fort Worth Coaches Indoor Games.

That was no real surprise, but his winning time of :06.8 did open a few eyes—it tied the existing world record set by Hayes Jones in 1962, and equaled by Earl McCullough last year.

There were no major upsets. Randy Matson had no trouble in beating Southern Methodist freshman Sammy Walker in the shot put, although his best toss of 64 1-2 was not up to his usual standards. And pole vaulter Bob Seagren and sprinter Charlie Greene won handily.

Seagren's best vault of 16-6 bettered John Pennel and Paul Heglar, but was nearly one foot short of his pending world record of 17-3 1-2.

Lost Sisters Are United

By United Press International
In Chatam, England, Mrs. Mabel King gazed at the woman in an adjacent bed in All Saints' Hospital maternity ward and said: "Excuse me, but your face looks familiar."

"You remind me of someone too," replied Mrs. Shirley Stevens.

The two women, waiting to have their babies delivered, began swapping yarns about their families.

Soon, the women, both in their thirties, discovered they were sisters. They had been separated as children and had not seen each other since.

Mrs. King was placed in a children's home as an infant and Mrs. Stevens was raised by foster parents.

"Now we have finally met we don't intend to lose touch again," Mrs. Stevens said. "We have found plenty to talk about."

And from elsewhere in the world, there was more evidence that not all of today's news was gloom and doom:

Experts consider adults to be more careless than children when it comes to littering, says Keep America Beautiful, Inc.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI)—The bank of New Mexico in Albuquerque won't take any wooden nickels—but they did accept a wooden check.

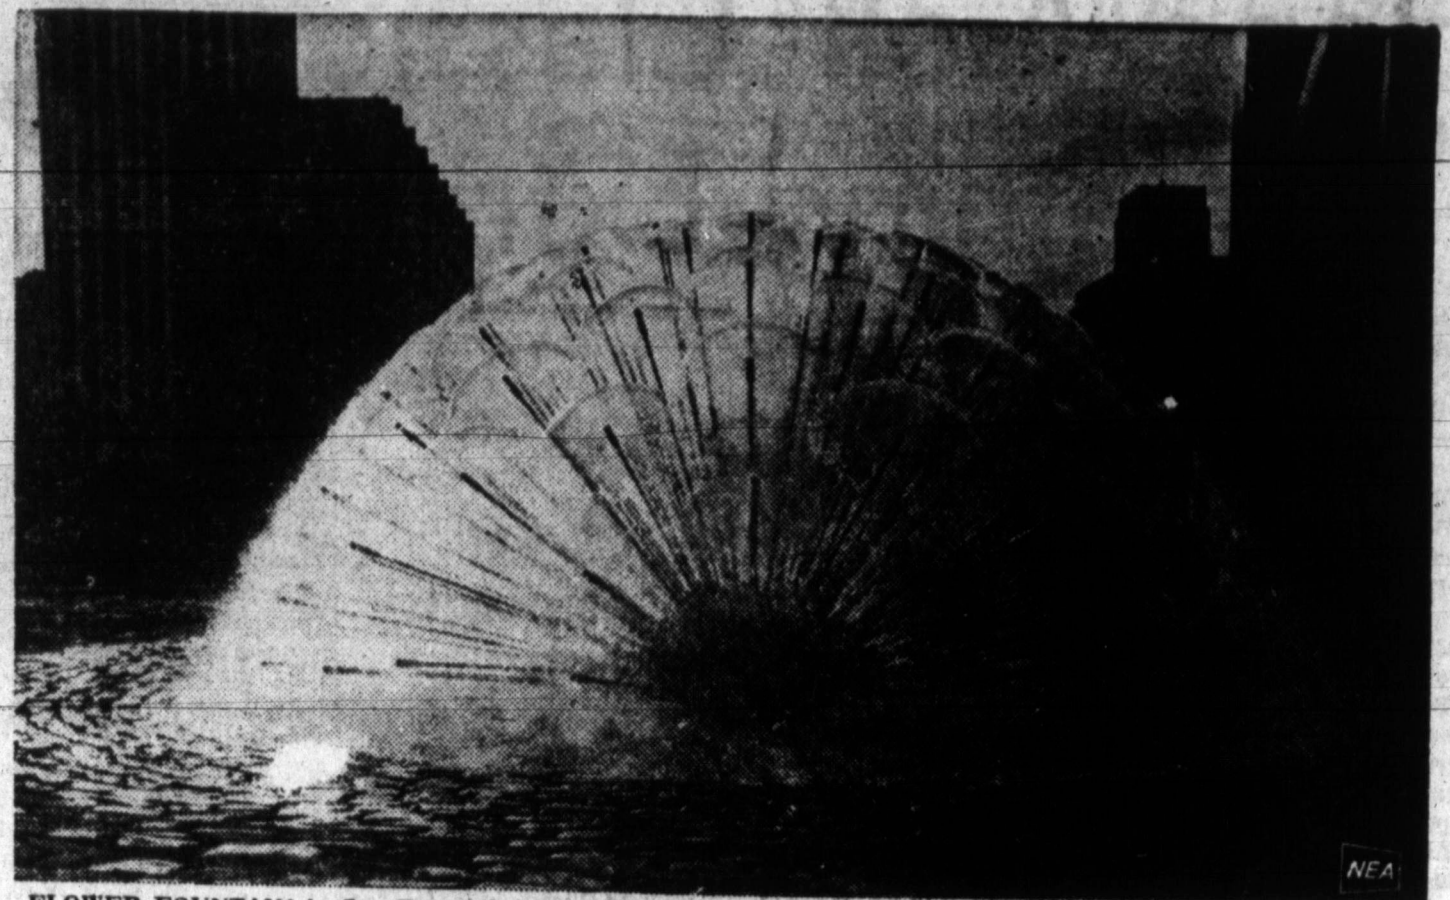

The check, payable to the New Mexico Department of Motor Vehicles, was carved on Roswell, N.M., resident Ben Q. Adams, Jr. The face of the check is an exact replica of a Rosewell state bank check form. It was deposited Friday at the Albuquerque bank.

"The man has gone to a lot of trouble to make his point—whatever it is," said bank president W.A. Clark.

CLINTON, Ark. (UPI)—Gerald O. Brittle had a good thing going for a while. Jailed on bad check charges, last week Brittle tunneled out of his Van Buren County jail cell twice to burglarize nearby businesses, then returned to stash the loot in the mattress, police said.

While police investigated the break-ins, Brittle would spend the day safely in his cell but Friday he was caught in the middle of another burglary, and Sheriff Jake Williams had him transferred to a special steel cell.

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: What do you make of this? A man proposed marriage. (He lost his wife 2 years ago. My husband has been dead for 6 years.) I accepted.

Now he tells me that I am to move my things into the house he and his wife occupied for 19 years. (He lives 1,100 miles from here and I've never seen his home.) He says I am not to "touch" a thing. His sister tells me the house is exactly as it was the day his wife died. He hasn't even taken her clothes out of the closets.

I am expected to move my things in right on top of hers?

Ours is no great big love affair, Abby. He is 59 and I am 55 and it would have been a marriage of convenience for both of us. But how about this?

HAVING DOUBTS
DEAR ABBY: The man sounds like he's not playing with a full deck. Reconsider. "Convenience" isn't everything.

DEAR ABBY: I have a distant relative who invites me frequently to her home for dinner. Abby, she has a tiny baby and I have seen her bathe the baby in her kitchen sink!

I am running out of excuses for refusing to eat at her home. Abby, this woman can certainly afford a bathinette. If she's never heard that there are such things, I'd be happy to send her one.

Am I being too squeamish? If so, I can't help it. Please advise.

WEAK TUMMY
DEAR ABBY: Sorry, but if the sink is clean before and after the baby's bath, what's there to be "squeamish" about? It's simple, convenient, and economical.

And the baby probably enjoys it.

DEAR ABBY: My fiance and I will announce our engagement shortly. He asked me to marry him more than a year ago, but we have kept it a secret until he could afford to buy me a diamond.

Now he tells me that his divorced sister wants to sell him her diamond. It is a beautiful ring, and everyone in his family thinks I am "odd" for not wanting it, but even in a new setting as far as I am concerned it will still be the same ring.

Abby, I'd rather have a less expensive diamond than a second-hand one from a broken marriage. I love this man and this is the first major disagreement we have had. Am I foolish to feel this way?

SENTIMENTAL
DEAR ABBY: No. And as long as you feel that way, stick to your decision.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "PHOOEY ON PSYCHIATRY" IN MANCHESTER: We are not born into a smooth, problem-free society, but one that offers many frustrations and conflicts. People differ in their ability to handle conflicts and frustrations, and life calls for one adjustment after another. How well they make those adjustments depends upon how much insight they have into their personalities. By making it possible for troubled people to bring their frustrations and conflicts out into the open, and rationalize their hostilities toward others, psychiatrists hope to minimize the feelings of guilt and hopelessness.

Sometimes group therapy — becoming aware that others have experienced the same emotions that we have — brings a wonderful relief. That's what psychiatry is all about.

Two Groups Unite To Beautify City

The Pampa Chamber of Commerce and Pampa Garden Club are combining efforts to encourage residents to plant Pampas Grass in the city.

The incentive will be a $50 award by the Chamber for the most attractive planting to be judged next summer, according to Mrs. Thelma Bray, chairman of the club's civic beautification committee.

"The Pampas Grass was officially named the 'flower' of Pampa several years ago through the efforts of R. L. Studebaker, a Pampa horticulturist who is employed with the Tulsa, Okla., fire department,"

Two Varietas Study Club Members Give International Affairs Reports

At a recent meeting of the Varietas Study Club in the home of Mrs. J.R. Spearman, Mrs. Ralph Thomas and Mrs. L.B. Penick spoke on International Affairs.

Mrs. F.A. Cary, club president, conducted the business meeting as Mrs. H. Price Dosier, vice-president, introduced the program.

Mrs. Thomas, whose topic was "Our Relations with Neighbors to South (Mexico), discussed politics in Mexico and stated "we are ambassadors for our country. When we travel we represent our country."

"The U.S. has a responsibility in world leadership in this rapidly changing world. "Politics in Mexico "can scarcely be said to exist in a European or American sense. Nevertheless there is not a single aspect of Mexican life that is not permeated with political implications," she said.

Mrs. Thomas recalled "as a child in El Paso, trouble was so prevalent along the border, raids were not uncommon. Later politics seemed to stabilize due to establishment of P.R.I. Partido. This was established in 1937 and has been renovated several times. "It is an academy for training the bureaucracies, the economists, the technicians who do the country's official and semi-official work in all walks of life—the arts and sciences are not excluded," she said.

"Mexico's attitude toward

U.S. is friendly but not uncritical. Part of this is due to enormous discrepancy in living standards on either side. Mexicans would like to be treated as responsible partners rather than unruly children.

"Mrs. Thomas also listed border problems as being an important matter and mentioned Chamizal's being handed back in 1963, the problem of salting the Mexicali Valley from Colorado River, and that Bracero Labor was terminated in December, 1964.

In conclusion, Mrs. Thomas said, "We can be proud of the dams Mexico and U.S. have constructed" and suggested "we should go to Mexico and see the improved schools, wonders of agriculture and west coast. Whatever we do, we must promote friendship, for it is wonderful to have a border without military posts and to have travel permitted without a pass port."

Mrs. Penick began the second part of program by saying that "Of all the countries of the world, only the Soviet Union and China are larger than Canada." More than 3000 miles of border separate Canada and the United States. This long border is not fortified in any way.

"So friendly have our great countries been that citizens on both sides of the border have taken each other for granted," she said.

Mrs. Penick explained Canada is thinly populated because as the ice sheets moved southward and scraped up soil, a thin poor soil remained.

She discussed how visitors see signs in French on streets. Stores as parts of Canada were first settled by the French, parts of it by the English. It belongs to the British Commonwealth of Nations. The country rules itself much as the U.S. does, but the people accept the king or queen of England as their sovereign.

"Furs, farms, forest and fisheries make up most of Canada's wealth, but the country is rich in some minerals. The largest asbestos mines in the world are in the province of Quebec. The largest nickel mines in the world are in Ontario.

"Mentioning Northern Canada, she said "it was a distant unknown wilderness, but today it is becoming truly a part of Canada. All Canadians know it, and realize they own the largest unexploited land frontier in the Western Hemisphere.

"Canada holds a sizeable portion of all the fresh water in the world. Since water is one of Canada's most magnificent resources, the world's largest underground powerhouse is being constructed by the government of British Columbia on Peace River.

"When the last turbines are installed in the 1970's, it will be the world's biggest producer of electricity," she said.

Mrs. Penick mentioned the social crisis in the North involved Indians, Eskimos and whites. Her conclusion was that "Canada has a bright future. It has minerals that are not yet being mined, farmlands that are not yet being farmed and has vast forests. Above all its people are energetic. They are eager to keep Canada a great country."

Refreshments were served to Mmes. W.E. Abernathy, F. A. Cary, Cecil Dalton, H. Price Dosier, Clyde Ellis, S.C. Evans, Lee Harrah, J.E. Kirchner, Luther Kirk, R.W. Lane, L.B. Penick, Luther Pierson, H. Dewitt Seago, J. R. Spearman, Aubrey Sprawls, Ralph Thomas, W.A. Wagoner and Sherman White.

Miss Brown Weds Philip E. Gates

Miss Sandra Kay Brown, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert G. Brown, Austin, became the bride of Philip Edwin Gates, son of Dr. and Mrs. Philip A. Gates, Austin, recently at the Episcopal Church of the Good Shepherd, Rev. John A. Logan, Jr., officiated.

A reception was held at the church after the ceremony. The bride is an Austin High School graduate and junior at the University of Texas where she is a member of Alpha Lambda Delta Honorary. She is a computer programmer for a nuclear corporation.

The bridegroom, the grandson of Mrs. P. H. Gates of Pampa and nephew of Dr. Joe Gates and Ronald Merrill, is also an Austin High School graduate. He attended Rice University one year and is a UT student and clerk for the State Department of Public Welfare.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a street-length dress of Irish lace and satin trim. A crown of pearls and aurora borealis held her bouffant tulle veil.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Lynn Nobles. Bridesmaids were Miss Annette Ottinger and Miss Mary Gates, the bridegroom's sister. They wore pale pink dresses and carried bouquets of pink roses and carnations.

Larrie Kincaid was best man. Groomsman were Woodie Jones and Dean Kilgore. Bob Brown, the bride's brother, and Mac Rogers, Waco, were ushers.

More on Gun Control

Want to go hunting, or do a little practice shooting?

Unless you're going to use a bow and arrow, slingshot or BB gun, you've got to ask Uncle Sam for permission first.

Well, it's almost that bad. Congress in 1968 passed two laws restricting the sale of guns and ammunition, and about the only persons not affected are the criminally inclined for whom the laws were supposedly intended.

Immediately after the assassination of Sen. Robert Kennedy, last June, the House accepted a Senate-passed Omnibus Crime Control Bill which included a water-down gun control law. It prohibited interstate shipment to individuals of pistols and revolvers, and over-the-counter sales of handguns to individuals not living in the dealer's state. It specifically exempted rifles and shotguns from any controls.

Then, in October, Congress completed action on a major and more stringent gun-control law which extended the restrictions to long guns and ammunition.

Together, the two bills are recognized as the most freedom violating gun-control legislation since 1938. Although they do not require registration of all firearms, they are stronger than most people thought possible at the beginning of the year.

Major changes in existing gun laws were in the restrictions on sales to out-of-state residents and in registration of all purchasers of guns and ammunition.

Advocates of more stringent controls, who claimed they did not intend to discourage private ownership of guns, argued that the ease with which a person may obtain a gun is the big factor in the prevalence of lawlessness.

While the tragic death of Sen. Kennedy added impetus to the move for more controls, the lawmakers ignored the fact that he was killed with a registered gun by a man who violated several laws. They may as well have passed another law against theft, because anyone who wants to commit a crime with a gun doesn't need a registration form. He's perfectly capable of stealing a gun and ammunition.

Enforcing the ridiculous regulations will be agents of the Alcohol and Tobacco Division of the Internal Revenue Service, a branch of the Treasury Department. Origin of the Treasury Department's jurisdiction lay in the 1934 National Firearms Act which imposed stiff taxes on certain classes of weapons and which con-

That's Where Your Money Goes

Whether large doses of the taxpayers' money will cure poverty or help perpetuate it is a question being heatedly debated by a lot of experts. But you don't have to be an expert to know that in New York City, at least, a lot of federal money hasn't helped any poor people at all — because it never got to them.

New York's Human Resources Administration (H.R.A.) is the agency which administers the city's 122-million-dollar-per-year anti-poverty and welfare programs. Federal investigations have unearthed evidence that several millions of those dollars have been stolen, through a variety of means, by H.R.A. employees. "There is substantial evidence," says one federal report, "to indicate that employees of New York, staff employees of delegate agencies and even NYC (Neighborhood Youth Corps) enrollees have either conspired or engaged in wholesale larceny, theft through fraud or embezzlement of funds advanced to New York City by the United States Department of Labor."

You certainly can't fault the thieves with lack of imagination or ingenuity. One cadre of young H.R.A. employees is charged with fixing computers to issue checks — totaling more than a million and a half dollars — that ended up in their own pockets. Somebody else seems to have made off with piles of money withheld from Neighborhood Youth paychecks for social security but never forwarded to Washington. And whoever it was who stole some blank checks from an H.R.A. agency, wrote them out for an amount totaling $1,017,615.01, and deposited them in a Swiss bank — well, you have got to admit that takes flair. And rather easy access to a public checkbook.

Last summer, two H.R.A. officials came up with a marvelous plan to safeguard Youth Corps funds from thieves. Both officers were shortly arrested, one on charges of embezzling $22,000, the other for being involved with the computer-fixing group.

The gang who issued phony checks via computer enjoyed their share of the poor peoples' money no end. Here is a NEW YORK TIMES account of their activities:

"... There was only an unidentified young man picking up 102 checks each week and taking them to two-day-long parties in expensive apartments, where the revelers would endorse the checks and fill out time cards for the following week's haul.

"Perhaps 30 persons were involved in the operation, about the number of young men and women who might drift in and out of the party action in a garish Riverside apartment with a living room dominated by a long leather-cushioned bar under a monogrammed canopy. "They lived," said a man who was there. "Flashy cars, flashier women — if they had been white, they might be running the country. Beautiful people..."

Some bleeding-hearts fear that such disclosures may just influence the Nixon Administration's attitude towards poverty programs. Imagine!

The Almanac

By United Press International
Today is Sunday Feb. 9, the 40th day of 1969 with 325 to follow.

The moon is in its last quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Venus and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1825, the House of Representatives elected John Quincy Adams President after none of the candidates in the December, 1824 election received an electoral majority.

In 1900 construction workers in Chicago voted to strike for an 8-hour day.

In 1943 Japan evacuated Guadalcanal in the face of overwhelming American military superiority.

In 1950 Wisconsin Sen. Joseph McCarthy charged that the U.S. State Department was infested with Communists.

A thought for the day: American poet Joaquin Miller wrote, "That man who lives for self alone lives for the meanest mortal known."

Either White or Black

In at least one area of American life, the Negro's battle for a place in the sun has been notably successful.

Advertising agencies claim "dramatic progress" in integrating magazine and television commercials, reports the Wall Street Journal. One Chicago agency now uses Negroes in over 20 per cent of its television commercials that require models. A year ago, none at all were used.

Progress given and progress taken away, however.

The president of an agency in New York that handles black talent says that sponsors tend to discriminate against light-skinned Negroes in favor of "more typical ones."

Evidently, the current Mad Ave. motto is: White is right and black is beautiful, but if you're brown — don't call us, we'll call you.

The Bell Silencer

An Ohio State legislator has proposed a bill that would allow a person to have an asterisk placed beside his name in the telephone directory to indicate that he did not wish to be bothered by calls from people trying to sell him something.

The idea will undoubtedly elicit ringing approval from a lot of telephone subscribers, and it could certainly give the white pages a sparkly look. To professional phone solicitors, however, it must sound like one —

WASHINGTON: 'Gristle' in U.S. Economy Sustains Growing Inflation

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA)—The time is at hand for a new approach on inflation.

The federal government now attempts to control the economy by regulating the supply or the cost of money through raising and lowering taxes and interest rates and other devices. It tries to restrain price and wage gains through government guidelines, presidential pressure and a variety of regulations.

These programs have not stopped inflation. Sometimes these official attempts at control have intensified inflation or unemployment, or prolonged a recession.

The situation is now such that the prestigious Council of Economic Advisers in its latest report to Congress has said that moves aimed at price stability almost inevitably result in higher unemployment with its consequent suffering. The council submits a persuasive chart to prove its point.

But workable anti-inflation techniques are at hand that should, in fact, reduce unemployment, rather than cause it to gain.

Today, enough data is available to clearly indicate which economic conditions and which government actions effectively hold down inflation and which conditions and which actions inflame rapid price increases.

This data seems to suggest that the government could best fight inflation by intensively promoting the modernization of industry—with special emphasis on those areas of construction, home building, education, repairs, medical care and other services in which modernization has lagged.

As a corollary there should be a strong revamping of state and federal vocational programs to include emphasis on medical, nursing, legal, teaching and laboratory aides as well as technicians.

Take some of the figures.

In the past 10 years, prices have gone up about 25 per cent.

Yet consumer indexes show new car prices have risen but 4 per cent and household durables 3 per cent. The wholesale prices of farm products are up but 3 per cent, rubber and rubber products 1 per cent, metals and metal products 12 per cent, pulp and paper 5 per cent, machinery and equipment 17 per cent, textile products and apparel 7 per cent and fuels and power combined 2 per cent and chemicals have declined 2 per cent.

Manufactured products as a whole are up 10 per cent wholesale.

Note that the upswing in prices in general has been modest in areas where there has been the greatest application of advanced research in new products, manufacturing methods, equipment and management — administrative techniques and in areas (with some noted exceptions) where competition was intense. Farm productivity has increased 76 per cent in the decade; manufacturing output per man hour has grown almost 40 per cent.

It will be noted also that price gains have been modest even

The Doctor Says

By DR. W. G. BRANSTADT
Symptoms Vary In Coronary Attacks

Q—Three of my male relatives died of coronary attacks. What happens when a person has such an attack?

A—The symptoms vary. Some persons complain of an abdominal heaviness or indigestion and others have the feeling that the heart is being squeezed in a vise. Much more important than trying to figure out what symptoms to look for is to get a checkup for the presence of known risk factors and, if any are found, to start preventive measures before serious symptoms occur.

Q—My brother died suddenly of myocardial infarction. Can this happen in the absence of any evidence of heart disease?

A—Yes, but usually there is a history of a previous attack or angina pectoris. An electrocardiogram may, but does not always, reveal warning signs.

Q—My doctor told me I had acute subendocardial ischemia. What is this? Do you advise running and jogging after such a condition?

A—This condition is a deprivation of blood supply to the portion of the heart just under its inner lining—in simpler terms, a coronary heart attack. A damaged heart may be put back in shape in the same way it was trained originally—by working it and thus forcing it to receive and deliver more blood. Some doctors favor jogging and walking and an exercise in which you bend over and hold your head down for 15 to 20 seconds to bring more blood to your brain. Your doctor should determine how much exercise you need for the best results and how rapidly you should increase the amount.

Q—I have been taking Coumadin for 10 years following a heart attack. You once wrote that anticoagulants should not be taken for prolonged periods. What harm could result and what would happen if I stopped taking it?

A—Although many persons take these drugs indefinitely, they have never been an un-mixed blessing. Any benefits are obtained in the first nine to 12 months of treatment and no further benefit can be expected. Long-term usage may result in bleeding within the wall of the intestines (no blood in the stools but intestinal obstruction) or a similar type of bleeding in the brain or spinal cord. Recent studies show that there is no danger in sudden complete withdrawal of these drugs.

WIT AND WHIMSY

Going the wrong way on a one way street, the young woman driver was stopped by a traffic cop who asked her gently but firmly:

Officer Long — Now, Miss, where do you think you're going?

Miss Lane — I don't think it matters now. It looks like everybody's coming back.

Who Should Be Tried By Court Martial?

(Chicago Tribune)

The investigation of the capture of the intelligence ship Pueblo by North Korean Communists opened with testimony by Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, the ship's captain, who spent 11 months in captivity with 82 shipmates. His story bears some distressing parallels to the disaster at Pearl Harbor more than 27 years ago, and again we have the distinct impression that responsibility rests, not with the forces on the scene, but with higher authority in Washington.

Capt. Bucher was given an old merchant ship for conversion to an intelligence-gathering vessel. He made repeated requests to the chief of naval operations for improvements, especially a system to destroy the radar, sonar, and sophisticated electronic equipment, aboard on short notice. He was denied all such requests on grounds of time and money.

His armament consisted of two mounted .50-caliber machine guns which were difficult to bring to combat readiness and were manned by less than skilled gun crews. There were 17 other hand weapons aboard.

To destroy confidential documents, he was supplied with an incinerator which was not fuelled. It could only consume paper after it had been shredded, and this could not be

Branch Head Bill Says:

By BILL KENNEDY

Jack and Bobby Kennedy were once heard to agree more or less publicly that the sharpest one of the Kennedy boys was Ted. ("He combines the BEST of the both of them.") Let's hope they were wrong, because here comes another Kennedy and I'm not sure we can survive if he cuts us up any worse than did the other two.

Ted Kennedy got himself elected to the job of Democratic Whip in the Senate, simply by bidding for it (?). This makes him the second or third most powerful Democrat in the Senate, or so some Washington experts would have us believe. Of course, besides Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and President Pro Tempore Richard Russell there are several strong committee chairmen in that body; but Teddy is now the tail-twister and promises to lead many fights against Nixon legislative proposals.

The view at first blush by one of the most printed political analysts in the country was that this would hurt Nixon's chances with the Congress. The love and admiration, the fear and trembling and the we-want-to-make-him-President emotions aroused at the mention of the Kennedy name (again) is supposed to so solidify the Democrats in Congress — more specifically in the Senate — that the President can get through only such liberal legislation as Teddy the Whip wants to approve. The Republican-southern Democrat majority bloc is broken, even before it can be reformed.

Far be it from me to question the expertise of a renowned columnist; but he has not visited the South lately. No name can infuriate the electorate of the South more than the name of Humphrey — except the name Kennedy, the Massachusetts, Joe Kennedy name. And look how Humphrey fared in the South.

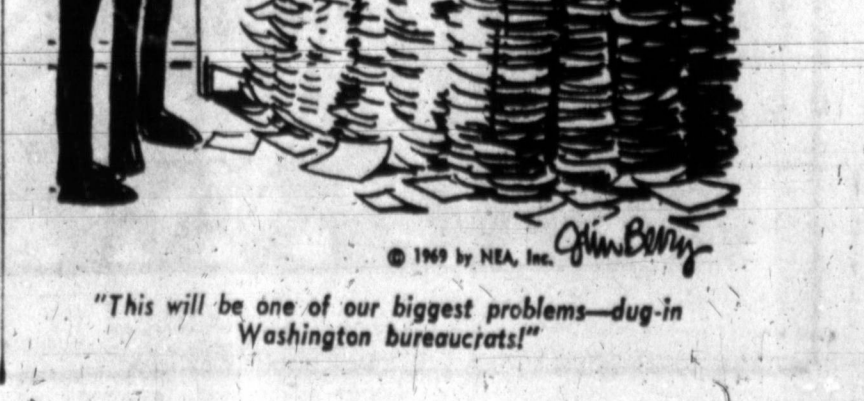

Senator Long is no Patrick Henry, but he was far more qualified to be Whip than the whippersnapper from Boston. It is nothing new, putting one of the Kennedy boys in a job for which he has no qualifications; but the fact is, Teddy got the Senate vote only because he IS a Kennedy.

He won the job by six votes. The South did not support him — and he will not be able to deliver the South in other crucial votes.

If President Nixon follows through on pledges to ease up on civil rights — keeps his Attorney General out of school house doors; stops bussing for forced, unbalanced integration in the schools; and puts a squelch on guideline writers — he will have far more influence over southern Senate votes (and House votes, too) than the Democratic party leadership. And the Kennedy election makes it easier.

Of course, his opportunity to oppose Nixon was not the purpose of Ted's grabbing of the Whip post. The purpose was to move his Senate seat from the back row (where it belongs) to the front row, put him forever in the limelight, give him a springboard from which to jump at the presidential nomination in '72. He will probably accomplish his goal.

If he does, and if Nixon throws the South a few crumbs from the table, it will not take a George Wallace to keep the southern states out of the Democrat column next time.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
 WASHINGTON (UPI)—Let the record show that by the year of 1969 our civilization had advanced to the point where householders were receiving personalized junk mail.

This brilliant achievement, before which one must stand in awe and admiration, has enabled direct mail advertisers to regain, at least temporarily, the upper hand in their never-ending battle of wits with postal addresses.

We can all remember when junk mail was addressed simply to "occupant" or "resident." It didn't take us householders long to develop a resistance to such dehumanized solicitation.

Responses Conditioned
 Like Pavlov's dogs, our responses became conditioned by experience. We learned that if we opened the envelope we would find a brochure touting cemetery lots or homesites in Arizona.

Ergo, we quit opening the envelopes.
 But junk mailers are a hardy breed, possessing much of the tenacity and ingenuity of bill collectors. By exchanging mailing lists, they managed to start putting our names on the envelopes.

For a time, this ploy was successful. One hesitated to discard an envelope with one's name on it, there always being an outside chance that it contained something important. Like maybe a second warning from the bill collector.

Eventually, however, our junk mail instincts became more sophisticated. It was almost like having a sixth sense. We could merely glance at the envelope and a little voice inside us would tell us that it contained another cemetery lot brochure.

Envelopes Unopened
 So we again began throwing the envelopes away unopened. The latest counterthrust, as noted above, is personalized junk mail. The plastic windows in the envelopes have been enlarged so that you see not only your name and address but also the first line of the enclosed communication.

If your name happens to be West, the first line will say something like "You can do something worthwhile. Mr. West."

Upon opening the envelope, you find that the first line has been typed in and that the rest of the message is the familiar form letter from the cemetery lot promoters.

But the important thing is that you opened the envelope. The junk mailers have scored an obvious coup, a triumph of oneupmanship.

Education Today
 By FREDERICK H. TREESH
 United Press International

Americans are prone to say that education is the ticket to equality, the exit pass from the ghetto. Yet slum schools that are chronically short of money, materials and professional services and unable to compete with white suburbia in recruiting the best teachers hardly can be expected to close any culture gaps.

To make the American dream of equality of education work on the other side of the tracks, it will take a great many things, not the least of which is a lot of goodwill of the part of the advantaged majority.

The nation looked this week to Great Neck, N.Y., an affluent suburb on the North Shore of Long Island, for a reading on whether the necessary goodwill can be mustered.

Scheduled To Vote
 The residents of Great Neck were scheduled to vote on this proposition: "Do you favor adoption of the Great Neck Board of Education plan to admit a limited number of New York City primary grade children to our schools provided there is no cost to the school district?"

The vote could not be binding legally but the school board said it would abide by the decision. The school board's plan involves the busing to Great Neck starting next September of between 45 and 60 youngsters from disadvantaged districts of the New York City borough of Queens. Most of the children would be Negro.

Opposition-Developed
 School officials say the present Great Neck school population of about 10,000 is 96 per cent white and 4 per cent Negro.

Despite careful efforts by the school board and administrators to explain the plan and allay misunderstanding, a substantial opposition developed in the community. This has been attributed in considerable part to fear that the plan would "weaken" the school system, lead to higher taxes and give black militants a forum in the community.

Countering the opposition have been a series of information meetings scheduled by school authorities and informal coffee klatches, door to door canvassing and the placing of newspaper advertisements by backers of the plan. Last weekend, more than 500 senior and junior high school students and about 150 parents marched through the streets to urge a substantial "yes" vote. More than 2,000 secondary students also signed a petition backing the plan.

Yugoslavia Ready To Fight for Its Red Convictions

BELGRADE (UPI) - This year, Yugoslavia writes "peaceful coexistence" in large capital letters, but it stands prepared to fight if necessary for its conviction that the Yugoslav brand of communism can get along with both East and West without pledging allegiance to either.

The Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia allowed hard-boiled partisan fighter Josip Broz Tito to support "the independence and sovereignty of every country." Tito has been just as resolute in discouraging suggestions from the West that the NATO allies might be ready to back him in the event of a showdown with the Soviets.

Since President Tito's 1948 rupture with Moscow, Yugoslavia has steered an increasingly liberal course, giving growing autonomy to politics and industry. It is carefully justified ideologically under a program of "Socialist self-management."

Economists talk of the day - now a foreseeable possibility - when the Yugoslav dinar becomes the first Eastern European currency to be bought and sold on Western markets.

Among the important changes the government and party have prepared for 1969 are a top-to-bottom reorganization of the party, primarily to get younger out inflexible bureaucrats, talent into top jobs and ease

Transwestern Promotes Two Local Employees

Kenneth R. Giggy has been named district superintendent and Haskell C. Little promoted to district foreman of Transwestern Pipeline Co. at Pampa, according to Paul F. McBride, operations. Transwestern Pipeline is a subsidiary of Texas Eastern Transmission Corp., Houston.

The promotions, McBride said, are effective immediately. Both men have been stationed in Pampa for a number of years.

In his new position, Giggy will be responsible for all natural gas gathering pipeline system operations in the Texas-Oklahoma Panhandle area. Transwestern facilities in this area include some 1,000 miles of pipeline, 5 compressor stations and various gas dehydration and treating plants.

Little will be in charge of all maintenance and repair activities in the area. Giggy was associated with Natural Gas Pipe of America, Michigan Wisconsin Pipe Line Co. and Houston Gas & Oil Co. before joining Transwestern in 1960. He served Transwestern as a section foreman and district foreman before promotion to his present position.

Little was associated with Hiwan Oil Co., Texas Natural Gasoline Co., Anchor Gasoline Co. and Denton Oil Co. before joining Transwestern in 1960. He was a repair foreman before promotion to his present position.

Skelly Oil to Have Dinners To Celebrate Anniversary

TULSA - Skelly Oil Co. today said 38 employee dinners will be held at 30 different locations throughout its operating territory as part of the company's 15th anniversary celebration.

Two of the dinners are scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday, March 18 and 19, at the Coronado Inn in Pampa. The first observance is Feb. 6 in the Heidelberg Hotel at Jackson, Miss., and the last one will be in Tulsa's Assembly Center on Oct. 22. Skelly will be 50 years old Oct. 2.

To allow operations to continue and enable all Skelly people to attend one of the dinners, two or more dinners have been scheduled where there are larger concentrations of company activities and employees.

Joining local employees, applicants and their spouses for the event will be executives from the Tulsa headquarters and other special guests. A total of 11,000 employees and guests are expected to attend the 38 dinners.

Highlighting the activities at each dinner will be a showing of a new movie commemorating the anniversary of the firm, entitled "An Adventure Called Skelly." Also on the program will be the presentation of service awards to 278 employees who will have earned them during 1969.

"We have designed our anniversary observances so that special emphasis is placed on the achievements of the employees during the past half century," said Skelly President Ernest B. Miller Jr.

"The decorations, the movie, the whole tone of the celebrations will acknowledge that the efforts of our people have made the company what it is today," he said.

EDITOR'S NOTE - This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the Pampa office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published by The News as a public service to taxpayers.

Q - Does it make any difference whether I file the red, white and blue tax form I got in the mail or one of the plain ones the Post Office has?

A - Either form is acceptable, but the colored form is preferable. However, if you do not file the return mailed you, please be sure to remove the name label and put it on the return you do file.

Income Tax Questions, Answers

Q - Where can I hire someone to help me with my tax return?

A - Call your local accounting, legal or tax practitioner association and ask them for the names of qualified people.

In choosing an advisor, here are things to look for: 1-avoid the man who "guarantees" you a refund, 2-be on guard, if he suggests the refund be sent to his address. You should never sign a blank tax return or one that has been prepared in pencil. You are legally responsible for every item on the return even though someone else has helped you prepare it. Your advisor should sign the return, too, indicating that he helped you with it.

Q - Are gifts ever taxed?

A - The recipient has no Federal income tax to pay but the giver may be taxed if the gift is sizable. The law generally requires a gift tax return to be filed by the donor when a gift or gifts to any one person during the year exceeds $3,000.

Q - I sold my house just before my 65th birthday. Does that mean I won't be entitled to the special benefits for the elderly on those sales?

A - The law requires you to be 65 or over before the date of sale or exchange to qualify for these special benefits.

Q - I was married last month. Since my name has changed do I have to change my Social Security number?

A - When your name changes, notify your local office of the Social Security Administration as soon as possible. Your number will not be changed, but your record will be corrected to reflect your married name.

Q - Who can file the short form, 1040A?

A - This form can be used in the following circumstances: 1-income is under $10,000; and 2-income consists entirely of wages subject to withholding and not more than $200 from dividends, interest, and other wages. The Form 1040 A cannot be used by taxpayers who either itemize their deductions or who claim special tax credits or deductions such as the retirement income credit, sick pay exclusion, or moving expense deduction.
