'Be Good Boy,' She Says With Kiss, After Verdict Is Delivered

E. G. Ramsey, 52 year old former Sunday school superintendent, was given a five year suspended sentence for swindling by check by a jury in the 30th district court Friday afternoon. The verdict was reached after about two hours of deliberation.

According to the testimony of W. G. Bralley, introduced by the state, Ramsey is under two charges of forgery on warrants issued in Taylor county. He was taken back to jail after the sentence was read.

The defendant was accused of giving a $110 "hot check" to the W. B. McClurkan company. The chief witness in his defense was his divorced wife, who testified to his good character and reputation, and said she had not told him that funds in her account would no longer be used to cover his checks. Ramsey did not take the stand himself, but witnesses attempted to prove that he expected the checks to be met out of his former wife's account. They had been divorced two months at the time, the evidence showed.

HOUSTON, April 19. (AP)—A 17-year-old boy of less than medium height and slight build today smilingly told detectives and newspapermen of more than a score of "stick up" jobs he had pulled.

At the police station he spent three hours dictating a written statement. His statement covered holdups of drug stores, groceries, filling stations and even other hijackers.

"I got a little thrill out of it, but it was the money I was out for," the youth said.

He was reticent only concerning his family and the story of his early life. He said he had one wife in Colorado and another in Florida and that he had divided his time for several years between Chicago, California and Houston.

The work is to start as soon as authority is received from the Interstate Commerce commission.

One new line will be built from Shamrock Texas, through Wellington to Quanah, connecting there with construction between Vernon and Seymour, it has been learned in Wall street, according to an Associated Press dispatch to The Record News.

Dalhart-Pringle Line

Another line will be built from Dalhart to Pringle, opening up fertile territory in the Plains country, as well as serving important oil territory, the Wall street confirmation of the Rock Island plans stated.

The Rock Island has already laid its application for the $7,000,000 extensions before the Interstate Commerce commission. The application also asks for rights to use other existing and projected lines to form a new route between Amarillo and Fort Worth.

Denver Opposed

Reports from Childress have indicated that the Fort Worth and Denver railway will oppose the Rock Island application on the grounds that "any development in that territory logically belongs to the Fort Worth and Denver."

Childress leaders are also expected to fight the proposed line, as the route misses that city by about 10 miles. The Fort Worth and Denver had previously surveyed the route which the Rock Island proposes to follow.

Infant killed, several persons injured near Cleburne.

Railroad station at Paris, Texas, partially demolished.

Grant county, Oklahoma, was swept by tornado, which injured woman and infant.

Special to The Record News.

BOWIE, Texas, April 19.—A small cyclone which followed a terrific rain and hail storm here late today sent most of the population scurrying for storm cellars as it concentrated its force on the southeastern outskirts of the town, tearing down three poultry houses of the Mose Johnson poultry farm with resultant loss of several hundred fine birds, and damaging roofs of about 15 houses. No one was reported injured during the storm.

Changes Course

The twister was seen spiraling from the southwest, heading directly for the business section of the town about 5 p. m. Hundreds of persons on the streets ran for the shelter of dugouts, only to be fooled by a change in course which took the twister in a westerly direction, as if it would miss the town entirely. Then it veered to the southwest, damaging severely eight company houses of the Prairie Pipeline company, located on the Fort Worth highway, and, as it came closer to town, damaging several residences.

The three Johnson chicken houses were flattened to the ground, burying an unestimated number of prize birds. Total loss at this point could not be estimated until it was determined how many chickens were killed.

Rain, Hail Resumed

The twister in all cut a path about a quarter of a mile wide and one mile long before turning to the northeast and disappearing.

Soon after it had gone, the rain and hail storm, which had ceased, apparently to let the miniature cyclone through, recommenced with even more fury, hail stones as large as a man's fist smiting the earth, damaging a few roofs, and battering the windshields of automobiles. This too subsided in about an hour.

We Women

By BETTY BRAINERD

Courage, Intelligence and Personal Efficiency

SHE lived in the most fashionable section of Houston, Texas. She had friends and position. She had a fine home—everything. And once she must have been a remarkably beautiful woman.

Today there are still traces of that beauty but the purely facial beauty has been transcended by a finer beauty.

Some time ago her husband died. One of her two daughters had married. Another was attending college in New York. Her son was going to a junior school for boys in their home town.

On her husband's death she found that her financial resources weren't overly great. Most of his income had been derived from earnings, but he left her enough of an income for her to get along comfortably. But the difference between her income and his earning ability was considerable.

She could no longer maintain a large home and a staff of servants. She considered her problem and acted.

She made an adjustment which, for intelligence and pure beauty as well as sheer personal efficiency, stirs me profoundly and evokes my complete respect and admiration.

Her daughter's husband was doing well, and she was happy. But her other daughter was about to graduate as a chemist and had been offered a position in New York doing research and experimental work.

The mother again considered the family situation. She disposed of her home. She took her boy out of school and put him in another school near New York. She took a little apartment just outside of New York, and her daughter commutes each day.

But what does the mother do? What has this lady of charm and distinction done to solve her own problem?

Well, she takes care of her own apartment, assisted by her daughter after her return from the laboratory. And she has gone to work in one of the high class New York stores as a saleswoman. It was the first job she sought—the first time in her life she had ever thought about working—and the store was eager to get a woman of her type.

Many women have been compelled to make radical and harsh adjustments following the death of their husbands. But in this case all the hurt and harshness were eliminated by the golden fineness of her general attitude and personal efficiency.

Let those women who grieve and brood over trifles and who have their husbands reflect upon this. Let them find inspiration for increased personal efficiency—and let them remember that courage is often five parts intelligence and five parts unselfishness.

BIGGER AND BETTER

Turkey Eggs Produced Here Seven Inches In Circumference

Two of the largest turkey eggs ever exhibited in this section of the country were produced this week on the poultry farm of Mrs. G. N. Callahan, seven miles out on the Petrolia road, according to information received here Friday.

The two eggs have a circumference of seven inches each and are about a third larger than the average turkey egg. They were laid by a turkey hen 10 months old. Mrs. Callahan said that a number of old-timers had viewed the eggs and none of them reported having seen larger.

The eggs will be placed in the Central Chick hatchery here to be hatched, Mrs. Callahan said.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, April 19. (US)—They were eating a $2 dinner in a tea room. She was very blonde and very beautiful. Deep blue eyes leading nowhere. Nothing back of them. Dressed in pale grey. Grey hat. Long strings of pearls. Bouquet of violets.

Man was little and dark and partly bald and silent. He didn't look unhappy.

Girl didn't speak all through dinner. Once he asked her if her chicken was all right and she nodded her head up and down.

"But, she's so pretty," I thought. "You'd think she'd want to laugh and have a good time. He will never win her. Never!"

He held her coat. I saw her left hand. Two rings, one a diamond band.

And there you are.

Another way you can tell. The woman looks at the other women and what they have on. She precedes her husband down all aisles and in through doors and she opens elevator doors herself, and she tells the pilot what floor. She tells the husband what he should eat, and what a mistake he makes when he orders what he wants. She doesn't precede him when it's proper, or because it's proper, but because she won't be led.

When she talks it's to tell him what he ought to do and buy and where he shouldn't go and how he can get along without another suit right away. She always wanted a silver fox, and he has had new suits for years and years!

The couple at the next table—he wanted to phone. He didn't have a nickel. She handed him her purse and said, "You'll find one in there." He didn't mind fishing through the purse and finding it, right before everybody. Why should he? He gave her the money. She didn't have to work for it. He was entirely unabashed.

But, at the next table there was a couple that you knew went 50-50. The time for the check came and he wanted some money to make up the deficit. He made her hand it to him under the table cloth where no one could see. She made hers and he didn't make as much and he didn't want anyone to know he didn't do it all.

That's all right, too. But it's the way you can tell. He would much rather she didn't work. I don't blame him. He couldn't help it, so she didn't blame him either.

Speaking of illuminating gestures—

The Spatts had been at it again. "And furthermore," said Mrs. Spatt, concluding her long tirade, "you certainly aren't much of a husband."

"Well, my dear," her husband retorted, wearily, "I can truthfully say you are a lot of wife."—Tit-Bits.

BOY VICTIM OF MOONSHINE AGE

Distinguished Jurors Score Youth's Drinking

By GENE HOFFMAN

CHICAGO, April 19. (INS)—Scientific analysis of the "moonshine age," as compiled by six eminent educators, was being pondered over by Chicago parents today following the coroner's jury report on the death of George Lux, killed in an automobile accident during a "whoopee" tour of roadhouses with his boy and girl friends, most of them high school students.

The crux of the six distinguished jurors' finding was that young Lux died a victim of the "moonshine age," and that no one in particular was responsible for his death. The 18-year-old driver of the car, the jury bluntly stated, was intoxicated. And yet, no action against him was recommended. He, too, it was inferred, was a victim of the age.

The report, as delivered to Coroner Herman N. Bundesen, was constructive, however, as well as faultfinding. It recommended far-reaching and drastic official action to control the violent excesses of modern youth; for instance, the shutting off of liquor sales to school children and passage of a law to limit the number of persons in the front seat of an automobile to two.

The problems in the main, while not of their own making, must be solved by the young people themselves, the jury found.

The jury was composed of Sherman Steele, professor of law at Loyola university; Professor Samuel Stevens, head of the psychology department at Northwestern university; Professor E. W. Burgess, noted sociologist at the University of Chicago; Edward J. Tobin, Cook county superintendent of schools; Paul T. Buzzin, head of the Lutheran parochial schools of northern Illinois, and Benjamin F. Buck, assistant superintendent of schools in Chicago.

They conclude their report with a recommendation "that the public press continue with renewed enthusiasm its exposure of crime and corruption and use its powers to create a public opinion which will place a premium upon law and order, decency and character."

Editors to Probe Utilities 'Control'

WASHINGTON, April 19. (UP)—Appointment of a committee to investigate alleged efforts of public utilities and paper manufacturing interests to gain control of newspapers was proposed to the American Society of Newspaper Editors today by Willis J. Abbott of the Christian Science Monitor.

Walter Harrison of the Daily Oklahoma and the Oklahoma City Times, president of the society, expressed the hope that newspaper editors will fight for the right to express freely their own opinions.

Lindbergh 'Lands' in New York in Taxicab

NEW YORK, April 19. (INS)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived here early today in a conveyance not usually associated with the famous flyer's travels—a taxicab.

Piloting a borrowed plane, Lindbergh left Cleveland last night after waiting in vain for his own plane, piloted by Rundy Enslow, which was forced down by rain and snow at Leroy, N. Y., yesterday.

He landed at Hadley Field, N. J., shortly before midnight and, in the absence of train transportation to New York before 8 a. m., completed his trip by taxicab.

Colquitt Virtually Assured of Okeh In Senate by Committee's Action

Special to The Record News

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Confirmation of former Gov. Oscar B. Colquitt of Texas to a place on the United States Board of Mediation, held by Pat M. Neff, another former governor of Texas, was virtually assured today when the senate committee on interstate commerce reported his nomination favorably. It doubtless will be considered at the first executive session of the senate, scheduled for next week.

There were five members of the committee present, three Republicans and two Democrats. No objections were interposed and Governor Colquitt, who was present, gave a short resume of his life and the public positions he has held. He told of serving on the Texas railroad commission and of his two terms as governor.

When asked what he had been doing since his defeat for nomination as senator in 1916, he replied that he had been connected with the oil industry. He explained that he had the indorsement of the Republican organization in Texas, as well as the Hoover Democrats in that state, headed by Alvin Moody of Houston, and expressed the belief that the labor unions of Texas are not opposed to his confirmation.

13 Members in Crap Game, They Find After Raid

A band of crap shooters who evidently had no superstition in having thirteen participants in the game probably changed their feeling toward the "unlucky number" Thursday afternoon when they were surprised during their pastime with the "galloping dominoes" in a local hotel room and escorted to police headquarters.

The thirteen crap shooters evidently had not thought of the impending danger from their number and the game waxed hot as the dice passed around the circle when the group was paid a surprise visit by Fred Fountain, Chris Jensen, Luke Hart and Pat Allen, city officers.

They were hauled to police headquarters in the patrol wagon and released under bonds.

Two Deaths Stop Family Altercation

CLEVELAND, April 19. (INS)—A family altercation of several days' duration ended in a murder and suicide here today, police say, when Morris G. Presser, 46, slashed his wife's throat and then shot himself. Their son, Max, 13, found the bodies when he returned home from school.

It was said at police headquarters that Mrs. Presser had reported to the police prosecutor that her husband had been beating her and that a summons had been issued for the man. Presser was a barber.

BRIEF SESSION IN LONG'S CASE

Impeachment Probe Recesses Until Next Week

BATON ROUGE, La., April 19. (INS)—With a brief session lasting little over an hour today, the Louisiana house of representatives probing the 19 impeachment charges against Gov. Huey P. Long, concluded the third week of the hearing and adjourned until Monday.

A vote originally scheduled today on one or more additional charges was deferred to next week, probably Tuesday, due to the delay of house auditors to gain access to records of the Louisiana highway commission.

Governor Long today denied reports published yesterday that he had boasted he controlled 14 state senators.

The house heard of the alleged demand that the Caddo parish school board withdraw its suit against the state before the governor would include a correction of a bill passed in error affecting the Shreveport airport project. The school board suit seeks to enjoin the district distribution of free school books.

GARNER SCORES TARIFF 'TIPS'

Texas Solon Raps Policies Of Committee

WASHINGTON, April 19. (UP)—An attack on the policies of the Republican members of the house ways and means committee in drafting of the new tariff bill was made on the house floor today by Representative Garner new minority leader.

"The progress of the executive meetings in drafting the bill become known to the country before minority members on the committee can get them," Garner said. "This is wrong and indefensible.

"The country should be told just what is going on for this wrong, indefensible policy enables men to make money," he said, referring to alleged leaks on proposed changes by the drafting committee.

"I don't believe the information that got out was given out intentionally but some one is getting information and I demand that Majority Leader Tilson or Chairman Hawley of the committee tell us the situation."

Tilson said no information had been given out by the committee.

Garner said he had received a letter from William H. Mason, Baltimore custom house broker, protesting against valuation changes said to have been made in the proposed measure.

Simultaneously it was learned the tariff commission sent the house committee a long document suggesting administrative changes in the new law, which emphasized the valuation controversy.

THEY ATE THE OPPORTUNITY

Daily Editorial

IF "WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA" competently estimates local achievement, about one person in four thousand has distinguished himself in arts or science or invention or commerce or husbandry or in the professions.

Think of it—one fortieth of one per cent who aren't crowd stature—who have attained celebrity of any sort!

Twenty-three thousand, three hundred and twenty-seven living notables out of one hundred and ten million people!

An Edison, with three thousand, nine hundred and ninety-nine original ideas to his credit and 3,999 contemporaries, averaging one noticeable career to the lot!

Yet, America's score, at that, heads the international card.

Present culture and civilization, in light of such a survey, is a shameful indictment of mass indifference and self-neglect.

Through what miracles might we not move, with forty-fold present active brain power—with a mere one per cent of us thinking and working at full pitch.

There's encouragement for you.

Set your imagination to task; send your initiative into action.

As far as ambition can see, there's space to let.

Industry has hardly pushed above foundations.

We aren't half way through the alphabet of possibility, much less writing final chapters.

Pharmacy hasn't even probed all the miracles in marrow.

One third of 67 recognized elements aren't on industry's payroll.

CALCIUM, a three per cent component of the earth's crust, is practically jobless.

Tantalum, tensile as platinum, incorrodible to all acids including the gold eaters; and titanium, more abundant than iron ore, far harder than steel and practically as light as aluminum, are simply begging for the first something-to-do.

Gallium melts faster than lead; beryllium is a demonstrably superior gliding medium; but both remain little better than foundlings of chemistry.

Fluorine, the best "mixer" in nature—a supremely sociable gas, a very mormon, quick to mate with any substance, which digests glass, dissolves metals, caporizes bricks or glazes, hardly gets into a manufacturing plant.

Surfeits of matter and dearths of mind!

That is why the Rockefeller institute has guaranteed premiums for the five millions of insurance on Dr. Banting's life.

There's something under his hat that isn't so abundant as calcium.

Ten thousand equally well-educated medicos had his same opportunity served to them on a plate, but they blindly ate their portions of sweetbreads while the discoverer of insulin extracted a specific for diabetes from his.

Abe Martin

(Copyright, John F. Dille Co.)

I'm continually readin' o' fellers who've made good in the city, but makin' good in a little town is the real test. Today, when I relax an' look back, I can't help thinkin' what a nice, clean show "The Black Creek" was.

A New York man, arrested as a pickpocket, told the court he was a bootlegger. A sneak thief? The idea!

A Singer Turns Farmer

MISS MARION TALLEY, who was blessed by nature with a voice of marvelous beauty, seems also to have been gifted with a good deal of discernment.

A few years ago Miss Talley, coming out of Kansas City to fame and riches as a star of the Metropolitan Opera company, was listed among that band of ardent young men and women who have "dedicated their lives to art." She began a brilliant career; and we lesser mortals, who have a sneaking feeling that following the fine arts must bring more satisfaction than any other kind of life, envied her greatly.

Now, however, she is retiring—retiring when, by all the laws of probability, her career could be continued for years and years. She will sing no more, she says, either in grand opera or on the concert stage. Instead she will travel through the Middle West, buy a farm and settle down to the pursuit of agriculture.

Did ever a young artist do anything like this before? Probably not; and, we repeat, it proves that the young lady from Kansas City has a great deal of discernment.

People who "dedicate their lives to their art," as the saying has it, do not do it primarily for the sake of the money they will get, or for fame and adulation. Those things count, of course; but no one worth his salt ever followed one of the fine arts for any other primary reason than the belief that he could make his life more satisfying, more full, more self-expressive, in that way than in any other.

But Miss Talley, who had several years' experience on the very pinnacle, gives it up at the height of her powers and prepares to retire to a farm. What more, she says she isn't just going to play at farming; she wants to get out and dig in the dirt, herself, and be a real farmer.

There are various ways of expressing oneself. It can be done by singing beautiful songs, by writing poetry, by carving statues out of stone, by painting pictures; and it also can be done in much homelier fashion, by getting close to the warm black earth and making oneself a close-range spectator of the satisfying, never-ending pageant of growth and fulfillment, death and rebirth, seeding and harvest. If a Verdi aria can lift one's soul up to the stars, and hint at the ultimate secrets, so can a field of ripening wheat.

There are more ways of expressing the faith that is in one than by following one of the arts. A spring morning in the country can be as soul-filling as the grandest music ever written. Miss Talley, more discerning than most, is able to recognize that fact.

Protection for Truck Growers

PLANS of the Wichita Falls Truck Growers association to ask the city council for an ordinance protecting them from the competition of itinerant hucksters do not seem unreasonable to The Record News. The association hopes to secure a city law which would prevent non-members from selling vegetables and fruits in wagons and other vehicles around the new municipal market which is to open here May 1.

Unless some measure of protection is provided by the city, the operation of the market will be made much more difficult. The expense and burden of securing and maintaining a central municipal market falls upon members of the association. Without some legal restraint, persons who are not members of the association would be allowed to reap all the benefits from the organization's work without assuming any of the responsibilities.

A proper city ordinance regulating the sale of produce will doubtless prove of benefit to the shopper, as well as to members of the truck growers association. Members of the association, as a matter of good business, if nothing else, will provide better service and more dependable merchandise than could be expected as a rule from the vendor who has no reputation at stake. The municipal market, if successful, will mean much to the prosperity of truck growers in the Wichita area. It deserves reasonable support from the city and its residents.

Wichita's Investment in Parks

CHARLES C. BUNNENBERG, city park superintendent, who told the Advertising club something of our investment in parks and playgrounds, is one city official to whom the gratitude of most Wichitans must ever go out for his accomplishments. Throughout the season, but more especially in the early spring, Wichita Falls' well kept, well landscaped and strikingly beautiful parks are as outstanding as any building or industry in the city.

Mr. Bunnenberg suggests to the Advertising club that adequate parks and supervised recreation do much to recommend a city to new industries and new residents. This must undoubtedly be true, but even if our parks added not one whit to the material values of the town, they are worth their keep for the relaxation, recreation and enjoyment they bring hundreds of Wichitans. Even under adverse conditions, the parks here compare favorably with those of any town in Texas, and possibly are not surpassed except by those of San Antonio.

According to the park superintendent, Wichita Falls has 580 acres in parks ranging from 270 acres down to one acre in size. Our space is inadequate. Mr. Bunnenberg should have twice as many parks to supervise and to add beauty to our city.

Disposing of Old Autos

WHERE do all the old automobiles go to? Sooner or later, after passing through three or four used car salesrooms, most of them hit the junk shops and are taken apart for the value of their material as scrap. But not all of them.

More people than you would think simply abandon old autos. In New York, 10 abandoned cars were picked up by the police in one day. They were old, ramshackle machines whose owners had simply parked them in the streets, removed their license plates and gone their way.

With more than 20,000,000 automobile owners in the country, this sort of thing might easily become a big problem. Yet even in the most ruinous old auto there is still a good deal of expensive steel and other metal. The engineer who can find a cheap way to salvage such material ought to be able to make a fortune.

No Sales Resistance

THE PLIGHT of Walter Cyr, the young farmer of Concordia, Kan., who tried to commit suicide in order to escape from the attentions of a persistent life insurance salesman, is a matter that ought to appeal to everybody. The whole country is divided into two classes—those who are insurance salesmen and those whom the salesman list as prospects. Each class should take a deep interest in the case of Mr. Cyr.

Cyr, it seems, had no sales resistance. When an agent approached he knew he would buy a policy. He knew, also, that he would let it lapse a little later. And he got tired of it. Finally, feeling himself on the verge of surrendering once more, he drank poison.

He's recovering now. And just what moral should be drawn from his story we haven't the faintest idea. Perhaps the insurance companies can suggest one.

TOONERVILLE FOLKS By Fontaine Fox

The Day Book of a New Yorker

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, April 19.—Were it not for the fact that I know personally of this condition and of the sincerity behind it, I would ignore it as another form of publicity.

But it is a fact that at least two young actresses of New York are interested in something more than the gay lights. Their chief interest, aside from the theater, is literature.

They are Peg and Pam Garvin, the two former Cleveland lassies who "Hey! Hey!" in Loew's vaudeville. Just now these two girls are enrolled in the home study courses of Columbia university extension and, between shows, study their lessons which they receive through correspondence when on the road. Both are turning out verse for the New Yorker and other smart publications.

"Believe it or not."

The New York authorities are considering Scotland's system of conducting city jails. Whether it keeps down crime, I don't know, but it certainly makes a jail more fearful a place than ever. And this isn't a Scotch "joke" either.

It seems that over in the bonnie land the wardens have instituted the policy of charging the prisoners rent, with the result that many hoosegows are empty.

There are some actors, now grown gray, who never achieved stardom and think back, perhaps with bitterness, to the days when old Miner's theater, as recorded here some time ago, burned down the same week it was to be reopened for a revival.

The bitterness I refer to was because that instrument of torture, the "hook," was first used on amateur nights in this theater. It was Miner's that took the lead in encouraging amateur thespians—and just as quickly discouraged them. The slightest indication of mediocrity and out came the hook.

An acute observer tells me that after making the rounds of the Broadway theaters he finds it opportune to start a campaign for the return of the hook—and not for amateurs, either.

A man by the name of Maurice L. Hopkins of Montreal, who says he has traveled all over the world on business missions, came to town the other day and made the astounding revelation that he has met people in some cities of the United States who "could easily pass for New Yorkers."

And what, I want to know, does a New Yorker look like! Yes, of course, in some places there is a popular superstitution that he wears horns on his head, and has a pitch-forked tail. In others there is the assumption that every New Yorker is a wise appearing, wise-cracking, worldly fellow. In others he is pictured as a bored, world-weary individual.

When I first came to New York I also had an idea that, for some obscure reason, a New Yorker looked different from anybody else. The average New Yorker doesn't. He is a hard working fellow, oftentimes a plodding fellow, who does his work and goes home and maybe, once in a great while, goes to a show.

One day, while on an assignment, I saw a fellow with all the aplomb and flash and smartness in the world.

"There!" I exclaimed. "The typical New Yorker!"

Then I went over and asked him his name, under the pretense that I thought I had seen him before. He confessed he came from some town out west that sounded like Wishswish, or some place like that.

Broadway, where you might expect to find the typical New Yorker, is flooded with people from out of town. If a census were taken at any particular time I'm almost willing to bet (particularly if it is during the theater hours) that there are more people from out of town on Broadway than there are natives of the city.

In all our leading professions the native New Yorker in New York is scarce. In journalism, on the stage, in many of the rackets they hail from out of town. It seems to me that every interview with an actor reveals he came from some place else and the number of newspapermen of New York nativity I can count on the fingers of my hands.

Where you find the majority of native New Yorkers—the really typical New Yorkers—are in their homes, at work, hurrying to and from work in the subways. To them New York is not a phenomenon but a place in which to live, to marry, to rear their children and, alas, to die.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Papa Heflin Meets J. Thomas Jr.
(Scene: The Senator's rooms in Washington).

The Senator (closing the door and facing his son): Well, a nice show you've been making of yourself. To think that a son of mine would ever . . .

PHILLIPS

Thomas Jr: Now, pop, don't start raking me over the coals. You said in the newspapers that you would receive me with open arms and forgive everything.

The Senator: Newspapers! Newspapers! Don't talk to me about newspapers! Did you see what they said about you?

Thomas Jr.: No; I know I got a lot of notices, but I didn't read them all. Were they good?

The Senator: Good? They were terrible! Why they even had you seeking an audience with Al Smith, calling him a good fellow and saying that I had a bug. What about that?

Thomas Jr.: No, father. I guess I did a lot of talking, but I don't remember saying you had a bug. You haven't a bug, have you?

The Senator: Certainly not.

Thomas Jr.: Well, then, why should I say so? Even if I did say so I retract it. I am glad to assure you, dad, that you have no bug. Is that satisfactory?

The Senator: How about these reports that you went on a jamboree and visited all those wicked night clubs?

Thomas Jr.: I remember going to Tex Guinan's place down near the Woolworth building and a lot of places in Greenwich Village, but I'm a bit vague about it. All I am sure of is that Greenwich Village is somewhere near Coney Island and that I reached it by the Hudson tubes. They had a dancing number there in which eight girls . . .

The Senator: Tommie!

Thomas Jr.: Oh, it wasn't so shocking.

The Senator: And did you, as reported, penetrate the sordid depths of Chinatown?

Thomas Jr.: Chinatown? Oh, yes; that's the Chinese settlement between the Hippodrome and West Hoboken. It's just north of the Pennsylvania hotel, as I recall.

The Senator: How about the story you got a black eye from a policeman?

Thomas Jr.: Was that a policeman? I remember he had on a uniform but I thought he was General Smedley Butler.

The Senator: Are you aware that Mrs. Emma Bole called you a horrible example, sir?

Thomas Jr.: Mrs. Bole? Mrs. Bole? I don't even remember being on a party with her. Is she the fifth from the end in Ziegfeld's new . . .

The Senator: Certainly not. What would Mrs. Bole be doing the fifth from the end in a Ziegfeld show?

Thomas Jr.: I haven't the slightest idea, dad.

The Senator: I would have you know that Mrs. Bole is one of the foremost temperance workers in this country.

Thomas Jr.: Well, then I didn't meet her.

The Senator: Now, my boy, I want to ask you one question: were you indulging in strong drink in New York?

Thomas Jr.: Father, I cannot tell a lie. All I know is what I read in the papers!

Subway News

The supreme court has denied the seven-cent subway fare plea in New York. Three justices dissented, or, in plain subwayese, refused to move out of the doorway.

The question is whether the Interborough will press the matter further or whether Mr. Hedley will shout, "All out! This suit goes no further."

Mr. Hedley's Mistake

He thought he saw a fare increase
Descending from a bench;
He looked again and saw it was
Another monkey-wrench.

Arkansas Combats Meningitis Spread

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 19. (UP)—The Arkansas state health department moved today to combat a spread of meningitis that has reached almost the stage of an epidemic over widely scattered parts of the state.

"The situation presents a serious problem to the state, county and city health authorities throughout the state," Dr. C. W. Garrison, state health officer, said in an official bulletin issued late today.

Sixteen deaths and 73 cases have been reported to the health department in recent weeks, Dr. Garrison said. The rapid spread of the dread disease has become alarming, especially in the storm-torn section of northeast Arkansas, he said.

VERY WEAK, COULDN'T REST

Lady Says She Believes Cardui Helped Her to Build Up Strength.

BRISTOL, Tenn.—"When I was 14 years of age, my mother gave me Cardui, as I was puny and did not have a good color, and I felt bad," writes Mrs. Gertrude Smith, of Cedar street, this city.

"Cardui helped me then. After I was married, I found that it helped me again.

"One spring, I was weak and nervous and all run-down. I could not sleep at night or rest in the daytime. I had my small children to care for, and I fretted all the time. Of course this did not help me, in my weakened condition.

"Cardui seemed to strengthen me, and gave me an appetite. I was able to sleep better at night. It built me right up, and made me strong enough to wait on my children and do my housework.

"When I hear of my women friends complaining, I am always glad to recommend Cardui to them. As a mother of eight children, I have many steps to take, and Cardui has been a great help to me."

Cardui may help you, too. Try it.

New Century Honors Five Clubs In Beautiful Affair at Cline Home

Friday afternoon the beautiful rooms in Mrs. W. D. Cline's home were massed with flowers when the members of the New Century club entertained the personnel of the Unity, New Century Junior, Twentieth Century, Century and 1922 Study clubs.

Massed roses and great bowls of Indian blanket that Mrs. C. B. Felder had gathered and brought to Wichita from the Austin vicinity made the drawing room gay. In the music room and the dining room, bluebonnets were used in abundance. The enormous bowl of bluebonnets on the long dining table was as fitting a floral decoration as could be used in the lovely Georgian room.

Mrs. C. W. Gilliland, president of the New Century, opened the afternoon program by calling the roll of other club presidents and greeting them graciously.

Mrs. T. T. T. Reese, vice president, called for the vice presidents and gave them the toast:

'Tis true we have no work to do,
'This true our fame is but reflected,
'Tis true we seldom must preside,
Yet none of us look much dejected.

Mrs. W. P. Belding, secretary, toasted the secretaries of the visiting clubs with—

All the deeds of a woman's club,
If kept in the minutes straight,
Call for the brains of an Edison
And not of an addle-pate.

Mrs. R. E. Shepherd gave a clever verse to the standing treasurers:

Welcome—keepers of the cash,
Oh Shylocks, bright and keen;
We might take a pound of flesh
And save your purses lean.

Next was the corresponding secretary, Mrs. T. P. Duncan, who had a clever parody on the "Charge of the Light Brigade":

Letters to right of me,
Letters to left of me,
Letters in front of me
Petitioned, entreated,
Mine not to question why,
Mine not to whine nor cry,
Mine but to make reply,
Brave, noble scribe.

Mrs. D. G. Whitney, federation director, begged Shakespeare's pardon as she toasted:

To federate, or not to federate, that is the question:
Whether 'tis easier in our clubs to suffer
The letters and appeals of various office seekers,
Or to take stand against federation,
And by inaction, quickly die. To die; to sleep;
No more; and by a sleep to say we end
The jealousies and the thousand natural shocks
That a club is heir to; so, the federation—
'Tis a consummation devoutly to be wished.

The club programs for the day bore a lovely print of one of Corot's paintings, very lovely and a beautiful souvenir.

The first number on the program was "Oh, That We Two Were Maying," sung in exquisite duet by Mrs. Tully and Miss Howell with Mrs. J. W. Akin Jr., accompanying. Their encore was as much enjoyed.

Mrs. R. W. Gutzler made a deeply interesting talk on Corot, one of the 12 favorite artists of the world. A Corot, "The Cows in the Marshes," bought in 1922 by Mr. Cline, was on exhibit and she demonstrated the silver grays, tender greens and soft browns with always the one spot of bright color used in Corot's work. She made her audience know the artist.

Mrs. Luke McCrory gave two piano numbers, "To Spring," by Grieg, and "To a Wild Rose," by McDowell.

An exquisite flute solo was given by Barton Dunning and then four little girls gave a Maypole dance with a Maypole crowned with bluebonnets. They were Francis Hope Hamilton, Nancy Jane Dillard, Helen Louise Anderson and Betty Joe Wright, accompanied by Sarah Creath.

Aleene Morrison gave a reading and dance very gracefully.

The hostesses present were: Mesdames C. J. Barnard, W. P. Belding, S. H. Burnside, W. D. Cline, Fred T. Couper, T. P. Duncan, C. B. Felder, J. A. Fisher, C. W. Gilliland, J. C. A. Guest, R. W. Study of Japan Ends Travel Club Program Season

An interesting program featured the last program day of the Travel club for the year, when members met Friday at the Woman's Forum clubhouse.

In Mrs. Ben G. Oneal's absence, Mrs. Q. B. Lee presided, and gave a talk on Japan's first modern emperor.

Mrs. G. L. Shapard read Mrs. Oneal's paper, "The Empire of the Rising Sun." Items of interest were discussed by Mrs. Bonner, and Mesdames Fraser, Cook, Clark, Dawson, Caldwell, Duff, Homer Lee, Thomas and Fulcher joined in this discussion.

Mrs. Henry C. Fulcher was welcomed as a new member of the club.

Guests were Miss Nan Duff of Glasgow, Ky., and Mrs. E. E. Averitte of Fort Worth, who is a member of the Sorosis club there.

Mrs. T. M. Conrey announced that the club would have a breakfast instead of a luncheon on April 27 at 9:30 o'clock. This is the social feature that ends the club season.

Mrs. E. T. Duff announced that Mrs. T. A. Hicks would be club librarian for the next year and Mrs. E. C. Will librarian.

Those present were Mesdames John T. Bonner, T. M. Conrey, C. H. Clark, John Caldwell, W. W. Cook, E. T. Duff, Arch Dawson, W. W. Fraser, Ola G. Hamlin, J. B. Hatchitt, Leslie Humphrey, W. P. ENJOYS HEALTH FOR FIRST TIME IN EIGHT YEARS, SHE STATES

"If only I had started Sargon eight years sooner, I could have saved suffering and money, for as soon as I began the treatment, I knew I had found the right medicine at last.

MRS. EMMA CAPPS

"Rheumatism in my arms, shoulders, back and lower limbs made my life little short of misery. I was almost hopeless of ever finding relief. Then, indigestion and constipation came on. My food would sour and ferment and the awful bloating and gases that came on after eating caused untold suffering, and made me terribly nervous and irritable. I lost weight, and was so weakened and generally run-down I could hardly stand on my feet for more than 10 minutes at a time. I started the Sargon treatment and my whole life changed. I hadn't finished the first bottle until it seemed I could feel strength and energy returning. Now, I eat hearty meals without a trace of suffering. The rheumatism disappeared. I sleep fine, my nervousness is gone, I have gained weight and I am so well and strong I can hardly realize I have ever been so run-down. For the first time in eight years am really enjoying life.

"Sargon Soft Mass Pills ended my constipation and biliousness, cleansed my system, and without nausea or sickness. I will always be thankful for having started this wonderful treatment."

The above statement was made recently by Mrs. Emma Capps, 3628 Millet street, Fort Worth.

Sargon may be obtained in Wichita Falls from the Renfro Drug Co., Eighth and Scott streets, No. 1 main store, and Seventh and Indiana, No. 2; in Electra from Lough's Drug store; and in Burkburnett from Burkburnett Pharmacy.—Adv.

The mocking birds have been singing so much of late. They wake us early with a flood of song and after the sun has gone down, they still praise the Lord about something. The mocking birds are celebrating something this spring. We wonder what it is.

◆ ◆ ◆

Speaking of praising the Lord, isn't it true that every man is sure his is the proper way to be a Christian? Religious feeling seems to be the most intolerant of forces.

Unless it is the different thoughts about what constitutes prohibition.

There's been one tragedy in town. We saw a dirty, grubby little boy, digging his fists into his eyes and snubbing aloud. Tears were making pathways down his cheeks. "What's the matter, son?" we asked. "I lost a quarter."

"We think sometimes that children do not have tragedies. But their little hearts don't forget some things. This child had a coal oil can in his hand and we rather suspected he feared punishment at home. But we remember when a whole family of children cried themselves to sleep because one had tumbled backward on a tricycle and crushed a little pup who had made himself dear to all our hearts. Why, he had rolled at our feet and wagged his tail deliriously whenever one of us spoke to him. Those children still mourn him.

◆ ◆ ◆

Snowballs are blooming now. They bloomed in our grandmother's garden. And red honeysuckle; we saw it also today. And there were pinks and bleeding hearts and pansies and a Marshal Neil rose that climbed to the roof at the end of the big double front porches and was heavy with fragrant, yellow buds.

◆ ◆ ◆

Country people—we mean the real country people who live far out from town and don't run in every day—spend so much time of winter evenings with the big mail order catalogs. Right now, women are pouring over seed catalogs—women in town—And they get out and dig in the dirt with their hands. There's nothing makes people more neighborly than when they are getting their window boxes and flower beds ready together.

◆ ◆ ◆

We've seen more 'crowning glories" of hair in the last week than for years. We attended the conference. There were really lovely coils on many heads—genuine crowns. We liked it.

They have put wrought iron lamp posts at the entrance and at the steps of one of the hospitals and they are truly artistic. We've seen them lighted—gleaming softly like round little moons.

If people were interested in everything like the majority of men are in baseball, what miracles could be accomplished! We watch them rush for the "baseball extra" and we hear them discussing the games all over the nation as we ride home. Women love the game, too. We will never forget one escapade of our own. We had a parasol and got so excited that we pounded vigorously with it when one of our boys made a home run. And we were decidedly crestfallen when a stranger beside us said seriously, "Madam, will you please take your umbrella out of my shoe."

Both Daughter and Mother Gain When Girl Shares House Chores

Should Children Be Spared the Burden of Housework?—Can a Wife Win Back Her Bachelor-Minded Husband—The Kind of Girl That Modern Men Like.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a poor woman with a large family, and as we can't afford to keep any help I do all of the housework. I overwork and the doctor says that I must not do so much. Now I have a daughter just entering her teens, but I do not want her to have the hard life that I have had, so I don't make her do any of the chores. The hardships of life come soon enough and I want her to spend her youth in play and pleasure, not in working. What is your idea?

—MOTHER.

Answer—I think you are wrong, and that it will be better for you, and far better for the girl herself, if you will let her help you with your work.

Your spirit of self-sacrifice is beautiful, but it is unwise and, like most sacrifices, it will be a boomerang that will return to annihilate you. For if you slave and let your daughter idle; if you do without everything to give to her, you will not only make her selfish, you will teach her to put you below herself and despise you.

Believe me, it is not the mothers who work themselves to death for their children and who sacrifice everything for their children whom their children admire and reverence and appreciate. On the contrary, the adored mothers are those who put themselves up on a pedestal and make their children serve them.

I have known many mothers who have gone shabby in order to dress their daughters like the Queen of Sheba, and the only result was that the girls were ashamed of mama. I have known mothers to work themselves into nervous prostration cooking and scrubbing and dishwashing so that their daughters might keep their hands beautifully manicured, and the girls ordered mama around like a servant and complained of the way she did up their silk lingerie and because she always smelled of the cooking.

So if you want to ruin your daughter and teach her to have contempt for you, go on doing all of the work while she loafs, but if you want her to love you and sympathize with you and understand you, teach her that she must help mother and save mother.

That won't curtail the pleasures of her youth. It will add to them. She will enjoy helping because it will make her feel important and grown up and of use in the world. And that is about the most satisfying feeling that any of us ever get. Besides this, it is a curious law of nature that the more we do for people the more we love them.

I think that parents always make a great mistake in not making partners of their children and in not making them feel that they are real factors in the happiness and success of the family, and that just as they are entitled to share in the good fortunes they should share in the bad.

People are always trying to keep things from children, especially when there is financial misfortune. I think this is wrong, and that if father and mother would talk it over with the children and explain why they couldn't have a car or go to a summer camp or have a new frock or gratify some other desire, it would take the sting out of the children's disappointment at being denied their heart's desire and they would acquiesce cheerfully in the sacrifices that father and mother were making.

I think from the time children are little tots they should each have their family responsibilities, the little jobs that they are capable of doing and that they should be held responsible for doing. This would not only teach them habits of efficiency, industry and reliability, but it would breed into them a sense of family loyalty. It would make them feel that they had a duty to the family and must do their part toward making it a success. I would have children brought up to feel that they must help beautify the home, they must help keep it orderly and clean and that they must help make it happy and cheerful.

There is no need for a mother with a house full of children to work herself to death unless she is a poor manager and a worse disciplinarian. Even very small children can be taught to wait upon themselves and to do little chores about the house, and children like to be usefully employed just as much as grown people do. I often visit in a home where there are three boys in their early teens who can cook and serve a beautiful meal. And why shouldn't they? Are not the best cooks and waiters men? And these boys adore their mother and are proud as punch that she can sit up and entertain company while they get the dinner.

So poor, tired mother, divide your burden among your children. The load that many shoulders bear is light for all.—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—What is the matter with the men of today? I have been married just three years and my husband came home one night and told me that he was tired of matrimony and wanted his freedom. He said I had been an ideal wife, but he just didn't want to be married. He left, and is now living in an apartment with two other men who work in his office, and he has a roadster and plays golf. But the queer part is that when he has anything to talk about he calls me up on the phone and we have dinner together, and he tells me about his investments, his troubles, his joys, etc. He never mentions divorce, neither does he mention going together. I never cross him, just advise him as I did when we were lovers.

When we parted, he volunteered to pay me $25 a week, what he claims I will make in an office, and there was nothing to do but to accept it. Do you think I am too easy and that if I told him he could not come back if he would want to come back.—SUE.

Answer—I doubt it. Evidently he has no strong affection for you. He only likes you as a friend and admires you as a woman, and he likes to have some woman to go to with whom he can talk over his personal affairs with a freedom he couldn't display with another man, but that is all. You don't inspire any feeling in his breast that makes him want to have you for his own.

There are a lot of men who are celibate by nature and who make a great mistake when they marry. To them a home is always a prison and a wife a jailer. They are always straining at their bonds, no matter how silken they are, and they are never happy until they break them. They chafe at the responsibilities of matrimony. Domesticity gets upon their nerves and the pity of it is that they don't realize this before they ruin some woman's life by marrying her.

Unfortunately the part-time husband is becoming very numerous and the only remedy for the situation is for their wives either to put up with them or else divorce them and marry some man who will not hear the call of the wild, but whom they can domesticate and teach to eat out of their hands.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—Does the young man of today prefer the indifferent, unsympathetic girl, or the sweet, sympathizing Jane who is always ready to offer her shoulder for Johnny to weep on?

—PUZZLED.

Answer—I don't think men ever like the girl who high-hats them. They like a girl who shows that she appreciates and admires them and one who is always ready to lend them an ear when they want to discourse about themselves.

Especially is this true of the spoiled young men of today. Dear Lady Disdain would never get a date if she pursued her tactics of snubbing the modern sheik.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Mother, who went to the city, once, to hear her, and who has never quite lost the thrill of that experience. And daughter, who now has an opportunity to hear her on her farewell tour. And each one will get the satisfaction of having heard her, as well as the day of hearing her wonderful voice.

Her's is a career that has been followed with interest and sympathy by thousands of admirers. And it is not to be doubted that those who come in after generations will want to hear stories of her singing, and of her no less wonderful personality, as the present generation likes to hear of the Booths, and of those other artists whose work is now done.

For 50 years Madame Schumann-Heink has been singing. In the meantime she has reared a large family, the country of her nativity and the country of her adoption have warred against each other, but still she has continued with her calling, losing very little time for the small matter of having a child, singing to the soldiers during the war, singing in joy or in sorrow. It is this majestic quality of her spirit, that makes it possible for her to "carry on," that caused her latest biographer to call her "The last of the Titans." She might as well have also called her "Greatheart," for the greatness and the simplicity of her work.

Operatic star, concert singer and mother, she has been for 50 years, now. Teacher, she has been and is to be. Great, in whatever role she plays.

The concert Monday evening in the Memorial auditorium will begin at 8:15 o'clock. Madame Schumann-Heink's accompanist will be Josefin Hartman Vollmer at the piano, and Joseph Lefkowits, violinist.

SIXTH AND NINTH INNING SPURTS ENABLE SPORTS TO WIN, 10-9

WILTSE SPOILS 8 TO 0 LEAD

Spudders Play Third Day Of Errorless Ball

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

SHREVEPORT, La., April 19.—Red Bennett thought he was back in the Western league today. It was the kind of a ball game the Western league, if you know your baseball, is noted for—its free and easy hitting. Our Spudders lost the pastime to the Sports of Shreveport, and it was a heart-breaker. J. Alvin Gardner almost suffered a relapse, William E. Huff chewed up 10 cigars and your correspondent fell out of the press box. That was how tough it was.

Going into the sixth inning with an 8 to 0 lead, Harold Wiltse lost effectiveness and the Sports scored seven runs off the southpaw and Cy Smith in that round. The Spudders tallied one in the ninth, but the Sports counted three in their half of the last round to win the ball game, 10 to 9.

Third Errorless Game

It was the third day in which the Spudders played errorless ball. They hit hard. But that one big sixth and that bad ninth enabled an inferior ball club to beat them.

Steengrafe yesterday was the first Spudder chucker to go nine innings this season, and Wiltse wilted after the fifth, which was as far as he had toiled in the spring. Hal gave up only three scattered hits in the first five innings, but a flock of passes and three hits in the sixth got him out of the ball game.

Big willing Cy then went to the rescue after hurling six innings Wednesday, and though he yielded a couple of hits which enabled two Sports who were put on base by Wiltse to score in the sixth, he retired the side in the seventh and eighth without difficulty. Then the Sports started another bombardment in the ninth, and Milt Steengrafe, who won yesterday, was rushed to the rescue. Jug Handle had two out when McClanahan hammered one of his curves that didn't break for the winning hit.

Thompson Finishes

The Spudders pounded Chief Wilkins off the hill in four innings with an attack of six hits at opportune moments that scored eight runs. Tiny Owens came back after yesterday's walloping and pitched well until he gave way for a pinch hitter in the sixth, and Lefty Thompson, the vintage left-hander, finished.

There was nothing wrong with the Spudders today. Just a couple of bad innings beat them, for, in addition to playing errorlessly, they hit hard, making 11 blows. Benton had two hits in three times up; Fitzgerald came out of his slump to hammer three singles and walk twice for a perfect day at bat; Stapleton banged two doubles, a single and sacrificed in five trips, and Hal Wiltse hit a home run, a tremendous drive over the right-field wall with two comrades on base.

How They Did It

Here is how the Sports won in the ninth, they were trailing, 9 to 7, to give them two out of three in the series: Cox, first up, singled to center and scored on Deviveros' double to left. Stewart also doubled to left, scoring Deviveros. Stapleton's fast play and throw on Tobin's bunt was a trifle late to catch Stewart at third, though the play was correctly executed. Steengrafe went to the hill. Starr batted for Thompson and Karpp ran for Tobin. Starr was tossed out by Steengrafe, with no advance by Stewart. Whelan was purposely passed, filling the bases. Stewart was out at the plate on Hutson's grounder to Stapleton. McClanahan hit safely to center, scoring Karpp with the winning tally.

The Spudders started the scoring in the first inning with a run, thanks to a hit, a base on balls and an error. Benton led off by smashing the first ball pitched through third for a single. Turgeon popped to Deviveros. Benton went to second on a passed ball. Fitzgerald was passed. Deviveros threw wide to second on Bennet's grounder to force Fitzgerald, Benton scoring.

Hal Wiltse whacked his home run in the second round, with Sullivan and Lapan, who had walked, abroad. Stapleton's sacrifice had sent Sully to second.

Whelan Starts Third

Whelan knocked down Fitzgerald's grounder and held it to a single to start the third. Bennett sacrificed, Wilkins to Whelan. Swenson drove Fritz home with a single to right-center. Galloway's gaiters added three more in the fo[illegible] Stapleton led off with a hit to right. Lapan fanned. Wiltse lifted [illegible] Stranahan. Benton strolled [illegible] fumbled Turgeon's [illegible] ing the bases. Fitz [illegible] d to center, scoring [illegible] Benton and sending [illegible] nd. Fitz and Turgeon [illegible] the double steal. Pete [illegible]

Wiltse Weakens

W[illegible] effectiveness in the [illegible] Sports did some scoring on their own account. Cox walked. Deviverous singled. Stewart and Tobin strolled, forcing home Cox. Woehrs batted for Owens and struck out. Wiltse and Lapan collided in front of the plate going after Whelan's pop, Deviveros scoring and Stewart going to third. Hutson singled to center, Stewart scoring, and Whelan going to second. Smith relieved Wiltse. McClanahan doubled to left, Tobin and Whelan scoring and Hutson going to third. Swenson threw out Holman, Hutson scoring. McClanahan taking third. Cox singled to center, scoring McClanahan. Deviverous forced Cox, Swenson to Stewart to end the Sport rally that had netted seven runs.

Tally in Ninth

The Spudders tallied in the ninth. Fitzgerald singled to right. Bennett laid down his third sacrifice. Swenson was out, Stewart to Thompson, and the pitcher, evidently thinking (if he was thinking at all) that the basses were cleared, tossed the ball into left field, Fitz ambling home.

NOTES OF THE GAME

SHREVEPORT, La., April 19.—Chick Galeria, the slender, bespectacled southpaw, probably will pitch the opener tomorrow at Fort Worth.

Today's game again was marked by brilliant fielding by Swenson.

It was a tough break for Smith to be charged with the defeat. In fact, it was a tough game to lose. Just one of those things that happens in baseball, however.

Give the Spudders effective pitching and they will be the pennant contenders they should be. Lack of condition is hurting the chuckers. None had pitched the full route until Steengrafe beat the Sports yesterday.

Miles Sets New Record In Marathon Classic

BOSTON, April 19. (UP)—Johnny Miles, a sandy-haired youth from Hamilton, Ont., nosed out three veteran long-distance stars on the home stretch today to win the 33rd annual Boston A. A. Marathon classic.

His time of 2:44:08 4-5 set a new record for the historic 26-mile course, being 3 minutes, 59 seconds faster than that of Clarence de Mar, who established the previous record last year.

Kaarl Koski and Willie Kyronen, both of the Finnish American A. C. of New York, fought a thrilling battle for the lead in the closing moments of the race. Although they were unable to match the man-killing pace set by the flying leader, they did succeed in finishing in record-breaking time.

Hoover Deplores Lack Of Unity on Farm Aid

WASHINGTON, April 19. (AP)—President Hoover deplores the lack of unanimity in the ranks of farm organizations over farm relief legislation on the ground that it only encourages those opposed to all farm relief. President Hoover said that if the farm aid question was to be taken out of the political field and transferred to the realm of economics, there was need for unity among the farm organizations.

Indianapolis Prepares to Welcome 500,000 at Annual Automobile Race

Many Foreign Racers Scheduled to Enter in Classic That Draw's America's Biggest Crowds; Starts May 30

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, April 19, (US)—Out in Indianapolis, the citizens find themselves in a ferment this early in the semester without knowing why. They are vaguely conscious of a simmering, and a bubbling going on among them, but no Indianapolisian, if that's what he is, could place his finger on the exact cause. Yet I, a stranger, detect it at once.

It is due to the sudden injection into their midst of an ingredient known as the Stephanus Hanniganus, or more commonly, Steve Hannigan. The Hanniganus is in Indianapolis insidiously steaming up Indianapolis' greatest sports event, which is nothing more or less than a 500 mile automobile race.

Occurs May 30

It doesn't take place until May 30, Memorial Day. But the Hanniganus begins working as soon as he has acquired his Florida tan, and I would say this is none too soon.

Personally, I have never been what you might call an automobile racing fanatic. I mean to say I do not go crazy over the pastime, though it carries the element of thrill. But I laugh haw-haw when I hear the sports enthusiasts from different sections of the U. S. A. telling with pride of the big crowds they turn out for football and baseball games, and prize fights, and hawss races.

I smile at the tales of 100,000 football fiends on the west coast, and the 80,000 in the Yale bowl. For the Indianapolis auto race generally draws close to the total of the two figures, which is to say 180,000. Maybe more. Maybe less. Put it at 150,000 and you strike a fair average year in and year out.

That is absolute "tops" in paid attendance at any sports event held in this country, and you can bet on it.

Bigger and Better

I do not know why. That is, I do not know why the auto race draws the biggest crowd that turns out for any event in the United States. The automobile is an old story with all of us now. It is commonplace. You might think that the public is so familiar with the automobile that it would lose the power to thrill any considerable number of paying clients, even when driven at the utmost speed.

But there it is, the Indianapolis race, a fixture of 17 years standing, and drawing bigger crowds every year. Why? Well, why the fascination of a race featuring the archaic bicycle, which packs Madison Square Garden in sophisticated New York night in and night out for a week hand-running every year?

Some used to argue that the reason the clients liked automobile racing, especially a race such as the 500 miler at Indianapolis was mainly because of the possibility of seeing someone killed. Since 1919, not one fatally has occurred on the Indianapolis speedway. The race lasts for five hours. They easily beat that record on the football field.

Automotive engineers, as we glibly speak of them at the club, assert that most of the improvements in the automobile today are due to automobile racing, which discloses construction faults, and suggests safety devices, but perhaps I am being to nonchalant.

Draws Foreign Drivers

Anyway, what I am driving at is that the Indianapolis race is a big proposition, and this year it is drawing a lot of the great foreign drivers to the zip-zipping. Prize money totalling $100,000 is hung up for the lads by the promoters of the race, and to the foreigners this is a lot of francs, marks, doubles, kroners, and bobs.

Louie Chiron, a Frenchman who is called the European champion, will be present poking at a French Delage, which is considered quite a bus in Europe. This Chiron drove 400 miles on the Monza course at Turin, in Italy, averaging more than 100 miles per hour for the distance. The Monza course is said to be comparable to the two and a half mile brick and concrete course at Indianapolis, where the record for the 500 miles is a fraction more than 101 miles per hour.

Peter de Paolo, nephew of the great Ralph de Palma, made this record in a Duesenberg in 1925. The Duesenberg is an American car that sells by the karat, I believe.

But it's a great car, at that. The Duesenbergs are scattered through American automobile racing history.

I take pleasure in assuring my Italian readers that they will be stoutly represented in the race. Gianfranco Comotti, of Sunny Italy, is coming over, but he is going to drive a French car. It will be a French Talbot. This is a convenience, because if he loses we can lay it on the car while if he wins it be due to the superior prowess of the driver.

Great Racing Rivels

It seems that over in Europe the Delage and Talbot cars are great racing rivals nowadays. Our American car makers do not go in for that racing thing as much as in former years. But when one of them does turn out a car for racing purposes it can generally fly. However, even Henry Ford was a racing enthusiast in his day, and backed the redoubtable Barney Oldfield, the greatest personality that ever sat in a racing seat, if not the greatest driver.

The front-wheel-drive, which Barney used long ago, is a popular experiment with the racing drivers, and some predict that the front-wheel-drive car will be the passenger car of the future. Barney tried to explain the thing to me out in Los Angeles several years ago when he was judging a race meet, but gadgets confuse me. All I remember about it is that Barney said it works great, and I'll take his word for it.

DEMPSEY PLANS BOUT IN JUNE

Promoter Seeks to Match Schmeling and Paulino

NEW YORK, April 19. (INS)—Jack Dempsey today offered to put Max Schmeling, German heavyweight champion whose contract he holds, on against any deserving heavyweight in the milk fund bouts here in June.

It is understood that the Dempsey-Fugazy-Cole combine wish to match Schmeling with Paulino but only under their promotion. Paulino's contract is held by the Madison Square Garden company.

Dempsey said that he wanted to put on the bout at the Polo Grounds, but if the Garden would not release their lease on this location for the night, he would go to Ebbets field in Brooklyn.

May Fight in Spain

BARCELONA, Spain, April 19. (INS)—A prize fight between Max Schmeling of Germany, and Paulino Uzcudun of Spain, two contenders for the world's heavyweight championship, may be a sporting feature of the Barcelona exposition, International News Service learned today.

It is understood that Schmeling has already given his consent to the sporting committee of the Palace Sporting club to fight. The committee is anticipating a favorable reply from Paulino.

SHREVEPORT, La., April 19.—The Shreveport Sports were viewed as dark horses by critics as the Texas league campaign got under way. They still are that, and nothing more. Wichita Falls fans will see a promising and fast club when the Sports open our home season next Tuesday. But after viewing the Sports in the first series here, my opinion is that the loyal enthusiasts of this city will have to wait still another year before they see a pennant winner.

That the Sports will finish in a respectable place, however, is certain, and they will be contenders for third with nothing worse than fourth probably as their finishing place.

The Sports are depending upon an aged pitching staff, and vintage hurlers always are uncertain, even as the rookies. Several Sport hurlers HAVE pitched ball that will win in the Texas league. Whether the chuckers come through will be determined in hot weather, which is to the liking of the veterans. They are well placed over here. July weather prevailed on opening day and it has been little cooler the past two days.

Joe Brown heads the slab corps. He won 17 and lost nine games last year, a fine performance. Homer Owens, Oscar Tuero, Henry Wilkins, Silas Williamson, Francis Karpp and Harry Thompson all are veterans. Wilkins, 26, is the youngest pitcher. Thompson is listed as 36; he is all of that. A fine relief pitcher is Thompson, and for four or five innings almost invincible.

Frank Tobin is the only experienced catcher. He isn't the best in the league, but is, withal, a capable receiver and a very good hitter.

The infield is fair. Whelan is a brilliant fielder and good hitter, and is all that could be desired at first base. Stewart, a rookie, has not looked so good at second base. He needs lots of tutoring on how to play his position. Holman is a very good third baseman. Deviveros is a smart shortstop and should help Stewart learn the fine points of keystoning.

Of the rookies, Peter McClanahan looks the best. He has impressed with his hitting and seems to be a capable fielder. Hutson, another kid outfielder, has possibilities.

Dick Cox, the only experienced gardener, has been an excellent ball player for several years. He hasn't slowed up yet, either. Dick is a rather uncertain hitter. He has his big days and his bad ones. He may hammer three or four hits one game and go hitless the next. Dick is in fine condition, hustling and fielding well, and is the best asset of the Sports, except possibly for Brown.

Lack of a smashing, driving batter or two probably will be the greatest factor in preventing the Sports from being pennant contenders. There isn't a real cleanup hitter on the list. Holman, batting fourth, is anything but a clouter required of the man hitting in that position in the order, such as Jenkins and Bennett. Cox batted .329 last year and hit only eight home runs. So it is apparent that he is not the hard-hammering fellow so badly needed by the Sports.

Of course, it may be that McClanahan will prove to be a tremendous hitter and that Stewart comes through as a satisfactory second baseman. And that the veteran pitchers will hurl winning ball. In which event the Sports will be pennant contenders.

But as they look now, they are nothing more than possibilities. But they will play fast and interesting ball and they will be dangerous to other clubs holding flag aspirations.

Graham Downed 32-0 In First Game

Special to The Record News

OLNEY, Texas, April 19.—The Olney Cubs won their first spring practice football game here today, defeating Graham high 32 to 0. Olney made 15 first downs to Graham's three. The Cubs completed five passes out of six attempts, while Graham completed three out of eight attempts.

Touchdowns made were as follows: Goode 1, Ellis 1, Furr 1, Atchley 2.

Olney's line showed up well, making holes in the Graham defense and holding their opponents to only one first down through the line. Wix and Atchley were consistent ground gainers while Perkins, Dees and Wright formed a strong defense. Curtis and Price starred for Graham. Coach A. S. Acker used 25 men during the game. Olney's prospects for another district championship team promise well.

The Barrier

Dear Sir: Why is it that some of us, who love certain games so well, seem to have no knack for them at all? L. P. F.

I hear the young wind sighing through the trees,
I see the dogwood blooming down the lane;
The world around is full of melodies
That call across the sunshine and the rain;
The pipes of Pan call to me in salute,
And April music whispers all day long,
So why must I, who like to sing, be mute
Or find but endless discord in my song?

There stands the barrier, closing out the trail,
Where shadows drift in from some ghostly cast,
Where we can only dream—to try—and fail
And try again as long as dreams will last,
Hoping some day that we can crush regret
With some new skill that comes to pay its court;
There is the sea we wish to sail—and yet
The years rush by and we are far from port.

Pitchers as Managers

In regard to Walter Johnson's managerial outlook, a bystander wishes to know whether or not any great pitchers ever became successful managers. Clark Griffith, Johnson's boss, was a great pitcher and he won a pennant for the White Sox and later on came within a game of winning a pennant for the Yankees. Later on Grif did well enough with Cincinnati in the days when finishing sixth was doing pretty well in Cincinnati. He finished above that mark.

Christy Mathewson was moving along nicely at Cincinnati as team leader when the war broke and he later returned to the Giants. There isn't a manager in baseball who has more neutral fans pulling for him to win than Johnson has. Old Barney stands as one of the great characters of the game—great because of his character as well as his right arm.

Griffith's Recruit

Clarke Griffith brought his New York Yankees to Atlanta one season for spring training with an open list at first base. The team had been there several days and the young rookie hadn't shown up Yet Griffith had already given him the job in advance. It was the first time on record that a rookie had been awarded a place among the regulars without even putting on a big league uniform. "How do you know he'll make good?" I asked Griffith.

"From everything I've heard about him," said Grif, "he'll do something more than make good. He'll be the best first baseman baseball ever saw. I'm not even working up a subetitute in case he happens to be a flop. I've never seen him in a big league uniform under big league fire, but I only wish I had one or two more in other jobs as good as this bird will be."

The rookie who had made good before he arrived happened to be named Hal Chase.

Spring Football Practice

There is a big difference of opinion concerning spring football practice. Princeton has called it off. The Yale News thinks it is over-emphasizing football.

On the other side, Pop Warner says it is the finest form of college sport, for these reasons—

1. It is great exercise and training.
2. It gets no publicity.
3. It calls for no road trips.
4. It stirs up no intercollegiate rivalry.

The only sane system is to put the whole matter up to the student. If he wants to go in for spring football practice it is all that Pop Warner calls it. If the student doesn't want to go in for spring practice, but would rather select some other sport, that choice also should be left him.

There are two sides to this question—the same as a plank. Most of it depends upon the individual's viewpoint—meaning the individual most concerned. But as Hek once remarked, "It is better to train today than to wait for tomorrow to be outclassed."

There are many, knowing the terrific pressure that will be placed on them next fall, who want to be ready to meet this pressure. There are others who are not so deeply interested in what happens next fall.

This is a choice that can be left up to the individual student.

Today's Golf Lesson

Watch the average golfer and see how many are hitting against themselves—hitting against their own weight.

As the swing with them starts to the right their weight is coming to the left foot. This merely means subtracting in place of adding. No living human can get any power in the stroke with the swing going in one direction and his body weight going in another. Not unless he can crash the laws of gravity, kinetic balance and the application of centrifugal force.

Health And Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper

(Copyright 1939 by The Bell Syndicate Inc.)

(This is the fifth of a series of articles called "A Cleansing Spring Diet," which started in Tuesday's Record News).

How Fruits Help Elimination

This day will be the second day of your elimination diet, and by this time you have probably lost the craving for other foods besides the orange juice. Oranges really contain a considerable amount of nourishment which is mostly made up of some fruit sugar and valuable organic salts and vitamins.

In addition to the tremendous amount of elimination which is going on through all of your eliminative functions, I am sure that a great deal of food somes from the blood changes which are produced because of the calcium and vitamins which your blood is able to easily assimilate from the orange juice with almost no effort.

Blood Changes

The quality of your blood always improves during a fruit fast. This can be easily seen if you have frequent blood examinations made during the time you are on this curative diet. There is a decided and rapid increase in both the color of the blood and the number of red blood cells. There is also a corresponding decrease in the white blood cells if they have been in excess. These white cells are body scavengers and they rapidly decrease in numbers as soon as the increased elimination is well established.

Any pus pockets in the body are drained through the lymphatic circulation. Rheumatic toxins are more rapidly eliminated, and the liver and gall bladder pour out their secretions more copiously.

Grapefruit If Desired

Excellent results can be obtained through using the grapefruit juice in place of the orange juice, and this is especially to be recommended for those having any kind of liver derangements. If you will chew out the juice from the skin of the grapefruit you will be able to get the benefit of the organic elements and oils which have a stimulating effect upon the liver elimniation.

Tomorrow you can try substituting the grapefruit for the orange juice, or using it part of the day and the orange juice the rest of the time.

Be sure to continue drinking large quantities of water, using at least a glass every half hour from the time you get up in the morning until the time you go to bed.

Grapefruit Tea

An additional change can be made by using the skin of the grapefruit to make an infusion of grapefruit tea. This is made by pouring boiling water over the grapefruit skin and allowing it to stand for a few minutes until the oil and the organic elements are extracted. Use fruit jars or earthen dishes for this, and not metal ware.

This grapefruit tea will have a slightly bitter taste, due to the organic glucoside "Naringin," but you will find it helpful in producing more biliary elimination, and this change will also help you in drinking more water.

Be sure to keep up your enemas and sponge baths, also the deep-breathing exactly as I advised you to do on the first day of these instructions. To be sure you get it right, I am going to re-write the regime I gave you on the first day.

Instructions Repeated

Upon arising, brush the teeth vigorously for about five minutes using a stiff brush and any good tooth powder or dentrifice. Take a few deep-breathing exercises before an open window. Next, take an enema, using a quart of warm water, followed by a warm or cold sponge or shower bath. Use the cold water if you get the proper flush of blood to the skin. Next, drink an eight-ounce glass of orange juice, and repeat about every two hours during the day. This is the only food you are to have.

Use at least one eight-ounce glass of water every half hour until bedtime, but take more if you can.

Use another enema and shower before retiring at night.

You can go about your regular duties as usual, and will notice no particular symptoms except possibly a slight headache which will pass away after the first day or two and must be endured without using any headache remedies.

These same instructions are to be followed also on Monday when another article will appear giving you next Tuesday's instructions.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Ear Noises

Question—Hopeful writes: "Have had whistling noises in my head for over one year, following a severe illness. Frequently get a tired feeling in the heart. Would it be injurious for me to work in a place where the air is filled with gold dust which is printed on labels? My lungs are not any too strong. I am 24 years old."

Answer—I am sending you an article on ear noises, together with fasting and dieting instructions. The breathing of the air filled with the gold bronze can certainly not be healthful, especially if the lungs are affected, but I do not believe this would cause your ear noises.

Two Black Crows

MORAN AND MACK

MORAN: What job is yo' got now in th' talkies?

MACK: I'm an echo.

MORAN: What's that?

MACK: I asks a man fo' a job.

MORAN: Yes.

MACK: He says no. An' I echo it.

MORAN: A man asked me if I wuz a ventriloquist.

MACK: Doesn't yo' know what that is?

MORAN: No.

MACK: A ventriloqwist is a man what is too crooked to give his dummy th' right answers.

MORAN: Should I take th' job?

MACK: Sure. Yo' wouldn't know th' answers if yo' heard 'em.

MORAN: Is yo' workin'?

MACK: Why bring that up?

Soviet Fails Third Time on Disarmament

GENEVA, April 19. (INS)—For the third time, Soviet Russia has failed to induce the League of Nations preparatory disarmament commission to treat seriously its proposals for general disarmament by land, sea and air.

A sub-committee, speaking for the commission, announced that the body now in session here is incompetent to deal with the soviet's disarmament program, consequently, it was referred to some future arms parley.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, April 19. (AP)—An early advance in cotton today on relatively steady cables was followed by declines under a renewal of near month liquidation combined with some local and southern selling. July contracts sold off from 19.68 to 19.48 and closed at that figure, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 5 to 15 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 8 points to a decline of 4 points, with active months soon showing net gains of 6 to 12 points on covering by recent sellers, trade buying or near positions and some commission house demand for the later months. This buying evidently was influenced by the relatively firm showing of Liverpool and some uncertainly as to weather developments over the week-end, while the advance was accompanied by talk of a firmer technical position. Reports that a levee south of Helena, Ark., was under a strain also caused comment. Demand tapered off around 20.34 for May and 19.80 for December, and prices worked lower during the afternoon.

There seemed no sufficient certainty of unfavorable weather developments over Sunday to offset the favorable showing of the day's weather map, and as prices worked lower there probably was liquidation or reselling by early buyers.

The close was at the lowest, showing declines of about 15 to 20 points from the high level of the morning on most positions.

A report that curtailment of production was to become effective Monday in some German mills, and continued unfavorable trade reports from Manchester possibly may have been contributed factors on the decline, which, however, was most generally attributed to the near month liquidation and the more favorable view of the prospective new crop start. Cable advices from Liverpool said there had been covering, trade calling, and some replacing in that market, but asserted that sales of cotton cloths were below production and that more looms were becoming idle.

Exports today, 25,826, making 7,184,018 so far this season. Port receipts, 8,208. U. S. port stocks, 1,477,941.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, April 19. (AP)—Cotton prices worked off approximately $1 a bale from an early advance today due to liquidation and realising in the process of transferring from old to new crop months. As a result the latter positions were slightly steadier. July, after advancing to 19.69, eased off to 19.45 and closed one point above the latter figure for a net decline of 13 points. The general market closed barely steady at net losses of 11 to 13 points.

Liverpool cables were relatively steady and first trades here showed gains of 7 to 8 points in response. Prices continued to advance after the start under buying promoted by map indications of unfavorable weather in the belt in the near future. July sold up to 19.68 and October 19.60, or 8 to 10 points above the previous close.

Subsequent selling in the afternoon carried May down to 19.40 and July 19.45, or 21 to 24 points under the early highs. Later positions were relatively steady, however, due to the transferring process. October traded off to 19.40 and December 19.46, or 17 to 20 points below the early highs. Final prices were within a point or two of the lowest.

Reparations Crisis and Drop In Brokers Loans Dampen Stocks Ardor

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, April 19. (AP)—The stock market again was becalmed today as speculative enthusiasm waned with the negligible drop of $2,000,000 in brokers loans and the critical stage reached by the reparations conference.

With many larger corporations looking to foreign markets for the maintenance of their high rates of production, particularly the automobile manufacturers, the turn taken by the negotiations in Paris did not inspire confidence.

The call money rate held at 7½ per cent. Time money also was a little easier. An unexplained meeting of the federal reserve board with the federal advisory council in Washington, however, caused uncertainty, although the meeting was thought generally to have bearing on reparations rather than speculating credit.

Business news remained generally favorable.

Total sales on the stock market again fell off to near the 3,000,000-share level, about 700,000 shares under yesterday's turnover. About a score of important issues made substantial headway, but as measured by Associated Press price indices, gains and losses about cancelled each other.

Pan American B again was a strong spot in the oils, climbing 3 points to another peak. New Haven nearly duplicated its high of the year.

Coppers again turned heavy, Anaconda, Greene Cananea, and Calument and Arizona losing 2 or 3 points.

Commodity markets were easy. Wheat dropped about 2 cents a bushel, than rallied on reports of better export demand. Cotton futures closed barely steady as some selling came into the market on reports of better weather. Sugar futures sagged slightly.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 19. (AP)—Responsive to breakdown of war debt parleys and to indications that bullish effects of farm legislation would be remote, grain values underwent setbacks today. On the general drop in prices, May delivery of wheat fell to below any level heretofore reached this season. Subsequently in various quarters, however, the collapse of the reparations conference was interpreted as likely to improve domestic credit conditions, and a decided rally in grain prices followed.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 1c lower, with corn varying from ⅛c decline to ⅝c advance, oats ⅛c off to ⅝c up, and provisions unchanged to 7c down.

CHEESE PLANT RECEIPTS GAIN

16,000 Pounds Daily Offered to Kraft Company

Increased numbers of cows on the lists of regular milk producers in the community, rapidly increasing supplies of grass in the pastures and a considerable addition of new accounts have resulted in a 50 per cent increase in daily milk receipts at the Kraft cheese factory during the last month, it was stated Friday. The total deliveries to the cheese plant now total about 16,000 pounds daily, it was said.

Another carload of tested high-grade Jersey milk cows arrived this week to be added to the herd maintained by J. M. Baber on the Petrolia road for sale to farmers in this section of the country. Financing arrangements for the purchase of these animals are made by the agricultural commmittee of the chamber of commerce, and several hundred have been added to Wichita county herds during the last year.

With much cotton planted, and some of it up, farmers of the county report a decided need for more rainfall. It was estimated that the cotton acreage in the county will be about the same as that of 1928, but that much more ground will be devoted to feed crops all over the county.

Cotton declined further, dropping to 18.15 cents per pound, middling basis, with local buyers.

PHILOSOPHERS HEAR OF EDEN

'Super Medicine' to Control Human Destiny

PHILADELPHIA, April 19. (INS)—A future Eden where misery and disease will be unknown, where a "super-medicine" will control human destinies, regulate man's physique and endow him with genius, destroying the theory of heredity as a thing apart from environment.

This was the picture conjured up today in the minds of attending members of the American Philosophical society's 203d annual meeting here by Dr. Oscar Riddle of the Carnegie laboratory.

The foundation of the supermedicine has already been laid by experiments with developing animals, Dr. Riddle said, reviewing the results of the scientific interference in the early development of living creatures.

He stressed the fact that experiments have proved the fallacy of the heredity-apart-from-environment theory and have shown that the germs of molecules of inheritance, known as genes, act and interact, chemically and electrically, in their earliest existence in the single cell.

The war of heredity arrayed against environment no longer exists, Dr. Riddle told the meeting, pointing out that the experimentalists now study creatures in the laboratory with the primary object of tampering with the intimate chemistry of their being in the early stages of existence.

Gigantic Blast Loosens Iron Ore

PALMER, Mich., April 19. (UP)—The greatest blast ever set off in this Lake Superior mining country today loosened a season's supply of iron ore from a hillside near here.

After weeks of preparation, during which more than 100 tons of powder was planted in approximately 1,000 holes, the project was ready for trial late yesterday.

Three miles of fuse was lighted. Workmen hastened away in automobiles and then came an explosion that shook the countryside over a 10-mile radius.

Mining engineers said the great blast was a success and estimated that 600,000 tons of iron ore had been torn from the hillside and deposited in an open pit.

More than $100,000 was spent in preparing for the blast.

STATE CLOSES DONOHOE CASE

Prosecution Rests in Trial Of Wilbarger Youth

Special to The Record News

VERNON, Texas, April 19.—The state closed its case late today in the trial of Vernon Donohoe for the murder of Herman Walden, Hill Top youth last February. Testimony gathered included nothing sensational, the outstanding points being the statements of Walden's father and brother, who told of conflicting stories having been given them concerning the whereabouts of the youth after he had disappeared.

Before adjourning until Saturday, the defense put on six character witnesses.

Walden's father said he had talked with Donohoe on Monday after his son had disappeared Sunday, and that Donohoe told him he had left the boy at the Humble Oil company camp. The son said Donohoe had told him that he (Donohoe) had left Herman at Hill Top.

Herman's body was found the following Friday in the Minnas creek breaks.

Storms Strike Texas Towns

injured in a tornado that struck the Sand Flatt community, five miles southeast of here, early tonight.

A search through the darkness for the injured was being conducted late tonight by residents of the community, aided by rescue workers from Cleburne.

An ambulance brought two injured persons to the Cleburne sanitarium and returned to the scene of the twister after the report that the baby had been killed.

Names of none of the injured were available. The exact number of persons injured had not been learned several hours after the storm.

The storm was accompanied by a heavy rain. At Cleburne the streets stood two feet deep in water in many places.

RAIL STATION AT PARIS WRECKED

PARIS, Texas, April 19. (AP)—Half of the Texas and Pacific warehouse, a block long, one-story brick structure, was demolished and other damage done by a tornado that struck Paris at 8:30 tonight and blew for 30 minutes. No injuries were reported.

The railroad warehouse, half of which was occupied by the Texas and Pacific passenger station, was blown down and bricks scattered over a wide radius. The wind appeared to have struck the structure with greater force than at any other point in the city. The station half of the building scarcely was damaged.

Trees were blown down in all parts of the city and hundreds of window panes shattered by the gale. Several buildings were reported blown over and all street lights were broken.

Only a sprinkling of rain accompanied the blow, which came from the south.

RAIN AND HAIL IN TWO STATES

Light showers and hail storms over southern Oklahoma were reported by the Wichita Falls dispatcher of the Katy railway Friday night.

A heavy shower which was accompanied by light hail was reported along the Katy lines at Wellington, Texas, Friday afternoon about 5 o'clock, while light showers were reported to have fallen around Woodward late Friday.

No damages from heavy winds were reported along the Katy lines into Oklahoma, by the local dispatcher.

Other railway dispatchers here had received no reports of storms early Friday night.

TORNADO SWEEPS GRANT COUNTY, OKLA.

ENID, Okla., April 19. (AP)—Missing the centers of population, a tornado ripped through the northern part of Grant county late today, demolishing barns, and disrupting lines of communication. A check failed to reveal any persons injured.

Earlier in the day another tornado struck in Harper county near Buffalo, seriously injuring Mrs. E. H. Billings and her 16 months old infant. The woman and child were found almost 100 yards from where the Billings home had stood.

The Harper county storm did little damage, aside from that at the Billings farm.

Kay Bible Class to Broadcast Sermons Over Station KGKO

All future Sunday morning sessions of the Kay Bible class of the First Methodist church will be broadcast through station KGKO, according to a report given by the radio committee of the class before a meeting of the board of directors held Friday night. The directors endorsed the recommendation, and will ask the class Sunday morning to ratify the program, it was stated.

A committee, consisting of Ralph Deshong and G. A. Remington, was requested by Oral Jones, president, to draw up a constitution and by-laws for the Kay Bible class. Erwin F. Bohmfalk, education director of the church, was instructed to make preliminary plans for a class banquet to be held within the next few weeks.

It was announced at the meeting that Dr. H. D. Knickerbocker, formerly pastor of the First Methodist church, and organizer of the Kay Bible class, will be present at the meeting of the class Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

BAYLOR CLUB HOLDS BANQUET

Paul Hines Named President of Association

In an address that summarized the past and present achievements of Baylor university and foretold its progress in the future, Dr. W. S. Allen, dean of the university at Waco, Friday evening greeted an assemblage of 69 Baylor alumni, their parents and the special guests of the Wichita Falls Baylor club, at the annual alumni banquet given at Ye Olde French inn.

The speaker told of the leadership of the 30,000 students who have been registered in the Baylor halls. He said that one-eighth of the missionaries in foreign fields have gone out from Baylor, that one-one-ninth of the teachers and one-tenth of the principals in Texas schools are Baylorites, and that Baylor alumni have been preaching in Texas for 83 years. Discussing the present development of the institution, Dr. Allen told of the $2,000,000 fund now being raised in Waco and by the Baptist churches of the state for the endowment of the university. He concluded his address with a glowing picture of the future of the institution and its value to the coming generation.

The banquet Friday evening was opened with the singing in chorus of "The Good Old Baylor Tune," the university song. Fred Barron, retiring president, presided and acted as toastmaster, welcoming the guests. Miss Loraine Mathis gave two violin selections, and R. E. Shepherd, accompanied by Mrs. Shepherd, sang three songs.

Dr. George T. Singleton discussed the progress of the Baylor medical branch at Dallas during the past 25 years.

At the close of the entertainment the members of the Wichita Falls Baylor club elected Paul Hines president for the coming year, Leo Sellers first vice president, Dr. George T. Singleton second vice president and Mrs. E. S. Carter secretary and treasurer.

ZUNDY PUPILS GIVE CONCERT

Auditorium Crowded For Excellent Program

By W. L. UNDERWOOD
The Record News Staff

Student musical organizations of the Zundelowitz Junior high school scored a distinct success before an audience which crowded the school auditorium to capacity Friday night on the occasion of the annual spring music concert, given under the direction of Mrs. Hermione S. Vaughan.

A conspicuous part of the entertainment was a chorus of 60 voices, chosen from the seventh and eighth grades, which opened the program with a rendition of the complete score of "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow," set to music by Wilson. The performance involved solos in different parts, choral movements in both girls' and boys' sections, and mixed choruses. The young singers sang the entire cantata by memory, followed their director closely, reflected the changing moods of the story, and phrased admirably. The thorough training revealed in their rendition complimented both the student musicians and their director. Soloists were Helen Roberson, Winnie Beth Beaty and J. Paul Lynn.

The second part of the concert was a varied program of instrumental and voice numbers. "Dancing Dolls" (Seredy), and "Sobre Las Olas" (Rosas), were played by the school orchestra under the direction of Irma Cline and Margaret Spangle, respectively. Two trio numbers were given by Misses Irma Cline, Helen Roberson and Fay Humphries. A group of effective costume songs was used, including "Honey Town," sung by Jack Peterson, Carl ten Brink, Albert Owen, Charles Gwinn, James Hill and Davis Metcalf, attired in the trim uniforms of Boy Scouts; "Alice Blue Gown," with seven girls in old-fashioned gowns and polkbonnets of "the crinoline days," and the girls' glee club in elaborate character and national costumes, singing "Funeral March of a Marionette," by Gounod. A sextet of older boys, composed of J. Paul Lyon, Chester Hampton, Orville Malone, Jerome Jenkins, Frank Adair and Truett Oakes presented a pleasing group consisting of "Down in Sunshine Valley," and "Pale in the Amber West." Lucille Snyder, accompanied by Mrs. Joe Crouch, played Kreisler's "Liebesfreud," as a violin solo.

A feature of the concert was the work of Miss Jo Catherine Gee, an eighth grade pupil, who accompanied the chorus on the presentation of Part 1 of the program with surprising comprehension and excellent support in all parts of the score. Other accompanists for the evening were Mary Marie Dollard, Meryl McBee, Juanita Ferguson and Mary Frances Walker.
