Air traffic controller strike averted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A nationwide strike by air traffic controllers was averted today after all-night negotiations produced a tentative contract settlement just two hours before the threatened walkout.

The agreement was announced by the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization and confirmed by the Federal Aviation Administration.

Controllers around the country reported for work as usual as the 7 a.m. EDT strike deadline passed. A strike would have grounded about half the nation's commercial flights, costing the airlines an estimated $80 million to $100 million a day and the economy in general two to three times that much.

Airport control towers reported normal operations with no major delays and airlines told passengers who had made backup reservations to use regularly scheduled flights.

Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis told reporters at mid-morning, "We're very pleased to report that we have reached an agreement subject to ratification by the union membership ... It is fair and equitable and one that all parties can accept."

Union president Robert Poli said, "I'm pleased with the settlement of the contract. I'm tired; but I feel good about it." He said members would vote on the tentative pact next week and that it would take an additional week to count the mail ballots.

Lewis said the 42-month contract would cost the government $40 million, the same figure the administration had offered. The union had sought a contract worth $770 million, but Poli said that "under present economic conditions, I feel it's the best we could achieve." He said he was convinced that President Reagan would not endorse any additional money.

The union had sought $10,000 raises for the controllers, who average $34,000 a year, with a low of $20,500 and a high of $49,200.

Lewis estimated the tentative pact will provide each of the nation's 17,000 controllers an average, immediate pay hike of $4,000.

He said the average salary increase in the first year would be about 6.6 percent, in addition to the increase of approximately 4.8 percent that all governmental employees are due to receive this year.

The controllers' workweek will fall from 40 hours to 36, although they will still be paid for 40 hours, four of the hours as overtime. The union had sought a 32-hour workweek.

The union also won a voice in FAA decisions affecting controllers and an increased night pay differential.

The increased voice in FAA policy matters was a key in the settlement, Poli said, adding that the way was eased by government acceptance of a redistribution of the money in the $40 million package the administration had offered.

The settlement is subject to ratification by the 4,800 unin controllers and approval by Congress.

Chapman pleads guilty

NEW YORK (AP) — Mark David Chapman pleaded guilty today to the murder of former Beatle John Lennon. The 26-year-old avid Beatle fan said God had told him to change his plea, his lawyer said.

"Mr. Chapman's decision to plead guilty was his own decision. He made it against my advice and he made it principally on the ground that on June 8th and June 10th that God told Mr. Chapman to plead guilty," lawyer Jonathan Marks told the crowded courtroom.

"When God told Mr. Chapman to plead guilty, the decision was essentially made and I was removed from the decision-making process," said Marks, who had planned a defense that his client was insane when the shooting occurred.

Acting Justice Dennis Edwards accepted the plea and scheduled sentencing in Manhattan's Supreme Court for Aug. 24. Chapman faces a maximum of 25 years to life in prison and a minimum of 15 years to life.

Chapman appeared calm throughout the proceeding, laughing and smiling with his lawyer before making his plea.

Marks told the court that since Chapman received his orders from God, "it has not been possible to engage Mr. Chapman in a meaningful dialogue."

After scores of spectators and reporters were shepherded into the room, Edwards made the announcement.

"The defendant, Mark David Chapman, has exercised his right to withdraw his not guilty plea, to plead guilty to the charge of murder in the second degree. That plea has been accepted by the court," Edwards said.

Asstant District Attorney Allen Sullivan told the court that Chapman "in withdrawing his plea of not guilty or not responsible has ... in some detail expressed a knowing, intelligent and voluntary waiver of his right to trial."

Chapman was accused of shooting Lennon at point-blank range Dec. 8 as the musician and his wife, Yoko Ono, returned to their flat at the luxury Dakota apartment after a late-night recording session.

Chapman allegedly had stalked Lennon for several days, hanging around the building and, at one point, getting an autograph from the man he soon would kill.

Jury selection was scheduled to begin today, but for several weeks there had been hints Chapman planned to thwart a trial.

There had been much speculation that Chapman would insist on pleading guilty, thereby closing inquiry into his reasons for killing a man to told friends he long had idolized.

Thirteen witnesses had been slated to testify for the defense, Marks said. Sullivan had planned to call about 35.

Evidence leads to arrest in one of Atlanta killings

ATLANTA (AP) — A 23-year-old black free-lance photographer charged with the murder of one of 28 young blacks slain in Atlanta was arrested after laboratory tests linked fibers found on the victim with evidence taken from his home, sources said.

Wayne B. Williams, arrested Sunday, was questioned about the slayings and released less than three weeks ago. He became the first person charged with any of the killings of 23 juveniles and five young adults.

Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown told a hastily called news conference at the Fulton County Jail on Sunday that Williams had been charged with "one count of criminal homicide" in the death of Nathaniel Cater, 27, whose body was found May 24 in the Chattahoochee River. Cater was the latest victim in the two-year series of deaths.

Brown refused to say if Williams would be charged with any of the other killings. "That's something that's not to be discussed at this time," he said, adding that the investigation would continue "full steam ahead."

A committal hearing for Williams was tentatively scheduled for noon EDT today in State Court. At that hearing, a judge will decide if probable cause existed to arrest Williams and if evidence against Williams could be presented to a county grand jury.

By law, Williams must be given a hearing within 72 hours of his arrest unless he asks that his case be continued.

Fulton County Sheriff Leroy Stynchcombe said Williams was being held in isolation in the maximum security wing of the jail.

He denied reports that death threats against Williams had been received. "We have him properly guarded, both for his own protection and also for security," Stynchcombe said, declining to elaborate.

Authorities said Williams had been charged five years ago with impersonating a police officer after allegedly speeding to a crime scene with red lights flashing under the grill of his car. The charges were reduced and disposed of in traffic court, officials said.

Traffic charges also were pending against Williams as a result of a June 10 incident in which he allegedly ran a red light, police said.

Meanwhile, The Atlanta Journal reported today that top law enforcement officials met last Friday for seven hours at the governor's mansion at the request of Vice President George Bush.

The newspaper quoted an unnamed official familiar with the meeting as saying Gov. George Busbee told the group he would support whatever decision local prosecutors made, but added that Williams' status — under surveillance but not charged — should not continue indefinitely.

After an indication that sufficient cause existed to charge Williams in the Cater slaying, those at the meeting then discussed how Williams would be arrested, the Journal said.

Busbee's press secretary, Duane Riner, declined to confirm or deny the report of the meeting. Bush's press secretary, Peter Teeley, called the report "absolutely not true ... He did not call Busbee at all."

On ABC-TV's Good Morning America show today, Brown denied that any pressure was applied by Washington for an arrest in the case.

Cater was the 17th victim in the series of killings whose death was attributed to asphyxiation. He was the ninth whose body was found in or near a river and the seventh found nude or partially clothed.

Brown and other officials involved with the special police task force investigating the killings have said repeatedly they do not believe all 28 slayings were related.

Auto accidents leave three dead, four injured in West Texas area

Three persons lost their lives and four others were injured in three separate automobile collisions in the West Texas area Sunday and early this morning.

Dead are:

—Sergio Ortiz, 28, of Andrews.

—Edwina Kay Sizemore, 25, of Rankin.

—Thomas Earl Shields, 31, of Odessa.

Injured are:

—Carlos Don Sims, 36.

—Raymond Hal Sizemore, 26; Shellie Francis Sizemore, 4; and Raymond Cody Sizemore, 2, all of Rankin.

Ortiz was killed about 1 a.m. today when the pickup he was driving west on Highway 115 crashed headon with an eastbound truck-tractor driven by Sims. The accident occurred 13.5 miles east of Kermit.

Investigating officers said Ortiz' pickup crossed into the eastbound lane and collided headon with the truck-tractor.

Ortiz was pronounced dead at the scene by Kermit Peace Justice Lorraine Brumlow. Sims was treated for minor cuts and abrasions at Winkler County Memorial Hospital in Kermit.

Mrs. Sizemore was killed and the other three members of her family injured at 8:25 p.m. Sunday just north of Rankin on Texas 349. Officers said the jeep driven by Sizemore and the car driven by Lisa Lynn Griffin of Crane were both southbound at the time.

Officers said the jeep struck the Griffin vehicle's rear and overturned two or three times, throwing all the occupants from the jeep.

Mrs. Sizemore was pronounced dead at Upton County Hospital by the attending physician. Her body was taken to Sizemore Funeral Home in Ozona.

Her husband remains in fair condition in Upton County Hospital where he is being treated for multiple head and arm lacerations and a broken left arm. Shellie is listed in fair condition, being treated for multiple lacerations, contusions and abrasions. Raymond Cody is in serious condition, being treated for multiple lacerations and broken bones.

Shields was the victim of a car-pedestrian accident at 1:45 a.m. Sunday on County Road 122 West, just west of the intersection with County Road 1309 in Midland County.

Reports indicated Shields' car was parked in the middle of County Road 122 and he was standing alongside the roadway. An eastbound pickup driven by Ricki Glenn Money of Odessa swerved to the south to avoid colliding with Shields' vehicle, reports indicated.

Shields was struck by the Money vehicle and thrown 150 feet. He was pronounced dead at Medical Center Hospital in Odessa by Dr. Shai Liu.

Firefighters plan attempt to extinguish oil well fire

Firefighters were planning an attempt today to put out the oil well fire southwest of Rankin, according to an official with Terra Resources, owner of the well.

"We're going to try to pump brine water and heavy mud into the well," said Richard Dawson, exploration manager of the Houston-based oil company. Firefighters are hoping the brine water-mud combination will plug the well and allow workers to cap it.

Corbett Estate Well No. 1, located six miles southwest of Rankin off Highway 67, blew out June 12 and has been burning an undetermined amount of gas and oil.

Firefighters from Boots and Coots Inc., a Houston-based firefighting team, worked last week to remove the remnants of the drilling rig to begin attempts to extinguish the fire.

Midland girl, 5, drowns at Colorado City park

COLORADO CITY — A 5-year-old Midland girl drowned at approximately 1:20 p.m. Sunday at Colorado City State Park.

Diana Bravo had been swimming in the swimming area when her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Evodio Bravo of 1300 Cotton Flat Road, discovered her missing. They notified park officials and a citizen and a game warden recovered her body shortly afterward.

Artificial respiration failed to revive the girl, according to a park spokesperson.

Jazz pianist finds the key to success in Texas

EDITOR's NOTE: Leon Ziligson and his family are Soviet Jews who used detente and hard work to become an American success story. Ziligson, a jazz pianist, says Texas isn't a great place for a professional musician, but it is a wonderful place to raise a family.

By ALLEN K. SHORT
Associated Press Writer

RICHARDSON, Texas (AP) — Eight years ago, Leon Ziligson arrived in the United States with his wife Valentina, a few books, a sewing machine and a Czechoslovakian-made piano.

To these he has added the fruits of U.S.-Soviet detente: a comfortable career as a jazz pianist and piano tuner, a rambling house in the fashionable North Dallas suburb of Richardson and — most important of all, he says — freedom from persecution as a Soviet Jew.

Now, there is a baby grand piano in the spacious living room and a newly arrived baby boy in the nursery. The Ziligsons have two other children, girls aged 7 and 2½, both born in the United States.

At a time when both detente with the Soviet Union and America's traditional hospitality to refugees are on the wane, the Ziligsons stand out as a success story — the fulfillment of a promise to which he fears few present-day immigrants can realistically aspire.

Like many of the Soviet Jews who emigrated to the United States during those early years of detente, the Ziligsons were allowed to bring few of their material possessions with them.

Left behind in his homeland along the Baltic Sea was much of Ziligson's sheet music. He would have had to pay a tax on his musical compositions had he chosen to bring them along, he said. Most of the couple's furniture also remained behind in Latvia.

Latvia is one of the 15 republics that make up the Soviet Union. When Ziligson was born there in 1943, the once-independent nation had been occupied by Soviet troops for three years.

"I wanted more than anything to live in a free country. I knew Latvia had once been free. I wanted to know what it was like," Ziligson said.

The day they arrived in Dallas — a hot, humid September afternoon in 1973 — now seems "so long ago," said Mrs. Ziligson, a Moscow native who worked as a singer in Russia. She met her husband when both joined a traveling orchestra based in Riga, the Latvian capital.

Dallas offered few employment opportunities for a jazz pianist in 1973, Ziligson said. His first job in the United States was as a piano refinisher in a small music store. He said he wasn't good enough then to land a job as a piano tuner. The couple set up housekeeping in a small apartment leased for them by the Jewish agency that sponsored their immigration.

Now Ziligson, 38, tunes the pianos of Dallas' affluent residents by day and entertains them by night at private parties, nightclubs and restaurants.

His income is sufficient to allow his wife to remain at home as a full-time mother, he said.

"There's more of a demand for musicians in Dallas now than there was when we first arrived," he said. "But Dallas is still a big country music town."

"It would be tough to make a living just as a jazz pianist in Dallas. But it's a very good place to raise kids. We like it."

"We have found happiness here," said Mrs. Ziligson.

Hot days to stay

Hot temperatures and sunny skies should continue through Tuesday, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

The weatherman is calling for the mercury to approach the century mark on Tuesday after a low tonight in the low 70s.

Tonight's winds should be out of the southeast at 5-10 mph, increasing to 10-15 mph on Tuesday.

Midland's high temperature of 101 degrees on Sunday looked cool compared to several Texas cities. El Paso reported a high temperature of 108 degrees while both Lubbock and Amarillo recorded 107. Marfa's mercury climbed to 106 degrees.

Midland's record high for Sunday's date was 107 degrees, set in 1934.

Today's low was 71 degrees, far from the record set in 1973 of 60 degrees.

Wild storms pound nation's mid-section

By The Associated Press

Severe storms pounded the nation's mid-section on the first day of summer, spawning tornadoes that killed two people, damaged buildings, and felled trees and power lines, authorities said.

One man was killed Sunday night as twisters struck the west central Illinois town of Littleton, severely damaging several houses and knocking out power and electricity to the area, according to county officials.

A "narrow" tornado dipped out of a line of powerful thunderstorms in eastern Missouri, killing a young woman and injuring at least six others, police said.

Twisters or severe thunderstorms also were reported in Kentucky, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Thunderstorms also spawned tornadoes in Minnesota, while scattered showers and thunderstorms continued along the mid-Atlantic coast.

A spokesman for the Schuyler County, Ill., sheriff's office said the tornado that struck Littleton swept through the area about 9 p.m. CDT. The name of the man who was killed was not released.

In addition, 11 people suffered minor injuries and six were hospitalized in good condition today at Culbertson Memorial Hospital in nearby Rushville, a hospital spokesman said.

Police in Wright City, Mo., said Bonnie McClure, 23, was killed and her 2-year-old son, Kennie, critically injured when their house trailer was ripped apart by a twister and scattered over a two-block area. Six other people suffered injuries.

"This was a very narrow tornado with a rather short path," said Pete Browning of the National Weather Service. "They come in all sizes. This one had such a narrow path and caused so little damage for a tornado that we first reported it as just a damaging wind."

The Warren County Sheriff's office said no complete list of injuries or damage was immediately available. Patrols were on duty through the night to prevent looting.

"You couldn't hear anything for everything tearing apart," said George Burgmeyer, whose home was destroyed. "It sucked our roof right off."

In northwestern Ohio, twisters caused minor damage to several buildings in Van Wert, Allen and Darke counties, authorities said. In Union and Columbiana counties, high winds knocked down power lines and trees.

Parts of Pennsylvania Highway 68 were blocked by fallen trees and debris after a tornado was reported in Beaver County, according to Dale Young, a New Sewickley Township police officer.

High winds tore down two tents and overturned a trailer at the Lions-Blue Grass Fair in Lexington, Ky., authorities said. No serious injuries were reported.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms are forecast to cover Florida, the Great Lakes, the Tennessee Valley and the upper Atlantic coast later today, while showers are predicted for Washington state.

The mercury is expected to climb near 100 degrees in the southern high Plains to interior California, with temperatures above 110 in the deserts of the Southwest.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 45 in Houghton and Sault St. Marie, Mich., to 98 in Blythe, Calif.

Here are the latest weather reports from some key cities around the nation:

Eastern U.S. — Atlanta 82 fair; Boston 69 hazy; Buffalo 64 hazy; Caribou not available; Charleston, SC 80 cloudy; Cincinnati 71 cloudy; Cleveland 70 hazy; Detroit 65 rain; Miami 77 fair; Nashville 79 fair; New York 72 showers; Philadelphia 74 showers; Pittsburgh 66 cloudy; Washington 75 fair.

Central U.S. — Bismarck 51 fair; Chicago 59 showers; Denver 70 cloudy; Des Moines 64 cloudy; Fort Worth 80 fair; Indianapolis 73 thunderstorms; Kansas City 66 fair; Mpls-St. Paul 56 fair; New Orleans 81 hazy; St. Louis 75 cloudy.

Western U.S. — Albuquerque 81 fair; Anchorage 57 partly cloudy; Los Angeles 67 fair; Phoenix 98 fair; Salt Lake City 68 fair; San Diego 73 fair; San Francisco 65 fair; Seattle 55 cloudy.

Museum heads too optimistic: Tower

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Tower says present and former museum officials may be overly optimistic in forecasting a happy future now that his wife has been tabbed by President Reagan to the long-vacant position of director of the Institute of Museum Services.

The Reagan administration announced early on that it plans to dismantle IMS early next year.

"I think we can assume this means the administration plans to continue the IMS. As for her having no museum experience, I'm a lawyer too and I didn't have much contact with the arts when I started out," said a pleased Lawrence Reger, director of the American Association of Museums.

But Tower says he plans to go along with the administration's proposed budget cuts in various arts programs.

"I don't know that that program has been brought to a specific vote, but I have voted for every recommended reduction in the budget and I intend to vote for every administrative recommendation on cuts in the non-defense sector," the Texas Republican added.

•

Reagan's "intention to nominate" Lilla Burt Cummings Tower came up in a news conference in Tower's office Wednesday.

If Tower — and enough others — vote down funds for her agency, a reporter asked, won't that do away with her job?

"That's right," Tower smiled. "Probably that position, that program, will be phased out. My understanding is that probably her primary function will be to work herself right out of a job."

Asked if his wife had been trying to change his vote on the matter, Tower added: "My wife has not lobbied me at all."

Another reporter, noting his wife's resume makes no mention of prior professional museum experience or service on a museum board, asked if she got the job solely on her own merits.

"Certainly, very much so," Tower replied. "Those of you who know my wife realize she is an enormously capable woman with a very fine intellect and a keen mind. She has always had an abiding interest in art and the humanities."

She is probably as informed on museums as anyone he is aware of, Tower said.

Khomeini fires Bani-Sadr

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Iran's revolutionary patriarch, today fired fugitive Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, one day after the Moslem fundamentalist-dominated Parliament declared him incompetent, the official Pars news agency said.

The Majlis, or Parliament, called on the 81-year-old Khomeini to remove Iran's first elected president — the French-educated leader of moderate and leftist factions in the Khomeini-inspired revolution that ousted the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi 2½ years ago.

"Iman Khomeini, the leader of the revolution and founder of the Islamic Republic of Iran, this morning ratified the measure taken by the Majlis and dismissed Abolhassan Bani-Sadr from the presidency," Pars reported.

The presidency will be taken over by a triumvirate of leaders from the Islamic Republican Party who led the campaign against Bani-Sadr — Ayatollah Mohammad Hussein Beheshti, the supreme court president; Ayatollah Hashemi Rafsanjani, the speaker of the Majlis, and Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai.

The constitution requires that the election of a new president be held within 50 days.

Shortly after Sunday's parliamentary impeachment vote, State Prosecutor Ayatollah Ali Quddosi called on the public to track Bani-Sadr down and arrest him.

The president was last seen Tuesday, according to authorities in Tehran. Rumors circulated that he had escaped from the country, but one source said he was still in Tehran and was moving from one hideout to another.

In a public summons over Tehran Radio, Quddosi said, "All the heroic people of Iran are asked to arrest (Bani-Sadr) wherever they see him and hand him over to the security committees or the Islamic revolutionary guards."

The statement said Bani-Sadr "is facing prosecution over several matters...he is hereby summoned to the office of the revolutionary prosecutor general....Anyone or any authority helping him to cross the border will be liable to severe prosecution."

The arrest order came as government firing squads worked overtime in Tehran, executing Bani-Sadr's supporters. Tehran Radio said 23 of them, including four women, went to their deaths Sunday.

The government radio said they were "counter-revolutionaries" implicated in bloody fighting in Tehran Saturday between the president's supporters and those of the Moslem fundamentalists leading the successful crusade to depose him. The broadcast said the victims were members of the two leading leftist guerrilla groups in Khomeini's revolution against the late shah, the Mujahedeen Khalq and the Fedayeen Khalq.

Official figures issued in Tehran said 30 people were killed and about 300 were injured in the street fighting Saturday in the capital.

Grand jury to check Juneteenth drownings

MEXIA, Texas (AP) — A special Limestone County grand jury will be empaneled to investigate the drownings of three youths who were in the custody of sheriff's deputies when a small boat carrying them overturned in Lake Mexia late Friday, authorities said.

Meanwhile, one of the three officers who had been transporting the trio across the lake after their arrest on drug charges has been suspended pending the outcome of the investigation.

The body of the third drowning victim, a 19-year-old Dallas youth, was recovered from Lake Mexia Sunday.

Limestone County Sheriff Dennis Walker had called off the dragging of the lake Sunday morning amid speculation that Steve Booker may have escaped after he jumped from the boat and began swimming toward shore.

Booker and the two other youths had been arrested for drug possession. His body floated to the surface about 9:25 a.m. Sunday, a sheriff's department spokesman said.

Chief county deputy Bill Fletcher said deputy Kenney Elliot, the senior officer involved in the incident, was suspended.

Another sheriff's deputy who was in the boat said Sunday that Booker leaped off the gunwhale of the small aluminum craft when it began to swamp. He said Booker's leap was not an escape attempt.

Reserve deputy Kenneth Archie said the boat began taking on water over the bow after traveling about 40 yards. Booker jumped off the craft first, then was followed by three deputies who were in the boat, Archie said.

On Saturday the bodies of Carl Baker, 19, and Anthony Freeman, 18, both of Mexia, were recovered from the lake, just east of Waco in North Central Texas.

Several witnesses said the youths were handcuffed when their bodies were pulled from the water and searchers removed the handcuffs before bringing the bodies to shore.

But Waco pathologist Dr. K.P. Whittstruck, who performed autopsies on the youths Saturday evening, said there were no cuts, bruises or handcuff marks on either body. He said the two youths died from drowning.

Man charged in Odessan's death

ODESSA — A man has been arrested in Lubbock and charged in connection with the Sunday death of Geraldine Shepard, about 55, of Odessa.

Robert Frankin Rudd, approximately 50, was apprehended after Texas Rangers reported to Odessa Police Department they had seen the woman's vehicle in the Panhandle city.

Bob Anderson told police he had gone to 407 Crockett St. in Odessa at 7:37 p.m. Sunday to check on an employee who had failed to show up for work, and found the victim's body lying on the floor of the living room area.

Police officers reportedly found evidence of a struggle, said an OPD spokesman.

Ms. Shepard was pronouced dead by Peace Justice Manuel Valles, who ordered an autopsy.

Rudd was expected to be returned to Odessa sometime today. Valles recommended bond of $50,000.

Authorities seek prison escapee

BIG SPRING — Big Spring authorities continued their search this morning for a 41-year-old inmate who was discovered missing from the Federal Prison Camp here at 10 p.m. Sunday.

No leads were reported in the search for Jamie Suescun-Mendez, who had been at the Big Spring facility since February and was serving an eight-year sentence for conspirary to import a controlled substance.

Assistant superintendent Jerome Edwards said Suescun-Mendez was discovered missing at the prison camp's 10 p.m. count. He said it took authorities about 25 minutes to ascertain which prisoner was missing. Prison officials conduct six counts each day, he noted.

Edwards said Suescun-Mendez, whose hometown is Houston, is not considered armed or dangerous.

All law enforcement agencies in the immediate area have been notified, the official noted. The search for Suescun-Mendez is being conducted by the U.S. marshal's office in Abilene.

Special session horse of different color

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The 140-day state lawmaking session just ended was called the "67th Legislature" but the July 13 meeting of senators and representatives will be "the Clements session."

That's the difference a special session makes to a Texas governor.

In a regular session the governor must sit back and see what the 181 legislators do before he even gets a chance to approve or veto any issues.

He can talk with leaders in each chamber and twist arms, but legislators are notariously disrespectful of governors. They even overrode one of the governor's vetoes in 1979.

In the upcoming July 13 special session it's a different story. Gov. Bill Clements not only sets the time of the session but he picks what legislators can talk about. He can gather votes by adding another subject or two to the agenda.

He still has his veto — which he can make after they all go home. Or if he doesn't like their results, he can call them back into another special session.

And the home folks will be eager for their representatives and senators to do something because the 30-day sessions will cost from $500,000 to $1 million.

Clements has already hinted he will open the session to other issues after some of the "must" controversies are settled.

The "must" list includes repeal of the state ad valorem tax, redrawing districts for Texas congressmen and extension of state laws to allow licensing of physicians. He said a "tune up" bill on the 1979 Property Tax Act and a water development fund were only slightly less important.

Meanwhile, he said, he has about 1,000 other requests, including those for gasohol, state veterans land bonds and initiative and referendum.

Clements stirred up considerable controversy in 1979 by threatening to call a special session that summer for initiative and referendum, wiretapping and other Clements' issues unsuccessful in the regular session. Later, he cancelled the special session because he said he feared it would be overwhelmed by politics in connection with Speaker Bill Clayton's problems with a bribery indictment. Clayton later was acquitted.

This time, Clements thinks he has cleared the way for the special session. He said the five original subjects on the agenda were cleared with both Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Clayton. In fact, the water bond development fund, which would be financed by state financial surpluses, is Clayton's idea.

And Clayton has given the legislators time to go home and talk with their constituents.

Rural voters to get new cards

Approximately 1,200 registered voters in rural Midland County will be receiving white voter registration replacement cards in the mail this week, according to Janeice Builta, Midland County's deputy voter registrar.

The cards will carry the voters' re-adjusted addresses.

Hundreds of rural addresses were changed when the U.S. Postal Service added two additional routes and changed routes and box numbers.

"The post office gave us a list of people who didn't move but who had their route or box numbers changed," she said.

State law requires that a voter's correct and current address be listed on the voter registration card.

Ms. Builta said that any registered voter who has undergone a change in a rural address but who has not received his or her white card by midweek may contact her office at 682-9481 or may drop by her office in Tax Assessor-Collector Frances Shuffield's office in the basement of the Midland County Courthouse.

Any change in address must be made at least 90 days prior to an election. The next upcoming election is on Constitutional amendments on Nov. 3.

Two Carabinieri (para-military police) patrol the main entrance of the Gemelli Hospital Sunday, where Pope John Paul II was hospitalized Saturday evening with a persistent fever that have slowed his recovery from gunshot wounds. Doctors say he may have a lung infection.

Pope undergoes additional tests

ROME (AP) — X-rays and blood tests were taken on Pope John Paul II today as doctors tried to learn why he has a nagging fever that is delaying his recovery from a would-be assassin's gunshots.

Doctors said the tests on the 61-year-old pontiff would help determine if he has pneumonia or pleurisy, an inflammation of the membrane that covers the lung and causes difficult, painful breathing.

X-ray technicians said the pope had a chest X-ray, an X-ray of his abdomen and a barium enema. The chest X-ray would reveal if he had pneumonia, pleurisy or any other lung infection and the X-ray of the abdomen and the barium enema would show if there were any abcess formations or any scar tissue in the large intestine, doctors said.

John Paul was returned to Gemelli Hospital Saturday after running a fever for several days. His doctors at first feared he had an infection in his intestines, where he was shot May 13 as he greeted crowds in St. Peter's Square.

"The pope may have a lung infection but we don't think there is anything wrong with his intestines," hospital spokesman Dr. Giuseppe Pallank said Sunday.

Dr. Emilio Tresalti, chief medical officer for the hospital, said the pope's life was not in danger. Dr. Luigi Candia, one of the pope's doctors, said he was on a normal diet, indicating the fever was not caused by intestinal infection.

Tresalti said doctors would probably not issue a medical bulletin on the pope's condition today. He refused to characterize the pope's condition or say how long he would be in the hospital.

Tresalti said the pope's temperature was normal this morning, but it fluctuated as high as 100.4 degrees Fahrenheit during the day.

Doctors were tight-lipped about pope and the hospital press office was closed Monday without explanation. The Vatican press office also issued no statements.

Neither reporters nor patients were allowed to see the pontiff when he was transferred from his room for X-rays. About 25 Vatican security guards kept people away from the corridors and elevators which the pope passed through.

When the pope was in the hospital after the shooting, doctors spoke quite freely to reporters and issued daily medical bulletins. Reporters and patients were occasionally able to catch a glimpse of the pope when he was moved from one part of the hospital to another.

The pope wheezed and spoke in a slow, labored voice as he delivered a taped three-minute broadcast at noon Sunday in St. Peter's Square to 8,000 tourists and pilgrims. The message was recorded Saturday, the Vatican said.

The weekly Roman Catholic magazine Famiglia Cristiana — Christian Family — reported Saturday that the pope's complications were caused by over-exertion on June 7, Pentecost, when he appeared in public twice: in St. Peter's Basilica at the end of a Mass and at his apartment window overlooking St. Peter's Square.

The pope still needs another operation to reverse the intestinal bypass performed after he was shot. Vatican sources said last week that the operation would be performed in July.

Meanwhile, police investigators said they are convinced that Mehmet Ali Agca, the 23-year-old Turk accused of shooting the pope, was acting on the orders of a terrorist group but they don't know the identity of the organization.

"Until we know the organization behind this person, we still won't understand the motive for the shooting," said Alfredo Lazzerini, head of the Rome police's anti-terrorist squad who is in charge of the investigation.

Agca is charged with the attempted murder of the pope and of two American women wounded in the attack. Investigators say they have linked him to right-wing groups in Turkey and West Germany. They say he may have ties with others.

The investigators have found that Agca was almost always alone after his escape in November 1979 from a Turkish jail, where he was being held on a murder charge. But the police have confirmed that he telephoned a suspected member of a right-wing Turkish nationalist group.

Hope dims for 11 victims of Mount Rainier avalanche

PARADISE, Wash. (AP) — When the 100-yard-wide wall of ice snapped from the glacier high atop Mount Rainier, Larry St. Peter said he and his fellow climbers stood transfixed in awe for a moment.

"All of a sudden there was a crack and a snap," St. Peter said. "The thing I remember vividly was everybody just going, 'Ooooh,' kind of like they were watching a Fourth of July display."

Just as suddenly, however, chunks of ice as big as automobiles rained down on the 29-member climbing party, burying 11 of them in an avalanche of ice and snow that roared across Ingraham Glacier near Disappointment Cleaver shortly after sunrise Sunday.

Searchers held out little hope today for the survival of any of the 10 climbers and one guide. Mount Rainier Park Ranger Larry Henderson said there was a slim chance that the bodies could be uncovered even if they could be found.

Two teams with a total of 22 mountain rescue volunteers, park rangers and climbing guides left here for Camp Muir at the 10,000-foot level of the 14,410-foot peak late Sunday. The search party spent the night at Camp Muir, a guide service camp, before leaving for the icefall scene at daybreak today.

"The likelihood of being able to remove them is extremely slim," Henderson said. "The first evaluations are not good at all as far as being able to do anything."

IN ANOTHER climbing accident Sunday, five members of a Portland, Ore., group were killed after they fell while descending Mount Hood, authorities said.

The Hood River County sheriff's office said four of the climbers died on the mountain, while authorities at the Portland Adventist Hospital said another died after reaching the hospital.

Sheriff Robert D. Lynch reported that all 12 climbers in the party were involved in the same fall. He said five of them, including the man who died, were taken off the mountain in critical condition.

The injured were taken by Air Force Reserve helicopters to local hospitals.

The fall occurred at about 9,000 feet elevation on Eliot Glacier, which is on the northeast side of the 11,235-foot mountain about 50 miles east of Portland. Mount Hood is about 100 miles south of Mount Rainier in Oregon.

Once the extreme avalanche danger subsides on Mount Rainier and stormy weather improves enough to allow a helicopter to reach the area, chain saws and other tools may be flown in to help searchers remove the ice chunks, said Park Superintendent Bill Briggle.

Dennis Robertson, along with St. Peter, of Edmonds, was a survivor. Robertson said no one moved as the wall of ice fell, but "Then the guides yelled to run."

A block of ice slammed into Robertson's shoulder and he was "sent flying. Two rope teams just disappeared from sight."

THOSE WHO escaped reported bumps and bruises but no major injuries.

The missing climbers may have been swept into a 100-foot deep crevasse, witnesses said.

A climbing party of six guides and 23 customers left Camp Muir before sunrise on a summit attempt conducted by Rainier Mountaineering Inc., said Jerald Lynch, president and co-owner of the private guide service. The other owner is famed mountain climber Lou Whittaker.

Three members had tired and decided against making the summit attempt before the accident. One guide led them back down, leaving five guides and 20 other climbers, Lynch said.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Statistics show increase in infertility rate

Dear Dr. Solomon: My husband and I were married nine years ago. I am now 32 years old and for the past several months have been trying to become pregnant for the first time. So far, however, I have not had any success. My gynecologist has told me that he doesn't see any reason why I should not be able to conceive. In any event, I'd appreciate any information you might provide on what could prevent conception, and what could be done about it. — Mrs. A.T.

Dear Mrs. T.: The latest information on the subject of infertility contains some good news and some bad news. First the bad news. Statistics indicate an increase in the rate of infertility. A variety of causes for this trend have been identified, including the fact that women are delaying the age at which they want to start a family, and the high incidence of venereal disease and its consequences The good news is that much is being accomplished in the area of diagnosing and treating various kinds of infertility.

Dr. Charles B. Hammond, chairman of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the Duke University School of Medicine, says that tubal infertility accounts for about 20 percent of all cases. As a result of improved diagnostic procedures and microsurgery, fertility in some cases can be enhanced as much as 40 to 50 percent.

Ovulatory problems are a factor in about 15 percent of cases of infertility. Doctors now can tell if ovulation is not taking place at all; if not, it can be induced through the use of hormones.

In 40 percent of the cases of infertility, it is the male who is responsible. The problems include lack of sperm formulation or an obstruction in the outflow tract, among others. Here, too, recent research has improved the ability of doctors to diagnose and treat the specific problem involved.

Cervical infertility, which results when the passage of sperm is inhibited, accounts for five percent of the infertility rate.

If your gynecologist sees no reason for your failure to conceive so far, I would suggest you simply try to relax and let nature take its course.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I saw you on "That's Incredible!" injecting a lady to get her to stop smoking. I would love to stop smoking, but I am afraid I will gain weight. Do you have any suggestions? — Mrs. T.O.

Dear Mrs. T.O.: Before you or anyone else can stop smoking, you must have a sincere desire to do so. It appears from your question that this is true. So, if you are adequately motivated, then I suggest you follow the diet in my new book, "Stop Smoking — Lose Weight."

Stewart's successor

Supreme Court Justice Potter Stewart aptly revealed the import of the decision facing President Ronald Reagan when he noted "it's an insult to the court, the appointee and the American public to appoint someone just because he or she is not a white male."

Finding a replacement for Stewart, who will retire July 3 after 23 years on the court, cannot be a task of any little importance any longer. Remaining on the court are two consistently conservative justices and two consistently liberal ones. Justice Potter has been a "swing" judge, taking a middle-of-the-road approach to solving legal and social dilemmas.

There is an inherent danger in labels such as conservative or liberal, particularly in the halls of justice. Justice Potter apparently recognized that danger and remained free of them. President Reagan certainly could do worse than naming a jurist whose ideological leanings would cause him or her to steer clear of labels and to become the court's new "swing" judge.

In choosing a replacement for Justice Stewart there's little doubt that President Reagan will face pressure to name a woman to the court, as he indicated he would try to do in one of his first appointments. To succumb to that pressure, on the basis of sex alone, would be a mistake and one which we feel sure Reagan will not make.

We agree with Justice Stewart's comment. All qualified jurists should be considered regardless of race, color, creed or sex. It would be foolish to choose a replacement in any other manner.

Of course, there are defensible arguments for having a woman on the High Court. And we won't be the last to note that having a feminine voice on the court would be a worthwhile change.

But President Reagan should keep in mind that during the 1980 election campaign he said any selected Supreme Court appointee would have to meet one standard — interpreting the law of the land rather than attempting to rewrite it in his or her own "image."

On that one guideline President Reagan should have numerous candidates from which to choose.

Time to get serious

President Reagan has called the bluff of Democrats in the House who are trying to play games with the 1982 budget. The dressing-down they got at the president's recent news conference should remind them that they aren't dealing with a political amateur in the White House.

The Democratic strategy has become all too clear. Democratic-controlled House committees are now engaged in the budget "reconciliation" process — finding $36 billion in cuts in individual spending programs to keep the budget for fiscal 1982 at the $695 billion ceiling adopted last month. This is especially painful for liberal Democrats who have built their political careers on expanding federal programs, not on trimming them back.

The House Post Office Committee, for example, came up with a plan to close 10,000 post offices — about a third of the total. The Education and Labor Committee decided to eliminate virtually all impact aid to school districts for pupils whose parents live or work on federal property. Such cuts are guaranteed to cause a political furor, enough to muster votes on the House floor to have the committee action overturned and to push the final budget beyond the $695 billion ceiling.

This is pure sabotage. Both houses of Congress agreed on the budget ceiling, and it is the responsibility of House committees to make difficult but necessary cutbacks in a variety of programs to hold their costs at a reasonable level. It is unconscionable, as Mr. Reagan said, for Democratic-controlled committees to adopt budget cuts which they know will never survive the rest of the budgeting process.

Stung by the president's criticism, the Education and Labor Committee revised its recommendations to make them more palatable. We trust that other committees will take the reconciliation process seriously, too. The game is up.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Warning labels on cigarettes undermined

WASHINGTON — The tobacco companies' long, deliberate campaign to undercut government warnings on the hazards of cigarette smoking has been astonishingly successful, according to internal industry documents that have been suppressed by court order.

Jack Anderson

The Federal Trade Commission recently reported that the health warning on every pack of cigarettes is ineffective, and the industry's own studies support this conclusion. But a federal judge acceded to the tobacco companies' request that documents subpoenaed by the FTC be locked up. The section of the agency's report that discusses the documents has also been withheld from the public.

My associate Tony Capaccio has seen the suppressed material. One document in particular illustrates just how ineffective the government's many warnings about cigarettes have been. It is a 1977 survey by the firm of Yankelovich, Skelly and White for the Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp.

Here are some of its findings:

— Nearly one-fourth of the nation's cigarette smokers do not believe that smokers die younger than non-smokers.

— Twenty-two percent of the general population, including 32 percent of smokers, were not aware that smoking increases the risk of any type of cancer.

— Twenty-three percent of the population (and 38 percent of smokers) believed the statement, "They still haven't proven that smoking causes lung cancer."

— Thirty-eight percent of the population (and nearly half the smokers) did not know that smoking increases the risk of heart disease.

— A particularly reprehensible feature of the cigarette companies' multimillion-dollar advertising campaigns has been their accent on youth — devising means to hook young people on the smoking habit.

For example, a 1975 ad plan prepared for Brown & Williamson suggested these ways to attract "starters" to smoke Viceroy cigarettes:

— "Present the cigarette as one of the few initiations into the adult world."

— "To the best of your ability, relate the cigarette to 'pot,' wine, beer, sex, etc."

— "Don't communicate health or health related points." The word "Don't" was underlined for emphasis.

The suppressed section of the FTC report has this to add: "B&W documents show that it translated the advice on how to attract 'starters' into an advertising campaign featuring young adults in situations that the vast majority of young people probably would experience and in situations demonstrating adherence to a 'free and easy, hedonistic lifestyle.'"

Another example of the cigarette makers' deliberate targeting of young people is this quote from the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Company's secret "Salem Annual Marketing Plan" for 1977:

"Through the association of Salem and its brand styles with emulatable personalities that are compatible with the aspirations and lifestyles of contemporary young adults, this important target segment will be attracted to the brand."

ACID HEADING UP AGAIN: The usually conservative Drug Enforcement Administration predicts a new epidemic of lysergic acid diethylamide, or LSD — a trend that first became evident in the spring of 1978.

"There is a strong probability that LSD will make a massive resurgence on the national drug scene," the DEA warned in a classified report on the counterculture drug of the 1960s. Its increased use was not noticeable over the past two years in DEA's New York City, Chicago and Far West regions.

Although acid hasn't attained the popularity of PCP (Angel Dust) or methamphetamine, the agency predicts that it could regain the status it had in the 1960s.

The producers and pushers of LSD, DEA concluded, are the onetime "flower children" of that protest era, now over 30 years old. The users, the report says, are "primarily ... young, white, 'hippie-type' youths between the ages of 17 and 25."

In a disturbing reminder of the notorious Haight-Ashbury district in San Francisco, much of the LSD appears to be coming from the city by the Golden Gate. While it is investigating reports that Utah, Colorado and Oregon are sources of LSD supply, the DEA "strongly suspects that LSD from these areas was actually manufactured in California."

Purchases and seizures by DEA and other reporting agencies in the period from January 1978 to August 1979 represented a street value of anywhere from $1.2 million to more than $6 million.

LSD pushers make their mind-altering product available at $1 to $5 per dose in two forms — tablets or "blotter acid" on small pieces of blotting paper with designs on them. The DEA has identified at least 16 tablet variations and more than 26 different blotter designs, suggesting that the manufacturers "use a different design on each new batch of their product."

The biggest reason for LSD's recent upsurge in popularity after a long hiatus, the DEA concluded, is that cutting the strength of individual dosage has reduced the fear of "bad trips." In the 1960s, users sometimes had terrifying hallucinations that caused them to "freak out" and harm themselves.

"Dosage units of LSD now on the street are only about one-third as powerful as the LSD of the 1960s, with the average dosage units today containing from 20 to 50 micrograms as compared to past potencies of 100 to 200 micrograms or more," the DEA report states.

DEA sources told my associate Dale Van Atta that the number of "tripped-out" LSD users admitted to hospitals across the country is very small compared to the total estimated use of the drug.

MARK RUSSELL SAYS

How can Tom Snyder top his interview with Charles Manson? He could hire a medium and try to contact Adolf Hitler and Eva Braun.

●

The Tom and Charley Show brought in very good ratings. Do you suppose it was a pilot?

●

Imagine such programming becoming a trend — "Tonight on 'Real Fiends,' we'll meet Jack the Ripper's Nanny."

●

Get ready for "Stalin & Hutch," "Henry VII Is Enough," "Leave It To Caligula," and "An Evening With Idi Amin."

●

The lesson of the Manson interview is that no matter how horrible someone is, he will draw a big audience — isn't that right, punk rock fans?

●

Incidentally, if you found the Snyder program disturbing, you don't watch Saturday morning television.

INSIDE REPORT:

'Dealer' Reagan holds high cards in this year's tax game

WASHINGTON — The high tax-cut cards that have always been in Ronald Reagan's hand are gaining value day by day as the portents of disarray among House Democrats harden into fact and the Republican-controlled Senate Finance Committee rushes to finish marking up a Reaganite tax bill next week.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

The post-election disorder has led to this curious spectacle: a House Democratic majority, led by the venerable speaker and old-line liberal Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill, groping for its center of gravity but finding only empty spaces.

"Tip's still trying to decide what his new constituency is," one of the speaker's longtime Republican friends told us. The result is a babble of confused voices from the Democratic majority, with O'Neill now insisting on a non-Reaganite tax bill tailored to traditional liberal standards without the ghost of a chance of hitting pay dirt.

The first victim of this whimsical strategy is Chairman Dan Rostenkowski of the Ways and Means Committee, who labored hard to arrange a compromise with Reagan but was shouted down by O'Neill. Rostenkowski hopes to avoid hara-kiri in drafting his Democratic bill but close friends fear he may be headed for it when he takes the final product to the floor in his maiden effort as committee chairman.

One reason is the president's high cards, now beginning to drop on the table. The opener was his June 16 press conference castigating Democratic delay in the House and warning not to "forget the mandate of November." He'll follow that up with a tax-and-economy speech in San Antonio June 24 and another in Denver on June 29.

At the same time, Reagan is quietly soft-soaping the opposition. He sent Rostenkowski an autographed copy of a front-page picture in the June 1 Washington Star, showing the dejected chairman emerging from the White House, with the message: "Cheer up, Danny." He is also lubricating his allies. The Wall Street Journal published a story about Texas Rep. Kent Hance, the "boll weevil" Democrat who is co-author of the Conable-Hance-Reagan tax bill with Republican Barber Conable. The headline read: "Hance Enrages His Party." Reagan phoned Hance: Don't worry, and don't forget that you and I are together on this.

Even that other old cozy Irishman, Tip O'Neill, got a friendly Reagan call the day after the president denounced the "sheer demogoguery" of O'Neill's labeling Reagan's tax bill a rich man's bill.

Even without the Reagan message, the plight of the Democrats grows. They lack consensus as a party and they lack it within the party's squabbling factions. Old-style liberals are split, some wanting what one called "a poor man's tax bill" loaded with low-income goodies that could never pass the House but might become a 1982 campaign weapon if the economy turned sour. But savvy Ways and Means Committee member William Brodhead, chairman of the Liberal Democratic Study Group, courts political reality, meaning a tidy bill that just might pass the House.

Further immobilizing the House majority is the prospective battle for succession to O'Neill's post, involving Majority Leader Jim Wright who preferred compromise with Reagan, Budget Committee Chairman Jim Jones and Rostenkowski himself, none of whom is encumbered with old-line, purist liberal ideology.

"We don't know what we want, a bill or an election-year issue, because very few of us have thought this puzzle all the way through," one liberal leader told us. The surprise is that except for the conservative "boll weevils," his colleagues agree.

Enter Sen. Robert Dole and his Senate Finance Committee with strong support from the White House. Dole's Republican-controlled committee plans to complete marking up the modified Reagan tax bill by June 26, taking the lead away from the House (where tax bills almost always originate). He can attach it to a House-passed debt ceiling bill for Senate action whenever he wants.

This tactic, unusual but not unprecedented, will further inflame House Democratic leaders already enraged by Reagan's stepped up campaign against them. But it will give the president new ammunition to force the House to act.

House Democratic leaders are crying foul-play, but Reagan holds the high cards. He seems serenely secure that when the great 1981 tax battle ends, he will walk off with the pot.

CHARLEY REESE

Israeli raid was a favor to the world

I was going to lay off the Middle East for a while, but Israel's raid against the nulear reactor in Baghdad cries for comment.

Charley Reese

I will say up front it was justified. If Fidel Castro decided to build a nuclear reactor that would produce weapons-grade material, if he made public statements that made it clear he intended to use atomic bombs on the United States, and if there were no one to restrain him, I hope that we would have the good sense to do just what the Israelis did.

The Israelis, however, have a tremendous public relations problem. Since most Western nations act irrationally, they perceive Israel, which does act in a rational manner, as crazy.

There is no question that Saddam Hussein, the wild man who rules Iraq, intended to produce atomic bombs and use them on Israel. When an Iranian plane made a pass at the reactor, the Iraquis said publicly it was pointless for the Iranians to attack the reactor because it was intended only "against the Zionist enemy." When the French tried to talk Hussein into using a fuel that would not produce weapons-grade material, he flatly refused.

Both Israel and the United States had attempted, through diplomacy, to dissuade the French and Italians from providing Iraq with nuclear capability. Diplomacy failed. Rather than wait for the West to offer its condolences after a million and a half Israelis had been killed, Israel decided to act. I suspect most Americans approve. It is precisely the way we used to act when men like Teddy Roosevelt were leading us. In those days, we were not ashamed of protecting our national interests.

If President Reagan allows the Arabists in the State Department and the Aramco lobby to influence him to cut off arms to Israel, he will be making a blunder. They have already put him in a ridiculous position with their fanciful scheme to forge an Arab alliance against the Soviet Union.

To the Arabs, we are part of the infidel, imperialistic West. They don't like us and unless we are willing to betray Israel, there is no appeasing them. While our people yack about the Soviet threat, Saudi Arabia is negotiating with the Soviet Union to re-establish diplomatic relations and "pro-Western" King Hussein of Jordan is running off to Moscow to endorse the Kremlin proposal on the Middle East.

What amuses me is that tiny little Israel has become a burr in the conscience of the West. We like to prattle on about idealism, human rights, and democracy, but most Western politicians pray every night that when they wake up, the only idealistic, democratic state in the Middle East which respects human rights will have vanished. It would, they think, so uncomplicate their live's.

Actually, it wouldn't. The Soviet Union doesn't support Israel but it still has all kinds of problems with its Arab allies. The Arabs don't like the Soviet Union either. As a matter of fact, they don't even like each other. The Middle East is the Middle East, which is to say an incorrigibly troublesome area.

Of course no one except the Israelis and possibly the Egyptians actually want peace in the Middle East. If that were our goal, we would be trying to get Western Europe and the Soviet Union to join us in an arms embargo against all of the countries in the area.

Instead, the United States, Western Europe and the Soviet Union are putting so many weapons in the area, out of greed and a desire for influence, that I wouldn't be surprised if the land itself broke through the earth's crust from the weight of all the iron and steel.

It is certainly disgraceful behavior on the part of France and Italy to provide the means of building atomic bombs to an unstable country ruled by an assassin. All the world needs is for the Middle East to join in the nuclear arms race. For that reason alone, the Israelis did the world a favor by blowing up the reactor.

Fire inspector Joe Walker looks out the window of one of the heavily damaged rooms after a two-alarm fire hit the Hilton Hotel in Tulsa, Okla., Sunday afternoon. Two guests, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Avery of Corpus Christi, were treated and released from a local hospital for smoke inhalation.

Texas couple treated, released after hotel fire

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Fire officials were investigating today the cause of a one-room blaze in which about 100 guests and staff of the Hilton Hotel here were evacuated.

A Corpus Cristi, Texas, couple — Steven and Marjorie Avery — were treated and released from a Tulsa hospital for smoke inhalation. No other injuries were reported.

Eddie Smith, a club manager estimated damage at $10,000, but Joe Walker, assistant Tulsa Fire Marshall, said smoke and fire damage to the four-story building was estimated at $100,000.

One of the Hilton managers, who asked not to be identified, said the room was unoccupied when the blaze was discovered by a maid shortly after 1 p.m.

"We really didn't have that many people in here," said the employee, who noted the fire occurred at a time when most guests were checking out. "It was nothing major," he said.

The fire was contained to a bed in one room, which had walls made of brick and concrete blocks, the employee said. Smoke spread through the air conditioning system to all 400 rooms, causing most of the damage.

Avery, 54, and his 52-year-old wife, were among hundreds attending a week-long Oral Roberts evagelistic conference.

"They said they smelled smoke and left their room to investigate, but the smoke was so dense they turned to go back to their room to find the door had swung shut, locking them outside in the smoke-filled corridor," said Bruce Crain, assistant fire marshall.

All rooms in the hotel except the one in which the fire started were expected to be available for occupancy today, Smith said.

Royal marriages not all peaches

LONDON (AP) — The wedding of Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer on July 29 will be the 18th in the royal family this century, but the first of an heir to the throne to an Englishwoman for 303 years. It will be the first wedding of a prince of Wales for 118 years.

The 17 previous 20th century marriages in the royal family mostly have worked well and happily.

The royal family, like many other families, has had its share of matrimonial ups and downs, however — from the divorces and executed wives of King Henry VIII to the mistresses and illegitimate offspring of King Charles II to the affairs of the profligate King George IV, who so loathed his wife Caroline that he locked her out of his coronation in 1821.

The biggest upset in more recent times was the abdication of King Edward VIII — later the Duke of Windsor — in 1936 to marry American divorcee Wallis Simpson. It caused a constitutional crisis and a deep rift in the Royal Family. They married in 1937 in France. The duke died in 1972, aged 77, in Paris. His widow still lives there. She turned 85 on June 19 and is in bad health.

Another major upset was the 1978 divorce of Princess Margaret, sister of Queen Elizabeth II, and photographer Lord Snowdon. They married in 1960.

For the last 303 years, royal heirs have married non-English partners in the search for dynastic links.

For example, Queen Elizabeth II, great-great-granddaughter of German-descended Queen Victoria, is married to a Greek-born Prince Philip. He is the only son of Prince Andrew of Greece although also related to Victoria.

He and Elizabeth married at London's Westminster Abbey Nov. 20, 1947, two years after World War II. It was a time of shortages when food and clothing were rationed. Like any other British bride then, Elizabeth saved clothes-ration coupons for her wedding dress. The silk came from China. The silk worms of Japan and Italy, wartime enemies, were shunned as unpatriotic.

Elizabeth succeeded to the throne on the death of her father Feb. 6, 1952, and was crowned Queen June 2, 1953.

Queen Elizabeth's father, King George VI, married the daughter of a Scottish earl, Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, in 1923. Queen Elizabeth's grandfather King George V married a German bride, Princess Mary, daughter of the Duke of Teck, in 1893.

The last time an heir to the throne married an Englishwoman was Nov. 4, 1677, when Prince William married Mary, daughter of the Duke of York, at St. James Palace in London. William and Mary became joint Protestant monarchs in 1689.

But Lady Diana is a true English rose. Her father, the eighth Earl Spencer, can trace his English family back over 500 years to John Spencer, who lived in the parish of Hodnell in Warwickshire in the reign of King Henry VI.

The last wedding of a prince of Wales was that of Edward, eldest son of Queen Victoria, who became King Edward VII. He married Princess Alexandra of Denmark in 1863. He was 21, she was 18. Victoria hailed the beautiful princess as "this jewel."

Four-year-old Prince William of Prussia, later Kaiser William II, got so exited at the wedding that he pried a piece of quartz from a ceremonial dagger he was wearing and tossed it over the choir. He bit two older guests who tried to restrain him.

The title prince of Wales is bestowed on the heir to the throne at the discretion of the monarch. Charles is the 21st prince of Wales.

There have been two princes of Wales between Edward and Charles but neither held the title when they married. Prince George, later George V, was not granted it until eight years after his marriage while Prince Edward became King Edward VIII before his marriage.

The first prince of Wales, weak-willed Prince Edward, who became King Edward II in 1307, was given the title by his father King Edward I in 1301 and married seven years later. He lived to wish he hadn't.

Edward, who preferred male favorites up until his marriage, wed crafty, strong-minded Isabella, daughter of King Philip IV of France at Boulogne in France. She and her lover, the Earl of March, deposed him and had him killed in Berkeley Castle in 1327.

Braniff, Bolivian jets pass on same flight path

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — "Pilot deviation" by a Bolivian Air Force pilot has been blamed for an incident in which a commercial jetliner crossed paths with a small executive jet Sunday at Brownsville International Aiport

William L. Anderson, Federal Aviation Administration facilities director at the Brownsville airport, said the two aircraft passed within 1,600 feet of each other as one was descending for a landing and another was climbing after takeoff.

The Braniff 727 jetliner and the Bolivian Air Force executive jet used the same flight corridor, even though the Bolivian craft had been instructed to use another flight path, Anderson said.

"What we had was a pilot deviation. The Bolivian aircraft deviated from its authorized course," Anderson said.

He disputed a Brownsville air traffic controller's claim that the two craft had passed with 200 feet of each other during the 3:45 p.m. incident.

The incident occurred about 18 miles north of the Brownsville airport, which lacks radar equipment, he said.

Paul Dugdale, a controller at the Brownsville flight tower who was on duty when the incident occurred, said the pilots of the two aircraft didn't learn of the incident until after it was over. Dugdale said Sunday that the two aircraft passed with 200 feet of each other.

Braniff flight 295, en route from Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport to Brownsville with 87 passengers aboard, had descended to 8,500 feet when FAA air traffic controllers at Houston's Intercontinental Airport saw on their radar screens that plane was about to "merge" with a Sabreliner executive jet owned by the Bolivian Air Force, Dugdale said.

The Bolivan jet, with six people aboard, was bound for St. Louis following its takeoff from Brownsville when it climbed over the Braniff craft at an elevation of 8,700 feet, Dugdale said.

But Anderson said the two craft never got closer than 1,600 feet and were that far apart when the Bolivian craft crossed over the commercial airliner.

Raymond Chanaud, a spokesman for Braniff in Dallas, said the pilot of the 727 didn't file a report on the incident, "apparently because he didn't think there was a major safety problem."

"It's up to an airline pilot to file a report on a near-miss," said Anderson. "If the (Braniff) pilot couldn't see the other plane, he might not have considered it a near-miss."

Anderson said the two planes should have passed "much farther apart" than they did. He said the Bolivian pilot could provide no explanation for the deviation.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Tuesday, June 23, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Those who conduct their business from home will do especially well in the year ahead. Progress may be slower than you had hoped but you are laying the foundation for lasting success. Be very careful where money, investments are concerned. Friends and pressure groups alike can have an adverse effect on your financial fortunes. Love relationships are complicated. Count on romantic partner to keep you guessing!

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Do not fret if some of your hopes are dashed today. Letter or phone call will put you in a positive frame of mind. New relationship may be the answer you have been seeking.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The offer of a new position sounds attractive—but investigate it thoroughly before quitting your present employment. This evening's events should make your personal life more rewarding.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your efforts to beautify your home will add to its value. A visitor from a foreign shore may share some lucrative information. Do your homework before consulting with someone important.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): An upsurge of mental energy will make even difficult tasks seem easy! You accomplish much more than you thought possible. A relaxed domestic atmosphere makes a financial discussion unusually rewarding.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A great day for dealing with those who live overseas. Lay your cards on the table. A romantic interlude is a source of joy. Remember to keep your private life separate from business.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Professional advice could save you both time and embarrassment. Tend to routine business matters. Come to grips with household chores. Dine at home tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Avoid asking for special favors today. A news story may provide you with a sudden inspiration. Emphasize your public relations skills.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A speculative venture may work out well for you. Boost your income by taking a part-time job or turning a hobby into a business. Romance could blossom at a church affair.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Keep busy today even if there is a lull in your regular work pattern. Catch up on those miscellaneous tasks you have been postponing. A raise or promotion is possible.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A visit to the seashore could be both relaxing and invigorating today. Loved one cannot resist a challenge. Play hard-to-get when it comes to romance. Spend more time with family members.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A good day for career matters, business affairs. Set your own pace and stick to it. You will be able to attain certain special goals if you make that extra effort now.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Loved one may be opposing you because of his or her concern over finances. Try to reassure this person while sticking to the facts. Associate's attitude may confuse you. Probe deeper.

Q.1—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K9732 ♡AJ87 ◇J105 ♣6
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Dble	1 ♡	2 ♠
Pass	2 NT	Pass	?

What action do you take?
A.—There is a distinct odor attached to East's bid of one heart—partner has shown a strong hand with a heart stopper and not enough spades to raise your suit. Since your hand is unbalanced, you should prefer a suit contract. Bid three hearts. That not only exposes East's probable psychic bid, but offers partner a wide range of contracts, including three no trump if he has clubs particularly well guarded.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠Q10963 ♡Q76 ◇A8732
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Dble	1 ♡	2 ♠
Pass	2 NT	5 ♠	?

What action do you take?
A.—We might have bid four spades at our first turn because the distributional features greatly enhanced the value of our hand. Now we have to decide between accepting a penalty from five clubs doubled or risking a possible minus by introducing our diamond suit. The rewards for completing the rubber, not to mention the possibility of getting to slam, are worth it. Bid five diamonds.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A ♡82 ◇J743 ♣KQJ1052
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
Pass	1 ♡	2 ♠	2 ♠
2 NT	Pass	?

What do you bid now?
A.—The virtually certain spade lead will remove the side entry to your club suit before the play of the hand has begun. If partner does not have the ace of clubs, your hand might become worthless to him at no trump. Bid three clubs. That should warn partner to proceed with caution unless he has help for your suit.

Q.4—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q852 ♡873 ◇K76 ♣K43
The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	1 ♡	1 ♠

What action do you take?
A.—It is tempting to sacrifice at four spades because partner is marked with heart shortness and our spade length detracts from our defensive potential. However, the temptation should be resisted. We have fair defensive values and partner may have quite a good hand for his simple overcall, so the prospects of defeating four hearts are not all that bleak.

Q.5—As South vulnerable, you hold:
♠KJ2 ♡AJ10 ◇Q1092 ♣J43
The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ◇
Pass	?

What do you bid now?
A.—Though your club stopper is tentative at best, your hand is no trump oriented, and you should look for a bid that describes both your strength and shape. Two no trump fits the bill perfectly. By a passed hand, it shows 11-12 points and is not forcing, but strongly urges partner to go on to game if he has anything better than a bare minimum opening bid.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J72 ♡K8 ◇K65 ♣A7652
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?
A.—You have a useful hand in support of spades, but that does not give you license to do anything rash at this turn. You have already promised a good hand by making a two-over-one response, so now you need do no more than raise to four spades. The next move, if any, must come from partner.

Tony Bonilla succeeds brother as LULAC chief

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The new leader of the 100,000-member League of United Latin American Citizens predicts Hisanics will pay an increasingly larger role in the American political system, becoming, "just as active, just as vocal as the Moral Majority."

Bonilla

Tony Bonilla, the Corpus Christi, Texas attorney, who was elected national LULAC president Sunday at the concluding session of the organization's national convention, pledged to work for the expansion of the Hispanic community's political base. He said the organization would step up voter registration drives and begin grading candidates.

"We're going to be just as active, just as vocal as the Moral Majority," Bonilla said. "We're going to prepare our own hit list for the Hispanic community of those congressmen who don't support our needs."

Bonilla said the role of Hispanics in national politics will continue to grow, noting that more than 40 percent of the Hispanic population in the United States is younger than 18 years of age.

"We have the numbers within our young people to make a difference from a political standpoint," Bonilla said. "Time is on our side."

In taking over the leadership of the nation's largest Hispanic organization, Tony Bonilla succeeded his brother Ruben, also an attorney, who served as president of LULAC for the past two years.

Bonilla said his election was a strong endorsement of his younger brother's liberal stands on national issues and the organization's efforts to expand LULAC beyond its traditional base in the Southwest.

Bonilla stressed development of LULAC chapters among Hispanics of the East, Midwest and Northwest.

"We are committed to march to the same tune, but perhaps with a little different rhythm," he said.

Bonilla, 45, told the delegates after his election that the goals of LULAC would remain the same, but said the future of Hispanics in the United States will be influenced greatly by the events in Washington, D.C. And like his brother, Tony Bonilla criticized the Reagan administration's policies in regard to the poor.

"We are willing to sacrifice for the good of the country, but we don't want to be sacrificed in the process," said Bonilla. "You have a millionaire mentality rampant in the administration that can't relate to the truly poor the president speaks of."

Bonilla said he would seek a meeting with Vice President George Bush to stress LULAC's opposition to several Reagan administration policies. The vice president addressed the convention, urging support for the administration's proposed spending cuts and economic game plan.

"We think it's going to be a new ball game and we're going to be ready when the game starts," said Bonilla.

Bonilla faced opposition from Ray Gano of Arizona and New Yorker Jose Torres. Strong support from the large LULAC delegations from Texas and New Mexico assured Bonilla's victory.

Gano and Torres conceded the election to Bonilla after his vote count passed the 400 mark. At that point, Gano had tallied 71 votes while Torres had only nine votes.

The Newspaper BIBLE

WOULD IT MAKE A BELIEVER OF YOU?

One day as these men were worshiping and fasting the Holy Spirit said, "Dedicate Barnabas and Saul for a special job I have for them." So after more fasting and prayer, the men laid their hands on them -- and sent them on their way.

Directed by the Holy Spirit they went to Seleucia and then sailed for Cyprus. There, in the town of Salamis, they went to the Jewish synagogue and preached. (John Mark went with them as their assistant.)

Afterwards they preached from town to town across the entire island until finally they reached Paphos where they met a Jewish sorcerer, a fake prophet named Bar - Jesus. He had attached himself to the governor, Sergius Paulus, a man of considerable insight and understanding. The governor invited Barnabas and Saul to visit him, for he wanted to hear their message from God. But the sorcerer, Elymas (his name in Greek), interfered and urged the governor to pay no attention to what Saul and Barnabas said, trying to keep him from trusting the Lord.

Then Saul (who is also called Paul) filled with the Holy Spirit, glared angrily at the sorcerer and said, "You son of the Devil, full of every sort of trickery and villany, enemy of all that is good, will you never end your opposition of the Lord? And now God has laid His hand of punishment upon you, and you will be stricken awhile with blindness." Instantly mist and darkness fell upon him, and he began wandering around begging for someone to take his hand and lead him.

When the governor saw what happened he believed and was astonished at the power of God's message.

Judge says settlement of Hughes estate not near

HOUSTON (AP) — Even if the heirs of Howard Hughes' estate are determined in a trial that will begin here next month, the judge who is trying the case says he doubts any of them will collect a dime for six to eight years.

Judge Pat Gregory says appeals of any decision he reaches probably would not be resolved before 1984.

And an ongoing appeal may result in a new trial. The Howard Hughes Medical Institute, cut out as an inheritor in an earlier ruling, is seeking a reversal.

Three women who claim to have been married to Howard Hughes when he died are among 500 people who will try to stake claims to the eccentric multi-millionaire's estate when testimony begins July 13.

Gregory estimates the trial will last until late November.

At stake is a fortune estimated at anywhere from $180 million to $490 million.

The court may go into three phases of determining heirship, Gregory said.

First to be considered are claims from three women, each of whom says Hughes was married to her when he died in 1976, and a woman and two men who say Hughes was their father.

If none of those claims is found to be valid, the estate will be divided equally between relatives of his mother and father.

"We will determine the maternal side first," Gregory said. "There are fewer claimants and the evidence seems to be more concrete on that side of the family than the other."

The father's side not only has more claimants, he said, but also more contestable issues. Gregory said thousands of old records and documents pertain to these contentions.

Hughes — a Houston native, aeronautical genius, record setting pilot, movie maker and recluse — died in 1976 at the age of 70.

He is known to have been married twice, once in 1925 and again in 1957, with both marriages ending in divorce. He is not known to have any children.

Among the women claiming to be Hughes' widow is actress Terry Moore. When she met Hughes in 1947, she was a starlet making the film "Mighty Joe Young."

Ms. Moore says a ship captain married her to Hughes in 1949 aboard a yacht bound for Mexico. She also said Hughes fathered a daughter born to her in a Munich hospital in 1952. The child died shortly after its birth, she said.

Farmer works from wheelchair

By LAURA KING
Associated Press Writer

SAXTON'S RIVER, Vt. (AP) — Richard Barnes, his gnarled, dirt-caked hands grasping a young tomato plant, says he's a little worried about the bugs this year.

He wonders aloud whether his larger-than-usual lettuce crop will sell well.

And he's a bit concerned about whether the cloudy afternoon will come to hard rain on his tender new broccoli plants.

But some things, the farmer says, just don't trouble him all that much these days. Like the accident that left him paralyzed from the waist down.

"Well, this isn't such a big operation," says Barnes, surveying the five-acre vegetable plot he tends from his wheelchair, his arms bulging as he wields a hoe, his feet in their rough work boots dangling uselessly. "But I'm still a farmer."

Barnes, 59, was a Vermont dairyman for more than 25 years, keeping 100 head of Holsteins on his 200 acres of land, just a stone's throw away from the Connecticut River Valley town of Bellows Falls, where he was born.

Then one cold January day in 1974, he was fetching a saw from the porch of his 19th-century red farmhouse when a huge chunk of ice came thundering off the steeply pitched roof, throwing him down in the snow.

"No warning," says Barnes, his hand pausing and his eyes remembering. "That was it."

He'd had farm accidents before — a silo explosion that knocked him out, a painful fall in the barn — "nothing that didn't mend right up," he says. This was different. His back was broken, and he spent more than a year in the hospital.

"One of those doctors told me I'd never get up out of bed," he says, snapping his green-striped suspenders.

The accident left him strapped financially, and Barnes had to sell off some of his land, most of his machinery and all of his dairy cows.

"I couldn't take care of them," he says sadly. "It bothered me to sell, though. I was some attached to them cows."

His sister Betty, 50, who has lived with him all her life, says, "I didn't know what he was going to do."

Back home, in the summer of 1975, Barnes planted a small garden. "I didn't want to be a vegetable," he says, grinning. "But growing them wasn't so bad."

He found work at nearby farmers' markets, doing a little gardening on the side. He became town treasurer for Saxton's River. He had ramps built up to his barn and house. This year, Barnes is back to full-time farming.

"I get up early," he says, "though not like I did with my cows. And last night I was out transplanting lettuce till dark."

Out in the fields, he propels his creaking wheelchair over grassy bumps and muddy spots. Other than bicycle tires, the chair has no special equipment, and it is solely powered by Barnes. "A battery wouldn't hold up half a day," he says scornfully.

"I tip over once in a while," he says, pulling himself along between the rows of cabbage and cauliflower, squash and onions. "Used to be, I'd lie there and wait for someone to pick me up. Now I get the chair up again, and get myself up into it."

From his chair, he can dig potatoes, pick corn, stake tomatoes and weed the pea patch. The garden is laid out three rows at a time, with the space for the fourth row left empty for him to come down in the chair. From either side, he tends the outside rows, reaching in to work the middle one.

"I don't get any aches from stooping over," he says. "I just reach down, I'm there."

But there is no mistaking the strain in his weathered face as he struggles over a mound of dirt, the wheelchair listing perilously to the side. "I get tracks worn, and it's a little easier," he explains, panting.

In the musty barn, there is a new litter of pigs, and two horses boarded by neighborhood girls. Barnes' tools — a small hand-controlled tractor, a roto-tiller, a planter, a sprayer, a cultivator — are neatly arranged near the doorway.

The only remnants of his dairy operation are a few rusty milk buckets and metal collars for the dairy cows, hanging empty.

"Well, you can't go back to what you were," says Barnes. "I don't like to dwell on troubles."

Burial custom: Key West recycles graves

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — It's a burial custom unheard of elsewhere in the United States. One cemetery expert from Boston calls it desecration of the dead, but for natives of this small island, it has been a way of life for at least 60 years.

The practice is recycling graves — gravediggers shoveling up skulls and bones, reburying them a bit deeper and placing a new coffin on top.

Key Westers say the custom was born from lack of space on their small island, not lack of love. Some families request a recycled grave even if there is room for separate burial.

Troy Shuler Jr. says 28 members of his family are buried in seven spaces in a family plot in Key West Cemetery, a historic graveyard in the heart of the island the Spanish once called Cayo Hueso — Isle of Bones.

"I think there are a couple of more we don't know about," says Shuler, 59. "I have a son buried there; the grave he's in has about seven people buried in (it)."

"I'm not so ashamed that my mother's buried on top of my grandmother out there," says the cemetery's sexton, Jack Carbonell, adding that he and his wife also would be buried that way. "If we're together in life, can't we be together in death?"

But Eric Marmorek of Boston, a member of the 2,500-member American Cemetery Association, says he finds the practice disturbing.

"It's unheard of," says Marmorek. "One doesn't disturb remains at all. In many, many parts of the world where land is scarce, they use double, in some European countries, triple interments, but with separate cement containers for each casket.

"What you have here is desecration of graves. It's a flagrant violation of anything I know of, ethically, legally, emotionally. 'Cursed be he who disturbs my bones' — that's on Shakespeare's grave."

Officials estimate that as many as 100,000 bodies are buried in 15,000 spaces in the high ground at the foot of Solares Hill in Key West Cemetery.

Carbonell calls accusations of desecration "fictional ... a bunch of baloney."

"If the body was buried from 1910 to 1930, there's nothing left except maybe a small bone," says a cemetery worker. "If it was buried in the '50s or '60s you might find a skull or bone."

Robert Maxwell, attorney for the Florida Cemetery Association, says the custom may violate a Florida statute prohibiting disinterment without permit.

"They'd have to remove a body from a grave," Maxwell says. "That's the definition of disinterment. I don't know of any cemeteries that operate in that fashion.

DEAR ABBY

Adulterer gets out of bed

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Your reply to the bed-hopping wife, WEAK IN ILLINOIS, missed the mark. She said, "I've gone from one adulterous affair to another until now I can't even count them. I'm not oversexed; in fact, I'm just the opposite. I get nothing out of these affairs, and can't for the life of me understand why I deliberately get myself into such miserable situations that offer no sexual fulfillment, knowing if I'm caught I'll lose my husband and children. Can't something on the order of Alcoholics Anonymous be organized for compulsive adulterers?"

You replied, "I can't imagine a compulsive adulterer phoning another compulsive adulterer and being talked out of it."

Abby, I am a recovering compulsive adulterer who tried two psychiatrists, one psychoanalyst, three group therapies, various religious approaches and finally exorcism! Understanding what motivated me did NOT give me the power to control my actions. I lost my wife and children, and I was about to lose my second family when I found a program based on the principles of Alcoholics Anonymous to help compulsive "lusters" control their lust in the same way compulsive alcoholics control their drinking.

It is "Sexaholics Anonymous," a fellowship of men and women who share their experiences and help each other conquer their common problem.

I am now free from the obsession of sex, and have not had sex with either myself or anyone other than my wife for the last five years. That is a miracle for which I thank God and Sexaholics Anonymous.

In 1979 we received authorization from Alcoholics Anonymous to adopt its 12 steps, but there is no organizational affiliation between S.A. and A.A. There are no dues or fees. Like A.A., S.A. is entirely self-supporting and accepts no outside contributions. The only requirement for membership is a sincere desire to stop lusting and help other sexaholics to achieve sexual sobriety. — SET FREE IN L. A.

DEAR FREE: Until I received your letter, I had never heard of "Sexaholics Anonymous," and after checking it out, I am convinced that yours is a serious, legitimate program. If there are others out there whose lives have become unmanageable because of compulsive lusting, information about this newly formed organization can be obtained by writing to: P.O. Box 300, Simi Valley, Calif. 93062.

DEAR ABBY: My son is a newspaper carrier. He just came home terribly disappointed after attempting to collect his paper route bills. Apparently many people do not realize that newspaper carriers are in business for themselves. They must pay for the newspapers out of their own pockets, and collect the money to stay even. If the carrier fails to collect from the customer, the carrier is out of luck!

My son's enthusiasm for his paper route has dropped to the point where he is thinking of quitting. I would hate to see that happen, Abby, because his paper route was his first step toward financial independence and maturity.

Abby, please say something in your column about the importance of paying the newsboy. You wouldn't believe the number of people who move away without paying. Also, there are those who keep asking the carrier to "come back another time." Some of those poor kids have had to go back four or five times to get their money and they take a lot of verbal abuse to boot. — SACRAMENTO DAD

DEAR DAD: Here's your letter, and I hope it helps.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ANN DOE WHOSE ENVELOPE BORE A MONROE, VA., POSTMARK: Please let me know how I can get in touch with you. I want to help you, but I need your address.

(Problems? Write to Abby: 2060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Puppets help alert kids about crime

By SUSAN LEONARD
The Arizona Republic

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — If Eager Edger were able to, he probably would have cried.

Eager foolishly had given out his address to a stranger, and now he and his sister were being held hostage in their house while their parents were gone.

"Why won't you let us go?" asked Eager, desperation in his squeaky voice.

"Because it's fun to keep little kids in their house and scare them when no one is home," said Gen Rummy, a sneaky, evil woman who had had too much to drink.

To the youngsters who recently watched Eager and Ms. Rummy perform at Our Lady of Mount Carmel School here, the situation and the characters seemed very real — and educational.

That's the point, according to officials with the Tempe Police Department and Mount Carmel, who supervised a recent puppet show starring Eager and Ms. Rummy.

The act was part of a five-day series of puppet shows that a group of Mount Carmel eighth-graders recently developed and put on for their school's younger students and for students at Laird Elementary School. The idea for the program originated with the Tempe Police Department.

"It's been a very successful program," said Al Taylor, a Tempe detective who helped develop the program to teach students about crime, police and how to protect themselves against dangerous situations and dangerous people.

The pilot program debuted this year at Mount Carmel and another Tempe school, Kyrene Junior High, which also presented puppet shows to a Tempe elementary school. In all, 1,100 students saw the shows, Taylor said.

He says police plan to expand the program to several other schools next year because it has been so successful.

"The older kids have a greater impact on the younger students than the teachers or the police," Taylor said. "And we believe all of the students will remember the concepts longer this way than if they read them in a book."

In the play involving Ms. Rummy, the children eventually are rescued by a policeman named Justin Time — and the audience gets the message.

"The lesson to this story is don't give information over the phone or answer the door to strangers," Officer Time says at the end of the show.

Taylor said the program has been well-received by the younger students, the police, the teachers, the Sunrise Kiwanis, which put up $400 for it — and, most of all, by the eighth-graders, who wrote the scripts and made the hand puppets and the sets.

Sister Virginia Marie Crilly, one of the eighth-grade teachers at Mount Carmel, said 43 students out of a class of 52 worked on the voluntary project.

Choose your way to grill chicken

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

One thing you can be sure of this summer: a lot of reasonably priced chicken will be barbecued. You can also be certain the chicken will come from the grill one of two ways. Some fire-tenders like to grill chicken rather quickly so it is on the chewy side and charred.

Other fire-tenders like to grill chicken far away from very low coals so the bird is soft and tender, giving it a glaze toward the end of the cooking and omitting the deep charring.

A friend of ours has her own particular way of barbecuing chicken. She pre-bakes it in her indoor kitchen at her own convenience. Then when her outdoor dinner is ready to be served, her husband gives the chicken its glaze over slow coals. This way the full flavor of the sweet and zesty barbecue sauce she concocts is preserved.

SWEET AND ZESTY BARBEQUE CHICKEN

3 pounds chicken parts
8 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup apricot preserves
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
2 tablespoons finely grated onion, pulp and juice

With a sharp-tined fork, prick the chicken on all sides. Stir together half the Worcestershire sauce and half the lemon juice; brush the mixture over the chicken; set aside for about 15 minutes.

Place the chicken, skin side up, in a single layer, on a shallow foil-lined baking pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until partly cooked — about 30 minutes.

Meanwhile, in a small saucepan, stir together the apricot preserves, mustard, onion, remaining Worcestershire sauce and remaining lemon juice. Simmer, uncovered, stirring often, for about 5 minutes.

Arrange chicken on a rack over slow-burning charcoal. Brushing with the apricot mixture and turning as necessary, finish cooking the chicken until it is as tender and glazed (but not deeply charred) as you like — usually about 20 minutes.

Makes 4 servings.

Note: The final glazing over charcoal may be omitted, if you like. In this case, continue baking the chicken in the oven. After the first 30 minutes of baking, when the parts will be partly cooked, starting brushing them with the apricot mixture and turning as necessary until they are as tender and glazed as you like — usually about 20 minutes longer.

American style: Historic army fortress restored

By MIKE HENDRICKS
Associated Press Writer

SACKETS HARBOR, N.Y. (AP) — Several pages of American history were written in this tiny village where the waters of Lake Ontario lap quietly on the upstate New York shore.

The first battle of the War of 1812 was fought off Sackets Harbor, which served as the defense of America's northern boundary in those days.

Some of the greatest names in American military history — soldiers like Ulysses S. Grant, William Sherman and Zebulon Pike — were stationed at the scenic limestone Madison Barracks, one of the nation's first major Army posts.

Dr. Samuel Guthrie amputated a soldier's leg in the barracks' hospital in the first operation performed with anesthesia.

In spite of its history, the fort was abandoned by the Army after World War II and neglected for decades, becoming a popular roosting site for pigeons as the limestone buildings orumbled.

Thanks largely to the energy and vivid appreciation of history of one Army general's elderly widow, and the money of an unconventional industrialist, the historic Madison Barracks are rising again with the same spit and polish that generations of soldiers used to keep the place in shape for 135 years.

The barracks are being turned into a complex of apartments, complete with wall-to-wall carpeting and all the conveniences of the 1980s inside, while the outside is being restored to the condition Ulysses S. Grant would recognize as the place he lived as a 26-year-old first lieutenant.

Sydney Smith refused to accept the end of Madison Barracks. Her family's history goes back to the man who designed the fort in the early 1800s and is entwined with the barracks where she lived as the wife of a rising young officer, the late George Smith, who became a general during World War II.

Mrs. Smith's family has lived in a large house within sight of the barracks for eight generations, and she has devoted her time documenting the heyday of the Madison Barracks.

Her crusade to arouse interest in the barracks lasted more than three decades before she finally succeeded in attracting wealthy Frank Augsbury Jr., who runs lucrative petroleoum distributing and St. Lawrence Seaway shipping operations and was looking for a real estate venture.

Augsbury's plans call for preserving as much of the historic flavor of the old military fort while creating a community of apartments, beachfront townhouses, restaurants, a theater and convention center on the post.

Madison Barracks originally cost the federral government $151,000 to build in 1816, but the restoration project, complete with modern day inflation and interest rates, reportedly is costing more than $5 million.

Mrs. Smith is happy with the project, seeing it as the salvation of an important piece of history.

"I am absolutely pleased," said Mrs. Smith, who works as historical consultant on the project. "They are terribly nice about keeping me in touch with what is going on."

Augsbury says he would rather see Madison Barracks rehabilitated by a public commission with state funds proposed in legislation debated in Albany, but he shares Mrs. Smith's belief the old Army post is too important to be allowed to decay.

"Since no one seemed willing to do it, I bought it," Augsbury said, explaining his investment. "I really feel Madison Barracks can be a great addition to New York tourism — as well as a housing project."

The restoration began four years ago. Thirty-five families aleady are living in the apartments that were once the barracks for officers back in the 1800s. Another 32 apartments will be ready by the end of summer, said David Mackey, sales director for the project.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

How to ham it up on vacation, trips

DEAR HELOISE:

Sometimes, when I buy a ham, I have the butcher or market manager slice it into very thin slices.

If you've ever traveled America's highways and stopped by one of those sandwich places for a quick lunch, you've seen how they pile the bread high with paper-thin slices of ham or turkey.

Delicious! Well, my family can enjoy the same type of sandwich at home or in a packed lunch. It's really convenient, and much cheaper than buying pre-packaged luncheon meats. — Anne

+ + +

Most butcher shops and supermarkets will slice meat to your specifications, though some might charge a slight fee for the service.

The convenience of having your meats sliced to whatever thickness you desire is worth it.

Try Anne's suggestion next time and bet your family will flip over how good that meat tastes sliced thin. — Heloise

SHOWER WINDOW

Dear Heloise: If you're one who has a window in your shower stall-tub, firmly press clear adhesive-backed paper on the window sill.

Just make sure the window sill is clean and dry before applying the paper.

It should protect your window sill from moisture for quite some time. It has mine. — Mary Lou Watkins

COFFEE FILTERS

Dear Heloise: When I was given an automatic coffee maker, I found you had to use coffee filters.

Not wanting to go to that expense, I discovered that the basket section of my wornout electric percolator fit perfectly into the basket section of the new coffee maker.

Now there's no need for a filter. But if some sediment does seep through, you can always make a filter to fit the old basket out of white paper towelling.

Just that many more pennies saved. — Mrs. Harold Hardin

+ + + +

Now that's a new one! This would be a good tip to remember if ever you run out of coffee filters for your automatic coffee maker. — Heloise

EFFORT SAVING TIP

Dear Heloise: I had an outside faucet that was built low to the ground.

For a nominal fee, I had an extra long extension of pipe installed to replace the short piece.

It's so nice to be able to walk up and turn on the tap without having to stoop over. Now the garden hose can easily be stored up off the ground by coiling it around the handle.

When one's knees won't bend, it helps to extend. — R. Hines

CARPET FRESHENERS

Dear Heloise: Suddenly we have all gone bananas over the fragrant carpet powders, only to discover that the fragrance quickly disappears and is gobbled up by the vacuum cleaner.

To make your rooms delightfully fresher longer, lift the cushions on sofas and overstuffed chairs, sprinkle on a little of the carpet powder, and replace the cushions.

Don't vacuum — it'll last for days. — Mrs. Mildred Kost

Prison demands

WASHINGTON (AP) — there is a nationwide boom in prison and jail construction, reports a national construction publication.

More than 130 prisons and jails are under construction in 40 states, with an additional 380 proposed. Their total estimated cost is $6 billion.

Crime rate increase

During the 1970s the violent crime rate per 100,000 population in the United States increased from 363.5 to 535.5, a gain of about 47 percent.

All Citizens May Participate

Wyoming Oil Leases To Be Awarded in July

ONTARIO, CALIF. — Hundreds of average citizens will acquire oil lease rights in upcoming public awards conducted by the State of Wyoming. Some may achieve overnight wealth by selling their rights to oil companies and retaining lifelong royalties on any oil or gas production.

Incredibly, most will risk no more than $25 and a minimal filing fee to enter the little-known program that offers every American the opportunity to compete on an equal basis with giant oil companies for leases of public lands.

Information and entry details are available from The H. Kirk Sanders Co., Public Lands Division, Box 3697, Ontario, Calif. 91761 (2032 Caroline). Enclose $1 for postage and handling.

Official entry cards will be rushed by return mail to permit the timely filing of entries before cut-off date.

Hundreds of persons lined the outside of the Westwood Village Theater in Los Angeles, Sunday for the evening showing of "Superman II," the sequel to the 1978 movie exploits of the comic book hero. The movie has set a two-day box office record, and according to Warner Bros., is threatening other marks established by recent fantasy films.

Book stirs U.S. controversy

NEW YORK (AP) — It's a small book — 164 pages — but its graphic account of torture and imprisonment in Argentina packed a punch that some say has bruised the Reagan administration.

It certainly has stirred controversy in print and among Jewish leaders.

With "Prisoner Without a Name, Cell Without a Number," an account of 2½ years of captivity by Argentina's military rulers, Jacobo Timerman has become a rallying point for opponents of President Reagan's human rights policies.

No charges ever were filed against the Buenos Aires newspaper publisher, and he was exiled in 1979 after intense international pressure, including much work by the Carter administration.

The book accuses Argentina's military rulers of anti-Semitism, likening the government to Nazi Germany's. Initial press and literary reaction was uniformly sympathetic after the book's release last month, and opponents of Reagan's human rights policies took up his banner when he began criticizing the administration for viewing human rights violations by right-wing governments more tolerantly than those of communist regimes.

Torture is torture, Timerman said, whatever the government.

His statements were widely believed to be embarrassing in light of Reagan's nomination of Ernest Lefever as assistant secretary of state for human rights. Lefever bowed out after the Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted against his nomination.

Timerman's critics began speaking out.

One of the first public attacks on Timerman was a Wall Street Journal column by Irving Kristol, a professor at New York University's graduate school of business and a prominent neoconservative. He accused Timerman of assuming the role of "spokesman for those less interested in using the human rights issue against left-wing totalitarian nations ... than against right-wing authoritarian governments ... with which we have friendly relations."

Two days later, conservative columnist William Buckley wrote "one wonders about Mr. Timerman's stability" and judgment, adding he was skeptical about "his usefulness as a moral arbiter."

"The case of Jacobo Timerman is no longer the subject for a book review. It has become a 'cause celebre' in the American intellectual community, and a factor in policy making," said syndicated columnist Max Learner.

New York Times columnist Anthony Lewis, a liberal, defended Timerman. "The Argentine military ... tortured him, taunted him for being a Jew, held him in confinement for 2½ years," he wrote. "In all that time the colonels and generals could think of no charge to bring against him.

"Now the American right has stepped in where even the Argentine junta would not tread. Outraged by the power of Mr. Timerman's witness to inhumanity under a right-wing regime, conservative commentators have tried to smear him with charges fashioned from rumor and innuendo."

Timerman's publisher is happy about the debate, but not just because it helps sell books — the hardcover edition is already into its fifth printing.

"The controversy has been a good thing. It's making people think about human rights," Robert Bernstein, president of Random House, said. Bernstein, who introduced Timerman to sympathetic congressmen, is a frequent critic of human rights violations in the Soviet Union.

No one has questioned Timerman's account of his imprisonment — Amnesty International estimates some 15,000 Argentinians were seized by the military the past five years. But Jewish leaders in Argentina and some Jewish leaders in the United States have questioned his conclusions about Argentine anti-Semitism and his warning that another Holocaust may be in the making there.

Timerman, now 58 and a citizen of Israel, is bitter toward Jewish leaders in Argentina. In his book, he wrote "electric shocks on my genitals" had not humiliated him so much as "the silent complicity of Jewish leaders."

"Jewish leaders in Argentina are repeating the experience of Jewish leaders in Germany when Hitler came to power," he said in an interview. "They are trying to compromise with their enemies."

Mario Gorenstein, a spokesman for Argentine Jews, held a New York news conference to accuse Timerman of exaggerating the Argentine government's anti-Semitism. The news conference was set up by the American Jewish Committee.

'Crisis' bargaining ahead for strike-torn industry

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — As producers enter "crisis" bargaining with directors in an attempt to avert the fourth Hollywood strike in less than a year, the industry already has begun an economic tailspin that has thousands standing in unemployment lines.

Officials for behind-the-scenes union workers report that 25,000 of their members — up to 50 percent in some job categories — are unemployed because of the writers' strike and the threat of a directors' walkout.

"In the next week, week and a half, you're going to see catastrophic and crisis bargaining if things do not get settled," said Louis Steinberg, executive vice president of the Los Angeles Film Development Committee.

Following the lead of the Writers Guild of America — on strike since April 11 — and actors and musicians who struck last year, the Directors Guild of America has vowed to strike July 1 over residuals for original pay TV and video disc and cassette programs.

"The producing community is pretty much at a standstill," Steinberg said Friday in an interview, noting that filming during June — normally a slow period anyway — is down 66 percent this year.

Producers said the film-TV industry lost $40 million a week during the actors' walkout, but Steinberg said it could be worse this time because the 6,400-member Directors Guild also represents stage managers and associate directors.

"You could probably triple that (losses) because the actors' strike related only to prime-time programming," he said. "When the actors went out it only affected prime-time (TV) programing, not commercials or industrial films, or talk or variety shows.

"If the directors go and they carry with them the stage managers and associate directors it's going to carry with it everything across the board.

"And that's just not in Hollywood; that's all across the country. There'll be nothing but reruns," Steinberg said.

"This (a directors' strike) is piled on top of a rather bad economic year," said Tom Ellington, president of Consolidated Film Industries, one of Hollywood's leading film processing labs.

As of early June, box office receipts were down industrywide for the second straight year — nearly 10 percent below last year's receipts to date.

State unemployment officials also are feeling the Hollywood labor strife.

"Normally our claims load does decline rather substantially in the summer,' ' said Ray McFarland, state employment program manager in North Hollywood. "The decline (this summer) was much less than it usually is."

Members of the Gay Fathers of Los Angeles join ranks along Santa Monica Boulevard in Hollywood, Sunday in preparation for the 12th Annual Gay and Lesbian Pride Parade that kicks off National Gay Pride Week. According to sheriff's department estimates, more than 75,000 persons turned out for the festivities that included the two-mile parade and daylong partying.

Gay parade called a rousing success

WEST HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Gay organizers claimed a resounding success in the Los Angeles area as they kicked off National Gay Pride Week with a gala parade.

An estimated 75,000 people turned out Sunday for the 12th Annual Gay and Lesbian Pride Parade, one of several activities scheduled around the country.

Another major parade is slated for next Sunday in San Francisco, but about 2,000 persons warmed up for it on busy Castro Street at welcome-home festivities for the San Francisco Gay Men's Chorus which had just returned from a national tour.

The West Hollywood parade, featuring the Los Angeles Gay Marching Band and floats, at one point stretched along the full length of the two-mile route along Santa Monica Boulevard in the heart of Los Angeles' gay community.

The most applause went to a group marching as the "Parents of Gay Children."

A carnival was set up in the Pacific Design Center parking lot near the end of the route.

Police reported there was no trouble at the parade and that no arrests were made.

Locaton is 2,173 feet from the south and east lines of section 4 of the A.L. Braigance survey.

Group says most oil decontrol profits being used to buy smaller companies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Major oil companies are using most of their extra profits from the decontrol of crude oil prices to acquire competitors, buy more land than they can explore efficiently and hoard cash, according to an organization often critical of the industry.

The principal industry association denounced the report as "unfounded and misleading."

In its study released Sunday, Energy Action said the nation's 16 largest oil companies had $29 billion more in financial resources in 1980 than in 1978 as the result of higher oil prices. They spent $5 billion of that for increased U.S. oil exploration and production and $11 billion on buying other companies and non-petroleum investments, the group said.

Of the rest, $2 billion went into buying more land, $3 billion to expand foreign exploration activities, $2 billion to upgrade other petroleum activities such as refining and marketing, $3 billion to dividends and $1.7 billion to financial investments, Energy Action said.

"This report shows that the companies are accumulating cash faster than they are able, or willing, to spend on the legitimate search for oil and gas," said Edwin Rothschild, director of Energy Action.

The American Petroleum Institute, however, said much of the $11 billion used for non-petroleum acquisitions went into coal, uranium, synthetic fuels and solar energy. The industry group accused Energy Action of being arbitrary in not counting that toward expenditures for increased production.

"Overseas oil and gas exploration are treated separately even though more oil or gas produced anywhere in the world puts downward pressure on OPEC prices," the trade group said in a statement.

The industry group challenged the listing of land purchases in a separate category because "land obviously is a key ingredient to oil and gas production."

The 16 companies covered were Exxon, Mobil, Texaco, Standard Oil of California, Gulf, Amoco, Arco, Shell, Standard Oil of Ohio, Conoco, Phillips, Sun, Union, Getty, Occidental and Tenneco.

Nolan and Fisher wildcats planned

Two wildcats have been scheduled in Nolan and Fisher counties along with two confirmers finaled in Fisher in District 7-B of the Texas Railroad Commission.

NOLAN COUNTY

JEM Petroleum of Midland will drill the No. 1 Grace as a 6,200-foot wildcat, 5/8 mile northeast of an undesignated Ellenburger discovery and four miles east of Sweetwater.

Location is 467 feet from the south and 617 feet from the west lines of section 37, block 21 of the T&P survey.

FISHER COUNTY

Seago Oil Inc. of Abilene will drill the No. 1 Moore, a 5,400-foot wildcat in Fisher County, one location south of the lone gas producer in the Claytonville, Southeast field, seven miles southwest of Roby.

Location is 2,000 feet from the south and 467 feet from the west lines of section 195, block 3 of the H&TC survey.

****

The Sylvester (Goen) field gained its seven producer and a location west extension to that pay with the completion of the Charles M. Childers No. 1-A Billie Joe Wilson, two miles east of sylvester, to pump 45 barrels 42.3 gravity oil, plus 8.1 barrels of water, with a gas-oil ratio of 67,791 to 1.

Production was through perforartions at 5,321 to 5,334 feet which had been acidized with 1,000 gallons and fractured with 8,500 gallons, plus an unreported amount of sand.

Drilled as a wildcat to 5,427 feet, with 4 1/2 inch casing set at 5,419 feet, the well is plugged back to 5,350 feet.

Location is 9,070 feet from the north line and 854 feet from the east lines of the Elijah Bell No. 328 survey.

****

The Hunsaker (Strawn and Noodle Creek) field gained its sixth Noodle Creek producer and a 1/2-mile south and slightly west extension to that pay with the completion of the GMW Corp. of Midland No. 3 Keokuk "A" four miles northeast of Rotan.

Potentialed to pump 20 barrels of 40.8 gravity oil plus 47 barrels of water, with a gas to oil ratio of 300 to 1, production was gained through perforations at 3,516 to 3,528 feet which had been acidized with 10,000 gallons.

Location is 660 feet from the south and west lines of section 183, block 3 of the H&TC survey.

Mid-America, ARCO plan joint Oklahoma venture

Gordon S. Knox, chairman of the board of Mid-America Petroleum Inc. has anounced that Mid-America has entered into an agreement with ARCO Oil and Gas Company, a division of Atlantic Richfield Company, to form the Mid-America/ARCO Mississippian Joint Venture. This agreement names Mid-America as the operator in the development of approximately 40,000 net acres located in the Sooner Trend of Northern Oklahoma. Mid-America/ARCO will drill approximately two hundred development wells during the next three years at a total cost of approximately $125,000,000. Twenty of these wells will be drilled in 1981.

The prospects on which the wells will be drilled are in one of the world's largest accumulations of non-structural Mississippian oil and gas production. All of these wells will penetrate Pennsylvanian sands at shallower depths and most will test the Wilcox which lies a few hundred feet below the Mississippian.

Under the terms of the agreement, ARCO contributes all acreage to the joint veture, including all geological and geophysical information. Mid-America contributes 70 percent of the drilling costs and ARCO contributes 30 percent of the drilling cost and the two companies share equally on the revenue.

Mid-America Petroleum Inc., an over-the-counter stock (MAMP), with corporate headquarters in Dallas and exploration offices in Midland, Houston, Oklahoma City and Denver, is engaged in oil and gas exploration, development and production.

Mexico indicates it will cut oil exports

By The Associated Press

A large French petroleum company today said it is slashing its oil imports from Mexico, which intends to raise prices despite a worldwide glut. Mexico said it will accept reduced exports.

Cie. Francaise des Petroles said it will cut its Mexican imports in half, to 50,000 barrels a day, beginning July 1. A spokesman in Paris cited the "marked" decline in world oil prices in recent weeks.

The slumping world oil prices have dropped prices in the spot market below the official prices in every country, including Saudi Arabia. A Japanese government official said today Saudi oil was offered to a Japanese company at a price of $31.60 a barrel on the spot market.

The official Saudi price of $32 a barrel is the lowest of the world's official oil prices, but companies that buy it are evidently now willing to resell it at a loss due to the oil glut.

Mexico charges up to $34.50 a barrel and says it wants to raise the price in July. The country wants to recover all or most of a $4 per barrel cut made this month and has ousted the official who decided on the cut.

Polls are split on Detroit tax increase vote

DETROIT (AP) — Two polls indicate a proposed Detroit income tax increase will pass in Tuesday's election, but a third terms the outcome "too close to call."

Detroiters will decide whether to raise the city income tax by one percentage point — from 2 percent to 3 percent for residents and from a half-percent to 1.5 percent for commuters — as a way to help the Motor City avoid bankruptcy.

Proponents said they would concentrate campaign efforts on black voters, and separate telephone surveys of 500 registered voters completed last week for the Detroit Free Press and WJBK Television suggest the size of the black vote could decide the issue.

Suspect says robbery was motive

DALLAS (AP) — A 21-year-old suspect in the murders of two young North Dallas residents says the slayings would not have occurred had he and an accomplice not been "high on drugs."

"All I ever wanted to do was grow to be a rich man," Fletcher Thomas Mann said in a copyright story in The Dallas Morning News Sunday.

Police say the killers took $76.10 from three people in a Park Lane apartment last Sept. 11. The nightmarish robbery resulted in the rape and stabbing death of 22-year-old Barbara K. Hoppe, the shooting death of 23-year-old Christopher Bates and the attempted murder of his roommate, 23-year-old Robert Lee Matzig.

"It was real dumb, and we were high on acid and stuff like that," Mann told the News.

Mann, who has been charged with two counts of capital murder in connection with the slayings, is being held in Bullitt County Jail in Shepherdsville, Ky., on unrelated rape and robbery charges.

"I decided to tell the police because they were going to drag my parents into all this," Mann said. "I felt bad about that girl (Ms. Hoppe), but it doesn't bother me any more. It's done and you can't undo it."

Mann said he and his friend saw the trio watching television through a sliding glass door in the apartment "and we figured it was a rich area, and they looked rich, and we could get some money...

"We knocked on the door and they told us to come in, and so we went in and threw down on them (drew guns), and tied the two guys up. While I was tying up the second guy, (his partner) was having sex with her (Ms. Hoppe). Then I went in and did it too."

When he later saw his accomplice choking Ms. Hoppe, he said, "I wanted to get it over with ... I went into the kitchen, got a butcher knife and handed it to him and he stuck it straight through her heart."

When sure she was dead, the pair returned to the living room and demanded money from the men, Mann said. But when only $10 to $15 was offered, they became angry and Matzig and Bates offered to cash checks to placate them, he said.

After cashing about $160 in checks, the men were driven to a vacant field, where Bates was shot in the back of the head and Matzig was shot in the neck.

"I did it to the guys," Mann said.

"The dead girl — I wish that would never have happened. If we hadn't killed her, we wouldn't have had to kill them. It didn't bother me about the guys at all. Once we killed her, it had to be done."

Mann, who says he has been arrested at least 30 times, is scheduled to undergo psychiatric testing before his trial on rape and robbery charges in Kentucky.

"I am going to make them think I'm crazy," he said.

Town looks back on tragedy; draws closer together

DAINGERFIELD, Texas (AP) — The plain, brick Baptist church nestled among tapering pines on the main street of this tiny eastern Texas community serves both as a grim reminder and a source of comfort to those who survived a gunman's savage attack last year.

No one knows why a former high school math teacher donned combat gear, armed himself with automatic weapons and stormed a Sunday worship service.

Five people were killed and 11 were wounded when Alvin Lee King III burst into the First Baptist Church shouting, "This is war!" and opening fire.

What happened the morning of June 22, 1980 has forever changed the townspeople's lives.

"There's been a drastic change in the community," said Police Chief J.R. Keene. "I hestitate to use the word paranoid ... let's just say they are highly suspicious, very wary."

Two men sit outside the church now during services, and another two inside the foyer — just in case. As a precaution, youngsters attend separate services in a different building so another child won't be slain as 7-year-old Gina Linam was.

"It is not a town gripped in fear, but a town continually coping with fear," Keene said.

Yet the place where the shooting occurred also has been a place of solace. Since the shootings, the First Baptist Church, which had 300 in attendance that fatal morning, has increased its membership 20 percent and has become a close-knit "family."

"The biggest thing is how much the church has touched so many lives," said Jana Truitt, daughter-in-law of Ken Truitt, one of the five killed.

Church members have "drawn close together," and their faith has "made this bearable," she said. "If it weren't for us believing in God, that he's (Ken Truitt) in a better place, I just don't know how people could handle it."

Jack Dean, an usher who was shot in the hand, still has nightmares about the shooting. But before going to sleep each night, Dean says, "I just tell the Lord 'Thank you, and I'll see you in the morning.'"

Chris Hall, who escaped injury when the gunman aimed at him but missed, said: "Even though I had been a Christian all these years, I didn't realize how much Christ had already done for me."

But he still feels uneasy sitting with his back to the sanctuary door.

Hall wrested one gun away from the gunman, and Red McDaniel forced him from the church as gunfire hit him again and again. Truitt was fatally shot in the chest while keeping the gunman from re-entering the church.

Others killed were Thelma Richardson and Gene Gandy.

King, who taught math to two of Truitt's sons and once got assistance from the church when his house burned down, has been found incompetent to stand trial. He is under treatment at Rusk State Hospital. Doctors say he suffered "brain trauma" from a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Two planes crash; All aboard believed dead

BLISS, Idaho (AP) — Two light planes collided and crashed in the desert six miles north of Bliss, the Gooding County sheriff's office says.

Dispatcher Aurora Gay said it was believed all aboard were killed in the Sunday night crash.

One body was recovered but had not been identified, she said.

The search for other bodies was called off until 6 a.m. because of darkness, but two deputies remained at the scene, Mrs. Gay said.

The planes collided at 9:23 p.m.

She said no other details were available.

Mike O'Connor of the Federal Aviation Administration Northwest Region office in Seattle said one plane, a Piper Cherokee, was receiving traffic advisories from the approach control at Mountain Home Air Force Base, but was under Visual Flight Rules — not operating under the direction of a flight controller.

O'Connor said the Cherokee's pilot reportedly had been advised about the other plane's location, "but that has not been confirmed. That was through the National Transportation Safety Board."

He said the flight had originated from Burley, Idaho, but he did not know the destination.

O'Connor said the other plane was believed to be a Cessna. He said no communication with it had been reported and its origination and destination were not known.

Golf columnist Graham orders round for scribes

By DAVE KINDRED
(c) 1981, The Washington Post

ARDMORE, Pa. — "You guys thirsty?" David Graham asked a tentful of sportswriters, which is like asking if we're broke. Of course. It goes with the territory, and Graham knows it, for he is a $100-a-week columnist for Golf World magazine. "You want some champagne?" posed the U.S. Open golf champion, and the distinguished journalists answered so shyly the sound rattled dishes in downtown Melbourne.

David Graham's smile took the darkness away. He loved the moment, and we knew it. That is news. This is a reserved man who learned to hide his feelings so he wouldn't be hurt, who left his home in suburban Melbourne, Austrailia, at 15 even though his father said he never would speak to him again if he did. Graham has the look of a distinguished British gentleman, a David Niven fresh from his weekly cut at the barber. Graham on par in a tux.

Reserve be damned at this moment, though, for Sunday David Graham won certification forever as a great player. He won the toughest tournament there is with work so patient, so precise, so invulnerable to pressure that Bill Rogers, who tied for second place, said, "The man hit 18 greens in the last round of the U.S. Open, and that's just unbelievable."

TWO YEARS ago, Graham won the PGA Tournament, another of golf's four major championships that are the measure of immortality. With victory available then, he dearly needed to win there. He needed the money, a friend said, because he was broke despite Golf World's largesse. He needed to win, too, because the only other way he could make money was to go back to his old work, the insanity of the world tour. If this is Thursday, we're teeing off in Zambia.

Now, at 35, winner of seven American tournaments and nearly $1 million in his 10 years here, Graham's life has taken a solid shape that at 15 seemed an impossibility. His father wanted him to be a doctor perhaps, something respectable, certainly not a scrungy hangabout at a scruffy golf shop. Graham felt an affinity for the game. He didn't know why. He can't explain it. He just felt right with a golf club in hand. He couldn't explain it to a father who didn't want to hear it. He last spoke to his father 20 years ago.

"I ordered 25 cases of champagne," David Graham said, fairly shouting to his fellow scribblers.

BY NOW HIS wife Maureen, who walked every hole for four days, had taken a chair at the foot of the interview podium. They shared glances. When he spoke of the PGA tournament, how much it meant to win, he looked at Maureen. He said, "Mentally, the greatest accomplishment was the PGA championship. As an Australian in America — I'd lived here eight years — the only way to stay on tour was to get in the top 60 money-winners. So I wanted not to have a bad year and lose the exemption. I didn't want any thoughts of not playing the tour and having to play the international tour again and ... "

Graham moved his eyes toward Maureen.

" ... uprooting my family."

By winning the PGA and its 10-year exemption, Graham said, "I could plan the next 10 years of my life, and that plan is based on living in this country. ... I am forever grateful for what golf in America has done for me, and I'll never leave this country."

For that, America should be grateful, because in Graham golf has a master craftsman in the Nicklaus mold. They are buddies, Graham and Jack Nicklaus, who now uses clubs designed by Graham (the last set sold for $5,400). Not only is Graham a serious student of the swing, he is, with Nicklaus, a protector of the game's dignity. Even in the giddy moments of celebration Sunday, he had the class to say it is important to lose graciously. It is so important, Graham said, that golf is a tyrant of conflicting demands.

David Graham does a jig after birdie on 10 puts him in the lead.

Memories of Wee Ice Mon

Like Hogan, Graham played with poise, precision

By D. BYRON YAKE

ARDMORE, PA. (AP) — David Graham marched to the U.S. Open Championship title with poise, precision and perfection.

He needed nothing fancy, no miracle putts, no fancy bunker shots. He reached 18 greens at the Merion Golf Club in regulation. He three-putted only once, and he was in the fairway 17 times.

The first Austrialian ever to win the Open, the first foreign winner since Tony Jacklin of England won in 1970, Graham shot a final round 67, 3-under-par. For the tournament he was 68-68-70-67—273.

He moved from three strokes behind George Burns III at the start of the final round Sunday, and literally swept aside Burns with his consistency.

"Today would have to be as good as I've ever played in my life," Graham said. "I can't play any better."

Burns, who led after the second and third rounds, tumbled from contention with erratic drives that left him in the rough time and again. He and Bill Rogers finished tied for second place, three strokes back at 276.

"You can't win when you're putting for pars instead of birdies," Burns said.

ROGERS, A consistent big money winner on the tour but with only one victory, had a 69 on the final day after previous rounds of 70, 68 and 69.

"I'm proud of my play this week," he said. "I thought I played better than anyone, but then they told me David hit 18 greens today, so obviously he was better than I was and a worthy champion."

Graham was simply unyielding. He birdied four holes and bogeyed only one, No. 4, where he 3-putted.

His 7-under-par was the second lowest ever in the Open. Jack Nicklaus, a contender until the final nine, won the Open last year at Baltusrol with a record 272.

John Cook and John Schroeder tied for third place, six strokes back at 279.

Nicklaus, troubled by poor putting, never put on the charge Graham and many others thought he would. He finished at even-par 280 with Frank Conner, Lon Hinkle, Samuel Rachels and Chi Chi Rodriguez.

Jim Thorpe, who held the lead after the first day with a 66, finished at 281 along with Ben Crenshaw and Isao Aoki of Japan.

"I couldn't win the Open, but I'm going to the Masters," said Thorpe, one of the few black golfers on tour. He had never qualified for the Masters before.

Graham started the final round at four under par, three strokes behind Burns, the reluctant leader of the second and third rounds.

"My golf game is not suited to Open courses," Burns had said, then set out to prove the opposite with three consecutive sub-par rounds.

BUT GRAHAM applied pressure on Burns quickly.

He birdied the first and second holes to move to within one stroke of Burns.

When Burns bogeyed No. 4, the two front-runers were tied at 6-under. But Graham promptly bogeyed No. 5 and not until Burns bogeyed No. 10 were the two tied again.

The coup de grace came on No. 14, a par four, 414-yarder.

There, Graham dropped his second shot four feet from the pin and sank it for a birdie.

He put the match away on the next hole with another beautiful iron 6 feet away.

"My salvation, I guess, was putting the ball so close," he said.

Graham, who has won titles on five continents, said he felt less pressure in the Open than he did when he won the 1979 PGA title because he needed that win to be exempt from qualifying for tournaments.

"Mentally, this is the best I've ever been in golf," he said, noting that he didnt bite his fingernails once. "I can't believe it.

"Today, I religiously stuck to playing the golf course the way I intended to. I really felt I maintained my composure very well. I did not get excited nor did I get any thoughts about winning the Open until I hit my tee shot at 18."

That was a particularly difficult moment. He had hit three poor drives on the earlier rounds.

But his drive this day was perfect.

"If I hit a bucket of balls I couldn't hit it any better than that," he said.

Though Graham was playing with Burns, he said Rogers and Nicklaus were his biggest concerns.

"Nicklaus is always a threat, and I know Rogers has the game to win," he said.

NICKLUAS was at 3-under at No. 6, and closed to within three of Burns, the leader at the time.

He bogeyed No. 7 with three putts, but he came back with a birdie at the par-3 No. 9.

When he missed a birdie 10 and 3-putted 12, it was over.

M-Cubs return for 2nd half

Out in El Paso last week, they looked more like a poster for the Spirit of '76, but don't try to tell that to the El Paso Diablos.

The Cubs, the season-long patsy on the road, knocked the Diablos out of the first half Texas League pennant by winning four of six games in Dudley Field's Center ring and it was just the kind of finish Manager George Enright hopes will provide the springboard for a big second half, which begins at 7:30 p.m. tonight against the Amarillo Gold Sox.

Cubs at home

MONDAY-Amarillo at Cubs Stadium, 7:30 p.m.
TUESDAY—Amarillo at Cubs Stadium, 7:30 p.m.
WEDNESDAY—Amarillo at Cubs Stadium, 7:30 p.m.
THURSDAY—Amarillo at Cubs Stadium, 7:30 p.m.
FRIDAY—Amarillo at Cubs Stadium, 25-cent Beer night, 7:30 p.m.
SATURDAY—Amarillo at Cubs Stadium 7:30 p.m.

THE SOX should be a fitting test for Midland, since the they dealt the Cubs more misery than anyone in the first half, winning 11 of 16 against the Bruins.

In fact, after a double shutout in a June 13 doubleheader, the Sox had an 11-4 edge over Midland. That's when the Cubs turned it around. They had managed only five wins in 30 road games after the Amarillo sweep, but Randy Clark, on a four-game winning streak after losing his first six decisions, beat the Sox 5-4 in the getaway game at Amarillo and then came the destructive four-out-of-six against El Paso.

So the Cubs are home to open the second half with a 12-game stand against Amarillo and San Antonio, the first half champion.

WHAT'S MOST remarkable about the Cubs' El Paso performance is that it was accomplished despite a staggering sick bay. Casualties included relief pitcher Rob Blyth, who seems about ready to shake his arm trouble; lefthander Tom Spino, muscle tenderness in his forearm; Carmello Martinez, who hurt his arm in pregame infield Wednesday in El Paso; catcher Mike Diaz, a scalping suffered when he fell asleep at the hair stylist; and Carlos Gil, back on the injured list.

Since the Cubs went on the road for two weeks, some changes have been made. Outfielder Jeff Burton was released to make room for Joe Carter, the Chicago Cubs' No. 1 June free agent draft choice out of Wichita State, and pitcher Henry Mack, with the Cubs the last two years, returned.

Carter, from Oklahoma City, was the No. 2 draft pick in all of baseball, possesses speed and power and the confidence, if not quite the ability, that he can clear double-decked fences in one mighty bound. In El Paso Thursday, Joe leaped against the wall for a ball that high up on the upper portion of the fence in a game if futile effort.

Mack, who had knee surgery that kept with his nose pressed against the spring training window at Mesa, Ariz., was so anxious to get going that he pulled a groin muscle and has spent most of the spring in Sarasota, Fla., with the rookie club. "I got in about 50 innings there, so I feel I'm ready."

LEFTHANDER MIKE Thompson and Mike King have been with the club less than three weeks, but have contributed four victories in that time, one reason Enright is looking forward to the second half with enthusiasm. Thompson has twice come within an out of a complete game victory, losing a shutout on his last pitch in an 8-2 win at El Paso. The one time he did make it all the way, he blanked Amarillo, 3-0, on six hits for his second of three wins. His earned-run-average is 1.11.

King, a 6-1, 177-pound lefty from Sioux City, Iowa, was with Midland in spring training before being farmed out to Quad Cities. Last year he was 0-4 at Ogden, his first pro season.

And contrary to the popular belief, the baseball strike in the majors will effect the Midland Cubs. Chicago Cubs Coach Cookie Rojas will be in Midland to take a first hand look at the Bruins as the Cubs staff fans out in the minors to determine what the talent situation is down on the farm. With the strike moving into the second week, it may be that when play resumes, some minor league pitching may have to be summoned to the majors to give idle big leaguers a chance to regain their competitive edge. —TED BATTLES

McEnroe, Lloyd begin net quests

By THOMAS BOSWELL
(c) 1981, The Washington Post

LONDON — For John McEnroe, there is only one "he" in the world. The whole masculine gender is, for him, epitomized by the name Bjorn Borg.

For Chris Evert Lloyd, there is only one "it" in the tennis universe. The pronoun is reserved for Wimbledon.

When McEnroe says, as he often does, "I know I can beat him," he always means Borg. When Evert says, "I'm sure I can win it," she means Wimbledon.

Much of the core of the championships that will begin for the 104th year upon the lawns of the All England club Monday will center on how America's best "gentleman" and "lady" player cope with their personal tennis obsessions. Can McEnroe do what no man has done in five years: beat Borg on the Centre Court grass that has become the 25-year-old Swede's personal celebratory kneeling ground? Can Evert, the ruler of all surfaces except the fast, erratic grass of Wimbledon, overcome what has been (by her standards) a bad record here: two titles in nine years, including three consecutive defeats in the final?

ASIDE FROM the royal wedding next month, those are the two most prevalent topics of London conversation. Can McEnroe, the brash, unpopular No. 2 seed, beat Borg, whose pluck, gallantry and reserve have

Caulkins takes two first places

MISSION VIEJO, Calif. (AP) — Tracy Caulkins and Jesse Vassallo won two events each Sunday night as the fourth annual Seventeen Swim Meet of Champions at the Mission Viejo International Swim Complex came to an end.

Caulkins, 18, of the Nashville, Tenn., Aquatic Club, captured the women's 200-meter breaststroke in 2:33.39, just .33 off her American record, and later won the 200-meter individual medley in 2:16.92. Caulkins wound up winning six events in the three-day meet and totaled 164 points to capture top honors in total points for the second year in a row.

Carner fires 13-under to repeat at Hershey

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — JoAnne Carner shot "the easiest 66 I ever had" to repeat as champion of the Lady Keystone Open golf tournament with a record 13-under-par 203 for 54 holes.

Carner called the 30th victory of her 10-year pro career "a milestone.

"You need 30 wins to qualify for the Hall of Fame," she said. "It's important to me. Besides, it makes a good obituary."

Carner had strong rounds of 68-69-66 to take top money of $18,750 in the $125,000 event at Hershey Country Club West Course. She now ranks first on the current Ladies Professional Golf Association money list.

She took a 2-stroke lead into the final round over Patty Sheehan and Pat Bradley, who set the previous tourney record of 206, 10 under par, in 1978. Bradley had a 3-over-par 75 Sunday and dropped to seventh. Sheehan had a 2-over 74 to finish at 213, in a four-way tie for third with Nancy Lopez-Melton, Sandra Spuzich and Beverly Klass.

Sheehan could have tied for second if the rookie hadn't hitched a ride on the back of a golf cart. That brought a two-shot penalty.

"It was a stupid thing to do," said Sheehan, who explained she was trying to avoid a male spectator who was badgering her about her game.

The last day of competition "was easy because everything I did was right," said Carner, who had seven birdies and one bogey on the 6,388-yard course. "I could have even had a better score. I was right in there for birdies all day."

Martha Hansen, who started the day 2 under, fired a 69 for second place, the best finish of her young career.

Would Carner retire if she wins a major title?

"They were asking me that when I was 35," she said. "I'm 41 now, and if I can keep shooting 66, I may never retire."

Spokane spanks Albuquerque

By Associated Press

The Albuquerque Dukes and Hawaii Islanders went out on a losing note but still won division titles in the windup of the first half of the Pacific Coast League season.

Roy Clark's two-run double led the Spokane Indians to a 5-3 victory over Albuquerque, winner of the first-half title in the South Division, while Kelvin Moore drove in four runs as the Tacoma Tigers blanked Hawaii 6-0 Sunday.

The Islanders won the first-half title in the North Division by a game and a half over the Tigers and the Portland Beavers, who swept a doubleheader with the Phoenix Giants 12-7 and 5-4.

In other games, the Salt Lake City Gulls pounded the Tucson Toros 7-1 and the Edmonton Trappers swept a doubleheader with the Vancouver Canadians 6-4 and 2-0.

For frustrated George Burns, it was the kind of a day in which sand flew from the traps.

Burns does slow burn

George sizzles at USAG president

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — George Burns came disliking the U.S. Open, the course it was played on and the people who ran the event.

He went home the same way.

Bill Rogers came liking the course, thrilled to play in the U.S. Open and satisfied with the sponsors — the United States Golf Association.

He went home the same way.

The diametrically opposite golfers wound up in a dead heat for second place in the 81st Open over the Merion Golf Club.

They shot 3-under-par 276s for the 72-hole championship, three strokes behind winner David Graham.

Burns had nothing but admiration for Graham.

"He won the Open ... he went out and took the championship. I came here not playing well, not expecting to do well and got out with far more than I came with."

BURNS'S BLAST was against former USGA President Harry Easterly. Easterly criticized a putt Burns made.

"I heard him say, 'That was a lousy putt,'" Burns said after he had blown a three-stroke lead to Graham Sunday.

Burns said he went over to Easterly and called him an unprintable name.

"A man of his stature — former USGA president — doing what he did ... bothered me, I'm sorry to say," Burns said.

"But David is a winner," Burns repeated, lest it be thought he was alibiing.

USGA vice president James R. Hand answered for Easterly, who had left the course. Hand said he was told by Easterly that he felt Burns had heard only a negative part of a comment that also included a compliment.

Burns has been feuding with the USGA for for some time. He has said Open courses are not his kind. He has described officials as stiffnecked.

"They act like protectors of golf, which they are, I guess. It's just that they go overboard."

Burns also complained about a bunker at the 10th hole.

He recalled telling his caddy it was the worst raking job he had ever seen. He also criticized the greens.

"It's tough when you have an eight foot putt that breaks eight feet," he said.

"But David Graham won. I felt I helped him along at times, but David just went out and won the championship," Burns said.

ROGERS REACTED to his second-place finish in a completely different fashion.

"The U.S. Open is probably the greatest championship. To come up short is extremely gratifying. If ymu can't win, second best isn't bad," Rogers said.

Rogers said he loved the 6,528-yard course. He said it perfectly suited his game.

"I played well, but Graham played a little bit better," said the Texan, who has won one event on the PGA tour since turning pro in 1974.

Rogers said when he birdied 12 to go 4-under, he felt one stroke better could win the tournament for him. That put him one stroke behind Burns and Graham.

But he bogeyed 16, and although he birdied the final hole, it was too late.

"But finishing as I did gives me a nice feeling, because it gives me a shot at the Ryder Cup, and I really like that," Rogers said. "I'm pleased to finish second in the U.S. Open."

Rogers and Burns — different strokes for different folks.

Graham learned early not to anticipate victory

(From 1D)

He had an example. The example is telling of more than golf's character; it tells us all we need know about this man who is proving to his father that a man is what he makes of himself, not what someone thinks of him.

"As I walked down the first fairway," Graham said, taking us back to the playoff for the 1979 PGA championship, a playoff that came about only because Graham made a double bogey on the 72nd hole, "I was instructing myself how to be a generous loser. I had no idea I would make that putt."

With Ben Crenshaw certain to make a par, Graham had one last chance, a putt from 25 feet. "At the same time, you have to keep thinking you can win. But if you lose, lose with dignity."

Graham made the putt, and made a birdie putt two holes later to win the PGA.

"I started the game of golf as a struggler," Graham said, "and so I have taught myself not to anticipate situations. Don't start acting like you've won a golf tournament when you haven't yet won it. I don't want to make an idiot out of myself. I don't want to do a dance on the greens."

But now, on a Father's Day that is as nice as they get for David Graham, he laughed out loud as he told his fellow journalists, "With 25 cases of champagne, if the people at the airlines want to go on strike, we'll all get drunk and fly home, anyway."

Such a marvelous columnist, this fellow David Graham.

The champagne was delightful.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Marsh, Allison among Sunday winners

By The Associated Press

GOLF— Graham Marsh of Australia fired a 6-under-par 66 to win the Pepsi-Wilson golf tournament by 1 stroke. Marsh, who started the day 2 strokes behind third-round leader Toru Nakamura of Japan, carded seven birdies and one bogey for a 270 total, 18 under par, over the par-72 Ube Country Club course. Japan's Yutaka Hagawa, who was second with a 271 total, shot a course record 64 in the final round. Nakamura shared third with Kikuo Arai of Japan with 273. Nakamura finished with a 71 and Arai a 66...

Barbara Bunkowsky's even-par 74 helped Florida State capture the Association of Intercollegiate Athletic for Women's national golf championship by 3 shots over favored Georgia. The Lady Bulldogs claimed the individual championship when Terri Moody edged Patti Rizzo of Miami by two shots in a three-hole playoff.

AUTO RACING— Bobby Allison got a break when the lead pack got tangled in a series of spectacular crashes just five laps from the end, allowing him to win the Gabriel 400 Grand National stock car race under the yellow flag at Michigan International Speedway. Allison, who registered his fourth victory of the season, averaged 130.589 mph over the two-mile oval track in a Buick Regal and added to his substantial lead in the season point race.

During a series of spins and crashes on the backstretch of the 196th lap that involved the cars of Cale Yarborough, Darrell Waltrip, Buddy Baker, Benny Parsons and Dale Earnhardt — all of whom continued — Allison sped by untouched and beat Harry Gant and Parsons to the finish line. Jody Ridley wound up fourth and Earnhardt was fifth...

A.J. Foyt survived an early battle with Tom Sneva to win the rain-shortened Van Scoy Diamond Mine 500-mile race at Pocono International Raceway. Foyt, who averaged 137.196 mph, took the lead from Geoff Brabham on the 119th lap, and the U.S. Auto Club-sanctioned race was halted 122 laps later by rain after two hours, 13 minutes, and 23.16 seconds. Tom Bigelow was third when the $300,000 race was stopped. Fourth place, one lap down, went to George Snider, Foyt's teammate; Harry MacDonald was fifth, three laps back.

TRACK AND FIELD— Thierry Vigneron of France, in his first attempt at 19 feet, cleared the barrier for the first time in the pole vault, clearing 19-0¼ in an international jumping competition. The former record of 18-11½ was set by Wladislaw Kozakiewicz of Poland at the Moscow Olympic Games, July 30, 1980.

TENNIS— Mark Edmondson of Australia defeated Roscoe Tanner 6-3, 5-7, 6-4 to win the Lambert and Butler grass courts tournament... Tracy Austin blitzed Andrea Jaeger 6-3, 6-4 for the singles title of the BMW women's grass court championships...

Baseball today

Tuesday, June 23

On this date in baseball in 1973:

Philadelphia's Ken Brett set a major league record for pitchers by belting a home run in his fourth consecutive game, leading the Phillies to a 7-3 victory over Montreal.

On this date in 1971:

Rick Wise of the Phillies became the first pitcher in major league history to hit two home runs and hurl a no-hitter in the same game, blanking the Cincinnati Reds, 4-0. It was the second time in three weeks that the Big Red Machine had been no-hit. Chicago's Ken Holtzman had turned the trick on June 3.

On this date in 1950:

Hoot Evers' ninth-inning homer gave the Detroit Tigers a 10-9 victory over the New York Yankees in a wild game which featured 11 home runs.

On this date in 1917:

Boston's Ernie Shore hurled the most unusual "perfect" game in baseball history as he beat the Washington Senators, 4-0 at Fenway Park. Red Sox starter Babe Ruth walked Washington's Ray Morgan to lead off the game, then was ejected after an argument with umpire Brick Owens. Shore was called off the bench to relieve the Babe; and after Morgan was thrown out trying to steal second base, Shore set down the next 26 Senators in order.

Today's Birthday:

Los Angeles Dodgers pitcher Dave Goltz is 32.

Silva sees Gomez win

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (P) — Raul Silva of Costa Rica, who was knocked out Saturday night by super bantamweight champion Wilfred Gomez, predicts Gomez will easily defeat featherweight champion Salvador Sanchez of Mexico.

Sanchez has offered Gomez, the World Boxing Council titleholder, a shot at his title, also a WBC title, on Aug. 21 in Las Vegas.

Banks' record highlights meet

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Willie Banks has the fortune to be the best in the nation, perhaps in the world, at what he does, and the misfortune that what he does is the triple jump.

The 25-year-old UCLA law student bettered his own American record twice Sunday night, the second time with an astonishing 57 feet, 7½ inches that was the best performance ever recorded at sea level.

The only longer jump on record was 58-8¼ by Brazil's Joao de Oliveira, in the thin air of 7,200-foot-high Mexico City during the 1975 Pan American Games.

Banks started his leap from a "board" that was actually a white stripe, painted schoolyard-style on the runway.

Long jumpers take off from an actual board, made of hard clay. So do triple jumpers, in places where the event is taken more seriously. You can dig your spikes into a board for a better takeoff. You can't dig your spikes into a painted line.

And this was no backwater meet, but a national championship, officially dubbed the USA-Mobil Outdoor Track and Field Championships.

"If they're going to have the national championships here, they should have had a board," Banks said afterward. But he preferred to talk about the future.

Sunday night's triple jump competition was probably the finest of any event in the three-day meet, with six men over 55 feet, Mike Marlow hitting 56-4, and Banks starting at 56-5, then breaking his old American record by 1½ inches at 56-11, and following with 57-7½.

A world record appeared within reach, but the schedule then called for a half-hour break to allow another group of triple jumpers to begin the competition. Banks said he tightened up during the wait, though he sailed 58-7, with a substantial foul, on his last try.

It was the only American record of the meet, which was otherwise highlighted by the double victories of 19-year-old Carl Lewis, with a 10.13 100 meters and a sparkling 28-3½ long jump, and Evelyn Ashford, who dominated the women's sprints at 11.07 in the 100 and 22.30 in the 200.

Edwin Moses extended his unbeaten streak in the 400-meter hurdles to 69 races over nearly four years, getting some unaccustomed competition from NCAA champion Andre Phillips of UCLA before winning in 47.59, the sixth fastest time on record — all by Moses.

If some of the clockings fell short of expectations, the competition did not, as the athletes fought for berths in the U.S.-Soviet dual meet next month and the World Cup in Rome this September.

One dramatic race was the 1,500 meters, where NCAA champion Sydney Maree of Villanova won a scorching stretch duel with Steve Scott in 3:35.02, a meet record.

It was a gratifying victory for the 24-year-old native of South Africa, who is now a U.S. resident and has applied for citizenship.

Politics has followed his footsteps everywhere. He has been barred from some international meets; five Russians refused to compete in the same meet last February because of South Africa's white-supremacist policies — even though Maree is black.

Maree cannot run against the Soviets next month because he is not yet a U.S. citizen, and his appearance in the World Cup may touch off more protests.

"This was one of the opportunities that I was given after all that I have suffered for four years," Maree said Sunday night.

When Scott moved alongside him with 100 meters to go, he said, the race came down to a test of will, and "I had a little more to lose."

The day's most bizarre event was the pole vault, won by Billy Olson at 18-2½ in a psychological battle with veteran Steve Smith.

Smith was being treated for a hamstring injury when the competition started and didn't take his first vault until the bar reached 17-10½, six inches higher than he'd cleared all year.

He made it on his second try, and responded with obscene bicep-clutching gestures.

McEnroe begins annual 'he' quest almost made him an honorary Briton? And can top-seeded Evert, embraced here since showing the good taste to marry an Englishman, win the one event that is her nemesis?

Entire conversations with McEnroe concerning Borg — the state of Borg's rusty game, his mysterious injuries, his unshakable tenacity of mind, the recent changes in his superstitious practice habits — can begin and end without Borg's name ever being mentioned. "He" is Borg.

For McEnroe, unchallenged as the world's second-best player, no other opponent is worthy of discussion. Sunday afternoon, McEnroe took a glimpse of Centre Court (silent and deserted under tarpaulin), then walked away. Whatever he felt, he hid. When you are the wrong half of perhaps the greatest Wimbledon final ever, you wait your chance for revenge.

"Ive digested it; it's gone," said McEnroe of the match 50 weeks ago when he fought off seven match points to win the fourth set, then took Borg to the extremity of 8-6 in the fifth.

"Because it's early in my career, hopefully, I can learn from that, instead of being held back by it," said the 22-year-old, whose tactical remedy for fading in that last set was to cut out "junk food" this year and slowly lose about 20 pounds.

LAST YEAR, McEnroe was on his best Centre Court behavior, trying to convince the English that he was not "Superbrat," as they dubbed him. And he lost. To cheers. "Yeah," concluded McEnroe cryptically, "the English love losers." This year, McEnroe's offcourt campaign continues to convince press and fans that he's no bad fellow, just a competitor so highly strung that his edge will vanish if he must act civilized and creative at the same time.

McEnroe may no longer care about British sensibilities. Last weekend at the Queen's Club he berated a woman umpire, then even swatted a ball at her. So much for resolutions. If it takes bad manners to win against Borg, then, bad manners it may prove to be.

McEnroe knows, as all England knows, that this may be the hour to unseat Borg and claim the worldwide tennis glory that will go to the man who ends a winning streak — 35 straight matches at Wimbledon — that may be comparable in difficulty to, say, Joe DiMaggio's 56-game hitting streak in baseball.

Borg, who will begin this year's play at "precisely 2 p.m." on Centre Court against Peter Rennert, has played only four tournaments this year because of shoulder tenderness. His victory in the French Open does not completely erase the memory of his March-April loses to McEnroe, Rolf Gehring and Victor Pecci.

"Some think that Borg is not yet hitting the ball as consistently deep as he would like," offered three-time champion John Newcombe.

"Let's hope so," grinned McEnroe, "but you never know about Borg's injuries — if he's hurt, or how much. There's lots of talk, but then he just plays the same as ever — great."

HAS BORG, since settling down with wife Marianna Simonescu, become a less-than-hungry homebody? Also, how dare the Swede change his religiously strict pre-Wimbledon ritual? This month, most of Borg's sessions have been at Lensbury rather than his old, less-ritzy haunt, the Cumberland Club. Borg has even had a tiny flap with Wimbledon officials, getting his dander up about the rule restricting players to just one hour of pretournament practice on the sacred courts.

McEnroe, with his fierce serve-and-volley game, his splendid lobs and overheads, thinks that he is the perfect versatile grass-court player, while Borg is still primarily the beast of the back court with unequaled passing shots on the run.

Both Borg and McEnroe have draws that they like. Borg, for instance, faces few threats in his half of the draw — possibly Victor Amaya, Brian Teacher, Kevin Curren or Johan Kriek — before a probable semifinal meeting with Jimmy Connors, whom Borg has owned for years.

McEnroe will not have to face Gene Mayer, the No. 5 seed who withdrew with a wrist injury, nor will he see Connors, who gives him a tough match. Yannick Noah and either Roscoe Tanner or Ivan Lendl in the semis may be McEnroe's toughest early tests.

Ask Borg and McEnroe whom they would most like to duck and Borg might say Tanner while McEnroe might point at Connors; both have their wish.

If the men's final has a fair chance of holding form, the women's singles is wide open, with all the top five seeds having plausible reasons for victory on their side.

THE TOP two seeds have nagging injuries: Evert (right knee) and Hana Mandlikova (sore lower back, hasn't practiced this week). No. 3 Tracy Austin won crisply over No. 5 Andrea Jaeger in the Eastbourne final Saturday, but she remains under the shadow of a sciatic nerve problem that sidelined her five months.

The angriest woman has been Martina Navratilova, insulted at being seeded fourth rather than third. Her rage has quieted slightly since she analyzed the draw: her three most aggravating back-court rivals — Evert, Austin and Jaeger — are all in the other half, while Mandlikova, the French Open champion, seems less imposing.

In this sport of children, Austin, who just graduated from high school, and Jaeger, 16, are practically dowagers. This year, 14-year-old Kathy Rinaldi of Florida will become Wimbledon's youngest competitor since 1907.

Should Mandlikova prosper here, a nice tiff is brewing. Since the 19-year-old Czech won the Australian Open last November, as well as the French in May, does that mean she has won two legs of a grand slam already? Or is the Australian Open clearly part of '80?

The British press has taken up the chorus that Mandlikova is halfway home. Evert gave her opinion in one word: nonsense, or something like that. That's an opinion shared by McEnroe. It's time to cut out the foolishness here, they think.

They are an odd pair, America's best two players. Evert is supposed to be an ice maiden when, in fact, she is saucy and sassy. McEnroe, outwardly truculent and sour, may, in fact, be a young artist who is simply too spontaneous for his own good.

Magic mouth... is it too good to be true?

By HOWARD ULMAN

WEYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — The dentist who devised it admits it sounds too good to be true.

How could a few ounces of acrylic and stainless steel placed in the mouth give athletes more strength, speed and endurance and shield them from injury?

It may sound like magic. But Dr. Gerald Maher says it's science.

Maher has fitted about a dozen New England Patriots' players with mouthpieces he designed. The devices correct jaw misalignment that occurs when players clench their teeth.

Not all users understand how it works; they're just glad it does.

Don Hasselbeck, a tight end for the National Football League team, said that the day after he first clipped the mouthpiece onto his teeth, he knocked 14 minutes off his previous best time in a 10-mile race.

He said he's been able to lift more weight and sleep more soundly with it.

"I can't explain it," Hasselbeck said. "It's like television. I sit there and watch it and I don't understand how all those waves get the picture to me. I just know I see a picture."

This is how Maher explains it:

In most people, the temporomandibular joint (TMJ), which connects the jaw to the skull, is not aligned perfectly. Because of that, nerve impulses originating in the brain lose energy when they pass through the jaw. Muscles, then, will get a smaller impulse, which means less strength.

"Normally 40 percent of your muscle fibers fire if your jaw is out of alignment," Maher said.

When the jaw is aligned properly with the mouthpiece, "We're finding neurologically that we're getting 80 to 90 percent of the muscle fibers firing," he added. "We have to make the person stronger."

Maher said his theory is solidly based on research by others and by his own objective tests.

The technique has been used elsewhere.

In 1963, Dr. John Stenger, the team dentist at Notre Dame, outfitted the entire football squad with mouthpieces similar to Maher's. The Philadelphia Eagles, Buffalo Bills and Green Bay Packers of the NFL also have used them.

Among the athletes Maher has fitted with mouthpieces are middleweight boxing champion Marvin Hagler, marathoner Patti Catalano, Boston Red Sox pitcher Chuck Rainey and Boston Bruins' center Dwight Foster.

Recently, Pete Brock, Andy Johnson and Mike Haynes of the Patriots were fitted for the mouthpieces at Maher's office in this suburb about 15 miles south of Boston.

The mouthpieces fit over the molars and bicuspids and do not interfere with eating and speaking. They are worn during athletic activity and sleep, when people tend to grind their teeth.

But not everyone is unconvinced.

"The thing may very well work," said Dr. Richard Smith, a TMJ researcher and professor in the orthodontics department at the University of Maryland Dental School in Baltimore.

But, he added, "I was concerned with some of the statements that were going around that the TMJ was some important center that has great implications for the rest of the body, sort of analagous to an acupuncture site.

"I don't buy that. I know of no evidence to that effect," Smith said.

"Fifty percent of the nerve supply of your entire body is here," Maher contends, pointing to the head and neck area. "It's a very, very rich supply of nerves and blood vessels."

Maher ran in this year's Boston Marathon and said his mouthpiece helped him to his best marathon time ever. Catalano, who finished second in the women's division, only uses her mouthpiece when she sleeps.

"I got it for the purpose of not grinding my teeth (during sleep) and he said 'try it when you run' and I didn't notice any difference. I wore it for a week (while running)," she said. "It didn't really give me any kind of lift, psychological or physical."

Maher said Catalano's mouthpiece may have been adjusted improperly. He also said any psychological edge would be minimal.

He said the device is ideal for football, in which players undergo many stressful moments and clench their teeth.

Maher said the mouthpiece can prevent injuries. If a football player is hit from the front, it may prevent the jaw from being driven into the skull, causing a concussion, he said.

"If you're going into the fourth quarter more rested, your body's performing better," said Maher. "Not only are you going to get less concussions, you're going to get less knee injuries, less shoulder injuries, all injuries."

"I wore it for the last two or three games" of the last NFL season, said Patriots' running back Vagas Ferguson, "and I did notice in the fourth quarter that I did feel a lot better."

The mouthpiece has detractors who claim its benefits are psychological, studies are inadequate and evidence lacks objectivity.

NHL begins meetings

CHICAGO (AP) — Vancouver's signing of two Czechoslovakian hockey players already drafted by two other teams is expected to be on the agenda today when the National Hockey League's Board of Governors opens a two-day meeting.

Vancouver General Manager Jake Milford has signed Ivan Hlinka and Jiri Bubla although, in a special draft, Hlinka was selected by Winnipeg and Bubla by Colorado.

NHL President John Ziegler has ruled that the Czechs cannot play for Vancouver, and Winnipeg and Colorado are threatening to sue the Canucks.

Milford claims that a presumed agreement between Ziegler and the Czechoslovakian Sports Federation is not as yet in effect and that he signed Hlinka and Bumla to keep them from going to other teams in Western Europe.

The Board of Governors has the ultimate authority and can enforce Ziegler's ruling or overturn it and let the Canucks keep the Czechs.

Also on the agenda is a proposal that the automatic 10-minute misconduct penalty for players who fail to leave the area of an altercation be eliminated.
