Ike To Confer With GOP Leaders In NY

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — President - elect Dwight D. Eisenhower is planning an important round of conferences with Republican leaders in New York next week before leaving for Korea, associates said today.

These associates, who asked not to be named, said the conferees may include Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, chairman of the Senate GOP policy committee, and Sen. Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin, in line to head the Senate Foreign Relations Committee when the Republicans take over control of Congress in January.

Eisenhower, vacationing at the Augusta National Golf Club, plans to head for New York Sunday or Monday.

He will confer the early part of the week at the White House with President Truman, who has invited the general to sit in at a discussion of international and domestic problems facing the new Republican administration.

To White House

Aides of the President - elect said he wants to talk over such matters first with GOP congressional leaders but may switch signals, go to the White House first, and meet with them later in the week.

Wiley, attending the United Nations General Assembly in New York as a U. S. delegate, said yesterday that Eisenhower has called him to a meeting two weeks hence for a discussion of American foreign policy.

Eisenhower's press secretary, James C. Hagerty, confirmed here that Eisenhower had extended an invitation to Wiley. But Hagerty hinted the get-together is booked for next week, rather than the following week.

Full-Scale Meetings

Other sources said a full-scale meeting of GOP congressional leaders is in prospect. They added that those present may include Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts and Detroit banker Joseph M. Dodge, both of whom were named by Eisenhower over the week end as his liaison men with the out - going Truman administration.

Hagerty said late yesterday no date had been fixed for Eisenhower's trip to Korea — a trip the general said during the campaign he would make in an effort to find a way to end the conflict there.

AMERICAN U.N. GIRL BECAME RUSSIAN — Miss Olga Michka, 33-year-old typist, told Senate Internal Security Subcommittee in New York that she gave up her American citizenship to become a Soviet citizen while employed by the United Nations. Tells Of Red Plans For Iron Curtain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adm. William Standley, former U. S. ambassador to Moscow, tells House investigators today how Soviet Russia began building an arc of pro-Communist states around Eastern Europe in 1943.

The admiral heads a top-level group of witnesses appearing before a special committee investigating the massacre of 15,000 Polish officers and intellectuals at Katyn Forest, Western Russia, early in World War II.

The committee has reported to Congress that Russian secret police committed the murders to prepare for a pro-Communist Poland. It is now trying to determine whether news of Russian guilt was suppressed by American officials to avoid disrupting wartime relations with the Soviets.

Prepared Corridor

Standley, ambassador to Moscow from 1941 to 1943, reported in a series of secret documents that Russia was preparing the corridor of barrier states now behind the Iron Curtain.

His story backgrounds a two-year effort by Polish officials to locate their officers in Soviet prison camps. The committee says they were killed in the spring of 1940. Moscow claims they were murdered by the Nazis a year later.

Sumner Welles, former under secretary of state, also has been summoned for further testimony on diplomatic developments in the closing years of the war. Committee officials say Welles was aware that Moscow used the furor over discovery of the Katyn massacre in 1943 as a pretext for breaking relations with the Polish government-in-exile in order to set up a pro-Communist regime in Poland.

Claim Disclosures Forced Lie To Quit

NEW YORK (AP) — The United Nations should either help purge itself of "spies and saboteurs" or get out of the United States, say two members of the U. S. Senate Internal Security Committee.

One of the two senators is the committee chairman, Pat McCarran (D-Nev.), who says he also thinks Trygve Lie resigned as U. N. secretary general because "of disclosures made and disclosures we will make in the future."

The senators' search for suspected American Communists on the U. N. headquarters staff was resumed yesterday. Lie's resignation on the previous day served to embellish the committee's already dramatic hearings.

McCarran, here for the first time in four weeks of intermittent sessions, and Sen. Willis Smith (D-NC) composed a subcommittee which heard three more American U. N. employes refuse to answer some question concerning Communist party membership.

Obtains Russian Passport

A fourth witness said earlier she switched her citizenship from American to Russian simply by obtaining a Russian passport. She is Olga Michka, 33, an American-born U.N. clerk and typist.

A State Department official in Washington said later he did not think she automatically lost her American citizenship when she received the Russian passport.

Smith, angry at the attitude of some witnesses, snapped at the close of the all-day hearing that it is up to the U.N. "to help us purge it of spies and saboteurs."

If that cannot be done, he said, the U.N. "ought not to be allowed to sit in America."

"Senator," added McCarran, "I agree with you heartily."

After the hearing had adjourned until today, McCarran told newsmen he believed his committee's inquiry had brought about Lie's announcement of resignation on Monday.

McCarran said Lie's statement of reasons for quitting reminded him of a Thanksgiving pumpkin. "It looked good," said McCarran, "but it was hollow."

Lie Resigns

Lie said on Monday he was resigning "because I hope this may help the United Nations to save the peace and to serve better the cause of freedom and progress for all mankind."

The U.N. official did not mention the McCarran inquiry. However, he has said in the past that while he did not want any employes disloyal to their countries, he would not fire anyone on "mere suspicion or smears."

An interview with Lie published today in three Scandinavian newspapers said he emphatically denied the McCarran inquiry influenced his decision to resign.

The interview quoted Lie as saying he thought Russia's refusal to recognize him might have stood

AEC Mum On Bomb Report

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission says it will have an announcement, apparently soon, in connection with snow balling reports the first American hydrogen bomb has been exploded in the South Pacific.

Vivid eye-witness accounts of a purported "hell" bomb blast -- some said it virtually sank an Eniwetok Island — have been received in uncensored letters from U.S. sailors to friends in this country.

An AEC spokesman said yesterday "we will make an announcement" as soon as the current series of atomic tests is concluded. Until then, he said, "we will have absolutely no comment."

Descriptions of the recent explosion — H-bomb or super atomic — agree that it was an awesome thing.

One sailor wrote that he watched the spectacle through binoculars from his ship 30 miles away. He saw a great chunk of one of the Eniwetok atolls "just seem to melt away" in the fire that burned for six hours after the blast.

Finally, he said, the entire mile-wide atoll "actually disappeared."

Dodge Cautious In Session On Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joseph M. Dodge, advance financial scout of the Eisenhower administration in Washington, took a cautious seat today in councils drafting next year's federal budget.

Dodge, just before going into a conference with Director Frederick J. Lawton, said that as Eisenhower's personal representative he would express no opinions nor would he participate in discussion of budget items being prepared by the outgoing Truman administration.

All indications were that present officials viewed prospects as very dim for any big, early cuts in the federal spending program.

In fact, these officials said, a backlog of funds plans and contracts difficult to change now point toward a new spending budget well above the 79 billion dollars charted for this fiscal year ending June 30.

Dodge told a reporter it would be unwise and impracticable for him to attempt any projection now of what he thought the new spending program should be.

He said the budget to be presented to Congress will be solely the work of the Truman administration.

Administration officials believe that new appropriations can be reduced in the next Congress, paving the way for the first substantial reductions in the outpouring of government dollars in the latter half of 1954.

City Accepts Vehicle Bids

Within a few days city police will be driving two new Chevrolets and a new Ford while the Fire Department will be breaking in a new Ford Ranch wagon.

The city commission late Wednesday accepted the low bids on all but one of the 12 vehicles up for bidding Monday. These included four dump trucks, four pickup trucks, three sedans and the station wagon.

Chevrolet was the low bidder on the station wagon, but the vehicle bid on was more of the commercial type than the actual specifications called for. The Ford was bid in at 1,285.09.

It was clear the commission would purchase at least two Chevrolet sedans on the basis of their being low bids of $389.14 and $389.14. The third rested between a six-cylinder Ford and a Chevrolet — the latter $61.73 higher. The commission finally decided on the Ford. Overall total for the 12 vehicles ran to $13,980.45.

Deadline Near On Korea Gifts

Pampans have just three more days in which to mail parcel post packages for delivery overseas before Christmas.

Any packages mailed after Saturday cannot be guaranteed Christmas delivery, according to O. K. Gaylor, assistant Pampa postmaster.

No deadline has been set for air mail parcels, however, Gaylor said, although he thought there might be one issued in the near future.

Only restriction on them, so far, is a two-pound limit.

CIO Veeps In Meeting

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Strategy-making vice presidents of the CIO closeted themselves in a hotel today to charter the future of the big six million-member union.

Saddened by the death of CIO President Philip Murray, the nine CIO vice presidents met with Allan S. Haywood, CIO executive vice president.

Counsel, department heads and various experts accompanied the group into the meeting room. There was little comment available at the meeting's start but CIO Vice President James B. Carey, who also heads the International Union of Electrical Workers, said:

"We'll have something to say around noon."

The meeting is the first important CIO session without the guiding hand of Murray who died Sunday in San Francisco while arranging for the annual CIO convention in Los Angeles Nov. 17.

Stevenson Begins Arizona Vacation

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, defeated Democratic presidential candidate, starts a five-day vacation in Arizona today.

The vacation spot is the ranch of Richard Jenkins, an old friend, at Sasabe, Ariz., about 60 miles south of Tucson.

Hughes Says Government Endangering Building Trade

Dick Hughes, Pampa builder, has charged that many government groups, interested in centralizing power in Washington, are working every day to put the home builders industry out of business.

He made the charge in a talk at the Tuesday noon meeting of the Amarillo Real Estate Board.

"No business has been criticized more than the building industry," Hughes said and added that, "the heaviest criticism has come from Washington."

Look To Washington

"They are interested in making every American look to Washington for instructions for everything they get and everything they do."

Hughes, a past director of the National Association of Home Builders and a charter member of Texas Panhandle Home Builders Association suggested a remedy to counteract this group.

"We have to work constantly in an effort on a local, state and national scale to impress Congress and the people that the best system is individual ownership of homes."

Hughes denounced the so-called intellectuals who have served as presidential advisors and asked for their removal from office.

"There is now indication that these intellectual advisors will be replaced by more practical individuals. It is therefore incumbent upon the building industry to suggest a practical and workable home building program to Eisenhower."

Guests at the meeting were members of the Texas Panhandle Home Builders Association from Amarillo, Pampa and Borger.

Sen. Fulbright Issues Call For Complete Demo Overhaul

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Fulbright of Arkansas said today the Democratic party ought to be rebuilt from the ground up and Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson is the man to head the job.

Fulbright, who served in Stevenson's unsuccessful presidential campaign headquarters, told a reporter he does not go along with suggestions that Stevenson be appointed by President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower to the U. S. United Nations delegation or asked to take on any other federal job.

"I think Stevenson should maintain an independent status and be ready, perhaps along about March, to begin speaking for the opposition on issues raised by the Republicans," the Arkansas senator said.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, of Texas, scheduled to become minority leader in the Republican-controlled Senate, agreed in a separate interview that the defeated Democratic presidential nominee ought to become the party's general spokesman.

As the result of experiences in the campaign, Fulbright said he believes the Democratic organizations in New York and Chicago need rebuilding. He said he thinks Stevenson could learn much about how to do it by studying the organization which turned out a large majority for the Democratic nominee in Philadelphia.

"What we need in the party is young blood, new faces and new ideas," Fulbright declared. "The question is: Who is going to pick these men, encourage the to work in the party organization? I think Stevenson is the man for that job."

The Arkansas senator said he thinks that while there ought to be no Democratic sniping at Eisenhower for politics' sake, there will be plenty of room for opposition to Republican proposals in the new Congress.

Mother Faces Murder Charge

COLORADO CITY, Tex. (AP) — The wife of a Colorado City policeman was under a murder by poison charge today in the death of her 11-month-old son.

The charge was filed Monday against Mrs. Olevia E. Gunn, wife of Colorado City Patrolman Earl Gunn.

It accuses Mrs. Gunn of mixing arsenic with tea Oct. 5, causing the death of her infant son, Thomas Marion Gunn.

The entire Gunn family, Mr. and Mrs. Gunn, a daughter, Earlene, and Thomas, was hospitalized Oct. 8 after the family had been ill several days.

Thomas died shortly after entering the hospital.

Earlene now is described as completely recovered, but her father cannot walk or use his arms and hands. Mrs. Gunn has stiffness in one leg.

Negro Faces Prison For 'Leering' At White Girl

YANCEYVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A 45-year-old Negro awaited sentence today after his second conviction on a charge of assaulting a white girl by "leering" at her.

An all-white, male Superior Court jury convicted tenant farmer Mack Ingram of the crime yesterday. Judge Frank Armstrong planned to sentence him today. The maximum would be a two-year road term. Ingram, father of nine children, received this sentence on a Recorder's Court conviction shortly after he was accused by the girl. He appealed the conviction.

Ingram was charged with assaulting Mrs. Willie Jean Boswell Webster, an attractive, 17-year-old farm girl in June, 1951. The girl, unmarried then, testified that Ingram "eyed" her from a distance of "about 75 feet." She also accused him of chasing her across a field on her father's farm but said he did not get "within 65 feet of her."

Under North Carolina law no bodily contact is necessary for conviction of assault. The jury, in holding Ingram guilty, upheld a state contention that by "leering" at the girl, he frightened her and thus committed assault.

Ingram's attorneys declined to offer testimony, in his defense, but at an earlier hearing the defendent denied he had criminal intentions.

Says GG Not Final Answer To Polio

NEW YORK (AP) — The head of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis says gamma globulin is not the final answer to prevention of polio.

Basil O'Connor, fondation president, claims the gamma globulin had been proven in mass tests to afford effective protection of limited duration against paralytic polio.

However, gamma globulin, O'Connor said, appears to be effective only three weeks in adults and five weeks in children.

Another obstacle, he added, is that it is not in sufficient supply to give "even temporay protection to the 46 million children and adolescents who are in the age group most susceptible to poliomyelitis."

Film Grants Aiding Guerrilla Victims

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP) — The J. Arthur Rank organization has decided to make grants to Malayans who have suffered in the Communist rebellion out of the proceeds of Malayan premieres of the film "The Planter's Wife."

It announced this decision was reached after British planters had protested against the handing over of proceeds from the London premiere of the film to a charity not connected with the planting industry.

Reds Advancing In Radio Warfare

BONN, Germany (AP) — U.S. officials say the Russians are stepping up their radio war against the West with a powerful new jamming system designed to blot out American broadcasts going behind the Iron Curtain.

Simultaneously, the Russians are building fie giant transmitters in East Germany to beam Red propaganda to all of Western Europe, these officials said.

The latest Soviet jamming operation is directed against RIAS, America's German-language station in West Berlin, which broadcasts to Communist - controlled East Germany.

Officials say reception of RIAS for several days has been blotted out in the southern part of East Germany, while listeners elsewhere are getting imperfect reception because of a whistle mixed with the broadcasts.

Old Pilot With Old Plane Getting Ready To Try Jets

By MARY C. FLYNN
NEA Staff Correspondent

BURLINGTON, Ia. (NEA) — A wiry, 65-year-old aerial showman, who first took to the air 49 years ago by taracmuting from hot air balloons at fairs and expositions, hopes to celebrate his 50th anniversary as an airman by making his solo jet flight.

Howard Hartman wants to pilot a jet plane in the final scenes of the movie, "The History of Aviation," which he is making. He currently is learning to fly a helicopter for the film, which will feature him piloting old and latest aircraft.

Contrasts in aviation were highlighted when Hartman and the Navy's famed "Blue Angels," a team of combat veterans who do precision formation aerobatics in jet fighters, appeared recently on an air show seen by 50,000 persons at the Olathe, Kans., Naval Air Base.

In the show, Hartman piloted the "flying machine" he built 42 years ago in sections in upstairs rooms of his home. The tail section of the plane was "bronzed up bluish — colored cloth" near the end of his exhibition.

"In the early days, that 'pile of wire and engine' spouted so much smoke and oil that I had to wear a raincoat and head covering with eyeholes," the genial pioneer explained. "Why, that stuff got so bad in 1936 that my wife threatened to quit washing my underclothes."

Hartman, who says he can fly "anything up to a DC-3," instructed 1500 young men in flying during World War II under the CAP training program at Burlington. He is awed by modern jet propelled aircraft. In turn, during his meeting with the "Blue Angels," the jet pilots had sincere admiration for the inspiring little man in the black and white checked cap and his ancient airplane.

Hartman's aerial displays date back to 1897 when he thrilled neighborhood kids by jumping off a barn roof with an unbrella. He switched his first professional stunts from the balloon when its popularity faded in favor of the airship or dirigible.

He was making wing covers for the Wrights' flying machines when the famous brothers advised him to get into flying — the coming thing — if he wanted to stay in show business.

Hartman heeded the suggestion in 1910 and built the 21st flying machine in the U. S. A picture of a plane which flew was the principal guide for his design.

Mechanically, the craft was okay, he said, but he had a lot of difficulty trying to learn to fly it.

"I would crack up over and over," he recalled. "A demonstration flight paid as much as $500 but 90 per cent of the time I had to rebuild the flying machine after a show."

Hartman opened the first municipal airport in Burlington in 1927 and managed it until 1945. A son, Arthur C. Hartman, an airline station manager at Wichita, was taught to fly by his father when he was 15.

From jets, Hartman soon will be going back to balloons. He and his wife have made one from which he plans to make a jump for the historical movie.

Time Is Set On Mobeetie Burglary

Mobeetie's Armistice Day bank burglary may have been pulled about 3 a.m., according to Wheeler County Sheriff Bus Dorman.

A resident of Mobeetie has told the sheriff that he heard a noise in the vicinity about that time and Dorman thinks it may have been the burglars.

Government bonds, jewelry and old guns were taken from the First State Bank, Mobeetie, sometime between midnight Monday and 8 a.m. Tuesday.

The burglary was discovered, Dorman said, by Henry Flanagan, bank officer, who had come to the bank on the holiday to tend to unfinished business.

Flangan notified Deputy Sheriff Charley Mixon who in turn, called Dorman and J. P. Johnston, bank cashier.

Within a short time, Dorman said, 10-12 law enforcement officers were on the scene—including three Federal Bureau of Investigation men and two Texas Rangers from Amarillo, two from Borger, and Deputy Sheriff Buck Haggard and Sgt. F. D. (Denny) Roan from Pampa.

About 30 safety deposit boxes had been ripped open by a crowbar or screwdriver, Dorman continued. And both front and back doors were open.

How much—cash and personal papers—was taken will not be known for several days, he went on, till the bank is able to take an inventory of what was on hand.

1945, and his daughter, Mrs. Stanley G. Mortimer Jr. of New York, also will testify today.

Chief Counsel John J. Mitchell said Mrs. Mortimer, then Kathleen Harriman, visited Katyn in early 1944 on a Soviet-sponsored tour for foreign correspondents. Mitchell said she will be asked why she reported oficially to the State Department that despite loopholes "the Russian case is convincing."

Henry Cassidy, former Associated Press bureau chief in Moscow, testified last spring that he and other newsmen making the trip agreed the Russians had committed the atrocity.

Jackson Opposed

Supreme Court Justice Robert H. Jackson, chief prosecutor at the Nuremberg war trials, testified yesterday that he and British prosecutors opposed the Soviet effort to blame Katyn on the Germans because they lacked adequate documents and witnesses the Nazis were guilty of much worse crimes against the Poles.

Jackson said that Russia, as an ally, could not have been indicted at Nuremberg for Katyn.

Sen. Taft Sees Unity Between Ike, Congress

CINCINNATI (AP) — Sen. Robert A. Taft thinks there will be "complete co-operation" between President-elect Eisenhower and Congress in developing a program "which will have unanimous support from the Republican Party."

Sen. Taft, who stumped the country in behalf of Eisenhower after having lost the GOP nomination for president, made the statement in a copyrighted analysis of the election, written for the Cincinnati Times-Star's magazine section.

Negative Enthusiasm

The Ohio senator said he believed the tremendous vote in the election last week was "a negative enthusiasm against what has been going on in Washington in the executive administration."

"The fact that the campaign was won on negative issues makes it all the more important that the Republican Party should develop affirmative policies," Taft wrote.

He said Gen. Eisenhower will be in a position to "clean up corruption and communism in Washington by the appointment of men who have a sincere interest in that job."

Wants Survey

On the legislative side, Taft wrote:

"In domestic policy, I believe also that a comprehensive survey should be made of existing departments and bureaus with jurisdiction to go beyond the powers of the Hoover Commission in recommending economies and in some cases the complete elimination of federal activity.

"At the same time, I believe a comprehensive study should be made to determine the proper role of the federal government in giving assistance to states and local communities in the fields of welfare, health, housing and social security.

"Particularly, I believe the old age pension system can be greatly improved."

In analyzing the election figures, Sen. Taft pointed out although Eisenhower's victory has been called a landslide, the general polled 55.4 per cent of the major party vote while President Harding got 64 per cent in 1920, Coolidge 65 per cent in 1924, Hoover 69 per cent in 1928, and Roosevelt 59 per cent in 1932 and 62 per cent in 1936.

ALL-GIRL GRID SKIRMISH — Christine Hunt (No. 80) of the McLean Tigerettes has just intercepted her second pass of the night to stop a scoring threat by the Lefors Lady Pirates in the all-girl football contest at Lefors last night. The interception occurred on the McLean 20-yard marker and it staved off a scoring threat by Lefors who were fighting to get back into the ball game late in the fourth quarter. Making the "tackle" for Lefors is La Juana Peden. The intended unidentified Lefors pass receiver is at left taking a terrific spill. Others in the picture are Glenda Switzer (No. 59) of McLean and Marilyn Mullins (No. 34), Sylvia Bradfield (No. 45) and Ruby Wiley (No. 28), all of Lefors. McLean won the hard-fought tussle 6-0. PRESS BOX VIEWS

By BUCK FRANCIS

News Sports Editor

AFTER VIEWING t. Harrester-Lubbock film at the Quarterback Club meeting Monday night, we became more convinced that the Harvesters "wuz obbed" on one play by the officials that possibly cost them the ball game.

Actually, we aren't trying to stir up anything because it won't do any good so far as changing the score is concerned but we thought it might help some of you Harvester fans' feelings to know that the Harvesters came closer to beating Lubbock than you might have realized.

The play in question was a pass play that gained 15 yards during the Westerners' second touchdown drive that put them ahead. Mike Brady, Lubbock's great end, took a short pass from Buddy Hill and after doing a juggling act for about five yards, Brady was hit hard at the Pampa 26 yard line and immediately fumbled and the Harvesters' John Darby pounced on the pigskin which should have given the Harvesters the ball at this point.

However, the officials ruled that Brady was knocked out of bounds before the fumble but the movie brings it out so clear that not even the most loyal Lubbock fan wouldn't admit that the play should have still been in progress.

Brady was knocked off his feet by a shoe-string tackle and it was at the point of contact that he dropped the ball. Brady was definitely on the field when hit and since he fumbled the ball upon getting hit the ball stayed on the field and Darby quickly pounced on the pighide.

That was the turning point of the ball game because Lubbock went on to score to overcome Pampa's 7-6 lead. Time was rapidly running out when all this happened and there's no reason to believe that the Harvesters couldn't have held on to their lead with the short time that was left had the officials been on the "ball."

This isn't "sour grapes" because we for one consider Lubbock as one of the sharpest high school football teams we have seen this fall. The game is already in the record books as a Lubbock victory and there it will stay.

Breaks like this will occur in a football game and its unfortunate when it goes against your team.

ATTENTION DAILY NEWS football prognosticators. Through a slight oversight, the tie-breaker game of last week wasn't taken out of this week's contest page which appeared in yesterday's paper. The Ad Department informs us that the tie-breaker should be the Pampa and Odessa game. So, if you're entering this week's contest, please make this change on the contest page. Thanks.

THIS GAME OF FOOTBALL is getting rough these days In last week's Abilene Christian-Austin College game, 321 yards were stepped off in penalties mostly from unnecessary roughness.

Six ACC players and seven from Austin were ejected from the game because of fighting. One of the ACCians, Don Smith, received a broken nose and a badly swollen face in the fist-cuffing.

Three Citations Given In Two Auto Accidents

Two city car collisions have been reported in which three citations were given to two persons.

A 14-year-old Pampa girl was parked at a curb on Ward at 2:30 p.m. Saturday alongside a vehicle owned by Mrs. R. F. Marlar, 937 E. Gordon, police reported, when she began to back away and collided with the Marlar car.

The juvenile was cited on two counts — driving without an operator's license and failure to grant the right of way. Damages were calculated at $55.

William E. Fugate, 23, of Pampa, and Ray E. McWhorter, 20, of 507 N. Sumner, were involved in an accident about 10:20 p.m. Saturday, according to police.

Fugate was near the middle of the street, police said, when he began to turn and collided with the McWhorter vehicle. Fugate was cited for making an improper turn from the wrong lane.

Damages were estimated at $90.

McLean Wins Girl Grid Game, 6 - 0

The McLean Tigerettes broke a scoreless deadlock in the last three minutes of play by scoring a touchdown on a 10-yard pass play to nip the Lefors Lady Pirates, 6-0, in Panhandle's first all-girl football game at Lefors last night.

The only touchdown came when Marie Watson of the Tigerettes passed to Glenda Switzer for the tally. Switzer had worked her way behind the Lefors secondary and was all alone when she snared the toss for six points.

A few seconds before the payoff play, McLean had driven to the Lefors 11-yard line only to lose the ball when La Juana Peden of Lefors intercepted a Tigerette pass.

But Lefors returned the favor three plays later when they handed the ball right back to McLean on an intercepted pass, Christine Hunt of the Tigerettes making the interception.

This set up the only score of the game as McLean quickly took advantage of the interception by turning it into six points.

Lefors staged a mild threat during the short time that was left by driving to McLean's 20-yard line but once again Christine Hunt of Tigerrettes hauled in a Lefors pass to stop their scoring intentions.

Lefors made a serious bid to score late in the second quarter when they reached the McLean three-yard line but they lost the ball at this point on downs.

Barbara Sanders of Lefors was the leading ground gainer for both teams. She reeled off one 20-yard run, the longest run of the night. Sanders also handled most of the Lefors passing duties. Miss Sanders got help in the rushing department from Melba McCorley.

Standing out for McLean were Sue Chase and Mavis Medley in pass receiving and Marie Watson in passing.

An estimated 1,000 fans attended the all-girl grid contest. The game will become an annual affair with next year's tilt to be played at McLean.

Texans To Operate At Least 3 Years

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Texans; professional National League football team, are set to operate for at least three seasons despite their financial difficulties.

John J. Coyle, Texan trustee-director, said yesterday a new group of owners is prepared to take over the club.

"There are a few loose ends to be tied down but I think that can be done Friday, perhaps sooner," he said.

Coyle's statement followed two closed sessions of directors and stockholders of the club which is fast running out of money.

"No names can be announced now," said Coyle. The new ownership will have "the right kind of dough to operate a professional team and they know how to operate on a business - like basis," he added.

"It was a nice big meeting," Coyle continued "and I feel real good about it. The plan is so close to fulfilment now that if somebody decided to back out, we still could work it out easily."

Coyle is an investment banker. He said the plan first was approved by present club directors and then given to the stockholders at another meeting.

"The primary interest of everyone was to keep professional footbali in Dallas," he said. "The stockholders were willing to take their loss to assure that."

No official figures have been disclosed but one source close to the club has estimated it would lose $250,000 this season. Others have set the loss at possibly $150,000.

Coyle at first labeled the incoming owners as "completely new." Under direct questioning, he amended this by saying that it might be possible for a few of the present stockholders to remain identified with the team." He wouldn't name them.

Corpus Christi Club For Sale

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — There's a franchise in the Gulf Coast Baseball League for sale today in case you're interested.

Baseball Operator George Schepps lost his plea for a retrial of a suit in which his baseball park was seized. Dist. Judge Harry M. Carroll overruled the motion.

The park thus becomes the property of the Guaranty Title and Trust Co. which owns the land on which the park is located.

Pres. Howard L. Green of the Gulf Coast League then announced that Schepps' Corpus Christi franchise was automatically forfeited because he hasn't any ball park to play in.

Schepps had hoped to have set aside a judgment which two weeks ago ordered him to get his personal property out of the park within 30 days.

Green said that any individual or group must pay off an estimated $40,000 in debts before professional baseball can be renewed in this city.

Schepps has offered the club debt free for $100,000 but hasn't found any takers.

Green added that anyone acquiring the franchise would not be obligated to pay Schepps for the right to field a team but that he though that "in all fairness Schepps should be paid an equitable price for the players he has under contract."

An East Texas millionaire and several other baseball enthusiasts have been mentioned as possible operators of the club next year.

Guerillas End Season Against Borger Bullpups Tomorrow

Pampa's B team Guerillas will wind up their season tomorrow afternoon when hey tackle the rugged Borger Bullpups at Borger.

The Guerillas, who have shown vast improvement in the past two weeks, will be seeking revenge from an earlier loss to the Bullpups. The Bullpups dealt the Guerillas an 18-0 licking here early in the season.

The Borger B team has compiled a magnificent record this sason, winning six of their seven games to date. The only less was a 7-6 affair to Turkey.

Coach Weldon Trice's Guerillas, after going winless in their first six games although gaining one tie, have bounced back by winning one and tieing one in their last two starts.

The Guerillas overpowered the Amarillo Whites, 38-13, for their fist win two weeks ago and then followed up last week by playing the Amarillo Golds to a 14-14 tie.

Billy Fulenwider and Bill Edwards have been running wild on broken field runs in recent games while James Warner has been furnishing the power attack through the middle of the line.

Coach Trice reported early this week that the Guerillas turned in their best performance of the year against Amarillo last week. Despite their 0-18 loss to Borger earlier in the season, the Guerillas have high hopes of turning the tide against the rugged Bullpups tomorrow afternoon.

Game time tomorrow will be 3:00 p.m.

More District Titles To Be Decided Friday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thirteen district championships have been determined and many more will be decided this week in Texas schoolboy football.

Weslaco became the latest to post a district title. It defeated Donna, 7-6, yesterday to clinch the championship of District 22 in Class AA.

Previously decided were:

Class AA-Huntsville, District 20; Bay City, District 26; Arkansas Pass, District 31.

Class A-Clifton District 11; Lancaster, District 12.; Honey Grove District 13; White Oak, District 16; Newton, District 18; Groverton, District 19; Smithville, District 24; Taft, District 30; Lyford, District 32.

Some district champions in the upper classes can be determined this week. For instance, Wichita Falls could sew up the District 4 title in Class AAAA if it beat Tyler Friday night and Highland Park (Dallas) lost to Waco.

One title definitely is on the line in Class AAAA. Austin and Reagan battle for the Houston district championship Saturday.

In Class AAA, Denison can clinch the District 3 crown by beating Gainesville while McAllen can sew up the District 8 championship by downing Edinburg.

Texas Fears TCU's Defense

AUSTIN (AP) — Anticipating the most fired - up defense they have faced all season when they play TCU Saturday, the Texas Longhorns are drilling hard this week on the timing and faking which has made their offense the best in the Southwest Conference.

Ball possession has been Coach Ed Price's strategy as the Longhorns have moved to four straight conference victories and No. 9 ranking in the Associated Press football poll.

To achieve control of the ball, Texas has developed a fine balance between its ground and aerial attack. Price is trying to hone each of those weapons to its finest edge for the battle at Ft. Worth Saturday, but his hopes probably are pinned strongest on the Texas running game.

"With the wind tunnel they've got in that TCU stadium, you can't count too heavy on passes," commented a Texas follower.

The Longhorns boast the top three ground gainers in the conference, Dick Ochoa, Gib Dawsen and Billy Quinn, and leading passing combination, T Jones to End Tom Stolhandske.

They have made Texas first in their league and 11th nationally in total offense with an average of 371.5 yards per game, or almost 5 yards per play.

TCU should prove just how strong that offense is, for the Horned Frog defense is first in the conference and 10th in the nation at 212 yards per game.

Texas knows a thing of two about defense, also, being second only to TCU in the conference in this department.

Great play by Ends Bill Georges and Carlton Massey, Tackles Charles Petrovich and Marvin Leath and Guard Harley Sewell, All - America candidate, wrecked the SMU attack two weeks ago. Coach Price is counting on a repeat performance against TCU, which figures in attack more similar to SMU's than any other the Longhorns have faced.

Cisco Grid Coach Quits

CISCO (AP) — Jack Everett, head football coach at Cisco High School for the past four years, has resigned. He probably will remain in the Cisco school system, Buck Overall, high school principal, said.

B'wood Back Aims At 3-Mile Mark

BROWNWOOD (AP) — Next Friday night Leordous Fry, a young football machine, is due to complete his third mile in gains for Brownwood High School.

Fry is the rushing, passing, kicking sensation of the Lions, making their greatest bid for schoolboy football glory this season. This young fellow, who runs 100 yards in 10 seconds and uses that blazing speed to thwart the opposition on the gridiron, is the greatest all-around back in Texas high school circles.

In his span as the star of the Lions' backfield since 1950, Fry has gained 5,179 yards in 23 games. Thus he needs only 101 yards to finish out three miles. He rolls against Cleburne Friday night and 101 yards would appear easily within his grasp.

He has gained 2,024 yards carrying the ball and passed for 3,155. And he kicks for an average of around 35 yards. He also boots the points after touchdown.

Coach Abe Houston denies that Leondous also sells the tickets and the peanuts. For that matter, he doesn't have to sell the tickets to Brownwood's games; they are gobbled up so quickly no salesmanship is required.

Nov. 27 Brownwood plays Breckenridge here with the district championship and possibly the state title in the balance. Breckenridge is the defending Class AAA champion. Tickets for this game were put on sale Monday and were all sold in an hour and twenty minutes. Seats are going to be added but only 7,000 can be taken care of even then.

The duel of the great Fry and Ken Ford, that passing man of Breckenridge, is something to look forward to — and the fans here are doing just that.

Only once in history has Brownwood been able to beat Breckenridge That was in 1949 when the Lions won by one point. But Brownwood is considered having an excellent chance of turning the trick this time.

Fry, a track man who does the 220 in 21.6 seconds, runs the 100 and also is on the sprint relay team, came out for football as a sophomore in 1950. He was a sensation from the start. He has speed, power, stamina. He weighs 171 pounds and appears to have every asset a college scout could ask. The scouts are numerous when he plays, too. But they say he's already made up his mind — he'll go to Abilene Christian College next fall.

Shantz' Arm Is Good As New After Operation

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The mighty left arm of little Bobby Shantz is out of a cast and as good as new, the 24-game winner reported to his Philadelphia Athletics bosses.

Shantz, whose left wrist was fractured by a pitched ball served up by Walt Masterson of the Washington Senators last Sept. 23, had a few anxious moments, though, after telling manager Jimmy Dykes the good news yesterday.

Dykes and General Manager Art Ehlers, with a few sly winks, eyed Bobby's healed arm suspiciously and hinted that it migh be best for the soup-bone to be X-rayed before getting around to talking contract for 1953.

The conscientious Shantz took the kidding seriously and rushed off to Graduate Hospital to have the arm X-rayed. Physicians said it is in perfect condition. What's more, a physical check-up disclosed Bobby now weighs a hulking 149 pounds, 10 pounds more than at the end of last season.

"Frank was ready to play last, week against Texas A&M," Russell said, "but since he wasn't needed, I decided to give him another week's rest."

Rules On Writing . . .

Brooklynese French Is Easily Detected By The Trained Ear

By HENRY McLEMORE

Here are two rules for success when writing about a foreign country.

1. Get to a foreign country. Get there by boat, plane, train, bus, or thumb. But get there. If you have to make it by subway, catch one.

It is impossible to write about a foreign country unless you are in one. People have tried writing about, say, France from Brooklyn, but Brooklynese French is easily detected by the trained ear.

2. Sprinkle everything you write with foreign words. Even if you don't know what they mean spread one or two to a paragraph, and before you know it readers will be writing to ask you what to wear in Zanzibar, what kind of toilet soap to carry to Ubangi, and whether a linen duster is de rigueur in an Irish jaunting cart.

I run across this sort of thing four or five times a year so I speak with the voice of authority. The fact that I make no pretense of knowing what to tell people to carry to Capri, or what to pack for Florence, or how many shotguns they should take to Johannesburg, doesn't slow down my questioners a bit.

Honestly, I get letters like this.

"Jim and I have saved $500.-600 and want to see South America. We wonder if you would be kind enough to tell us what to take."

My first impusle is to tell them to take me. But I wind up telling them to carry a safe, a stainless steel money belt, and to be wary of the crew of the ship they charter.

Here is another sample letter.

"Mitzi and I have laid aside $35.50 and want to see Peru. What is your advice?"

There is only one answer for that. Spend the savings on bathing suits and water wings and light out.

Without making my living as a travel authority, I am nonetheless recognized as a pale edition of Fielding, Sutton, and Josephs.

I can't write travel stuff anywhere near as well as they do, but I have caught an inkling of their secrets.

They throw those foreign words around as gracefully as a big league infield does a ball. Maybe they know what all of them mean, but I wouldn't bet on it.

Samples.

"The moon was high over the cavelliero, and after a dinner topped off by a magnum of Montret '28, the lalapaloosa, drawn by four matched el chicos, had four flat tires just in front of El Smattero (the best Venetian blind shop in all Europe).

"Snicko!" cursed the driver in upper Alsatian.

"Let's get out and walk," the American said to his girl. "These foreign hacks aren't for me."

With these words the American struck a false note in the travel column, and will never be forgiven.

Expert Shows How To Avoid Defeat

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

When the National Tournament begins in Miami at the end of this month, one of the local players will surely be the tallest bridge expert on the tournament floor. Bill Root, of Miami, must be about seven feet tall, and he's every inch a bridge player.

Bill never neglects a chance to cinch a contract, as may be seen from the way he played the hand shown today.

West opened the jack of clubs and dummy won with the queen. The average player would probably lead trumps at once, relying on East to have either the ace of hearts or no ace at all.

This line of play would lead to defeat very quickly. East would take the ace of spades and lead a heart. West would then take two heart tricks and the ace of diamonds to set the contract at once.

When Bill Root played the hand, however, he won the first trick with the queen of clubs and continued immediately with the ace of clubs and the king of clubs. East was able to ruff the third club but he had to do so with the ace of trumps. Root simply discarded a heart on this trick, and thus managed to keep his losing tricks down to a total of three.

"What would you do if I could ruff with a small trump?" East asked resentfully.

"That's easy," Bill pointed out. "I would then overruff and play the hand normally. I would still be able to make the contract if you had the ace of hearts or no ace at all."

In other words, it cost declarer nothing to lead three rounds of clubs. It was both pleasant and profitable for Bill to find the play that might help and couldn't do any harm.

Bankers Told '53 Good For Buyers

NEW YORK (AP) — Home loan bankers have been told that 1953 will see a buyers' market in new housing.

Bank officials attending the 60th annual convention of the U. S. Savings and Loan League also were assured that American business can maintain prosperity despite a leveling - off in defense spending.

Both forecasts came from the league's Committee on Economic Trends and Policies.

On the subject of housing, the committee said:

"With no apparent shortages except in the case of new low-priced homes, buyers will hold the advantage."

Warplanes, Autos Rolling Off Lines Side-By-Side

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (NEA) — It's a small world, so small, in fact, that the Thunderjet airplanes rolling off the assembly line here would fit in your hat. And the automobiles that roll off would fit in your pocket.

The men who stand at the fingernail-size drill-presses, lathes and workbenches come in the economy size too — little taller than an inch in their work-shoes.

This proportional world of still-life is far from make-believe. Designed at General Motors' Kansas City plant, the model assembly line may be the solution to one of the nation's toughest problems. For engineers here are working toward the production of military and civilian goods side-by-side.

Along with coupes, sedans and convertibles for civilians, deadly F-84F Thunderjets may soon be in production. The dual-purpose plan was suggested by C. E. Wilson, president of General Motors.

"The time it takes to go to war," he said, "is no longer the time it takes to train a soldier, but the time it takes to produce his arms and equipment."

Although the Kansas City plant will employ 10,000 men in the new production, the only work underway now is in miniature.

Now and then a giant hand—large enough to fit your glove—invades the little world. Rubber autos, cast-aluminum planes and tiny men of lead are rearranged. The turn of a machinist is as important as the turn of a lathe.

The usual blue-prints and plans, according to plant manager E. D. Rollert, did not tell the whole story. "We discovered that a three-dimensional model was worth a hundred two-dimensional layouts," he said.

What toy manufacturers and machine shops could not supply in the way of models, General Motors engineers built. All stops on the assembly line—from engine parts to drying ovens — were scaled down 48 times.

The by-products of model planning are beginning to grow, too. Engineers, calculating space, distance and time, have hit on a new device for turning jet engines in a complete circle on the conveyor belt — in miniature, of

Simple Rule Settles Fight

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

Many readers of this column seem to have the same trouble with the rules of Samba governing frozen pack. Perhaps I can clear it up.

You always need a pair of natural cards to take the discard pile for a new meld. This does not mean, however, that the discard pile is always frozen.

Suppose, for example, that you have melded three kings (among other good and valuable securities). The player at your right discards a king. You can pick up the discard pile, adding that discarded king to your meld of kings. In other words, the discard pile is not frozen, and you can add a discard to a meld that you have previously made.

Let's take another example. Suppose that you or your partner has melded the queen-jack-ten of spades at some time during the play of the hand. Several plays later, the opponent at your right throws the king of spades. You can pick up the discard pile, and add that king of spades to your queen-jack-ten of spades.

What is the procedure if you have a canasta of queens, let us say, and the player at your right throws a queen? According to the rules of Samba, you are not allowed to pick up a card that matches your closed canasta. (Let me make it absolutely clear, if I can, that this is not the rule in ordinary canasta. In regular canasta the official rule allows you to pick up a card that matches your closed Samba.)

Even in Samba, however, you are not completely forbidden to pick up that discarded queen. If you have a pair of queens in your hand, you can pick up the discard pile with your natural pair and start an entirely new meld of queens.

Let's take another situation that occurs very often. The opponent discards the king of spades, and you have the queen-jack-ten of spades in your hand. Can you use that sequence to pick up the discarded king of spades?

No, you cannot do so. The previous discard can be added to a sequence that was melded at a previous turn but not to a sequence that was still in your hand when your turn to play began.

"Next time don't tell him where the toy department is!"

"If you know so much about these new-fangled viruses and miracle drugs, why do you bother to call a doctor?"

Marquis Of Bath Will Add Unique Coronation Touch

LONDON (AP) — The 47-year-old Marquis of Bath means to add his own personal touch of ye olde Englishe pageantry to Queen Elizabeth's coronation next June.

The marquis is going to roll up to Westminster Abbey in his ancestral family coach — coachman, footmen, horses and all.

The lumbering great vehicle with black and yellow paneling and massive silver springs has been standing forlornly at Longleat, the marquis' country seat, since it was last used in 1913 to drive to a Buckingham Palace ball. But the marquis says all it needs is a couple of horses between the shafts to be as good as it was 150 years ago.

He intends to haul it to London in back of a truck, unload it outside his town house and then drive in solitary splendor to the abbey with his wife.

The Duke of Norfolk, who as earl marshal is in charge of coronation arrangements, doesn't think much of the idea. Neither do the police, who reckon they will have quite enough trouble with the queen's coach without finding a parking lot for the marquis as well.

But he is standing pat on the idea. He remembers the last coronation, when a disconsolate huddle of blue-blooded peers and peeresses stood for hours in a taxi line with their magnificent robes and coronets soaking in the worst rainstorm of the year.

Maryland To Appoint First Negro Attorney

Social Leader Finds Politics Packs Plenty Of Excitement

AP Women's Editor

Keep your eye on Mary Pillsbury Lord, New York civic and social leader who has discovered during the last six months that politics packs more thrills than a four-ring circus.

As co-chairman of the Citizens for Eisenhower Committee, Mrs. Lord has been stumping the country since early spring, organizing workers in virtually every county in the land, putting her faith in the women to bring out the vote.

Tabulating Returns

Now, still on duty in the cluttered headquarters in New York, she is tabulating returns which show that in practically every precinct in the country the women's vote registration outnumbered the men's, and that this was the determined work of women volunteers.

Mrs Lord is an amateur at politics. Her one other fling was on a small scale during the Willkie campaign in 1940, but her duties as a director of the New York World's Fair kept her from getting a real start in that one.

This time she jumped in with both feet and started "Operation Shoebox" in every community she hit. Cards were filed in three shoeboxes after workers had called on every family in a territory, as "For Eisenhower," "For Stevenson" or "Undecided." Mrs. Lord says:

Asked If Help Needed

"Workers started by asking if the voter needed any help in getting to the polls — a babysitter, a car, and so on. Then they asked how the person intended to vote. All information was filed on the cards, and followed up, right to the last minute."

She cites as a typical community Hennepin County, Minn., where 70 per cent of the volunteer campaign workers in her organization were women, and where, she insists, "they didn't miss a single house."

Another is Multnomah County, Ore., which consists mostly of Portland, where there were 12,000 more women registered voters than men.

In New York, 27 of the 32 counties registered more women than men.

As to future plans, Mrs. Lord says:

"I think it's time now for me to stay at home awhile and catch up with my knitting. After all, I do have a family, you know, and I'm not looking for titles or honors. I'm just happy that women all over the country have shown what they can do."

New Foreign Policy

The first problem that will confront Dwight Eisenhower and his Republican administration when it moves to Washington in January will be the creation of a new foreign policy for the United States. In this field of government, the Democrats have made more boners and caused such chaos that it's a major miracle we have a friend left in foreign lands.

Almost certainly the ruins of the Truman foreign program will be abandoned. It is hopeless to anticipate that we will adopt a principle of minding our own business but it can be hoped that we may move toward a policy of enlightened self interest leavened by respect for the sovereign rights and customs of other nations.

During over six years in office, President Truman has applied the Truman doctrine in Greece, the Marshall Plan to West Europe's peace economy, the Atlantic Pact to West Europe's war economy, the Germany peace contract to the overall diplomacy of that area.

But of these four schemes, only one — the military aid to Greece — has shown any visible success. And even this success was not related in the slightest manner to our policy. It was Tito, not Truman who crossed the borders of Greece and smothered the Communist rebellion.

Elsewhere than Greece, there is no place in Europe where anything went as was intended. The Marshall Plan was intended to create allies, it created wards. The Atlantic Pact was intended to create an alliance; it created a ridiculous shakedown racket in which France has threatened to lie down and be ravished unless we pay her more money to stand up and fight. The German peace contracts, which contemplated a get-together of West Germany and France, have been resisted in both Bonn and Paris, although gleefully accepted in Washington.

Even if the peoples of Germany and France are finally convinced, they will have been convinced against their will. This means, in the old couplet, that they remain unconvinced still.

In France, Germany, and Britain the three pro - American governments are tottering. It will be a miracle if Pinay, Adenauer and Churchill are still in power a year from now when the new American President is beginning to get the feel of his office. The only possible factual forecast is that West Germany will have a pro-unity government; France will have a neutralist ministry, and Britain will be run by Bevanism, a sect of Labor which is openly anti-American and ultra-radical.

It's plain from this dismal resume that the next inmate of the White House will have little to build on in Europe. He'll have to start from the ground up.

But the Truman policy in Europe is one better than the same policy in Asia. There was no Tito crouched atop the Korean border to make our intervention there a success. Secretary Acheson has a certain gift of phrase and the Orientals are famed for their powers of adaption. Who's going to say that the Russians and Chinese didn't steal Acheson's signal when he pronounced the doctrine called "situations of strength"? That's what Stalin has in the islands just north of "free" Japan, thanks to the American giveaway policy at Yalta. They both possess "situations of strength." We don't.

Is there anything that Ike could possibly save from the Truman policies in the China-Korea-Japan area? Far, far better if the new man in the White House rubs out the whole Truman-Acheson plan for Asia and starts again.

Next, there's the scheme laid out by Mr. Truman for dealing with the Moslem world. The idea here is to back the European imperialists powers against Russia and to toss the African-Asian colonist people a fistful of Point Four money. It's almost embarrassing to record that some of our gifts have been flung back in our faces by the poor but proud "backward" peoples. Worse we are in danger — all the way from India to Morocco — of being involved in race-religion wars which we do not even understand.

Meanwhile our Latin American neighbors, hitherto a source of diplomatic support in the United Nations, are forming new alliances: They are joining a third world-group — the Asian-Arab peoples — which may soon become the balance of power between the Yankee colossus and the Russian bear.

Eisenhower will be — under the Constitution — the architect of foreign policy. But he won't find any usable blueprints left behind by Mr. Truman.

Cowboy Movies

Karl Tunberg, Hollywood screen writer, last week advanced the thought that international understanding might be promoted if the State Department would step out of the picture in favor of screenland's producers of make-believe. Said he:

"Recently three high-ranking members of the State Department told me that in the far reaches of the globe, where English is understood little and imperfectly, the western picture has proved one of the best propaganda weapons. The western appeals because of its simple, clear, fundamental and right code of ethics — where a man is never shot in the back, where the villain is never kicked when he is down, and where the struggle is for the love of a good woman."

Might be worth a try, at that. The cowboy films may be fantastic and unrealistic — but hardly more so than the antics of Washington's striped-pants career boys!

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

For More Impartial Voters

Now that the election is over, it is time to be thinking about future elections. Now the matter can be discussed without so much emotion and so much prejudice. The elected officers will have untold difficulties to face. They have been elected by making promises that are completely imcompatible with moral laws.

If we are to have a good government, we must have voters who are impartial — as nearly as possible. When we select a jury we try to select men and women who have no direct interest in the results of the trial and who do not gain materially by the decision. It certainly would not promote justice if jurors were permitted to sit on a jury and vote a verdict when they had a financial interest in the decision. The same philosophy or the same precaution should be used in electing statesmen rather than politicians in selecting those people who can vote for office holders. We should have voters who do not directly benefit by having their candidates elected.

It seems to me that we would be taking a step in the right direction to have more nearly impartial voters if workers for a subdivision of the government were not permitted to vote for that particular subdivision, but were permitted to vote for all other subdivisions of government. As an illustration, it seems to me that everyone on the federal government payroll should not be permitted to vote for federal offices. Possibly that is what was in the minds of the framers of our country when men living in the capitol were not permitted to vote. They would have too much of a personal interest in their votes.

The men working for the state should not be permitted to vote for state officeholders. The men working for the county or the city should not be permitted to vote for state or county officers. And last, but not least, the men working for boards of education or on their payroll should not be permitted to vote for members of boards of education. In other words, the customers who are paying the bill and have no direct interest in our governments, and who are thus more likely to be impartial, should not have to vote against those who have a special interest.

Is It Arbitrary?

Most people think of this country as being a majority rule country, but it has never been a majority rule country. Not until August 26, 1920 did women have the right to vote. Children under 21, in most states, have never had the right to vote. In many states criminals have no franchise. People in insane asylums are barred from voting. So our present franchise laws are arbitrary. Just as it would be arbitrary to say that men working for the state shouldn't vote for state officials.

As a matter of fact, if people were really scrupulous and realized that only impartial voters should vote, those who are working for any of the government subdivisions would not vote and would leave it to those citiens who had no special ax to grind with their votes.

Years ago it would not have been very important, because there were then only a few people working for the government, but now with those on the government's payroll representing one out of ten, government employees invariably have enough votes to swing the election. It makes it very, very difficult for the voters who are not getting a direct benefit from the government to win an election.

Yes, now is the time to be thinking about the election in '56 and each succeeding election. A bare majority rule country where people who live off the government have a right to help run it will eventually impoverish all the people. That is just simply history. I do not believe human nature has changed in the last thousands of years.

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, M.D.

Too many people become unnecessarily alarmed when they are told that they have osteoarthritis because they fear serious pain or crippling. Actually, this condition — also called hypertrophic or degenerative arthritis — really should not be called arthritis at all. It is a mild degeneration or wearing out of some of the structures which make up the joints.

Exactly what causes osteoarthritis is not entirely understood. There may be an inherited factor; that is, the cartillage and bone of persons in some families may be particularly susceptible to early degeneration.

Repeated injury also seems to promote the development of this condition. Poor posture, disturbances of blood circulation, and overweight are other conditions which contribute to its development.

The end joints of the fingers frequently become enlarged. This is often accompanied by a certain amount of stiffness and soreness, though this usually disappears after the joints have been loosened up. These enlargements are common in later years and are called Heberden's nodes.

Other joints commonly involved are the knees, shoulders, elbows and spine. Sometimes degeneration may be pretty well advanced without producing any noticeable pain or stiffness. Osteoarthritis is often found accidentally when an X-ray film is taken for something else.

The treatment of degenerative changes in the joints includes general measures aimed at relieving the disomfort and improving the overall physical condition. Local measures designed to relieve the involved joints and prevent or correct any difficulties which are present are also used. Occupational strains should be eliminated whenever possible and posture should be corrected.

REDUCING IS ADVISABLE

Because so many people with osteoarthritis are fat, reducing is often advisable. This is especially

If they have to carry 200 pounds when they have the frame to carry 130, they are obviously overloaded.

People with osteoarthritis are rarely badly incapacitated and usually move about, though often with some discomfort. They do need frequent rest periods, for this seems to relieve some of the stiff feeling.

AFL Agents Are Attempting To Impose Marxism Over Europe

By WESTBROOK PEGLER
(Copyright, 1952, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

I have a feeling that I am pioneering in a new wilderness of conspiracy in my clumsy hacking at the facts of the new Communist movement I discovered in Europe last winter. That is, it was new to me, although others may have known about it for a long time.

However, I do believe I am the first reporter to bring it to wide public notice here in our country.

I have been told that I write cluder than others. At any rate, the information which I have turned up is new to most of us and more important to all of us than most of us yet realize.

Here we find the American Federation of Labor, which is supposed to confine itself to disputes on wages and working conditions for American workers, secretly trying to impose on all Europe, this side of the Iron Curtain, a Marxian type of government.

This is really outrageous when you consider the fact that our workers are forced to give money out of their wages to promote this impudence in foreign countries without the slightest suspicion that they are being exploited for that purpose.

It is outrageous on the further ground that the political genius behind this stroke is David Dubinsky, of the garment workers, with headquarters in New York, who picked two inveterate and unregenerate Communists to be the principal agents of the AF of L in this project.

These men are Jay Lovestone and Irving Brown whose political history I need not review again except to say that they are not Kremlin Communists but anti-Kremlin Communists. Lovestone has his own version of Communism. It calls for soviets to be known frankly as soviets, repudiation of the civil rights of all patriotic Americans who resist, a shooting revolution and the seizure of power by force of arms. Civil war is the plainest term.

Unmistakably these fellows have proclaimed these intentions in print. And inasmuch as both have been employed as "educators" by Dubinsky's union in the New York headquarters for years, I cannot imagine that Dubinsky repudiates these intentions as the ultimate thing in Europe should they succeed.

I realize that Gen. Eisenhower complimented Brown with an aside during the campaign and made another reference which was noncommital. I have read that Gen. Al Gruenther, who was Ike's chief of staff at SHAPE, also has approved Brown and his works to date. I can't help that I can't justify these endorsements if they are endorsements.

If they are endorsements, Ike and Gruenther are wrong. They may be ill-advised or misinformed, but in any case wrong they are. They simply cannot face the undisputed facts of this strange, dangerous adventure and reiterate their endorsements.

How can a man running for President of our country dare to praise an attempt to impose Marx on all Europe, by violence if necessary, according to the unconditional threats which Lovestone and Brown have published in their program?

Whether Ike is mistaken or knowingly approves this threatening intention toward Europe, the people of the United States should know what it is that he approves.

A few days ago, in fact on the day that we elected Ike to be our president, the New York Times ran aspecial dispatch from its own correspondent in Yugoslavia revealing Marshal Tito's intention to do business with the very type of movement that Dubinsky's agents are developing.

Like Lovestone and Brown, Tito is a Communist who broke with Stalin over secondary issues.

The Times story said Tito had recommended, or ordered, his Yugoslavian Communist Party to establish "the closest cooperation, short of union, with the socialist parties, trade unions and liberal groups in the West."

"Liberal" in the Times' meaning of the word, is illiberal or despotic. The so-called American "Liberal" is a totalitarian. John L. Lewis is a "liberal." So is Dubinsky.

Tito has decided to use his "people's front" of eight million subjects and his trade unions as "instruments" for contacts with "the socialist parties, trade unions and liberal groups in the West." The Times report pointedly does not tell us that Tito intends thus to deal with the sovereign governments of other nations.

On the contrary, he will ignore them just as Lovestone and Brown do. He will use these subsidiaries of his to deal with Dubinsky's union in the United States, for example. In France, he will deal with the unofficial, which, like his own, are pointed toward Marxian Communism, nevertheless.

On this point, one must understand that the French and Italian workers who have been rounded up for Dubinsky by Lovestone and Brown are not Communists at all. They are not necessarily even Socialists. They cannot be typed with one word but most of them oppose any version of Communism.

However, in Italy they are a small minority compared with the members of the Stalinite Communists unions. In France, they are the majority but are lukewarm unionists with a harmless desire for more money, easier work and better homes.

The one trait that throws all the American unioneers in their attempts to seduce these Europeans is their simple aversion to the financial rackets which are the life of American unions. At the mere mention of dues or fees beyond the tiniest nominal sums they lose interest.

The upshot of that is that American union members have to provide the money for Lovestone and Brown. And the American treasury puts up for the "labor attaches" of the embassies and lazy fakers in the Mutual Security Administration who cooperate with the Lovestone - Brown conspiracy.

For years, good Americans have resented the intrusion of Muscovite Reds in our domestic economic and political affairs. But we covetly authorized Dubinsky to do that very thing in many other countries.

And now we find two non-Russian Communist forces, ours and Tito's, preparing to do business in the Russian manner, all in a pretense of maintaining a united Western world against Communism.

Giraffes are readily tamed, bit like the mule, can kick outviously with their hooves.

Advent Of New Administration Seen As Likely End Of An Era

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — President-elect Eisenhower's great and acknowledged debt of Republican and Democratic governors for his nomination and election promises a friendlier and more cooperative relationship between Washington and the states than has existed during the 20 years of Roosevelt-Truman rule. It may end the era under which local and regional units of government abdicated their responsibilities by "passing the buck" to Uncle Sam.

In the last analysis, the convention struggle between Gen. Eisenhower and Sen. Taft was a battle between state politicians and the so-called "federal crowd," which supported the Ohioan. The nominee's principal advisers numbered Govs. Dewey of New York, Adams of New Hampshire, Driscoll of New Jersey, Thornton of Colorado and numerous other state executives.

Among his Southern supporters were Govs. Byrnes of South Carolina, Kennon of Louisiana and Shivers of Texas. Several others were sympathetic, even though they did not bolt their party.

The television windup and roundup, in which GOP governors testified to their personal and political faith in Eisenhower, was one of the most impressive and effective demonstrations of the campaign.

The idea was inspired by Driscoll of New Jersey, and was eagerly accepted by the candidate. There is no doubt that it helped to check any last-minute stampede to Gov. Stevenson.

DECENTRALIZATION — As a result of Gen. Eisenhower's personally conducted landslide, the GOP now controls more state capitals, including state legislatures, than ever in modern political history. In view of the Dixie leaders' friendly and sympathetic attitude to the Eisenhower philosophy, there has rarely been this kind of unity.

This happy situation offers the next President an excellent field and opportunity for the decentralization of federal power which he advocated in numerous campaign speeches.

Despite the Roosevelt-Truman belief in an all-powerful, centralized authority at Washington, an underlying factor abetting them was the states' abdication of their responsibilities in almost every field.

With few exceptions, they were only too willing to accept federal funds and regimentation, even though the price was the loss of control at the local level.

Many a governor accepted membership in the "gimme group" that traded state sovereignty for federal subsidies. Had the trend continued, the states would have become mere vassals of the White House.

REGIONAL PROBLEMS — The incoming President has declared his belief in the strengthening of the states' authority and jurisdiction. On such questions as civil rights, oil tidelands, power development and the handling of funds for health, housing and education, he has insisted that these are local and regional rather than federal problems. Only when they prove insoluble because of their complexity should they be dumped on Congress or the White House, in his opinion.

On the other hand, the states must raise the standards of their own legislative bodies — a long needed reform. Many legislatures sit only every two years, and then only for a few months.

They enact laws without any serious consideration, and indulge in log-rolling. The pay is so poor that it does not attract capable men and women. They have no permanent research staffs or facilities.

To a military man like Eisenhower, it is as if regimental commanders neglected their field duties in the expectation that the big brass at some far-off headquarters would win all the battles.

LABOR LEADERS HIT — Fairly final returns indicate that the nation's labor leaders suffered their most disastrous drubbing since F.D.R. and Harry S Truman tried to transform the "big three" unions into auxiliaries of the Democratic National Committee. The catastrophe and Capitol Hill resentment may persuade Messrs. Green and Lewis to abandon future adventures in national politics.

The detailed Pennsylvania figures are illuminating. Murray's steel workers and John L.'s coal miners apparently voted heavily for Gen. Eisenhower, in spite of the bosses' endorsements of Stevenson and Truman's pre-election concessions to the CIO and UMW strikers. It was a politico-economic deal that paid off in reverse.

KEYSTONE VOTE — Democratic leaders figured that the Keystone state would be safe, if they carried Philadelphia by 100,000. When they rolled up the unprecedented majority of 160,000, they phoned Democratic National Chairman Mitchell that "it was in the bag." This was one reason he cherished hope until the last hour.

But Allegheny County (Pittsburgh) came through with only an 18,000 majority for Stevenson, as against an expected 85,000 from this steel capital. The hard-coal district of Scranton, which was supposed to deliver a Democratic margin of 25,000, offered only a 3,000 lead. A pro-Fair Deal and pro-union Democrat, Representative Daniel J. Flood, was defeated.

Lewis' personal appearances in West Virginia kept that state Democratic, but only narrowly. Poor "Bill" Green took the most expansive licking, for Stevenson did not carry a single industrial state and only a few manufacturing centers, where the AFL was counted on to swamp Eisenhower.

And the unions' political bill is estimated at $10,000,000, which the members will pay in extra assessments and the consumers in higher prices!

Newlywed—Darling, I'm not complaining about your cooking, but I wish you'd learn to make the kind of bread my mother used to bake.

Bride—I don't think that should be so hard, if you'll learn to make the dough my father used to make.

LOOKING SIDEWAYS

By WHITNEY BOLTON

It is very difficult to tell just where fun and magic leave off and earnest endeavor begins, but I have just passed a week in which I ran into nine gents applying themselves to the task of flying to the moon. I am perfectly willing to write of seven of these boys as fancy-talkers trying to get themselves a piece of attention, but at least two of them look and seem on the level. They have every intention of flying to the moon.

One of the lads will have to go without a handle because he insists on it and has such connections that to use his name would destroy his chances of hopping off first. The other one is Robert L. Farnsworth, head man of the United States Rocket Society, and Mr. Farnsworth is pulling no legs and smoking no hop when he tells you about the projected flight. He believes it the way desert rats believe in water.

The last information that came my way was that we were a good long haul from heisting a rocket off the earth hot enough and fast enough to make taw on the moon, but the last information that came my way may have been deliberately short of fact. For all I really know, the lads may have a nice collection of rockets fueled and ready, together with a giant flare which they will light when they reach the moon. This flare will be discernible on earth and provide a signal that the boys are there.

The truth as I know it is that we are perhaps 40 months away from a possible rocket to the moon, and that this one will not carry anything that breathes. Not even white mice or atomic goats. It will be designed to get there, send out an automatic signal of arrival and then disintegrate slowly as time decays it. It will have no way of getting back and whatever else scientists may see, they are not deliberately cruel enough to strand a white mouse on the moon.

One of the harder working rocketeers, with the moon on his mind the way most men have girls on their minds, confesses that it is going to take a wagon-load of money, a lot of time and torment, and enough strategic materials to win a war, to get a rocket ready for the 240,000 mile haul to luna. He thinks that perhaps 40 months, two billion dollars and about all the electronic materials at hand would do it. He sees a three-stage rocket which drops its tail off first after it is empty of fuel leaving hausted, then loses its midsection after it is empty of fuel, leaving only the fore-section or nose piece to get there. He can't see cramming any human being into that section, no matter how daffy a man is to volunteer for the ride. My man wants two lifeless jobs to go and get there, then three with such minor creatures as mice and hamsters, then two more empties, except for mouse food, and then, just maybe, the first one with men inside it. Preferably three men. Not a squadron. After that we'll have to keep sending stuff to them to keep them alive until they can blast their way back.

All of this makes nice talk, but I'll take a fool's stance and predict that if you are 50 years old you stand an excellent chance of not being still alive when the rockets first get to the moon. I don't see it in 40 months, but perhaps in 25 years, with another 10 years of experimentation before the first human being takes off for the moon. If you are 50 now and live to be 85, you may, just possibly may, read the first headlines about it.

• This is not to throw apple cores at Mr. Farnsworth and his fellow workers. I remember in the 20's a lot of boys used to go out to Arizona and fire off rockets and if they went half a mile they thought that was wonderful. Now rockets go more than 100 miles into the air. In 30 years we have added vastly to rocket knowledge, rocket fuels and all other appertaining sciences. But we have not yet gone 250 miles up, which is exactly one one-thousandth as far as we would have to go.

Don't stand on the corner waiting for the "extra" to come out. It's going to be a long, weary time.

MATURE PARENT

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

He is 21 months old. The doctor says that he's physically healthy, but he won't sleep if his mother isn't in his room.

"The minute I go to him, he lies down and closes his eyes," she writes. "But if he wakes up, he will cry for hours unless I go to him. Now he is restless with teething and even if he seems to be asleep, he knows when I leave the room and begins to cry again. I cannot be out of his sight. This past miserable week I have had to spank him twice. It was no use."

Of course it wasn't. He shouldn't have been spanked. But this is what inevitably happens when little children's mothers have not wholly accepted motherhood.

When I get a letter like this, so revealing of a young woman's struggle to adjust to a new mode of life, I am always tempted to think that uncivilized people are more enlightened than we are.

In primitive cultures, custom draws a sharp line between new mothers and other people. Care of their babies is not distracted with plans for entertaining, for getting new permanent waves, with charming their husband's boss.

They know what they're supposed to do, so they aren't emotionally divided by trying to be a mother and several hundred other things to other people at the same time. I am told that their children sleep without terror.

I do not think that this young mother's problem is her baby's crying at all. I think it is the confusion that has resulted from a failure to make a clear-cut decision to put first things first.

If we are unwilling to make this decision in the first critical years of our babies' lives, we should not have them. And I would like to see our educational system make this point repeatedly to young people before they get married.

I suggest that this young mother talk through her problem with her husband.

She might say, "Bill, we have a little emergency. The baby is so centered upon me that I'm going to have to let the dusting go and give him as much relaxed attention as I can. While I'm doing it, let's see if we can't get him to focus on his father a little more. Why don't you give him his supper tonight while I'm in his room? He needs changing right now. Why don't you take care of it instead of me — and see how it goes?"

She writes, "while he is so fruitful, should I sleep in his room? Won't this encourage a bad habit?"

Not if she herself regards it as an emergency measure.

Goodness me, how those "shoulds" harass us! Now why on earth should this young mother hesitate to move in this emergency of love? What is it, in heaven's name, that makes us so suspectible to fears that we can't work out future problems as they are posed to us?

Here's a baby whose gums hurt and a mother who wants to comfort him! Why on earth does she feel she must throttle this loving and independent impulse before it's even born by terror of this or that result?

If her baby develops a taste for having his mother sleep in his room, what's the matter with that?

We do not sleep in babies' rooms as a permanent argument. This is special need. Let her act on it, so that this little boy will stop wondering where he's at and not keep on crying because he can't reach his mother behind confusion and self-distrust.

If he gets her, he'll be able to dispense with her temporary sleeping arrangement in a short time.

The Twentieth Century Club Discusses Birth, Growth And Future Of America

The Twentieth Century Club opened with a pledge to the flag in observance of Armistice Day at its meeting at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Roy McKernan.

Mrs. J. B. Massa, program leader, led the group in reciting part of the club collect.

Mrs. Massa's subject was "The Birth of Americanism."

She gave a resume of the effect the westward push of pioneers had on the American way of life.

Also included was a history of the forming of the country from Columbus through the original thirteen states — listing each separately with leaders and precepts.

Quoting from Christopher Gadsden (1765) she said "There ought to be no New England man, no New New Yorker, known on the continent but all of us Americans!"

Mrs. J. W. Garman Jr., assistant program leader, spoke on the "Foundation for Present Day America."

Concerning the period following the Revolution, Mrs. Garman said, there was much to be done including the revival and expansion of business and trade and the furthering of education.

She attributed much of the nation's growth to the movement west, the increase of domestic and foreign markets and inventions of various kinds.

The speaker commended unions and women in politics and the effect they had on the political temper of the country.

Mrs. F. M. Culberson was appointed chairman of the new club project, "Americanism."

Turkey Has Big Wheat Harvest

ISTANBUL (AP) — Turkey has a record wheat crop this year — thanks in part to U.S. assistance — but may have trouble selling the surplus abroad.

There are two reasons: Other wheat-growing countries also had good crops, and are competing in the world market. Turkey's asking price is higher than the going rate, because the Turkish government paid the farmer a high price for his wheat.

The government's "Office of Soils Products" buys directly from the Turkish farmer a good share of the wheat raised here. The independent newspaper Hurriyet said the crop of six million tons should leave an exportable surplus of 1,500,000 tons.

Countries Envy U.S. Manufacturing

AP Newsfeatures

The one thing most envied by women of other countries is the beauty and availability of American nylon stockings.

In the making of stockings, as in the manufacture of motor cars, there's no beating U.S. know-how. Year after year American manufacturers put the sheerest and most flattering nylons within reach of every budget, and year after year American legs grow more glamorous.

This year a number of new gimmicks are offered for the further glorification of glamorous gams. One is the new high luster in nylons developed by Roy E. Tilles, of Gotham Hosiery Co., who says:

"For the first time since the ingrained silk stockings of Ziegfeld Follies days, the leg with a gleam can be yours again."

New decorations such as jeweled clocks and embossed velvet motifs are in vogue for after-five wear this year. The latter, designed by Ardmore, features a black embossed lacing at the back of the stocking.

No matter how beautiful your stockings may be, they won't look well unless they are the right length, says Leonard J. Solomon, of Manchester Hosiery Mills, who gives the following rules for determining correct hosiery length:

"Lay your present hosiery on a flat surface and measure from the middle of the turn of the heel to the top of the stocking. If you have found them to be a comfortable fit, remember the number of inches so that you can order the same length again. If they are too short or too long, estimate the length that is right for you — and remember it."

G-Neighbor Policy Begins In Home

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Newsfeatures Writer

A couple of hundred years ago, one Thomas Fuller remarked that "we can live without our friends but not without our neighbors." Our neighborhood couldn't live without Mr. Robertson, and I do believe his quiet, good-humored —and better neighbors—out of all example is making better people of us.

Mr. Robertson is a throw-back, an example of a type of neighborliness which seems to have been disappearing in these self-centered days when everyone is so interested in pursuing his own plans and painting his own house that he isn't willing to spend much time giving his neighbors a hand.

There must be Mr. Robertsons all over the nation, and the reason I think so is that I doubt if we'd have a neighborhood if he weren't around.

When the rains came recently, and all our cellars were dramatically turning into swimming pools there was Robie, in sou-wester and hip boots, manning a long strip of steel called a "snake" and unplugging our stopped-up drainage tiles. When anyone's power mower, for the reasons known only to power mowers, quite unpredictably, Robie agreeably stops his own chores and makes some mysterious adjustment with a wrench, screw-driver and oil can and the temperamental piece of machinery starts off smoothly again.

When a washer gives way, when pilot lights go out, when the furnace starts making funny noises, when the hot water seems too hot or too cold, Robie gets a hurry-up call I and answer it, too.

Sometimes we get embarrassed about our over-dependence on Mr. Robertson—after all, he has his own chores to do—and we decide to call in outside, presumably skilled professionals, to do the job. If it's a small chore like washer-changing or sticking back a loose tile or putting some sort of preservative in the wooden gutters, we decide to tackle the job alone, without advice or assistance.

This procedure invariable proves to be mistaken. One year we decided —much against Robie's advice—to call in a painter to house. Now it's peeling off, and brighten up the trim of our everytime Robie sees it, he shakes his head sadly. I feel positively guilty about it.

Another neighbor recently bravely tackled the removal of a couple of over-grown trees from his property. He worked in solitary perspiration through most of the week end, but wound up Sunday night with Robie manning his own block and tackle and really doing the job.

He spends whole week ends in some one else's attic patching up a leak the roofers can't find but which he can upt his hand through. He has a charger which the whole neighborhood uses on weak batteries; he has a collection of big heavy tools which are loaned freely all over the area and only occasionally does he grumble because people aren't as nice about returning them as he is about lending them.

His garage is a neighborhood gathering place, a local replacement of the old Franklin stove, and contains a bewildering array of gadgets and gimmicks, waste tric cables, tree pruning equiprags, weed killers jacks, elecment and wrenches from Stilson screws and washers of every size on tap for emergencies. Last week he dropped in for a minute and "grounded" our washing marhine —he's been worrying abou it.

More than anything else, though, he is teaching all of us lessons. Because of Robie, I know how to putty a window, clean a pressure spray tank and find a gas leak with soapy water, to mention just a few things. But I've learned more important lessons in neighborliness, the joy of giving and real unselfishness.

The trouble is that no of us can ever reapy him. He never seems to need or want any help himself.

These are all habits that invariably have bad results:

The habit of screaming at children. Children accept as authoritative a quiet but firm command. A scream they have become used to doesn't impress them at all.

The habit of belittling oneself to others. For the sake of politeness others often protest when a person low-rates himself, but the low-rating is the idea that is likely to stick in the other's mind.

The habit of making all of one's pet hates known to everyone. It's much better to be known for your likes and enthusiasms than for your dislikes. We are all inclined to say "let's invite Sally. She always fits in." And "better not ask Sue; she can't stand the so-and-sos."

The habit of always stating one's opinions as unanswerable facts. Such a habit is invariably irritating to others and one person with that annoying habit can ruin any conversation.

Don't Be Bossy

The habit of bossiness. The bossy person never keeps anyone around him for long but timid souls who haven't enough backbone to make up their own minds. So the bossy person shuts himself off the friendship and society of all but timid souls.

The habit of constant chatter. The chatterer has to be taken in small doses by non-chatterers and can't get along at all with another chatterer.

The habit of putting off. Putting off never lightens a load. It only means that one is doing the work today that should have been done yesterday, and that in addition one is also worrying about the work that should be done today—but will have to be put off until tomorrow.

Twentieth Century Forum Has Two New Members

Two new members, Mrs. Homer Johnson and Mrs. Walter Patzig, met with the Twentieth Century Forum at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday in the home of Mrs. M. McDaniel.

Mrs. Bruce Pratt, president, opened the meeting with prayer from the "Book of Common Worship" in memory of soldiers who gave their lives fighting.

Roll call was answered with "I Present My Family."

The program, "Are We Adults", was presented by Mrs. Arthur Teed.

Mrs. Teed told the audience ". . . the characteristic knowledge of our century is psychological. Even our most dramatic advances in physics and chemistry are chiefly applications of known methods of research."

She gave several examples of maturity and immaturity and added that "the first step is to have the desire to climb the rugged path toward spiritual and emotional maturity. By knowing ourselves and constantly evluating ourselves we can make daily progress.

"Finally we can learn to appreciate adulthood—we can enjoy our maturity as adults and can know that adulthood is the time for putting into effect a wisdom about life that childhood and youth are unable to possess.

She concluded with a quote from one of Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick's radio sermons, "No Man need stay the way he is. Thank God, we can grow."

Purpose of the contest was to bring skills of the blind to the attention of employers.

VATICAN JAMMED FOR PAPAL ADDRESS—Huge throng jams Vatican City's St. Peter's Square and its approaches as Pope Pius XII is borne on portable throne along narrow passageway in foreground on his way to address an estimated 200,000 Italian Men's Catholic Action delegates in the square. This view was taken from the central balcony of St. Peter's Basilica.

WADDLE GUS DO DURING SCHOOL HOURS?—Gus, the duck, is the friendliest duck in Minnespolis. He waddles to school every day with his young master, Dennis Young, ten-year-old polio victim. Gus thinks it would be duck soup to go to school, but teacher says "no." Gus must make his way home alone, and the trip includes a dangerous dash past a butcher shop. Paul Ederer, 11, is another of Dennis' friends, and wheels the handicapped boy to school every day.

SNUG AS A BUG—The heavy stole being modeled, above, is one of the hits of the Parisian winter fashion season. This version, designed by Schiaparelli, is fashioned in wide mohair. Parisians are also said to have gone "buggy" about unusual costume jewelry, such as the giant Cicada which adorns the stole.

CURTAIN-RAISER — Trailing its long antenna, a captive balloon bobs over the Voice of America's floating broadcasting station, "Courier," anchored at the Island of Rhodes in the Mediterranean. The high-flying antenna makes possible the beaming of broadcasts to countries behind the Iron Curtain.

TOP OF THE PILE—News-chart above shows average hourly earnings of bituminous coal miners have exceeded the average hourly earnings of workers in all manufacturing industries, from 1946 up through the first half of 1952. Earnings in pre-war year of 1939 are shown for comparison. Data are from The National Industrial Conference Board.

AMBASSADOR—George Wadsworth, veteran career diplomat from Buffalo, N. Y., is new United States ambassador to Czechoslovakia. He formerly was envoy to Turkey.

CROWN FOR NEPTUNE?—This Parisian shopper, with his diving helmet and crown, is all set for an undersea journey, and appears ready to present the King of the Sea with a new crown. Visitors to the "Flea Market," the gigantic junk-and-curio shopping district, often come away with even more incongruous bits of "loot."

LONESOME LEO GETS A HOME—Booger, half-grown lion that was left unclaimed at Haltom City animal hospital in suburban Fort Worth, Tex., looks sadly out of his cage. But better times are ahead. Dr. J. W. Heaton, hospital operator, offered Booger free to anyone who would give him a good home. He got some 200 applications from all over the nation. It has been decided that the lion will go to the Ardmore, Okla., zoo.

ONE-MAN "NAVY"—Harold Charles Green, above, is a one-man "naval" force for Queen Elizabeth II. The veteran bargeman handles all problems of water transportation for the Queen, as he did for her father, King George VI. Green, who bears the title of "Queen's Waterman," will wear this ornate costume at the Coronation ceremonies in London next June.

ULTRA-MODERN RELIGIOUS STRUCTURE — Architect's model, above, shows the ultra-modern design embodied in the Robert F. Carr Memorial Chapel of St. Savior, which has been built for the students and staff of the Illinois Institute of Technology, at Chicago, Ill. The interdenominational chapel features an altar rail and altar cross of stainless steel, and a simple altar of Roman Travertine marble, and has a glass facade. It is the first ecclesiastical structure to be designed by Ludwig Miles van der Rohe, director of architecture at Illinois Tech.

Frustrating Highway 6 Reserved For Allied Dead

By HAL BOYLE

ROME (AP) — Everyone dreams of a famous street he would like to walk or a hotel he would like to sleep in—from Broadway in New York to the Raffles in Singapore, home of the gin sling.

In wartime there was a period when nobody thought of a hotel, but there was a frustrating highway that was the goal of an army.

It was Highway No. 6 a pleasantly meandering macadam roadway between Naples and Rome.

Mark Clark was trying by brute strength to bust along it from the pleasant vale of sin, Napoli—called by Mussolini "the sewer of Italy"—to Rome, where Il Duce and the Pope lived as uneasy neighbors.

I remember the day two sailors tried serenely to drive from Salerno to Rome along Highway 6—and had to be rescued from their shot up vehicle by a disgusted infantry patrol. In those days the Germans were discouraging patrols by planting plastic mines that, if stepped on, would blow a man's leg off below the knee. If a fellow tripped on one, and fell on another with his hands or face, it was rather worse.

Sailors Find It Tough

The Germans also sat in rock-covered steel pill boxes from which they could rake Highway 6. This was true both at Cassino and in the flank posts guarding the push from Anzio. The continuous death of stalemate lasted for weeks.

That stalemate never was broken until after I let Italy, returned home and later went into Normandy.

Road Smooth Again

All during the war—and the years since—I wondered what it would be like to drive along Highway 6 from Salerno through Naples into Rome. I had heard here was a great Allied cemetery at Anzio, that the town and abbey of Cassino were rebuilt, and the road lay smooth again.

As our plane landed in Rome, my wife, Frances, who can't tell a map of San Francisco from a drawing of a dinosaur, said:

"Now be sure to show me where you were in the war."

But our time was so short I had to decide whether to drive down that lonely Highway 6, where lonely thousands perished, or show her something fresh and new to both of us in axactly the oppos directioen—Venice.

And so we saw Venice. I guess I'll always be a coward.

Let others speed in comfort and safety on Highway 6. So many I knew in wartime died to make it free. Why should I finish the journey now that they can never make?

Car Built In 1900 And It Still Runs

SHUBENACADIE, Canada (AP) — For about as long as he can remember W. G. Nelson has been bringing his old gas buggy out of retirement each year. The Model I Pope-Tribune came off the production line in 1900.

It was retired after nine years of faithful service but his love for the vehicle remained and he soon started to bring it out of retirement annually. Still in good condition, the buggy is capable of a top speed of 30 miles an hour. "I imagine that pictures of the car, many of them with tourist visitors sitting in it, now are in about every province in Canada as well as every state of the United States," he says.

The vehicle is powered by a one-cylinder engine, rated at six horsepower, and has a water-cooled head. There are seats for two — but no extra comforts.

Blackboard Drill Will Be Enjoyable

EASTON, Pa. (AP) — A new, green, natural slate chalkboard has been developed by a firm in Northampton County, major source of all slate blackboards for classroom use.

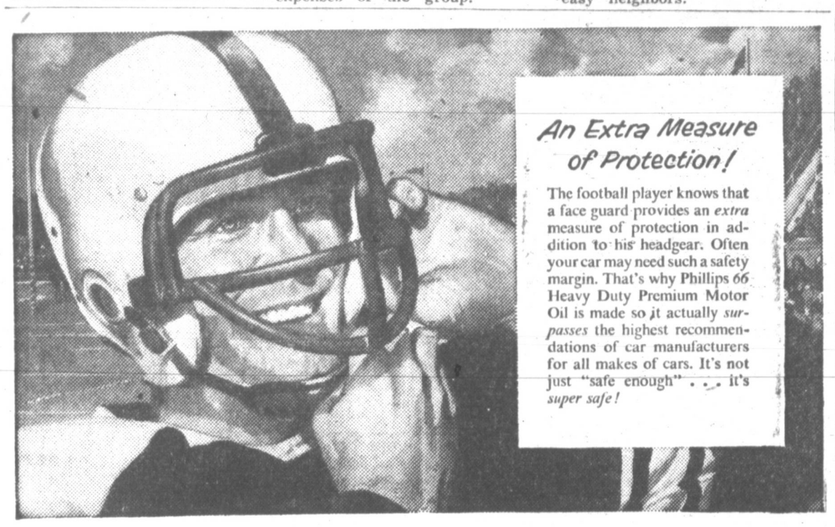

Colorite, the name of the new board, is a carborundum base, wear-resistant coating especially bonded to virgin quarried slate chalkboards, according to a recent announcement by The Stoddard Corp. of Bangor. The new board is said to be free from glare and affords excellent contrast and readability and has a life expectancy of from 15 to 25 years.

U. S. Missionary Shifts From China

HONG KONG (AP) — A veteran American missionary in China, Helen Bailey of Woodlief, N. C., has quit the Communist-dominated mainland and shifted her activities to Indonesia where she will work with the Chinese Protestant churches on Belitung Island.

Miss Bailey recently reached here from the remote Tibet border town of Kangting. Tibet is occupied by the Chinese Red army.

American mines are furnishing coal for more than half the world's steel production.
