Various cities, towns and communities will celebrate the nation's Bicentennial in their own way this weekend, but one event likely will get simultaneous attention throughout the country, according to the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration. That is the bell-ringing commemoration of the country's 200th anniversary.

Bells are scheduled to ring in unison with the tolling of the bell in Independence Hall in Philadelphia at 1 p.m. Sunday, our time (Central Daylight Saving Time).

The National Wildlife Federation has announced intentions to flood television screens with eagles during Bicentennial observance to focus attention on the country's national bird and symbol. They say nearly 90 per cent of the stations who got their television spot announcements about the eagles are broadcasting them. Their objective is to bolster protection of the eagle, which has long been associated with the United States of America. They refer to the eagle as the "threatened symbol."

We trust that it will not be so confusing as some of the regular commercials become from time to time. For example, have you ever wondered why cereal can be so beneficial to your children, but harmful to your dog? Of course you have seen those commercials singing the praises of nourishing breakfast cereals, and how they help keep youngsters healthy and help parents keep their weight down. And then you've undoubtedly seen the other commercials showing how you penalize your dog and endanger his health if you feed him a dog food containing cereal.

As this Bicentennial weekend approaches, Americans also are preparing for the national conventions of their two major political parties. Such conventions were unheard of, however, back in 1776, and those colonists who broke the yoke with the Declaration of Independence and ensuing Revolutionary War probably never dreamed of a presidential primary. The first presidential candidate to be nominated at a convention was Andrew Jackson, who was nominated in 1832 by the Democratic party at its convention in Baltimore.—WACIL McNAIR

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, July 1, the 183rd day of 1976. There are 183 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1862, the U.S. Congress established the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

On this date:

In 1513, King James IV of Scotland declared war on England.

In 1863, the Civil War Battle of Gettysburg began.

In 1881, the American Red Cross was incorporated, with Clara Barton as president.

In 1898, Theodore Roosevelt and his Rough Riders carried out a victorious assault on San Juan Hill in Cuba in the Spanish-American War.

In 1958, construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway was completed.

In 1966, the Medicare health program for elderly Americans went into effect.

Ten years ago: France withdrew its troops from the command of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Five years ago: The North Vietnamese said in Paris they would release all U.S. war prisoners if American forces were withdrawn from Vietnam by the end of the year.

One year ago: U.S. Lt. General Daniel James was nominated to be chief of the North American Air Defense Command and became the first black four-star general.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, the Continental Congress in Philadelphia, meeting as a committee of the whole, approved a resolution by Richard Henry Lee of Virginia calling for independence from Britain.

CONSENT PROVISION STRUCK DOWN BY TOP COURT

Abortion Left Up To Women

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled today that states cannot require a woman seeking an abortion to get consent from her husband if she is married or from a parent if she is single and under age 18.

The decision struck down the parental and spousal consent provisions of a 1974 Missouri law but upheld a provision requiring a woman to give her written consent before the operation can be performed.

The ruling was the court's first major decision relating to abortions since it ruled 7-2 in 1973 that states cannot regulate abortions during the first three months of pregnancy.

The 1973 ruling also blocked states from prohibiting abortions until the fetus is capable of "meaningful life" outside the mother's womb, which generally occurs during the sixth or seventh month of pregnancy.

Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin of Cincinnati, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, said, "The Supreme Court has compounded the tragic error of its abortion decisions 3½ years ago and struck a serious blow at parents and faimilies."

Noting that for more than a century "abortion was a socially abhorrent crime," the archbishop added that "today's decision makes abortion more constitutionally significant than the rights of parents to rear their children. It gives abortion precedence over the right of husbands to participate fully in all decisions affecting their marriages."

Bill Cox, director ofthe National Committee for a Right to Life Amendment, said the decision "is very distressing to us." He said it underlines "the need for a human rights amendment to the Constitution" to protect the unborn.

In addition to the consent provisions, today's decision struck down a part of the Missouri law which prohibits abortions by injecting saline fluid into the amniotic sac.

The court upheld reporting and record keeping requirements imposed by Missouri for abortions but not for other medical procedures and upheld the Missouri definition of viability, the point after which abortions may be prohibited.

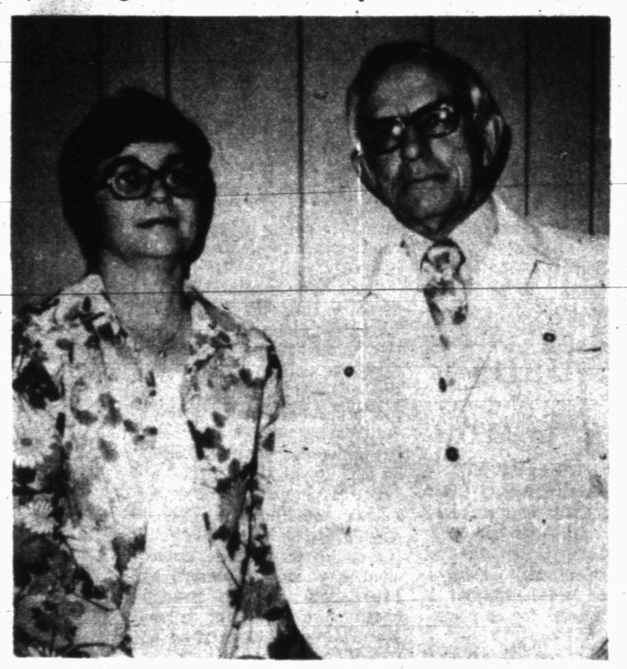
The Missouri law defines viability as "the stage of fetal development when the life of the unborn child may be continued indefinitely outside the womb by natural or artificial life supportive systems."

The court struck down a section of the Missouri law which provides that a doctor performing an abortion must exercise the same diligence to preserve the life and health of the fetus as he would in the event of a live birth.

The vote on the different questions varied.

The vote to strike down the requirement of a husband's consent was 6-3 with Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Byron R. White and William H. Rehnquist dissenting.

The vote on the question of parental consent was 5-4 with the same three justices and Justice John Paul Stevens dissenting.



UNITED WAY CO-CHAIRMEN SELECTED—Mrs. Carol Davis and Joe Williamson have been chosen to head this year's fund drive for the United Way. The goal of the 1976 fund drive is $48,000 and the drive is tentatively scheduled to begin September 20 and continue through November 1.

Walls Announces Plans For Sewing Plant Here

Walls Industries, Inc., has formally announced that it plans to purchase a sewing plant in Snyder.

The building, with 30,000 square feet of floor space, is owned by Aileen, Inc., which has been operating a sewing plant here since Dec. 6, 1971. Aileen had announced on May 28 that it planned to close its plant here on July 30.

Sam Walls, president of Walls Industries, Inc., came here from Cleburne yesterday to inspect the plant. He said Walls expects to take possession of the building about Aug. 1 and will begin operations soon thereafter.

The plant here, which is conveniently situated near other Walls plants in Big Spring and Sweetwater, currently employs some 125 persons. Walls said the company hopes to be able to retain most of the present personnel and expand the work force to about 200 operators by early 1977.

In addition to the three West Texas plants, Walls has four other Texas sewing facilities located in Cleburne, Clifton, Gatesville and Breckenridge. Walls' cutting facility in Sweetwater will service the new Snyder plant and finished garments will be returned to Walls' Sweetwater Distribution Center.

Walls manufactures a variety of men's apparel, principally insulated garments for the work and sports markets. The new Snyder plant will produce a portion of the company's line of down-insulated apparel.

The company president said Wednesday that he expected a smooth change-over. Exact dates of the switch in operators at the plant have not been pinned down. Walls said that if Aileen should be ready to relinquish the building prior to July 30, Walls Industries would move in promptly.

The building, located in Northeast Snyder, was constructed in 1972, and is one of the most modern sewing plant facilities in the region. Aileen began its operations in December of 1971 in temporary facilities at the former Katherine Ryan School building, and then moved into the new building a year later.

100 More Freed By Hijackers

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Diplomats said pro-Palestinian guerrillas freed 100 more captives at Uganda's Entebbe Airport today as Israel, abandoning its traditional refusal to deal with terrorists, said it was ready to talk about releasing prisoners held in Israeli jails.

Israeli government sources in Tel Aviv said Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin was empowered to "negotiate with readiness to release prisoners" in exchange for freedom of Israelis held since a French airliner was hijacked over Greece Sunday night and flown here.

Diplomats said the hostages were taken from a disused terminal where they were held for four days to a new terminal where they joined the French ambassador to Uganda.

An Air France plane was expected from Nairobi, capital of neighboring Kenya, to take the group to Paris.

The hijackers said they would continue to hold about 100 persons, including Israeli citizens, the crew of the airliner and persons of dual nationality. They freed 47 old persons, children and sick people Wednesday and they were flown to Paris.

A guerrilla communique broadcast by the official Uganda radio said a new deadline for compliance with their demands was 8 a.m. EDT Sunday. The previous one was to have expired today.

The hijackers vowed the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, in which they claim membership, will "take all steps necessary for the complete success of our military and political plan" to free their homeland from imperialism and Zionism.

MRS. FRANCES THOMAS

Soviet Ship Picks Up Balloonist

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Thomas has been picked up by a Russian ship after failing in his attempt to cross the Atlantic in a balloon, the Coast Guard said today.

The Soviet ship was reported to have told the Federal Aviation Administration that Thomas was in good condition when he was picked up Wednesday and would be dropped in Rotterdam when the salvage tug Dekabrisk arrives in Holland next Thursday.

There was no immediate explanation on why Thomas' recovery was not made known sooner, but the Coast Guard said the Soviet vessel was having communications problems.

Thomas had taken off from Lakehurst, N.J., last Friday in an effort to become the first person to cross the Atlantic by balloon. Several other balloonists died in previous attempts.

The pickup was made 360 miles north-northeast of Bermuda.

The rescue came as a major search was getting under way for Thomas. Ten aircraft were scheduled to take off today from the United States, Canada, Bermuda, England and Spain to look for the 90-foot balloon.

The search was ordered at the request of Thomas' ground crew after no contact was made with the balloonist for more than 72 hours.

Co-Chairmen Named For Annual United Way Drive

Joe Williamson and Mrs. Tommy (Carol) Davis have been chosen to head the 1976 fund drive for the United Way. The announcement was made late Wednesday morning at a meeting of the Scurry County United Way Association.

The goal of the 1976 fund drive is $48,000, an increase of $3,000 over last year's goal. The 1975 fund drive, which was targeted at $45,000, netted $51,853. The 1976 fund drive is tentatively scheduled to begin Sept 20 and continue through Nov. 1.

The targeted $48,000 for the fall campaign drive was presented to the Scurry County chapter of the United Way Wednesday morning by the budget committee headed by L.E. (Doc) Griffin.

The budget allocations for the various participating agencies include the following: Boys Club, $15,000; Boy Scouts, $10,000; Girl Scouts, $4,800; Scurry County Mental Health Association, $150; U.S.O., $350; Texas Rehabilitation Commission, $300; Cerebral Palsy Association, $350; Red Cross, $3,500; Salvation Army, $3,600; Child Day Care Center, $4,000; Southwest Diabetic Center, $300; Scurry County Commission on Alcholism and Drugs, $2,000; West Texas Rehabilitation Center, $500; and Texas United Community Service, $150. Drive expenditures will account for the remainder of the $48,000.

Joe Williamson, chosen to cosponser the 1976 frund drive, has been a Snyder resident since 1956 when he moved here from Big Spring.

He is married to the former Joyce Rees and they have three children: sons Jay and Jodi and a daughter Jean. Williamson has been employed since 1961 as an agent for the State Reserve Life Insurance Co.

He has been past president of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, the Snyder Country Club, the Snyder Kiwanis Club, the Snyder Quarterback Club, and the Snyder Shrine Club. He was also the first president of the Western Texas College Booster Club and he is a member of the Knights Templar.

Mrs. Carol Davis was born and reared in Colorado City. She was graduated from McMurry College in 1960 and has been employed as a teacher at the Snyder junior High School since her graduation from college. She is a member of several teachers' organizations.

She is also a member of the Snyder Garden Club and is the treasurer of the Board of Directors of the Martha Ann Woman's Club. She and her husband own Snyder Janitorial Supplies.

She is married and has two children, Denise, 10, and Terry, 6.

Ikard Rites Here Friday

James Thomas Ikard, 85, long-time Snyder resident and former Scurry County official, died at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday in Medical Center Hospital at Odessa.

Funeral service has been set for 2 p.m. Friday at the Thirty-seventh Street Church of Chirst, with Pat Abbananto to officiate. Burial will be in Hillside Memorial Gardens, under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

Mr. Ikard was a native of Belton and he was married on Dec. 23, 1916, at Ira, to Miss Minnie Lewis. He was elected tax assessor-collector of Scurry County in 1952 and served two terms. He did not seek election to the position in 1956. However, he assisted successors at various times in later years in the county tax office.

He is survived by his wife; two daughters, Oleta Ikard of Odessa and Mrs. Opal Coffee of Glen Rock, Wyoming; and four grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be Geral Greene, Dan Calloway, Wilson Bright, Herschel Lewis, Billy Wayne Thompson and J.T. Stephens.

Ma Bell To Ask Rate Hike

DALLAS (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. says it will ask for a statewide telephone rate increase when the Texas Utilities Commission starts taking cases in September.

Bell officials said Wednesday they want 20-cent pay telephones, now only in Dallas, and a directory assistance charge to be extended to all Texas cities the utility serves.

Bell received a $19 million rate hike from the Dallas City Council in May 1975 and is under a two-year moratorium before it can ask for another local increase.

Bell officials contend that moratorium will be lifted when the state takes over regulation of telephone utility rates.

Oil Controls Lifted Today

By EDMUND PINTO
Associated press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional opponents say the end of five years of oil price controls today could add $128 to the annual cost of heating a home with the fuel, but the government says it might result in lower costs for consumers.

The restraints ended at midnight after the House and Senate Wednesday failed to block an administration plan to decontrol the price of heating oil and diesel fuel. A veto by either chamber would have been sufficient.

The House failed to halt the Federal Energy Administration proposal on a 208-194 vote. The Senate effort fell short 52 to 32.

Congressional opponents of decontrol, including Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., said the action means the cost of home fuel oil could rise as much as eight cents a gallon. Dingell said that each cent-per-gallon increase translates into $16 a year on the average fuel bill.

Supporters of the administration plan, including Rep. Clarence J. Brown, R-Ohio, said decontrol is likely to bring prices down. Brown said the system of price and allocation controls kept distributors from buying supplies at the lowest possible competitive prices.

That belief also was expressed by FEA Administration Frank Zarb when he proposed decontrol in mid-June. The FEA said Zarb did not expect price increases to result and that costs might even go down.

Controls were first imposed as part of former President Richard M. Nixon's wage-price control program in August 1971. Although controls on the rest of the economy eventually were lifted, those on petroleum remained when the Arab embargo of 1973-1974 created shortages in the United States.

Prices and allocations involved in the controls have varied among regions of the country according to demand, distributing costs and other factors.

The FEA has said that petroleum imports to the United States are now adequate and that continued controls did more harm to oil prices than good because retailers and wholesalers were locked into buying from past suppliers instead of being allowed to shop around for the best price.

The action did not lift controls on the price of gasoline, but Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said that was the next step to be proposed by the FEA.

Service For Mrs. Thomas

Funeral service has been set for 2 p.m. Friday at the First Baptist Church for Mrs. T.S. (Frances) Thomas.

The Rev. Ken Andress, pastor of the church, will officiate, and he will be assisted by Dr. A.B. Lightfoot, a former pastor of the church. Burial will be in Hillside Memorial Gardens, under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

Mrs. Thomas, 51, died early Wednesday in a Fort Worth hospital following a brief illness. She is survived by her husband; a son, Robert Thomas of Tyler; her mother, Mrs. Frankie Jaco of Snyder; a brother, Harry Jaco of Plainsville, Kan.; two grandchildren and two nephews.

Pallbearers will be Ross Blanchard, Ralph Key, Max Von Roeder, Billy Stewart, Wayne Williams, Jimmy Wilson, Charles Yoast and Wayne Monroney.

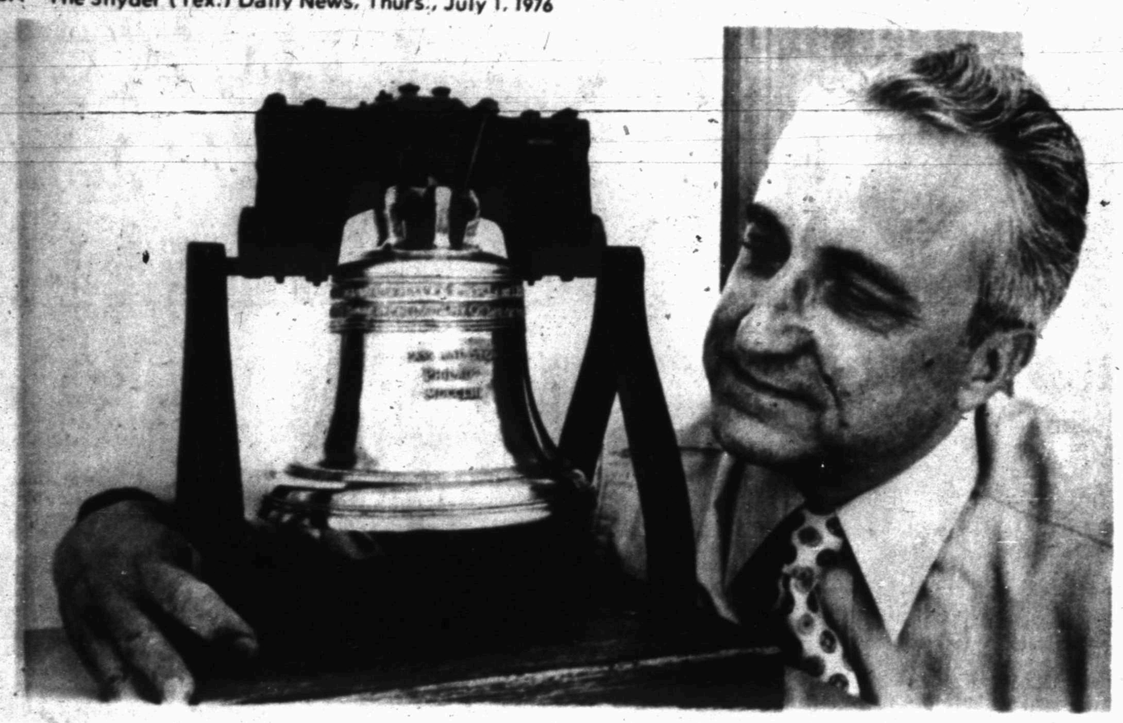
Tickets For Train Rides Still On Sale

Tickets for the Fourth of July train rides between Snyder and Hermleigh may still be obtained at the Chamber of Commerce.

The train will feature an engine, three antique passenger cars and a caboose. The train will travel between Snyder and Hermleigh in 45 minute intervals. Boardings for the train will be at the Boys Club in Snyder and the crossroads in Hermleigh. Snyder school buses will be used to provide passengers with transportation for the return trip.

Tickets are free, but a $3 donation to the Snyder Chamber of Commerce is required. Each ticket represents a one-way trip. Two tickets may be purchased for a round trip. Children under 12 must be accompanied by a parent or guardian and a signed release will be required for each person to board.

The train rides are being sponsored by the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, the Roscoe, Snyder and Pacific Railroad and the Santa Fe Railroad.



IT'S AMERICAN-MADE, HE SAYS—Justin Kramer, shown with a replica of the Liberty Bell, attacks the accepted story that the Liberty Bell hanging in Philadelphia is a foreign product, describing the claim as a hoax. Kramer contends the bell was made in America, not England. (AP Wirephoto)

Carter To Choose VP Finalists This Week

By LYNNE OLSON
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Jimmny Carter indicated Wendesday that he would choose the finalist in the Democratic vice presidential sweepstakes this weekend.

The probable Democratic presidential candidate told reporters during a stop in Washington that he would personally interview those finalists next week in whichever location they chose.

"This decision will be made by me about whom to contact during his weekend," Carter said after discussing vice presidential possibilities with AFL-CIO president George Meany.

Carter has said that the finalist list will consist of three or four names. Seven or eight names are now under consideration, he added.

The former Georgia governor did not receive Meany's endorsement at their meeting and the crusty old labor leader made sure he was not questioned about that fact by failing to show up for a previously scheduled picture-taking session with Carter.

The AFL-CIO did not plan to make any political endorsement until after a meeting of its executive committee following the Democratic convention, which starts July 12, Carter advisers say.

"It was a very good, very congenial conversation," Carter said of his talk with Meany. "I didn't specifically ask for his endorsement. But I think Mr. Meany knows I would like to have it."

In addition to the Meany meeting, Carter shook hands and said "thanks" at fund-raising affairs in Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Washington, raising $350,000 for his campaign chest, aides said.

He ended the day in Houston, where he was to meet with Mexican-American leaders and attend another fund-raising function today.

Carter told newsmen that adviser Charles Carbo spent Wednesday on Capitol Hill interviewing prospective vice presidential candidates and getting advice from other members of Congress.

The man who has emphasized his aloofness from Washington previously has said his running mate probably will have Washington experience. Speculation currently centers on several senators, including Frank Church of Idaho, Adlai Stevenson III of Illinois and Walter Mondale of Minnestota.

Carter said he probably meet with Carbo and other advisers Friday and then decide which vice presdiential nominee to interview. He said interviews would be intensive, lasting several hours.

The Carter organization is determined to have thorough knowledge of the background of the eventual vice presidential nominee.

Although he had led President Ford and Ronald Reagan, his potential Republican opponent, in recent opinion polls, Carter warned supporters at two Washington cocktail parties not to be overconfident of victory in November.

"It certainly would be a mistake for us to assume that either one of the two most likely Republican candidates would be easy to beat," Carter told 500 enthusiastic democrats at one function.

"One is an incumbent President with all the perogatives and strength of the office. The other one — a movie star, a competent television performer, with fervent supporters, who is not from Washington. Either one would be very, very strong."

Obviously haunted by the 1948 race in which Thomas Dewey mistakenly was considered unbeatable against incumbent President Harry Truman, Carter told another cocktail party group that he was the only one of 61 students at his submarine school to vote for Truman.

"It would be a serious mistake for us to assume victory," he said. "I'm determined to work just as hard in the general election as I did in the primaries."

But a number of those attending the party did not heed Carter's warning. They voiced complete confidence he would have not have trouble beating Ford or Reagan.

"Everyone wants a change," said one government transportation employe. "Carter won't have to do much work at all to be elected."

Ford Asks For More Tax Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is appealing again for bigger tax cuts now that a two-month freeze on payroll tax withholding rates is in place.

But there appears little chance that Congress will go along with Ford's proposals, first offered last October.

A bill preventing a hike in payroll withholding while Congress finishes work on a broad tax revision bill was signed by Ford Wednesday night, just five hours before the rates would have risen.

Ford's signature means workers will not have to face an immediate increase of $3 to $6 a week in withholding. By the time the freeze expires on Sept. 1, Congress is expected to have passed a bill making the tax reductions permanent or at least extending them through June 30, 1977.

In signing the legislation, Ford noted that he had urged Congress 10 months ago to make permanent the 1975 antirecession tax cuts, worth about $15 billion a year, and to reduce taxes by another $10 billion.

"Now, nine months later, the response from the Congress is typical of their failure to face the issues," Ford said. "The Congress, after waiting until the last possible day, has enacted a two-month freeze of withholding rates rather than cutting taxes another $10 billion as I had requested."

Ford's plan called for a $10-billion reduction in federal spending to offset the additional tax cut. But Congress made it clear it would not accept the President's call for domestic spending cuts while he insisted that the defense budget be left intact.

Congress already has gone on record in favor of using the $10 billion for recession-fighting and job-creating programs, rather than cutting taxes further.

And under its new budget procedures, Congress has virtually locked out any chance that taxes will be cut anywhere near the $10 billion Ford proposes.

It is expected Congress will agree to extend the tax cuts through all of fiscal 1977, which ends on Sept. 30, 1977. That would be three months longer than the tax-writing Finance Committee recommends.

Because of considerable sentiment for the extra three months of tax cuts, it came as a mild surprise Wednesday when the Senate on a 55 to 35 vote, rejected a proposal that would have raised enough money to pay for the additional extension.

That proposal would have imposed a 15 per cent tax withholding on all interest and dividends, in much the same what that taxes now are withheld from workers' paychecks.

Without the freeze on tax withholding rates, a family of four earning $6,000 would have faced a $445-per-year increase. The increase for a four-member family earning $15,000 or a single person making $25,000 would have been $180. A couple with no children and earning $10,000 would have faced a $204 increase.

Carswell Indicted

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — G. Harrold Carswell, whose nomination by former President Nixon to the U.S. Supreme Court was rejected in 1970, has been charged with attempting a homosexual act with a plainclothed vice squad officer.

A two-count indictment returned Wednesday by a Leon County grand jury charged Carswell with battery and attempting an "unnatural and lascivious act" on officer George Greene.

No date has been set for Carswell's arraignment in Leon County Court.

State Atty. Harry Morrison said defense attorney Murray Wadsworth accepted a summons for Carswell late Wednesday.

Carswell, 56, who was released on his own recognizance after his arrest Thursday, has been in seclusion since then at Tallahassee Memorial Hospital. Wadsworth said Carswell is being treated for "nervous exhaustion and depression."

Both charges are misdemeanors under Florida law.

The charge alleging an attempted homosexual act carries a maximum penalty of 60 days in jail and a $500 fine. Battery, which involves touching a person without his consent, carries a maximum penalty of one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

The indictment did not elaborate on the alleged sexual advances by Carswell. The officer reported that he was approached by Carswell in a shopping mall men's room being staked out by police because merchants complained of homosexual activity.

Greene said Carswell drove him to a secluded, wooded area north of Tallahassee where the arrest took place.

Carswell was a Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals judge in 1970 when he was nominated by Nixon to the Supreme Court. The nomination was rejected by the Senate, with opponents charging that Carswell was a mediocre judge who had advocated racial segregation as a legislative candidate in Georgia.

Carswell, who is married and has four children, returned to his law practice here following rejection of his nomination and an unsuccessful attempt to win the Republican Senate nomination.

Open House At Fisher Hospital

The Governing Board of the Fisher County Hospital District is issuing a public invitation to all persons who wish to attend the open house of the new Fisher County Hospital.

The open house is being held Sunday, July 11 between 2 and 5 p.m. The hospital is approximately 1½ miles south of Rotan on the Roby Highway.

The dedication of the hospital and the ribbon cutting will be the featured events of the open house.

ON SCHOOL FUNDING

NJ Legislature Is Deadlocked

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — With an estimated 100,000 pupils shut out of summer school programs today by a state Supreme Court order to close the entire New Jersey public school system, the state legislature was deadlocked in efforts to work out a financing plan.

The 1.5 million pupils who attend public school classes during the regular school year are now on summer vacation. But a school official has estimated that for every day that spending for schools was now banned, there would be a one-day delay in the start of the new school term next September.

Early reports indicated some activities were still being held. In East Brunswick, mothers delivering their children to elementary summer school were told there would be no classes. However, the playground remained open, supervised by nonteachers.

"That's no fair," said a fifth-grade girl informed of the closing. "I needed that."

The court order took effect after the state legislature failed, by midnight Wednesday, to adopt tax legislation needed to raise the $378 million required to fund a new state school aid law.

The State Assembly met from Wednesday night until 8 a.m. today, then adjourned until 7 p.m. this evening, when it will consider the problem again. It defeated three tax propsosals and planned to take up next a proposed 1.5 per cent to 2.5 per cent graduated state income tax. The state Senate was awaiting the outcome of the Assembly's deliberations.

That measure was accorded the best chance of passage by legislative leaders of all the bills under consideration. But it ran into a snag when the legislative Office of Fiscal Affairs asked for time to check anticipated revenue estimates, then reported that the proposed bill might raise some $120 million less than anticipated.

The state's highest court had ruled that the current method of funding schools, based on local property taxes, is unconstitutional because it discriminates against pupils in poorer communities.

On May 13, it ordered all spending for public schools halted today unless the legislature had adopted a new school financing method.

Usery Defends Teamsters Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor Secretary W. J. Usery Jr. told Congress today his department's investigation of the Teamsters Union is being conducted fairly and impartially in spite of his recent praise of union leaders.

In an appearance before the Senate Labor Committee, Usery acknowledged that he "may have been a little more enthusiastic than I should have been" in remarks at a Teamsters convention. But he said: "I felt then, and I feel now, that my appearance there was proper."

Committee members called the hearing to "monitor and assess" the government's investigation of the Teamsters Central States Pension Fund following controvery over Usery's appearance at the convention in Las Vegas two weeks ago.

Also scheduled to testify were James D. Hutchinson, the Labor Department official heading the investigation, and an official of the Justice Departmnt, which is assisting.

The committee members reportedly were disturbed when Usery praised Teamsters officials at the Las Vegas convention for "doing an outstanding job in representing their members."

Usery said he was disturbed over the reaction, but said that as secretary of labor he had a responsibility to address the convention of the nation's biggest union.

He added that he has a responsibility for enforcing federal law, but also is "responsible for ensuring a favorable climate for labor-management relations in this country."

The pension fund investigation, he said, has had the "full and unswerving support" of the Labor Department and will continue to have it.

"Consequently, I personally reject any implication that my appearance at the Teamsters convention or my professional dealings with officials of that organization could or would influence an impartial, fair and professional investigation by the Department of Labor," Usery declared.

Committee Chairman Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.C., told Usery that serious questions had been raised in recent weeks concerning the investigation and said if was important to determine whether the 1974 Pension Reform Act, under which the probe is being conducted, was being properly enforced.

Art Show Entries Are Due Today

The 15th annual July 4 Art Show will be held in the Scurry County Barn in Towle Park. The show will be open to the public on Sunday, July 4, from 1 p.m. until 9 p.m. and on Monday, July 5, from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m.

All artists are urged to take their paintings and hand-crafted items to the county barn between 1 p.m. and 8 p.m. today.

The feature of the art show, the "Poor Boy Sale," will be held in the southeast corner of the county barn. Items will be priced at $10 and under.

Judging will be held the morning of July 4 and the doors will be closed to the public during that time. Following the show, artists are urged to pick up their art works between 8 p.m. and 9 p.m., Monday.

Lake Begins Pump-Back Operations

Pump-back operations at Lake J.B. Thomas have commenced as a step to extend supplies from that key source of water. O.H. Ivie, general manager of the Colorado River Municipal Water District, said that this one-step lift should carry the district through the summer without difficulty.

The operation is similar to ones carried out in previous years when the lake level lowers to the intake but leaves around 28,000 acre feet of water in the reservoir. By daming the channel, and pumping back over it, a sufficient level of water is maintained in the pool at the Big Spring-Odessa intake.

Lake Thomas water, which is relatively free of chlorides, is used to mix with water from Lake E.V. Spence, which has a reserve of 161,400 acre feet.

Pumping operations from the Ward County well field may be increased somewhat to handle peaking on the west end of the district's system. Daily demands on the CRMWD have been running high, but all commitments have and will be met, said Ivie.

City Firemen Called Twice

City firemen reported two minor fires.

The first fire, a grass and trash fire, occurred at 12:50 p.m. Wednesday at 1616 Twenty-sixth Street.

The second fire a dumpster fire occurred at 4:15 p.m. Wednesday at 3809 College Avenue.

Christians Make Gains

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Christian militiamen today stepped up their bombardment of the last major Moslem holding in southeast Beirut, the Tal Zaatar Palestinian refugee camp. Both sides ignored a Pan-Arab appeal for a cease-fire in the civil war.

Arab foreign ministers meeting in Cairo issued the appeal for a cease-fire at midday. They also urged an airlift of troops from Arab counties to begin separating the warring Lebanese factions.

About 1,300 Saudi Arabian and Sudanese soldiers left Damascus today to join the 800 Syrian and Libyan troops sent to Beirut last week as the vanguard of the Pan-Arab peacekeeping force. The Syrians and Libyans have stayed away from the firing lines.

As the cease-fire deadline passed, heavy rockets roared from Moslem areas headed for Christian positions. Shelling from the Christian side set several fires in the Moslem neighborhood of Tariq el-Gedideh.

An all-night rocket and artillery pounding of the camp set a number of fires in the refugee camp.

Two Mishaps Are Reported

Two minor traffic accidents were recorded by city police.

The first traffic accident a hit-and-run, occurred at the East Highway Dairy Queen at 12:20 p.m. Wednesday. A parked 1975 Toyota owned by Gene R. McClury was struck by another vehicle which left the scene. Only minor damages were reported.

The second mishap occurred at the intersection of Thirty-seventh street and College Avenue. A 1972 Plymouth driven by Kendall P. Davis was involved in a collision wth a 1975 Honda Coupe driven by John Stuart Waddell. Only minor damages resulted in that mishap which occurred Wednesday at 10:22 p.m.

Water District Board To Meet

Directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District will convene at 10 a.m. July 8 at the headquarters, 400 East Twenty-fourth in Big Spring.

One of the items on the agenda is a request that the district effect a contract with the University of Texas System to take over and operate a water supply for the Pyote community.

The meeting also will be the occasion for the election of officers and the appointment of standing committees for the year.

PREPARING FOR CENTENNIAL BOOTH—Displaying bonnets to be sold Saturday in the Centennial booth of Women's Auxiliary of Cogdell Memorial Hospital are, from left, Lois Green, president of the auxiliary, Ruby Anderson, Lucille Joyce and Donna Allen. Proceeds will go to the auxiliary's Medical Student Scholarship Fund.

Auxiliary Has Booth

Lois Greer, president of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary of Cogdell Memorial Hospital, has announced that the Auxiliary will have a booth at the coliseum Saturday for the Scurry County Centennial Celebration.

Hand-made bonnets and napkins, made by auxiliary members, will be on display and available for sale. Bonnets for adults, teen-agers and younger children in a variety of colonial colors, and coordinated napkins in red, white and blue will be included.

All proceeds derived from the project will be used for the medical student scholarships now sponsored by the Woman's Hospital Auxiliary. This fund is known as the Medical Students Scholarship Fund.

At present, the auxiliary has two medical students under contract for approximately 1½ years. Upon completion of their education, they will return to Snyder to practice medicine. The fund is supported entirely by the Hospital Auxiliary and donations from Scurry County citizens. Billie Mills is the chairman of the Medical Students Scholarship Fund.

Anyone wishing to make a donation may mail it to Mrs. Mills at Box 36, Snyder, or telephone 573-3998.

Vegetables Are Plentiful

COLLEGE STATION—Fresh vegetables in "heavy supply", some with lower prices than a year ago—are in Texas grocery stores, and they make the "best buys" currently in produce departments, Mrs. Gwendolyne Clyatt says.

Among them are cabbage, carrots, green peppers, corn and cucumbers, along with yellow squash and potatoes.

Another "good choice" is dry yellow onions.

"Consumers can expect price decreases on Southern varieties of peas—and on okra—as supplies increase," she said.

Mrs. Clyatt is a consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Watermelons continue in good supply and quality, but present prices probably will remain until after July 4th."

"Honeydew melons are not as plentiful—due to a hail in the Rio Grande Valley earlier in June."

"Texas cantaloupe are plentiful, mostly in small size."

Soft, summer fruit is increasing in supply, and prices because of cooking odors, there are more attractive. Items in particular are peaches, plums, grapes, nectarines and cherries.

At meat counters, consumers can find forequarter cuts reasonably priced, the specialist said. She cited warmer weather accompanied by less consumer demand as one reason for lower prices on those cuts, "making chuck cuts economical buys."

Cuts she termed "moderate to economical" in price are a few of the quick-cooking beef steaks, ground beef and liver.

"Pork prices remain high—with Boston butt roasts and smoked picnics generally the best value

"By carefully comparing prices, good values can be found on quarter-loins cut into chops, semi-boneless hams, bacon, roll sausage and liver."

Fryer chicken prices remain about the same "with very good values offered," the specialist said.

"Also, several markets feature turkeys—with attractive prices on drumstick and thigh roasts."

CONSUMER WATCHWORDS: Check the fish counter for values on seasonal fresh fish. For consumers who "shy away" from cooking fish is the alternative of an outdoor fish fry or the outdoor grill.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

One of the points in play stressed by Hal Sims was that there is no such thing as a guess. If you have a two-way finesse for a queen and go wrong, it wasn't bad luck in the Sims lexicon. It was a mistake.

Playing at six notrump, Hal went right up with dummy's ace of diamonds and led the jack of spades. Needless to say, East played small, whereupon Hal ducked. West showed out and Hal was able to pick up the whole spade suit.

To wind up with the frosting on the cake, he came down to a two-card ending with the nine of hearts in dummy and king-jack of clubs in his own hand to squeeze West and make an overtrick.

When asked by an admiring partner why he played the spades the way he did, Hal explained that East had sat back in his chair when North bid six spades but he moved forward in apparent annoyance when Hal went to six notrump. Hal said, "I believed East."

If you wonder why Hal bid six notrump the answer is that he always wanted to play the dummy.

Ask the Jacobys

A Missouri reader asks if it is true that when Easley Blackwood uses his own convention today, he uses the five-club response to show zero or three aces and five diamonds one or four.

The answer is that some experts do that, but Easley plays the convention as originally made up, except he does use five clubs to show zero or four.

Williams Makes 4-Letter Error

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Ross is a four-letter word.

So is Ryan.

And so was what California Manager Dick Williams must have said when he inadvertently wrote Nolan Ryan's name on his line-up card and then had to start the fireballer against the Chicago White Sox Wednesday night.

"It was three or four minutes after the National Anthem when he (Williams) came up and told me I had to pitch," said Ryan, who had just rejoined the club after having his tender elbow examined. "I was just sitting down getting ready to watch the game. I didn't even have my spikes on. I had to go into the clubhouse to get my glove. By the time I started warming up the game had already started."

Ryan, who has hurled a record-tying four no-hitters in his career, pitched perfect baseball ... for both of his two pitches. Chicago's Chet Lemon grounded the second one to shortstop and Ryan promptly gave way to Gary Ross, the scheduled starter, who pitched 7 2-3 strong innings as the Angels edged the Chicago White Sox 2-1 in 10 innings.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Kansas City Royals downed the Minnesota Twins 4-2, the Texas Rangers nipped the Oakland A's 3-2 and the Boston Red Sox defeated the Baltimore Orioles 6-4. The New York-Detroit game was rained out while Cleveland and Milwaukee were not scheduled.

"It was a colossal goof, plain as that," Williams said. "I was talking with the trainer about Ryan and penciled his name in. I just fouled it up. If that man (Lemon) would have gotten on and scored, it would have cost me $500. Now it will just cost me $100."

Who fined him?

"I fined myself. Hell, yes, I had to. If it would have been one of the players I'd be on him. I was more angry than embarrassed. It was just sheer stupidity."

Royals 4, Twins 2

Major league batting leader George Brett scored the go-ahead run and then drove in an insurance tally two innings later. Brett, who enjoyed his 16th three-hit game of the season and boosted his batting average to .361, tripled and scored in the sixth inning to break a 2-2 tie. His RBI single in the eighth boosted the Royals into a two-run lead.

Rangers 3, A's 2

Light-hitting Jim Sundberg delivered two run-scoring singles to back the clutch pitching of Gaylord Perry and reliever Steve Foucault as the Rangers remained 3½ games behind Kansas City in the AL West. Sundberg only had 10 runs batted in going into the game and was batting just .230 when he victimized Mike Torrez with run-scoring hits in the fifth and seventh innings.

Red Sox 6, Orioles 4

Fred Lynn collected four straight hits and Jim Rice belted a tie-breaking two-run homer as the Red Sox made it three in a row over Baltimore. Shaving cream was sprayed and water and ice thrown around in a clubhouse scene reminiscent of a pennant-clinching victory after the Red Sox handed eight-game winner Wayne Garland his first loss.

U. S. Withdraws From Davis Cup

LONDON (AP) — The United States withdrew from the Davis Cup tennis competition today and from the Davis Cup organization in protest against failure to impose sanctions on countries which withdraw for political reasons.

Britain and France withdrew today from the 1977 Davis Cup competition, but did not announce withdrawal from the Davis Cup organization.

Two American-backed resolutions which would have suspended nations which backed out of the tournament rather than play an opponent for political reasons had been narrowly defeated by the 55 countries taking part in the Davis Cup meeting.

The resolutions needed a two-thirds majority for passage.

The vote was 32 in favor, 21 against, and two spoiled ballots. This meant that the resolutions failed by one vote.

Stanley Malless, of Indianapolis, president of the United States Tennis Federation, had announced before the second vote that America would withdraw from both the competition and organization if the vote went the same way.

On a secret ballot, the outcome was the same.

Britain and France then announced that they supported the United States and would withdraw from the 1977 competition. Both indicated that a decision would be taken later on whether to pull out of the organization.

The issue came to a head because Mexico refused to play South Africa in both 1975 and 1976. South Africa won the 1974 Davis Cup competition by default when India refused to play in the final against the South Africans.

A proposal to impose sanctions on Mexico because of its attitude was overwhelmingly defeated. This vote was taken after the other motions had been defeated and was preceded by almost no debate.

The committee then voted 27 to 23 to accept South Africa's entry for the 1977 tournament. A vote on accepting Rhodesia's entry for 1977 for 18 in favor and 23 against, but the entry was accepted because a three-fourths majority would have been necessary to exclude the Rhodesians.

The Rhodesian delegate said, however, that if any country was unable to play against Rhodesia because of visa difficulties or other problems, the Rhodesians would withdraw.

Blen Franklin, president of the South African Tennis Union, said his country will reconsider its position in the light of the action by the United States, Britain and France.

Franklin said: "I think it's a tragedy the (American) motion wasn't carried because the Davis Cup will continue to have political interference."

The lowest daily wage on the Erie Canal between 1828 and 1881, a period of great fluctuation, was 71 cents for "common labor" in 1828. The driver of a team of horses earned $5 a day in 1868, 1870 and 1871. Carpenters earned between $1 and $3 and masons between $1.25 and $3.50.

'Dash For Cash' Named Rainbow Derby Favorite

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (AP) — Dash For Cash will be doing just what his name says Sunday when he and nine other 3-year-old quarter horses dash 440 yards for $110,958.

The 10 horses will be battling for first place money at Ruidoso Downs in the 12th running of the Rainbow Derby, the second leg of the Triple Crown for 3-year-old quarter horses.

A total of $338,208 will be up for grabs with the prize money scaled down from the $110,958 for first place to $11,329 for 10th.

Dash For Cash is the one to watch as he is the winningest horse in the race, both in terms of victories and money.

The colt, owned by Anne W. and B.F. Phillips Jr. of Frisco, Tex., shows eight wins and a second place finish in 10 career starts. In 1976 he is undefeated, having won each of the five races in which he has run.

Dash For Cash is by far the richest horse in the race with $114,341 incareer earnings. His five victories this year, including a Los Alamitos Derby triumph earlier this month, have accounted for $55,960, which is more than any other horse in the field can show for a career.

He also was the fastest of the 69 horses in the June 25 Rainbow Derby trials, where the fastest 10 horses earned berths in Sunday's race. The colt flashed to a five-length victory in his heat by covering the 440 yards in 22 seconds flat.

Dash For Cash didn't run in the first leg of the Triple Crown — the $75,475 Kansas Derby on May 23. But he won't have to worry about the winner of that race because Watch A Native didn't attempt to qualify for the Rainbow.

Doug Moe Maps Plans For Spurs

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Doug Moe, new head coach of the San Antonio Spurs of the National Basketball Association, says he plans to pattern the club after the Denvern Nuggets. Moe was an assistant coach with the Nuggets until the announcement Wednesday naming him Spurs head coach.

"We basically want to control the tempo of every game," the 37-year-old Brooklyn native said. "This way we can create opportunities and shots.'

Club President Angelo Drossos said the "the selection of Doug comes afer a month of intensive investigations. We interviewed 15 to 20 possible coaches and Doug to have the winning characteristics of a coach and player."

Moe played collegiate basketball for the University of North Carolina where he was twice named to All Atlantic Coast Conference teams.

After playing pro ball two years in Italy, Moe played two years for the American Basketball Association in New Orleans, Oakland, Virginia and Carolina. An injury ended his playing career.

Prior to signing with the Spurs Moe had been assisting in the selection of players for the U.S. Olympic basektball team.

Moe said he would probably stand pat with the current Spurs roster and "will probably add a couple of players."

Since the Spurs have no draft choices the additions will have to come through trades or cash transactions.

Nastase Downs Ramirez

WIMBLEDON (AP) — Ilie Nastase beat Raul Ramirez of Mexico 6-4, 9-7 6-3 today in the first semifinal of the men's singles at the Wimbledon Tennis Championships.

The match lasted just short of two hours and kept a jammed center court crowd on excited througout. Nastase, of Romania, was seeded third while Ramirez, of Mexico, was seeded eighth.

It will be the second time the temperamental Romanian has reached the final here. In 1972 he was beaten in five sets by Stan Smith in what many fans still regard as one of the great finals of modern times.

Nastase's final opponent Saturday will be the winner of the match between American Roscoe Tanner and Bjorn Borg of Sweden.

Coast To Coast

By Dick Maurice

ELVIS PRESLEY does seem to be having his problems. First comes the announcement that one of his largest fan clubs is breaking up because the elderly woman running it can't afford it anymore and Elvis hasn't been in touch with her for years. Then, on top of his medical problems, the singer's chow, Getlo, became ill with "interstitial nephritis." Getlo was smuggled into the New England Institute of Comparative Medicine for two months of treatment. His identity was known only to the head of the Massachusetts animal hospital for fear he might be dognapped and ransomed.

GINGER ROGERS will play Las Vegas for the first time in June, when she'll star at The Desert Inn.

Talking about the "Entertainment Capital of the World", the rock ensemble "Chicago" has been signed by the Aladdin Hotel as the second act to perform in its plush $10 million Theatre for The Performing Arts. They will follow on the heels of composer-performer NEIL DIAMOND who will premiere in the 7,500 seat theatre. Bob Brackett, Director of Publicity, said the hotel's switchboard has been floooded with more than 1,000 calls a day since the Diamond engagement was announced.

DORIS DAY really did reveal all in her book, written by A.E. Hotchner. In spite of the fact that her late husband, Marty Melcher, mismanaged $20 million of her earnings and left her with close to half-a-million in debts, she is not bitter. "Look, everything that happened to me was supposed to happen. Right now I have a very good time and I feel very peaceful, but people resent that. They'd rather see me hostile and bitter. I think we're all put here on earth to be used and I was used in the right way. And I think the best is yet to come."

SPIRO AGNEW has been spending a lot of time at FRANK SINATRA's Palm Springs home. He and his wife were frequently house guests of Frank's during the pre-Watergate days and the singer has remained loyal to his friend.

ELTON JOHN is completely cured from his near-breakdown after four months relaxation in Barbados. He is now part-owner of the Los Angeles Aztec Soccer Team. He put out $820,000 for a 30-acre estate in Surrey. So it looks like he isn't hurting in any way.

While in Paris, IKE and TINA TURNER had a suitcase containing more than $86,000 in concert fees stolen. The police couldn't solve the case, so the couple flew psychic PETER HURKOS in from Los Angeles. According to Hurkos, it was not an "inside" job, but he wasn't able to say who had taken the loot either.

"There really isn't a house in Bel Air for less than $1 million that I'd want to buy." The words are those of TOM JONES, son of a Welsh coal miner, who would have been deleriously content with a flat in Chelsea only 10 years ago. But in a decade's time the curly haired singer has earned millions from recordings, television and concert tours on five continents, a subcontinent or two and not a few islands. Tom is house hunting in Bel Air because he plans to move permanently to the United States. He spends at least six months a year on tour in this country and thinks he should establish a home base here in the colonies. Tom's preference for dollars to pounds sterling should be noted. One also must take into account his distinct resentment of England's confiscatory tax structure.

An ordinary paper clip can tell a lot about metric measures: it weighs about one gram, is approximately a centimeter in width and the diameter of the wire is close to a millimeter, says Mrs. Janice Carberry, family recource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Fifth Of Detroit Cops Laid Off

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit, plagued by the highest crime rate among the nation's most populous cities, had nearly 1,000 fewer police officers today after almost one-fifth of the force was laid off to combat a multimillion-dollar budget deficit.

Almost half of the police assigned to the Wednesday afternoon shift — the final one before the layoffs took effect — were stricken with a so-called "blue flu." Police Chief Phillip Tannian said 357 of the 750 officers on the shift called in sick.

Police officials said the layoffs would not affect emergency services. But ranking officers warned there would be fewer marked police cars on patrol, longer delays on nonemergency calls and slower action on some felony investigations.

"People can expect a police response if something happens, but sometimes it may take longer," said precinct Cmdr. Clifton Casey. "We're not cutting fat, we're cutting the bone now."

However, under a court ruling Wednesday, 224 of the 972 officers laid off will be rehired with federal funds July 15. Prior to today's layoffs, the force stood at 5,200.

Under an order by U.S. District Court Judge Ralph Freeman, women officers were not laid off. The decision was based on the use of federal funds to pay the women's salaries in an affirmative action program.

The officers being laid off turned in their badges, guns, identification cards and handcuffs Wednesday.

Precinct Cmdr. James Bannon said officers scheduled for layoffs seemed numb at the Wednesday morning roll all.

"I would say their attitude is almost like that of people who walked into the gas chambers," Bannon said. "A badge to a police officer is not just a lousy piece of tin. It's part of his corporate body. Dying police officers often ask to be buried with their badge." Based on the FBI Uniform Crime Report for the first quarter of 1976, Detroit had the most crimes per person of any city with more than one million people. In the period, the city had 23.6 serious cri es per thousand population, compared with 18.7 for New York, 20.6 for Los Angeles, 14.7 for Chicago, 9.4 for Philadelphia and 19.2 for Houston.

Teen-Agers Are Topics Of Discussions By AMA

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP)—The youths of America, with their psychosmatic hang-ups, the outside chance of contacting Hodgkins disease, and the emotional problems of acne, were topics of discussion during the 125th annual convention of the American Medical Association.

Dr. John Edlin, director of adolescent medicine at the University of Texas Health Science Center in Dallas, said Wednesday that many teen-agers suffer headaches and stomach pains that "are in their mind and have no organic basis."

During a news conference, Edlin said in most cases when youngsters complain of a pounding head or a sharp pain in the abdomen, they aren't sick physcially, but are looking for attention or a way to escape an unpleasant task.

Don't always blame the kids, he said, because this could be the fault of over-protective parents who ask "How do you feel? You look a little sick."

Or it could be those parents when the father comes home after a rough day in the office and excuses himself from dinner with a bad headache or mother can bypass a job with "a bad case of the cramps," the doctor said.

Such adult reactions easily are passed along to the children.

In families where no mention is made of illness, Edlin said, the child who is attempting to escape restrictions or to get attention, will use other methods, such as running away from home or failing all the school courses.

What parents and doctors should keep an eye on, Edlin said, is the child who misses day after day of school on the complaints of illness, or begins to drop out of all activities.

The scientist said the trouble age is generally up to 14 because the body is changing and "teen-agers, you will notice, live in front of a mirror, looking at those changes.

"They think one day they are Marlon Brando and the next Boris Karloff. This will drive many a parent up the wall. And when the child complains frequently he just can't make it to school, parents should tell him to go. If he or she resists then, it may be the time to consult professional help."

Edlin said the youths of today are far more hep on medical news than in years past and "illness is more acceptable in our current society than in the past. Also, these symptoms of illness, without being sick, are highly contagious among teen-agers."

Dr. Luther Brady, chairman of the depatment of oncology at Hahnemann Medical College of Philadelphia, told newsmen there has been a marked improvement in the survival rate of those suffering from Hodgkins disease, a rather rare form of cancer.

The disease generally hits the younger person, those in the teens and early 20s.

Brady pointed to one ease where a college football player was stricken with the disease, but after treatment returned to school, resumed his athletic career and now is teaching physicial education.

The scientist said, "We know more about the disease now and we are able to treat it."

One of the major advancements, Brady said, has been new equipment that can determine if the disease is centered in one area of the body or is widespread. This can help in pinpointing where radiation treatments should be made and has resulted in the possibility of reaching a 90 per cent survival rate.

Dr. Sidney Hurwitz of the Yale University medical school, said two drug products applied to the skin in combination produces "highly dramatic results in clearing up acne."

The scientist said "No concerned physicians should fail to recognize the deep emotional trauma suffered by patients with acne, nor should they ignore the tremendous benefits, both physicial and emotional, which today's effective acne theapy can evoke."

Hurwitz said he has found a combination of Vitamin A acid used with benzoyl peroxide will aid most patients, even those with the most severe form of acne.

Two More Indicted In Jail Raid

DALLAS (AP) — Two more men have been indicted in connection with the raid on a Mexican jail which freed 14 Americans but one of the leaders of that raid says the government is being unfair in the indictments and setting of bonds.

Arrested Wednesday in Dallas following the return of sealed indictments by a federal grand jury in Del Rio were Sterling Blake Davis Sr. and Billy Jack Blackwell, 19, of Cockrell Hill.

Bonds on both men were set at $25,000.

Two others indicted Tuesday were Donald Fielden, 31, of Dallas and William McCoy Hill, 32, of Dallas. Fielden, in an apparent plea bargain with the Justice Department, pleaded guilty to the four charges against him. He will be sentenced later. Hill pleaded innocent.

Hill and Fielden have admitted carrying out the raid on the Piedras Negras jail, across the Rio Grande from Eagle Pass, in March. They were paid by Davis to free his son, Sterling Blake Davis Jr., serving time for a drug offense.

Hill had his bond lowered from $25,000 to $1,000 by U.S. Magistrate Bailey Rankin of Dallas. He posted 10 per cent, or $100 cash, and was freed.

However, Hill said, the bond on Blackwell, the third man in on the actual raid, is $25,000 in a cash or surety bond and cannot be lowered.

"Why is it they have his bond so high that he can't get out of jail while mine was low enough that I could post it," Hill said.

He claims Blackwell didn't even know what the trip to Piedras Negras was about.

Davis Sr. and Blackwell were charged with conspiracy to export ammunition, exporting ammunition, possession of unregistered firearms and exporting unregistered firearms.

Hill said Blackwell walked across the border into Mexico unarmed.

AMA Takes Softened Stand On TV Violence

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — The House of Delegates, which decides the policies for the American Medical Association, wants an end to violence on television, continued warnings about cigarette smoking, and no legal definitions of death.

After two days of time-consuming debate, the 264 delegates shied away from tough stands on most of the controversial issues, taking instead watered-down versions and promises to study the matters in depth.

On the agenda was a resolution calling for doctors, their families and their patients to boycott programs containing violence and the products and services of any firms which sponsor such TV fare.

This approach appeared destined for defeat, so the California delegation, which introduced the resolution, changed boycott to "actively oppose" and the measure was adopted on a voice vote. It was a weaker version, but one that did criticize TV violence "as a risk factor threatening the health and welfare of young Americans, indeed our future society."

Dr. Richard E. Palmer of Alexandria, Va., president-elect of the AMA, said the non-violence television resolution was "one of the most important ones adopted by the House of Delegates. Children spend more time before television sets than at their school books. We should alert the proper officials to guard against TV programming as much as educators guard the school curricula."

The dignity in death controversy, brought to the nation's attention by the the case of Karen Ann Quinlan of New Jersey, ended with the delegates restating a former stand that there should be no legislative action to define death and agreeing to study the matter a bit more.

The New Jersey delegation sought a more specific resolution that would have given doctors, after consultation with the patient or the family, the final voice in deciding when, and if, life-substaining machines should be unpluged.

Dr. James Todd of Ridgewood, N.J., spokesman for the delegation, said the American public needed a clear cut statement of policy from the nation's physicians and that now was the time for the AMA to take a firm stand.

But, in the final vote, the delegates to this 125th annual AMA convention, approved the same approach that had been taken in the past. The resolution stated that "statutory definition of death is neither desirable nor necessary.'

The dignity in death was brought to the attention of the nation by the Quinlan case, where the young girl had been in a coma for about a year and her parents had sought legal intervention so life-supporting equipment could be removed.

Dr. Palmer told The Associated Press, "death must be defined by doctors. Death must be decided by those qualified and trained in medicine. A lawyer, a state legislature, a judge, no matter how qualifed, can make such a decision."

The AMA said "death should be determined by the clinical judgment of the physician using the necessary available and currently accepted criteria--that permanent and irreversible cessation of function of the brain constitutes one of the various criteria which can be used in the medical diagnosis of death."

Also approved by the delegats was a resolution urging doctors "to continue to act as non-smoking exemplars to the public; advise patients of the health hazards of smoking and discourage smoking by means of public pronuncements and educational programs."

And, the doctors said, efforts should be taken to discourage a visual picture, especially on television, to depict cigarette smoking as the thing to do in the American culture. These shows with the stars smoking could influence teen-agers to pick up the habit, the AMA said.

Major Free To Return To Mexico

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — A Mexican Army major arrested for attempting to smuggle more than 11,000 rounds of pistol ammunition into Mexico will be free to return to Mexico today.

Major Othon Perez Hernandez, 40, pleaded guilty in federal court here Wednesday and received a nine-month suspended jail term.

U.S. District Court Judge Reynaldo Garza said the officer, arrested at the Hidalgo, Tex., international bridge across the Rio Grande June 22, would be free to leave the Cameron County Jail at 1 p.m. today.

Upon pleading guilty, Perez Hernandez told Judge Garza he bought the ammunition in McAllen to take to Mexico to help his troops combat narcotics traffic in Southwest Mexico. The 20-year veteran of the Mexican Army is in charge of Mexican defense forces in Zamora, Michoacan, Mexico.

In handing down the sentence, Judge Garza told the Mexican soldier that the U.S. laws against the smuggling of arms and ammunition "are designed to protect governments like yours."

Letter Bomb Given To FBI

HOUSTON (AP) — A letter bomb delivered to a Houston oilman-industrialist has been turned over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The letter, delivered Tuesday to George R. Brown, retired chief executive officer of Brown & Root Inc., did not explode when opened by his secretary.

FBI officials in Houston and Washington refused to discuss the case.

Americans Most Critical Of Unemployment Data

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Of the many statistical measures of the economy, perhaps the most criticized are the employment figures, against which millions of Americans often measure their own degree of job security.

Some critics claim the unemployment rate is reported higher than it really is, while others say it is understated. Elements of both extremes join to insist that the techniques used are imperfect.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics, which each month reports the usually fractional changes in the jobless rate, concedes it had serious problems with the figures in 1975, particularly with the seasonal adjustment factor.

Jack Bregger, chief of the Division of Employment and Unemployment Analysis, said very significant adjustments of the factor have been made this year, in effect making this year's jobless reports different from last year's.

If the same adjustment factor had been used in 1975, he stated by telephone, it would have reduced the rate in some months, such as in May, and raised it in others, such as June, but only slightly.

While the changes are mainly small, it is this imprecision that troubles some critics who observe that in times of economic indecision, even tiny fluctuations month to month are interpreted, correctly or incorrectly, as signals.

But questions arise also about the raw data. In the same March-June period of 1975 in which the BLS had problems with seasonal adjusting, it had difficulties also with the raw data that remain unsolved.

In that period, one-half million people, more or less, were "lost" in the sense that they appeared in one survey but not in another, conducted at the same time. While variances are common, differences of this magnitude are not.

"The gap exists," said Bregger a year later. "We don't know what caused it; there's no explanation. What would have to happen to correct the gap is a gap in the opposite direction."

Considered even critical by some statisticians is that what they believe to be the more reliable of the two surveys showed employment not improving until June, whereas the more optimistic one, used in the official rate, showed it improving much earlier in the year.

Curiously, a nongovernmental surveyor of employment never saw the early improvement. It said its figures agreed with the less optimistic survey throughout the year, as they had for years before and have since then.

Julius Shiskin, highly regarded commissioner of the bureau, maintains he has long sought to have a panel of experts review and improve procedures.

"I tried to set it up in June (1973) at my confirmation, and I've been working on it since," he said in a telephone interview some months ago. Shiskin said he believes his recommendation was passed on by superiors to President Ford. The panel has not been named.

Discrepancies, meanwhile, reportedly occurred in the two sruveys again this year, prompting New York's Citibank to comment that the January jobless rate didn't fall as deeply as reported.

Charles Killingsworth, university professor of economics and labor and industrial relations at Michigan State University, believes the true jobless rate early in 1975 rose to double-digit levels, although the highest rate reported was 9.1 per cent, revised this year to 8.9 per cent.

Significantly, Killingsworth notes that in November 1975, when so many economic indicators were improving, the number of workers without a job six months or more was 1.7 million, highest in the post-World War II period.

The professor, who is also chairman of the National Manpower Policy Task Force, maintains that if today's unemployment rates were arrived at by methods used prior to 1965, a full point automaticaly would be added.

The AFL-CIO continues to record unemployment in the double digits. In May it reported a rate of 10.1 per cent, based on what it said were 9.6 million out of work or working part time. The official reading was 6,860,000.

But not everyone agreed the figures are understated. While St. Louis challenges the jobless figures as too low, thus denying it certain revenue-sharing funds, Massachusetts claims the figures are inflated, costing it money also.

The latter says the "inflated" rates have driven up its borrowing costs; in support, a study by the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston suggests the jobless rate for New England has been overstated for four years.

Another criticism comes from Albert Cox, former member of the Council of Economic Advisers under President Richard M. Nixon and now chief economist of Lionel D. Edie & Co., consultants.

In the 1930s and even after that, he observes, "unemployment and individual hardship generally went hand in hand. Today, some households have another breadwinner and greatly improved jobless benefits."

Whatever else the various criticisms might add up to, they have in common the merit of pointing up the dangers in the popular usage of one set of statistics that is watched as closely as a patient's fever thermometer, and often considered to be just as accurate.

Testimony Heard On Gas Costs

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Marcel Files of Lone Star Gas Co. says delays in renegotiating contracts resulted in the company's attempt last October to collect on more than $4 million in gas costs dating as far back as 1972.

Lawyers for 10 cities protesting higher charges last October asserted Wednesday before an examiner for the railroad commission that the company cannot collect on retroactive charges.

Files, director of contract administration, was the only witness.

The cities contend that Lone Star can calculate only charges for the immediate past month in setting it gas costs.

The commission allows the company to pass on to residential and commercial customers 85 per cent of any increase in its weighted average cost of gas.

A.R. Peterson, representing Fort Worth, said Lone Star had not substantiated the accuracy of the October statement and was trying to get consumers to absorb its business risk.

Lone Star lawyer Dale Gillette said, however, that renegotiating contracts allows the company to obtain gas at lower costs than if it had to find new suppliers.

Protesting to examiner Paul Hermann were Irving, Dallas, Garland, Richardson, Sulphur Springs, Arlington, Fort Worth, Killeen, Grand Prairie and Murchison.

Hermann said he hoped to have an order prepared by late July to present to the commission.

Group Still Has Faith

GRANNIS, Ark. (AP) — The world didn't end Tuesday, but a spokesman for the 24 persons awaiting its demise says the group still has faith in their mission.

"Everything is in the hands of God, we know He will provide," said Elizabeth Nance Bard. "We are not worried, we are just as sure as ever that He will come. We just know it."

She had said Monday the end of the world could occur the following day because that was the nine-month anniversary of the beginning of the vigil to await the Second Coming of Christ. "From conception to birth is nine months," she noted.

The group also faces an earthly problem, a possible eviction from the house on which Mrs. Bard's brother, Gene Nance, lost legal possession when he stopped paying on a $15,000 loan at the vigil's beginning.

The U.S. attorney's office in Fort Smith has filed court action to have the vigil members evicted by federal marshals, by force if necessary. U.S. Atty. Robert Johnson says both U.S. District Court judges in the western district of Arkansas are out of town until next week, so the eviction order can't be signed.

Mrs. Bard has said she almost hopes the marshals will hurry up and come. "We know God won't let them break us up," she said. "So when they (the marshals) come, maybe that will be the time."

Bullock Raiders Shut Two Firms

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Comptroller Bob Bullock's raiders are still at it, shutting down a San Antonio barber and beauty supply shop Wednesday for failing to remit sales tax collections to the state.

Bullock said a team from his San Antonio northwest field office closed Quality Barber and Beauty Supplies for not making good a $4,501 sales tax delinquency.

He said more raids are planned this week in El Paso, Houston, Deer Park, Temple and Beaumont.

TEXAS AND THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION
...to be shown in museum

Exhibit Pinpoints Role Of Texas In Revolution

The Bicentennial of the American Revolution is bringing the world's attention to the time when the 13 British colonies on the Atlantic coast of North America declared their independence from England.

It would be 69 years before Texas became a state of the Union; so, one may ask, how can Texans feel personally involved in celebrating an event so far removed by time and distance? After all, Texas was only a subprovince of New Spain in 1776.

The Institute of Texan Cultures has produced a major traveling show titled "Texas and the American Revolution" that answers the question. With pictures and story pulled together by colorful, innovative design, it shows that Texas does not have to borrow all of its Bicentennial history from the U.S. East Coast.

The exhibit has been brought to Snyder by the Scurry County Museum and will be displayed during the Pioneer Skills Festival in the coliseum on July 3. It will later be moved to the museum building on the campus of Western Texas College for display throughout the month of July.

What is called the American Revolution was just the first stage of the Revolution of the Americas. Within 50 years after 1776, the greater part of the Western hemisphere was free of European rule and Texas had a stake in three of these revolutions.

The exhibit consists of eight columns, the tallest nearly nine feet high and others over six feet, bearing silk screened words and pictures. It is a result of almost five years of planning, research, design and fabrication done by the research and exhibit staff of the Institute, an educational research arm of the University of Texas at San Antonio.

Other traveling exhibits available for loan from the Institute include "Texas and Her Constitutions," "The Texas Rangers" Their First 150 Years," "The Negro Texans," "Sam Houston Exhibit," "Sam Houston Sampler," "The Japanese Texans, and "The Spanish Texans." The first three exhibits listed have been shown in the Scurry County Museum and another, "Vaquero: Genisis of the Texas Cowboy," has been scheduled for the month of December.

Amalrik Claims Soviets Reneged

MOSCOW (AP) — Dissident historian Andrei Amalrik says the Soviet government has reneged on a promise to allow him to leave the country without paying special taxes, so he's not leaving — yet.

Amalrik, 37, who had expected to fly today to Amsterdam with his wife, Gyusel, told Western correspondents that his departure has been postponed indefinitely because the government had changed its earlier promise to let him take along 18 paintings without paying any special charges.

He said he would pay no taxes and yield none of the other items, which include a 18th century icon, because he objected in principle to restrictions on carrying out his own possessions.

A barometer is used to measure atmospheric pressure.

TO BEGIN PROGRAM—Little Miss Ginger Brooks of Big Spring will begin the patriotic program Saturday night at the Scurry County Coliseum with a tribute to America. The program will climax the Pioneer Skills Festival and Old Settlers reunion. Ginger has won many honors in her six years. She has made television commercials and done guest shots on television. In 1975 she was "Tiny Miss Big Spring," "Little Miss La Petite of Midland," "Miss Dainty Doll of Lubbock," and "Little Miss of Lamesa." She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. T.R. De Shan of Snyder.

DEA Men Transferred

DALLAS (AP) — The two top Dallas officials of the federal Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) have been transferred to other jobs but the agency's national administrator says it is not because of any feud with area police departments.

Administrator Peter Bensinger said regional director Jack Salter and his deputy, Arthur Fluhr, would be leaving Dallas. Fluhr is being moved to to El Paso but Bensinger would not say where Salter is going.

Fluhr has drawn the most criticism from area police departments.

Bensinger ordered an investigation of the local DEA office last month after Highland Park Police Chief Henry Gardner and a Dallas police official, D.L. Burgess, complained to Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., and Rep. Dale Milford, D-Tex.

Bensinger said Salter and Fluhr were not being demoted. Fluhr will be director of the DEA intelligence center at El Paso.

The DEA deals with illegal drug trafficking in the United States.

Gardner complained a Dallas pilot who cooperated with DEA officials inflying marijuana from Mexico to Texas had his cover blown by Fluhr.

Carter Group In LBJ Land

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Jimmy Carter's home folks started their tour of Lyndon Johnson country today with a visit to the LBJ presidential library on the University of Texas campus.

Twenty-six persons from Plains and Americus, Ga., arrived Wednesday on a three-day visit to see what happens to a small town when one of its residents becomes president.

Their destination is Johnson City, 50 miles west of here.

"We want to talk to those who have seen what happened here," said Peter Novak, executive vice president of the Americus Chamber of Commerce. "We know Johnson City was a small city—and still is—and that's pretty much the way the folks back home would like to see it happen there."

"We want to keep the integrity of the community intact," Novak said, "not a town upset or destroyed, but we want to be accommodating to the travelers and tourists who would probably show up" if Carter is elected president.

The group plans to eat a barbecue lunch in Johnson City and visit several Johnsonian attractions, including his boyhood home.

Late Thursday the delegation will go to Fredericksburg, 85 miles west of Austin, which was settled by German immigrants in pre-Civil War days. They will return to Wimberly to spend the night.

Friday morning the Georgians will be guests of Mrs. Lady Bird Johnson at the LBJ Ranch, between Johnson City and Fredericksburg.

They return to Georgia Friday afternoon.

The trip was planned to include members of the Plains and Americus, Ga., city councils, the Sumter County commissioners court, the chamber of commerce and a few residents and newsmen from the area.

Their host for the trip was Texas Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, who is Carter's state campaign chairman.

Mississippi became the 20th state Dec. 10, 1817.

More Deadly Mail Is Threatened

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — A strange group that claims credit for sending letter bombs to 18 corporations earlier this month says there may be more deadly mail.

A letter to the Shreveport Journal made no threat against the newspaper but said it was giving corporations "one last chance to make up their minds to pay before the fireworks start in earnest."

FBI agents believe the letter was an authentic communiction from the group known as B.A. Fox and Associates, the Journal reported Wednesday.

The name "B.A. Fox" or "Foxworth" was used on letters last fall to 200 business firms and executives demanding payments.

No payments were made, and the group said it then mailed letter bombs to 18 corporations June 14. Only one exploded, injuring four employes of Merrill Lynch in New York.

Several of the extortion letters and bombs had been mailed in Shreveport, the FBI said. Others were postmarked in nearby Texarkana and Atlanta, Tex.

The Journal's letter came in a plain white envelope, postmarked Las Vegas, Nev. It was two pages, typewritten and single-spaced.

"It is obvious that these companies have gone after our money any way they can get it, and in all fairness, we intend to use the same standard in getting theirs," the letter said.

"We assume the letter bombs served notice that we have no objection to blowing off a few corporate hands (the ones they steal with, preferably)."

The letter said, "Our burglary crew has been doing rather well with their practice, and we may use them to make entry into the residences of some corporate execs, or their offices, for the purpose not of taking anything but of (booby trapping) a few items.

"When the exec or a member of the family opens a desk drawer, or a refrigerator door or a closet door, someone enters hell."

The letter named no corporations specifically.

$1,776 Check Has Special Meaning

MIAMI (AP) — Dade County Judge Dominic L. Koo opened his mail and found his July paycheck was a Bicentennial note for $1,776.

"It has a very special meaning for me," said Koo, a naturalized U.S. citizen.

Koo, 49, moved to the United States from Shanghai in 1948 and chose to stay after Communists won control of the Chinese mainland in 1949.

Koo said a state computer in Tallahassee prints his monthly paycheck after withholding taxes, pension contributions and other fees.

"My check varies from month to month," he said, "but somehow I hit the jackpot for July. I've never had a check for $1,776 before."

Koo said he intends to have a photograph made of the check he received Wednesday and will keep it as a Bicentennial memento.

"Of course, I'll spend it, too," he said about the check.

The average number of coal mine workers in the United States hit a high of nearly 863,000 in 1923 while the low was 133,000 in 1969, according to the Census Bureau's "Historical Statistics of the United States." Man-hours worked went from 1.5 billion in 1913 to 234 million in 1968.

PLANNING NATIONAL FINALS RODEO—Local directors of the National Finals American Junior Rodeo Association (NJRA) Rodeo are busy planning the annual event which will take place Aug. 10-14 in the Scurry County Coliseum, under sponsorship of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce. There are 607 members in the AJRA (19 years old and under) and those qualifying for the finals here will compete for national championships. There will be 36 championship saddles, 30 championship trophy buckles and 30 AJRA jackets awarded. Local directors shown are, top row, from left, John Ward, Sonny Harrell, Roy Beaver and Dr. Robert Taylor; seated, Mickey Nunley, Mrs. Sid Johnson and Ralph Miller. Other members not pictures are Sid Johnson and Dubb Tubb.

Ford Opens Centennial Time Capsule Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twentieth-century Americans will get their first look at some 19th-century photographs of two presidents and portraits of two others when President Ford opens a Centennial time capsule.

The cast iron safe being opened today for the first time since it was sealed in 1879 also contains autographs of thousands of prominent Americans of the day, a silver Tiffany inkstand and a pen dedicated to the era's favorite American poet, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

The inner glass doors of the safe are being unsealed in a ceremony at the Capitol's Statuary Hall, where the safe was closed and locked in an 1879 ceremony attended by President Rutherford B. Hayes, his cabinet and members of Congress.

Mrs. Charles F. Diehm, a New York publisher and collector of the memorabilia of a generation of Americans who celebrated the nation's 100th birthday in 1876, had asked that the safe be opened this July Fourth by the nation's chief executive. Because of the press of other Bicentennial events, however, it is being opened three days early.

The safe was exhibited at the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia, where visitors were asked to autograph the pages of large leather albums to be stored for posterity.

When the exposition closed, Mrs. Diehm toured the country to obtain photographs and signatures of leading figures in politics, business and religion as well as orators and poets. She then put the articles in a Centennial safe and persuaded Congress to store it untouched for 10 decades.

The safe contains a silver Tiffany inkstand used by those who signed the album and the pen, dedicated to Longfellow, used by many signers of the book.

It also contains portraits of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln.

In addition, it contains a photograph of President Ulysses S. Grant who was in the White House in 1876, and a photograph of Hayes, whose first year as president began in 1877, the first year of the nation's second century.

The thick iron outer doors of the safe ere opened last January during ceremonies marking the beginning of the Bicentenrial Congress. Some of the contents of the safe have been visible through the locked inner glass doors of the vault.

One book in the safe gives some idea about the growth of the federal government in the past century.

It contains the names of the 80,000 government employes on the payroll in 1876. There are now more than 2.8 million civilian federal employes.

Fog Delays Tall Ships Departure

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — A dense fog postponed for several hours today's departure of the international tall ships' fleet for a parade of sails past the skyscrapers of New York to mark the nation's 200th Fourth of July.

The tall ships and their accompanying armada were scheduled to sail past the colonial forts of Newport Harbor about 8 a.m. EDT. However, the Coast Guard said the start would not come until about noon.

A Coast Guard spokesman said of the postponement: "The reason is that we have a heavy fog reducing visibility to 100 yards at most."

The National Weather Service said the fog was expected to lift by midmorning.

Heading the fleet is the American bark Eagle, a stately 295-foot ship used to train Coast Guard cadets. The Soviet Union has two huge square-riggers in the procession. In all, some 30 countries are represented.

Once in New York, these ships and several dozen more will be reviewed by a modern fleet of 57 naval vessels, and Capt. James L. Fleishell, captain of the port of New York, said Wednesday that some 20,000 spectator boats are expected to watch.

"We've never had an operation this large, and we're not sure what's going to happen," Eugene Kenyon, chief of tall ships operations here, told a briefing of captains Wednesday. He suggested vessels stay 600 yards apart, and he added: "I think you might be more comfortable at 1,000 yards."

The Eagle is the largest of four American square-riggers in the fleet, which includes 17 classic windjammers taking an ocean route around Long Island because their masts are too tall to pass under the Brooklyn Bridge. The Eagle's, for example, tower some 150 feet above sea level.

Like the Eagle, most of the tall ships — the phrase is from a poem by John Masefield lauding the seagoing life — have crews of several hundred and are used to train naval or merchant marine cadets.

Welcome To Walls

Americans are preparing for a "glorious fourth" to celebrate the country's 200th birthday, and in Snyder the celebration will be even more enjoyable as the result of developments the past week.

The report that Walls Industries, Inc., begin operation of a sewing plant here is good and timely news. Indicati'ns are that the best possible transition will take place at the plant now operated by Aileen, Inc., which announced recently that it planned to close its plant here on July 30.

Walls is a Texas company that has made a name for itself and is still growing. Moreover, it will come to Snyder in a climate of goodwill because Aileen is not leaving under unpleasant circumstances. Its management made a major decision which local leaders understood, and its community relations during its operations here have been top flight.

Now that negotiations between Aileen and Walls have been firmed up, the community can look forward to a continued pleasant relationship with the sewing plant in Northeast Snyder and say "Welcome to Walls."

Mystery Of $2 Bill

A minor mystery of the day is whatever happened to all those $2 bills—225 million of them—the Treasury Department put into circulation on "Twosday", April 13.

A lot of people had them postmarked and framed as collector's items. Others are evidently hoarding bundles of them in the expectation that they may be discontinued, as they were in 1965, and someday be worth more than their face value.

Major reason for the scarcity of the $2 bill, however, seems to be a general lack of public acceptance now that the novelty has worn off. Whether it's due to superstition or the fact that they can be confused with other bills, many people don't like them. According to reports from banks around the country, merchants don't like them either and are returning them as soon as they get them.

Nevertheless, the Treasury intends to persist and plans to print one $2 for every four $1 bills during the next several years because of the savings it can realize in printing costs. It will have more than 400 million $2 bills in circulation by the end of June and double that number by 1977.

On paper, that is.

"I STILL can't believe he's going to eat the whole thing!"

Scientists Hope To See 'Nothing' In Mars Photos

By RICHARD SALTUS
Associated Press Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Scientists eagerly awaited a new batch of Mars photos — and hoped what they see is nothing — before deciding today on a landing site for the Viking 1 unmanned laboratory.

"Plenty of nothing" is what project manager Jim Martin said he'd like to see in the newest photos of previously unexamined terrain.

Nothing, that is, that would endanger a landing. The region under study is not far from the place where Viking had been scheduled to land July 4, until rough and knobby terrain was discovered.

The newest photos were to be put alongside others already received to give a complete picture of the so-called Northwest site. On the basis of these, project officials were to decide today whether to shift the Viking's orbit slightly for a closer look at the Northwest site, and probably land there, or whether to start heading for an alternative site, called Tritonis Lacus, halfway around the planet.

Today's decision would not be a definite commitment, said Martin, but would be a "plan" toward a particular site.

It appeared that the Northwest site was the most likely to be chosen. A landing there would come on July 22 at the earliest.

"If the pictures continue to show more area like this, I think we've got ourselves a safe — but dull — landing site," said one scientist.

He meant dull in the sense that Northwest territory appears flat, nearly featureless except for several scattered craters. Scientists believe it once was a shallow basin, perhaps holding water millions or billions of years ago. It is now a dry flatland, probably covered with fine Martian sand that is shifted from time to time by the high winds of the planet.

If the Viking lander is directed to any site except the original one, its computer must be fed with new commands, and Martin said that process would take about two weeks.

The lander carries a number of experiments, including an arm that will scoop up a clawful of Martian soil and study it for signs of life. Even if communications with earth were lost, it would continue to carry out its tasks under commands of the computer.

Baylor Accepts Premium

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The State Insurance Board has approved a special medical malpractice premium for Baylor Medical College residents and interns who work in Houston teaching hospitals.

The doctors had threatened a work stoppage if their malpractice coverage were allowed to expire without issuance of a new policy.

Baylor officials said they would reluctantly accept the premium, which is half that charged Harris County doctors by the state medical malpractice insurance pool but twice what they wanted to pay.

The pool, called the Joint Underwriting Association, originally had proposed a $2.7 million premium, at the same rates it charges other Houston doctors.

The JUA complied with the insurance board's wishes Wednesday by filing a rate of $1.3 million for the 620 residents and interns.

The medical men will be rated individually according to their specialties but the premiums will be paid by the school and the hospitals.

Baylor's present coverage expires today, and the school's dean of student affairs said it had been unable to find new coverage on the private market at any price. Its insurance carrier, Employers of Wausau, said it was getting out of the malpractice business.

The JUA was set up by the legislature and the board to provide coverage for doctors and hospitals who cannot obtain it from private companies. It spreads the risk of writing the policies among the approximately 400 companies selling any form of liability coverage in Texas.

FURTHER HEARING SET

Sadler Loses Bid To Reverse Loss

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Jerry Sadler has lost the big round in his effort to undo Jon Newton's victory over him for the railroad commission in the June 5 Democratic runoff primary.

But State District Court Judge Herman Jones set a further hearing for the former land commissioner on July 9.

Sadler claims that Newton, state representative from Beeville, is ineligible for the November general election ballot.

"The court is convinced that defendant Newton is not an ineligible candidate," Jones said in denying Sadler's request for a temporary injunction to halt state procedures to certify Newton for the general election ballot.

Sadler's lawyer, a cousin who also is named Jerry Sadler, came to court unprepared to argue all his issues, so Jones scheduled the July hearing on the merits of the case.

Final certification of the Democratic nominee for railroad commissioner won't come until the party's state convention in September.

Sadler contended Newton could not legally take office if elected because he had voted for the 1976-77 general appropriation bill that gave railroad commissioners—and all other state employes—a pay raise.

A constitutional provision bans legislators from holding another state office during the term for which they were elected if they had created the post or increased its pay. But a 1968 constitutional change said the fact that the term for one job—such as railroad commissioner—starts Jan. 1 while a legislative term expires a few days later would be considered "de minimis."

"De minimis" is legal jargon for too trivial for the courts to trouble with.

"There are no trifling constitutional issues," protested lawyer Sadler. . . "The doctrine of de minimis doesn't apply to constitutional issues."

Newton's lawyer, Shannon Ratliff of Austin, said the logical conclusion of Sadler's argument would be "massive disqualification of every sitting member of the legislature from higher office without taking a two to four-year vacation."

Heart Available Soon

DALLAS (AP) — Dr. Michael DeBakey says researchers are closing in on cures for many heart diseases. And he says an artificial heart could be available by the turn of the century.

At the convention of the American Medical Association Tuesday, DeBakey said, "The time will come when we find the cause of heart attacks and then we will find the ways to prevent them. We can find ways to cure or relieve 85 to 90 per cent of those with heart disease.'" DeBakey, a pioneer in cardiovascular research and surgery, said he had stopped heart transplants because "our data shows they are not worthwhile."

Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. I work in a corporation public relations department and about once a week, as part of my job, I must speak to area civic or business groups on developments in my company or its industry. A night's round trip can sometimes total nearly 100 miles. Since the company does not reimburse me for my car expenses for these trips, can I deduct them from my income tax?

A. Your automobile expenses to and from your speaking engagements and meetings can be deducted if they are considered a necessary and ordinary part of your job.

You may choose to compute the actual operating expenses, such as gas, oil, parking and tolls, or you may use the standard mileage rate of 15 cents per mile for the first 15,000 miles of business use and 10 cents for each additional mile. Parking fees and tolls are deductible in addition to the standard mileage rate.

Whichever method you choose, be sure to keep records which establish the actual operating expenses you incur or the actual business miles you drive. The records should include your destination and the reasons for the travel.

You may deduct these expenses on line 39 of Form 1040. For more information, see IRS Publication 463, Travel, Entertainment and Gift Expenses, available at local IRS offices.

Q. Now that I have filed my income tax returns, what records should I keep to help me in case my return is audited?

A. As a general guideline, you must keep any records for as long as their contents may be material in administering any Internal Revenue law.

Records which support an item of income or a deduction on a return should be kept until the statute of limitations for that return expires. Usually, this is three years from the date the return is filed or two years from the date the tax is paid, whichever is later. However, it may be a good idea to keep these records a few years longer, since there are circumstances where the IRS can look into your tax returns and assess back taxes beyond this time limit. Copies of tax returns you filed should be included with these records. These old returns may be helpful when filling out new ones.

Property records, home improvement records, etc. should be kept as long as they are material in determining the tax basis (generally, the property's original cost plus the cost of improvements). You will need to determine the tax basis if you dispose of the property, claim a casualty loss or convert it to business or rental use.

Q. I am turning my hobby, carpentry, into a part-time business by advertising for week-end home improvement and light carpentry work. Must I pay Social Security taxes on the money I earn from this?

A. Most self-employed persons, whether full or part-time, must pay self-employment tax on all or part of their income to help finance Social Security benefits. Even if you work only part-time, you must file an income tax return and pay a self-employment tax if you have net self-employment earnings of at least $400. Compute your self-employment tax on Schedule SE of Form 1040.

Rockefeller Subpoenaed

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller has been subpoenaed to appear here July 28 in a $1-million lawsuit stemming from the 1971 Attica prison rebellion.

A subpoena issued Wednesday directs Rockefeller to give a sworn statement in U.S. District Court for use in a suit filed by Johnnie Barnes of Brooklyn.

Barnes is the father of the late John Barnes, a 23-year-old inmate who was shot dead by state police in the Sept. 13, 1971, retaking of the prison. The suit, originally filed in 1974, contends that "the use of massive and unnecessary force" violated the victim's constitutional rights. Of the 43 men who died during the five-day rebellion, 39 were killed by police during the final assault.

The case was dismissed by Judge John T. Curtin last December because the plaintiffs failed to substantiate charges against Rockefeller and three other former state officials. Rockefeller was governor of New York when the incident occurred.

Curtin permitted Barnes' lawyer to file an amended complaint in January. Since then, the judge has denied a number of defense motions to dismiss the action.

Razo Assessed 10-Year Term

Rosalio Medrano Razo, found guilty of voluntary manslaughter in the April 10 stabbing death of Jesus Rivera, has been assessed an 11 year sentence in the Texas Department of Corrections in Huntsville. The sentence was agreed on by a jury and Razo awaits final sentencing by Judge Wayland G. Holt on July 12.

The 7-man, 5-woman jury deliberated about two hours before delivering the voluntary manslaughter verdict at 6 p.m. Tuesday. Deliberation on the sentence began Wednesday morning and stretched well into Wednesday afternoon.

Razo, 36, was charged with the April 10 slaying of Jesus Rivera, 28, who, after having been stabbed, drove his car off the Deep Creek bridge at Twenty-fifth Street and Avenue T.

Snyder Student On Honor List

STEPHENVILLE—Vicki D. Blankenship, a Tarleton State University student from Snyder, has been named to the "B" honor roll and the distinguished student list for the spring semester of 1976.

To make the "B" honor roll, a student must carry at least 12 semester hours and have no grade below "B", and a distinguished student must post a semester grad point average of at least 3.25 on Tarleton's 4.0 system. Miss Blankenship is a chemistry major.

Snyderite Has A Perfect GPA

PLAINVIEW—Debra Gail Rogers, daughter of M.L. Rogers, 2113 Forty-second Street, Snyder, has been named to the dean's honor roll at Wayland Baptist College for the spring semester.

A senior law enforcement major and a 1974 graduate of Western Texas College, Miss Rogers earned a perfect 4.0 grade point average for the semester.

Bank Closed

CARRIZO SPRING, Tex.(AP) — The State Banking Commission had to close the Citizens State Bank of Carrizo Springs because it had been mismanaged, the banking commissioner said.

Commissioner Robert E. Stewart said Wednesday that "any kind of problem you can think of" forced the closing.

The commission ordered the bank closed Monday. However, State District Court Judge E. James Kazen of Laredo reopened it for a few hours. Stewart then convinced the judge to amend the order and keep the bank closed pending a July 7 hearing.

"The judge merely prevented us from liquidating the bank then," Stewart said explaining that that was the commission's intention.

The bank, with assets of about $13 million, is owned by Enrique Salinas Gonzalez of Eagle Pass.

Stewart said the bank was ordered closed following an investigation that turned up loan losses and "differences that could not be reconciled."

Stewart said the judge's order may have caused a delay in the processing of deposits insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Tell Tightwad to Pay Up

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc

DEAR ABBY: For the past three months, I've been dating a guy I'll call Brad. He's 27 and I'm 24.

Brad has a good business, so I know he's not hurting financially. In fact, he's very well off.

Well, he is the tightest man I've ever known. Abby, he's never taken me to a really nice restaurant. It's always a quick hamburger somewhere, and his idea of an entertaining evening is going to one of his friends' apartments and watching TV.

He took me to an opera once only because someone gave him some tickets. I work and am not exactly loaded, but I find myself leaving tips at the diner, paying for parking and "lending" him a dollar or two—which he never pays back.

If I ask him to pick up a pack of cigarettes for me, he'll hand them to me and say, "Gee, cigarettes have sure gone up—they're 65 cents a pack." (Translation: "You owe me, so pay up.")

I enjoy his company, but his stinginess irritates me. Should I continue seeing him, hoping he'll change, mention my feelings or just call it quits?

MS. F. IN N.J.

DEAR MS. F.: Mention your feelings and don't pull any punches! If he cares about you, he'll make an effort to change his ways. If he doesn't—who needs him?

DEAR ABBY: I am a 19-year-old single girl who is engaged to be married.

I decided to go on the birth control pill, so I got a prescription from my doctor and had it filled at the drug store near the place I work.

A few months later, I found out that the lady who works at the drug store where I got my pills had told several people (including my fiance's relatives) that I was on the Pill!

Do you think it would do any good to report this to the manager of the drug store? I am plenty ticked off about this.

Don't tell me to confront the employee with this because she would just deny it.

TICKED OFF

DEAR TICKED: Report the employee to the manager. She had no business disclosing YOUR business.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 21-year-old girl with a very complicated problem. The "Mom" and "Pop" who raised me are really my grandparents. My real mother, whom I was taught to call "Sis," wasn't married when I was born so her parents raised me as their child.

When I was three, "Sis" (my real mother) married my real father who was 26 years older than "Sis" and a family man. (I called him "Bruz.") Sis had gone to work for him right out of secretarial school. It took Bruz three years to get a divorce and marry Sis.

Soon after they were married, they adopted a new-born baby girl because Sis wasn't able to have children. They told everybody this child was their own. She is nearly 18 now and doesn't know she's adopted. Me, their very own blood child, they don't even claim!

That's not all. Two months ago Bruz dropped dead of a heart attack. He was worth a lot of money. I got nothing, but his adopted daughter is sitting pretty with a big trust fund. This is all true. My aunt told me.

Don't you think I'm entitled to something? And how can I get it? Both my grandparents are in a rest home now, completely off their rockers.

FEELS CHEATED

DEAR FEELS: I am not qualified to give legal advice, which is what you need. Engage a lawyer. You could have a good case.

Viking Signal Helping To Dedicate Museum

By DONALD SANDERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the help of a signal from the Viking 1 spacecraft orbiting Mars more than 200 million miles away, the new National Air and Space Museum is being dedicated as a Bicentennial addition to the Capitol Mall.

The museum, with 10 acres of exhibit space, contains imaginative displays and crafts tracing the history of flight. It is expected to become one of the most popular tourist sites in Washington.

"Confined within these walls and windows are the products of American men and women whose imagination and determination could not be confined," President Ford said in remarks prepared for today's ceremony.

Surrounded by symbols of flight, Ford said the hallmark of the American adventure has been "a willingness — even an eagerness — to reach for the unknown."

The Viking signal, which takes 18 minutes to travel to earth, will activate a mechanical arm for the ribbon-cutting ceremony. A similar arm is installed on the Viking to scoop up samples of Martian soil.

The Viking had been scheduled to land on Mars on July 4, coinciding with the nation's Bicentennial celebration, but that was delayed because of difficulties in finding a nonhazardous landing site.

Museum director Michael Collins, a former astronaut, expects an average of 50,000 visitors to the new facility daily.

They will not feel jammed in. The glass and marble structure is two blocks long, a block wide, with an expansive central corridor and has glass-fronted bays soaring to more than 82 feet, from which are suspended some of the most historic aircraft.

A central exhibit bay, called Milestones of Flight, contains the Wright Brothers' Kitty Hawk flyer suspended over the Apollo 11 command module which Collins piloted while Neal Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin became the first men to walk on the moon.

In addition, there is a moon rock which vistors may touch; Charles A. Lindbergh's Spirit of St. Louis; the Bell XI, which was the first aircraft to exceed the speed of sound; and the craft in which John Glenn became the first American to orbit the earth.

Elsewhere on the museum's two floors are displays of commercial aircraft, ballooning, the technology of flight, and military planes, including German, Italian, and Japanese craft.

'Battlefield' Trip

NEW YORK (AP) — A field trip to the battlefields of the Army of the Potomac July 23-26 will highlight a graduate seminar offered by The Brooklyn Center of Long Island University.

Students will visit Gettysburg, Antietam, Harpers Ferry, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, the Wilderness, Spotsylvania, the Seven Days, and Petersburg.

Little People Receive "Short End" Of Things

By EDDIE ADAMS
Photographer
For The Associated Press

Attila the Hun was a dwarf.

Napoleon and two presidents of the United States, John Quincy Adams and Martin Van Buren, were shorter than normal.

No one knows how many dwarfs and midgets there are in the United States today — estimates run as high as 100,000 people under 4 feet 10. More than 500,000 Americans are under five feet.

Legend and myth called small people elves, gnomes, leprechauns, goblins and pixies. They have existed for as long as the human race, yet the world knows little about them.

Midgets and dwarfs live in every country and are born into every race. They are doctors, lawyers, nurses, schoolteachers, firemen, engineers and truck drivers. They are people; just smaller than most, but people like you and me.

School kids laugh, adults point and stare. Dr. Hugo Brodesky, a psychiatrist in Jacksonville, Fla., who stands 4 feet 7, says: "If you are under five feet, let's face it, you are different. Suppose you see all the trees around you with green leaves and one had blue leaves. Wouldn't you be surprised or taken back a little?"

The average American is 5 feet 10.

A malfunctioning pituitary gland produces a midget — a miniature carbon copy of an average-size person, but with a squeaky voice. The dwarf, on the other hand, is abnormally proportioned, with normal head, trunk and voice, but short arms and legs. The condition results from bone disease, or a malfunctioning thyroid gland, or a wayward gene that stunts skeletal growth and cartilage development.

When midgets mate, they almost always produce a child of normal size. The baby of two dwarfs can be either a dwarf or normal.

Frank and Emma Lentini of Auburn, N.Y., are dwarfs, just over four feet tall. Their son is 5 feet 10. Mrs. Terry De Lair, a social worker in Waterloo, N.Y., says: "I am only four feet tall and my daughter Paula at birth was five pounds, 4 ounces and 18¼ inches in length, almost half my size."

Dr. Charles Scott Jr., director of the University of Texas Medical Genetics Clinic and chairman of the Medical Advisory Board of the Little People of America, explains that achondroplasia, a cartilage and bone condition, produces the most common type of dwarf. Achondroplasia strikes randomly once in every 40,000 births. There is no cure for achondroplasia, but smallness resulting from thyroid or pituitary conditions can be treated, in some cases by injections that induce growth.

Most people don't realize their condition until they are eight or nine, when their school chums pass them by in height. In many cases, that's when an inferiority complex begins, driving many little people to be well-educated and competitive, to outdo those of normal size. Ancient history tells us that three kings were midgets.

A common outcry of little people is that they suffer job discrimination more than other minority groups, although their intellectual development is unaffected by their physical condition.

Joe Martin, principal of a New Jersey elementary school, says of Jean Davis, a 4 foot 4 kindergarten teacher: "Jean is six feet tall in my book. She relates to the children. They love her. I love her. I need more like her."

Pat Bilon is a nightclub bouncer (he checks IDs at the door) in Youngstown, Ohio, although he's only 2 foot 10 — one inch taller than Michu of Ringling Bros. circus fame. He had thought of himself as three feet tall, until he took a driver's license test. "They measured my height and said I was 2 foot 10. We had some fight going on until I was proven wrong."

David Urbina Urbina, a representative in the Puerto Rican legislature, says that "being 4 feet 10 tall has its advantages. People are impressed when they see such a small man with a strong resonant voice. They see it as an act of courage ...

"I've used my height in politics ... It motivates political slogans like 'the little giant' or 'the David' from David and Goliath that put me in the position of a hero."

Lee Kitchens of Richardson, Tex., just over three feet, is the vice president of Texas Instruments and pilot of his own aircraft.

Little people almost always are defensive and say they don't have problems. Yet the homes they live in and their daily routines can be difficult to cope with. Opening doors or a dresser drawer, shopping for groceries, crossing a street, making phone calls from a telephone booth, purchasing clothes. "Thank goodness children's clothes are now styled like adults," comments a little person.

Little people say that sexual relations with normal people aren't really a problem; the normal person's curiosity takes over and quite often a mixed marriage takes place. As one four-footer said: "I have an advantage over many men. Most dance cheek to cheek, I dance breast to cheek."

In 1957, 20 little people led by Hollywood actor Billy Barty met in Reno, Nev., to form the Little People of America. The only requirements for membership are to be 4 foot 10 or less and to "think big," the organization's motto.

Louisiana Grabs Tidelands Money

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Louisiana has grabbed another $4.8 million from the federal government in a tidelands case, Atty. Gen. William Guste said Wednesday.

With the newest addition, the state now has recovered a total of $140.8 million in the continuing case over mineral-rich offshore tracts. And Guste said the state is continuing to press claims for as much as another $100 million.

In a related development, Guste said a recent Supreme Court ruling would have enabled the state treasurer to use some of the tidelands money for paying off bonds due in the next fiscal year if she had acted by Wednesday.

"However, as of tomorrow as we begin a new fiscal year, the treasurer may expend the funds only to retire a bonded indebtedness coming due in fiscal year 1977-78 or thereafter," he said in a statement issued a few hours after being questioned on the ruling at a news conference.

Guste's original oral response at the news conference paralleled his later written statement. However, after further questioning he said he wanted to doublecheck the Supreme Court ruling before making a definitive statement.

As a practical matter, the discussion over whether the tidelands money could be used to pay off bonds only one year in advance has little significance unless State Treasurer Mary Evelyn Parker changes her mind.

A spokesman for Mrs. Parker said later she has made it clear she intends to use the tidelands money solely for paying off bonds well in advance of their maturity in order to realize the greatest saving to the state.

The state Supreme Court decision gave the treasurer sole authority to determine which bonds would be retired first.

Credentials Session Marked By Unity

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time in recent history, there apparently will be no challenges to the credentials of delegates attending the Democratic National Convention.

At the conclusion of a three-day Credentials Committee session marked by unity and an eagerness to compromise, 50 challenges from 22 states were reconciled without any indication of appeals to the full convention in New York City July 12.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., the committee chairman, said this was "certainly the first time in modern history that no challenges have gone to the convention."

He said the harmony was partly because of the consolidation of most Democrats behind the candidacy of Jimmy Carter. But party rules that have been refined over 12 years, including some that saw the most bitter intraparty struggles focused on those rules, also were to be credited, Cranston said.

Carter's representative at the committee sessions, Robert Firth, said his campaign was "very happy with the results. No minority reports are going to the convention. This is the first time since 1960 that there has not been a challenge to the Mississippi delegaton."

Tank Trucks Haul Water

By JOHN C. EAGAN
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Tank trucks that usually haul milk and wine are being rounded up to bring water to 11 drought-parched coastal communities north of San Francisco.

Some communities have already given up on simple measures such as bans on washing cars and watering lawns. In the picturesque town of Bolinas, for example, officials met recently to discuss whether to shut off water to commercial establishments on weekends — in effect closing the town to tourists.

"The sitation is getting ugly," said attorney Paul Kayfetz. "People living in the community are becoming resentful of outside people using our beaches and putting us in a situation where we have no water for our own use."

In San Mateo County to the south, which has been declared a federal disaster area, one local official suggested that two — or more — persons ought to bathe together to conserve the dwindling water supply.

Still farther south, such famous Monterey Peninsula golf courses as Pebble Beach, Spyglass Hill and Cypress Point have had their water use reduced by 20 per cent.

The measures are in response to the driest "rainy season" in 127 years of recorded Northern California weather history. Wednesday marked the official end of the season, during which San Francisco received 7.16 inches of rain — compared with a normal 19.53.

At its worst, the dry spell is contributing to ferocious forest fires like one that consumed nearly 70,000 acres near Red Bluff, 160 miles northeast of here. But the impact is being felt increasingly by coastal communities where spring-fed water systems are all but dry.

Normally, most of California gets rain only during the fall, winter and early spring. Marin County had a record low 20.17 inches, less than half the normal amount, and 90 miles to the east, Sacramento received 6.59 inches, compared with a normal 17.22.

More Crops Insured

WASHINGTON (AP)— Farmers are using a record amount of federal crop insurance this year, according to Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz.

An estimated 22 million acres of crops have been insured against losses from natural hazards for a value of about $2 billion, up 25 per cent from 1975 coverage, Butz said Tuesday. The insurance involves crops in 1,467 counties in 39 states, he said in a statement.

Federal crop insurance is available on 24 varieties of crops and operates "like any other insurance plan, with farmers paying yearly premiums based on local crop production and loss history," Butz said. Payments for losses are paid from funds accrued from premium payments.

Because Jupiter bulges at the equator, according to National Geographic, a 150-pound man standing there would weigh 350 pounds but 425 pounds at either pole.

Three Interesting Levels

HOME DESIGN
By Larry Farnsworth

Just looking at the exterior of this attractive split level house gives an accurate impression of distinctive character and promises an interior loaded with good living features. Note the alpine chalet atmosphere, subtly created by clever trim and detail, making this house truly stand out from the crowd.

There is uniquely designed central entry and an open living room-dining area which, in turn is extended both by the view through sliding glass doors at the back and by the kitchen area's open planning. This latter room has very good cabinet and counter areas and an extra large amount of open floor space. It is separated from the dining area by a convenient counter.

The balance of the ground floor area is occupied by a double carport backed by a large outside storage room.

On the upper level, reached by stairs from the entry area are three very nice bedrooms and two baths. Note that the master bedroom has two full size closets, and closet space is also most ample in the other two rooms.

The lower level floor plan is optional and the design may, if desired, be ordered instead with a plain basement plan. However, for any homeowner with present or future space needs, this design's finished basement floor plan is an exceptionally fine one.

Note its beautifully large family room and the outstanding fireplace it provides with a fabulous raised hearth stretching all the way across one end. There is also a real bar complete with shelf and storage closet behind it. At the back of this section of the house is a fourth bedroom which obviously can be used for many other purposes as well. A bath and a large utility room complete this level.

High on livability, character and charm, this design makes an excellent home.

Dr. Lamb

Doctor's advice ends problems

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—How can I ever thank you enough? For more years than I care to remember I had Crohn's disease or regional enteritis. Four years ago I had emergency surgery. My intestines blew up and exploded. The doctor said, "Sorry, right now nothing will kill the bug." I was weak, very thin. I was so tired that walking down the stairs was a real project. I had to be in bed three out of five days. Drinking half and half to build myself up, vitamins, ice cream, cheese galore. I'd get so sick I wished I'd die.

The doctor gave me tranquilizers for my intestines. No soap. As I lay in bed very ill near Christmastime about two years ago I read an article you wrote about how milk and gluten affects intestines. My husband and I decided, "Oh, well, give it the old college try." I did and almost immediately I began to feel better.

I remain very strict. I only use non dairy milk, no ice cream, no cheese. I take calcium pills. I've got so much energy now. At times I have spells, but I suppose that is to be expected. Thank you for your help and article.

The only thing I dislike is my weight. Now I'm not 122 but 150 pounds. Food now looks appetizing and delicious. Before I couldn't even look at it. I'd force fattening food down and spend hours in the bathroom or in bed.

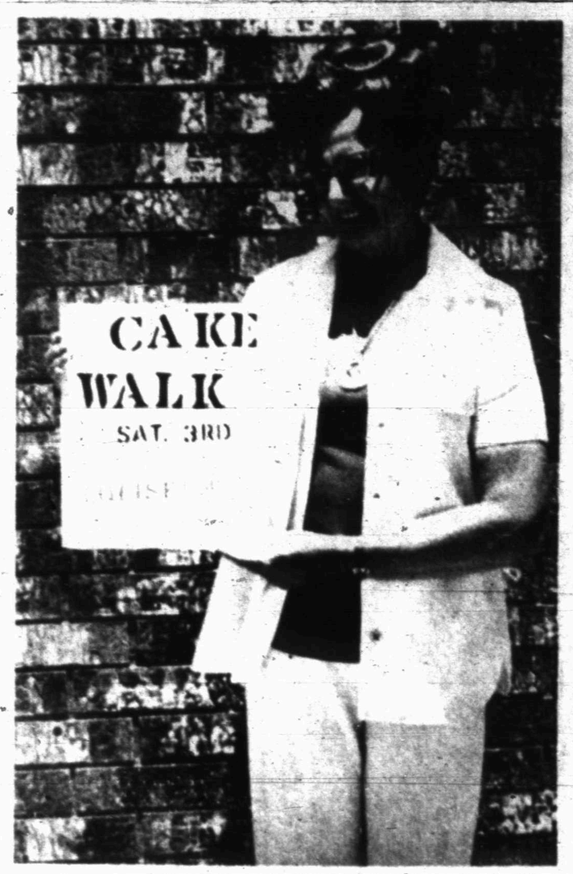
I'm busy, my husband is happy with my health and also my children. I enjoy everything and haven't enough hours to clean, cook, shop and spend time with my lovely family.

DEAR READER—Thank you for your wonderful letter and I am so pleased that you feel better. Crohn's disease is an inflammation of the region of the intestine where the small intestine joins the colon. It may also affect adjoining areas of the intestine. It is true that many people with this problem are intolerant to milk and milk products as your case demonstrates. Patients with ulcerative colitis may also have attacks precipitated by milk and milk products.

Buttermilk, cheese and ice cream are not devoid of lcatose, the double sugar that seems to cause a lot of these problems. Natural fermentation with the lactobacillus will eliminate more than half of the lactose but commercial buttermilk is not made that way and will cause the person intolerant to lactose to have real misery. Commercial cheeses are also not free of lactose. Yogurt is sometimes recommended but commercial yogurt (not made by natural fermentation by the lactobacillus) is so thin that dry milk powder is often added to it. That makes it especially rich in lactose and particularly harmful to patients with this problem.

I'm sending you The Health Letter, number 7-2, Milk Products: Good and Bad. Others who want more information on this subject can obtain it by forwarding 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

There is now hope that people like you can use low lactose milk. There is a product called Lact-Aid that you can mix in ordinary milk. It contains the enzyme lactase that your intestinal cells lack. The enzyme will split the lactose in the milk before you use it. I hope you continue to do well and am delighted with your progress. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)



AT THE CAKEWALK—Mrs. J.L. Byars, chairman of the Cakewalk Committee, is preparing for a July 3 bazaar at the Scurry County Coliseum. Times for the bazaar will be at 11:30 a.m.; 2:30 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. Each session will last 30 minutes. Proceeds of the bazaar will go to the Centennial Committee to help defray Fourth of July celebration expenses.

Impossible Dream Comes True For Dutch Patient

By MARC CHARNEY
Associated Press Writer

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — An international fleet of some 135 sailing ships puts to sea past the colonial forts of Newport Harbor today, bound for a parade of sails past the skyscrapers of New York to mark the nation's 200th Fourth of July.

Heading the fleet is the American bark Eagle, a stately 295-foot ship used to train Coast Guard cadets. The Soviet Union has two huge square-riggers in the procession. In all, some 30 countries are represented.

Once in New York, these ships and several dozen more will be reviewed by a modern fleet of 57 naval vessels, and Capt. James L. Fleishell, captain of the port of New York, said Wednesday that some 20,000 spectator boats are expected to watch.

"We've never had an operation this large, and we're not sure what's going to happen," Eugene Kenyon, chief of tall ships operations here, told a briefing of captains Wednesday. He suggested vessels stay 600 yards apart, and he added: "I think you might be more comfortable at 1,000 yards."

The Eagle is the largest of four American square-riggers in the fleet, which includes 17 classic windjammers taking an ocean route around Long Island because their masts are too tall to pass under the Brooklyn Bridge. The Eagle's, for example, tower some 150 feet above sea level.

Like the Eagle, most of the tall ships — the phrase is from a poem by John Masefield lauding the seagoing life — have crews of several hundred and are used to train naval or merchant marine cadets.

Also like the Eagle, two square riggers — Portugal's Sagres and Russia's Tovarishch, were built by Germany in the 1930s to train its navy. The United States, which acquired its bark in 1946 as a war prize, promptly changed the name from Horst Wessel, who was an early Nazi hero. Even today, one Coast Guard pamphlet somewhat delicately refers to the Eagle's first namesake as "an early leader of a German political party."

Most of the ships arrived in Newport last weekend after an arduous and sometimes disappointing transatlantic race that twice turned into a motor cruise for the biggest ships for a lack of wind.

"We've ordered a birthday cake," Bronsveld said. "It's going to say 'Happy 39th Birthday' and it's going to be in English."

H.C.M. Lelieveld, an insurance company administrator from The Hage, will celebrate with Bronsveld but he'll also be thinking about returning to his job and his favorite hobbies of swimming, bicycle riding and gardening.

William Lathrop Arrested In Food Stamp Fraud

DALLAS (AP) — Former Midland oil millionaire William Howard Lathrop has been arrested on charges of fraudulently obtaining $1,100 in food stamps.

The Department of Public Welfare had filed charges against Lathrop in March but had not been able to find him.

But DPW fraud investigator Ronnie Carver said Wednesday he spotted Lathrop "going in the opposite direction when I was driving down Mockingbird Lane Tuesday morning."

Carver developed the case against Lathrop after Lathrop was spotted leaving a food stamp office in a new Cadillac last September. Lathrop was arrested in a bank in White Settlement, a suburb of Fort Worth.

He posted two bonds of $200 each and was released.

Lathrop, 47, lives with his second wife, Karla, 27, and two children in an exclusive development in North Dallas. However, officers attempting to serve fraud warrants and papers on more than $500,000 in civil suits brought by a Houston bank have been unable to find him home.

A second charge of fraud against Lathrop was filed in May and specifically alleges that Lathrop failed to mention among his assets the Cadillac for which he had just made a $5,000 down payment. Lathrop also owns two late model Oldsmobiles.

The DPW said Lathrop and his wife were in Europe buying antiques when he was first sought for fraud. Investigators said Lathrop put on his application for food stamps that his only income was $63 a week in unemployment benefits and that he had no assets.

Lathrop made his fortune as a young man mainly through a diamond oil drilling bit and oil investments. He mysteriously disappeared in 1964 and turned up later in Brazil.

A Midland bank brought suit against him and $4.5 million of Lathrop's stocks were liquidated to settle his obligations. It was brought out in court hearings at the time that he had $500,000 in a Swiss bank.

The DPW said Lathrop's children by his present wife were enrolled in a private school while the family was receiving food stamps from March to September 1975.

Amtrak Cars Are Derailed

GOODMAN, Miss. (AP) — Several cars of an Amtrak train ran off the tracks south of here today, officials said. Police reports from the scene indicated at least three persons were pinned beneath one of the derailed cars and a bulldozer was being sought to help rescue them.

The derailment reportedly involved the Panama Limited, which was headed south on the Illinois Central Gulf Railroad main line to Jackson. Authorities said the train derailed about 3½ miles south of Goodman.

"We don't know what's going on out there right now," a spokesman for the Holmes County Sheriff's Department said. "But they are calling for all the help they can get."

Area hospitals said they were told to be alert for possible injuries from the accident.

Holiday Gas Prices Higher

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Fourth of July holiday motorists will find ample supplies of gasoline in Texas but will have to pay an average of two cents a gallon more than they did for the Memorial Day weekend five weeks ago.

The Texas Division of the American Automobile Association said Tuesday most service stations will remain open through the weekend.

The survey showed average prices at full-service stations 56.3 cents a gallon for regular brand, 58.3 for unleaded and 60.4 for premium.

Just before the Memorial Day weekend, the AAA said the same stations had regular selling for 54.3, unleaded for 56.5 and premium for 58.2.

Motorists can save an average of 4.1 cents a gallon at self-service pumps, the AAA survey found.

Florence Watches Mother Swim Now

DEL MAR, Calif.(AP) — Florence Chadwick, who swam the English Channel four times in the 1950s, now watches her mother in competition.

"I'm still swimming, but it's in the sea of finance now," she says.

Miss Chadwick, now a stockbroker, spoke at the Southern California Exposition. During the day, her 84-year-old mother was winning seven first places and 11 second places in rose judging at the flower show Monday. The two women live together in nearby San Diego.
