14 KILLED, 67 HURT, IN THREE TRAIN WRECKS

'Spokane Sun God' Heads Westward After Refuelling Aloft At New York

PLANE TAKES ON SUPPLIES FOR LAST DASH

Two Hours and Five Minutes Required for Four Contacts

6,000 WATCH PLANES

Pilot Mamer Drops Note Of Thanks Just as He Starts Return

ROOSEVELT FIELD, L. I., Aug. 18. (UP)—The Sun God, first plane to attempt a non stop refueling round-trip flight across the continent, turned back westward tonight toward its starting point, Spokane, Wash.

The airplane, piloted by Nick Mamer and Art Walker, reached Roosevelt field from the west at 4:40 p. m., 66 hours and 10 minutes after leaving Spokane, took on fuel, food, water and repair parts, and at 6:45 p. m., headed back toward the Pacific coast.

Hawks Is Guide

Capt. Frank Hawks, flying the Lockheed-Vega plane in which he recently smashed all transcontinental speed records, sped ahead, guiding Mamer and Walker to Bellefonte, Pa., at which point they were to pick up the air mail beacons to Cleveland, the next refueling point.

Four times a refueling plane took to the air and carried supplies to the Sun God over this field. Then Mamer dropped a note saying: "Thanks, fellows, let's go to Cleveland," and headed his plane westward.

Six thousand persons saw the refueling here, including Dale Jackson and Forrest O'Brine, holders of the endurance refueling record. C. Ray Wassal and P. V. Chaffee, who had refuelled the plane of Jackson and O'Brine at St. Louis performed the same service for the Sun God.

Unexpected Delays

The Sun God's arrival here was achieved after unexepected delays that fretted its pilots, Nick Mamer and Art Walker. The ship was delayed taking on fuel at San Francisco Friday morning. It spent Friday night hovering over the Rock Springs, Wyo., field trying to get enough fuel in three contacts with a "mother" plane.

It arrived at Cheyenne, Wyo., at 9:11 a. m. yesterday, hours behind schedule, and then had to circle the airport there until 11:30 during two refueling operations.

The plane arrived over North Platte, Neb., yesterday afternoon, but could not get away until 8:15 p. m.

Arrives at Cleveland

Early today it reached Cleveland. It was to have been refueled there by Hawks, but he, unable to await its arrival, left there last night for Roosevelt field to be on hand when it reached here today. Another plane undertook to load the Sun God over Cleveland.

But if Mamer and Walker were discouraged they did not show it in some 10 notes they dropped to the field when they arrived here, some addressed to Hawks, some to mechanics and some of a personal character.

One of the notes, addressed to newspapermen, said:

"This is a wonderful thrill, after three night and days of fighting—New York. The temptation to land is sure great, but our friends are waiting for us in Spokane and besides we are so grimy and soiled you would not care to see us.

"Mamer and Walker."

Unworried Texan Waits For Murder Hearing

WACO, Texas, Aug. 18. (AP)—Apparently unworried, Pleasant Vessels, 81, remained in the McClennan county jail tonight awaiting his examining trial Wednesday on charges of murder growing out of the fatal shooting of Joe Brown, a painter, in Mackey park here last Friday afternoon.

Oil Industry Faces 70th Birthday Much Improved

Tulsa Writer Finds Operators Sensing 'Turn in Road' With Production Decreasing in Most Major Fields

By PAUL S. HEDRICK
Record News Special Correspondent

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 18.—Truly the approaching 70th birthday of petroleum—Aug. 15—will show the oil business in an improved condition and without the aid of politicians or other compulsory agents.

Another "turn in the road" has appeared, and oil men generally affirm that conditions are improving and that the business may end the summer before conditions warrant a seasonal change.

Declining production in the Mid-Continent and anticipated curtailment in California, along with a steady increase in consumption and a better understanding of the financial worth of petroleum properties, are working together to develop the improved feeling.

Production Declines

Crude oil production in Oklahoma and Kansas experienced a third consecutive decline the past week, and output in West Texas is not excessive. On Sept. 1 the gas conservation act in California becomes effective and it is expected to materially lower daily production in that state, which recently approached the 1,000,000 barrel a day mark. These facts have proven the greatest boosts to the oil situation and have been reflected in a number of outstanding events from the financial side.

Official statistics show that consumption of gasoline and petroleum products for the first half of 1929 were 15 to 18 per cent greater than for the 1928 period and continuing. Little crude oil is being stored right now and it now appears that the industry may end the year in a fairly good condition unless an unwarranted drilling orgy results.

Oklahoma oil fields averaged 706,400 barrels a day the past week, compared to 707,602 barrels a day the previous week, and 708,800 barrels a day the week before.

Seminole Losing

Kansas oil fields produced 122,500 barrels a day, compared with 124,230 barrels a day the week before and 126,100 barrels a day three weeks ago.

The two states thus averaged 828,900 barrels a day, a loss of 2,932 barrels a day. Not much, but a steady decline.

The Greater Seminole field, Oklahoma's leading producing area, averaged 382,540 barrels a day, a loss of 150 barrels a day, and heavier losses are expected there.

The Oklahoma City pool had a daily average of 34,010 barrels a day and operators are attempting to slow up production to pipeline capacity and otherwise delay production. The extreme difficulty in completing a well there, coupled with extra costs, is minimizing the fears that it would soon be capable of making 100,000 barrels a day or more. Porous nature of the producing horizons makes it a questionable task of attempting to flow the deep wells by air-gas lift.

Kansas Pools Disappoint

In Kansas the Wright and Greenwich pools have proven somewhat disappointing. It is possible that they may have attained their peak, and unless Western Kansas develops some flush pools, the Sunflower pool's production is likely to show some losses. There is sufficient wildcatting to seek this solution. The settled areas will help to keep it around the 100,000 barrel a day mark.

Resumption of dividends by the Prairie Oil and Gas company and the continued strength of Prairie Pipe Line company have done much to strengthen the financial structure of oil. Another incident was the declaration of its first cash dividend by Reiter-Foster Oil corporation, a virile independent. Acquisition of the outstanding stock of Pan-American Oil and Transport company by Standard Oil company of Indiana, and the heavy buying by investment houses of stocks of leading major and independent oil concerns have given oils a backing they could not have gotten otherwise.

GRAF ZEPPELIN REACHES JAPAN

Second Stage of World Tour Nears End

TOKYO, Aug. 19. (Monday) (AP)—The Graf Zeppelin passed over Shiogama, Rikuzen prefecture at at 1:30 p. m. today (11:30 p. m. Sunday E. S. T.) Shiogama is about 190 miles from Tokyo.

KASUMIGUARA, Japan, Aug. 19. (Monday) (UP)—The Graf Zeppelin reached Japan early this morning, pushing steadily southward through light fog and rain areas to Tokyo and the end of the second stage of a flight around the world.

The big dirigible passed over the town of Sutsu on Hokkaido Island at 7:30 a. m. (5:30 p. m. Sunday E. S. T.), making about 65 miles an hour. It was less than 540 miles from Tokyo.

To Land Monday

The dirigible is expected to land at this Japanese naval air station (30 miles from Tokyo) sometime Monday afternoon. Having reduced its speed because of headwinds, the big airship, with 20 passengers and a crew of 40 aboard, was making 70 miles an hour last night as it covered the last stage of its 5,500-mile flight to the Siberian coast line.

The dirigible progressed rapidly from the valley of the river Vilxui (where it was reported at 7:52 a. m. E. S. T. Saturday) to the Siberian coast. It flew steadily eastward to Yukutsk, where it dropped a huge laurel wreath inscribed to German soldiers buried in Siberia.

Turns Southward

From Yukutsk, which it passed over at 6:40 a. m. (Yukutsk time), the Graf Zeppelin turned slightly southward towards the Tatar straight, keeping in touch with Japanese radio stations as closely as possible.

The dirigible reported its position as it swung southeastward from Yukutsk, making swift time to the Siberian coast, which it reached Sunday afternoon at a position of somewhere near 58 degrees north.

It passed over the corner of the sea of Okhotsk and roared on southward to Nikolaievsk, at 7:30 p. m. (5:30 a. m. E. S. T.) Commander Fujiyoshi, Japanese representative aboard the dirigible, informed the navy at that time that all was well aboard and that Doctor Eckener understood there was a bad weather area ahead of him.

An hour later the Wakkanai radio station picked up a message from the dirigible saying it was encountering strong air currents and having a difficult time. Doctor Eckener then chose a course along the channel west of Saghalin and flew southward over the Tatar straight to the Japanese sea. A low pressure area, accompanied by fogs and winds off Jinsen, moved northeast towards Vladivostok as the dirigible approached, and apparently Doctor Eckener chose a course off the mainland to escape this area.

Man and Women Burned To Death in Train Crash

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Aug. 18. (AP)—A man and a woman were burned to death and another man seriously injured early today when their automobile caught fire after a collision with an Illinois Central freight train on a grade crossing in National City, adjoining East St. Louis.

Frats Face Test At Regent Meeting Today

AUSTIN, Aug. 18. (AP)—Fraternities and sororities at the University of Texas will face the test of a board of regents vote tomorrow.

A faculty committee report which favors retaining "at least for the present" frats and sororities, under stringent regulations, of abolishing the "Ribbon" club and the German club, likely will be adopted by the regents, a member of the board said today.

Three Meet Death As Plane Falls in Spin

SCOTTS BLUFF, Neb., Aug. 18. (AP)—Charles Schafer, pilot for the Scotts Bluff Airways company, and two passengers met death today when their plane fell in a tail spin at the airport three miles east of here. The passengers were Miss Lucille Mayes, 28, of this city and Frank Gaddis, 36, of Alliance, Neb.

Girl Thrown From Horse Is Seriously Wounded

CORSICANA, Texas, Aug. 18. (AP)—Marie Elliott, 14, was thrown from a horse here today and seriously hurt. Her right leg was almost cut off by wire of a fence on which she landed.

WOMEN PILOTS BEGIN JOURNEY TO CLEVELAND

18 'Lady Birds' Land at San Bernardino First Day Of Air Derby

STOPS ARE REVISED

Tulsa Girl Fails to Find Her Plane in Time To Begin Race

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif., Aug. 18. (AP)—Eighteen pilots in the Santa Monica-Cleveland women's air derby were accounted for here today as the first lap of the race was completed about 4 p. m. One remaining flier, Mary von Mack, landed at Montebello, Calif., but took off shortly afterward. Planes stunting near the pilot's ship were understood to have caused her to land to avert a possible collision.

Following one-minute intervals, Mrs. Keith Miller, No. 43, of Australia, flying a Fleet; Claire Fahey, No. 54, Los Angeles, with a Travelair, and Thea Rasche, No. 61, noted German aviatrix, piloting a Moth, got away for San Bernardino, Calif., the first stop of the 2,800-mile flight.

Bobbie Trout Flies

They were followed immediately by Bobbie Trout, No. 100, of Los Angeles, with her Golden Eagle, and Edith Foltz, No. 109, Portland, Oregon, in an Alexander Eagle Rock Bullet.

The planes comprised the C. W. class planes, motored with engines ranging from 275 to 510 cubic inches displacement.

Louise M. Thaden, No. 4, of Pittsburgh, left at the stick of another Travelair at 2:18 p. m., and was followed by Amelia Earhart, No. 6, with a Lockhead Vega. Next off were Margaret Perry, No. 11, Beverly Hills, Calif., in a Sparton, and Ruth Nichols, No. 16, Rye, New York, in a Rear Win. Following Ruth Nichols were: Opal Kunz, No. 18, New York, Travelair; Eva Paris, No. 23, Great Neck, N. Y., Curtiss Robin; Ruth Elder, No. 66, Beverly Hills, Calif., Swallow; Gladys O'Donnell, No. 105, Long Beach, Calif., Waco, and Vera Dawn Walker, No. 113, Los Angeles, Curtiss Robin.

Revised Schedule

A revised official list of day and overnight stopping points was given out shortly before the fliers got away.

The first halt of the 2,000-mile flight was at San Bernardino, Calif., where the feminine pilots were to spend the night. Tomorrow a brief halt for inspection and supplies, if necessary, will be made at Calexico, Calif., and a stop for the night at Phoenix, Ariz. August 20 the "lady birds" will drop in at Douglas for the night without any stops on the way. The next day they will halt at El Paso and Pecos, Texas, then stay over for the night at Midland, Texas. August 22 calls for a halt at Abilene and a night stop at Fort Worth, Texas. Tulsa, Okla., will see the racers tarry a while the next day and Wichita, Kan., will play host for the night. Kansas City, Mo., is scheduled for the next temporary stop and East St. Louis,

Railroad Station Agent Drops Dead At Chillicothe

Special to The Record News

CHILLICOTHE, Texas, Aug. 18.—H. T. Montgomery, 54, Fort Worth and Denver agent here for the last nine years, dropped dead at 5:40 o'clock this afternoon shortly after he had closed his office and started for home. While walking a short distance from the depot he was seized presumably with a heart attack and stopped to rest at a filling station. Apparently restored, he proceeded on his way, only to collapse after walking a short distance.

He leaves his widow and three children, who are at present on a vacation trip in New Mexico. Friends here wired Santa Fe N. M., tonight in hopes of locating them there, but their exact whereabouts were unknown. Other surviving relatives live at Waco, Fort Worth, Dallas, and Quanah. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

Efforts to locate the family of H. T. Montgomery, Chillicothe station agent who died suddenly Sunday afternoon, were made here Sunday night through the Masonic temple. Al Ellis, recorder of Maskat temple, called Shrine officials at El Paso and Albuquerque, N. M., asking their assistance in finding the family.

'Walking Store' Is To Face Burglary Trial

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, Aug. 18. (US)—O. B. Sanders, whom police call "the walking dry goods store," was returned to Lincoln, Neb., tonight to answer to a charge of burglary. When arrested here he wore a suit of women's underwear in addition to his own, three pairs of trousers and two shirts and he had just pulled off two pairs of trousers which he sold.

Elmer Huckins' Strange Business Schemes Mystify Many Investors

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 18. (UP)—A one-time grocery store proprietor who left behind the drudgery of merchandising to become comfortably wealthy in a secret business that attracted hundreds of investors from nearly a dozen states, has run afoul of the federal government.

The man is Elmer S. Huckins, whose $100,000 home was accepted by the government as security for $25,000 bond under which Huckins was placed on a charge of using the mails to defraud.

Mystery surrounds the nature of the business mill into which Huckins and his son, George E. Huckins, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, put the money of widows and financiers alike and ground out profits enough to make themselves wealthy and to provide high interest rates for their lenders.

Huckins himself, who is beyond middle age, tall, heavy-set and of striking appearance, remains silent about his business, but on other subjects he talks freely. The former merchant likes particularly to discuss his race horses. A stable has been a recent addition to his Hancock, Wis., estate.

Aside from the luxury of a racing string, Huckins has found fate greeting him with many another caress since he entered his strange business. He rides in a liveried automobile from his Hancock estate to Milwaukee where his business headquarters supposedly are located and where he maintains a

'Wizard' Accused of Mail Fraud

Elmer Huckins (wearing cap) of Milwaukee, former grocer said to have paid 26 to 52 per cent to investors in 10 states, is charged with using the mails to defraud. His son, George, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, is shown at right.

ELECTRA MAN'S INJURY FATAL

John P. Hagan Dies From Oil Field Hurts

Special to The Record News

ELECTRA, Texas, Aug. 18.—John Pierpont Hagan, 20, son of Mrs. J. F. Hagan of this city, died at 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening in the Parmley-Ogden hospital here as a result of injuries sustained in a fall from a derrick in the Rock Crossing field on July 24.

Prior to the accident which caused his death, young Hagan had been employed on the Staley-Wynne lease near Rock Crossing. From the time his injuries were received he remained unconscious to the moment of death, a total of 24 days.

The Hogan family came to Electra about 17 years ago from Robinson, Ill. Joe F. Hagan, father of the deceased, who died about three years ago, was the founder of the Texas Boiler works here. Survivors are the mother, Mrs. J. F. Hagan, and a sister, Mrs. W. C. Kiker, both of this city.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 1:30 p. m. from the family home on West Wharton avenue. Rev. F. H. Haimes, assisted by Rev. C. C. Klingman and Rev. Hugh E. Anderson, will officiate. Interment will be in Riverside cemetery at Wichita Falls.

New Horizon Believed Opened by New Well

WICHITA, Kan., Aug. 18. (AP)—A new horizon for the Miller oil pool four miles west of Oxford, was believed opened today with the drilling in of the Shell Petroleum company's No. 2 Miller, in SW SE SW 17-32-2E, Sumner county.

At 3,359 feet there was 1,600 feet of oil in the hole and it was filling at the rate of 10 or 12 barrels an hour.

Former Secretary Of Cotton Association Dies

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Aug. 18. (AP)—Winston D. Adams, former secretary of the American Cotton Manufacturers' association, was found dead in his room at a hotel at Ocracoke early today. Heart trouble was ascribed as the cause of death.

Fifteen Drown in North Sea Crash Of British Tug and Spanish Steamer

Crew of 25 Caught Unawares When Smaller Craft Rams Freighter Amidships

LONDON, Aug. 18. (AP)—Fifteen persons were drowned when the Spanish steamer Ogono and the British tug Kings Cross collided in the North Sea 30 miles off Humber early this morning.

The Ogono was struck amidship and sank in six minutes giving the crews of 25 no time to launch the life boats. The Kings Cross succeeded in picking up eight members of the crew who clung to a life boat and two others struggling in the water including the wireless operator. The drowned included the captain and all officers with the exception of Second Mate Ugalda. The Ogono was bound from Bilbao to Middlesborough with a cargo of iron and ore. The Kings Cross, which had her bow badly damaged, landed the survivors at Grimsby this afternoon.

Telling the story of the disaster, Ugalda said:

"I was on the bridge with Captain Candina about 3 o'clock this morning when I saw the lights of a ship approaching and heard short blasts from the siren and almost immediately the collision occurred. The Ogono took a big list and I rushed to the cabins of the wireless operator and mates and when I returned to the bridge the ship was rapidly sinking. I went with the others to try to launch the starboard lifeboat. There was a crash of timber and I realized the effort was hopeless and dived overboard. After I had been in the water some time I saw one of the Ogono's lifeboats upturned and drifting towards me. I and the others clung to this until we were rescued."

Plea for Continuance Of Jitney Hearing Denied

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 18. (AP)—An informal request by Bertrand I. Cahn, city attorney, for continuance of a hearing on the application of "freed ride" jitney drivers seeking an injunction to stop the city authorities from interfering with donation "lifts" in the street car strike was denied tonight by Judge Mark M. Boather of civil district court. The hearing was set for Tuesday.

Swiss Fliers Plan Hop Across Atlantic Today

LISBON, Portugal, Aug. 18. (UP)—Two youthful Swiss aviators announced tonight that they hope to depart at about 7 a. m. tomorrow (1 a. m. E. S. T.) on a projected transatlantic flight to New York.

Oskar Kaeser and Kurt Luscher, the fliers, made a last-minute inspection of their plane Young Switzerland at Juncal airfield this afternoon before announcing their decision.

WITNESSES TO VIEW SUSPECT

Man Held For Dundee Slaying in Jail Here

Witnesses of the slaying of Charlie McDaniel, pioneer cattleman, who was killed by a lone bandit who attempted to rob the Dundee bank in July, 1928, will be brought to Wichita Falls Monday in an effort to identify a man, formerly of this city, who was brought here Sunday afternoon from Norman, Okla., where he was being held in connection with two automobile theft cases.

In the event the suspect is identified by the witnesses as having been connected with the slaying of McDaniel, he will be transferred to authorities at Archer City. The next session of the grand jury in Archer county will be held the latter part of August.

The suspect was brought to Wichita Falls Sunday by Warren Belcher, deputy sheriff, and Mr. Anglin, Sheriff W. G. Brailey having received permission from federal authorities at Dallas and Sherman to remove the prisoner here for investigation.

Blacksmith Suicides; Wife Found Killed

WEWOKA, Okla., Aug. 18. (UP)—When neighbors went to notify Mrs. Jim Goodridge today that the body of her husband had been found shot to death in his blacksmith shop, they found Mrs. Goodridge dead, the result of blows on the head, probably by a hammer.

The coroner's jury reported that Goodridge had committed suicide.

Okla. Boy Scout At Jamboree Is Killed

ILFRACOMBE, Devon, England, Aug. 18. (AP)—Eagle Scout James E. Berry, 16, of the Boy Scout patrol of Cushing, Okla., which attended the world jamboree, was killed today in a fall from a cliff.

Senate Recess Ends Today When Body Meets to Face Tariff Issue

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18. (UP)—The senate reconvenes tomorrow after a summer recess to confront a tariff situation full of political uncertainty.

Originally the senate was expected to begin consideration tomorrow of the Hawley tariff bill, which passed in the house during the special session early in the summer. But the program has gone awry. The senate finance committee was unable to complete revision of the bill in time to present it to the senate tomorrow. Therefore the senate will hold perfunctory sessions until after Labor day, when the revised tariff bill is expected to be ready.

The senate finance committee Republicans have finished revision of the rate schedules, which will be published within 24 hours. Administrative provisions are yet to be revised. Democratic members of the committee have not been admitted in accordance with political custom here.

The revised bill faces rough weather in the senate. Many Democrats have their muskets out already. Senator Borah, leader of the more restless Republicans, has made known he disapproves of the wholesale tariff revision which the Hawley bill and the draft of the finance committee Republicans embrace.

OPEN SWITCH DUMPS FRISCO AT HENRYETTA

Engineer and Fireman And 12 Negroes Killed When Cars Hit Bank

PASSENGERS INJURED

'Jim Crow' Coach of Fast Special Filling With Deadly Steam

Fourteen persons were killed and 67 were injured in three train wrecks Sunday.

All of the 14 killed were in a derailment near Henryetta, Okla., where eight were injured. Twelve of the dead were negroes.

Forty-three were injurd in a derailment near Columbus, Ohio.

In an electric train collision in New York 16 were hurt.

FRISCO ENGINE CREW KILLED

HENRYETTA, Okla., Aug. 18. (UP)—The "Oil Field Special," fast passenger train of the Frisco railroad, shot through an open switch near here today and down a seven-foot embankment, killing 14 persons and seriously injuring eight others.

Twelve of the dead and four of the injured were negroes, trapped in the "Jim Crow" compartment of a forward coach which was converted into a cauldron of live steam which blew backward from the wreckage of the locomotive.

Passengers Shaken

Four of the cars remained upright while the remaining three were hurled in a jumble, furrowing deeply into the right of way. Passengers riding in the Pullman cars at the rear were shaken and bruised but only four of them were seriously hurt.

They are: Ewell Renfro, 29, Tulsa, burned; Mrs. L. A. Turner, 51, Pawhuska, Okla., cut and bruised; Mrs. D. D. Taylor, Joplin, Mo., and Bertha Shadden, Dallas, Texas.

The mail coach of the train, which was entering Henryetta en route from Dallas to Tulsa, was thrown 300 feet into the yard of an oil company, the car in which the negroes rode was shot forward against the shattered locomotive.

Investigation Opens

Railroad officials began immediate investigation of the crash. They announced the lock was missing from the switch and that there was evidence it had been tampered with. Engineer Pete Wolf, 55, and Fireman H. A. Bryan, 30, of Sherman, Texas, were the only white persons killed. Their bodies were

Morrow in Laredo On Way to Capital

LAREDO, Texas, Aug. 18. (UP)—Dwight W. Morrow, U. S. ambassador to Mexico, arrived here late today en route to his home in New Jersey for a vacation.

Ambassador Morrow was accompanied by his wife and daughter, a young lady guest of the daughter, and by Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Morrow. He refused to grant an interview with the press other than to say he was in the United States for a vacation and was headed for New Jersey, and later Washington.

Fate of Boy Slayer To Be Decided Today

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 18 (AP)—Little Richard Ernest Howard, age 12, who shot to death his wealthy father, will learn Monday whether he must face criminal prosecution for going to the rescue of his mother.

District Attorney Buron Fitts is expected to decide immediately after the inquest into the death of the father, Frank S. Howard, age 42, automobile dealer, whether to prefer charges. The boy told police he did not know the rifle was loaded.

Raisin Growers Given Aid by Farm Board

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18. (US)—The federal farm board today announced a $9,000,000 advance to Sun-Maid Raisin Growers and the Federal Fruit Stabilization corporation of California.

The funds will be used to assist growers in the financing of their 1929 crop. Half of the sum is to be furnished by the government, while the other half is to be pooled by a group of California banks.

100,000 Manchurians Mobilized As Border Crisis Nears Climax

SHANGHAI, Aug. 18. (AP)—The mobilization of 10 addtional brigades of Manchurian troops, totaling 100,000 men, was reported late tonight in an official Kuomin News Agency dispatch from Mukden. The agency said the national government viewed the "Sino-Russian crisis as increasingly serious."

MOSCOW, Aug. 18 (US)—A state of guerilla warfare which probably will bring the Chinese and Soviet nations into actual war or before the court of the League of Nations exists tonight along the Manchurian frontier.

Although war has not been declared, despite the knowledge by both involved governments that skirmishes have been taking human toll along the borders, near Pogranitchnaya and the Amur river, it is open knowledge now that troop concentrations are being directed from both camps and maneuvers indicated an important clash shortly.

Whether the clash will materialise or be stopped by firm intervention on the part of other world powers tonight is uncertain. But reports pouring in from the Manchurian frontier, and centering in Manchuli, tell of actual heavy fighting going on.

Reports of various battles between red troops and linked Chinese and Russian "white guard" forces in Soviet territory reached here last night.

MRS. WILLEBRANDT OPPOSES WIRE-TAPPING AT PROHI POLICY

JUST THE Baer Facts

By Bugs Baer

LOS ANGELES WANTS IN NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Mark Kelly of the Los Angeles Examiner pops north with an idea that is very pro rata.

Talking with Mark we discovered that we also had the same idea for some time. Not that we want to cop Mark's thunder as we are a man who even refuses to cross the Delaware for fear of detracting from Washington's glory.

Mark claims that no baseball league can call itself the National or the American unless it is both National and American.

In fewer and less responsible words, no league is national that doesn't span the continent.

Mark wants Los Angeles and San Francisco included in the big wheels.

And we're inclined to think that his wish will grow wings inside of 10 years.

It will have to grow wings. For the only way the big leagues can overlap the continent is by airplane.

Captain Hawks proved that you can eat breakfast in New York and wipe the egg off your chin in Los Angeles. All in one day.

The cap flew the business in 16 hours, elastic time, more or less.

There is no certified reason why baseball teams cannot chase umpires across the great divide in indignant escadrilles.

Mark has been plugging the dope for sevelal years. If his complaint becomes successful we hope they make him take the first flight.

Analyzing the hold that baseball has on the public we find that it is the unmuffled exhaust for civic pride. It ties Chicago to New York, St. Louis to Boston, Cleveland to Detroit and Pittsburgh to Barney Dreyfus.

It's a good idea for the shape it is in at present. All that Mark has are more blueprints showing how a clam looks at low tide, a row of figures that won't add up right and a red-headed determination to dovetail the proceeds.

But we think he will put it over for he does his dovetailing with an ax.

If he does, he will become as historical as Pocahontas, the headless horseman, Carrie Nation and Wilson Mizner. They will put Mark's statue in the Smithsonian institute and little children will point at him and say:

"That's the man who discovered you didn't need oranges for orange drink."

Mark, you are a trail blazer and all trail blazers wind up trying to take the burn out of their fingers in a bowl of bicarbonate of soda.

Down to Earth

Visitors at the Municipal airport during the past week, according to C. T. Logan, port manager, included:

Wednesday—L. C. Hammond, in Curtis-Robins plane, Pilot Fred Ridenour, returned from Las Vegas, N. M.

Friday—Lieutenant Hollimon, Fort Sill, Okla., and crew of four men in Martin bomber, United States government plane.

Saturday—Pilot J. Stevenson, Tulsa, Okla., Swallow biplane, en route to Los Angeles, Calif.

Sunday—Mr. and Mrs. Maurice A. Rutis, in their Travelair monoplane, Pilot James Walker, flew to Abilene, returning with Henry Hamilton, Wichita Falls, whom they met there.

Negro Confesses To Robbery Charge Here

A negro man, arrested Saturday night by police officers on information furnished by another negro, confessed to the robbery of a servants house here a few weeks ago when he was questioned by Constable Frank Morgan Sunday.

He told Constable Morgan that he had taken the loot, consisting of three suits of clothing, three silk dresses, an overcoat, a watch and a ring. The man was identified later by the persons from whom the articles had been stolen, it was said. He is being held at the county jail pending investigation into the robbery of several homes on Beverly Drive last year, in which the negro is thought to have been implicated.

Four Jailed in Root Beer Stand Disturbance

Plainclothes Officers W. E. McDonald and Elmer Thornton Sunday night were sent to a root beer stand on Ninth street following a call from the place which indicated that excitement was at high pitch in that vicinity.

They found four young men who, although they had not "started anything," seemed at the point of starting a fight with the manager of the establishment. They were arrested and lodged in the city jail, booked for disturbing the peace.

Earlier in the evening, it was reported, several couples had ordered root beer at the stand and had driven off with the tray and glasses. A motorcycle officer was notified and the articles were recovered.

Mrs. Emily Craycroft Dies Sunday Evening

Mrs. Emily Craycroft, 78, 1008 Fifth street, resident of Wichita Falls for the last 12 years, died in a local hospital about 6:45 o'clock Sunday evening. The body was taken in charge by the Merkle Undertaking company. Funeral arrangements will be made Monday.

Mrs. Craycroft is survived by two sons, Frank and Ben Craycroft, both of Wichita Falls; and two daughters, Mrs. Grace C. Wright and Mrs. M. A. Bundy, also of Wichita Falls.

Former patients of Mercy hospital, Cork, Ireland, have erected a Grotto of Lourdes on the hospital grounds.

SEATTLE CASE CALLED LEGAL

Dry Law Victory Could Have Bad Effect

THE INSIDE OF PROHIBITION
XV. An Unusual Prohibition Victory

By MABEL W. WILLEBRANDT

(Copyright, 1929, by Current News Features. All rights for publication reserved throughout the world).

In one case of widespread interest a prohibition victory was achieved in which I not only had no part but which I actually opposed. I refer to the so-called "whispering wires" case at Seattle, Washington. That involved the prosecution of a bootlegger named Olmstead. I certainly approved of apprehending Olmstead — he was head of a big ring of liquor runners from Canada — but I didn't approve of the way the prohibition agents obtained their evidence. Practically all their testimony consisted of things they overheard on tapped telephone wires.

Mrs. Willebrandt

Now, I thoroughly disapprove of the practice of tapping telephone wires. Irrespective of its legality, I believe it a dangerous and unwarrantable policy to follow in enforcing law. Many of the states of the union have state laws against it. The point involved in the Olmstead case was whether, in the absence of a state law, the federal constitution alone prevented obtaining evidence by tapping wires.

When the point was sustained in lower federal courts, and reached the supreme court of the United States, I indicated to the solicitor general my unwillingness to argue the case and try to justify the prohibition agents' wire-tapping tactics when I so thoroughly disapproved of them. Consequently, Mr. Mitchell employed distinguished counsel, a man formerly associated with his firm in Minnesota.

The facts and points of law involved are so interesting to the average citizen that I shall outline them briefly.

Wires Tapped

Roy Olmstead was formerly a lieutenant of police in Seattle, Wash. He embarked in the liquor business, and his trial became nationally famous as the "whispering wires" case. In one of the cases in which he was involved 91 people were indicted, charged with conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act by importing, transporting, and selling intoxicating liquor. Of these many lived in Canada, and 58 were not apprehended, but of the remaining 33, four pleaded guilty and 21 were convicted by the jury. Only eight were acquitted.

It will be seen from this how extensive were Olmstead's operations and how important it was to secure convictions in order to end the operations of a gang that was flooding the Pacific northwest with liquor.

The gathering of evidence in the case continued for many months. Most of it was secured by intercepting messages on telephones of the conspirators. The wires of the main violators were tapped just outside of their homes. The organization had an office and the telephone line from the office was tapped also. The "tapping" was done without trespassing on any of the property of the defendants.

For many months federal prohibition agents listened on these lines. Stenographic notes were made of conversations heard, and knowledge was thus obtained of enormous transactions in liquor.

Plenty of 'News' for the Tappers

In this manner, prohibition agents heard orders given for liquor by customers, conversations between the members of the bootlegging gang, instructions as to delivery of liquor, and also many highly interesting if not edifying bits of conversation about government officers in general and in particular. The agents also heard through this tapping operation much "news" that was no news to them, such as word passed between members of the gang as to capture of the organization's vessels, the arrest of their men, and the seizure of their liquor in garages and other places. Over the whispering wire came to the prohibition agents messages showing how arrested members of the gang had been released, and details of attempted bribery of officers.

The operations of Olmstead were as unique in character as they were extensive in volume. He made connections with a man having some radio knowledge and talent, and together they purchased and operated a radio broadcasting station. This station was used for the purpose of getting news to incoming boats employed by Olmstead to bring in cargoes of liquor. Mrs. Olmstead frequently broadcast on this station, and her programs consisted largely of bedtime stories. It was the belief of the agents and investigators that the stories constituted code signals to the boats at sea, advising them when the coast was clear, and where the coast guard boats were likely to be.

Olmstead's radio partner, a man named Hubbard, was arrested and joined as a conspirator in one of the cases. He was not tried, however, but assisted the prohibition officials at Seattle as a confidential informer. Later an effort was made to indict Hubbard on evidence gathered by the intelligence unit of the treasury department intended to show that Hubbard had "worked both sides of the street," using his knowledge as a prohibition agent to help Olmstead in his operations and using his knowledge of Olmstead's plans to hold his position with the government as informer. There was evidence that Hubbard had entered the prohibition service as a poor man, and yet allegedly had lived "like a king" on $175 a month.

Bitterness in Treasury Department

The effort to indict Hubbard failed, however, and there were charges that the intelligence unit was trying to discredit the prohibition unit. Many of the people of the state of Washington who were strong advocates of prohibition enforcement felt that Hubbard's indictment was sought in order to prevent honest prohibition agents from pursuing their work. An intense bitterness developed between the two branches of the treasury department, and it was not an uncommon thing for agents of the intelligence unit and for the special assistants to the attorney general who had been sent to Seattle to handle the Hubbard case, to be "shadowed" by agents of the prohibition unit and their friends.

The evidence obtained over the "whispering wires" and otherwise, disclosed an illegal liquor business of amazing magnitude. It involved the employment of not less than 50 persons, of two seagoing vessels for carrying liquor from Scotland to British Columbia, the employment of smaller vessels for coastwise transportation, the purchase and use of a ranch for an underground cache for storage of liquor, the operation of a central office in the heart of Seattle, the employment of executives, salesmen, delivery men, dispatchers, scouts, bookkeepers, clerks and even an attorney. Monthly transactions reached a total as high as $176,000 and aggregate for the year's operations probably exceeded $2,000,000. Olmstead was the leading conspirator. He acted as general manager. His contribution to the capital of the business was $10,000. Eleven others were his partners by virtue of contributions of $1,000 apiece. Profits were divided, one-half to Olmstead and the remaining half to the other 11. One of the chief men was always on duty at the main office to receive orders by telephone and to direct the filling of those orders by a corps of men stationed in another room, called "the bull pen." At times the sales amounted to 200 cases of liquor a day.

In this statement of the case I have largely used the language of the supreme court and the court of appeals.

Appeal Sustained

The convictions were appealed to the circuit court of appeals, which upheld them, and then the supreme court of the United States was asked to review the case. After first denying a review, it granted one, and its decision upheld the legality of obtaining evidence by the tapping of phone wires.

The contention of the conspirators was that the method of obtaining evidence violated the fourth and fifth amendments of the United States constitution.

On the question of constitutionality, the remarks of United States District Judge Neterer, are interesting and worth repetition:

"The fourth and fifth amendments cannot be emasculated so as to give criminals carte blanche in the use of the public telephone utility, whether the conspiracy is to violate the 18th amendment and Volstead act, or for the destruction of life or property, or, perchance, the overthrow of the government. A man's house is his castle, the four walls of his habitation, the invasion of which was the evil prohibited without a search warrant based on probable cause. These amendments do not make the walls of this house, or castle, co-extensive with the limits of the city, state, or nation, and give immunity to criminals in carrying forward their unlawful schemes by telephonic activities. 'Such a situation would be deplorable and intolerable, to say the least,' in the language of the dissenting opinion; and in the light of the evil to be guarded against, which must be taken into consideration, such license cannot be given, and the law abiding people of the community, the state, or the nation placed at the mercy of criminals seated in their homes, giving command and direction to co-conspirators throughout the city, state, or nation, and carry forward the criminal activities. The people have some rights under these amendments, as well as the criminals."

Although personally I would still use my influence to prevent the policy of wire-tapping being adopted as a prohibition enforcement measure, I nevertheless recognize that the interpretation of the United States constitution against the law breaker and in favor of the government's right to catch him, is a prohibition victory of no small proportions.

(In her next installment Mrs. Willebrandt tells how the law has been put to work, how statutes applying to prohibition were clarified and interpreted.)

Another Girl Accuses Pantages Of Attempting Attack in Theater

By HARRY LANG

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 18.—Another girl—once an usherette for Alexander Pantages—exploded a new bombshell in the theater man's affairs today.

In a 136-page deposition now in the safe of District Attorney Buron Fitts, the ex-usherette, according to district attorney officials, tells a story that closely parallels the charges of Eunice Pringle, the 17-year-old co-ed dancer on whose accusations Pantages is to be arraigned tomorrow morning in superior court.

But between the stories of Eunice Pringle and the one-time usherette, there is one big difference—the usherette escaped Pantages' advances, she says, and she is now no longer in the theater man's employ.

Existence of the girl's deposition—which is being held in readiness for use at a strategical point in the prosecution of the theater man—was admitted today by Buron Fitts. He and his aide, Deputy District Attorney Harold Jones revealed the contents of the story, which was dictated by the former usherette in the presence of Deputy District Attorney B. F. Matthews several days ago.

The name of the girl, however, is being withheld—and the names of the other usherettes and ex-usherettes she tells about in her story, was the word that came from the district attorney's office.

For "Miss X's" story does not concern only her own experience—it deals too, with the experiences of other girls who worked for Alexander Pantages as ushers in his theater.

Miss X named all of the girls to whom she referred in her statement. District attorneys' investigators have begun a complete checkup on these names, to corroborate Miss X's deposition.

Revelation of the Miss X deposition came today on the eve of Pantages' arraignment tomorrow before Superior Judge William T. Aggeler, presiding judge of the superior court.

Pantages faces two separate charges, both based on the story of 17-year-old Eunice Pringle—her story is already well known, told in detail as it was at the preliminary hearing last week at which Municipal Judge Leonard Wilson, without hesitation, bound Pantages over to the higher court for trial.

COUNCIL FACES WATER ISSUE

Three Courses Open to Aldermen Tonight

A second reading of the ordinance authorizing an election on the $1,400,000 bond issue for additions and improvements in the city water system will be held at the meeting of the city council Monday night when opinions of taxpayers on the question will be heard.

Citizens have been invited to present their views on the matter at the meeting and it is likely that their opinions will determine the immediate action of the council, city officials have stated. Three courses are open to the council when the second reading is heard. The ordinance may be rejected and a new one drawn up to conform with the opinions of the taxpayers; the second reading may be deferred until further consideration has been given to the expressions of opinion; or the council may pass the ordinance as read at the last meeting.

In case the ordinance passes the second reading, only one more reading will be necessary. If it passes on third reading, the election will probably be held on Tuesday, Oct. 1, the earliest legal date.

It is considered that the recommendations of the water supply committee of the chamber of commerce, which will hold a meeting at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon in the chamber of commerce directors' room in the Perkins-Snider building will affect the opinions put forth by the taxpayers. The committee has been studying the Black and Veatch report and other recommendations on the problem for the past several weeks. Any action taken by this committee will be subject to the decision of the directors of the chamber before definite recommendations may be made to the citizens.

The council is acting solely in consideration of the wishes of the people, according to the opinions expressed by the aldermen at the last meeting, and no final action will be taken until the council is certain of the stand taken by the taxpayers.

Tulsa Girl Delayed

The last leg of the jaunt will be a through dash to Cleveland and the end of the race.

The only registered entrant in the two races not to get away was Mary Haislip of Kansas City. Miss Haislip landed at the field from Tucson, Ariz., shortly before the race started but failed to find the plane she had expected to use in the race. She said later that she expected the ship to reach here tomorrow noon and that race officials said she could start then.

Vernon Woman Is Hurt in Electra Automobile Crash

Special to The Record News

ELECTRA, Texas, Aug. 17.—Mrs. Loyd Colvin of Vernon suffered severe bodily injuries and shock when the car in which she was riding overturned completely following a crash with another car, driven by Olan B. Blackman of Decatur, at Cleveland and Wilbarger streets here about 8:45 o'clock tonight.

The injured woman was taken to the Parmley-Ogden hospital for treatment. Physicians stated that no internal injuries were apparent but that the severity of the injuries to her side would necessitate her remaining in the hospital for some time.

The car in which Mrs. Colvin was riding was driven by Mr. Colvin and turned over on its top following the crash. The other car, a Buick sedan, went into the ditch. Mrs. Colvin was extricated from the wreckage immediately and rushed to the hospital. No one else was injured.

ELMER HUCKINS FACES CHARGE

Mysterious Business Man Awaits Trial

suite in an exclusive apartment hotel.

His son is owner of a baseball club in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and has shown other evidences of being a man of money. Father and son are the ones whose names appear at the bottom of the tissue slips of paper that are notes demanding 26 per cent interest. Attorneys have raised the question whether these notes would be binding in a civil court since they call for usurious interest.

In case they were not and if Huckins chose to take advantage of it the result would be disastrous since most of his investors are persons of limited means. One widow has placed all her money in Huckins' hands and on the proceeds has been living in retirement—satisfied that she is cared for during her life.

In the vicinity of Huckins' estate dozens of residents withdrew their money from the vaults of the country banks where it was earning three per cent and gave it to Huckins when they found he would pay nearly nine times that amount.

Although Huckins remains quiet about his business affairs his attorney is outspoken in his assertions that the business operated by the financial genius is a legitimate one. It will be kept a secret as long as possible, he said, to forestall competition in the lucrative field.

But despite these reassurances many of the investors have become agitated. They were given to understand that their profits were being made in the cigar business and were not overly curious so long as the interest was mailed regularly.

With a federal charge against the pilot of their investment craft they have become suspicious, however, and many requests have been made to the grocerman-financier for return of their money. To these Huckins has replied he will exercise the right given him in the usual notes to demand 60 days time.

Millions are believed to have been invested in the strange business yet Huckins was unable when he surrendered to federal officers to produce his $25,000 bond in cash.

extricated with difficulty from the steaming mass of steel which had been the engine.

Passengers said the train had slowed down for Henryetta when the crash came. They believed they were moving about 30 miles an hour. The grating of the brakes they said, suddenly was interrupted by a powerful jerk and the deafening roar of the steel cars as they grated along the ties for a hundred yards, then fell on their sides and were jammed together in disorder. The Pullman passengers had just been awakened from their night's sleep when the train left the rails.

Wrecking crews tonight had lifted the shattered cars and cleared most of the right of way. They believed the tracks would be cleared for traffic by 8 p. m.

43 INJURED IN OHIO DERAILMENT

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 18. (AP)—Forty-three passengers on crowded Pennsylvania railroad train No. 614 en route from Cleveland to Columbus were injured, some of them seriously at 11:20 a. m. today when five of the 12 coaches were derailed a few miles from Condit, in Delaware county.

ELECTRIC TRAIN CRASHES IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Aug. 18. (AP)—A 12-car electric train on the Long Island railroad crashed into a 12-ton bumper at the Long Beach terminus today, causing injuries to 16 persons. Three of the injured were reported in a serious condition.

The other 13 went home after receiving treatment at a hospital.

The motorman told police he applied the brakes as the train pulled into the station but they failed to hold.

The impact lifted the front car from the tracks, and the passengers, who were standing in the aisles ready to alight were thrown to the floor.

Those seriously hurt were Maurice Levin, 60, of New York; Mrs. Emilia Smith, 44, of Valley Stream, Long Island; Mrs. Florence Doelger, of New York.

Thirty-three etchings by Sir D. Y. Cameron, the average price of which was $25 each a few years ago, were recently sold in London for $13,785.

CAN'T PRAISE IT ENOUGH

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her So Much

Kingston, Mo.—"I have not taken anything but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for 18 months and I cannot praise it enough. I weighed about 100 pounds and was not able to do any kind of work. My housework was done by my mother and my out-of-doors work was not done. I have taken four bottles of the Vegetable Compound and now I am well and strong and feel fine. I got my sister-in-law to take it after her last baby came and she is stronger now. I cannot praise it enough."—Mrs. HATTIE V. EASTIN, R. 1, Kingston, Missouri.

Desire to Reach Better World Uppermost, Rev. Barcus Declares

Approximately 800 persons attended the union services held at the First Methodist church Sunday night, when Dr. Edward R. Barcus, pastor of the Floral Heights Methodist church, delivered a sermon on the subject "Heaven."

Doctor Barcus declared that a desire to reach a better world is common to all Christendom, and has been uppermost in the minds of Christian leaders of all ages. There are three common notions of Heaven mentioned in the Bible, he said, the aerial heaven representing the atmosphere around the earth; the siderial, or starry heavens, beyond our sky; and the third, or highest, which is the summit of the spiritual universe.

Doctor Barcus sermon was replete with well adapted quotations from both new and old testaments, in which were given the conceptions of Heaven held by John, Paul, and other scriptural characters.

Musical Program

Music for the service was arranged by Lester F. Aldrich, director of music at the Floral Heights Methodist church. Following a 20-minute organ concert given by Mrs. J. W. Akin Jr., a congregational song service was conducted by Mr. Aldrich, who later sang "Crucifix," by Faure, with Mrs. George W. Thorburn, soprano. Erwin F. Bohmfalk, musical director at the First Methodist church, sang "Will the Circle be Unbroken," by Gabriel. Mrs. Akin played the accompaniments.

Rev. Patrick Henry, who will preach at the fourth union service next Sunday night, assisted Doctor Barcus in Sunday night's service. The text of the latter's sermon follows:

"It occurs to me that in this summer time, when the weather is hot, when days are long, when every task seems irksome, when the burdens of life weigh heavy, when the longing for rest is strong and tempting, a most fitting subject for our meditation is heaven, our everlasting home. That eternal abiding place of the soul, where they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength, where they shall mount up with wings as eagles, where they shall run and not faint, where they shall walk and not faint.

"Surely there can be no more important question, than that which concerns our leaving this present life, with the unfearing certainty of a better world, where we shall be with Him and the fellowship of earth. What is heaven? Where is heaven? Who shall inhabit heaven? When shall we reach heaven? It was during the summer seasons of years that used to be, that our fathers and mothers, at many a camp meeting, found their greatest joy in singing: 'O heaven, sweet heaven, home of the blest, how I long to be there, with the angles to share, and to lean on my dear Savior's breast.' This stream of heaven, this faith in heaven, this longing for heaven, this hope of heaven, is characteristic of God's children, made in the image of their heavenly Father.

Another Chance

"When Adam and Eve stood above the mound of dirt that covered the slain body of their second born, Eve surely said to Adam, 'O I wonder if there is forgiveness of sin with God. I wonder if there is another world, where we shall have another chance, where we shall see our boy again, where we shall understand one another better, and where we shall love one another more. The Bible tells us that Enoch, who walked with God and who had the testimony that he pleased God, looked for a better country, and did not see death, because he was translated to his heavenly home.

"Abraham, the father of the faithful, and God's best friend on earth, together with Isaac and Jacob, heirs with Him of the same promise, looked for a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God. These all died in faith, and confessing that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth, that they declared a better country, that is a heavenly home; wherefore God is not ashamed to be called their God, for He hath prepared for them a city.

"David, the sweet bard of Israel, sang 'I shall behold thy face in righteousness, I shall be satisfied when I awake in thy likeness. I shall dwell in thy house length of days, even forever and ever. Thou wilt guide me by they counsel, and afterward receive me to glory, at thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore.'

"As he sang that most loved of all songs, 'The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want,' he reached his triumphant strain with the shout, 'And I shall dwell in the house of the Lord forever.'

Isaiah's Prophecy

"Isaiah's prophecy, 'The ransomed of the Lord shall return, and come with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads, they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away,' beautifully expresses the confidence of believing saints in all generations, a universal hope that shall not pass away, that there is a place where the holy ones shall meet the God they love, and find once more the friends they have lost awhile.

"The closing words of God's revelation to John on Patmos, typically expresses the hope and faith of all true Christians: 'He shawed me a pure river of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb. In the midst of the street of it, and on either side of the river, was there the tree of life, which bare 12 manner of fruits, and yielded its fruit every month, and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations. And there shall be no more curse, but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it, and His servants shall serve Him, and they shall see His face, and His name shall be in their foreheads. And there shall be no night there, and they shall need no candle, neither light of the sun, for the Lord God giveth them light, and they shal reign for ever and ever. Blessed are they that do His commandments, that they may have a right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city.' Since Jesus came, bringing life and immortality to light, 'We know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

"The original word in the Bible translated heaven, has been a continuously growing word, gradually becoming larger and richer in meaning, to include the expanding limits of hope and faith in the future life. Its earliest use described any elevated place. Later on it marked out the high places, the places of quietness, of peacefulness and of rest. Israel used the word to indicate the place of worship of the most High God. The highest hills came to be the hills of God, where the exalted and most Holy God was worshiped. The psalmest cried, 'will lift up mine eyes to the hills, from whence cometh my help, my help cometh from the Lord, who made heaven and earth.' This notion continued to enlarge, until 'the word came to designate the dwelling place of the Most High, the place of infinite peace, and of eternal joy. 'Lord, who shall abide in thy tabernacle, who shall dwell in thy holy hill' is the poet's wording for 'Lore, who ought to be a member of thy church and who will finally get to heaven?'

"There are three common notions of heaven, named in the Bible. First, there is the aerial heaven. It is called the firmament. We call it the sky. It is the great arch over our heads, in which the atmosphere is found. This aerial heaven is sometimes opened, and voices and beings from the upper heaven, the abode of Leavenly beings, come down to earth. And through these openings, visions of things within the highest heaven appear. It is this aerial heaven of which we read. 'The windows of heaven were opened, and the rain was upon the earth, forty days and forty nights. The windows of heaven were stopped, and the rain from heaven was restrained.' We read of the snow coming down from heaven, the winds of heaven, the thunders of heaven, the fowls of heaven. This is the heaven which with the earth shall pass away.

"Second" Heaven

"Another common notion of heaven, named in the Bible, refers to the siderial heavens, the starry heavens, sometimes called the second heaven. It is that vast and immeasurable space, through which wander the planets, the solar systems, and the stars. Just this last week astronomers in the Lick observatory of the University of California, report their now receiving a ray of light, traveling at the rate of 186,000,000 miles per second, which left its shining star 500,000,000 years ago. But no astronomer has ever been able to find the outer limits of the siderial heavens, nor to locate their center. Star distances are far beyond all human calculations, and their spaces are broader than the measure of man's mind.

"Isaiah was thinking of the siderial heavens, when in deep penitence he wrote, 'Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; for my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts higher than your thoughts.' Solomon, at the dedication of the temple, had in mind these starry heavens, when he prayed, 'Will God indeed dwell on the earth? Behold the heaven and the heaven, and the heaven of heavens cannot contain Thee, how much less this house that I have builded.'

"Another notion of heaven, as named in the Bible, is called the third heaven. The highest heaven. It is the summit of the spiritual universe. It is the seat of things eternal, and infinitely perfect. It is the place wherein dwelleth all righteousness. The uncreated, upliversal God is Himself the center of that heavenly world. This heaven is the home of God's elect. There are the spirits of just men made perfect. There is the general assembly and church of Christ, of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named. The wisest and noblest of all ages are here. There are the pure and the unselfish souls, who have believed in and loved the Lord. Nineteen hundred years ago, John the evangelist looked over into that heavenly world, and wrote in a book, 'After this I beheld, and lo a great multitude, which no man could number, of all nations, and kindreds, and peoples, and tongues, stood before the throne. And I John saw the holy city, coming down from God out of heaven. And I heard a great voice out of heaven, saying, The tabernacle of God is with men, and He shall dwell with them. And they shall be His people, and God shall be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes, and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain, for the former things are passed away.'

Heaven Not Far

"From the reading of the New Testament, we came to believe that heaven is not far away. With the angel of the Lord, who announced to the shepherds the birth of Jesus, there appeared a multitude of the heavenly hosts, praising God, and saying, 'Glory to God in the highest, and on earth, peace, good will toward men.' When Jesus was baptized, there came a voice from heaven, saying, 'Thou art my beloved son in whom I am well pleased. Jesus said to the hungry multitudes that pressed about Him for food, 'The bread of God is He which cometh down from heaven. I am the living bread which came down from heaven. If any man eat of this bread, he shall live forever.'

"Peter calls attention to his experience on the mount of transfiguration, when with James and John and Jesus, they talked with Moses and Elijah, as they appeared from the heavenly world. In his first epistle he writes, 'We have not followed cunningly devised fables. We were eye-witnesses of His majesty. There came a voice to Him from the glory world. This is my beloved son, in whom I am well pleased. This voice came from heaven, we heard it, when we were with Him on the holy mount.'

"John the beloved apostle bears witness, 'I looked, and behold a door was opened in heaven, and I heard a voice talking with me.' Again, 'There were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdoms of the world are become the Kingdom of our Lord and His Christ, and He shall reign for ever and ever.' And again 'He said unto me, These sayings are faithful and true. I John saw these things and heard them.'

"It is written, 'Jesus Christ is gone into heaven, and is on the right hand of God, angels and authorities and powers being made subject unto Him.'

Paul's Words

"In all literature, no more comforting words can be found, than those written by the Apostle Paul, 'We believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him. For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven, with a shout, with the voice of an archangel, and with the trump of God. And the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we who are alive and remain, shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air. So shall we ever be with the Lord.'

"Two hundred years ago, Isaac Watts sat at his window, overlooking the water and the beautiful scenery, across Southampton seaport, toward the verdant hills of the Isle of Wight. There it was that he penciled that popular hymn, entitled 'A Prospect of Heaven Makes Death Easy.' To this day, the church delights to sing this song:

'There is a land of pure delight, where saints immortal reign,
Infinite day excludes the night, and pleasures banish pain.'"

Student at Study Table Hit by Lightning

Special to The Record News.

CANYON, Texas, Aug. 18.—Acton Donner, student in the West Texas State Teachers college, was stunned by lightning during a rainstorm here last week. Although he was not hit directly, Donner was unconscious for approximately 10 hours after an electrical discharge near his rooming house had put the electric wiring system out of commission.

Donner was sitting at his study table when he was hurt. He was given immediate medical attention and is suffering no ill affects now, his physician said.

Many Guests Enjoy Open House at Club

For the first time since the Fourth of July, open house was observed at the Wichita Golf and Country club Saturday evening. After an almost unprecedented stretch of hot days, the full moon on the greens, the concert in the lounge and the appetizing dinner and enjoyable games and swims, made so favorable an impression, it is reported, that the guests present voted to have another open house on Saturday night, Aug. 24. Members who had not been in the club in months were so interested in the pleasant evening, they stated they wished to repeat it as soon as possible.

Fred T. Couper Sr., presided over the croquet games and the prizes, an attractive smoking set and a handsome Eversharp pencil were presented to Paul Lee of Tulsa, Okla., and his sister, Miss Etta Maud Lee of Muskogee, Okla., who were guests of their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Pate.

W. M. Strachan organized and over saw the putting contests. In the ladies contest, Mrs. C. O. Davis was winner of the ball. In the mixed, Fred T. Couper Jr., and Mrs. C. J. Tate were final winners after a tie with Mr. Jarbo and Mrs. Van Wormer. Fred T. Couper Jr., also carried off the ball in the men's contest, after tying with R. K. Pond.

Bridge, swimming and radio concert furnished amusement for the remainder of the evening.

Dinner was served to over 50 guests at tables set on the wide screened porches. Periwinkles and pink roses were used as centers on each table and a delicious fried chicken dinner served to Mrs. F. E. van Wormer and party, Mrs. Walter Campbell and Jimmy Campbell, Miss Dell Hatchitt, Joe Hatchitt Jr., and party; Messers. and Mesdames J. L. Nelson and party, Irvine and party, J. T. Gant and party, B. B. Bacon and party, H. L. Hunter and party, Fred T. Couper and party, Dan H. Rubsam and party, J. L. Mayfield and party, C. O. Davis, W. E. Fitzgerald, Ralph Pond and Patricia Pond, Miss Retta Barnard and party and Arthur Clark.

Reservations are open at once for the next Saturday evening open house, Aug. 24. Mrs. Helen Kendall, hostess, requests that they be made as early as possible.

Bread An' Jam

A Daily Illustrated Poem For Children

By Wymond Garthwaite

ON GRAMPA'S FARM

A little white kitten am I
(I really am white, after all)
I'm only a few inches high—
But think how I'd look
Very tall!

A fisher-bird we saw
Flew by us with a
"Wh ish!"
I think that he was in
A hurry for a fish.

My daddy fixed a hook
And baited it with bread,
No fishes came, and so
I ate it up instead.

The sun was shining so
I took off all my clothes
So all of me could tan
And redden like my nose.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS L. N. CASON

Up to the year 1750 more than half of all of the books in existence were Chinese. In 1850, China had more recorded literature than any other nation and the world's largest publishing house today is in China. A campaign, we read, is on to teach us more of Chinese culture, one that has flourished continuously for 30 centuries in a country which holds one-fourth of all the people in the world.

◆ ◆ ◆

And then we read of Chichenftza, the holy city of the Mayas. A city of 12 square miles full of palaces, "just one of which, if built today, would cost $32,000,000." A city that suddenly died and lay buried and forgotten half a thousand years.

◆ ◆ ◆

The Mayas are proud of their glorious past without knowing exactly what it was. The Spaniards, entering their country, destroyed their tablets of record. Only the magnificent ruins give an idea of what the ancient people must have been.

◆ ◆ ◆

The Maya religion seems to our mind one of the most blood-thirsty religions recorded. A religion that tore the bleeding hearts from living bodies. But it was so, they worshiped their gods.

◆ ◆ ◆

Some ideal of religion lives in almost every soul. Even in those that deny faith. In time of trouble men cry out to their gods.

◆ ◆ ◆

We remember a story told us by a doctor in the Mississippi delta. A Chinaman by the name of Sam Wing came to the little town and started in business. People coming in contact with him found that he was a man of education and learned that in China, he had been educated for the priesthood. He was a solid, dignified personage, even in his business. The banks trusted him and as he was cultured, he became thrown with the educated and religious people in town and finally joined the Methodist church.

◆ ◆ ◆

After 20 years, Sam had accumulated a fortune. He went back to China and came back to America with a young wife. He was tender with her and gave her, so far as he could, her every wish.

She worshipped the gods of her fathers.

She became very sick. Sam called the doctor who found her in the throes of an agonizing illness. Sam was praying by her side.

◆ ◆ ◆

The doctor did all he could for her, but her pain twisted her body. And in the midst of her agony, she cried out in Chinese to Sam, who rushed to the altar, drew aside the curtain and began burning bits of paper and praying in Chinese.

He had gone back to his first god when the Methodist God did not answer.

Quanah Golfer Recovers From Snake Bite

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, Aug. 18.—Sim Coker is recovering from what doctors believe to have been the bite of a rattlesnake.

While playing golf last Sunday Coker felt a sting on his foot, and thought he had struck a thorn. Later the leg became so swollen a doctor was called and the leg treated for snake bite. The doctors state probably the fangs penetrated the flesh only a short distance, with the most of the poison diverted through the clothing, resulting in a painful but not really serious condition.

Wichita Girls Star In Camp Nakanawa

Ona Bell Britain of Wichita Falls, who has been at Camp Nakanawa, Mayland, Tenn., this summer, has been outstanding in many camp activities. She was chosen as one of the 16 best players who compose the tennis team and has been in several swimming and canoeing meets. In dramatics, she played a leading part in a prize-winning play, Aug. 9, and in the circus, Aug. 10. In the dance pageant, "A Legend of the Sea," Ona Bell will be in two numbers, representing a wave and a pirate.

Among other girls who are spending the summer at Nakanawa are Elizabeth, Mary Jane and Berenice Brown, formerly of Wichita Falls. Elizabeth is a counselor in full charge of music at the camp, including the orchestra and glee club. The other two girls are very active and interested campers who have been prominent in many sports. Mary Jane was elected squad manager by her team, and made the winning varsity war canoe crew. Berenice is a member of the riflery team and has recently received her Red Cross life-saving emblem. Both girls have been in swimming and diving meets, and have taken a great interest in dramatics, Berenice having played the lead and Mary Jane having acted as stage manager and producer. They appeared in one of the most difficult and beautiful numbers in the dance pageant Aug. 17.

Trial Divorces Would Cure Most Marital Troubles

"What We Need Is Not Trial Marriage but Trial Divorce, for if Nine-tenths of the Fighting Couples Were Separated for a Year They Would Kiss and Make Up," Says Dorothy Dix.

Here is a story that a woman told me not long ago that has in it a moral for every disgruntled married couple who is looking wistfully toward the divorce court:

"My husband and I had been married 10 years and had got along peaceably and happily enough," she said, "and I never dreamed but that he was as contented as I was. Then suddenly the blow fell. He told me that he no longer cared for me and had fallen in love with another woman and he wanted me to divorce him so that he could marry her.

"I was stunned, of course, and heart broken, but I had too much self-respect to be any man's duty wife and too much pride to hold on to a man who was trying to get rid of me. So, after I had thought the matter over, I proposed to my husband that we should part for six months and during that time hold no communication whatever with each other. That would give him a chance to find out how deep was his feeling for the other woman and if he still preferred her to me we would arrange the matter decently so as to cause as little talk as possible.

"He agreed to this and I packed my trunk and went to a nice hotel to live. He made a suitable financial arrangement for me and I got the old job back that I had held before my marriage. I didn't wear the willow nor go about weeping on the breasts of my friends and demanding that they mourn with me over the sorrows of a poor forsaken wife.

"On the contrary, I got myself some pretty new clothes and I went everywhere I was invited and because I was being a good sport about being ditched even people I hardly knew went out of their way to give me a hand. So I kept too busy to have any leisure for self-pity and I found out that the world has a number of things in it besides husbands. Especially besides husbands who are in love with other women.

"In all the six months I never wrote or telephoned or spoke to my husband, and when at the end of the probation we met to discuss our affairs I found that he had been completely disillusioned with the other woman and that his love for me had revived and was stronger than ever, and that his one ardent desire was for me to forgive him and come back home.

"But I played foxy. I told him that I wasn't sure of my own feelings; that I had enjoyed my freedom, and that there was another man in whom I had become interested. That settled friend husband, and he started in on a whirlwind courtship that I permitted to sweep me off my feet and in the end I went back and we re-established our home, with no hearts broken. That was five years ago and there is no happier couple than we are, and no husband in the world who is more vamp proof now than mine."

This story confirms a theory I have long held, that what we need is not trial marriage, but trial divorce, for if nine-tenths of the fighting couples who want to break the marriage bond were separated for a year and given time to cool off and think it over they would kiss and make up, instead of wrecking their homes.

The thing that makes husbands and wives get on each other's nerves is seeing each other too closely for too long a time. They get so that they can only behold each other's faults. Every little habit and peculiarity irritates them beyond endurance, and by contrast every stranger takes on an alluring charm. Every woman whom the man only sees when she is dolled up becomes a siren. Every man that the wife only meets occasionally is a sheik.

And it is the same way with domestic life. The home becomes a prison that they hate. All its duties and obligations become loathsome. The man feels as if he was returning to a jail when he comes home at night. The wife feels that she is nothing but a slave doomed to perform an endless round of domestic tasks. Each longs for freedom and the wide-open spaces of the night clubs and cabarets and the wild life that has no fetters upon it.

Also the bored, dissatisfied, disillusioned married couple look upon divorce as a sort of Elysium. They believe that a decree absolute will work a sort of miracle and translate them to a state of ecstatic bliss in which they will have no more troubles or worries and that, above all, it will restore them to their former estate in which they were laughing carefree boys and girls.

Therefore, they rush to the divorce courts and they find out too late that divorce is not the universal cure-all that they thought it was.

The woman who gets a divorce because she caught her husband kissing the cook finds that she has not only lost her husband but she has lost her nice home and a good comfortable living and she has to go out into the world and support herself. The woman who divorces her husband because he doesn't understand her and isn't her affinity and who goes back home to mother doesn't find welcome on the doormat, nor does she find that she can slip back into her old group and be one of the girls again.

Blessings notoriously brighten as they fade and home and home cooking begin to look mighty good to a man who has been accustomed to them, after he has lived for a few months in a restaurant or club where he has had to order his own meals and rub his own rheumatism. Nor does it take a woman long to find out that it is just as monotonous to punch a time clock in an office as it is to answer the alarm clock in the kitchen.

Furthermore, the divorced husbands and wives who marry their affinities discover that they are no easier to get along with, and have just as many faults and eccentricities and as many knobs on their dispositions as their first husbands and wives had. Perhaps more. And they are no better off in their second estate than they were in their first, to say nothing of the alimony and their half-orphaned children.

Sometimes divorce does improve the situation. Generally it doesn't. A trial divorce would give men and women a chance to prove whether they are really temperamentally incompatible, or whether they were just bored with each other and needed a vacation. Therefore, I recommend it to all disgruntled husbands and wives.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Modes of the Moment Appear in Gay Prints

The question before the feminine world of a few seasons ago, was whether or not one should include a printed frock in her wardrobe. So very important is the print this season that the only question the smart woman asks, is how many prints she shall select. Daytime frocks are so simple in line and detail, that the color and fabric are the most important factors. So much style interest has centered in prints, that manufacturers have presented a delightful array of designs, not merely in the tiny florals and bizarre modernistic designs, but stripes, zig-zags, checks and dots are shown extensively for late summer and early fall wear.

Our choice of models today includes three attractive cotton frocks which may use pique, linen, gingham or dimity, and an exquisite afternoon frock fashioned of georgette, chiffon or voile. With these styles, every smart detail of the season is shown, every new line portrayed. Note the varied necklines and different skirt treatments, also the repeated use of buttons as trimming on sports frocks. Waistlines have gone up a bit and find themselves nearer normal than for some time past.

The two wee maidens playing together, are also dressed in dainty printed frocks decidedly different in detail. An air of great refinement distinguishes these fashions which may be made of linen, cotton broadcloth, gingham, percale or pongee. Such fabrics stand hard wear and may be laundered often, so the youngsters of today are no longer admonished not to get their frocks soiled, but may take plenty of exercise and play in the open.

The colors for tots are dainty and gay, most popular being yellow, orchid, rose-pink and red.

PATTERN 1725

This little rig is cunning with its trimming of collar, band and shoulder caps, using a plain color material that harmonizes with the scheme of the print. Attractive, and very smart, are the button hole stitches that finish the collar. We suggest red and white as particularly lovely for this style.

May be obtained only in sizes 2, 4, 6, and 8. Size 4 requires 2½ yards of 36-inch material and ½ yard contrasting.

PATTERN 1727

The other little kiddie is dressed in dotted dimity, a cool, sheer yet practical fabric. The square neck is most becoming, and the bit of shirring or smocking effects delightful trimming at the same time affording ample fullness. Short kimona sleeves are comfy and easy to make. Pearl buttons finish the neck trim. Other suitable materials are pique, swiss, gingham and linen.

May be obtained only in sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8. Size 4 requires 2¼ yards of 36-inch material and one-half yard trimming.

PATTERN 1723

A tuck-in blouse and separate skirt make this stunning sports frock. The V-neck back and front is fashion's newest detail. Banding finishes the neck and shoulder in chic manner. The skirt boasts a wide belt, and front pleats for fullness and grace. Both blouse and skirt may be worn with other garments, thus effecting several changes in frocks with economy. Linen, gingham, shantung, wool crepe or pique may be used in the development of this style.

May be obtained only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 2¾ yards of 36-inch material.

PATTERN 1734

A subtle and decidedly slimming cut has created a most appealing frock in design 1734. Buttons are attached in clever manner creating a coat effect that is always smart. The revers are attractive and quite youthful, yet becoming to the larger figure as well as the slender. Pearl buttons and machine stitching lend that tailored finish that every well made sports frock should have. Suitable materials for design 1734 are pique, linen, shantung, washable motre or wash silk. A print or a plain color may be used with equally good results.

May be obtained only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3½ yards of 36-inch material.

PATTERN 1730

The debutante will adore this simple little frock with rounded neckline and flared skirt. It could be made up in a few hours because of the simplicity of cut and the lack of intricate detail. Yet it is extremely youthful and becoming to slender figures. The neck trim and the belt are smartly finished with attractive pearl buttons the color of the printed design. A charming color scheme would be white pique printed in red flowers, white pique trimming and red pearl buttons. Silk crepe would make a dainty afternoon frock.

May be obtained only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 14 requires 2½ yards of 40-inch material and three-fourths yard contrasting.

PATTERN 1726

For luncheon, afternoon bridge or informal dinners, design 1726 is lovely. The graceful cape collar, so very smart this season, falls over the sleeveless frock creating dainty and becoming trim. Two flared tiers of the skirt create a favorite model for soft chiffons and georgette. Printed chiffons are very fashionable and may be bought in soft, pastel shades or vivid, attractive colorings. Plain color should be selected for the cape collar, one that harmonizes with the ground of the print. White, black and black is very new and very smart just now. The belt is made of ribbon.

May be obtained only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 40-inch material, three-fourths yard contrasting and two yards of ribbon.

These models are easy to make. No dressmaking experience is necessary as each pattern comes to you with simple and exact instructions. Yardage is given for every size. You will be delighted with the fit and simplicity of the patterns.

Patterns will be delivered to you upon receipt of 15 cents in U. S. coins or stamps. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern wanted.

Our fashion book will be sent upon receipt of 10 cents.

Mr. and Mrs. Blakney will go directly to Colorado where they will spend several weeks in Denver and Colorado Springs. They will be at home in Wichita Falls early in September.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 16. (US)—She wore a big sun hat, and gloves, and with a pair of clippers, she moved among the biggest, handsomest dahlias I've ever seen. She was singing softly and as I stood still and stared, she didn't notice that there was anyone present but the flowers.

The flowers, and plenty of bees.

"No, they never sting," said the flower lady, "I just work with them, so there can't be any friction. I'm careful not to hurt them and they reciprocate. It's like that in homes, too," and the dahlia lady smiled. "If you are careful of other people's feelings, you can go along pleasantly anywhere."

The dahlias were of every color under the sun, tiny little fellows and great cabbage-head blossoms. Saucy "Union Jacks," an English breed, white with a red border. "Spiders," or large pink or white ones, which looked like boquets of pink spider legs—not lovely to one who hates crawling things. But the dahlia lady doesn't know what hate is. She says "you get that way working with flowers."

"Wait till I turn off this water," she said. "I get to talking and forget, some of them like more to drink than others. They are like people that way," but she didn't smile. There's no dahlia prohibition. They get what they want, and it's exactly what they need, and they are strong and beautiful.

"What a sin to cut them," I exclaimed, looking straight into the wholesome face of a fat pink flower.

"The way to make them last is to cut just above the leaf joint," said the flower lady, "put them in cold water for a few hours, or over night, and then dip the stems into boiling water for 20 seconds. This seals them."

Mrs. Annie Walker is the lady's name. For years she has lived in a garden in Santa Maria, Calif. Her show garden (she has more than one) is on the main high and there is no protecting fence.

"Don't the motorists steal them?" I asked, showing my Chicago training.

"Never," she said, "I don't think they will, and so they don't. If you just think right you won't have any trouble. Flowers never meddle and they just grow and grow and become more and more beautiful."

And of all the laughable things, I noticed as I left her that there was a street sign at the corner and the street about which all this is true, is called "Broadway!"

Panhandle Steel Products Co. Has Increased Income

The Panhandle Steel Products company, a subsidiary of the Panhandle Refining company, is capitalized at $75,000 and has assets that will run to a quarter of a million dollars. The stock on hand has an estimated value of $125,000.

The gross business of the Panhandle Steel Products company during the first six months of the current year amounted to approximately $300,000.

The Panhandle Refining company has offices in the Panhandle building where it occupies all of the fourth floor and about two-thirds of the third floor. The Panhandle Steel Products company has its offices in conjunction with the parent company. About 75 men are employed in the downtown offices.

There is also an office at the plant where can be found the president, general superintendent and four office men, in addition to the six men employed in the drafting and engineering department. The plant itself employs from 90 to 100 men all the time.

In addition to the preparation of structural steel for all kinds of buildings, the plant turns out oil field tanks and refinery equipment. The business extends west as far as Santa Fe, N. M., east and south to Fort Worth and Waco, as well as northeast to Oklahoma City and southwest to Pyote.

Work in Many Towns

The Panhandle Steel Products company has the largest plant of its kind in Northwest Texas. The average amount of work ahead is for less than two weeks' delivery. Quick results and not excuses is a slogan of the plant and quick action is made to satisfy the customer. All orders when entered are placed on a schedule, which is maintained and enables the company to make definite promises and live up to them. The plant has the equipment to enable it to take care of all jobs without working at night. They find that they get better results from daylight work.

As an indication of the business done by this company, the following is a list of towns in which structural steel has been furnished for schools and auditoriums together with the number of jobs at each place: Wink, Vernon, 2; Graham, Petrolia, McCamey, Oklaunion, Goree, Rock Crossing, Paducah, Harrold, Fort Davis, Dimmitt, Brownfield, Jacksboro, Mangum, Okla., Santa Fe, N. M., and Plainview.

Steel for churches has been supplied for the following cities: San Angelo, Happy, Amarillo and Big Spring, 2.

Structural steel and other materials have been supplied for stores, garages and industrial buildings at the following towns: Estelline, 2; Ardmore, Amarillo, 12; Big Spring, 10; Childress, 2; Floydada, 2; Fort Worth, Paducah, 6, Bowie, Seymour, Plainview, 4; Waco, Grandfield, Okla., Henrietta, Duncan, Okla., 2; Pyote, 3; Vernon, 8; San Angelo, Dalhart, 3; Byers, Electra, 4; Archer City.

Larger jobs were turned out for Temple, Okla., Midland, Texas, Haskell, Iowa Park, Oklahoma City, Sweetwater and Pampa.

Wichita Falls is not named on the foregoing list as the company furnishes practically all the steel used in every kind of construction work in the city.

We Women

By BETTY BRAINERD

Promise This!

Assuming that two people about to be married already love and honor each other, I should like to suggest an addition to the marriage vow, which bride and groom can take up privately before the ceremony.

I'd have all people about to be married solemnly ask each other this question and solemnly swear it: "Do you promise to try never to raise your voice?"

The fact that people raise their voices means that their minds are in such violent conflict that, actually, they have ceased to use their minds. And where there is noise there is fire!

But the question is not necessarily limited to people about to be married. I have an idea that, if solemnly asked and solemnly answered, it would also help a great many men and women who are already married. They know the unhappy significance of raised voices.

◆ ◆ ◆

They know that raised voices mean anger and that anger means lack of self-control. They know it is just as necessary to have two minds functioning effectively and calmly as one as it is to have two hearts beat as one. They know that when married people raise their voices at each other the love in their hearts misses at least a few beats and finally may die entirely.

Such things do happen in spite of the desire at the time of the marriage to love each other always.

Why?

Simply because we are mentally inefficient.

◆ ◆ ◆

Instead of putting our heads together when there is a difference of opinion and reasoning things out calmly, we substitute anger for common sense and shout things out.

Nobody ever got anywhere that way.

Nobody ever will.

And yet many of us continue to raise our voices, knowing full well within our experience that shouting is not only futile but makes things worse! It's truly tragic.

To get hot under the collar is to expose yourself to a sun-stroke of unhappiness. And for such a sun-stroke there is often no cure at all except divorce. And divorces are not caused primarily by a lack of love but because the mind failed to function effectively first.

It is when reason fails that love fails.

IVORY SOAP CLEANS UP

Daily Editorial

IVORY SOAP, after floating everywhere else, now floats a block of its securities on the New York stock exchange, to hob-nob in the stock-ticker with sugar and spice and a score of noted grocery specialties at which high finance once wrinkled a snobbish nose.

But banking has lately discovered that there's no income so sure and regular as the yield from household favorites.

Depression may halt steel output and crop shortage reduce car loadings—war may interrupt trade relations and diminish the cargo and passenger receipts of steamship lines—or drought play Old Harry with the implement game.

The saturation point will some day be reached in automobiles. Present radio, telephone and power systems exist under invention's Sword of Damocles—at the mercy of shrewder robots and subtler forces.

But the cook stove, the wash-basin and the bath-tub are bound to consume their daily quota of suds and shortening—no matter what happens.

Man must wash and eat. Appetite and cleanliness precede lesser needs.

So it was inevitable that investment should finally enter the kingdom of kitchens and laundries.

The Woolworth building hinted how fast nickels and dimes accumulate into star-ticklers and national store chains.

Palmolive's stupendous structural gesture in Chicago suggested how many women aspire to "that school girl complexion."

BUT IT WAITED upon the Proctor & Gamble balance sheet to really measure the importance and immensity of the soap industry.

The fact that practically every newspaper, billboard, magazine street car and theater program between the two Portlands has carried P. & G. copy, year in and out, vaguely indicated the dimensions of the concern.

But even at that, America was scarcely prepared for the information, that its growth has been so widespread and intense as to develop a two-generation project into a Titan—jingling revenues that several kingdoms might envy—and with a book valuation of $660,000,000.

Other factories had access to the same raw materials.

Thousands of competitors began with more capital and gave their publics a pure, reliable article.

But they didn't believe as earnestly in their wares—or plow profits back into printer's ink.

They didn't sufficiently confide their reputations to publicity.

So, one by one, they surrendered prestige and dominance to more aggressive and progressive methods.

To borrow a famous agency's phrase, "Keeping everlastingly at it" has kept Ivory Soap afloat. And in $660,000,000 demand.

The boot-hill of advertising is filled with dead accounts—but every tombstone, there, is marked, "Here lies a quitter."

200 Attend Farm Meet Held at Frederick

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Aug. 18.—More than 200 were present at a meeting of the Farmers Cooperative Grain and Cotton company held Thursday night in the high school auditorium. H. M. Joyce, manager, gave a report of the year's business which was shown to be in a sound condition. Spirited talks on cooperation were made by W. L. Hutcheson, one of the directors of the Oklahoma Cotton Growers' association, and L. L. Kinder, president of the Farmers Cooperative Grain and Cotton company.

Ice cream, cake and pop were served by employes of the Farmers Cooperative Grain and Cotton company to the guests.

DAVID BRANCH'S DAILY FILOSOFY

"He who recognizes his mistakes and profits by them is wise."

Do not worry about the fellow who is conscious of his own mistakes. Just give him time and a little encouragement and he will come out all right.

Pullman porters, in mass meeting at Chicago, agreed that tipping was an insult. Well, most of us can spend the rest of our lives apologizing.

"The first 50 years are the hardest," says Nicholas Berens of Stevens Point, Wis., who has been a barber that long. We don't imagine that's any soft soap either.

On a per capita basis an average of 205.4 telephone conversations are held by the people of the United States every year. Believe it or otherwise, that's no cheap talk.

More people were killed in New York streets in 1928 than in the famous battle of Bull Run. Indicating that the battle of Pedestrian Run was much worse.

Tom Ashe found a kettle containing 16,000 silver dollars in an old stump on his farm at Beach Ridge, Ky. How's that for "pot luck?"

When a phone girl goes to sleep at the switch it stops her train of thought.

This Machine Age and Individualism

THIS is the age of big corporations, merged business and gigantic industrial enterprises. Some quite intelligent folks have told us that the individual no longer amounts to much; that he is simply a cog in the huge machine of modern industry. They hark back to the good old days when they say there was more individualism and when each man was his own boss. They tell us that greater opportunities existed then for young men to achieve success through individual efforts.

But are they correct?

Don't they fail to realize that men and women—individuals—are back of our modern giants of industry? These huge enterprises did not just happen to come into existence or grow to their present size. Many of them are the fulfillment of the dreams of individuals—the culmination of their individualism. For after all big organizations are individuals—not machines.

Big business enterprises cannot coast along in machine-like fashion. Business competition today is too keen for that. Individual directing efforts are necessary for progress and the very size of modern business organizations calls for the most skillful individual efforts in this respect. The modern automobile is an efficient machine, but it doesn't keep on running forever. Individual attention is necessary to keep it operating efficiently, and the same is true of big business.

Many a successful executive of a large enterprise will tell you that the biggest problem of his corporation is manpower. What does he mean? Simply this—that the number of men capable of displaying that individualism necessary to fill prominent executive positions is always less than the demand. Business is constantly on the lookout for promising young men. It is willing to give them every opportunity to display that ability and if the young man shows over a period of years that he has that individualism necessary to executive success, he will be rewarded far more liberally than in the old days.

Individualism is not only necessary in the more responsible positions of a business, but it pays dividends to the so-called "cogs" in the machine. Consider the large number of prominent business men today who have worked up from the humblest jobs to positions of great responsibility and financial success. It was their individualism—their unwillingness to be just a cog—that made that success possible.

American business of today has expanded so that it offers millions of opportunities to young men to demonstrate their individualism. Just remember that gigantic industrial enterprises are the result of individualism and that they are still made up of individuals.

Respect for the Courts

NEWTON D. BAKER, defending a Cleveland editor from a charge of contempt of court, declared that a court can best inspire respect and admiration, not by punishing those who criticize it, but by gaining a reputation for wisdom, fairness and poise.

That is a point that is worth emphasizing. The power of a judge to punish for contempt of court is often used to make a judge's actions immune from criticism. And the judge who abuses his power in that regard is doing far more to bring his court into contempt than the man who ventured to argue with him.

As Mr. Baker points out, if a man be a judge, and another man thinks him an improper person to be a judge, the judge does not become proper by restraining the man who thinks him improper from expressing his opinion.

A Notable Record

EVERY AMERICAN who ever contributed funds to Near East relief can take pride in the figures presented by that organization as it surrenders its charter and withdraws from active existence.

In the past 10 years Near East relief saved 1,500,000 lives, gave relief and education to 132,000 orphaned children, furnished medical assistance to 6,000,000 persons and fed 12,500,000 in times of famine.

That is a record probably unique in world history. The men and women in charge of the work, as well as the countless thousands of people who contributed the funds that made it possible, can take extreme pride in it.

WOMAN HURT IN ACCIDENT

Mrs. M. S. Larche Struck By Automobile

Mrs. M. S. Larche, 2708 Grant street, suffered fractures of the left leg and arm when she was struck by an automobile as she was crossing the street in the 3100 block on Grant street about 6:20 o'clock Sunday night.

The injured woman was taken to the Wichita General hospital in an Albert's company ambulance. The fractures were of serious nature, physicians said, but no internal injuries were found. Further examination will be made later.

Mrs. Larche is the wife of M. S. Larche, who operates a barbecue concession at Lakeside park. The name of the driver of the automobile was not ascertained and officers were not notified of the accident, indicating probably that no blame for the accident was placed upon the driver. Mrs. Larche was crossing the street and was looking at another car coming from the opposite direction, it was reported. She stepped directly into the path of the oncoming car and was struck to the pavement before either onlookers or the driver of the car realized that she did not notice the approach of the machine.

CHILD INJURED IN FALL FROM CAR

The two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Young, who live on Fort Worth street, suffered minor cuts on the head and face when she was thrown from the car in which she was riding with her parents near the corner of Sixth street and Ohio avenue about 9:15 o'clock Sunday night.

The injured child was taken to the Wichita General hospital in an Albert's company ambulance, but her parents took her away before medical aid could be administered, attendants stated. Her injuries were thought to be superficial. Mr. Young operates a filling station in the 400 block on Fort Worth street, it was reported. Motorcycle Officers Howard Peters and J. H. Pogue investigated the case.

Rains Benefit Crops In Randall County

Special to The Record News.

CANYON, Aug. 18.—The moisture in Randall county of last week up to Thursday amounted to 3.75 inches, which was increased Thursday night with a rain amounting to 1.25 inches and another on Friday night amounting to .15 of an inch.

Every section of the county has received a good rain, although the southeast section of the county was not so well covered as other sections of the county.

Plowing of sod and wheat land is in progress in every section of the county. It is predicted that Randall county will have a larger wheat acreage this fall than in the history of the county.

CHATTY—GODDESS OF GAB

By BEATRICE BURTON, Author of: "HER MAN," "HONEY LOU," "SALLY'S SHOULDERS," "MONEY LOVE," "LOVE BOUND," ETC.

COPYRIGHT 1928, CENTRAL PRESS ASS'N INC., CLEVELAND, OHIO.

Her head went back against his shoulder

READ THIS FIRST

Charlotte Chatterton, nicknamed Chatty, is a born gossip. Her mother, a widowed dressmaker, has one wealthy customer, Mrs. Van Nuys, and through her Chatty gets a job as switchboard operator in the Van Nuys bond house. There she meets and falls in love with David Jordan, handsome young bond salesman, and becomes jealous of his friendship with Agnes Herford, Mr. Van Nuys' secretary.

Billie Langenau, who works in the office, comes to live in the flat across the hall from where Chatty lives. Chatty's brother, Pud, goes to high school and works evenings in Ben Tomlinson's drug store. Chatty learns that he delivers gin for Ben, and begs him to stop before he is arrested, but Pud refuses to do it.

One day Chatty sees David hand a note to Agnes Herford. Jealous, she goes through Agnes' desk to look for it. It is a simple message about some bonds, but in hunting for it Chatty finds Agnes' diary, filled with the story of her love for her employer. Chatty tears some of the pages out, and sends them to Mrs. Van, and Agnes is discharged. Dave Jordon, alone knows that Chatty is responsible, and he drops her. Winnie Talcott, the office "vamp," gets Agnes' position. Winnie gets quite chummy with Chatty, and at a party Chatty meets Bryant Dunning, a new bond salesman. Winnie shows Chatty how to paint her face and "doll up." Bryant is married, but tells Chatty he has left his wife.

Agnes calls at Chatty's house and tells Chatty that Mr. Van had never suspected she was in love with him until the diary turned up. Agnes says she has seen Mr. Van at his office, and Chatty promises not to tell Mrs. Van about Agnes. Mrs. Van tells Chatty's mother that she is going away for a while. Chatty guesses it is because of the note about Agnes she mailed a few days before.

A girl phones David at the office, and Chatty "listens in." He catches her.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER XXIX

Chatty was so ashamed at being caught eavesdropping that for a minute she hadn't a word to say for herself.

She just looked dumbly into Dave Jordan's angry eyes, and his face that was red with his fury.

"What kick do you get out of all this busy-body stuff, anyway?" he asked her. "Poking your nose into other people's affairs, all the time? Do you enjoy it?"

He spoke to her slangily and crisply, much as Pud might have spoken during a quarrel.

And Chatty answered him exactly as she would have answered Pud.

"Oh, Fish!" she said, impudently. "What difference does it make if I overhear your girl friends trying to date you up? Are they so important, or are you?"

She turned her back on him.

But he did not go away.

"I want to see that you get off that line," he said, and he stood there behind her, waiting until she finally did get off the line where he and his girl were talking.

Then he went back to his desk and finished his conversation. It did not take him long—only a minute or two.

Chatty sat wondering whether he had made an engagement with the girl for that night or not.

He was nothing to her any more. And yet, somehow, it filled her with a dull kind of unhappiness and jealousy to know that he was going around with other girls every night in the week . . . Lovely, idle girls, who had nothing to do all day but telephone their men friends and get dressed to keep dates with them in the evening.

"While I have to work all day in a dirty, dusty office," thought Chatty. "Work, work, work, from nine to half past five, every day, just like an old office machine!"

It wasn't fair!

But if she worked hard all day, she certainly played hard half the night lately.

For Bryant was one of those people who don't know how to have a good time alone—and he was a born play-boy.

He never read a book, so far as Chatty knew. He never sat down to talk seriously about anything. He would not even go to a movie unless it was a comedy.

At half past five every night he was always ready and eager to step into his green roadster and start off for something to eat—something to do—somewhere to go.

"These fellows who hang around the office late at night, making dates for the next day, or checking up client lists, give me a pain in the thorax," he said to Chatty late that afternoon, when he was sitting on the corner of his desk, waiting for her to leave her switchboard and put on her hat.

MONDAY—19 .....

"You mean me?" Dave Jordan sang out at him from his own corner of the room, where he was at work. "Because I'm not staying late tonight . . . I'm going out for dinner with some friends."

So then he had accepted the girl's invitation for that night!

"Oh, why should I care?" Chatty asked herself. "Why should I care what he does? It's Bryant that I care about."

"I'm ready now," she said aloud to him. "All through with the job, and all ready for the evening! Oh, isn't the end of the day lovely? Nothing to worry about until tomorrow morning!"

In the cloakroom Billie was putting on her little blue hat before the long mirror. She looked white and tired as if the heat of these long summer days wore her out.

"Going home with me?" she asked, when Chatty opened the door and came in. "I should think you'd want to go home and get into something cool. My clothes are just sticking to me."

"So are mine," laughed Chatty. "But the coolest place in weather like this is an open car. Bryant and I are going somewhere for something to eat. But first of all we'll drive like the wind and cool off. Lend me your little mirror for a minute, will you?"

She walked over to the windows and holding the mirror in one hand, began to paint her lips with the other.

"Chatty," Billie said, after a little pause. "Do you really like Bryant and Winnie—or do you just go around with them because you had a fuss with Dave Jordan? Just to show him that you don't care about him?"

Chatty laid the lipstick and the mirror down upon the window sill. She put her head to one side considering.

"I don't know," she said, slowly. "Of course, I wanted to show Dave that I wasn't going to die on the vine, just because he didn't like some things that I did . . . But I do like Bryant, heaps. He's so wonderful looking, Billie, and such heaps of fun. No girl could help falling in love with him if he wanted her to." Her voice became soft and dreamy as she spoke.

"You mean if he made love to her?" asked Billie stolidly. "You mean if he tried to make her fall in love with him?"

Chatty didn't know what to say to that.

"Because that's the cheapest kind of love there is" Billie went on, picking up her mirror and putting it in her bag. "And it's dangerous, too. You see, you may think you're crazy about a man who's making love to you—when all the time you are just in love with the thrill he's giving you."

Chatty only half listened to her. Her mind was on Bryant waiting for her out in the big office.

And so she paid no attention to Billie's advice. The best advice that any woman can give to another.

"It's called 'being in love with love,' I believe," Billie said. "It was the reason for that marriage of mine—and so I know what I'm talking about, Chat. Never imagine yourself in love with a man unless you like his brains as well as you like the way he kisses you. Never think you're in love with him unless you can enjoy just talking to him as much as you enjoy letting him put his arm around you."

But even then, Chatty wasn't listening to her.

She was pulling her little black silk hat down over her forehead, and flattening the little blond curls of hair that lay against her cheek, and dusting her nose once more with flesh-colored powder.

"Good night, Billie," she called over her shoulder as she ran out of the room. "I'll remember your good advice, sweet darling!"

She hadn't really heard it!

By 9 that night she and Bryant had had their dinner and a long, refreshing drive through the country roads.

By 9 the moon had come up, making everything as light as day, and the roads were jammed with automobiles.

"This is no fun," Bryant complained. Here we are, stuck behind a lot of these 10-mile-an-hour drivers . . . May as well go back to town, hmm?"

And to Chatty's enormous disappointment he turned in at the next side road and swung his car around towards town.

She always hated to leave him. Always hated to have the evening come to an end, and to have to go back to the small, hot flat on Lipton street.

"Listen, Babe, we could go up to my flat and make a pitcher of lemonade, couldn't we?" Bryant asked, suddenly.

His arm was around her, holding her close, and her cheek almost touched his shoulder. They nearly always drove like this—close to each other.

"Oh, no," said Chatty. "It would not be the thing to do." She shook her blond head that shone like polished metal in the moonlight.

"Please, Babe. We never really get a chance to be by ourselves," Bryant pleaded. "We're always out on some crowded road like this or in some hot roadhouse . . . Gosh, I like to be quiet once in a while."

He turned his head swiftly, to see how close the car in the rear was. Then he bent down and kissed Chatty full on the mouth.

"Please, Babe," he begged, his arm drawing her closer to him than before. "Let's . . . We can stop in some store and buy some lemons and sugar. And we could have a cold drink up in my flat, and you'd be home by half past 10. What harm would there be in it?"

Chatty's head went back against his shoulder, and she sighed.

"There wouldn't be any harm in it, really," she said. "Only it isn't the proper thing to do, and I know it. But I'll do it, anyway . . . Bryant, kiss me one more time."

TEXAS INCOME TAXES SLUMP

Dallas District Records Marked Decrease

Special to The Record News

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—There was a 17 per cent reduction in federal income taxes collected in Texas during the fiscal year 1929, ending July 30, compared with like taxes collected for the preceding year. This was revealed in a statement issued by the treasury department today showing Texas income tax collections, from the two districts in that state, were $37,703,785, compared with $45,659,115 for 1928.

Of the Texas income tax collections $20,709,581 was derived from prorations and $16,994,203 was paid by individuals. In addition there was $1,762,153 paid the federal government as miscellaneous taxes on stock transfers, internal revenue on tobacco and cigar manufacture, theater admissions and so on.

By way of comparison, total collections for the nation at large were $2,939,054,375, or a gain of $148,518,837. Although substantial reductions were shown for both Texas districts, the collections for the second district, with headquarters at Dallas were the most marked. The report shows collections in this district during the last year were $17,961,536, whereas in 1928 collections from the same district were $24,019,022.

Collections in the first district, with headquarters in Austin, were $21,504,402 for 1929 and $23,313,505 for 1928. Thus the loss in the first or Austin district was but 8 per cent while that in the second or Dallas district was 75 per cent.

There was about $100,000 difference in the collection of miscellaneous taxes from the two districts, the first producing $933,365, and the second $830,788 of these miscellaneous taxes $1,117,304 was derived from the federal inheritance tax on estates of deceased Texans during the year.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—More Coney Island social notes, recorded by the Billboard.

Zenda is one of the classiest mind readers on the island . . . Frank Bowen has purchased the astrology business of Professor Ragab, deceased . . . Joe Pizzolo, Bowery concessionaire, has abandoned the funnels and has installed the cat game (which is all Greek to me) . . . Rabu, the man with the iron tongue, is substituting for Jolly Ollie at Dreamland. Jolly is suffering from a slight attack of appendicitis . . . Roman Debes has been operating the coal mine in Luna park for 25 years and shows no sign of weakening.

Life of the Party

A friend of mine, a retired business man who retired to have a good time, has sadly learned that he can't be the life of the party unless it's a purely amateur undertaking. Recently he went on a cruise to Porto Rico, and if it hadn't been for him everyone on board would have died of ennui. It was one of those cruises where the voyagers had no spontaneity, and my friend's gaiety was a godsend. At the end of the trip everybody vowed he'd had the best time in his life, so officials of the line came to the jay boy with a proposition. Would he care to be "cruise director" and master of ceremonies for some summer trips to Canada and Nova Scotia? He had nothing to do, so he signed on.

He quit at the end of the first trip. As soon as he turned professional he developed stage fright, and couldn't raise a laugh.

The business of being master of ceremonies, incidentally, provides pleasant summer vacations for many stage entertainers. Night club performers and dancing teams are willing to take relatively modest salaries plus room and board at exclusive resort hotels.

Far From Home

Speaking of night clubs, a funny thing happened the other night in one of the few cabarets remaining open during the hot weather. The telephone rang, and a former habitue of the establishment said:

"Hello. This is Jack. I'm out in Hollywood."

The proprietor, who had answered the call, replied:

"Well, whom did you want to talk to."

"Anybody" said Jack. "I'm lonesome."

A Criticism

One of our recent distinguished visitors was M. Pierre Labric, mayor of the free commune of Old Montmartre in Paris. That office is akin to being mayor of our own Chinatown or our Essex street, in that it is a purely honorary position. In his more serious moments, Monsieur Labric is an editor of the Petit Parisien, but he'd rather talk of Montmartre. He came here this time to warn Americans against the night clubs of his famous community. "They are robbers' dens," he said. "Paris should not be judged by them—any more than I should judge America by the lights of Broadway."

Which, in its way, must be a criticism of Broadway.

Grand Opera Supers

The opening of summer grand opera gives a chance for the Metropolitan supers to earn some extra money. The "Met" is closed a long time—from early spring until late in the fall—and the outdoor opera at the Polo grounds comes like a heavenly gift to the boys who fill in the stage chinks when the big spectacles are put on.

These "Met" supers are proud of their jobs. They can tell you all about the operas, and how the singers rate in their estimation. They get a dollar a night whether their work is long or short. Naturally, they prefer such operas as "Tosca," where the big scenes are over early and the stars sing out the climaxes to an all but empty stage. And their special detestation is "Carmen" which winds up in a grand riot, with everybody in the company on the stage in the final scene.

Some of these "supers" have been appearing on the Metropolitan stage for years. One of the oldest is a street cleaner. After he gets through dodging autos in the streets during the daytime, he rubs with Gigli, Martinelli, Bohnen, Jeritza, Bori and all the other great ones. Some college boys try "supering," but they are in and out. The "regulars" are there year after year, perhaps because they revel in the artistic atmosphere and perhaps because they need the dollar a night—who knows?

Supers' Pay

Taking part in an operatic production does not place one under the jurisdiction of the Actors' Equity association, and for this reason the pay is low. Equity has a firm grip on nearly every type of stage amusement in New York, outside opera and vaudeville, and the lowest pay for a super in an Equity chorus is $35 a week. But the actors' union has jurisdiction only over shows produced in English, and somehow even the few English operas, like Deems Taylor's "The King's Henchman," have escaped falling under union rules. When Morris Gest staged the Freiberg Passion play at the Hippodrome recently, there was considerable indignation in the chorus profession because Equity salaries were not paid—but nothing could be done about it, because the Passion Play was performed in German.

She: Have a hard day at the office?

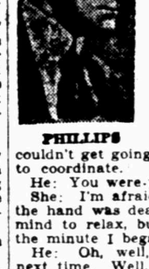

He: Pretty difficult. I was in trouble most of the time.

She: What seemed to be wrong?

He: I dunno. I just couldn't get the feel of it. Everything I did I foozled.

She: You just had an off day, that's all.

He: I don't seem to be consistent any more. When I go to the office now I never know what I'll do. I may be good or I may be awful.

PHILLIPS

She: Perhaps you're just overworked.

He: Perhaps. What's new at home, dear?

She: Nothing much. I played bridge at the Pedgett's this afternoon.

He: Did you win?

She: No; I just couldn't get going. I couldn't seem to coordinate.

He: You were probably pressing.

She: I'm afraid so. Every time the hand was dealt I made up my mind to relax, but I tightened up the minute I began to play.

He: Oh, well, you'll do better next time. Well, let's sit down to dinner. What are we having?

She: A lovely roast. You carve, dear.

He (as they sit down): What knife is this?

She: That's a No. 4.

He: Do you think I can do it with a No. 4?

She: It ought to if you play it right.

He (hesitatingly): No, I think I'd better use my No. 5. I tried my No. 4 the last time and got into trouble.

She (obstinately): On a short roast like that a No. 4 is the right knife.

He (after carving): Pretty terrible, isn't it? What did I do?

She: I told you you shouldn't have used a No. 5.

(After dinner.)

He: Well, what are we doing tonight, hon?

She: We're going over to the Meevishes for cards.

He: Are the Meevishes difficult?

She: I never played them before.

He: I'm never any good on a strange course. Have we got to dress?

She: I'm wearing my No. 6 gown.

He: I suppose I'll have to crawl into that darned No. 8 suit.

She: If I were you I'd try your No. 9. You did very well with that the last time.

(They summon a taxicab.)

He: How far is it to the Meevishes, Lydia?

She: About 8,000 yards.

He: Straight ahead?

She: No; it's a dog-leg.

He: You give him the direction.

She (To the driver): See that tall chimney down there?

Driver: Uhuh.

She: And see those trees to the right?

Driver: Yessum.

She: Well, drive straight between 'em.

(They go.)

Lubbock Grain Exchange Busy

Special to The Record News.

LUBBOCK, Texas, Aug. 18.—Inspections at the Lubbock grain exchange during July this year have more than doubled the number of cars inspected for July, 1928, R. R. Stuard, inspector, states.

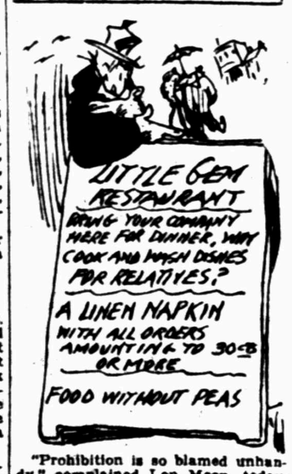

The Texas testing laboratories, located adjacent to the inspection headquarters, is making protein tests on each car inspected. W. A. Fix is chemist. The laboratory is a branch of the concern having headquarters at Dallas.

With facilities for making inspections and protein tests both here at Lubbock, this city offers the best that can be obtained at any inspection point in the nation.

Organized a little over a year ago the Lubbock grain exchange is making rapid progress and will continue to increase its volume of business as it becomes better known in grain circles and as shipments of grain in and out of Lubbock increase.

Raynaud's Disease

So many correspondents have written to me recently about Raynaud's disease that I have decided to give my readers some information about this disease, principally to help in the recognition of this disorder so that the more severe cases can be prevented.

When one discovers a coldness and whiteness of the toes, fingers, tip of the nose or ear lobes, it is a sign of poor blood circulation to these parts. These symptoms may be the forerunner of what is known as Raynaud's disease but, of course, thousands of people have such symptoms in a milder form which never develop into a definite disease.

If the circulation to the extremities remains poor over a long period of time, there will gradually develop more numbness and stiffness in these parts. When Raynaud's disease finally develops, it will be possible to prick the toes or fingers which are affected and have no blood flow. The disease has quite fully developed in such cases.

Raynaud's disease usually comes on before 30, and children or even infants may have it. The most usual exciting causes are exposure to cold and sudden nervous depression with those of a neurotic temperament. Whatever will produce a poor circulation in the extremities may be the forerunner of this disease.

Lack of vigorous exercise must be stated as the principal cause of poor circulation of blood. Next in importance to this is a general sluggishness of the blood circulation in the tissues due to morbid material in the blood stream.

After Raynaud's disease has fully developed, it is sometimes possible to bring about a cure, but the results from treatments are often discouraging. Massage will be found very good for helping to restore the circulation. Sometimes cold wet sheet packs may be used with advantage. The diet must always be corrected and special attention paid to promoting good bowel elimination.

There are special electrical treatments, such as with diathermy, which will temporarily restore a good circulation to the affected parts. For home treatments, it is sometimes advisable to give the patient several hot and cold baths daily, using a hot tub bath for about five minutes and then a cold one for two or three minutes, completely immersing the body each time.

Raynaud's disease is a very serious disorder, and after it is fully developed the services of an experienced physician should be employed in order to decide upon the best treatment.

The best I can hope for in this article is to warn all of my readers to see that they do not allow themselves to develop a poor circulation. If the toes and fingers are pink and full of blood, the circulation to all other parts of the body will be equally as good. If good diet rules are followed and vigorous exercise taken each day, one never need fear the development of Raynaud's disease or any other disease caused by a faulty circulation of sluggish blood.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Abscessed Kidneys

Question — Mrs. K. L. G. asks: "What is the cause of abscessed kidneys? What are the symptoms? How can the trouble be remedied?

Answer — Such kidney trouble sometimes develops simply because the kidneys are overworked and are forced to eliminate poisons which should be thrown out through the intestines. Another cause is from the irritation of kidney stones. An abscessed kidney is always a serious trouble, and each case must be properly diagnosed and treated accordingly. Don't expect the trouble to cure itself until you remove the cause and take the proper diet or use what other remedial treatment is necessary.

Chewing Gum

Question — N. E. W. asks: "Is chewing gum ever beneficial?"

Answer — Chewing gum is beneficial to the gums, increasing the circulation of blood through these parts. Those who are troubled with excessive gas will sometimes notice that they have more gas when chewing gum. This is due to the swallowing of the saliva which contains an alkaline called ptyalin. This makes carbon dioxid gas as it comes in contact with the stomach acid. This difficulty can be avoided if the saliva is not swallowed.

How to Take Enema

Question—J. K. L. writes: "Kindly give explanation regarding enemas. How to be taken, with hot or cold water, and how much water?"

Answer—If a quart of tepid water is used there is no danger of your ever producing any intestinal injury through the taking of enemas; but too much water may be harmful, and also if it is too hot or too cold. It is best not to use soap, salt or anything else which may be irritating.

Frederick Plans Watermelon Feast

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Aug. 18.—Two thousand bills were printed Friday advertising the watermelon feast to be given at Burt lake by the Frederick Chamber of Commerce Wednesday afternoon, Aug. 21. Chief speaker for the occasion will be S. I. McElhoes of Oklahoma City, attorney for the Southwest Light and Power company, who will speak on "Rural Electrification." He will be introduced by Joe Moore, president of the chamber of commerce. His speech will be followed by a round table discussion.

A tug of war, swimming and aquatic stunts will take up the time until 5 o'clock, when 450 watermelons will be served by members of the chamber of commerce and their families to farmers and their families and residents of other towns in the county. About 45 melons will also be given to the colored residents of this city.

All melons used will be purchased from farmers of this vicinity and kept on ice several days before being served.

SPUDS FALTER BEHIND PAYNE'S UNSTEADINESS AND LOSE, 6-2

GLAZNER GETS 4-HIT VICTORY

Hermann's Loose Fielding Helps Steer Cause

Special to The Record News.

DALLAS, Aug. 18.—Noted as the worst looking ball club in the Texas league when they're losing and one of the classiest looking aggregations in the minors when they're winning the Wichita Falls Spudders were at their very lowest ebb here Sunday afternoon and they fell before the Dallas Steers in the opener of their three-game series, 6 to 2. They looked terrible as they committed a half dozen boots in the field and were set down with four measly hits by the veteran righthanded curve ball artist, Charlie (Whitey) Glazner, who himself hasn't been doing so good of late.

Even the old master, George Washington Payne, was shoved into the debacle. He opened the game but retired with the score 4 to 0 against him before he retired a hand in the third inning and he was charged with the defeat. It was his third loss of the second half and the second time that he has had to give way to another pitcher in any game in which he has participated since July 2, the first day of the last half in the butchered season.

Apparently the big fellow was too badly overworked, for he didn't seem to have much of anything on the ball and the Steers took a keen liking to what little he did have. This game broke a magnificent record hung up by Payne in that up until Sunday he had finished every one of the last 11 games he had started and in only one had he got as bad as a tie. He had won 10. His record for the season is 22 victories and 10 defeats.

Glazner Is Master

Even had he been right today, however, it is doubtful if he would have won, for his mates were all but helpless before the pitching wizardy of Glazner. He gave up only one hit and walked only one man in the first six frames. With the aid of a double play and his own genius in picking a runner off first, he breezed through the first six and two-thirds stanzas facing only 20 men.

Not a Spudder reached second base until the seventh, when Fitzgerald singled through the right side of the diamond after two out and moved up to the mid-way station when Bennett walked. Sullivan followed by fouling out to R. Moore and the first Spudder scoring threat was thwarted.

Glazner again turned the leaders back in order in the eighth but wobbled in the ninth and it cost him a shutout victory. He walked Bettencourt, leading off by batting for White, and the runner was sent to third by Benton's single through the right side of the infield. Turgeon struck out swinging on a high inside pitch. The bases were loaded when Fitzgerald walked and Bennett all but undressed Jeffries with a terrific bounder through short that scored Bettencourt and Benton and sent Fitzgerald to third. Sullivan and Hermann were unable to help the Wichita Falls cause along, however. The former fouled to R. Moore and the latter popped to Jeffries, ending the game.

Steers Take Early Lead

Dallas got off to a two-run jump in the first inning. Flaskamper singled to right and stole second after Rosenthal popped to Stapleton. R. Moore hit a two-foot outside pitch down the left field line for a double, scoring Flaskamper. J. Moore singled to right, sending R. Moore to third from where he scored when Sullivan bobbled the ball. J. Moore stole second but Jeffries and Ratcliff were easy outs.

Payne struggled through the second but again was given a hot reception in the third. Hermann watched Rosenthal's fast roller breeze by him for a double and R. Moore clouted a two-bagger to left center, scoring Rosenthal. J. Moore's single to right counted R. Moore and sent Payne to the shade. White went in and wild pitched J. Moore to second but he then pitched out of the hole.

Hermann's second error donated another score to Dallas in the fifth when he booted J. Moore's easy hopper after one out. Jeffries grounded out and Ratcliff beat out a roller to first, J. Moore taking third and scoring when White dropped Stapleton's toss which reached first too late to retire the batsman. Jeffries' double to left and Ratcliff's hit, a bounder that Hermann should have handled with ease, got another tally in the seventh. Aside from committing three clean errors, Hermann let the same number of balls get by him for hits that any average good thirdsacker should have handled.

6,700 See Pastime

Some 6,700 Dallas fans were greatly heartened by the outcome of the game, taking it as a sample of what might happen in the playoff for the pennant. They had some reason to be optimistic, too, in view of the fact that the Spudders were on the field with full strength while the Steers were presenting a patched up team with a rookie on first base, two regular infielders, Flaskamper and Jeffries, playing out of position, and an outfielder, Randolph Moore, playing third.

By getting only one hit in three times up while Jim Moore was getting two out of four, Red Bennett saw his league batting leadership tied. Both players now are clouting at a .380 clip.

Probably starting pitchers for the second game Monday are Andy Messenger for the Spudders and Victor Frasier for the Steers.

GOLF'S AMATEUR Challengers

ARTHUR YATES

By BRIAN BELL

NEW YORK, Aug. 18 (AP)—Arthur (Ducky) Yates may share with Cyril Tolley, the British champion, the honor of being the biggest man in the amateur championship.

The Rochester player uses his tonnage to drive a terrific ball from the tee and through the fairway.

He created a sensation in the last amateur when he defeated George von Elm, second only to Jones as a popular choice to win, in the first round, 3 up and 2 to play.

Ducky fell in the next day before Phil Perkins, the British amateur champion, 2 to 1. He lost in the second round at Minikahda in 1927.

Should the luck of the draw array Tolley against Yates the customers will get their full money's worth for these two giants, each displacing more tonnage than Babe Ruth, will drive thousands of yards in an afternoon's play.

Mrs. Fisk Beats Mrs. Washburn in Novel Match

Driver and putter proved superior to bow and arrow in a novel contest yesterday morning, when Mrs. R. R. Fisk, the golfer, defeated Miss Kathryn Washburn, the archer, over the course of the Weeks Park club. Mrs. Fisk won the contest, 2 and 1, in which superb golf and shooting was displayed by the respective exponents of each pastime.

Mrs. Fisk proved her right to rank as one of the foremost women golfers of Wichita Falls with her card of 83, which equalled women's par for the public course.

Miss Washburn, who operates the archery range at Lakewood park, was called upon to shoot at a four-and-a-half-inch bull's eye on an 18-inch target. A bull's eye counted for sinking a putt in one while hitting the target gave her a two for the putt. She shot several bull's eyes and displayed a highly pleasing mastery with the weapon of the ancients.

The match was followed by a gallery of more than 75. It was staged by Phil Hesler, professional of the Weeks park club.

Chicago Grid Coach Has 67th Birthday

CHICAGO, Aug. 18. (UP)—The "grand old man of midway," Amos Alonzo Stagg, dean of American football coaches, celebrated his 67th birthday today, partly by beating his 20-year-old son, Paul, at a game of tennis.

Next Sept. 15, Stagg will begin his 40th consecutive year as coach, 38 of which have been at the University of Chicago.

He wanted to become a Presbyterian minister but was persuaded instead to coach football. His first championship team was produced in 1896 and his last one in 1924.

Winner of Walker-Lomski Go Tonight May Be Next Light Heavy Champion

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—In the City of Brotherly Love, which is Philadelphia, two first class fighting men meet Monday night in a battle that will have some little bearing on the light heavyweight championship when, and if, Thomas Loughran resigns the title.

Mickey Walker, middleweight champion of the world, and Leo Lomski, called the Aberdeen assassin, are the parties of the first and second parts. They are fighting at the Sesqui-Centennial stadium, scene of the first battle between Mr. James J. Tunney, formerly Gene, and Jack Dempsey, and my operatives advise me that the show will draw a nice fat gate.

It would probably draw a lot more in Los Angeles or Chicago, where both men are good cards, and it might draw more in New York. But I am told that it is being pitched in Philadelphia because of the friendship of both managers for Mr. Max Two Boos Hoff, who is said to be the real promoter of the affair, though his name isn't up in lights.

In any event, it ought to be one of the greatest fights of the semester. Both Walker and Lomski are punch hurlers. They attempt no fancy boxing. They just walk out there and let 'em fly. Walker is the better puncher of the two, but Lomski will have something on him in the matter of weight. With Thomas Loughran out of the frame, I would say that the winner of this fight has a very good claim on the light heavyweight title.

I judge from the fact that the ubiquitous Jack Kearns has lately been seeking matches for Walker with light heavies that Mickey finds the middleweight limit somewhat onerous. He is a poor hand for training at best, especially when he has to make weight, and the Jersey Irishman probably finds it more comfortable to step inside those ropes without having to worry about his poundage.

He had the same trouble with weight when he was a welter as he seems to be having lately as a middle. When he lost his title to Pete Latzo he got down to 144 pounds, and Walker couldn't fight a lick at that notch, although it hadn't been but a couple of years previous to that battle that he was one of the greatest 147-pounders the game has ever seen.

If he could whip Lomski, I imagine Walker will claim the lightheavy title, and abandon the middleweights entirely. I didn't see his fight with Thomas Loughran out in Chicago, but they tell me it was very close. A lot of spectators thought Walker entitled to the decision, and Davey Miller, the referee, voted for him.

Walker has been one of our greatest ring gladiators of the past 20 years. He won two world's titles and any man who can do that is necessarily a great fighter. Both his titles were legitimate, not of the made-to-order variety. I think he would have been a greater fighter had he gone to the post oftener, but from his welterweight days Mickey has been inclined to indolence.

Leo Lomski is of the mauler type of fighter, dead game, and very willing. He is not a great puncher, but he is punching all the time. You rarely hear of him being in a slow, dull battle. He had Thomas Loughran down on his haunches twice in their battle in Madison Square garden for the title, and Loughran had to use all his generalship to save himself from a knockout.

PANTHER NET PLAYERS WIN

Fort Worth Cops 7 Out Of 8 Matches Here

Fort Worth tennis players won seven out of eight matches yesterday in intercity play with Wichita Falls. Ed Bebb was the only local racqueteer to win a match, his victim being S. P. Adler.

Tom McCarty extended Quinn Connelly to three sets and Raymond McPhail also took a set from Jack Ferree before acknowledging defeat. In other singles matches, Charles Ewell defeated Charles Cook, Jack Smith defeated B. B. Toone and Wilbur Hess defeated Ralph Anderson.

Hess and Smith disposed of Thornton Davis and McCarty and Adler and Ewell defeated Cook and Bebb in doubles.

The matches were played on Junior college courts.

Concerning E. T. Collins

There is one man in baseball who has figured in as much team strength through his career as any one you might think of, off hand. His name is Edward Trowbridge Collins, now one of the board of strategy of Mack's Athletics.

Collins was a star member of Mack's old guard, one of the greatest teams ever gathered. Later on he was a star member of the White Sox, a team that by 1919 was also among the most powerful of all line-ups, in spite of the world series scandal that later on wrecked it. Few appreciate the real strength of that outfit, a ball club that could win almost any time it cared to win. Now the same Eddie Collins is hooked up with another winning team, hooked up on the mental side rather than the physical.

There is still a strong argument as to whether Eddie Collins must be listed as the greatest of all-time second basemen. He could not quite hit with Lajoie, but he could outhit Johnny Evers, another leading rival. Collins combined more stuff than either Lajoie or Evers. He was smart, shrewd, fast, a brilliant infielder, a fine base runner and always a dangerous hitter. He was faster than either Lajoie or Evers and at his peak came as close to combining all the qualities as any rival star you can name. Collins was a great ball player for nearly 20 years, not only a winning type but also a type that has been a credit to his game. He will feel at home in the atmosphere of another world series since he took an active part in six of these post-season championships before joining up with Mack.

Collins and Kid Gleason have had to wait 10 years since the White Sox smear of 1919 before inhaling the fragrant odor of world series coin and glory again, but they have nothing on Mr. Mack himself, who has had to delay his shot at the main October fanfare for 15 seasons.

The Walk Over Ends

If Miss Betty Nuthall around the age of 18 can carry Miss Helen Wills two extra game matches and make the affair nip and tuck, it isn't difficult to foresee her future possibilities.

Miss Wills has improved vastly since she was 18. This being so it is evident that Miss Nuthall at 18 is a better tennis player than Miss Wills was at the same age. It has been a long time now since any one carried the war so deep into Miss Wills' territory. She has dominated the game for women to such an extent that no one else was supposed to belong on the same tennis reservation. But any young star who can take away 12 games in two sets from the Californian is on her way to the top. At least the material is there for great days to come. There is still the need of more hard work and more competitive experience, but another year or so should give the English girl her chance.

Down the Stretch

These dispatches have contended for some time that in spite of illness and a lagging start, Babe Ruth would overhaul all the home run makers before October. He was running second at this date last year, but the gap was fairly wide when the season ended.

Ruth has too much in the way of power and timing to be headed off yet, if he has his chance. One of the main factors for Ruth's hard hitting is that he can swing a 52-ounce bat with as much speed and as much ease as other ball players can handle a 40-ounce bat. He has exceptional use of his hands, which are big and strong, and yet have a sensitive touch. It is this hand deftness that also made him a great pitcher and a fine outfielder. With a pair of clumsy hands he would have been only an ordinary ball player. The part the two hands play in sport is often overlooked. The hands alone are in contact with a baseball bat, a tennis racket or a golf club and they have the final say in both power and control.

MALONE BESTS BENTON, 1 TO 0

Cubs and Giants Engage In Old-Fashioned Duel

NEW YORK, Aug. 18. (AP)—Perce Malone, speed ball master from Chicago, revived memories of 20 years ago at the Polo grounds today when he engaged Larry Benton of the Giants in a duel which saw the two pitchers almost completely master each other's supporting cast. It might have been Brown against Matty, or Pfeister against Ames from the way Malone and Benton wove their spell with a 1929 jackrabbit ball.

Malone was the victor by 1 to 0, and the Cubs edged half a game further from the pursuing Pirates who idled in Philadelphia.

The break came in the seventh when Kiki Cuyler opened with a double and completed the journey on sacrifice flies by Stephenson and Heathcote. Score:

BRAVES SHADE REDS

BOSTON, Aug. 18. (AP)—Hank Gowdy, catcher of the world's champion Braves in 1914, who has not had an active big league season for five years, entered the Boston lineup today and got four hits in four times at bat against Cincinnati. The Braves won a slugging match by a 10-9 score. Gowdy is battery coach of the team.

Rabbit Maranville, a star with Gowdy in 1914, knocked in four runs. The Braves used four pitchers, Seibold getting credit for the victory when his team scored five times in the eighth. Score:

FLOYDADA TO GET FREE MAIL

Service Is to Begin On Sept. 1

Special to The Record News.
FLOYDADA, Texas, Aug. 18.—Free delivery of city mail will become effective in Floydada Sept. 1, according to J. D. Starks, local postmaster, who completed a survey of residents this week to determine whether there were 85 per cent of the citizens who had erected boxes in preparation for the service. It was found that 92 per cent of the entire territory to be served had fulfilled the requirements of the government and erected mail receptacles.

Petition for the mail delivery was made during 1928 by the chamber of commerce. The service was not requested until it was found that all houses had been numbered, all street names erected, sidewalks built, postoffice receipts well above the requirements and the majority of the people desired the service. Following this survey the postoffice department granted the petition provided 85 per cent of the residents in the territory to be served erected mail boxes in order to get the service.

A campaign by chamber of commerce members was waged and the successful outcome can be attributed to the committee composed of the following: S. W. Ross, Roy Eubank, A. A. Bishop, J. V. Daniel, E. L. Norman, E. C. Thomas, O. M. Watson and H. L. Crow.

Worms Infest Cotton Fields

Special to The Record News.
QUANAH, Texas, Aug. 18.—Worms are damaging the cotton in fields in the eastern part of Hardeman county around Chillicothe, and also in Foard county, according to farmers, who state much of the cotton has nothing left but the stalk after attacked by the worms.

Oldtimers state this is the first time in history they ever saw the worms so active during hot, dry weather. It is reported that even before the showers last week when cotton was wilted and suffering from the intense heat these insects were working in several localities.

Cotton in the western part of the county has suffered considerably on account of lack of moisture, as this part of the county has no received the rains that other sections of the county has had during the past three months.

ODD FELLOWS MEET PLANNED

Vernon Delegates to Attend Crowell Session

Special to The Record News

VERNON, Texas, Aug. 18.—Several Vernon lodge workers are on the program for the annual convention of the Lower Panhandle association of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs which meets in Crowell Wednesday and Thursday. A large delegation of Vernon people are expected to attend the convention.

Memorial services will be given at the convention by the Vernon Rebekahs. Mrs. Bertha Ross of Vernon will respond to the welcoming address on behalf of the visiting Rebekahs.

The convention will be called to order by Mrs. Lillie H. McNeely of Wichita Falls. The invocation will be given by Chaplain W. W. Griffith of Crowell following the singing of America.

Mayor C. T. Schlagal of Crowell will give a welcoming address which will be responded to by W. A. McIntosh of Memphis. Clara Oswalt of Crowell will welcome the Rebekahs. Grand Master Barry Miller will give the address of the opening session. Lunch will be served the delegates at the First Baptist church.

Mrs. Jessie N. Ross of Amarillo, Ray Rector of Stamford and Whit Davidson of Dallas will speak on the afternoon program which will be closed by the memorial service put on by the Vernon Rebekahs.

A special assembly of the grand lodge and Rebekahs will be held before adjournment. A program given by the young people of the Odd Fellows home at Corsicana will be one feature.

An instruction talk will be given Thursday morning by Mrs. Ada Ramsey, past president of the Rebekah assembly.

Nations Struggle For Prestige At The Hague Parley

By GEORGE W. HINMAN JR.

THE HAGUE, Netherlands, Aug. 18. (US)—With the Young plan and related issues crowded into the background by the dramatic struggle among the great nations for world prestige, Europe's widely-heralded liquidation conference enters the third, and what undoubtedly will prove to be the decisive week.

For the first time in recent years, France, although the world's greatest military power, fails to occupy the center of the international stage.

The England of Premier Ramsay MacDonald and Chancellor Philip Snowden, and the Italy of Premier Mussolini and Alberto Pirelli, are the two outstanding champions as The Hague conference of 1929 enters upon its final phase.

This does not mean that France, having accepted as inevitable the early evacuation of the Rhineland, has also succumbed to the British demands in the financial field. No, indeed. France continues to battle—but the French punch is gone.

Anyone, circulating among the French delegation, would be impressed by their low morale. They are fighting a defensive battle, hoping for, but not really expecting, some miracle to turn the tide of conflict.

College Correspondence Courses in Demand

Special to The Record News.

CANYON, Texas, Aug. 18.—The bureau of public service at the West Texas State Teachers college is receiving daily calls for bulletins on correspondence and extension work. The indications are that hundreds of teachers over a wide area will rapidly begin enrolling for such courses immediately after the opening of the fall session of the college, Sept. 18.

Rev. A. G. Partridge, of England, is on his way to Tristan de Cunha, "the world's loneliest island," where he will take charge.

Was Just Like Throwing His Money Away

"Orgatone Has Done More for My Wife Than All Other Treatments She Ever Took," Says Wichita Man

"Orgatone has certainly done fine work for my wife and I'm glad to recommend it to others who may be suffering like she did," said F. P. Robinson, a valued employe of the Denver railroad, who lives at 2006 Filmore street, Wichita Falls, Texas, while in Allison Drug store for more of the medicine recently.

"My wife is strong, hearty and full of life and energy now," continued Mr. Robinson, "and is several pounds heavier than she was the day she began taking Orgatone. She had suffered from headaches and biliousness for 10 years and had become almost a nervous wreck. Her stomach was so out of order that everything she ate hurt her. At night, especially, she would have sick dizzy headaches, couldn't get any sound sleep and was tired and languid all the time, and fell off in weight rapidly.

"I paid out hundreds of dollars for treatment and medicines of various kinds, and it was just like throwing my money away, as for the good it did her. It's the truth, five bottles of Orgatone have done her more good than everything else put together. Her weight has already increased to 135 pounds and this fact alone is proof of the fine work Orgatone has done in correcting her troubles and putting her system in good shape. But that isn't all; she has a splendid appetite, eats anything she wants and is like a different woman altogether. Her nervousness and headaches have disappeared and she sleeps like a healthy child every night. The gas has stopped forming on her stomach and she's never bothered now with biliousness. She is stronger and better off in every way right now than she's been in the past 10 years and I'm obliged to say a good word for Orgatone."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific bile treatment and is sold in Wichita Falls exclusively by Allison Drug store, 716 Indiana avenue.—Adv.

QUANAH GETS FIRST BALE

1929 Bale Comes in 12 Days Earlier Than 1928

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, Aug. 18.—Quanah's first bale of new-crop cotton was brought in 12 days earlier in 1929 than the first bale in 1928. Both were grown by G. McFadden on the old Scates farm south of Lazare in the southwest part of Hardeman county. The cotton was ginned Thursday by the Farmers' gin recently purchased by Hendrix & Dossett, and was purchased at the gin for 18 cents a pound. A purse of $65 was made up by the businessmen and presented to McFadden.

A second bale was picked by A. R. Cokendolpher and ginned at Goodlett the same day. This cotton was also purchased by Hendrix & Dossett for 16 cents a pound.

McFadden brought to the gin 1,476 pounds of seed cotton, which ginned out a bale of 475 pounds, classed strict middling. The bale from Goodless classed strict low grade.

First bales in other years were as follows:

August 25, 1925, by Homer Scates.
August 18, 1926, by Homer Scates.
August 23, 1927, by C. B. White.
August 27, 1928, by G. McFadden (on Scates farm).

The third bale arrived Friday morning, raised by J. W. Smith on the old Tom Ford place northwest of Quanah. The bale weighed 453 pounds and was ginned by the Farmers' Co-operative gin. This bale will be placed in the pool of the Co-operative society for sale.

Neely of Henrietta, Texas, formerly pastor of the First Christian church of Quanah, officiated. Mrs. Tillery has been in ill health for a long time. She is survived by her husband, W. F. Tillery, and two sisters and two brothers, George and Edwin Johnson, who reside here.

Randall County Fair Exhibit Is Planned

Special to The Record News.

CANYON, Texas, Aug. 18.—W. H. Upchurch, county agent, is working on the gathering of farm products for the Randall county exhibit to be shown at the Tri-State fair in Amarillo next month.

Mr. Upchurch states that the county exhibit will not be shown separately at the Dallas fair as in the past, but that it will be combined in the all-Panhandle exhibit to be shown at Dallas under the auspices of the Panhandle-Plains, Inc.

SHRINE LUNCHEON

Entertainment features of the regular luncheon of the Maskat Temple Shrine luncheon club next Tuesday noon in the temple auditorium will be in charge of members of appointed committees, according to Albert Ellis, recorder. All local and visiting Shriners are invited to attend the luncheon.

It is to be hoped that the reception afforded Richard Dix in his talking picture, "The Wheel of Life," may register in Hollywood not only as proof of his good vocal quality for this dramatic field, but also as a guide to casting him in future productions. The more serious, restrained role of Capt. Leslie Yeullat much better befits Dix than that of the loyal young redskin or the galloping gridiron hero.

The Strand presents this week one of the best balanced and most uniformly appealing programs shown this year. Choosing its title from a symbolic decoration said to be found in Buddhist temples of the east, the feature picture presents a plausible story of a young captain who recognizes in the wife of his commanding officer in India the beautiful young woman for whom he had performed an heroic service in London. The love which has only lain dormant during separation precipitates a dangerous situation, and the young captain bravely obtains transfer to a remote post. An expedition for the rescue of an English party which has encountered hostile natives fatefully brings the lovers together again, for the young wife is numbered among the besieged. Faced by impending death, they swear their love.

◇ ◇ ◇

For the lovers, that was a sad and happy ending and it may be admitted that such suicidal carelessness on the part of No. 3 in many really existing triumphs would contribute commendably to the sum total of human happiness. Still, and at the same time, Colonel Dangan being a seasoned veteran, practiced in caution, and aware of the wily Indian's base motives—would he have so accommodatingly darkened that window? The scenarist tells us Colonel Dangan accidentally stopped a stray bullet, but we don't believe him; we shall always remember the colonel as the first middle-aged husband who deliberately threw himself into the dust to make more beautiful the roses along the path of young love.

◇ ◇ ◇

The pleasing departures from the usual night-club orchestra to which the Vitaphone vaudeville films have been more or less enslaved are also offered at the Strand; not merely offered, but well taken. Offenbach's "Tales of Hoffman" and the sextet from "Lucia" have been used with only sufficient Viennese setting to introduce six very good voices in delightful parodies.

"That's an awful way to treat us,
When you promised that you'd meet us."

has little to do with the opera "Lucia," but serves pleasantly to bring an ensemble of excellent voices to the screen in that colorful score.

◇ ◇ ◇

The other is a domestic comedy strongly reminiscent of the entertainment afforded more than a decade ago by the famous Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew. And almost invariably they were "Mr. and Mrs." with characteristic Drew finesse in picturing those amusing little flares peculiar to monogamic existence.

◇ ◇ ◇

And over at the Gem, Victor McLaglen returns to the city in "Hangman's House." Second to "What Price Glory," this picture presents McLaglen most forcefully as a dramatic actor. His fists play not so much a part, but he gives the character of a revengeful hunted man no less punch than his mighty fists have carried, both in real and screen life.

◇ ◇ ◇

Buddy Rogers, who six years ago was famous dramatically only in a Kansas high school, has risen rapidly to stardom upon such outstanding performances as "Abie's Irish Rose." As the thundering and dangerous "notorious Colonel Blake" in "River of Romance," at the Majestic. Buddy assumed a new and heavier assignment, from the standpoint of character portrayal. A strong array of talent in well-acted supporting parts contains no threat to steal the show from Buddy.

Cows Invade Feed Bin; 12 Gorged to Death

Special to The Record News.

CANYON, Aug. 18.—Twelve good Jersey milk cows are dead as the result of getting into the feed bins at the H. H. Gillham place south of Canyon. Mr. Gillham valued the cows at more than $1,500.

Mr. Gillham states that only one cow survived, after being gorged with barley. Had a good veterinarian been available, Mr. Gillham believes the cows would have been saved.

Progress of Canyon Rotarians Checked

Special to The Record News.

Members of the executive committee met with Governor Bryant at 10:30 o'clock and went over in detail the organization of the local club.

SARTIN TELLS OF MIGRATIONS

New Beginnings Subject Of Bible Class Talk

"Migrations which represented the movement of peoples into new lands where new beginnings in life might be undertaken comprise the central theme of the Old Testament," Judge B. D. Sartin said before the Men's Bible class, of the Highland Heights Christian church Sunday morning in a talk on "The Return From Captivity."

The return of the Hebrews from Babylon to Jerusalem following their captivity, the speaker said, furnishes a striking illustration of the hand of God moving over the nations of the world, and exemplifies the significance of a new start.

Text of Address

The text of Judge Sartin's address follows:

"The great central events in the Old Testament history are the migration of Abraham from the land of Urf of the Chaldeans to Canaan, the migration of Jacob to Egypt, the exodus from Egypt, the conquest of Canaan, the establishment of the monarchy, the division of the kingdom, the fall of the northern kingdom and the fall of the southern kingdom, and last the return from exile. Of these events, we today study the last, which is presented in prophecy, in history and in song.

"Great must have been the astonishment of Cyrus when the prophet Daniel presented to him the book of the prophet Isaiah and read to the king the first few verses of the 45th chapter and Cyrus found that he was mentioned by name in that old Hebrew document, and described as breaking the 'brazen gates' of Babylon; as receiving the 'hidden riches' of Croesus and other wealthy kings; as God's appointed instrument in setting His people free. Great must have been the impression, too, that was made on Cyrus when he learned that the God of Daniel was the Creator of light and darkness, that in Him all move and have their being.

"So Cyrus frees the Hebrew nation. He not only grants their freedom but gives aid to their return and to show his gratefulness for their blessings brought to his life and nation, returns to them the sacred vessels taken from the holy temple at Jerusalen by Nebuchadnezzar, and which had been defiled by the impious hands of Belshazzar.

Cyrus' Part

"The part that Cyrus played in the return of the exiles and in aiding the rebuilding of the temple at Jerusalem should forever banish the doubt that God rules in the affairs of the nations today.

"America is God's instrument to give freedom and liberty to the oppressed nations of the world. We must accept the challenge that we enjoy in the family of nations. America is making the grandest and most noble experiment that any nation has ever attempted in the cause of prohibition and temperance, and if America fails, then the world has failed for America is the hope of the world. Western the course of civilization has made its way, out from the dim recesses of the orient, through China, Egypt, Babylonia, Medo-Persia, Greece, Rome, France, England to the land of the free, America, has come the course of civilization. We have moved west from the banks of the James, the Connecticut and the Hudson, to the Ohio, the Mississippi, and today our nation reaches from the Atlantic to the blue waters of the Pacific. Civilization cannot advance further. It has made its course around the globe, and with each new start in a new land, has had a new beginning. But it must make good now. America is God's last chance for saving the world! What a great responsibility and what an inspiring challenge! The privilege of making a fresh start for God!

Always a New Leaf

"Nations and civilizations have gone on the rocks and may be found as wrecks on the shores of Time. But God has repeatedly given them a fresh start. As with nations so is it with individuals. There is always the happy thought of a new leaf and a new beginning—the privilege of making a fresh start. Someone has said that opportunity knocks at man's door but once but Christ stands at the door of the heart and knocks repeatedly. He offers a fresh start in life.

"The apostle Paul said: 'This one thing I do, forgetting the past, I press on towards the mark of the prize of the high calling in Jesus.' In making a fresh start, it is so essential that we forget the past, that we erase the slate clean and start with a new page in life, that we do away with evil associates, and that we keep company with God."

KIWANIS LUNCHEON

Members of the Kiwanis club will hear an address by Dr. Q. B. Lee at the weekly meeting to be held Monday noon at the Kemp hotel. Entertainment will be furnished by Ernest Reeves, yodeling tenor of the KGKO staff, who will be accompanied by Miss Lorene Tucker. The program has been arranged by Ro Haynes, secretary.

Door Bell Serves as Fire Alarm To Save Occupants of Apartment

The insistent ringing of a doorbell in an apartment on the first floor of the Kemp Kort apartments, Tenth and Travis, about 3:15 a. m. Sunday awakened persons asleep in a nearby room and averted what may have been enormous fire damage and property loss.

Flames which originated in a corner of the hall on the first landing of the stairway spread to the door of an apartment and were gaining headway rapidly when the insulation on two wires leading to the doorbell inside the apartment was burned away, allowing contact of the wires and consequent ringing of the bell. The occupants of the apartment were awakened by the bell and immediately began putting water on the flames.

The fire department was called and the flooring and walls were torn away to ascertain that the fire was not smouldering below the floor or between the walls. Damage amounted to approximately $50, the door, casement and floor having been badly damaged. It was thought that a cigaret tossed into the corner had ignited the varnish, which had been put on the floor a few days ago, and spread upward to the door.

STATE RAIL HEADS HERE

Gilmore and Terrell Head Bus Party

A party of 21 persons from Austin, headed by Clarence E. Gilmore, chairman of the state railroad commission, stopped for a short time in this city Sunday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock, en route by bus to Glacier National Park, Montana.

Of the party, Mr. Gilmore and Vernon Terrell, also a member of the railroad commission, will attend the national assembly of state railroad commissioners, to be held in the park. Remaining members of the group joined the two commissioners in chartering a heavy bus, and are making a three-weeks' vacation trip in connection with the trip to the convention.

Mrs. Gilmore, Mrs. Terrell, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Teer and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Cons and daughter, Mrs. Will McCaleb, and Mr. and Mrs. Mark Marshall were among the Austin tourists.

DEATHS

CHARLES C. DAVIS

The body of Charles C. Davis, age 45, of Louisville, Ky., who died in a local hospital about 2 o'clock Saturday night, will be forwarded to Louisville Monday by the Hines mortuary. Funeral services and interment will be held in that city.

MRS. DAVIE B. MALONE

Funeral services for Mrs. Davie B. Malone, age 18, of Dallas, who died in that city Saturday morning, the body having been forwarded to Wichita Falls Saturday night, were held from the chapel of the Hines mortuary at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon with Rev. L. S. White, pastor of the First Church of Christ, officiating. Interment was in Rosemont Burial park.

Mrs. Malone is survived by her mother, Mrs. Laura Dennis, 606 Travis street, and a cousin, Mrs. Pearl Hearndon of Dallas.

Shriners to Stage Frolic at Lakeside

Maskat temple Shriners, wearing their fezzes, will stage a frolic and dance at Lakeside park next Friday night, it has been announced by officials of the temple. Swimming and amusement on the various concessions at the park will be included and a dance at the pavilion will be open to the public.

A concert by the Shrine band will be given at the openair coliseum at 9 o'clock, between the two performances of the regular musical revues. Leon Taylor, band director, will be in charge of the concert.

TO CONFER DEGREES

The degree team of Wichita Falls chapter No. 202, Royal Arch Masons, will confer the degrees of past and most excellent master at a meeting of the chapter in the lodge rooms Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock, it has been announced.

Folk Dance Feature Of Vaudeville Bill

One of the features of "Dance Night," to be presented as the weekly free vaudeville bill at Bellevue park Wednesday night, will be a "butterfly folk dance" by six girls, between the ages of eight and 10, pupils of Mrs. Beatrice Fleming, it was announced Sunday by C. C. Bunnenberg, city park superintendent.

The small dancers are Treva Wallander, Margaret Heath, Marcel Ford, Margaret Martin, Henrietta Snodgrass and Juanita Ford. Several other special dance features will be included on the program, some of the acts being combinations of dances and other entertainment. Emmett Walsh, Wichita Falls' "boy song bird," who has recently returned after an absence of two years, will be presented Wednesday night in a number of vocal solos.

St. Louis Veteran Cited for Bravery

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12 (US)—Award to George M. Hagee of St. Louis, lieutenant of the 138th infantry, 35th division, during the World war, of the citation of the silver star for gallantry in action near Cheppy, France, Sept. 26, 1918, was announced by the war department today.

Hagee, observing a machine gun nest which was playing havoc with an attempted advance, organized a group of several men and by a flank attack upon it captured the nest with several prisoners despite severe wounds to himself.

FAIR PLANNED AT WELLINGTON

Mile-Long-Parade to Be One Of Features

Special to The Record News.

WELLINGTON, Texas, Aug. 18.—Inquiries coming to the chamber of commerce office denote much interest and enthusiasm in the mile-long-parade to be one of the features of the Collingsworth county fair. Business firms, county and civic organizations as well as communities and individuals are all putting forth an effort to make the parade one of the greatest ever to be held in the Panhandle.

A number of towns including Hollis, Shamrock and Childress are planning to enter a band in the parade to assit the Wellington band to properly do homage to the numerous entires. Rural schools in the county are getting ready to enter "rural school floats" which will not only be beautiful and pleasing but effective as prize winners. Each of the four classes in the Wellington high school are working to put one over on the other classes to be represented by the high school floats. The women of the various club of the country are getting material together and plans are going forward to show something with their step-saving kitchen and living room floats. A number of other civic clubs are busy working out details for their educational float with which they hope to show the service of their organization to the community. Census enumerators are already at work in a number of the rural communities gathering data to see if they can enter the largest representation in the parade. Business firms and individuals are lending every effort to make this parade the best to ever be staged in Wellington. There will be plenty of music, plenty of fun, plenty of excitement all along the whole mile of the parade. It is one of the free attractions which goes with the fair. The Wellington Chamber of Commerce will maintain a service department to assist those who desire information concerning this parade.

5,358 Attend Sunday School

August Inactivity Again Reflected

Maximum activity in getting away for vacations and minimum activity in organized endeavor within the city, both peculiar to Wichita Falls' Augusts, were further evidenced by reduced Sunday school attendance on Aug. 18. A total of 5,358 pupils present in 29 local schools represented a loss of 237 in comparison with the record for Aug. 11.

The largest single gain recorded Sunday was that of the South Side Baptist church school, which was raised from 149 on Aug. 11 to 173 on Aug. 18.
