

Two Annual Club Events Are Announced

Other Parties Are Forecast For Week

Annual parties that are attended by club women, and which are usually scheduled during the fall months, continue to be given here.

Two such parties were announced this morning, along with a number of other affairs for the week.

Women in the 1915 Needle society are to attend a luncheon at 1 o'clock Wednesday at the Hilton Hotel. On Wednesday evening, members of the Congenial club and their husbands are to attend a party in the home of the Marion Howards, 1917 23rd street. Hostesses for this occasion are to be Mesdames R. L. McAllister, Howard, Tom Foster and E. C. Henley.

To Have Series

A number of other parties were announced this morning for the week, in addition to the ones forecast in Sunday's calendar. Mrs. Carl D. Brands and Mrs. S. J. Boller are to entertain with bridge on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons at 3 o'clock in Mrs. Brands' home at 1504 Avenue Q.

This evening, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Murdough and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Shelton are to be hosts to a few friends with bridge in the Shelton residence at 2427 19th street.

A club event of the week will be a party on Thursday afternoon for Congenial club members that is to be given by Mrs. H. L. Allen in her home at 2122 17th street.

Texas P.T.A. In Annual Convention

SAN ANGELO, Nov. 17 (AP)—Study of educational exhibits and routine matters occupied the opening day's program of the twenty-second annual convention of the Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers association here today.

Approximately 500 delegates had registered in the early hours Monday, a special train from Houston bringing in about 200. San Antonio and Dallas, trying for next year's gathering, have the largest delegations here.

The executive board, with all of its 13 members present, went into session at 9 o'clock, with only routine problems to be discussed. District presidents met at 10 o'clock. There are fifteen districts in the Texas organization.

Entertainment today includes a drive to Sanatorium this afternoon and a banquet at 6:45 this evening. Mrs. Noyes Darling Smith of Austin is presiding.

Studio Recital Given On Saturday

Mrs. John L. Ratliff presented a group of pupils in studio piano recital Saturday afternoon in her home at 2413 19th street. Those who played were Johnnie Dell Borders, Harry Jarroti, Sybil Clay, Frances Clays, Charles Norman, Catherine Perry, Ruth Leberstein, Sidney Leberstein, Anaseth and Buddy Jones, Rosebush Smith and Dorothy Busby.

SPUR, Nov. 17—(Special)—M. L. Glass, formerly of Crowell, has moved to Spur and is opening up a photograph studio here. He was in business at Crowell for many years.

A Roman Holiday

When not in Rome, this is how the Romans do. Smiling Signorina Marie Viry Androneno, away from the Italian capital on vacation, here is pictured at the Lido in Venice, where she has been buying short in the bathing suit market. The costume's of lace, not like grandmother used to wear. If she's going home soon, it'll be no wonder that all roads lead to Rome!

NEWS BRIEFS

Engagement Announced For Former Beauty At Tech College, Miss Hutto

BIG SPRING, Nov. 17 (AP)—Gordon "Obie" Bristow, captain of the University of Oklahoma football team in 1924, and Miss Estelle Hutto, daughter of the late Thomas Hutto, prominent Howard county ranchman, are to be married. Their engagement was announced here Saturday.

Bristow, who lettered in three sports at the University of Oklahoma, was chosen All-Missouri Valley fullback in 1924, a year memorable for Oklahoma's first victory over Nebraska, a 14-7 triumph in which "Obie" played a stellar role. He became a front page celebrity last spring when he flew to Mexico to the rescue of his father, J. E. Bristow, of San Angelo, Texas, held captive by Mexican bandits, and succeeded in obtaining his release.

Miss Hutto is a former student of Texas Technological college and was prominent in social activities during her stay here. She was honored with a page in the beauty section of La Ventana, yearbook of the college, in 1927.

Miss Hutto was a member of Sns Souci, social club on the campus.

MAY WED THIS WEEK

SAN ANGELO, Nov. 17 (AP)—Relatives of Gordon Bristow said here today that his wedding to Miss Estelle Hutto probably will take place this week. Gordon is now in Fort Worth.

In Black, White

The ever popular black and white color scheme was never quite so favored as it has been and still is during this fall. It has appeared in the guise of all black costumes with white lingerie collar and cuffs and white gloves and various other subtle touches.

As pictured, it comes boldly forth in black spots on a white ground and white on black, to form a goodly portion of a frock, as well as in narrow bandings on cuffs, tie and hat.

Rita LaRoy, screen player, wears this very smart costume with its scarf collar, with the long the sailor sleeves, flared skirt and polka dotted section. Black shoes, white pull-on gloves and black hat with narrow white bandings are the accessories.

La Cenicienta Meets On Thursday

A Smashing Serial Of Football And Love

'MUD AND GLORY'

Written for the Lubbock Daily Journal and King Features Syndicate by James M. Neville. Copyright by King Features Syndicate. All rights reserved.

SYNOPSIS

Terry Malone and Red Thomas, freshmen, both aspire to Princeton's football crown and the love of Margot Blair, young society girl. Red, a bully, breaks Terry's arm causing him to leave college. A year later he returns. Red, now a sophomore, is Princeton's hope. He is suspended for six months and Terry is substituted on the team. His playing makes him a national hero. Margot loves Terry, but, realizing he is no matrimonial catch from a financial standpoint. She decides to give him up.

Terry and Red, striving for the captaincy of the Junior team, control their dislike for one another.

Red's bragging annoys Terry.

CHAPTER XXI

But the two arch enemies just couldn't get along. The rough cordiality of Red Thomas, so attractive to silly debutantes and rich men with a penchant for associating with sporting celebrities irked Terry beyond words. Red had a line of snappy jokes, boasted of his experiences with neglected married women, chorus girls and Trenton women of notorious reputation with an easy pride in his prowess with the ladies that offended Terry's fastidious ears.

Terry couldn't stand such talk and there was no shutting him up once he got started. His dullness of intellect and colossal conceit made him impervious to the delicate digs of Sonny and Dan and Burne. His loud voice, bellying with unrestrained laughter, was a weapon against which Terry had nothing to counter. So he desperately tried to control himself, subduing his animosity with silent ridicule and flattering his self-esteem by every display of vulgarism on Red's part. He explained his disgust to his mother in a long, intimate letter. She came right back at him.

Dear Terry:

Your last letter upset me. I didn't think you would permit Red Thomas to worry you this way. Keep your head up, lad. Remember the words of Kipling's "If."

I know it has a youthful touch for a blue college junior but Kipling knew the struggle of man with himself. This animosity between you and Red has ceased to be a battle with external forces. It has become personal, mental.

The conflict is a most natural thing. Each of you is the other's complete representation of all that is disliked: a collection of characteristics that has caused the opposing forces to bristle. Contrasts do not attract; they repel.

Man, I fear, will never be "like gods in a perfect state of ease and contentment." The best you can hope for, Terry, is to be lord of yourself. That takes a lot of constant watchfulness. The best way to look at life, after wandering about and getting knocked around much more, is to accept it with a sense of humor, a lot of pity, a ceaseless curiosity, and a sense of friendliness toward men, women and beasts. Thus mentally equipped, you can face the world, head on, and find it rather pleasant on the whole. But, Terry, you are weak enough to let the immediate problems of the hour submerge you in a flame of irritation, you're doomed to personal martyrdom. Laugh at Red, accept him, then direct his powers to the team's advantage.

I suppose I've written a lot of platitudes but they apply in this particular case. Remember, I appreciate your predicament only too well. I want to see you come through with banners flying.

Most people, and this includes Red Thomas, will play you at your own game. They will meet you halfway in friendship and good will—and hatred and meanness. They are just as much upset about things as you are and if you look into it, much more in the dark. I think everybody tries to do the best they can to get on in the world. If you will only learn what such people are thinking, aspiring for, what's buzzing in their heads, it will make the road much easier.

Take Red Thomas. He'd much rather like you for this animosity is rather inconvenient for him also. In fact he must think highly of you to hate you so much—and vice versa. Otherwise you could blithely ignore him.

As the English put it, "It's all very difficult!"

Yes, very, my lad. Very!
With greatest affection,
Your Mother.

The days of autumn drifted on. Terry carefully planned his hours so that sleep, study, meals and football were given proportioned time. Everything in his scheme of things pointed to the climax of the football season—the Yale game.

College became a pleasant habit. Restricted by the demands of football training, he was in bed early and regularly every night. The sport made his mind alert and prepared him for the on slaught of studies. Terry always worked better during football season than in any other equal period of time during the year.

Football practice was getting to be a grind. The coaches were bearing down on the players as the first games passed and the major contests threatened. There were days when the whole squad loved the training, when they laughed and joked and swung into action with a rhythm and co-ordination that was a joy to behold. Days when Terry and his mates would rather tackle a grey-jerseyed scrub circling an end than anything, when it was a delight to be part of the interference smashing through tackle.

Monday was the easiest day of the week. The game of the previous Saturday was reviewed and mistakes were pointed out. The varsity went through limbering up exercise and called it a day. Tuesday was devoted to hard individual work and practice. The line coaches would take their charges to one part of the field and pit them against each other. Sonny Drayton, preparing for the big games, took a terrific pounding on the neck from the line coach. He wanted to be hardened for opposing centers but more than one day staggered off the field in a daze from the steady punching on his head.

Wednesday was the day of scrimmage. The players spent a half hour drilling and then lined up for about ten minutes of hard work. With men continually fighting to push veterans off the first varsity, these mid-week scrimmages were more fatiguing than the early season games. Terry always walked across the campus after scrimmage with thighs stiff and shoulders drooping. He was generally too tired to eat very much, often creeping straight to his room, throwing off his clothes and tooting on the bed. His nerves throbbled so and his body ached so much that he spent hours of restless tossing before sleep swooped down on him. Then up again to the sound of ringing bells, still heavy with sleep, still sore from yesterday's grind, and continue the billing of meaningless days. The same thing day in and day out; sunrise to sunset the same drudgery, the same iron-fisted discipline.

Thursday was devoted to polishing up individual work and correcting mistakes observed in scrimmage. There was also a long signal drill. Friday was another comparatively easy day, with a light work-out not lasting more than an hour.

As the season progressed, the coaches concentrated more than ever on the first varsity, with only one scrimmage a week until mid-season. About the middle of the season the coaches planned to have two scrimmages in a week. It was called "fight week," with every man going at his opponent in a blood-and-iron struggle. It was in this week that many winning teams were made; it was this week that every player looked forward to, while they labored together in the nerve-racking job of getting a smooth, co-ordinated machine.

Terry always started out the day thinking of Margot. He often hurried down to his club on the way to the training table, running the last hundred feet in sudden expectation of finding a letter from her. He fumbled through scattered letters for her familiar handwriting but always it was the same. Off to breakfast he would go with a heavy heart, vaguely wondering just what was the matter.

After a hard afternoon of football, he could not sleep, what with the nervous and physical strain of the game and the uncertainty of Margot's affection. Sometimes he tossed through the night until grey shadows of morning colored the walls with the announcement of another day. Each morning he found it harder to get excited about classes and football, forcing a brightness and nonchalance before suspicious roommates. On grey, sodden days, he began to chafe, mumbling to himself, "What the hell's it all about, this endless running and pushing and tackling. Gosh, a fellow forgets he's a human being wallowing in the mud and rain. I'd like to throw off this helmet and tell the coaches to go to hell, I'm fed up."

But he kept going, just the same. There were times when he felt compelled to confide his sadness to Burne and Sonny with that irresistible impulse of confession which one feels with a heavy load on their

Home Builders Is Still In Liquidation

DALLAS, Nov. 17 (AP)—The United Home Builders company, contract holders of which numbered about 25,000 at the time it was placed in the hands of a receiver January 25, 1923, is still in the process of liquidation.

G. C. Wright, the receiver, said claims aggregating $1,221,900 and representing 4,500 contract holders were filed with him after the re-ceivership action. Since that time $473,300 has been paid in dividends to these share holders, Wright said today.

He would not predict as to the probability of any additional dividend payments in the near future. He said assets of the firm included considerable real estate which he had been unable to dispose of because of the current bad market. He also pointed out that some of the assets were tied up in pending law suits.

A. A. Cooke, former secretary-treasurer of the company, said he was reasonably certain that every contract holder would get a considerable portion of what was due him after all assets of the company had been liquidated.

Thought For Today

Praise the Lord; for the Lord is good.—Psalm 135:3. Good things should be praised.—Shakespeare.

Books Boys Like

PICKING OUT books for a boy to read is one of the most fascinating and enjoyable jobs there is. There is such a wealth of good books to choose from, for one thing; and merely reading off the titles will generally arouse such a keen remembrance of that one's boyhood, for the moment, is victoriously re-created.

The taste of adult society changes from generation to generation. But boyhood is more conservative. It sticks to the favorites of its fathers, as a general thing. A new book has a hard gaiter to run. It takes a generation or two for boyhood to accept it. The list of boyhood's most favored books is one of the most exclusive circles in the world. It is hard to break into, but once a book does get in it stays for a long time.

That Denver librarian who recently queried a number of famous men on their most prized boyhood books got some answers that prove the point. What, in this modern mechanical age, is the head of the list? What but "Robinson Crusoe"—with "The Last of the Mohicans" in second place, and such magnificent romances as Mark Twain, Dickens, Jules Verne and Scott coming close behind.

Buying books for a boy may be fun, but it is not a task to undertake lightly. An adult can accept a poor book and forget it; boyhood needs something that will stay by it. It needs something with a spark of imagination, something that will tickle the imagination, and start the spinning of dreams and the weaving of visions, out of which a secure background for a whole lifetime can be built.

A fearful amount of trips is published in the way of boys' books. There seems to be a notion abroad that a boy's book need not be as well written as one that is intended for his more critical father. But children have a greater capacity than we give them credit for, and the man who intends to write for them might consider the fact that most of the books that boyhood gives immortality to were written, originally, for grown-ups. Scott, Dickens, Cooper, Dumas, Mark Twain—they wrote for adults, and of course, there are exceptions. "The Jungle Book" and "Captains Courageous," for instance; and "The Wizard of Oz" and "Uncle Remus," and a few others. But they are not many. Even "Alice in Wonderland" holds a niche for adults as for children, if not more.

In fact, that is true of most really good "boys' books." We who are older can read them with as much enjoyment as our sons. In a few cases, our changing taste may have misled us; for instance, Scott and Cooper, in particular, are a little bit off the track for most of us in 1930. But there is a grown man anywhere who could re-read "Huck Finn" or "Two Years Before the Mast" at least once a year?

Nobel Prize

By being the first American novelist to win the Nobel Prize in literature, Sinclair Lewis has perhaps the greatest honor of his career—an honor which, as a literary artist, he fully deserves.

In the first place, Lewis' books—most of them, at any rate—are extremely good reading, which is the first requirement of any novel. Beyond that, there is no doubt that the man and his writings have had a tremendous influence on Americans in the last decade. This influence has been, on the whole, a very good one.

The first requirement for progress of any kind is that people become discontented with things as they are. Very skillfully, Lewis has injected discontent into the souls of millions of Americans. He has made them want to live in a pleasanter, more decent world—and, thereby, has made the work of reform just that much easier. It will be a long time before his influence ceases to be felt.

THE PLAINSMAN

Says: That Girl on Broadway says the average girl always leaves the kitchen out of her air castles.

One of the hands on the Spade ranch has been offered a soft job. They want him to round up the stray cows for the Animal Cracker company.

It is to be hoped that negotiations, now under way, to lease the T-Bar ranch in Lynn county for potash development will not go astray. Such experiments are needed in various parts of the Southwest and may open up a new industry in this section of the country.

It is no secret that deposits of potash are to be found in Lynn and adjoining counties, as well as in some sections of further Southwest Texas and New Mexico. Potash, better known for its uses in the manufacture of explosives, is also highly useful in the concoction of various types of medicine and chemicals of many natures.

Should the deposit be found to be in commercial quantities on the T-Bar and in other localities a new industrial era would be opened, something which cannot be overlooked in this part of the world. The South Plains needs every contributing factor toward prosperity that it can find. The potash proposition is far from a pipe dream.

A girl will fight for the man she loves, but she'll fight a lot harder for the man somebody else loves.

One of the Tech boys was forced to leave college the other day and hunted up his favorite professor.

"Goodbye, sir," the lad said touchingly. "I want to thank you for all I have learned from you."

"Don't mention it, my boy," the professor returned. "It was nothing at all."

If you have been paying any attention at all to the news columns of Lubbock papers you will have noted that before long the annual Community Chest fund drive will be under way. The Plainsman urges that every man and woman in Lubbock learn what the Chest is, and what it does, before making up the mind about the matter.

Frankly, the Chest in its first year in Lubbock got far to a disappointing start as far as the general public is concerned but the reason for that had started is that few people really understand the Chest and its function. The organization drive is started in operation. Anybody who is not to be upbraided. It is something new to Lubbock and the majority of its citizens. That's the principal reason that some people are disposed to sniff at the Chest and threaten not to support it.

It is the Plainsman's opinion that the Community Chest idea is the best method of handling community disbursements. Visit any city which has had a Chest for a five year period or more, make an investigation, and you'll agree. Anything new gets away to a low start. Workers must learn methods of operation, just as in business, and we shouldn't expect the Chest here to swing into high the moment it is started in operation. Organizations, as well as persons, must learn to walk before running.

WHILE the Plainsman has heard some adverse comment concerning the operation of the Community Chest during its first year in Lubbock, he has noted at least one major improvement in its disbursement and operations method. That major improvement is the doing away with a multitude of "drives" for this, that and the other thing. That promise—that the Chest would halt the many drives to which the city has been subjected in the past—was fulfilled any by itself proves the value of the plan in Lubbock.

Because this column was the chief and earliest proponent of the Chest plan in Lubbock for three years before it was ever placed into effect, a lot of people have taken the idea that the Plainsman is married to it. That is not correct. The Plainsman wants to see Lubbock's benevolent organizations cared for in the best, easiest, surest fashion possible—and with the least drain and worry to the contributing public. The Chest plan, properly operated, will turn the trick.

The Plainsman, to deal the cards above the table, has no connection whatsoever with the Community Chest other than an ordinary, interested citizen. The only interest this column has in the Chest is the interest that any citizen should have in any community problem. The Plainsman's personal opinion is that the Chest will work in Lubbock if the people will support it morally, as well as financially. For that reason we urge people generally to study the Chest plan, its methods of operation and then follow the dictates of the individual conscience.

Hoover Faces Supreme Test of Political Statesmanship During Coming Session of Congress; Many Vetos Likely

BY RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Writer WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Few presidents have ever been given such a remarkable opportunity for high-grade political statesmanship in the face of great odds as will be offered Herbert Hoover.

Dr. Clendenning

Effort of control in both Houses of the 72d Congress, Hoover faces a supreme test of his right to wear the title of "superman" with which he was invested in his campaign for election.

In many decades no president has faced such difficult legislative problems as those which are before Hoover at the start of his term. The most terrible odors arose from his waters for several months. People walked around two or three miles to avoid crossing the city bridges. The London newspaper cried: "India is in revolt and the Thames stinks." Parliament could sit only with hanging sheets soaked in chloride of lime.

There is some possibility of a special session some time soon after March 4, when the new Congress with all its Democrats and progressives, comes into office. Otherwise the next Congress won't convene until December, 1931.

But in any event the fun begins when the Democrats and progressives of the 72d begin putting measures repugnant to Hoover and the regulars.

Series of Vetoes? If Hoover can stand the strain, life for him may become a case of one veto after another. The Democrats will have measures of their own which Hoover, dislike, and so will the Republican progressives. Together they will pass most of them.

Both Democrats and progressives have plenty of time to get together among themselves and discuss their respective or joint programs, but some of the likelihoods are obvious. The opposition forces may not make the mistake of running hog-wild in attempts to embarrass the administration, but they are sure to make no attempt to avoid causing such embarrassment to the G. O. P. majority in the House. Hoover's legislative bulwark thus far, is eliminated.

Hoover's appointments will receive closer scrutiny in the Senate. Fortunately for the president, most of them have been made, and he can still clear up those outstanding before his position in the Senate becomes weaker.

Trouble threatens with regard to prohibition, but it might work out either favorably or unfavorably to the administration. Predictions are useless with regard to the wet-dry issue and its future in the present and next Congress until one reads the Wickham committee's report and learns Hoover's attitude toward it. It is very likely, though, that if Hoover does not make his own position quite clear his opponents in Congress will try to force him to make it so.

Farm Aid to Cause Woe Farm relief bills objectionable to the White House are expected to pass and the debenture plan and the equalization fee will again be proposed, one or the other figuring in a measure likely to pass both Houses. It is questionable whether either scheme could be passed over Hoover's veto, but the Democratic gains in farm states and the wide Treasury Department matters and other Democratic legislation are also being suggested.

In New York With Swan Gilbert Swan

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Since Sinclair "Red" Lewis promises to remain in the spotlight for some little time, as winner of the Nobel prize for literature, I am tempted to contribute a few more paragraphs concerning this young man and his work.

And if you don't become wearied of the subject, I have even a few more in my notebook. Did you know, for instance, that "Main Street" didn't start out to be that particular book at all? It had been originally named "The Village Virus" and its main character was Guy Pollock, the small town lawyer.

He got the idea 15 years before it finally saw the light of publication and was started on three separate occasions, only to be abandoned.

By the way, the "Doc" Kennicott, of that particular work, was taken from Lewis' own family. His father was a country doctor, with a practice centering in the prairie village of Sauk Center, Minn. His mother's father had been a doctor; his brother is a well-known surgeon, and his father's brother is a physician.

Lewis recalls how, as a lad, his father often called upon him to hitch up the horses and drive on some countryside call. On many an occasion the boy was hustled from his seat to rush inside and help with the anesthetic or the sterilizing of instruments.

Lewis tried to stay as far away from "Main Street" as possible while composing "Rabbit." He wanted to get a far-away perspective on his types. So he went to Kent, England, took a little country place and wrote the first chapters there. The last chapter was written on a liner, returning to America.

Which reminds me that I'm betraying no confidence in saying that Lewis' next book will probably concern labor and labor conditions in America. He has been about to start on such a book on four different occasions, but each time he has not had time to get it done.

But curiously enough at the end of the year Dr. William Budd, a sanitarian, pointed out that the death rate for the year was actually decreased. "A remarkable diminution in the prevalence of fever, diarrhea and other forms of disease commonly ascribed to putrid emanations" was announced by Dr. Budd. People had naturally not been able to drink the water. Stenling it did them no harm.

The stench was caused by dumping the city's sewerage into the river, "where it seethed and fermented under a burning sun." The condition was remedied, but the experience taught the world that odors alone do not spread disease.

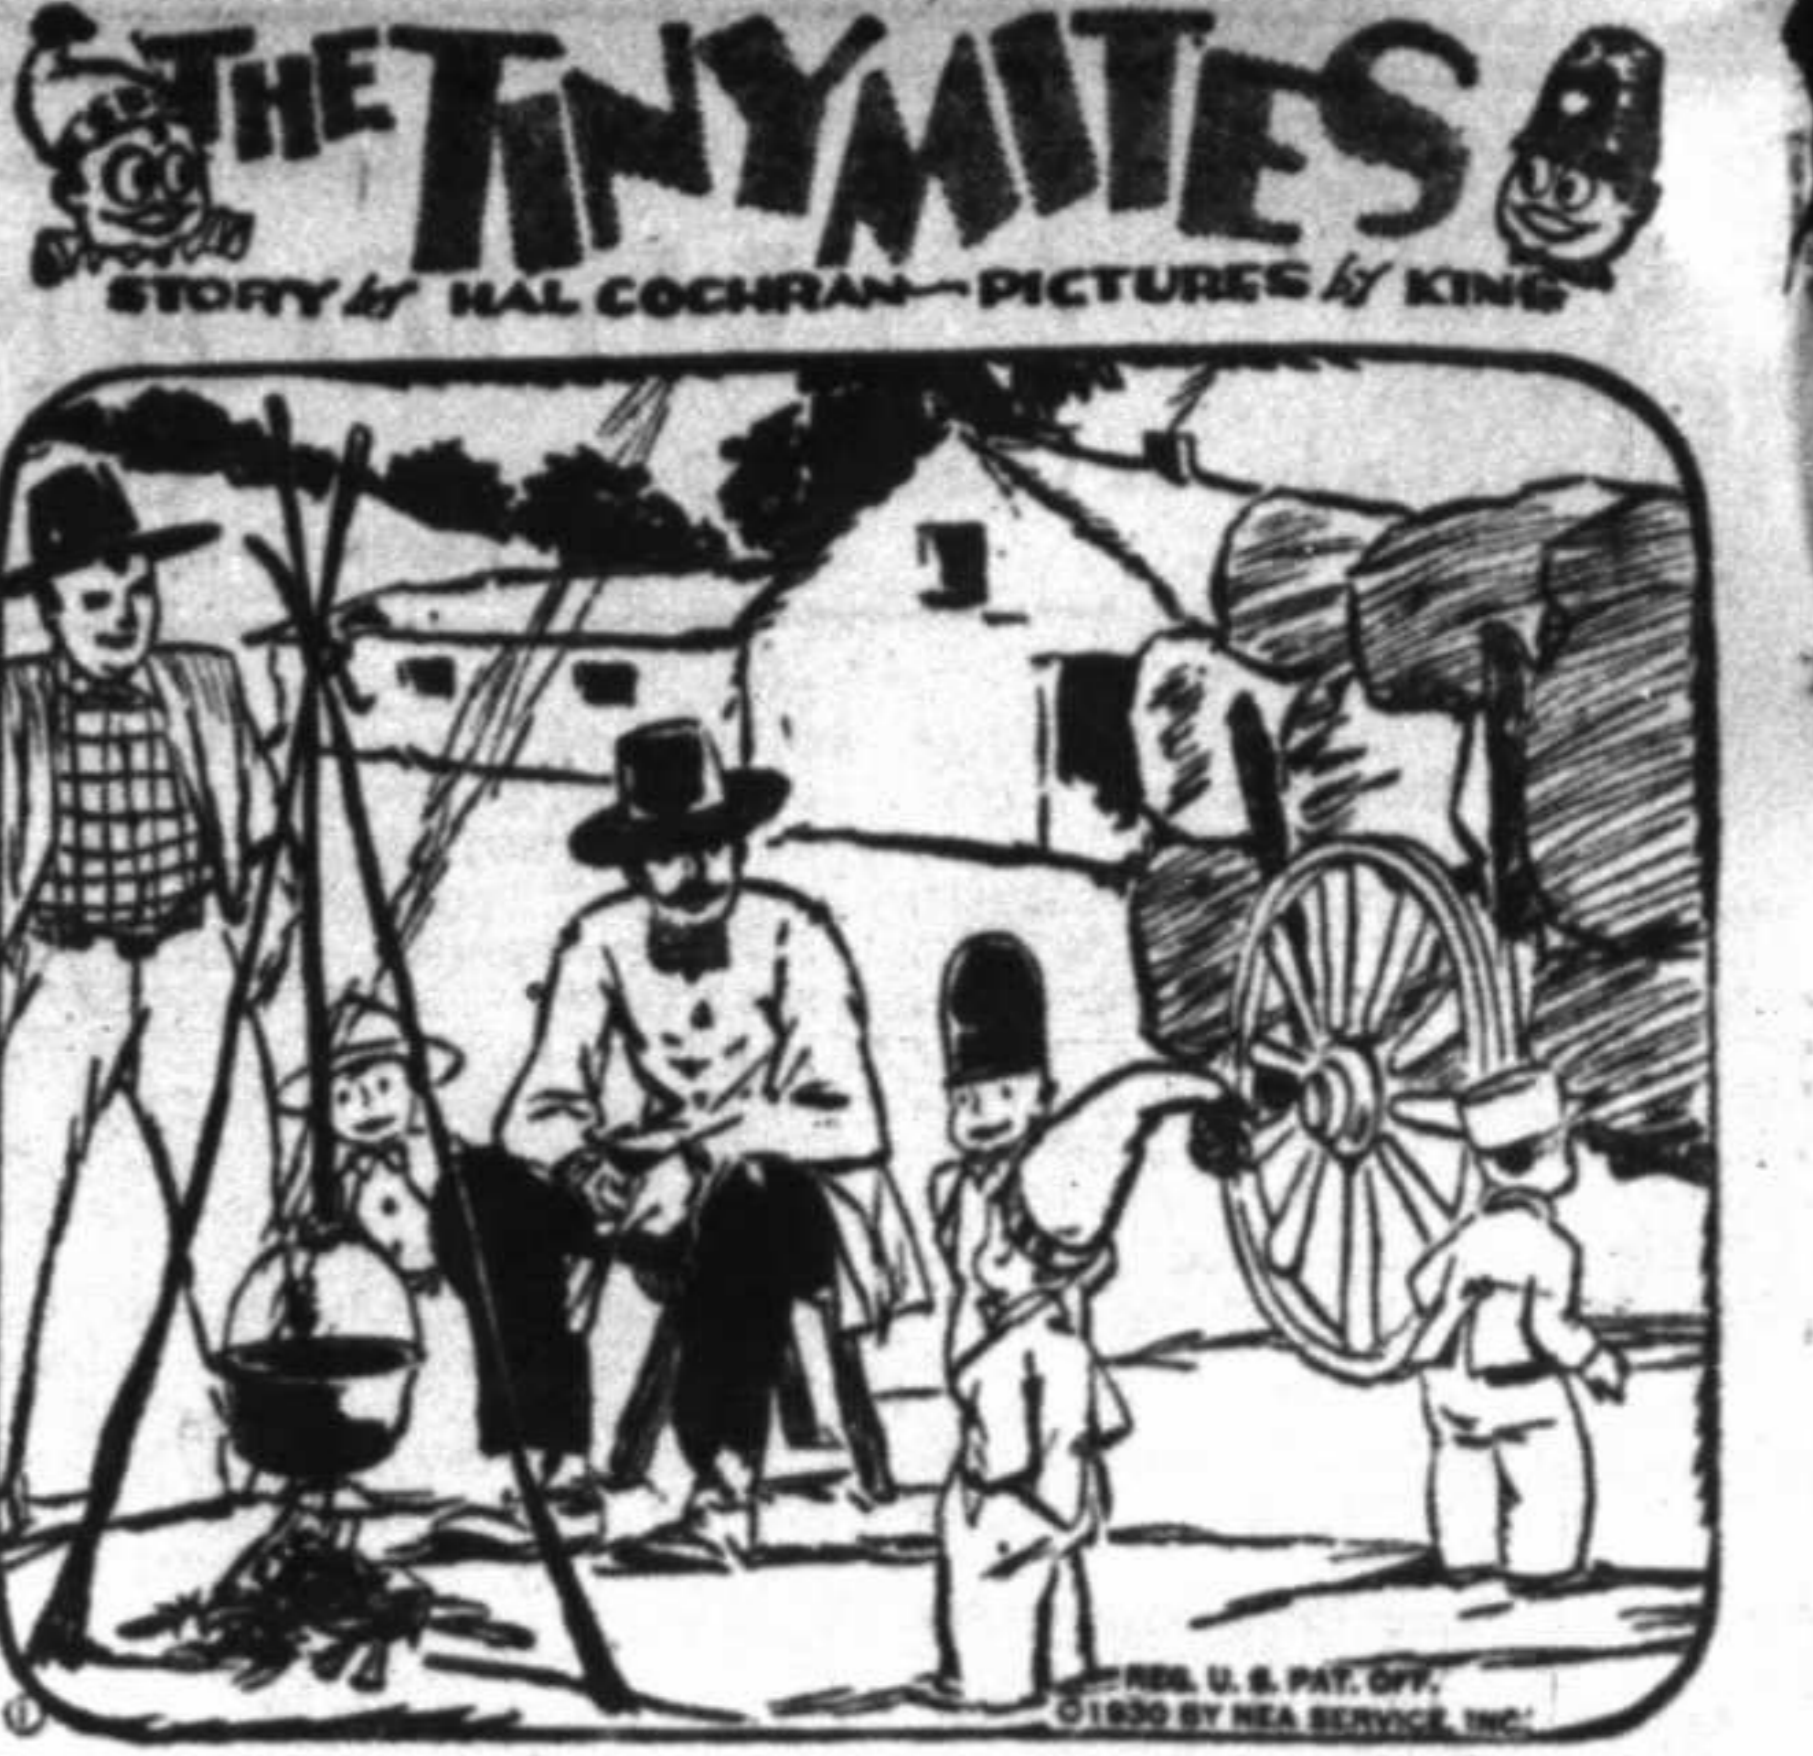

Indeed, the trouble with our worst plagues is that they give us no such warning. You cannot smell the approach of infantile paralysis. The glass of water from the well infected by typhoid is clear and sparkling, without a trace of disagreeable taste or smell.

Question From Readers M. R. W. Dravosburg, Pa. "Anxious to learn just what the best treatment is for pernicious anemia, and if paralysis of the legs is associated with anemia?"

Answer: The treatment of pernicious anemia is quite satisfactory, since the discovery by Minot and Murphy in 1926 of the value of liver feeding. Half a pound of cooked calf or beef liver a day is the dose. The active ingredient of the liver can be obtained in powder form and usually called "Liver Extract." Another substance of equal value is called "Ventricular." Paralysis of the legs frequently of the legs, is part of the disease, pernicious anemia.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KING

Each Tiny took a horn in hand. "Now, in a straight row kindly stand," exclaimed the music teacher. "Then I'll tell you when to blow. The blowing must be done just right. Don't try to blow with all your might." The Tinymites lined up as Scouty cried, "All right, let's go!"

The teacher slowly raised his hand. The Tinymites seemed to understand it was their signal to start in. They tried to make some noise, but not a sound came from a horn. The whole bunch promptly looked forlorn. "Don't worry," said the teacher, "we will try again, now, boys."

The Tinymites kept up their pluck and this time had a lot more luck. A scream of squeaks soon filled the air. "Twice funny as could be. The Travel Man laughed right out loud. Said he, "You are a funny crowd." Three of the Tinymites cried, "I quit. This is enough for me."

Well Scouty was the only one who tried again. At last he won the cheers of everybody else. He played a bugle call. He very proudly bowed and said, "Keep at things! Then you'll get ahead. But now let's go. I think I've done a plenty for you all."

And so they bid the music man and his good-bye and off they ran. "Where are we going now?" said one. "Oh, not so far away," replied the friendly Travel Man. "We'll get there quickly as we can. We'll motor down to Malaga, a real nice place to stay."

They hired a car and started out. Real soon they heard some people shout, "Hello there, little fellows. Welcome, every Tiny scamp!" "Oh, so small the most powerful microscope cannot see it. Shucks! They're just trying to magnify the whole thing."

Upton Sinclair, who often has been taken for Sinclair Lewis, probably is hopeful that the judges who awarded the latter the Nobel prize are victims of mistaken identity.

"For over three years I have suffered with a severe case of chronic stomach trouble, and indigestion and never felt like doing anything" said Mrs. Little Campbell, residing at 626 Willow, Abilene, Texas while talking with an Argotane man.

"A friend recommended Argotane to me and I've taken three bottles and feel like a different person.

"I suffered a great deal from indigestion. Every time I ate anything food would sour on my stomach and gas formed and bloated me up until I would be miserable for hours afterwards. I didn't have any appetite because I just couldn't eat what I did want. Everything I ate would sour and come right up. Even sweet milk had a very bad effect on my stomach. I was very nervous and couldn't rest or sleep at all and I never had any energy or pep and I never felt like doing anything.

"But since taking Argotane, I eat anything and everything I want I eat things that I never could eat before and I do not have any pains or bad effects afterward, at all. I'm not nervous and sleep and rest fine every night. I feel better than I have in a long time. I can do my own housework now, without feeling all tired and worn out. Argotane has certainly been a benefit to me that anyone suffering as I did it will help them."

Mississippi valley and to provide employment for a large number this winter was authorized at an organization meeting of the Oklahoma Red River flood control association here.

The association decided to send delegations to congress to present the project, approved both by itself and a similar Texas association.

Senator Elmer Thomas predicted such projects will find favor in congress because of the inclination of that body to provide public work for the unemployed and because of the sympathy of the administration with flood control work.

Speakers at the meeting said 71 counties in Oklahoma and Texas would be affected by building of the dam, which it was proposed to build near Durant.

PLANS FOR STATEWIDE FIGHT TO MAKE STERLING'S BOND ISSUE EFFECTIVE MADE

MEETING IS HELD IN HOUSTON THURSDAY TO START ACTIVITIES; MOVEMENT SAID TO HAVE STRONG SUPPORT IN ITS WORK

(By The Associated Press) HOUSTON, Nov. 17—Members of associations backing what speakers termed "three of the most important trade arteries in the nation" Thursday discussed plans for a statewide fight to make effective the Sterling state bond issue. The joint meeting was attended by supporters of federal highway 75, state highway 19, and the Hug-The-Coast highway.

Governor-elect Ross Sterling, Judge W. R. Ely, chairman of the highway commission and Judge W. O. Huggins, Houston, were the principal speakers.

Confident And Proud Mr. Sterling who made the welcome address, declared he was proud of the achievements of the highway commission during the last four years, and equally confident the commission now headed by Judge Ely would continue in a manner equally beneficial to all of the state.

J. W. Slaughter, of Dallas challenged any state in the nation to show a more efficient highway administration than that of Texas and stressed need for friendly rivalry between north and south Texas so that we can make Texas the greatest state in the entire nation.

A motion was adopted that the meeting resolve itself into a legislative committee to meet at Austin January 1, and present to the legislature the needs for a state bond issue plan.

Wade's Swan Song Is Victory Hymn

This department took last week-end off and made some new friends, and learned some new things. Since the football season started we've been hearing and writing about the Spur high school football team, and some of the things we had heard and written confounded us to a degree. So we determined to find out all we could about the Spur situation, and upon the invitation of the Spur coach, school superintendent and principal, together with those of several leading business men, we trekked over to Dickens county to see Gene Taylor's Bulldogs play a football game, and to find out what made the score mount skyward every time Spur took the field.

We saw plenty and found out more. Spur has a wonderful high school football team, too good for Class B and too good for a lot of Class A schools we have seen play this year. Fact is, Spur ought to be in Class A football, and we believe it will be within another year or so. Financial conditions may make it impossible for the team to become associated with Class A circuits next season, but in the near future District 1 will have another strong team. Back to the trip. We were received in a most gracious manner and the kind hospitality never let up during our visit, which lasted until early Saturday morning.

We went to the gridiron and saw Spur's Bulldogs smother a fighting, scrapping, tough little Estelline team under a 142 to 0 score. We had been wondering why Coach Taylor permitted his men to run up such top heavy scores, and we discovered that he has nothing to do with it at all. He sends a team on the field, say the first team. Against a much weaker team the first string boys have little trouble in running up the score. When they get the ball—puff! It's a touchdown, no matter where the Bulldogs come in possession of it. Before five minutes of the kind of warfare is over, the second and third stringers are sent in. The results are the same thing. We learned that the second and third teams have played more than the first stringers this year, and that means something.

Spur business men are behind the team like nobody's business. We have never seen a town so enthusiastic over its football team, and that's one reason the team is so powerful. They have confidence in themselves and they know they are being backed to a man, by the Spur citizens so they fight harder. The denizens of Spur got mighty riled up last week over a protest filed by Floydada impugning that half a dozen Spur players were ineligible. As a result great sums of money were spent by Spur business men in collecting evidence to prove their players were o. k. They found it, too, as witness the outcome of the committee meeting here Saturday. The town's leading citizens, bankers, lawyers, everybody, are for that team, and for it strong. A good thing for other towns and cities we know of, not very far away, would be to support their teams like that.

So great was the hospitality extended us at Spur that we were forced to remain over and see the city returning to Lubbock Saturday morning where we spent the entire day at the committee meeting out at Tech. We were greatly honored over there, and came away feeling that lasting friendships had been incurred. We take this means thanking the friends at Spur for their hospitality.

COMMERCIALISM
A. A. U. IS UP AS ISSUE AGAIN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Commercialism in amateur sport and the question of how far to go in curbing it stood off today as the principal issue before the first session of the fifty-second annual convention of the National Amateur Athletic Union.

Already beaten in committee on one of his proposals calculated to enforce strict amateurism, President Avery Brundage of Chicago prepared to carry the fight to the floor of the convention.

The constitutional amendment proposed by the president, which met with the legislative committee's rejection yesterday, was aimed at the practice of "leading up" or recruiting amateur athletes by commercial organizations on the eve of championship events.

Under its terms an A. A. U. athlete would be barred from representing such a concern unless he had been a "bona fide employee" of the organization for a period of three months or 13 days prior to the date of a championship event.

It was understood that the amendment at conditionally proposed by Brundage would require that any athlete who had been employed by a commercial organization for a period of three months or 13 days prior to the date of a championship event should be barred from representing that organization.

T. C. U. FROGS STILL HAVE CHANCE

BAYLOR AND MUSTANGS MUST BE CONQUERED IN NEXT 2 WEEKS

BY GAYLE TALBOT, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer
DALLAS, Nov. 17.—The scramble for the 1940 Southwest conference grid crown still was wide open at far today with only two weeks remaining to play—one of the closest in the history of the circuit. Only 17 of seven contending teams, Texas A. & M., was below 500 in the standing, and four of them still had a chance at the title.

As a result of their decisive 7 to 0 victory over Texas Christian Saturday, the University of Texas Longhorns became popular favorites to ascend the throne. By downing Southern Methodist, Baylor and the champion Frogs on successive week ends the Longhorns have proved themselves worthy of the honor. But it was by no means certain they would get it.

Frogs Have Edge
Texas Christian, engaging Baylor this week at Fort Worth and Southern Methodist here the week following could retain the championship by winning both contests, the reward for having booked six conference titles instead of the customary five. Texas, with only one more to play, against the Aggies on Thanksgiving Day at Austin, could finish ahead only in the event Texas Christian tied or lost one of its last two.

Chances that either Baylor or Southern Methodist would upset the works and take the title were rather slim, but it could be done if either captured its two remaining bouts and the Longhorns should get slipped up on by the Aggies. In that event the two would divide the spoils between them.

Interest this week will center on the Baylor-Texas Christian tilt at Fort Worth. As a result of their convincing win over the Arkansas Razorbacks, 22 to 7, Saturday, the Golden Bears may be expected to give the Frogs a tight battle.

Southern Methodist, triumphant over Navy, 20 to 7, in the first victory ever scored by a Southern conference eleven over a major opponent on the Atlantic seaboard, was hurrying home to get in shape for a conference fray with the Rice Owls at Houston. The Mustangs must down the Owls to retain a mathematical chance at title, and it promised to be quite an assignment.

Rice's young eleven proved it still packed a punch by taking the Texas Aggies, 7 to 0, at College Station. It marked the first time in history that an owl team walked off Kyle field, hallowed battle ground of the Aggies, victorious.

Those were the only engagements scheduled for the week. The mighty Longhorns will have nothing to do until Thanksgiving day when they entertain their traditional foes, the Aggies, at Austin.

Arkansas, having completed its conference card, will finish against Centenary at Shreveport, also on Turkey Day.

Conference standing:

TORNADOES FETTER LAMEBA, Nov. 17.—(Special)—Members of the Lamesa High school Golden Tornado football squad were tendered an informal dinner recently by the Athletic Association, 48 members being present. Brief speeches were made by the coach, and Captain Wiggins of the team.

COLGATE BACK LEADS GRID SCORERS

Len Macaluso, Colgate's fine fullback, leads scorers on eastern gridiron with 135 points.

By The Associated Press
Len Macaluso's field day against Syracuse enabled the Colgate fullback to take a wide lead in the race for national individual football scoring honors. Macaluso scored 29 points on Saturday to boost his season's total to 135.

Leaders in each of the country's nine major groups or conferences follows:

Player and College	Pos.	G.	Td.	Pt.	Pct.	Fz.	Tot.
East—Macaluso, Colgate	FB	8	18	24	1	135

WESTERN MARYLAND, NORTHWESTERN ALABAMA, WASHINGTON STATE, UTAH, TEXAS, KANSAS AND SOONERS LEADING

By Associated Press
In the only big game this week.

EAST
Western Maryland was the only team in the section neither beaten nor tied but Army, Dartmouth and others look stronger. Army and Dartmouth are unbeaten but have been tied once. Cornell and Fordham also rank well in the top.

Each has lost only one game and that to a foe from another section. The Yale-Harvard clash is the headliner for next Saturday.

WESTERN CONFERENCE
Northwestern is leading with five straight conference victories but Michigan can gain a tie by whipping Chicago on Saturday.

Fordham, defending champion, can clinch third place by beating Indiana Iowa and Ohio State helped mid-west prestige by beating Penn State and Pitt Saturday when northwestern conquered Wisconsin and Michigan scored over Minnesota.

The northwestern-Notre Dame clash this week brings together two unbeaten and untied teams.

SOUTHERN
Alabama and Tulane alone remain in the running and probably will finish in a deadlock. Alabama has only Georgia ahead and Tulane second according to Louisiana State without trouble. Alabama won its seventh straight conference game Saturday, beating Louisiana State-Tulane stripes with a 25-0 victory over Georgia.

PACIFIC COAST
Washington State clinched the conference title by beating Washington, 3-0. Oregon State eliminated Oregon, winning 12-0 in a mid-west. California meets Stanford

TECH CREW IN GOOD SHAPE FOR TILT

JACKETS ARE HOLDING ADVANTAGE OVER LOCALS

Texas Tech's Matadors take the road for the third and last time of the season tomorrow when they go to Brownwood to meet the Howard Payne Yellow Jackets, strong contender for T. I. A. A. honors, on Wednesday. Though Howard Payne's gridsters have been playing most of their home games at night on their well-lighted field, it is presumed that the Tech game will be played in the afternoon.

Coming out of their game last Tuesday against A. C. C. with no serious injuries, the Matadors will be in good shape for their game Wednesday. Constant use of reserves this season has made it possible for the entire squad to recuperate from injuries without having to enter hard games. Only one of the regulars is likely to be out of the lineup Wednesday, C. A. Doose, regular fullback, has been confined to his bed for several days with injuries and illness and may not be able to start against the Jackets.

Leave Here Tuesday
Today the Matadors are going through a medium workout, not too stiff and not too light, as final preparations on the home field for the next game. They will leave Lubbock in the morning, arriving in Brownwood in time to work out on the jacket field for a brief time tomorrow afternoon. Coach Dutcher Smith's Picadors, soundly thrashed by the New Mexico Military Institute last Saturday, returned home yesterday and will run decker plays against the varsity gridsters this afternoon in a brief scrimmage.

The Tech gridmen will go to Brownwood nursing resentment against the sting of the Jackets last season when the latter swarmed over the local field for a 17 to 0 victory. The Jackets hold a slight advantage over the Matadors because of previous records this season and in seasons that have gone. But Caverton's men are given a chance to break even if not do better.

The decisive victory over the Abilene Christians last Tuesday set them in the limelight somewhat and it will take a stiff opposition on the part of Howard Payne to hold the Matadors back.

The game at Brownwood will be the last out of town game for the Matadors, and next to the last game of the season, so far as the regular schedule is concerned. On Thanksgiving Day, which is also Homecoming day at Tech for alumni and ex-students, the Matadors will face the powerful Simmons University "Sea-boys" here.

VERNON LIONS COMING HERE

TEAM TO ENDEAVOR TO KNOCK LOCALS OUT OF 3RD PLACE

After a rest of two weeks from games of any kind, the Lubbock High school Westerners will be back in action again Friday when the Vernon Lions come to town to engage Coach Friska's men in the last home game of the season. The long rest has been beneficial to the local gridsters in that it has given time for injuries and bruises to heal, putting the team in first class condition for this week's game.

By taking the Vernon game, the Westerners very likely will have passed a season in which only two defeats marred the record. After the Vernon game comes the contest with Plainview's Bulldogs at Plainview in the Thanksgiving game, and the locals are given every chance of winning this contest. Plainview has registered only one victory this season and that was an upset, the team having an off year as a result of the loss of nearly all the regulars of last season by graduation.

Determined To Win
Reports from Vernon are to the effect that the Lions are coming determined to win. They feel that they have a fine chance of knocking Lubbock off the third place rung of the conference ladder, and will be in tip top condition for the game. A practice game with Crosswell last week served to key them up and did not result in any injuries. The club is powerful, as witness their long string of victories this season. Losing to Pampa and Amarillo, the team which won over Lubbock, the Vernon team has rolled over its other opponents with comparative ease, and set such a pace early in the season as to be a serious threat to the leaders.

Coach Henry Friska is expecting a hard game, and is drilling his first string regulars to start the Wallace Wade, head coach of Alabama, is one coach who will relinquish his post with his brow the target of laurel wreaths instead of brick bats.

Wade in his last season as mentor of the Crimson Tide is enjoying one of the best, if not the best, seasons Alabama has ever had. Before the current season began Wade announced this year would be his last as he had accepted an offer to coach Duke university. To top this sad news Alabama's material did not look so hot.

However, the Tide has swept through one surprise victory after another and now seems destined to capture the Southern conference championship and may be the team selected to play the annual Tournament of Roses game in Pasadena. Cal. Alabama's greatest feat this season was its victory over Tennessee, unbeaten in four years.

With the passing of Wade at Alabama goes the man who brought national recognition to the school and made the name Crimson Tide mean a lot more than just a catchy tag for a football team.

game. He will enter his strongest combination against the Lions, making every effort to keep ahead all the way. While dope points to a Lubbock victory, the Westerners and their mentors are taking no chances and will spend the week in consistent drill and practice as if

MODERN RIP VAN WINKLE RETURNS AFTER 22 YEARS AND BEGINS LIFE OVER AGAIN

Missourian Is Found In Montana After Memory Loss

By NEA Service
KANSAS CITY. —A modern Rip Van Winkle was just returned to the little Missouri town of Parkville to try to pick up the threads of a life that was broken off 22 years ago.

For 22 years Francis was a man without a past, without a sure identity—a wanderer plopped down in a far-western city to make the best of things in any way he could. His previous existence in Parkville was as though it never had been.

Then, suddenly and by chance, he was called back to that former life—and now he is trying to fit himself back into the mold that was shaped about him nearly a quarter of a century ago—trying to bring back his memory of old days and old places, to continue a form of existence that suffered a gap of more than two decades.

Disappeared in 1908
Twenty-two years ago Francis lived in Parkville, a Missouri river town a few miles upstream from Kansas City, with his wife and his year-old son. One day he took a load of horses down to Kansas City to sell them. That was in 1908, and that trip to Kansas City to sell horses proved the opening act of a strange and mysterious drama of disappearance.

Arriving in Kansas City, Francis plunged into a cloud of darkness. To this day he does not know what happened to him. All he knows is that he found himself, weeks later, in Montana. He had forgotten who he was and where he came from. He does not know yet how he got to Montana. He had on a strange suit of clothes, the labels of which bore the name "Lee Brown." Examining these labels, he concluded that he must be Lee Brown; but every event and every memory of his past were gone. He was Lee Brown, adrift in Montana, with no port insight and no log-book to refer to. That was all there was to it, and he had to make the best of it.

It is believed now that he was slugged and robbed and that the injury derived him of his memory, causing him to wander aimlessly west until a vestige of recollection returned to him.

At any rate, Francis got a job on a farm near Billings, Mont., where he worked, unable to discover anything about himself.

Finally, not long ago, a Parkville man happened to encounter him in Billings.

"Aren't you Charles Francis?" demanded the man.

Francis was puzzled.

"Guess my name's Brown," he said. Then, after a minute...

"Guess there's something familiar about that name of Francis, at that. The acquaintance notified Francis' relatives in Parkville and some of them went to Billings. There they made sure of Francis' identity and persuaded him to come back with them.

It has been hard for Francis to convince himself of his new-found identity. When he first got back to Parkville, all of his relatives gathered at his house to talk with him. One by one they told him who they were and recalled old incidents of his past to him and slowly he began to remember their faces and the events they talked about. Over and over again he would say, hesitantly, "Yes, I remember."

When he first came home he met his mother.

"So you are really my mother," he said. "I had the impression that my mother was dead, although I couldn't remember who she was."

At that his mother fell into his arms, sobbing. Her tears stirred a memory that her face and voice had failed to arouse.

"Oh, mother—now I remember!" he cried. This time his voice was sure. "It's wonderful to find you, mother."

Introduced to Own Son
Then he was introduced to 23-year-old Leland Francis, his own son.

"I can't realize all at once that I have a grown son," he told the boy. "But I'll try to get used to it, and I'll learn to love you and I hope you'll learn to love me."

And so one by one, other relatives and friends came to him.

"It's all so strange," Francis said. "It's like starting life all over again. Each face and each house and each tree seems to become more familiar to me as I look and think a while."

There was one dear one of the old days whom Francis could not meet. His wife, who had waited 20 years for him to return, died two years ago.

SOUTH PLAINS NEWS CHATTER

BY J. SAM LEWIS, FIELD CORRESPONDENT

ACCOMMODATING

Postmaster Parkhurst of Tahoka is one of the accommodating federal postmasters on the South Plains. On a small ledge above the letter drops in the Tahoka federal office, the postmaster has placed a scale. Above it is a notation asking patrons to please weigh all letters, newspapers or packages that they believe are above weight. The card gives the postage for letters and packages and urges patrons to have the correct amount in stamps. Otherwise, it is pointed out, the postal matter is subject to delay.

IS 4-H FAMILY

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Owens of the Edith community, Lynn county, are making a tidy sum by canning beef on sharps for persons who are not equipped to do so. "The Owens family is really a 4-H family," Miss Thelma Greenwade, county home demonstration agent, says. "The girls, Christine and Marie, are members of 4-H clubs and Mrs. Owens belongs to the Edith community club. Mr. Owens helps with the work too." The family have a large garage into which they move their beef cooking equipment when they have a job to work to do quickly and neatly and in ship shape style. Mr. and Mrs. Owens plan to market their own brand of chili soon.

WANTS TO MEET HIM

Claude Wells, Tahoka business man, whose son George Claude won a trip to Chicago offered by the Santa Fe, is anxious to know of the father of James Potts, Lubbock county trip winner. Is the man he knows. "If he is," says Claude, "I want my boy to get acquainted with his boy. I used to know a Mr. Potts in Lubbock and he had a son interested in chickens. The boy sold the chickens and went into handling cattle. He was going to Tech, I understood." George Claude has bought a "ten gallon" hat in the windy city, the father said, "I should say no. My boy's not going to be bothered with a big hat on this his outfit for the trip to Chicago trip."

ALL IN ACTION

Some unusual statistics pertaining to when former service men were on Armistice Day, 1918, were brought out at the Armistice Day celebration in Lamesa Tuesday when William A. Wilson, asked for a statement by former soldiers present on their whereabouts that day. There were eighteen or twenty to respond. Two said they were in base hospitals in France recovering from wounds, one man, a sailor, was in Liverpool harbor with his ship; five were in army camps, mostly in Texas and one man had just been released from service. The remainder were in France, either in the front line or going up.

LOST BY A HORSE

W. D. Benson, former Lubbock attorney, who is now residing in Hobbs and who came to Lubbock in 1902, likes to while away the time on his bus trips between the oil field town and the "O. H. T." The other day W. D. offered to bet with a passenger from Seminole Brownfield on the number of white or gray horses between the two towns. "I bet you the cigarettes that we find 20 white or gray horses," he said. The other man took him up. Sammy Jones, Pioneer Motor line driver, acted as umpire. Fourteen were counted between Seminole and Seagraves, five in one field. By the time Wellman was reached it was too dark to see well. But W. D. had managed to find 19 of the light colored animals. He decided to try and find the 20th horse in Brownfield but was unable to do so. "I lost by a horse," said the veteran attorney.

1,300 FEET OFF LOCATION

Lamesa is 1,300 feet off where it was to have been located, due to the early section lines not being correctly located. R. E. Morris, Big Spring and the first county surveyor of Lynn county, says. However there is no danger of the town being moved or an attempt made, Mr. Morris said, because the case was settled by the courts in a law suit. First corners were not found, he explained and those that were located were not the right ones.

BILL ON HUNT

Bill Watson, Lamesa bus owner, is off on a hunting trip to New Mexico. So far Bill has not reported on the number of bucks he shot or the number he did not shoot.

MISSISSIPPI CELEBRATION

Clyde Backenstos, court reporter for Judge Gordon M. McGuire and historian of the Allen-Houston post of the American Legion at Lamesa, missed his first Armistice Day celebration there this year. Clyde and the judge held court in Post and were unable to get back in time. J. D. Dyer and S. Robinson said that Clyde missed the best chicken dinner the town has known. There were about 18 or 20 former service men at the dinner, with their wives and children and several women whose husbands were unable to be present. Also the auxiliary was well represented, the parents of Robert Houston and the father and sister of J. T. Allen, the other boy for whom the post was named. A number of other friends and speakers on the program were present, with between 100 and 125 in all.

MUSIC FESTIVAL WEEK IS SLATED

A city-wide music festival, under direction of Prof. I. E. Reynolds, head of the music department of the Southwestern Baptist Theological seminary, Fort Worth, will open at 7 o'clock tonight at the First Baptist church, to continue through remainder of this week.

All choirs of the city are being invited to take part in the week's activities as well as all others interested in music.

Prof. Reynolds is being assisted by Mrs. Reynolds who will meet all Sunday school pilgrims and those of the young people's organizations in another section of the building apart from the main program where she will conduct classes in hymn playing.

The program for each evening follows: 7:45 Theory, disputed points in music; 7:45 to 8:30 Hymnology; 8:30 to 9:15 Choral conducting, congregational singing and special music.

ADD TO CEMETERY

LITTLEFIELD, Nov. 17—(Special)—Ten acres were added to the Littlefield cemetery, Mrs. C. O. Stone said in announcing the annual membership drive of the association. Recently new improvements have been made at the cemetery and a new fence is now projected. Pat Boone is president and J. H. Lucas secretary of the association.

Roads over post bags in Scotland are based on rafts.

MYSTERY SHOW ON AT TECH TONIGHT

An expose of spiritualistic fraud is promised Lubbock amusement seekers tonight when S. S. Henry, popular artist-magician, presents his mystery program at Texas Tech gymnasium under auspices of the "Matador" band. The program is scheduled to begin at 8 o'clock.

Dr. Henry has investigated and exposed many fakirs and has long been in touch with the situation as it exists in this country. A portion of his magic and mystery show is devoted to discussion, with demonstrations of the very latest spirit tests and weird psychic phenomena.

Has "Spirit Paintings"

One of the most interesting of such tests is that of the "Spirit Paintings" in which from a very crude form, has been developed and perfected by Mr. Henry, until in its present form, onlookers will see the chosen picture gradually and visibly appear, taking form, color and shape while all eyes are upon it. These spirit paintings are but one of the many interesting items on the program of the master magician and entertainer who has assembled one of the largest mystery shows now touring the country and has many mystifying novelties including the vanishing goat, the Fairy Fountain, Alice in Wonderland, Perambulating Shadows, The Doll's House, and others of mystery and wholesome entertainment.
